A witness having derived her information concerning G. from witness' mother, who was G's sister and was dead at the time witness testified, held entitled to state the date of G's death and the names of his full brothers and sisters. Kirby v. Hayden, 44 C. A. 297, 99 S. W. 746.

Declarations of deceased members of a family regarding its history are admissible in evidence. Florence v. Hovel ( Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 948.

Declarations by a decedent as to pedigree should not be admitted in evidence, when the same facts may be shown by the testimony of living witnesses. Wolf v. Wilhelm ( Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

37. Necessity that declarant be dead.—Statements by a living third person concerning himself are hearsay, and not admissible on a question of identity. Nehring v. McMurrain ( Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 369.

Where a witness testified to matters of family repute, the rule that, before declarations are admissible, it must be shown that the declarant is dead, has no application. Smith v. Kenney ( Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 801.

On the trial of the issue whether a person not heard from for seven years is dead, evidence of declarations concerning place of birth and family connections held admissible, though the declarant is not dead. Nehring v. McMurrain, 94 T. 45, 57 S. W. 943.

In an action of trespass to try title, certain evidence, held admissible, to show the death of plaintiff's remote grantor, as a predicate for the introduction of a deed containing a declaration by him as to his pedigree. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 76 S. W. 894.

To make declarations of an heir admissible as to his pedigree, declarant must be dead at the time of the trial. Wolf v. Wilhelm ( Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

38. Relationship to family.—Declarations of a deceased person are admissible to prove matters of family repute, etc., on an issue as to the title to land, although it is not first shown that declarant was related either by blood or marriage to the person who died seised; it is sufficient if he be related to the alleged heir. Overby v. Johnston, 45 C. A. 184, 94 S. W. 121.

In an action involving the issue whether a person not heard from for seven years is dead, evidence of declarations made after the action was brought held inadmissible. Nehring v. McMurrain, 94 T. 45, 57 S. W. 943.

In an action on a policy of life insurance, evidence of declarations of insured's father since death of insured's life, held admissible, to show the time of application for the policy, held not inadmissible as made post litum motam. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay, 60 C. A. 166, 109 S. W. 1116.

Declarations of a witness in another suit as to pedigree, based alone on the declarations of the decedent, were self-serving, held inadmissible. 78 S. W. 589.

Declarations as to pedigree of a person since deceased, made after controversy arose, held inadmissible. Id.

Testimony as to pedigree was properly admitted, where it was based, not only on self-serving declarations of a decedent, but, on declarations of his wife, who had no interest, and on the family Bible and the family portrait. Kirby v. Boas (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 223.

41. Mode and form of declaration.—In trespass to try title, in which defendants denied that plaintiff's remote grantor was the son of the original patentee of the land, the pleadings in a suit for divorce by the wife of such original patentee, in which she prayed for the custody of a minor child, who was afterwards plaintiff's remote grantor, were admissible in evidence. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

Writing declarations of a decedent as to his pedigree are admissible to prove his identity and lineage. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

An affidavit of a deceased heir as to his family history may be admitted in evidence as well as oral declarations as to pedigree. Id.

42. Declarations as to boundaries.—The field-notes of contemporaneous adjoining surveys are admissible as hearsay to locate a disputed boundary. Cottingham v. Seward (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 797.

The fact that surveys appearing on a map were made by H., and the map itself by a third person, does not render the map inadmissible, as hearsay or secondary evidence, in a suit to establish boundaries between the surveys. Fulcher v. White (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 628.

On issue as to true location of boundary line, certain testimony held admissible as showing how, when, and under what circumstances witness gained his knowledge of a certain alleged line that he had testified about. Hornberger v. Giddings, 31 C. A. 283, 71 S. W. 989.

In action to recover land, deeds executed by defendants held admissible as declarations against interest relating to boundaries. Davis v. Mills (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1064.

43. Self-serving declarations.—In a suit to determine boundary, surveyors, in detailing the result of experimental surveys by way of introduction, may state that defendant pointed out the beginning corners, and identified them as corners claimed by him. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

44. Declarations by third persons in general.—The defendant claimed title to the land in controversy by limitation. It was proven that C. had been living on the land, and his declarations while in possession were admitted in evidence to show that he held under the defendant. Harnage v. Berry, 43 T. 567.

A witness testified that a surveyor had pointed out a corner in dispute, but it did not appear that he knew its locality. The declarations of the surveyor and opinion of the witness touching the identity of the corner were not admissible in evidence. Titterington v. Treea, 78 T. 657, 14 S. W. 692.

Declarations of a surveyor, not contemporaneous with the actual survey, are not admissible. Clay County L. & C. Co. v. Montague County, 28 S. W. 704, 8 C. A. 576.

The declaration of a person, who was not shown to be the owner of the land, or to be in a position to know the corner of a survey, that a certain tree was the river corner of the survey, is inadmissible in a suit to determine a boundary. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

On an issue of boundary, certain testimony of surveyor as to line pointed out to him by defendant held admissible. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 89, 76 S. W. 898. Id.

In trespass to try title to land claimed by defendant under an alleged dedication of it as a street, evidence of a petition of citizens to the city council asking for the removal of a fence on the land was irrelevant and improperly admitted against defendant's objection. City of Antonio v. Rowley, 48 C. A. 850, 78 S. W. 211.

In a suit to establish a boundary, it is error to permit a third person whose land is within the county survey to state that he only claims to a particular line. Runke v. Smith, 52 C. A. 188, 114 S. W. 865.

45. Declarations by former owners.—The name of the grantee in a grant of land was borne by two persons, both long dead. Plaintiff claimed under one, and defendant under the other. Testimony was admissible to show that one of these persons claimed the land and exercised acts of ownership over it for a number of years. Hickman v. Gillum, 86 T. 314, 1 S. W. 335.

Declaration of past owner of land as to boundaries held admissible. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 819, 90 S. W. 898.

In a boundary suit, the declarations of a remote vendor of the property in question made at the time of the conveyance as to the boundary in dispute are admissible evidence. Bollinger v. McMinn, 47 C. A. 89, 104 S. W. 1075.

In trespass to try title evidence of a conversation between the prior owner of the lot in controversy and his wife regarding the boundary line of the lot is hearsay and inadmissible. McCona v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 494.

In trespass to try title involving the identification of a deed description, held, that plaintiff could show that the common grantor pointed out to his grantee the tract sued for. Raley v. Magendie (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 174.

On the question of the location of a boundary, evidence of declarations as to the removal of the line by the common source of title held admissible. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 787.

46. Declarations by deceased persons in general.—On questions of boundaries the declarations of deceased persons were in a situation to possess information on the subject and were not interested are admissible in evidence, even when the declarations 2658

The declarations of one who acted as such in making a partition of land, after his death, may be given in evidence in regard to the location of the ground on the line established by him in his partition. Coleman v. Smith, 264.

The declarations of deceased parties who were interested, and in possession to know the true location of the lines of a survey made upon the ground, and in view of the objects identified by them, are admissible to establish boundary. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 5 S. W. 671; Russell v. Hunnicutt, 70 T. 657, 8 S. W. 500.

The locality of an ancient boundary line, the testimony of a deceased witness at a former trial may be proved, although such testimony gave the declarations of a party then deceased many years before, when the line, then ancient, was pointed out to the witness. Medlin v. Wilkens, 1 C. A. 465, 50 S. W. 1026.

47. — Deceased surveyors.—The declarations of a surveyor who is dead, which were made at a time when he was attempting to survey a tract of land not originally surveyed by him, of which he had no previous knowledge, and which relate to his opinion regarding the identification of corners and lines of the survey, are not admissible in evidence. His declarations as to distances then measured by him from designated objects are admissible. Russell v. Hunnicutt, 70 T. 657, 8 S. W. 500; Thacker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 938.

The declaration of a surveyor, since deceased, in a position to know the fact which the declaration concerns, is admissible. Real v. Asherry (Sup.) 20 S. W. 115; Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64; Simpson v. De Ramirez, 50 C. A. 25, 110 S. W. 149.

Where a survey was made by a deceased surveyor calls for the east line of another survey as one of the boundaries of the tract surveyed, other surveys made by the same surveyor at about the same time, and locating such east line, are admissible as declarations to show where such line is located, whether such other surveys are legal or not. Cottingham v. Seward (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 797.

Declarations of a deceased surveyor, made when he was making a survey different from the one in controversy, held not admissible to identify the corners and lines of the latter. Cable v. Stull, 15 C. A. 579, 42 S. W. 158.

The declaration of a surveyor since deceased may be expressed in field notes of a junior survey. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

A declaration of a surveyor, since deceased, must, to have effect as evidence of a boundary, possess the elements of certainty. Id.

Evidence of declarations by a surveyor since deceased held inadmissible because hearsay. Thacker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 938.

48. — Deceased former owners.—Where an owner of land in a survey, the boundary of which is in dispute, is dead, a witness assisting in the survey may state, that in marking his boundaries, such owner claimed a corner in dispute as one of his corners. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

In an action involving the possession of a survey, defendant held entitled to show a declaration by the deceased patentee of the survey as to the location of its corners. Simpson v. De Ramirez, 50 C. A. 25, 110 S. W. 149.

49. — General reputation.—General reputation in regard to the boundary of an ancient survey, which had been the subject of note and comment in the neighborhood, is admissible in evidence. Clark v. Hill, 67 T. 141, 2 S. W. 356.

It was competent for witnesses to testify to locality of boundary lines or corners from reputation, and from declarations by their ancestors, witnesses' knowledge extending over thirty years. So of occupation by tenants upon any part of the grant, holding under it. Von Rosenberg v. Haynes, 86 T. 357, 20 S. W. 143.

In a suit to determine a boundary, a witness may state that an old stake pointed out to him by defendant was generally reputed to be the corner of the survey in dispute. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

Evidence of general repute and recognition of the location of a boundary line of a survey is admissible on the issue of such location. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 49 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 998.

Evidence of reputation, so far as it definitely exists, is admissible to prove the location of private boundaries. Thacker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 938.

I. Mere Conclusions Generally Not Admissible

1. In general.—An opinion of a witness upon matter involving a mixed question of law and fact is not admissible in evidence. Railway Co. v. Hall, 73 S. 169, 14 S. W. 558.

Recollection and opinion of witness as to past transactions competent when Harris v. Nations, 79 T. 409, 15 S. W. 262.

A witness testified that there was no conflict between certain surveys. Held, that this was a matter of opinion and inadmissible. Bugbee & Land Co. v. Brents (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 695.

Questions as to whether insured had anything to do with the burning of the building insured, held not objectionable, as calling for an opinion. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia v. Jones (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 44.

The testimony, “Finding the bond in this condition makes me think it may have been presented to me for approval and rejected,” is inadmissible, as being only an opinion. McFarlane v. Howell, 16 C. A. 146, 43 S. W. 315.

Testimony of a witness that he “thought” that he had told the foreman of his in­experience is to be taken to be testimony as to what witness remembered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 536.

Testimony that defendant’s obstruction gave plaintiff egress only over private property held not inadmissible as a conclusion of the witness. Denison & P. S. Ry. v. O’Day, 18 C. A. 200, 46 S. W. 275.

In fact, when a part of a deed for a property is to be examined, his testimony that he made no such abstract is a statement of fact, and not a conclusion. Paul v. Clensault (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 579.

Objection to testimony that “it appears that the original file, • • • with contents, were abstracted from the general land office,” on the ground that witness was not stating a fact, but the appearance of a fact, held untenable under the circumstances. Pope v. Anthony, 29 S. W. 298, 63 S. W. 521.

In an action for injuries to an electric lineman, evidence that plaintiff believed he was working for defendant, D. Electric Company, and its receiver, and that he had never been told he was not working for such company, held admissible. Dallas Electric Co. v. Mitchell, 33 C. A. 424, 76 S. W. 935.

In an action for injuries to a car inspector, evidence that it was the duty of switchmen in making up trains, to couple the cars and set the air brakes for the protection of inspectors, held not objectionable as a conclusion. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rea (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 428.

Evidence as to what plaintiff would have done, had he heard the whistle of defendant’s engine, which struck him as he was walking on defendant’s track, was not objectionable as a conclusion. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 669.

