8. Bona fide purchaser.—A seller under a warranty drew a draft on the buyer for the price, and with the bill of lading indorsed it to a bank in the ordinary course of business, and the bank gave the seller credit on its books for the amount of the draft, less the usual discount. The bank had no notice of any noncompliance with the contract on the part of the seller. Held, that the bank was an innocent purchaser for value, and it did not become a warrantor of the quality and quantity of the goods described in the bill of lading. First Nat. Bank of Chicago v. Mineral Wells & L. P. St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1099.

The bank forwarded the draft and bill of lading to its correspondent for collection, with instructions not to surrender the bill of lading until the draft was paid. The corresponding bank, finding it full, acted thereon. After the payment to the correspondent and before the transmission thereof to the bank, the latter was notified of the failure of the seller to comply with the contract of sale, and at that time the bank had in its possession funds belonging to the seller more than sufcient to make up the difference in the price which he had paid for the cotton, the bank taking from the seller any balance due to him. The bank then paid the buyer for the loss it had sustained, and the bank was not liable to the buyer for the loss sustained, and the seller could not claim the amount due to the bank from its correspondent; there being nothing to impeach the good faith of the bank and the transaction between the buyer and the bank.

9. Contracts for transportation.—A shipper, contracting with a railroad station agent for transportation of goods, is under no legal obligation to make inquiries concerning the station agent's instructions or powers. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Williams

(Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 832. Written contract for shipment of cattle held not to merge previous verbal contract made by agent, in which he agreed to have cars ready on a certain day. Gulf, C. & S.

10. Authority of agents and employees.—Where a shipper enters the offices of a carrier, he may assume that the person therein dealing with him has a right to bind the carrier, and, if he has not, the carrier must prove want of authority. Pecos & N. T.

An agent of an initial carrier receiving goods for transportation to a foreign country has no power to contract with the shipper that the sum paid for carriage shall cover import duties demanded by the foreign country, where the charge demanded is the amount fixed according to tariffs promulgated by the carriers, and filed with and ap­

Breusing (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 957.

A railroad station agent has power to contract that the railroad will furnish cars at a named place and date for the transportation of freight so as to bind the company.

Where a railroad agent induced to issue fraudulent bills of lading for half bales of cotton as full bales, by reason of false certificates of a compress company, the fact that the carrier's servant had knowledge of the fraud in time to have prevented its accomplishment, but negligently or willfully failed to disclose the same, did not bar the carrier's right to recover over against the compress company for any recovery against it on

Where a carrier by the fraudulent certificates of a compress company was induced to issue bills of lading for full bales of cotton of estimated weights, when in fact only half bales were delivered to it, the carrier, not having pleaded a denial of the authority of its agent, was estopped to deny against an innocent holder of the bills that it had received full bales to the number stated in the bills. 1d.

A carrier's agent at a station to which goods were not consigned had no authority to contract to ship another agent's property and to re-ship it to the destination of the shipper; nor had the shipper authority to contract to re-ship them from destination to his station. Anderson v. St. Louis, B. & M.

11. Modification.—Obligations under a contract to carry a dead body held not controlled by recitals of a receipt, given by the carrier's agent after the contract was

12. Specific performance.—Specific performance of a contract securing to a railroad company certain freight held not to be denied on the ground that it conflicts with a prior contract with another railroad company. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short

A contract with a proposed road for the transportation of freight held not to be delayed specific performance because of lack of mutuality, in that it was terminable at the option of the proposed road. 1d.

Specific performance of a contract with a railroad company securing to it the shipment of a percentage of the product of a salt company held not to be denied on the ground that the road was not sufficiently equipped to give good service. 1d.

A proposed road for the transportation of a certain freight has some time to run, and the acts required to be done may continue for such period, held to furnish no sufficient excuse for not enforcing specific performance, when the acts to be done are purely ministerial. 1d.

In a suit by a railroad company for specific performance of a contract, evidence considered, and held insufficient to show that the contract was fraudulent. 1d.

A provision in a contract with a railroad company that it shall terminate without notice or consent to another shall cease to be effective held not to prevent specific performance, where the proposed road had been constructed and was a competing road, prohibited by the Constitution from consolidating. 1d.

13. Delivery to carrier.—The placing of goods on the car of a railway company without authority is not a delivery to the company. Yoakum v. Dryden (Civ. App.) 26 S.

W. 312.

Plaintiff delivered cotton to a compress company, which was defendant's agent for shipment when compressed, and after the cotton had been checked by the compress company, plaintiff presented the bills of lading to defendant's agent, but he refused to sign them because the insurance carried by the compress company to cover cotton on its platform for shipment, pursuant to an agreement between it and the railroad company, was not sufficient to cover the cotton then on hand, and plaintiff's cotton was destroyed before it was held, that there was a delivery of the cotton to defendant for transportation before the fire. Texas Midland R. R. v. H. L.

Edwards & Co., 56 C. A. 643, 121 S. W. 570.

Railroad Commission Regulations, § 7, provides that, when cotton is tendered to a railroad company on the flatcar of the railroad company, the duty of the railroad to take charge of and receipt for the cotton in the same manner and on the same terms as it would receive, and receipt for the cotton if tendered at any other place assigned by it for such transaction, provided, however, that the shipper or the compress company shall in such cases assume the additional risk of insurance involved by such act of the carrier. For the possession of tendered cotton, providing that each carrier over whose route cotton was to be carried thereunder should have the privilege of, at its own cost, compressing the same in accordance with the rules and regulations of the railroad commission. Held, that through the compressor company, as its agent, the railroad had possession of the cotton, so that the title therefor as common carrier attached. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

In order to constitute delivery to a carrier, complete control of the goods must be given to it. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 992.

14. Ownership, custody, and control of goods.—The shipper in whose name the bill of lading for goods is taken may sue the carrier for their non-delivery or loss. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Stewart, 1 App. C. C. § 1247.

When goods are delivered to the carrier to be delivered to the consignee, prima facie the consignee is the owner; but when the consignor merely contracts with the owner for the conveyance of the goods to a certain point, and the consignor is shown to be the owner before shipment, there is nothing to show the change of ownership. E. L. & R. R. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 84 T. 615.

The consignor or shipper may sue the carrier for injury to goods shipped, without reference to his property in such goods. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 84 T. 648, 19 S. W. 509.

The fact that property was shipped in the name of an agent will not prevent a recovery by the owner. Railway Co. v. Humphries, 4 C. A. 333, 23 S. W. 556; Railway Co. v. Freeman, 57 T. 156.

Property in hands of a carrier held not to belong to the consignee, so as to enable him to maintain an action for injuries thereto. Cudahy Packing Co. v. Dorsey, 26 C. A. 484, 63 S. W. 548.

Railroad company, erroneously delivering wheat to another than the consignee, held immediately liable to the consignor for the value of the wheat. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Boyer, 31 C. A. 158, 72 S. W. 895.

In letters confirming a sale, reference to Galveston held one of price only, and not as a place of delivery, and title passed on delivery of the wheat to the carrier. Chas. F. Orthwein & Bros. v. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co., 32 C. A. 490, 75 T. 221.

In case of oral contract for sale of wheat, on delivery of the wheat to a carrier, and delivery of the bill of lading to the buyer, title vests in him, and transportation is at his risk. Id.

Where bill of lading providing for delivery to person or order, the goods are kept within his control, and the fact that the buyer is named as consignee does not pass title. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1094.

A delivery of goods by a seller to a carrier held to transfer, under the contract, the property to the buyer. L. Greif & Bro. v. Seligman (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 533.

Where goods are turned over by the vendor to the common carrier, title passes to the vendee, although the shipment is C. O. D. Keller v. State (Cr. App.) 87 S. W. 609, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 489.

Where whisky was delivered by vendor to a carrier for transportation and delivery to vendees, title passed to vendees subject to vendor's right of stoppage in transit. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rotter Bros. (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 402.

Where title to loss shipped remained in defendant, and he exercised control of them in transit, and the buyer and consignee only paid plaintiff for the goods which safely arrived, plaintiff was entitled to sue for damages against the railroad company for loss of bill in transit. Laws v. A. F. Ry. W. Co. (Civ. App.) 1075.

If the consignor is the real owner of the goods, and makes the contract of carriage for himself, or if it is made directly with him, though he does not retain title to the goods, he may sue for their loss. Id.

When a consignor shipped goods to himself as consignee, the buyer not to obtain the bill of lading until payment of the draft attached, the consignor alone could sue for damages for delay of shipment. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Robinson & Martin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 444.

Whether the title to goods remains in the consignee or not, if the contract for their transportation is directly made with him, he may sue thereon for damages in transportation; his recovery being for the benefit of the consignee if he was the real owner. Id.

Where the risk of transportation of goods is upon the consignor, he will be considered the owner for the purpose of suing the carrier for loss or injury. Id.

Where a seller in Texas, who contracted with a buyer in New York to deliver to him there a specified quantity of goods, delivered the goods to a carrier and received a bill of lading making the shipment subject to the seller's order, and the seller endorsed the bill of lading and drew a draft on the buyer, and attached the bill of lading thereto, and sent it to New York for collection, with directions to deliver the bill of lading on payment of the draft, the title to the goods vested in the buyer when he paid the draft, and the seller, who had not guaranteed the weights of the shipment, could not, after payment of the draft, sue the carrier for a shortage thereafter occurring; but, where the title had not passed to the buyer at the time the shortage occurred, the seller could sue. Texas & S. O. Co. v. Dupree Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 621.

Where plaintiff, upon purchasing a car load of freight from the owner, which was being transported on defendant's line, executed a bond to defendant guaranteeing payment of any freight charges due, the actual payment of such charges, which were the consideration of the bond, was not a condition precedent to passing of title to plaintiff. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. W. J. Hughes & Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 719.

The consignor of goods as the party to the contract of shipment may sue the carrier for their destruction in transit, though he has sold them, and indorsed and delivered the bill of lading. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1075.
The consignors of a shipment, though not the owners, may maintain an action in their own name for a breach of the contract of consignment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. A. E. Patterson & Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 628.

Owner shipping cotton held not entitled, under the bill of lading accepted by him, designating consignees as shippers and owners, to assert that he was the owner or consignor in violation thereon for the right of action as a bystander's alleged wrongful delivery. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Gilbreath (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1051.

A buyer of goods in whom the title is vested, but who is not entitled to possession from the carrier until payment of the price, may maintain an action against the carrier for damages for delay in transportation. Robinson & Martin v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 146 S. W. 537, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Robinson & Martin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 444.

A consignor delivers to a carrier and forwards bill of lading with draft attached for collection, the title vests in the buyer without payment of the price or actual delivery. Id.

The "lawful holder" of bills of lading, within the meaning of the Carmack amendment, is the owner of the property transported or the beneficiary entitled to recover for loss or injury to the shipment, and a shipper was not deprived of his right to sue as such holder by surrendering the bills of lading in exchange for return transportation for himself. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 369.

15. Transportation and delivery by carrier.—See Art. 6610.

The carrier is discharged from his responsibility as such, when he finds no consignee to whom the goods may be delivered at the place of consignment. House v. Soder, 36 T. 629.

A delivery of goods to the agent of the consignee relieves the carrier. Railway Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 748.

Where the carrier delivers the goods to a person of the same name as the consignee, though by false and fraudulent devices such person impersonates the consignee, the carrier is not liable, unless the fails to untangle the act in good faith and with due diligence. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Hertzberg, 17 C. A. 190, 42 S. W. 756.

It was negligence for the carrier to deliver goods to the wrong person, though of the same name as the consignee, where such person had no bill of lading, and gave no evidence of his authority to receive the goods. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Citron (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1017.

A contract between a railroad and a salt company construed, and held not to require delivery to the railroad for transportation a certain percentage of the salt company's tonnage as it accrued. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. 95 T. 434, 90 S. W. 563, 3 La. R. A. (N. S.) 825.

16. Delay in delivery.—See notes under Art. 713.

17. — Perishable goods.—Carrier of perishable goods, obeying consignor's instruction not to ice, held not liable for damages, unless unreasonable delay in transportation required violation of instruction. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dorsey, 39 G. A. 217, 70 S. W. 575.

Where a carrier's agent consented, when requested, to place a car of perishable fruit in position for unloading and failed to do so and the fruit decayed, the carrier was liable for his negligent failure. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Payne (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1126.

18. — Stoppage in transit.—The seller of chattels has a lien upon them and the right to hold them for the purchase price so long as they are in his possession; and, when they have been shipped for delivery to the debtor who has become insolvent, the right to hold them in the possession, and the right to recover possession, even for an unpaid price. This right continues not only while the goods are in actual transit, but until they have reached their destination and are delivered into the actual or constructive possession of the consignee. Harris v. Tenney, 35 T. 254, 30 S. W. 82, 34 Am. St. Rep. 726.

The creditor's right to stop the goods is to recover the possession and hold them subject to the seller's lien, and, if the goods have been converted by one in violation of this right, he would be liable for the value of the same. In such suit the debtor is not a necessary party. Id.

At common law the implied obligation of the carrier was to transport freight by continuous passage from the point of delivery within a reasonable time, and the carrier was not bound to permit the stoppage in transport. Bergin v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1184.

19. — Place of delivery.—The consignee is entitled to receive his goods at the place where the carrier undertook to deliver them, and is under no obligation to seek, demand or receive them elsewhere. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 49 T. 748, 30 Am. Rep. 157; G. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 2 App. C. C. § 513. And goods must be so delivered, although partially injured by the act of God. Railroad Co. v. Harn, 44 T. 628.

Where a railroad company contracts to deliver a car of lumber to the consignee in a specified part of a city, a tender of the lumber to the consignee at its station in the city is making, and its pickup demand on the part of the city specified is a breach of its contract, so that a sale of the lumber for charges claimed to be due thereon was a conversion thereof, which made it liable to the shipper for its value. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Driskill (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 466.

The producer of a bill of lading v. require the production of a bill of lading before he delivers the goods, and he may do so before delivery when the consignee refuses to receive the goods. But a carrier cannot rightfully refuse to deliver the goods after inspecting the bill of lading, on the ground that the bill of lading is consigned to him, if the charges as contained in the bill and executed his receipt for the goods. Dwyer v. Railway Co., 69 T. 707, 7 S. W. 504.
The carrier, in case of dispute as to amount due, refusing to exhibit his bill of lading or his receipt therefor, and refusing to render the goods, hence subject to penalty for non-delivery. Railway Co. v. Dwyer, 15 S. W. 572, 12 S. W. 1091; Id., 84 F. 194, 19 S. W. 470.

21. — Liability for failure or refusal to deliver.—Mere delay, however unreasonable, on the part of the carrier in delivering goods does not amount to a conversion. The consignor must receive them so long as they retain their identity. Baumbach v. Railway Co., 69 S. W. 695, 1 C. A. 591.

Where a railroad company retains wheat recovered after a storm an unreasonable time without delivery to the consignee, it is liable for conversion of the wheat so recovered. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 229, 67 S. W. 129.

The responsibility of the carrier safely keeping the goods does not amount to a conversion, but to constitute a conversion there must be a demand and a refusal to deliver. Davies v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 295.

Where goods shipped do not reach the destination, the carrier is guilty of conversion and liable for their value, except where an act of God intervenes. R. W. Williamson & Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 897.

Where a railroad company by mistake delivered goods consigned to plaintiff to another, but recovered them within a day, and tendered them to plaintiff within three days, there was no conversion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wortham (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1071.

Where a terminal carrier of an interstate shipment, through a mistake as to the rate, refused to deliver the goods until an excessive rate was paid, the refusal amounted to conversion. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

22. — Connecting carriers.—See notes under Arts. 731, 732.

23. Actions for failure to deliver or misdelivery—Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 55, Chapter 4.

24. Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action against a carrier for failure to deliver a carload of goods, evidence held to warrant a finding that the goods, though delivered to the carrier had never been received by the consignee. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Schawe (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 919.

Although a bill of lading has not been demanded or delivered, if a railroad company has taken control of goods for shipment, the liability of the common carrier, as at common law, attaches. E. L. & R. R. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 64 T. 615. See T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 494; Railway Co. v. Dimmit County Pasture Co., 23 S. W. 754, 5 C. A. 180.

Whenever goods intrusted to a carrier from any cause require special care and attention, the carrier must do all that might reasonably be expected of a prudent and careful person, and if necessary incur reasonable expense for their preservation. When they are exposed to danger of deterioration or destruction from their inherent infirmity, or from any cause, it is his duty to employ a reasonable degree of skill and diligence to preserve them. M. P. Ry. Co. v. Earnes, 2 App. C. C. § 677.

The charges for non-delivery of goods are for the non-delivery, and not for the value of the goods at the point of delivery. The freight charges, if not paid, should be deducted. Railway Co. v. Ball, 80 T. 602, 16 S. W. 441.

Loss sustained by consignor by reason of carrier’s failure to deliver at destination named in bill of lading held special, and not recoverable, in the absence of proof that the carrier was instrumental in permitting it, or had knowledge of the consignor’s contract with consignee. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pickens (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 156.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to goods in transit, defendant held entitled to recovery. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood, 26 C. A. 550, 63 S. W. 834. A common carrier is liable for goods injured, lost, or destroyed while in his care from any cause whatever, other than the act of God, the public enemy, or the fault of the owner, or seizure of the goods under legal process. Bibb v. M. K. & T. Ry. Co., 37 C. A. 508, 54 S. W. 607.

In a suit for a carrier’s conversion of a car of coke plaintiff, a manufacturing company held not entitled to recover for loss of an order for work subsequently filled. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Neches Iron Works, 57 C. A. 248, 122 S. W. 64.

Defendant carrier held not liable for loss sustained by plaintiffs on a car of cabbage, where the consignee’s refusal to accept the cabbage was not because of the carrier’s negligence in adding an icing charge to the expense bill. Freeman v. Quebedeaux (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 643.

26. Loss or Injury to goods.—A carrier, having notice that the shipper had sold cotton received for shipment, held liable for the difference between the cotton delivered to him and the cotton delivered by it to the consignee. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chatham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 111.

The measure of damages for the conversion of a car by a household and kitchen furniture is actual value, and it is not necessary, to prove value, to first prove market value. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 267.
27. Character and value of goods.—The carrier is not relieved of liability for loss of freight, bill of lading, or merchandise which was issued stating contents and value as unknown, because the property was valuable, and it had no knowledge of the value; there having been no deception by the shipper. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quillot (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 200.

If the shipper's misstatements as to the contents of a box shipped were material, and caused the carrier to omit the performance of some attention which the goods required, whereby they were lost, it would not be responsible for such loss, whether the misstatements were intentional or inadvertent. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ray (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 221.

If the packages in which freight is presented to the carrier, or the marks thereon, mislead it to believe that the freight is ordinary freight instead of goods of exceptional value, and the shipper does not notify the carrier of the character of the goods, the carrier will not be liable for their exceptional value if lost. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quillot (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 261.

The shipment of silverware and expensive china in a box and barrel is not so unusual nor is their value so extraordinary as to require the shipper as a matter of law to guarantee the contents to the carrier. Where goods are placed in a carrier's possession for immediate shipment and are destroyed before transportation begins, the carrier cannot escape liability except by showing that the loss was due to an act of God, the public enemy, an inherent defect, or negligence of the shipper. Id.

28. Fraud of shipper.—When goods are shipped as freight the carrier will be discharged from responsibility if the shipper has used fraud or concealment to deceive him whereby his risk is increased or his care and vigilance may be lessened. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. York, 2 App. C. C. § 635.

Facts held to show a fraud by a shipper on a carrier, reliving it from liability for the theft of goods shipped. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Pitman, 30 C. A. 626, 71 S. W. 312.

29. Estoppel to deny consignee's title.—In action by consignee against carrier and consignor to recover goods shipped, facts held to constitute an estoppel to deny consignee's title. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dorsey, 30 C. A. 377, 70 S. W. 575.

30. Commencement, duration, and termination of liability.—The liability of a common carrier continues from the commencement of the trip until the goods are delivered to the consignee at the point of destination on its own line. Railway Co. v. Haynes, 72 T. 175, 10 S. W. 383. And see G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dwyer, 84 T. 194, 18 S. W. 470.

The liability of a common carrier is fixed by the receipt of an article for transportation. Railway Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 715.

Where plaintiff's cotton seed was placed in certain houses located on a carrier's right of way, but not belonging to the carrier, for storage until cars could be obtained in which it could be shipped, and no bills of lading had been issued, or other act done showing an intention to accept the seed for transportation, the railroad was not liable as a carrier for the destruction of the seed by fire communicated to the storage houses from fire originating on its cotton platform from sparks from defendant's engine. Abbott Gin Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 57 C. A. 263, 122 S. W. 294.

32. Directions of shipper.—Where a shipper directed the carrier in a bill of lading to carry bananas with the ventilators of the car closed and the plugs all out, and the carrier closed the ventilators but left the plugs all in, the principle that the carrier is not responsible for loss or injury to goods occasioned by their being improperly loaded by the shipper has no application, and the carrier is liable for injury occasioned by violating the instructions. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Davis-Fowler Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 309.

Directions given by a shipper of fruit for loading held not to preclude a recovery for damages thereto. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woldert Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1194.

33. Means of transportation.—A carrier is not required to procure cars of sufficient strength so to withstand a storm which is as likely to occur. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Texas Star Flour Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1179.

Where the evidence in a shipper's action showed that the defendant did not exercise due diligence to make the vessel seaworthy, the court properly refused to instruct the jury that defendant was not required to make it seaworthy, but was required only to use due diligence in such respect. Mallory S. S. Co. v. G. A. Bahm Diamond & Optical Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 282.

35. — Act of God, vis major, or inevitable accident.—When the act of God is relied upon it must be shown to be the proximate cause of the loss, and without any contributory cause on the part of the carrier. Chevalier v. Part of the carrier, 2 David, Dec. 639; Philpoo v. Sanford, 17 T. 227, 67 Am. Dec. 654; M. F. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 8 App. C. C. § 576.

For failure to carry and deliver goods the carrier cannot excuse himself by reason of the fact that, through human agency not under his control, this was prevented, without fault on his part. Railway Co. v. Leve, 76 T. 337, 13 S. W. 191, 8 L. R. A. 322, 18 Am. St. Rep. 45.

A railway company is not liable for conversion of wheat in its possession for transportation, which was destroyed by an unusual storm, though there was delay in the transportation and delivery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 129, 67 S. W. 129.

The weather was not unusual, hence consignors could not recover for loss caused by severe, but not unprecedented, cold weather. Gillott v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 61.

36. Effect of insurance.—It was stipulated in a bill of lading that in case the goods were destroyed the carrier should have full benefit of any insurance on them. The cotton was destroyed in transit. The amount of the policy was paid by the insurance company to the shipper, who transferred the claim against the railway company to the insurance company. Held, that the insurance company could not recover the loss from the carrier. B. & F. M. Ins. Co. v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 63 T. 475, 51 Am. Rep. 561.

A carrier can provide in his contract of shipment that he shall have the benefit of any insurance on the goods, and if the owner has received from the insurance company the amount he is thereby from recovery against the carrier. Railway Co. v. Zimmerman, 81 T. 605, 17 S. W. 239. See also, Insurance Co. v. Easton, 73 T. 167, 11 S. W. 180, 3 L. R. A. 424.

A fire policy obtained by a shipper on goods shipped, reciting the release by assured of the carrier from liability under its bill of lading, and the waiver by the insurer of any right of subrogation against the carrier, constitutes no defense to a claim of the shipper against the carrier for the burning of the goods, there being no such privity between it and the parties to the contract of insurance, with reference thereto, as to authorize it to recover any benefit from it as against insured. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1076.

Payment by an insurance company for cotton negligently burned by a railway company does not inure to the benefit of the railroad company; there being no privity between it and insurer. Nussbaum & Scharff v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1053.

37. Connecting carriers.—See notes under Arts. 751, 752.

38. Action for loss or injury—Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

39. Presumptions, burden of proof, and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

40. Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action against a common carrier to recover the value of property lost, to authorize a recovery the plaintiff must prove: 1. That defendant was a common carrier. 2. That the property was received as freight by defendant. 3. That the defendant failed to deliver the property at the place of destination. 4. The market value of the property at the place of destination at the time it should have been delivered. Railway Co. v. Douslan, 2 App. C. C. § 29.

Evidence held insufficient to show that damage sustained by goods in transit was due to negligence of God, and not to carrier's negligence. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 C. A. 437, 66 S. W. 341.

In an action against a railroad company for the value of cotton destroyed by fire, while on the platform of a cotton compress company to be compressed and shipped over defendant's railroad, the court held to sustain a finding that the compress company was defendant's agent for receiving the cotton. Texas Midland R. R. v. H. L. Edwards & Co., 56 C. A. 643, 121 S. W. 570.

In absence of proof that the carrier received for transportation the goods claimed to have been damaged, judgment against the carrier for damages for loss and damage in transit is not sustained by evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Cumby Mercantile & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 568.

In an action against a carrier for damages to goods, plaintiff's testimony as to their cost, the amount of their use and deterioration, and what they were worth to him, will be treated as sufficient proof of their value. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Giles (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 252.

Where, in an action for injuries to goods, plaintiff testified that he made the shipment, and that it was consigned to H., but there was no evidence that the property belonged to plaintiff, or that he had any interest therein after it was delivered to the consignee. Ry. Co. v. Looke (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 298.

Evidence in an action against a railroad company for damages for the loss of three barrels of whiskey held to sustain the verdict for plaintiff. Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Japhet & Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1194.

In an action for loss of silverware and china en route which were shipped, packed in a box and barrel, evidence held to sustain a finding that the railroad company's agent was not misled as to the character or value of the goods by any statement of the shipper, or by the nature of the packages or the markings thereon. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. C. & N. Y. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 261.

In an action against a carrier for damage to goods by fire while in control of the carrier, evidence held insufficient to conclusively overcome the presumption of defendant's negligence. Southern Pac. Co. v. Weatherford Cotton Mills (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 778.

In an action against a terminal carrier for damage to a shipment of apples, evidence held to establish a finding of actionable negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1026.

In an action against a carrier for damage to freight, evidence held to show that the damage was caused by an act of God. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Texas Star Flour Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1179.

Evidence held to sustain the jury's finding that defendant railroad company's agent did not notify a consignee of the arrival of the freight, for the loss of which consignee was seeking to recover. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1105.

41. - Damages.—When an article has no market value, its real value is to be determined by the jury from its price at place of manufacture, cost of carriage, and a reasonable sum for profits, etc. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 513.

Interest was awarded in this case by the judgment, but, as a case by the judgment, but, as the ruling had been reversed, and judgment was rendered excluding the interest. Railway Co. v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 136.

When a part of the goods received by a carrier are lost or damaged, the consignee may refuse to receive the remainder and may recover the value of the entire shipment. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 2 App. C. C. § 342.

When the measure of damages is the value of the goods at the place of destination, the carrier is entitled to freight. Otherwise, when the value at the place of shipment governs. M. F. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 2 App. C. C. § 590; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 61 T. 550.

Where goods have no special marketable value, such as second-hand clothing, table furniture and the like, being useful chiefly to the owner, the measure of damages when lost or damaged, the actual loss to the owner, less the charges for transportation. This rule cannot be altered by contract so as to limit or restrict the liability of the carrier, when the contract is to be performed entirely within this state. Railroad Co. v. Booton, 4 App. C. C. § 232, 15 S. W. 999.

When an article has no market value, such as family portraits, in estimating the damages the jury may consider their original cost and probable cost of reproducing them. H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Burke, 55 T. 323, 40 Am. Rep. 808.

The measure of damages where merchandise in transit is destroyed by fire is its value at the time of its loss with legal interest. Tucker v. Hamlin, 69 T. 174.

In case of total loss the measure of damages for the loss of mares with foal would be the price they would have brought at the place of destination in the condition they would have been in had the carrier exercised due and necessary care of the stock while in its possession, less the freight. M. P. R. R. Co. v. Fugan, 72 T. 127, 9 S. W. 749, 2 L. R. A. 75, 13 Am. St. Rep. 776.

Where the measurement of recovery is the value of the property, it is proper for the jury to add interest from the date of the injury as part of the damages. Pt. W. & D. Ry. Co. v. Greathouse, 82 T. 104, 17 S. W. 534.

Where articles belonging to a museum were destroyed, it was held that the measure of damages was the value of such articles at the nearest market. No recovery can be had for any alleged deterioration in the value of articles not destroyed, nor for mental anguish caused by the delay. The probable net profits which plaintiff would have made by an exhibition if there had been no delay may be recovered. Yosum v. Dunn, 21 S. W. 412, 1 C. A. 324.

The measure of damages for goods lost in transit, where they have no market value, is the cost of reproducing same; but, if this cannot be done, then the value of the property is the same. -W. T. C. R. Co. v. N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 494.

The measure of damages for loss of goods by the negligence of a carrier is the value of the goods at the place of destination. -Southern Pac. Co. v. D'Arcarais, 27 C. A. 57, 64 S. W. 813.

The measure of damages for injury to household goods in use while in the hands of a carrier is the difference in actual value just prior to and just after the injury, and not the difference in market value. -Wells Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

Where plate glass was totally destroyed in transportation, the measure of the carrier's liability was the market value of the glass at destination, with interest at 6 per cent., less the freight, together with so much of the freight and expense of hauling as had been prepaid. -Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hoffecker (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 617.

Where the freight due a carrier entered into the amount of damages for which the carrier was liable for loss of the goods, limitations did not run against the carrier's right to have the freight deducted from such damages. Id.

Where an owner of goods shipped lost the sale because of their delivery in bad order, his measure of damages was the difference between the value of the goods in their damaged condition and the present value of his contract of sale. -Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Coulter (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 16.

Nonpayment of transportation charges held proper to be shown in an action for damage to fruit delivered to a carrier for transportation. -St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Woldert & Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1194.

Art. 711. [323] [281] Liability as warehousemen, etc.—Railroad companies and other common carriers having depots and warehouses for storing goods, shall be liable as warehousemen at common law for goods and the care of the same stored in such depots or warehouses before the commencement of the trip or voyage on which said goods are to be transported; but shall be liable as common carriers from the commencement of the trip or voyage until the goods are delivered to the consignee at the point of destination. [Id. 455.]

Carrier as warehouseman.—A warehouseman is liable only for want of ordinary care. -T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Schneider, 1 App. C. C. § 118; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Morse, 1 App. C. C. § 412.

It is not necessary to make a tender of the freight charges, unless demanded by the carrier, after the acceptance of the goods. If payment is then refused the carrier will hold the goods merely as a warehouseman until returned to the owner. The owner may recover actual damages for refusal to receive and ship goods tendered, upon an allegation that he was and always had been ready to pay charges, etc. What may be the rule in an action for the penalty is not determined. -T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 2 App. C. C. § 291.

Where a railroad company allowed shippers of cotton to leave cotton on its station platform until the full lot to be shipped was ready, it was liable, as a warehouseman, under this article, for part of a lot of cotton intended for shipment, left overnight on the platform by the shipper, in accordance with the custom, awaiting the rest of the shipment to be brought the next day. -Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. S. Marshall Bulley & Son (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 480.

A railroad company held bound as a warehouseman to use ordinary care to prevent and extinguish fires. -Id.

A shipper who left cotton upon a railroad's cotton platform, where it was burned, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

Where at destination the shipper surrenders the bill of lading, and the railroad company places the car on the unloading track for him, and he, though removing part of the goods, allows others to remain therein, by permission of the company, on agreement to pay demurrage, the relation of carrier and shipper ceases, and any liability for the burning of those left is that of a carrier. -Texas & P. R. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 708.

Cotton compress as agent.—Delivery to a compress by a railroad company under the regulations of the railroad commission, requiring a railroad, when requested by the shipper of cotton, to deliver it to the nearest compress on the line of its route for compressing, being at a point between that of shipment and that stipulated by the bill of lading for delivery to the consignee, does not change its liability for the cotton while at the compress from that of a common carrier, as it existed at common law, which article 708, prevents its limiting to that of a warehouseman; but, under this article, the compress is its agent; and it can relieve itself of liability for the burning of the cotton at the compress, under its stipulation against liability for fire, only by pleading and proving that its negligence, or that of its servants, did not contribute to such loss. -St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

Commencement, duration, and termination of liability as carrier for loss or damage.—See notes under Art. 710.

Burden of proof.—See Title 53, Chapter 4. Delivery by carrier in general.—See notes under Arts. 710 and 713.

Notice.—Railroad companies must give notice of the receipt of freight by posting a written notice on the deposit door, and the freight, if not removed within three days, will be held by it as a warehouseman at the expense of the owner. -Post, Art. 6590.

Notice must be given within business hours and under such circumstances as will permit the consignee to receive and remove his goods. -T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Schneider, 1 App. C. C. § 121. A carrier by water is subject to the same rule. -Morgan v. Dibble, 29 T. 107, 94 Am. Dec. 264.
Railroad companies must give notice to consignee before they will be released from their liability as carriers. Post, Art. 6596. Railroad companies are required to erect suitable warehouses at every station. Post, Art. 6596. A railroad is not liable as a common carrier for goods placed upon its platform, in its depot or warehouse for shipment, until the bill of lading is signed. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Douglas, 2 App. C. C. § 30.

A carrier becomes responsible only as a warehouseman when goods are stored after notice to the consignee. Railway Co. v. Haynes, 72 T. 175, 10 S. W. 392. And see G. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dwyer, 84 T. 194, 19 S. W. 470.

Under this article, a carrier which has received goods at its station, and after notifying the consignee has put them in the warehouse of the station for safe-keeping, and has exercised due care to protect, preserve, and deliver such goods, is not liable for their value if lost. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Winn (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 972.

Where the consignee of goods does not at once receive them on notice of their arrival at destination, they must be stored, and the carrier's liability is that of warehouseman. R. W. Williamson & Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 807.

Articles 725, 726, authorizing a carrier to sell freight remaining unclaimed for three months on giving thirty days' notice, and these articles are not in pari materia because they are enacted for different purposes and are independent of each other, and the right to sell unclaimed freight does not depend on whether the carrier used due diligence to notify the consignee of the arrival of the freight, but, though it be assumed that the statutes must be construed together, a consignor shipping freight to itself must put itself in position to receive notice of the arrival of the freight at destination, and where it fails to do so, the carrier need not seek the consignee of the freight elsewhere to notify it of the arrival of the freight before making a sale of the freight remaining unclaimed for three months. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1158.

Demurrage and storage.—A consignee is liable for reasonable rates of demurrage and storage. Baumback v. Railway Co., 23 S. W. 695, 4 C. A. 650.

Consignees' duty to pay freight.—A consignee must receive and pay charges for freight when tendered. He cannot refuse to receive a part because the entire amount shipped is not tendered. Railway Co. v. Dutton, 4 App. C. C. § 67, 15 S. W. 502.

Art. 712. [324] [282] Diligence as to delivery.—If the carrier at the point of destination shall use due diligence to notify the consignee, and the goods are not taken by the consignee, and have in consequence to be stored in the depots or warehouses of the common carriers, they shall thereafter only be liable as warehousemen. [Id.]

Art. 713. [325] [283] Shall forward in good order, etc.—Where common carriers receive goods for transportation into their warehouses or depots they shall forward them in the order in which they are received, the first received to be first forwarded, without giving the preference to one over another; and in case they shall fail to do so, they shall be liable, absolutely, for all losses occurring while the goods remain, and for all damages occasioned or in any wise resulting from the delay; provided, that the trip or voyage shall be considered as having commenced from the time of the signing of the bill of lading, and the liability of the common carrier shall attach, at as common law, from and after such signing. [Id.]

Delay in transportation and delivery.—In an action against a common carrier for damages resulting from delay in delivering articles, it must be proven that the carrier was notified of a necessity for prompt delivery. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Talley, 2 App. C. C. § 765.

A carrier must ship perishable freight by the most direct route. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express Co. v. Fuller, 13 C. A. 610, 35 S. W. 84.

A carrier is under the duty to transport and deliver freight within a reasonable time and is not bound only to the exercise of ordinary care to so transport and deliver. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shults (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 845.

Carriers' liability for delaying transportation of many car loads of construction material held not affected because two cars were shipped before publication of a special rate made under the contract. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 81.

A carrier, informed by a shipper that tents were intended to be used during severe weather as a shelter for the protection of his horses, etc., had sufficient notice to render it liable for the expenses and damages which might result by reason of its failure to deliver them within a reasonable time. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 548.

Excuses.—When the goods are actually transported and delivered, but the time of delivery was delayed, may result from circumstances not under control of the carrier, may be excused; his duty then remains that he omit no reasonable effort to secure the safety of the goods. Railway Co. v. Levi, 76 T. 337, 13 S. W. 192.

A shipment having been accepted for transportation without notice to the shipper that there was a shortage of cars and an unprecedented amount of business, the carrier can recover from the carrier the amounts due on the excess of goods over the number of cars actually loaded. Gulf & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mohr, 154 S. W. 1044.

Where the breach of a carrier's undertaking was alleged to be a failure to exercise due care and diligence in making delivery, resulting in delay in delivery, the carrier could allege as a defense any facts which the law recognizes as an excuse for delay, though exceptions from liability on such grounds is limited. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stark Grain Co., 103 T. 542, 131 S. W. 410, modifying judgment (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1146.

To relieve a carrier from liability for delay in delivery due to a congestion of traffic, the shipper must be notified of such condition before the shipment is received, in absence of an express agreement of exemption, and in an action for delay in transporting wheat allegations that the delay was due to a congestion of traffic which was generally known, and that no contracts made with the carrier for shipment of grain on the lines while such conditions existed are made with reference to such conditions, and with full notice thereof by the shippers of their existence, did not show notice to a shipper whose grain was delayed; a showing of notice possessed by the public generally being insufficient. Id.

Failure of a railroad to ship an automobile held not excused by its temporary inability to secure a car large enough to hold it. Griggs v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 769.

In determining what is a reasonable time for transportation and delivery of freight under ordinary conditions, under a contract fixing no time, extraordinary conditions, not known to the shipper at the time of shipment, cannot enlarge the time. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Langbehn (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1185.

Railroad companies are not responsible for delays occasioned by accidents, but are responsible for those which are attributable to their own negligence. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1127.

Connecting carriers.—See notes under Arts. 731, 752.

Assignment of claim for damages.—An assignment to plaintiff of a claim by a consignor for delay in delivery vested in him the right of the shipper. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. 104 T. 602, 123 S. W. 1163.

Actions for delay—Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

Burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to constitute notice to a carrier of the destination of a corpse, and hence render it liable for delay in shipment. St. Louis, S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. French, 25 C. A. 511, 57 S. W. 56.

Evidence held not warrant a finding that vegetables shipped over defendant's road were damaged by delay at point of shipment. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 792.

In an action against railroad companies for negligent delay in shipping cotton, evidence held to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

In an action against a carrier for delay in delivery of shipments which the consignor ordered diverted from its original destination, evidence held to show that the delay was not from any fault of the consignor in failing to deliver original bills of lading in ordering the diversion. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Daniel & Burton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 506.

Evidence held to show that delay in delivery of freight was not caused by the shipper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 81.

Damages.—The measure of damages for failure to deliver goods not intended for use within a reasonable time is the loss and expenses occasioned by the delay, and the value of the goods at the time and place they should have been delivered are their value at that time and place at actual delivery. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Douglass, 1 App. C. C. § 87. See Railway Co. v. Darlington (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 251.

Where goods are intended for personal use, the value of such use during a delay in delivery is the measure of damages, in the absence of special circumstances. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hindsman, 1 App. C. C. § 206.

When a carrier undertakes to deliver property within a certain time, with a knowledge of the special purpose for which it was sent, he must indemnify the shipper for special consequential losses for the delay to deliver within the time specified. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 814.

The owner of goods unreasonably delayed in transportation cannot refuse to receive them on that account and recover their full value, unless their value was wholly destroyed by the delay. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 815; G. & C. S. F. Ry. Co. v. Maetzke, 2 App. C. C. § 637.

Loss of profits in a business cannot be allowed as damage, unless the data of estimation have been calculated on the correct assumption that they certainly resulted from a reasonably caused delay. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jessee, 2 App. C. C. § 405; Electric Light Co. v. Cleburne W., I. & L. Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 504.
In estimating the rental value of property delayed, the market rental value should control. See S. v. F. Ry. Co., 2 App. C. 476. Although the delay may be excusable and due care be taken to prevent against injury to the goods, the carrier is not responsible for damages naturally resulting from the delay, such as decay in fruit, fall in price, etc. Railway Co. v. Levi, 76 T. 353, 18 S. W. 191.

In an action for damages to a shipper, the court will not look to the contract, but will consider the delay and other circumstances prevailing to assess the damages. Bowden v. Rail- way Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 957. Cold and suffering held not the natural and proximate results of a breach of a contract to ship household goods. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 463. In an action against a carrier for delay in shipping a new invention, having no established rental value, held erroneously refused. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hassell, 28 C. A. 681, 55 S. W. 54.

When through the unreasonable delay of a carrier in delivering goods, they deteriorate in value, the owner may recover, in an action for damages, any reasonable expense occasioned by the delay. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Joezy (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 696.

In an action against a carrier for mental anguish by delay in not carrying plaintiff's wife's body on the train upon which plaintiff was carried, recovery could not be made for mental anguish sustained by plaintiff's daughter and sister-in-law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. Case v. Vandiver, 57 C. A. 476, 52 S. W. 555.

A railroad company was not liable in any event for damages caused by its negligent delay in shipping a merry-go-round, shipped to a certain point for use at a picnic there, beyond a reasonable time after its arrival in which it could have been set up for operation, Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Shropshire & Shipper (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 369.

When one ships goods by a common carrier, and alleges such fact and the value of the goods and failure to deliver in a reasonable time, he is entitled to interest on the value for the time of the unreasonable delay, and that he claims a rate of interest beyond the legal rate and debars him from recovering the legal rate. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 103 T. 200, 125 S. W. 561.

The damages recoverable for delay in transportation is the difference in the value of the shipment when it should have been delivered and the time and place it was delivered to the legal rate of interest on the value during the delay, and special damages occasioned by the delay which are the natural result of the breach of which the carrier had notice that the shipper would likely sustain by reason of the detention of the property. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

Where, in an action for delay in shipment of cotton, plaintiffs claimed damages from having to purchase cotton on a rising market to fill their contracts, it was necessary to plead and prove to the carrier at or before making the contract of shipment not of itself to render such damages recoverable; but the extent of the breach occasioned by the contract to ship in circumstances showing that the contract was to some extent based upon such conditions. Id.

In the absence of notice, at the time of the making of a contract of carriage, of special circumstances, the liability of the carrier for a failure to transport the goods within a reasonable time is limited to such damages as are the natural result of such failure, or such as may fairly be supposed to have entered into the contemplation of the parties at the time of the making of the contract as a probable result of its violation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 263.

A carrier contracting to transport lumber to a retailer is not liable for special damages caused by a delay in transportation, resulting to the consignee by reason of the increased price paid by him to supply lumber of the kind contained in the delayed shipment, or to be lost to the retailer which he lost the sale he had made, and the extra time and expense in making local purchases, and the loss of customers and profits on sales by reason of not being able to supply demands for material of the delayed shipment, unless the carrier made at the time of the making of the contract of transportation knew of the peculiar circumstances under which such damages for delay were likely to result, and the mere fact that the consignee was engaged in the sale of lumber, and that similar shipments had been made by the carrier, did not put the carrier on notice of conditions which would render it liable for such damages. Id.

The measure of damages for a carrier's delay in transporting goods is ordinarily the difference between the value of the property shipped when it arrived at its destination, and at the time when it should have arrived. Id.

To make a carrier liable for special damages for delay in the transportation of freight, the special circumstances must be made known to the carrier at the time of the making of the contract of shipment, and notice to the carrier after the shipment has started its itinerary and before it has reached its destination, and while it has been lost because mislaid, is insufficient to make the carrier liable for special damages, but for failure to make delivery after the shipment has reached its destination the carrier is responsible for such special damages as it is then informed will likely result from negligent delay in making a delivery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cherry (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 152.

To charge a carrier of freight for special damages resulting from delay in transportation, held unnecessary that local agents have notice of special purpose of the shipment. Gulf, C. v. Nenon (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 650 held under the evidence not excessive recovery against carriers for delay in transporting material for construction of a government dam and canal. Id.

In an action for damages to a shipment of apples by delay in delivery, an instruction permitting plaintiff to recover the difference in value held to specify the correct measure of damages. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1020.

Special damages for a carrier's delay in transportation cannot be recovered where the carrier had no notice at the time of contract of the special facts; not even those accruing from delay occurring after it is given such notice. Hassier v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 629.
Art. 713

Plaintiff in an action against a carrier for unreasonable delay held entitled to interest on the value of the shipment. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-French & Co., 104 T. 606, 142 S. W. 1103. A carrier, informed by a shipper that tents were intended to be used during severe weather as a stable for the protection of his horses, etc., had sufficient notice to render it liable for the damages which might result by its failure to deliver them within a reasonable time. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Maxwell ( Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 548.

Art. 714. [326] [284] Shall feed and water live stock.—It shall be the duty of a common carrier who conveys live stock of any kind to feed and water the same during the time of conveyance and until the same is delivered to the consignee or disposed of as provided in this title, unless otherwise provided by special contract; and any carrier who shall fail to so feed and water said live stock sufficiently shall be liable to the party injured for his damages, and shall be liable also to a penalty of not less than five nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered by the owner of such live stock in any court having jurisdiction in any county where the wrong is done or where the common carrier resides.

12. FEDERAL.—The penalty is recoverable in an action in the circuit or district court of the United States within which the violation is committed, or the person or corporation resides or carries on its business. The lien for the expense incurred under this act can be enforced under suit. R. S. U. S. §§ 4586-4590; Railway Co. v. Ivy, 79 T. 444; 16 T. M. & T. Ry. Co. v. Turner, 94 T. 417.

This article is not entirely similar to the federal statute regulating interstate shipments, and is limited to domestic shipments. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Sturts, 37 C. A. 51, 82 S. W. 1672.

Application to intrastate shipments.—This article does not apply to intrastate shipments. Railway Co. v. Gann, 8 C. A. 626, 28 S. W. 349; Railway Co. v. Gray, 28 S. W. 350, 87 T. 312. But see Railway Co. v. Gray ( Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 837; Railway Co. v. Thompson ( Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 930.

The law does not require absolutely that the carrier unload, rest, feed, and water cattle en route on an intrastate shipment. The federal statute imposing such requirements not applying to intrastate shipments. ( Civ. App.) Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 123 S. W. 737, judgment reversed 104 T. 93, 134 S. W. 328.

There was evidence from which the jury might have found that the necessity for stopping cattle by a carrier at a certain place for feed and rest, in obedience to statute, was brought about by the negligence of the shipper, the carrier could not escape the damages incident to the delay thereby caused. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Youngblood ( Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 898.

Under this article, if exercise of ordinary care required stock to be unloaded, fed, watered and rested, the carrier was not liable for damages resulting from any reasonable incidental delay. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 93, 134 S. W. 328.

Where a shipper of live stock notified the carrier of his desire to water the stock while in transit and the stock needed watering, the jury could find that the failure of the carrier to provide reasonable facilities for watering the stock was actionable negligence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Chittim ( Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

When a railroad company failed to maintain pens for unloading stock, so as to comply with the act of congress prohibiting the confinement of live stock during transportation for more than 28 hours without unloading, and a conductor of a stock train stated to the shipper that, unless he would sign a written release extending the time to 36 hours, he would unload the cattle without pens, and the shipper signed the release to prevent such unloading, the release was not invalid as having been obtained by duress of property. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Graham & Price ( Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 621.

The duty of watering and feeding the cattle in the pens before shipment, made necessary or on account of delay in shipment, was upon the carrier and not the shipper. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Crawford ( Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 329.

Under this article it is not sufficient that the carrier exercised reasonable care to provide reasonably sufficient facilities for watering the stock. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beckham ( Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 224.

Special contract.—Where the shipper accompanies and undertakes to feed and water live stock, the carrier must furnish him with the necessary and proper places for that purpose. Railway Co. v. Montgomery, 4 App. C. C. § 240, 16 S. W. 178.

Liability of carrier for failure to feed and water cattle on train when the shipper has contracted to do so determined. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Arnold, 16 C. A. 74, 49 S. W. 828.

The fact that no reduction is made in the regular freight rate does not warrant the inference that the contract of carriage was without consideration so as to subject the carrier to statutory penalty for failure to feed and water live stock, where the duty is imposed upon the owner by contract. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Peters ( Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 71.

The purpose of the statute is to give a cause of action so far as the penalty is concerned, although there was no special contract relieving the carrier of the duty to feed and water the stock. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 37 C. A. 695, 55 S. W. 44.

The statute requiring the carrier to feed and water stock while in its custody as such implies that the carrier must be informed of the conditions rendering it necessary to feed and water, and ordinary care only is required, and the carrier's conduct to constitute negligence depends on the surrounding circumstances, and, where cattle are brought to the carrier for shipment in apparently good condition, the carrier is not liable for failing to furnish opportunities to water them, unless it is notified of the necessity thereof. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

That a delay in transporting cattle was due to an accident to the carrier's engine did not shift its liability for its refusal to give the shipper an opportunity to unload for food, water, and rest, where there were other engines available to move the cars to a place for unloading. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 206.

Carrier was liable for injuries to live stock, where it refused to give shipper an opportunity to unload them for food, water, and rest, though he had agreed to load and unload them, and assumed the risk and expense of feeding and watering them. 1d.

A carrier was not relieved of its statutory duty to feed and water stock transported by the shipper's agreement to feed and water them himself, where it furnished him no facilities for feeding and watering. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Fodnextract (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

Under the Carmack amendment to the interstate Commerce Act, a carrier of live stock subject to exceptions which would relieve it of liability at common law is an insurer, and cannot by contract shift its liability in connection with feeding and watering, etc., to the shipper. Chicago, I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 294.

A provision of a contract for the shipment of cattle that the shipper assumed all risks and expense in connection with feeding and watering the cattle was void under the Carmack amendment to the interstate commerce act. Chicago, I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Linger (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 298.

Waiver of provisions.—A provision of a contract for the shipment of cattle that the shipper assumed the risk and expense in connection with feeding and watering the cattle was waived, where the carrier's yardman undertook to perform the duty imposed thereby on the shipper. Chicago, I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Linger (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 298.

Actions for penalty or damages.—One is not required to sue for the maximum amount of the penalty allowed by law, but any sum from $5 to $500, can be claimed. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 37 C. A. 505, 55 S. W. 44.

Pleading.—See notes under Title 71, Chapter 3.

Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 73, Chapter 4.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held insufficient to support a finding that the failure to unload and water plaintiff's shipment of cattle at a certain point was due to delay by defendant railroad. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1191.

CHAPTER TWO

BILLS OF LADING CERTIFIED, ETC.

Art. 715. Certain common carriers, etc., to issue bills of lading and certify, etc., same when demanded by shipper, etc.

Art. 716. Requisites, etc., of certificate, etc.

Art. 717. "Straight" and "order" bills of lading defined, and issuance of "order" bills of lading regulated.

Art. 718. Authority of agent to be posted in station, his signature attached.

Art. 719. Bills of lading issued by authorized agent, to be held act of carrier, etc., liability thereon; effect of certificate, etc.

Art. 720. Carrier's liability in case of delivery of goods without taking up, etc., "order" bill of lading; exception.

Art. 721. Same subject, where part of goods are delivered, etc., exception.

Art. 722. Proceeds of sale of lost or "order" bill of lading; carrier not relieved from liability to innocent purchaser, etc., proviso.

Art. 723. Carriers not liable, etc., when.

Art. 724. Duties and powers of railroad commission.

Article 715. Certain common carriers, etc., to issue bills of lading, and certify, etc., same when demanded by shipper, etc.—It shall be the duty of all railroad companies, steamship companies, and other common carriers, or receivers thereof, except express companies and pipe line companies, upon the receipt of freight for transportation, to issue bills of lading therefor, and to authenticate, validate or certify such bills of lading, when the same shall be demanded by the shipper, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., p. 138, sec. 1.]

Bills of Lading.—See notes under Art. 710.

Art. 716. Requisites, etc., of certificate, etc.—Each bill of lading issued by a common carrier, to which the provisions of this chapter apply, for an intrastate shipment, shall contain and each bill of lading issued by such carrier for interstate or foreign shipment may contain, within the written or printed terms, in addition to the other requirements of this chapter, the following:

(a) The date of its issuance;
(b) The name of the person from whom the goods have been received;
(c) The place where the goods have been received;
(d) The place to which the goods are to be transported;
(e) A statement of whether the goods will be delivered to a specific person or the order of a specific person;
(f) A description of the goods or the packages containing them, which may, however, be in terms such as may be approved by the railroad commission;
(g) The signature of the carrier or the duly authorized agent of the carrier; said bill of lading shall be so signed with pen and ink, and the person signing the same shall attach his signature below all written, printed or stamped matter contained in said bill of lading, except the words, "Authorized Agent of ......" (stating the name of his principal), which shall appear below his signature.
(h) The carrier may insert in a bill of lading issued by him any other terms and conditions; provided such terms and conditions shall not be contrary to law or public policy or the orders promulgated by the railroad commission; and provided, further, that no language shall be inserted in any bill of lading having the effect of limiting or avoiding any of the provisions of this chapter; provided, that when any form of bill of lading has been approved by the interstate commerce commission, and has been adopted by any carrier and made a part of its tariff, then such bill of lading, as to interstate and foreign shipments, shall be a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this article. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 717. "Straight" and "order" bills of lading defined, and issuance of "order" bills of lading regulated.—A bill of lading in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to a specific person is a "straight" bill of lading, and a bill of lading in which it is stated that the goods are consigned to the order of any person named in such bill of lading, is an "order" bill of lading. Order bills of lading shall not be issued in sets or in duplicate, but copies thereof may be issued; provided, such copy has written or printed across the face thereof: "Copy—Not Negotiable." [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 718. Authority of agent to be posted in station, his signature attached.—It shall be the duty of the carriers affected by this chapter to keep posted for public inspection in some conspicuous place in the station or place where freight is received an instrument of writing authorizing the agent of such carrier, or person authorized to act for such carrier, selected for such purpose, to execute, sign and issue bills of lading; and the agent or person so authorized to act for said carrier, so selected, shall attach his signature to such instrument in the same manner that he signs bills of lading. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 719. Bill of lading issued by authorized agent, to be held act of carrier, etc., liability thereon; effect of certificate, etc.—Each and every bill of lading issued by the authorized agent of any carrier or receiver thereof, affected by the provisions of this chapter, shall be deemed and held to be the act and deed of such carrier or receiver thereof, and the principal shall be liable thereon in accordance with the terms thereof. When any such bill of lading shall be validated, authenticated or certified in accordance with the rules and regulations herein provided for, and as may be prescribed by the railroad commission in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and in the hands of an innocent holder for value, it shall be incontestable as to the matters and things therein set forth. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 720. Carrier's liability in case of delivery of goods without taking up, etc., "order" bill of lading; exception.—If the carrier shall deliver goods for which an "order" bill of lading has been issued, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel said bill of lading, such carrier shall be liable for the failure to deliver the goods to any one who, for value, in good faith, purchases such bill of lading, whether the purchaser acquired title to the bill of lading before or after the delivery of the goods by the carrier, notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto, except when goods are sold to satisfy the carrier's lien, and except when compelled to do so by legal process. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 721. Same subject, where part of goods are delivered, etc., exception.—If a carrier delivers part of the goods for which an "order" bill of lading has been issued, and fails to take up and cancel the bill of lading, or to place plainly upon the bill of lading that a portion of the goods had been delivered, with a description which may be in general terms, either of the goods or packages that had been so delivered, or of the goods or packages which still remain in the carrier's possession, he shall be liable for the failure to deliver all of the goods specified in the bill of lading, to any one, who for value, and in good faith, purchases it, whether such purchaser acquires title to the bill of lading before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the carrier, and notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto, except when goods are sold to satisfy the carrier's lien, and except when compelled to do so by legal process. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 722. Procedure in case of loss of "order" bill of lading; carrier not relieved from liability to innocent purchaser, etc., proviso.—When an "order" bill of lading shall have been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction, in term time or in vacation, may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction, and upon the giving of a bond, with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, to protect the carrier or any person injured by such delivery from any liability or loss incurred by reason of the original bill of lading remaining outstanding. The court may also, in its discretion, order the payment of the carrier's reasonable costs and counsel fees; but the delivery of the goods under an order of court, as provided for in this article, shall not relieve the carrier from liability to a person to whom the order bill of lading has been or shall be negotiated for value, and without notice of the proceedings or the delivery of the goods; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent the carrier from delivering the property covered by such lost bill of lading to any party claiming the same, on such terms as such party and the carrier may agree upon. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 723. Carriers not liable, etc., when.—The carrier shall not be liable under the provisions of this chapter, where the property has been replevied or levied upon or taken from the possession of the carrier by other legal process, or has been lawfully sold to satisfy the carrier's lien, or in case of the sale or disposition of perishable, hazardous or unclaimed goods, in accordance with law. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 724. Duties and powers of railroad commission.—It shall be the duty of the railroad commission to adopt and prescribe forms, terms and conditions for the authentication, certification or validation of bills of lading issued by common carriers referred to in article 715, and to regulate the manner and method of their issuance, and to take such steps as it may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter; and it shall have authority to amend, alter and modify, from time to time, as may seem to it expedient, any regulations which may be adopted by it in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, after giving due notice thereof to all carriers interested and to the public. [Id. sec. 17.]

See Const. art. 10, § 2.

CHAPTER THREE

DISPOSITION OF UNCLAIMED OR PERISHABLE PROPERTY BY CARRIERS

Art. 725. Unclaimed freight may be sold, when and how. — When any freight or baggage has been conveyed by a common carrier to any point in this state, and shall remain unclaimed for the space of three months at the office or depot nearest or most convenient to destination, and the owner, whether known or unknown, fails within that time to claim such freight or baggage, or to pay the proper charges if any there be against it, then it shall be lawful for such common carrier to sell such freight or baggage at public auction, offering each box, bale, trunk, valise or other article separately as consigned or checked. [Act May 2, 1874, p. 203. P. D. 5884a.]

Carrier's lien. — A carrier has a lien upon the goods to secure freight charges. An officer attaching goods stands, in respect to the lien for the freight, in the place of the owner. — Stuart v. Mau, 2 App. C. C. § 785.

Where a carrier wrongfully delivered goods to a second carrier, instead of the owner, the second had no lien thereon for freight. — Liefert v. Galveston, L. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 896.

The lien is upon all the property on which the freight charges are due, and the right of sale is not restricted to so much of the property as may be necessary to pay the charges. — T. & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Rucker (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 817.

Right to sell in general. — Under this article a carrier may sell freight remaining unclaimed for three months, regardless of whether any charges are due thereon, and the owner of the freight cannot by payment of charges compel the carrier to keep the freight longer than three months. — Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 748.

Place of sale. — Under this following articles, defendant sold certain goods consigned to, but not accepted by, plaintiff. The goods were carried to the point of destination, which was a small town, but before sale were carried to a central point and there sold. Held, that the carrier did not have to sell the unclaimed goods at the destination; for the statute, being for the benefit of carriers, should receive a liberal construction according to Final Title, § 3, and further, such construction would be to the advantage of the owner as the goods would probably bring the best price at the central point, and any surplus, after paying charges, goes to the owner. — Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Houston & T. C. K. Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 77.

Notice. — 14 This article, article 726, relating to notice, and article 722, authorizing a carrier using due diligence to notify the consignee to store freight not taken by the consignee and thereafter become liable only as warehousemen, are not in pari materia, because they are enacted for different purposes and are independent of each other, and the right to sell unclaimed freight does not depend on whether the carrier used due diligence to notify the consignee of the arrival of the freight, but, though it be assumed that the statutes must be construed together, a consignor shipping freight to itself must put itself in position to receive notice of the arrival of the freight at destination, and where it fails to do so, the carrier need not seek the consignee of the freight elsewhere to notify it of the arrival of the freight before making a sale of the freight remaining unclaimed for three months. — Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 156.

Conversion. — Where goods were wrongfully delivered by a carrier to a steamship company, instead of to the owner, the company, having notice of the ownership, had no lien for freight; and, on selling the goods, was liable for conversion. — Liefert v. Galveston, L. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 889.

A railway company, authorized by this article to sell freight for charges accruing against it, where consignee refuses to accept and shipper will make no disposition of it; but it is bound to give the notice of sale required by article 722. If it sells without giving such notice the sale is illegal, and the company is bound to the owner of the property as for conversion. — Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 22 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 565.
Art. 726. [328] [286] Notice of such sale.—Thirty days' notice of the time and place of sale, and a descriptive list of the packages to be sold, with names and numbers or marks found thereon, shall be posted up in three public places in the county where the sale is to be made, and on the door of the depot or warehouse, if any, where the goods are, and shall also give notice in at least one newspaper in the county, if any be published therein, for thirty days before sale; and out of the proceeds of such sale the carrier shall deduct the proper charges on such freight or baggage, including costs of storing and costs of sale, and hold the overplus, if any, to the order of the owner any time within five years, on proof of ownership made by the claimant or his duly authorized agent or attorney. [Id. P. D. 5884b.]

Notice.—The carrier before it can lawfully sell perishable goods which have been refused by the consignee must give the notice required by this article. Carter & Corey v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 681.

Article 728 and this article, authorizing a carrier to sell freight remaining unclaimed for three months on giving thirty days' notice, and article 712, authorizing a carrier using due diligence to notify the consignee to store freight not taken by the consignee and thereafter become liable only as warehousemen, are not in pari materia because they are enacted for different purposes and are independent of each other, and the right to sell unclaimed freight does not depend on whether the carrier used due diligence to notify the consignee of the arrival of the freight, but, though it be assumed that the statute must be construed together, a consignor shipping freight to itself must put itself in position to receive notice of the arrival of the freight at destination, and where it fails to do so, the carrier need not seek, the consignee of the freight elsewhere to notify it of the arrival of the freight before making a sale of the freight remaining unclaimed for three months. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1158.

Conversion.—A sale without the notice required by this article is illegal, and the company is bound to the owner of the property as for conversion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 569. A sale not in accordance with this article and article 727, amounts to a conversion by the railway company. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Rines & Co., 37 C. A. 618, 84 S. W. 1093.

See note to Art. 726.

Art. 727. [329] [287] Carrier shall keep an account of sales, etc.—The carrier shall keep an account of sales, copy of the notice, a copy of the sale bill, and the expense thereof proportioned to each article sold. [Id. P. D. 5884c.]

Art. 728. [330] [288] Carrier may sell live stock, when.—Should any live stock remain unclaimed for the space of forty-eight hours after its arrival at the place of its destination, the carrier may sell the same at public auction after giving five days' notice of the time and place of such sale, as prescribed in article 726, and apply the proceeds as prescribed in said article, after deducting reasonable expenses for keeping, feeding and watering said live stock from the time of its arrival at the place of its destination until disposed of as herein provided; and such carrier shall also keep an account of any such sale, copy of the notice, copy of the sale bill, and an account of all expenses. [Id. P. D. 5884d.]

Art. 729. [331] [289] Carrier shall sell perishable property, when.—Should any perishable property remain unclaimed after arrival at its place of destination until in danger of depreciation, it shall be the duty of the carrier to sell the same at public auction, after giving five days' notice of the time and place of such sale, as prescribed in article 726, and apply the proceeds as prescribed in said article, and keep an account of such sale, copy of the notice, copy of the sale bill, and an account of all expenses. [Id. P. D. 5884d.]

Right to sell.—As oats did not belong to the perishable class, this article, which provides for sale on five days' notice, is not applicable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 569.

Carrier of unclaimed perishable goods held to have a right to sell such goods when necessary to prevent total loss to the shipper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. C. H. Cox & Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1396.

Art. 730. Disposition of unclaimed intoxicating liquor.—When any express company, railroad company or other common carrier, within this state, shall receive any package or parcel of whatsoever nature, whether from a point within or without this state, containing any intoxicating liquor, for transportation to any point within any county, justice precinct, school district, city or town, or subdivision of a county, where the sale of intoxicating liquors has been prohibited under the laws of this state, such express company, railroad company or other common carrier shall forthwith transport such intoxicating liquor to the place of its destination; and, upon the arrival of same at its place of destination, there shall be entered in a book to be kept for that purpose the names of the consignor and the consignee, the exact time of the arrival of such package or parcel at the place of its destination, the place from where shipped, the quantity and character of such intoxicating liquor, as shown on such package or parcel, the exact time delivered to the consignee, if delivered, and the signature of such consignee, who shall sign in person for same before delivery thereof; and such book shall be open at all reasonable hours for inspection by any officer of the law or any member of the grand jury. If such package or parcel be not called for and taken away by the consignee, and all charges thereon, if any, paid by such consignee, it shall be the duty of such express company, railroad company, or other common carrier, to start such package or parcel in transit back to the consignor thereof within seven days from the time of its arrival at the place of its destination; and the consignor shall be liable to such express company, railroad company, or other common carrier for the express or freight charges in transportation and returning same. Any express company, railroad company, or other common carrier, violating any of the provisions of this article or articles, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each infraction thereof, to be recovered in the name of the state of Texas in any court of competent jurisdiction, in any county where such express company, railroad company or other common carriers have an office or an agent or a line of railway; and each day that such intoxicating liquor shall be kept at the place of its destination after the expiration of seven days from the time of its arrival shall be deemed a separate infraction. [Acts 1905, p. 379. Acts 1910, 3 S. S., p. 33.]

Constitutionality.—This article does not violate Bill of Rights, § 9, which provides that the people shall be secure in their persons, houses, and papers from all unreasonable searches and seizures. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 173.

This article is a valid exercise of the police power. Id.

Prosecutions thereunder.—This article and Act April 18, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 160) § 1, requiring that each person who shall place any package containing any intoxicating liquor with any express company for shipment to prohibition territory shall place on the package the name of the consignor and consignee, and the words “intoxicating liquors” in plain letters, and making the violation of such section a misdemeanor, make the entries on the packages and in the books and papers of the express companies quasi public records and admissible in evidence in a prosecution for pursuing the occupation of selling intoxicating liquors in prohibition territory on proof that they were the records kept by the express company and identifying them, though they were not proved by the officer or agent of the express company making the entries; it also appearing that accused had signed such records as a receipt for the packages referred to therein. Stephens v. State, 63 Cr. R. 382, 139 S. W. 1141.

Under this article, held, that where defendant was charged with violating the local option law, evidence that on various occasions he went at night with unidentified persons to a railway station some distance from the place where he resided, and each time identified the one who was with him as the consignee of liquor at such station, and that none of the alleged consignees were known to the agent, was admissible to show defendant's alleged system in carrying on the business in violation of the law. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 904.

An indictment which charged that defendant about 3 o'clock in the afternoon of a certain day, the same being within the office hours of his express company, refused to permit the sheriff to inspect such books was sufficient, though it did not allege that the hour was “reasonable,” especially where that ground was not given for the refusal. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 173.

CHAPTER FOUR
CONNECTING LINES OF COMMON CARRIERS

Art. 731. Connecting lines of common carriers defined.

Article 731. [331a] Connecting lines of common carriers defined.
—All common carriers over whose transportation lines, or parts thereof, any freight, baggage or other property received by either of such carriers for through shipment or transportation by such carriers between points in this state on a contract for through carriage recognized, acquiesced in, or acted upon, by such carriers shall, in this state, with respect to the undertaking and matter of such transportation, be considered and construed to be connecting lines, and be deemed and held to be the agents of each other, each the agent of the others, and all the others the agents of each, and shall be deemed and held to be under a contract with each other and with the shipper, owner and consignee of such property for the safe and speedy through transportation thereof from point of shipment to destination; and such contract as to the shipper, owner or consignee of such property shall be deemed and held to be the contract of each of such common carriers; and, in any of the courts of this state, any through bill of lading, waybill, receipt, check or other instrument issued by either of such carriers, or other proof showing that either of them has received such freight, baggage or other property for such through shipment or transportation, shall constitute prima facie evidence of the subsistence of the relations, duties and liabilities of such carrier as herein defined and prescribed, notwithstanding any stipulations or attempted stipulations to the contrary by such carriers, or either of them. [Acts 1895, p. 186.]

A common carrier is not liable beyond its own lines unless it has assumed such liability. The fact of receiving goods marked for a place beyond its own terminus does not import an agreement to transport to that place. Hunter v. Railway Co., 76 T. 195, 13 S. W. 180.

Merely charging a through rate of freight does not make carrier liable for negligence of connecting carriers. Railway Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 302.

Constitutionality of statute.—This article does not deprive a citizen of any of the privileges and immunities, or property without due process of law guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment to the United States constitution or Art. 1, § 13, state constitution.

Duties and liabilities of initial carriers in general.—A carrier held not liable for damage on a connecting line as a partner, where the shipper did not rely on such partnership, but accepted contract limiting liability. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houston (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 842.

The initial carrier having contracted for shipment between points within this state is liable for damages inflicted on the line of its connecting carrier as well as on its own line no matter what restrictions were inserted in the contract. See G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 261.

An instruction as to the measure of damages for injuries to cattle in shipment held not objectionable, as making defendant liable for injuries on connecting lines. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Tritt, 24 C. A. 539, 69 S. W. 254.

In an action against a railroad company for damages to cattle received during carriage over its own and a connecting line, that the waybill issued by defendant described the shipment as a through one held not to change written contracts for the shipment. San Antonio & P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett, 27 C. A. 488, 66 S. W. 474.

In an action against a railroad company for damages to cattle received during carriage over its own and a connecting line, the shipping report, signed by agent of plaintiff and the connecting lines, held not to change written contracts for shipment between plaintiff and defendant. Id.

A railroad company, chargeable with unreasonable delay in holding a car containing vegetables, had no notice thereof, and was not answerable for damages, given beyond its own line.  San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 792.

Where a carrier agrees to transport freight over its own and connecting lines, it is answerable for damages on the connecting line. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Leatherwood, 29 C. A. 597, 60 S. W. 110.

A railway company, contracting to ship cattle over its own and a connecting line to a certain point, was liable for damage occurring on the connecting line. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCartry, 29 C. A. 616, 63 S. W. 259.

It is the duty of a railroad company to live stock against two connecting carriers, an instruction held not to permit its act as an assessment of damages against the carriers sued in which part occurred on the line of another. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 31 C. A. 464, 72 S. W. 1373.

This article and article 732 provide for suit and judgment against both or all carriers, in case of through contract of carriage, which is acquiesced in and acted upon. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Turner, 42 C. A. 582, 94 S. W. 216. A subsequent amendment to a bill in which the initial carrier undertook to have the goods transported at a given rate of freight from origin to destination in a car furnished by it for that purpose, and in which the bill of lading contained provisions for the benefit not only of the initial carrier but also of the connecting carrier. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Towson (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 761.

Where the detention of plaintiff's cattle by the last connecting carrier which resulted in damage to them could have been prevented by plaintiff's conceding to the carrier's demand for $21 additional freight, which plaintiff was then able to pay, the initial carrier's negligence in quoting plaintiff an incorrect rate was not the proximate cause of the damage to the cattle by the delay so as to render such initial carrier liable therefore. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Reed, 56 C. A. 452, 121 S. W. 516.

In an action against an initial carrier for the conversion of a mule, alleged to have escaped through the possession of another carrier, there was no evidence that whether such other carrier acted as its agent in transporting the car or as a connecting carrier. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 445.

An initial carrier of goods consigned to a point off its own line, which delivers the goods to a carrier named on the one carload bill, the carrier becomes thereby an insurer of the goods and liable for injury received in the hands of the final carrier. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kemendo (Civ. App) 131 S. W. 634.

Where a shipment over connecting lines is on a through bill of lading issued by one of the connecting carriers, liable to the shipper for any damages to the shipment through the negligence of either. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Waltman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 515.

An initial carrier of live stock need not load it on the connecting carrier's cars, delivery to the latter being sufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones (Sup.) 134 S. W. 328, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

An initial carrier of live stock need not permit its cars to go over the connecting line, in the absence of special contract thereto, and is not liable for damage resulting from the unloading at the end of its line in the absence of negligence. Id.

An initial carrier held not liable for its failure to notify a connecting carrier of the shipper's wish to divert a shipment of live stock to another point. Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 721.

It is the duty of an initial carrier of live stock to furnish a car reasonably safe and suitable for their transportation. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Young & Webb (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1133.

Where all the shipments of live stock are not interstate shipments, judgment cannot be recovered against the initial carrier for the whole amount of damages. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Sup.) 157 S. W. 745.

Routing shipment.—A shipper may designate the route by which goods shall be carried by the different railroads over which they pass. Judgment, Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 618, reversed. Thompson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 126 S. W. 357, rehearing denied (Sup.) 125 S. W. 106.

A carrier's refusal to route freight as demanded by the shipper held a legal wrong, for which the shipper may recover resulting damages, notwithstanding any shipping contract subsequently made. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. True Bros. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 847.

A duty of a carrier to route a shipment as demanded by the shipper is not imposed until the freight is offered and tendered for shipment. Id.

A connecting carrier in custody of a passenger's baggage at the end of its line was notified by the passenger that the baggage had been shipped for delivery to the terminal carrier for transportation by it to the point of the passenger's destination, the initial carrier was liable for negligent delay in forwarding the baggage. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1182.

Where the connecting carrier selected by a shipper refuses to accept the shipment tendered by the initial carrier, the initial carrier should advise the shipper of the fact, depositing the freight in a warehouse if necessary, and await further instructions, but where the initial carrier in an effort to expedite the shipment sends it by another connecting carrier, and no loss is occasioned by such change of route, and the same delay would have happened had the route not been changed, the initial carrier is not liable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Breaux (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 257.

Duties and liabilities of terminal and connecting railroad company held jointly liable with the connecting line for injuries to goods on such line, where both roads were operated as a partnership. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McFadden, 91 T. 194, 40 S. W. 216, 42 S. W. 595.

A carrier may not avoid liability for delay in forwarding goods received by it in the usual way from a connecting carrier, on which charges were to be collected at their

A railroad company, forming a part of a system of railroads, held bound by the acts and declarations of an agent of the other companies, which are made in relation to shipments made over the system. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells, 24 C. A. 301, 68 S. W. 842.

In an action against two connecting carriers for injuries to cattle shipped, over both roads, held error for the jury to consider the negligence of both roads in rendering a verdict against one. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 54.

A contract of domestic shipment is liability damages occurring on a connecting line whether the contract of shipment is verbal or written. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. et al. v. Botts (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 114.

When the terminal connecting line has accepted and ratified the contract of shipment from the carrier, it is bound by such contract and can recover damages in the manner provided by the act, upon the right made such contract in its own title. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wittnebert, 101 S. W. 935, 108 S. W. 109, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1227, 130 Am. St. Rep. 556, 16 Ann. Cas. 1153.

The delivering carrier having a statutory right to hold a shipment of cattle until all the freight is paid, a shipper cannot complain of injury to the cattle by their detention unless the carrier was negligent in caring for them. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Reedy, 56 C. A. 452, 121 S. W. 519.

Where one of two connecting railroad companies received cattle for through shipment over the lines of both roads, and the terminal road received the cattle without making a new contract, the latter road acquiesced in the contract of the initial carrier, so that they were connecting lines within this article so that no stipulations by either limiting its liability to damages occurring on its own line would be immaterial in an action against it for injuries to cattle on route. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

Under this article it was the duty of both connecting carriers to load and reload a shipment of cattle at the connecting point, if they should have been unloaded there. Id.

A contract between two railroad companies held not to establish a partnership between them, nor to render them jointly liable as the agents of each other on account of a loss of freight. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Pennefather & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 948.

To bring a contract for shipment of live stock over connecting lines within this article, the contract must be for through carriage, and the shipment must be received and carried by the connecting carrier under that contract, and hence, where there is no through contract, a receipt by the connecting carrier does not fix joint liability. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 32, 134 S. W. 373.

In an action against carriers for damages to a shipment of live stock, plaintiffs proved a verbal contract with one of defendants to transport the cattle over its line and the lines of the other defendants between two points in the state, but no written contract was made at the place where agent in question was at the time of making contract. The other carriers received the shipment and assisted in its transportation to its destination. One defendant pleaded a special contract limiting liability, and such pleading was adopted by the other defendants, and plaintiffs denied that they signed any such contract. Witness for defendant was offered, and one contrary to special pleading. Under this article, and it was error for the court to limit the recovery against each defendant to injuries occurring upon its own line, and to refuse a requested instruction that, if the jury believed that the contract was a through contract and was accepted by all of the defendants, then if they should find from the evidence that plaintiffs were entitled to recover, their verdict should be for plaintiffs against all defendants in such sum as they should find for plaintiffs. Williams & Hawkins v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 396.

Where the transportation of live stock was delayed by the connecting carrier in consequence of unusual rains and wash-outs, and the delay required the terminal carrier to water and feed the stock, the reasonable time required for feeding and watering could not be charged against the connecting carrier as delay in transporting the stock. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. v. Lamda & Storey (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 879.

Under this article and article 732 where a bill of lading for the transportation of cotton provided for through shipment over connecting lines, and the contract for through carriage was recognized, acquiesced in, or acted upon by such connecting carriers, they, as well as the issuing carrier, were bound by its terms. Elder, Dempster & Co. v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 154 S. W. 975.

Where a connecting carrier delivered a car on a track owned jointly with defendant and defendant had no charging agent that it had no charges against the car, it was defendant's duty to reship the same in accordance with orders from the owner, and its refusal to do so by reason of the connecting carrier's subsequent objection rendered defendant a joint tort-feasor and liable for damages from the delay. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lovery (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 992.

— Injury by initial carrier.—A connecting carrier who receives freight on a through way bill from the initial carrier is liable for injuries done to the shipment on the line of the initial carrier. Texas & Pacific Railway Co. v. Randle, 18 C. A. 348, 44 S. W. 693.
When the shipment is wholly within this state, either connecting line is liable no matter on which line the damage occurred. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Ney (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 44.

Where the initial carrier only undertook to transport freight to the end of its line, and the connecting carrier did not receive the same under a through bill of lading, this article and any other and the connecting carrier was not liable for damages occurring on the line of the initial carrier. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 488, 122 S. W. 972.

Where common carriers were connecting lines, within this article, the final carrier would be liable for damages caused to stock en route by the other carrier, as well as by itself, under article 732 making either of connecting carriers liable for injury to, or loss of, freight sustained in through transportation over connecting lines. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houst. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

Where a shipment over connecting lines is on a through bill of lading issued by one of them, both are equally liable to the shipper for any damages to the shipment through the negligence of either. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Waitman (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 511.

A connecting carrier was not liable for defects in fruit cars, or for the failure to keep the cars at the proper temperature, where the cars were loaded by the initial carrier and accompanied by its messengers. Texas F. & Ry. Co. v. Rackusin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 734.

Notice of special damages.—A connecting carrier of freight held chargeable with notice of special damages which would result to a contractor through delay in transportation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

A connecting carrier must use reasonable diligence to transport freight if it receives information, before receipt by it of the shipment, of the importance of prompt transportation. Id.

Under a contract for carriage of many cars of construction material, held unnecessary to repeat notice with each shipment of the special purpose for which the material was to be used. Id.

Custom no excuse for delay.—An agreement of connecting carriers to hold goods in warehouse at their point of connection until controversies over freight charges were settled, did not bar a custom binding one on a consignee who had no knowledge thereof. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hasselt, 23 C. A. 681, 58 S. W. 54.

Carriage of passengers.—See, also, notes under Art. 707.

This and article 732 regulate the liability of common carriers only with reference to freight and do not relate to carriage of passengers. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Doolan, 56 C. A. 503, 120 S. W. 1120.

Plaintiff, shipping the corpse of his father under the law applicable to the transportation of passengers, cannot rely on this article and he cannot demand the transfer of property by the initial carrier to the connecting carrier without tendering the transfer ticket which he holds. Wren v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 682.

Interstate commerce.—When a commodity has been delivered to a common carrier to be transported on a continuous voyage or trip to a point beyond the limits of the state where delivered, the character of interstate or foreign commerce attaches. Houston Direct Nav. Co. v. Insurance Co. of North America, 99 T. i. 22 S. W. 839, 29 L. R. A. 713, 59 Am. St. Rep. 17; Railway Co. v. Avery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 704.

The fact that one of two connecting carriers owns a large amount of stock of the other does not render such road liable for the negligence of the latter. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 54.

In an action against a delivering carrier for damages to fruit, held error to refuse to instruct that if the fruit began to decay in the initial carrier's possession, and owing to its inherent nature, the decay could not be stopped, the delivering carrier was not liable for the resulting damage. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mazzie, 29 C. A. 296, 68 S. W. 56.

In order to make the terminal of connecting lines in this state liable for baggage lost on a through line outside and beginning is such terminal, it must be alleged and proved that there was a partnership or joint undertaking between the said terminal connecting line and Texas, and the initial and intermediate carriers as to the transportation of the lost baggage, or else that the terminal connecting line which is sought to be held liable actually received the baggage and failed to deliver it. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Berry, 31 C. A. 3, 71 S. W. 357.

That a shipment of cattle was interstate would not, of itself, independent of other issues made by pleading and evidence in a suit against connecting carriers for damages, render all jointly liable for injuries on one line only. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

In absence of proof of a partnership or other joint interest existing between two connecting carriers, the final carrier if itself without fault was not liable for delay on the line of the initial carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stark Grain Co., 103 T. 642, 131 S. W. 410, modifying judgment (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1146.

Where the initial carrier is responsible for delay in transit of live stock to a certain point, and the connecting carrier for further delay, such carriers are jointly liable. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 351.

Under the act to regulate commerce (Act Feb. 4, 1887, c. 104, § 20, 24 Stat. 350), as amended by Acts 1901, 24 Stat. 595, prior to June 3, 1900, receiving property being delivered to a point in one state to a point in another state shall issue a bill of lading therefor, and shall be liable to the holder for any damage, whether caused by it or any connecting carrier, an initial carrier, which was under no obligation to notify a connecting carrier that the shipper desired a diversion of the shipment at a point on the connecting carrier's line, having delivered the shipment to the connecting carrier, was not liable for failure of the connecting carrier to make the diversion, as no fault was attributed to the connecting carrier. Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 721.

Where a carrier accepts freight from another line but requires a separate contract and the carrier limits its liability to its own line, it is not a connecting carrier, although it respects the through rate as made by the initial carrier. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 261.

In an action for damages occurring beyond defendant's line, an instruction that if, from previous dealings with defendant, plaintiff knew that a written contract limiting defendant's liability to its own line was always required, it should be for defendant, was proper. A shipper held not entitled to recover for damages to live stock shipped under an oral contract, on the ground that a written contract therefor executed, limiting the carrier's liability to its own line, was made under duress. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Gallagher (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 57.

Where a railroad company's contract for the shipping of stock limited its liability to its own line, instructions should be given that defendant would not be liable for injuries after the stock passed out of its possession. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 65.

A railway company, limiting its liability to its own line in a contract of shipment, is liable for the negligence of its agent in hauling the property to a wrong place on the connecting carrier's line. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 71.

Where an initial carrier accepted a shipment of cotton for transportation from a point in Texas to Bremen, Germany, it was entitled to limit its liability to loss or damage occurring on its own line. Houston, E. & W. Ry. Co. v. Inman, Aker & Inman (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 275.

The initial carrier under an Intrastate live stock shipment contract can limit its liability to damage accruing on its own line and in delivering the shipment to the connecting carrier. Galveston, P. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 94, 134 S. W. 328, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 737.

A contract by the initial carrier of an intrastate shipment limiting its liability to its own line is valid, though articles 721 and 722 make carriers jointly liable where the employes of a connecting carrier were not within a petition charging negligence of the employes of the initial carrier. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 747.

Where stock was carried over connecting railways, and there was no statute making it the duty of the first to notify the second carrier that the shipper wished to divert the shipment, and the contract expressly provided that the first carrier should be released of the stock after delivery of the connecting carrier, the initial carrier, after delivering the shipment to the second carrier, was not liable for its failure to notify the latter that the shipper wished the shipment diverted. Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 731.

A joint contract by connecting carriers to transport freight held not controlled by provision in the bills of lading limiting the initial carrier's liability to delays occurring on its own line. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

Limitation of common-law liability.—See notes under Art. 705.

Title 48—Cases at law connecting carriers—Parties.—See Title 37, Chapter 5.

— Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

— Presumptions, burden of proof, and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

— Sufficiency of evidence.—Proof held insufficient to show a joint contract between connecting carriers so as to make the last liable for loss of baggage, without a showing that it had once been in the possession. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Berry, 31 C. A. 3, 71 S. W. 326.

In an action against connecting carrier for damages to freight, evidence held to warrant a finding that the transportation was a single shipment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mazzie, 29 C. A. 255, 68 S. W. 56.

In an action against an initial carrier for the conversion of a mule, alleged to have escaped out of a shipment of two cars while in the possession of the defendant or its connecting carriers, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 445.

In an action against an intermediate carrier for delay in the transportation of live stock, a judgment for plaintiff is not supported by the evidence where there is no showing as to when the stock would have been shipped from the terminus of defendant's line, if defendant's train had not been late. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 463.

In an action for damages to goods shipped over the lines of connecting carriers, evidence held insufficient to show that at the time of delivery to the initial carrier they were in good order. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Barr (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 971.

In an action for injuries to live stock, evidence considered, and held sufficient to show negligence of all three connecting carriers. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1150.

Evidence held to show that the general freight agent of an initial carrier was authorized to contract for a shipment for a connecting carrier. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 81.

In an action against carriers for delay in carrying construction material, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that completion of the construction work was not caused by defective machinery, labor troubles, or other matters beyond the carriers' control. Id.

Evidence held not to show that a carrier of live stock was liable for injury to the stock. Martin v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 615.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that damage to shipment was due to...

Evidence, in an action for damages for delay in the transportation of live stock, held sufficient to sustain a verdict against the initial carrier. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Dunford (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1129.

Question for jury and instructions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

Damages.—See notes under Arts. 707, 710, 713.

Art. 732. [331b] Liability of such connecting lines.—For any damages for injury or damage to, or loss or delay of, any freight, baggage or other property, sustained anywhere in such through transportation over connecting lines, or either of them, as contemplated and defined in the next preceding article of this chapter, either of such connecting carriers which the person or persons sustaining such damages may first elect to sue in this state thereof shall be held liable to such person or persons; and such carrier so held liable to such person or persons shall be entitled in a proper action to recover the amount of any loss, damage or injury it may be required to pay such person or persons from the carrier through whose negligence the loss, damage or injury was sustained, together with costs of suit. [Id.]

Federal statutes.—In interstate shipments this article does not apply, but each company may limit its liability for such loss as may occur on its own line, and no recovery can be had for loss occurring on connecting lines in absence of allegation and proof of particular arrangement between the several connecting carriers. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Groves, 48 C. A. 45, 106 S. W. 417.

Where cattle, delivered to the initial carrier in good condition, were, before the beginning of action, subjected to injury in transit, when delivered to a connecting carrier, were in an injured condition, the connecting carrier was not liable, and the initial carrier, adjudged liable to the shipper, could not, under Interstate Commerce Act June 29, 1916, c. 3591, 34 Stat. 584, recover over against the connecting carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jamon, 141 S. W. 155.

Liability as between carriers.—Connecting carrier is not entitled to contribution from initial carrier for damages to property in transit. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Childs (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 41.

Where a wrongfully delivered goods to a second carrier, who sold them for freight, on being compelled to pay the owner therefor, he could not recover from the first carrier. Liefert v. Galveston, L. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 899.

Where a railroad employed recovered from his employer for damages received by a defect in a car delivered to the employer by another road, the employer was not entitled to judgment over against the other road. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Nass (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 910.

Jury having found defendant railroad company liable to plaintiff for injuries caused by a defective foreign car, defendant could not recover over against connecting carrier owning the car, though it was also guilty of negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nass, 94 T. 256, 59 S. W. 870.

Under a contract between a carrier and a connecting carrier as to the exchange of freight, judgment in favor of the connecting carrier over against the other for damages caused by its negligence after the freight had come into its exclusive possession. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Reese, 29 C. A. 400, 68 S. W. 1019.

Where a railroad company contracted to ship cattle over its own and a connecting line, and injuries for injury to both companies was not allowed, the connecting line judgment was recovered against both, with judgment over in favor of the contracting company against the connecting company, the latter could not complain. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 29 C. A. 616, 69 S. W. 219.

Initial carrier, on being held liable for the damages to live stock sustained on the connecting line, held to have the right to a judgment over against the latter. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 330.

Where freight is to be shipped over connecting lines from one point in the state to another, either can be held liable for damages sustained. The one not causing the damage can recover from the one that did cause it, if the former has to pay for the damage. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Terry & McAfee (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 755.

A connecting carrier, whose negligence in delivering goods to a wrong party, and without requiring the production of the bill of lading, cannot recover from the initial carrier for damages recovered of such connecting carrier by the consignee or his assignee. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1106.

A jury finding the negligence of the carrier liable for the negligence of the carrier subrogated to the rights of the shippers and entitled to recover against such connecting carrier. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eastin & Knox, 100 T. 556, 103 S. W. 105.

A connecting carrier, which is not liable to the shipper for injury to freight may not recover therefor the sum wrongfully recovered against it by the shipper, though the initial carrier is liable to the shipper. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co. 57 C. A. 488, 123 S. W. 972.

In an action to recover against carriers of live stock for damages from delay in transportation held insufficient to sustain a judgment over in favor of the initial carrier against one of the connecting carriers. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

Connecting carrier's liability to shipper or consignee.—See notes under Art. 731.

Limitation of liability.—See notes under Art. 708.
CHAPTER ONE
CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT

Article 733. [332] [290] Certiorari to county court, issued when.

Any person interested in the estate of a decedent or ward may have the proceedings of the county court therein revised and corrected at any time within two years after such proceedings were had, and not afterward; provided, that persons non compos mentis, infants and feme(s) covert shall have two years after the removal of their respective disabilities within which to apply for such revision and correction. [Act March 16, 1848, p. 106, secs. 7, 9. P. D. 480, 482.]

See Art. 4391.
Nature of remedy.—The proceeding under these articles is direct, and not collateral. Linch v. Broad, 70 T. 92; S. W. 731; Wipff v. Heider, 29 S. W. 118; 6 C. A. 655; Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.
The remedy by certiorari is as distinctively statutory and hence legal as the remedy by appeal, and is not made dependent upon a showing of cause why the remedy of an appeal was not pursued. Friend v. Boren, 45 C. A. 33, 56 S. W. 732.
Jurisdiction of district court.—The jurisdiction of the district court to revise the proceedings of the county court in matters of probate is appellate only, and can be exercised on appeal or by certiorari. Buchanan v. Biltger, 64 T. 589; Franks v. Chapman, 60 T. 46; 1d., 51 T. 576; Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 696.
District court has no jurisdiction to review on certiorari action of county court compelling administratrix to place certain land in inventory, where it was obliged to determine an issue of title outside its jurisdiction. Miers v. Betterton, 18 C. A. 430, 45 S. W. 490.
A district court can review the action of a commissioners' court, in allowing an assessor a fee in excess of that provided by statute, on certiorari. McDonald v. Farmer, 22 C. A. 36, 56 S. W. 555.
Certiorari will not lie to compel a county clerk to transmit to the district court a transcript of proceedings in the opening of a road. McKinley v. Frio County, 39 C. A. 618, 58 S. W. 447.
Where a guardian has taken an appeal from a probate order to the district court, and been unsuccessful on a trial de novo he cannot then take the case before the same court on certiorari and have another such trial. In re Pearce, 43 C. A. 338, 96 S. W. 1094.
Substantial wrong must have have been done the estate that relief may be granted on certiorari to review proceedings of the county court in probate matters. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 153.
Under this article the district court, on certiorari to review orders of the county court in the administration of a decedent's estate, has jurisdiction only to revise and correct such orders of the county court as were made within two years before the filing of the application for certiorari. Wade v. Scott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 675.
Discretionary power of court.—Certiorari to set aside order of sale of insane person's land held not a matter of right. Fitzwilliams v. Davis, 13 C. A. 81, 43 S. W. 840.
Time and manner of exercising jurisdiction.—Certiorari cannot be granted at all in vacation, nor in term time, except on order of the court or by a majority thereof. Ex parte Martinez (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 959.
No bond required from executors and administrators.—Executors and administrators, when taking a case to the district court for revision on certiorari under this article need not give bond. Adoue v. Gonzales, 22 C. A. 73, 54 S. W. 367.
Time within which proceedings must be begun.—The proceedings in a decedent's es-tute can be reviewed even where the statute has run against part of the petitioners who are not protected by minority. Miers v. Bettendorf, 15 C. A. 430, 45 S. W. 430.

There is nothing in the statute that requires a proceeding to set aside and annul an order of the county court relating to the administration of an estate to be begun and prosecuted while administration is pending. Bloom v. Oliver, 56 C. A. 391, 120 S. W. 1102.

Persons interested.—Where the mother dies before the father, and in the administration of his estate the community property is sold, her heirs cannot obtain a review by certiorari of the order for the sale. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 45 S. W. 932, 49 S. W. 267.

The remedy of a creditor having a lien on live stock of the estate, in case of abuse by the administrators of the right given them by the county court to use the stock in operating the plantation, held to be by proceedings in the county court, and not by cer-

User. In a decedent's estate. Interested in a, within the period mentioned, to certiorari to review the county court's order admitting decedent's will to probate, though petitioner had not appeared and contested the probate in the county court. Heaton v. Bulher (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1978.

Costs, how awarded.—See Arts. 2046, 2047.

Art. 734. [333] [291] Application for.—All applications for the writ of certiorari to the county court shall be made to the district court, or a judge thereof. It shall state the names and residences of the parties adversely interested, and shall distinctly set forth the error in the proceeding sought to be revised. [Id. P. D. 480.]

Pleading.—A petition for certiorari must state the facts constituting the error on which the writ is applied for. The record of the justice when sent up will be looked to in connection with the petition. Mathews, 80 T. 373, 15 S. W. 1191.

Allegation of fraud and mistake of next friend in a petition for certiorari to review the proceedings of the county court on an application to probate a will held insufficient. Harbison v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1096.

Petition for certiorari, which sets out part of evidence, but does not negative every phase of the evidence, and facts which would justify the judgment, held insufficient. Id.

A petition for certiorari to review an order allowing an administrator's account and dischargeing such administrator held not subject to general demurrer. Friend v. Boren
(Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 711.

A petition for certiorari to review an order admitting a will to probate held to sufficiently charge error in the probate proceedings. Heaton v. Buhler (Civ. App.) 127 S. W.

A petition for certiorari must allege facts which, if true, would require the rendition of a different decree on the merits from that appeared from. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.)
136 S. W. 493.

Under this article a petition to review orders of the probate court appointing one administratrix, on the theory that she was the putative wife of decedent and awarding her allowances and the homestead, which alleges that the court erred, in that she was not the surviving wife of decedent, is, in the absence of any special exception, sufficient to raise the question whether she was the putative wife; the word ‘wife’ in the petition being used in its generic sense as including a putative, as well as a lawful, wife. Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Parties adversely interested.—Under this article, where testator's heirs sought certiorari to review an order admitting his will to probate, the executor was the person adversely interested, and a petition stating his name and residence was sufficient. Hea-

Art. 735. [334] [292] Shall be granted on execution of bond.—
The writ of certiorari shall, in all cases, be granted upon the application of a party therefor, upon the applicant entering into bond in such sum as shall be required by the judge, sufficient to secure the costs of the proceeding.

Bond from executors and administrators.—See notes under Art. 733.

Art. 736. [335] [293] Not to operate as supersedeas, unless bond given.—A writ of certiorari shall not operate as a supersedeas of the judgment of the county court, unless the applicant therefor shall enter into bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in such sum as shall be fixed by the order of the district judge, payable to the adverse party, and conditioned for the performance of the judgment of the distinct court, in case such judgment shall be against the applicant.

Art. 737. [336] [294] Writ to issue to contain what.—The writ of certiorari shall be issued by the clerk of the district court upon the compliance of the party with the order of the district court or the judge thereof. It shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, and shall command him to cite the clerk of the county court to make out a certified transcript of the proceedings designated in the writ, and transmit the same to the district court to which the writ is returnable, on or before the return day of the next succeeding term thereof.

Record.—Certiorari brings up only orders entered in the final minutes. Dement v. State, 59 Cr. R. 271, 45 S. W. 917.

Art. 738. [337] [295] When supersedeas granted.—When an order for a supersedeas has been made, it shall also require the clerk and all officers of said court to stay further proceedings on the judgment specified in said writ.

Art. 739. [338] [296] Citation as in ordinary cases.—Whenever a writ of certiorari has been issued, the clerk shall forthwith issue a citation, as in ordinary cases, for the party named in the application, as being adversely interested in the proceedings sought to be revised.

Art. 740. [339] [297] Trial de novo; judgment to be certified below.—The cause shall be tried de novo in the district court, but the issues shall be confined to the grounds of error specified in the application for the writ. The judgment shall be certified to the county court for observance. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 60. P. D. 1460.]

Trial de novo.—In certiorari to review a judgment of the county court, the judgment is no evidence of any fact on the trial de novo. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1655.

That the administrator had paid out the entire estate, settled his account, and been discharged, held no defense to certiorari to review the proceedings and compel a restatement of his account. Friend v. Boren, 43 C. A. 33, 95 S. W. 711.

That a judge of a county court was disqualified to confirm a guardian’s sale of real estate because the beholder was related to the judge within the third degree was insufficient to require reversal of the order on certiorari, since under this article the district court, though exercising appellate jurisdiction only, would be bound to confirm the sale if otherwise regular, notwithstanding the disqualification of the county judge. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

A “trial de novo” means one “from the beginning, once more, anew,” so that under this article, on certiorari from the district court to review an order of the county court approving a settlement of a minor’s injury claim, the case must be retried upon the merits, without reference to errors in procedure committed in the county court, provided the issues are confined to the grounds of error specified in the application, so that questions as to what evidence was considered by the county court to the effect of its order are immaterial. Guilt, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 1189.

Judgment.—A judgment after the death of one of the parties to the proceeding is not void. Holman v. G. A. Stowers F. Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1120.

Where a motion to set aside such judgment is overruled the remedy is by appeal. Id. It is proper for the court on certiorari to compel a restatement of the administrator’s account to ascertain who the heirs are, and to make a proper disposition of the estate not lawfully paid out by the administrator, by giving to each heir the share to which he is entitled. Friend v. Boren, 43 C. A. 33, 95 S. W. 712.

Certification to county court.—As to certifying judgment to county courts, see Wipff v. Heder (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 184.

Art. 741. [340] [298] Appeals and writs of error allowed.—Appeals and writs of error to the supreme court, from the judgments of the district courts in cases of certiorari, shall be allowed, and shall be governed by the same rules as in other cases.

Appeal.—Court of civil appeals. See Const. Art. 5, §§ 3, 6; post, Arts. 1522, 1589, 2079. An appeal can be taken from a judgment dismissing a suit for a certiorari and ordering a writ of procedendo. Holman v. Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1120.

CHAPTER TWO
CERTIORARI TO JUSTICES’ COURTS

Art.
735. Certiorari to justices’ courts.
734. On order of the county or district court or judge.
735. Affidavit of sufficient cause.
736. What application for certiorari must show.
737. Within what time granted.
738. Bond with sureties required.
739. Bond, affidavit and order to be filed.
740. Writ to issue instantaneously.
741. Justices shall stay proceedings and make return.

Art.
752. Citation as in other cases.
753. Cause to be docketed, and how.
754. Motion to dismiss at first term.
755. No announcement of bond or oath.
757. Pleadings same as in justice’s court, except, etc.
758. Issues, made up under direction of the court.
759. New matter may be pleaded, etc.
760. Trial de novo.
761. Appeals and writs of error in certiorari cases.

Article 742. [341] [299] Certiorari to justices' courts.—After final judgment in a court of a justice of the peace, in any cause, except in cases of forcible entry and detainer, the cause may be removed to the county court by writ of certiorari (or if the jurisdiction, civil or criminal, has been transferred from the county to the district court, then to the district court) in the manner hereinafter directed. [Acts of 1879, p. 125.]

Supplementary to appeal.—The remedy by certiorari is independent of the one by appeal, and additional thereto. Hall v. Magale, 1 App. C. C. § 832; Quinn v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1108; Farlin v. Orendorff Co. v. Keel (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 1082.

A party may set out the certiorari pending an appeal; if he does so, he may be compelled in an appellate court to elect which remedy he would rely upon; and the remedy abandoned would be dismissed at his cost. Quinn v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1108; Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 188.

Grounds for.—Certiorari to bring up suit on ground that justice had lost jurisdiction by dismissal held properly denied. Silcock v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 234.

Certiorari to bring up suit in justice court because of pendency of another suit held properly denied. Id.

Where a cause is decided by a justice of the peace on conflicting evidence, there cannot be a review by certiorari. Clevenger v. Murray (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 469.

Discretion of court.—Certiorari to review a justice court judgment is not granted as a matter of right: the application being addressed to the discretionary powers of the court. McDoull v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 884.

Cannot join several suits in one certiorari.—A. obtained eight several judgments by default against B. In as many separate suits in a justice's court. B. removed all these causes to the county court by certiorari, embracing them all in the same petition and bond. Held, that the binder of the several suits in the proceeding by certiorari was not permissible, and the certiorari was properly dismissed. G., H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Ware, 2 App. C. C. § 357.

Certiorari to court of civil appeals.—The proper remedy for bringing to the court of civil appeals a cause of the justice's court where the case originated is by certiorari, and not by affidavit to which the justice's transcript is attached. Peugh v. Moody (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 296.

Mandamus.—A justice of the peace refused to send up the papers in a case where an appeal had been perfected; the appellant obtained a writ of certiorari requiring the justice to send up the record as under an appeal in said cause, and that the cause be tried de novo in the county court. Held, that the proper remedy was by mandamus; but the certiorari having served the purpose of bringing the papers up to the county court, and by virtue of the fact that the court had jurisdiction on the perfected appeal, there should have been a trial de novo, and the case was improperly dismissed. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Dyer, 2 App. C. C. § 312; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McTigue, 1 App. C. C. § 459; Sherwood v. Galveston R. E. & L. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 694; Brown v. Grinnan, 2 App. C. C. § 413.

Art. 743. [342] [300] On order of the county or district court or judge.—The writ of certiorari shall be issued by order of the county court or the judge thereof, (or district court or the judge thereof, if jurisdiction is transferred to said district court) as provided in the preceding article.

Writ, by whom granted.—A writ issued without the fiat of the judge is void. Gaston v. Parker, 1 App. C. C. § 107.

A county judge who is disqualified from sitting in the trial of a case cannot grant a certiorari. Baldwin v. McMillan, 1 App. C. C. § 518; Fellrath v. Gilder, 1 App. C. C. § 1060.

But he has no authority to dismiss the proceeding on that account; the only action that he can legally take in the case is to transfer it to the district court. The consent of the parties will not confer upon him the authority to do more than this. Fellrath v. Gilder, 1 App. C. C. § 1060; Garrett v. Gaines, 6 T. 435; Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 104.

Art. 744. [343] [301] Requisites of the writ.—It shall command the justice of the peace to make and certify a copy of the entries in the cause on his docket, and transmit the same, with the papers in his possession, to the proper court on or before the first day of the next term thereof; but if there is not time for such transcript and papers to be filed at such term, then they shall be so filed at the next succeeding term of said court. [Act March 20, 1848, p. 163, sec. 67. P. D. 408.]

Grunds for dismissal.—The fact that the writ of certiorari is made returnable to a term subsequent to the next succeeding term is not ground for dismissal. Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 106.

When a petition for a writ of certiorari has been granted and the bond executed and approved, the proceeding will not be dismissed on the ground that the clerk issued a subpoena duces tecum instead of a writ of certiorari in the usual form. Beauchamp v. Schiff, 3 App. C. C. § 170.

Art. 745. [344] [302] Affidavit of sufficient cause.—The writ shall not be granted unless the party applying for the same, or some person for him having knowledge of the facts, shall make affidavit in writing, setting forth sufficient cause to entitle him thereto. [Id.]

Necessity and requisites of affidavit.—All grounds of defenses must be negatived when the application is made by the plaintiff in the trial court, and against whom judgments or processes have been rendered. Johnson v. Lane, 12 T. 178. An averment that the defendant offered no evidence is insufficient. Hagood v. Grimes, 24 T. 15.

The parties to, character and amount of, the judgment must be stated. Boyd v. Clark, 27 T. 432.

All the facts must be stated (Doughty v. Hale, 1 App. C. C. § 1551), and not the conclusion and belief of the applicant (Robinson v. Lakey, 19 T. 133; Givens v. Blocker, 23 T. 635; Bodman v. Harris, 20 T. 31; Mays v. Lewis, 4 T. 1; Riley v. Runkle, 29 T. 92; Olds v. Parse, 24 T. 425; Ford v. Williams, 5 T. 311).

It is not necessary to state the evidence of witnesses in an affidavit in totidem verbis, or written instruments in hæc verba: but it is sufficient to give the substance of the facts proved on the trial. Sturart v. Mau, 2 App. C. C. § 784.

It should appear from the affidavit that the affiant has knowledge of the facts stated (Spinks v. Mathews, 80 T. 372, 15 S. W. 1101), and that he used due diligence in prosecuting his cause of action or defense (Quinn v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1103; Railway Co. v. Simon, 2 App. C. C. § 99).

A motion for certiorari not supported by affidavit and that fails to ask that the clerk send up a perfect record, is insufficient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 631.

Affidavits for a writ of certiorari to a justice of the peace construed, and held not insufficient. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 45 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 86.

Under this article a statement in writing signed by a party and verified by affidavit made by him is sufficient. Id.

An application.—The officer omitted to affix his official seal to the writ, on a motion to dismiss the petition, the defeat may be cured by an amendment. Hail v. Magale, 1 App. C. C. § 854.

Art. 746. [345] [303] What application for certiorari must show. —In order to constitute a sufficient cause, the facts stated must show that either the justice of the peace had not jurisdiction, or that injustice was done to the applicant by the final determination of the suit or proceeding, and that such injustice was not caused by his own inexcusable neglect. [Id.]

Pleading in general.—Petition in the county court for certiorari to justice court held sufficient to authorize the grant of the writ. Bowman v. Weber (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 493.

Petition for certiorari to justice of the peace held to sufficiently set out the names of the parties. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Bellows (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 593.

Where the allegations of a petition for certiorari to review a justice's judgment in action by physician showed a material and vital error by the justice, it was error to dismiss the petition. Von Koehring v. Schneider, 24 C. A. 469, 60 S. W. 277.

Petition, in applying for a writ of certiorari to review a justice court judgment, held within the rule that such an application must state the evidence or facts established in the trial court. Mcburnett v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

It is not necessary for obtaining the remedy by certiorari to assign any excuse for not taking an appeal. Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 659.

Want of jurisdiction.—Cases in which the writ was applied for on the ground that the trial court did not have jurisdiction, and granted: Hill v. Faison, 27 T. 488; Perry v. Rohde, 29 T. 729; T. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Bailout, 1 App. C. C. § 552; Braford v. Taylor, 1 App. C. C. § 174; Harris v. Hood, 1 App. C. C. § 570. Refused: Pearl v. Puckett, 8 T. 357; Peabody v. Buentillo, 18 T. 313.

In a garnishment proceeding, where judgment was rendered against plaintiff by default without notice, held, that it was entitled to a review by certiorari. J. W. Butler Paper Co. v. Scarff & O'Connor, 46 C. A. 599, 102 S. W. 1165.

Injustice to applicant.—Granted on the ground that injustice was done to the applicant. Washi v. Davy, 6 T. 183; King v. Longcope, 7 T. 236; Ahrens v. Giesecke, 9 T. 432; Hooks v. Lewis, 16 T. 551; Ice v. Lockridge, 21 T. 461; Smith v. Thomas, 1 App. C. C. § 677.

Petition for certiorari to justice of the peace held to sufficiently show that entry of judgment by justice was an injustice to petitioner. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Bellows (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 593.

Where the allegations in a petition for a writ of certiorari to review a judgment of a justice of the peace, showed that judgment was rendered against the petitioner because of a forged receipt introduced by the appellee, it was error to dismiss the petition. Von Koehring v. Schneider, 24 C. A. 469, 60 S. W. 277.

Defendant's application for a writ of certiorari to a justice held to state facts sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to recover for goods sold or converted. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Edgewood Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1075.

Relator held to have sustained an injury entitled him to a writ of certiorari to review a judgment. Reed v. Sieckenu (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 457.
In the petition for a writ of certiorari to review a justice court judgment, mere general statements of a good defense, or that injustice has been done, is not sufficient, but it must state the facts upon which it is expected to recover. McDouall v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

Certiorari will not lie to review a justice court judgment in order to permit a party to avail himself of a defense which he could have urged in the justice court and which he neglected to do. Id.

A general statement, in the application for a writ of certiorari to review a default judgment, that applicant did not owe plaintiff anything, and was prevented by sickness from appearing held to entitle applicant to the writ. Wilbur v. Lane, 53 C. A. 249, 115 S. W. 298.

Negligence of the attorney of defendant, whereby default judgment was rendered, is not neglect of defendant under this article. Lucas v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 659.

Want of merit.—When it appears from the affidavit that the applicant is justly indebted to the adverse party, he must offer to pay the amount admitted to be due, or the petition will be dismissed for want of equity. Parker v. Poole, 12 T. 86.

Petition must show prima facie case.—When the grounds of an application are that the plaintiff failed to show up his defense to the action in the evidence below. Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 195.

A petition for certiorari need not set out verbatim the testimony of each witness, nor the exact contents of written documents. If it gives the substance of the evidence, facts, or statement that applicant has been prejudiced by the admission of evidence was before the court, it is sufficient. Beard v. Miller, 4 App. C. C. § 76, 16 S. W. 655. See also, Carroll v. Gilbert, 4 App. C. C. § 266, 17 S. W. 1056.

A petition must, directly or circumstantially, allege the facts that were in evidence on the trial in the justice's court. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Odom, 4 App. C. C. § 106, 16 S. W. 541.

A petition must either state all the evidence, or show that a material error occurred in the proceedings, or that applicant has not been able to avoid himself of a legitimate prosecution or defense by no fault of his own, but one or all of these causes must be set forth with sufficient detail to show a prima facie case entitling petitioner to another hearing. Gould v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 399.

Amendment.—Where no objection was made by plaintiff in error to the amended petition in certiorari on the ground that it included matter not presented in the original petition, that question cannot be first raised on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 1189.

Art. 747. [346] [304] Within what time granted.—Such writ shall not be granted after ninety days from the final judgment of the justice of the peace. [Id.]

Time within which writ must be sued out.—Writ of certiorari must be sued out within 90 days from date of final judgment. Judgment is final the day it is rendered if no motion for new trial is made. If such motion is the judgment becomes final when it is overruled either by the court or by operation of law. Kyle v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 460.

Where defendant within 90 days obtained an order for a writ of certiorari, and filed a sufficient bond, the writ was not void because the bond was not approved until after 90 days. Wilbur v. Lane, 53 C. A. 219, 115 S. W. 295.

Certiorari pending appeal.—A writ of certiorari may be granted pending an appeal. Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 108.

Where a party aggrieved by the judgment of the county court pursues the remedy of appeal to the district court, he has no right to the remedy of certiorari till the judgment of the district court be set aside. Harbison v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1066.

Laches.—Petitioner held not guilty of laches, so as to bar remedy by certiorari. Par­lin & Orendorff Co. v. Bellows (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 593.

Art. 748. [347] [305] Bond with sureties required.—The writ shall not be issued unless the party applying therefor shall first cause to be filed a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk, payable to the adverse party, in such sum as the judge shall direct, to the effect that the party applying therefor will perform the judgment of the county or district court, if the same shall be against him. [Id.]

Necessity and requisites of bond.—The omission of the name of the obligor in the body of the bond is immaterial when the bond is duly signed by him. Braidfoot v. Taylor, 1 App. C. C. § 175.
The writ will be dismissed when no bond is given (Cotton v. Gammon, 4 T. 83); or when the bond is conditioned by one surety only. (Mayo v. Lewis, 4 T. 11.)

For a description of the judgment the bond may refer to the application for the writ. Seeligson v. Wilson, 63 T. 399.

Amendment.—See notes under Art. 755.

"County or district court."—The expression "county or district court" in this article merely means that the bond should be conditioned that the party appealing should perform the judgment of the particular court applied to to issue the certiorari writ. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 48 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 89.

Art. 749. [348] [306] Bond, affidavit and order to be filed.—The bond and affidavit, with the order of the judge, when made in vacation, shall be filed with the clerk of the court to which the same is returnable.

Judgment on bond.—Where defendant, against whom a default judgment was rendered in justice's court, brought the case to the county court by certiorari, giving the statutory bond, plaintiff, obtaining a judgment showing a trial on the merits in the county court, was entitled to judgment against the sureties on the bond filed in the county court, under this article. Ingram v. McClure (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 329.

Release of sureties.—Upon dismissal of writ of certiorari and payment of costs, sureties on bond are released. Landa v. Moody (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 51.

Art. 750. [349] [307] Writ to issue instantly.—As soon as such affidavit, order of the judge and bond shall have been filed, the clerk shall issue a writ of certiorari, as directed in article 744. [Act May 10, 1850, p. 60, sec. 2. P. D. 470.]

Art. 751. [350] [308] Justice shall stay proceedings and make return.—Upon service of such writ of certiorari being made upon the justice of the peace, he shall stay further proceedings on the judgment and forthwith comply with said writ; but if there be not time for the transcript and papers to be filed at such first term, then they shall be so filed at the next succeeding term of said court. [Id. sec. 67. P. D. 468.]

Art. 752. [351] [309] Citation as in other cases.—Whenever a writ of certiorari has been issued, the clerk shall forthwith issue a citation, as in ordinary cases, for the party adversely interested.

Art. 753. [352] [310] Cause to be docketed, and how.—The action shall be docketed in the name of the original plaintiff, as plaintiff, and of the original defendant, as defendant.

Art. 754. [353] [311] Motion to dismiss at first term.—At the first term of the court to which the certiorari is returnable, the adverse party may move to dismiss the certiorari for want of sufficient cause appearing in the affidavit, or for want of sufficient bond.

Must move at return term.—A motion to dismiss the writ must be made at the return term, and the fact that the motion was made and overruled at the return term does not authorize a supplementary motion, embracing additional grounds, to be made and determined at the succeeding term of the court. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conner, 2 App. C. C. § 105.

It is too late at subsequent term to move to dismiss the certiorari upon the same or other grounds, where a motion has been overruled at a former term. Park v. Sanger, 3 App. C. C. § 196.

At the March term of the county court a cause was continued by agreement without prejudice to either party. At the May term a motion to dismiss was filed and sustained by the court. It was held on appeal that, the motion not having been on file when the agreement was made, it was not within the agreement. It was said that the statute is mandatory and the filing of the motion cannot be waived. No opinion is expressed as to the right to waive the presentation of the motion to dismiss when it is on file. Burns v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 83.

A defect in the bond is not jurisdictional, and where a motion to dismiss is not made at the first term the objection is waived. Howth v. Shumard (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1079.

A motion to dismiss a writ of certiorari at the first term of court to which the writ is returnable shall not prevail if based on any other defects in the proceedings than those named in the statute. Id. 161.
The only grounds for the dismissal of a certiorari are those stated in this article; no other grounds can be entertained. A motion to dismiss on statutory grounds will not be entertained after the first term. Peck v. Reed, 3 App. C. C. § 865.

Hearing of motion.—In passing on exceptions to a petition for certiorari, the county court should accept its allegations as true. Odom v. Carmouche (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 1100.

And a reference cannot be made to the transcript of the justice to contradict it. Richers v. Helmcamp, 1 App. C. C. § 653; Hearin v. Foster, 21 T. 401.

And it is error to admit affidavits or evidence contradicting it. Von Koshring v. Schneider, 24 C. A. 460, 69 S. W. 277.

Facts alleged in application for writ of certiorari will be taken as true on appeal from judgment dismissing the same. Reed v. Sieckelius (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 457.

For motion to quash and dismiss the case, the petition must be taken as true. Richers v. Helmcamp, 1 App. C. C. § 683; Hearin v. Foster, 21 T. 401; Gould v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 899.

Art. 755. [354] [312] No amendment of bond or oath.—No amendment of the affidavit or bond shall be made in the county or district court, nor shall a new affidavit or bond be filed.

See Art. 2104.

New bond.—The district court should not permit a new certiorari bond to be filed. Harris v. Parker (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 844.

Proceeding on second application.—The right to a writ of certiorari is not exhausted by a futile attempt to obtain one provided the subsequent application is in time. The first petition was dismissed and a second sued out. Wilbur v. Lane, 53 C. A. 349, 115 S. W. 298.

Art. 756. [355] [313] Judgment of dismissal.—If the certiorari be dismissed, the judgment shall direct the justice of the peace to proceed with the execution of the judgment below.

Procedendo on dismissal.—See, also, notes under Art. 760.

On dismissal of appeal for want of jurisdiction, judgment may be rendered for appellant for costs of the appeal. L. & F. Co. v. White, 28 S. W. 594, 5 C. A. 109.

Art. 757. [356] [314] Pleading same as in justice's court, except, etc.—No pleading other than that required by law in the justice's court shall be necessary, except in cases of amendment, as hereinafter provided.

Art. 758. [357] [315] Issues made up under direction of the court.—When no pleadings have been filed in justices' courts, and none were necessary, the issues shall be made up under the direction of the court.

Art. 759. [358] [316] New matter may be pleaded, etc.—Either party may plead any new matter in the county or district court which was not presented in the court below; but no new cause of action shall be set up by the plaintiff, nor shall any set-off or counter claim be set up by the defendant which was not pleaded in the court below; and in all such cases the pleadings shall be in writing, and filed in the cause before the parties have announced themselves ready for trial.

This article is not applicable where the new cause of action, if any, is set up in the Justice Court. Nixon v. Padgett, 23 C. A. 659, 57 S. W. 854.

New cause of action, set-off, or counterclaim.—See City of Dallas v. McAllister (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 452, as to setting up a new cause of action, set-off or counter-claim. Payment or any new matter not amounting to a new cause of action or counterclaim may be pleaded on appeal. Gholston v. Ramey (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 713; Brown v. Reed (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 74.

A defendant in an action for debt pleaded to the jurisdiction of the court. On appeal it was held that he was precluded from filing an answer setting up a breach of the

CERTIORARI

(Title 21)

Where intervener before justice failed to verify plea, an amended original plea on certiorari from the district court does not set up a new cause of action because verified.

Harris v. Parker (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 844.

A party can plead in the court to which he has appealed a case from the justice court, or of the district court, on which he was sued, though he did not plead it below.

Where sureties on a reposey bond have taken a case from the justice court to the county court by certiorari, an amended plea in the county court by the plaintiff in the justice court, if the defendant to the note has converted the property to its own use, whereof he asks judgment against them on that ground, sets up a new cause of action, and is not allowable. Barrett v. Habern, 22 C. A. 207, 54 S. W. 644.

Where a plea was tried by a justice on a counterclaim over which he had no jurisdiction that part of such claim consisting of failure of consideration was matter of defense on appeal notwithstanding this article. Brigman v. Aultman, Miller & Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 599.

Where plaintiff obtained judgment in the justice court and the case was appealed to the county court, plaintiff could not amend his pleading so as to claim a larger amount than he recovered in the lower court. Williams v. Houston Cornice Works, 46 C. A. 70, 101 S. W. 829, 1105.

This article does not prohibit amended pleadings in the county court. Davis v. Morris, 52 C. A. 184, 114 S. W. 654.

Plaintiff, in an action in a justice's court, could amend his petition on appeal to the county court so as to conform it to the details of the evidence developed at trial, without violating the rule against pleading a new cause of action by amendment. Wooley v. Corley, 57 C. A. 229, 121 S. W. 1139.

Under this article a plaintiff suing in justice's court two defendants for negligence may not judge against a third person negligently causing the injury. Abeel v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 234.

Written pleadings required.—Under this article plaintiff suing in justice's court two persons for negligence, may not on appeal recover against third person, though the oral pleading sufficiently pleaded the latter's negligence. Abeel v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 234.

Merely rule of pleading.—This article merely prescribes a rule of pleading or practice, and, if the parties so agree to try matters not pleasable under this article to judgment, without objection, the judgment would be conclusive. Crocker v. Mann (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 311.

Art. 760. [339] [317] Trial de novo.—The cause shall be tried de novo, in the county or district court; and judgment shall be rendered, as in cases of appeal from justices' courts. [Act to establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Trial de novo.—The parties occupy the same position in the county court as in the justice's court, and the case is to be tried de novo. If the plaintiff fails to prosecute his suit or to give security for costs when required, the suit will be dismissed on motion of his adversary, and no execution can be issued on the judgment in the justice's court.

It is only when the writ of certiorari is quashed for want of merits or because there is no sufficient bond that the judgment of the justice's court is revived. Miller v. Holts, 23 T. 133; Givens v. Blocker, 23 T. 633; Clark v. Hutton, 28 T. 133.

When the writ was applied for on the ground that the officer neglected to affix his signature to the jurat or an affidavit for a writ of garnishment, but the objection was not made in the trial court, its omission could be supplied on the trial in the county court. White v. Casey, 25 T. 552.

Where defendant had instituted suit on a note and mortgage in justice court, and afterwards amended his petition by setting up an additional note, and obtained judgment thereon without notice to plaintiff, held that, in certiorari by plaintiff to the justice court, it was error for county court to refuse to hear evidence as to the second note, and to reduce defendant's judgment to the amount due on the first note. Nixon v. Padgett, 53 C. A. 639, 57 S. W. 834.

When a case is removed by certiorari from a justice to the county court the trial is de novo and the parties are entitled to have decided any matter that was in issue in the justice court or that could be made such in the county court by pleading of the parties. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 48 C. A. 284, 107 S. W. 89.

Art. 761. [360] [318] Appeals and writs of error in certiorari cases.—Appeals and writs of error from the judgments of the county or district court, in cases of certiorari from justices' courts, shall be allowed, subject to such rules and limitations as apply in cases appealed from justices' courts. 410
TITLE 21A
CHILD AND ANIMAL PROTECTION

CHAPTER ONE
STATE BUREAU OF CHILD AND ANIMAL PROTECTION

Art. 761a. Governor to appoint state bureau.—That the governor of the state of Texas shall appoint a state bureau of child and animal protection from and among the members of the directorate of the Texas state humane society, which shall be composed of not less than nine, nor more than twenty-one members. [Acts 1913, p. 108, sec. 1.]

Art. 761b. Ex-officio members of board of directors.—The governor, the superintendent of public instruction and the attorney general shall be ex-officio members of the board of directors of said state bureau. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 761c. Duties of bureau.—It shall be the duty of the said bureau to secure the enforcement of the laws for the prevention of wrongs to children and dumb animals as now defined and as hereafter may be defined by law; to appoint local and state agents to assist in this work; to assist the organization of district and county societies, and to give them representation in the state bureau; to aid such societies and agents in the enforcement of the laws for the prevention of wrongs to children and dumb animals as prescribed by law now existing, or which may hereafter exist; and to promote the growth of education and sentiment favorable to the protection of children and dumb animals. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 761d. Annual meeting.—Said bureau shall hold its annual meeting on the second Monday in November in each year, at the capitol of the state, for the transaction of its business and the election of officers, at which meeting all questions relating to child and animal protection in the state may be considered. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 761e. Annual report.—The said bureau shall make an annual report before the first day of January of each year to the secretary of state, embracing the proceedings of the bureau for the preceding year, and statistics showing the work of the bureau and its agents and county and district societies throughout the state, together with such papers, facts and recommendations as they may deem useful to the interests of children and dumb animals in the state, said report to be fully prepared for publication. The secretary of state shall cause the same to be published in pamphlet or book form by the state, under the supervision of the bureau. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 761f. Publication and distribution of report.—The number of copies of said report to be published shall be not less than five thousand, all of which shall be bound in uniform style, every two years in one volume, and shall be distributed by the secretary of state as follows: Ten copies, each, to the governor of the state, secretary of state, state
Art. 761g. Acceptance of act by state humane society.—If the said humane society shall accept the provisions of this Act, they shall certify their acceptance of the same to the secretary of state and state comptroller. [Id. sec. 7.]

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Art. 761h. Cruel or inhumane treatment; penalty.—Every person who overdrives, wilfully overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, unnecessarily or cruelly beats, or needlessly mutilates or kills, or carries in or upon any vehicle, or otherwise in a cruel or inhumane manner, or causes or procures to be done, or who having the charge or custody of any animal unnecessarily fails to provide it with proper food, drink or cruelly abandons it, shall, upon conviction be punished by fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars. [Acts 1913, p. 168, sec. 1.]

Art. 761i. Food and water for animals impounded; penalty for failure.—Every person who shall impound, or cause to be impounded in any pound or corral under the laws of this state or of any municipality in this state, any animal, shall supply to the same during such confinement a sufficient quantity of wholesome food and water, and in default thereof, upon conviction, be punished by fine or not less than five nor more than fifty dollars. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 761j. Right to enter pound or corral and supply food and water; reasonable cost may be collected; exemption.—In case any animal shall be at any time impounded as aforesaid and shall continue to be without necessary food and water for more than twelve successive hours, it shall be lawful for any person from time to time and as often as it shall be necessary, to enter into or upon any pound or corral in which such animal shall be confined, and to supply to it necessary food and water so long as it shall be so confined; such persons shall not be liable to any action for such entry, and the reasonable cost for such food and water may be collected by him or [of] the owner of the animals; and the said animal shall not be exempt from levy and sale, upon execution issued upon a judgment therefor. [Id. sec. 3.]
Art. 761k. Live poultry; coops, crates and cages; water troughs; penalty for failure.—Every person who shall receive live fowls, poultry or other birds for transportation or to be confined on wagons or stands, or by the owners of grocery stores, commission houses, or other market houses, or by other persons when to be closely confined shall place same immediately in coops, crates or cages made of open slats or wire on at least three sides, and of such height, that the fowls can stand upright without touching the top, and shall have troughs or other receptacles easy of access at all times by the birds confined therein and so placed that their contents shall not be defiled by them, in which troughs or other receptacles clean water and suitable food shall be constantly kept; shall keep such coops, crates or cages in a clean and wholesome condition; shall place only such numbers in each coop, crate or cage as can stand without crowding one another, but have room to move around; shall not expose same to undue heat or cold; shall remove immediately all injured, diseased or dead fowls or other birds, and in default thereof shall, upon conviction, be punished by fine of not less than five nor more than two hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment, for each offense. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 761l. On arrest agent of humane society may take charge of animals and vehicle, etc.; notice; lien.—When any person arrested under any provision of this Act is, at the time of such arrest, in charge of any vehicle drawn by or containing any animal cruelly treated, any agent of said humane society, having been authorized by the sheriff of the county to make arrests in such cases, may take charge of such animal and such vehicle and its contents, and the animal or animals drawing same, and shall give notice thereof to the owner, if known, and shall care and provide for them until their owner shall take charge of the same; and such agent shall have a lien on said animals and on said vehicle and its contents for the expense of such care and provision, or the said expense or any part thereof remaining unpaid may be recovered by such agent in a civil action. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 761m. May take charge of animal abandoned, cruelly treated, etc.; society may collect expense.—Any officer or agent of the said humane society may lawfully take charge of any animal found abandoned, neglected or cruelly treated and shall thereupon give notice thereof to the owner, if known, and may care and provide for such animal until the owner shall take charge of same, and the expense of such care and provision shall be a charge against the owner of such animal and collectible from such owner by said humane society in an action therefor. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 761n. May detain till expense is paid.—When said humane society shall provide neglected abandoned animals with proper food, shelter and care, it may detain such animals until the expense of such food, shelter and care is paid, and shall have a lien upon such animals therefore. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 761o. May destroy animal in certain cases.—Any agent or officer of the said humane society may lawfully destroy or cause to be destroyed any animal in his charge, when, in the judgment of such agent or officer, and by written certificate of two reputable citizens called to view same in his presence, one of whom may be selected by the owner of said animal if he shall so request, and who shall give their written certificates that such animal appears to be injured, disabled, diseased, past recovery, or unfit for any useful purpose. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 761p. Enforcement of lien; sale.—Any person or corporation entitled to a lien under any of the provisions of this Act may enforce the same by selling the animals and other personal property upon which such lien is given, at public auction, upon giving notice to the owner, if he be known, of the time and place of such sale, at least five days previous thereto, and by posting three notices of the time and place of such sale in three public places within the county, at least five days previous thereto; and if the owner be not known, then such notice shall be posted at least ten days previous to such sale. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 761q. Officers or agents to have certificate or badge.—Officers and agents of said humane society shall be provided with a certificate by said society that they are such officers or agents in such form as the directors of said society may choose, or with a badge bearing the name and seal of said society; and shall if requested, show such certificate or badge when acting officially. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 761r. Member of society may require arrest.—Any member of the Texas state humane society may require the sheriff of any county, the constable of any precinct or the marshal or any policeman of any town or city, or any agent of said society authorized by the sheriff to make arrests for the violation of this Act, to arrest any person found violating any of the provisions of this Act, and to take possession of any animal cruelly treated in their respective counties, cities or towns. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 761s. Terms defined.—In this Act the word "animal" shall be held to include every living dumb creature; the words "torture" and "cruelty" shall be held to include every act, omission or neglect whereby unnecessary or unjustifiable pain or suffering is caused, permitted or allowed to continue, when there is a reasonable remedy or relief, and the words "owner" and "person" shall be held to include corporations, and the knowledge and act of agents and employes of corporations in regard to animals transported, owned, employed by or in custody of the corporation shall be held to be the knowledge and acts of such corporations. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 761t. Laws repealed.—All Acts or parts of Acts in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 761u. Pending proceedings; prior offenses.—Nothing in this Act shall be held to apply to or in any manner affect any indictment, trial, writ of error, appeal or other proceedings, judgment, or sentence in case of violation of the provisions of this section by this Act repealed now pending in any court in this state, and the same shall be held, conducted and adjudged as provided by the law in force before this Act shall take effect. Any offense under the provisions of the section by this Act repealed which shall have been committed before this Act takes effect shall be required to be prosecuted and punished in accordance with the law in force at the time of the commission of such offense. [Id. sec. 14.]

GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO CITIES

Art. 762. [381] [340] Cities, towns and villages may accept provisions of this title.—Any incorporated city, town or village in this state, containing one thousand inhabitants or over, including those incorporated under chapter fourteen of this title, or chapter eleven of title eighteen of the Revised Statutes of 1895, and other laws, general and special, may accept the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns, in lieu of any existing charter, by a two-thirds vote of the council of such city, town or village; which action by the council shall be had at a regular meeting thereof and entered upon the journal of their proceedings, and a copy of the same, signed by the mayor and attested by the clerk or secretary under the corporate seal, filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which such city, town or village is situated, and the provisions of this title shall be in force, and all acts theretofore passed incorporating said city, town or village which may be in force by virtue of any existing charter shall be repealed from and after the filing of said copy of their proceedings as aforesaid. When such city, town or village is so incorporated as hereinafter provided, the same shall be known as a city or town, subject to the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns and vested with all the rights, powers, privileges, immunities and franchises therein conferred. [Acts of 1881, p. 115. Acts of 1885, p. 57.]

Application.—This article applies to villages whether incorporated before or after the passage of the statute, and the officers of a village incorporated under chapter 14 in 1906 may accept the provisions of chapter 1. Trent v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 787.

Validity.—Municipalities are created by the state for its benefit, and the state may confine them to such authority as it sees fit, subject to the right of local self-government guaranteed by Bill of Rights, § 1, declaring that the maintenance of free institutions depends on the preservation of local self-government, and this article construed to authorize the officers of a village incorporated by a vote of the people to incorporate under the general law, is not invalid. Trent v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 782.

Must be created in some mode prescribed.—A municipal corporation must be created or dissolved, or its boundaries enlarged, in some mode prescribed by law. Failure to elect officers does not work a dissolution; the officers may still be elected, and the corporation may then incorporate under the general law, and such action will have the effect to repeal all former charters. State v. Dunson, 17 T. 66, 3 S. W. 163; Buford v. State, 75 W. 1940; City v. State, 76 T. 249; Langen v. State, 19 S. W. 161. A reorganization in 1877 of the territory of a town incorporated in 1859, under the act of January 27, 1859, was void. Id.

Papers filed with county clerk not evidence unless.—Certified copies of the incorporation papers could not be introduced in evidence unless they have been filed in the case and three days' notice given, as required by article 3700. Lamar v. State (Cr. App.) 96 S. W. 511, 512.

Presumption as to applicability of general laws.—A city, not shown to be operating under authority to which it was not incorporated to operate, articles relating to cities and towns; the burden being on it, in a suit against it, to show exemption from the operation of such general laws. City of Haskell v. Webb (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 127.

Control of sidewalks.—Whether a city was incorporated under this article or article 1033, it would have control over sidewalks within its limits, and would be liable for negligence with respect thereto. City of Haskell v. Barker (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 833.

Liability of city incorporated under general law.—A city or town incorporated under the general law is responsible in damages for an injury inflicted under circumstances which would fix liability on a city or town incorporated by special enactment, clothed with the same power and charged with the same duties. Baugu v. City of Atlanta, 74 T. 629, 12 S. W. 750.

In habeas corpus proceedings to secure the release of a resident of an incorporated city from arrest, held, that the organization of the city could not be collaterally attacked. Ex parte Koen, 58 Cr. R. 279, 123 S. W. 401.

Art. 763. [382] [341] Provisions of this title do not apply until accepted.—The provisions of this title shall not apply to any city, town or village until such provisions have been accepted by the council in accordance with the preceding article. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 250, sec. 157.]

Historical.—No law existed prior to the act of March 27, 1885, under which towns and villages incorporated under chapter 14, title 52, on acquiring the requisite population, could accept the provisions of that title in lieu of an existing charter, in the manner prescribed by this article, and thus become an incorporated city under the first chapter of that title. Harness v. State, 76 T. 506, 13 S. W. 555.

Art. 764. [383] [342] General powers of the corporation.—All the inhabitants of each city, town or village so accepting the provisions of this title shall continue to be a body corporate, with perpetual succession, by the name and style by which such city, town or village was known before the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and as such and their successors by that name shall have, exercise and enjoy all the rights, immunities, powers, privileges and franchises possessed and enjoyed by the same at the time of the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and those herein granted and conferred, and shall be subject to all the duties and obligations pertaining to or incumbent on the same as a corporation at the time of the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and may ordain and establish such acts, laws, regulations and ordinances, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state, as shall be needful for the government, interest, welfare and good order of said body politic, and, under the same name, shall be known in law, and be capable of contracting and being contracted with, suing and being sued, impleading and being impleaded, answering and being answered unto, in all courts and places, and in all matters whatever, may take, hold and purchase, lease, grant and convey such real and personal or mixed property or estate as the purposes of the corporation may require, within or without the limits thereof; and may make, have and use a corporate seal and change and renew the same at pleasure. [Id. sec. 2.]

22. Cannot be ratified.
23. Provision for payment of debts.
24. Liability to exemplary damages.
25. Towns and villages.
26. General powers and duties of city council.

1. Construction of charter.—Where the general provisions of a city charter are followed by particular provisions, the general powers are restricted thereby. Blankenship v. City of Sherman, 33 S. A. 597, 76 S. W. 808.

2. Power of legislature.—See, also, notes under articles in Chapter 4.

The legislature, in creating municipal corporations, may provide for the submission of proper subjects by the initiative method to the electors of the city. Southwestern Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas, 104 T. 114, 134 S. W. 321.

3. Charged with notice of extent of powers.—A person dealing with a municipal corporation is bound to know the extent of its powers, and, where it fails to comply with an engagement made with him which it had no power to make, he cannot complain. City of Paris v. Sturgeon, 60 C. A. 618, 110 S. W. 450.

4. Powers—In general.—Municipal corporations have only such power as is granted by the legislature, unless otherwise provided in the constitution. City of Paris v. Stur­geon, 60 C. A. 619, 110 S. W. 463; Mantel v. State, 55 Cr. R. 456, 117 S. W. 855, 131 Am. St. Rep. 818; Sue Lung v. Same (Cr. App.) 117 S. W. 857.

6. Police power.—See, also, notes under Chapter 4 of this title. Police power of a city defined. Texarkana Gas & Electric Co. v. City of Texarkana (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 213.

7. Incidental.—Municipal corporations possess the powers expressly granted, those necessarily or fairly implied in or incident to powers expressly granted and those indispensable to declared objects and purposes of the corporation. City of Brehnam v. Holle & Seeholter (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 246.

9. Execute deed.—Charter provision held to authorize city to execute deed with covenant of seisin of City of Galveston, 9 T. 474, 79 S. W. 1064, re-

10. Power to grant franchise to furnish lights.—A city has no power to grant an exclusive franchise to furnish light to its inhabitants. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 618.

11. Power of city to grant franchise, etc., in streets.—See notes under Arts. 854, 862, 863, and 865.

12. Power of city to purchase water and light plant.—See Art. 770 and notes.

13. Contracts—In general.—A contract by a city creating a debt, not made in compliance with Const. art. 11, § 5, is void. Noel v. City of San Antonio, 11 C. A. 686, 53 S. W. 263.

14. Validity.—A city held not bound by a contract, not entered into by it as re-

15. For lighting and water supply.—Contracts, resolution, and ordinance relating to the purchase of waterworks and the erection of additions thereto held one transaction, in determining time of creation of the debt therefor, and the provision for its payment. Winston v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 749.

A contract between a city and electric light company held not binding for want of mutuality, and hence the city was not liable under such contract for lights furnished,

Where electric light company, pursuant to a formal proposition to city council, furnished lights to city for a year and a half, and received payment monthly in accord with such proposal, a taxpayer in such city cannot maintain suit to avoid the contract on the ground that no contract was ever signed by mayor. Dallas Electric Co. v. City of Dallas, 23 C. A. 323, 58 S. W. 153.

16. To supply water construed.—A contract of a city to supply water held terminated at will. Stulgon v. City of Paris (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 967.

17. Ratification.—The doctrine of ratification, as applied to the acts of mucipal officers, stated. Gallup v. Liberty County, 57 C. A. 175, 122 S. W. 291.

18. City liable for services rendered for its benefit.—A city is bound to pay the reasonably incurred expenses performed in the interest of the city and received the benefit. Penn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 636; City of San Antonio v. French, 80 T. 675, 18 S. W. 440, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783; Brand v. City of San

A city receiving the benefit of the services of an attorney cannot deny its liabilty thereon on the ground that he was employed without authority of the council.

19. Power to provide city with water and light.—See Arts. 865 and 867.

20. Regulating," as applied to the affairs of municipal affairs, is given diverse construction; some courts construing it in a restricted sense, while others give it a liberal construction. Withers v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1189.

21. Ultra vires contracts.—The use of a thing by a city that arose out of contract not made in the terms of the law imposes no implied liability upon the city, and does not in effect constitute a ratification of the alleged contract. City of Bryan v. Page,

When a contract with a municipal corporation has been carried out, the party who receives the benefits cannot urge the defense of ultra vires in an action to recover rents due on a lease by the corporation. City of Corpus Christi v. Central W. & W.
Co. of C. A. 94, 27 S. W. 800.

22. Cannot be ratified.—A municipal corporation may ratify a contract (Noel v.
City of San Antonio, 11 C. A. 560, 33 S. W. 263); but not when the contract was ultra vires (Ellis v. City of Cleburne [Civ. App.] 35 S. W. 495).

23. Provision for payment of debt.—A seller of fire hose to a city held entitled to recover the price where the contract was unavoidable because the city failed to make provision for its payment, as required by Const. art. 11. Mineralised Rubber Co. v. City of Cleburne, 22 C. A. 621, 56 S. W. 720.

A contract by a city for the purchase of fire hose, without providing for the levy and payment of a sufficient tax to pay interest thereon and to create a sinking fund, held void. 1d.

The fact that the current revenues of a city cannot be charged with the payment of a certain debt, and there is no provision of law authorizing the levy of a special tax to pay the same, does not render the debt void or prevent its reduction to judgment.

24. Liability for torts.—Exemplary damages. Ostrom v. City of San Antonio, 33 C.
A. 683, 77 S. W. 839.

Maintaining ditch.—City of Ennis v. Gilder, 32 C. A. 351, 74 S. W. 585.

Maintenance of pumping ground.—City of Coleman v. Price, 54 C. A. 33, 117 S. W. 905.

Digging ditch through plaintiff's land.—City of Dallas v. Beeman, 22 C. A. 315, 55
S. W. 762.

25. Towns and villages.—See Art. 1042.

26. General powers and duties of city council.—See Art. 813 et seq.

Art. 765. [573] [502] Property, officers, etc., not affected by this title.—All property, real, personal or mixed, belonging to any city ac-tcepting the provisions of this title, is hereby vested in the corporation created by this title, and the officers of said corporation, in office at the date of its acceptance, shall continue in the same, until superseded in conformity with the provisions of this title, from and after it takes effect. [Acts of 1875, p. 256.]

Pelican Island.—Joint resolution March 8, 1875, held to limit city of Galveston's control of Pelican Island to public uses. Weekes v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 102, 51
S. W. 544.
Taxes levied under former charter.—A city’s right to taxes levied under a former charter is not impaired by a subsequent charter, repealing all former charters, without a saving clause as to rights accruing thereunder. Bennison v. City of Galveston, 34 C. A. 382, 78 S. W. 1089.

Art. 766. [572] [501] Rights, actions, etc., not affected by this title.—All rights, actions, fines, penalties and forfeitures in suits or otherwise, which have accrued under the laws heretofore in force, shall be vested in and prosecuted by the corporation hereby created; and no suit pending shall be affected by the passage and acceptance of this title, but the same shall be prosecuted or defended, as the case may be, by the corporation hereby created. [Id. sec. 153.]

Art. 767. [571] [500] Cemetery lots exempt from forced sale.—The cemetery lots which have, and may hereafter be laid out and sold for said city for private places of burial shall, with their appurtenances, be forever exempt from taxes, executions, attachments or forced sales. [Id. sec. 152.]

Art. 768. [570] [499] City exempt from giving bond in suits.—It shall not be necessary in any action, suit or proceeding in which the city, accepting the provisions of this title, shall be a party, for any bond, undertaking or security to be executed in behalf of the city; but all such actions, suits and proceedings shall be conducted in the same manner as if such bond, undertaking or security had been given, and, for all the purposes of such actions, suits and proceedings, the city shall be liable in the same manner, and to the same extent, as if the bond, undertaking or security in ordinary cases had been duly given and executed. [Id. sec. 151.]

Cited, City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709.

Appeal bond.—A city is not required to give an appeal bond. City of Vernon v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 606.

Art. 769. Powers of city, etc., owning waterworks, sewers, gas and electric lights, to own land within or without limits.—Any town or city in this state, which may have been or may hereafter be chartered or organized under the general laws of Texas, or by special act or charter, and which city or town owns or operates waterworks, sewers, gas or electric lights shall have the power and right to own land for such purposes, within or without the limits of such town or city. [Acts 1909, p. 159.]

Extension of waterworks.—The question of the extension of a city waterworks system must be left to the discretion of the city authorities. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 518.

Art. 770. May purchase, construct and operate systems inside or outside limits, and regulate, etc.—Such town or city may purchase, construct and operate water, sewer and gas and electric light systems, inside or outside of such town or city limits, and regulate and control same, in a manner to protect the interests of such town or city. [Id. sec. 1.]

Power to purchase—Charter construed.—A city charter construed, and held not to authorize the council to purchase a water and light plant. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 192.

The power cannot be implied from a charter provision authorizing the council to "erect, construct, build, operate, and maintain" a such a plant, where the charter prescribed a certain plan of construction therefor. [Id.

Such power held not to be implied from the fact that the commission authorized to control such system could not provide revenues to pay for the same. [Id.

A charter amendment, authorizing the council to pledge part of the city's general revenue to the payment of a debt for water and light plant, held not to empower the council to make a purchase of such plant. [Id.

Contract for construction of waterworks.—In an action against a contractor for breach of a contract to construct city waterworks, the city, under the evidence, held not damaged if the amount paid the contractor, plus the sum paid to complete the works, did not exceed the contract price. City of Sherman v. Connor (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 233.

Where the original contract for the construction of city waterworks was valid, and permitted changes, and changes were made, but the jury found for the contractor, including extras, in a sum less than the contract price, the fact that there was no provision for the levy of a tax to pay for the extras held immaterial. Art. 770  CITIES AND TOWNS

Dedication of sewer.—Evidence held insufficient to show a dedication of a sewer to a city. Diamond v. Smith, 27 C. A. 558, 66 S. W. 141.
A sewer constructed by a private person is not dedicated to public use by reason of its being placed in a public street. Oak Cliff Sewerage Co. v. Marsalis, 30 C. A. 45, 69 S. W. 176.

Sale of electricity to private persons.—Where a city owning and operating an electric light plant to light its streets sold electricity to private citizens for lighting, the court would not interfere unless the sale to private persons resulted in a material impairment of the lighting of the streets. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 618.

Art. 771. May sell water, etc., to persons outside, permit connections, etc.—Such town or city shall have the power and right to sell water, gas, electric light or power and sewer privileges to any person or corporation outside of the limits of said town or city, and to permit them to connect therewith under contract with such town or city, under such terms and conditions as may appear to be for the best interests of such town or city. [Id. sec. 1.]

Power did not exist prior to enactment of this article.—See notes under Art. 866.

Art. 772. May prescribe kind of mains and appliances, etc., inspect, etc., make regulations and prescribe penalties.—Such town or city owning or operating such water or gas mains or sewer pipes and electric appliances shall have the right to prescribe the kind of water or gas mains or sewer pipes and electric appliances, within or beyond the limits of such town or city, and to inspect the same and require them to be kept in good order and condition at all times, and to make such rules and regulations, and prescribe penalties, concerning same, as shall be necessary and proper. [Id. sec. 2.]

For other powers of, and restrictions upon, city councils, in reference to waterworks, see Art. 865; and for power of condemnation for waterworks purposes, public or private, see Arts. 1003 and 1004.

Electrical appliances.—A city held authorized under its police power to regulate and supervise the installation of electrical apparatus inside or outside of buildings. Ex parte Cramer, 92 C. R. 11, 106 S. W. 61, 26 L. R. A. (N. S.) 78, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 588.

Art. 772a. May mortgage and encumber light or water systems, etc.—All cities and towns operating under Title 18 of the Revised Civil Statutes of the state of Texas [Title 22] shall have power to mortgage and encumber any light systems or water systems, and the incomes thereof, and everything pertaining thereto, acquired or to be acquired, to secure the payment of funds to purchase same, or to purchase additional water powers, riparian rights, or to build, improve, enlarge, extend or repair such systems or either of them, and as additional security therefor, by the terms of such encumbrance, may grant to the purchaser or purchasers under any sale or foreclosure thereunder a franchise to operate the systems and properties so purchased, for a term not over twenty years after such purchase, subject to all laws regulating same then in force. [Acts 1911, p. 230, sec. 1.]

Art. 772b. Expense of operation and maintenance of encumbered system to be first lien against income; rates to be equal, uniform and sufficient; free service, etc.—Whenever the income of any lighting systems or water systems shall be encumbered under this Act, the expense of operation and maintenance, including all salaries, labor, materials, interest, repairs and extensions, necessary to render efficient service, and every proper item of expense shall always be a first lien and charge against such incomes. The rates charged for services furnished by any of the said systems shall be equal and uniform, and no free service shall be allowed except for city public schools, or buildings and institutions operated by such city or town, and there shall be charged and collected for such services a sufficient rate to pay for all operating, maintenance, depreciation, replacement, betterment and interest charges, and for interest and sinking fund sufficient to pay any bonds issued to purchase, construct or improve any such systems or of any outstanding indebtedness against same. No part of the income of any such system shall ever be used to pay any other debt, expense or obligation of such city or town, until the indebtedness so secured shall have been finally paid. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 772c. Contracts, bonds and notes; obligation charge, and not debt.—Every contract, bond or note issued or executed under this Act shall contain this clause: "The holder hereof shall never have the right to demand payment of this obligation out of any funds raised or to be raised by taxation." No such obligation shall ever be a debt of such city or town, but solely a charge upon the properties so encumbered, and shall never be reckoned in determining the power of such city or town to issue bonds for any purpose authorized by law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 772d. Management and control of encumbered system to be in council or trustees, etc.—The management and control of any such system or systems during the time same are encumbered, may by the terms of such encumbrance be placed in the hands of the city council of such city or town; but if deemed advisable may be placed in the hands of a board of trustees to be named in such encumbrance, consisting of not more than five members, one of whom shall always be the mayor of such city or town; and the compensation of such trustees shall be fixed by such contract, but shall never exceed five per cent of the gross receipts of any such systems in any one year. The terms of office of such board of trustees, their powers and duties, the manner of exercising same, the election of their successors, and all matters pertaining to their organization and duties may be specified in such contract of encumbrance; but in all matters where such contract is silent, the laws and rules governing the council of such city or town shall govern said board of trustees so far as applicable. Said city council or board of trustees having such management and control shall have power to make rules and regulations governing the furnishing of service to patrons and for the payment for same, and providing for discontinuance of such service to those failing to pay therefor when due until payment is made; and such city council shall have power to provide penalties for the violation of such rules and regulations and for the use of such service without the consent or knowledge of the authorities in charge thereof, and to provide penalties for all interference, trespassing or injury to any such systems, appliances or premises on which same may be located. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 772e. Trustee to make sale on default; collection fees; foreclosure proceedings.—Any contract of encumbrance under this Act may name, or provide for the selection of a trustee to make sale upon default in the payment of the principal or interest according to the terms of such contract, and for the selection of his successor if disqualified or failing to act, and may provide for collection fees not exceeding five per cent of the principal; but no collection fees shall accrue, and no foreclosure proceedings shall be begun in any court or through any trustee, and no option to mature any part of such obligation because of default in payment of any installment of principal or interest shall be exercised until ninety days written notice shall be given to each member of the city council of such city or town and to each member of such board of trustees, if any, that payment has been demanded and default made, which notice shall date from the sending of a letter to each person to be notified, by registered mail, postage and registration fees prepaid, and addressed to them at the postoffice in such city or town; and if the installments of principal and interest then due shall be paid before the expiration of said ninety days, together with the interest prescribed in such contract, not exceeding ten per cent per annum, from the date of default until the date of payment, it shall have like effect as if paid on the date same was originally due. [Id. sec. 5.]
Art. 772f. May encumber light and water systems singly or together, in whole or in part, with or without franchise; sale, how authorized; limit of encumbrance, etc.—In the encumbrance of any properties under this Act, such city or town may encumber any such light systems and water systems, singly or together, and may or may not include in such encumbrance the franchise provided for, and may omit or include in said encumbrance the whole or any part of the properties mentioned in section 1 of this Act [772a], but no such system shall ever be sold until such sale is authorized by a majority vote of the qualified voters of such city or town; nor shall same be encumbered for more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), except for purchase money or to refund any existing indebtedness, until authorized in like manner; such vote in either case to be ascertained at an election, of which notice shall have been given in like manner as in cases of the issuance of municipal bonds by such cities and towns. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 773. [384] [343] Limits of corporation to remain the same until extended, etc.—The bounds and limits of said municipality shall be and remain the same as fixed and defined by the provisions of the act of incorporation, substituted by the provisions of this title; provided, that said limits of said corporation may be hereafter extended by adding additional territory to the same, whenever the majority of the qualified electors of said territory shall indicate a desire to be included within the limits of said corporation, in the manner provided in article 781 of this title. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 2.]

Extension of limits, how.—The extension of corporate limits must be made in conformity with the statute. Buford v. State, 72 Tex. 185, 19 S. W. 401.

Art. 774. [385] Cities, towns and villages may incorporate under. —Any city or town containing one thousand inhabitants or over may be incorporated as such, with all the powers, rights, immunities and privileges mentioned and described in the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns, in the manner prescribed in chapter fourteen of this title for incorporating towns and villages, except that the application to become incorporated shall be signed by at least fifty electors, residents of such city or town, and except that when an election is held according to the provisions of such chapter the words “towns and villages” shall be construed to read, and read, “cities and towns.” When the entry by the county judge, provided in article 1041 in said chapter fourteen, is made with reference to a city or town of one thousand inhabitants and over, such city or town shall be invested with all the rights and privileges of such cities conferred by this title. [Acts of 1881, p. 63. Acts of 1881, p. 115.]

See validating act of 1895, p. 45, remaining in force by virtue of section 20 of the Final Title.

Attempt to incorporate void, when.—An attempt to incorporate a city under the general law while the special act incorporating it is in force is void. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 355, 90 S. W. 912.

Towns and villages.—See Art. 1033 et seq.

Art. 775. [386] [340c] Validating incorporations.—That all towns and cities of one thousand inhabitants or more which have heretofore attempted to accept the provisions of this title and to become incorporated cities of one thousand inhabitants or more, under the general laws of Texas, and have failed to comply with all the requirements of said general law, or which are not included within the literal meaning of those cities which are authorized to accept the provisions of said general law, and all towns and villages incorporated under chapter eleven of title eighteen of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, or by special charter, or otherwise, but which now have one thousand inhabitants or more, and which have heretofore attempted to accept the provisions of this title in lieu of their said town or village charter and become incorporated cities of one thousand inhabitants or more, but which said cities have from and after the dates of their several attempted incorporations and their several efforts to accept the provisions of this title exercised the functions of cities of the class named, and were by the state of Texas recognized as such cities are hereby declared to be cities of one thousand inhabitants or more; and the several acts whereby they attempted to accept the provisions of said law are hereby, in all things, validated; and that all subsequent acts of said cities and towns done and performed as a city of one thousand inhabitants or more, after they had attempted to accept the provisions of said law as aforesaid are hereby validated and declared to be as binding as if said cities had been duly and legally incorporated; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed as validating any act of said cities, or the councils thereof, unless same were authorized by the general laws of the state under which they were attempting to act at the several dates when said acts were done; and provided, further, that the provisions of this article shall not validate the act of any town or city in unlawfully adding additional territory to such town or city, without the consent of such inhabitants so added to said town or city. [Acts of 1891, p. 26.]

The following act of 1895 appears to have been omitted from the Revisions of 1895 and 111. It would seem to remain in force by virtue of section 7 of the Final Title:
"All cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over which have heretofore attemted to accept the provisions of chapter 1, title 17, of the Revised Civil Statutes [Chapter 1, Title 22, of Rev. St. 1911] and which have attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of said general law, but which said attempted incorporation is invalid by reason of the failure of said cities or towns to comply with all the requirements of law relating to the incorporation of towns or villages, but which said cities or towns have from and after the dates of their several efforts to accept the provisions of law relating to the incorporation of cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over, exercised the functions of cities or towns of the class named, and been recognized as such cities or towns, be and are hereby declared to be cities of one thousand inhabitants or over, and their incorporation as such is hereby in all things validated: Provided, that nothing in this act shall be held to validate the incorporation of cities or towns that had less than one thousand inhabitants at the time of their attempted incorporation as such cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over. [Acts 1895, p. 45.]

Constitutionality.—The legislature has authority to authorize chartered towns to accept the provisions of law relating to cities and thereby become chartered cities, and where a town has made the attempt to accept the provision, and thereby become a city, the legislature can validate the attempt. McMickle v. Hardin, 25 C. A. 222, 51 S. W. 324.
See, also, State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 917.

A statute validating defects made in an honest effort to incorporate a city under the general law is not in conflict with the constitution, forbidding the legislature from passing any special law incorporating cities. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 915.

Art. 776. Validating incorporations.—All cities or towns of one	hon thousand inhabitants or over incorporated since March 30, 1895, which have heretofore attempted to accept the provisions of chapter one, title eighteen, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, and which have attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of said general law, but which said attempted incorporation is invalid by reason of the failure of said cities or towns to comply with all the requirements of the law relating to the incorporation of towns or villages, but which said cities or towns have from and after the dates of their several efforts to accept the provisions of law relating to the incorporation of cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over exercised the functions of cities or towns of the class named and been recognized as such cities or towns are hereby declared to be cities of one thousand inhabitants or over; and their incorporation as such is hereby in all things validated; provided, that nothing in this act shall be held to validate the incorporation of cities or towns that had less than one thousand inhabitants at the time of their attempted incorporation as such cities or towns of one thousand inhabitants or over. [Acts 1897, p. 59.]

Art. 777. [386a] Territorial boundaries of cities and towns, etc.—
No city or town in this state shall be hereafter incorporated under the provisions of the general charter for cities and towns contained in Title twenty-two of the Revised Civil Statutes of this state, with a superficial area of more than two square miles, when such town or city has less than two thousand inhabitants, nor more than four square miles, when such city or town has more than two thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants, nor more than nine square miles, when such city or town has more than five and less than ten thousand inhabitants. It shall be the duty of the mayor and board of aldermen, immediately after they qualify as such officers, to pass an ordinance causing an actual survey of the boundaries of such town to be made according to the boundaries designated in the petition for incorporation, and the field-notes thereof recorded in the minute book of such town or city, and also in the record books of deeds in the county in which such town or city is situated. [Acts of 1895, p. 17.]

Territory included—Question of fact.—Whether more territory had been included than was intended to be used for strictly town purposes is a question of fact for a jury to decide, and not a question of law for the court. Merritt v. State (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 373.

Effect of including too much.—The charter of a city having been granted by special act, the fact that it includes in its limits large quantities of agricultural lands does not render it void. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 750.

Where 75 per cent. of the land included in the petition for the incorporation of a town was agricultural land, the incorporation was invalid. Judd v. State, 25 C. A. 418, 62 S. W. 643.

It is the duty of the promoters for the incorporation of a city to fix its limits, so as not to include an unreasonable amount of pasture, agricultural, and woodland therein. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 263, 98 S. W. 912.

The incorporation of a town with four square miles of territory and less than 2,000 inhabitants is illegal. Spurin v. State, 51 C. A. 256, 115 S. W. 130.

Legislature can validate.—If a town is incorporated containing more territory than is authorized by this article, the legislature can validate the incorporation by a special act if it should see fit to do so. State v. Larkin (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 917.

Location to be determined how.—The location of an unincorporated town is not to be determined by the platted area, but by its collection of inhabited houses, which together with the area appurtenant to the same constitutes the town within the ordinary signification of the term. Ralls v. Parrish (Sup.) 147 S. W. 564.

Boundaries collaterally attackable.—Municipal boundaries can be inquired into in a local option election contest only to ascertain whether a voter resided within its limits. Short v. Guerg (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

De facto incorporation.—A town held not incorporated de facto within certain boundaries. Foster v. Hare, 26 C. A. 177, 62 S. W. 641.

An election to determine whether a city shall be incorporated, the result of the election, the organization and election of officers of the corporation and the assumption of such officers to act for it creates a corporation de facto. Even if a municipality has been illegally constituted the State alone can take advantage of the fact in a proper proceeding instituted for the purpose of testing the validity of its charter. City of Carthage v. Burton (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 441.

Where a city is incorporated subsequent to adoption of this act, it is a city in fact, which might have been legally incorporated and is at least a de facto corporation and the property of its citizens is liable for the debts incurred by it. Id.

A town incorporated and treated as such, though not designated as a town, has become a legal and political entity and its territory has been legally organized. Ayres v. Patton, 51 C. A. 186, 111 S. W. 1079.

Art. 778. [386b] Excessive territory to be relinquished.—It shall be the duty of the mayor and the board of aldermen of any town or city in this state heretofore incorporated under Title eighteen of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895 of this state, and whose boundaries have been established so as to include more territory than is specified in article 777, to immediately cause a resurvey of the boundaries of such city or town to be made, so as not to include more territory than is provided for in article 777; such resurvey to be made and the field-notes thereof to be recorded as provided in article 777. [Id.]

Art. 779. [386c] Validating certain incorporations.—All cities and towns in this state whose charters may be void by reason of a failure to properly define their limits, or that may have included in such limits more territory than was provided for in article 386a, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1895, that shall have, within ninety days from the taking effect of an act of the twenty-eighth legislature, general laws of 1903, regular session, chapter 49, page 68, complied with article 386b, Revised Civil Statutes, 1895, are hereby declared to be valid; and such charters and incorporations are hereby in all things validated, the same as if such territorial limits had at first been properly established. [Acts 1903, p. 68.]

Historical.—See, also, Art. 775.

The amendment of 1897 of this article had become article 386c [779] when the amendment of 1899 revised it; but there reference made by that act to article 386c [779] was in reference to the article as amended in 1897, and was sufficient. Larkin v. State (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 917.

Acts 27th Leg. 1st Called Sess. c. 13, amending Rev. St. 1895, art. 386c [779], validating the organization of municipalities invalid through having incorporated adjacent pastoral, agricultural, or other lands where such localities did not include more territory than provided by art. 775, validated the unauthorized annexation of territory to a town; that not appearing that the territory added was pastoral or agricultural nor that the town with such territory included more than that provided for in Art. 775. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Art. 780. [386d] Discontinuing territory.—Whenever there exists within the corporate limits of any city or town organized under the general laws within this state territory to the extent of at least ten acres, contiguous, uninhabited, and adjoining the lines of any such city or town, the mayor and city or town council may by ordinance duly passed discontinue said territory as a part of said city or town; and when said ordinance has been duly passed, the mayor shall enter an order to that effect on the minutes or records of the city or town council; and, from and after the entry of such order, said territory shall cease to be a part of said city or town. [Act of 1895, p. 178.]

Art. 781. [574] [503] Adjoining inhabitants may become part of city, how.—Whenever a majority of the inhabitants qualified to vote for members of the state legislature of any territory adjoining the limits of any city incorporated under, or accepting the provisions of, this title, to the extent of one-half mile in width, shall vote in favor of becoming a part of said city, any three of them may make affidavit to the fact, to be filed before the mayor, who shall certify the same to the city council of said city. The said city council may, by ordinance, receive them as a part of said city; from thenceforth the territory so received shall be a part of said city; and the inhabitants thereof shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges of other citizens, and bound by the acts and ordinances made in conformity thereto, and passed in pursuance of this title. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 155.]

Election not required.—This article does not provide in terms that the will of the inhabitants shall be ascertained by an election held as therein provided; the voters interested may express their preference on the subject by any method of voting satisfactory to themselves and to the city council; and when it is shown by a proper affidavit that a majority favored annexation, the city council is authorized to receive the territory of the town; if there was an irregularity in the action of the council extending the city limits, the state alone can take advantage of the fact in a proper proceeding instituted for that purpose. Graham v. City of Greenville, 67 T. 62, 2 S. W. 742.

Annexation of territory.—As to extension of territory, see City of East Dallas v. State, 78 T. 371, 11 S. W. 1030; State v. Eldson, 76 T. 302, 13 S. W. 263, 7 L. R. A. 733; McCravy v. City of Comanche (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 679.

The organization of a municipal corporation with particular limits does not preclude enlargement of its boundaries by subsequent constitutional legislation. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Under this article and Laws 1905, p. 302, § 148, which provides that any city which has taken charge of public schools within its limits may, by ordinance, extend its corporate lines for school purposes only on a petition signed by a majority of the qualified voters of the territory to be annexed, provided that the change shall not deprive the scholastic children of the remaining part of the common school district of the opportunity to attend school, any extension of a city's limits for school purposes, though it embraces land more than one-half mile in width, is authorized, if it complies with the condition preserving the right of attendance at school. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709.

Art. 782. [575] [503a] Segregating territory from city.—Whenever fifty qualified voters of any territory within the limits of any incorporated town shall sign and present a petition to the mayor of such city, praying that such territory, setting the same out by metes and bounds, be declared no longer a part of such town, it shall be the duty of the mayor or thereof to order an election within thirty days thereafter, to be held at the different voting precincts of said town; and if a majority of the legal voters of said town voting at such election cast their votes in favor of discontinuing said territory as a part of said town, the mayor of said city shall declare such territory no longer a part of said city, and shall enter an order to that effect on the minutes or records of the city council; and from and after the date of such order, said territory shall cease to be a part of said town; provided, no city or town shall thus be reduced to a less area than one square mile or one mile in diameter around the center of the original corporate limits. [Acts of 1883, p. 99.]

Controversy as to facts.—Where application is made to the mayor to order an election to restrict the limits of the city, if there be controversy as to the existence of the necessary facts, he cannot be compelled to act. State v. Eidson, 76 T. 392, 13 S. W. 263; 3 L. R. A. 785; Ewing v. State, 51 T. 172, 16 S. W. 872; Mathews v. State, 82 T. 577, 18 S. W. 711.

Art. 783. [576] [503b] Liable for debts, etc.—Whenever any territory shall withdraw as above provided, and such city or town shall at the time of such withdrawal owe any debts by bond or otherwise, such withdrawing territory shall not be released from the payment of its pro rata of such indebtedness; but it shall be the duty of said city council to continue to levy an ad valorem tax each year on the property of said territory of the same rate as is levied upon other property of such city, until the taxes collected from said territory shall equal its pro rata share of the indebtedness of said city or town at the time of the withdrawal. The taxes so collected shall be charged only with the cost of levying and collecting the same, and the same shall be applied exclusively to the payment of said pro rata share of indebtedness. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the inhabitants of said territory from paying in full, at any time, their pro rata share of the indebtedness of said city. [Id.]

Art. 783a. Cities on navigable streams and under special charters may extend limits; may acquire land for improvement of navigation, etc.—That from and after the passage of this Act the right, power and authority is hereby given to the city council of all cities situated along or upon navigable streams in the state of Texas, and acting under special charters, to extend the limits of said city for the limited purposes named in this Act, so as to include in said city the said navigable streams and the land lying on both sides thereof for a distance of twenty-five hundred (2500) feet from the thread of said stream to a distance of twenty (20) miles or less in an air line from the ordinary boundaries of said city, either above or below the boundaries of said city or both, by the passage of an ordinance extending the boundaries of said city to include the territory aforesaid, being a strip five thousand feet wide and twenty miles, more or less, in length, or so much thereof as the city council may consider advisable to add to the limits of said city; and from and after the passage of said ordinance the city council of said city shall have the right, power and authority to secure land within the territory so added to said city by purchase condemnation or gift for the improvement of the navigation of said navigable stream or waters, either by the United States or by said city, or by any navigation or other improvement district, and for the purpose of establishing and maintaining wharves, docks, railway terminals, side tracks warehouses or any other facilities or aids whatsoever to either navigation or wharves; and for these purposes the corporate limits of said cities shall, upon passage of said ordinance, be extended from the existing limits so as to include all the land added to said city by said ordinance, provided that said city shall have no right to tax the property over which such boundaries are so extended, unless such property be within the line and within the limits of the general city boundaries or limits; and provided further, that after the passage of said ordinance adding said territory to said city, said city shall have and exercise within said limits the fullest and most complete power of regulation of navigation and of wharfage and of wharfage rates and of all facilities, conveniences and aids to wharfage or navigation consistent with the constitution of this state, and shall further have authority by criminal ordinances or otherwise, to police the navigation of said waters and the use of said wharves and facilities and aids to wharfage and navigation, provided in all condemnation proceedings under this Act the same procedure shall apply that now applies in condemnation of land by cities for the purchases of streets. [Acts 1913, p. 47, sec. 1.]

Art. 783b. Not to include land of other cities or town corporations.
—The power here granted shall not authorize the extension of the territory of any city for the limited purposes named so as to include any land which is already part of any other city or town corporation, whether incorporated under the general laws or under special law, or any land at the time belonging to any other city or town. [Id. sec. 2.]

CHAPTER TWO

OFFICERS AND THEIR ELECTION

Art. 784. Municipal government to consist of certain officers to be elected, etc.
785. Manner of electing officers, etc.
786. Election and term of office of mayor and aldermen.
787. Time of holding election, and returns thereof.
788. Who are qualified voters for city officers.
789. Managers of election shall be sworn;
their powers and duties.
790. Proceedings when vote challenged in cities and towns of 10,000 inhabitants and over.
791. Proceedings in case of a tie vote.
792. Who are eligible to the offices of mayor and alderman.
793. Member of city council ineligible to
Art. 784. Municipal government consists of what.
—The municipal government of the city shall consist of a city council composed of the mayor and two aldermen from each ward, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, except at called meetings or meetings for the imposition of taxes, when two-thirds of a full board shall be required, unless herein otherwise specified; provided, that where the city or town shall not be divided into wards, the city council shall be composed of the mayor and five aldermen, and the provisions of this title relating to proceedings in a ward shall apply to the whole city or town. The other officers of the corporation shall be a treasurer, an assessor and collector, a secretary, a city attorney, a marshal and city engineer, and such other officers and agents as the city council may from time to time direct: provided, that the office of treasurer, assessor and collector, city attorney, and city engineer may be dispensed with by an ordinance of the city or town council; and the powers and duties herein prescribed for such officers may be conferred by said council upon other officers. The above named officers shall be elected by the qualified electors of said city, as hereinafter provided for, and shall hold their offices for two years, and until the election and qualification of their successors. [Acts of 1881, p. 115.]

Art. 785. [388] [345] Manner of electing officers, etc.—An election shall be held in each of the wards of said city, on the first Tuesday in April, next after the acceptance of the provisions of this title, and annually thereafter, at such place or places as the city council may direct, and of which thirty days' previous notice shall be given. Such election shall be ordered and notice thereof shall be given, and election officers and supervisors appointed, as provided by article 2934. The presiding officers and judges must be qualified voters in the city. The city council shall provide for their compensation, and, by ordinance, regulate and define their powers and duties. [Id. Acts 1905, S. S., p. 533, sec. 56.]

De facto officers.—See, also, Arts. 111, 1074, 3687.
As to de facto officers, see State v. Hoff (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 672.

City attorney.—The validity of a new city charter held immaterial to defendant's right to the office of city attorney, where the proceedings under which defendant was elected were valid whether they were held under the old or new charter. Orrick v. City of Ft. Worth, 52 C. A. 308, 114 S. W. 677.

Contesting elections.—See Art. 3046 et seq.

Art. 786. [389] [346] Election, etc., of mayor and aldermen.—At the first election under this title, there shall be elected by the qualified voters of said city, voting by ballot, a mayor, who shall hold his office for two years from the date of his election, and until his successor shall be elected and qualified; and at the first election held under this title there shall be elected by the qualified voters of said city two aldermen from each ward in said city, one of whom shall hold his office for one year, and the other for two years, from the date of their election; and the term for which each shall hold office shall be determined at the first regular meeting after said election by lot; provided, that there shall be one alderman for the long term and one for the short term from each of said wards respectively; and provided, further, that at each annual election thereafter there shall be elected one alderman from each ward, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor is duly elected and qualified; and provided, further, that where the city or town shall not be divided into wards, the city council may determine by proper ordinance what number of aldermen shall go out of office in one year, and the mode and manner of deciding which members shall hold for the long term and which for the short term. [Acts of 1895, p. 8.]

Art. 787. [390] [347] Time of holding election, and returns thereof.—At all elections under this title, the ballots of each ward shall be taken separately, the polls being opened in each ward for one day only, from eight o'clock a. m. until six o'clock p. m., with the privilege of a recess of one hour from twelve o'clock to one o'clock. Should the polls not be promptly opened for the reception of votes by eight o'clock a. m., the time thus lost shall be extended beyond the hour of six p. m., so as to secure the full period of nine hours for voting purposes. On closing the polls, the managers of election shall immediately proceed to count and cast up the votes for each candidate and certify and sign the returns in duplicate, one of which shall be sealed up and returned by the presiding officer for future use as a reference in case of a contested election; the other copy shall be sealed up with the name of the presiding officer written across the seals, and by the presiding officer, or in his absence or inability, by one of the judges or clerks, delivered in open session to the city council the next day or as soon thereafter as practicable. The officer so delivering the same shall make oath before the mayor or one of the aldermen that the returns by him delivered have not been altered or opened since being signed and sealed, as aforesaid. As received, the city council shall immediately open the returns from each ward, casting up the votes of the wards for mayor, city attorney, tax assessor and collector, treasurer, city marshal, city engineer and secretary, and for aldermen of the several wards as hereinbefore provided for; and the persons receiving the highest number of votes for the offices of mayor, city attorney, tax assessor and collector, treasurer, city marshal, city engineer, secretary, and aldermen shall be declared elected to their respective offices; provided, that at the first election held under this statute the two persons from the same ward receiving the highest number of votes in the city for aldermen of the wards for which they are candidates shall be declared elected aldermen of such wards respectively in which they were candidates; and at all subsequent elections held thereunder, only one alderman shall be elected from each ward by the qualified voters of such town or city. The newly elected officers may enter upon their duties on the fifth day thereafter, Sundays excepted; provided, that any officer may qualify at any time within thirty days after his election; otherwise the office shall be deemed vacant, and a new election held to fill the same. It shall be the duty of the secretary to notify all persons elected or appointed to office of their election or appointment; and the city council-elect shall meet at the usual place of meeting on the fifth day, Sundays excepted, after their election, or as soon thereafter as possible, and be installed under the provisions of this title. [Id.]

Art. 788. [391] [348] Who are qualified voters for city officers.—Every person not disqualified by law who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years and is entitled to vote for members of the legislature of this state, and is duly registered, and shall have resided within the corporate limits of said city for six months next preceding the election, shall be entitled to vote for the officers of said city; provided, nevertheless, that no person belonging to the regular army of the United States shall be so entitled. [Act March 15, 1873, p. 256, sec. 7.]

Art. 789. [392] [349] Managers of election shall be sworn; their powers and duties.—The managers of election shall be sworn well and truly to conduct the election, without partiality or prejudice, and agreeably to law, and according to the best of their skill and understanding; which oath shall be administered by the mayor or any justice of the peace. The presiding officer and judges thus qualified shall have power to administer oaths necessary to the performance of their official duties. When any person offering a vote shall be objected to by any one qualified to vote at such election, the managers shall examine him on oath touching the points objected to; and, if he fail in establishing his qualifications to their satisfaction, his vote shall be rejected. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 790. [393] [394a] Proceedings where vote challenged.—In any election, state, county or municipal, being held in any city or town of ten thousand inhabitants or more according to the last preceding United States census, when the right to vote of any elector offering to vote is challenged, the following proceedings shall be had: The judges of election shall refuse to accept such vote of such elector, unless, in addition to his own oath, he proves by the oath of one well known resident of the ward that he is a qualified voter at such election and in such ward. When such vote is accepted, the judges shall cause the clerk of election to make a minute of the name of the elector and the party testifying under oath as to his qualifications; and such memoranda shall be kept by the clerk of the county court for six months after such election is held, subject to the order of the district judge. Whenever the right of an elector to vote is challenged, the word "challenged" shall be entered on the ballot, if accepted by the judges. Any elector voting at any election who does not possess the legal qualifications shall be punished as now provided by law for illegal voting; and any person swearing falsely as to his own qualifications or those of a challenged elector shall be punished as now provided by law for false swearing. [Acts of 1891, p. 47.]

Art. 791. [394] [350] Proceedings in case of a tie vote, etc.—Whenever it so happens in any election that there is a tie between two or more candidates for the same office all of whom cannot be elected, the city council shall declare such election void as between such candidates only, and immediately order a new election for the office, first giving not less than five days' notice thereof. In the event of a failure to meet on the part of the city council to examine the election returns and declare the result, the mayor shall discharge that duty. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 9.]

Art. 792. [395] [351] Who are eligible to the office of mayor and alderman.—No person shall be eligible to the office of mayor unless he possesses the qualifications of an elector, and shall have resided twelve months next preceding the election within the limits of the city; and no person shall be eligible to the office of alderman unless, in addition to the above qualifications, he be a resident of the ward from which he may be elected at the time of the election; provided, that if any alderman shall remove from the ward in which he was elected, his office shall be deemed vacant, and a new election ordered to fill the same. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 793. [566] [495] Member of city council ineligible to other office, and shall not be contractor, surety, etc.—No member of the city council shall hold any other employment or office under the city government while he is a member of said council, unless herein otherwise provided; and no member of the city council, or any officer of the corporation, shall be directly or indirectly interested in any work, business or contract, the expense, price or consideration of which is paid from the city treasury, or by an assessment levied by an ordinance or resolution of the city council, nor be the surety of any person having a contract, work or business with said city, for the performance of which security may be required, nor be the surety on the official bond of any officer of the city. [Acts 1875, p. 256.]

Art. 794. [562] [491] None but resident voters eligible to office.—No person other than an elector resident of the city shall be appointed to any office by the city council. [Id. sec. 143.]

Art. 795. [563] [492] Resignation of officers.—Resignation by any officer authorized to be elected or appointed by this title shall be made to the city council in writing, subject to their approval and acceptance; provided, that nothing in this article shall apply to appointments by the mayor. Any such appointee wishing to resign shall present his resignation to that officer, in writing, for his action. [Id. sec. 144.]

Not released until successor appointed.—The officer whose resignation has been tendered by the mayor, and accepted by him and accepted continues in office, and is not released from his duties and responsibilities until his successor is appointed or chosen and qualified. Jones v. City of Jefferson, 66 T. 576, 1 S. W. 903.

Art. 796. [564] [493] Power of city council to remove officers.—The city council shall have power to remove any officer for incompetency, corruption, misconduct or malfeasance in office, after due notice and an opportunity to be heard in his defense. In addition to the foregoing power of removal, the city council shall have power at any time to remove any officer of the corporation elected by them, by resolution declaratory of its want of confidence in said officer; provided, that two-thirds of the aldermen elected vote in favor of said resolution. [Id. sec. 145.]

The commission of a criminal assault upon another by an officer is not within this article. Johnson v. City Council of Galveston, 11 C. A. 469, 23 S. W. 150.

The provision of a city charter held to have authorized the removal of an officer by council, irrespective of whether he had been elected by the people or by the council. Riggins v. Richards, 97 T. 229, 77 S. W. 946.

Police.—See Notes under Art. 808.

Removal of mayor and aldermen.—See Art. 6065 et seq.

Art. 797. [396] [352] Vacancy, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of mayor or alderman, by refusal to accept or failure to qualify, or by death, resignation or otherwise, the city council shall order a new election to fill such vacancy; and all special elections shall be conducted as is herein provided for in the annual election; provided, that in all special elections to fill vacancies ten days' notice shall be deemed sufficient. In case of a vacancy in any other office in the city than mayor or alderman, by refusal to accept or failure to qualify, or by death, resignation or otherwise, the mayor or acting mayor, shall fill such vacancy by appointment to be confirmed by the city council. [Acts of 1887, p. 41.]

Art. 798. [397] [353] Election to fill vacancy ordered by commissioners' court, when.—Whenever a vacancy occurs, by resignation or otherwise, in the municipal offices of any incorporated town or city in this state, so that the vacancy can not be filled under the charter of said town or city, or under the laws of this state now in force, then, and in that event, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of said county in which said town or city is situated, upon a petition of not less than twenty-six taxable voters living in said city, to order an election to be held to fill such vacancy, giving notice of not less than ten days in the usual manner provided for such elections; provided, where such town or city has been chartered by special act of the legislature, and such town or city contains more than two hundred and less than five thousand inhabitants, and the offices of such town or city have been vacant for a period of ten years or more, such charter of said town or city shall become void and forfeited, and no election of officers in such town or city shall be had; but the inhabitants of such town or city may re-incorporate under the general laws of this state, relating to towns and cities, in the manner as now, or may hereafter be, prescribed by the laws of this state. [Acts 1887, p. 159. Acts 1875, p. 256.]

Constitutionality.—The act of 1887 (Gen. Laws 1897, p. 158, § 114), amending this article, embraces but one subject, which is the same as that of the article sought to be amended and is constitutional. State v. Larkin (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 914. The act of 1897 amending this article does not violate Const. art. 3, § 35, providing that no bill shall contain more than one subject which shall be expressed in its title. Cofield v. Britton, 50 C. A. 298, 109 S. W. 497.

Art. 799. [398] [354] Election, etc., in such case, how conducted, etc.—Said election shall, in all things, be carried on as required by law in similar elections; and the officers so elected shall in like manner be qualified and installed into office. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 2.]

Art. 800. [565] [494] Outgoing officer shall deliver books, etc., to his successor, etc.—Whenever any person shall be removed from any office, or the term for which he was elected or appointed has expired, or he has resigned, or has ceased to act in his official capacity, he shall deliver over to his successor all books, papers and effects in any way appertaining to his office. Every person violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be deemed an offender within the meaning of any law of the state punishing such offenses, and, in addition thereto, he shall, on conviction before the mayor or recorder, be fined in a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and imprisoned for any time not exceeding six months or either. Any officer who shall have been entrusted with the collection or custody of funds belonging to said city who shall be in default to said city, besides being liable to criminal prosecution and a civil action for debt, shall thereafter be incapable of holding any office under said city, until the amount of his defalcation shall have been fully paid to said city, with twelve per cent interest. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 146.]

Art. 801. [399] [355] City council composed of mayor and aldermen, etc.—The city council shall be composed of the mayor and aldermen provided for by this title. The mayor shall be president of the coun-
Art. 802. [553] [482] Wards of city to remain unchanged until, etc.—The wards of each city accepting the provisions of this title shall be and remain unchanged by its acceptance; provided, that the city council shall have power from time to time to cause a division of said city to be made into as many wards as they may deem necessary, and for the good of the inhabitants of said city, and may change the boundaries of the same; but no such division or change shall be made unless it be done at least three months preceding the city election next ensuing; and said wards so established shall contain as far as practicable an equal number of voters. [Id. sec. 134.]

CHAPTER THREE
DUTIES AND POWERS OF OFFICERS

Art. 803. Officers shall take official oath.—Every person elected by the voters of said city to fill any office, or by the city council, under this title, shall, before entering on the duties of his office, take and subscribe the official oath prescribed in the constitution of this state; and the city council may, by ordinance, require such additional oath as they may deem best calculated to secure faithfulness in the performance of their duties by such officers. [Id. sec. 13.]

Liability for acts of officers.—A city is not liable for the acts of its officers or employees engaged in the execution of its ordinances. Givens v. City of Paris, 24 S. W. 974, A city is not answerable in damages for the negligence of its officers while exercising its police powers. Stinnett v. City of Sherman (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 847.
A city as a general rule is not liable for the torts of its officers in the discharge of their duties, but is liable for their unlawful acts in discharging functions conferred for the peculiar advantage of its own inhabitants. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.)
152 S. W. 478.

Liability for acts of policemen.—See notes under Arts. 808, 809.
Liability for injuries in streets.—See notes under Art. 959.

Art. 804. [401] [357] Duties of mayor.—The mayor of the city shall be the chief executive officer of said corporation, and shall be vigilant and active at all times in causing the laws and ordinances for the government of said city to be duly executed and put in force. He shall inspect the conduct of all subordinate officers in the government thereof, and, as far as it may be in his power, shall cause all negligence, carelessness and positive violations of duty to be prosecuted and punished.

He shall have power, whenever in his judgment the good of the city may require it, to summon meetings of the city council; and he shall, from time to time, communicate to that body all such information, and recommend all such measures, as may tend to the improvement of the finances, the police, health, security, cleanliness, comfort, ornament and good government of said city. [Acts of 1881, p. 115, secs. 1 and 2.]

Duties depend upon charter, etc.—The powers and duties of the mayor of a city depend entirely on the provisions of the charter and valid ordinances or by-laws and resolutions of the council passed in pursuance thereof. City of Galveston v. Hutchens (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 214.

Powers.—See Art. 806.

Removal.—See Art. 8065 et seq.

Art. 805. [402] [358] Mayor may summon citizens to act as a special police force, etc.—Whenever the mayor shall deem it necessary, in order to enforce the laws of the city, or to avert danger, or protect life or property, in case of riot or any outbreak or calamity or public disturbance, or when he has reason to fear any serious violation of law or order, or any outbreak, or any other danger to said city, or the inhabitants thereof, he shall summon into service, as a special police force, all or as many of the citizens as in his judgment and discretion may be necessary and proper; and such summons may be by proclamation or order addressed to the citizens generally, or those of any ward of the city, or subdivision thereof; or such summons may be by personal notification. Such special police force, while in service, shall be subject to the orders of the mayor, shall perform such duties as he may require, and shall have the same power while on duty as the regular police force of said city; and any person so summoned and failing to obey, or appearing and failing to perform any duty that may be required by this title, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 256, sec. 15.]

De facto police.—Persons acting as peace officers and regarded as such by the general public held officers de facto, and arrest by such officers was valid. Ex parte Tracey (Cr. App.) 93 S. W. 538.

Art. 806. [403] [359] Powers of the mayor.—The mayor shall have like power, with a justice of the peace, to administer oaths of office. He shall possess and execute, in the city, in criminal cases, all the powers and duties of a justice of the peace. He shall have authority in case of a riot or any unlawful assemblage, or with a view to preserve peace and good order in said city, to order and enforce the closing of any theater, ball-room, grogshop, tippling-house, bar-room or other place of resort, or public room, or building, and may order the arrest of any person violating, in his presence, the laws of the state, or any ordinance of the city; and he shall perform such other duties and possess and exercise such other power and authority as may be prescribed and conferred by the city council. [Id. sec. 16.]

Execution of notes.—The mayor of a city cannot bind the city by executing a renewal of a note given by it without authority from the city council. City of Tyler v. Adams (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 119.

Deeds.—Mayor of a city held to have had no authority to bind the city by inserting a warranty in a deed. City of Galveston v. Hutchens (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 214.

Where a resolution of city council authorized the mayor to make deed, covenant of general warranty contained in the deed executed thereunder held binding on the city. Abbott v. City of Galveston, 97 T. 474, 76 S. W. 1064.

Contracts.—A contract made by the mayor without authority from the council is void. Penn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 636.

Where the mayor of a city without authority executed a contract on behalf of the city, the city shall not be estopped from denying the same; it not having received any benefit thereunder. Indiana Road-Mach. Co. v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 908.

A resolution by a city council held to authorize the mayor to contract for the payment of a specified sum for a deed to land in dispute as a roadway. City of Longview v. Cappa (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 160.

Appointment of officers.—A city ordinance held presumptive to relate only to the appointment of officers as to whom the mayor had the power of appointment. City of San Antonio v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 399.

Duties.—See Art. 804.

Salary.—See Art. 816.

Art. 807. [404] [360] Ordinances and resolutions adopted shall not take effect until, etc.—All ordinances and resolutions adopted by the council shall, before they take effect, be placed in the office of the city secretary; and if the mayor approve thereof, he shall sign the same; and such as he shall not sign, he shall return to the city council, with his objections thereto. Upon the return of any ordinance or resolution by the mayor, the vote by which the same was passed shall be reconsidered; and if, after such reconsideration, a majority of the whole number of aldermen agree to pass the same, and enter their votes on the journal of their proceedings, it shall be in force; and if the mayor shall neglect to approve or object to any such proceedings for a longer period than three days after the same shall be placed in the secretary's office as aforesaid, the same shall go into effect. [Id. sec. 17.]

For provisions as to recorder and clerk of corporation court, see chapter, "Corporation Courts."

Explanatory.—Acts 1899, p. 46, c. 3, creating corporation courts (embodied in chapter 5 of this title) abolished the municipal court and officers of judge, recorder and clerk thereof, in every city, town, or village (as theretofore established) after the due and legal organization of the corporation court therein.

Art. 808. May appoint police officers; salary, fees, tenure, etc., bond; powers.—The city council or town council in any city or town in this state, incorporated under the provisions of this title relating to cities and towns, may, by ordinance, provide for the appointment, term of office and qualifications of such police officer, or officers, as may by such city council be deemed necessary. Such police officer or officers so appointed by such city council shall receive a salary or fees of office, or both, as shall be fixed by the city council; and such city council may, by ordinance, provide that such police officer or officers so appointed shall hold their office at the pleasure of the city council and for such term as the city council may from time to time direct. Such police officer or officers, so appointed by such city council, shall give such bond for the faithful performance of his duties, as the city council may require; and such police officer or officers so appointed shall have like powers, rights and authority as are by said title vested in city marshals. [Acts 1907, p. 299.]

Charter provision self-executing.—A provision in a city charter granting its council authority to appoint policemen and prescribe their duties and compensation was self-executing, and required no resolution or ordinance to make it effective. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 95 S. W. 925.

Appointment and tenure.—See, also, note under Art. 825.

That one appointed policeman was suggested to the mayor by the marshal held immaterial, the mayor having no independent power of appointment. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 59, 79 S. W. 848.

A city charter provision that policemen shall hold office during good behavior is unconstitutional. City of Houston v. Mahoney, 36 C. A. 45, 80 S. W. 1142.

Under the San Antonio city charter, the board of police and fire commissioners held entitled to allow a mounted policeman holding office at the time of the adoption of the charter to hold over under the control of the commission. City of San Antonio v. Beck (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 263.

Reappointment.—Adoption of provision of city charter held not to create a vacancy in the office of policeman, so as to constitute a reappointment from the date of adoption. City of Houston v. Mahoney, 36 C. A. 45, 80 S. W. 1142.

Action of city council in adopting in code of ordinances provisions of charter placing police department under civil service rules, held not to amount to a reappointment for an additional term of a policeman serving at the time of such action. City of Houston v. Smith, 36 C. A. 43, 80 S. W. 1144.

Abandonment of office.—A policeman, discharged without authority, held not to have abandoned his office by serving as special policeman. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 59, 79 S. W. 848.

A policeman held to have abandoned his office by acceptance of appointment as constable. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 95 S. W. 925.

Discharge.—Inability of a police officer to read or write the English language held ground for removal, within the term "incompetency or inefficiency." Steinback v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 822.

The action of the city council in dismissing a police officer does not require the subsequent assent of the mayor to make it valid. Doherty v. City of Galveston, 19 C. A. 708, 43 S. W. 894.

The court cannot inquire into the regularity of a judgment of the Galveston city council removing a police officer or the competency or sufficiency of the evidence to support it. Id.
A provision of a city charter held to have sufficiently provided a mode of procedure on charges. Richards, 97 T. 229, 77 S. W. 616.

A provision of a city charter, prohibiting the discharge of policemen except after trial and for cause, is valid. City of Houston v. Mahoney, 35 C. A. 45, 80 S. W. 1142.

De jure officer.—A policeman held to have become a de jure officer, though not qualifying in strict conformity to requirements. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

Policeman acting under appointment held to become a de jure officer entitled to retain his office for the full term pertaining thereto. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 99 S. W. 925.

Arrest without warrant.—A city charter and ordinances, authorizing policemen to arrest without warrant when an ordinance is violated in their view, is valid. Vann v. State, 45 Cr. R. 34, 77 S. W. 812, 106 Am. St. Rep. 951.

Salary.—Where no charges were preferred against a policeman, held, that he was not required to appeal to the city council from his discharge by the marshal as a condition to his recovery of salary for his unexpired term. Cawthon v. City of Houston, 31 C. A. 1, 71 S. W. 339.

A policeman entitled to draw $75 or $85 per month, according to the detail of work, who was illegally discharged before the expiration of his term, held entitled to recover salary for the unexpired term at the rate of $75 only. Id.

City ordinance providing the compensation of a city marshal, construed in the light of interpretation by the city council, held not void because fixing the salary at an excessive and unreasonable amount. City of Oak Cliff v. Etheridge (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 602.

A city council has power to direct the payment of salary to a policeman and of a bill for pecuniary expenses. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 84.

A policeman, discharged without authority, held entitled to salary, though not performing the duties of the office, and engaging in other pursuits. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

When a policeman was not examined, though the police board was authorized to formulate rules for such examination, held not a matter to be raised by exception to his petition for salary. Id.

A city held chargeable with knowledge of the discharge of a policeman and his offer of services, rending a demand for salary or further tender of services unnecessary. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 99 S. W. 925.

Mere irregularities in proceedings by which a policeman was appointed cannot be taken advantage of by the city to defeat his right to recover salary. Id.

A policeman in order to recover salary, in the absence of proof of discharge, held only required to prove his appointment, qualification, term, salary fixed, and nonpayment. City of San Antonio v. Serna, 45 C. A. 341, 99 S. W. 876.

The salaries of the officers and employees of the police department of San Antonio, fixed by an ordinance in March, 1903, held not affected by the city charter subsequently enacted. City of San Antonio v. Beck (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 263.

A policeman held entitled to receive a certain compensation until his removal from office. Id.

An acceptance by the police and fire commission, having control of the police and fire departments of a city, of the service of its appointee as a policeman, is an acceptance of the service by the city, creating an implied contract on its part to pay the appointee a salary. Id.

Bond.—A policeman’s bond held not required to be conditioned otherwise than provided by the charter, though an ordinance declare his sureties liable for fines against him. City of Houston v. Estes, 35 C. A. 99, 79 S. W. 848.

The execution of a proper bond held not a condition precedent to the right of office of policeman. Id.

Liability of sureties on bond.—A surety on a policeman’s bond to a city to secure the faithful discharge of his duties is not liable for an assault by the officer, where the bond is not executed for the benefit of persons not parties thereto, and there is no ordinance authorizing suing on such bonds by persons injured by the unlawful act of policeman. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Jasper, 56 C. A. 236, 129 S. W. 1145.

A person wrongfully arrested by a policeman held not entitled to maintain an action against the surety on the policeman’s bond, where the right was not conferred by statute. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Crittenden (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 232.

City not liable for acts of police, when.—A city held not liable for the action of its police officers in impressing horses to be used in removing the dead, etc., after a destructive flood. City of Galveston v. Brown, 28 C. A. 274, 67 S. W. 156.

Private corporation liable for acts of policemen.—A corporation is responsible for a wrong committed by a watchman or detective employed by it, although it has been appointed a special police officer at the request of the employer. Perkins Bros. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 556.

Appointment by governor, etc.—A provision of a city charter for a commission appointed by the governor, and having jurisdiction of the police, fire, street, and health departments of the city, is held unconstitutional. Ex parte Levine (Cr. App.) 81 S. W. 1206.

A provision in a city charter for appointment of a chief of police and policemen by commissioners appointed by the governor is constitutional and valid. Ex parte Tracey (Cr. App.) 95 S. W. 538.

Art. 809. [407] [483a] [363] Duties and powers of the marshal.—
The marshal of the city shall be ex officio chief of police, and may appoint one or more deputies; the appointment of which deputies shall only be valid upon the approval of the city council. Said marshal shall, either in person or by deputy, attend upon the recorder’s or mayor’s court while said court is in session, and shall promptly and faithfully execute all writs and process issued from said court; he shall have like power, with the sheriff of the county, to execute the writ of search warrant; he shall be active in quelling riots, disorder and disturbances of the peace within the limits of said city, and shall take into custody all persons so offending against the peace of the city and shall have authority to take suitable and sufficient bail for the appearance before the recorder’s or mayor’s court of any person charged with an offense against the ordinances or laws of the city; it shall be his duty to arrest, without warrant, all violators of the public peace and all who obstruct or interfere with him in the execution of the duties of his office or who shall be guilty of any disorderly conduct or disturbances whatever; to prevent a breach of the peace or preserve quiet and good order, he shall have authority to close any theater, bar-room, ball-room, drinking house, or any other place or building of public resort; and in the prevention and suppression of crime and arrest of offenders, he shall have, possess and execute like power, authority and jurisdiction as the sheriff of the county under the laws of the state. He shall receive a salary or fees of office, or both, to be fixed by the city council. The marshal shall give such bond for the faithful performance of his duties as the city council may require; and he shall perform such other duties and possess such other powers, rights and authority as the city council may, by ordinance, require and confer, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state.

May arrest beyond limits, when.—A city marshal of a town incorporated under the statute may arrest beyond the limits of the town one who has committed a felony within the county. Newburn v. Durham, 88 T. 288, 51 S. W. 156.

Arrest without warrant.—Evidence held sufficient to show that a marshal in making an arrest without warrant was acting in his official capacity. Ritter v. Neatherly (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 439.

Liability to prisoner injured.—One injured in a city prison by reason of the failure of a policeman to properly search another prisoner held to have no cause of action against the chief of police. Stinnett v. City of Sherman (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 847.

A private citizen cannot maintain an action for damages against a chief of police for failure to comply with a city ordinance, requiring him to safely keep prisoners. Id.

Rule for charging sureties of chief of police on official bond for wrongful act of such officer, stated. Gold v. Campbell, 54 C. A. 269, 117 S. W. 469.

Sureties on the official bond of a city marshal are liable for an assault committed by him while making an arrest, where he was assuming to act in his official capacity, though no offense was actually committed. Ritter v. Neatherly (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 439.

Art. 809a. Certain cities may dispense with office of marshal, etc.—A city council or town council of any city or town within this state having less than three thousand inhabitants, according to the last preceding census, may, by an ordinance of said [city] council or town council, as the case may be, dispense with the office of marshal, and at the same time, by such ordinance, confer the duties of said office upon any peace officer of said county; provided, that when the city marshal has been elected by the people, he shall not be removed during his term of office, under the provisions of this article. [Acts 1875, p. 256; Acts 1901, p. 289; Acts 1903, p. 114.]

Art. 810. [408] [364] Duties of the secretary.—It shall be the duty of the city secretary to attend every meeting of the city council, and keep accurate minutes of the proceedings thereof in a book to be provided for that purpose, and to engross and enroll all laws, resolutions and ordinances of the city council, to keep the corporate seal, to take charge of, and preserve and keep in order, all the books, records, papers, documents and files of said council, to countersign all commissions issued to the city officers and licenses issued by the mayor, and to keep a record or register thereof, and to make out all notices required under any regulation or ordinance of the city. He shall draw all warrants on the treasurer, and countersign the same, and keep an accurate account thereof in a book provided for the purpose. He shall be the general accountant of the corporation, and shall keep in books regular accounts of the re-receipts and disbursements for the city, and separately, under proper heads, each cause of receipt and disbursement, and also accounts with each person, including officers who have money transactions with the city, crediting amounts allowed by proper authority and specifying the particular transaction to which such entries apply. He shall also keep a register of bonds and bills issued by the city, and all evidence of debt due and payable to it, noting the particulars thereof, and all facts connected therewith, as they occur. He shall carefully keep all contracts made by the city council; and he shall do, and perform, all such other duties as may be required of him by law, ordinance, resolution or order of the city council. He shall receive for his services an annual salary, payable at stated periods, and such additional fees as may be allowed by the city council.

Art. 811. [409] [365] Treasurer shall give bond; his duties, etc.—The treasurer of said city shall give bond in favor of the city in such amount, and in such form as may be required by the city council, and with sufficient security, to be approved by the city council, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. He shall receive and securely keep all money belonging to the city, and make all payments for the same upon the order of the mayor, attested by the secretary under the seal of the corporation; provided, that no order shall be paid unless the said order shall show upon its face that the city council has directed its issuance, and for what purpose. He shall render a full and correct statement of his receipts and payments to the city council, at their first regular meeting in every quarter, and whenever, at other times, he may be required by them so to do; at the end of every half year he shall cause to be published, at the expense of the city, a statement, showing the amount of receipts and expenditures for the six months next preceding, and the general condition of the treasury; and he shall do and perform such other acts and duties as the city council may require; and, for his services, he shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the city council. [Id. sec. 22.]

Custodian of funds.—The city treasurer is the only lawful custodian of money belonging to the city. The city council cannot control his acts as to where he shall deposit the city funds. City of Bonham v. Taylor, 61 T. 69, 18 S. W. 555.

It is not necessary that the order should specify the particular fund out of which it is to be paid unless a special fund has been created under article 878. Minor v. Loggins, 14 C. A. 153, 37 S. W. 1096.

Bond.—School funds.—See, also, Art. 2882.

A construction of articles 3725-3732 and 3791 of the Revised Statutes of 1879 (articles 3985-3987, 4031, Rev. St. 1895) leads unavoidably to the conclusion that it was intended that the safe keeping and disbursement of the school fund in cities having charge of the public schools should be secured by special bond. The sureties on the treasurer’s general bond cannot be made liable for a defalcation in the special fund. Broad v. City of Paris, 66 T. 119, 18 S. W. 342.

Liability on.—In an action against a city for the balance due on an improvement contract, the city was not entitled to recover over on the treasurer’s bond for an alleged defalcation. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.

Custodian of funds for sea walls.—See Art. 5593.

Art. 812. [411] [367] Powers of city council over officers.—The city council shall have power from time to time to require other and further duties of all officers whose duties are herein prescribed, and to define and prescribe the powers and duties of all officers appointed or elected to any office under this title whose duties are not herein specially mentioned, and fix their compensation. They may also require bonds to be given to the said corporation by all officers for the faithful performance of their duties. The city council shall provide for filling vacancies in all offices, not herein provided for; and, in all cases of vacancy, the same shall be filled only for the unexpired term. [Id. sec. 24.]

Article 813. [412] [368] City council, who shall preside over it, etc.—The mayor and aldermen shall constitute the city council of the city. The city council shall meet at such times and places as they shall by resolution direct. The mayor, when present, shall preside at all meetings of the city council, and shall, in all cases, have a casting vote, except in elections. In his absence and absence of president pro tempore, any one of the aldermen may be appointed to preside. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 25.]

Cited, Ex parte Wade (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 179.

Art. 814. [413] [369] Shall hold stated meetings; may call special meetings; petitions, etc., to, etc.—The city council shall hold stated meetings; and the mayor, of his own motion, or on the application of three aldermen, may call special meetings, by notice to each of the members of said council, the secretary and city attorney, served personally or left at their usual place of abode. Petitions and remonstrances may be presented to the council in writing only; and the council shall determine the rules of its proceedings, and be the judge of the election and qualifications of its own members, and have the power to compel the attendance of absent members, and punish them for disorderly conduct. [Id. sec. 26.]

Delegation of power.—As to the power of a city council to delegate its authority to others, see Railway Co. v. Riordan (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 519; Id., 85 T. 511, 25 S. W. 614.

Special meetings, etc.—Under a city charter, a call for a special meeting of the council held not to authorize an ordinance as to a matter not mentioned in the call. Mills v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1121.

The approval of the minutes of a special meeting of a city council at the following regular meeting is not a ratification of the acts of the special meeting. Id.

Art. 815. [567] [496] Attendance, etc., of officers.—Each alderman shall be fined three dollars for each meeting which he fails to attend, unless on account of his own sickness or that of his family. Any member of the city council remaining absent for three regular consecutive meetings of the board, unless prevented by sickness, without first having obtained leave of absence at a regular meeting, shall be deemed to have vacated his office, and the mayor shall proceed to fill the vacancy in accordance with the charter. [Id. sec. 148.]

Art. 816. [569] [498] Salary of officers shall be fixed by city council, etc.—The city council shall, on or before the first day of January next preceding each and every election, fix the salary and fees of office of the mayor to be elected at the next regular election, and shall, at the same time, establish the compensation or salary to be paid to the officers elected or appointed by the city council; and the compensation or salary so established shall not be changed during the term for which said officers shall be elected or appointed. [Id. sec. 150.]

Not mandatory.—This article is not mandatory, and where the council failed to fix the salary on or before January 1st, it may do so at any time before the general election; and where the council at a regular session on December 9th fixed the salary, it could after January 1st following, and before the general election, fix the salary at a less sum, and the mayor elected at the regular election following could only receive the latter sum. City of Belton v. Head (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 417.

This article requiring the salary of the mayor to be fixed by the council on or before January 1st preceding the election, was merely directory, so that his salary could be fixed after that date. City of Uvalde v. Burney (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 311.

Repeal of prior ordinance.—This article would repeal an ordinance, theretofore passed, fixing the salary of the mayor of a city at $2. City of Uvalde v. Burney (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 311.

Salary of mayor.—The fact that a mayor was required, in addition to performing other duties, to discharge those of street commissioners or marshal would not deprive him of his right to salary earned. City of Uvalde v. Burney (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 311.
Art. 817. [464] [418] Power to pass, etc., ordinances, etc., and other powers.—The city council shall have power to pass, publish, amend or repeal all ordinances, rules and police regulations, not contrary to the constitution of this state, for the good government, peace and order of the city and the trade and commerce thereof, that may be necessary or proper to carry into effect the powers vested by this title in the corporation, the city government, or in any department or officer thereof; to enforce the observance of all such rules, ordinances and police regulations, and to punish violations thereof by fines, penalties and imprisonment in the prison, workhouse, or house of correction, or to work on the streets or other public works, or either, in the discretion of the court before whom conviction may be had; but no fine or penalty shall exceed one hundred dollars, nor the imprisonment more than fifteen days for any offense, unless a larger fine and longer period of imprisonment is herein allowed; and for any fine, penalty and costs imposed by the mayor or recorder in the trial of any cause or complaint before him, execution may issue to collect such fine and costs, to be levied and executed in the same manner that executions are from the district court. The same shall be issued by the mayor or recorder to the marshal, who, in levying on property and selling, shall have like power and authority as the sheriff of the county in executions issued from the district court; and the laws of the state, so far as applicable, shall apply to and be in full force and effect as to the executions issued from the mayor's or recorder's court; and any person upon whom any fine or penalty is imposed may be committed until the payment of the same, with costs, and in default thereof may be imprisoned in the city prison or workhouse, or house of correction, or may be required to work on the streets or other public work of the city for such time and in such manner as may be provided by ordinance; provided, such imprisonment shall not exceed fifteen days, unless a longer period is herein allowed.  [Id. sec. 74.]

1. Not subject to judicial control except, etc.—The acts of the council of a city held not subject to judicial control except in specified cases. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 54, 104 S. W. 518.

2. Charter—Rule of construction.—A city charter will not be so construed as to empower the city council to destroy the city government, if the language will permit a reasonable construction. Fenet v. Mc Culloch (Sup.) 147 S. W. 897.

3. Unless a charter contains an express power to enact an ordinance which is unreasonable, it should be held that it was not the intention to confer authority to enact such an ordinance. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

4. Ordinances—In general.—See Art. 754 and notes.

5. Enactment.—A resolution of a city council is not an ordinance where the charter prescribing the manner in which ordinances must be passed was not complied with. American Const. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1039.

6. Rules of procedure.—A city council shall have power to adopt rules of procedure, not contrary to the constitution of this state, for the good government, peace and order of the city and the trade and commerce thereof, that may be necessary or proper to carry into effect the powers vested by this title in the corporation, the city government, or in any department or officer thereof; to enforce the observance of all such rules, ordinances and police regulations, and to punish violations thereof by fines, penalties and imprisonment in the prison, workhouse, or house of correction, or to work on the streets or other public works, or either, in the discretion of the court before whom conviction may be had; but no fine or penalty shall exceed one hundred dollars, nor the imprisonment more than fifteen days for any offense, unless a larger fine and longer period of imprisonment is herein allowed; and for any fine, penalty and costs imposed by the mayor or recorder in the trial of any cause or complaint before him, execution may issue to collect such fine and costs, to be levied and executed in the same manner that executions are from the district court. The same shall be issued by the mayor or recorder to the marshal, who, in levying on property and selling, shall have like power and authority as the sheriff of the county in executions issued from the district court; and the laws of the state, so far as applicable, shall apply to and be in full force and effect as to the executions issued from the mayor's or recorder's court; and any person upon whom any fine or penalty is imposed may be committed until the payment of the same, with costs, and in default thereof may be imprisoned in the city prison or workhouse, or house of correction, or may be required to work on the streets or other public work of the city for such time and in such manner as may be provided by ordinance; provided, such imprisonment shall not exceed fifteen days, unless a longer period is herein allowed.  [Id. sec. 74.]

Proceedings in the city council at the instance of a contractor held not to constitute an open keeper permitting him to fence building material deposited in a street and hence such fence was unlawful. American Const. Co. v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1013.
6. — Approval or veto.—The order in which ordinances were approved, and therefore the order in which they took effect, is a question of fact. City of Marshall v. Elgin
(Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 670.
7. — Amendment.—Objection cannot be urged to resolutions of a city council that they failed to comply with a requisite as to the method of procedure, where they were merely amended to the main resolution, which was not objectionable on this ground.
8. — Repeal.—The council of a city may rescind action previously taken, and may repeal ordinances unless vested rights are thereby interfered with, or unless the statute prohibits the repeal of a prior ordinance. City of Belton v. Head (Civ. App.)
137 S. W. 417.
9. — Validity in general.—An ordinance held not void on the ground that it gives municipal authorities discretionary power. Kissinger v. Hay, 52 C. A. 295, 113 S. W.
1008.
A city ordinance, passed without authority by the city council, is void. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 C. A. 319, 115 S. W. 653.
The powers of a municipal corporation held derived from legislative acts controlled by constitutional safeguards. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S.
W. 860.
Towns have only power to pass ordinances expressly conferred upon them by law, and in doubtful cases the ruling will be against the power claimed. Ex parte Farley (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 530.
An ordinance in pursuance of a legislative grant need not be in the language of the statute, nor exercise all the granted power. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ.
App.) 153 S. W. 345.
10. — Partial invalidity.—See note under Art. 588.
11. — Police regulations in general.—A city may by ordinance prohibit the sale of goods or liquors on Sunday. Ayres v. City of Dallas, 32 Cr. R. 510, 25 S. W. 631.
Abram v. State, 34 Cr. R. 21, 28 S. W. 818.
A common carrier making an offense for any one not in the employ of the railroad company to jump on or off a moving train, is invalid as applied to a person who in good

An ordinance of a city held valid as an exercise of the police power to protect life
Cas. 1913C, 558.
Cities may adopt reasonable regulations in respect to all matters subject to the police power, so long as such regulations do not amount to virtual prohibition, and are not in conflict with the state laws licensing occupations. Ex parte Brewer (Cr. App.) 152 S.
W. 1008; Ex parte Pitchhos (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1074.
Where an ordinance is not unreasonable on its face, the question may depend upon its operation upon particular conditions of fact, and its effect may be just and reasonable in general but arbitrary in the particular instance. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.
12. — Health regulations.—See notes under Art. 538.
13. — Regulation of billboards.—City, authorized by its charter to pass general ordinances, held to have the right, within its police powers, to regulate the size, location, and construction of billboards. Ex parte Savage, 63 Cr. R. 385, 141 S. W. 244, Ann.
Cas. 1913D, 851.
A municipal ordinance regulating billposting, the size, location, and construction of billboards, will be presumed to be reasonable. Id.
14. — Vagrants and prostitutes.—See notes under Art. 839.
15. — Sale of railroad tickets.—A city ordinance prohibiting the sale of railroad tickets by others than the railroad's agents and to deny to any citizen of equal rights with other citizens, or the right to carry on a lawful operation or to transfer his property as he sees fit. Ex parte Hughes, 50 Cr. R. 614,
100 S. W. 160.
Such ordinance held not to deny the equal protection of the law by granting special privileges to railroad. Id.
16. — Curfew.—A "curfew ordinance" excluding persons under 21 from the street after 9 p. m. held void. Ex parte McCurver, 39 Cr. R. 448, 46 S. W. 936, 42 L. R. A.
17. — Obstructing streets.—See notes under Art. 854.
18. — Conflict with statute.—See, also, notes under Arts. 871, 872, 938, and 965.
A municipal ordinance, prohibiting pool selling on horse races and punishing any saloon keeper permitting pool selling on his premises, is void, as in conflict with a state law licensing the selling of pools on horse races. Ex parte Ogden, 43 Cr. R. 531, 66
S. W. 1100.
A municipal ordinance prohibiting "bunco business," when construed to prohibit gambling, held in conflict with the Penal Code, punishing gambling. Clark v. State, 46 Cr. R. 566, 81 S. W. 722.
Wherever the penalty in a municipal ordinance exceeds or is less than the penalty prescribed by the state law for the same offense, the ordinance is invalid. Ex parte McHenry (Cr. App.) 108 S. W. 239.
The rule that a city ordinance in conflict with the state law on the same subject is void held not applicable, unless the state law is operative in the city. Robinson v.
City of Galveston, 51 C. A. 292, 111 S. W. 1078.
Where there is a conflict between a statute and an ordinance, the ordinance must yield, if necessary to hold either invalid. Mantel v. State, 55 Cr. R. 456, 117 S. W. 865, 151 Am. St. Rep. 818; Sue Lung v. Same (Cr. App.) 117 S. W. 867.
A municipal ordinance held invalid as suspending laws of the state. McDonald v.
Denton (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 823.
The Dallas ordinance prohibiting bawdyhouses except in a defined district is not void as conflicting with the Penal Code prohibition against keeping such houses; no penalty being prescribed nor license given by the ordinance. Hatcher v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

A town ordinance prescribing a less punishment for an offense similar to one under the state law than that fixed by the state law is void. Ex parte Farley (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 550.

An ordinance which conflicts with any law of the state, or which provides a greater or less penalty than the state law for the same offense, is invalid. Ex parte Brewer (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1065; Ex parte Pritchard (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1074.

Where it did not appear that the general stock law was in force in a county containing a city having a stock law ordinance, it was no objection to the ordinance that its penalties were different from the general law. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 557.

19. — Identical with penal statute.—As to ordinances defining a penal offense, see Ex parte Bell, 32 Cr. R. 368, 22 S. W. 1040, 49 Am. St. Rep. 773.

A city council cannot pass an ordinance an act which is made an offense by statute. Ballard v. City of Dallas (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 894.

A city council cannot legally create ordinances covering the same acts, and conflicting the same punishment therefor as provided by the Penal Code. Crowley v. City of Dallas (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 885.

A city ordinance which is identical in terms with a section of the Penal Code is invalid. Ex parte Wickson (Cr. App.) 47 S. W. 643.

Existence of state law providing penalty for the obstruction of streets held to render void a town ordinance punishing the obstruction of its streets. Ex parte Cross, 44 Tex. 316, 71 S. W. 289.

21. — Right to question validity.—A person, who has not been refused a permit under a municipal ordinance, held not entitled to urge its invalidity because it grants discretionary power to municipal authorities. Kissinger v. Hay, 52 C. A. 296, 113 S. W. 1006.

24. — Liability of city for acts of officers in enforcing ordinances.—See note under Art. 128.

25. — Place of sale.—The marshal may sell property seized under this article at any place in the county. Dudley v. Jones, 26 S. W. 445, 6 C. A. 466.

Art. 818. [559] [488] Style of ordinances.—The style of all ordinances shall be, "Be it ordained by the city council of the city of ......" (inserting the name of the city); but it may be omitted when published in the form of a book or pamphlet. [Id. sec. 140]

Enacting clause.—An ordinance without the enacting clause is void. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 776.

The enacting clause of the ordinance of the city of Calvert, in the form prescribed by this article, is sufficient, though the corporate name of the city is the "Mayor, Aldermen, and Inhabitants of the City of Calvert," and the word "Calvert" alone is used. Ex parte Keeling, 54 Cr. R. 118, 121 S. W. 605, 130 Am. St. Rep. 884.

Art. 819. [557] [486] Ordinances, when and how published.—Every ordinance imposing any penalty, fine, imprisonment or forfeiture shall, after the passage thereof, be published in every issue of the official paper for ten days; if the official paper be published weekly, the publication shall be made in one issue thereof; and proof of such publication shall be made by the printer or publisher of such paper, making affidavit before some officer authorized by law to administer oaths, and filed with the secretary of the city or town, and shall be prima facie evidence of such publication and promulgation of such ordinances in all courts of the state; and such ordinances so published shall take effect, and be in force, from and after the publication thereof, unless otherwise expressly provided. Ordinances not required to be published shall take effect, and be in force, from and after the passage thereof, unless otherwise provided. If any town or city shall desire to publish its ordinances in pamphlet or book form, it shall not be necessary to republish such ordinances as have been previously published. [Acts of 1889, p. 4.]

Art. 820. [560] [489] Ordinances, etc., remain in force until, etc.—All ordinances, regulations or resolutions in force in any city accepting the provisions of this title, and not in conflict with this title, shall remain in force under this title until altered, amended or repealed by the city council. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 144.]

Art. 821. [558] [487] Published ordinances admissible in evidence.
—All ordinances of the city, where printed and published by authority of the city council, shall be admitted and received in all courts and places without further proof. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 139.]

Published by authority of city council.—A book purporting to contain the ordinances of a city incorporated under the general law is not admissible to prove the ordinances, without first showing that the book was printed and published by authority of the city council. The court cannot take judicial knowledge of the ordinances of a city incorporated under the general law, but they must be alleged and proved like other facts. This article cannot be aided by article 3692 because the latter merely provides a rule for proving the laws of this state, the United States, territories, sister states, and foreign countries. International Co. v. G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 84.

Resolutions for the paving of a street held admissible as evidence of the act of the city council, though no explanation was given of an interlineation therein. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

Evidence of city ordinance regulating laying out and acceptance of streets held admissible against city to show there had been no statutory dedication. City of San Antonio v. Sullivan, 23 C. A. 619, 57 S. W. 42.

Where, in an action for injuries on a railroad track, the authenticity of a city ordinance book was not disputed, it could not be first contended on appeal that the ordinance was not at the time of the accident. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 579.

Where a city is incorporated under a special charter, and in the charter the city council is required to compile, print and publish the ordinances in book form, and the city is prohibited from the printed book of ordinances, in any suit, a book purporting to contain the city ordinances is admissible in evidence without proof that it was printed and published by authority of the city council. Hall v. G. N. R. Co., 98 T. 109, 81 S. W. 520.

In an action by a city for taxes, certain pamphlets held admissible in evidence as purporting to have been published by authority of the city council. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

In an action for the death of one killed by a train within city limits, held that it was proper to read in evidence certain ordinances from a book, shown by its title to contain the ordinances of the city. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Frugia, 43 C. A. 48, 95 S. W. 563.

A book containing the ordinance of a city purporting to have been published in accordance with the city charter held sufficient evidence of the authenticity of an ordinance contained therein. Ft. Worth & R. H. St. Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 48 C. A. 487, 107 S. W. 556.

Where a city council testifies that the ordinances offered in evidence were printed and published by order of the city council this is sufficient predicate for the admission of the ordinances, without producing the order of the council. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Garber (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 743.

A book which purports to be the printed ordinances of a city is admissible to prove the ordinances, without evidence to show that the ordinances were printed by authority of the city council. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Garber (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 230.

An ordinance depending for its vitality on its acceptance by a railroad is inadmissible in evidence, in the absence of proof of its acceptance. Sutor v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 943.

Enacting clause unnecessary.—A book published by city council containing the ordinances for the purpose of proving an ordinance is not subject to objection because the ordinance in question as shown by the book has no enacting clause. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray, 95 T. 424, 67 S. W. 763; id. (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 232.

That ordinances contained in a compilation of a city's ordinances did not contain an enacting clause did not make them inadmissible in evidence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Garber, 51 C. A. 70, 111 S. W. 227.

Presumption.—The testimony of the mayor of a city to the effect that a certain ordinance, according to his recollection, was duly adopted, that he did not remember that any objection was made, held sufficient to authorize the presumption that it was legally enacted. Heller v. Alvarado, 20 S. W. 1008, 1 C. A. 409.

Ordinances admissible—Regulating speed, etc., of train.—A municipal ordinance held admissible in evidence, in an action against a railroad company for the negligent death of a person on the issue of negligence of the railway company in failing to ring the bell as required by the ordinance. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 79 S. W. 879.

A municipal ordinance requiring railway companies to provide lights where the streets cross railways is admissible in evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matherly, 35 C. A. 694, 81 S. W. 589.

Where an ordinance introduced in evidence in force at the date of its introduction, prohibited a certain act, it has no prima facie effect, unless it is shown to have been passed before the party offering it prior to the commission of the act. Freeman v. McIntyre (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries by striking plaintiff's wagon at a street crossing, in which the evidence raised the issue as to whether the speed of the defendants' train exceeded eight miles an hour at the crossing, held the ordinance prohibiting trains running at a speed exceeding six miles an hour were admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 544.
Art. 822. [561] [490] Fines, etc., to be paid into city treasury.—All fines, forfeitures and penalties for the breach or violation of this title, or any regulation, order or ordinance of the city council, shall, when collected, be paid into the city treasury for the use and benefit of said city. [Id. sec. 142.]

Art. 823. [568] Council may remit fine and penalty.—The city or town council shall have power to remit in whole or in part, and on such conditions as may be deemed proper by them, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present, any fine or penalty belonging to the city, which may be imposed or incurred under this title, or under any ordinance or resolution passed in pursuance thereof. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 149.]

Art. 824. [568] May prescribe duties of officers, etc.—The city or town council shall have power to prescribe the duties of all officers and persons appointed by them or elected to any office or place whatever, subject to the provisions of this title. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 149.]

Art. 825. [440] [396] May create and regulate police.—To create, establish and regulate the police of the city; to appoint watchmen and policemen, and prescribe their duties and powers and compensation. [Id. sec. 52.]

Police officer, not deputy.—See, also, notes under Arts. 808 and 809.

This article authorized the city council to appoint policemen. The marshal appointed in accordance with the first ordinance failed to select a deputy, but after the first of January the council passed an ordinance appointing a deputy marshal, and giving him authority to act as general police officer, fixing his compensation and providing that the city marshal should not be responsible for the acts of the deputy. Held, that this officer was a police officer appointed under this article, and was not a deputy marshal so as to render the marshal liable for his salary. City of Oak Cliff v. Etheridge (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 686.

Art. 826. [457] [411] May prevent trespasses, etc., and punish offenders.—To prevent all trespasses, breaches of the peace and good order, assaults and batteries, fighting, quarreling, using abusive, obscene, profane and insulting language, misdemeanors and all disorderly conduct, and punish all persons thus offending. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 67.]

Art. 827. [425] [381] May regulate the carrying of weapons.—To regulate the carrying of weapons, and to prevent the carrying of the same concealed. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 828. [441] [397] May suppress riots, etc.—To suppress and prevent any riot, affray, noise, disturbance or disorderly assembly in any public or private place within the city. [Id. sec. 53.]

Affray.—An affray, though an offense by statute against the state, may by ordinance be made an offense against a city. Ex parte Freeland (Cr. App.) 42 S. W. 255.

Art. 829. [443] [399] May punish vagrants, etc.—To restrain and punish vagrants, mendicants, street beggars and prostitutes. [Id. sec. 55.]

Refuge home.—A declaration in a city ordinance that a refuge home is a place for the assembly of vagrants and a nuisance held not to give authority to the municipality to prohibit the erection of such a home or to confine it to certain localities. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Prohibiting homes for fallen women.—An ordinance prohibiting, within the limits of a city, homes for the reformation of fallen women, held invalid as an invasion of the rights of property. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860.

Art. 830. [434] [390] May restrain, etc., the sale, etc., of intoxicating liquors.—To restrain, regulate and prohibit the selling or giving away indirectly to evade a tax or penalty, of intoxicating or malt liquors by any person within the city, except by persons duly licensed; to forbid or punish the selling or giving away of any intoxicating or malt liquors to any minor, apprentice or habitual drunkard. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 46.]

Power to regulate, etc., subject to revocation.—The power conferred upon incorporated cities and towns to regulate the liquor traffic within their limits is given with the implied condition that it is subject to be revoked by the adoption of prohibitory laws provided for by the constitution and the statutes. Cities and towns of the State have no vested right in the continuance of the liquor traffic. Williams v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 988.
Art. 831. [436] [392] May prevent sale of liquors in certain places.—The city council shall have full power, by ordinance, to prevent the sale or giving away of any intoxicating liquors in any house or other place where theatrical or dramatic representations are given, and also to prevent intoxicating liquors of any description from being brought into any house or place where such representations are given, under any pretext whatsoever. [Id. sec. 48.]

Authority to determine to whom to issue license.—The legislature may confer on the council of a city the power to conclusively determine what persons shall obtain a liquor license. Berger v. De Louch, 56 C. A. 552, 121 S. W. 691.

Connection with saloon.—City authorities held without authority to authorize balls to be conducted on premises occupied for the sale of intoxicating liquors. Cunningham v. Porcheret, 23 C. A. 80, 56 S. W. 674.

Saloon limits—Power to prescribe.—The state legislature has the right to delegate to a city authority to prescribe saloon limits therein. Cohen v. Rice (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1052.

An ordinance of a city enacted within the provisions of its charter, prescribing saloon limits and prohibiting the sale of liquor therein held a valid police regulation. Id.

A city ordinance prescribing saloon limits held not arbitrary or unreasonable. Id.

A city incorporated under the general incorporation law held not authorized to fix limits or prohibit saloons in any portion of the city. Ex parte Smith, 51 Cr. R. 385, 102 S. W. 115.

A town incorporated under the general incorporation law is not authorized under such law to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within certain prescribed limits of the town. Ex parte Smith, 51 Cr. R. 466, 102 S. W. 1124.

The provisions of the special charter of the city of Ft. Worth, authorizing the city council to fix saloon limits in the city, held constitutional, as being a regulation of the liquor traffic, and not a prohibition thereof. Such charter provision is not unconstitutional as an improper delegation of legislative power to a city. Ex parte King (Cr. App.) 107 S. W. 549. A city ordinance fixing saloon limits held not void for unreasonable discrimination, nor invalid because a subsequent amendment to an occupation tax ordinance exacted a higher tax from saloon keepers within the saloon limits than that paid by those without. Andrews v. City of Beaumont, 51 C. A. 625, 113 S. W. 614.

Unlawful sale, etc., of liquors may be enjoined.—See Art. 4674.

Art. 832. [435] [391] May close drinking-houses, etc., on Sunday.—To close drinking houses, saloons, bar-rooms, beer saloons, and all places or establishments where intoxicating or fermented liquors are sold, on Sundays, and prescribe hours for closing them, and also all places of amusement and business. [Id. sec. 47.]

Charter held invalid.—A city charter, and ordinances passed thereunder, regulating the closing of saloons on Sunday, held invalid and not to abrogate the state law. Fay v. State, 44 Cr. R. 381, 71 S. W. 603.

Art. 833. [458] [412] May prevent and punish the keeping of disorderly houses, etc.—To prevent and punish the keeping of houses wherein indecent, loud or immodest dramatic or theatrical representations are given, houses of prostitution within the city, and to adopt summary measures for the removal or suppression of all such establishments. [Id. sec. 68.]

Prohibiting except in defined district—Validity.—Prohibiting bawdyhouses except in a defined district constitutes legitimate exercise of police power. Hatcher v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 514.

Conflict with state law.—See notes under Art. 817.

Art. 834. [442] May prohibit and punish the abuse of animals.—To prohibit and punish the abuse of animals.

Art. 835. [454] [409] May establish, etc., workhouses, etc.—To erect and establish one or more workhouses or houses of correction, within or without the city limits, make all necessary rules and regulations thereof, and appoint all necessary keepers or assistants. In such workhouse or house of correction may be confined all vagrants, stragglers, idle, suspicious and disorderly persons who may be committed by the mayor or recorder; and any person who shall fail or refuse to pay the fine, penalty or costs imposed for any misdemeanor or breach of any ordinance of the city, instead of being committed to jail, be kept therein, subject to labor and confinement. [Acts 1879, p. 9, sec. 65. R. S. 1879, 409.]

Art. 836. [455] [410] May compel convicts to labor on streets, etc.—To compel and force all offenders against any ordinance of the city, found guilty by the recorder or mayor and sentenced to fine and imprisonment, to labor on the streets and alleys of said city or on any public work, under such regulations as may by ordinance be established. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 837. [456] [410a] Regulate hiring of convicts.—To compel any person who may be convicted of a violation of any of the ordinances of the city, and who may be committed to jail in default of the payment of the fine and costs adjudged against such person to be hired out to any individual, company or corporation within the county in which said conviction is had (and to remain in said county) for the purpose of paying off and discharging said fine and costs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by ordinance, and to pass such ordinances as may be necessary to the regulation and enforcement of said contract of hiring. [Acts of 1887, p. 136.]

Art. 838. [448] [404] May do, etc., to promote health and suppress disease.—To do all acts and make all regulations which may be necessary or expedient for the promotion of health or the suppression of disease. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 60.]

Cited, Ex parte Wade (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 179.

In general.—The city of Dallas may adopt appropriate ordinances to protect the public health, if they conform to the state law on the same subject. Mantel v. State, 55 Cr. R. 456, 117 S. W. 555, 131 Am. St. Rep. 818; Sue Lung v. Same (Cr. App.) 117 S. W. 557.

Dumping ground.—For the negligent maintenance of a dumping ground in such manner as to injure the adjacent resident, a city is responsible in damages. City of Sherman v. Langham (Sup.) 13 S. W. 1042; Hillsboro v. Ivey, 20 S. W. 1012, 1 C. A. 653.

One dumping garbage on his land, the noxious odors from which make it uncomfortable and dangerous to reside on adjacent land, would be liable to the adjoining owner for creating and maintaining a nuisance. City of Paris v. Jenkins, 57 C. A. 383, 122 S. W. 411.

This article authorizes a dumping ground outside the city limits. City of Haskell v. Webb (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 127.

Nuisance, measure of damages.—Measure of damages for dumping garbage on land is difference in rental value with and without the nuisance, with cost of taking care of the premises when not rented because of nuisance, and cost of removing. City of San Antonio v. Mackey's Estate, 22 C. A. 145, 54 S. W. 33.

There can be no recovery on the ground of permanent injury to property from dumping of garbage therein. Id.

The injury resulting to plaintiff's property by the creation of a nuisance by a city by dumping garbage held under the pleading and evidence to be only temporary, so that the measure of damages was the depreciation in rental value of the property, and not its depreciation in market value. City of Paris v. Jenkins, 57 C. A. 383, 122 S. W. 411.

Can destroy property for suppression of disease.—A city held authorized to destroy property for the suppression of disease, under its charter, only when a necessity existed. City of Dallas v. Allen (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 324.

Art. 839. [417] [373] May make health and quarantine regulations.—To make regulations to prevent the introduction of contagious disease into the city; to make quarantine laws for that purpose, and to enforce them within the city and within ten miles thereof. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 840. [424] [380] May establish hospitals, etc.—To erect or establish one or more hospitals, and control and regulate the same, and to prohibit or to permit and regulate the establishment of private hospitals. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 841. [438] [394] May regulate inspection, etc., of provisions, etc.—To regulate the inspection of beef, pork, flour, meal, salt and other provisions, whisky and other liquors to be sold in barrels, hogheads and other vessels and packages; to appoint weighers, gaugers and inspectors, and prescribe their duties and regulate their fees. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 842. [439] [395] May regulate weight and quality of bread.—To regulate the weight and quality of the bread to be sold or used within the city. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 843. [437] [393] May regulate butchers, etc.—To make such rules and regulations in relation to butchers as they may deem necessary and proper. [Id. sec. 49.]
Art. 844. [453] [408] May define nuisances and punish persons guilty thereof, etc.—To abate and remove nuisances and to punish the authors thereof by penalties, fine, and imprisonment, and to define and declare what shall be nuisances and authorize and direct the summary abatement thereof.

Nuisance—Judicial question.—Articles 844, 854, and 863, giving to the council of cities the exclusive power over its streets, authorizing the abatement of nuisances and to define what shall be nuisances, and to control the construction of railroad crossings, authorize a city council to abate a nuisance at common law or under the statute, irrespective of any ordinance on the subject, but, where the thing complained of is not a nuisance per se, the question whether it is a nuisance is one for judicial determination. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston, 57 C. A. 460, 127 S. W. 413.

General. A city may maintain an action to abate a nuisance which renders the atmosphere unhealthy to many of its inhabitants. City of Belton v. Baylor Female College (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 680.

Matters which, though annoying, are in the nature of ordinary incidents of city or town life, cannot be abated as nuisances. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1164.

The power to abate nuisances which can be exercised by the legislature and conferred by it on municipal corporations, held limited to the prohibition or regulation of matters which injure or interfere with the rights of the citizen. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 869.

Cesspool.—A cesspool is not a nuisance per se, whether it emits offensive odors or not. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 368.

Oil storage tanks.—Apart from a city ordinance regulating the maintenance of oil storage tanks within a city, the construction and maintenance of tanks having a capacity of 1,000 gallons held not a nuisance. Texas Co. v. Fisk (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 188.

Barn.—Erection of a barn on defendant's lot directly across the street and in front of plaintiff's dwelling held not a nuisance in itself. Davis v. Joiner (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 252.

Livery stables.—While a livery stable is not a nuisance per se, it may be so conducted as to become injurious to the health or comfort of surrounding property owners. Hall v. Carter (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 461.

It is held that if evidence are adduced showing that livery stable was a private nuisance justifying equitable relief and damages for temporary discomfort, id.

Nuisance erected by county.—A municipal corporation has authority to abate nuisances erected by the county within the city limits on land occupied by county buildings. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 368.

City can maintain action to abate nuisance.—A city may enjoin the county from erecting a jail and cesspool on a public square. City of Llano v. Llano County, 23 S. W. 1008, 5 C. A. 132.

An incorporated city may maintain an action to abate a nuisance within its limits. City of Belton v. Central Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 297; Llano County v. City of Laredo, 9 C. A. 372, 28 S. W. 926; City of Belton v. Baylor Female College (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 680.

Art. 845. [447] [403] May abate nuisances.—To abate all nuisances which may injure or affect the public health or comfort in any manner they may deem expedient. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 59.]

Owner not entitled to damages.—See, also, notes under Art. 844.

A horse, left by the owner in charge of a livery stable keeper, became sick with an incurable disease, and when it became a public nuisance it was killed, pursuant to the instructions of the mayor and aldermen and the town health officer, and at the request of the stablekeeper. Held, that it was the duty of the city to abate such nuisance, calculated to affect the public health or comfort of its inhabitants, the owner was not entitled to recover even nominal damages from the city or the other parties concerned, on the ground that a trespass was committed because they did not get his consent; he being absent at the time. Mezlar v. Miles (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 972.

Art. 846. [450] [405] May compel the cleansing of premises.—To compel the owner or occupant of any grocery, soap, tallow or chandler establishment, or blacksmith shop, tannery, stable, slaughter-house, distillery, brewery, sewers, privy, hide-houses or other unwholesome on nauseous house or place, to cleanse, remove or abate the same, as may be necessary for the health, comfort and convenience of the inhabitants. [Acts 1879, p. 9, sec. 61.]

Health regulations.—See Arts. 838 and 839.

Art. 847. [459] [413] May require owner of drain, sink, etc., to fill up, cleanse, etc., the same, and punish for failure to do so.—To require the owner of private drains, sinks and privies to fill up, cleanse, drain, alter, relay, repair, fix and improve the same, as may be ordered by any resolution or ordinance of said city; and in the event of any failure, neglect or refusal to comply with any such order, the party so failing shall be liable to fine and imprisonment. In the event of there being no person in the city on whom such order can be served the city may have such work done and such improvements made on account of the owner thereof; and all costs, charges and expenses shall be a lien on the property, on the filing of a memorandum by the mayor, under the seal of the corporation thereof, and recording the same with the clerk of the district court; and the city may enforce said lien and institute suit in the corporate name and obtain judgment against said party for the amount so due as aforesaid in any court having jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 69. R. S. 1879, 413.]

Interference with private drains.—In an action by the owner of a sewer in a public street to enjoin a sewerage company from interfering therewith, the right of such owner to operate the sewer held not involved. Oak Cliff Sewerage Co. v. Marsalis, 30 C. A. 42, 69 S. W. 176.

In an action by the owner of a sewer in a street conveyed to a railway company before it was dedicated to public use, to restrain a sewerage company from interference with such sewer, the question of title between such owner and the railway company need not be determined. Id.

Dedication.—See notes under Art. 770.

Art. 848. [451] [406] May direct the location of certain establishments, etc.—To direct the location of business, tanneries, blacksmith shops, foundries, livery stables and any manufacturing establishment; to direct the location and regulate the management and construction of, restrain, abate and prohibit within the city limits, slaughtering establishments and hide-houses or establishments for keeping or curing hides, establishments for making soap, for steaming or rendering lard, tallow, offal and such other substances as may be rendered; and any other establishments or places where any nauseous, offensive or unwholesome business may be carried on. [Acts 1879, p. 9, sec. 62. R. S. 1879, 406.]

Art. 849. [452] [407] May regulate the burial of the dead, etc.—To regulate the burial of the dead; to purchase, establish and regulate one or more cemeteries; to regulate the registration of deaths, marriages and births; to direct the returning and keeping of bills of mortality.

Cemetery.—Permission by a city to a company to use land for a cemetery in a prohibited district, under the superintendence of the city sexton, held consideration for its agreement not to charge over $25 for burial lots. City of Austin v. Austin City Cemetery Ass'n, 96 T. 584, 73 S. W. 625.

Cemetery corporations.—See Art. 1286 et seq.

Art. 850. [462] [416] May prevent, etc., dead animals, etc., being deposited within city limits.—To prevent any person from bringing, depositing or having within the limits of said city any dead carcass, or any other offensive or unwholesome substance or matter, and to require the removal or destruction by any person who shall have placed or caused to be placed upon or near his premises, or elsewhere, of any substance or matter, filth, or any putrid or unsound beef, pork or fish, hides or skins of any kind; and, on his default, to authorize the removal or destruction thereof by some officer of the city, and require the owner of any dead animal to remove the same to such place as may be designated. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 72.]

Disposal of garbage.—Ordinance relating to disposition of garbage held reasonable municipal regulation. Ex parte Anderson, 53 Cr. R. 243, 109 S. W. 193.

Owner of property not entitled to damages.—See note under Art. 845.

Art. 851. [445] [401] May tax, etc., dogs.—To tax, regulate or restrain and prohibit the running at large of dogs, and to authorize their destruction when at large contrary to ordinances, and to impose penalties on the owners or keepers thereof for violations of such ordinances. [Id. sec. 57.]

At large contrary to ordinance.—An ordinance authorizing an officer to shoot unmuzzled dogs on the street is in violation of article 479, Penal Code, and is void. Lynn v. State, 33 Cr. R. 153, 25 S. W. 779.

Tax on dogs.—Ordinance imposing tax on dogs held a valid exercise of the police power. Kidd v. Reynolds, 29 C. A. 355, 50 S. W. 699.
Art. 852. [449] Sanitary regulations by cities and counties.—To co-operate with the commissioners' court of the county in which the municipality is situated in making such improvements as may, by it and said court, be deemed necessary to improve the public health and promote efficient sanitary regulations, and to arrange for the construction of, and payment for, said improvements. [Acts of 1879, p. 9.]

Art. 853. [433] [389] Incorporated cities may establish libraries.—Any incorporated city or town in this state is authorized to establish a free library in such city or town, and to adopt rules and regulations for the proper management thereof, and to appropriate such part of the revenues of such city or town for the management and increase of such free library as the municipal government of such city or town may determine. [Acts Feb. 26, 1874, p. 13, sec. 1. R. S. 1879, 389.]

Art. 854. Control over streets, alleys, etc.—Any incorporated city or town in this state shall have the exclusive control and power over the streets, alleys and public grounds and highways, of the city, and to abate and remove encroachments or obstructions thereon; to open alter, widen, extend, establish, regulate, grade, clean, and otherwise improve said streets; to put drains, or sewers, thereon, and to prevent the incumbering thereof in any manner, and to protect the same from encroachments or injury and to regulate and alter the grade of premises; and to require the filling up and raising of the same; and such city council shall also have power to alter or vacate the alley in any block of ground within the city upon the written application of the owner of the block or if there be more than one owner of such block, then upon the written application of all the owners thereof uniting in such application; and such all [alley] so vacated shall thereupon revert to and become the property of the owner of the block of which it was a part, or if more than one, then to the owners of the adjoining lots therein, each extending to the center of the alley so vacated. [Acts 1913, p. 326, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 326, § 1, amends Art. 854 and adds Arts. 854a, 854b, and 854c.

1. Establishment of street.
3. Alteration of streets.
4. Law or the road.
5. Obstructions.
6. — Removal.
7. Rights of abutting owners.
8. Liability of person violating ordinance.
9. Telephone poles in streets.
10. Regulations as to setting of telegraph poles.
11. Control over side walks.
12. May not allot street.
14. Street improvements.
15. Grant of franchises and privileges in streets of power of city.
16. — Construction of grant.
17. — Forfeiture.
18. Liability for injuries from defects in streets.
19. Street cleaning and dumping grounds.
20. — Individual citizens not liable.
26. — "North."—The word "north" in an ordinance establishing a street held to give only the course of the street. Grace v. Walker, 95 T. 39, 64 S. W. 930, 65 S. W. 482.
31. Alteration of streets.—Streets in a city are subject to change and alteration by legislative authority, and public inconvenience (Harrel v. Lynch, 65 T. 146), or a depreciation in value of property caused thereby, is damnum absque injuria. Wooters v. City of Crockett, 11 C. A. 474, 33 S. W. 391.
36. Law of the road.—Plaintiff, who drove up to the left-hand curb of the street, and there held a conversation with a pedestrian, was not in violation of an ordinance requiring all persons to turn to the right so as to preclude a recovery of damages for injuries from the running away of his horse, caused by the negligence of defendant's servant who drove by him. United States Exp. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 617.
37. Obstructions.—An ordinance of a city prohibiting the unnecessary obstruction of sidewalks with boxes, vehicles, etc., is valid. Sandeguard Grocery Co. v. Conley, 47 C. A. 57, 104 S. W. 1072.
CITIES AND TOWNS

Art. 854

An unauthorized or unreasonable obstruction or encroachment on a public highway is a nuisance at common law. Id.

6. Removal.—The city having a legal right to the possession and control of the streets is by statute empowered to enter upon the said streets and remove whatever obstructions may be found therein. City of Corsicana v. Zorn, 97 T. 317, 78 S. W. 926.

Rights of abutting owners.—See notes at end of Chapter 10.