In an action for injuries to an employé caused by a defective appliance, the testimony of a witness that he supposed that the employé had used the appliance ever since he commenced work was inadmissible. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patrick, 59 C. A. 491, 109 S. W. 1097.

A witness should not be permitted to give an opinion which would, if believed, determine the matters of law as well as the facts involved. Williams v. Livingston, 52 C. A. 276, 113 S. W. 788.

It is error to permit a party to testify to statements of a third person involving a conclusion of the latter as well as of the witness. Milno Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.
Statements of witnesses testifying to injuries sustained to a shipment of live stock, held not objectionable as conclusive of the conclusion of the witness. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Allen (Civil App.) 117 S. W. 922.

Testimony of railroad men as to stopping of trains in railroad yards held not to be statements of a conclusion, but of a fact. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams, 66 C. A. 244, 129 S. W. 653.

A blue print of survey introduced with the testimony of the surveyor is not objectionable as the conclusions of the witness. Finberg v. Gilbert (Civil App.) 124 S. W. 978.

A suit against a carrier for delay of a shipment of cattle, plaintiff's testimony that the cattle were running at a slow pace when the train was running from 15 to 35 miles an hour, held a statement of fact, not a conclusion. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Goer (Civil App.) 126 S. W. 383.

A question in a death action by a mother as to whether she expected any assistance from decedent in the future, had he lived, held improperly allowed, as calling for witness' surmise. International & G. N. R. Co. v. White, 103 T. 567, 131 S. W. 811.

Where rice collected as rent was hauled away on defendant's wagons, placed in its warehouse by defendant's employees with its initials, a witness knowing such fact could testify that the rice was delivered to defendant. Kincheloe Irrigating Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co. (Civil App.) 132 S. W. 78.

Evidence of the manager of a drawee bank that checks presented by a collecting agent would not have been paid in cash if cash had been demanded held not objectionable as an opinion. First Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (Civil App.) 134 S. W. 821.

Under Act April 18, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 150), requiring every shipper of intoxicating liquors to a point within prohibition territory to place on the package the names of the consignor and consignee, and the words "intoxicating liquors," evidence in a prosecution for pursuing the occupation of selling liquors in prohibition territory by a driver of an express wagon that he hauled for accused packages marked intoxicating liquors from the express office to the place where such business was not objectionable as opinion because the witness had no personal knowledge of the contents of the packages. Stephens v. State, 63 Cr. R. 382, 139 S. W. 1141.

In an action for the wrongful seizure by defendant of plaintiff's goods, testimony of an officer assisting defendant held properly excluded as a conclusion. Souther v. Hunt (Civil App.) 141 S. W. 359.

Evidence as to whether two suits were for the same cause of action held not opinion evidence. Allen v. Burr's Ferry, B. & C. Ry. Co. (Civil App.) 143 S. W. 1185.

Wherein, in an action for death by the negligence of the railway employees, the highway, the witness has testified fully to the circumstances under which he was occupying and using defendant's automobile at the time of the accident, a question asked him on cross-examination as to whether he had "borrowed" the automobile was properly excluded, conclusion. Ill. W. v. Moser (Civil App.) 160 S. W. 581.

Testimony that the seed rice was obtained from, and half the crop was delivered to defendant's corporation, is not objectionable as a conclusion of witness, but a statement of facts known, or that might have been known, to witness. Kincheloe Irr. Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co., 105 T. 231, 146 S. W. 1187.

2. Conversations in general.—In libel, a question which sought to elicit the witness' conclusion from a conversation had with plaintiff was properly excluded. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 62 C. A. 22, 113 S. W. 574.

A witness may testify to the substance of a conversation, though he cannot recall the precise words or details, and he may give his impression of what it was, though he cannot speak with certainty, and can only recall portions. Leland v. Chamberlin, 56 C. A. 256, 129 S. W. 1940.

3. Conversations concerning contracts.—In an action for goods and money delivered to employer and employee held to have been so charged for the employees' convenience, the admission of testimony as to the witness' understanding of how the account was to run is error. Shaw v. Gilmer (Civil App.) 66 S. W. 679.

Evidence of a broker that he had a distinct understanding with the seller of oil that he was to retain the same with the capacity of 125 barrels held not objectionable as a conclusion. Sherman Oil & Cotton Co. v. Dallas Oil & Refining Co. (Civil App.) 77 S. W. 961.

4. Knowledge of other person.—Testimony that a brakeman, injured while uncoupling cars, had had opportunity to know the condition of the track at that point, held inadmissible, without a showing that witness personally knew what such opportunity had been. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pitta v. Pitta (Civil App.) 42 S. W. 255.

In an action for the death of a car inspector by being struck by a switch train, evidence that he was familiar with the yard, and knew the location and proximity of the switch stand to the track, held properly excluded. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bearden, 31 C. A. 68, 71 S. W. 558.

The statement of a witness that a railway company's agent saw the children accompanying plaintiff's son who had them the tickets is the statement of a fact. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Anchouda, 33 C. A. 24, 75 S. W. 557.

Evidence that a man could not acquire knowledge of the handling of iron rails by working around railroad yards, held inadmissible as a conclusion in an action for injuries to a servant while carrying a rail. Bonn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civil App.) 82 S. W. 808.

In an action on a mutual benefit certificate, evidence of an officer of the benefit association to knowledge of the other officers of the defendant that the health of the insured was inadmissible as a conclusion of the witness. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Carrington, 41 C. A. 29, 90 S. W. 921.

Evidence that plaintiff was walking near defendant's track on or towards street in not objectionable as a conclusion of the witness. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Morin, 53 C. A. 533, 116 S. W. 656.

Testimony of a witness as to whether or not a party signing a deposition understood the same, held not objectionable as consisting of conclusions. Sarro v. Bell (Civil App.) 126 S. W. 54.

5. Motive and intent.—In an action by a corporation to set aside a decree foreclosing a vested interest, the former secretary and vice president could testify that they had no intent to defraud the corporation in waiving service of citation in foreclosure. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 597.

Where issue is raised as to the intentions of the grantor in certain deeds, the admission of testimony as to what witnesses understood as his purpose and intention to be is error. McKnight v. Reed, 30 C. A. 204, 71 S. W. 318.

A part of a witness' answer in testifying to a conversation held properly stricken out because he was thereby permitted to give his opinion as to what was on the minds of parties, The Chicago & Alton R. R. Co. v. Chamberlin, 66 C. A. 256, 129 S. W. 140.

In a suit for specific performance plaintiff's answer to questions relating to his intention held inadmissible. Leonard v. King (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 742.

A question to a witness, whether they were cutting wood or sawing wood, as to take all of it, or leaving some of it, was not objectionable as calling for an opinion of the witness. Sauer v. Veltmann (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 706. See notes under Introductory, §§ 2-10.

6. Ability to see or hear.—Opinion of a witness as to whether one could be identified at the distance at which prosecutor claimed he saw defendant held inadmissible, where the circumstances on which it was based were not shown to be the same as in the case at bar. Fridmore v. State (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 177.

The testimony of a witness that he represented another in a transaction is properly excluded. Arnold v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 186.

Testimony that brokers represented defendants in transaction with plaintiff held not error. Gilliland v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 183.
Testimony that B., in contract with witness, represented defendant, is not objectionable, as a agency being conceded, and the question being whether he acted for defendant or another. Kincheloe Irr. Co. v. Hahn Bros. & Co., 105 T. 221, 146 S. W. 1137.

In an action for death of a servant, testimony that deceased was manager of a cotton gin held properly as refused as a conclusion of the witness. Guitar v. Randel (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 642.

Where the issue was whether a third person was the agent of defendant or the agent of plaintiff, the testimony of the third person as to what party he acted for was objectionable, as calling for a conclusion on a mixed question of law and fact. Sackville v. Storey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 233.

In a servant's action for personal injuries, testimony that the work at which he was engaged was under the direction of one Y., defendant's foreman, was admissible. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 626.

22. Partnership.—A statement of a witness that he was led by conversations with defendant to believe that defendant and plaintiff were handling his cotton together, so that although he had already promised it to plaintiff he sold it to defendant, held not inadmissible, as calling for a conclusion of the witness in an action involving the existence of a partnership for the purchase of cotton. Dupuy v. Dawson (Civil App.) 147 S. W. 599.

23. Abandonment.—Where it was claimed that plaintiff abandoned school land awarded to him, evidence that he left intending to return was admissible despite objection that it was inadmissible. Ball (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 613.

24. Residence of voter.—On an issue in an election contest as to the residence of a voter, testimony that a certain house was his home since a specified date was properly excluded as a conclusion of the witness. Linder v. Baizer (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 796; on an issue in an election contest as to the residence of a voter whose right to vote was denied, testimony as to where he had lived since a specified time, where his headquarters were during that time, and as to where he considered his home to be since that time, was properly excluded as calling for a conclusion of mixed questions of law and fact. Keifer v. Rice (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1019.

25. Indebtedness.—In an action on an open verified account, evidence by a member of the defendant firm that the firm bought goods, for which it overpaid by a check, which was applied by plaintiff to individual debts of the firm's predecessor, without its knowledge or consent held not objectionable as an opinion. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 343.

The testimony of the manager of a mercantile company that such company was indebted to the plaintiff in a certain sum was not a statement of an opinion, but of fact. Danner v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 295.

In an action for the price of coal, where the buyer under his general denial was entitled to prove payment, his evidence that he had paid in full was not opinion evidence, but as a statement of fact. Rocke Co. & V. Big Muddy Coal & Iron Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1019.

26. Damages.—Error to admit opinions of witnesses as to how much cattle were damaged by being standing in cold and muddy pens awaiting transportation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wright, 21 S. W. 90, 144 S. 492.

Testimony of a witness as to the difference in value of property before and after building a railroad held properly excluded, as calling for a conclusion. Boyer & Lucas v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1038.

Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Norman (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 220.

III. Subjects of Expert Testimony

82. Matters of opinion or facts.—An expert may give his opinion on a state of facts pertaining to his art or science, and the jury must then decide whether his assumption of facts was correct, but he cannot give his opinions as to his conclusions from facts testified about in conflicting testimony. If his opinion is desired regarding the effect of certain facts in producing results, it must be obtained by stating a hypothetical case. Armendaiz v. Stillman, 67 T. 458, 3 S. W. 678.

An expert cannot give an opinion as to the motive or intent with which an act was done. Hair v. Curtis, 88 T. 640, 5 S. W. 461.

A physician may testify that plaintiff, whom he examined for the purpose of testifying in the case, "was confined to his bed, and unable to walk without aid." Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wright, 19 C. A. 47, 47 S. W. 56.

On an issue of the location of a boundary, expert testimony of surveyors as to the manner in which it should be located is inadmissible. Fulcher v. White (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 851.

Facts held sufficient to qualify plaintiff as an expert to testify whether a defect in a brakestaff could have been discovered by proper inspection. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Collins, 33 C. A. 58, 75 S. W. 814.

The court did not err in refusing to permit an expert to testify that plaintiff reduced a hernia as one familiar with the operation. Houston Electric Co. v. Faroux (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 922.
Matters directly in issue.—Question to expert as to whether the furnishing of a ledger and a journal would be a substantial compliance with the contract requiring a set of books to be kept under insurance policy held properly excluded. German Ins. Co. v. Pearlstone, 18 C. A. 706, 45 S. W. 832.

Whether to permit expert to testify as to condition of footboard on switch engine when evidence shows that its condition was same when witness examined it as it was on day of accident. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1050.

Witness testifying as expert may give his opinion upon every issue on trial. Id.

Expert to testify as to plaintiff's negligence as to place of cars under the circumstances held inadmissible. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Nelson, 20 C. A. 536, 49 S. W. 710.

In an action by a switchman for injuries sustained by stumbling over a ground switch at night the partner to whom he was employed would be incompetent to testify as to whether switch would have been safer with a light thereon; such not being a proper subject for expert testimony. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 626.

In an action by a probate referee to compel the testatrix to withdraw his will, contested because of the testatrix's mental incapacity, where the testatrix's insane antipathy to her husband was proved, expert evidence as to her acting intelligently with reference to her husband held not to violate the rule that experts cannot testify as to the capacity of the deceased to do the very thing in issue. Lindsey v. White (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 483.

Expert evidence that defendant's employee was incompetent was admissible on an issue as to whether his incompetency was known to defendant, or could have been discovered with reasonable care. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 25 C. A. 619, 62 S. W. 81.

In an action for personal injuries, an opinion by an expert that the condition of plaintiff's lungs was due to some injury inflicted from the outside was admissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 994.

In an action by an expert to determine whether or not the partner or co-partner was debtor or creditor of the firm, Morgan v. Barber (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 730.

It was improper to allow an expert to testify as to whether defendant had mind enough to comprehend the legal effect of a deed. Williams v. Livingston, 113 S. W. 786, 52 C. A. 575.

Mental capacity to "transact business" is not a proper subject for expert testimony.

Certain opinion evidence as to the location of a boundary line held inadmissible as invading the province of the jury. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 115 S. W. 50, 53 C. A. 329.

Questions to an expert witness held not to call for an opinion based on conflicting evidence, and hence not to invade the province of the jury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Wymer (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 714.

That the opinion of an expert witness embraced one of the issues did not make his testimony inadmissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737.

Testimony of witness qualified as expert as to condition of boiler which exploded, injuring, plaintiff, held admissible against objection made. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Haberlin, 132 S. W. 873, 104 T. 50.

In an action for breach of contract to hire a car-load of mules, the capacity of the mules in question to do work of the kind for which they were hired was a proper matter for expert opinion. Big Valley Irr. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 715.

Testimony of a physician that a physical condition was produced by a foreign body working out through the muscle was not improper as an invasion of the province of the jury. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 717.

In an action against a carrier for failure to furnish cars for the transportation of cattle and for injury to the cattle caused by delay and rough handling during transportation the testimony of a competent witness as to the market value of the cattle caused thereby was admissible as against the objection that the testimony infringed on the right of the jury to determine the question. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Wood Bros. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 283.

Matters of common knowledge or observation.—The question of increased risk. In a suit on a policy of fire insurance, is one for the jury, and experts are not permitted to state their conclusions upon facts which involve no peculiar science or information, but are within the common knowledge of men. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

One who inquiry relates to a matter that may be understood as well by one rational mind as by another, and without special training or experience, the testimony of experts is not admissible. Shelley v. City of Austin, 74 T. 608, 12 S. W. 753; Railway Co. v. Scott, 1 C. A. 1, 20 S. W. 755.

Whether or not a brand on a cow is a "picked brand" is a matter of common observation, and need not be proved by expert. Clark v. State (Cr. App.) 43 S. W. 522.

Matters involving scientific or other special knowledge in general.—Duration of life may be shown by experts in the business of life insurance. The jury can find upon this issue upon proof of party's age and physical condition. Railway Co. v. Compton, 73 T. 691, 13 S. W. 607; Railway Co. v. Thompson, 75 T. 561, 12 S. W. 742.
The rule that, on questions of science or skill or trade, persons of skill in those particular departments are allowed to give their opinions in evidence, is confined to cases in which, from the very nature of the subject, facts disconnected from such opinions cannot be so presented to a jury as to enable them to pass upon the question with the requisite knowledge and judgment. Cooper v. State, 23 T. 331; Turner v. Strange, 56 T. 141.

The testimony of witnesses that grass destroyed by fire had a market value held competent. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Owen (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1158.

A nonexpert witness may give his opinion upon facts stated by him, which show that he is possessed of sufficient information to form an intelligent opinion. American Const. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1018.

Witnesses could not testify as nonexperts where the facts upon which their testimony was based were not given. Tandy v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 481.

Nonexpert witnesses, other than the subscribing witnesses, who merely state that they had opportunity to know the facts on which they base an opinion, may testify that a testatrix was of sound mind, without stating the facts on which their opinion is based. Thornton v. McReynolds (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1144.

Subscribing witnesses held may testify that they are of the opinion that the testatrix was of sound mind, without giving the facts on which they base their opinion. Id.

116. Cross-examination and re-examination.—To show that one's opinion that cattle were dead by sickness was not correct and thus to impeach the reliability of his judgment, he may be asked what price he sold them for 40 or 50 days later. Houston Cotton Oil Co. v. Trammell, 96 T. 598, 74 S. W. 399.

In condemnation proceedings by a railroad held proper on cross-examination to require the state of the facts on the effect of the tract to different parts into which the tract was segregated by certain railroads and highways. Panhandle & G. Ry. Co. v. Kirby, 42 C. A. 340, 94 S. W. 173.

In an action for a private nuisance, a witness giving his opinion on direct examination held properly asked on cross-examination for his opinion on the true facts. Sherman Gas & Electric Co. v. Belden (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 897.

Where a witness testified on direct examination as to the value of property converted, the sustaining of objections to questions on cross-examination, asked to test his accuracy and truthfulness and to show his credibility, was reversible error. Feces & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 287.

VI. Examination of Experts.

117. Preliminary evidence as to competency.—A statement of an expert witness that he believes he is capable of expressing an opinion on the matter in issue is a sufficient expression of his opinion as to his own competency. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Simmons, 50 C. A. 16, 108 S. W. 983.

In an action to recover for defendant's negligent delay in transporting cattle, witnesses held qualified to state the usual time of transportation between the point of shipment and the market. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Boshear (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1002.

It may be presumed that an employee of defendant irrigation company in charge of the distribution of water for irrigation had sufficient knowledge to know whether rice land was obtaining sufficient water, and defendant should not attack his competency to so testify. King v. Ry. Co. v. Hall Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 74.

Evidence held admissible to qualify a witness to give his opinion as to what should have been the percentage of loss to a shipment of cattle if hauled in the usual way. True Bros. v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 298.
In an action for death of an employé, refusal to permit a witness to give his opinion held prejudicial. Gulf v. Western (Cliv. App.) 147 S. W. 643.

118. Determination of question of competency.—Questions to one introduced as an expert propounded by the adversary, and which go to his credibility, are not proper on a cross-examination of the witness when being examined before the presiding judge as to his qualifications as an expert. Smith v. Caswell, 67 T. 567, 4 S. W. 818.

When an expert is designated to testify as an expert is within the discretion of the trial court, which will not be disturbed unless a gross abuse appears. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Warner, 42 C. A. 290, 93 S. W. 489.

Whether an expert witness has qualified as an expert is for the determination of the trial court, and its action will not ordinarily be reviewed unless an abuse of its discretion is shown. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. English, 42 C. A. 393, 93 S. W. 1996.

The determination of the court as to qualification of experts held reviewable only on a showing of gross abuse of discretion. Meyer Bros. Drug Co. v. Madden, Graham & Co., 45 C. A. 74, 99 S. W. 723.

That the answer of an expert to a hypothetical question may decide the question at issue before the Jury held no ground of objection to the question and answer. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henefy (Cliv. App.) 99 S. W. 824.

The ruling of the court that a witness had qualified himself to give an opinion as an expert is within its discretion, and will not be disturbed unless abused. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Cliv. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

The discretion of the trial court in determining whether a witness offered as an expert possesses sufficient knowledge held reviewable only in a case of abuse. Southern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Evans, 54 C. A. 63, 116 S. W. 418.

The competency of a witness to testify as an expert is not determined by the estimate which he places upon himself, but by that which his answers show should be placed on him. Id.

The discretion of the trial court in determining the competency of an expert witness will not be disturbed except in case of abuse. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Cliv. App.) 149 S. W. 534.

The trial court’s determination as to the competency of an expert witness will not be reviewed unless gross abuse of discretion appears. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hedrick (Cliv. App.) 154 S. W. 633.

119. Mode of examination in general.—It is ordinarily permissible to ask an expert witness a leading question when his opinion is sought upon a matter about which by reason of his professional or pecu­liar knowledge he possesses sufficient knowledge held reviewable only in a case of abuse. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Powers (Cliv. App.) 101 S. W. 250.

In a suit to enjoin the Railroad Commission from enforcing rates a question asked a member thereof as an expert held not objectionable. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Cliv. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

120. Questions and answers based on personal knowledge of expert.—The opinion of an opinion as to the competency of an engineer, whom he had known only the day before his death, is inadmissible. Railway Co. v. Scott, 65 T. 694, 5 S. W. 501.

The opinion of an expert as to the sanity of the testator may be based upon a hypothetical case warranted by the testimony. Frather v. McClelland, 76 T. 574, 13 S. W. 543; Id. (Cliv. App.) 28 S. W. 657.

A physician called to testify to the state of health and physical condition of an injured party may relate, as the basis of his opinion, the patient’s declarations as to her existing symptoms and its symptoms. Pullman Co. v. Smith, 79 T. 485, 14 S. W. 993, 13 L. R. A. 215, 23 Am. St. Rep. 356; Railway Co. v. Ayres, 83 T. 365, 15 S. W. 894.

When a witness is to be examined as an expert, the facts shown by the evidence must be stated to him as the basis for a hypothetical question. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pitts (Cliv. App.) 42 S. W. 255.

A physician called to examine an injured person may state what was told him of the case on which he based his opinion. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Freedman, 18 C. A. 653, 46 S. W. 101.

An answer of a physician that he believed plaintiff’s injuries to have been caused by violence held not objectionable as resting on hearsay. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baumgarten, 31 C. A. 253, 72 S. W. 78.

In an action for injuries, a hypothetical question asked of a physician held not objectionable, as not sufficiently specific and as assuming facts not sustained by the evidence. Id.

Where an expert is personally acquainted with the material facts in issue, questions relating thereto are not required to be based upon a hypothetical state of facts. A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittmann (Cliv. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

121. Questions and answers based on facts testified to by expert.—In an action against a railroad for personal injuries received by a passenger in alighting from a train, opinion of witness as to the cause of the injury held competent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Criswell, 34 C. A. 278, 78 S. W. 358.

A contention that an answer to a hypothetical question contained a hypothesis that did not exist held unavailing. St. Louis S. F. R. Co. v. Kiser (Cliv. App.) 136 S. W. 592. Testimony of a physician based upon a personal examination of plaintiff is not hearsay. Id.

An opinion of a physician held admissible, though a conclusion of the witness. Id.

122. Questions and answers based on testimony of others.—In an action by a passenger for injuries, it was not error to refuse to allow a physician to review the testimony of plaintiff, and then give his opinion as to its reasonableness or correctness. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell, 24 C. A. 572, 55 S. W. 614.
Where there was no conflict as to the facts, an expert witness was properly asked the question as to the injuries given to be true, to what would have contributed the injuries of E.” Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Eaves, 25 C. A. 409, 61 S. W. 550.

In an action for injuries, held proper to permit plaintiff’s counsel to ask a physician to explain the cause of plaintiff’s symptoms, basing his opinion on testimony heard on the trial. S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Coffman, 58 C. A. 472, 121 S. W. 218.

In a question for personal injuries held not proper to exclude a question asked a doctor as to whether he concurred in a supposed opinion of another doctor as to the extent of the injury. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Alberti, 47 C. A. 32, 103 S. W. 699.

An expert held entitled to give his opinion as to the value of the material in a building and damages to building, dimensions of the building, and the character and kind of the lumber contained therein. Ft Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Arthur (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 213.

123. Hypothetical questions and answers.—An expert can give his opinion on a state of facts pertaining to his art or science which he might assume to be true, and the court and jury must then decide whether his assumption of facts was correct. But he cannot give his opinion as an expert as to his conclusion from facts testified about in conflict with testimony, the existence or nonexistence of which should be determined by the court or jury, and not by the expert. If his opinion was desired as an expert regarding the effect of given facts in producing results, it should be sought by stating a hypothetical case. Armendiaz v. Stillman, 67 T. 458, 3 S. W. 678.

Witness who had never seen a stock of goods held competent to testify as to its value. Reynolds v. Welman (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 580.

Hypothetical questions are not necessary where the evidence shows but one state of facts, about which there is no conflict. Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Eaves, 25 C. A. 409, 61 S. W. 550.

The allowance of a question hypothesized on facts slightly different from those subsequently shown as a foundation for the question held not error. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 715.