8. Telephone poles in streets.—The enactment of this article is subsequent in point of time to article 311 relating to telegraph lines, and it was not the intention of the legislature by granting cities exclusive control of streets, alleys, etc., to set at naught the authority previously given to it to telegraph and telephone lines to occupy such highways with their poles, wires, etc. Whatever power is lodged in the city council is delegated to it by the legislature. A city can regulate a telephone company in the use of its streets, but it cannot oust it entirely because it has obtained no franchise authorizing the use and occupation of the streets. City of Texarkana v. Southwestern Telephone & Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 217.

The power of control of its streets, with right to abate any encroachments thereon, given a city by this article, is subordinate to the power given telegraph and telephone companies by article 1870 to set their poles along streets, subject only to the right given the city by statute and kind of property, location and kind of structure, that injunction against the interference by the city with erection of telephone poles in streets does not divest the city of its right of possession of the street; such right having been granted the company by the state. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 769.

9. Regulations as to setting of telegraph poles.—See Art. 1231 et seq.

10. Control over sidewalks.—Article 762 authorizes the incorporation of any city containing 1,000 inhabitants or over, and article 844 declares that such a city shall have exclusive control over its streets. Article 1033 relates to towns or villages containing more than 500 and less than 10,000 inhabitants, and article 1049 provides that the board of aldermen of such towns shall have exclusive control over the streets, within the corporate limits. Held that, whether a city was incorporated under article 1761 or article 1033 it would have control over sidewalks within its limits, and would be liable for negligence with respect thereto. City of Haskell v. Barker (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 833.

11. May not alienate street.—A charter held not to have given a city authority to alienate. Krause v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 283.

13. Street improvements.—See Arts. 999-1017.

14. Grant of franchises and privileges in streets.—Power of city.—The right to construct and operate a street railway cannot be conferred by a municipal ordinance. City of San Antonio v. Riesche (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 388.

A city has the right to permit the use of its streets for the erection of poles and feed wires for use in connection with a street railway system. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Brock, 48 C. A. 41, 106 S. W. 460.

The state held to have the paramount authority to regulate the use of public highways, and a city succeeding to such authority may grant to private persons the privilege of permanently using portions of the highways to carry on a business furnishing public service. City of Texarkana Electric Corp. v. Washington, 199 S. W. 119.

A city, in granting a franchise to a private individual to permanently occupy and use portions of the highways to carry on a business furnishing some public service, may impose conditions, and where the franchise is accepted it is subject to the conditions. Id.

A city having a franchise for a street railway may have the power to grant a franchise for a street railway interfering with the rights of an occupant of adjoining property. American Const. Co. v. Seelig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

Authority to enclose a portion of a street cannot be conferred on an abutting property owner by license or permit issued by a city officer without authority from the city council, but may be conferred by ordinance duly enacted. American Const. Co. v. Seelig, 104 T. 16, 153 S. W. 429.

15. Construction of grant.—A city ordinance held to impliedly authorize a street railway to transmit electric power over streets other than those mentioned in the ordinance. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Brock, 48 C. A. 41, 106 S. W. 460.

16. A street railway company, laying its rails in a street, held required, at common law and under the ordinance granting a franchise, to keep the tracks and street in good repair. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 489, 116 S. W. 42.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the grantees of a franchise to construct a street railroad commenced work within the time required by the ordinance granting the franchise. Spencer v. City of Palestine, 54 C. A. 392, 116 S. W. 857.

Grants of public rights by municipalities to individuals are strictly construed in favor of the public against the individual. Ennis Waterworks v. Ennis (Sup.) 144 S. W. 930.

An exclusive grant will not be implied unless given by express terms or clear implication. Id.

17. Forfeiture.—Where municipal ordinances granting franchises for the construction of an electric light plant and a street railway contained no provisions for forfeiture, and were accepted, the forfeitures could only be declared as forfeited in a suit brought for that purpose. Spencer v. City of Palestine, 54 C. A. 392, 116 S. W. 857.

18. Liability for injuries from defects in streets.—See notes under Art. 999.

19. Street cleaning and高档 grounds.—The cleaning of city streets and disposal of rubbish is the exclusive privilege of a corporation, as distinguished from a governmental function, for the abuse of which a city is liable. Ostrom v. City of San Antonio, 94 T. 523, 62 S. W. 905.
Art. 855

Where a city scavenger repeatedly deposited dead animals and other filth near plaintiff’s residence, the fact that the city ordinance imposed a penalty for such acts did not exempt the city from liability. City of Stephenville v. Bower, 29 C. A. 384, 68 S. W. 833.

Where a city scavenger deposited dead animals, etc., near a residence, the city was liable, though the ground was not owned by it and was not under its control. Id.

A city acts in its individual, and not in its governmental capacity, in disposing of its garbage, and is liable as an individual for creating a nuisance in doing so, so that it would be liable to an adjoining owner, irrespective of negligence, where it established a garbage dump on its own land, the noxious odors from which made it uncomfortable and dangerous to reside on adjacent land. City of Paris v. Jenkins, 57 C. A. 383, 122 S. W. 411.

A city authorized to maintain a dumping ground is liable for damages to adjoining owners, caused by its maintenance as a nuisance. City of Haskell v. Webb (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 127.

22. Powers of county commissioners.—See notes under Art. 2241.

Art. 854a. Charter may authorize sale of squares, parks, streets, etc.—The charter or any amendment thereto, may authorize the city council, board of commissioners, board of aldermen or other city government, to sell and cause to be conveyed any land held or claimed for or as a public square or park, and parts of streets and alleys within the limits of the city. The proceeds of any such sale shall be used only for the purpose of acquiring public squares, streets, or alleys. [Id.]

Art. 854b. Charter may authorize closing streets and alleys for use by railroad company, etc.; sale or closing to be submitted to vote.—The charter, or any amendment thereto, may authorize the city council, board of commissioners, board of aldermen, or other city government to close for exclusive use temporarily or perpetually by any railroad company or other corporation having power of eminent domain, any part or parts, of any street or streets, alley or alleys, and to ratify and confirm any prior ordinances closing any street or streets, alley or alleys, or any part or parts thereof, for the use of any railroad company or any such other corporation.

No public square or park shall be sold and no street or alley, nor part or parts of any street or alley closed until the question of the sale of such public square or park for [or] the closing of such street or alley, or the part or parts, of such street or alley, has been submitted to a vote of the qualified voters, of the city or town, and approved by majority of the votes cast at such election. [Id.]

Art. 854c. In what towns and cities act may be enforced.—This Act shall be enforced in towns or cities under 5000 population or cities over 5000 population which have no special charter and in towns or cities incorporated under Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, and in cities or towns incorporated under any special law. The power authorized by this article may be conferred upon the city council, board of commissioners, board of aldermen, or other city government, by vote of the qualified voters, as in article 854b, of this Act provided. [Id.]

Art. 855. [426] [382] May prevent the incumbering of streets, etc., and cause unsafe buildings to be removed, etc.—To prevent the incumbering of the streets, alleys, sidewalks and public grounds, with carriages, wagons, carts, hacks, buggies, or any vehicle whatsoever, boxes, lumber, timber, firewood, posts, awnings, signs, or any other substance or material whatever, or in any other manner whatever; to compel all persons to keep all weeds, filth and any kind of rubbish from the sidewalks and streets and gutters in front of the premises occupied by them; to require and compel the owners of property to fill up, grade, gravel, and otherwise improve the sidewalks in front of same.

Rights and duties of railway in street.—See Title 116.
Art. 856. [550] [479] City council may cause dangerous buildings, etc., to be removed.—Whenever, in the opinion of the city council, any building, fence, shed, awning or any erection of any kind or any part thereof is liable to fall down and endanger persons or property, they may order any owner or agent of the same, or any owner or occupant of the premises on which such building, shed, awning or other erection stands or to which it is attached, to take down and remove the same, or any part thereof, within such time as they may direct; and to punish by fine and imprisonment, or either, any neglect, failure or refusal to comply therewith. The city council shall, in addition, have the power to remove the same at the expense of the city, on account of the owner of the property or premises, and assess the expenses on the land on which it stood or to which it was attached, and shall, by ordinance, provide for such assessment, the mode and manner of giving notice and the means of recovering any such expenses. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 131.]

Art. 857. [420] [376] May construct bridges, etc., sewers, sidewalks, etc.—To establish, erect, construct, regulate and keep in repair, bridges, culverts and sewers, sidewalks and crossties, and to regulate the construction and use of the same, and to abate and punish any obstructions or encroachments thereon; and the cost of construction of sidewalks shall be defrayed by the owner of the lot, or part of lot or block, fronting on the sidewalk; and the cost of any sidewalk constructed by the city shall be collected, if necessary, by the sale of the lot, or part of lot or block on which it fronts, together with the cost of collection, in such a manner as the city council may by ordinance provide; and a sale of any lot or part of lot or block to enforce collection of costs of sidewalks shall convey a good title to the purchaser; and the balance of proceeds of sale, after paying the amount due the city and costs of sale, shall be paid by the city to the owner. [Id. sec. 33.]

Contracts for construction of sewers.—A contract for the construction of a sewer held not to authorize the city to contract with others to do the work and to bind the contractors on the decision of the engineer as to the expense incurred in executing the contract. Marshall v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 138.

In an action for breach of contract for the construction of a sewer, a contention as the classification of rock excavated held untenable, as amounting that in the engineer's opinion the material was rock which required blasting. Id.

Assignee of a contract for the construction of a sewer cannot complain of the city's obstructing the work prior to the time the contract was actually assigned and the assignee holds the latter may have known of the latter. Id.

In a suit by original contractors against the city for breach of a sewer contract, the city held not entitled to all the sums paid by it to substitute contractors above the agreed contract price without evidence that the amount paid exceeded such price. Id.

In an action against a contractor for breach of a contract to construct city waterworks, the measure of damages defined. City of Sherman v. Connor (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 238.

A report by the city engineer dealing with a part only of the expense held insufficient to constitute a “decision,” within the meaning of a contract for construction of a sewer. City of San Antonio v. L. A. Marshall & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 315.

One who contracts with a city to supervise the construction of sewers cannot be deprived of compensation by improper appropriation by the city of part of the sewer fund. City of Houston v. Potter, 41 C. A. 351, 91 S. W. 855.

Liability of city in respect to sewers and drains—Failure to construct.—Where a city has not undertaken to drain its streets it is not liable for damages resulting from its failure to do so. Messer v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 928.

— Defects in sewers and drains.—Liability of city for negligently causing the flowing of private property from a city ditch. Houston v. Bryan, 22 S. W. 231, 2 C. A. 553.

When a city negligently allows a culvert to become stopped up, it is liable for damages caused thereby. City of Dallas v. Schultz. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 392.

A city authorized to maintain a general drainage system is liable for injury resulting from negligently maintaining the same. City of Dallas v. Webb, 22 C. A. 48, 54 S. W. 398.

A city held liable for the flooding of plaintiff's premises by surface waters. City of Houston v. Hutcherson (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 86.

In an action against a city for injury to abutting property from drainage ditches, held, that the measure of damages was the difference in value between two certain dates, 452.
excluding any general enhancement in value enjoyed by the community, and that there was no bond of objection to the adoption of those dates as dates of comparison in

The fact that there was no evidence of any purpose on the part of defendant city to permit any further enlargement of the ditches in front of plaintiff's property would not deprive plaintiff of the right to sue for permanent damages for the present and probable future natural enlargement of them. City of Houston v. Williams (Civ. App.)
153 S. W. 387.

Sewer polluting water course.—The fact that sewage from a municipal sewer system is deposited upon land some distance from a water course will not exonerate the City from liability for the pollution of the water course by such sewage. City of San Antonio v. Pizzini (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 635.

Charter authority to construct a sewer system does not exonerate a city from lia-ability for negligence in failing to so care for the sewage as to prevent the pollution of a water course. Id.

The fact that plaintiff acquired his land subsequent to the construction of a sewer system by defendant city does not exonerate the city from liability for polluting a water course on which the land abutted. Id.

A city, leasing its sewage farm, held liable to the lower riparian owner where, by negligence of its lessee, the sewage escapes into a water course to its damage. City of

Right to recover damages.—In an action against a city for emptying sewage into a creek flowing through land of plaintiff, an instruction that, if he used such waters for irrigating purposes, he was guilty of contributory negligence, and could not recover, was properly refused. City of Antonio v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 858.

Where a city ordinance required construction with a sewage disposal system, such connection does not estop injured persons from complaining of a nuisance created by the Indemnity to city from lessee of sewer farm.—A city, sued for negligence in permitting sewage to pollute a water course, cannot recover indemnity from the lessees of its sewer farm, in the absence of a contractual relation between them obligating such lessees to care for the sewage. City of San Antonio v. Pizzini (Civ.

App.) 53 S. W. 635.

Art. 858. [446] [402] May prohibit, etc., the firing of arms, etc., the use of velocipeds, ringing of bells, etc.—To prohibit and restrain the firing of fire-crackers, guns and pistols, use of velocipeds, or use of any pyrotechnic or any other amusements or practices tending to annoy persons passing in the streets or sidewalks, or to frighten horses or teams; and to restrain and prohibit the ringing of bells, blowing of horns and bells, crying of goods, and all other noises, practices and performances boring to the collection of persons on the streets and sidewalks, by auctioners and others, for the purpose of business, amusement or otherwise. [Id. sec. 58.]

Sales in street.—Partial invalidity of an ordinance relating to sales held

Not liable for acts of officers.—See, also, notes under Art. 803.

A city is not liable for the personal acts of its officers or employes in enforcing an ordinance adopted in conformity with this article. Harrison v. Columbus, 44 T. 418; Koller v. Corpus Christi, City of Corpus Christi, 24 S. W. 974, 8 C. A. 705.

Art. 859. [463] [417] May prevent, etc., the driving of animals into or through the city.—To prevent, regulate and control the driving of cattle, horses and all other animals into or through the city. [Id.
sec. 73.]

Art. 860. [444] [400] May establish pounds, etc.—To establish and regulate public pounds, and to regulate, restrain and prohibit the running at large of horses, mules, cattle, sheep, swine, goats, and to auorize the restraining, impounding and sale of the same for the costs of the proceedings and the penalty incurred, and to order their destruction when they can not be sold, and to impose penalties on the owners thereof a violation of any ordinance. [Id. sec. 56. R. S. 1879, 400.]

Validity.—Ordinances adopted in conformity with this article may be enforced.
Moore v. Crenshaw, 1 App. C. C. § 283; Coyle v. McNabb, 4 App. C. C. § 284, 18 S. W.

An ordinance prohibiting the keeping of hogs in the business section and most heavily populated residential section of the city held not invalid. Ex parte Botts (Civ.
App.) 154 S. W. 221.

A city ordinance, passed according to statutory authority, providing for the impounding of stock running at large, held constitutional. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 166
S. W. 567.

Need not be submitted to voters.—It is not necessary that the ordinance under this article be submitted to and approved by the freeholders of the municipality, nor is it invalid because it directs the marshal to establish public pounds. Batsel v. Blaine, 4 App. C. C. § 196, 15 S. W. 282.

The constitution and laws in pursuance thereof held not to prohibit a city from passing an ordinance prohibiting stock from running at large within its limits without first submitting the question to a vote of the people. Thompson v. City of Brownwood, 44 C. A. 623, 98 S. W. 928.

"Running at large."—A horse, running to his stable unattended, according to custom, held running at large, within an ordinance making it unlawful for horses to run at large. Allen v. Hazzard, 53 C. A. 523, 77 S. W. 268.

Liability for injury to animals "running at large."—Though plaintiff's horse was running at large on a public street in violation of an ordinance, defendant held liable if his servant without ordinary care negligently drove his team against the horse. Ult v. Biggs, 53 C. A. 529, 116 S. W. 126.

Conflict of ordinances with state law.—See note under Art. 817.

Art. 861. [442] [398] May prevent, etc., horse-racing, etc.—To prevent, prohibit and suppress horse-racing, immoderate riding or driving in the streets; to compel persons to fasten their horses or other animals attached to vehicles, or otherwise, while standing or remaining in the streets. [Id. sec. 54.]

Negligent use of street.—See notes at end of Title 22, Chapter 10.

Violation of ordinance.—It is negligence per se to drive through city streets faster than permitted by city ordinance. Foley v. Northrup, 47 C. A. 277, 106 S. W. 259.

Art. 862. [461] [415] May regulate street railways.—The city council shall have power to compel street railway companies to keep their roads in repair, and to make them conform to the grades of the streets upon which their tracks may be laid, whenever said streets shall have been graded by the city, and to restrain the rate of speed so as not to exceed seven miles per hour, and to compel said city railroads to supply ample accommodation for the safe and convenient travel of the people on the street where their track may run; the city council may enforce these regulations by proper ordinances, with suitable penalties for any violation of said ordinances. [Id. sec. 71.]

Grant of right to use street.—See notes under Art. 854.

Construction of regulations.—An ordinance held not to require electric railroad to provide trailers with fender and motorman. Von Diest v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 577, 77 S. W. 632.

A city ordinance requiring street cars to come to a full stop before crossing any railroad track held sufficiently comprehensive to include a spur track. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vollrath, 40 C. A. 46, 89 S. W. 279.

Violation of ordinance.—When the ordinance of a city under which a street railway company is incorporated makes it the duty of the driver of a street railway car to keep a vigilant lookout approaching the railroad track on the first appearance of danger, a failure to perform this duty, followed by injury to one near the track, is of itself an act of negligence. Hays v. Railway Co., 70 T. 602, 8 S. W. 491, 8 Am. St. Rep. 624.

It is negligence to run cars at a greater rate of speed than is allowed by ordinance. City Railway Co. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 577.

In an action against a street railway company for injury to a passenger, a certain ordinance pleaded held to be relevant to the issue and properly admitted in evidence. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Bryant, 30 C. A. 437, 70 S. W. 1016.

A "substantial compliance" with a penal municipal ordinance, requiring street railways to maintain fenders, was sufficient. Fitzgibbons v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1236.

Art. 863. [460] [414] May control, etc., the laying of railway tracks, etc.—To direct and control the laying and constructing of railroad tracks, turnouts and switches, or prohibit the same in the streets, avenues and alleys, unless the same have been authorized by law, and the location of depots within the city; to require that railroad tracks, turnouts and switches shall be so constructed as to interfere as little as possible with the ordinary travel and use of streets, avenues and alleys, and that sufficient space shall be left on either side of a track for the safe and convenient passage of teams, carriages and other vehicles, and persons; to require railroad companies to keep in repair the streets, avenues or alleys through which their track may run, and, if ordered by the city council, to construct, and keep in repair, suitable crossings at the intersection of streets, avenues and alleys, and ditches, sewers and culverts, when the city council shall deem it necessary; to direct the use and regulate the speed of locomotive engines in said city, or to prevent and prohibit the use or running of the same within the city; provided, that the provisions of this article shall apply to railroads known as steel railroads, and not to city, street or horse railroads. [Id. sec. 70.]

Power to grant right to lay tracks in street.—A city has a right to grant a railroad company a right to lay a track in a street. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 28 C. A. 551, 67 S. W. 525.

A street railroad company's franchise held to confer the right to construct passing tracks on a particular street without the city council's consent. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. City of Denison (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 115.

A track which a street railroad company sought to construct in a street held a switch, and not a double track, within an ordinance authorizing the company to construct its tracks in the street. City of Denison v. Denison & S. Ry. Co., 103 T. 344, 127 S. W. 804.

A grant by a city under charter power is of a governmental or legislative character, and is entitled to the same construction as if the grant were direct from the Legislature. Whitcomb v. Houston (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 215.

A charter provision held to authorize a city council to allow a street railroad to lay tracks in a street and in an alley. McCammon & Langumber Co. v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 85.

A city may grant to a railroad the right to use streets for its road in consideration of its establishing and keeping its general offices and shops in the city. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 479.

Franchise entitled to protection as vested rights.—Where a city authorizes a railroad to lay a track in a street, it may not thereafter, without consent of such railroad, authorize another railroad to use such track. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 28 C. A. 551, 67 S. W. 525.

A franchise granted by a city to a street railroad company held entitled to the protection accorded to vested rights, precluding the city from subsequently imposing additional burdens. Texarkana Gas & Electric Co. v. City of Texarkana (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 213.

Regulation of railroads—Speed.—An ordinance forbidding trains to run in excess of six miles an hour is operative in the yards of railroad companies. Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Powell (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 695.

Person walking upon a portion of a railroad track commonly used as a footway to the knowledge of the company held rightfully upon the track, so as to be entitled to benefit of ordinance regulating speed of trains. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 28 C. A. 92, 66 S. W. 588, 67 S. W. 788.

A city ordinance prohibiting the running of trains within the city limits at a speed exceeding six miles per hour held binding on the railway companies, as well as those operating their trains. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 679.

Land used by the public as a highway crossing a railroad held entitled to the character of a highway, making the city ordinances protecting the public in the use of highways applicable thereto. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 79 S. W. 879.

Ordinance of city, restricting speed of trains within its limits to six miles an hour, held not unreasonable. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bolton, 36 C. A. 87, 81 S. W. 123.

City held to have right by ordinance to regulate speed of trains to a reasonable limit. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Dillard (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 426.

A city's provision as to the speed of trains, etc., held applicable to places where the public habitually cross with acquiescence of the company. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Frugis, 43 C. A. 48, 95 S. W. 563.

Ringing of bell, etc.—An ordinance requiring a locomotive bell to be rung while the locomotive was in motion within the corporate limits held to apply to a railroad yard. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Molville (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 563.

A highway held a public highway, within the city ordinance requiring in charge of a locomotive to sound the whistle at street crossings, and such ordinance held to require a continuous ringing of the bell while the engines were in motion. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 79 S. W. 879.

Blocking crossing, etc.—The blocking of a public crossing by a train for more than five minutes, in violation of an ordinance, and its starting without warning while plaintiff was attempting to climb between it, constituted inseparable acts of negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bean, 55 C. A. 241, 119 S. W. 228.

Grade of tracks.—A city charter held to grant specific power to a city council to pass an ordinance compelling railroads to adjust the grade of their tracks, where they intersect streets, to the street grade, at their own expense. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 525.

The reasonableness or necessity of an ordinance requiring railroads to conform to grade of streets at crossings held not open to question. Id.

It is no objection to a city ordinance requiring railroad tracks to be reduced at crossings to that the roadbed also be reduced to the grade required by the ordinance. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. City of Dallas, 98 T. 396, 84 S. W. 648, 70 L. R. A. 850.

In mandamus by a city to compel a railroad to establish a grade crossing, the railroad held entitled to show that it is impracticable to maintain a grade crossing. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. City of Belton (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 445.

Effect of non-observance, etc., upon liability of railroad.—To render negligence in running a train through a city at a speed beyond the rate allowed by ordinance action-failure & C. ordinance. Cardena, a per trees A. Southwestern at sec.

be distinctly set forth in the form of an ordinance or contract, and shall be filed with the city or town secretary or clerk for at least twenty days prior to the day of the election, and shall, at all times, be subject to inspection by the people of such city. [Acts 1875, p. 256. Acts 1900, p. 17.]

See Arts. 769-772, 1003, and 1004.

For irrigation.—A city may provide waterworks for irrigation. City of Yaleta v. Babbitt, 8 C. A. 432, 28 S. W. 702.

Municipal plants.—Duty as to furnishing water.—A city operating waterworks must furnish water in due proportion to those entitled to it. City of Yaleta v. Babbitt, 8 C. A. 432, 28 S. W. 702.

One seeking to compel a city to supply water for his land, on which are only flowers and shrubs, held required to plead and prove such use of water is permitted by the city’s waterworks. Sturgeon v. Paris (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 630.

Liability for injuries.—A city maintaining a system of waterworks is liable for injuries resulting from its negligence in supplying water. Lenzen v. City of New Braunfels, 12 C. A. 335, 35 S. W. 341.

A state can authorize a city to erect a dam across a navigable river, and thereby obstruct supply to persons outside the state, as a high wall against the city. City of Austin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 479.

The care required of a municipal corporation in constructing and maintaining a pipe line for a water supply determined. City of Paris v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 253.

Rates, charges, and regulations.—Regulations of a city as to charges and collection for water furnished by its waterworks system held unreasonable and invalid. City of Houston v. Lowery Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 630.

Ordinances passed by city authorized by charter to make rules and regulations for a system of waterworks held reasonable regulations and as such enforceable. Id.

Release from liability for failure to supply.—A city cannot require citizen to sign release from liability for scarcity or failure in water supply. Dittmar v. City of New Braunfels, 20 C. A. 289, 48 S. W. 1114.

A city cannot require citizen who refuses to release it from liability for failure in water supply to pay a higher water rate. Id.

Shutting off water supply.—Action of city in shutting off water supply without notice held not justified by fact that citizen’s family consisted of six persons, and he was only paying for five, or by fact that citizen was using water for bathtubs and not paying therefor, or by the fact that the citizen drained his water into the street, and thereby created a nuisance. City of Van Alstyne v. Morrison, 33 C. A. 670, 77 S. W. 655.

No power is conferred by this article to provide any other territory than that embraced within the city with water, nor is any power to establish hydrants, etc., for the convenience of other persons than its inhabitants conferred upon it. The city cannot contract to furnish one not an inhabitant of its territory water for use outside. City of Paris v. Sturgeon (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 492.

Private company supplying water.—City may provide for water by rents from hydrants of a water company. City of Corpus Christi v. Weesner, 58 T. 462; Dwyer v. City of Bronham, 65 T. 526; City of Terrell v. Deasaint, 71 T. 775, 9 S. W. 593; McNeal v. City of Dallas, 29 T. 898; City of Galveston v. Texas Co., 29 T. 83, 39 S. W. 222; City of Cleburne v. Cleburne W. I. & L. Co., 14 C. A. 229, 37 S. W. 655.

Monopoly.—A contract by a city granting to a company the exclusive privilege, for a period of twenty-five years, of furnishing water to the city and its inhabitants, held contrary to the provisions of the constitution against monopolies. An exclusive right in the city to operate water-works distinguished from such an exclusive right in a private company. "Monopoly" defined. Altgelt v. City of San Antonio, 91 T. 438, 17 S. W. 76, 13 L. R. A. 385; City of Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 522, 25 S. W. 658, 906.

The grant of an exclusive right of way to lay pipes for supplying the town with water is ultra vires and void. Edwards v. Jennings, 89 T. 618, 36 S. W. 1063.

Granting that a contract for a city water supply was void as creating a monopoly, the city is nevertheless liable for what it received under the contract. City of Tyler v. L. & J. Tex. Co., 97 T. 344, 36 S. W. 1058.

Rates and charges.—See, also, Art. 1018 and notes.

A water company supplying inhabitants of a city with water and operating under a franchise conferring the privilege of using the streets and public places is affected with a public interest, and is under obligation to serve the public in a reasonable way for a reasonable compensation, and, though it may adopt reasonable regulations for the conduct of its own business, still it cannot arbitrarily demand an unreasonable charge for its services or discriminate in its charges. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corp. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1098.

This article does not carry with it by implication the right to regulate charges of a water company supplying inhabitants of the city under a franchise, since the right to regulate such charges is not inherent in the municipality, but belongs to the sovereignty, and can only be exercised by it directly or by delegation to some other body. Tyler v. City.—Petition alleging that a water company, supplying inhabitants of a city under a franchise, were charging petitioner an exorbitant rate for water, and asking that defendant be restrained from charging in excess of rates fixed by an ordinance, the court, there being no law authorizing the regulation of rates, cannot fix 457.
the rates to be charged in the future, since such action would be legislative and not judicial. Maryland Water Corp. v. Maryland. See also S. & N. Water Co. v. Maryland. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1063.

--- Enforcement of contract.---City may bring an action to enforce its contract with a water company to furnish its inhabitants with water. Cleburne W. I. & L. Co. v. City of Cleburne, 13 C. A. 341, 36 S. W. 733.

A contract for the installation and maintenance for a long term of years of a waterworks system with fire hydrants may be specifically enforced in equity. Hubbard Co. v. Boudinot (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 69.

A contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system subject to specific performance. Boudinot v. Hubbard City, 47 C. A. 235, 165 S. W. 56. The provision of a contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system held not to provide a legal remedy, affecting the city's right to specifically enforce in equity the contract to maintain the system. Id.

Evidence, in a suit by a city to specifically enforce a company's contract to maintain a waterworks system, held sufficient to show that the company had failed to furnish an adequate supply of water and sufficient pressure for fire protection. Id.

Liability for injuries.—One whose property is destroyed by fire has no right of action against a water company for breach of its contract with the city to furnish water. House v. Waterworks Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 277.

A person cannot recover from a water company, that has a contract with a city to supply water to the city and its inhabitants, damages caused by the destruction of his property by fire. Greenville Water Co. v. Beckham (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 890.

Art. 866. [422] [378] May establish market house, etc.—To establish or erect, or cause to be established or erected, markets and market houses, designate, control and regulate market places and privileges, inspect and determine the mode of inspecting meat, fish, vegetables and all produce and every article and thing therein brought for sale. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 34.]

Prohibiting meat markets within six blocks of city market.---Ordinance prohibiting establishment of meat markets within six blocks of the city market house held to be unauthorized by the city charter empowering the city council to erect and maintain market houses and regulate butchers. Altgelt v. Gerbie (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 233.

An ordinance authorizing permits to establish stalls for vending meats held not to embrace part of the city in which meat markets within six blocks of the city market house were prohibited absolutely by another ordinance. Id.

Individual can construct market building.—An individual can construct a market building on a square dedicated by the town for market purposes, so long as it does not interfere with the rights of others to use the square for like purposes. Reynolds v. Broussard, 18 C. A. 409, 45 S. W. 760.

Can regulate peddlers of meat.—See notes under Art. 871.

Art. 867. [421] [377] May provide light and gas for city.—To provide for lighting the streets and erecting lamp posts and lamps therein, and regulating the lighting thereof, and from time to time create, alter or extend lamp districts; to exclusively regulate, direct and control the laying and repairing of the gas pipes and gas fixtures in the streets, alleys, sidewalks and elsewhere. [Id. sec. 34.]

See Arts. 769 and 770.

City can sell surplus electric power.—A city owning an electric light plant held authorized to expend surplus power so as to use surplus electric power for private lighting. Crouch v. City of McKinney, 47 C. A. 34, 104 S. W. 519.

The surplus of the proceeds of a municipal waterworks system held current funds and liable to be diverted to other needs. Id.

Liability for injuries.—City operating electric light plant in part for public purposes and in part for private purposes held liable for injuries to a lineman. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

Art. 868. [461] [415] May assess and collect taxes on street railways.—The city council shall have power to assess and collect the ordinary municipal taxes upon street railways. [Id. sec. 71.]

For general powers of taxation, see chapter 6 of this title.

Power to assess taxes.—Section 134 of the charter of the city of Dallas held not to limit the power conferred by sections 138 and 139 to tax street railway franchises to the manner in which such franchises are taxed by the state or to restrict such power in any way. City of Dallas v. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co., 95 T. 288, 66 S. W. 835.

City ordinances imposing annual franchise tax upon a street railway company as a condition for the granting of its city franchises held not to take away the city's right to impose an ad valorem tax upon such franchises as authorized by charter. Id.

Assessments for street improvements.—See notes under Arts. 999 and 1011.

Art. 869. [427] [383] May tax, etc., certain occupations.—To tax all trades, professions, occupations, and callings, the taxing of which is not prohibited by the constitution of the state; which tax shall not be construed to be a tax on property. [Id. sec. 40.]

Occupation taxes.—See notes under Art. 926.
Art. 870. [430] [386] May license, etc., hackmen, and prescribe their compensation, etc.—To license, tax and regulate hackmen, dray-men, omnibus drivers and drivers of baggage wagons, porters, and all others pursuing like occupations, with or without vehicles, and prescribe their compensation, and provide for their protection, and make it a misdemeanor for any person to attempt to defraud them of any legal charge for services rendered, and to regulate, license and restrain runners for railroads, stages and public houses. [Id. sec. 43.]

Can only regulate, not prohibit.—Under this article a city has no power of prohibition, and therefore an ordinance making it unlawful for any person under the age of 16 years to operate any automobile or other motor vehicle upon the city streets is invalid. Ex parte Battis, 40 Cr. R. 115, 48 S. W. 513, 4 L. R. A. (N. S.) 303.

Regulation of hackmen—Validity.—An ordinance making it a misdemeanor to stand hacks on certain streets held void because unreasonable. Ex parte Battis, 40 Cr. R. 115, 48 S. W. 513, 4 L. R. A. 865, 76 Am. St. Rep. 708.

A city ordinance regulating hacks and street cars at a depot held not to prohibit the employees of the street cars from leaving the cars. Ex parte Vance, 42 Cr. R. 619, 62 S. W. 568.

A city ordinance establishing a hack stand at a depot at a greater distance therefrom than the place at which street cars are permitted to stop is not a discrimination, and hence does not render the ordinance void. Id.

A city ordinance establishing hack and street car stands at a depot, which requires the hackmen to stand within the hack stand, and which makes the vehicles used in the same more or less agreeable to the person in charge of the cars, is a discrimination, rendering the ordinance invalid. Id.

Provisions in a city ordinance fixing a hack stand and establishing regulations in relation thereto held not to render the ordinance void for unreasonableness. Id.

An ordinance, imposing a license fee on hackmen, held not invalid as imposing an unreasonable tax. Kissinger v. Hay, 52 C. A. 395, 113 S. W. 1005.

One held to have the invalidity of an ordinance, prohibiting the use of streets by hackmen for a public stand, without first obtaining a permit, on the ground that it confers authority on officers to revoke the permit. Id.

An ordinance licensing hackmen, and regulating the use of streets, held a reasonable exercise of the power conferred by the charter of the city. Id.

An ordinance imposing an annual license tax on hackmen is not invalid as double taxation. Id.

Evidence held to show that an ordinance to license vehicles was reasonable, and that the license fees were reasonable and necessary to regulate the business. Ex parte Denny, 59 Cr. R. 579, 129 S. W. 1115.

Court may pass upon reasonableness of regulation.—The court may pass on the reasonableness of a city ordinance fixing stands for hacks and other vehicles for the transportation of goods and passengers. Ex parte Vance, 42 Cr. R. 619, 62 S. W. 568.

Art. 871. [428] [384] May license, etc., peddlers, theaters, etc.—To license, tax, and regulate, or suppress and prevent hawkers, peddlers, pawnpanders, and keepers of theatrical or other exhibitions, shows and amusements. [Id. sec. 41.]

Constitutionality.—An ordinance prohibiting the peddling of any merchandise in a city's public square or in any of its public streets was held not class legislation. Ex parte Hogg (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 931.

An ordinance prohibiting the peddling of any merchandise in a public square or in any city street, not prohibiting any one from following the business of peddling, was not invalid as an invasion of the personal right to follow a business or vocation. Id.

Power to regulate.—The legislature may confer on cities the power to regulate peddling within their jurisdictions. Ex parte Henson, 49 Cr. R. 177, 90 S. W. 874.

Power of state to license peddlers held not to exclude right of cities to regulate them. Id.

Peddlers of meat.—Article 866 permits incorporated cities to inspect meat and produce. Article 871 authorizes them to license, tax, regulate, and suppress hawkers and peddlers. Article 886 permits the city to make all regulations necessary or expedient for the promotion of health or the suppression of disease. Held, when construed with this article, that a city had power to pass an ordinance requiring a license for peddlers of meat, which was not produced by the vendor, to provide for the inspection and numbering such peddlers, and require them to keep the articles sold and the wagons in a sanitary condition, as well as to provide for the enforcement of such regulations. Ex parte Wade (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 175.

May prohibit peddling.—This article empowers a town to pass an ordinance prohibiting the use of certain streets and the public square for the purpose of peddling. Ex parte Henson, 49 Cr. R. 177, 90 S. W. 874.

Under article 817, giving city councils the power to pass ordinances and police regulations for good government, trade, etc., article 884, giving them exclusive control over streets, highways, and public grounds of the city, and article 866, authorizing it to regulate and inspect market places, a city was authorized to prohibit peddling of any kind of merchandise on its public square or any street within its limits. Ex parte Hogg (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 931.

Art. 872. [431] [387] May license, etc., billiard tables, etc.—To license, tax and regulate billiard tables, pin alleys, ball alleys, saloons, bar-rooms and all places or establishments where intoxicating or fermented liquors are sold; to suppress and restrain disorderly houses, tippling shops and groceries, gambling and gaming houses, lotteries and all fraudulent devices and practices, and prohibit bawdy houses and houses of prostitution or assignation within the limits of the city. [Id. sec. 44.]

Ordinances—Validity—Pool rooms.—A town ordinance forbidding pool halls to be open after 9 o'clock p. m. held in direct conflict with the state law. Ex parte Farley (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 520.

City ordinance of city requiring person owning or in control of a pool and billiard hall to close from midnight until 5 a. m. each week day, and from midnight Saturday until 6 a. m. Monday, held a "reasonable regulation." Ex parte Brewer (Cr. App.) 152 S. W. 1074.

Bowling alleys.—An ordinance of a city of about 2,000 inhabitants, forbidding the maintenance of bowling alleys within the fire limits or within 100 yards of any residence or business house, held unreasonable and void. Ex parte Patterson, 42 Cr. R. 256, 58 S. W. 1011, 51 L. R. A. 564.

Lottery.—A knife rack operated by defendant, on which knives were stuck which defendant's customers attempted to ring, held not to constitute a lottery. McRae v. State, 46 Cr. R. 489, 81 S. W. 741.

Accused held to have disposed of a gun by a raffle. Hickman v. Sipte (Cr. App.) 141 S. W. 973.

Agreement unenforceable.—An agreement between holders of lottery tickets to divide their winnings held unenforceable. Crutchfield v. Rambo, 38 C. A. 579, 88 S. W. 956.

Art. 873. [429] [385] May license, etc., circuses, etc.—To license, tax, and regulate, or prohibit, theaters, circuses, the exhibitions of common showmen, and of shows of any kind, and the exhibition of natural or artificial curiosities, caravans, menageries, and musical exhibitions and performances. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 874. [432] [388] May authorize proper officer to grant license, etc.—To authorize the proper officer of the city to grant and issue licenses, and to direct the manner of issuing and registering thereof, and the fees and charges to be paid therefor. No license shall be issued for a longer period than one year, and shall not be assignable except by permission of the city council. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 875. [414] [370] Shall control the finances and property.—The city council shall have the management and control of the finances and of all property, real, personal and mixed, belonging to the corporation. [Id. sec. 27.]

As to exemption of streets, etc., see post. Art. 5653.

Cannot loan funds.—A municipal corporation has no power to lend its funds other than for payment of a debt. City of McRae v. Taylor, 81 T. 59, 16 S. W. 555. Municipal corporations are subject to the operation of general statutes of limitation, unless specially exempted from their operation. Mellinger v. City of Houston, 68 T. 37, 3 S. W. 249.

Duties, etc., of treasurer.—See Art. 811.

Ownership of ferry franchise.—The ownership by a city of a ferry franchise involves a public trust, and it must be administered by those to whom the affairs of the municipal government are committed, as in their discretion the public interest may require. Waterbury v. City of Laredo, 88 T. 566, 6 S. W. 61.

Art. 876. [577] [504] Rate of interest on city indebtedness.—No indebtedness of any character whatever hereafter incurred by said corporation shall draw a higher rate of interest than ten per cent per annum. [Act Feb. 26, 1874, sec. 156.]

Art. 877. [415] [371] Power to appropriate, money, etc.—The city council shall have power to appropriate money, and provide for the payment of debts and expenses of the city. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 28.]

Debts—What are.—A debt is a pecuniary obligation imposed by contract, except such as were, at the date of the contract, within the lawful and reasonable contemplation of parties, to be satisfied out of the current revenues for the year or out of some fund then withing the immediate control of the corporation. City of Corpus Christi v. Woessner, 58 T. 465; Terrell v. Dessaint, 71 T. 770, 9 S. W. 593; McNeal v. City of Waco, 89 T. 83, 32 S. W. 322.

Order of payment.—Debts should be paid in the order of their filing. Olive v. San Antonio Builders' Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 789.

Ordinance prohibiting payment of debt void.—An ordinance which practically prohibits the payment of any debt contracted before a specified time, unless in the discretion of the officer intrusted with the only fund from which payment can be made he should see proper to make payment by compromise or otherwise, and this without reference to the justness of the debt or the condition of the city treasury, la void. City of Corpus Christi v. Woessner, 68 T. 463.
Execution against city.—See notes under Art. 1835.

Art. 878. [416] [372] Power to provide special funds for special purposes, etc.—To provide by ordinance special funds for special purposes, and to make the same disbursable only for the purpose for which the fund was created; and any officer of the city misappropriating said special fund shall be deemed guilty of malfeasance in office, and shall, on complaint of any one interested in said funds misappropriated, be removed from office, and be incapable thereafter to hold any office in said city. [Id. sec. 29.]

Municipal authorities cannot legally use proceeds of bonds issued for an improvement, after debts contracted before the election at which the bonds were voted. Simpson v. Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 858.

Art. 879. [466] [420] To appropriate revenues and for what purposes; to issue bonds, etc.—To appropriate so much of the revenues of the city, emanating from whatever source, for the purpose of retiring and discharging the accrued indebtedness of the city, and for the purpose of improving the public markets and streets, erecting and conducting city hospitals, city hall, waterworks, and so forth, as they may from time to time deem expedient. And, in furtherance of these objects, they shall have power to borrow money upon the credit of the city, and issue coupon bonds of the city therefor in such sum or sums as they may deem expedient, to bear interest not exceeding ten per cent per annum, payable semi-annually at such place as may be fixed by city ordinance; provided, that the aggregate amount of bonds issued by the city council shall, at no time, exceed six per cent of the value of the property within said city subject to ad valorem tax. [Id. sec. 76, R. S. 1879, 420.]

Constructed.—A town exceeded its power in contracting to issue bonds for a public purpose. It afterwards became a city under the general law. Held, that the contract was not ratified by the act of becoming a city, nor could the city ratify where an issue of the bonds would increase its indebtedness beyond the legal limit. Waxahachie v.

This article, in authorizing the issuance of bonds to any amount which does not exceed six per cent of the value of all property subject to taxation within the limits of the city, may be construed as giving each city the right of one-fourth of one per cent upon the value of all property subject to taxation annually collected, will pay the interest on the bonds as it becomes due, and create a sinking fund sufcient to pay the bonds at the date of their maturity, as provided in article 925. The latter restriction applies to all cities. City of Palestine v. Royall, 15 C. A. 26, 40 S.
W. 621.

Municipal bonds.—Nature of municipal bonds determined. Stratton v. Commissioners’ Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1110.

School buildings.—See, also, Arts. 882 and 2874.

A city has power to issue coupon bonds of the city to borrow money for the erection of school buildings where it has assumed control of its public schools. Peck v.
City of Hempstead, 27 C. A. 80, 65 S. W. 656.

"Accrued Indebtedness."—The term "debt" as used in the constitution means any pecuniary obligation imposed by contract, except such as were, at the date of the contract, within the lawful and reasonable contemplation of the parties, to be satisfied out of the current revenues for the year or out of some fund then within the immediate control of the corporation. T. McNell v. City of Waco, 89 T. 82, 33 S. W. 322.

Bonds issued by the city of El Paso under the charter act of 1883 (Sp. Laws, § 87), for the purpose of settling outstanding indebtedness for past expenses, held valid. Conk-

Ordinances providing for the issue of bonds held not to show that the debts for which they were to be issued were invalid. Winston v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 47
S. W. 740.

This article is direct and positive authority for the city to use its revenues, both its ordinary, or other source of income, and any other fund, have for the purpose of liquidating and discharging accrued indebtedness, which must mean debts of previous years and not of the current year; hence it cannot be true that current expenses not paid each year became void. Judgment can be rendered against a city for any debt of property or funds subject to the payment of such debts. City of Tyler v. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1063.

—— Waterworks.—Prior to the constitutional amendment of 1883, cities of less than 10,000 inhabitants had no power to issue bonds to purchase of waterworks, and holders of bonds so issued were chargeable with notice of this fact. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 120.

—Land for railroad of way and depot.—The terms of section 3, art. 11, of the constitution are broad enough to prohibit a city or town from appropriating its revenues or using its credit to obtain right of way and depot grounds for a railroad company. City of Clifton v. F. Ry. Co., 52 G. C. & S. 542.

A city charter held to authorize bonds to purchase land for depot purposes. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. v. City of Jefferson, 30 C. A. 534, 70 S. W. 1005.

City charter held to empower aldermen to issue bonds directly to vendor of land to be used for a railway depot. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 35 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

—Purchase sites and erect public buildings.—This article confers authority upon cities organized under the general laws to purchase sites and erect public buildings, and to issue bonds therefor with such power as is given to towns under the general laws, and it may be doubted whether such power has been given to any town by special charter. The definition and authority of towns and villages are to be found in chapter 14 of this title, and they can exercise only such powers as are conferred in that chapter. The limitation as to the amount of taxation by cities and towns for municipal purposes is prescribed by the eleventh article of the constitution. Waxahachie v. Brown, 67 T. 619, 4 S. W. 207. See Bassett v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 554.

“Does not apply to towns and villages.—See Art. 1033 et seq.

—“Street improvements.”—A bridge held a street improvement within the meaning of a city charter, authorizing the issuance of bonds for “street improvements.” Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 408.

—Railroad, etc., subsidy bonds.—See Art. 678 et seq.

—Public improvements, etc.—See Art. 892.

—Compromise of debts.—See Art. 891 et seq.

—Limitation of amount.—In determining the amount of bonds a city may issue upon a given valuation of property, personal property is included with real estate values. Naile v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 786.

Priority in payment of debts.—A debt for current expenses is entitled to priority of payment. City of Sherman v. Smith, 12 C. A. 580, 35 S. W. 284.

—Contracts.—City's contract to issue bonds and levy a tax held void as being in excess of authority. Purchaser bound by recitals in bond. No implied contract on part of city to pay for property purchased in such transaction. Gould v. City of Paris, 68 T. 511, 4 S. W. 566.

Transactions, after delivery of municipal bonds to attorney in fact of vendor of land, held immaterial as against innocent purchaser. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 35 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

Purchaser of municipal bonds, without any notice except of what appeared on their face, held a bona fide purchaser. Id.

Purchasers of bonds take the same subject to the law in force at the time of their issuance, including the constitutional limitation upon the taxing power of the city. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542, 89 S. W. 62.

Purchaser from purchaser.—Any subsequent transferee or holder of bonds under or for an innocent purchaser for value has the same protection as such innocent purchaser. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 25 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

Art. 880. [467] [421] City bonds shall specify what.—All bonds shall specify for what purpose they were issued; and when any bonds are issued by the city a fund shall be provided to pay the interest and create a sinking fund to redeem the bonds; which fund shall not be diverted, nor drawn upon for any other purpose; provided, however, that said sinking fund may, as it accumulates, be invested in bonds of the United States, the state of Texas, or counties in said state; and the city treasurer shall honor no draft upon said fund except to pay interest upon or to redeem the bonds for which it was provided, or for investment in other securities as above provided. [Acts of 1889, p. 2. R. S. 1879, 421.]

Negotiability.—Bonds issued under Ft. Worth City Charter, §§ 87, 87a, authorizing its council to issue bonds, are not invalid because negotiable. Winston v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 749.

A city charter held to authorize the issuance of instruments having a negotiable character. Jennings Banking & Trust Co. v. City of Jefferson, 30 C. A. 534, 70 S. W. 1005.

Where charter gave city power to issue railroad aid bonds, it could make such bonds negotiable or payable to bearer. City of Jefferson v. Jennings Banking & Trust Co., 35 C. A. 74, 79 S. W. 876.

The power granted to raise money by issuing bonds implies the right to issue bonds having the commercial quality of negotiability. Bonds means negotiable securities. City of Austin v. Malone, 90 T. 539, 66 S. W. 960.

Recital of purpose for which issued.—City bonds held to recite with sufficient clearness the purpose for which they were issued. City of Jefferson v. Marshall Nat. Bank, 18 C. A. 539, 46 S. W. 97.

A real in municipal bonds that they were issued to fund valid outstanding warrants is a sufficient recital of the purpose for which they were issued. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

Date of issuance.—Fact that municipal bonds were not issued until nearly two years after passage of ordinance providing for their payment did not invalidate them. Moller v. City of Galveston, 22 C. A. 653, 57 S. W. 1116.

An ordinance authorizing the issuance of bonds may provide that the same be antedated. Id.
Interest and sinking fund—Necessity.—See, also, Arts. 698-702.

Power to levy tax, see Art. 925.

A contract to pay a debt by the issue of bonds, no provision being made to create a fund, is void, and a guaranty of the contract is also void. Howard v. Smith, 91 T. 8, 36 S. W. 15.

City bonds issued subsequent to Const. 1876, without provision for the levy of a tax to pay interest and to provide a sinking fund, held invalid. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

A city cannot pledge its future current revenues for payment of interest and sinking fund on its bonded indebtedness. Id.

Where the issue of bonds provided for a 5 per cent. sinking fund, they were not invalid because the charter of the city provided for but 2 per cent. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 373.

Const. art. 11, § 7, providing for a sinking fund of at least 2 per cent. to pay the debts of a city, held not to amend charter of El Paso (Sp. Laws 1873, § 22), providing for a levy of 2 per cent., to provide a sinking fund to pay bonds. Id.

Proof that ordinances authorizing issuance of city bonds contained no provision for interest and a sinking fund, as required by the constitution, does not prove that it was not made when the bonds were sold. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

Under the requirements of the constitution and a city charter that, on creation of a municipal debt, provision shall be made for interest and a sinking fund, it is no objection to the debt that it was made prior to the issuance of bonds to which it referred. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 408.

A contract for building a bridge, to be paid for from proceeds of bonds already issued applicable thereto, held valid, though no provision was made in the contract for interest and sinking fund. Id.

The requirements of the constitution and a city charter of a provision for interest and a sinking fund on the creation of a municipal debt, make specific provision therefor by the council unnecessary. Id.

Contract for lighting streets between a city and electric light company for term of three years is not a debt within a charter provision requiring creation of a sinking fund. Dallas Electric Co. v. City of Dallas, 23 C. A. 233, 58 S. W. 153.

When there is a failure to create a sinking fund of at least 2 per cent to pay interest as required by the constitution, the obligation cannot be enforced. Peck v. City of Hempstead, 27 C. A. 80, 65 S. W. 655.

A municipal contract for the purchase of water and electric light works held to create a debt, without providing a sinking fund, and therefore to be in conflict with Const. art. 11, § 5. City of Austin v. McCall, 95 T. 565, 68 S. W. 781.

The making of a contract by a city for water for a number of years, to be delivered in the future, does not create a debt against the city; but its liability thereunder arises on the use of the water by the city during each year. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1058.

Notes executed by a city, replacing old notes, did not increase or create a debt, so as to require provision for interest and sinking fund. Id.

Not to be diverted.—The court has no power to render a judgment directing the payment of money in a sinking fund for any purpose other than that for which it was assessed and collected, because such money cannot legally be appropriated for any other purpose. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542, 99 S. W. 565.

Investment.—See, also, Art. 698.

Sinking fund may be invested how. Elser v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 738.

Art. 881. [468] [422] Bonds shall be signed, etc., and payable where and when, etc.—Said bonds shall be signed by the mayor and countersigned by the secretary, and payable at such places and at such times as may be fixed by ordinance of the city council, not less than ten nor more than forty years. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 78.]

"Signed by the mayor."—While H. was mayor thereof, a city contracted to issue certain bonds, and the bonds were engraved and printed, but before their signature and delivery H. had ceased to be mayor. The city council, however, by resolution authorized him to sign the bonds as mayor, which he thereupon did. It seems that the bonds thus signed are worthless, and an action cannot be maintained thereon. Water & Gas Co. v. City of Cleburne, 1 C. A. 580, 21 S. W. 393.

Seal.—Failure of board of aldermen to attach the city seal does not render city bonds invalid. Thornburgh v. City of Tyler, 16 C. A. 419, 43 S. W. 1004.

Art. 882. May issue bonds for public improvements; regulations as to.—All cities and towns providing for permanent public improvements, as contemplated by article 925, shall have the power to issue coupon bonds of the city therefor in such sum or sums as they may deem expedient, to bear interest not exceeding six per cent per annum; provided, that the aggregate amount of bonds issued for the construction or the purchase of public buildings, water works, sewers and other permanent improvements shall never reach an amount where the tax of twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property will not pay current interest and provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal at maturity; and provided, also, that the amount of bonds issued for street improvement purposes shall never reach an amount where the tax of fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property will not pay current interest and provide a sinking fund sufficient to redeem them at maturity; and the amount of bonds legally issued under acts passed prior to the adoption of the present constitution shall not be computed and estimated in the amount of bonds which may be issued for the above named city improvements. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 444.]

Art. 883. [482] Gulf cities may issue bonds for harbors, etc.—The boards of aldermen, or other constituted municipal authorities of cities bordering on the coast of the gulf of Mexico, are hereby authorized and empowered to appropriate money to improve, and to aid in the improvement of, their harbors and of the bars at the entrance thereof; provided, that they shall not thereby increase their aggregate debt beyond the amount of indebtedness limited by their charters respectively; such appropriations to be made out of any surplus funds which may at any time be on hand, and by the use or sale of any bonds heretofore authorized to be issued; provided, such bonds are not needed for the purposes for which they were specially authorized; and, also, if necessary therefor, to issue and dispose of bonds with interest coupons attached in such amounts as may be necessary, not to exceed the limit of indebtedness fixed by their charters. [Acts of 1883, p. 48.]

Art. 884. [483] Interest and sinking fund tax to be levied, interest paid and bonds sold at not less than par.—The city council, or other constituted municipal authorities, as the case may be, shall levy an annual ad valorem tax on the property in said city, sufficient to pay the interest and create a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds, as required by the constitution. The interest on said bonds shall be paid semi-annually, and it shall not exceed five per cent. Said bonds shall not be sold at less than par. [Id.]

Art. 885. [578a] Board of examiners of finances.—It shall be the duty of the mayor of each city or incorporated town within this state, incorporated under the general laws of the state, at the first regular meeting in January of each year of the board of aldermen or city council, by and with the advice and consent of such board of aldermen or city council, to appoint three resident citizens of such city or incorporated town, who shall constitute and compose a board of examiners of the finances of said city or incorporated town. [Acts 1895, p. 41.]

Art. 886. [578b] Duties of board.—It shall be the duty of such examiners when appointed to proceed to examine the books and accounts of the various officers of such city or incorporated town, and to make a true report of the financial condition thereof under oath to the mayor and board of aldermen or city council of such city or incorporated town as soon after their appointment as practicable; provided, that in no instance shall the return of such report under oath be deferred longer than the first regular meeting of the board of aldermen or city council in March of each year. [Id.]

Art. 887. [578c] Compensation.—Such examiners shall receive for their services such compensation as the board of aldermen or city council shall fix each, for every day actually employed in their investigations, not to exceed fifteen days in each year, which sum shall be paid by order of the board of aldermen or city council. [Id.]

Art. 888. [578d] Council to pass on such report.—The annual report of such board of examiners shall be passed upon by the board of aldermen or city council, and spread upon the minutes of their meeting at the first regular meeting of said board or council after the return of such report. [Id.]
Art. 889. [556] [485] Statement of receipts and expenditures, etc., shall be published annually.—The city council shall, at least ten days before the expiration of each municipal year, cause to be published in a city newspaper a correct and full statement of the receipts and expenditures from the date of the last annual report, together with the sources from which the funds were derived, and showing for what purpose disbursed, the condition of the treasury, together with such information as may be necessary to a full understanding of the financial condition of the city. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 137. R. S. 1879, 485.]

Art. 890. [465] [419] May pass ordinances to fund debt, etc.—To pass all necessary ordinances to provide for funding the whole or any part of the existing debt of the city, or of any future debt, by cancelling the evidences thereof, and issuing to the holders or creditors notes, bonds or treasury warrants, with or without coupons, bearing interest at any annual rate not to exceed ten per cent. The council shall also provide by ordinance for issuing the bonds of the city in such sums as may be agreed upon for railroad subsidies heretofore voted, or that may be hereafter voted, in accordance with the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 75. R. S. 1879, 419.]

Notes, bonds, and other evidences of indebtedness.—Cities have power under the statute to issue to creditors interest-bearing evidences of debt, and it would seem that when the city has ample revenue, outside of that which the law authorizes to be levied to meet necessary obligations, a tax for such obligation would not only be unnecessary but unlawful. City of Corpus Christi v. Woessner, 58 T. 462.

Evidence of indebtedness of a municipal corporation, given to provide for the payment of existing obligations, are not municipal bonds within the statute regulating the issuance of bonds. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 353.

This statute authorizes a city to issue either notes or bonds for the purpose of funding its outstanding indebtedness. Where it is evident that the parties to the transaction intended to issue notes, and having the power to do so their intention must be given effect, and the city having by ordinance directed that notes be issued and delivered in lieu of outstanding indebtedness is bound on the notes. City of Tyler v. Jester & Co., 97 T. 344, 78 S. W. 1062.

Nature of municipal warrants and orders determined. Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1170.

Ordinance directing issuance.—A recital, in an ordinance authorizing the execution of notes of municipal corporation, that the evidences of indebtedness therein enumerated were issued for current expenses, does not render the indebtedness prima facie valid. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 359.

It is not necessary to the validity of notes given by a city to evidence existing indebtedness that they should have been authorized by ordinance, as order or resolution of the city council would be sufficient. Id.

Where an ordinance authorized the issuance of refunding bonds, it was not necessary that a contract or proceeding with reference to sales should be confirmed by a further act of the council. City of San Antonio v. E. H. Rollins & Sons (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1108, 1193.

Purchaser charged with notice of ordinance, etc.—As a city in this state cannot issue funding bonds, except by an ordinance duly passed, a purchaser of such bonds must look to the ordinance, to see that it has been regularly passed, and that it confers authority for the issuance of the bonds offered for sale. But he is not charged with notice of other parts of the record, not connected with the bonds offered for sale. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Sup.) 86 S. W. 751.

Art. 891. [471] May compromise debts and issue bonds.—The mayor and board of aldermen are authorized and empowered, by resolution or ordinance of said board of aldermen by referring to this and the succeeding articles of this chapter relating hereto and adopting the same, to compromise and fund any existing valid indebtedness by the city or town issued, whether bonded or floating, and the coupons due upon the bonded debt; and for this purpose, they are authorized and empowered to issue new bonds, in denomination of not less than fifty nor more than one thousand dollars, in their discretion, with interest coupons payable semi-annually at the office of the state treasurer or at such other place as said board of aldermen shall provide; said new bonds to become due and payable in not exceeding thirty years, and to bear such rate of interest, not exceeding six per cent per annum, as in their discretion may best subserv the purpose intended. [Acts of 1887, p. 50.]

In general.—A release in writing of a claim against a city for damages for personal injuries in consideration of a promise of the payment of a certain sum of money is valid. Jennings v. City of Ft. Worth, 26 S. W. 227, 7 C. A. 329.
Compromise suit.—A municipal corporation, having the right to sue and be sued, may also compromise suits. City of San Antonio v. San Antonio St. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 148, 54 S. W. 251.

Existing valid indebtedness.—See, also, Arts. 656-697.

Bonds which are void, for lack of power in a city to issue them, cannot constitute the basis of valid funding bonds. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

Contract, etc., containing inseparable illegal provisions, invalid.—A contract for the settlement of claims against a city held invalid, where it contained inseparable illegal provisions. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 192.

Art. 892. [472] Barred debts can not be compromised.—No compromise shall be made under the provisions of this chapter, by which any debt shall be funded which is barred by the statute of limitations. [Id.]

Art. 893. [474] Bonds when executed must be registered with comptroller.—The mayor and board of aldermen shall cause to be prepared the necessary blank bonds to give effect to the provisions of this chapter, the cost of which shall be paid out of the treasury of such city or town; said bonds when issued by any city or town shall be signed by the mayor and attested by the secretary (or recorder if there be no secretary), with the seal of such city or town affixed; and such new bonds shall be registered in the office of the state comptroller. [Id.]

See provisions as to submission of bonds to attorney general, etc., Art. 1398 et seq.

Art. 894. [475] Bonds when issued, how disposed of, etc.—Such new bonds may be exchanged for the old bonds, or they may be sold and the proceeds applied to the purchase of such old bonds; provided, that no delivery of such new bonds shall take place, unless a contract has already been entered into for the purchase of a corresponding amount of such old bonds; and provided further, no bonds issued under this chapter as a compromise of existing indebtedness shall be sold at less than par; and each bond shall be made to bear the lowest rate of interest that will give a par value. [Id.]

Art. 895. [476] Tax laws to remain in force.—All laws in force providing for the collection of taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of such existing bonds shall apply and be in force for the collection of taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of such new bonds; provided, that the sinking fund may be used in the purchase and cancellation of such new bonds whenever the same can be bought at not more than their par value. [Id.]

Art. 896. [479] The method of liquidating compromise bonds.—Whenever a compromise of the debt of any city or town shall be effectuated, as hereinbefore provided, and the bonds are delivered to the creditors, a board of liquidation, consisting of five reputable citizens of such city or town shall be appointed forthwith in the manner following: The mayor of the city or town shall appoint one; the governor of the state shall appoint one; and the district judge of the district in which such city or town shall be situated shall appoint one; the city council of the city or town shall appoint one; and the holders of said indebtedness, or a majority of them, shall appoint one; and each shall fill vacancies in the office of their respective appointee in said board; and, in case of failure, neglect or refusal of any one or all of said officers to appoint a member of said board, or to fill vacancies therein, then the holders of said bonds, or any one or more of them, shall have the right to apply to the district court of the district in which such city or town shall be situated, or to the judge thereof in vacation, for the appointment of a member or members of said board necessary to complete the same; and it shall be the duty of said court or judge to make said appointment. The members of said board shall serve without compensation, and shall hold their offices for the term of four years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. Each member of said board shall take an oath to faithfully perform the duties of his office. A majority of said board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Said board, or a majority thereof, shall select some solvent depository for all moneys coming under their control, as hereinafter provided, and for whose acts they shall be responsible and shall, in writing signed by them, notify the collector of taxes of said city or town of said selection. It shall thereupon become the duty of such collector to deposit at the close of business each day one-half of all moneys collected by him for the twenty-four hours next preceding, on account of all the taxes of whatever nature levied by said city or town, with the said depository, whose receipt therefor shall be an acquittance to said collector; and said collectors shall be liable on their official bonds for any failure to promptly make such deposits and for ten per cent per month of such amounts, and in addition there-to as penalty; which sums may be recovered by said board of liquidation in a suit therefor; and it shall be their duty to promptly institute such suits. But whenever the total of said deposits shall equal the annual interest on said bonds, it shall be lawful for such collector to discontinue said deposits, until he shall be notified in writing by said board that said deposits are reduced below that sum. Said funds of cities or towns shall be subject to the order of said boards of liquidation, and shall be applied by them to the payment, first, of the interest on said bonds as the same matures, and, secondly, to the payment of the principal thereof, and thirdly, to the payment of interest on any valid bonds issued by such city and not embraced in any issue of bonds issued under the provisions hereof, and, fourthly, to the payment of the principal of bonds of the character last referred to on the maturity of same. The members of said board shall be liable for the prompt payment of said interest out of said funds, and in case of failure or refusal they shall, in addition, be liable to ten per cent of the amount of such interest as damages to be recovered by any person aggrieved thereby, in any court of competent jurisdiction. Whenever there shall be in the hands of such depositories a sufficient sum to pay two per cent of the principal of said bonds, in addition to one year's interest, it shall be the duty of said board of liquidation to use the same in the purchase of outstanding bonds, provided in article 895; which bonds when so purchased shall be canceled, and shall, together with all coupons which have been paid, be returned to the council of the city or town. Expenses incurred by said board in advertising for purchase of bonds shall be paid out of said funds. Said boards shall make semi-annual reports to the said councils of their acts and of all receipts and disbursements of moneys coming under their control. [Id.]

Art. 897. [477] Laws to enforce collection continued in force, and all defenses to bonds cut off.—The object and intention of these provisions being to enable the cities or towns in this state which have granted subsidy bonds to railroads or other works of internal improvement, or created any other indebtedness whatever, whether bonded or floating, to compromise the same, and thereby reduce the burden of taxation, it is hereby declared, as an inducement to the holders of said bonds to accept the compromise, that whenever such compromise shall be entered into and accepted in good faith either by the holders of the present bonds or by any persons purchasing such new bonds as provided herein, that all laws in force, or which may hereafter be in force, for the assessment and collection of the state taxes shall also be in force and apply to the assessment and collection of the taxes levied to meet the interest and sinking fund of said new bonds; and in any suits instituted to enforce the payment of said new bonds or coupons against any such city or town, no defense either in law or equity shall be admitted in any of the courts of this state, except such as originated upon, or subsequent to, the issuance of such new bonds. [Id.]
Art. 898. [478] Tax collector; liability; governor to appoint, when.—Whenever a collector of taxes shall neglect or refuse to collect the taxes levied for the payment of the interest and sinking fund of such new bonds, he shall be liable on his official bond, at the suit of any persons holding any of said bonds or coupons, for all such damages as said person or persons shall have sustained by reason of his neglect or refusal; nor shall such collector or his sureties be relieved of such liability by his resignation of the office; and whenever any person who may be elected collector of taxes of any city or town shall fail, neglect or refuse to give the bond required by law for the collection of such tax, or whenever the mayor and board of aldermen shall appoint any person who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to give said bond, or whenever they shall fail, neglect, or refuse to appoint some person who will give said bond and collect said tax, then it is hereby made the duty of the governor to appoint some suitable person to collect said taxes, who shall perform all the duties required by these provisions or any other laws of this state relating to the collection of said taxes, from the term of his said appointment until the next general election. [Id.]

Art. 899. [480] Receiver appointed, when.—Any city or town so situated as is herein set forth, which fails to effect a compromise of its debts, or pending the negotiation of a compromise, shall be permitted, on its application setting forth its financial condition and insolvency, to have the district court of the county in which said city or town is situated take charge of the collection and appropriation of all taxes levied and assessed by said city or town, except so much thereof as is necessary to pay the current expenses of the city or town; and to that end, said court, or the judge thereof in vacation, shall appoint a receiver, or may make the assessor and collector of said city or town its receiver, to collect and pay into a named depository all taxes levied by said city or town for the payment of its debts; and said courts shall decide all questions of priority between conflicting claimants of said funds, and shall provide for the ratable and equitable distribution of said funds among all creditors entitled thereto. But it shall not be lawful for any court to appoint a receiver of or concerning any city or town except upon the voluntary application of such city or town. [Id.]

Art. 900. [473] Compromise bonds exempt from taxation and may be used to pay taxes.—The new bonds thus issued by any city or town shall be exempt from the payment of all taxes levied by such city or town; and the taxes levied to pay said new bonds may be paid in said bonds or coupons thereof if matured; provided, said coupons and bonds shall only be received in payment of taxes levied for the purpose of paying such bonds and coupons. [Id.]

Art. 901. [481] Other instances when debts may be compromised and bonds issued, etc.—Cities and towns shall also have authority to fund, compromise and liquidate their indebtedness and issue bonds therefor, under such conditions, restrictions and limitations as are prescribed under title 18 (bonds—county, municipal, etc.) conferring such authority on counties, cities and towns, and as may be otherwise provided by law.

Art. 902. [555] [484] Official paper, and contract for publishing, etc.—The city council shall, as soon as may be after the commencement of each municipal year, contract as they may by ordinance or resolution determine with a public newspaper of the city as the official paper there-of, and to continue as such until another is elected, and shall cause to be published therein all ordinances, notices, and other matters required by this title or by the ordinance of the city to be published. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 136.]

For provisions as to bonds of counties, cities, towns, etc., see Title 18.
CHAPTER FIVE CORPORATION COURTS

Art. 903. Corporation court created.—There is hereby created and established in each of the cities, towns and villages of this state, now or hereafter incorporated, whether by general or special act, a court to be known as the corporation court in such city, town or village, which court shall have jurisdiction and organization hereinafter prescribed. [Acts of 1899, p. 40, sec. 1.]

Art. 904. Jurisdiction.—Said court shall have jurisdiction within the territorial limits of said city, town or village, within which it is established, in all criminal cases arising under the ordinances of the said city, town or village, now in force, or hereafter to be passed, and shall also have jurisdiction concurrently with any justice of the peace in any precinct in which said city, town or village is situated, in all criminal cases arising under the criminal laws of this state, in which the punishment is by fine only, and where the maximum of such fine may not exceed two hundred dollars and arising within the territorial limits of such city, town or village. [Id. sec. 2.]

Constitutionality.—The act of the twenty-sixth legislature establishing corporation courts is not invalid. Ex parte Wilbarger, 41 Cr. R. 514, 55 S. W. 969.

This act is not unconstitutional in giving the corporation court some of the jurisdiction of a justice court. Ex parte Freedman, 47 Cr. R. 487, 61 S. W. 1125.

Jurisdiction—Criminal.—City recorder’s court held vested with authority to try such offenses against the penal laws of the state as justices of the peace might try. Harris County v. Stewart, 91 T. 133, 41 S. W. 650.

The city court of the city of Dallas has no jurisdiction to try violations of the Penal Code. Crowley v. City of Dallas (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 865.

Though a provision in a city charter to constitute a corporation court a state court was futile and without effect, it had jurisdiction to punish one on conviction of a municipal offense provided for by city ordinance. Ex parte Levine (Cr. App.) 81 S. W. 1206.

This section limits the jurisdiction of corporation courts in criminal cases to those arising within the territorial limits of the city wherein the court exists. An indictment alleging that the offense was committed in the county and does not allege that it was committed in the city is not good. Moss v. State (Cr. App.) 83 S. W. 830.

Corporation courts, organized pursuant to Acts 26th Leg. c. 33, have jurisdiction to try all criminal offenses arising under the ordinances of the city. Ex parte Hubbard, 63 Cr. R. 516, 140 S. W. 451.

Revocation of licenses.—Title 22 relates to the incorporation of cities and towns having a population of 1,000 or more; Rev. St. 1895, article 405, authorizes the city council to establish the office of recorder; article 933 provides that where, by ordinance, one is required to obtain a license for any occupation, and has been adjudged guilty of violating
Art. 905. Judge or recorder elected or appointed, how; term, mayor ex officio recorder, when.—Such court shall be presided over by a judge to be known as the recorder of such court, in such city, town or village, who, in cities, towns or villages incorporated under special charter or charters, shall be elected or appointed in the manner and under the respective provisions of the charter now in force concerning the election or appointment of the magistrate to preside over the municipal court in such city, town or village, and all such provisions are hereby made applicable to the recorder herein provided for; and in cities, towns and villages not incorporated under special charter, such recorder shall be elected by the qualified voters of such city, town or village, in the same manner as the mayor of such city, town or village, and whose term of office shall be the same as such mayor; provided, in such cities, towns and villages not incorporated and acting under special charter, the mayor of such city, town or village shall be ex officio recorder of such court, and shall act as such, unless the city council or board of aldermen of such city, town or village shall, by ordinance, authorize the election of a recorder. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 906. Recorder elected or appointed, when and how; discretion in council; term of office, etc.; vacancy; council may make mayor ex officio recorder, when.—Every two years there shall be elected or appointed in each city, town or village within this state, now or hereafter incorporated, a recorder, who shall preside over the corporation court hereby created, and established, and who shall be elected or appointed as provided in article 905; provided, however, that whenever by the provisions of the charter under which such city, town or village is now incorporated, it is provided that the magistrate now presiding over the municipal court therein is to be elected by the people, then in such case the city council of any such city, town or village may order an election for the recorder, or, in its discretion, may appoint the recorder, who shall hold his office until the next general election for city officers; provided, further, that wherever in any such city, town or village, the office of the presiding magistrate of the municipal court therein shall not have expired when the recorder is elected or appointed therein, the said recorder, first elected or appointed, shall hold his term of office corresponding to the unexpired term of the said magistrate; and every two years thereafter such recorder shall be elected or appointed for a term of two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In case of vacancy in the office of recorder or clerk of the court in any city, town or village, such vacancy shall be filled by the council or board of aldermen for the unexpired term only; provided, further, that the board of aldermen may provide by ordinance for the mayor to act as ex officio recorder in all cities and towns not operating under special charter. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 907. Clerk of corporation court elected by council, when; provided; terms; duties.—There shall be a clerk of said corporation court elected by the council or board of aldermen of each such city, town or village, at the same time at which the recorder is elected; but, in such city, town or village, it may be provided by ordinance that the city secretary shall be ex officio clerk of the said court, and may be authorized to appoint a deputy, who shall have the same powers as the said secretary. The clerk of said court shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In case of an ex officio clerk as aforesaid, he shall hold his office during his term as city secretary. It shall be the duty of said clerk to keep a minute of the proceedings of the said court; to issue all process, and generally to do and perform all of the duties of a clerk of a court as prescribed by law for the clerk of the county court, in so far as the said provisions may be applicable. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 908. [406] [362] Right of trial before jury.—Every person brought before the mayor or recorder, to be tried for an offense for which the penalty may be fine or imprisonment, or both, shall be entitled, if he shall demand it, to be tried by a jury of six legal voters of the city, who shall be summoned, impaneled and qualified as jurors in justices' courts under the laws of the state. [Acts 1873, 2 S. S., p. 113, sec. 19.]

Art. 909. Rules of pleading, practice and procedure.—All rules of pleading, practice and procedure now established for the county court shall apply in said corporation court in each such city, town or village, in so far as the same are applicable, except that the proceedings in said court shall be commenced by complaint in the manner and under the regulations, as now provided by law, in cases prosecuted before justices of the peace, and except that the recorder need not charge the jury except upon charges requested in writing by the defendant or his attorney; which such charges he shall have power to give or refuse under the same rules and regulations now applicable to the granting or refusing of such charges by the county judge in criminal cases. Complaints before such court hereby created and established may be sworn to before the recorder, clerk of said court, the city secretary, the city attorney or his deputy, each and all of which officers, for that purpose, shall have power to administer oaths; or it may be sworn to before any other officer authorized by law to administer oaths; provided, that, in all cities, towns and villages in this state not operating under special charters, the rules of pleading, practice and procedure now established for justices courts shall apply to said corporation courts in such cities, towns and villages in so far as the same are applicable. [Acts 1899, p. 42, sec. 6.]

County court.—See Art. 1731 et seq.

City Attorney.—Authority to administer oaths.—The authority of a city attorney to administer oaths is limited to swearing affiants to complaints in corporation courts. Johnson v. State, 47 Cr. R. 580, 85 S. W. 274.

Where a city was operating under the general act applying to cities of its class, and its city court was not operating under the corporation court act (Acts 26th Leg. p. 40), authorizing city attorneys to take affidavits in criminal cases, the city attorney could not take the affidavit and swear the complainant in a prosecution for violating the local option law. Kirksey v. State, 68 Cr. R. 188, 125 S. W. 15.

Art. 910. Seal of corporation court.—The said corporation court shall have a seal, having engraved thereon a star of five points in the center, and words, "Corporation Court in ______-, Texas," the impress of which shall be attached to all proceedings, except subpoenas, issued out of said court, and shall be used to authenticate the official acts of the clerk and of the recorder, where he is authorized or required to use the seal of office. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 911. Complaint, how commenced and concluded; prosecution conducted by city attorney or deputy; county attorney may also represent state, but no fees; process.—In all prosecutions in said court, whether under an ordinance or under the provisions of the Penal Code, the complaint shall commence in the name of the state of Texas, and shall conclude, "against the peace and dignity of the state;" and, where the offense is covered by an ordinance, the complaint may also conclude, as "contrary to the said ordinance;" and all prosecutions in such court shall be conducted by the city attorney of such city, town or village, or by his deputy; but the county attorney of the county in which said city, town or village is situated may, if he so desires, also represent the state of Texas in such prosecutions, but, in all such cases, the said county attorney shall not be entitled to receive any fees or other compention whatever for said services, and in no case shall the said county attorney have the power to dismiss any prosecution pending in said court, unless for reasons filed and approved by the recorder of said court. [Id. sec. 8.]

County attorney.—The county attorney has the exclusive right to appear in person or by deputy, and represent the state in all cases pending in a corporation court to which the state is a party, but he is entitled to no fees for so doing. Howth v. Greer (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 212, 213.

City attorney—Compensation.—Under a resolution of a city council, a city attorney held entitled to a pro rata share in commissions due city attorney on judgments collected by the city in suits brought by him, but not decided when he went out of office. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

Under a resolution of a city council, a city attorney held entitled to commissions on taxes paid the city after he went out of office on judgments obtained by him. Id.

A city attorney is entitled to fees for prosecuting criminals in the recorder’s court in a county that has a county attorney. Harris County v. Stewart, 17 C. A. 1, 43 S. W. 65.

Increase of salary during term of office.—See notes under Art. 7088.

Art. 912. Council to prescribe rules for collecting fees and costs, practice, etc.; rules in meantime.—The council or board of aldermen of each such city, town or village shall, from time to time, by ordinance, prescribe such rules, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter nor other laws of this state, as in the discretion of the council or board of aldermen may be proper to enforce, by execution against the property of the defendant, or imprisonment of the defendant, the collection of all costs and fines imposed by such court as herein created and established, and shall also have power to adopt such rules and regulations concerning the practice and procedure in such court as said council or board of aldermen may deem proper, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter nor other law of this state; and, until the passage of such ordinance, all rules and regulations of such city, town or village now in force concerning the municipal courts therein, and the enforcement of collection of fines and costs imposed by such court, shall be applicable to the court hereby created and established. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 913. Fines and costs paid into city treasury, etc.—All costs and fines imposed by the said court in any city, town or village, in any prosecution therein, shall be paid into the city treasury of said city, town or village, for the use and benefit of the city, town or village. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 914. Costs to be collected as provided by ordinances, but not greater than in justices’ courts.—There shall be taxed against, and collected of, each defendant, in case of his conviction before such court, such costs as may be provided for by ordinance of the said city, town or village; but in no case shall the council or board of aldermen of any such city, town or village, prescribe the collection of greater costs than are prescribed by law to be collected of defendants convicted before justices of the peace. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 915. Jury and witness fees, and enforcing attendance of witnesses according to Code of Criminal Procedure.—The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure now in force regulating the amount and collection of jury and witness fees, and for enforcing the attendance of witnesses in criminal cases tried before a justice of the peace, shall, so
Art. 916. Judge may punish for contempt as county judge; may take recognizances, admit to bail, etc., under rules in county court.—The judge of said corporation court shall have the power to punish for contempt to the same extent and under the same circumstances as the county judge may punish for contempt of the county court. He shall have power to take recognizances, admit to bail, and forfeit recognizances and bail bonds under such rules and regulations as now govern the taking and forfeiture of the same in the county court. [Id. sec. 13.]

May punish for contempt.—Under this article and Art. 909, construed with Art. 1779 giving a county court power to punish, as stated, one guilty of contempt, a corporation court established under this act had the same power to punish for contempt as a county court. Ex parte Hubbard, 63 Cr. R. 516, 140 S. W. 461.

Art. 917. Process, how served; defendant entitled to notice of complaint, if demanded.—All process issuing out of said corporation court shall be served by the chief of police or any policeman or marshal of the city, town or village within which it is situated, under the same rules and regulations as are now provided by law for the service by sheriffs and constables of process issuing out of the county court, so far as the same are applicable. But each defendant shall be entitled to at least one day’s notice of any complaint against him, if such time be demanded. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 918. [551] [480] Writs of mayor, etc., may be executed anywhere in the county.—Writs issued by the mayor or recorder of said city for offenses against the laws may be executed, and the accused person or persons arrested by the marshal or his deputies anywhere within the county in which such city is situated. [Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 132.]

Art. 919. [552] [481] Proceedings when a peace bond, etc., given before mayor, etc., has been forfeited.—Whenever any person has been required by the mayor or recorder to give a peace bond, or a bond for good behavior, or any similar bond under this title, and has complied with such orders, and been guilty of a violation or infraction of such bond, and the same is proved or established to the satisfaction of that officer in any trial or complaint, such party so offending may be fined in the sum of two hundred dollars and imprisoned for two months; and the city in its corporate name may sue in any court having jurisdiction for the recovery of the penalty of such bond. [Id. sec. 133. R. S. 1879, 481.]

Art. 920. Fees of recorder, etc., how prescribed; paid out of city treasury; fines and costs collected and disposed of, how; commitals; city liable to officers of appellate court, when; court to be always open.—Unless provided by special charter, the council or board of aldermen of each city, town or village shall, by ordinance, prescribe the compensation and fees which shall be paid to the recorder, city attorney, city secretary and other officers of said court, which compensation and fees shall be paid out of the treasury of the said city, town or village. In all such cases, the fines imposed on appeal, together with the costs imposed in the corporation court, and the court to which the appeal is taken, shall be collected of the defendant and his bondsmen, and such fine and the costs of the corporation court shall, when collected, be paid into the treasury of the city, town or village. When the defendant in such cases is committed to custody, he shall be committed to the custody of the chief of police or city marshal of such city, town or village, to be held by him in accordance with the ordinance of such city, town or village, providing for the custody of prisoners convicted before such corporation court; and said city, town or village shall be liable to the officers of the court to which the appeal is taken for the costs due them when such defendant has fully discharged such fine and costs. Such corporation court shall hold no terms, and shall be at all times open for the transaction of business. [Acts 1899, p. 43, sec. 15.]

Art. 921. Appeals to what courts; trial de novo; appeals how governed.—Appeals from judgments rendered by such corporation courts shall be heard by the county court, except in cases where the county courts have no jurisdiction, in which counties such appeals shall be heard by the district court of such counties, unless in such county there is a criminal district court, in which case the appeal shall be from the corporation courts to the said criminal district court; and, in all such appeals to such county court, district court, or criminal district court, the trial shall be de novo, the same as if the prosecution had been originally commenced in that court. Said appeals shall be governed by the rules of practice and procedure for appeals from justices' courts to the county court, as far as the same may be applicable. [Id. sec. 16.]

Appeal bond.—See, also, Art. 2097.
An appeal bond that shows the parties, the title of, the date of the judgment, and amount of fine but lacks the file number of the case, sufficiently identifies the case appealed from. Thielens v. State, 43 Cr. R. 310, 65 S. W. 533.

Art. 922. Until organization of corporation courts municipal court as now established has jurisdiction, but thereafter abolished.—Until the due and legal organization of the said court in any city, town or village, as herein provided for, the municipal court in said city, town or village, as now established, shall continue to exercise its powers and jurisdiction. After the due and legal organization of the said corporation court, the said municipal court and the office of the judge and recorder and clerk thereof shall be abolished, and the said municipal court in each city, town or village shall be entirely superseded by the corporation court and such officers herein created and established, as the same shall be and become duly and legally organized. [Id. sec. 17.]

TAXATION

Art.

923. Ad valorem tax.
924. May levy and collect tax for improvements, buildings, etc.
925. May levy tax for interest and sinking fund on certain bonds, for current expenses, permanent improvements, roads, etc.
926. Cities of ten thousand inhabitants and over to levy and collect tax; validating act.
927. Poll tax.
928. Occupation tax.
929. Occupations that are subject to taxation.

Art.

930. Same subject.
931. Power of city council to provide for assessing, etc., taxes.
932. Collection of license tax, etc.
933. Occupation license to be suspended or revoked, etc., when.
934. Real estate includes what.
935. Personal estate includes what.
936. City council may provide for the exemption of property from taxation, etc.
937. Taxes for payment of indebtedness.

Article 923. [484] [425] Ad valorem tax.—The city council shall have power within the city, by ordinance, to annually levy and collect taxes, not exceeding one-fourth of one per cent on the assessed value of all real and personal estate and property in the city not exempt from taxation by the constitution and laws of the state. [Id. sec. 81. Const. art. 11, sec. 4. R. S. 1879, 425.]

Power to levy.—As to power to levy taxes, see Audrey v. City of Dallas, 13 C. A. 442, 35 S. W. 726.

Levy must be by ordinance.—The tax must be levied by an ordinance passed by the city council, and a levy not made in accordance with this mode is void and creates no personal liability against the taxpayer. Peoples' Nat. Bank v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 632.

Proof that a city tax had been levied according to law must be made by proving the city ordinance levying the tax. Earle v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 391, 43 S. W. 15.

In the levy of a tax by virtue of an election it must be done under an ordinance duly passed for that purpose. Where a mode is prescribed by which the city is authorized to do a certain thing, that mode must be pursued. Miller v. State (Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 626.

Property taxable.—The franchises of a corporation, exercised by it in a city, are property, within the provision of a city's charter, requiring a tax on all property in it. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of San Antonio, 32 C. A. 101, 73 S. W. 859.

Art. 924. [485] May levy and collect tax for improvements, buildings, etc.—The city or town council or board of aldermen of any incorporated city or town within the limits of this state shall have power, by ordinance, to levy and collect an annual ad valorem tax of not exceeding twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property within such city or town for the erection, construction or purchase of public buildings, streets, sewers and other permanent improvements within the limits of such city or town. Within the meaning of this article shall be included building sites and buildings for public free schools and institutions of learning within those cities and towns which have assumed or which may hereafter assume the exclusive control and management of the public free schools and institutions of learning within their limits. [Acts of 1883, p. 99.]

Tax for support of schools.—See notes under Title 48, Chapter 17.
Taxes for payment of indebtedness.—See Art. 937.

Art. 925. [486] [425c] May levy tax for interest and sinking fund on certain bonds; for current expenses, permanent improvements, roads, etc.—The city or town council of any city or town in this state incorporated under the general law shall have the power, by ordinance, to levy and collect an annual ad valorem tax, sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund on all indebtedness legally incurred prior to the adoption of the constitutional amendment in 1883, regarding the power of cities and towns to levy and collect taxes, etc., and may levy and collect twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of all property in such city or town for current expenses, and may levy and collect an additional twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation for the purpose of construction or the purchase of public buildings, water works, sewers, and other permanent improvements within the limits of such city or town, and shall also have power, by ordinance, to levy and collect a tax not exceeding fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property for the construction and improvement of the roads, bridges and streets of such city or town within its limits. Within the meaning of this article shall be included building sites and buildings for the public free schools and institutions of learning within those cities and towns which have assumed, or may assume hereafter, the exclusive control and management of the public free schools and institutions of learning within their limits. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 444.]

For provisions as to bonds, contained in this act, see article 882.

Constitutionality.—This statute is valid, and not in conflict with Const. art. 8, § 9. Bodenheim v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 639, 132 S. W. 468.

Valid in part.—The rate of taxation need not be such as will raise the precise amount to pay bonds, and hence the including of a separable void tax did not invalidate the entire tax. Nalle v. City of Austin (Cr. App.) 42 S. W. 760, 44 S. W. 66.

A tax being in part valid the court can enforce a city's claim to the extent that the tax was lawful. Nalle v. City of Austin, 91 T. 434, 44 S. W. 66.

Where a tax was illegal only in part, and such part was capable of definite apportionment, the valid part was upheld. City of San Antonio v. Berry, 92 T. 319, 48 S. W. 493.

In an action by a city for the recovery of ad valorem taxes, the levy for a part of which was unauthorized, recovery may be had for authorized taxes. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Cr. App.) 59 S. W. 496.

Illegal tax levy, while in strictness returnable to taxpayers, may be applied as a credit on omitted legal levies, in order to avoid circuit. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 642, 59 S. W. 552.

Levy prima facie evidence, etc.—Where a city council, intrusted by law with the duty of levying taxes, levies a tax for a designated purpose, such levy constitutes prima facie evidence that the facts existed which warranted the action of the council in making the levy. City of Austin, 23 C. A. 595, 56 S. W. 954.

Purposes.—Where a contract is of such a character as to require the levy of a tax to pay interest, etc., the contract is void if no levy is made. Kuhl v. City of Laredo (Cr. App.) 27 S. W. 791; Noel v. City of San Antonio, 11 C. A. 580, 33 S. W. 263.

CITIES AND TOWNS

(Title 22)

A provision in the charter of a city held not to authorize the levy of a tax for any improper purpose. Cone v. Denison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1189.

A provision in a city charter held to authorize the city to levy a tax of a specified amount for a special purpose. Id.

To pay judgments.—A special charter reducing power of city to levy taxes to pay a judgment founded on a tort is not unconstitutional as impairing obligation of contracts. City of Sherman v. Langham, 32 T. 13, 40 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

A city held required to exercise the surplus of its taxing power to raise money to pay judgment. City of San Antonio v. Boulanger, 85 S. A. 198, 102 S. W. 756.

Interest and sinking fund on bonds.—Duty to provide fund, see Art. 880.

Powers of the city of Austin defined as to raising money by taxation for the purpose of paying interest and sinking fund on its bonded indebtedness. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 789.

Where a city bond issue is sold with the accrued interest, the city may collect a tax to pay the annual interest and sinking fund, though the bonds were sold less than one year prior to the levy. Id.

A tax cannot be collected to pay interest or to provide sinking fund on bonds prior to the date of their sale. Id.

A tax to provide a sinking fund for the payment of bonds is not illegal because the tax was not sufficient to pay the bonds at maturity. Conklin v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

A tax to pay city bonds is not invalidated by the fact that the city purchased the bonds as an investment for its sinking fund. Id.

Taxpayers can defend against the assessment of taxes to pay interest and create a sinking fund on bonds void in the hands of any holder. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n, 99 T. 6, 86 S. W. 750.

Payment of bonds.—Levy of tax for payments on bonds. See Bassett v. City of El Paso, 83 T. 168, 30 S. W. 592.

Current expenses.—A contract by a city for a street improvement is not a current expense to which current yearly revenues are applicable. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 496.

City need not enact ordinance in order to enable officers to contract for current expenses, but it is sufficient if authority be found in minutes of council. City of Tyler v. L. L. Jester & Co., 97 T. 844, 78 S. W. 1058.

The validity of municipal warrants issued for current indebtedness held not affected by the fact that such indebtedness exceeded the current revenue. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

Property subject to taxation—Vehicles for public use.—An ordinance of a city imposing a tax on vehicles kept for public use, not taxed by the state, held void. Ex parte Tarrant, 40 C. R. 33, 48 S. W. 581.

Amount dependent on valuation of property, etc. — Where only a 1 per cent. tax could be imposed in one year, a tax for over that amount for 15 months held valid. Berry v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 278.

Art. 926. [487] [426] Cities of 10,000 inhabitants and over to levy and collect tax; validating act. — Cities having more than ten thousand inhabitants may levy, assess and collect taxes not exceeding one and one-half per cent on the assessed value of real and personal estate and property in the city, not exempt from taxation by the constitution and laws of the state; and assessments, levy and collection of taxes made by such cities for the year 1889 are hereby made valid to the amount aforesaid; and such cities are hereby authorized to levy, assess and collect a further tax of twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars worth of property for the purpose of paying the debts of such city lawfully contracted prior to the first day of January, 1889, not to include any bonded debt. Any funding warrants that may be issued for such debt by any such city shall not be included in the limit of six per cent prescribed by article 879; provided, that this article shall not apply to, or in any manner affect, any city organized under a special charter, and shall not be construed to validate any debt contracted by any city without authority of law existing at the time the same was contracted. [Acts of 1889, p. 3.]

Mandamus will lie to compel levy to pay judgment, when. — Under this article a city must provide first for its current expenses, and mandamus will not lie to compel the city to set aside a portion of an annual levy for the payment of a judgment against the city. But it would lie, it seems, to compel the city to levy each year, the full amount of one and one-half per cent, and apply any excess after payment of preferred claims to the payment of the judgment. City of Sherman v. Langham, 92 T. 13, 40 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

"Debt lawfully contracted prior to, etc., January, 1889."—A judgment rendered against a city on the 29th of March, 1888, for an injury inflicted in 1888, is a "Debt lawfully contracted prior to the 1st day of January, 1889." City of Sherman v. Langham, 92 T. 13, 40 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

"Debts" include what—"Contracted."—The word "debts" is broad enough to include a liability arising out of either tort or contract, and the word "contracted" is used in the statute in the sense of "incurred." City of Sherman v. Langham, 92 T. 13, 48 S. W. 140, 42 S. W. 961, 39 L. R. A. 258.

Art. 927. [489] [428] Poll tax.—The city council shall have power to levy and collect an annual poll tax, not to exceed one dollar, of every male inhabitant of said city over the age of twenty-one years (idiots and lunatics excepted), who is a resident thereof at the time of such annual assessment. [Acts of 1875, p. 113, sec. 82.]

Art. 928. [490] [429] Occupation tax.—The city council shall have power to levy and collect taxes, commonly known as licenses, upon trades, professions, callings and other business carried on; and each and every person and firm engaging in the following trades, professions, callings and business, among others, shall be liable to pay such license tax; but this enumeration shall not be construed to deprive the city council of the right and power to levy and collect other license taxes, and from other persons and firms, under the general authority herein granted. [Id. sec. 83.]

Constitutionality—Uniformity.—A municipal tax upon butchers vending meat, of $75 per stall per annum, and collected only of butchers vending meat at private stalls, and not of butchers renting stalls from the city, is a violation of the provision of the constitution requiring equal taxation. The prohibition applies to the collection equally as to the levy of taxes. Hoefling v. City of San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608.

The constitution provides that "all occupation taxes shall be equal and uniform upon the same class of subjects within the limits of the authority levying the tax." Const. art. 8, § 2. This is as binding in case of occupation taxes levied by a municipal corporation as in such taxation levied by the state. Id.

Power of city to license occupations.—When the legislature has declared that an occupation shall be taxed, then, and not before, has a county, town or city the power to levy a tax upon such occupation. Hoefling v. San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608. Contra, Hirshfield v. Dallas, 4 App. C. C. § 177, 15 S. W. 124; City of Laredo v. Lowry, 4 App. C. C. § 320, 20 S. W. 89.

A city cannot authorize one to engage in a business that would injure the lives, health, or property of persons in the vicinity. A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittmann (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

Power to license not power to tax.—The power given in a city charter to license does not confer a power to tax; by which is meant the power to take from the citizen a sum for the support of the government, whether it be national, state or municipal. Hoefling v. San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608.

"License."—In a general sense a license is an official permit to carry on a business or trade, or perform other acts which are forbidden by law except to persons obtaining such permit. It is power to authorize to occupations not otherwise unlawful, but which the public welfare may require to be under some restraint. Hoefling v. San Antonio, 85 T. 228, 20 S. W. 85, 16 L. R. A. 608.

Art. 929. [491] [430] Occupations that are subject to taxation.—Every person and firm engaged in selling goods, wares and merchandise; every person or firm keeping a billiard table, ball alley, or nine or ten-pin alley, or any similar game; every person or firm selling goods, wares and merchandise at public auction; every merchandise or cotton broker, or commission business; every person or firm pursuing the occupation of hawker or peddler of goods or any article whatever. [Id. sec. 84.]

Art. 930. [492] [431] Same subject.—Nothing herein contained shall in any wise prevent or restrain the city council from collecting the license, and each license tax hereinafter provided for by this title; each establishment shall be liable to said license tax; and any person or firm pursuing occupations, business, avocations or callings subject to said tax shall pay on each, and no license shall extend to more than one establishment, or include more than one occupation, avocation, business or calling. [Id. sec. 85.]

Art. 931. [493] [432] Power of city council to provide for assessing, etc., taxes.—The city council shall have power to provide by ordinance for the assessing and collecting of the taxes aforesaid, and to determine when taxes shall be paid by corporations, and when by the individual corporators; provided, no tax shall be levied unless by consent of two-thirds of the aldermen elected. [Id. sec. 86. R. S. 1879, 432.]

Art. 932. [494] [433] Collection of license tax, etc.—The license tax shall be collected by the assessor and collector, and shall be paid to that officer by each and every person and firm owing such license and before engaging in any trade, profession, business, calling, avocation or occupation subject to said tax; and, if any person shall engage in any business, calling, avocation or occupation which by an ordinance of the said city is subject to a license tax, without first having obtained said license, he, she or they shall, on conviction before the mayor or recorder's court, be liable to imprisonment or a fine of ten dollars, or both imprisonment and such fine, for each day such violation of said ordinance may continue; and this article shall apply to all persons owing any license and failing to pay the same; provided, that the city council may collect said license tax by suit in any court having jurisdiction, under such rules and regulations as they may provide by ordinance; said taxes, commonly known as licenses, laid as herein provided, shall not be construed to be a tax on property within the meaning of the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 87.]

Cannot collect interest by suit.—While the city may enforce the payment of a license tax by a suit, the payment of interest on the amount due cannot be enforced in such suit. Heller v. City of Alvarado, 20 S. W. 1003, 1 C. A. 409.

Cannot exempt property.—See note under Art. 936.

Art. 933. [554] [483] Occupation license to be suspended or revoked, etc., when.—In all cases where, by any provision of this title, or by ordinance passed in pursuance thereof, a person is required to obtain a license for any calling, occupation, business or avocation, and has, on complaint before the mayor or recorder, been adjudged guilty of violating any rule, regulation, or ordinance of the city council in relation thereto, the mayor or recorder, in addition to fine and imprisonment, or either, may suspend or revoke the license so granted. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 135.]

City council cannot revoke license.—See note under Art. 904.

Art. 934. [495] [434] Real estate includes what.—The term real estate or property, as used in this title, shall be construed to include lots, lands and all buildings or machinery and structures of every kind erected upon and affixed to the same. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 935. [496] [435] Personal estate includes what.—The term personal estate or property, as used in this title, shall be construed to include all household furniture, money, goods, capital, chattels, public stocks and stocks of corporations, moneyed or otherwise, and generally all property which is not real. [Id. sec. 89.]

Art. 936. [497] [436] City council may provide for the exemption of property from taxation, etc.—The city council may, by ordinance, provide for the exemption from taxation of such property as they may deem just and proper; provided, nothing contained in this chapter on taxation shall be construed to prevent the city council from imposing, levying and collecting special taxes and assessments for the improvement of the avenues, streets and alleys, as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 90. R. S. 1879, 436.]

Contract involving exemption.—The legislature never having conferred upon the city of Austin the power to exempt any property which it was authorized to tax, a contract with a private company exempting it from taxation in consideration of its establishing gas works and furnishing the city with gas at a reduced price, in so far as it attempted to give the exemption claimed is void. This would violate the rule as to uniformity. Austin v. Gas Co., 69 T. 180, 7 S. W. 200.

Art. 937. [498] [437] Taxes for payment of indebtedness.—The city council may also levy, assess and collect taxes necessary to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund to satisfy any indebtedness herefore legally made and undertaken; but all such taxes shall be assessed and collected separately from those levied, assessed and collected for current expenses of municipal government, and shall, when levied, specify in the act of levying the purpose therefor; and such taxes may be paid in the coupons, bonds or other indebtedness for the payment of which such tax may have been levied.  [Const., art. 11, sec. 6.  R. S. 1879, 437.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF TAXES

Art. 938.  [499]  [438]  Power of city council to provide for collection of taxes.—The city council may and shall have full power to provide, by ordinance, for the prompt collection of all taxes assessed, levied and imposed under this title, and due or becoming due to said city, and are hereby authorized, and to that end may and shall have full power and authority to sell, or cause to be sold, real as well as personal property, and may and shall make all such rules and regulations, and ordain and pass all ordinances, as they may deem necessary to the levying, laying, imposing, assessing and collecting of any of the taxes herein provided.  [Acts of 1875, p. 113, sec. 91.]

Special tax elections.—See Tone v. City of Denison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1188.

Suits for taxes.—The weight of authority seems to be that when a statute does not provide an exclusive remedy for the collection of taxes, they may be enforced by suit.  Cave v. City of Houston, 65 T. 619.

A city may sue for taxes due at any time after the day fixed for sale of such property for taxes.  Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 760.

Though reality was offered for sale for an amount in excess of taxes legally due, yet the city might bring suit for the amount due.  Id.

— Validity of ordinance.—An ordinance of the city of Beaumont giving power to any court of competent jurisdiction to entertain a suit to foreclose the tax lien was enacted without authority and is inconsistent with the statute.  Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 29 S. W. 384, 726.

— Constitutionalitv of statute.—The power granted by a city to prosecute suits for taxes due it is valid, and not in violation of the constitution.  Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 760.

— Condition precedent.—Under Galveston City Charter, §§ 54, 56, 60, 61, held, that preparation of certain lists and direction to city attorney to file suit for taxes was not a condition precedent to the institution of such suit by the city.  Brummer v. City of Galveston, 97 T. 85, 78 S. W. 438.

— Plaintiff must show what.—In an action by a city to collect taxes, plaintiff was required to show prima facie a valid levy and assessment, and that the taxes were due and unpaid.  City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 498, 90 S. W. 49.

Under provisions of a city charter making tax rolls prima facie evidence of certain facts, held not necessary for the city to do more than introduce the tax rolls in order to make out its case.  Id.
Art. 938  CITIES AND TOWNS  (Title 22)

Limitation.—A city charter, providing that a taxpayer might rely on the four-year statute of limitations in any action for taxes alleged to be due the city, was valid, even when the city had not definitely assessed the property at the time it was passed, and with the qualification that a reasonable time must be allowed the city in which to institute suits for taxes prior to its passage. City of Houston v. Stewart, 48 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

Defenses.—A city, sued by a city claiming to have a population of over 10,000 for taxes levied under the authority conferred on cities of over 10,000, held not entitled to raise the question whether it has 10,000 inhabitants. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n, 98 T. 92, 51 S. W. 2.

A city, by a city to recover taxes, taxpayer could not depend on the ground that the city had less than 10,000 inhabitants, and hence had not power to levy the tax. City of Tyler v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1066.

May compromise.—A city may compromise and settle taxes due to it for general purposes by accepting therefor a deed of land for a road. Ostrum v. City of San Antonio, 21 C. A. 462, 71 S. W. 394.

Judgment.—Where a city is given the right by its charter to sue for taxes, it is entitled to judgment both against the person and the property. Berry v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 273.

Notice of sale.—The statute requires only that notices of sales pursuant to judgment obtained by a city for taxes be mailed to the property owner, not that they be received by him. Ross v. Drouillet, 34 C. A. 327, 89 S. W. 241.

Restraining collection.—See Title 126.

Art. 939. [500] [439] Power of city council to regulate tax lists, assessment of taxes, etc.—The city council shall have power, by ordinance, to regulate the manner and mode of making out tax lists or inventories and appraisements of property therein, and to prescribe the oath that shall be administered to each person on such rendition of property, and to prescribe how and when property shall thus be rendered, and to prescribe the number and form of assessment rolls, and fix the duties and define the powers of the assessor and collector, and adopt such measures as they may deem advisable to secure the assessment of all property within the limits of said city, and collect the tax thereupon; and may by ordinance provide that any person, firm or corporation having property subject to taxation or being liable for any tax under the provisions of this title, and neglecting to render a list, inventory and appraisal thereof, as required by ordinance of said city, shall be liable to fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 92.]

Property "within limits of city."—Const. art. 8, § 5, declares that all railroad property within the limits of any city shall bear its proportionate share of municipal taxation, and, if not previously rendered, the city authorities shall have power to require its rendition and collect the usual municipal tax thereon. Section 8 declares that property of railroad companies shall be assessed and taxes collected in the several counties in which the property is situated, including so much of the roadbed and fixtures as shall be in each county; and that the rolling stock shall be assessed in gross in the county where the principal office of the company is located, and the county tax paid on it shall be apportioned by the comptroller in proportion to the distance the road may run through any such counties through which the several counties pass, as a part of their assets. Held that, under Art. 7525, providing for the general taxation of the rolling stock of railroad corporations, and this article, a city containing the principal office of a railroad company was not, for that reason, authorized to levy municipal taxes on all the railroad's rolling stock, only a small portion of which would necessarily be within the city on the 1st day of January of each year; the term "lying or being within the limits of any city or incorporated town," etc., when applied to tangible movable property, meaning only such property as is actually and physically within the limits of the city. City of Tyler v. Coker (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 729.

Art. 940. [501] [440] Duty of taxpayers to render inventory of property, etc.—Every person, partnership and corporation owning property within the limits of the corporation shall, within two months after published notice, hand in to the assessor and collector of the city a full and complete inventory of the property possessed or controlled by him, her or them within said limits not exempt from taxation, on the first day of January of the current year, verified as required by ordinance; and any person failing or refusing to comply with the provisions of this article shall be liable to fine and imprisonment, and the city council shall, by ordinance, clearly define the duties of taxpayers herein, and make all necessary rules and regulations to secure the rendition of property and the collection of taxes due thereon. [Id. sec. 93.]

Property liable.—Land included within city limits after January 1st, though before the assessment of taxes for the year, is not subject to such taxes. City of Austin v. Butler (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 340.

Inventory.—Latent ambiguity—Effect.—An assessment is not void on account of a latent ambiguity in the list furnished by the owner. Eustis v. City of Henrietta. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 622.

Right of taxpayer to object.—A taxpayer cannot complain that an assessment is defective in describing the property where the form of description furnished by him was followed. Scollard v. City of Dallas, 16 C. A. 526, 42 S. W. 640; Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 451.

Where an assessor includes in his assessment property not owned by the citizen, or a greater amount than is taxable, the latter is entitled to relief, though he did not render his property as provided by the statute. Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 451.

Where the statute requires taxpayers to render inventory of their property, it will be presumed that taxpayer furnished the description on the tax roll. Turner v. City of Houston, 21 C. A. 214, 51 S. W. 642.

Railroad company, whose agent rendered its property for taxation, held not entitled to take advantage of rendition not being in statutory form. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston, 23 C. A. 394, 77 S. W. 269.

Art. 941. [410] [366] Assessor and collector, powers, duties, bond, etc.—The assessor and collector shall make up the assessment of all property taxed by the city, and make duplicate rolls thereof, and, on completion of the rolls, shall deliver one of them to the city secretary. He shall collect all taxes due the city, and in the event of nonpayment of any taxes, shall proceed to sell the property to raise the amount of taxes so due; and shall in the performance of his duties, observe the provisions of this title, and the ordinances of the city relating thereto. He shall give bond, in such amount and in such form as the city council may prescribe, with good and sufficient sureties; and the city council may require a new bond whenever, in their opinion, the existing bond is insufficient; and whenever such bond is required, he shall perform no official act until said bond shall be given and approved. He shall, at the expiration of every week, pay to the treasurer all money by him collected, and shall report to the city council, at the first meeting in every month, all moneys so collected and paid; and he shall perform all such other duties, and in such manner and according to such rules and regulations as the city council may prescribe. The assessor and collector is authorized to require the owners of all property subject to taxation to render a correct account of the same, under oath, to be administered by the collector. The assessor and collector shall receive such fees and commissions for his services as may be allowed by the ordinances of the city. [Id. sec. 23.]

Bond.—Bond less onerous than that prescribed by statute, but in accordance with it so far as its provisions went, was held to be valid. City of Hallettsville v. Long, 11 C. R. 392 S. W. 367.

Sureties not released, etc.—The sureties are not released from liability by the misrepresentations of the municipal officers, etc. City of Hallettsville v. Long, 11 C. A. 180, 33 S. W. 567.

Compensation prorated.—City assessor may recover his proportionate share of the compensation for assessing and collecting taxes, where the collection was made by his successor. Sufficiency of the petition. El Paso v. Ashford, 22 S. W. 177, 3 C. A. 373.

The commission fixed by ordinance as compensation for the office of tax assessor and collector must be prorated between two persons performing the work. City of Cameron v. Moore (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 964.

Description of property.—Ordinances of the city of San Antonio requiring the tax roll furnished to the collector to describe the property by lot and block, and state the value of each parcel separately, does not apply to the assessment. Guerguin v. City of San Antonio, 19 C. A. 98, 50 S. W. 140.

Valuation made by whom.—Where the board of appraisers approved the valuation of the assessor, a taxpayer cannot claim that it was the board's duty to place the valuation, and not the assessor's. Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 481.

Separate valuation of personal property.—It is not required that the separate value of each piece of personal property should be given in the assessment either by statute or the charter of the city of San Antonio. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

Tax rolls as evidence.—Tax rolls are sufficient evidence that taxes were levied by a city. Earle v. City of Henrietta (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 727; Homes v. Same, 1d. 723.

Art. 942. [502] [442] Duty of assessor and collector to make lists of personal property, etc.—It shall be the duty of the assessor and collector to make out a list of all personal property which has not been given in for assessment according to the provisions of this title, and assess the same in the name of the owner, if he be known; if not, then it shall be assessed by description of the property and as unknown own—er; and the value of such property shall be determined by the board of equalization, and the same may be sold as in other cases, if the tax be not paid in the time prescribed by law. [Id. sec. 95.]

VER. S. CIV. ST. — 31 451.

Art. 943. [503] [443] Unrendered property shall be ascertained, etc., by assessor.—It shall be the duty of the assessor and collector, at the expiration of the time fixed by ordinance for the rendition of property, to ascertain such property in the city subject to taxation as has not been rendered; and the same shall be by him presented to the board of equalization for valuation by said board; and the same shall be by him entered in a supplement to the assessment roll as unknown, specifying the year for which said tax is not paid within the time prescribed by law; said property shall be sold at the same time and with like effect as other property. [Id. sec. 96.]

When property may be added to rolls.—Where city assessment roll has been substantially completed before levy of a tax, the fact that property not reported is afterwards added to the roll does not invalidate the tax. Scollard v. City of Dallas, 16 C. A. 620, 42 S. W. 640.

Art. 944. [504] [444] Assessment for back taxes.—Whenever the assessor and collector shall ascertain that any taxable property, real or personal, has not been assessed for the past year, he shall assess the same in a supplement to his next assessment roll, at the same rate under which such property should have been assessed for such year, stating the year for which such property should have been assessed; and the taxes thereon shall be collected in the same manner as other assessments. In all cases where any party has omitted to render property for taxation for any former year or years, and such taxes have not been paid, such party shall give such property in for assessment for the years thus omitted and pay such taxes; and the assessor and collector shall enter all such property in a supplement to his next assessment roll, under the head of payments for former years. [Id. sec. 97.]

Art. 945. [505] Appointment and duties of board of equalization. —The city councils of the several cities and towns of this state incorporated under the general laws shall annually, at their first meeting, or as soon thereafter as practicable, appoint three commissioners, each being a qualified voter, a resident and property-owner of the city or town for which he is appointed, who shall be styled the board of equalization; and at the same meeting said council shall, by ordinance, fix the time for the meeting of such board of equalization. [Acts of 1887, p. 152.]

Holding over after term a de facto board.—Acts of members of a city board of equalization having held over after their term held valid as the acts of a de facto board. Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 433, 93 S. W. 141.

Art. 946. [506] Annual meetings of said board.—The board of equalization shall convene annually, at the time fixed by the city council, to receive all the assessment lists or books of the assessor of their city, for examination, correction, equalization, appraisement, and approval; and at all meetings of said board the city secretary shall act as secretary thereof. [Id.]

Art. 947. [507] Shall value property.—The board of equalization shall cause the assessor to bring before them, at the time fixed for the convening of said board, all the assessment lists or books of the assessor of their city, for their examination, that they may see if each and every person has rendered his property at a fair market value; and said board shall have power to send for persons and papers, to swear and qualify persons who testify, to ascertain the value of such property; and, if they are satisfied it is too high, they shall lower it to its proper value; and, if too low, they shall raise the value of such property to a proper figure. Said board shall also have power to correct any errors that may appear on the assessor's lists or books. [Id.]
Art. 948. [508] Values to be equalized by board.—The board of equalization shall equalize as near as possible the value of all the improved lots within the corporate limits of their city, having reference to the size and location of said lots and the improvements thereon, and shall equalize the value of unimproved lots as near as possible, having reference to the size and location thereof, and all other property of the same kind shall be made as nearly equal as possible. Any person may file with said board at any time before the final action of said board a complaint as to the assessment of his or any other person's property, and said board shall hear said complaint; and said complainant shall have the right to have witnesses summoned in sustaining said complaint as to the insurance on said property, or the rents and profits it may bring the holder thereof. [Id.]

Art. 949. [509] Unrendered property list to be examined by board.—The city assessor, at the same time that he delivers to said board his lists and books, as provided in article 947, shall also furnish to said board a certified list of the names of all persons who either refuse to swear or qualify or to sign the oath or affirmation as required by law, together with a list of the property of such persons situated within the corporate limits of their city, as made by him through other information; and said board shall examine said lists and appraise the property so listed by the assessor. [Id.]

Art. 950. [510] Notice to property owners.—In all cases where the board of equalization shall find it their duty to raise the value of any property appearing on the lists or books of the assessor, they shall, after having fully examined such lists or books and corrected all errors appearing therein, adjourn to a day not less than ten nor more than fifteen days from the date of adjournment, such day to be fixed in the order of adjournment, and shall cause the secretary of said board to give written notice to the owner of such property or to the person rendering the same of the time to which said board may have adjourned, and that such owner or person rendering said property may at that time appear and show cause why the value of said property should not be raised; which notice may be served by depositing the same, properly addressed and postage paid, in the city postoffice. [Id.]

Art. 951. [511] Board to lower values, when.—The board of equalization shall meet at the time specified in said order of adjournment, and shall hear all persons the value of whose property has been raised, and, if said board is satisfied they have raised the value of such property too high, they shall lower the same to its proper value. [Id.]

Remedy of taxpayer.—The remedy against a fraudulent assessment by the assessor is to review the assessment before the board of appraisers. Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 481.

Art. 952. [512] Approval of lists and rolls by board.—The board of equalization, after they have finally examined and equalized the value of all property on the assessor's lists or books, shall approve said lists or books and return them, together with the lists mentioned in article 949, that he may make up therefrom his general rolls as required by law; and, when said general rolls are so made up, the board shall meet again to examine said rolls and approve the same, if found correct. [Id.]

Art. 953. [513] Action of board final.—The action of said board at the meeting provided for in article 951 shall be final, and shall not be subject to revision by said board or by any other tribunal thereafter. [Id.]

City charter provision.—Under the charter of the city of Austin (section 41), the decision of the county court on appeal from the board of equalization is final. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Board of Equalization of City of Austin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 787.

Objection to payment of tax.—An objection to the payment of the tax can not be made on the ground only that there is no proper board of appeals to pass upon objections to assessments. Scollard v. City of Dallas, 16 C. A. 620, 45 S. W. 649.

Review of action of board.—Where it did not conclusively appear that a city board of equalization abused its discretion in fixing the valuation of certain property, the action of the board would not be disturbed. Linz v. City of Sherman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 11.

Art. 954. [514] Compensation of board.—The members of the board of equalization and the city secretary, while acting as secretary of said board, shall receive such compensation for their services, to be allowed by the city council, as said council may deem just and reasonable. [Id.]

Art. 955. [515] Oath to be taken.—Before said board shall enter upon their duties, they shall be sworn, by any officer authorized by law to administer oaths, to faithfully and impartially discharge all duties incumbent upon them by law as such board. [Id.]

Art. 956. [516] [445] Duty of assessor and collector in regard to collection of taxes.—The assessor and collector, after the completion of the assessment roll, as required by ordinance, shall proceed to collect the taxes therein mentioned within the time, and give such notice as may be prescribed by the city council, and for that purpose shall call once upon every person taxed, or on the agent or attorney of such person at the usual place of his or her residence, office, place of business, or elsewhere, and demand the payment of the tax charged upon his or her person or property, if the person is to be found, and if not, then a written demand, specifying the amount of taxes due, left at the residence with some adult member of the family, shall be a sufficient demand; provided, that if any person thus owing taxes has no residence, office or place of business, and no agent in the city or known to the assessor and collector, then the said demand shall not be necessary, and the ordinary published notice required by ordinance shall be sufficient. [Acts of 1875, p. 256, sec. 98.]

Art. 957. [517] [446] Property of taxpayer shall be levied on and sold for taxes, when.—If any person shall fail, neglect or refuse to pay the taxes imposed on him and his property, within the time prescribed by the ordinances of said city, the assessor and collector shall, by virtue of his tax list and assessment roll, levy upon so much property liable to taxation belonging to such person as may be sufficient to pay his taxes; and the assessor and collector shall give notice of the time and place of sale by advertisement in writing (if not unknown property), the property and amount of taxes, costs and fees due thereupon; such notice shall be published in some newspaper published in said city; and at the expiration of such notice, and on the day therein specified, the assessor and collector shall proceed to sell such property at public auction, in front of the court house door of the city, or such building as may be used for such purpose; provided, that when real estate is offered for sale the smallest portion of grounds (to be taken from the east side of the premises) shall be sold for which any person will take the same and pay the taxes, costs and fees. [Id. sec. 100.]

Tax roll evidence.—Under this article, in connection with Art. 7613, the tax rolls are evidence of what taxes had been levied by the city council. Homes v. City of Henrietta, 21 T. 318, 42 S. W. 1052; Id. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 728.

Least portion on east side.—The direction that the least portion of land on the east side of the tract should be sold need not be followed, if to do so would materially injure the remainder. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1036.

Art. 958. [518] [447] Assessor and collector shall make deed to purchaser to property sold for taxes; effect of deed, right of redemption, etc.—The assessor and collector shall, when any property has been sold for the payment of taxes, make, execute and deliver a deed for said property to the person purchasing the same, and such deed shall be prima facie evidence in all controversies and suits in relation to the right of the purchaser, his heirs and assigns, to the premises thereby conveyed, of the following facts:

First. That the land or lot or portions thereof conveyed was subject to taxation or assessment at the time the same was advertised for sale, and had been listed or assessed in the time or manner required by law.

Second. That the taxes or assessment were not paid at any time before the sale.

Third. That the land, lot, or portion thereof conveyed had not been redeemed from the sale at the date of the deed, and shall be conclusive evidence of the following facts:

1. That the land, lot or portion thereof sold was advertised for sale in the manner and for the length of time required by law.

2. That the property was sold for taxes or assessments as stated in the deed.

3. That the grantee in the deed was the purchaser.

4. That the sale was conducted in the manner prescribed by law.

And in all controversies and suits involving the title to land claimed and held under and by virtue of such deed, the person claiming title adverse to the title conveyed by such deed shall be required to prove, in order to defeat said title, either that the land was not subject to taxation at the date of the sale, that the taxes or assessment had been paid, that the land had never been listed or assessed for taxation and assessment, as required by this title or some ordinance of the city, or that the same had been redeemed according to the provisions of this title, and that such redemption was made for the use and benefit of the person having the right of redemption under the law; but no person shall be permitted to question the title acquired by the said deed without first showing that he, or the person under whom he claims title, had title to the land at the time of the sale, or that the title was obtained after the sale; provided, however, that the owner of such property shall have the right to redeem the same at any time within two years of the day and date of the sale thereof, upon paying to the purchaser double the amount of taxes for which the same was sold, together with the costs of such sale and double the amount of all taxes paid by the purchaser since such sale. The assessor and collector shall have full power to levy upon any personal property to satisfy any tax imposed by this title; all taxes shall be a lien upon the property upon which they are assessed, and, in case any property levied upon is about to be removed out of the city, the assessor and collector shall proceed to take into his possession so much thereof as will pay the taxes assessed and costs of collection. [Id. sec. 100.]

Constitutionality.—In so far as this article makes the payment of taxes by the owner to the city, or to a purchaser at a void sale or claimant under a void deed, a condition precedent to his resisting the claim made upon his property under such void proceeding, it is unconstitutional. Eustis v. City of Henrietta, 90 T. 488, 39 S. W. 567.

The requirement of the payment of taxes before making a defense against a void claim is unconstitutional. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 235, 43 S. W. 259.

Application.—The provisions of this article do not apply to a suit on a tax deed for land not described by it. Ozie v. City of Henrietta, 90 T. 384, 39 S. W. 758.

Deed as evidence of regularity of proceedings.—The levy of a tax is not proven by the recitals in the tax deed made by a municipal corporation. The ordinance passed by the city council is the proper proof. Earl v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 301, 43 S. W. 18.

Art. 959. [519] [448] Sale may take place at another time than that first advertised, when, and may be continued from day to day. —If, from any cause, the sale of property levied upon or seized for taxes shall not take place at the time first appointed, the assessor and collector shall appoint some other time, give like notice, and proceed to sell such property in the manner prescribed in the first instance; and, in case said property levied upon or seized for taxes can not be sold on the day advertised, such sale may be postponed from day to day until completed, of which postponement the assessor and collector shall give verbal notice at the expiration of sale each day. [Id. sec. 101.]
Art. 960. [520] [449] Property shall be struck off to city, when. —If, at any sale of real or personal property or estate for taxes, no bid shall be made for any parcel of land or any goods and chattels, the same shall be struck off to the city, and thereupon the city shall receive, in the corporate name, a deed for said property, and shall be vested with the same right as other purchasers at such sale, and shall have power to sell and convey the same. [Id. sec. 102.]

Purchaser from city.—Purchaser of a city’s interest in land under foreclosure of a tax lien held to acquire no interest therein, where the court had no jurisdiction of the owner in the foreclosure proceedings. Scanlin v. Campbell, 22 C. A. 266, 65 S. W. 601.

Art. 961. [5198] [4760] Certain provisions of general tax law applicable, except, etc.—The provisions of chapter thirteen of title 126, in reference to the seizure and sale of real and personal property for taxes, penalties and costs due thereon, shall apply as well to collectors of taxes for towns and cities as for collectors of taxes for counties and collectors of taxes for cities and towns shall be governed, in selling real and personal property, by the same rules and regulations in all respects as to time, place, manner and terms and making deeds, as are provided for collectors of taxes for counties, except as in this chapter otherwise provided. [Acts 1876, p. 259, sec. 20.]

Application.—The law governing county collectors shall govern city collectors also. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 325, 43 S. W. 209.

This article makes the provisions of Chapter 13, Title 126, in reference to the seizure and sale of real estate and personal property for taxes, penalties and costs due thereon applicable to cities and towns. It expressly limits its applicability to the seizure and sale. People’s Nat. Bank v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 632.

Foreclosure of lien.—The fact that a city was incorporated under the general incorporation act held not to defeat its right to maintain an action to foreclose a tax lien. Grace v. City of Enid, 26 C. A. 101, 63 S. W. 158.

Description of property in an assessment as “store, S. Fourth and Mary sts.,” owned by “Moore Bros.,” held sufficient in action to enforce a lien for the taxes. Cooper Grocery Co. v. City of Waco, 50 C. A. 623, 71 S. W. 619.

Art. 962. [521] [450] Property of infant, etc., may be redeemed, when.—If the real estate of an infant, feme covert, or lunatic be sold under this title, the same may be redeemed at any time within one year after such disability be removed. [Id. sec. 103.]

Art. 963. Redemption of lands sold for taxes.—All lands sold under and by virtue of decree and judgment of court, for taxes due any incorporated city or town within this state, may be redeemed by the owner or owners thereof within two years from the date of deed, upon the payment to the purchaser, or his assigns, of double the amount so paid, including costs of court; provided, that purchaser at such foreclosure sale, and his assigns, shall not be entitled to the possession of the property sold for taxes until the expiration of two years from the date of deed. [Acts 1899, p. 50.]

Art. 964. [522] [452] Taxes, etc., collectible in current money only.—Taxes levied to defray the current expenses of the city government, and all license and occupation taxes levied, and all fines, forfeitures, penalties and other dues accruing to cities, shall be collectible only in current money. [Const. art. 11, sec. 4. Acts 1875, p. 256, sec. 105.]

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Purchase of property subject to tax lien.—The provision of city charter that any person who shall purchase property incumbered with taxes shall take the property charged with a lien applies only to purchasers from a delinquent taxpayer, and not to a purchaser under a tax sale. City of Houston v. Bartlett, 29 C. A. 27, 68 S. W. 730.

Release of taxes.—Where a city, having two tax judgments on certain lots, sold under the last judgment without reserve, it thereby exhausted its security, and did not violate its charter, prohibiting the release of any tax. City of Houston v. Bartlett, 29 C. A. 27, 68 S. W. 730.

Liability for fees of notary.—Where the collector of a city without authority employed a notary to take acknowledgments to tax deeds to the city, and the council ac-

FIRE DEPARTMENT

Art. 965. City council may regulate and control the erection of wooden buildings.

966. May prohibit, etc., dangerous condition of chimneys, etc.

967. May prevent the deposit of ashes in improper places.

968. May require inhabitants to keep fire buckets, etc.

969. May regulate carrying on of business dangerous in promoting fires.

970. May regulate, etc., use of fireworks and firearms.

Art. 971. May control, etc., the storing of gun-powder, etc.

972. May regulate, etc., the building of parapets and party walls.

973. May compel owners of buildings to have scuttles, etc.

974. May provide regulations for extinguishment of fires.

975. Same subject.

976. May procure fire engines, etc.

977. Buildings may be blown up, etc., when, and the damage in such case.

978. Damages satisfied, how.

Article 965. [523] [453] City council may regulate and control the erection, etc., of wooden buildings.—The city council, for the purpose of guarding against the calamities of fire, may prohibit the erection, building, placing, moving or repairing of wooden buildings within such limits within said city as they may designate and prescribe; and may within said limits prohibit the moving or putting up of any wooden building from without said limits, and may also prohibit the removal of any wooden building from one place to another within said limits, and may direct, require and prescribe that all buildings within the limits so designated and prescribed, as aforesaid, shall be made or constructed of fire-proof materials, and to prohibit the rebuilding or repairing of wooden buildings within the fire limits when the same shall have been damaged to the extent of fifty per cent of the value thereof, and may prescribe the manner of ascertaining such damage; may declare all the dilapidated buildings to be nuisances and direct the same to be repaired, removed or abated in such manner as they shall prescribe and direct; to declare all wooden buildings in the fire limits which they deem dangerous to contiguous buildings, or in causing or promoting fires, to be nuisances, and require and cause the same to be removed in such manner as they shall prescribe.

Fire limits—Inherent power to establish.—The statute gives city councils the power of regulating the erection of wooden buildings as a precaution against fires, but aside from the inherent power to establish fire limits and to prohibit the use of inflammable material in buildings or repairs thereto. Ex parte Cain, 56 Cr. R. 546, 120 S. W. 1006.

Regulations as to buildings.—A municipal ordinance prohibiting buildings not made of fireproof and incombustible materials within certain limits does not prevent buildings of such materials as will resist ordinary fires. Chimene v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 339.

A municipal ordinance, expressly authorized by the charter, declaring that buildings of combustible material shall not be constructed within certain limits, cannot be attacked as unreasonable. Id.

An ordinance prohibiting the erection within certain limits of buildings not constructed of fireproof and incombustible materials held not uncertain and obscure. Id.

This article does not give a city council the authority to pass an ordinance limiting the construction of fire proof buildings to brick or stone. Ex parte Morris (Cr. App.) 129 S. W. 1085.

Under an ordinance requiring buildings of a certain kind to have one or more fire escapes, as directed by the building inspector, unless he deemed fire escapes unnecessary, the building need not be provided with more than one fire escape, where notice of such requirement is not given by the owner by the inspector. Radley v. Knefey (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 447.

An ordinance, requiring the third story of a building to be constructed as stated, in order to provide escape from fires, held unreasonable and void. Id.

An ordinance requiring buildings within fire limits to be of fireproof material, using for the walls brick, stone, or concrete, and for the roofs tin, slate, or iron, was reasonable in its discrimination against materials. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

Under an ordinance requiring buildings within fire limits to be constructed of fireproof material, using for the walls brick, stone, or concrete, and for the roofs tin, slate, or iron, sheet iron on a wooden frame, used for the walls and roofs of a building, was not within the term "fireproof materials." Id.

Under this article and Art. 525, authorizing such municipal regulations for the prevention of fires as are deemed expedient, an ordinance requiring buildings within the fire limits to have walls and roofs "constructed of fireproof material" was beyond the power granted because of the specification of materials to be used. Id.

The sheet iron and frame walls of a building should be required to be taken down, where the foundation was of brick and the roof was of sheet iron metal. Id.

— Ordinance broader than statute void.—A city council can pass ordinances for the purpose of providing against calamities of fire, and may prohibit the erection, building, placing, moving or requiring of wooden buildings within such limits within the city as they may designate and prescribe. An ordinance which is broader than the statute is void. Ex parte Heidelberg (Cr. App.) 103 S. W. 236.

A city ordinance, establishing fire limits and prohibiting the construction of buildings therein, except buildings of brick or stone, held not in conflict with this article. Ex parte Morris, 56 Cr. R. 533, 120 S. W. 1907.

Injunction by adjoining owners.—See Title 69.

Art. 966. [524] [454] May prohibit, etc., dangerous condition of chimneys, etc.—The city council shall have power: To prevent and prohibit the dangerous condition of chimneys, flues, fire-places, stovetops, ovens, or other apparatus used in or about any building or manufactory, and to cause the same to be removed or placed in a secure and safe condition when considered dangerous. [Id. sec. 106.]

Art. 967. [525] [455] May prevent deposits of ashes in improper places, etc.—To prevent the deposit of ashes in places where they would be liable to produce fire, or in any wooden box or barrel, or within any wooden building, and to appoint one or more officers to enter into all buildings and inclosures to examine and discover whether the same are in a dangerous state, and to cause such as may be dangerous to be put in a safe condition. [Id. sec. 107.]

Art. 968. [526] [456] May require the inhabitants to keep fire buckets, etc.—To require the inhabitants to keep and provide as many fire buckets and ladders or other means to reach the roof as they shall prescribe, and to regulate the use thereof in times of fire. [Id. sec. 108.]

Art. 969. [527] [457] May regulate carrying on of business dangerous in promoting fires.—To regulate or prevent the carrying on of manufactories and works dangerous in promoting or causing fires; to prohibit or regulate the building and erection of cotton presses and sheds. [Id. sec. 109.]

Art. 970. [528] [458] May regulate, etc., use of fireworks and firearms.—To regulate or prevent and prohibit the use of fireworks and firearms. [Id. sec. 110.]

Art. 971. [529] [459] May control, etc., the storing of gunpowder, etc.—To direct, control or prohibit the keeping and management of houses or any buildings for the storing of gunpowder and other combustible, explosive or dangerous materials within the city; to regulate the keeping and conveying of the same. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 972. [530] [460] May regulate, etc., the building of parapet and party walls.—To regulate and prescribe the manner and to order the building of parapet and party walls. [Id. sec. 112.]

Art. 973. [531] [461] May compel owners of buildings to have scuttles, etc.—To compel the owners or occupants of houses or other buildings to have scuttles in the roofs and stairs or ladders leading to the same. [Id. sec. 113.]

Art. 974. [532] [462] May provide regulations for extinguishment of fires.—To authorize the mayor, officers of fire companies, or any officer of said city, to keep away from the vicinity of any fire all idle, disorderly and suspicious persons, and arrest and imprison the same, and compel all officers of the city and all other persons to aid in the extinguishment of fires and in the preservation of property exposed to danger thereat, and in preventing goods from being stolen. [Id. sec. 114.]

Art. 975. [533] [463] Same subject.—And generally to establish such regulations for the prevention and extinguishment of fires as the city council may deem expedient. [Id. sec. 115.]

Art. 976. [534] [464] May procure fire engines, etc.—The city council may procure fire engines and other apparatus for the extinguishment of fires, and have control thereof, and provide engine-houses for keeping and preserving the same; and shall have power to organize fire, hook and ladder, hose and ax companies, and fire brigade; and the companies so organized, with such assistant engineers as may be provided for, and the chief engineer, shall constitute the fire department of the city. Each company shall have the right to elect its own members and officers. The engineers shall be chosen in such manner as said department may determine, subject to the approval of the city council, who shall define the duties of said officers and pass such ordinances as they may deem proper for the interest and welfare of said department and to contribute to the efficiency thereof; all officers so elected and approved shall be commissioned by the mayor; and the said companies, officers and members shall observe and be governed by the ordinances of said city relating to the fire department; said companies shall have power to adopt their own constitution and by-laws, not inconsistent with the provisions of this title and the ordinances of said city; and said department shall take the care and management of the engines and other implements and apparatus provided and used for the extinguishment of fires; and their powers and duties shall be prescribed and defined by the city council. [Id. sec. 116.]

Control of department.—Provisions of a city charter held not to authorize the city council to order its fire department to take part in a parade for the private benefit of the city. Blankenship v. City of Sherman, 33 C. A. 507, 76 S. W. 805.

Where a city charter places the police and fire departments under the control of a civil service commission, giving the commission the right to discharge and appoint, the fact that officers and employees were appointed to their position by the mayor and approved by the city council did not deprive the commissioners of the control over them. Callaghan v. McGown (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 319.
A provision of a city charter, giving a civil service commission charge of the police and fire departments, gave such commission charge of the property pertaining to such departments. Callaghan v. Irvin, 40 C. A. 463, 90 S. W. 335.

Where a city by ordinance made an appropriation to support a fire department, it could not defeat the rights of the members of the department to their salaries, even though it may have been intended to give the mayor the authority to disburse the money to a fire department appointed by him. City of San Antonio v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 269.

Appointment and removal of members of department.—A provision of a city charter, giving a council power to establish and regulate a police force and fire department, held not in conflict with the power conferred on civil service commission to discharge and appoint officers and employees of such departments. Callaghan v. Tobin, 40 C. A. 443, 90 S. W. 328; Callaghan v. Irvin, 46 C. A. 453, 90 S. W. 355.

City council held not empowered to pass on appointment of chief of fire department by police and fire commission. City of San Antonio v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 269.

Liability for negligence.—Members of a fire department are not the servants of a city appointing them but of the general public, and the doctrine of respondeat superior does not apply to their conduct. Shanerw v. City of Ft. Worth, 11 C. A. 271, 22 S. W. 918.

A city held not liable for injuries to plaintiff caused by the negligence of firemen while participating in a parade, under orders of the city council. Blankenship v. City of Sherman, 33 C. A. 507, 76 S. W. 895.

A fireman entering premises to extinguish a fire held a licensee. Houston Belt & Terminal R. Co. v. O'Leary (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 601.

Liability of city for insufficient water supply.—See notes under Art. 865.

Contract, etc., for the purchase of hose.—A seller of hose to a city under an unenforceable contract, having reprieved the same, held entitled to recover compensation for the use of the hose while in the city's possession. Mineralized Rubber Co. v. City of Cleburne, 22 C. A. 621, 56 S. W. 220.

A city's failure to subject fire hose to a test on delivery held not a waiver of a warranty that the hose would stand a certain pressure test when delivered. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. v. City of Cleburne (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1131.

— Provision for payment.—See notes under Art. 764.

Art. 977. [535] [465] Building may be torn down or blown up, etc., when, and the damages in such cases.—When any building in the city is on fire, it shall be lawful for the chief or acting chief engineer, with the concurrence of the mayor, to direct such building, or any other building which they may deem hazardous and likely to take fire and communicate to other buildings, to be torn down or blown up or destroyed, and no action shall be maintained against any person or against the city therefor; but any person interested in any such building so destroyed or injured may, within six months, and not thereafter, apply in writing to the city council to assess and pay the damage he has sustained, and, if the city council and the claimant can not agree on the terms of adjustment, then the application of such claimant shall be referred to three commissioners, one to be appointed by the claimant, one by the city council, and the third by both. They shall be sworn faithfully to execute their duty according to the best of their ability, shall have power to subpoena and swear witnesses and shall give all parties a fair and impartial hearing, and give notice of the time and place of meeting; said commissioners shall be qualified voters and owners of real estate in the city, shall take into account the probabilities whether the said building would have been destroyed by fire if it had not been so pulled down and destroyed, and the loss of insurance upon said property, if any, caused by pulling down, blowing up or destroying said building, and may report that no damage should equitably be allowed to such claimant. [Id. sec. 117.]

Art. 978. [536] [466] Damages satisfied, how.—Whenever a report shall be made, and finally confirmed for the appraising of said damages, a compliance with the terms thereof by the city council shall be deemed a full satisfaction of said damages.
CHAPTER NINE
SANITARY DEPARTMENT

[See Article 852.]

Art. 979. [537] [467] City council may appoint health physician, etc.—The city council shall appoint a health officer, and as many health inspectors as they may deem necessary, and shall prescribe, by ordinance, the powers and duties and compensation of the same. [Id. sec. 119. Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 20.]

Liability for negligence.—A city in the exercise of its power to provide for the public health is liable for the negligence of its officers in that respect. City of Ft. Worth v. Crawford, 64 T. 362, 59 Am. Rep. 752; Id., 74 T. 404, 12 S. W. 62, 35 Am. St. Rep. 840; City of San Antonio v. Mackey, 14 C. A. 210, 36 S. W. 760.

Art. 980. [538] [468] Power to make regulations in regard to pestilence and disease.—The city council shall have power to take such measures as they may deem effectual to prevent the entrance of any pestilence, contagious or infectious diseases into the city; to stop, detain and examine, for that purpose, any person coming from any place infected, or believed to be infected, with that disease; to establish, maintain and regulate pest-houses or hospitals at some place within the city, or not exceeding five miles beyond its bounds; to cause any person who shall be suspected of being infected with any such disease to be sent to such pest-house or hospital; to remove from the city or destroy any furniture, wearing apparel, or property of any kind which shall be suspected of being tainted or infected with pestilence, or which shall be likely to pass into such a state as to generate or propagate diseases; to abate all nuisances of every description which are or may become injurious to the public health, in any manner that they may deem expedient; and from time to time do all acts, make all regulations, and pass all ordinances which they shall deem expedient for the preservation of health and the suppression of disease in the city. [Id. sec. 120.]

Prevention of disease.—A city held not liable for trespass committed by its mayor and police force in quartering a body of yellow-fever suspects in plaintiff's hotel. City of San Antonio v. White (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 858.

Art. 981. [539] [469] Owner, etc., of public conveyance conveying into city persons sick with contagious disease, liable to punishment, when.—The owner, driver, conductor or person in charge of any stage, railroad car or public conveyance, which shall enter the city, having on board any person sick of a malignant fever, or pestilential, contagious or infectious disease, unless such person became sick on the way and could not be left, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable with fine and imprisonment; and such owner, driver, conductor or person in charge, shall, within three hours after the arrival of such sick person, report in writing the facts, with the name of such person and the house where he was put down in the city, to the health officer; and every neglect to comply with these provisions shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either. [Id. sec. 121.]

Art. 982. [540] [470] Any person liable to punishment, when.—Any person who shall bring, or cause to be brought, into the city any person or property of any kind, tainted or infected with malignant fever, or pestilential, or infectious disease, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either. [Id. sec. 122.]

Art. 983. [541] [471] Inn-keeper, physician, etc., shall report persons sick with smallpox, etc.— Every keeper of an inn, hotel, tavern, boarding or lodging house in the city, in which any inmate thereof shall be sick with smallpox, varioloid, yellow fever, or other infectious or pestilential disease, shall, upon such fact coming to his knowledge, forthwith report the same to the health officer. Every physician in the city shall report, under his hand, to the officer above named, the name, residence and disease of every patient whom he shall have sick of any infectious or pestilential disease, within six hours after he shall have visited such patient. A violation of either of the provisions of this article, or any part of either of them, shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either. [Id. sec. 123.]

Art. 984. [542] [472] Power of city council to have city cleansed, etc.—The city council shall have power to require the filling up, draining and regulating of any lot or lots, grounds or yards, or any other places in the city, which shall be unwholesome, or have stagnant water therein, or from any other cause be in such condition as to be liable to produce disease; also to cause all premises to be inspected, and to impose fines on the owners of houses under which such stagnant water may be found, and to pass such ordinances as they may deem necessary for the purposes aforesaid, and for the making, filling up, altering or repairing of all sinks and privies, and directing the mode and material for constructing them in future, and for cleansing and disinfecting the same; and for cleansing of any house, building, establishment, lot, yard or ground, from filth, carrion or impure or unwholesome matter of any kind, and to punish any owner or occupant violating the provisions of any ordinance so passed, as aforesaid; and the city council shall, also, in addition to the foregoing remedy, have the power to cause any of the improvements above mentioned to be done at the expense of the city, on account of the owners, and cause expenses to be assessed on the real estate, or lot or lots, benefited thereby; and, on filing with the county clerk of the county in which the city is situated a statement, by the mayor, of such expenses, shall have a first and privileged lien on such property to secure such expenditure, and twelve per cent interest thereon. For any such expenditures and interest, as aforesaid, suit may be instituted and recovery had in the name of the corporation, in any court having jurisdiction; and the statement so made, as aforesaid, or a certified copy thereof, shall be full proof and satisfactory evidence of the amount expended in any such improvement. [Id. sec. 124.]

Art. 985. [543] [473] Health physician may be authorized to do what.—The health officer may be authorized by the city council, when the public interest requires, to exercise for the time being such of the powers and perform such of the duties of the chief of police as the city council may in their discretion direct, and authorized to enter all houses and other places, private or public, at all times, in the discharge of his duties, under this title, having first asked permission of the owners or occupants; the city council shall have power to punish, by fine and imprisonment, or either, any neglect or refusal to observe the orders and regulations of the health officer. [Id. sec. 125.]

For power of condemnation for hospitals, post-houses, etc., see Art. 1003; and for other powers in reference to public health, see Art. 838 et seq.

Holding two offices unconstitutional.—The motion by a board of aldermen without the mayor's concurrence, requesting a health inspector to discharge the duties and receive the compensation of health officer, is virtually an appointment to the position of health officer, and violates the constitution, prohibiting one person holding two offices. Brumby v. Boyd, 28 C. A. 164, 66 S. W. 874.

Art. 986. Cities to regulate sewer, etc., connections, draining, plumbing.—Every city in this state, whether organized under the general laws of the state or by special act of the legislature, having underground sewers or cesspools, shall pass ordinances regulating the tapping of said sewers and cesspools, regulating house draining and plumbing. [Acts 1897, p. 236. Acts 1909, p. 162, sec. 1.]

Does not apply to Galveston.—This Act does not apply to the city of Galveston, since it does not have the officers named in the act as members of the board of plumbers, and the city can by ordinance create a board of examining plumbers. Robinson v. Galveston (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1078.

Mandamus to compel compliance.—Where a town or city has no city engineer or local board of health, mandamus will not lie to compel it to establish these officers in order that an "examining and supervising board of plumbers" may be established, as provided for by this act. Caven v. Coleman, 100 T. 467, 101 S. W. 196, reversing (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 777.

Art. 987. Examining and supervising board of plumbers.—Such cities shall create a board for the examination of plumbers, to be known as the examining and supervising board of plumbers, to provide for an inspection of plumbing. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 988. Composition of board.—The said board shall consist of the following five persons: A member of the local board of health, if there be such a board of health, and if there be no local board of health, then the city physician or the city health officer, the city engineer, the city inspector of plumbing, a master plumber of not less than ten years active and continuous experience as a plumber, and one journeyman plumber of not less than five years of such active and continuous experience. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 989. Term regulated and vacancies filled by mayor and aldermen, etc.—The mayor and the board of aldermen, or the board of commissioners, as the case may be, shall regulate the length of term each member shall serve; they shall fill all vacancies occurring in the examining and supervising board of plumbers, appointments to said vacancies to be for the unexpired term of the member whose place is filled. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 990. Inspector of plumbing elected, when and how.—In any such city where there is no city inspector of plumbing provided for by special charter, the board of commissioners, or board of aldermen, as the case may be, shall elect such inspector of plumbing, who shall hold office for a period of time to be fixed by such board; provided, that such city inspector of plumbing may be the city engineer, if the board should see fit to elect him. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 991. Board to examine plumbers and plumbing inspectors; licenses and register of.—The examining and supervising board of plumbers, herein created, shall examine and pass upon all persons now engaged in the business of plumbing, whether as a master plumber, employing plumber, or journeyman plumber, in their respective cities, and all persons who may hereafter wish to engage in the business of plumbing as master plumber, employing plumber, or journeyman plumber, within their respective jurisdictions, and also all persons who may apply for the office of plumbing inspector. They shall issue a license to such persons only as shall successfully pass a required examination. They shall also register, in a book to be kept for that purpose, the names and places of business of all persons to whom a plumber's license is issued. [Acts 1897, p. 236.]

Art. 992. Licenses not to issue for more than one year, renewable, etc.—They shall not issue licenses for more than one year, but the same shall be renewed from year to year, upon proper application. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 993. License fees; disposition of.—Each applicant for examination for plumber's license shall pay, to such person as the examining and supervising board of plumbers may designate to receive the same, the sum of three dollars for each master plumber examined, and the sum of two dollars for each journeyman plumber examined, which fees may be used by said board to defray any of its legitimate expenses, the residue, if any, to be paid over to the treasurer of the city in which said board shall operate. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 994. Members of board to receive no compensation.—Members of the examining and supervising board of plumbers shall receive no compensation for their services on said board. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 995. License not transferable.—Such license shall be non-transferable. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 996. Examination and fee not required of same person but once.—The examination and examination fee shall not be required of the same person more than once. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 997. No license until examination passed.—The license shall not be issued to any person or firm to carry on or work at the business of plumbing, or to act as inspector of plumbing, until he or they shall have appeared before the examining and supervising board for examination and registration, and shall have successfully passed the required examination. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 998. Every plumbing firm to have one member a practical plumber.—Every firm carrying on the business of plumbing shall have at least one member who is a practical plumber. [Id. sec. 5.]

CHAPTER TEN

STREETS AND ALLEYS

Art. 999. Power of city council to have streets, etc., graded, etc. [Art. 1000. Estimate of cost of improvements shall be made, etc. 1001. Property levied on and sold for improvements, when and how, etc. 1002. Suit against owner of property for improvement tax, when, etc. 1003. Condemnation of property. 1004. Condemnation of property by private corporations.]

Art. 1005. Rules for condemning property for railways followed. 1005a. Cities under special charters may contract with railway companies for viaducts. 1005b. May abolish and close highways. 1005c. May issue viaduct bonds for damages; submission to vote; may give use of streets for viaducts. 1005d. Condemnation of land for viaducts. 1005e. May enforce contracts for viaducts.

Article 999. [544] [474] Power of city council to have streets, etc., graded, etc.—The city council shall be invested with full power and authority to grade, gravel, repair, pave or otherwise improve any avenue, street or alley, or any portion thereof, within the limits of said city, whenever, by a vote of two-thirds of the aldermen present, they may deem such improvement for the public interest; provided, the city council pay one-third and the owner of the property two-thirds thereof, except at the intersection of streets, from lot to lot across the streets either way, shall be paid for by the city alone; and said costs shall be assessed on the property fronting on said street so improved, to be collected in equal annual payments, not less than five in number; and all moneys collected from these assessments shall be appropriated exclusively to the payment of the bonds issued for the payment of the cost of said improvement. [Id. sec. 126.]

1. Control over streets, etc.—See notes under Art. 854.
2. Petition of property owners.—Effect. —Under Waco city charter, a petition of an abutter for improvement of a street is not an offer to make a contract with the city, but a mere consent that the street may be paved in accordance with the charter and ordinances. City of Waco v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 191.

If a street be a proposition for street improvement but to the city, it must be construed with reference to the requirements imposed by law on the city in carrying out improvements. Id.

A petition to a city for a street improvement held not to have been unconditionally accepted so as to be binding on petitioners. Id.

3. Assessments.—Constitutionality.—A charter which authorizes the city council to make the costs of the improvement of its streets a charge on property fronting upon such streets is valid. Roundtree v. City of Galveston, 43 T. 613; Taylor v. Boyd, 63 T. 533; Adam v. Fisher, 1d. 657; Conner v. City of Paris, 37 S. W. 88, 87 T. 32.

Assessments for local improvements which do not discriminate against one in favor of another of those within the assessment district are not in violation of the constitutional provision requiring uniform and equal taxation. Lovenberg v. City of Galveston, 17 C. A. 152, 42 S. W. 1026.

A special assessment held not to violate the constitutional provision guaranteeing to all citizens the equal protection of the law. Id.

Assessments for local improvements, if properly conducted, do not deprive an owner of his property without due process of law. Id.

Statutes authorizing the imposition of special assessments for street improvements are constitutional. Houston City St. R. Co. v. Storrice (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693.

Assessment for municipal improvement based on front-foot rule held valid. Harrell v. Storrice (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 385.

A statute conferring on a city the power to make local assessments, without providing for a tribunal to determine the validity of the proceedings, held not to take property without due process of law. Hutcherson v. Storrice (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 385.

A charter provision making the number of feet of frontage on the street the basis on which to estimate paving assessments is constitutional. Id.

An assessment under a charter provision making the number of feet of frontage the basis on which to assess, held not to be a difference in the depth of the various lots. Id.

A local assessment for paving may exceed the value of the abutting property assessed. Id.

The act of the twenty-seventh legislature, amending the charter of the city of Dallas and providing for the creation of improvement districts, etc., does not violate any provision of either the state or federal constitution. Kettle v. City of Dallas, 35 C. A. 632, 80 S. W. 874.

An assessment for benefits for a street improvement held not subject to the constitutional limitation relating to taxation. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 835.

An assessment against property abutting on a street, for the amount of benefits accrued to it by reason of the paving of the street, held not to take property for public use, without compensation, in violation of Const. art. 1, § 17. Id.

Where a city provided for the improvement of a street, to be paid for in part by assessments, it was not bound to treat a deficit as a debt, within Const. art. 11, § 5. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.

4. — Not exercise of eminent domain.—An assessment of property abutting on a street for a proportionate part of the cost of paving it is not an exercise of the power of eminent domain. City of Austin v. Nalle, 102 T. 536, 120 S. W. 996.

5. Power exercised, how.—The power must be exercised by ordinance or resolution. City of Waco v. Prather, 90 T. 86, 37 S. W. 812.

An authority to change the grade of a street, which is conferred on the council by the city charter, cannot be granted by the consent of each member of the council individually, but the council must act as such. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. James, 20 C. A. 358, 49 S. W. 660.

A street committee of a city council cannot authorize a railroad company to change the grade of a street, unless empowered by charter, or by the council. Id.

6. Costs, how assessed—Abutting property.—Damages to one part of a town lot from an adjacent ditch may be compensated by a benefit therefrom to another part of the lot. Allen v. City of Paris, 1 App. C. C. § 384.
That roll ownership of property to be assessed was not approved held no defense in action on improvement certificate where work was duly performed. Harrell v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 538.

The probability that a lot abutting on the street improved would in the near future be intersected by streets does not authorize its assessment for the cost of such street improvements. Houston v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 769.

The city is responsible to the contractor for the entire contract price of the work, and the abutting owners are responsible to the city for the two-thirds of the costs. City of Belton v. Sterling (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 1027.

7. Statute authorizing cities to levy a tax for street improvements against abutting property owners authorizes the charge against a street railway company for the cost of the paving only between the rails. Houston City St. R. Co. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 695.

Liability of city for injury to property.—Damages to one's property caused by the grading of a city by its streets adjacent thereto are recoverable. Cooper v. City of Dallas, 83 T. 225, 18 S. W. 565, 29 Am. St. Rep. 645; City of Ft. Worth v. Howard, 22 S. W. 1965, 3 C. A. 537; City of San Antonio v. Mullaly, 11 C. A. 596, 33 S. W. 256.

An abutting owner may recover damages from the city for destroying a street. City of Houston v. Kloencke (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 350.

The owner of property may recover against a city damages done to property abutting upon the streets of a city by its action in changing the established grade and digging ditches thereon for the purpose of grading other streets. City of Houston v. Hutchins (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 269; City of Dallas v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 321. See City of Dallas v. Beeman, 12 C. A. 344, 34 S. W. 340.

City liable for abutting property resulting from change of grade in street made by railroad company under direction of city. Laager v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 61.

A city is not liable for injuries to property, arising from the construction of a street so as to water on the property, no accumulations to be caused by streets negligently constructed. Taylor v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 269.

City held not liable for sickness, etc., caused by the accumulation of surface water, owing to the construction of a street. Id.

Lack of funds on the part of a municipality is no justification for its failure to repair streets or sidewalks. City of Dallas v. Strayer (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 599; City of McKinney v. Brown (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 88.

The duty to use ordinary care to keep city sidewalks in repair is ordinarily on the city, and not on the abutting property owner. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 188 S. W. 231.

10. — "Streets" as to which liable.—Where a street in an unfrequented part of a city is not opened for public use, the city is not responsible for damages by reason of its defective condition. If used frequently by the public, the city is responsible. City of Galveston v. Posnansky, 62 T. 119, 90 Am. Rep. 517; Klein v. City of Dallas, 71 T. 280, 8 S. W. 96; City of Austin v. Ritz, 72 T. 391, 9 S. W. 881; White v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1131. See City of Texarkana v. Talbot, 26 S. W. 451, 7 C. A. 202. In action against city for injuries sustained by stepping into a hole near a sidewalk, held not necessary that plaintiff should show title of the land in the city. Still v. City of Houston, 174 C. T. 447, 96 S. W. 76.

11. — Responsibility for defects.—A city is not liable for damages occasioned by the negligent operation of a water station built in its streets without authority, although its officials knew of the damage being done. City of Greenville v. Britton, 19 C. A. 79, 45 S. W. 970.

A municipal corporation is not relieved of its liability by reason of the failure of a railroad company to keep the street safe for passage. Railway Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 186.

Where the city directs the manner in which the railroad is constructed, maintained, used or operated and damages accrue from what is done by the company under the city's direction, the city is liable. The mere giving the right to construct the road where the city is authorized to do so does not make the city liable. Laager v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 61.

That a city granted a franchise to B. to excavate in its streets held not to render it liable for B.'s failure to comply with an ordinance requiring the covering or fencing of excavations. Browne v. Emchinen, 31 C. A. 436, 72 S. W. 427.

In action against railroad, evidence held to show exercise of jurisdiction over place of accident by municipal corporation under color of law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bratcher, 54 C. A. 10, 118 S. W. 1091.

Liability stated of a city for injuries to a person from an obstruction placed in a sidewalk by an association granted the right to use such place for show purposes. City of San Antonio v. Ashton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 757.

12. — Care required.—A city held bound only to use ordinary care to keep its streets in a reasonably safe condition. City of Dallas v. Moore, 32 C. A. 229, 74 S. W. 85.

Test as to whether a municipal corporation has been negligent with reference to a defectively constructed sidewalk. City of Rockwall v. Heath (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 514.

A city's duty to use ordinary care to maintain a sidewalk in a reasonably safe condition includes the duty of exercising ordinary care to keep the walk free from such holes as would reasonably be deemed likely to cause injury to pedestrians. City of San Antonio v. Case, 54 C. A. 49, 49 S. W. 291.

13. — Sufficiency and safety of way in general.—Small city having a small revenue held not liable for its failure to remove a stump on a side street standing on the line of the space set apart as a sidewalk, where the traveled way was safe and sufficiently wide. Wheeler v. Friaton (Civ. App.) 235 S. W. 581.
A driver on a city street was bound to take notice of an ordinance setting apart 10 feet either side of the streets on which sidewalks were constructed. 14.

A city which allowed a table to remain on a sidewalk held liable to one injured by collision therewith. City of Palestine v. Hassell, 15 C. A. 515, 49 S. W. 147.

Where there were piles of rubbish in the street, and plaintiff cut his foot on glass therein, held, that he could recover. City of Galveston v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 48. Where evidence in an action for personal injury caused by defective sidewalk, shows sidewalk was dangerous, without reference to question of repair, city is liable. City of Dallas v. Jones, 93 T. 38, 49 S. W. 577, 63 S. W. 377.

Notice of defect or obstruction.—City liable for defects in sidewalk if it have notice, either actual or constructive, and it is not material whether the sidewalk was injured by a private person. City of Palestine v. Hassell, 15 C. A. 515, 49 S. W. 147. Notice to mayor is notice to city of nuisance committed by private sweepers licensed by city. City of San Antonio v. Mackey's Estate, 22 C. A. 145, 54 S. W. 33.

Actual notice can be given to a city only on proof of notice to an officer authorized to receive or report the same. City of Dallas v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742. A city held entitled to a peremptory instruction in its favor in a personal injury suit; no actual or constructive notice of the defects complained of being shown. City of Sherman v. Greening (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 424.

A city may be charged with notice of a defect in a street which examination of other defects would have shown. City of Dallas v. Moore, 32 C. A. 230, 74 S. W. 96.

Actual notice held not necessary to render a city liable for injury from a defective street. Id.

Where it was policeman's duty to report defects in sidewalks, notice to him of such defect is notice to the city. City of San Antonio v. Talerico (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 28. Evidence held to warrant an inference of actual knowledge on the part of a city of the existence of a defect in the street. City of Dallas v. Mustang, 35 C. A. 112, 83 S. W. 431.

Precautions against injury.—City's failure to guard ditch in street with barriers and danger signals, as required by city ordinance, held negligence as a matter of law. City of Corsicana v. Cotter, 33 C. A. 49, 31 S. W. 315. City's having permitted ditches in its streets to be insufficiently guarded held not a defense to ditches against city's action for rendering it liable for negligently guarding a ditch. Id.

A city held liable only for the exercise of reasonable diligence to guard excavations in a street made by another after due notice. Browne v. Bachman, 31 C. A. 430, 72 S. W. 622.

City ordinances forbidding leaving a ditch open in a street held not to apply to the city, nor render the city's failure to comply therewith negligence per se. Id.

Proximate cause of injury.—Failure of a city to erect a suitable barrier on a street exposed to a river held the proximate cause of an injury resulting from complainant's falling into the river, for which the city was liable. City of San Antonio v. Porter, 22 C. A. 444, 59 S. W. 32.

Where a passenger was injured while alighting from a street car by the carrier's negligence, negligence of a city in excavating the street at that point held not to render the city liable for the injury. Yecker v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 239, 76 S. W. 790.

The proximate cause of an injury to a traveler held a defect in a street. City of Dallas v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1121.

Contributory negligence of person injured.—Plaintiff injured by obstruction in sidewalk held not guilty of contributory negligence. City of Palestine v. Hassell, 15 C. A. 515, 49 S. W. 147.

The fact that one injured while crossing a bridge was driving at an unlawful gait will not preclude a recovery unless such violation of the law contributed thereto. City of Marshall v. McAllister, 18 C. A. 159, 43 S. W. 294.

Previous knowledge of an excavation in a street which caused the injuries does not necessarily show contributory negligence. City of Hillsboro v. Jackson, 15 C. A. 325, 44 S. W. 1010.

Attempting to drive a horse by a scraper left in the street held not to constitute contributory negligence. City of Weatherford v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 24.

A pedestrian, injured in crossing a street at a place other than a crossing, may recover, when the injury was caused by the city's negligently maintaining a dangerous place in the street. City of Dallas v. Webb, 22 C. A. 45, 54 S. W. 33.

That a person injured by reason of a defective railing, part of a street, was leaning against the railing while talking to another, held not to preclude recovery. City of Whitewright v. Taylor, 23 C. A. 488, 57 S. W. 311.

In an action for damages alleged to have been occasioned by a city's failing to erect a barrier on a street adjacent to a stream, that plaintiff knew that there were no barriers along such street cannot preclude his recovery for injuries sustained. City of San Antonio v. Porter, 24 C. A. 444, 59 S. W. 322.

An instruction that plaintiff could not recover for injuries sustained by falling into an unprotected ditch in a city street if he had knowledge of its existence held erroneous. Browne v. Bachman, 31 C. A. 430, 72 S. W. 622.

Vern.S.Civ.St.—32 407
One may travel on a street although he knows it to be in an unsafe condition and the reason, unless to so travel is a disregard of ordinary care. City of Dallas v. Muncion, 27 C. A. 112, 83 S. W. 431.

Care required of traveler on city sidewalk stated. City of Cleburne v. Elder, 46 C. A. 399, 102 S. W. 464.

One is liable for injury caused by an obstruction placed upon a sidewalk by a contractor in repairing it, where she should have anticipated the obstruction from the nature of the work, whether she directed it to be placed there or not. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120.

A pedestrian injured by a defect in a city sidewalk is not negligent where she was ignorant of the defect until she sustained the injury. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 103 S. W. 281.

19. Practice and procedure.—See notes under Title 27.

20. Notice of injury.—Notice of injuries to city secretary held insufficient; charter requiring it to be given to council. City of Ft. Worth v. Sher, 16 C. A. 487, 41 S. W. 704.

Giving of notice of injuries within prescribed time held a condition precedent. Id.

Notice of injury, given to the mayor or secretary, is a condition precedent to recovery of damages from city, notwithstanding other servants of the city caused the injury. Parsons v. City of Ft. Worth, 26 C. A. 273, 63 S. W. 589.

A notice to a city of injury from a defective street held sufficient to give notice of a praecipus of the wrong. City of Dallas v. Moore, 23 C. A. 290, 74 S. W. 95.

21. Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held not to justify verdict for the city, in an action in injury caused by a pedestrian stumbling on an obstruction on a sidewalk. Davis v. City of Austin, 22 C. A. 439, 84 S. W. 927.

In an action for injuries alleged to be due to a defect in a sidewalk, evidence examined, and held sufficient to sustain the verdict for plaintiff. City of Cleburne v. Elder, 46 C. A. 399, 103 S. W. 464.

In a personal injury action against a city, the uncontradicted evidence held not to show plaintiff's contributory negligence. City of San Antonio v. Ashton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 767.

22. Measure of damages.—A city is liable for injury from a defective sidewalk, including the aggravation resulting from the negligent treatment by the physician employed, in good faith and with ordinary care, to treat the injury. City of Dallas v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742.

23. Indemnity to city.—An abutting owner held not liable to a city for damages recovered against it for injuries sustained by reason of a defective sidewalk. City of Dallas v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742.

A city's implied consent to digging of ditch in its street held to be only on condition that ditch be guarded with barriers, as provided by city ordinance; and hence city can recover over, against ditchers, damages resulting from failure to so guard it. City of Corsicana v. Tobin, 22 C. A. 492, 57 S. W. 339.

In an action against a city and a street railway company for injuries to a traveler on the street, the city held entitled to plead over against the company in the event judgment was rendered against it. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 489, 116 S. W. 62.

Art. 1000. [545] [475] Estimate of cost of improvements shall be made, etc.—Whenever the city council shall determine to make any such improvement, they shall cause an estimate to be made of the probable cost thereof by the city engineer, or by some other officer of the city, or by a committee of three aldermen; and such engineer or other officer or committee shall also report a full list of all lots or fractional lots, giving number and size of the same, and the number of the block in which situated, and the names of the owners thereof, if known, and such other information as may be required by the city council; and if there be any lot or fractional lot the owner of which is not known, the same shall be entered on said list as unknown; it shall be the duty of the officer or committee aforesaid to enter on said list, opposite each lot or fractional lot lying and being on each side of the street, avenue or alley so to be improved as aforesaid, one-third of the estimated expense for such work or improvement on such avenue, street, or alley, fronting, adjoining or opposite such lot or fractional lot; and, on the acceptance and approval of said report and list by the city council, said amount shall be imposed, levied and assessed as taxes, and shall be a lien upon the property until the payment of the same. [Id. sec. 127.]

Article strictly construed.—This article provides how the estimate of the cost of such improvements shall be made, and declares that the amount imposed shall be levied and assessed as taxes, and shall be a lien upon the property until the payment of the same. These provisions must be strictly construed and this statute closely followed. Borden v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 45, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

Conditions precedent to making improvement.—The report is a condition precedent to the improvement, the failure to make which renders a levy and assessment void. Kerr v. City of Cleburne (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 694.

The assessment, the report of the committee and its acceptance, and approval by the council, are conditions precedent to the letting of the contract. City of Corsicana v. Kerr, 89 T. 461, 55 S. W. 794.

Engineer's estimate of cost of public improvement held to have been considered by council as required before ordering the improvement, though entry of estimate was subsequent to order in the record. Davin's Exrs v. City of Galveston, 16 C. A. 12, 41 S. W. 146; Buldinger v. Same, Id.

Where a city council had authority to enlarge the portion of a street to be paved, by amendment of the ordinances after the portion of it was laid out, the council was not required to render the assessment for the improvement void. City of Paris v. Brenneman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 65.

Art. 1001. [546] [476] Property levied on and sold for taxes for improvements, when and how, etc.—After such action on the part of the city council as above provided for, such officer or committee shall give such notice as may be required by ordinance, of said tax being due and within what time payable, and shall commence forthwith to collect the same. And after the expiration of the period for payment of said tax, said officer or committee shall levy on so much of any property on said list on which said tax has not been paid as will be sufficient to pay the same, and the same notice of sale as is required in sales for other tax shall be given; and, if said tax be not paid before the day of sale, said officer or committee shall sell said property in the name and under the circumstances, and to the extent and subject to the same conditions which are or may be provided by ordinance for sale of real estate in the city, charged with the payment of taxes imposed by the said corporation; and said officer or committee shall execute a deed to the purchaser at any such sale; and all other provisions of this title in reference to a deed drawn by the assessor and collector shall apply to the deed provided for in this article. [Id. sec. 128.]

Sale of smallest portion.—Article 999, supra, requires that the tax shall be collected in not less than five annual payments. This article provides that the levy shall be on so much property as will be sufficient to pay the same, and like notice of sale as in sales for other taxes shall be given, and sale shall be subject to the same conditions provided by ordinance for other tax sales. One of the important rights here secured to the owner is a sale of the smallest portion of ground that any person will take and pay the taxes. Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

Art. 1002. [547] [477] Suit against owner of property for improvement tax, when, etc.—In addition to the power and authority granted to the city council to collect said assessment of taxes as aforesaid, they shall have the further power and additional remedy of instituting suit in the corporate name in any court having jurisdiction for the recovery against any owner of property for the amount due for any such work so made as aforesaid; and the city council shall provide, by resolution or ordinance under the provisions of this title, for carrying out and executing the powers in this chapter conferred, and may adopt such resolutions and enact such ordinances and make such regulations as they may deem necessary. [Id. sec. 129.]

In general.—A city held to have exercised the power conferred on it to collect assessments by suit, where it by ordinance authorized the city attorney to bring suit whenever he might deem it advisable. Bennison v. City of Galveston, 18 C. A. 50, 44 S. W. 615.

Suit against owner, not property.—This article authorizes suit as an additional remedy. It only authorizes personal suit and moneyed judgment against the owner for the amount due. It does not authorize a suit against the property, nor one against the owner and the property together. A lien is given by statute, and the manner of its enforcement is provided. Suit may only be brought against the owner for the "amount due." Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446, 20 S. W. 184, 726.

Art. 1003. [548] Condemnation of property.—That whenever a city council of an incorporated city or town shall deem it necessary to take any private property, in order to open, change or widen any public street, avenue or alley, or for the construction of water mains, or supply reservoirs, or stand pipes for water works or sewers, or for the purpose of establishing thereon one or more hospitals or pest-houses, within or without the limits of such city or town, or for the purpose of constructing and maintaining sewer pipes, mains and laterals and connections and also private property upon which to maintain vats, filtration pipes and other pipes, and which to use and occupy as a place for ultimate disposition of sewerage in or out of the town or city limits, whenever it be made to appear that the use of any such private prop-property is necessary for successful operation of such sewer system, and when it be also made to appear that such sewer system is beneficial to the public use, health and convenience, such property may be taken for such purposes by making just compensation to the owner thereof. If the amount of such compensation cannot be agreed upon, it shall be the duty of such city council to cause to be stated in writing the real estate or property sought to be taken, the name of the owner thereof, and his residence, if known, and file such statement with the county judge of the county in which said property is situated. [Acts 1909, p. 9.]

General.—Though plaintiff knew a resolution of the council authorized digging a ditch through his land only on condition that private parties pay the damage, he was not estopped from claiming damages from the city because he did not notify it that he would not look to the private parties. City of Dallas v. Ecken, 23 C. A. 315, 55 S. W. 761.

Deed of land to a city for a street held not to relieve the city from liability for damages to the grantor's property occasioned by a grade made in extending the street. Bartels v. City of Houston, 33 C. A. 359, 74 S. W. 326; City of Houston v. Bartels, 35 C. A. 498, 82 S. W. 325, 460.

Constitutionality of statute.—Act Feb. 15, 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 113), which authorizes the city of New Braunfels to condemn lands, etc., in constructing public utilities, violates Const. art. 3, § 56, and article 11, § 5, which prohibit the legislature from changing the limits of cities of less than 20,000 population by local or special law. Tolle v. City of New Braunfels ( Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 345.

Condemnation not authorized for.—This article does not authorize condemnation for a light plant, nor condemnation of the right to flood lands in maintaining waterworks. Tolle v. New Braunfels ( Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 345.

Compensation—Necessity.—The legislature cannot confer on a city authority to damage private property by the construction of a street, without compensation to the owner. City of Houston v. Bartels, 36 C. A. 498, 83 S. W. 325, 469.

Measure.—If in condemnation proceedings the injury to the property is shown to be permanent, the difference in the value of the property just before and after the injury was inflicted upon it is the proper measure of damages. If the injury is not permanent, then special damages, the proximate result of the act, can be recovered. City of Dallas v. Leake (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 338; Railway Co. v. Dunlavy, 56 T. 266; Railway Co. v. Ormond, 62 T. 374; Railway Co. v. Heisley, id. 593; Railway Co. v. Schofield, 73 T. 490, 18 S. W. 575; City of Texarkana v. Talbot, 7 C. A. 207, 26 S. W. 451. See Cooper v. City of Dallas, 83 S. 220, 18 S. W. 565, 29 Am. St. Rep. 645; Glider v. City of Brenham, 67 T. 345, 5 S. W. 399; Adams v. Water Works (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 1104.

Abandonment of a street, by the improvement thereof, cannot be set off against damages occasioned by such improvement. City of Houston v. Bartels, 36 C. A. 498, 82 S. W. 325, 469.

Effect of abandonment of proceedings.—Where a city abandoned condemnation proceedings for widening a street, held, that plaintiff could recover a sum assessed for benefits on his property and paid by him to the city. City of San Antonio v. Peters (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 827.

Art. 1004. [548] Condemnation of property by private corporations.—Any company or corporation, chartered under the laws of this state, for the purpose of constructing water works or furnishing water supply for any town or city, shall have the same right to condemn property necessary for the construction of supply reservoirs or stand pipes for water works, when deemed necessary to preserve the public health, that is given towns and cities under this article. Upon the filing of the statement provided for in this article, it shall be the duty of said judge, in term time or vacation, to appoint three disinterested freeholders and qualified voters of the county, as special commissioners to assess the damages to accrue to the owner by reason of such condemnation. And repealing all laws in conflict herewith. [Acts 1891, p. 172. Id.]
purpose of opening, changing or widening streets, avenues or alleys, or for the construction of water mains, sewers, supply reservoirs or stand pipes—the city, town, company or corporation to occupy the position of the railroad company. [Acts of 1889, p. 3.]

Art. 1005a. Cities under special charters may contract with railway companies for viaducts.—That all cities within this state, acting under special charters granted by the legislature of the state of Texas, are hereby granted all necessary rights and powers to carry out and comply with existing contracts or to hereafter make contracts with railway companies owning or operating [operating] tracks in such cities, to erect and complete by such railway companies, all necessary viaducts, the construction and completion of which shall be at the expense of such railway companies, according to plans and specifications agreed upon between such companies and such cities. [Acts 1911, p. 235, sec. 1.]

Art. 1005b. May abolish and close highways.—All such cities are hereby given authority and power to abolish and close such portions of any highway, street or alley, crossed by railroad tracks, as such cities have or may agree to close and abolish, in consideration of procuring the erection and completion of any viaduct by any railway company or companies. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1005c. May issue viaduct bonds for damages; submission to vote; may give use of streets for viaducts.—Such cities are hereby given full power and authority to issue improvement bonds to be designated “viaduct bonds” to an amount not exceeding ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) for the purpose of raising sufficient funds to pay for the right of way for viaduct, over such property as may not be owned by such cities or by any of the railway companies affected, and to pay such damages, if any, which may be sustained by abutting property owners. Provided, that the question of issuance of said bonds shall be submitted to a vote of the property tax paying voters, and shall be carried by a majority vote of said voters, such election being called as is provided for on other questions in the charters of cities desiring an election on said bonds. In addition such cities are hereby given authority to give to railway companies the use of any portion of its streets, highways and alleys as may be necessary for a right of way for viaducts. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1005d. Condemnation of land for viaducts.—All such cities are hereby given the right of eminent domain and the power and authority to condemn all land necessary for right of way purposes for viaducts and approaches to same forming a necessary part of such viaduct; and when necessary to condemn, shall pursue the course and take such proceedings as are now provided for in cases where railway companies are authorized to condemn for right of way purposes. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1005e. May enforce contracts for viaducts.—All such cities are hereby given the right and power to compel the construction and completion of such viaducts as railway companies have by contract agreed with any such city to construct and complete or which any railway company or companies may hereafter agree to construct and complete, by mandamus proceedings in the district court of the county where any such viaduct or viaducts are to be completed, or through any other lawful means. [Id. sec. 5.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Establishment of streets by prescription.—A thoroughfare in a city shown to be a street by its use, etc. City of Waxahachie v. Connor (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 692.
The use of a vacant lot held not to create a right of way over it by prescription. Sutor v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 948.
— Adverse possession.—See notes under Title 57, Chapter 1.

Title and rights of city.—That an abutter’s predecessors owned the land upon which streets were located, and that their deeds fail to show allowance for streets, gives her no rights therein, where her deeds call for specified lots partly bounded by such streets. Perry v. Ball, 62 C. A. 134, 113 S. W. 588.
The title which a city acquires to a street by use thereof is a title to the easement as such, and when the public necessity for the easement ceases, and the use has been abandoned, the owner has the right to the possession thereof. City of Houston v. Hammel, 63 C. A. 336, 118 S. W. 661.

Grant of franchises and privileges.—See notes under Arts. 854, 863.

Title and rights of abutting owners.—One owning a lot fronting on the street owns the fee to the center of the street, subject only to the public easement. Waples-Painter Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1027.

If a street lies between a railway right of way and plaintiff's lot, the railway company cannot construct a fence on plaintiff's boundary line. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1058.

Deposit of building materials.—Use of streets by adjoining owners for the deposit of building materials while erecting a building must be reasonable. American Const. Co. v. Seelig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 655.

Under a city ordinance, the owner of a lot on which a building was in process of erection held entitled to use one-third of the width of the street in front of his lot for the deposit of building materials. American Const. Co. v. Seelig, 104 T. 16, 133 S. W. 429.

A contractor's right to use of street for deposit of building material and to erect a fence outside of such material held fixed by ordinance. American Const. Co. v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1013.

Fencing public street to protect building material without permission by ordinance held unlawful even though the material was lawfully on the street. American Const. Co. v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 3819.

Remedies as to obstruction.—An individual property owner can maintain a suit to abate an obstruction to a street constituting a public nuisance only by showing some special and substantial injury to his own property rights. Ingram v. Turner (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 237, 126 S. W. 227.

Evidence held to show title in plaintiff, entitling him to maintain action to remove building in street obstructing entrance to his premises. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602.

Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Damages.—Loss of profits to an established business from a wrongful obstruction of a street held a special damage recoverable by the person injured. American Const. Co. v. Caswell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1013; Same v. Davis, Id. 1019.

Liability of persons other than city for defects in streets.—Building of an obstruction as a violation of law subjects the one building it to liability to a person injured, notwithstanding the fact that there is no defect in its construction. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 35 C. A. 558, 50 S. W. 1032.

It is immaterial to one's liability for injury caused by the negligence of her employer in repairing a sidewalk whether the sidewalk adjoined her property. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120.

One held bound to guard a temporary obstruction placed on a sidewalk, to avoid injury to pedestrians. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120; Id., 101 T. 635, 109 S. W. 1089, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 758.

Under rules stated, one held liable for the negligence of an independent contractor employed to repair a cement sidewalk. Id.

Where one creates an obstruction in a street which amounts to a public nuisance, he is liable for special injury resulting therefrom. Moore & Savage v. Kopplin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1033.

Violation of ordinance.—See note under Art. 854.

Negligence in use of street.—When defendant recklessly drove at an excessive speed along a city street where pedestrians would likely be and inflicted injury to one of them, he was liable although he did not see plaintiff in the street ahead of him. Foley v. Northrup, 47 C. A. 277, 106 S. W. 229.

A pedestrian has the right to go on the street for the purpose of crossing, and while doing so has an equal right to the use of the street with the operators of vehicles therein. Vesper v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 377.

Frightening animals.—A city is liable for injuries sustained by one whose horse is frightened by a scraper left in the street after close of day's work. City of Weatherford v. Lowery (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 24.

That plaintiff's wife was injured by her horse becoming frightened at a team covered by decorated cloths intended to advertise defendant's business while being driven through city streets by defendant to show defendant's negligence. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 765.

Where new means of locomotion become general on highways, effective means to prevent injury to others by the frightening of horses, etc., must be adopted. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon, 104 T. 62, 133 S. W. 871.

One driving along a city street, who popped and cracked his whip within a few feet of a horse standing at a curb, is negligent, regardless of whether the driver used care in so doing. United States Exp. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 617.

Violation of ordinance.—See notes under Arts. 854 and 861.

Negligence.—Where a person might have anticipated injury to a vehicle from leaving it in the street unguarded, it would be the duty of such person to properly guard against such injury, and whether that duty was performed would ordinarily be for the jury. Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Carter, 51 C. A. 331, 111 S. W. 1086.

A pedestrian is not negligent in a matter of law in attempting to cross a street without looking or listening for automobiles. Vesper v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 377.

Plaintiff, struck and injured by an automobile as she was waiting by the side of a street car track for an approaching car, held not negligent in having failed to look and listen for the automobile, which was being operated on the wrong side of the street, in violation of a city ordinance and recognized rules of the road. Posner v. Long (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 591.

It cannot be held as a matter of law that one driving a gentle and city-broke horse is guilty of negligence in failing at all times to have such a grip on the reins that he might control the horse if suddenly frightened by the cracking of another driver's whip. United States Ex. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 617.

--- Damages.—Driving through city streets at a rate showing a disregard of the safety and rights of persons on the streets evinces such a condition of mind as constitutes malice, justifying exemplary damages. Pooley v. Northrup, 47 C. A. 277, 168 S. W. 299.

Trespass by city officers.—See Ostrom v. City of San Antonio, 94 T. 523, 62 S. W. 909.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Art. 1006. Powers acquired by accepting benefits of this chapter, and by whom.—Towns, cities and villages, incorporated under either general or special law, which shall accept the benefits of this chapter as herein provided, shall have power to improve any street, avenue, alley, highway, public place or square, or any portion thereof, within their limits, by filling, grading, raising, paving or repaving the same in a permanent manner, or by the construction or reconstruction of sidewalks, curbs and gutters, or by widening, narrowing or straightening the same and to construct necessary appurtenances thereto, including sewers and drains. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 402, sec. 1.]

Art. 1007. Terms defined.—The term "city," whenever used herein, shall include all incorporated towns, cities and villages; the term "governing body," whenever used herein, shall include the governing or legislative bodies of all incorporated towns, cities or villages, whether known as councils, commissions, boards of commissioners, common councils, boards of aldermen, or city councils, or whatever name such bodies may be known or designated under general or special laws; that whenever the term "highway" is used herein, it shall include any street, avenue, alley, highway, or public place or square, or portion thereof, dedicated to public use. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1008. Governing body to order improvement of highways, etc. —The governing body of any city shall have power to order the improvement of any highway therein, or part thereof, and to select the materials and methods for such improvement, and to contract for the construction of such improvements in the name of the city, and to provide for the payment of the cost of such improvements out of any available funds of the city, or as herein provided. [Id. sec. 3.]

Ordinance or resolution for improvement.—Under Waco city charter, a resolution for a street improvement is the foundation of the city's right to proceed, and acts done prior thereto cannot be ratified. City of Waco v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 191.

A city charter held not to require a resolution for a street pavement to specify the kind of pavement to be used. City of Waco v. Chamberlain, 92 T. 207, 47 S. W. 527. See Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120.

Necessity of submission to competition.—The city council's authority under its charter to let a contract for a street improvement without advertising for bids held not lost by first attempting to let it by advertising.  City of Waco v. Chamberlain, 92 T. 207, 47 S. W. 557.
Art. 1008  CITIES AND TOWNS  (Title 22)

Improving subject of contract.—The city charter of Houston, relating to bids for public works, held not to apply to the employment of an architect to prepare plans.  City of Houston v. Glover, 40 C. A. 177, 69 S. W. 415.

A section of a city charter requiring public works to be let out to the lowest bidder, does not apply to a contract for the supervision of the construction of a public improvement.  City of Houston v. Potter, 41 C. A. 381, 91 S. W. 389.

Preliminary estimate.—See notes under Art. 1000.

Construction of contract.—A contract entered into by a city for a street improvement held not to impose liability on abutters.  City of Waco v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 191.

An estimate of work by a city engineer held not to constitute a “decision” as to the cost of completion of the work, within the meaning of a contract.  City of San Antonio v. L. A. Marshall & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 315.

Acceptance of work.—Where city contracts for a continuous line of sidewalk, the city council cannot accept portions of the sidewalk, leaving intervening spaces of greater or less extent.  Berwind v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 20 C. A. 428, 50 S. W. 415.

Rights and remedies of contractor against municipality.—It was held not to render judgment and fix a lien in favor of a paving contractor notwithstanding defects in the rolls and certificate.  Hutchinson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 783.

Where a sewer contract fixes the price for different kinds of excavation, the city's failure to disclose its knowledge of the existence of cemented gravel in the earth which the contractor will have to excavate held not such fraud as would justify the contractor in abandoning the work.  Marshall v. San Antonio (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 138.

Where a city substitutes other contractors under a different contract in a suit by the original contractors against it, the contractors cannot complain in the court's refusal to permit them to prove that the city allowed the substituted contractors to use less expensive material.  Id. See City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1979.

In an action on a contract for street paving, plaintiff held not entitled to recover on a quantum meruit.  Berwind Asphalt Paving Co. v. Loughlin, 130 Tex. 590, 88 S. W. 948.

Rights and remedies of municipality against contractor.—A city did not waive its right to liquidated damages for delay in the paving of a street by permitting the contractor to begin and complete the work after the time limit in the contract had expired.  High v. City of Houston, 20 C. A. 573, 71 S. W. 29.

A paving contract held to give the city no right to retain the pay as security for repairs.  City of San Antonio v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 666.

Art. 1009.  Cost of improvements, how paid, etc.; assessments.—
The cost of making such improvements may be wholly paid by the city, or partly by the city and partly by the owners of property abutting thereon; provided, that in no event shall more than three-fourths of the cost of any improvement, except sidewalks and curbs, be assessed against such property owners or their property; but the whole cost of construction of sidewalks and curbs in front of any property may be assessed against the owner thereof or his property.  [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1010.  What cost assessed against railroad, etc.; special tax lien; enforcible, how.—Subject to the terms hereof, the governing body of any city shall have power to assess against the owner of any railroad or street railroad occupying any highway ordered to be improved, the whole cost of the improvement between or under the rails and tracks of said railroad or street railroad and two feet on the outside thereof, and shall have power, by ordinance, to levy a special tax upon said railroad, or street railroad, and its roadbed, ties, rails, fixtures, rights and franchises, which tax shall constitute a lien thereon superior to any other lien or claim, except state, county and municipal taxes and which may be enforced, either by sale of said property in the manner provided by law in the collection of ad valorem taxes by the city, or by suit against the owner in any court having jurisdiction.  The ordinance levying said tax shall prescribe when same shall become due and delinquent, and the method or methods of enforcing the same.  [Id. sec. 5.]

Constitutionality of charter provision.—A provision of a city charter requiring street railway companies to pay the cost of paving between the rails and tracks of the railway and for two feet on either side is not unconstitutional.  Kettle v. City of Dallas, 35 C. A. 626, 60 S. W. 574.

Art. 1011.  Cost, how assessed; certificates; costs; attorney's fees; liens.—Subject to the terms hereof, the governing body of any city shall have power, by ordinance, to assess the whole cost of constructing sidewalks or curbs, and not to exceed three-fourths of the cost of any other improvement, against the owners of property abutting on such improvement and against their abutting property benefited thereby, and to provide for the time and terms of payment of such assessments and the rate of interest payable upon deferred payments thereon, which rate of interest shall not exceed eight per centum per annum, and to fix a lien upon the property and declare such assessments to be a personal liability of the owners of such abutting property; and such governing body shall have power to cause to be issued in the name of the city assignable certificates, declaring the liability of such owners and their property for the payment of such assessments, and to fix the terms and conditions of such certificate.

If any such certificate shall recite that the proceedings with reference to making such improvements have been regularly had in compliance with law, and that all prerequisites to the fixing of the assessment lien against the property described in said certificate, and the personal liability, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts so recited, and no further proof thereof shall be required in any court.

The ordinance making such assessments shall provide for the collection thereof, with costs and reasonable attorneys' fees, if incurred. Such assessments shall be secured by, and constitute a lien on, said property, which shall be the first enforceable claim against the property against which it is assessed, superior to all other liens and claims, except state, county and municipal taxes. [Id. sec. 6.]

Lien against street railway.—A lien upon a street railroad for paving between the rails held valid, though the company also owned lots abutting the street, that were assessed. Houston City St. R. Co. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 693.

A city held to have equitably assigned its claim against a street railroad company for paving. Id.

Art. 1012. No lien on exempt property; owner personally liable; lien not invalidated, how; enforcement.—Nothing herein contained shall be construed to empower any city to fix a lien by assessment against any property exempt by law from sale under execution; but the owner of such exempt property shall nevertheless be personally liable for the cost of improvements constructed in front of his property, which may be assessed against him. The fact that any improvement is omitted in front of exempt property shall not invalidate the lien of assessments made against other property on the highway improved, not so exempt. The lien created against any property, or the personal liability of the owner thereof, may be enforced by suit in any court having jurisdiction or by sale of the property assessed in the same manner as may be provided by law for the sale of property for ad valorem city taxes. The recital in any deed made pursuant to such sale, that all legal prerequisites to said assessment and sale have been complied with, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts so recited and shall in all courts be accepted without further proof. [Id. sec. 7.]

Owner of homestead personally liable.—Under Galveston City Charter, tit. 9, arts. 1-10, the owner of a homestead is personally liable for a paving tax assessed against the homestead. Lovenberg v. City of Galveston, 17 C. A. 162, 43 S. W. 1024.

Petition.—Petition to enforce assessment held sufficient, though it show an assessment in gross, where it did not appear that the property had been rendered by the owner. Harris v. City of Houston, 21 C. A. 432, 52 S. W. 653.

A petition to enforce an assessment under city ordinance need not state for what purposes the assessment was made, where it alleges that ordinances of the city provided for the levy of a certain per cent. on property valuation. Id.

Art. 1013. Notice and hearing before assessment, etc.; no assessment in excess of benefit.—No assessment of any part of the cost of such improvement shall be made against any property abutting thereon or its owner, until a full and fair hearing shall first have been given to the owners of such property, preceded by a reasonable notice thereof given to said owners, their agents or attorneys. Such notice shall be by advertisement inserted at least three times in some newspaper published in the city, town or village, where such tax is sought to be levied, if there be such a paper there, if not, the nearest to said city, town or village, of general circulation in the county in which said city is located, the first publication to be made at least ten days before the date of the hearing. The governing body may provide for additional notice cumulative of notice by advertisement. Said hearing shall be before the governing body of such cities, at which hearing such owners shall have the right to contest the said assessment and personal liability, and the regularity of the proceedings with reference to the improvement, and the benefits of said improvement to their property, and any other matter with reference thereto. But no assessment shall be made against any owner of abutting property or his property in any event in excess of the actual benefit to such owner, in the enhanced value of his property, by means of such improvement, as ascertained at such hearing.

The governing body of any city making improvements under the terms hereof shall, by ordinance, adopt rules and regulations providing for such hearings to property owners, and for giving reasonable notice thereof. [Id. sec. 8.]

Benefit to property—No assessment in excess of. See, also, notes under Art. 599.

The legislature cannot empower a municipal corporation to assess the cost of a public improvement on abutting property for a sum largely in excess of the benefits derived by such property. Hutcheson v. Storrie, 92 T. 685, 51 S. W. 848, 45 L. R. A. 289, 71 Am. St. Rep. 884.

A property owner held not estopped from questioning the validity of a special assessment on the ground that it was not levied on the basis of benefits. Id.

An assessment paid for widening a street can be recovered, when the improvement was abandoned and the work conferred no benefits on the property assessed. City of San Antonio v. Walker (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 952.

The cost of a local improvement may be assessed upon particular property only to the extent that it is specially and particularly benefited. Kettle v. City of Dallas, 35 C. A. 632, 80 S. W. 874.

--- Determination of council conclusive. Where the council had power to improve streets within the city, held, that its determination whether an improvement by paving was a benefit to abutting property is conclusive in a court of law. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

Notice—Necessity. The federal constitution does not require that a citizen, before a local assessment can be made on his property, must be served with notice, so as to allow him to be heard before a judicial tribunal. Hutcheson v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 785.

Sufficiency. In action to collect taxes for street improvements under city charter, held, that a sufficient notice was given to the landowners. Breath v. Galveston (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 503.

Describing a proposed pavement as on “F. street, between the north line of M. street and the north line of K. street,” held sufficient to charge abutters with notice. City of Waco v. Chamberlain, 92 T. 207, 47 S. W. 527.

Hearing. A property owner has a right to be heard as to whether an improvement proposed to be made is beneficial to his property. A municipality cannot be empowered to assess the cost of a local improvement on abutting property, without giving the property owner an opportunity to be heard on the question of benefits. Hutcheson v. Storrie, 92 T. 685, 51 S. W. 848, 45 L. R. A. 289, 71 Am. St. Rep. 884.

"Judgment confirming assessment." A judgment confirming an assessment for benefits for a street improvement held not an adjudication that an owner of abutting property is indebted in the amount of the assessment. Nalle v. Austin (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 825.

Art. 1014. Governing body may correct mistake, etc., in assessment proceedings, etc.; may reassess, etc. The governing body of any city shall be empowered to correct any mistake or irregularity in any proceedings with reference to such improvement, or the assessment of the cost thereof against abutting property and its owners, and in case of any error or invalidity, to reassess against any abutting property and its owner the cost or part of the cost of improvements, subject to the terms hereof, not in excess of the benefits in enhanced value of such property from such improvement, and to make reasonable rules and regulations for a notice to and hearing of property owners before such reassessment. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1015. Suit to set aside or correct assessment. Any property owner, against whom or whose property any assessment or reassessment has been made, shall have the right, within twenty days thereafter, to bring suit in any court having jurisdiction, to set aside or correct the same, or any proceeding with reference thereto, on account of any error or invalidity therein. But thereafter such owner, his heirs, assigns or successors, shall be barred from any such action, or any defense of invalidity in such proceedings or assessments or reassessments in any action in which the same may be brought in question. [Id. sec. 10.]

No relief by injunction.—This article provides an ample remedy at law to set aside such assessments and precludes relief by injunction. Cole v. Forto (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 260.

Limitation.—Where an assessment made for widening a street was paid in June, 1893, and proceedings to widen the street were stopped in November, 1894, an action to recover the assessment paid, begun in July, 1895, held not barred. City of San Antonio v. Walker (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 652.

Effect of failure to petition.—Failure to petition the council for the correction of a special assessment, and to apply for an injunction to restrain the levy, held not to estop the property owner from questioning the validity of the tax. Hutchens v. Storrie, 92 T. 685, 51 S. W. 448, 45 L. R. A. 289, 71 Am. St. Rep. 884.

Art. 1016. Referendum on adoption of provisions of this chapter; ordinances to carry out same.—The benefits of the provisions of this chapter shall apply to any city, and the terms thereof extend to the same, when the governing body thereof shall submit the question of the adoption or rejection hereof to a vote of the resident property taxpayers, who are qualified voters of said city, at a special election called for the purpose by said city. And said election shall be held as nearly as possible in compliance with the law with reference to regular city elections in said city; but said governing body is hereby empowered, by resolution, to order said election, and prescribe the time and manner of holding the same. Said body shall canvass and determine the results of such election; and, if a majority of the voters voting upon the question of the adoption of this chapter, at such election, shall vote to adopt the same, the result of the election shall be by said governing body be entered upon their minutes, and thereupon all the terms hereof shall be applicable to and govern such city adopting the same. A certified copy of said minutes shall be prima facie evidence of the result of such election and the regularity thereof; and the facts therein recited shall in all courts be accepted as true. Whenever the provisions of this chapter shall have been adopted by any city, the governing body thereof shall have full power to pass all ordinances or resolutions necessary or proper to give full force and effect thereto and to every part thereof. Whenever one hundred qualified voters in any city shall in writing petition for an election to determine the adoption of this chapter, it shall be the duty of its governing body to order such election. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1017. Provisions of this chapter cumulative; subordinate to special charter.—This chapter shall not repeal any law, general or special, already in existence, pertaining to the making of such improvements, but the provisions of this chapter, and of resolutions or ordinances passed pursuant thereto shall be cumulative of, and in addition to, such existing laws; provided, that in any case in which a conflict may exist or arise between the provisions of this chapter and the provisions of any law granting a special charter to any city in the state, the provisions of such special charter shall control. [Id. sec. 12.]

CHAPTER TWELVE
PUBLIC UTILITY CORPORATIONS, RATES AND CHARGES—REGULATION BY COUNCIL, ETC

Art. 1018. City council may regulate rates.—The city council of all cities and towns in the state of Texas of over two thousand population, incorporated under the general laws thereof, shall have the power to regulate, by ordinance, the rates and compensation to be charged by all water, gas, light and sewer companies, corporations or persons using the streets and public grounds of said city or town, and engaged in furnishing water, gas, light or sewerage service to the public, and also to prescribe rules and regulations under which such commodities shall be furnished, and service rendered, and to fix penalties to enforce such charges, rules and regulations; provided, that the city council or board of aldermen shall not prescribe any rate or compensation which will yield less than ten per cent per annum net on the actual cost of the physical properties, equipments and betterments. [Acts 1907, p. 217, sec. 1.]

Constitutionality.—The provision of a city charter for fixing telephone rates by ordinance under the initiative and referendum held to violate no constitutional provision. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

--- Impairment of contract rights.—An ordinance lowering telephone rates held not unconstitutional as violating the existing contracts of the telephone company with patrons for higher rates. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

A public service corporation cannot disable itself by private contract from performing the law, so as to be able to claim that such law violates such contracts. Const. art. 1, § 17. Id.

Inherent power of city.—A municipal corporation held not to have inherent power to pass an ordinance regulating the rates which a water company should charge. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

Initiative and referendum.—A city's charter held to authorize the fixing of telephone rates by an ordinance passed under the initiative and referendum. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

A telephone company held not entitled to notice of a proposed change of rates by an ordinance passed under the initiative and referendum, other than the ordinary notice of the election at which it is to be voted on. Id.

Art. 1019. Mayor, etc., not to accept franks, privileges, etc.—It shall be unlawful for the mayor or any member of any city council or board of aldermen, of any such city, or town in this state, to accept directly or indirectly any frank, privilege, free light or water, or sewerage service, or other service, or a lower rate therefor than the regular rate established by said council or board of aldermen, or any gift or anything of value from any of the companies, corporations or persons heretofore mentioned in article 1018 of this chapter. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1020. Council may pass ordinances to protect company, etc.—The city council shall have the power to pass such ordinances as they may deem necessary or proper to protect any of said companies, corporations or persons, in the free and full enjoyment of all their rights and franchises, to prevent any interference with their property or privileges, and to prevent the free or unauthorized use or waste of the water or other commodity or service furnished, and to prescribe penalties to enforce such ordinances. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1021. Company to make reports.—Any such company, corporation, or person, who may be engaged in furnishing to the inhabitants of any city or town mentioned in article 1018, any water, light, gas or sewerage service, shall, on or before the first day of March of each year, file with the mayor of such city or town a report, in writing, sworn to by the manager, secretary, or president of such corporation, by a member of such company, and by any such person, which report shall show:

(a) The amount of any lien or mortgage upon the properties composing such plant;

(b) All other indebtedness pertaining to such enterprise and the consideration therefor;

(c) The actual cost of the visible physical properties, date when installed and the present value thereof, and herein the lands, machinery, buildings, pipes, poles, circuits, mains, shall each be treated separately;

(d) The annual cost of operating such plant, showing under separate items, the amount paid for actual salaries, amount paid for labor of all kinds, fixed charges, including interest, taxes and insurance, giving each separately, amount paid for fuel, for extensions and repairs, giving each separately, and particularizing the extension and repairs, the cost of maintenance, amount paid for damages, claims or suits for damages, identifying each claim or suit, amount paid for miscellaneous expenses, and, if any machinery or equipment is abandoned, worn out or its use discontinued within the preceding year, the same shall be stated, the original cost thereof shall be given, and the present value thereof shall be stated;
(e) The report shall give the gross earnings from any such plant, including revenues from every source whatever, stating items separately, amount received by each department. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1022. Penalties.—Any such corporation, or any member of such company, or any such person mentioned in this chapter, who shall for thirty days wilfully fail or refuse to file the report in the manner provided by this chapter; shall forfeit and pay to any such city or town the sum of one hundred dollars per day for each and every day during which it shall continue in default; or, if any such corporation, or company, or person, shall file any report, knowing that the same does not truly report the facts about the matters mentioned therein, it shall forfeit and pay to such city or town the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars for each such wilfully false report; all of which forfeitures and penalties shall be recovered at the suit of such city or town, in any court of competent jurisdiction of the county wherein such city or town is located. [Id.
sec. 5.]

Art. 1023. City council of city owning plants may regulate rates; also may establish and operate plants.—The city council of any city or town in the state of Texas, incorporated under the general laws thereof, shall have the power, where such city or town owns the plant to regulate, by ordinance, the rates and compensation to be charged the public by such city or town for water, sewerage, gas, electricity or other fluid or substance used for lights, heat or power, to establish and operate necessary plants for the manufacture, generation or production thereof, and to sell and distribute the same to the public within and throughout the limits of any such city or town. [Id. sec. 6.]

Constitutionality.—This article does not contravene Const. art. 3, § 35, providing that no bill shall contain more than one subject which shall be expressed in its title, etc.

Art. 1024. This chapter does not repeal, what.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as repealing or invalidating any provision of chapter 13 of this title or chapter 5 of title 25. [Id. sec. 7.]

rate to yield ten per cent, and to stand three years and less, etc.
1029. Appeal may be taken, etc.
1030. Upon judgment fixing rate, decree enforcing same, etc.; duty of attorney general, etc.
1031. What public utilities herein included.
1032. Any city incorporated under special charter may avail itself of provisions, etc.

Article 1025. Extortionate, etc., rates, unlawful; district courts given jurisdiction to regulate, etc., provided, etc.—All extortionate and unreasonable rates charged by public utility corporations, as hereinafter deferred, are hereby declared to be unlawful; and the district courts of

this state are hereby vested with jurisdiction and full power and authority to regulate, prevent and abolish the same; and, to this end, said courts are given the power and authority, whenever the public interest may require, to fix and establish rates for the service and products of all public utility corporations, and, whenever the public interest may require and to carry out the provisions herein conferred, said courts are hereby expressly authorized to issue injunctions, quo warranto, and all other writs for the purpose of carrying out and making effective the purposes of this chapter, and said writs shall be governed by the rules and regulations now prescribed by law; provided, that no proceeding shall be begun in a district court having for its purpose the fixing of rates of public utility corporations, until and unless the city council of the city or town desiring to invoke the power herein conferred upon the district courts shall comply with the provisions of article 1026 of this chapter.

Art. 1026.  City council to pass resolutions, etc.; copy to be delivered to president, etc.—If the city council of any city or town, incorporated under the general laws of this state, shall desire to invoke the power of the district court granted in article 1025 of this chapter, such council shall, by a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to said council, pass a resolution setting forth the matters complained of, naming the corporation against which the complaint is made, and in a general way the reasons for such complaint, and shall cause a copy of the same to be delivered to the president, vice president or secretary of said corporation, or cause to be left a copy of said resolution at the principal office of such corporation.

[Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1027. After twenty days, suit in district court, if, etc.—If, within twenty days after the said corporation has been furnished with a copy of the resolution of the city council, the wrongs complained of shall not be corrected to the satisfaction of the city council, a petition setting forth the wrongs and grievances complained of, and stating the relief sought, may be filed in the name of the city or town as plaintiff against the corporation as defendant in any district court of the county in which such city or town may be situated; and process shall be issued upon said petition, and be served upon such corporation, as now provided by law in civil cases, and the case shall be set for trial in the same manner as other civil cases, except that it shall have precedence over all cases of a different character filed in such court as to the time of trial. Process shall issue in said cause at the instance of either party, in the same manner as process is now, or may hereafter issue in civil cases; and the right of trial by jury of the issues involved shall also be given upon the demand of either party, as provided by law.

Art. 1028. What to be considered in fixing rates; books to be produced; rate to yield ten per cent, etc., and to stand three years, unless, etc.—Upon the trial of the cause, it shall be the duty of the court or jury, in arriving at a decision as to whether or not the rates complained of are reasonable or extortionate, and in fixing the rates, to consider the cost of construction of the plant of the public utility corporation against which the petition is filed, the cost of the operation of such plant, its maintenance and repairs, the fixed charges that may be against the corporation, amount invested in such plant, and such other matters as may be material to the issues. And the court trying the same shall have the power to order the corporation to make profert of its books and records for inspection in court for its information in determining the question in issue. After a full hearing of all the evidence adduced by the parties, the court or jury shall have power, and it shall be their duty to fix the rates which may be charged by such public utility corporation; provided, that the rates fixed must be sufficient to yield such public utility company not less than ten per cent upon the investment, and the same shall continue in force for a period of three years. The rates fixed shall be entered of record upon the minutes of the court, and shall be held conclusive, as reasonable, fair and just, and shall remain for three years as the rates to be charged by such corporation, unless changed or modified by the judgment of said district court, or by the appellate courts to which either of the parties to said suit may appeal, or have writ of error. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1029. Appeal may be taken, etc.—If either party to the suit shall be dissatisfied with the decisions of the court and the rate thereby established, an appeal may be taken by either party to the court of civil appeals of the supreme judicial district in which such district court may be located; and said appeal shall be at once returnable to said court of civil appeals, and shall have precedence in such court of all cases of a different character therein pending; and the said parties to said suit may have their writ of error from the supreme court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1030. Upon judgment fixing rate, decree enforcing same on pain of forfeiture of charter or permit; duty of attorney general or county or district attorney, under, etc.; to institute suit for forfeiture, etc. —When final judgment is rendered in any cause fixing the rates to be charged by said corporation, the court rendering such judgment shall order in its decree the enforcement of the same; and to this end and to carry out and execute such judgment, the court is hereby specially authorized and empowered to provide in its decree that, if the same is not obeyed according to the terms thereof, the said corporation shall forfeit its charter, if the same be a domestic corporation, or its permit to do business in this state, if the corporation be a foreign corporation; and, if said order or decree be violated, it shall be the duty of the attorney general, or county or district attorney under the direction of the attorney general, to institute suit in the district court of the county in which such corporation may have its principal office, or in Travis county, Texas, for the forfeiture of the charter of such corporation, or the cancellation of its permit, as the case may be, and, if said charter be forfeited or permit canceled, the offending corporation shall thereafter be prohibited from carrying on its business within this state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1031. What public utilities herein included.—The public utilities included within the meaning of this chapter are defined to be water companies, furnishing water to the public; gas companies, furnishing gas to the public; electric light or power companies, furnishing light or power to the public; telephone companies, furnishing telephones to the public; and sewerage companies, conducting sewerage for the public, whether said companies are incorporated under the laws of this state or a foreign state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1032. Any city incorporated under special charter may avail itself of provisions, but cumulative.—Any city within this state, incorporated under a special law, may, at its option, avail itself of the provisions of this chapter, but the same shall be cumulative of any other method which may now be provided in such special charter, and this chapter shall not repeal any provisions of such special charter. [Id. sec. 8.]
CHAPTER FOURTEEN
TOWNS AND VILLAGES

Art. 1033. [579] [506] May be incorporated, when.—When a town or village may contain more than five hundred and less than ten thousand inhabitants, it may be incorporated as a town or village in the manner prescribed in this chapter. [Acts 1881, p. 63. Acts 1897, p. 193.]

Application.—Article 762, allowing villages incorporated under title 22, c. 14, authorizing the incorporation of villages, to accept the provisions of chapter 1 of the title, enacted in 1885 (Laws 1885, c. 60), applies to villages whether incorporated before or after the passage of the statute, and the officers of a village incorporated under chapter 14 in 1906 may accept the provisions of chapter 1. Trent v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 737.

"Towns and villages."—Towns and villages authorized to incorporate for municipal or school purposes are defined as a collection of inhabited houses, implying a considerable aggregation of people living in close proximity. State v. Edison, 76 T. 302, 13 S. W. 263, 7 L. R. A. 735.

Distinct from school purposes.—This and article 1034 provide for the incorporation of a town or village for municipal purposes, and are separate and distinct from the article authorizing the incorporation for free school purposes only and in no way affect the validity and force of the latter article. State v. Buchanan, 37 C. A. 325, 83 S. W. 726.

Art. 1035. If bond is not given in five days after, etc., etc.
1036. Powers, duties and fees of marshals.
1037. Taxes, by whom collected, etc.; sale of property for, etc.
1038. Real estate sold may be redeemed, etc.
1039. Where purchaser is a non-resident.
1040. Ordinances not to be enforced, until.
1041. Where property is liable for taxes and owner is unknown.
1042. Charters amended, how.
1043. Takes effect, when.
1044. Property of re-incorporating city or town, vested how; assumption of indebtedness.
1045. Certain incorporations validated.
1046. Condemnation of railroad right of way and roadbed for streets.
1047. Proceedings for.
1048. Duty of railroad to keep in condition for travel portion of roadbed and right of way crossed by street; penalty.
1049. Condemnation for same purpose by county commissioners.

Art. 1034. [580] [507] Towns and villages incorporated, when.—If the inhabitants of such town or village desire to be so incorporated, at least twenty residents thereof, who would be qualified voters under the provisions of this chapter, shall file an application for that purpose in the office of the judge of the county court of the county, in which the town or village is situated, stating the boundaries of the proposed town or village, and the name by which it is to be known, if it be incorporated, and accompany the same with a plat of the proposed town or village, and including therein no territory except that which is intended to be used for strictly town purposes; provided, that if any town or village be situated on both sides of a line dividing two counties, application may be made to the judge of the county court of either county in which a portion of said town or village is located, in manner and form as is hereinafter provided; provided, further, that in towns and villages that may be incorporated on territory in two counties, in the trial of the offense before the mayor or recorder for a violation of the laws of the state, or the ordinances of the corporation, an appeal shall be to the county court of the county in which the offense may have been committed, in cases in which said mayor or recorder has not final jurisdiction; but when said mayor or recorder are sitting as an examining court, parties brought before them as such examining court, charged with an offense against the laws of the state, shall be bound over by them to the county court of the county in which said offense is alleged to have been committed, or the district court, as the case may be, and provided, that a new election shall not be ordered in less than one year. [Acts 1889, p. 5, I.]

Territory included.—An incorporation is valid when a reasonable amount of land is included, although a portion is not occupied. McClesky v. State, 23 S. W. 518, 4 C. A. 322. See White v. City of Quanah (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 839.

Nor does the inclusion of cultivated land within the territory render the incorporation invalid. The statute makes it a question of intent which is a question of fact, and the trial court having found as a fact that the land was intended at the time for the town brings it within the terms of the law. State v. Hoard, 94 T. 527, 62 S. W. 1055.

Must accompany application.—The provision of this article requiring a map of the territory to be incorporated is mandatory. Huff v. Freuit (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 844.

The failure to accompany the plat of the proposed town was not such a non-compliance with this article as to render the attempt to incorporate the town invalid. State v. Hoard, 94 T. 527, 62 S. W. 1055; State v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

A map or plat is a written instrument to be construed by the court. City of Atlanta v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 226, 120 S. W. 923.

Validity of election.—When, on the same day, the inhabitants of a town voted to incorporate under the general law as a city and also to become an independent school district, the incorporation as a city is valid, though the result of the school district election be first declared by the county judge. State v. Bean, 26 C. A. 605, 65 S. W. 202.

Collateral attack.—See, also, notes under Art. 774.

Where a county judge is authorized to pass on the qualifications of petitioners for an election whether a town shall be incorporated, and he does so, and the town is incorporated, in habeas corpus proceedings for the release of a resident of the town from arrest, the failure to accompany the plat of the proposed town was not such a non-compliance with this article as to render the attempt to incorporate the town invalid. State v. Hoard, 94 T. 527, 62 S. W. 1055.

The qualifications of the petitioners cannot be collaterally attacked, so as to render the incorporation invalid and the arrest legal, since it is only directly as by quo warranto, that the corporation could be attacked. Ex parte Koen, 56 Cr. R. 379, 125 S. W. 401.

Art. 1034a. Validating incorporations.—That all towns and villages which have heretofore attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of chapter 11, title 18, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, and also under the provisions of chapter 14, title 22, of the Revised Statutes of 1911, but which said attempted incorporations failed to comply with all the requirements of law, respectively, under which they were attempted to be incorporated, but which said towns and villages have from and after the date of their attempted incorporations, as aforesaid, exercised the functions of incorporated towns and villages; and have been recognized as such towns and villages, and are hereby declared to be towns and villages of the class named, and their incorporations, be and the same are hereby declared to be as legal, and valid as if the original acts of incorporation had been in strict compliance with the requirements of the law; and be it further enacted that all acts and proceedings, heretofore done and performed by such towns and villages, within the scope and power of such incorporations under the laws of this state, be and the same are hereby validated and made binding on such incorporations. [Acts 1913, p. 150, sec. 1.]

Art. 1035. Adjoining territory, how added.—Whenever a majority of the inhabitants who are qualified voters of any territory adjoining the limits of any town or village, incorporated or hereafter incorporated under the provisions of this chapter, shall vote in favor of becoming a part of said town or village, any three of them may make affidavit to such fact, and file such affidavit with the mayor of said town or village, and such mayor shall certify the same to the council of said town or village. Whereupon, such council may, by ordinance, receive such inhabitants as a part of said town or village; thenceforth the territory so received shall be a part of said town or village, and the inhabitants shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges of other citizens and bound by all the acts and ordinances made in conformity thereto, and passed in pursuance of this chapter; provided, however, that the area of no town or village shall ever exceed that of cities or towns, as provided for in article 777, chapter one, title twenty-two, Revised Statutes of Texas. [Acts 1903, p. 116.]

Annexation invalid.—There having been no legislative authority for enlarging the territory of a town containing 200 and less than 1,000 inhabitants until Act March 31, 1903 (Acts 25th Leg. c. 89) adding this article, the annexation of territory by such a town was invalid and did not affect the pre-existing boundaries. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Art. 1036. [581] [508] County judge to order election to determine, etc.—If satisfactory proof is made that the town or village contains the requisite number of inhabitants, it shall be the duty of the county judge to make an order for holding an election on a day therein stated, and at a place designated within the town or village, for the purpose of submitting the question to a vote of the people.

Notice of hearing.—It is necessary to have a hearing to show the judge that a city has the necessary inhabitants. That the judge knows it of his own knowledge, is not sufficient. Huff v. Preuit (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 844.

Order may be nunc pro tunc.—It was not intended that the order for holding the election should be entered of record in any particular book. The county judge is required to make the order, and he can, after the election, enter the order on the minutes of the commissioners court nunc pro tunc. State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 916.

Finding of county judge conclusive.—The finding of a county judge that the territory sought to be embraced within a contemplated municipal corporation has the population required by statute is conclusive. State v. Goowin, 69 T. 55, 5 S. W. 678; Word v. Schow, 29 C. A. 120, 68 S. W. 192; State v. Larkin, 41 C. A. 253, 90 S. W. 912.

The acts of the county judge in passing on a petition for the incorporation of a city ordering an election, followed by an election creating the incorporation, are not conclusive of the validity of the corporation as to the limits of boundaries as provided by law, as the court may review and determine the legality of all the proceedings taken to incorporate a city. Reese v. State, 51 C. A. 266, 115 S. W. 128.

Electoral must correspond with order.—Where a county judge ordered an election on the question of incorporating certain territory, an election on the question of incorporating one-half the territory embraced in the order was invalid. State v. Merchant, 125 C. A. 266, 65 S. W. 483.

Quo warranto.—See Title 114.

Art. 1037. [582] [509] Officers appointed to hold election.—The county judge shall appoint an officer to preside at the election, who shall select two judges and two clerks to assist in holding it; and after a previous notice of ten days, by posting advertisement at three public places in the town or village, the election shall be held in the manner prescribed for holding elections in other cases.

Art. 1038. [583] [510] Qualifications of electors.—Every male person who has attained the age of twenty-one years, and who has resided within the limits of the proposed town for the six months next preceding, and is a qualified elector under the laws of the state, shall be entitled to vote at the election.

Residence of incorporators.—The incorporators must all have lived within the limits of the new town, as no one could vote who did not reside therein. Reese v. Cobb (Sup.) 150 S. W. 887.

Art. 1039. [584] [511] Tickets, written or printed.—On each ticket the voter must write, or cause to be written or printed, “Corporation” or “No corporation.”

Art. 1040. [585] [512] Returns of election.—If a majority of the votes are cast in favor of incorporation, the officers holding the election shall make return thereof to the county judge of the county within ten days after the same was held.

Art. 1041. [586] [513] Duty of county judge to make entry, etc. —The county judge shall, within twenty days after the receipt of the returns, make an entry upon the records of the commissioners’ court, that the inhabitants of the town or village are incorporated within the boundaries thereof; which boundaries shall also be designated in the entry, and a certified copy of such entry, together with the plat of the town or village, shall thereupon be recorded in the proper record of deeds of such county. [Acts 1897, p. 193.]

Designation of boundaries.—Under rule stated, town boundaries held sufficiently described where they can be definitely ascertained. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

Entry only prima facie evidence.—The entry by the county judge on the records of the commissioner's court after the election of the incorporation of the town is but record evidence of the fact, and if entry had never been made, proof of the fact could otherwise be made, therefore it is immaterial whether the entry is made by the county judge or under his direction. Ex parte Drake, 55 Cr. R. 233, 116 S. W. 51.

Under this article such entry by the county judge is but prima facie proof of the facts recited therein, which may be established otherwise than by the record, and the entry of such order is not necessary, so that defects therein are immaterial. State v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

Effect of failure to record.—This provision is merely directory, and the failure to record does not defeat the incorporation. State v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 415.

Art. 1042. [587] [514] Powers of corporation.—When the entry mentioned in the preceding article has been made, the town shall be invested with all the rights incident to such corporations under this chapter, and shall have power to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, and to hold and dispose of real and personal property; provided, such real property is situated within the limits of the corporation.

Realty within limits.—This article does not apply to land that had been acquired by the inhabitants by grant from the state, and the town may convey lands thus acquired, situated beyond its corporate limits. Reese v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 220.

Under this article a town cannot give title to property not within its limits, even though the town as originally established included such property, and had power to sell it, where the town as a corporation had been dissolved by vote of its inhabitants, and was later established under general law with its present boundaries. Reese v. Cobb (Sup.) 150 S. W. 887.

Art. 1043. [588] [515] Election of mayor, etc.—The county judge shall immediately order an election for a mayor, a marshal and five aldermen.

Art. 1044. [589] [516] Who are eligible for offices.—No person shall be eligible to any of said offices, nor shall any person be qualified to vote at any election to fill any of them, unless he possess the requisites provided by article 1038.

Art. 1045. [590] [517] Commission of mayor, etc.—The county judge shall, immediately after the returns have been made, commission the candidate who received the highest number of votes for the office of mayor, and shall deliver certificates of election to the other officers elected. [R. S. 1879, 517.]

Art. 1046. [591] [518] Officers; term of office.—The mayor, aldermen and all other officers elected at the first election under this chapter, regardless of the time of such first election, shall hold their offices until their successors shall have been duly elected and qualified at the next succeeding annual election, according to the provisions of the succeeding article. [Act May 26, 1873, p. 99, sec. 5.]

Art. 1047. [592] [519] Annual election of officers.—The annual election of officers of all towns and villages incorporated under the provisions of this chapter shall take place on such day as may be fixed by law for municipal elections throughout the towns and cities of the state. Should no such uniform day be fixed, then the elections herein provided for shall take place on the first Tuesday in April of each and every year. The mayor, or, in case of his inability or refusal to act, any two aldermen, shall order such annual election by notices posted for at least ten days at three public places within the corporate limits. The returns of such election shall be made to the town or village council, and certificates of election given by the mayor, or person acting as such, to the persons elected to the various offices for such corporation. [Id. sec. 6.]

De facto officers.—An election ordered by de facto officers, being in other respects according to law, is valid. State v. Goowin, 69 T. 55, 5 S. W. 678.

Not dissolved by failure to elect officers.—A municipal corporation is not dissolved by the failure to elect officers. State v. Dunson, 71 T. 65, 9 S. W. 103.
The failure of a town, incorporated by special act of the legislature, to elect officers, will not dissolve the corporation. Cofield v. Britton, 59 C. A. 209, 100 S. W. 493.

A municipal corporation cannot dissolve itself by mere nonuse of its corporate functions, as by failing to elect officers; dissolution being accomplished by legislative enactment or other mode provided by law. Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 608.

Art. 1048. [593] [520] Quorum may pass by-laws.—The mayor shall be the president of the board of aldermen, and shall, with three of the aldermen, constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; and the quorum shall have power to enact such by-laws and ordinances not inconsistent with the laws and constitution of the state, as shall be deemed proper for the government of the corporation.

Ordinances.—See, also, notes under Art. 817.

Under this article an ordinance can be passed authorizing a policeman or other officer to arrest a man drunk in a public place without a warrant. Early v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 86.

Art. 1049. [594] [521] May prevent and remove nuisances, regulate markets, etc.—The board of aldermen shall have and exercise exclusive control over the streets, alleys and other public places within the corporate limits, and shall have the power to cause the male inhabitants between the ages of twenty-one and forty-five years, except ministers of the gospel actually engaged in the discharge of their duties, to work on the streets and public alleys not to exceed five days in any one year, or furnish a substitute, or a sum of money (not to exceed one dollar for each day's work demanded) to employ such substitute. They shall, as far as practicable, prevent any nuisances within the limits of the corporation, and cause such as exists to be removed at the expense of the person by whom they were occasioned or upon whose property they may be found; they may establish markets and may do whatever else may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of this chapter; provided, that, with the consent of the board of aldermen, where streets are continuations of public roads, the commissioners' court shall have power to construct bridges and other improvements thereon which facilitate the practicability of travel on said streets. [Acts 1895, p. 89.]

See Ex parte Campbell (Cr. App.) 22 S. W. 1020.

Control over streets, alleys, etc.—See Art. 854.

Nuisance.—See Art. 844.

May impound stock.—See, also, Art. 860.

Under this article towns and villages may pass ordinances for the impounding and sale of stock running at large within the corporate limits. Conner v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 567.

Art. 1050. [595] [522] Board of aldermen may levy tax.—The board of aldermen shall have power to levy and collect an occupation tax of not more than one-half the amount levied by the state; also to levy taxes on persons and property, real and personal, within the corporation, subject to taxation by the laws of the state; but the tax on persons and property shall not, in any one year, exceed the rate of one-fourth of one per cent on the one hundred dollars valuation. [Acts of 1891, p. 171.]

Poll tax.—See, also, Art. 927.

A poll tax may be collected when authorized by an ordinance under this article. Perry v. Rockdale, 62 T. 451.

Towns have no authority to impose and collect a poll tax. Morris v. Cummings, 91 T. 619, 65 S. W. 353.

Occupation tax.—See Art. 928.

Art. 1051. [596] [523] Aldermen may prescribe fine, etc.—The board of aldermen shall have power to prescribe the fine to be imposed by the mayor for the violation of any by-law or ordinance, which shall in no case exceed one hundred dollars; but no fine shall be imposed except upon the verdict of a jury, should the defendant demand a trial by jury.

Art. 1052. [597] [524] Vacancies, how filled.—When a vacancy shall occur in any of the offices created by this chapter, or by the board of aldermen under its provisions, the acting aldermen shall fill such vacancy for the unexpired term.
Art. 1053. [598] [525] Additional officers may be appointed.—The board of aldermen shall have power to appoint such officers, other than those mentioned in this chapter, as shall be deemed necessary to carry out the provisions of the same, to prescribe their duties and to fix their compensation; and shall also have power to dismiss them at any time, and appoint others in their stead.

Construed.—This article empowers the board of aldermen of towns and cities to appoint such officers (policemen) other than those mentioned in the town and village to act as they may deem necessary. Early v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 86.

Art. 1054. [599] [526] Board must prescribe amount of bonds, etc.—The board shall prescribe the bonds and security which the marshal and such other officers as may be appointed shall give, which shall be execued and approved by the mayor, before the marshal or other officer shall enter upon the discharge of his duties. Said bond shall be payable to the corporation.

Art. 1055. [600] [527] If bond is not given in five days after, etc.—If the bond required in the preceding article is not given within five days after the marshal is elected, or the officer appointed, the board shall have the power to appoint another marshal or officer in the place of the one so elected or appointed.

The Act of 1899, chapter 5, page 40, creating corporation courts (embodied in chapter 5, title 32) abolished the municipal court and the offices of judge, recorder and clerk thereof, in every city, town or village (as theretofore established) after the due and legal organization of the corporation court therein.

Art. 1056. [607] [534] Powers, duties and fees of marshals.—The marshal shall have the same power within the town that constables shall have within their precincts, and shall be entitled to the same fees. He shall discharge all other duties that may be prescribed by the by-laws and ordinances, not inconsistent with the laws of the state, and shall receive therefor such fees as may be fixed by the board.

May arrest without warrant, when.—See, also, Art. 809.

Under this article a town marshal can arrest a man drunk in a public place without a warrant if an ordinance of the municipal corporation so provides. Early v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 86.

Art. 1057. [608] [535] Taxes, by whom collected, etc.; sale of property for, etc.—The corporation tax shall be assessed and collected by the marshal; and, if the same be not voluntarily paid, he shall have power to make the collection in the same manner and with like effect as is prescribed in chapter seven of this title, for collection of taxes in cities, so far as is applicable.

Art. 1058. [609] [536] Real estate sold may be redeemed, etc.—Real estate sold for taxes due the corporation may be redeemed as provided in chapter seven of this title.

Art. 1059. [610] [537] Where purchaser is a non-resident.—Where the purchaser does not reside within the limits of the corporation, the estate may be redeemed by making the payment into the treasury of the corporation for the benefit of the purchaser.

Art. 1060. [611] [538] Ordinances not to be enforced until.—No ordinance or by-law shall be enforced until it has been published at least ten days in three public places in the town or in a newspaper, if one be published in the corporation. [R. S. 1879, 538.]

Art. 1061. [612] [539] Where property is liable for taxes and owner is unknown.—When any property shall be liable to assessment for corporation taxes, and the owner is unknown, such property shall be valued by the marshal and assessed by its description, stating that the owner of the property is unknown; unless the taxes are paid, the property shall be sold for the payment thereof, as nearly as may be, in the manner in which such property when duly rendered is required to be sold, and the sale shall be equally valid. [R. S. 1879, 539.]
Art. 1062. [613] Charters amended, how.—Towns and villages heretofore incorporated by the congress of the republic or the legislature of the state may, by a resolution of the board of aldermen and a two-thirds vote of the voters at an election held therefor, amend their charters in any particular not in conflict with the constitution of the state or the Revised Statutes. [Acts of 1881, p. 83.]

Art. 1063. [614] Takes effect, when.—In order to amend the charter of any town or village, it shall be necessary, before said amendment shall go into effect, for the board of aldermen to adopt a resolution setting forth the amendment; and a certified copy of the same shall be approved by the attorney general and recorded in the office of the secretary of state before the same shall take effect. [Id.]

Art. 1064. [616] [541] Property of any reincorporating city or town vested, how; assumption of indebtedness.—When any town or city shall reincorporate, under chapters one or fourteen of this title, upon a majority vote of the legal voters, taxing property owners of said town or city, all property, real and personal, of the old or de facto corporation, shall be vested in the new one; and the new corporation shall assume all the legal indebtedness, contracts and obligations of the old corporation; and, where cities and towns have reincorporated under chapters one or eleven of title eighteen, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, upon a majority vote of the legal voters taxing property owners of said city or town, all property, real or personal, of the old or de facto corporation, shall be vested in the new corporation; and the new corporation shall assume all the legal indebtedness, contracts, and obligations of the old corporation. [Acts 1891, p. 95. Acts 1897, p. 64.]

Submission to vote.—Under the act of April, 1891, the assumption of a debt of a former municipality without a vote of the tax-payers is illegal. City of Brownwood v. Noel (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1914.

A corporation was abolished under the act of 1891 and it was reincorporated, the new corporation taking the property of the old. Held: That the new corporation was liable for the bonds of the old, notwithstanding the fact that the question was not submitted to a vote of the people. City of Brownwood v. Noel (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 590.

Constitutionality.—This article has been declared by our supreme court, In Electric Light Co. v. Keenan, 88 T. 221, 39 S. W. 888, to be unconstitutional. Ranken v. McCallum (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 277.

Debts of illegal incorporation.—The commissioners' court is not authorized to take possession of property of a city and apply the same to a payment of its debts after an illegal incorporation has been annulled by decree of court. Ewing v. Commissioners' Court, 83 T. 662, 19 S. W. 590.

Art. 1065. Certain incorporations validated.—All towns and villages which have heretofore attempted to be incorporated under the provisions of this chapter, but which, in said attempted incorporation, failed to comply with all the requirements of said chapter, but which said towns or villages have, from and after the date of their several attempted incorporations, as aforesaid, exercised the functions of towns and villages, and been recognized as such towns or villages, be and are hereby declared to be towns and villages of the class named, and their incorporations be and the same are hereby declared to be as legal and valid as if the original acts of incorporation had been in strict compliance with the requirements of the law; provided, that nothing in this article shall be held to validate the incorporation of towns and villages that had less than two hundred inhabitants at the time of this attempted incorporations of such towns and villages. [Acts 1895, p. 90.]

Application.—See, also, Arts. 775 and 779.

This act only validates those incorporations that attempted to incorporate but failed to comply with all the requirements of law, and not those that have not taken steps to incorporate. There is no inherent power in the inhabitants of a town or city to incorporate; they must follow the provisions of law permitting them to do so. Foster v. Hare, 25 C. A. 177, 62 S. W. 548.

This article applies to attempts to incorporate when the law is attempted to be followed, but in some particulars it was not done, and where if the forms of law had not been omitted the incorporation would have been valid. It does not apply where an at-
Art. 1066. Condemnation of railroad right of way and roadbed for streets.—Any town or village in this state, incorporated under this chapter, or by special charter, shall have the right, and they are hereby empowered, to condemn the right of way and roadbed of any railway company whose roadbed runs within the corporate limits of such towns or villages, when deemed necessary and so declared, by a majority vote of the board of aldermen, for the purpose of opening, widening or extending the streets of such town or village; provided, there are less than four railroad tracks. [Acts 1897, p. 216, sec. 1.]

Art. 1067. Proceedings for.—Whenever the board of aldermen of any town or village, incorporated as aforesaid, shall have passed an ordinance or resolution to open, widen or extend a street to any point within its corporate limits, and such street is to be opened, widened or extended over or across any railroad bed and right of way, if such town or village, and the company over whose roadbed and right of way such street is to be opened, widened or extended, cannot agree as to the damages to be paid said railway company for the right of way over and across, their roadbed and right of way, it shall be the duty of the mayor of such town or village to state in writing the point on said railroad right of way where said street is desired to be opened, widened or extended, giving the width and length of that portion of the right of way of the railroad sought to be condemned, and describing it so that it can be clearly identified, the object for which it is sought to be condemned, the name and style of the railway company, and file the same with the county judge of the county in which such town or village is situated. Upon the filing of such written statement with the county judge, the same proceedings shall be had for the purpose of condemning the right of way for the street that are now required by law for the condemnation of right of way for the benefit of railroad companies. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1068. Duty of railroad to keep in condition for travel portion of roadbed and right of way crossed by streets; penalty.—It shall be the duty of every railroad company in this state to place and keep that portion of its roadbed and right of way over or across which any public street of any incorporated town or village may run, in proper condition for the use of the traveling public; and, in case of its failure to do so for thirty days after written notice given to the section boss of the section where such work or repairs are needed, by the town marshal of such town or village, it shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every week such railway may fail or neglect to comply with the requirements of this article, recoverable in any court having jurisdiction of the amount involved, in a suit in the name of such town or village. [Id. sec. 3.]

Duty to make repairs and liability arising therefrom.—See notes under Arts. 854, 862, 863.

Street railroad must use reasonable care to keep roadbed in repair, though not so required by act of legislature or charter. Laredo Electric & Railway Co. v. Hamilton, 23 C. A. 480, 56 S. W. 998.

Existence of ditch before construction of railway does not relieve railway company from obligation to keep covering in repair. Id.

City street railroad franchise, not imposing any duty on it to repair roadbed, does not relieve company from obligation to keep same in safe condition for ordinary travel. Id.

Under Ft. Worth city charter, a street railway company held required to conform its tracks to the surface of the street, rather than to the grade line as fixed by the city engineer. Ft. Worth & R. H. St. Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 48 C. A. 487, 107 S. W. 556.

A street railway company, purchasing the property and franchise of another company, held to assume, not only the common-law obligation, but the contractual obligation, created by the franchise to the selling company, of keeping the tracks in repair so long as they are permitted to remain in the streets. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 499, 116 S. W. 62.
Evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding that a railroad company had acquiesced in the use of a crossing over its right of way in a city. City of Atlanta v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 226, 129 S. W. 923.

Liability of city.—See notes under Art. 999.

Art. 1069. Condemnation for same purpose by county commissioners.—County commissioners shall have the right, upon petition of twenty freeholders of any community, or unincorporated town or city, to condemn roadbed of railroads for same purpose. [Id. sec. 4.]

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Art. 1070. Election to determine.—Whenever ten per cent. of the qualified voters of any incorporated city or town in this state, having a population of over one thousand inhabitants and less than five thousand inhabitants, incorporated under the provisions of chapter one, title twenty-two of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, or any previous general law, or hereafter incorporated under any general law, or of any incorporated town or village in this state having a population of more than five hundred inhabitants and less than one thousand inhabitants incorporated under the provisions of chapter fourteen, title twenty-two of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, or any previous general law, or hereafter incorporated under any general law, shall petition in writing the mayor of said city or town, or the mayor of such town or village as the case may be requesting that an election be ordered to determine whether such city or town, or such town or village, shall adopt the commission form of government, the mayor shall order an election within such city or town, or town or village, to determine whether or not the commission form of government shall be adopted. Thirty days' notice of such election shall be given by posting three written or printed notices of same at three public places in such city or town, or in such town or village, and by publishing such notice in some newspaper published therein if there be one. If any unincorporated city or town in the state of Texas, having a population of over one thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants, or any unincorporated town or village in the state of Texas having a population of more than two hundred and less than one thousand inhabitants, shall desire to be incorporated under the commission form of government as herein provided, an election to determine whether such incorporation may be had shall be called by the county judge of the county under the provisions herein governing incorporated cities and towns, and incorporated towns and villages, and notice of such election shall be given as herein provided, and if satisfactory proof is made that the city or town or town or village, contains the requisite number of inhabitants, it shall be the duty of the county judge, to make an order for holding an election on a day therein stated, and at a place designated within the city or town or town or village, for the purpose of submitting the question to a vote of the people. [Acts 1913, p. 36, sec. 1.]

Art. 1071. Qualification of voters; form of ballot.—Every person entitled to vote at any general election under the laws of the state of Texas, regulating general elections, shall be a qualified voter under the provisions of this chapter. The ballots to be used in said election shall have written or printed thereon “For Commission” or “Against Commission.” [Id.]

Art. 1072. Judges and clerks; elections, how held; returns; order; effect.—The mayor or county judge, as the case may be, shall appoint two judges of election, one of which shall be designated as the presiding judge, and shall appoint two clerks, to hold said election. The election shall be held and governed by the general laws of the state of Texas except as herein otherwise provided, and the returns shall be made to the mayor or the county judge, as the case may be, within five days after said election shall have been held. If a majority of the votes cast are “For Commission,” then the mayor or the county judge, as the case may be, shall enter an order to that effect upon the minutes of the city council, or board of aldermen, or of the commissioners’ court, as the case may be, and after the entry of said order said incorporated city or town or incorporated town or village, shall be under the commission form of government, and said unincorporated city or town, or unincorporated town or village, shall be incorporated and under the commission form of government. [Id.]

Art. 1073. Officers to be elected; terms; vacancies, how filled, etc.—At such election held in incorporated cities and towns, and incorporated towns and villages, there shall be elected at the same election held to adopt, or not to adopt, the provisions of this chapter, two commissioners, who shall serve until the first Tuesday in April following, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified, and in said unincorporated cities and towns, and unincorporated towns and villages, there shall at such elections be elected a mayor and two commissioners, who shall serve until the first Tuesday in April following, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified. The mayor of the incorporated cities and towns, and incorporated towns and villages, adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter shall continue to hold his office for the term for which he was elected, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The term of office of the mayor and commissioners, except the first elected under the provisions hereof, shall be two years, and they shall be elected on the first Tuesday in April every two years. In case of the death or resignation of the mayor or commissioners, the others shall fill the place by appointment, provided, however, that shall a vacancy, from death, resignation, or failure to qualify, or any other cause, occur of the mayor and one commissioner at the same time, or of two commissioners at the same time, the vacancy shall be filled by special election called by the county judge of the county upon notice for the time and subject to all the regulations herein for the original election, the result of said election shall be certified by the county judge to the clerk of said commission, and shall be entered upon the minutes. In incorporated cities and towns and incorporated towns and villages, adopting the commission form of government under the provisions hereof, the members of the city council, and board of aldermen shall hold their offices until the commissioners elected hereunder shall have qualified, and after such qualification, the officers of city council, and board of aldermen shall be abolished, and the mayor and commissioners herein provided for shall constitute the “board of commissioners,” of said city or town, or town or village. [Id.]

Art. 1074. Clerk; appointment, bond, duties and powers; city attorney, police and other officers; bonds of mayor and commissioners.—Said “board of commissioners” shall appoint a competent person to be clerk, who in addition to the duties of clerk, shall also be treasurer and assessor and collector of taxes of each city or town, or town or village. He shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, enter into a good and sufficient bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in double the estimated amount of annual revenues of such city or town or of such town or village, said estimate to be made by the “board of commissioners,” and said bond to be approved by the “board of commissioners,” and filed and recorded in the minutes of said “board of commissioners.”

Said clerk shall be invested, and charged with, and shall exercise all the power, rights and duties, conferred upon, and imposed by the general laws, upon the clerk, treasurer, assessor, and collector of taxes, of cities and towns, or town and villages, as the case may be. Said “board of commissioners” shall also have the authority to appoint a city attorney and such police force and such other officers as they may deem necessary, and to fix the salary or other compensation to be received by such clerk, and by such officers, and define their duties, and at any time abolish any office which it creates, and may discharge any officer, clerk or employee which it appoints. The mayor and each commissioner shall enter into a bond in the sum of three thousand dollars each, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of their office; said bond of the officers first elected hereunder, shall be approved within twenty days after the entry upon the minutes of the city council, or board of aldermen, or the commissioner’s court, as the case may be, provided for in article 1072 of this chapter, by the county judge, of the county in which such city or town, or town or village, is located, and to be payable to said city or town or town or village, for the use and benefit of said city or town, or said town or village. All subsequent bonds of officers elected hereunder shall be approved by the “board of commissioners.” [Id.]

Art. 1075. Powers and duties of board of commissioners.—The “board of commissioners” of all incorporated cities or towns adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, having a population of over one thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants, and of all unincorporated cities or towns, having a population of one thousand and less than five thousand inhabitants incorporating under and adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, shall have all of the authority and powers, and be subject to all of the duties, granted and conferred under chapters one to thirteen, both inclusive, of title 22 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, except where same may conflict with some provision of this chapter herein contained. In incorporated towns and villages of more than five hundred and less than one thousand inhabitants, adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, and in unincorporated towns and villages of more than two hundred and less than one thousand inhabitants, incorporating and adopting the commission form of government under the provisions of this chapter, the “board of commissioners” shall have all authority and powers conferred under chapter fourteen of title 22 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911 except where same may conflict with some provision contained herein. [Id.]

Art. 1076. Meetings and compensation.—Said “board of commissions” shall hold at least one regular meeting each month and the mayor or two commissioners may call as many special meetings as may be deemed necessary to attend to the business of said city or town or said town or village; and each of said commissioners and said mayor shall receive for their services five dollars per day for each regular meeting, and three dollars per day for each special meeting; provided, however, that said mayor or either of said commissioners shall not receive pay for more than five special meetings in any one month. In lieu of the per diem provided for herein, said "board of commissioners" of any such town or city with not less than two thousand population may fix a salary to be received by the mayor and commissioners of said city or town, or said town or village, not to exceed, however, the sum of twelve hundred dollars per year in any event, for said mayor, and six hundred dollars per year for each of said commissioners. [Id.]

Art. 1076a. Laws unrepealed; incorporations and bonds validated, etc.—This chapter, nor any provision herein, shall not repeal any laws under which such cities or towns or towns or villages, may now operate and shall not effect the incorporation of any city or town or town or village within the state of Texas, and incorporation of all cities or towns, or towns or villages, heretofore had or attempted to be had, under chapter fifteen of title 22 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, or any previous general law, are hereby validated, as to area and powers and duties and all acts done under same, and all bonds heretofore issued by such cities or towns, or towns or villages, which have been approved by the attorney general of the state of Texas, and registered by the comptroller of the state of Texas, are hereby in all things, validated and declared to be valid and binding obligations against such city or cities, or such town or towns; but the provisions of this chapter shall apply to all such cities and towns, and towns and villages, from and after its passage, provided; the provisions of this Act shall not effect or take away the right of unincorporated cities and towns, and unincorporated towns and villages, to incorporate under any other general law of this state. [Id.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

ABOLITION OF CORPORATE EXISTENCE

Art. 1077. Abolition of corporation provided. —Cities and towns incorporated under the general laws of the state, and cities and towns of ten thousand inhabitants or less chartered under special law, including those which may have heretofore accepted the provisions of chapter one, of this title, may abolish their corporate existence in the manner hereinafter provided. [Acts 1895, p. 166.]

Historical.—Until the passage of Articles 1077-1096 there was no way to abolish a town having a special charter. Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 608.

Art. 1078. Petition and election to abolish, provided, etc.—When one hundred of the property taxpayers, who are qualified voters of any such city or town, desire the abolishment of such corporation, they may petition the county judge to that effect, who shall thereupon order an election to be held in such city or town, as in the case of its incorporation; provided, that when a majority of the property taxpayers, who are qualified voters, of any such city or town is less than one hundred in number, then the county judge shall order an election as above provided for upon the presentation to him of a petition signed by a majority of the property taxpayers of such city or town, who are qualified voters thereof, paying [praying] for same. [Acts 1899, p. 245.]

Art. 1079. [617c] Qualified voters at such election; duty of county judge.—All persons who are legally qualified voters of the state and county in which any such election is ordered, and are resident property taxpayers in the city or town where such election is to be held, as shown by the last assessment roll of such city or town, shall be entitled to vote at such election; and, if a majority of such qualified voters voting at such election shall vote to abolish such corporation, the county judge shall declare such corporation abolished, and enter an order to that effect upon the minutes of the commissioners' court, and from the date of such order, said corporation shall cease to exist. [Acts 1895, p. 166.]

Qualifications of voters.—Under the express provisions of Const. § 2, as amended in 1902, and Art. 1079, a resident of an incorporated town was not qualified to vote at an election, relative to the abolition of its corporate existence, unless he was a citizen of the United States, or had, at a proper time before the election, declared his intention of becoming a citizen, and unless he had paid his poll tax before the 1st day of February next preceding the election. Warren v. Lambrecht ( Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 632.

Under this article and Arts. 654 and 767, the commissioners' court shall make up an assessment roll from the list rendered by assessors, and return the list to the assessors for making up the general rolls. The town assessors made up a tax roll, compiled from the county assessors' rolls, which was adopted by the council, and thereafter they made assessments, shown by assessment lists, against residents who had rendered property for taxation, but whose names were not on the tax roll. Held, that the assessment list was not an 'assessment roll,' within the meaning of the statute; and hence that such residents were not qualified voters, and their votes were properly refused. Id.

Art. 1080. Receiver of abolished corporation; appointment; bond, etc.—In all cases where any city or town having theretofore had a valid corporate existence, under the laws of the state of Texas, has abolished said corporate existence in the manner provided by law, and in all cases where any city or town having a valid corporate existence under such laws, may hereafter abolish their corporate existence, any creditor of any such city or town may apply to the judge of the district court of the judicial district, in which such city or town may be situated, for the appointment of a receiver for said corporation; and, after having posted up in at least three public places in the county wherein such city or town is located, one of which shall be in said city or town, written notices stating the substance of the application, when and before whom the same will be heard, such judge, either in term time or vacation, may appoint a suitable person as such receiver for such corporation, and shall fix the amount of bond to be given by such receiver in at least double the probable amount of the indebtedness or value of the property of such city or town, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as such officer, and for the paying over and delivery of all money and property coming into his hands as such receiver, to the party or parties entitled to receive same, such bond to be approved by the judge making the appointment; and same, together with the order of appointment, shall be filed with, and recorded in, the minutes of said court by the clerk of the district court of the county wherein such city or town is situated. [Acts 1905, p. 325.]