It is not necessary that the hypothetical facts on which an expert bases his opinion as to the existence of a fact sought to be established should be uncontroversial, but is sufficient if there is evidence from which the jury might find the supposed facts. Collins v. Chipman, 41 C. A. 563, 55 S. W. 658.

It is improper to permit a witness to be asked a hypothetical question not supported by evidence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Craft (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 170.

Questions asked an expert, which called for opinions based on facts too remote to make the material, were properly disallowed. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Mellott (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 837.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, a question asked a medical witness as to symptoms of a person injured in a manner like plaintiff held objectionable, as leading, International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bibloet, 24 C. A. 4, 57 S. W. 974.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, a question asked a medical witness as to recovery of person injured held objectionable, as leading. Id.

A question to an expert witness is not objectionable, because calling for an answer drawing deductions from the facts and bearing on a fact in issue for the injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Mills, 34 C. A. 127, 78 S. W. 11.

A hypothetical question in an action for injuries, containing as a part of the history the fact that plaintiff had a lawsuit pending, etc., held properly disallowed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Gwogicke (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 423.

A hypothetical question asked of certain physicians, in an action for injuries, containing as an element that plaintiff had a case pending in court, etc., at the time of his examination, at which he made certain declarations, held properly disallowed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Gwogicke, 98 T. 477, 85 S. W. 783.

A hypothetical question to an expert held properly refused because of the omission of a fact in evidence which might have affected his answer. De Hoyos v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 52 C. A. 543, 115 S. W. 75.

A hypothetical question not supported by the evidence is properly excluded. Missouri Valley Bridge & Iron Co. v. Ballard, 53 C. A. 110, 115 S. W. 98.

A question to an expert witness held to be argumentative. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1, 1150.

A hypothetical question assuming a fact not proved held improper. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Coffman, 56 C. A. 472, 121 S. W. 218.

A hypothetical question to a witness, which is based on facts not shown by the evidence, is erroneous. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Noelle (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 996.

A hypothetical question to a witness should embrace sufficient facts to enable him to give an intelligent answer. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Golson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 456.

A hypothetical question held improper for assuming a fact not shown by the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 498. 2605
In a personal injury action, a hypothetical question to a physician as to the nature of the injuries held to be necessarily drawn from plaintiff's testimony. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 1078.

All the facts assumed by a hypothetical question need not have been testified to; it being sufficient if the party expects to show them, or if it appears that afterwards proof in regard to such facts is made. Id. A hypothetical question on a physical condition may be based upon conflicting testimony. Id.

It was error to permit witnesses to answer hypothetical questions, where the evidence failed to sustain the hypothesis. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 527.

A hypothetical question was not improper because it did not embrace precisely the language of the evidence, when it gave substantially what the evidence showed. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

In an action for the death of a brakeman, held, on the facts in evidence, that a hypothetical question assuming that deceased, while flagging trains, should notify the trainmen was proper. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finkles (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 612.

125. Scope and sufficiency of answers.—An answer to a hypothetical question is properly excluded where one of the facts on which the hypothesis is based is not shown to exist. Hicks v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 322.

An expert asked a hypothetical question may not give an answer based partly on his understanding of the evidence, and not solely on the facts supposed in the question. Hicks v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 96 T. 355, 72 S. W. 835.

In an action for injuries to a passenger by derailment of the train, evidence of defendant's readiness that passenger train can be safely run over a track submerged with water held properly excluded. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Cain, 37 C. A. 531, 84 S. W. 682.

A witness' opinion, in answer to a hypothetical question respecting a personal injury, held not objectionable because it did not offend the jury's province. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hensley (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 57.

A witness' answer to a hypothetical question that a particular blow would probably injure the sciatic nerve was not objectionable as being speculative, and cured a preceding objectionable answer on the ground. Id.

The evidence need not be precisely the same as the facts incorporated in a hypothetical question to an expert; it being sufficient if it is substantially the same. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

It is not improper to allow an expert witness, in giving an opinion in answer to a hypothetical question, to make an explanation of the reasons on which he bases his conclusion, unless he introduces matters not within the purview of the question. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1078.

In a suit for injuries to locomotive engineer, testimony of physician as to plaintiff's incapacity after the injury to perform duties of an engineer held properly admitted. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 53 C. A. 351, 116 S. W. 365.

Witnesses giving opinion as to probable loss in a shipment of cattle if handled in the usual way held entitled to testify to condition of cattle in later shipments. True Bros. v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 298.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to a race horse during transportation, a witness testifying to the value of the horse held properly permitted to base his estimate on the races the horse had won. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Crippen (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 361.

127. References to authorities on subject.—Physicians may testify as to matters the knowledge of which they have learned from the study of standard medical works. Ford v. Moore (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 355.

In a suit against a railroad for negligence in providing medical attention for an employee, injured in the knee, a physician testifying for plaintiff was permitted, after stating that a compound comminuted fracture not receiving proper attention for a period of 16 hours would be a great deal more likely, if not practically certain, to become infected, and by reason of the weakened condition of the patient render him more easily a prey to septic germs, and that these germs multiply rapidly in a proper soil like blood and serum, and to further state "so that from a single germ, according to Koch, in 24 hours more than 8,000,000 would develop. They divide themselves by fission once every hour." Held, that this testimony was hearsay; the witness' statement not purporting to be an expression of his own opinion or knowledge of the subject on which he was speaking, but that of the person Koch. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graves, 67 C. A. 356, 122 S. W. 468.

A witness may give his opinion on the market value of stock based on daily market reports. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Isonhower (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 297.

128. Experiments and results therefrom.—Evidence of an expert, obtained from experiments made by others at his request, but not in his presence, held not admissible. Texas Brewing Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 548.

Where a plaintiff complains of anesthetic spots on his body, a physician may testify that he stuck pins into such portions of his body and he did not flinch. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 769.

129. Cross-examination and re-examination.—It is not proper to ask a physician, on cross-examination, whether it is not a fact that all the authorities lay down a certain rule, where he has not referred to any book or authority in such a way as to make it admissible to contradict him. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hanway (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 696.

In an action by an employee for injuries through negligence, defendant held entitled to show by plaintiff's medical witness that his original diagnosis of the injuries was incompatible with subsequent developments. Chicago, R. I. & M. Ry. Co. v. Harton, 40 C. A. 225, 88 S. W. 357.
Evidence in an action for injuries to a passenger while boarding a train held admissible on cross-examination of a physician who had given an opinion as an expert witness on a hypothetical question. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fink, 44 C. A. 544, 59 S. W. 204.

In an action for death of a servant, a physician held entitled to testify that in his opinion the estate died from inhaling paint fumes. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rutland, 48 C. A. 621, 101 S. W. 529.

In an action for alleged injuries resulting from the derailment of a car, where physicians had testified that they failed to find any injury to plaintiff as a result of the derailment, the court held that plaintiff's liver had been injured, they could not have discovered that fact from any external signs or from palpitation, held admissible in test of their ability to accurately determine from the examination they made whether she had been internally injured as claimed by her. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lindsey, 51 C. A. 67, 110 S. W. 565.

On cross-examination of expert held extracts from medical works may be incorporated in questions. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Farmer, 102 T. 235, 115 S. W. 260.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, held proper, on the cross-examination of an expert witness, to bring out the fact that neurasthenia could exist without any objective symptoms being present. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dilton, 56 C. A. 82, 129 S. W. 246.

In a personal injury action certain testimony of an expert medical witness held competent to test his skill and accuracy. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Farris (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1174.

In a personal injury action it was error to refuse to permit defendant to refer to and use books written by standard medicine authorities in cross-examining plaintiff's medical expert. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 831.

A street railway company, sued for personal injury, held entitled to make a showing rebutting any inference that a testifying medical expert favored it. Metropolitan Ry. Co. v. Hoag (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 522.

Where a witness for defendant, in an action against carriers for injuries to live stock during shipment, testified that the stock would be in better condition if delayed and fed and not killed, court held that cross-examination on cross-examination as to his preference between having animals shipped directly in a stated number of hours and having them delayed for food and water, and his answer that he would rather have a direct transportation, held not admissible to impeach his testimony. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Young & Webb (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1113.

In an action against a railroad company for damages for injuries to a female plaintiff, certain questions to an expert held proper to test his skill and knowledge. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 923.

130. Contradiction.—Where plaintiff, in personal action for injuries, exhibits his own writings, defendant is entitled to envelope any inference that defendant could not write letters. Defendant is entitled to examination by experts of its own selection. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 19 C. A. 568, 47 S. W. 1037.

In an action for personal injuries, where plaintiff exhibited her wounds to the jury, held, that defendant is entitled to examination by its own experts. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 19 C. A. 568, 48 S. W. 610.

Where plaintiff in an action for personal injuries has exhibited them to the jury, and physicians have testified in relation to them, defendant is entitled to have an examination by experts of its own selection. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 22 T. 769, 51 S. W. 331.

In an action for injuries by being struck by a train, a rule of the defendant held admissible this disqualifies expert witness, though it ever attacked that the train by which plaintiff was struck violated such rule. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 579.

A medical expert, who testified that plaintiff was permanently paralyzed, could not be discredited by proving that he had given similar testimony to the exclusion of the plaintiff in another case, and that that plaintiff did not prove to be permanently paralyzed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 295, 115 S. W. 601.

In an action on a benefit certificate, in which physicians testified for defendant that when they operated on insured they found some evidence of wound trouble, testimony of insured's husband that such physicians never advised him of such trouble held admissible as bearing on the weight to be given the testimony of the physicians. Modern Brotherhood of America v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 936.

VII. Comparison of Handwriting

131. Competency of expert.—Witness held to have such knowledge of handwriting as to be competent as expert. Bratt v. State, 38 Cr. R. 121, 41 S. W. 632.

A witness, by inspection and handling of papers, may become sufficiently acquainted with the handwriting of the persons writing them to testify in relation thereto, without ever having seen them write. Stone v. Moore (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1097.

A witness held competent to testify that transfer written on back of land certificate was in same handwriting as certain letters received at land office. Pope v. Anthony, 29 C. A. 293, 58 S. W. 621.

An instrument which is irrelevant to the issues held inadmissible as a basis for comparison of handwriting. Sheppard v. Love (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 67.

134. Examination of expert.—On an issue as to which of two deeds was genuine, an expert can testify that they were not executed by the same person. Bell v. Hutchings (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 200.

Where a genuine signature in the handwriting of a grantor in a deed is established, an expert may testify as to whether or not the deed is in the same handwriting. Whitaker v. Thayer, 35 C. A. 637, 66 S. W. 354.
VIII. Effect of Opinion Evidence

135. Opinions of witnesses in general.—In a suit for damages the plaintiff stated in a general way that he was damaged $100. The evidence in detail failed to establish more than $40 damage, but the jury returned a verdict for $75. Held, that the verdict was not supported by the evidence. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Phillips, 63 T. 590.

In an action for damages the plaintiff stated that he had been damaged $50, but did not state the facts upon which this estimate was made. Held, that the evidence was too uncertain and unsatisfactory to warrant a verdict for damages. Hoskins v. Huling, 2 App. C. C. 162.

If the finding of a fact by the court trying a case is predicated upon the mere opinion of a witness, and the party against whom the fact is found fails to cross-examine the witness to ascertain on what basis of facts the opinion is given, it will on appeal be deemed conclusive. Burrow v. Zapp, 69 T. 414, 6 S. W. 783.

Mere opinion of a witness that a delay unreasonably delayed and was unreasonably caused as a garnishee's liability was about six months held not sufficient to support a judgment for six months' delay. Scott v. Texas Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 37.

In an action against a carrier for negligence and delay in transporting a shipment of mules, the testimony of a witness that the reasonable market value of such mules at the point of destination in the condition they would have been in was from $50 to $60 was not sufficient proof of the value of the mules or the damages sustained. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crowder (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 281.

That a physician who gave expert testimony was originally called to treat plaintiff in error for the purpose of testifying relates to his credibility only, and not to the probative force of his testimony. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Horne, 106 T. 135, 146 S. W. 1186.

A physician's testimony that a month after the accident he found a bruised place on plaintiff, and an internal ailment which would naturally have resulted from the bruise, was sufficient to sustain a finding that an internal ailment resulted from the accident. Id.

137. Conflict with other evidence.—In a suit on a promissory note, evidence of one expert as to the genuineness of surety's signature was not sufficient to support finding for plaintiff, when another expert and the surety testified it was not genuine. Talbot v. Dil­lard, 22 C. A. 360, 54 S. W. 406.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that the transfer of a land certificate was not forged. Ward v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 246.

RULE 37. A PARTY IS ESTOPPED FROM DENYING A FACT WHICH HE HAS DI­RECTLY AND WILLFULLY, BY HIS WORDS OR CONDUCT, INDUCED AN­OTHER TO BELIEVE, AND TO ACT ON THE BELIEF SO AS TO ALTER HIS OWN PREVIOUS CONDITION, AND WHOSE OWN ACTIONS WOULD BE PREJUDICED IF THE ADMISSION OF THE FACT WAS RETRACTED

I. Nature and Essentials of Equitable Estoppel in General

1. Nature and elements of estoppel in pais.—Equitable estoppel is the effect of the voluntary conduct of a party, whereby he is precluded both at law and in equity from asserting the right which might perhaps have otherwise existed, either of property, of contract or of person, who in good faith relied upon such conduct, and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse, and who on his part acquires some corresponding right either of property, of contract or of remedy. It must be established to a present or past state of things; if it refers to a future state of things, it is a mere expression of intention or opinion, or is to be governed by the laws of contract. Edwards v. Dickson, 66 T. 613, 2 S. W. 718.

2. Intent.—That defendant, who conveyed property to another, who in turn conveyed to defendant's wife, intended the conveyance to his wife to state that it should be her separate property held not to estop him from claiming that he did not intend to give her the property, but conveyed it to her to avoid claims of creditors. Du Perier v. Du Perier (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 10.

In trespass to try title, a charge on estoppel, making intent to have defendant act on statements made a requisite, held improper. Bender v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 653.

3. Knowledge of facts.—A. sold an animal to B., and afterwards sold the same animal to C., B. being present and asserting no claim thereto. B. testified that at the time of the sale he did not know that the animal sold to C. was the same animal sold to himself, and it was held that he was not estopped from recovering the animal from C. Wright v. Bonta, 19 T. 385.

If a doubt exists between parties as to their rights, and both have the same knowledge or means of knowledge of facts involving such rights, and there is no fraud, misrepresentation or concealment, a compromise made between them will be enforced, although the personal interest and prejudice may be different from that anticipated and would not have been decreed by a court. Gilliam v. Alford, 69 T. 267, 5 S. W. 767.

Where defendant bank claimed that plaintiff was estopped from recovering money misapplied by his cashier, the failure of the court to condition such estoppel on defendant's ignorance of the cashier's authority held not error. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 308, 71 S. W. 612.

Defendant, having obtained an extension of a note to secure the price of certain horses with knowledge that a portion thereof failed to comply with a warranty, held estopped in an action on the note extended to plead a breach of warranty as a defense. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. v. City of Cleburne (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1131.

If a buyer accepts materials which are patenty defective, it is estopped from denying that they are not the character bargained for. Gorham v. Dallas, C. & S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 920.

One held not estopped from claiming damages for the timber cut on his land, because his agent had pointed out to defendant the lines within which the timber could be cut. Clever v. Blount, 103 T. 27, 122 S. W. 522.

In trespass to try title, a charge on estoppel, making actual knowledge of the truth of statements made a requisite, held improper. Bender v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 653.

In order for a person to ratify a land sale contract executed by his co-owner, it is essential that he agree with knowledge of its material terms. Parker v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1096.

4. Reliance on adverse party.—Conduct which does not mislead held not to work an estoppel. Roach v. Springer (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 933.

One who by his acts knowingly induces another to assume burdens he would not otherwise have undertaken is estopped from doing acts to the prejudice of the latter, and inconsistent with the acts relied on by him. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 542, 109 S. W. 418.
To establish an equitable estoppel, it must appear that another relied in good faith on a representation, and was led to change his position for the worse. Epperson v. Standard Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1163.

A lessee held not estopped to claim rent after the sublessee's removal. Goldman v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 282.

A former owner held not estopped by an invalid parcel agreement from claiming her title as against purchaser, who did not rely on the agreement. Cook v. Hereford Cattle Co. v. Barnhart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 692.

5. Acts done or omitted, and change of position.—A., having a judgment against B., and tendered C. to attend the sheriff's sale and buy the land in for A. C., having attended the sale and purchased the land, some time afterward procured from the sheriff a deed to himself under which he claimed the land adversely to A. Afterwards A. procured a sale of the same land under an execution on his judgment against C., whom he became the purchaser. Held, that A. was not thereby estopped from claiming the benefit of the purchase made by C. at the first sale, although the fact might be used as evidence of A.'s abandonment of the contract made with C., subject to explanation by the evidence. Byrnes v. Morris, 52 T. 214.

An estoppel rests upon actual or constructive fraud. The action of a land-owner in fencing and claiming to a fixed point on the line of his survey will not estop him from claiming that the line be extended, when his action has not caused others to alter their position regarding the property; and the establishment of his claim in connection with acts done by him would not operate as a fraud on any one. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 472, 3 S. W. 671.

A declaration, though untrue, cannot operate as an estoppel if the person to whom it is made by the party from whom the declaration is made, was led to change his position for the worse. Boam v. Atlantic & Gulf Ry. Co., 12 S. W. 403.

Estoppel cannot be invoked to protect a person from the legal consequences of his act or omission, where such act or omission was in no wise induced by the act or omission of the other party relied on as constituting the estoppel. Head v. Pacific Express Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 882.

To constitute an estoppel in pais, the matters claimed to constitute an estoppel must have in some material respect influenced the conduct of the other party. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1164.

Plaintiff held not to have changed his position by reason of taking certain personal property, and was therefore not entitled to claim that defendant was estopped to deny that the firm, and not an individual partner, owned the property. Rickerson v. Best (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 532.

6. Benefit to person against whom estoppel is asserted.—A cotenant, not having received any benefit from a contract for the sale of the property, held not estopped to deny that his cotenant had authority to bind him by the contract. Naylor v. Parker (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 93.

7. Prejudice to person setting up estoppel.—To render available an estoppel, the one invoking it must establish that, unless the name is allowed, injustice will result. Blackburn v. Delta County, 48 C. A. 370, 107 S. W. 80.

A partner fraudulently induced to enter a partnership held not estopped to deny liability for the note given by the former firm, by his partner without his consent, where the extension of time for payment allowed by the note was not shown to have caused the creditor injury. Beene & Trotter v. Rotan Grocery Co., 50 C. A. 448, 110 S. W. 1182.

There can be no estoppel, unless some one has been caused to act to his injury or hurt by the party sought to be estopped. Franklin v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1166.

 Evidence held to show that the payee of notes to which the maker had forged the name of another as co-maker suffered no prejudice of delay from the person whose name was forged in notifying the payee of the forgery. Stockyards Nat. Bank v. Smith (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 464.

A claimant's claim held not estopped by answer alleging that a conveyance was upon a contingency as against a subsequent purchaser who did not rely thereon and who paid nothing of value for his conveyance. Morris v. Short (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 633.

If defendant railroad company was not misled or induced to prejudicially alter his position by an act purported to remove a minor's disabilities, the minor would not be estopped from asserting its invalidity because he had, by his father's permission, appropriated the proceeds of his own labor for some time. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 115.

A party to a collusive or fraudulent proceeding cannot be heard to complain of its fraudulent nature on his own failure to profit by the transaction. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 578.

A grantee who obtained his deed by fraud cannot rely on an estoppel against the grantor to deny his title, based on her silence while he was making improvements. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 846.

9. Estoppel against estoppel.—A mortgagee holding foreclosed, sequestered, and replotted the property as the action on the recovery bond he cannot plead, by way of estoppel, the mortgagor's prior agreement to permit private sale of the goods. Cameron v. Hinton, 92 T. 422, 94 S. W. 1047.

10. Estoppel against public, government or public officers.—The doctrine of estoppel does not apply to an individual. The only exception to the rule is in those cases in which the act sought to be made binding was done in her sovereign capacity by legislative action or resolution. Thus, University league No. 2 was created and surveyed by Tucker in 1833, and the north line of University league and south line of Tucker league was a common boundary between the two. In 1854 N., the county surveyor, at the request of the owner of the Tucker league, ran off the same and established its south boundary line—not the true line, but within the University league and south of its north boundary line. In 1856 M., county surveyor, under the act of the legislature of August 30, 1856, subdivided University league into tracts of one hundred and sixty acres. He commenced on south side of league and worked north, and surveyed and recognized as its north line a line corresponding with the north boundary of Tucker league as established by M., and this line was generally recognized in the neighborhood as the true division line between the University league and the Tucker survey. The state afterwards sold off the league in accordance with the subdivision made by N. Subsequently it was ascertained that the north line of the Tucker survey as recognized by the surveyor was not the true line, and B., then county surveyor, was ordered by the proper state authority to subdivide that portion of the University league lying between the line originally recognized by N., and the true line in fact, which embraced the land in controversy, the same having been bought from the state by H. Before this mistake was ascertained S. had also bought the land in controversy as a part of the Tucker survey, having reference to the lines as they were then supposed to exist, and paid a valuable consideration therefor. In a contest between these two claims it was held that the purchaser from the state was not estopped by the action of the county surveyor. Saunders v. Hart, 57 T. 8.

The fact that the state accepted in payment of loans warrants issued by it in violation of the constitution held not to preclude it from denying the validity of the warrants. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 41 S.W. 107.

A county held estopped from claiming part of lands conveyed with reference to a survey made by it, on the ground that said survey was erroneous. Colonial & U. S. Mortgage Co. v. Tibbs (Civ. App.) 45 S.W. 623.

When the commissioner of the land office has no authority to dispose of school lands, he could do no act which would estop the state and a person claiming thereunder from claiming title to such lands. Childress County Land & Cattle Co. v. Baker, 23 C. A. 345, 54 S.W. 724.

The state held not estopped by an act of an officer in the exercise of a power not delegated to him. Carothers v. Rogan, 96 T. 114, 70 S.W. 18.

A city having permitted a county to occupy and improve with costly buildings land dedicated as a municipal square held estopped to claim the property as against the county. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 94 S.W. 385.

The fact that the commissioner of the general land office adopted a survey made by the owners of a grant under the confirmation act of 1852 to the extent of delineating the same on the map did not estop the state from thereafter claiming that the survey was incorrect. Sullivan v. State, 41 C. A. 83, 95 S.W. 645.

The fact that a party seeking to purchase certain school land was led by the act of the state land commissioner to make a mistake which caused him to lose the chance to purchase the land does not act as an estoppel against the state. Hamilton v. Goudy, 46 C. A. 506, 103 S.W. 1177.

Where the commissioners' court without authority contracted with the county clerk to pay him a certain sum for work in indexing the records in his office and paid him therefor, the county is not estopped to deny the validity of the contract or recover the amount paid. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S.W. 592.

Right of city by virtue of estoppel to use of county building stated. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 129 S.W. 595.

State and county officers held not estopped from proceeding against a liquor dealer criminally for doing business under a void license. Lane v. Schults & Buss (Civ. App.) 146 S.W. 1069.

II. Grounds of Estoppel

11. Inconsistency of conduct and claims in general.—The heirs at law are not estopped from averring the majority of the testator and consequent nullity of his will by having dealt with and treated him as of full age and capable of acting sui juris. Moore v. Moore, 23 T. 637.

In a suit instituted against a railroad to recover the penalty for an overcharge on freight from A. to M., it having been proven that defendant had at all times charged for seventy-one miles as the correct distance, held, that it was estopped from denying that as the true distance. I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Pichard, 1 App. C. C. § 435.

When a railroad company receives articles for transportation as baggage, its agent knowing at the time that such articles are not properly baggage, the company is estopped from denying the fact to be as admitted. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Capps, 2 App. C. C. § 34.