Construed.—This act authorizes a district court to appoint a receiver of an abolished corporation on the petition of any creditor and if the city has not property sufficient to pay all legal claims to levy a yearly tax for such purpose. City of Carthage v. Burton ( Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 442.

Art. 1081. Duties of receiver.—A receiver appointed under the preceding article, after having given the required bond, and after having same filed and recorded as therein directed, shall take charge of all the real and personal property, including moneys, minute books, ordinances, etc., except such property as pertains to the public free schools or devoted exclusively to public use, and shall return an inventory of all such
Art. 1082. Claims against city; proceedings to collect.—Any person, firm or corporation, having any claim against such city or town, shall, within six months from the appointment of said receiver, present to him a statement of the amount of such claim, duly verified, which, if he finds correct, he will mark allowed, and file same in said district court; and at its next regular term, if no protest be filed as hereinafter provided, said claim shall be approved by said court and shall thereafter be considered a valid debt against such city or town; provided, however, that no such claim or account against such city shall be allowed or approved by the receiver of such city without notice of the presentment thereof first having been given, by publication in some newspaper, if any in the town or city where same is filed or presented, for four successive weeks, and in case there be no newspaper published in such town or city, then by posting written or printed notice of the presentment of such claim, to be posted at the courthouse door of the county in which said town or city is situated for four weeks prior to the allowance of said claim or account. And such notice, whether published or posted, shall state the name and residence of the creditor, the amount and date of said claim and account, and for what purpose incurred. In case such receiver finds any claim so presented to him unjust, in whole or in part, he shall endorse his finding thereon, and return same to the claimant, who may file same with the district court, if he desires to accept the finding of the receiver, and such claim for the amount allowed by the receiver may be acted upon by the said court as other claims. In case any protest by any taxpayer of said city or town be filed against any claim filed in said court, together with a bond of sufficient sureties, to be approved by said court, that he will pay all costs of suit in said case claimant establishes his claim in full, in any state court in which he may sue thereon, then such district court shall refuse to approve such claim until it shall have been established by judgment, recovered thereon in a state court of competent jurisdiction; and such suit to establish such claim, or any claim disallowed in part or in whole, may be brought against the receiver, who shall make all legal defenses against such claim; but the court trying said claim is hereby authorized to hear and consider any material defense that may be, or may have been, urged against said claim, except that of limitation, though such claim, prior thereto, may have been reduced to judgment, but such judgment shall be considered, upon such trial as prima facie evidence of the justness of such claim. Any judgment recovered against such receiver upon a claim against such city or town shall be allowed by the receiver and approved by the district court wherein the receivership is pending; but, in all suits upon claims wherein protest and bond were filed in the district court, the claimant shall be liable for the costs of the suit, unless he recovers judgment for the full amount for which he asked the approval of the said district court; and, in suits upon claims rejected in part by the receiver, the claimant shall be liable for the costs of the suit, unless he establishes his claim for a greater amount than was allowed by the receiver. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1083. Limitation not to run, when.—Limitations shall not run, begin to run, or be plead against any claim against such city or town, at any time prior to six months after the appointment of such receiver. [Id. sec. 3.]
Art. 1084. No receiver for corporation dissolved, when, etc.—No receiver shall be appointed for any such city or town whose corporate existence was dissolved prior to July 17, 1905, where the application therefor was not filed in said court within two years from and after July 10, 1905. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1085. No suit to be brought on protested claims, after what time.—No suit shall be brought against such receiver upon any claim, against the allowance of which a protest has been filed as herein provided for, at any time after six months from the date of filing such protest, nor after the expiration of six months from the date of the disallowance of any such claim, in whole or in part, where the claim has not been filed in the district court, after such disallowance as hereinbefore provided. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1086. Payment of claims, and priority; sale of property in hands of receiver.—It shall be the duty of the district court of the county in which such town or city is situated, and in which such receivership is pending, to provide for the payment of all claims legally established against such city or town, and to determine the priority of any claims, and to order the sale of all property in the hands of the receiver subject to sale for such purpose, and to direct such receiver to pay such claims. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1086a. Court to levy tax, when, etc.—In case the money and proceeds of property are insufficient to pay such indebtedness, then it shall be the duty of said court, at the request of any creditor, at the first regular term of said court in each year, to levy a tax upon all the property and real and personal estate, situated within the limits of said city or town, as previously incorporated, on the first day of the preceding January, not exempt from taxation under the constitution and laws of this state, sufficient to discharge the indebtedness, but not to exceed the rate allowed by existing law for such purposes in incorporated cities and towns. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1087. County assessor and collector to assess and collect tax; compensation.—Whenever the district court, having jurisdiction in the premises, has heretofore ordered, or may hereafter order, the assessment and collection of taxes for the payment of the indebtedness of such town or city, it shall be the duty of the county tax assessor for the county in which such town or city is situated to assess the taxes so ordered in like manner as taxes in rural school districts; and it shall be the duty of the county tax collector for such county to collect such taxes in like manner as taxes in rural school districts; provided, that this article shall not repeal any part of articles 1081 and 1082. For the services rendered under this article the assessor and collector shall receive the same compensation as for like services for the assessment and collection of taxes in rural school districts; and it shall be the duty of said collector to pay such taxes, when collected, to the receiver of such city or town. [Acts 1905, p. 327. Acts 1909, p. 68.]

Art. 1088. Suits by receiver against delinquent taxpayers.—Suits may be brought by the receiver against delinquents, and a lien shall exist upon all property for such taxes, the same as though the corporate existence of such city or town had never been abolished, and such levy and assessment had been made by its council and assessor. [Acts 1905, p. 327, sec. 4.]

Art. 1089. Compensation of receivers.—Receivers appointed under the provisions of this chapter shall receive such compensation as may be allowed by the court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1090. Receivers' compensation and costs to be prior claims.—The compensation of the receiver, together with all court costs and expenses, shall constitute a prior claim against such city or town, and shall be first paid out of any money on hand or collected. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1091. Claims paid pro rata according to priority.—In case of taxation, the money collected each year shall be paid pro rata upon all claims according to their priorities, until all claims established and all costs and expenses are fully paid. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1092. Balance turned over to trustees, etc., of public schools.—On final settlement of such receivership, any money or property left on hand shall be turned over to the trustees or other officers in charge of the public free school situated in said city or town for the benefit of such school. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1093. [617e] Public free school management, etc.—Where the public free schools of any such city or town are under the management of trustees appointed or elected by the voters of the city or town, or by the city or town council, at the time its corporation is abolished under the provisions of this chapter, such trustees shall have the management of said schools for the remainder of the term for which they were appointed or elected, subject to the supervision of the commissioners' court, unless such city or town shall sooner become incorporated for school purposes only. [Acts 1895, p. 166.]

Art. 1094. [617f] Collection of municipal or school taxes.—All taxes for municipal or school purposes which shall have been levied at the date of abolition of such corporation, and which shall have not been paid, shall be collected by the collector of the county in the same manner provided by law for the collection of state and county taxes, and paid into the county treasury; but the portion of such taxes levied for the purpose of maintaining the public free schools of such city or town shall be paid over to the trustees of public free schools of said city or town and applied by them to the purposes for which they were levied.

Art. 1095. [617g] Public buildings of abolished corporations.—When any corporation is abolished under the provisions of this chapter, and shall at the time of such abolitionment own any public buildings, public parks, public works or other property, and the same shall not have been sold or disposed of as provided in this chapter, the same shall be managed and controlled by the commissioners' court of such county for the purposes to which same were originally used and intended; and, for this purpose, the commissioners' court shall have and exercise, with reference thereto, the powers originally conferred by charter upon the mayor and aldermen of such city.

Art. 1096. [615] [540] Corporation may be abolished, how.—When twenty-five of the qualified voters of any incorporated town or village shall desire the abolishment of such corporation they may petition the county judge to that effect, who shall thereupon order an election to be held in such town or village, as in the case of its incorporation; and, if there be a majority of the voters of said corporation, voting at such election in favor of abolishing such corporation, the county judge shall declare the corporation abolished, and enter an order to that effect upon the minutes of the commissioners' court; and, from and after the date of such order, the said corporation shall cease to exist; provided, nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to repeal or otherwise affect any laws now upon the statutes of this state providing for the incorporation of towns and villages for school purposes; said towns and villages having not less than two hundred inhabitants. [Acts 1897, p. 194.]

Applies only to incorporation under general laws.—This article applies only to those towns which had been incorporated and organized under the general laws of the state enacted for that purpose and not to a town organized under a special charter granted by the legislature. Ex parte Cross, 44 Cr. R. 376, 71 S. W. 289.

Abolished by failure to elect officers.—See notes under Art. 1047.
CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

CITIES HAVING MORE THAN 5,000 INHABITANTS—ADOPTION AND AMENDMENT OF CHARTER

Art. 1096a. May adopt or amend charter; election; limitations of charter and ordinances; taxation; debts.—That cities having more than five thousand inhabitants may, by a majority vote of the qualified voters of said city, at an election held for that purpose, adopt or amend their charters, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by the legislature, and providing that no charter or any ordinance passed under said charter shall contain any provision inconsistent with the constitution of the state, or of the general laws enacted by the legislature of this state, said cities may levy, assess and collect such taxes as may be authorized by law, or by their charters; but no tax for any purpose shall ever be lawful for any one year, which shall exceed two and one-half per cent. of the taxable property of such city, and no debt shall ever be created by any city, unless at the same time provision be made to assess and collect annually a sufficient sum to pay the interest thereon and creating a sinking fund of at least two per cent. thereon; and providing further that no city charter shall be altered, amended or repealed oftener than every two years. [Acts 1913, p. 307, sec. 1.]

Art. 1096b. Commission to frame new charter; submission to voters; submission of charter; submission of amendments, etc.—The legis­lative or governing authority of any incorporated city, having more than five thousand inhabitants may, by a two-thirds vote of its mem­bers, or upon petition of ten per cent. of the qualified voters of said city, shall provide by ordinance for the submission of the question, “Shall a commission be chosen to frame a new charter?” The ordinance providing for the submission of such question shall require that it be sub­mitted at the next regular municipal election, if one should be held, not less than thirty nor more than ninety days after the passage of said ordinance; otherwise it shall provide for the submission of the question at a special election to be called and held not less than thirty days, nor more than ninety days, after the passage of said ordinance and the pub­lication thereof in some newspaper published in said city. The ballot containing such question shall bear no party designation, and provision shall be made thereon for the election from the city at large of a charter commission of not less than fifteen members or more than one member for each three thousand inhabitants, provided, that a majority of the qualified voters, voting on such question shall have voted in the affirmative. The charter so framed by said commission shall be submitted to the qualified voters of said city at an election to be held at a time fixed by the charter commission not less than forty days nor more than ninety days after the completion of the work of the charter commission; provi­sion for which shall be made by the legislative or governing authority of the city insofar as not prescribed by general law. Not less than thirty days prior to such election the legislative or governing authority of said city shall cause the city clerk or city secretary to mail a copy of the proposed charter to each qualified voter in said city as appears from the tax collector's rolls for the year ending January 31st, preceding said election. If such proposed charter is approved by a majority of the qualified voters, voting at said election, it shall become the charter of said city until amended or repealed; provided, that in preparing the charter, the commission shall, as far as practicable, segregate each subject so that the voter may vote "Yes" or "No" on the same. Provided, that where the legislative or governing authority of any city, or where any mass meeting has selected a charter committee, or charter commission, or where the mayor of any city has appointed a charter committee which has proceeded with the formation of a charter for said city, the provisions of this section as to the selection of the charter commission shall not apply to the first charter election to be held in said city under the terms of this Act. No charter shall be considered adopted until the votes have been counted and an official order entered upon the records of said city by the legislative or governing authority of such city declaring the same adopted. When the legislative or governing authority of any city of more than five thousand inhabitants deems it preferable to submit amendments to any existing charter and in the absence of a petition hereinafter provided for, said legislative or governing authority may, on its own motion, and shall upon the petition of at least ten per cent. of the qualified voters of said city submit any proposed amendment or amendments to such charter; provided, that the ordinance providing for the submission of any proposed amendment or amendments shall require that it, or they, be submitted at the next regular municipal election, if one shall be held, not less than thirty nor more than ninety days after the passage of said ordinance; otherwise it shall provide for the submission of the amendment or amendments at a special election to be called and held not less than thirty nor more than ninety days after the passage of said ordinance, and the publication thereof in some newspaper published in said city. The legislative or governing authority of said city shall cause the city clerk or city secretary to mail a copy of the proposed amendment or amendments to every qualified voter in said city as appears from the tax collector's rolls for the year ending January 31st, preceding said election. Every such proposed amendment or amendments, if approved by the majority of the qualified voters voting at said election, shall become a part of the charter of said city. Each and every amendment or amendments submitted must contain only one subject and in preparing the ballot for such amendment or amendments, it shall be done in such a manner that the voter may vote "Yes" or "No" on any one amendment or amendments, without voting "Yes" or "No" on all of said amendments; and provided that no amendment or amendments shall be considered adopted until the votes have been counted and an official order has been entered upon the records of said city by the legislative or governing authority of such city, declaring the same adopted. Provided, that no ordinance shall be passed submitting an amendment or amendments until twenty days' notice has been given of such intention by publication for ten days in some newspaper published in said city. By "twenty days" is meant from the first date said notice is published.

Provided, that nothing in this Act shall prevent the qualified voters of any city of over five thousand inhabitants from adopting any charter or amendment thereto, and at the same time electing officers under such charter or amendment. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 1096c. Mayor or chief executive to certify copy of adopted charter or amendments to secretary of state; record; judicial notice; cities may sue without security for cost; may appeal without bond.—That, upon the adoption of any such charter or any amendment to any existing charter by the qualified voters, as provided in section 1 of this Act [1096a], it shall be the duty of the mayor or chief executive officer exercising like or similar powers of any such city, as soon as practicable, after the adoption of any such charter or amendment, to certify to the secretary of state an authenticated copy, under the seal of this city, showing the approval by the qualified voters of any such charter or amendment; and the secretary of state shall thereupon file and record the same in a separate book to be kept in his office for such purpose; provided that the secretary of state shall not be allowed to charge any greater fee for the recording of any such charter or amendment than fifteen cents (15c) per hundred words, provided such fee shall not be less than two dollars ($2.00). That it shall be the duty of the city secretary of any such city or other officer exercising like or similar powers, upon the adoption and approval of any such charter, any amendment thereof by the qualified voters as herein provided, to record at length upon the records of the city, in a separate book to be kept in his office for such purpose, any such charter, or amendment so adopted. That, when said charter or any amendment thereof shall be recorded as herein above provided for, it shall be deemed a public act and all courts shall take judicial notice of same and no proofs shall be required of same. That all cities may institute and prosecute suit without giving security for cost, and may appeal from judgments without giving supersedeas or cost bond. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1096d. Full power of local self government; enumerated powers.—That by the provisions of this Act it is contemplated to bestow upon any city adopting the charter or amendment hereunder the full power of local self government, and among the other powers that may be exercised by any such city, the following are hereby enumerated for greater certainty:

The creation of a commission, aldermanic or other form of government; the creation of offices, the manner and mode of selecting officers and prescribing their qualifications, duties, compensation and tenure of office.

The power to fix the boundary limits of said city, to provide for the extension of said boundary limits and the annexation of additional territory lying adjacent to said city, according to such rules as may be provided by said charter.

To hold by gift, deed, devise or otherwise any character of property, including any charitable or trust fund; to plead and be impleaded in all courts, and to act in perpetual succession as a body politic.

To provide that no public property or any other character of property owned or held by said city shall be subject to any execution of any kind or nature.

To provide that no fund of the city shall be subject to garnishment, and the city shall never be required to answer in any garnishment proceedings.

To provide for the exemption from liability on account of any claim for damages to any person or property, or to fix such rules and regulations governing the city's liability as may be deemed advisable.

To provide for the levying of any general or special ad valorem tax for any purpose not inconsistent with the constitution of the state.

To provide for the mode and method of assessing taxes, both real and personal, against any person and corporation, including the right to assess the franchise of any public corporation using and occupying the public streets or grounds of the city separately from the tangible property of such corporation.

To provide for the collection of all taxes, including the right to impose penalties for delinquent taxes.

The power to control and manage the finances of any such city; to prescribe its fiscal year and fiscal arrangements; the power to issue bonds upon the credit of the city for the purpose of making permanent public improvements or for other public purposes in the amount and to the extent provided by such charter, and consistent with the constitution of the state; provided, that said bonds shall have been first authorized by a majority vote cast by the duly qualified property taxpaying voters voting at an election held for that purpose. Thereafter all such bonds shall be submitted to the attorney general for his approval and the comptroller for registration, as provided by the state law, provided that any such bonds, after approval, may be issued by the city, either optional or serial or otherwise as may be deemed advisable by the governing authority. That, whenever any city has heretofore been authorized, under any special charter, creating such city, to issue any bonds by the terms of such charter, the provisions of this Act shall not be construed to interfere with the issuance of any such bonds under the provisions of any charter under which such bonds were authorized.

To have the exclusive right to own, erect, maintain and operate water works and water works system for the use of any city and its inhabitants, to regulate the same and to have power to prescribe rates for water furnished and to acquire by purchase, donation or otherwise suitable grounds within and without the limits of the city on which to erect any such works and the necessary right of way, and to do and perform whatsoever may be necessary to operate and maintain the said water works or water works system and to compel the owners of all property and the agents of such owners or persons in control thereof to pay all charges for water furnished upon such property and to fix a lien upon such property for any such charges. To provide that all receipts from the water works may, in its discretion, constitute a separate or sacred fund, which shall be used for no other purpose than the extension, improvement, operation, maintenance, repair and betterment of said water works system or water works supply, and to provide for the pledging of any such receipts and revenues for the purpose of making of any of such improvements, and the payment of the principal and providing an interest and sinking fund for any bonds issued therefor, under such regulations as may be provided by the charter adopted by such city.

To prohibit the use of any street, alley, highway or grounds of the city by any telegraph, telephone, electric light, street railway, interurban railway, steam railway, gas company, or any other character of public utility without first obtaining the consent of the governing authorities expressed by ordinance and upon paying such compensation as may be prescribed and Upon such condition as may be provided for by any such ordinance. To determine, fix and regulate the charges, fares, or rates of any person, firm or corporation enjoying or that may enjoy the franchise or exercising any other public privilege in said city, and to prescribe the kind of service to be furnished by such person, firm or corporation, and the manner in which it shall be rendered, and from time to time alter or change such rules, regulations and compensation; provided, that in adopting such regulations and in fixing or changing such compensation or determining the reasonableness thereof, no stock or bonds authorized or issued by any corporation enjoying the franchise shall be considered unless proof that the same have been actually issued by the corporation for money paid and used for the development of the corporate property, labor done or property actually received in accordance with the laws and constitution of the state applicable thereto. That, in order to ascertain all facts necessary for a proper understanding of what is or should be a reasonable rate or regulation, the governing authority shall have full power to inspect the books and compel attendance of witnesses for such purpose.

To buy, own, construct within or without the city limits and to maintain and operate a system or systems, of gas, or electric lighting plant, telephones, street railways, sewage plants, fertilizing plants, abattoir, municipal railway terminals, docks, wharfs, ferries, ferry landings, loading and unloading devices and shipping facilities, or any other public ser-v ce or public utility, and to demand and receive compensation for service furnished for private purposes or otherwise, and to exercise the right of eminent domain as hereinafter provided for the appropriation of lands, rights of way or anything whatsoever that may be proper and necessary to efficiently carry out said objects. That any city shall have the power to condemn the property of any person, firm or corporation now conducting any such business and for the purpose of operating and maintaining any such public utilities, and for the purpose of distributing such service throughout the city or any portion thereof; provided that any city may adopt by its charter such other rules and regulations as it may deem advisable for the acquiring and operation of any such public utilities.

To manufacture its own electricity, gas or anything else that may be needed or used by the public; to purchase and make contracts with any person or corporation for the purchasing of gas, electricity, oil or any other commodity or article used by the public and to sell the same to the public upon such terms as may be provided by the charter.

To have the power to appropriate private property for public purposes whenever the governing authorities shall deem it necessary and to take any private property within or without the city limits for any of the following purposes, to-wit: city halls, police stations, jails, calaboose, fire stations, libraries, school houses, high school buildings, academies, hospitals, sanitariums, auditoriums, market houses, reformatories, abattoirs, railroad terminals, docks, wharves, warehouses, ferries, ferry landings, elevators, loading and unloading devices, shipping facilities, piers, streets, alleys, parks, highways, boulevards, speedways, play grounds, sewer systems, storm sewers, sewage disposal plants, drains, filtering beds and emptying grounds for sewer systems, reservoirs, water sheds, water supply sources, wells, water and electric light systems, gas plants, cemeteries, crematories, prison farms, and to acquire lands within and without the city for any other municipal purposes that may be deemed advisable. That the power herein granted for the purpose of acquiring private property shall include the power of the improvement and enlargement of the water works, including water supply, riparian rights, stand pipes, water sheds, the construction of supply reservoirs, parks, squares and pleasure grounds, public wharves and landing places for steamers and other crafts, and for the purpose of straightening or improving the channel of any stream, branch or drain, or the straightenning or widening or extension of any street, alley, avenue or boulevard.
That, in all cases where the city seeks to exercise the power of eminent domain, it shall be controlled, as nearly as practicable, by the law governing the condemnation of property of railroad corporations in this state, the city taking the position of the railroad corporations in any such case; that the power of eminent domain hereby conferred shall include the right of the governing authority, when so expressed, to take the fee in the lands so condemned and such power and authority shall include the right to condemn public property for such purposes.

To have exclusive dominion, control and jurisdiction in, over and under the public streets, avenues, alleys, highways and boulevards, and public grounds of such city and to provide for the improvement of any public street, alleys, highways, avenues or boulevards by paving, raising grading, filling, or otherwise improving the same and to charge the cost of making such improvements against the abutting property, by fixing a lien against the same, and a personal charge against the owner thereof according to an assessment specially levied therefor in an amount not to exceed the special benefit any such property received in enhanced value by reason of making any such improvement and to provide for the issuance of assignable certificates covering the payments for said cost, provided that the charter shall apportion the cost to be paid by the property owners and the amount to be paid by the city, and provided further, that all street railways, steam railways, or other railways, shall pay the cost of improving the said street between the rails and tracks of any such railway companies and for two feet on each side thereof. The city shall have the power to provide for the construction and building of sidewalks and charge the entire cost of construction of said sidewalks, including the curb, against the owner of abutting property, and to make a special charge against the owner for such cost and to provide by special assessment a lien against such property for such cost; to have the power to provide for the improvement of any such sidewalk or the construction of any such curb by penal ordinance and to declare defective sidewalks to be a public nuisance. That the power herein granted for making street improvements and assessing the cost by special assessment in the manner herein stated shall not be construed to prevent any city from adopting any other method or plan for the improvement of its streets, sidewalks, alleys, curbs or boulevards, as it may deem advisable by its charter.

To open, extend, straighten, widen any public street, alley, avenue or boulevard and for such purpose to acquire the necessary lands and to appropriate the same under the power of eminent domain and to provide that the cost of improving any such street, alley, avenue or boulevard by opening, extending and widening the same shall be paid by the owners of property specially benefited whose property lies in the territory of such improvement and to provide that the cost shall be charged by special assessment and that a personal charge shall be made against any owner for the amount due by him and to provide for the appointment by the county judge or other officer exercising like or similar powers of three special commissioners for the purpose of condemning the said lands and for the purpose of apportioning the said cost, which apportionment of said cost shall be specially assessed by the governing authorities against the owners and the property of the owners lying in the territory so found to be specially benefited in enhanced value by the said special commissioners. That the city shall pay such portion of such cost as may be determined by the said special commissioners, provided the same shall never exceed one-third the cost and the property owners and their property shall be liable for the balance of the same as may be apportioned by said commissioners. That the city may issue assignable certificates for the payment of any such cost against such property owners and may provide for the payments of any such cost in deferred payments, to bear interest at such rate as may be prescribed by the charter not to exceed eight per cent. That the city may adopt any other method for the opening, straightening, widening or extending of its streets as herein provided for as may be deemed advisable and charge the cost of same against the property and the owner specially benefited in enhanced value and lying in the territory of said improvement that its charter may provide. That the authority to adopt any other method shall include the manner of appointing commissioners, the manner of giving notice and the manner of fixing assessments or providing for the payment for any such improvement.

To control, regulate and remove all obstructions or other encroachments or incumbrances on any public street, alley or ground and to narrow, alter, widen or straighten any such streets, alleys, avenues or boulevards and to vacate and abandon and close any such streets, alleys, avenues or boulevards, and to regulate and control the moving of buildings or other structures over and upon the streets or avenues of such city.

That each city shall have the power to define all nuisances and prohibit the same within the city and outside the city limits for a distance of five thousand feet; to have power to police all parks or grounds, speedways, or boulevards owned by said city and lying outside of said city; to prohibit the pollution of any stream, drain or tributaries thereof which constitutes the source of water supply of any city and to provide for policing the same as well as to provide for the protection of any water sheds and the policing of same; to inspect dairies, slaughter pens and slaughter houses inside or outside the limits of the city from which meat or milk from same is furnished to the inhabitants of the city.

To license, operate and control the operation of all character of vehicles using the public streets, including motorcycles, automobiles or like vehicles, and to prescribe the speed of the same, the qualification of the operator of the same, and the lighting of the same by night and to provide for the giving of bond or other security for the operation of the same.

To regulate, license and fix the charges of fares made by any person owning, operating or controlling any vehicle of any character used for the carrying of passengers for hire or the transportation of freight for hire on the public streets and alleys of the city.

To provide for the establishment of districts within said city wherein saloons may be located or maintained and wherein spirituous, vinous and malt liquors may be sold to be drunk on the premises, and to prohibit the sale of such liquors or the location of such saloons without such defined district, to regulate the location and control the conduct of theaters, moving picture shows, ten pin alleys, vaudeville shows, pool halls, and all places of public amusements.

To license any lawful business, occupation or calling that is susceptible to the control of the police power.

To license, regulate control or prohibit the erection of signs or bill boards as may be provided by charter or ordinance.

To provide for the establishment and designation of fire limits and to prescribe the kind and character of buildings or structures or improvements to be erected therein, and to provide for the erection of fire proof buildings within certain limits, and to provide for the condemnation of dangerous structures or buildings or dilapidated buildings or buildings calculated to increase the fire hazard and the manner of their removal or destruction.

To provide for police and fire departments.

To provide for a health department and the establishment of rules and regulations protecting the health of the city and the establishment of quarantine stations, and pest houses, emergency hospitals and hospitals, and to provide for the adoption of necessary quarantine laws to protect the inhabitants against contagious or infectious diseases.

To provide for a sanitary sewer system and to require property owners to make connections with such sewers with their premises and to provide for fixing a lien against any property owner’s premises who fails or refuses to make sanitary sewer connections and to charge the cost against the said owner and make it a personal liability. Also to provide for fixing penalties for a failure to make sanitary sewer connections.

The power to require water works corporations, gas companies, street car companies, telephone companies, telegraph companies, electric light companies, or other companies or individuals enjoying a franchise now or hereafter from the city to make and furnish extensions of their service to such territory as may be required by the charter.

Provided, that in all cities of over twenty-five thousand inhabitants, the city commissioners, or city council, or the governing board or authorities of any such city, when the public service of such city may require the same, shall have the right and power to compel any street railway or other public utility corporation to extend its lines or service into any section of said city not to exceed two miles, all told, in any one year.

To provide for the establishment of public schools and public school system in any such city and to have exclusive control over same and to provide such regulations and rules governing the management of same as may be deemed advisable; to levy and collect the necessary taxes, general or special, for the support of such public schools and public school system.

That, whenever any city may determine to acquire any public utility using and occupying its streets, alleys, and avenues as hereinbefore provided, and it shall be necessary to condemn the said public utility, the city may obtain funds for the purpose of acquiring the said public utility and paying the compensation therefor, by issuing bonds or notes or other evidence of indebtedness and shall secure the same by fixing a lien upon the said properties constituting the said public utility so acquired by condemnation or purchase or otherwise; that said security shall apply alone to the said properties so pledged; that such further regulations may be provided by any charter for the proper financing or raising the revenues necessary for obtaining any public utilities and providing for the fixing of said security.

To enforce all ordinances necessary to protect health, life and property, and to prevent and summarily abate and remove all nuisances and to preserve and enforce the good government, order and security of the city and its inhabitants, and as incident to giving effect to the provisions hereof article 812 of the Penal Code of the state of Texas is hereby amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

Art. 812 [Penal Code]. If any person shall willfully obstruct or injure, or cause to be obstructed or injured in any manner whatsoever, any public road or highway, or any street or alley in any incorporated town or city, or any public bridge or causeway, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding two hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—The above article of the Penal Code is inserted for the reason that it seems to be inseparable from the texture of this act.

Art. 1096e. Effect of enumeration of powers.—The enumeration of powers hereinabove made shall never be construed to preclude, by implication or otherwise, any such city from exercising the powers incident to the enjoyment of local self-government, provided, that such powers shall not be inhibited by the constitution of the state. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1096f. Former powers preserved, etc.—All powers heretofore granted any city by general law or special charter are hereby preserved to each of said cities, respectively, and the power so conferred upon such cities, either by special or general law, is hereby granted to such cities when embraced in and made a part of the charter adopted by such city; and provided, that, until the charter of such city as the same now exists is amended and adopted, it shall be and remain in full force and effect. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1096g. Vested property, actions, rights of action, etc., saved; special assessments, etc.—That the adoption of any charter hereunder or any amendment thereof shall never be construed to destroy any property, action, rights of action, claims and demands of any nature or kind whatever vested in the city under and by virtue of any charter heretofore existing or otherwise accruing to the city, but all such rights of action, claims or demands shall vest in and inure to the city and to any persons asserting any such claims against the city as fully and completely as though the said charter or amendment had not been adopted hereunder. That the adoption of any charter or amendment hereunder shall never be construed to affect the right of the city, to collect by special assessment any special assessment heretofore levied under any law or special charter for the purpose of paving or improving any street, highway, avenue or boulevard of any city, or for the purpose of opening, extending, widening, straightening or otherwise improving the same, nor affect any right of any contract or obligation existing between the city and any person, firm or corporation for the making of any such improvements and for the purpose of collecting any such special assessment and carrying out of any such contract, the provisions of all charters shall be continued in force. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1096h. Improvement districts, improvements, bonds, etc.; personal charges, liens and special assessments, etc.—Any such city shall have the power to create and establish improvement districts, to levy, straighten, widen, enclose or otherwise improve any river, creek, bayou, stream, or other body of water or streets or alleys, and to drain, grade, fill and otherwise protect and improve the territory within its limits, and shall have the power to issue bonds for making such improvements, such improvement districts to be created and established agreeably to the general laws of the state providing for the creation of such improvement districts and the issuance of such bonds shall be governed by the powers a city possesses in the matter of issuing bonds.

Any such city shall further have the power to straighten, widen, levy, enclose, or otherwise improve any river, creek, bayou, stream, or other body of water, or streets, or alleys, and to drain, grade, fill and otherwise protect and improve the territory within its limits and to provide that the cost of making any such improvements shall be paid for by the property owners owning property in the territory specially benefited in enhanced value by reason of making any such improvements and a personal charge shall be made against any such property owners as well as a lien shall be fixed by special assessment against any such property, and the city may issue assignable certificates or negotiable certificates, as it deems advisable, covering such cost and may provide for the payment of such cost in deferred payments and fix the rate of interest not to exceed eight per cent., and pay [may] provide for the appointment of special commissioners or otherwise for the making and levying of said special assessment or may provide that the same shall be done by the governing authorities and that such rules and regulations may be adopted for a hearing and other proceedings had as may be provided by said charter. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1096i. Penalties for obstruction or incumbrance of streets, etc.; street franchises; submission to voters.—Any such charter may provide a different penalty for the obstruction or incumbrance of its streets, alleys, avenues and highways from that provided by the state law, and provided, further, that no ordinance shall be in conflict with the state law or provide a penalty in conflict therewith save and except in the case of the obstruction and incumbrance of the public streets, alleys, avenues and boulevards of said city.

No charter or any amendment thereof framed or adopted under the provisions of this Act, shall ever grant to any person, firm or corporation any right or franchise to use or occupy the public streets, avenues, alleys or grounds of any such city, but the governing authority of any such city shall have the exclusive power and authority to make any such grant of any such franchise or right to use and occupy the public streets, avenues, alleys and grounds of the city; provided, that if at any time before any ordinance granting a franchise takes effect, a petition shall be submitted to the governing authority signed by five hundred of the bona fide qualified voters of the city, then the governing authority shall submit the question of granting such franchise to a vote of the qualified voters of the city, at the next succeeding general election; provided such election shall occur within twelve months from the date such ordinance takes effect; that, if such election shall not occur within the said twelve months then said ordinance may be submitted if petitioned therefore as herein provided for at a special election to be called by the governing authorities therefor; provided, further that in case said ordinance is submitted at any of said elections, notice thereof shall be published at least twenty days successively in a daily newspaper published in said city prior to the holding of said election. The ballot used at said elections shall briefly describe the franchise to be voted on and the terms thereof and shall contain the words “For the granting of a franchise” and “Against the granting of the franchise.” That if a majority of those voting at said election shall vote in favor of granting a franchise the governing body upon canvassing the returns shall so declare and said franchise shall take effect in accordance with its terms, provided, further, however, that no franchise shall extend beyond the period fixed for its termination. [Id. sec. 9.]
COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS

Art. 1097. Appointment of commissioners and terms of office.—The governor of the state of Texas is hereby authorized to name, appoint, and commission one or more persons in each or any of the other states of the United States, the District of Columbia, or in each or any of the territories of the United States, or in each or any foreign country, upon the recommendation of the executive authority of said states, District of Columbia, or territories or foreign country, as he may deem expedient, which commissioners shall hold office for two years or until their successors are qualified, and shall have authority to take the acknowledgments and proofs of the execution of any deed, mortgage, or other conveyance of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, and also to take the privy examination, acknowledgment and declaration of married women as to all such instruments when executed by them. [Acts of 1885, p. 98.]

Art. 1098. Oath of commissioner.—Every commissioner, appointed as aforesaid, before he shall proceed to perform any duty under and by virtue of this title, shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, before the clerk of any court of record in the city or county in which such commissioner may reside, well and faithfully to execute and perform all the duties of such commissioner, under and by virtue of this title, or the laws of this state; which oath or affirmation, certified to by the clerk, under his hand and seal of office, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state in this state. [Act May 8, 1846, sec. 4. P. D. 3765.]

Art. 1099. Commissioner may administer oaths or affirmations; their effect.—Every commissioner appointed by virtue of this title shall have full power and authority to administer an oath or affirmation to any person who shall be willing and desirous to make such oath or affirmation before him; and such oath or affirmation, made before such commissioner, shall be, and is hereby declared to be, as good and effectual, to all intents and purposes, as if taken by any officer in this state competent to take the same. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 3764.]

Art. 1100. Acknowledgments thus taken; their force.—Any contract, letter of attorney, or other writing, to be used or recorded in this state, and such acknowledgment or proof taken or made in the manner directed by the laws of this state, and certified by any one of said commissioners, before whom the same shall be taken or made, under his seal—which certificate shall be indorsed on, or annexed to, said deed or instrument aforesaid—shall have the same effect, and be as good and valid in law for all purposes, as if the same had been made or taken as now required by law. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 3763.]

See Title 118, Chapter 2.
Art. 1101. Commissioners to take depositions.—
Every commissioner appointed under this title shall have power and authority to take depositions under a commission issued to him according to law, from any court in this state, to be used as evidence in any cause pending in a court of the same, when returned as prescribed by law. [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 3766.]

Art. 1102. Commissioners' seal.—Every commissioner under this title shall provide for himself a seal with a star of five points in the center, and the words, "Commissioner of the State of Texas," engraved thereon, which seal shall be used to certify all the official acts of such commissioner; and, without the impress of said seal upon any instrument, or to certify any act of such commissioner, said act shall have no validity in this state. [Act Dec. 31, 1861, p. 21, sec. 5. P. D.
3771.]

In general.—The seal engraved on a certificate of acknowledgment of a com-

1. Necessity of writing in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 3965.

When land is purchased on a credit, and a deed made to the purchaser which is intended by the parties to vest the legal and equitable title in the purchaser, a subsequent payment of the purchase-money by a third person does not vest the title in him who pays it, in the absence of written memoranda, signed by the parties, evidencing their int-tention, and creates no resulting trust, and is within the statute of frauds. Williams v. County of San Saba, 59 T. 44.

Certificates for land after location and survey must be conveyed as real estate. Grossbeck v. Bodman, 73 T. 287; 11 S. W. 322; Utzfield v. Bodman, 76 T. 359; 13 S. W. 478.

A deed in writing is not essential to the transfer of a pre-emption claim; a verbal sale to one who immediately becomes the occupant is sufficient. Hickman v. Withers, 83 T. 575; 19 S. W. 138.

An equitable interest in land can be divested by an instrument in writing only. Citrus v. Langford (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 325.

A conveyance of land may be established by circumstantial evidence. Thompson v. Dutton, 96 T. 205; 71 S. W. 544.

While real estate may be devised only by a written will, it is nevertheless true that in the construction of a will the broadest liberty is allowed in ascertaining the intention of the testator, which when ascertained will be given effect without regard to the form of expression. The statute applies to deeds and in construing them the legal effect of the language used is the question. Gilley v. Lovenberg (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 84; 85.

The classes of contracts regulated by the statute of frauds are not declared by the statute to be illegal and void. It merely provides a means of successful resistance in case the statute is not complied with. It is not the compliance with the statute which constitutes the contract. The statute presupposes its legality, the enforcement of which is only suspended by the statute until its provisions are satisfied. This statute in effect declares that no real estate shall be conveyed except by an instrument in writing; but as limited by construction there are means of conveyance recognized by the courts as lawful which are enforced. A. S. 599.

A parol agreement to execute and deliver a deed of trust is not subject to foreclosure as a mortgage under this article. Poarch v. Duncan, 41 C. A. 275; 91 S. W. 1110.

An equitable mortgage cannot be created by writing. Where a deed absolute in form was given as a mortgage to secure a note, it cannot pass the title to the mortgagee by the parties subsequently entering into an oral agreement that the mortgagee was to take the land for the debt and interest thereon. Uliman v. Dorsey, 46 C. A. 450; 102 S. W. 1162.

This article requires that the conveyance from one to another of any "estate of inheritance or freehold in lands" must be in writing. Allen v. Allen, 101 T. 362; 107 S. W. 528.

Under this article one who contracted to purchase land could only convey his equitable title arising from the contract by his written deed delivered to the grantee. Bush & Tillar v. O'Neal (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 242.

2. — Easement or license.—A continuing right to land and fasten a ferry boat to a land, whether denominated an easement or a license, cannot be conveyed except by writing, so as to bind the heirs of the owner of the land. Parsons v. Hunt, 95 T. 420; 84 S. W. 466.

An agreement such as constitutes a perpetual license in a building, and the land upon which it is located, is an estate of inheritance, that can only be created by writing. Adams v. Weir & Flagg (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 725.

An express grant or such use as implies a grant held necessary to establish an easement. Henslee v. Boyd, 45 C. A. 494; 107 S. W. 128.

A mere license or permission relating to real property is revoked by a conveyance by either licensor or licensee. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 253.

3. — Lease.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1114 and 1115.

A lease of the wife's separate property for a longer period than one year is under the statute a conveyance in which the wife is required to join to make it valid. Durity v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216; 70 S. W. 340.

A lease of lands for more than one year is a conveyance under this article. Starke v. Guffey Petroleum Co., 98 T. 542; 86 S. W. 3, 4 Ann. Cas. 1057.

The husband cannot rent the community homestead of himself and wife for a term of two years without executing a writing and having her sign and duly acknowledge the same. Such a lease executed by the husband alone is void. Haile v. Haile (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 435.

A parol lease by a wife of her separate property for a period of five years is invalid within this statute. Vaughn v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 171.

Where possession is taken and improvements made under a verbal gift of land the gift is valid; parol evidence of such a gift is sufficient to establish adverse possession. Shepard v. Galveston, H. & H. Ry. Co., 22 S. W. 267; 2 C. A. 535.

A gift or relinquishment of a life estate is a "freehold" within this article. Walls v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 63.

5. — Partition.—A verbal partition of land by a married woman is valid as if she were discover. Wardlow v. Miller, 69 T. 399; 6 S. W. 292; Ikard v. Thompson, 81 T. 283; 16 S. W. 191; Arnold v. Attaway (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 482.

A partition of land among joint tenants, some of whom are married women, is not within the statute and is valid. Aycock v. Kimbrooks, 71 T. 330; 12 S. W. 71; 10 Am. St. Rep. 745; Anderson v. Horn, 75 T. 675; 13 S. W. 24.

Where co-tenants execute a deed of partition, and one of them sells his property so partitioned to a third person, such person cannot claim priority of title with the other co-tenant. Illg v. De la Luz Garcia (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 857.

In an action to quiet title, held, that a parol agreement between executors of two estates, and a subsequent inventory and sale of an unlocated balance of a land certificate, operated as a partition of such certificate, and placed the title in the location made under it in one estate, and the unlocated balance in the other. Hall v. Reese's Heirs, 24 S. W. 521, 58 S. W. 974.

Parol agreement between owner of 310-acre tract of land and purchaser that 110 acres should be taken off south end of the tract held a valid agreement for partition. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 145, 66 S. W. 468.

A partition deed of community homestead property signed by a husband and wife held not defective because the wife's name did not appear in the body of the deed as太太 v. Herr, 28 C. A. 208, 55 S. W. 27.

A deed by a married woman, though not acknowledged, may be effective for the purpose of accomplishing a partition. Cowan v. Brett, 43 C. A. 565, 97 S. W. 520.

Conveyances of land held to show an agency to deduct from land sold previously. Whittaker v. Farris, 45 C. A. 378, 101 S. W. 456.

Where a tenant in common conveys a specific part of the property, not more than his share, it is a binding partition, if enough is left for the other's full share, and he acquires in such partition. Berryman v. McDonald, 49 C. A. 51, 107 S. W. 244.

A partition of land by one owner, without the consent of the other parties interested, cannot be sustained, unless it is shown that it is just and equitable. Turner v. Pope (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 420.

A conveyance by other than the owners, merely on their parol consent, held ineffective; there being nothing to constitute an estoppel. Kuteman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 842.

7. Power as conveyance.—A clause in a power of attorney, executed by a married woman, conveying an undivided half of her lands, and not to prevent the power opening a conveyance of the other half, held good. Garner v. Boyle, 97 T. 469, 79 S. W. 1066.

8. Authority of agent.—A power of attorney which authorizes an agent to sell lands designated as being “titles which were granted to citizens by the local authorities of the republic of Mexico” will support a conveyance under it by him, provided the land conveyed can be ascertained by reference to the titles thus described in the power. Dunnegan v. Butler, 25 T. 501.

A deed was executed perfect in every respect except that the name of the grantee was not inserted in the blank left for that purpose; at the same time the purchaser was verbally authorized by the vendor to fill the blank with his name, or that of any one to whom he might sell the land. Held, the verbal authority given to the vendee by the vendor to fill the blank with the name of the grantee, or with any other name, was sufficient. Threadgill v. Butler, 66 T. 598; McCown v. Wheeler, 20 T. 372; Viser v. Rice, 37 T. 132.

A sale of land by a unmarried attorney acting under power “to take possession of and to grant, sell and convey the same” is not rendered invalid by a sale made in absence of actual possession being taken of the land by the attorney; nor by the insertion of a clause of warranty which is not authorized by the power. The warranty only would be invalid; the deed would pass the title of the principal. Barnard v. Blum, 69 T. 608, 7 S. W. 98.

A power of attorney reciting, among other things, “and my said attorney is hereby empowered to locate any such certificate in my name, or sell and assign the same,” does not authorize the agent to locate a government pension certificate a good also to sell the land after such location. Mitchell v. McLaren (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 269.

Power of attorney authorizing agent to sell any and all of the principal's property, and sign and execute in the principal's name any and all instruments of writing, confers power to sell real estate. Gardiner v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 555.

A power of attorney “to buy and sell land, and to transact all business necessary in transaction of my affairs,” held to empower the attorney to convey land already owned by the principal. Texas Loan Agency v. Miller, 94 T. 484, 61 S. W. 477.

Under a power of attorney to demand and recover certain land and compromise with adverse claimants, as the principals might do if present, the agent may settle with an adverse claimant and execute a deed to complete such settlement. Wilcoxon v. Howard, 26 C. A. 559, 41 S. W. 902, 63 S. W. 938.

A power of attorney to sell real estate held not to authorize the agent to sell the property and defer certain payments until the determination of a suit between the grantor and grantee. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94.

A power of attorney, authorizing a sale for cash or notes, does not authorize the execution without consideration. Rogers v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 373.

A power of attorney executed by the widow of the sole owner of a firm authorizing conveyance of land belonging to the firm held to authorize a conveyance of the entire land, as against both the widow and her children. Clawson v. Williams (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1058.

Under a power to sell and convey a town block, the attorney could establish an alley through it as an incident to the sale of the land. Wiess v. Goodhue, 46 C. A. 142, 102 S. W. 792.
Title 24

CONVEYANCES

Art. 1108

In trespass to try title, a power of attorney to sell land "situated in... county, Tex." will not be assumed to convey the land in controversy, unless it appears the grantor owned other lands in the state. Teagarden v. Patten, 45 S. W. 571, 107 S. W. 903.

A power of attorney to sell land, granting full power to do with it as if it were the agent's own property, authorized a sale upon credit, and any disposition of the proceeds which would not invalidate the sale, as the purchaser could assume that under the power the agent could dispose of the proceeds as he desired. Neill v. Kleiber, 51 C. A. 552, 112 S. W. 694.

A power of attorney to fix an interest in land implies the authority to demand a deed to the land. City of Longview v. Capps (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 160.

9. — Termination of agency.—The power of a grantee to insert in the blank name or the name of another given by the grantor is coupled with an interest, and is irrevocable, and may be exercised after the sale of the land to another. McCown v. Wetherell, 36 S. W. 128; Roche, 33 T. 159; Threadgrill v. Roche, 33 T. 159.

No presumption from lapse of time exists that a power of attorney has been revoked. Link v. Page, 72 T. 592, 10 S. W. 699.

A contract to sell land made by an agent in the lifetime of his principal, and perfected after his death, is a valid execution of the power, and conveys the land. Chase v. Bank, 1 C. A. 595, 20 S. W. 1027.

A deed by an attorney, in fact delivered, after the death of the grantor, is inoperative. Kent v. Cecil (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 715.

A power of attorney authorizing an attorney to convey a wife's separate estate held not revoked by the death of the husband. Skirvin v. O'Brien, 43 C. A. 1, 95 S. W. 696.

An interest given to joint owners of land to authorize one owner of the same land to sell and convey it, which conveys to the attorney no interest in the land to be sold, is not coupled with an interest. Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.

Evidence that an attorney in fact had not complied with the terms of the powers, coupled with an interest, and had made misrepresentations to his principals, held sufficient to warrant a judgment canceling the powers of attorney. Whitman v. Aldrich (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 494.

Whereby one attorney for another executes a deed in his own name, the deed will be sustained if he had authority to execute it. Giddens v. Byers, 12 T. 75; Rogers v. Frost, 14 T. 267; Traxynam v. Jackson, 15 T. 176, 65 Am. Dec. 153; Daughtrey v. Knolle, 44 T. 450; Hough v. Hill, 47 T. 148.

A deed made by one properly authorized by power to convey the property will pass the title, although it may declare by its recitals that it was executed by virtue of a power contained in some other instrument which was invalid. Link v. Page, 72 T. 592, 10 S. W. 699.

The names of the grantors must be given in a conveyance under a power of attorney. McMuster v. Childress, 10 C. A. 92, 20 S. W. 543.

The act of the donee of a power of attorney is valid where the intention to act under the power is shown by the instrument or attendant circumstances. Hill v. Conrad, 91 T. 341, 43 S. W. 789; J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Hooks, 47 C. A. 565, 106 S. W. 696; Neill v. Kleiber, 51 C. A. 552, 112 S. W. 694.

Where an instrument or the attendant circumstances show that it was not the intention to execute the instrument pursuant to a power to do so, the instrument cannot be made valid by the execution of the power. Hill v. Conrad, 91 T. 341, 43 S. W. 789.

Where it is uncertain whether an act done was by virtue of a power conferred, the act will not be construed to be an execution of the power. Id.

Under authority to convey one-half of certain lands, including a section upon which was a town site, held that a conveyance by lot or by metes and bounds of a lot sold is authorized and effective where no other land had been conveyed at the date of the sale. Jones v. Gibbes, 18 C. A. 626, 48 S. W. 78.

Where one has no interest in land save under a power to sell, his deed in his own name, conveying his interest, passes the title of the owner. Hunter v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1080.

Where one, having authority to sell the lands of another under a recorded power, conveyed title to the grantee taking over his own debt, the grantee was not a purchaser, and the title was not valid. A person claiming title to real estate under a conveyance by an agent having power to sell, but who exceeds his authority by conveying the property for his own debt, acquires no title unless he is an innocent purchaser. Hunter v. Eastham, 95 T. 648, 69 S. W. 66.

A creditor of a corporation, in possession of land under an oral agreement between him and an agent of the corporation, held not entitled to hold the same as against a purchaser on foreclosure of a deed of trust. Clark v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 538.

A deed by an attorney in fact is in effect to convey title, although the power only authorizes the attorney to execute a quitclaim. Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 937.

The power of attorney which gave authority to execute a deed is admissible in favor of a person claiming thereunder. Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 693.

11. — What law governs.—Where a power of attorney not coupled with an interest was given in California with nothing in its terms to indicate where it was to be executed, and in an attempt to carry out the powers conferred land in Texas is sought to be sold, the law of Texas will control. Gilmer v. Veatch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.
12. Dedication, requisites of.—Dedication of land to public use, how shown. French v. Scheuber, 26 S. W. 183, 6 C. A. 617.

On an issue as to whether a park and lake had been dedicated to the public, the questions whether the public knew that the lake had been formed by the construction of a railway, or whether the city was bound by a deed of the owner to the railway company, 53 C. A. 771; City of Dallas v. D. C. C. R. Ry., 113 S. W. 619, 975; and certain other cases, were before the court. The rendition of certain property for taxation, and payment of taxes thereon by one who had described the property as a park on a plat and sold lots by reference to the plat, held not to have interfered with the dedication. Sanborn v. City of Amarillo, 42 C. A. 116, 113 S. W. 473.

A town authorized to locate a courthouse, clerk's office, and jail upon its public square held to have dedicated a site to the county for said buildings. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

The assertion and intent of the owner to appropriate land to a public use is sufficient to constitute a dedication and may be implied or expressed by deed. Menendez v. Poage, 55 C. A. 415, 118 S. W. 622; Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

Where a city exhausted its power to dedicate land to the county by the dedication of half a public square, its assent to the occupation of a part of the other half by the county held not a further dedication. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 128 S. W. 109, 128 S. W. 593.

The opening of an alley does not work a dedication unless it was opened for the benefit of the public. Davis v. Young (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1118.

For damages caused by the construction and operation of a railroad on a public street, the dedication of the street and its use as a recognized public street were sufficiently shown by the recorded map and the sale and conveyance of property with reference to such street. Beaumont & G. N. R. Co. v. Yarbrough (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 252.

13. Capacity to dedicate.—A tenant held without power to dedicate leased property to the public for a street. Cockrell v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 977.

14. Ratification.—Ratification by one holding a vendor's lien on land, of a dedication of a street thorough it, held as effective as though the dedication was made by him. City of Ft. Worth v. Cotti, 38 C. A. 117, 85 S. W. 926.

16. Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1791.

Land deeded subject to have street of neighboring town opened through it could not be taken for the opening of said street, as there was no dedication. Jefferson County v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 711.

Where a landowner lays out an addition to a city and files a plat showing streets and sells lots with reference thereto, title to the streets held to vest in the city. City of San Antonio v. Rowley, 48 C. S. 376, 106 S. W. 703.

The conveyance of land with reference to a recorded map on which a plot of ground is marked "park" does not amount to a dedication of such plot to the public or ratify a parcel of dedication by a former owner of which the grantor had no notice. Adoue & Lobit v. La Porte (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 134.

The act of an owner of land in selling lots on each side of a strip of land lying in extension of a street, while evidence tending to show implied dedication of the strip as a street, is not conclusive on that point. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

Where land is platted as a town site, and the owner conveys part of the lots, with reference to streets, alleys, and a public square an easement is created. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 862.

18. Acceptance.—To constitute a dedication there must be some act indicating, within a reasonable time, an acceptance of the dedication. Gilder v. City of Brehm, 67 T. 345, 3 S. W. 305; City of Galveston v. Williams, 69 T. 449, 6 S. W. 860; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Cuneo, 47 C. A. 622, 108 S. W. 714.

The act of dedication may be implied on the part of the city from acts clearly indicating a purpose to accept. Acceptance of the dedication on the part of the city might also be implied after continuous use by the public for such a period of time as would authorize the presumption of a grant, when adjacent improvements have been es-established with reference to the property as a street. The English rule that acceptance may be irrevocable and use by the public cannot be obtained in Texas as applicable to every case. The city never having marked the space claimed to have been dedicated as a street, delineated it on its maps as a street, or claimed it otherwise as such, an acceptance of the dedication could not be implied. Glider v. City of Brenham, 67 T. 345, 3 S. W. 399.

In an action where it appeared land was deeded subject to have street of neighboring town opened through it, and was occasionally used as public way, held, there was no acceptance of dedication of way by county. Jefferson County v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 711.

Where property is dedicated as a public street, the city's delay in accepting it does not revoke its right to use it as a public street, unless the occupants acquired title by limitation prior to Act July 4, 1887. Williams v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 681.

Where land has been dedicated to a city for street purposes, and the dedication has been duly accepted, failure or delay in completing the opening of such street will not defeat the dedication. City of Dallas v. Gibbs, 27 C. A. 275, 65 S. W. 83.

Where a street was dedicated to the public, the purchaser of property abutting thereon acquired a vested right to have it kept open, and no acceptance of the dedication by the corporation was necessary. Heard v. Connor (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 696.

Prior to acceptance by the municipality, a dedication of property as a street may be revoked by devoting the property to a private use. City of Houston v. Finnegan (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 470, unless the owner of platted land conveyed the same with reference to streets and alleys on the plat. City of Corsicana v. Zorn, 97 T. 317, 78 S. W. 924.

And a purchase of lots described by reference to a plat constitutes an acceptance of a public park designated on the plat. Sanborn v. City of Amarillo, 42 C. A. 116, 92 S. W. 473.

An acceptance of the dedication of streets by a city was sufficient, although not made until a number of years after the dedication. Krause v. El Paso (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 825.

The dedication of streets by plat was not affected by a failure of the city to open up all the streets delineated at one time. Id.

19. Recording.—It is not essential to a dedication of streets, alleys, and a public way, according to a town site map, that the map be made or recorded by the owner himself; it being sufficient that he recognize and approve it. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.

20. Estoppel.—A grantee of plaintiff's grantor held estopped, as against plaintiff, from asserting that a certain strip of land was not a street. Smith v. Allen (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 264.

The grantor of platted lots under a deed of trust describing the property as being platted held to be estopped from denying the dedication of the streets shown on the plat, though the property remained inclosed. Ostrom v. Arnold, 54 C. A. 193, 58 S. W. 620.

The rights of a city to land dedicated to it for street purposes cannot be lost by the city under the principles of equitable estoppel. Krause v. El Paso (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 826.

21. Operation and effect.—A deed of dedication to public streets and alleys in a townsite and a deed granting a railroad a right of way over a street held to confer right to use of right of way, restricted only by the right of the public to the reasonable use of the street and the right not to have a nuisance imposed. Oklahoma City & T. R. Co. v. Dallas, 39 C. A. 188, 88 S. W. 449.

In determining the area dedicated by a town to a county for county buildings, the condition that the original buildings were erected and remain in use. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

The area dedicated by a town to a county as a site for buildings includes such space in addition to that covered by the buildings as is reasonably necessary. Id.

Fact that public did not use full width of dedicated street held not to affect the effect of dedication and acceptance. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602.

A recorded conveyance having deprived the grantor of right of possession of an alley as against the grantee and the public, who immediately accepted the dedication, held, that a subsequent purchaser from the grantor acquired no greater rights than grantor had or could exercise. Dixon v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 691.

Where a city dedicated the south half of a public square to the county for county buildings, but retains the north half, the county is not entitled to maintain cesspools and privies on the north half. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 128 S. W. 109, 129 S. W. 593.

Action of county in extending possession beyond ground dedicated by city held not to extend its title derived from the dedication. Id.

County claiming dedication by city of public square must rely on conduct of city to indicate extent of dedication. Id.

Where a city dedicated to a county as a single tract half a public square for county buildings, the abandonment of one of three buildings erected thereon by the county did not deprive the grantor of any part of the tract. Id.

All dedications for public use are to be considered with reference to the purpose for which the dedication is made, or the use to which the premises may be applied. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 624.

22. Tenancy in common—Creation of estate.—Establishment of boundaries between land held in common and adjacent land by agreement held to make the owner of the adjacent land a tenant in common in any of the common land between the true boundary and that thus established. Mahon v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 24.
Mere acceptance of a deed conveying a widow's interest as survivor of a community in which the person receiving the same, who claims title under a different source, a tenant in common with the heirs of the deceased husband. York v. Hutcherson, 37 C. A. 567, 83 S. W. 955.

Where one or co-tenants conveyed her undivided one-half interest to a railroad, the latter became a tenant in common with her. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 115 S. W. 910, 975.

An agreement with owners of land to pay a co-owner for looking after it held not tenor of the other owner's selling his interest. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 85.

An agreement of cestui que trustor to pay an agent for looking after their land held not terminated by conveyance of the land by the trustee. Id.

In trespass to try title, defendant, grantee of certain tenants in common, who had appropriated a certain specific portions of the land, held precluded thereby from opposing claim of remaining co-tenants to undisposed-of portion of the land; the same being less than the plaintiff's undivided share. Zimpelman v. Power, 38 C. A. 263, 85 S. W. 69.

Co-tenants of land cannot be prejudiced by a conveyance of specific parcels by other co-tenants in which they are not concerned. Broom v. Pearson, 99 T. 469, 88 S. W. 780, 86 S. W. 733.

Before the rights of a tenant in common to contribute and share in a purchase of an outstanding title by the co-tenant can be hit off, notice that the purchase has been made must be given to the tenant. Naday v. Cochran, 42 C. A. 292, 93 S. W. 1037.

The rule that a tenant in common cannot purchase an outstanding title for his own benefit held not applicable to specified cases. Id.

One co-tenant claiming to share in the benefit of the purchase of an outstanding title made by a tenant held required to bear his share of the expenses incurred. Id.

Tenant in common held not to take title to land under compromise judgment in trust for purchaser of his co-tenant's interest at sheriff's sale. Mayes v. Rust, 45 C. A. 423, 94 S. W. 110.

Acquisition of an outstanding title by tenants in common held not to inure to benefit of co-tenants, where, prior to such acquisition, the co-tenancy was repudiated by the commencement of trespass to try title against such co-tenants. Stubblefield v. Han son (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 468.

The taking of a subsequent deed from one of the tenants in common, who had not joined in the first deed, held not such a recognition of the co-tenancy as to include another co-tenant, with whom the grantee had no dealing. Naylor & Jones v. Foster, 41 C. A. 599, 99 S. W. 114.

Where a co-tenant in possession sold a portion of the land by warranty deed, and all the land was of uniform value, the other co-tenant's interest should be satisfied out of the land not conveyed. Beale's Heirs v. Johnson, 45 C. A. 119, 59 S. W. 1045.

One tenant in common can recover against a co-tenant only for the undivided interest he shows in the land. Cain v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 834.

24. Rights as to third persons.—One of several tenants in common of land not partitioned is entitled to the possession of the whole tract as against a mere trespasser. Thompson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 591.

Where a decedent owned 45½ acres of a tract, and children deeded to their mother their interest in such land off the west end of the tract, a conveyance of 45½ acres off of the west end by the mother conveyed all the title that she had in the land. Wade v. Boyano, 24 C. A. 492, 60 S. W. 316.

Where decedent owned an undivided interest in 45½ acres, and his children deeded to their mother their interest in 45½ acres off the west end of the tract, in the absence of evidence that designation was accepted by co-tenants, the mother took the entire interest of the children in the whole tract. Id.

A conveyance under a power executed by tenants in common held not to have amounted to two distinct conveyances of the entire tract. Gilmer v. Beauchamp, 40 C. A. 125, 87 S. W. 907.

Where decedent and another owned undivided interests in land, decedent's conveyance held to pass title only to his interest in the land conveyed. Eason v. Weeks (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 1070.

No one could complain of the exclusive use of the joint property by one tenant in common except his co-tenant. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 575, 115 S. W. 610, 975.

A railroad being co-tenant of a part of land, the other co-tenant could not dedicate any part thereof as a highway without the railroad's consent. Id.

The title of a tenant in common becomes a tenant in common in the interest of the last co-tenant in common, and as such he may recover the entire land from persons having no title. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

A conveyance by a tenant in common of a specified number of acres of the land owned in common held to convey his interest therein as against the co-tenant. Hawkins v. Hobson, 57 C. A. 118, 123 S. W. 183.

Where co-owners verbally agreed to pay plaintiff the reasonable value of services for selling the land, one of them afterwards orally agreeing to pay plaintiff 5 per cent. commission on such sale therein, the latter's right for such commission upon the sale being outside, though the contract was made without the authority of the other co-owner. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 981.

Tenants in common with others have no right to convey to a stranger specific portions of the common estate. Roebrough v. Cook (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1120.

25. Adverse possession.—See notes under Title 57, Chapter 1.

26. Parties to suits by or against.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

27. Estate of heirs.—See Title 45.
28. - Partition and effect thereof.—See Title 10.

29. Trusts—Express;—Evidence that satisfies a jury of the existence of a parol trust is sufficient to engraft it on an absolute deed. Neyland v. Bendy, 49 T. 711, 7 S. W. 497.

A deed from the husband recited that “he was largely indebted to his wife for money by him used and which belonged to her, and desiring to repay her he executes a deed.” The plaintiff, father, and the children in trust to his daughter and her husband, and in the deed clause the estate is to be held “in trust for her and themselves forever.” Suit by guardian of the beneficiary (she being non compos) against the grantee and against her children for land conveyed by the deed. Held: 1. The nature of the trust not having been described in the deed, it is what is known as a simple or dry trust, in which the beneficiary is entitled to the actual possession and enjoyment of the property, and to dispose of it or to call upon the trustee to execute such conveyances of the legal estate as may be required. The dingy clause in the deed is not a corporation law by the habendum clause, and the deed conveyed the land in sole trust for the mother. Moore v. City of Waco, 85 T. 206, 20 S. W. 61.

An agreement by one purchasing land for himself and another, who pays half the price in the creation of a trust. Boach v. Crume (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 85.

Understanding between holders of vendor’s lien notes that they constitute fund for paying prior mortgage liens creates no trust against purchaser thereof. Sullivan v. Cranx, 21 C. A. 498, 52 S. W. 272.

A deed to a railway company of the right to use the waters of a lake which the owner subsequently dedicated to a city held not to declare a trust in the railway company in favor of the city. Gillean v. City of Frost, 25 C. A. 371, 61 S. W. 345.

Unexpressed intent of grantee to take land as trustee for another cannot control terms of the deed. Williams v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

Circumstances attendant on a conveyance of land held to show an express trust in favor of the grantor. Craig v. Harless, 33 C. A. 257, 76 S. W. 584.

In order to constitute a direct trust, no particular words are necessary; but there must be a conveyance, a fund, and a beneficiary. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 88 S. W. 542.

An instrument construed, and held not to have created an express trust. Bateman v. Ward (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 598.

A deed held to sufficiently designate the trust thereby created. Stith v. Moore, 42 C. A. 538, 95 S. W. 587.

A verbal agreement held to constitute a parol express trust in land in plaintiff’s favor, defeating the title of an execution purchaser in an action against the trustee. Henderson v. Hume, 47 C. A. 485, 106 S. W. 340.

A trust held sufficiently definite, and one must be treated as standing seised for the purposes of maintaining a building for a specified purpose. Rhodes v. Maret, 102 T. 519, 119 S. W. 1419.

An express parol trust to be engrafted on an absolute deed must be specific and clearly declared by the grantor, so that it may be executed by the trustee or enforced by the court. Roth v. Schroeter (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 293.

A trust held not enforceable because uncertain. Id.

Facts held to show a trust in land. Salter v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 627.

The doctrine that a trust in land must exist when the title passes and cannot be shown by a prior or subsequent agreement or declarations applies only to a resulting trust. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

An agreement to pay one-half of a mortgage note for the purchase money borrowed to pay for land is a valuable consideration, which will support an agreement by the maker of the note to hold half the land in trust for the promisor. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1047.

An agreement that land shall be taken in the name of a purchaser for the benefit of both parties to the agreement is, where based on sufficient consideration and made before the purchase, sufficient to create an express trust. Id.

To constitute a trust, an agreement must have existed at the time of the acquisition of title by the trustee. Gilmore v. Brown (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 564.

To constitute a direct trust, there must be a transfer to one capable of holding the property, or some object or fund, and also a cestui que trust or purpose to which the fund is to be applied. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 157.

30. - Resulting trust.—A resulting trust must exist at the instant the deed is taken, and the legal title vests in the grantee. No oral agreement or payment, before or after the title is taken, will create a resulting trust, unless the transaction is such at the moment the title passes that a trust will result from the transaction itself. Parker v. Coop, 69 T. 111.

To control a deed and establish a resulting trust in land by parol, the trust must be proved with clearness and certainty by evidence full, positive and satisfactory. No agreement by parol subsequent to the conveyance will create a trust in land. The trust rests, if at all, in the instant the deed is taken, and the legal title vests in the vendee. Cunic v. Burland, 1 U. C. 409.

The plaintiff furnished the purchase-money for a tract of land. The legal title for it was conveyed to the ancestor of the defendants. Held, that the equitable title vested in the plaintiff, and that plaintiff entitled to recover the title and possession of the land. Such right does not depend upon the existence of an express agreement at the time of the execution of the deed. By implication equity charges the holder of the title in such case with the duties and liabilities as upon express agreement recognizing the trust. Burns v. Parks, 22 T. 216, 9 S. W. 41. Holland v. Farthing, 21 S. W. 67, 2 C. A. 152; Ellis v. Cochran, 28 S. W. 213, 8 C. A. 530.

Where the local order of judgments and in which others had an equitable interest satisfies the judgments in consideration of a conveyance of realty to him, a trust results in favor of the equitable owners, to the extent of their Interest. McClure v. Bryant, 18 C. A. 141, 44 S. W. 3.

Where a legatee of a deceased vendor’s claim for purchase money took a conveyance of the land in satisfaction of her demand against the purchaser, who owned the fee, held, 547 that she did not take the conveyance in trust for the estate. O'Connor v. Vineyard, 51 T. 488, 44 S. W. 455.

No agreements made, and no payments made before or after a title is taken, can create a resulting trust, unless a trust results from the transaction itself, when title passed, or from the deed. Wilson v. Hild, 30 C. A. 262, 48 S. W. 832; Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563; Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 53; Erp v. Meachem (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 230.

A person collecting a note and releasing a vendor's lien becomes a trustee for the trustee and lien holder, and though it was heres a sufficient attempt to release could still be enforced. Burton v. Archinard (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 654.

Where a trustee makes a partial payment with the separate funds of his cestui que trust, on land purchased by him, a resulting trust is created in their favor. Stone v. Kusel, 42 C. A. 185, 64 S. W. 375.

Members of a church, who took assignment of mortgage debt and foreclosed in own name, held to hold for benefit of church, subject to lien for amount advanced. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Factors in trust are held to try to take title by an execution purchaser held not sufficient to show that the land was held by the execution debtor in trust for his son at the time of such sale. Bonner v. Ogilvie, 24 C. A. 237, 55 S. W. 1027.

Defendant, purchasing land under agreement to convey same to plaintiff, held to hold in trust for her. Yenger v. Nell, 22 C. A. 414, 64 S. W. 701.

Where the consideration of a deed conveying a street railway was furnished by a third person, who later purchased it at a trustee's sale, the third person is the absolute owner thereof. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

A transaction between a vendor and purchaser, as evidenced by an agreement by the former to buy in the land on a foreclosure of his lien, and to reconvey the same to the purchaser, held not to constitute a trust. Foster v. Ross, 33 C. A. 615, 77 S. W. 990.

Where defendant received money under a contract to pay the same to plaintiff, the relation then was that of debtor and creditor, and not trustee and cestui que trust. Holland v. Shannon (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 854.

Payment by decedent of part of the consideration of a bond for title taken by him and his brother two years before the title passed to the brother, after decedent's death, was sufficient to support a resulting trust in favor of decedent's heirs. Scranton v. Campbell, 45 C. A. 388, 101 S. W. 285.

Where decedent and his brother took a bond for title from an administrator, the trust resulting in favor of decedent's heirs on the brother taking title after decedent's death was not affected by the fact that the bond did not bind decedent's estate, where the administrator was bound personally. Id.

The rule as to the creation of a resulting trust by payment of consideration for conveyance to another stated. Pearce v. Dyens, 45 C. A. 406, 101 S. W. 549.

Certain transactions considered, and held to have created a resulting trust. Id.

Where defendant purchased for plaintiff a tax deed to plaintiff's property, held, that he holds it in trust for plaintiff. Openshaw v. Rickmayer, 45 C. A. 508, 102 S. W. 467.

A rule held applicable to resulting trusts only, and not to parcel express trusts. Henderson v. Rushing, 45 C. A. 486, 105 S. W. 840.

To charge the grante in a deed with a trust in the lands conveyed, it is enough to allege and prove the understanding and the facts on which the grantee received the conveyance. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 597.

Where a trust under a deed depended on the agreement between the grantee and another, it was immaterial what the grantor intended. Michel v. Michel (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 328.

Grantees in deed held mere trustee of the legal title for grantor. Lewright v. Davis (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 599.

A woman seeking to establish a trust in her favor in lands purchased in the name of another held required to show certain facts. Hayworth v. Williams, 102 T. 508, 118 S. W. 43, 132 Am. St. Rep. 87.

Where a deed to a husband in trust for his wife for life, and for her children after her death, is in the nature of a family settlement, no resulting use in favor of the husband and wife by reason of the consideration having been paid by them in money will be presumed. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

If the circumstances under which land was purchased made the purchaser a trustee, equity would enforce a trust, whether the purchase was made as trustee. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

When a trust will result in favor of one paying deferred payments on land purchased in another's name stated. Erp v. Meachem (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 230.

Rule as to when a resulting trust arises stated. Watson v. Harris (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 237.

Where one person furnished part of the consideration paid for land, title to which was taken in the name of another, the former by showing the proportional amount of the consideration furnished by him could recover a like proportion of the land. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

As to the payment of the purchase money, the purchaser may be a receiver appointed by another held to take title under a resulting trust in favor of such other as to half of the land. Hicks v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1195.

An attorney of a judgment creditor, who purchases the debtor's real estate at an execution sale, takes title under a resulting trust for the judgment creditor, who may treat the purchase as one made for him. Randell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 717; Same v. Cotton, Id. 719.

If one takes a deed for the benefit of another lending or advancing the price to the latter, a trust results, but if the agreement is that the purchaser takes the deed and pays his own money, and that it may afterwards be repaid and the land redeemed by him with interest. The fact that the agreement does not constitute a trust, but is within the statute of frauds. Schutz v. Harris (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 242.

Where the pastor of a church purchased real property for it, the fact that his agreement with the church did not cover the details of the transaction, and that he became personally liable for the unpaid portion of the price, did not preclude the enforcement against him of a resulting trust. Gilmore v. Brown (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 964.

Where money paid by a church to its pastor with which to purchase real property was used for that purpose, he could not prevent a resulting trust by crediting the money on the indebtedness of the church. Id.

Where funds of another are invested in land, a trust is created, regardless of the intention of the purchaser. Id.

In an action against the pastor of a church to enforce a resulting trust as to certain church property, permitting a recovery by plaintiffs as to the consideration for which notes were given by defendant, if it was agreed that the notes should be paid by the church, irrespective of when such agreement was made, held error. Id.

Where, in an action on a note executed by defendant construction company, in which land purchased by a town-site company was attached on the ground that it was held for the construction company, evidence that the town-site company was organized to hold land for the construction company and was owned by the latter's stockholders was admissible, as showing a resulting trust for the defendant. First State Bank & Trust Co. v. Hershford v. Southwestern Engineering & Construction Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 630.

A mere lender of money used in purchasing land conveyed to the borrower can claim no resulting trust in his favor. Jordan v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 259.

Plaintiff's right of action to recover the value of a mortgaged building which defendants agreed to hold in trust for plaintiffs, purchasers of the equity, after foreclosing the lien, under an agreement with plaintiff's father, defendant's debtor, to foreclose the lien and hold the property not affected by the mortgage, was not lost to plaintiff's father when he conveyed his property in trust to defendants; plaintiffs having purchased the equity before that time. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

The fact that one who agreed to hold mortgaged property in trust for the owners of the equity of redemption purchased it at the foreclosure sale for himself, and not for them, would not relieve him from liability to them for breach of his trust agreement. Id.

31. Constructive trust.—A constructive trust held not created by a promise by a devisee of land sold for taxes to purchase the land, and convey it to the executor of the ancestor's estate. Tapp v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 325.

The rule that more than one witness is required to show that a deed, absolute on its face, was intended as a trust, applies only where the trust is being proved by declarations of a deceased trustee, or the trustee is testifying to the trust in his own interest. Id.

Testimony of a single witness as to declarations of a wife to whom her husband had conveyed land that she held it in trust for him held insufficient after her death to establish the trust. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 529.

In trespass to try title a verdict finding that defendant D. did not purchase for plaintiff's benefit held sustained by the evidence. Hume v. Darsey (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 355.

In an action to declare a trust in land purchased by defendants' decedent with money furnished by plaintiff held to show that the money was lent decedent, and that he purchased the property for himself. Jordan v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 359.

33. — Reimbursement of trustee.—Where one pays for land with his own means, another claiming that the former acquired and held the title in trust for him is not entitled to repayment except on payment of the purchase price thus advanced. Hoffman v. Buchanan, 87 C. A. 368, 123 S. W. 168.

Attorney acquiring titles to land by breach of trust with intention of depriving his client thereof held not entitled to reimbursement as a condition of the transfer of such titles. Stratton v. Strange (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 515.

34. — Reformation.—In absence of fraud and collusion, equity will reform a deed of trust conveying separate property of a wife, to give it effect in accordance with the mutual intention of the parties. Avery v. Hunton, 23 C. A. 333, 56 S. W. 210.

35. — Construction and operation of conveyance in general.—A recital in a deed conveying land to a trustee that the payments were made out of the trust funds is prima facie evidence of the fact recited. Kahle v. Stone, 95 T. 106, 65 S. W. 623.

A trust deed construed, and held to cover certain land donated to the grantor on account of wounds received by him in the service of the Republic of Texas. Nona Mills Co. v. Wright, 101 T. 14, 102 S. W. 1118.

A recital in a deed of trust held to show an intention to make a permanent provision for the beneficiaries therein. Parrish v. Dillis, 101 T. 276, 106 S. W. 852.

In the construction of a deed of trust, the intention of the donor, arrived at by considering every part of the instrument, governs. Id.

The construction placed upon a trust deed by the parties thereto showing their intent in executing it should control. Montgomery v. Trueheart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 284.

36. — Title and rights of parties.—See notes under Art. 1106.

A trustee with power to sell land is not divested by agreement to make a sale. Texas Loan Agency v. Gray, 12 C. A. 450, 34 S. W. 650.

A custee qui habeas an equitable title, though the trustee has conveyed to another. Harrick v. Furley (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 994.

A wife cannot convey her beneficial interest in property deeded in trust for her support, though the deed does not restrict alienation by her. Monday v. Vance, 92 T. 428, 49 S. W. 516.

Trustee held entitled to the possession of property conveyed in trust during the continuance of the trust as against subsequent grantees of the beneficiaries. Monday v. Vance (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 346.

Where an alienation of a married woman's interest in a trust created for her benefit was incompatible with the purpose of the trust, she has no power to alienate such interest, though not restricted in the trust deed. Id.

Beneficiaries in a trust deed held not entitled to assert any rights by virtue of the deed itself, but that their claims must rest on the fact that the trust fund was used in the purchase. Kahle v. Stone, 95 T. 106, 65 S. W. 625.

A trustee is merely a depositary of the legal title, and his estate is but a power that may be exercised. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

Under a deed creating a trust, held, that the trustee acquired merely a naked title in trust for the owners of the beneficial interest. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917.

A title bond to convey land to a trustee, such trustee to secure the location of railroad right of way, and to sell the same, held ineffective, since it did not convey a sufficient interest in the land to enable the trustee to make the improvements. Houston & Texas Port, Railroad Co. v. Campaign of School Trustees of City of San Antonio v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 147.

A trustee held to convey the estate only in the manner designated in the instrument creating the trust. Mansfield v. Wardlow (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 889.

A trustee under power to sell and rent only is sold. Id.

Beneficiaries in a trust deed, claiming title to the land by virtue of its recitals, are bound by its other conditions, and cannot repudiate a stipulation therein that the trustee shall have power to sell the property. Kahle v. Stone, 95 T. 106, 65 S. W. 625.

A trust deed held to sufficiently authorize the trustee to execute a conveyance of the land. Id.

When incumbered trust land is sold, the basis of its valuation, to determine the good faith of the trustee, is not the land freed from the incumbrances, but its value burdened with the incumbrances. Board of School Trustees of City of San Antonio v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 147.

A trustee held to convey the estate only in the manner designated in the instrument creating the trust. Mansfield v. Wardlow (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 889.

A trustee under power to sell and rent only is sold. Id.

In 1848 the owner of land sold the same, received the purchase-money, and acknowledged and delivered a deed, perfect in every respect except that the name of the grantee was not inserted in a blank left for that purpose. At the same time the purchaser was verbally authorized by the vendor to fill the blank with his name or that of any one to whom he might sell the land. In 1856 the purchaser sold the land to another, and with his deed delivered the deed he had received, with the blank not yet filled, and which was not filled until 1878, when, his attention being called to it, he inserted his own name. Held: 1. The verbal authority given by the vendor to fill the blank with the name of the grantee, or with any other name, was sufficient. 2. The power to fill the blank was a power coupled with an interest, and was irrevocable. 3. The fact that the purchaser had sold the land to another before he executed his power to fill the blank did not work a revocation of his authority. Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 559; Hollis v. Dashiell, 52 T. 187; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330.

The deed or other instrument may be said to be signed whenever the name of its maker is so written upon it as to evidence his intention to give authenticity to it. Thus, where the instrument was neither written nor signed by N., but was acknowledged by him for record and delivered, it was sufficient evidence of execution by him. Newton v. Emerson, 16 T. 142, 18 S. W. 448.

A deed from a partnership, signed by one of the partners as agent, conveys an equitable title to the vendee. Harris v. Bryson & Hartgrove, 34 C. A. 532, 80 S. W. 105.

This article contemplates that the name of the grantor shall be subscribed to a writing evidencing a conveyance, and that the signature shall be affixed by him or by some one authorized by him in writing, and where a grantor signs in blank and verbally commits to another to write or not to write a conveyance over his signature with power to determine whether the conveyance shall be filled in and delivered, and to whom the grantor shall be made and to what property it shall apply, the instrument is incomplete, and the authority to fill the blanks and deliver the instrument is ineffectual. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917.

47. Burden of proof and evidence.—See notes under Title 58.

A granter held not entitled to a decree for the cancellation of a deed, executed while he had sufficient mental capacity, on the ground that it was an unwise and unequal contract. Cox v. Combs, 51 C. A. 346, 111 S. W. 1069.

Ordinarily a deed cannot be rescinded solely because the parties' minds never met, but plaintiff must be shown to have been innocently free from negligence. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 711. See also, notes under Arts. 1114, 1115.

In a suit to rescind an exchange of property, plaintiff may recover damages by reason of fraudulent representations in case a rescission is inequitable. Campbell v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 133.

Where a purchaser is induced by fraud to buy land, and pays therefor in cash and notes, which are held by the vendor, or for their benefit, at the time of the trial of the purchaser's action for equitable relief from the fraud, a verdict for him and against the vendor may be rendered, canceling his notes, and for the cash payment made by him, with interest from the date of the payment. Haguestein v. Blaschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

40. Conditions precedent.— In an action to cancel a deed for fraud in the grant, it is not necessary for the vendor to tender the consideration received by him. It is sufficient to offer to restore it. Garza v. Scott, 24 S. W. 89, 5 C. A. 239.

Where one asks for a rescission of a trade of land, and to be reinstated to the land conveyed by him, he must restore the other party to his original possession. Paul v. Chevalault (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 652.

In action to cancel deed and rescind contract, it is not necessary that plaintiff offer to return specific property received by him, but it is sufficient if he offers to return the value thereof. Wells v. Houston, 23 C. A. 629, 57 S. W. 884.

When a deed is procured by fraud and undue influence there is no equity in favor of grantee therein for reimbursement for expenditures made on the property. Jinks v. Moppin (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 390.

Client, as condition precedent to cancellation of deed to attorney for fraud and undue influence, is not held to pay attorney's fees. Id.

In an action to recover property fraudulently obtained, etc., necessity for tendering a release of rights acquired from defendants, stated. Witiff v. Spreen, 51 C. A. 544, 112 S. W. 98.

The inability of a purchaser of land to restore the status quo would preclude him from obtaining a rescission of the contract for mutual mistake as well as for fraud. Corbett v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 422.

A purchaser of land unable to restore it to the vendor held not entitled to rescission for alleged fraud. Id.

A person suing to partially rescind a conveyance for defendant's fraud held not required to offer to refund money received. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

In Grantor's conveyance in order to rescind a deed for fraud, held required to place the grantee in status quo. May v. Cearley (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 165.

An administrator of a deceased grantor, who sues to set aside a deed, as procured by fraud of the grantee, need not offer to return the taxes paid by the grantee. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 884.

In an action to cancel a conveyance on the ground of the grantor's insanity, the court may grant the relief sought by requiring the payment of such part of the consideration, if any, as was expended for necessaries for the grantor. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.

51. Burden of proof.— See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

52. Failure of consideration.— Where there is a total failure of consideration for a conveyance of land, the grantor is entitled to a cancellation of the deed. Richerson v. McNeil, 17 C. A. 6, 42 S. W. 217.

53. Mistake.—A party seeking to set aside a deed alleged to have been made by mistake must be reasonably free from negligence. Gibson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 574.

Where a deed described the land conveyed as the west half of a section 55, and also by a description which called for the K. survey as the west boundary, and there was evidence that at the time the parties understood and intended that the land conveyed should not extend, even to the east boundary of the K. survey, the grantee could not thereafter sustain a contention that the call for the K. survey was a mistake. McLennan v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 595.

A grantor held entitled to a cancellation of the deed on the ground of mutual mistake. Perrette v. Delano (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1059.

54. Duress.— To constitute duress avoiding a deed, there must either be imprisonment or threats thereof, or of personal violence; the mere fear of losing property by foreclosure of a lien not being sufficient. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

55. Fraud.—A deed obtained by fraud may be set aside. De Perez v. Everett, 79 T. 431, 11 S. W. 388.

Evidence In an action to cancel a deed as fraudulent held to support a verdict for plaintiff. Lancaster v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 408.

In an action to set aside a deed for fraud, evidence held insufficient to establish fraud. Goree v. Goree, 22 C. A. 470, 54 S. W. 1036.

Where a married man, representing himself as single, married a woman and obtained from her a deed of her property without consideration, a finding that such deed was fraudulently obtained is justified. Hodges v. Hodges, 27 C. A. 557, 66 S. W. 229.

Intimate relations of friendship between the parties to a conveyance held proper for consideration, in connection with other facts and circumstances, in determining whether fraud was practiced in obtaining the same. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 615, 69 S. W. 118.

A deed may be set aside for the grantee's breach of false and fraudulent promises to the grantor that they would take care of her for life, etc. O'Brien v. Camp, 46 C. A. 12, 103 S. W. 557.

That a vendee has accepted a conveyance containing covenants of warranty does not prevent him from rescinding on account of fraudulent representations of the vendor as to his title. Buchanan v. Burnett, 52 C. A. 68, 114 S. W. 406.
To justify cancellation of a deed, the charge of fraud in procuring its execution must be supported by clear and satisfactory evidence, as will preponderate over presumption or evidence on the other side. Seev. Selari (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 997.

A deed is void and will be canceled and annulled for fraud arising from imposition and undue influence or influence practiced on a grantor of enfeebled mind, produced by old age, and added mental and bodily infirmities. Caddell v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 432.

Since misrepresentations of material character, though innocently made, will furnish a void in a contract, plaintiff, in his action to rescind a deed need not prove, in addition to misrepresentations, that they were made with knowledge of their falsity, though he had alleged such fact in his pleading. Peters v. Straus (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 355.

A deed to the granter's granddaughter obtained by her father's fraud is invalid. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 393.

Promise of a grantor to execute a contract to reconvey on termination of his use, which he never intended to perform, made simply to induce a conveyance, held a fraud sufficient, if seasonably urged, to entitle the grantors to rescind. May v. Cearley (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 165.

Where a grantee procuring a deed by his fraud sought to show waiver of the fraud by the grantor, the grantor held entitled to show the facts and make the question of waiver one for the jury. Cotton v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 114.

A grantee of the separate property of a wife held chargeable with the fraud of the husband inducing the deed. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75. The burden is on the grantee to prove his own knowledge of the fact of which a deed was executed, is not fraud justifying cancellation of the deed does not apply where the promises are made to defraud, and without any intent at the time of performing them. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 864.

Where a conveyance obtained by fraud, as acquired into possession and made improvements, he could not recover the value of the improvements on the setting aside of the deed. Id.

Where a grantee in a deed of one lot procured by fraud the insertion of a provision conveying also another lot, a recovery on the ground of fraud was limited to a cancellation of the deed as to the latter lot. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to show that execution of release of rights by owner by adverse possession was procured by fraud, or that any advantage was taken of him. Davis v. Moye (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 962.

56. Undue influence.—Evidence held to show that a deed was procured by undue influence. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

57. Mental incapacity.—A deed will not be avoided on account of mental weakness of the grantor in the absence of imposition or undue influence. Beville v. Jones, 74 T. 148, 11 S. W. 1128.

A deed is void where at the time of its execution the grantor was laboring under such a degree of mental infirmity as made him incapable of understanding in a reasonable manner the nature and effect of his act. Caddell v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 432.

In an action to annul a deed for mental incapacity of the grantor, the court may consider proof of the mental and physical condition of the grantor both before and after the execution of the deed. Id.

Evidence held to show that at the time of executing a deed the grantor was mentally incapacitated. Caddell v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 422; Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

A deed cannot be set aside on the ground of insanity unless the incapacity existed at the time of execution. Armstrong v. Eurt (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 172.

In an action to cancel a conveyance under power of attorney on the ground that the grantor was not of sound mind, where the defendants introduce a judgment restoring plaintiff to sanity prior to the conveyance, the burden is on the plaintiff to show that he was insane at the time he executed the power of attorney. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.

To have the capacity to execute a valid conveyance the grantor must not only have the ability to transact the ordinary affairs of life and to understand their nature and effect, but also to exercise his will in relation thereto. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 253.

58. Consideration.—See notes under Art. 589.

A contract for sale of unappropriated public lands to which vendor has no title is without consideration, though not void as against public policy. Raynor Cattle Co. v. Bedford, 91 T. 642, 45 S. W. 554.

59. Vendor's lien.—See notes under Title 86, Chapter 8.

60. Necessity and requisites of delivery and acceptance.—Delivery and acceptance by the grantee is essential in order to pass a title by deed of bargain or sale. Dikes v. Miller, 24 T. 417.

The fact that a deed, after its delivery to the grantee, has been by him returned to the grantor for safe keeping during the minority of the grantee or during an expected absence, neither negatives nor disproves its previous delivery, nor annuls or destroys its effect of passing title to the property embraced in it as between the parties. Hart v. Rust, 46 T. 558.

To complete that delivery of a deed which is necessary to pass title to land, it must be placed by the grantor in the control of the grantee, with the intent that it shall become operative as a conveyance. Steffan v. Bank, 69 T. 513, 8 S. W. 825. If not accepted by the grantee, the conveyance is void. Perryman v. Rayburn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 72.

A deed takes effect only from the date of its delivery (Insurance Co. v. Clarke, 1 C. A. 238, 21 S. W. 277; Lambert v. McLure, 12 C. A. 577, 34 S. W. 972), and the delivery may be either actual or constructive. If the deed be not actually delivered to the grantee or his authorized agent, it is essential to prove notice to the grantee of its execution and such additional circumstances as will afford a reasonable presumption of his acceptance of it. The presumption that the grantee will accept a deed because it is beneficial to him will never, it is said, be carried so far as to consider him as having actually accepted it. Possession of the deed by the grantee raises the presumption of its due delivery to him; but that presumption is rebutted by proof. Tuttle v. Whitaker, 382, 735.

An instrument does not operate as a conveyance unless it has been delivered. Naugh­er v. Patterson, 9 C. A. 158, 28 S. W. 682.

The rule that, where the rights of creditors are not involved, equity will not permit a grantor to invalidate his deed as fraudulent, has no application where it appears that it was never delivered. Blackman v. Schieman, 21 C. A. 511, 51 S. W. 886.

Delivery to a third person in execution of an instruction to the grantor, is an instruction to the effect that, if the grantee did not accept the conveyance during the lifetime of the grantor, he cannot recover, held not erroneous.

Deed executed by husband to his wife, but never delivered, may be set aside at his instance. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

A deed from a mother to her minor child conveys the grantor's estate, although the deed remained in the grantor's possession until the grantee's minority. Wadsorth v. Vinyard (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1171.

Sufficiency of delivery depends on the intention of the grantor; and an actual delivery by him in person is not essential. Henry v. Phillips (Sup.) 151 S. W. 533, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Phillips v. Henry, 135 S. W. 382.

Where the intention of the grantor is clear, the intention of the grantee to the contrary is not sufficient to defeat the deed during the lifetime of the grantor. Kimball v. Kimball, 38 S. W. 755.

In order to vest title in a grantee, it is necessary not only that the deed be executed, but also that it be delivered. Williams v. Neill (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 653.

A deed which was delivered by the grantor and recorded with the grantor, that was delivered by the grantee and recorded with the grantee, that was delivered by the grantee and recorded with both, shall be effective, and a deed obtained through the fraud of the grantee without the consent of the grantor is insufficient. Spotts v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 422.

Ratification.—Where a deed which had not been delivered to the grantee was placed of record by a third person, without the knowledge of the grantor, a ratification of this deed by the grantor constitutes a delivery sufficient to pass the title. Pannell v. Askew (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 364.

Person entitled to accept.—It would seem that the commissioner of the general land office is the proper officer to accept for the state. Dikes v. Miller, 28 S. T. Sup. 281, 78 Am. Dec. 571; Hubbard v. Cox, 76 T. 239, 13 S. W. 170.

Persons to whom delivery may be made.—A delivery of a deed to one of two grantees is sufficient. Minor v. Powers (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 710.

Delivery to a third person by consent of grantee is sufficient. Diehl v. Fowler, 10 C. A. 553, 20 S. W. 1086.

Delivery to an officer who took the acknowledgment of it, with instructions to deliver it to the grantee, held good delivery of a deed. Belgarde v. Carter (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 964.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3887.

Evidence of delivery.—A deed to lands, signed by an independent executor, was not recorded until after his death; nor was it ever seen elsewhere than among his papers during his life. The executor, during his lifetime, spoke of the land as having been sold to B., and after the signing of the deed B. went into possession. Held not to estop delivery. McLaughlin v. McManigle, 63 S. T. 755.

Delivery of a deed, as shown. See Puckett v. Williams, 11 C. A. 308, 22 S. W. 364.

In a suit in trespass to try title to land, evidence examined, and held sufficient to sustain the finding that a deed to the land executed by defendants was unqualifiedly delivered to plaintiff. Broom v. Herring, 46 C. A. 625, 101 S. W. 1025.

The delivery of a deed may be shown by the acts or words of the grantor showing that he intended the title should pass to the grantee, and showing that after the execution of the deed the grantor treated and recognized the property as belonging to the grantee, even though there is no manual delivery of the deed. Chew v. Jackson, 45 C. A. 656, 102 S. W. 427.

A deed by a husband and wife dated August 19, 1908, was acknowledged by the husband on that date and by the wife on November 4th following. The tenant in possession under a lease from the grantors paid rent to the purchaser to October 21st. Held not to authorize a finding that the deed was not delivered until November 4th. Garth v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 611.

The act of a grantor in delivering a deed in an envelope indorsed "T. J. F.," or "Mrs. H. M. and Miss J. K.," to a bank cashier with the statement, "Here is a deed to Miss J. K. and Mrs. P. H. that I want to lay away in the vault for safe-keeping, and the deed to be delivered after my death to them," showed an intention to reserve a right in the grantor to recall the deed during his lifetime, and that, if he should die without having exercised the right, it should be delivered to the grantees after his death; and therefore there was no present delivery to the grantees. Phillips v. Henry (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 352, reversed Henry v. Phillips (Sup.) 151 S. W. 633.

A deed held not to have been delivered. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 336.

Evidence held to show that a second deed from a grantor was delivered subsequently to a deed back from the grantor to the grantor, though dated prior thereto. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 883.

Questions for court and jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Redelivery, effect of.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Cooper v. Cooper—See notes under Art. 143.

Patterson v. Patterson—See notes under Art. 143.

A deed or bill of sale by the holder of the title was delivered to the payee subject to title and payment of money in escrow, construed. Frichott v. Nowlin ( Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 161.

Where deeds intended as advancements were deposited with a third person to be delivered, on the death of the grantor, the depositary held them in escrow, but as bails for the owners. McKnight v. Reed, 30 C. A. 294, 71 S. W. 515.

A deed delivered to a bank with the stipulation that it should not be turned over to the grantee, except with grantor’s consent, was not held in escrow. Peters v. Strauss ( Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 956.

A deed held not to have been delivered in escrow. Payne v. Cox ( Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 336.

A grantor who executed a deed to his stepdaughters, whom he regarded as his own children, and who delivered it to the cashier of a bank for safe-keeping, with instructions to deliver to the grantees after his death, delivered the deed in escrow, and title passed to the grantees. Henry v. Phillips ( Sup.) 151 S. W. 533, reversing judgment ( Civ. App.) Phillips v. Henry, 131 S. W. 382.

Depositaries.—A deed can never be delivered to the grantee himself as an escrow, but if intended to operate as such must be delivered to a third person for him.

If a deed be delivered to him, the law, for wise purposes and on just principle, vests the interest conveyed instantly in him. Insurance Co. v. Clarke, 1 C. A. 235, 21 S. W. 277.

Deducting the depositary hold to make grantee of the depositary deeds. Chapman v. Inscho, 58 S. W. 119.

70. Revocation.—Grantors held not entitled to withdraw deed from escrow in escrow till after expiration of reasonable time notwithstanding time limit in contract between parties. Bott v. Wright ( Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 969.

A return of deed by depositary was afterwards, by contract between grantor and grantee held not conclusive that the withdrawal was authorized. Id.

Where a vendor delivered a deed to a bank in escrow, to be held by it until deferred payments were made, he could not withdraw the deed, without the purchaser’s consent, until after a reasonable time, notwithstanding any time limit named in the contract. Smith v. Moore ( Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1917.

Where plaintiff sold certain land to defendant which was clouded by liens, agreeing to deposit $500 to obtain certain releases, and, if not obtained within 90 days, defendant was authorized to remove the cloud, a petition alleging that plaintiff had obtained two of the releases and the defendant had refused to sue showed sufficient facts to entitle plaintiff to recover the balance on the deposit. Harper v. Martin ( Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 1180.

71. Time of taking effect of deed.—Where a grantor executed deeds, and placed them in the hands of a third person, to be delivered to the grantees after his death, on the happening of such event and delivery to the grantees their title relates back to the execution of the deeds. McKnight v. Reed, 30 C. A. 294, 71 S. W. 518.

A deed or bill of sale placed in escrow, to be delivered on compliance with specified conditions, becomes effective on the fulfillment of the conditions, though there is no actual delivery. Ketterson v. Inscho, 55 C. A. 150, 115 S. W. 618.

Where delivery is to a third person in escrow for delivery to the grantees, after the grantor’s death, a delivery as directed relieves the defendant of the title of the grantor from the first delivery. Henry v. Phillips ( Sup.) 151 S. W. 533.

72. Wrongful delivery by depositary.—One placing a deed in escrow does not lose the land by the depositary wrongfully delivering the deed, followed by the grantee’s sale to a bona fide purchaser. Boswell v. Pannell ( Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 232.

A debtor, who consigned a deed to a part of his homestead to a bank as security for certain debts, was not entitled to have it withdrawn. Bowron v. Simms ( Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 119.

Where a bank, as depositary, held a deed in escrow, and delivered it to the grantees without authority, they were allowed to take the deed as against the depositors. Fritchett v. Nowlin, 58 S. W. 161.

73. Parol or extraneous evidence.—See notes under Art. 9837.

74. Operation of conveyance in general.—See notes under Arts. 1106 and 1107.

A transfer of the certificate of title is a transfer of the certificate of which it was located. Renick v. Dawson, 55 T. 102; Hines v. Thorn, 57 T. 98; Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300; Abernathy v. Stone, 11 T. 430, 18 S. W. 1102.

Deed to secure advances with power to sell and make warranty deed gives power to grantee to convey title. Larch v. Hill, 2 C. A. 121; 21 S. W. 188.

A deed conveying a previous deed is competent to convey title. Curdy v. Stafford ( Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 625; id., 58 T. 120, 39 S. W. 551.

Confirmation of invalid deed providing that such deed should be valid from its date held to present conveyance of the land. Montgomery v. Hornberger, 16 C. A. 28, 40 S. W. 628.

A judgment for defendant in an action on a rent note, on the ground that the rent had passed to a third person, was not sustained, where there was no evidence that the rent was due when the conveyance was made. Jones v. Latham ( Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1010.
Where defective deed is corrected by a second, the correction is as effective between the grantees as though the deed had been reformed by a decree in equity. Milby v. Regan, 16 C. A. 352, 41 S. W. 372.

A deed conveying unappropriated public school lands is void, where the title thereto is in the state, and the grantor has acquired no claim under the law. Raymer Cattle Co. v. Bedford, 91 T. 642, 44 S. W. 110.

The courts will not aid the grantee in recovering possession of land under a deed, the consideration for which was the compounding of crime, where the grantor remained in possession. Medearis v. Cranberry, 38 C. A. 187, 84 S. W. 170.

If the finding that plaintiff's ancestors conveyed the land in controversy to one under whom defendant claimed. Brewer v. Cochran, 45 C. A. 175, 59 S. W. 1033.

Parties to whom stock was transferred in consideration of liquidating debts of a railroad company to which the owner, a married woman, had never made a legal transfer of the railroad property, held not to have acquired any title to the property. Texas Southern Ry. Co. v. Harle (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 878.

Where a party, by paying off a certain note, may receive a deed to certain property, he can only convey his right to receive the deed on compliance with the conditions, and cannot pass any title to the property. Smith v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 328.

A subscription paper signed by various persons who agree to pay the respective amounts set opposite their names for the purpose of erecting a two-story building, the upper part to be used as a Masonic lodge and the lower story for a school house is such a conveyance as will give the people of the community title to the lower story to be used as a school house, although the free-sellable title to the ground on which the building stands is in the Masonic lodge. The contract created a right in the nature of a use ingrafted upon the building, the committee appointed by the community to secure the construction of the building, constituting such a body in law as was capable of receiving the title of the president. Rhodes v. Maret (Civ. App.) 16 C. A. 120.

Purchasers of real estate held entitled to rely on recitals in a deed to their vendor that a nonnegotiable note for a part of the price had been canceled. Templeman v. McFerrin (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 335.

Neither a grantor under a subsequent deed reciting a void prior deed to her husband nor claiming under the subsequent deed were estopped to deny the prior deed except against those claiming under H. Merriman v. Halack, 56 C. A. 594, 131 S. W. 582.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to sustain a finding that the ancestor of the heirs through whom defendant claimed had by lost deed conveyed the land to one through whom plaintiff claimed. (Civ. App. 1910) Kirby v. Hayden, 125 S. W. 993, Judgment affirmed (Sup. 1911) Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Hayden, 104 T. 173, 135 S. W. 1149.

An heir who, pending a suit for partition, conveys all his interest to another heir who holds a vendor's lien note of the ancestor is relieved from liability by reason of the lien on his pro rata share. Thomas v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1164.

Stipulations by grantees of land to sell it to plaintiff for a public purpose at the same price paid for similar property held not enforceable by plaintiff, a stranger to the deed. Pt. Worth Improvement Dist. No. 1 of Tarrant County v. Weatherford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 530.

75. Property or estate conveyed.—See notes under Arts. 1106 and 1107.

Where a tract of land has been bought and paid for as containing a certain number of acres (the purchaser relying on the representations of the vendor as to quantity), the vendor will not be excused from liability to account for a deficiency in the number of acres shown in his description of the tract as containing the number of acres, if the deficiency be so great that it cannot be supposed it was intended to be within the risk which the parties meant to incur, or to have been intended to be embraced by the words "more or less," employed in the deed. Smith v. Fly, 24 T. 343, 76 Am. Dec. 109; Farenholz v. Dez, 31 T. 399, 54 T. Sup. 29; O'Connor v. Duke, 29 T. 299, 94 Am. Dec. 252; Daughtry v. Knolle, 44 T. 450; Rich v. Ferguson, 45 T. 396. See Ladd v. Pleasants, 39 T. 415.

A deed which begins the description of the land conveyed, being part of a larger tract, at a point on the north line of the survey, when, by reference to the other calls, it was manifest that the south line was intended, was properly admitted in evidence—it further appearing that to begin on the north line would place the land sued for entirely beyond the limits of the larger tract of which it was alleged to constitute a part. Huff v. Webb, 64 T. 231.

There was a question as to the identity of a tract of land described as follows in two deeds: In a deed from A. to B. and G. the land is described as lot 5, block 44, giving metes and bounds, in a deed from C. and B. to G. It is described as lot 5, block 45, "being the same lot conveyed to them and G. by A." The variance was held to be immaterial. Cruger v. Ginnuth, 3 App. C. C. § 27.

Where an uncertainty as to the identity of land conveyed can be explained by extrinsic testimony, the deed is not void for want of description. McWhirter v. Allen, 1 C. 649, 39 S. W. 1907; See Men v. Leon & H. Blum Land Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 295; Robertson v. Mooney, 21 S. W. 142, 1 C. A. 579.

Evidence held not sufficient to enable plaintiff to be determined as to a strip of land alleged to be included in his grant by applying a corrected description. Scanlan v. Hitchler (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 762.

An uncertain description of land in a deed held to be entitled to be referred by reference to another. League v. Scott (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 521.

Where defendant claimed under a deed which stated that it conveyed and confirmed the title attempted to have been covered by a certain other deed, such other deed was admissible in aid of the description of the premises conveyed. Ar­nall v. Newcom (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 92.
Action by a mortgagee against the mortgagee and another held not an action on the mortgage note, so as to aid description in sheriff's deed. Edrington v. Hermann (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 936.

Evidence held to show that the inclusion of a 250-acre tract in the description of land conveyed was made under a misapprehension and mistake on the part of grantors and plaintiff. Mathews v. Bonville (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 185.

A false portion of the description in a deed held not to vitiate the deed where it was shown by extrinsic evidence what land was conveyed. West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 927.

Evidence in trespass to try title held to show that the deed under which plaintiffs claimed called for land to commence on the north line of a certain tract at the west line of the grantee's land so to include the property in controversy. Basham v. Stude (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 662.

76. Innocent purchasers.—See note under Art. 1104.

77. Reformation, grounds of.—Where a grantor inadvertently included land not intended by either party to be conveyed, the court may reform the deed so as to include only such land as was intended to be conveyed. Elder v. First Nat. Bank, 91 T. 423, 44 S. W. 85.

A mistake in law as to the effect of a provision in a deed held not to authorize a reformation thereof. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94.

Grantor in a deed from which by mutual mistake a reservation of merchantable pine timber was omitted will be granted relief in equity as against grantee and also as against a third person who purchased the timber with notice of the mistake. Mattex v. Davis (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 169.

In absence of evidence to show that it was grantor's intention to include plaintiffs as grantees, held, that the court could not reform a deed so as to vest in plaintiffs title to an additional tract of land conveyed. Bonville v. Dum (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1179.

That a grantee obtained the conveyance by promising to execute a contract to reconvey, which he afterwards failed and refused to perform, held not ground for reforming the deed so as to insert such agreement. May v. Cearley (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 165.

Equitable reformation of a deed, made by mutual mistake of the parties, by which land actually sold is not conveyed. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

A mistake in the description of a deed will only be corrected in equity, where it is mutual to all the parties. Id.

Equity will correct a mutual mistake in the description of a deed by a married woman, conveying the homestead or her separate property, if the deed is otherwise executed as required by law. Id.

Plaintiff held not entitled to a decree correcting the description in a deed, where the mistake was single to himself and resulted from his own carelessness. Cole v. Kjellberg (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 120.

To justify the reformation of a deed on the ground of mistake, the mistake must be a mutual mistake of both parties, and contrary to the intention of both parties. Dickey v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1181.

78. Conditions precedent.—Where an owner of two lots is deceived by a third person into believing that his deed conveys but one lot, and the purchaser is without knowledge of the deception, before the owner is entitled to any relief, he must return the consideration. Horwitz v. La Roche (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1146.

79. Laches.—The grantee's successors cannot, after 25 years, have the deed reformed because the grantors have orally recognized their claim to the land intended to be conveyed by such conveyance, having been induced by the grantee or his successors not having materially changed their condition. Mathews v. Benevides, 15 C. A. 475, 45 S. W. 31.

The rule that an equitable trust is not stale, so long as recognized by trustee, does not apply, where 25 years have elapsed since the deed conveyed the land to the grantor's successor. Taylor v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 985.

An equitable action to correct a mistake in a deed, brought more than 40 years after the date thereof, with no excuse pleaded or proved for such delay, will be deemed a stale demand. Williams v. Mathews & Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 581.

80. Pleadings.—See Title 37, Chapter 3.

81. Evidence.—See, also, notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

In a suit to reform a deed, held, that there was no error in directing a verdict for defendants. Bonville v. Dum (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1179.

A deed can be reformed only on clear and specific evidence. Id.

Evidence in trespass to try title, in which defendant sought to reform a deed by plaintiff and wife for mistake in describing the land, held to sustain a finding that plaintiff and wife knew when she executed the deed that it did not convey a certain tract. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

In a suit for reformation of a deed, evidence held to support findings that property was omitted by mutual mistake. Harry v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 697.

82. Relief.—The court in an action to cancel a deed held not empowered to substitute a valid condition in place of a condition working an avoidance of the instrument. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 262, 66 S. W. 94.

Art. 1104. [625] [549] Purchaser or creditor, without notice, not to be affected.—A conveyance, such as is described in the preceding article, shall not be good and effectual against a purchaser in good faith, without notice thereof and for a valuable consideration, nor against any creditor, unless such conveyance is acknowledged by the party who shall have signed or delivered it, or proved, in the manner required by law, and before some officer authorized by law to take such acknowl-

Art. 1105. [626] [550] Conveyance of the greater estate passes the less.—All alienations of real estate, made by any person purporting to pass or assure a greater right or estate than such person may lawfully pass or assure, shall operate as alienations of so much of the right and estate in such lands, tenements or hereditaments as such person might lawfully convey; but shall not pass or bar the residue of said right or estate purported to be conveyed or assured; nor shall the alienation of any particular estate on which any remainder may depend, whether such alienation be by deed or will, nor shall the union of such particular estate with the inheritance by purchase or by descent, so operate as to defeat, impair or in any wise affect such remainder. [Id. P. D. 997.]

Under this article if a life tenant or one for years should undertake to convey the entire fee his conveyance would operate only to the extent of transferring his own interest. Kennedy v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 253.

A deed stating the names of the grantees, all of whom were recited to be heirs of M., declared that they had sold and quitclaimed unto the grantee all their interest in the land described that, whereas one of the grantees was still a minor, the others bound themselves, their heirs, etc., to forever warrant and defend the premises against any claim that such minor, or any one for him, might set up to the described premises; it being expressly understood that the warranty only extends to any claim that the minor in the deed held, the grantees were all heirs of M. was mere descriptio personae, and that the deed should be construed as conveying all the title of the grantees to the land described from any source acquired, and was not limited to such rights as they may have received as heirs of M. Merriman v. Blalock, 56 C. A. 494, 121 S. W. 592.

A deed from a mother to her son remised, released, and quitclaimed to the son described property, to have and hold during his natural life, unless the same or some part thereof be sold by him or some creditor of his, in which event the title to immediately vest in his children, if living, or, if not living, in L., if living, or, if he then have no children and L. be dead, then in the heirs of L., and at the death of the son, if the title should still be in him, the same to become the property of his heirs. Held, that the limitation in the deed was a restriction on alienation and void as repugnant to the fee intended to be granted. Diamond v. Rotan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 196.

This result was not obviated by the provision of this article that the union of any particular estate with the inheritance by purchase or by descent shall not operate to defeat the remainder, since the purpose of the statute was to abolish the common-law technicalities regarding the characteristics of particular estates, essential to support a remainder, and to prevent such results from following the union of the particular estate with the inheritance in the same person, and in the present case there was an absorption of all the estates possible to be carved out of a fee-simple estate in the son. [Id.]

Art. 1106. [627] [551] An estate deemed a fee simple, when.—Every estate in lands which shall hereafter be granted, conveyed or devised to one, although other words heretofore necessary at common law to transfer an estate in fee simple be not added, shall be deemed a fee simple, if a less estate be not limited by express words or do not appear to have been granted, conveyed or devised by construction or operation of law. [Id. P. D. 999.]

Deed or quitclaim.—See note under Art. 1107.

Annuities.—Where a deed contemplated that payment of interest on purchase-money notes should continue during the joint lives of the grantees and the life of the survivor by way of an annuity, the survivor may recover the entire annuity, and not merely a moiety thereof. Kern v. Grimminger (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1068.

Conveyance of mortgaged property.—When mortgagee acquires title of a vendee from mortgagor, mortgagor has no equity of redemption. Harris v. Masterson, 91 T. 171, 41 S. W. 482.

Where mortgagor allowed mortgagee's notes to sell the land, and took the purchaser's notes in satisfaction of the mortgage debt, and deeds purchaser his interest in the land, the mortgage is satisfied. Wilkens v. Potts (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 275.

Estates or interests created, in general.—A. conveyed by a deed a tract of land to the heirs of B. and his wife then being alive. The consideration was paid by B. and wife, who sold it and executed a deed therefor to another, their children joining in the deed. Afterwards the heirs of A. conveyed the land to another. Held, that the title of A. was divested by the first conveyance, and no interest descended to his heirs. Baker v. Heirs of Wyllis, 56 T. 212.

A deed containing no words of defeasance, conveying land in trust for the sole use and benefit of parties named therein in proportion to the debts specified as being due to each, was a mortgage, conveying the absolute title, to be disposed of by the trustee as the beneficiaries may direct or approve, and this without the aid of a court of equity. Catlett v. Starr, 70 T. 485, 7 S. W. 844.
A conveyance of a part of a tract of land surveyed but not patented operates as a conveyance by estoppel of the legal and equitable title to the part conveyed, and the issuance of the patent to the grantor. Alternately v. Stone, 81 T. 430, 16 S. W. 1162.

As to the effect of the word "grant," see Parish v. White, 24 S. W. 572, 5 C. A. 71.

A deed may be made to take effect on grantor's death. Jenkins v. Adcock, 5 C. A. 466, 25 S. W. 951 (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 577.

A deed with general covenants of warranty held to pass title vested in grantor as survivor of community. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Deavenport, 16 C. A. 253, 41 S. W. 399.

Where a deed to two was silent as to interest conveyed, the fact that one grantee afterwards conveyed an undivided interest in 40 acres of the tract held not to raise the presumption that the interest conveyed was the whole interest taken. Wade v. Boyd, 24 C. A. 452, 69 S. W. 369.

A deed to two was silent as to the interest conveyed to each, the fact that one conveyed an undivided interest of 40 acres in the land did not rebut the presumption arising from the first deed that the grantees therein owned the land in equal shares.

A warranty deed with a stipulation that at the death of the grantee the property or the proceeds thereof remaining in her should revert to the bodily heirs of the grantor, leaves no interest in the grantor subject to execution for his debts. O'Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 845.

The policy of holding the fee in abeyance is not favored in law, and it will be considered as having vested upon its first opportunity. Id.

A deed from father to son "granted, bargained, sold and conveyed by and conveyed and by these presents do grant, bargain, sell and convey unto the said (son) all that section, lot, tract or parcel of land, etc." The habendum clause recited, "to have and to hold all and singular the said premises unto the said (son) his heirs and assigns forever." The warranty clause recited, "and I hereby bind myself, my heirs, executors and administrators to warrant and forever defend all and singular the said premises unto the said (son) his heirs and assigns forever." The deed also provided that "the land herein conveyed to be accepted by the said (son) as a portion of my estate at its estimated value whenever my estate shall be divided among my heirs after my death as one of my heirs." Held, that the clause "land herein conveyed to be accepted by the said (son)" meant that the land was to be accepted by him at the delivery of the deed; it being the intent to vest a present estate in the son at its delivery as an advancement to be accounted for whenever the father's estate was distributed at the value of the land when it was given to the son. Burgess v. McComms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 532.

One of the essential qualities of a fee-simple estate is that it is one of inheritance which passes, upon the death of the ancestor, to all the heirs generally, and not to a particular heir or set of heirs. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

A freehold estate is assignable by the nature of the estate, and does not rest upon permission from the grantor, the grantee having an independent, as is the case with the interest of a purchaser of school lands before he acquires title. Id.

By one clause in his will a testator devised as follows: Unto my son Alexander my bodily heirs M. and A. certain described land. In a subsequent clause the will provided that M. and A. should not sell a particular part of the land devised and at their death it should revert to their heirs. Held, that M. and A. acquired a legal freehold estate, and the subsequent paragraph is a restraint upon alienation and therefore void. Seay v. Cockrell 102 T. 273, 280, 115 S. W. 1169.

A deed from a mother to her son remised, released, and quitclaimed to the son described property, to have and hold during his natural life, unless the same or some part thereof be sold by him or some creditor of his, in which event the title to immediately vest in the remainder, if living, in L., if both living, or, if not living, in L., and if the said children and L. be dead, then in the heirs of L., and at the death of the son, if the title should still be in him, the same to become the property of his heirs. Held, that the limitation in the deed was a restriction on alienation and void as repugnant to the fee interest of the son. Ott v. Dillaud & Rotan (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 481.

Under a deed containing a limitation in over in a certain event, held, that the grantee after the grantor's death became seised of the fee-simple title by a merger of estates so as to avoid the effect of the limitation. Id.

Title 24)  CONVEYANCES  Art. 1106

A deed for a valuable consideration held to divest the grantors of the entire fee. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 357, rehearing denied Id., 1187.

Life estates.—The holder of a life estate in land may sell such interest and the purchaser may enter and hold the land until the death upon which the estate terminates. May v. Town Site Co. 83 T. 502, 18 S. W. 595.

Where a life tenant conveys land to another, the grantee takes an estate limited by the life of Morton v. Eddins, 15 C. A. 38, 44 S. W. 205.

A sale of a life estate does not terminate it where the title vested in the life tenant is not expressly made contingent on her occupancy or retention of title. Simonton v. White (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 208.

provisions of deed from father to his married daughter, conveying life estate to grantee with remainder in fee. Such a devise does not terminate the life estate. Simonton v. White, 93 T. 59, 53 S. W. 335, 77 Am. St. Rep. 824.

After the death of the parties to a deed absolute in form and the lapse of nearly 60 years, presumptions in derogation of legal title conveyed thereby cannot be indulged. Laguerrenne v. Farrar, 25 C. A. 404, 61 S. W. 963.

A deed conveyed to a husband in trust for his use for life, and in trust to the holder of the remnant in fee for such persons as she might appoint by will or deed, with a provision giving her power of disposition during life, the proceeds to be invested in other property to be held to the same uses. Held, that she took but a life estate, with a general power of appointment. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1165.

A life estate is not enlarged because it is coupled with a general power of appointment. Id.

A deed construed, and held, that one acquired but a life estate. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917, rehearing denied Id., 1187.

Vested remainder.—A deed to a husband provided that he should hold the legal estate as trustee for his wife during her life, and in trust to hold the remainder thereof in fee for such persons as she may appoint either by will or deed, and in default of appointment, then the children of her issue at law. Held, that the children took a vested remainder. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 1162.

A deed held to create a vested remainder. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917, rehearing denied Id., 1187.

Limitation to heirs, issue, etc.—In a deed to a person for the term of his natural life, and at his death to his lawful issue forever, the words "lawful issue" thus employed are words of purchase and not of limitation. Hancock v. Butler, 21 T. 804. See Tendick v. Evetts, 33 T. 275.

According to the common law, when a person takes an estate of freehold under a deed, will or other writing, with a limitation in the instrument by way of remainder of an interest of the same quantity to his heirs or the heirs of his body, as a class of persons to take in succession, the limitation to the heirs entitles the ancestor to the whole estate. Hawkins v. Lea, 22 T. 544; O'Brien v. Hilburn, 23 T. 616.

The word "heirs" denotes a class of persons who take by succession from generation to generation. Brooks v. Evetts, 33 T. 722.

A deed conveying property to certain grantees, their "heirs and assigns," construed to grant a fee in the use of the word "assigns." Johnson v. Morton, 25 C. A. 596, 67 S. W. 790.

The granting clause of a deed was to the grantor's son H. and to his "heirs," "on the terms and conditions hereafter stated," the habendum clause to H. and his "heirs," the special warranty to H. and his "heirs," and the "terms and conditions hereafter stated" were: "The intention   * is to vest sufficient title in     to the  property so that he can, during his life, use, occupy, and enjoy it     as completely as though he had a fee simple, and at his death his children are to have a fee simple, or if he die without children or if the title   is to revert in us   if we are living; if we are not living, then according to the descent and distribution laws   of such of our heirs are to receive and have the same interests and rights that their progeny ever hereafter shall have a fee simple title." Held, that the rule in Shelley's Case did not apply, so as to vest the fee in H.; it appearing from the subsequent terms and conditions referred to in the granting clause, and which are to be read as if incorporated in it, that the word "heirs" therein is used, not in its legal sense, but in the sense of "children" or "issue" of H. living at his death, who are to take by purchase, as remaindermen. Judgment (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 673, reversed. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 105 T. 15, 123 S. W. 15.

The words "children" and "issue" in a deed will not be read as meaning "heirs," where not to do so will carry into effect the lawful intention of the grantor that the grantee take only a life estate, and his children living at his death the remainder; while to do so would defeat such intention. Id.

The rule in Shelley's Case is a rule of property in Texas. Cottrell v. Moreman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 124.

Under this statute a devise to an adopted child "to have and to hold to him    and his lawfully begotten children" is a devise in fee; the will having been executed by an illegitimate person and drawn by one unlearned in the law. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

Rule in Shelley's Case held not to apply to a conveyance to a grantee and to her heirs by direct line of descent, with remainder to such heirs, so that the grantee took only a life estate. Pace v. Pease (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 126.

Where a deed conveyed land to a person for her natural life, with remainder to the heirs of her body and a limitation over in default of issue under the rule in Shelley's Case, she took a fee-simple title absolutely in the land. Peters v. Rice (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1151.

Conditional limitations.—A conditional limitation in a deed is valid. Lockridge v. McCommon, 90 T. 234, 58 S. W. 33.

The distinction between estate on limitation and one on condition, stated. Diamond v. Rotan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 196.

Accrual of cause of action by remaindermen.—Where the holder of a life estate has sold the land in question, and has by that sale conveyed the land to a remainderman, who cannot sue for the land until the tenant’s death. Simonson v. White (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 265.

Exceptions and reservations.—Where a deed reserved streets in certain land belonging to a city in the chain of title, though not a necessary link, the city is bound to the reservation, such deed is admissible to show the power of attorney under which it was executed. The city cannot object to a want of power in the attorney to make the reservation. Waco Bridge Co. v. City of Waco, 55 T. 320, 20 S. W. 137.

Rescission in a deed held not to nullify a prior reservation of a tract contracted to be sold to another. Bartell v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 631.

A grantor held stopped to claim certain interest in land excepted in deed: the excepted lot held not to be a part of the grant. McDaniell v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1007.

Written defeasance, accompanying deed, construed, and held to recognize entire title, and not merely half interest in grantor. Turner v. Cochran, 20 C. A. 549, 70 S. W. 1024.

Conditions and restrictions.—Under the law of Mexico a bequest to one without power of alienation, or with limitation over to another, conveyed an absolute estate to the grantor, and to conditions necessary substitution being void. Gortario v. Cantu, 7 T. 35; Buford v. Holiman, 10 T. 500, 60 Am. Dec. 223.

Deceased by will bequeathed to his son certain real estate, with the restriction that up to the age of twenty-five years he should only have the right to dispose of the revenue therefrom, and after reaching the age of twenty-five years the property should pass free from all charges to the daughter of deceased. The son mortgaged the property and died before arriving at the age of twenty-five years. Held, that under the sale of the property in satisfaction of the mortgage after the death of the son the purchaser acquired no title. Laval v. Staffel, 64 T. 370.

A parent, aged and infirm, conveyed by warranty deed real estate to her son and granted the interest to be held, annually, in quarterly instalments, a designated sum for her support, and if not paid it should be lawful, whenever the grantor elected to do so, to take possession of the granted premises, and enjoy the property “as in her former estate.” The grantee also signed the instrument, which contained a covenant for the payment of the instalments. The parent died after the first instalment fell due, and which was not paid. Held, 1st, the payment of the instalments was a condition subsequent, enforceable at the option of the grantor; 2d, the grantor having died without having claimed a forfeiture, the title remained with the grantee, subject to the payment to the estate of the instalment past due. Berryman v. Schumaker, 67 T. 312, 3 S. W. 46.

Deed made in consideration of support of grantor during life, reserving a vendor's lien and the right of grantor to live on and use the land during his life. If agreements concluded with, or held an estate upon condition, and upon breach trespass to try title will lie. Mistreatment of grantor a breach. Alford v. Alford, 1 C. A. 245, 21 S. W. 283.

A condition subsequent in a deed conveying land, see Odessa Imp. Co. v. Dawson, 24 S. W. 576, 5 C. A. 487.

Right of forfeiture of breach of a condition subsequent held not to destroy the estate of the grantor. Id.

Where a deed provides that property conveyed shall be used solely for a certain purpose, to revert if not so used, use thereof for a purpose in addition to that specified held not to work a forfeiture of the title. Gleigher v. Smith, 26 C. A. 167, 62 S. W. 1086. Where a conveyance is conditional subsequent, subject to condition subsequent, and with the grantor cannot complain of an abandonment of the property and the intrusion of a trespasser. Maddox v. Adair (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 811.

Where a grantor conveys property for a school, and has not objected to the school established, he cannot claim a forfeiture after the discontinuance of the school, on the ground that the grantees failed to establish the school required by the condition. Id.

Where a grantor conveys realty for the maintenance of a school to increase the value of adjacent property, he cannot insist on a forfeiture, after the school has been maintained until he has disposed of his adjacent property. Id.

Title held not to revert to the grantor on failure to perform certain covenants constituting a part of the consideration for a deed. Elliott v. Elliott, 50 C. A. 272, 108 S. W. 21b, 1142.

Where the agreement of a son to care for and support his father during life in payment for land conveyed to him was made in good faith, the deed will not be set aside because the son subsequently changed his mind and failed or refused to perform such agreement; such conduct not amounting to fraudulent fraud. Selari v. Selari (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 997.

A deed to trustees of a collegiate institute, which provides that a presbytery shall incorporate and perpetually operate a college by duly appointed trustees, that, in the event the presbytery fails to incorporate and to furnish a principal in the college free of charge to the local patrons thereof for five consecutive years, the property conveyed shall revert to the grantor, but, in the event that the presbytery shall incorporate and perpetually maintain the college, the grantor binds himself to defend the title, etc., contains only two express conditions of absolute forfeiture of the interest conveyed, consisting of the failure of the presbytery to incorporate and of the failure to furnish free a principal in the college for five consecutive years, and a subsequent abandonment of the college to maintain a school continuously, without re-entry of the estate conveyed; the provision relating to that subject being a covenant. Glen Rose College Institute v. Glen Rose Independent School Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 379.
If there is a limitation clause in a deed which is irreconcilable with its consistent grantor's language, and warranty clauses, it should be rejected, and the intention of the parties determined from the other clauses. Burgess v. McCommas (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 562.

Where plaintiff contracted to sell land to defendant, defendant agreeing to erect a building to cost a specified amount within a certain time, but the deed made in pursuance of the contract was silent as to the building but retained a vendor's lien for the price, the agreement to build was a covenant, and not a condition subsequent, and hence plaintiff's remedy for a breach was an action for damages, and not for cancellation. Harris v. Raiter (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 764.

Apt and appropriate words must be used or a right of re-entry reserved, to create a condition in a deed, breach of which will work a forfeiture. Id.

Chapter W.

The assignee of the grantor in a deed containing a conditional limitation could, upon a breach of this condition, maintain an action of trespass to try title and for the possession of the land covered by such deed. Id.

Enlargement of lesser grant into fee.—When land is charged with a trust which cannot be performed, or where a direct interest on a deed to be done which cannot be accomplished, unless a greater estate than the one for life be taken, the devise will be enlarged to a fee. Id.

The court will enlarge the estate taken by a trustee into a fee simple estate if that be necessary to enable him to execute the trust, though the trust deed contains no words of limitation. Montgomery v. Trueheart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 284.

Trust charged on land.—See notes under Art. 1103.

Notice.—When by the recitals in recorded deeds in the chain of title it appears that a resulting trust exists in favor of parties not named, the purchaser is put upon inquiry. Montgomery v. Noyes, 73 T. 398, 11 S. W. 138.

Covenants.—See notes under Arts. 1108, 1112, and 1113.

Art. 1107. [628] [552] Form of conveyance.—The following form, or the same in substance, shall be sufficient as a conveyance of the fee simple of any real estate with a covenant of general warranty, viz.:

"The State of Texas,

"County of ——.

"Know all men by these presents, that I, ——, of the —— [give name of city, town or county], in the state aforesaid, for and in consideration of —— dollars, to me in hand paid by ——, have granted, sold and conveyed, and by these presents do grant, sell and convey unto the said ——, of the [give name of city, town or county], in the state of ——, all that certain [describe the premises]. To have and to hold the above described premises, together with all and singular the rights and appurtenances thereto in any wise belonging, unto the said ——, his heirs or assigns forever. And I do hereby bind myself, my heirs, executors and administrators to warrant and forever defend all and singular the said premises unto the said ——, his heirs and assigns, against every person whomsoever, lawfully claiming or to claim the same, or any part thereof.

"Witness my hand, this —— day of ——, A. D. 19—.

"Signed and delivered in the presence of ——.

[Id. P. D. 1000.]"
A deed in which a blank is left for the name of the grantee, and delivered to another with the blank filled in, is a conveyance of all that is covered by the grantor's title to the grantee, and the deed is not res judicata against the grantee, or against his assigns, in the absence of evidence of the conveyance to the grantee, or to his assign.

Covenants by grantor's interest.—A conveyance by the grantor of all his right, title and interest in land purchased from a named grantor, as it may more fully appear by the deed, and not by any other evidence, is void. Smith v. Westall, 76 T. 595, 13 S. W. 546; Harris v. Brolles (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 421; Clopper v. Saye, 14 C. A. 296, 37 S. W. 363.

An instrument describing lands and signed by a party, which had in its beginning and parts the formal portions of a deed, but is without the acknowledgment of the receipt of the consideration without stating from whom, which described land, but failed to state for what purpose and to designate a vendee, is not a deed.

A deed was named "B. P. R."-Deeds for the land, describing it as in the patent, named the patentees "B. R. R." The variance was immaterial. Richardson v. Powell, 33 T. 588, 32 S. W. 622.

A recorded instrument, executed by the record owner of land, stating that one A. is an equal owner of the land, and empowering him to sell and convey one-half of the same, is admissible in evidence to try title by the heirs of A. against persons who merely rely upon their possession. Wallace v. Pruitt, 29 S. W. 728, 1 C. A. 231.

An assignment of a deed for land and a relinquishment of all the privileges thereunto belonging operates as a conveyance. Threadgill v. Bickerstaff, 26 S. W. 739, 7 C. A. 469.

Where the name of the grantee does not appear in the deed it may be shown by the recitals in the deed. Vineyard v. O'Connor, 90 T. 55, 36 S. W. 424.

A deed from Anton Metzger, Mattfield v. Cotton, 19 C. A. 556, 47 S. W. 549.

It is sufficient to describe the grantees in a deed as the heirs of certain persons. Hill v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 257.

A deed, signed by the grantor as "Owen, Mullins & Co., by H. Agent," does not disclose on its face that it was executed by a firm. Harris v. Bryson & Hargrove, 34 C. A. 332, 30 S. W. 105.

The fact that the grantor in a deed is described as "Sr." in the acknowledgment and does not add that appurtenant to his name in signing the deed held immaterial. Kane v. Siohars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 587.

A written instrument which in consideration of sincere friendship vests the grantee "and family with power to keep, hold, possess, occupy, cultivate and to retain and to bar and to exclude all persons from one certain place or improvement made by the grantor "on a certain tract or parcel of land, known as," etc., "having bargained with" D. "for the purchase of said place" and with power "in case of extreme need" to sell "said improvement and to sign" the grantor's name, only authorized the grantor to sell the improvements on the land, and did not attempt to pass the land. Rushing v. Lanier (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 528.

2. Private seisin.—See Title 121.

3. Deed or will.—See note under Art. 1111.

4. Deed or executory contract.—A deed which purports to convey immediately the title and interest of the vendor to the vendee is an executory contract. Upon default the vendor may elect to enforce the contract of sale by suit for the purchase money, or to repudiate the agreement and recover the land. Summerhill v. Hanner, 72 T. 254, 9 S. W. 581.

A deed absolute in form, but reserving the vendor's lien for the purchase money, evidences an executory contract, which the grantor may rescind on default in payment of the purchase money. Graham v. West (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 920.

An instrument declaring that the sole owners in fee of the land "hereinafter conveyed," as the sole surviving heirs of H., to whom the land was patented, appointed G. & Co. attorneys in fact to recover the land, they to bear all expenses incident thereto in consideration of which, they sold and conveyed to G. & Co. an undivided one-third in the land to have and to hold unto the said G. & Co., their heirs and assigns forever, etc., is a present conveyance of the one-third interest in the land, and not a mere executory contract of the same as is void in consideration of all that is excluded from the interest thereby to be recovered by G. & Co. Wadsworth v. Groom (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1156.

A deed absolute on its face cannot be construed as a contract for a contingent interest in the land, in the absence of evidence of a contract different from that imported by the terms of the deed. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

5. Deed, mortgage, or conditional sale.—In a suit by husband and wife to establish as a mortgage a deed absolute on its face, which was executed and delivered by them conveying the property of the wife, the real intent of the husband and wife at the time of executing the deed, which was not completed until its delivery, and the intent with which the instrument was received by the party named as vendee, must govern. If it was delivered and received with an intention and understanding by the parties that it should only be a security for a debt, such as its character, whatever contrary intention the husband and the vendee may have had prior to the delivery of the deed. And if the husband represented to the wife that the instrument should be only a mortgage, and she, thinking that the instrument, executed with that intention, it was afterwards delivered by the husband to the vendees, they having knowledge of the wife's understanding and intention, it will be a mortgage only. Davis v. Browse, 59 T. 13.

Where a deed was executed for the purpose of securing the payment of a debt, the grantee who sold the land conveyed was compelled to pay the grantor the proceeds of the sale in excess of the debt due. Wiseman v. Baylor, 69 T. 63, 6 S. W. 743.

A deed absolute in form may be shown to be a mortgage. Gray v. Shelby, 88 T. 405, 18 S. W. 809.

A plaintiff seeking to have a deed absolute in form declared a mortgage should offer to do equity by offering to pay the debt secured by the mortgage, the existence of which he must show. Moore v. Choate, 85 T. 239, 20 S. W. 64.

A deed absolute in form, but given to secure a subsisting debt, is a mortgage. Lapowski v. Smith, 29 S. W. 557, 1 C. A. 391.

An instrument in the form of a deed may be shown by parol evidence to be in fact a mortgage as between the parties. Hawkins v. Willard (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 365.

Instruments constituting mortgage, see Williamson v. Huffman, 19 C. A. 314, 47 S. W. 276; Jefferies v. Hartel (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 653; Blake v. Lowry, 43 C. A. 17, 93 S. W. 521; Robinson v. State, 63 Cr. R. 212, 139 S. W. 973; Hume v. Le Compte, 145 S. W. 924.

Where property is conveyed, and the vendee immediately assumes obligations for the erection of a building thereon, and conveys the property to the original owner, and takes his note for the price of the house, and reserves a vendor's lien, the conveyance and reconvey constitute a mortgage to secure the payment of the notes. West End Town Co. v. Griggs, 93 T. 451, 56 S. W. 49.

Where the owners of land gave a deed thereof to one who had made advances to them, and the premises were redeemed, notes being given for the amount of the advances and a vendor's lien reserved, the transaction amounted to a mortgage. Butler v. Carter (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 632.

Where a son without consideration conveys land to his father, who, to secure a debt of the son, conveys to the creditor, who executes a contract to reconvey on payment of the debt, the property is a mortgage. Schultze v. Schultz, (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

A deed, executed as a mortgage, cannot be converted into a deed by a subsequent parol agreement. Kellar v. Kirby, 34 C. A. 404, 79 S. W. 82.

An absolute deed and a separate agreement to reconvey amount to a conditional sale. Goodbar & Co. v. Bloom, 43 C. A. 434, 96 S. W. 657.

Ordinarily the test of whether a transaction is a mortgage or a sale with a contract to repurchase is the existence of a debt. Hall v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 489.

Whether a conveyance of a business homestead is an absolute deed, or a mortgage which would be void, does not depend on the intention of the grantor and his wife, regardless of the grantee's intent. Nagle v. Simmank, 54 C. A. 432, 116 S. W. 862.

Where it is in doubt whether an instrument, given to secure a debt, is a mortgage or a conditional sale, equity will regard it as a mortgage. Moorhead v. Ellison, 56 C. A. 444, 120 S. W. 1049; Hume v. Le Compte (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 934.

An absolute deed given for a pre-existing debt will be held a mortgage, unless the debt to the extent of the consideration is extinguished and the evidence surrendered. Harrison v. Hogue (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 118.

That the grantor in an absolute deed understood it to be a mortgage is insufficient to establish the fact. Id.

A deed absolute on its face is a mortgage if from all the circumstances such was the intention of the parties. Id.

The assessment and payment of taxes by a mortgagee under a mortgage in the form of a deed would not change the mortgage into a deed. Hume v. Le Compte (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 934.

A conditional sale of property with the right to repurchase, but without any indebtedness or obligation on the part of the vendor to repay the purchase money, is not a mortgage. Parks v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 794.

In the absence of anything to the contrary, an instrument purporting to pass an absolute title is a deed. Kirby v. National Loan & Investment Co., 22 C. A. 257, 54 S. W. 1081.

The evidence to show that a deed, absolute in form, was intended as a mortgage, must be clear, unequivocal, and satisfactory. Harrison v. Hogue (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 118.

Estates and interests of parties.—When legal and equitable title are merged in assignee of mortgage, he may sue for the debt, but the land is the primary fund. Harris v. Masterson, 91 T. 171, 41 S. W. 482.

In foreclosure of an unregistered mortgage against a subsequent purchaser, he is not entitled to have his vendor brought in to answer in damages for false representations as to title. Oak Cliff College v. Young Ladies & Armstrong (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 610.

Under an absolute deed given as security, the legal title is vested in the grantee so as to entitle him to exercise all the rights of an absolute owner against everyone except the grantor. Fife v. Borough (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 649.

At common law a mortgage conveyed the legal title and the right of possession, and nothing was left to the mortgagor except the right of redemption. Barron v. San Angelo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 142.

The rights of parties under a mortgage in the form of an absolute deed held the same as under an ordinary mortgage. Hume v. Le Compte (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 924.

8. Deed or bond for title.—A bond for title is an instrument which evidences the contract for the sale of lands, and is substantially an agreement by the vendor to make to the vendee a title to the land. When the purchase money is paid it vests in the purchaser the estate to which the bond was made. A bond for title may, unless made in any action wherein his right to the possession may be drawn in question, be prior to the legal title of the vendor, and a court of equity will compel a specific performance by decreeing a conveyance by the vendor of the legal title. Vardeman v. Lawson, 17 T. 10.

The use of the word "quitclaim" does not restrict the conveyance, if other language employed in the instrument indicates the intention to convey the land itself. Garrett v. Christopher, 74 T. 453, 12 S. W. 67, 15 Am. St. Rep. 850.

Where a deed purports to convey in the name of the one who makes it, and does not recite any agency, it may be held to pass whatever right the party had, whether as agent or principal. Bennett v. Virginia Land & Cattle Co., 1 C. A. 321, 21 S. W. 126.

A deed conveying the grantor's right, title, interest and claim only is a mere quitclaim. Daugherty v. Yates, 13 C. A. 446, 35 S. W. 937; Hunter v. Eastham, 55 T. 648, 68 S. W. 103; Crow v. Coke County, 34 C. A. 598, 78 S. W. 983; Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 660; Smith v. Cook, 145 S. W. 25; Schnittou v. Dunham, 145 S. W. 941.

A quitclaim deed purporting to be given only to release a vendor's lien held to convey other lands described, which had not previously been sold, and on which there was no vendor's lien. Sanborn v. Crowds Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 444.

A quitclaim deed construed, in connection with a prior deed between the same parties, and held, that the quitclaim deed did not operate to convey certain lots included therein by reason of interlineations. Beaty v. Crowds Bros. & Co., 100 T. 605, 29 S. W. 989.

A deed stating the names of the grantees, all of whom were recited to be the heirs of M., declared that they had sold and quitclaimed unto the grantee all their interest in the land described that, whereas a recital the land of the grantees was still a minor, the others bound themselves, their heirs, etc., to forever warrant and defend the premises against any claim that such minor, or any one for him, might set up to the described premises; it being expressly understood that the warranty only extends to any claim of the minor grantees, that the deed was not a mere quitclaim conveying a mere chance of title, but conveyed the land described. Merriman v. Blaisdell, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A release held not to have the effect of quitting the claimants. Beauty v. Thos. Goggan & Bros. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 631.

10. Innocent purchasers.—See note under Art. 1104.

11. Atteration.—Where the original deed shows interlineations on its face, the date when they were made, and whether they were fraudulently made or not, are questions for the consideration of the jury; the transfer and record thereof being more than thirty years old. McWhirter v. Allen, 1 C. A. 420, 20 S. W. 157.

Interlineation of a clause in a deed after execution, without the maker's consent, held to materially change the contract of the parties and invalidate the deed. Kalteyer v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 452.

12. Recital of consideration.—It seems that the recital of a consideration is not necessary to the validity of a deed. Baker v. Westcott, 72 T. 120, 11 S. W. 157.

A recital in a deed as to its consideration is prima facie evidence on the question. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1089, reversing judgment on rehearing (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 810.

13. Recitals as to parties.—A deed perfect in every respect except that the name of the grantee was not inserted, the purchaser having been authorized to fill the blank to himself or another, was held to be sufficient. Threadgill v. Butler, 60 T. 599; McCown v. Wheeler, 20 T. 375; Viser v. Rice, 33 T. 139.

A deed to a married woman by her name previous to her marriage, her identity being shown, is valid to convey the land. Wilkerson v. Schoonmaker, 77 T. 615, 14 S. W. 233, 19 Am. St. Rep. 803.

In equity a deed made to or by a partnership in the firm name will pass the title to land. Frost v. Wolf, 77 T. 465, 14 S. W. 440, 19 Am. St. Rep. 761.

A deed by partners to a corporation of which they are the only stockholders passes title to the corporation. Sayers v. T. L. & M. Co., 78 T. 244, 14 S. W. 573.

Where a deed purports to convey in the name of one who makes it, and does not recite, as may nevertheless be held to pass without being necessary to it to have been by him, whether an agent or principal. Bennett v. & Land & Cattle Co., 1 C. A. 321, 21 S. W. 126.

Separate property, created by deed with covenants of warranty, and acknowledging a valuable consideration, such deed should be avoided by the fact that the husband had not finished paying for the land. Swearingen v. Reed, 21 S. W. 383, 2 C. A. 364.

Sale and delivery of deed with blanks for grantee and consideration, with authority to grantee to fill up, with delivery of deed by grantee to another with blanks unfilled, and possession by the grantee and his heirs, purchasers, is sufficient to authorize heirs of second grantee to recover against privies of first grantor. Runge v. Schleicher (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 423.

Where a married woman whose name did not appear in a deed as grantor signed, and acknowledged the same, the deed was held to be inoperative. Stone v. Sledge, 26 S. W. 1068, 87 T. 49, 47 Am. St. Rep. 65. See Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460.

The body of a deed described the grantors as "Francisco Balli" and "Tomasita Garza," his wife. The names signed to the deed, however, were "Franco Balli y Cabasos," and "Tomasita Garza," both signing by mark. The deed was properly acknowledged by the wife as "Tomasita Garza," whom the officer certified to be the wife of "Franco Balli y Cabasos," parties to the deed, but was not acknowledged by the husband. It was shown that the abbreviation was an ordinary abbreviation for "Francisco," and that "y Cabasos" was used to denote that the mother of the person was named "Cabasos." Held, that the variance in the names was not fatal to the deed. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 131 S. W. 552.

Where a deed recited that the grantor, in consideration of $600 to him in hand paid, the receipt whereof was thereby acknowledged by F., did thereby bargain, sell, and guarantee the title to a specified parcel of land, the title to which the grantor guaranteed he would forever defend against all claims whatsoever to F., his heirs and assigns, etc., is substantially the same that F. was the grantee. Snow v. Gallup, 57 C. A. 572, 123 S. W. 222.

14. Construction.—Every part of the deed should be given effect to if this can be done; but if conflicting intentions are apparent on its face, the object of the grant being considered, effect shall be given to what may appear to be the controlling object of the grantor. Pugh v. Mayor's, T. 191.

When there is a repugnance between a general and particular description in a deed the latter will control, unless the real intent can be gathered from the whole description. Cullers v. Platt, 81 T. 268, 16 S. W. 1003.

The field notes in a deed must be construed in their entirety, so as to give effect to all of the parts thereof. Chew v. Zweib, 29 C. A. 311, 69 S. W. 297.

Any mistake in the description contained in the deed should be corrected, and the same mode to conform to the intention of the parties. Laufer v. Moppins, 44 C. A. 472, 99 S. W. 199.

Recitals in a deed concerning former conveyances are evidence of the facts stated and sufficient prima facie to establish them. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

The language of a deed must be construed against the grantors, in favor of the grantee, to convey the largest estate which the language can be construed to pass. Id.

Deeds should be construed so as to give effect when possible to the intent of the parties. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

A deed must be construed most strongly against the grantor, and forfeitures of the estate conveyed are not favored, and, where a deed is susceptible of any reasonable construction that will avoid a forfeiture, that construction will be adopted. Glen Rose Collegiate Institute v. Glen Ross Independent School Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 379.

If from the whole instrument there be a doubt whether or not grantor intended to convey land or his right to it, it becomes a question of fact to be determined from attendant circumstances. (Civ. App.) Breen v. Morehead, 126 S. W. 650, judgment affirmed 104 T. 254, 136 S. W. 1047.

In the construction of a deed, all parts must be considered together, and its different clauses should not be construed as repugnant, if, by any reasonable interpretation, they can be reconciled so as to give effect to each. Burgess v. McCommas (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 382.

In the construction of deeds, the inquiry must be confined to the intention of the parties as gathered from the deed, and, where the description of property contained in a deed is intelligible, its effect cannot be changed or varied by construction, although it is plain that the terms or description used were not intended. Wadsworth v. Vinyard (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 177.

In the construction of deeds, the parties to a conveyance of land have reduced their contract to writing in the form of a deed, the deed is to be taken, in the absence of fraud or mistake, as the final expression of their intention. Id.

Where a railroad company prepares right of way deeds which were thus signed by the grantors, they are to be most strictly construed against the grantee. Gladys City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. v. Right of Way Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 171.

In construing a deed the intent of the parties as shown by the instrument prevails, unless contrary is shown by extrinsic evidence. Heirs v. Williams (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 106.

The estate conveyed by a bill of sale is not enlarged by an inconsistent or repugnant habendum or warranty clause. Carter v. Clark & Boice Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 278.
A deed which is not attacked for fraud, accident, or mistake should be construed according to its tenor. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 639.

Where there is a repugnance between a general and a particular description, the latter controls; but, whenever possible, the real intention is to be gathered from the whole description. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 855. The clause will not be given effect so repugnant to a deed as to destroy it. Martin v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 156.

The entire deed should be read in such a way as to harmonize all its parts, if possible, and to give it that interpretation most nearly in keeping with the real intention of the parties. Id.

A falsity in the description does not vitiate the deed when from the whole the land conveyed may be ascertained certainly. Berry v. Wright, 14 T. 270.

Where land in a deed is described by number of acres, county and grantor owned, at the date of his grant, that or a less number of acres, the deed will convey the land, such facts being shown. When a larger number of acres is owned than that granted, the grantee becomes by the deed a co-owner or tenant in common with right of selection or partition. Flanagan v. Boggs, 46 T. 335; Wofford v. McKinnis, 53 T. 661; Sisneros, 22 T. 38; Patrick v. Sisney, 48 T. 379; Kingston v. Pickin, 46 T. 92; Wilson v. Smith, 50 T. 369; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 614; Rainbolt v. March, 52 T. 246; Davenport v. Chilton, 25 T. 519; Pressley v. Testard, 25 T. 201; Early v. Sterrett, 18 T. 116; Berry v. Wright, 14 T. 270; Blackburn v. McDade, 1 U. C. 368.

Description of land in a deed locating it in such manner that running one line will designate it and set it apart, and there is only one part of the survey where it could be so designated, is sufficient. Fletcher v. Ellis, 1 U. C. 661; Hubbard v. Cox, 76 T. 129, 13 S. W. 170.

The granting clause of a deed reciting that the grantor bargained, sold, etc., the entire and undivided one-half of “all his lands in Texas.” After describing several tracts in Texas owned by the grantor, it continued: “as well as all my lands or right to land of any kind and description, whether legal or equitable, in the state of Texas, or in any counties of such state.” Held, that the deed was an evidence of an undivided one-half interest in all the grantor’s land in this state. Witt v. Harlan, 66 T. 660, 2 S. W. 43.

Where the description in the deed given of the property to be conveyed is general in the granting clause, and is immediately followed in the same clause by an exception, which points out the particular property which is to be excluded from the grant, there is no repugnancy. When one purchased land, described in the deed in general terms as in the northeast corner of a larger tract, but also described by lines actually run by the surveyor and marked upon the ground, the actual survey must determine the locality of the land, and will control the general call for the unascertained corner of the larger tract. Koenigheim v. Miles, 67 T. 133, 2 S. W. 81.

A description of land contained in a deed is sufficient if it clearly designates the certificate by virtue of which the land was located and patented, and the deed on its face conveys all the land located and patented under that certificate. Bitner v. Land Co., 67 T. 341, 3 S. W. 301.

A defective description may be amended by reference to such other portions of the deed as may make clear the specific property intended to be conveyed. If the deed refers to another instrument for further description, it is competent to resort to it to ascertain the location and description of the property sold. Cleveland v. Simas, 69 T. 156, 6 S. W. 634.

A deed conveying a town lot which describes it only by the length and breadth thereof, but which, in addition, designates the particular property by describing the improvements thereon, they being the only improvements of like character in the town, is sufficient. Harkey v. Cain, 69 T. 146, 6 S. W. 637.

A deed conveying many tracts of land attempted to convey land by the following description: “Three hundred and twenty-four acres, Milton SSEY tract, in Polk county, to be surveyed at one hundred and seventy-five dollars.” Held, that the description considered in connection with other deeds in the line of the claimant’s title, which described more specifically the survey, sufficiently identified the land. Parrish v. Jackson, 69 T. 361, 3 S. W. 496.

When one who entered under a deed for a less quantity of land than 640 acres continues his possession until title is secured under the ten-year statute of limitations, the admission of the deed in evidence, which on its face is ambiguous as to the bounds of the land intended to be conveyed, becomes unimportant. Branch v. Baker, 70 T. 190, 7 S. W. 809.

The land was described as 200 acres, part of a designated league to be run off fronting 475 varas on the W. river and back for complement, field notes to be attached to the deed not disposed of. Held, that the description was sufficiently certain, and the deed was not impaired as a recorded instrument by reason of the field notes not being attached. Nye v. Moody, 70 T. 454, 8 S. W. 606.

A deed referring to a patent accompanying it or to other well-known deeds, and conveying the tract not disposed of, sufficiently describes the land. Land Co. v. Chisolm, 71 T. 522, 9 S. W. 479; Steinbeck v. Stone, 53 T. 382; Hart v. McDade, 61 T. 208; Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 135; Wright v. Lassiter, 71 T. 640, 10 S. W. 295.

A deed for “two hundred acres of land including improvements upon Pophers creek,” where there is evidence showing two or more improvements upon the creek, does not... sufficiently describe any land as a basis of recovery. Bullock v. Smith, 72 T. 545, 10 S. W. 687. See Folk v. Chaison, 73 T. 560, 10 S. W. 681.

A description in a conveyance of the land must be sufficiently ascertained to be invoced is sufficient. Snow v. Bllar, 75 T. 411, 12 S. W. 747. See Williams v. Ellingsworth, 75 T. 483, 12 S. W. 746.

A deed for a designated number of acres of land, "more or less," is a conveyance of the land embraced in the description, and not a designated quantity. If a diminution in the amount of the land, which is not a conflict in part of the land and another land adversely held under superior title, and the purchaser seeks relief against his vendor, he must aver the facts in his pleading. Bellamy v. McCarthy, 76 T. 293, 12 S. W. 840.

A grant of "all that certain tract or parcel of land inherited from my deceased parents in the county of Brazoria, Texas," passes title to land shown to have been owned by the grantor's father at his death in that county. Smith v. Westall, 76 T. 599, 13 S. W. 540.

A description by which the land can be identified is sufficient. Westmoreland v. Carson, 76 T. 619, 13 S. W. 559; Henry v. Whitaker, 82 T. 8, 17 S. W. 509.

A deed conveying "a league granted to Mrs. Martha Baker by Talbot Chambers" is not void for uncertainty. Gresham v. Chambers, 90 T. 544, 16 S. W. 326.

Land was conveyed to R. C. Co. of "Throckmorton county." A conveyance was offered by the R. C. Co. of "Shackelford county," signed by the president and secretary, with a seal bearing the words, "R. C. Co., Throckmorton county, Texas." In absence of testimony that there were two companies, it was presumed that there was a misnomer or misdescription, which would not defeat the conveyance. Ballard v. Carmichael, 83 T. 385, 13 S. W. 734.

A line of a survey is described as running "with the edge of the main high land and edge of the marsh." This controls a call for course and distance. Richardson v. Powell, 83 T. 688, 19 S. W. 262.

Deed conveying so many acres, to be selected by grantee out of a larger tract, is good. A description of the land in the conveyance, which the grantee is to select, must have been determined by the grantor in the conveyance, and the parol evidence adduced to show the grantor's intention to select the land, is immaterial. The grantor's intent to select the tract must be ascertained by the rules of construction. See W. v. Linnantz (Civ. App.) 103 T. 120, 30 S. W. 556.

The recital of "more or less" does not preclude the vendee from showing a contemporaneous agreement for a sale by the acre where there is an allegation of fraud or mistake. Franco-Texan Land Co. v. Simpson, 20 S. W. 553, 1 C. A. 606; Wheeler v. Boyd, 69 T. 292, 8 S. W. 614.

A transfer describing the land conveyed as "one-half, or thirteen labors of land, of the net headright certificate of the grantor, G. W. K., one league and labor of land, No. 661, first class, issued by the board of land commissioners for Red River county, republic of Texas, the survey lying between Bola d'Arc and Caney, Fanlin county, Texas," is not void for want of description, since it is evident that any uncertainty as to the identity of the land can be explained by extrinsic evidence. Whitmer v. Allen, 1 C. A. 649, 20 S. W. 1007.

"All that certain interest in the landed estates of H. and M., deceased, to which we are entitled may be entitled by gift, devise or descent, or otherwise," is sufficient. Harris v. Broiles (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 421.

A deed conveying the "right, title and interest" of the grantor in a tract of land, with warranty against all claims, conveys the land and not merely the actual interest of the grantor. Lewis v. Torrell, 26 S. W. 754, 7 C. A. 314. See also H. v. Bohanan (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 447.

A deed conveying a certain number of acres out of a described tract conveys a proportionate undivided interest therein. Linnantz v. McCulloch (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 279.

A conveyance of a part of a tract of land is void for uncertainty; but it is valid if the part is designated or can be ascertained from the description. Curdy v. Stafford, 58 T. 120, 30 S. W. 556.

Description of land sufficient when its boundaries can be ascertained by calculation. Wells v. Heddenberg, 11 C. A. 3, 30 S. W. 702.

A conveyance including more land than the grantor owns conveys all that he has within the designated tract. Id.

It being shown that the grantor owned land in a named county, a conveyance of all the land owned by him in that county is sufficiently descriptive to pass the title. Brigham v. Thompson, 12 C. A. 582, 14 S. W. 358.

Description by chain of title with references to the county records, etc., held sufficient. Rankin v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 979.

A deed which fails to identify land should be received in evidence when by the aid of extrinsic evidence the land conveyed can be identified. Hitchler v. Boyles, 21 C. A. 230, 51 S. W. 648.

Deed referring to prior deed for description held to convey tract as therein described, notwithstanding a reference to such tract as containing less land. Jordan v. Young (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 762.

Conveyance of all of grantor's unsold lands in a league named is sufficient description. Smith v. Clay (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 74.
CONVEYANCES

Where 600 acres of land were reserved from a deed, an undivided interest amounting to 600 acres could be excepted, in the absence of evidence showing boundaries of the land reserved. Bartell v. Kolsey (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 631.

Description of land as that conveyed and described in a previous deed held sufficient to vest title in the grantee. First Nat. Bank v. Hicks, 24 C. A. 269, 59 S. W. 842.

A deed conveying 2,000 acres of land described as so many acres conveyed as so many feet and lots and streets held to be legally consistent with the true intent of the parties, as it might be found to have existed, as to whether the street lines should coincide with the fences, or a survey showing the actual boundaries to extend beyond those included. Bell v. Wright, 34 T. 497, 60 S. W. 873.

The description of particular tracts in a deed of trust and a subsequent deed to the same grantee held not to restrict or limit general clauses conveying all grantor’s property. C. Commer v. Saunders, 57 C. A. 484, 65 S. W. 506.

The absolute devise of the entire rents of certain buildings conveys the buildings and the real estate on which they rest. Such use includes the corpus. Gidley v. Lovenberg, 35 C. A. 263, 79 S. W. 834, 835.

Where land sold was described by metes and bounds, the words, “containing by estimate” a certain number of acres, were equivalent to the words, “more or less.” Mayer & Schmidt v. Wooten, 46 C. A. 327, 102 S. W. 423.

The variance between the date of an original grant to the government dated May 27, 1855, and of the statement in an act of sale by the original grantee to a purchaser describing the land as in the original grant from the government, but giving the date of that grant as on May 28, 1855, does not render the act of sale to the purchaser so uncertain in describing the land that it will be inadmissible in evidence. Judgment, Ryle v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 523, reversed. Davidson v. Ryle, 103 T. 265, 124 S. W. 616, 125 S. W. 581.

Land may be described in a deed by reference to another registered deed or to a recorded judgment, and under general rules therefor, unless the grantor held a deed of trust, on the conclusion of the entire survey of 177 acres, and was not as a matter of law void for not sufficiently describing the land conveyed. Long v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 40.

A deed is not void for vagueness, in which the lands are described by metes and bounds, held to transfer all the title of the grantor. Plummer v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1162.

Where grantor conveyed a tract of land described by metes and bounds, and fully identified on the ground, the subsequent acquisition of land in the vicinity does not inure to his benefit of the grantee unless it touches the land conveyed. Conner v. Mangum (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 256.

Where land conveyed by an erroneous call corrected by other calls in the description could be fully identified and located by the field notes, the erroneous call did not render the description insufficient. Reference to the land described in a deed as “the Cobb land” must yield to the specific description. Bond v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 339.

A grantee in a deed conveying a lot described as a designated lot on a recorded plat does not obtain the title of the grantor in a part of the adjacent lot acquired by limitations. Ward v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 310.

Where defendant establishes a right to the recovery of a certain number of acres of land conveyed to his grantors with the right to select the tract from a larger tract, he will be confined to the land occupied and claimed by his grantors. Hermann v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 574.

A grantee in a deed held not to acquire title to additional land by mere recitals in a subsequent deed by the grantor to a third person of adjacent property. Fowell v. Kinsehla (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1174.

A deed of a specified number of acres, to be taken out of a larger tract of the grantor, held to pass title to the grantee, and to confer on him the right to select the land. Wing v. Red (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 301.

It was sufficient that a deed referred to other deeds in evidence for a more perfect description of the land in controversy, wherein the land was fully described. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 227.

Conveyance of undivided half of tract of land, described as 1,600 acres, which actually conveyed more than half of the actual quantity. Wadsworth v. Vinyard (Sup.) 147 S. W. 560, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1171.

A description in a deed as 1,000 acres undivided and part of a larger tract held sufficient to convey the quantity mentioned in whatever portion of the larger tract belonged to the grantor. Morris v. Storero (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 583.

Where neither a grantor nor any of his ancestors had ever owned the west one-half of a league, but owned the east half, a deed of an undivided 810 acres in such league must be construed to convey land only in the east half. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 885.

A deed conveying land according to a map or plan of a town site makes the map or plan a part of the deed. Clement v. Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 624.
In trespass to try title, a deed conveying the land as situate in the pastures of the Lucas de Alameda in the county of Hidalgo is too uncertain to be admissible in evidence, in the absence of extrinsic evidence to identify the land. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 329.

16. Appurtenances and easements.—Appurtenances are things belonging to another thing as principal and which pass as incident to the principal thing. They are as much a part of the land and pass with the land as the land on which they are put, and are part of the reality; or, as some of the authorities put it, whatever is necessary to the commodious enjoyment of a thing. Johnson v. Nasworthy, 4 App. C. C. § 167, 16 S. W. 753.

A grant of land, with no outlet except over the grantor's lot, carries with it a way of necessity. Kruegel v. Nitschmann, 15 C. A. 641, 40 S. W. 68.

Where a mortgagee, having an easement on the mortgaged property, foreclosure the mortgage, and without the easement, the purchaser takes the property free of the easement. Rembert v. Wood, 16 C. A. 468, 41 S. W. 525.

Where a deed of a right of way over a survey reserved the right to use water in the ditch on the right of way for the purpose of watering stock in a certain pasture, held, that the right to dam for the destruction of the ditch was limited to that part of the survey that included the pasture. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Haas, 17 C. A. 309, 42 S. W. 658.

The purchaser of a lot abutting on lands dedicated as an alley acquires an easement therein, though the city has not accepted the dedication nor opened the alley. Lousannau v. Robertson, 21 C. A. 85, 50 S. W. 489.

A deed of a part of a city lot held to convey the property to a street as actually established, Bell v. Wright (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 615.

Warranty in deed and permission to grantee to erect improvements held not to estop grantor, who has retained a tract surrounded by the one granted, to claim a right of way. Holman v. Patterson, 34 C. A. 344, 78 S. W. 989.

When the words "inserting to a plat designating part of the original tract as "reserved for railway purposes'" held that the purchaser acquired the right that it should be used for railway purposes alone. Temple v. Sanborn, 41 C. A. 65, 91 S. W. 1095.

17. Crops and timber.—A deed conveying certain land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances to the same, held not to convey the growing crops thereon. McKinley v. Williams (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 335.

The purchaser at foreclosure of land, held not entitled to crops ungathered and remaining on the land at time of his purchase, as against a purchaser from the mortgagee before sale. Id.

Whether certain crops on land conveyed were served to the grantor under a parol agreement at the time the property was conveyed held for the jury. Carter & Donaldson v. Childhood (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 714.

Timber passes with land conveyed as part of the reality, though not mentioned in the deed. Bennett v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1131.

Where the owner of a building had the right to remove it from the premises, the owner of the premises could not be held liable for conversion of the building because of a sale of the premises by him. Shelnor v. Piner (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 65.

19. Questions for court.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 3.

20. Estates or interests created.—See notes under Art. 1106.

Art. 1108. [629] [553] Other forms and clauses valid.—No person shall be obliged to insert the covenant of warranty, or be restrained from inserting any clause or clauses in conveyances hereafter to be made, that may be deemed proper and advisable by the purchaser and seller; and other forms not contravening the laws of the land shall not be invalidated. [Id. P. D. 1000.]

Covenants in general.—See notes under Art. 1112.

A covenant of general warranty is not limited or restrained in its operation by a succeeding covenant in the same deed to defend the title against all persons claiming through the patent or deed under which the vendor held the land. Rowe v. Heath, 33 T. 914. A stipulation in a deed that the land conveyed should be used for a certain purpose only, is binding upon the grantee and his assigns, and a forfeiture would result where such improper use was permitted by the grantee or his assigns, or where there has been an unreasonable delay in stopping such improper use by another without authority. Carpenter v. Graber, 66 T. 466, 1 S. W. 178.

If a deed of partition contains a limited warranty it will generally have the effect of restricting the remedy to the covenant expressed in the deed. James v. Adams, 64 T. 199.

Contract for conveyance of land to which the title was defective; note given for purchase money with right of rescission if the title was not perfected within two years. Held, that the right of rescission passed to a remote vendee, who took under a general warranty, agreeing to pay purchase money and other liens, and that he could sue for breach of warranty after having paid the note given by the original vendee. Wood v. Thornton, 85 T. 109, 19 S. W. 1034.

After-acquired title.—See notes under Art. 3887, Estoppel.

Covenants of title.—A deed conveyed all right, title and interest of the grantor in the land as referred to therein. The deed referred to and its conveyance to the grantor, showing a perfect chain of title, and then closed with a general warranty of title. Held, that the warranty was not limited by the estate conveyed. Peck v. Hensley, 20 T. 673; Burleson v. Burleson, 23 T. 383.

571

Covenants

(TITLE 24)

A general covenant of warranty in a deed applies to the title, and not to the quantity of land, and is therefore not broken by a shortage in the number of acres named in the deed, though the land may have been sold by the acre. Mosteller v. Astin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1136.

Where the warranty and habendum clauses in a deed recited a conveyance of all the described premises, the grantors bound themselves to defend all of the same against all persons lawfully claiming the same, the covenant of warranty extended to the quantity of land. Davis v. Fain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 218.

Warranty in a deed held to cover the quantity of land as well as the title. Withers v. Tomenow (App.) 155 S. W. 1190.

— Covenants against incumbrances.—A covenant against liens and incumbrances is distinct from a warranty of title and protects the grantee against interests in third persons which, though consistent with the fee being in the grantor, will diminish the value of the estate conveyed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 561.

Where another than grantor had the title to a tract in fee, free from any easement or servitude in favor of any one else, his claim was an adverse claim of title, but was not an incumbrance upon the estate granted so as to be a breach of a covenant against incumbrances contained in the deed. Id.

— Covenants running with the land.—The covenant of general warranty runs with the land and passes to each successive purchaser. One effect of such a covenant is to pass, without another conveyance, any title to the same land acquired from another source by the covenantee. Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. 625, 4 S. W. 212.

A purchaser may rely upon covenants of warranty of remote vendors. Allison v. Pitkin, 11 C. A. 655, 23 S. W. 293.

A covenant of warranty runs with the land and inures to the benefit of the last vendee. Rutherford v. Montgomery, 14 C. A. 218, 37 S. W. 636.

A stipulation forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquors on the premises, under penalty of a forfeiture of the lease, runs with the land. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 103 T. 24, 122 S. W. 254, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 67.

Covenants contained in deeds by which defendant contracted to furnish water to plaintiff, held not to run with the land for all time, and therefore were too indefinite to entitle plaintiff to recover for breach thereof. McQuitty v. Harton (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 117.

— Parties liable.—When a warrantor has been notified by his vendee of the pendency of a suit to recover the land and required to appear and defend the title, the judgment for plaintiff will establish that the recovery is under a paramount title. If the vendor has not been required to defend, the judgment is evidence of an eviction only, the burden of proof being on the warrantee to show that he was evicted by paramount title. If the warrantor is sued in a suit to a paramount title, or buys it in, he may sue for breach of warranty, assuming the burden of proof of all facts which entitle him to a recovery. Clark v. Mumford, 62 T. 531.

A married woman is not personally liable on a warranty in a conveyance of community property. Freiberg v. De Lamar, 27 S. W. 151, 7 C. A. 265.

A co-tenant is not bound by the covenants in a deed by the tenant holding the record title. Jones v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 527.

Where one in possession of land is a party to a suit against his remote grantor to foreclose vendor's lien, in which suit plaintiff recovers judgment, he does not lose his right to a judgment against his warrantor because he has sold the land pendent lite. Lewis v. Ross (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 594.

Where a husband and wife, claiming that she is the owner of a tract of public school land, but after sale, execute a deed with covenant of warranty of title purporting to convey such tract, the husband is liable on the covenant notwithstanding the pretended conveyance of such land was illegal. Blum v. Johnson, 28 C. A. 10, 66 S. W. 481.

Where a husband and wife join in a deed with covenant of warranty of a tract of land which they claimed they owned, the land in fact being public school land, in an action for breach of such covenant, judgment cannot be recovered against her, either on the covenant or because the contract was illegal. Id.

In an action on a covenant of warranty, evidence held to establish an unequivocal request on the part of plaintiff's attorneys to their warrantor to appear and defend the title in a suit previously brought against a third party claimant to quiet title. Sachse v. Loeb, 45 C. A. 555, 101 S. W. 450.

A warranty in a deed involves a personal obligation by the grantor to which the grantee has a right, and which cannot be switched to another without his consent. Smith v. Pitts, 57 C. A. 97, 122 S. W. 46.

Where title fails to properly conveyed to a grantor in exchange, he may proceed against his grantor for a breach of warranty. Haf ton v. Bodan Lumber Co., 57 C. A. 475, 123 S. W. 183.

An evicted grantee under a warranty deed may look to any or all of the warrantors in his chain of title. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 872.

— Parties entitled to rely on covenants.—A covenant of warranty in a deed of partition between an owner and one having no interest is not available to the latter. A contract of warranty must have a consideration to support it. Davis v. Agnew, 67 T. 206, 2 S. W. 43, 376.

When land is purchased under mutual mistake as to the locality of adjoining survey described in the deed, and which limits defined diminishes the area of the land, equity will afford no relief to the purchaser, and it is immaterial that the conveyance was with special warranty. Moore v. Hazelwood, 67 T. 624, 4 S. W. 215.

One who accepts a deed with full knowledge of an incumbrance or adverse claim cannot set up a breach of warranty until the adverse claim is established. Railway Co. v. Gen. Fire Ass'y, 635, 8 S. W. 95.

A purchaser of land taking a quitclaim deed, or deed with special warranty, in absence of fraud, the maker understanding the facts, cannot defend against suit upon the purchase-money note by showing that the vendor had no title to the land and that no title passed to the purchaser. Mommc v. De Morgan, 71 T. 86. 8 S. W. 622.

A deed conveying Incumbered land contained covenants of general warranty. The deed of the grantee to a third person contained similar covenants. The grantor and grantee executed a bond with sureties to indemnify the third person against the Incumbered property. Against the third person on account of the Incumberment were less than the sum the grantor received from the grantee, or the sum the third person paid to the grantee, but less than the amount of the bond. Held, that the third person was entitled to a judgment on the warranties in the deed as well as on the bond for the satisfaction of judgment. Potter v. Cleghorn, 24 S. W. 645.

Where D. purchased an outstanding title by a warranty deed and gave an option to the heirs of L. to purchase the land by paying the amount paid by D., and interest, the fact that such heirs procured the outstanding title to be set aside was no defense to D.'s action for the warranty. Hume v. Darsey (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 565.

—Performance or breach.—It is competent for a purchaser of land, who has received a deed with special warranty, to show that a fraud has been practiced upon him in respect to the title. Where in the negotiations preliminary to the execution of the contract the purchaser stipulates for a perfect title, and is afterwards induced, by the false or fraudulent representations of the vendor, to accept a quitclaim deed or a deed with special warranty, in the belief that he is acquiring a perfect title, and one free from litigation at the time, he will be permitted to show that he was deceived in respect to the title, and may be relieved against such contract. (Citing Mitchell v. Zimmerman, 4 T. 712; Yockey v. Greggs, 46 T. 856; Hays v. Bonner, 14 T. 629; Wells v. Groesbeck, 23 T. 429.) Rhode v. Alley, 27 T. 445.

Upon exchange of lands, each deed contained a stipulation that if the grantee was ousted from possession the deed should be of no effect, and he should have the right to re-enter possession and own the land given in exchange. Each deed also contained a covenant of general warranty. Held, first, the party ousted of his possession by one having a superior title had the right to elect whether he would re-enter or rely upon his warranty. Second, this right to re-enter existed in favor of the grantor of the land given in exchange. Third, the warranty worked no estoppel. Pugh v. Mays, 60 T. 191.

When land is described in a warranty deed by metes and bounds, and it is found that a portion of the land described is embraced within the limits of an older and superior grant, the grantor is liable for the deficiency. The purchaser is entitled to a proportionate abatement of the purchase-money. This rule is applicable to cases where the deficiency was not known when the conveyance was made. It is not necessary that the purchaser should offer to surrender the deed and to deliver possession of the land. Nor is it necessary that he should show in whom the superior title to the conflict vested when the purchase was made. Doyle v. Hord, 67 T. 621, 4 S. W. 241.

A judgment by consent of the parties to the suit will not support an action against the vendor who was not a party thereto for breach of warranty in a deed for land. Maverick v. Rose, 596, 7 C. A. 669.

A condition that no liquor be sold on the land conveyed, before the town should be "legally" incorporated, held not broken by sales after the town was incorporated, although the incorporation was declared invalid. Jones v. McLean, 16 C. A. 365, 41 S. W. 714.

Evidence held sufficient to show breach of warranty In a deed, and to entitle grantee to recover. Witte v. Pigott (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 753.

Where a grantee goes into possession under a warranty deed, a right of action for breach of warranty does not accrue until his title is assailed. Haff v. Riley, 28 C. A. 101, 64 S. W. 357.

A covenant of title of a grantor, conveying land owned in part by another, and while the latter's title to the other part was maturing by adverse possession, was only breached as to the extent to the latter owned the land, and not to the extent of title acquired by adverse possession after the conveyance. Schwartz v. Jones, 57 C. A. 603, 122 S. W. 556.

A contract between a covenantee and the attorneys for the owner of a paramount title that, in case suit by their client for a tract, including that in question, was finally determined in their favor, the attorneys, who held only a contract for an undivided one-fourth interest in the event of recovery, would protect the covenantee to the extent that he should receive out of their interest as much land as he lost was not such a purchase of the paramount title by the covenantee as would authorize a suit on the warranty. Biovert v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 721.

A covenant of warranty in a deed of land against persons claiming the land, or any part thereof, through the grantor, is not breached, where the title under which the grantee was ousted by a third person was adverse to the title claimed by the grantor. Straw Lake Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 662.

A grantee can recover on his warranty only on recovery against him by the owner of a superior title. Ward v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 310.

Where, in trespass to try title, the judgment gave a vendee the land called for by his deed, and as much as he purchased, he was not entitled to recovery against his grantor on his cross-action for breach of warranty on the ground that there was no agreement between his grantor and adjoining owners in contemplation of his purchase, and that he did not receive a portion of the land that he supposed he would receive, where it did not appear that the land he claimed to have lost was of any greater proportionate value than that which he received in the deed.

Conveyances

Where title to part of land conveyed by metes and bounds and described as a certain number of acres, more or less, fails, the grantor is liable on his covenant warranting title; it being immaterial whether the conveyance was in gross or by the acre. Houston v. Wynn, (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 669.

Settlement by a grantee of a warranty deed for a breach of warranty made with a remote grantor held to have released other warrantors. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 572.

There is no right of action for breach of warranty until there is an equivalent to an actual eviction, and it then only exists originally in the estate, legal representatives, or personally of the person holding under the warranty at the time of the eviction. Id.

Where a vendor who warranted the title paid off an incumbrance on the premises and too, so the rule failure to record the release or other by which his vendor was not a breach of the warranty. Adams v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1195.

Exceptions to pleas of set-off and reconvenion, setting up damages from breach of covenant of warranty, held properly sustained because the items set up were not recoverable for breach of warranty. Id.

Where the land described in the deed included 35 acres which the parties thought the tract included, when, in fact, there was only 23 acres, there was a failure of title as to 13 acres and not merely a deficiency of quantity. Smith v. McClothin (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 565.

A grantor would not be estopped from claiming that the facts did not show a breach of the covenant against incumbrances. Id.

Where the purchaser has voluntarily removed an incumbrance, or acquired the paramount title, the damages are limited to the amount reasonably paid for that purpose. McClelland v. Moore, 48 T. 355.

When lands have been exchanged by deed with warranty of title, and the title to one of the tracts fails, a recovery may be had against the grantor for the value of the land to which title has failed, as agreed upon by the parties, with interest. If the rights of third parties have not intervened the plaintiff may enforce his lien on the land conveyed by him. White v. Street, 67 T. 177, 2 S. W. 729.

In case of breach of general warranty, the warrantee is entitled to recover of the warrantor the purchase money. When the premises have been occupied by the warrantee and he has not accounted nor is accountable for rents and profits, he is entitled to recover interest upon the purchase money only for the time succeeding eviction. If the holder of the paramount title recovers mesne profits for a certain period, the warrantee will be entitled to recover of the warrantor interest for the same period, and, also, for the time succeeding actual eviction. Brown v. Hearon, 65 T. 63, 37 S. W. 385.

Where a grantee of land purchased on credit is temporarily deprived of the use thereof, his damages are presumably the rate of interest he agreed to pay on the price. Hull v. Billy, 26 C. A. 101, 64 S. W. 357.

Where a grantee had possession under a warranty deed for several years before he was ejected, he cannot recover interest paid on the price while he was in possession. Id.

The amount of damages recoverable from a remote warrantor of the title to land is the amount he received for the land from his immediate grantee. Lewis v. Ross (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 504.

Where the grantor in a deed is sued by her grantee of the same premises for breach of her covenant of warranty, the land being public school land, and causes her grantors to be implicated, she is entitled to judgment against them for the consideration paid by her, with interest, though no judgment is recovered against her. Blum v. Johnson, 28 C. A. 10, 66 S. W. 461.

An evicted covenantee may recover of a remote warrantor of the title the sum recovered by such warrantor from his immediate grantee, without regard to the amount paid for the land by the covenantee. Lewis v. Ross, 95 T. 358, 67 S. W. 405.

The question whether money to be paid on the nonperformance of a covenant is liquidated damages, or a penalty, is determined by the intention of the parties. Santa Fé St. Ry. Co. v. Schutz, 97 C. A. 14, 83 S. W. 39.

Where land is sold with a warranty of title, and the warrantee sells to another, also warranting the title, falls, the original warrantee is entitled to recover the amount of his purchase money together with the costs incurred in the suit against him by the one to whom he warranted it. Mayer & Schmidt v. Wooten, 48 C. A. 247, 102 S. W. 432.

The general rule as to the measure of damages where title to part of the land sold with a warranty fails is now the less applicable because the warrantee believed the whole of the land purchased was within an inclusion, whereas the part to which title failed was without the inclusion. Id.

Where title to land sold with a warranty fails, and the consideration was not paid in money but in other property, the value of that property is the measure of damages. Id.

The owners of interest against warrantors from the date of their deed held not erroneous. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 917, rehearing denied Id. 1167.
The measure of damages of the grantee under a warranty deed on breach of the warranty is not necessarily controlled by the amount he paid for the land, but by the amount received by the warrantor or warrantors to whom he elects to look for compensation. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 872.

Attorney's fees are not recoverable as an item of damages for breach of warranty of title in the absence of an express stipulation to pay them. Adams v. Cox (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1195.

The proper measure of damages for breach of warranty of title cannot exceed the value of the land, with interest from the time of sale. Id.

The measure of damages consisting in a deficiency in the land conveyed is the difference between the actual value of the property received and the amount paid therefor. Davis v. Fulm (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 218.

Where the title to a six-foot strip of land off the side of a lot in controversy failed, the measure of damages for breach of warranty was the difference between the value of the lot with and without the strip, disregarding any increased valuation because of improvements erected on the lot. Withers v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1189.

Art. 1109. [630] [554] Must be witnessed or acknowledged.—Every deed or conveyance of real estate must be signed or acknowledged by the grantor in the presence of at least two credible subscribing witnesses thereto; or must be duly acknowledged before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments, and properly certified to by him for registration. [R. S. 1879, 554.]

Execution by attorney.—See notes under Art. 1102.

Acknowledgment.—See notes under Arts. 1114 and 1115 and Title 118, Chapter 2.

One partner can acknowledge the execution of a deed made by a firm of which he is a member. L. & H. Blum Land Co. v. Dunlap, 23 S. W. 475, 4 C. A. 315.

A certificate of acknowledgment is conclusive in the absence of fraud. Herring v. White, 25 S. W. 1016, 6 C. A. 249.

A certificate of acknowledgment which has been lost is a part of the deed, and its existence and contents may be proved in the same manner in which the deed proper may be proved. G. C. v. Edens, 14 C. A. 255, 38 S. W. 474.

Though a notary taking the acknowledgment of a trust deed was disqualified, the instrument was valid as between the parties from the time of its delivery. Southwestern Mfg. Co. v. Hughes, 24 C. A. 637, 69 S. W. 684.

Where a deed contained two different acknowledgments, executed at different dates, it did not authorize a presumption that the deed was not delivered until the second acknowledgment. Bogart v. Moody, 25 C. A. 1, 79 S. W. 683.

Heirs of a deceased member of a community cannot attack the title of a purchaser derived from the survivor of the community by showing the invalidity of the acknowledgment of the deed to such purchaser. Derrett v. Britton, 35 C. A. 485, 80 S. W. 582.

Dereliction of notary in taking acknowledgment of a married woman held not to affect the grantee. Johnson v. Callaway (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 175.

Where the execution and acknowledgment of a deed occurred at the same time an instruction that knowledge of the grantor's unwillingness to sign did not affect the rights of the persons claiming under it, if she acknowledged it voluntarily, held not objectionable. London v. Crow, 46 C. A. 190, 102 S. W. 177.

That an instrument is not acknowledged in a manner to authorize its registration is a circumstance tending to show that the parties did not intend it to be a completed conveyance. Lipscomb v. Fuqua, 55 C. A. 555, 121 S. W. 195, judgment affirmed, 108 T. 585, 191 S. W. 1961.

A deed is not duly registered unless the record shows that the certificate of proof or acknowledgment is sufficient. Merriman v. Bilack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A deed by husband and wife is not inadmissible because the acknowledgments were taken on different dates. Smith v. Burgher (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 75.

Where it was undisputed that plaintiff claimed through a regular chain of title from the patentee of the survey, and that defendants were trespassers, the fact that the acknowledgment of a feme covert heir of the patentee was defective was immaterial. Gibson v. Oberfelder (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 829.

Correction of defective certificate.—To entitle a party to a correction of a defective certificate of acknowledgment of a married woman, he must plead a state of facts showing his right to it, as parol evidence that the officer complied with the law is not admissible. Kopke v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 15.

A judgment in an action to correct a defective acknowledgment held not a judgment in personam so as to require personal service. Veedr v. Gilmer, 47 C. A. 464, 105 S. W. 321.

Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Authority to take.—See notes under Title 23, Title 85, Chapter 2, and Title 97.

Fees for taking.—See notes under Title 58, Chapter 4.

Witnesses.—The husband who was a subscribing witness to a deed made to his wife during the marriage, and who at the time of its execution was not, under the statute, a competent witness to establish it, cannot as such subscribing witness prove it up for registration. Presumably the property, if acquired, was community, and the deed, in contemplation of law, was a conveyance to the husband. Hardin v. Sparks, 79 T. 429, 7 S. W. 769.

A deed without subscribing witnesses, which has been acknowledged by the grantor, but has not been recorded, is valid; but when offered in evidence its execution may be proven by the grantor, or by any person who was present at its execution. Meuley v. Zeigler, 23 T. 88.

Where a bill of sale has no subscribing witnesses, the vendee is a competent witness to prove its execution. Lang v. Dougherty, 74 T. 225, 12 S. W. 29.
Art. 1109  CONVEYANCES

A deed, though not witnessed, held admissible in evidence. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 92.

Delivery and acceptance.—See note under Art. 1103.

Non-compliance with statute.—A deed without witnesses or acknowledgment is sufficient to convey land. Its execution can be proven on the trial by the grantee. McLane v. Colville (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 29.

Deed held inadmissible where a certificate of acknowledgment fails to show that the grantor and grantee were residents of the county. Martin v. Lumpkin, 19 C. A. 656, 47 S. W. 618.

A deed of land executed by a husband and wife, sufficiently acknowledged as to the husband, but defectively acknowledged as to the wife, held properly received in evidence. Colville v. Colville (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 670.

Art. 1110. [631] [555] Conveyance by sheriff or other officer will pass title, when.—Every conveyance of real estate by a commissioner, sheriff or other officer legally authorized to sell, under or by virtue of a decree or judgment of any court within this state, shall be good and effectual to pass the absolute title to such real estate to the purchaser thereof; but nothing herein shall be construed to affect the right, title or interest of any person or persons other than the parties to such conveyance, decree or judgment, and those claiming under them. [Id.]

Conveyance by officer in general.—The conditions and solemnities annexed to the execution of a power must be strictly complied with, however unessential they might otherwise have been. Their observance is indispensable and admits of no equivalent or substitition. Crosby v. Huston, 1 T. 261; Johnson v. Bowden, 37 T. 621; Johnson v. Bowden, 43 T. 466; McClure v. Velbin, 47 T. 469; McLain v. Hart, 1099.

As between private parties to a deed, the presumption will be indulged that some interest should pass. No such presumption can be indulged in favor of the sheriff's deed. If there be any reservation or condition in the sheriff's deed, or from deeds and instruments specifically referred to in the sheriff's deed, the land can be identified with reasonable certainty. Burt v. Chambers, 63 T. 131.

A reference in the sheriff's deed to the county records generally having a description of land conveyed by the deed renders the deed void for uncertainty. Reference to the records for description and identification must be limited to the conveyance mentioned in the deed. 1d.

Art. 1111. [632] [556] Estates in futuro.—An estate or freehold or inheritance may be made to commence in futuro, by deed or conveyance, in like manner as by will. [Id. P. D. 1002.]

Cited, Daggett v. Barre, 135 S. W. 1099.

Future estate in general.—Where a grantor executes a deed and parts with all control over it by delivering it to a third person for delivery to the grantee at the death of the grantor it takes immediate effect and vests in the grantee's title effective after the death of the grantor and is not controlled by this article. Griffis v. Payne, 32 T. 282, 47 S. W. 973.

Where a grantor conveys land to a trustee for a third party, and gives the trustee power to do certain things in regard to the land, among them the power to sell, but providing that during the grantor's life it shall not be sold, the instrument is essentially a deed reserving certain rights to the grantor during his life, and takes effect upon delivery. Freeman v. Jones, 43 C. A. 322, 94 S. W. 1073.

Deed or will.—An instrument in form of a deed, conveying land "should we not sell or dispose of the same," is a will. Wren v. Huff, 146 App. 34, 55 S. W. 774. Deed distinguished from a will. Chrisman v. Wyatt, 26 S. W. 769, 7 C. A. 49.

An instrument conveying land in fee simple in consideration of love and affection, with a covenant that the grantor should remain in possession during his life, etc., is a deed and not a will. Carpenter v. Hannig (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 774.

An agreement that the grantor should have possession during her life is not testamentary. Matthews v. Moses, 21 C. A. 494, 53 S. W. 113.

Where an instrument is in the form, and contains all the essential requisites of a deed, is duly acknowledged and delivered, it is a deed and not a will and takes effect upon delivery although by its terms the grantors reserved in themselves a homestead during their lives. Martin v. Fairies, 23 C. A. 538, 55 S. W. 601.

An instrument in the form of a deed with the usual habendum, tenendum, and warranty clauses, but reciting "This is to take effect at my death and not before," is not testamentary in its nature, but was intended as a deed. McLain v. Garrison, 39 C. A. 431, 88 S. W. 485, 89 S. W. 284.

Under this article a deed providing that the land should remain in the grantor's possession, that the proceeds thereof be used for the support of his family during their lives, and that at the death of the land should go to the grantee in fee simple, is a valid conveyance and not testamentary. Wright v. Giles (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1163.

Under the instrument provided, the disposition of the property should take place after the death of the testator is not controlling in determining whether it was a will or a deed. Belgarde v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 904.

Art. 1112. [633] [557] Implied covenants.—From the use of the word "grant" or "convey," in any conveyance by which an estate of inheritance or fee simple is to be passed, the following covenants, and none other, on the part of the grantor for himself and his heirs to the grantee, his heirs and assigns, are implied, unless restrained by express terms contained in such conveyance:

1. That previous to the time of the execution of such conveyance the grantor has not conveyed the same estate, or any right, title or interest therein, to any person other than the grantee.

2. That such estate is at the time of the execution of such conveyance free from incumbrances.

Such covenants may be sued upon in the same manner as if they had been expressly inserted in the conveyance.

Covenants.—See notes under Art. 1108.

Implied covenants in general.—Where there are no covenants as to title, none will be implied, except as to prior conveyance by the grantor and that such estate is free from incumbrances. Hawkins v. Wells, 17 C. A. 360, 43 S. W. 816.

The words grantor, grantee, convey, and the like, carry with them a covenant not to make any incumbrances. Taylor v. Lane, 18 C. A. 545, 45 S. W. 317; Bullitt v. Coryell, 38 C. A. 42, 85 S. W. 483; Lowry v. Carter, 46 C. A. 488, 102 S. W. 931.

Where a deed grants only right acquired under a certain deed, a covenant of warranty is confined to the interest conveyed. Bumpass v. Anderson (Civ. App.) El S. W. 1103.

The covenant of quiet enjoyment and that the lessor has the right to lease is always implied in a lease, unless inconsistent with its terms. Maxwell v. Urban, 23 C. A. 565, 55 S. W. 1154.

In the partition of land between owners in common, a covenant of general warranty of title to the respective allotments will ordinarily be implied. James v. Adams, 64 T. 193.

By force of the statute any conveyance using the words “grant or convey” carries with it an implied warranty that the estate conveyed is, at the time of the execution of such conveyance, free from incumbrances, unless restrained by express terms contained in such conveyance. Rotan v. Hays, 33 C. A. 471, 77 S. W. 655.

An element in every contract to sell real estate is the warranty of the grantor that the property is free of all encumbrances. Taylor v. Carter, 46 C. A. 488, 102 S. W. 931.

Where title is sold with a warranty fails, the warrantor is liable whether the warranty was told by him or otherwise knew that part of it was based on another. Mayer & Schmidt v. Wooten, 46 C. A. 327, 102 S. W. 423.

The rule entitling a purchaser of a part of a tract of land incumbered to require the part retained by the vendor to be sold to pay the conveyance held to rest on equitable principles, not on warranty in the conveyances. Hawkins v. Potter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 643.

A contract for the sale of land stipulating for a good and sufficient warranty deed cannot be specifically enforced at the suit of the vendor where, at the time he offered to convey, the land was subject to vendor’s lien notes in a large amount, such lien being an “incumbrance” under this article and Art. 1113, providing that the word “grant” in a conveyance imports a warranty against incumbrances. Roos v. Thigpen (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1150.

Where a deed contained no express warranty nor any language limiting the warranty against incumbrances implied from the use of the words “grant” or “convey” under this article, and the grantor at the time had no title, a title subsequently acquired by him vested immediately in the grantee by force of the implied warranty. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

A covenant against liens and incumbrances is breached upon the execution and delivery of a deed, if at all. Texas & P. R. Co. v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 661.

A covenant against liens and incumbrances is distinct from a warranty of title and protects the grantee against interests in third persons which, though consistent with the fee being conveyed, the grantor will not only, nor will the grantor, will diminish the value of the estate conveyed. Id.

Restraint of warranty.—A grantor may only limit his warranty to that part of the land about which there is no controversy. Gallion v. Van Wormer (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 847.

The words “by, through, or under” the grantor added to the usual covenants of warranty of a statutory deed do not limit the conveyance as to make it substantially different from the one contracted for, the latter being a warranty deed. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Crowl, 28 C. A. 445, 67 S. W. 902.

Estoppel.—See notes under Art. 3887, Estoppel.

Damages for false representations.—The measure of damages for false representations as to quality of land is the difference between the purchase price and a sum of money which bears the same proportion to the purchase price as the actual value of the land bears to the value thereof if it had been as represented. Merrill v. Taylor, 72 T. 396, 10 S. W. 532; Pruitt v. Jones, 14 C. A. 84, 38 S. W. 502.

Art. 1113. [634] [558] Incumbrances include what.—The term “incumbrances” includes taxes, assessments and all liens upon real property.

Covenants.—See notes under Art. 1108.

Breach of warranty against incumbrances.—In a legal sense the word “incumbrance” means an estate, interest or right in lands diminishing their value to the general owner; a paramount right in or upon weight upon land which may lessen its value. Thomson v. Locke, 69 T. 355, 1 S. W. 112.

Taxes are included in incumbrances as here used, and when vendee has paid taxes due when deed was made he can recover them back on the implied warranty from the vendor. Bullitt v. Coryell, 38 C. A. 42, 85 S. W. 483.
Art. 1113 CONVEYANCES

A contract for the sale of land stipulating for a good and sufficient warranty deed cannot be specifically enforced at the suit of vendor alone, where, at the time he conveyed, the land was subject to vendor's lien notes in a large amount, such lien being an "incumbrance" under this article and art. 1112, providing that the word "grant" in a conveyance imports a warranty against incumbrances.

Roos v. Thigpen (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1, 1186.

A paramount outstanding title is an "incumbrance" within the meaning of a covenant against incumbrances.

A grantor could not sell land to a husband and wife and retain title to a tract of land, being an incumbrance from any easement or servitude in favor of any one else, his claim was an adverse claim of title, but was not an incumbrance upon the estate granted so as to be a breach of a covenant against incumbrances contained in the deed.

A grantor would not be estopped from claiming that the facts did not show a breach of the covenant against incumbrances. Id.

Art. 1114. [635] [559] Conveyance of separate lands of the wife, how made. — The husband and wife shall join in the conveyance of real estate, the separate property of the wife; and no such conveyance shall take effect until the same shall have been acknowledged by her privately and apart from her husband before some officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments to deeds for the purpose of being recorded, and certified to in the mode pointed out in articles 6802 and 6803. [Acts 1897, p. 41.]

See Art. 4621.

Conveyance in general.— A deed executed by the wife alone, without the assent of her husband, is invalid, unless executed under such circumstances as invested her with the power of disposition without his assent.

A husband cannot create an easement in the wife's separate land, unless she joins.

Railway Co. v. Durleit, 57 T. 48; Railway Co. v. Donahoe, 59 T. 128; Railway Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 324.

A deed purporting to convey the separate property of the wife, signed by husband and wife, and acknowledged by both, is valid though the name of the husband be not mentioned in the body of the deed.

Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460. But it was held otherwise where the wife's name did not appear in the body of the deed.

Joint venturers may execute a deed to her separate property for $1,500. The name of the grantee was left blank. The deed was placed by the husband with S. to effect a sale. B. had agreed to purchase the land for $1,500, which he understood to be the price asked, but afterwards declined to purchase at that price on account of a supposed defect in the title.

Subsequently B. and S. agreed upon a sale for $1,000. The deed was delivered and money paid, but without the knowledge or consent of the wife, who refused to receive any part of the purchase-money. Held, that the wife could recover the property, but the case was remanded for the purpose of determining whether B. was a purchaser in good faith, so as to be entitled to pay for his improvements.

By statute, a conveyance of real estate, the separate property of the wife, is not valid unless the husband joins therein and it is privily acknowledged by her. And an executory contract by her for the sale of real estate is not enforceable.

Jones v. Goff, 63 T. 248.

A conveyance of her separate property by a married woman, not executed in strict compliance with the statute, is an absolute nullity.

The interest of a married woman in land inherited from a deceased parent as part of such parent's community estate is not divested by showing that such married woman, acting alone in her own right, independent of her husband, received from the surviving parent a sum of money in payment for her interest, and executed a transfer and release of such interest to the surviving parent, as part of her separate estate; such interest could only be conveyed by the joint deed of the husband and wife, accompanied with a certificate of the privy acknowledgment of the wife.

Equity in seeking to uphold a family settlement unaccompanied by the absence of fraud between the parties in interest should not enforce it against one laboring under a statutory disability to make such settlement.

When the statute prohibits the consummation of the settlement in the manner attempted, equity cannot affect it.

If, however, a married woman, who in a settlement, acting alone and for herself, receives a consideration for land inherited by her as part of the community estate of her mother, and makes a deed thereto to her surviving father, in which she is not joined by her husband, though she cannot thus divest herself of title, and may recover the land, she can only do so by accounting to those who have become entitled to the interest the deceased husband's interest in the money she received in settlement with him.

Stephens v. Shaw, 63 T. 261, 4 S. W. 453.

A married woman can execute a valid bond for title on an executory contract to convey 132.

her estate when joined by her husband, or agent v. Ford v. Ballard, 1 C. A. 376, 21 S. W. 145. It seems where the title to community property is in the wife, she may, by the consent of the husband, dispose of it without his formally joining her in the conveyance.

Fox v. Brady, 1 C. A. 590, 20 S. W. 1024.

CONVEYANCES

Art. 1114

A conveyance by a married woman of an entire tract of land in which she has an undivided interest does not defeat an afterwards acquired interest therein. Watkins v. Watkins, 24 S. W. 385, 86 T. 134, 25 L. R. A. 772.

A married woman can unite with her husband in a conveyance of her separate estate to a third person with intent that it should be reconveyed by him to her husband. Hill v. Olson, 24 S. W. 394, 86 T. 240.

As to the execution of a deed by the husband and wife conveying her separate property, see Halbert v. Hendrix (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 911.

A conveyance of land, the separate property of the wife, by the husband under a power of attorney, is void. Tippett v. Brown, 9 C. A. 335, 21 S. W. 535.

A married woman is not estopped from asserting her rights to land not conveyed in conformity with law, unless she has been guilty of a positive fraud, or is guilty of some act of concealment or suppression which in law would be equivalent thereto; nor is she estopped thereby to convey the proceeds of the property conveyed. Eaton v. Jones, 29 T. 151, 33 S. W. 849; Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 32; Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 626; Williams v. Ellingsworth, 75 T. 455, 12 S. W. 746.

A wife held by an instrument signed by her and her husband to ratify the conveyance of his estate by her husband under a power of attorney. Scales v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 828.

Forced deed of husband held inoperative as to his wife, though she had executed another deed to same land. Abee v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 459.

Deeds executed to convey a wife's separate property through a trustee to the husband, to be held as community property, are void. Kellett v. Trice, 95 T. 160, 66 S. W. 51.

If a woman is a minor she becomes emancipated from the disability of minority by her marriage, and a conveyance made by her joined by her minor husband and properly acknowledged by her, is valid and conveys her separate estate therein. The fact that her husband is a minor does not affect the validity of the conveyance. Tippett v. Brooks, 95 T. 493, 67 S. W. 495, 515.

A deed by husband and wife of "our undivided interest of one-half!" In certain land, the grantee immediately reconveying to the husband, will be held to convey their undivided community interest, and not the undivided separate interest of the wife. Stratton v. Robinson, 28 C. A. 295, 67 S. W. 389.

Where the separate interest of the wife is an equitable one she must join her husband in the conveyance just as if it were her legal estate. Cauble v. Worsham, 96 T. 86, 70 S. W. 738, 97 Am. St. Rep. 871.

A married woman held not able alone to give a valid power of attorney to a third person to sell her separate real property. Nolan v. Moore (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 785.

A deed by a married woman conveying to her husband land belonging to her separate estate is void. Hughey v. Mosby, 31 C. A. 75, 71 S. W. 395.

A deed from a wife to her husband of land belonging to her separate estate conveyed no title, though made in exchange for community land which he joined her in conveying to one designated by her as a gift from her. Jarrell v. Crow, 30 C. A. 629, 71 S. W. 397.

When the deed to a wife shows that the property was her separate estate, one claiming under a deed from her husband alone is not an innocent purchaser. Lauev v. Powell, 30 C. A. 604, 71 S. W. 549.

The wife must join her husband in making lease of her separate estate for a period longer than one year. Dority v. Dority, 96 T. 713, 71 S. W. 950, 60 L. R. A. 941. Affirming Id., 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 346.

A married woman has no power to dispose of her separate estate in land by a parol gift thereof. Tannery v. McMinn (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 640.

A wife's interest in railroad property held not conveyed to a company chartered for the purpose of acquiring the property. Harle v. Texas Southern Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 43, 85 S. W. 1048.

A married woman, setting up an equity in land growing out of a trust relation between her and her husband, must show that holders of the legal title, to whom the husband has conveyed the land, are bona fide purchasers, in order to be entitled to prevail against such holders of the legal title. Sparks v. Taylor, 99 T. 411, 90 S. W. 485, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 381.

Where the right of a married woman to exercise the power of sale or gift of her separate property is restricted by statute by the requirement of the consent of the husband, the exercise of the power by the wife contrary to the consent of her husband is futile. Bledsoe v. Fitts, 47 C. A. 578, 105 S. W. 1142.

The fact that the husband is a minor held not to save from invalidity the wife's deed of her separate property because of his not joining in it. Zimpelman v. Portwood, 48 C. A. 435, 107 S. W. 584.

A deed by a wife under a power of attorney from her husband, and in her own capacity, held to convey both their interests, even if the land were the wife's separate estate. Kin Kaid v. Lee, 54 C. A. 622, 119 S. W. 342; Same v. Buck (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 345.

The husband has no power to convey his wife's separate property without her consent. Ligon v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 822.

A wife's separate deed to her separate land held void. Merriman v. Blalack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A wife's separate deed to her separate land held not cured by subsequent recitals in the husband's deed to other land to the same grantee. Id.

A wife's void deed for want of jointure held not cured by a recital in a subsequent deed by her and others, after she became sole, that the land had been previously conveyed to her by the grantee. Id.

A married woman being bound by her deed of her separate property after final delivery to her grantee, she is bound after it has by her consent been delivered in escrow to the same extent as other persons. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960.

A deed duly executed by a married woman and her husband, conveying her expectacy in the community estate of her living mother, vests her interest at the time in the grantee. Daggett v. Barre (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1099; Barre v. Daggett (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1250.

In an action where a wife contested the validity of a deed of trust, evidence held to sustain a finding that at the time of the execution thereof she was mentally incompetent. People's State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687, 4623.

Estoppel.—See notes under Art. 3687, Estoppel.

Insanity of husband.—A wife may convey her separate property without her husband joining where he is insane. Clark v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1114.

Separation.—Deeds of separation made after the separation, or when in the act of separating, are valid so far as they settle the rights of property between the husband and wife, if made without coercion or undue influence, and the provisions are just and equitable. Bains v. Wheeler, 76 T. 390, 13 S. W. 324; O'Shaughnessy v. Moore, 76 T. 606, 13 S. W. 570.

Testimony held not to show abandonment of a wife so as to make her deed valid without her husband's signature. Nelson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1106.

A wife may convey land without husband joining in deed, where she had acquired it after he had abandoned and ceased to support her. Stewart v. Proft (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 563.

Power of attorney.—A married woman can, jointly with her husband, make a valid conveyance of lands, her separate property, by an attorney in fact, duly authorized by the writing of a power executed and acknowledged in a manner prescribed by law for the execution and acknowledgment of deeds of conveyance. And the attorney in fact may make the legal acknowledgments of his deed, as such attorney, for registration. Patton v. King, 26 T. 655, 84 Am. Dec. 596; Warren v. Jones, 69 T. 462, 6 S. W. 775, citing Patton v. King, 26 T. 656, 84 Am. Dec. 596.

The husband may, by his separate power of attorney, authorize his wife to execute in his behalf a conveyance of her separate property. Rogers v. Roberts, 15 C. A. 193, 35 S. W. 76.

A married woman by a power of attorney executed and acknowledged by her alone may authorize a third person to sell and convey her land and such person acting with the husband can convey her separate estate. Nolan v. Moore, 96 T. 349, 72 S. W. 534, 97 Am. St. Rep. 911.

Where a woman, after executing a power of attorney to sell her interest in land and before a sale was made by the agent, married, the marriage revoked the power. Gilmer v. Vantch, 56 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.

Wife's acknowledgment.—A deed for land not acknowledged by a married woman in the manner prescribed by the statute, as to her is an absolute nullity. Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 737; Cross v. Everts, 28 T. 524; Whetstone v. Coffey, 48 T. 259; Looney v. Adamson, 1d. 619; Breitling v. Chester, 88 T. 387, 52 S. W. 527; Garcia v. Illig, 14 C. A. 484, 27 S. W. 470.

A deed from a wife to her husband is void and its record affects no one with notice of its contents. Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 18 S. W. 450; Graham v. Stuve, 76 T. 533, 13 S. W. 351.

A deed signed and acknowledged by the wife, two years after its execution by the husband, is valid. Halbert v. Hendrix (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 311; Halbert v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 913.

A deed defective for want of the acknowledgment of a married woman is validated by her acknowledgment after her husband's death. Breitling v. Chester, 88 T. 387, 52 S. W. 527, reversing 1d. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 464.

A deed of a married woman, not acknowledged by her husband, as required by statute, is a nullity as against her. Ilg v. De la Luz Garcia (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 557.

A deed by a husband and wife, conveying the wife's separate property, but not acknowledged by her, held admissible to corroborate testimony that the property conveyed was purchased by the grantee, and that a subsequent deed to his widow was made in ratification of the sale to him. Fordtran v. Perry (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1009.

Acknowledgment of a married woman taken before an officer who is the husband of the grantee is invalid. Silcock v. Baker, 25 C. A. 505, 61 S. W. 933.

The acknowledgment of a married woman conveying her separate estate, containing an acknowledgment failing to comply with the statute, is not voidable only, but is absolutely void, though "void" is generally used in the sense of "voidable." Holland v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 882.

A married woman is not bound by her deed of land till after due acknowledgment thereof before an officer. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960. See, also, notes under Art. 6502.

Ratification.—A deed with a defective description may, by the acts and declarations of the grantor, when acted upon by the vendee, be cured of its vice by acts of ratification. Patterson v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 147.

The fact that a married woman accepts the proceeds of the sale of her land made by her husband, she not joining in the deed, neither amounts to a ratification or estoppel, nor does it raise an equity against her right to recover, or require her to refund the consideration received. Owens v. N. Y. & T. Land Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 1057; Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 84; Berry v. Donley, 26 T. 744; Morales v. Leney, 2 C. A. 395, 21 S. W. 77.

But when she joined her husband in the deed and received the purchase money she is bound by a defective acknowledgment. Morris v. Turner, 5 C. A. 703, 24 S. W. 708.
Married woman may waive invalidity of condemnation of separate property without complying with requirements as to "conveyances." City of San Antonio v. Grandjean, 91 T. 430, 41 S. W. 477, 44 S. W. 476.

Where a married woman's separate property is taken for public use, she may, with the consent of her husband, waive invalidity in the proceedings, and is estopped by acquiescence in compensation awarded. Id.

Where a wife's separate deed to her separate property was void for want of jointure, it was not cured by her recital, in a subsequent deed by her and others after she had become sole, that the land had been conveyed by her to the grantee, under the rule that a void title while available to make a valid, absolute, cannot operate on an estate void at law. Merriman v. Blalock, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 552.

A deed by a married woman of her separate property without jointure of her husband, and was not curing by a statement in the husband's subsequent deed of other lands to the grantee, reciting that the lands then conveyed adjoined the land conveyed by his wife under such void deed. Id.

The right of a wife to obtain a decree canceling a deed of her separate property on the ground of her husband's fraud held to be not waived by her acquiescence. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 75. See, also, notes under Art. 6502.

Judicial sale and eminent domain.—Sale of separate property of a married woman under a personal judgment against her, good against a collateral attack. Henson v. Sackville, 21 S. W. 187, 2 C. A. 418.

Property of married woman may be taken for public use without compliance with requirements as to deeds by married woman. City of San Antonio v. Grandjean, 91 T. 430, 41 S. W. 477, 44 S. W. 476.

Evidences.—The acknowledgment of a married woman to a lost deed can be established by circumstantial evidence. Daniels v. Watkins, 27 C. A. 575, 37 S. W. 148; Overand v. Menczer, 83 T. 130, 18 S. W. 301; Blanton v. Ray, 66 T. 61, 17 S. W. 284.

A notarial certificate showing that a married woman had acknowledged the deed, etc., can be contradicted by proof that the woman never appeared before the notary and that the certificate was false. Wheelock v. Cavit, 91 T. 679, 45 S. W. 796, 65 Am. St. Rep. 929.

Rights of purchasers.—If a deed from a married woman be procured by fraud in the purchase, the fact that the deed contained recitals that the vendor "had employed able counsellors" and was professedly free of fraud without resort to the power of the full knowledge of the vendor's rights," will not estop such married woman from showing that the purchaser, who occupied as between the parties the position of a trustee, had fraudulently concealed the value of the property. Hickman v. Stewart, 69 T. 256, 5 S. W. 833.

The mere fact that the husband imposed upon his wife, and by misrepresentation induced her to sign a deed, coupled with the fact (if it existed) that the notary did not comply with the law in taking her acknowledgment, could not affect the rights of the vendees, they being ignorant of the facts. The precedent debt of the husband to the woman, a valuable consideration between the parties, and no additional consideration need be shown to have passed to the wife to give validity to the deed. When the consideration of a deed by a married woman is so grossly inadequate and unreasonable as to excite suspicion of unfairness and undue influence, or of want of willingness to execute the same, the purchaser would be put upon inquiry as to the truth of the certificate of her privy examination and acknowledgment and in such case she could show its falsity. Webb v. Burney, 70 T. 322, 7 S. W. 841.

A purchaser of land for an adequate consideration is not affected by the fraud of the husband in procuring the execution of the deed by the wife, he having no knowledge of nor participating in the fraud. Hickman v. Hoffman, 11 C. A. 605, 33 S. W. 257.

A deed with certificate of acknowledgment by wife held not to convey title, even to an innocent purchaser for value and without notice, where it had never in fact been acknowledged by her. Wheelock v. Cavit, 91 T. 679, 45 S. W. 796, 65 Am. St. Rep. 929.

In order for grantees to attack recitals in certificates of acknowledgment to deeds, it is necessary to show that the grantees had notice of the fraud of the notary and of his failure to properly take the acknowledgments, or that there was collusion between the notary and the grantee. Ewalt v. Dalrymple (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 223.

Where a grantee agreed to pay a specified sum in money, property, and debts for the conveyance of a wife's separate property, and the consideration recited in the deed was that sum which was not actually paid, he was chargeable with the husband's fraud inducing the deed. Cage & Crow v. Perry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 76.

Though the deed of a wife be properly certified by the notary taking her acknowledgment, it may be avoided by her, if the acknowledgment does not speak the truth, and was obtained by fraud, provided the grantee had notice before he paid the purchase money. Spivey v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 297.

A deed by a widow, who has remarried, and the surviving daughter, also married, to a one-seventh interest in land described as having descended to their decedent, whereas only a one-fourteenth interest descended to him, passes a one-fourteenth interest only; the warranty not operating against the grantees. Fitchard v. Fox (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1058.

Restoration of purchase money on avoidance.—Plaintiff, being a married woman, cannot be compelled to repay purchase price of land before recovering the land. De Garcia v. Losano (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 289.

A deed executed by a husband and wife, conveying the wife's separate estate, is a nullity, if not acknowledged by her, and its record is not constructive notice of its contents. Pedram v. P. (Id.) 69 S. W. 1900. Where a married woman seeks to recover her separate estate conveyed because of her defective acknowledgment of the conveyance, she is not required to refund the consideration and waived as condition of recovery. Silcock v. Baker, 25 C. A. 598, 61 S. W. 929. A wife who obtains a decree canceling a deed of her separate property on the ground of the fraud of her husband, of which the grantee was chargeable, must account to the grantee for the value of the land conveyed to her by the grantee, and appropriated by her by her act in conveying it to another. C. & C. v. Ferranti (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 685. Where a wife sues for the cancellation of a deed of her separate property on the ground of the fraud of her husband of which the grantee was chargeable, the court in granting relief must require her to restore the part of the consideration received, but she need not restore the part paid to the husband and not operating to the benefit of the separate estate. Id. 111.5 [636] [560] Conveyance of homestead, how made.—The homestead of the family shall not be sold and conveyed by the owner, if a married man, without the consent of the wife. Such consent shall be evidenced by the wife joining in the conveyance, and signing her name thereto, and by her separate acknowledgment thereof taken and certified to before the proper officer, and in the mode pointed out in articles 6802 and 6805. [Id.] See Art. 4621. Conveyance in general.—The husband has no power, directly or indirectly, to alienate property, the purchase-money of which has not been paid, and which is occupied by his wife and himself as a homestead, unless his wife joins in the conveyance, or the same is done in good faith by the husband in settlement of a lien for unpaid purchase-money. If the husband, under pretense of satisfying a claim for unpaid purchase-money, proceeds in bad faith, when no necessity for such exists and with the purpose to deprive his wife of her homestead right, his act conveys no title, as against the wife, to purchaser with notice. Morris v. Gisecke, 69 T. 633. Citing Farmer v. Simpson, 6 T. 304; Meyer v. Clens, 18 T. 518; White v. Shepperd, 16 T. 163; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 160; Gillum v. Collier, 53 T. 593; Hicks v. Morris, 57 T. 662; De Bruhl v. Maas, 54 T. 474. The husband and wife cannot convey the homestead by an executory contract for its sale. Jones v. Goff, 63 T. 248. C. and wife regularly executed a deed defective in description, for their homestead, to K. It was intended as security for money advanced. C. sold to L., after pointing out the corners, and put him in possession, and K., at C.'s request, made the deed to L. L. remained in possession until his sale to R. C. and wife had never abandoned the land as homestead, and sued R., who at his purchase was ignorant of the homestead character of the property. Held, that L. took no title as against the homestead, because the transfer from K., at the husband's request, did not conclude the wife, nor did the husband's pointing out the corners of the tract cure the defective description of the land in the deed. Coker v. Roberts, 71 T. 598, 9 S. W. 665. There was ambiguity in the deed under which the homestead was held. The husband did not compel the husband to release the homestead in an adjustment with his vendor of disputed boundaries of the tract. Dobkins v. Kuykendall, 81 T. 189, 16 S. W. 749. A lease of the homestead for a term of years must be joined in by the wife of the lessor. Dykes v. O'Connor, 83 T. 160, 18 S. W. 409; Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 602. A husband in possession of land under a deed cannot, by attorning to another who does not show a superior title, divest the wife of her homestead rights acquired by such possession. Id. To contract to convey land in consideration of a married woman conveying her homestead, and Williams v. Greaves, 26 S. W. 354, 7 C. A. 564. Where there is a lien upon the homestead the husband may in good faith convey it in settlement of the claim, or adjust it as he sees proper, without being joined by his wife. Investors' Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Loyd, 11 C. A. 419, 33 S. W. 750; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 160; White v. Shepperd, 16 T. 172. The wife cannot be divested of any interest in the homestead by any act of her husband, short of abandonment, to which she was not a party. Göber v. Smith (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 519. Wife held not bound by agreement to arbitrate mistake in partition of lands, which had become a homestead, because not a party to it. Oldham v. Medearis (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 350. There being sufficient land left to satisfy all homestead demands, held, that the homestead character was not impressed on a part that was sold, so as to require the wife to join in the deed. Neiman v. Schuster (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1075. Conveyance of land by the husband, after testamentary deed to the wife, operates as a revocation of deed to the wife, and vests title in grantee. De Bajligethy v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 372, 56 S. W. 95. Where a conveyance of one lot of a homestead, consisting of two lots jointly owned by the grantor and the heirs of his wife, leaves sufficient property to satisfy the interests of such heirs, the purchaser takes a good title. Thompson v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 578. The fact that there is an incumbrance on a homestead, which the purchaser assumed, held not to sustain the deed of the husband alone. Gibbons v. Hall (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 816. Where the husband and wife have joined in executing a lien on the homestead, the husband cannot waive her rights or extend the lien by any act in which she does not join. San Antonio Real Estate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 665. 582
CONVEYANCES

A parol gift of a part of a homestead by a husband held void for lack of compliance with the statutory requirements. Morris v. Wells, 27 C. 367, 68 S. W. 245.

A conveyance of a homestead by a husband though his wife does not join therein, operates as an absolute quitclaim to the homestead, and acquires another homestead. Anderson v. Carter, 29 C. 240, 69 S. W. 78.

A wife who joins her husband in a sham deed of the homestead, and enables him to borrow money on the notes received for the pretended purchase price from an innocent indorser of bonds, voids the apparent conveyance by the apparent signature reserved in the deed to secure such notes. Cooper v. Ford, 29 C. A. 253, 69 S. W. 487.

A husband alone cannot contract with a railway company, empowering it to use water from his homestead, to enter on his homestead and erect necessary pumping works. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Chuck, 21 C. A. 211, 72 S. W. 83.

A contract for the sale of machinery, whereby the purchaser agreed to give a mechanism's lien on the premises whereon the machinery was to be situated, and which promises constituted the purchaser's homestead, was not invalid because not signed by the purchaser's wife. Fred W. Wolf Co. v. Galbraith, 35 C. A. 505, 89 S. W. 618.

A deed of a portion of a homestead by a husband alone to a non with the consent of the wife held void. Penn v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 6, 51 S. W. 349.

A married woman's joint contract with her husband for the sale of land in which she had a separate interest, occupied as her homestead, held not binding on her or her heirs as to her separate interest. Ley v. Hein, 36 C. A. 208, 61 S. W. 554.

A husband cannot by a sale and abandonment in fraud of his wife destroy her homestead rights. Gray v. Russell, 48 C. A. 841, 106 S. W. 984.

After abandonment of a husband by his wife without the intention of returning held, that the husband had a right to incumber the community property and to pass the fees simple. Jolly v. Kennedy, 49 S. W. 176.

Where a single man contracted to sell and convey his homestead and thereafter married, the homestead rights of the wife in the land were subordinate to the contract, irrespective of whether or not she had notice of the contract before the marriage. Parriss v. Morris, 50 C. A. 158, 109 S. W. 227.

A wife is a necessary party to any contract by which the homestead is to be alienated and her concurrence in every substantial detail is as vital to its validity as that of the husband. Blume v. White (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1056.

Any homestead of a married woman, even though sold by her, is for all intents and purposes her separate property. Her right in it, is subordinate to the homestead of the husband. Parriss v. Jolliff, 59 C. A. 163, 110 S. W. 1140.

Any homestead right of defendant's wife in land, having been acquired after defendant contracted to deliver to plaintiff a certain part of the proceeds of his contemplated sale of it, was subordinate to plaintiff's right under the contract. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 198, 122 S. W. 399.

A wife who has not joined in her husband's deed to the homestead and who has not acquired another homestead, or those claiming under her, may have the husband's deed set aside and recover the property sold. Pullman v. Houston (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 69.

Plaintiff and his wife gave a deed of their homestead on the agreement that it was to secure payment of certain indebtedness of plaintiff. Thereafter plaintiff sold his homestead, and at his request the grantee in the trust deed conveyed the property to the purchaser. Held, that such deed was effectual to convey title as if it had been executed by plaintiff. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Penn (1909), 8 S. W. 522.

Where husband and wife acquired title to a homestead by adverse occupancy, a conveyance of the homestead by the husband alone did not pass any title, but the husband and wife were entitled to the land. Coler v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 664.

Prior to the present constitution, a deed of trust of the homestead, executed by the husband alone to secure a community debt, is not enforceable during the life of the wife, but on her death it becomes valid. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

A deed conveying a homestead acknowledged by each grantor and containing a notary's certificate of acknowledgment is conclusively, in the absence of fraud or imposition in which the grantee participated or had knowledge. Magee v. Tinner (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 896.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, an instrument executed by a husband and wife conveying the homestead, absolute in form, but intended as a mortgage, was as between the parties absolutely void. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

The joint deed of husband and wife is in general essential to the conveyance of the homestead. Escalera v. Casas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 627.

A wife cannot be deprived of her homestead by her husband, without her knowledge or consent, accepting a lease of it from a person who has no title thereto. Lumpkin v. Woods (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1129.

Title to a homestead could only be conveyed by a deed, duly executed and acknowledged by the grantor's wife. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

The conveyance of a homestead by a husband without the concurrence of the wife is absolutely void. Shaffer v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 658.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, and this article, there can be no valid conveyance of a homestead without the joinder of the wife therein. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

— What constitutes homestead.—See notes under Title 55.

This article applies to a sale of fixtures attached to and forming a part of the homestead. House v. Phelan, 83 T. 596, 19 S. W. 140.
Disposition of proceeds.—Although execution and acknowledgment of the deed of a homestead, as long as he acts in good faith towards her, is not required, as the husband has the right to select the homestead for the family and to control the proceeds of its sale. Alford Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 622.

Abandonment of homestead.—After a husband and wife owning a homestead had left the state, the husband returned to Texas and sold the land, the wife not joining in the deed. In a suit by the wife against the purchaser, after the death of the husband, to rescind the conveyance, her declarations, made before leaving the state, showing dissatisfaction with the country and intention of leaving it permanently, are admissible in evidence as tending to show abandonment, even though not made to the purchaser or known to him at the time of his purchase. Burcham v. Gann, 1 U. C. 333.

After a husband and his wife abandon a farm as a home, the husband has the legal right to sell the farm without the wife's consent, whether it is his own separate property or the community property of himself and wife, and if the deed to the farm is executed by the grantee in a true deed of the property at the request of the owner, before the farm is abandoned as a home, in the absence of such fraud upon the wife as would entitle her to a rescission of the sale, it would become effective to convey title as soon as the abandonment occurred. Alford Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 622.

Where a husband and wife live on a homestead, the separate property of the husband, and the wife is legally declared insane, so as to be incapacitated from consenting to a conveyance, the homestead by joint, and privy acknowledgment, and the husband, with the children, removes from the homestead, his sale of the lot, more than a year after such removal, with no intent to defraud the wife, is valid, regardless of whether, at the time of the removal and abandonment, he intended to acquire another homestead, or whether another homestead had in fact been acquired. Gilley v. C. & M. L. R. R. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 777.

Insanity of wife.—Where a husband alone conveys the homestead, which is community property, the wife being hopelessly insane, and abandons the homestead, the conveyance is effective. Shields v. Aultman, Miller & Co., 23 C. A. 345, 50 S. W. 213. Under Const. art. 16, § 56, this article, and article 6892, where a wife, who with her husband owned a homestead lot, and occupied a home on the property, when the husband, was legally declared insane and confined in an institution for about three years, during which time the husband was not, without intent to defraud the wife, sold the lot and removed from it, the sale by the husband was valid. Gilley v. Troop (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 954.

Absence of wife.—A husband living on a homestead cannot convey it alone, though his wife is temporarily living away. Gibbons v. Hall (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 514.

Separation.—After a wife has abandoned her husband and homestead, she has no interest in the homestead which will prevent his conveying a good title thereto. Mann v. Wilson, 39 C. A. 111, 86 S. W. 1091.

Acknowledgment by wife.—See notes under Art. 1109, and Title 118, Chapter 3.

A wife cannot defeat a conveyance of the homestead, or of her separate property, by showing that when her acknowledgment to the deed was taken she did not understand its import, or that the officer did not explain it to her, unless she also shows that these acts were brought to the knowledge of the purchaser. Miller v. Yturria, 69 T. 548, 7 S. W. 206.

Where a wife did not acknowledge the deed to a homestead, her title was not forfeited by the fact that after removing from the property she was divorced, and afterward married another man. Russ v. Wells, 17 C. A. 128, 44 S. W. 8.

Certificate of acknowledgment by wife of deed to homestead cannot be impeached, where the vendee's knowledge of or connection with the alleged fraud is not shown. Hurst v. Finley (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1072.

A deed acknowledged by such grantor and containing a notary's certificate of acknowledgment held conclusive in the absence of fraud or imposition. McGee v. Tinner (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 566.

The separate acknowledgment of the wife to a joint deed by husband and wife is essential to the conveyance of the homestead under general circumstances. Reyes v. Esculera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

A deed of the homestead held void as against the wife because defectively acknowledged with the knowledge of the grantee, De West v. Barthelow (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 88.

A deed to a homestead held void as to the wife, where she did not appear before the officer who acknowledged the deed until after its delivery and record. Yaseen v. Green (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 824.

Evidence held to require a finding that plaintiff's wife, when a deed to the homestead was executed, did not acknowledge the deed. Id.

Title to a homestead could only be conveyed by a deed duly executed and acknowledged by the grantor's wife. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 858.

Where the conveyance of a homestead tract, and subsequently authorized the purchaser to take his 110 acres from the south end of the whole tract, wife held authorized, after husband's death, to ratify such agreement. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 145, 65 S. W. 485.

A conveyance by subsequent acts, unauthorized by his wife, to validate a conveyance of the homestead procured by the fraud of the grantee. Cotton v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 114.

A wife's right to rescind a sale of the homestead for fraud cannot be cut off by any act in ratification by her husband. Morris v. Cotton (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 666.

Estoppel.—See, also, notes under Arts. 3687 and 6802.

A married woman is not estopped by her deed of conveyance in which her husband does not join. Daniels v. Morgan (Sup.) 38 S. W. 161, 59 Am. St. Rep. 513.

A wife held not estopped by her acts in seeking the sale of a homestead from denying its validity, where she did not acknowledge the deed. Huss v. Wells (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 33.

A wife, signing a deed to a homestead under the representation and belief that it was a mortgage, held not estopped from claiming the property as a homestead by the fact that she knew the supposed mortgage was to be used by the mortgagee in negotiating a loan. Black v. Garner (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 518.

A man's acknowledgment of a deed conveying the homestead held defective, and hence she was not estopped from asserting her rights to the homestead; no fraud appearing on her part. Id.

Where a husband has conveyed the homestead, he is estopped to afterwards set up title on the ground that his wife did not join. Mann v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1061.

Where a husband, without his wife joining, transferred part of their homestead, and she afterwards abandoned the homestead and acquiesced in its partition between her deceased husband's heirs and herself, the husband's deed became effective by estoppel. Wooten v. Pennock (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 465.

Where a married woman's deed to her husband was void, and she thereafter conveyed the land to G. by deed reciting the former conveyance to the husband, neither she nor those claiming under G.'s deed were estopped to deny the validity of the conveyance to the husband, except as against those claiming under it. Merriman v. Blalack (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 562.

A married woman cannot be estopped to assert her rights in land unless she has been guilty of some positive fraud, or some act of concealment or suppression equivalent thereto. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

A married woman who falsely represented herself to be single, and who conveyed land to a grantee relying on her representations and performing the acts required of him to obtain title, is guilty of fraud and is estopped from asserting title as against him. Keller v. Lindow (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 304.

A wife not having acknowledged a deed to the homestead held not estopped as against a purchaser to deny its validity on that ground. Yaseen v. Green (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 224.

The homestead rights of a wife can only pass by estoppel, which is predicated upon affirmative fraud upon her part. Durham v. Luce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 850.

Where a woman has conveyed land by a deed, in which her husband did not join, but which he is estopped to attack, their children are also estopped from attacking the deed. Stewart v. Profit (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 563.

Reconveyance.—Where a homestead is subject to a vendor's lien, the husband may, in good faith, reconvey the homestead in satisfaction of the incumbrance, and such reconveyance is on his wife, though her separate property paid part of the purchase price. Evans v. Marlow (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 347.

Fraud.—See notes under Art. 1106.

The deed of a married woman having been obtained by fraud, held, that the question of delivery was immaterial. Stringfellow v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 527.

Easements and Incumbrances.—A husband may without the concurrence of his wife create an easement over a part of the community homestead, provided it does not materially interfere with the wife's use of the property for homestead purposes. Randall v. Railway Co., 63 T. 566; Railway Co. v. Titterington, 84 T. 223, 19 S. W. 472; 31 Am. St. Rep. 855; Stegmeyer v. City of Dallas, 37 S. W. 515; City of Houston v. Bank, 53 C. A. 326, 115 S. W. 661; Purdie v. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 364.

A mortgage on a homestead created after its dedication is null and void, and no subsequent acquisition of another homestead by the mortgagor can give it validity. Hays v. Hays, 66 T. 606, 1 S. W. 895. And see Carter v. Hawkins, 62 T. 392; Moores v. Wilks, 69 T. 109, 5 S. W. 675.

A married man has power to adjust and settle liens and prior equities upon land subject to which it has been made the homestead; but such a conveyance in fraud of the rights of the wife is void. She is not precluded by the purchaser's ignorance of facts showing the truth. Sherring v. Augustus, 11 C. A. 194, 32 S. W. 450. See Eylar v. Eylar, 69 T. 315; Investors' Mortg. Co. v. Loyd, 11 C. A. 449, 28 S. W. 750; Cadwaller v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 829.

Conveyance being regular on its face, improper taking of wife's acknowledgment cannot affect one taking mortgage from grantee. Forbes v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1097.

Where a married woman, with her husband, occupied her separate property as a homestead, he could not create a permanent easement thereon by permitting the construction of a shed, Hanley v. Hanson v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 515.

Where a mortgage is invalid, as being on the homestead of a husband and wife, an assumption of the payment of the mortgage debt by the wife in a subsequent conveyance of the property to her by her husband does not make the mortgage a lien on the land. Parrish v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1044.

An unmarried man may mortgage his homestead, though the same is exempt from execution. Melton v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

The sale of a homestead under a deed of trust for an indebtedness, part only of which is a valid lien, under the Constitution is void. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 633.

Where B., holding a deed of trust to a homestead, paid taxes thereon at the request of the owners, and they were included in the amount secured by the deed of trust, this gave him no lien to the amount of the taxes paid. Id.

An unmarried woman may mortgage her homestead, though she is the head of a family of minor children. McGee v. Thinner (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 866.

Where a mortgage by means of a deed absolute on its face was placed on a homestead, it was void so far as the homestead is concerned. O'Neill v. O'Neill (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 729.
Art. 1115  CONVEYANCES

(Title 24)

The head of a family owning more than 200 acres of land impressed with the homestead charge, may, in any case what 200 acres thereof constitutes the homestead, and mortgage the balance, provided that this is done in good faith, and for not the purpose of avoiding the law prohibiting the mortgaging of the homestead, and that the part so designated includes the dwelling and appurtenances thereto. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1062.

A lien, under a mortgage executed after a declaration of homestead on the land, was void, except as to the amount in excess of the 200 acres allowed. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 618.

In determining whether there was an excess of over 200 acres allowed as a homestead in several tracts, in a proceeding to foreclose mortgage liens, the field notes showing an excess were prima facie proof of that fact. Id.

In valuing a mortgage lien out of lands designated as a homestead, held, that any excess over the 200 acres allowed as a homestead should be located out of tract sold by the homesteader. Id.

A mortgage on the homestead of husband and wife is void when not signed by the wife. Van Vluy (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 206.

Commissions paid to procure a loan for the purchase of a homestead, constituting no part of the original contract for the purchase, cannot be secured by a lien on the homestead. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 675.

Rights of purchasers and mortgagees.—Where the homestead is conveyed by deed regular in form and duly acknowledged by the wife, and the deed is attacked on account of the insanity of the husband, such deed is not held to be void but only voidable. To avoid a deed the rules of equity demand that the party seeking the rescission must pay back the consideration received under the deed. This applies in case of homestead where the deed is avoided on account of the insanity of the husband. Where the plaintiff asking rescission offers to do equity, and the decree ascertains that plaintiff is owing a sum of money received under the deed, the decree should, on rescinding the contract, order sale of the property owing, after reasonable time for its payment. Pearson v. Cox, 71 T. 246, 9 S. W. 124, 10 Am. St. Rep. 749.

A wife may, by suit, set aside a sale of the homestead made under duress within the six months after the grant. Davis v. Van Vluy. Id.

The husband who alone executed a bond to convey property owned and occupied as a homestead at the time of its execution, who afterwards removed with his family to a new home which he was providing for the family at the time and abandoned the former home, may be compelled in a suit for specific performance to convey the title. Aultman v. Allen, 12 C. A. 227, 33 S. W. 679. If facts exist which would prevent the enforcement of a specific performance of the contract, an action for damages will lie for its breach against the husband when damage has been sustained. Under article 16, section 50, of the constitution, deeds of trust and deeds involving a condition of defeasance on the homestead are void; but this does not apply to a contract to convey at a future time when the property shall have lost its homestead character. Goff v. Jones, 70 T. 572, 8 S. W. 525, 8 Am. St. Rep. 619.

A conveyance of the community homestead by the husband, the wife's signature having been obtained by fraud, with general warranty, is effective as a conveyance to the extent of his interest, after the property ceases to be occupied as a homestead. Stallings v. Hullum (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1033; Stewart v. Mackey, 16 T. 57, 67 Am. Dec. 609; Al­ linson v. Shilling, 27 T. 450, 86 Am. Dec. 622; Irion v. Mills, 41 T. 310; Goff v. Jones, 70 T. 572, 8 S. W. 525, 8 Am. St. Rep. 619.

In an action of trespass to try title, an instruction that if plaintiffs knew, before he became liable, that defendant was about to mortgage the property, that defendant was fictitious, they could not recover held properly given. Schneider v. Sanders, 26 C. A. 163, 61 S. W. 727.

A purchaser of the community homestead of a husband and wife, after the wife's death, held to have acquired the husband's interest in the community, and also his interest as surviving husband of the separate portion belonging to the wife. Ley v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 81 S. W. 354.

A husband and wife gave a deed of their homestead, that the wife understood the instrument to be a mortgage did not warrant a cancellation of the deed. Wilson v. Lewis, 36 C. A. 371, 81 S. W. 324.

In a suit by a wife to cancel a deed of the homestead, an instruction resting defendant's right to a judgment on a showing that the transaction whereby he acquired title was not simulated held erroneous. Id.

A wife held entitled to have a conveyance of homestead set aside because of her ignorance of the true consideration. Johnson v. Callaway (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 175.

Under the facts held there was a fraud of the husband inducing the wife to join in a conveyance, of which the vendee was put on notice. Scoggin v. Mason, 46 C. A. 450, 103 S. W. 321.

A pre-existing debt held not a consideration protecting one as a bona fide purchaser, where the conveyance is attacked by the grantor's wife for his fraud on her. Id.

A grantee in a married woman's deed to her homestead held chargeable with notice of any fraud or concealment on the part of the notary in taking her privy examination and signing that deed. Williams v. White (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1062.

Cause of action by a married woman to set aside a deed to the homestead held not based solely on the misstatement by the notary of the consideration expressed in the deed, but also to include deception of the notary, the grantee, and plaintiff's husband concerning the real transaction. Id.

Where a community homestead is sold by the husband alone, and thereafter the homestead is abandoned by the husband and wife and a new one is acquired, the deed becomes effective as a transfer of the title, in the absence of fraud against the rights of the wife. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 172, 115 S. W. 674.

A warranty deed of a homestead executed by a husband only held not to convey the wife's interest and to operate only by virtue of the covenant of warranty. Vickers v. Fedy, 29 S. C. 159, 115 S. W. 1110.

Persons dealing with a homestead must take notice of the conditions that impress it with the homestead character. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 56 C. A. 65, 119 S. W. 728.
A husband's deed to the homestead, in which the wife does not join, conveys the title as against every one but the wife and those claiming under her. Fullman v. Houston (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 69.

Plaintiff and his wife gave a deed of their homestead on the agreement that it was to secure payment of certain indebtedness of plaintiff. Thereafter plaintiff sold his home- stead, and at his request the grantee in the trust deed conveyed the property to the purchaser. Held, that such deed was as effectual to convey title as if it had been executed by plaintiff in person. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

Where a deed of trust stated with particularity that it secured only debts supposed to secure the purchase money, such as purchase improvements, this is sufficient to put a prudent person on inquiry as to the nature of the property; and, where such inquiry would have brought full knowledge of the facts, a purchaser at a sale under the deed of trust cannot claim that he had no notice that the property was a homestead. Girard v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 652.

Where the owners of land had lived on it from 1874 to their death in 1900, a purchaser under a deed of trust given by them, even after their death and the destruction of the homestead, must take notice of their death and the homestead character of the property at the time the deed of trust was given, regardless of any want of actual knowledge of the facts. Id.

A conveyance of the homestead by a husband alone held not to convey any title to the homestead to the wife. City Nat. Bank v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

Though a mortgage on the homestead in the form of an absolute deed was void as between the parties, it was valid as against the transferee, without notice, of the purchase-money note, so that she was entitled to have the vendor's lien reserved in the deed forcibly and the land sold to satisfy the debt. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

As a rule possession is notice of the possessor's title, and where a grantor by deed, absolute in form, but in fact a mortgage, conveying a homestead, was in actual possession of the property, and the deed was executed as a trust deed, the mortgage notes and her assignee were chargeable with notice that the original grantor claimed the land as her homestead, and that her deed was intended as a mortgage. Id.

A wife, in a personal capacity, as survivor of a husband, is not liable to legal process to set aside a conveyance to the adverse party on the ground that she understood notes executed by the adverse party were a part of the consideration, and not an indemnity against liens on property conveyed by the adverse party. Austin v. Rupe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 547.

A wife suing to set aside a deed executed by herself and husband in good faith and for the benefit of the husband and himself to show fraud of her husband or the purchaser. Id.

Though the deed of a wife be properly certified by the notary taking her acknowledgment, it may be avoided by her, if the acknowledgment does not speak the truth, and was obtained by fraud, provided the grantee had notice before he paid the purchase money. Stringfellow v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 937.

If execution of a deed by a married woman was procured by fraud, she might attack it, though it had been lawfully delivered, the same as if possession of it had been obtained and record made of it by fraud, so that, in such case, question of delivery is immaterial. Id.

A homestead exemption held not subject to defeat by representations in a deed, executed by a husband and wife in the actual possession of homestead property. Deaton v. Southern Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 234.

Art. 1116. [637] [561] Failing as a conveyance, shall be valid as a contract.—When an instrument in writing, which was intended as a conveyance of real estate, or some interest therein, shall fail, either in whole or in part, to take effect as a conveyance by virtue of the provisions of this chapter, the same shall nevertheless be valid and effectual as a contract upon which a conveyance may be enforced, as far as the rules of law will permit.

See Bedford v. Rayner Cattle Co., 13 C. A. 618, 35 S. W. 931.

A purchaser induced to buy land by the fraudulent representations of the vendor as to its quality, situation and value, which he at the time believed and acted upon, may have the sale rescinded. Dean v. Ingle, 1 U. C. 139.

A sale of a land certificate before location is an executory contract which must be enforced within ten years after there has been a refusal to convey. Fuller v. Coddington, 74 T. 337, 15 S. W. 47; Frost v. Wolf, 77 T. 458, 14 S. W. 47; 19 Am. St. Rep. 761; Howard v. Stubblefield, 79 T. 3, 14 S. W. 1044; Rankin v. Busby (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 678.

A power of sale in a trust deed is suspended by the death of the maker. Where the property is appropriated by the sole legatee the trustee is authorized to sell. Heirs of Rogers v. Watson, 81 T. 400, 17 S. W. 29; Nat. Exch. Bank v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 277.

A disputed lien may be established by parol evidence. Meriwether v. Asbeck (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1101.

Restoring consideration.—See notes under Art. 1106.

Conveyance of parties.—Under the Spanish law, written assent of the curatrix and the authority of the judge were essential to a valid alienation of the real estate of a minor. But if there was no curatrix, and the minor was over fourteen years of age, the sale was valid without such assent, provided there was no lesion and provided the authority of the judge was given. Meriwether v. Asbeck, supra; Failing v. Asbeck (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1101.
Art. 1116  CONVEYANCES  (Title 24)

At common law the conveyance of real estate by a minor is voidable only, and may be avoided by him after he arrives at full age; and in such case he should offer to restore the purchase money. Kilgore v. Jordan, 17 T. 341; Stuart v. Baker, 17 T. 417; Bingham v. Barley, 55 T. 281, 49 Am. Rep. 801.

A conveyance by a minor, executed under a power of attorney, is held subject to the same general rule. Graves v. Hickman, 59 T. 381.

The rule which requires one who seeks, on reaching the age of twenty-one years, to avoid a deed made during minority, to restore the purchase money does not apply when the purchase money was received by a third party, and never reached the possession of the minor. The fact that such third party was the recognized agent of the minor to receive the purchase money is immaterial. A minor can make no agent to perform an act to his injury, and whether the act be beneficial or injurious is left to the minor's discretion on reaching full age. Vogelsang v. Null, 67 T. 465, 3 S. W. 451.

In trespass to try title brought by one who seeks to avoid a deed alleged to have been made by him during minority and without consideration, he must not only establish that he was a minor when the deed was made, but that no consideration was in fact paid. In such a case, when there is no offer to return a consideration for the land, it is incumbent on the plaintiff to show that he received none. Wade v. Love, 69 T. 522, 7 S. W. 226.

Contracts by minors not founded on an illegal consideration are voidable only, at the instance of the minor, and this rule has been applied to a deed. Marlin v. Kosmyroski (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1042; Cummings v. Powell, 8 T. 84; Stuart v. Baker, 17 T. 413; Bingham v. Barley, 55 T. 285, 49 Am. Rep. 801; Ferguson v. Railway Co., 73 T. 346, 11 S. W. 347; Askey v. Williams, 74 T. 294, 11 S. W. 1101, 5 L. R. A. 176.

CORPORATIONS—PRIVATE

CHAPTER ONE
PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS

Art.

Corporations classified.

Public corporations.

Article 1117. [638] [562] Corporations classified.—Corporations are either public or private. [Act April 23, 1874, p. 120. P. D. 5932. Acts 1873, p. 42.]

Art. 1118. [639] [563] Public corporations.—A public corporation is one that has for its object the government of a portion of the state. [P. D. 5933.]

Art. 1119. [640] [564] Private corporations.—Private corporations are of three kinds: First, religious; second, corporations for charity or benevolence; and, third, corporations for profit. [R. S. 1879, 564. P. D. 5934.]

Quasi-public corporations.—A city water company is a quasi-public corporation, governed by the rules of law applicable to such corporations, and its charter may be annulled in a suit by the state for failure to perform corporate acts for a long period of time. City Water Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 259.

CHAPTER TWO
CREATION OF CORPORATIONS

Art.

Private corporations may be created.

For what purposes corporations may be created.

Charter and what it must set forth.

Charter must be subscribed and acknowledged.

Business firm shall give notice of intention to incorporate.

Private corporations for profit must subscribe full amount of stock and pay fifty per cent. of same before being chartered.

Secretary of state to receive, file and record charter, on satisfactory evidence, and payment of fees and franchise tax.

Satisfactory evidence defined.

Secretary of state may require other evidence.

Certain corporations exempt from provisions.
Article 1120. [641] [565] Private corporations may be created.—Private corporations may be created by the voluntary association of three or more persons for the purposes and in the manner hereinafter mentioned. [Acts 1874, p. 120. Acts 1897, p. 188. P. D. 5935.]

Constitution and general laws.—Under the constitutions of 1846, 1861 and 1866, a corporation could be created by a bill passed by two-thirds of both houses of the legislature, and a charter could be repealed by the same vote, compensation being made for the franchise. Sayles' Constitutions, pp. 211, 247, 325. No provision relating to corporations is found in the constitution of 1869. The constitution of 1876 provides that "no private corporation shall be created except by general laws." Art. 12, secs. 1, 2. General laws concerning corporations were passed December 2, 1871, April 25, 1873 and 1874, August 15, 1876, and the provisions of these acts were substantially incorporated in Title 20 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1879. This title of the Revised Statutes was amended by the acts of June 21, 1885 (19th Leg. p. 59); April 30, 1888 (20th Leg., S. S., p. 1); April 24, 1891 (23d Leg. p. 161); April 26, 1893 (23d Leg. p. 109); March 29, 1896 (p. 333); April 30, 1896 (p. 190).