The form upon which a telegram was written contained a condition that a claim for damages should be presented within thirty days after receipt of the message. Within thirty days after delivering the message, the sender by letter notified the superintendent of the company that the message had not been delivered, and claimed $200 damages. The receipt of the letter was acknowledged and the statement made that the claim was being investigated. Investigation was assigned to the sender and should be informed of the decision of the company. Held, that in a suit for damages afterwards brought the company was estopped from denying the sufficiency of the notice. W. T. Co. v. Pells, 2 App. C. C. § 44.

The declarations of a ward made to his guardian before attaining his majority that he would soon be twenty-one years old, and that he would, after attaining his majority, allow the guardian credit for goods purchased of him, is not binding on the ward after he attains his majority, either as a contract or by way of estoppel. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S.W. 222.

Claimant in sequestration held estopped to assert that his title was not involved in the suit. Barton v. Stroud-Gibson Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1058.

One who sought to have a road opened held estopped, after the proceedings had resulted unfavorably, to show that he had a private right of way at the same point. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 596, 45 S. W. 939.

Where a tax which had been pledged for the purchase of another, for the latter's daughter, had not been recovered and paid, the judgment of the court, and the title which the purchaser, the seller, had to the residence, was held, as against the widow of the deceased, for the judgment had been rendered in her favor without her knowledge. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Andrews. 36 S. W. 829.

Where a plaintiff paid a part of the price, and sold the goods to another for an increased price, did not estop him to set up a breach of warranty, in an action by the seller for the price. C. H. Dean Co. v. Standifer, 37 C. A. 181, 83 S. W. 230.

In a contract of sale by rescinding a contract for sale, and the seller who furnished the materials, had estopped, by his position as seller, to assert that the contract was void. Ry. v. McComb, 51 S. W. 401.

In a suit to recover his personal property, the possessor was held estopped to assert that his possession was on the part of the possessor, only a right to the possession of the property. Grace v. Walker, 96 T. 33, 64 S. W. 930.

Possession or acts of ownership under title or claim.—One who acquires possession of land from a tenant and holds only under him is estopped from denying the landlord's title. Swan v. Busby, 24 S. W. 303, 5 C. A. 63. See Welder v. McComb, 30 S. W. 522, 10 C. A. 56; Dodge v. Phelan, 21 S. W. 309, 2 C. A. 441.

Claim or position in judicial proceedings.—Parties actively urging the appointment of a commissioner and thereafter recognizing his authority are estopped by his acts. Grande v. Chaves, 15 T. 559; Ryan v. Maxey, 43 T. 192.

One party having sued for and recovered money as guardian of a minor is estopped from discharging the character in which he acted to avoid the payment to the party entitled to it. Fortis v. Cummings, 21 T. 265.

In 1870, after the death of his wife, gave certain property to each of his children, and executed to his youngest daughter, M., a deed for forty acres of land. This deed was not executed and the execution J. conveyed the land to others, who had notice of the conveyance, for $1,000, of which $600 was loaned in M.'s name. In 1871, a minor, married, and she and her husband immediately instituted suit for the land. Two days after this suit M. and her husband brought suit for the money loaned, and declared their willingness, in case of recovery, to account therefor. Held, that they were not estopped from prosecuting their suit for the land and recovering the same. Thomas v. Groesbeck, 40 T. 530.

One of two minors died leaving a large estate incumbered by debts incurred by their guardian. The heirs of the deceased minor applied for partition, which was resisted by the guardian insisting that he should be kept harmless from debts he had incurred on account of the deceased. The heirs then united in an application to the probate court for sale of land to pay the debts and for partition of the remainder, and the court so ordered. Held, that the married women participating in the proceedings were concluded by the sale under the order. Ryan v. Maxey, 43 T. 192.

A woman held estopped to deny validity of deed to her separate estate after suing to recover the price. Swain v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 828.

A principal held estopped to claim that his agent's cause of action had not accrued, where he offered to pay what was due and pleaded limitations. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 55.

plaintiff, whose judgment for personal injuries was reversed because evidence was insufficient to show that a certain person was a vice principal of his employer, held not estopped from amending his petition so as to allege that his complaint was made to another, who was a vice principal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eckles, 25 C. A. 179, 60 S. W. 830.

A certain proceeding held not to estop the heirs of an owner of land from claiming the land as against a purchaser at an execution sale. Lutzer v. Allen, 43 C. A. 102, 95 S. W. 572.

In an action for a master's fraud in representing that he was carrying accident insurance for his employers, the servant could not recover both the deductions made from his wages to be used as premises and the amount of insurance purchasable with such deductions. Williams v. Detroit Oil & Cotton Co., 52 C. A. 248, 114 S. W. 167.

18. — Claim inconsistent with previous claim or position in general.—A. sued B. to subject a tract of land, a part of a larger tract, to payment of a pro rata share of the purchase money for the entire tract. B. claimed that A. was estopped from recovering on an antecedent claim that suit had been brought to enforce the vendor's lien against the owner of the other part of the original tract, that the owner of this tract was not made a party thereto because the land had been sold by the original vendee, and A., the plaintiff in the suit, had stated that the balance of the land was sufficient to pay the debt. The facts having been communicated to him prior to his purchase, Held, the evidence was insufficient to establish an estoppel. Peters v. Clements, 52 T. 140.

In a suit by children for damages to real estate, the separate property of their deceased mother, the father joined as next friend of one of the heirs. Held, that he would be estopped from thereafter asserting claim for damages for the same act to his life estate in one-third of the land. Lee v. Turner, 71 T. 364, 9 S. W. 149.

An administrator is estopped to deny that there was a sale, where he has procured a judgment for the purchase price, and foreclosure of vendor's lien. Miller v. Anders, 21 C. A. 72, 51 S. W. 897.

Filing and allowance of a claim against decedent's estate, on payment of which a mortgage was to convey the mortgaged lands to the estate, did not estop him from asserting his lien on such lands where claim was not paid. Sutherland v. Elmendorf, 24 C. A. 137, 57 S. W. 890.

That a widow, acting as independent executrix of her husband's estate, allowed a claim against it, held not to estop her from subsequently claiming priority of her widow's allowance. Administration had to the administration under the order of the court. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 829.

An administratrix with the will annexed held not estopped to claim payment of her year's allowance from the proceeds of property covered by a deed of trust by joining with a creditor for the sale thereof in a petition to sell the same. Lott v. Siebert, 436 Lott, 86 S. W. 876.

17. — Claim inconsistent with contract or title previously asserted.—Defendant held not estopped, under the evidence, from maintaining $200 owing him from an insurance company was exempt. Fife v. Netherlands Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 140.

18. — Defense or objection inconsistent with previous claim or position in general.—Where the parties in trespass to try title, claim through a common source, the defendant is not thereby estopped from showing a superior outstanding title in a third party. Rooster v. Miles, 67 C. A. 133, 2 S. W. 61.

Plaintiffs in partition held not estopped to deny a person's title by reading his will in evidence to show that all parties claimed from a common source. Siebert v. Lott, 20 C. A. 191, 49 S. W. 783.

Defendants, who bring in a third person as a party, held not entitled to complain of the court's action in settling that person's rights. Ellis v. National Exch. Bank, 38 C. A. 619, 86 S. W. 776.

A defendant by pleading non est factum to a written contract sued on, and setting up a verbal contract antecedent thereto, is not estopped to abandon such plea, and rely upon the written contract by a subsequent amended answer. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 103 S. W. 435.

One accused of fraudulently disposing of mortgaged property having admitted that he received possession of the property by agreeing to give a mortgage thereon, and that he did execute and deliver the mortgage, should not be permitted to show that, in fact, he did not do so. Loggins v. State (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 170.

19. — Position inconsistent with previous assertion of title in another in general.—The heirs of a husband brought suit against a league of creditors granted to their ancestor as a colonist in April, 1833. The defendants pleaded, among other matters, that plaintiffs' ancestor was an alien, that plaintiffs were alien enemies, that the land had been forfeited by an abandonment of the country, etc. The defendants also claimed the land by purchase at administration, sale, and under tax titles. The court said: The title of the plaintiff was sufficiently proved. The defendants had acknowledged it, and had asserted its existence and validity in various ways. The defendant H. had made it the subject of administration in the probate court; the defendant I. had purchased and claimed title under it. They had given in evidence, and claimed under their several tax titles and administrators' deeds, which were based upon and recited the plaintiff's title. Having thus acknowledged and asserted it in their pleadings and evidence, they could not afterwards contest its validity. Haney v. Williams v. De Jones, 27 T. 311.

After the death of the husband certain property was inventoried as community property, but afterwards, on application of the widow, an order was made by the probate court correcting the inventory in this respect. On final settlement the property was partitioned as the widow inventory property, and the property was conveyed in their children as a part of their estate. Held, that she was not estopped from recovering the property so inventoried as her separate property, her conduct not having been fraudulent in its purpose or unjust in its results. Dunham v. Chatham, 21 T. 231, 73 Am. Dec. 228.

One accused of her husband's estate of his community property. Afterwards, she and her second husband were appointed administrators of the estate and returned another inventory, omitting the property first mentioned. In a suit by the children of the first marriage for the recovery of the property, it was held that she had not, by asserting her title to the property, and it was not necessary for her to allege that in returning the first inventory she acted in ignorance of her rights. Little v. Birdwell, 21 T. 597, 73 Am. Dec. 242.

The plaintiffs claimed a league of land by virtue of their sole heirship of Louis, the only child and sole heir of Sideck, the grantee. The defendant was administratrix by of Teal, who claimed one-half of the land by donation from Sidek, and the remainder as his heirs' adoption. Teal had administered upon the estate of Sidek, and had ventured the land in controversy as the property of the estate. Held, that Teal was not thereby estopped from claiming the land in his own right. Teal v. Sevier, 26 T. 516.

20. By levy of attachment or execution.—In a suit brought to set aside an execution sale of land, the defendant who acquired title and possession by such sale is estopped from denying the validity of the title down to the person upon whom he claims. Pearson v. Flanagan, 55 T. 266.

21. — Pleadings.—Plaintiff held not estopped by an allegation in his pleadings as to the time when a certain law took effect. Purcell v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 836.

22. — Stipulations.—A party who has signed and filed a stipulation in a cause that a judgment may be entered against him by a district court cannot question its jurisdiction. Hensley v. Hensley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 578.

23. Failure to assert title or right.—The lands purchased by a husband before marriage are set apart to his widow as a homestead, and that no claim is presented for her interest in the improvements placed thereon by community funds, does not estop her or her successors from asserting such claim. Hillen v. Williams, 25 C. A. 363, 60 S. W. 997.

24. — Disclaimer.—When the defendant disclaims as to all the land sued for except a part which he designates by metes and bounds, as to which he pleads not guilty, and on the trial it is shown that the deed under which the plaintiff claims all the land is a forgery, the disclaimer constitutes an estoppel of record, and the plaintiff will be entitled as against such defendants to a judgment for the land to which the disclaimer applies, and on the trial of the judgment against another, held not to estop plaintiff from claiming the land. Waggoner v. Dodson, 96 T. 415, 73 S. W. 517.

25. Clothing another with apparent title or authority.—Agency.—The recognition of a certain inference in an instrument held not to estop the principal from denying that such person was his agent on a subsequent occasion. Owens v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 733.
Act. 3687

Having by the creation of an agency bestowed on the agent a certain character, the principal was estopped to assert as against third persons that he did not intend to give the agent so much authority. Birge-Forbes Co. v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 53 C. A. 55, 115 S. W. 333.

26. — Real property.—Defendant, who had acknowledged that another had title to land held estopped to deny it. Hitchler v. Boyles, 21 C. A. 230, 51 S. W. 48.

Under an unrecorded deed conveying an unimproved tract of land, it was held as a matter of estoppel that the defendant had purchased the property from a mortgagee, as such he was estopped from denying the validity of the mortgage. Allen v. Exchange Nat. Bank, 21 C. A. 450, 52 S. W. 578.

27. — Personal property.—A mortgagee held estopped to deny the mortgagee's power to sell the property to satisfy the debt, where he had asserted the existence of such power to one who purchased at the sale in reliance thereon.Clark v. Wood (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1132.