By article 12 of the constitution of 1876 a private corporation can be created only by general laws providing therefor. G. C. Ry. Co. v. G. C. S. Ry. Co., 63 T. 829.

Article 1121. [642] [566] For what purposes corporations may be created.—The purposes for which private corporations may be formed are:

1. The support of public worship.
2. The support of any benevolent, charitable, educational or missionary undertaking.
3. The support of any literary and scientific undertaking; the maintenance of a library or promotion of painting, music and other fine arts.

For old section 3a, see section 16.

4. The encouragement of agriculture and horticulture by associations for the maintenance of public fairs and exhibitions of stock and farm products.
5. The maintenance of a public or private cemetery or crematory.
6. The construction and maintenance of any species of roads and bridges in connection therewith.

11. The building and navigation of steamboats and vessels and the carriage of persons and property therein.
12. The supply of water to the public.
13. The manufacture and supply of gas, and the supply of light, heat, and electric motor power, or either of them, to the public by any means.
14. The transaction of any manufacturing or mining business, and the purchase and sale of such goods, wares and merchandise used for such business.
15. The transaction of a printing or publishing business, and in connection therewith, the sale of goods, wares, and merchandise of a stationery and blank book manufacturing business.
16. For the establishment and maintenance of oil companies, with authority to contract for the lease and purchase of the right to prospect for, develop, and use, coal and other minerals, and petroleum; also, the right to erect, build and own, all necessary oil tanks, cars, and pipes, necessary for the operation of the business of the same. [Acts 1897, p. 188.]

For old section 16, see section 70.

17. The erection or repair of any building or improvement, and the accumulation and loaning of money for said purposes, and for the purchase, sale and subdivision of real property in towns, cities and villages, and their suburbs not extending more than two miles beyond their limits and for the accumulation and loaning of money for that purpose. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

18. The transportation of goods, wares and merchandise, or any valuable thing.

19. The promotion of immigration.

20. The construction and maintenance of sewers.

21. For constructing or acquiring, with power to maintain and operate, street railways and suburban railways and belt lines of railways within and near cities and towns, for the transportation of freight and passengers, with power also to construct, own and operate union depots; and any such company using electricity as the motive power for the operation of its lines shall have the right and authority to supply and sell electric light and power to the public and municipalities; and for the establishment of companies to buy, own, sell and convey right of way upon which to construct railroads; provided, that all street and suburban railways engaged in transporting freight shall be subject to the control of the railroad commission. But no street railway company shall ever be exempted from payment of assessments that may be legally levied or charged against it for street improvement. Any corporation heretofore organized under the general laws of this state, and which now owns or operates with electric power any street or suburban railway within the state, shall be, and the same hereby is, authorized to supply and sell electric light and power to the public or municipalities, and to acquire or otherwise provide the necessary appliances therefor, and may, by proceeding in the manner provided by existing laws, amend its articles of incorporation so as to expressly include such authority. [Acts 1897, p. 189. Acts 1903, p. 62.]

22. The erection and maintenance of market houses and market places.

23. The construction, maintenance and operation of dams, reservoirs, lakes, wells, canals, flumes, laterals, and other necessary appurtenances for the purpose of irrigation, navigation, milling, mining, stock raising and city water works.

24. The purchase and sale of goods, wares and merchandise, and agricultural and farm products. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

24a. Corporations may be created for the purpose of gathering and harvesting cotton; provided that the authorized capital stock of corporations authorized by this section shall not exceed fifty thousand dollars. [Acts 1911, p. 28, sec. 1.]

24b. Corporations may be created for the purpose of doing a general advertising business. [Id.]

25. The buying and selling of goods, wares and merchandise of any description, by wholesale or wholesale and retail; provided, that no corporation created under this subdivision shall be chartered with a capital stock of less than twenty thousand dollars; and provided, further, that such wholesale and retail business shall not be conducted apart or in separate establishments.

26. The construction of harbors and canals on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

27. The growing, selling and purchasing of seeds, plants, trees, etc., for agricultural, horticultural and ornamental purposes, and to purchase and lease all lands necessary for that purpose.
28. The construction or purchase and maintenance of mills, gins, cotton compresses, grain elevators, wharves, and public warehouses for the storage of products and commodities, and the purchase, sale and storage of products and commodities by grain elevator and public warehouse companies, and the loan of money by such elevator or public warehouse companies.

29. The accumulation and loan of money; but these subdivisions shall not permit incorporations with banking or discounting privileges.

30. The construction and maintenance of stock yards and pens.

31. The construction and maintenance of establishments for slaughtering, refrigerating, canning, curing, and packing meat, and loaning or advancing money by such establishments on any class of live stock.

32. The construction and maintenance of establishments for the preserving and canning of fruits, vegetables and fish.

33. The establishment and maintenance of clearing houses.

34. To construct and maintain water power.

35. The constructing of railroads and bridges for railroad companies.

36. To support and maintain bicycle clubs, and other innocent sports. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

37. To act as trustee, assignee, executor, administrator, guardian or receiver, when designated by any person, corporation or court so to do, and to do a general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety and guarantor of the fidelity of employés, trustees, executors, administrators, guardians or others appointed to or assuming the performance of any trust, public or private, under appointment by any court or tribunal, or under contract between private individuals or corporations; also on any bond or bonds that may be required to be filed in any judicial proceeding; also to guarantee any contract or undertaking between individuals, or between private corporations, or between individuals or private corporations and the state and municipal corporations or counties, or between private corporations and individuals; to act as executor, and testamentary guardian, when designated as such by decedents; or to act as administrator or guardian, when appointed by any court having jurisdiction; provided, that, when any executor's, administrator's, or guardian's bond, or any bond required to be filed in any judicial proceeding, may be signed as surety by any corporation organized by authority of this subdivision, and if such corporation shall be deemed and considered by the officer charged by law with the duty of accepting and approving such bond as sufficient security for the amount of such bond, such bond may be accepted and approved by the officer charged by law with the duty of accepting and approving the same without being signed by other sureties than such corporation; and any statute or law to the contrary, or requiring any such bond to be signed by two or more good and sufficient sureties, shall be governed and controlled by the provisions of this subdivision; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to permit any corporation to go upon any bond of any state or county official in this state; provided, that each corporation organized under this subdivision, shall publish in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where such company is organized, on the first day of February of each year, a statement of its condition on the previous thirty-first day of December, showing under oath its assets and liabilities, that a copy of this statement be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and a fee of twenty-five dollars is paid to that officer for filing the same, and that an examination of its affairs be made at any time by the commissioner of insurance and banking, such examination to be at the expense of the company; provided, the guaranty and fidelity companies organized under the provisions of this subdivision shall have a paid up capital stock of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, and shall keep on deposit with the state treasurer money, bonds, or other securities, in an amount not less than fifty thousand dollars, said securities to be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, and that this amount to be kept intact at all times. [Act 1897, p. 190. Acts 1903, p. 197.]

38. The establishment of transportation companies, with power to buy, construct, lease, own, operate, maintain and convey all kinds of steamships, vessels and other water crafts, and may navigate the same between all parts of the globe, and upon rivers, and construct, buy, lease, own, maintain, operate and convey warehouses, docks and wharves, and to buy, lease, receive, own, hold, and enjoy real and personal property necessary in the transaction of its business; to receive, purchase, hold, use and convey such rights, privileges, franchises and property, and to exercise beyond the jurisdiction of this state such power as may be granted to or conferred upon it by any foreign government, state or municipality; to have officers and agents, and to maintain offices at all points at which the company may do business; to act as principal or agent in buying or selling merchandise in all foreign countries; to carry passengers, freight, express and mail. [Acts 1897, p. 191.]

39. For the purpose of doing business in any state or foreign country:
(a) The establishment of land companies to buy, own, sell and convey real estate and minerals, and engage in mining, agriculture and stock raising.
(b) Doing a general business in merchandise and manufactures.
(c) The acquisition, construction, maintenance, operating and owning of power and illuminating plants, and systems of every character.
(d) The acquisition, construction, maintenance, operating and owning of urban and other lines of railway and all other kinds of transportation and communication.
(e) The improvement of harbors and rivers, and the acquisition, construction, ownership and operating of canals, irrigation works, wharves and warehouses, and all kinds of machinery, tools and materials used for all the purposes enumerated in this subdivision; provided, that any corporation organized under the provisions of this subdivision shall only own such real estate in this state as may be necessary for its office; provided, further, that, for every charter granted under the provisions of this act which may include more purposes than are contained in any one paragraph of this subdivision, a separate franchise fee or tax shall be paid to the state of Texas for the additional purposes for which such corporation is organized under the various paragraphs of this subdivision. [Acts 1897, p. 191. Acts 1901, p. 70.]

40. The making, compiling and owning of abstracts of titles to lands, and liens of all characters on any property, or any other abstracts of records of this state or any county thereof, required by law.

41. The improvement of rivers and other waterways in this state, and to render the same navigable for steam vessels and other water crafts, with the authority to charge and collect tolls for the navigation of such rivers and waterways.

42. The protection and preservation and propagation of fish, oysters, and game.

43. The organization and maintenance of volunteer fire companies.

44. The protection of women and children and the prevention of cruelty to animals. [Acts 1897, p. 191.]

45. The erection and maintenance of sanitariums, with the right to acquire, and own lands and town lots; to improve, cultivate, rent and alienate same; to erect storage dams and otherwise develop irrigation on such lands; to erect, acquire and maintain hotels and bath houses on its property; and in conjunction therewith; to erect and maintain training schools and outdoor sports, on its property for the training and pleasure of its patients, and their families; to maintain and carry on such industrial enterprises in conjunction therewith as shall be necessary, to furnish employment to the patients therein, and their families; provided, such corporation shall not own or control more land, than is necessary for the actual conduct and control of a sanitarium. [Acts 1913, p. 114, sec. 1.]

46. The organization of fire, marine, life and live stock insurance companies; provided, that such live stock insurance companies may be organized with an authorized and paid up capital stock of not less than ten thousand dollars; and provided, further, that all insurance companies mentioned in this subdivision shall be in all other respects subject to, and shall comply with, all of the provisions of title 71, of the Revised Statutes of Texas. [Acts 1897, p. 191. Acts 1907, p. 292.]

47. To construct steam and electric plows for breaking, cultivating and draining of lands.

48. The organization of laborers, workingmen, wage earners and farmers to protect themselves in their various pursuits. [Acts 1897, p. 191.]

49. The promoting and taking stock in manufacturing companies or corporations.

50. The organization of mutual fire, or storm, or lightning insurance companies, without an authorized capital; provided, that the members of said mutual fire insurance companies applying for such charters shall be resident citizens of the state of Texas, which fact shall be proven by the affidavit of a credible person accompanying the articles of incorporation when filed with the secretary of state, and such affidavit shall state that the person making the same is cognizant of the facts therein stated; provided, further, that no permit to transact business within this state shall be granted to any mutual fire, or storm, or lightning insurance company without an authorized capital, incorporated under the laws of any other state.

51. The raising, buying and selling of live stock.

52. The establishment and carrying on of dairies and creamery companies. [Id. p. 192.]

53. The construction, maintenance and operation of terminal railways; and any such terminal railway company, in addition to the rights conferred by law upon corporations generally, shall have and exercise all rights and powers conferred upon railroad companies by chapters 8 and 9 of title 115 of the Revised Statutes of Texas relating to railroads, including the right to issue bonds in excess of its authorized capital stock; provided, that its stock and bonds shall be issued under the direction of the railroad commission of this state, in accordance with the stock and bond law regulating the issuance of stocks and bonds by railroads; and the commission shall fix the values of the property, rights and franchises of such terminal railway company; and its stocks and bonds shall not exceed the amount authorized by the railroad commission of Texas; and jurisdiction over the issuance of the bonds herein authorized is hereby expressly vested in the railroad commission; provided, that no such terminal company shall have the right to charge any railroad company for terminal facilities a greater amount than may be, from time to time, designated and established by the railroad commission, which shall have authority to prescribe such rates and rules for the operation of all such terminal companies as will prevent discrimination by them against any common carrier with respect to either charges or service; provided, further, that the provisions of articles 6656, 6657 and 6658 of the Revised Statutes of Texas shall apply to any and all orders, rulings, judgments and decrees of the railroad commission made, entered or held under the provisions of this subdivision in regard to such terminal railway companies. [Acts 1907, p. 300. Acts 1905, p. 211; 1897, p. 130.]

54. To build, maintain and operate a line of railroad to mines, gins, quarries, manufacturing plants, breweries and mills, and to condemn land necessary for the right of way for such road, from and between such mine, gin, quarry, manufacturing plant or mill, and the nearest line of railroad; but no corporation created under the provisions of this subdivision shall have the power to condemn private property until said corporation shall declare itself a public highway and common carrier, thus placing said road under the control of the railroad commission of this state.

55. To excavate, maintain and operate drainage ditches, canals, and flumes, and to condemn land necessary for the right of way and machinery plants for such drainage ditches, canals and flumes. [Acts 1897, p. 192.]

Explanatory.—The legislature skipping a number gave to this subdivision the number 57, and so continued the numbering down to subdivision 68. These numbers have been changed so as to run consecutively.

56. For the organization of cotton exchanges, chambers of commerce and boards of trade, with power to provide and maintain suitable rooms for the conduct of their business, and to establish and maintain uniformity in the commercial usages of cities and towns, to acquire, preserve and disseminate valuable business information, and to adopt rules, regulations and standards of classification, which shall govern all transactions connected with the cotton trade, and with other commodities where standards and classification are required, and generally to promote the interest of trade and increase of facilities of commercial transactions. [Acts 1899, p. 58.]

57. For the organization of companies for growing and selling of fruits, vegetables and tobacco.

58. For the organization of exchanges, with authority to deal in the stocks of mining companies.

59. For conducting the business of undertaker and embalmer. [Acts 1901, p. 70.]

60. The construction, acquiring, maintaining and operating lines of electric, gas, or gasoline, denatured alcohol, or naptha motor railways within and between any cities or towns, in this state, for the transportation of freight, or passengers, or both, with power, also to construct, own and operate union depots and office buildings. But no electric, gas, or gasoline, denatured alcohol, or naptha railways, incorporated under this sub-division, shall ever be exempt from the payment of assessments that may be legally levied, or assessed against it for street improvements. Corporations created under this sub-division shall be, and are authorized to exercise the right of eminent domain for the purpose of acquiring right of way upon which to construct their railway lines, and sites, for depots and power plants, upon the same conditions, and in the same manner, as railroad corporations are now required to do under the laws of this state, and shall have the same rights, power and privileges as are now granted to inter-urban electric railway companies, by chapter 17, of title 115, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, passed at the regular session of the thirty-second legislature, and all the powers of whatsoever kind, or character, conferred by said chapter; provided no property upon which is located a cemetery shall ever be condemned, unless it shall affirmatively be shown, and so found by the court trying such condemnation suits, that it is necessary to take such property, and no other route is possible or practicable; and provided that the electric, gas or gasoline, denatured alcohol or naptha motor railways incorporated under this sub-division, which shall engage in transporting freight shall be subject to the control of the railroad commission. [Acts 1913, p. 67, sec. 1, amended Acts 1913, p. 349, sec. 1.]
That any corporation heretofore organized under the general laws of this state, and which now own, or operates, a line of electric, gas or gasoline, denatured alcohol, or naptha motor railway, within and between, any cities or towns, in this state, shall be and the same hereby is authorized to own and operate office buildings, and may, by proceeding in the manner provided by existing laws amend its articles of incorporation so as to expressly include such authority. [Acts 1913, p. 67, sec. 2, amended Acts 1913, p. 349, sec. 2.]

61. For the organization of companies for the purpose of growing, preparing for market, and selling rice, with power to construct, maintain, and operate such dams, reservoirs, lakes, wells, canals, flumes, laterals, and other appurtenances as may be necessary or convenient for the purpose of irrigating.

62. For the organization of companies for the purpose of growing and selling sugar cane with the right to make and refine sugar, molasses, and all by-products of sugar cane, and to sell the same. [Acts 1905, p. 28.]

63. For the organization of companies for constructing, operating and maintaining causeways, or causeways and bridges, which may be used for any and all modes of travel and transportation, with the right to demand, receive and collect charges as fares or tolls. Any company organized under this subdivision, that shall construct a causeway and bridge of at least one mile in length across any bay or arm of the sea contiguous to a city having not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, within this state, shall have authority to borrow money and issue bonds without being limited in the amount of such issue by the provisions of article 1162. [Acts 1905, p. 87.]

64. For the organization of companies to conduct and carry on a general apiary business, and in connection therewith to manufacture bee hives and bee keepers' supplies, and the purchase and sale of such goods, wares and merchandise used, manufactured and produced in such business. [Acts 1907, p. 11.]

65. For the establishment and maintenance of fishing, hunting and boating clubs; the protection, preservation and propagation of fish and game; the purchase and ownership of such lands and bodies of water as may be desirable in connection therewith; the erection of suitable improvements thereon; and the raising of such live stock for profit only as the preserves of such club will maintain; provided, also, that fishing and hunting clubs heretofore chartered in this state, may amend their charters and take advantage of this law by complying with existing regulations for the amendment to charters of private corporations.

66. The auditing of books, accounts and transactions of persons, firms or corporations, private, public or municipal.

67. To construct, purchase, maintain and operate warehouses at one or more places in the state for the storage of products of the soil, with authority to issue negotiable receipts therefor. Any corporation organized under this subdivision, shall, by provision of its charter, or by amendment thereof, limit the amount of its capital stock that may be owned or controlled directly or indirectly by one stockholder, and the number of votes that may be cast in any stockholders' meeting by one stockholder to not exceeding one thousand dollars of its capital stock.

68. To manufacture and sell denatured alcohol and its by-products. Any corporation organized under this subdivision may, by provision in its charter, or by amendment thereof, limit the amount of its capital stock that may be owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by one stockholder, and the number of votes that may be cast in any stockholders' meeting by one stockholder.

69. To guarantee titles to lands and indemnify the holders thereof against losses by reason of defects in titles. [Acts 1907, p. 291.]
70. The establishment, maintenance, erection or repair of a hotel, office building, opera and play house, apartment house, or steam laundry. [Acts 1897, p. 189.]

71. For the purpose of guaranteeing and assuring the validity of bills of lading and other contracts.

72. Private corporations may be created for, or after being created, may be so amended as to include two or more of the following purposes, namely: The construction or purchase and maintenance of mills and gins; the manufacture and supply to the public, by any means, of ice, gas, light, heat, water and electric motor power, or either, in connection with such mills and gins, or either, the harvesting of grain, or the harvesting and threshing of grain; provided, that the authorized capital stock of all corporations, authorized by this subdivision shall not exceed two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. [Acts 1903, p. 227.]

That corporations organized or chartered under the laws of this state for the manufacture of ice, in addition to the privileges and power now extended to such corporations, shall be authorized to engage in and transact the business of buying, selling and refrigerating poultry and poultry products, and buying, selling, canning and refrigerating fruits, produce and dairy products. [Acts 1913, p. 267, sec. 1.]

73. Private corporations may be created for or after being created may so amend their charters so as to include two or more of the following purposes, namely: The supply of water to the public for irrigation, power, municipal or domestic purposes; the manufacture of and supply of ice to the public; the generation of and supply of gas, electric light and motor power to the public; the manufacture, supply and sale of carbonated water to the public; the operation of cotton seed oil mills and the operation of cotton compresses.

Provided, that corporations including more than one of the purposes named in this article shall pay the franchise tax provided by law for each of the purposes so included in their said charters or amendments thereto; and provided further that the authorized capital stock of corporations created under or authorized by this article which shall include irrigation and any one or more of the other purposes named in this article, shall not exceed $1,000,000.00; and that the authorized capital stock of corporations created under or authorized by this article which shall include water works, for the supply of water to the public or municipalities, and any one or more of the other purposes named in this article except irrigation, shall not exceed $500,000.00, and that the authorized capital stock of corporation so authorized by this article for any two or more of the purposes named in this article except irrigation and water works or the supply of water to the public, shall not exceed $200,000.00. [Acts 1913, p. 352, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 355, sec. 1, enacts "that article 65b of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1889, as enacted by the thirtieth legislature, Acts 1907, page 294, and that subdivision 73 of article 1121 of title 36 of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911 be so amended as to hereafter read as above set forth.

74. Corporations may be formed and chartered for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating canals, drains and ditches outside of the corporate limits of cities and towns in any county in the state of Texas. [Acts 1897, p. 109. Acts 1893, p. 109; 1891, p. 161; 1888, S. S., p. 1; 1887, p. 40; 1885, p. 59.]

75. A private corporation may be formed and chartered for the purpose of conducting livery and transfer business with auto and horses drawn vehicles and for the sale of such vehicles. [Acts 1913, p. 174, sec. 1.]

Purposes for which may be created—Several and distinct purposes.—A corporation can be formed for one or more of the purposes specified in any one of the subdivisions of this article, but not for two or more purposes as designated in two or more of the subdivisions. Ramsey v. Tod, 96 T. 614, 69 S. W. 135, 93 Am. St. Rep. 875.

Corporations cannot be formed for two or more distinct purposes when incorporation for such purposes is only authorized by separate subdivisions of the general incorporation.
statute; but when several purposes are specified in one subdivision of the statute a corporation may be formed for any one or more of the purposes so specified. Borden v. Texas & Pacific Ry. Co., 15 S. W. 452.

This subdivision, while giving the right to incorporate for a business consisting of manufacturing and mining, does not authorize incorporation for two businesses—one of manufacturing and the other of mining. Johnston v. Townsend, 103 S. 125, 124 S. W. 417. The religious body organized as a moral, and physical reformation of the working classes, for the reclamation of the vicious, criminal, dissolute, and degraded, etc., with the employment of its funds restricted by law to philanthropic, benevolent, and charitable purposes, is not organized for separate and distinct purposes, and its charter is not invalid on that ground. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 630.

Where one of the purposes unauthorized, charter is invalid.—Where one of the purposes declared in the proposed charter is not authorized by law the fact that another purpose in connection therewith is lawful, does not effect the validity of the charter. The secretary of state will not be compelled to file it. Miller v. Tod, 95 S. W. 484.

Subdivision 1.—A church association failing to organize under the provisions of the statute cannot sue as a corporation or hold real estate. Tunstall v. Wormley, 54 S. 476.

Subdivision 2.—See Art. 1225 et seq.

A corporation can be formed for purposes missionary and educational, the promotion of harmony of feeling and concert of action among Baptists, and to further the interests of the Christian religion. Cranfill v. Hayden, 22 C. A. 658, 65 S. W. 809.

The Daughters of the Republic of Texas which was organized as a corporation for the declared purpose of perpetuating the memory and spirit of the men who achieved Texan independence, and to encourage historical research into the early history of Texas, and promote the celebration of Independence Day of the Texas Republic, and erect monuments in the public places of historic in the ways and means organized for "educational" purposes within this subdivision; "education" in the statutory sense meaning not merely instruction received at school, but the whole course of training, both moral, intellectual, and physical. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 177.

Subdivision 14.—Under this subdivision and the statute which requires the preparation of a charter setting forth the purpose for which the corporation is formed a proposed charter stating, "The purpose for which this corporation is formed is the transaction of a manufacturing and mining business and the purchase and sale of goods, wares and merchandise used for such business," was too indefinite, since it might be interpreted as meaning the authorization of the pursuit of both businesses. Johnston v. Townsend, 103 S. 122, 124 S. W. 474.

Subdivision 21.—See also, Art. 1242 et seq. and Art. 6405 et seq.

A street railway company that has leased its line to a corporation for purpose of transporting freight is equally liable with such corporation for injury to adjacent property. Aycock v. S. A. Brewing Ass'n, 63 S. W. 954, 26 C. A. 341.

The legislature having the power to grant a charter, and the city having granted a franchise to build a street railway for the transportation of freight, an abutting property owner can not restrain such use of the street or have the road declared a nuisance, though he owned the fee and granted the land to the city for street purposes only. Rische v. Texas Transportation Co., 27 C. A. 95, 66 S. W. 326.

A street railway company incorporated under this subdivision could construct and operate a line of road beyond the limits of the city wherein it was chartered to operate, and into a city which was practically a suburb of the other. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houston, 150 S. W. 270.

That a corporation adopted the name "Houston Belt & Terminal Railway Company," and its charter provides for a route forming a complete "belt" line around the principal part of the city, does not contradict a purpose, plainly declared in the charter, to form a terminal or subdivision 63, as distinguished from a suburban belt line provided for by this subdivision. Houston B. & T. R. Co. v. Hornberger (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 272.

That the charter of a terminal railroad company, organized under this subdivision as amended by Act May 8, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 109), restricts the length of its main line to about 20 miles, following a route described in general terms, does not prevent it from condemning land lying more than 20 miles from the specified place of beginning, if the road is being constructed in the reverse direction from the ends in the charter, and such land lies within the 20-mile limit under such construction. Id.

Under Const. art. 1, § 17, prohibiting grant of irrevocable and uncontrollable franchises, incorporation of a terminal railroad company under this subdivision as amended by Act May 9, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 109) did not constitute a contract which could not be modified by subsequent legislation, as affecting the company's right to accept and rely on the subsequent amendment of the act in 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. c. 157), by acting under the amendment, so as to make the operation of the road a public use, entitling the company to exercise the right of eminent domain as a common carrier, within Const. art. 10, §§ 1, 2. Id.

Subdivision 23.—See Art. 4988.

This subdivision constitutes the body of the law upon the subject of the utilization of water for the promotion of the several industries of which it treats. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 107. Am. St. 68 S. W. 114, 484-5107.

Under articles 7256 and 7258, a corporation formed under this subdivision is entitled to acquire land by eminent domain proceedings. Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 111.

Subdivision 27.—This subdivision does not authorize the incorporation of a company for the purpose of "growing, selling and purchasing of rice and other agricultural products and to purchase and to lease all lands necessary for that purpose." Miller v. Tod, 95 S. W. 484, 67 S. W. 484.
Subdivision 28.—See Art. 1322 et seq.

Under this law a corporation can be formed to buy compresses, and it can buy a number of compresses in different parts of the state. The law authorizes the creation of a corporation for this purpose, and the right to forfeit the charter (as being in violation of the anti-trust law) depends upon the intent with which it was procured, and it devolves upon the state to establish an unlawful intent to justify the forfeiture claimed. State v. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co., 95 T. 603, 69 S. W. 61.

Subdivision 29.—See Arts. 330, 336.

Subdivision 37.—Statement of liability of a safety deposit company as a bailee for hire, for abstraction of a deposit from a box. Guaranty Trust Co. v. Diltz, 42 C. A. 26, 91 S. W. 556.

Subdivision 39.—This subdivision does not confine the power of a corporation to buy, own, and sell real estate to corporations organized for that purpose alone, and a foreign corporation empowered to purchase and hold land may purchase and hold land in Texas. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 869.

Subdivision 50.—See Arts. 4730, 4735, 4794, 4805, 4852, 4905, 4919, 4942.

A live stock insurance company formed under this subdivision before the amendment of 1907 went into effect did not have to comply with the requirements of title 71, regulating other insurance companies. The amendment however makes such a company subject to the provisions of title 71. State v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 367.

A live stock insurance company organized under this subdivision to "conduct a live stock insurance company or business upon a mutual or co-operative plan without authorized capital stock and without policies of indemnity," to its members, is not such a mutual relief association as is mentioned in article 4972. It is merely a live stock insurance company conducted on the mutual or co-operative plan. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

Subdivision 56.—This statute is valid, and where a corporation does not comply with it, it is not entitled to the issuance of a permit by the Secretary of State to transact business in this state. English & Scottish Am. Mortg. & Ins. Co. v. Hardy, 95 T. 280, 55 S. W. 169.

This subdivision relates only to the prerequisites to incorporation, and does not regulate the issuance of stock, regulated by Const. art. 12, § 6, providing that no corporation shall issue stock, except for money paid, labor done, or property actually received. McCarthy v. Texas Loan & Guaranty Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 96.

Conveyance to proposed corporation.—This article and article 1122 require a preliminary organization before application is made for a charter for a corporation, and provide that it must also be shown that at least 10 per cent. of the authorized capital has been paid in. The deed to the unorganized corporation conveyed land to the proposed incorporation as a partnership and did not fail for want of a grantee. Smith v. First Nat. Bank of Flatonia, 43 C. A. 495, 95 S. W. 1116.

Art. 1122. [643] [567] Charter and what it must set forth.—A charter must be prepared setting forth:

1. The name of the corporation.
2. The purpose for which it is formed.
3. The place or places where its business is to be transacted.
4. The term for which it is to exist.
5. The number of its directors or trustees, and the names and residences of those who are appointees for the first year.
6. The amount of its capital stock, if any, and the number of shares into which it is divided.
7. The charter of a bridge or ferry company shall also state the stream intended to be crossed by the bridge or ferry.
8. The charter of a road company shall also state: First, the kind of a road intended to be constructed; second, the places from and to which the road is intended to be run; third, the counties through which it is intended to be run; fourth, the estimated length of the road. [P. D. 5937.]

Art. 1123. [644] [568] Charter must be subscribed and acknowledged.—The charter of an intended corporation must be subscribed by three or more persons, two of whom at least must be citizens of this state, and must be acknowledged by them before an officer duly authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds; provided, that all charters for the purposes named in clauses two and three of article 1121 of this chapter and title may be subscribed by married women, who may also be stockholders, officers and directors thereof; and their acts, contracts and deeds shall be as binding and effective for all the purposes of said corporation as if they were males; and the joinder and consent of their husbands and privy examinations separate and apart from them shall not be required. [Acts of 1887, p. 103.]

Art. 1124. [679] [603] Business firm shall give notice of intention to incorporate.—Whenever any banking, mercantile or other business firm desires to become incorporated without a change of the firm name, such firm shall, in addition to the notice of dissolution required at common law, give notice of such intention to become incorporated, for at least four successive weeks, in some newspaper published at the seat of state government, and in the county in which such firm has its principal business office, if there be a newspaper in such county, and, if not, then in some newspaper published in some adjoining county; and until such notice shall have been so published for the full period above named, no change shall take place in the liability of such firm or the members thereof.

Art. 1125. Private corporations for profit must subscribe full amount of stock and pay fifty per cent of same, before being chartered.—The stockholders of all private corporations created for profit with an authorized capital stock under the provisions of this chapter, shall be required, in good faith, to subscribe the full amount of its authorized capital stock, and to pay fifty per cent thereof before said corporation shall be chartered. [Acts 1901, p. 18. Acts 1897, p. 192. Acts 1907, p. 309, sec. 1.]

Art. 1126. Secretary of state to receive, file and record charter, on satisfactory evidence of compliance, and payment of fees and franchise tax.—Whenever the stockholders of any such company shall furnish satisfactory evidence to the secretary of state that the full amount of the authorized capital stock has in good faith been subscribed, and fifty per cent thereof paid in cash, or its equivalent in other property or labor done, the product of which shall be to the company of the actual value at which it was taken, or property actually received, it shall be the duty of said officer, on payment of office fees and franchise tax due, to receive, file and record the charter of such company in his office, and to give his certificate showing the record thereof. [Id.]

Art. 1127. Satisfactory evidence defined.—Satisfactory evidence above mentioned shall consist of the affidavit of those who executed the charter, stating therein:
   1. The name, residence and postoffice address of each subscriber to the capital stock of such company.
   2. The amount subscribed by each, and the amount paid by each.
   3. The cash value of any property received, giving its description, location and from whom and the price at which it was received.
   4. The amount, character and value of labor done, from whom, and price at which it was received. [Id.]

Art. 1128. Secretary of state may require other evidence.—If the secretary of state is not satisfied, he may, at the expense of the incorporators, require other and more satisfactory evidence before he shall be required to receive, file and record said charter. [Id.]

Art. 1129. Certain corporations exempt from provisions.—Corporations created under subdivisions 21, 29, 37, 53, 54 and 60 of article 1121, as well as corporations formed for the construction, purchase and maintenance of mills and gins, having a capital stock of not exceeding fifteen thousand dollars, mutual building and loan associations, and also waterworks, ice plants, electric light plants and cotton warehouses in cities of less than ten thousand inhabitants are exempt from the provisions of articles 1125 to 1128, inclusive. [Id.]

Art. 1130. Subscriptions and payment of stock required of excepted corporations.—The stockholders of all private corporations such as are designated in the last preceding article, created for profit and with an authorized capital stock under the provisions of this chapter shall be required to pay in at least one hundred thousand dollars in cash of their authorized capital stock, or to subscribe at least fifty per cent, and pay in at least ten per cent of their authorized capital before they shall be authorized to do business in this state; and whenever the stockholders of any such company shall furnish satisfactory evidence to the secretary of state that at least one hundred thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock has been paid in, in cash, or that at least fifty per cent of its authorized capital has been subscribed and ten per cent paid in, it shall be the duty of said officer to receive, file and record the charter of such company in the office of the secretary of state, upon application and the payment of all fees therefor, and to give his certificate showing the record of such charter and authority to do business thereunder. [Acts 1901, p. 18, sec. 1; modified by Acts 1907, p. 309.]

Art. 1131. [645] [569] Must be filed with secretary of state, etc. — Such charter shall thereupon be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who shall record the same at length in a book to be kept for that purpose, and retain the original on file in his office. A copy of the charter, or of the record thereof, certified under the great seal of the state, shall be evidence of the creation of the corporation. [Act April 23, 1874, sec. 9. P. D. 5940.]

Art. 1132. [646] [570] Corporation shall exist from time of filing charter, etc.—The existence of the corporation shall date from the filing of the charter in the office of the secretary of state, and the certificate of the secretary of state shall be evidence of such filing. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 5941.]

Existence independent of subscription or payment.—The existence of a corporation is not dependent upon the subscription to its stock or the payment therefor. It follows that when the company files its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state it becomes a corporation in law, and that the owners of its stock and the managers of its business cannot be held liable as partners for debts contracted by it. National Bank v. Texas Investment Co., 74 T. 421, 12 S. W. 101. — Dependent upon filing of charter.—In this article and articles 1122 and 1131 it is specifically declared what acts are necessary to bring and the date when the corporation is brought into existence. Performance of all the prerequisites short of filing the charter with the secretary of state is not sufficient to bring the company into existence as a corporation de jure. Nor do we think such acts are sufficient to create an association a corporation de facto. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 109 S. W. 289.

Art. 1133. [647] [571] Charter may be amended, how.—Any private corporation heretofore organized or incorporated, or which may hereafter be organized or incorporated, for any of the purposes mentioned in this chapter may amend or change its charter or act of incorporation by filing, authenticated in the manner required by this chapter as to an original charter of incorporation, such amendments or changes with the secretary of state; and, in case of a corporation, created by special act of the legislature, said corporation shall cause the amendments or changes to its charter to be authenticated as required in the case of an original charter of incorporation, and filed with the secretary of state, together with the original charter of such company, and such amendments thereto, or changes therein, if any, as have been made by special act of the legislature; and the same shall be recorded by the secretary of state, followed by the proposed amendments or changes thereof. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 6011b.]

Authority to amend construed.—Corporation's statutory authority to amend its charter held not to extend to a prior stock subscription contract, so as to bind the subscriber to take stock in a corporation with different powers from that contemplated in the subscription. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 558.

Increase of stock by amendment void.—An increase of the capital stock of a corporation from $100,000 to $1,200,000 by an amendment is void. Kampman v. Tarver, 29 S. W. 768, 87 T. 493.

Art. 1134. [648] [572] When amendments shall take effect.—The amendments or changes provided for in the preceding article shall take effect and be in force, from the date of the filing thereof with the secretary of state; and the certificate of the secretary of state shall be evidence of such filing. [1d.]

Art. 1135. [649] [573] Amendments, what void and what valid.—
No amendment or change violative of the constitution or laws of this state or any of the provisions of this title shall be of any force or effect; amendments or changes may include additional purpose for which private corporations may be incorporated to that contained in its original or amended charter, as are specified in subdivision 72 of article 1121; but such amendments which so change the original purpose of such corporation as to prevent the execution thereof shall be of no force or effect. [Acts 1903, p. 227.]

Cited, Johnston v. Townsend, 124 S. W. 417.

Art. 1136. Renewal of charter of certain benevolent, etc., corporations, how.—Any private corporation created either by special act of the legislature or under the provisions of the general law for the support of any benevolent, charitable, educational or missionary undertaking, the support of any literary or scientific undertaking, the maintenance of a library, or the promotion of painting, music or other fine arts, whose charter may expire or may have expired by limitation, may revive such charter, with all the privileges and immunities and rights of property, real and personal, exercised and held by it at the date of the expiration of its said charter, by filing, with the consent of a majority of its stockholders, a new charter under the provisions of the general law of the state of Texas, reciting therein such original privileges and immunities and rights of property, and by filing therewith a certified copy of such original expired charter. [Acts 1907, p. 301. Acts 1909, p. 226.]

Art. 1137. Renewal and consolidation of two or more such corporations, etc., how.—Any two or more of such corporations may revive and consolidate their charters under a new corporate name, or under the name of either, with all privileges, immunities and rights of property, real and personal, enjoyed by each at the date of the expiration of their several charters, by, in like manner, filing a charter, which shall recite the fact of consolidation, accompanied by certified copies of said original charters; provided, the provision thereof shall not be construed to relieve any corporation from the payment of occupation taxes, now or hereafter required by law. [1d.]

What constitutes consolidation.—Purchase of property and franchise of one corporation by another does not constitute a consolidation. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

Assent of stockholders.—The directors of a private corporation organized for commercial purposes held without authority to consolidate the corporation with another without the consent of the stockholders. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 431.

Status of original and consolidated corporation.—Where, after commencing action against a corporation, it was consolidated with another corporation, it did not dissolve the corporation, so as to abate the suit. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Driskill, 31 C. A. 296, 71 S. W. 997.

Where a corporation is consolidated with another, or becomes merged therein, whether a new corporation is created, or the old corporation is continued, depends on the intention of the parties. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle (Sup.) 146 S. W. 160.

Succession to rights of original corporation.—The rights of a corporation or a stockholder held not to inure to the benefit of a new corporation or association. McLean & Dilden v. Sherman & Denison Pressed Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 442.

Liability of new corporation.—Where one corporation sells out to another, the latter held not liable for injuries to a servant of the former. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Anderson, 41 C. A. 342, 91 S. W. 607.

Actions by or against consolidated corporation.—A corporation, which, after executing a contract for the sale of land, transferred all its stock, assets, and liabilities to another corporation, could not sue the purchaser for failure to deliver a share of the produce of the land, as agreed, as a payment on the price. Judson v. Bell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 375, 8 S. W. 169.

Consolidation of corporations of different states.—Corporations created in different states can consolidate only by concurrent legislation, in which event there is a separate and distinct corporation in each state. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World, 39 C. A. 385, 88 S. W. 209.

Where two corporations, created under the laws of different states, attempted to consolidate without legislative authority, the attempt was a nullity, and did not create a de facto corporation. Id.
Corporations created by different states may not consolidate, unless the power to do so is expressly conferred by their charter, or by some statute. Gordon v. American Patriots of Springfield, Ill. ( Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 331.

A consolidation of two corporations created by laws of different states without authority to consolidate held not to create a corporation de facto by user. Id.

Art. 1138. [675] [599] Existence of corporation shall not be disputed collaterally.—No person who assumes an obligation to an ostensible corporation, as such, shall resist the enforcement of such obligation, on the ground that there was in fact no such corporation, until that fact shall have been adjudged in a direct proceeding had for the purpose.

Who may question corporate existence.—The legislature may make the question, whether a corporation has been created or not, depend on the action and determination of some official or tribunal whose determination the courts will have no power to revise. State v. Groolin, 63 Tex. 699; ( Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 678. See State v. Hoffer ( Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 672.

The validity of a corporation can be questioned only by a quo warranto proceeding. Troutman v. McCleskey, 27 S. W. 175, 7 C. A. 561.

The validity of a corporation cannot be questioned by the corporation in a suit against it, and its legal existence as a bona fide corporation organized under a statute can only be questioned by the state. The Oriental v. Barclay, 16 C. A. 193, 41 S. W. 117; Oriental Inv. Co. v. Sline ( Civ. App.) Id. 130; Dillard v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. ( Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1022; International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County ( Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239; Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas ( Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

The rule that the validity of a corporation cannot be attacked collaterally, but can be attacked only by the state in a direct proceeding, is founded on public policy, and is not to be so applied as to defeat the assertion of just legal rights by parties in the courts. Parks v. West, 102 T. 11, 111 S. W. 726.

Art. 1139. [650] [574] Legislature may alter, reform or amend.—All charters or amendments to charters, under the provisions of this chapter, shall be subject to the power of the legislature to alter, reform or amend the same. [Act April 23, 1874, sec. 9.]

Decisions in General

De facto corporations.—Although a private corporation may not have complied with all the statutory requirements, it is a "de facto corporation." Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas ( Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

CHAPTER THREE

POWERS AND DUTIES OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, AND DUTIES OF STOCKHOLDERS IN REFERENCE THERETO, ETC.

Art. 1140. General powers of corporations.
1141. Unpaid stock payable when; proof of payment.
1142. On default of payment secretary of state to forfeit charter, how.
1143. Notification of forfeiture; record of same; relief from forfeiture within six months, conditions of, etc., revival.
1144. On failure to revive, affairs of corporation wound up; provided right to avoid forfeiture within two years, but no prejudice to creditor.
1145. May increase its capital stock, how.
1146. Watered stock prohibited, forfeiture for violation.
1147. Watered stock and bonds not for money, etc., quo warranto suit to cancel.
1148. Suit may be dismissed or not brought on just conditions.
1149. Remedies cumulative.
1150. Increase in certain cases validated.
1150a. Amendments increasing stock in certain cases validated.
1151. Unpaid increase of stock payable when; forfeiture for default.
1152. May decrease stock, how.
1153. Quorum of directors, and annual elections.
Art. 1140. [651] [575] General powers of corporations.—Every private corporation, as such, has power:
1. To have succession by its corporate name for the period limited in its charter, not to exceed fifty years, and when no period is limited, for twenty years.
2. To maintain and defend judicial proceedings.
3. To make and use a common seal.
4. To purchase, hold, sell, mortgage or otherwise convey such real and personal estate as the purposes of the corporation shall require, and also to take, hold and convey such other property, real, personal, or mixed, as shall be requisite for such corporation to acquire in order to obtain or secure the payment of any indebtedness or liability due, or belonging to, the corporation.
5. To appoint and remove such subordinate officers and agents as the business of the corporation shall require, and to allow them a suitable compensation.
6. To make by-laws not inconsistent with existing laws for the management of its property, the regulation of its affairs and the transfer of its stock.
7. To enter into any obligation or contract essential to the transaction of its authorized business.
8. To increase or diminish by a vote of its stockholders, cast as its by-laws may direct, the number of its directors or trustees, to be not less than three nor more than twenty-one; provided, that any corporation formed under subdivisions 1, 2 and 3, article 1121, may increase the number of its directors or trustees to not more than twenty-five. [Id. Acts 1907, p. 301. Acts 1909, p. 225. P. D. 5942.]

1. Construction of charter, etc.
2. Corporate powers and liabilities.—In general.
3. Incidental.
4. Sell franchises.
5. Purchase own stock.
6. Appoint general manager.
7. To sue and be sued.
8. As trustee.
9. To enter into partnership.
10. Indemnity, guaranty, and suretyship.
11. Power of street railway to acquire land.
12. Taking notes, etc.
13. Sales.
15. Capacity to contract in general.
16. Contracts before incorporation or organization.
17. Liability for contracts of promoters.
18. Rights on contracts of incorporators.
19. Promoter’s withdrawal of subscription.
20. Contracts of employment.
22. Property and conveyances.—Power to convey.
23. Conveyance to corporation composed of grantees.
24. Power to mortgage.
26. Lease.
27. Shareholder’s purchase from or sale to corporation.
28. Mortgage without sale not void.
29. Bonds and stock.
32. By receiving and retaining benefits.
33. Of third persons.
34. Liens for debts of corporation.

1. Construction of charter, etc.—The rule that the powers bestowed in a written constitution must always be construed as having in view the preservation and continuity of the entity constituted is true, whether applied to voluntary associations, commercial corporations, or to political governments. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

2. Corporate powers and liabilities.—In general.—A company incorporated under general law acquires only a corporate existence, and no powers aside from those which the law declares it may exercise, except such as are necessary to the carrying on the business authorized by the charter. The charter of a street railway, incorporated under general law, can confer, in and of itself, no right to use any street, no matter what may be its provisions; such right to use must be acquired from the municipal government. A city has the right to designate what particular portion of its street shall be occupied by the track of an incorporated street railway company. The grant of a right to use a street for a railway track will not preclude the city from granting a like privilege, over the same street, to another company, unless the right granted in the first instance could be invaded if the privilege granted in the last grant were exercised. If the first grant be general, and the last specifies a particular portion of the street upon which the track may be laid, the enjoyment of the right under the specific grant will be prejudicial to the public interest, the road cannot be constructed.

3. Incidental.—In every expressed grant of power to a corporation, there is implied a power to do whatever is necessary or reasonably appropriate to the exercise of such express authority, and a trading corporation expressly authorized to buy and sell merchandise has the right to sell a bill of lumber and take the purchaser’s note in payment therefor. Dillard v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W., 1033.

Sell franchise.—The absence of statutory authority a corporation can neither sell nor mortgage its corporate existence or franchise; nor will a judicial sale or sale under execution of the property of a corporation carry with it to the purchaser the right to be a corporate body. City Water Co. v. State, 88 T. 696, 23 S. W., 1073.

In the absence of charter or statutory prohibition, a solvent corporation, with the consent of its stockholders, may purchase its own stock for the purpose of settling differences in its management and preserving its business integrity, though it pays more than the market price thereof. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W., 1104.

6. Appoint general manager.—A corporation has power to appoint a general manager, although such office is not named in its charter or by-laws. Hamm v. Drew, 95 T. 777, 18 S. W., 484.

7. To sue and be sued.—Corporations may, as well as individuals, suffer damages from loss of credit and expense of litigation, and when a malicious and oppressive trespass is committed upon their property, they have the right to claim such damages, to be fixed by the jury, as in other cases. Railway Co. v. Telegraph Co., 69 T. 377, 5 S. W., 617, 6 Am. St. Rep. 45. In a suit against a corporation for damages for its failure to deliver bonds under a contract, and interest due the plaintiff is entitled, on a recovery, in the absence of evidence as to the value of the bonds, to judgment for the full amount of the bonds and interest. Railway Co. v. Broussard, 69 T. 617, 7 S. W., 374. Corporations must sue and be sued by their corporate names. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 32 S. W., 288.

Where, at the time a corporation was sued, it had not failed to pay its franchise tax, a condition precedent to its right to do business in the state, it would not be deprived of the right to defend the action by afterwards failing to pay such tax. J. T. Starks v. Grains Bros. Co., 57 C. A. 629, 122 S. W., 941.

A private corporation, in the absence of a charter or statutory provisions to the contrary, has the same capacity to sue and be sued as a natural person, though not expressly conferred. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W., 877.

8. To act as trustee.—A corporation may act as a trustee for any purpose within the scope of its charter or the governing statute. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Civ. App.) 156 S. W., 197.

9. To enter into partnership.—An agreement to receive logs and operate a sawmill held invalid because part of an illegal contract of partnership between a corporation and defendants. Sabine Tram Co. v. Bancroft, 16 C. A. 170, 40 S. W., 837.

A Texas corporation cannot enter into partnership with individuals. Id.

The railroad company owned the railroad company the stock of another company and the same person was president of both corporations did not of itself make them partners nor agents for each other. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co., 104 T. 499, 140 S. W., 427.

10. Indemnity, guaranty, and suretyship.—Corporation formed solely to manufacture cotton-seed oil, and to gin and bale cotton, could not indorse a firm note, and was hence not liable thereon to the payee. South Texas Nat. Bank v. La Grange Oil Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W., 328.

Where a corporation without authority of its charter guarantees the payment of other persons’ notes without any consideration, it is not estopped to plead the defense of ultra vires. Deaton Grocery Co. v. International Harvester Co. of America, 47 C. A. 267, 105 S. W., 566.

A corporation chartered for the purpose of buying and selling goods has no power to contract to be responsible for payment of other persons’ notes in which it has no interest. Id.

In an action against a corporation as surety on a liquor dealer’s bond, the charter of the corporation held to give it implied power to become a surety on such bond. Munos v. Brassell (Civ. App.) 108 S. W., 417.

A corporation not organized to execute contracts of suretyship may be liable as a surety. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W., 417.

A corporation’s guaranty of the payment of a note held ultra vires except as stated. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W., 222.

A corporation has no power to make, indorse, or otherwise become liable on commercial paper for the mere accommodation of another person or corporation. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W., 833.

A corporation organization to buy and sell cattle had power to guarantee payment of an indebtedness due a bank from a firm as a part of the price of cattle bought by the corporation from such firm. North Texas State Bank v. Crowley-Southerland Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W., 1027.
A corporation, in order to collect an indebtedness due from a partnership, took over all contracts of the partnership, agreeing to guarantee and indemnify the partnership to a bank, and on the sale of the property to apply the proceeds first to the guaranteed debt. Held, that the transaction was not ultra vires, the corporation having been organized to buy and sell cattle, and the debts involved having arisen from such business.

11. — Power of street railway to acquire land.—A street railway cannot acquire land by a contract to extend its lines in consideration therefor as these are not the classes of land specified in the statute. Scott v. Farmers’ & Merchants’ Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 495.

12. — Taking notes, etc.—A trading corporation expressly authorized to buy and sell merchandise held to have the right to sell a bill of lumber and take the purchaser’s note in payment therefor. Dillard v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1032.

Where the charter gives no power to exchange lands for personal property, the acceptance of a transfer of a note in payment for land sold is void, and a recital of the nature of the transaction in the deed affects subsequent purchasers with notice. Land Co. v. McConnell, 85 T. 416, 29 S. W. 123, 24 Am. St. Rep. 815.

A corporation not created with banking privileges may discount a note. Logan v. Texas Bldg. & Loan Ass’n, 8 C. A. 496, 28 S. W. 141.

13. — Sales.—Where a corporation was organized to manufacture boxes for handling fruit, it cannot be contended that an agreement to procure certificates of exportation for such boxes was ultra vires. Pierpont Mfg. Co. v. Goodman Produce Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 347.

A corporation organized to manufacture and deal in building material and to purchase and sell such material as is necessary in the transaction of its business may not contract for the doing of $1,900 worth of work in excavating and grading for a building and in constructing cement floors thereof, etc., to enable it to sell $150 worth of its material. Mitchell v. Hydraulic Bldg. Stone Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 148.

14. — Issue bonds.—Authority to a corporation to issue bonds for money and property is authority to sell them for such consideration. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 41 C. A. 473, 92 S. W. 986.

Land purchased by a corporation with notice of a contract entered into by its promoters held subject to a lien for the performance of such contract. Weatherby v. Texas & Ohio Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 148.

The purchase by a corporation of timber lands not to impose on it liability on a contract of the promoters to purchase an option on such lands; it having no notice of such option contract. Id.

A notice of action on contract for personal services made with promoters of a corporation held to be against corporation and not against the promoters where, after its organization as contemplated when the contract was made, the services were performed for the corporation. Bradshaw v. Jones (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 696.

18. — Rights on contracts of incorporators.—Where, subsequent to the execution of a contract between a partnership and another, the partnership was incorporated, the corporation acquired the rights of the partnership under the contract, and was authorized to assign. H. Brooks v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 584.

20. — Contracts of employment.—A contract between a corporation, which had leased an opera house, and an individual, making him manager of the house, etc., held not ultra vires. Markowitz v. Greenwall Theatrical Circuit Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 74, 217.

21. — Ultra vires contracts.—When an act of a corporation is ultra vires, but not illegal, the person receiving the benefits thereof cannot repudiate his liability. Walters v. Texas Bldg. & Loan Ass’n, 8 C. A. 500, 29 S. W. 51.

Corporation, having retained the benefits of a contract, by which it obtained goods in consideration of indorsing notes to pay debts of $1, held estopped to claim that the act was ultra vires. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 833.
22. Property and conveyances—Power to convey.—The terms “otherwise convey,” as expressed in this article, embrace the power to lease the land, which belongs to the corporation. The lease of land of a corporation for a term of years to others to carry on the same kind of business that the company was authorized under its charter to carry on, is not an abandonment by the company of the purposes for which it was organized. State v. Gulf, P. & N. R. R. Co., 88 S. W. 3, 1050.

23. Conveyances to corporation composed of grantors.—A conveyance of land by partners in business to a corporation of which the members of the firm became the only stockholders passes title to the corporation, the stock being a consideration for such transfer. Ex parte Emery L. & M. R. Co., 78 T. 244, 14 S. W. 153.

24. Power to mortgage.—A mortgage of all the property of a private corporation carries with it its franchises. Pumphrey v. Threadgill, 9 C. A. 184, 28 S. W. 450.

25. Sale of real estate.—The right of a corporation to dispose of the real estate it is authorized to purchase is a necessary incident to its ownership thereof. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

A corporation incorporated to erect buildings and to accumulate and loan funds to purchase real estate is entitled to convey such real estate as the purposes of the corporation may require, has authority to grant to a tracine company a right of way over its land. Id.

26. Lease.—An oil company can lease its holdings to another for the purpose of reserving for itself a royalty on the product, when such lease is not inconsistent with the purpose for which the corporation was formed, or is in furtherance of the object of its formation. Stark v. Guffey Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1084.

27. Shareholder’s purchase from or sale to corporation.—Shareholders of a corporation who are not directors may as a general rule in good faith buy from or sell to the corporation.

A sale of corporate property to a stockholder not a director, made pursuant to a resolution of the board of directors, is valid in the absence of fraud or unfairness on the part of the stockholder, and the sale needs no ratification. Id.

28. Mortgages—Construction.—A chattel mortgage is not void because the corporation executing it failed to authenticate it by its seal. Fowler v. Bell (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 522. See also, Bermex Land & Lumber Co. v. Adoue, 29 C. A. 655, 59 S. W. 131.

29. Sale of Water and stock.—Where stock is issued and disposed of at less than its face value, article 12, section 6 of the constitution does not render it void as to the excess in value over the price paid. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

A sale of bonds by a corporation for cash at ninety-five per cent. of their par value is not authorized by article 3, section 6 of the constitution. North Side Ry. Co. v. Worthington, 88 T. 562, 30 S. W. 1065.

Bonds issued by one corporation for the benefit of another are ultra vires. Id. See Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 140.

Purchasers of stock under an agreement held to render themselves liable for a deferred payment by putting it out of their power to comply with an option provided in the agreement. Johnson v. Sharp, 56 C. A. 80, 120 S. W. 518.

30. Powers of foreign corporation.—As to the powers of a foreign corporation within this state, see Galveston Land & Imp. Co. v. Parkins (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 256.

A corporation to pay and distribute powers of its outstanding promissory note payable to a corporation, upon which suit is brought by an innocent holder, cannot defend on the plea of ultra vires. Smith v. White (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 609.

In an action by a corporation on a purchased claim for damages, held, that, though the purchase was ultra vires where the contract was executed, it was binding on the seller, and defendant could not raise the question of ultra vires. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Jeff Chaison Townsight Co., 28 C. A. 555, 107 S. W. 609.

In an action on vendor’s lien notes given by a corporation to its president which were held by plaintiff as collateral, the corporation held not entitled to urge the invalidity of their notes in the absence of an offer to reconvey the land for which they were given. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 417.

Under this subdivision and article 1126 which gives corporations power to borrow money on their credit and to execute notes therefor, and pledge their property, held, that, where the vice president of a business corporation executed a negotiable note in his own name to pay a debt of the corporation, and indorsed thereon the guaranty of the corporation executed by himself as vice president, and the note was made in double the amount of the indebtedness, the request of the payee, who accepted, to fix the balance later, and nearly half of its face was used to discharge the corporate indebtedness, and the corporation had refused to restore such amount, the unauthorized execution of the note, the corporation was merely a misuse of granted power, and the ultra vires act, and, under the circumstances, the corporation was estopped as against a bona fide purchaser of the note from asserting the vice president’s want of authority to execute the guaranty and note. Gaston & Ayers v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 576, 140 S. W. 776, 141 S. W. 515,
32. — By receiving and retaining benefits.—The makers of a note for borrowed money are estopped from denying the power of the corporation to make the loan. Smith v. White (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 380; Keys v. Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 809; Bond v. Manufacturing Co., 82 T. 309, 18 S. W. 691.

A mutual insurance company cannot defend an action on a policy, where premium has been received, by showing its want of authority to issue the same, either under its own laws or those of the country where the property was situated. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Masonic Temple Co., 26 C. A. 139, 62 S. W. 930.

An ultra vires contract executed by a corporation is not binding on it beyond the benefits received. oat & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 232.

A corporation need not return or offer to return the benefits received by it under an ultra vires contract in order to deny its liability thereon beyond the amount of such benefits. id.

Where a corporation has received a large addition to its assets in consideration of its execution of certain notes to pay debts of its, it, having received and retained the benefits of the contract, was estopped to claim that it was ultra vires. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 832.

Where a corporation has received benefits under a contract made by it, it is estopped to plead ultra vires to an action for breach of it. Kincheloe Irr. Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co. (Sup.) 148 S. W. 1187.

Where a corporation's ultra vires contract is executory, neither party is estopped to deny its validity: but, where a corporation has purchased its own stock and received the benefits of the contract, it cannot, in an action on notes given therefor, set up ultra vires. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

33. — Of third persons.—A party borrowing money from a private corporation, not having legal power to loan money, is estopped from denying its power when sued for the money. Bond v. Terrell Mfg. Co., 82 T. 309, 18 S. W. 691.

34. Liens for debts of corporation.—Under a contract between the owners of a corporation and the corporation, one of the parties agreeing to buy equipment held to occupy a position with reference to the corporation analogous to that of seller or agent, so that a lien for the price of the materials furnished arose. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 986.

Art. 1141. Unpaid stock payable when; proof of payment.—The stockholders of all corporations chartered as provided in articles 1125 to 1128, inclusive, as modified by article 1129, shall, within two years from the date of the filing of such charter by the secretary of state, pay in the unpaid portion of the capital stock of such company; proof of which shall, within said time, be made to the secretary of state, in the manner provided in articles 1126 to 1128, inclusive, for the filing of charter. [Acts 1907, p. 309, sec. 2.]

Art. 1142. On default of payment, secretary of state to forfeit charter, how.—In case of the failure to pay the unpaid portion of capital stock, and to make proof thereof to the secretary of state within two years from the date of the filing of the charter, the charter of such company shall, because thereof, become forfeited; which forfeiture shall be consummated without judicial ascertainment by the secretary of state entering upon the margin of the ledger kept in his office relating to such corporations the word "forfeited," giving the date and reason therefor. [Id.]

Art. 1143. Notification of forfeiture; record of same; relief from forfeiture within six months, conditions of, etc.; revival.—The secretary of state shall notify such corporation by mailing to the postoffice named as its principal place of business, or to any other place of business of such corporation, addressed in its corporate name, a written or printed statement of the date and fact of such forfeiture; a record of the date and fact of such notice must be kept by such officer; provided, that the stockholders of any such corporation whose charter has been forfeited as above provided who shall, within six months from the date of such forfeiture, and not thereafter, pay in full the unpaid capital stock of such company and furnish to the secretary of state proof of such fact as required herein, and, in addition, shall pay the secretary of state, as fees belonging to his office, the sum of five dollars per month for each month and fractional part thereof between the date of forfeiture and settlement, the company shall be relieved from such forfeiture; and said officer shall write on the margin of said ledger the word "revived," giving the date thereof. [Id.]
Art. 1144. On failure to revive, affairs of corporation wound up; provided right to avoid forfeiture within two years, but no prejudice to creditor.—If the stockholders should fail to cause the charter powers of said corporation to be revived, as just provided, then, and in such event, the affairs of such company shall be administered and wound up as on dissolution; provided, however, the stockholders of any such company shall have the right, at any time within the two years given, to make payment of the unpaid portion of the capital stock, to reduce the same so that by reduction, or reduction and payment, the full amount of the capital stock authorized by such reduction shall be paid, and thus avoid a forfeiture of the charter; but no creditor of said company shall in any wise be prejudiced by such reduction of its capital stock in any claim or cause of action such creditor may have against such company or any stockholder or officer thereof. [Id.]

Art. 1145. [652] [576] May increase its capital stock, how.—A corporation may increase its authorized capital by a two-thirds vote of all its stock; provided, that no stock shall be issued except for money paid, labor done or property actually received. And when such vote is given in favor of the increase, the same may be done by the board of directors, trustees, or managing board, of such corporation; and, upon such increase of stock being made in accordance with the above provisions and certified to the secretary of state by the directors, together with satisfactory proof, which shall be the affidavit of the directors showing that the full amount of the increase has been in good faith subscribed, and fifty per cent thereof paid, and in other respects conforming to the proof required as an original application for charter, or showing that such portion thereof has been subscribed or subscribed and paid, as is required for the corporation, thus increasing its stock, and, if the secretary of state is satisfied that the increase of stock has been made in accordance with law and that the requirements of law have been complied with as to the subscription and payment of stock and in other respects, as on an original application for charter, he shall file such certificate of increase; and thereupon the same shall become a part of the capital stock of such corporation. Such certificate shall be filed and recorded in the same manner as the charter. [Id. sec. 3.]

Increase of more than double invalid.—Where a corporation increases its capital stock more than double its original authorized capital, the increase is invalid whether made at one or more times. This decision is under article 576, R. S. 1879. Berg v. San Antonio St. R. Co., 27 C. A. 251, 43 S. W. 647, 43 S. W. 929.

Art. 1146. Watering stock prohibited; forfeiture for violation.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in the state, shall issue any stock whatever, except for money paid, labor done, which is reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the corporation, or property actually received, reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the company. Any corporation which violates the provisions of this article shall, on proof thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, forfeit its charter, permit or license, as the case may be, and all rights and franchises which it holds under, from or by virtue of the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1147. Watered stock and bonds not for money, etc., quo warranto suit to cancel.—Where any corporation has issued and has outstanding any stocks or bonds, given or issued for any purpose, other than money paid to, labor done for, or property actually received by the corporation, it shall be the duty of the attorney general of this state, when convinced that the facts exist which authorize the action, to institute quo warranto or other appropriate judicial proceedings in some court of competent jurisdiction in Travis county, or in any other county of this state where such corporation may be sued, to have any such stocks or bonds issued in violation of the constitution and statutes of this state, canceled, expunged and held for naught; and, within the meaning of the above, is included any bond or stock given in renewal, or in lieu of any originally issued, for purposes other than those mentioned above, also any issued by any corporation with which the corporation originally issuing any such stock or bonds has merged or been consolidated and given by said issuing corporation, in the place of those originally issued for purposes other than as mentioned above. [Acts 1907, p. 342, sec. 3.]

Art. 1148. Suit may be dismissed or not brought under what conditions.—If any suit authorized under article 1147 has been instituted, the same shall be dismissed at the cost of the defendant, or if not instituted, no action shall be brought, if the defendant corporation shall surrender, or cause to be surrendered, to the court or to the railroad commission of Texas, for destruction, all such illegal stocks complained of, and also the illegal bonds complained of, with proper and legal releases thereof, suitably executed for record, with such other written evidences and documents as may be necessary to show that such stocks or bonds are no longer outstanding against the corporation. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1149. Remedies cumulative.—The rights and remedies given by the last two articles are cumulative, and shall not affect, change or repeal any other remedies or rights now existing in this state for the enforcement, payment, or collection of fines, forfeitures and penalties. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1150. [652a] Increase in certain cases validated.—That in all cases where the amount of the capital stock of any corporation has heretofore been increased by more than one increase thereof to an amount in excess of double the amount of the original capital, and such increase has been made with the sanction of the secretary of state, under his construction of the law, such increase shall be, and the same is hereby, validated and declared legal. [Acts 1893, p. 123.]

Art. 1150a. Amendments increasing stock in certain cases validated.—That all charter amendments increasing the authorized capital stock of corporations organized under the terms of chapter 117, Acts of the 26th Legislature, approved May 15, 1899, and which were filed in the office of the secretary of state after the taking effect of an act of the legislature passed in 1907, page 309 Session Acts, approved April 25, 1907, and prior to the taking effect of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, be and such charter amendments increasing the authorized capital stock of such corporations are in all things as to the said increase of capital stock fully validated; provided that all stock issued or hereafter to be issued under any such amendment or amendments must have been or shall be fully paid up, and such corporations coming within the purview of this Act shall not receive any of the benefits hereof unless such corporation seeking the same shall within twelve months from the taking effect of this Act make to the secretary of state satisfactory proof by the affidavit of their president, treasurer, secretary and directors, and by such other evidence as may be required by the secretary of state, showing that all such stock at the time of making such proof has been fully paid in the manner and to the extent as is required by the constitution and laws of this state, and thereupon shall receive a certificate from the secretary of state, under the seal of the state, that such proof has been made and that such corporation has fully complied with the law and with the provisions of this Act; provided further that this Act is applicable alone to such domestic corporations as were organized under the terms of chapter 117, Acts of the 26th Legislature, approved May 15th, 1899, that by amendment or amendments to their charter increased their authorized capital stock within the dates named above, and no provision hereof shall be availed of or be made applicable to any foreign corporation doing business in this state; and provided further that if at the expiration of twelve month from the taking effect of this Act any amount of stock authorized to be issued under any amendment or amendments to charters mentioned above, shall not have been fully paid up and proof thereof as provided above made to the secretary of state of the fact of such payment, then to the extent that the amount of the authorized capital stock comprehended by such amendment or amendments shall remain unpaid shall not be and remain any part of the authorized capital stock of said corporation, and the same shall be decreased down to the amount actually paid and proven by an amendment to said charter filed and approved under the provisions of chapter 3, title 25, Revised Civil Statutes of 1911; and provided further that nothing in this Act shall be construed to validate any stocks or bonds issued by any such corporation, in violation of section 6, article of the constitution of this state or of any statutes passed thereupon. [Acts 1913, p. 420, sec. 1.]

Art. 1151. Unpaid increase of stock payable when; forfeiture for default.—In case of failure by the stockholders to pay the unpaid portion of an increase of stock within two years from the date of the filing of the certificate of increase in the office of the secretary of state, the charter of such company shall be forfeited; and the provisions of article 1145 of this chapter shall govern the same, as in case of an original creation of a corporation. [Acts 1907, p. 311, sec. 3.]

Art. 1152. May decrease stock, how.—A corporation may decrease its capital stock by such amount as its stockholders may decide by a two-thirds vote of all its outstanding stock, in like manner as is required for an increase as above provided; but no such decrease shall prejudice the rights of any creditor of such corporation in any claim or cause of action such creditor may have against the company, or any stockholder or director thereof; nor shall such decrease become effective until full proof is made by affidavit of the directors to the secretary of state of the financial condition of such corporation, giving therein all its assets and liabilities, with names and postoffice addresses of all creditors and amount due each; and the secretary of state may require, as a condition precedent to the filing of such certificate of decrease, that the debts of such corporation be paid or reduced. [Id. sec. 3.]

These articles do not prohibit a corporation from purchasing its own stock to settle differences in its management and preserving its business integrity, with the intention of reissuing and selling it again, especially where the seller knew of the directors' resolutions setting forth such intention. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1104.

When a corporation buys its own stock, the capital stock is not reduced by that amount, nor is the stock merged. Id.

Art. 1153. [665] [579] Quorum of directors and annual elections.

—A majority of the directors or trustees shall constitute a quorum, and be competent to fill vacancies in the board, and to transact all business of the corporation. An annual election shall be held for directors or trustees, at such time and place as the by-laws of the corporation may require. [Id. sec. 15. P. D. 5946.]

Pecuniary interest of director.—Resolutions affecting the pecuniary interests of a director are void when such director was necessary to constitute a quorum. Railway Co. v. Adams, 26 S. W. 1046, 27 T. 125.

Art. 1154. [656] [580] President and secretary to be chosen.—
The directors or trustees shall choose one of their number president, and shall appoint a secretary and treasurer and such other officers as they may deem necessary for the corporation. [Id. sec. 16. P. D. 5947.]

Directors have general management.—Under article 1159, providing that the directors of a corporation shall have the general management of its affairs, and this article, corporate powers can only be exercised under the authority of the directors. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

Art. 1154 CORPORATIONS—PRIVATE (Title 25)

Vice-president.—In the absence of a by-law conferring the power, a vice-president has no authority to bind the company by a contract of employment. Railway Co. v. Faulkner, 88 T. 646, 32 S. W. 883.

Art. 1155. [567] [581] By-laws may be adopted, altered, etc.—The directors or trustees may adopt by-laws for the government of the corporation; but such by-laws may be altered, changed or amended by a majority vote of the stockholders at any election or special meeting ordered for that purpose by the directors or trustees, on a written application of a majority of the stockholders or members. [Id. sec. 17. P. D. 5948.]

Power to enact by-laws construed.—Where the directors of a corporation are given the right to enact by-laws for the government thereof, the power is not unlimited, but is only such as will be in harmony with the powers the directors are supposed to exercise for the purposes sought to be accomplished. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 425.

Effect.—The by-laws of a corporation govern in all cases to which they are applicable. B. & L. Ass'n v. Abbott, 85 T. 220, 20 S. W. 118.

Art. 1156. [568] [582] May increase number of directors or trustees.—All corporations heretofore created, and now in existence, under any law of this state, are hereby authorized to increase the number of directors or trustees of any such corporation. [Id. sec. 18. P. D. 5949.]

Amendment of charter not necessary.—An increase of the number of directors can be made without an amendment of the charter. Mathis v. Fridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

Art. 1157. [569] [583] Failure to elect directors shall not dissolve, etc.—In case it should happen that an election for directors or trustees should not be held on the day appointed by the by-laws of any corporation, such corporation shall not, for that reason, be deemed to be dissolved; but it shall be lawful on any other day to hold a meeting and elect its directors or trustees, in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws thereof. [Id. sec. 19. P. D. 5950.]

Ground for forfeiture.—The failure of a corporation to elect directors or officers or to perform any corporate act for a long period of time, and the attempted sale of its property, are sufficient grounds for forfeiting its charter. City Water Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 269.

Art. 1158. [660] [584] Trustees to be elected to control religious corporation.—The secular affairs of a religious corporation shall be under the control of a board of trustees, to be elected by the members of such corporation; and the title to all property of any such corporation shall vest in such trustees. [Id. sec. 20. P. D. 5951.]

Devise construed.—The language of the will that said "that the said church shall distribute the yearly income from the same (the land) to its dependent orphans and members as above directed" may properly be construed to mean that the church by its governing officers or its trustees charged with the management of its business affairs, shall make the distribution referred to. Banner v. Rolf, 43 C. A. 85, 94 S. W. 1128.

Art. 1159. [661] [585] Directors shall have general management, etc.—The directors or trustees shall have the general management of the affairs of the corporation, and may dispose of the residue of the capital stock, at any time remaining unsubscribed, in such manner as the by-laws may prescribe. [Id. sec. 21. P. D. 5952.]

1. Delegation of authority.

27. — Estoppel to deny authority or acts.
28. — Ratification and repudiation.
29. — Notice to officers, and agents as affecting corporation.

1. Delegation of authority.—The board of directors of a corporation cannot confer upon others power to discharge duties involving judgment and discretion, except in the ordinary business of the corporation, unless authorized by the charter. Temple v. Dodge, 80 S. W. 280.

The nondelegable duties of a private corporation consist of those primary duties which the law as a matter of public policy imposes as a condition on which the corporation shall exist and carry on business which may injuriously affect the person or property of another, and the failure to perform that class of duties is a personal omission of the corporation, and, if such failure is the result of negligence, the negligence is that of the corporation. Jacksonville Ice & Electric Co. v. Moses (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 379.

2. Compensation—Resolutions providing therefor.—Resolution of directors fixing the salary of one of them as treasurer held void, so that the money appropriated by him as salary could be recovered for the corporation. Greathouse v. Martin (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 385.

By-laws providing therefor.—By-laws of corporation construed, and held that, on absence of president through sickness, and performance of duties by vice president, the latter is entitled to the salary of the office. Brown v. Galveston Wharf Co. (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 41.

In the absence of a provision in the by-laws therefor, one officer is not entitled to compensation for performing duties of another officer during latter's absence. Brown v. Galveston Wharf Co., 92 T. 520, 50 S. W. 126.

In the absence of a provision in by-laws for deductions for absences, an officer is entitled to salary for full term as an incident of his office, though his absences were without leave. Id.

Where a director of a corporation and his dummies fixed the salary of the treasurer, and then elected him to that office, the resolution was void and the money appropriated for his salary could be recovered in a suit for the benefit of the corporation. Greathouse v. Martin, 100 T. 99, 94 S. W. 222.

4. Management of corporate affairs.—Whether the president of an insurance company willingly or unintentionally by culpable negligence, ostensibly received for its benefit forged municipal bonds in exchange for stock, he is responsible to make good the default. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Wisconsin & Wiseman, 103 T. 207, 134 S. W. 1194.

5. Rights as creditors—Pledge.—A pledge of corporate property by directors of the corporation to themselves, without the consent of all the stockholders, held void. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 81, 75 S. W. 1, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

6. Corporate property, funds, etc.—Conversion.—Directors of a corporation directing the use of money paid on stock subscriptions for the payment of obligations contracted prior to filing the charter held liable for conversion at suit of the corporation's creditors. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 66 C. A. 102, 106 S. W. 258.

7. — Purchase and sale of.—Where director of a corporation sold property held by one of them in trust for it, the fact that a subsequent survey disclosed that there was an excess of 50 acres above what all the parties supposed at the time of the sale would not render the sale invalid as fraudulent. Tenison v. Patton, 95 T. 284, 67 S. W. 92.

If directors of a corporation make a valid sale of property which one of them held in trust for it, the members of the corporation cannot subsequently invoke the principle that a trustee cannot deal with the trust to his own profit, though the trustee effects a subsequent conveyance therefor. Id.

8. Individual profits, etc., from corporate business.—Evidence considered, and held that defendant's position as director and trustee of a corporation did not conclusively render a sale of its property by the directors voidable, though he subsequently profited thereby. Tenison v. Patton, 95 T. 284, 67 S. W. 92.

9. Dealsings with corporation or shareholders.—Right of directors, sureties on a corporate note, to bid in the property secured by trust deed at a sale thereof to protect their interest, determined. College Park Electric Belt Line v. Ide, 15 C. A. 273, 40 S. W. 64.

A contract made by a corporation with some of its directors held voidable, and not void. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Hackock, 27 C. A. 162, 55 S. W. 509.

An agreement between a director of a corporation and the corporation that property secured by the former should be his individual property is valid. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

While one director may contract with a corporation, the entire board of directors cannot do so. Id.

A stipulation in a contract between two railway companies, made for the benefit of the directors of one of them, held void. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 71, 75 S. W. 7, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

President of a corporation cannot acquire title to property at a trustee's sale made merely to clear the title of the corporation to that property. Id.

A corporation held not estopped to sue to set aside illegal conveyances of its prop...erty authorized by former directors because other persons acquired the corporation's stock with notice. Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Davis ( Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 632.

Where a corporation illegally transferred certain of its property, a ratification of such transactions by a new board not consisting of all the stockholders did not validate the conveyances. Id.

Where certain corporate conveyances were invalid, but not fraudulent, the corporation will be required to refund the purchase price as a condition to the cancellation of the conveyances. Id.

While a corporation at its mere option cannot avoid a contract with one of its directors, it may avoid a trade affecting its interests made by and with directors acting for both parties. Id.

Directors of a corporation held not entitled to authorize its president to convey the corporation's property to such directors and to his wife. Id.

A director of a corporation cannot act in the matter in which his interest is adverse to the corporation. Id.

The directors of a corporation may purchase its bonds or take them as security for personally indorsing corporate paper, providing the transaction is free from any taint of fraud or unfairness. Medford v. Myrick ( Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

10. Officers, etc., of different corporations.—In the absence of fraud, corporations having officers in common will not deprive them of the right to contract together. City Nat. Bank of Texarkana v. Merchants' & Planters' Nat. Bank ( Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 338.

11. Between corporation and officers.—Where an agent of a corporation retained profits belonging to the corporation, the corporation might recover them, although the directors had acquiesced in their retaining them. Moore v. Waco Building Ass'n, 19 C. A. 68, 46 S. W. 974.

12.—Between shareholders and officers.—Stockholders of a bank held entitled to recover against the cashier for individual profits retained by him from a transaction relating to bank property. Tenison v. Patton ( Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 110.

Where the directors of a corporation illegally conveyed its property to themselves and otherwise wronged a stockholder could require the corporation to sue to vacate the conveyances, and on its failure sue in its own name. Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Davis ( Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 633.

A conspiracy among the officers of a corporation to defraud a stockholder affords no cause of action unless it is effective. Coffill v. Bandera Telephone Co. ( Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 105.

A corporation may be bound by acts of acquiescence in a transaction which was irregular or in excess of the power of its officer. Fort Worth Pub. Co. v. Hitson, 80 T. 217, 14 S. W. 843, 16 S. W. 661. See State v. Broach ( Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 86.

The authority of a president, as agent of the corporation, must be found in organic law of the corporation, in a delegation of authority by its directors, or be implied from custom or habit of doing business. Gulf Grocery Co. v. Crews ( Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 654.

14. Who may represent.—A director of a corporation is without authority to act in a matter in which his interest is adverse to that of the corporation. San Antonio St. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 26 S. W. 135.

Individual directors, or a majority of stockholders, acting separately, cannot bind a corporation to pay for an improvement on its land. Nicholson City Co. v. Smalley, 21 C. A. 518, 81 S. W. 527.

The general power of the officers of a private corporation to perform all corporate acts refers to the ordinary business transactions of the corporation, and does not include the power to destroy the body itself, or the right to enlarge its capital stock. Clark v. Brown ( Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

When one corporation makes use of another as its instrument, the principal corporation is represented by the agents of the subcorporation, and its liability is the same as if it had done the business in its own name. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Sizemore, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 463.

A general manager of a corporation is its general agent; that is, one authorized to transact any business in which it may be engaged. Booker-Jones Oil Co. v. National Refining Co. ( Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 815, denying second application for rehearing ( Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 622.

Under this article and article 1154, by which the directors or trustees of a corporation shall choose one of its number president, corporate powers can only be exercised under the authority of the directors. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Tel. Co. ( Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 428.

In the absence of any authority of any agent of a corporation to bind it by contract, a contract purporting to perpetually bind the corporation to perform a specified act is not binding on it. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue ( Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 11.

Under said articles 1154, no corporate power may be exercised by any one except the board of directors, or by an agent specially empowered by the board to act for them, and an officer of the board may not bind the corporation by virtue of his position, but there must be action by the board either in performing the act or authorizing its performance, and such authority may be inferred from the surrounding circumstances. Id.

A loan company making a usurious contract through its general agent and manager is bound by its acts and statements, notwithstanding undisclosed limitation of his au-authority of which the borrower had notice. Interstate Savings & Trust Co. v. Hornsby (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 960.

An act done under the direction of defendant's manager breaches its contract none the less because of the person doing it not being its employé. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1066.

A mere act of a corporation because the word "president" was signed after the name of one of several stockholders who owned all of the stock, executing it in their own names. Inman v. Brown (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 653.

15. Actual or apparent authority.—The authority of an agent of a corporation must depend, as that of the agent of a person, on the terms of his appointment; and such acts, even in that a corporation in respect, only in this respect, even in that a corporation in excess of power conferred by the charter are void, in the sense that they can effect no divestion of right in or title to property belonging to it. Land Co. v. McCormick, 85 T. 416, 23 S. W. 123, 34 Am. St. Rep. 815.

An officer of a corporation having authority to make a regulation has authority to waive it. American Cotton Bale Improvement Co. v. Fossford (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 478. Notwithstanding a regulation by a corporation that goods should not be sold on its account except on a written order, it is liable for goods delivered without an order, if its president promised payment therefor. Id.

A carrier of a bank is not authorized to make an agreement with a party the effect of which is to change a written contract between the said party and the bank. Dycus v. Traders' Bank & Trust Co., 52 C. A. 175, 113 S. W. 329.

A corporation is bound by oral or written contracts made by its authorized agents legally empowered to make contracts. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 11.

An agent of a corporation employed to sell stock has authority to sell for cash only. McCarthy v. Texas Loan & Guaranty Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 98.

A president of a grocery corporation not within his power implied through a habit or custom of doing business. Gulf Grocery Co. v. Crews (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 654.

16. Restriction of authority.—General limitations on the power of an agent of a corporation held to yield to the power actually exercised by the agent with the knowledge and acquiescence of the corporation. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 154.

17. Control and conduct of corporate business.—While, as a general rule, the president of a private corporation is not empowered without special authority from the directors to control its funds, or manage its property, the board of directors may expressly so authorize him, or such authority may arise from his having assumed and exercised that power, or from the corporation having accepted the benefits of his exercise of such power. Wharton v. Washington County State Bank (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 693.

Proof that the president of a corporation permitted it to execute a contract because of threats of the adverse party to criminally prosecute him and others for swindling unless the contract was executed established a case of duress. International Land Co. v. Parmer (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 156.

The president of a corporation has no power to contract for the corporation nor to control its property by funds, in the absence of authority in the act of incorporation or from the board of directors. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

19. Contracts of employment.—Manager of corporation held authorized to employ counsel to advise as to enforcement of lien against corporation. Dallas Ice-Factory & Cold Storage Co. v. Crawford, 18 C. A. 178.

The president of a corporation having authority to make a contract of employment which was within the statute of frauds held authorized to renew or ratify the same to obviate such objection. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 255, 101 S. W. 867.

An act done under the direction of defendant's manager breaches its contract none the less because of the person doing it not being its employé. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1066.

20. Purchases, sales, and warranties.—A contract of sale not binding upon a company because made in its behalf by an agent without authority to do so is not binding upon the other party. American Brewing Ass'n v. Gossett (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 567.

Action of president of telephone company in purporting to undertake to pay plaintiff company for goods sold by it to another held not authorized by the by-laws of defendant; so that its board of directors, or the company, was not liable. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

The contract of the president of a lumber company for the purchase of an option on a tract of timber held not binding on the corporation; nor such purchase not being a matter in the ordinary course of the business of the company. Weatherby v. Texas & Ohio Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 243.

A president of a wholesale grocery company held not expressly authorized to make a contract for the purchase of a stock of goods and fixtures. Gulf Grocery Co. v. Crews (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 654.

Where the general manager and sales agent of a land company sold land without authority, neither the sale, nor agreements leading up thereto, were binding upon the corporation unless ratified by the American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

21. Collections and payments.—A telephone company's lineman held to have no authority to receive telephone rental. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Luckett (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 855.
22. Bonds and mortgages.—One holding bonds pledged as collateral security held to be entitled to prove them up to the extent of their face value, and have a distribution out of the funds accruing from a sale under a foreclosure, on the basis of the bonds, to the extent of the amount of his principal debt and interest. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 41 C. A. 478, 92 S. W. 986.

If the directors or any of them, in pledging bonds of their corporation as security for the corporation's note, upon which they were sureties as individuals, was not void. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 786.

Where the bonds of a corporation had been pledged as security for a loan, the directors could not validate the pledge and thereby validate a sale of the bonds by the creditor to purchasers having no fiduciary relation to the corporation. Id.

23. — Compromises.—An agreement for the compromise of a claim against a corporation, made on behalf of the corporation by two of its stockholders, held binding upon the corporation. Jones v. Baines Grocery Co., 31 C. A. 283, 72 S. W. 260.

24. — Representations.—A corporation is not bound by the representations of individual trustees. Its representations must be made by the corporation itself, acting through its board of trustees or directors having charge of its affairs. Kulp v. Specht, 11 C. A. 888, 32 S. W. 714.

On an issue whether a release of a carrier from liability for injuries to a passenger had been obtained by fraud, held, that the representations of a physician employed by defendant were binding on it. Internationl & G. N. R. Co. v. Shuford, 36 C. A. 293, 81 S. W. 1189.

25. — Wrongful acts.—It is not necessary to liability of an irrigation company for false representations of its general manager that the person applying for the information should have known his purpose. Cieghon v. Barstow Irr. Co., 41 C. A. 551, 93 S. W. 1920.

In an action against a corporation for damages for conspiring to injure plaintiffs' business, the corporation held liable for the conduct and statements of its president. American Irrigation Co., Ltd. v. London v. British Mortgage Co. of London v. London, 111 Ohio St., 782, 55 N. E. 929.

While a contract with a corporation may be rescinded for false representations by the corporate officers or agents, though the corporation had no knowledge of and did not consent to such representations, the corporation is not liable in damages as for deceit, unless it authorized the making of the representations. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seidel, 62 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 945.

The master, though a corporation, held to have authorized an assault on a new employee by old employees in the course of an "initiation," and so to be liable. Medlin Milling Co. v. Ezell (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 442.

A corporation is not liable for a conspiracy among its directors to defraud another when the conspiracy is not made in the due course of business and within the scope of their authority. Caffall v. Bandera Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 106.

26. — Persons entitled to question authority of agent, etc.—Power of the president and secretary to execute a chattel mortgage cannot be attacked by sureties on replevin bond given in foreclosure proceedings. McLeod Artesian Well Co. v. Craig (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 934.

27. — Estoppel to deny authority or acts.—Stockholders are estopped by the acts of the directors done with their knowledge and acquiescence. Stiger v. Davis, 8 C. A. 53, 27 S. W. 1068.

A corporation held not liable by way of estoppel on notes indorsed without authority with the corporate name by the person in charge of the business of the corporation. Manhattan Liquor Co. v. Joseph A. Magnus & Co., 45 C. A. 492, 84 S. W. 1117; Bank v. Uniform Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1120.

Defendant held estopped from denying that a lease was executed for it by its general manager. Kinchelow Irrigating Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 78.

Where the bonds of a corporation were pledged as security for the corporation's note and later were purchased from the creditor by the corporation at the full face value for cash, and no objection was made to the transaction for ten years, the purchasers of the property of the corporation under a conveyance, recognizing the validity and priority of this security, could not assail the transaction. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 786.

That an irrigation company supplied water upon the terms specified in an unauthorized verbal contract executed by its agent, and collected the money therefor, did not render the company with notice of the contract and estop it from denying the authority of its agent. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 256.

28. — Ratification and repudiation.—To make the master liable in punitory damages for the torts of the servant, a ratification may be shown by an adoption of the act. A ratification by a corporation must be the act of some chief officer of the company. Railway Co. v. Reed, 50 T. 362, 15 S. W. 1105, 26 Am. St. Rep. 749.

Directors of a corporation may ratify the act of its president in assigning a chose in action for the corporation, without adopting a resolution and having it spread on the corporation's minutes. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 23 T. 378, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.

Ratification of a contract of employment by the vice president of a corporation held to relate back to the beginning of the transaction, and to validate the contract, though originally made by the corporation's secretary and treasurer without authority. Peach River Lumber Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 384, 91 S. W. 387.

A foreign corporation held liable for actual and exemplary damages, for state agent's fraudulent representations in transferring a mortgage held by the corporation. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 97 T. 492, 79 S. W. 516.

Art. 1160. [652] [586] Directors shall cause record to be kept, etc.—They shall cause a record to be kept of all stock subscribed and transferred, and of all business transactions; and their books and records shall, at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of any and every stockholder. [Id. sec. 21.]

Records as evidence.—The record of proceedings is the best evidence of the transactions of a corporation; a certified copy of the record relating thereto, properly authenticated, is evidence. It is incompetent to prove by parol the records of a corporation without showing the loss of the original record or otherwise accounting for the absence of such original. Stock Ass'n v. West, 76 T. 461, 13 S. W. 307.

Art. 1161. [663] [587] Shall report to stockholders and make dividends.—They shall, also, when required by one-third of the stockholders thereof, present reports in writing of the situation and amount of business of the corporation, and declare and make such dividends of the profits from the business of the corporation as they shall deem expedient, or as the by-laws may prescribe. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 1162. [653] [577] May borrow money.—Corporations shall have power to borrow money on the credit of the corporation, not exceeding its authorized capital stock, and may execute bonds or promissory notes therefor, and may pledge the property and income of the corporation. [Acts 1883, p. 98, sec. 13. P. D. 5944.]

Notes—Liability on.—The liability of a corporation on notes executed by its president and general manager held unaffected by what the money was borrowed for or how it was expended. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

A corporation's notes of itself and the joint note of plaintiff and defendant held liable on the joint note to plaintiff sold his stock in the corporation, where the practical effect of the transaction was the purchase of goods by the corporation. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 533. And see Moon Bros. Carriage Co. v. Waxahachie Grain & Implement Co., 35 S. W. 937, 13 T. C. A. 103.

Forged.—A corporation held not liable on a note containing a necessary signature, which the corporation's treasurer had forged, by reason of the fact that the treasurer had authority to issue negotiable paper, and signed the corporation's name by his own hand. Merchants' & Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Lufkin Nat. Bank, 34 C. A. 551, 79 S. W. 621.

Accommodation.—The secretary of a corporation organized to erect, maintain, and manage a hotel held without authority to execute in its name a note for accommodation. Fort Collyer Hotel Co. v. Allied Nat. Bank v. Able, 88 S. W. 1229.

A corporation has no power to become liable on commercial paper for the mere accommodation of another person or corporation. Waller v. Gorman Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 533.

As affected by signature.—Signature of note in name of corporation by its officer conducting a branch of its business held the act of the corporation. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 510.

Where the name of the president of the corporation was signed to a paper by his son, recognizing the validity of a note signed by another officer of the corporation, the act was not that of the president; it not appearing that the son is authorized to sign his father's name to the paper. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bank, 100 T. 344, 99 S. W. 850.

Where the name of a corporation was the "Houston Loan & Land Company," and not the "Houston Loan & Land Company," the fact that it, through its president, executed notes in the name of the latter, did not affect its liability on the notes. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

Officers authorized to execute.—That one is vice president of a corporation does not enable him to sign a note for the corporation. In the absence of authority from it. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bank, 100 T. 344, 99 S. W. 850.

Art. 1163. [664] [588] Existing corporations may accept provisions of this title, etc.—Any corporation heretofore organized, and now in existence, under any general or special law of the republic or state of Texas, may, by a vote of its board of directors, accept any or all of the provisions of this title, and have and exercise all of the rights, power and privileges conferred by this title, by filing a copy of their acceptance with the secretary of state; whereupon, that portion of its charter inconsistent with this title, or the portion accepted, shall cease to be applicable to such corporation; and it shall have the exclusive right to carry out the objects of said corporation, as described in its act of incorporation, or certificate, filed with the secretary of state, if acting under a general law within the limits or boundaries described in said act of incorporation, or certificate, as the case may be, without any limitation as to time, and shall possess all the privileges and franchises conferred by its act of incorporation or certificate filed with the secretary of state, not abandoned in the copy of acceptance of any or all the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 22. P. D. 5953.]

Art. 1164. [665] [589] Corporation restricted to objects of its creation.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in this state, shall employ or use its stock, means, assets, or other property, directly or indirectly, for any other purpose whatever than to accomplish the legitimate objects of its creation or those permitted by law. [Acts 1907, p. 312, sec. 5.]

Construction.—This provision of the statute is merely declaratory of the common law, by which corporations are strictly confined in their powers to the limits and purposes for which created. But when a contract has been performed and the corporation has received the benefit of the contract, it cannot repudiate its obligation incurred thereby. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 632, 8 S. W. 98.

Diversion of funds.—This article virtually enacts a limitation upon the power of the corporation that it shall not divert its funds or change its business from that which is declared in its charter. A lease by an oil corporation of its lands to others for a term of years to carry on the same kind of business, is not a change of business, nor a diversion of funds, and is legal. Starke v. Guffey Petroleum Co., 98 T. 542, 86 S. W. 4, 4 Ann. Cas. 10557.

Liability on contracts before organization.—As to liability of corporation on contracts made before its organization, see Railway Co. v. Granger, 24 S. W. 795, 86 T. 350, 40 Am. St. Rep. 837.

Forfeiture.—Under this article, as amended by Acts 1907, c. 166, § 5, to provide that no corporation shall employ or use its stock or other property for any purpose, other than to accomplish the legitimate objects of its creation, or that permitted by law, and that any corporation which violates those provisions shall, on proof thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, forfeit its permit, license, or charter, and Art. 1356, providing for judgment in all cases where the defendant has been duly served and has not answered. Held that, in a suit to forfeit the franchise of a corporate club because of its illegal sale of liquor, a default judgment could be taken; the amendment not withdrawing this class of cases from the operation of the general rule as to defaults, and merely requiring the facts to be judicially ascertained. Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 659.

General powers of corporations.—See notes under Art. 1140.

Art. 1165. [665] [580] Restrictions upon creation of debts.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in this state, shall create any indebtedness whatever except for money paid, labor done, which is reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the corporation, or property actually received, reasonably worth at least the sum at which it was taken by the corporation. [Id.]

"New debt."—The execution of new notes for an indebtedness existing when a new member came into the corporation is not the creation of a new debt, within an agreement that no new debt shall be created without the consent of four-fifths of all the stock. King County Land & Live-Stock Co. v. Thomson, 21 C. A. 473, 51 S. W. 898.

Art. 1166. Contributions to political parties or candidate, etc., by corporation officers, etc., forbidden.—No corporation, domestic or foreign, doing business in the state shall, directly or indirectly, contribute or pay any part of its assets, property or funds to any political party, or to any officer or campaign manager of any political party, or to any person whatsoever, for or on account of such party, nor to any candidate for any office, before or after nominations are made, or to aid in defraying the expenses of any candidate for office, or to any person for or on account of aid in defraying the expenses of a candidate for office, or to any person whatsoever, for, or on account of aid in maintaining or defraying the expenses of any campaign or political headquarters, or to any person whatsoever, for or on account of the success or defeat of any question to be voted upon by the qualified voters of this state, or any subdivision thereof. [Acts 1907, p. 312, sec. 5.]

Art. 1167. Penalty for violation of either of the last three preceding articles.—Any corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of either of the three last preceding articles, shall, on proof thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, forfeit its charter, permit or license, as the case may be, and all rights and franchises which it holds under, from, or by virtue of, the laws of this state.

Whenever it appears that the money, assets, property, or funds of a corporation have been issued, paid out, or used, in violation of any of the provisions of either of the three last preceding articles, by any agent, attorney, director, or officer of such corporation, it shall be held and considered the act of the corporation, unless, within one year from the date of such violation, it has caused to be entered through its board of directors on its records in this state, an order repudiating the wrong and permanently dismissing from its service all persons directly or indirectly connected with such violation. [Id. sec. 5.]

Operation prospective only.—This article was meant to reach future omission alone and cannot be relied on for forfeiture for past omissions on the part of the company. Reed v. Sampson, 55 C. A. 552, 118 S. W. 754.

Art. 1168. [666] [590] Stock of corporation is personal estate.—The stock of any corporation created under this title shall be deemed personal estate, and shall be transferable only on the books of the corporation in such manner as the by-laws may prescribe. [Id. sec. 24.]

P. D. 5955.

Transfer of shares—Unpaid stock.—Unpaid stock of a corporation may be transferred in good faith and with consent of the corporation. Nicholson v. Showalter, 83 T. 99, 18 S. W. 326.

Pledges.—The pledgee holding stock of a private corporation as collateral security, with consent of the corporation, and as a lien, may be attached, unless the transfer had not been made to him upon the books of the company. Tombokler v. Palestine Ice Co., 17 C. A. 556, 43 S. W. 896.

This article, if applicable to a bank organized under Acts 29th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 10, only affects the right to dividends, the privilege of voting, and other rights of a stockholder; and a pledge of bank stock acquires a lien thereon, though there is no transfer on the books of the bank. First State Bank of Montgomery v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 651.

On facts stated, held, that the district court had jurisdiction to direct an equitable distribution of funds arising from the winding up of the corporation, between the pledgee of shares of stock given as collateral security, the widow, and executrix of the pledgor, and all other parties interested, wherein, without suit by the pledgee against the widow to foreclose the lien. Clarke v. First State Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 208.

Registration of transfer—Necessity.—Though a corporation refused to enter a transfer of stock, such transfer held valid and to entitle the transferee to dividends subsequently declared. Blooming Grove Cotton-Oil Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 552.

Liability for refusal.—When a corporation refuses to transfer stock on its books to one who has acquired the interest of a stockholder, and refuses to recognize the right of such purchaser, these acts amount to a conversion of the stock, and its owner has the right either to sue for specific performance or for damages for the market value of the stock so converted. Rio Grande Cattle Co. v. Burns, 52 T. 50, 17 S. W. 1043.

Art. 1169. [667] [591] Directors may require payment of stock.—The board of directors or trustees of any corporation may require the subscribers to the capital stock of the corporation to pay the amount by them respectively subscribed, in such manner, and in such installments, as may be required by the by-laws. [Id. sec. 25. P. D. 5956.]
1. Does not apply to assessments on bank stock.—This article and Art. 1170, providing that, where any stockholder neglects to pay any installment, the directors may declare his stock and previous payments forfeited to the corporation, refer only to unpaid subscriptions to stock, and do not apply to assessments on stock, authorized by the banking act (Acts 28th Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 10) §§ 40, 50; and a failure of a holder of bank stock to pay an assessment does not justify the forfeiture of the stock, and does not affect the rights of a pledgee of the stock under no personal liability to pay the assessment. First State Bank of Montgomery v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 691.

2. Where issuance is ultra vires.—When an increase of stock is ultra vires, a subscriber thereto cannot be compelled to pay assessments thereon. Kampman v. Turver, 29 S. W. 768, 87 T. 491.

3. Contract of subscription—Construction.—Where plaintiff contracted to sell stock in a corporation to be organized with a capital of $5,000,000, tender of stock in corporation organized with a capital of but $2,000,000 was insufficient. Faulkner v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 939.

Subscription to stock of cotton oil mill company held binding, though charter gave corporation power to erect and operate cotton gins necessary as feeders for the mill. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne, 29 T. 600, 25 S. W. 450.

Stock was subscribed—Stock was subscribed to create a cotton compress company, under an agreement among the subscribers that a charter of incorporation should be obtained so soon as necessary steps could be taken, and a sufficient amount of stock subscribed to assure the success of the enterprise; it being agreed that the capital stock should not exceed $50,000, which should be divided equally among the subscribers, and the amount necessary to be paid by the company. After $34,000 of stock had been subscribed officers were elected at a meeting, all the subscribers participating and agreeing that the capital stock should be fixed by charter at $100,000 as the maximum, though it was agreed that so large an amount was not to be exceeded. It was so fixed by charter. One who, being present at such meeting, was chosen a director, afterwards refused to pay the assessment on his stock. There was no stipulation that the liability of a subscriber should depend on the excess of the maximum of stock allowed by charter. It was held, that he was liable. (Distinguished from Hotel Co. v. Bolton, 46 T. 653.) Compress Co. v. Saunders, 70 T. 699, 6 S. W. 134.

Where stock subscriptions were paid, business begun, and the money partly exhausted before the charter was filed, the stockholders held liable for the balance of their subscriptions due after crediting the assets on hand when the charter was filed. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 109 S. W. 236.

5. Through promoters or agents.—Statement by a subscriber to the stock of a corporation held not to estop her to object that the corporation formed possessed a wider scope than that contemplated by the subscription, and that she was therefore not liable thereon. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 438.

A subscriber for stock in a corporation held not to be estopped to object that the stock so subscribed was not as represented. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 438.

6. Liability on contract of promoters.—See note under Art. 1140.

7. Subscriptions obtained by fraud.—To entitle one to rescind a contract for the subscription of stock on the ground of false representations, it is not necessary that the representations were knowingly false and made with intent to deceive. Byers Bros. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 457.

8. Reliance on representations.—False representations, inducing a subscription to stock, held sufficient to avoid the subscription, when actually relied on. Byers Bros. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 427.

9. As to stock to be subscribed.—False promise by president of corporation to subscribe for stock held sufficient to avoid a subscription made by another in reliance thereon. Byers Bros. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 437.

10. Estoppel.—Where the agent of a nonresident loan association fraudulently represented that the company was solvent, and thereby induced defendant to subscribe for shares, defendant held not estopped by laches in discovering the condition of the company, so as to preclude him from rescinding his contract for fraud. Park v. Kribb, 24 C. A. 655, 60 S. W. 905.

11. Effect of fraud and remedies of subscriber.—The remedy of a purchaser of corporate stock under fraudulent representations of stockholders held an action against the stockholders for the fraud. Kennedy v. Bender, 194 T. 149, 126 S. W. 224.
A subscription to the stock of a corporation induced by fraud is voidable only when repudiated by the subscriber, and is not void. Burleson v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 569.

12. Conditional subscription.—A subscription to the capital of a proposed corporation held not conditioned upon a certain person being specially interested in the enterprise. Smith v. First Nat. Bank, 43 C. A. 486, 55 S. W. 111.

13. Cancellation.—A subscriber for stock before incorporation held liable thereon, if he did not obtain the consent of the other subscribers to a withdrawal, and did not withdraw his subscription before the organization of the corporation and its acceptance thereof. Steely v. Texas Improvement Co., 55 C. A. 463, 119 S. W. 319.

Plaintiff having entered into a contract whereby stock in a corporation was purchased, his renewal of a note for the purchase of the stock, made with knowledge of the facts, held a reaffirmation of his purchase. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. of Oklahoma v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 466.

14. Release or discharge.—A subscriber to the stock of a corporation to be organized to operate a cotton seed oil mill held released where the corporation's charter authorized it to own and operate cotton gins in addition. Comanche Cotton Oil Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 528.

15. Payment.—Promoters are entitled to a credit, in considering whether the stock issued to them is fully paid up, of the increase in value of properties between the time when they were contracted for by the promoters and the time when they were conveyed to the corporation. Cole v. Adams, 19 C. A. 607, 49 S. W. 1602.

Promoters of a corporation are entitled to be credited in payment of stock issued to them, with the value of a municipal contract secured by them, and transferred to the corporation which received the benefit of it. Id.

Property conveyed in payment of stock in a corporation, as against creditors without notice, is not a payment except to the extent of its actual value. Id.

The net profits of a corporation, prior to the issuance of its stock, which were expended in improvements, should be credited as a payment on stock issued to the promoters of the corporation. Id.

Where a corporation began business before filing the charter, the stockholders became liable as partners, and payment of liabilities incurred before filing the charter cannot be regarded as payment upon their stock subscriptions. Bank of De Soto v. Reed, 50 C. A. 102, 105 S. W. 356.

Where stock subscriptions were paid in and partly exhausted in business begun before filing the charter, the stockholders should be credited on their subscriptions with assets on hand at the time of filing the charter. Id.

A stock subscription agreement held unenforceable and void for vagueness as to the time payment should be made. San Antonio Irr. Co. v. Deutschmann, 192 T. 201, 105 S. W. 450, 114 S. W. 1174.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover from a corporation the value of an interest in a franchise, where the recovery would, in effect, enforce a stock subscription agreement void under Const. art. 12, § 6. Id.

A subscriber of stock, who paid for the stock, may, on the failure of the corporation to issue stock, recover back the money paid with interest. Perrell v. Millican (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 230.

17. Persons entitled to certificates.—The corporators and stockholders of a corporation are not entitled to full paid-up shares of stock for the full value of the property and fruits of the corporation above the liabilities of the corporation. Cole v. Adams, 19 C. A. 507, 49 S. W. 1062.

The promoters of a corporation who are not subscribers to the capital stock are not entitled to shares of paid-up capital stock to the full value of the property owned by the corporation above its indebtedness at the time the stock was issued. Id.

18. Fraudulent issue.—A corporation, induced by fraud to issue paid-up stock, held not entitled to treat the stock as void in the hands of bona fide purchasers. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

A corporation, induced by fraud to issue stock for the benefit of an individual held entitled to proceed against the estate of the individual, in view of a constitutional provision. Id.

19. Estoppel to allege invalidity.—A corporation, induced by fraud to issue stock, held entitled to either cancel the stock or treat the party guilty of the fraud as the purchaser thereof. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

20. Damages.—The measure of damages for the conversion by a company of shares of its stock, subscribed for at par value, but not received by the subscriber, is the difference between the par and market values, less the amount due thereon. Nicholson-Watson Shoe & Clothing Co. v. Urrughart, 32 C. A. 527, 75 S. W. 45.

A buyer of corporate stock seeking to recover damages for the fraud inducing the sale held entitled to recover only the damages he suffered thereby. Reed v. Holloway (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1189.

Art. 1170. [668] [592] Stock forfeited, when and how.—If any stockholder shall neglect to pay any installment, as required by the board of trustees, the directors or trustees may declare his stock and all previous payments forfeited to the use of the company; but no stock shall be forfeited until the directors or trustees have caused a notice in writing to be served on him personally, or by depositing the same in the post-office, properly directed to him at the post-office nearest his usual place of residence. of residence, stating that he is required to make such payment at the time and place specified in said notice, and that if he fails to make the same his stock and all previous payments thereon will be forfeited for the use of the company; which notice may be served, as aforesaid, at least thirty days previous to the day on which such payment is required to be made. [Id. sec. 26. P. D. 5957.]

Forfeiture void, when.—In absence of compliance with the statute of forfeiture of subscribers’ stock for non-payment of amount due thereon, is void; payment in advance not having been expressly required by the charter. Nicholson-Watson Shoe & Clothing Co. v. Urruchurt, 22 C. A. 925, 16 S. W. 43.

Art. 1171. [669] [593] Corporation may sue its own members.—
All bodies corporate may sue for, recover and receive from, their respective members all arrears or other debts, dues or other demands which are now, or hereafter may be, owing to them, in like mode, manner and form as they might sue for, recover and receive the same from any person not a member of their body. [Id. sec. 27. P. D. 5958.]

Art. 1172. [674] [598] Mislater shall not vitiate.—No mislmer of any corporation shall defeat or vitiate any gift, grant, conveyance, device, or bequest to the same. [P. D. 5965.]

Art. 1173. [676] [600] Corporation may convey lands, how.— Any corporation may convey lands by deed, sealed with the common seal of the corporation, and signed by the president or presiding mem-er or trustee of said corporation, or in common form without seal by its attorney in fact, where the instrument constituting such attorney in fact is executed in said manner first mentioned; and such deed, when acknowledged by such officer or attorney in fact to be the act of the corporation, or proved in the manner prescribed for other conveyances of lands, may be recorded in like manner and with the same effect as other deeds; and all conveyances by corporations heretofore executed in the manner herein set forth shall be held valid so far as regards the manner

Construction.—The authority conferred upon the president to execute a deed for a land rights shall not imply the power to make the sale. The power of sale must be derived from the charter and exercised in accordance with its provisions. Fitzhugh v. Franco-Texas
Rep. 694.

Power to convey.—The right of a corporation to dispose of the real estate it is authorized to purchase is a necessary incident to its ownership thereof. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 735.

Ratification.—Acts of a corporation subsequent to the execution of a deed of trust in its behalf by its president held to constitute a ratification of his act. Clark v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 633.

Officers and agents.—See notes under Art. 1159.

Sufficiency of acknowledgment.—A deed for land by a national bank to which was signed the corporate name with the bank seal affixed by J. K., president, and R. P. A., cashier, had affixed thereto the following certificate of acknowledgment: "This day personally appeared J. K., president of said First National Bank of the city of Dallas, and
R. P. A., cashier of said bank, both of whom are to me well known, and severally acknowledged that they executed the above and foregoing instrument for the purposes and considerations therein contained." The acknowledgment was held sufficient. Muller v.
Boone, 83 T. 91.

Presumption of vice president’s authority.—When a deed of a corporation is signed by its vice-president and sealed with its seal, in absence of evidence to the contrary it is presumed that the contingency existed which authorized the vice-president to act. Ballard v. Carmichael, 83 T. 355, 18 S. W. 734.

Notice to grantee.—One claiming title through a deed made by an agent of a corporation is chargeable with notice of the power or want of power of such agent to bind

Deed to self as grantee.—The president or presiding member or trustee of a corporation can execute a deed of the corporation to himself as grantee. His act as such

Conveyance after forfeiture.—Conveyance by president of corporation whose charter was forfeited held to convey his proportionate interest, though conveyance was unau-

Trust deeds.—A trust deed on property the title of which to the corporation was negotiating and which it

Art. 1174. [673] [597] Principal office must be kept in state.—
Each corporation or joint stock company of every description, whether organized and acting under a special charter or general law of the state, shall keep its principal office within this state. [P. D. 5962.]

Charter need not specify location of office.—A charter can be granted to a corporation to do business in this state and another state. It is not necessary for the charter to state where the principal office shall be kept in this state, but the law requires that its principal office shall be kept in this state. Beattie v. Hardy, 93 T. 131, 53 S. W. 665.

CHAPTER THREE A SALE OF CORPORATE STOCK

Art. 1174a. Corporations affected by act; promotion commissions or fees.—Every private corporation, foreign or domestic, organized for profit, which is now attempting or shall hereafter attempt to increase its capital stock, and every proposed corporation attempted to be organized which shall, directly or indirectly, through itself, its agents or employés, or through any person or association of persons, holding companies, sales companies or otherwise, or through any other agents, sell or contract to sell any stock of such corporation or proposed corporation, upon which sale or proposed sale or contract of sale any part of the proceeds derived or to be derived therefrom are used or to be used, directly or indirectly for the payment of any commission, promotion, organization fee or other expenses incident, directly or indirectly, to the sale of its shares of stock, except attorney's fees, charter fees, franchise tax, permit fees and stationery and supplies, shall be subject to the provisions of this act. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 66, sec. 1.]

Art. 1174b. Corporations affected; mining, oil, or gas companies; townsite companies.—This act shall also apply to any mining, oil or gas corporation increasing its stock or proposed mining, oil or gas corporation attempting to sell stock in which any land or mineral or thing of value is to be procured from, in or under such land that has been or is to be placed as an asset with or in the corporation or proposed corporation, whether any promotion fee is charged or not, and to any townsite corporation or proposed townsite corporation. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1174c. Sale of stock; filing statement; contents of statement; foreign corporation to file copy of charter; employment of experts; statement of townsite company.—Before offering for sale or contracting to sell, directly, or indirectly, any stock of such proposed corporation, or such increased stock of any existing corporation, or before selling any stock in any townsite corporation as provided in section 2 [Art. 1174b], such corporation, or those promoting or having charge of the sale of stock of any proposed corporation, shall file, under oath, in the office of the secretary of state, where, under the law, a charter would be filed in his department, or in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking, where, under the law, a charter would be filed in his department, together with a filing fee of twenty dollars, the following documents: A statement showing in full detail the plan upon which the corporation proposes to increase its capital stock or upon which the promoters or those having charge of the sale of stock of any proposed corporation proposes to sell its stock and organize the corporation, together with a copy of all the forms of contracts, stock (or deeds, if the same shall come under section 2 hereof) to be used by the corporation or promoters, or those having charge of the sale of stocks of any proposed corporation in connection with such stock sales. The statement shall further show the name, location and domicile of such corporation, and the names of its officers or proposed officers, if any, or promoters, and the addresses of all the parties; the amount of capital stock of any corporation already organized, the proposed increase, or the proposed capital stock of the corporation to be organized, and the price at which the stock is proposed to be sold; and the price at which the stock is proposed to be sold shall not be changed without filing with the secretary or commissioner, as the case may be, a statement of such change, which shall be subject to his approval. Any such corporation or promoters of such proposed corporation shall furnish the secretary or commissioner such other information as may be necessary or proper concerning the sale of its stock.

If it shall be a corporation organized under the laws of any other jurisdiction, it shall file with the secretary or commissioner a copy of its charter, and such other evidence of its authority as the secretary or commissioner may require.

Said statement shall also show the commission, promotion fee and other estimated incidental expenses proposed to be charged for the organization of such proposed corporation, or the increase in the capital stock of any corporation already organized, and how the commissions or fees are to be paid.

If the corporation or proposed corporation comes under section 2 hereof, the officers of the corporation, or the promoters of the proposed corporation shall state the facts upon which they base their estimate of the actual value of the property which is to become an asset of the corporation, and the secretary or commissioner shall require such proof as he may deem proper to establish the actual value of the property.

The secretary or commissioner shall have the right to employ such experts as he may deem necessary, and the experts shall be employed at the expense of the corporation or promoters of a proposed corporation.

No corporation proposed to be organized for the purpose of buying or selling townsites and town lots shall hereafter be granted a charter by the secretary of state, or if a foreign corporation shall not be granted a permit to do business in the state of Texas unless the incorporators of said proposed corporation or officer of such foreign corporation shall file with the secretary of state each and every document, contract and all papers referred to in section 3 of this act, as well as a general statement of the plan of its proposed townsite, and a general statement of its methods of advertising same, together with a sample copy of its advertising literature, and no charter shall be granted any corporation unless after the compliance with the provisions of this act and in the judgment of the secretary of state, such business of any proposed townsite corporation will be honestly and fairly conducted both to the corporation and to the public. And each and every corporation in this state now existing or hereafter organized desiring to engage in the sale of townsite lots or sites shall, prior to such sale, file with the secretary of state a general plan of said proposed lots to be sold, as well as a copy of any and all proposed contracts to be made with the public in the sale thereof, and a general statement of the literature proposed to be issued, and all matters referred to in section 3 hereof, and if in the judgment of the secretary of state said sale will be conducted both honestly and fairly to the corporation and to the public, a permit to conduct said sale shall be granted. This provision shall not be construed to authorize the creation of any corporation for any purpose not now authorized by the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1174d. Granting or refusing permit; stock previously sold; promotion fee; when permit shall not issue; bond.—The secretary or commissioner, upon the receipt of the information as provided for in section 3 [Art. 1174c], shall grant or refuse such permit.

If the secretary or commissioner shall decide that the sale of stock will be fairly and honestly conducted, both to the corporation and to the public, such permit shall be granted, provided that the commissions, promotion and other incidental expenses, exclusive of the exempted expenses mentioned in section 1 of this act [Art. 1174a], shall not be more than fifteen (15) per cent of the price at which such stock is to be sold as shown by the application or amended application.

Provided, that where any proposed corporation has already sold its stock, or a part thereof, or any part thereof has been subscribed at the time this act shall take effect, this act shall not effect stock previously sold or subscribed nor any contracts made in reference to same; but if any of the stock of said proposed corporation remains unsold or unsubscribed, said corporation shall, nevertheless, be entitled to a permit upon complying with the other conditions of this act, including the future sale or subscription of any of its stock.

The commission or promotion fee shall be paid to the agent or promoter as the stock is sold by him and paid for by the purchaser. The stock shall be considered as paid for when paid for in cash, property or labor.

No permit shall be granted unless there shall appear upon the subscription lists and contracts of such corporation or proposed corporation, in bold type, the amount of the commissions, promotion fees and other estimated expenses incident to the sale of such stock, and the interest which the officer, agent, employé or promoter selling or contracting to sell such stock has in such sale; nor shall such permit be granted until the applicants therefor have entered into a bond for not less than one thousand dollars ($1000) nor more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), the same to be fixed by the secretary or commissioner at not more than ten per cent of the stock proposed to be issued. The said bond shall be payable to the secretary or commissioner as the case may be, and his successor in office, conditioned that the facts set forth in the application for such permit, and the proof and statements offered to such secretary or commissioner, upon which the application is based, are true, and that they will comply with the provisions of this act in the sale of the stock of such corporation or proposed corporation. Said bond may be made with individual sureties or a surety company authorized to do business in the state of Texas, and the bond shall be approved by the secretary or commissioner. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1174e. Suit to compel issuance of permit.—If a permit shall be refused by the secretary or commissioner the parties applying therefor may bring suit in the district court of Travis county, Texas, to require said secretary or commissioner to issue such permit. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1174f. Misrepresentations; suit on bond; amount of recovery; successive suits; new bond; list of officers, agents, etc.—Any person who shall be induced to purchase any stock of any corporation or proposed corporation by the officers, agents, employés, promoters or trustees, by reason of any misrepresentation of any material fact concerning such stock, such person or persons shall have the right to bring suit upon the bond above provided for, and such bond shall be subject to, and security for, such person so purchasing the stock, provided that such person shall not be entitled to recover more than the money paid, or the actual value of the property given, or the labor performed, in exchange for such stock, with legal interest from the date of the payment or the performance of the services, or the transfer of the property.

One or more recoveries upon such bond shall not vitiate the same, but it shall remain in full force and effect, but no recoveries upon such bond shall ever exceed the full amount of same, and upon suits being filed in excess of the amount of same, the secretary or commissioner may require a new bond, and if the same is not given within thirty days, he may cancel the permit herein provided for.

Whenever any permit has been issued, the corporation or persons receiving the same shall file a list of the names of their or its authorized officers, agents and employés, and the postoffice address of each; and, in case of the change of any of its officers, agents or employés, it shall file a list of such changes with the secretary or commissioner. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1174g. Deposit of net proceeds of sales.—All moneys or other things of value collected by such corporation or the promoters of a proposed corporation, for the sale of its stock or contract for the sale of its stock, shall be deposited by said corporation to its credit, or by the promoters of a proposed corporation, to the credit of its proposed officers or trustees, with the exception of the amount allowed for commissions, promotion fees and other incidental expenses, with a bank, bank and trust company or trust company incorporated under the laws of this state, or of the United States. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1174h. Books showing sales to be kept; inspection by state officers.—All such corporations, and the organizers or trustees of proposed corporations shall keep a set of books, which shall show the amount of money, or other things of value received by such corporation or proposed corporation, from the sale of its stock, or from contracts of sale of its stock, and such books shall show the number and amounts of stock sold or contracted to be sold, by whom sold, and to whom sold, or contracted to be sold, and the postoffice address of each. Said books shall at all times be open for inspection by the secretary or commissioner, or his duly authorized agent. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1174i. Violation of act; notice to corporation; cancellation of permit; suit to reinstate.—Whenever the secretary or commissioner shall have information that any corporation, or the promoters of the proposed corporation, its officers, agents or employés, are not complying with the terms of this act in the sale of its stock they shall notify such corporation, or the officers, agents or employés or the promoters of the proposed corporation to appear, within twenty days, and show cause why such permit should not be canceled, and after the hearing such secretary or commissioner shall have the right to cancel such permit if the proof shall show that such corporation or proposed corporation, or its officers, agents or employés are not complying with the terms of this act, but the parties or corporation holding such permit shall have the right to bring suit, in the district court of Travis county, Texas, against the secretary or commissioner, to reinstate such permit to sell stock. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1174j. Foreign corporations; no permit unless fifty per cent of stock subscribed; loan and insurance companies excepted.—No permit to sell stock shall ever be issued to any foreign corporation which has not at the time of making application for permit at least fifty per cent of its capital stock subscribed and paid in, providing that this shall not apply to any foreign corporation engaged exclusively in the business of lending money in this state, nor to any insurance company that is required by law to obtain a permit from the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1174k. Foreign corporations; power of attorney to receive process.—Each foreign corporation or the promoters of any proposed foreign corporation desiring to sell or contract to sell its stock in this state shall first file with the secretary or commissioner a like power of attorney to that provided for life insurance corporations in article 4773, Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas of 1911, and service may be had upon the corporation and the secretary or commissioner, as the case may be, as therein provided for, and the secretary or commissioner, as the case may be, upon receipt of such process as is therein provided for, shall proceed as is provided for him to do in article 4774, Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas of 1911, and the secretary or commissioner's acts and conduct in regard to such power of attorney, and such process shall be the same as is provided for in said articles 4774 and 4773, and the effect, force and result of such acts shall be the same as therein provided for. [Id. sec. 11.]

Explanatory.—Section 12 of this Act makes it a misdemeanor to violate the provisions of the Act, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 1174j. Organization within two years; refundment to subscribers; extension of time.—At the expiration of two years from the granting of a permit under this act if the proposed corporation has failed to organize, then all subscribers must be refunded the amount paid to the promoter or trustee; provided, however, that the secretary or commissioner may grant an extension of time for the sale of securities. [Id. sec. 12a.]

Art. 1174m. Act cumulative.—This act shall be construed to be cumulative of any other law or laws of this state. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1174n. Corporations and transactions not affected by act.—The terms of this act shall not apply to any national bank, nor to any corporation having a charter granted under any act of the congress of the United States, nor to any state bank, bank and trust company or trust company organized under the laws of this state, nor to any corporation organized under the federal reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, or the regulations established by the secretary of the department of the interior in pursuance thereof. Nor shall the terms of this act apply to any corporation or the promoters of any corporation organized under the laws of Texas which does not sell or contract to sell its stock to more than twenty-five bona fide purchasers; provided, it does not act as the agent or trustee, holding company or sales company in the promotion of any concern which is included under the terms of this act. Nor shall this act apply to any railroad or railway company or interurban railroad or railway company, or street railroad or railway company. Nor shall this act apply to the sale of stock of a corporation by a bona fide owner of same, who had in good faith bought the same, and who in the purchase and sale of same was and is not acting directly or indirectly as promoter or agent of such corporation. Nor shall this act apply to a bona fide stock or stock broker in the sale of stock, which stock has been by such corporation sold and issued to a bona fide purchaser prior to the offering of same for sale by such broker; provided, that such purchaser or broker was not acting, directly or indirectly, as promoter of such corporation. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1174o. Deposit of funds with state treasurer; examination of corporations; expenses.—All moneys collected under the terms of this act by the secretary or commissioner shall be quarterly deposited by him with the state treasurer and credited to the general fund. Whenever the secretary or commissioner shall deem it necessary to examine the books of any corporation or proposed corporation, subject to the provisions of this act, or investigate its financial condition, he shall do so at the expense of the corporation or proposed corporation under investigation, and the corporation or the agents of the corporation or proposed corporation being investigated shall pay to the secretary or commissioner, or his agent, making the investigation his actual expenses and seven dollars and fifty cents per day for such investigation, which said expenses shall be paid at the termination of such investigation by the concern investigated. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1174p. Definition of terms.—Whenever the word “secretary” is used in this act it shall be considered to mean secretary of the state of Texas, and whenever the word “commissioner” is used in this act it shall be considered to mean commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 16.]

CHAPTER FOUR

LAND—ACQUISITION, ETC., OF, RESTRICTED

Art. 1175. Purchase of land, unless necessary to business or to secure debts, prohibited.—No private corporation shall be permitted to purchase any land under the provisions of this chapter, unless the lands so purchased are necessary to enable such corporation to do business in this state, or except where such land is purchased in due course of business, to secure the payment of debt. [Acts 1893, p. 36. Acts 1897, p. 48.]

In general.—Where a statute authorizes corporations to acquire real property, the fact that the charter does not expressly authorize it does not render the acts of a corporation ultra vires and void, so as to make an agent acting in behalf of the corporation individually liable. Ray v. Foster (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 54.

Where a director received a deed to lands intended for the corporation, but outside of the power of the latter to acquire, it cannot compel a conveyance thereof from him. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

A judgment creditor of the president of a corporation cannot, by purchase on execution sale of property held by him in trust for the corporation, defeat the corporation's title on the ground that it was not authorized to acquire such property. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 31, 75 S. W. 7, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

President of a street railway company held to have taken a grant of land as trustee for the company. Id.

A creditors' bill against a corporation to subject land to the debts of the corporation held not demurrable, because the corporation, under its charter, had no authority to purchase and hold lands. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Hereford v. Southwestern Engineering & Construction Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 443.

Capacity to acquire can only be questioned by state.—Where a corporation is incompetent, by its charter, to take title to real estate, a conveyance to it is not void but voidable only at the suit of the state. Schwab Clothing Co. v. Claunck (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 922; Ray v. Foster (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 54; Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

Lien for performance of promoter's contract.—Land purchased by a corporation with notice of a contract entered into by its promoters held subject to a lien for the performance of such contract. Weathersby v. Texas & Ohio Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 243.

Art. 1176. [749c] Excess of land over necessary amount to be alienated, when.—All private corporations authorized by the laws of Texas, as provided in article 1121, to do business in this state, whose main purpose is not the acquisition or ownership of lands, as mentioned in the preceding articles, which have, heretofore, or may hereafter, acquire by lease, purchase or otherwise more land than is necessary to enable them to carry on their business, shall, within fifteen years from the time this law takes effect, or the date said land may be hereafter acquired, in good faith, sell and convey in fee simple all lands so acquired, and which are not necessary for the transaction of their business. [Id.]

Art. 1177. [749a] Certain corporations forbidden to acquire lands.
—No private corporation heretofore or hereafter chartered or created whose main purpose of business is the acquisition or ownership of land by purchase, lease or otherwise shall hereafter be permitted to acquire any land within this state by purchase, lease or otherwise. [Acts 1893, p. 36.]

Land necessary to actual business.—Where a corporation owned no more land than was necessary to be used in the prosecution of its actual business, it was not within this article. Kirby v. Pitchfork Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1151.

Art. 1178. [749b] Lands previously acquired, to be alienated when.—All private corporations whose main purpose or business is the acquisition or ownership, by purchase, lease or otherwise, of lands in this state, shall, within fifteen years from the time this law takes effect, make an actual bona fide sale of all lands, or interest therein acquired, before this law takes effect, and shall, within said fifteen years, by proper deed, convey in good faith all their right and title to said land. And lands acquired by corporations in payment of debts due such corporations shall be sold and conveyed as herein provided, within fifteen years from the date of the acquisition of such land. [Id.]

Fifteen years to alienate.—A corporation which has acquired land which under its charter it has no right to hold has 15 years from the passage of the act of March 24, 1893, within which to sell, and if it acquired title for a valuable consideration, without notice of any defect in the title, it can defend its possession and right under plea of innocent purchaser. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 Tex. 380, 64 S. W. 421.

Art. 1179. Purchase, subdivision and sale of city, etc., lands not prohibited.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prohibit the lease, purchase, sale or subdivision of real property within incorporated towns, cities or villages, and their suburbs not extending more than two miles beyond their corporate limits, by corporations whose charters authorize them to lease, purchase, sell and subdivide real estate, within towns, cities and villages, and their suburbs whether their suburbs be stated to be measured from the limits, merely, or the corporate limits, of such towns, cities and villages; and provided, further, that all such corporations now existing, or which may be hereafter created, shall be authorized to lease, sell, or subdivide real property in any unincorporated city, town or village, or the suburbs thereof, within this state; provided, if there be a courthouse in such city, town or village, such lease, sale or subdivision may extend two miles in any direction from such courthouse. If there be a depot or depots, and no courthouse, then the two miles shall be measured from the depot nearest the center of such city, town, or village; and, in case there be neither courthouse nor depot, then the two miles shall be measured from the center of such city, town or village. [Acts 1893, p. 36. Acts 1897, p. 48.]

Art. 1180. [749d] Forfeiture prescribed; duty of attorney general.—All corporations holding lands contrary to the provisions of this law shall hold the same subject to the forfeiture and escheat proceedings; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general, or other attorney appointed by the governor for that purpose, when he is informed or has reason to believe that any corporation is holding lands in violation of this law, to institute suit in the name of the state of Texas, in the district court of Travis county, or in the district court of any county in Texas where such corporation may have an agent, or in any county where any part of the land may be situated, against such corporation, as is provided in title 51, for the escheat of estates of deceased persons dying without devise thereof and having no heirs. [Acts 1893, p. 36.]

Not entitled to receiver.—The fact that lands held by a corporation in violation of the laws of the state are in danger of being forfeited to the state does not entitle a party to have a receiver appointed, as the forfeiture proceedings could still be invoked. American Tribune New Colony Co. v. Schuler, 34 A. 560, 79 S. W. 375.

Art. 1181. [749e] Proceeds of such forfeitures to be covered into the treasury.—If it shall be determined upon the trial of said suit that lands are held contrary to this law, the court trying said cause shall enter judgment condemning such lands and ordering them to be sold as under execution. The proceeds of such sale to be applied; first, to the payment of costs of such suit, and balance to be paid into the state treasury, subject to be paid to the stockholders, or persons entitled to receive the same as owners, upon proper proof made within twelve months from date of sale; and if the legal representatives of such corporation fail to claim the said balance of money realized on sale of said land, then it shall escheat absolutely to the state and be applied to the available school fund of the state of Texas. The court trying said cause shall allow the attorney representing the state a reasonable fee, to be taxed as cost in the suit, but in no case shall the state be liable for costs or fees unless it is successful in said suit. [Id.]

Unauthorized purchase of land not void.—A purchase of land by a corporation which is not authorized by its charter to acquire and hold real estate is not void, but is good and binding as to all the world except the state. If the state should secure a declaration of forfeiture, the lands would be sold and the proceeds distributed to the stockholders. This shows that the holding of the land is not unlawful. Schneider v. Sellers, 59 T. 288, 84 S. W. 420.

CHAPTER FIVE

REPORTS BY CERTAIN CORPORATIONS

Art. 1182. Certain corporations to make reports to secretary of state.
Art. 1185. Copies of reports to be filed with mayor and with county clerk, recorded, etc.
Art. 1183. Same subject.
Art. 1184. Reports to be under oath, etc.
Art. 1186. Penalty.

Article 1182. Certain corporations to make reports to secretary of state.—Every corporation within this state owning, leasing or operating in this state, in cities or towns of over twenty-five hundred population, according to the last official census of the United States, a street railway, electric lighting or power plant furnishing light or power to the public, gas plant furnishing gas to the public, water plant furnishing water to the public, and sewerage company furnishing sewerage to the public, shall annually, on or before the first day of March of each year, file a report with the secretary of state, upon blank forms to be furnished by the secretary of state, showing the following facts:

1. The authorized capital stock of such corporation, the amount of such stock, that has actually been issued, and how much of such stock actually issued is common, and how much preferred, and how much is due upon unpaid stock.

2. The bonded indebtedness of such corporation, and how many bonds have been actually sold, the rate of interest upon such bonds, and when such bonds mature, and the price at which such bonds were sold.

3. Any other fixed lien or mortgage upon such property, and the amount thereof.

4. The floating indebtedness of such corporation, including all bills payable of whatever nature.
5. The value of the visible tangible property of such corporation, giving separate values of lands, machinery, buildings, tracks and equipment, and in gross, all bills receivable and cash on hand.

6. The annual cost of operating such corporation, showing under separate items: (a) amount paid for salaries; (b) amount paid for labor; (c) fixed charges, including interest, taxes and insurance, giving each separately; (d) amount paid for fuel; (e) amount paid for extensions, repairs and maintenance, giving each separately; (f) amount paid for claims or suits for damages; (g) amount paid for miscellaneous expenses.

7. The annual gross earnings of such corporation, including revenues from every source, showing by separate items amount received by departments, such as amount received for light, amount received for sewerage, for power, water, gas, amount received for street railway fares and tickets. [Acts 1905, p. 40, sec. 1.]

Art. 1183. Same subject.—The corporations mentioned in article 1182 shall also make to the secretary of state, upon blanks to be furnished by him, reports as to the price charged the public for sewerage, gas, water, light, power, and the price charged per passenger upon street railways, and if any such corporations have contracts with cities or towns for furnishing water or light, then, the amount of such charge. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1184. Reports to be under oath, etc.—The reports provided for in articles 1182 and 1183 shall be under oath, and shall be made by any officer of the corporation having knowledge of the facts, or its general manager or superintendent. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1185. Copies of reports to be filed with mayor and with county clerk, recorded, etc.—A true copy of the reports required by the provisions of this chapter, sworn to as provided, shall be filed annually, on or before the first day of March of each year, with the mayor of the city or town where the corporation has its principal place of business; and there shall also be filed at the same time a true copy of said reports with the clerk of the county court of the county in which such corporation has its principal place of business; and the same shall be, by said clerk, delivered to the commissioners' court; and such reports shall be recorded in a properly indexed book, to be kept for that purpose, and open to the inspection of the public at all times. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1186. Penalty.—Any such corporation as described in article 1182, which shall for thirty days wilfully fail or refuse to file the reports in the manner provided by this chapter, shall forfeit and pay to the state one hundred dollars for each and every day during which it shall continue in default; which shall be recovered by suit in a court of competent jurisdiction by the attorney general of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 5.]

CHAPTER SIX
BOOKS, RECORDS, ETC.—EXAMINATION OF

Art. 1187. Attorney general, etc., may examine books, etc.
Art. 1188. Same subject; not to be made public, etc., except, etc.
Art. 1189. Foreign corporation to forfeit permit for refusal, etc.
Art. 1190. Domestic corporation to forfeit charter rights for refusal, etc.
Art. 1191. Venue of suits in Travis county.

Article 1187. Attorney general, etc., may examine books, etc.—Every corporation doing business in this state by virtue of a permit or charter granted under the laws of this state shall permit the attorney general, or any of his assistants or representatives when authorized in writing by the attorney general, to make examination of all the books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws, and other records of said corporation as often as he may deem it necessary. The attorney general, or his assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, shall present a request in writing to the president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary, manager, agent or other officer of said corporation at the time the attorney general or his assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, desire to examine said books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws and other records belonging to said corporation; and it shall be the duty of the officer or agent of any corporation to whom said request is presented to immediately permit the attorney general, or his authorized assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, to inspect and examine all the books, records and other documents of said corporation, as hereinabove set forth. [Acts 1907, p. 34, sec. 1.]

Art. 1188. Same subject; not to be made public, etc.; except, etc. —The attorney general, or any of his assistants or representatives when authorized in writing by the attorney general, shall have the power and authority to make diligent investigation into the organization, conduct and management of any corporation authorized to do business within this state, and shall have power to inspect and examine all or any books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws, and other records of such corporation, and take copies of any or all of such records or documents herein set forth as in his judgment may show or tend to show that said corporation has been or is engaged in acts or conduct in violation of its charter rights and privileges, or in violation of any law of this state; provided, that the attorney general, or his assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives, shall not make public or use said copies or any information derived in the course of said examination of said records or documents as hereinabove set forth, except in the course of some judicial proceedings of which the state is a party, or in a suit by the state to cancel the permit or forfeit the charter of such corporation, or to collect penalties for a violation of the law of this state, or for the information of any of the officers of this state charged with the enforcement of its laws. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1189. Foreign corporation to forfeit permit for refusal, etc.—Any foreign corporation doing business in this state under a permit granted under the laws of this state, or any officer or agent thereof, who shall fail or refuse to permit the attorney general, or his authorized representative or representatives, assistant or assistants, to examine any or all of its books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws and other records of said corporation, whether same be situated within this state or in any other state within the United States, or shall fail or refuse to permit said attorney general or his authorized assistant or assistants, or representative or representatives to take copies of same, as provided for in article 1188, shall thereby forfeit its right to do business in this state; and its permit shall be canceled. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1190. Domestic corporation to forfeit charter rights for refusal, etc.—Any domestic corporation chartered under the laws of this state which shall fail or refuse to permit the attorney general, or any of his authorized assistants or representatives, to examine any or all of its books, accounts, records, minutes, letters, memoranda, documents, checks, vouchers, telegrams, constitution and by-laws, and other records of said corporation, whether the same be situated within this state or in any other state within the United States, or shall fail or refuse to permit said attorney general, or any of his authorized assistances or representatives, to take copies of same as provided for by article 1188, shall forfeit its charter rights and privileges. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1191. Venue of suits in Travis county.—All suits to forfeit charters of domestic corporations or to cancel the permits of foreign corporations for violating the provisions of this act shall be prosecuted by the attorney general in the district courts of Travis county; and venue of said suits is hereby given to said courts. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1192. Provisions cumulative.—The provisions of this chapter shall be cumulative of all other laws now in force in this state, and shall not be construed as repealing any other right, power or means afforded by law for securing testimony or inquiring into the charter rights and privileges of corporations. [Id. sec. 7.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

LIEN OF STATE FOR FINES AND PENALTIES, ETC.

Art. 1193. State to have lien on property within state for fines, etc., from date of suit to forfeit charter, etc.—Whenever any corporation created under the laws of this state, or any foreign corporation authorized to do business in this state, shall violate any law of this state, including any law against trusts, monopolies and conspiracies, or combinations or contracts in restraint of trade, for the violation of which fines or penalties or forfeitures are provided, all property of such corporation within this state at the time of such violation, or which may thereafter come within this state, shall, by reason of such violation, become liable for such fines or penalties and for all costs of suit and of collection; and the state of Texas shall have a lien on all such property from the date that suit shall be instituted by the attorney general, or district or county attorney acting under his direction, in any court of competent jurisdiction within this state, for the purpose of forfeiting the charter or canceling the permit of such corporation, or for such fines or penalties. The institution of such suit for such fine, penalties or forfeiture shall constitute notice of such lien. Where any such law has heretofore been violated, or shall be violated, before the taking effect of this act, and a cause of action exists for such fine, penalties or forfeiture, or shall come into existence before the taking effect of this act, and suit shall be filed in such case, the state shall have a lien, to secure the payment of such fine, penalties and costs from the time this act shall take effect, on all property of such corporation within this state or which shall thereafter become or be brought within the state. [Acts 1907, p. 175, sec. 1.]

Proceedings to enforce lien.—The state has by this act a lien on all the property in this state of a corporation that has violated any law of this state from the time suit shall be instituted, to forfeit the charter or permit to do business of the corporation or for fines and penalties. The proceeding is one in rem. To accomplish the object of the law, a seizure of the property is essential, and the way to accomplish a seizure is through a receiver. The court having appointed a receiver, all the property of the corporation is drawn to the custody of the court, and the court thus having possession of the property, its jurisdiction attached, not to the person of the defendant but to the thing that the law made triable for the consequences of the illegal acts denounced by the statutes, upon which the suit is based. Jurisdiction attaches from the time of filing bill for appointment of receiver, though no possession has been taken by him of the property sought to be administered by the court. Having acquired complete jurisdiction of the res no other court has the power to disturb its jurisdiction or invade its limits. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 162, 163 S. W. 810 et seq.

Action of debt lies.—An action of debt lies for the recovery of statutory penalties where the statute does not require a resort to criminal prosecutions for their enforcement, though it does not direct any method of enforcement. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 48 C. A. 162, 166 S. W. 918.

Art. 1194. Action not to abate by dissolution, etc.; receivership when; writs; liens.—Any action or cause of action for any fine, forfeiture or penalty that the state of Texas has, or may have, against any corporation chartered under the laws of this or any other state, territorial or national, shall not abate or become abated by reason of the dissolution of such corporation, whether voluntary or otherwise, or by the forfeiture of its charter or permit. Whenever a corporation against which the state has heretofore instituted suit, or shall hereafter institute suit, for forfeiture of its charter, or cancellation of its permit, or for fines or penalties under any law of this state, shall dissolve in this or any other state, or shall have a judgment rendered against it in this or any other state, for the forfeiture of its charter, the court in this state in which such suit is pending shall appoint a receiver for the property and business of such corporation within this state, or that may come or be brought within this state during such receivership; or the court may, in any case wherein the state is suing any such corporation for the forfeiture of its charter, or of its permit to do business in this state, or for fines or penalties, appoint a receiver for such corporation, whenever the interest of the state may seem to require such action. If such dissolution shall take place or judgment of forfeiture be rendered against such corporation before this act takes effect, the court shall, upon the taking effect of this act, appoint a receiver for the property and business of such corporation in this state; and the state shall have the right to writs of attachment, garnishment, sequestration or injunction, without bond, to aid in the enforcement of its rights created by this act; and all property that may come into the possession of any receiver appointed under the provisions of this act, not otherwise exempt by law, shall be subject to the lien herein created, and for the payment of any such fine or penalty. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1195. Attorney general may bring suit to foreclose lien; service.—The attorney general or any district or county attorney acting under his direction, may bring suit in the name of the state of Texas, for the foreclosure of such lien in the district court of any county in the state of Texas; and, in case the suit for foreclosure should be brought against any corporation which has dissolved or had a judgment for the forfeiture of its charter or the cancellation of its permit rendered against it, pending any suit by the state of Texas against such corporation for the forfeiture of its charter or cancellation of its permit, or for penalties or fines, service may be had upon any person within this state who acted and was acting as agent of any such corporation in this state at the time of such dissolution or forfeiture of charter or cancellation of permit. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1196. Rights and remedies cumulative.—The rights and remedies given by this act shall be construed as cumulative of all other laws in force in this state, and shall not affect, change or repeal any other remedies or rights now existing in this state for the enforcement, payment or collection of fines, penalties and forfeitures. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1197. No compromise without trial without consent of attorney general.—In case any suit should heretofore be brought in any of the courts of this state for the recovery of penalties mentioned in this act, the same shall not be settled or compromised without trial upon the merits thereof, without the consent and approval of the attorney general of the state. [Id. sec. 5.]

CHAPTER EIGHT

LIABILITY OF STOCKHOLDERS AND DIRECTORS

Art. 1198. When and how stockholders may be made liable on execution.
1199. Secretary shall furnish names, etc., of stockholders to plaintiff.

Article 1198. [671] [595] When and how stockholders may be made liable on execution.—If any execution shall have been issued against property or effects of a corporation, except a railway or a religious or charitable corporation, and there can not be found any property whereon to levy such execution, then the execution may be issued against any of the stockholders to an extent equal to the amount of the stock unpaid; but no execution shall issue against any stockholder, except upon an order of the court in which the action, suit or other procceeding shall have been brought or instituted, made upon motion in open court, after a reasonable notice in writing to the person or persons sought to be charged; and, upon such motion, such court may order execution to issue accordingly; or the plaintiff in execution may proceed by action to charge the stockholders with the amount of his judgment, in accordance with the liability of the stockholders. [P. D. 5960.]

Does not apply to insolvent corporation, when.—The provisions of this article do not apply to an insolvent corporation in hands of a receiver. A creditor cannot by execution against the stockholders enforce the payment of his judgment where the corporation has been placed in the hands of a receiver on his application. Showalter v. Laredo Improvement Co., 83 T. 162, 18 S. W. 491.

Creditor can sue stockholders directly, when.—Where a contract for the transfer of plaintiff's trunk was made with a corporation, an action for the loss thereof could not be maintained against an individual stockholder therein. Gregory v. Webb, 40 C. A. 560, 89
S. W. 1196.

Where the insolvency of a corporation and nonpayment of stock subscriptions are undisputed, a creditor held entitled to sue the stockholders directly. Bank of De Soto v.
Reed, 69 C. A. 192, 109 S. W. 255.

Liability as stockholders.—In general.—It is not necessary that shares of stock should have been actually issued and delivered to any of the subscribers to create a liability.
Their subscription fixes their liability. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

Where, in a motion to enforce liability of stockholders for unpaid subscriptions, the evidence showed that the directors proceeded against had not subscribed for any stock and did not own any, it was insufficient to sustain a judgment against the directors for at least $100. The plaintiffs not having alleged that the defendants being directors were êstopped to deny that they each owned at least one share of stock. McFarland v. Martin & Moodie (Cliv. App.) 86 S. W. 446.

One held liable as a subscriber of corporate stock. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v.
Swain (Cliv. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

The balance due on unpaid stock subscriptions is a fund for the satisfaction of the

A member of a temporary association organized by stock subscribers for the purpose of organizing a corporation held liable for injuries to an employee engaged in work in furtherance of the business in which the corporation when chartered will engage. Farmers'

Unpaid subscriptions.—Article 12, section 6, of the constitution does not change the rule that stockholders of a corporation are liable to the creditors for the par value of the capital stock subscribed for and held by them. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S.
W. 1015.

Where subscribers have not paid all they agreed to pay for their stock, the balance, when recovered, should constitute a fund for all the creditors, whether with or without notice. Id.

Where creditors had notice when their debts were created of the arrangement between the corporation and the subscribers to its capital stock, by which they received it for less than par, they cannot hold the subscribers for a greater sum than they agreed to pay. Id.

The unpaid subscriptions of corporate stock form a part of the assets of the corporation to which the holders of its bonds may look for satisfaction of their claims. United

Paid-up stock.—In determining the liability of stockholders who receive stock marked fully paid, the value of the property transferred by them to the corporation for the stock should be considered. Cole v. Adams, 92 T. 171, 46 S. W. 790.
Extent of liability.—On distribution of a corporation's assets among its stockholders, the stockholders become liable to the extent of the stock received by them. McLean v. Moore (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1074.

Effect of transfer of stock.—A stockholder who transfers his stock in good faith, while the corporation is solvent, and who has the transfer entered on the books of the corporation, is not liable to the corporation or its creditors for unpaid subscriptions. Cole v. Adams, 19 C. A. 607, 49 S. W. 1052.

The transferee of corporate stock directly to the corporation without the intervention of a trustee is not released from his liability on the stock. San Antonio Hardware Co. v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 1104.

Preferred stockholders.—Holders of preferred stock in a corporation, in the absence of statutory or contract provisions, are in the same position as to the corporation itself and to creditors as holders of common stock, except as to the preference right to dividends. Reagan Bale Co. v. Heuemann (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 238.

Bona fide shareholders in de facto corporation.—A charter on its face stated that two of those signing as corporation were residents of this state, and the secretary of state gave the necessary certificate to the articles of incorporation. None of the incorporators were citizens of this state, and upon that ground the charter was forfeited. While the corporation was in operation parties in good faith bought stock in it. It was held that a de facto corporation existed and bona fide shareholders were not responsible for its debts. American Salt Co. v. Heldenheimer, 80 T. 344, 15 S. W. 1038, 26 Am. St. Rep. 748.

Accrual of cause of action.—No cause of action against the subscribers ever accrues to the creditors until they have exhausted their remedy against the corporation. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

Liability of stockholders to creditors and to each other.—See Art. 1208.

Right to jury trial.—In a proceeding under this article to enforce payment by stockholders for unpaid subscriptions the stockholders are entitled to a jury trial upon paying the jury fee. McFarland v. Martin & Moodie (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 639.

Action and judgment.—It is not necessary for the plaintiff to set out the cause of action of the creditor against the corporation with the same particularity as would be required in an original suit by the creditor against the corporation to establish it. When claims have been established by the court in the receivership proceedings, an allegation of that fact conclusively showed the liability of the corporation for them. Mathis v. Pridham, 1 C. A. 58, 20 S. W. 1015.

A judgment should not be rendered against a receiver after his discharge. Railway Co. v. Wylie (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 771.

Art. 1199. [672] [596] Secretary shall furnish names, etc., of stockholders to plaintiff.—The secretary or other officer having charge of the books of any corporation, on demand of the plaintiff in any execution against the corporation, his agent or attorney, shall furnish such plaintiff, his agent or attorney with the names and places of residence of the stockholders as far as known, and the amount of stock held by each, as shown by the books of the corporation. [P. D. 5961.]

Art. 1200. [670] [594] Directors liable for debts of corporation, when and to what extent.—If the directors of any corporation shall knowingly declare and pay any dividend when the corporation is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, they shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the corporation then existing, and for all debts of the corporation which thereafter, during the time such directors respectively remain in office, shall be contracted. The amount for which they shall be so liable shall not exceed the amount of such dividend; and if any of the directors shall be absent at the time of declaring the dividend, or shall object thereto, at the time such dividend is declared, and shall file their objections in writing with the secretary or other officer of the corporation having charge of the books, they shall be exempted from said liability. [Acts 1874, p. 120. Acts 1871, 2 S. S., p. 66. Acts 1893, p. 123. P. D. 5959.]

In general.—As to liability of directors of an insolvent corporation, see Nenney v. Waddill, 25 S. W. 308, 6 C. A. 244.

Where corporation transferred its assets to its president to pay debts, and it distributed a surplus among the stockholders without payment of plaintiff's claim, judgment against him personally is proper. Carter v. Forbes Lithograph Mfg. Co., 23 C. A. 649, 56 S. W. 227.

A party charging that the officers of a corporation had misapplied certain corporate funds, which should have been in part applied to his claim against the corporation, must, in order to recover against such officers as individuals show what part of such funds should have been applied to his claim. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 185. 637

INSOLVENT CORPORATIONS

Art. 1201. Unlawful for insolvent corporations to do business in state.

Art. 1202. Attorney general, etc., to bring quo warranto, etc., to forfeit charter or cancel permit; receiver, payment of indebtedness as affecting suit, etc.

Article 1201. Unlawful for insolvent corporations to do business in state.—It shall be unlawful for any insolvent corporation, domestic or foreign, to do business in this state, or to exercise or retain any franchise or permit or charter granted from or by the state. [Acts 1907, p. 341, sec. 1.]

Art. 1202. Attorney general, etc., to bring quo warranto, etc., to forfeit charter or cancel permit; receiver, payment of indebtedness as affecting suit, etc.—It is hereby made the duty of the attorney general of this state, when convinced that any corporation is insolvent, to institute quo warranto or other appropriate proceedings in some court of competent jurisdiction, either in Travis county or in any other county in which said corporation may be sued, to forfeit its charter, if a domestic corporation, and to cancel its permit, if a foreign corporation.

It shall be the duty of the several district and county attorneys of this state, to bring and prosecute the proceedings mentioned above whenever directed so to do by the attorney general of Texas; and the court trying said cause, after the corporation has been shown to be insolvent, may, in its discretion, appoint a receiver or receivers for said corporation and all its properties, with full power to settle its affairs, collect its outstanding debts and divide the moneys and other properties belonging to said company among the stockholders thereof, after paying the debts due and owing by such corporation, and all expenses incident to the judicial proceedings and receivership; and the court may continue the existence of such corporation for three years, and for such further reasonable time as may be necessary to accomplish the objects and purposes of this act. [Id. sec. 2.]

If any suit authorized by this article has been instituted the same shall be dismissed at the cost of the defendant; or, if not instituted, the same shall not be begun, if the defendant corporation, through its stockholders, shall pay off its indebtedness or reduce the same by paying, so that it is relieved of insolvency. [Id. sec. 4.]
tions within three years should be anything more than a cause for dissolution of the corporation. It was not intended that default on the part of the corporation should ipso facto dissolve the corporation. Article 1205 prescribes how a corporation is dissolved. Reed v. Sampson, 64 C. A. 552, 115 S. W. 750, 751.

Remedies of creditor.—A dilatory creditor may pursue the remedies provided by law for the collection of his debt. The insolvency of a corporation does not prevent a levy upon its property to satisfy a judgment. Harrison v. Quay (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 836.

Claims against insolvent corporation enforced, how.—A claim against an insolvent corporation can only be enforced in a proceeding wherein all the creditors are parties. College Park Electric Belt Line v. Ide, 15 C. A. 272, 40 S. W. 64.

A party foreseeing assessment lien held entitled to an order of sale, though in the meantime the property had been sold by receiver under foreclosure of another lien in another court, the receivership being closed. Houston City St. Ry. Co. v. Storee (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 693.

A person’s claim for injuries inflicted by an insolvent corporation, though not reduced to judgment, is an equitable lien on its property, constituting its officers trustees thereof for his benefit. Scott v. Farmers’ & Merchants’ Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

Purchaser of property not liable, when.—A purchaser of the property of an insolvent corporation under foreclosure proceedings held not responsible for liabilities of the corporation. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 324.

Directors of insolvent bank liable, when—See also, Art. 544.

The directors of a banking corporation are personally liable at the suit of an individual depositor for damages sustained by reason of the insolvency of the corporation, when the depositor is induced to place money in the hands of the corporation solely by representations of solvency made to the general public by the directors. Seale v. Baker, 70 T. 283, 7 S. W. 742, 8 Am. St. Rep. 592.

Appointment and powers of receiver.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 21.

Art. 1203. Stockholders or creditors may sue to dissolve when; by leave of court, with notice, etc.—Stockholders of any insolvent corporation who own twenty-five per cent of its stock, or creditors of any such insolvent corporation who own twenty-five per cent of its indebtedness, may institute and prosecute a suit for the dissolution of such corporation; provided, that before any petition is filed by either the attorney general, or under his authority, or by stockholders or creditors, as provided in this chapter, leave therefor shall be first granted by the presiding judge of the court in which the proceeding is to be instituted; and, on presentation of any petition, it shall be the duty of such judge, before granting leave to file the same, to carefully examine the same; and he may also require an examination into the facts; and it shall be made to appear with reasonable certainty from said petition, or from the petition and the facts, as the case may be, that the relief sought should be granted; and it is further provided that any such corporation proceeded against shall have ten full days notice prior to the day set for the hearing, on an application for the appointment of a receiver. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1204. Rights and remedies cumulative.—The rights and remedies given by this chapter are cumulative, and shall not affect, change or repeal any other remedies or rights now existing in this state for the enforcement, payment or collection of fines, forfeitures and penalties. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER TEN
DISSOLUTION OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS

Art. 1205. Corporation is dissolved, how.

Art. 1206. Unless receiver appointed, president etc., to be trustees, and close business.

Art. 1207. Trustees responsible to creditors, etc., to what extent.

Art. 1208. Liability of stockholders to creditors and to each other.

Art. 1209. Stockholder may compel contribution.

Art. 1210. Only liable for unpaid stock.

Art. 1211. Members or officers of defunct corporation not to do business under old corporate name, etc.

Article 1205. [680] [604] Corporation is dissolved, how.—A corporation is dissolved:

1. By expiration of the time-limited in its charter.
2. By a judgment of dissolution rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction.

3. Where four-fifths in interest of all the stock outstanding shall vote in favor of a dissolution at a stockholders' meeting called for that purpose on notice signed by a majority of the directors, stating time, place and object of the meeting, served personally, or by mail, at least thirty days next before the meeting. If, at said meeting, four-fifths in interest of all the stockholders of said company shall signify their consent in writing to the dissolution of the corporation, such consent in writing, together with a list of the directors and officers of the company, giving postoffice address and place of residence of each, certified by the president and secretary and treasurer as true and correct action of the stockholders, shall be filed with the secretary of state; or when, without a stockholders' meeting, all the stockholders of the corporation consent in writing to a dissolution, the same shall be certified to as above and filed with the secretary of state. When any such certificate as above mentioned is filed with the secretary of state, he shall issue a certificate that such consent has been filed and that the corporation is dissolved; and said officer shall so note on the ledger in his office. [Acts 1907, p. 311, sec. 4. P. D. 5968.]

4. A corporation is dissolved whenever, under any special provision of law, its charter is forfeited without judicial ascertainment.

5. Where a corporation created under this title or a general law of this state shall fail to commence active operations within three years after filing its charter with the secretary of state, its charter is hereby forfeited, and the corporation is dissolved. [P. D. 5969.]

6. Whenever a corporation upon proper judicial ascertainment is found to be insolvent.

Acts of incorporators.—March 1, 1883, four persons formed a corporation. Each member paid into the stock $10,000. No certificates of stock were issued, and nothing more was paid in nor anything withdrawn. The business was “buying, selling, raising and breeding cattle,” etc., and was carried on in Mexico. Regular meetings were held for several years. February 1, 1884, the incorporators made an agreement which recited that they had equally invested $60,000 in cattle in Coahuila, describing them, and each agreed to be equally responsible for all expenses, etc., and equally interested in profits. It was held that the corporation continued to exist, and the members were not liable as partners. Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 T. 50, 17 S. W. 1043.

Evidence in a suit to vacate a decree foreclosing a vendor's lien on land conveyed to a corporation by its president examined, and held to show that the corporation had not forfeited its right to act as such, and that it was the proper party plaintiff, and not the administrator or heirs of the president. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 597.

Expiration of time limited.—The legal existence of corporations and associations formed for a limited period of time terminate ipso facto on the expiration of the time, without action on the part of those in charge of its business affairs. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 491.

Judicial decree.—Where a corporation was dissolved by judicial decree an employé's right of action for services was against such trustees. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Nicolini (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 84.

Actions by or against corporation after dissolution.—Upon the dissolution of a private corporation all actions at law against it abate. The statutes of this state do not provide for the further prosecution of an action at law against a foreign corporation, after its dissolution, against the legal representative. It would seem that a suit at equity abated by such dissolution might be revived. Limitation will run against a bill of revivor to make proper parties, such existing, who represented the defunct corporation and who could be made parties. Life Association v. Goode, 71 T. 36, 8 S. W. 639.

Corporation, after dissolution, held to have no power to maintain trespass to try title. Baldwin v. Johnson, 95 T. 85, 65 S. W. 171.

Stockholders in foreign corporation, after dissolution, held empowered to bring trespass to try title. Id.

A corporation could not sue after it had been dissolved and a receiver appointed for it. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

Forefeitures—Grounds.—Facts held sufficient to warrant a revocation of a corporation charter for having entered into a combination in restraint of trade, in violation of the anti-trust law. Crystal Ice & Manufacturing Co. v. State, 23 C. A. 293, 56 S. W. 582.

Proceedings to enforce.—In a proceeding for the forfeiture of a corporation's charter, where corporation violated anti-trust law of 1895, a contention that such act was accepted as part of the contract under which the charter was granted, and that its violation authorized a cancellation of the charter, though the act was unconstitutional, is without merit. State v. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1048.

Appointment of receiver.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 21.
receiver is appointed by some court of competent jurisdiction, the president and directors or managers of the affairs of the corporation at the time of its dissolution, by whatever name they may be known in law, shall be trustees of the creditors and stockholders of such corporation, with full power to settle the affairs, collect the outstanding debts, and divide the money and other property among the stockholders, after paying the debts due and owing by such corporation at the time of its dissolution, as far as such money and property will enable them after paying all just and reasonable expenses; and to this end, and for this purpose, they may, in the name of such corporation, sell, convey and transfer all real and personal property belonging to such company, collect all debts, compromise controversies, maintain or defend judicial proceedings, and to exercise the full power and authority of said company over such assets and properties; and the existence of every corporation may be continued for three years after its dissolution from whatever cause for the purpose of enabling those charged with the duty to settle up its affairs; and, in case a receiver is appointed by a court for this purpose, the existence of such corporation may be continued by the court so long as in its discretion it is necessary to suitably settle up the affairs of such corporation. [Id. sec. 7.]

Application.—This is the only statute that provides that the president and board of directors of a corporation shall be trustees and take possession of the property of the corporation and such provision is made only in the case of a dissolution, and does not apply in case of a forfeiture of the charter by the judgment of a court. If this article could apply in cases where there has been a forfeiture of the charter by the state it can only apply when no receiver has been appointed by some court of competent authority. San Antonio Gas Co. v. State, 22 C. A. 118, 54 S. W. 389.

Rights of creditors.—A creditor of a corporation may pursue the remedies provided by law for the collection of his debts, and subject its property to their payment. Florshelm Bros. v. Wettermark, 10 C. A. 162, 50 S. W. 505. And when one or more of the directors die the survivors take the whole property subject to the trust. Aldridge v. Pardoe, 69 S. W. 791.

Where a corporation is dissolved the property belonging thereto passes to the directors to be held by them for the benefit of corporation creditors. Id.

Dissolution pending receivership.—If a corporation is dissolved pending the receivership, the receiver would continue to enjoy the easements of the corporation, and upon sale its franchises necessary to the use of the property vest in the purchaser. City Water Co. v. State, 88 T. 600, 32 S. W. 1933.

Effect of dissolution.—A sale of land on execution, levied after the dissolution of a corporation, under a judgment rendered before dissolution, passes no title. Aldridge v. Pardoe, 24 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 789.

Rights of commissioners, etc., of foreign corporation.—Commissioners appointed by stockholders of a foreign corporation to wind up affairs held to have no power to bring trespass to try title. Baldwin v. Johnson, 95 T. 85, 65 S. W. 171.

Art. 1207. [683] [607] Trustees responsible to creditors, etc., to what extent.—The trustees mentioned in the preceding article shall be severally responsible to the creditors and stockholders of such corporation to the extent of its property and effects that shall have come into their hands. [P. D. 5971.]

Art. 1208. [684] [608] Liability of stockholders to creditors and to each other.—If any corporation created under this title or any general statute of this state, except railway, or charitable or religious corporations, be dissolved, leaving debts unpaid, suit may be brought against any person or persons who were stockholders at the time of such dissolution, without joining the corporation in such suit; and if judgment be rendered and execution satisfied, the defendant or defendants may sue all who were stockholders at the time of dissolution for the recovery of the portion of such debt for which they were liable; and the execution upon the judgment shall direct the collection to be made from property of each stockholder respectively; and if any number of stockholders defendants in the case shall not have property enough to satisfy his or their portion of the execution, then the amount of deficiency shall be divided equally among all the remaining stockholders, and collections made accordingly, deducting from the amount a sum in proportion to the amount of stock owned by the plaintiff at the time the company dissolved. [P.
D. 5972.]

Upon dissolution assets become trust fund for creditors.—Upon the dissolution of a company there is an equitable lien upon its property in the hands of the stockholders, or of persons taking with notice, in favor of the creditors of such corporation. Nor would the fact that the corporation has not been legally dissolved by law affect the principle upon the stockholders parceling out the property of the corporation among themselves, with the express agreement subjecting the property to its debts. Panhandle Natl. Bank v. Emery, 78 Tex. 488, 15 S. W. 22. When a private corporation ceases to do business its property is held by its directors as a trust fund for the benefit of all of its creditors, and is not subject to attachment.
A. 802; Rogers v. East Line Lumber Co., 111 Tex. 108, 23 S. W. 312.

The assets of a private trading corporation which has failed in business by reason of insolvency become a trust fund for the benefit of all of its creditors. Wright v.
Euless, 121 Tex. 133, 24 S. W. 392.

Rights and liabilities of stockholders.—See, also, Art. 1198 and notes.

Stockholders, on the dissolution of a domestic corporation, hold the corporate property as tenants in common after the payment of all debts. Ferrell v. Millican (Civ.
App.) 186 S. W. 239.

Art. 1209. [685] [609] Stockholder may compel contribution.—If any stockholder pay more than his due proportion of any debt of the corporation, he may compel contribution from the other stockholders by action. [P. D. 5973.]

Other provisions.—This article controls Art. 1328, post. Ferrier v. Knox County
(Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 896.

Art. 1210. [686] [610] Only liable for unpaid stock.—No stockholder shall be liable to pay debts of the corporation beyond the amount unpaid on his stock. [P. D. 5974.]

Art. 1211. Members or officers of defunct corporation not to do business under old corporate name, etc.—When any charter or permit heretofofore or hereafter granted under the laws of the state of Texas to any corporation to do business in said state shall have been forfeited, it shall be unlawful for any persons who were members or officers of said defect corporation at the time of such forfeiture to do business in Texas under the old corporate name of such corporation, or to use the same or like signs or advertisements which were used by such corporation before such forfeiture. [Acts 1905, p. 335.]

Article 1212. [713] [637] Powers and privileges of.—Any religious society, charitable, benevolent, literary, or social association (other than colleges, universities, academies or seminaries), and also any military or fire company, may, by the consent of a majority of its members, become a body corporate under this title, electing directors or trustees, and performing such other things as are directed in the case of other corporations; and when so organized shall have all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the restrictions in this title contained, for the objects named in the charter, and shall have the same power to make by-laws for the regulation of their affairs as other corporations. [Acts 1899, p. 236.]

In general.—A savings and loan association held not a mutual benefit association. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 160.

Courts will give effect to action of church society in removing trustee from office for breach of trust, if done by proper proceedings. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Minority of members of church cannot depose trustees, at meeting held by them not regular business meeting, without notice to majority or to trustees to be removed. Id.

A person not a member of a church and a nonresident of the state may nevertheless be a trustee. Id.

A voluntary association will not be presumed, as a matter of law, to be governed by the commonly accepted parliamentary rules. Gipson v. Morris, 21 C. A. 645, 78 S. W. 82.

Constitutional provisions.—It is the purpose of the constitution to forbid the use of public funds for the support of any particular denomination of religious people, whether they be Christians or of other religions. Church v. Bullock, 104 T. 1, 100 S. W. 115, 16 L. R. A. (N. S.) 800.

The constitution of a religious denomination held to limit the powers of the church officials to those expressly given in the constitution. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

The constitution of a religious denomination held not to authorize its general governing body to form a union with another religious denomination having the same or similar form of government, doctrine, and standards. Id.

The constitution of a religious denomination held not to confer on its governing bodies the power to introduce such fundamental changes as will operate to impair the integrity of the organization or affect its legal identity. Id.

Where the power to alter or amend any of the provisions of the written constitution of a voluntary religious association is delegated to any of the officers of the association, there is the implied qualification that it shall be used in the furtherance of the objects for which the association was formed and in harmony with its general plan of organization. Id.

Membership in general.—Where the fellowship of an independent religious society has been withdrawn from a member at a regular meeting of the church conference, he is no longer a member, and has no vote at a subsequent meeting. Gipson v. Morris, 35 C. A. 645, 73 S. W. 85.

When one becomes a member of a voluntary religious association, he subscribes to all of its rules and regulations, and consents to the exercise of such powers as have been conferred on its managing officers, and is bound thereby in the future conduct of its affairs. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Remaining members of a lodge of Masons, sufficient in number to constitute a lodge under the laws of the grand lodge, held entitled to the property of the local lodge as against withdrawing members. Minor v. St. John's Union Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Ancient York Masons (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 892.

A majority of a local lodge of Masons owing allegiance to a grand lodge cannot dissolve its property to other purposes, so long as enough loyal members remain to constitute a lodge under the laws of the grand lodge. Id.

Where a subordinate lodge of Masons existed under a charter of a grand lodge, and a certificate of removal was signed by trustees for its benefit, the title was held for the lodge itself, and not for its individual members. Id.

A member of a lodge of Masons, on ceasing to be such, parts with his interest in real estate held by trustees for the benefit of the lodge. Id.

In an action against a beneficial association for injuries, where the tripping of plaintiff was not a part of the ceremony, but an independent act of some one in the temple, the association was not liable. Grand Temple and Tabernacle of Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 173.

Meetings and elections.—A fraudulent or arbitrary ruling on a vote by a presiding officer of a voluntary association will not be upheld. Gipson v. Morris, 21 C. A. 645, 73 S. W. 82.

Decision of the presiding officer of a church, from which no appeal was taken, that the body stood adjourned, held conclusive on the church, and could not be reviewed by the courts. Gipson v. Morris, 36 C. A. 290, 83 S. W. 225.

Officers and committees.—The general powers of church officers held not materially different from those exercised by the managing directors of private corporations. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

When church officers undertake to make fundamental alterations in the organization affecting the entire membership and their status, the civil courts will ascertain the authority of the officers, when called in question by the proper parties and in proper proceedings. Id.

Courts will inquire into the authority of officers of religious societies where a property right depends thereon. Id.

An officer of an unincorporated church who signed a contract in his official capacity held liable individually regardless of his intention to become so. Summerhill v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 402.

An unincorporated church organization is not liable on its contracts, and for that reason an officer of such an organization who signs one is not liable in his official capacity. Id.

Subordinate bodies.—The regulations adopted by a religious denomination pursuant to its authority held valid and enforceable as against the subordinate bodies and members. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Ecclesiastical tribunals.—Actions and declarations by a Baptist council, an association and a convention, held not conclusive on a majority of a congregation as to whether it was the true church. Jarrell v. Sproles, 20 C. A. 257, 40 S. W. 904.

Under Cumberland Presbyterian constitution, the general assembly of the church held to have power to determine whether it was authorized by the constitution to unite with another church, their decision will not be reviewed by the civil court. Brown v. Clark, 102 T. 223, 116 S. W. 369, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 670.

A local church, being a member of the church organization of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, held bound by the orders and judgments of the courts of the church. Id.

The decision of the general assembly of a church that its confession of faith was the same as that of another church so that they could unite held binding upon the civil courts, so that a member could not object to the union of the churches on the ground that the confessions of faith were different, or that one church admitted negroes and the other did not. Id.

Consolidation.—A union between two religious denominations held to involve the extinction of one of them, not binding on dissenting members. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

It is no part of the duty of civil courts to pass on the issue of expediency of union between religious bodies. Id.

The officers of one religious denomination held not entitled to unite with another denomination in such a manner as to terminate the temporal organization of the former denomination. Id.

An action of the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church held not legal fraud so as to vitiate the vote for union with the Presbyterian Church of the United States. Smith (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1633.

Members of the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, voting for union with the Presbyterian Church of the United States, held not entitled to urge that their votes were fraudulently procured. Id.

Dissolution.—Where a voluntary religious association began in a compact between the individuals composing it, must end by a dissolution or abandonment of that compact. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Not exempt from execution.—The property of a religious corporation organized to maintain a hospital is not exempt from execution, though the services of the hospital are given free to those who cannot pay, and all sums received for services are expended in the maintenance of the establishment, the payment of a mortgage debt and of an annual sum for the maintenance of the mother organization located in another state. Armendarez v. Hôtel Dieu (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1030.

Liability for injury to employee.—As to the liability of a religious society controlling an educational institution, see Trustees, etc., v. Hahn, 7 C. A. 249, 26 S. W. 755.

A religious corporation organized to operate a hospital is not exempt from liability for injury sustained by an employee through negligence chargeable to it, though money received in payment for services was expended in maintaining the institution for the benefit of the poor, to pay off a mortgage on its property, and to support its mother institution located in another state. Armendarez v. Hôtel Dieu (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1030.

Art. 1213. [713] [637] Directors, etc., not to usurp spiritual functions.—Such directors or trustees shall not usurp or exercise the functions of the officers in charge of the spiritual affairs of any society. [Id.]

Not to usurp spiritual functions.—The officers of a religious corporation cannot usurp the power or exercise the functions of the officers in charge of the spiritual affairs of a religious society. Cranfill v. Hayden, 22 C. A. 666, 55 S. W. 590.

Art. 1214. Certain orders may incorporate how.—The grand lodge of Texas, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, the grand Royal Arch chapter of Texas, the grand commandery of Knights Templars of Texas (Masonic); the grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Texas, and other like institutions and orders organized for charitable or benevolent purposes may, by the consent of their respective bodies, expressed by a resolution or otherwise, become bodies corporate under this title. [Id.]

Transaction between community and lodge.—Effect of a transaction between a community and a lodge respecting the construction and use of a building on the lodge's land, stated. Rhodes v. Maret (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 493.

Art. 1215. Incorporation of grand body to include what; rights of subordinate bodies.—The incorporation of any such grand body shall include all of its subordinate lodges, or bodies holding warrant or charter under such grand body; and each of such subordinate bodies shall have all the rights of other corporations under and by the name given it in such warrant or charter issued by the grand body to which it is attached, such rights being provided for in the charter of the grand body. [Id.]

Art. 1216. Grand and subordinate bodies may elect their own trustees, etc., other powers.—Such grand bodies and their subordinates may elect their own trustees or directors, or name certain of their officers as 644 such, and perform such other acts and things as are directed or provided by law in the case of other corporations, and shall have full power to make constitutions and by-laws for the government and regulation of their affairs. [Id.]

Art. 1217. May acquire and hold land and personalty necessary for sites, etc., sell, mortgage, etc.—Such institutions or orders, grand and subordinate, as are mentioned or included within this chapter shall have the right to acquire and hold such lands and personalty as may be necessary or convenient for sites upon which to erect buildings for their use and occupancy, and for homes and schools for their widows, orphans or aged or decrepit or indigent members, and to sell or mortgage the same, such conveyances to be executed by the presiding officer, attested by the secretary and the seal; but the power and authority of such subordinate bodies to sell or to mortgage shall be subject to such conditions and prerequisites as may be from time to time prescribed or established by the grand body to which the subordinate is attached. [Id.]

Property and funds.—Conveyances to trustees for the benefit of a church of a particular faith held made for the benefit of the congregation for whose benefit the conveyance was made, may be conveyed by any persons so far as the grantors were concerned. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

The right of property conveyed to a church belonging to a particular denomination held to depend on the right of succession. Id.

Questions of government and control of property of church having congregational form of government are determined by the will of the numerical majority of its members. Stogner v. Laird (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 644.

Mortgage.—A defectively executed mortgage of church property, recognized by church as legal, held enforceable. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Diversion.—Where property was conveyed on condition that it should be used for a particular religious faith, the courts will prevent diversion of the property from such purpose. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 431.

Effect of change of doctrine or discipline.—The adoption by a congregation of a new doctrine cannot, in the absence of evidence of its principles, be regarded as a heterodoxy. Jarrell v. Sproles, 20 C. A. 357, 49 S. W. 904.

Whereas there was imposed on church property to be used for the support of any particular dogma, the courts will not imply such a trust for the purpose of compelling members from the use who have changed their articles of faith. First Baptist Church of Paris v. Fort, 93 T. 216, 54 S. W. 892, 49 L. R. A. 617.

Title and possession of church property of an independent church should be awarded to authorities entitled thereto under constitution of church, irrespective of adherence to theological doctrines. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Effect of division of church.—Though in the minority, the members of a church who were to its original doctrine are entitled to property dedicated before the schism at which the majority of the members forsaketh the doctrine. Peace v. First Christian Church of McGregor, 20 C. A. 85, 48 S. W. 534.

In a church governed on the principle of congregational sovereignty, a division carries with it the control of property vested in the deacons for the use of the church. Jarrell v. Sproles, 20 C. A. 357, 49 S. W. 904.

A minority of church members, after forming another organization because the majority have abandoned the original articles of faith, held not entitled to obtain possession of church property. First Baptist Church of Paris v. Fort, 93 T. 215, 54 S. W. 892, 49 L. R. A. 617.

Minority, who leave church because majority have abandoned religious tenets of the church, are not entitled to possession of church property. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

Where a voluntary society becomes separated into two bodies as a result of a vote at a meeting, the rights of each body will depend on which had a majority of the members at that time. Gipson v. Morris, 31 C. A. 645, 73 S. W. 55.

The rule that title to church property of a divided congregation is in that part which adheres to the original organization held subject to a designated qualification. Clark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 421.

Members of a church held entitled to the property held in trust for the church as against the claims of other members. Id.

Where the Cumberland Presbyterian Church was united with the Presbyterian Church of the United States by the lawful action of the tribunals of the former church, property of a local church of the Cumberland Church, deeded to the local church before the union, held to belong to those members of the local church who recognized the authority of the Presbyterian Church of the United States. Brown v. Clark, 102 T. 323, 116 S. W. 306, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 670.

Conflict between factions of church held not required to be authorized and entered into by a majority of all the members. Bottom v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 523.

One of two divisions or factions of a church is not entitled to enjoin the other faction from exercising control of church property, unless the factions were divided in opinion, or unless one or both had effected an organization claiming to be the original organization. Stogner v. Laird (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 644.

Jurisdiction of courts to determine rights of property.—Each member of a church organization is the equal of every other member, and has the absolute right, which the courts will protect, to have the property controlled and administered according to its organic plan, and to participate in its affairs in harmony therewith. Clark v. Brown (Civil App.) 168 S. W. 421.

In disputes between factions of religious societies, the civil courts can determine only those affecting property rights, and ecclesiastical or doctrinal questions will be inquired into only so far as to determine such rights. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civil App.) 156 S. W. 1146.

— Actions.—In a suit against the minority faction of a church to obtain control of the church property, evidence held to show that the rules of a certain work on parliamentary law were customarily used by the church. Gipson v. Morris, 88 C. A. 593, 88 S. W. 226.

Evidence, in an action for an injunction, held sufficient to show that plaintiffs, claiming as trustees of a church had been elected by an affirmative vote at an authorized convention of the church. Stogner v. Laird (Civil App.) 146 S. W. 644.

Contracts and indebtedness.—In an action involving the right to the property of a religious association, defendants, who were in possession, held entitled to borrow money necessary for its maintenance and protection pending determination of the action. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civil App.) 156 S. W. 1104.

Art. 1218. Subordinate bodies subject to grand, etc.—Such subordinate bodies shall, at all times, be subject to the jurisdiction and control of their respective grand bodies, and subject to have their warrants or charters revoked by such grand body. [Id.]

Relation between grand and subordinate bodies.—The relation neither of master and servant nor principal and agent held to exist between the grand body of a beneficial association and members of a subordinate temple in inquiring an injury while acting outside of its authority and not in furtherance of its business. Grand Temple and Tabernacle of Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Johnson (Civil App.) 135 S. W. 173.

Art. 1219. On demise of subordinate body property vests in grand body, subject, etc.—Upon the demise of any subordinate body so incorporated, all property and rights existing in such subordinate body shall pass to, and vest in, the grand body to which it was attached, subject to the payment of all debts due by such subordinate body; but the grand body shall never be liable for any sum greater than the actual cash value of the effects of such subordinate actually received by it, or its authority. [Id.]

Art. 1220. Grand body may loan certain funds, take liens on real estate, etc.—Any grand body incorporated under this chapter shall have the right and authority to loan any funds held and owned by it for charitable purposes, for the endowment of any of its institutions or otherwise, and may secure such loans by taking and receiving liens on real estate, or in such other manner as it may elect; and upon sale of any real estate under such lien, such grand body may become the purchaser thereof and hold title thereto. [Id.]

Art. 1221. Grand body may provide in charter, what, etc.—Any grand body incorporating under this chapter may provide in its charter for the expiration of its corporate powers at the end of any given number of years; or it may provide in its charter for its perpetual existence, and by its corporate name have perpetual succession of officers and members. [Id.]

Art. 1222. Rights of grand body now chartered.—Any such grand body or subordinate body now having a valid chartered existence may continue under its present charter, or reincorporate under this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 1223. Franchise tax not required.—Bodies incorporated under this chapter shall not be subject to, or required to, pay a franchise tax. [Id.]

Art. 1224. [714] [638] Not required to state capital stock in charter.—No religious, literary, social, scientific, industrial, benevolent or other society, association, company, corporation or institution that does not have a capital stock will be required in its charter to make any statement of the amount of capital stock or amount of each share; but such charter, if it contains the other statements therein required, and also an estimate of the value of the goods, chattels, lands, rights and credits owned by the corporation will be sufficient. [P. D. 6001.]
CHAPTER TWELVE
EDUCATIONAL CORPORATIONS

Art. 1225. Faculty of, and their powers. The president, professors or principals shall constitute the faculty in academy, college or university corporations, and shall have power to enforce the rules and regulations enacted by the directors or trustees for the government and discipline of the students, and to suspend and expel offenders, as may be deemed necessary. [P. D. 5994.]

Art. 1226. Directors, etc., may make by-laws, etc.—The directors or trustees named in the charter, as required by this title, of any college, academy, university or other corporation to promote education, and their successors, may make all necessary by-laws, elect and employ officers, provide for filling vacancies, appoint and remove professors, teachers, agents, etc., and fix their compensation, confer degrees, and do and perform any and all necessary acts to carry into effect the objects of the corporation. [P. D. 5995.]

Art. 1227. May procure shops, etc., for manual labor purposes.—Such corporations may procure, to be used as a part of the course of education, shops, tools and machinery, land for agricultural purposes, and necessary buildings for carrying on their mechanical and agricultural operations. [P. D. 5996.]

Art. 1228. May convert property into stock or scholarships.—Any such corporation may convert its property, except when held upon some special trust, into stock or scholarships, and file a certificate of their action, as required in the case of an increase of capital stock of a corporation. Such conversion can only take place by the consent of a majority of the stockholders. [P. D. 5997.]

Payment of tuition with stock of corporation.—A receipt of its own stock by a solvent college corporation in payment of a debt for tuition is a valid payment, though it is invalid if made after the insolvency of the corporation. Roach v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 806.

Art. 1229. Limitation as to debts and liability of directors.—The directors of any such corporation, whose property is held not as stock, but upon trust or devise, donation, gift or subscription, shall not contract debts beyond the means of the corporation. If they do contract debts to a larger amount, they shall be held individually liable for the same, after the means of the corporation are exhausted. [P. D. 5998.]

Art. 1230. May change location, etc.—Any such corporation may, by a vote of three-fourths of the directors, or if the same is owned in shares of stock, then by a vote of three-fourths of the stockholders, change the location and name of the institution, and transfer the effects thereof to where removed, or may apply the property thereof to other purposes of education than those named in the original charter filed with the secretary of state. [P. D. 5999.]
CHAPTER THIRTEEN

TELEGRAPH CORPORATIONS

Art. 1231. [698] [622] May set poles, etc., across public roads. —Corporations created for the purpose of constructing and maintaining magnetic telegraph lines are authorized to set their poles, piers, abutments, wires and other fixtures along, upon and across any of the public roads, streets and waters of this state, in such manner as not to inconvenience the public in the use of such road, streets and waters. [P. D. 5984.]

Construction and application.—This article applies to telephone as well as telegraph lines. C. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph & Telephone Co., 16 C. A. 599, 45 S. W. 161; City of Texarkana v. S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co., 48 C. A. 15, 106 S. W. 916; City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 709.

The above article does not embrace a cause of action that accrued to a corporation at a time when it did no business in this state. Whitely v. General Electric Company, 18 C. A. 674, 45 S. W. 959.

This and article 1232 apply to like proceedings by telephone companies organized under article 1121, subd. 6, authorizing corporations for the construction of telegraph and telephone lines, for condemning lands for their use. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co., 93 T. 313, 55 S. W. 117, 49 L. R. A. 459, 77 Am. St. Rep. 884.

Telephone companies are required to set their poles in and upon public streets in such manner as not to inconvenience the public in the use of the streets. The poles must not be so located as to be dangerous. Alice, Wade City & C. C. Telephone Co. v. Billingsley, 33 C. A. 452, 77 S. W. 357; South Texas Tel. Co. v. Tabb, 52 C. A. 213, 114 S. W. 449.

Since this article grants to telephone companies the right to construct their lines on city streets, subject to the city's right under article 1235 to regulate the manner of such construction, and to require alterations in the lines after they are constructed, a provision in a telephone company's franchise granted by a city operating under the general laws of the state, requiring it to pay money for the permission to establish its lines in the streets of the city, was unenforceable for lack of consideration. People's Home Telephone Co. v. Gainesville (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1044.

The power of control of its streets, with right to abate any encroachments thereon, given a city by article 1514, is subordinate to the power given telegraph and telephone companies to erect their lines in any city. The article submits only to the legislature to specify location and kind of poles, so that injunction against interference by the city with erection of telephone poles in streets does not divest the city of its right of possession of the street, such right having been granted the company by the state. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

Rights in and use of streets, roads, and other public places.—A telephone company held not entitled to restrain a house mover from moving wires temporarily to move a house in accordance with an ordinance. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1000.

Consent of municipality.—The erection of telephone lines along the streets of a city by its permission and with the consent of the state does not create a nuisance. The party injured can recover damages for the injury sustained, but the telephone line is not abatable as nuisances generally are, and but one recovery will be permitted. Brown v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., 17 C. A. 433, 44 S. W. 59.

A city having only right to designate where poles of a telephone company shall be located, and having by ordinance undertaken to do so, its council, by refusing to act on an application of a telephone company agreeing to comply with the ordinance, and any further suggestions of the company, waived its privilege as to the latter. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

Ordinances for use of streets in general.—A municipal ordinance providing for the issuance of permits for digging telephone pole holes at the discretion of the city marshals held void. City of Texarkana v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., 48 C. A. 16, 106 S. W. 915.

Application for permit.—That the application of a telephone company to a city council for a permit to erect poles in the street, referring to and offering to comply with all the ordinances on the subject, erroneously designated them as civil, instead of criminal, is immaterial. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

It is no ground, for a city refusing permit to a telephone company to erect poles in street, that it deposited, instead of money a certified check to cover any damages; that being equivalent to a deposit of money. Id.

A long-distance telephone company cannot be denied a permit to erect its poles in the streets of a town on the ground that it adopted only the civil ordinances of the town.
and deposited a certified check in lieu of money to cover any damages. City of Brownwood v. Tel. Co. (Sup.) 157 S. W. 1163.

Payment for use of streets or roads.—Where a franchise to construct a telephone line within a city was granted to plaintiff, who was E.'s assignee, and not to E., plaintiff was not estopped to dispute the validity of a provision imposing a gross earnings tax for the right to use the streets. People's Home Telephone Co. v. Gainesville (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1044.

Art. 1232. [699] [623] May enter upon lands, etc.—Such companies are also authorized to enter upon any lands, whether owned by private persons in fee or in any less estate, or by any corporation, whether acquired by purchase or by virtue of any provision in the charter of such corporation, for the purpose of making preliminary surveys and examinations with a view to the erection of any telegraph lines, and from time to time to appropriate so much of said lands as may be necessary to erect such poles, piers, abutments, wires and other necessary fixtures for a magnetic telegraph, and to make such changes of location of any part of said lines as may from time to time be deemed necessary, and shall have a right of access to construct said line, and when, and erected, from time to time as may be required, to repair the same, and may proceed to obtain the right of way and to condemn lands for the use of the corporation in the manner provided by law in the case of railway corporations. [Acts 1873, p. 123. P. D. 5985.]

Includes telephone companies.—The above article includes telephone companies, and they also have the right to appropriate the necessary land for their poles. Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Co. v. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 105. Telephone companies have the same rights and privileges that railroad companies have to a right of way upon lands along their poles, etc. Telephone and Telegraph Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (App.) 46 S. W. 477.

Property subject to appropriation. — A telegraph company held entitled to condemn for the erection of a telegraph line a right of way that had been previously condemned for the construction of a railroad. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 106.

A telegraph and telephone company can condemn property which has already been condemned and is in use by another corporation and use such property for its purposes, without showing that it is impractical to construct its line in any other way than along the property sought to be condemned. But the condemnation will not be allowed if it will practically destroy the use to which the property has already been devoted, unless the new use to be made of the property is of such great importance to the public that another public use of less importance shall be set aside for its benefit and that the new enterprise be accomplished in any other practical way. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. & Tel. Co. 92 T. 313, 55 S. W. 117, 49 L. R. A. 465, 77 Am. St. Rep. 884.

Damage. Liability to abutting owner.—A telephone line may have been by authority of law and with due care, yet, if its presence on the street causes or contributes to depreciation of "market value" of abutting property, the company is liable. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 193 T. 128, 124 S. W. 625.

An abutting lot owner has a right to grow trees on the sidewalk, and if damaged by telephone wires, contributing to depreciation of market value of property, the injuries should be considered as if caused by the structure. Id.

Additional use or burden. — Where telephone lines are constructed in a street, the structure is an additional burden. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 193 T. 128, 124 S. W. 627.

One acquiring property abutting on a street held entitled to recover damages to his property caused by the changes in telegraph and telephone lines in the street existing at the time of the purchase, thereby increasing the servitude. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 104 T. 258, 136 S. W. 1049.

Measure of.—The measure of damages to be paid by a telegraph company to a railroad for so much of its right of way as is needed by the former for its poles, etc., is to be measured by the extent which such use impairs the value of the use of the land by the railroad. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph and Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 86; Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 106; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Postad Tel. Cable Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 105; San Antonio & P. Ry. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 201; Texas Midland R. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 312.

The peculiar advantage to the telephone company from the use of the way is not an item of damage. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 106.

The cost of clearing the grass from the poles is not an item of damage. Id. 649
The expense to the railroad company in clearing the way should not be considered in estimating the damages. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 108.

The value of the use of the right of way to the telegraph company should not be considered in estimating damages. Id.

The railroad was not entitled to recover subsequent damages that might accrue through the maintenance of the line. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 212.

Measure of damages for construction of telegraph and telephone line in front of property stated. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithfield (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 942.

Jurisdiction of county court.—See notes under Title 25, Chapter 3.

Art. 1233. [700] [624] One company cannot contract to exclude another.—No corporation shall have power to contract with any owner of land for the right to erect and maintain a telegraph line over his lands to the exclusion of the lines of other companies. [P. D. 5986.]

Art. 1234. [701] [625] Company may own line in or out of state, and may join with other company.—Any corporation created as herein provided may contract, own, use and maintain any line or lines of telegraph, whether wholly within, or wholly or partly beyond, the limits of this state, and shall have power to lease or attach to the line or lines of such corporation other telegraph lines, by lease or purchase, and may join with any other corporation or association in constructing, leasing, owning, using or maintaining their line or lines, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the directors or managers of the respective corporations, and may own and hold any interest in such line or lines, or may become lessees thereof on such terms as the respective corporations may agree. [P. D. 5987.]

Explanatory.—The following article (1234a) purports to amend this article, but it would seem that it was intended to merely extend its provisions to local exchanges.

Does not apply to private line.—The right to lease conferred by statute is the power to acquire or join the lines of other corporations and does not apply to a line connecting a mill of a private person with the main line of the telephone company. American Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Kerah, 27 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 76.

Art. 1234a. [701] [625] Persons, firms and corporations owning local telephone exchange may purchase or join, etc.—Any person or firm or any corporation organized under the laws of the state of Texas owning a local telephone exchange whether wholly within, or partly beyond the limits of the state, shall have power to purchase and may join with any other individual, firm or corporation in constructing, leasing, owning, using, or maintaining any other local telephone exchange, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between such persons, or the directors, or managers of the respective corporations, and may own and hold any interest in such local telephone exchange or may become lessees thereof on such terms as the respective persons, firms or corporations may agree; provided; In the case of the purchase, lease or acquisition of one local telephone exchange by a company owning, another, when both systems are operating in the same incorporated city or town, the consent of such city or town shall be secured. [Acts 1913, p. 92, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 92, § 1, enacts that article 1234 be “amended, by article 1234a, which shall read as” above set forth. See note under Art. 1234.

Art. 1235. [702] [626] Cities, etc., may direct as to posts, etc.—The corporate authorities of any city, town or village through which the line of any telegraph corporation is to pass may, by ordinance or otherwise, specify where the posts, piers or abutments shall be located, the kind of posts that shall be used, the height at which the wires shall be run; and such company shall be governed by the regulations thus prescribed; and, after the erection of said telegraph lines, the corporate authorities of any city, town or village shall have power to direct any alteration in the erection or location of said posts, piers or abutments, and also in the height at which the wires shall run, having first given such company or its agents opportunity to be heard in regard to such alteration. [P. D. 5988.]
Art. 1236. Manner of consolidating telegraph company with another company.—Any telegraph company now organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of this state, may, at any regular meeting of the stockholders thereof, by vote of persons holding a majority of shares of the stock of such company, unite or consolidate with any other company or companies now organized, or which may hereafter be organized, under the laws of the United States, or of any state or territory, by the consent of the company with which it may consolidate or unite; and such company so formed may hold, use and enjoy all the rights and privileges conferred by the laws of Texas on companies separately organized under the provisions of this title, and be subject to the same liabilities. [P. D. 5989.]

Explanatory.—This article is amended by adding thereto Art. 1236a.

Art. 1236a. Consolidating telephone company with another company.—Any telephone company now organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of this state, owning a local telephone exchange may at any regular meeting of the stockholders thereof by vote of persons holding a majority of shares of the stock of such company, unite or consolidate such local exchanges with the local exchange of any other company or companies now organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of the United States, or of any state or territory by the consent of the company with which it may so consolidate or unite; and such company so formed may hold, use, and enjoy all the rights and privileges conferred by the laws of the state of Texas, on companies separately organized under the provisions of this Title, and be subject to the same liabilities. Provided; that where two or more local exchanges are operating in the same incorporated city or town, the consent of such city or town shall be secured for such consolidation. Provided further; in case of the purchase, lease, acquisition or consolidation of one local telephone exchange with another, when both systems are operating in the same incorporated city or town, the rates charged for local telephone service after such consolidation, shall not exceed the rates charged by the company charging the lowest rates in such city or town at the time of such purchase, lease, acquisition or consolidation, unless authorized by such city or town. [Acts 1913, p. 92, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 92, § 2, enacts that article 1236 be “amended by adding thereto article 1236a which shall read as” above set forth.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANIES

Art. 1237. Corporations owning or operating lines, etc., shall arrange for transfers, etc., as follows.

Art. 1238. Telephone companies, etc., shall connect lines at common points, how, etc.

Art. 1239. Telegraph companies, etc., shall

Art. 1240. City council, etc., to hear and determine whether transfers necessary and just, etc.

Art. 1241. Companies to comply with order of council, etc., or forfeit what provided, etc.; appeal, etc.

Article 1237. Corporations owning or operating lines, etc., shall arrange for transfers, etc., as follows.—All companies and corporations that own or operate telephone or telegraph lines for the purpose of transmitting messages from one point to another are hereby required to arrange for conversations or transfer of messages as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1907, S. S., p. 462.]

See Arts. 1234a, 1236a.
Art. 1238. Telephone companies, etc., shall connect lines at common points, how, etc.—All companies, individuals, firms or corporations doing a telephone business in this state shall be compelled to make physical connections between their toll line at common points, for the transmission of messages or conversations from one line to another; such connection to be made through the switchboard of such individuals, companies, firms or corporations, if any is maintained at such points, so that persons so desiring may converse from points on one of such lines to points on another. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1239. Telegraph companies, etc., shall transmit transferred messages, etc., when.—All telegraph companies or persons, firms, corporations or associations of persons, which are now, or shall hereafter be, engaged in the business of accepting and transmitting messages to and from different points in this state, where the use of a telegraph instrument or instruments is necessary in the conduct of such business, shall, if there be any other persons, firm, corporation or association engaged in such business at the same point or in the same town, city or village, provide means whereby all messages conveyed to such points over the lines of any such companies shall be transferred to the lines of either or all other such companies engaged in such business at such common points, and transmitted to their final destination; and such facilities shall be provided as will guarantee the transfer of such messages in compliance with the provisions of this chapter; provided, that in no case shall any message be transferred from one line to another against the will of the company first handling same when it is possible for such company to deliver said message direct to the party for whom it is intended by way of the line or lines operated and owned by said company; and provided, further, that no telegraph or telephone company shall, under the provisions of this chapter, be compelled to receive from the wires or lines of any other telegraph or telephone company and convey to its final destination any message originating at any point on its own lines. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1240. City council, etc., to hear and determine whether transfers be necessary and just, etc.—The city council in incorporated cities, and the commissioners’ court at points where there is no city council, shall, on the application of one hundred resident citizens, or upon its own motion, hear such evidence as they think necessary; and, upon a final hearing they shall determine whether or not it would be necessary for public convenience, and just to the telephone or telegraph companies, to make such connection or arrange for transfer of messages; whereupon they shall enter of record their findings, and shall also set out in their order the conditions upon which such arrangements for conversation or transfer of messages shall be made, and shall decide what proportion of expense shall be paid by each of said connecting lines. [Id. sec. 4.]

Validity.—The part of an order of a city council requiring a telephone company to maintain a connection with another company for transfer of messages being authorized by this article such part is valid, as regards right to recover the penalty prescribed by article 1241 for noncompliance therewith, even though the part of the order attempting to fix compensation on messages originating outside the city is void. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 604.

Art. 1241. Companies to comply with order of council, etc., or forfeit what; provided, etc., appeals, etc.—Whenever the city council or commissioners’ court shall enter an order in compliance with article 1239, requiring telephone or telegraph companies to arrange for conversation or transfer or [of] messages, it shall be compulsory on said company to arrange for such conversation or transfer of messages, and, failing to do so, shall forfeit to the state of Texas, on suit by the county or district attorney, the sum of ten dollars for each and every day they so neglect; provided, that the penalty herein assessed shall not be operative against a company which is prevented from making connections as herein required, through the fault or omission of another company, so long as such fault or omission shall cause such failure on its part to so connect; provided, further, that any company ordered to arrange for conversations or to transfer messages between its line and another line as herein provided shall have the right to appeal from such order to the court having jurisdiction over said matter, and the court shall, if it shall find that appellant had reasonable grounds for prosecuting such appeal, suspend the penalty herein provided for until such appeal is finally determined. [Id. sec. 5.]

Action for penalty.—It is not necessary for recovery from a telephone company of the penalty prescribed by this article that a message should have been offered for transmission. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 604.

Defenses.—It is no defense to an action for the penalty prescribed by this article that it has made unsuccessful efforts with the other company to arrange for a proper distribution of the compensation for handling messages; it being its duty to make the connection and leave the matter of distribution of compensation for future settlement. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 604.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

1-3. Regulation of rates and charges.—See Arts. 1018, 1025.

4. Injuries from construction or maintenance.—In an action against a telephone company by a railway employed for personal injuries by being struck by a telephone wire suspended across the railway track, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant was the owner of the telephone line. American Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Kersh, 27 C. A. 127, 68 S. W. 74.

1241. Inadequate service.-It is a sufficient defence to an action for damages arising from the failure to notify the address of the person to whom the message was sent of the time and exact location of delivery of the message to be that the time and location of delivery as given was a reasonable approximation of time and place, with no such error so making the time and location of delivery as given unreasonable as not to be a deliverable time and place. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Montague, 149 S. W. 600.
A telephone company, trimming trees which interfered with its wires, held liable in damages to Boone v. Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 74 S.W. 945.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries alleged to have been caused by the negligent placing of a telephone pole in the street, evidence held to show that the location of the pole was the proximate cause of the injuries. Alice v. C. & C. Telegraph Co. v. Evans, 54 C. A. 452, 77 S.W. 265.

Under the pleadings and evidence, held, that plaintiff was entitled to recover for injury from defendant's telephone wire striking his wagon as he was driving on a road, though the road at that point deviated from the regularly established road. Adams v. Weakley, 35 C. A. 271, 80 S.W. 411.

In action against a telephone company for injuries alleged to have been sustained by a fall over a wire negligently left in a street, proof held insufficient to raise the issue of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Telephone Co. v. Prince, 36 C. A. 462, 82 S.W. 327.

Whether a company is liable for injury to a telephone receiver, evidence held to show that defendant, in maintaining an instrument in the house of a patron for his use held required to maintain in connection with its wires and instruments approved lightning arresters. Southern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Evans, 54 C. A. 63, 116 W. 418.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries to the wife of a patron by lightning entering into the house through the company's failure to provide a proper lightning arrester, evidence held to justify a recovery. Id.

A telephone company held authorized to construct and maintain reasonably necessary guy wires to support its poles, provided it exercises ordinary care for the safety of pedestrians. City of Ft. Worth v. Williams, 55 C. A. 239, 119 S.W. 137.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries to a traveler by contact with a guy wire across a street, evidence held to justify a finding that he was free from contributory negligence. Texas Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 705.

In an action against a telephone company for injuries to a traveler by contact with a guy wire across a street, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence in the maintenance of the wire. Id.

A telephone and telephone company maintaining wires over the roof of a building held bound to exercise ordinary care to so maintain them as not to injure a third person. Farnand & Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 159 S.W. 849.

Whether a telephone company is liable for injury to a railway brakeman, struck while standing on a freight car by a wire suspended by the company over the railway tracks, depends upon whether the railway company authorized the wire to be so suspended. Western Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 826.

Company held not liable if it did not construct the line or control it. Id.

The company could not escape liability for the injury because it acted for a patron whose line was connected with the company's exchange. Id.

5. Damages.—In an action for trespass for the erection of a telephone pole on plaintiff's premises, which was removed before trial, plaintiff held entitled to recover only the costs of filling the hole and making the grass grow, and a nominal sum for the time the pole remained on the premises. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. White- man, 36 C. A. 163, 81 S. W. 76.

Plaintiff was not entitled to recover for loss of time expended in trying to get defendant to remove the pole. Id.

The wires having been removed before trial, plaintiff held not entitled to recover damages for the stringing of the wires; no injury having resulted therefrom. Id.

The owner of a lot held not entitled to recover exemplary damages for a trespass, consisting of the planting of a telephone pole on his lot; defendant not knowing it was private property. Id.

6. Sales of lines.—A contract for sale of telephone line held not to vest exclusive title in the buyers before the expiration of five years. Murphy v. Smith, Walker & Co., 35 C. A. 84, 84 S. W. 678.

7. What law governs.—The law of the state from which a telegram is sent for delivery in another state determines whether the addressee may recover for mental anguish for negligent delay in the delivery of the message at destination. Thomas v. Western Union Tel. Co., 35 C. A. 268, 61 S. W. 591; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wailer (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 264; Same v. Buchanan, 35 C. A. 437, 80 S. W. 591; Same v. Sloss, 45 C. A. 153, 109 S. W. 354; Ligon v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 45 C. A. 408, 102 S. W. 429; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Parsley, 55 C. A. 8, 121 S. W. 226; Same v. Young (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 513; Same v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1026.

Delay in delivering telegram occurring in Indian Territory held not to prevent suit for mental anguish under law of Texas. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Blake, 29 C. A. 224, 68 S. W. 836; Same v. Coogler, 32 C. A. 591, 69 S. W. 427.

When telegram message was delivered in Texas, to be sent to Indian Territory, held, that addressee might recover in Texas for mental anguish occasioned by delay in delivery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waller, 96 T. 589, 74 S. W. 731, 97 Am. St. Rep. 936.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message, a contention that the rights of the parties should be governed by the law of Texas held untenable, in view of the pleadings. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Christensen (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 744.

Proof of the law of New Mexico held not to defeat an action against a telephone company for mental anguish occasioned by the failure to promptly deliver a telegram tendered it in New Mexico for delivery in Texas. Western Union Tel. Co. v. McNairy, 34 C. A. 389, 78 S. W. 963.

A contract with a telegraph company for the transmission of a message held a Missouri contract, preventing the recovery by the addressee of damages for mental anguish in consequence of the nondelivery of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Garrett, 46 C. A. 439, 102 S. W. 456.
The validity of a provision printed on a telegraph message held by the law of the state from which the message was sent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Douglas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 488; Same v. Ashley (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1163.

Several telegrams held to constitute separate contracts, so that the Texas laws did not control the right to recover for nondelivery of one of the telegrams delivered for transmission in California. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1020.

Evidence in an action against a telegraph company for nondelivery of a message held under the laws of California, where the contract was made, plaintiff is not entitled to recover damages for mental anguish. Id.

A telegraph company in Texas, occupying the status of a connecting carrier for the transmission and delivery of a message to a point in Texas, held liable to the sendee for negligence, caused by failure to promptly deliver the message, though the contract for the original transmission of the message, made between the sender and another company in a sister state, was a contract governed by the laws of the sister state. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tice (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1673.

A telegraph company has a right to adopt reasonable hours for business. W. U. Telegraph Co. v. Wingate, 35 S. W. 459, 6 C. A. 294.

Evidence held insufficient to require a court to hold as matter of law that a rule of a telegraph company as to the delivery of messages was reasonable. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Luck (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 753.

A finding that office hours giving the public only 10 hours a day in which to send messages were unreasonable held unsustained. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 712.

Evidence as to rules of telegraph company with respect to closing its office on certain hours on Sunday reviewed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. McConnico, 27 C. A. 610, 66 S. W. 592.

Cer­

Certain regulation of telegraph company fixing office hours held reasonable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 717.

9. Contracts for service or facilities.—Evidence held not to show that a telegraph operator contracted to send a message without reference to office hours. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 712.

An operator at a receiving office had implied authority to contract with the sender of a message to rush it through and deliver it as soon as possible. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cook, 45 C. A. 87, 99 S. W. 1131.

Telegraph company held not bound by unauthorized contract of agent as to delivery of certain telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 717.

A contract for telephone service held to be from lease from month to month. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Luckett (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 866.

A telephone company held to have the right to discontinue telephone service for nonpayment of rent. Id.

A telephone company held to have no right to refuse service to a patron because of nonpayment of back rent. Id.

Facts held to prima facie show a contract by a telegraph company to correctly transmit a message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Saxon (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1091.

10. Charges.—See, also, Art. 1018 et seq.

A city held to have no power to regulate telephone rates as to subscribers living outside the city. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 88.

A telephone franchise construed, and held that business extension telephones and residence extension telephones cannot be counted in determining the number the company may install before it can increase its rates. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v.amping. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 635.

11. — Discontinuance of service for failure to pay.—Providing that bills for telephone service shall be due the first of the month after rendering of service held reasonable and legitimate regulation. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 88.

Where persons have refused to pay for telephone service, or it may reasonably be suspected they will refuse, held a telephone company has the right and duty under a city charter to refuse them service. Id.

12. Receipt and acceptance of messages.—Evidence held to justify a finding that the message was delivered to the telegraph company for transmission. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lyles (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 686.

Evidence held to show a message was delivered to the company's agent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Vanway (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 414.

A telegraph company, maintaining an office at New W., which was named on its books as W., held liable for damages resulting from a refusal to receive a message directed to New W. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Downs, 25 C. A. 597, 62 S. W. 1078.

Where company refused to receive a message, the fact that the sender's agent did not send a telegraph message held not to support an issue of contributory negligence. Id.

Where a telegraph company refused to receive a message for transmission because the agent stated that he was afraid to send it, the refusal could not be justified on the ground that the message was not written on one of the company's blanks. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 686.

A telegraph company must receive and transmit all proper messages presented to it with the amount necessary to pay for transmission. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 686; Same v. McDonald, 42 C. A. 529, 95 S. W. 691.

Damages held recoverable for failure to deliver a message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lück (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 753.

Telegraph company held not to have been negligent in failing to deliver telegram. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1033; Same v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 360; Same v. Cox (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 922.

The fact that the addresses of a telegraph message were temporarily absent from the town to which the message was sent held not sufficient to relieve the company from liability for its failure to deliver the message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hendricks, 25 C. A. 366, 63 S. W. 341.
A telegraph company held required to use ordinary care to transmit and deliver messages accepted by it for transmission. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1050; Same v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251; Same v. Stracner (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 845.

When a telegraph company had agreed to telephone one's residence on receipt of message, telephoning the residence on receipt of message to another in his care held a discharge of company's duty to the other. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 920.

A telegraph company held not entitled to rely solely on the address of a message, where it could obtain additional information by the exercise of due care. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 613.

In an action against a telegraph company for nondelivery of a message, evidence held insufficient to show sufficient delivery to hotel clerk. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Barefoot, 97 T. 159, 76 S. W. 914, 64 L. R. A. 491.

Evidence in an action for failure to deliver two telegrams held to authorize submission of failure to deliver the second one as a basis of recovery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ridenour, 85 C. A. 574, 80 S. W. 1038.

The fact that the addressee of a telegraph message was not at home when the message would have been delivered in the usual course under proper diligence held not to relieve receiving it did not understand the exercise of ordinary diligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cook, 45 C. A. 87, 99 S. W. 1331.

Where messages directed to a city were also further directed to a separate municipality to which messages were only delivered from the city, and addressees did not live in such municipality, the telegraph company held liable for nondelivery to them elsewhere within the delivery limits of the city. Klopf v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 100 T. 540, 101 S. W. 1072, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 485, 123 Am. St. Rep. 831.

A telegraph company held released of the duty of delivering a message to the addressee, to whom it was addressed, if the telegraph company negligence of the addressee received a foreign language, held not relieved from liability for negligent failure to deliver the message, because the agent receiving it did not understand the language. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Olivarru (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 688.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to secure an answer to a sick call over a long distance line, evidence held to support a verdict for plaintiff. Id.

A statement to an operator as to where plaintiff was likely to be found held not to relieve the telegraph company from exercising reasonable care in searching elsewhere. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. McCoy, 102 T. 446, 113 S. W. 88.

Where a telegraph company delivered a message at the Oriental Hotel, instead of in care of the Oriental Hotel Company, to which it was addressed, the telegraph company was negligent. American Telegraph Caball Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 733.

A telegraph company, receiving for transmission a message in a foreign language, held not relieved from liability for negligent failure to deliver the message, because the agent receiving it did not understand the language. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Redinger (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

The acceptance of a proposition held not to be in terms so as to create a binding contract of sale; thus relieving a telegraph company of liability for nondelivery of subsequent message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 145.

15. Delivery to person other than addressee.—A delivery or tender to the person to whose care a telegraph is sent is sufficient. Telegraph Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 315.

Though a telegram is directed in care of a third person, the company must use diligence to deliver to addressee. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Jackson, 19 C. A. 273, 46 S. W. 279.

Where a telegram was directed to the addressee, in care of a certain person, under a subscription held, it was to be delivered to the business partner of the latter did not fulfill the contract. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hendricks, 26 C. A. 366, 63 S. W. 341; Id. 29 C. A. 413, 65 S. W. 720.

Negligence in not having plaintiff's telegram delivered to the proprietor of the hotel at which he boarded, who was his agent to receive messages, held to be that of such agent, and not of the telegraph company. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Redinger (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

Delivery of a message by a telegraph company to the clerk of a hotel at which the addressee boards is not a sufficient compliance with its contract to deliver. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cobl, 98 T. 333, 67 S. W. 87, 58 L. R. A. 698, 93 Am. St. Rep. 862.

A telegraph company held liable for failure to deliver a message to a person in whose care it was sent for the benefit of another. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pearce, 95 T. 576, 68 S. W. 771.

In an action against a telegraph company for nondelivery of a message, evidence held not to show a special contract to deliver to another than addressee. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Barefoot, 97 T. 159, 76 S. W. 914, 64 L. R. A. 491.

Where a principal directed his agent to address messages to him, in care of a certain firm, he had the power to authorize another to receive and forward messages. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Barefoot, 97 T. 159, 76 S. W. 914, 64 L. R. A. 491.

A telegraph company held not excused for liability for delivering a telegram, though the address was inaccessible, when it was delivered to him in whose care it was addressed.

When a telegram is directed in the care of any one, a prompt delivery by the telegraph company to such person is a performance of the duty imposed by law. Johnson v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 814.

§ 1241.

CORPORATIONS—PRIVATE

(Title 25)

Rule which had not been enforced limiting free delivery district held no defense to failure to deliver telegram. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cain (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 824.

A company for delivering a telegram outside the free limits, where it made no demand therefor at sending or receiving office. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sweetman, 19 C. A. 435, 47 S. W. 676.

The sender of a telegram is not charged with notice that the place of delivery is outside the company’s “free limits,” and his right to recover for negligence in delivery does not depend on his offering extra pay for outside delivery. Id.

Even though the company notified the sender of a telegram that the place of delivery is outside its “free limits,” it assumes responsibility where it changes the point of delivery to within the free limits. Id.

Where the sender of a telegram guarantied any charges for delivery without free-delivery limits, the guarantee held not operative until the receiving office was notified guarantee had been received. Hargrave v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 677.

Agent of telegraph company held not to have used ordinary diligence in delivering a message beyond the free delivery limits. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1080.

Where a telegraph company contracted to deliver a message at a certain town, and charges were not paid for delivering it elsewhere, it was under no obligation to deliver it at addressee’s home, several miles from such town. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Swearingen (Tex. Sup.) 67 S. W. 767; 122 S. W. 341.

A telegraph company held liable for failure to deliver a telegram, though the addressee lived outside the free delivery limits. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davis, 30 C. A. 590, 71 S. W. 313.

Under a rule of a telegraph company providing that messages will be delivered free within a “radius” of one-half mile from the office, a straight line is meant, without regard to distance by the nearest traveled route. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Jennings, 98 T. 465, 84 S. W. 1056.

A telegraph company’s rule as to free delivery limits held binding on an addressee, unless unreasonable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 627, 93 S. W. 199.

A telegraph company held not bound to examine directories or make inquiries touching the residence of the addressees of certain messages outside the place named in the address. Kopp v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 829.

A telegraph company held liable for failure to deliver a telegram outside the free delivery limits in a reasonable time, where an extra charge for delivery outside said limits was paid by the sender when demanded. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ayres, 47 C. A. 557, 105 S. W. 1165.

Where the addressee of a telegram lives beyond the free delivery limits, and the telegraph company demands payment or security of an extra delivery charge, it may refuse immediately, unless the message is paid or guaranteed. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Sup.) 148 S. W. 284.

Regulation of telegraph company establishing free delivery limits held binding, unless abandoned or waived. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 789.

The non-delivery of messages in violation of a rule fixing free delivery limits is not an abandonment of the company’s rule, when such delivery is made without the company’s knowledge. Id.

A telegraph company was not justified in abandoning all efforts to deliver a telegram merely because the recipient was not found at the address stated, and his actual address was beyond the free delivery limits. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 504.

If the recipient’s residence beyond the free delivery limits was not known to the sender of a telegram when he filed it for transmission, the agent at the receiving office should notify the sender so as to give him an opportunity to pay the extra charges. Id.

A telegraph company, after receiving a message by telephone according to its custom, cannot rely on conditions in its printed forms requiring extra charges where addressee lives beyond the free delivery limits. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Parham (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 819.

That the addressee lived beyond the free delivery limits did not relieve a telegraph company from its duty to exercise ordinary diligence to deliver the telegram, where it made no demand for extra charges for delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1169.

17. Delivery after office hours.—Telegraph company held bound by parol agreement to deliver night message at certain time. Hotel v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 857.

A telegraph company may establish office hours for the transmission, receipt, and delivery of messages. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 136.

A telegraph company is not under obligations to “promptly transmit and deliver” night messages received before 6 p. m. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Rawls (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 136; Same v. White (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 789.

A telegraph company is liable for failure to deliver a message outside of office hours, where it had contracted to deliver it at once for a consideration. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Perry, 30 C. A. 243, 70 S. W. 439.

Where a telegraph company by a reasonable rule fixes office hours after which it will not receive messages, it owes no duty to accept messages for transmission or to

In an action against a telephone company for failing to notify plaintiff of a sick call, that the call was received after office hours held no defense; it appearing that it was received without objection. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 118, W. 89.

18. — Delivery on Sunday.—Where a telegraph message is sent on Sunday, it is subject to the reasonable rules of the company as to its business hours on that day. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 920.

19. — Re-transmission.—Where full pay is taken for transmitting a message to its destination the company is liable for default, though it may have to use the line of another company. W. U. Telegraph Co. v. Shumate, 21 S. W. 106, 2 C. A. 439.

Where it is within the authority of the agent of a telegraph company to contract to deliver a message and the line, it is also within his authority to agree on reasonable means of delivery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Carter, 24 C. A. 86, 58 S. W. 198.

An agreement to use the mails as part of the means of delivering a telegram beyond the company’s line is not such an unreasonable selection as to charge the sender with notice of a lack of authority on the agent of the company to make the agreement. Id.

The sender of a message may require that the telegraph company forward it over a particular connecting line, though its rules require such messages to be sent by the nearest line, and the line designated was not the nearest. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Turner, 94 T. 304, 60 S. W. 432.

A telegraph company, whose receiving agent knew that the addressee was in an adjoining city, held negligent in failing to retransmit the message to such city. Western Union Tel. Co. v. W. & I. C. 366, 63 S. W. 241.

20. — Effect of misspelling of name of addressee.—Where a telegraph intended for plaintiff, whose name was “Wafford” was directed to “Frank Warford,” such names were idem sonans and it was the duty of the telegraph company to exercise ordinary care to deliver the message to plaintiff. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wafford, 43 C. A. 569, 97 S. W. 324.

21. — Effect of mistake or vagueness in or wrong address of addressee.—Failure to deliver telegram held not excused because wrongly addressed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. C. & W. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 624.

Though a telegram is addressed ‘care some hotel,’ the telegraph company does not discharge its whole duty by inquiring at the various hotels in the place, if by ordinary care the addressee could be found elsewhere. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wailer, 37 C. A. 518, 84 S. W. 625.

A contract to deliver certain messages to the addressees “toward Houston Heights” held too uncertain and indefinite for enforcement. Klopf v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 829.

Under facts a stated a telegraph company held bound to deliver a telegram at “Holdenville, I. T.,” though it was addressed to “Holenville, I. T.” Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hanks, 58 C. A. 513, 110 S. W. 539.

A mistake in transmitting a telegram by which the initial of the person addressed was changed, so that the telegram was never delivered, held negligence, so as to render the company liable. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co., 102 T. 148, 114 S. W. 98.

A long-distance telephone company held not to have relied on an original direction given for a person with whom communication was desired. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. McCoy, 102 T. 446, 119 S. W. 83.

22. — Nature and contents of message and relationship between sender and addressee, and notice thereof to company.—When communications relate to sickness and death, there accompanies them a common-sense suggestion that they are of importance, and that the persons addressed have in them a serious interest. Is it an unreasonable rule and one not comporting with the use of the telegraph, that the dispatcher will be released from diligence unless the relations of the parties concerned as well as the nature of the dispatch are disclosed? Telegraph Co. v. Ward, 4 App. C. C. § 317, 19 S. W. 938.

Languor here insufficient to require prompt efforts of delivery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1035.

Liability of telegraph company for failure to deliver telegram, instructing the sheriff not to sell plaintiff’s lands on execution, determined. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 119.

A telegraph company is charged with notice of the relationship between the addressee and a sick person concerning whom the telegram is sent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sweetman, 19 C. A. 405, 47 S. W. 676.

The company receiving a message relating to serious sickness or death must take notice of the purpose for which it is sent as disclosed by it, and that the addressee has a serious interest in its prompt delivery. Id.

Telegram held sufficient to notify company that proximate result of failure to deliver would be to deny one to whom it is sent the opportunity to attend his mother’s funeral. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 521.

Telegraph company held to have had notice that the purpose of a message was to delay funeral of the wife of the sender until his arrival. Jones v. Boach, 21 C. A. 301, 51 S. W. 549.

Where a telegraph company fails to deliver a message pertaining to a purchase of cotton reading: “Accept offer five three-quarters. Send tickets,” etc.—the sender’s failure to notify the company's agent that the delivery was necessary to close a contract cannot defeat his recovery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Turner, 94 T. 304, 69 S. W. 432. It is not essential to an action brought by a partnership against a telegraph company for its negligent failure to properly transmit a telegram addressed to one of the members that the company was informed that the message was intended for the firm's benefit. Post v. Texley & Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 154.

A telegraph company is chargeable with notice of any relation that exists between all parties to the message, and with notice of such purposes as may be reasonably inferred from the language used. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Steele (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 546.

A telegraph company is not liable for negligence in the delivery of a message, unless it had notice of the beneficial interest of the complaining party. Herring v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 855.

Telegrams held insufficient on their face to charge a telegraph company with notice that failure to deliver would entail a loss upon the sender. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Farrington (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 669.

A telegram reading: "Cannot sell to trade over ninety cents to one dollar." if satisfactory ship minimum car quick this basis"—give notice that it related to shipment of article requiring immediate attention. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Federoff (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 314.

In stated cases, a telegraph company held liable for damages for failure to promptly transmit messages which did not show on their face that a failure would cause a loss. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Sup.) 148 S. W. 561, 41 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1183.

23. Duty to notify sender of inability or failure to deliver.—A failure of a telegraph agent to notify the sender of a message that the line was out of repair, not shown to have affected the action of the sender, held not to have rendered the company liable for a failure of the purpose of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mc-Donald, 42 C. A. 229, 96 S. W. 691.

A telegraph company's agent could bind the company by a contract to report whether or not a message was delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 607.

24. Delay.—Where a company receives a message from a connecting line, the charges being divided, it is liable for delay in delivery. W. U. Telegraph Co. v. Taylor, 22 S. W. 832, 3 C. A. 310.

The sender of a telegram may rely on the transmission and delivery of a message without undue delay and is not bound to anticipate that there will be negligence thereon. Mitchell v. W. U. Tel. Co., 12 C. A. 626, 33 S. W. 1016.

Evidence, in an action for delay in delivery of a telegram, held to sustain a verdict that defendant telegraph company was negligent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davis, 16 C. A. 295, 80 S. W. Vanway (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 114; Downs, 49 C. A. 255, 119 S. W. 119; Same v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 616; Same v. Harris (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 876; Same v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 121.

In action against telegraph company for delay in delivery of message, evidence held insufficient to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Robinson v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1053.

In the absence of explanation excusing delay, held, that a telegraph company was liable for failing to deliver a message in time. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 659.

Defendant telegraph company held liable for damages resulting from its delay in delivering a telegram, by reason of which property was sold under execution which had been ordered by the court. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 33 S. W. 627.

In an action for failing to promptly deliver a telegram, evidence held to show the company had used due diligence. Harrgrave v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 637.

Facts held not to show that a telegraph company was negligent in delivering a message, so as to render it liable for the delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Redinger (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 156; Same v. Hamilton, 36 C. A. 300, 81 S. W. 1052; Same v. Campbell, 41 C. A. 204, 81 S. W. 312.

Where the lines of a telegraph company are down when a message is tendered, if it is received without informing the sender of the defects in the lines, it is liable for any delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Birge-Forbes Co., 29 C. A. 526, 69 S. W. 181.

Where, at the time of receiving a message to transmit, plaintiff's agent knew that certain lines were down, but did not know that the company did not have other lines by which the message could be sent, such knowledge did not exempt the company from liability for the damages resulting from delay. Id.

An agreement for a delay in the transmission of a telegram, based on a false statement of the telegraph clerk, held not to estop the sender from claiming damages for such delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Seffel, 31 C. A. 134, 71 S. W. 616.

A telegraph company held liable for failure to deliver a cipher message within a reasonable time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Houston Rice Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 1094.

A telegraph company must use ordinary care in its effort to promptly transmit and deliver a message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDonald, 43 C. A. 229, 96 S. W. 891; Same v. True, 101 T. 236, 106 S. W. 316.

That a person whose name was signed to a death message by his agent was in another state held not to prevent the addressee from recovering for a delay in its delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mordan, 52 C. A. 117, 113 S. W. 625.

That a telegraph company accepted and transmitted a death message implied an obligation to make prompt delivery. Id.

Evidence, in an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivery of a telegram, held that the messenger intrusted therewith was negligent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 717.

Facts held to show actionable negligence on the part of a telegraph company in delaying a telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Barrett, 56 C. A. 325, 113 S. W. 1983.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligently delaying the delivery of a message, evidence held to authorize a recovery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mc-Dole (Mo. W. App.) 132 S. W. 151.

In a suit for failure to promptly transmit and deliver a telegram, evidence held to show the addressee could have been found at his place of business if defendant's agent had exercised ordinary diligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.)
124 S. W. 151.

A telegraph company held not guilty of negligent delay in delivering a message.
Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cobb, 103 T. 183, 125 S. W. 311.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a telegram, evidence held to support the finding that the addressee was at the place to which the telegram was sent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Quinlan (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 616.

In an action for delay in delivery of telegram, evidence held insufficient to show that the telegraph messenger was negligent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Stranzer (Civ.
App.) 152 S. W. 946.

25. Messages received after office hours.—Telegraph company held not liable for delay in delivering message on Sunday. Western Union Tel. Co. v. McConico, 27 C.
A. 610, 66 S. W. 692.

In determining whether a telegraph company was negligent in delivering a message received during closed hours on Sunday, the time consumed after the office was opened in copying, numbering, enveloping, and addressing the message was properly computed. Id.
A telegraph company, sued for delay in delivering a message, held not entitled under the facts to raise the defense that its office at the place of delivery was never open for the delivery of messages at the time the particular message was received. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Havin, 30 C. A. 152, 70 S. W. 229.

A contract for the transmission of a telegram held to create no liability for failure to transmit the message on the day it was received. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Weeks
(Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 674.

The contractual liability of a telegraph company establishing office hours, held not affected by the act of its agent there in rendering occasional gratuitous services outside office hours. Id. 26.

Effect of addressee's living outside free delivery limit.—Where the addressees of certain messages did not reside in the municipality to which the messages were directed, the telegraph company was not liable for delay in delivering to the addressees in a separate adjoining locality. Klopf v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S.
W. 829.

A telegraph company's failure to deliver a telegram promptly held not to be excused on the ground that the sendee resided beyond its free delivery limits. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 676.

A statement as to duty and negligence of a telegraph company as to delivery of a message, where, after the sending thereof, it demands and receives extra pay for delivery to the addressee living in the country. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hosea
(Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 298.

That the sender of a telegram did not advise the company that the recipient lived beyond the free delivery limits, nor offered to pay the extra charges for service, was not a defense to an action for negligent delay in delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v.
Vance (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 904.

Where a sender paid the fee charged, and the agent who knew that the addressee lived beyond free delivery limits did not demand an extra fee, the telegraph company could not relieve itself from negligent delay in the delivery on the ground that an extra fee was not paid. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Holcomb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 190.

Where the company did not demand an extra charge upon receiving a message for delivery beyond the free delivery limits, and the contract did not require prepayment of such charge, failure to deliver promptly, is not excusable on the ground that sendee resided beyond such limits, especially when sender knew that fact, though company did not.
Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Parham (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 819.

Nature and contents of message, and relationship between sender and adressees and notice thereof to company.—The message: "You had better come and attend to your claim at once," imparted notice of its purpose and the importance of its prompt delivery, so as to bring such matters within the contemplation of the parties in the contract for its transmission. Telegraph Co. v. Sheffield, 71 T. 570, 10 S. W. 752, 10 Am. St.
Rep. 790.

Evidence considered, and held to apprise a telegraph company that a message was important, and to render the company liable for damages resulting from delay. Western

A telegraph held not to show a consummated sale, so as to relieve the telegraph company from damages for sale to another, because of delay in delivering the message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Spring, 31 C. A. 270, 100 S. W. 296.

Lack of knowledge of a certain fact held not to relieve a telegraph company from liability for negligence in failing to promptly deliver message relating to serious illness of

A company held not charged with notice that the sendee would suffer great anguish if she did not receive the message in time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v.
Campbell, 41 C. A. 204, 91 S. W. 312.

A message held to give the telegraph company notice that the parties referred to the document and its prompt transmission important. Id.

A message held to inform the telegraph company of the importance of a prompt delivery, rendering it liable for delay. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

A telegraph held not to render the company liable for failure to deliver it in time to enable addressee to attend a funeral at a place other than that from which the message was sent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 627, 93 S. W. 199.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message from plaintiffs to their agent it was no defense that the message was couched merely in cautionary terms, and was not a command. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Houston Rice Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 1084.

A telegram company held chargeable with notice of the character of illness of a person referred to in a telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Craven (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 633.

A telegram filed with a telegram company for transmission held to sufficiently indicate to the company that it referred to a matter from which damages would follow from a delayed delivery. Postal Telegraph Co. of Texas v. L. W. Levy & Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1234.

A telephone company taking a call from another company for transmission held not liable for failure to deliver, where it did not receive the same with notice that it was urgent, unless it was the agent of the first company or in partnership with it. Where a person telegraphs a guaranty of payment for goods purchased, the telegraph company is the sender's agent, and the sender is bound according to the terms of the message as transmitted, received, and delivered to the addressee, and not as delivered to the telegraph company. Hulme v. Levis-Zulozki Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 7.

31. Forged messages.—A telegraph company held not to warrant authenticity of forged messages, so as to render it liable, even though free from negligence. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank, 57 T. 215, 77 S. W. 603, 65 L. R. A. 805, 1 Ann. Cas. 573.

Proof that forged message was sent over company's wire and deceived its servants.
32. Failure to furnish news or market reports or quotations.—If a telegraph company contracted to furnish correct market reports, its failure to do so is a breach of its contract, irrespective of whether it exercised ordinary care in furnishing the reports. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bradford, 52 C. A. 392, 114 S. W. 686.

33. Liability for negligence in the transmission of messages.—Evidence held to show that a telephone operator was defendant's agent, so as to render defendant liable for damages resulting from delay. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Taylor, 26 C. A. 78, 63 S. W. 1076.

Telegraph operator held to be servant of company, not agent, and rule as to whether principal is charged with knowledge of agent was not applicable. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 457, 72 S. W. 626, 74 S. W. 943.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to notify plaintiff of a sick call, evidence held sufficient to show that an operator at a certain point was the common agent of defendant and another company for all communications to be transmitted over the lines of both companies. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 89.

The agent of a telegraph company, who receives a message by telephone, is not thereby made the agent of the sender, though the company requires all messages to be given in writing, if the sender does not know of such requirement. Gore v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 977.

In an action against the telegraph company for damages for failure to deliver a message, knowledge which the defendant's agent acquired as railroad agent held admissible as evidence of defendant's negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1153.

34. Act of God or vis major.—In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, defendant held entitled to plead the fact that its line was down as a defense. Faubion v. Western Union Tel. Co., 36 C. A. 93, 51 S. W. 56.

A claim held to excuse delay in delivering a death message because its commercial wire is out of business, where wires used for railroad business are open. Buchanan v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 974.

A claim by a telegraph company that delay in delivery of a message was caused by a wire being down, with no excuse for such condition, is no defense. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1116.

In an action for delay in the delivery of a message, evidence held to support a finding that the delay was caused by the negligence of the company and not by act of God. Id.

35. Contributory negligence.—The failure of one who pays a telegraph company to transmit a message to have the same repeated will not exempt the company from damages resulting from its failure, through negligence, to have the message delivered. And this failure was written on the message which the company will only be liable for the amount received for sending the message, if delay should occur in its delivery, unless the message be repeated. The rule is otherwise when the action against the company is for error committed in transmitting the message. Negligence, without regard to the degree, will render such company liable for actual damage resulting from its failure to deliver a message. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 69 T. 733, 7 S. W. 653.

In an action for failure to promptly deliver a telegraph message, evidence held to present a reasonable excuse for the recipient's delay in acting on it after receipt. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bryson, 25 C. A. 74, 61 S. W. 548.

Evidence held to sustain finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence in choosing route by which to reach his sick father after reception of telegraph message sent by telephone company to Tennessee & Pacific Tel. Co. v. Tennessee & Pacific Tel. Co., 53 S. W. 1010.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages, owing to plaintiff's receipt of a message fraudulently sent by one who had tapped the wires, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 252.

In an action for negligent delay in delivering a death message, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence in not taking an earlier train than the one she took to reach the funeral. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Porterfield (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 859.

Contributory negligence barring recovery for delay in delivering message held not shown, as matter of law. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hardison (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 541.

The negligence of a person receiving a telegram in failing to reply is not chargeable to the person sending the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Landry (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 461.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in the delivery of a message announcing death of plaintiff's mother at a distant town, the failure of plaintiff to take the first train for that town held to defeat a recovery, provided an ordinarily prudent person would have taken that train. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 457, 109 S. W. 251.

In an action for failure to promptly transmit a telegram, evidence held sufficient to sustain a jury finding that plaintiff was not negligent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Rabon (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 580.

In an action for delay in delivering a telegram, evidence held to warrant a verdict finding that the delay was due to defendant's negligence proximately resulting in the

663
Art. 1241  CORPORATIONS—PRIVATE

damage, and that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Black (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 921.

Plaintiff, in an action against a telephone company for delay in connections, preventing her presence at the deathbed of her father, held not guilty of contributory negligence in not starting when she first heard that he was slightly hurt. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gathings (App.) 137 S. W. 416.

Where telephone company neglected to obtain long distance connection, so that H. could notify plaintiff of the death and funeral of his sister, defendant could not claim that plaintiff was negligent in failing to postpone the funeral. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. BELOW (App.) 358 S. W. 1165.

Where defendant telephone company erroneously informed H. that plaintiff had left the place where a telephone call was sent for him, H. was excused from further attempt to reach plaintiff there by telegram. Id.

In an action for failure to deliver a message announcing the expected death of plaintiff's child, defendant held not negligent, so as to preclude recovery, because he had failed to respond to a prior telegram, relating to the same matter, which had been delivered to plaintiff. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 151.

In an action for nondelivery of a telegram, as a result of which perishable produce was lost, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff used due diligence to dispose of his produce. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Federoff (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 314.

Prevention of damage from default or error.—Where a telegram is delivered, the receiver is not compelled to take unusual means to avoid the injury caused by delay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1035.

A telegraph company held not liable for failure to deliver a message, in the absence of proof that plaintiff's agent had no authority to do acts which, if done, would have prevented the damage. Mitchell v. Western Union Tel. Co. 23 C. A. 445, 56 S. W. 439.

Telegraph company held liable for one's losing a purchase through delay in delivering a telegram, though, if he had noticed it was delayed, he could, by telegraphing, have prevented any damage. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Snow, 31 C. A. 577, 75 S. W. 107.

It being the duty of the addressee in a telegram to minimize the damages resulting from a telegraph company's negligent delay in delivery, he may recover for his expense in lessening such damage. Postal Telegraph Co. of Texas v. L. W. Levy & Co. (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 154.

In an action for failure to deliver a telegram, sender held not misled and prevented from sending another message by a relay telegram received by her. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Garrett, 46 C. A. 430, 102 S. W. 456.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message announcing the death of plaintiff's mother, the failure to embalm the mother's remains held immaterial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251.

The duty to avoid and mitigate damages held not to excuse plaintiff, suing for loss of sale of produce by nondelivery of telegram, to dispose of produce to other than actual purchasers. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Federoff (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 314.

Where a loss occurred before sender of telegram learned that it had not been delivered, the rule requiring an injured party to avoid or mitigate the loss held inapplicable. Id.

37. Proximate cause of loss or damage.—In a suit for damages against a telegraph company for failing to deliver a message countermanding the shipment of goods, the plaintiff must prove the delivery of the message to the company before the goods were actually shipped. W. U. T. Co. v. Bertram, 1 App. C. C. § 1132.

Failure to deliver telegram in time to enable plaintiff to attend his mother's burial was not excused by fact that plaintiff's reply telegram was received in time to have postponed delivery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cain (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 624.

In an action for nondelivery, a defense that plaintiff could not have arrived at the funeral had the message been delivered falls, where he could have arrived within the usual time by interment, and it was delayed that long. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Camera (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 396.

The failure of a father to reach his son before the death of the latter is not an element of damages for a failure to deliver a telegraph message, where the father could not have reached his son before his death if the message had been delivered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hendricks, 26 C. A. 366, 63 S. W. 341.

The delay in the transmission of a telegram held to have been the proximate cause of the suffering of the addressee in failing to reach her daughter's deathbed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Self, 31 C. A. 134, 71 S. W. 616.

Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Aslake, 33 C. A. 391, 77 S. W. 37.

Evidence held sufficient for finding that the funeral of plaintiff's son would have been delayed until plaintiff's arrival, if the telegraph company had transmitted correctly a message by the wrong route. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Chambers, 34 C. A. 17, 77 S. W. 372.

A telegraph company held guilty of negligence in delaying the delivery of a message, which negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's mental anguish. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Shaw, 33 C. A. 396, 77 S. W. 433.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, a recovery held not authorized, in the absence of any evidence that the delivery of the message would have avoided the consequences of which plaintiff complained. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Campbell, 36 C. A. 276, 81 S. W. 590.

In an action against a telegraph company, defendant held not liable for personal injuries to plaintiff, caused by her not having a night robe. Id.

In an action for delay in delivering a death message, evidence held to sustain a finding plaintiff could have attended the funeral by a route specified if the message had been delivered in time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ford, 40 C. A. 474, 90 S. W. 677.

In an action against a telegraph company for refusal to accept a message for transmission to a point on a connecting line, evidence held to warrant a finding that the failure to receive the message was the proximate cause of the injury. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 880.
CORPORATIONS—PRIVATE

In an action against a telephone company for delay in delivering a message, evidence that plaintiff could have reached the place where his father died in time for the funeral, if it had been promptly delivered, held to establish a prima facie case. Lawrence v. Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 222.

The sender of a message to withhold a body from burial until damaged by delay where by the greatest diligence the message could not have been delivered until after interment had occurred. Klopf v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 438.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that, if the telegram had been promptly transmitted and delivered, plaintiff would have gone to and reached his son prior to his death. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Person (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 264.

Where it was shown that the failure to deliver a telephone message to plaintiff was not the proximate cause of his failure to be with his child at its death, the telephone company was not liable. Sabine Valley Telephone Co. v. Oliver, 46 C. A. 428, 103 S. W. 436.

In an action for negligent delay in the delivery of a telegram held that the showing that thereby plaintiffs had been prevented from making a purchase on which they would have made a profit entitled them to recovery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 765.

In an action against a telephone company for failing to deliver a message calling a physician to attend the sender’s son, evidence held not to show that, had the telegram been promptly delivered, the physician would have come. Slaughter v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 885.

It is essential to a recovery for the failure of a telegram company to deliver a message calling a physician to attend the sender’s son that plaintiff show that, had the message been promptly delivered, the physician would have come. True v. Western Union Tel. Co., 102 T. 713, 113 S. W. 19.

Evidence held to show that, if a death message had been received without delay, the addresser would have telegraphed the sender to delay burial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Moran, 55 C. A. 117, 113 S. W. 725.

In an action in an attempt against a telegraph company held to show negligence but for which plaintiff would have reached the bedside of his dying wife about 15 hours sooner than he did. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hughes, 66 C. A. 463, 118 S. W. 1139.

A delay of about 33 hours in delivering a telegram held not due to the mistake in the address, but to the negligence of defendant’s employees. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Holley, 55 C. A. 432, 119 S. W. 888.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in the delivery of message, evidence held insufficient on plaintiff’s part to support the finding of the jury the delay was the proximate cause of the injury. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hudson, 56 C. A. 213A, 120 S. W. 1112.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligent delay in delivering a message, plaintiff deprived of the privilege of buying bank stock, held that evidence held to show the message had been promptly delivered. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 262, 122 S. W. 821.

In an action for failure to transmit a telegram, evidence held insufficient to justify a finding that plaintiff had received the message in time she could have attended her father’s funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDavid (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 893.

Evidence held insufficient to show that if plaintiff could have reached the place of burial in time to have attended the funeral of her father, the message would have been delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDavid, 103 T. 601, 123 S. W. 115.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages for delay in delivering a message, preventing plaintiff from attending her brother’s funeral, evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant’s negligent delay in delivery at the receiving point prevented plaintiff from attending her brother’s funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 876.

In an action for damages from delay in delivering a telegram preventing plaintiff from going home to attend her brother’s funeral, the competent testimony held to show the time when the train departed, which plaintiff could have taken on the day she would have gone home had the telegram been promptly delivered. Id.

In an action against a telegraph company for nondelivery of a telegraphic order for merchandise, evidence held to show that, if the message had been delivered, the order would have been filled. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Talerico (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 575.

Though a telegraph company was negligent in delivery of a message concerning the burial of plaintiff’s brother, it was not liable, where plaintiff could not have reached the place of burial in time to attend, if the message had not been delayed. Kolb v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1081.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a judgment against a telephone company for material suffering from delay in delivering a telephone message, in not showing that, but for the delay plaintiff would have arrived in time for her mother’s funeral. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Givens (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 467.

Evidence in an action for negligent delay in delivering a telegram announcing the probable death of plaintiff’s daughter held to show that plaintiff’s inability to reach his daughter in time for her mother’s funeral proximately caused by defendant’s negligent transmission and delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance, 161 S. W. 904.

In an action for delay in the delivery of a message announcing the death of plaintiff’s brother-in-law, thereby depriving plaintiff and his wife of the opportunity of attending the funeral, evidence held to justify a finding that if the message had been 605 promptly delivered they would have attended the funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hines (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1116.

38. Limitation of liability.—Where telegraph company limited its liability to its own line, it is liable for negligence whereby the telegraph is delayed on its line, resulting in ultimate failure of connecting line to deliver it. Weatherford, M. W. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Seals (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 841.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages, caused by the receipt by plaintiff of a fraudulent message sent by one who had tampered with the wires, in answer to a message sent by plaintiff, held proper not to admit stipulation on back of defendants’ blank. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Tel. Co. 72 S. W. 252.

A telegraph company, failing to transmit a cipher message, of the nature of which it had no notice, held liable only to the fee paid for transmission. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Mellor & Barnes, 33 C. A. 264, 76 S. W. 449.

Notice of a cipher message, delivered to a telegraph company for transmission, held not imputed to the company. Id.

Removal of suit against telegraph company within 90 days held compliance with contract requiring written claim for damages within that time. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cooper, 29 C. A. 591, 69 S. W. 427; Same v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 843.

An addressee of an unreported message held not precluded from a recovery of damages for a failure to deliver the same by a condition on the telegraph blank that the company may make in the transmission of an unreported message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Norris, 25 C. A. 43, 69 S. W. 932.

A stipulation, so far as it relieves a telegraph company from negligence in not delivering or transmitting an unreported message, cannot be enforced; but for mere errors or mistakes in transmission such a stipulation is lawful and reasonable. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ragland (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 421; Same v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 151.

Where a telegraph was not repeated, held, under the contract, the company was not liable for error in transmission, unless due to want of ordinary care. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 559.

Where a telegram intended to cancel a contract between the sender and plaintiff was improperly edited by the addressee and therefore delayed, the sender was under no obligation to have the same repeated in order to insure proper transmission. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. v. Sunset Const, Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

A telegraph company held liable for negligence in transmitting an unreported message, an agreement limiting the company’s liability for mistakes, etc., as to an unreported message, to the amount paid for sending it. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. v. Sunset Const, Co., 102 T. 148, 114 S. W. 98.

A telegraph company held not entitled to limit its liability for an unreported message so as to relieve it from its negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 629.

The failure of the sender of a message to have it repeated does not preclude a recovery of damages, caused by the negligence of the telegraph company in changing the address of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 632.

41. — Of amount of liability.—A telegraph company held negligent in the transmission of a message, and therefore liable for the damages sustained notwithstanding a

42. — Notice and acceptance of conditions and persons bound thereby. — Telegraph company cannot avoid liability for failure to transmit telegram by statements on back that it is the agent of the sender. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Senia (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 964.

Condition on contract of a telegraph company that it should not be liable for delays from unavoidable interruptions in the working of its lines does not exempt the company for delays resulting from causes known to its agent, of which the sender was not informed. Jefferson Union Tel. Co. v. Forge Mills, 29 C. A. 526, 58 W. 131.

An unknown provision in the contract for sending a telegram held not binding either as a part of the contract for the transmission or as a regulation of the company. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 232; Same v. Douglass (Tex.) 132 S. W. 877.

A stipulation on the reverse side of a message that the initial telegraph company would not be liable for negligent transmission or delivery beyond its own line held unenforceable in the initial telegraph company as a defense for the negligent acts of the connecting company. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. of Texas v. Harris, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 365, 122 S. W. 891.

The receiver of a telegram held bound by the stipulations on the blank on which the message was written. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Taber (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 268.

A sendee of a telegram held not bound by the terms of the contract as evidenced by the matter printed on the telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Timmons (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1169.

Addresses in action for damages arising from delay in the delivery of a message held bound by provisions of the contract that such messages would be received for delivery not earlier than the morning of the next day, and would be delivered free only within the established free delivery limits. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 799.

43. Transmission and delivery of messages by connecting lines. — The analogy of connecting telegraph lines to connecting railways is so great that the established rules of law which determine the liability of the latter may be applied to the former. Smith v. Telegraph Co., 64 Tex. 441, 21 Am. Rep. 591.

Telegraph company held responsible for failure to deliver message to connecting lines promptly where it contributes to failure to deliver. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Scala (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 564.

An arrangement between a telegraph and a telephone company whereby each received and collected for messages going over both lines does not create an agency between the companies. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lovely (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 563.

A telegraph company receiving for transmission a message addressed to point on a connecting line with reasonable promptness to the end of its own line and deliver it to the connecting line. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 686.

Where a telegraph message is destined beyond the line of the receiving company, the sender has the absolute right to select the connecting route, and this must be observed, though the line selected is out of order. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDonald, 42 C. A. 229, 56 S. W. 691.

A telegraph company held not liable, though at fault, for the failure of the purpose of a message routed over a connecting telephone line which was out of repair. Id.

Where the Postal Telegraph Company received a message for transmission to a point beyond its lines and collected the price for delivery at the point of destination, and delivered the message to the Western Union Telegraph Company for delivery at the point of destination, the latter company, if the facts, were within its discretion, must as nearly as possible transmit the message to the point of delivery and deliver the message within a reasonable time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tice (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1078.

A telegraph company need not accept a message for points beyond its own line, and a suggestion that a messenger fee will be necessary and the requiring a guaranty of the fee before delivery to a connecting line do not bind the telegraph company to deliver the message to a point beyond its own line. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 332.

A telegraph company is relieved from liability for negligence occurring on its connecting line in the delivery of a message resulting in injury to a sendee, unless otherwise bound by special contract. Id.

A stipulation on a message that the telegraph company is merely the agent of the sender, without liability, in forwarding it over the lines of any other company, is reasonable and valid. Id.

The suggestion by an agent of a telegraph company receiving a message for transmission to a connecting company's lines that a messenger fee will be necessary and requiring a guaranty of a fee before delivery to a connecting line do not create a special contract binding the initial company to deliver the message in any event, and do not make it responsible for the negligence of the connecting company. Id.

A telegraph does not show that it was for the plaintiff's benefit, being neither sender nor receiver, he must show his interest in order to recover damages. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Fors (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 782.

A message sent to a husband in behalf of his wife, but signed by a third party, will form a basis for damages on the part of the wife for delay in delivery. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Olivarr (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 814.

52. — Verdict.—See Art. 1976 et seq.

53. — Rights of action and conditions precedent.—In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, the causes of action of the sender of the message held are separate from those of the recipient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell, 33 C. A. 716, 31 S. W. 580.

The failure of a telegraph company to deliver a message to a broker held not to result in damages. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. E. F. Connell Land Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1165.

54. — Defenses.—It is no defense to an action for negligently delivering a telegraph that plaintiff did not pay for its transmission. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sweetman, 19 C. A. 435, 47 S. W. 676.

Failure to report message not a defense to action for damages for failure to correctly designate place from which message was sent. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 640.

In action against telephone company for failure to promptly deliver a message sent plaintiff by his agent, that message was transmitted without charge held no defense. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Shodgrass, 34 T. 286, 69 S. W. 396, 96 Am. St. Rep. 581.

A telegraph company held not relieved from liability for loss resulting from its negligent delay in delivering a message whereby plaintiffs were prevented from purchasing cattle entailed by the fact that plaintiffs may also have been defrauded against the person from whom they intended to purchase for not giving them a reasonable time in which to make the purchase. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. True (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 1180.

Where plaintiff shipped a construction outfit because of the nondelivery of a telegraph, canceling plaintiff's contract to perform which the shipment was made, the fact that the filing of the telegram for transmission operated as a cancellation of the contract constituted a basis for the recovery of damages, and was not a defense to plaintiff's action. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 255.

 Plaintiff afterwards purchased and sold at a profit held not to prevent his recovery of damages for nondelivery of a telegram. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 148.

A defendant employed by defendant telegraph company delivered a spurious message to plaintiff bank, inducing it to cash a draft on an alleged trust company in New York, defendant thereby committed a fraud on plaintiff, for which plaintiff's contributory negligence in failing to take further precautions to ascertain the genuineness of the message was no defense. Postal Telegraph & Cable Co. v. Traders' State Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 748.

55. Grounds and elements of compensatory damages in general.—In suit for damages resulting from injury to wife, the death of a still-born infant, and grief of the mother occasioned thereby, could not form any basis for or element of damages.
the death of the child aggravated the mother's illness, it was a subject of inquiry into extent of any negligence by the mother thereby increase the child's suffering. Telegraph Co. v. Cooper, 71 Tex. 528, 12 S. W. 588, 1 L. R. A. 728, 16 Am. St. Rep. 772.

The damages recoverable for failure to deliver a message are such as are the natural and necessary consequences of the breach of the contract as contemplated by both parties. Telegraph Co. v. TO CONSTRUCT UNION DEPOTS

Art. 1242. Corporations to construct union passenger depots, how formed.

Art. 1244. Authority of railroad commission.

Art. 1245. Stock and bonds, issuance how governed.

Art. 1246. Railway companies may subscribe to and own stock and bonds.

Art. 1247. Right to condemn, etc., land for depot purposes, etc.; may acquire fee simple.

Art. 1248. Condemnation, governed how.

Article 1242. [744a] Corporations to construct union passenger depots, how formed.—Corporations may be formed for the purpose of acquiring, owning, maintaining and operating union passenger depots in any city or town in which any two or more railroad companies may own or operate a railroad. Such corporations may be formed in the manner provided in this title. [Acts 1895, p. 187. Acts 1897, p. 42.]

Art. 1243. Powers.—Such corporations shall have power and authority to acquire, own or lease, maintain and operate railroad tracks in any city or town, for the purpose of enabling railroad companies to run their trains to and from the union depot; such tracks not to extend to a greater distance than three miles from such union depot; and such corporations may also add additional stories to their depot buildings, and rent the same for offices, or other purposes; and may also provide on their property buildings for express purposes, and rent the same to express companies. [Id.]

Art. 1244. Authority of railroad commission.—The railroad commission of Texas shall have the same supervision and control over said railroads and tariff rates and depots that it has over any other lines of railroad and depot buildings in this state. [Id.]

Art. 1245. [744b] Stock and bonds, issuance how governed.—The provisions of chapter 16, title 115, of the Revised Civil Statutes of the state of Texas shall govern and control the issuance of stock and bonds of such companies, as far as the same are applicable. [Id. sec. 2.]

This chapter embraces, what. — This chapter shall embrace and include the creation of private corporations for the purpose of constructing, owning and operating deep water channels from the waters of the Gulf of Mexico along and across any of the bays on the coast of this state to the mainland, for the purposes of navigation and transportation, and for the construction, owning and operating docks on the coast of this state for the protection and accommodation of ships, boats and all kinds of vessels for navigation and their cargoes.  [Acts of 1887, p. 91.]

Embraces water inlets. — This article embraces tide water inlets also.  Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co., 92 T. 275, 47 S. W. 367.

A canal, extending from salt water of the United States to an intersection with a navigable bayou constructed for the accommodation of ships, held navigable water of the United States.  Id.

Art. 1250.  [722] Added powers. — Every such channel corporation shall, in addition to the powers herein conferred, have power:

1. To cause such examination and survey for its proposed channel to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous route for such purpose, by its officers, agents or servants; to enter upon any of the waters of such bays and upon any of the lands of this state, or of any person.

2. To take and hold such voluntary grant of real estate and other property as shall be made to it to aid in the construction and maintenance of its deep water channel and works pertinent thereto.

3. To construct its channel across, along, through, or upon, any of the waters of the bays within the jurisdiction of this state, and so far into the mainland as may be necessary to reach a place for its docks that will afford security from cyclones, storms, swells and tidal waves, with such depth as may suit its convenience and the wants of navigation, not less than five feet, and a width of not less than forty feet.

4. To furnish to vessels and boats adapted to the purpose facilities for navigating in and along the entire length of its channel, and to charge and collect a toll therefor, to be prescribed and established by its by-laws, not to exceed one cent per barrel bulk of the capacity of each vessel for each mile of the length of its channel used by the vessel going either way.

5. To borrow such sums of money as may be necessary for constructing, finishing, or operating its channel, and to issue and dispose of its bonds for any amount so borrowed, and to mortgage its corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of any debt contracted for the purposes aforesaid; provided, that damages for any property appropriated by such corporation shall be assessed and paid for as is provided for in case of railroads.

6. To enter upon and condemn and appropriate any lands of any persons or corporation that may be necessary for the uses and purposes of such channel corporation; the damages for any property thus appropriated to be assessed and paid for in the same manner as provided by law in the case of railroads; provided, that no damages shall be assessed against or paid by it for any portion of the route of the channel embraced within and covered by the waters of any bay or lake on the coast of this state, nor for any portion of any island belonging to the state that may be requisite and necessary to the construction and successful operation of its channel; and provided, further, that its right of way shall not be less than the actual width of its channel, and not more than seven hundred feet in width on each side of its channel; provided, that when the land sought to be condemned under this chapter is arable land, such right of way shall not extend further than six hundred feet on each side of the channel from the edge or boundary of said channel.

7. To construct, own, and operate its channel so far into the waters of the Gulf of Mexico as may be necessary to obtain an adequate depth of water at its gulf entrance to facilitate the ingress and egress of such vessels as may navigate the same in so far as this state may have the power to grant such right, which shall be in subordination to that of the government of the United States, in so far as that government has the constitutional power to control the same. [Acts 1895, p. 185. Acts 1887, p. 91. Acts 1897, p. 19.]

Condemnation.—The company need not show to entitle it to condemn that it is sought to be done in order to reach a place of safety. See art. 1249. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co., 92 T. 235, 47 S. W. 967.

The channel company need not show authority of secretary of war for construction before condemning land. Il.

Because this article, in conferring the power of eminent domain on channel and dock corporations provides that it shall be exercised in the manner provided by law in the case of railroads, it does not limit their right to the cases in which it might be exercised by railroads. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848.

In crossing the mainland the company was operating under a right of eminent domain rather than the sovereign right to improve navigation, and therefore though the navigation of the bayou may have been incidentally improved, the sovereign right of the state in that regard was no bar to a claim for damages resulting to a riparian owner by reason of the pollution of the bayou. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co., 100 T. 192, 97 S. W. 686, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 656.

Riparian rights.—A corporation organized under this article receives all the powers possessed by the state as against riparian owners for the improvement of navigation. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848.

Art. 1251. [723] [644c] Dock corporations; added powers.—Every such dock corporation shall, in addition to the powers heretofore conferred, have power:

1. To purchase, take and hold such land or real estate as shall be necessary for the construction and operation of its docks, approaches, entrances, moorings and ways and the construction, use and enjoyment of such warehouses, stores and sheds as may be necessary to the receiving and discharging of freights, goods, wares and merchandise, and the proper protection and preservation thereof; provided, that no such dock corporation shall ever have the right or power to take or condemn to its use any private property without the free consent of the owner thereof, expressed by a sufficient deed in writing.

2. To construct its dock or docks in such manner and of such size and depth as it may deem meet and proper to suit the convenience of such vessels as may see fit to use and occupy the same, and to collect from the vessels using the same, or from their masters, owners or consignees, such sum or sums for the use thereof as may be authorized by its by-laws and agreed to by such masters, owners or consignees.

3. To borrow such sums of money as may be necessary for constructing, completing or operating its dock or docks, and to issue and dispose of its bonds for such amount so borrowed, and to mortgage its corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of any debt contracted for the purposes aforesaid. [Acts 1895, p. 185.]

Art. 1252. Corporations created under this chapter; additional power granted.—Every such corporation shall, in addition to the powers heretofore conferred, have power:

1. To purchase, take and hold such land or real estate as shall be necessary for the construction, maintenance and operation of its harbor approaches, entrances, and ways thereto, and the construction of wharves, piers and warehouses.

2. To construct, own and maintain its harbor by building piers and break-waters so far into the gulf as may be necessary to obtain sufficient depth of water to facilitate the ingress and egress, and the safety while in port of such vessels as may enter the same, in so far only as the state may have the power to grant such right, which, however, shall be exercised subject and in subordination to the government of the United States, in as far as it may have constitutional power to control the same.

3. To provide facilities to vessels and boats entering its harbor for anchorage, receiving and discharging cargoes and passengers, and to charge and collect fair and reasonable tolls and wharfage therefor, to be prescribed by its by-laws.

4. To borrow money in such amounts and on such terms as may be necessary for constructing and finishing or operating its harbor or piers, and to issue and dispose of its bonds for any amount so borrowed, and to mortgage its corporate franchises to secure the payment of any debt contracted for the purposes aforesaid. [Id.]

Art. 1253. Rates, tolls and charges subject to legislative control.—All rates, tolls or charges made by any corporation formed under the provisions of this chapter shall be subject to the right of the Legislature from time to time to alter, revise, change or amend the same. [Id.]

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
DEEP WATER CORPORATIONS

Art. 1254. Corporations acting under authority of congress may purchase certain coast land from the state.

Art. 1255. May purchase certain other lands.

Art. 1256. Application for purchase, how made.

Art. 1257. Regulating surveys, payment of purchase money, forfeitures, etc., under foregoing articles.

Art. 1258. Right to construct docks, etc., charge tolls, subject to railroad commission and general laws regulating rights of said corporations.

Art. 1259. Rights, powers and privileges granted shall not interfere with, what.

Art. 1260. Shall file release with secretary of state of right of control by congress.

Article 1254. Corporations acting under authority of congress may purchase certain coast lands from the state.—Any corporation organized under the laws of Texas which is now authorized or which may hereafter be authorized by an act of congress of the United States to construct, own, operate or maintain, with private capital, a deep water harbor, navigable channel, docks or wharves on the gulf coast of Texas shall be permitted to purchase from the state of Texas, at two dollars per acre, so much of any public lands, islands, shores or shallow bays belonging to the state of Texas as may be situated within one-half mile from any point or points on the construction works of any jetties or any such deep water channel leading into the main harbor from the open sea; provided, that in no case shall such strip or body of land be more than one-half mile in width; and such company or corporation may also purchase from the state, at the same price per acre, any lands, shores, islands or shallow bays within one fourth mile of each side of every navigable channel that such company or corporation may construct through or across such shallow bays in the prosecution of such work. [Acts of 1891, p. 166.]
Art. 1255. [727] May purchase certain other lands.—Any such company or corporation owning, in whole or in part, any lands fronting or abutting upon any shallow bays in which any such work is being constructed, may purchase at the same price per acre any lands, shores or shallow bays adjoining and lying in front of such lands; provided, that such purchase shall not extend into such bay so as to include land covered with water having an average depth of more than three and one-half feet at mean low tide. That the purchases under the provisions of this article shall not extend a greater distance along the front of the survey on the shore than three miles, nor a greater distance into the bay than one-half mile; provided, that the islands known as Tolly island and Lydia Ann islands, situated in Arkansas bay, shall not be subject to purchase under the provisions herein; provided, that one-half of the proceeds of the sale of the lands as provided for herein shall belong to the permanent free school fund of this state. [Id.]

Art. 1256. [728] Applications for purchase, how made.—All applications of a purchaser to buy under the foregoing articles shall be made in writing to the commissioner of the general land office, accompanied by one-fifth of the purchase money, and also by a copy of the act of congress authorizing the construction of such deep water harbor, navigable channel, docks or wharves, and a complete plat or map showing the location and design of such improvements; and said plat or map shall also show the public lands, shores, islands and shallow bays applied for, and the depth of such shallow bays in feet, determined by actual survey or as shown by the United States coast survey map. [Id.]

Art. 1257. [729] Regulating surveys, payment of purchase money, forfeiture, etc., under foregoing articles.—Upon the payment of one-fifth of the purchase money as hereinbefore provided, the commissioner of the general land office shall issue a receipt therefor, and attach thereto a copy of the application and plat filed by said purchaser; which said receipt shall be sufficient authority to the proper county surveyor to survey the lands, shores, islands or shallow bays sold; provided, that the remainder of the purchase money may be paid at any time within five years after the date of first payment; and deferred payments shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, payable annually. If any company or corporation purchasing any land, island or shallow water bays, under these provisions shall fail to secure twenty feet of water over the bar between the Gulf of Mexico and the main harbor within five years from the date of such purchase and maintain said twenty feet of water continuously for two years, then, all such rights shall revert to the state. If the purchaser of any island, shallow water bay, land, or either, under these articles, shall fail to pay the annual interest upon any part of the purchase money when such interest shall become due, or if such purchaser shall fail to pay the principal when the same shall become due, then, all rights acquired under such purchases shall be forfeited, with all payments made thereon, without any judicial ascertainment of such forfeiture; and the commissioner of the general land office shall indorse upon the contract of purchase, that the same is forfeited, whereby all rights so acquired shall be forfeited and revert to the state. If any such corporation shall fail to conform to the act of congress in prosecuting such work, or if such corporation shall fail to secure twenty feet of water at low tide upon the bars and other obstructions between the main harbor and the Gulf of Mexico within five years after the twenty-first day of April, 1891, if such corporation then existed, or within five years of the date of the filing of the charter of any such company as hereafter formed, then, all islands, lands, shallow bays and other rights acquired under this chapter shall be forfeited and shall revert to and vest in the state of Texas. [Id.]
Art. 1258. [730] Right to construct docks, etc., charge tolls subject to railroad commission and general laws regulating rights of said corporations.—Any corporation organized under the laws of this state, which has such authority as mentioned in article 1254 conferred upon it by act of the congress of the United States, may construct, own and maintain upon the gulf coast of Texas, in connection with its deep water harbor and navigable channels, docks and wharves and navigable channels for the accommodation of commerce, and such corporation may charge, demand and receive reasonable and just tolls, and charge for the use of such docks and wharves; but all navigable channels so constructed shall forever remain open and free to all vessels without fee or charge; the tolls and charges for the use of said docks and wharves shall be equal, just and uniform to all vessels, persons and corporations, without discrimination as to amount charged or delay in handling the same; and all such tolls and charges shall be under the control of the legislature of the state of Texas; and, until otherwise directed by the legislature, shall be subject to control and regulation by the railroad commission, under the rules prescribed for the regulation of railroads, so far as applicable. Any railroad, or other means of transportation, which may be constructed between the mainland and any deep water harbor or channel shall be a public highway; and all rates and charges for the transportation of freights and passengers thereon shall be subject to the control and regulation of the railroad commission as a railroad; such railroad or other means of transportation shall receive from each and every ship, boat and vessel, or from the wharf on which the same is discharged, all freights and passengers, and transport and deliver them to the consignee, or any connecting line of railroad, without discrimination as to charges or delay in transportation and delivery, and shall in like manner receive from every person and from every connecting line of railroad all freight and passengers and transport and deliver the same to each and every ship, boat, vessel, person or corporation for delivery to such ship, boat or vessel on like equal and just terms, without discrimination as to charges and delay in transportation or delivery thereof. Nothing herein shall be construed to affect any rights acquired before the enactment of this law. The acceptance of the provisions herein, or the exercise of any rights or privileges granted herein, by said corporation, or any person or corporation holding under the same, shall be deemed and held to be a contract with the state; that any wilful violation of these provisions or the doing of any act herein prohibited shall work a forfeiture of all rights acquired hereunder, so far as then held or claimed by the person or corporation guilty of such violation. [Id.]

Art. 1259. [731] Rights, power and privileges granted shall not interfere with, what.—The privileges and rights granted herein shall never be exercised so as to, in any way, hinder or interfere with the completion of any railroad heretofore chartered to be built to and upon Harbor island, in and upon the location designated in such charter; nor with any such railroads acquiring and controlling all necessary depot grounds, wharf grounds and deep water fronts that it may or could have acquired legally had not this law been enacted. [Id.]

Art. 1260. [732] Shall file release with secretary of state of right of control by congress.—Before any rights can vest in any corporation by virtue of any purchase of public lands, islands, shores or shallow bays, the said corporation shall file with the secretary of state a release to the state of Texas of all claim or right to have its tolls or charges imposed for any use to be made of such property or structures thereon regulated by any act of congress now existing or hereafter to be passed. [Id.]
CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
DRAINAGE CORPORATIONS

Art. 1261. Authority for Incorporation.—Corporations may be formed and chartered under the provisions of this chapter, and under the general incorporation laws of the state of Texas, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating canals, drains and ditches outside of the corporate limits of cities and towns in any county in the state of Texas. [Acts 1897, p. 109, sec. 23.]

Art. 1262. Corporation may contract for drainage and charges subject to control of legislature; lien.—Such corporations shall have full power and authority to make contracts for permanent drainage of any tract of land and the charges therefor, said charges subject to the control of the legislature; and the rights therein shall be secured by a lien herein expressly given upon the lands benefited by said drain or canal other than homesteads. [Id.]

Art. 1263. Drains, etc., to be reported to and approved by commissioners' court.—All drains and canals, so constructed by such corporations, shall be reported to the commissioners' court of the county wherein constructed, and approved by the same. [Id.]

Art. 1264. May acquire lands for business, how.—Any corporation, so organized under the provisions of the general laws of the state of Texas, or the provisions of this chapter for the purpose of drainage, shall have power to acquire lands for the purpose of its business, or in payment of stock or drainage rights, and to hold and dispose of such lands and all other property. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 1265. May borrow money for construction, etc., issue bonds; mortgage property, etc.—Such corporation may borrow money for the construction, maintenance and operation of its ditches and canals and laterals, and may issue bonds, and mortgage its corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of any debts contracted for the same. [Id.]

Art. 1266. Lands to be alienated, except.—Land acquired by such corporations, except such as are designated in the next succeeding article, shall be alienated within fifteen years from the date of acquiring same, or be subject to judicial forfeiture. [Id.]

Art. 1267. Exception lands.—Lands used for the construction, maintenance and operation of canals, drains, ditches and laterals, shall be excepted from the requirements of the last preceding article. [Id.]

CHAPTER NINETEEN
MACADAM AND PLANK ROAD CORPORATIONS

Art. 1268. May enter upon land, make survey, etc. 1269. May condemn land, etc. 1270. If road is out of repair, charter may be forfeited. 1271. Shall not collect tolls when road is out of repair. 1272. Width of road and how to be constructed.

Art. 1273. No toll gates permitted in towns, etc. 1274. Tolls to be regulated by commissioners' court. 1275. Persons exempt from tolls. 1276. Mile posts and rates of toll. 1277. Any person may complain of non-repairs; proceedings in such case. 1278. Travelers practicing fraud, may be sued, etc.
Article 1268. [687] [611] May enter upon lands, make surveys, etc.—It shall be lawful for any corporation created for the purpose of constructing a macadam or plank road, by its agents and servants, to enter upon any lands, to make surveys, estimates and locations. [Acts 1873, p. 123. P. D. 5975.]

See Arts. 1278a—1278x.

Art. 1269. [688] [612] May condemn land, etc.—If any such corporations shall require, for the construction or repair of its road, or any bridge thereof, any stone, timber or other material, from land adjoining to or near said road, and can not contract for the same with the owner thereof, such corporation may proceed to have the value of the same assessed; and the same proceedings shall be had therefor as is provided by law to be taken by railway corporations in like cases; and all macadam or plank road corporations shall have the right also to condemn, in like manner, and occupy, any quantity of land, not exceeding one acre at any one place, for the purpose of erecting toll-houses thereon. [P. D. 5976.]

Art. 1270. [689] [613] If road is out of repair, charter may be forfeited.—If any road, or any part thereof, after it shall have been completed, shall be suffered to be out of repair, so as to be impassable for the space of two months, unless when the same is being repaired, the company owning such road shall be liable to forfeit its corporate powers and privileges; and such forfeiture may be enforced by suit, as in other cases of forfeiture of charter by incorporated companies. [P. D. 5977.]

Art. 1271. [690] [614] Shall not collect tolls when road is out of repair.—If any such company shall suffer the road to be out of repair, to the injury, hindrance or delay of travelers, for an unreasonable time, such company shall have no right to collect tolls thereon until the same is again repaired. [P. D. 5977.]

Art. 1272. [691] [615] Width of road and how to be constructed.—All macadam or plank roads shall be opened not exceeding sixty feet wide, thirty feet of which shall be cleared of brush and logs; and at least sixteen feet in width shall be made an artificial road, composed of stone, gravel, wood or other convenient material, in such manner as to secure a firm and substantial road. [P. D. 5978.]

Art. 1273. [692] [616] No toll-gates permitted in town, etc.—No company, or association of individuals, which has been, or may hereafter be, incorporated, for the purpose of making such road, shall erect or keep any toll-gate, or receive any toll within the corporate limits of any incorporated city, town or village, or within one-half mile of such limits. [P. D. 5978.]

Art. 1274. [693] [617] Tolls to be regulated by commissioners' court.—As soon as such road shall have been completed, or any part thereof, not less than five miles together in any part of the road, unless the same is less than five miles long, and so from time to time, as often as five miles in addition shall be completed adjoining any five miles previously constructed, the commissioners' court of the county in which such finished road lies, or, in case the road lies in two or more counties, the commissioners' court of either of said counties, shall, on application of the agent of the company, appoint threejudicious house-holders, who shall, on oath, examine the same, and report their opinion to the court in writing; and, if such report shall state that the road, or such part thereof, be completed agreeably to the provisions of this chapter, the court shall by license, in writing, authorize the company to erect gates at suitable distances and demand and receive of persons traveling such road the toll that may be fixed by the commissioners' court. [P. D. 5979.]

Art. 1275. [694] [618] Persons exempt from tolls.—Any person or persons going to or from public worship on the Sabbath, common schools and other institutions of learning, funerals, militia muster, the troops of the United States and of this state, may pass over such road free from toll. [P. D. 5980.]

Art. 1276. [695] [619] Mile posts and rates of toll.—All macadam or plank road companies shall put up a post or stone at the end of each mile, with the number from beginning of said road, fairly cut or painted thereon; and also in a conspicuous place near each gate shall be placed a board with the rates of toll painted thereon; and no toll shall be demanded unless such rates are kept up. [P. D. 5981.]

Art. 1277. [696] [620] Any person may complain of non-repairs; proceedings in such case.—If any macadam or plank road company shall fail to keep their road in repair for five days successively, any person may file a complaint in writing before any justice of the peace of the county, setting forth the nature of the defect complained of, designating the place in the road where it exists; and it shall be the duty of the justice to appoint two disinterested persons as inspectors, to meet at the place complained of, within five days, and, of the time and place of meeting, reasonable notice shall be given to the gate-keeper nearest to the place of meeting; and the inspectors shall then examine into the truth of the matter complained of; and, if they shall find the complaint to be true, they shall send a certified copy of the complaint and of the finding thereon to the keeper of each of the gates between which such defective place shall be, and thereafter no toll shall be received at such gates for the intermediate distance until the part of the road complained of shall be fully repaired; and the inspectors and justice of the peace shall be entitled to two dollars and a half per day for their services, and shall be paid by the company, if the complaint be sustained, and, if it shall fail, then by the complainant. [P. D. 5982.]

Art. 1278. [697] [621] Travelers practicing fraud may be sued, etc.—If any person using any part of said road shall, with intent to defraud such company, falsely represent himself to any toll-gatherer as entitled to exemption from paying toll, or shall make any untrue statement as to the distance he has traveled or intends to travel on the road, or shall practice any fraudulent means, and thereby lessen or avoid the payment of tolls, each and every person concerned in any such fraudulent practices shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay such company the sum of five dollars, to be recovered by such company in an action of debt before any justice of the peace of the county where the offender may be found. [P. D. 5983.]

CHAPTER NINETEEN A TOLL ROAD CORPORATIONS

Art. 1278a. Authority for incorporation.—That for the purpose of encouraging the building and maintenance of good roads and highways in the state of Texas, it shall be lawful on and after the passage and taking effect of this act, to create private corporations for the purpose of conststructing, building, acquiring, owning, operating and maintaining toll roads within this state.  [Acts 1913, p. 143, sec. 1.]
Art. 1278a  CORPORATIONS—PRIVATE  (Title 25)

See Arts. 1268-1278.

Art. 1278b.  How created, etc.—Such corporations shall be created in the manner provided by the general incorporation laws of the state of Texas, as contained in the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of this state, and shall be subject to all of the provisions of such laws, except as the same may be herein changed, modified or amended.  [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1278c.  Who may incorporate.—Any number of persons, not less than five, being subscribers to the stock of any contemplated toll road, may be formed into a corporation for the purpose of constructing, building, acquiring, owning, operating and maintaining such toll roads, by complying with the requirements of this Act.  [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1278d.  Only domestic corporation authorized.—No corporation, except one chartered under the laws of the state of Texas, shall be authorized or permitted to construct, build, operate, acquire, own or maintain any toll road within this state.  [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1278e.  Articles of incorporation.—The persons proposing to form a toll road corporation shall adopt and sign articles of incorporation, which shall contain:
1.  The name of the proposed corporation.
2.  The places from and to which it is intended to construct the proposed toll road, and the intermediate counties through which it is proposed to construct the same.
3.  The place at which shall be established and maintained the principal business office of the proposed corporation.
4.  The time of the commencement and the period of continuation of the proposed corporation.
5.  The amount of the capital stock of the corporation.
6.  The names and places of residence of the several persons forming the association for incorporation.
7.  The names of the members of the first board of directors, and in what officers or persons the government of the proposed corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested.
8.  The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of the proposed corporation.  [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1278f.  Articles to be submitted to attorney general; certificate.—The articles of incorporation, when so prepared, adopted and signed, shall be submitted to the attorney general of the state, whose duty it shall be to carefully examine the same; and, if he finds them to be in accordance with the provisions of this Act and not in conflict with the laws of the United States or of this state, he shall attach thereto a certificate to that effect.  [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1278g.  Articles to be filed with secretary of state; affidavit; record; certificate.—When said articles have been examined and certified as provided in the preceding section, the same shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, accompanied by an affidavit in writing, signed and sworn to by at least three of the directors named in such articles, before some officer of the state authorized by law to administer oaths, which affidavit shall state that the entire amount of the capital stock of such proposed corporation has been in good faith subscribed, and that fifty per cent of the amount subscribed has been actually paid to the directors named in such articles; and the secretary of state shall cause such articles, together with said affidavit, to be recorded in his office, and shall attach a certificate of the fact of such record to said articles, and return the same to such corporation.  [Id. sec. 7.]
Art. 1278h. Corporation shall exist from time of filing articles, etc. —The existence of such corporation shall date from the filing of the articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state; and the certificate of the secretary of state, under the seal of the state, shall be evidence of such filing. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1278i. When body corporate. —When the articles of incorporation have been filed and recorded as herein provided, the persons named as corporators shall thereupon become and be deemed a body corporate, and be authorized to proceed to carry into effect the objects set forth in such articles, in accordance with the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1278j. Continuance of corporation; renewal. —No toll road corporation shall be formed to continue more than fifty years in the first instance, but such corporation may be renewed from time to time, for periods not longer than fifty years, in the manner provided for the renewal of railroad corporations by sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, of article 6414, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1278k. Amendment of articles. —Any such toll road corporation may amend or change its articles of incorporation in the manner provided for railroad corporations by articles 6418, 6419, 6421 and 6422, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1278l. May own and operate toll roads, etc. —Every such toll road corporation shall have the right to construct, build, acquire, own, operate and maintain toll roads between any points within this state. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1278m. Right of way over state lands, etc. —Every such corporation shall have the right of way for its line of road through and over any lands belonging to this state, and to use any earth, timber, stone or other material upon any such land necessary to the construction and operation of its road through or over said land. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1278n. May enter upon lands, make surveys, etc. —Every toll road corporation shall have the right to cause such examination and survey for its proposed road to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous route, and for such purposes may enter upon the lands or waters of any person or corporation, but subject to responsibility for all damage that may be occasioned thereby. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1278o. Width of road; cuttings, embankments, etc. —Every such toll road corporation shall have the right to lay out its road, not exceeding two hundred feet in width, and to construct the same; and for the purpose of cuttings and embankments to take as much more land as may be necessary for the proper construction and security of its road, and to cut down any standing trees that may be in danger of falling upon or obstructing such road, making compensation in the manner provided by law. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1278p. May cross railroads, etc. —Every such corporation shall likewise have the right to construct its road across any railroad, street railroad or interurban line within this state, which it may intersect or touch; provided that it shall properly fence such crossings, and restore, in other respects, the property thus intercepted or crossed to its former state. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 1278q. May cross streams, highways, canals, etc. —Every such corporation shall have the right to construct its road across any stream of water, water course, street, highway, plank road, turnpike or canal which the route of said road shall intersect or touch; but such corporation shall restore the stream, water course, street, highway, plank road, turnpike or canal thus intersected or touched to its former state, or to such state as not to unnecessarily impair its usefulness, and shall keep such crossings in repair. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1278r. Openings through fences, etc.—Every toll road corporation in this state which may fence its right of way may be required to make openings or crossings through its fence and over its roadbed every five miles thereof, in the manner provided with reference to railroad corporations by articles 6487, 6488, 6489, 6490, 6491, 6492 and 6493 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 1278s. Culverts, sluices, etc.—In no case shall any toll road corporation construct its road without first constructing the necessary culverts or sluices, as the natural lay of the land requires, for the necessary drainage thereof. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 1278t. May not obstruct navigable waters.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize the erection of any bridge or any other obstruction across or over any stream of water navigable by steamboats or sail vessels at the place where any bridge, or other obstruction, may be proposed to be placed so as to prevent the navigation of such stream of water. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1278u. Condemnation of property.—Every toll road corporation shall have and enjoy all of the rights, privileges and immunities conferred by and be subject to all of the provisions of articles 6502 to 6534, inclusive, of chapter eight of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 of the state of Texas relating to the condemnation of private lands and property by railroad corporations. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 1278v. Traffic rules and regulations; tolls.—Every toll road corporation shall have the power to promulgate, by its board of directors, all necessary and reasonable rules and regulations relating to the manner in which traffic shall move over any toll road operated by it, and to refuse the use of such road to any person who shall fail or refuse to abide by such rules and regulations; and shall be empowered to fix and charge tolls for the use of such roads; provided, that such rules and regulations shall not be contrary to law, and provided that the rate to be charged for each class of vehicle shall be the same to all in each of such classes. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 1278w. May not refuse reasonable use of road, etc.—No such corporation shall have the right arbitrarily to refuse the use of such road to any person who shall offer to pay the regular toll therefor, except that such corporation shall be authorized to refuse to permit such road to be used by any vehicle which shall render the same unduly hazardous to the patrons of said road or damaging to the surface thereof, or to any person who shall fail or refuse to abide by the reasonable and necessary traffic regulations promulgated by such corporation. [Id. sec. 23.]

Explanatory.—Sections 24 and 25 of this act make it criminal offenses to trespass upon or obstruct a toll road, and are omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 1278x. Laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 26.]

CHAPTER TWENTY

BRIDGE AND FERRY CORPORATIONS

Art. 1279. Distance between bridges and ferries regulated.

Art. 1280. Commissioners' court shall regulate tolls.

Art. 1281. Owner liable for damages.

Article 1279. [718] [642] Distance between bridges and ferries regulated.—Whenever any person or persons shall file with the secretary of state any article of association for the erection and maintenance of a bridge or ferry, it shall not be lawful for any other toll-bridge or toll-ferry to be established on the same stream within the limits specified in said article; provided, that said limits shall not extend more than three miles above and three miles below said bridge or ferry; and provided, further, that this article shall not be so construed as to prohibit bridges and ferries at the crossings of any road on such stream within such limits declared either before or after the erection of such bridge or ferry to be a public road by the commissioners' court of the county in which such crossing is situated. [Act April 23, 1874, sec. 79. P. D. 6011c.]

Application.—This article does not restrict the general authority granted by Art. 2241, except as to ferries from which there is no public road. The provision in said article that the same is not to be so construed as to prohibit ferries at the crossing of any road which the commissioners' court in the county in which such crossing is situated should declare to be a public road is an express recognition of the general authority of the commissioners' court to establish public roads and ferries whenever and wherever in its discretion the public may require. Alabama Ferry Co. v. Leathers, 30 C. A. 16, 69 S. W. 118.

Art. 1280. [719] [643] Commissioners' court shall regulate toll.—All charges or tolls for crossing any bridge or ferry shall be regulated by the commissioners' court by an order made at a regular term, and spread upon the minutes of said court, as provided in the case of other bridges and ferries. [Id. sec. 80. P. D. 6011d.]

Art. 1281. [720] [644] Owner liable for damages.—All persons or corporate companies owning any toll-bridge or ferry shall be liable for all damages caused by neglect, delay or the insufficiency of their bridge or ferryboat, which damages may be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 81. P. D. 6011e.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
GAS AND WATER CORPORATIONS

Article 1282. [705] [629] Privileges of such corporations.—Any gas or water corporation shall have full power to manufacture and sell and to furnish such quantities of water or gas as may be required by the city, town or village where located, for public or private buildings, or for other purposes; and such corporation shall have power to lay pipes, mains and conductors for conducting gas or water through the streets, alleys, lanes and squares in such city, town or village, with the consent of the municipal authorities thereof, and under such regulations as they may prescribe. Art. 1283. [706] [630] May contract with cities, etc.—The municipal authorities of any city, town or village, in which any gas, light or water corporation shall exist, are hereby authorized to contract with any such corporation for the lighting or supplying with water the streets, alleys, lots, squares and public places in any such city, town or village. [P. D. 5993.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE A

GAS, ELECTRIC CURRENT AND POWER CORPORATIONS

[See Arts. 1305-1308.]

Art. 1283a. Who may incorporate.—That any number of persons, not less than three, may organize themselves into a corporation for the purpose of generating, manufacturing, transporting and selling gas, electric current and power in this state. [Acts 1911, p. 228, sec. 1.]

Art. 1283b. Corporation, how organized.—The manner and method of organizing such corporations shall be the same as provided by law for the organization of private corporations under chapter 2, title 21, of the Revised Civil Statutes of the state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Chapter 2, Title 21, above cited, refers to the Revised Statutes of 1895. The provisions of said title and chapter are found in Title 25, Chapter 2, of this compilation.

Art. 1283c. Powers of corporation.—Such corporation shall have the power to generate, make and manufacture, transport and sell gas, electric current and power to individuals, the public and municipalities for light, heat, power and other purposes, and to make reasonable charges therefor; to construct, maintain and operate power plants and substations and such machinery, apparatus, pipes, poles, wires, devices and arrangements as may be necessary to operate such lines at and between different points in this state; to own, hold, and use such lands, rights of way, easements, franchises, buildings and structures as may be necessary for the purpose of such corporation. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1283d. Condemnation of property; poles; pipes.—Such corporation shall have the right and power to enter upon, condemn and appropriate the lands, rights of way, easements and property of any person or corporation, and shall have the right to erect its lines over and across any public road, railroad, railroad right of way, interurban railroad, street railroad, canal or stream in this state, and any street or alley of any incorporated city or town in this state, with the consent and under the direction of the governing board of such city or town. The manner and method of such condemnation shall be the same as is provided by law in the case of railroads, pipe lines, telephone and telegraph lines; provided, that such lines shall be constructed upon suitable poles in the most approved manner and maintained at a height above the ground of at least twenty-two (22) feet; or pipes may be placed under the ground as the exigencies of the case may require. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1283e. Power to borrow, issue stock, mortgage, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right to borrow money, to issue stock and preferred stock, to mortgage its franchises and property to secure the payment of any debt contracted for any of the purposes by such corporation, and shall possess all the rights and powers of corporations for profit in this state, wherever the same may be applicable to corporations of this character. [Id. sec. 5.]
Art. 1283f. May not discriminate.—It shall be unlawful for any corporation organized under this Act to discriminate against any person, corporation, firm, association or place in the charge for such gas, electric current or power, or in the service rendered under similar and like circumstances. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

SEWERAGE COMPANIES

Art. 1284. Corporation may condemn private property for sewers, etc., when, etc.

Article 1284. Corporation may condemn private property for sewers, etc., when, etc.—Every company or corporation heretofore incorporated under the laws of the state of Texas, or that may hereafter be incorporated under the laws of the state of Texas, for the purpose of owning, constructing or maintaining a system of sewerage in any city or town in this state, shall be, and are hereby, authorized and empowered to condemn private property through which to lay, construct and maintain sewer pipes, mains and laterals, and connections, and also private property upon which to maintain vats, filtration pipes and other pipes, such property to be used and occupied as a place for ultimate disposition of sewage, in or out of the town or city limits, whenever it be made to appear that the use of any such private property is necessary for successful operation of such sewer system, and when it be also made to appear that such sewer system is beneficial to the public use, health or convenience; provided, that the right of condemnation herein permitted shall not be invoked nor exercised within the corporate limits of the city or town except as permitted or required by the city or town granting franchise to the company or corporation seeking the right of condemnation. [Act 1899, p. 263, sec. 1.]

Art. 1285. Method same as for railways.—The method of procedure for the condemnation of property for purposes provided in article 1284 shall be the same, so far as applicable, as now provided by law of this state or that may be hereafter provided for entering and condemnation of rights of way for use in the construction and operation of railroads. [Id. 2.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Pollution of creek by sewer—Liability.—Plaintiff was entitled to recover for damages to his land by pollution of a creek flowing through it, caused by construction of sewers. New Odorless Sewerage Co. v. Wisdom, 30 C. A. 224, 70 S. W. 954.

Liability of city in construction of sewers.—See notes under Art. 999.

Power of city to own land, etc., for sewerage purposes.—See Art. 769 et seq.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

CEMETERY CORPORATIONS

Art. 1286. Incorporation and powers; charter to state what.

Art. 1287. Owners of lots shareholders, etc.

Art. 1288. Directors and officers chosen, how; married woman may be, etc.

Art. 1289. Power to acquire and hold land, including land dedicated to burial purposes.

Art. 1290. Owners of lots in dedicated land so purchased may participate in organization.

Art. 1291. Divisions of dedicated land so purchased, to be preserved, etc.

Art. 1292. Ground to be laid out, plotted, approved, attested and recorded.

Art. 1293. Corporation may make by-laws and regulations.

Art. 1294. Directors may make rules to keep lots in order, etc., but, etc.

Art. 1295. Meeting of lot owners to create corporation to take title, etc., notice of; majority determines action; selection of directors.

Art. 1296. Directors to elect officers.
Article 1286. Incorporation and powers; charter to state what.—Corporations for the purpose of owning and maintaining public or private cemeteries, or for the purpose only of maintaining and caring for cemeteries, may be formed under and in accordance with the provisions of this title, and when so organized, shall have and exercise all the powers conferred by this chapter. In framing a charter for such corporation, if desired to confer upon it the powers specified in this chapter, the charter shall state that the corporation is organized in pursuance of this chapter. [Acts 1907, p. 37, sec. 1.]

Art. 1287. Owners of lots shareholders, etc.—Each owner of a lot or lots which may be embraced in any cemetery subject to the provisions of this chapter shall be a shareholder in any corporation to which the land may belong, and shall be entitled to all rights and privileges of a shareholder, whether the title to the lot or lots was acquired from the corporation, or was owned before its organization. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1288. Directors and officers chosen how; married woman may be, etc.—The directors and officers of any corporation created in pursuance of this chapter shall be chosen under, and in accordance with, the provisions of this title, except that married women may be directors and officers in such corporations, and may perform any duties and execute any deed or contract appertaining to the duties of the office so held, without the concurrence of their husbands. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1289. Power to acquire and hold land, including land dedicated to burial purposes.—Every corporation organized under this chapter shall have the power to acquire, own and hold all lands and other property which may be necessary or suitable to the accomplishment of its purposes, and may acquire lands which have been previously dedicated to burial purposes, by conveyance from the person or persons in whom title may be, or from any person who may hold such land in trust, with the power to transfer it to preserve the trust. [Id. sec. 4.]

Title to land.—After dedication of land for cemetery purposes, the legal title remains in the corporation only for the purpose of conveying the lots to those who wish to buy for the purpose of sepulture, and the corporation cannot create debts on the faith of the land so dedicated, and lots conveyed cannot be sold under execution. Oakland Cemetery Co. v. People's Cemetery Ass'n, 34 T. 569, 57 S. W. 94, 55 L. R. A. 608; Sherman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1076.

Art. 1290. Owners of lots in dedicated land so purchased may participate in organization.—In case the land purchased as herein specified, or any portion of it, has been used as a cemetery, then the owners of lots therein shall have the right to participate in the organization of the corporation, and shall be shareholders therein after the company has been organized. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1291. Divisions of dedicated land so purchased, to be preserved, etc.—Whenever any corporations organized under this chapter shall acquire lands already used for burial purposes, the division of the said ground into lots, streets, etc., existing at the time of its acquisition, shall be preserved so far as is necessary to protect the rights of those who have already acquired lots therein. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1292. Ground to be laid out, plotted, approved, attested, and recorded.—It shall be the duty of any such corporation, after its organization, to cause the ground which it may acquire for cemetery purposes to be laid out in proper avenues and alleys, blocks and lots, as may be found convenient and necessary for the proper use thereof; and the corporation shall cause a plot to be made of said cemetery ground, which shall be approved by the board of directors, and shall be attested by the president and secretary of the corporation, after which it shall be recorded in the county clerk's office of the county. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1293. Corporation may make by-laws and regulations.—Every corporation organized under this chapter shall have the power to make all necessary by-laws as prescribed by this title, and also to make all rules and regulations necessary to govern in the sale of lots and the use of the same by the purchasers thereof. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1294. Directors may make rules to keep lots in order, etc., but, etc.—The board of directors shall have authority to make reasonable rules, requiring the lot owners to keep their lots clean from improper growth, so as to preserve the good order and proper appearance of the grounds, but shall not have power to require of any lot owner a particular character of improvement therein. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1295. Meeting of lot owners to create corporation to take title, etc.; notice of; majority determines action; selection of directors.—When it is desired to create a corporation under this chapter to receive the title to lands theretofore dedicated to the purpose of a cemetery, notice of the time and place of a meeting of the lot owners shall be published in a newspaper in the county, if there be one, for thirty days; and printed notices shall be posted at, and upon, such cemetery for thirty days prior to the time fixed for the meeting. When the lot owners and other persons uniting in the formation of the corporation shall assemble, the majority of those present and voting shall decide upon the question of incorporation, and the conveyance of the land to it. Such meeting shall select the board of directors to be named in the charter, which may consist of lot owners alone, or persons may be chosen as directors who are not owners of lots in the cemetery. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1296. Directors to elect officers.—The board of directors shall elect the officers of such corporation required by this title. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1297. Corporation not required to make reports.—Corporations formed under this chapter shall be exempt from any provision of law requiring periodical reports to be made to any department of the state government. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1298. City council may control location of cemetery and limit price of lots.—The city council of any city in which the cemetery is to be located shall have the power to control the location of any such cemetery, and to prescribe the maximum price at which lots therein shall be sold to the public. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1299. Commissioners' court may limit price of lots of cemetery outside of city.—When any such cemetery is located without the limits of any city, the commissioners' court of such county shall have the power to prescribe the maximum at which lots therein shall be sold. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1300. [715] [639] Powers of.—Cemetery corporations shall have power to divide the land of the cemetery into lots and subdivisions for the purposes of the cemetery, and to tax the property for the purpose of its general improvement. [P. D. 6002.]

Art. 1301. [716] [640] May convey lots for purposes of sepulture.—Such corporation shall have power to convey, by deed or otherwise, any lot or lots of the cemetery for purposes of sepulture. When such lots shall have been surveyed and platted, the survey and plat shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county wherein the same are situated, and shall not afterward be changed or altered. No lots shall be sold or disposed of until such plat shall have been recorded. [P. D. 6003.]
Art. 1302. [717] [641] Owners of lots are members of corporation.—All owners of lots purchased of any such corporation shall become members thereof, and be entitled to vote in the election of its officers and upon any other matters to the same extent as stockholders in other corporations. [P. D. 6004.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

OIL, GAS, SALT, ETC., COMPANIES

[See Arts. 1233a-1233f.]

Art. 1303. How corporation may be formed.—Any number of persons, not less than three, may organize themselves into a corporation for the purpose of storing, transporting, buying and selling of oil and gas, salt, brine and other mineral solutions in this state. [Acts 1899, p. 202, sec. 1.]

Art. 1304. Same subject.—The manner and method of organizing such corporations shall be the same as provided by law for the organization of private corporations in chapter 2 of this title, and the provisions of this chapter shall apply to all corporations already organized for any of the purposes of this chapter. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1305. Powers of corporation.—Such corporations shall have power to store and transport oil and gas, brine and other mineral solutions, and to make reasonable charges therefor; to buy, sell and furnish oil and gas for light, heat and other purposes; to lay down, construct, maintain and operate pipe lines, tubes, tanks, pump stations, connections, fixtures, storage houses, and such machinery, apparatus, devices and arrangements as may be necessary to operate such pipes and pipe lines between different points in this state; to own, hold, use and occupy such lands, rights of way, easements, franchises, buildings and structures as may be necessary to the purpose of such corporation. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1306. Right of condemnation.—Such corporation shall have the right and power to enter upon, condemn and appropriate the lands, rights of way, easements and property of any person or corporation, and shall have the right to lay its pipes and pipe lines across and under any public road or under any railroad, railroad right of way, street railroad, canal or stream in this state, and to lay its pipes and pipe lines across or along and under any street or alley in any incorporated city or town in this state, with the consent and under the direction of the board of aldermen or city council of such city or town. The manner and method of such condemnation shall be the same as is provided by law in the case of railroads; provided, that such pipes or pipe lines shall not pass through or under any cemetery, church or college, school house, residence, business or store house, or through or under any building in this state, except by the consent of the owner or owners thereof; and provided, further, that all such pipes and pipe lines, when same shall pass through or over the cultivated or improved lands of another, shall be well buried under ground at least twenty inches under the surface, and such surface shall be properly and promptly restored by such corporation unless otherwise consented to by the owner or owners of such land; provided, further, that, if such pipes or pipe lines shall be laid over or along any uncultivated or unimproved lands of another, and such lands shall thereafter become cultivated or improved, such pipes or pipe lines shall be buried by said corporation as hereinbefore provided, within a reasonable time after notice by the owner of such lands, or his agent, to said corporation or any agent thereof; and provided, further, that whenever such pipes or pipe lines shall cross any public road or highway, railroad, street railroad, or street or alley, the said pipes and pipe lines shall be so buried and covered as not to interfere with the use and occupancy of such road, highway, street or alley by the public, or use and occupancy of such railroad or street railroad by the owner or owners thereof; and provided, further, that such pipe lines so laid shall not exceed eight inches in diameter. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1307. Right to borrow money, issue stock, mortgage franchises, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right to borrow money, to issue stock and preferred stock, to mortgage its franchises and property to secure the payment of any debt contracted for any of the purposes of such corporation, and shall possess all the rights and powers of corporations for profit in this state, wherever the same may be applicable to corporations of this character. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1308. Discrimination unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any corporation organized under this chapter to discriminate against any person, corporation, firm, association, or place in the charge for such storage or transportation, or in the service rendered, but shall receive, store or transfer oil or gas for any person, corporation, firm or association upon equal terms, charges and conditions with all other persons, corporations, firms, or associations for like service. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

BOND INVESTMENT COMPANIES

Art. 1309. Deposit with state treasurer.—Every corporation, company or individual, doing business in this state as a bond investment company, or company to place or sell bonds, certificates or debentures on the partial payment or installment plan, shall, and the same is hereby required to, deposit with the state treasurer, in cash or securities approved by the state treasurer, the sum of five thousand dollars; and, in addition thereto, they shall be required to deposit semi-annually with the state treasurer, in cash or securities, to be approved by said officer, ten per cent of all the net premiums received, until the sum deposited shall amount to the sum of one hundred thousand dollars. [Acts 1897, p. 119.]

Art. 1310. Forfeiture of charter in default of deposit; attorney general to sue for; and receivership; duties of receiver, etc.—If any such company, being a domestic corporation, shall fail, for sixty days after the passage of this act, or for sixty days after the organization of such company, to make with the state treasurer the deposit required by this act, it shall be considered to have forfeited its charter; and the attorney general shall, immediately upon receiving information thereof, bring suit in the name of the state, in the district court of Travis county, to have such charter or certificate of incorporation declared forfeited and of no effect, and said court shall declare such charter forfeited, and appoint a receiver for such company, whose duty it shall be, under the order of the court, to distribute to the shareholders the assets of the company. The court shall, out of the assets of the company, make such allowance for compensation for the receiver as shall be equitable and just. [Id. sec. 2.]

Non-resident creditor.—A non-resident creditor has the same right as a resident to participate in the distribution of the fund, when a charter is forfeited and the assets distributed under orders of the court. Morrell v. Colonial Security Co., 101 T. 306, 107 S. W. 555.

Art. 1311. In case of failure of corporation, receiver appointed how; duties; deposit used; treasurer to pay out how.—In case of the failure of any company covered by this chapter, the district court of the county or city in which the principal office is located, upon the application of one or more shareholders, shall appoint a receiver for such company, whose duty it shall be to wind up its affairs, liquidate its debts, and distribute its assets, using therefor, upon the order of the court, the deposit previously made, to secure the shareholders, with the state treasurer; and the state treasurer is hereby authorized to pay out such deposit in accordance with requisitions made upon the state comptroller by said receiver, and approved by the court, upon the warrant of the state comptroller. [Id. sec. 4.]

Power of court.—The court is without power to order the comptroller to draw its warrant on the treasurer, before the rights of the parties interested in the fund have been adjudicated, and the debts established. Ex parte Stephens, 100 T. 167, 94 S. W. 327.

The court has authority to demand, and it is the duty of the comptroller, upon the order of the court, to draw a warrant upon the treasurer for the funds deposited in his department to be disposed of by the court. The funds and assets of the corporation in the treasury should be surrendered to the court to be distributed according to its judgment. Hart v. Stephens, 100 T. 413, 100 S. W. 136.

Foreign or domestic investors.—The deposits are for the benefit of non-resident as well as resident creditors. Morrell v. Colonial Security Co., 101 T. 306, 107 S. W. 628, reversing (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 241.

Art. 1312. Interchange of cash and securities in deposit; approval of attorney general.—At any time, when requested so to do by any company, such as is mentioned in this chapter, the state treasurer is hereby authorized to permit such company to interchange cash for the securities, or securities for the cash, deposited by such company with the state treasurer, under the provisions of this chapter, such securities always to be approved by the state treasurer on the written advice of the attorney general. [Acts 1901, p. 282.]

Art. 1313. Return of deposit in what case.—Should any such company, such as is mentioned in this act, cease to do business in this state, and shall satisfy the comptroller and the attorney general that it has no liabilities in this state, the comptroller shall issue his warrant to the state treasurer; and the state treasurer is authorized, and it is made his duty, upon such warrant of the comptroller, to return to such company the cash or securities deposited by it under the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE A BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

Art. 1313a. Who may incorporate; purposes; articles; acknowledgment; contents.

Art. 1313bb. Bonds of financial officers; directors may require additional sureties; directors not to be sureties.

Art. 1313c. Shares; payment in installments; advance payments; series; nature of property in shares; retirement; lien; new shares; increase of capital stock.

Art. 1313cc. Meetings of directors; loans; priority of loans; persons not members; security; number of payments; duties of commissioner of insurance and banking; loans to non-members.
Article 1313a. Who may incorporate; purposes; articles; acknowledgment; contents.—Any number of persons, not less than five, who are residents of this state, desiring to organize a building and loan association for the purpose of building and improving homesteads, removing incumbrances therefrom, and loaning money to the members thereof, may, by complying with the provisions of this Act, and entering into articles of association, become a corporate body. Said articles of association shall be signed by persons associating and acknowledged before some person authorized by the laws of this state to take acknowledgments to deeds, and shall set forth:

First, the name assumed by the association, which shall not be the same assumed by any other association incorporated under this Act, nor so similar as to be liable to mislead.

Second, the purpose for which the association is formed.

Third, the amount of its authorized capital stock; and the number of shares into which it is divided; the par value of each share; and the number of shares subscribed for, which shall not be less than fifty in number.

Fourth, the names of the incorporators; their respective residences and the number of shares subscribed by each.

Fifth, the term of its corporate existence, which shall not exceed fifty years.

See annotations at end of chapter.

Article 1313aa. Approval of articles; copy to commissioner of insurance and banking; recording with county clerk; effect; proviso.—When executed as aforesaid, said articles of association shall be approved by, and filed with the secretary of state, and a copy thereof, duly authenticated under the hand and seal of state, shall be delivered to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall file the same in his office, and a like copy thereof shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which the principal office of such association is located; whereupon the persons named in the articles of association, their associates and successors, shall become a corporate body for the period for which they were organized, and shall exercise such powers as are herein granted, and such other powers as are necessary to enable such association to carry out the purpose of its organization, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act; provided, that before such association shall proceed to business it shall adopt by-laws for the regulation and management of its business. Said by-laws shall not become operative until a copy thereof, duly certified by the president and secretary of the association shall have been approved by and filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and when so approved and filed the said commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue his certificate of such approval and filing and thereupon said association may proceed to business. The provisions of this Act shall not apply to loan corporations heretofore incorporated under the laws of Texas loaning money on real estate, or improvements thereon, in cities of this state of more than thirty thousand inhabitants and not requiring the borrowers to be members thereof, or holders of shares in such corporations, and which have been doing business for as long as ten years prior to the passage of this Act. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1313b. Board of directors; election.—The corporate powers of every building and loan association heretofore organized under the laws of this state, or which may be incorporated under this Act, shall be exercised by a board of directors of not less than five (5) members, who shall elect from their own number the officers of the association. The mode of electing members of said board of directors and officers, and their respective terms of office shall be prescribed in the by-laws. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1313bb. Bonds of financial officers; directors may require additional sureties; directors not to be sureties.—The secretary and treasurer of such association, and all other officers who sign and endorse checks, have charge of money or securities of such association, shall, before entering upon the duties of their office, each give such bond for the faithful performance of the same as shall be required and approved by the board of directors. Additional sureties or such increase of said bond as they may deem necessary, may be required at any time by the board of directors. Directors shall not be accepted as sureties on such bonds, and shall be individually liable for any loss sustained through their negligence or failure to comply with the provisions of this section. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1313c. Shares; payment in installments; advance payments; series; nature of property in shares; retirement; lien; new shares; increase of capital stock.—The authorized capital stock of such association shall be divided into shares having a par value of not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, each, payable in periodical installments, called dues, not exceeding two dollars per month on each share; provided, that the by-laws may provide for the advance payment of installment dues and for which there may be issued an advance payment certificate. The shares may be issued in series, or at any time as the by-laws shall determine and subscriptions therefor shall be made payable to the association. Said shares shall be deemed personal property, transferrable on the books of the association in the manner prescribed in the by-laws, and shall be paid off and retired as the by-laws shall direct. Every share shall be subject to a lien for the payment of unpaid dues and such other charges as may be lawfully incurred thereon.
under the provisions of this Act, and the by-laws may prescribe the manner of enforcing such lien. New shares may be issued in lieu of shares matured, withdrawn, retired, or forfeited; but at no time shall the shares issued and in force exceed the aggregate number of shares into which the authorized capital stock is divided as designated in the articles of the association; provided, further, that any building and loan association heretofore or hereafter incorporated under the laws of this state, or any shareholders, or by-laws, in any manner not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act; but no such increase of authorized capital stock shall be made or transferred, or in effect for until a copy of such resolution, certified by the president and secretary of such association, shall be filed, approved and recorded in the same manner as is provided in section two of this Act for the filing and recording of original articles of association and the filing and approval of by-laws. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1313cc. Meetings of directors; loans; priority of loans; no loans to persons not members; security; number of payments; duties of commissioner of insurance and banking; loans to non-members.—At such times as the by-laws shall designate, not less frequently than once a month, the board of directors shall hold meetings, at which the funds in the treasury applicable for loans shall be loaned to the members who, in open competition, shall bid the highest premium for priority of right to a loan; or in lieu thereof, such funds may be loaned, either with or without premium, as the borrower may, in writing agree to pay, in which case the priority of right to a loan shall be decided by the priority of the application therefor. The manner in which said premium may be paid shall be prescribed in the by-laws. No loans shall be made by such association to anyone not a member thereof (except as hereinafter provided), nor to any member for an amount greater than the par value of the shares held by such member. Borrowers shall be required to give real estate security, unencumbered except by the prior liens held by such association, accompanied by a transfer and pledged to the association the shares borrowed upon as collateral security for the payment of the loan; provided, that no loan made upon real estate security shall exceed in amount two-thirds of the appraised valuation of such real estate; provided further, that the shares of such association may be received as security for the loan of an amount not to exceed ninety per cent of the withdrawal value of such shares; provided further, that, subject to the approval of the commissioner of insurance and banking, the number of payment of dues, interest and premium required from the borrowing stockholder to pay off his loan and secure a release of his encumbrance may be limited to such a definite number as the by-laws may provide; and provided further, that when the funds in the treasury applicable for loans shall accumulate and be in excess of the amount required for loans to members, they may be loaned to non-members upon real estate securities unencumbered by prior liens in an amount not to exceed fifty per cent of the appraised value of such securities, or may be invested in such securities as are authorized to be accepted by savings banks in this state, but at no time shall such loans and investment exceed twenty per cent of the assets. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1313d. Failure of borrower to offer security; interest, premium and expense; forfeiture of pledge on default; proviso.—If the borrower neglects to offer security satisfactory to the board of directors within the time prescribed by the by-laws, his or her right to the loan shall be forfeited, and he or she shall be charged with interest or premium, if any, for one month, together with any expense incurred and the money appropriated for such loan may be reloaned at the next or any subsequent meeting.

Whenever a borrowing shareholder shall be in arrears in the payment of dues, interest or premium for more than four months the board of directors may, at their discretion, declare the pledged shares forfeited, and the whole amount of the loan due and payable, and its collection, together with the arrears of interest, premium and fines, may be enforced by proceedings upon the security held by the association, in accordance with law; provided, that the withdrawal value of the pledged shares, at the time of the commencement of the foreclosure proceedings shall be credited upon the loan. [Id. sec. 7]

Art. 1313dd. Payment of loans; amount; credit for part of premium; retention of membership.—Any borrowing shareholder desiring to repay his loan shall have the privilege of doing so at any time, by giving the association thirty days written notice of such intention. The borrower shall be charged with the amount of the original loan, together with all the arrearages of interest, premium and fines and other legal charges, and shall be given credit for the withdrawal value of his shares pledged as security; and the balance shall be received by the association in full satisfaction of said loan; provided, that in cases where the premium is deducted from the loan in a gross sum, and the borrower repays the loan before the expiration of the tenth year from the date upon which said loan was made, such borrower shall be given credit for one-tenth of the premium paid for every year of the said ten years then unexpired; provided further, that any borrower desiring to retain his or her shares and membership may repay his loan without claiming credit for the withdrawal value of said shares whereupon said shares shall be retransferred to him or her, and shall be free from any claim by reason of said loan. [Id. sec. 8]

Art. 1313e. Meaning of "withdrawal value."—By the term "withdrawal value" as used herein is meant: The then value of the stock at the time indicated in the connection in which the words are used less the lawful charges against such shares in favor of the corporation. [Id. sec. 9]

Art. 1313ee. Neglect to elect officers not to terminate corporation.—No corporation or association created under this Act shall cease or expire from neglect on the part of the corporation to elect officers at the time mentioned in their by-laws, and all officers elected to such corporation shall hold their offices until their successors are duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 10]

Art. 1313f. Purchase of security at judicial or other sale; disposition.—Any loan or building association incorporated by or under this Act is hereby authorized and empowered to purchase at any sheriff's or other judicial sale, or at any other sale, public or private, any real estate upon which such association may have or hold any mortgage, lien or other incumbrance, or in which said association may have an interest for the purpose of collecting any debt due it, or for the protection of its interest in such real estate, and the real estate so purchased to sell, convey, lease or mortgage, at pleasure to any person or persons whomsoever, and to the highest bidder after advertising same in some local paper for four consecutive weeks. [Id. sec. 11]

Art. 1313ff. Extension of corporate existence by vote of stockholders; report to secretary of state; filing with commissioner of insurance and banking.—Any loan or building association incorporated under this Act, or any prior act, may extend the duration of time for which said association was organized by a vote of two-thirds of the capital stock of such association represented and voting at any annual meeting of the stockholders of such association, or at any special meeting called for that purpose; thereupon the board of directors shall transmit a copy of the proceedings of such annual meeting or of such special meeting, duly attested, to the secretary of state, who shall make a duly authenticated copy thereof, as provided in said section three of this Act, certifying to the extension of time of such corporation, and the same shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking and recorded as provided in said section three of this Act, and any building and loan association incorporated under any prior act, and extending the duration of the time for which it was incorporated, in the manner herein provided, shall be deemed as incorporated under and be invested with all the power given in this Act, the same as though such corporation had been originally incorporated under it. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1313g. Publication of statement of financial condition.—Each association formed under the provisions of this Act shall, at the close of its first year's operations, and annually at the same period in each year thereafter publish in at least one newspaper published in the same place where its principal office may be located, or if no newspaper be published in such place, then in the newspaper published nearest such place, a concise statement, verified by the oaths of its president and secretary, showing the actual financial condition of the association, and the amount of its property and liabilities, specifying the same particularly. [Id.
sec. 13.]

Art. 1313gg. Supervision by commissioner of insurance and banking; proviso.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall have supervision of all building and loan associations doing business in this state, and shall be charged with the execution of the laws of this state relating to such association; provided, that during the absence or disability of the commissioner of insurance and banking his chief clerk or deputy shall be authorized to perform all the duties relating to the con-rol and supervision of such associations and the execution of the laws above described. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1313h. Financial statement; filing with commissioner of insurance and banking; contents; penalty for failure; investigation.—Every building and loan association doing business within this state shall, on the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a full and detailed statement of its financial condition on the 31st day of the preceding December, and the business transacted during the preceding year within this state. Said statement shall set forth the amount and character of its assets, liabilities, receipts and disbursements, and shall contain such other information, and be in such form as the commissioner of insurance and banking may prescribe, and shall be subscribed and sworn to by the secretary and treasurer of such association. Any such association refusing or neglecting to file the annual statement herein required within the period hereinbefore prescribed shall forfeit five dollars per day for each and every day such statement shall be withheld, and the commis-ioner of insurance and banking may maintain an action in the name of the state to recover such penalty, which, upon its collection, shall be paid into the state treasury. And shall within thirty days after such refusal to file such annual statement investigate the affairs of the association, and if found in a failing condition take charge of its affairs. [Id.
sec. 15.]

Art. 1313hh. Examination by commissioner of insurance and banking; special examiners; compensation.—Once in each year, or oftener, if in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance and banking it shall be necessary the commissioner of insurance and banking shall make or cause to be made, an examination into the affairs of all building and loan associations doing business in this state. Such examinations shall be full and complete, and in making the same the examiner shall have full access to, and may compel the production of all books, papers and moneys, etc., of the association under examination, and may administer oaths to and examine the officers of such association or any other person connected therewith, as to its business and affairs.

The commissioner of insurance and banking may appoint such special examiners as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act. Such examiner shall be paid at the rate of eight dollars per day; they shall also receive necessary traveling expenses connected with the duties of their office, which shall be paid by the state treasurer on the warrant of the commissioner of insurance and banking and the approval of the governor. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 1313i. Financial unsoundness or mismanagement; duties of commissioner of insurance and banking; suit by attorney general; liquidation; receiver; dissolution.—Whenever it shall appear to the commissioner of insurance and banking that the affairs of any such association are in an unsound condition, or that it is conducting its business in an unsafe or unlawful manner, such commissioner shall at once notify the board of directors of such association, giving them twenty days in which to restore its affairs to a safe and sound condition, or to discontinue its illegal practices. If after twenty days such restoration shall have not been made, or such illegal practices shall have not been discontinued, said commissioner may order one of the examiners, appointed to examine such association, or a special examiner appointed for the purpose, to take possession of all books, records and assets of every description of such association and hold and retain possession of the same pending the further proceedings hereinafter specified. Should the board of directors, secretary or person in charge of such association refuse to permit the said examiner to take possession aforesaid, said commissioner shall communicate such fact to the attorney general, whereupon the attorney general shall at once institute such proceedings as may be necessary to place such examiner in immediate possession of the property of such association. Upon taking possession of the effects of the association as aforesaid, said examiner shall prepare a full and true statement of the affairs and conditions of such association, including an itemized statement of its assets and liabilities, and shall receive and collect all debts, dues and claims belonging to it, and may pay the immediate and reasonable expense of his trust. Said examiner shall be required to execute to the commissioner of insurance and banking a good and sufficient bond, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as custodian of such association, which said bond shall be approved by said commissioner.

The commissioner of insurance and banking shall, within fifteen days next after said examiner has acquired possession of the property of such association, convene a special meeting of the shareholders for the purpose of considering and acting upon the examiner's report of the affairs and conditions of such association as found by him from his examinations thereof. The shareholders may, at said special meeting, by the votes of those owning two-thirds of the shares in force, resolve to go into liquidation, and for that purpose may, by a majority vote of those present, elect from among their number a receiver and fix his compensation. The compensation to be allowed a receiver under this Act shall be an amount reasonably in proportion to the value of the property of the association, and in no event shall exceed $2500.00 per annum. A copy of said resolution, duly certified by the presiding officer and secretary of said special meeting, together with the name and address of the receiver thus elected, shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking. Said receiver shall be charged with a proper distribution of the assets, discharge of all liabilities and final closing up of the business of such association, and before he shall enter upon the duties of his office he shall be required to execute to the association a good and sufficient bond, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties, which shall be approved by and filed with said commissioner. Upon the election and qualification of said receiver as aforesaid, the said examiner shall, when so ordered by the commissioner of insurance and banking, turn over and deliver to said receiver all the books, papers, money and effects of every description in his hands belonging to such association. Said receiver shall, upon the completion of said duties intrusted to him, prepare a statement to that effect, reciting therein that all of the liabilities of such association have been completely discharged and its assets and property distributed among all the persons entitled thereto. Said statement shall be subscribed and sworn to by said receiver and filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and a notice of such dissolution shall be published for three successive weeks in any newspaper published in the county wherein the principal office of such association is located. Upon the filing of said statement and making publication as aforesaid, such association shall be deemed dissolved. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1313ii. Liquidation by shareholders not possible; injunction and receivership.—If after having called a meeting of the shareholders as herein provided, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall find that liquidation by the shareholders can not be had or consummated, he shall communicate such fact, together with a statement of the condition of the association to the attorney general, who shall thereupon institute the necessary proceedings to enjoin such association from doing any further business, and for the appointment of a receiver therefor. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 1313j. Shareholders in arrears; forfeiture; withdrawal value. —If a shareholder be in arrears in the payment of dues upon unpledged shares, the board of directors may, if the shareholder fails to pay the amount of arrears within thirty days after notice, declare said shares forfeited. The withdrawal value of said shares at the time of forfeiture shall be ascertained and paid to such shareholder upon such notice as the by-laws may prescribe, provided, that fines for the non-payment of dues, interest or premium shall not exceed one per cent per month on each dollar in arrears. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 1313jj. Gross earnings; apportionment; reserve; expense fund.—The gross earnings of every building and loan association shall be ascertained at least once in each year, from which shall be deducted a sufficient amount to meet the operating expenses of such association, and from said earnings only shall such expenses be paid. From the balance of the earnings there shall be set aside at least one per cent annually as a reserve fund, until such fund reaches five per cent of the outstanding loans, at which rate it shall thereafter be maintained and held by annual appropriations from the earnings. From said reserve fund shall be paid all losses sustained by said association from depreciation of securities or otherwise. After providing for expenses of the association, and the reserve fund, as aforesaid, the residue of such earnings shall be transferred and apportioned to the credit of shareholders as the association by its by-laws shall provide. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1313k. Consolidation of associations; non-consenting stockholders; proviso.—At the annual meeting, or at any meeting called for that purpose, any two or more building and loan associations organized under the laws of this state may by two-thirds of the vote of all shareholders of each of the different associations resolve to consolidate into one upon such terms as shall be mutually agreed upon by the directors of such associations. Any shareholder not consenting to such consolition shall be entitled to receive the withdrawal value of his stock in settlement, or, if a borrower, to have such value applied in part settlement of his loan; provided, that such consolidation shall not take effect until a copy of said resolution, certified by a majority of the board of directors of each association, shall be filed with the secretary of state, and with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and recorded in the manner hereinbefore provided. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 1313l. Voluntary dissolution; sale of property to other association; filing statement with commissioner of insurance and banking.
—At the annual meeting, or at any meeting called for that purpose, any building and loan association of this state may, by a vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of the shares in force, resolve to liquidate and dissolve the corporation. In order to facilitate such dissolution the board of directors may, if they deem advisable, sell and transfer the mortgage securities and other property of such association to another corporation, person or persons, subject, however, to the vested and accrued rights of the mortgagors; provided, that before said resolution shall have effect, a copy thereof, certified by the president and secretary of such association, together with an itemized statement of its assets and liabilities, sworn to by a majority of directors, shall be filed with the commissioner of banking and insurance. After filing a copy of the resolution as aforesaid, it shall be unlawful for such association to issue stock or make any loans, but all of its income and receipts, in excess of actual expense of management, shall be applied to the discharge of its liabilities. [Id. sec. 22.]

Explanatory.—Section 23 defines certain offenses by officers of the association, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 1313m. Report by commissioner of insurance and banking to governor; printing.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, shall, annually, at the earliest possible date after the statements of such associations are received, make a report to the governor of the general conduct and condition of all building and loan associations doing business in this state, including the information contained in such statements, arranged in tabular form together with such suggestions as he may deem expedient. There shall be printed of said report as many copies as the commissioner of insurance and banking shall deem necessary. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 1313n. Fees; limitation of amount.—Every building and loan association organized under the laws of this state shall be subject to and pay to the secretary of state the following fees, which fees shall be paid into the state treasury, to wit: for filing articles of associations, by-laws, amendments, or any other paper, one dollar; for making and certifying to articles of association, by-laws, or any other paper required to be filed with the secretary of state, twenty cents per folio of one hundred words; for making the annual examinations herein provided, one seventy-fifth part of one per cent of the gross amount of assets of such association, which fee shall be paid at the time of filing its annual statement, and shall at the same time pay to the secretary of state an annual franchise tax of ten dollars; provided, that the examination fee of any association shall not be less than twenty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars in any one year; provided, further, that the expense incurred and services, other than examinations performed especially for such association shall be paid in full by such association. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 1313o. Foreign associations; subject to domestic laws.—The foreign building and loan associations doing business in this state shall conduct the same in accordance with the laws of this state governing domestic building and loan associations, and shall comply with all requirements of said laws, except as herein provided. [Id. sec. 26.]
Art. 1313p. Foreign associations; procuring certificate of authority; prerequisites; agreement as to service of process; deposit.—No foreign building and loan association shall do any business in this state until it shall procure from the secretary of state a certificate of authority to do so. To procure such certificate of authority such foreign association shall comply with the following provisions:

First. It shall file with the secretary of state a certified copy of its articles of incorporation, a copy of its by-laws and rules governing it, and of its certificates and all printed matter issued by it, together with a statement of its financial condition such as is required annually from all building and loan associations organized under the laws of this state.

Second. It shall file with the secretary of state a written instrument, properly executed, agreeing that any summons or process of any court in this state may issue against it from any county in this state, and when served upon the secretary of state, shall be accepted irrevocably as a valid service upon such foreign association; provided, however, that the secretary of state shall mail a copy of such legal process served upon him to the home office of such foreign association, and the secretary of state shall, within six days, certify to the court from which such summons or process issued the fact of such mailing. The plaintiff shall for each process so served pay to the secretary of state, at the time of such service, a fee of two dollars, which shall be recovered by the plaintiff as part of the taxable costs if he prevail in the suit.

Third. It shall deposit with the secretary of state one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), either in cash or bonds of the United States, or bonds of any state in the United States, or bonds of any county or municipal corporation in the state of Texas, or mortgages, being first liens on improved and productive real estate located within this state, and worth at least twice the amount of the liens, or furnish surety company bond in said sum of $100,000; which securities or surety company bond shall be approved by the secretary of state. Said deposit shall be held as security for all claims of residents of this state against such foreign associations, and shall be liable for all judgments or decrees thereon; and said securities shall not be released until all shares of such foreign associations held by residents of this state shall have been fully redeemed and paid off, and its contracts and obligations to residents of this state shall have been fully performed and discharged. Such foreign associations may collect and use the interest on any securities so deposited, so long as it fulfills its obligations and complies with the provisions of this Act. It may also exchange them for other securities of equal value, if satisfactory to the secretary of state; provided, that if the business of such associations be solely that of lending money in this state, and that it sells none of its stock except where loans are actually made on real estate in this state for the full amount of the stock so sold, and made at the time of the sale of such stock, then in such event the provisions of this Act requiring a deposit bond of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) shall not apply. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 1313q. Securities deposited with secretary of state; deposit with state treasurer; withdrawal.—All such securities deposited with the secretary of state shall be immediately deposited by him with the state treasurer, who, with his sureties, shall be responsible for the safe keeping thereof. The state treasurer shall deliver such securities only upon the written order of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 1313r. Foreign associations; certificate to commissioner of insurance and banking; certification to secretary of state.—Whenever such foreign association has complied with the provisions of this Act, the secretary of state shall so certify to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and thereupon such foreign association, shall also furnish to the commissioner of insurance and banking a full and complete financial statement of its affairs duly sworn to by its president and secretary, together with such other information as said commissioner of insurance and banking may require, which said report shall be filed annually thereafter. And if the commissioner of insurance and banking is satisfied that such association is in sound financial condition and shall be satisfied that such foreign association is conducting its business in accordance with the laws of this state, and shall regard it safe, reliable and entitled to public confidence, he shall so certify to the secretary of state, who shall issue certificate of authority and renewals of such certificate of authority upon the payment of the fees as herein provided. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 1313s. Foreign associations; fees.—All foreign building and loan associations shall pay to the secretary of state the following fees, which shall be paid into the state treasury, to-wit: For filing each application for admission to do business in this state, fifty dollars ($50.00) for each certificate of authority and annual renewal of the same, twenty-five dollars ($25.00) and an annual franchise tax of two hundred and fifty ($250.00) dollars. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 1313t. Foreign associations; satisfaction of judgments from deposited securities; proceedings; deficiency.—If at any time any shareholder of such foreign association residing in this state, shall recover judgment against such foreign association, and which after thirty days shall not have been satisfied the state treasurer, upon an order from the secretary of state, shall proceed to sell at the current market value, sufficient of the bonds, or collect sufficient of the mortgage securities deposited with him to satisfy the amount of such judgment, together with five per cent for his services and expense; provided, that before ordering the state treasurer to dispose of such securities as aforesaid, the secretary of state shall be served with an affidavit by the plaintiff or his attorney, setting forth the recovery of judgment, and that the same has remained unpaid for thirty days, and that no proceedings are pending for appeal or reversal of the same; provided, further, that such foreign association after notice of the service of such affidavits, shall not transact any new business in this state until any deficiency of securities caused by the necessity of satisfying such judgments shall have been made good by further deposit of similar securities with the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 1313u. Foreign associations; examination; expense; proviso.—Every foreign building and loan association doing business in this state shall be subject to the same examinations, as are building and loan associations organized under the laws of this state; provided, that the expense of all examinations of such foreign association shall be paid by the association examined, and the money so received shall be paid into the state treasury; provided, it shall not be necessary for such examination to be made but once in each year; provided, further, that such expense shall only include the necessary traveling expenses of such examiner and the sum of eight dollars per day, for each day actually required in making such examinations. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 1313v. Foreign associations; revocation of certificate of authority; notice.—Should the secretary of state find, upon examination, that such foreign association does not conduct its business in accordance with law, or that the affairs of such foreign association are in an unsound condition, or if such foreign association refuses to permit examination to be made, he may revoke the certificate of authority granted such foreign association to do business in this state; provided, that upon the revocation of such certificate of authority, the secretary of state shall mail a notice thereof to the home office of such foreign association, and cause a similar notice to be published in at least one newspap er published in the city of Austin. After publication of said notice it shall be unlawful for any agent of such foreign association to receive any further payments on shares from shareholders residing in this state, except payment on shares on which a loan has been made. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 1313w. Foreign associations; compliance with domestic statutes; penalty for violation.—No foreign building and loan association shall be permitted to do business in this state unless the provisions of this Act are fully complied with and all contracts made by such foreign associations while in default shall be absolutely void. Any such association violating any of the provisions of this Act, or failing to comply with any of its provisions, shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, such fine to be recovered by an action in the name of the state of Texas, in any court of competent jurisdiction, and upon the collection thereof, the same shall be paid into the state treasury. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 1313x. Unauthorized associations; agency for; penalty.—It shall be unlawful for any person to act as agent for any building and loan association not authorized to do business in this state, or to solicit, sell, or dispose of any shares of any such unauthorized association; and any person or persons acting for any such unauthorized association, or in any manner aiding in the transaction of the business of such association in this state, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense, and in default of payment of such fine shall be imprisoned in the county jail, for a period not to exceed one year. All fines collected under the provisions of this section shall be paid into the state treasury. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 1313y. Repeal.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 36.]

18. Rights and liabilities as to persons not members or borrowers.
19. Actions by and against associations.
20. Insolvency and receivers.

1. Nature and status of associations in general.—A stock certificate in a savings and loan association was issued on condition that the holder of the certificate should have no claim or interest in the affairs or assets of the association, nor control over them, except the right to vote, in person or by proxy, at stockholders' meeting, and the right to collect $100 per share at the expiration of 6½ years, and that the holder's only liability should be for the payment of monthly or quarterly dues, under penalty of fines and forfeitures. Held to show the association is not a mutual benefit association. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

2. Membership.—In estimating the amount due from a deceased stockholder to a building and loan association he should be credited merely with the withdrawal value of his shares, and not with their estimated value. Hensel v. International Building & Loan Ass'n, 85 T. 215, 29 S. W. 116.

Where a savings and loan association is solvent, in the possession of its assets, and conducting its business as a going concern, a stockholder who is also a creditor may obtain a preference by attachment. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

One who buys the stock of a building association, pledged by a borrowing member as security for a loan, and assumes the obligations of the borrower, as a part of the price of land mortgaged to secure the loan, becomes a member of such association, when it accepts him as a substitute for the borrower, assents to the conveyance of the land, and allows him the rights and privileges of a stockholder, though the stock is not transferred on its books. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 580, 23 C. A. 98.

3. Stock—Transfer of shares.—Where the agent of a building and loan association located in another state represented that the company was solvent, and thereby induced defendant to contract for a loan and to subscribe for shares, and in less than two months thereafter the association went into insolvency, defendant was not guilty of laches in not discovering the condition of the company, so as to preclude him from rescinding the loan contract and his subscription for fraud. Park v. Kribs, 60 S. W. 905, 24 C. A. 650.

Defendant contracted for shares in plaintiff building and loan association in order to provide additional capital for the business, and in less than two months thereafter it became insolvent, and defendant claimed that plaintiff's agent fraudulently represented the company as solvent. There was no evidence of any intervening rights of third parties, or that in participating in the transactions of the company in the representations of the insolvent corporation brought an action to foreclose a mortgage securing defendant's loan.

Held, that it was proper to charge that, if the jury should find that defendant was induced to contract for the loan and subscribe for shares by the fraudulent representations of plaintiff's agent, defendant was entitled to rescind the loan contract, and to an offset of the amounts he had paid on the shares. Id.

4. — Maturity of shares.—Where a loan association induces a person to take stock and borrow money by a statement expressly guaranteeing that the shares of stock would be paid for at their face value within a specified time, the association is estopped from claiming that the contract was merely a subscription to stock in a mutual benevolent society, and that it was not to be bound for the face value, on the maturity of the stock, unless it could pay all stockholders on a like basis. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Feds. 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 311.

Where a certificate of stock in a building and loan association recites that it is issued and held subject to the by-laws, which make the stock mature when it equals its face value through the business of the company, a representation of the company's agent that the stock would mature in a certain time does not estop the company from denying its liability as for matured stock after such time, there being no fraud, accident, or mistake. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 520.

The power of the building association to mature its stock by collecting dues and earning profits is in accordance with its plan of operation and its right to break or unwind the association. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 590, 23 C. A. 96.

A finding that plaintiff's stock in a building and loan association was worth $500 held erroneous, as not supported by the evidence. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 344.

5. — Release or surrender of shares.—Plaintiff, a stockholder in a building and loan association, sued to recover the amount which he had paid in on his stock, pleading a by-law of the association permitting stockholders to withdraw after due notice filed, and to receive the amount actually paid in, etc. But there was a proviso in the by-law, which he did not set out, that at no time should more than one-third of the funds in the treasury be applied to the demands of withdrawing stockholders without the consent of the directors. Plaintiff had not shown that this proviso had been admitted, plaintiff could not have recovered, there being no proof that there were any funds in the treasury, nor that the directors consented to the application of funds to plaintiff's demand. Texas Homestead Building & Loan Ass'n v. Kerr (Sup.) 13 S. W. 1099.

A provision in the charter of a building and loan association, that "at no time shall more than one-half of the funds in the treasury be subject to the demands of withdrawing members," does not prevent a member who has given proper notice of his withdrawal from recovering judgment on claim for the amount paid in. Printers' Building & Loan Ass'n v. Paxton (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 399.

In an action against a building and loan association to recover the value of 69 shares of preferred stock which was issued to carry the stock with it to the borrower, defendant, giving a mortgage on land, and transferring the stock as security; that, a short time after making the loan, he ceased paying assessments on the stock, but made several payments on the loan; that in a settlement subsequently made, after several compromises and recission of plaintiff's position, defendant, the plaintiff, and the association, "abandoned title, bond, trust deed, and release of same, having this day released my stock in said association, and settled all accounts with the same"; and that plaintiff received the papers named in the instrument, and the corporation retained the certificate which was a release of plaintiff's stock to defendant. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Hamm (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 313.

6. — Withdrawal of member and redemption of shares.—The by-laws of an association provided that any stockholder wishing to withdraw unpledged stock should give 30 days' written notice, when he should be entitled to the amount actually paid in, with such interest or profits as the directors should determine, deducting all dues and fines, and that, if the interest on any loan or any dues remained unpaid more than three months, the directors might compel payment of principal, interest, and fines by proceedings under the law. Held, that according to law, and in accordance with the latter clause to compel payment, the stockholder was entitled to have credit for the withdrawal value of his stock under the prior clause. International Building & Loan Ass'n v. Biering (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1025.

7. Due bills and assessments—Due or payments on stock.—Cessation of business by a building and loan association releases its members from further payment of dues, as the association thereby renders the maturity of the stock impossible. Blakeley v. El Paso Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 292.

A building and loan association cannot apply usurious interest paid upon a loan in liquidation of stock dues, so long as such interest does not exceed the amount of the principal. Heady v. Bexar Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 483.

The foreclosure and sale of the lien of a building and loan association on a member's stock for unpaid taxes terminates the liability of the member for stock assessments. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Logan (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1083.

A loan company sent to its shareholders a circular letter stating that the stock could not be redeemed for its face value, see. and, unless relieved by prompt assessments, the attempt to mature it at its face value would speedily result in bankruptcy, and that the stock contained provisions for such assessments as the board of managers deemed necessary which the stock would be matured at its fixed date, but such course would cause great hardship to shareholders, and the sentiment of the members, expressed by the $4,000 shares represented at the annual meeting, was that assessments should not be resorted to, but that some plan be devised which would afford the holders a safe and secure return. The latter submitted to the stockholders a plan, such letter did not justify a shareholder in ceasing to pay dues and assessments, and entitle him to recover dues and assessments paid. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Oxford (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1078.

8. Fines for nonpayment.—The association was not entitled to recover fines imposed after a member had availed himself of the withdrawal privilege. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 47 S. W. 71, 19 C. A. 52.

9. Officers and agents.—An agent of a building and loan association, who has, under the contract, the duty to make any contracts for membership and for loans, and forward the same to headquarters, cannot bind the company by unauthorized representations to an applicant for membership and for a loan, unless the company has knowledge of such representations and acts upon them. Guarantee Sav. Loan & Investment Co. v. Mitchell, 33 S. A. 306, 87 S. W. 184.

10. Powers, rights, and liabilities of associations in general.—Under Const. art. 16, § 16, providing that no corporation shall hereafter be created, renewed, or extended, with banking or discounting privileges, where a building and loan association loans an individual a certain amount, taking his note for such amount, and an additional amount equal to the interest on the loan for the time it is to run, the transaction is a discounting, within the meaning of the constitution. Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 293.

The taking by a building and loan association of a member's note in excess of the amount loaned, no part of the loan being retained, is not a discount proceeding, within the constitutional provision prohibiting the creation of corporations with banking or discounting privileges. Building & Loan v. El Paso District (App.) 16 S. W. 290, distinguishing Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 298; Blakeley v. Same (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 322.

A charter of a building and loan association, authorizing it to aid its members in acquiring and improving land and make contracts for the erection of homes, Head v. Bexar Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 468.

11. Loans.—In general.—Where a building association voluntarily sells its assets, in the interest of nonborrowing members, thus terminating its power to mature its stock, on which borrowing members had a right to rely, the latter are entitled to a rescission of their loan contracts, and an equitable adjustment of their accounts. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 580, 23 C. A. 98.

12. Power to make and right to receive.—Where a building and loan association made a loan to a member by taking his note, the transaction was a discounting, and in violation of a provision of its charter that it should not lend money to any person other than its own members. Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 298.

13. Security in general.—Where a foreign loan and investment company engages in business in this state without obtaining the permit required of foreign corporations, it is nevertheless bound by its usury laws, although the usurious contract expressly provides for its performance in another state, where it would not be so. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67.

A foreign building and loan association, doing business in Texas under a permit from the state, by making a loan contract showing that both parties intended it should be performed in Texas, subjects the contract to the usury laws of Texas, though the note was made payable in the foreign state, where the contract was not usurious. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 47 S. W. 71, 19 C. A. 52.

A usurious building and loan note negotiated in Texas is governed by the laws of that state, and not by the laws of the state to which it was sent; or by the laws of the state of the member's domicile, People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n v. Bossenotte (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 52.

A foreign loan association, allowed by the laws of the state where it was organized to take any amount of interest on loans, obtained a permit to do business in Texas, and made a loan to a citizen of the state, secured on lands in Texas, and providing for interest which was usurious in Texas. The deed of trust did not stipulate, in terms, for any particular place of payment. The by-laws allowed payments to be made to a secretary of a local board in the state of Texas, but provided that he should not be deemed the agent of the corporation in receiving such payments. Held, that the contract was usurious, as governable by the laws of Texas. Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Atkinson, 59 S. W. 170, 20 C. A. 516.

14. Payment and satisfaction.—Where a building and loan association has permitted borrowing members to pay their debts before maturity in a certain manner, it will be estopped to refuse to settle with a member on the same basis who has acted on the faith of such course of dealing. Goggins v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1133.

A stockholder in a building and loan association cannot have a lien upon his stock applied in satisfaction of a loan, the stock not having matured. Sweeney v. El Paso Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 290; Blakeley v. Same, Id. 292.

Where a building association loaned money which was to be paid at the maturity of bonds, and pledged the stock owned by the building society to be paid therefor, which stock was to be paid for in installments, and was to be credited with the earnings derived from the loan of the installments so paid, and said association subsequently changed its by-laws, so as to authorize it to cease making assessments on stock of nonborrowing members, and maturity of the stock for the purpose of the association, the said association thereby rendered itself powerless to perform its contract with defendant, and defendant was entitled to be credited with the amount he had already paid in, and, having paid more than the original debt, he should be discharged. International Building & Loan Ass'n v. Braden (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 764.
In the absence of an agreement to the effect that a stockholder in a building and loan association may have his payments on stock applied to the extinguishment of his loan debt, he has no legal right to demand that such payments shall be so applied. Pancoast Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Everheart, 41 S. W. 355, 18 C. A. 192.

An undisputed agreement between a borrowing stockholder and a building and loan association stating that payment shall be applied to discharge debt in one sum or in monthly installments, if any, and that in case the account is current, and that mortgages and notes or certificates were entitled to withdraw the amount paid to the loan fund, without notice to the association, the same as if it was matured stock. Held, that a borrower, having pledged such stock as collateral to a loan, and having given notice of his desire to pay the amount and interest of all his right as a stockholder, was entitled to have payments thereon applied in payment of his debt. 10.

An agreement to make a given number of monthly payments in full discharge of a building association loan was evidenced by bonds secured by a deed of trust and assignment of stock. Held, that a fixed part of each monthly payment so referred to as principal was on account of the principal, and not on account of stock dues. Mathews v. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 604.

In the absence of a trust deed given to a building and loan association to secure a loan on stock is not due by its terms, but the association, under a provision therein contained, elects to declare it due for default in payment of installments on the stock and interest and premiums, the debtor is entitled to credit for the actual value of his stock, regardless of whether the judgment 49 S. W. 862, 93 T. 1, reversed. Leary v. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n, 51 S. W. 836, 93 T. 1.

A borrowing member of a building association, who is entitled to a rescission of his loan contract, and an equitable adjustment of his account with charges with which he should not be charged with the amounts loaned, with legal interest to the date of the adjustment, and credited with all payments, calculated on the principle of partial payments. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 56 S. W. 556, 23 C. A. 95.

15. — Forfeitures for nonpayment.—If stock of a member of a building and loan association is held in default in payment or foreclosure of the terms of a usurious contract, but not legally collectible, the sale shall be for the price of the stock, but afterwords credited the member on its books with a sum sufficient to reduce the interest to 12 per cent. per annum, the legal rate. Held, that the interest in the contract could not be cured in this way. 10.

16. Mortgages and liens—in general.—Plaintiff, holding certain shares in the defendant association, contracted a loan from it, and secured it by her note, a deed of trust, and the assignment of her shares. The stock certificate issued to plaintiff contained an agreement authorizing the withdrawal of such shares on certain conditions, and promising to pay, in such event, a sum equal to all installments paid, with interest at 10 per cent. thereon from the date of the several payments. Having fully complied therewith, plaintiff gave notice of such withdrawal, and requested that the sum due be applied in payment of such loan. It appeared that the amount due plaintiff exceeded the sum borrowed. Held, that plaintiff was entitled to a judgment on her note for the amount due and discharges of trust, though the business of such association may have resulted in a loss. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Pancoast, 43 S. W. 296, 17 C. A. 312.

Where a mortgage to a building association provided for 10 per cent. attorney's fees in the event of sale, and the borrower sued to cancel the mortgage as paid was liable for attorney's fees where a small balance was found due the association. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 47 S. W. 71, 19 C. A. 52.

The certificate of shares in a savings and loan association provided that any suit on the certificate should be brought in the county in which the association had its main office. A deed of trust given by a borrowing stockholder on his lands in another state was to be canceled on the maturity of the stock. Held, that an action to cancel the deed as a cloud on the stockholder's title, and to restrain the sale of the lands under the power in the deed, was properly brought where the land was situated, especially since the courts of the state where the association was located had no jurisdiction to remove the cloud or enjoin the sale. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 20 C. A. 111.

The doctrine that cancellation is only to be granted on payment of the debt and legal interest is not applicable to a suit to cancel a building and loan mortgage and contract which is alleged by plaintiff not to represent the real contract, but to be a device to evade the mutual savings laws. Walter v. Mutual Home Sav. Ass'n, 29 C. A. 379, 65 S. W. 556.

17. — Foreclosure.—Under a building association's loan contract providing that if the stock deed securing the loan should be "foreclosed by action in court" an attorney's fee should be allowed, the fee is allowable on foreclosure under a petition in reconvenion filed in a suit by the borrower to enjoin a sale under a power in the trust deed, where the uncontestable ground on the understanding that there was a homestead, though the association had proposed to sell under the power for a greater sum than was due. Building & Loan Ass'n v. Griffin, 39 S. W. 656, 90 T. 489.

Objections by defendant, sued by a building association to foreclose a mechanic's lien, to credits allowed him, and to the disposition made of his share stock, must be pleaded. Bringhurst v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n, 47 S. W. 831, 19 C. A. 355. In connection with a provision which authorizes the collection of the debt on default of a member by foreclosure of a trust deed, by a by-law of a building association providing that, where a borrower failed to pay interest and assessments, the association might as certain the amount due from him by crediting him with dues paid and the withdrawal value of his shares of stock. Another by-law, provided that on default the loan should mature, and a right to sue result. Held that, under the by-laws, on default of a loan secured by a mechanic's lien, the amount due was ascertained in the same way as on foreclosure of a deed of trust. Id.

Defendant was induced to enter into a contract for a loan and to subscribe for shares in a non-resident building and loan association through the fraudulent representations of the association's agent that the corporation was solvent. To secure the loan, defendant executed an installment bond which contained a provision for the payment of attorney's fees, since the insolvency of the association caused a premature abandonment of the original contract, and the receiver must recover on an implied contract which entitled him only to the amount of the loan, with interest. Park v. Kribs, 60 S. W. 907, 24 C. A. 650.

18. Rights and liabilities as to persons not members or borrowers.—An owner of property contracted for the construction of a building thereon, arranging with a building and loan association to furnish the money. When the contractor was entitled to pay for the work done he went to the architect, who furnished him an estimate addressed to the owners of the land, and which was taken by the contractor to the building and loan association, which gave its check payable to the owners of the land, who indorsed it to the contractor. In excavating for the building the contractor removed earth supporting the foundation of an adjacent building so that it fell. Held, that the building and loan association not liable. Hennessy v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 128 Cal. 212. Henry v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 16 T. 476, 25 S. W. 39.

19. Actions by and against associations.—See, also, notes under Title 37.

Where a loan by a building and loan association is ultra vires, in that it is at an excessive rate, and also is charging in violation of a constitutional provision, the borrower is not entitled to set up the plea of ultra vires. Anderson v. Cleburne Building & Loan Ass'n (App.) 16 S. W. 298.

A member of a building association alleged that he had paid on his stock a certain amount in advance of withdrawal required by the by-laws; that the directors had failed to ascertain the withdrawal value of his stock; and that, under the by-laws, he was at least entitled to all he had paid; and prayed judgment therefor and general relief. Defendant answered, setting up its by-laws, and that it had thereunder ascertained the value of the stock at a certain sum. Held, that the court properly allowed plaintiff such admitted value, though more than that alleged by him. International Building & Loan Ass'n v. Biering, 86 T. 476, 25 S. W. 39.

Where the by-laws of a loan association provided that the association should have 90 days from the date of approval to pay maturing shares of stock, the act of the association, after the maturity of plaintiff's shares, in offering to him a specified sum, which was less than their face value, in full settlement, on condition that the shares should be surrendered and a receipt in full given, estops the association from setting up the prematurity of an action brought before the expiration of the 90 days,—especially where it continues to repudiate its contract. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 49 S. W. 160, 26 C. A. 111.

20. Insolvency and receivers.—See, also, notes under Arts. 2125–2155.

A borrowing member of a building and loan association is not entitled, on the insolvency of the association, to have the amount of his dues paid in applied in payment of his debt, but must share pro rata with the other members. Price v. Kendall, 14 C. A. 26, 36 S. W. 316.

A provision in the contract between a building and loan association and a borrowing member that, if the latter desires to have his shares of stock redeemed in the payment of his debt, they are to be taken at a cash valuation not less than the amount of dues paid thereon, with 5 per cent, interest, does not entitle the borrowing member, on the insolvency of the association, to have applied, in an action for redemption, the association to recover the debt, the amount of dues paid and interest in part payment, the balance of the debt not being tendered. Id.

21. Consolidation.—Where a mutual building and loan association sold its assets without a delinquent shareholder's consent, and the shareholder rescinded his contract, he was entitled to credit for the value of his stock at the time the assets were sold, and not at the time he made default, since his default did not terminate his membership, and hence could not defeat his right to share in the subsequent profits of the association. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 69 Tex. 304.

A shareholder in a building and loan association agreed to pay one dollar per month on each share until it matured, and monthly payments of one-half of 1 per cent, of the amount of his note as interest, and one-third of 1 per cent. into a sinking fund. The association, without consent of its shareholders, sold its assets to another company. Held, that an adjustment of the equities of the parties by charging the shareholder with the sum actually received from the association, with legal interest, and by crediting him with the sums paid as interest and into the sinking fund as part payments on the principal and with the value of his stock, was proper. Id.

Where a building and loan association, without the consent of its stockholders, sold its assets to another company, and by the terms of the contract and the by-laws of the association the delinquency of a stockholder did not render shares absolutely forfeitable, the fact that a borrowing stockholder was delinquent did not deprive him of the right to rescind his contract. Id.

Where plaintiff executed a deed of trust to a building and loan association to take up a note for the purchase price of the lot, and to pay for material which had been in erected thereon, without the consent of the association, and the association assigned its assets to defendant, and ceased business, the defendant was entitled, on plaintiff's rescinding his contract, to be subrogated to the vendor's lien, and to a foreclosure of the lien. CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX
FOREIGN CORPORATIONS

Art. 1314. Permit to do business, etc., in state must be obtained and how; purposes; foreign corporations.

1315. Permit to do business, affidavit as condition of issuance; requisites of.

1316. Secretary of state to require proof in what case.

1317. Rights under permit.

1317a. Right to purchase, hold, sell, mortgage, etc., real and personal estate; provisions as to alienation.

1318. No such corporation can maintain any suit, etc.

1319. Corporations exempted from provisions hereof.

1320. Permit to extend for period of ten years.

1321. Evidence.

Article 1314. Permit to do business, etc., in state must be obtained, and how; limitation as to purposes; showing as to stock by foreign corporations.—Hereafter, any corporation for pecuniary profit, except as hereinafter provided, organized or created under the laws of any other state, or of any territory of the United States, or of any municipality of such state or territory, or of any foreign government, sovereignty or municipality, desiring to transact business in this state, or solicit business in this state, or establish a general or special office in this state, shall be, and the same is hereby, required to file with the secretary of state a duly certified copy of its articles of incorporation; and, thereupon, the secretary of state shall issue to such corporation a permit to transact business in this state. [Acts 1897, p. 167.]

If such corporation is created for more than one purpose, the permit may be limited to one or more purposes. [Id.]

Provided, that foreign corporations obtaining permits to do business in this state shall show to the satisfaction of the secretary of state that at least one hundred thousand dollars, in cash, of their authorized capital stock has been paid in, or that fifty per cent of their authorized capital stock has been subscribed, and at least ten per cent of the authorized capital has been paid in, before such permit is issued. [Acts 1901, pp. 18-19.]

Constitutionality.—The act of April, 1887 (28th Leg. p. 116 et seq.), relating to foreign corporations was held unconstitutional Land Co. v. Worsham, 76 T. 556, 13 S. W. 384.

The amended article was not violative of the constitution of the United States.

Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 364.

Enforcing against a foreign corporation already doing a local business in the state of a statute exacting conditions as prerequisite to doing such business held not an abridgment of privileges and immunities of a citizen of another state. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194.

A foreign corporation, not empowered to do so by the federal government, has no authority to transact a domestic business in a state, unless authority be granted by the state, which can impose any conditions as a prerequisite to permission to do such business, and the corporation cannot question the reasonableness or validity of the law prescribing the conditions, and hence the state could exact a fee; the sum depending on the amount of the capital stock, the major portion of which was outside of the state. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194, judgment reversed (Supp.) 138 S. W. 1197.

Power of state to regulate.—It is not within the judicial province of the courts of a state to supervise and direct the internal affairs and management of a foreign corporation. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lunday, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

A state has the absolute right to exclude or permit a foreign corporation from doing business within its limits, and may impose such conditions as it may see fit in granting permission. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Shannon, 53 C. A. 624, 115 S. W. 361.

Extent of state's power to exact license fee from foreign corporations, stated. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194.

Act Cong. July 24, 1866, c. 250, 14 Stat. 221, being an act to aid in the construction of telegraph lines and to secure to the government the use of them for postal and other purposes, provides that any telegraph company organized under the laws of any state shall have the right to construct and operate telegraph lines over the public domain and along any military or post roads of the United States, that government messages shall have priority over the lines of telegraph companies accepting the benefits of the act, and prohibits the transfer of the rights granted, and provides that the government may within a specified time purchase the lines. Held, that the act is not equivalent to a federal charter to transact a general local business within a state, but deals with the right to use public property, and does not render companies accepting its benefits agencies of the federal government, whereby the state would be powerless to prescribe conditions upon their right to do a local business. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 394, reversed, 125 S. W. 1197.

A state may prescribe the conditions on which alone a foreign corporation can do business in the state. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. E. Van Winkle Gin & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 415.

Right to sue and defend without permit.—See, also, notes under Art. 1318.

This article does not forbid a foreign corporation from suing in the state courts merely because it is a foreign corporation, as the prohibition applies only to those desiring to transact or solicit business or establish a general or special office in the state. Gelb Mfg. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 610.

May hold property, when.—A foreign corporation, empowered by its charter to acquire and hold real and personal property, may acquire and hold such property in Texas which it has purchased outside the state, though the corporation has no permit to do business in the state, under this article and Art. 1318. Lakeview Land Co. v. San Antonio Traction Co., 29 T. 263, 26 S. W. 766.

Interstate transactions.—The sale of goods by a corporation in a state other than that of its domicile, and the shipment of the goods to such state, is interstate commerce; and a law of the latter state forbidding the transaction of business in such state or the maintaining of suits therein, without filing its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state and paying a fee for a permit, is void as a regulation of interstate commerce. Bateman v. Western Star Milling Co., 1 C. A. 90, 20 S. W. 921; Lyons-Thompson Hardware Co. v. Reading Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 309; Miller v. Goodman, 91 T. 41, 40 S. W. 718; Lasater v. Purcell Mill & Elevator Co., 22 C. A. 33, 54 S. W. 435; Gale Mfg. Co. v. Finkelstein, 22 C. A. 241, 54 S. W. 619; Pasteur Vaccine Co. v. Burkey, 23 C. A. 252, 54 S. W. 804; De Witt v. Berger Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 335; Barnhard Bros. & Schmidt Mfg. Co. v. St. & French L. R. R. Co., 27 S. W. 378; French, etc. v. St. L. R. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1054; Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont de Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1097.

Such law would not apply where the goods were sold by the corporation at its place of business where it did not appear that the parties contemplated the shipping of the goods into Texas. Reed v. Walker, 21 S. W. 687, 2 C. A. 92.

Corporations can sue on interstate shipment because this is interstate commerce. Railway Co. v. Davis, 53 T. 378, 56 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.

Where a foreign corporation makes contract for labor and material for construction of a building in Texas and sends laborers and employees to perform the contract, it is not engaged in interstate commerce and must get a permit to do business in the state. St. Louis E. M. Fireproofing Co. v. Belharz (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 613.

This article is not applicable, where the business involved is interstate business. Gelb Mfg. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 610.

The construction of a glass factory by a foreign corporation did not constitute interstate commerce and part of the materials was obtained within the state. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co. v. S. R. Smythe Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1135.

‘Transaction of business’ within state.—This article does not apply to a corporation which ships goods to a resident of this state on an unsolicited order. Zubernier v. Harris (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 403.

The purchase of land in Texas by a corporation outside of the state does not constitute the transaction of business within the state. Corporations created in other states can purchase and hold property in Texas if authorized by their charters or laws under which they are created. Lakeview Land Co. v. San Antonio Traction Co., 29 T. 263, 26 S. W. 765.

Ownership and lease of land by foreign corporation and assignment of rent claim held not doing business within the state, so as to require it to procure a permit. Wilson v. Pope, 39 C. A. 234, 85 S. W. 31.

Unless a foreign corporation is transacting or soliciting business in this state or has an office here it is not required to have a permit to do business to enable it to sue in our courts. King v. Monitor Drill Co., 42 C. A. 288, 92 S. W. 1047, 1048.

An account payable in this state held not doing business within the state, within statute relating to permits thereof. Norton v. W. H. Thomas & Sons Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 711.

The construction of a glass factory, including the furnishing of material and labor, constituted the transaction of business within this article though the contract was made outside the state. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co. v. S. R. Smythe Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1136.

The phrase ‘transacting business,’ in this article and art. 1318, requiring foreign corporations desiring to transact business in the state to secure a permit, is not necessarily synonymous with doing business, as to do business in the state imports a carrying on of business of the corporation for the purpose of its organization, while the transaction of business rather imports the idea of isolated transactions. To ‘do business’ is to carry on and exercise all occupation or employment for a livelihood or gain, as agriculture, trade, mechanic arts, or profession (quoting 3 Words and Phrases, p. 2155). S. R. Smythe Co. v. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co., 105 T. 8, 143 S. W. 1167.

What constitutes ‘transacting business,’ within this article and art. 1318, determined. Id.

Under this article and art. 1318, providing that no foreign corporation not securing such permit may maintain any action in the state, the construction of gas producers, including the furnishing of material and labor, constituted ‘transacting business’ within the statute, although the contract was made outside of the state. Id.

A foreign corporation engaged in the manufacture of powder sold powder to a resident, under a contract assigning to the resident trade territory and fixing the price. The corporation shipped mills, powder to a construction company in Texas. A small part of the powder used by the construction company was shipped from a point in the state. The corporation collected the money from the resident, and never presented any bill to the construction company. Thereafter the resident obtained a note from the construction company for the price and transferred it to the corporation. Held, 718 that the corporation was not engaged in business in the state within this article and art. 1318, requiring a foreign corporation to obtain a permit to transact business in the state.

"Corporation for pecuniary profit."—A foreign corporation organized for benevolent, religious, or philanthropic purposes, required by its charter to set apart for such purposes its entire receipts, so that no member or employee shall receive any pecuniary profit except reasonable compensation for services in effecting the purposes of the corporation, etc., is not a corporation for pecuniary profit within this article and art. 1318, requiring foreign corporations for pecuniary profit to obtain a permit to transact business in the state, and need not obtain such a permit as a condition precedent to its right to sue. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 660.

May be limited to one or more purposes.—Under this article, where a corporation for pecuniary profit, charted for more than one purpose, applies for permits to do business in the state, the statute limits the business to one or more purposes; and thus the statute recognized the right of a corporation to operate for more than one purpose, though a corporation created for one purpose may not be used to promote a totally different purpose. City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 660.

Foreign corporation subject to laws.—A foreign corporation permitted to do business in the state must conduct itself in accordance with its laws. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80, judgment reversed (Sup.) 134 S. W. 321.

Foreign corporation unlawfully transacting business.—A note given to a foreign corporation, which has not complied with this article and art. 1318, is not void and is enforceable in the hands of an innocent indorsor for value before maturity. State Bank of Chicago v. Holland, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 564.

Business transactions by a foreign corporation, which has not complied with the Texas statutes, as so to entitle it to do business within the state, are not void, but only unenforceable in the courts of the state, so that the proper judgment in an action predicated on such transaction is one of dismissal, leaving the corporation to resort to the courts of the state in which such foreign corporation was organized. New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 263.

Right of assignee.—One who obtained from a foreign corporation, which has not complied with the Texas statutes for doing business within the state, so as to authorize it to sue, an assignment pendente lite of the cause of action sued on occupied no better position than the corporation, and could not maintain the action. New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 263.

Cancellation of permit no defense to notes.—Cancellation of a foreign corporation's permit to do business within the state held no defense to a suit on notes given for the price of a part of its assets sold in liquidation of its business. Wren v. Stanton Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1145.

Art. 1315. Permit to do business, affidavit as condition of issuance; requisites of.—As a condition precedent to the issuance by the secretary of a state of a permit to any foreign corporation, authorizing it to do business in this state, the president, vice-president, secretary, or treasurer, or two of the directors of such corporation, shall make and subscribe an affidavit in writing stating that such corporation is not a trust or organization in restraint of trade in violation of the laws of this state, has not, within twelve months next preceding the making of such affidavit, become or been a party to any trust agreement of any kind or character whatsoever, which would constitute a violation of any anti-trust law of the state existing at the date of such affidavit, and has not, within that time, entered into, or been in anywise a party to, any combination in restraint of trade, within the United States of America, and that no officer of such corporation has, within the knowledge of affiant, within twelve months next preceding the date of such affidavit, made, on behalf of such corporation or for its benefit, any such contract, or entered into, or become a party to, any such combination in restraint of trade. Such affidavit in writing shall be personally subscribed and sworn to by such affiant or affiants before some officer who is by law duly authorized to administer oaths, and the jurat of such officer shall be attested by his official signature and seal of office; and such affidavit in writing so attested shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state before the issuance of any such permit. [Acts 1909, S. S. pp. 267-8, Id.]

Art. 1316. Secretary of state to require proof in what case.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state to require satisfactory proof as to the amount of capital actually invested in this state before issuing any permit to any foreign building and loan company to do business in this state. [Id. p. 267.]

Art. 1317. Rights under permit.—Such corporation, on obtaining such permit, shall have and enjoy all the rights and privileges conferred by the laws of this state on corporations organized under the laws of this state. [Acts 1897, p. 167.]

Art. 1317a. Right to purchase, hold, sell, mortgage, etc., real and personal estate; provision as to alienation.—Such corporations, under such permits, shall be authorized and empowered to hold, purchase, sell, mortgage or otherwise convey such real estate and personal estate as the purposes of such corporation may require, and also, to take, hold and convey such other property, real, personal or mixed, as may be requisite for such corporation to acquire, in order to obtain or secure the payment of any indebtedness or liability due, or which may become due, or belonging to, the corporation; provided, that, if such corporation so obtaining a permit to do business in this state, shall acquire any real estate under the powers herein conferred, it shall alienate all real property so acquired by it not necessary for the purposes of such corporation, within fifteen years from the time of acquisition, and provided, further, that such corporation shall alienate all real estate acquired by it for the purposes of such corporation, within fifteen years from the expiration of the time for which the permit is issued, or, if such permit be renewed, or such corporation be otherwise authorized to carry on business in this state, then such corporation shall alienate such real estate within fifteen years after the expiration of the time for which such permit is extended, or it is so authorized to carry on business in this state; and provided, further, that, if such corporation shall cease to carry on business in this state, that it shall alienate all such real estate so acquired by it, within fifteen years after the time it shall so cease to carry on business in this state. [Id.]

Rights under permit.—By this law foreign corporations have and enjoy all the privileges which are conferred upon domestic corporations organized under the laws of this state, and by complying with its terms are made equal to domestic corporations. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph & Telephone Co., 95 T. 315, 55 S. W. 119, 49 L. R. A. 456, 77 Am. St. Rep. 884; G. & C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph & Telephone Co., 25 C. A. 488, 61 S. W. 407.

This article is not intended to fix the domicile of a foreign corporation in this state. It only places such corporation on the same footing as a domestic corporation in the transaction of its business. The venue of suits against foreign corporations is fixed by article 1835, subd. 28. Coco-Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 399.

Subject to police power.—Grant of permit to foreign corporation to do business does not absolve it from responsibility to the police power. Waters-Fierce Oil Co. v. State, 100 C. A. 1, 44 S. W. 399.

Contracts will not be enforced, when.—Enforcement of contracts of a foreign corporation will not be permitted, when the exercise of powers of such corporation are prejudicial to the state's interest or policy. Chapman v. Hallwood Cash Register Co., 32 C. A. 176, 73 S. W. 365.

Art. 1318. [746] No such corporation can maintain any suit, unless.—No such corporation can maintain any suit or action, either legal or equitable, in any of the courts of this state upon any demand, whether arising out of contract or tort, unless at the time such contract was made, or tort committed, the corporation had filed its articles of incorporation under the provisions of this chapter in the office of the secretary of state for the purpose of procuring its permit. [Id.]

Necessity of compliance with statute.—See, also, notes under Art. 1314.

A foreign corporation which puts its manufactured products into the hands of agents for sale on commission may sue in this state for a conversion of such property, without the necessity of obtaining a permit to do business. Allen v. Tyson-Jones Buggy Co., 31 T. 22, 40 S. W. 393.

A foreign corporation may maintain an action on an account in Texas, where the contract on which the action is based was made in the home state of the corporation. Irin v. Wachusette Shirt Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 295.

A foreign corporation may maintain an action on account it owns in this state that did not grow out of the business in which it was engaged in this state without proving that it had a permit to do business. Mansur & Tebbetts Implement Co. v. Beer, 15 C. A. 811, 45 S. W. 972.

But where such corporation drives cattle from a foreign country (Mexico) into Texas and ships from one point to another within the state, the transaction relates to interstate commerce within the act of congress of February 4, 1887, and it can maintain an action for breach of contract although it could not maintain an action relating to domestic commerce on account of not having complied with the provisions of this article. Railroad Co. v. Davis, 95 T. 278, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.
A foreign corporation doing business in this state is not prohibited from bringing suit in its own name to set aside or enjoin the enforcement of an interstate contract through which such contract was made or tort committed it had not filed its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 351, 55 S. W. 564.

Where a corporation doing business in another state buys an obligation of indebtedness the state may demand and collect its share of it, and it does not violate any law which places it out of the pale of that comity, which in the absence of a statute permits a foreign corporation to sue in the courts of this state. Security Co. v. Panhandle Nat. Bank, 93 T. 576, 57 S. W. 24.

A state held not to prevent a foreign corporation from maintaining, as trustee under a will, an action of trespass to try title. Eskridge v. Louisville Trust Co., 29 C. A. 571, 69 S. W. 957.

A foreign corporation may sue on a note given for machinery sold, where the transaction was one of interstate commerce, without having a permit to do business in the state. Lane & Bodley Co. v. City Electric Light & Waterworks Co., 31 C. A. 449, 72 S. W. 425.

A foreign corporation held entitled to sue for the foreclosure of a mortgage under which it was trustee, though the corporation had not been granted permission to do business in the state. Commercial Telephone Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co., 38 C. A. 192, 86 S. W. 66.

A trust company in Missouri held entitled to sue in Texas to foreclose a mortgage, etc., without taking out a permit to do business there. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 41 C. A. 478, 92 S. W. 986.

This chapter does not prevent suits for the enforcement or protection of lawfully acquired property rights. Kingman Texas Implement Co. v. Borders (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 614.

Pleading and proof as to compliance with statute.—In a suit by a foreign corporation it need not allege that it has complied with article 1314. The allegation and proof must be made by the defendant, Miller v. Goodman, 15 C. A. 244, 40 S. W. 743.

In this article and in this section, and also in the courts of the state without having obtained the permit, make the permit a condition precedent to the right of a foreign corporation for pecuniary profit to sue, so that it must allege and prove the cause of action permit when the verdict is given. Interstate B. & L. Ass'n, 31 T. 92, 40 S. W. 954; Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 320; Delaware Ins. Co. v. Security Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 918; Peters v. Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 516; St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Bellharz (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 512; Turner v. Natl. Cotton Oil Co., 50 C. A. 465, 159 S. W. 1114; City of San Antonio v. Salvation Army (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 860; Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. E. Van Winkle Gin & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 415.

This article only applies to foreign corporations that are doing business in this state, and when there is nothing in a permit given by a foreign corporation from which it can be inferred that it is engaged in business in this state, or that the transaction out of which the cause of action arose took place here, it need not show that the plaintiff has a permit to do business in this state. Brin v. Wachusett Shirr Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 295; King v. Monitor Drill Co., 42 C. A. 285, 95 S. W. 1047; Brown v. Guarantee Savings, Loan & Investment Co., 46 C. A. 285, 102 S. W. 138; New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 263; Adams v. Gray & Dudley Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 830; Jackson Woolen Mills v. Moore (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 642.

A foreign corporation which has a special office in this state and an agent but which has not filed its charter with the secretary of state and taken out a license to do business in this state, cannot maintain an action in this state for alleged damages to its carpet. Nor can an assignee of the claim for damages sued thereon. Railroad v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 351, 55 S. W. 562.

A foreign corporation must plead and prove that it has obtained a permit (to do business in this state) in order to make it a good cause of action. Kansas City & St. Louis R'y Co. v. Tackett, 716. A further exception is made by our statute in that it is stipulated that its provisions are not to apply to railroad corporations. If for any reason a foreign corporation sues as plaintiff is excepted from the statutory rule, it should set out the facts showing that it comes within one of the exceptions. Chapman v. Hallwood Cash Register Co., 32 C. A. 76, 73 S. W. 969, 973.

In an action by a foreign corporation, petition held to show that plaintiff was engaged in interstate commerce. French, Finch & Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1034.

A foreign corporation suing for goods sold in the state of Texas need not allege or prove a permit to do business there. Heising Rice Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 45 C. A. 383, 100 S. W. 959.

Petition of a foreign corporation held not objectionable for failure to show its capacity to sue in Texas. Gulf & Interstate Ry. Co. v. Southwestern Coal Selling Co. (Civ. App.) 106, 92 S. W. 64.

Mode of objection to petition.—The question whether a foreign corporation has alleged and proved that it had a permit to do business in the state cannot be raised for the first time in the appellate court. Mansur & Tebbette Implement Co. v. Beer, 19 C. A. 611, 45 S. W. 972.

In an action by a foreign corporation, where the petition does not show that the corporation is doing business in the state in violation of law, that defense cannot be raised by exception, but must be pleaded. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Kellogg Switch-Board & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 963.

An objection to a foreign corporation could not sue because it had not taken out a permit to do business in Texas, could not be raised by an assignment of error, where there was no statement of facts, and plaintiff's petition failed to disclose affirmatively that plaintiff was doing business in the state without having taken out a permit, and plaintiff might have established its case in such a manner as to be unaffected.
Corporations—Private

by the statute regulating foreign corporations. Pratt v. Interstate Savings & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 921.

Proper judgment is dismissal.—Where a foreign corporation sued in the state, though it was not entitled to do so, because it had not secured the permit to do business required by Art. 1314 and this article, the judgment should have been one dismissing the suit, and a judgment that plaintiff take nothing by the suit was erroneous. S. R. Smythe Co. v. Ft. Worth Glass & Sand Co., 105 T. & 142 S. W. 1157.

Business transactions by a foreign corporation, which has not complied with the Texas statutes, so as to entitle it to do business within the state, are not void, but only unenforceable in the courts of the state, so that the proper judgment in an action predicated on such transaction is one of dismissal, leaving the corporation to resort to the courts of other jurisdictions. New State Land Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 253.

Actions by or against—Jurisdiction.—The courts of the state have jurisdiction of a cause of action in favor of a nonresident plaintiff against a corporation doing business in the state. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Shaw, 33 C. A. 395, 77 S. W. 433.

A Texas court of equity has jurisdiction of a suit against a foreign corporation, domiciled in another state, to determine whether an insurance policy is in force or has been legally forfeited. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lunday, 51 C. A. 837, 113 S. W. 185.

The court held to acquire jurisdiction of an action against a foreign corporation by reason of impounding the money and property of the corporation in the hands of a domestic corporation summoned as garnishee. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

"Interstate Commerce."—See notes under Art. 1314.

Rights of assignee.—See notes under Art. 1314.

Art. 1319. [747] Corporations exempted from provisions hereof.—The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to corporations created for the purpose of constructing, building, operating or maintaining any railway, or to such corporations as are required by law to procure certificates of authority to do business from the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id.]

Art. 1320. [748] Permit to extend for period of ten years.—No permit shall be issued for a longer period than ten years from the date of filing such articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state. [Id.]

Art. 1321. [749] Evidence.—Either the original permit or certified copies thereof by the secretary of state shall be evidence of the compliance on the part of any corporation with the terms of this chapter. A certificate of the secretary of state to the effect that the corporation named therein has failed to file in his office its articles of incorporation shall be evidence that such corporation has in no particular complied with the requirements of this chapter. [Id.]

Certified copies showing revocation.—Certified copies of a judgment and of judgments and orders on appeal therefrom, showing the revocation of a foreign corporation's permit to do business in the state and affixing thereof, etc., held admissible, under a general denial, raising the issue of plaintiff's right to do business in the state at the time of the execution of the instruments sued on. Turner v. National Cotton Oil Co., 50 C. A. 465, 109 S. W. 1112.

Receipt for franchise tax.—The existence of a receipt for a franchise tax held to create no presumption that a foreign corporation has complied with the laws of the state and obtained a permit to do business therein. Turner v. National Cotton Oil Co., 50 C. A. 465, 109 S. W. 1112.

Certificate of secretary of state.—The certificate of the secretary of state declaring that the right of a foreign corporation to do business in the state has been forfeited, is no evidence of the forfeiture. St. Louis E. M. Fireproofing Co. v. Bellharz (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 512.

COTTON—BALING OF

Art. 1322. Baling of cotton regulated; penalty.—That every person, firm, corporation or association of persons, owning or operating a compress in this state, and their agents and employés, are hereby required, in compressing, recompressing, baling or rebaling cotton bales, to so bind and tie every bale of cotton by them compressed, recompressed, baled or rebaled, that no such bale shall be delivered to any railroad company, or other common carrier, by such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, their agents or employés, unless such bale of cotton shall be free from all or any dangerously exposed ends of bands or buckles, or any dangerously exposed or protruding part of the ties, bands, buckles or splices used in tying or binding such bale of cotton. And any such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, who shall fail to bind or tie any bale of cotton by them compressed, recompressed, baled or rebaled, in the manner above provided, and shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, any such bale of cotton, to any railroad company, or other common carrier, such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas the sum of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, which may be recovered in a civil suit brought in the name of the state of Texas in a court of competent jurisdiction. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S. p. 118, sec. 1.]

See annotations in Title 131.

Art. 1323. Person, firm, etc., receiving for storage, transportation, etc., cotton not baled as required, liable for injuries to employé; duty of inspection.—Any person, firm, corporation or association of persons, receiving for storage, loading for transportation, or transporting, any such compressed bale or bales of cotton, in this state, containing any dangerously exposed ends of bands or buckles, or any dangerously protruding part or parts of the ties, bands, buckles or splices used in tying or binding such bale or bales of cotton, shall be liable in damages for injury to any person in the employ of such person, firm, corporation or association of persons, occasioned by reason of such dangerously exposed ends of bands or buckles, or any dangerously exposed or protruding part or parts of the ties, bands, buckles or splices used in tying or binding such bale or bales of cotton, while in the discharge of the duties of such employment. The duty of inspection of such bales of cotton shall be on the employer and not on the employé. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 1324. Duty of commissioner of labor.—It shall be especially the duty of the commissioner of labor and his deputies to see that the provisions of articles 1322 and 1323 hereof are observed and enforced; and, in pursuance thereof, he shall obtain and collect evidence of all violations of said provisions upon the part of persons, firms, corporations and associations of persons engaged in the business of compressing cotton, who shall fail to comply with the said provisions. The commissioner of labor shall file annual statements with the governor, showing in detail all expenses incurred by him in connection with his duties under this act. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1324a. Ginners to write or stamp weight of bagging and ties on bale, etc.; violation; misdemeanor.—That the owners, lessees, operators or receivers of all cotton gins, in this state, shall stamp or write, upon each and every bale of cotton ginned by them, in plain figures, the weight of the bagging and ties in which the cotton is wrapped, said figures to be written or stamped with indelible ink, and shall be not less than four inches in height and three inches in width, and shall be preceded by the word, “tare,” written or stamped upon the bale with indelible ink, the letters composing said word to be not less than four inches in height and three inches in width. Any person wilfully violating the provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten, nor more than one hundred dollars. [Acts 1911, p. 47, sec. 1.]

Art. 1324b. Compressors to write or stamp words and figures prescribed by preceding article, when defaced or hidden; violation; misdemeanor.—That the owners, lessees, operators or receivers of all cotton compresses in this state, shall write or stamp upon each and every bale of cotton compressed by them, the word and figures placed upon such bale or bales of cotton by the ginner ginning the same, in compliance with section 1 of this Act [Art. 1324a], in the same manner as provided for ginners in said section 1, should such word and figures be defaced or hidden during the process of compression. Any person wilfully violating the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten ($10.00) dollars, nor more than one hundred ($100.00) dollars. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1324c. Separate offenses.—Each bale of cotton ginned and each bale of cotton compressed without having thereon the word and figures as provided in sections 1 and 2 [Arts. 1324a, 1324b], respectively, of this Act, shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1324d. Greater deduction for tare unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, cotton exchange or board of trade, to make a greater deduction for tare, either from the gross weight of any bale of cotton or the price of same than is shown by the figures placed upon the bale in compliance with section 1 of this Act [Art. 1324a]. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1324e. Violation of preceding article; misdemeanor.—Any person, firm, corporation, cotton exchange, or board of trade, or any agent of any person, firm, corporation, cotton exchange, or board of trade who violates the provisions of section 4 of this Act [Art. 1324d], shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine, of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1324f. Separate offenses.—Each bale of cotton from which a greater deduction for tare is made, than is shown by the figures written or stamped upon same, shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. sec. 6.]
TITLE 27

COUNTER CLAIM

Parties are not compelled to plead in reconvention or set-off; and may, where there are mutual judgments, maintain an action to set off one against the other. Wright v. Treadwell, 14 T. 356.

Insolvency does not authorize the pleading of one tort in offset to another. Smith v. Bates (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1044.

A guarantor held not entitled to assert his rights to subrogation in reconvention or in defense to an action to cancel a trust deed for his fraud. Cleveland v. Carr (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 496.

Defendant held to have no right of set-off in an action on notes given for the price of land. Fieres v. Snodgrass, 91 T. 105, 41 S. W. 68.

Defendant in trespass to try title can file plea of reconvention for recovery of money paid plaintiff for sale of land before he had any title to it. Stacy v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 759.

In an action on an irrigating contract, held, on the evidence, that excessive damages were allowed a defendant on his counter claim. Old River Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 154.

2. Estoppel or waiver.—Purchaser of horse may set off damages for fraud after he has paid part of purchase price with knowledge of the fraud. Mills v. Johnson, 22 S. W. 550, 3 C. A. 359.

Where a note was discharged by crediting an open account of the maker, holder could not thereafter insist that the account was not a proper offset against the note. Lowry v. Smith, 42 C. A. 112, 84 S. W. 496.

One held estopped from asserting any claim against the title of a purchaser of real estate, so that the purchaser's payment in satisfaction of the claim was not available as an offset against the price. De Steaguer v. Pittman, 84 C. A. 316, 117 S. W. 481.

3. Set-off of judgments.—The power to set off judgments will be exercised in equity. Dutton v. Mason, 21 C. A. 389, 52 S. W. 651.

A cross-action in trespass to try title seeking to set off a judgment, held within the rule permitting counter claims and pleas in reconvention. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 523, 60 S. W. 778.

To allow a judgment to be set off against another judgment held inequitable under the facts. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 890.
4. Set-off against interest-bearing debt.—The claim of one sued on an interest-bearing debt should be set off against the debt as of the time it became due. Brown v. Montgomery, 19 C. A. 548, 47 S. W. 803.

A counter claim or plea in reconvention is in effect a suit against plaintiff. Dixon v. Watson, 52 C. A. 412, 115 S. W. 100.

6. Actions in which remedy is available.—Where an action on promissory notes against the maker, and an action by him against the party suing on the notes upon his oral assent to pay the maker the face value of the notes, were never consolidated, and the maker endorsed on the notes, the maker may set off the money due him for the stock. Harpold v. Moss, 101 T. 540, 109 S. W. 928.

7. Subject-matter of counter claim in general.—Commissions at a specified rate agreed upon for the sale of personal property can be pleaded in offset. June v. Brubaker, 24 S. W. 79, 5 C. A. 79.

Money tendered into court by a defendant on rescission of a trade for breach of warranty cannot be set off on the judgment obtained by plaintiff without defendant's consent. Sanders v. Britton (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 305.

The principle of compensation will not be applied to extinguish mutual debts, one arising on account, and other on note. Walker v. Pearhake, 22 C. A. 61, 52 S. W. 629.

In suit for rent defendant can plead in reconvention amount due for clearing and improving the land under a contract. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 257, 65 S. W. 77.

In an action on a note given in part consideration of a lease, the maker held entitled to a set-off for breach of guaranty as to possession. Strubing v. Gray (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 789.

Where a contract for the sale of a merry-go-round was rescinded and the consideration applied to the purchase of a shooting-gallery, the sale of the former could not be made the basis of a cross-bill in a suit to set aside a transaction with reference to the latter. Parker v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 856.

9. Vendor and purchaser.—A purchaser cannot offset against the price the cost of extinguishing an outstanding title of which he knew at the time of the purchase. De Steegger v. Pittman, 54 C. A. 316, 117 S. W. 481.

The defect in the title for the curing of which an expenditure by the purchaser may be made, and reimbursement claimed as an offset to the purchase price, held such as amounts to a breach of covenant of warranty. Id.

A counter claim or plea in reconvention is in effect a suit against plaintiff. Dixon v. Watson, 52 C. A. 412, 115 S. W. 100.
Where a municipal contractor, to whom a materialman had furnished materials, failed to complete the work and the city let out another contractor, and the materialman obtained judgment against the city, which it paid without appeal, the city could not set off the amount of such judgment against the claim of the subsequent contractor. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1079.

11. Demands of one or more co-defendants.—Where plaintiff held a lien on land of tenants in common for services performed for them, and one of them had a counter claim held, that the interest of such one was liable for his proportion, less the counter claim. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 55.

12. Right and separate claims and liabilities.—A firm account cannot be set off against an individual claim of a partner. Haley v. Cusenbury (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 587.

A partner held entitled to be reimbursed for his expenses in procuring a firm judgment before any part of the judgment was subject to any set-off by reason of the judgment debtor obtaining a judgment against the copartner. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 806.

A claim against a firm cannot be set off in an action by one of the parties on his individual claim. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 818.

13. Claims and liabilities in different rights and capacities.—A bank deposit belonging to decedent's estate could not be set-off against a counter claim, by a person set-off to a note of his executrix, given in consideration of the cancellation of another note held by the bank. Reuter v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 683.

Where it is sought to set off a judgment against a defendant individually against a judgment in his favor as a member of a firm, the set-off will be refused unless equity demands it under the facts. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 800.

An agreement of an insurance agent to renew a policy held one of the insurance companies, so that claim for breach of it cannot be set off in an action by the agent on his individual claim. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 816.

14. Set-offs and counter claims against assigned causes of action.—Assignee of judgment held to have superior equity to right of set-off of judgment defendant. Dutton v. Mason, 64 C. A. 389, 62 S. W. 651.

Defendant in an action held not entitled to set off a claim against intervenors and assignees of plaintiff's cause of action. Gage v. Hunter, 43 C. A. 241, 94 S. W. 1104.

Defendant held not entitled to set off a judgment for costs recovered by it in a county court against an assignee of a judgment recovered against defendant, where no equitable grounds for such relief were pleaded or proved. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cassinoba, 44 C. A. 625, 99 S. W. 888.

Where the right to have one judgment set off against another did not exist at the time of the occurrence of one of the judgments, the right of the judgment was lost by the assignment. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 800.

Judgment debtor held entitled to set off against the assignee of the judgment seeking to enforce it for the assignor's benefit any proper counter claim held against the assignor. Trammell v. Cheshier (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 429.

In an action for commissions due plaintiff's assignor for procuring the exchange of land for a hardware stock, defendant held entitled to plead a counter claim arising out of misrepresentations of plaintiff as to the goods included in the hardware stock. Inman v. Brown (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 652.

In an action on certain claims assigned by F., defendant company held not entitled to set off an overpayment made to a construction company for work performed by F., in the absence of an agreement by F. that it might be set off against the defendant's indebtedness to him for other work. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Stark (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 641.

15. Assigned claims as set-offs and counter claims.—In trespass to try title by vendor against vendee's grantee, who had failed to pay lien notes assumed, held, that grantee may set off a debt against the vendor, secured by pledge of the notes, against claim for damages. Smith v. Cottington, 29 C. A. 305, 49 S. W. 145.

16. Effect of failure to assert or claim.—The fact that the indorsor of notes, when sued on a check given for their purchase, failed to counter claim the indorser's liability on his indorsement, will not preclude a subsequent suit to enforce it; the statute authorizing counterclaims where indorsement is not paid. Norton v. Woehler, 31 C. A. 662, 72 S. W. 1035.

17. Counter claim against non-resident plaintiff allowed, when.—Judgment on a cross-demand may be rendered against a non-resident plaintiff suing in this state. Andrews v. Whitehead (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 809.

In a suit by a seller of a piano to recover it on the buyer's failure to pay therefor, a cross-bill for the piano accepted by the seller in part payment or for the value thereof held properly allowed, though the seller was not a resident of the county in which the suit was brought. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 948.

18. Effect of exemption.—Where, in a suit on a note, plaintiff recovers, and defendant also recovers for an attachment thereon of an exempt crop, it is proper, in entering judgment, to specify that the recovery cannot be set off. Moore v. Graham, 29 C. A. 235, 63 S. W. 250.

In an action for conversion of exempt property, a judgment cannot be set off against the claim. Staggs' Heirs v. Piland, 31 C. A. 245, 71 S. W. 762.

19. Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action by a landlord to recover his share of a crop, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding for defendant on a plea in reconvention. Poutra v. Mostyn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

21. Discontinuance, when defendant has filed counter claim.—See Art. 1900.

22. Non-suit, when counter claim filed.—See Art. 1956.

24. Plea of payment, counter claim, etc.—See Art. 1907.

25. Certiorari to Justice's court.—See notes under Art. 769.

Art. 1326. [751] [646] Requisites of the plea.—The plea setting up such counter claim shall state distinctly the nature and the several items thereof, and shall conform to the ordinary rules of pleading. [P. D. 3444.]

Plea—Requisites and sufficiency.—See, also, notes under Art. 1907.

Under this article an answer was defective which pleaded as a defense to a note that it had been given for goods ordered and that substitute and inferior goods had been sent, but did not show what part of the goods sent were not as ordered. Clayton v. Western Nat. Wall Paper Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 695.

Art. 1327. [752] [647] Judgment over in defendant's favor, when.—On the trial of such issue, if the defendant shall establish a demand against the plaintiff exceeding that established against him by the plaintiff, the court shall render judgment for the defendant for such excess. [P. D. 3446.]

Art. 1328. [753] [648] Judgment for costs, how determined.—Whenever a counter claim is pleaded under the provisions of this chapter, the party in whose favor final judgment is rendered shall also recover his costs, unless it should be made to appear on the trial that the counter claim of the defendant was acquired after the commencement of the suit, in which case, if the plaintiff establishes a cause of action existing at the commencement of the suit, he shall recover his costs. [Id. and Act Jan. 2, 1860, p. 5. P. D. 3445-6.]

Construed.—Construing this article in connection with art. 1374, it is held that the latter article controls. Ferrier v. Knox County (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 836. See McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Gilkey (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 325. When an attorney may be set-off by accounts for professional services due the latter. Wherever an independent action is commenced for said services and another suit brought on the notes, the costs of both actions may be adjudged against the party pleading set-off where he amends his answer for that purpose, thereby abandons his separate action. Brown v. Montgomery, 12 C. A. 548, 47 S. W. 886.

Art. 1329. [754] [649] Certain and uncertain damages not to be set off against each other.—If the plaintiff's cause of action be a claim for unliquidated or uncertain damages, founded on a tort or breach of covenant, the defendant shall not be permitted to set off any debt due him by the plaintiff; and, if the suit be founded on a certain demand, the defendant shall not be permitted to set off unliquidated or uncertain damages founded on a tort or breach of covenant on the part of the plaintiff. [P. D. 3447.]

A judgment in another suit cannot be pleaded as an offset to a claim for damages for a wrongful attachment. Imperial Rolling Mill Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 27 S. W. 49, 5 C. A. 686.

In an action to recover unliquidated damages, a note given by plaintiff to defendant cannot be set off. Santsbeen v. Froboese, 17 C. A. 628, 43 S. W. 671.

Plaintiff's damages for illegal ejection from lands worked by him under a contract cannot be set off by the value of goods purchased at defendant's store. Ellis v. Stine (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 758.

In a suit for tort for unliquidated damages, it is improper to plead in offset a claim for payment for use and benefit and for repairs and work. Stagg's Helix v. Piland, 31 C. A. 244, 71 S. W. 764.

Under the direct provisions of this article, defendant cannot set off a debt claimed to be due him from plaintiff against a demand for a tort committed against plaintiff by him. Baldwin v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 747; Curlee v. Rogn (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1126.

A defendant setting up a liquidated demand as a counter claim in an action on a liquidated demand held not required to prove a certain agreement in order to avail himself of the right to set up his claim as a counter claim. Ruseowski v. Wilrodt (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 142.

In a suit for damages for the unlawful seizure of exempt property under legal process, plaintiff's indebtedness to defendant cannot be offset against his right to damages. Pate v. Zerden (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 317.
Where cotton fraudulently packed was shipped under two drafts attached to bills of lading issued by the defendant, an amount recoverable by the plaintiff, in an action involving the transaction represented by one of the drafts could not be set off against the compress company's liability for the fraud occasioned by the cotton shipped under the bills of lading attached to the other draft. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moore & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1092.

Actions on certain or liquidated demands.— The term "liquidated" means adjusted, certain, or settled in respect to amount. The term "certain demand" has been held to have the same meaning as the word "debt." Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 246; Jones v. Hunt, 74 T. 465, 12 S. W. 232; Worley v. Smith, 26 C. A. 327.

November 14, 1883, S. recovered a judgment against M., as assignee of Fondard & Yglesias, for $1,580.62 and foreclosure of a lien on certain goods then in the possession of M. In a suit by M. against S. on the note, held: (1) That the balance due on the judgment was not a liquidated demand and the assignee of the judgment, and could be pleaded in set-off against the promissory note sued on. (2) That the judgment against M. in favor of S. was not superseded by the subsequent agreement between them, and that, even if such were the case, the balance due for the goods undelivered under the agreement would be a liquidated demand, the amount of which could be easily ascertained, and might, under the statute of this state, be set off against the note executed by S. to M. Sheldon v. Martin, 65 T. 409.

In a suit for the wrongful conversion of money received by defendant, the defendant pleaded in set-off certain items of indebtedness owing him by plaintiff. It was held that, as the money withheld by the defendant was known, the measure of damages was a matter of calculation in no wise uncertain or liquidated, and it was proper to allow the offsets pleaded and proved. Jones v. Hunt, 74 T. 667, 12 S. W. 332.

Damages for breach of a contract which can be ascertained from the agreement of the parties can be pleaded in set-off. Bank v. Lynch, 25 S. W. 1042, 6 C. A. 590; Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 251; Riddle v. McKinney, 67 T. 32, 2 S. W. 748; Jones v. Hunt, 74 T. 667, 12 S. W. 332.

A demand held a liquidated one which might be set off by defendant in an action for the price of goods sold. Harrington Lumber Co. v. Smith, 44 C. A. 383, 99 S. W. 116.

The finding was verified by account sued on was defendant's right to plead the counter claim. Nor did it affect the nature of the demand as being certain or uncertain. Hallinan v. Levytansky, 45 C. A. 233, 102 S. W. 463.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a lien on personally, defendant may plead in set-off a claim for unliquidated damages for negligent injury to crops, growing on premises rented from plaintiff. Steiner v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 359.

Whether a cause of action is founded on a liquidated demand prevailing the interposition of a counter claim held determinable alone from the petition. Brooks Tire Mach. Co. v. Fields, 45 C. A. 531, 109 S. W. 1005.

A demand is liquidated when the amount is agreed upon by the parties or fixed by law, and a counter claim for unliquidated damages, not growing out of or connected with the action cannot be interposed as a defense. Brooks Tire Mach. Co. v. Shields, 49 C. A. 151, 108 S. W. 1007.

Plaintiff's demand in an action on notes is liquidated, within this article. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

Unliquidated claim cannot be set off against certain demand.— As to unliquidated damages, see Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 355; Hamilton v. Van Hook, 26 T. 202; Craddock v. Goodwin, 54 T. 575; Shook v. Peters, 59 T. 393; Knight v. Old, 2 App. C. C. § 78.

In an action on a promissory note for the purchase of land and to foreclose the vendor's lien, the maker cannot plead in reconvention unliquidated damages resulting to him from the refusal of the vendee to sell another to defendant in violation of a trust for less than its value. (Duncan v. Magette, 25 T. 251; Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 355; Cato v. Phillips, 23 T. 101.) Riddle v. McKinney, 67 T. 29, 2 S. W. 748.

In such a defendant cannot set off the claim for damages growing out of an unauthorized act of the plaintiff not connected with the note sued on. Schmidt v. Rost, 1 App. C. C. § 684.

In a suit to foreclose the vendor's lien by one holding purchase-money notes for a stove which was damaged, damages for the injury occasioned by the bursting of the mill boiler, caused by the plaintiff muddying the water supplying the mill by maliciously building hog-pens on his own land adjoining the mill, and keeping the hogs on the stream supplying the mill with water, cannot be pleaded by the defendant in reconvention, even though the plaintiff be alleged to be insolvent and unable to respond in damages for his wrongful or malicious acts. The defendant cannot plead failure of consideration in suit for purchase-money on account of damages to the property occasioned by the malicious acts of the plaintiff committed after the sale, and such is the case where the plaintiff is insolvent. Fondren v. Leake, 1 U. C. C. 151.

The right to plead a counter claim for personal services is not affected by the fact that their value had not been agreed upon. McCarty v. Squires (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 556.

In action by tenant against a landlord for converting furniture left on premises after they were vacated, defendant may not claim damages for allowing lewd women on the premises as a set-off to plaintiff's action. Schwulst v. Neely (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 656.

In an action to recover for pastureage furnished defendant's cattle, damages sustained by defendant from breach of the contract, whereby plaintiff agreed not to overstock the pasture, is proper matter for a plea in reconvention. Fields v. Haler (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 115.

Where plaintiff abandoned his contract to clear land after part performance, he may recover on a quantum meruit, leaving defendant to recoup damages for failure to perform. Wansbeke v. Fontoja (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 668.
Title 27)  COUNTER CLAIM  Art. 1330

Damages sustained from the negligence of an officer levying on property in distress proceedings held properly reconvened in a suit for rent. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 227, 65 S. W. 76.

A tenant in an action for distress held entitled to recover from the landlord the value of property levied on under the distress warrant, which was delivered to the landlord and consumed by him. Riggs v. Gray, 31 C. A. 268, 72 S. W. 101.

In an action for pasturage furnished defendants' cattle, damages claimed by a plea in reconvension held not too remote. Scovell v. Melton, 38 C. A. 351, 85 S. W. 463.

A plaintiff sued for rent which alleged by way of a cross-action a claim for damages held insufficient. Blackwcll v. Speer (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 903.

Under an agreement by a building contractor, held that damages for his nonperformance were a proper set-off against a sum owing to him. Schoenfeld v. Karnes City Independent School Corp. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 406.

In an action by a water company for rent from land supplied with water, held proper for the court to submit defendant's right to counterclaim for damages to his crop caused by plaintiff's lack of care in furnishing water. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 645.

The claim of a deceased tax collector's bondsmen for shortage, which had not been judicially ascertained and had been assigned to the collector's successor, could not be set off against the latter's liability to the collector's heirs for fees on delinquent taxes. Bond v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 395.

In an action on two promissory notes and a mortgage given for the purchase price of certain machinery, plaintiff's failure to repair a defective engine held a good set-off. Mangum v. Buffalo Pitts Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1196.

Where the term of an employment contract, which had been breached, had expired, in an action against the servant on a note, the amount the servant was entitled to recover for breach of the contract was available as a proper counter claim. Couturie v. Roesch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 415.

— Unliquidated claim can be set off against unliquidated demand.—An unliquidated demand resulting from the breach of one contract may be pleaded as a set-off to an unliquidated demand growing out of the breach of another contract. Sanders v. Bridges, 67 T. 98, 3 S. W. 663. A claim for unliquidated damages for breach of contract may be set off against an open account for goods sold and delivered. Bodman v. Harris, 20 T. 31.

Set-off for damages for breach of contract of sale held allowable, if petition upon open account might be construed as upon unliquidated demand. Taylor v. Bewley, 39 T. 534, 66 S. W. 746.

Objections and waiver.—This article does not apply where there is no objection by the parties or by the trial judge to the pleading of a liquidated demand in a suit upon a tort or vice versa. Such matters may be pleaded and tried in the same proceeding by consent. Gillette v. Moore (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 35.

This article, even if having application to the setting up of a debt as a justification of the act claimed to be a tort, and not as an offset, requires objection in the trial court to the consideration of the matter set up by defendant. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 266.

Art. 1330. [755] [650] Matters incident to plaintiff's cause of action may be set off.—Nothing in the preceding article shall be so construed as to prohibit the defendant from pleading in set off any counter claim founded on a cause of action arising out of, or incident to, or connected with, the plaintiff's cause of action.

In general.—In the following cases exceptions to the plea were sustained on the ground that the damages claimed were too remote, and did not grow out of, or were not connected with, the main subject: Carothers v. Thorp, 21 T. 358; Pinson v. Kirsh, 46 T. 294; Duncan v. Magee, 45 T. 245.

Evidence is not admissible in proof of a counterclaim where it appears on its face that it did not grow out of, was incident to, or connected with, plaintiff's cause of action. Couch v. Parker, 1 App. C. C. § 436.

In an action on a note, defendant may recover damages in reconvension for failure of the payee to do that for which the note was given. Brown v. Viscaya (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 399.

In suit for rents accruing pending appeal and before sale under judgment in partition, defendant may offset taxes paid by him on plaintiffs interest during such period. Kalteyer v. Wippf (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 207.

Where defendant paid taxes which were a lien on lands purchased with a covenant against liens, the plaintiff, being entitled to set off such taxes against vendor's lien notes given for the price. Bullitt v. Coryell, 38 C. A. 45, 85 S. W. 482.

A claim of defendants for an attorney's fee and costs paid on the note sued on, held to constitute a proper counterclaim in an action on the note. Collins v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 123.

A claim for compensation for work done may be set off against a claim for advances. French, Finch & Co. v. Hicks, 52 C. A. 427, 114 S. W. 691.

Plaintiff sued for balance due for stock of goods, part of consideration being tract of land defendant pledged in offset value of abstract delivered to plaintiff which he agreed to return but did not. Held that matter pleaded in offset grew out of and was connected with original transaction. Hamilton v. Dismukes, 53 C. A. 129, 115 S. W. 1184.

A buyer when sued for the price held entitled to offset the proportional value of articles not delivered. Edwards v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 510.

A cross-action by way of counter claim held to have arisen out of the same transaction as plaintiffs' cause of action. Cunningham v. M. W. & B. G. Davies (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 856.
Art. 1330
COUNTER CLAIM

(Hold, that defendants' claims for the new casings was connected with and grew out of the sale of the property, and hence was available as a counter claim under this article. Ajax-Grieb Rubber Co. v. Byars & Thompson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 921.

Liquidated or unliquidated demands.—When a party after making a contract, but before its performance, discovers a fraud, and the other party still goes on and performs his part of the contract, he may recover damages for the deceit and fraud. Grubenheimer v. Blum, 63 T. 363.

When a plaintiff's action is to recover unliquidated damages for a tort, it is not permissible for the defendant to plead a counter claim for the debt due by plaintiff as incident to, connected with, or growing out of, plaintiff's cause of action. That plaintiff is insolvent constitutes no exception to the rule. Knight v. Old, 2 App. C. C. § 78; Duncan v. Magette, 28 T. 246.

In a suit by an engineer for the value of his services, the defendant can plead in reconvention damages on account of the negligent acts of plaintiff as engineer. Scott v. Railway Co., 4 App. C. C. § 287, 18 S. W. 237.

Recovery for debt the defendant cannot plead in reconvention damages resulting from a criminal proceeding instituted by plaintiff in another state, alleged to have been instituted for the purpose of collecting the debt sued on. Pittman v. Keith (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 88.

In a suit for rent defendant may recover actual and exemplary damages for the wrongful suing out and levy of the distress warrant. T. & F. Coal Co. v. Lawson, 10 C. A. 491, 31 S. W. 843.

Where defendant purchased libelous matter of plaintiff while attempting to collect a claim against him, such claim cannot be set off in plaintiff's action for the libel. Brown v. Durham (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 331.

The maker of a note may in reconvention plead damages for payee's breach of an agreement as a part of which the note in suit was given. Hansen v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 756.

Landlord sued for conversion of furniture left on premises by tenant on vacating them may set off pro tanto, rent due. Schwutat v. Neely (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 608.

Where defendant in a plea in reconvention for damages for wrongfully suing out distress warrant and also claim compensation for clearing the land under the contract. Such plea does not set up two causes of action. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 257, 65 S. W. 77.

A lien on account for the keep of a horse and the lien therefor may be asserted by way of counterclaim against a suit for the animal's conversion, though the action sounds in tort. Gooch v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 573.

A counter claim may be for unliquidated damages, where arising out of the same transaction in which the note sued on was given. Tyson v. Jackson Bros., 41 C. A. 128, 90 S. W. 920.

Where a shortage in number of cattle did not arise out of nor was in any way incident to or connected with the pasturage of the cattle on appellant's implied obligation to pay the reasonable value of the pasturage, it could not be set off In a suit for the pasture. Gage v. Hunter, 43 C. A. 241, 94 S. W. 1104.

If the demand sought to be adjudicated by the defendant is necessarily connected with and incident to the suit brought by plaintiff it is a proper matter of cross-action, where plaintiff has appropriated unliquidated Rate of liquidated damages. Steuer v. Huggins & Co., 51 C. A. 495, 111 S. W. 572, 754.

In an action by the shipper against the buyer and a consignee for the price of fruit sold, the buyer could file a cross-action against the seller for damages caused by breach of his contract to ship by a certain route, and by the negligence of the seller's agent in charging the freight, for negligence in handling the cars, though the cross-action involved both matters ex contractu and ex delicto; both arising out of the same transaction. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 73.

Where plaintiff sues on notes reserving a vendor's lien, defendant's claim for breach of a contract subsequent to the notes to renew or procure insurance on the property on which the vendor's lien was reserved is not founded on a cause of action arising out of or incident to, or connected with, plaintiff's cause of action within this article. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

The amount paid to the property owner by the attaching creditor, after sale of cotton seized on second attachment levied by the creditor, held only available as an offset against the recovery for the wrongful seizure of the cotton, and not for wrongful seizure of other property. Perdue v. Vandermans (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 317.

In an action for damages for breach of defendant's contract to cut and deliver timber from a certain tract for plaintiff, defendant, under this article, could plead in reconvention a claim for hauling logs from a different tract. Hardeman-King Lumber Co. v. Hampton Bros., 104 T. 535, 142 S. W. 867.

Sureties upon the bond of a contractor held entitled to counterclaim for material appropriated by the owners. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

Under this article a tenant sued for rent may set off a claim for unliquidated damages from the landlord's negligently permitting his cattle to injure the tenant's crop. Duran v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 695.

Where a contractor to construct shelving and counters in a store sued for the contract price, the owner could not set up a counter claim for unliquidated damages for breach of contract by the building, made between him and a third person, and prior to the contract sued on as the damages were not founded on a cause of action arising out of, or incident to, or connected with, the cause of action sued on. Brown v. Dollie (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 291.

In action for rent, a tenant was not entitled to reconvene for damages for causing her to abandon the premises, where the lease had been theretofore canceled by mutual agreement, without first having the cancellation agreement set aside for alleged duress. Hedrick v. Smith (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 266.

In an action for a balance alleged to be due on a building contract, a defendant, if entitled to recover for injuries to the building from a breach of the contract, may also recover for injuries to the merchandise in the building. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Evens & Lee (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1652.

Where plaintiff sued on a liquidated demand for the price of goods sold, defendant could not set off unliquidated damages for breach of warranty of certain automobile casings purchased from plaintiff and not replaced according to contract, but might set off a claim for breach of plaintiff's agreement to exchange new casings for old if made as part of the same transaction in which defendant purchased the goods sued for and part of the inducement for such purchase, in which case the counter claim would be available under this article. Ajax-Grieb Rubber Co. v. Byars & Thompson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 921.

Damages to the pledgor of cotton tickets as collateral security for advances, resulting from their loss by the pledgee, may be pleaded by way of set-off in the pledgee's action for such advances. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 623.

Necessity and effect of insolvency.—In action for damages for unlawful entry of plaintiff's dwelling, and seizure and sale of a piano therein, under an order of sale, defendant held not entitled to a set-off against plaintiff's claim, though plaintiff was insolvent. Hillman v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787.

Amount as affected by limits of court's jurisdiction.—See, also, Art. 1763 et seq.

Under this Article and Art. 1900, providing that right to be heard thereon shall not be prejudiced by dismissal of plaintiff's suit, it is immaterial to a defendant's right to recover on the counterclaim that the amount thereof is less than would be within the court's jurisdiction as an original cause of action. Cooksey v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1175.
TITLE 28
COUNTIES AND COUNTY SEATS

CHAPTER ONE
CREATION OF COUNTIES

Art. 1331. [756] [651] Legislature may create counties.—The legislature may have nine hundred square miles, unless, etc.
1332. Exterior territory may be divided in Counties at any time.
1333. Counties created out of other counties must have seven hundred square miles.
1334. Line of new county shall not approach nearer than twelve miles to an established county seat.
1335. Counties with less than nine hundred square miles may be created, how.
1336. Existing counties may be reduced to seven hundred square miles, how.
1337. New county shall pay its part of the liabilities of the old county.
1338. New counties to pay pro rata indebtedness, how apportioned.
1339. Suits to have precedence; special tax to pay judgments.
1340. Non-residents to pay to comptroller.
1341. Creation of counties.-An unorganized county may be created, when, how.
1342. Returns of election, how and to whom made.
1343. Another election for the same purpose shall not be held for five years.

Article 1331. [756] [651] Legislature may create counties.—The legislature shall have power to create counties for the convenience of the people, subject to the following provisions of this chapter: [Const., art. 9, sec. 1.]

Cited, Parrish v. Ralls (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 933.

Unorganized counties.—The legislature can attach an unorganized county to several organized counties for different purposes, as convenience may suggest. First Nat. Bank v. McElroy, 61 C. A. 284, 112 S. W. 591.

Art. 1332. [757] [652] Must have 900 square miles, unless, etc.—In the territory of the state, exterior to the counties now existing, no new county shall be created with a less area than nine hundred square miles, in a square form, unless prevented by pre-existing boundary lines. Should the state lines render this impracticable in border counties, the area may be less. [Id.]

Attacking legality of existence of county.—The legal existence of a county created by the legislature and recognized by the state can be questioned as containing the area required by the constitution by the state alone. Blackburn v. Delta County, 49 C. A. 370, 107 S. W. 80.

Art. 1333. [758] [653] Exterior territory may be divided at any time.—The territory referred to in the preceding article may at any time, in whole or in part, be divided into counties in advance of population, and attached, for judicial and land surveying purposes, to the most convenient organized county or counties. [Id.]

Creating new counties.—An unorganized county has generally been treated as a part of the county to which it is attached for judicial purposes so far as the exercise of local governmental power over it is concerned. Cattle Co. v. Faught, 63 T. 402, 5 S. W. 494.

Art. 1334. [759] [654] Counties created out of other counties must have 700 square miles.—Within the territory of any county or counties now existing, no new county shall be created with a less area than seven hundred square miles; nor shall any such county now existing be reduced to a less area than seven hundred square miles. [Id.]

Art. 1335. [760] [655] Line of new county shall not approach nearer than 12 miles to an established county seat.—No new counties shall be created so as to approach nearer than twelve miles of the county seat of any county from which it may, in whole or in part, be taken. [Id.]

Art. 1336. [761] [656] Counties with less than 900 square miles may be created, how.—Counties of a less area than nine hundred, but of seven hundred or more, square miles, within counties now existing, may be created by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature, taken by yeas and nays, and entered on the journals. [Id.]

Art. 1337. [762] [657] Existing counties may be reduced to 700 square miles, how.—Any county now existing may be reduced to an area of not less than seven hundred square miles by a like two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature, taken by yeas and nays, and entered on the journals. [Id.]

Art. 1338. [763] [658] New county shall pay its part of the liabilities of the old county.—When any part of a county is stricken off and attached to, or created into, another county, the part stricken off shall be held for, and obliged to pay, its proportion of all the liabilities then existing of the county from which it was taken, in such manner as the law shall provide. [Id.]

Dividing old county.—No credit will be given to the new county for public buildings and bridges remaining in the old county. Mills County v. Brown County, 29 S. W. 660, 87 T. 476.

The term "new counties" includes all counties created out of others. As to payment of debts by new counties. Id.

Art. 1339. [764] New counties to pay pro rata of indebtedness.—Any county which has heretofore been created, or may hereafter be created, by the legislature of the state of Texas, out of any other county or counties, shall be held liable for, and bound to pay its proportion of all the liabilities of the county or counties from which it was taken, existing at the date of its creation of such new county, according to the proportionate value of the property in the excised territory, and the value of the property remaining in the old county; and a suit to recover the same may be brought by the parent county, either in the district court of such parent county, or in the district court of the newly created county; and the court shall have power to make any order or render any judgment necessary to carry out and satisfy its decree therein; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to any county, the claims against which have already been placed before courts having jurisdiction thereof and tried or dismissed under laws that were at such time constitutional. [Acts of 1893, p. 124.]

Suits for indebtedness apportioned.—The statute of limitations did not begin to run against suits authorized by this article until its enactment; and a suit brought within two years thereafter was in time. Mills County v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552. The claim need not be presented to the commissioners' court for allowance under Art. 790. Mills County v. Lampasas County, 90 T. 603, 40 S. W. 402; Id., (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552.

In action by county against a new county created out of it to recover proportionate part of the original county's debt, taxpayers of the new county are not necessary parties. Hardeman County v. Foard County, 19 C. A. 212, 47 S. W. 30, 536.

Defendant was not entitled to credit for back taxes collected in the territory after the organization of the new county. Id.

The new county is entitled to credit for back taxes collected by parent county in territory of the new county after organization. Hardeman County v. Foard County, 19 C. A. 212, 47 S. W. 30, 536.

Suit can be brought in the parent county against counties that have been carved out of the former, to force the new counties to pay their pro rata of an indebtedness incurred by the parent county before the new counties were formed and the new counties are liable for their pro rata share of such indebtedness, in a suit brought by the holders of the indebtedness against the parent county and are proper parties to such suit. Jeff Davis County et al. v. City Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 157, 54 S. W. 39.
Art. 1340. [765] Such indebtedness, how apportioned.—Where any suit has been, or shall be, brought to enforce payment of the indebtedness created by the parent county or counties, or for the pro rata share of the excised territory, the assessment rolls of the parent county or counties for the year in which such new county was created shall be conclusive evidence of the property and value thereof remaining in the parent county and in the excised territory at the date of the creation of such new county; provided, that when the new county was organized and made assessment rolls for the same year as that in which it was created, such rolls shall be taken as conclusive evidence of the property therein and the taxable values thereof at the date of the creation of such new county; and the assessment rolls of the parent county for the same year shall be conclusive evidence of the property and the value thereof remaining in the parent county at the date of the creation of such new county. [Id.]

Conclusiveness of rolls.—In action by county to recover of another created from it its proportion of the debt of the original county, held, the tax rolls were not conclusive, where it appeared against their face that the same property had been twice listed therein. Hardeman County v. Ford County, 19 C. A. 312, 47 S. W. 30, 636.

Art. 1341. [765a] Suits to have precedence; special tax to pay judgments.—All suits brought under this law are hereby declared to be of general public interest, and shall be given precedence upon the dockets of the courts of this state; and, if the plaintiff shall recover, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the newly created county to levy a special tax on all property in the territory taken from the plaintiff county sufficient to pay off the judgment, and, if the first levy be insufficient, to make said levy annually till said judgment is satisfied, and the judgment of the court shall order said commissioners' court to make such levies. [Id.]

Art. 1342. [766] Non-residents to pay to comptroller.—It shall be the duty of the comptroller of public accounts to assess and collect from the nonresidents of unorganized counties such rate of taxation, to pay the pro rata share of the debt due by such unorganized county, as the commissioners' court of the parent county shall levy on property in said parent county to pay such debt, and a certified statement of the commissioners' court making the levy in the parent county, giving the amount of the levy, shall be authority for his action. [Acts of 1889, p. 136.]

Art. 1343. [767] When territory is added, duty of commissioners in organized counties.—When the territory taken is added to, and made a part of, an organized county, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county to levy and have collected on all property in such territory a tax sufficient to pay their pro rata of the indebtedness, said tax not to exceed the constitutional limit; and it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the county to which any unorganized county may be attached for judicial purposes to levy and have collected on all property in such unorganized county owned or held by resident citizens a tax for the purpose of paying such indebtedness. [Id.]

Art. 1344. [768] Tax for pro rata indebtedness.—When any county has organized, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county to levy and have collected on all property in this county such rate of taxation to pay the pro rata share of the debt due by such county as the commissioners' court of the parent county shall levy on property in said parent county to pay such debt. [Id.]

Art. 1345. [769] Tax collected in unorganized counties by comptroller.—All county taxes due unorganized counties collected by the comptroller shall be kept by him to the credit of such unorganized county until the same shall have been organized; then he shall, upon demand of the treasurer of the former unorganized county, pay the same over to the said treasurer; provided, that in case any unorganized county is indebted to any county from which the same has been created, and which debt existed at the time of its creation, the comptroller shall use so much of said fund as may be necessary to pay the pro rata share of such debt due by such unorganized county; and an order of the commissioners’ court of the parent county stating the amount due from the unorganized county shall be authority for the comptroller to draw his warrant for said amount; and the provisions of this article shall apply to all money now held by the comptroller for unorganized counties and to all money hereafter collected. [Id.]

Art. 1346. [770] County bonds held by school funds apportioned between counties, when.—When any new county has been created wholly and entirely out of any existing county, if any bonds were legally issued by the parent county prior to the severance of a part of its territory, such of said bonds and the coupons due thereon as are held by the school fund of the state of Texas shall be apportioned between the parent county and the county or counties created out of the parent county, by the comptroller of public accounts, on the basis now provided by law. [Acts 1891, p. 39.]

Art. 1347. [771] Commissioners’ court to levy tax for, pro rated.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners’ court of the parent county, or any county created out of the parent county, which has now or may hereafter be organized, to levy and have collected on all property in such county a tax to pay such county’s pro rata share of the debt. It shall be the duty of the commissioners’ court of any county to which any unorganized county may be attached for judicial purposes to levy and have collected on all property in said unorganized county owned by resident citizens thereof a tax for the purpose of paying said county’s part of the debt; and it shall be the duty of the comptroller of public accounts to assess and collect on all property in such unorganized counties owned by non-residents a tax to pay said counties’ pro rata part of said debt; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to authorize the levy and collection of any tax in excess of that now allowed by the constitution of this state. [Id.]

Art. 1348. [772] [659] Part of existing county shall not be detached, etc., except, etc.—No part of any existing county shall be detached from it and attached to another existing county until the proposition for such change shall have been submitted to a vote of the electors of both counties, and shall have received a majority of those voting on the question in each. [Const. art. 9.]

Art. 1349. [773] [660] Election shall be ordered, when, etc.—An election for the purpose named in the preceding article shall be ordered by the county judge, or county judges, of the county or counties from which it is proposed to detach any portion thereof, or to attach any portion thereto, upon the application in writing of not less than fifty qualified voters of said county or counties.

Art. 1350. [774] [661] Application shall show, what.—The application provided for in the preceding article shall designate particularly, by metes and bounds, the portion of territory proposed to be detached, and shall show the number of square acres contained within said bounds, and the number of square acres remaining in the county or counties from which it is proposed to detach such part or parts, and the distance on a direct line of the county seat of any such county or counties from the nearest boundary line of the territory which it is proposed shall be detached.
Art. 1351. [775] [662] Notices of such election shall contain what.—The notices of such election shall contain, substantially, the boundaries and statements contained in the application, and in the order of election.

Art. 1352. [776] [663] Question to be voted upon.—The question to be voted upon at such election shall be, for or against the proposition, and the ballots shall be, "For the proposition," or "Against the proposition."

Art. 1353. [777] [664] Law governing other elections shall govern this.—Such election shall be governed by the law governing other elections so far as the same may be applicable, and not in conflict with any of the provisions of this chapter.

Art. 1354. [778] [665] Returns of elections, how and to whom made.—The returns of such election shall be made to the county judge, or county judges, of the county or counties in which the election takes place; and such county judge, or county judges, shall estimate the vote and make duplicate statements of the same, and shall certify to such statements officially; and one of said statements, together with a copy of the application certified to by him officially, he shall seal in an envelope, writing his name across the seal, and indorsing upon the package "Election returns of ....... county," and direct and transmit the same by mail or other safe conveyance to the speaker of the house of representatives at the seat of government, in time for the same to be received at as early a day as practicable during the next session of the legislature.

Art. 1355. [779] [666] Another election for same purpose shall not be held for five years.—When any such election has been held in a county, and the proposition to detach a portion thereof has been defeated, no other election for the same purpose shall be ordered or held for the period of five years thereafter.

CHAPTER TWO

ORGANIZATION OF COUNTIES

Art.
1356. Old county shall organize new one.
1357. Election to be ordered, when and by whom.
1358. County commissioners may act, when.
1359. New county subject to old until organized.
1360. Disorganized county is to be attached to other county, until, etc.

Art.
1361. County attached to another may be organized, how.
1362. Certificates of election in such cases.
1363. Books, etc., shall be delivered to such officer.
1364. Elections in unorganized counties.

Article 1356. [780] [667] Old county shall organize new one.—Whenever any new county shall hereafter be established, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of the county from which the territory of such new county, or the greater part thereof, was taken, at least one month previous to the general election of county officers next after such new county shall have been established, to lay off and divide such new county into convenient precincts for the election of justices of the peace, county commissioners and constables, defining particularly the boundaries of such precincts; and also to designate convenient places in such new county where elections shall be held; of all which they shall cause a record to be made by the clerk, and a copy thereof shall be transmitted to the county judge of such new county when elected. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 1063.]

Destruction of field notes.—The mere facts that the field notes of G. precinct where local option election was held had been burned could not render invalid the field notes of a justice precinct in one of its calls referring to G. precinct. Ex parte Walton, 45 Cr. R. 74, 74 S. W. 314.
Mistake as to boundaries.—An order of the commissioners' court for a local option election held to correct a prior mistake as to boundaries of a commissioner's precinct. Martin v. Mitchell, 23 C. A. 355, 74 S. W. 565.

In case of conflicting calls in the report of viewers to fix the boundaries of a commissioner's precinct, evidence of a mistake held admissible to show which of the calls was the true one. Id.

Art. 1357. [781] [668] Election to be ordered when and by whom. —It shall be the duty of the county judge of every county from which any new county has been so taken, at least one month previous to the general election of county officers next after such new county has been established, to order an election to be held in such new county, on said general election day, for all county officers authorized to be elected by the people of such new county, and to appoint a presiding officer for each place designated in such new county, for holding elections; such order of elections shall specify the number of precincts, their boundaries, and the officers to be elected in such county. Such presiding officers shall hold such elections in accordance with the laws regulating elections, and shall make their returns to the county judge who ordered such election, who shall open and examine such returns and give certificates to the persons elected. [Id. P. D. 1064.]

Art. 1358. [782] [669] County commissioners may act, when.—In all cases where the office of county judge shall be vacant, any two of the county commissioners shall be authorized to perform all the duties required of the county judge by the provisions of this chapter. [Id. P. D. 1065.]

Art. 1359. [783] [670] New county subject to old until organized. —Until a new county is organized in accordance with law, the territory thereof shall remain in all respects subject to the county from which the same has been taken.

Control pending organization.—Acts which create new counties do no more than to provide for their organization, and until the new county is actually organized the territory remains subject to the jurisdiction of the old county; and the inclusion of the new county by name in another judicial district, and in an act apportioning senators, etc., among the several counties of the state, does not affect the question. O'Shea v. Twohig, 9 T. 336; Clark v. Goss, 12 T. 395, 62 Am. Dec. 531; Wilson v. Catchings, 41 T. 587.

Until the inhabitants of the territory embraced within the boundaries of a new county exercise the privilege granted to them by the legislature by organizing their county government, they remain subject to the dominion of the government of the old county, and the acts of the officers of the latter, done in the performance of their official duties within the territory of the new county prior to its organization, are legal and valid. A new county created out of a portion of the territory of an original county, independent of express provisions therefor in the act creating the new county, cannot recover any part of the money and revenues belonging to the old county at the time of the organization of the new county. Reeves Co. v. Fears Co., 69 T. 177, 7 S. W. 54; Baker v. Beck, 74 T. 562, 12 S. W. 239; Polts v. Ferguson, 77 T. 301, 13 S. W. 1037.

Until the new county is actually organized it remains in all things subject to the jurisdiction of the old county and the placing of the unorganized county in a different judicial district does not sever its connection with the parent county. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 889.

Art. 1360. [784] [671] Disorganized counties to be attached to other counties, until, etc.—All legally organized counties that, from any cause, may have lost, or may hereafter lose, their county organization, shall be, for all judicial and surveying purposes, and for the registration of deeds, mortgages and all other instruments that are now, or may hereafter be, required or permitted by law to be recorded, attached to the organized county whose county seat is nearest to the county seat of such disorganized county, and so remain attached until such disorganized county shall again be legally organized. [Act Nov. 5, 1866, p. 90.]

Art. 1361. [785] [672] County attached to another may be organized, how.—When any unorganized or disorganized county has been attached to another county for judicial or other purposes, and desires to be organized or reorganized, a petition expressing such desire, signed by not less than one hundred and fifty qualified voters residing in such unorganized or disorganized county, may be presented to the commissioners' court of the county to which such unorganized or disorganized

Art. 1361. County is attached, and thereupon it shall be the duty of said court to proceed without delay to the organization or reorganization of such county, as the case may be, in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the organization of new counties. [Act May 1, 1874, p. 188, sec. 2.]

Time for election.—This article does not fix the time of holding the election as in arts. 1356-1357. On application made November 12, 1888, an election was ordered and the result declared December 24, 1888. The organization was held to be valid. State v. Cooke, 78 T. 406, 14 S. W. 996; Ewing v. Duncan, 81 T. 230, 18 S. W. 1000.

Liability of unorganized county to suit.—An unorganized county cannot be sued, though attached to an organized county for judicial purposes. Brewer County v. Presidio County, 19 C. A. 698, 48 S. W. 215.

Art. 1362. [786] [673] Certificates of election in such cases shall be issued by whom and bonds taken, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge of the county conducting the organization of another county to issue the certificates of election to the officers elected in such organized or reorganized county, and to approve the bonds of such officers, and administer to them the oath of office in accordance with law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Qualifying for office.—When the county judge and county commissioners have been elected with a view to the organization of an unorganized county, two of such commissioners cannot, in connection with the county judge, organize the court before the others have qualified, and before the expiration of the time allowed by law for such qualification. Cassin v. Zavalla County, 70 T. 419, 8 S. W. 97.

Art. 1363. [787] [674] Books, etc., shall be delivered to such officers.—It shall be the duty of all officers of the county from which any new county has been created, or to which any such newly organized or reorganized county has been attached, and the duty also of all other persons who may have in their possession any books, records, maps or other property belonging to such newly organized or reorganized county, to deliver the same to the proper officers of such newly organized or reorganized county within five days after such officers have been legally qualified as such; and any officer or person who shall wilfully fail to make such delivery upon demand made therefor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as provided in the Penal Code. [Id. sec. 4.]

Delivering records to new county.—When a new county is created out of the territory of another, it is the duty of the county clerk of the parent county to deliver any public records pertaining to the new county to the county clerk of the latter county, and it is his duty to give a certified copy of a record pertaining to the county although the record was made before the new county was carved out of the parent county. Hooks v. Colley, 22 C. A. 1, 63 S. W. 56.

Art. 1364. [788] [675] Elections in unorganized counties.—In all cases where a county is not organized, and there is no officer in the same authorized by law to organize such county, the county judge of the nearest county which is organized may order elections for county officers in any such disorganized county, and appoint the presiding officers and managers and clerks of election, as prescribed by law in other cases. [Act March 26, 1848. P. D. 3624.]

CHAPTER THREE
CORPORATE RIGHTS AND POWERS

Art. 1365. County a body corporate.
1366. Suits against.
1367. Inhabitants of, may be jurors, etc., in such suits.
1368. Execution shall not issue against county.
1369. Deeds, grants, etc., to counties valid, etc.

Art. 1370. Commissioner to sell real estate of.
1371. Contracts with county valid.
1372. Suits on notes, etc., by county.
1373. Agents to contract for county may be appointed.
1374. Costs in suit against county.
County as corporation.—Counties are not corporations in the fullest sense of that term. A county is not liable for injuries caused by a defective bridge. Heigel v. Wichita County, 24 T., 392, 19 S. W. 561; Am. St. Rep. 61.

Unorganized county.—Until a county becomes legally organized for purposes of its own government county it is not to be considered a subdivision of the state, capable of performing legal and political functions, but the legislature can designate the place where lawsuits affecting property situating in the unorganized county shall be recorded. First Natl. Bank v. McElroy, 51 A. 284, 112 S. W. 803.

Counties are not liable for the mere neglect or wrong of their officers, unless made so by statute. Cause v. Harris County, 16 A. 375, 44 S. W. 616; Boaz v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 290.

A county is not liable for damage caused by the negligent construction of a ditch by its officers or agents, unless the liability is expressly or by necessary implication imposed by statute. Florida v. Galveston County (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 540.

Injuries to land adjoining a highway by the construction of a ditch therein held not a taking of or injury to private property for which the county was liable. Zavalla County v. Akers (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 248.

A county is not liable for the overflow of a farm due to the negligent construction of a ditch by the county. Siewerssen v. Harris County, 41 A. 115, 91 S. W. 333.

Contracts.—See also, Title 40, Chapter 2.

In an action against a county on a contract alleged to have been made with the county, held ratified by the commissioners' court, but, which was such that the commissioners' court had no power to make it, the county could not be stopped from setting up this defense. Baldwin v. Travis County, 40 C. 149, 88 S. W. 480.

Payment of a warrant by a county held a ratification of a purchase of certain road machinery in consideration of a safe and a sum of money, so as to pass title to the safe without a bill of sale or an order entered in the commissioner's court. Woodward v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 78.

A company having exercised its option to take the price paid by the county judge for property bought by him at the county's judicial sale, instead of the land, held not entitled to recover the land without restoring the purchase price. Felts v. Bell County, 103 T. 616, 133 S. W. 135.

Suits against.—No county shall be sued unless the claim upon which such suit is founded shall have first been presented to the county commissioners' court for allowance, and such court shall have neglected or refused to audit and allow the same, or any part thereof. [P. D. 1045.]

Presentation of claim.—In a suit by a county against the treasurer to recover certain moneys in his hands, the defendant has the right to claim commissions due him for collecting money in his hands, without having presented his claim therefor to the court for allowance. County v. Vickery, 65 S. W. 554.

Limitation does not run against a school claim during the period of its recognition by the county as a valid claim, and not until after its disallowance. The legislature may require it thereby enable the county to exercise its collection, even after the lapse of such time as would otherwise bar it by limitation. Caldwell County v. Harbert, 68 T. 321, 4 S. W. 607.

A claim for damages against a county for trespass on lands should be presented for allowance before filing suit. Norwood v. Gonzales Co., 1365.

This article applies to claims by one county against another. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 177.

This statute protects a county from garnishment. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Bexar County, 16 A. 678, 40 S. W. 146.

A county may sue another county formed out of a portion of its territory for the latter's proportion of the debts of the old county without presenting the claim for allowance. Mills County v. Lampasas County, 80 T. 665, 40 S. W. 400; Id. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 502.

This article does not apply where a part of a county is stricken off and attached to or created into another county, and the new county is sued for its proportion of the existing indebtedness of the parent county as provided for in article 744 under article 5, section 1, of the constitution. Brewster County v. Presidio County, 19 C. A. 638, 48 S. W. 213.

Where a county voluntarily intervenes in a suit against the overseer of a road district for unlawful removal of a fence, and assumes all liability for the overseer's acts, it cannot complain that, to maintain the suit, the claim for damages should have been presented to the commissioners' court, after it has repudiated plaintiff's claim, and the suit is to be seen as not being instituted at this. Luckie v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 690.

In an action by a county to recover land granted for services rendered under a voidable conveyance, an objection that the grantee's claim had not been presented to the commissioners' court for allowance was without merit, in view of the fact that the granting was made in consideration of such services. Club Land & Cattle Co. v. Dallas County, 26 C. A. 449, 64 S. W. 872.

This article is not applicable to claims against a county arising under article 6035. The latter article providing a special procedure for cases arising thereunder. Holt v. Rockwall County, 27 C. A. 366, 66 S. W. 390.
This article does not apply in case of trespass to try title to recover land claimed by County v. Powell (Tex. Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 237.

County bonds are not such claims as are required by statute to be presented to the commissioners' court before suit. Martin County v. Gillespie County, 50 C. A. 307, 71 S. W. 421.

The rejection by the auditor put it out of the power of the commissioner's court to act upon the claim and amounted to a rejection by that court, bringing it within the terms of this article, and the owner of the claim could sue upon it and establish the claim against the county. Anderson v. Ashe, 99 T. 447, 90 S. W. 574.

The claim may be presented after the commissioner's court has taken steps to appropriate the land, although the actual appropriation has not occurred. Bell County v. Flint (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 329.

Under this article the 'neglect' of the commissioners' court to make the allowance is sufficiently shown by evidence that the court has been given a reasonable time within which to act, and has failed to allow the claim. Williams v. Bowie County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 199.

Under this article an individual having a claim against the county for the value of his services in preparing delinquent tax lists must, before suing, present his claim to the commissioners' court for allowance, and the fact that the court had made an order directing the tax collector to institute a suit for delinquent taxes, and to restrain the delinquent taxpayer from paying over to the claimant a sum due on a judgment for delinquent taxes, and a suit against the individual to collect from him all taxes in excess of a specified per cent. that had been collected by him under the contract with the county for the proceeds of delinquent tax lists, was not such a refusal to allow the claim as would excuse the failure to file the claim with the commissioners' court. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1168.

This article applies to a suit for damages caused by the opening of a road. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 156.

In action against a county for damages for the cutting by its road supervisor, acting under its commissioners, of an embankment built by plaintiff to impound water for his mill, is not an action for the taking of private property without compensation, though subsequent to the construction of the embankment the public road was so changed as to run in across and along the embankment, but is an action for damages within this article, so that the presentation of a claim for the damages and the refusal of the commissioners' court to allow it are conditions precedent to a right to sue. Bogue v. Van Zandt County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1065.

Def set-off.—In an action by a county against a county treasurer for funds of the county, and which he has collected and refuses to pay over, the defendant cannot plead in offset claims for services rendered by him which have not been acted on by the county court. Colorado County v. Beethe, 44 T. 447.

Action against.—Bringing unauthorized suit held ratified by commissioners. Mills County v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552.

Counties are not liable for injuries resulting from the negligence of their officers or agents unless made so by statute. Cruase v. Harris County, 18 C. A. 375, 44 S. W. 216.

The commissioners' court has the exclusive right to determine whether a suit shall be brought in the name and for the benefit of such county, except in a case where the concurrent or exclusive right is conferred on some officer or tribunal by the legislature to exercise in the same specified case a like discretion. Article 966, which directs the district and county attorney to institute suit in certain contingencies, confers on them no authority to institute suit against the wishes of the commissioners' court to recover back money authorized by the court to be paid out of the county funds. Loose v. Harris County, 58 T. 511.

In trespass to try title by a county to recover school lands, an agreement in a different action to abide the decision in another action held to estop plaintiff from asserting title to the same land involved in such first named case. Lamar County v. Talley (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1069.

Under this and the preceding article, a county against which any liability exists may be sued after the claim has been presented and litigated. Boaz v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 769.

Parties.—See notes under Art. 1535.

Pleading.—See, also, notes under Title 37, Chapters 2, 3, and 8.

It is not necessary in a suit brought for the use of a county that the petition should show on its face that the county had authorized it. Such an objection can be taken only by plea in abatement. Smith v. Wingate, 61 T. 54.

For allegations in a suit against a county upon a claim, see Leech v. Wilson County, 62 T. 331.

In a suit against a county for damages for establishing a public road across plaintiff's land, the petition must allege that the particular claim sued on was presented to the commissioner's court, and rejected before the suit can be maintained. Bell County v. Flint (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 329.

A compliance with this article is a condition precedent to bringing suit and if the petition fails to allege compliance it is subject to general demurrer. Yantis v. Montague County, 50 C. A. 403, 110 S. W. 161.

The fact that a county had made a defense to garnishment proceedings against it held not to constitute a waiver of its exemption from garnishment. City of Sherman v. Shobe, 94 T. 126, 58 S. W. 949, 86 Am. St. Rep. 825.

In the absence of statute, a county cannot be subject to garnishment. Id.

Art. 1367. [791] [678] Inhabitants may be jurors, etc., in such suits.—In all suits instituted by or against any county, the inhabitants of the county so suing or being sued may be jurors or witnesses, if otherwise competent and qualified according to law. [P. D. 1049.]

Interest as disqualification.—Residents and taxpayers of a county are not disqualified from sitting as jurors in a case in which the county is an interested party. Watson v. De Witt County, 19 C. A. 150, 46 S. W. 1061.

The interest of a taxpayer in a note due the county is too remote to render him incompetent to sit as a juror in an action on such note. Martin v. Somervell County, 21 C. A. 208, 53 S. W. 556.

Art. 1368. [792] [679] Execution shall not issue against county.
—No execution shall be issued on any judgment against any county; but, when a judgment shall be rendered against a county, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners’ court of such county to settle and pay such judgment in like manner and pro rata as other claims of a similar description are settled and paid by said court. [P. D. 1050.]

Art. 1369. [793] [680] Deeds, grants, etc., to counties valid, etc.
—All deeds, grants and conveyances heretofore made, or which may be hereafter made and duly acknowledged, or proven, and recorded as other deeds of conveyance, to any county, or to the courts or commissioners of any county, or any other person or persons, by whatever form of conveyance, for the use and benefit of any county, shall be good and valid to all intents and purposes to vest in such county in fee simple or otherwise all such right, title, interest and estate as the grantor in any such deed or conveyance had at the time of the execution thereof in the lands conveyed and was intended thereby to be conveyed. [P. D. 1051.]

Power to hold land.—Counties may take, hold and dispose of private property for municipal uses, or such uses and purposes as subserve the public good, and the exercise of the legal and subordinate legislative powers with which they may be invested by law. Bell County v. Alexander, 22 T. 351, 73 Am. Dec. 368; Baker v. Panola County, 30 T. 86; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Ryan v. Porter, 61 T. 106. A deed of release by the grantee of land to the state will pass title. Dikes v. Miller, 28 T. Sup. 381, 78 Am. Dec. 571.

Counties may take title to and enjoy real estate without any limitation as to the purpose for which it may be used. Scaife v. Collin Co., 80 T. 514, 16 S. W. 314.

A county can hold an equitable title as well as a legal title, and the mode of conveying title by the county applies to all titles of whatever quality they may be. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1071.

Art. 1370. [794] [681] Commissioners to sell real estate of.—The county commissioners' court may, by an order to be entered in the minutes of said court, appoint a commissioner to sell and dispose of any real estate of the county at public auction; and the deed of such commissioner, made in conformity to the order of said court, under his proper hand and seal, for and in behalf of the county, duly acknowledged and proven and recorded, shall be sufficient, to all intents and purposes, to convey to the purchasers all the right, title and interest and estate whatever which the county may have in and to the premises to be conveyed; provided, however, that nothing contained in this article shall authorize the county commissioners' court of any county to dispose of any lands given, donated or granted to such county for the purposes of education in any other manner than shall be directed by law. [P. D. 1052.]

Conveyances by commissioners.—A county may not dispose of land at private sale, and a deed made by the clerk, under the order of the court, for such purpose, does not pass title to the land. Ferguson v. Halsell, 47 T. 421.

A private donation of land by the commissioners' court, upon condition that a gristmill shall be erected and maintained thereon, is void. Llano County v. Knowles (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 549.

In the disposition of the county's school lands the commissioners' court has power to appoint a commissioner to sell the lands at public sale, but it has no power to commit to him all the power vested in the county and the commissioners' court by the constitution without restriction, viz.: the power of sale, the discretion to fix terms, prices, rates of interest and other necessary elements of a sale and also the power of adopting the mode and manner of sale. Logan v. Stephens County (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 110.

Where the courthouse and records of the court had been destroyed by fire, the commissioners could sell the land in question could be proved thirty-eight years afterwards, by reading in evidence other deeds that he had executed about the same time and by proving his signature by his son. Hardin County v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 824, 825.

Ratification.—Where a county had full power to sell school lands as provided by the commissioners' court, but the sale of timber thereon was invalid because made by the county judge under an ultra vires delegation of authority by the commissioners' court, the approval of the sale by the commissioners' court and the receiving of the purchase money and use thereof by the county for school purposes constituted a ratification of the sale barring a recovery by the county. Carter-Kelly Lumber Co. v. Angelina County (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 293.

The order of the commissioners' court approving a sale of timber on school lands need not be in writing to constitute a ratification of the sale. Id.

Non-compliance with statute.—A sale of real estate made otherwise than prescribed by this article confers no title. A deed executed to a party to satisfy a claim against the county by the district clerk by order of the county court would not pass title to such land. Ferguson v. Halsell, 47 T. 421.

A grantor donating land to a county can, by an instrument creating the right, impose conditions for its disposition by county officers in a manner different from that prescribed by the statute; and where the conveyances of such land were made for portions thereof, for a period of forty years, and the records had been burned, leaving no evidence of the character or terms to the county, the presumption will be indulged that those officers acted in pursuance of the powers contained in the grant to the county. Wooters v. Hall, 61 T. 16.

An attempted sale not made at public outcry and in the manner provided by this article confers no title upon the purchaser and passes no title out of the county. Bell County v. Feltz (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1071.

Contracts respecting lands.—A contract by the commissioners' court with one who had purchased county land, reducing the rate of interest on the price, being prohibited by the constitution, acceptance of the lower rate held not by estoppel to prevent recovery of interest according to original contract. Blackburn v. Delta County, 48 C. A. 370, 107 S. W. 80.

Under the constitution, the commissioners' court of a county held without right to contract with one who had theretofore purchased county land, reducing the rate of interest on the price. Id.

Art. 1371. [795] [682] Contracts with a county valid.—All notes, bonds, bills, contracts, covenants, agreements or writings, made, or to be made, whereby any person is, or shall be, bound to any county, or to the court or commissioners of any county, or to any other person or persons, in whatever form, for the payment of any debt or duty or the performance of any matter or thing to the use of any county, shall be valid and effectual, to all intents and purposes, to vest in said county all rights, interests and actions which would be vested in any individual, if any such contract had been made directly to him. [P. D. 1053.]

Art. 1372. [796] [683] Suits on notes, etc., by county.—Suits may be commenced and prosecuted on such notes, bonds, bills, contracts, covenants, agreements and writings, in the name of such county, or in the name of the person to whom they were made, for the use of the county, as fully and effectually as any person may or can sue on like notes, bills, contracts, covenants, agreements or writings made to him. [P. D. 1054.]

Parties to suit.—See notes under Art. 1315.

Art. 1373. [797] [684] Agents to contract for county may be appointed.—The county commissioners' court may appoint an agent or agents to make any contract on behalf of the county for the erection or repairing of any county buildings, and to superintend their erection or repairing, or for any other purpose authorized by law; and the contract or acts of such agent or agents, duly executed and done, for and on behalf of the county, and within his or their powers, shall be valid and effectual to bind such county, to all intents and purposes. [P. D. 1055.]

Appointment of agents.—The commissioners' court has power to employ attorneys to defend suit against the county. Bank v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 775.

Contract by county to engage physician for certain services, part of which were unauthorized, held valid as to the part which it had power to enter into. Galveston County v. Duieh, 9 T. 665, 48 S. W. 798.

Evidence held to sustain a verdict that there was no contract by a county to employ an architect. Gordon v. Denton County (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 737.

A county held liable for fees of physician secured in an inquest to determine whether deceased was lying down or standing when shot. Folk County v. Phillips, 22 T. 629, 51 S. W. 328.

In action by a county to set aside a contract to convey lands and recover the same, evidence held admissible to show certain person agent for county in making sale. Slaughter v. Coke County, 34 C. A. 598, 72 S. W. 582.

The commissioners' court can appoint an agent to contract on behalf of county for erection or repairing of county buildings, and to superintend their construction, and such contract and the within scope of agent's powers are binding on county. This contemplated express authority to make the particular contract, or one which arises by necessary implication from the power actually granted. Jackson-Foxworth Lumber Co. v. Hutchinson County (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 412.

Where the law imposes on an officer the performance of acts as a part of his official duties, the commissioners' court of the county is without authority to contract with any other person to perform such services. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1168.

Under this article the commissioners' court may appoint the county judge or any other agent to make a contract for it for the construction of a courthouse. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

A contract between a county and a broker by which the latter is authorized to sell school land “at and for the sum of $4 per acre” is not violative of the provision requiring the county to pay the cost of sale, but merely fixes the minimum price at which the land shall be sold. Foard County v. Sandifer, 105 T. 420, 151 S. W. 523.

Powers of agents.—An order of county commissioners authorizing a committee to build a sewer for the county courthouse held to give no implied authority to agree that persons on the street may connect with the sewer. Fayette County v. Krause, 31 C. A. 560, 73 S. W. 51.

A contract between county and agent for survey and sale of land held not to give the agent an irrevocable power to sell, coupled with an interest. Hollingsworth v. Young County, 40 C. A. 590, 91 S. W. 1094.

Ratification of acts.—The agreement of a committee appointed by county commissioners to build a county sewer, that persons on the street might connect with the sewer, held not ratified by the commissioners. Fayette County v. Krause, 31 C. A. 560, 73 S. W. 51.

Evidence.—In an action against a county for breach of contract employing plaintiff to survey and sell lands, burden held on plaintiff to prove unfairness of the county’s action. Hollingsworth v. Young County, 40 C. A. 590, 91 S. W. 1094.

Art. 1374. [798] [685] Costs in suit against county.—When the plaintiff in any suit against a county shall fail to recover a greater amount than the county commissioners’ court of such county shall have allowed to such plaintiff on the presentation of his claim to such court, such plaintiff shall pay all costs of such suit. [P. D. 1056.]

As affected by terms of contract.—A county held not liable for costs, where there were several claimants to a fund in its possession whose rights had to be adjudicated. Harris County v. Donaldson, 20 C. A. 9, 48 S. W. 791.

Under an agreement of a county that it would deliver all of certain convict bonds to the prosecuting attorney for suit, but that it should be exempt from liability for costs, the retention of some of such bonds was a failure to perform the condition precedent to its right of exemption from liability for costs in suits on the bonds. Waller County v. McDade, 25 C. A. 290, 60 S. W. 1003.

Right of county to costs.—A county is not entitled to attorney’s fees in defending itself against a contract not providing for such fees. Harris County v. Donaldson, 20 C. A. 9, 48 S. W. 791.

CHAPTER FOUR COUNTY LINES

Art. 1375. Survey made. 1376. Boundary, how marked. 1377. Natural objects to be named. 1378. Notice to other counties. 1379. Oath and bond of surveyors. 1380. Field-notes to be returned and recorded. 1381. In absence of one surveyor the other shall act. 1382. Commissioner of the land office to make direct survey in case of disagreement. 1383. Expense to be divided between the counties. 1384. Land district to be surveyed. 1385. Suit to establish boundary; venue; jurisdiction and powers of court; rule for determination of matter. 1386. Land commissioner not to place line on map until filing of certified copy of judgment and field-notes.

Article 1375. [799] Survey made.—Whenever it shall appear to the satisfaction of the county court of any county in this state, or notice shall be given such court by the commissioner of the general land office, that the boundary, or any part thereof, of the county is not sufficiently definite and well defined, such court shall appoint an experienced and competent practical surveyor, whose duty it shall be to ascertain, by actual survey, the boundary, or any part thereof, of said county, and to make and establish the lines and corners in a manner herein prescribed; and the court, in the order making the appointment, shall specify the line or lines to be run, and the corners to be established and marked; and shall in all things conform to the law defining the boundaries of said county. [Acts 1879, p. 137.]
Art. 1376. [800] Boundary how marked.—The initial corners of the surveys herein provided for shall be designated by posts, mounds, or stone monuments; the posts shall be of hewn cedar, cypress or bois d'arc, at least eight inches in diameter, five feet long, and set in the ground not less than three feet; the mounds shall be of stone when practicable, otherwise of earth, and not less than two feet high; that at the end of each mile in said boundary a like post, mound, or stone monument shall be established; the initial corners shall be described on the post or monument established there.

Establishment of lines.—Whether or not a county is within the limits of the state of Texas is a political question and cannot be determined by the judicial department. Harrold v. Arrington, 64 T. 233. The statutory mode of ascertaining the locality of the dividing lines between counties on the ground must be pursued. A suit cannot be maintained by one county against another to establish the true boundary line between them and to enjoin from the exercise of jurisdiction. Guadalupe County v. Wilson County, 58 T. 228. See post, Art. 1382.

When a county line has once been definitely fixed upon the ground by an actual survey made, reported and approved as required by the statute, the county court has no power to order another survey made and thereby establish another boundary line. Jones v. Powers, 65 T. 207.

Commissioner of general land office has no power to re-establish boundary lines which have been duly established. Kaufman County v. McGaughy, 21 S. W. 261, 3 C. A. 655.

This article applies when the boundary lines have never been established. Marsalis v. Creager, 2 C. A. 308, 21 S. W. 545.

Notice is an indispensable prerequisite to a survey. Marsalis v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 920.

In 1882 the commissioners of adjoining counties had no authority or jurisdiction over the establishment of boundary lines between their respective counties. Kaufman County v. McGaughy (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 927.

Art. 1377. [801] Natural objects to be named.—In the field-notes of the surveys of the lines ordered to be run, the surveyor shall give an accurate description of all prominent natural objects crossed by, or adjacent to, said lines, as well as of the corners and lines of surveys on or near said boundaries.

Art. 1378. [802] Notice to other counties.—It shall be the duty of the court making such order to cause a copy thereof to be sent to the county courts of the counties interested in such boundary, stating the time and place, which time shall not be later than twenty days after the meeting of the county court of the county notified, for the commencement of the survey, and such notice shall be given at least ten days before the meeting of said county court; and it shall be the duty of the court so notified to appoint an experienced and competent practical surveyor to proceed at the time and place to assist in running and establishing such line.

Powers of commissioners of one county.—A commissioner's court of one county cannot settle the location of the county boundary line. Wise County v. Montague County, 21 C. A. 444, 52 S. W. 615.

Art. 1379. [803] Oath and bond of surveyors.—The surveyors herein provided for shall take the oath of office prescribed by law for county surveyors, and shall, before entering upon the duties herein prescribed, enter into bond with two or more sureties to be approved by the county court, in the sum of one thousand dollars, payable to the county judge, or his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty.

Art. 1380. [804] Field-notes to be returned and recorded.—When the line shall have been surveyed and marked as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the surveyor to make due return of the field-notes and map to the county court; which field-notes and map shall be recorded by the clerk, and a certified copy thereof returned to the general land office.

Art. 1381. [805] In the absence of one surveyor the other shall act.—If either of the surveyors appointed to run and mark such line shall fail to attend at the time and place appointed, the one in attendance shall proceed alone to perform the duties assigned him, and make his report to the county court of the county employing him, which, being approved by such court, shall be recorded as evidence of the line in question; and the line so surveyed and marked shall thereafter be regarded as the true boundary line between the counties.

Art. 1382. [806] Commissioner of the land office to direct survey in case of disagreement.—Should the surveyors above provided for fail to agree as to the true boundary line between their respective counties, the facts of such disagreement, with a full statement of the questions at issue between them, shall be by them reported to the commissioner of the general land office, whose duty it shall be to examine the disputed matter at once; and from such data as the maps and archives of his office furnish, shall designate to such surveyors the line to be run, stating at what specific point they shall begin and to what specific point they shall run, adhering as nearly as possible to the line designated in the act creating such county line, which instruction shall be authority for said surveyors to run such line; and the line so run as above directed shall thereafter be the true dividing line between said counties. [Acts of 1879, p. 137.]

Agreements.—No boundary line agreement attempted to be made by a county whereby its title to school land is devested can have any effect unless it is made by the commissioner’s court, and is a matter of record. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

Art. 1383. [807] Expense to be divided between counties.—The expense of surveying and marking such line shall be divided between the counties interested, in proportion to the frontage of each county upon the line, and paid for by each county as proportioned. The surveyors appointed as herein provided shall receive for their services the sum of three dollars per mile for each mile run. The expense of establishing the posts, mounds, or stone monuments shall be paid by the counties interested, and they shall be erected under the supervision and direction of the surveyor.

Art. 1384. [808] Land districts to be surveyed.—Before any county in this state, not already organized as a separate land district under existing law, shall be recognized as such, the county court shall cause the boundary lines of the county to be surveyed and marked and the field-notes and map of such survey, duly recorded, returned to the general land office as provided in this chapter.

Art. 1385. Suit to establish boundary; venue; jurisdiction and powers of court; rule for determination of matter.—Notwithstanding the preceding articles of this chapter, any county in this state may bring suit against any adjoining county or counties, for the purpose of establishing the boundary line between them. Such suit shall be brought in the district court of the county in an adjoining judicial district whose boundaries are not affected by the suit, and whose county seat is nearest the county seat of the county suing. And said court shall try said cause as other causes, and shall have full and complete jurisdiction to determine where such boundary line is located, and, if necessary, shall order the same to be remarked and resurveyed. And if, in the trial of any such cause, it shall be found that the boundary line between the counties involved has never been established and marked, or, if marked, has become indefinite and undefined, said court shall have power to re-establish the same and order it marked. And any boundary line so established by such judgment shall thereafter be regarded as the true boundary line between the counties in question; provided, that if it shall be found in any such cause that the boundary line in question has been heretofore established under the law then in force, the same shall be declared to be the true line, and shall be resurveyed and established as such. [Acts 1897, p. 222.]

Authority of court.—The powers conferred upon the district court by this article are very general and they should be restricted in no degree by incomplete proceedings on the part of contesting counties. Jurisdiction is conferred "notwithstanding" the preceding articles and the whole complete jurisdiction is given to determine the location of the boundary line whether on the trial it shall appear to have been theretofore established or not. Lampasas County v. Coryell County, 24 C. A. 195, 65 S. W. 68.

This article gives the district court power to determine all matters incident to the existence of the boundary line, including the determination of the fact as to which of two or more lines is the correct one and fixing such line. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 279.

Conformity to statute.—The burden is on a county to show that its special proceedings for the establishment of boundary lines have been authorized by statute. Wise County v. Montague County, 21 C. A. 444, 55 S. W. 618.

Defenses.—Stale demand and limitations have no application to proceedings to determine the boundary line of counties. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 278.

Decree and effect thereof.—A decree confirming the location of a county line as established and recognized for half a century should not be overthrown unless error clearly appears. Lampasas County v. Coryell County, 27 C. A. 195, 65 S. W. 67.

Where, in an action between adjoining counties to determine the boundary line between them, the true line is ascertained to be as located by a survey formerly made under direction of the county court, it is immaterial whether such directions were regular or not. Id.

Art. 1386. Land commissioner not to place line on map until filing of certified copy of judgment and field-notes.—Provided, further, that it shall be unlawful for the commissioner of the general land office to mark, fix or place on any of the maps in said office any contested county line at any definite point thereon, until a certified copy of the final judgment of the court, herein provided, is filed in the general land office, together with a certified copy of the field-notes of the line so established by such judgment. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE
COUNTY SEATS

1388. Two-thirds vote necessary, when, to create. 1395. No change by election until after five years.
1390. Proceedings for removal of county seat. 1397. Court house and jail provided.
1391. Geographical center, how designated. 1398. When commissioners' court may fix place of holding court.
1392. Who may vote, and form of ballot. 1399. County offices at county seat.
1393. Election, how conducted and ordered.

Article 1387. [809] Election for county seats.—In the organization of any county or counties now existing, or hereafter to be created by the legislature, it shall be the duty of the county judge holding the election in such new county for county officers thereof to order an election for the location of a county seat therein, which shall be conducted in the same manner as that regulating the election of the officers of such new county; and the place receiving a majority of all the votes cast by the electors voting on the location of such county seat shall thereafter be the county seat of such county, subject to be removed as other county seats; provided, that when any county has been organized, and no county seat has been located, the county judge of such county shall order an election for the location of a county seat. [Acts of 1883, p. 82.]

Validity of election.—Donation of a lot in a town to induce a voter to vote to establish the county seat at said town is void as against public policy. Roby v. Carter, 25 S. W. 725, 6 C. A. 225.

Art. 1388. [810] Two-thirds vote necessary, when, to create.—No county seat first established in a newly organized county shall be located at any point more than five miles from the geographical center of any county in this state, unless by a two-thirds vote of all the electors voting on the subject in said county. [Acts of 1881, p. 67.]

Art. 1389. [811] Election for removal of, when.—Hereafter, no county seat situated within five miles of the geographical center of any county shall be removed except by a vote of two-thirds of all the electors in said county voting on the subject; nor shall any county seat be removed from a point more than five miles from the geographical center of any county to any other point more than five miles from such center, nor from a point within five miles of the geographical center to any other point within five miles of such center, except by a two-thirds vote of all the electors in said county voting on the subject; provided, that no person shall be allowed to vote except he be a bona fide citizen of the county in which he offers to vote. A majority of said electors, however, voting at such election may remove a county seat from a point more than five miles from the geographical center of the county to a point within five miles of such center; in either event the center to be determined by a certificate from the commissioner of the general land office, in the manner hereinafter set forth. [Acts of 1879, p. 84.]

Election in general.—A mandatory writ to compel the transfer of public records to a place claimed to be the county seat at the suit of a private citizen. Walker v. Tarrant County, 20 T. 29; Harrell v. Lynch, 65 T. 146; Ex parte Towles, 48 T. 414.

When the basis of an action for that purpose involves a pecuniary interest not originating in the election, the vote on the removal of the county seat may be inquired into and its proper legal effect determined. Caruthers v. Harnett, 67 T. 127, 2 S. W. 91.

Where any part of an unincorporated town independent of a plat thereof is located within a radius of five miles of the geographical center of a county, the town is within such radius within this article. Ralls v. Parish, 105 T. 253, 147 S. W. 564.

Art. 1390. [812] Proceedings for removal of county seat.—When it becomes desirable to remove the county seat of any county, it shall be the duty of the county judge of said county, or, in case of his failure or inability to act, then two of the county commissioners of said county, upon the written application of not less than one hundred freeholders and qualified voters, who are resident citizens of said county thereof, to make an order in writing upon the minutes of said commissioners' court for the holding of an election at the various voting precincts in said county, on a day therein named, which shall not be less than thirty nor more than sixty days from date of said order, for the purpose of submitting the question to the electors of said county; provided, that, when a county seat has been established for a longer term than ten years, it shall require two hundred freeholders and qualified voters to make said application; provided, further, that in counties having less than three hundred and fifty legal voters, to be determined by the number of votes cast at the last preceding election for the state and county officers, such application may be made by one hundred resident freeholders and qualified voters of said county; and provided, further, that, when a county seat has been established for a longer term than forty years, it shall require a majority of the resident freeholders and qualified voters of said county to make the application, said majority of freeholders and qualified voters to be ascertained by the county judge, or, in case of his failure or inability to act, then by any two of the county commissioners of said county, from the assessment rolls thereof. [Acts 1893, p. 164. Acts 1903, p. 118.]

In general.—When a county seat is removed the county will not be enjoined from selling unsold lots at the suit of the donor, who gave the land to the county on the condition of the location of the county seat thereon. Walker v. Tarrant County, 20 T. 297. See, also, McClelland v. Shelby County, 33 T. 17.

Petition.—The word "citizens," as used in the statute providing that a given number of freeholders may apply for an election to change the county seat, applies only to voters. Scarborough v. Eubank (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 569.

A county seat election, ordered without the requisite number of petitioners, is invalid. Id.
Art. 1390  COUNTIES AND COUNTY SEATS

A petition held sufficient to call into exercise the power of a county judge to order an election to determine the question of removal of the county seat. Martin v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 827.

A petition requesting the county judge to order the county commissioners to hold an election to submit to the electors of a county the question whether "it is desirable" to remove the county seat is sufficient to authorize the judge to order an election to determine the question of removal of the county seat. Id.

The validity of an election for the removal of a county seat cannot be questioned on the ground that the petition for the election was not signed by a sufficient number of the freeholders and electors of the county. Id.

Order of county judge.—An entry of an order in any book containing other entries of a like nature is sufficient. It is not necessary that the order should enumerate the places to be voted for. Whittaker v. Dillard, 81 T. 359, 18 S. W. 1084.

The act of passing upon the county judge in passing upon a petition for a removal of a county seat (as to number of names and qualifications of the signers, etc.), is conclusive, and his action cannot be called in question upon a contest, and the election annulled after a legal majority of qualified voters have voted for the change sought to be accomplished. Scarbrough v. Eubank, 95 T. 109, 55 S. W. 27.

An order of a judge in a county seat removal election held to include a determination that the place to which the county seat was removed was within five miles of the center of the county. Kilgore v. Jackson, 55 C. A. 99, 118 S. W. 519.

Location of new county seat.—A vote of the electors of a county to remove the county seat to a designated town had reference to the town as constituted by the aggregation of inhabited houses in close proximity to each other and the area appurtenant thereto, and not to the town as designated on a plat filed the day before the election and of which the electors had no notice; the town being unincorporated. Ralls v. Parrish, 105 T. 933, 147 S. W. 594.

The intention of the voters at the time of the selection of a new county seat must control in determining its location. Id.

Invalid proceedings.—A voter has no property right in the location of the county seat, and he surrenders his property without being required to do so. The question of the value of his property is not a wrong for which equity, in the absence of a legal remedy, will give redress. Harrell v. Lynch, 65 T. 146.

Abatement of mandamus proceedings.—See notes at end of Title 37, Chapter 7.

Art. 1391. [813] Geographical center, how designated.—The commissioner of the general land office, upon being notified by the county judge of any county that a proposition is submitted to the people of such county, or that it is desirable on the part of the people thereof, that the center of such county should be designated, preliminary to the removal of any county seat, shall, from the maps, surveys and other data on file in his office, designate the center of such county, and shall certify the same to the county judge of such county, who shall cause the same to be spread upon the records of deeds of his county. [Acts 1879, p. 84.]

Legal center and effect of certificate.—Where the land commissioner's certificate designated the center of the county "to be a point within the boundaries of the R. O. W. McManus 220-acre survey, near the center of said survey" it was a sufficient designation. Kilgore v. Jackson, 55 C. A. 99, 118 S. W. 220, 321.

Where the commissioner of the general land office had once certified the geographical center of a county, a new certification was made by him on the application of the county judge prior to proceedings for a change of the county seat, and neither certificate was attacked for fraud or mistake, it must be presumed, especially when not challenged, that the first certificate was taking of the best information in the maps, surveys, and data on file in the land office pertaining to the county from which such certificates were required to be made, as to change the location of the geographical center of the county. Parrish v. Ralls (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 383.

Since such certificate depended on surveys and objects called for in field notes, which were subject to change during passing years, it was intended that the commissioner should make such designation and certificates when called on to do so, and hence the fact that the center of a county had been once certified by the commissioner did not preclude a subsequent certification on application to the county judge. Id.

The validity of a certificate of the commissioner of the land office locating the geographical center of a county held not affected by his subsequent revocation of it under a mistake. Martin v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 827.

The question of determining the geographical center of a county as a basis for an election for the removal of the county seat is committed to the commissioner of the land office, and his certificate is conclusive in the absence of fraud, or such gross mistake as implies fraud. Id.

Where the method pursued by the commissioner of the land office to locate the geographical center of a county as a basis for an election to remove the county seat was substantially correct, any question of mistake in fixing the center as certified to by him as disclosed by the evidence, was immaterial. Id.

Under this article, the commissioner may issue a certificate whenever any election for a county seat is ordered, and the voters at each county seat contest are entitled to know from such certificate made at the time of the election of the location of the geographical center of the county, and while such a certificate is designed to serve in such election as evidence, and may not be impeached except for fraud or gross mistake, it is not intended to serve as evidence indefinitely. Ralls v. Parrish, 105 T. 253, 147 S. W. 564.

The giving by the commissioner of the general land office of a certificate showing the geographical center of a county, as required by this article, is a ministerial act, and it may be done under his supervision, or by some one employed by him, and a certificate purporting to be the commissioner's act is valid, though the manual work necessary to determine the geographical center is done by an employee. 1d.

Art. 1392. [814] Who may vote and form of ballot.—All persons who are qualified electors under the constitution and laws of the state shall be entitled to vote at said election; and, on each ticket, the voter shall write or cause to be written or printed: “For removal to . . . . . . . . .” [inserting the name of the place]; or, should the voter be in favor of the county seat remaining where the same is already located, he shall write or cause to be written or printed on his ticket: “For remaining at . . . . . . . . .” [inserting the name of the place]. [Id.]

Art. 1393. [815] Election how conducted and ordered.—The county judge or commissioners shall order said election in each voting precinct in said county, which shall be conducted, as near as may be, as elections for county officers; and the officers holding the election shall make return thereof to the officer ordering said election, within ten days after the same was held, who shall then proceed to open said returns and count the same, and declare the result, which shall be entered upon the records of said commissioners' court, and shall also state the name of the place from which the same is removed, and the name of the place to which the same is removed; and a certified copy of such entry shall thereupon be, by the county clerk of said county, recorded in the proper record deeds of such county. [Id.]

Declaration of result.—Until the order is set aside or vacated, the town therein named is the county seat, and the burden is on the one assailing it to show that it does not correctly name the town. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1939.

Contest of election.—In a proceeding to contest a county-seat election brought after the result is declared the sufficiency of the petition on which the election was ordered may be determined. Scarborough v. Eubank (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 549.

An election for the removal of a county seat cannot be contested on the ground that the county judge ordered it without the requisite number of qualified applicants. Scarborough v. Eubank, 93 T. 106, 53 S. W. 573.

On a county seat election contest, the votes of a certain precinct held not to be excluded for irregularities in making the returns. Durham v. Rogers, 48 C. A. 232, 106 S. W. 906.

On appeal from a judgment ordering a new election on a county seat election contest held, that judgment should be rendered in favor of a certain place as county seat as claimed by the appellees, who had filed cross-assignments of error, notwithstanding their failure to perfect an appeal. Id.

Ballots at a county seat election held not to be excluded for not bearing the signature of the presiding election officer. Id.

Burden of showing that town declared selected as county seat was not within five miles of center of county held to be upon party contesting selection. Wallis v. Williams, 50 C. A. 623, 110 S. W. 785.

Contest that town contesting for selection as county seat was not shown to be more than five miles from center of county held not entitled to consideration on appeal from order of county court declaring another town selected, where the order was not contested on the ground asserted in the contention. Id.

Contest that town contesting for selection as county seat was removed from the old county seat town within a radius of five miles of the center of the county, and that the voters originally voted for the county seat, as located. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1089.

Evidence, in a suit by citizens of a town to contest an election by which the county seat was removed to another town, held to sustain a finding that in voting the county seat of such town the voters intended to vote for the actual location of the building, and not to the town plat. Id.

Art. 1394. [816] County seats removed, when.—When the entry mentioned in the preceding article has been made, the county seat, if the election be held to move the county seat from a point within five miles of the geographical center to a point more or less than five miles from the geographical center, or from a point more than five miles from the geographical center, to any other point more than five miles from such center, shall be removed to the place receiving the votes of two-thirds of all the electors voting on the subject; and such place shall thereafter be the county seat of such county. But, if the election be held to move the county seat from a point more than five miles from the geographical center to a point within five miles of such center, then the county seat shall be moved to the place receiving a majority of all the electors in the county voting at such election, and such place shall thereafter be the county seat of such county. [Id.]

Count of votes.—It is proper to count for the geographical center the votes cast for "the center of the county." Whitaker v. Dillard, 81 T. 359, 18 S. W. 1084.

Recognition of validity of new location.—Change of county seat held invalid, although recognized as valid by public and officers. Presidio County v. Jeff Davis County (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 278.

Art. 1395. [817] No change by election until after five years.—Whenever an election for the location or removal of a county seat shall have been voted on by the electors of any county and the question settled by said electors, it shall not be lawful for a like application to be made for the same purpose within five years thereafter. [Id.]

Art. 1396. [818] [704] Courts shall be held at county seat.—All terms of the district, county and county commissioners' courts shall be held at the county seat. [R. S. 1879, 704.]

Art. 1397. [819] [705] Court house, jail, etc., to be provided.—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of each county, as soon as practicable after the establishment of a county seat, or after its removal from one place to another, to provide a court house and jail for the county, and offices for county officers at such county seat, and keep the same in good repair. [R. S. 1879, 705.]

County buildings.—Whether a courthouse and jail are needed by a county is for sole determination by the commissioners. Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

County commissioners can create a debt to construct a courthouse and jail, if provision for a tax is made. Id.

County commissioners have power to erect a courthouse and jail under a contract providing for payment of the contractors with warrants drawn against the courthouse and jail funds, though the payments are not all within the year of the making of the contract or construction of the building, and to provide for interest on any deferred payments evidenced by such warrants. Id.

Authority of county commissioners to contract for construction of a courthouse cannot arise from estoppel, acceptance, or ratification. Id.

Const. art. 11, § 2, requiring courthouses to be provided for by general law, limits county commissioners' power to construct courthouses to the manner and means so provided. Id.

Const. art. 5, § 9, limiting the rate of taxation for county purposes, limits the power of the legislature under art. 11, § 2, requiring courthouses to be provided for by general law, as well as county commissioners in acting under such law. Id.

The power of county commissioners to provide for construction of a courthouse otherwise than from a sale of bonds was not abrogated by Act May 25, 1899 (Acts 26th Leg. c. 149), nor by Act April 28, 1903 (Acts 28th Leg. c. 4), authorizing issuance of county bonds. Id.

The “county seat” does not consist merely of the courthouse, jail, and other public buildings, but consists of the town plot of the town designated as the county seat at the time it is so designated. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 810.

Art. 1398. [820] When commissioners' court may fix place of holding court.—Until the county seats of new counties are established, as required by the provisions of this chapter, the courts of such new counties shall be held at such place as may be appointed by the county commissioners' court of such county. [Acts 1879, p. 84.]

Art. 1399. [821] [706] Officers shall keep offices at county seats.—The county judge, sheriff, clerks of the district and county courts, county treasurer, assessor of taxes and collector of taxes, county surveyor and county attorney of the several counties of this state shall keep their several offices at the county seats of their respective counties. [Act March 16, 1848. Act May 13, 1848. R. S. 1879, 706. O. & W. 282, 284.]
CHAPTER SIX
COUNTY BOUNDARIES

Article 1400. [822] Boundaries as established, adopted, and acts creating continued in force.—The county boundaries of the counties in this state as now recognized and established are adopted as the true boundaries of such counties, and the acts creating such counties and defining the boundaries are continued in force.

Incorrect boundaries.—Defining the boundaries of Childress county, see Wortham v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 762.

An established and definitely marked boundary line between two counties, recognized by the commissioner of the general land office and the two counties at the time of the adoption of this article providing that the county boundaries as recognized and established are adopted as the true boundaries, is the boundary line, though not mathematically correct. Stephens County v. Falo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1066.

Judicial notice.—See notes under Title 63, Chapter 4.
CHAPTER ONE
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 1401. [823] [934] Duty of commissioners' court to procure ledger, etc.—The several county commissioners’ courts shall each procure a well-bound ledger and index, and shall cause to be entered in said book a full, complete and orderly statement of the condition of the finances of the county.
Art. 1402. [824] [935] Duty of county clerk to keep accounts.—It is hereby made the duty of the clerk of the county court to open and keep in said book, which shall be known as a finance ledger, an account with each and every officer of the county, district, or state, who is now, or may hereafter be authorized or required by law to receive or collect any money or other property for the use of, or belonging to, the county. The clerk shall also keep such other accounts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title; that all items shall be entered daily under their respective heads, and said finance ledger shall be at all times subject to the inspection of the public. [Acts 1893, p. 160.]

Cited, Hall v. Bell County (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 178.

Art. 1403. [824a] [935a] Same.—It shall be the duty of the said clerk to balance each account so kept, and make a tabular statement, under oath, at each regular term of the commissioners' court for the three months next preceding the month when such court meets in regular session, to be presented to said court during the second day of its term, specifying therein the names of the creditors of said county, and the items of indebtedness, with their respective dates of accrual, and also the names of persons to whom moneys have been paid, with the amounts paid each; the names of persons from whom moneys have been received, with the date of receipt, and for what account received, during the quarter for which such statement is prepared; said statement shall also show the amount to the credit or debit of each fund separately. [Id.]

Art. 1404. [824b] [935a] Same.—It shall be the duty of said clerk, immediately after the first regular term of the commissioners' court in each year, to publish for one time in some weekly newspaper published in his county (or if there be no paper published therein, then by posting four copies of such exhibit, one in each commissioners' precinct, one of which shall be at the court house door, the other three at public places in such precincts), an exhibit showing the aggregate amount received and the aggregate amount paid out of each fund for the four preceding quarters, and the balance to the credit or debit of each fund; also the amount of indebtedness of said county, with their respective dates of accrual, and to whom and for what due; also the amount to the debit or credit of each officer or other persons with whom an account is kept. The cost for publishing the same shall be paid by order of the commissioners' court out of the general fund of the county. [Id.]

Art. 1405. [824c] [935b] Compensation of clerk.—The clerk shall receive annually as compensation for the labor performed in keeping the finance ledger as provided for in article 1402, and making the quarterly statement as provided for in article 1403, the sum of five dollars for each one thousand dollars tax assessed as due the county, to be paid quarterly on order of the commissioners' court out of the general fund of the county; provided, the same be not less than one hundred nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars per annum.

Art. 1406. [825] [936] Accounts shall be opened how, and shall be indexed.—Said accounts shall be opened by stating at the top of the page the name of the officer and his office; and all of said accounts shall be properly indexed for convenient reference.

Art. 1407. [826] [937] Account with the tax collector.—The accounts of the tax collector shall be kept as follows: A separate account shall be kept for each separate fund that may be upon the tax rolls; each account shall state the name of the collector, the character of the fund entered therein, and the year for which the same is assessed.

Art. 1408. [827] [938] Receipt of collector for tax rolls.—Whenever the tax rolls are ready for delivery to the tax collector, the court or officer having control of the same shall take from the collector a written receipt for the same, specifying the amount therein assessed and due the county, stating separately the amount assessed to each fund, and shall deliver said receipt to the clerk of the county court, who shall charge the collector with the amount stated in said receipt in the proper account; and said amounts shall be treated as debts due the county by the collector.

Art. 1409. [828] [939] How the collector may discharge his indebtedness.—The collector shall discharge said indebtedness within the time prescribed by law, by filing with said clerk receipts for the same, as follows:
1. The commission due the collector.
2. The assessor’s receipt for commissions due such assessor, if any are to be paid by the county.
3. Proper vouchers for such payments as he is now, or may hereafter be, required to pay out of any money on hand.
4. The receipt of the county treasurer for the money paid into the treasury.

Art. 1410. [829] [940] Collector shall make separate lists of indigent and delinquent taxpayers, etc.—The collector shall make separate lists of the indigent and delinquent taxpayers, showing their names, and the amount due by each taxpayer; and the court shall carefully examine said indigent and delinquent list, and shall make an order and enter the same upon the minutes of the court, stating the names and amounts that are adjudged uncollectible; and the collector shall have credit for the amounts included in said order in the proper accounts.

Art. 1411. [830] [941] No credit shall be entered for delinquent taxes until allowed by the court.—No credit for indigent or delinquent taxes shall be entered in said collector’s accounts until an order of the court has been made and entered allowing the same.

Art. 1412. [831] [942] Taxes for each year shall be kept separate.—In keeping accounts with the collector, the taxes assessed for each year shall be kept separate and distinct.

Art. 1413. [832] [943] Tax collector going out of office shall deliver tax rolls to successor, etc.—Whenever a tax collector shall go out of office, he shall deliver to his successor the tax rolls in his possession, and shall receive from his successor a receipt in writing for the amount of taxes due on the tax rolls so delivered, specifying the amount of each fund and each year separately, and also the amount due on the indigent and delinquent list; which receipts he shall deliver to the clerk of the county court, who shall enter them to the credit of the collector presenting them, to the extent that the same are allowed by the court as hereinbefore provided, and shall charge the amounts so credited to the successor in office of such collector, in the proper accounts.

Art. 1414. [833] [944] Collector shall collect occupation tax, and receipt for same.—All occupation taxes due the county shall be collected by the tax collector of the county without assessment, and the collector shall give to the party paying the tax a receipt in writing, stating the name of the person paying the same, the occupation paid for, the time such occupation is to be pursued, and the amount collected for the state and for the county.

Art. 1415. [834] [945] County clerk shall issue occupation license, when.—Upon the presentation of the receipts provided for in the preceding article to the clerk of the county court of the county in which such tax has been paid, such clerk shall issue a license in the name of the state or county, or both, in accordance with the tax paid, to the person paying such tax, authorizing him to pursue the occupation named in such receipt during the time for which he has paid the tax.
Art. 1416. [835] [946] County clerk shall make two reports of licenses issued at end of each month.—Said clerk shall, at the end of every month, make two reports in writing, one of licenses issued on taxes paid to the state, which he shall forward to the comptroller of public accounts, by mail; the other of licenses issued on taxes paid to the county, and file the same in his office.

Art. 1417. [836] [947] What the reports shall state, etc.—The reports required by the preceding article shall state the name of the licensee, the occupation, the time for which the license is issued and the amount of taxes paid therefor, and shall be dated and signed officially by such clerk and attested by his seal of office.

Art. 1418. [837] [948] Clerk shall keep occupation tax account with collector.—The clerk shall keep an occupation tax account with the collector of the county, in which he shall charge the collector with all licenses issued for the county; and the collector shall have credit in said account for his commissions, and the amount paid into the treasury upon filing the proper receipt of the county treasurer with such clerk.

Art. 1419. [838] [949] Clerk shall keep account with sheriff.—An account shall be kept by the clerk with the sheriff of each county, in which such sheriff shall be charged with all judgments, fines, forfeitures and penalties, payable to the county, rendered in the district or county courts of the county, or any other court of his county, and with the collection of which he is, by law, made chargeable.

Art. 1420. [839] [950] How sheriff may free himself from liability under preceding article.—The sheriff may free himself from liability from the charge required in the preceding article by—
1. Producing the receipt of the county treasurer showing the payment of such judgment, fine, forfeiture or penalty.
2. By showing to the satisfaction of the commissioners’ court that the same cannot be collected, or that the same has been discharged by imprisonment or labor, or by escape, without his fault or neglect; and none of the credits herein provided for, except those on the receipts of the treasurer, shall be entered without an order of the commissioners’ court allowing the same.

Art. 1421. [840] [951] Clerks, etc., shall report fines, judgments and jury fees monthly.—Clerks of the district and county courts, county judges, county treasurers, sheriffs, district and county attorneys, constables and justices of the peace, who shall collect or handle any money for the use of the county, shall make a full and complete report, under oath, in writing, to the commissioners’ court, at each regular term thereof, of all fines imposed and collected and all judgments rendered and collected for the use of the county, and all jury fees collected in their respective courts in favor of, or for the use of, the county; and at the same time to present their receipts and vouchers showing what disposition has been made of the money collected, fines imposed and judgments rendered; which reports, receipts and vouchers shall be carefully examined by the said commissioners’ court, and, if found to be correct, shall cause the clerk to enter the same on the financial ledger, and, if found to be incorrect, shall summon said officer before them, and have the same corrected; and said reports, receipts and vouchers shall be filed in the county clerk’s office. [Acts 1887, p. 36.]

Cited, Hall v. Bell County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 178.

Art. 1422. [841] [952] What the reports shall show.—The reports required by the preceding article shall state fully—
1. The name of the party fined and the amount of the fine, or the name of the party against whom judgment was rendered and the amount of such judgment, as the case may be.
2. The style and number of the cases in which fines have been imposed or judgments rendered, and the date thereof.

3. The amount of jury fees collected, and the style and number of the case in which each jury fee was collected and from whom collected.

Art. 1423. [842] [953] Fines imposed and judgments rendered by justices shall be charged against them, etc.—Fines imposed and judgments rendered by justices of the peace shall be charged against the justice of the peace imposing or rendering the same; and he may discharge said indebtedness by filing with the clerk of the county court the treasurer's receipt for the amount thereof, or by showing to the satisfaction of the commissioners' court that he has used due diligence to collect the same without avail, or that the same have been satisfied by imprisonment or labor.

Art. 1424. [843] [954] District attorney shall make report, etc.—The district attorney of each district shall, at each term of the district court for each county in his district, make a report in writing, to the clerk of the county court, of all moneys received by him since the last term of the district court for such county, for the use of such county.

Art. 1425. [844] [955] County attorney shall make report.—The county attorney of each county in the state shall make a similar report to the one required in the preceding article to the clerk of the county court of his county, at the end of each month.

Art. 1426. [845] Judgment not collectible may be sold.—Whenever the principal and sureties upon any judgment, the proceeds of which revert to, and belong to, any county, are insolvent so that under any existing process of law said judgment or any part thereof can not be collected, the commissioners' court of said county are hereby constituted a board to dispose of such judgment, and are hereby empowered and authorized, by such advertising as they may deem necessary, to offer for sale, as they may deem to be the best interests of the county, all the right of the county to such judgment. And, if by public sale, if the amount bid on the same shall not be deemed sufficient, they shall refuse to accept the same, and dispose of the same in any manner deemed by them most advantageous to the interest of the county, and, upon sale, shall make a proper assignment of said judgment to the purchaser. [Acts 1879, p. 9.]

Constitutionality.—This article is not in contravention of section 55, article 3, of the constitution, prohibiting the legislature from authorizing a release or relinquishment of an obligation due a county. Lindsey v. State, 96 T. 586, 74 S. W. 751.

Judgment debtor.—The commissioners cannot compromise with, nor sell to judgment debtor either directly or indirectly a judgment in favor of the county obtained on a bail bond. Lindsey v. State (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 334.

Art. 1427. [846] [956] Any officer collecting money for county shall report the same.—When any officer collects money belonging to, and for the use of, any county, he shall, except where otherwise provided in this title, forthwith report the same in writing to the clerk of the county court of the county to which such money belongs, stating fully in such report from whom collected, the amount collected, the time when collected, and by virtue of what authority or process collected.

Sureties.—This article binds the sureties of an officer for such moneys only as he receives in his official capacity. Henderson County v. Richardson, 15 C. A. 699, 40 S. W. 38.

Validity of settlement.—The manner of settlement of the payment by a judge to the county of property bought at a sheriff's sale held valid. Fells v. Bell County, 108 T. 616, 122 S. W. 123.

Art. 1428. [847] [957] Money collected by officer shall be charged to him, etc.—When any officer reports to the clerk of the county court any money collected by such officer for the use of the county, the amount of money so collected shall be charged to such officer, and he may discharge himself from such indebtedness by producing the receipt of the proper county treasurer therefor.

Charge against officer.—Where a county judge by purchasing property at a sheriff's sale was accountable to the county for the purchase price, the county's crediting itself on a debt owing him to the extent of the purchase had the same effect as if the money was paid by him. Felts v. Bell County, 103 T. 616, 132 S. W. 123.

Art. 1429. [848] [958] Estray account.—There shall also be kept in the ledger, provided for in article 1401, an estray account, in which shall be entered on the debit side of each application made to the clerk of the county court to estray any animal in his county by entering the date of the application, the name of the person estraying, and a brief description of the animal, or animals, to be estrayed; and the amount of such charge shall be left blank until said person shall file his account of the sale of said animal or animals; and, upon the filing of said account, the net amount due the county from such sale shall be entered in the blank.

Art. 1430. [849] [959] Same subject.—When the receipt of the county treasurer is presented to the clerk, showing any amount paid into the treasury on account of the sale of an estray, the same shall be entered on the credit side of the account, showing the date, name of payer, amount paid and a brief description of the estray, and such amount shall be charged on the debit side of the county treasurer's account.

Art. 1431. [850] [960] Clerk shall keep account with county treasurer.—An account shall also be kept in said ledger by the clerk with the county treasurer, in which such treasurer shall be charged separately with the amount of each fund for which he gives a receipt to the sheriff, collector, or other person paying the same into the treasury; and such treasurer shall have credit for all moneys paid out by him, when the commissioners' court has approved his reports of the same, for his legal commissions.

Art. 1432. [851] [961] County treasurer shall register claims against the county.—The county treasurer of each county shall keep a well-bound book in which he shall register all claims against his county, when presented to him for registration; and no claim, or any part thereof, against a county shall be paid by such county treasurer, nor shall the same, or any part thereof, be received by any officer in payment of any indebtedness to the county, until it has been duly registered in accordance with the provisions of this title.

Payment according to classification.—See notes under Art. 1433.

Art. 1433. [852] [962] Claims shall be classified.—Claims against a county shall be registered in three classes, as follows:

1. All jury scrip and scrip issued for feeding jurors.
2. All scrip issued under the provisions of the road law or for work done on roads and bridges.
3. All the general indebtedness of the county, including feeding and guarding prisoners, and paupers' claims.

Payment according to classification.—The treasurer shall pay off claims in each class in the order in which they are registered. Clarke & Courts v. San Jacinto County, 18 C. A. 204, 45 S. W. 315.

The holder of a registered claim can insist that the claim be paid as provided in the above article notwithstanding the provisions of articles 1438 and 1439 giving the commissioners' court power to create other classes of funds. 19.

Under articles 1432-1437, the county treasurer shall register all claims against the county and shall pay off each class in the order registered. Shock v. Colorado County, 52 C. A. 473, 116 S. W. 65.

Art. 1434. [853] [963] Manner of registering claims.—Each claim shall be entered in the register, stating the class to which it belongs, the name of the payee, the amount, the date of the claim, the date of registration, the number of such claim, by what authority issued, and for what service the same was issued.

Judgment against county.—When a warrant is issued on the treasurer and not paid because the fund upon which it was drawn has been used to pay claims of a different class a judgment may be had against the county. Clarke & Courts v. San Jacinto County, 18 C. A. 294, 45 S. W. 315.

Judgment held properly allowed against a county for refusal to pay warrant. Id.

Art. 1435. [854] [964] What shall be written on registered claim.
—When a claim has been registered, the treasurer shall write on the face of the same its registered number, the word “registered,” the date of such registration, and shall sign his name officially thereto.

Art. 1436. [855] [965] Claims shall be numbered, in what order.
—Claims shall be numbered in the order presented, and, if more than one claim is presented at one and the same time, they shall be numbered in the order of their date.

Art. 1437. [856] [966] Order in which claims shall be paid.—The treasurer shall pay off the claims in each class in the order in which they are registered.

Art. 1438. [857] [967] Classification of county funds.—The funds received by the county treasurer shall be classed as follows:
1. All jury fees, all money received from the sale of estrays, and all occupation taxes; and this class of funds shall be appropriated to the payment of all claims registered in class first, described in article 1433.
2. All money received under any of the provisions of the road and bridge law, including the penalties recovered from railroads for failing to repair crossings, prescribed in article 6494, and all fines and forfeitures; and this fund shall be appropriated to the payment of all claims registered in class second.
3. All money received, not otherwise appropriated herein or by the commissioners’ court; and the funds of this class shall be appropriated to the payment of all claims registered in class third. [Const., art. 16, sec. 24.]

Art. 1439. [858] [968] Commissioners’ court may create other classes of funds, etc.—The commissioners’ court shall have power to cause such other accounts to be kept, creating other classes of funds, as it may deem proper, and require the scrip to be issued against the same and registered accordingly.

Art. 1440. [859] [969] Said court may transfer one class of funds to another, except, etc.—The commissioners’ court shall have power, by an order to that effect, to transfer the money in hand from one fund to another, as in its judgment is deemed necessary and proper, except that the funds which belong to class first shall never be diverted from the payment of the claims to which the same are appropriated by article 1438, unless there is an excess of such funds.

Art. 1441. [860] [970] County treasurer shall report registered claims each month.—The county treasurer shall, at the end of each month, file in the office of the clerk of the county court of his county a report in writing, showing the total amount of claims registered by him during said month, stating each class separately.

Art. 1442. [861] [971] Clerk shall enter report upon ledger, etc.
—The clerk with whom the report required by the preceding article is filed shall enter the same upon the ledger under the head of “Registered indebtedness of the county,” keeping a separate account of each class of indebtedness, and, from the reports of the treasurer of disbursements made, credit said accounts with the total amount of vouchers of each class of claims paid.
Art. 1443. [862] [972] Party receiving payment of claim shall receipt thereon.—The county treasurer, or any other officer disbursing money for the county, or receiving county claims in payment of dues of any kind, shall require the party receiving payment of, or credit for the same, his agent or attorney, to receipt in writing upon the face of such claim for the amount so paid or received thereon.

Art. 1444. [863] [973] Officer receiving claim in payment of debt to county shall report list of same.—Every officer who shall collect any fine, penalty, forfeiture, judgment, tax or other indebtedness due the county, in claims against the county, shall keep a descriptive list of such claims, and shall when he reports such collection file with his report a list stating the party in whose favor each claim was issued, the class and registered number thereof, the name of the party paying in such claim, and the amount received, and for what purpose received.

Art. 1445. [864] [974] Claims received by other officer than county treasurer shall be reported to county treasurer.—Claims received for the county by any officer other than the treasurer shall be turned over together with the list mentioned in the preceding article to the county treasurer, who shall give a proper receipt for the same, and the county treasurer shall file said list with his report in the office of the clerk of the county court.

Art. 1446. [865] [975] County treasurer shall keep accounts, etc. —The county treasurer shall keep accurate accounts showing all the transactions of his office in detail; and all warrants by him paid off shall be punched at the time he pays them; and the vouchers relating to and accompanying each report shall be presented to the commissioners' court with the corresponding report, when it shall be the duty of said court to compare the vouchers with the report, and all proper vouchers shall be allowed and the treasurer credited with the amount thereof. [Acts of 1889, p. 6.]

Art. 1447. [866] [976] Claim shall be canceled, when and how.—When a claim presented as a voucher has been found by the court to be correct, the court shall cause the same to be canceled by writing or stamping upon the face thereof the word "canceled," and the clerk shall attest the same by his official signature.

Art. 1448. [807] [977] Report of treasurer, order approving; to recite what; credit.—When the commissioners' court has compared and examined the quarterly report of the treasurer, and found the same correct, it shall cause an order to be entered upon the minutes of the court, stating the approval thereof, which order shall recite separately, the amount received and paid out of each fund by the treasurer since the preceding treasurer's quarterly report, and the balance of such fund, if any, remaining in the treasurer's hands, and the court shall cause the proper credit to be made in the accounts of the treasurer, in accordance with said order. [Acts 1897, p. 27.]

Art. 1449. [867] [977] Commissioners to inspect and count cash, etc., in hands of treasurer, etc.—Said court shall actually inspect and count all the actual cash and assets in the hands of the treasurer belonging to the county at the time of the examination of his said report. [Id.]

School fund embraced.—The county school fund was embraced in this article requiring the county funds to be counted by the commissioners' court. Poole v. Burnett County, 97 T. 77, 76 S. W. 426.

Art. 1450. [867] [977] Affidavit of compliance, etc.; filing, record and publication of, etc.—Prior to the adjournment of each regular term of the court, the county judge and each of the commissioners shall make affidavit in writing that the requirements of articles 1448 and 1449 have been in all things fully complied with by them at said term of said court, and that the cash and other assets mentioned in said county treasurer's quarterly report made by said treasurer to said court, and held by him for the county, have been fully inspected and counted by them, giving the amount of said money and other assets in his hands; which affidavits of the members shall be filed with the said county clerk of the county, and by him recorded in the minutes of the said county commissioners' court of the term at which the same were filed; and the same shall be published in some newspaper published in the county, if there be a newspaper published in the county, for one time, to be paid for at the same rate as other legal notices. [Id.]

Art. 1451. [868] [978] Commissioners' court shall examine and correct all accounts and reports, etc.—The commissioners' court shall, at each regular term, examine all accounts and reports relating to the finances of the county, and compare the same with the vouchers accompanying them, and cause such corrections to be made as are necessary, in order to make said accounts and reports correct, and shall cause all orders made by them, appertaining to said accounts and reports, to be properly entered upon the minutes of said court and noted upon said accounts and reports.

Art. 1452. [869] [979] Reports and vouchers shall be filed and preserved in county clerk's office.—All reports and vouchers shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court, and shall be carefully preserved therein, and shall be briefly noted in the proper account upon the ledger.

Art. 1453. [870] [980] District judge shall appoint committee to examine into the finances of county.—At each term of the district court, the district judge, upon request of the grand jury, may appoint a committee consisting of three citizens of the county, men of good moral character and intelligence, and experienced accountants, to examine into the condition of the finances of the county.