Where the owner of goods placed them in possession of another and allowed him to hold himself out as their owner, and a third person took a mortgage on the goods, the actual owner held estopped to dispute the possessor's apparent title. B. F. Avery & Sons v. Collins (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 426.

28. — Relying and acting on apparent title or authority.—Where a principal invests an agent with apparent authority, he is liable to one dealing with the agent in reliance thereon, who has no notice of private instructions limiting such apparent authority. Conklin v. Morgan, 53 T. 394, 55 S. W. 322.

An owner of personal property investing another with the apparent ownership is estopped to claim title to the property after the party in possession has secured advances from a third person, who believes the title to be in the apparent owner. Kempner v. Thompson, 45 C. A. 297, 106 S. W. 531.

29. Dealing with person asserting title or exercising authority.—Acceptance by married woman of deed conveying her own property to her for life, remainder to her children, held not to divest her of her title to such property. White v. Simonton, 34 C. A. 464, 79 S. W. 621.

A person accepting an unauthorized contract from an agent held estopped to claim that the agent was authorized to make another contract and that he is only asserting the same rights as such other contract would have conferred, and hence no harm had been done. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1092.

30. Contracts.—A minor is not estopped by any agreement made by her guardian in relation to the partition of real estate which has not been sanctioned by a court of competent jurisdiction. Rainey v. Chambers, 56 T. 17.

31. — Dealing for personal property, under an executory contract for its sale and delivery. When it is estopped, as against a possessor, to deny that it was of the character bargained for, and this though he may have received it under protest. Parke v. O'Connor, 76 T. 377, 8 S. W. 104.

Where defendant prosecuted defendants for unlawfully selling liquor to his minor son, and the plea of the two defendants allowed him to prove relief in reliance on plaintiff's promise that, if they would do so, he would not sue them civilly, plaintiff was not estopped from bringing a civil suit. Loomis v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 623.

32. On an issue of damages for breach of a contract to deliver patented motors, defendant held estopped to claim damages for failure to deliver the balance contracted for by having given notes for those delivered. Sun Mfg. Co. v. Eibert & Guthrie, 37 C. A. 512, 84 S. W. 667.

33. — Recognition of rights.—Defendants, by recognizing plaintiff's right to an option on county land, when they entered into an agreement with plaintiff for its purchase from the county, held thereafter estopped from denying the validity of the option. Eldred v. Cox, 52 C. A. 60, 114 S. W. 410.

34. — Contracts relating to real estate.—Grantees of a homestead held estopped to assert that they were received from grantees, reserving a vendor's lien, did not create a lien. Breneman v. Mayer, 24 C. A. 164, 58 S. W. 765.

Vendee in a conveyance, having given a note reserving a vendor's lien, held estopped to assert invalidity of lien. 1d.

35. Sale with warranty of street railroad property by stockholders held to estop them from afterwards setting up title secured by them through a prior lien. Parker v. Citizens' Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 168, 95 S. W. 38.

A leasehold estopped from insisting that a barn was included in the property leased to him. Goodhue v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 628.
33. Relying or acting on contract.—Grantors of a lien contract, defectively acknowledged, held not estopped to assert the invalidity as against a third person subrogated to the rights of the original lienor. Workman’s Mut. Aid Ass’n v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1029.

An agreement by the holder of a note to extend time of payment, though not based on any consideration, may estop him from exercising an option to declare the note due, where the maker was induced to relax his efforts to procure money which he could otherwise have procured. Corbett v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 858.

34. Official acts.—To establish a title in the heirs of an allottee of land by estoppel as against a commissioner in partition, held, that it must be shown that the commissioner held title to the land allotted, that the heirs were ignorant of the true status of the title, and were by this conduct induced to alter their position with reference to their property rights. Long v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 946.

35. That the names of his own name for land in which B. had an equal interest. In 1852 A. and B. made a verbal partition of the lands described in the patents, by which the lands in controversy were set apart to B. Afterwards B. made a verbal partition of the lands among his children, giving the land in controversy to C. and D., and other lands to E. and F. At that time A. had become insane, and B. induced the children of A. to make quitclaim deeds to the several children of himself in accordance with his verbal gift. No consideration was paid for the conveyance. At the date of this deed F. was a minor, was not present and had no knowledge of the transaction. In 1870 C. married G., and in 1872 died without issue, having given his interest in the land in controversy to his wife. D. died intestate without issue. E. died leaving H. and a daughter, J. B. after the death of his three sons, C., D. and E., conveyed the lands in controversy to F., with the avowed purpose to defeat the claim of G. Held, that B. was not estopped from asserting that the conveyance made at his request by the children of A. passed no title, nor was he estopped by his verbal gift and partition among his children from afterwards conveying the land, as they had not been put in possession, nor had they, relying on such title, expended money or otherwise changed their position. Perrin v. Perrin, 62 T. 477.

Where a person has acted or refrained from acting in a particular manner on the request of another, the latter is estopped to take any position inconsistent with his request to the latter. Nelson v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 822. S. W. 1870.

Declarant of conveying a creditor’s attorney’s suit, that he intended to do nothing further held not to estop to sue on claimant’s bond. Dewart v. Wichita Val. Mill & Elevator Co., 17 C. A. 394, 43 S. W. 1047.

Declarations of parties that property was not a part of their homestead and it did not contribute to its use might constitute an estoppel. Howe v. O’Brien (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 813.

Where a taxpayer renders several lots in bulk, he is thereafter estopped from claiming that an assessment against them in bulk was illegal. City of Houston v. Stewart, 40 C. A. 499, 90 S. W. 49.

In order to estop a married woman from asserting the insufficiency of the certificate of her acknowledgment to a deed, it is essential that she be guilty of some positive act of fraud or of concealment or suppression which will be equivalent thereto. Kopke v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 16.

Where a person with knowledge of the truth makes a false representation of a material fact to a person ignorant of the truth under circumstances reasonably calculated to induce him to rely upon the representation, he acts upon it, the person making the representation is estopped from asserting the truth. Walker v. Erwin, 47 C. A. 637, 106 S. W. 164.

A false statement held not one on which an estoppel might be predicated. Ragley-McWilliam Co. v. Hare (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 564.

37. Ownership of property.—A married man, who induces a creditor to accept a conveyance of his homestead in payment of a debt by a statement that he had no wife, is estopped from setting up the invalidity of the conveyance on the ground that he was then a married man. Schwarz v. National Bank of Texas, 67 T. 217, 2 S. W. 885.

38. Existence and extent of liens and claims.—A firm held estopped as against a third person by the necessity of bookkeeping for store account, but not estopped to claim lien for other store account. Cadenhead v. Rogers & Bro. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 952.

39. As to financial standing.—A written certificate from a bank, stating that the county treasurer had a certain credit balance, held not conclusive of the bank’s liability to the county. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 937.

Where the county treasurer had defaulted, it was held insufficient to estop the bank to show that by its action the county was prevented from prosecuting the treasurer; no loss to the county resulting. Id.

It was insufficient to estop the bank to show that the treasurer was prevented from being removed or from qualifying as his own successor, no loss resulting. Id.

Nor could the bank be estopped where it was not shown that the treasurer and his sureties were insolvent. Id.

To entitle a county to interpose an estoppel against a bank to deny that the treasurer had a certain credit balance, the bank’s representation must have been made to an officer having control of the county finances, and authorized to take action to protect them. Anderson v. Walker, 93 T. 119, 63 S. W. 281.
40.——Validity of bills or notes.—Maker of vendor's lien note, who requests another to take it up and hold it as subject to his title, cannot object of the payee had no authority to indorse it. Henry v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 129.

41.——Relying and acting on representations.—In an action for the value of a car of corn shipped by defendant to a third person on plaintiff's order, but shipped so that the second person obtained it without first making payment, plaintiff held not entitled to recover on the theory of an estoppel. Smith v. Landa, 45 C. A. 446, 101 S. W. 470.

42. Admissions and receipts.—In a suit for the hire of personal property, the plaintiff sought to establish a life estate therein by the admissions of one of the defendants, a married woman, who held the same under a deed of gift in which there was no reservation of the life estate in favor of plaintiff. Held, that a married woman was not estopped by bare declarations or admissions, when no one had been in any manner injured thereby, or had acted upon them. Grooms v. Rust, 27 T. 231. A. having received from an executor a certain sum of money due him as a legatee, gave a receipt therefor as being in full of his interest in the estate. Held, that he was not thereby estopped from claiming any additional sum to which he was entitled on final settlement. Chiff v. Wadu, 51 T. 14.

Executrix, returning property in inventory as belonging to estate, held not estopped from claiming title thereto under deed from testator. Huff v. Maroney, 23 C. A. 465, 56 S. W. 754.

43. Assent to or ratification of acts of others in general.—The owner of a league of land employed a surveyor to resurvey and mark the old lines on which the original marks had become obscure, but in doing the work the surveyor made a new line which conflicted with the original survey. Subsequently the owner had a new survey made in which the original line was followed. Afterwards the land between the two lines was located as vacated. It was held that the owner's act in vacating the land was not estopped from claiming the land lying between the old and new lines. Love v. Barber, 17 T. 312.

Two joint patentees executed and recorded a deed of partition between themselves; afterwards one of them alleging as to the validity of the partition, a new patent was obtained. Thirty-six years after recording the deed of partition, and twenty-five years after the issuance of the second patent, the heirs of one of the patentees brought suit for partition. Held, that the issuance of the second patent did not work a revocation of the partition, and that the fact of partition having been sold to defendants a portion of the land claimed by plaintiffs under the deed of partition estopped them from asserting a right inconsistent with that deed. Brackenridge v. Howth, 64 T. 190.

When a railroad company had for several years recognized and maintained a road crossing over its line of railroad as a crossing way for the public, it was estopped from denying that it was a public road. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 2 App. C. C. § 304.

A. and B. were partners engaged in the purchase of cattle in Mississippi to be shipped to Texas, and agreed to the same. A. made a purchase of cattle at a higher price than he was authorized to pay, shipped the same to B., who with full knowledge of the facts sold the cattle at a loss, which he claimed should be paid by A. Held, that B. was not estopped by the receipt and sale of the cattle, which was necessary to prevent a greater loss and to provide means for paying for them, from claiming that the loss should be borne by A. Gill v. Wilson, 2 App. C. C. §§ 380, 381.

Where owners of property subject to a lien sell it, and in the sale make provision for its settlement, the purchasers cannot dispute its validity. Michigan Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Attreberry, 16 C. A. 222, 42 S. W. 569.

Failure to repudiate act of cashier held not to amount to estoppel. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 533.

Principals held to have ratified a conveyance by their attorney in fact, by partitioning among themselves lands received in consideration therefor. Smith v. Cantrel (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1081.

One doing business under a transferred liquor license held estopped to deny the authority of the agent of the former owner to make the transfer. Faulkner v. Cassidy, 39 C. A. 415, 87 S. W. 904.

In an action for damages for an unlawful search, plaintiff held not precluded from recovering damages by having consented to be searched after he was illegally arrested. Regan v. Harkey, 49 C. A. 16, 87 S. W. 1164.

One cannot recover damages for an act in which he actually participated without fraud or misrepresentation. Moore v. Woodson, 53 C. A. 588, 116 S. W. 608.

To affect one by acquiescence in the language or conduct of another, the acquiescing party must fully know the conduct or understand the language, so that his acquiescence amounts to voluntary conduct. Harris Millinery Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 995.

When commodity, without authority, signed his covenatant's name to an option contract for the sale of the property, the latter, on being informed, was not bound to repudiate the sale or notify the purchaser of his covenatant's lack of authority on pain of being presumed to have ratified the contract. Naylor v. Parker (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 93.

A parol ratification of an agent's unauthorized sale of land must be sufficient to constitute an equitable estoppel. Clark & Boice Lumber Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 983.

44.——Contracts.—A. employed B. as a traveling salesman, it being stipulated that he should make regular written reports, and that a failure on his part operated as a foreclosure. B. failed to make required reports, but was continued by A. in his employment, and after such failure to report was known A. received verbal report from him and sent him out again under the same contract. In an action by B. for his salary, held, that A. was estopped from setting up the breach of contract. Clegg v. Gee, 2 App. C. C. § 543.