Art. 1454. [871] [981] Duty of such committee.—It shall be the duty of the committee provided for in the preceding article to examine all the books, accounts, reports, vouchers and orders of the commissioners' court relating to the finances of the county that have not been examined and reported upon by a previous committee; to count all the money in the office of the county treasurer belonging to the county, and to make such other examination as to them may seem necessary and proper in order to ascertain the true condition of the finances of the county, and the court shall, if necessary, upon the application of said committee, send for persons and evidence to aid them in their investigation.

Art. 1455. [872] [982] Report of committee.—Said committee shall, at the earliest practicable day after their appointment, make to said district court a report in writing, in detail, stating whether the books and accounts required to be kept by the provisions of this title are correctly kept in accordance with said provisions, and setting forth fully the condition of the finances of the county, the state of each officer's account, and specifying all irregularities, omissions or malfeasance of any kind that they may discover. Said report shall be signed and sworn to by said committee and filed in the office of the clerk of said district court, and the attention of the grand jury called thereto as soon after the filing of the same as practicable.

Art. 1456. [873] [983] Pay of committee.—Said committeemen shall each be entitled to receive for their services three dollars for each day, not to exceed five days, that they may be engaged in the performance of their duties as such, which fees shall be paid out of the county treasury upon the certificate of the district judge stating the number of days served.
Art. 1457. [874] [984] All reports shall be sworn to.—All reports required under any of the provisions of this title shall be sworn to by the officer making the same, before some officer authorized to administer oaths.

Art. 1458. [875] [985] Monthly reports shall be filed, when.—All monthly reports required by any of the provisions of this title shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the proper county within five days after the end of each month.

Art. 1459. [876] [986] Warrants issued against county by judge or court shall be attested by clerk, etc.—All warrants or scrip issued against the county treasurer by any judge or court shall be signed and attested by the clerk or judge of the court issuing the same, under his official seal; and no justice of the peace shall have authority to issue warrants against the treasury for any purpose whatever, except as provided in article 1117 [1170] of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Signatures of judge. — A warrant issued upon a claim audited and allowed by the county commissioners’ court need not be signed by the judge. Callaghan v. Sallaway, 23 S. W. 837, 5 C. A. 239.

Negotiability. — The holder of a county warrant is not charged with notice of any order made by the commissioner’s court after the order directing its issuance, directing the treasurer to pay no claim which had not been registered under Act May 1, 1874. Leach v. Wilson County, 68 Tex. 353, 4 S. W. 615.

Though a warrant be not negotiable, the county would be liable to an equitable transfer thereof in the absence of any defenses. Shock v. Colorado County, 52 C. A. 473, 118 S. W. 61.

Warrants to pay a contractor constructing a courthouse are nonnegotiable, and cannot be made so by a provision of the contract. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

Validity. — Warrants are not void because made payable at the county seat or at a point outside the state. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

Interest.—See notes under Art. 4973.

Property in warrant.—The county held to have no property in the proceeds of a warrant issued to the county tax assessor for his fees and assigned by him to and collected by a creditor, though he was at the time indebted to the county for excess fees. American Nat. Bank v. Petry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1040.

Right of action on warrants.—While a county warrant is prima facie evidence of a subsisting debt, and assignable, it affords no right of action until the county has by some act repudiated the claim. Leach v. Wilson County, 62 T. 241. See San Patricio County v. McLane, 58 T. 243.

Art. 1460. COUNTY FINANCES

1. APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATIONS, BOND

Article 1460. County auditor appointed in what counties; title; term; salary.—In any county of this state, having a population of forty thousand inhabitants or over, or having therein a city with a population of twenty-five thousand or over, according to the last United States census, there shall be appointed an auditor of accounts and finances, the title of said office to be county auditor, who shall hold his office for a term of two years and until his successor is appointed and qualified; and who shall receive an annual salary of twenty-four hundred dollars, to be paid out of the general fund of the county upon the order of the commissioners’ court. [Acts 1907, p. 315. Acts 1905, p. 381.]

Constitutionality.—Const. art. 3, § 56, prohibits the legislature from passing any local or special law regulating the affairs of counties, and declares that no local or special laws shall be passed where a general law can be made applicable. B. county having the requisite population, plaintiff was appointed auditor therefor, and served until after the passage of Acts 31st Leg. c. 129, on April 1, 1909, amending this article and exempting B. county by name from the provisions thereof. Held, that the word “regulating,” as used in the constitutional provision, should not be given a narrow or technical significance, and that the act establishing the office of county auditor was an act regulating county affairs within such section, and hence the act amending the same by exempting B. county was a special or local law regulating county affairs and was therefore unconstitutional. Hall v. Bell County (Clv. App.) 138 S. W. 178.

Under Const. art. 3, § 56, providing that the legislature shall not, except as otherwise provided, pass any local or special law regulating the affairs of counties, Acts 31st Leg. c. 129, exempting Bell county from the provisions of this article, is invalid. Bell County v. Hall (Sup.) 153 S. W. 121.

Art. 1461. Appointment by whom; reported to commissioners; recorded.—The county judge shall convene a special meeting of the judges of the county and district courts, or courts having jurisdiction in the county, who shall jointly appoint the auditor, a majority vote ruling. The action shall then be reported by the county judge to the commissioners’ court in regular or special session, which shall have said appointment entered upon the minutes of said court. [Acts 1905, p. 381, sec. 2.]

Art. 1462. Qualifications.—The auditor to be appointed must be a man of unquestionably good moral character and intelligence, thoroughly competent in business details; he must be a competent accountant who has actually had practical experience in auditing and accounting. The judges empowered with this appointment must carefully investigate and consider the qualifications of said person before appointment. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1463. Bond; oath, requisites of.—The auditor shall, within twenty days of his appointment, and before he enters upon the duties of his office, make a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the county judge or his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, to be approved by the commissioners’ court. In addition to said bond, he shall make the usual oath of office and an additional one in writing, stating that he is in every way qualified under the provisions and requirements of this chapter, and giving fully the positions of private or public trust he has heretofore held, and the length of service under each of said employments or appointments. He shall further include in his oath that he will not personally be interested in any contract with the county. [Id. sec. 4.]

2. ASSISTANT AND CLERICAL HELP

Art. 1464. May appoint assistant, with consent of county judge.—The auditor may, at any time, appoint an assistant to act in his stead, and who may discharge the duties of the auditor during his absence or unavoidable detention, said appointment to be made with the consent of the county judge, who shall require said assistant to take the usual oath of office for faithful performance of duty. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 1465. May appoint clerical help, with consent of county judge.—The auditor shall also have the power to appoint additional clerical help when needed, with the consent of the county judge, or of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 5.]

3. BOOKS AND STATIONERY

Art. 1466. Books and stationery.—The auditor shall, at the expense of the county, provide himself with all necessary ledgers, books, records, blanks and stationery. [Id. sec. 5.]

4. DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUDITOR

Art. 1467. General duties of auditor.—It shall be the duty of the auditor to have a general oversight of all the books and records of all the officers of the county, district or state, who are now, or who may hereafter be, authorized or required by law to receive or collect any money, funds, fees or other property for the use of, or belonging to, the county. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1468. Access to and right to examine accounts, orders of commissioners, etc.—He shall have continual access to, and shall examine, all the books, accounts, reports, vouchers and other records of any of the officers, and also the orders of the commissioners' court relating to the finances of the county. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1469. Reports, monthly, under article 1421, examination of.—All reports required under article 1421 shall also be carefully examined and reported on by him. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1470. Reports and books of officers, quarterly examination and checking of.—He shall at least once in each quarter check the books and examine all the reports of the tax collector, the treasurer and all other officers, in detail, verifying the footings and correctness of same, and shall stamp his approval thereon, or note any differences, errors or discrepancies. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1471. Report, quarterly, of treasurer, examination of.—He shall carefully examine the quarterly report of the treasurer, of all the disbursements, together with the canceled warrants which have been paid, and shall verify the same with the register of warrants issued as shown on the books of the auditor. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1472. Count, etc., cash in hands of treasurer or depository, how, when, etc.—It shall be the duty of the auditor, without giving any notice beforehand, to examine fully into the condition of, or to inspect and count the cash in the hands of, the county treasurer, or in the bank in which he may have placed same for safe keeping, not less than once in each quarter, and oftener as desired. [Id. sec. 7.]
Art. 1473. Law, see to enforcement of.—The auditor shall see that the law is strictly enforced. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1474. Balances, see that all to credit of funds are on hand.—The auditor shall see that all balances to the credit of the various funds are actually on hand in cash. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1475. Investment of funds, see that none unauthorized.—He shall fully investigate and see that none of said funds are invested in any manner, except as the law may otherwise authorize. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1476. Forms for collection, mode of keeping, etc., accounts; time for reports, shall prescribe.—He shall prescribe and prepare the forms to be used by all persons in the collection of county revenues, funds, fees and all other moneys, and the mode and manner of keeping and stating their accounts, and the time, mode and manner of making their reports to the auditor, also the made manner of making their annual report of office fees collected and disbursed, and the amount refunded to the county in excess of those allowed under the general fee bill law. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1477. Regulation for collecting, accounting, etc., may adopt and enforce.—He shall have the power to adopt and enforce such regulations not inconsistent with the constitution and laws, as he may deem essential to the speedy and proper collection, checking and accounting of the revenues and other funds and fees belonging to the county. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1478. Deposits in treasury to be made how.—All deposits that are made in the county treasury shall be upon a deposit warrant issued by the county clerk in triplicate; said warrants shall authorize the treasurer to receive the amount named, for what purpose, and to which fund the same shall be applied. The treasurer shall retain the original; the duplicate shall be signed and returned to the county clerk for the county auditor, and the triplicate signed and returned to the depositor. The auditor shall then enter same upon his books, charging the amounts to the county treasurer and crediting the party depositing same. The treasurer shall not, under any circumstances, receive any money in any other manner than that named herein. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1479. Bids for stationery, etc.; purchase from lowest bidder, etc.—Bids shall be hereafter asked for all supplies of stationery, books, blanks, records, and other supplies for the various officers for which the county is required to pay, and the purchase made from the lowest bidder, after filing said bid with the auditor for record. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 1480. Bids for supplies, etc.—Supplies of every kind, road and bridge material, or any other material, for the use of said county, or any of its officers, departments or institutions, must be purchased on competitive bids, the contract to be awarded to the party who, in the judgment of the commissioners' court, has submitted the lowest and best bid. It shall be the duty of the county auditor to advertise for a period of two weeks in at least one daily newspaper, published and circulated in the county, for such supplies and material according to specifications, giving in detail what is needed. Such advertisement shall state where the specifications are to be found, and shall give time and place for receiving such bids. All such competitive bids shall be kept on file by the county auditor as a part of the records of his office and shall be subject to inspection by any one desiring to see them. Copies of all bids received shall be furnished by the county auditor to the county judge and to the commissioners' court; and when the bids received are not satisfactory to the said judge, or county commissioners, it shall be the duty of the county auditor to reject said bids and readvertise for new bids; provided, that in cases of emergency, purchases not in excess of fifty dollars may be made upon requisition, to be approved by the commissioners' court, without advertising for competitive bids. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1481. Claims, etc., to be filed in what time; not to be paid until, etc.—All claims, bills and accounts against the county must be filed in ample time for the auditor to examine and approve same before the meetings of the commissioners' court; and no claim, bill or account shall be allowed or paid until same shall have been examined and approved by the county auditor. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1482. Shall examine and approve claims; to be verified.—It shall be the duty of the auditor to examine such claims, bills and accounts, and stamp his approval thereon. If deemed necessary by the auditor, all such accounts, bills, or claims must be verified by affidavit touching the correctness of the same, before some person authorized to administer oaths. [Id. sec. 15.]

Approval of auditor condition precedent.—This section is mandatory and makes the approval of the auditor a condition precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction over the claim by the commissioners' court. Anderson v. Ashe, 59 T. 447, 90 S. W. 814.

The examination and approval of the auditor is a condition precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction over a claim by the commissioners' court. Yantis v. Montague County, 50 C. A. 403, 110 S. W. 182.

Art. 1483. May administer oaths, when.—The auditor is hereby authorized to administer oaths for the purposes of this chapter. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1484. Restrictions and requirements in audit and approval of claims, requisition, etc., bids for supplies, etc.—He shall not audit or approve any claim against the county, unless the same has been contracted as provided by law, nor any account for the purchase of supplies or material for the use of said county or any of its officers, unless, in addition to other requirements of law, there is attached thereto a requisition signed by the officer ordering same and approved by the county judge; which said requisition must be made out and signed and approved in triplicate by the said officers, the triplicate to remain with the officer desiring the purchase, the duplicate to be filed with the county auditor, and the original to be delivered to the party from whom said purchase is to be made before any purchase shall be made. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 1485. Warrants, to countersign, except jury.—All warrants on the county treasurer, except warrants for jury service, must be countersigned by the county auditor. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1486. Register, shall keep, of warrants issued by clerks and judges; who shall report, etc.—He shall keep a register of all warrants issued by the judges or clerks on the county treasurer, and their dates of payment by the treasurer. In order that he may do so, the clerks of the county and district courts, or the judges therefor, who are authorized to issue any warrant on the county treasurer, shall on forms prepared by the auditor daily furnish to the auditor an itemized report specifying the warrants that have been issued, their numbers, their several amounts, the names of the persons to whom payable, and for what purpose. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1487. Accounts, shall keep, with officers named, relieving clerk of finance ledger.—It shall be his duty to keep an account with each and every person named in the preceding sections [articles] and in doing so he shall relieve the county clerk of keeping the finance ledger required in article 1402. His books shall show the detailed items of the indebtedness against all of said officers and the manner of discharging same. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1488. Statements to be required from persons receiving money or property of county.—He shall require all persons who shall have received any moneys belonging to the county, or having the disposition or management of any property of the county, to render statements to him. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1489. Books, general set of, showing transactions of county, shall keep.—He shall keep a general set of books, which shall show all the transactions of the county relating to accounts, contracts, indebtedness of the county, and its receipts and disbursements of all kinds. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1490. Report tabulated, shall make for each regular meeting of commissioners.—He shall make tabulated reports of said funds and accounts for each regular meeting of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1491. Reports, quarterly and annual, to be made to commissioners, showing what, etc.—He shall make quarterly and annual reports to the commissioners' court, setting forth all the facts of interest, and showing the aggregate amounts received and disbursed out of each fund, the condition of each and every account on the books, the amount of bonded and other indebtedness of the county, together with such other information and suggestions as he may deem proper, or the commissioners' court may require. This annual report shall be made to include all transactions during the year ending July 31 of each year, and shall be completed and filed at a special term of the commissioners' court in September. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1492. Estimate, shall prepare for commissioners; who shall prepare budget.—He shall prepare an estimate of all the revenues and expenses, and annually furnish same to the commissioners' court, which court shall carefully make a budget of all appropriations to be set aside for the various expenses of the county government in each branch and department. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1493. Expenses, shall see that do not exceed appropriations.—He shall carefully keep an oversight of same to see that the expenses of any department do not exceed said budget appropriation, and keep the commissioners' court advised of the condition of said appropriation accounts from time to time. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1494. Account with each appropriation, shall open, etc.—He shall open an account with each appropriation in said budget, and all warrants drawn against same shall be entered to said account. [Id. sec. 10.]

5. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Art. 1495. Provisions of this chapter cumulative, but controlling.—The provisions of this chapter are cumulative, and, where conflicting with any existing law, the provisions of this chapter shall control. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1496. County clerk's duties, how affected.—Where the provisions of this chapter impose upon the auditor like duties as are now required of the county clerk, the provisions of this chapter shall prevail, and to such extent only is the county clerk relieved of his duties. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 1497. Removal of auditor, grounds, mode.—Whenever an auditor, appointed under the provisions of this act, has been sufficiently proven guilty of official misconduct, or has proven to be incompetent to faithfully discharge the duties required of him, he may, after due investigation by the same power which appointed him, be removed, and his successor appointed as provided in articles 1461 and 1462. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 1498. Bell county exempt from provisions.—Bell county shall be exempt from the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 238.]

Art. 1498i. Admission of patients; applications; duty of superintendent; payments, etc.

Art. 1498j. Support of patients; duties and powers of superintendent; power of county court.

Art. 1498k. Managers to have access; inspection, etc.

Art. 1498l. Hospital in connection with poor house.

Art. 1498m. More than one hospital.

Art. 1498n. Commissioners' court may contract in county having no city of more than 10,000 inhabitants, etc.; cooperation with cities and towns in certain cases.

Art. 1498o. Duty of commissioners' court in county having city of more than 10,000 inhabitants; submission of issue of bonds to voters, etc.

Art. 1498p. Adjacent counties may join in certain cases.

Article 1498a. Power of commissioners' court to establish or enlarge; petition of voters; submission of issue of bonds; powers of commissioners' court.—The commissioners' court of any county shall have power to establish a county hospital and to enlarge any existing hospitals for the care and treatment of persons suffering from any illness, disease or injury, subject to the provisions of this Act. At intervals of not less than twelve months, ten per cent. of the qualified property tax paying voters of a county may petition the commissioners' court of such county to provide for the establishing or enlarging of a county hospital, in which event it shall be the duty of said commissioners' court within the time designated in such petition to submit to the property tax paying voters of the county either at a special or at a regular election, the proposition of issuing bonds in such aggregate amount as may be designated in said petition for the establishing or enlarging of such hospital; and whenever any such proposition shall receive a majority of the votes of the qualified property tax payers voting at such election, said commissioners' court shall establish and maintain such hospital, and shall have the following powers:

To purchase and lease real property therefor, or acquire such real property, and easements therein, by condemnation proceedings, in the manner prescribed by the present law authorizing a condemnation of right of way of railroads.

To purchase or erect all necessary buildings, make all necessary improvements and repairs and alter any existing buildings, for the use of said hospital; provided, that the plans for such erection, alteration or repair shall first be approved by the state health officer, if his approval is requested by the said commissioners' court.

To cause to be assessed, levied and collected, such taxes upon the real and personal property owned in the county as it shall deem necessary to provide the funds for the maintenance thereof, and for all other necessary expenditures therefor.

To issue county bonds to provide funds for the establishing, enlarging and equipping of said hospital and for all other necessary permanent improvements in connection therewith. And to do all other things that may be required by law in order to render said bonds valid. To appoint a board of managers for said hospitals as hereinafter provided.
To accept and hold in trust for the county, any grant or devise of land, or any gift or bequest of money or other personal property or any donation to be applied, principal or income, or both, for the benefit of said hospital, and apply the same in accordance with the terms of the gift. [Acts 1913, p. 71, sec. 1.]

Art. 1498b. Board of managers; appointment; term; vacancy; expenses; removal.—When the commissioners' court shall have acquired a site for such hospital and shall have awarded contracts for the necessary buildings and improvements thereon, it shall appoint five citizens of the county, of whom at least two shall be practicing physicians, and at least one a woman, who shall constitute a board of managers of the said hospital. The term of office of each member of said board shall be two years. Appointments of successors shall be for the full term of two years, except that appointment of persons to fill vacancies occurring by death, resignation or other cause shall be made for the unexpired term. Failure of any manager to attend three consecutive meetings of the board shall cause a vacancy in his office, unless said absence is excused by formal action of the board of managers. The managers shall receive no compensation for their services, but shall be allowed their actual and necessary traveling and other expenses within the state of Texas, to be audited and paid by the commissioners' court in the same manner as other expenses of the hospital. Any manager may at any time be removed from office by the commissioners' court of the county for cause after an opportunity to be heard. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1498c. Officers; superintendent; physicians; salaries; powers and duties of board.—The board of managers shall elect from among its members a president and one or more vice-presidents, and a secretary and a treasurer. It shall appoint a superintendent of the hospital who shall hold office at the pleasure of said board. Said superintendent shall not be a member of the board of managers, and shall be a qualified practitioner of medicine, physician or other person especially trained for work of such character.

The board of managers shall also appoint a staff of visiting physicians, who shall serve without pay from the county, and who shall visit and treat hospital patients at the request either of the managers or of the superintendent.

Said board of managers shall fix the salaries of the superintendent and all other officers and employes within the limits of the appropriation made therefor by the commissioners' court, and such salaries shall be compensation in full for all services rendered. The board of managers shall determine the amount of time required to be spent at the hospital by said superintendent in the discharge of his duties. The board of managers shall have the general superintendence, management and control of the said hospital, of the grounds, buildings, officers and employes thereof; of the inmates therein, and of all matters relating to the government, discipline, contracts and fiscal concerns thereof; and make such rules and regulations as may seem to them necessary for carrying out the purposes of such hospital. They shall maintain an effective inspection of said hospital and keep themselves informed of the affairs and management thereof; shall meet at the hospital at least once in every month, and at such other times as may be prescribed in the by-laws; and shall hold an annual meeting at least three weeks prior to the meeting of the commissioners' court at which appropriations for the ensuing year are to be considered. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1498d. Out-patient department; dispensary and clinics.—The board of managers may also establish and operate an out-patient department or free dispensary and clinic, at the hospital or in the city nearest to which the hospital is located, with branch dispensaries or clinics in every city or town in the county of five thousand population and over, and they shall appoint a physician or physicians, who shall serve at such dispensaries or clinics, and shall determine the amount of time required to be spent at such dispensaries or clinics by such physicians, and shall fix the salaries, if any, of such physicians. Said board of managers shall also appoint one or more trained visiting nurses to serve in connection with each such dispensary or clinic, and in connection with the hospital, and shall fix their salaries, within the limits of the appropriation made therefor by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1498e. School for education, care and treatment of children suffering from tuberculosis.—The board of managers may also establish, at the hospital, or in the city nearest to which the hospital is situated, or in the largest city in the county, a special and separate school for the education, care and treatment of children suffering from tuberculosis. Said school shall be conducted as a branch of the hospital and the pupils and inmates of said school shall be considered as inmates of the hospital and subject to all the provisions of this Act. Said board of managers shall appoint a teacher or teachers, specially qualified, to instruct and care for the pupil-inmates of said school. Said board of managers shall delegate the superintendent of the hospital, a member or members of the staff of visiting physicians, a physician or physicians in attendance upon any county dispensary, or shall employ a physician to attend the inmates of said school, and to supervise their care and treatment, and shall delegate one of the hospital nurses, or a visiting nurse, or shall employ a nurse to assist in the care and treatment of said pupils. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1498f. Duty of state board of health; publications; duty of board.—It shall be the duty of the state board of health, from time to time, to make rules and regulations for the care of persons suffering from communicable disease and for the prevention and spread of such diseases; and to prepare circulars, pamphlets, bulletins and other publications giving information as to the cause, nature, treatment and prevention of disease. The board of managers shall, from time to time, purchase from the state board of health, at the actual cost of printing, printed copies of such rules and regulations, circulars, pamphlets, bulletins and other publications, or shall have same printed, and shall send or deliver such copies to all practicing physicians in the county, to all public schools and to such private schools as request such copies, and to such organizations, churches, societies, unions and individuals as may present written requests for copies of circulars, pamphlets, bulletins and such other publications prepared by the state board of health. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1498g. Duties of board; records; bills and accounts; reports, etc.—The board of managers shall keep in a book provided for that purpose a proper record of its proceedings, which shall be open at all times to the inspection of its members, to the members of the commissioners' court of the county and to any citizen of the county.

The board of managers shall certify all bills and accounts, including salaries and wages, and transmit them to the commissioners' court of the county, who shall provide for their payment in the same manner as other charges against the county are paid.

The board of managers shall make to the commissioners' court of the county, annually, and at such times as the commissioners' court shall direct, a detailed report of the operation of the hospital, dispensaries and school during the year, showing the number of patients received and the methods and results of their treatment, together with suitable recommendations and such other matter as may be required of them, and shall furnish full and detailed estimates of the appropriations required during the ensuing year for all purposes, including maintenance, the erection of buildings, repairs, renewals, extensions, improvements, betterments or other necessary purposes. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1498h. Duties and powers of superintendent; admission and discharge of patients, etc.; bond.—The superintendent shall be the chief executive officer of the hospital, but shall at all times be subject to the by-laws, rules and regulations thereof, and to the powers of the board of managers.

He shall, with the consent of the board of managers, equip the hospital with all necessary furniture, appliances, fixtures and all other needed facilities for the care and treatment of patients, and for the use of officers and employés thereof, and shall purchase all necessary supplies, not exceeding the amount provided for such purposes by the commissioners' court.

He shall have general supervision and control of the records, accounts and buildings of the hospital, and all internal affairs, and maintain discipline therein, and enforce compliance with and obedience to all rules, by-laws and regulations adopted by the board of managers for the government, discipline and management of said hospital and the employés and inmates thereof. He shall make such further rules, regulations and orders as he may deem necessary, not inconsistent with law or with the rules, regulations and directions of the board of managers. He shall, with the consent of the board of managers, appoint such resident officers and such employés as he may think proper and necessary for the efficient performance of the business of the hospital, and prescribe their duties; and for cause, stated in writing, he may discharge any such officer or employé at his discretion, after giving such officer or employé an opportunity to be heard.

He shall cause proper accounts and records of the business and operations of the hospital to be kept regularly from day to day in books and on records provided for that purpose; and shall see that such accounts and records are correctly made up for the annual report of the commissioners' court, as required by section 7 of this Act [Art. 1498g], and present the same to the board of managers, who shall incorporate them in their report to the said commissioners' court.

He shall receive into the hospital, under the general direction of the board of managers, in order of applications, or according to the urgency of need of treatment, any person found to be suffering from any illness, disease or injury, who has been an actual resident and inhabitant of the county for a period of at least one year prior to his application for admission to said hospital. He shall also receive into the hospital, patients sent by the commissioners' court of any adjacent county, which has contracted with the board of managers of the hospital for the care and treatment of its sick and diseased and injured persons, resident in such counties for a period of at least one year. Such patients shall not be received and cared for unless there is sufficient provision for the care of the sick, diseased and injured of the county in which the hospital is situated. Said superintendent shall cause to be kept proper accounts and records of the admission of all patients, their names, age, sex, color, marital condition, residence, occupation and place of past employment.

He shall cause a careful examination to be made of the physical condition of all persons admitted to the hospital and provide for the treatment of each such patient according to his need; and shall cause a record to be kept of the condition of each patient when admitted, and from time to time thereafter.

He shall temporarily or permanently discharge from said hospital any patient who shall willfully or habitually violate the rules thereof; or who is found not to be sick, diseased or injured; or who is found to have recovered therefrom; or who for any other reason is no longer a suitable patient for treatment therein; and shall make a full report thereof at the next meeting of the board of managers; and the said board shall make such final disposition of the case as they may think proper. From the decision of the board of managers there shall be no appeal.

He shall collect and receive all moneys due the hospital, keep an accurate account of the same, report the same at the monthly meeting of the board of managers, and transmit the same to the county collector within ten days after such meeting.

He shall before entering upon the discharge of his duties, give a bond in such sum as the board of managers may determine, to secure the faithful performance of the duties of his office. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1498i. Admission of patients; applications; duty of superintendent; payments, etc.—Any resident of the county in which the hospital is situated, desiring treatment in such hospital, may apply in person to the superintendent or to any reputable physician for examination, and such physician, if he find that such person is suffering from any illness, disease or injury, may apply to the superintendent of the hospital for his admission. Blank forms for such applications shall be provided by the hospital, and shall be forwarded by the superintendent thereof gratuitously to any reputable physician in the county upon request. So far as practicable, applications for admission to the hospital shall be made upon such forms. The superintendent of the hospital, upon receipt of such application, if it appears therefrom that the patient is suffering from illness, disease or injury, and if there be a vacancy in the said hospital, shall notify the person named in such application to appear in person at the hospital. If, upon personal examination of such patient, or of any patient applying in person for admission, the superintendent is satisfied that such person is suffering from any illness, disease or injury, he shall admit him to the hospital as a patient. All such applications shall state whether, in the judgment of the physician, the person is able to pay in whole or in part for his care and treatment while at the hospital; and every application shall be filed and recorded in a book kept for that purpose in the order of its receipt. When said hospital is complete and ready for the treatment of patients, or whenever thereafter there are vacancies therein, admission to said hospital shall be made in the order in which the names and applicants shall appear upon the application book to be kept as above provided, in so far as such applicants are certified to by the superintendent to be suffering from any illness, disease or injury. No discrimination shall be made in the accommodations, care or treatment of any patient because of the fact that the patient or his relatives contribute to the cost of his maintenance, in whole or in part, and no patient shall be permitted to pay for his maintenance in such hospital a greater sum than the average per capita cost of maintenance therein, including a reasonable allowance for the interest on the cost of the hospital; and no officer or employé of such hospital shall accept from any patient thereof any fee, payment or gratuity whatsoever for his services. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1498j. Support of patients; duties and powers of superintendent; power of county court.—Whenever a patient has been admitted to said hospital from the county in which the hospital is situated, the superintendent shall cause inquiry to be made as to his circumstances, and of the relatives of such patient legally liable for his support. If he finds that such patient, or said relatives are liable to pay for his care and treatment in whole or in part, an order shall be made directing such patient, or said relatives to pay to the treasurer of such hospital for the support of such patient a specified sum per week, in proportion to their financial ability, but such sum shall not exceed the actual per capita cost of maintenance. The superintendent shall have power and authority to collect such sum from the estate of the patient, or his relatives legally liable for his support, in the manner provided by law for the collection of expenses of the last illness of a deceased person. If the superintendent finds that such patient, or said relatives are not able to pay, either in whole or in part, for his care and treatment in such hospital, the same shall become a charge upon the county. Should there be a dispute as to the ability to pay, or doubt in the mind of the superintendent, the county court shall hear and determine same, after calling witnesses, and shall make such order as may be proper, from which there shall be no appeal. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1498k. Managers to have access; inspection, etc.—The resident officer of the hospital shall admit the managers into every part of the hospital and the premises, and give them access on demand to all books, papers, accounts and records pertaining to the hospital, and shall furnish copies, abstracts and reports whenever required by them. All hospitals established or maintained under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to inspection by any duly authorized representative of the state board of health, or any state board of charities that may hereafter be created, and of the commissioners' court of the county; and the resident officers shall admit such representatives into every part of the hospital and its buildings, and give them access on demand to all records, reports, books, papers and accounts pertaining to the hospital. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1498l. Hospital in connection with poor house.—Wherever a county hospital for the care and treatment of persons suffering from any illness, disease or injury exists in connection with, or on the grounds of a county poor house or elsewhere, the commissioners' court shall appoint a board of managers for such hospital, and such hospital, and its board of managers, shall thereafter be subject to all provisions of this Act, in like manner as if it had been originally established hereunder. Any hospital which may hereafter be established by any commissioners' court shall in like manner be subject to all the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1498m. More than one hospital.—When deemed advisable by the commissioners' court, and approved by the state board of health, a county may maintain more than one county hospital for the purpose aforesaid. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 1498n. Commissioners' court may contract in county having no city of more than 10,000 inhabitants, etc.; co-operation with cities and towns in certain cases.—It shall be lawful for any commissioners' court of any county which has no city with a population of more than ten thousand persons, to contract for a period not exceeding one year, with any regularly incorporated society or hospital or municipality within the county maintaining a hospital, or with any other adjacent county, for the care of any or all of the sick, diseased or injured inhabitants of the county, upon such terms and conditions as they may by agreement think proper. Where a county has established a hospital as required by section 15 of this Act [Art. 1498o], it shall be lawful for the board of managers to contract with any regularly incorporated society or hospital or city or town within the county maintaining a hospital, for the care of some of the sick, injured or diseased persons applying for admission to the county hospital.

It shall be lawful for the commissioners' court of any county to cooperate with and to join the proper authorities of any city or town having a population of ten thousand persons or more in the establishment, building, equipment and maintenance of a hospital in said city or town, and to appropriate such funds as may be determined by said commissioners' court, after joint conference with the authorities of such city or town as may be necessary, and the management of such hospital.
shall be under the joint control of such commissioners' court, and city authorities. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 1498o. Duty of commissioners' court in county having city of more than 10,000 inhabitants; submission of issue of bonds to voters, etc.—Where no provision is made as provided in section 14 [Art. 1498n], and no county hospital is now provided for the purpose aforesaid, or where such provision is inadequate, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of each county which now has a city with a population of more than ten thousand persons, on or before December 1, 1913, and of any county which may later have a city with a population of more than ten thousand persons, within six months from the time when such city shall have attained such population, such population to be ascertained by such commissioners' court in such manner as may be determined upon resolution thereof, to provide for the erection of such county hospital or hospitals, as may be necessary, for that purpose, and to provide therein a room or rooms, or ward or wards, for the care of confinement cases, and a room or rooms or ward or wards, for the temporary care of persons suffering from mental or nervous disease, and also to make provision in separate buildings for patients suffering from tuberculosis and other communicable diseases, and from time to time to add thereto accommodations sufficient to take care of the patients of the county. This time may be extended by the state board of health for good cause shown. Unless adequate funds for the building of said hospital can be derived from current funds of the county, available for such purpose, issuance of county warrants and script, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to submit, either at a special election called for the purpose, or at a regular election, the proposition of the issuance of county bonds for the purpose of building such hospital. If the proposition shall fail to receive a majority vote at such election said commissioners' court may be required thereafter at intervals of not less than twelve months, upon petition of ten per cent. of the qualified voters of said county, to submit said proposition until same shall receive the requisite vote authorizing the issuance of the bonds. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 1498p. Adjacent counties may join in certain cases.—Where found to be more practicable, and when approved by the state board of health, two or more adjacent counties, having each a population of less than fifteen thousand persons, may join for the purposes of this Act, and erect one or more hospitals for their joint use, under the terms and conditions above set forth for a single county.

In such cases such combined counties shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same liabilities as a single county, herein provided for; and the district court in either county shall in such case have the same power for the purpose of enforcing this Act, as are herein provided for in case of single counties. [Id. sec. 16.]
TITLE 30
COUNTY TREASURER

Art. 1499. Election and term of office.

1499. Election and term of office. 1504. Oath and bond of Edmiston, 1505. Office to be declared vacant, when. 1507. Shall report to commissioners' court.
1506. Vacancy, how filled. 1508. Shall deliver money, etc., to succes-1507. Appointee's oath, bond. 1509. Shall not pay out money, except, etc.
1508. Shall receive money belonging to counties, etc. 1510. Shall examine dockets, accounts, etc.
1509. Shall perform such other duties as may be required by law.

Article 1499. [919] [987] Election and term of office.—At each regular biennial election for state and county officers, there shall be elected in each county, by the qualified voters thereof, a county treasurer, whose term of office shall be two years and until his successor is qualified. [Const. art. 16, sec. 44. Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 199.]

Removal of county officers.—See Title 88, Chapter 2.

Art. 1500. Oath and bond of. —The county treasurer, before entering upon the duties of his office, and within twenty days after he has received his certificate of election, shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution of this state and shall give a bond payable to the county judge of his county, with at least two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court, in such sum as such court may deem necessary, conditioned that such treasurer shall faithfully execute the duties of his office and pay over according to law all moneys which shall come into his hands as county treasurer, and render a just and true account thereof to said court at each regular term of said court, which oath and bond shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of such county and safely preserved. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 1096.]

Must account for funds.—An officer who is custodian of public money does not occupy the relation of a mere bailee for hire, who is responsible only for such care of the money as a prudent man would take of his own. He is bound to account for any pay over the public money, less his commissions, or his sureties must pay it for him. (Bogg v. State, 46 T. 16; Boyden v. United States, 13 Wall. 17, 20 L. Ed. 527; United States v. Prescott, 3 How. 578, 11 L. Ed. 744; United States v. Morgan, 11 How. 154, 13 L. Ed. 443; United States v. Dashiel, 4 Wall. 183, 19 L. Ed. 313.) — Wilson v. Wichita County, 67 T. 649, 4 S. W. 67.

A county treasurer, having constituted the tax collector his agent to keep the money of the county, is responsible for it in case of its misappropriation. Kempner v. Galveston County, 76 T. 450, 13 S. W. 460.

—Lost by theft.—It is no defense to an action on a treasurer's bond for failure to account for public funds that they were stolen by robbers. Coe v. Forcee, 20 C. A. 550, 50 S. W. 616.

Indemnity to surety.—See notes under Title 109.

Obligation on defective bond.—Bond of county treasurer held valid as a common-law obligation, though defective under statute. Edmiston v. Concho County, 21 C. A. 339, 81 S. W. 353.

Action on bond.—The county judge may bring suit against the county treasurer on his official bond without averment or proof that suit was directed by the commissioners' court. Wall v. McConnell, 65 T. 397.

Where an action is brought on a treasurer's bond given under this article to secure the general funds of the county, recovery cannot be had on a bond given under article 921, Rev. St. 1896, given to secure the school fund of the county, although both bonds are signed by the same sureties. The action should have been brought under the latter article. Connor v. Zachry, 84 C. A. 189, 115 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 179, 180.

Demand.—Demand of payment for defalcation of county treasurer is not necessary to charge his sureties. Coe v. Nash (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 235.

Release of sureties.—See notes under Title 109.

Bond as treasurer of improvement district.—See Title 83, Art. 5566.

—Of navigation district.—See Title 96, Art. 5988.

—Of school funds.—See Art. 2768.

770
Art. 1501. [922] [990] Shall be required to give new bond, when. —It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court, whenever they may consider the bonds, or either of the bonds, of a county treasurer, from any cause, insufficient or doubtful, to require such treasurer to give another bond or bonds, or to give additional bond or bonds, as the case may be.

Liability on additional bond.—The sureties on an additional bond are not liable for money lost by the treasurer before the execution of such bond. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 119, 41 S. W. 473, reversing 40 S. W. 235.

Art. 1502. [923] [991] Office to be declared vacant, when.—Should the person elected treasurer fail to give the bonds required by this title and take the oath of office within twenty days after receiving his certificate of election, it shall be the duty of the county judge to declare the said office vacant; and, should a treasurer fail to give another or an additional bond or bonds when required to do so, as provided in the preceding article, within twenty days after notice of such requirement, he shall be removed from said office in the manner provided by law.

Art. 1503. [924] [992] Vacancy, how filled.—Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of the county treasurer, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the county in which such vacancy occurs to fill such vacancy by appointment, such appointment to be made by a majority vote of the commissioners present, at a regular or special term of such court, and such appointment shall continue in force until the next general election and until a successor is qualified. [Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 217.]

Art. 1504. [925] [993] Appointee shall take oath and give bonds.—The person appointed to fill the vacancy, as provided in the preceding article, shall, before entering upon the discharge of the duties of such office, and within twenty days after he has been notified of such appointment, take the oath and give the bonds required, as in the case of an election to such office. [Id.]

Art. 1505. [926] [994] Shall receive moneys belonging to county, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer to receive all moneys belonging to the county from whatever source they may be derived, and to pay and apply the same as required by law, in such manner as the commissioners' court of his county may require and direct. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 1097.]

See Carothers v. Presidio County, 23 S. W. 491, 4 C. A. 529.

Proper custodian of funds.—The county treasurer is the only person entitled to the custody of the money of the county. Wall v. McConnell, 65 T. 397. See Looscan v. Harris County, 68 T. 519.

Breach of bond.—Payment of permanent school funds without the order of the commissioners' court is a breach of the treasurer's bond. Boydstun v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 541.

As to deposit of funds, see Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 237.

Duties as treasurer of navigation district.—See Title 96, Art. 5987.

— Of drainage district.—See Title 47, Art. 2580.

Fees of treasurer.—See Title 58, Arts. 3573-3575, and notes.

Art. 1506. [927] [995] Shall keep true accounts and superintend collection of money, etc.—The county treasurer shall keep a just and true account of the receipts and expenditures of all moneys which shall come into his hands by virtue of his office, and of the debts due to and from his county; and direct prosecutions according to law for the recovery of all debts that may be due his county, and superintend the collection thereof. [Id. P. D. 1098.]

Suits for debts due county.—The county treasurer cannot, by an action against a county judge, recover from him personally an amount due from the county, but not paid to him by reason of an erroneous instruction of the commissioners' court. McConnell v. Wall, 67 T. 323, 3 S. W. 237. Actions by a county treasurer to recover debts due his county should be brought in the name of the county. McConnell v. Wall, 67 T. 323, 3 S. W. 237.

Art. 1506  COUNTY TREASURER

The county treasurer alone is authorized to sue for a debt due his county by another county on account of school funds. Trustees of Lytle School District v. Haas (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 831.

An action by the county treasurer for the use and benefit of the county cannot be maintained to recover a portion of the school fund. Connor v. Zachry, 54 C. A. 188, 115 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 177.

Accounts of improvement district.—See Title 83, Art. 5564.

Art. 1507. [928] [996] Shall report to commissioners' court.—The county treasurer shall render a detailed report at every regular term of the commissioners' court of his county of all the moneys received and disbursed by him, of all debts due to and from his county, and of all other proceedings in his office, and shall exhibit to said court at every such term all his books and accounts for their inspection and all vouchers relating to the same, to be audited and allowed. [Id. P. D. 1099.]

Estoppel.—Approval of county treasurer's account does not estop the county to dispute its correctness as against his sureties. Coe v. Nash (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 235.

False report.—A false statement by the treasurer as to the amount of money on hand is not such a breach of the bond as to render the sureties liable. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 119, 41 S. W. 473.

School fund.—See, also, Art. 2768.

It is not necessary that the statement of a county treasurer's account should be passed on by the commissioners' court before the institution of suit against him for failing to pay over public money to his successor in office. If entitled to credits against the debt with which he is charged, he may plead and show them. A refusal of a former county treasurer to deliver to his successor in office the money in his possession belonging to the school fund, when requested so to do by the proper authorities, is a breach of that portion of his official bond which binds him to safely keep and faithfully discharge the school fund according to law. Wilson v. Wichita County, 67 T. 847, 4 S. W. 67.

This article and 921 Rev. St. 1895, are sufficient to show that it was contemplated that the county treasurer should be the custodian of the securities belonging to the school fund of the county. Poole v. Burnett County, 97 T. 71, 76 S. W. 426.

Art. 1508. [929] [997] Shall deliver money, etc., to successor in office.—He shall deliver the moneys, securities, and all other property of the county in his hands, together with all documents, instruments of writing, papers and books belonging to, or for the use of, the county to his successor in office, and perform all such other acts as may be required of him by said commissioners' court. [Id. P. D. 1100.]

Art. 1509. [930] [998] Shall not pay out money except, etc.—The county treasurer shall not pay any money out of the county treasury except in pursuance of a certificate or warrant from some officer authorized by law to issue the same; and, if such treasurer shall have any doubt of the legality or propriety of any order, decree, certificate or warrant presented to him for payment, he shall not pay the same, but shall make report thereof to the commissioners' court for their consideration and direction. [Id. P. D. 1101.]

Issuance and nature of warrants.—See notes under Art. 1459.

Does not apply to school funds.—The provisions of this article apply to such matters as are under the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court. They do not apply to school funds, because a voucher against such funds cannot be issued by the commissioners' court, nor had that court any power over it. Collier v. Peacock, 93 T. 255, 54 S. W. 1028.

This article does not apply in case of payment of school warrants or vouchers drawn on the treasurer and approved by the school superintendent of the county. He has no discretion in regard to the payment of these. Oge v. Froebese (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 693.

Invalid warrant.—A county treasurer who, exercising good faith and proper care, pays an invalid county warrant, is not liable to the county therefor. McDonald v. Farmer, 23 C. A. 59, 56 S. W. 556.

Mandamus.—See notes under Art. 5732.

Warrant necessary.—The county treasurer is not authorized to pay a claim simply upon presentation to him of a certified copy of the orders of the commissioners' court, as such copies could not take the place of the warrants required to be issued by article 1149 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Denman v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 803.

As custodian of funds of improvement district.—See Art. 5564.

Art. 1510. [931] [999] Shall examine dockets, accounts, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer to examine the accounts, dockets and records of the clerks, sheriff, justices of the peace, constables and tax collector of his county, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any moneys of right belonging to his county are in their hands which have not been accounted for and paid over according to law, and shall report the same to the commissioners' court at their next term, to the end that suit may be instituted for the recovery thereof. [Id. P. D. 1102.]

Art. 1511. [932] [1000] Shall perform such other duties as may be required by law.—The county treasurer shall perform all such other duties as may be required of him by law.
TITLE 31
COURT-SUPREME

CHAPTER ONE
JUDGES OF THE SUPREME COURT

Art. 1512. Chief and associate justices. —The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to the decision of a case. [Const. art. 5, sec. 2.]

Art. 1513. Election and tenure of office.—The chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election. The judges of said court now in office shall hold their office until the expiration of the term for which they were elected, and until their successors are elected and qualified. As soon as practicable after the election of the successors to the present incumbents, the newly elected judges shall cast lots for the term of office. That one who shall draw number one shall hold his office for two years; the one drawing number two shall hold his office for four years, and the one drawing number three shall hold his office for six years; each to hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified; and each justice of the supreme court elected thereafter shall hold his office for six years and until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall each receive an annual salary of four thousand dollars. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Removal.—See Title 98, Chapter 1. Salaries.—See Art. 7057.

Art. 1514. Qualifications of judges.—No person shall be eligible to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court, unless he be, at the time of his election, a citizen of the United States and of this state, and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years, and shall have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court in this state, or such lawyer and judge together, at least seven years. [Id.]

Art. 1515. Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court, the governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for state officers, and at such general election the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the state. [Id.]

Art. 1516. Disqualification of judges.—No judge of the supreme court shall sit in any case wherein he may be interested in the question to be determined, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity, within the third degree, or where he shall have been of counsel in the cause; and, when the court or any two of its members shall be thus disqualified to hear and determine any cause or causes in said court, the same shall be certified to the governor, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons, learned in the law, for the trial and determination of said cause or causes. [Const. art. 5, sec. 11; Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1575.]

Counsel in cause.—Justice of the supreme court held not disqualified to sit in certain case by reason of having been counsel in a certain previous case. City of Austin v. Cashill, 99 T. 172, 89 S. W. 552.

Art. 1517. [970] [1041] Equal division of judges.—Whenever the supreme court shall be equally divided in opinion on hearing any appeal or other matter, it shall be the duty of the chief justice or presiding judge of the court to certify the same to the governor; also, all other causes of disability of said court, as prescribed in the preceding article; whereupon, the governor shall immediately commission the required number of persons learned in the law for the determination of said case or cases; provided, that the person or persons so commissioned shall possess all the qualifications hereinbefore and hereinafter prescribed for judges of the supreme court. [P. D. 1576.]

CHAPTER TWO

TERMS OF THE SUPREME COURT

Article 1518. [937] [1005] Terms of supreme court.—The supreme court shall hold one term each year at the city of Austin, commencing on the first Monday in October of each year, and may continue until the last Saturday in the next June. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Art. 1519. [938] [1010] Adjournment from day to day; want of quorum.—The said court may adjourn from day to day, or for such period as they may think necessary to the ends of justice and the determination of the business before them; and there shall be no discontinuance of any suit, process or matter returned to, or depending in, the supreme court, although a quorum of the court may not be in attendance at the commencement or any other day, of the term; but if a sufficient number of the judges shall not attend on the first day of the term to hold said court, or shall not attend at any day of the term, any judge of the court, or the sheriff attending the same, may adjourn the said court from time to time, for thirty days, at which time, if a majority or quorum shall not attend, it shall be the duty of the judge or sheriff in attendance to adjourn the court to the next regular term time. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1574.]

Art. 1520. [939] Bailiff, appointment and compensation.—The supreme court may appoint a bailiff to attend the sitting of the court, who shall receive an annual salary of three hundred dollars.

CHAPTER THREE
JURISDICTION OF THE SUPREME COURT

Art. 1522. Writs of error, in what cases. Art. 1528. May mandamus district judge to Art. 1523. Court to make rules, etc. proceed to trial.
Art. 1524. To prescribe rules of practice. Art. 1529. May issue writs of habeas corpus
Art. 1525. May ascertain jurisdictional facts. when, and admit to bail.
Art. 1526. May issue writs.

Article 1521. Appellate jurisdiction of supreme court.—The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of the state, which shall extend to questions of law arising in civil causes in the courts of civil appeals in the following cases when same have been brought to the courts of civil appeals by writ of error, or appeal, from final judgments of the trial courts:

(1) Those in which the judges of the courts of civil appeals may disagree upon any question of law material to the decision.

(2) Those in which one of the courts of civil appeals holds differently from a prior decision of its own, or of another court of civil appeals, or of the supreme court upon any such question of law.

(3) Those involving the validity of statutes.

(4) Those involving the revenue laws of the state.

(5) Those in which the railroad commission is a party.

(6) Those in which, by proper application for writ of error, it is made to appear that the court of civil appeals has, in the opinion of the supreme court, erroneously declared the substantive law of the case, in which case the supreme court shall take jurisdiction for the purpose of correcting such error. [Acts 1913, p. 107, sec. 1.]

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Cited, Edwards v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 151 S. W. 239.

Jurisdiction.—The old article did not confer jurisdiction in cases of which the court of civil appeals, under section 5 of the act to organize those courts, have final jurisdiction.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to grant a writ of error in a case brought in the district court of which the county court also had jurisdiction. Long v. Green & Co., 100 T. 310, 103 S. W. 780.

Supreme court held to have jurisdiction of action against guardian of beneficiaries of insurance policy to recover payments made to keep up the policy under a contract for reimbursement. Kelly v. Barley, 100 T. 566, 103 S. W. 106.

Appellate jurisdiction defined. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 100 S. W. 336.

Where a judgment of the court of civil appeals, vacating an order of the district court dissolving a temporary injunction against the execution of a county court judgment, would be final if the action for the injunction had been originally brought in the county court, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to review the judgment of the court of appeals, though the action was originally brought in the district court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 102 T. 322, 116 S. W. 360.

—Amount in controversy.—A writ of error does not lie to the court of civil appeals in a case for debt, where the amount in controversy was within the constitutional jurisdiction of the county court, although suit was brought in the district court having jurisdiction in the county in such cases. Railway Co. v. Lumber Co., 85 T. 405, 21 S. W. 589. See G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Buford, 85 T. 420, 21 S. W. 678.

Suit by a railroad company for $299.92 against a lumber company for freight, brought in the district court of Trinity county by virtue of a statute which gives to that court in that county the jurisdiction which is conferred by the constitution upon the county courts. In such case the judgment of the court of civil appeals in reversing the judgment of the trial court and rendering final judgment for the full amount claimed was final and conclusive, and over such judgment the supreme court has no control. Railway Co. v. Lumber Co., 85 T. 405, 21 S. W. 589.

The county court not having jurisdiction of a proceeding for the trial of the right of property, when the value of the property levied on amounted to or exceeded $500, the supreme court has jurisdiction to review by writ of error the judgment of the court of civil appeals in such a proceeding. Wetzel v. Simon, 87 T. 493, 28 S. W. 942.

A claim for damages to the amount of $1,000 and compensation for delay in the payment of the same is within the jurisdiction of the supreme court. Schulz v. Tesman, 92 T. 489, 49 S. W. 1031.

Where two suits, each for $1,000, brought in the district court, were consolidated, and tried as one case, the supreme court held to acquire jurisdiction on appeal from a judgment of the court of civil appeals. Security Co. v. Panhandle Nat. Bank, 93 T. 575, 57 S. W. 22.

778
The supreme court held to have jurisdiction of writ of error in garnishment proceedings ancillary to judgment of the district court though the amount involved was within the jurisdiction of the county court. Simmang v. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co., 102 T. 59, 112 S. W. 1044, 132 Am. St. Rep. 846.

Existence of controversy.—A writ of error will not be granted in order to pass on a question of law already settled. Holt v. Maverick, 26 S. W. 607, 88 T. 457.

Where the subject-matter of a suit has ceased to exist, a writ of error to the court of civil appeals will not be granted for the purpose of reversing its judgment and that of the trial court merely to determine the question of costs. Robinson v. State, 29 S. W. 649, 87 T. 662.

The determination of the same question in a case between other parties settles the conflict, and the supreme court has no jurisdiction. Sturges Nat. Bank v. Smith, 87 T. 639, 29 S. W. 838.

Where the term of service of a school teacher under an agreement, the approval of which is compelled by mandamus, has expired pending appeal, the supreme court cannot consider an application for writ of error to review the judgment awarding the writ. Watkins v. Huff, 54 T. 631, 61 S. W. 632.

Election contest.—A writ of error will not lie in a case contesting an election. State v. Thompson, 30 S. W. 1046, 88 T. 228.

Issues of fact.—See note under Arts. 1526, 1546.

Final judgment.—However, the attention of the court to be called to the fact, if the record discloses that no final judgment has been rendered in a cause, the appeal must be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Mills v. Paul, 1 C. A. 410, 23 S. W. 189.

Several causes are shown to have been consolidated in the trial court. A judgment in such consolidated causes, to be final, must dispose of the litigation as to all parties in such suit. Id.

An appellate court is without jurisdiction when the record fails to show a final judgment. Dailey v. Wills (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 431.

An application to the supreme court for a writ of error dismissed on the ground that the judgment was not final and appealable. Mendoza v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 94 T. 656, 62 S. W. 418.

An order of the court of civil appeals refusing to take jurisdiction of a cause and to permit the transcript (from the trial court) to be filed, is not a final judgment from which a writ of error will lie to the supreme court. The proper remedy is mandamus by the supreme court to court of civil appeals to compel the filing of the transcript. Wandeloh v. Rainey et al., 100 T. 471, 100 S. W. 1156.

Our statutes give right of appeal only from judgments of the district and county courts, and not from a judgment of a judge sitting in chambers. Pittman v. Byars, 100 T. 538, 101 S. W. 789.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals refusing to permit the filing of a transcript out of time on the ground that failure to file the same was inexcusable, is not a final judgment within this article, and hence such judgment is not reviewable in the supreme court on writ of error. Casey v. Bell, 104 T. 538, 137 S. W. 918.

Since a writ of error to the supreme court is not the proper remedy to review an order of the court of civil appeals, refusing to permit the filing of a transcript out of time, such order not being a final judgment within this article, mandamus will lie to compel the filing of such transcript. Id.

Construction of constitution.—Where a case presents the question whether two judges, the others being disqualified, constitute a legal court under section 11, article 5, of the constitution, the supreme court has jurisdiction. City of Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 520, 22 S. W. 669, 909.

Where a writ of error to review the decision of the court of appeals in an action to enjoin the collection of taxes on timber standing on county school lands was based wholly on the contention that plaintiff merely possessed a right to cut it, and therefore to acquire title, plaintiff, not being the owner, could not be liable for taxes thereon, so that the case does not involve the question of whether the timber was exempt from taxation under Const. art. 11, § 8, exempting property of counties owned and held for public purposes only, so as to give the supreme court jurisdiction under this article. Peach River Lumber Co. v. Montgomery (Sup.) 124 S. W. 904.

Validity of statute.—The supreme court held to have no jurisdiction of a writ of error from an order of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment of the district court on a motion to recover money collected from an attorney. Blair v. Blanton, 83 T. 549, 55 S. W. 291.

Where the construction placed by the court of civil appeals upon a law puts that law in conflict with the constitution of the United States, the validity of the law is involved, and an appeal will lie to the supreme court. Albertype Co. v. Gust Feist Co., 102 T. 239, 114 S. W. 791.

The supreme court has jurisdiction in cases appealed from county court to court of civil appeals involving the validity of statute, because article 1501 declares that the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals in such cases is not final. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb, 102 T. 510, 114 S. W. 1175.

Conflict of decisions.—A conflict of decisions gives jurisdiction to the supreme court only in cases in which the judgment of the court of civil appeals is not final, and such court has reversed the judgment of the trial court and remanded the cause. Gallagher v. Russell, 88 T. 564, 21 S. W. 523; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Langsdale, 88 T. 515, 23 S. W. 533.

A conflict of a decision of a court of civil appeals with a decision of the supreme court must be well defined in order to give the supreme court jurisdiction. Bassett v. Sherrod, 90 T. 33, 36 S. W. 400.

It is not sufficient to give jurisdiction that a court of civil appeals may have misapplied a principle of law announced by another court. The facts must be substantially the same. Sun Mutual Ins. Co v. Roberts, Willis & Taylor Co., 90 T. 78, 37 S. W. 311.
In case of a conflict of decision the precise question must have been decided in both cases. Mann v. Durst, 90 T. 76, 37 S. W. 311. Where an assignment of error is waived, and judgment reversed, the court of civil appeals, by deciding the point in favor of the same appellant on a subsequent appeal, does not overrule the adverse decision of the supreme court so as to give it jurisdiction on error. Durst v. McCampbell, 91 T. 147, 40 S. W. 955; Molino v. Benavides, 94 T. 413, 60 S. W. 575.

Where an assignment of error is waived, and judgment reversed, the court of civil appeals, by deciding the point in favor of the same appellant on a subsequent appeal, does not overrule the adverse decision of the supreme court so as to give it jurisdiction on error. Durst v. McCampbell, 91 T. 147, 40 S. W. 470.

Decision of the court of civil appeals held not to overrule prior decision of supreme court, so as to give it jurisdiction to review such decision. Assman v. Dittman, 93 T. 37, 93 S. W. 342.

Where it was claimed that the court of civil appeals had overruled decisions of the supreme court, a writ of error would be denied, where it appeared that the petition on which the judgment of the court of civil appeals was based set up a cause of action unlike the one on which the decisions of the supreme court were based. Adoue v. Wettermark, 94 T. 81, 58 S. W. 722.

A decision of the court of civil appeals contrary to a principle announced in a decision of the supreme court did not give the supreme court jurisdiction on a writ of error as overruling its decision. Molino v. Benavides, 94 T. 413, 60 S. W. 575.

An application for writ of error, alleging a conflict of a decision of a court of civil appeals with a decision of the supreme court, held insufficient to confer jurisdiction. Watson v. Nat. Bank, 93 T. 351, 67 S. W. 314.

The decision of a court of civil appeals as to the correctness of an instruction in an action against a city and street railroad company for a death held not to be in such conflict with decisions of the supreme court and courts of civil appeals as to give the supreme court jurisdiction to review the case. Gossett v. Citizens' Ry. Co., 96 T. 1, 69 S. W. 976.

The overruling of a decision of the old court of appeals does not give the Supreme Court jurisdiction under this article. Id.

In order to give the supreme court jurisdiction it is not required that the later decision expressly overrule a former, but there must be an irreconcilable conflict between the two decisions. Red River T. & S. Ry. Co. v. McKerley, 99 T. 18, 86 S. W. 222.

See note to Arts. 1620, 1622.

In an action for damages resulting from delay and rough handling in transporting plaintiff's cattle, a decision of the court of civil appeals for the second supreme judicial district held not in conflict with a decision of the court of civil appeals for the third supreme judicial district. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Conner, 101 T. 54, 104 S. W. 1848.

A decision of the court of civil appeals, that a railroad company must keep cattle guards in good condition, held not in conflict with certain other decisions respecting the railroad's liability for killing stock which escaped through openings in the railroad's right of way fence at private crossings. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wilson, 101 T. 269, 106 S. W. 325.

A conflict between a decision of the court of civil appeals reversing and remanding and other appellate decisions, which have been overruled, does not give the supreme court jurisdiction on the ground of the insufficiency of the evidence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Herring, 102 T. 106, 113 S. W. 521.

In determining whether a decision of the court of civil appeals overrules other appellate decisions, so as to give the supreme court jurisdiction, the decision must be considered as a whole. Id.

Dissent.—After a case has been before the supreme court on certificate of dissent from a court of civil appeals, another writ of error bringing up the entire case will not be granted. Campbell v. Wiggins, 85 T. 451, 22 S. W. 5.

Where the court of civil appeals are unanimous that a charge was properly refused, but one judge dissents as to the reason assigned, there is no such dissent as will authorize the supreme court to take jurisdiction. Mexta v. Lewis, 22 S. W. 397, 87 T. 208.

Courts holding differently.—In order to give supreme court jurisdiction the two courts of civil appeals must hold differently, on the same question or same or similar state of facts. H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 84 T. 78, 58 S. W. 724.

The decision of a court of civil appeals as to the correctness of an instruction in trespass to try title held to be in such conflict with the decision of another court of civil appeals on the same question as to require such question to be certified to the supreme court. McCurdy v. Conner, 95 T. 246, 66 S. W. 654.

Judgment of reversal.—The supreme court held to have no jurisdiction to grant a writ of error to a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing and remanding a cause for the insufficiency of the evidence. Dawson v. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co., 94 T. 424, 61 S. W. 113.

Reversal which settles case.—This rule does not authorize the writ where the action of the court of civil appeals was upon the giving and the refusing of instructions, or on the exclusion of testimony, where it appears that the facts upon which the charges were based were correctly submitted, or where the evidence rejected was corroborative, and not likely to control the disposition of the case upon another trial. Smith v. Wilson, 85 T. 402, 20 S. W. 587.

So, also, where the reversal is on ground of an improper charge by the trial judge, the propriety of such charge depending on the state of the evidence, the supreme court, on application for writ of error, cannot assume that there will or will not be evidence on another trial to make such charge improper. Sanger v. Henderson, 86 T. 404, 29 S. W. 915.
COURT—SUPREME

Where the court of civil appeals reverses a judgment and remands a cause for the purpose of allowing the parties to introduce new evidence throwing light on the truth of the case, and does not settle the case, and writ of error will not lie from the supreme court. Gallagher v. McHugh, 85 T. 446, 21 S. W. 1033.

A writ of error will lie from the judgment of a court of civil appeals reversing a judgment of recovery for personal injuries on the ground that the evidence shows conclusively that plaintiff, as G. & S. Ry. Co., 89 T. 58, 33 S. W. 946; Railway Co., 90 T. 550, 34 S. W. 626; Pacific Co., 90 T. 663, 36 S. W. 622; Warren v. City of Denison, 89 T. 557, 36 S. W. 494; Smith v. Railway Co., 90 T. 123, 38 S. W. 955.

Where a court of civil appeals reverses on the ground that the recovery below was for too much, the judgment does not "practically settle the case." Ide v. College Park Electric Belt Line, 90 T. 509, 28 S. W. 915.

Where a case has been rendered by the civil appeals, the supreme court has no jurisdiction, unless the application for a writ of error shows that the judgment of the court settled the case. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Masterson, 91 T. 893, 43 S. W. 875.

When the court of civil appeals reverses a judgment because the verdict is against the evidence, its decision does not settle the case, and hence a writ of error will not lie therefor from the supreme court. Choate v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 498, 44 S. W. 60.

A writ of error, to enable one to procure a review of a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment in his favor, will be granted, where the former judgment practically settled the case. Jeffries v. Hartel, 94 T. 320.

Where a writ of error to the court of civil appeals is based upon the allegation that the decision of that court settles the case, and such decision is sustained, the Supreme Court will render a final judgment. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 93 T. 482, 56 S. W. 323.

To give supreme court jurisdiction on the ground that the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settles the case, the fact must not only be averred but it must also appear from the record that upon the evidence adduced upon the trial, the decision of the court of civil appeals is decisive of all the questions raised by the pleadings. Harvey v. Sutton, 94 T. 79, 58 S. W. 833.

Where the court of civil appeals remanded a case because the evidence did not show what part of the property was to be recovered, the supreme court did not have jurisdiction on writ of error on the ground that the decision "practically settled the case." Molino v. Benavides, 94 T. 413, 60 S. W. 875.

Applicant for a writ of error, on the ground that the decision "practically settled the case," could not affect the question of jurisdiction by asserting that plaintiff could not produce further evidence. Id.

A party who has procured the reversal of a judgment by a court of civil appeals, has no right to go to the supreme court and ask that the judgment be entered in his favor against the losing party without a further trial in the district court. The supreme court has no jurisdiction in such a case. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Coolidge, 96 T. 92, 68 S. W. 182.

In order to render final judgment in a case where the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settles the case it is necessary for the supreme court to grant the writ of error so that it can have the whole case before it. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Martin, 96 T. 437, 67 S. W. 883.

The judgment of the court of civil appeals, reversing and remanding a case, held reviewable by the supreme court; it having practically settled the case. Brown v. Cates, 99 T. 133, 87 S. W. 1149.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment and remanding the action to practically settle the case within the statute relating to the jurisdiction of the supreme court to review judgments. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

A writ of error to the court of civil appeals on the ground that the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settled the case held properly granted. Jockusch, Davidson & Co. v. O. T. Lyon & Son, 100 T. 504, 101 S. W. 396.

An application for a writ of error may be granted to review a decision of the court of civil appeals, though it reversed the judgment and remanded the cause, where the decision practically settled the controversy. Owens v. Cage & Crow, 101 T. 253, 106 S. W. 880.

Under subd. 8, a petition for writ of error, which alleges that the judgment of the court practically settles the case, because plaintiffs in error have no defense to the intervention of the defendants in error other than that set forth in their answer, which, in obedience to the decision of the court of appeals, must go out on demurrer, and plaintiffs in error concede the fact that defendants in error are interested in the litigation, and that the decision of the court of civil appeals, gives the supreme court jurisdiction, and it will enter such judgment as the court of civil appeals should have entered. McCord v. Sprinkel, 105 T. 350, 141 S. W. 945.

An application for writ of error to the supreme court, upon the grounds, that the decision of the court of appeals pite (sic) civil appeals, is conclusive of the facts found as the only facts provable, and merely challenges the law as applied by the court of civil appeals. Edwards v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Sub.) 151 S. W. 258.

A statement of grounds of jurisdiction in the supreme court on writ of error from the court of civil appeals, to the effect that, the verdict and judgment of the trial court having been reversed and remanded, plaintiff in error asked the supreme court to take jurisdiction under subdivisions 5, 7, and 8 of the old article, did not comply with the supreme court rules, not pointing out the statutory grounds of its jurisdiction, as that the decision of the court of civil appeals overruled the decision of another such court, etc. Id.

Under this article the supreme court cannot render final judgment where a case was disposed of in the district court on demurrer, though the decision of the court of civil appeals practically settles the case. Barre v. Daggert (Sup.) 155 S. W. 110.

Art. 1522. Writs of error or certificate in certain cases.—All causes mentioned in article 1521 may be carried to the supreme court either by writ of error or by certificate from the court of civil appeals as elsewhere provided, except those mentioned in subdivision 6, which must be presented by application for writ of error. [Id.]

Art. 1523. [944] [1011d] Court to make rules, etc.—The supreme court shall, from time to time, make and promulgate suitable forms, rules and regulations for carrying into effect the articles of this title relating to the jurisdiction and practice of the supreme court. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

The court of civil appeals will enforce the supreme court rules if they are not in conflict with the supreme court rules. (Civ. App.) 155 S. Morgan (Civ. App.) 155 S. 586. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Requisites.—A statement by the court in a decision as to what its decision in the future would be with reference to the filing of a statement of facts held not to have the force of a regularly promulgated rule of practice. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts, 98 T. 42, 81 S. W. 25.

Art. 1524. [947] [1014] To prescribe rules of practice.—The supreme court shall have power to make, establish and enforce all necessary rules of practice and procedure, not inconsistent with the laws of this state, for the government of said court and all other courts of the state, so as to expedite the dispatch of business in said courts. [Id.]

Construed.—A failure to observe the rules prescribed by the court regulating the manner of bringing cases before it is a sufficient ground in the discretion of the court for a dismissal of an appeal or writ of error, unless good cause is shown why the rules were not observed. Shanks v. Carroll, 50 T. 17.

All litigants must take notice of the rules of the courts in which they are litigating. See illustration. Southern Pacific Co. v. Haas, 85 T. 401, 20 S. W. 586; Shanks v. Carroll, 50 T. 17.

When the rules were adopted it was not thought necessary or advisable to embrace in them the statutes on the same subject; consequently the rule in regard to applications to the supreme court for writs of error (rule 1) must be considered in connection with this article. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 65 T. 507, 22 S. W. 365.

A member of counsel infringing upon the rules of court will be disregarded. Railway Co. v. Crawford, 9 C. A. 245, 27 S. W. 822.

An appeal can be dismissed when there has been an unexplained delay in filing assignments of error, appeal bond and transcript. Malone v. Medford (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 662.

Rules as to presenting assignments of error, being for the convenience of appellate courts to aid in the orderly dispatch of business, held directory only, and waivable by the courts. Mitchell v. Rusher, 55 C. A. 235, 155 S. W. 352.

Under this article and Art. 1910, providing that dilatory pleas shall be determined during the term at which they are filed if the business of the court permits, and under district and county court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii), providing that all dilatory pleas shall be tried at the first term to which the attention of the court shall be called to the same, unless passed by agreement, and all such pleas shall be disposed of before the main issue on the merits is tried, the court may in its discretion dispose of dilatory motions at the trial of the merits, and, where evidence on the motions and the main case are heard together, it must require the jury to first dispose of the motions, and, where that it done, the defeated party may not complain unless he shows that he suffered injury by the failure of the court to dispose of the motions before hearing evidence on the merits. Pecos & N. P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 6 Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1149.

Rule 62a for courts of civil appeals (149 S. W. x), providing that judgment shall not be reversed and new trials ordered for errors in the course of the trial unless the appellate court shall be of the opinion that the error amounted to such a denial of appellant’s right as was reasonably calculated to cause, and probably did cause, the rendition of an improper judgment, does not require the affirmance of a judgment notwithstanding the erroneous submission of a ground of negligence not alleged in the petition in view of this article, Art. 3182, requiring the petition to set forth a full and clear statement of the cause of action and other necessary and pertinent allegations, requiring the judgment to conform to the pleadings. Ft. Worth & D. Ry. Co. v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 205.

The court of civil appeals will enforce the rules of court whenever insisted on, and will, on its own motion, enforce them when satisfied that the changes made by the supreme court in January, 1912, have become generally known. Tinsley v. Bottom (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1055.
Art. 1525. [945] [1011e] May ascertain jurisdictional facts.—The supreme court shall have the power, upon affidavit or otherwise, as the court may determine, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. [Id.]

What may be shown by affidavit.—Affidavits were received to show that an appeal bond was not filed within the time prescribed by law (Harris v. Hopson, 6 T. 529); that at the time of the execution of the appeal bond the obligee was dead. Dial v. Rector, 12 T. 59; Johnson v. Robeson, 27 T. 626.

A question of fact as to the death of one of the parties to the suit previous to the judgment of the trial court cannot be presented for the first time in the appellate court by affidavits. Groen v. Torrey, 23 T. 541; Thouvenin v. Rodrigue, 24 T. 463; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732; 51 Am. Dec. 326; Hart v. Mills, 51 T. 304.

A record of the proceedings of the court below cannot be impeached by affidavit. Johnson v. Robeson, 27 T. 636.

An appeal was taken from a judgment of the district court against A., as community survivor. Pending the appeal she was appointed administratrix of her deceased husband, but the change in her capacity was not suggested in the appellate court, and the judgment was affirmed. A. and the sureties on her appeal bond obtained an injunction to restrain an execution against him individually, and on hearing the judgment was rendered and formed against A. in her representative capacity, with directions that it be certified to the county court for payment in due course of administration. Judgment was also rendered against the surety of A. on the appeal bond, and the injunction, with an award of execution against them. Melee v. Brackett, 28 T. 443.

Affidavits were received to show that the amount of the penalty and the condition in the appeal bond had been changed after it was filed in the court below, the bond at the date of its filing being, in point of fact, blank, and the case was dismissed for want of a bond. Hart v. Mills, 51 T. 304.

A statement of facts or bill of exceptions cannot be supplied by affidavits in the supreme court. Live Oak County v. Heaton, 39 T. 499. Affidavits are inadmissible to supply defects in the record of an inferior court, or to ascertain the jurisdiction of such court. Chrisman v. Graham, 51 T. 454.

Affidavits will not be heard to show that a paper indorsed, approved and signed by the judge was intended thereby to be certified as a statement of facts. Renn v. Sams, 45 T. 194.

The supreme court cannot ascertain the jurisdiction of the district court by evidence alluded to the record; as, that the judge was related to a party to the suit within the prohibited degree. Chrisman v. Graham, 51 T. 454. See Art. 1533.

Where a writ of error is sued out after the expiration of the time allowed by law from the final judgment by minors or married women, and there are others not so protected, it is a jurisdictional fact which of the plaintiffs in error have been protected by coverture or minority. Affidavits will therefore be heard in the supreme court as basis for its action in determining as to the parties so protected. Fine v. Freeman, 63 T. 529; 17 S. W. 782, 18 S. W. 963.

In a suit in which it is necessary neither to allege nor prove the value of the thing in controversy, it is proper for an appellate court to hear affidavits as to its value, in order to determine its jurisdiction. Austin Real Estate & Abstract Co. v. Bahn, 29 S. W. 646; 30 S. W. 430, 87 T. 582, citing Williamson v. Kincaid, 4 Dall. 20, 1 L. Ed. 723; Town of Elgin v. Marshall, 106 U. S. 578, 1 Sup. Ct. 484, 27 L. Ed. 249; the sureties on the injunction bond, with an award of execution against them. Meke v. Brackett, 28 T. 443.

On appeal the supreme court cannot try on affidavits the question whether the bill of exceptions was in fact signed and filed after the term. Von Boeckmann v. Loepf (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 849.

The supreme court held authorized to consider affidavits to show that it has jurisdiction on a writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals on the ground that the judgment practically settles the case. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

Art. 1526. May issue certain writs.—The supreme court, or any justice thereof, shall have power to issue writ of habeas corpus as may be prescribed by law; and the said court, or the justice thereof, may issue writs of mandamus, procedendo, certiorari and all writs necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of said court; and said court may issue writs of quo warranto or mandamus agreeable to the principles of law regulating such writs against any district judge, or court of civil appeals or judge of a court of civil appeals, or officer of the state government, except the governor of the state. [Acts 1913, p. 107, sec. 1.]

See title "‘Mandamus.’

Habeas corpus.—On application for writ of habeas corpus, the supreme court cannot review evidence on which the court of civil appeals adjudged relator guilty of contempt. Ex parte Reid, 99 T. 495, 89 S. W. 956; Ex parte Lytle, 1d.

Mandamus.—The supreme court will by mandamus compel the clerk of the district court to deliver, 2 T. 490; Rodgers v. Alexander, 35 T. 116.

A mandamus will not issue to require a judge to sign or certify a statement of the facts proved on the trial. Frost v. Frost, 45 T. 324.

When the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court attaches, either by appeal or by writ of error, it cannot be reviewed, as made on appeal or error, until the case, as made on appeal or error, is fully determined, and until the judgment of the supreme court is completely executed by the court below, and until then it may enforce that judgment by mandamus. Wells v. Littlefield, 62 T. 28.

The supreme court will not try a case on mandamus in which the act sought to be compelled may involve the determination of a doubtful question of fact. It was not intended that the jurisdiction should be exercised in any case until the officer was under a legal obligation to do the act, and the right to have it performed was not dependent upon the determination of such doubtful questions of fact. Teat v. McGaughey, 85 T. 478, 22 S. W. 302.

As to the procedure on application to the supreme court for a mandamus, see Herf v. James, 86 T. 230, 24 S. W. 396; Burnett v. Powell, 86 T. 232, 24 S. W. 788, 25 S. W. 17; Steele v. Goodrich, 87 T. 401, 28 S. W. 393; Crumley v. McKinney (Sup.) 9 S. W. 157.

Mandamus may be issued to compel a district judge to permit an officer to exercise the function. Jernigan v. Greene, 51 S. W. 631, 58 T. 539.

The supreme court will examine a petition for a mandamus, and, unless probable cause appears from the petition, will not order a citation to issue and will dismiss the case. Hunt v. Schints, 50 T. 72, 38 S. W. 429; See Thompson v. Baker, 50 T. 162, 38 S. W. 21; Jernigan v. Finley, 50 T. 265, 38 S. W. 24.

Under art. 5, § 3, state constitution, judges of the supreme court can issue writs of mandamus in vacation. Hines v. Morse, 92 T. 194, 47 S. W. 516.

A party's remedy, where a court of civil appeals makes erroneous findings of fact, held to be by writ of error, and not mandamus. Moore v. Waco Bldg. Ass'n, 92 T. 365, 47 S. W. 716.

The supreme court will examine petition for mandamus before ordering citation, and dismiss it without process when of the opinion that it should not be granted. Id.

Application for mandamus to compel a court of civil appeals to find additional conclusions of fact comes too late after refusal of writ of error. Id.

On the refusal of the supreme court to permit the filing of a petition for mandamus to compel the court of civil appeals to certify a case to the supreme court, the relator held entitled to file a new petition alleging new facts. Shirley v. Holland v. Conner, 98 T. 63, 81 S. W. 284.

The supreme court may by mandamus compel the clerk of the court of civil appeals to file a petition for writ of error presented to him, which he should have filed under the law. Roth v. Murray, 105 T. 6, 141 S. W. 615.

Issues of fact.—A mandamus will not be granted where the facts on which it is based are disputed. Depoyster v. Baker, 89 T. 165, 34 S. W. 106.

Pleadings in mandamus to compel commissioner of general land office to award certain lands to petitioner held to raise an issue of fact as to relator's right to the land, which the supreme court could not try. Shepard v. Terrell, 97 T. 458, 75 S. W. 23.

In mandamus to compel commissioner of general land office to accept application for purchase of school land, answer alleging absence of intent to file application presents question of fact which supreme court cannot determine. Angle v. Terrell, 97 T. 569, 89 S. W. 231.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to pass upon a question of fact as to whether petitioner for writ of mandamus was an actual settler upon school land. Gordon v. Terrell, 89 S. W. 1062; Whitmyer v. Same, Id.; Childress v. Same, Id.; Nelson v. Same, Id.; Odem v. Same, Id.; Little v. Same, Id.; Yeakel v. Same, Id.; Milligan v. Same, Id.; Pence v. Same, Id.

On a petition for a writ of mandamus, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to determine an issue of fact. Edwards v. Terrell, 100 T. 26, 92 S. W. 426.

Supreme court held to have no jurisdiction of mandamus proceeding, where the right to relief depends upon determination of question of fact. Davis v. Terrell, 100 T. 291, 99 S. W. 494; Parker v. Same, 101 T. 169, 105 S. W. 491.

Pleadings in mandamus held to raise an issue of fact which the supreme court could not determine, necessitating the dismissal of the cause for want of jurisdiction. Schell v. Terrell, 100 T. 565, 102 S. W. 199.

An original petition for a writ of mandamus will be dismissed by the supreme court, where the pleadings disclose questions of fact which the court cannot determine. Oldham v. Terrell, 101 T. 44, 101 S. W. 1049.

On petition for mandamus to commissioner to cancel sales of school land and to award the land to relators, affidavit held to raise a question of fact, requiring dismissal of their petition. Hannah v. Robinson (Sup.) 128 S. W. 105.

A suggestion of a question of fact held not to deprive the supreme court of jurisdiction in mandamus. Jones v. Robison, 104 T. 79, 133 S. W. 875.

The supreme court cannot try disputed issues of fact raised by the petition and answer in mandamus, and the case must be dismissed. Furnish v. Robison (Sup.) 137 S. W. 744.

Compelling certification.—If the court of civil appeals decline to certify a question in case of a conflict of decisions, the supreme court can issue mandamus to compel it to do so. McMurtry v. Conner, 95 T. 246, 65 S. W. 667.

A writ of mandamus to compel the court of civil appeals to certify a case to the supreme court, by reason of alleged conflicting decisions of the court of civil appeals, will be denied, where it appears to the supreme court that such decisions are distinguishable. Shirley v. Holland v. Conner, 95 T. 62, 80 S. W. 384.

Compelling findings.—An application to the supreme court for mandamus to compel the finding of additional facts by the courts of civil appeals is too late after refusal of writ of error. Moore v. Waco Bldg. Ass'n, 92 T. 265, 47 S. W. 716.

State officers.—The supreme court has no jurisdiction to issue mandamus against the board of medical examiners, they not being state officers within the meaning of this law. Betts v. Johnson, 96 T. 260, 73 S. W. 4.

County officers not included.—A county officer is not included within the meaning of the term, "officers of the state government." Travis County v. Jourdan, 91 T. 217, 42 S. W. 543.

Governor.—The supreme court cannot issue writ of mandamus against the board of education, because the governor is a member of the board, and the writ must issue against all the members or none. The law forbids the court to issue the writ against the governor. McFall v. State Board of Education, 101 T. 784, 110 S. W. 729.
Art. 1527. [948] [1015] May punish contempt.—The supreme court shall have power to punish any person for a contempt of said court, according to the principles and usages of law in like cases, not to exceed one thousand dollars fine, and imprisonment not exceeding twenty days. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1577.]

Contempt in general.—See notes under Art. 1708.

Art. 1528. [949] [1016] May issue mandamus to compel district judge to proceed to trial.—The said court, or any judge thereof, in vacation, may issue the writ of mandamus to compel a judge of the district court to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause, agreeably to the principles and usages of law, returnable to the supreme court on or before the first day of the term, or during the session of the same, or before any judge of the said court, as the nature of the case may require. [P. D. 1579.]

Cannot issue writs until jurisdiction attaches.—The extraordinary writs can be used in the supreme court only in cases of which it has acquired jurisdiction. They cannot be used to set aside orders made, or to correct the results which transpired before the appeal bond was given. Churchill v. Martin, 65 T. 367; Wells v. Littlefield, 62 T. 28.

Mandamus.—The writ of mandamus is not an appropriate remedy to obtain a revision of an action of the district court in a matter involving the exercise of judgment. Little v. Morris, 10 T. 263.

The entering of judgment upon a valid verdict involves no judicial or discretionary powers, but is simply a mandatory act; and to enforce its performance by the district court the writ of mandamus will issue in the proper case. Lloyd v. Brinck, 36 T. 1.

A writ of mandamus will not be granted by the supreme court to compel a judge to try a cause when the petitioner has a remedy by appeal. Steele v. Goodrich, 28 S. W. 339, 87 T. 461.

Art. 1529. May issue writs of habeas corpus when, and admit to bail.—The supreme court of Texas, or any one of the justices thereof, shall have power, either in term time or vacation, to issue writs of habeas corpus in all cases where any person is restrained in his liberty by virtue of any order, process or commitment, issued by any court or judge, on account of the violation of any order, judgment or decree, theretofore made, rendered or entered by such court or judge in any civil cause; and said supreme court, or any one of the justices thereof, shall have power, either in term time or vacation, pending the hearing of the application for such writ, to admit to bail any person to whom the writ of habeas corpus may be so granted. [Acts 1905, p. 20.]

CHAPTER FOUR

THE CLERK OF THE SUPREME COURT

Art. 1530. Appointment, qualification and bond. —There shall be appointed for the supreme court one clerk, who shall reside at the place of holding court, which appointment shall be made by the court, or the judges thereof, and shall be entered of record in the proceedings of the court; and each person so appointed shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution, before some officer authorized to administer oaths generally, and shall enter into a bond with two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court or judges thereof, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the penalty of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and that he correctly record the judgments, decrees, decisions and orders of the said court, and deliver over to his successor in office all records, minutes, books and papers, and whatever belongs to his said office of clerk; which bond and oath shall, without delay, be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and shall not be void on first recovery, but may be put in suit and prosecuted by any party injured until the amount thereof be recovered. [Acts of 1892, p. 19.]

Art. 1531. [951] [1018] Vacancy in vacation, how filled.—If, in vacation, the office of clerk may become vacant, the appointment shall be made by the chief justice and the associates of said court, or any one of said associates and chief justice; and the person so appointed shall give bond and take the oath as prescribed in the preceding article, the bond to be approved by any judge of the court; which bond and oath shall be deposited in the same manner as though the appointment had been made in term time, and may be prosecuted and put in suit in like manner; copies of said bond, certified under the hand of the secretary of state and the seal of state, shall be received in evidence in any court in this state, in the same manner as the original would be were it presented in court; and the said appointment shall continue until the next regular term of the said court, or until a regular appointment shall be made. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1564.]

Art. 1532. [952] [1019] Term of office and salary.—The clerk of the supreme court shall hold his office for the term of four years from his appointment, but may be removed therefrom for neglect of duty or misconduct in office, by the supreme court, on motion, of which the clerk against whom complaint is made shall have ten days previous notice, specifying the particular charges of negligence or misconduct in office preferred; and in every such case the court shall determine the law and the facts; and whenever the necessity occurs, the supreme court may appoint a clerk pro tempore. The clerk of the supreme court shall receive as compensation for his services a salary of twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, and he shall collect and pay into the treasury of the state all fees and costs to be collected by him over and above the salaries allowed him and his deputies, under such further rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the comptroller, not in conflict with this chapter; such rules and regulations to be subject to the approval of the judges of the supreme court, to be entered of record in the minutes of said court. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Fees.—See Title 58, Chapter 2, Art. 3846.
Office rent, stationery, etc.—See Title 58, Chapter 4, Art. 3004.
Removal.—See Title 98, Chapter 3, Art. 6001.

Art. 1533. [953] [1020] Seal of court, clerk to procure.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court to procure a seal for the use of the court, which shall have a star of five points, with the words “Supreme Court of the State of Texas” engraved thereon. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 1569.]

Art. 1534. [954] [1021] Shall file and preserve transcripts and docket causes.—The clerk of the supreme court shall file and carefully preserve the transcripts of all records certified to said court, and all papers relative thereto, and shall docket all causes in the order in which the court shall direct. [P. D. 1583.]

Entry of attorney's name on rolls.—See Art. 321.

Art. 1535. [955] [1022] Shall record proceedings.—The said clerk shall faithfully record the proceedings and decisions of said court, and certify their judgments to the courts from which the causes were brought. [P. D. 1584.]

Art. 1536. [956] [1023] Deputies, appointment, etc.; bond, compensation, duties.—The clerk of the supreme court may appoint one deputy when authorized to do so by a majority of the judges of the supreme court, which authority shall appear of record in the minutes of said court. Said deputy may discharge all the duties required by law of said clerk, and shall be required to give bond in the same manner and amount as the clerk of said court, and to be approved by the judges of said court. Said deputy shall receive as compensation for his services such sum as shall be unanimously agreed on by the judges of the supreme court, this action to appear of record in the minutes of the court, not to exceed the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, to be paid out of the fees collected by the clerk of said court. If the business of the court shall require it, the judges may, by order entered upon the minutes, authorize the clerk of said court to appoint another deputy who shall have like powers as the first, and shall give bond in such sum as may be specified by the court. The court shall, in its order, fix the compensation of the additional deputy at a sum per month, not to exceed one thousand dollars per annum, to be paid out of the fees of the office collected by the clerk; and the court in said order shall specify the time for which the appointment may be made. The judges of the supreme court may dispense with the services of either or both of said deputies, or for any length of time as in their discretion they may deem to the public interest. [Acts 1903, p. 115.]

Art. 1537. [957] [1024] Clerk to be librarian.—The clerk of the supreme court shall be librarian in charge of the library of said court. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Art. 1538. [958] [1025] His duties as such.—It shall be the duty of such librarian to take charge of and keep together and in good order and make catalogues of the books of said libraries, which shall be open to the public use under such rules as may be prescribed by the court for the safe keeping thereof; provided, the books shall not be removed from the library room, except by the judges of the court and by members of the legislature during the session of the legislature, upon their receipt for the same to the clerk. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE

STENOGRAPHER

Article 1539. [952] [1019] Court stenographer and salary.—The supreme court shall appoint a stenographer for said court, at an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars. [Acts 1892, p. 22.]

CHAPTER SIX

THE WRIT OF ERROR—PROCEEDINGS TO OBTAIN, ETC.

Art. 1540. Petition for writ of error; requisites of and bond.

1541. Filing; time of, etc.
1542. Petition with record, etc., to be forwarded; provided deposit, etc.
1542a. Notice to defendant in error; copy of application to be delivered, etc.

Art. 1542b. Defendant in error may file reply, etc.
1542c. Disposition of cause in supreme court when reply filed.
1543. Conclusions of fact, may suspend action on petition to obtain.
1544. Writ granted, when, etc.
1545. Bond required, when.

Article 1540. [942] [1011b] Petition for writ of error; requisites of and bond.—Any party desiring to sue out a writ of error before the supreme court shall present his petition addressed to said court, stating the nature of his case and the grounds upon which the writ of error is prayed for, and showing that the supreme court has jurisdiction thereof; and the petition shall contain such other requisites as may be prescribed by the supreme court. [Id. Amend. 1895, p. 144.]

Petition—requisites.—The application for writ of error must show that the applicant has made a motion for rehearing in the court of civil appeals, presenting distinctly all the points on which a writ of error is asked. In absence of such showing the application will be dismissed. Southern Pacific Co. v. Haas, 85 T. 491, 29 S. W. 186.

Opinion on rehearing should be made a part of the record on application for the writ. G. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kizziah (Sup.) 22 S. W. 300. Petition for writ of error criticized. Elliman v. Wilson, 94 T. 501, 33 S. W. 535. Where some or all of the conclusions of fact or law made by a trial court are adopted by the court of civil appeals without being incorporated in the opinion, or without being made up as the conclusions of the court, such conclusions, properly certified, should accompany an application for writ of error to the supreme court. Ry. v. Wilson, 85 T. 567, 22 S. W. 385.

The law requires that the petition of the applicant shall follow an allegation of the names and residences of the opposite party, "with a brief statement of the nature of his case and the ground upon which the writ of error is prayed." No statement of the pleadings or their substance is required, or proper, unless it is made or reason of some issue upon them being presented to the supreme court for its decision. Otherwise, a mere designation of the nature of the pleading, or the character of the action, is all that is proper in "the statement of the nature of the case." T. & F. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 85 T. 807, 29 S. W. 385.

Where it does not otherwise appear in the record, the petition should show by appropriate allegations of fact relating to the subject-matter of the controversy, or the amount involved, that the case is one over which the supreme court can exercise jurisdiction. Id.

The transcript that accompanies the petition will be treated by the court as a part of it, and may be referred to in the petition; what appears in the transcript should not be copied in the petition. Id.

The error or errors complained of as ground for writ of error should be distinctly pointed out in the petition. This is essential, and is not remedied by a recital of the motion for rehearing and the action of the court upon it. Id.

In an application for a writ of error the assignment should distinctly specify the ruling of which complaint is made. Childress v. Smith, 90 T. 610, 33 S. W. 515; Clark v. Greer (Sup.) 26 S. W. 939.

The petition for a writ of error need not name all the parties to the proceedings. It is recommended, however, that all the names be stated, to guide the clerk in issuing citation. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 119, 41 S. W. 473.

The petition for a writ of error must allege that the decisions of the court of civil appeals were erroneous. Homes v. City of Henrietta, 91 T. 318, 42 S. W. 1052.

To give supreme court jurisdiction the petition for writ of error must show enough of the proceedings in the original suit to make plain that the suit could not have been brought in the county court. McLane v. Evans, 94 T. 78, 68 S. W. 729.

Specification of error in supreme court, on application for writ of error to court of civil appeals, held too general. J. E. Dunn & Co. v. Smith, 96 T. 478, 73 S. W. 945.

The supreme court can only grant a writ of error for errors specified in the application. It is too late to make the assignment in a motion for rehearing. Smith v. Co. State (Civil App.) 74 S. W. 754. See note to Art. 1544.

A petition for a writ of error held not to present the question whether the trial court erred in its dismissal of a cause on certain grounds. Aspley v. Hawkins, 98 T. 589, 89 S. W. 972.

Assignments of error in the court of civil appeals, not brought to the supreme court on petition for a writ of error, cannot be considered on the hearing of such writ. Texas Co. v. Stieh, 100 T. 289, 93 S. W. 481.

An assignment that the court of civil appeals erred in its opinion, on defendant's motion for rehearing, in holding that the judgment of the trial court establishing the title of certain plaintiffs against defendant in trespass to try title should not be reversed, and that the verdict against defendant on her plea of limitations should not be disturbed, followed by six reasons why the opinion was erroneous, only two of which applied to the same point, requiring the court to discuss the charge that the court has given, its refusal to give special charges, the evidence of defendant's adverse possession, the effect of defendant upon the parties originally filing the suit and upon others coming in subsequently, the effect of a verdict in favor of codefendants, and generally that the verdict was contrary to the evidence, is insufficient. Judgment (Civil App.) 113 S. W. 618, affirmed. Hess v. Webb, 103 T. 46, 123 S. W. 111.

Right of review.—Where a judgment for plaintiff was reversed in the court of civil appeals because the evidence showed that the deceased had assumed the risk, the application of the plaintiff for a writ of error was an admission that she could not change the evidence on another trial. Quill v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 93 T. 616, 57 S. W. 948.

Where, on the reversal of a judgment in favor of two of the plaintiffs by the court of civil appeals, such plaintiffs asked that judgment be rendered against them in order that they might review the same, they were not entitled to a writ of error from the supreme court therefor. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee, 98 T. 236, 82 S. W. 1035.

A motion to the supreme court for a writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing and remanding a cause, does not oust the trial court of jurisdiction to proceed with the case, unless it appears that the supreme court has jurisdiction, under article 1589, to grant the writ. Stone v. Stone, 18 S. C. A. 89, 43 S. W. 502.

Recalling mandate.—The supreme court, on the presentation of an application for a writ of error, held authorized to direct the clerk of the court of civil appeals to recall a mandate issued by him. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.
Amendment.—Application for writ of error may be amended so as to show jurisdiction.

Art. 1541. [942] [1011b] Filing, time of, etc.—The petition shall be filed with the clerk of the court of civil appeals within thirty days from the overruling of the motion for rehearing, and thereupon the said clerk of the court of civil appeals shall note upon his record the filing of said application. [Id.]

Time of filing petition.—Sunday, although the thirtieth day from that on which the motion for a rehearing was overruled by the court of civil appeals, is included in the computation. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Shadder, 59 T. 55, 33 S. W. 111, 39 L. R. A. 428, 59 Am. St. Rep. 25.

Rehearing.—Where motion for rehearing was not filed in the court of civil appeals within the time required, and no sufficient excuse is offered, the writ will be refused. Sams v. Creager, 55 T. 497, 22 S. W. 399.

The court of civil appeals overruled a motion to dismiss, based upon alleged delay of service of writ of error for over two years after the petition for writ of error was filed. The judgment below was reversed. A motion for rehearing was overruled. Application to suer the court of writ of error dismissed, on the ground that the court has not jurisdiction to grant a writ of error for the purpose of revising an interlocutory judgment. National Bank v. Robertson, 55 T. 578, 22 S. W. 956.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction where the application for a rehearing was filed one day too late. McGhee v. Romatta, 50 T. 496, 38 S. W. 279.

Motion for rehearing must be made and overruled in the court of civil appeals before writ of error can be filed for the supreme court. McGhee v. Romatta, 92 T. 241, 47 S. W. 550.

Art. 1542. [942] [1011b] Petition with record, etc., to be forwarded; provided deposit, etc.—The clerk of the court of civil appeals shall forward to the clerk of the supreme court the said petition, together with the original record in the case, and the opinions of the court of civil appeals, and the motion filed therein, and certified copies of the judgments and orders of the court of civil appeals; provided, that the party applying for the writ of error shall deposit with the clerk of the court of civil appeals a sum sufficient to pay the expressage or carriage of the said record to and from the clerk of the supreme court, which sum shall be charged as costs in the suit. [Id.]

Construction and application.—When the statement of the case and the conclusion of facts filed by the court of civil appeals do not fully present the case, in the opinion of counsel, the application for a writ of error should be accompanied with such portions of the record as may be deemed appropriate for that purpose. Burnett v. Powell, 24 S. W. 788, 25 S. W. 17, 86 T. 352.

Art. 1542a. Notice to defendant in error; copy of application to be delivered, etc.—That when an application for writ of error from a court of civil appeals to the supreme court shall be filed in a court of civil appeals, the applicant shall, at the same time, deposit with the clerk of the said court of civil appeals a true copy of the application and shall notify the attorney of record of the defendant in error of the deposit of said copy, and, upon application by such attorney or by the defendant in error, the said clerk shall deliver the copy of the application to the defendant in error or attorney of record; and the clerk of said court shall forward the record of the cause with the application for writ of error to the clerk of the supreme court at such time as is now or may be prescribed by law. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 108, sec. 1.]

1542b. Defendant in error may file reply, etc.—Within ten days after the filing of the record of the cause in the supreme court the defendant in error may file a reply to the application for writ of error controverting the grounds alleged for granting the said writ, and in such reply may state reasons why the writ of error should not be granted. The supreme court may prescribe and enforce rules governing the proceedings by both parties under this Act. [Id. sec. 2.]

1542c. Disposition of cause in supreme court when reply filed.—If the defendant in error shall file a reply to the application the supreme court may finally dispose of the cause upon such application in the same manner and to the same extent as if the application had been granted.
and the cause had been set down for hearing; provided, that the judgment of the court shall be announced in open court as in other cases, and the supreme court shall prepare and file such opinion as may be necessary, the same as if the decision had been made in the regular proceedings of the court. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1543. Where court of civil appeals fails to file conclusions of fact, etc.—If upon inspection of the petition for writ of error and the record of the cause, it shall appear that a court of civil appeals has failed to file conclusions of fact, or has not complied with the requirements of the law in filing such conclusions, and that such conclusions are necessary to enable the supreme court properly to determine the rights of the parties, the courts may suspend action on the petition for writ of error and return the record to the court of civil appeals, with instructions to make and return conclusions of fact upon the points indicated by the supreme court. [Acts 1913, p. 107, sec. 1.]

Construed.—If court of civil appeals in any case over which the supreme court has jurisdiction fail to file conclusions of facts sufficiently full to enable the supreme court to determine correctly whether an application for writ of error should be granted, this article furnishes a plain remedy for the omission. That is the supreme court can refer the case back of its own motion to the appellate court for specific finding upon point or points upon which they have omitted to state their conclusions. The applicant for writ of error can point out the omission and move to send back in the petition itself or in a separate

Art. 1544. Writ of error, when to be granted.—If, upon examination of the petition for writ of error, the supreme court shall find the case to be one of which it may take jurisdiction, and that there is such a diffERENCE of opinion among the judges of the court from which the cause shall come, or such a difference between the decision brought in question and a decision of another court, as is specified in article 1521, or that the question involving the validity of a statute was erroneously decided, or that, in a case involving the revenue laws of a state, or to which the railroad commission is a party, any question of law material to its cor-correct decision was erroneously decided, or that such an error is shown as is contemplated by subdivision 6 of article 1521, the court shall grant the writ for the purpose of deciding the question as to which the difference exists, or of correcting the erroneous decision and rendering the judgment in which a correct decision thereof shall result. [Acts 1913,
p. 107, sec. 1.]

Erroneous reason for correct judgment.—A writ of error will not be granted to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals which is correct, even if the reason therefor was erroneous. Davis v. Lanier (Tex. Sup.) 61 S. W. 385.

Separate applications.—Where one of two applications for writs of error in the same case is granted in the supreme court, the other will be granted as a matter of course.
v. Sano, Id.

Where two separate parties apply for writ of error to the supreme court to review a judgment, and one application apparently discloses error, both applications will be grant-

Separable causes.—The supreme court held warranted in refusing a writ of error from a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment below for the plaintiff, and granting a writ from a judgment affirming a judgment below in favor of a party implanted by the defendant for contribution, and holding the determination of the latter portion of the judgment for the outcome of the suit against the principal defendant.
Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Sup.) 150 S. W. 588.

Effect of denial.—Where the application of defendants in error to the supreme court for a writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals, was refused, the correctness of that judgment cannot be subsequently reviewed. Burrell v. Adams, 104 T.
182, 156 S. W. 1156.

Art. 1545. [942] [1011b] Bond required, when.—If the writ of error be granted and the plaintiff in error has given no bond, then the supreme court in granting the writ shall specify what bond shall be given; and the plaintiff in error shall file said bond in the trial court, to be approved by the clerk of said court, and a certified copy thereof shall at one be transmitted to the supreme court; and, upon the filing of said certified copy, the clerk of the supreme court shall issue the citation in error as may be prescribed by the rules of the supreme court. [Acts 1895, p. 144.]

Bond.—When writ of error is dismissed for want of prosecution, an action may be brought against the sureties on the bond. Clancy v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 318.

When writ of error is granted on condition that the applicant will give court bond the application will be dismissed if the bond is not given within the time prescribed. Mauldin v. Southern Pac. Co., 92 T. 267, 47 S. W. 964.

CHAPTER SEVEN

PROCEEDINGS IN CASES IN THE SUPREME COURT

Art. 1546. Trial on questions of law only. Art. 1547. Briefs filed.

Article 1546. [967] [1033] Trial to be on questions of law only.

In all cases of writs of error or questions certified to the supreme court, the trial shall be only upon the question of law upon which the writ of error was allowed, or which was certified to the supreme court from a court of civil appeals; but the supreme court may require at any time the original transcript to be sent up. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Questions that can be considered.—The court of civil appeals, on motion of the appellee, struck out the statement of facts, and, finding no assignment of error which could be construed as stating a cause of such a nature that an error of that description was involved, reversed the judgment of the court of civil appeals, affirming the judgment of the trial court. Clays v. Smith (W. Tex.), 103 T. 566, 183 S. W. 347. On error it was held that the court erred in striking out the statement of facts, and the supreme court proceeded to consider the whole case as presented by the record, reversed the judgment of the trial court and remanded the cause for a new trial. Bomar v. West, 28 S. W. 517, 52 T. 289.

A judgment will not be reversed because a bad reason is assigned therefor. Avery v. Popper, 92 T. 337, 49 S. W. 219, 71 Am. St. Rep. 849.

An order granting writs of sequestration to plaintiffs will not be treated as correct because of the presenting thereof by the court of civil appeals, and unaccompanied by or defendants in error (plaintiffs below). Id.

The supreme court cannot consider a matter which involves an error apparent of record, but is confined to the grounds set up in the application for writ of error. Link v. City of Houston, 94 T. 578, 60 S. W. 666.

A question held not open for consideration on error, not having been presented by the application for the writ. Ellis v. Le Bow, 96 T. 533, 74 S. W. 626.

The supreme court may, in considering questions certified from the court of civil appeals, determine every minor question upon which a correct decision of the general question certified may depend. City of Austin v. Cahill, 99 T. 172, 68 S. W. 542.

That the court of civil appeals gave an erroneous reason for correctly affirming a judgment held immaterial on an application to the supreme court for a writ of error. Aspley v. Hawkins, 99 T. 380, 89 S. W. 972.

The supreme court held not required to consider whether an entire charge in a civil action was correct. Ross v. Moskowitz, 100 T. 434, 100 S. W. 768.

Questions not presented by the application for a writ of error will not be considered. Galveston & S. A. R. Co. v. Riggs, 101 T. 633, 105 S. W. 564.

Objections to the instructions not made in the application for a writ of error to review the judgment of the court of civil appeals affirming the judgment will not be considered. Cleverger v. Elount, 103 T. 27, 125 S. W. 529.

On error to the court of civil appeals, the supreme court cannot review a matter not made a ground in applying for the writ. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 103 T. 504, 121 S. W. 292, 131 S. W. 400.

The supreme court, on certified questions from the court of civil appeals, is limited to the precise matters involved in the questions. State v. Duke, 104 T. 365, 137 S. W. 654, 138 S. W. 285.

The opinion of the supreme court on certified questions will relate solely to the very question presented. Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 425, 138 S. W. 506.

Assignment of errors, and points presented or decided in lower court.—Error of trial court in favor of appellant, not complained of in court of civil appeals, held no ground for reversal on appeal to the supreme court by appellee. Clevon v. Clemons, 92 T. 66, 46 S. W. 996.

Where the error is not fundamental, it will not be considered by the supreme court unless assigned in the court of civil appeals. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Gurlay, 92 T. 229, 47 S. W. 513.

Where the pleadings and evidence show a party not entitled to recover in the lower court, error in entering judgment for such party may be first urged in the supreme court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chenault, 92 T. 501, 49 S. W. 1035.

The supreme court will reverse a judgment based on an illegal contract which is contrary to public policy, though its illegality was not questioned in the trial court. Pasteur Vaccine Co. v. Burke, 22 C. A. 228, 54 S. W. 894.

Judgment will not be reversed on the facts, on reversal of judgment for defendant, where the court of civil appeals declined to pass on the amount of damages. Long v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 94 T. 53, 57 S. W. 902.

780
Writ of error to court of appeals, on affirmation of a judgment without considering the merits, gives supreme court jurisdiction over whole case, and it may be affirmed on its merits, whether assignment of error was necessary or not. Wilson v. Johnson, 54 T. 272, 60 S. W. 242.

The supreme court can only review action of the court of civil appeals on points properly presented to it. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 54 T. 518, 62 S. W. 1056.

An assignment of error presented to the supreme court on a writ of error held to differ from that presented to the court of civil appeals, and that the action of the latter court was not reversed by the former, was not considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Shelton, 56 T. 201, 72 S. W. 165.

The question of insufficiency of evidence not being raised in the court of civil appeals, it cannot be considered by the supreme court. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank, 96 T. 496, 74 S. W. 21.

On appeal from court of civil appeals, plaintiff in error is confined to the questions raised in that court. Collum v. Sanger Bros., 98 T. 162, 83 S. W. 184.

Where a finding of damages was not complained of at the trial or in the court of civil appeals, the supreme court, on rendering judgment for plaintiff, could not increase such damages, or award damages accruing since the trial. Peden v. Greshaw, 95 T. 246, 84 S. W. 362.

Where a judgment was reversed by the court of civil appeals on a jurisdictional question, other assignments of error would not be reviewed on a writ of error issued by the supreme court until they had been determined by the court of civil appeals. Eastin & Knox v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 99 T. 654, 92 S. W. 838.

Assignments of error objecting to improper remarks of counsel and to the denial of a new trial can only be reviewed by the supreme court after they have been considered by the court of civil appeals. Parks v. San Antonio Tracton Co., 100 T. 222, 94 S. W. 331.

The supreme court held not authorized to pass on an assignment of error raising the sufficiency of evidence where the court of civil appeals did not pass on the assignment. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

In an action for injuries sustained by being struck by a car in defendant's railroad yard, a proposition following an assignment of error in the court of civil appeals held different from the proposition supporting the assignment in the supreme court, so that the assignment cannot be considered in that court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Briscoe, 102 T. 505, 119 S. W. 844.

An assignment of error which the court of civil appeals declined to consider held under the facts to be considered as overruled on writ of error in the supreme court. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Kennedy, 103 T. 297, 126 S. W. 1110.

The supreme court, on writ of error to the court of civil appeals, will not consider assignments of error not raised in the motion for rehearing in the court of civil appeals. Knox v. McElroy, 103 T. 257, 127 S. W. 785.

Assignments of error to rulings of court of civil appeals not affecting the judgment appealed from will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Jones, 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 523.

An assignment of error, not made in the court of civil appeals, or presenting a different ground from that made there, will not be considered in the supreme court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell, 104 T. 632, 143 S. W. 1147.

Issues of fact.—In habeas corpus and mandamus proceedings, see notes under Art. 1296.

The admission of illegal evidence, when the case is tried by the court, does not require a reversal if there is competent evidence to support the judgment. Melton v. Cobb, 21 T. 536; Smith v. Hughes, 23 T. 248; Beatty v. Whitaker, 23 T. 526; Dignan v. Shields, 57 T. 233; McCrady v. McRae, 54 T. 206; Lindsey v. Jaffray, 55 T. 629; Hensley v. B. S. F. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 719; Fowler v. Chapman, 1 App. C. C. § 865; Grace v. Koch, 1 App. C. C. § 1062; McGaughhey v. Meek, 1 App. C. C. § 1195; Franklin v. Hardie, 1 App. C. C. § 1212; Wade v. Buford, 1 App. C. C. § 1356.

The admission of illegal testimony which could not have influenced the verdict to the prejudice of the party complaining is not a material error. Dalley v. Starr, 26 T. 555. And so, where cumulative evidence has been improperly admitted when the matter has been otherwise proven. Stansell v. Cleveland, 64 T. 609. And the exclusion of legal evidence of like character is an immaterial error. Nicholson v. Horton, 23 T. 477.

When each party has established his case by evidence, and the verdict thereon for either party would not be set aside, the admission of the slightest illegal testimony which might have possibly influenced the result, over objections properly made and reserved, will not be considered. Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 399; Patton v. Gregory, 21 T. 513; Smith v. Hughes, 23 T. 249; Dignowitty v. Alexander, 25 T. 162; Hunter v. Hubbard, 26 T. 537; Dalley v. Starr, 26 T. 562; Sacra v. Stewart, 32 T. 285; Evans v. Pigg, 28 T. 586; Burnham v. Walker, 1 App. C. C. § 903.

If, on the trial of a cause before the judge without the intervention of a jury, illegal evidence is admitted over objections thereto which, if considered, may have improperly influenced the judgment, in the absence of something in the record showing that such evidence was not considered, its admission is error for which the judgment may be reversed. Wagoner v. Ruply, 69 T. 700, 7 S. W. 80.

Where a fact is not disputed, or is well established by competent testimony, the admission of incompetent testimony, which is immaterial and which could not have had any improper influence upon the jury, is no cause for reversal. Railway Co. v. Moody, 71 T. 614, 9 S. W. 465; Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.

When the evidence, though conflicting, is sufficient to sustain the judgment, it will not be reversed on appeal. De Cordova v. Bahn, 74 T. 643, 12 S. W. 845.

Where a case is reversed and remanded on the ground that the facts proved did not entitle plaintiff to a judgment, writ of error will not lie. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rior-

Findings by the court of civil appeals as to the locality of lines of surveys and whether surveys are adjoining or are detached, are findings of fact. Such decision cannot be fact, to which there is conflicting evidence, cannot be passed upon, when question of fact has not been determined by court of appeals. Mann v. Dublin Cotton-Oil Co., 92 T.

377, 48 S. W. 567.

When the court of civil appeals rules that the judgment of the trial court is not sustained by the evidence, the supreme court cannot reverse its action, because it is on a question of fact, but where it goes further and holds that there is not any evidence for the jury, the supreme court can review its ruling, but only to the extent of determining the question of law whether there is any evidence. Fifth Nat. Bank of San Antonio v.

The supreme court cannot enter judgment upon a disputed issue of fact. Leary v.
People's Building, Loan & Savings Association, 93 T. 1, 51 S. W. 302, 836.

Where an issue upon which a party requests an affirmation was not submitted to the jury, and the facts do not justify a finding that such defense was sustained, the supreme court will not grant the request. Bithen v. Bonner, 93 T. 141, 53 S. W. 1016.

If there is any evidence to sustain a finding of fact affirmed by the appellate court, it cannot be disturbed. Hanrick v. Gurley, 93 T. 458, 54 S. W. 347.

That the verdict does not present a reasonable solution of disputed questions of fact does not authorize interference with findings supported by evidence. Kelley v. Ward, 94
T. 289, 60 S. W. 311.

Where the lower court has refused to find on a certain issue, a judgment otherwise unsupported cannot be affirmed on evidence sufficient to support it, if there had been an affirmative finding on such issue; the evidence being conflicting. Travis v. Hall, 99 T.

A finding of fact by a trial judge held conclusive on the supreme court. Waggoner v. Tinney, 102 T. 284, 116 S. W. 1166.
In the absence of error in the charge, or in any ruling of the trial court, as to an issue submitted to the jury, its finding cannot be disturbed by the supreme court on appeal from an affirmance of the judgment. Bowman v. Skagling, 102 T. 485, 118 S. W. 296.

The supreme court, in deciding on appeal an issue, must take the view of the evidence most favorable to the verdict. Davidson v. Ryle, 103 T. 203, 124 S. W. 616, 125 S. W. 851.
A verdict on conflicting evidence is conclusive on the supreme court on writ of error to review a judgment of the court of appeal affirming a judgment rendered on the verdict. Honaker v. Jones, 105 T. 239, 132 S. W. 550, 156 S. W. 4.

While the supreme court will not review the evidence to determine the truth of the facts found by the trial judge, where such facts depend upon the preponderance of the evidence, it will review the legal sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a judgment, and, for that purpose will look to all the evidence. Gainesville Water Co. v. City of Gainesville, 103 T. 234, 128 S. W. 370. In reviewing a personal injury case wherein judgment for plaintiff was affirmed, held that the supreme court must assume the account of plaintiff's witnesses as to how the accident occurred is true. Stanford Oil Mill Co. v. Barnes, 103 T. 469, 128 S. W. 256.

The decision of the court of civil appeals that a sale by an agent had not been ratified is a decision on a question of fact binding on the supreme court, but a decision that the evidence, in the absence of such ratification, as a question of law, which the supreme court may review. Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 132 S. W. 701.

So far as certified questions involve conclusions on facts stated, it is not the supreme court's province to answer. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Day (Sup.) 138 S. W. 423, 134 L. R. A. (N. S.) 111.
A verdict supported by testimony and rendered under correct instructions and affirmed by the court of civil appeals, is conclusive on the supreme court on writ of error. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithdeal, 104 T. 265, 138 S. W. 1049.

The supreme court on a writ of error cannot reverse a finding of fact sustained by competent evidence, as contrary to the evidence, where, disregarding all adverse testimony, there is evidence on which honestly desiring to determine the question might disagree. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 137 S. W. 1117.

The supreme court is not bound to search the record for evidence to sustain a finding. Hopkins v. Cain, 105 T. 591, 143 S. W. 1145.

A verdict sustained by sufficient evidence will not be disturbed by the supreme court on review. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Horne (Sup.) 145 S. W. 1186.

In an action for the death of a switchman, there being evidence from which defendant's negligence might have been inferred, the supreme court was without authority to review a verdict for plaintiff. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Boone (Sup.) 145 S. W. 533.

On writ of error to review a judgment of a court of civil appeals on error from a judgment of a district court, the supreme court may look to the transcript as to any facts not passed upon by the court of civil appeals. Beck v. Texas Co. (Sup.) 145 S. W. 285.

On error to review a judgment of the court of appeals in a personal injury action, the supreme court has jurisdiction to consider a question whether there is any evidence in the record to warrant a finding upon a particular issue.

Where the supreme court cannot say that orders of the state railroad commission prescribing a system of bookkeeping are unreasonable as a matter of law, it cannot determine the matter as one of fact. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Sup.) 150 S. W. 878.

The supreme court on writ of error to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals has no power to determine facts, but may determine, as a question of law, whether there is sufficient evidence, or any evidence, to establish the cause of action. Guist v. Galveston Tribune (Sup.) 152 S. W. 167.

Questions of law.—Where the existence of a homestead is found as a conclusion of law, not as the legal effect of the facts from which the conclusion was drawn will be determined on appeal. West End Town Co. v. Grigg, 32 T. 461, 56 S. W. 49.

As far as statutes affect the contest of a local option election, held, the supreme court will put its own construction thereon, instead of following that of the court of criminal appeals. Griffin v. Tucker, 102 T. 420, 118 S. W. 635.

Discretion of court.—A reversal for alleged impropriety of argument of counsel is largely in discretion of court on appeal and such discretion will not be reviewed by the supreme court. Smith v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. of Texas, 104 T. 171, 133 S. W. 1041, 135 S. W. 1147.

Art. 1547. [968] [1039] Briefs filed.—When any cause or suit may be taken to the supreme court by writ of error, the briefs and arguments filed in the courts of civil appeals shall be submitted to the supreme court; and, in addition thereto, the attorney for either party may file

JUDGMENT OF THE COURT
Article 1550. [974] [1047]. Judgments in open court; opinions in writing.—In all cases decided by the supreme court, the judgment or decree of the court shall be pronounced in open court; and the opinion of the court shall be reduced to writing in those cases which the court, in its discretion, may deem of sufficient importance to be reported, and such opinions shall be recorded by the clerk of the court in a book kept by him for that purpose. [Act Nov. 10, 1866, p. 134. P. D. 6417.]

Effect of Denial.—Denial of writ, where application shows jurisdiction of supreme court, is in effect a decision that decision of court of civil appeals is correct; and ordinarily no opinion in writing is filed. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 55 T. 448, 21 S. W. 1634.

Reply.—Where defendant in error files an answer or reply to a petition for a writ of error by the supreme court that court may finally pass upon the matter. Cooksey v. Jordan, 104 T. 618, 143 S. W. 141.

Stare decisis.—As to the doctrine of stare decisis, see Storrie v. Cortes, 90 T. 283, 38 S. W. 154, 25 L. R. A. 688.

Principle of stare decisis held to apply to decision as to effect of defective record of deed as notice. Dean v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 57.

Decision of supreme court construing boundaries of land grant, not conclusive in another action between different parties involving boundaries of same grant, will be followed. Birdseye v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 965.

Where the supreme court has decided certain questions relating to certain property, such decision becomes res adjudicata as to such questions, when raised in a subsequent action differing between parties on the same facts and respecting the same land. O'Rourke v. Clopper, 22 C. A. 277, 54 S. W. 930.

Where a law has been declared constitutional, the question becomes stare decisis, and governs in subsequent actions. Bogard v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 494.

Where by the terms of the law of a state, an action may not be commenced after the law has been re-enacted in the same words and such construction has become a rule of property. Hall v. White, 94 T. 455, 61 S. W. 355.

The grant of error by the supreme court because in its opinion the evidence was not sufficient, held not a decision, so as to be binding on the court of civil appeals. Higgins v. City of Waco, 40 C. A. 569, 50 S. W. 657.

The opinion of a court on a point not in issue is not an authority. American Surety Co. of New York v. San Antonio Loan & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 387.

A former decision in the supreme court constitutes the law of the case on retrial as to the questions considered and those necessarily involved therein. Colorado Salt Co. v. San Jacinto Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 522.

The valuation adjudications held usually confined to the issue directly involved, and the enunciation of the legal principles by which it is determined. Young v. State Bank of Marshall, 54 C. A. 206, 117 S. W. 476.

Relying on a supreme court opinion as holding void an entire penal statute held no defense, where the court subsequently holds that it did not so rule in the case relied on. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. State, 56 C. A. 121, 120 S. W. 1078.

A judicial opinion should be construed in the light of the particular facts upon which it is based. Hamill v. Samuel, 104 T. 46, 133 S. W. 413.

A point raised on motion in the nature of a bill of review to set aside judgments will not be considered as open, where it has been repeatedly passed upon before by appellate courts. Hanrick v. Hanrick (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1093.

The following is the place of contracting, the decisions of the courts of a state where a contract was made, construing its statutes are binding when the same questions are raised in other states where it is attempted to enforce the contract. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1028.

Where a number of words appears to a given construction of a statute, it will follow such construction, and any change must be made by the Legislature. Morris v. State, 64 Cr. R. 498, 142 S. W. 786.

A decision of the supreme court construing a new statute before it has been construed by the court of criminal appeals will be followed where the question may as well come before the supreme court as the court of criminal appeals. Redman v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 670.

Where a statement of facts was made in violation of all the rules applicable thereto, the fact that the court considered it is not a precedent for the consideration of similar statements in other cases. Tucker v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 190.

The supreme court will not examine the wisdom or policy of a rule of decision which has been adhered to for more than half a century. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Sup.) 150 S. W. 1156.

The rulings in a decided case against one insurance company are decisive of the same questions in the same facts in a companion case by the same plaintiff against another insurance company. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 288.

Decisions of federal court.—A decision of the United States court, reversing the decision of a state court holding a land grant void, does not prevent a state court, on a retrial, from holding the grant void on grounds which the United States supreme court refused to consider. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State, 24 C. A. 117, 56 S. W. 328.

In case of conflict between decisions of the federal courts and a decision of the supreme court as to what constitutes intrastate commerce and interstate commerce foreign conclusion on the state courts. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

Where there is a conflict between decisions of the supreme court of the United States and that of the state supreme court upon a question of domestic policy, the latter governs the courts of the state. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 635.

When no federal questions are involved, the supreme court of Texas will prefer to follow the state court decisions to those of the federal courts. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Klaer (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 883.

The court of criminal appeals is bound by the decisions of the United States supreme court in determining whether a negro was denied any right on account of race, color, etc., by the manner of selecting the grand jury. Jackson v. State, 63 Cr. R. 351, 139 S. W. 1166.

A decision of the supreme court of the United States upon a question as to which this court has concurrent jurisdiction is superior and will be followed by this court. People v. Con. (Civ. Sup.) 157 Con. S. W. 745.

The decision of a question of law on a former appeal, on which judgment declaring the rights of the parties was not rendered, is not binding on second appeal. Magnolia Park Co. v. Tinsley, 96 T. 364, 73 S. W. 5.

Art. 1551. [975] [1049] Judgment on affirmance or rendition, etc.—Whenever the supreme court, on the trial of a case brought from any court of civil appeals, shall affirm the judgment or decree of such court, or when said court shall proceed to render such judgment or decree as should have been rendered by the court of civil appeals, and such judgment shall be for the same or a greater amount, or of the same nature as rendered in the court below, said supreme court shall render judgment against plaintiff in error and his sureties on his bond, a copy of which shall always accompany the transcript of the record. [Acts 1892, p. 19. Acts 1907, S. S., p. 467.]

Remittitur.—Supreme court cannot accept remittitur during pendency of application for writ of error. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York v. Allbone, 90 T. 660, 40 S. W. 399.

In court of civil appeals.—See notes under Arts. 1630, 1631.

Art. 1552. [975] [1049] If judgment reversed, may remand to court of civil appeals or district court.—If the judgment of a court of civil appeals shall be reversed, the supreme court may remand the case to the court of civil appeals from which it came for another trial, or the district court, as to the supreme court may seem proper. [Id.]

Remand to court of civil appeals.—Where the court of civil appeals failed to determine whether certain objections justified a new trial, and such objections were insisted on on a writ of error to the supreme court, the case will be remanded to the court of civil appeals, with directions to pass on such questions. Parks v. San Antonio Traction Co. 152 T. 222, 94 S. W. 331.

The opinion of the court of civil appeals indicating a reversal, while the judgment entered being one of affirmance, held, that application for writ of error would be returned to such court for correction of any error in entry of judgment. Moore v. Rogers (Sup.) 55 S. W. 590.

Where the court of civil appeals erroneously reversed a judgment upon the sufficiency of supporting evidence, the supreme court will upon a writ of error under this article as amended by Acts 30th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 15, reverse and remand the cause to the court of civil appeals. Wininger v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry., 102 T. 50, 142 S. W. 1156.
Remand for new trial.—Where the court of civil appeals has reversed a judgment and error, it has entered judgment for appellant, the supreme court will remand the case for a new trial. Burgess v. Western Union Tel. Co., 93 T. 125, 46 S. W. 794. On reversing a judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment, the reversal by the supreme court being on a conclusion of law, held not necessary to remand the case for a new trial. Fondexter v. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co., 101 T. 222, 107 S. W. 42.

Where there is no evidence to sustain judgment for plaintiff, it will be reversed and remanded without remand for new trial. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vallejo, 102 T. 70, 113 S. W. 4, 115 S. W. 25. Where it is obvious that other testimony of a material character is available, the court on reversing a judgment held required to remand the case. Pinberg v. Gilbert, 104 T. 659, 141 S. W. 82.

Where the court of civil appeals reverses a judgment and renders judgment for insufficiency of the evidence in law to justify a recovery, the supreme court reversing the ruling because in its opinion the evidence supports the recovery will remand the cause for a new trial. Guiati v. Galveston Tribune (Sup.) 152 S. W. 167.

Art. 1553. [972] [1043] No reversal or dismissal for want of form.—There shall be no reversal or dismissal for want of form; provided, that the requirements of the law and the rules of the court be sufficiently complied with in presenting the case to enable the court to determine the same upon its merits. In each case, the supreme court shall affirm the judgment, reverse and render the judgment which the courts of civil appeals ought to have rendered, or reverse the judgment and remand the case to the lower court, if it shall appear that the justice of the case demands another trial. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Correction of form of judgment.—Judgment on reversal reformed, on rehearing, by setting aside so much thereof as reversed a judgment for a party against whom no personal judgment was sought, and who recovered judgment below. Cotton v. Rand, 93 T. 7, 63 S. W. 343.

The supreme court in the exercise of its supervising jurisdiction has authority to correct the form of the judgment of the trial court on a writ of error. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills (Sup.) 152 S. W. 629.

Correction of verdict.—The error in a verdict, under article 6670, subd. 2, held subject to correction in the appellate court. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stibbling, 99 T. 315, 89 S. W. 963.

Rendering final judgment.—It is the duty of the supreme court to enter such judgment as a final judgment is entitled to upon the finding of the court of civil appeals on the question of the liability of the defendant in the trial court. Crawford v. Railway Co., 89 T. 85, 33 S. W. 534.

Where the action is on a note and an open account, and the only reversible error consists in the recovery on the account, it is proper, where the appellee abandons his right to remand and requests judgment on the pleadings, to render judgment for the amount of the note after deducting payments made. Coverdill v. Seymour (Sup.) 57 S. W. 535.

Where a building and loan association pleaded a second contract as purging the original of usury, the court, on reversing a judgment for plaintiff in an action to cancel the loan, will not render judgment for defendant, but will reverse the case. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Jones, 94 T. 752, 82 S. W. 741.

Where a writ of error is granted after a reversal and remanding by the court of civil appeals, the supreme court, on agreeing with the judgment of the court of civil appeals, renders final judgment in accordance with the opinion of such court. Golschewski v. Summerville, 105 C. A. 261, 85 S. W. 1.

The facts furnishing no ground for a difference of opinion as to the rights of the parties held that, on reversal of judgment, judgment will be rendered. Haynes v. Estate, 100 T. 426, 433, 100 S. W. 913, 915; Pena v. Same, 100 T. 433, 100 S. W. 915; Benavides v. Same, Id.; Garza v. Same, Id.; Cuellar v. Same, Id.; Flores v. Same, 105 T. 433, 100 S. W. 916.

Where it appears that the cause has been fully developed in the lower court, there being no fact necessary to the determination of the rights of the parties which needs to be ascertained, it is the duty of the supreme court on appeal, if it reverse the judgment of the trial court, to enter such judgment as should have been entered by that court. Krause v. City of El Paso, 101 T. 311, 106 S. W. 121, 130 Am. St. Rep. 531, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 582.

In sequestration proceedings to secure possession of property, a disposition made by the judgment of this court held proper under the circumstances. Cobb v. Johnson, 101 T. 440, 108 S. W. 811.

The supreme court will not render judgment for insufficiency of the evidence if it is proof that the case has not been fully developed at trial. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Robinson, 104 T. 482, 140 S. W. 434.

The supreme court, on writ of error, held authorized to reverse the judgment of the court of civil appeals, and affirm the judgment of the trial court. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills (Sup.) 148 S. W. 926.

Where the court of civil appeals finds the evidence of plaintiff to be true but insufficient in law to sustain judgment for him, and reverses and renders judgment, the supreme court, of the opinion that the evidence sustains the judgment of the trial court, must reverse the court of civil appeals and render judgment. Guiati v. Galveston Tribune (Sup.) 152 S. W. 167.

Reversal as to co-parties.—When the justice of a case will be reached by reversing as to one defendant and affirming as to another, it may be done. Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 221, 6 S. W. 167.
Where the rights of a defendant not appealing, but joined as appellee, are affected by a dismissal on appeal, a new trial will be ordered as between him and plaintiff. Ramirez v. Smith, 94 Tex. 184, 59 S. W. 288.

The fact that in trespass to try title a sequestration has been granted after impleading of defendant's warrantor held no ground for remanding the cause as between other parties. Com. v. Belt, 101 Tex. 1, 11 S. W. 1148.

Reversal of judgment against plaintiff on appeal taken by him alone held not to carry with it a reversal of a distinct judgment against intervener. M. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Crow, 78 Tex. 356, 88 S. W. 861.

An error will not be held harmless, unless it affirmatively appears so from the record. R. G. U. Co. v. Johnson, 91 Tex. 569, 44 S. W. 316; Demurrer to petition. Bingham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co., 100 Tex. 192, 97 S. W. 656, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 658.

Refusal to dismiss a writ of error. Summerville v. King, 98 Tex. 332, 83 S. W. 680.

Costs.—When a judgment appealed from can properly be reformed and rendered, and the appellant could, upon proper notice, have had the judgment corrected in the court below, and thus have rendered an appeal unnecessary, he will be taxed with the costs of appeal in addition to the costs adjudged against him below. Helm v. Wester, 69 Tex. 143, 6 S. W. 429.

Art. 1554. [976] [1050] When judgment shall become final.—The judgment of the supreme court shall be final at the expiration of fifteen days from the rendition thereof when no motion for rehearing has been filed. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Acts 1892, p. 19. Acts 1901, p. 122.]

Art. 1555. [976] [1050] Mandate to issue, when.—Upon the rendition of final judgment, the clerk of the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, upon payment of costs, shall issue the mandate in the case. [Id.]

Art. 1556. [948] [1054] Same subject.—The clerk of the supreme court shall not deliver the mandate of said court until all costs of said court and of the court of civil appeals shall have been paid; subject, however, to the provisions of the next succeeding article. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Execution for costs.—Under a judgment of the supreme court that appellants recover of appellee all costs expended in its behalf, execution can issue from the supreme court for costs of appeal incurred in that court; while the costs of the transcript and all other costs of appeal are collected under execution issued from the district court. Bonner v. Wiggins, 54 T. 149. But see arts. 1556, 1568, 1634, 1635, 1647.

An execution for costs is properly issued in name of the party recovering costs. It should not be issued in name of the officers entitled to the costs. Smith v. Perkins, 31 T. Ld. 186, 18 S. W. 895, 29 Am. St. Rep. 794.

Art. 1557. [976] [1050] Affidavit of inability to pay or secure costs.—If the party against whom the costs are adjudged by the supreme court or the court of civil appeals, shall make affidavit of his inability to pay the costs, or give security therefor, he may apply to the supreme court, or the court of civil appeals, as the case may be, for an order to require the clerk of the court to issue the mandate in the cause; which motion shall be sustained, unless the clerk of the court, or a party to the record, shall controvert the truth of such affidavit and satisfy the court that such motion should not be granted. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Acts 1901, p. 122.]

Seal.—The jurat of the clerk to the affidavit of inability to pay cost or secure same cannot be considered unless attested by the seal. Missouri Fac. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Sup.) 83 S. W. 1019.

Art. 1558. [976] [1050] Mandate to issue to what court.—All mandates from the said court shall issue to the court in which the original judgment was rendered. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Id. p. 123.]

Mandate.—On writ of error to the supreme court to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals, and the entry of final disposition of the cause as to certain of the parties should issue directly to the trial court. Cobb v. Robertson, 59 T. 133, 87 S. W. 1148.

Art. 1559. No mandate to be taken out after twelve months, in case of reversal and remand; certificate and dismissal.—In cases which are, by the supreme court, or courts of civil appeals, reversed and remanded, no mandate shall be taken out of either of said courts and filed in the court wherein said cause originated, unless such mandate shall be so taken out within the period of twelve months after the rendition of final judgment of the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, or the overruling of a motion for rehearing. And if any cause is reversed and remanded by the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, and if the mandate is not taken out within twelve months as hereinbefore provided, then, upon the filing in the court below of a certificate of the clerk of the supreme court, or court of civil appeals, that no mandate has been taken out, the case shall be dismissed from the docket of said lower court. [Id. p. 123.]

Construed.—Act 1905, requiring the mandate in reversed and remanded cases to be filed in a party's hand to apply to a judgment rendered in 1894, on which no mandate had been filed up to 1903. Aspley v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 339.

Mandatory.—Where a final judgment was rendered by the court of appeals, and a clerical error in the entry afterwards corrected, the date of the original judgment was the time from which to compute the right to have mandate issued. Lee v. British & American Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 775.

The broad declaration that "no mandate shall be taken out, etc.," with the proviso that the act shall apply only to cases which are reversed and remanded, is equivalent to saying that no mandate shall be issued in any cause in which the judgment has been reversed and the cause remanded, after the expiration of the prescribed time. As under other provisions, either party is allowed to take out the mandate no impossible condition is imposed. Scales v. Marshall, 96 T. 140, 70 S. W. 946.

The law is mandatory that the mandate shall not issue after twelve months in which the judgment is reversed and the cause remanded and it is made the duty of the trial court to dismiss the cause from the docket upon a certificate showing that the mandate was not issued in twelve months. Watson v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 985; Watson v. Mirikle (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 986.

Time of taking effect.—This law did not take effect until ninety days after the adjournment of the legislature (of 1901), and the limitation began to run from the time when the law took effect. Id.

Art. 1560. [976] [1050] Mandate recalled where judgment set aside.—If, for any cause, the supreme court or court of civil appeals should set aside its judgment, after the mandate has been issued, the clerk of the court shall at once notify the party to whom the mandate was directed to return it at once. [Acts 1897, p. 200. Id. p. 123.]
CHAPTER TEN

REHEARING

Art. 1561. Motion for, when and how made. Any party desiring a rehearing of any matter determined by said court may, within fifteen days after the date of entry of the judgment or decision of the court, file with the clerk of said court his motion in writing for a rehearing thereof, in which motion the grounds relied upon for the rehearing shall be distinctly specified, and the name and residence of the counsel of the opposing party if known, and if not known, then the name and residence of the opposing party as shown in the record; provided, that should the court adjourn within less time than fifteen days after the rendition of the judgment, it may make such rules and regulations in reference to the filing of the motion as to it may seem best for the promotion of the interest of all the parties concerned. [Act May 2, 1874, p. 216, sec. 2. P. D. 6463q.]

Application.—An immaterial difference between the facts as found by the court of appeals and as stated by the supreme court held not ground for rehearing. City of San Antonio v. Grandjean, 91 T. 438, 44 S. W. 476.

The above article does not apply to a refusal of the supreme court to grant a writ of error. Hines v. Morse, 92 T. 194, 47 S. W. 516.

The supreme court will grant a rehearing asked on the ground that defendants were led to believe that discussion of a point on which the case was decided was unnecessary. West End Town Co. v. Grigg (Sup.) 56 S. W. 747.

Statement of facts.—Fact of introduction of deed, omitted from statement of facts, held not presentable to supreme court on motion for rehearing, notwithstanding agreement of counsel and certificate of trial judge. Williamson v. Work, 33 C. A. 369, 77 S. W. 576.

Art. 1562. Notice to opposing party or attorney. Upon the filing of such motion with the clerk of said court, he shall make a certified copy of such motion and transmit the same by mail to the sheriff or any constable of the county in which the attorney, or opposing party, as the case may be, is alleged in said motion to reside, together with a precept commanding him to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in such precept. [Act May 2, 1874, p. 216, sec. 4. P. D. 6463r.]

Art. 1563. Service and return of officer. Upon the receipt of such precept and copy of motion by the officer, it shall be his duty to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in said precept, if found in his county, and to return said precept to the court, by mail, stating thereon at what time, and to whom, he delivered the copy of the motion, or that the party named in the precept is not to be found in his county, as the case may be. [Id. P. D. 6463p.]

Art. 1564. Service on one of several parties. Service of said motion on any one of several parties or their attorneys to a cause shall be sufficient service on all.

Art. 1565. When motion heard. At any time, after five days from the return of such precept served, it shall be lawful for said supreme court to hear and determine such motion for rehearing, and not sooner. [Id. P. D. 6463p.]
CHAPTER ELEVEN
EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

Article 1566. [982] [1056] Process, how tested, directed and executed.—All writs and process issuing from the supreme court shall bear the test of the chief justice or presiding judge of said court, and be under the seal of said court and signed by the clerk thereof, and may be directed to the sheriff or any constable of any county in the state, and shall be by such officer executed according to the demand thereof, and returned to the court from which they emanated; and whenever such writs or process shall not be executed, the clerk of the said court is hereby authorized and required to issue another like process or writ, upon the application of the party suing out the former writ or process to the same or any other county. [Acts 1892, p. 19.]

Article 1567. [983] [1057] Judgment enforced, how.—Upon the rendition by the supreme court of any such judgment or decree as is contemplated by article 1551, it shall not be necessary for the lower court from which the cause was removed to make any further order or decree therein, but the clerk of said lower court, on receipt of the mandate of the supreme court or court of civil appeals, shall proceed to issue execution thereon as in other cases. [Id.]

Mandate to lower court.—When a case has been finally determined in the appellate court, the only jurisdiction which the inferior court can properly exercise over it is to enforce and give effect to the mandate of the appellate court. Burck v. Burroughs, 64 T. 446.

And in like manner execution can be issued against the sureties on the appeal bond on the judgment rendered against them in the appellate court. Blair v. Sanborn, 82 T. 686, 18 S. W. 358.

Upon the return of a mandate affirming a money judgment, the execution should recite the fact of the rendition of the former judgment, the appeal therefrom, and the rendition of the judgment of affirmance, upon which the execution should be based. Irvin v. Ferguson, 83 T. 491, 18 S. W. 820.

Article 1568. [984] [1058] Execution issued, when.—If the costs have not been paid at the end of fifteen days from the date of judgment or from the overruling of a motion for rehearing, the said clerk may issue an execution for the costs of the supreme court and the court of civil appeals, specifying the amount of each, and attaching to said execution a correct list of all costs accruing in each of said courts. Said execution shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county from which the cause was removed, or to any county in which the person or persons, liable under such execution, or either of them, may have property. It shall be the duty of every sheriff or constable receiving such execution to execute and return the same under the same rules, regulations and liabilities as provided for executions from the district court. [Acts 1892, p. 23.]

See Railway Co. v. Hume (Sup.) 38 S. W. 863; Baker v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 141.

Article 1569. [985] [1059] Execution returnable, when.—All executions for costs of the supreme court, as authorized by law, shall be returned by the sheriff or constable to whom they are directed, within four months from the date thereof. [Act March 9, 1875, p. 70, sec. 2.]

Article 1570. [986] [1060] Officer failing to make return; remedy by motion.—In case any officer shall fail or refuse to make such return with the amount of such costs, if he has collected the same within the time prescribed herein, or shall make a false or fraudulent return of any such execution, the clerk of said supreme court may issue citation returnable forthwith to such officer to appear before the said supreme court, and show cause, if any he can, why he has not collected and returned such costs and execution; and failing to show cause, said court may enter judgment against such officer and the sureties on his official bond for twice the amount of said costs, together with the cost of such proceeding. [Id.]

Art. 1571. [986] [1060] Money due clerk of court of civil appeals to be paid by clerk of supreme court; remedy by motion.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court, when he shall receive any money due the clerk of any court of civil appeals, to pay the same over to such clerk of the courts of civil appeals; and, if he refuses to do so upon demand, the clerk of the said courts of civil appeals may file in the supreme court a motion against the said clerk so failing; and, upon ten days' notice given to him, the said supreme court may enter judgment against said clerk of the supreme court and the sureties on his official bond for double the amount of the costs so collected by him and due to said clerk of the courts of civil appeals. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWELVE
REPORTER TO THE SUPREME COURT

Art. 1572. Appointment and removal of. —The judges of the supreme court, after their election to each term of office, shall appoint some person or persons learned in the law, being a licensed attorney, to report the decisions of the supreme court, and of the courts of civil appeals, who shall be removable at the pleasure of the court, and who shall be paid for the services required three thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly on the certificate of the chief justice; provided, however, that he may be allowed such additional compensation for reporting the decisions of the courts of civil appeals as the supreme court may deem just. [Acts 1882, p. 71.]

Art. 1573. Stationery, how furnished. —The reporter shall be furnished by the state printing board with the necessary stationery for the performance of the duties imposed by the provisions hereof. [Id.]

Art. 1574. Records and manuscript; duties of reporter. —The reporter shall obtain from the clerks of the courts the records of cases to be reported, with the briefs and opinions in such cases as soon as such cases are finally disposed of and the opinions are recorded, which shall be returned after the report thereof is completed. He shall, without delay, under the direction of the court, prepare such decisions, with appropriate syllabus, and statements when necessary, for publication in book form, and shall, from time to time, deliver the same to the secretary of state for the board of public printing as hereinafter provided. The secretary of state shall receipt for the same and deliver to the expert printer appointed by the board of public printing for publication. [Id.]

Art. 1575. Court to designate the cases to be reported. —The supreme court shall designate, by orders or otherwise, the cases to be reported; and only such cases as are designated shall be reported and
Art. 1576. [963] Duties of printing board.—As fast as the board of public printing shall receive through the secretary of state the manuscript copy of reported cases for the reporter, said board shall cause the same to be printed, with proper index, tables of cases cited, and of cases reported, at the printing office at the deaf and dumb asylum of Texas, and have one thousand copies bound of each volume of reports. The index, tables of cases cited, and of cases reported shall be prepared by the reporter. The expert printer appointed by the printing board shall, after revising the printing, deliver a revise as the work progresses to the reporter, who shall correct and return to said expert. [Id.]

Art. 1577. [964] Requisites of volume.—The decisions of said courts shall be printed and bound. Each volume shall not contain less than seven hundred pages nor more than eight hundred pages. Each page shall be twenty-six ems pica wide and forty-six ems pica long. The type used shall be long primer and minion of the same size used in volume twenty-three, Wallace's United States supreme court reports. The lines shall be leaded with not thicker than eight to pica leads. The paper, presswork and binding shall be of the same style and at least equal quality in every respect with the volumes of Moore & Walker's reports heretofore published. The volumes containing the supreme court decisions shall be styled "The Texas Reports," and shall be so styled on the title page and back, and the volumes shall be numbered. The name of the reporter may be printed on the back of each volume. Each volume shall be copyrighted in the name of the reporter, who shall immediately on delivery of the edition transfer and assign the same to the state. It shall be electrotyped, and the plates shall be owned by the state and preserved by the secretary of state. [Id.]

Art. 1578. [965] Sale of reports by secretary of state.—When printed and bound, the reports shall be delivered to the secretary of state, who shall sell single copies for two dollars, exclusive of postage or express charges; and he shall also, for the same price, sell single copies of any former volume of reports for either of said courts heretofore published under the state's copyright and now owned by the state. The secretary of state shall deliver to the state treasurer the proceeds of all sales so made by him, of which and of his operations hereunder and of the transactions of the said board hereunder he shall make a full statement and showing in his biennial report. [Id.]

Art. 1579. [966] Reports, how printed.—Should the expert printer, whose duty it is to supervise and have promptly executed the printing, binding and delivering of the reports to the secretary of state, fail to have the work executed with promptness and in accordance with the provisions hereof, he shall be removed from his trust and another appointed; and whenever the board of public printing shall ascertain that the work of printing and binding the reports can be done more speedily, better and more economically by contract, or that ample material and means to carry out the provisions hereof are not at their control, they shall at once let the printing and binding of the reports out by contract, requiring security for the performance of the work, and the delivery to the state of the electrotype plates. No copies of reports shall be furnished to any county except upon payment made by such county to the secretary of state, as in sale to private parties. The secretary of state may transmit advance sheets of the reports as the publishing progress' on receiving two dollars for the volume, the purchaser to have the right on returning all the forms of the volume to the secretary of state to have the same bound without further expense, on his paying the expense of transmitting the same to and from the state department. TITLE 32
COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

CHAPTER ONE
JUDGES OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Article 1580. [987] One chief and two associate justices.—Each of the courts of civil appeals now or hereafter organized in this state shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, and the concur- rence of two justices shall be necessary to the decision of a case. [Acts of 1892, S. S., p. 25.]

Art. 1581. [988] Elected alternately, how; term of office.—The chief justice and associate justices of each of the courts of civil appeals shall be elected by the qualified voters of their respective districts, composed of the counties returnable to the several courts, at a general elec- tion. Upon their qualification, after the first election after the creation of any court of civil appeals in this state, the justices thereof shall draw lots for the terms of office; and those drawing number one shall hold their offices for the term of two years; those drawing number two shall hold their offices for a term of four years, and those drawing number three shall hold their offices for the term of six years from the date of their election and until their successors are elected and qualified. Each of said offices shall be filled by election at the next general election at which terms as aforesaid would expire; and the person elected shall thereafter hold his office for six years and until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall receive each an annual salary of thirty-five hun- dred dollars, and no more. [Id.]

Art. 1582. [989] Qualifications of judges.—No person shall be eligible to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the courts of civil appeals, unless he be at the time of his election a citizen of the Unit- ed States and of this state and a resident of the district for which he is elected, and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years and shall have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court in this state, or such lawyer and judge together, at least seven years. [Id.]

Art. 1583. [990] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice or associate justice of any court of civil appeals the governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for state officers; and, at such general election, the vacancy for the unexp-ired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the dis- trict composed of counties returnable to said court. [Id.]

Art. 1584. [1021] Disqualification of judges.—No judge of the courts of civil appeals shall sit in any cause wherein he may be inter- ested in the question to be determined, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity within the third degree, or where he shall have been of counsel in the cause; and where the court, or any two of its members, shall thus be disqualified to hear and determine any cause or causes in said courts, that fact shall be certified to the governor, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons, learned in the law, for the trial and determination of said cause or causes. [Id.]

Disqualification.—In a suit to cancel the bonded indebtedness of a city for which a special tax has been levied, a judge owning taxable property in such city has a direct pecuniary interest in the result, and is not competent to sit as a judge. City of Austin v. Naille, 55 T. 534, 22 S. W. 669, 960.

A taxpayer in a city who is not an inhabitant of the city is not disqualified to sit in a case against the city which does not directly involve a tax. City of Dallas v. Peacock, 89 T. 58, 33 S. W. 220; Clark v. Taylor County, 3 App. C. C. § 201.

CHAPTER TWO

TERMS OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art. 1585. Terms of court.—The terms of the courts of civil appeals, in and for the several supreme judicial districts in the state of Texas, shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25. Acts 1897, p. 132.]

Explanatory.—For division of the state into supreme judicial districts, see Title "Apportionment," art. 29.

See Art. 1586, subds. 6, 7, and 8, for provisions as to terms in sixth, seventh, and eighth districts.

Art. 1586. [993] Places where courts of civil appeals shall be held. —The courts of civil appeals shall be held at the following places, respectively:

1. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the first supreme judicial district, in the city of Galveston, in the county of Galveston.
2. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the second supreme judicial district, in the city of Fort Worth, in the county of Tarrant.
3. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the third supreme judicial district, in the city of Austin, in the county of Travis.
4. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the fourth supreme judicial district, in the city of San Antonio, in the county of Bexar.
5. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the fifth supreme judicial district, in the city of Dallas, in the county of Dallas. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25.]
6. One of the courts of civil appeals shall be held in the sixth supreme judicial district, in the city of Texarkana, in the county of Bowie; provided, that if said court is located at Texarkana, the citizens thereof will furnish, provide, and equip a suitable room or rooms for said court and the members thereof, and the necessary law library therefor, without cost or expense to the state. [Acts 1907, p. 324, sec. 3.]

The court of civil appeals of the sixth supreme judicial district shall hold its sessions at the city of Texarkana, in the county of Bowie, and its terms shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to repeal or otherwise affect the provisions of chapter 174, page 324, Acts of the Thirtieth Legislature creating the sixth supreme judicial district of Texas, except in so far as this Act may change the counties composing said district. [Acts 1911, p. 269, sec. 1, part of subd. 6, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1895, art. 21.]

7. The court of civil appeals for the seventh supreme judicial district shall hold its sessions in the city of Amarillo, in the county of Potter, and its terms shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year; provided, however, said court may commence its first session immediately upon the appointment and qualification of the judges thereof, and the organization of the court, and provided further that if said court is located at Amarillo, the citizens thereof will furnish, provide and equip suitable room or rooms for said court and the members thereof, and the necessary law libraries therefor, without cost or expense to the state. [Id. sec. 3.]

8. The court of civil appeals for the eighth supreme judicial district shall hold its sessions in the city of El Paso, in the county of El Paso, and its terms shall commence on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue in session until the first Monday in July of each succeeding year; provided, however, said court may commence its first session immediately upon the appointment and qualification of the judges thereof, and the organization of the court, and provided further that if said court is located at El Paso the citizens thereof will furnish, provide and equip suitable room or rooms for said court and the members thereof and the necessary law libraries therefor, without cost or expense to the state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1587. [994a] Transfer of causes.—It shall be the duty of the supreme court to equalize, as nearly as practicable, the amount of business upon the dockets of the different courts of civil appeals, by directing the transfer of cases from such of said courts as may have the greater amount of business upon their dockets to those having a less amount of business upon their dockets; such transfers to be made as soon as practicable after the passage of this article, and thereafter at least once each year, in such manner and under such rules and regulations as the supreme court shall provide. And said courts of civil appeals, to which such cases shall be transferred, shall have jurisdiction of all such cases transferred without regard to the districts in which cases were originally tried and returnable on appeal; provided, that cases transferred from any court of civil appeals shall be taken from cases appealed from the counties nearest to the place where the court to which the cases are transferred is held. [Acts 1895, p. 79. Acts 1893, p. 171. Acts 1909, p. 88.]

Transfer of causes in general.—Where the supreme court transfers a case from one court of civil appeals to another under this article the court to which the case has been transferred has only jurisdiction of that appellate proceeding, and, when the case is finished, any further appellate proceeding must go to the district to which it belongs. Smith v. City National Bank of Wichita Falls (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 537.

This law does not apply to a pending motion to affirm a judgment on certificate. Taber v. Chapman, 52 T. 265, 47 S. W. 710.

Under this article cases from a county in which a court of civil appeals is actually sitting may have to be transferred to a court of civil appeals sitting in another county where the county from which they are appealed is the nearest county to the place where the court to which they are transferred is held. In re Transfer of Causes between Courts of Civil Appeals, 193 T. 127, 124 S. W. 622.

Art. 1588. [995] Quorum, what, and court adjourned, when.—A majority of the judges of the several courts of civil appeals shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The said courts may adjourn from day to day or for such time as may be deemed proper by the judges thereof. But, if a sufficient number of the judges shall not be present at the first or any day of the term, any judge of the court, or the sheriff attending the same, may adjourn the court from time to time until a quorum shall be in attendance, but the court shall not be finally adjourned for the term. [Acts 1895, p. 79.]

CHAPTER THREE
JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art. 1589. Jurisdiction defined.—The appellate jurisdiction of the courts of civil appeals shall extend to civil cases within the limits of their respective districts:
1. Of which the district courts have original or appellate jurisdiction.
2. Of which the county court has original jurisdiction.
3. Of which the county court has appellate jurisdiction, when the judgment, or amount in controversy, or the judgment rendered, shall exceed one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest and costs. [Id.]

Jurisdiction in General.—See also, notes under Art. 2673.

Appeals from district courts.—The court has jurisdiction of an appeal from the district court of a civil action of which it had jurisdiction, in which a judgment for $50 was rendered. Cadwallader v. Luce, 10 C. A. 1, 29 S. W. 666.

The court of civil appeals has jurisdiction of an appeal from a district court illegally constituted to determine the constitutionality of its organization. Whitener v. Belknap, 89 T. 273, 34 S. W. 594.

The court of civil appeals has jurisdiction in a case which originates in the justice court and appealed to the district court (jurisdiction of county court having been abolished) where the amount involved is less than $100. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cooper, 96 T. 482, 73 S. W. 947, overruling judgment of court of civil appeals (72 S. W. 409).

Appeals from county courts.—When an appeal from the county court has been perfected, it will not be divested by an act which takes away civil jurisdiction from the county court and transfers the civil case to the district court. Pfeffer v. Wilderman, 1 App. C. C. § 188.

Amount in controversy.—See also, notes under Art. 2078.

In cases of foreclosure of mortgages and liens upon specific property, it has been held that not only the debt, but the security given for its payment, determines the jurisdiction. It is held that this principle does not apply to the landlord’s lien. Lawson v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 1158; Yealair v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 84; Bohannon v. Roensch, 13 C. A. 218, 35 S. W. 872.
The appellate court has no jurisdiction of a case appealed from the county court if the amount in controversy is insufficient of $100. Ray v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 18 C. A. 655, 45 S. W. 479; Green v. Warren, 18 C. A. 548, 45 S. W. 608.

The court of civil appeals cannot entertain jurisdiction of an appeal where the amount in controversy is not stated. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Board of Equalization of City of Austin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 757.

The “amount in controversy” as used in the statute means the sum of money or the value of the thing originally sued for in the justice court (when the action was commenced in the same court), and not the amount of the judgment recovered in the county court on appeal from the justice court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cunnigan, 95 T. 495, 67 S. W. 896.

The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal in a case which originated in a justice court, where the amount in controversy and the judgment is less than $100. Tucker v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 1059.

Whether the action was within the jurisdiction of a justice is to be determined, not by the amount of the judgment, but by the sum of the items of damages set out in the body thereof, aggregating more than that amount. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Sup.) 125 S. W. 582.

Under this article it is not permissible to add to the amount claimed the amount claimed in reconvention, so as to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction. Walker v. De Villeneuve (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 281.

Under this article an appeal will not lie to the court of civil appeals from a judgment of the county court for plaintiff for $15.50 in an action to recover $23.50. Record Co. v. Greer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1183.

Where, in an action in justice's court and appealed to the county court, plaintiff demanded judgment for less than $100, and defendant filed a counter demand for $200, and the county court rendered judgment against plaintiff on his cause of action and in favor of defendant on the counterclaim for $178, the “amount in controversy,” must be determined from the counterclaim, and that defendant remitted the judgment in his favor will not defeat the jurisdiction. Barnes v. Bryce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 340.

Under this article an appeal cannot be taken from a judgment of such court, in an action upon a judgment rendered in a county court, where the amount claimed is but $55. L. W. Baume v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 301.

Under this article the court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment of the county court, dismissing an appeal from a justice's judgment for defendant in an action involving $50. Mask v. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 299.

Dismissal for lack of Jurisdiction.—An appeal will be dismissed, where the record fails to show an appeal from a justice court, and the amount in controversy is insufficient to confer original jurisdiction on the court below. Gregory v. Gulf & L. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 272, 45 S. W. 888.

Where the record does not show how the county court acquired jurisdiction of an action involving an amount less than its original jurisdiction, an appeal will be dismissed. Allbritton v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1068.

When judgment was obtained in justice court for less than $100, and on appeal to the county court judgment for same amount was rendered and appeal taken to court of civil appeals, the appeal was dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Lacy v. O'Reilly (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 641.

Where the appellate court is without jurisdiction, an appeal should be dismissed. Maund v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 228.

The record on appeal must affirmatively show the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals, and hence where plaintiff obtained judgment in two suits in a justice's court against the defendant, and appealed to the county court, where the two cases were consolidated and judgment rendered for the defendant, and the record on appeal of the consolidated cases showed the proceedings in one of the cases before the justice, which involved only $30, and did not show the amount in issue in the other case, the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals was not shown, since, as to the $30 case, it was not appealable beyond the county court, and the other case, for aught shown, may have been beyond the justice's jurisdiction, in which case the county court had no jurisdiction and the court of civil appeals could have none, and hence the appeal must be dismissed. Wilder v. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 697.

Where the amount in controversy is insufficient to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction, the appeal will be dismissed. Pope v. Prewitt (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 855.

It is improper to dismiss an appeal from a county court after appeal from a justice court because the transcript fails to show an appeal bond or affidavit perfecting the appeal to the county court, without first calling appellant's attention to the fact that the record fails to disclose jurisdiction. John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1122.

Art. 1590. Judgment conclusive, when.—The judgments of the courts of civil appeals shall be conclusive in all cases on the facts of the case. [ld.]

Review of facts.—See, also, notes under Art. 1639.

The court of civil appeals has no right to conclusively determine the facts of any case that was tried in the court below by a jury on conflicting evidence. The judgment of the appellate court cannot be substituted in place of that of the jury upon the facts. Choate v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 406, 44 S. W. 69.

On writ of error to review a judgment of a court of civil appeals on error from a judgment of a district court, the supreme court may look to the transcript as to any facts not passed upon by the court of civil appeals. Beck v. Texas Co. (Sup.) 148 S. W. 296.

Judgment conclusive on facts.—When there is a conflict of evidence, the findings of fact by the court of civil appeals is conclusive. Bauman v. Jaffray, 26 S. W. 394, 86 T. 67.

The court of civil appeals reversing a judgment as contrary to the evidence is conclusive on the facts of the case on error to the supreme court. Insurance Co. v. Hayward, 58 T. 315, 39 S. W. 1949, 31 S. W. 567.

Where evidence is conflicting, finding by court of civil appeals that it is sufficient to sustain the verdict is conclusive. Needham Piano & Organ Co. v. Hollingsworth, 91 T. 49, 40 S. W. 787.

A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals which is supported by the evidence is conclusive on the supreme court on appeal, but not on the trial court on a retrial. Hunter v. Eastham, 92 T. 618, 69 S. W. 66.

In an action for wrongful death, findings of the trial court and the court of civil appeals, sustained by the evidence, held conclusive on appeal. San Antonio & A. F. R. Co. v. Mortink, 101 T. 189, 102 S. W. 445.

A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals, sustained by evidence, if believed, is conclusive on the supreme court on writ of error. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 593, 141 S. W. 518.

A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals is conclusive on the supreme court.

Sabine Tram Co. v. Texarkana & P. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 143 S. W. 143.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, where the court of civil appeals found as a fact that there was negligence on the part of the company, the supreme court cannot review such finding, if from the record it cannot determine as a matter of law that there was no evidence of negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cates (Sup.) 148 S. W. 281.

The supreme court must accept the facts as found by the court of civil appeals, and its construction of the evidence, if it be fairly susceptible of two constructions. Schwingle v. Keifer (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1132.

Art. 1591. [996] Same subject.—The judgments of the courts of civil appeals shall be conclusive on the law and fact, nor shall a writ of error be allowed thereto from the supreme court in the following cases, to-wit:

1. Any civil case appealed from a county court or from a district court, when, under the constitution, a county court would have had original or appellate jurisdiction to try it, except in probate matters and in cases involving the revenue laws of the state or the validity of a statute.

2. All cases of boundary.

3. All cases of slander.

4. All cases of divorce.

5. All cases of contested elections of every character, other than for state officers, except where the validity of the statute is attacked by the decision.

6. The judgments of said courts of civil appeals shall be final in all appeals from interlocutory orders appointing receivers or trustees or such other interlocutory appeals as may be allowed by law.

7. The judgment of said court shall be final in all other cases as to law and facts, except where appellate jurisdiction is given to the supreme court and not made final in said courts of civil appeals.

Finality of judgment in general.—The joining in one action of two distinct controversies not held to give the supreme court appellate jurisdiction over one because of its jurisdiction over the other. Brown v. Cates, 99 T. 133, 57 S. W. 1149.

Where the judgments of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment below is conclusive upon the supreme court, unless the complaint against the ruling is based on some exception giving the supreme court jurisdiction. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Sup.) 150 S. W. 588.

Cases within county court's jurisdiction.—An action held within the jurisdiction of the county court, and that the decision of the court of civil appeals was final thereon. Smith v. Wilson, 91 T. 503, 44 S. W. 672.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to grant writ of error in case of judgment in district court for $1,000 exclusive of interest and costs where suit was brought for this amount, because suit could have been brought in county court. Wilson Hardware Co. v. DuFF, 95 T. 487, 55 S. W. 786.

Where the original petition claims an amount of more than $1,000, but in an amended petition the amount was reduced below this sum, the court of civil appeals having affirmed the judgment of trial court, a writ of error will lie to the supreme court. The word "case," as used in this article, means that made by the original petition and not the case as actually tried. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 100 T. 17, 98 S. W. 431, 432.
The supreme court has no jurisdiction to grant a writ of error in a case brought in the district court of which the county court also had jurisdiction. Long v. Green & Co., 100 T. 510, 101 S. W. 786.

Validity of statute.—A writ of error will not lie from a final judgment of the court of civil appeals involving the construction and application of a statute, but not its

The validity of a statute being involved, the supreme court has jurisdiction although the suit might have been brought in the county court. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Mahaffey, 98
T. 692, 54 S. W. 647.

The validity of a statute cannot be considered as involved in a case after the question has been decided in the supreme court and its validity sustained. City of San Antonio v. Tebin, 100 T. 589, 102 S. W. 404.

Jurisdiction is given to the supreme court over all questions of law in cases appealed from the county court to the court of civil appeals involving the validity of a statute.
The supreme court having acquired jurisdiction and passed on the validity of the statute

Cases of boundary.—The supreme court has no jurisdiction in a boundary case, though one of the parties attempts to prove his line by a judgment or other estoppel.

The judgment of the court of civil appeals is not conclusive of the case, if there is any other question involved except that of boundary. Cox v. Finks, 91 T. 318, 43 S. W. L.
Case held to be one of boundary, and not within the jurisdiction of the supreme court on writ of error. Id.

It is a boundary case where had there been no question of boundary there would have been no case. Davis v. McCabe (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 837.

The court of civil appeals in a boundary case is final, and a writ of error from the supreme court to review such decision will be dismissed. Wright v. Bell, 94 T. 573, 63 S. W. 623.

The statute denying jurisdiction to the supreme court over boundary cases held not to exclude its jurisdiction of an action on notes given for land and to foreclose a vendor's lien, in which a question of boundary is the sole issue of fact. Steward v. Coleman County, 95 T. 345, 67 S. W. 1016.

Libel.—The supreme court has jurisdiction on appeal in an action for libel. A. H.
Belo & Co. v. Smith, 91 T. 221, 42 S. W. 869.

Divorce cases.—The supreme court has no jurisdiction over divorce cases, although in such cases rights of property may have been adjudicated. Kellett v. Kellett, 94 T.
206, 59 S. W. 809.

Contested elections.—The judgment of the court of civil appeals is final in cases of contested elections of every character other than for state officers, except when the va-\ility of a statute is attacked by the decision. Kidd v. Rainey, 95 T. 556, 68 S. W. 607.

Interlocutory orders.—The judgment of the court of civil appeals on an appeal from an interlocutory order made by the district court appointing a receiver to take charge of property involved in a divorce suit, is final. Stone v. Stone, 18 C. A. 80, 43 S. W. 567.

Art. 1592. [997] May issue writs of mandamus, etc.—The said

Writs in aid of jurisdiction, in general.—The court of appeals had no authority to issue extraordinary writs except where it had acquired jurisdiction of the case by appeal or otherwise, and where such writs were necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. Lo-

Where on mandamus to review an adverse order, in a contest under Art. 2068, rela-tor's application and statement on the oral submission of his cause showed that a statement of facts made out by the stenographer was essential, and a statement in the answer that the notes of the trial had been lost and that the stenographer was now unable "to make proper statement was uncontroverted, an order to compel the stenographer to prepare a record for appeal would not be granted, since it would be unwarrantable, and the court could not command the performance of impossible things. Young v. Pearman
(Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 360.

Mandamus, and not certiorari, is the proper remedy to compel the clerk to perform his ministerial duty of preparing the transcript on appeal. Martin v. Irvin (Civ. App.)
147 S. W. 1164.

Injunction.—For subject of injunction in general, see Title 60.

An appellate court, having jurisdiction over an appeal perfected during the term of court at which it was rendered, can enforce its jurisdiction by injunction. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 24 A. 13, 56 S. W. 536.

injunction restraining an execution sale, the sheriff seized the property and advertised it

Certiorari held not to lie to bring up a record to the dismissal of garnishment proceedings. Sullivan v. King, 31 C. A. 432, 72 S. W. 207.

A party held not entitled to certiorari to bring up a paper which should have been, but was not, made part of the statement of facts. Cox v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 672.

A motion for a writ of certiorari to bring up certain papers on appeal denied on appellant's failure to show that the omission to include such papers in the transcript was not due to negligence. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pettigrew (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 239.

If a transcript on writ of error is incomplete, the proper remedy is by certiorari to perfect the transcript. Palmer v. Spandenberg, 49 C. A. 321, 108 S. W. 477.

Where the original statement of facts is in the hands of appellant or within his control, certiorari will not lie on his motion for the purpose of having the same sent to the appellate court; and, where appellant or the clerk of the trial court wrongfully withholds the statement of facts from appellant, certiorari does not furnish the proper remedy. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 123.

Certiorari granted to amplify the record in order to ascertain the fact of an issue raised for the first time on an application for rehearing. Saxton v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 78.

The court of civil appeals will not grant a rehearing or award the writ of certiorari to perfect insufficient record after the final disposition of the case when caused by negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Parker (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 942.

Where a transcript has been filed within the time allowed, and it is afterwards desired to make a substitution in it, a writ of certiorari may be obtained to perfect the record. Casey v. Bell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 478.

Under district court rules 13, 14, 84 (67 S. W. xxi, xxvi), held, that plaintiff's motion to perfect the record on appeal by requiring the transmission of the original answer must be denied. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Juricek (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 474.

Where an appeal has been dismissed for want of jurisdiction because of omissions in the record, certiorari held not to lie to supply the omissions. Collins & Jordan v. Killrell (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 814.

On rehearing where an issue in both courts as to whether a final judgment included a default judgment as to one of several defendants had been argued in both courts, a writ of certiorari will not be awarded to perfect the record to show that a default judgment has been entered nunc pro tunc. Danner v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 295.

Art. 1593. [998] May inquire into facts touching jurisdiction.—The said courts shall have power, upon affidavit or otherwise as by the courts may be thought proper, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of their jurisdiction. [Id.]

Cited, Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Parker, 104 T. 162, 135 S. W. 399.

Determination of jurisdiction.—In general.—A question affecting the jurisdiction of the appellate court may be raised at any stage of the proceedings. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall, 98 T. 450, 65 S. W. 786.

Facts touching jurisdiction.—In general.—The value of the property in controversy not appearing from the record in the case, affidavits were received and considered to ascertain the amount in controversy; and upon the facts stated in the affidavit the court retained the case. Fisher v. Bogarth, 2 App. C. C. § 121.

The court has power to inquire if conclusions of fact and bills of exception were filed in the trial court as shown by the record. Bradford v. Knowles, 11 C. A. 272, 33 S. W. 149.

Where a judgment paid in part pending appeal has been affirmed for the whole amount, the proceedings to enforce the credit must be instituted in the trial court; this article not authorizing proof of the credit by affidavit in the court of civil appeals. Land v. Iron City Nat. Bank of Llano (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 26.

Where the affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond made before a county judge does not show that it was made in the county of plaintiff's residence and the fact does not otherwise appear, the party making the affidavit can file in the court of civil appeals his affidavit stating that the first affidavit was made before the judge of the county of his residence and this will give the court jurisdiction. Claiborne v. Railroad Co., 21 C. A. 648, 63 S. W. 357.

This article restricts the power of the courts of civil appeals to inquire into matters of fact not appearing in the record, to such as affect their jurisdiction. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Mathen, 93 T. 129, 57 S. W. 947.

The appellate court can consider affidavits showing facts affecting its jurisdiction. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co., 99 T. 77, 87 S. W. 660.

810
Where the record does not show that attorneys who have an interest in the recovery in an action, a trial court is precluded under this article to compel the appellate court, or any court outside of the record to ascertain the fact. Marshall v. Smith (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 812.

Under this article where a motion to strike a transcript on appeal from the files, on the ground of a typographical error in the copy of the judgment, has attached to it a correct copy of the judgment, duly certified, the court will consider the record as amended to conform to the true copy, and not strike out the transcript. Tucker Produce Co. v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1001.

Where defendant's attorneys opposed defendant's motion to dismiss his appeal, made on the ground that the parties had settled the controversy, with a sworn answer alleging that the attorneys had acquired a two-thirds interest. Jurisdiction in defendant's counter claim, and that the assignment was filed with the papers in the case, the correctness of civil judgment under its inherent power, as well as under this article, should have ascertained the facts on the issue raised by the attorney's answer before dismissing the appeal. Seiter v. Marashall (Sup.) 147 S. W. 226.

Where the facts supporting a motion to dismiss an appeal affected the jurisdiction of the appellate court and could not have been put in issue in the trial court, they were properly presented by affidavits. Dixon v. Lynn (Sup.) 154 S. W. 656.

On motion to vacate a judgment of a court of civil appeals on the ground that it is void by reason of facts not apparent of record, the court may under this article determine such matters upon affidavit or otherwise. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 317.

This article does not authorize a resort to affidavits to determine the jurisdiction of the lower court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 882.

--- Matters relating to statement of facts.—Where a statement of facts is not filed in proper time, it will be stricken, though there are affidavits containing sufficient reasons for the failure to file. Keller v. Kettnet (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 967.

The affidavits in aid of that statement of facts, the question not being one relating to the jurisdiction of the court. Bath v. H. & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 994.

The appellate court will not accept an affidavit attempting to cure defect in record in regard to statement of facts. Defect should be cured in record below. The appellate court is confined to record as made by trial court, except as to matters of fact necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. Walker & Sona v. Allen, 42 C. A. 630, 95 S. W. 858.

The failure of the judge to make up and file a statement of facts in time required by law is not a jurisdictional question, where this article would apply and give the court of civil appeals power to review the matter as presented in the record. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 175.

This article cannot be made applicable to a motion and affidavit setting up that the trial judge failed to make up and file statement of facts, and the court intimates that an assignment based on the facts set up cannot be considered. Rush v. Thompson & Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 546.

This article does not authorize the court to hear and determine the sufficiency of an excuse for failure to file a statement of facts in the trial court within the prescribed time, since its jurisdiction is not dependent on the filing of a statement of facts. National Bank of Commerce v. Lone Star Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 663.

Facts apparent of record.—A recital in the order overruling a motion for a new trial, copied in the record, of the giving of notice of appeal cannot be contradicted by affidavits of the trial judge, deputy county clerk, and appellee's counsel; this article only referring to matters of fact not appearing in the record. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 633.

Art. 1594. [999] May punish for contempt.—The said courts shall have power to punish any person for a contempt of said court, according to the principles and usages of law in like cases, not to exceed one thousand dollars fine or imprisonment not exceeding twenty days. [Id.]

Contempt in general.—See notes under Art. 1798.

Art. 1595. [1000] May mandamus district courts.—The said courts, or any judge thereof, in vacation, may issue the writ of mandamus to compel a judge of the district court to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause, agreeably to the principles and usages of law, returnable on or before the first day of the next term or during the session of the same, or before any judge of the said court, as the nature of the case may require. [Id.]

For further provisions as to jurisdiction of courts of civil appeals, see Chapter 29, Title 37.

Extent of power conferred.—Mandamus will not lie to compel a county judge to proceed to trial and judgment. Fannin County v. Hightower, 9 C. A. 293, 29 S. W. 157.

The court of civil appeals can issue writ of mandamus compelling the judge of the district court to retry a cause in which a new trial has been granted. Levy v. Gill (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 84.

A court of civil appeals has power only to issue writs of mandamus and such other writs as may be necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of the court except that the court or any judge thereof in vacation may issue the writ of mandamus to compel a judge of the district court to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause. Wetz v. Thompson, 36 C. A. 359, 63 S. W. 1051.

The power of the court of civil appeals to issue mandamus depends on the question whether or not the judge of the district court has refused to proceed with the trial of the cause. It can not control the discretion of the court. Haliburton v. Martin, 38 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 677.

The only power conferred by this article is the power to compel a district judge to proceed to trial and judgment in a cause when he improperly refuses. And when it appears that the case is still pending in the district court on a motion for new trial, and it is not shown that a ruling has ever been requested on it; and from aught that appears the district court is ready and willing to act upon it at any time, mandamus to compel the judge to proceed will be refused. The court of civil appeals cannot by mandamus in any way control the discretion of a district court in rendering judgment. Dunn v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 242, 88 S. W. 553.

This article confers original jurisdiction to issue such writ, not affected by the cause, in which the writ is applied, not being appealable to the court of civil appeals. Anderson v. Ashe (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1044.

CHAPTER FOUR
CLERKS OF THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Art. 1596. Clerk; appointment, qualification and bond.—There shall be appointed for each of the courts of civil appeals one clerk, who shall reside at the place of holding court, which appointment shall be made by the court, or the judges thereof, and shall be entered of record in the proceedings of the court; and each person so appointed shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution before some officer authorized to administer oaths generally, and shall enter into a bond, with two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, or any judge thereof, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and that he will correctly record the judgments, decrees, decisions and orders of said courts, and deliver over to his successor in office all records, minutes, books and papers and whatever belongs to his said office of clerk; which bond and oath shall, without delay, be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and shall not be void on the first recovery, but may be put in suit and prosecuted by any party injured, until the amount thereof is recovered. [Id.]

Art. 1597. Temporary appointment to fill vacancy, how and when made.—If, in vacation, the office of clerk may become vacant, the appointment shall be made by the chief justice and the associates of said courts, or by any one of said associates and chief justice; and the person so appointed shall give bond and take the oath as prescribed in the preceding article, the bond to be approved by any judge of the court; which bond and oath shall be deposited in the same manner as though the appointment had been made in term time, and may be prosecuted and put in suit in like manner; copies of said bond, certified under the hand of the secretary of state and the seal of state, shall be received in evidence in any court in the state, in the same manner as the original would be were it presented in court; and the said appointment shall continue until the next regular term of the said court, and until a regular appointment shall be made. [Id.]
Art. 1598. [1003] Term of office, and how removed.—The clerk of each of said courts shall hold his office for a term of two years from his appointment, but may be removed therefrom for neglect of duty or misconduct in office, by the courts of civil appeals, on motion of which the clerk against whom complaint is made shall have ten days' previous notice, specifying the particular charges of negligence or misconduct in office preferred; and in every such case the court shall determine both the law and the facts; and, whenever the necessity occurs, the court may appoint a clerk pro tempore. [Id.]

Art. 1599. [1004] Seal of court.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of each court of civil appeals to procure a seal for the use of the court, which shall have a star of five points, with the words: “Court of Civil Appeals of the State of Texas,” engraved thereon. [Id.]

Art. 1600. [1005] Duties as to records, transcripts, dockets, etc.—The clerks of said courts shall file and carefully preserve the transcripts of all records certified to said court, and all papers relative thereto, and shall docket all causes in the order in which they are filed. [Id.]

Art. 1601. [1006] To record judgments, etc., and to certify decisions to lower court.—The said clerk shall faithfully record the proceedings and decisions of said courts, and certify their judgments to the court from which the causes were brought. [Id.]

Art. 1602. [1007] Deputy clerks, appointment of, and fees.—The clerk of each court may appoint deputies, who, in the name of said clerk, may discharge all the duties required by law of said clerk, and said deputies may be required to give bonds, with sureties, to said clerk, for the faithful discharge of their duties; which deputies shall be paid out of the fees collected by the clerk, not to exceed twelve hundred dollars per annum to each deputy. [Id.]

Art. 1603. [1008] Shall be librarian, except, etc.—The clerk of each of said courts shall be librarian in charge of the libraries of said court, except the library at Austin, which shall be under the control of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1604. [1009] Library regulations.—It shall be the duty of such librarian to take charge of, and keep together in good order and make catalogues of, the books of such library, which shall be open to the public use, under such rules as may be prescribed by the courts for the safe keeping thereof; provided, the books shall not be removed from the library room, except by the judges of the courts. [Id.]

Art. 1605. [1010] Semi-annual report of costs collected.—The clerks of each of the courts of civil appeals shall, within ten days after the first day of January and July, make a report under oath to said courts showing the amount of costs collected by him during the preceding six months, and also the cases in which the same was collected, and the disposition made of such case. Such report shall be filed and recorded in the minutes of the court. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE

STENOGRAPHER

Article 1606. [1012] Court stenographer and salary.—Each court of civil appeals shall be authorized to appoint one stenographer, who shall be a typewriter, who shall discharge such duties as may be required by the court, shall be sworn to keep secret all matters which may come to his knowledge as such stenographer and typewriter, and who shall receive a salary of nine hundred dollars per annum, and shall give bond with two or more sureties in the sum of two thousand dollars, to be approved by the presiding judge of said court, payable to the state of Texas, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as such

Salary.—The comptroller is not authorized to draw his warrant to pay the salary of a court stenographer, when the legislature had made no appropriation to pay it.
Fickle v. Finley, 91 T. 481, 44 S. W. 450.

CHAPTER SIX

PROCEEDINGS IN CASES IN THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Article 1607. [1014] Case, how brought before the court for trial.
—In all cases of appeal or writ of error to the courts of civil appeals, the trial shall be on a statement of facts or agreed statement of the pleadings and proof as agreed upon by the parties or their attorneys, or the conclusions of law and fact, as the case may be, certified to by the judge of the court below; or should the parties fail to agree, then the judge of the court below shall certify the facts; or on a bill of exceptions to the opinion of the judge; or on a special verdict; or on an error in law, either assigned or apparent on the face of the record; and, in the absence of all these, the case shall be dismissed with costs alone, or with costs and damages, at the discretion of the court. And the court shall admit, as part of the record to be examined by them in the trial of a cause, every bill of exceptions not signed by the judge trying the cause below, upon its appearing to the satisfaction of the court that the facts are fairly stated therein; that said bill was prepared in accordance with the law governing the preparation of such bills, and that the judge trying the cause refused to sign the same; and the truth of any such bill of exceptions shall be determined by the court on the copies of the affidavits required by law to be made in such case, such copies to be contained in, and to form a part of the record transmitted to the court of civil appeals. [1d.]

Cited, Kearse v. State (Cr. App.) 151 S. W. 827.

Necessity of statement of facts or bill of exceptions.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 19.

Errors that can be reviewed.—In general.—It is the duty of the appellate tribunal in proper cases to pass on the jurisdiction of the trial court, whether or not the question is raised by the parties. Hamm v. Hutchins (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 872.

An issue not raised by the pleadings nor submitted to the jury below in an action to recover land held not reviewable on appeal. Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 228, 61 S. W.
541.

It is the purpose of this article to restrict the exercise of appellate jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals in reviewing cases on appeal or writ of error to the matters

The failure of the trial judge to make up and file a statement of facts in time required by law cannot be assigned as error so as to be considered by appellate court because it is not one of the subjects named in this article. 1d.

The action of a court of civil appeals on appeal or writ of error is confined to such matters as are made to appear of record by one of the methods stated in this article, and the court cannot consider a motion with accompanying affidavit setting up the failure of the trial judge to make up and file statement of facts in time. Rush v. Thompson & Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 546.

Errors apparent on face of record.—See, also, notes under Art. 1612.

A judgment founded on improper pleading is "error in law apparent on the face of the record," which the court on appeal should consider without an assignment of error, under this article. Holloway Reed Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 92 T. 187, 47 S. W. 96.
The court of civil appeals can consider a matter which involves an error of record, unless it is presented by assignment of error or not 14. The supreme court can not do this, but is confined to the grounds set up in the application for writ of error. Link v. City of Houston, 94 T. 378, 60 S. W. 665.

The courts of civil appeals may reverse a judgment for "error in law" either assigned or apparent upon the face of the record. Scanl & Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 754.

The error in allowing a broker commissions on the sale of land held apparent on the face of the record and reviewable, though raised for the first time on appeal. Hahn v. Kellogg (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 389.

There is some doubt as to what is meant by the words "apparent on the face of the record." The supreme court has said: "We incline to think it is intended to signify a prominent error, not fundamental in character, or one determining a question upon which the very right of the case depends." Adams v. Faircloth (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 507.

This article means, by "apparent on the face of the record," fundamental error which can be readily seen to go to the foundation of the action without looking into the record and considering the evidence, etc., to determine whether there is error: "apparent" meaning clear or manifest to the understanding, plain, evident, obvious. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 553, 124 S. W. 85.

In an action against a city to recover a balance due on a street paving contract an alleged error, in that, on the undisputed evidence, plaintiff could not recover on a ground, the determination of which would require an examination of almost the entire record, including the pleadings and evidence contained in a lengthy statement of facts, was apparent on the face of the record," within this article. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.

Under this article the error in rendering judgment upon an oral contract of insurance was held apparent if it was contended by the defendant that the contract was procured by fraud and the jury was instructed that the contract should be evidenced by a written policy to be thereafter issued, and which was in fact issued, can be considered, regardless of assignments, it being fundamental and apparent on the face of the record. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 630.

Error in sustaining a general demurrer to a petition can be reviewed on appeal without any bill of exceptions or assignment of error, where the judgment recites the ruling, the exception thereto, and the notice of appeal. Harbinson v. Cottle County (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 719.

Under this article and Art. 1612, requiring that errors at law not "apparent on the face of the record" be presented by timely assignments of error, the phrase quoted refers to such manifest error as when removed destroys the foundation of the judgment. Oar v. Davis (Sup.) 151 S. W. 794.

Art. 1608. [1015] Transcript filed, when.—In any appeal or writ of error as provided for in this chapter, the appellant or plaintiff in error shall file the transcript with the clerk of the courts of civil appeals within ninety days from the performance of the appeal or service of the writ of error; provided, that, for good cause, the court may permit the transcript to be thereafter filed upon such terms as it may prescribe.

Cited, Pitts v. Kane (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 338.

Filing transcript in general.—See, also, Art. 2105 et seq.

The evidence showing no sufficient excuse for not filing the transcript for appeal in time, it will not be allowed to be filed as an appeal. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 630.

A transcript on appeal held not jurisdictional, and a matter which the appellant might waive. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709; Same v. Lakeside Rice Mill Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 712.

Under this article and Art. 2108, and district and county court rule 100 (142 S. W. xxiv), it is simply the duty of the county clerk to prepare and deliver the transcript to the appellant, whose duty it is to file the same in the court of civil appeals, and mandamus will not lie to compel the clerk to transmit the transcript. In re Lawrence's Estate (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 701.

As against motion on appeal to affirm on certificate, on the ground that no transcript was filed on the appeal, one of the defendants having appealed, and another having petitioned for writ of error, the appeal bond, which under district and county court rule No. 96 (145 S. W. xxxiv) is an application for transcript, having been filed before the writ of error, the certificate of the clerk showing the transcript contains all the proceedings on the trial, and it being endorsed as applied for and delivered to S. & W., who are attorneys for appellant, the transcript will be considered as on the appeal, though the certificate shows it contains the proceedings on writ of error, and it has an indorsement of having been applied for by M., who is the attorney in the writ of error proceedings. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

When a transcript of the record of the court of civil appeal in the second district, the transcript in a cause which originated within its jurisdiction was filed in the court of the second district, the matter must be considered as if no transcript had been filed. Helfin v. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico (Sup.) 155 S. W. 188.

Time for filing—Transcript.—Rule 7, providing that the transcript in appeals from judgments in the courts of civil appeals shall be filed within twenty days after appeal is perfected, is not in conflict with this article. White v. Rowlett, 12 C. A. 378, 34 S. W. 161.

When the citation was defective, held that plaintiff in error was not in default in filing transcript so as to authorize affirmance on certificate. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 673.

The time for filing a transcript is fixed by law and the court cannot abridge this time. Williams v. Walker (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 630. If the clerk receives the transcript too late (after 30 days) it is his duty without filing it, to keep it in his office subject to the order of the person sending it or the disposition of the court. Dew v. Weekes (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 106.

The transcript appointing an order of appointment is filed by the defendant. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

The transcript is required to be filled in the court of civil appeals until after service of the transcript. Garney v. Memefee, 53 C. A. 490, 118 S. W. 1035.

Appellant need not file a transcript in the appellate court until the appeal is perfected by service of citation in error, or by waiver thereof, after which time he has 90 days to file such transcript. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 567.

Transcripts by the supreme court on error under the rules, and on motion by him to affirm the judgment, cannot be had till lapse of the 90 days after the perfecting of the writ of error; that is, 90 days after the filing of the petition and bond in the district court, given plaintiff in error by this article, in which to file the transcript. Simmang v. Smith (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 494.

A transcript upon writ of error cannot be filed after the filing of a motion to affirm on certificate; the appeal having been perfected upon the filing of an appeal bond. Pitts v. Kane (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 326.

Statement of facts.—See, also, Art. 2073 et seq.

Under this article and Art. 2074 authority is conferred upon court of civil appeals for good cause to extend the prescribed time for filing of either the record or statement of facts. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 172.

In a case where the last day for the filing of the transcript is by the Supreme Court on error, and the transcripts were filed, the court has held, that the rules of the Supreme Court prevail over the rules of the court of civil appeals. Ex parte Hunt (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1196.

Where a transcript of the record was originally filed in another court of civil appeals June 12, 1911, and after transfer was filed here August 9, 1911, and the statement of facts was not received by the clerk of this court until April 22, 1912, and was not filed until after submission and opinion rendered by this court, the failure was excusable, unless the question was ruled on by the court below. National Bank of Commerce v. Lone Star Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 663.

Under articles 2073, and in view of article 2070, requiring the statement of facts to accompany the transcript as a part of the record, the statement of facts being a part of the record whether in the transcript or not, may be filed with the transcript after the expiration of the 90-day period when the failure to file is excusable. Helfin v. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico (Sup.) 158 S. W. 180.

Excuse for failure to file in time.—Failure to file the transcript within the prescribed time shall not result from the negligence of the appellate. Williams v. Walker (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 556.

A delay of more than seven months in filing the transcript on account of engrossing business, is not sufficient excuse for not filing transcript sooner, though the opposing counsel does not object to such filing. Christensen v. Anderson, 24 C. A. 345, 68 S. W. 963.

This article does not authorize the filing of the transcript a month and a half after appellant got it, on a showing merely that would have been sufficient had he filed it when he got it, which was after the expiration of the 90 days. Faux v. Lamarre (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 439.

On a motion to file a transcript, it appeared that the appellant had until October 17, 1910, to file it, and, although it could have been filed before that date, it was held until October 13th, when the appellant sought to have inserted in it a purported bill of exceptions in lieu of the original, which had been lost, and, on the refusal of the clerk to file it, had filed a motion to substitute, and delayed action on the motion until after the time for filing had expired. Held, that the appellant failed to show good cause for his delay in filing his transcript, and hence the motion would be denied. Casey v. Bell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 478.

Agreement of parties, extending time for filing transcript, held to be good cause shown why a transcript was not filed within the statutory period, and to have the effect intended by the parties. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

Under code of civil appeals rules 55, 56, and 60 (142 C. W. xv, xvi), authorizing the withdrawal of the transcript for briefing, a retention of a transcript for that purpose was not sufficient excuse for failure to file the same within the time required. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stanford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1064.

Held, that the transcript was in the hands of one of appellant's attorneys for more than two months before it reached the clerk of the court of civil appeals, and, though he filed an affidavit to the effect that the delay subsequent to February 9, 1912, resulted from the serious illness of his wife, there was nothing to excuse the delay of a month, during which time the transcript might have been filed, held, that the facts did not justify an order permitting the filing of the transcript after time. id.

Agreement of parties.—A delay of seven months in filing transcript, under agreement being allowed after service of notice, is not sufficient excuse for not filing transcript within 90 days, as required by this article. Christensen v. Anderson, 24 C. A. 345, 68 S. W. 962.

By agreement of the appellate the transcript may be filed after the 90 days have expired, the time is not so long as to interfere with the orderly business of the court. Smalley v. Paine, 192 T. 394, 116 S. W. 39.
An appellant held to have unreasonably delayed filing the transcript under an agreement, or failure to do so within a reasonable time after expiration of the 60 days provided by statute. Stokes v. Wilmeth, 56 C. A. 497, 130 S. W. 948.

A motion between the parties, extending the time of filing the transcript beyond the 60 days allowed by statute, is, in effect, good cause shown why the transcript was not filed within the statutory period, and will be given the effect intended by the parties. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

Waiver of objection.—Laws 1907, c. 197, § 2, as amended by Gen. Laws 1909, c. 34, § 2, provides that any party in a suit wherein a temporary injunction may be granted, refused, or denied, provided that the transcript in such case shall be filed with the clerk of the court of civil appeals not later than 15 days after entry of such order. Held that, although ordinarily the time of filing transcripts was not jurisdictional as shown by this article, in view of the fact that no appeal was thereforo allowed at the discretion of the court, the natural result of filing transcripts was jurisdictional, and the failure to file could not be waived by the parties so as to give the appellate court jurisdiction. C. B. Livestock Co. v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 854.

A motion to dismiss on the ground of lateness in filing transcript held waived. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co., 144 S. W. 709; Same v. Lakeside Rice Mill Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 712.

Withdrawal of transcript.—After a case has been finally determined in the supreme court or court of civil appeals the transcript cannot be withdrawn from the clerk's office even with the consent of all parties connected with the proceeding. Hart v. West, 92 T. 416, 49 S. W. 361.

Art. 1609. [1025] New appeal bond allowed, when.—When there is a defect of substance or form in any appeal or writ of error bond, on motion to dismiss the same for such defect, the court may allow the same to be amended by filing in the said courts of civil appeals a new bond, on such terms as the court may prescribe. [Id.]

Defects in bond in general.—See, also, Art. 2907 et seq.

Affidavits were received to prove that an appeal bond was not filed within the time provided by law, but was fraudulently antedated (Harris v. Hopson, 5 T. 529); that at the time of the execution of the bond the obligee was dead (Dial v. Rector, 12 T. 39; Johnson v. Robeson, 27 T. 526); to show that the amount of the penalty and the condition in the appeal bond had been changed after it was filed in the court below, the bond at its date of its filing being in point of fact, blank, and the case was dismissed for want of a bond. Hart v. Mills, 31 T. 301.

Where judgment was against "M., sheriff," and his Hability, if any, was that of trespasser, held, that a writ of error would not be dismissed because the bond on error was made by M. individually. Morris v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 627.

Since the passage of this law a defective bond is sufficient to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction over the appeal, and where it has affirmed the judgment on certificate for failure to file the transcript, it should not set aside the judgment and dismiss the appeal on appellant's motion because of a defective bond. Hugo v. Seidel, 52 T. 414, 49 S. W. 369.

An appeal will be reinstated, which had been dismissed for an inadequacy appeal bond, when the bond is in due time made double. In the bond it is shown that a large part of the costs certified have been paid. Lange v. Fritzke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 583.

The jurisdiction of the appellate court can be made to attach by an appeal or writ of error or by both. Williams v. Tidwell, 48 T. 410; 11 Cl. W. 13.

The court of civil appeals cannot determine the solvency of a surety upon an appeal bond on motion to dismiss. Oliver v. Lone Star Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 595.

Under this article and article 2104, the court of civil appeals alone has jurisdiction to determine whether appellant procured the filing and approval of his appeal bond on his agreement to procure an additional surety, which he failed to do, and the clerk of the trial court may not refuse to make a transcript of the case on the ground that appellant failed to procure such surety. Dillard v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 152.

Filing new bond—In general.—See, also, Art. 2104.

This article applies to cases required to be transferred from the supreme court to the courts of civil appeals equally as to cases in which appeals or writs of error might be directly brought before those courts after their organization. National Bank v. National Bank, 86 S. W. 560, 22 S. W. 579.

Where by the amended bond the rights of parties to whom the original bond was not made payable may be adversely affected, such parties should have notice of such amendment. Id.

When no bond has been filed the jurisdiction of the court of appeals has not attached, and an amendment cannot be made. Converse v. Trapp (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 416.

In a case in which the appeal bond was defective, on motion for a rehearing the appellant was allowed to file a bond and the former judgment was re-entered. Giddings v. Odom Lucket Land & Live-Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 383.

A new bond must be filed in the court of civil appeals. A copy of the original appeal bond certified to by the district clerk is not sufficient. Evans v. Ashburn (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 998, 999.

This statute seems to allow the curing of defects of every character in appeal or writ of error bonds, and a new bond may be filed to supply the omission of the penalty in the first as well as any other defect. Williams v. Wiley, 96 T. 148, 71 S. W. 13, 14.

When the clerk has fixed the probable amount of the costs, and a bond in double this sum has been given, which is insufficient, the court of civil appeals cannot allow a new bond to be given. A new bond can only be given when the first one is found to contain a defect, which cannot be said of one which is in full compliance with the law. Horstman v. Little, 93 T. 322, 82 S. W. 650.

A defective appeal bond in the court of civil appeals may be amended by filing a new bond on such terms as the court may prescribe. Wandelohr v. Grayson Co. Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 185.

Where, in trespass to try title, an appeal bond is void because not running to warrantors cited in the case, held that the appellate court would permit a new bond to be filed, instead of dismissing the appeal. Appel v. Childress, 53 C. A. 607, 116 S. W. 129.

Where parties fail to execute a bond within the time required by Art. 2084, they are not entitled to the benefits of the statute authorizing the court of civil appeals to permit a party to file a new bond in lieu of a defective one. Estes v. Estes, 54 C. A. 561, 118 S. W. 174.

Under this article a court of civil appeals has power to permit the filing of a new appeal bond whether the defects in the bond first filed were defects of form or substance; and, when the court has exercised this power, a motion to dismiss on account of such defects will be overruled. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1015.

—— Time for filing.—See, also, Art. 2087.

An appeal will not be allowed after the time of appeal has expired. First Nat. Bank v. Preston Nat. Bank, 22 S. W. 1048, 24 S. W. 668, 3 C. A. 545.

The right to amend the bond should be promptly availed of, so as not to produce unreasonable delay. Cowperthwaite v. Fulton (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 588.

Affidavit in lieu of bond.—The statute allowing new appeal bonds to be filed is not applicable to affidavits in lieu of bond. Washington v. Haverty Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 832.

Waiver of defects.—See, also, notes under Art. 2087.

A judgment should not be set aside to entertain motion to dismiss an appeal, where, if it had been made before judgment, it could have been defeated by perfecting the record. Gilbough v. Stahl Bldg. Co., 91 T. 621, 45 S. W. 385.

The defect in an appeal bond payable in the alternative is waived by the obligee's failure to move to dismiss the appeal for six months and his agreement to continue the case until another term. Engle v. Rowan (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 757.

Failure to urge a waiver of a defect in an appeal bond to the county court, in such court, in opposition to the motion to dismiss, is not fatal on appeal to a higher court, where the facts constituting the waiver are of record. Id.

Art. 1610. [1016] Certificate of affirmation, and proceedings thereon.—In case the appellant or plaintiff in error shall fail to file a transcript of the record, as directed in this chapter, then it shall be lawful for the appellee or defendant in error to file with the clerk of said court a certificate of the clerk of the district or county court in which any such appeal or writ of error may have been taken, attested by the seal of his court, stating the time when such appeal was perfected or such citation was served; whereupon, it shall be the duty of the courts of civil appeals to affirm the judgment of the court below, unless good cause can be shown why such transcript was not filed by the appellant or plaintiff in error.

If a copy of the bond accompanies such certificate of the clerk of the district or county court, the judgment shall, in like manner, be affirmed against the sureties on such bond. [Id.]

Jurisdiction to affirm on certificate.—This and article 1611 seem to limit the power of the courts of civil appeals to affirm on certificate only to cases when the record on appeal has not been filed in the court of civil appeals within the time required by statute. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 599.

In order to confer jurisdiction on the court of civil appeals to affirm on certificate, it is necessary that the motion to affirm be accompanied by a transcript containing a copy of the judgment and appeal bond. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Anderson, 26 C. A. 618, 82 S. W. 307.

Writ of error held not served on defendant in error, necessary, under this article, to authorize affirmation of the judgment on certificate. McCloskey v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 450.

Record on motion to affirm on certificate held to affirmatively show that court of civil appeals had no jurisdiction. McCord-Collins Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 524.

Where a motion to affirm on certificate is not accompanied by a copy of the judgment, bail cannot be granted. Sloan v. McMullin (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 597.

The transcript not showing jurisdiction of the trial court, whose judgment was for a sum below its original jurisdiction, held, the judgment could not be affirmed, even on certificate. Id.
A court of civil appeals not having jurisdiction of an appeal, because the law, placing in it the judgment county in which the court was in form when the appeal was perfected, it has no jurisdiction to entertain a proceeding to affirm on certificate as provided by this article. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 145.

An appeal held not perfected until appellee, who was not served with citation on appeal, had appeared and filed a waiver in the cause; and hence that the court, on motion to affirm on certificate previously made, had no jurisdiction. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 367.

Where an appeal from a judgment against the sureties on a bond was perfected by giving of notice of appeal and a bond, as provided by this article, but the transcript was not filed in the appellate court within 90 days after perfecting of the appeal as required by this article, the certificate could on a motion for affirmance filed by the state affirm the judgment. Savage v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 584.

The court not having jurisdiction of an appeal or writ of error has none to affirm on certificate. Fryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

When the court has jurisdiction of civil appeals has jurisdiction to affirm a judgment on appellee's certificate of entry by the trial court of a final judgment for a given sum, an appeal from the judgment, and a failure to file the transcript in the court of civil appeals. DuAidige v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 166.

Affirmance on certificate in general.—Motion will not be sustained when the certificate fails to show service of the citation on defendant in error. Scarborough v. Grossbeck (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 687.

A judgment will not be affirmed on certificate on account of error in issuing a citation in error before the filing of the bond. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 679.

Request to affirm on certificate for failure to record in time denied. Anderson v. Waddell, State Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 583.

Motion to affirm on certificate is not a case upon the docket such as the supreme court is authorized to transfer from one court of civil appeals to another. Taber v. Chapman, 92 T. 263, 47 S. W. 710.

An appellant cannot abandon his appeal and defeat appellee's right to an affirmance on certificate. Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 102.

A judgment of affirmance on certificate held erroneous in including two unnecessary parties to the appeal bond. Wandelvorth v. Rainey, 106 T. 471, 100 S. W. 1158; Same v. Grant County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 89.

A properly certified copy of the judgment must accompany a motion to affirm on certificate. Thorn v. Lanier, 57 C. A. 67, 121 S. W. 715.

The motion of appellee to affirm an affirmance for failure of appellant to prepare the cause for submission, he must prepare the case for submission in accordance with court rule 42 (67 S. W. xvii). Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 491.

Under this article, where the transcript was filed in time, appellee was not entitled to a hearing on a certificate, though he appealed for want of prosecution, because appellant's briefs were filed later than they should have been under an agreement, and too late to give appellee a fair opportunity to brief the case. Santieben v. Richter (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 928.

Where an appeal from a judgment against the sureties on a bond was perfected by giving of notice of appeal and a bond, as provided by Art. 2084, but the transcript was not filed in the appellate court within 90 days after perfecting of the appeal as required by Art. 1608, the court could on a certificate of affirmance filed by the state affirm the judgment. Savage v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 584.

Where motion to affirm on certificate for absence of a transcript is overruled, but the court of its own motion strikes out the transcript for violations thereby of its rules, it will file transcript. Pryor v. Kruze (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

Time for filing certificate.—The appellant or defendant in error must file his certificate at the term of the court to which the appeal or writ of error is returnable. Laughlin v. Dabney, 24 S. W. 269, 86 T. 130; Pickett v. Mead (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 654.

Certification dismissed, but complaint filed within the time allowed plaintiff in error to file transcript. Moore v. Hitchler, 16 C. A. 44, 40 S. W. 197.

Case held not to authorize affirmation on certificate filed after the term at which the transcript should have been filed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 630.

Under this article the certificate must be filed at the term of the appellate court to which the appeal or writ of error is returnable. Thorn v. Lanier, 57 C. A. 67, 121 S. W. 715.

A motion to affirm on certificate under this article must be made at the term at which the appeal is made returnable. Holland v. Brown & McFarland (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1195.

Appellee's right to affirm upon certificate an appeal afterward abandoned by appellant upon using out a writ of error is only available if the motion to affirm is filed before the termination of the term of the court of civil appeals to which the appeal is returnable. Chambers v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 699.

A motion for affirmance on certificate was refused for deficiencies in the certificate, held not entitled, on motion for rehearing, to file amendments remediying the defect. Sloan v. McMillin (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 624.

Effect of subsequent writ of error.—The apppellant cannot defeat the right to an affirmance by using out a writ of error after he has failed to prosecute his appeal. David-

Effect of pendency of a second proceeding in error, where an appeal perfected on supersedeas bond has been abandoned, determined on application of defendant in error for affirmance on certificate. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Clancey, 91 T. 487, 44 S. W. 482.

A perfected appeal cannot be abandoned, and writ of error sued out after lapse of time for filing transcript, so as to prevent affirmance on certificate. Blackman v. Hart (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 346.

Where appellant fails to file transcript in time, appellee is entitled, under this article, to affirmance on certificate, notwithstanding appellant has brought error. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Ray, 19 C. A. 416, 47 S. W. 477.

The above article does not apply where appellee abandons his appeal and files his transcript under a writ of error within ninety days. In such a case the appellee is not entitled to have his judgment affirmed on certificate. Harrington v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 585.

A party can abandon his appeal with intention to sue out writ of error but he does so subject to the right of appellee to have the judgment affirmed on certificate. City of San Antonio v. Smith, 27 C. A. 327, 65 S. W. 41.

Where the court of civil appeals continues motion to affirm on certificate to enable appellant to perfect that record, but he instead prosecutes a writ of error, the motion to affirm will prevail. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 250.

Where there is a failure to file the transcript in the appellate court within the time (30 days) allowed by law, the appellee is entitled to an affirmance of the judgment on certificate, even though the case had been taken to the appellate court on writ of error. Welch v. Weiss, 99 T. 356, 90 S. W. 182; Wandelohr v. Grayson Co. Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 181.

The right to sue out a writ of error, after abandoning an appeal, is subject to appellee's right to an affirmance on certificate of the original appeal upon motion, though the transcript of the writ of error proceedings be filed before the filing of the motion to affirmance. Chambers v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 592.

Excuse for failure to file transcript in time.—Affirmance on certificate should be denied where appellee has acted with due diligence to perfect his appeal, and failing used reasonable dispatch in getting the record to the court on a writ of error. Anderson v. Waco State Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 552.

The right to an affirmance on certificate held not to depend on a good excuse for failing to file the transcript on an appeal that has been abandoned by resort to writ of error. Filhol v. Leon & H. Blum Land Co., 19 C. A. 688, 49 S. W. 569; Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 102.

Where appellant filed his appeal in the wrong district court of civil appeals, owing to the general impression that the governor had vetoed the act relating to the redistricting of the court of civil appeals, known as the "Single Bill," and the supreme court shared the impression, and the cause was transferred to the proper district motion to dismiss or affirm on certificate will be denied. Lester v. Riley (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 458.

Art. 1611. [1017] Transcript filed and cause heard after affirmance on certificate, when.—In all cases where the courts of civil appeals shall have affirmed the judgment of the court below, under the provisions of the preceding article, said court may, at any time within fifteen days after such affirmance, permit the transcript to be filed by the appellant or plaintiff in error, and the case to be tried on its merits; provided, that appellant or plaintiff in error shall show to the court good cause why the transcript was not filed by him in accordance with the provisions of article 1008, and shall also show to said court that he has given the appellee or defendant in error notice of his intentions to apply for such permission to file said transcript; and, in cases where the court shall adjourn within fifteen days after any judgment shall have been affirmed under the provisions of the next preceding article, the court may permit the appellant or plaintiff in error to file said transcript at such time as may be deemed proper, and have said cause tried on its merits; provided, said appellant or plaintiff in error shall show good cause why said transcript was not filed as herein directed, and shall show to the court that he has given the appellant or defendant in error notice of his intention to apply for permission to file said transcript. [Id.]

Setting aside affirmance on certificate.—The affirmance on certificate of a judgment against the principal and sureties on a writ of error bond will not be set aside on the tender of a transcript under a second writ. Hurley v. Lester (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 655.

An affirmance on certificate for failure to file the transcript should not be set aside and the appeal be dismissed on appellant's motion because of a defective bond. Hugo v. Seboth, 92 T. 414, 49 S. W. 308.

Excuse for failure to file transcript in time.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1008 and 1610.

Sureties on a bail bond perfected their appeal from a judgment of forfeiture, but did not file the transcript within 90 days therefrom. They lived 50 miles by rail from the Art. 1612. Assignments of error; requisites of.—The appellant or plaintiff in error shall in all cases file with the clerk of the court below all assignments of error, distinctly specifying the grounds on which he relies, before he takes the transcript of record from the clerk's office; provided, that where a motion for new trial has been filed that the assignments therein shall constitute the assignments of error and need not be repeated by the filing of the assignments of error, and provided further, that all errors not distinctly specified are waived, but an assignment shall be sufficient which directs the attention of the court to the error complained of. [Id. Acts 1913, p. 276, sec. 1, amending Art. 1612, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

1. Construction of statute.—Questions not presented by assignment of errors should not be decided upon in the courts of civil appeals, and will not be considered by the supreme court on application for writ of error. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cooper, 56 T. 423, 21 S. W. 678.

The statute requiring assignments of error to be filed before the record is taken from the clerk's office is mandatory. Phillips v. Webb (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1011.

Where error in charge is not fundamental it must be assigned, or it will not be considered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hays (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1072.

Statutes and rules regarding the form and sufficiency of assignments of error shall be liberally construed, and not so as to cut off the approach of parties seeking relief in courts of errors for errors prejudicial to them in the trial court. Orange Lumber Co. v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1180.

2. Necessity for assignment of errors.—In general.—The failure of the district judge to sign a statement of facts will not be considered on appeal, unless complaint against the omission be brought up in the assignment of errors. Reagan v. Copeland, 78 T. 661, 66 S. W. 1031.

In a suit to foreclose tax lien, the question of sufficiency of description of property will not be considered when first raised on appeal, without assignment of error. Turner v. City of Houston, 21 C. A. 214, 51 S. W. 645.

A judgment affirmed where there were no assignments of error and no error of law apparent on record. Cano v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 692.

The failure of a trial judge to sign a statement of facts cannot be considered upon appeal to court of civil appeals unless complaint against the omission is brought up in the assignment of errors. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Wathen, 93 T. 622, 57 S. W. 346.

An assignment of the trial judge to approve and file a statement of facts cannot be considered on appeal when it is not assigned as error. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Wathen (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 971.

Failure to plead release of indorsers held not available in absence of assignment of error. Long v. Patton, 43 C. A. 11, 93 S. W. 519.

The appellate court may exercise discretion in considering assignment of error not in the trial court's record, but may not do so where error is not fundamental, and there is no assignment at all. Carrera v. Dibrell, 45 C. A. 99, 96 S. W. 628.

Where there is no assignment of error to a ruling of the trial court, the ruling cannot be considered on appeal. McDonald v. McCobb, 47 C. A. 269, 108 S. W. 218.

Appellate courts confine their attention to the particular errors assigned, and to the reasons urged in the accompanying propositions and argument; and, where these are untimely filed, and no fundamental error is apparent, the assignment will be overruled. Young v. State Bank of Marshall, 54 C. A. 206, 117 S. W. 476.

Errors not apparent on the face of the record, and not assigned in the trial court for presentation to the court of civil appeals, as required, cannot be considered by the supreme court. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533.

Ordinarily an appellate court confines its decision to the exact questions presented by the assignments of error, Hazzard v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 214.

Questions not involving fundamental error of law are not upon the record must be presented by assignments or cross-assignments of error, and unless they are so presented the supreme court will not review them. Tarrant County v. Rogers, 104 T. 224, 116 S. W. 255.

Objections not embraced in the assignments of error will not be considered. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Cuffe (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1024.

The court of civil appeals has no authority to revise a judgment of the district court, except on a matter distinctly specified by an assignment of error. Deutschmann v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1140.

In the absence of an assignment of error, complaining of the refusal to permit counsel for appellant to present and read authorities, the matter cannot be reviewed. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Alleged errors which are not fundamental cannot be reviewed on appeal, unless presented by an assignment of error. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Myers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 762.

3. Rulings on pleadings.—In order to have a question raised by the pleadings reviewed on appeal, it must be preserved by an assignment of error, unless it is fundamental. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 873.

The court of civil appeals will not reverse the action of the district court in sustaining an exception to a complaint, where no assignment of error is predicated thereon. Wettermark v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 904.

The overruling of demurrers will not be considered on appeal, in absence of assignment of error predicated thereon. John M. Bonner Memorial Home v. Collin County Nat. Bank, 57 C. B. 313, 132 S. W. 430.

In the absence of an assignment of error to the allowance of a trial amendment to a pleading, the court on appeal will not review the ruling. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Shulkie (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188.

4. Rulings as to evidence.—Objections to evidence, not included in assignment of error, will not be considered on appeal. Smith v. Clay (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 74.

The ruling of the trial court on the admission of testimony cannot be reviewed on appeal, in absence of assignments of error. Hale v. Bickett, 34 C. A. 369, 78 S. W. 531.

In the absence of an assignment of error or propositions, the objection in argument to certain evidence will not be considered. Finberg v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973.
5. Instructions.—Instructions can be reviewed only as to particulars in respect to which error is claimed. 92 T. 318, 47 S. W. 966. An instruction not constituting fundamental error cannot be reviewed when there was no assignment of error. Washington v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 75.

Where an instruction is not made the subject of an assignment of error, objections thereto will not be considered on appeal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Foster, 25 C. A. 497, 65 S. W. 952.

The contention that an instruction Eliminated the issue of contributory negligence cannot be raised on appeal, where it was not assigned as error. International Light & Power Co. v. Maxwell, 27 C. A. 294, 65 S. W. 78.

In the absence of any assignment complaining of conflict in instructions, the court on appeal will not consider the question of conflict. Houston Electric Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 209.

The failure to submit an issue is not ground for reversal, where its submission was only requested by an instruction in itself erroneous, and no assignment of error is made that, though erroneous, the charge was sufficient as a request for a proper submission. First National Bank v. Moor, 34 C. A. 478, 79 S. W. 92.

Complaint that the court did not submit an issue suggested by an improper requested charge held required to be specifically made by assignment of error. Metcalfe v. Lowenstein, 55 C. A. 619, 81 S. W. 362.

Without an assignment that the court erred in not giving a proper charge on the defense of fellow servants suggested by certain requests to charge on such subject, the court's failure so to do was not presented for review on appeal. G. A. Duferer Mfg. Co. v. Ehchorn, 44 C. A. 638, 89 S. W. 715.

A charge to which error is not assigned will not be reviewed. Bollinger v. McMin, 47 C. A. 85, 104 S. W. 1079.

Where error is not assigned on the omission of an issue which doubtless should have been based on the special charge on the subject being incorrect, appellant has no legal ground to complain. Buchanan v. Burnett, 52 C. A. 68, 114 S. W. 407.

Error in failing to instruct upon a certain issue on the ground that the court's attention was called thereto by an improper instruction requested cannot be considered on appeal, though the absence of an assignment of error complaining thereof. Lynch v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 461.

6. Verdict, findings, or judgment.—Where a cause is tried by the judge alone, and no conclusions of fact or law are demanded, the appellant, to secure a reversal, must negative, by proper assignments of error, every theory on which the judgment might have been based. Hathaway v. Texas Building & Loan Ass'n, 19 C. A. 240, 45 S. W. 1023.

An objection that there is no evidence to sustain a finding cannot be considered when not assigned as error. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 21 C. A. 167, 51 S. W. 275.

In the absence of assignment of errors as to correctness of conclusion on which judgment of lower court is based, judgment will be affirmed. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ennis-Calvert Compress Co., 23 C. A. 441, 56 S. W. 367.

A party not assigning error the court's refusal to set aside a special verdict cannot complain of the judgment because certain findings are unsupported by the evidence. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 455.

Without challenge, in an action by a grantor of a street railway for failure of the grantees to operate the railway as required by the deed, there is no assignment calling in question the amount of the damages awarded, the court, on appeal, will not disturb the damages assessed by the jury. Id.

The question whether answers of the jury to special issues entitled a party to a judgment cannot be considered on appeal, where the trial court set aside such findings and there was no assignment requiring a review of such rulings. Casey-Swasey Co. v. Manchester Fire Assur. Co., 32 C. A. 158, 73 S. W. 864.

Findings not complained of by assignments of error as unsupported by evidence, will be considered on appeal as correct. Supreme Council, American Legion of Honor v. Storey (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 901.

Defendant held not required to assign error to excessiveness of verdict, to avail itself of error in charge as to measure of damages. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Nelson, 38 C. A. 605, 81 S. W. 161.

Where appellant did not assign error on the amount of the judgment rendered against him, the question would not be considered. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Wheeler, 41 C. A. 593, 91 S. W. 234.

On appeal by defendant from a judgment for plaintiff for part of the land claimed in trespass to try title, plaintiff held not entitled to have judgment reformed, where he made no assignment of error, even though more land was adjudged to defendant than he was entitled to. Haynes v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 49, 111 S. W. 427.

Where there is no assignment attacking a provision of a judgment complained of as error, it cannot be reviewed. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 96.

7. -- Motions for new trial.—Where motion for new trial is overruled, but no error is assigned to its being overruled, the error, if any, is waived. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 49 S. W. 825.

8. Errors reviewable without proper assignment—in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 1607.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer to a petition is reviewable without an assignment of error. Hall v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 46.

When a case is advanced on a suggestion of delay, the record will be searched for material errors, though no assignments or briefs have been filed by plaintiffs in error. Tidwell v. Starr (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 778.

An error of law apparent on the record is fundamental, requiring consideration on appeal without assignment. Willard v. Gattman (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 901.

Assignment of error is not necessary on appeal, where parties have agreed on the question on which determination of the case depends. Wilson v. Johnson, 94 T. 373, 60 S. W. 242.

Where, on appeal, a case is advanced and set down for hearing in accordance with appellate’s motion, suggesting an appeal for delay, errors will be revised, though not assigned. Continental Fire Ass’n of Ft. Worth v. Bearden, 29 C. A. 569, 69 S. W. 552.

The court of civil appeals will in rare instances only exercise its discretion to consider assignments of error not presented in the record of the Supreme Court. Cammack v. Rogers, 32 C. A. 125, 74 S. W. 945.

A verdict charged to be excessive will be reviewed on appeal, notwithstanding the assignment of error objecting thereto is general and multifarious. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Appel, 33 C. A. 675, 77 S. W. 635.

A suggestion by appellants that the appeal was taken for delay opens the record as to them though there was no error assigned affecting them. Watslavick v. D. & A. Oppenheimer, 38 C. A. 306, 86 S. W. 555.

The suggestion that an appeal was taken for purposes of delay only opens up the entire record, and requires the appellate court to reverse for errors, though not assigned. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hadley & Alvord, 33 C. A. 599, 86 S. W. 932.

Issues presented being all of fact, errors suggested held not fundamental or apparent of record, will not settle them to review, even though the assignments of error may have been faulty. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 875.

Verdict held such as to seem to call for the exercise of the discretion of the appellate court to consider an assignment of error, notwithstanding it was too general to be considered. Id.

The court on appeal held required to correct an error in a judgment, notwithstanding the insufficiency of the assignments of error. Houston Oil Co. v. Gallup, 50 C. A. 393, 109 S. W. 967.

The instruction being set out in the assignment of error, held, that errors therein not assigned will be considered. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civil App.) 111 S. W. 136.

It would be the duty of the court of civil appeals to determine the sufficiency of the petition as against a general demurrer, even though there were no assignments of error as to its sufficiency. Steiger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 327, 113 S. W. 327.

The court on appeal must, in the absence of any assignment of error, examine the record, and will reverse for fundamental error apparent on the record. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Saxon (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1091.

On motion to dismiss an appeal for delay, if any error appears, the motion will be denied, and the judgment reversed. Stricklin v. Arrington & Carter (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 389.

In the absence of the record of assignments of error required by this article and article 2113 and courts of civil appeals rules 22, 23 (67 S. W. xv), the court of civil appeals can only determine from the record whether the pleadings support the judgment and whether that court has acquired jurisdiction; affirmance following a determination of those questions in the affirmative. Walker v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 640.

The error in sustaining a general demurrer to the petition will be considered on appeal, though not assigned. Dewees v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 732.

A court on appeal will review fundamental error in a judgment apparent on the face of the record, though not assigned or presented in any way. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 933.

The court, on appeal from a decree settling water rights, may consider the indefiniteness of the judgment, even though the assignments of error addressed thereto could not be considered because incorrectly copied in the brief, where the cause would be reversed for other reasons. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer, where the petition states a good cause of action, constitutes fundamental error apparent on the face of the record, and will be reviewed without assignments of error in the lower court. Hankamer v. County Com'r's Court (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 623.

A county court’s jurisdiction of an appeal from the commissioner’s court, being jurisdiction on appeal, though not raised by an assignment of error. Northington v. Taylor County (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 936.

Error in acting without jurisdiction over the subject-matter may be raised on appeal, though not in the assignments of error. Land Mortgage Bank v. Voss, 29 C. A. 11, 68 S. W. 782.

Where judgment by default was entered against nonresidents, and the record failed to show jurisdiction, the appellate court will take notice of the error, although not specially assigned. Glasscock v. Barnard (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 615.

The jurisdiction of a trial court must affirmatively appear from the transcript on appeal, and, where it does not, the defect being jurisdictional, is fundamental in its nature, and must be noticed without an assignment of error. Ware v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 638.

A ruling assigned as error can be reviewed though appellant had no right to assert error, where jurisdiction is involved. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Neil P. Anderson & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 182.

The court on appeal must notice the want of jurisdiction of the trial court, whether the objection is raised by the parties or not. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 258.

The question of the jurisdiction of the trial court may be raised on appeal, without any assignment of error. O’Bannon v. Pleasants (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 719.

* 10. — Errors apparent on face of record. — See, also, Art. 1607 and notes thereunder.

On appellant’s suggestion of delay the court will revise the judgment for any error apparent on the face of the record, though there are no proper assignments. Hanson v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 795.

The failure in a suit to recover school land by an applicant for the purchase thereof to allege and prove that plaintiff was an actual settler, or was an owner of and settler on other land, held errors apparent on the face of the record. Sterling v. Self, 30 C. A. 254, 70 S. W. 259.

An assignment of error held to present no error of law apparent on the record, so as to allow its consideration under court of civil appeals rule 21 (20 S. W. viii.), though failing to distinctly specify the grounds relied on. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell, 104 T. 622, 148 S. W. 1147.

Error in sustaining a general demurrer to a petition can be reviewed on appeal without any bill of exceptions or assignment of error, where the judgment recites the ruling, the exception thereto, and the notice of appeal. Harbison v. Cottle County (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 719.

Refusal of court of civil appeals to reverse or reform judgment in partition so as to allow to defendent who had made no claim for same held not an error of law apparent on the face of the record to which no timely assignment of error would be essential. Oar v. Davis (Sup.) 151 S. W. 794.

In article 1607 and this article, requiring that errors at law not “apparent on the face of the record” be assigned is adopted in order to prevent assignments of error by timely assignment of errors to such manifest error as when removed destroys the foundation of the judgment. Id.

Where, in an action to cancel deeds conveying certain land, one defendant’s one-third life estate in such land was not put in issue either by the pleadings or evidence, and such defendant joined with her husband in his claim for the entire interest of plaintiffs in the land under the deeds or the homestead laws, the refusal of the court of appeals to reverse or reform the judgment of the district court partitioning the land and divesting such defendant of her life estate did not present error apparent upon the face of the record, such as could be considered on writ of error in the absence of a timely assignment of error.

Id.

The error in allowing an amendment to a pleading is not error apparent of record while the plaintiff is considered without assignment of error, where the amendment in only made to appear by motion to correct the record. Gordon v. State (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 887.

Where the transcript does not contain a copy of an assignment of errors required by statute and court rules to be filed below, the court of civil appeals will only consider errors of law or fact apparent upon the record, if the judgment could under any circumstances have been legally rendered, and will affirm if there be no such errors. Biggs v. Blount (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

The error in rendering judgment in trespass to try title that plaintiff, not appearing in person or by counsel or any defendant pleaded not guilty and filed pleas of limitations, is error apparent of record, of which the court on appeal must take notice, though not assigned. Drummond v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 266.

Where the transcript of record does not contain a copy of assignment of errors required by statute and court rules to be filed below, the court of civil appeals will only consider errors of law or fact apparent upon the record, if the judgment could under any circumstances have been legally rendered, and will affirm if there be no such errors. Biggs v. Blount (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

The error in rendering judgment in trespass to try title that plaintiff, not appearing in person or by counsel or any defendant pleaded not guilty and filed pleas of limitations, is error apparent of record, of which the court on appeal must take notice, though not assigned. Drummond v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 266.
Art. 1612  COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

find every fact necessary to support the judgment the defect may be noticed by the court as fundamental to support the judgment may be found in the record, though not included in the special verdict. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 49 S. W. 635.

The use of a wrong initial in the court’s charge to the jury is not a fundamental error. Assignment of error, where to assignment of error, is found in the record assailing that part of the charge. Neyland v. Texas Yellow Pine Lumber Co., 25 C. A. 417, 64 S. W. 896.

An error in a trial court in refusing to submit to the jury a controverted issue of fact, held not fundamental, and will not be reviewed, in the absence of an assignment of error. Clapp v. Royer, 28 C. A. 29, 67 S. W. 345.

An instruction affirmatively misdirecting the jury as to the law on the undisputed facts, where an instruction for one of the parties should have been given, is a fundamental error, though not assigned. Harper v. Dodd, 30 C. A. 287, 70 S. W. 223.

A judgment giving one defendant costs as against the other held not fundamental error, and not reviewable, in the absence of assignment of error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 652.

A judgment in favor of a third person not entitled thereto is fundamentally wrong, so as to be set aside on appeal without any assignment of error. Freeman v. Bank of Garvin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 655.

Admission of secondary evidence of the execution and contents of deeds without preliminary proof of the loss of the originals is not fundamental error reviewable without an assignment of error. William M. Rice Institute v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 688.

An assignment predicates error on the precise reason given below for dismissing the action or not, the court on appeal will overrule the assignment where the petition failed to state a cause of action, since that is a fundamental error that the appellate court must consider. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

Whether to determine when in a proceeding under minor right or to be incapable of intelligent enforcement, the error was fundamental and may be corrected on appeal, though the assignments of error addressed thereto could not be considered because not correctly copied in the brief. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 622.

An objection that the compromise agreement relied on was without consideration, being fundamental and apparent of record, was reviewed though not assigned. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1198.

Want of capacity in the plaintiff corporation to do business in the state was not fundamental error which the appellate court will review without an assignment of error;
it going merely to the plaintiff's right to sue and not to the merits of the suit. Arbuckle Bros. v. Evangeline & Hill, Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1122.

Under rule 24 for the courts of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), requiring assignments of error to distinctly specify the grounds of error, an objection to an instruction as to the degree of care due from the defendant carrier toward plaintiff cannot be reviewed in the absence thereon; such error not being fundamental. Walker v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1142.

If the reasons assigned in special exceptions for the insufficiency of an answer, if well founded, which have justified the sustaining of a general demurrer, rulings of the court thereon were fundamental and could be considered by the court of civil appeals without assignment under rule 24 (142 S. W. xii). Astin v. Mosteller (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 485.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer where the petition states a good cause of action constitutes fundamental error apparent on the face of the record, and will be reviewed without assignments of error in the lower court. Hankamer v. County Com'rs' Court (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 625.

The court's error in canceling a note and mortgage pursuant to an agreement, although it had been merged in a new note and mortgage, and no matters in avoidance of the new instruments were pleaded or submitted, was fundamental and reviewable without assignment. Shriver v. McCann (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 217.

Assignments of error held not to raise fundamental errors apparent on the face of the record which could be reviewed, although the assignments were not filed in the trial court, as required by this article, rule 101 (142 S. W. xxv). for district courts, and rules 23a (142 S. W. xii) for courts of civil appeals. Sewall v. Christie (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 994.

Fundamental errors will be considered, notwithstanding the assignments are not in proper form. Whitten v. Whitten (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 277.

12. Necessity of motion for new trial.—See, also, notes under Art. 2014. The courts of civil appeals (Civ. App. rules 24 and 25 for xii), and rule 71a for district and county courts (145 S. W. vii), requiring a motion for a new trial on appeal from a trial court, held not affected by Act 334 Leg., approved April 4, 1913, amending this article by dispensing with the necessity of filing assignments when a motion for new trial has been filed. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 748.

Assignments of error in a proceeding collateral to that in which appeal is taken cannot be considered on such appeal. Chouquette v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 956.

On appeal by one defendant only, cross-assignment by another as to the judgment of plaintiff against him cannot be considered. Smith v. Bunch (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 559.

Defendants cannot assign error to the judgment in favor of co-defendants, where they have assigned no right or equity against either of such co-defendants McCabe & Steen v. Farrrell, 34 C. A. 36, 77 S. W. 1049.

Assignments of error, which were passed upon by another court of civil appeals, will not be considered, where their consideration is not essential to the disposition of the case. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

Plaintiffs in error held not precluded from bringing error to the part of a judgment discharging the garnishee by reason of a former appeal by another party. McFaddin v. Texas & N. O. R. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 694.

Defendants, not having been represented at the trial, held entitled on appeal to complaint of the judgment for fundamental error only. Dishman v. Frost (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 358.

14. Joint assignments.—A joint assignment that the verdict was contrary to the weight of the evidence as to all the defendants was unsustainable, If the evidence supported a verdict as to any of them. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 973.

15. Form and requisites in general.—An assignment which is neither signed by the party nor by his counsel cannot be considered; only such fundamental errors as are apparent on the face of the record can be considered. Fordyce v. Dixon, 70 T. 694, 8 S. W. 694.

An assignment of error should not contain a statement of facts. Wilson v. Alexander (Sup.) 18 S. W. 1057.

An unsigned assignment not adopted in appellant's brief, so as to identify it as his act, will be considered. Building Association v. Newman, 25 S. W. 11, 56 T. 350.

Certain assignments of error held in such form that the appellate court was not required to consider them. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Foth, 101 T. 123, 100 S. W. 171.

Assignments of error, not complying with rules 20 and 31 for the courts of civil appeals, held not before the court for consideration. Gilmore v. Houston Electric Co., 46 C. A. 314, 102 S. W. 165.

Assignments of error which do not comply with the rules of the court need not be considered on appeal. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jowers (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 916.

Where assignments of error are not presented in accordance with the rules, they will not be considered. Reina v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 56.

An assignment of error, obnoxious to rules 24, 25, 26 for the court of civil appeals, will not be considered. Settle v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 15.

Assignments of error not clearly demonstrating the refusal of special charges, will be overruled. Big Valley Irr. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 715.

Assignments of error not complying with amended rule 25 for rules of court appeals (142 S. W. xii), held to be considered, where they were filed before that amendment was generally known. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

Under court of civil appeals rule 29 (142 S. W. xii), providing that "assignments shall be numbered from the first to the last in their consecutive order," where the brief begins with No. 4 and ends with No. 5, the assignments cannot be considered. Barron & Clark v. White (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 590.

Ordinarily an assignment ought to be complete in itself; and if it is not, there is something else in the record essential to an intelligent ruling upon it, the latter at least should be embraced in the statement in the brief under the assignment. Robertson v. Coates, 1 C. A. 664, 20 S. W. 876.

The assignment of error must be express and direct. It should not be argumentative. Hodo v. Mexican Nat. R. Co., 88 T. 729, 32 S. W. 511.

An assignment of error must show that appellant is affected by the error. Cole v. Grigsby (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 680.

An assignment of error suggesting a diversity of questions, and failing to present any definite proposition, is fatally defective for multifariousness. Stevens v. Germania Life Ins. Co., 62 S. W. 284, 23 C. A. 156.

Assignment of error on the ground of variance held not sustained. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co. v. Carver, 27 C. A. 467, 66 S. W. 216.

Assignments not pointing out the specific errors complained of, and not followed by a sufficient statement: Butler v. Holmes, 67 C. A. 45.

An assignment of error cannot be extended by the brief to include a bill of exceptions not referred to therein. Word v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 334.

Assignments of error were in the following form: (1) "The court erred in overrul-ing and refusing to sustain the plea of privilege of the [defendant] railway company as a matter of right, but only as an 'equivocal' plea, where the law [defendant] railway company could be sued in this case, and compelled to defend the same in the district court of M. county: that it was not entitled under the law to be sued in D. county. Proposition: A foreign corporation, no part of whose railway lines are situated in a county where it has an agent or house, but which is situated in the state in which there is no agent or house, and whose courts would ordain have no jurisdiction over it, for the reason that it is sued for alleged damages to freight transported over its lines in the county in which its railway line extends into the county in which the suit is brought.' Under these circumstances and proposition the undisputed evidence introduced on the trial, duly preserved by bill of exceptions, was set out. Held, that the assignments were sufficient to show the court of civil appeals erred in holding defendant to answer to the suit in M. county when it had no agent in that county and was not operating any railway in Texas, and such assignments should have been considered by that court. Judgment (Civ. App. 1903) 76 S. W. 947, reversed. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Kyser, 91 S. W. 77, 97 T. 438.

An assignment of error held not to be considered, as not being a clear and distinct specification of error. Bourland v. Schulz, 29 C. A. 572, 87 S. W. 1167.

Assignments of error would not be considered on appeal, in view of the manner in which appellant presented them. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

An assignment which does not complain of any error of the trial court presents nothing to be reviewed. Erbe v. Krohner v. Kampermann (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 492.

Assignments of error which referred to another assignment and the statements following it, to which it had no relation, held to present nothing for consideration. San Antonio & Gulf Ry. Co. v. A. G. Wells, 55 C. A. 491, 119 S. W. 227.

An assignment of error to merit consideration on appeal must present a contention which, if sustained, entitles the party complaining to relief as against the judgment attacked. Mortimore v. Aflleck (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 51.

On appeal from a judgment entered upon special findings, held, that an assignment complaining of alleged erroneous special findings would not be considered. Ripley v. Wexell (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 937.

An assignment of error by defendant, in an action by a former partner of a firm, which sold its business to defendant corporation, to recover a part of the corporate shares or their reasonable value, in which defendant claimed that plaintiff had received the whole consideration agreed to be paid him for his interest, and that there was no evidence showing that the overcharge amounted to more than the necessary cost of purchasing goods, and not referring to the evidence, but referring "to preceding statements," was insufficient, and would not be considered. Thos. Goggin & Bro. v. Goggin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

A purported assignment of error, which did not complain of any ruling, but was merely in the form of a proposition, was not an assignment of error. Moore v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 128.

Assignments of error which are very general, involve several propositions, and are not followed by propositions or statements, will not be considered. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 516.

Where assignments of error are multifarious, argumentative, and confusing, and the propositions are not germane to the assignments, and some of the assignments are not copies of those filed in the trial court, and the statements make little reference to the record, the assignments will not be considered. Hardy v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 850.

An assignment of error inviting a review of the action of the court below with reference to several matters, without specifying the ground of error relied on, is too general to require consideration, and the propositions under it cannot be invoked to assist it. Robinson v. Moore, 1 C. A. 53, 20 S. W. 994; Galbraith v. Townsend, 1 C. A. 447, 20 S. W. 943.

That the court erred in refusing a certain special charge is too general. Sanburn v. Deal, 22 S. W. 192, 2 C. A. 385. Also, that it erred in the admission and exclusion of evidence, as shown by the bill of exceptions, whereby the jury were misled, etc. Muller v. Bly, 21 T. 175. Also, that it was erronous to hold, etc. W. H. C. & S. Ry. v. Cole, 2 C. A. 675, on four special instructions asked. Lambert v. Williams, 21 S. W. 108, 2 C. A. 413; Gregory v. Coleman, 22 S. W. 131, 2 C. A. 166. Or that it erred in holding that the notes sued on were secured by a vendor's lien upon the land in controversy. Gunter v. Lillard & Co., 1 C. A. 220, 20 S. W. 118. Or that the verdict is not supported by the evidence, and that the judgment does not dispose of the questions involved. Cooper v. Lee, 1 C. A. 9, 21 S. W. 998.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to grant defendant's application for a continuance—there being four distinct grounds therefor, for different wit-

An assignment asking the action of the court on several matters and not specifying in what particular there was error, is too general. W. U. T. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 996.

The assignment of errors must specifically state the points relied on for a reversal of the judgment. Brown v. Elmendorf, 26 S. W. 1043, 87 T. 56.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling defendant's application for a continuance is not too general. Railway Co. v. Howell, 87 T. 429, 30 S. W. 102.

Assignments of error held not sufficiently specific. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Padgitt (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 800.

Assignments of error reserved by exceptions "No. 1 to No. 9, inclusive," held too general, where the exceptions involved different phases of the testimony. Frost v. Mason, 17 C. A. 465, 44 S. W. 53.

An assignment of error sufficiently specific to point out the ruling complained of is sufficient though it fails to state the grounds of the ruling. Moline Plow Co. v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 698.

Assignments of error held insufficient, as not complaining of any proceeding of the trial court, and as being mere arguments. Spencer v. Jones (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 25.

Assignments of error do not convey to the mind any point for determination will not be considered on appeal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Branch (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 542.

An assignment of error held too general in trespass to try title held too general to be considered, under this article and rules 22-23 (20 S. W. vii) for the courts of civil appeals. Cartmell v. Gammage (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 315.

Assignments of error which are too general will not be considered. Wetz v. Wetz, 27 C. A. 597, 66 S. W. 669.

Certain assignments of error held too indefinite to be considered. Cline v. Hackbart, 30 C. A. 591, 71 S. W. 48.

Assignment of error held to point out to court of civil appeals error relied on, and to call for consideration by that court. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. J. H. White & Co., 97 T. 493, 80 S. W. 77.

Where an assignment of error is unintelligible, and is not supported by the statement following it, it will not be reviewed. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bath, 40 C. A. 270, 90 S. W. 55.

Assignments of error, though general, held sufficient. Frontray v. Atkinson, 45 C. A. 324, 100 S. W. 1023.

Assignments of error in trespass to try title held too general to be considered. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847.

An assignment of error not complying with statute and rules held too general to require consideration. Cain v. State, 47 C. A. 382, 106 S. W. 770.

Certain assignments of error held insufficient as too general and indefinite. Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 304.

Assignments of error held not too general. Wigglesworth v. Uvalde Live Stock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1189.

Under this article and rules 25 and 26 for the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), requiring assignments to point out the exact portion of the record wherein the error occurred, an assignment of error complaining that the court erred in overruling the application of the relator to remove a guardian is too general to require consideration. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 23.

An assignment which points out no specific error, and which does not refer to the page of the transcript where the bill of exceptions referred to therein may be found, is not entitled to consideration. Modern Brotherhood of America v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 626.
Under rules 24 and 25 for courts of civil appeals, as amended January 24, 1912 (142 S. W. 23), a motion for a new trial in all cases as a prerequisite to a review of the assignment of errors, assignments of error are not required to be any more specific or definite than was required prior to the amendment. Nunn v. Veale (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 758.

Assignments of error not in compliance with courts of civil appeals rules 24 and 25 (142 S. W. xii), providing that assignments of error must specify the grounds of error, and defining a distinct specification of error, are waived. Elmo Rock Co. v. Sowards (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 270.

An assignment of error which enables the court to see that a particular ruling is complained of is sufficient, although it fails to state the reason why the ruling is claimed to be erroneous. Clarendon L. & A. Co. v. McCelland, 23 S. W. 576, 1100, 86 T. 175, 22 L. R. A. 105; Railway Co. v. Ramey (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 654.

Assignments of error complaining of the admission of evidence must be based on the ground of objection in the trial court. House v. Security Mortg. & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 227.

An appellant assigning an instruction as error held not restricted in argument to the reason assigned. Davis v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 17 C. A. 199, 43 S. W. 44.

Assignment of error held sufficient, though it does not state the ground on which the particular ruling complained of is erroneous. Moline Plow Co. v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 609.

An assignment of error is not bad because reasons urged in its support are untenable. Brackenridge v. Claridge, 91 T. 505, 44 S. W. 819, 43 L. R. A. 593.

The appellate court may show a reason not relied on by appellant in the assignment of error, in his brief, against the giving of a certain instruction. Abilene Live-Stock Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 886.

An assignment of error held to present the question of the correctness of an instruction, though the reason given for the objection was not sustained. Wright v. United States Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 365.

Where an assignment expressly alleges a cause to be erroneous on a certain ground, the question as to whether it is erroneous on another ground will not be considered. Paulson v. Western Union Tel. Co., 36 C. A. 98, 81 S. W. 56.

An assignment of error to the exclusion of evidence, failing to state the objections interposed, will not be considered on appeal. Bryson v. Hartgrove v. Boyce, 41 C. A. 415, 92 S. W. 829.

Assignments of error should not be cumbersom with reasons and arguments tending to obscure the point intended to be presented. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Timon, 45 C. A. 47, 59 S. W. 418.

The rule that the reason given in an assignment of error is not necessarily a part thereof, and that a new reason may be given in the brief, is only applicable where error is assigned to some particular ruling, and not to the final judgment as a whole. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847.

An assignment of error held required to state the objection on which the contract was refused admission to evidence. Crawford v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 553.

An assignment of error should distinctly specify the ground relied upon for a reversal of the judgment and ordinarily ought to be complete in itself; and if it is not, and there is something else in the record essential to an intelligent ruling upon it, the latter at least be marked in the brief under the assignment. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 995; Norton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1047.

The appellate court may refuse to consider assignments of error which merely state that the court erred in giving or refusing to give any instruction, or the propriety of an instruction, or that the court erred in submitting or refusing to submit any instruction, or the propriety of an instruction, or that the court erred in refusing to charge the jury with the propriety of a charge.

Whitney v. Texas Cent. R. Co., 50 C. A. 1, 110 S. W. 70.

An assignment of error to exclusion of evidence cannot be considered: the ground of the objection to the evidence not being shown. Uecker v. Zuercher, 54 C. A. 298, 118 S. W. 145.

Under this article it is not enough that the assignment complies of an act or omission of the court, but, the reason of the complaint not appearing in the assignment, as in one complaining of the giving of an instruction to return a verdict for nominal damages, and for substantial damages in case the jury find plaintiff entitled thereto, the reason must be given. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell, 194 T. 632, 143 S. W. 1147.

An assignment of error contained an extract of a letter admitted in evidence, and recited, “to which we objected, because it was incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and for the other reasons recited in exceptions Nos. 1 and 2, which objections were overruled and said extract admitted, to which ruling exception was taken by bill No. 6," stating the place in the record where it was found. The propositions under the assignment relate to other matters than the general objections of incompetency, etc. Held, that the assignment could not be considered on appeal, as it does not state what were the other objections to the evidence. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

Assignments of error are not required to specify the appellant's reasons for believing the rulings complained of erroneous. Nunn v. Veale (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 758.

An error may be stated in the objection as to the act or omission itself, or by its supporting statement, and the court may not imply as a rule of decision in what way the testimony complained of was incompetent, misleading, or prejudicial present no question for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1182.

An assignment which does not advise the court upon what theory appellant contends that photographs were inadmissible, or in what respect their admission was harmful, presents no question for review. Id.
An assignment of error based on a bill of exceptions to the admission of evidence not disclaimed in objection thereto will not be considered by an appellate court.

19. — Rulings on pleadings.—An assignment of the action of the court in overruling certain exceptions to the petition containing two separate and distinct objections, but not specifying the error complained of, will not be considered. An assignment is not aided by the proposition under it. Cannon v. Cannon, 66 T. 632, 3 S. W. 36.

An assignment which fails to point out the error in sustaining an exception to the pleadings of defendant v. City of Dallas, 53 T. 151, 15 S. W. 322; A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Reiner (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 1013; Railway Co. v. Cooper, 85 T. 431, 21 S. W. 678; Peyton v. Cook (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 781.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling the various demurrers is too general. L. E. Bojin (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 627.

Assignments of error attacking rulings on special exceptions to petition must specify the supposed error. Flewellen v. Ft. Bend County, 17 C. A. 155, 42 S. W. 775.

Assignments based upon the action of the court on the pleadings will not be considered where the record fails to show that the court acted on them. Johnson v. Gurlach (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1048.

Where an answer contains eight special demurrers, an assignment that the court erred in overruling a special demurrer is too general. Traylor v. State, 19 C. A. 86, 46 S. W. 81.

Under Ct. Civ. App. Rule 25 (20 S. W. viii), an assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining the general and special exceptions to the answer is too general. Hanson v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 795.

An assignment that error was committed in overruling the exceptions of defendant, set forth in enumerated paragraphs of pleadings, held insufficient. American Well Works v. De Aguayo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 350.

Under rule 25 of the court of civil appeals (20 S. W. viii), an assignment that the court erred in overruling defendant's first, second, third, fourth, and fifth special exceptions to the petition, and in overruling defendant's exception to the supplemental petition, is too general to be considered on appeal. Smith v. Russell, 23 C. A. 554, 56 S. W. 657.

An assignment of error that complains of the court's ruling as to one exception only, but does not point out which, is not good. Barnett v. Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1125.

Assignment that the court erred in overruling demurrer to the petition, because it failed to set out a cause of action, is too general to raise the question of error in overruling special exceptions against the petition. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 775.

An assignment of error, complaining of the overruling of special exceptions, which does not indicate the error, will not be considered. Chimene v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 330.

Assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to sustain all of appellant's special demurrers is too general. Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 32 C. A. 531, 75 S. W. 968.

An assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining the special exceptions to the plea of non est factum, "which plea is hereby referred to and made a part hereof" is insufficient but no specific error is alleged, and must be followed by a suitable statement. McLeod v. State, 76 S. W. 216, 33 C. A. 170.

Assignment that court erred in sustaining general demurrer and special exceptions of a party held too general. City of San Antonio v. Taliercio (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 23.

Where not specifically referred to, an assignment of error in the record as to the sufficiency of the special exception thereto cannot be considered. Crawford v. Abbey (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 346.

Assignments of error to the overruling of exceptions to a pleading cannot be considered, the record not showing the exceptions acted on by the court. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1077.

Assignment of error held not too general to prevent consideration on appeal of the action of the trial court on general demurrer. Stark v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling a motion to strike out parts of answers to direct and cross interrogatories held too general. Bell v. Bates, 35 C. A. 293, 81 S. W. 551.

An assignment of error and an accompanying proposition attacking a judgment in an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message, announcing the death of the brother of the wife of plaintiff, and requesting her to come at once, on the ground that the judgment for plaintiff was contrary to law, in that the petition did not allege that the wife could and would have reached her destination and been present at her brother's funeral had the message been promptly delivered, sufficiently presented the question of the sufficiency of the petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling each and all of plaintiff's special exceptions to defendant's special answer and cross-bill held too general. Delaney v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 519.

An assignment that "the court erred in overruling defendant's special demurrers to plaintiff's second amended original petition" not considered, it being too general, and not helped by the exceptions presented. Ryan v. Teague, 50 C. A. 155, 110 S. W. 117.
An assignment of error to the overruling of an exception to the answer held insufficient in S. Lumber Co. v. St. Louis Lumber Co., 54 S. W. 477, 117 S. W. 119.

An assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining plaintiff’s exceptions, followed by the proposition that defendant had a right to plead the facts, will not be considered where the contents of the pleading complained of are not set out, and it is not shown how or in what way defendant suffered an injury. Herman v. Smith (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1087.

An assignment of error attempting to attack the pleadings cannot be sustained where no basis was made therefor in the trial court. Ash v. A. E. Franko Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 42.

An assignment of error to the overruling of exceptions to the petition cannot be supported by evidence introduced, as shown by the statement of facts. Trotti v. Kinnear (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 326.

Where an assignment of error stated that the court erred in overruling a special exception to the defendant’s answer, and the special exception referred to and set out in the statement in support of the assignment was that the special answer to the pleas of defendant was insufficient to constitute any defense in the action under the law, the assignment was insufficient, in that it failed to point out any specific error. Riley v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 581.

An assignment of error in overruling special exceptions 1-23, inclusive, is too general to be considered. West Lumber Co. v. Chesser (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 976.

An assignment of error to the part of a pleading referred to as seeking “to give a dissertation on the doctrine of equitable estoppel applicable to rescission” is itself as indefinite and general as the pleading excepted to, and cannot be reviewed. Adams v. Hill (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 345.

An assignment of error in refusing to sustain plaintiff’s several special exceptions to defendant’s answer was too general to require consideration. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 190.

An assignment that the court erred in not administering to the sheriff the oath required by law before he summoned the jury, and that the jury was not selected by jury commissioners, without any showing that the appellant took exception to such failure other than is pointed out by the statement in the assignment itself, is not sufficient. Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929.

An assignment of error in refusing to suppress a deposition held insufficient. Pant v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 399.

An assignment of error to the refusal to allow a witness to testify, not showing what answer he would have made, nor the exceptions taken, will be overruled. Blain v. Popper (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 129.

An assignment of error to the admission of expert testimony by a nonexpert witness held insufficient. Texas Midland R. R. v. Tidwell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 641.

No reversible error is shown by assignments complaining of the admission of evidence, when the bill of exceptions does not show what the evidence was. West End Dock Co. v. Galveston City Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 752.

An error in failing to specify any ground of objection to the evidence therein set forth, cannot be considered. Altgelt v. Eimendorf (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 41.

An assignment that the court erred in permitting counsel to ask certain questions, failing to show that any objection was urged to the answers, was insufficient. Id.

An assignment of error held not to impose upon the court of civil appeals the duty of passing upon the testimony. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 400.

An assignment of error complaining of the erroneous admission of testimony held not reviewable because of the insufficiency of the assignment. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607.

An assignment that the court erred in permitting a witness to testify, which does not show whether the testimony objected to was favorable or unfavorable to the party complaining, will not be considered. Schneider v. Rabb (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 183.

An assignment of error in permitting counsel to ask a question of a witness in giving the name of a witness to whom the objectionable questions were put. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Still, 45 C. A. 169, 100 S. W. 176.

It is not permissible to base an assignment of error upon a question which was not asked or by excluding several which were asked, since there could be no ruling of the court upon such fabricated question which could be regarded as a bill of exceptions. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 252.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of certain evidence, which does not specify the evidence complained of, or that it was excepted to, will be overruled. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831.

Assignment of error to admission of evidence which does not set out the testimony complained of, nor make any reference to the pages of the record where it can be found, held insufficient. Chessher v. Buchanan, 48 C. R. Co. Civ. App.) 843.

Held, that an assignment of error in improperly admitting evidence was too indefinite
Art. 1612
COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal to permit a witness to answer a question which does not show what answer would have been made is not sufficient to present the matter for review. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 475.

Where assignments of error complaining of the sustaining of objections to answers in a deposition do not set out the answers objected to, and they are not shown in the subjoined statement, and no reference is made to bills of exception taken to the court's ruling, the assignments cannot be considered. Starkey v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 53 C. A. 333, 115 S. W. 853.

Assignments of error complaining of the exclusion of evidence held not presented as required by the rules. Frazier v. Lambert, 53 C. A. 508, 115 S. W. 1174.

An assignment of error in admitting testimony, "as set out in defendant's bill of exceptions, the testimony not being set out in the brief, was not a proper assignment of error under the rules relating thereto. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 55 C. A. 456, 119 S. W. 716.

An assignment of error will not be considered by the appellate court where the evidence relating to the assignment is not pointed out. Maricle v. McAlister Fuel Co., 55 C. A. 178, 121 S. W. 221.

An assignment of error in rendering judgment for appel­lee against appellants, under which various propositions were submitted complaining of the admission of evidence, etc., is too general to require consideration on appeal. Stephenville Oil Mill v. McNeill, 57 C. A. 352, 122 S. W. 911.

Where neither assignments of error to the admission of testimony, nor the proposition or statement made under them, set out the objectionable testimony except in a very general way, and no bills of exception were taken to the rulings, the assignments will not be considered. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 94.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's permitting a witness to testify as to the contents of "a certain promissory note" was insufficient; no means of identification being given. Mounce v. Crowson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 915.

An assignment that the court erred in holding that the sale of piling by defendant to a third person was valid, and that the garnishee was liable to plaintiff for the value thereof, and that the third person was not a necessary party to the suit, accompanied by a proposition that when the controverting affidavit states that defendant fraudulently conveyed property to a third party after the service of the writ, and that the garnishee participated in the fraudulent scheme, and the third party who is not a party to the suit, afterwards sold the property to the garnishee, the garnishee is entitled to his discharge, does not raise the issue of the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the finding that the pretended sale to the third party was a sham. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

Where an assignment of errors in the bill of exceptions concerning evidence does not clearly show whether it was admitted or excluded, the assignment is not sufficient to cause a reversal, even though such evidence would have been improper if admitted. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 974.

An assignment that the court erred in the admission and rejection of testimony held too general. Edwards v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 510.

An assignment of error complaining of the exclusion of certain evidence, which does not show wherein the court erred or why the evidence was admissible, will not be considered. Rader v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 718.

Where an assignment was based on a bill of exceptions to the exclusion of evidence which complained against some that was admitted and some that was not, the entire assignment would be overruled. Peugh v. Moody (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 296.

In an action by a former partner of a firm, which sold its business to defendant corporation, to recover a part of the corporate shares, or their reasonable value, which plaintiff claimed he would receive, in which defendant claimed that plaintiff had received the whole consideration agreed to be paid him for his interest, an assignment of error by defendant was that there was no evidence showing that the overcharge amounted to more than the necessary cost of purchasing goods; but the assignment did not refer to the evidence, but referred "to preceding statements." Held, that the assignment was insufficient, and would not be considered. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

An assignment of error complained that plaintiff was allowed to ask what were the terms of contract between the defendants, over objection that the contract was the best evidence "as appears by bill of exceptions No. 3," and the proposition under it was that it was the court's duty to construe the contract. The bill of exceptions showed evidence by the witness ajitho who paid for some of the materials required by the contract, and that some of the work was not done in accordance with the plans and specifications, admitted over objection that it was irrelevant and that it tended to contradict the written contract. Held, that the assignment should be overruled for lack of support in the record; the objection in the assignment and proposition not being that taken at the trial, and the evidence objected to having no tendency to show the terms of the contract by parol. Riley v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corp. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

An assignment of error, complaining of the sustaining of objections to a letter offered in evidence, will be overruled, where it does not show what objections were made or that the court ever ruled on any objections. F. T. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Perry (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 350.

An assignment of error to the exclusion of evidence, some of which was properly excluded, will be overruled, where appellant fails to point out the particular portion of the evidence which should have been admitted. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 206.

Error in overruling objections to questions cannot be held prejudicial, where appellant's brief and assignments of error do not show what answers were made. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 964.

An assignment of error which does not advise the court upon what theory appellant contends is inadmissible or how the admission or its omission affects the case presents no question for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

Where assignments of error complaining of the admission of evidence made no mention of the question to which the matters complained to testify to the articles of evidence following made no reference to bills of exceptions reserved to the testimony, and the record contained no reference, there was no basis for the assignments, and they would be overruled. Texas Irr. Co. v. Moore, Bryan & Berry (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 165.

An assignment of error to the admission of evidence, not showing the evidence admitted, will not be reviewed. Davis v. State (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 421.

An assignment of error in the exclusion of evidence which, together with the bill of exceptions, does not show the answer excluded, presents no error. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1655.

An assignment of error complaining that evidence was not authorized under the pleading will not be considered, where the statement failed to disclose the pleading on that subject. El Paso & S. W. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 356.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence will be overruled, where the bill of exceptions does not show that the evidence was admitted. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 364.

22. Submission of issues to jury.—An assignment of error, stating that "the court erred in peremptorily directing the jury to find for plaintiff, because the evidence supports the several defenses pleaded by defendant," is too general to require consideration. Liner v. J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co., 29 C. A. 187, 68 S. W. 311.

Assignments of error, alleging that the court erred in directing a verdict for defendant, are without including the evidence therein. Long v. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1418.

Assignments of error that the court erred in refusing to allow plaintiff to take a non-suited, and that the court erred in giving plaintiff a non-suit and then entering judgment against plaintiff, are too general to be considered. Logan v. Lennix, 49 C. A. 62, 88 S. W. 364.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of special charges requested by plaintiff, and the giving in lieu thereof of a peremptory charge for defendant, does not require the court on appeal to review the peremptory charge in the absence of a pointing out of testimony in the record supporting plaintiff's claim. Crowley v. Finch (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 648.

Under this article, and court of civil appeals rules 23 and 25 (142 S. W. xii), providing that if the record does not contain an assignment of error as required, the court will not consider any error but one of law apparent on the record, and that a distinct specification of error must point out the part of the proceedings complained of in a particular manner, the giving of a peremptory charge for defendant will not be reviewed where there is no assignment of error which points out the testimony in the record in support of plaintiff's claim. Id.

23. Instructions.—An assignment complaining of the refusal of the court to give a certain charge containing several instructions will not be considered. Cannon v. Canno, 66 T. 452, 3 S. W. 36; Northern Assur. Co. v. Samuels, 11 C. A. 477, 33 S. W. 239.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of special charges requested by plaintiff, and the giving in lieu thereof of a peremptory charge for defendant, will not be considered. Rork v. Shields, 16 C. A. 640, 42 S. W. 1002.

An assignment of error that "the court erred in directing the jury to the law of the case" is too general to be considered on appeal. Dewayre v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1947.

An assignment of error that the court erred in its charge, which fails to specifically point out the error, will not be considered. Therrell v. Compeir (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 740.

Where a requested instruction on which an assignment of error is based is not set out, the assignment will not be considered. Mansfield v. Neese, 21 C. A. 584, 54 S. W. 370.

The refusal of special charges will not be considered on appeal, when the contents of such special charges are not set out in the assignment of error or briefs. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Laws (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 498.

An assignment of error that the court refused to give requested charges "Nos. 1 to 8" is too general, and will not be considered. Johnson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 485.

Where an assignment of error in refusing an instruction states its substance, it is sufficient, though portions of the instruction which made no substantial addition thereto are omitted. Cannon, V. A. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Lyncs (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1119.

An assignment of error that a charge "was reversible error" was too general. Central Texas & N. W. R. Co. v. Gibson, 53 C. A. 66, 79 S. W. 351.

An assignment of error complaining of refusal of one charge and failure to give another held bad. Metcalfe v. Lowenstein, 35 C. A. 619, 81 S. W. 362.

An assignment is not reviewable on appeal where neither the assignment of error, nor the grounds therefor, point out the issue submitted, and it is claimed was not raised by the evidence, and the statement following the proposition gives no information on the subject. Gray v. Moore, 37 C. A. 407, 84 S. W. 295.

Where an assignment of error complaining of a clause of the charge, but neither the assignment nor the proposition thereunder points out the error, the assignment presents nothing for review. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 849.
Reference to evidence warranting a requested instruction held insufficient to require the court to review the same. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 367.

An assignment of error to a paragraph of the charge, failing to point out wherein it was claimed to conflict with another paragraph, was fatally defective. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 191.

An assignment of error complaining of error of which it does not correctly quote is fatally defective. Ferguson v. Morrison, 43 C. A. 396, 95 S. W. 1001.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal to give instructions held insufficient to require the court to consider them. American Surety Co. v. Lyons, 44 C. A. 190, 97 S. W. 1080.

An assignment of error held a distinct specification of error where stating that a paragraph of a charge set out was erroneous. P. B. Haight & Co. v. Turner & Pierce, 44 C. A. 555, 99 S. W. 196.

An assignment that the court erred in refusing to give an instruction held insufficient for failing to state the evidence showing its applicability. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Furber, 45 C. A. 348, 100 S. W. 1041.

An assignment of error that an instruction is erroneous will be overruled, where the error is not pointed out. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 397.

An assignment of error complaining of the charge as an entirety is too general. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Biles & Ruby, 56 C. A. 133, 120 S. W. 852.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's failure to submit an issue in a certain manner, although charges were requested, held insufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Word (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 478.

An assignment of error to a refusal of an instruction which does not state that there was evidence to warrant the giving of the instruction, or what evidence was relied upon as supporting the assignment of instructed, will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

Failure to point out wherein a charge was erroneous held to waive the error. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Averill (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 98.

Assignment complaining of error in the refusal of a requested charge would not be considered, where neither the charge nor the substance was disclosed in the assignment or statement, and no evidence requiring the same was set out. Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of a special instruction which merely states that the charge "was intended to instruct the jury that the defendant was not responsible if the damage, if any, was due to inevitable accident," is insufficient; the court must be left to determine whether the charge was such as should have been given, even if the evidence had presented the issue. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 545.

In an assignment directed to the giving or refusal of charges, either the assignment or the request must give the substance at least so much as will enable the court on appeal to determine whether it is in form and substance proper, and generally it is better to set out the charge in full. Knight v. Durham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 591.

An assignment of error to the refusal of instructions is insufficient where the refused instructions are not set out, and the statement does not refer to any part of the record containing them. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1167.

An assignment of error to the refusal of an instruction cannot be considered where the substance of the instruction is not set out in the assignment. Funk v. Miller (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 24.

Assignments of error to the refusal of special instructions, having no file marks and not shown to have been submitted to or acted upon by the trial court, will be overruled. Big Valley Irr. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 715.

An assignment of error to the refusal of instructions by merely copying the assignment complaining of the refusal of the particular charge, stating it, is insufficient, and cannot be considered. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 988.

An assignment of error to the giving of instructions will be considered, where defendant sets out enough of the substance of the charge complained of to identify the objectionable construction, though it is not copied into the brief, or the page of the record given where it is found. Id.

An assignment of error to the giving of instructions will be considered, where defendant sets out enough of the substance of the charge complained of to identify the objectionable instruction, though it is not copied into the brief, or the page of the record given where it is found. Id.

An assignment of error, that the court erred in refusing to give "special instruction No. 1, requested by the defendant, as follows," followed by a quotation of the instruction, is sufficient. Nunn v. Venne (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 758.

Assignments of error to the refusal of special charges must point out the error, show that they were not covered by the general charge, and were justified by the evidence. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1137.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of an instruction could not be considered, where neither the proposition nor statement pointed out any evidence showing the relevancy of the instruction to the facts. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

Assignments of error to the refusal of instructions are not reviewable, where they are not set out in the assignments, nor in the statement thereunder. Lupton v.Willman (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1137.

24. — Verdict, findings, or decision.—An assignment of errors that "the verdict of the jury under the laws and the facts is grossly excessive" is too general. City of Galveston v. Devlin, 84 T. 319, 19 S. W. 396; Cannon v. Cannon, 66 T. 685, 3 S. W. 36; Rainwater v. Hensie, 82 T. 233, 18 S. W. 891.

Assignment of error that the finding is contrary to the preponderance of the evidence, and is without evidence to support it, held too general. Cullen v. Emgard (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 538.

Assignment of error that verdict is not supported by the evidence held too general. Fant v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 909.

An assignment of error that there is no evidence to support the verdict held not sustainable. Fayton v. Love, 20 C. A. 613, 49 S. W. 1109.

An assignment of error that the verdict is excessive and finds an amount greater than the testimony warrants is too general. Pritchard Rice Milling Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 817.

An assignment of error in a personal injury case that the verdict of the jury is greatly excessive is too indefinite for consideration. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Matlock (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1067.

An assignment of error, that a verdict is not supported by competent evidence, and is excessive, is too general for review. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 725.

An assignment that the court erred in instructing the jury to bring in a verdict for a certain sum as the undisputed evidence showed that defendant did not owe that much to plaintiff is an assignment as to the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict, and is insufficient, is insufficient. A. I. Hitchcock v. Pekokowitz (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 995.

An assignment that the verdict is contrary to the law and the evidence, is not supported by the evidence, and is excessive, in amount, is too general. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Worsham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 755.

An assignment of error complaining that the "verdict of the jury is excessive in amount," being too general, could not be considered, especially where the motion for a new trial wholly failed to specify wherein the verdict was excessive. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Goodrich (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1176.

An assignment of error which attacks the verdict for insufficiency of the evidence is too general, where no specific evidence relied on is pointed out. Dromgoole Bros. v. Lissauer & Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1154.

Assignments of error that the verdict is contrary to the law, that it is not supported by the evidence, and that it is contrary to the great preponderance of the evidence are
An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence and that judgment and verdict were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gaither (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 266.

An assignment of error that the court erred in not sustaining defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict was not supported by the evidence or the charge of the court, is not sufficiently specific. Williams v. Yoe, 25 C. A. 445, 54 S. W. 614.

An assignment of error that the trial court erred in not sustaining defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Moore v. Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. 33 S. W. 611.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Padget v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 1157.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Walker v. Brown (App.) 156 S. W. 718.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence and that judgment and verdict were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Moore v. Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. 33 S. W. 611.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Padget v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 1157.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Moore v. Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. 33 S. W. 611.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, because the verdict and judgment were not supported by the evidence, is too general. Moore v. Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. 33 S. W. 611.
An assignment that "the court erred in overruling the defendant's motion for a new trial for the reasons assigned in said motion" is too general to be considered. Smith v. Adoue & Lobit (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 255.

An assignment of error complaining, in a general manner, that a new trial was improperly refused because the verdict was grossly excessive and unsupported by the evidence is insufficient to warrant consideration on appeal. Artesian Belt Ry. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 672.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling a motion for new trial because the verdict was grossly excessive is too general to be considered. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 675.

Under rule 24 for courts of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), where defendant filed a number of general and special demurrers and moved for a new trial on the ground that the court erred in overruling particular assignments and in overruling a motion for a new trial will not be considered; no ground of error being distinctly set forth in the motion for a new trial. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a new trial because the verdict was excessive under the undisputed evidence is too general to justify consideration on appeal. Peacock v. Coltrane (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1057.

26. Judgment.—An assignment that "the court erred because the judgment is not supported by the evidence" is not a compliance with the statute or rules of the supreme court, it being too general. Ackerman v. Huff, 71 T. 317, 9 S. W. 236; Noell v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 553; Baxter v. Baker's Ex'r (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 258.

An assignment of error stating that "the judgment is excessive under the evidence" is too general. Consolidated Kansas City S. & R. Co. v. Couring (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 547.

Where plaintiff's claim consisted of several items, and the judgment was for less than the total amount; an assignment that the damage sustained did not equal the judgment is too general. So gegen Pac. Ry. Co. v. Redding, 17 C. A. 449, 49 S. W. 1061.

Assignments of error that (1) "The court erred in rendering judgment for plaintiff under the facts in this case, and (2) the court erred in not rendering judgment for the defendant because the facts showed that the defendant had title to the land in controversy" and that plaintiff was a mere trespasser, are too general to be considered. Cartmell v. Gammage (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 316.

An objection to a judgment as erroneous held not to open consideration under the assignment of error. Hipp v. City of Houston, 30 C. A. 573, 71 S. W. 39.

An assignment is contrary to the law and the evidence is too general. Thompson v. Chafee, 39 C. A. 567, 89 S. W. 285; Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

An assignment that the court erred in not rendering judgment in favor of defendant and against plaintiff is too general, and may properly be disregarded. City of Houston v. Potter, 41 C. A. 381, 91 S. W. 339.

An assignment that "the court erred in not rendering judgment for defendant and in rendering judgment for plaintiff" is too general to be considered. Teakley v. Gaston, 50 C. A. 463, 111 S. W. 768.

Under this article and rules 24-26 (67 S. W. xv) of the courts of civil appeals, an assignment of error that the evidence and verdict do not support the judgment, which fails to specifically point out the error complained of, and which is followed by a proposition merely reiterating the objection, will not be considered on appeal. Jefferson Fire Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 319.

Assignments of error that the judgment of the court below is contrary to law and against the weight of the evidence, which in itself is undisputed and insufficient, are too general to require consideration. Warren v. Warren (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 272.

An assignment of error, merely reciting that the court entered a judgment and found against the defendant for the amount sued for, with interest, to which action the defendant excepted, on the ground that the said finding was contrary to the law and the evidence, is too general to be considered. Modern Brotherhood of America v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 826.

Where the only issue was as to the amount of credits to which defendants were entitled, an assignment that "the court erred in not giving defendants credit for all sums shown to have been paid by them" was not sufficient. Abernathy v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 665.

27. Several assignments on same ruling.—Where several assignments of error are the same, except that under each a different reason is given, the assignments are but one assignment supported by but one proposition. Judgment (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 289, affirmed. Aspley v. Hawkins, 99 T. 380, 89 S. W. 972.

Where an assignment of error is in effect that the court erred in denying the motion for new trial, and gives the several grounds relied on in motion, and this is followed by several other assignments, which are really propositions under the first, and in the brief are stated to be propositions, and are all grouped and followed by one statement, such succeeding assignments should be treated as propositions under the first to be passed upon by the court. Rice v. Dewberry (Sup.) 32 S. W. 721.

28. Including errors in one assignment.—An assignment of errors embracing nine separate and distinct questions will not be considered. Fay v. East Dallas Bank (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 137.

Assignment of error in overruling exceptions presenting several questions held insufficient. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Downing, 16 C. A. 413, 41 S. W. 120.

An assignment of error will not be considered where there are various propositions in the assignment as well as in the purporting single proposition under it, and the ruling complained of is not disclosed. Grinnan v. Rousseaux, 20 C. A. 19, 45 S. W. 58.
An assignment of error dealing with two or more distinct propositions cannot be considered. [Civ. App.] 51 S. W. 519; [Civ. App.] 51 S. W. 257, 54 S. W. 396; McCreary v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 583; Cochran v. Siegfried (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 452; Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, Id. 863; Wren v. Howland, Id. 894; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fales, 33 C. A. 487, 77 S. W. 234; Masterson v. F. H. Huber, 21 C. A. 271; Wilkins v. Clavell, 21 C. A. 110. An assignment of error based upon two or more distinct propositions, but not submitted as propositions, nor followed by any proper statement, will not be considered on appeal. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Huber, 75 S. W. 547, 33 C. A. 75.

Where assignments of error relating to entirely different questions of law are grouped, and not briefed in compliance with the rules, they will not be reviewed. [Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 209.

The court of review will not subdivide and reconstruct assignments of error, in order to render a judgment for a technical error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Purdy (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 47.

In an action for injuries defendant grouped on appeal five assignments of error: First, that the evidence did not support the verdict; second, third, and fourth, that the court erred in refusing special charges; and, fifth, that the court erred in refusing a new trial because the facts showed contributory negligence. Held, that such assignments were not germane, and, as the propositions supporting the same related to all the assignments, they would not be reviewed. (Civ. App.) 57 C. A. 167, 83 S. W. 257, judgment affirmed, 99 T. 10, 87 S. W. 248.

An assignment of error complaining of two distinct rulings of the court is insufficient, and is not aided by propositions and statements in the brief explaining the several rulings. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Boykin (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1163.

Under the rule requiring that each point under each assignment of error shall be stated as a proposition, a number of assignments of error not followed by propositions, but each stated as a proposition in itself, presenting separate and distinct grounds for reversal cannot be presented together as one assignment. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

An assignment of error attempting to collect every point on which the appeal was based into one point held multifarious and fatally defective. Russell v. Deutschman (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1164.

An assignment of error based upon two separate and distinct rulings of the court, which rulings in each are likewise separate and distinct, is bad. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 250. An assignment of error involving two separate and distinct propositions, one raising a question of pleading and the other of evidence, is not entitled under the rules of the court of civil appeals to consideration. Dallas v. Politi, 45 C. A. 638, 101 S. W. 543. Assignments of error held improperly grouped under court of civil appeals rule 30, and will not be considered. Jones v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 808.

An assignment of error presenting many different propositions held not to be considered. Morrow v. Camp (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 819; Allen v. Same, Id.

Where an assignment of error is grouped and presented with other assignments to which it is not germane, none of such assignments are required to be considered. Wilkins v. Clawson, 56 C. A. 82, 116 S. W. 102.

Assignments of error held improperly grouped in appellant's brief, so that they could not be considered. Combat v. Wall (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 384.

Assignments of error grouped with other assignments of error which is wholly disconnected from that contained in the other portions of the assignment and from the other assignments is improperly placed in the group. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

Assignments of error, presenting disconnected questions which are grouped as one assignment, will not be considered. Munroe v. Munroe, 54 C. A. 320, 116 S. W. 578.

An assignment of error which embraces two or more questions which are not related will not be considered where appellant objects thereto. Land v. Roby, 66 C. A. 358, 129 S. W. 1057.

An assignment of error held not entitled to consideration because embracing two or more distinct and inconsistent propositions of law. J. T. Stark Grain Co. v. Harry Broy, 267 C. A. 538, 123 S. W. 947.

An assignment of error involving the decision of two separate questions held contrary to the rules of the court of civil appeals relating to the briefing of cases, and need not be considered. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

An assignment of error complaining of separate and distinct rulings of the court is improper. Adams v. Garner (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 896.

The matter in assignments of error held required to be separately presented. Car­ rico v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 260.

An assignment of error held not reviewable when containing several separate issues. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

An assignment of error held not objectionable as submitting two distinct propositions of law. Donnelly v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 311.

An assignment of error which presents three distinct propositions, contrary to court of civil appeals rule 29 (141 S. W. xiii) need not be considered on appeal. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

Assignments of error claiming that a specific finding is not supported by the evidence, and also of the court's charge, are improper, being multifarious. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

On appeal by plaintiff from a judgment in an action on a note, assignments of error complaining of refusal to sustain plaintiff's special exceptions to defendant's plea of suretyship, and to the admission of evidence thereof and to the submission thereof, held properly grouped as presenting substantially the same question of law. Wright v. Hulme (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 340.

Assignments presenting separate and distinct questions for decision are improperly grouped, under the rules, and are not entitled to consideration by the court. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Assignments of error presenting separate, distinct, and unrelated questions is violative of the rules, so that they will not be considered. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 534.

29. — Rulings on pleadings.—An assignment to the overruling of exceptions cannot be considered, where there were several exceptions on different grounds. Earle v. City of Henrietta (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 727: Homes v. Same, 10d. 728.

Where a finding of error in sustaining general and special demurrers is good only as to general demurrer, it will not be considered. Marshall v. Atascosa County (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 680.

Under rule 20, a single assignment of error in overruling several special demurrers presenting different questions cannot be considered. Devine v. United States Mortg. Co. of Scotland (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 585.

An assignment of error which complains of the court's action upon two motions seeking different relief and involving several questions will not be considered. Scott v. Farmers & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

An assignment of error complaining of court's ruling on six distinct special exceptions will not be considered. Scott v. De Witt, 42 C. A. 69, 93 S. W. 215.

Where the court erred in sustaining plaintiff's motion and second special exceptions is too general where the exceptions present different questions of law. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Cox, 43 S. A. 79, 56 S. W. 1124.

Where a motion to quash garnishment proceedings set out eight grounds, on appeal, the court will not consider all the grounds of assignment that the trial court erred in refusing to quash. Burge v. Beaumont Carriage Co., 47 C. A. 223, 106 S. W. 232.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's ruling on several distinct special exceptions will not be considered. Callaf v. Bandera Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 195.

An assignment of error in overruling special exceptions 1–29, inclusive, is too general to be considered. West Lumber Co. v. Cheesher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 976.

An assignment of error that the court erred in sustaining the special exception to the answer "subdivided into (a), (b), (c), and (d)," is multifarious. Hulme v. Levia-Zoloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 721.

30. — Rulings as to evidence.—An assignment of error specifying, as such, admission of evidence, part of which is competent, will not be considered. Pt. Worth Com­ press Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 18 C. A. 623, 45 S. W. 967.

An assignment of error complaining of the exclusion of evidence will not be considered, where there are various propositions in the assignment itself, as well as in the pur­ ported single proposition under it, and the ruling complained of is not disclosed. Grin­ nan v. Rousseaux, 48 S. W. 65, 781, 20 C. A. 19.

Assignments presenting two questions, the admissibility of testimony for the purpose of proof and for the purpose of contradiction, are not in such form as to require con­ sideration on appeal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. De Berry, 34 C. A. 130, 78 S. W. 736.

An assignment in the brief complaining of the introduction of a land office copy of the classification and appraisement of lands in controversy, because of a specific indorsement, cannot be considered, where the bill of exceptions extends as well to the classification and appraisement, which were admissible in evidence. Bynum v. Hobbs, 56 C. A. 557, 121 S. W. 900.

Where part of the testimony of a witness testifying by deposition is admissible and part inadmissible, an assignment complaining of the exclusion of all of the testimony will be overruled. O'Brien v. Von Lienen (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 723.
An assignment of error to the exclusion of evidence consisting of different written instruments, or the exclusion of oral testimony, the exclusion of all testimony, or the exclusion of all questions of law, will not be considered. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 330.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of the testimony of a certain witness as a whole could not be sustained where part of such testimony was admissible. Mort v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 555.

31. Instructions.—An assignment based on refusal of four distinct and separate charges, embodying different propositions, is too general. Railway Co. v. Donovan, 25 S. W. 10, 85 T. 378.

Where a paragraph of a charge presented plaintiff's whole case, including several issues of negligence, a general assignment of error held bad. Texas & O. R. Co. v. Echols, 17 C. A. 677, 41 S. W. 488.

Where one excepts to a charge to justify which there must be evidence on two propositions, and in his assignment of error he questions the existence of evidence as to only one proposition, he considers only one proposition and not the other. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eberheart, 91 T. 321, 43 S. W. 510.

Assignments of error to the refusal of the court to give different special charges presenting different phases of the case should not be grouped. Half v. Goldfrank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1065.

An assignment of error to the court's refusal to give five separate special instructions on different subjects held too general. Yecker v. San Antonio Traction Co., 33 C. A. 259, 76 S. W. 290.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, refusal of two requests to charge on different matters cannot be grouped in a single assignment of error. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Cain, 37 C. A. 631, 84 S. W. 682.

An assignment of error complaining of the court’s refusal to give several special charges involving separate rulings relating to different questions will not be considered. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 577.

Grouped assignments of error which complain of the court's refusal to give special instructions on distinct issues to the jury presenting no way connected with each other, will not be considered. Texas & O. R. Co. v. Texas Tram & Lumber Co., 50 C. A. 182, 119 S. W. 140.

A grouping of assignments of error on an appeal held to be a violation of the rules as to briefing. Scott v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 54 C. A. 54, 117 S. W. 890.

A single assignment of error complaining of the refusal to give special charges not germane to each other, and presenting distinct propositions of law, will not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Neiser, 54 C. A. 490, 118 S. W. 165.

An assignment of error in giving a charge which was joined with an assignment of error in refusing a requested charge, designed to supplement the charge given, was not a proper assignment and was rejected. O’Farrell v. O’Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 889.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal to give requested instructions embracing a number of distinct rules, and evidently intended to present, as shown by the only proposition advanced under it, the various principles deemed applicable to the issues, was not a compliance with the rules of the court of civil appeals. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Younger (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 530.

Assignments complaining of several separate charges, embracing several propositions of law as one proposition, are insufficient. Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 304.

An assignment of error in an action involving breach of warranty of title stated that the court erred in limiting the recovery on warranty B to two-sevenths of 157 acres, and refusing interest on the amount allowed except from date of judgment, and assigning its refusal a special charge asked by a defendant as to the measure of B's liability on his warranty. The two assignments of error were grouped and were followed by three propositions, the first being that B and S named were each liable for one-half of any loss of title; the second that the warranty was a one-sevenths property interest on each for one-half of the loss; and the third that interest should have been allowed against them from the date of their deed. Held, that the assignments contained two distinct propositions, so that they should not have been grouped. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1187.

An assignment of error, that the court erred in a paragraph of the charge because it assumed the defendant's negligence and charged on the weight of evidence, is objectionable, because it presents two separate propositions and does not under either of them separately present any ground of error. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Coff & Thompson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 573.

Under rule 32 (142 S. W. xii), it was improper to complain in one assignment that the court erred in refusing to peremptorily instruct for the appellant and in instructing the appellees. Dunlap v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 573.

32. Verdict, findings, or judgment.—Where an assignment of error sets forth several grounds in which the judgment is claimed to be contrary to the evidence, it will not be rejected as containing more than one subject. Ostrom v. Arnold, 24 C. A. 192, 58 S. W. 630.

An assignment of error that the verdict is excessive, outrageous, unconscionable, and manifestly in disregard of both law and evidence is objectionable, because raising more than one question. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 991.

An assignment of error, that a verdict is not supported by competent evidence and is excessive, is too general, since it combines two distinct alleged errors. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 728.

An assignment of error, submitted as a proposition, which complains both that a specific finding is not supported by the evidence, and also that it was reached because a portion of the verdict was upon an unadmitted error, will be considered, because it complains of more than one action of the court. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.
An assignment of error, which submitted as a proposition the impropriety of the finding by the court of certain issues, embracing four distinct issues of the cause, is insufficient both as an assignment and as a proposition. Id.

Assignments of error complaining of the judgment against a terminal carrier for delay in a shipment of live stock, averring that the court erred in rendering the judgment because of the evidence and findings of fact, and that the court erred in rendering judgment for the full amount demanded because the same was contrary to the law, evidence and pleadings in that the evidence showed that the greater part of the delay occurred before delivery to the terminal carrier, and that the court erred in rendering the judgment as the same was contrary to the weight of the evidence relating to the subject, and are properly grouped, and when followed by propositions distinctly pointing out the errors complained of and appropriate statements under each proposition the assignments are reviewable on appeal. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 292.

An assignment of error that the verdict is contrary to law and the evidence, is not supported by the evidence and is excessive, held objectionable for multifariousness. Karrig & O. C. Worsham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 725.

33. --- Motions for new trial.—An assignment embracing the whole motion for a new trial and eight pages of the record, and including all the points previously raised, will not be considered. Cooper v. Lee, 1 C. A. 9, 21 S. W. 968.

It is improper for appellant to group assignments of error complaining of the overruling of its motion for a new trial because the verdict was contrary to the charge and the facts proved for various reasons. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 37 C. A. 465, 84 S. W. 410.

Where there were several grounds for a motion for a new trial, that assignment that the court erred in overruling the motion was too general to be considered on appeal. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 61 C. A. 351, 112 S. W. 430.

Fails to point out an assignment of error to refer to the motion for a new trial for the points raised, if the motion presents several distinct grounds or points, the assignment must be disregarded as being multifarious. Hemphill v. National Iron & Steel Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 846.

An assignment of error that the refusal of a motion for a new trial based on several grounds is not properly reviewable where it is submitted as a proposition itself. Freeman v. McElroy (App.) 149 S. W. 428.

34. Propositions and statements accompanying assignments of error.—Where assignments of error are not presented in accordance with rule 29 (20 S. W. viii), they will not be considered. Davis v. Converse (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 910.

The appellate court will insist that rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), prescribing the form of statements, be observed. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 306.

In a motion for a new trial related rule 11a contemplates rule 24 and 25 (142 S. W. xii) for courts of civil appeals, and also disregarded rules 31, 32, and 58 (142 S. W. xiii, xvi) for the court of civil appeals. The assignments, propositions, and statements could not be considered over appellate's objections. De Lay v. Wolfarth (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1039.

An assignment of error, which is practically concealed in the brief, and is not followed by a proposition, with complaint from the record, showing the content of a letter the exclusion of which is assigned as error, will be ignored. Bryant v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 832.

An assignment of error to the overruling of the defendant's demurrer and special exceptions to the petition, under which no proposition of law is advanced, is too general. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Calnon, 50 S. W. 422, 20 C. A. 697; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Griffin, 65 S. W. 661, 27 C. A. 396.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's action in overruling plaintiff's general demurrer to the defendant's answer, not submitted as a proposition, or followed by a proposition or statement, will not be considered by the appellate court. Adcock v. Creighton, 65 S. W. 42, 27 C. A. 243.

Where an assignment of error complains of rulings on more than one ground, and is submitted with another assignment complaining of another ruling, and no proposition is submitted under such assignments, they should not be considered. Barrett v. Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1128.

An assignment of error alleging inconsistency between the main charge and a special charge will not be considered where there is no proposition therein or elsewhere presented under the same. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butchek, 78 S. W. 740, 34 C. 17.

Under rules 30 and 34 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error that the court erred in overruling a demurrer to the petition, not followed by a proposition pointing out the defect, is insufficient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

Where neither proposition under an assignment of error presents the question of variance between the pleading and the proof, a consideration of the question of variance is unauthorized. International Harvester Co. of America v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 95.

Where exceptions to a pleading are raised by special demurrers, the question is whether the matters attacked are properly pleaded, and an assignment that the court erred in its rulings must be followed by a proposition dealing with that question. McCain v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 769.

An assignment of error that the charge should have excluded from the measure of damages for conversion of cattle the cost of transportation to a certain place will not be considered, where, if such an issue was raised by the evidence or even by the pleadings, it is not suggested either in the assignment, the proposition, the statement, or the argument submitted under the assignment. St. Louis, I. & M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Cassady Southwestern Commission Co., 48 C. A. 484, 107 S. W. 925.

Assignments of error, which are not propositions in themselves, and which present nothing in the brief but a statement from the evidence, do not meet the requirement that they state a definite proposition, notwithstanding there is what purports to be a proposition in each; and where there are ten assignments, none of them informing the court that appellant relies on some one point in the so-called propositions, the assignments will not be considered by the court on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Janert, 49 C. A. 17, 107 S. W. 963.

Assignments of error which are not stated as in themselves propositions, and which do not "disclose the point relied on," are not sufficient under rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi).

An assignment attacking the sufficiency of evidence to support the verdict is not reviewable by the court of civil appeals, when not accompanied by a proposition or statement as required by the rules. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Lasater, 53 C. A. 51, 115 S. W. 105.

The court of civil appeals will not refuse to consider an assignment of error complaining of an instruction merely because the point is not presented in the brief by such proposition as is contemplated by the rules. Keystone Mills Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 178.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of a charge, which is long and embraces a number of distinct propositions of law, must be followed by propositions in the brief pointing out the particulars in which it is claimed there was error. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 839.

Assignments must be overruled when not briefed according to rules, in that they are unaccompanied by appropriate propositions within the assignments. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Blies & Ruby, 56 C. A. 193, 130 S. W. 962.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to allow the defeated party to give a man's name and err in not granting a new trial because the verdict was contrary to law, and because the verdict was contrary to the evidence, not followed up in the brief by any proposition nor by a statement showing what the record contained pertinent to the assignments, are too general, and will not be considered. Smith v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 821.

An assignment of error complaining of the overruling of an exception to a part of the pleading held insufficient. Brown v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 657.

The assignments in declinatory order should be justified under an assignment of error where no proposition is submitted. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

The office of a proposition is specifically the question of law intended to be considered by the appellate court, and the appellate court cannot consider any question not suggested by a proposition if the assignment is not relied on as such, nor need appellee answer such questions. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 904.

An assignment of error having no proposition submitted thereunder, and not referring to a proposition or statement subjoined thereto, as required by rules 25 and 31, will not be considered. Morrison v. Hammack (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 494.

Assignments of error not supported by propositions and statements as required by the rules sufficient to advise the court of the reasons why appellee contends that they were well taken, and which leave the court to conjecture, present nothing for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1125.

Where an assignment of error is not supported by a proposition, and cannot be considered as such because multifarious, and is not supported by a statement, it will not be considered. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 731.

An assignment of error, in that a charge authorized a double recovery, cannot be considered, where the question of double recovery is not presented in a separate proposition under the assignment. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 353.

An assignment of error having no proposition submitted thereunder, and not referring to propositions or statements, will not be considered. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 325.

The contention that appellee should have been allowed to deduct from appellee's share on sale of a site of land certain expenses, not presented as an independent proposition, but under an assignment alleging that the court erred in rendering any judgment, will not be considered. Thomas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1040.

Where an insurer desires to complain of the judgment which denied it relief on its cross-action, by which it claimed compensation for money expended in salvage, it must raise the point either by an assignment of error, or by a proposition under an assignment in which the point is sufficiently made. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

36. Sufficiency of propositions in general.—Where assignments of error in rulings on general and special exceptions to pleadings, admission and exclusion of testimony, in the court's general charge and failure to charge, are all copied together in the brief, and followed by separate and distinct propositions, which do not relate to all such assignments, no compliance is shown with rule 30. International & G. N. R. Co. v. True, 57 S. W. 977; 23 C. A. 523.

An assignment of error complaining of a charge on the ground that it imposes on defendant a greater burden than the law requires, which is followed by a proposition attacking the charge as being an abstract proposition of law, and incomplete because not applied to the facts of the case, should not be considered on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Glasgow, 845, 29 S. W. 2d, 76 S. W. 1172; 23 C. A. 434.

Under an assignment of error complaining of the error of the court in not granting a change of venue, the proposition that the motion for a change of venue should have been granted is not an appropriate proposition, and the assignment will not be reviewed on appeal. Mack v. Raphael (App.) 96 S. W. 760.

An assignment of error that the court, in an action by an employee against a railway company for its failure to furnish the employee with medical treatment and hospital privileges, erred in admitting the company's "secret rule blank form of express contract in evidence over objections," followed by a proposition that the company's "secret rule and bastard form of memorandum agreement or express contract," printed subsequent to the date of plaintiff's employment, not shown to have been communicated to the employee, was incompetent to bind plaintiff, presents nothing for review, under rules 54, 39, and 31 (97 S. W. xv. vii). Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 46 C. A. 345, 100 S. W. 985.

The fourth and fifth assignments alleged in general terms that the court erred in giving the charges therein quoted. No formal proposition was submitted under either of the assignments, but under the head of "Argument" under the fourth, reference was made to a proposition under another assignment that the evidence showed that the alleged agent had not actual authority to make the contract sued on, and, under the fifth under the head of "Argument," reference was made to a proposition under another assignment that the charges contained in the plaintiffs' answers were not bound, through the agent's contract sued on. Held that, though it was doubtful whether the assignments had been briefed in such manner as to require review, yet, treating what was termed "Argument" as both a proposition and a statement, the court might determine whether the evidence raised the issues submitted in the charges quoted in the assignments. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 847, reversed 101 T. 440, 108 S. W. 811.

Where, on appeal, appellee assigned as error the act of the court in rendering judgment contrary to the law and evidence, but not the law and evidence, the propositions thereunder specified the fact or facts in issue which the evidence was insufficient to prove, as required by the statute and rules, they could not be considered. Cain v. State, 47 C. A. 382, 106 S. W. 778.

A proposition complaining that an instruction stated that testator's declarations were competent to establish the influence and effect of the supposed undue influence does not raise the question that the charge is on the weight of evidence. Stubb v. Marshall, 54 C. A. 525, 117 S. W. 1000.

Rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), held, that an assignment of error and proposition complaining of the giving of a special charge could not be reviewed. Rudolph v. Price (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1037.

Because of the insufficiency of the statement and proposition subjoined to an assignment, plaintiff held, that the error of the charge, held on by a remittitur, should be reviewed. Matador Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461.

Where assignments of error are multiform, argumentative, and confusing, and the propositions are not germane to the assignments, and some of the assignments are not copies of those filed in the trial court, and the statements make little reference to the record, the assignments will not be considered. Hardy v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 550.

An assignment of error, followed merely by an alleged proposition stating that the court erred because there was nothing in the record to show certain facts, and not followed by any statement except an invitation to search the record, will not be reviewed. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 130.

A proposition under an assignment which does not disclose the point is insufficient, and hence will not be considered. City of Houston v. Merkel (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 382.

An insufficient proposition will not be considered. City of Houston v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 387.

Where the court filed a statement of facts and conclusions of law, an assignment of error by defendant that the court erred in rendering judgment for plaintiff because the undisputed evidence, evidenced by a specified fact, followed by a proposition stating on which estoppel was predicated, raised the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment. Nicholson v. Lieber (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 611.

Propositions, in a suit for specific performance, that it was error to instruct that if vendor had paid all equities specific performance could not be decreed, and that it was error to instruct that, unless the purchaser from the vendor had such actual notice as would put him on inquiry the jury should find for him, held insufficient. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911.

An assignment, that "the court erred in sustaining the demurrer to suggestions of improvements," subjoined by the proposition that "defendant's amended suggestion of improvements was pleaded in accordance with the statutes and defendant was entitled to their vantage point," followed by the statement that "defendant's first amended suggestion of improvements was in accordance with the statutes of Texas, Art. 4813, which is the present law," cannot be considered, under court rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii). Smith v. Adoue & Lobit (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 268.

An action on a marine insurance policy, assignments of error on the part of the insurer held not to present the question whether it was improperly denied compensation for money expended in salvage. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

37. Necessity of specific proposition.—Where appellant's brief subjoined additional propositions under an assignment of error emphasizing certain points, all of which were fairly raised by the assignment of error, it is not a waiver of points covered by the general proposition, but not in such additional propositions. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 255.

An assignment of error alleging that "the special findings of the jury were not sufficient to authorize the judgment" will not be considered on appeal, because too general, and not in itself a proposition, or followed by a proposition, as required by rules 29 and 30 (47 S. W. v.). Yeager v. Neil, 64 S. W. 791, 26 C. A. 414.

Under 25, 30, 40, and 41 (47 S. W. xv, xvi), an assignment is insufficient which merely specifies a number of things in regard to which the court erred in its instructions, stating, as to several of them, that there was no evidence to warrant them, but making no reference to the record, which is then followed by a proposition that the court must, in applying the law to all the features which are pleaded and proved, and must not give too much prominence to any one feature, following which is no statement. Holton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co., 71 S. W. 495, 31 C. A. 128.

Under an assignment of error, that the evidence discloses the verdict was excessive, it is error to refuse the verdict, and grant a new trial, presents nothing tangible for review. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Middleton (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1097.

It was improper for plaintiff in error to subjoin to an assignment of error a statement of two abstract propositions of law. McDonald v. Downs, 45 C. A. 215, 99 S. W. 83.

Propositions under assignments of error that a charge does not correctly state the law applicable to the case is erroneous, and that a charge that is indefinite and so much so as to be confusing is erroneous, are too general to be available. Gilmore v. Houston Electric Co., 46 C. A. 215, 102 S. W. 105.
An assignment of error, which embraces several entirely distinct propositions, and which is not followed by a single general proposition, will not be considered. Luling Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Gohnert, 50 C. A. 666, 110 S. W. 772.

Where a proposition under an assignment of error to the overruling of a demurrer to the petition was general and abstract and was not followed by a statement, the assignment was not properly presented. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 55 C. A. 446, 119 S. W. 718.

An assignment of error, followed by an abstract proposition of law and no statement, will not be considered. Broussard v. South Texas Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 587.

Where an assignment of error, following an assignment of fact by the court, considers the general or abstract proposition of law, it must be considered. Id.

An assignment of error assailed the findings of fact on the ground that there was no evidence to sustain them. An assignment of fact by the court should reflect the spirit and substance of the matters from which he finds, otherwise the finding is insufficient and should not be sustained." The statement did not pretend to show from the evidence that the facts so found were not supported by evidence. Held, that the assignment would not be considered. Weln v. Martinez, 57 C. A. 449, 124 S. W. 116.

Under rule 31 (102 Tex. xxx, 142 S. W. xiii), propositions submitted under assignments of error in which mere abstract rules of law are submitted as formal propositions, without appropriate statements of the evidence, and containing a statement referring to more than 100 pages of the statement of facts, would not be considered. Gibson v. Oberfelder (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 829.

Assignment treated as proposition.—An assignment that the court erred in overruling specified exceptions to plaintiff's petition is not itself a proposition, within the meaning of rules 29-32 (Civ. App.) 29-32 (Civ. App.) 29-32. Broussard v. Brite, 47 S. W. 552.

An assignment of error for reconsidering a motion previously overruled, and sustaining the motion, not being a proposition within itself, if not followed up by an appropriate proposition, is not entitled to revision. Atkins v. Galbraith, 16 C. A. 175, 30 S. W. 291.

Assignments of error, at the separate numbered headings, and the subjoined assignments of error as a proposition within themselves, which are as follows." Each of the assignments referred to a different clause of the charge. No statement was appended to the assignment, and no propositions, apart from the assignments themselves, were appended. Held, that the errors could not be considered, because not specifically assigned, and accompanied with their appropriate propositions and statements. Rules Ct. Civ. App. 28-32 (26 S. W. vii). D'Arrigo v. Texas Produce Co., 44 S. W. 531, 18 C. A. 41.

An assignment of error in not giving a jury special charge No. 5 asked by the plaintiff, which was refused, followed by a copy of the charge, not being a proposition in itself, and not being followed by any proposition pointing out the error of which complaint is made, will be considered on appeal as waived. Boone v. Herman News Co., 66 S. W. 315, 27 C. A. 546.

An assignment of error that the court erred in overruling the motions for a new trial and for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, for the reasons set forth in the motions, not followed by any proposition, but submitted as a proposition in itself, will not be considered, it being too general. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485, reversed 76 S. W. 7, 97 Tex. 31, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling certain defendants' motion to reform the judgment by striking out the part against them, etc., to which no proposition was appended, as required by the rules of the appellate court, could not be considered on appeal, the assignment being too general to be regarded as a proposition of itself. Robinson v. Chamberlain, 18 S. W. 299, 29 C. A. 170.

Where an immediately following a part of an assignment of error to an instruction was printed the word "Proposition," which was followed by the remaining part of the assignment, containing the reasons given for the charge being erroneous, such assignment did not comply with the rules, and could not be reviewed. Necker v. San Antonio Traction Co., 76 S. W. 780, 23 C. A. 239.

Assignments of error which are propositions in themselves are not objectionable for failure to be followed by propositions. Castellano v. Marks, 37 C. A. 273, 83 S. W. 729; Steiner v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 291.

Assignments of error are not such as to obviate the necessity of making propositions or for some reason record of such matters as would be necessary to explain in them, as required by rules 30 and 31 (67 S. W. xvi), the first assignment being followed by a mere reference to a statement heading the brief, containing a slightly condensed statement of the whole case, pleadings, evidence, orders, and judgment, and the other assignments not having even this by way of statement will not be considered. Kilday v. Perkins, 99 S. W. 215.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to give a special charge on the law of agency and of the liability of principals for acts of agents, because the pleadings disclose the law, is not a proposition within the meaning of the court of appeals, for it fails to indicate the question sought to be presented. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

An assignment that the court erred in refusing an instruction that there was no assumption of negligence on defendant's part from the mere happening of the accident and the resulting injury to plaintiff, a servant, though the jury should believe that it was caused by the negligent act of plaintiff's fellow servant, but that, in order for plaintiff to recover, it was necessary that he should show that the accident was proximately.
courts of civil appeals

caused by the fellow servant's incompetency, and that defendant was negligent in employing him, and was not a propositional servant, was therefore not reviewable on appeal when submitted as a proposition.

An assignment of error in refusing to allow plaintiff to read cross-examinatories and answers thereto admitted that he had been convicted and imprisoned, was merely a statement that the court erred in refusing to allow the answers to be read, and not a proposition stating the point relied on, so that it will not be considered.

An assignment of error, which the court erred in instructing to return a verdict for defendant, that was not, is not reviewable.

The court rules require assignments of error to be followed by distinct propositions, and simply designating an assignment a proposition does not make it one.

Where an assignment of error is erroneously stated as a proposition, and is not followed by any further proposition, but contained several distinct propositions embraced in a charge requested by appellant, and refused, it will not be reviewed.

An assignment of error which contains more than one proposition cannot be submitted as a proposition, and in such case the assignment must be followed by one or more pertinent propositions.

An assignment of error, which is a proposition, as not a proposition of law will not be considered.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to charge that if the work in doing the injury was done in a personal capacity, the workman engaged on the road with the master, though the work could have been done less laboriously with more men, the master was not guilty of negligence, is not a proposition in itself, but must be followed by a proposition under court of civil appeals rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wafer (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 712.

An assignment of error in refusing to charge that if a servant was (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 363.

In an action for commissions on the sale of goods, an assignment that the court erred in permitting plaintiff to be recalled after the jury had received the charge and retired (67 S. W. xvi) must be followed by propositions.

An assignment of error containing within itself a correct proposition of law is insufficient where it is necessary to refer to the motion for new trial to ascertain the points raised by the assignment.

An assignment of error in overruling a motion for a new trial, which was not followed by a proposition elucidating the matter complained of, and not being treated in appellant's brief as a proposition, would not be considered. Rudolph v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 206.

Under rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error can be submitted as a proposition on trial only when it discloses the exact point sought to be raised. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

An assignment of error held bad as an attempt to raise all material issues in the appeal without separate propositions. Id.

Under court rule 32 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error containing a proposition that it was an error to allow a witness to testify to what he saw third persons doing, and error not to permit the witness to state what instructions he gave them, will not be considered, because containing two separate propositions. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 271.

An assignment of errors submitted as a proposition was insufficient in failing to show how a special finding was not sustained by the evidence. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 935.

Assignments of error submitted as propositions, without disclosing the point, as required by rule 30 (142 S. W. xiii), will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Crippen (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 361; Anderson v. Crow (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

The propositions under assignments of error are a necessary part of the point for consideration, unless the assignment itself presents but one point of law, and is in form of a proposition. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 468.

An assignment of error submitted as a proposition, which recited error in permitting plaintiff to testify over objection to the market value of property before and after it was injured when plaintiff had testified that he did not know the market value in that vicinity, held sufficient as a proposition and to sufficiently point out the part of the proceedings on which error was complained of, under rules 24 & 25 (142 S. W. xii). Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 261.

39. Statement treated as proposition.—Objection to consideration of an assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a charge, set out, that it is not, as required by rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi), followed by a proposition pointing out the error being insisted on, will be sustained, though statements of evidence follow from which it can be inferred what was considered as the error. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Higgins, 55 S. W. 744, 22 C. A. 430.

A statement that the court erred in refusing to permit defendants to offer in evidence the authorized printed abstracts of land titles of the state, and the official map of Hardin county lands, to show the location and date of the lease in controversy, more fully shown by defendant's bill of exceptions, No. 12, was not available as a proposition. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 692.

40. Relevancy of proposition to assignment.—Where an assignment of error questions the existence of evidence as to only one of two propositions on which an instruction is based, the court will not, under rule 29 (20 S. W. viii), consider whether there was evidence upon the other point. Judgment (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1060, affirmed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eberheart, 45 S. W. 510, 91 T. 321.

Where propositions submitted to the appellate tribunal on an assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to give certain instructions relate more to what was given in the main charge than to the refusal to give instructions, the propositions are not germane, and will not be considered. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 166, reversed on rehearing Id. 544.

Where an assignment of error complains of part of an instruction as assuming certain facts, the complaint of that part of the instruction as to the preponderance of the evidence is not raised by the assignment of error, and cannot be presented in a proposition not based on an assignment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 882.

An assignment of error in not sustaining defendant's general demurrer to the petition because "plaintiffs do not allege that there was no administration of the estate of the only owner, and that there was no necessity therefor, the same as the record to show such facts," will not support a proposition that it was necessary to prove such facts, nor does it raise the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the judgment on that issue. Huey v. Mooby, 71 S. W. 395, 11 C. A. 76.

On appeal, defendant assigned as error that the court erred in overruling its motion. for a new trial because the verdict was contrary to the evidence, the preponderance of the evidence showed that the defendant did not know of any injury to the person of the other servant, that he was able-bodied so far as appearances disclosed, and the proposition was that the uncontroverted evidence showed that the other servant was to all outward appearances able-bodied, and that there was no evidence that he was not, or that of an injury of any kind. Held that the issue as to whether there was any evidence to support the verdict, the proposition was not germane to the assignment. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 74 S. W. 345, 32 C. A. 25.

A proposition under an assignment of error stating that the evidence was insufficient was not correct. It was sufficient to call the court's attention to the issue involved, and to require it to give a proper charge on the subject, cannot be considered in the absence of an assignment alleging that the court should, in view of the request, have given another and proper charge. Life Assur. Soc. v. Equitable Liv. Ins. Co. 78 S. W. 560; El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Harry, 37 C. A. 96, 83 S. W. 735.

Where appellant's objection to certain charges is explicitly stated in the assignments, they cannot be enlarged by the propositions submitted under them. Faubion v. Western Union Tel. Co., 81 S. W. 56, 36 C. A. 93.

A subsidiary proposition that, if the evidence showed any negligence, it further showed that a joint tort feasor negligently did the act which occasioned the collision, and that, except for a settlement by plaintiff with the joint tort feasor, defendant would have been entitled to an action against it, was not authorized by an assignment of error that the court erred in refusing to direct a verdict on account of the insufficiency of the evidence to show negligence, and because of the evidence of accord and satisfaction, and such proposition was, therefore, not entitled to consideration. Robertson v. Trammell, 37 C. A. 53, 83 S. W. 258, writ of error denied 83 S. W. 1098, 98 T. 394.

On appeal from a judgment restraining a sale of real estate under an execution, a proposition that it did not appear that such a cloud could be cast on the debtor's land by the proceedings to issue an injunction until the proceedings were annulled, was not involved in the assignments of error that the court erred in rendering judgment because the evidence showed that the property levied on was not the debtor's homestead, and because the evidence showed that the debtor had abandoned the premises as a homestead, and hence will not be considered. Mansur v. Tibbett Implement Co. v. Graham (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 308.

A verdict, having some evidence to support it, will not be disturbed under an assignment of error that the verdict is contrary to the evidence, the only proposition that it being that "a verdict without evidence to support it is void." Stewart v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 310.

A proposition stating that when defendant files an affidavit that a deed under which plaintiff stands a party of record to the sale from the debtor of the deed is cast upon plaintiff, is not germane to assignments of error complaining of the admission of evidence of the execution of an alleged forged deed because not shown to have been executed or acknowledged in the form prescribed by law, and such assignments need not be considered. Sargent v. Spragin, 39 C. A. 60, 88 S. W. 293.

A proposition stating that the burden is on plaintiff to prove the execution of a deed which was lost and not recorded, is not germane to assignments of error complaining of the admission of testimony of the acknowledgment and execution of the deed and the certificate of acknowledgment and of immateriality. The proposition under an assignment of error, required by rule 30 (67 S. W. xvi), unless the assignment itself sufficiently discloses the point: "In construing garnishment papers, the court looked to the original garnishment papers filed in the original case, and also to all affidavits filed in the garnishment case for the purpose of obtaining the writ of garnishment must be construed together in ascertaining if all papers necessary to authorize issuance of garnishment have been filed"—is insufficient, because the proposition of error, complaining of the admission of evidence of the court erred in sustaining the motion to quash the writ of garnishment and in dismissing the garnishment proceeding, because the application therefor was in full compliance with the law. Lowenthal-Harrison Co. v. Edmiston Bros, 49 C. A. 265, 59 S. W. 398.

The propositions that the evidence was insufficient to sustain the allegations of the answer, and that defendant's promise to pay a debt due T. by plaintiff was within the statute of frauds, cannot arise under an assignment of error aimed at the action of the court in overruling exceptions to the answer alleging that defendant paid certain sums to T. at the instance and request of plaintiff and on plaintiff's promise to repay it. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 714.

An additional proposition not embraced within the assignment of error cannot be considered on appeal. London v. Crow, 46 C. A. 190, 102 S. W. 177.

A proposition as to what the measure of damages for breach of contract to sell and deliver petroleum oil should be, formulated under an assignment complaining of the insufficiency of the market value, will not be entertained. San Jacinto Oil Co. v. Texas Co., 47 C. A. 477, 105 S. W. 1163.

A proposition that the recitals in an administrator's deed are conclusive on collateral attack was not germane to an assignment of error to a finding that L. made the sale and administered under an order of sale issued to him in that capacity. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

Where an assignment of error objected to the admission of certain evidence, but did not involve the court's failure to strike it out, the appellate court could only review the admissibility of the evidence, and the court was authorized under the assignment, and being unauthorized to consider anything embraced in the proposition not fairly evolved from the assignment. Pullman Co. v. Vanderboeven, 48 C. A. 414, 107 S. W. 147.

Where an assignment of error does not involve an objection to the designated paragraph of a charge, the proposition complaining of error in the paragraph will not be considered. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. De Hernandez, 49 C. A. 360, 108 S. W. 765.

A party is not entitled to consider objections to the petition and the relief prayed for is not germane to the assignment of error that plain

A proposition that a survey without a concession or order of survey is not a legal appropriation of land nor notice that the land was appropriated is not pertinent to an assignment of error complaining of the admission in evidence of copies of record from a survey. Sullivan v. C. A. 464, 114 S. W. 938.

A proposition that it is not competent to establish heirship by hearsay evidence is not germane to the assignment of error attacking the finding of heirship because not supported by evidence. Id.

A proposition that, so long as title to public land is imperfect, the land belongs to the state, and that public lands are not a lawful subject-matter of private contract, and any attempt to convey the same passes no interest therein, has no relation to an assignment of error in evidence of an agreement between one claiming land by virtue of a location and survey for him and in construing the instrument as a deed conveying the land, and need not be considered on appeal. Sims v. Sealy, 53 C. A. 518, 115 S. W. 550.

In an action for divorce alleged to be aside a deed to property taken in defendant's name, claimed to have been purchased with plaintiff's separate property, held, that the proposition following the assignment of error to the refusal of defendant's request for instructions could not be fairly deduced from the assignment. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

An assignment need not set forth the reasons the action of the court is claimed to be erroneous, and it is sufficient if the ruling complained of is pointed out, and, where a reason is stated, other reasons may be urged in the proposition germane to the assignment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James, 55 C. A. 588, 120 S. W. 260.

A proposition that the charge was erroneous, for the reason that it authorized recovery on a certain state of facts and omitted one essential fact set up in the petition, is not in regard to submit issue of fact as to falsity or nonexistence of fact, and the question sought to be raised by it will not be decided. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lenz, 56 C. A. 495, 120 S. W. 942.

Where a proposition under assignments of error are not germane to the assignments, or are general and indefinite, failing to specify with certainty the particular error complained of, they are insufficient under court of civil appeals rules 30-32 (67 S. W. xvi). Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 304.

The proposition that, when an item is lost by a carrier or damaged so as to render it worthless, a correct measure of damages must be established by competent evidence, is entirely outside an assignment that the court erred in rendering judgment for plaintiff in an amount named because there is not sufficient evidence to support a judgment in that sum. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Giles (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 282.

Where an assignment of error complained of the refusal of a requested instruction to find for defendant on his plea in reconvention, a proposition advanced thereunder, that the plea in reconvention to sustain his peremptory charge to find against the plea should not have been given, does not support the assignment. Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 882, rehearing denied First State Bank v. Jones & Nixon (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 115.

Under rules 30 and 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error will not be considered where the proposition under it is not germane to the assignment, and where the statement following the proposition fails to point out any evidence in the record presenting the question. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 576.

In an action against connecting carriers of live stock to recover damages caused by delay in transportation in defendant's handling of beef shipped to plaintiff, held, that the assignment showed a conflict of evidence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Buchanan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 550.

In an action against a telegraph company for erroneously transmitting a message authorizing a recovery on specified conditions does not involve a question of absence of allegations in the petition, and as none of allegations in the pleading were denied, it was error to submit an issue, was not germane, and would not be considered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Buchanan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 550.

In an action against connecting carriers of live stock to recover damages caused by delay in transportation in defendant's handling of beef shipped to plaintiff, that the assignment showed a conflict of evidence. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

In an action for injury to an employee, an assignment of error to refusal to direct a verdict for defendant is insufficient to present propositions concerning the employer's duty to provide a reasonably safe place of work and to warn employees representing themselves to be experienced, where the evidence was conflicting on material issues, and where it referred to under the heading of evidence. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 363.

In an action for burning of a cotton compress, alleged to have been caused by the burning of coal instead of oil, in the engines of the defendant, an assignment of error, in instructing testimony on behalf of defendant, that other roads used in the system were decreasing the number of their oil-burning engines, did not support a proposition in the assignment that the court should not have permitted a witness to testify that changes made defense's road because of a belief that oil could not be substituted for the operation of its engines, not being germane to the assignment. Nacogdoches Compress Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 302.

In an action for damage caused by delay in transporting cattle, the railroad company assigned as error it was not supported by the pleadings and proof, and, second, gave an incorrect measure of damages resulting from the negligence therein submitted, in that a decline in the market at destination could not be considered in estimating damages for improper care of the cattle in the pens at an intermediate... point, as could be done in estimating damages for negligent delay in reaching destination, and the court gives the claimant damages for the risk of damages a new trial should have been granted." Held, that the proposition was not germane to the assignment of error, and hence could not be considered. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Drahm (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 557.

The question of whether the assignment of error was not raised by a proposition in support of an assignment of error that there is no competent testimony to support verdict. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 725.

A proposition that negligence was different from that charged by the court is not germane to the assignment that the court erred in a paragraph of the charge because it assumed negligence of defendant and charged on the weight of evidence. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Goff & Thompson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 573.

Provision that verdict was against the weight of evidence was not reviewable, under assignment that the evidence did not show defendant negligent. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wells (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 648.

Where the submission of a special issue as to the soundness of deceased's mind when he conveyed property as inapplicable to the facts was not supported by propositions that, unless the proof showed that the wife of deceased was incurably insane when the deed was executed, deceased would have no right to convey the property, and if not deprive his wife or children, but might not convey the homestead while she is legally incapacitated. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

A risk ordinarily incident to the servant's employment, to refusal of instruction on which assignment of error is made, is different from risk from obvious defect or obvious failure to perform the servant, to which reference in the assignment, confining appellant thereto, is addressed. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Kurz (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 658.

When an assignment of error complained of a variance between the pleadings and proof, it was not supported by propositions relating to contradictory allegations in the pleadings. Garza v. Alamo Live Stock Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 687.

Where an assignment of error only raised the question that there was no evidence to support the verdict, a proposition, if intended to attack the verdict as against the preponderance of the evidence, was not germane to the assignment. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Longini (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 888.

So far as the propositions under an assignment of error to the giving of an instruction and the objections not raised in the assignments and presenting the question of measure of damages for injury to an engine, would not be considered. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.

Under an assignment complaining of the refusal of special charges upon the issues of limitation, a proposition relating to the measure of damages is not germane, and hence will not be considered. C. v. of Houston v. Merkel (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 386.

Where an action was for damages for conversion of parts of a tractor engine, assignments of error, followed by a proposition on a subject different from that attempted to be raised in the assignments and presenting the question of measure of damages for injury to an engine, would not be considered. Ward v. Odem (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 634.

On appeal, in trespass to try title, a proposition relating to the question of limitations cannot be considered under an assignment of error based on the refusal of the court to strike out certain deeds. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 829.

A proposition relating to defects in an instrument held not to be considered on appeal under an assignment of error to the refusal of the court to strike out subsequent deeds. Id.

Where the charge refused, according to the assignment of error thereto, was based upon a wholly different legal proposition from the charge indicated in the proposition under the assignment, the assignment cannot be reviewed. Hutto v. Hall (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1022.

Relevancy of proposition to case.—Where an action is based on an order drawn by a contractor for the construction of a building on the owner in favor of a materialman, a proposition that, in a suit upon a contract which is not proved, there being no declaration for the value of the work done, the case of plaintiff fails, and no recovery can be had on a quantum meruit or valebat on an implied contract not declared on, cannot be considered on writ of error, the record containing no evidence of any implied contract. Foley v. Houston Co-op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 160.

In a suit to set aside a former judgment in a trial of the right of property and return the amount in a certain amount was finally rendered for defendant. Defendant on appeal assigned that the court erred in overruling his motion for a new trial. The assignment was followed by the proposition that before a judgment can be reopened the party seeking such relief must offer to pay and make tender of the amount justly due. Held, that the assignment cannot be considered: it being too general, and not aided by the proposition, which has no application to the case. Ryan v. Teague, 50 C. A. 153, 116 S. W. 117.

The proposition, under an assignment of error, that, the issue of contributory negligence having been raised by the pleadings and evidence, it was error not to submit such issue to the jury can not be sustained: the record shows, there being no evidence tending to raise such issue, and none appearing in the record. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 145.

An assignment of error will not be reviewed where the proposition under such assignment is not supported by the statement of facts. Martin v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1060.

Propositions advanced under an assignment of error improperly taken cannot themselves be considered. Thos. Goggin & Bro. v. Goggin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.
42. Multifarious propositions.—Under rules 24-26, 29-32 (2 S. W. viii), assignment of error considered should be followed by distinct propositions, and the writer of it should quote the authority in which the proposition is stated. Cage v. Tucker's Heirs, 60 S. W. 579, 25 C. A. 45.

When review of the introduction in evidence of a letter by which defendant acknowledged the correctness of a statement of the account sued on, and another assignment complained of the introduction of the account attached to plaintiff's petition, such assignments each required a separate and distinct proposition. W. 146 of 968; State v. Chamberlain, 68 S. W. 200, 29 C. A. 170.

Where a brief on appeal contained three assignments of error, submitted as one proposition, with each relating to different subjects, it was error to state that the assignments could only be ascertained by inspection of the entire record, and there was no proposition submitted under such assignments, the judgment will be affirmed. Maldonado v. Arthur (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 662.

A proposition in the brief that a special instruction was argumentative, contradictory, misleading, and on the weight of evidence is not proper, as it states more than a single proposition. Reeves v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 44 C. A. 352, 88 S. W. 929.

An assignment of error will not be considered where the proposition contains two separate propositions of law, one that the charge is on the weight of the evidence and the other that it gives undue prominence to plaintiff's contention. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Alama (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 271.

Nor will an assignment be considered, where the proposition alleges that the instruction failed to apply the law, and that it was misleading. Id.

Nor an assignment in which the proposition is to the effect that the charge was misleading, and that it was so framed as to intimate to the jury the opinion of the court. Id.

Nor an assignment in which the proposition is that the charge was misleading, and that the jury was on an issue not made by the testimony. Id.

Where an assignment of error stated that the court erred in a certain paragraph of his general charge, and the paragraph objected to submitted more than one proposition of law, and the proposition under the assignment stated that the paragraph objected to was on the weight of the evidence and did not announce correct principles of law, such assignment and proposition failed to conform with rules 29 and 32 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Riley v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 681.

An assignment of error, in an action by a former partner of a firm, which sold its business to a defendant corporation, to recover a number of corporate shares or their reasonable value, upon the admission of evidence, because "not competent or relevant nor based on pleadings, shows that the claims are barred by limitations, laches, etc., and does not show that the contract declared on was made, and shows that plaintiff has had full settlements, and also establishes waiver and estoppel," was multifarious and contrary to the court of civil appeals rule, providing that the propositions under one ground of the assignment shall refer to it, and be stated separately. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 965.

A proposition, complaining both that a specified finding is not supported by the evidence and that it was reached on erroneous instructions, will not be considered because it complains of more than one act of the court. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 385.

Such proposition is insufficient as a proposition for multifariousness. Id.

A proposition as to the imprpropriety of the findings on five different issues embracing four different issues of the case is insufficient. Id.

A proposition on appeal in an action for a minor's custody, that a minor above 14 years of age may select its own guardian and a decree of court awarding custody to one parent must yield to such selection, especially if the parent is an improper person to have custody, held multifarious and confusing. Grego v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 361.

43. Showing basis of claim of error.—An assignment that the court erred in admitting in evidence a written lease, followed by a proposition raising the question of the admissibility of the lease as a recorded instrument, without alleging that the lease was not admitted, or that the written lease was all the evidence on the subject, is insufficient. Yarbrough v. De Martin, 67 S. W. 177, 28 C. A. 276.

Assignments that the court erred in rejecting certain testimony, followed by propositions that the testimony was proper, and should have been admitted, without relying on any particular principle to show that the court erred, will not be considered. Id.

A proposition that it is error for the court to give an instruction against the interest of a party on an issue in a suit, and such party need not request a proper instruction, pointed to, and a consideration of what call for a different instruction under which it is placed. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Fowell, 28 C. A. 157, 86 S. W. 21.

Where the proposition following the assignment of error complaining of the refusal of a requested charge was not supported by the statement of any fact showing that the refusal of the charge was erroneous, the assignment was not reviewable. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Clay, 55 C. A. 526, 119 S. W. 736.

Where the propositions following an assignment of error complaining of the giving of a special requested charge did not point out the alleged error, and the subjoined statement did not disclose the assignment did not be considered. Shively v. Eton & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 835.

An assignment of error will be overruled where the proposition thereunder is not predicated on a state of facts by which it can be supported. Luder's Adm'r v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 220.
44. Reference in propositions to other propositions or to record or assignment. Where an assignment is followed by what is denominated a mere statement, which merely refers to the assignment as the proposition, and the assignment contains several propositions of law, it will not be considered. Driver v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 290.

Where assignments of error with reference to separate conclusions of law and to the facts or propositions immediately preceding the other, followed by a statement that such assignments "will be treated as propositions," together with two other propositions asserted under them, the assignments failed to comply with the rule. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

An assignment of error asking that the court consider as propositions thereunder the propositions under the preceding assignments and under a succeeding one will not be considered. San Antonio Foundry Co. v. Drish, 38 C. A. 214, 85 S. W. 446.

An assignment of error by any proposition is not followed by but refers to propositions, statements, and authorities under other assignments which are not germane to the assignment in question, is in disregard of the rules, and cannot be considered. Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 957.

The bill of exceptions cannot be referred to and inserted in the argument of the appellants in brief, since such reason should be stated in the proposition itself. Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 756.

An assignment of error by a proposition which merely refers to propositions found under other assignments of error, in violation of court rules 30 and 33 (142 S. W. xii), will not be considered. Sullivan v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 351 S. W. 838.

An assignment of error, not supported by a proper proposition, but which merely refers to propositions under another assignment, will not be considered. Anderson v. Crow (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1080.

45. Proposition assuming fact.—A proposition which assumes a fact found against appellant cannot be considered. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1093.

Where an assignment of error attempted to collect every point on which the appeal was based into a single assignment, and after placing it before the court as a proposition referred the court to the statements made under five other assignments of error, it was multifarious, and would not be considered. Russell v. Deutschmnan (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1164.

There being no cognizance between assignments of error, and they being grouped, and but one proposition asserted under them, which has no relation to them, they are not entitled under the rules to consideration. Young v. Pecos County, 46 C. A. 219, 101 S. W. 1065.

Where assignments of error complain of the court's rulings on general and special exceptions to the plaintiff's petition, and to various rulings on the admissibility of testimony of an entirely different character, and are not accompanied with appropriate propositions separately pointing out the specific questions involved for decision, but with one proposition only, by which the several questions are sought to be raised and presented, the court will not be considered, the matter being reviewed in the proceedings, not in compliance with rules 29, 30, and 31 (67 S. W. xv, xvi). Lane v. Delta County (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 866.

An assignment of error, which presents several distinct propositions of law, and which does not in itself present a proposition, cannot be considered. Hees v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618.

A part of an assignment of error grouped with other assignments of error, which is wholly disconnected from that contained in the other portions of the assignment and from the other assignments, is improperly placed in the group. Kirby v. Blake, 53 C. A. 173, 115 S. W. 674.

Assignments of error cannot be considered, where they are grouped in appellants' brief, and propositions are made under two or more of them raising distinct questions of law. Lowrance v. Woods, 64 C. A. 223, 118 S. W. 551.

The grouping of a number of assignments of error presenting different propositions of law, in no wise dependent on, or connected with each other, and presenting them as propositions, violates the rules of court, and will not be considered. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

Assignments of error, grouped and directed to wholly unrelated matters, and which are not followed by a statement, cannot be considered. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

Four assignments of error, two of which refer to findings about an attachment, and two to findings about an injunction, and which are not followed by proper statements, will not be considered. Huber v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 305.

Where assignments referring to different subjects and propositions are grouped so as to present more than one question of law, they will not be reviewed. International & Great Northern Ry. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 634.

It is permissible to group assignments of error relating to the same subject, but each assignment must be supported by its own proposition. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769, writs of error denied 193 T. 522, 131 S. W. 406.

Assignments of error are grouped and presented, which differ from any of the assignments, they are not properly presented, and cannot be considered, since each assignment must be sustained or overruled as a whole. City of Haskell v. Hartrick (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1057.
Assignments of error which relate to different phases of the evidence introduced on the trial cannot be grouped and presented over one proposition. Guilman v. Fadgett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1145.

An assignment of error in an action involving breach of warranty of title stated that the court erred in limiting the recovery on the warranty against B. to two-sevenths of the amount allowed as interest on the balance of the purchase price, and the next assignment predicate error in refusing a special charge asked by a defendant as to the measure of B.'s liability on his warranty. The two assignments of error were grouped and were followed by three propositions, the first being that B. and B.'s wife were only one-half of any loss of time for one-half of their charge that the warranty created a contractual liability on each for one-half of the loss; and the third that the measure of interest should have been allowed against them from the date of their deed. Held that the assignments contained two distinct propositions, so that they should not have been grouped. Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1107, denying rehearing Id. 917.

Where appellant grouped in his brief seven assignments of error, and presented but one new and separate propositions for assignment of error, he could not be allowed to present, on account of failure to comply with rules 29 and 32 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Riley v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 581.

Assignments of error complaining of the judgment as contrary to the law and the evidence are properly grouped, and when followed by propositions pointing out the errors complained of, and appropriate statements under each proposition, are reviewable on appeal. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Landa & Storey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 232.

Assignments of error, each of which complains of a distinct ruling of the trial court, and involves different subject is not germane to each other, cannot be grouped. Master v. Ross (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1156.

Under rule 30 (142 S. W. xii), a group of assignments of error complaining of the refusal to give charges to each other, follow the last assignment, not referring to any of the assignments and followed by a statement failing to set out the refused charges or their substance, will not be considered. Id.

Where an assignment of error complaining of the change of venue, for which there is no error, is another complaining with another assignment of error, the court to remand the case, which has no bill, is followed by four propositions and only one statement, they will not be considered, under court of civil appeals rules 25 (142 S. W. xii) and 31 (142 S. W. xii), Barron v. Clark v. White (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 690.

Although it is permissible to group assignments of error which relate to the same subject, each should be supported by its own proposition. Id.

Where error was assigned for the admission of immaterial testimony, and appellee's brief contained no statement in connection with such assignment from which the issues could be determined, the error cannot be considered on appeal, since it was impossible to say that there was no issue to which the testimony was relevant. Ackermann v. Ackerman, Schubel & Co., 27 C. A. 336.

Under rule 29 an assignment complaining that the court permitted plaintiff, suing for divorce, to prove specific acts of ill treatment without sufficient allegations to admit such proof, not accompanied by a statement, will not be considered. Wetz v. Wetz, 65 S. W. 869, 27 C. A. 457.

Where appellant's brief does not comply with rules 29, 30, and 31 of the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi), requiring that each of the propositions shall be followed by a brief statement, in substance, of such proceedings contained in the record as will be necessary to explain and support the proposition with reference to the pages of the record, etc., the appeal will be dismissed. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 47.

Assignments of error, not accompanied by any statement from the record of the facts bearing on the propositions advanced, nor advanced in connection with the preliminary statement in the brief for such facts, as required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), will not be reviewed. Peach River Lumber Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 324, 91 S. W. 387.

Where an assignment of error is directed against a part of the court's charge, it does not appear in the preliminary statement in the brief what the issues were, the proposition under the assignment must be followed by a statement from the record of so much of the pleadings and the evidence as will show what issues were involved, or the assignment will not be reviewed. Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 346, 100 S. W. 953.

An assignment of error will not be considered which does not conform to the rules requiring the statement following a proposition to embrace in substance such proceedings, or part thereof in the record as will be sufficient to explain and support the proposition with reference to the pages of the record. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clipplenger, 47 C. A. 510, 106 S. W. 155.

Court rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), governing the preparation of briefs, is to facilitate the work of appellate courts, and must not be disregarded. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Odle (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 785.

Assignments of error and propositions thereunder, relating to the validity of a bond in a garnishment proceeding, will not be considered where they are not followed by any statement from the record explaining and supporting the proposition as required by supreme court rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 444.

Where an assignment of error did not contain statements or exceptions in compliance with the statutes and rules, the Supreme Court will only look to the record for the purpose of determining whether the court had jurisdiction and was authorized to render the judgment under the pleadings. Willis v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 929.

An assignment of error to finding of insufficient damages is not reviewable, in the absence of a statement of facts. Williamson v. Ward (Civ. App.) 357 S. W. 1156.

An assignment of error complaining of the introduction of evidence, not followed by a statement from the record sufficient to support and explain the assignment, will not be considered on appeal. Guillmarin v. Padgett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1143.

An assignment of error complaining of an instruction will not be considered where there is not subjoined to the propositions urged under the assignment such a statement as is necessary to explain and support the propositions. Adams v. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1178.

An assignment of error submitted as a proposition but not followed by any statement of the proceedings or part thereof in the record, as required by court rule 31 (67 S. W. xiii), necessary to explain and support the assignment, will not be considered. Williamson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 998.

48. Sufficiency of statement in general.—Statement in connection with assignment of error held insufficient under rule 31 for the courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi).

Logan v. Lennix (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 384.

A statement, subjoined to a proposition under an assignment of error, that plaintiff filed two papers, not named or described further than that, taken together, they contain all the requirements of certain sections of the Revised Statutes, is but a statement of a legal proposition, and not a statement of facts taken from the record, as required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Lowenthal-Harrison Co. v. Edmonston Bros., 49 C. A. 295, 89 S. W. 308.

Where a statement in support of an assignment that the court erred in refusing to give a requested special charge neither set out the charge requested, nor showed that there was any evidence in the case which called for or authorized the giving of the requested instruction, which was refused because not presented before the jury had retired, and which failed to show that defendant could not have prepared and requested the instruction before the jury retired, was insufficient to sustain the assignment. Spikes v. Howard, 51 C. A. 589, 111 S. W. 792.

A statement, in support of an assignment that the court erred in directing a verdict for defendant, reciting that, the testimony being conflicting as to every material point, and strongly in support of plaintiff's cause of action on each question presented by the pleadings, it was error for the court to so invade the province of the jury, we held incorrect as a proposition, was insufficient as a statement, required by rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error based on a bill of exceptions not referred to in the statement need not be considered. Sullivan v. Solis, 52 C. A. 464, 114 S. W. 456.

An assignment of error, not supported by such statement as is required by the rules of court, will not be considered. Tolar (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 665; Kostorys v. Leary (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 456; Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510; Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911.

Where the statement under an assignment of error is only an argument and insufficient to enable the court to determine the question raised, and the proposition under the assignment fails to reach the real point of objection, the assignment cannot be considered. Dass v. Maberry (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 982.

The statement, "said assignment is correctly set out," following assignments of error, is not a compliance with rules of court providing that the assignment of error shall be followed by one or more propositions, and to each proposition there shall be subjoined statements of the record necessary to support the proposition. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 286.

An assignment of error, followed by a statement so imperfect as to be unintelligible, will not be considered. Stevens v. Porter (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 204.

Consideration of alleged error denied because of insufficient statement subjoined to assignment of error; it stating only that the court charged erroneously. Pecos & N. T. R. Ry. Co. v. Conray (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 728.

Under rule 31 (143 S. W. xiii), held, that assignments of error not purporting to copy anything from the record, but only to give the appellant's version of what it contains, cannot be considered. Hill v. Hanan & Son (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 648.

An assignment of error held not to comply with rule 31 (142 S. W. 13), requiring assignments of error to be followed by a brief statement in substance of such proceedings in the record as are necessary to explain and support the proposition. Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 756.

Assignments of error complaining of a charge as assuming that 132 head of plaintiffs' cattle were damaged, and that expenses were incurred in holding them at defendant's station, held not to require consideration because of an insufficient statement. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 305.

An assignment of error, or error, will be overruled, where the statement under it is so imperfect that no information can be obtained from it. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

Where the statement under an assignment of error does not clearly show the matter referred to, the assignment cannot be considered. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 917.

49. — Bill of exceptions as sufficient statement.—An assignment of error, supported only by a bill of exceptions, inconsistent as to a material fact, is not reviewable. Steiner v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 281.

Grounds of objection to testimony set out in a bill of exceptions cannot be treated as a statement of facts under an assignment of error to the admission of such testimony. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

An assignment of error in admitting the testimony of certain witnesses, not followed by any proposition or statement, except the bill of exception reserved to the admission of the testimony, which is insufficient to show that the testimony was harmful, or even that it was not admissible, will not be considered on appeal. Texas Co. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 612.

A copy of the bill of exceptions taken to the admission of certain evidence held sufficient as a statement under the court rule. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Vogel (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 261.

50. — References to record, assignment, or brief.—Where assignments complain of the charge without designating the paragraphs, and the statement refers to the whole charge without pointing out the portions excepted to, the assignment will not be considered. Rosenfeld v. Rosenthal (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 193.

A statement in appellant's brief, under an assignment of error raising the objection that a charge submitting an issue of the good faith of certain community debts should not have been given, which informs the court of the language of the charge excepted to is given in the assignment; that the existence of community debts was proved and admitted, referring to the pages of the record; and that there was no testimony as to whether these community debts were or were not fairly and honestly incurred,—is sufficient. Cage v. Tucker's Heirs, 69 S. W. 426, 29 C. A. 866.

Where the correctness of a requested instruction depends on the evidence, the appellant must, in connection with his assignment of error complaining of the refusal to give it, refer to the evidence making it applicable, and reference to all the testimony is insufficient to require the court to review the assignment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 367.

Where 23 pages of appellant's brief were devoted to the statement under its first assignment of error, which embraced practically all of the evidence in the record, subsequent assignments of error, or other statement than a reference to the statement under the first assignment will not be considered, in view of rule 31. (Civ. App.) Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harbison, 88 S. W. 452, affirmed, 99 T. 556, 90 S. W. 1097; (Civ. App.) Same v. Wetherly, 88 S. W. 456, affirmed, 99 T. 638, 90 S. W. 1098; (Civ. App.) Sama v. Ottos, 88 S. W. 487.
A statement under an assignment of error to the giving of a certain charge reciting that "the court erred in sustaining exceptions 1, 2, 3, and 4 as shown by the assignment, to which action defendant excepted. McKenzie v. Reason (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 246." "Statement. See testimony of H., original statement of facts, pp. 33-44," etc., is insufficient as a statement under an assignment of error. Id. Where several statements differing distinctly in substance were grouped together in the brief, the bills of exception being referred to in support of the assignment copied in the brief, without either statement of the substance of the bills or the pages of the record where they might be found, the assignment could not be considered under the rules. Carlock v. Willard (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 363.

A statement, under an assignment of error complaining of the refusal of a special charge that "the charge set out in the assignment was requested by the defendant and refused by the court," and referring to the record where the charge was to be found, was insufficient, under rule 51. Houston Packing Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 630.

51. — Reference from one statement to another.—A statement under assignments of error referring to a statement under another assignment, which embraced 44 pages of printed matter and practically covered all the testimony given at the trial, cannot be considered by the appellate court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 461.

The court of civil appeals will not refer to a general statement of the testimony under another assignment of error, to determine the facts relative to an assignment in question. Tack (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 759.

An assignment of error is insufficiently presented where the statement appended thereto refers to the statement under other assignments, and that statement does not support the particular assignment. Dickinson Creamery Co. v. Lyle (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 904.

Assignments of error which are submitted as propositions, followed by statements consisting of general references to statements under other assignments which themselves refer to other statements, will not be considered on appeal. Caples v. Fort Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 303.

Following assignments of error in the refusal of chargos, statements referring to statements which do not refer to assignments, which themselves refer to other statements, will not be considered on appeal. Caples v. Fort Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 303.

The statement under an assignment of error to the refusal of instructions, etc., in an action for contribution against several defendants, was that it was the same as under another assignment of error requested and refused, except that the charge was made to a particular defendant named, and the facts were stated in the charge "as statement of facts, page ---, brief, page ---." Another statement recited that the special charge requested and refused was "as follows," setting it out. The statement under another assignment recited that the special charge requested and refused was at certain pages of the transcript and was the same as that copied under another assignment of error contained in the brief, except that it referred to one defendant named instead of another. Held, that the statements under the assignments of error were not in accordance with the court rules. Matson v. Jarvis (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 941.

An assignment of error is not entitled to consideration under court of civil appeals rules, where reference is made to all the testimony copied in a statement under another assignment of error, and such testimony includes much matter not bearing on the particular assignment of error. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Birge-Forbes Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 2.

An assignment of error complaining of ruling on the testimony of a witness will not be considered, when it is not followed by any concrete proposition or statement, but merely refers to another assignment referring to the testimony of another witness. Day v. Becker (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1197.

A statement under an assignment of error was insufficient where it did not include all the evidence upon the particular issue involved, but merely referred to a statement under a different proposition wherein the evidence upon all the issues was attempted to be set out. Blunt v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 248.

An assignment to the admission of a letter in evidence would not be disregarded, because the letter was not copied in the statement, where it was copied in a short statement of facts, to which the statement referred. Newman v. Norris Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 725.

Where the only statement supporting an assignment of error merely referred to the statements under numerous other assignments of error, which included evidence which was not pertinent, the assignment cannot be reviewed. Fl. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Kran (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 355.

An assignment of error giving an instruction which is not copied into the brief, but is merely referred to in the statement as "the same as under appellant's first assignment of error," the statement under which did not refer to any charge will not be considered. Reasonover v. Riley Bros. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Assignments of error cannot be considered when the only statement under them is, "See statement under 15th assignment of error," if that statement refers to a question in no way relating to the questions presented by the particular assignments. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.

Where an assignment is not submitted as a proposition, nor any proposition submitted thereunder, and reference is made to another assignment for the statement, authorities, and remarks, it will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 343.

An assignment which has no statement after the proposition, except a reference to a statement under some other assignment, will not be reviewed. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 572.

An assignment of error not followed by statements will not be considered; mere references to other assignments or to the record for statements being insufficient. Daventry v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1099.

52. Relevancy to assignment or proposition.—A motion to exclude testimony with reference to prices cotton sold for, because witness has no independent recollection and no books of original entry showing the transactions, and has not produced the books of original entry, does not support the proposition under an assignment of error that, after a witness has testified to the amount and prices of cotton bought and sold, it was error not to exclude the testimony on a motion, based on the grounds that witness' information as to the matters testified to was obtained from a copy of books of original entry kept by another, which were not produced in evidence. Hubbard City Cotton Oil & Gin Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 795.

Where a defendant, in an action for injuries to a passenger, assigns as error the refusal to instruct that there was "no testimony tending to show" that the wreck of the train in which plaintiffs were passengers was caused by any of the things alleged in the petition, and the statement following this assignment is that there was "no affirmative proof" showing how the wreck was caused, the court will not consider the assignment, since the statement does not purport to show that there was no testimony tending to show that the wreck was caused in plaintiffs' petition. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clippenger, 47 C. A. 510, 106 S. W. 155.

Where an assignment of error assailed a conclusion of fact of the trial court that the rental value of a certain date was not less than a certain amount, and the statement was to the effect that the finding was objected to because it fixed the date of rent from a certain date, the assignment would be overruled. Weil v. Martinez, 57 C. A. 440, 124 S. W. 116.

A statement showing that a conversation was between the agent and the witness does not support an assignment of error in allowing the testimony of the witness as to a conversation between the agent and plaintiff. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 306.
53. Multivarious statement.—Assignments of error not followed by statements will not be considered, and an omission of statement under assignments referring to diverse subjects of evidence does not meet the rules. Moor v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

54. Setting out proceedings, rulings, exceptions, and facts showing error and injury therefrom.—An assignment of error as to the court’s charge will be overruled where it does not state facts sufficiently to enable the court to determine whether the error, if any, resulted in assignor’s injury. Herring v. Herring (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 865.

Where, in the giving of a requested instruction on the ground that the court had in the general charge given its purport, and there is no statement under the assignment verifying the fact stated, such assignment should not be sustained. First Nat. Bank v. Watson (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 232, writ of error denied Watson v. First Nat. Bank, 67 S. W. 314, 315.

Where, in a trespass to try title, a peremptory instruction for the plaintiff was assigned as error on the ground that the question whether the land was patented to plaintiff’s grantees or to the grantees of the defendant should have been submitted to a jury, and the statement in support of the proposition did not show that there was any issue raised by the evidence on such question, the assignment could not be sustained. Swift v. Bruce, 71 S. W. 321, 31 C. A. 92.

On appeal, appellant contended that the court erred in permitting plaintiff to read a certain deposition, and in not requiring plaintiff to put to the one who made the deposition on the stand, he being in court, and having twice testified by deposition to contradictory statements. Held, in view of rule 31, that the assignment of error could not be considered. The proposition submitted thereunder not being followed by a statement from the record, and the statement following it containing only questions from the deposition, and it not showing that the witness was in attendance, or that the ruling complained of was made, or that any exception was taken to the ruling. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Lee, 74 S. W. 246, 31 C. A. 23.

Where, in an action for injuries from being thrown from a wagon by the running away of a team, alleged to have been frightened by a locomotive, the assignment of error asserts that the undisputed evidence showed that plaintiff was in plain view of the engine where the plaintiff was struck. But it could have been seen by him, had he looked, and the statement thereunder contains no facts showing that the witness was negligently sounded, or that the team was frightened by the locomotive or the defendant will not be disturbed. Bull v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 78 S. W. 525, 33 C. A. 547.

An instruction is not reviewable under an assignment of error where the statement following the proposition does not show that the charge complained of was given to the jury, and to the page of the record from which such information could be obtained, as required by the direct provisions of rule 31 (94 Tex. 660, 67 S. W. xvi). Gray v. Moore, 37 C. A. 407, 84 S. W. 298.

Where the statements under assignments of error relating to the admissibility of testimony, not made, and the objections urged, the assignments will not be considered. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 499.

Where the reason for an assignment of error to a paragraph of the court’s charge submitted as a proposition, recited that the undisputed evidence showed certain facts, but the assignment was not followed by any statement showing that the evidence on such issue was undisputed, the assignment was insufficient. Ferguson v. Morrison, 43 C. A. 386, 95 S. W. 1001.

A statement following a proposition under an assignment of error complaining of the refusal of the court to give instructions, which does not show that any instructions were requested by the party complaining and refused by the court, is insufficient under rule 31. American Surety Co. of New York v. Lyons, 44 C. A. 150, 97 S. W. 1080.

An error, alleged in error, in the assignment of the assignment of error, in an action in the county court, in an action that the assignment of error alleged against a railroad company for its refusal to furnish medical treatment and hospital privileges, erred in admitting evidence over objections “the rules contained in a formal form letter of hospital rules of another railroad named.” This was followed by a proposition that the rules issued by the railroad named, which it was received in evidence and had never been communicated to the employee, were inadmissible, and the statement subjoined did not show what the rules were, or that they were introduced in evidence, or what objections were made to their introduction, or what the rulings of the court were. Held, that the assignment would not be reviewed. Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 345, 100 S. W. 962.

An assignment of error to a refusal to suppress a deposition because memoranda referred to by witness were not attached to and returned with the answers, as required by article 3660, is not entitled to consideration; the statement subjoined to the proposition under the assignment not showing that they were not so attached and returned. Young v. Pecos County, 46 C. A. 315, 101 S. W. 1065.

In an error, alleged under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), assignments of error complaining of the refusal of special charges will not be considered when not followed by statements showing that the charges were requested or that they were refused. Gillemore v. Houston Electric Co., 44 C. A. 315, 105 S. W. 175.

An assignment of error not supported by a sufficient statement will not be considered by an appellate court, and where the statement fails to show what objection was made to the introduction of certain oral testimony as to the contents of a letter, and does not put any bill of exceptions or any page objections to the ruling can be ascertained, it is insufficient. Jackson v. Tonahill, 49 C. A. 169, 105 S. W. 178.

A statement in appellants’ brief, in support of a proposition under an assignment that the court erred in admitting a deed in evidence, which only copied the обязуеемые а быть referred to a bill of exceptions, but did not show wherein any injury had resulted from the ruling, was insufficient. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662.

The court will not review a proposition as to whether a witness is legally qualified to testify as to the market value of a given article at a particular time and place, and that it was error to permit him to testify thereto, where the statement supporting the proposition was named in it as the witness to the market value. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fowers, 54 C. A. 168, 117 S. W. 459.

The statement accompanying the assignment was that "the grounds for abating the suit were laid down in defendants' answer as the improper procedure employed by the county court in making the appointment and the incapacity of the receiver to maintain the suit." Held, that the statement was insufficient, as not showing that any request for leave to amend was made by plaintiff and refused by the court, and, if this request could, could not be insufficient, because it would still be shown when or under what circumstances such request was made, or to state any facts which indicate that any error was committed in permitting the amendment. Gray v. Fuller, 54 C. A. 395, 117 S. W. 515.

In the absence of a statement under an assignment of error, complaining of the refusal to give a charge, showing the pertinency of the charge, the assignment will be overruled. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James, 55 C. A. 588, 120 S. W. 269.

In the absence of a showing, in the statement accompanying the proposition under the assignment of error, complaining of the judgment on a bond on the ground that it included defalcations prior to execution of the bond, that the judgment included such defalcations, the assignment must be overruled. Haupt v. James Cravens & Co., 56 C. A. 265, 120 S. W. 641.

An assignment and the statement thereunder, failing to point out wherein the charge objected to was inconsistent with the main charge or not applicable to the facts, was insufficient. Stone v. Stitt, 56 C. A. 465, 121 S. W. 187.

Where evidence is objected to, but the record contains only their substance, and no statement in verification of the objection, it is insufficient. Maricle v. McAllister Fuel Co., 56 C. A. 178, 121 S. W. 221.

If plaintiff, alleged to have been defrauded by defendant in conveying land to defrauder, and subsequently mortgaging the land, subsequent to the exchange, and had no knowledge of the fraud when he executed the mortgage, the act could not be a ratification of the alleged fraudulent transaction, and hence an assignment of error complaining of an erroneous charge on such ratification, which did not show in the statement thereunder that plaintiff knew of the fraud, if any, when he executed the mortgage, did not raise the issue of ratification, and upon the state of the record any error in the charge on that issue would be harmless. Koppe v. Koppe, 57 C. A. 294, 122 S. W. 68.

An assignment of error, in overruling appellants' motion on the findings of fact by the jury and court for a judgment pursuant to such findings, cannot be considered, where it was not followed by a statement from the record showing the ruling complained of, or what the findings were on which judgment was asked. Stephenville Oil Mill v. McNeill, 57 C. A. 262, 122 S. W. 911.

The statement under an assignment of error to rejection of a requested charge should point out facts rendering the rejection prejudicial. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 144.

Even if an instruction in an action for delay in transportation of cattle, whereby they were not sold till Friday, was on the weight of evidence, in assuming that they should have been in time to sell on Tuesday, the statement under the assignment of error fails to show the assumption was prejudicial; it not showing that Tuesday was not the proper day of sale, or, if it was not, what was the proper day, or that the market prices materially differed on the days between Tuesday and Friday. 1a.

An assignment of error to the overruling of a special objection to the petition will not be considered; the statement was not referred to in the proposition thereunder not showing what the exception was, and where it is to be found in the transcript not being indicated by appellant's brief. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

An assignment that the jury erred in not administering the oath required by law before he summoned the jury, and that the jury was not selected by jury commissioners, without any showing that the appellant took exception to such failure other than pointed out by the statement in the assignment itself, is insufficient. Willia v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 222.

An assignment of error to the admission of evidence is insufficient where the statement thereunder does not show that appellant excepted, nor the ground of his objection, and where there is no reference to the page of the record where the testimony appeared. Bankin v. Bankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 292.

An assignment of error to an instruction will not be considered where the statement does not show facts making the instruction erroneous, and where no error appears on the instruction's face. 1a.

An assignment that the court erred in holding that plaintiff was not entitled to recover lands and in refusing to submit the question of rents to the jury, etc., was supported only by a statement that defendant S. testified that the reasonable rental value of the south half of the property in controversy from the date of a sheriff's sale when he took possession up to the time of the trial was $6 a month, that defendant M. testified that he took possession April 11, 1906, and had been in possession ever since of the south half of the land, that the reasonable value of the property from the date of sale to the time he took possession. Held, that since it nowhere appeared from the statement that the court held that appellee was not entitled to recover rents or refused a request to submit the issue and did not refer to any part of the record showing such action, the statement at most showed that the issue was ignored and did not support the assignment. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 128.

An assignment complaining of the exclusion of evidence will not be considered on appeal, where the ground of objection to the evidence excluded is not shown by the statement subjoined to the proposition under the assignment. Lefkovitz v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 880.
In an action to restrain the foreclosure of a mortgage, an assignment of where the court should have continued the injunction until the next term of court, when the amount due be recorded in the court. The record shows that there was no such excess as the mortgagee and the holder of the mortgagee was directed to sell the premises, and that they had the right to have the excess acreage over the homestead sold first, cannot be considered where there is nothing in the statement accompanying the assignment showing that there was any such excess as the mortgagee was directed to sell for enough to satisfy the mortgagee's indebtedness. Carney v. Waterhouse (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1172.

In such a case, an assignment of error that the court should have continued the injunction until the next term of court, when the amount due be recorded in the court. The record shows that there was no such excess as the mortgagee and the holder of the mortgagee was directed to sell the premises, and that they had the right to have the excess acreage over the homestead sold first, cannot be considered where there is nothing in the statement accompanying the assignment showing that there was any such excess as the mortgagee was directed to sell for enough to satisfy the mortgagee's indebtedness. Carney v. Waterhouse (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1172.

A statement under an assignment of error complaining of rulings on evidence must show that a bill of exceptions was taken to the evidence objected to, or the assignment will not be considered. Atty v. Linn (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 197.

Where there was no statement from the record to show the relevancy or irrelevancy of evidence objected to, the assignment of error will not be reviewed. Cahoon v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 789.

Where the statement following a proposition under an assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence of the general reputation of a person for truth and veracity did not show that the person had testified in the case, or that any bill of exceptions was reserved to the admission of the testimony, the statement was not sufficient to sustain the assignment, and the ruling was not reviewable on appeal. Gullmartin v. Paddock (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1143.

Where the statements accompanying assignments objecting to charges given by the court point out no state of facts showing error, the assignments will be overruled. Whassen v. Schawe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 146.

An assignment of error in refusing to award judgment for defendants' breaches of the contract sued upon cannot be considered if there is no statement under it showing what the contract was, how, if at all, it was breached, and what, if any, damages were sustained. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 148.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal to properly instruct on an issue raised in a special charge will not be considered where defendant does not in the statement or assignment indicate whether or not defendant expected the issue to be considered as factually proved by evidence in the record or the fact that the issue was not considered as factually proved by evidence in the record. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Addis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1135.

Defendant telegraph company assigned error in admitting evidence of plaintiff's grief resulting from failure to promptly deliver a telegram announcing the death of his stepson, and in refusing to direct that plaintiff could not recover, and the proposition under the assignment was that plaintiff "was not entitled to recover for mental anguish on his own account," and the statement thereunder was that decedent was plaintiff's stepson, and there was no issue to defendant of any facts establishing any unusual or peculiar relationship between plaintiff and his stepson to permit plaintiff to recover for mental anguish in his own right. Held, that the statement was sufficient to authorize a consideration of the assignments of error. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Kanouse (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 139.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), assignments of error not supported by a sufficient statement will not be considered on appeal, and where statements under assignments of error are vague as to the objection to the error or the facts on which the assignment is based, and identifying facts are not stated, the evidence in the record will not be considered. Day v. Becker (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1197.

Assignments of error not conforming to the requirements of rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii), by stating no objection made, and not referring to page or record, will not be considered. Holland v. Cross (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 671.

An assignment of error to the sufficiency of the petition in quo warranto will not be considered, where neither the statement nor the proposition thereunder specifically states the claim of each defendant (see petition). Hulme v. D. & W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 30.

Under rule 31 (31 S. W. vii), assignments of error in overruling defendant's demurrers and exceptions to the petition held not reviewable where the statements thereunder did not disclose that the exceptions were called to the trial court's attention and overruled by the court. Addins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Rulings on evidence will not be reviewed where appellant's brief fails to disclose the grounds of objection made at the trial. Lee v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 868.

Error in overruling demurrers and exceptions to the petition, the objection should be copied into the brief, and reference made to the record where it may be found, in view of rule 31 (142 S. W. xiii). Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Assignments of error that witness gave the objectionable testimony, except certain statements from the motion for a new trial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 594.

Where the statement fails to disclose any finding or to point out any defect in the evidence, an assignment of error complaining of a finding will be overruled. Unknown Heirs of Criswell v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 210.

An assignment of error without such of itself or by its supporting statement does not disclose how the testimony complained of was incompetent, misleading, or prejudicial presents no question for review. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

Assignments of error referring to no bill of exceptions to the admission of evidence, assignments of error in admitting the evidence will not be considered. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 911.

An assignment of error to part of a charge will not be considered, where the statement does not show that the instruction, if erroneous, was harmful. Texas Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Prince (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 231.

Where the statement, under an assignment of error, does not show the admission of testimony complained of, the assignment will be overruled. Lind v. Reeves & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 262.

An assignment complaining of the admission of evidence held to be overruled, where the bill and the statement under the assignment failed to show that any such evidence was admitted. Snyder Ice, Light & Power Co. v. Dowron (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 599.

An assignment of error complaining of testimony objected to will not be considered, where it is not followed by an intelligible statement, and one which indicates what effect the testimony had on any issue in the case. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

Where the proposition under an assignment of error to the remarks of the judge does not contain the remarks, the assignment cannot be considered. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

An assignment of error, not followed by a statement tending to sustain or throw any light on the contentions of appellant, will be overruled. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1089.

55. — Negating correctness of rulings on particular grounds.—In view of article 7744 a statement in support of an assignment of error in the absence of a bill of exceptions is a charging permitting plaintiff to introduce a copy of a patent and deed to prove his title, on the ground that he had failed to file an abstract within 20 days after notice, but failing to show that the abstract was not filed by permission of the court, as authorized, was insufficient to sustain the assignment. Spikes v. Howard, 51 C. A. 111, 112 S. W. 792.

Where, in an action for the death of plaintiff's husband, defendant pleaded negligence of a fellow servant, contributory negligence, assumed risk, and that deceased at the time of the accident was in the employ of an independent contractor, a statement, in support of the omission of the court erred in instructing the defendant, merely alleging that the alleged independent contractor was not in such, and making no reference to the other defenses, was insufficient to justify a review of the ruling on appeal. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 435.

An assignment of error to the admission of evidence will not be considered where the statement of facts does not exclude circumstances under which the evidence would be admissible. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

56. — Setting out pleadings or averments therein.—The statement, subjoined to a proposition following an assignment that the court erred in overruling a special exception to the supplemental petition, should not only show the allegations in the supplemental petition to which the exception was directed, but also that part of the answer to which the part of the supplemental petition excepted to was pleaded in replication, or the whole answer if the court on appeal is to consider the assignment. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), in a suit to cancel a deed, a statement under an assignment of error to the sustaining of a demurrer to petition that the petition shows that defendant disposed of the case for an inadequate consideration, through fraudulent representations by defendant's agent, etc., is insufficient, where neither the alleged misrepresentations, nor when nor in what circumstances they were made, are set out, and there is no reference to the page of the record on which they can be found. Parish v. Nelson, 49 C. A. 559, 108 S. W. 1189.

An assignment of error to the admission of evidence which does not point out the portions of the petition excepted to, and does not set out the substance of the exceptions as required by the rules, will not be considered. Munroe v. Munroe, 54 C. A. 329, 116 S. W. 758.

In an action by the receiver of the estate of an insane person, it was assigned as error on appeal from an order dismissing the action that "the action of the county court in appointing the receiver a minister subject to all the duties and responsibilities as required by law." Following this was the statement: "Defendants' plea in abatement seeks to invalidate this receiver's appointment on account of the manner in which that appointment was made. Held, that the statement was insignificant, as it did not inform the court what facts were pleaded of plaintiffs in support of plaintiff's suit, or what evidence was adduced under said plea. Gray v. Fuller, 64 C. A. 349, 117 S. W. 919.

On appeal from an order sustaining a plea in abatement and dismissing the suit of such receiver, plaintiff assigned as error that "the court erred in sustaining defendants' plea in abatement on the evidence." One proposition under this assignment was that "the receiver had authority to bring and maintain this suit as shown by his letters of appointment and application therefor." The statement under this raised the question whether the county court appointing the receiver authorized him to enter into a contract with attorneys to recover any real property, to which the lunatic for whom he was acting might be entitled. Held, that the plea in abatement not being copied in the statement, and no statement being made of the substance of the grounds therein urged for abatement, the court on appeal cannot say that the fact that the order appointing the receiver authorized him to contract with attorneys for the recovery of land was an answer to the plea, or that because this fact was alleged the court erred in sustaining said plea. Carrico v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 260.

The statement under an assignment of error complaining of the sustaining of an exception to the petition should not only embrace the exception, but should also state the part of the petition to which the exception is addressed. Carrico v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 260.

The criticised part of a pleading must be copied into the statement following the assignment of error complaining of the insufficient of the pleading, and a reference to the record is not sufficient. Autrey v. Linn (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 157.

An assignment of error complaining of the court erred in sustaining plaintiff's exceptions, followed by the proposition that defendant had a right to plead the facts, will not be considered where the contents of the pleadings complained of are not set out, and it is not shown how or in what way defendant suffered an injury. Herman v. Smith (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1087.

An assignment of error complaining of the striking out of a supplemental petition not followed by a statement showing the contents of the petition held not reviewable. Alt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

A statement complaining of the overruling of special exceptions to plaintiff's pleadings, which does not indicate what the pleadings or exceptions were nor that the court made any ruling, but which states facts foreign to the assignment, is improper. Watts v. Snodgrass (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1149.

An assignment of error complaining that evidence was not authorized under the pleading will not be considered, where the statement failed to disclose the pleading on which the evidence was given and not an assignment. App.) 169 S. W. 366.

57. — Setting out instructions complained of.—A statement under a proposition on appeal should contain the charge of which complaint is made, or the substance of it, and the reference to the record for verification, a reference to the transcript not being sufficient. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vanlandingham, 25 C. A. 506, 55 S. W. 847.

Unless complained of on appeal, the charges referred to, or charged in the instructions, contained in the assignments are not incorporated or referred to in the statement subjoined to the propositions under them. Feagan v. Barton-Parker Mfg. Co., 32 C. A. 973, 92 S. W. 1075.

Where a portion of the charge complained of in an assignment of error is not contained in the statement subjoined to the proposition, the assignment will not be considered. Holmes v. Adams (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 816.

An assignment of error will not be considered where the instruction is not pointed out in the assignment, proposition, or statement. Atchinson, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 49 C. A. 249, 108 S. W. 480.

Assignments of error objecting to certain instructions will not be considered where neither of the charges referred to were embraced in the statement subjoined to the propositions under the respective assignments. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 268.

Where in trespass to try title, an assignment of error complaining of the failure of a paragraph of a charge to state that to recover under 10 years' limitations there should be proof of adverse possession, and the statements connected with the assignment and propositions thereunder failed to disclose what the charge charged on the subject, the court of civil appeals could decline to consider the assignment. Washam v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 52.

An assignment of error complaining of the court's refusal to give requested charges, not followed by any statement, and an assignment urging that the court erred in certain paragraphs, together with the note of exceptions, not followed by a statement of the charges complained of, need not be considered. Estes v. Estes (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 304.

An assignment of error in overruling a motion for new trial, on the ground of error in instructions, not considered on appeal, where the statement under the assignment does not refer to the charge, and its substance is not given in the assignment or elsewhere. Erp v. Meachem (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 230.

An assignment of error complaining of a charge should be followed by a statement showing what the charge is, and pointing out the paragraph of the charge complained of. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Tracy (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 639.

58. — Setting out instructions refused.—Assignments complaining of the refusal of requested charges cannot be considered when the statements following them do not show what the charges were, and no reference is made to any page in the record containing them. Butler v. Holmes, 68 S. W. 52, 29 C. A. 48.

Assignments of error complaining of a refusal to give special instructions merely referred to and not set out in full, and which are not followed by a statement under the assignments giving the instructions in full, will not be considered on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cornell, 69 S. W. 980, 29 C. A. 556.

Where neither the assignment of error nor the proposition thereunder contains a special charge asked by appellant, which was given with the modification complained of in the assignment, the charge is not reviewable. Gray v. Moore, 37 C. A. 407, 84 S. W. 293.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal of the court to give instructions did not set forth the instructions. The statements following the propositions did not contain the instructions nor refer to the pages of the record where they could be found. Held, that the assignments would not be considered on appeal. American Surety Co. of New York v. Lyons, 44 C. A. 150, 97 S. W. 1898.

Assignments of error referring to the refusal of instructions should be followed by a statement showing at least the pages of the transcript on which such instructions are to be found, so that they may be verified. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120, judgment modified 101 T. 535, 109 S. W. 1059, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 758.

Assignments of error referring to giving a special charge, and in overruling a specified paragraph of defendant's motion for a new trial, is too general to be considered, where the charge is not copied in the statement following the assignment, and there is no reference on the record to the charge. Briggs v. New South Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 386.
Alleged error in the refusal of an instruction will not be considered, where it is not copied or set out in the assignment following the assignment and the contents are not shown. Montgomery v. Amsler, 57 C. A. 216, 122 S. W. 307.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal of special charges will not be considered, where the statements do not refer to the special charges. Stevens v. Porter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 264.

An assignment that the refusal of a special charge was erroneous is not entitled to consideration where the charge is not quoted in the statement thereunder, nor the page of the transcript where it may be found given. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 475.

An assignment of error complaining of the denial of a special charge should not be considered where the charge is not copied in the statement thereunder. Home Inv. Co. v. Texas R. R. Co. (App.) 155 S. W. 510.

Assignments of error to the refusal of instructions are not reviewable, where they are not set out in the assignments nor in the statement thereunder. Lupton v. Willmann (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 281.

59. Setting out matters of evidence.—Where the testimony referred to in an assignment of error was based on the erroneous admission of testimony was not set out in the statement subjoined to the assignment, and there was no reference to the page in the record where the same could be found, the assignment was not reviewable. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 622, 95 S. W. 607.

Where the giving or refusal of an instruction, which undertakes to apply the law to the facts, is complained of, it is not sufficient, within rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), to set out in appellant's brief the charge or its substance, but enough of the evidence on the proposition to explain and support it should also be given. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 787.

Where complaint is made of the admission or rejection of evidence, enough of the evidence on the proposition to explain and support it must, under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), be given in appellant's brief. Id.

Where the statement in the brief, under an assignment of error that the verdict is unsupported by the evidence, contains no recital of the evidence, but merely conclusions of fact, and refers to the entire statement of facts to support those conclusions, the brief is not in compliance with civil appeals rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi). Adams v. Hamilton, 53 C. A. 465, 116 S. W. 1169.

An assignment that the court erred in giving a charge because of the absence of evidence on which to base it, not followed by any statement of the evidence, may be disregarded on appeal. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Hunt, 54 C. 415, 118 S. W. 827.

An assignment of error will not be considered, where it is not followed by a statement of all the evidence tending to sustain the verdict. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 884.

A statement following an assignment to the admission of evidence, which was merely a conclusion as to effect of testimony, is insufficient. Stone v. Stitt, 56 C. A. 465, 121 S. W. 187.

An assignment of error was directed to conclusions of fact by the trial court, and in the statement was set out certain evidence contrary to the findings; but it was not stated directly or by inference that it was all the evidence on the question. Held, that it could not be held, that the conclusions were not supported by evidence. Weil v. Martinez, 57 C. A. 440, 134 S. W. 116.

Where no evidence is collated in the statement under the proposition that a paragraph of the charge was not applicable to the facts of the case, the appellate court is under no duty to search the record to see whether it failed to sustain the charge. Miller v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 302.

Where an assignment of error complains of the verdict as excessive, and it is not followed by any statement of the testimony bearing upon the subject, and no such statement is made elsewhere in appellant's brief, on appeal, the court is not required to pass upon the assignment. Freeman v. Mireles (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 118.

Where assignments of error are not followed by any statement of the facts on which requested charges are based, the appellate court will not search the record for such facts. Kostoryz v. Leary (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 466.

An assignment of error not accompanied by a statement of testimony showing its application will not be reviewed. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tack (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 556.

Under court rules 30 and 31 (94 Tex. 660, 67 S. W. xvi), an appellant challenging the correctness of an instruction must follow the assignment or proposition with a sufficient statement of the evidence with reference to the pages of the record as may be necessary to show not only that the charge was unwarranted by the facts proved, but that it probably operated to his prejudice, and, unless he does so, the assignment will not be considered. Wirtz v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 510.

Where, in an action for broker's commissions, appellant claimed by assignment of error that the evidence established that he was the procuring cause of the sale, the assignment required a statement of all the evidence pro and con relating to the question as required by rule 31 (94 Tex. 660, 67 S. W. xvi). Eveston v. Warrach (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 514.

Where was assigned to the refusal of a request to charge, but the statement under the assignment did not set out the testimony bearing on the question, and did not point out the page of the record where such testimony could be found, such assignment will not be reviewed. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 757.

An assignment of error which was not accompanied by a sufficient statement of the evidence to enable the court to determine whether the record, or the reading of a statement made under another assignment which is quite lengthy, and contains a large amount of evidence and other matters not relating to the question, and which does not comply with the rules as to briefing a case, will not be considered on appeal. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Pool (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 641.
Where an assignment of error to entering judgment for plaintiff because the verdict of the jury was inconsistent in its several findings that it was impossible to enter judgment therein, to show wherein the verdict was inconsistent, and the verdict is nowhere set out in the appellant's brief, no reversible error can be predicated on the assignment.

60. Setting out verdict and findings.—Where there is no effort made under an assignment of error to entering judgment for plaintiff because the verdict of the jury was inconsistent in its several findings that it was impossible to enter judgment therein, to show wherein the verdict was inconsistent, and the verdict is nowhere set out in the appellant's brief, no reversible error can be predicated on the assignment.

61. Rulings on motion for new trial.—Where defendant, in an action for injuries to a passenger, assigned as error the overruling of its ground for new trial, that the evidence wholly failed to show that the derailment and wrecking of defendant's train on which plaintiff was riding was caused by any of the negligent acts or omissions alleged in plaintiffs' petition, and the statement following the assignment only refers to the ground of the motion as stated, and to the statement under the third assignment, which is 29, where there was no affirmative proof showing how the wreck was caused, the court will not consider the assignment. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clippenger, 47 C. A. 510, 106 S. W. 155.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling an amended motion for a new trial for trial on the ground that the motion was followed up in the motion for a new trial, that it was the duty of the court to grant a new trial when errors were called to its attention. For statement from the record to sustain the assignment and proposition, there were the grounds set up in the motion for a new trial. Held, that under court rule 31 (67 S. W. 260), the assignment should not be considered, but without that consideration thereof would require an examination of the entire statement of facts. Luling Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Gohmert, 50 C. A. 696, 110 S. W. 772.

Where appellants' brief made no reference to the statement of errors in the motion for new trial, the assignments of error are insufficient under rules Nos. 24 and 25.
providing that the statements thereunder must refer to that portion of the motion for new trial evidencing the specifications of error complained of. Tiefen Bros. & Wm. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 319.

62. — Conclusiveness and effect.—Under rule 41 (67 S. W. xvii), providing that, when any statement subjoined to a proposition under an assignment by plaintiff in error or appellant is not contested, it will be construed as acquiesced in, a statement by the appellant which establishes certain evidence established true. Gladys City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. v. Right of Way Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 171.

Courts of appeals rule 40 (142 S. W. xiv), authorizing a determination on the uncontested or uncontested statement under the assignment of errors in appellant's brief, held not mandatory, and that the court might look to the record in determining the question of waiver of jurisdictional privilege by cross-action. Thorsdale Mercantile Co. v. Evens & Lee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1653.

A statement following an assignment of error, not supported by anything in the record, is insufficient to require the court on appeal to review the assignment. Velasco Fish & Oyster Co. v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1184.

63. — Assignments in brief not contained in record.—Where an assignment of error in the brief on appeal was not a copy of any assignment in the record, and the propositions presented thereunder were not appropriate to, and did not arise under, the assignment, neither the assignment nor the propositions can be considered. Kruegel v. Bolanz (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 425; Hardy v. Lamb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 650.

65. References to record.—An assignment that the court erred in not sustaining ap­ pellant's 'first and second special exceptions as per bill of exceptions No. 1,' will not be considered where his brief does not contain, as required by the rules, a statement of appellee's pleading to which the exceptions were addressed. D'Arrigo v. Texas Produce Co. 144 Tex. W. 531, 18 C. A. 41.

Assignments of error which do not identify the particular proceedings complained of in the record, as required by rule 25 (67 S. W. xv), cannot be reviewed. Swift v. Bruce, 31 C. A. 92, 71 S. W. 321.

An assignment was addressed to the court's refusal to sustain designated exceptions which were not set out even substantially in the statement under the assignment, and were not referred to in the transcript. Two propositions were submitted under the assignment, one of which was that it was incumbent on plaintiff to allege and prove upon what line of railroad his damages occurred, and the other was that it was incumbent on plaintiff to allege and prove the amount of damages chargeable to each defendant, and to set up the particular acts or omissions of each defendant. A reference to the transcript showed that the exceptions in fact involved more than one question. Held, that the assignment was not in accordance with the rules, and would be disregarded. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hagler, 33 C. A. 52, 84 S. W. 692.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), an assignment of error on the refusal of an instruc­tion which merely referred to the pages of the record containing the charge and the tes­

It is not sufficient to refer to the bill of exceptions for the facts necessary to con­

Defects in an assignment of error for not stating in substance the facts necessary for its consideration cannot be supplied by reference to the record. Vann v. Denson, 56 C. A. 220, 129 S. W. 1020.

An assignment of error, referring to bills of exception for language of counsel, but failing to indicate the language complained of, will not be considered. Freeman v. Vetter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 190.

An assignment of error to the refusal of a motion for a new trial based on several grounds is not properly reviewable where it is submitted as a proposition itself. Free­man v. McIlroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

Under rules 24, 25 (142 S. W. xii), an assignment of error will not be considered where, in the brief of appellant, there is no reference either to any motion for new trial or to that portion of the motion in which the error is complained of. St. Louis South­western Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ledbetter (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 646.

Where certain assignments of error do not point out the proceedings contained in the record so as to identify the matters objected to as required by rule 25 (152 S. W. xii), they cannot be reviewed. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 229.

An assignment of error complaining of a refusal of an instruction may not be considered, while the instruction was not copied in the brief and the page of the record containing it was not pointed out. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

Upon an assignment of error in denying a continuance for absence of two named wit­nesses and of other witnesses named in the application, the appellate court will not search the record to ascertain all the witnesses mentioned in the application, but will consider the motion only with reference to the two named witnesses. Carver Bros. v. Merce­tton (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 532.

Assignments of error which make no reference to the pages of the record will not be considered. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 294.

Where the assignments of error, complaining of the denial of a continuance, does not point to the paragraph of the motion on which the motion for new trial was based, the assignments do not comply with rules 24, 25, 31 (142 S. W. xii, xiii), and the assignments will not be considered. Texas Midland R. R. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 542.

Where an assignment of error complained of the refusal to sustain a designated paragraph of the motion for new trial on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the law and the evidence, and the brief of appellant showed the pages of the transcript where the motion could be found, the assignment and brief substantially complied with rules 24, 25, 21 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Id.

Assignments of error which do not refer to that portion of the motion for a new trial in which the error is complained of cannot be considered. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

Since objections to charges given and refused need not be set up in the motion for new trial, assignments of error alleging error in the charges need not refer to the motion for new trial as required by rule 25 (142 S. W. xii). San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 175.

Under rules 24 and 25, as amended in 1912 (142 S. W. xii), no question can be raised that has not been presented in a motion for new trial, and each assignment of error must refer to the paragraph of the motion in which the question covered by the assignment has been raised. Morrow v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 206.

Assignments of error not referring to that part of the motion for a new trial in which the error is complained of, as required by rules 24 and 25, as amended January 24, 1912 (142 S. W. xii), cannot be considered. Whitten v. Whitten (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 277; Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. Id. 752.

Rule 25 (142 S. W. xii), requiring assignments of error to refer to that portion of the motion for new trial in which the error is complained of, is sometimes ignored, but will be enforced where no sufficient excuse appears or is implied. Riter v. Neatherly (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 489.

Assignments of error not referring to that part of the motion for new trial in which the error was complained of will be considered as waived. Slaughter v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 764.

66. Time for filing.—The indorsements on the transcript showed that it was delivered to the plaintiff in error one day before the date of assignment of errors attached to, and by agreement of parties made a part of, the transcript. Held, that the assignment of errors should be considered as filed in due time. Booth v. Striplerman, 61 T. 378.

It is sufficient if the assignment of error is filed at any time before the transcript is taken out, and notice of such filing given to appellee in ample time to enable him to prepare his brief with reference thereto. Buchanan v. Wagon, 62 T. 375; Mo. P. Ry. Co. v. Babcock, 3 App. C. C. § 37; Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 625, 8 S. W. 98; Patrick v. Laprille (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 872.

The court will not refuse to consider assignments filed after the filing of the writ of error bond, unless it appears that such assignments have operated to the prejudice of the opposing party. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 625, 8 S. W. 98.

An assignment filed after the transcript has been taken out will be disregarded. Legion of Honor v. Rowell, 78 T. 677, 15 S. W. 217.

67. Filing and annexing to record.—The statute requiring assignments of error to be filed before the record is taken from the clerk's office is mandatory. Phillips v. Webb (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1011.

The appellate court cannot consider assignments of error in appellant's brief which are not in the record. Morrow v. Terrell, 21 C. A. 28, 50 S. W. 734.

Assignments of error must be considered if the assignment can be found and taken apparently from the motion for a new trial. Hoover v. Kearney, 23 C. A. 71, 60 S. W. 782.

Assignments of error in a case appealed on a statement of facts will not be considered, where not filed below. Gidcumb v. Gig (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 827.

Assignments of errors in briefs will not be considered where there are no assignment of errors in the record. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 888.

Where no assignments of error were copied into the transcript, error alleged in the brief cannot be considered on appeal unless it is shown by the record. Engleman v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1089.

An assignment of error not shown to have been filed below nor to have been filed by consent on appeal will not be considered. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 51.

Where an assignment of error was not filed in the court below, the appellate tribunal need not consider it. Gray v. Altman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 760.

Where an assignment of error was not filed in the court below, nor its filing waived by opposing counsel, and where the brief of the party taking the assignment contained no certificate by the clerk of the trial court that the brief was filed therein, the assignment could not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1185.

Under this article and rule 23 (142 S. W. xii) providing that that court will only consider errors of law apparent on the record, if it does not contain an assignment of errors, the court of civil appeals cannot consider assignments of error copied in appellant's brief, where no assignments were filed in the trial court. Witherspoon v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 632.

Assignments of error will not be considered, where the record does not show that they were filed in the lower court. Thompson v. Howard (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1066.

See, also, Art. 2113.

Under this article and Art. 2113, providing that the transcript on appeal shall contain the assignments of error, where there is no assignment of errors in the transcript.
on appeal, assignments presented in appellant's brief cannot be considered, and in the absence of error apparent on the face of the record requiring a reversal, the judgment must be affirmed. Peacock v. Moore (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 943.

Assignments of error contained in an amended brief, but not in a transcript, will not be considered. Stephenson v. Turley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 845.

Where assignments of error were not in the transcript when delivered to the court of civil appeals because of the fault of the clerk, the assignments will be considered on appeal. Ginn's Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 628.

59. Cross-assignments.—As to cross-assignment of errors, see Brown v. Hudson, 14 C. A. 605, 38 S. W. 653, and cases cited.

Motion by appellant to strike cross-assignments of error is too late, when made after submission of the case on appeal. Watt v. Hunter, 20 C. A. 76, 48 S. W. 953.

A cross-assignment of error should be considered in the case on appeal, for any reason remanded the case, held a waiver of such assignment, the judgment having been modified and affirmed. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Nicolin (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 84.

The court of civil appeals, after deciding a case on appeal, will not consider cross-assignments of error not before it for consideration before its decision was rendered. O'Neill v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 172.

70. Right to assign.—Where appellee defendant fails to perfect a cross-appeal, he cannot have affirmative relief against co-plaintiffs with appellants, who do not appeal. Hunter v. Kearnby, 25 C. A. 74, 69 S. W. 782.

A cross-assignment of errors by a party not appealing, as to another party also not appealing, will not be considered. Blackwell v. Farmers & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 454.

In an action involving title to land sold defendants, even though defendants did not appeal, a cross-assignment of error, which affects appellant, that the court erred in finding that defendants were not bona fide purchasers, will be considered. Veatch v. Gilmer (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 746.

On appeal by one of several co-plaintiffs, neither defendant nor any of appellant's co-plaintiffs having perfected an appeal, cross-assignments of error which have no reference to appellant, or to that portion of the judgment appealed from, will not be considered. Id. Id.

Where one of several plaintiffs appealed, but neither defendant nor any of the co-plaintiffs appealed, cross-assignments of error having no reference to appellant, nor to that part of the judgment appealed from, will not be considered. Gilmer's Estate v. Veatch, 102 T. 334, 117 S. W. 450.

Neither the statute nor rule 101 (67 S. W. xxvii), permitting appellant to file cross-assignments of error with the clerk of the trial court when he files his brief, which assignments may be incorporated in the brief and need not be copied in the transcript, complements the incorporation of assignments of error in the transcript so that appellee will be taxed with the cost of incorporating them. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

Where a defendant appeals from a judgment for plaintiff, plaintiff must file a cross-appeal from a judgment for a co-defendant before he can assign cross-errors complaining of the judgment for the co-defendant. Western Nat. Bank v. White (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 828.

A cross-assignment of error will not be reviewed on appeal, where the appellees did not appeal from the judgment. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

71. Necessity.—An appellee who has not filed cross-assignments or brief cannot object to a dismissal by appellant for the purpose of having the cause remanded. I. B. & L. Ass'n v. Snodgrass (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 399.

A judicial order to defendant in error will not be considered, in the absence of a cross-assignment. Wilkerson v. Jones (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1016.

Objection to the rulings of the court below cannot be urged by appellees unless they have a cross-assignment of errors. Blum v. Moore, 91 T. 273, 42 S. W. 856.

The appellee will not be considered, where there is no cross-assignment of error in the record. Burns v. Falls, 23 C. A. 388, 56 S. W. 576.

Plaintiff, in trespass to try title, who failed to appeal or file cross-assignments against his co-appellees, held not entitled, on a reversal of judgment, to a judgment against his co-appellees, though warranted by the evidence. Clawson v. Williams, 27 C. A. 130, 66 S. W. 702.

A finding that premises were homestead and not subject to a mechanic's lien, unassailed by cross-assignment of error, must be treated as true on appeal. Muller v. McLaughlin, 37 C. A. 449, 84 S. W. 857.

Whether a petition states a cause of action may be questioned on plaintiff's appeal, though cross-assignments to the overruling of a demurrer may not have been filed as required by rule 101, for district and county courts. Farenthold v. Tell, 52 C. A. 119, 118 S. W. 635.

In the absence of cross-assignments of error calling in question the correctness of the trial court's ruling in striking out appellee's plea in reconvention on exception, the ruling cannot be reviewed. Mitchell v. Rushing, 55 C. A. 531, 118 S. W. 532.

If an appellee is denied an instructed verdict to which he is entitled, he may have the ruling reviewed without a cross-assignment of error. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 909.

Where, in a suit for injunction, the court overruled certain grounds for granting the injunction, and such rulings were not presented by cross-assignments of error by appellee, they could not be considered on the other party's appeal. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.
The court held not bound to review the ruling on appellee's special exceptions to a plea in reconvention in the absence of cross-assignments of error. Hansen v. First Nat. Bank of Center (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1147.

Where the trial judge filed conclusions of fact and a statement of facts was brought up on appeal, and the undisputed testimony showed that the proper judgment was rendered, the court was entitled to an affirmation of the judgment without assigning error on the findings of fact not supported by undisputed testimony. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 723.

The supreme court held not entitled to question the amount of the judgment against defendant in error, presenting no cross-assignment thereon. Tarrant County v. Rogers, 104 T. 224, 136 S. W. 255.

Where defendant in error made no complaint by cross-assignment as to the amount of the judgment rendered against him, the supreme court on writ of error cannot consider the question. 16.

All questions not involving fundamental error of law must be presented by assignments or cross-assignments of error. 16.

A court on appeal held not bound to consider matters arising in a cross-action, in the absence of cross-assignments. Gulf Refining Co. v. Pagach Bros. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 719.

72. Filing and annexing to record.—An appellee or defendant in error may file a cross-assignment of errors separate from his brief, and in such case a failure to file his brief in time, where it is not stricken out, will not deprive him of his cross-appeal. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 431.

District and county court rule 101 (20 S. W. xviii) requires an assignment of cross-error to be filed in the trial court. Patterson v. Section 19, C. A. 430, 47 S. W. 732. A cross-assignment of error incorporated in appellee's brief, on an appeal from a justice court, shown to have been filed in the district court by the clerk's certificate thereon, may be considered in the court of civil appeals. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gepp (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 251.

A cross-assignment of error, not considered, may be considered, where the record does not show they were filed in the district court. Morrow v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 734.

A certificate by the clerk of the trial court, indorsed on appellee's brief, that a cross-assignment of error therein set forth, was filed in the court below, required the consideration by the appellate court of the alleged error. Burns v. Fallis, 23 C. A. 385, 56 S. W. 576.

Counter assignment of error, not embraced in the transcript, will not be considered. Scott v. Miss. & Found. S. Co., 23 C. A. 930, 90 S. W. 969.

A cross-assignment of error, not filed in the district court as required by district and county court rule 101 (67 S. W. xxvii), cannot be considered on appeal. Altgelt v. Elmenhof (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 41.

Where neither cross-assignment of error nor a copy of appellee's brief containing them are filed in the court below, as required by district and county court rule 101, such cross-assignments will not be considered on appeal. City of Austin v. Cahill (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 235.

A cross-assignment of error will not be considered where the record does not show that it was filed in the trial court, and where there is no indorsement on appellee's brief that a copy thereof was filed in the trial court. G. C. Williams & Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 916.

Appellee's brief containing cross-assignments, not filed in the trial court, where no consent was obtained to file them in the court of civil appeals, held not to be considered by that court. O'Neill v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 172.

Where appellee's brief contained cross-assignments of error, but there was nothing in the transcript nor in the papers filed to indicate that the cross-assignments were filed in the district court, or such filing waived, or any consent of the appellant to their introduction, they will not be considered by the court. Texareena & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 158.

In the absence of the filing of cross-assignments of error in the trial court or by consent in the appellate court, the appellate court cannot reform a judgment by making it more favorable to appellees. Caples v. Port Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 363.

A cross-assignment of error in appellee's brief cannot be considered; the record not showing the assignment was filed in the trial court, and neither brief appearing to have been filed there. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 629.

Where an assignment of error was not filed in the court below, the appellate tribunal need not consider it. Gray v. Altman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 706.

Which cross-assignments not filed in the court below, and where a copy of appellee's brief in which they were presented was not so filed. League v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1129.

73. Sufficiency.—A cross-assignment of error held too general. Yarborough v. Tumin, 50 C. A. 381, 115 W. 471.

74. Defects, objections, and amendments.—The court of civil appeals is not deprived of authority to decide a point defectively raised by an assignment which is not in strict compliance with the statute and the rules of the court. Cambmack v. Rogers, 36 T. 457, 73 S. W. 705.

Assignments of error, filed in the lower court and accompanied by the proper certificate, will be considered on appeal, in the absence of objections. Newman v. Satterwhite (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1146.

When the court of civil appeals bases its opinion on a partial statement of facts, subjoined to an assignment of error, it would not grant a motion to file additional conclusions of fact based on additional facts, called to its attention on rehearing. Nolander v. Weems (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1021.
Where appellant's counsel waived objections to defects in appellant's assignments of error, the assignments will be considered. Hill v. Hanan & Son (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 648.

On an appeal perfected February 23, 1912, from a judgment rendered January 26, 1912, assignments of error will be reviewed notwithstanding appellant's failure to comply with any amendments required of him on January 24, 1912, to the rules for courts of civil appeals. Davidson v. Patton (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 767.

New and important questions raised by appellant's brief, and assignments concerning which there might reasonably be a doubt as to the correctness of the action of the trial judge, held reviewable, although the brief did not comply with the rules of court. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloluki Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Rule 28 for the court of civil appeals (142 S. W. xii), as amended in January, 1912, requires a motion for new trial as a condition precedent to the motion for new trial filed before the rule was promulgated. Jones v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 737.

Assignments of error are not open to amendment in the appellate court, and hence cannot be cured by a supplemental brief. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 917.

75. Scope and effect of assignment.—The question of defendant's wanton and reckless negligence held not raised under an assignment as to its liability in case deceased was a tenant. Dyess v. Frugia Bros. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 193.

Where an erroneous charge led to the verdict, error should be assigned to the charge, and not to the verdict. Davis v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 505, 44 S. W. 812.

A contention, on appeal from a judgment against a carrier for injuries to a shipment of live stock, held foreign to the assignment of error. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 286.

An assignment of error that the court erred in holding that the pleadings set up an exaction for the same was proper and that the error was assigned to the judgment, is insufficient to raise the question of the admissibility of the contract in evidence. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 28.

Certain assignments of error held not to present for review a ruling on the question of the admissibility of evidence. Hunter v. Adams & Libby, 38 C. 544, 86 S. W. 589.

Under a certain assignment of error held that certain propositions could not arise. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 714.

An assignment that the court in an action for negligent death erred in refusing a continuance to defendant held not to raise the question whether it was entitled to have the judgment set aside and a new trial granted. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

An assignment of error that the court erred in not sustaining a plea in abatement held not reviewable in the absence of an assignment attacking a finding of fact. City Loan & Trust Co. v. Sterner, 57 C. A. 517, 124 S. W. 207.

An assignment of error in an action for negligence held to bring in review the sufficiency of the evidence on the subject of negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 496.

An assignment of error held sufficient to warrant review of all errors committed by the court in giving a peremptory instruction. Hough v. Fink (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 147.

An assignment not to review a continuance to defendant held presupposes an assignment of error upon a certain inference as to plaintiff's ground for recovery, appellant cannot complain on appeal of any injury from indulging in such inference. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 583.

76. — Rulings on pleadings.—Certain assignments of error held to be in the nature of demurrers to the petition, so that the proper practice would have been to first demur to the petition and assign an adverse ruling thereon as error, and hence called for review only far enough to determine whether the petition was good on general demurrer. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 61 C. A. 527, 115 S. W. 837.

In this article, the action of an elevator company's special exception, to the corporation's want of capacity to do business in the state was not presented for review by an assignment that the court erred in defining the cure owed by the defendant. Huntington Ry. Co. v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 735.

Where assignment of errors go to the admission of an entire deposition of a county clerk and an abstract of title attached thereto, they do not raise the question of the admissibility of any particular portion of the abstract. Frugia v. Truehart, 48 C. A. 512, 106 S. W. 736.

Where an assignment of error related to the admissibility of evidence only, and did not involve the court's failure to strike out the witnesses' answers, the admissibility of the evidence only could be reviewed. Pullman Co. v. Vanderhooven, 48 C. A. 414, 107 S. W. 147.

Where a ruling on evidence is brought to an appellate court on a single proposition, appellant is confined thereto. Kansas City Consol. Smelting & Refining Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 839.

A motion for a continuance for personal injuries, an error held to arise in the court's instruction, and not reviewable, under an assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence. Southern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Evans, 54 C. A. 63, 116 S. W. 418.

A certain objection to the admission of evidence, if raised for review by the objection to the assignment of error, would be raised by the assignment of error, having asserted a different ground for its incompetency. Rudolph v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 209.

An assignment assailing competency of evidence cannot raise the question of its sufficiency to prove the issue. Powell v. Hill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1125.
78. Submission of issues to jury.—An assignment of error made to that plaintiff had made a case by the evidence, and that the court erred in permitting the peremptory against him. Oliver v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 392.

An assignment of error that the court erred in taking the case from the jury after the evidence was all in, and instructing for defendant, is sufficient to warrant review of all errors committed by the court in giving the peremptory instruction. Rough v. Fink (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 147.

Under court rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), providing that assignments of error must distinctly specify the grounds of error relied on, and set forth in the motion for new trial, an assignment of error specifying what plaintiff was entitled to have instructed upon, and the refusal to give the instruction, will not raise the question of insufficiency of the evidence in a respect not called to the attention of the trial court. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 468.

79. Instructions.—An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a charge held not to raise the question whether, the instruction being erroneous, the court erred in not submitting it in some other form. Parlin v. Orendorff Co. v. Miller, 25 C. A. 190, 60 S. W. 881.

An assignment that the statement of plaintiff's cause of action shows the cause to be for a less amount than the jurisdiction of the court, then the court has no jurisdiction, is without merit, where the petition showed $600 then due under the terms of the contract sued on. Supreme Tent of Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Cox, 25 C. A. 366, 60 S. W. 971.

An assignment of error in an action by a wife for the conversion of her separate property deposited by her husband held not to raise the question of error in failing to instruct that the burden of showing a proper payment was on the bank. Coleman v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 98.

Assignments of error complaining of a refusal to give special instructions, merely referred to, but not set out, and not followed by a statement giving the instructions in full, will not be considered on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cornell, 29 C. A. 596, 69 S. W. 980.

Error in a charge in ignoring a certain issue held subject to be complained of under a general assignment alleging error in the charge given. Metcalf v. Lowenstein, 35 C. A. 619, 91 S. W. 362.

Assignments of error not held not to include refusal to submit special charges referred to. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fanning, 40 C. A. 422, 91 S. W. 344.

The appellate court is bound to consider instructions with reference to the specific objections raised thereto, and not with reference to objections not urged. Laughlin v. Schmitz (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 906.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of the court to give a charge held not to raise the question of the error of the court in failing to give a correct charge, on the allegation being called to the attention of the court which was erroneous. Hess v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618.

Where an assignment presents the sole question of the refusal to give a defective charge, and does not allege that the court should have viewed in view of the request have given a proper charge on the subject, it may be overruled, though the court entirely omitted to charge on the issue to which the refused charge related. Laughman v. Sun Pipe Line Co., 52 C. A. 485, 114 S. W. 451.

An assignment of error that the court erred in refusing a requested charge does not present the question whether, the instruction being erroneous, the court erred in not submitting the issue in some form. Clevenger v. Blount (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 868.

Under an assignment alleging error in the giving of the peremptory charge, error in excluding testimony cannot be considered. Sarro v. Bell (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 24.

An assignment of error held not to present the question whether the court erred in failing to give a correct charge on an omitted issue, after its attention was called to the omission by an incorrect requested charge thereon. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. McBryer (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 388.

Under the statute requiring assignments of error to be distinctly specified, defendant's special exception to plaintiff's corporation's want of capacity to transact business in the state was not presented for review by an assignment that the court erred in defining the care required and what constituted negligence. Arbuckle Bros. v. Everybody's Gin & Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 199.

An assignment of error in refusing a requested charge does not present for review the contention that the court's request was sufficient to direct the court's attention to the issue desired to be submitted and to require it to submit a correct charge. Walker v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1142.

A contention that an erroneous charge was sufficient to require the court to give a correct one on the subject-matter could not be considered under an assignment that the court erred in refusing the charge requested. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

The objection that an answer in the verdict is obscure may not be reached by assignment complaining of the instructions. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1059.

80. Verdict, findings, or judgment.—An assignment of error that the evidence does not support the findings of fact does not attack the sufficiency of the findings to sustain the judgment. Tarrant County v. Reid, 28 C. A. 425, 67 S. W. 785.

Where it is assigned as error that the verdict is excessive and unconscionable, but there is no assignment of complaint of the court's refusal to set it aside, the appellate court is not required to revise the verdict. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Branch, 29 C. A. 144, 65 S. W. 333.

An assignment of error, in an action by a shipper against a railroad company for injuries to animals, which complains of the judgment because not authorized by the pleadings, is sufficient to raise the question of the propriety of the court entering a judgment for interest on the amount found by the jury as damages. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. v. Addison, 36 Tex. 671, 36 S. W. 390.

An assignment of error on appeal held not to raise the question whether a finding was against the preponderance of the evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 32 C. A. 23, 74 S. W. 345.

An assignment of error held not to raise the question whether the court erred in not restricting the extent of recovery. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ridenour, 35 C. A. 574, 85 S. W. 1820.

An assignment of error that the judgment is against the weight of the evidence held to present for review the action of the court in refusing a new trial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Walters, 49 C. A. 369.

To have a judgment reversed on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, error must be assigned to the overruling of the motion for a new trial. Id.

An assignment that there is no evidence to support a verdict does not require this court to consider whether there is sufficient evidence to support it. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Corn (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 455.

Where the findings do not support the judgment, the court of civil appeals will consider assignments of error attacking the judgment as unsupported by the evidence. Bell v. Cetti, 58 C. A. 193, 118 S. W. 241.

An assignment of error to the action of the court in rendering judgment on a special verdict merely raises the question whether the court entered in conformity with the verity v. Hussey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 256.

Under this article and rules 24 and 26 (67 S. W. xv), providing that assignments of error must distinctly specify the grounds, assignments of error that the court erred in failing to find a verdict for appellant on the evidence, and that the court erred in dismissing the appeal against the preponderance of the evidence, because the court erred in refusing to find a judgment for plaintiff against defendants failing to appear and answer, and because defendant appearing failed to answer, except by plea in abatement, which he failed to urge until after plaintiff had made its prima facie case, etc., are assignments of insufficiency of the evidence, and unless the petition sets forth the judgment by default, Citizens' State Bank v. O'Neal (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1183.

Where appellant did not assign error upon the specific findings of fact made, only the insufficiency of the evidence to sustain judgment can be considered on appeal; the proper judgment having been rendered if the facts were as found by the court. Rushing v. Spreen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 49.

A proposition in support of an assignment of error, that there is no competent testimony to support the finding of the insufficiency of the evidence, but merely whether there is any evidence to support the verdict. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

An assignment of error that the verdict was against the preponderance of the evidence did not present the question whether it was excessive. Freeman v. Morales (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 644.

An assignment of error that the petition does not authorize the judgment does not raise the question of the sufficiency of service of process. First Bank of Springtown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 652.

Assignment of error that cause of action was barred by limitation, and there being no evidence to the contrary, the verdict and judgment was against the preponderance of the evidence, held to raise only the question whether the undisputed evidence showed that the cause was barred. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Longini (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 888.

Where the court filed a statement of facts and conclusions of fact, an assignment of error that defendant in rendering judgment erred in finding that the undisputed evidence showed a specified fact, followed by a proposition stating facts on which estoppel was predicated, raised the question of the insufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment, though defendant did not except to the conclusions of fact. Nichols v. Linger (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 641.

The contention that appellant should have been allowed to deduct from appellee's share of proceeds on a sale of land certain expenses not presented as an independent proposition, but under an assignment alleging that the court erred in rendering any judgment, will not be considered. Thomson v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1640.

The objection that an answer in the verdict is obscure may not be reached by assignment complaining of the instructions. Daughtery v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1089.

Assignments of error which do not attack the findings of fact by the court below, but only the conclusions of law, raise only the question of the sufficiency of the findings to support the judgment. Whitman v. Aldrich (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 464.

81. — Motions for new trial.—An assignment that the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial, asked on the ground that the verdict was contrary to the evidence and the law and excessive in amount, was insufficient to present for review in the court of civil appeals the question whether defendant was negligent, and precluded consideration of such question on final review in the Supreme Court. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Texas v. Horne (Sup.) 145 S. W. 1185.

82. Relation to record.—An assignment of error based on a bill of exceptions taken to the admission of testimony, when the bill was taken and filed after the adjournment of court, cannot be considered. Hess v. Dean, 66 T. 663, 2 S. W. 727.

Where an assignment is not based upon a ruling shown by the record, and no error is found in the record, the judgment will be affirmed. Moss v. Kittman (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 315.

An assignment of error will not be considered when not based upon a matter presented by the pleadings or evidence. Dublin Cotton Oil Co. v. Jarrard, 91 T. 293, 42 S. W. 939.

Where a bill of exceptions shows that an assignment of error is not true, the question will not be considered in the court of civil appeals. Karnes County v. Ray (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 76. 873

Assignments of error held insufficiently presented. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 438.

An assignment of error in not sustaining objection to a question to a witness must be overruled where an explanation to the bill of exceptions shows that the question was not in fact asked or answered. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Biles & Ruby, 56 C. A. 130, 120 S. W. 572.

An assignment of error held not to have support in the record, in view of the trial court's explanation to the bill. Miller v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 302.

An assignment of error to the admission of testimony cannot be considered; the testimony, referred to in the bill of exceptions, not appearing in the agreed statement of facts. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Grenig (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 135.

An assignment of error will not be reviewed where the proposition under such assignment is not supported by the statement of facts. Martin v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1061.

Where an assignment of error complained that plaintiff was allowed to ask what were the terms of a contract between the defendants, over objection that the contract was the best evidence "as appears by bill of exceptions No. 2," and the proposition under it was that it was the court's duty to construe the contract, and the bill of exceptions showed evidence as to who paid for some of the materials required and that some of the work was done in accordance with the plans admitted over objection that it was irrelevant and that it tended to contradict the written contract, the assignments should be overruled for lack of support in the record. Ripley v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

An assignment complaining of the admission of evidence will not be reviewed where the record shows to the contrary that objections were made at the proper time, or contain any bill of exceptions covering the points. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

Where the statement of facts did not show that a witness testified to the facts set out in the bill of exceptions assignment of error, the court of review could not decide that error existed; the statement and bill being of equal dignity. Lind v. Reeves & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 262.

An assignment of error to the overruling of defendants' first application for a continuance cannot be considered. If it is not sustained by bill of exceptions. Albrect v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 354.

83. Incorporating assignments in briefs.—See notes under Art. 1614.

Errors not assigned will be considered as waived. Lewis v. Steiner, 84 T. 364, 19 S. W. 516; Brown v. Elmendorf, 26 S. W. 1043, 87 T. 56.

Where a proposition relied on in the brief of appellant is not raised by the assignment of errors, it cannot be considered on appeal. Kahler v. Carruthers, 18 C. A. 215, 45 S. W. 160.

Failure to set up assignments of error on a previous appeal, to which plaintiffs in error were parties, is ground for dismissing a subsequent writ of error from the same judgment. v. Cates, 22 C. A. 577, 55 S. W. 963.

The failure to file assignments of error constitutes an abandonment of the appeal, though proper notice of appeal has been given. Clawson v. Williams, 27 C. A. 130, 66 S. W. 702.

Where there are no assignments of errors in the record, a judgment will be affirmed. Renshaw v. Brennand (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 1099.

Where there was no assignment of error on a finding by a trial court, the appellee had a right to have the appeal disposed of upon the assumption that the finding was supported by the testimony. Handy v. Cates, 44 C. A. 38, 97 S. W. 170.

Where, in an action of trespass, an assignment of error to the amount of damages is subject to the objection of generality, the evidence will be considered as warranting the verdict rendered. Bollinger v. McMinn, 47 C. A. 89, 104 S. W. 1079.

A failure to raise in the transcript of the record, only such errors as are fundamental or apparent from the record may be considered on appeal. McCoulum v. Adams (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 536.

In the absence of a proper assignment of error to the direction of a verdict, court will presume that the evidence warranted such action. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430.

All errors not distinctly specified are waived. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Natl. Bank, 52 C. A. 561, 114 S. W. 910.

Under this article and supreme court rule 29 (67 S. W. xv), providing that the transcript must contain a copy of the assignment of errors filed in accordance with the rules of the district court, where the record fails to show any assignment of error filed by a party, and no error is apparent from the record, the judgment below will be affirmed. Durham v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 1141.

Where no briefs or assignments of error were filed and no excuse offered for failure to file the same, and the cause was regularly set down and called for submission, motion to dismiss for such failure will be granted. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 924.

In the absence of any assignment of error that findings are not sustained by the evidence, the findings are conclusive on appeal. Old River Lumber Co. v. Skeetor (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 511.

Where appellant did not assign error upon the specific findings of fact made, only the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the judgment can be considered on appeal. Rushing v. Spreen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 49.

Proper scope of review is absence from the record of assignments of error required by articles 1612 and 2113, and rules 22 and 23 (67 S. W. xvi), stated. Walker v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 840.

Where no assignments of error are filed below, but the case is briefed, the court on appeal will examine the record for fundamental errors. Swearingen v. Myers (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 664.

An objection to the judgment, not presented by an assignment of error, is waived. Medford v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 876.

Where there is no assignment of error complaining that the evidence was insufficient to authorize a judgment on a cross-action, every presumption in favor of the correctness of the judgment in that respect must be indulged. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Where the transcript does not contain a copy of an assignment of errors required by the statute and court rules, the court will only consider fundamental errors apparent upon the record. Biggs v. Blount (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

In the absence of an assignment of error complaining that proof was not made, it will be assumed on appeal that there was evidence proving all facts necessary to support the judgment. Peeveshouse v. Smith (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1196.

The judgment will be affirmed where the record does not show that assignments of error were filed in the lower court. Thompson v. Howard (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1065.

Where the assignments of error cannot be considered, and no fundamental error appears, the judgment will be affirmed. Cain v. Delaney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 751.

Where assignments of error are not sufficient to present the case on appeal, and an examination of the record discloses no fundamental error, the judgment must be affirmed. Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 752.

Where no assignments of error complaining that proof was not made, it will be assumed on appeal that there was evidence proving all facts necessary to support the judgment. Peeveshouse v. Smith (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1196.

The judgment will be affirmed where the record does not show that assignments of error were filed in the lower court. Thompson v. Howard (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1065.

Where the assignments of error cannot be considered, and no fundamental error appears, the judgment will be affirmed. Cain v. Delaney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 751.

Where assignments of error are not sufficient to present the case on appeal, and an examination of the record discloses no fundamental error, the judgment must be affirmed. Irving v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 752.

Art. 1613. [1022] Docket of causes and disposition of same.—When a cause is carried to the courts of civil appeals by writ of error, it shall be docketed in the order of the date received; and the clerk shall transfer the said cause to the trial docket thirty days after the same has been received and docketed; provided, that the court may, upon motion of either party, of which notice shall be given to the adverse party, extend the time for placing said cause on the trial docket for good cause shown. [Acts 1899, p. 115. Acts 1895, p. 79. Acts 1893, p. 165. Acts 1905, p. 19.]

Rights of appellee.—Under this article and article 2115 appellee has two substantial rights: (1) To have the cause submitted in its regular order; and (2) to be allowed 20 days after notice of the filing of appellants' brief with the district clerk within which to prepare and file his own brief. The rule as to filing briefs may be relaxed if it will not delay submission and there is plenty of time after filing for appellee to prepare and file briefs before submission. Niday v. Cochran, 48 C. A. 259, 106 S. W. 463.

Art. 1614. [1019] Appearance by brief, etc.—When any cause or suit may be taken up from any inferior court to the court of civil appeals, whether by appeal, writ of error, or otherwise, it shall be lawful for the attorney for both the plaintiff and defendant to file, in the papers of said suit or cause, written or printed briefs or argument, if written not to exceed fifteen pages; and the said court shall be required to notice the same as if it were the personal appearance of said attorney, and shall not dismiss any suit or cause where such brief or argument of counsel is filed with the papers for want of other or further prosecution. [Acts 1909, S. S., p. 270.]
1. Necessity of briefs. — Though justice was not done below, the court of civil appeals cannot review errors, in absence of a proper brief presenting them; they not being fundamental. Stephenville Oil Mill v. McNeil, 57 C. A. 552, 122 S. W. 911.

3. Statement of evidence. — Appellant's brief does not show the ground of objections to evidence, the court will not search a voluminous record to find the particular objections urged. Godair v. Tillar, 19 C. A. 541, 47 S. W. 553.

4. Refusal to submit special issues will not be considered, where appellant does not state in his brief what the issues were and that they were presented. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 48 S. W. 605, 49 S. W. 635.

5. Where it does not appear from the statement in appellant's brief that a bill of exceptions to the admission of evidence complained of was reserved, the assignment will not be considered. Sanz v. O. F. Munne & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 59.

6. Assignment of error will not be considered where there is a total lack of any statement from the record, as required by the rules for briefing. Jones v. Creech (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 975.

7. Where it does not appear from the statements in the brief that a certain defense was raised by the evidence, there is no error in refusing to charge such defense. Hirsch v. Patton, 49 C. A. 499, 108 S. W. 1015.

8. Where an objection alleged to be ground of reviewing the record, was not made by the trial division, it will not be considered in the court of civil appeals. Reeves v. Inman (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 61.

9. Statement of evidence. — A brief not containing a statement of all the material facts proved upon the trial will be disregarded. Arnold v. Chamberlin (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 767.

10. Where a brief contains no statement of the evidence to be reviewed, and appellant fails to comply with an order to amend it, the assignment as to the evidence is abandoned. City of Commerce v. Zettlemoyer (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 173.

11. Refusal of a charge held not reviewable, when the brief fails to state or refer to evidence presenting the issue referred to in the charge. Davidson v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 765.

12. To show error, in that a charge ignored defense of assumed risk, appellant's brief must show that evidence raised such issue. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 1039.

13. Alleged error in the admission of evidence with reference to a copy of an execution held not reviewable where appellant made no effort to show the alleged difference between the copy and the original. Peoples v. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 61.

14. Where defendant in a suit for architect's services falls to point out on appeal any evidence relating to a schedule of architect's charges, an objection that the jury should have been charged not to consider such evidence will not be reviewed. Buckler v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 867.

15. An objection that a sufficient predicate had not been laid for a hypothetical question could not be reviewed, where appellant's brief did not show what testimony, if any, had

Under an assignment of error on the admission of evidence the brief should disclose the evidence. Sterling v. De Laune, 47 C. A. 470, 105 S. W. 1163.

5. — Setting out instructions.—The refusal to give special requests will not be reviewed unless they are set out in the brief. First Nat. Bank v. Stephens, 19 C. A. 660, 47 S. W. 832.

A refusal of instructions not set out in appellant's brief will not be considered. Armstrong v. Elliott, 29 C. A. 41, 48 S. W. 605, 49 S. W. 635.

An assignment of error in an instruction will not be considered, where appellant's brief does not contain the instruction. Bourn v. Gray (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 556.

Assignments of error complaining of the refusal of special charges will not be considered where the charges are not copied in appellant's brief, nor reference made to the page of the record where they can be found. Armstrong Packing Co. v. Clem (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 576. An assignment of error complaining that one part of the charge was in conflict with another is insufficient, where the brief fails to specify and set out the particular parts of the charge with which the one complained of was in conflict. Swearingen v. Bray (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 953.

6. — Propositions and statements accompanying assignments of errors.—See notes under Art. 1612.

Where appellant's brief presents various assignments of error together, each complaint of the brief and alleged inconsistency, in violation of the rules prescribed by the supreme court for briefing causes, such assignments will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 24 C. A. 127, 57 S. W. 959. The question, not briefed or suggested, whether the state may recover more than one penalty where it is shown there were several breaches of a liquor dealer's bond, will not be considered on appeal from a judgment for two penalties. McLeod v. State, 23 C. A. 170, 76 S. W. 216.

No reversal will be had where brief did not sufficiently point out error complained of. Central Texas & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, 99 T. 98, 87 S. W. 814.

Assignment of error held not so brief as to be entitled to consideration. Ragley v. Godley (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 66; Morgan v. Barber (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 730; Stark v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 939.

A party desiring to question a judgment in a suit involving title to property must present in his brief the particulars complained of. Herman v. Dunman (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 80.

Assignments of error in the giving of inconsistent instructions will not be considered where the points of inconsistency are not pointed out in the brief. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Horne & Warren, 43 C. A. 490, 55 S. W. 97.

Where an assignment of error copied in a brief does not distinctly specify any error, nor does the proposition under it, the assignment of error will not be considered. The statutes and the rules of court relating to making briefs should be observed. Poland v. Porter, 44 C. A. 334, 98 S. W. 216.

A brief, in the preparation of which no attention was paid to the rules of court, and which did not present the errors relied on for reversal of the judgment in such a way as to enable the court to intelligently pass upon them, would not be considered on appeal. Lowe v. Haynes, 44 C. A. 421, 98 S. W. 1068.

On appeal plaintiff held not entitled to complain of the admission in evidence against him of his application for a continuance. Sterling v. De Laune, 47 C. A. 470, 105 S. W. 1169.

Fundamental errors in a cause will be considered by the appellate court, though not urged in the brief. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Roberts, 48 C. A. 335, 197 S. W. 626.

Objections to a petition will be considered waived on appeal unless brought forward in appellant's brief. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 323, 112 S. W. 355.

A particular objection to the admission of testimony made by an assignment of error will be considered as abandoned where that particular objection was not relied on or mentioned in the brief. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Spencer, 65 C. A. 456, 119 S. W. 716.

The court on appeal will not examine the statement of facts to ascertain the relevancy of rejected evidence, but its materiality must appear from some statement contained in the brief in which the evidence was introduced. Land v. Roby, 66 C. A. 323, 109 S. W. 1057.

The court will not reverse a judgment on a point not raised in appellant's brief. Freeman v. Cahn (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 894.

An objection shown by the bill of exceptions, but not brought forward in brief on appeal by appropriate proposition, held waived. Halle v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1088.

Under the court rules, assignments of error not urged in appellant's brief will not be considered. Peck v. N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 175.

Where an appellant's brief does not indicate the nature of a requested special charge, the refusal of which he complains, no question is presented for review. Guaranty State Bank & Trust Co. v. Lively (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 211.

Fundamental errors will not be reviewed on appeal, notwithstanding appellant's failure to brief it. Evants v. Erdman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 929.

The failure to copy assignments of error in the brief as a waiver. When delay is suggested and damages asked they will be considered to determine whether the appellees are entitled to damages. Where they cannot be removed to Tanning Co. (iv. App.) 29 S. W. 911.

Assignments of error raising different questions should occupy separate places in the brief. Sanger v. Harris (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 645.

Assignments of error in the brief on appeal, which are not copies of the assignments in the record, will not be considered over objection. Horsemann v. Coleman County (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 394.

Where there are no assignments of error in the record, a motion to strike out the briefs of appellee because there are no assignments of error therein must prevail. Hollywood v. V. W. Wellington, 28 C. A. 541, 68 S. W. 339.

Appeal dismissed for appellant's failure to copy assignments of error in his brief, as required by appellate rule 29 (67 S. W. xvi). Bowman v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 346.

Where there is any evidence of assignments of error in brief held not to comply with rule requiring them to be copied. Alexander v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 341.

Where the assignments of error in appellant's brief are not even substantial copies of the corresponding assignments of error in the record, they will not be considered. Kingston v. Atlantic Oil Co. v. Au (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 813.

Propositions in a brief, not based on assignments of error carried into the brief, will not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 208.

The record can only be looked to for assignments of error made by plaintiff in error, and will not be considered, if they cannot be copied in the brief. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Harry, 37 C. A. 90, 82 S. W. 735.

Propositions of law contained in appellant's brief will be disregarded, when not accompanied by the assignments of error upon which they are based. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Davison Bros. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 258.

Where no assignments of error are copied in appellant's brief or contained in the transcript, questions of law raised by the brief will not be decided. Crawford v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1073.

Omission to consecutively number assignments of error discussed in appellant's brief held a mere technical violation of rule 29 for the courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), and insufficient to require court to refuse to consider the assignments. Lewis v. Houston Electric Co., 29 C. A. 825, 88 S. W. 489.

Appellee held to have waived cross-assignments of error by failing to present them in his brief, as required by district court rule 101. M. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Cooper, 99 T. 386, 69 S. W. 1061.

Assignments of error not copied in the brief, as required by rule 29 of the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi), will not be considered on appeal. Poland v. Porter, 44 C. A. 334, 98 S. W. 214.

Assignments of error not presented in the brief need not be considered by the court on appeal. Faison v. Meyenberg, 44 C. A. 555, 98 S. W. 1968.

Under the express provisions of courts of civil appeals rule 29 (67 S. W. xvi), as well as independent thereof, all assignments of error not copied into the brief of appellant are waived, though it may be stated in the brief that they are not waived. Martin v. German American Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 132.

By the words "copied," used in courts of civil appeals rule 29 (67 S. W. xvi), held not meant that reconstructed or amended assignments shall be placed in the briefs of appellants, but that the assignments of error in the record shall be printed therein. Id.

Assignments of error contained in the record of error continued as required by rule 29 (67 S. W. xvi) held not before the court for consideration. Koch v. Missouri Valley Bridge & Iron Co., 46 C. A. 84, 103 S. W. 136.

Where, in an action to try title to land, plaintiffs' brief contained no assignment of error To the jury in the finder for defendants upon their pleas of limitations, the sufficiency of the evidence to authorize such instruction will not be considered on appeal. Webb's Heirs v. Kirby Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 543, 107 S. W. 681.

Assignments of error, not presented in appellant's brief held waived. Loyal Americans of the Republic v. McClanshan, 50 C. A. 256, 109 S. W. 972.

Assignments of error not in the original of appellant's brief on which the case was submitted will not be considered, except by consent. Sullivan v. Fant, 61 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 878.
Propositions under grouped assignments of error not copied in the brief will not be considered; Johnson (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 774.

Breaking up an assignment of error in the brief by copying its several subdivisions separately and presenting propositions under each of them held not a compliance with the rules of the court of civil appeals. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 55 C. A. 145, 119 S. W. 1169.

A brief which under the heading, "2nd and 3rd assignments of error submitted together as a proposition," copies but one assignment of error, is insufficient. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. W. Quebedeaux (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1168.

The assignment of error filed below stated in its first paragraph that the judgment was erroneous, and the rest of the assignments contained more propositions of law, but the first paragraph of the assignment attacking the ruling was not copied into appellant's brief excepting all the propositions of law in the assignment filed below. Held, that the assignment was in violation of rules 29 and 30, and could not be considered. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

Where assignments of error are attempted to be consolidated in appellant's brief without bringing them out, they will not be considered under rule 29 (67 S. W. xv). Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501.

Assignments of error not briefed in accordance with the rules will not be considered. Brewer v. Doose (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 323; Kennedy v. Garrard (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 570.

Under court of civil appeals rule 29 (141 S. W. xiii), an assignment of error need not be considered, where only a part of it was copied into the brief. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

Under rule 29 for courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv), numbers of assignments of error on the run from 1 on, in consecutive order, to the numbers as found in the transcript. Tucker Produce Co. v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1001.

Assignments of error in the brief held to be disregarded, where they were not copies of assignments in the record, and the subjoined statement was merely counsel's version of what the record showed. Id.

Where assignments of error in a brief present altogether different propositions of law from those presented by the corresponding assignments in the record, they will be disregarded. Id.

Under supreme court rule 29 (143 S. W. xii), it is essential that assignments of error relied on by the appellant shall be copied literally in his brief. Bowers v. Goats (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1013.

Where one defendant's brief had no assignment of error as to the giving of a charge not supported by the evidence, the judgment must stand as to it, despite that error. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1149.

Assignments of error not copied in a brief, or if copied presenting different questions from those sought to be raised by the assignments in the transcript, will not be reviewed. Pipkin v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 745.

The court rules contemplate that assignments of error shall be correctly copied in appellants' brief, and, while the court will not decline to consider an assignment because of a typographical error in copying it into the brief, an assignment incorrectly copied in any other case will not be considered. Mt. Franklin Lime & Stone Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 766.

It is a valid objection to the consideration of an assignment of error that only part of it is copied in the brief. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.

Assignments of error filed in the lower court, but not brought forward in appellant's brief, were waived. Smyer v. Ft. Worth & Denver City Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 336.

9. Citation of authorities.—No authorities being cited in support of an assignment of error, and no error appearing upon examination of the record, petition, and judgment, the judgment will be affirmed. Turner v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 69.

Where no authorities were cited to an assignment of error that a charge was contrary to law, and no aid was given the court in considering the assignment, it need not be considered. Vann v. Dennis, 56 C. A. 226, 129 S. W. 1039.

10. References to record.—Failure of statement following assignment of error in appellant's brief to refer to page of record held a mere technical violation of rule 31 for the courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi), and insufficient to require the court to refuse to consider the assignments. Lewis v. Houston Electric Co., 39 C. A. 625, 88 S. W. 488.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence will not be considered where there is no reference in the brief to a bill of exceptions taken there to. Ferguson v. Morrison, 43 C. A. 396, 95 S. W. 1091.

Certain assignments of error, depending on the evidence, held not reviewable, where the brief did not refer to the place in the stenographer's transcript where the evidence could be found. Storms v. Mundy, 46 C. A. 68, 101 S. W. 258.

Under rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi) appellant's brief held deficient for failing to refer to the pages of the record where testimony mentioned in the statement under a proposition may be found. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Edge, 45 C. A. 448, 102 S. W. 746.

Where applications of error are entered in a brief containing rulings upon exceptions the court will consider no expert or any reference made to the pages of the transcript where they may be found, they will not be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moore, 47 C. A. 531, 105 S. W. 532.

Where an assignment depends on the evidence, and the brief does not refer to where the evidence relating to the matter can be found, nor state any such evidence, the assignment will be overruled. Stark v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 599.
Appellant's brief should refer to the page of the transcript containing the matter supporting the assignments of error. Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 832.

The court on appeal need not search the record for evidence, where the brief does not point out where in the record the evidence may be found. Keller v. Lindow (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 346.

Refusal of a request to charge will not be reviewed on appeal, where the brief fails to refer to any testimony on which to base the charge. Sumner v. Kinney (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1192.

Assignments of error involving weight of the evidence held insufficiently presented, under court of civil appeals rule 31 (67 S. W. xvi), where the brief does not refer to the pages of the record to show any fact proven. First Nat. Bank of Boswell, Okl., v. Whiteside (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 423.

Assignment of error to the denial of an instruction held open to consideration, although appellant failed to refer in his brief to the portion of the transcript where the instruction could be found. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 281.

An assignment of error complaining of the refusal of an instruction could not be considered, where the instruction was not copied in the brief or the page of the record pointed out. Trinity & E. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

Where the brief does not point out the paragraph of the motion for new trial, where-in the error was complained of, it does not comply with court of civil appeals rules 24, 25, and 31 (142 S. W. xii, xiii). Texas Midland R. R. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 843.

11. Additional or supplemental briefs.—After the submission of a cause pending in a court of civil appeals, one of the counsel of appellants filed an additional brief without leave of the court. The court refused to consider the brief. The rules provide that briefs may not be filed in the court, by the counsel of additional authorities, but the presentation of an entirely new brief, with additional assignment of errors, and without leave of the court, is unauthorized. Texas State Fair, etc., v. Caruthers, 29 S. W. 48, 8 C. A. 474.

Upon failure of a party to comply with an order of the court requiring a new brief, the court may dismiss the cause if the appellant be at fault, and, if the fault be on part of the appellee, may disregard his brief. Arnold v. Chambellan (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 767.

Under the facts held on appeal that a supplemental brief would be stricken. Grosebeck Cotton Oil Gin & Improvement Co. v. Oliver, 44 C. A. 382, 65 S. W. 665.

Where, in an action to try title to land, plaintiffs were granted leave to file a written argument in answer to an argument by defendants, a supplemental brief filed under such leave, after the submission of the case, raising for the first time an assignment of error, will be stricken out. Webb's Heirs v. Kirby Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 545, 107 S. W. 651.

An amended brief should not be filed without permission of the appellate court. Stephens v. Turley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 943.

There is no authority for requiring a supplemental brief after the original brief has been assailed for failure to comply with the rules, so as to correct the errors in the original. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 917.

12. Printing and typewriting.—Typewritten briefs which are very dim and illegible will hereafter be disregarded. Bermea Land & Lumber Co. v. Adoue, 20 C. A. 655, 60 S. W. 131.

Illegible typewritten brief held to violate rule 37 of the courts of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvi). Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Taylor, 39 C. A. 392, 57 S. W. 558.

A brief single-spaced and typewritten so dimly that it can scarcely be read will be stricken on the court's own motion. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 285.

Under this article and rule 37, as amended October 30, 1912 (see Amendment to Rules, 149 S. W. x), providing that briefs may consist of 15 pages of foolscap, a typewritten brief containing 22½ pages of double-spaced typewritten matter, on paper of the size of ordinary letter heads, gotten up in book form, and which, if single-spaced, would not have been 13 pages on letter size, or the like, and will not be stricken out on motion. Powell v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 333.

Where the copies of appellee's brief were in typewriting, single spaced, and with the exception of one copy, so blurred as to make it very difficult to read portions thereof, but appellee did not complain of the noncompliance with the rule, the court in its own motion would direct the clerk to prepare copies of the brief for its use. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 935.

13. Filing and time for filing—in appellate court.—If an appellee desires to present his side of the case after the opposite party has filed his brief, he must do so by brief filed at least by the time the cause is submitted, and not by a motion for a rehearing. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Eber (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 136.

Defendants in error are properly refused permission to file briefs tendered after submission of the cause. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 181.

A stipulation between counsel extending the time of filing appellant's brief held not to authorize delay to the time at which it was filed. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 125.

14. In court below.—See Art. 2115 and notes.

15. Defects, objections, and amendments.—When a fundamental error appears in the record, the action of the lower court may be reviewed on appeal, though the case is not briefed according to rules. Mara v. State, 39 Cr. 185, 45 S. W. 594.

Under the rules of court of appeals rules 26 and 27, the rules cannot be amended as of right, except for the citation of additional authorities. Peck v. Peck (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 287.

By treating what was termed "argument," under assignments of error, as both a proposition and a statement, held, that the court might determine whether the evidence raised the issues submitted in the charges quoted, though it was doubtful whether they had been briefed in such manner as to require review. Cobb v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 847.

Where appellee filed a brief, the court will consider the brief of appellant, though it was not filed in time. Martin Co. v. Cottrell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 48.

While errors may be assigned to errors within the discretion of the court of civil appeals not to consider assignments of error defectively briefed, its discretion should not be extended too far; the court's rules being designed to facilitate the work of the appellate court. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

17. Scope and effect.—A statement in appellant's brief will be accepted as correct where it is not controverted by appellee. Miller v. Itasca Cotton-Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 366.

Where parties appeared on a writ of error and filed briefs in the appellate court, a motion on their part to dismiss for want of interest will be denied. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1060.

18. Failure to file, or to file in time.—Effect in general.—When the case is briefed alone by the appellant his statement will be treated as correct. Wolf City Oil Co. v. George (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 672.

Where no briefs are filed, only fundamental errors, as shown by the record, will be considered. Cunnion v. Cunnion (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 129; Cunnaughan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1096; Toyah Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 344; Anderson, Evans & Evans v. Churchill & Alden Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 478.

Where a party fails to file a brief and does not complain of a judgment against him such judgment will not be disturbed, though erroneous. Peck v. Cain, 27 C. A. 58, 60 S. W. 177.

In the absence of a brief filed by appellee, the court of civil appeals will treat appellant's brief as a proper presentation of the case, under court of appeals rule 40 (67 S. W. xvii). Maffi v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 158.

There being no briefs on file for appellee, the court is required on appeal to take as true the statement from the record in appellant's brief as to the evidence, and that it constitutes all the evidence in support of the verdict. Wetzel v. Satterwhite (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 93.

Though appellant's briefs were not in the appellate court until March 1st, while the record was filed therein on January 12th, the briefs will not be stricken if appellee had ample time to file briefs before the case was submitted for hearing. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

Evidence held not to show a waiver of the requirement as to the filing of briefs. Whiteman v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 766.

Where appellee filed a brief replying to that of appellant, his objection that appellant's brief was not filed within the time required was waived, and the court will consider the brief of appellant, though it refused appellant's request to file his brief. Martin Co. v. Cottrell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 48.

A motion by defendant in error for submission on his brief cannot be considered, where it was not entered on the motion docket of the court on appeal, and notice given. Amarillo Nat. L&s. Ins. Co. v. Brokaw (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 373. (Undecided not being required to file any brief, should not be prejudiced by his failure to do so. Alf Bennett Lumber Co. v. Texas & Fall (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 209.

19. — Excuses.—It is no excuse for not filing briefs in the court of civil appeals that the errors assigned are fundamental. Bowman v. Hoffman, 23 C. A. 311, 67 S. W. 152.

The failure of appellant to file his brief within a reasonable time before the day of submission held not excused, necessitating a dismissal of the appeal on appeale's motion. Krisch v. Richter (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 930.

An appeal will not be dismissed for appellant's failure to file briefs in time, when such failure is reasonably excused, and appellee will have more than 30 days after notice of filing in which to prepare and file his brief before the case can be submitted. Gibbs v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1166.

The failure of the attorney for plaintiff in error to file briefs in a case set for submission on March 15th, while the transcript was filed September 20th preceding, is not excused by his absence by that date of the first day of the month where he was unexpectedly called to Mexico and there detained until early in February; that shortly after his return he was constantly occupied in the preparation of cases in the district court, and had in charge the partition of a large estate, the details of which were intricate and required his constant attention. American Warehouse Co. v. Hambell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

Leave to file appellant's brief will be granted, though good cause for delay is not shown, where appellant will have ample time to answer motion. Rule 39 (67 S. W. xvi). John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1166.

Failure of plaintiff in error to file his brief within the time required held not ground for dismissing the appeal. Gulf, C. S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 21 C. A. 463, 51 S. W. 662. Court of appeals rule 39 (20 S. W. xii), requiring filing of briefs five days before filing. of the transcript, held not mandatory; and hence dismissal of appeal for failure to file briefs within the time, which was without prejudice, was error. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. v. Holdren, 23 T. 211, 29 S. W. 761.

Where appellant filed his transcript, June 27th, his appeal having been perfected May 24th, and he did not file copy of his brief until October 12th, in absence of good cause shown, the court dismissed. Hunt v. Glasscock, 27 C. A. 232, 65 S. W. 299.

Appeal dismissed for failure of appellant to use proper diligence in the prosecution thereof and noncompliance with the terms of an agreement as to the filing of briefs. Emerson v. A. F. Shapekich Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 578.

Where brief was not filed until ninety-two days from the time the transcript was filed in the court of civil appeals which was only two days before the case was set for submission, the appeal will be dismissed. Ellkins v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 577.

If no briefs are filed by the appellant the court of civil appeals may dismiss for the want of prosecution, Bowman v. Hoffman, 28 C. A. 311, 67 S. W. 132.

Failure of appellant to file his brief in time held to have deprived appellee of a substantial right, justifying dismissal of the appeal. Dodd v. Presley (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 811.

Where no briefs are filed, will be dismissed. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hagler, 28 C. A. 55, 84 S. W. 692.

Where appellant fails to file briefs within the statutory time, so as to deprive appellee of the appeal allowed within which to reply, the appeal will be dismissed. N. Negro & Co. v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1169.

An appeal dismissed for failure of appellant to comply with the rule of the court requiring the filing of briefs. Longthom v. Abercrombie, 52 C. A. 426, 114 S. W. 428.

Where neither appellant nor any of the appellees filed a brief, the appeal will be dismissed. Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Carson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 401.

Where the failure of appellant to file briefs in a reasonable time before the day of submission is not excused, the appeal will be dismissed on motion of appellee. Kishi v. W. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 928.

Where no briefs or assignments of error were filed and no excuse offered for failure to file the same, and the cause was regularly set down and called for submission, motion to dismiss for such failure will be granted. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 924.

An appeal held not subject to dismissal for appellant's failure to file briefs in time. Gibbs v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1166.

Where an appellant failed to file briefs before the time fixed for the submission of the cause, the appeal will be dismissed. Offield v. Cates (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1096.

An appeal will be dismissed for appellant's unexplained failure to file briefs until six days before the submission of the cause on appeal. Manowitz v. Gaenslen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 963.

Where a motion to dismiss an appeal for appellant's failure to file briefs within time was denied upon the sworn answer of his counsel, held that the answer might be controverted by appellee upon motion for a rehearing. Id.

A defendant in error who does not file briefs in compliance with court rule 42 (14 S. W. 1123) is not entitled to an affirmance of the judgment; but the court will dismiss the writ of error. American Warehouse Co. v. Hambien (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

The court may dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution without looking into the record where appellant's brief is not filed in time, and there is no agreement waiving the time for the filing thereof. Gordon v. State (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

Where neither party files a brief, the case will be dismissed by the court on appeal for want of prosecution. Wilkins v. Tomlin (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 931.

Fundamental error not appearing from the record, the cause should, under court of civil appeals rule (12 S. W. 1122, xlii) be dismissed for want of prosecution, plaintiff in error not having complied with the statutes and rules as to filing briefs, or shown excuse therefor. Rojas v. Rojas (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1071.

22. Grounds for not dismissing.—Where an appellee has filed briefs asking an affirmance, the appeal will not be dismissed for appellant's failure to file briefs, though it constitutes an abandonment of the appeal. Davison v. Keeton, 22 C. A. 65, 73 S. W. 1083.

The failure of appellant to file his brief within the time prescribed by court rule 39 (142 S. W. xiii) will not justify a dismissal of the appeal where appellee received the brief in ample time for him to answer it. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Wood Bros. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 283.

An appeal will not be dismissed for failure to file a brief in time, where the other party is not injured thereby. Danner v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 285.

23. Affirmance.—Under rule 42 of the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xvii), the judgment in a cause in which appellant has failed to file briefs may be affirmed, on the filing of a brief by appellee showing the correctness of the judgment. Ball v. Dignowity (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 808.

Where a brief was not filed, and the court discovers no fundamental error, the judgment will be affirmed. Cox v. Hickman-Cumbie Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 549; Beck v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 418; Toyah Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 344; Moon v. Dozier (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 666.
When appellant filed no brief and his motion for a new trial is stricken, appellee's motion for affirmance will be granted. Llano Cotton Oil Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 505.

Where defendant in error filed his brief and prayed for the submission of the cause on his brief, as authorized by court rule 45 (67 S. W. xvii), because of the failure of plaintiff in error to prepare the case for submission, except to file the transcript, and the brief and the record showed no reversible error, the judgment must be affirmed. Amarrillo Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Eroak (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 273.

Where appellant filed no brief below or on appeal, and appellee filed a brief, his request for affirmance will be granted, in the absence of fundamental error. Ray v. Olcott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1123.

Where appellants fail to file briefs, and appellees filed briefs and asked for an affirmance, it would be granted, nothing appearing in the record why a contrary course should be pursued. Walker v. Land (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1122.

Art. 1615. [1020] Notices to attorneys, how given.—All notices required herein to be given by the court of civil appeals to the parties or their attorneys of record in any case shall be served by the clerk of said court, transmitting said notice to said attorneys by registered letter through the mail properly directed. Registration receipts shall be filed and kept by the clerk with the record of the cause. [Id.]

Presumption arising upon deposit of matter in mail.—See notes under Art. 3687, Presumptions.

CHAPTER SEVEN

HEARING CAUSES

Art. 1616. Hearing of cases, order of. Art. 1618. Death does not abate, when.

1917. Order of decision, etc.

Article 1616. [1022] Hearing of cases, order of.—Causes on the trial docket of said court shall be heard in the order of the date of filing, except as hereinafter provided, unless continued to some future time for good cause shown; and it shall be the duty of the clerk, under the directions of the court, to notify the parties or the attorneys of record of the date when the cause is set for hearing. [Id.]

Continuances.—Appellees are entitled to postponement of the submission of a cause on appeal until the verity of the record as presented is established in a suit which is being prosecuted by them for that purpose. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker, 39 C. A. 58, 81 S. W. 194.

Where appellee waived filing and service of appellants' brief, he was not entitled to a postponement of a submission to afford his counsel time to prepare and file his brief. Connor v. Zachry, 64 C. A. 188, 116 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 177.

Advancement of causes.—When the error is admitted by defendant in error the cause will be advanced on consent of parties. Phoenix Fire Ins. Co. v. Caln (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 700.

Causes involving private interests will not be advanced over other causes on appeal. Berger v. Kirby (Sup.) 140 S. W. 324.

Plaintiff in error held guilty of laches, requiring dismissal of his writ of error. Swilley v. Blount, 36 C. A. 583, 82 S. W. 760.

A motion by appellee to dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution will be dismissed where an inspection of the record discloses fundamental error in the want of jurisdiction of the lower court over the amount in controversy. Chicago, R. I & G. Ry. Co. v. Crenshaw, 51 C. A. 185, 112 S. W. 117.

A party against whom a money judgment was had duly appealed, and before perfection of the appeal by waiver of citation the adverse party filed a motion to dismiss, claiming collusion on the part of the other parties to bring about the disposition of the case, and also a want of diligence in prosecuting the appeal. Appellant claimed that the delay was not its fault, but that of its attorney and the clerk of the court below, and did not know that the appeal had not been perfected till served with notice of the motion to dismiss, when other attorneys were employed. Held that, on the state of the record, the court would not dismiss the writ of error. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 367.

Where a suit was dismissed because the court did not know of stipulation to continue from term to term until both parties were ready for trial, the court in its discretion could reinstate the case. Southern Pac. Co. v. Higgins Oil & Fuel Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1161. 883
Art. 1617. [1023] Cases decided in their order, except, etc., and disposed of, how.—The cases filed in the courts of civil appeals shall be decided in the order in which they are filed at each term of the court, but the following cases shall have precedence of all others in the order named:
1. All cases in which the railway commission is a party.
2. Cases in which the state is a party.
3. Cases which shall be submitted on oral argument for all parties to the cause.
4. Such other cases as the court, by order or rule, may direct.
On the call of cases, the court shall set down the causes for argument for such time as the same can be heard, and notice of which shall be given to counsel as heretofore provided; and said cause shall be determined upon argument or as soon thereafter as practicable, or it shall be set down for further argument, but may be postponed by order of the court to a later day in the term. [Id.]

Submission of causes.—A party cannot try his case on one theory in the lower court and on another in the court. Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 315.
Under the statute, the supreme court may grant an application for writ of error and determine the questions involved without oral argument, or it may permit oral argument where the ends of justice demand it. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills (Sup.) 148 S. W. 285, granting rehearing 148 S. W. 596.

Consolidation.—Appeals prosecuted by both parties to the suit may be consolidated. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Waco E. Ry. & L. Co., 89 T. 331, 34 S. W. 737.
Motion to consolidate error proceeding and appeal involving the same judgment, made after affirmance on appeal, held too late. Schefdel v. Schefdel, 33 C. A. 76, 84 S. W. 862.

Setting aside submission.—Motion to set aside submission of cause and permit filing of additional affidavits denied. Guer v. Snow, 40 C. A. 407, 90 S. W. 71.
Under court of civil appeals rule 22 (142 S. W. xii), a submission of a case on appeal will not be set aside so as to enable appellant to have the record amended to show that a special charge request was in fact refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hurdle (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 992.

Art. 1618. [1026] Death does not abate, when.—If any party to the record in any cause hereafter taken to the courts of civil appeals, by appeal or writ of error, or transferred from the supreme court or courts of appeals, shall have died heretofore, or shall thereafter die, after the appeal bond has been filed and approved, or after the writ of error has been served, and before such cause has been decided, such cause shall not abate by such death; but the court shall proceed to adjudicate such cause and render judgment therein as if all parties thereto were still living; and such judgment shall have the same force and effect as if rendered in the lifetime of all the parties thereto. [Id.]

Construed.—A judgment for damages is not abated by the death of the appellee after appeal. Heirs of decedent are not proper parties. Pullman P. C. Co. v. Fowler, 27 S. W. 268, 6 C. A. 785.
This article provides for a case where the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals has attached by the giving of bond or service of the writ of error, and the party appealing or suing out the writ of error dies subsequently thereto, before the court of civil appeals has disposed of the case, in which event the court will proceed with the trial as if the party were still living. Conn v. Hagan, 33 T. 554, 55 S. W. 223.
Under this statute the suit does not abate by death of the party after appeal perfected to the court of civil appeals, notwithstanding the original cause of action may be one which does not survive. White v. Manning, 46 C. A. 298, 102 S. W. 1163.

Effect of death in person.—Plaintiff having died, defendants in defendant's writ of error should be designated in the petition and bond by name, and not as "heirs of" deceased, and should be served. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 639, 74 S. W. 943.
Where, pending an appeal from a judgment in favor of plaintiff, plaintiff dies, the proper practice held to require the appellate court to dismiss the action. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.
A petition for writ of error cannot be considered the suiting out of a writ of error as to the executrix of one of the persons named as defendants in error in the petition, who had previously died. Simmang v. Cheney (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1198.

Article 1619. [1043] Questions of law certified to supreme court.
—Whenever, in any case pending before the court of civil appeals, there should arise an issue of law which said court should deem it advisable to present to the supreme court for adjudication, it shall be the duty of the presiding judge of said court to certify the very question to be decided by the supreme court; and, during the pendency of the decision by the supreme court, the cause in which the issue is raised shall be retained for final adjudication in accordance with the decision of the supreme court upon the issue submitted. [Acts 1893, p. 100.]

Certification of questions in general.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The supreme court will entertain jurisdiction of questions certified to it as novel by the court of civil appeals in cases in which it has final jurisdiction. Darnell v. Lyon, 85 Tex. 455, 22 S. W. 304, 960.
The court of civil appeals can certify to the supreme court a question in a case of which the court of civil appeals has final jurisdiction. Wallis v. Stuart, 92 Tex. 568, 50 S. W. 567.

Where the court of appeals is satisfied with the correctness of its decision, it will not certify questions to the supreme court. Cleaver v. Duke (Civil App.) 58 S. W. 145.

Questions which should be certified.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

By "the very question" is meant, not an abstract question which may determine the issue as presented in the court of civil appeals, but the issue itself as there presented. If the question be the correctness of the ruling of the court in sustaining or overruling an exception to a pleading, the substance at least of the pleading and of the exception ought to be set out in the statement. It is the precise question ruled upon in the trial court, as shown by the record in the court of civil appeals, which the court is authorized to certify and which the supreme court has jurisdiction to determine. Railroad Co. v. Zantzinger, 92 Tex. 365, 49 S. W. 563, 44 L. R. A. 583, 71 Am. St. Rep. 859.

The very question and not the entire case is authorized to be certified to the supreme court. Mann v. Dublin Cotton Oil Co., 92 Tex. 377, 48 S. W. 567.
The court of civil appeals will not certify a question to the supreme court unless one of its members is in doubt about the question certified, or the question itself is of great importance. Faberhernn v. Heldrich (Civil App.) 166 S. W. 736.

What certificate should state.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The purpose of this provision is to permit a court of civil appeals to certify the very question about which there is doubt; and the very question must be stated by the court. Waco W. & L. Co. v. City of Waco, 20 S. W. 945, 86 Tex. 661, 31 L. R. A. 352.
The supreme court cannot answer an abstract question and the certificate must show that the question arose in the course of the trial of a cause. Berlin Iron Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio, 92 Tex. 388, 49 S. W. 211.
The court's certificate must present the "very question passed upon by the trial court," and must show "in what manner such question arose upon the trial of the case" in order to give the supreme court jurisdiction to answer the question. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burgess (Sup.) 54 S. W. 1021.

A certificate which states the evidence but does not state the conclusion of fact drawn by the court of civil appeals, does not present "the very question" and is insufficient. Evens v. Daniel, 94 Tex. 283, 60 S. W. 319.
The scope of review in supreme court.—See, also, Art. 1546 and notes at end of this chapter.

Where the action of the supreme court upon one of the certified questions practically settles the litigation, other questions certified will not be considered. Darnell v. Lyon, 85 Tex. 455, 22 S. W. 304, 960.

When questions of law are referred by the court of civil appeals to the supreme court for determination in the first instance, the court has no power to pass upon any questions except those submitted. Nor can it inquire into their bearing upon the ultimate decision of the case. Id.

Article 1620. [1040] Dissenting opinion; point of dissent certified to supreme court.—When any one of said courts of civil appeals shall, in any cause or proceeding, render a decision in which any one of the judges therein sitting shall dissent as to any conclusions of law material to the decision of the case, said judge shall enter the grounds of his dissent of record; and the said court of civil appeals shall, upon motion of the party to the cause, or on its own motion, certify the point or points of dissent to the supreme court. [Acts 1893, p. 89.]

Certification of questions in general.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The law furnishes simply a means whereby parties may bring questions of law before the supreme court otherwise than by writ of error; but no litigant is compelled thus to bring before that court any question. A party not only may but ought to refrain from bringing to the court through this means questions of law on which is dissent, if there be other questions vital to his rights which he cannot have thus submitted to the supreme court. Campbell v. Wiggins, 85 T. 451, 22 S. W. 5.

If a cause of civil appeal in its own motion, should certify a question, a litigant has the right to prosecute a writ of error in the case. Id.

Where a judge of the court of civil appeals has dissented in a case affirmed by the court of which he is a member in which the amount in controversy is more than $10,000, a mandamus will not lie to compel the court of civil appeals to certify the dissent because a writ of error can be sued out, and if the judgment is erroneous the supreme court can correct it. So there is a plain remedy without recourse to mandamus. State v. Fisher, 94 T. 491, 62 S. W. 540.

A motion to certify points of dissent in the court of civil appeals to the supreme court, under this and article 1622, must be made during the term at which the case is heard and determined. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hudson, 103 T. 88, 124 S. W. 85.

Questions which should be certified.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The certificating party must specify the questions or points on which the members of the court are not in accord must be distinctly stated. Buxus v. City of Henrietta, 90 T. 254, 38 S. W. 165.

This article does not apply in a case in which the courts of civil appeals under article 1588 are in accord. Kidd v. Rainey, 85 T. 556, 83 S. W. 507.

The court of civil appeals is not required on a dissent to certify the question of dissent to the supreme court in those cases in which the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals is final. Miller v. Mosely (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 643.

A purported certificate of dissent from a court of civil appeals was not properly a certificate of dissent where the court had made no decision, though the certificate showed a difference of opinion between the judges. Pohle v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1166.

What certificate should state.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The certificate in itself should present all that is essential to a decision of the point of dissent, so that the supreme court can from the certificates see what the exact question is and how it has arisen, without having to refer to the record which accompanies the certificate in order to ascertain the facts omitted, for which there is no provision in the statute regulating certifying of questions ordinarily. Pohle v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1167.

Scope of review in supreme court.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The supreme court has no power to revise any question on which the judges of the court of civil appeals concur when the case is in the supreme court upon certificate of dissent as to other questions. Its jurisdiction only extends to the question or questions upon which there is dissent. Id.

The jurisdiction of the supreme court is restricted to a determination of the very point upon which the judges of the court of civil appeals have disagreed. Claren v. Elmendorf, 90 T. 204, 37 S. W. 1062, 38 S. W. 100.

Though a certificate of dissent from a court of civil appeals did not sufficiently show the amount and kind the decision had been rendered, the supreme court may consider it under the circumstances, in order to avoid delay and expense. Pohle v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1166.

Art. 1621. [1041] Proceedings on certificate of dissent.—When a certificate of dissent is sent up by any court of civil appeals, it shall be the duty of the clerk to send up a certified copy of the conclusions of fact and law as found by the court, and the questions of law upon which there is a division, and the original transcript, if so ordered by the supreme court; and, thereupon, if the supreme court so direct, the clerk shall set down the same for argument, and notify the attorneys of record. [Id.]

Art. 1622. [1042] Decision of supreme court certified back; judgment on.—After the question is decided, the supreme court shall immediately notify the court of civil appeals of their decision, and the same shall be entered as the judgment of said court of civil appeals. [Id.]

Scope of review in supreme court.—See notes under Art. 1620 and at end of this chapter.

Decision of court of civil appeals suspended pending certification.—The court of civil appeals must retain jurisdiction of the case until they are officially notified of the answer of the court certified and until a question certified with that answer. Until the supreme court has decided a question of dissent which has been certified and the court of civil appeals has acted upon its decision the decision of the court of civil appeals is suspended, and the judgment if previously rendered, has not that quality of finality that is necessary to give the supreme court jurisdiction to grant a writ of error. McCord v. Nabours, 97 T. 271, 78 S. W. 223.

Judgment after certification.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The courts shall certify in accordance with the answers of the supreme court in response to its certificate of dissent. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 825, 43 S. W. 259.

Art. 1623. Conflict with decision of another court of civil appeals; question and record transmitted and certified to supreme court.—Whenever, in any case at any time pending in any of the courts of civil appeals of the several supreme judicial districts of the state of Texas, any one of said courts may arrive at an opinion in the decision of any such case that may be in conflict with the opinion heretofore rendered, or hereafter rendered, by some other court of civil appeals in this state on any question of law, and such court of civil appeals refuses to concur with the opinion so rendered by such other court of civil appeals, it shall be the duty of such court failing to concur with the opinion in conflict with the opinion so arrived at by such court, through its clerk, to transmit the question of law, duly certified to, involved in the cause wherein said conflict of opinion has arisen, together with the record or transcript in such cause, to the supreme court of the state of Texas for adjudication by the supreme court. [Acts 1899, p. 170.]

A question in which should be certified.—To give supreme court jurisdiction there must be a well-defined conflict. McCurdy v. Conner, 95 T. 246, 66 S. W. 666.

Holding of court of civil appeals with respect to validity of local option election held not in conflict with decision of another court of civil appeals on the same general question, so as to require certification to supreme court, under Laws 1899, p. 170. Kidd v. Rainey, 95 T. 556, 65 S. W. 507.

The court of civil appeals is not required to certify a case where the conclusion arrived at is supported by decisions of the supreme court, though decisions of another district of the court of civil appeals are to the contrary. Stark v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1059.

The court of civil appeals is not authorized to certify a case to supreme court when its decision conflicts with one of the supreme court, but only when it conflicts with a decision of another court of civil appeals. Smith v. Conner, 98 T. 434, 84 S. W. 815.

It is only where a decision has been arrived at and adhered to, conflicting with an opinion of another court (of civil appeals), that the duty of certifying is imposed; then it is the opinion of the supreme court that is to be rendered and is to be considered the law upon the question involved. Id.

If the supreme court after examination finds that the cases do not conflict, it will deny the motion to file petition. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Conner, 100 T. 407, 100 S. W. 367.

When the court of civil appeals suspends or assigns to other court of civil appeals, courts of civil appeals will not warrant the certifying of a question to the supreme court where there is no real conflict on the points actually decided. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Arnett (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 834.

It is only when the ruling of the court of civil appeals conflicts with the decision of some other court of civil appeals, that the statute makes it their duty to certify the question. Newnorn v. Neill et al., 101 T. 42, 104 S. W. 190.

The conflict meant is with the decision of some other court of civil appeals and not with the decision of the supreme court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 101 T. 269, 105 S. W. 325.

The conflict between a decision of any court of civil appeals and some other court of civil appeals under which it is the duty of the court of civil appeals to transmit the question to the supreme court held a conflict on the very question decided, and not in the reasoning by which the conclusion is reached. McKay v. Conner, 101 T. 313, 107 S. W. 45.

The statute providing for transmission of a question of law to the supreme court by a court of civil appeals, where its opinion is in conflict with that of some other court of civil appeals, held not to require the transmission of a question for the reason that the decision of civil appeals conflicts with a supreme court decision. Id.

When a decision in the decisions of the courts of civil appeals of different districts, it is the duty of the court of civil appeals to certify the question in conflict to the supreme court for its decision, but, if there is no conflict, this should not be done, particularly because of the congested docket of the supreme court. Booker-Jones Oil Co. v. National Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 815.

Art. 1624. Proceedings on same in supreme court.—When said record shall have been received by the clerk of the supreme court, he shall docket the same; and the supreme court shall set such cause down for hearing at some future day; and the clerk of the supreme court shall at once notify the parties or their attorneys of record of such setting, and such case shall be set for a time sufficiently far in the future to give such

(attorneys reasonable time to prepare briefs and arguments if they so desire. [Id.]

Art. 1625. Action of supreme court on; effect and finality of.—It shall be the duty of the supreme court, on receiving such record, together with such certified question of law, from the court of civil appeals transmitting the same, to examine such record and such certified question of law, and render an opinion in such cause, as in other cases; which opinion, when so rendered by said supreme court, on the record and question of law presented therein, shall be final, and shall be the law on the question involved, until said opinion shall have been overruled by the said supreme court, or abrogated by legislative enactment, and the courts of civil appeals shall be governed thereby. [Id. sec. 2.]

Scope of review in Supreme Court.—See, also, Art. 1546.

The supreme court will determine a certified question, though other questions must be determined before a decision on the question certified becomes necessary. State v. Callaghan, 91 T. 313, 43 S. W. 12.

The supreme court will not consider certified question not involved in the case. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio, 92 T. 355, 49 S. W. 211.

The supreme court, on certified questions, is strictly confined to the facts as certified. McManus v. Cash & Luckel, 101 T. 261, 108 S. W. 890.

Where a case is certified by a court of civil appeals, the latter court will not decide questions not presented by the certificate. Snyder v. Baird Independent School Dist., 102 T. 4, 111 S. W. 723, 113 S. W. 521.

The supreme court is limited to the precise matters involved in the questions certified. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654, 138 S. W. 385.

The opinion of the supreme court on a certified question from the court of civil appeals will relate solely to the question presented, and neither by implication nor otherwise, will the court express any opinion on any other question arising from the facts stated. Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 433, 128 S. W. 566.

A question which is not based upon any fact or proceeding stated in the certificate of the court of civil appeals will not be decided by the supreme court as a certified question. Orange Lumber Co. v. Ellis (Sup.) 150 S. W. 652.

Judgment after certification.—Where the only question presented on appeal was answered by the supreme court in favor of defendant on certified questions, the court of civil appeals will render judgment for defendant. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 106.

An answer by the supreme court to a question certified by the court of civil appeals held not to authorize the latter court to reverse and render, instead of reversing and remanding the case on retrial. Nabors v. McCord (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 152, 153.

The court of civil appeals held not authorized to render a judgment in view of the decision of the supreme court on certified questions. Hayworth v. Williams, 51 C. A. 146, 117 S. W. 1197, 120 S. W. 1138.

The judgment by the court of civil appeals on a question certified to it by the supreme court held binding on the latter. Smith v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas, 104 T. 171, 133 S. W. 1041, 135 S. W. 1147.

Decisions relating to subject in general

Certification of questions in general.—The points certified must be questions of law only, and not questions of fact or of mixed law and fact. Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co. v. Liberty Ins. Co., 25 S. W. 1063, 87 T. 112.

Certified question must be construed as referring to statement of facts found by court of civil appeals. Allen v. Tyson-Jones Buggy Co., 91 T. 22, 40 S. W. 393, 714.

Where the court of civil appeals, in certifying a question to the supreme court, did not state its conclusion as to the effect of the testimony submitted, and based the question on an hypothesis, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to answer the question. Evans v. Daniel, 94 T. 281, 60 S. W. 369.

Question propounded by court of civil appeals held not “question in case,” requiring answer. Poole v. Burnet County, 97 T. 77, 76 S. W. 425.

The supreme court will not answer a certified question as to whether the facts of a case bring it within the provisions of a statute, where the court of civil appeals made no conclusions of fact, but merely certified the evidence. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Lemley, 112 T. 183, 124 S. W. 623.

A party whose motion for rehearing had been overruled had not entitled to a certification of the question to the supreme court. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 115.

Questions which should be certified.—A certification to the supreme court is limited to a question in a case pending in the court of civil appeals. When it appears from the cer-
If two questions are presented, one of which does not arise in the case, but it cannot be determined which does so arise, the supreme court will not answer either. Railroad Co. v. Belcher, 88 S. W. 449, 32 S. W. 518.

The whole case cannot be certified on statement and questions to the supreme court for its decision. Mann v. Dublin Cotton-Oil Co., 91 T. 617, 46 S. W. 373.

Questions certified to the supreme court by the court of civil appeals must not be based on hypothetical questions of fact. Id.

The supreme court will not answer certified questions, which present abstract questions of law, to which answers cannot be made that would apply in any given state of facts alleged in the petition. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 48 S. W. 892, 49 S. W. 367.

The court of civil appeals will not certify questions to the Supreme Court when a writ of error will lie. Magill v. Brown, 20 C. A. 602, 50 S. W. 143, 162.

A decision of the court of civil appeals that openings in a fence of a railroad right of way of mere convenience is a violation by company of its duty of fencing its tracks held not in conflict with a prior supreme court decision and the former holding will not be certified to the supreme court for review. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Richmond, 28 C. A. 513, 67 S. W. 1029.

A question not raised by the pleadings nor presented to the trial court cannot be certified to the supreme court by the court of civil appeals. Nabours v. McCord (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 155, 182.

A question submitted by the court of civil appeals to the supreme court held not a question of law and not within the jurisdiction of the court to determine. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bricoe (Sup.) 110 S. W. 430.

The statute regulating the certifying of questions does not authorize the transfer of an entire case to the supreme court so as to substitute its jurisdiction for that of the court of civil appeals. Falturrias Immigration Co. v. Spielberg, 103 T. 144, 124 S. W. 616.

Where the jurisdiction of the supreme court may be invoked by writ of error upon an appeal or judgment by the court of civil appeals as completely as it could be by a certification, the case will not be certified. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 96.

What certificate should state.—The court of appeals must formulate and state the question of law which arises upon the very facts of the case, and must make findings of fact upon each issue that is to be affected by the questions presented by the certificate. Cleveland v. Carr, 90 T. 333, 38 S. W. 1123.

The certificate should show how the question arose, and also all the facts in relation to it which bear upon the decision. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Templeton, 90 T. 503, 39 S. W. 914.

Question certified on appeal held sufficient to require an answer. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 48 S. W. 892, 49 S. W. 367.

A certificate of the court of civil appeals certifying a question to the supreme court, which does not contain a statement of the facts on which the question is based, will be dismissed. Bule v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 94 T. 566, 63 S. W. 627.

A certified question should contain a statement of all necessary facts. Stephens v. Herron (Sup.) 87 S. W. 1144.

Where the certificate of a question certified by the court of civil appeals to the supreme court does not sufficiently disclose the record to enable the supreme court to intelligently answer the question, the certificate will be dismissed. Rich v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 101 T. 466, 108 S. W. 1162.

CHAPTER NINE
JUDGMENT OF THE COURT

Art. 1626. If judgment reversed, when remanded. —When judgment or decree of the court below shall be reversed, the court shall proceed to render such judgment or decree as the court below should have rendered, except when it is necessary that some matter of fact be ascertained or the damage to be assessed or the matter to be decreed is uncertain, in either of which cases the cause shall be remanded for a new trial in the court below. [Id.]

Art. 1626
COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS
(Titl32

Disposition of cause in general.—When there is a conflict in the evidence the appellate court will resolve any doubt that may arise, or any conflict that may exist in the evidence, in favor of the finding of the trial court. Fielding v. White (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 773.

Appellate court must dispose of a case under the law in force when its decision is rendered. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Shearman, 17 C. A. 456, 43 S. W. 930.

Where the court of civil appeals reversed a judgment dismissing the cause, and the supreme court reversed the court of civil appeals, held, that the latter court would not dismiss the cause. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1075.

Where the court takes cognizance of a case on its merits, though authorized to render judgment by default, the appellate court will do likewise, and consider whether the judgment was warranted by the evidence. Murray v. Dallas Homestead & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 604.

Where the appellate court refuses to entertain an appeal by reason of the destruction of the subject-matter, the proper practice is to dismiss the case, not the appeal. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Galveston County (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 539.

Where the court, on appeal, sustained the judgment of a lower court in favor of the party in whose favor the questions of law were decided on appeal. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Ransom (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 144.

Where, in an action against a principal and agent, on a contract made by the agent, who signed the same as surety, a judgment against the principal was reversed, judgment could not be rendered against the agent until the issue of the agent’s authority was determined as against the principal. Tabet v. Powell (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 997.

Where, in an action for wrongful attachment, judgment was rendered against all the defendants, and plaintiff again entitled to an indemnity bond, the judgment would be affirmed as to the other defendants, and the cause dismissed as to such sureties. Unsell v. Sisk, 37 C. A. 34, 83 S. W. 34.

The cause of civil appeals cannot affirm or reverse a judgment in trespass to try title, as between parties who do not appeal as against each other. Sullivan v. Michael, 39 C. A. 564, 87 S. W. 1061.

On reversal of a judgment overruling defendant’s motion to dismiss a petition for certiorari, hurst civil appeals cannot remand the cause, by instructing the dismissal of the petition. McBurnett v. Lamplin, 45 C. A. 507, 101 S. W. 864.

A defendant is not entitled on appeal to a judgment over against a codefendant, where he did not appeal from the judgment rendered below. Rex v. James (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 248.

The general rule is that appellate courts may properly, when a judgment is reversed, remand to allow appellee to amend his pleadings, when it seems to be required in the interest of justice. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

Under this article a case, upon reversal, could not be remanded to allow appellee to plead the statute of limitations against appellant's claim. Id.

Where the record shows the county court got no jurisdiction on appeal from a justice's court, because the latter entered no final judgment, held, the judgment of the former will be reversed, and cause remanded, with directions. Brown v. McClendon, 56 C. A. 551, 121 S. W. 903.

Where the record on appeal fails to show that the trial court had jurisdiction, the proper practice is to reverse the judgment and, if the jurisdictional defect is one which can be remedied, to remand it to the trial court with instructions to dismiss unless the jurisdictional facts are made to appear. Ware v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 615.

In a case where the court of civil law held that the circuit court was without jurisdiction, under the practice of that court of civil law, the court of civil law reversal, without notice of appeal, would not render judgment on the evidence, but must reverse and remand. Carter v. Olive (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 478.

On reversal for insufficiency of evidence shown by imperfect statement of facts, cause held to be remanded for new trial. Davis v. Adams (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 158.

The court of civil appeals, on appeal from a judgment denying specific performance of a contract to convey, cannot render a judgment of specific performance where all the evidence on that issue was excluded by the trial court on special exception. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 386.

Equity of redemption is not sufficient title to support an action of trespass to try title; but, where there are equitable in favor of plaintiff outstanding and unadjudicated, a judgment for defendant will be reversed and remanded. Levy v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 446.

Where a judgment for the payee of a note is reversed because of an alteration which does not affect the right of the payee to recover on the original indebtedness, but the evidence is conflicting as to whether, independent of the terms of the note, the maker was to pay interest for the year he was allowed in which to pay the debt, and there is no finding upon that question, the judgment will not be reversed, but will be reversed and remanded for further proceedings. Baldwin v. Haskell Nat. Bank, 104 T. 122, 133 S. W. 864, 134 S. W. 1178.

Though an execution sale under which defendants in trespass to try title claim be adjudged void on review, the cause will be remanded, where an adjustment of equities may be proper. Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 101, 134 S. W. 322.

Where the trial court erroneously denied a nonsuit and directed a verdict, the court on appeal will reverse the judgment and direct the allowance of a nonsuit. Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 457.

When the facts held, on reversal, that judgment should not be reversed, but the cause should be remanded. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 816.

In an action for humiliation of a passenger, the court of civil appeals, on determining that the damages were too high, would remand for a new trial in case a remittitur was not complied with, and would not render judgment under Art. 1661. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 508.

In trespass to try title, held, that judgment between defendant and his warrantor, brought in by cross-bill, would be reversed and remanded. Smith v. Cook (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 26.

Where a verdict was general, so that the appellate court could not determine how much was given as damages for items for which plaintiff was entitled to recover, held, that judgment for him must be reversed and remanded. Combet v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 112.

Where the facts were not as fully disclosed as they might be on another trial, the court on reversal will order a new trial, and not direct judgment for the appellant. Stearns v. Camby (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 692.

The court of civil appeals held not authorized to render judgment for appellant on reversal of the judgment below as being against the preponderance of the evidence. Wininger v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 106 T. 56, 143 S. W. 1160.

The court in an appeal reversing a case will not render judgment, unless the case has been fully developed in the trial court. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Beall (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 363.

The court on appeal held, on reversal, not authorized, under the evidence, to render proper judgment. Southern Irr. Co. v. Wharton Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 706.

The erroneous rendition of judgment on a debt before its maturity does not require remand of the cause; the debt having since fallen due. Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

On evidence in an action on a benefit certificate, held, after judgment for plaintiff, that the cause would be reversed and remanded for new trial, with instructions, instead of reversed and rendered for defendant. Woodmen of the World v. Hipp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 516.
Where the facts in regard to issues raised by assignments of error were fully developed at the trial, the appellate court must consider such assignments to determine whether final judgment should be rendered, but where the facts were not fully developed, the cause should be reversed and remanded, that all the facts may be shown. Con-way v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 344.

When there is an action for breach of a contract to supply water for irrigation, plaintiff could not recover because not privy to the contract, a reversal and remand held warranted on suggestion in the pleading and evidence that plaintiff might recover on an oral contract independent of the written contract. Biggs v. Maulding (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 631.

A motion by defendant for a directed verdict is not equivalent to a demurrer to the evidence; and hence, on an appeal by plaintiff from a judgment on such a verdict, the complaining plaintiff appeals will not reverse judgment for plaintiff, but will remand the case. Threadgill v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 825.

Where in an action for breach of an alleged contract to drill a well, the existence of the contract depended on an alleged telephone conversation, which, as contained in the statement of facts, was insufficient to show a meeting of minds, but it appeared from the abbreviations in the statement of facts that the 'phone conversation might not have been as reported, a judgment for plaintiffs would be reversed, and the cause remanded for a new trial. Simpson v. Alexander & Wofford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 748.

A judgment of午 plaintiff's lien precedence over those of others and refused to allow the holder of vendor's lien notes to recover his attorney's fees, the cause will be reversed and remanded, instead of reversed and rendered. Doyle v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 472.

Where, in an action for breach of contract for insufficiency of 'proof of the same, a demurrer for insufficiency of evidence was overruled, where it does not appear that the evidence to support the cause of action has been fully developed, judgment will not be rendered for plaintiff, but the cause will be remanded for a new trial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Stracner (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 845.

A refusal by defendant to cancel a trust deed to a bank, to a mortgage setting forth the fact that it was a mortgage, and to settle a lien to a bank, to a mortgage setting forth the fact that it was a mortgage, for purposes of canceling the trust deed, and foreclose his lien, the evidence was conflicting whether he made a timely offer to pay off the debt which the trust deed secured, he was entitled, on reversal of a judgment on a verdict directing him to have the judgment reversed, so that this issue could be passed on by a jury. Tolleson v. Nobles (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 856.

Where a cause in the county court was tried without a question as to the jurisdiction, the court on appeal will not dismiss for want of jurisdiction, but will remand for new trial to enable plaintiff to amend the petition so as to show jurisdiction. O'Bannon v. Pleasant's (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 719.

On a case being reversed, it will not also be rendered merely because the cause of action will be barred on another trial if the statute of limitations be taken advantage of as a defense. Bask v. Enrath (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 247.

On reversal of a judgment in trespass to try the cause will be remanded for the new trial, where it appears that the facts regarding the title have not been fully developed, on account of an erroneous holding of the trial court. Pence v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 688.

A court of civil appeals can reverse and remand a judgment of the district court when against the preponderance of the evidence, but it cannot enter final judgment against the plaintiff unless, disregarding all adverse evidence and inferences, the evidence favorable to the plaintiff, with all fair inferences which a jury might draw therefrom, is not sufficient to authorize and support a verdict in his favor. Irving v. Freeman (Sup.) 155 S. W. 931.

When the court erroneously dismissed a cross-action without prejudice, for insufficiency of the evidence, instead of rendering judgment on the merits, and gave as its reason therefor that the facts were not fully developed, upon a reversal the cause would be remanded for a new trial instead of rendering judgment. Reeves v. Bomar (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 276.

— Proceedings after remand. — The appellate court may so reverse and remand a cause as to restrict the power of the trial court to a new trial on such specified issues in the case as are not determined by the opinion. To ascertain what issues are involved in a new trial the district court should look to the opinion which is with the mandate as well as to the mandate. Wells v. Littlefield, 62 T. 58.

When a case has been determined finally in an appellate court, the only jurisdiction which the inferior court can properly exercise over it is to enforce and give effect to a mandate. Burroughs v. Burroughs, 64 S. W. 446.

When a case is reversed and remanded with instructions to the court below to hear evidence only as to a designated fact, and then to render judgment in accordance with the directions contained in the opinion, it is error to reopen the entire case on another trial. If the remanded cause thought that on another trial of the entire case it could make a stronger case, he should have asked the appellate court so to reform its judgment as to give him an opportunity to do so. McConnell v. Wall, 67 T. 352, 5 S. W. 681.

When a case is reversed and remanded by the appellate court because the district court had no jurisdiction thereof, the court has no power to make any order in the case other than to strike it from its docket. Leeman v. Wheeler, 66 T. 154, 18 S. W. 446.

A judgment being rendered on one ground, and reserved by the federal supreme court, and remanded for proceedings "not inconsistent with the opinion," plaintiff on remand could assert her second ground of recovery. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 114.

Construction and effect of judgment. — When the appellate court has reversed a judgment for the cause shown to it by the pleadings and evidence, it will not reconsider its former judgment on an appeal prosecuted from the last judgment.
The first decision is conclusive and final as to all matters embraced therein. Lowell v. Ball, 53 T. 552. Holmes v. S. W. 690.

Where the district court approves the account of an executor, a judgment of affirmance is final, and is not subject to collateral attack in an action on the executor's bond after close of administration; nor can the same matter be litigated by other creditors of the court. Wright v. Nesbitt, 20 S. W. 326.

The reversal of a judgment without restriction operates as to all the issues. Watkins v. Junker, 23 S. W. 502, 4 C. A. 629.

A judgment rendered by the court of civil appeals against a surety on an appeal bond, who had been released by appellant's alteration of the bond, was not absolutely void, since the court had jurisdiction. Rowlett v. Williamson, 18 C. A. 28, 44 S. W. 624.

Judgment of a court of civil appeals cannot be collaterally attacked by evidence outside the record that no appeal bond was filed. Gilbough v. Stahl Bldg. Co., 91 T. 621, 45 S. W. 385.

The fact that, in reviewing a judgment for defendant in trespass to try title, the appellate court stated that plaintiff was a mortgagee, did not enlarge the legal effect of the judgment, where it did not establish that fact otherwise. Morris v. Housley (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 496.

Affirmance of a judgment on a record setting out items of costs concludes the question of proper taxation, but not the question as to the legality of the items. Watkins v. Atwell, 21 C. A. 198, 50 S. W. 1047.

After a remand of a case for a new trial on an issue of improvements, defendant held entitled to claim improvements on lands sequestered by plaintiff after the judgment, and, as upheld in the judgment. Wood v. Cahill, 21 C. A. 38, 50 S. W. 1071.

A court of civil appeals, in construing a judgment of another court of civil appeals, will presume, in the absence of clear expression to the contrary, that such other court holds the same view of the law on which the judgment is based as that held by the construing court. Harper v. Tinsley, 23 C. A. 505, 38 S. W. 633.

Writ of error held not to subject dismissal because the issues were res judicata by a former appeal. Williams v. Wiley, 96 T. 148, 71 S. W. 12.

An order of the court of civil appeals commanding respondents to refrain from further trespass on land, etc., held not to continue in force until the determination of a writ of error from a judgment affirming a judgment dissolving the temporary injunction. Riggins v. Thompson, 96 T. 154, 71 S. W. 14.

The fact of a decision of an intermediate appellate court is destroyed by a holding of the supreme court that the questions passed upon were not involved in the case. Ex parte Conley (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 301.

Where judgments are distinct, and only one of them is appealed from, a reversal of that judgment does not affect the judgment not appealed from. M. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Coop, 99 T. 386, 90 S. W. 1098.

The refusal of the supreme court to grant a writ of error to review a decision of the court of civil appeals raises the decision to the dignity of final authority. Gray v. Elliott, 417, 44 S. W. 911.

The district court held entitled to enter of record as its judgment the judgment of the court of civil appeals without notice to the party against whom the judgment was rendered by the court of civil appeals. Henry v. Red Water Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 179, 102 S. W. 749.

The decision of the court of civil appeals for a district, rendered on appeal, is binding on the court of civil appeals for another district on a subsequent appeal. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 57 C. A. 593, 129 S. W. 385.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals held a final judgment, disposing of the issues pending in the case. Hermann v. Allen, 103 T. 382, 128 S. W. 115.

A court of civil appeals decision is overruled by a later conflicting supreme court decision. La Rosa Music Co. v. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 535.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals, affirmed by the supreme court, held not determinative of rights subsequently accruing under different conditions. Hutchinson v. Patching, 103 T. 497, 129 S. W. 605, 131 S. W. 480.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals on an appeal is no more effective as against persons not parties to the suit than is a judgment of the district court. Harper v. Martindale (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 754.

It is not improper for the court of civil appeals to cite a decision of that court as a precedent, though a writ of error on such decision is pending and undetermined in the supreme court. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Riser (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1188.

Former judgment of the court of civil appeals with reference to the location of a tract of land held conclusive of the same question decided in that case as against those claiming under one of the parties thereto in a subsequent proceeding. Noland v. Weems (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1061.

A decision of the court of civil appeals, not in accord with the decision of the supreme court, is not authoritative. Beckham v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 80.

A decision of the court of civil appeals of one judicial district, rendered on appeal, will be accepted by the court of civil appeals of another district on a subsequent appeal. Tinsley v. Bottom (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1053.

Finality of Judgment.—See Arts. 1590 and 1591.

Collateral attack.—Judgment by the court of civil appeals held not subject to collateral attack. Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 99 T. 565, 91 S. W. 1083.

Art. 1627. [1028] Judgment on affirmance or rendition, etc.; damages adjudged, when; finality.—Whenever the courts of civil appeals, on the trial of cases brought from an inferior court, shall affirm the judgment or decree of such inferior court, or when said courts shall proceed to render such judgment or decree as should have been rendered by the court below and such judgment shall be for the same or a greater amount, or of the same nature, as rendered in the court below, said courts shall render judgment against the appellant or plaintiff in error and his sureties on the appeal bond, a copy of which shall always accompany the transcript of the record; and said courts of civil appeals shall not in their discretion include in their said judgment or decree such damages, not exceeding ten per cent on the amount of the original judgment, as the court may deem proper; and the judgment or decree of said courts rendered as contemplated in this article shall be final. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25, sec. 37, Id.]

Disposition of cause in general.—See notes under Art. 1626.
Judgment against sureties.—Where, upon the face of the record, a judgment may be rendered against the sureties upon an appeal or writ of error bond, such judgment must be rendered by the appellate court, and not by the court a quo. Burck v. Burroughs, 64
T. 445.

On affirmation of a judgment the court has power to enter a judgment against the sureties on the appeal bond; and under such judgment execution would properly issue from the trial court against all persons made liable by the judgment. Blair v. Sanborn,
62 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159.

When a judgment is not rendered against the sureties in the appeal bond in the appellate court in case of an affirmation, an action may be brought against the sureties on the bond. Trent v. Rhomberg, 68 T. 249, 18 S. W. 219. But such judgment cannot be rendered by the court a quo, except in a direct action on the bond. Burck v. Burroughs, 64 T. 445; Blair v. Sanborn, 62 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159.

Where a judgment was not rendered from a personal judgment against defendants, and also for foreclosure of a lien, and the court of civil appeals affirmed the former but reversed as to the latter, it was correct to render judgment against the sureties in the appeal bond. Russell v. Deutschman (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1165.

On writ a judgment against husband and wife held not proper to af-mend the judgment as against him and the sureties on the error bond. Wandeloh v.
Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 413.

An appeal by plaintiff should not be dismissed because a necessary party defendant was not cited to appear and did not voluntarily appear, but the judgment for defendant should only be reversed and the cause remanded. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Here-

Execution for costs.—There is no authority under the above article, or under articles 1633, 1634, or 1641, for the clerk of the court of civil appeals, where the judgment of the trial court is affirmed by the court of civil appeals, to issue an execution for costs due as transcript fees. Henson v. Byrne, 91 T. 625, 45 S. W. 382.

Art. 1628. [1024] No reversal for want of form.—There shall be no reversal on appeal or writ of error, nor shall the same be dismissed for want of form, provided sufficient matter or substance be contained in the record to enable the court to decide the cause upon its merits.
[Acts 1892, S. S., p. 25, sec. 29.]

1. Prejudice to rights of party as ground of review.

1628

A. & Armstrong Warehouse v. 130 S. W. Galveston, C. Buchan

33. "Submission of issues or questions to jury"—Caswell v. Hinson, 47 S. W. 2d 237 (1932). A. The court erred in submitting the question to the jury.

34. "Instructions to jury—Probable effect in general"—Merrill v. Hays, 68 S. W. 2d 674 (1933). A. The instructions were not prejudicial.

Chap. 9) COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS Art. 1629

150 S. W. 206; Gillaspie v. City of Huntsville, 151 S. W. 1114; Smith v. Adou & Lobit (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 268.

Art. 1629. [1024] Affirmation with damages in case of delay.—Where the court shall be of opinion that an appeal or writ of error has been taken for delay, and that there was no sufficient cause for taking such appeal, then, and in that case, the appellant or plaintiff in error, if he be the defendant in the court below, shall pay ten per cent on the amount in dispute as damages, together with the judgment, interest and cost of suit thereon accruing. [Id.]

Damages for delay.—When damages are asked for delay the court will examine the entire record. Nasworthy v. Draper (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 564.

Where the judgment appealed from is without evidence to support it, plaintiff is in no position to move for affirmation, with damages for delay. Sabine Land & Improvement Co. v. Perry (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 227.

Defendant's motion to set aside a default judgment for newly discovered evidence held not so wholly without merit as to justify an affirmation on appeal, with damages for delay. Pitts v. Compton, 28 C. A. 121.

Where a judgment for plaintiffs on a note was superseded without necessity pending an appeal to settle questions between defendant and intervenor, plaintiff on affirmation was entitled to 10 per cent. damages on their judgment for delay. Watzlavick v. D. & A. Oppenheimer, 38 C. A. 306, 85 S. W. 659.

Where there is no just cause for an appeal, and it is taken for delay only, appellee's motion to affirm the judgment, together with 10 per cent. damages thereon, will be sustained. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hadley & Alvoild, 38 C. A. 599, 88 S. W. 932.

Where plaintiff in error filed no assignments and did not apply for 45 S. W. the transcript, submitted by defendant on a suggestion of delay under rule 43 (67 S. W. xvii) of the courts of civil appeals, which record showed no fundamental error, held, that the judgment would be affirmed with 10 per cent. damages. Westmoreland v. Westmoreland (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 443.

Where appellee had not appeared in any manner when appellant had the appeal dismissed so that none of appellee's rights were prejudiced thereby, that appellee intended at some time to ask the statutory damages for delay in prosecution was not ground for reinstatement of the case to assess such damages. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Kinder, 46 C. A. 532, 121 S. W. 569.

Damages for suing out a writ of error for delay only may awarded on motion to affirm a judgment on certificate, provided the record is brought up. Granberry v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 506.

Where a judgment by default conform to the pleadings and the evidence, and there was no irregularity in the proceedings, the suing out of a writ of error to review the judgment, and the filing of a supersedeas bond suspending its execution, no assignments of error being filed and no steps taken to prepare a transcript for the court on appeal, were soley for delay, so that defendant in error was entitled to an affirmation of the judgment, with 10 per cent. damages, as authorized by this article. Id.

Where the suing out of a writ of error without probable ground, and the filing of a supersedeas bond suspending the execution of the judgment sought to be reviewed, were for delay only, the filing by defendant in error of a transcript, as authorized by rule 55 of the district and county courts (102 Tex. xlxi, 67 S. W. xxvii), instead of taking a default proceeding to secure a more prompt enforcement of the judgment, did not defeat his right to recover the damages provided by this article. Id.

Where a judgment on notes was entered by default and there was no irregularity in the proceedings, the suing out of a writ of error to review the judgment, and the filing of a supersedeas bond suspending its execution, without assuming of error being filed or any steps taken to prepare a transcript on appeal until after motion therefor, solely for delay, entitle defendant in error to an affirmation with 10 per cent. damages under this article. Gray v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 490.

In an action on vendor's lien notes, defendant, nearly a year after the service of citation, filed an answer asking that others be made parties on the ground that they claimed some interest in the property. Exceptions being sustained to this plea, no exceptions were taken for plaintiff and judgment for defendant was rendered. From a statement of facts was sent up with the record, nor was there anything in the record to indicate that defendants had any defense, and they filed no briefs. Held, that the appeal was taken for delay requiring an affirmation with damages under this article. Adams v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 489.
Statement of what is necessary to hold an appeal to have been for delay, subjecting appellant to damages. Texas Furniture & Trading Co. v. Melott (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 541.

Where plaintiff recovered judgment for excess charges for freight, and defendant appealed, held, that the appeal was taken for delay, and 10 per cent. damages will be added to the judgment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. J. H. Nations Meat & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 533.

Where the plaintiff, who prevailed below, suggested that a writ of error was prosecuted only for delay, and asked an affirmance, with damages, the appellate court must look into the record to determine whether any grounds for appeal were presented, though no statement of facts or bill of exceptions appears in the record. Bates v. Hill (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 288.

Where an appellant presented no errors for review, and the record showed that the judgment was properly rendered against him, 10 per cent. damages for delay will be given upon affirmance on appeal. J. Calisher Dry Goods Co. v. Bloch (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 653.

Where the defeated party gave notice of appeal on the date of the rendition of the judgment, but never filed an appeal bond, and a little over two months later filed his petition in error, together with a supersedeas bond, but did not procure the issuance of a citation until nearly three months thereafter, and the record contained no assignments of error or fundamental errors, and the transcript was not accompanied by a statement of facts, the appeal was prosecuted for delay; and defendant, submitting the record on a suggestion of delay, under court rule 43 (142 S. W. xiv), was entitled to an affirmance of the judgment, with damages for the delay. Dodson v. Boland, 150 S. W. 217.

The circumstances indicating the writ of error was sued out for delay alone, plaintiff in error not having filed a transcript, though the time therefor has elapsed, and not having therein to show error, the court will not treat the judgment of defendant in error and transcript filed by him, as affirmed, with 10 per cent. damages for delay. Simmang v. Smith (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 494.

Where there was no merit in appellant's defense, and the assignments of error were trivial, the judgment was entitled to an affirmance, with 10 per cent. damages. G. M. & J. W. Magill v. Young (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 184.

Art. 1630. [1024] Remittitur.—If, in any judgment rendered in the district or county court, there shall be an excess of damages rendered, and before the plaintiff has entered a release of the same in such court in the manner provided by law, such judgment shall be removed to the courts of civil appeals; it shall be lawful for the party in whose favor such excess of damages has been rendered to make such release in the courts of civil appeals in the same manner as such release is required to be made in the district or county court; and, upon such release being filed in the said court, after revising said judgment, said courts of civil appeals shall proceed to give such judgment as the court below ought to have given if the release had been filed therein. [Id.]

Remission of part of recovery—in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 1631.

Where a judgment was reversed on the ground that the judgment was erroneous as to a part of the claim, on a remittitur of that sum the judgment of reversal was set aside and a judgment was rendered in favor of the appellee for the remainder. Railway Co. v. Trawick, 80 T. 270, 15 S. W. 565, 18 S. W. 948.

See, also, notes, which a remittitur of part of the damages allowed was entered in the appellate court and the judgment reversed and affirmed accordingly. Railway Co. v. Turner, 1 C. A. 625, 29 S. W. 1008.

Verdict for $7,500 for personal injuries. On appeal the judgment below was reversed on the ground of the improper admission of the opinion of plaintiff as to his expenses being $750 or $800. On motion for rehearing in court of civil appeals the appellee offered to remit $800, and asked judgment for the balance. Held, that as the testimony to the amount of expenses occasioned by the injuries may have impressed the jury as to the extent of the injuries, and thus have increased the general verdict, such remittitur could not be allowed to cure the error of admitting the illegal testimony. Railway Co. v. Wesch, 85 T. 694, 22 S. W. 957.

The appellate court will reform and affirm a judgment erroneous in amount on the filing of a remittitur on the excess. Halbert v. Paddleford (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1092.

Judgment erroneous only in awarding exemplary damages will be affirmed if they are remitted. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Blucher (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 1022.

Where improper damages are allowed, the error may be cured by remitting the amount claimed therefor. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Pereira (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 767.

Held, that error in a charge respecting the elements of damage could not be cured by a remittitur. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 756.

The fact that a verdict in an action for personal injuries is originally excessive is no ground for reversal, where by a remittitur it is reduced to a reasonable amount. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 672.

A judgment set aside on the ground that the verdict was slightly excessive, when a remittitur has been filed in the lower court. Bonar v. Powers (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 142.

In fixing amount of remittitur, the appellate court will name the damage that would have been assessed if no prejudice had existed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 693.

Error in denying a change of venue on the ground of prejudice can be cured by remittitur of the excess in the verdict, where prejudice on part of jury only enters into the amount awarded. Id. 32
Error in allowing reasonable expenses incurred for physician's services in an action against a railroad for injuries, where no evidence as to value of such services, can not be cured by remittitur, so as to prevent a reversal and new trial. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 544.

Where the judgment appealed from is for too large a sum, the error may be cured by a remittitur of the excess. Huff v. Kelley, 26 C. A. 161, 84 S. W. 557.

In an action for injuries, error in allowing the jury to find the reasonable value of the plaintiff's services for the time lost, without limiting it to the amount claimed in the petition, held curable by remittitur. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pawkett, 28 C. A. 553, 68 S. W. 232.

Error in permitting a recovery for medical expenses, in the absence of evidence as to their reasonableness, in an action for personal injuries, may be obviated by a remittitur. E. O. & S. Ry. v. C. G. & Feeder R. S. v. McCurdy, 49 C. A. 316.

An error in submitting certain expenditures made by plaintiff to the jury held one that could be cured by remittitur. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims, 43 C. A. 442. 84 S. W. 365.

Where, in an action for damages, plaintiff is given judgment for damages for which defendant is liable and also for those in which it is not liable, the error may be cured by a remittitur. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Barr, 44 C. A. 571, 95 S. W. 457.

Held, that a remittitur applying in general terms to the whole verdict may be considered on appeal to apply to only the amount recovered on the second count of the complaint, where no complaint was made to the recovery on the first count, and that, in remittitur of the amount for an erroneous charge affecting only the second count, the judgment as to the first count may be affirmed. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Jeff Chaison Townsite Co., 45 C. A. 555, 107 S. W. 609.

Where an error committed on the trial of a case can affect only the amount of recovery, the judgment will be affirmed on a proper remittitur. Seul v. Holcomb, 48 C. A. 330, 107 S. W. 916.

The error in a judgment because excessive may be cured by a remittitur of the excess. City of Ft. Worth v. Williams, 55 C. A. 239, 119 S. W. 137.

A charge erroneously allowing a recovery for expenditures for medicines held cured by remittitur of the amount claimed in the petition for such expenditures. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Bragance (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 919.

Notwithstanding reversible error in admitting evidence as to the mother's expectation of support in a death action by her, the widow and the minor children of decedent held, that the judgment for the other plaintiffs will be affirmed upon remission of the amount recovered by the mother. International & G. N. R. Co. v. White, 103 T. 567, 131 S. W. 311.

A judgment reversed because of error in an instruction applicable to special damages will be affirmed upon plaintiff's remitting such damages. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Keel Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 827.

The error in the amount of a judgment does not require a reversal, where it can be cured by a remittitur. Johnson v. Oswald (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1164.

Where, in a personal injury action, recovery for medicines is erroneously allowed, a remittitur of the amount recovered cures the error. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett, 155 S. W. 678.

— Power to direct remission.—See, also, Art. 1631. The court, on appeal from a judgment against a carrier for damages to live stock, held authorized to refuse the judgment and render judgment for a specified sum on the shipper remitting the excess. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 738.

The court on appeal from an excessive judgment will reduce it to the lowest estimate of damages shown by the evidence, and, on the failure of the successful party to appeal, it will reverse the judgment and remit the cause. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cobb & McCrory (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 63.

Voluntary remission.—Where, on appeal, plaintiffs indicated a willingness to remit, judgment was affirmed on remittitur. Barnes v. Darby, 18 C. A. 468, 44 S. W. 1929.

Where a remitter is made reducing an excessive verdict, so that the judgment is not excessive, the judgment will not be set aside solely because of the excessiveness of the verdict. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 413, 67 S. W. 446.

A remittitur of part of the judgment can be allowed in the court of civil appeals. New York, N.H. & H. Co. v. Herbert, 48 C. A. 55, 106 S. W. 432.

A cause held not to be reversed for the allowance of a recovery in excess of that pleaded, where plaintiff offers to remit the excess. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Graffeo, 53 C. A. 563, 118 S. W. 873.

The recovery against appellant is reduced on appeal, if appellant so requests, the judgment should be affirmed for the proper amount. Tatum v. Kincannon, 64 C. A. 633, 119 S. W. 113.

Plaintiff in a personal injury case held entitled to an affirmanence on appeal on condition of a remission of $9 of his recovery to which he was admittedly not entitled. Freeman v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1194.

Where defendant in his brief offers to remit excess damages awarded, there is no necessity for a reversal. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stowers (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 154.

Where an error in instructing the jury is in instructing them that the plaintiff can water in considering the expenses of nursing, medical attendance, etc., where there was no evidence of their reasonable value, cannot be cured by a remittitur, where the allegation of such expenses is general, and does not state the amount, and the verdict rendered was also general Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bellew, 22 C. A. 264, 54 S. W. 1078.
A mistake in a verdict, the amount of which was exactly ascertainable, held proper to be cured by a remittitur. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Farrow, 36 C. A. 229, 71 S. W. 584.

Where a verdict in a personal injury case was not itemized, and it was impossible to tell what sum had been given for medical attention, a remittitur held not to cure an erroneous instruction not limiting the recovery for medical attention to the sum asked in the petition. Houston Electric Co. v. Green, 48 C. A. 242, 106 S. W. 463.

Where the exact amount improperly allowed by the jury in assessing damages is shown by the verdict, the error may be cured by a remittitur. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 923.

Where the court erroneously allowed a party an item of damages, which item is separate, the item may be remitted, and the error cured. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Elchel & Welkel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 925.

Error in an instruction in an action for breach of marriage promise in authorizing double recovery on account of plaintiff's seduction held not to require a reversal, where the damages awarded for the seduction were segregated from the other damages; remittitur curing the error. Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 294.

In an action by a servant for personal injuries, where the jury were instructed that they might allow damages for a prospective injury for which plaintiff was not entitled to recover the damages being inseparable, a general verdict for plaintiff must be reversed, and cannot be cured by remittitur. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

Where the damages awarded under a proper instruction are excessive, but the evidence does not indicate the amount of the excessiveness, the court, on appeal, cannot affirm the judgment on condition that appellee will remit a specified amount of the damages. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Doke (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1174.

Interest, costs or attorney's fees.—The allowance of excessive attorney's fees held not ground for reversal, but only for deduction from judgment. Trabue v. Wade & Miller (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 615.

That the judgment in an action on notes adjudged too high a rate of interest is not reversible error, where the excess is remitted. McCaghren v. Balch (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 680.

Recovery in excess of amount claimed.—Where the judgment is in excess of plaintiff's demand, it will be reversed, unless remitted to the amount claimed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 838.

The court, on appeal from a judgment awarding a sum in excess of the amount which the successful party was entitled to, held authorized to render judgment for the proper sum on the party remitting the excess. Brown Grinn Co. v. Tuggle (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 821.

Art. 1631. [1029a] Suggestion of remittitur.—In all civil cases, now pending, or that may hereafter be appealed to any court of civil appeals of this state, and such court shall be of the opinion that the verdict and judgment of the trial court is excessive, and for that reason only, said cause should be reversed, then it shall be the duty of such court of civil appeals to indicate to the party in whose favor such judgment was rendered, or his attorneys of record, the amount of the excess of such verdict and judgment; and said court shall, at the same time, indicate to such party, or his attorney, within what time he may file a remittitur of such excess; and, if such remittitur shall be filed, then the court shall reform and affirm such judgment in accordance therewith; if not filed as indicated, then to be reversed. [Acts 1893, p. 89.]

Constitutionality.—The above article is not repugnant to article 1, section 15 of the constitution. T. & N. O. R. Co. v. Syfan, 91 T. 562, 44 S. W. 1064.

Construed.—This article does not abrogate the rule which holds that a verdict will not be disturbed as excessive unless it appears that it was the result of passion or prejudice. Prior to the adoption of this article it was the rule in Texas to reverse a case when a verdict was found to be excessive in amount, and this article was enacted to give the court of appeals authority to suggest a remittitur and in case it was made to affirm the judgment. Railroad Co. v. Hynes, 21 C. A. 34, 50 S. W. 824.

The court of civil appeals can, when a verdict is declared excessive, and for that reason only should be reversed, indicate what sum should be remitted, and if the remittitur is made, affirm the judgment. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 694.

The power of the appellate court in cutting down verdicts is confined to those cases where there is some indication of prejudice or passion, on the part of the jury. ($20,000 for personal injuries was allowed in this case.) Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 237.

Where error is based solely on ground of excessive amount of judgment, and a remittitur is filed in the appellate court it is the exercise of a wise judicial discretion to reform and affirm the judgment, instead of remanding. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Herbert, 48 C. A. 36, 196 S. W. 422.

Court of civil appeals can require a remittitur of part of judgment considered by it as excessive as a condition for affirming. Rice v. Reese (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 504.

Where the judgment in a personal injury action should not be reversed except on the ground that it is excessive, the appellate court may, as required by this article, indicate the amount of the excess and direct a reversal of the judgment, unless plaintiff, within a specified time, will remit the excess. Chicago, R. L & G. Ry. Co. v. Swan (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1184.
Under this article authorizing the court of civil appeals to require the remission of so much of a recovery as it deems excessive as a condition of refusing to reverse, a similar action of the trial court as a condition of denying a new trial is not error. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gehring (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 754.

Since, in an action for damages for humiliation of a passenger by the alleged misconduct of a conductor, the law furnishes no standard by which the amount of damages can be exactly measured, the court of civil appeals, on determining that a verdict was excessive, would not render final judgment for a reduced amount, as authorized by this article, but would remand the case for a new trial, in case a suggested remittitur was not made. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 608.

Remittitur in general.—See, also, Art. 1630 and notes under that article. The court will order a remittitur, where amount of item erroneously included in the verdict is ascertainable. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burrough (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 463.

The court can require a remittitur of excessive damages as a condition to his overruling a motion for a new trial. Ft. W. & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Linthicum, 33 C. A. 375, 77 S. W. 49.

On appeal, held that the judgment would be affirmed on condition that plaintiff remit certain damages erroneously awarded. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Foster (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 450.

It is only where, upon the most favorable view of the testimony on behalf of the party recovering, the verdict seems unreasonably large, that the court on appeal will require a reduction. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Still, 45 C. A. 169, 100 S. W. 176.

A verdict for $12,000 for a brakeman's death held not so excessive as to authorize the appellate court to require a further remittitur. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Wallis, 47 C. A. 129, 104 S. W. 418.

Where on a writ of error from a default judgment against a defendant for the amount of a policy together with damages and an attorney's fee the only error was that the damages were excessive because of such damages and fee which plaintiff remitted in the Court of Civil Appeals, the judgment will be affirmed and affirmed under this article. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Herbert, 48 C. A. 95, 106 S. W. 431.

An excessive verdict rendered after trial without error will be corrected by the court ordering a proper remittitur. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Marshall, 57 C. A. 538, 122 S. W. 946.

On holding judgment for full amount claimed erroneous, judgment modified on condition that appellees remit part of claim, otherwise reversed and remanded. Harrell v. McDuffie (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1149.

Where the damages awarded are excessive, but the evidence does not indicate the amount, the court cannot affirm the judgment on condition that appellees will remit a specified amount. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Doke (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1174.

Art. 1632. [1029b] Refusal to remit not subject to comment on subsequent trial.—Whenever any court of civil appeals shall indicate that a verdict is excessive, as provided in the preceding article, and no remittitur shall be filed, as provided in said article, no evidence shall be allowed nor allusion made, in any subsequent trial, of the action of such court of civil appeals in reference to the amount of excess of such verdict. [Id.]

Art. 1633. [1029] Mandate issued when.—If no writ of error be sued out, or motion for rehearing be filed, within thirty days after the conclusion or decision of the court has been entered in any court of civil appeals, the clerk of the court shall, upon application of either party and the payment of all costs, issue a mandate upon said judgment. [Id.]

When mandate will issue.—The clerk of a court of civil appeals is not required to deliver a mandate until the costs of appeal are paid. Storrie v. Marshall, 11 C. A. 166, 32 S. W. 334. See art. 1634.

Where a case was reversed on appeal, a mandate for a new trial, applied for six years later was properly granted; there being no statute limiting the time within which a mandate must be applied for. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Norris, 25 C. A. 43, 69 S. W. 892.

The clerk of a court of civil appeals is required to wait 30 days before issuing a mandate, and then upon payment of all costs he is required to issue same. There is no difference between a judgment by agreement in the court of appeals, and any other judgment. Ex parte Gill, 48 Cr. R. 517, 89 S. W. 273.

See Art. 1635.

Art. 1634. [1036] No mandate to issue until costs paid.—On the rendition of any final judgment or decree in the court of civil appeals, the clerk of said court shall not issue and deliver the mandate of the court, nor certify the proceedings to the lower court, until all the costs accruing in the case in the court of civil appeals shall have been paid, subject, however, to the provisions of the next succeeding article. [Acts 1897, p. 18.]
Art. 1635. [1036] Affidavit of inability to pay or secure costs.—If the party against whom the costs are adjudged shall make affidavit of his inability to pay the same or give security therefor, he may apply to the court of civil appeals in which the case is pending for an order to require the clerk to issue the mandate or to certify the proceedings, as the case may be; which motion shall be granted by said court, unless the clerk or a party to the record shall controvert the truth of such affidavit and satisfy the court that such motion should not be granted. [Acts 1897, p. 18.]

For limitation upon time for taking out mandates in cases of reversal and remanding in supreme court and courts of civil appeals, see Art. 1659.

Inability to pay costs.—Defeated appellee's showing of inability to pay costs held not sufficient to entitle her to an order requiring the clerk to issue a mandate without costs. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 28 C. A. 92, 66 S. W. 588, 27 S. W. 783.

A pauper's oath in support of a motion for a mandate without costs held to have been shown to be false by a subsequent affidavit. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Fleder (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 470.

CHAPTER TEN
CONCLUSIONS OF FACT AND LAW

Art. 1636. Conclusions of law and fact to be filed, when. When there are no findings of the court in the record, nor any request therefor by appellant, the presumption will be in favor of the judgment. City of Denison v. Foster (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 165.

It is not necessary to file conclusions of facts in cases which are reversed and remanded for another trial. Sturgis Nat. Bank v. Smith, 20 S. W. 678, 9 C. A. 540.

The statute requiring the court to file conclusions of the facts and law of the case does not require a recital or summary of the evidence, or of every fact proved, but only to state the conclusions on the issues of fact. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 165.

The court is not required to give a detailed statement of the evidence. Manchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Simmons, 13 C. A. 697, 35 S. W. 722.

When no conclusions of law and fact have been filed, an application for a writ of error will not be considered. Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co. v. Bank, 90 T. 76, 37 S. W. 311; Burnett v. Powell, 90 T. 382, 24 S. W. 788, 25 S. W. 17.

The court of civil appeals will not reverse and remand a cause merely on agreement of counsel for both parties that this may be done. If the court were to do this it could give no reason for its action except the agreement, which is not such a reason as the statute contemplates. Higgins v. Matlock, Miller & Dycus (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 571.

This article as amended by the act of 1905 only requires the court of civil appeals to decide all issues presented to them by proper assignments of error, whether of law or of fact, and announce their conclusions in writing. Walker v. Dickey, 44 C. A. 110, 98 S. W. 664.

The authority of the supreme court to send a case back to the court of civil appeals is confined to issues which have been properly assigned, and when no assignment in the court of civil appeals raises the issue about which the judges of the court of civil appeals disagreed. Hence the case cannot be referred back, but the writ of error must be dismissed. Schneider v. Wetz, 100 T. 417, 100 S. W. 125.

This article is intended to apply only to cases in which a writ of error will lie to the supreme court. It does not repeal article 1637 expressly, and the two statutes are not inconsistent. Tucker & Co. v. Freiberg & Kahn, 46 C. A. 180, 101 S. W. 883.

A finding that a deed conveyed to the grantee all the grantor's right, title, and interest in a league of land, including the land in controversy, did not offend against the statute requiring conclusions of fact and of law to be separate. Merriman v. Blalock, 57 C. A. 270, 122 S. W. 493.

The court may pass upon the questions presented by the assignments of error without following the order of the assignments or discussing the several propositions in detail. Southern Ry. Co. v. Greenville Engine Co. v. Peveto (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 279.

Conclusions of fact and law—In general.—See, also, notes under Art. 1639. A statement in the opinion of the court of civil appeals that there is testimony sustaining its finding upon a controlling issue is treated as a conclusion of fact. Mende v. Land Co., 55 T. 535, 22 S. W. 514.

The court of civil appeals, in sustaining a verdict, need not find facts other than those necessary to support the same. Rice v. Ward (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 348.

Where the appellate court has final jurisdiction, it is not required to find conclusions of fact. Luther v. Stoddard (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 608.

The court of civil appeals is the court of last resort in a certain case, it would write no opinion on affirmance, in the absence of a good reason assigned. Needham v. Hickey (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 435.

The evidence on which the court of civil appeals bases its finding that there is no evidence on an issue need not be set out as a part of the finding. Masterson v. Mансfield, 25 C. A. 262, 61 S. W. 505.

The findings of fact, which it is the duty of the court of civil appeals to make, cover only conclusions from the evidence, and not the evidence itself. Maney v. Eyres, 33 C. A. 497, 77 S. W. 428, 696.

The court of civil appeals is not required to file the testimony on any given point, but only its conclusions as to what facts have been established. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Floyd (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 43.

Refusal of court of civil appeals to file conclusions of fact held proper under the evidence. Novin v. Hall, 39 S. W. 864.

The conclusions of fact, which it is the duty of the court of appeals to file in a proper case, mean conclusions on the issuable facts, made by the pleading and evidence. Id.

Written opinion held not to be filed in a fact case of which the court of civil appeals has final jurisdiction, and judgment in which is affirmed. Delaune v. Beaumont Irr. Co., 38 C. A. 251, 85 S. W. 438.

Under the facts the court of civil appeals held not required to file conclusion of fact and of law. Markus v. Thompson, 51 C. A. 239, 111 S. W. 1674.

The court of civil appeals is not required by the statute to render written opinions in affirmed cases which cannot be taken to the supreme court by writ of error. Wright v. Hooker, 55 C. A. 47, 118 S. W. 765.

Where the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals is final, and it affirms the judgment of the court below, a written opinion need not be filed. Roberts v. Arlington Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 159.

The court of civil appeals need not set out the testimony tending to support its findings. Wissenburg v. Engler (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1199.

Art. 1637. [1039] Reason for judgment to be stated, when.—In cases where the judgment of the trial court shall be reversed and the cause remanded, the court of civil appeals shall state its reason for the judgment. [Id.]

Art. 1638. Supplemental findings, motion for; refusal assignable as error.—If either party to a case, hereafter decided by a court of civil appeals, shall be of the opinion that the findings of fact are insufficient upon any material issue assigned in that court as error, such party may, in his motion for rehearing, specify the point upon which there is no finding of fact, or upon which the finding made by the court is insufficient, and ask the court of civil appeals to make and file conclusions of fact upon the points indicated in the motion. If that court shall refuse to make such finding, or if the finding made be insufficient, such action may be assigned as error in the application to the supreme court for a writ of error. [Id.]

Findings.—Where suit was brought to establish a note as a claim against a decedent's estate, and on appeal to the court of civil appeals judgment of the district court in favor of plaintiff for the amount of the note, interest, and attorney's fees, was affirmed, on motion for rehearing, the appellee's request that the court file conclusions of fact and law would be granted. George v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 138.

Where a motion for additional conclusions of fact consists of a statement of the evidence offered and rejected, the motion should be overruled. Texas Train & Lumber Co. v. Gwin, 29 C. A. 1, 67 S. W. 892, 68 S. W. 721.

The court on appeal is not required as requested by a motion for specific findings of fact to detail the evidence supporting such findings. McGill v. Castleberry (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 653.

Where the jury, in a brakeman's action for personal injuries, made no specific finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence, but returned a general verdict in favor of plaintiff, comprehending a finding on contributory negligence, which was an issue in the case, the court of civil appeals, on request, is authorized to make a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.
Art. 1639. Court shall decide all issues of fact or law, and announce conclusions.—It shall be the duty of the courts of civil appeals to decide all issues presented to them by proper assignments of error by either party in all causes now pending, or which may hereafter be pending before them, whether such issues be of fact or of law, and announce in writing their conclusions so found. [Acts 1905, p. 71.]

1. Scope of review in general. — The appellate court is not required to consider an issue nowhere raised in the pleadings, although both the verdict and judgment below declared affirmatively upon such issue. Robinson v. Moore, 1 C. A. 95, 20 S. W. 994. The court of civil appeals can set aside a finding of fact of the trial court. Burgess v. Western Union Tel. Co., 92 T. 135, 46 S. W. 794, 71 Am. St. Rep. 833.

Where the answers of the jury to special issues are conflicting, and the court of appeals decides against appellant on the issues involved therein, it will not attempt to reconcile the answers. Ripl v. Tariton, 29 C. A. 277, 68 S. W. 128.

The court of civil appeals is not required to make a finding of fact based on testimony consisting of written instruments. Rountree v. Thompson, 30 C. A. 555, 71 S. W. 674, 72 S. W. 69.

Where the chain of title, in trespass to try title, is set out in the statement of facts, the court will not make a finding of fact as to the sufficiency of the deeds to pass title. A.

In trespass to try title, the court of civil appeals will not make a finding of fact that a deed in the chain of title embraces the land sued for. B.

Under the statute the appellate court on remanding a cause held required to pass on the questions which may become useful to a future disposition of the case. Worcester v. Galt & Sons, 91 S. W. 339.

On appeal from the appointment of a joint receiver for one of two corporations in a consolidated suit held that the consolidation would not be reviewed. Ripl v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

On appeal from a judgment sustaining a demurrer to an application for probate, the status of the application respecting another suit cannot be determined where the application contained nothing respecting the other matter. Lindemann v. Dobossy (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 111.

On appeal from a judgment sustaining a demurrer to an application for probate, questions involving the proper construction of the instrument may not be considered, they properly arising after probate. C.

Where the evidence is not such as to show a fact as a matter of law, the court on appeal will not make a finding thereon in the absence of any finding by the trial court. Edwards v. Gates (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 585.

On an appeal from an order sustaining defendant’s plea of privilege to be sued in another county after vacating a judgment against him taken on service by publication, a ruling as to the insufficiency of the service by publication which was not relied upon in that part of plaintiff’s brief relating to the order sustaining the plea of privilege will not be considered on appeal. Wolf v. Sahn, 55 C. A. 544, 120 S. W. 1114, 121 S. W. 561.

The court of civil appeals held authorized, on request, to make a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.

In an action on an insurance policy, where the court failed to make a finding of fault on the theory that the insured’s wife was entitled to the proceeds of the policy, though making other particular findings, the appellate court can neither imply such finding nor make it itself. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

The court of appeals entered on a directed verdict for defendant will consider the question as to whether the insured was entitled to recover. Hogan v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co, (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1166.

A plaintiff, who did not appeal from an order sustaining defendant’s plea of privilege to be sued in another county, and transferring the cause, may not, on appeal from a final judgment on the merits, question the action of the court in sustaining the plea of

Art. 1639

The court on appeal, in determining whether instructions were probably confusing, must consider the evidence. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 707.

The court on appeal, to determine whether a charge complained of was erroneous, must determine what issues involved were necessary to be passed on to enable the trial court to render proper judgment. Rosenthal v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 618.

3. — Questions considered. — The court on appeal is not required to consider assignments of error to the admission of testimony on reaching a controlling decision on another branch of the case. El Campo Ice, Light & Water Co. v. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 255.

The court on appeal held warranted in refusing to consider an assignment of error in an action for breach of a contract to supply water for irrigation, upon a decision on another ground. Biggs v. Maunder (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 631.

The sufficiency of evidence to sustain a judgment appealed from will not be reviewed where a new trial is granted for errors at the trial. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

A finding that a conveyance was a bona fide sale of property and not a mere security held a finding of fact, or on a mixed question of law and fact, and not a conclusion of law. Rogers v. Tedford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 216.

Where a judgment is wholly void for want of jurisdiction, the trial judge being disqualified, the appellate court cannot pass on any proposition save the nullity of the judgment. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 132.

Where the judgment must be reversed and remanded for new trial on other grounds, the question whether the recovery was excessive will not be considered. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

4. — Theory and grounds of decision of lower court. — A ruling dismissing a petition will not be reversed given there is an unsatisfactory, where the ruling is proper on other grounds. Krueger v. Cobb (Tex. Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 722.

Where the question on appeal involved the correctness of the action of the trial court in giving a peremptory instruction, questions involving the correctness of the filed conclusions of law and fact held not reviewable. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

Where the trial court properly denied a motion for continuance, its action will be upheld, even though based on an improper reason. Rudolph v. Price (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1057.

An assignment of error upon the dismissal of an action will be overruled where the petition failed to state a cause of action, since that is a fundamental error that the appellate court must consider. Fresser v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

The action of the trial court, when correct, will not be reversed because based on improper reason. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fife (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1181.

If a general demurrer was improperly sustained, the judgment should be reversed regardless of the errors, sustaining certain special exceptions. Texas Builders’ Supply Co. v. Beaumont Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 770.

In an action for damages to property of an abutting owner, where the jury found that there was not ample room in the street for vehicles and sidewalks affording all necessary ingress and egress, a contention assuming the contrary would not be considered. City of Houston v. Merkel (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 385.

Where a verdict for defendant was properly directed, the judgment will not be reversed, although the reason assigned by the trial court for such direction was unsound. Steedum v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 277.

Where the conclusion of law on which the trial judge rendered judgment for defendant was that plaintiff had not made out her case from the evidence, when plaintiff in fact made out a prima facie case, the judgment cannot be sustained on appeal on the theory that the trial judge determined that defendant’s evidence rebutted plaintiff’s prima facie case. Joy v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 357.

A judgment clearly right should be sustained on appeal, regardless of the grounds assigned by the trial judge. Newton v. Easterwood (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 416.

5. — Facts undisputed. — Where forms of receipts, orders, decrees, and testimony are fully set forth in the record, about which no question of conflict arose, the court of appeals is not required to set forth findings on such matters. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 89.

The court of civil appeals will not make findings of facts concerning written instruments contained in the statement of facts, for such instruments speak for themselves. Scott v. Farmers’ & Merchants’ Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 345.

VERN.S.CIV.ST.—59

Questions presented on appeal, which have been considered and determined on a former appeal in the same case, will not be considered. Sisk v. Joyce (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 55.

Where, in a suit for partition, the decree was reversed on appeal, and the case remanded for further accounting, such opinion precluded a re-examination of questions decided on such appeal. Hanrick v. Hanrick (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 796.

Where on a former appeal an appellant obtained a reversal because a certain charge was not given, he cannot on the second appeal object because the charge was given at the second trial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 355. The decision of the court on a former appeal is decisive of the questions then in controversy between the parties on a subsequent appeal. Nashville, C. & S. L. Ry. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1196. A case held not subject to be reopened for purpose of hearing any testimony changing its state on a former appeal. Chischewski v. Summerville, 45 C. A. 561, 95 S. W. 1.

A ruling on a former appeal held law of the case. Whittaker v. Thayer, 43 C. A. 508, 110 S. W. 375.

The opinion of the court of civil appeals, approved by the supreme court, held to be the law of the case on a subsequent appeal. Walker v. Thornton (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 366.

A judgment of the court of civil appeals reversing a judgment holding a certain party entitled to the fund held conclusive on that question on a subsequent appeal by another party. McFadden v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 634.

The question as to whether the court will reconsider on a second appeal a former decision of the same case must always be determined according to the particular circumstances of the case. Speer v. Allen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 331.

A decision of the court of civil appeals followed by action of supreme court denying a writ of error held conclusive on the question decided in a subsequent appeal involving such question. Wolf v. Sahm (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 725.

On a subsequent trial after reversal, the decision of the annulment court is the law of the case. Baldwin v. G. M. Davidson & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 716.

The decision of the court of appeals conclusively settles the questions determined thereby, and they will not be considered on a subsequent appeal. Campbell v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1189.

The law of the case on a former appeal must be followed on a subsequent appeal to the court of civil appeals unless reversed or modified by the supreme court. Moore v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 195.

The determination of questions raised on a former appeal is the law of the case on a subsequent appeal. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 657.

A determination on a prior appeal that the porter of a carrier had authority to receive an incompetent person as a passenger was the law of the case on retrial. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Sears (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1003.

A decision of the court of appeals on a prior appeal is the law of the case in the trial court and on a subsequent appeal to the same court. Freeman v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 567.

7. Issues not passed on by court or jury.—The court of civil appeals cannot determine a question of fact not passed on by the lower court, where there is a conflict in the testimony. MacDougall v. Brown, 20 C. A. 652, 50 S. W. 642.

Where a question raised by the evidence was not submitted to the jury, the appellate court cannot consider such evidence on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 255.

Art. 1639  COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

[Title 32]

Where the order overruling a motion for a new trial after judgment of dismissal is a general one, the court should sustain it on any theory of the evidence which may support it. Fant v. Jones, 36 C. A. 138, 81 S. W. 328.

Art. 1640. Supreme court shall return record for supplemental conclusions, when.—If the court of civil appeals has failed to file a conclusion of fact upon any material issue in the case properly assigned in that court, and in the supreme court, and, by reason of such failure, the supreme court is not able to pass upon such assignment, it shall be the duty of said supreme court to return the record to the court of civil appeals, from which it came, with directions to make and file a conclusion of fact upon each of such issues, and to return the same with the record to the supreme court. [Id.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

REHEARING

Art. 1641. Motion for rehearing; requisites and notice of. — Any party desiring a rehearing of any matter determined by said courts may, within fifteen days after the date of entry of the judgment or decision of the courts, or the filing of the findings of fact and conclusions of law, file with the clerk of said courts his motion in writing for a rehearing thereof, in which motion the ground relied upon for the rehearing shall be distinctly specified, and the name and residence of the counsel of the opposing party if known, and if not known then the name and residence of the opposing party as shown in the record; provided, that, should the court adjourn within less than fifteen days after the rendition of the judgment, the motion may be made at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by rules to be made by the supreme court.

[Id.]

Rehearing in general.—The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction to entertain a second motion for rehearing where the first motion has been denied and a writ of error granted by the supreme court. Homes v. City of Henrietta (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 971.

The court of civil appeals has power during the term to grant a second rehearing. Id.

The overruling of a motion to reverse and render judgment in favor of plaintiffs in error, filed in court of civil appeals, is a matter determined by said court, and a motion for a rehearing thereof can be properly made. Nabours v. McCord (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 661.

A decision of the court of appeals on a motion for judgment is the subject of a motion for a rehearing, under this article. Id.

The court of civil appeals, after having denied an application for a rehearing, has power to reopen the case and grant an amended application for rehearing during the term. Gregory v. Webb, 40 C. A. 360, 89 S. W. 1109.

The filing of a motion for rehearing in a court of civil appeals is not required by statute to give the supreme court jurisdiction on writ of error. The object of the rule of the supreme court requiring such motion to be filed, is to give the court of civil appeals an opportunity to correct any error it may have made in disposing of the case. Nixon v. Malone, 108 T. 260, 98 S. W. 284, 285, 99 S. W. 403.

Where, on a motion for rehearing on appeal, no excuse was given or shown why the entire record was not brought up on the original hearing so as to show that the appellate court had jurisdiction, the motion would be denied. Bonner v. Legg & Tyndall, 46 C. A. 176, 181 S. W. 829.

A motion for rehearing presenting an appeal bond and showing the origin of the suit will be denied where reasons for their prior omission are not given. Maley v. Mundy, 47 C. A. 610, 107 S. W. 965.

Motion to retract costs after disposition of an appeal denied. Raleigh v. Magendie (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 1198.

Under supreme court rule 1 (67 S. W. xi), a second motion for rehearing held proper, and even necessary, to enable appellant to apply for a writ of error. Roth v. Murray, 105 T. 6, 141 S. W. 618.

Under court of civil appeals rule 22 (142 S. W. xii), requiring the parties before submission to see that the record is properly prepared, one may not for purpose of rehearing have considered a certified copy of the transcript of the record on the original hearing. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

Under court rule 22 (142 S. W. xii), relating to transcripts on appeal, a defendant in error on rehearing may not maintain a motion to amend or strike out the transcript. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corporation v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1170.

Grounds for rehearing and requisites of motion.—On a motion for a rehearing it is ordinarily sufficient to point out briefly some mistake, or misconception of law or fact, as exhibited in the opinion, with such reference to the record or to authorities as will call it to the attention of the court, without a full re-argument upon all of the points. Hurt v. Evans, 49 T. 311.

A rehearing will not be granted on the ground of newly-discovered evidence. To grant it for such cause would be to exercise an original jurisdiction not contemplated by the constitution. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 59 T. 654.

That a rule relied on and stated in the opinion as "finally settled" was not so settled is no ground for a rehearing. Dilley v. Freedman, 25 C. A. 59, 60 S. W. 448.

That rehearing is not couched in respectful terms, it will not be stricken out except where necessary to protect dignity of court. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McGown, 42 C. A. 565, 58 S. W. 710.

Failure of the clerk to send up a statement of facts which has not been discovered by counsel until after decision is no reason for rehearing. Shaw v. Schuch (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 688.

Under amended rule 22 (142 S. W. 369), held, that a rehearing would not be granted to correct the record by showing the entry of judgment as to another party. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. McMurray (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 60.

Where it appears that a judgment is against the merits, all doubts will be resolved in favor of rehearing. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 827.

Objections not previously urged.—Appellant, acquiescing on hearing on appeal in the construction of a will on its face, cannot assign as error on rehearing that court below struck out alterations from his plenary showing extraneous facts which would vary construction. McCready v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 692.

Where there was no assignment complaining that charaxes to the jury were contradictory, the question cannot be raised on motion for rehearing. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cuniffe (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 692.

An heir, claiming certain sums under decree in a decedent's estate, cannot charge the executors with items not referred to in the briefs and first urged on motion for rehearing, Kearney v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 361.

It is too late, on motion for rehearing on appeal, for a deactor to claim that the amount due is less than he admitted in his pleading. Trabue v. Wade & Miller (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 616.

Where the record on appeal to the court of civil appeals showed jurisdiction, appellee could not object for the first time on rehearing that the notice of appeal was not given.
in open court, and that the order denying a new trial was not made as recited. Owens v. Cage & Crow, 101 Tex. 296, 119 S. W. 830.

A new issue cannot be introduced on a motion for rehearing. Saxton v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 75.

Appellant cannot claim on motion for rehearing that he was entitled to more land than he was awarded him in an action to recover land, where his brief on the original hearing did not present the question, though error was assigned on the point. Hicks v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1195.

An objection to maintaining the appeal because plaintiff's appeal bond was not made payable to one of defendants was an "adverse party" plaintiff was jurisdictional, so that the question could be first raised on rehearing. Walter Box Co. v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 220.

Time for filing and excuse for delay.—An application for leave to file motion for rehearing after expiration of 15 days must show an excuse for not filing the motion within the time prescribed by law. Sams v. Creager, 85 T. 497, 22 S. W. 399.

If the application should show that a failure to file the motion was caused from accident, or cause other than neglect of the party affected by the judgment, the supreme court might consider the application, notwithstanding the court of civil appeals had not acted upon it. Id.

In absence of a satisfactory reason for the failure to file motion for rehearing, the rule denying the writ upon nonobservance of the law requiring such motion will be enforced. Id.

That counsel are busy is no ground for extending the time. Kneeland v. Miles (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 488.

A motion for rehearing delivered to the clerk for filing is a pending motion, although not filed or docketed. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 163.

In the absence of a valid excuse, leave will not be granted to file a motion after the expiration of 15 days. Railway Co. v. Grigsby, 13 C. A. 639, 35 S. W. 815, 36 S. W. 498.

A motion for rehearing is not to be filed more than 15 days after the decision of the court of civil appeals. McGhee v. Romatka, 92 T. 241, 47 S. W. 529.

Unless the motion for rehearing is filed within 15 days after the rendition of the opinion, it cannot be considered, but will be stricken from the docket. Carusales v. State, 47 Civ. R. 1, 32 S. W. 1698.

An application for a writ of error to the court of civil appeals will not be considered by the supreme court where no motion for rehearing was made in the court of civil appeals within the prescribed time, and no sufficient excuse was shown for failure to file such motion. Myers v. Frey, 102 T. 527, 119 S. W. 1142.

Affidavits.—Matter set up in an affidavit attached to a motion for rehearing will not be considered by the appellate court, when such matter is not part of the record of the case tried in the court below. Hall v. Reese's Heirs, 24 C. A. 221, 58 S. W. 974.

Appellant held not entitled to complain, for the first time after affirmance of judgment, that it was defective in not showing the case was tried on the agreed statement of facts. Scott v. Cox, 30 C. A. 190, 76 S. W. 802.

A special objection to the admission of evidence, raised for the first time on a motion for a rehearing, will not be considered. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 582.

On an application for rehearing, affidavits contradicting the truth of the record cannot be considered. Gregory v. Webb, 40 C. A. 360, 39 S. W. 1199.

Affidavits not filed in resistance of a motion for a new trial, nor until the making of a motion for a rehearing on appeal, could not be considered in the determination of the motion for rehearing. Holiday v. Sampson, 42 C. A. 364, 86 S. W. 643.

A rehearing not supported by affidavit will not be considered. Sanders v. Eastland Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 941.

An objection insisted on in the motion for rehearing, but not urged in the trial court, cannot be considered. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1191.

Art. 1642. [1031] Notice, how given.—Upon the filing of such motion with the clerk of said courts, he shall make a certified copy thereof and transmit the same by mail to the sheriff or any constable of the county in which the attorney or opposing party, as the case may be, is alleged in said motion to reside, together with a precept commanding him to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in such precept. [Id.]

Art. 1643. [1032] Service of notice and return.—Upon the receipt of such precept and copy of motion by the officer, it shall be his duty to deliver the copy of the motion to the person named in said precept, if found in his county, and to return said precept to the court from which it issued, by mail, stating thereon in what manner he executed the same or that the party named in the precept is not to be found in his county, as the case may be. [Id.]

Art. 1644. [1033] When motion determined.—At any time, after five days from the return of such precept served, it shall be lawful for said courts to hear and determine motion for rehearing, and not sooner. [Id.]
CHAPTER TWELVE
EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

Art. 1645. Writ, how tested, directed, executed and returned; and alias issues, when.

Art. 1647. Execution to issue, when; mandate.

Article 1645. [1034] Writ, how tested, directed, executed and returned; and alias issues, when.—All writs and process issuing from the courts of civil appeals shall bear the test of the chief justice or presiding judge of said court, under the seal of said court and signed by the clerk thereof, and shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of any county in the state, and shall be, by such officer, executed according to the command thereof and returned to the court from which they emanated; and, whenever such writ or process shall not be executed, the clerk of said court is hereby authorized and required to issue another like process or writ upon the application of the party suing out the former writ or process to the same or any other county. [Id.]

Art. 1646. [1035] Judgment enforced, how, when.—Upon the rendition by the courts of civil appeals of any such judgment or decree as is contemplated by article 1627, it shall not be necessary for the lower court from which the cause was removed to make any further order or decree therein; but the clerk of said lower court, on receipt of the mandate of the supreme court or courts of civil appeals, shall proceed to issue execution thereon as in other cases. [Id.]

Judgment.—When a judgment of the trial court is reversed by the court of civil appeals and judgment rendered by that court, such judgment becomes also the judgment of the trial court, and should be entered by that court upon its minutes as its judgment. Henry v. Red Water Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 730.

Execution.—See, also, notes under Art. 1647.

Where a judgment is appealed from and reformed, and the cause remanded, it is the duty of the district court clerk to issue execution for its enforcement. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

Art. 1647. [1036] Execution to issue, when; mandate.—If neither party shall pay the costs and take out the mandate within thirty days after the time when the same can be issued by law, then it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue execution for the costs accruing in his court against the party or parties against whom such costs have been adjudged, and to send such execution by mail to the proper officer for collection; but he shall retain the mandate until the costs have been paid or collected, subject, however, to the provisions of article 1635. [Acts 1897, p. 18.]

Execution.—See, also, note under Art. 1646.

Execution for costs may issue against sureties on bond, where a mandate directs them to pay costs, though proceeds of an execution sale, insufficient to pay the judgment, had been applied on such costs. Akes v. Sanford, 19 C. A. 601, 47 S. W. 671.

After a reversal, the clerk of the appellate court may, of his own motion, issue execution for costs, and issue a mandate on their payment. Ames Iron Works v. Chinn, 20 C. A. 988, 48 S. W. 666.

Art. 1648. [1029] Appellant on reversal to recover costs of appeal. —In any cause reversed by a court of civil appeals, the appellant shall be entitled to an execution against the appellee for costs occasioned by such appeal, including costs for the transcript, said costs to be taxed by the clerk of the said court. [Id.]

Art. 1649. [1037] Return of execution, when.—All executions for costs of the courts of civil appeals, as authorized by law, shall be returned by the sheriff or constable to whom they are directed within four months from the date thereof. [Id.]
Art. 1650. [1038] Officer failing to make return; remedy by motion.—In case any officer shall fail or refuse to make such return with the amount of such costs, if he has collected the same, within the time prescribed herein, or shall make a false or fraudulent return of any such execution, the clerk of said court may issue citation returnable forthwith to such officer to appear before said court and show cause, if any he can, why he has not collected and returned said costs and execution; and, failing to show cause, said court may enter judgment against such officer and the sureties on his official bond for twice the amount of said costs, together with the costs of such proceedings. [Id.]

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

REPORTER TO THE COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

Article 1651. [1013] The reporter of the supreme court shall be.
—The reporter to the supreme court shall also be reporter to the courts of civil appeals; and the decisions of said courts of civil appeals shall be published and sold by the state in the same manner as is now provided by law for the publication and sale of the supreme court decisions. [Id.]
TITLE 33
COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

CHAPTER ONE
JUDGES OF THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Article 1652. [1044] Number of judges, qualifications, compensation, and what constitutes a quorum.—The court of criminal appeals shall consist of three judges, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of two judges shall be necessary to a decision said court; said judges shall have the same qualifications and receive the same salaries as judges of the supreme court. [Acts of 1892, S. S., p. 34.]

In general.—The question of the number of judges necessary to authorize the trans- action of business by a court is, as a general rule, to be determined from the constitu- tion or statutory provisions creating and regulating courts, and as a general rule a major- ity of the members of a court is a quorum. Long v. State, 59 Cr. R. 103, 127 S. W. 551, Ann. Cas. 1915A, 1244.

As a rule, the death or disqualification or absence of a judge does not deprive the re- maining judges of authority to hold court and transact its business, provided the re- maining number is not reduced below that legally required for the transaction of legal business. Id.

In the absence of a quorum or the number required by law to hold court, a judgment rendered by the remaining judges is a nullity. Id.

Removal of Judges.—See Art. 6018.

Art. 1653. [1045] Election and term of office.—The judges of said court shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state at a general election, and shall hold their offices for a term of six years. [Id.]

Art. 1654. [1046] Presiding judge chosen and writs, etc., how tested.—The judges of said court shall choose a presiding judge for said court from their number at such times as they shall think proper; and all writs and processes issuing from said court shall bear in the name of said presiding judge and the seal of the court. [Id.]

Art. 1655. [1047] Proceedings on disqualification of judge.—When said court, or any member thereof, shall be disqualified under the constitution and laws of this state to hear and determine any case or cases in said court, the same shall be certified to the governor of the state, who shall immediately commission the requisite number of persons learned in the law for the trial and determination of such cause or causes. [Id.]

Art. 1656. [1048] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of a judge of said court, the governor shall fill the vacancy by appointment for the unexpired term. The judges of the court of appeals who may be in office at the time when this law takes effect shall continue in office as judges of the said court of criminal appeals until the expiration of their term of office. [Id.]
Art. 1657. [1049] Terms of office, long and short terms at first election.—At the first session of said court, after the first election of judges thereof under this law, the terms of office of the said judges shall be divided into three classes, and the judges thereof shall draw for the different classes. The judge who shall draw class number one shall hold his office two years from the date of his election and until the election and qualification of his successor; the judge drawing class number two shall hold his office for four years from the date of his election and until the election and qualification of his successor; and the judge who may draw class number three shall hold his office for six years from the date of his election and until the election and qualification of his successor; and thereafter each of the judges of said court shall hold his office for six years, as provided in the constitution of this state. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWO

TERMS OF THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Article 1658. [1050] Terms of court, when and where held.—Said court shall hold one term each year at the city of Austin, commencing on the first Monday in October of each year, and shall continue until the last Saturday in June next succeeding; and appeals in criminal cases shall be filed with the clerk of said court at Austin upon the same conditions and same rules as now obtain. [Acts 1909, p. 51.]

CHAPTER THREE

JURISDICTION OF THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

1659. Writs of habeas corpus, etc., power to issue. 1661. Jurisdictional facts may be ascertained.

Article 1659. [1052] Jurisdiction of the court.—Said court shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of the state in all criminal cases of whatever grade, with such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. [Id.]

In general.—The court of criminal appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal from denial of mandamus to compel a county attorney to institute a prosecution. Murphy v. Summers, 54 Cr. R. 569, 112 S. W. 1078.

An appeal in a scire facias case allowed to the court of civil appeals is insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the court of criminal appeals. Thomas v. State, 56 Cr. R. 246, 119 S. W. 846.

The court of criminal appeals has only such powers as are conferred on it by the constitution and statutes. Ex parte Firmin, 60 Cr. R. 222, 131 S. W. 1116.

Conclusiveness of judgments on civil courts.—The decision of the court of criminal appeals that a city cannot enact a valid ordinance punishing offenses punishable under a general law of the state will be followed by the court of civil appeals. Robinson v. City of Galveston, 51 C. A. 292, 111 S. W. 1078.

Where the court of criminal appeals declared the local option election in certain districts void, and the state and county accepted the decision, and licenses were issued for the sale of liquor for many years, the decision is conclusive upon the civil courts. State v. Schwarz, 103 T. 119, 124 S. W. 420.

The supreme court will generally follow the decisions of the court of criminal appeals upon questions involving penal laws. State v. Savage, 105 T. 467, 151 S. W. 530.

Art. 1660. [1053] Writs of habeas corpus, etc., power to issue.—Said court and the judges thereof shall have the power to issue the writ of habeas corpus, and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, issue such writs as may be necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. [Id.]

In general.—The court of criminal appeals has no jurisdiction of an appeal in a habeas corpus proceeding for the possession of a child. Ex parte Calvin, 40 Cr. R. 84, 48 S. W. 618.
EvIdence on appeal.—The evidence will not be discussed on appeal, where one under indictment for murder applied for habeas corpus and after hearing was remanded without bail. Ex parte Lawrence (Cr. App.) 137 S. W. 697.

Art. 1661. [1054] Jurisdictional facts may be ascertained.—Said court shall have power, upon affidavit or otherwise, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the exercise of its jurisdiction.

CHAPTER FOUR

CLERKS OF THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Article 1662. [1055] Terms of office.—Said court shall appoint a clerk for said court, who shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the court for good cause, entered of record in the minutes of said court. [Id.]

Removal of clerk.—See Art. 6062.

Art. 1663. [1056] Shall qualify and give bond.—Said clerk shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall give the same bond, to be approved by the court of criminal appeals, as is now, or may hereafter be, required of the clerk of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1664. [1057] Duties and liabilities.—Said clerk shall perform as clerk of the court of criminal appeals the like duties as are now, or may hereafter be, required by law of the clerk of the supreme court, and shall be subject to the same liabilities as are now, or may hereafter be, prescribed for the clerk of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1665. [1058] Deputies, how appointed, and to whom responsible.—Said clerk may appoint deputies, who shall perform all the duties of said clerk and who shall be responsible to said clerk for the faithful discharge of the duties of their office. [Id.]

Art. 1666. [1059] Seal of court.—It shall be the duty of the court of criminal appeals to procure a seal for said court, said seal to have a star with five points with the words, “Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas,” engraved thereon. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE

REPORTER TO THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Article 1667. [1060] Reporter, removal of, compensation and duties, and reports, how published, etc.—Said court is hereby authorized and required to appoint a reporter of such of its decisions as may be required by law to be published. Said reporter may be removed by the court for inefficiency or neglect of duty. Said reporter shall receive an annual salary of three thousand dollars, payable monthly upon the certificate of the presiding judge of said court. The volume of the decisions of said court shall be styled, Texas Criminal Reports, and shall be numbered in continuation of the present number of the court of appeals reports. Said volumes shall be printed and disposed of as is now, or may hereafter be, provided by law for the printing and distribution of the reports of the supreme court. [Id.]

Art. 1668. [1061] Clerk to furnish reporter with opinions, records, etc.—As soon as the opinions are recorded, the originals, together with the records and papers in each case to be reported, shall be delivered to the reporter by the clerks of said court, who shall take the reporter’s receipt for the same, but the reporter shall return to said clerks the said opinions, records and papers when he shall have finished using them. [Id.]

CHAPTER SIX
SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS

Art. 1669. Proceedings when jurisdiction of lower court has been changed, pending appeal.—When the court from which an appeal has been, or may hereafter be, taken has been or shall be deprived of jurisdiction over any case pending such an appeal, and when such case shall have been, or may hereafter be, determined by the court of criminal appeals, the mandate of said court of criminal appeals shall be directed to the court to which jurisdiction has been, or may hereafter be, given over such case. [Id.]

Art. 1670. [1063] Costs to be taxed, how, on disposition of case in the court of criminal appeals.—In every state case of a less grade than felony in which an appeal is taken to the court of criminal appeals, and the judgment of the court below is affirmed against the defendant, all fees due the clerk of said court in said case shall be adjudged against the defendant and his sureties on his recognizance, for which execution shall issue as in other cases of appeal to the court of criminal appeals. Should such case be reversed by the court of criminal appeals and a new trial be had in the court below and the defendant convicted, then the costs aforesaid in favor of the clerk of the court of criminal appeals shall be taxed by the court below against the defendant; and a certified copy of said bill of costs by the clerk of the court of criminal appeals, filed in the court below, shall be sufficient to require said costs to be taxed and collected as other costs against the defendant in the court below. [Id.]
TITLE 34

COURTS—DISTRICT

CHAPTER ONE

THE JUDGE OF THE DISTRICT COURT

1672. Term of office. 1678. Special judge elected.
1673. Oath of office. 1679. Electoral body, how constituted.
1675. Disqualification, causes of. 1681. Failure of clerk or sheriff to act.
1676. Disqualification; exchange of district judges; or special judge agreed upon, when.

Article 1671. [1064] [1086] District judge, election of; qualification; residence.—There shall be elected for each judicial district by the qualified voters thereof at a general election for members of the legislature, a judge, who shall be at least twenty-five years of age, shall be a citizen of the United States, shall have been a practicing attorney or a judge of a court in this state for the period of four years, and shall have resided in the district in which he is elected for two years next before his election, and shall reside in his district during his term of office. [Const. art. 5, sec. 7.]

Removal of judges.—See Art. 6018.
Salaries of judges.—See Art. 7059.
Validity of acts.—A party cannot object that a de facto judge tried the cause in the lower court. Hamilton v. State, 40 Cr. R. 464, 51 S. W. 217.
A statute creating a new judicial district, and appointing the judge of another district the judge thereof, held to have made him the lawful judge of the new district. Maroney v. State, 45 Cr. R. 524, 78 S. W. 696.

Liability for acts.—Judge is not liable for malicious and erroneous commitment for contempt, when he has general jurisdiction of contempts. Taylor v. Goodrich, 25 C. A. 109, 40 S. W. 515.
A judicial officer is not civilly liable for his judicial acts, whether negligently, willfully, or maliciously committed. Kruegel v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 725.
The acts of judges in deciding questions arising in civil cases before them, and in rendering judgment for or against the parties, being within their judicial functions, they are not liable in damages therefor. Kruegel v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 343.
A judicial officer is not civilly liable for his judicial acts whether such acts are right or wrong. Kruegel v. Jones (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 835.

Art. 1672. [1065] [1087] Term of office.—The judge of the district court shall hold his office for the term of four years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Id. and art. 16, sec. 17.]

Art. 1673. [1066] [1088] Oath of office.—The judge of the district court, and each special judge hereinafter provided for, shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution.

See Const. art. 16, sec. 1.

Art. 1674. [1067] [1089] Vacancy in office, how filled.—Any vacancy in the office of a judge of the district court shall be filled by the governor until the next succeeding general election. [Id. art. 5, sec. 28. R. S. 1879, 1089.]

Art. 1675. [1068] [1090] Disqualification, causes of.—No judge of the district court shall sit in any cause wherein he may be interested, or where he shall have been of counsel, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity within the third degree. [Id. art. 5, sec. 11.]

Interest in subject-matter—in general.—A mere interest in the question involved in a pending suit, there being no actual interest in the subject-matter of litigation, does not disqualify a judge. McFaddin v. Preston, 54 T. 405; Taylor v. Williams, 26 T. 585; Dicks v. Austin College, 1 App. C. C. § 1068.

This article disqualifies a district judge interested in the "cause." not one "interested in the question to be determined," as would disqualify the judges of the supreme court and courts of civil appeals (under articles 1516 and 1534). New Odorless Sewerage Co. v. Woodson, 39 C. A. 366.

Special judge presiding over administration of decedent's estate held disqualified by reason of claim against the estate, so as to avoid a sale of realty. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 799.

Where a judicial officer has not so direct an interest in the case or matter as that the result must necessarily affect him to his personal or pecuniary loss or gain—then he is not disqualified to sit. City of Oak Cliff v. State, 97 T. 391, 79 S. W. 1068.

The answer and cross-bill in a suit to restrain the enforcement of a judgment held not to state any cause of action against the judge who issued the temporary injunction, but obviously set up merely for the purpose of disqualifying him, and therefore not to interest him in the suit so as to disqualify him. Kruegel v. Bolanz, 100 T. 572, 102 S. W. 110.

Legality of his former acts.—On criminal prosecution, a remark of the trial judge held not to have disqualified him from trying the case. Bismarck v. State, 45 Cr. R. 54, 73 S. W. 965.

A district judge was not disqualified to pass upon a motion of jurors because it involved the legality of his own act in selecting a jury. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 423.

interest as taxpayer.—A judge owning taxable property in a city against which suit is brought to annul the corporation and remove its officers is disqualified to try the cause. City of Cisco v. City of Tyler, 16 C. A. 489, 43 S. W. 1064.

A district judge is not disqualified to try a suit for taxes against a citizen of the town or city in which he resides. His interest was only in the "question" and not in the "cause." Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 425, 55 S. W. 143.

interest as policyholder.—A judge holding a policy in a mutual life insurance company held disqualified to preside at the trial of an action to recover on a policy of insurance issued by that company. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Sides, 46 C. A. 246, 101 S. W. 1163.

A judge holding a benefit certificate in a mutual benefit society held disqualified to preside in an action against the society. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Hale, 56 C. A. 447, 120 S. W. 539.

Interest as former counsel.—That the presiding judge had heretofore, as counsel, given an opinion in regard to the validity of the title to the land in controversy is not a ground of disqualification. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Ryan, 426; Le v. Heuman, 10 C. A. 666, 32 S. W. 93. Nor is it a ground of disqualification that he has acted as an attorney for a party owner of the land in litigation, but who was not interested in the pending suit. Glasscock v. Hughes, 55 T. 461. But if he has at any time been consulted by the adverse party as to the merits of the matter in dispute although without fee, he is disqualified. Slaven v. Wheeler, 58 T. 23; Newcomb v. Light, 58 T. 141, 44 Am. Rep. 604.

A judge is not disqualified by reason of his name having been inadvertently signed to a pleading. Railway Co. v. Mackney, 85 T. 410, 18 S. W. 949.

Where judge who tried defendant for murder had acted as counsel for defendant, he was disqualified to act. Graham v. State, 43 Cr. R. 110, 63 S. W. 585.

A judge is not disqualified because he had proposed to assist the prosecution as counsel for a certain fee, which was never arranged or agreed to be paid. Baines v. State, 43 Cr. R. 490, 66 S. W. 847.

Judge held not disqualified to try murder case by having acted as assistant district attorney in presenting case against accomplice to grand jury. Locklin v. State (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 305.

The acting county attorney of a county is not disqualified from acting as special judge in the trial of a case, pursuant to an appointment by the governor. McCamant v. Webb (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 693.

Judge held not disqualified to appoint a receiver of a railroad company, because at some time prior thereto he had been consulted by persons, who had subscribed money to aid in its construction, concerning their liability on their subscriptions. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 741.

Relationship to party—in general.—A surety on a claimant's bond is such a party to the trial of the right of property that his relationship to the judge will disqualify him from trying the suit. Hodde v. Susan, 58 T. 339.

This provision applies although the person so related is administrator only. Dennard v. Jordan, 14 C. A. 398, 37 S. W. 876.

The judge's relation to the garnishee does not disqualify him in the main action. Patterson v. Speedon, 19 C. A. 450, 47 S. W. 732.
A judge who is the father-in-law of a daughter of an intestate is disqualified from hearing an action between the widow and her capacity as successor and representative of the community estate on a note executed to the intestate in his lifetime, under Const. art. 5, § 11, prohibiting a judge from sitting in any case where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity, etc., though the daughter is not named. Duncan v. Herder, 57 C. A. 542, 122 S. W. 113.

To attorney on contingent fee.—An attorney, having a contingent fee, is not a party to the suit whose relationship disqualifies the judge. Winston v. Masterson, 27 S. W. 768, 87 T. 260, affirming (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 691.

A judge by state judge does not deprive the defeated party of his property without due process of law, in violation of fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution, merely because the judge was the father-in-law of the attorney of the successful party, who was entitled to receive a part of the judgment for his fees. Miami Savings Bank v. Mitch, 57 C. A. 124, 131 S. W. 51.

To wife of party.—A judge who is cousin to the wife of a party to a suit is disqualified. T. T. R. Co. v. Overton, 1 App. C. C. § 532.

In a suit against the husband of a sister to the wife of a district judge, if the defendant represents a right claimed by himself and wife in community, and if the judgment to be rendered against the husband would affect the community estate of himself and wife even to the extent of costs, then the wife must be considered, within the meaning of article 6, section 11, of the constitution, a party to the suit, and the district judge is disqualified from trying the cause. Schultze v. McLeary, 73 T. 92, 11 S. W. 924.

A district judge who was a second cousin of plaintiff's wife was disqualified to try the case, so that orders made therein were coram non judeis. Ex parte West, 60 Cr. R. 485, 132 S. W. 389.

To stockholders of corporation.—Appointment of a receiver for corporation by a judge related to some of the stockholders who were not parties, held valid. Ex parte Tinsley, 37 Cr. R. 517, 40 S. W. 356, 66 Am. St. Rep. 818.

Objections and waiver.—The incompetency of the judge cannot be waived by consent of parties. Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 194.

An objection to the district judge because disqualified to try the case, made for the first time in the supreme court and sought to be supported by affidavit, will not be sustained on record showing no objection, or disqualification of the trial judge. Austin v. Nalle, 85 T. 623, 22 S. W. 686, 960.

The disqualification of a judge is a matter affecting the jurisdiction and power of the court to act, and cannot be waived. Lee v. British-American Mortgage Co., 51 C. A. 272, 115 S. W. 320.

Where a judge is disqualified by law, he cannot sit in the case, even with the consent of the parties. Summerlin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 880.

Parties who consent to the appointment of a special judge are not thereby estopped from denying his jurisdiction. Mc.

Where disqualified judge tries a criminal case, proceedings are a nullity, and the judgment is void. Graham v. State, 45 Cr. R. 119, 83 S. W. 558.

That the regular district judge appeared to some extent as one of the counsel for the successful party held no ground for the reversal of a correct judgment. McAllen v. App. (Cr. App.) 96 S. W. 769.

Though the judge who granted the order for issuance of a writ of certiorari and approved the bond was disqualified by interest, and therefore the order and bond were void, yet another and qualified judge having presided when motion to dismiss the proceeding was made, and another judge having made an order allowing the making of new bond, which he approved, and made an order adopting and continuing in force the writ therefore issued, this was in effect an approval of the application for the writ and an authorization of the writ, and relieved the proceeding of objection on account of the disqualification of the first judge. Comstock v. Lomax (Cr. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Determination of qualification.—An issue as to the disqualification of a judge to sit as such in a case pending in his court should be tried and determined by him, and the facts in evidence on the issue should be incorporated in the record on appeal. The statement of the judge should be under oath. His statement appended to a bill of exceptions will not be regarded. Slaven v. Wheeler, 58 T. 23.

The disqualification, if contested, must be shown by testimony upon a proper issue arising on the suggestion. Slaven v. Wheeler, 58 T. 26; Heferson v. Lindsey, 75 T. 188, 12 S. W. 978; Wright v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 468.

The judge cannot make an order dismissing the suit as to a party whose relationship disqualifies him, and then adjudicate upon the rights of the remaining parties. Gains v. Barr, 60 T. 676; Garrett v. Gaines, 6 T. 495.

Art. 1676. [1069] Disqualification; exchange of district judges; or special judge agreed upon, when.—Whenever any case or cases, civil or criminal, are pending, in which the district judge is disqualified from trying the same, no change of venue shall be made necessary thereby; but the judge presiding shall immediately certify that fact to the governor, whereupon, the governor shall designate some district judge in an adjoining district to exchange and try such case or cases, and the governor shall also notify both of said judges of such order; and it shall be the duty of said judges to exchange districts for the purpose.
of disposing of such case or cases, and, in case of sickness or other reasons rendering it impossible to exchange, then the parties or their counsel shall have the right to select or agree upon an attorney of the court for the trial thereof. [Acts 1879, p. 1. Acts 1897, S. S. p. 39.]

Validity and construction.—This and article 1677 as amended by the twenty-fifth legislature in no wise conflict with article 1678. Greer v. State (Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 1077.

This article does not conflict with article 5, section 11, of the constitution and must be construed with the provision that a district judge is disqualified by reason of being a party to a suit pending in his court. Kruegel v. Nash (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 601; 602; Oates v. State, 56 Cr. R. 571, 121 S. W. 570; Alley v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 295.

That a suit filed in the district court of the one district was tried there by the judge of another district held of no consequence. Rubb v. Texas Loan & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 77.

If the provision of this article that "in case of sickness or other reasons rendering it impossible to exchange, then the parties or their counsel shall have the right to select or agree on an attorney of the court for the trial thereof," should be held invalid as violating Const. art. 5, § 11, guaranteeing to litigants the right to appoint a proper person to try a cause on the disqualification of the resident judge, its invalidity would not invalidate the balance of the section in so far as it provided for an exchange of judges under such circumstances. Oates v. State, 56 Cr. R. 571, 121 S. W. 570.

Under this article, articles 3650 and 5728, and Const. art. 5, § 11, which declares that district judges may hold courts for each other when expedient, a district judge of a district other than the county in which the contested election was held, sitting in exchange with the judge of that district, could try the case; jurisdiction being conferred on the district court and not its judge. Savage v. Umphres (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 291.

Under the mandatory provisions of the constitution and the statutes, the selection of a special judge by agreement only when the resident judge was disqualified, and where there was no such disqualification his selection and his judgment was a nullity. Summerlin v. State (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 890.

Transfer of cause.—The statute does not make the disqualification of a judge the ground for transferring a cause pending in his court to another. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1102.

Certification of disqualification.—There being no law authorizing an appeal from a refusal of a district judge to certify to the governor his disqualification, the appellate court may, in its discretion, render judgment without certifying the record. Grigsby v. Bowles, 79 T. 128, 15 S. W. 30.

Party trying the case before special judge without objection held estopped to assert that he was not agreed on. Davis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 840.

--- On second trial.—Where a judge is disqualified a special judge can be selected to try the case. When a case has been tried before a special judge, and is reversed on appeal and the special judge has moved out of the county and refuses to return and try the case, the regular judge can certify his disqualification to the governor, and he can order the regular judge and the judge of an adjoining district to exchange districts, and the latter can try the case. Sovereign Camp W. of W. v. Boehme, 44 C. A. 159, 97 S. W. 848.

Selection by parties.—In a suit by publication, the judge being disqualified, the plaintiff selected a special judge, who proceeded to render judgment by default. The selection by the plaintiff not being an appointment by the parties, there was no jurisdiction, and the judgment was void. Mitchell v. Cunliffe, 17 C. 117.

A judge cannot be selected by one party in the absence of the other, and his acts are void. Latimer v. Logwood (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 960.

Where under this statute a special judge was agreed upon by all of the parties except two, and it was not shown that they were parties to the agreement, and they did not appear, the special judge was without lawful authority to determine the issues affecting their rights. Bomar v. Morris (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 663.

Acts of improperly selected judge.—A member of the bar selected by the governor to try a cause without authority held not a judge de facto. Oates v. State, 56 Cr. R. 571, 121 S. W. 370.

Plea of disqualification.—Plea alleging that a special judge is disqualified to try a case held required to be proved by evidence. Hart v. State, 61 Cr. R. 509, 134 S. W. 1173.

Art. 1677. [1070] Record to be made where special judge is agreed on or appointed.—Whenever a special judge is agreed upon by the parties for the trial of any particular cause, as above provided, the clerk shall enter in the minutes of the court, as a part of the proceedings in such cause, a record showing:

1. That the judge of the court was disqualified to try the cause; and

2. That such special judge (naming him) was, by consent, agreed upon by the parties to try the cause; and

3. That the oath prescribed by law has been duly administered to such special judge. [Acts 1876, p. 141. Id.]

Sufficiency of record.—The record should show how a special judge trying a cause became such; but if the record is silent, a party who, without objection, has participated in the trial of his cause before such judge, cannot, for the first time on appeal raise the objection that his authority did not appear. Shultz v. Lempert, 55 T. 273; Brien v. Han, 225 T. 665, 2 S. W. 727.

It is sufficient if a record of the appointment as special judge be made before the proceedings in the case are ended in the district court. Harris v. Musgrave, 72 T. 18, 9 S. W. 90.

Under this article and Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 620, a special judge must take the oath of office in order to justify his sitting in a case and trying it. Summerlin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 90.

Competency and authority of special judge.—That a special district judge appointed to try a cause is a member of the legislature is no objection to his competency as a judge. Roundtree v. Gilroy, 57 T. 176.

A decree of divorce is not invalidated because rendered by a special district judge who, at the time the trial began, was the county judge of the county. Even if he be such an officer as is forbidden under the constitution to hold another office, the acceptance and discharge of the duties of another office would operate an abandonment of the office to which he had formerly qualified. Alsup v. Jordan, 69 T. 300, 6 S. W. 831, 5 Am. St. Rep. 55.

A special district judge, qualified under appointment, has authority to hear and determine not only the suit pending in which the appointment was made, but also any litigation between the same parties growing out of that suit; e. g. he can hear an injunction suit and application after the term for a new trial in the case. Harris v. Musgrave, 72 T. 18, 9 S. W. 90.

It is too late, after the trial of the case before a special judge, to raise the question of his disqualification. Such trial is in itself an agreement to submit the case to him. T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rowland, 22 S. W. 134, 3 C. A. 158.

Art. 1678. [1071] [1094] Special judge, when and how elected.—Whenever, on the day appointed for a term of the district court, or at any time before the expiration of the term, or the completion of all the business of the court, the judge thereof shall be absent, or shall be unable or unwilling to hold the court, there shall thereby be no failure of the term, and no failure to proceed with the business of the court, but the practicing lawyers of such court present thereat may proceed to elect from among their number a special judge of said court, who shall proceed to hold said court and conduct the business thereof, and shall have all the power and authority of the judge of said court, during such continued absence or inability, and until the completion of any business begun before such special judge. [Act Aug. 15, 1870, p. 140, sec. 1.]

In general.—This article is not repealed by amendment of articles 1676 and 1677 and in no wise conflicts with them because they relate to different matters. Greer v. State (Cr. App.) 85 S. W. 1077.

The legislative provision for the election of special judges is applicable to both regular and special terms. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huff (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 241; Sime v. O’Connor (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 374.

When a special term is called, and the regular judge is not present, but is holding a regular term in some other county of his district, the election of a special judge to preside at the special term is valid. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Swinney, 54 C. A. 219, 78 S. W. 647.

When a district judge had ordered a special term, but was holding a regular term in another county at the time appointed, a special judge was properly selected for such special term. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stinson, 54 C. A. 285, 78 S. W. 388.

It is not contemplated that both the regular and special judges should hold court at the same time in the same county. Bedford v. Stone, 42 C. A. 290, 55 S. W. 1086.

Where the mode of selecting a special judge is prescribed by law, no other may be adopted. Henshin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 866.

Time for election.—Where a criminal case is transferred from a district to a county court by a special judge appointed for the term, under articles 483 to 487, Code of Criminal Procedure, the statute does not require that the election and qualification of the special judge should accompany the transfer as a part of the record. Schwartz v. State, 38 Cr. R. 26, 40 S. W. 976.

The judge has the whole of the first day in which to make his appearance and open court, and the attorneys in attendance can not elect a special judge on the first day of the term. They can meet on the second day and elect a special judge if the regular judge is still absent, but if he appears before they meet and opens court there is no lapse of the term. Scott v. State, 43 Cr. R. 591, 63 S. W. 178.

When the regular judge does not appear on the first day of the term, the lawyers in attendance can elect a special judge. They need not wait until the second day. If the special judge resigns during the term and the regular judge has not appeared, another special judge can be chosen to hold balance of term. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 95 S. W. 598.
Where a special judge was elected by the practicing attorneys under this article which is authorized solely by Const. art. 5, § 7, empowering the legislature to provide for the holding of district court when the judge thereof is absent, disabled, or disqualified from presiding, he had no authority to issue a writ of injunction returnable to another county of the same judicial district; the effect of such statute and constitutional provision being merely to provide a substitute for the regular judge to prevent a failure of the term in a particular county, and not to clothe such substitute judge with authority beyond the court which he is selected to hold. Wynn v. R. E. Edmonson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 210.

Under this article, and articles 1684 and 1725, held that, where a special judge was duly elected, his absence for more than three days did not adjourn the term where he directed the sheriff to open court and adjourn each day until the next day. Creed v. State (Cr. App.) 166 S. W. 240.

Art. 1679. [1072] [1095] Electoral body, how constituted.—Such election shall be by ballot, and each practicing lawyer in attendance at such court shall be entitled to participate in such election and shall be entitled to one vote; and a majority of the votes of all the practicing lawyers present and participating shall be necessary to the election of such special judge. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 2.]

In general.—Election of special judge by majority of attorneys voting held valid. Merrill v. State (Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 978.

Art. 1680. [1073] [1096] Mode of conducting the election.—The mode of conducting such election shall be as follows: The sheriff or constable shall make proclamation at the court house door that the election of a special judge of the court is about to be made by the practicing lawyers present thereat; the clerk shall then make a roll or list of all the practicing lawyers present; and such lawyers shall then proceed to organize and hold the election as hereinafter provided. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 140, sec. 1.]

Art. 1681. [1074] [1097] Failure or refusal of officers to act.—Should the sheriff or constable and clerk, or either of them, fail or refuse to act, the said practicing lawyers may nevertheless proceed to organize themselves into such electoral body, and appoint a sheriff and clerk pro tempore to do the duties of such officers respectively. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 141, sec. 2.]

Art. 1682. [1075] [1098] Record of the election, etc.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to enter upon the minutes of the court a record of the election of such special judge, showing—

1. The names of all the practicing lawyers present and participating in such election.

2. The fact that the public proclamation was made at the court house door that such election was about to take place.

3. The number of ballots polled at such election and the number polled for each person, and the result of the election.

4. That the oath prescribed by law has been duly administered to the special judge. [Id.]

Art. 1683. [1076] [1099] Effect of such record.—The record of such proceedings, showing a substantial compliance with the requirements of the law in that behalf, shall be conclusive evidence of the election and qualification of such special judge. [Id.]

In general.—It will be presumed, where the transfer shows it was from the district to the county court by a special judge, that the requirements necessary to his selection were complied with. Schwartz v. State, 38 Cr. R. 55, 40 S. W. 976.

Art. 1684. [1077] [1100] Other similar elections from time to time.—Like elections may be held from time to time during the term of the court to supply the absence, failure or inability of the judge, or of any special judge, to perform the duties of the office. [Id.]

In general.—Special judge, selected to succeed another special judge, held authorized to grant a new trial in a cause tried before the latter. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Voliva, 41 C. A. 17, 91 S. W. 354.

CHAPTER TWO

THE CLERK OF THE DISTRICT COURT

Art. 1688. Election and term of office.
Art. 1689. Shall report fines and jury fees.
1688. Vacancy, how filled.
1689. Shall pay over jury fees and fines.
1687. District clerk pro tem. appointed, when.
1690. Records of suits, etc., in former district courts.
1688. District clerk pro tem. to qualify and give bond.
1691. Records of suits in former county courts.
1689. District clerk bond and oath.
1692. Indexes to all judgments.
1900. May appoint deputies.
1693. Oath and powers of deputies.
1700. Books, papers, etc., custody and arrangements of.
1694. Shall keep office at county seat.
1701. Single clerk for district and county courts in certain counties.
1693. May administer oaths, take depositions, etc.
1704. When acting as district clerk to use seal of said court.

Article 1685. [1078] [1100a] Clerk, how elected; term of office.
—There shall be a clerk for the district court of each county, who shall be elected at a general election for members of the legislature by the qualified voters of such county, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 9; art. 16, sec. 17.]

Removal of clerk.—See Art. 6063.

Collateral attack on title.—Where a court is regularly constituted, its jurisdiction does not depend on the title of the clerk to his office, at least when attacked in a collateral proceeding. Kruegel v. Daniels, 56 C. A. 215, 198 S. W. 1108.

Art. 1686. [1079] [1101] Vacancy in office of clerk, how filled.—Whenever a vacancy may, from any cause, occur in the office of the clerk of the district court, the same shall be filled by the judge of the district court of such county; and the clerk so appointed shall give bond and qualify in the same manner as if he had been elected, and shall hold his office until the next general election, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. Where such vacancy occurs in a county having two district courts, the same shall be filled by the judges of such courts; and in such case the governor, upon the certificate of such district judges, shall order a special election to fill such vacancy. [Id. Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 233, sec. 1. Acts of 1891, p. 5.]

Art. 1687. [1080] District clerk pro tem., appointed, when.—In all cases wherein any district clerk in this state is, or shall hereafter be, a party to any pending or proposed suit, motion or proceeding in his court, the district judge in whose court the same may be pending or proposed, shall, either in term time or in vacation, on application of any person interested, or of his own motion, appoint a clerk pro tempore for the purposes of such suit, motion or proceeding. [Acts of 1887, p. 102.]

Acts of disqualified clerk.—A citation issued by a clerk who is a party to the suit is void. Lewis v. Hutchinson, 4 App. C. C. § 79, 16 S. W. 654.

A deputy clerk may take an affidavit in an attachment suit, brought by a national bank, of which the clerk was a director and vice-president. Laning v. National Bank (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 431.

Under this article, the regular clerk was disqualified to act as clerk in a proceeding to punish him for contempt; and hence his certificate to the transcript on appeal was insufficient. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 903.

Art. 1688. [1081] District clerk pro tem., to qualify and give bond.—Any person so appointed clerk shall take the oath to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of such appointment, and shall also enter into bond, payable to the state of Texas, with one or more good and sufficient sureties, in such amount as may be required by the judge, to be approved by him, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties under such appointment. The person so appointed shall perform all the duties required by law of the clerk in the particular suit, motion or proceeding in which he may be appointed. [Id.]
Art. 1689. [1082] [1102] Bond and oath.—Each clerk of the district court shall, before entering on the duties of his office, give bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of the county, payable to the governor and his successor in office, in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the safe-keeping of the records and the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and shall also take and subscribe the oath of office required by the constitution, which shall be indorsed upon the bond; and the bond and oath so taken and approved shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court. A certified copy of such bond may be put in suit, in the name of the governor, for the use of the party injured, and shall not become void on the recovery of part of the penalty thereof, but may be sued on from time to time by the parties injured, until the whole amount of the penalty is recovered. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 20.  P. D. 500.]

Cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Crittenden (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 222.

A clerk was not liable on his official bond for refusal to issue an execution on a judgment where he had been enjoined from so doing. Kruegel v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 289.

Art. 1690. [1083] [1103] May appoint deputies.—The clerk of the district court, whether elected or appointed, shall have power to appoint one or more deputies by a written appointment under his hand and the seal of his court, which appointment shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court, and shall be by him recorded. [Id. p. 202, sec. 21.  P. D. 501.]

Art. 1691. [1084] [1104] Oath and powers of deputies.—Such deputies shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution; they shall act in the name of their principal, and may do and perform all such official acts as may be lawfully done and performed by such clerk in person.

Power of deputy.—The powers of a deputy clerk cannot be restricted to the performance of a particular act. Thompson v. Johnson, 84 T. 548, 19 S. W. 754.

Art. 1692. [1085] [1105] Shall keep office at county seat.—The several clerks of the district courts shall keep their offices at the county seats of their respective counties, and when the clerk does not reside at such county seat he shall have a deputy, or deputies, residing there.

Art. 1693. [1086] [1106] May administer oaths and take depositions.—The several clerks of the district court shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations required in the discharge of their official duties, to take the depositions of witnesses, and generally to perform all such duties as are, or may be, imposed upon them by law. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 24.]

Cannot act as conveyancer.—See Art. 3909.

Art. 1694. [1087] [1107] Shall keep a record of proceedings, judgments and executions.—Such clerks shall also keep a fair record of all the acts done, and proceedings had, in their respective courts; they shall enter all judgments of the court, under the direction of the judge, and shall keep a record of all executions issued and the returns thereon, in record books to be kept for the purpose. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 24.  P. D. 504.]

Clerk's record.—In general.—The entries on the clerk's file docket required to be kept are judicial proceedings and their publication by a newspaper are not libelous under the libel law of 1901. Belo & Co. v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 517.

Where the judgment record does not show certain proceedings, it will be presumed, especially after a long lapse of time, that that was done which should have been done. Maes v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 846.
Art. 1699. [1088] [1108] Other dockets, etc.—They shall also keep such other dockets and books as are, or may be, required by law.

Art. 1696. [1089] [1109] Shall report fines and jury fees.—In addition to the reports required of the clerk of the district court under the several provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, it shall be his duty on the last day of each term of the court to make out a statement in writing, which shall set forth all moneys received by him for jury fees and fines, with the names of the parties from whom received, up to the date of such statement, and since his previous statement, if any such has been made; and also the name of each juror who has served at such term, the number of days he served, and the amount due him for such services; which statement shall be examined by the judge holding such court, and, if found to be correct, shall be approved and signed by him. Should the judge consider such statement erroneous, he may make such corrections therein as he may deem necessary, and shall then approve and sign the same. Such statement, when so approved and signed, shall be recorded in the minutes of the court. [Act Nov. 15, 1864, p. 7, sec. 9. P. D. 4014.]

Art. 1697. [1090] [1109a] Shall pay over jury fees and fines.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to pay over to the county treasurer all jury fees and fines received by him, to the use of the county.

Art. 1698. [1091] [1110] Records of suits, etc., in former district courts.—All records of judgments, executions, and all other papers and proceedings in suits heretofore had in the district courts of the several counties of the republic or state of Texas shall be kept in the office of the clerks of the district courts of such counties, and the same proceedings may be had thereon as if such suits had been commenced and such proceedings had in the district courts of this state as now organized. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 204, sec. 26. P. D. 506.]

Art. 1699. [1092] [1111] Records of suits, etc., in former county courts.—All records of judgments, executions, and all other papers and proceedings in suits heretofore had in the county courts of the republic of Texas prior to the first day of February, 1839, and of the county courts of the state as organized under the act entitled, "An act to organize the county courts and to define the powers and jurisdiction thereof," approved October 25, 1866, shall be kept in the office of the clerks of the district courts of such counties, and the same proceedings may be had thereon as if such suits had been commenced and such proceedings had in the district courts as now organized. [Acts May 11, 1846, p. 20, sec. 27; Aug. 8, 1870, p. 48, secs. 1 to 4.]

Art. 1700. [1093] [1112] Custody and arrangement of books, papers, etc.—The clerks of the district courts shall have the custody of all the minutes, records, books, papers and seals which now are, or may have been heretofore, or may be hereafter, deposited in their respective offices in accordance with law, and it shall be their duty carefully to attend to the arrangement and preservation of the same. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 22. P. D. 502.]

Art. 1701. [1094] [1113] Indexes to all judgments.—They shall also provide and keep in their respective offices, as part of the records thereof, full and complete alphabetical indexes of the names of the parties to all suits filed in their said courts; which indexes shall be kept in well-bound books, and shall state in full the names of all the parties to such suits, which shall be indexed and cross-indexed, so as to show the name of each party under the proper letter; and a reference shall be made opposite each name to the page of the minute book upon which is entered the judgment in each case. [Act June 21, 1876, p. 25, sec. 1.]

Art. 1702. [1095] [1114] Shall transfer records to his successor.—Whenever a clerk of the district court shall vacate his office, he shall transfer to his successor all the records, books and papers of the office.

Art. 1703. [1096] Single clerk for district and county courts in certain counties.—In counties having a population of less than eight thousand persons only one clerk shall be elected, who shall perform the duties of district and county clerks. He shall take the oath and give the bond required of clerks of both the district and county courts, and shall have all the powers and perform the duties of such clerks respectively. In determining the number of persons in the county under this article, the estimate shall be made on the basis of five inhabitants for every vote cast for governor in such county at the last preceding general election. [Acts of 1879, p. 47. Const. art. 5, sec. 20.]

Constitutionality.—The provision of this article for the ascertainment of population on the basis of votes cast is void. Brooke v. Dulaney, 100 T. 86, 66 S. W. 988.

Art. 1704. [1097] [1116] When acting as district clerk to use seal of said court.—When, in any county, a single clerk shall have been elected, as provided in the preceding article, he shall, in performing the duties of clerk of the district court, use the seal of said court, and authenticate his official acts as clerk of such district court.

CHAPTER THREE

THE POWERS AND JURISDICTION OF THE DISTRICT COURT AND OF THE JUDGE THEREOF

Art. 1705. Original jurisdiction. Art. 1712. To hear and determine all cases of 1706. Jurisdiction in probate matters. legal and equitable cognizance.
1707. Motions against officers. 1713. To grant all remedial writs.
1708. To punish contempts. 1714. Judge may exercise all powers, etc., 1709. May transfer probate proceedings to in vacation by consent of parties, county court except, etc. 1715. Judges may alternate, etc.
1710. Clerk to transmit papers, records, 1716. May appoint attorney for pauper.
etc. 1717. Other powers and authority.
1711. Judgments transferred and enforced.

Article 1705. [1098] [1117] Original jurisdiction of the district court.—The district court shall have original jurisdiction in civil cases—
1. Of all suits in behalf of the state to recover penalties, forfeitures and escheats,

952
Of all cases of divorce.
Of all suits to recover damages for slander or defamation of character.
Of all suits for the trial of title to land and for the enforcement of liens thereon.
Of all suits for trial of right to property levied on by virtue of any writ of execution, sequestration or attachment, when the property levied on shall be equal to or exceed in value five hundred dollars; and,
Of all suits, complaints or pleas whatever, without regard to any distinction between law and equity, when the matter in controversy shall be valued at or amount to five hundred dollars exclusive of interest.

7. Of contested elections. [Const., art. 5, sec. 8.]

1. Jurisdiction in general.
2. Penalties, etc.
3. Title to land.
4. Liens on land—In general.
5. — Jurisdiction after failure of lien.
7. — Trial of right to property levied on.
8. — Value in controversy—In general.
9. — Particular actions.
10. — Actions involving chattels.
11. — Collection of taxes.

Jurisdiction means lawful power to hear and determine the matter in controversy, and this includes the power to determine the legal results to follow from the facts pleaded and proven. Menard v. MacDonald, 52 S. A. 627, 115 S. W. 65.

The test of jurisdiction is whether the court has power to enter upon the inquiry, and not whether its determination is correct. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 538.

Jurisdiction of the subject-matter is the power to hear and determine cases of the general class to which the particular proceedings belong. Id.

A decree incidental to the cause of action which originally gave the court jurisdiction or so closely connected with it as to render its determination necessary to a final decision, is within the jurisdiction of the court to avoid a multiplicity of suits. Beauchamp v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 332.

Where the petition is defective in not showing that the district court to which it was addressed had jurisdiction of the action, an amendment to show that fact should, even after a judgment for plaintiff has been reversed on appeal, be allowed to prevent multiplicity of suits. Smith v. Eureka Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 747.

2. Penalties, etc.—Under the act of 1891 relating to suits in behalf of the state to recover penalties, etc., the district court can enter a judgment on a peace bond for $200. State v. San Miguel, 53 S. W. 389, 4 C. A. 162.

This article conforms to the language used in the constitution, article 5, section 8. In regard to the recovery of penalties, etc. Hill County v. Atchison, 19 C. A. 664, 49 S. W. 141.

Suit on a bond given for fine and costs adjudged against a county convict, when hired, is for a penalty, and hence jurisdiction is in the district court. Id.

Where penalty claimed is not recoverable, and damages are not within jurisdiction, it is proper for district court to sustain demurrer and dismiss cause. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hill & Morris, 97 T. 506, 80 S. W. 263.

A suit brought under Acts 1907, p. 156, is one in behalf of the state for penalty and forfeiture within the meaning of article 8, § 5, of the constitution, and must be brought in the district court. The justices and county courts have no jurisdiction to try such suit. Myers v. State, 47 C. A. 336, 105 S. W. 52.

An action to recover by the state under the local option law (Acts 1907, p. 156) is, in effect, a suit for a forfeiture or to recover penalties, and the county court has no jurisdiction. The district court has exclusive jurisdiction. Dupree v. State, 48 C. A. 272, 107 S. W. 928; Malone v. State (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 927.

3. Title to land.—When jurisdiction is acquired under clause 4, the court may render a personal judgment on a claim relating to the subject-matter of the suit for less than $500. Handel v. Elliott, 60 T. 145.
Where questions of title are involved, or the decision of the case brings in question the construction of a will, it was proper to refer the case to the district court as the more appropriate tribunal to adjudicate such question. Little v. Birdwell, 21 T. 597, 78 Am. Dec. 242.

The district court has jurisdiction of a trial of the right of property where the value of the property is not fixed by the sheriff at $500. Erwin v. Blankenship, 60 T. 553, followed. Bettermen v. Echols, 85 T. 212, 20 S. W. 63.

Where the district court has jurisdiction of a suit by a vendee to recover land, it has power to hear, in the alternative, a branch of the action against the vendor upon the warranty, regardless of the amount sued for. Chesnutt v. Chism, 29 C. A. 23, 48 S. W. 549.

Under the constitutional provision conferring exclusive jurisdiction of actions to try title in real estate, the district court has jurisdiction of an action brought by a vendor, who retained a lien on property sold, to recover the property after default by the estate of the vendee. Curran v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co., 24 C. A. 495, 60 S. W. 666.

Where the suit is to recover damages for trespass upon land and the title incidentally comes in issue, the county court is not thereby deprived of jurisdiction, but where the suit is for damages for being deprived of an easement over another's land, the issue involves title to land such as deprives the county court of jurisdiction. Henlee v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 129.

Allegations of the petition held not to make a suit one to remove a cloud from title so as to give the district court jurisdiction on that ground, being a suit to enjoin collection of illegal taxes. Aquilla State Bank v. Knight (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 895.

Const. art. 5, § 8, and this article, do not deprive the county court of jurisdiction of a suit for breach of a warranty in a deed. Penney v. Woody (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 572.

A suit to set aside a judgment of a justice of the peace in trespass to try title was properly brought in the county court. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 573.

The district court has jurisdiction to partition incumbered real estate, in the absence of any administration pending, especially where it will result in no material injury to any of the owners. Williamson v. McClory (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 998.

4. Liens on land—In general. A suit against a judgment debtor for the discovery of a lien or other incumbrance or the existence of property alleged to be the property of the judgment debtor, against the judgment creditor, and wherein execution unsatisfied has been returned, and an abstract of the judgment was recorded to fix lien, lies within the jurisdiction of the district court. Cargill v. Kountze, 22 S. W. 1015, 86 T. 386, 24 L. R. A. 183, 40 Am. St. Rep. 624.

The district court has jurisdiction to foreclose a lien for wages due by a railroad on the right of way, regardless of the amount involved, as the right of way is land within the meaning of the constitution. T. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Allen, 1 App. C. C. § 588; Railway Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 988.

The district court has jurisdiction of a suit to foreclose a vendor's lien. Taylor v. Fryar, 18 C. A. 266, 44 S. W. 183; Brandenburg v. Norwood (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 657.

See also, Const. art. 5, § 8.

District court had to have jurisdiction of action on note and collateral vendor's lien notes. Sanderson v. Railway (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 667.

A mortgagee, suing in the district court to foreclose a mortgage on real and personal property, may join as parties defendant third persons alleged to have converted to the personal property, though the value thereof is less than $500. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Moore, 28 C. A. 243, 66 S. W. 758.

A mortgagee of real and personal property, suing to foreclose his mortgage, may join junior mortgagees of the personal property as defendants, and have their rights adjudicated, regardless of the amount involved. Id.

The district court of a county in which real estate is situated has jurisdiction to foreclose a materialman's lien thereon. Smith v. Noyes (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 649.

In suit to foreclose mechanic's lien, defendant's vendor being made a party and setting up by cross-bill a claim for moneys expended in the transaction out of which the lien arose, held, that the district court had power to decide such claim, although beneath the jurisdictional sum. Haberzette v. Dearing (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 559.

Where the petition in an action to foreclose a lien showed the amount of the debt to be less than the jurisdictional amount for the district court, and failed to allege the value of the building on which the lien was claimed, disclaiming any lien on the land, the district court was without jurisdiction. Smith v. Eureka Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 747.

Under articles 579 and 590, a suit on a negotiable vendor's lien note against the payee and indorsor, which also sought to foreclose the vendor's lien, was properly brought in the district court, which had exclusive jurisdiction to render judgment, both for the debt and foreclosing the lien, under this article. Robinson v. Beitzt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 598.

A petition which alleges an express contract between plaintiff and defendant for decorating work by plaintiff in a building of defendant, the performance of the work by plaintiff, and the failure of defendant to pay therefor, and which prays for a judgment against defendant and for a foreclosure of a mechanic's lien given by Const. art. 16, § 37, giving laborers liens on the buildings made or repaired by them, and gives jurisdiction to the district court, irrespective of the amount in controversy. Tenison v. Hagendorn (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 690.

In suits to foreclose liens, the value of the property covered by the lien determines the amount in controversy for the purpose of determining whether the court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter; but such rule does not apply when the lien is given by statute, and the only right conferred and asserted is to seize and sell so much of the property as may be necessary to satisfy the debt. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Hump, (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 744.

Action on vendor's lien notes and to foreclose lien held properly brought in the district court, instead of in the probate court, where it involved the rights of plaintiff as against defendants other than administrators and the rights of defendants among themselves. Stewart v. Welch, (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 557.

5. — Jurisdiction after failure of lien.—When suit is brought in the district court to foreclose a lien alleged to exist on land for an amount which of itself would not be sufficient to give that court jurisdiction, and on the trial it is ascertained that no lien exists, it is discretion of the court to dismiss for want of jurisdiction. Snyder v. Wiley, 59 T. 448. Also see Cameron v. Marshall, 65 T. 7.

District court has no jurisdiction to render judgment for debt less than $500, in suit on mechanic's lien, where it was determined that plaintiff was not entitled to lien. Tn v. C. L. N. Co., 21 C. C. A. 483.

Where a suit was brought in a district court, in good faith, to enforce a lien for less than $500, the fact that it developed on trial that there was no lien did not deprive the court of jurisdiction to determine the case. Aldovitch v. Greenville Nat. Bank, 95 T. 429, 67 S. W. 881.

Where a mechanic's lien was not enforceable, the district court had power to retain jurisdiction to render judgment on the debt, although the claim was less than $500. Suedeth v. Du Bose, 42 C. A. 226, 38 S. W. 235.

Where a plaintiff in the district court, suing to foreclose a mechanic's lien, alleged an express contract, but failed to prove it, and the amount demanded was less than $500, the district court was not ousted of jurisdiction, unless plaintiff fraudulently made the allegations in the petition to confer jurisdiction. Tenison v. Hagendorn (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 690.

When a lien on a debt less than $500 on the minimum amount to confer jurisdiction, and to enforce a lien on land, the suit will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction when it is found that no lien exists.—Storrie v. Woessner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 837.

6/5. Trial of right to property levied on.—See Art. 7778.

7. Value in controversy—In general.—Where the only cause of action is one for a sum below the jurisdiction of the district court, the action should be dismissed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Arnold, 97 T. 365, 79 S. W. 8.

A judgment rendered by the district court in a case of which, because of the amount involved, it has no jurisdiction, is a nullity. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Campbell, 36 C. A. 276, 51 S. W. 550.

Judgment of the district court for plaintiff held to be reversed, the amount involved being between $200 and $500, so that jurisdiction was in the county court. Bigby v. Brantley, 38 C. A. 44, 86 S. W. 311.

8. — Particular actions.—The jurisdiction of the district court in suits by injunction does not depend upon the value of the property. Railway Co. v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 260; Morrison v. Carnahan, 51 S. W. 420; Stein v. Frisberg, 64 T. 271.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, not only the debt but the value of the property mortgaged controls the question of jurisdiction. Bohl v. Brown, 2 App. C. C. § 543; citing Marshall v. Taylor, 7 T. 235; Lane v. Howard, 22 T. 7.

Action against city to recover fines imposed under a void ordinance, the amount of plaintiff's expense in securing release, and damages to reputation, is properly dismissed where, outside of damages to the reputation, the amount is insufficient to give jurisdiction. McFadin v. City of San Antonio, 22 C. A. 140, 54 S. W. 48.

A judgment rendered by the district court in a suit by a tenant against a landlord for the rent paid in the purchase of a water and light plant by a city, where the petition shows that the illegal diversion of corporate funds will exceed $500. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 195.

District court held to have jurisdiction of a counterclaim for $100 earnest money paid by plaintiff in an action by the vendor to recover $1,450, balance of the price, and to foreclose a vendor's lien therefor. Cammack v. Prather (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 354.

The district court held without jurisdiction of a garnishment proceeding in which $775 was attached. Meek v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 43 C. A. 563, 96 S. W. 937.

The district court has no jurisdiction of an action where the petition alleges no cause of action save a claim to recover of defendant $150 for money alleged to have been collected by him for plaintiff, since the amount in controversy is not sufficient to give jurisdiction. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

A petition for mandamus in the district court to compel an officer to accept a replevy bond and deliver property to the principal therein which did not show that the property was within the jurisdictional value of such court was insufficient. Keasler Lumber Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 246.

A petition for the dissolution of a firm and the appointment of a receiver, which contains no allegation of the value of the business or of plaintiff's interest therein, fails to show value sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the district court. Childs v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1194.

9. — Actions involving chattels.—In foreclosure of a chattel mortgage, the existence of the lien, the value of the property, and the amount of the original debt, are the essentials to give the court jurisdiction, and not the present locality of the mortgaged chattel. Mclarty v. Staples (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 236.

The amount involved, as regards the jurisdiction of the court, in an action to foreclose a lien on a chattel, held to be the value of the chattel, and not the amount of the debt. Beatty v. Thos. Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 631.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, the value of the property determines the amount in controversy in determining the jurisdiction of the court. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 258.

In determining whether a court has jurisdiction on foreclosure of a chattel mortgage, the value of the chattels covered by the mortgage, and not the amount due, deter-

Under this article subd. 6, the district court has jurisdiction of a suit to establish a joint interest of the parties in alleged firm property worth $1,550, and to appoint a receiver and for an injunction and an accounting, for the value of the property in litigation. The court has the jurisdiction of the court and not the amount plaintiff may be entitled to recover as his interest therein. Ramsey v. Bird (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 671.

The court has jurisdiction of an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage, where the value of the mortgaged property is within the limits of its jurisdiction, though the debt be below the minimum limit. Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Raney Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 317.

10. Collection of taxes.—The district court has jurisdiction to afford relief by injunction to one whose property is assessed unreasonably and fraudulently by the board of assessors. Johnson v. Hilland, 17 C. A. 310, 43 S. W. 307.

Suit to collect delinquent taxes, where no foreclosure is involved, should be brought in the court having jurisdiction of the amount. State v. Trilling (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 733.

In an action to foreclose a tax lien, a plea to the jurisdiction on the ground that the amount involved was below the limit of the district court held properly overruled. Grace v. City of Bonham, 26 C. A. 161, 63 S. W. 168.

Under the amended judiciary article of the constitution, the district court had no jurisdiction of an action to enjoin the collection of a tax of $290. Dolling v. Waddell (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 945.

The district court has jurisdiction of a suit for injunction to restrain an assessor from making a certain tax levy, where the amount of the tax to be levied is not stated and is not in controversy. Lowrance v. Schwab, 46 C. A. 67, 101 S. W. 840.

Under the amended judiciary article of the constitution (article 5, § 16), giving the county court exclusive jurisdiction where the amount in controversy is over $250 and less than $500, the district court has no jurisdiction to restrain the collection of taxes in the sum of $374, notwithstanding the general power of the district courts to issue writs of injunction and mandamus. Aquilla State Bank v. Knight (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 883.

11. Void judgments and executions of justice’s court.—Since no appeal or certiorari is allowed from a judgment in justice court for less than $20, the district court has jurisdiction to enjoin the execution of a void judgment for less than that amount. Jennings v. Shiner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 276.

The district court has exclusive jurisdiction of a suit for damages for wrongful levy of an execution from a justice where the amount claimed exceeds $250. Ostrom v. McCloskey (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 307.

Where a judgment is illegally rendered by a justice of the peace by default for personal property of the value of $15.00 the district court has jurisdiction to enjoin such judgment. Neal v. Fries (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 267.

The district court may enjoin the execution of a void judgment of a justice of the peace for less than $20. Coca Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 308.

The district court was without jurisdiction to enjoin the execution of a justice’s judgment where the amount in controversy was less than $20. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1088.

12. Allegation of amount.—The jurisdiction of the district court is fixed by the amount declared in the petition, unless it is alleged and proved that the amount sued for was alleged with the fraudulent intent and purpose to give the court jurisdiction. Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 275; Tidball v. Elchoff, 66 T. 58, 17 S. W. 263; Rooper v. Evady, 89 T. 588, 16 S. W. 424; Baker v. Gunn, 23 S. W. 604, 4 C. A. 539; Johnson v. Borden (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 1151; Bates v. Van Pelt, 1 C. A. 185, 29 S. W. 949; Euleas v. Russell (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 172; Ratlan v. Holloway, 69 T. 48, 6 S. W. 785; Bordages v. Higgins, 1 C. A. 43, 19 S. W. 446; Id., 1 C. A. 43, 29 S. W. 184, 726.

Where the only damage recoverable under the allegations of a petition is a sum insufficient to give the court jurisdiction, demurrer held properly sustained thereto. Gaddis v. Western Union Tel. Co., 32 C. A. 201, 77 S. W. 37.

In an action for unlawful entry, a general ad damnum clause claiming $1,000 damages held sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the district court. Foster v. Roseberry, 28 T. 138, 81 S. W. 621.

Where the facts alleged show no cause of action as to such part of the sum sued for as to leave the balance below the jurisdictional amount, the suit should be dismissed. C. B. Carswell & Co. v. Habberzettle, 99 T. 1, 86 S. W. 735.

The jurisdiction of the court held, in the absence of any claim of fraud, to be determinable by the O’Neil v. Mullins, the petition, 94 S. W. 1096.

An amended petition in an action for fraud in a sale of land held to demand jurisdiction for more than $500, and to state a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the district court. Waller v. Gray, 43 C. A. 465, 94 S. W. 1098.

Where the district court in an action on a fire policy sustained an exception to the petition alleging that defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $1,250, that defendant had refused to pay the same to plaintiff’s damage $500, and praying for the recovery of $1,250, and plaintiff filed a trial amendment alleging that the refusal to pay $1,250 was without any liability, for which he asked judgment, the court had jurisdiction of the case. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Blohopol (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 558.

In determining jurisdiction of a particular action, the petition only can be considered, and jurisdiction cannot be conferred by a plea in reconvention. Le Master v. Lee (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 315.

While the allegations of the petition determine the amount in controversy, they must be allegations of fact, and not mere conclusions of the pleader, consequently, where a petition on its face showed that for breach of the owner’s contract, a broker was entitled only to recover commissions to the extent of $500, the sum fixed by the percentage provided for in the contract, an allegation that a greater amount was a reasonable compensation cannot confer jurisdiction on the district court. Martin v. Jeffries (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 565.

Where the jurisdiction of a court is dependent on the amount in controversy, neither the amount of the verdict nor the prayer of the petition determine the question of jurisdiction. The amount claimed by the plaintiff in his original petition, unless it appears therefrom that he has improperly sought to give jurisdiction where it did not properly belong. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 549.

13. Pleadings reducing amount.—Where the sustaining of an exception to an item reduces the claim below the amount within the jurisdiction of the court, a dismissal is proper. Hammond v. Lamar County, 18 C. A. 188, 44 S. W. 179; Hill v. Strauss (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 640.

The demand in a complaint being reduced by demurrer to less than the amount necessary to give the court jurisdiction, the action should be dismissed. Doherty v. City of Galveston, 19 C. A. 798, 43 S. W. 804; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Arnold, 23 C. A. 306, 77 S. W. 249.

Where exceptions to allegations in the petition as to damages are properly sustained, and plaintiff declares to amend, the action will be dismissed, where the court is without jurisdiction of an item of damages sufficiently pleaded. Jones v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 23 C. A. 66, 55 S. W. 371; Goodhue v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 57 C. A. 297, 122 S. W. 41.

14. Recovery of less than jurisdictional amount.—When jurisdiction has rightfully attached, judgment may be rendered for an amount less than is necessary to give the court jurisdiction. Tarbox v. Kennon, 3 T. 7; Austin & Clapp v. Jordan, 5 T. 139; Elliet v. Powers, 8 T. 113; Bridge v. Bailey, 11 T. 269; Sanger v. Ker, 1 App. C. C. § 1085; Bien v. Pennsylvania Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 636.

When the original debt has been reduced by payments, suit may be maintained in the court having jurisdiction of the amount unpaid. Davis v. Pinckney, 29 T. 341; Wilkins v. Klein, 1 App. C. C. § 578.

In actions sounding in damages, the amount of damages claimed, and not the amount of the verdict, determines jurisdiction. In actions ex contractu the amount claimed determines the jurisdiction, if it is not made to appear that a fraud upon jurisdiction has been attempted by improper averments in the petition. The question of fraud on jurisdiction can be raised by proper averments presenting that issue, which must be determined under appropriate instructions. Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 274; Farrar v. Beeman, 63 T. 178; I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 61 T. 656; Williams v. Truitt, 1 App. C. C. § 819; Sanger v. Ker, 1 App. C. C. § 1081. Also see Tedball v. Eichoff, 69 T. 88, 17 S. W. 263; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rambolt, 67 T. 654, 4 S. W. 356.

Where the amount sued for is within the jurisdiction of the court, that the amount recovered is reduced by limitation to a less amount does not defeat the jurisdiction. Kelby v. Western Union Tel. Co., 17 C. A. 844, 40 S. W. 822; Harrell v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 838.

Jurisdiction is not defeated by the mere fact that the evidence shows plaintiff entitled to recover a sum less than the jurisdictional amount. Strickland v. Sloan (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 622; Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 106 T. 17, 93 S. W. 431; Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1002.

Plaintiff having sued for $2,000 for mental suffering to his wife, and also for the price paid for a telegram, for defendant's delay in delivery, he was entitled to recover the price so paid, less than the district court's jurisdiction, though he failed to establish his other cause of action. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Siddall (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 342.

In the absence of a plea to the jurisdiction, plaintiff having sued defendant in the district court for $500, and the other for $500, and defendant was not liable on the larger claim did not deprive the court of jurisdiction to render judgment on the other. Grosbeck v. T. H. Thompson Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 346.

In an action to establish a lien for rent on goods sold by a tenant, the jurisdiction of the district court cannot be defeated as to purchasers of such goods by showing that the goods so purchased by them respectively amounted to less than $500, the jurisdictional amount, where the amount of the sales to each was alleged to be $500. Freeman v. Collier Racket Co., 44 C. A. 177, 105 S. W. 1129.

Where the amount sued for confers jurisdiction, the acknowledgment by plaintiff of the justness of the set-off, which would reduce the recovery below the jurisdictional amount, does not oust the court of jurisdiction. C. M. Conover & Co. v. Maverick-Clarke Litho. Co. (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 313.

Where a settlement was arrived at in a suit on a policy as to a part of the loss and an amendment filed as to the balance, the value stated in the original petition controlled the jurisdiction. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. (Mut.) v. Waco v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1083.

The amount or value alleged in the plaintiff's petition is the amount in controversy which jurisdiction of the district court, and not the amount alleged by the evidence as being actually due. Levy v. Lupton (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 392.

15. Exaggerated claim.—When the law fixes the amount of recovery, jurisdiction cannot be conferred by an arbitrary claim beyond that amount. Swigley v. Dickinson, 2 T. 192; Tarbox v. Kennon, 3 T. 7; Austin v. Jordan, 5 T. 139; Graham v. Roder, 5 T. 141; Shew v. Powers, 8 T. 234; Elliet v. Ker, 1 App. C. C. § 113.

Facts under which held not to refer to dismiss for an exaggeration of the amount in controversy to give jurisdiction. Eaton v. Ted (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 546.

Where plaintiff sought to recover punitive damages, which were necessary to sustain the jurisdiction of the district court, the fact that she had no reasonable ground to believe that she was entitled to recover punitive damages was not alone ground for a judgment against her. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 45 C. A. 513, 101 S. W. 1061.
In an action on a contract, the amount claimed by plaintiff in good faith determines the court's jurisdiction. C. M. Conover & Co. v. Maverick-Clarke Litho. Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 1135.

In an action upon an account, evidence held not to show that the creditor failed to give a proper credit, so as to fraudulently confer jurisdiction upon the court. Oliver v. Edward Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1199.

In the absence of a plea to the jurisdiction, the amount well pleaded held to fix the jurisdiction of the court. Barnes v. Bryce (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 240.

Where plaintiff's petition fraudulently exaggerated the amount due for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction on the district court, the cause will be dismissed when the fact is properly brought to the court's knowledge, but the cause cannot be dismissed on the court's own motion. Levy v. Lupton (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 362.

16. — Joining claims.—Several demands may be united so as to confer jurisdiction by their mere assertion, 4 T. 33; Ferguson v. Culston, 8 T. 251.

The amount of several sureties' liabilities for contribution may be added to determine the jurisdiction of the court. Jauška v. Matejek, 22 C. A. 354, 55 S. W. 255.

Where two actions were properly consolidated, in one of which the court would not otherwise have had jurisdiction of defendant, a plea to the jurisdiction was properly overruled. Corbett v. Provident Nat. Bank. 23 C. A. 602, 57 S. W. 61.

Where a claim against a principal is within the jurisdiction of the court, the fact that the extent of the liability of two sets of sureties was not within the jurisdiction is immaterial. Robinson v. Chamberlain, 29 C. A. 176, 68 S. W. 260.

Petition in an action to enforce a several liability against a number of defendants held not objectionable for failure to show that the court had jurisdiction of one defendant. Twyman v. Pull & Pecos St. R. Ry., 24, 24 C. A. 751, 29 S. W. 614.

In suit for contribution, jurisdiction of court held to be determined by amount due from all the defendants. Jarvis v. Matson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1079.

A complaint alleging jurisdictional damages in the sum of $1,000 in an ad damnum clause, was held to confer jurisdiction, though the complaint had alleged that each of several defendants was liable in the sum of $1,000. Home Benefit Ass'n No. 3 of Coleman County v. Wester (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1022.

17. — Inclusion of interest.—Where interest is claimed in a suit for damages, it is a part of the cause of action. Dyer v. Bassett (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 815.

In an action for damages, held, that interest can only be recovered as part of the damages laid which is amount in controversy. Pt. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 45 C. A. 376, 101 S. W. 266.

18. — Inclusion of attorney's fees.—Stipulated attorney's fees in a note are included in determining jurisdiction as to amount in controversy. Rainey v. Lauderdale (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1084.

An action on an accident policy for $500 and attorney's fees and 12 per cent. damages held within the jurisdiction of the district court. Lane v. General Accident Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 324.

19. — Exemplary damages.—In a suit for $500 actual damages and the same amount for exemplary damages, upon a second trial the claim for exemplary damages abated by reason of the death of the original plaintiffs. The court having jurisdiction at the institution of the suit, it was not abated by the subsequent failure of part of the cause of action. Daloney v. Allison, 1 U. C. 112.

20. — Incidental relief.—One whose claim is less than $500 can intervene in a suit pending in the district court to assert a right in property involved in the suit. Petilos v. Carper, 55 T. 28.

A court having jurisdiction to issue an injunction has jurisdiction of a plea in reconvention in the same suit, notwithstanding it would not have jurisdiction of the amount otherwise. Smith v. Wilson, 18 C. A. 44, 44 S. W. 556.

A plea of jurisdiction over a cause of action held to include incidental power to determine a set-off pleaded as a defense. Garrett v. Robinson, 92 T. 406, 55 S. W. 561, reversing Robinson v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 269.

A motion to require the clerk of the district court to pay over to a judgment creditor $50 paid on the judgment cannot be treated as a suit, as the amount in controversy is not within the court's jurisdiction. City of Whitesboro v. Diamond (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 640.

Court held to have jurisdiction of claim arising out of suit pending, though involving less than the amount necessary to give it jurisdiction originally. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Healy, 113 S. W. 572.

A suit in the district court being on a demand within its jurisdiction, it has jurisdiction of a cross-bill to recover an overpayment of less than $500 made by defendants in settlement. Kelsey v. Collins, 49 C. A. 210, 108 S. W. 783.

Art. 1706. [1099] [1118] Jurisdiction in matters of probate.—The district court shall also have appellate jurisdiction and general control in probate matters over the county court established in each county for appointing guardians, granting letters testamentary and of administration, probating wills, for settling the accounts of executors, administrators and guardians, and for the transaction of business appertaining to estates. The district court shall also have such original jurisdiction and general control over executors, administrators, guardians and minors as is, or may be, provided by law. Such court shall also have appellate jurisdiction and general supervisory control over the county commissioners’ court, with such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; and shall have general original jurisdiction over all causes of action whatever, for which a remedy or jurisdiction is not provided by law or the constitution, and such other jurisdiction, original and appellate, as may be provided by law. [Const. art. 5, sec. 8. Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 3. P. D. 1406; amendment, 1891.]

Settlement of estates.—See, also, notes under Art. 1705.

The district court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter of a suit against the sureties on the bond of an administrator to recover money, belonging to an estate, alleged to have been converted by him contrary to the provisions of the bond. Hennon v. Phillips, 22 C. A. 572, 57 S. W. 59.

Where an executor has made a mistake in the sale of a land certificate and the estate was transferred by the act of 1870 from the county to the district court, the mistake can be corrected by an independent suit in the latter court. Wood v. Mistrrett, 20 C. A. 236, 49 S. W. 236.

District court has no original jurisdiction of proceedings to revoke letters of administration and appoint new administrator. Ballard v. Wheeler, 23 C. A. 422, 56 S. W. 946.

District court held to have jurisdiction of a creditors’ suit to subject land of a deceased estate to the administration of the estate, though the administration of the estate was pending in the county court. Phillips v. Phillips, 23 C. A. 572, 57 S. W. 59.

The district court in which a suit to foreclose a tax lien on property was brought had jurisdiction, on the death of the husband during the pendency thereof, to adjudicate the question of the widow’s claim for an allowance in lieu of homestead over the tax lien. State v. Jordan, 25 C. A. 17, 60 S. W. 1098.

District court held to have jurisdiction of widow’s suit to declare partnership assets community and estate, etc., not withstanding surviving partner’s right to wind up partnership. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

The jurisdiction of a district court in the administration of estates of deceased persons is appellate only. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 265.

When a vendor’s lien against an estate of a deceased person has been established in the district court it must be collected through the probate court. Wall v. Club Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 536.

A vendor’s claim for rents in possession of an administratrix of the deceased purchaser under her residue bond not being a claim against the estate of the purchaser, district court held to have jurisdiction of action for rents. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co., 49 C. A. 488, 90 S. W. 197.

An action on a bond conditioned on the payment of a legacy to the oblige held within the jurisdiction of the district court. Hummel v. Del Greco, 40 C. A. 510, 99 S. W. 325.

District court held to have jurisdiction of an action by a vendor to recover the homestead and personal property of her deceased husband and damages for mental distress and humiliation resulting from her being unlawfully dispossessed by defendants. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 65 S. W. 566.

In an action on a guardian’s bond it was not essential to the district court’s jurisdiction that the amount of the defalcation had been fixed by the county court. Moore v. Henson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 865.

A district court decree, on accounting by a trustee partitioning among the heirs of an estate a fund in which the estate was interested with others, held not objectionable as infringing the jurisdiction of the county court, where it if the county court of the county was the court distributing the estate. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 64 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 159.

Where the probate court exercised jurisdiction over the estate of a testator, the district court was without jurisdiction. Haldeman v. Openheimer (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1188.

In an action by devisees to cancel a deed by the executor of estate land to another, the district court held not to have jurisdiction pending the administration to render a personal judgment against the executor for the amount received for timber on the ground that it was applied to pay his personal debt. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

Under Const. art. 5, § 8, and this article and article 3297, a suit by heirs against an independent executor to recover property, both real and personal, alleged to be of the estate of the testator and not held from the assets of the estate under the claim that it belonged to her and her codisidents, was not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the county court, but was within the jurisdiction of the district court, to determine in whom the title to the property was, and to decree a partition thereof, as well as the other property of the estate, among the owners. Japhet v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 441.

The equitable jurisdiction of the district court held not to be invoked to require an accounting by a certain trustee. Bucher v. Walt (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Any deficiency judgment against administrators should be enforced by the county court under the probate statute, and not by an execution issued by the district court. Stewart v. Webb (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 537.

Wills.—When a county judge is disqualified by reason of his interest in the probate of a will from sitting as a judge, the district court will exercise original jurisdiction under article 5, section 16, of the constitution. Prendergass v. Beale, 59 T. 416; Franks v. Chapman, 61 T. 576.

The district court, under the constitution of 1846, had jurisdiction of an action by an executor, against the heirs, devisees, and legatees of the testator, to procure a construction of the will and instructions as to the proper execution of the same. Purvis v. Sherrod, 12 T. 140. See, also, Little v. Birdwell, 21 T. 597, 73 Am. Dec. 212.
The district court has no jurisdiction to annul, by a direct proceeding, the action of a court in probating a will, and in such proceeding to probate it. Franks v. Chapman, 60 T. 46; Id. 61 T. 576; Dew v. Dew, 23 C. A. 676, 57 S. W. 927.

The district court has jurisdiction to execute the provisions of a will providing that no action be taken in any court. Cleveland v. Cleveland (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 825.

Whenever a will conveyed property to trustees to be equally divided among certain persons on the death of testator's widow, any division by the trustee contrary to the will would be subject to control of a court of equity, but its control could not be invoked until the trust was abused. Davis v. Davis, 51 C. A. 491, 112 S. W. 943.

While the district court has jurisdiction to partition estates, require accountings, and adjust equities between the several owners, its jurisdiction cannot be exercised to defeat that of the county court to probate a will, which, under Const. art. 5, § 16, has the general jurisdiction of a probate court, with power to probate wills, appoint guardians, settle accounts of executors, and transact business, including the settlement, partition, and distribution of the estates of deceased persons. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

An order admitting a will to probate, but continuing for further hearing objections to the appointment of relator as independent executor, was not a final order from which an appeal could be taken. Shook v. Journsey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

The district court, on appeal from the county court in proceedings for the probate of a will, tries the case de novo, and may probate the will or declare it void. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

Appellate jurisdiction.—The county court having no jurisdiction over a contest for property by the administrator and one claiming adversely, the district court acquires no jurisdiction by appeal. Wadsworth v. Chick, 56 T. 241.

On an appeal to the district court from an order of the county court removing an administrator, the district court acquired no jurisdiction to order a sale of the property of the estate. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 265.

The district court has no supervision of the county court, where acting within the limits of the constitution, except as to probate matters. Rainis v. Reasonover, 46 C. A. 290, 102 S. W. 176.

Appeal from the district court in probate matters will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction; the record not affirmatively showing the district court obtained jurisdiction by proper appeal from the probate court. Walker v. Cray, (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 463.

Despite the provision of the Constitution giving the district court appellate jurisdiction only over matters of guardianship, an order of the county court, appointing a father guardian of his minor child after the mother's death will not preclude the district court from determining to whom the custody of the child should be awarded, for under the statute the surviving parent is the natural guardian. Walker v. Finney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 948.

General control.—The district court, in the exercise of its equity jurisdiction, may charge the realty sold under a decree of the probate court, with a trust, and may cancel the fraudulent conveyance and vest the title to the property in the person entitled thereto. Fisher v. Wood, 65 T. 199.

Const. art. 5, § 8, provides that the district court shall have appellate jurisdiction and control in probate matters over the county court, and this article and article 3207 provide that it shall have appellate jurisdiction and "general control" of probate matters over the county court. Held, that the words "control" and "general control," as so used, did not enlarge the district court's jurisdiction, which was limited to appellate jurisdiction over courts sitting in probate, to be exercised only by appeal or certiorari, and hence the district court cannot issue mandamus requiring the county court to perform a duty not merely ministerial but involving judicial discretion. Shook v. Journsey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 466.

Art. 1707. [1100] [1119] Motions against shields, attorneys, etc. —The district court shall also have power to hear and determine all motions against shields and other officers of the court for failure to pay over moneys collected under the process of said court, or other defalcation of duty in connection with such process, and of motions against attorneys for moneys collected by them and not paid over. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 5. P. D. 1408.]

Art. 1708. [1101] [1120] To punish contempts.—The district court shall also have power to punish by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment not exceeding three days, any person guilty of contempt of such court. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 6. P. D. 1409.]

See Ex parte Kearby, 35 Cr. R. 634, 34 S. W. 962.

Jurisdiction in general.—District court has general jurisdiction of contempts. Taylor v. Goodrich, 28 C. A. 105, 40 S. W. 516.

The jurisdiction conferred by this statute is general, and in exercising it the court acts judicially, and the judge is not personally liable for an error in construing and applying the law. Id.

The record in a contempt proceeding held sufficient to show jurisdiction of the court. Ex parte Stuebs, 101 T. 256, 98 S. W. 319; Ex parte Howards, 101 T. 254, 108 S. W. 221.

To punish for constructive contempt, the court must, first, have jurisdiction of the matter; and, second, power to render the particular judgment which was rendered. Good-fellow v. Humes, 63 Cr. R. 371, 110 S. W. 755.

The power to punish for contempt of court for conduct calculated to bring the judge into disrespect and interfere with the administration of justice is conferred to preserve a proper respect for the court, and not for the judge's personal advantage, and it should be exercised only for that purpose. Ex parte West, 60 Cr. R. 380, 14 S. W. 379.

Acts constituting contempt.--An officer held not guilty of contempt in arresting a prisoner, and taking him out of the state pending an application by him for habeas corpus. Ex parte Lake, 37 Cr. R. 656, 40 S. W. 721.

More attempt of one to secure services of another to ascertain how juror stood with relation to case then on trial held not to render him guilty of a contempt. Ex parte Moren, 45 Cr. R. 235, 77 S. W. 211.

What matter of defamation of a court a publication may be, it is not a contempt unless it be written and published with reference to a case then pending. Ex parte Green, 46 Cr. R. 576, 81 S. W. 723, 66 L. R. A. 727, 108 Am. St. Rep. 1035.

One could not be adjudged guilty of contempt of court for making defamatory publications relating to the conduct of a case of which the judge had no jurisdiction. Ex parte Wright, 60 Cr. R. 485, 132 S. W. 339.

A finding held sustained that publications by relator were calculated to impede the administration of justice, and embarrass the justice in trying a criminal prosecution of relator as to constitute contempt of court. Id.

The fact that a relator said to a jurman, "You are on the jury next week," to which the juror answered, "Yes, I know I am," did not authorize the relator's punishment for contempt for interference with a juror. Ex parte Wright, 64 Cr. R. 171, 141 S. W. 971.

"Civil contempt" defined. Ex parte Wolters, 64 Cr. R. 328, 144 S. W. 531.

"Criminal contempt" defined. Id.

In a prosecution for contempt of court in approaching with improper proposals a juror then actually serving as such, it was not a defense that the juror was legally disqualified, especially where the accused did not then know of such disqualification. Ex parte Shepherd (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 628.

Proceedings to punish.—A proceeding in vacation adjudging one guilty of contempt is void. Ex parte Ellis, 97 Cr. R. 553, 68 S. W. 275.

Where a newspaper publicised evidence in violation of an order of court, it was error to render judgment for contempt against the publisher, and then issue an attachment to show cause why the judgment should not be final. Ex parte Foster, 44 Cr. R. 423, 71 S. W. 426, 59 L. R. A. 621, 108 Am. St. Rep. 856.

Where a notice of a motion to punish for contempt of court brings the person accused into court, where a hearing is had on the charge contained in the motion, an error in the notice as to the time the act of contempt was alleged to have been done does not affect the validity of a conviction. Ex parte Testard, 101 T. 269, 106 S. W. 319; Ex parte Howard, 101 T. 254, 106 S. W. 321.

Failure to serve relator with a writ requiring him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt held waived. Ex parte Haubelt, 57 Cr. R. 511, 123 S. W. 607; Ex parte Howard (Cr. App.) 123 S. W. 610.

A judgment of contempt for publishing defamatory matters of a judge relating to a criminal case pending before him will not be held void for error in finding that a part of such publications are related to the criminal case and not to a civil case of which he had no jurisdiction, if there was some evidence consistent with his finding that the publication related to the criminal case. Ex parte West, 60 Cr. R. 485, 132 S. W. 339.

In proceedings for constructive contempt by publishing defamatory matters relating to a judge's conduct of a criminal prosecution, the judge's findings need not repeat matters set out in the moving papers.

The facts constituting contempt, and not the evidence thereof, must be found in order to sustain a judgment of contempt; a judgment not being invalid for failure to cite the evidentiary facts. Id.

On an information for contempt of court for publishing defamatory matter relating to a judge before whom a prosecution of relator was pending, findings held to sustain a judgment of contempt, though there was no specific finding that the defamatory matters were false. Id.

Persons could not be imprisoned for contempt by the district court upon an oral order and without the issuance of a writ of commitment. Ex parte Ogden, 63 Cr. R. 580, 140 S. W. 445.

Where the alleged acts of contempt did not occur in the court's presence or hearing, held, that a written statement charging contempt is the better practice, unless presented by the district attorney in his official capacity. Ex parte Landry (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 963.

Punishment.—A judgment in a contempt proceeding fining defendant $100, and committing him to the sheriff until the fine was paid, and the order of which he had refused to obey was complied with, was not an excessive punishment. Ex parte Tinsley, 37 Cr. R. 517, 40 S. W. 306, 66 Am. St. Rep. 818.

An order assessing a fine for contempt and imprisonment in default of payment held not to vest power to commit respondent with imprisonment did not commit him to jail. Ex parte Smith, 40 Cr. R. 179, 49 S. W. 396.

A judgment for contempt held to remand respondent to jail only until payment of the fine or until his enlargement before then. Id.

An order punishing a contempt held to commit respondent to jail. Id.

An order punishing a party's contempt by forbidding him to appear or file any paper unless he shall first purge himself does not forbid the filing of a motion indorsed, "Plaintiff's motion to purge himself of contempt of court." Krusel v. Nash, 51 C. A. 15, 70 S. W. 983.

A party cannot be punished for contempt in filing a scurrilous motion, by forbidding him to further appear or file any other pleading or paper. Id.

The jurisdiction of the district court to punish for contempt is fixed. The fine cannot exceed $100, nor the imprisonment three days. Ex parte Morgan (Cr. App.) 86 S. W. 756.

Article 4670 in no wise conflicts with this article in the punishment of contempts already committed, nor does it further and authorizes imprisonment until the contempt has been purged. Ex parte Testard, 102 T. 297, 115 S. W. 1155, 20 Ann. Cas. 117.

VEIN.S.CIV.ST.—61 961
Persons cannot be legally imprisoned for contempt on an oral order to an officer to confine them in jail and without the issuance of a writ of commitment. Ex parte Dena, 63 Cr. R. 375, 148 S. W. 346.

Art. 1709. [1103] May transfer probate proceedings to county court.—The judges of the district courts of this state may, by an order made and entered in open court upon the minutes of said court, upon the application in open court of any person interested as administrator, executor, heir, legatee, devisee, distributee, creditor or guardian in the administration of the estate of a deceased person, or in the guardianship of a minor, person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard, pending in such court, transfer such administration or guardianship to the county court of the county in which such district court is there being held for further administration, upon satisfactory evidence that the county judge of said county is legally qualified to act as such in such administration. [Acts 1881, p. 72.]

In general.—Irregularity in transferring case to court of concurrent jurisdiction held waived. Armstrong v. Emmet, 16 C. A. 242, 41 S. W. 87.

Art. 1710. [1104] Duty of clerk to transmit papers, records, etc.—Immediately after the termination of the court at which the order of transfer authorized by the foregoing article is made, it shall be the duty of the clerk thereof to transmit all the papers relating to such administration or guardianship, together with a transcript, certified by him under the seal of said district court, or the record of all orders, judgments and decrees of such district court in relation to such estate, to the county clerk of his county, for which services he shall be allowed such fees as are now allowed him by law for similar services, to be paid as expenses of administration. [Id.]

Art. 1711. [1105] Judgments transferred and enforced.—When the clerk of the district court of any county in the state, where the civil and criminal jurisdiction, or either, of the county court has been transferred to the district court, shall receive from the clerk of the county court a certified copy of a judgment rendered in any civil or criminal case in the county court, he shall immediately record such judgments in the minutes of the district court; and, thereupon, the said district court shall have the power to enforce said judgments by execution or otherwise, as other judgments rendered in said district court are or may be enforced. [Acts 1879, p. 11.]

Art. 1712. [1106] [1122] To hear and determine all cases of legal or equitable cognizance.—Subject to the limitations stated in this chapter, the district court is authorized to hear and determine any cause which is, or may be, cognizable by courts, either of law or equity, and to grant any relief which could be granted by said courts, or either of them. [Act May 10, 1846, p. 201, sec. 7. P. D. 1410.]

A suit by the state of Texas by information in the nature of a quo warranto, or by a citizen by mandamus, can be prosecuted in the district court for an office over the value of $500. State v. De Gress, 53 T. 387; Millicen v. City Council, 54 T. 388, 33 Am. Rep. 629.

The eligibility to office and the determination of the result of an election may be re­ferred by law to other tribunals than constitutional courts. Seay v. Hunt, 55 T. 546.

One county cannot maintain suit against another to establish the true boundary line between them. Guadalupe County v. Wilson County, 55 T. 228. But see Art. 808a.

The district court can grant any measure of relief, whether in law or equity, that could have been granted by a court of law or equity. Voigtlander v. Brotze, 59 T. 258. Citing Teas v. Robinson, 11 T. 776; Shulte v. Hoffman, 18 T. 675; Tucker v. Anderson, 25 T. Sup. 158.

The court does not have jurisdiction of a suit to enforce the rights of members of voluntary associations where there is no question of property involved. Manning v. San Antonio Club, 63 T. 166, 51 Am. Rep. 659.

Where jurisdiction has been obtained to cancel a trust deed given by a stockholder in a loan association to the association, equity has jurisdiction to adjudicate all the issues. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 166.
The district court cannot, in the absence of a statute, revise the action of the commission in fixing the boundaries of a school district, and there is no such statute in this state. Stephens v. Bule, 23 C. A. 491, 67 S. W. 312.

The district court has jurisdiction of an action to enjoin a commissioners' court from taking land for the purpose of opening a second class road under proceedings alleged in the pleadings to have been regularly and lawfully held by the county court. Burleson Co. v. Parker v. Parker, 36 C. A. 73, 57 S. W. 794.

Under the constitution the district court held to have jurisdiction of a taxpayer's suit against a city, where a lack of jurisdiction did not appear in the petition. City of Austin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 192.

Widow's suit to declare certain assets community estate, etc., held maintainable in district court against independent executor. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

The fact that the state asserts its authority up to a river is conclusive on the courts as to the true boundary line, and they shall presume, regardless of whether the territory is rightfully subject to state's jurisdiction. Rodriguez v. Hernandez, 35 C. A. 78, 79 S. W. 343.

Where jurisdiction is given by the constitution over cases involving designated kinds of subject-matter, the grant is exclusive, unless a contrary intent is shown by the context. Myers v. State, 47 C. A. 336, 165 S. W. 48.

Equitable cognizance.—The district court has jurisdiction of a suit to prevent the establishment of a road without compensation for the land appropriated to that use. Bounds v. Kirven, 62 T. 159.

An action to restrain the commissioner of the general land office from re-establishing the boundary of a county is within the jurisdiction of the district court. Kaufman County v. McGaughey, 21 S. W. 261, 3 C. A. 655.

Where a court has jurisdiction to order the cancellation of a deed, though it is void on its face. Morton v. Morris, 27 C. A. 285, 68 S. W. 94.

Equity will set aside a deed for fraud, as well as of an estate purely in expectancy as of an estate in presenti. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 619, 69 S. W. 133.

Whenever the court acquires jurisdiction of an entire equitable suit, praying various relief, the defendant's acquiescence in a portion of the relief sought does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to grant the remainder of the relief. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

A proceeding asking that a lien be decreed in favor of a contractor for construction work for a railroad against the property of the railroad is an appeal to the equitable powers of the court. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 447.

Courts of equity will not interpose to rescind a contract for fraud except where it becomes necessary to relieve the complaining party against some injury. Hoeldtke v. Horstman (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 642.

The equitable jurisdiction of the district court cannot be invoked to require an accounting of a trustee appointed under an agreement between the prospective heirs of a decedent, where the trustee has already rendered an account to the plaintiff, the correctness of which is not questioned, and under the agreement he was required only to account to the executrices of the decedent, who had not yet been appointed. Buchanan v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Courts of concurrent jurisdiction.—A state court has jurisdiction of a suit to forfeit a corporate franchise, when brought before the appointment of a receiver by federal court. Palestine Water & Power Co. v. City of Palestine, 91 T. 540, 44 S. W. 814, 40 L. R. A. 203.

The court which first acquires jurisdiction over a controversy should maintain it, undisturbed by the interference of any other court of co-ordinate jurisdiction. Stone v. Byars, 32 C. A. 154, 78 S. W. 1986.

Consideration of a petition for the appointment of a receiver for a corporation by judge held an assumption of jurisdiction over the corporation's property, precluding a subsequent attachment from operating as a lien thereon. Worden v. Pruter, 49 C. A. 118, 88 S. W. 454.

When the power of a court of jurisdiction is first invoked to seize and administer property, its jurisdiction is exclusive, and no other court of concurrent jurisdiction may interfere to materially disturb or hinder it in the exercise of its authority and jurisdiction over the res. Water–Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 162, 103 S. W. 528.

District court held without jurisdiction to enjoin prosecution of a similar suit between the same parties previously begun in another district court. Harrison v. Littlefield, 57 C. A. 617, 134 S. W. 212.

Where petitions for the appointment of a receiver of the same property of a railroad company were presented to two district judges, the one to whom it was first presented acquired jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the parties. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 741.

Control over county courts.—A district court cannot enjoin sale under execution of county court. Lincoln v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 278.

The district court has no jurisdiction to enjoin the enforcement of an invalid execution of the county court. Wingfield v. Hackney, 39 C. A. 39, 69 S. W. 446.

By reason of a demand for damages for the detention of property held, that the district court had jurisdiction of a cause praying for interference with a judgment of the county court. Chriswell v. Lussler (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 553.

The district court held without power to restrain a judgment of the county court within its constitutional jurisdiction. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 66 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 579.

Non-resident parties.—In general.—As to jurisdiction of suits against non-residents of this state, see McMullen v. Guest, 6 T. 275; Campbell v. Wilson, 6 T. 375; Tulane v. McKeen, 3 T. 277; Butterworth v. Kinsey, 11 T. 257; N. T. 496; Haggerty v. Ward, 25 T. 143; Hays v. Barrera, 26 T. 78; Mickel v. McGehee, 27 T. 134; Ward v. 963.

A resident creditor can proceed directly against the property of a non-resident debtor. He may also proceed against a third party who has converted the debtor's property to his own use. Williams v. Beasley, 25 S. W. 321; Boydston v. Morris, 71 T. 698; Veck v. Holt, 71 T. 715, 9 S. W. 743; Ward v. Green (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 574.

Texas courts have jurisdiction over action, brought by citizen of the republic of Mexico, for breach of contract that was to be executed in that republic by an Illinois corporation. American Well Works v. De Aguayo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 350.

The courts of a county held to have jurisdiction to try a transitory action between non-residents of the state, defendant having voluntarily come into such county and been duly served. Flint v. A. 29, 32 S. W. 115; S. v. A., 32 S. W. 116.

The court held not authorized, at the suit of a non-resident, to restrain another non-resident from proceeding in the courts of another state. Lightfoot v. Murphy, 47 C. A. 113, 104 S. W. 511.

As a general rule, neither citizenship nor residence is requisite to entitle a person to sue in the courts of Texas. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

A Texas court of equity cannot render a decree restraining non-resident officers of a foreign insurance company from canceling the certificate of a resident of the state. Royal Prudential Union v. Lundy, 51 C. A. 647, 112 S. W. 185.

The district court of G. county had jurisdiction of a non-resident's suit against a foreign railroad corporation, where a domestic corporation owning the part of the line in the county was a mere subcorporation of the foreign corporation. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Hale (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 411.

Personal judgment against.—In the partition of land a personal judgment for costs cannot be rendered against a non-resident owner. Pool v. Lamm (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 363.

In foreclosing a lien on land a personal judgment cannot be rendered against a non-resident. Spence v. Morris (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 405; Citing Kimmier v. Railway Co., 76 T. 660, 6 S. W. 698; Scott v. Streepy, 73 T. 547; 11 S. W. 532; Foote v. Sewall, 81 T. 659, 17 S. W. 372.

No sovereignty can extend its process beyond its own territorial limit to subject either person or property to its judicial decisions. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

Personal jurisdiction.—The courts of Texas have jurisdiction of actions by or against consuls of foreign countries temporarily residing in this state. Redmond v. Smith, 22 C. A. 323, 54 S. W. 636.

Causes of action arising outside of state.—In general.—A citizen of another state can come into Texas to enforce a foreign transitory nature arising wholly in such state. Sorkin v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 608.

The right of a court of one state to take jurisdiction of a transitory action founded on an occurrence in another, if not contrary to the public policy of the forum, arises from comity. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

Non-residence of the parties does not, in the absence of a statute of the forum to that effect, deprive the court of jurisdiction of a tort occurring outside of its state. Id.

A suit cannot be maintained in this state to compel specific performance of a contract to convey land located in the republic of Mexico. Combest v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 112.

Personal injuries.—Courts of Texas will not take jurisdiction of an action for negligence governed by the laws of Mexico, some of which are unenforceable in Texas, where there was no obstacle to the plaintiff bringing his action in the Mexican courts. Jones v. Mexican Cent. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 186.

Action for injuries by plaintiff’s being struck by a railroad engine held transitory, and properly brought in a county in Texas in which defendant operated its road, though the cause of action arose in New Mexico. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Keller, 35 C. A. 353, 78 S. W. 801.

A citizen of Arizona injured in New Mexico held not barred from maintaining an action therefor in Texas by the New Mexico statute, requiring actions for such injuries to be brought in its own courts. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sowers (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 190.

The courts of Texas held to possess jurisdiction of an action by an employed for injuries received in Arizona. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.
A citizen of Arizona injured there through negligence of a corporation foreign to Texas was entitled to maintain an action in Texas for the injuries. Southern Pac. Co. v. Godfrey, 48 C. A. 616, 107 S. W. 1135.

An employee residing in California and injured in New Mexico could not be compelled by a law of the territory to bring suit there or forego his right to recover. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 55 C. A. 355, 116 S. W. 855.

At common law an employee may sue for personal injury wherever he may find the wrongdoer. Id.

An action for tort to the person held transitory, so that the courts of one state may acquire jurisdiction of actions for torts based on acts or omissions done or occurring in sister states. Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. Co. v. Street, 57 C. A. 194, 122 S. W. 270.

A court in a state other than that in which an injury to plaintiff's wife occurred as the result of a railroad work is held to have jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Southern Pac. Co. v. Blake (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 668.

Circumstances stated held to give the district court jurisdiction of a suit by a non-resident against a foreign railroad corporation for injury occurring in another state. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Arms (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1164.

The courts of Texas had no jurisdiction of an action for the wrongful death of plaintiff's intestate in the republic of Mexico, due to an accident which occurred there, though the petition alleged that the death would not have occurred but for the negligence of defendant in not performing their contract obligation to provide proper hospital services and competent surgical attention. De Herrera v. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 594.

Actions concerning chattels.—The courts have jurisdiction of a suit against a railroad company organized in the state, for damages to chattels in another state, inflicted while plaintiff was a citizen therein. Goldman v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 708.

Equity held to acquire jurisdiction where it has jurisdiction over defendant, though the subject-matter of the controversy is not within the jurisdiction. Banco Miniero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 224.

An action for conversion held transitory. Id.

Effect of foreign laws.—A right of action given by the laws of another state cannot be enforced by suit in a Texas court, when the right claimed is denied at common law, and is not secured by the constitution or statutes of this state. Railway Co. v. Richards, 65 T. 375, 4 S. W. 627; Railway Co. v. McCormick, 71 T. 660, 9 S. W. 540; Railway Co. v. Jackson, 33 S. W. 857, 31 L. R. A. 276, 59 Am. St. Rep. 28; Id., 32 S. W. 230.

Where the wrongful act occurred in Mexico and the laws of that country gave no right of action, an action did not lie in this state, though the death occurred here. De Ham v. Mexican Nat. Ry. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 249; De Harn v. Same, 23 S. W. 381, 86 T. 68; Willis v. Mo. Pac. Co., 51 T. 432, 48 Am. Rep. 54. An action for the exact value of the chattels, made and to be performed in Arkansas, where it was unenforceable, could not be enforced in Texas. Jones v. National Cotton Oil Co., 31 C. A. 420, 72 S. W. 248.

A certain fact held to show conclusively that it is not against the public policy of a state to entertain jurisdiction of an action based on an act occurring elsewhere. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

Where the law of the state in which an action is brought and the law of the state in which the cause of action arose both give a right of action, and the redress given the injured party in the state where the cause of action arose may be enforced in the former state, the courts thereof have jurisdiction. Id.

The laws of Tennessee relating to actions for causing death, being similar to the laws of Texas, are enforceable by the courts of the latter state. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Sizemore, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 403.

A court of one state taking jurisdiction of an action for tort to persons based on acts or omissions done or occurring in a sister state must apply the law of the state where the accident occurred. Southern Pac. Co., 53 C. A. 194, 122 S. W. 270.

The right of the courts of one state to take jurisdiction of causes of action for tort to persons based on acts or omissions done or occurring in sister states held not affected by the fact that there is a dissimilarity between the laws of the two states as applicable to the action. Id.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death arising under a statute in another jurisdiction held not defeated by the fact that the right of action under that statute is given to other persons than have the right of action in the courts of the forum. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 1165.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death arising under a statute of another state held not defeated by the fact that distress of the wife of deceased is an element of damages in the state where the action arises, and not under the law of the forum. Id.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death, arising under a statute of another state, held not defeated by the right to recover in the state where the cause of action arose for pain and suffering of deceased, which are not elements of damages in the state where the action is brought. Id.

Jurisdiction to maintain an action for the death of a locomotive engineer, which arises under a statute of another state, held not defeated by the existence in the other state of the common-law doctrine as to liability for acts of fellow servants, and its modification in the state where suit is brought, so as to exclude injuries to railroad employees. Id.

Jurisdiction of a cause of action for death of a locomotive engineer, which arises under a statute of another state, held not defeated by a provision in the act incorporating defendant in the other state excepting it from liability for the death of an employee. Id.

Where a cause of action for death accrues under the laws of another state, and such law provides for the payment of a lump sum for negligence, loss of decedent's society and the expenses of his death and burial, and the mental suffering of the survivors, the courts of the forum can allow recovery therefor, although not recognized by the laws of the forum; a right of action for death existing under the laws of the forum. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gross (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1173.

The right of action for the wrongful death of an employé, though given under the statute of a foreign state, is transitory and goes with the person having the right of action. It is not enforceable in the courts of the local forum in any case against their public policy. Rivera v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 224.

Interstate commerce—Determination of jurisdiction.—A complaint in an action against a carrier, in a state court, held not objectionable as raising a question of interstate commerce, in which no federal courts alone have jurisdiction. Porter v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 473, 121 S. W. 897.

In a state court a shipper in cases of interstate carriage can, by the principles of the common law, be accorded relief from unjust and unreasonable freight rates exacted from him, such rates having been filed. But the same shipper would not be entitled to have a federal court under the interstate commerce act. This case is one where the common carrier, in violation of the common law has charged and collected from the shipper a freight rate inherently exorbitant and unreasonable, and the court below had the power to try the cause. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 365, 85 S. W. 1053.

Where a state statute provides a remedy for the enforcement of an employer’s liability for the death of an employé, and an act of congress provides a similar remedy where the parties were engaged in interstate commerce, the state courts are not necessarily ousted of jurisdiction unless the act of congress expressly provides for exclusive jurisdiction, or the terms of the act necessarily imply exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts; and there being nothing in said act of congress excluding the jurisdiction of state courts, and no proof in an action that the parties were engaged in interstate commerce, the petition alleging intrastate commerce, and the line being operated under a state charter, and the evidence failing to show any interstate commerce, the state court has jurisdiction. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Blalock (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 706.

The jurisdiction of the state and federal courts is to be determined by the averments of the petition, and not by the federal questions presented by the answer. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Roff Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

The federal courts are entitled to jurisdiction only when the facts necessary to confer such jurisdiction appear with reasonable clearness and certainty. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 175.

Interstate shipments.—The state courts are not without jurisdiction to interpret a tariff adopted by a railroad, though it is interstate and established and required by an act of congress. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Roff Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1194.

An action by a shipper against a railroad to recover an agreed rebate on an interstate shipment held not to present a federal question conferring jurisdiction exclusively on the federal courts. Id.

Where the failure of a railroad company to furnish cars requested for an interstate shipment of cattle caused the shipper injury, the right of action, while one which might be removed to the federal courts, falls within the jurisdiction of the state court. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Matador Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461.

The state courts have jurisdiction of an action against a carrier for the conversion of an interstate shipment, though the shipper has filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission and the carrier has appeared and answered. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Pope (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

The federal courts held not to have jurisdiction of an action for a railroad employé’s death. The employé’s liability act where the employment was made in one state and the employé caused his death were not engaged in interstate commerce. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 175.

Actions affecting land outside of state.—An action for injuries done to land situated beyond the limits of this state, when no part of the injury was performed or suffered within this state, is purely local, and cannot be maintained in any court in this state. Mo. Pacific Ry. Co. v. Cullers, 81 T. 352, 17 S. W. 19.

The court of one state has not the power to compel the cancellation of a deed of land in another state. Paul v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 682.

A Texas court has jurisdiction of a suit to set aside a sale of land therein because of fraud, the consideration was land in another state to which defendant had no title. Paul v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 579.

Habeas corpus.—The amendment of the constitution confers upon the district court power to issue writs of habeas corpus, at the instance of parents, to determine the custody of their minor child, which they had previously relinquished to another. Legate v. Legate, 26 S. W. 251, 87 T. 243.

Courts of Texas held to have jurisdiction in habeas corpus proceedings to determine the custody of an infant. Campbell v. Storer, 101 T. 82, 104 S. W. 1047.

Rules.—A district court has power to adopt any rule of procedure in a case of which it has jurisdiction by which the facts may be brought before it to enable it to decide the case. Ashford v. Goodwin, 103 T. 491, 121 S. W. 535, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 699.

Waiver or consent.—The want of jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the suit may be set up at any time. Waiver or consent as to the jurisdiction of subject-matter, where the court does not possess it, will not give it. Fitzhugh v. Custer, 4 T. 391, 51 Am. Dec. 723; Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 315, 55 Am. Dec. 145; Evans v. Pigg, 28 T. 688;
Chap. 3)  COURTS—DISTRICT  Art. 1713

Failure of defendant to question the authority of the lower court to try and proceed with the case precludes it from raising that question on appeal. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Matador Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461.

Parties cannot, independently of constitutional or statutory provision, confer jurisdiction and authority, and where this is attempted, a judgment by the appointee is a nullity. Summerlin v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 890.

Parties may not by agreement confer jurisdiction on courts or create courts. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

Art. 1713. [1107] [1123] To grant all remedial writs.—The judge of the district court shall have authority, either in term time or vacation, to grant writs of mandamus, injunction, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari and supersedes, and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of the court. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 4. P. D. 1407.]

Remedial process in general.—Section 8, article 5, of the constitution, and the legislation thereon, do not confer upon district courts a supervisory control over justice courts, as was given by the constitutions of 1846 and 1869. Seeve v. State ex rel., 1 C. A. 495, 29 S. W. 946.

As to the power of the judge in granting remedial process, see Lyons Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Mfg. Co., 27 S. W. 100, 88 T. 468; Harrison v. Waterberry (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 430.

A court of equity, by virtue of its ancillary powers, may grant orders for the inspection of property, where it is shown to be necessary for the proper exercise of judicial functions or the attainment of justice. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1061.

Injunction.—See, also, notes under Art. 1715 and under Title 89.

District courts, as courts of general jurisdiction, are empowered by law to issue and try injunctions. Kruegcl v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 216; Burns v. Burns, 126 S. W. 333.

All that is necessary to the exercise of jurisdiction, once obtained by the issuance of an injunction, is that the subject to be embraced in the decree is something incidental to the cause of action which originally gave the court jurisdiction, or so closely connected with it as to render its determination necessary to the final decision of the whole controversy between the parties. Edrington v. Allsbrooks, 21 T. 136; Willis v. Gordon, 23 T. 243; Bourke v. Vanderlip, 22 T. 221; Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. 384; Anderson County v. Kennedy, 58 T. 616; Chambers v. Cannon, 62 T. 293; Smith v. Woods, 1 App. C. C. § 681.

An injunction can be issued in cases in which a court of chancery would have power to issue it, and without reference to the amount in controversy. Anderson County v. Kennedy, 58 T. 616; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

When the district court has obtained jurisdiction of a cause by reason of an injunction already issued by a court of equity, it retains jurisdiction for the purpose of preventing or staying the execution of the order, notwithstanding a removal of the case to another district. Ex parte Lydons, 39 S. W. 229; Ex parte Slay, 39 S. W. 230.

An injunction cannot be issued on a remand, where the right to possess the property has been determined. Ex parte Lydons, 39 S. W. 229.

A court of equity, when it is shown to be necessary for the proper exercise of judicial functions or the attainment of justice, may issue an injunction to restrain the officer or officers from enforcing a judgment or order, or to prevent the execution of it, and to restrain the defendant from selling liquor, in violation of law. Ex parte Roper, 61 C. R. 65, 134 S. W. 334.

Mandamus.—The remedy in general, see Title 89.

The amount in controversy does not control the jurisdiction of the district court, and in a proper case it would have jurisdiction by the writ of mandamus to compel the officer or commissioner’s court to approve or disapprove an official bond. Luckey v. Short, 1 C. A. 5, 20 S. W. 723.

The district court held to have jurisdiction of a mandamus proceeding to compel a county auditor to sign a warrant, regardless of the amount involved. Anderson v. Ashe, 96 T. 447, 90 S. W. 972.

District court held to have jurisdiction of petition for mandamus to commissioners’ court of county to compel entry of order that drafts be drawn on treasurer. Dennis v. Coffee, 42 C. A. 78, 91 S. W. 900.

Judge may exercise all powers, etc., in vacation, by consent of parties, except, etc.—The judges of the district courts may in vacation, by consent of the parties, exercise all powers, make all orders, and perform all acts, as fully as in term time, and may, by consent of the parties, try any case without a jury and enter final judgment, except in divorce cases. All such proceedings shall be conducted under the same rules as if done in term time; and the right of appeals and writ of error shall apply as if the acts had been done in term time. [Acts 1909, S. S., p. 352.]

Exercise of power in vacation.—The judge's sustaining a motion in vacation to strike from the record a bill of exceptions is a nullity, and cannot be considered on appeal. Ford v. Liner, 24 C. A. 383, 59 S. W. 943.

Under this article a judge of the district court may by consent of the parties make an order in vacation extending the time within which to file a statement of facts and bill of exceptions. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox, 166 T. 40, 143 S. W. 696.

The consent required by this article need not be in writing, and where a judge has made an order that he may make only by consent, an appellate court must presume that consent was given. Id.

Under this article, an order changing the venue of habeas corpus proceedings on application of the respondent, opposed by the relator only on the ground that the residence of the relator drew to it the residence of his son, for whose custody the proceedings were prosecuted, and that the venue was properly laid, is appealable, though the entire proceedings took place in vacation. Finney v. Walker (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 679.

Where the trial judge enters an order in vacation extending the time in which to file statements of facts and bills of exceptions, it should be presumed that he had the consent of the parties, although the record is silent in regard to any such consent. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 265.

An order of the judge, made in vacation, after trial and adjournment of court, incorporating certain depositions in the record, was without authority and ineffectual for that purpose. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Wilroy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 840.

Art. 1715.  [1108]  [1124] May alternate, etc.—Any judge of the district court may hold courts for or with any other district judge; and the judges of the several district courts may exchange districts whenever they may deem it expedient to do so. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 15.  P. D. 1418.]

Presiding in other districts.—A judge of one district court may preside over another district court at the request of the judge of that court, as provided by Const. art. 5, § 11, and this article. Marx v. Weir (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 621.

Under this article, the regular presiding judge of a district may vacate the bench, and the judge of another district may hold court for him. Hart v. State, 61 Cr. R. 509, 184 S. W. 1178.

Art. 1716.  [1109]  [1125] May appoint attorney to represent pauper.—The judge of the district court shall also have power to appoint counsel to attend to the cause of any party who may make affidavit that he is too poor to employ counsel to attend to the same. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 11.  P. D. 1414.]

Art. 1717.  [1110]  [1126] Other powers and authority.—In addition to the foregoing powers and jurisdiction, the district courts and the judges thereof shall have such authority as is, or may be, vested in them by law.

Jurisdiction over oil and gas wells.—See Art. 7853.

Charge to grand jury as to local option.—See Art. 5730.

Constitutional Powers.—Under article 5, section 22, of the constitution, the legislature has power to divest the civil and criminal jurisdiction of county courts and transfer the same to the district court. Mora v. State, 9 App. 406.
CHAPTER FOUR

THE TERMS OF THE DISTRICT COURT

1718. Terms of court.
1719. Terms of court in unorganized counties.
1720. Special terms may be held, when; time; jury commissioners; grand and petit juries, etc.
1721. Grand jury, selection, etc., duties.
1722. Indictment at special term, arraignment on.

Art. 1723. No new civil cases to be brought to special term.
1724. Juries, how summoned, business transacted, etc.
1725. Adjournment of term, when and how made.
1726. Extension of term of court, when, etc., effect as to term in another county.

Article 1718. [1111] [1127] Terms of court.—The several judges of the district courts shall hold the regular terms of their said courts at the county seat of each county in the district twice in each year, unless additional terms should be prescribed by law, and shall hold such special terms as may be required by law. [Const., art. 5, sec. 7.]

Authority of judges as to terms.—The time of holding court in the various districts is prescribed by article 30. When the statute allows a term of the court to remain open until the business of the term is disposed of, it is for the judge to determine when the term shall be closed; but having adjourned for the term, he cannot by an order made in vacation reopen the court. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 62 T. 185.

This article does not preclude a special judge from presiding at a special term of the court. Texas Central R. Co. v. Bender, 25 C. A. 568, 70 S. W. 891.

Art. 1719. [1112] Terms of court in unorganized counties.—Whenever any unorganized county within this state has become organized, or may hereafter become organized, there being no time fixed by law for holding district court in such counties, the district judge in whose judicial district such county is situated shall fix times to hold at least two terms of court each year in each of such counties, by a written declaration, to be forwarded by the district judge to the district clerk of the county, and by him spread on the minutes of the district court. When the times are so fixed they shall not be changed, except by an act of the legislature. [Acts of 1882, p. 4.]

Constitutionality.—This statute is constitutional. Ex parte Mato, 19 App. 112.

Art. 1720. Special terms may be held when; time; jury commissioners; grand and petit juries, etc.—Whenever it may become advisable, in the opinion of a district judge, to hold a special term or terms of the district court in any county in his district, such special or terms may be held; and such district judge may convene such special term at any time which may be fixed by him. Such district judge may appoint jury commissioners, who may select and draw grand and petit jurors in accordance with the law. Such jurors may be summoned to appear before such district court at such time as may be designated by the judge thereof; provided, that in the discretion of the district judge, a grand jury need not be drawn or impaneled. [Acts 1879, p. 42. Acts 1905, p. 116.]

Cited, Ex parte Martinez (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 655.

Constitutional and statutory provisions.—This act was evidently intended to amend the general act of Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, and especially article 1113 of said act. Formerly the judge of the district court could only call a special term for the disposition of business undischarged, while under the new act he may call a special term whenever he may deem it advisable. He can call a special term merely for the purpose of sentencing one whose conviction was affirmed by the appellate court, when the mandate was not received by the trial court before it adjourned for the term. Ex parte Young, 49 Cr. R. 636, 95 S. W. 190.

That part of articles 1113 and 1114, Rev. St. 1895, which requires an order for a special term of the district court to be made at a preceding term, is eliminated by the act of 1906, which authorizes the making of the order in vacation. Ex parte Boyd, 50 Cr. R. 308, 96 S. W. 1080.

Articles 1114, 1115, and 1116, Rev. St. 1895, were not inconsistent with this article as amended in 1906, and hence were not repealed thereby. Jowell v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 886.
The article is a valid exercise of legislative power under Const. art. 5, § 7, which declares the right to authorize the creation of regular terms of court, or the holding of more than two terms in any county for the dispatch of business. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

Power to call.—The judges cannot order a session at a time and in a manner not provided for by law. Chambers v. Hedges, 3 S. 517. Judgment cannot be pronounced except at a lawful term. Crosby v. Huston, 1 T. 244.

The regular district judge alone has power to create a special term. McAllen v. Raphael (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 769.

This act authorizes a district judge to make an order in vacation for the holding of a special term of the district court. The spreading of the order on the minutes on the convening of the special term in connection with the proceedings is sufficient. Ex parte Boyd, 50 Cr. R. 309, 98 S. W. 1080.

There is no right or discretion in selecting jury commissioners. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

Time for holding.—Term of court convened by the district judge after adjournment of the regular term, but within the time during which the regular term might have continued, held to be a special term, and hence its orders were not invalid on the ground that the regular term could not be reopened in that manner. Mayhew v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 191.

Proceedings for call.—A homicide was committed on July 22d, and relator was accused, and on July 24th the district judge convened a special term in the district court in accordance with all the necessary requirements of this article. Relator was indicted for murder by a duly organized grand jury, served with a copy of the indictment, and his trial set for July 28th, at which time neither the counsel employed for him nor counsel appointed for him by the court questioned the legality of any of the proceedings or reserved any exceptions to the denial of a continuance nor to the impanelling of the jury. He was found guilty of murder in the first degree, sentenced to death, and his motion to vacate his sentence overruled, and his counsel stated in open court that no appeal would be taken. Held that, as the proceedings were in all respects regular, no relief could be granted to appoint him under his writ of habeas corpus, and that he would be remanded to custody. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 859.

Whatever doubt there may have been on this point previous thereto, under this article and section 4 of the final title, which provides that all civil statutes of a general nature in force when that revision takes effect and which are not included therein, or thereby expressly continued in force, are thereby repealed, and which nowhere requires previous notice of the time of such special terms or public publication thereof, nor continues in force statutes relative to such notice or publication, such notice and publication are not required. Mayhew v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 191.

Cases where additional terms to be convened.—Under this act a district judge can call a special term of court merely for the purpose of sentencing one whose conviction has been affirmed by the appellate court, where the mandate was not delivered to the district court until after the regular term had expired. Ex parte Young, 49 Cr. R. 536, 96 S. W. 100.

Under this article the district judge may call a special term for the trial of new cases. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

The district judge could make orders changing the venue in criminal cases at a term called specially for that purpose and at which no other business was transacted. Mayhew v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 191.

An order changing the venue after reversal was not invalid because made at a special term, the order convening which was made before the mandate reached the district court, where it appeared that the mandate had reached that court before the order changing the venue was made. 1d.

Art. 1721. Grand jury, selection, etc., duties.—The grand jury selected, as provided for in the last preceding article, shall be duly impaneled, and shall proceed to discharge its duties as at a regular term of the district court. [Id.]

Art. 1722. Indictment at special term, arraignment on.—Any person indicted by the grand jury impaneled at a special term of the district court may be placed upon trial at such special term. [Id.]

Art. 1723. [1117] No new civil cases to be brought to special term.—No new civil cases can be brought to a special term of the district court. [Id.]

Art. 1724. [1118] Juries, how summoned, business transacted, etc.—The juries for any special term shall be summoned in accordance with the law regulating juries at regular terms of court; and at any special term all proceedings may be had in any case which could be had at any regular term of such court; and all process issued to a previous regular term or to such special term, and all orders, judgments and decrees, and all proceedings had in any case, criminal or civil, which would be lawful if had at a regular term, shall have the same force and effect; and any proceeding had may be appealed from under the same rules, regulations and limitations as provided for in appeals from regular terms of court. [Acts 1879, p. 42.]
Art. 1725.  [1119] [1128] Adjunction of term, when and how made.—Should the judge of any district court not appear at the time appointed for holding the same, and should no election of a special judge be had, the sheriff of the county, or in his default any constable of the county, shall adjourn the court from day to day for three days; and if the judge should not appear on the morning of the fourth day, and should no special judge have been elected, the sheriff or constable, as the case may be, shall adjourn the court until the next regular term thereof. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 203, sec. 9.  P. D. 1412.]

Failure of judge to appear.—The word “morning,” as used in this article, includes the period of time between sunrise and 12 o’clock m., and if the sheriff of a county fails to adjourn the court on the morning of the fourth day of the term when the district judge had not appeared during the term until that time, and the judge should appear at any time before 12 o’clock m. of the fourth day and proceed to hold the term, a previous election of a special judge on the morning of that day would not invest him with authority to preside as judge for the term. Railway Co. v. Douglas, 69 T. 694, 7 S. W. 77.

Under this article, together with articles 1678 and 1684, held that, where a special judge was duly elected, his absence for more than three days did not adjourn the term where he directed the sheriff to open court and adjourn each day until the next day. Creed v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 240.

Reopening after adjournment.—After the adjournment of a term the district judge has no power to reopen his court for any purpose. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 62 T. 185.

Art. 1726.  Extension of term of court when, etc., effect as to term in another county.—Whenever any district court shall be in the midst of the trial of any cause when the time for the expiration of the term of said court, as fixed by law, shall arrive, the judge presiding shall have the power and may, if he deems it expedient, extend the term of said court until the conclusion of such pending trial. In such case, the extension of such term shall be shown in the minutes of the court before they are signed. In case of the extension of the term of court, as herein provided, no term of court shall fail because thereof in any other county, but the term of court therein may be opened and held as now provided by law, when the district judge fails to appear at the opening of a term of court. [Acts 1909, p. 114.]

CHAPTER FIVE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE DISTRICT COURT

Article 1727.  [1120] [1129] Minutes to be read and signed.—The minutes of the proceedings of each preceding day of the session shall be read in open court on the morning of the succeeding day, except on the last day of the session, on which day they shall be read, and if necessary corrected and signed in open court by the judge. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 202, sec. 12.  P. D. 1415.]

Cited, Reasonover v. Riley Bros. (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 220.

Making and signing.—The judge’s notes upon his docket not carried into the minutes of the court are not on appeal evidence of the action of the court. Massie v. State Nat. Bank, 11 C. A. 280, 23 S. W. 797.

It is the duty of counsel to either be present at the reading of the minutes or to look over the minutes and see that all proper orders in reference to his case are made. It is no excuse that the clerk told him that such orders were made. Dement v. State, 39 Cr. R. 271, 45 S. W. 517.

No judge is authorized to sign the minutes after the adjournment of the term, nor has the clerk a right to enter the minutes after such time, nor can the judge sign and leave space for the clerk to write the minutes therein after such adjournment. Moore v. State, 45 Cr. R. 517, 51 S. W. 49.

The clerk has no authority after the court has adjourned, to change the minutes. If the minutes are incorrect, the matter should be called to the attention of the judge, by motion, and he can enter an order correcting them so as to show the truth. Harris v. Gilder, 45 C. A. 492, 106 S. W. 886.

Effect.—Under this article and article 1694, and district court rules 53 and 65 (67 S. W. xxiv, xxxv), defining the “record proper,” and providing that judgments entered on pleadings must be entered at the date when pronounced, the sustaining of special exceptions to a part of a pleading cannot be revised on appeal, where the transcript contains no judgment or record entry showing the ruling, though the bill of exceptions discloses the ruling and exceptions thereto. Daniel v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 469.

The minutes of the court, regularly entered and approved, will control over the judge's minutes on his docket or memorandum, when conflicting. Spain v. State, 59 Cr. R. 538, 128 S. W. 904.

Under this article and article 2058, held, that a statement of the judge in an explanation to a bill of exceptions to the ruling on a demurrer that the demurrer was sustained will not take the place of such showing in the record. Sowers v. Yeoman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1153.

Art. 1728. Minutes of proceedings before a special judge.—When a special judge has presided during the term, or a portion thereof, or in the trial of a particular case, he shall sign the minutes of such proceedings as were had before him.

Art. 1729. Seal of the court.—Each of the several district courts shall be provided with a seal, having engraved thereon a star of five points in the center and the words, “District Court of —— County, Texas,” the impress of which shall be attached to all process, except subpoenas issued out of such court, and shall be used to authenticate the official acts of the clerk. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 8. P. D. 1411.]

Necessity of seal.—All certificates of the clerk to be used elsewhere than in the court of which he is clerk should be authenticated by his official seal. Railroad Co. v. Brown (Sup.) 53 S. W. 1019.

While a seal is not necessary to a court of record, the term “court of record” implies that it has a seal. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533.

Art. 1730. When clerk has no seal.—When no such seal has been provided for the court, the clerk may use a scroll until a seal can be procured. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 201, sec. 8. P. D. 1411.]

SPECIAL DISTRICT COURTS

The following special courts have been created:

“Special district court of the ninth judicial district,” which shall cease to exist December 31, 1914 (Acts 1913, p. 439).

“Special district court of Grayson county,” which shall cease to exist December 1, 1914 (Acts 1913, p. 441).

“Special district court of the fifth judicial district of Texas,” which shall cease to exist January 1, 1915 (Acts 1913, S. S., p. 83).

Owing to the short duration of the above courts, the acts relating thereto have been omitted from this compilation.
TITLE 35

COURTS—COUNTY

THE COUNTY JUDGE

Art. 1731. [1124] [1133] County judge, election, qualifications, term of office.—There shall be elected in each county by the qualified voters thereof, at each general election, a county judge, who shall be well informed in the law of the state, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 15; art. 16, sec. 17. Act June 10, 1876, p. 17, sec. 1.]

Need not be lawyer.—It is not necessary that a county judge should be a lawyer.

Little v. State, 75 T. 616, 12 S. W. 965.

De facto judge.—There cannot be an officer de facto where there is no lawful office.

Daniel v. Hutcheson, 22 S. W. 278, 4 C. A. 239.

Conduct of elections.—See Art. 2910 et seq.

Fees.—See Art. 3849 et seq.

Ex officio school superintendent.—See Art. 2763 et seq.

Compensation.—See Art. 3886.

Removal.—See Art. 6030 et seq.

Condemnation proceedings.—See Art. 6507.

 Appointment of county auditor.—See Art. 1461.

May take acknowledgments.—See Art. 6797.

Art. 1732. [1125] [1134] Oath of office.—The county judge shall, before entering on the duties of his office, execute a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of his county, in a sum of not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, the amount of said bond to be determined and fixed by the county commissioners' court, payable to the treasurer of his county, conditioned that he will pay over to the person or officer entitled to receive it, all moneys that may come into his hands as county judge, within thirty days after he shall have received the same, and take the oath of office prescribed in the constitution, and the further oath required of the several members of the commissioners' court. [Acts 1883, p. 50.]

Effect of failure to execute satisfactory bond.—Where the official bond of the county judge is considered and disapproved by the commissioners' court, and the judge tenders no other bond, there is a vacancy in the office, which the commissioners are authorized to fill. Gouhenour v. Anderson, 35 C. A. 559, 81 S. W. 104.

Liability of sureties—Contest of election.—Where a county judge's election has been successfully contested the sureties on his bond are not liable to contestant for the salary and fees of office received by such county judge. Rowlett v. White, 18 C. A. 638, 46 S. W. 372.

Sureties on the bond of a county judge held not liable for fees received by him to which he would not have been entitled. Rice v. Vasmer, 51 C. A. 167, 110 S. W. 1006.

— Fees wrongfully collected—An official bond of a county judge to the county treasurer held not a common-law obligation so as to authorize an action thereon to recover fees wrongfully collected by the judge, his conduct in collecting such fees not being official. Rice v. Vosmer, 51 C. A. 197, 110 S. W. 1085.

Art. 1733. [1126] [1135] Shall keep office at the county seat.—The county judge shall keep his office at the county seat of the county and shall attend at said office from day to day. He shall not absent himself from the county or the state without the permission of the commissioners' court, to be entered on the minutes of the court, nor shall he so absent himself with such permission for a longer period than ninety days. [Acts 1883, p. 8.]

Art. 1734. [1127] [1136] May practice law in certain counties.—County judges in those counties wherein the civil or criminal jurisdiction of the county courts has been, or may hereafter be, diminished, shall have the right to practice as attorneys in all justices' and county courts, in cases wherein the courts over which they preside have neither original nor appellate jurisdiction, provided they are licensed lawyers. [Acts 1879, Extra Session, ch. 16.]

Art. 1735. [1128] [1137] Vacancy, how filled.—Any vacancy in the office of the county judge may be filled by the commissioners' court of the county in which such vacancy may occur until the next general election. [Const., art. 5, sec. 28. Act June 10, 1876, p. 17, sec. 1.]

Art. 1736. [1129] [1138] Disqualification; causes of.—No judge of the county court shall sit in any case wherein he may be interested, or where he shall have been of counsel, or where either of the parties may be connected with him by affinity or consanguinity within the third degree. [Const., art. 5, sec. 11. Act June 10, 1876, p. 19, sec. 6.]

Grounds of disqualification in general.—See notes under Art. 1755.

An action brought upon a bond executed by the county judge under the provisions of article 6251, for the hire of a county convict, the county judge is not disqualified from trying the case. Peters v. Duke, 1 App. C. C. § 394; Grady v. Rogan, 2 App. C. C. § 269.

A judge who with others had signed a subscription contract for the payment of money on certain conditions, the subscribers being severally bound, is competent to try a suit against another subscriber on the same instrument. Dicks v. Austin College, 1 App. C. C. § 1068.

A judge who holds an approved claim against an estate is disqualified from any action therein. His orders affecting the administration of the estate are coram non judge and void. Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 277.

A sale of land confirmed by the judge who purchased it is void. Frieburg v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 898, citing Templeton v. Giddings (Sup.) 12 S. W. 851; Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 279.

On a prosecution for violating the local option law, a judge is not disqualified by reason of previous public statements and actions concerning such law. Bateman v. State (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 290.

County judge held not disqualified by interest to try a suit brought by him, as nominal plaintiff, for the use of the county. McInnes v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 537.

Under Act Dec. 29, 1849 (Hart. Dig. art. 336), where the chief justice of the county court was disqualified, the estate was disqualified to act in a proceeding to sell land thereof. Moody v. Looscan (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 621.

A judge is not disqualified at a trial for keeping a disorderly house by reason of having attended a meeting of the judges of the state called to devise ways for suppressing disorderly houses. Dalley v. State (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 821.

The fact that the judge who presided at defendant's trial for violation of the local option law was a formal party to an application to contest the validity of the election under which the prosecution was maintained held not to disqualified him from sitting in the case. Truesdell v. State, 42 Cr. R. 544, 61 S. W. 835.

Acting as counsel.—A county judge is not disqualified to try a suit to rescind a sale induced by false representations, because he is the attorney for a party prosecuting a suit in the district court to recover goods sold to the same buyer on the ground that he had made false statements as to his financial condition. Meyers v. Bloom, 29 C. A. 554, 50 S. W. 271.

On a prosecution for a violation of the local option law, the judge held not disqualified from presiding at the trial. Burrell v. State (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 914.

A county judge who prepared a motion for new trial in behalf of a sheriff in an action against his justice court, was thereby disqualified to try the case on appeal to county court, even though he knew nothing about the facts and did not consider himself the sheriff's attorney. Gaines v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 553.

When county judge is attorney for a party in the district court he cannot take his client's affidavit to his inability to give security for costs in lieu of writ of error bond. Kalkilosh v. Bunting, 46 C. A. 233, 58 S. W. 389.

A county judge is not disqualified from acting in a criminal case, because he is attorney for plaintiff in a civil action against accused in the district court. McIndoo v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 285.
COURTS—COUNTY

Art. 1783

Participation in cause.—A judge is not disqualified to try a suit brought by him in his official capacity for the use of the county, on a retail liquor dealer's license. Grady v. Rongan, 2 App. C. C. § 260; Peters v. Duke, 1 App. C. C. § 304; Clack v. Taylor County, 3 App. C. C. § 201.

A county judge who in his official character has conducted proceedings for the opening of a road, and has instructed and advised that suit be brought for the recovery of money wrongfully paid for the right of way, and has employed counsel to represent the interests of the county in a suit brought in his behalf for the recovery of such money, is not thereby disqualified from trying the case. Clack v. Taylor County, 3 App. C. C. § 201.

The fact that a county judge has presided at the trial of a cause in a justice's court does not disqualified him from hearing such cause on appeal. Beckham v. Rice, 1 C. R. A., 21 S. W. 349.

The fact that a judicial officer takes the affidavit of a party, charging another with the commission of an offense, does not make him counsel in the case, so as to disqualify him for trying it. Stepp v. State, 58 Cr. R. 158, 109 S. W. 1093.

An attorney, who had advised accused to plead guilty upon a prior indictment for the same offense, held disqualified to sit as special judge in his trial under a second indictment. Durham v. State, 58 Cr. R. 143, 124 S. W. 932.

That the trial judge had theretofore been of counsel in other prosecutions against accused for violating the local option law would not disqualify him as special judge to sit in a prosecution for violating the local option law. Trinkle v. State, 59 Cr. R. 257, 127 S. W. 1060.

Relationship to party.—Application.—A judge who is cousin to a party to a suit is disqualified. T. T. R. R. Co. v. Overton, 1 App. C. C. § 555.

Collateral consanguinity is the relation subsisting among persons who descend from the same common ancestor, but not from each other. Lineal consanguinity is that relationship which exists among persons where one is descended from the other. In computing consanguinity existing between two persons, every generation in the direct course of relationship between the two parties makes a degree. Thus, brothers are related in the first degree. The mode of computing degrees of collateral relationship is to begin with the common ancestor, reckoning downwards, and the degree the two persons, or the more remote of them, is distant from the ancestor, is the degree of kindred between them. Thus, an uncle and nephew are related in the second degree. First cousins are related by affinity in the second degree.

When the great-grandfather is the common ancestor of the county judge and of a party to a suit being tried before him, the former is disqualified to try the case under Art. 5492, since the common law method of computing degrees of relationship is the rule in Texas. Baker v. McIlmoom (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 742.

The case of the great-grandmother of plaintiff's wife, who was interested in an action, and of the judge who tried the same, were the same person, the judge was disqualified by relationship within the third degree. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Looney, 42 C. R. A., 234, 35 S. W. 601.

That county judge's grandfather and plaintiff's grandmother were brother and sister shows that the judge and plaintiff were related by consanguinity within the third degree, disqualifying the former to try the case. Barnes v. Riley (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 292.

“Party,” who is.—A judge is not disqualified because he is related to the president of and stockholder in a company which is a party to the suit. Wise County Coal Co. v. Carter Bros., 3 App. C. C. § 306.

A nephew is not a party to a suit within the meaning of the statute. Winston v. Masterson, 87 T. 200, 27 S. W. 785; Patton v. Collier, 13 C. A. 544, 38 S. W. 53.

The wife of a person injured held a party to the suit, within the statute disqualifying a judge because of relationship to either of the parties within the third degree. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Looney, 42 C. A. 234, 35 S. W. 601.

The word “party” herein, and in Const. art. 5, § 11, was not limited to those named as parties in the pleadings, but included all persons interested in the subject-matter and result of the suit, including a purchaser of property sold at a guardian's sale pursuant to an order of the court. Jirou (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 452.

Incapacity cannot be waived.—Where a judge is disqualified to sit in a criminal case because of consanguinity to defendant, the consent of the parties cannot remove his incapacity. Gresham v. State, 43 Cr. R. 466, 66 S. W. 845.

Evidence—Sufficiency.—Evidence held insufficient to show disqualification of county judge. Benson v. State, 39 Cr. R. 56, 44 S. W. 167.

Objections to judge, etc.—Time of making.—Where a judge was absolutely disqualified by relationship, it was immaterial that defendant did not raise the objection until after the motion for a new trial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Looney, 42 C. A. 234, 35 S. W. 601.

Determination of objections.—Where suggestion of disqualification in a criminal case involves issue of fact, defendant should have opportunity to sustain his allegations, though the judge knows he is not disqualified. Benson v. State, 39 Cr. R. 56, 44 S. W. 167.

Effect on validity of judgment, etc.—A judgment of conviction in a criminal case before a disqualified judge is void. Woody v. State (Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 156.

Art. 1737. [1130] Special county judge may be appointed by parties.—When a judge of the county court is disqualified by any of the causes above stated, the parties may, by consent, appoint a proper person to try such case. [Acts 1893, p. 75.]

Art. 1738. [1131] Governor to appoint special county judge, etc. —Whenever a judge of the county court is disqualified to try a civil case pending in the county court, and the parties shall fail at the first term of the court to agree upon a special judge, it shall be the duty of the judge to certify to the governor that he is disqualified to try such case, and the failure of the parties to agree upon a proper person to try the same, whereupon the governor shall proceed to appoint some person, learned in the law, to try such case. But when a county judge is disqualified to act in probate matters in any cause, he shall forthwith certify his disqualification in such case to the governor, whereupon the governor shall appoint some person to act as special judge in said case, who shall act from term to term until such disqualification ceases to exist. [Id.]

Art. 1739. [1132] Governor to appoint by telegram.—Whenever any case or cases are called, or pending, in which the county judge, or the special judge chosen, as hereinbefore provided, shall be a party, or have an interest, or have been attorney, or of counsel, or otherwise disqualified from sitting in and trying the same, no transfer of, or removal of, shall be made necessary thereby; but the parties, or their counsel, shall have the right to select and agree upon an attorney of the court for the trial thereof; and, if the parties, or their attorneys, shall fail to select or agree upon an attorney for the trial of such case at or before the time it is called for trial, or if the trial of the case is pending and the county judge should become unable to act, or is absent, and a special judge is selected who is disqualified to proceed with the trial, and the parties fail to select or agree upon a special judge who is qualified at once, it shall be the duty of the county judge, or special judge presiding, to certify the fact to the governor immediately, by telegram, mail, or otherwise, whereupon the governor shall appoint a special judge, not so disqualified, to try the same. The evidence of such appointment by the governor may be transmitted by telegram, or otherwise. The special judge, after taking the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, shall proceed to the trial or disposition of such case immediately, if the trial is pending, otherwise when called or reached, as in other cases. Any special judge agreed upon or appointed to try causes shall receive the same pay for his services as is now provided by law for county judges. [Id.]

Art. 1740. [1132a] Minutes of court to show proceedings.—Whenever a special judge is agreed upon by the parties, or is appointed by the governor, for the trial of any particular cause, as above provided, the clerk shall enter in the minutes of the court as a part of the proceedings in such cause a record showing:
1. That the judge of the court was disqualified to try the cause; and
2. That such special judge [naming him] was by consent, agreed upon by the parties to try the cause; or
3. That the parties having failed to agree upon a proper person to try the cause, and the judge of the court having certified that fact to the governor, he had appointed such special judge [naming him] to try the cause; and
4. That the oath prescribed by law has been duly administered to such special judge; provided, that all cases heretofore transferred by the county court to the district court on account of the disqualification of the county judge shall be considered lawful, and the district courts to which such causes have been transferred shall retain jurisdiction thereof. [Id.]

Record of selection.—On appeal from a judgment rendered in a case tried by a special judge the record must show that he was selected and qualified as herein provided. Merrick v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 770.

Art. 1741. Special judges when and how elected; powers.—Should any county judge fail to appear at the time appointed for holding the court, or should he, during the term, be absent, or unable or unwilling to hold the court, a special county judge may be elected in the same manner as is provided for the election of a special judge of the district court, in articles 1678 to 1681, inclusive, so far as applicable, and the special county judge so elected shall have all the power and authority of the county judge while in the trial and disposition of all the cases pending in said court during the absence, inability, or such refusal of the county judge elected. And similar elections may be held, from time to time, during the term, to supply the absence, failure or inability of the county judge, or any special judge, to perform the duties of the office. [Acts 1897, p. 7.]

Constitutionality.—This act providing for the election of a special judge of the county court is constitutional. Porter v. State, 48 Cr. R. 125, 86 S. W. 768.

Eligibility and authority.—The election of a special judge to hold a term of the county court being expressly authorized by this article, a trial before such special judge is before a competent tribunal. Hooper v. State, 62 Cr. R. 105, 136 S. W. 799.

The acting county attorney of a county is not disqualified from acting as special judge in the trial of a case, pursuant to an appointment by the governor. McCamman v. Webb (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 693.

Bond.—Failure to prescribe a bond does not invalidate the election of a special county judge, under this article. Porter v. State, 48 Cr. R. 125, 86 S. W. 767.

Art. 1742. Record of election of special judge.—When a special county judge shall have been so elected, it shall be the duty of the clerk to enter upon the minutes of the court, a record such as is provided for the district court in article 1682, and such record shall have the same force and effect provided for the record of the district court in similar cases in article 1683. [Id.]

For appointment of special county judge in railroad condemnation cases, see Art. 6507.

CHAPTER TWO

THE CLERK OF THE COUNTY COURT

1744. Vacancy, how filled. 1754. Custody of records of deeds, etc.
1745. Clerk pro tem, appointed when. 1755. Custody of records, etc., of said court.
1746. County clerk pro tem, to qualify and give bond. 1756. Record of proceedings, judgments.
1747. Bond and oath. 1757. Indexes to all judgments.
1748. May appoint deputies. 1758. Other dockets, indexes, etc.
1750. Clerk shall keep office at county seat. 1760. Shall pay over jury fees and fines.
1751. Take acknowledgments and proofs of deeds for record. 1761. Shall transfer records to his successor.
1752. Issue marriage licenses and take oaths, depositions, etc. 1762. To use seal of county court.

Article 1743. [1133] [1142] County clerk, election and term of office.—There shall be a clerk of the county court for each county, who shall be elected at a general election for members of the legislature, by the qualified voters of such county, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 20; art. 16, sec. 17.]

Powers.—The clerk of a county court has authority in his official capacity to receive payment of a judgment entered in his court. Roberts v. Powell, 22 C. A. 211, 54 S. W. 643.

Fees.—See Art. 3860.
Removal of clerk.—See Art. 6228 et seq.
Conduct of elections.—See Art. 2919 et seq.

Art. 1744. [1134] [1143] Vacancy in office, how filled.—When ever a vacancy may, from any cause, occur in the office of clerk of the county court, the same shall be filled by the commissioners' court of the county, and the clerk so appointed shall give bond and qualify in the same manner as if he had been elected, and shall hold his office until the next general election, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Const., art. 5, sec. 20.]

VERN.S.CIV.ST.—62 977
Art. 1745. [1135] County clerk pro tem. appointed, when.—In all cases wherein any county clerk in this state is, or shall hereafter be, a party to any pending or proposed suit, motion or proceeding in his court, the county judge in whose court the same may be pending or proposed shall, either in term time or in vacation, on application of any person interested, or of his own motion, appoint a clerk pro tempore for the purposes of such suit, motion or proceeding. [Acts of 1887, p. 102.]

Art. 1746. [1136] County clerk pro tem. to qualify and give bond.—Any person so appointed clerk shall take the oath to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of such appointment, and shall also enter into bond, payable to the state of Texas, with one or more good and sufficient sureties, in such amount as may be required by the judge, to be approved by him, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties under such appointment. The person so appointed shall perform all the duties required by law of the clerk in the particular suit, motion or proceeding in which he may be appointed. [Id.]

Art. 1747. [1137] [1144] Bond and oath.—Each clerk of the county court shall, before entering on the duties of his office, give bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of the county, payable to the governor and his successors in office, in a sum to be fixed by the commissioners' court, not less than two thousand nor more than ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the safe keeping of the records, and the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and shall also take and subscribe the oath of office required by the constitution, which shall be indorsed upon the bond, and the bond and oath so taken and approved shall be recorded in the county clerk's office, and shall be deposited in the office of the clerk of the district court. A certified copy of such bond may be put in suit in the name of the governor for the use of the party injured, and shall not become void on the recovery of part of the penalty thereof, but may be sued on from time to time by the parties injured, until the whole amount of the penalty is recovered. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 2. P. D. 500.]

Art. 1748. [1138] [1145] May appoint deputies.—The clerk of the county court, whether elected or appointed, shall have power to appoint one or more deputies, by a written appointment under his hand and the seal of his court, which appointment shall be recorded in the office of such clerk of the county court, and shall be deposited in the office of the clerk of the district court. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 3.]

Evidence of appointment.—Under this article and articles 9–14, 2387, and 2679–3713, where a county clerk testified that he had appointed another as deputy, but that the deputation had been mislaid, a record of such deputation, which was acknowledged before a justice of the peace, is admissible in evidence. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 158 S. W. 645.

Qualifications.—A deputy clerk of a county need not be a qualified voter. Delaney v. State, 43 Cr. R. 594, 90 S. W. 642.

A woman is not prohibited from acting as deputy clerk of a county. Id.

Art. 1749. [1139] [1146] Oath and power of deputies.—Such deputies shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution. They shall act in the name of their principal, and may do and perform all such official acts as may be lawfully done and performed by such clerk in person. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 4.]

Art. 1750. [1140] [1147] Clerk shall keep office at county seat.—The several clerks of the county court shall keep their offices at the county seat of their respective counties; and, when the clerk does not reside at such county seat, he shall have a deputy or deputies residing there. [Id.]

"County seat."—Under this article and articles 1389, 1397, the "county seat" does not consist merely of the courthouse, jail, and other public buildings, but consists of the town plot of the town designated as the county seat at the time it is so designated. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 810.
Art. 1751. [1141] [1148] Take acknowledgments and proofs of deeds for record, etc.—The clerks of the county court shall have power and it shall be their duty, when applied to for that purpose, to take separate acknowledgment of married women in all cases where such acknowledgment is required or permitted by law to be taken, to the execution of any deed or other instrument in writing, or conveyance executed by them, and to take the acknowledgment of all other persons to deeds or other written instruments or conveyances and to take proof by witnesses of all such deeds, written instruments or conveyances which are required or permitted by law to be so acknowledged or proven for record; and it shall also be their duty to record, in accordance with the registration laws now or hereafter in force, all such deeds, mortgages, deeds of trust or any other instrument in writing, or judgments, which may be permitted or required by law to be recorded. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 5.]

Art. 1752. [1142] [1149] Issue marriage licenses, and take oaths, depositions, etc.—Such clerks shall also be authorized to issue all marriage licenses, to administer all oaths and affirmations, and to take affidavits and depositions to be used as provided by law in any of the courts. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1753. [1143] [1150] Ex officio clerk of commissioners' courts.—Such clerks shall be ex officio clerks of the commissioners' courts of their respective counties; and it shall be their duty to attend upon each term of said court, to issue all notices, writs, and other process required by said courts, to keep the records, books, papers and proceedings of said courts, and see that the same are properly indexed, arranged and preserved, and generally to do and perform such other duties as are, or may be, imposed on them by law as clerks of such courts. [Acts July 22, 1876, p. 52, sec. 8; May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 1.]

Compensation for new indexes part of "fees of office."—See Title 58.

Art. 1754. [1144] [1151] Have custody of records of deeds, etc. —They shall be ex officio recorders for their several counties, and as such shall record in suitable books to be procured for that purpose all deeds, mortgages and other instruments required or permitted by law to be recorded; they shall be the keepers of such record books, and shall keep the same properly indexed, arranged and preserved, and shall do and perform such other duties as are or may be by law required of them as recorders. [Act May 25, 1876, p. 10, sec. 1.]

Art. 1755. [1145] [1152] Custody of records, etc., of said court. —They shall be the keepers of the records, books, papers and proceedings of their respective county courts in civil and criminal cases and in matters of probate, and see that the same are properly indexed, arranged and preserved, and shall do and perform such other duties in that behalf as are, or may be by law, imposed on them. [Id.]

Art. 1756. [1146] [1153] Keep a record of proceedings, judgments, etc.—The several clerks of the county courts shall keep a fair record of all the acts done and proceedings had in their respective courts; they shall enter all judgments of the court, under the direction of the judge, and shall keep a record of all executions issued, and of the returns thereon in record books to be kept for that purpose. [Id. P. D. 504.]

To keep judgment records.—See Art. 6010.

Art. 1757. [1147] [1154] Index to all judgments.—It shall be the duty of the several clerks of the county courts to provide and keep in their respective offices, as part of the records thereof, full and complete alphabetical indexes of the names of the parties to all suits filed in their said courts, which indexes shall be kept in well bound books, and shall state in full the names of all the parties to such suits, which shall be indexed and cross-indexed, so as to show the name of each party under the proper letter; and a reference shall be made opposite each name to the page of the minute book upon which is entered the judgment in each case. [Act June 21, 1876, p. 25, sec. 1.]

Art. 1758. [1148] [1155] Other dockets, indexes, etc.—They shall also keep such other dockets, books and indexes as are, or may be, required by law; and all books and records and file papers, belonging to the office of county clerks in this state, shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection and examination of any citizen, who shall have the right to make copies of the same. [Acts 1905, p. 114.]

Art. 1759. [1149] [1156] Report fines and jury fees.—In addition to the reports required of the clerk of the county court under the several provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, it shall be his duty on the last day of each term of the county court to make out a statement in writing, which shall set forth all moneys received by him for jury fees and fines, with the names of the parties from whom received up to the date of such statement, and since his previous statement, if any such has been made; and also the name of each juror who has served at such term, the number of days he served, and the amount due him for such service; which statement shall be examined by the judge holding such court, and, if found to be correct, shall be approved and signed by him. Should said judge consider said statement erroneous, he may make such corrections therein as he may deem necessary, and shall then approve and sign the same; which statement, when so approved and signed, shall be recorded in the minutes of the court. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 23, sec. 24.]

Art. 1760. [1150] [1157] Shall pay over jury fees and fines.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to pay over to the county treasurer all jury fees and fines received by him to the use of the county.

Art. 1761. [1151] [1138] Shall transfer records to his successor.—Whenever a clerk of the county court shall vacate his office, he shall transfer to his successor all the records, books and papers of the office.

Art. 1762. [1153] [1160] When acting as county clerk to use seal of county court.—Where in any county a single clerk shall have been elected, as provided in article 1703, he shall, in performing the duties of clerk of the county court, use the seal of said court and authenticate his official acts as clerk of such county court.

CHAPTER THREE

THE POWERS AND JURISDICTION OF THE COUNTY COURT AND OF THE JUDGE THEREOF

Art. 1764. Exclusive original jurisdiction.
1765. Concurrent original jurisdiction.
1766. Jurisdiction denied in certain cases.
1767. Appellate jurisdiction.
1768. Coram harri to justices' courts.
1769. Motions against certain officers.
1770. To punish contempt.

Art. 1771. Both law and equity powers.
1772. To grant remedial writs.
1773. To appoint attorney for pauper.
1774. Additional authority, where expressly granted.
1775. Changed jurisdiction recognized, eminent domain retained.

Article 1763. [1154] [1161] Exclusive original jurisdiction.—The county court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in civil cases when the matter in controversy shall exceed in value two hundred dollars, and shall not exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. [Const., art. 5, sec. 16. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172, sec. 3.]

Nature and incidents of jurisdiction in general.—See notes under Title 34, Chapter 3. The constitutional amendment of 1891 relating to the judiciary did not restore to the county courts the jurisdiction that had been previously taken from them and vested in the district courts by acts diminishing the jurisdiction of the county courts of the counties as it is set forth in Muench v. Oppe, 96 S. W. 496. A county judge is not a judicial officer only. In addition to his duties as a judge, executive and ministerial functions are conferred upon him. Clark v. Finley, 97 T. 171, 54 S. W. 343.

Court of general jurisdiction.—County courts are courts of general jurisdiction within the limits prescribed by the constitution. Their judgments are entitled to the presumptions those of courts of general jurisdiction. Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 176; Richards v. Belcher, 29 S. W. 740, 6 C. A. 284.

The county court sitting in probate is a court of general jurisdiction and has the same judicial discretion within such jurisdiction as the district court has within its jurisdiction. Shook v. Journey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

Requisite amount or value in controversy.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1764, 1767. The amount in controversy, as affecting the jurisdiction, is not a matter of mere personal privilege. Land Mortgage Bank v. Yos, 29 C. A. 415, 98 S. W. 380.

Whether the amount in controversy is within the jurisdiction of the county court is to be determined by the amount put in controversy by the plaintiff. Standefer v. Altman, 89 S. W. 389, and the county court sitting in probate is a court of general jurisdiction and has the same judicial discretion within such jurisdiction as the district court has within its jurisdiction. Lyons v. Tippett (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

The county courts have exclusive jurisdiction of a money demand for $500. Waller v. Gray, 43 C. A. 406, 84 S. W. 1098.

The county court does not have original jurisdiction of a suit for the sum of $150. Ware v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 618.

A court having jurisdiction only of actions involving more than $200 held to have jurisdiction of an action on an insurance policy for $200 and the interest thereon. Allemend v. Finley (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 692.

An action held within the jurisdiction of the county court. Jordan v. Massey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 894.

In an action to foreclose a landlord's lien, where the amount of the demand was less than $200, the county court held not to have jurisdiction. Manire v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1152.

Where on appeal from the county court it appears that the amount involved is less than $200, and the transcript contains no record of a justice trial, or any record showing that the county court had jurisdiction, the appeal must be dismissed. Goodman v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 931.

If a tender of $255 was made in full for all indebtedness, and a creditor did not accept it, but sued for $250, the matter in controversy, for jurisdictional purposes, was the entire $250, and not the $25 difference. Bourn v. Gray (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 386.

The county court has jurisdiction of a garnishment against the maker of a note retaining a vendor's lien instituted by a judgment creditor of the payee of the note. Thomas v. F. & H. Builder Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 301.

— Injunction in general.—The county court has no authority to restrain the execution of a judgment of a justice for less than $200 in a suit involving less than $200. Phillips v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 567; Arnold v. McNinch & Raney, 56 C. A. 565, 121 S. W. 904; Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 609; Hillman v. Cline, 146 S. W. 726.

The county court has jurisdiction of an action for an injunction, though the amount involved is less than that required to give jurisdiction of an action for money alone. Jackson v. Finley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 427.

In suit in county court to enjoin execution on justice's judgment and to recover damages, amount of damages cannot be considered in determining jurisdiction as to injunction. Phillips v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 567.

A county court held to have jurisdiction to grant restitution, where it had erroneously issued a mandamus injunction without jurisdiction. Texas Land & Irrigation Co. v. Sanders, 101 T. 161, 111 S. W. 648.

County court has jurisdiction to enjoin the enforcement of a void judgment recovered therein, regardless of the amount of damages sought to be recovered. Womble v. Harris (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 764.

The county court, having neither original nor appellate jurisdiction of the amount in controversy, cannot enjoin a judgment of a justice for less than $100, which is manifestly the amount in controversy; there having been no actual levy, and the object of the suit being to wholly stay the operation of the judgment. Arnold v. McNinch & Raney, 56 C. A. 565, 121 S. W. 904.

The constitutional provision, limiting the jurisdiction of the county court to suits where the amount in controversy exceeds $200 and does not exceed $1,000, applies to writs of injunction. Stanley v. Barnsdall v. Derden, 57 C. A. 142, 121 S. W. 1136.

The county court has jurisdiction of a suit for injunction, where the judgment sought to be restrained was less than $200 in amount. Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 603.

The county court has no power to issue an injunction beyond the limits of its jurisdiction, as defined by the subject matter or amount in controversy, and cannot restrain the trustees of an independent school district from proceeding with the trial of charges against the superintendent of the district, which power could only be exercised by the district court under its general equity powers. Young v. Dudden (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 116.

A petition in the county court held not to state a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the county, Hall v. Freestone County, 22 C. A. 363, 57 S. W. 333; Kopper v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1018; Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle, 135 S. W. 258; Thompson v. Perryman, 141 S. W. 184; Stricklin v. Arrington, 141 S. W. 188; Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Kneey Co., 164 S. W. 317.

The petition has amended its petition to claim a larger amount than that originally demanded, the amended petition fixes the amount in controversy for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of the court. Watson v. Mirike, 25 C. A. 527, 61 S. W. 538.

Where a landlord sues to foreclose his lien on goods, and, pending the litigation, those who have purchased the goods convey them, that the claim for conversion joined in the foreclosure suit was below the sum required to give the county court jurisdiction when first set up would not affect the court's jurisdiction. Jackson v. Corley, 30 C. A. 417, 70 S. W. 570.

On a favorable ruling on a demurrer to the petition held that the cause should have been dismissed for want of jurisdiction. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Voss (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 189.

That the petition showed that the value of the mortgaged chattels was less than $200 would not deprive the county court of jurisdiction to foreclose a mortgage, where defendant did not allege and prove that the allegations of value were fraudulent and for the purpose of giving jurisdiction. McDaniel v. Staples (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 596.

In view of the allegations of the original petition, the county court held to possess jurisdiction of action, notwithstanding the allegations of amended petition. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Dykart (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 117.

An amended petition in the county court held to render ineffective allegations of the original petition showing a lien within the jurisdiction of the court. Thompson v. Perryman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 184.

In determining whether the county court has jurisdiction of a particular action, the petition only can be considered, and jurisdiction cannot be conferred by a plea in reconvention. Le Master v. Lee (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 315.

Where the petition, in an action in the county court for the value of a horse negligently killed, is based on a bona fide claim for the value of the horse killed by defendant more than 30 days before the commencement of the action, and that plaintiff presented to defendant his claim for $200 as the value of the horse, and the cause was tried without a question as to jurisdiction, the court, on appeal from a judgment for $200, would not dismiss the cause for want of jurisdiction of the county court, but would remand the cause to enable plaintiff to amend the petition and avoid the question of want of jurisdiction. O'Bannon v. Pleasants (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 719.

Amount claimed or value of property.—See, also, notes under Art. 1764.

County court to restrain the sale of property of the value of $400 under an execution issued by a justice of the peace for $125. W. & W. Mfg. Co. v. Whitener, 2 App. C. C. § 15.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a lien on county bonds as collateral, the market value determined the amount in controversy with relation to the jurisdiction. Whiley v. Houston Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 268, 67 S. W. 195.

Where by carrier seeks the recovery of property on which freight charges are due, the value of the property determines the jurisdiction of the court. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Rucker, 99 T. 552, 87 S. W. 18; id., 88 S. W. 181; 38 C. A. 929, 68 S. W. 155.

A suit seeking to prevent the wrongful taking of a piano worth $350, under color of an execution on a judgment for $15, held within the jurisdiction of the county court, within Const. art. 6, § 16. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Clay, 40 C. A. 638, 90 S. W. 882.

In an action by a judgment debtor to restrain the sheriff from selling or withholding goods seized under writ of execution, the amount in controversy held to be the value of the goods which has cognizance thereof, in cases involving more than $200, is without jurisdiction; for to vest it with jurisdiction to protect a loss of that sum only, the injunction must be sought as ancillary to some proceeding within the jurisdiction of the court. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 258.

In a suit to prevent the sale of specific property, the value of the property determines the amount in controversy in determining the jurisdiction of the court. Id.

The rule that in a suit to recover a debt and to foreclose a mortgage securing the same the matter in controversy is not only the debt, but also the security, and the value of the property mortgaged determines the jurisdiction, does not apply to the foreclosure of a lien created by statute; and hence in the foreclosure of a landlord's lien, irrespective of whether a distress warrant was applied for and sued out, that the property on which the lien was asserted was worth $500 did not give the county court jurisdiction, the amount of the demand being less than $500. Manire v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1152.

The county court is without jurisdiction of an action for a money judgment for less than $100, unless the amount is secured on property worth more than $200. Thompson v. Perryman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 184.

---

Uniting separate demands.—Where connecting carriers were charged as partners for damages to cattle shipped, which were within the jurisdiction of the county court, it was immaterial that the amount charged to one of the carriers was less than the jurisdictional amount. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lucas & King, 37 C. A. 404, 84 S. W. 1082.

Principal, interest, and attorney's fee.—See, also, notes under Art. 1764.

The provision for attorney's fees in the note is as much a part of the note as the principal, and if the attorney's fees added to the amount named in the notes makes over $200, the county court has jurisdiction. McRimmon & Co. v. Hart, 39 C. A. 474, 87 S. W. 882.

A suit under which plaintiff sought to recover an attorney's fee, being unconstitutional, though not then so adjudicated, furnished no legal basis for such a recovery, so that the amount claimed as an attorney's fee could not be considered on the question whether the amount in controversy was sufficient to give the court jurisdiction. Lemmon v. Durman (Civ. App.) 15 S. W. 795. In an action on a promissory note for $200, held that, interest being no part of the note, the county court was without jurisdiction under Const. art. 5, § 16. Le Master v. Lee (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 315.

Original amount affected by payments or reduction from other cause.—When the amount payable on a contract is reduced by payments to a sum less than $200, the petition admitting the credit, the county court does not have jurisdiction, and the judgment may be arrested and suit dismissed. Bonner v. Moore, 3 App. C. C. § 12. Also see 67 C. M. § 1; Jackson v. Dorley, 30 C. A. 417, 70 S. W. 570.

Where, in a suit on an account, items barred by limitations reduce the amount due to a sum less than $200, suit will be dismissed. Keller v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 695; Browning v. El Paso Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 386.

When plaintiff in a county court is demurrable, except as to a claim for $71.10, the cause should be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Malin & Browder v. McCutcheon, 33 C. A. 387, 76 S. W. 586.

On sustaining exceptions to items of damage for conversion reducing the account in controversy below its jurisdiction, the county court should dismiss the suit. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 800; Barrett v. Wentz, 138 S. W. 438.

Fraudulent demand.—In the absence of a finding that plaintiff fraudulently alleged the indebtedness sued for to be $210 to confer jurisdiction on the county court, that court had jurisdiction, and it was its duty to render judgment for the amount authorized by the evidence. Garth v. Childs (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 284.

Demand of damages.—County court has jurisdiction of that portion of action to enjoin justice's judgment beneath its jurisdiction which prays for damages of $1,000 for issuance of check. Sanders v. Phillips. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 72.

Where plaintiff alleged $71 actual damages for election from the room of a hotel, he was entitled to show jurisdiction in the county court by alleging exemplary damages sufficient for that purpose. McCutcheon v. Malin & Browder, 37 C. A. 246, 83 S. W. 549.

Jurisdiction—Probate.—See Art. § 3306.

As to delinquent children.—See Art. 2192.

In guardianship proceedings.—See Art. 4043.

Extension of limits of towns and villages.—See Art. 1036 et seq.

Judges.—See Art. 5192 et seq.

Judgment on appeal.—See Art. 2002.

Art. 1764. [1155] [1162] Concurrent original jurisdiction.—The county court shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the district court when the matter in controversy shall exceed five hundred and not exceed one thousand dollars, exclusive of interest. [Id.]

Has special limited jurisdiction.—The county court has a special limited jurisdiction, and its jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the suit will not be presumed, but must be affirmatively shown by the record. Bohl v. Brown, 2 App. C. C. § 540.

Amount or value in controversy.—A county court has no jurisdiction to cancel a mortgage or administer a trust where the property conveyed and the debt secured are in excess of $1,000. Cleveland v. People's Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 529.

An action for $999 as damages for negligence, with interest, held not within the jurisdiction of the county court. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Everett (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1096.

The county court has jurisdiction of an action for damages, although the amount prayed for exceeds $1,000, where the amount of the items is less than $1,000. Ainsa v. Moore (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 16.

The amount in controversy in an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle held to be within the jurisdiction of the county court. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pool & Smith, 52 C. A. 397, 114 S. W. 685.

The county court held to possess jurisdiction of an account where the balance due, after the allowance for credits, is less than $1,000. Fecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Womble (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 111; Swift v. Kelly, 123 S. W. 901; Edwards v. Mayes, 136 S. W. 517.

The county court held without power to issue injunctions beyond the limits of its jurisdiction, as defined by the subject-matter or amount in controversy. Young v. Dunney (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 116.

The county court is without jurisdiction if, at the time the original petition was filed, the total amount sued for, including interest, exceeds $1,000, and an amendment thereafter filed, seeking to recover less than $1,000, would not confer jurisdiction; but where the entire amount, including a percentage designated as interest, was less than $1,000 at the time the original suit was filed, the fact that thereafter the damage was increased by the lapse of time to a sum in excess of $1,000, as shown by amended petitions, did not deprive the county court of the power to render judgment for any sum within the limits of its jurisdiction. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 632.

Where three carriers were jointly sued in the county court for damages to live stock during transportation, and the action against one carrier was in excess of $1,000, the amount in controversy was in excess of the jurisdiction of the county court, and the entire case must be dismissed, especially in the absence of an agreement to dismiss the action as against such carrier. Herrington v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 983.

That a cause of action for a personal judgment only, against one defendant for conversion of a part of mortgaged chattels of a stated value, which was within the limits of the county court's jurisdiction, was joined with another cause of action against another defendant on the note and for foreclosure of the mortgage, of which latter cause the county court did not have jurisdiction, because the petition failed to allege the total value of the mortgaged property, did not deprive such court of jurisdiction to render a

Whether the amount in controversy is within the jurisdiction of the court depends on the amount as claimed by plaintiff in his original petition, unless it appears therefrom that he has improperly sought to give jurisdiction where it did not belong. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 948.

Amount claimed or value of property.— See notes under Art. 1763.

Where plaintiff alleges value of goods seized at $1,000, and claims less damages, county court is not deprived of jurisdiction by proof that goods were worth more. Coleman v. Bell (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 155.

Such a sum within the court's jurisdiction should not be dismissed because plaintiff seeks to enforce a lien therefor on property valued at a sum in excess of the jurisdiction, but the cause should be retained to try the issue as to the debt. Jecker v. Phytides, 27 C. A. 410, 65 S. W. 1129.

In an action to recover specific personality alleged to be worth $1,000, the county court, having required its delivery to plaintiff, could subsequently give judgment against plaintiff for the value of the property on determining that such value exceeded its jurisdiction. Texas Land & Irrigation Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 568.

Since Arts. 5644-5649, conferring a lien for labor performed in the drilling of oil wells, do not limit the lien to so much of the property of the owner as may be necessary to satisfy the debt, but include the entire property connected with the well, a lien claimant under such act could not confer jurisdiction on the county court by only seeking to impose a lien on a part of the property sufficient to satisfy the debt, when the entire property connected with the well and subject to the lien exceeded $1,000 in value, and hence the amount in controversy in such action was the value of all the property, so that the county court had no jurisdiction of the subject-matter, and the pendency of a suit to foreclose the lien in such court could not be pleaded in abatement of a suit on the same facts for the same relief in the district court, though no order of dismissal had been entered in the county court proceeding. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 949.

Principal, interest, and attorney’s fees.— See notes under Art. 1763.

When the ten per cent. attorney’s fees, added to the principal of a note upon which suit is brought, amount in excess of the jurisdiction of the county court, the court has no jurisdiction of the action. Moore v. Fox, 4 App. 500.

In action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle, the trial court held not ousted of jurisdiction because delay of trial caused the damages and interest at time of trial to exceed the jurisdictional amount. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Dolan (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 933.

County court held to have jurisdiction where amount claimed, including interest to commencement of suit, did not exceed $1,000, though at time of filing of amended petition amount claimed, including interest, exceeded $2,000. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Underwood, 190 T. 284, 69 S. W. 92, 125 Am. St. Rep. 986.

In an action for damages, the interest forms a part of the damages, and if the amount of the damages and interest exceed the jurisdictional amount the court has no jurisdiction of the action. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Flory (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1216.

The county court has no jurisdiction of an action for damages in delay for furnishing cars to the amount of $987.43, since the damages with legal interest would exceed $1,000. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Womble (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 111.

The interest recoverable on the amount of the damages for injuries to live stock during transportation from the date of the injuries to the date of the commencement of the action is recoverable as damages, and cannot be excluded in determining the jurisdiction of the county court. Herrington v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 893.

A suit for $949, in which a counterclaim was pleaded for $1,000, held not to exceed the jurisdiction of the county court, of $1,000. Walcott v. McNew (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 815.

A counterclaim held not beyond the jurisdiction of the county court, where the amount sought to be recovered after deducting plaintiff’s claim was within such jurisdiction. Eule v. Dorn, 41 C. A. 520, 92 S. W. 828.

In an action on certain notes in a county court, that defendant pleaded payment by delivery of value exceeding $1,000 did not defeat the jurisdiction of the court to determine whether an agreement for the delivery had been made and the rice delivered. Id.

The county court was without jurisdiction of a cross-action for $750 in a suit by plaintiff to recover $550. Johnson v. W. H. Goolshby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883.

In an action in county court it was error to instruct the jury to find against defendants on their plea in reconvention claiming an amount beyond the jurisdiction given the causes of action. Smith v. Colquitt (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 316. Smith v. Colquitt (App.) 63 S. W. 316.

Exemplary or special damages.— Where plaintiff claimed that defendants had converted to their use two horses of value of $300, and that he had suffered in his credit $500, and had been put to $45 expense, and prayed for exemplary and actual damages, the cause of action embraced the value of the horses as well as damages for deprivation of their use, and was beyond the jurisdiction of the county court. Farlin & Orendorf Imp. Co. v. Clements, 54 C. A. 356, 117 S. W. 495.
Chap. 3) COURTS—COUNTY  Art. 1766

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1763.

The amount in controversy claimed in the petition determines the jurisdiction, unless there is evidence of a fraudulent or improper attempt to give jurisdiction. Ross v. McGuffin, 2 App. C. C. § 458.

Items added to complaint by way of amendment held not to have deprived the court of jurisdiction. Michael v. Texas Co. of K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 95 Tex. 76, 65 S. W. 34.

Where the court had jurisdiction over the amount of damages claimed in an original petition, which amount, as claimed in an amended petition, was raised by accrued interest above the court’s jurisdiction, the defect could be cured by amendment. San Antonio & P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett, 42 Tex. App. 458, 66 S. W. 474.

Petition considered, and held to ask damages exceeding $1,000, and the county court had no jurisdiction. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 847.

In an action to recover earnest money paid on a contract for the purchase of land, a plea to the jurisdiction involved the subject-matter and subject-matter of the suit were beyond the jurisdiction of the county court held without merit. Davis v. Fant (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 193.

A county court may retain jurisdiction to render judgment, although an amended pleading by reason of including interest since beginning the action as damages asked judgment for more than $1,000. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 453.

The county court having jurisdiction only up to $1,000, a proper pleading in an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage should allege the value of the property in controversy so as to show that the court has jurisdiction. Mangum v. Buffalo Pitts Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1196.

While ordinarily the conversion of notes creates a liability, in the absence of pleading and proof showing a lesser value, for the face value thereof, an allegation of a lesser value than the aggregate sum of the notes sued for will control as to jurisdiction and recovery, and where the petition in an action for the conversion of notes alleged that plaintiff did not have the notes, or the maker thereof, that they aggregated about $1,200, that defendant became liable thereby to plaintiff to the value of said notes to the plaintiff’s damage in the sum of $1,000, and the answer that an alleged set off was valuable to the aggregate sum of $300, and that it was unable to collect the notes remaining unpaid, aggregating the sum of $476.33, and which it tendered to plaintiff, it was an allegation that the value of the notes was the amount collected, which was within the jurisdiction of the county court. Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. City Natl. Bank, 164 Tex. 187, 132 S. W. 253.

Though a complaint alleged that each of several defendants was liable in the sum of $1,000, it is not insufficient as showing that the amount involved is in excess of the jurisdiction of the county court where the ad damnum clause alleged damages of $1,000 only. Hohler v. Ben. Ass’n No. 3 v. Wester (Civ. App.) 146 Tex. 1072.

It is essential to the validity of a judgment that the pleadings affirmatively show that the trial court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Ranyer (Civ. App.) 154 Tex. 317.

Where a petition alleged taking of timber worth $384.99 and mingling with defendant’s timber, and sought a recovery of the title and possession of the whole, but did not allege the value of defendant’s timber with which it was mingled, a plea to the county court’s jurisdiction, on the ground that the petition showed the value to exceed $1,000, should not have been sustained. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 337.

Injunctions.—See notes under Art. 1763.

Art. 1765. [1156] [1163] Forfeited bonds in criminal cases.—The county court shall also have jurisdiction to enter final judgment on all forfeited bonds taken in criminal cases pending in said court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172, sec. 3.]

Art. 1766. [1157] [1164] Jurisdiction denied in certain cases.—The county court shall not have jurisdiction of any suit to recover damages for slander or defamation of character, nor of suits for the recovery of lands, nor of suits for the enforcement of liens upon land, nor of suits in behalf of the state for escheats, nor of suits for divorce, nor of suits for the forfeiture of the charters of incorporations and incorporated companies, nor of suits for the trial of the right to property levied on by virtue of any writ of execution, sequestration or attachment, when the property levied on shall be equal to or exceed in value five hundred dollars. [Const. art. 5, sec. 16; art. 5, sec. 8. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172.]

Involving title to land.—When title or the possession of real estate is involved, the county court has no jurisdiction. When the issues are not dependent on the question of title, but on other rights, such as the character of possession of real estate, the county court has jurisdiction. When the contest is over other matters incidentally dependent upon the question of title, the county court has jurisdiction. Porter v. Porter, 2 App. C. C. § 432.

The county court does not have jurisdiction of a suit to remove a cloud or incumbrance upon title to land (Bohl v. Brown, 2 App. C. C. § 541; Haney v. Millikin, 2 App. C. C. § 568; F.F. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 2 App. C. C. § 568; G. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Graves, 1 App. C. C. § 579; or breaking into a close and cutting timber, etc. (Brown v. Brown, 3 App. C. C. § 343.)
§ 82; or removing lumber from a lot on which the owner was about to build. Hatch v. All. 35 App. C. C. § 269.

Where part of a land certificate was located after the commencement of a suit in the county court to establish title thereto, the court lost jurisdiction as to the located land. Myers v. Jones, 25 S. W. 562, 4 C. A. 350.

In an action of trespass the court may pass upon the title to land when necessary to a decision of the case. Melvin v. Chancey, 23 S. W. 241, 8 C. A. 252.

A suit to recover the value of gravel taken from the land of plaintiff and for the damages done to the land is within the jurisdiction of the county court, when the amount of damages claimed does not exceed its jurisdiction. City of Victoria v. Schott, 29 S. W. 680, 9 C. A. 332.

The county court has jurisdiction of actions to recover damages for injuries to crops such as to tearing stock in upon the hay-fields, growing crops, etc. Beckham v. Bur­ney (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 718.

In a suit to recover rent, within the county court's jurisdiction, that proof of plain­tiff's title is requisite does not affect the court's jurisdiction. Kalteyer v. Wipif (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 207.

Action to recover purchase money paid for land and to cancel indebtedness held not to directly involve title to land, and within jurisdiction of county court. Hollis v. Finks, 34 C. A. 12, 78 S. W. 555.

The county court has jurisdiction in a suit in which the title to land is only inci­dentally involved in determining the question before it. Henslee v. Boyd, 45 C. A. 494, 107 S. W. 123.

An action to recover $250 and to enjoin defendants from cutting and removing tim­ber does not involve the title to land, and is within the jurisdiction of the county court. Springer v. Collins (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 758.

A contract granting certain rights in oil land held a conveyance of an interest in land, so that the law court had no jurisdiction to enjoin part of the contract requiring the grantee to deliver to the grantor a portion of all the oil to be produced. Staley & Barnsdall v. Derden, 57 C. A. 142, 121 S. W. 1136.

Action to recover title and possession of logs cut and removed from plaintiff's land held to be within the jurisdiction of the county court, not involving title of title to land or a trespass thereon. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 337.

—Breach of warranty of title.—County court has jurisdiction of a suit for breach of warranty of title to land. Williams v. Truitt, 1 App. C. C. § 518; Patrick v. Laprelle (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 552.

—Land fraudulently conveyed by trustee.—County court held to have jurisdiction of action to recover value of land fraudulently conveyed by trustee to innocent pur­chaser. Espey v. Boone, 33 C. A. 83, 75 S. W. 570.

Execution on land.—Machinery attached to real estate is a mova­ble fixture, and a lien therein can be enforced in the county court. Ames Iron Works v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 369.

The county court has no jurisdiction to determine whether a judgment of the United States district court created a lien upon the land of the judgment debtor located within such judicial district. Frichott v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 164.

The county court has no jurisdiction to determine the validity of a lien upon land created by the levy of an execution. Id.

The county court has jurisdiction to cancel an indebtedness, evidenced by a note secured by a vendor's lien, the amount of which is within its jurisdiction. Hollis v. Finks, 34 C. A. 12, 78 S. W. 555.

If the value of the property covered by a lien exceeds the court's jurisdiction, the court has no power to foreclose the lien. W. R. Kelley & Co. v. J. E. Stevens & Sons (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 94.

The county court held to possess jurisdiction to render judgment for a debt and fore­closure of a chattel mortgage. Edwards v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 510.

Under Art. 6540, giving a lien upon a railroad and its equipment for labor, etc., in the construction, operation, and repair of "a railroad, locomotive, car or other equip­ment of a railroad," where plaintiff sought a lien only upon the equipment, a county court was not deprived of jurisdiction on the ground that the statutory lien is given on real estate. Concho, S. S. & L. V. Ry. Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 345.

Trial of right of property.—This statute, and not article 7778, controls the jurisdiction of the county court in actions for the trial of the right of property. Erwin v. Blanka, 60 T. 583. See notes under Title 7778.

Determination of jurisdictional questions.—Where an answer sets up a want of ju­risdiction in the county court to foreclose a mortgage, alleging that the mortgaged prop­erty is a part of the homestead, the court has power to hear evidence and determine its authority to try the matter; it is not material in such a case whether the facts showing want of jurisdiction appear in the answer or in the petition. Gentry v. Bowser, 21 S. W. 860, 2 C. A. 388.

Art. 1767. [1158] [1165] Appellate jurisdiction.—The county court shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil cases over which the justices' courts have original jurisdiction, when the judgment of the court appealed from or the amount in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, exclusive of costs. [Const. art. 5, sec. 16. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 172, sec. 3.]

Appellate Jurisdiction.—Limited by Jurisdiction of Justice.—Where a case is appealed from a justice to the county court, the latter is without jurisdiction unless the justice had jurisdiction. Barker v. Chisholm, 3 T. 158; Davis v. Stewart, 4 T. 255; Able v. Blandfield, 6 T. 268; Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 317, 58 Am. Dec. 145; Neil v. State, 986

Where complainants were not legally served and made parties to a suit against them in the justice's court, the county court acquired no jurisdiction by reason of their appeal to that court, or by the issuance and service of citation on them by that court. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 424. — Amount in controversy.—When the suit is for less than $20, and the defendant by plea in reconvention claims damages for a greater amount, the county court has appellate jurisdiction. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Taquard, 3 App. C. C. § 250. When the suit is to foreclose a lien on property of greater value than $20, an appeal may be taken from a judgment for less than $20. Smith v. Giles, 65 T. 341. The county court has no jurisdiction, on appeal from justice, of proceeding against a party, when brought into a pending action, to recover a judgment against him for less than the sum of which the court has original jurisdiction. Land Mortgage Bank v. Voss, 29 C. A. 11, 65 S. W. 732. Where plaintiff sued for $20 and defendant pleaded in reconvention a claim for $110, but offered no evidence in support thereof, and judgment was rendered for $20; Held that defendant abandoned his claim and on appeal to county court the latter had no juris­diction because the matter in controversy was beneath its jurisdiction. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 953. Where the original cross-action filed by defendant in the justice's court did not involve more than $200, the county court had, on appeal, jurisdiction to entertain an amended pleading asserting the cross-action. Miller v. Burrow (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 974. — Pleading.—Where the petition in a justice's court case was amended on appeal so as to claim an amount in excess of the appellate jurisdiction of the county court, such defects were cured by a subsequent amendment reducing the amount. Miller v. Neupauer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 974. The allegation in an amended petition in an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle, filed in the county court on appeal from a justice's court held to oust the jurisdiction of the county court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Crenshaw, 51 C. A. 169, 113 S. W. 117. — Enjoining judgment.—The county court rendering a judgment on appeal from a justice's court has alone issue to allow an injunction enjoining the judgment which is not void. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 354. — Foreclosing a laborer's lien.—County court held to have no jurisdiction to foreclose a laborer's lien on a railroad and its property on an appeal from a justice's court. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104. — Proceedings on appeal.—See notes under Title 41, Chapter 17.

Art. 1768. [1159] [1166] Certiorari to justices' courts.—The county court shall also have power to hear and determine cases brought up from the justices' courts by certiorari under the provisions of the title relating thereto.

Art. 1769. [1160] [1167] Motions against sheriffs and other officers.—The county court shall also have power to hear and determine all motions against sheriffs and other officers of the court for failure to pay over moneys collected under the process of said court, or other defalcation of duty in connection with such process. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 33, sec. 26.]

Art. 1770. [1161] [1168] To punish contempts.—The county court shall also have power to punish, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment not exceeding three days, any person guilty of contempt of such court. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 6. P. D. 1406.]

Contempt in general.—See notes under Art. 1768.

Art. 1771. [1162] [1169] Both law and equity powers.—Subject to the limitation stated in this chapter, the county court is authorized to hear and determine any cause which is, or may be, cognizable by courts, either of law or equity, and to grant any relief which could be granted by said courts, or either of them. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 7.]

Setting aside execution sale.—The county court has jurisdiction of a motion to set aside an incomplete sale of lands under an execution on a judgment of such court. State Nat. Bank v. Hathaway (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 525.

Art. 1772. [1163] [1170] To grant remedial writs.—The county judge shall have authority, either in term time or in vacation, to grant writs of mandamus, injunction, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari and supersedeas, and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of the court. [Constr. art. 5, sec. 16. Act June 16, 1876, p. 19, sec. 5.]

Mandamus.—Mandamus will not be granted where an officer may exercise judgment and discretion. Orr v. Davis, 30 S. W. 249, 9 C. A. 625.

A county court has jurisdiction to compel a justice of the peace by mandamus to serve upon transcript in order that an appellant may perfect his appeal; such jurisdiction being necessary to the enforcement of that court's jurisdiction. Hart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 520.

Injunction.—Amount in controversy, see notes under Arts. 1763, 1784. On appeal from justice court, see Art. 1767.

The county court may issue the writ whenever its appellate jurisdiction has attached, and the writ is necessary for its enforcement. Fitzpatrick v. Small, 1 App. C. C. § 1140.

County court cannot, by injunction, restrain the obstruction of a road, the land upon which it is located being claimed by the defendant, the purpose of the suit being to establish a servitude on the land. Gascaamp v. Drews, 2 App. C. C. § 95.

The jurisdiction of the county court to issue the writ of injunction is a general jurisdiction. The power is not confined to cases in which the writ is necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of the court as Const. art. 5, § 16; Art. 1772: Dean v. State, 33 T. 590, 30 S. W. 1047, 31 S. W. 185; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blankenbeckler, 13 C. A. 249, 35 S. W. 331. For contrary rulings see Carlisle v. Coffee, 59 T. 391; Moody v. Cox, 54 T. 625; McLain v. Dennis, 1 App. C. C. § 1209; Grant v. Quinn, 1 App. C. C. § 733.

A county court, having no jurisdiction to try the issues of homestead or whether the property sought to be sold on execution against one is the separate estate of his wife, cannot issue injunction against the sale on the ground of the property being a homestead or separate estate of the wife. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

Art. 1773. [1164] [1171] To appoint attorney for pauper.—The county judge shall also have power to appoint counsel to attend to the cause of any party who may make affidavit that he is too poor to employ counsel to attend to the same. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 11. P. D. 1414.]

Art. 1774. [1165] [1172] Additional authority where expressly granted.—In addition to the foregoing powers and jurisdiction, the county court and the county judge shall have such authority as is or may be vested in them by law.

Art. 1775. [1166] Changed jurisdiction recognized; eminent domain retained.—Where the jurisdiction of the county court of the several counties of this state has been taken away, altered or changed by existing laws, the same shall remain as established, until otherwise provided by law; provided, however, that jurisdiction shall obtain in all matters of eminent domain over which the county courts have jurisdiction by the general laws of this state. [Acts of 1885, p. 77.]

For Jurisdiction of county court to adjudicate heirship, see Chapter 25, Title 52.

Constitutional and statutory provisions.—Const. art. 5, § 22, declares that the legislature shall have power by local or general law to increase, diminish, or change the civil or criminal jurisdiction of county courts, and that in case of such change the legislature shall also conform the jurisdiction of such courts to such change of other than that the legislature did not exceed its authority in conferring on county courts jurisdiction in eminent domain proceedings, and that such jurisdiction was not taken away nor affected by Act 26th Leg. c. 151, diminishing the jurisdiction of county courts. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Atchison, Topeka & Vance, 104 T. 90, 153 S. W. 1048.

The county court of a county in which is situated a part of the right of way of the railroad as contemplated for the use of a telegraph company, has jurisdiction to condemn other parts of such right of way in other counties for the use of the telegraph company. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co., 13 C. A. 502, 45 S. W. 179.

The county court of either of several counties through which a railroad runs has jurisdiction to condemn a right of way for a railroad's entire right of way. Postal Tel. & Cable Co. v. T. & N. O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 912.

CHAPTER FOUR

THE TERMS OF THE COUNTY COURT FOR CIVIL AND PROBATE BUSINESS

Art. 1778. [1167] Terms of the county court.—The county court shall hold at least four terms for both civil and criminal business annually as may be provided by the legislature, or by the commis-ioners' court of the county under authority of law, and such other terms each year as may be fixed by the commissioners' court; provided, the commissioners' court of any county having fixed the times and number terms of the county court, shall not change the same again until the expiration of one year. Said court shall dispose of probate business either in term time or vacation under such regulation as may be prescribed by law. Prosecutions may be commenced in said courts in such manner as is, or may be, provided by law, and a jury therein shall consist of six men. Until, or unless otherwise provided, the terms of the county court shall be held on the first Monday in February, May, August and November, and may remain in session three weeks. [Const.
amendment, 1883, art. 5, sec. 29.]

Art. 1777. [1168] Commissioners' court may fix.—The county commissioners’ courts of the several counties in this state may, at a regular term thereof, by an order entered upon the records of said courts, provide for more terms of the county court for the transaction of civil, criminal and probate business, and fix the times at which each of the four terms required by the constitution, and the terms exceeding four, if any, shall be held, not to exceed six annually, and may fix the length of said terms; provided, that, when the commissioners' court shall have fixed the number of terms of the county court by an order entered of record, said court shall not change the number of terms of the county court for one year from the date of entry of the original order fixing the terms of the county court. [Acts of 1885, p. 53.]

Commissioners' courts may fix terms.—The commissioners' courts have the authority to regulate the times of holding the terms of the county courts in their respective counthies within the limitation prescribed by article 5, section 29, of the constitution. Hughes
v. Doyle, 51 T. 421, 44 S. W. 64.

Art. 1778. [1169] Adjournment of term when county judge fails to appear.—Should the county judge fail to appear at the time appointed for holding the county court, and should no election of a special judge be had, the sheriff of the county, or, in his default, any constable of the county shall adjourn the court from day to day for three days; and, if the judge should not appear on the fourth day, and should no special judge have been appointed, the sheriff or constable, as the case may be, shall adjourn the court until the next regular term thereof.
CHAPTER FIVE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE COUNTY COURT

Art. 1779. Minutes of the court to be read and signed.—The minutes of the proceedings of each preceding day of the session shall be read in open court on the morning of the succeeding day, except on the last day of the session, on which day they shall be read, and, if necessary, corrected, and signed in open court by the county judge. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 12.]

Art. 1780. Minutes of proceedings before special judge.—When a special county judge has presided during the term, or a portion thereof, he shall sign the minutes of such of the proceedings as were had before him.

Art. 1781. Seal of the court.—Each of the several county courts shall be provided with a seal, having engraved thereon a star of five points in the center, and the words, "County Court of County, Texas," the impress of which shall be attached to all process, except subpoenas, issued out of such court, and shall be used to authenticate the official acts of the clerk and of the county judge, where he is authorized or required to use a seal of office. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 23, sec. 22. P. D. 1411.]

Necessity of attaching seal.—Affidavit of witness to will held not invalidated by failure of clerk administering oath to attach his seal. Russell v. Oliver, 78 T. 11, 14 S. W. 264; Hymer v. Holyfield (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 722.

Failure to attach seal cured.—Neglect of county clerk to affix his seal to the jurat of an application for a writ of certiorari held cured. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Edgewood Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1075.

Art. 1782. When clerk has no seal, may use scroll.—When no such seal has been provided for the court, the clerk may use a scroll until a seal can be procured. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 12. P. D. 1411.]

Art. 1783. Probate day to be designated.—On the first day of the term for civil business, the county court shall, by an order entered on the minutes, designate a day for taking up the probate business; and the probate docket shall thereupon be called in its regular order, unless otherwise ordered by the court. [Act June 16, 1876, p. 22, sec. 20.]

Art. 1784. Proceedings when case is transferred to the district court.—Whenever a cause shall be transferred from the county court to the district court, the clerk shall immediately make out a transcript of all the proceedings had in said cause in the county court, and shall transmit the same, duly certified as such, together with a bill of the costs which have accrued in said court, and all the original papers in the cause, to the clerk of the district court. [Act June 10, 1876, p. 19, sec. 6.]
Art. 1785. [1176] Jurisdiction taken away; judgments to be transferred.—It shall be the duty of the clerks of the county courts of the several counties in this state, where the civil and criminal jurisdiction, or either, of the county court has been transferred to the district court, to make out a certified copy of all judgments remaining unsatisfied, which have been rendered in civil or criminal cases in the county court, and transmit the same to the clerk of the district court of their respective counties. [Acts 1879, p. 10.]
CHAPTER ONE

COUNTY COURT OF DALLAS COUNTY, AT LAW

Art. 1786. Creation of county court of Dallas county, at law.—There is hereby created a court to be held in Dallas county, to be called the "County Court of Dallas County, at Law." [Acts 1907, p. 115, sec. 1.]

Art. 1787. Jurisdiction of said court.—The county court of Dallas county, at law, shall have jurisdiction in all matters and causes, civil and criminal, original and appellate, over which, by the general laws of the state, the county court of said county would have jurisdiction, except as provided in article 1788; and all cases pending in the county court of said county, other than probate matters, and such as are provided in said article 1788, shall be, and the same are hereby, transferred to the county court of Dallas county, at law; and all writs and process, civil and criminal, herefore issued by or out of said county court, other than those pertaining to matters over which by said article jurisdiction remains in the said county court of Dallas county, shall be, and the same are hereby, made returnable to the county court of Dallas county, at law. The jurisdiction of the county court of Dallas county, at law, and of the judge thereof, shall extend to all matters of eminent domain, of which jurisdiction has been herefore vested in the county court, or in the county judge; but this provision shall not affect the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court, or of the county judge of Dallas county, as the presiding officer of such commissioners' court, as to roads, bridges and public highways, and matters of eminent domain which are now within the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court, or the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1788. Jurisdiction retained by county court of Dallas county.—The county court of Dallas county shall retain, as herefore, the general jurisdiction of a probate court; it shall probate wills, appoint guardians of minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, grant letters testamentary and of administration, settle accounts of executors, administrators and guardians; transact all business appertaining to deceased persons, minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, including the settlement, partition and distribution of estates of deceased persons; and shall apprentice minors as provided by law; and the said court, or the judge thereof, shall have the power to issue writs of injunction, mandamus, and all writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said court, and also to punish contempts under such provisions as are, or may be, provided by general law governing county courts throughout the state; but said county court of Dallas county shall have no other jurisdiction, civil or criminal. The county judge of Dallas county shall be the judge of the county court of Dallas county. All ex officio duties of the county judge shall be exercised by the said judge of the county court of Dallas county, except in so far as the same shall, by this chapter, be committed to the judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1789. Terms of county court of Dallas county, at law; practice, etc.—The terms of the county court of Dallas county, at law, and the practice therein, and appeals and writs of error therefrom, shall be as prescribed by laws relating to county courts. The terms of the county court of Dallas county, at law, shall be held as now established for the terms of the county court of Dallas county, until the same may be changed in accordance with the law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1790. Judge to be elected when, etc.; qualifications; term.—There shall be elected in said county, by the qualified voters thereof, at each general election, a judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, who shall be well informed in the laws of the state, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1791. Bond and oath of judge.—The judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, shall execute a bond and take the oath of office, as required by the law relating to county judges. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1792. Special judge elected or appointed, how.—A special judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, may be appointed or elected as provided by laws relating to county courts and to the judges thereof. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1793. May issue writs.—The county court of Dallas county, at law, or the judges thereof, shall have power to issue writs of injunction, mandamus, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari and supersedeas, and all writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said court, and to issue writs of habeas corpus, in cases where the offense charged is within the jurisdiction of said court, or of any other court or tribunal inferior to said court. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 1794. Clerk of; seal; sheriff to attend when, etc.—The county clerk of Dallas county shall be the clerk of the county court of Dallas county, at law. The seal of the said court shall be the same as that provided by law for county courts, except that the seal shall contain the words, “County Court of Dallas County, at Law;” the sheriff of Dallas county shall, in person or by deputy, attend the said court when required by the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1795. Appointment of jury commissioners; selection, etc., of juries.—The jurisdiction and authority now vested by law in the county court for the appointment of jury commissioners and the selection and service of jurors shall be exercised by the county court of Dallas county, at law. [Id. sec. 10.]
Art. 1796. Vacancy in office of judge, how filled.—Any vacancy in the office of the judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, may be filled by the commissioners' court of Dallas county until the next general election. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1797. Fees and salary of judge.—The judge of the county court of Dallas county, at law, shall collect the same fees as are now established by law relating to county judges, all of which shall be by him paid monthly into the county treasury; and he shall receive an annual salary of three thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, to be paid out of the county treasury by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1798. Salary of county judge of Dallas county.—The county judge of Dallas county shall hereafter receive from the county treasury, in addition to the fees allowed him by law, such a salary, for the ex officio duties of his office, as may be allowed him by the commissioners' court, not less than twelve hundred dollars per year. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER TWO

COUNTY COURT OF TARRANT COUNTY FOR CIVIL CASES

Art. 1799. Creation of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. — There is hereby created a court to be held in Tarrant county, Texas, to be known and designated as the "County Court of Tarrant County for Civil Cases." [Acts 1909, p. 48, sec. 1.]

Art. 1800. Jurisdiction of said court.—The county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall have jurisdiction of all civil matters and causes, original and appellate, over which by the general laws of the state of Texas, the county court of said county would have jurisdiction, except as provided in article 1801; and all civil cases pending in the county court of said county, other than probate matters, and such as are provided in said article, shall be, and the same are hereby, transferred to the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases; and all civil writs and process heretofore issued by, or out of, said county court, other than those pertaining to matters over which by said article jurisdiction remains in the county court of Tarrant county, [shall be] and the same are, returnable to the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. The jurisdiction of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, and of the judge thereof, shall extend to all matters of eminent domain of which jurisdiction has heretofore vested in the county court of Tarrant county, or the judge thereof; but this provision shall not affect the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court or of the county judge of Tarrant county as the presiding officer of said court as to roads, bridges and public highways, and matters of eminent domain which are now within the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court or of the judge of the county court of Tarrant county. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 1801. Jurisdiction retained by county court of Tarrant county. —The county court of Tarrant county shall retain, as heretofore, the jurisdiction of all criminal cases, its jurisdiction as a juvenile court, its jurisdiction in matters pertaining to liquor licenses, forfeitures and bonds, the general jurisdiction of a probate court; it shall probate wills, appoint guardians of minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, grant letters testamentary and of administration, settle accounts of administrators, executors and guardians, transact all business pertaining to deceased persons, minors, idiots, lunatics, persons non compos mentis, and common drunkards, including the settlement, partition and distribution of estates of deceased persons, and shall apprentice minors as provided by law. The county judge of Tarrant county shall be the judge of the county court of Tarrant county; and all ex officio duties of the county judge shall be exercised by the said judge of the county court of Tarrant county, except in so far as the same shall, by this chapter, be committed to the judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1802. Both courts may issue writs. —Both the said county court of Tarrant county and the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, or either of the judges thereof, shall have the power to issue writs of injunction, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari, supersedeas and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said courts, and also power to punish for contempts under such provisions as are, or may be, provided by the general laws governing county courts throughout the state, and to issue writs of habeas corpus in cases where the offense charged is within the jurisdiction of said courts, or of any court or tribunal inferior to said courts. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 1803. Terms, practice, etc., of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. —The terms of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, and the practice therein, and appeals and writs of error therefrom, shall be as prescribed by law relating to the county courts. The terms of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall be held not less than four times each year; and the commissioners' court of Tarrant county shall fix the time at which said court shall hold its terms, until the same may be changed according to law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1804. Judge to be elected when, etc.; qualifications; term; vacancies how filled. —At each general election there shall be elected by the qualified voters of Tarrant county a judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, who shall be well informed in the laws of this state, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall have been duly elected and qualified; provided, that no person shall be eligible for judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases, unless he shall be a citizen of the United States and of this state, who shall have been a practicing lawyer of this state, or a judge of a court in this state, for four years next preceding his election, and who shall have resided in the county of Tarrant for two years next preceding his election. All vacancies in said office shall be filled by appointment by the governor until the next general election thereafter. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1805. Bond and oath of judge. —The judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall execute a bond and take the oath of office as required by the law relating to county judges. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1806. Special judge elected or appointed how. —A special judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases may be appointed or elected as provided by law relating to county courts and to the judges thereof. [Id. sec. 8.]
Art. 1807. Clerk of; seal; sheriff to attend when, etc.—The county clerk of Tarrant county shall be the clerk for the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases. The seal of said court shall be the same as that provided for county courts, except that the seal shall contain the words, “County Court of Tarrant County for Civil Cases.” The sheriff of Tarrant county shall, in person or by deputy, attend the court when required by the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 1808. Selection, etc., of juries by the two courts jointly.—The jurisdiction and authority now vested by law in the county court of Tarrant county for the selection and service of jurors shall be exercised by the two courts jointly and not separately. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 1809. Fees; salary of judge of county court of Tarrant county for civil cases.—The judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases shall collect the same fees provided by law for county judges in similar cases, all of which shall be paid by him monthly into the county treasury; and he shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars annually, to be paid monthly out of the county treasury by the commissioners’ court. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 1810. Removal of judge.—The judge of the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases may be removed from office in the same manner and for the same causes as any other county judge may be removed under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 1811. Salary of county judge of Tarrant county.—The county judge of Tarrant county shall hereafter receive from the county treasury in addition to the fees allowed him by law, such a salary, for the ex officio duties of his office, as may be allowed him by the commissioners’ court. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER THREE

Art. 1811—36. Name changed; seal.—The county court of Harris county for civil cases shall hereafter be known as the county court at law of Harris county, Texas, and the seal of said court shall hereafter be the same as that provided by law for county courts, except that the seal shall contain the words: "County Court at Law of Harris County, Texas." [Acts 1913, p. 10, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Superseding part of Art. 1811—35.

Art. 1811—37. Change of name not to affect court, except, etc.; judges, officers, process and returns.—The change in the name of said court shall in no way or manner, other than is provided in this Act, affect the officers or judge of said court, their compensation or tenure of office, and shall, in no way or manner, affect the process of said court already issued. The judge and officers now serving said court county of Harris county for civil cases, shall continue to serve said court under its changed name to the same effect to all things as if the name had not been changed. All process heretofore issued out of said court county for civil cases and all returns thereon shall in all things be treated and considered as if the name of said court had not been changed. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 1811—38. Jurisdiction of said court.—The [county court of Harris county for civil cases] shall have jurisdiction in all civil matters and causes, original and appellate, over which, by the general laws of the state of Texas, the county court of said county would have jurisdiction, except as provided in section three (3) of this Act [Art. 1811—40], and all civil cases other than probate matters and such as are provided in section three (3) of this Act, be and the same are hereby transferred to the [county court of Harris county for civil cases], and all civil writs and processes heretofore issued by or out of said county court other than pertaining to matters over which, by section three (3) of this Act, jurisdiction remains in the county court of Harris county be and the same are hereby made returnable to the [county court of Harris county for civil cases]: The jurisdiction of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] and of the judge thereof shall extend to all matters of eminent domain of which jurisdiction has been heretofore vested in the county court of Harris county or in the county judge thereof, but this provision shall not affect the jurisdiction of the commissioners court or of the county judge of Harris county as the presiding officer of such commissioners court, as to roads, bridges, and public highways, and matters of eminent domain which are now within the jurisdiction of the commissioners court or the judge thereof. [Acts 1911, p. 4, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—Additional powers are conferred by Art. 1811—39. The name of the court is changed by Art. 1811—36 to the "County Court at Law of Harris County, Texas."

Art. 1811—39. Jurisdiction continued, etc.; additional jurisdiction; appeals; criminal jurisdiction, etc.—The said court to be hereafter known as the county court at law for Harris county shall have all the jurisdiction heretofore conferred upon [Art. 1811—38] it under the name of the county court of Harris county for civil cases, and its judge shall have all the powers heretofore conferred upon the judge of the county court of Harris county for civil cases; and in addition to the said jurisdiction the said county court at law of Harris county shall have all of the, and the same jurisdiction over criminal matters that is now vested in the county courts having jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases under the constitution and laws of Texas, and all appeals from justices, mayors, recorders, or other inferior courts within Harris county, shall hereafter lie to said county court at law of Harris county instead of as heretofore, to the criminal district court of Harris county, and the judge of said court shall have, in addition to the powers now conferred upon him, the same powers, rights and privileges, as to criminal matters as are now vested in and enjoyed by the judges of county courts having criminal jurisdiction; provided, however, that said court shall have no jurisdiction over any of those matters the jurisdiction over which is now in the county court of Harris county or the judge thereof. [Acts 1913, p. 10, sec. 3.]

Art. 1811—40. The county judge of Harris county shall be the judge of the county court of Harris county, and all ex officio duties of the county judge shall be exercised by the said judge of the county court of Harris county, except in so far as the same shall by this Act be committed to the judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases]. [Acts 1911, p. 4, sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—35, changing name of county court of Harris county for civil cases to “County Court at Law of Harris County, Texas.”

Art. 1811—41. Both courts may issue writs.—Both the said county court of Harris county and the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] or either of the judges thereof, shall have the power to issue writs of injunction, sequestration, attachment, garnishment, certiorari, supersedeas and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said courts; and also power to punish for contempts under such provisions as are or may be provided by the general laws governing county courts throughout the state, and to issue writs of habeas corpus in cases where the offense charged is within the jurisdiction of said courts or of any court or tribunal inferior to said courts. [Id. sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36 changing name of county court of Harris county for civil cases to “County Court at Law of Harris County, Texas.” This article supersedes Acts 1911, p. 4, § 9.

Art. 1811—42. Terms, practice, etc.—The [terms of the county court of Harris county for civil cases] and the practice therein and appeals and writs of error therefrom shall be as prescribed by laws relating to county courts. [The terms of the county court of Harris county for civil cases shall be held as now established for the terms of the county court of Harris county until the same be changed in accordance with the law.] [Id. sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed parts of this article are superseded by Arts. 1811—36 and 1811—43.

Art. 1811—43. Terms of court.—Said court shall hold six terms a year, beginning respectively on the first Monday in January, in March, in May, in July, in September, and in November of each year, and each term shall continue until the business is disposed of. [Acts 1913, p. 10,
sec. 7.]

Art. 1811—44. Judge to be elected, when; qualifications; term.—
There shall be elected in said county by the qualified voters thereof, at each general election, a judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases,] who shall be well informed in the laws of the state, who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor shall have duly qualified. [Acts 1911, p. 4, sec. 6.]

Explanatory.—See Arts. 1811—36 and 1811—37, changing name of court.

Art. 1811—45. Bond and oath of judge.—The judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases,] shall execute a bond and take the oath of office as required by the law relating to county judges. [Id.
sec. 7.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36 changing name of court to "County Court at Law
of Harris County, Texas."

Art. 1811—46. Special judge.—A special judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] may be appointed or elected as provided by law relating to county courts and to the judges thereof. [Id. sec. 8.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36 changing name of court to "County Court at Law
of Harris County, Texas."

Art. 1811—47. Clerk; seal; sheriff to attend when, etc.—The county clerk of Harris county shall be the clerk of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases. The seal of the said court shall be the same as that provided by law for county courts, except that the seal shall contain the words "County Court of Harris County for Civil Cases."] The sheriff of Harris county shall, in person or by deputy, attend the said court when required by the judge thereof. [Id. sec. 10.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed part of this article is superseded by Art. 1811—36. See
Art. 1811—54, conferring on the clerk of the criminal district court the powers of clerk as to criminal matters.

Art. 1811—48. Vacancy in office of judge, how filled, etc.—Any vacancy in the office of the judge of the court created by this Act may be filled by the commissioners court of Harris county until the next general election. The commissioners court shall, as soon as may be after this Act shall take effect, appoint a judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] who shall serve until the next general election and until his successor shall be duly elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 11.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36, changing name of court to "County Court at Law
of Harris County, Texas."

Art. 1811—49. Fees; salary of judge.—The judge of the [county court of Harris county for civil cases] shall collect the same fees as are now established by law relating to county judges, all of which shall be by him paid monthly into the county treasury, and he shall receive an annual salary of three thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, to be paid out of the county treasury by the commissioners court. [Id.
sec. 12.]

Explanatory.—See Art. 1811—36, changing name of court, and Art. 1811—63, providing for additional compensation.

Art. 1811—50. Salary of county judge of Harris county.—The county judge of Harris county shall hereafter receive from the county treasury, in addition to the fees allowed him by law, such a salary for the ex officio duties of his office as may be allowed him by the commissioners court not less than fifteen hundred dollars per year. [Id. sec. 13.]
Art. 1811—51. Clerk of criminal district court of Harris county to act as clerk in criminal matters, etc.; fees.—The county clerk of Harris county shall have no authority in criminal matters pending in said county court at law for Harris county. The clerk of the criminal district court of Harris county shall act as the clerk of the said county court of law for Harris county in all criminal matters, but only in criminal matters, and he shall sign all papers emanating from said court, including the minutes of said court in criminal matters, whenever its clerk's signature is necessary, as ex officio clerk of said county court at law for Harris county, using the seal of said court. The fees of said clerk as to those criminal matters, the jurisdiction over which is hereby vested in said county court at law, shall be the same in all respects, including amount, manner of payment and collection, as if the criminal district court of Harris county had retained jurisdiction over said matters. [Acts 1913, p. 10, sec. 4.]

Art. 1811—52. Transfer of misdemeanor criminal cases.—All misdemeanor criminal cases now pending in the criminal district court of Harris county, as well as all criminal cases on appeal to the said district court from the various subordinate courts of Harris county shall, immediately upon the taking effect of this Act, be transferred to the county court at law of Harris county, and the same are hereby so transferred, and upon said county court at law is hereby conferred jurisdiction of such cases. [Id. sec. 5.]

—Laws repealed.
governing county courts throughout the state, and said county court of Harrison county shall have jurisdiction over all criminal causes and criminal matters of which county courts have jurisdiction under the ex-sting laws or laws hereafter enacted; [but the said county court of Harrison county shall not have any jurisdiction over civil causes or civil actions, whatsoever]. [Acts 1911, p. 95, sec. 1.]
Explanatory.—The bracketed part of this article is superseded by Arts. 1811—55 and 1811—58 to 1811—68.

Art. 1811—55. Jurisdiction in civil cases.—That the county court of Harrison county shall hereafter have exclusive original jurisdiction in civil cases wherein the matter in controversy shall exceed in value two hundred dollars, and shall not exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, and shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the district court of said county, when the amount in controversy shall exceed five hundred dollars, and not exceed one thousand dollars, exclusive of interest.
[Acts 1913, p. 103, sec. 1.]
Explanatory.—Superseding a part of Art. 1811—54. This article also superseded Acts 1911, p. 95, § 2, transferring to the district court of Harrison county jurisdiction of all civil matters and causes over which the county court of that county theretofore had jurisdiction. Acts 1911, p. 95, § 3, providing for transfer of pending causes from the county to the district court, to carry out the provisions of section 2, is rendered ob-solote by this article.

Art. 1811—56. Judgments heretofore rendered in county court; executions, etc.—That this Act shall not be construed to in any wise or manner affect judgments heretofore rendered by said county court of Harrison county pertaining to matters and causes which by section 2 of this Act [Acts 1911, p. 95, superseded by Art. 1811—55] are transferred to the district court of said county, but the county clerk of said county shall issue all executions and orders of sale, and proceedings thereunder, and his act in so doing shall be valid and binding to all intents and purposes, the same as if no change had been made as by sec-
2 therein contemplated. [Acts 1911, p. 95, sec. 4.]

conflict herewith be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 1811—58. Appellate jurisdiction in civil cases, etc.—Said county court shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil cases over which justices courts have original jurisdiction, when the judgment of the court appealed from, or the amount in controversy, shall exceed twenty dol-ars, exclusive of interest and costs, and said county court shall have power to hear and determine cases brought up from the justices courts by certiorari, under the provisions of the title of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1895 relating thereto. [Acts 1913, p. 103, sec. 2.]

Art. 1811—59. May grant writs.—The county judge of said county shall have authority, either in term time or in vacation, to grant writs of injunction, sequestration, mandamus, garnishment, attachment, certiorari, supersedes, and all other writs necessary to the enforcement of the jurisdiction of said court, and shall also have the power to issue writs of habeas corpus in all cases in which the constitution has not exclusively conferred the power on the district court or judge thereof.
[Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 1811—60. District court not to have jurisdiction when.—The district court of said county shall no longer have jurisdiction of cases in which the county court of said county by provisions of this Act has original or appellate jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 4.]
Explanatory.—Superseding contradictory provision in Art. 1811—54.

Art. 1811—61. Clerk of district court to make transcripts in cases in which jurisdiction is given to county court, etc.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court of said county within thirty days after this Act shall take effect to make full and complete transcripts of orders on the civil docket then pending before the district court of said county, of which cases by the provisions of this Act exclusive original or appellate jurisdiction is given to the said county court, and to deliver said transcripts, together with the original papers in each case, to the county clerk of said county, and the said county clerk shall file the same and enter said cases on the docket for trial by said court, and a certified bill of costs in each case, and all such cases shall be immediately docketed by the county court, as appearance cases for the next succeeding term, and all civil cases shall be docketed and disposed of in the same manner as if the same had been originally filed in and triable in said county court, and all process in civil cases now issued and returnable to said district court shall be returnable to said county court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1811-55.

Art. 1811-62. Motions against sheriffs and other officers, etc.; contempts; other powers.—The said court shall also have the power to hear and determine all motions against sheriffs and other officers of the court, for failure to pay over moneys collected under process of said court, or other defalcation of duty in connection with such process, and shall have power to punish by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three days any person guilty of contempt of said court, and shall also have all the other powers and jurisdiction conferred on county courts by the constitution and general laws of this state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 1811-63. May fix terms of court.—The county commissioners' court of said county may hereafter fix the terms of said court whenever it may be deemed necessary. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 1811-64. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be and the same are hereby expressly repealed in so far as they relate to Harrison county. [Id. sec. 8.]