Plaintiff's consent to the employment of his minor son at work in which he was inexperienced, which proximately resulted in his injury, held a bar to plaintiff's recovery therefor. Snavely v. R. R. Co. v. Blasey 86 S. W. 453.

Buyer's ordering shipment of goods purchased after receipt of letter from sellers, held not acquiescence in new terms suggested by sellers. J. B. Brennan & Son v. Dansby & Dansby, 45 C. A. 7, 95 S. W. 700.

Owner of land held to have ratified his agent's act in employing a broker to sell it so as to make himself liable for commissions. Dockery v. Maple (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 621.

Delay of a person whose name was forged on a note in notifying the payee held not to estop him from asserting a forgery in an action against him on the note. Stockyards Nat. Bank v. Smith (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 454.

Assent to or participation in Judicial proceedings.—Where a husband attempts to use the privilege of a decree of divorce to uphold a settlement made with the wife, he cannot thereafter complain of its invalidity. Moor v. Moor (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 347.

Where an administrator's sale of land belonging to the estate was invalid, that the heirs received and disposed of the remainder of the estate, without protest, did not estop them from afterward asserting the invalidity of the sale. Wilkin v. Geo. W. Owens & Bros., 102 T. 197, 114 S. W. 104, 115 S. W. 1174, 117 S. W. 405, 132 Am. St. Rep. 867.

Partition proceedings.—Suit was brought by Scoby to set aside the will of his grandfather, for an account against the executors of the will, and a recovery of a portion of the estate which inured to him as forced heir. The defendants claimed that plaintiff held by having accepted a legacy and acquiesced in the will, and by having acquiesced in the partition and distribution of the estate under its direction. It was proven that $1,200 given to plaintiff by the will was paid to him in Tennessee just after he reached majority. The bulk of the testator's property was in Tennessee, and the plaintiff did not appear to have known its value or the laws of Texas by which its distribution was governed. Held, that he was not estopped by receiving the legacy or by the partition of the estate from contesting the will. Scoby v. Sweatt, 28 T. 713.

A. widow with seven children, married B., removed to Texas in 1836, and acquired the property in controversy. A. died in 1841, leaving surviving his wife, B., two children by her, to wit, E., who afterwards died, and C., and also the children of his first marriage, B., after the death of A., married and died, leaving one child, L., by her second marriage. In 1841, the estate of A. was inventoried on the evidence of the community property of A. and B. There were no debts and no sale made of any property. In 1848, by order of the probate court, a partition was made of the estate of A., and the entire property inventoried was divided among the nine heirs of A., giving to each one-ninth of the same, and ignoring the rights of L., the child of B. by the second marriage, who as heir was entitled to three-eighteenths of the entire estate. G. was entitled to three-eighteenths as heir of his mother, and one-eighteenth as heir of his father, instead of which he received two-eighteenths of the whole. L. was named in the petition for distribution filed by the administrator as entitled to a distributive share of the estate, but was not in any way made a party to the proceeding, and her rights as above stated were ignored. L. and G. were minors under fourteen years of age when the partition was made. G. was afterwards sold to him and the law was held to have effect as his source of title. Afterwards G. and L. brought suit against the other distributees and purchasers from them for their distributive share of the land as heirs of their mother. Held, that plaintiffs were not estopped from recovering by the facts above stated. Caruth v. Grigsby & Co., 38 C. A. 245; Thompson v. Gragg, 57 T. 355.

Evidence held insufficient to estop an intestate's heirs, by their acquiescence, from claiming a part of their estate conveyed under a void decree of partition. McCarty v. Merry (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 204.

All of the heirs of land in controversy having joined in a partition, and accepted their allotments without objection, held that the grantees of one of them could not object thereto. Dutton & Rutherford v. Wright & Vaughn, 38 C. A. 372, 85 S. W. 1026.

The fact that heirs entitled to an interest in land as remaindermen accepted the proceeds of a partition of the estate held not to preclude them from claiming the remainder. Schnabel v. McNell (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 558.

Plaintiffs having acquiesced in the parol partition, and having occupied the portion allotted to them for over twenty years after discovering an error therein, held bound thereby, and estopped to claim a right to another distribution. Stephens v. Turley (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 848.

Whether a partition of land by act of parties was binding on an heir whose portion was sold by the other in partition.-story dependent on whether at the time he knew the extent of the conflict between his ancestors' land certificate and the older survey. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

48. Acceptance of benefits.—An administrator re-established by suit a land certificate which had been rejected by the traveling board of land commissioners, and which he had declared invalid in the estate, and afterwards sold to the certificate under order of the probate court for the payment of claims against the estate. The heir of the intestate instituted suit to recover from the purchaser the land acquired by him under the certificate, alleging that the probate court, by which the administrator was appointed, had not jurisdiction to grant administration on the estate; that the letters of administration were procured by a fraudulent combination between the administrator and the purchaser of the certificate; that there was fraud in the sale of the certificate, or in the proceedings in the order of sale thereof, and in consequence that the sale of the certificate was void. Held, that the heir was estopped from denying the capacity of the administrator, but was not estopped from proving fraud in the sale. Gliddings v. Steele, 38 T. 234, 31 Ia. Dec. 336.
Devisors accepting property under will held estopped to contest its provisions. Pryor v. Pendleton, 92 T. 384, 49 S. W. 212.
Acceptance of benefits of services of a person employed by an agent without authority held estopped to ratification. Swayne v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Cliv. App.) 49 S. W. 518.
A principal retaining benefits of his agent's unauthorized transactions after discovery thereof is not liable, where he cannot reject them. Id.
Where a party has accepted and appropriated lands set apart to him by commission­ers appointed to make partition, he is estopped from complaining of the partition. Robb v. Robb (Cliv. App.) 62 S. 125.
Retention and use of an article after discovery of the fraud by which the sale was induced do not prevent a recovery of the damages resulting therefrom. Hallwood Cash Register Co. v. Berry, 36 C. A. 564, 90 S. W. 857.
One who has fraudulently induced to purchase a machine, but who retains and uses it after discovery of the fraud, waives his right to rescind. Id.
Minor heirs, having actively joined in procuring a partition sale of a homestead, held estopped while retaining the benefits to contest the purchaser's equitable title through the court was without jurisdiction to order the sale. Murphy v. Sisters of the Incarnate Word of San Antonio, 43 C. A. 638, 97 S. W. 135.
A principal by retaining and using a check sent in payment of a settlement made with his agent held to ratify the agent's act. Stetson-Preston Co. v. H. S. Dodson & Co. (Cliv. App.) 103 S. W. 658.
A purchaser of property held not estopped to recover possession of the property from tenants having cashed a check for rent in advance. Thomason v. Oates, 46 C. A. 383, 103 S. W. 1114.
Acceptance by a principal of the proceeds of a settlement made by an agent with knowledge held a ratification of the agent's act. Mayfield Woolen Mills v. Long (Cliv. App.) 119 S. W. 908.
Where a landowner authorized an attorney in fact to sell the land for cash, and after a sale partly upon credit receives and retains the cash proceeds, that is all that is necessary to constitute a ratification of the sale by him. Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 122 S. W. 761.
A purchase of lumber by M. from plaintiff being on his own account, in fulfillment of his contract to furnish lumber to defendant, held, there was no acting by him as agent of defendant, of which he receiving and use of the lumber would be a ratification, so as to make her liable to plaintiff thereof. Lavernia Lumber Co. v. Plisko (Cliv. App.) 135 S. W. 607.
The fact that a principal accepted notes executed by its collector and indorsed by its debtor in satisfaction of the indebtedness held not to bind him by the collector's agreement to reconvey to the debtor within a certain time, unless he had notice of such agree­ment at the time he accepted the notes. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Jackson (Cliv. App.) 153 S. W. 637.
A principal cannot enjoy the benefits arising from a repudiated agency without also assuming the burdens imposed thereby. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Cliv. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

49. Contracts.—A married woman conveyed a tract of land, her separate property, by a deed which was not properly acknowledged, and received the purchase money, which she expended in making improvements on her separate property. Held, that her heirs were not estopped from recovering the land, but the deed might serve as a basis for a claim for the value of improvements made in good faith. Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 623, citing Berry v. Donley, 30 T. Donley, 30 T. 687.
A party defrauded cannot retain the benefits of the contract and escape its obliga­tions. Caldwell v. Dutton, 20 C. A. 368, 49 S. W. 723.
A partner in an insolvent firm, whose property is conveyed to a trustee for creditors, is estopped to act as a trustee to convey the property to satisfy the debts, after assenting by his acts to the conveyance. Williams v. Meyer (Cliv. App.) 64 S. W. 66.
Sellers of an irrigation pump held precluded, in an action on the contract of sale, from denying the construction placed on the contract by the buyer and acquiesced in by him. Masterson v. Heitmann & Co., 33 C. A. 464, 77 S. W. 583.
Contract of agent on behalf of his principal, which accepted the benefit thereof, held ratified by the principal, so as to render it liable thereon. Evans-Snider-Buel Co. v. Hilje (Cliv. App.) 83 S. W. 298.
Bona fide purchasers of land from agent acting under defective power of attorney held entitled, under doctrine of estoppel, to hold the land as against prior vendees of the equitable owner. Lewright v. Davis (Cliv. App.) 116 S. W. 598.

50. Sale and conveyance or mortgage of property.—A sale of land was made by virtue of an order of the probate court that was void. It was shown in defense, in an action of trespass to try title brought by the heirs of the decedent, that the administrator by whom the sale was made held a power of attorney from the heirs to sell, and that they had received the proceeds of the sale. Held, that they were estopped from recovering the land. Grande v. Chavez, 15 T. 550.
F. sold certain land, the property of his wife, for a negro woman; the wife was willing to it, and desired it to be done for the specific object of getting the woman to wait on her, and her husband had been willing to it to the time of her death; she also had the service of the woman in the family from the time of the trade as long as she lived, and knew that those who held the land were living on, improving, and using it as their own, during all which time she was a married woman. Held, that such facts were not sufficient to pass the title to the land from her, or to estop her heirs from setting up claim to it. Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 79.
Plaintiffs brought suit to recover the community interest of their mother in land sold by their father after her death. The defendants with other defenses pleaded the following matters by way of estoppel: the defendant after the purchase of the land had at the request of his vendor paid accounts for clothing for plaintiff amounting to $50 or $70; at the request of his vendor paid two installments of the purchase upon a life policy taken out by him for the benefit of his children, and after the father's death his children had received $2,500 on the policy. The land sold was worth from $1,000 to $1,200. Held, there was no estoppel. Bell v. Schwartz, 56 T. 365.

A mistake in the title of the deed conveying land in excess of that bargained for cannot be corrected at the suit of the vendor, when, after the discovery of the mistake, he has received payment of the purchase-money for the land thus conveyed, and yielded possession thereof to the vendee. Wittbecker v. Walters, 69 T. 470, 6 S. W. 788.

The title to land conveyed by his parent is conveyed by the present owner to whom other property is received by the parent in exchange, and who, after reaching his majority, with a full knowledge of his rights, receives from his parent a part of such property, cannot recover the land so conveyed. Nanny v. Allen, 77 T. 240, 13 S. W. 989.

The recovery of the seller from his agent who sold the cattle, which, however, was not done, does not show a waiver of the fraud. Ca-banness v. Holland, 19 C. A. 383, 47 S. W. 379.

A principal, whose agent, without authority, employs a broker to sell her lands, is not rendered liable for the compensation of the broker by selling the land to a purchaser found by him. Williams v. Moore, 24 C. A. 405, 58 S. W. 953.

If an article sold on a warranty of quality is wholly worthless, a retention of it does not preclude the purchaser from recovering for a breach of the warranty. Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 53.

Sale of land by deceased and receipt of the purchase money by his legal representatives held to give the purchaser a title superior to that of deceased's heir. Cope v. Blount, 38 C. A. 516, 91 S. W. 615.

The children of testatrix held not estopped to bring suit to set aside will by acceptance of deeds of property involved. Holland v. Couts, 100 T. 232, 98 S. W. 256.

A person taking the benefit of a contract of sale made by another as agent held bound thereby by mid term Co. v. W. Goldschm. 92 S. W. 312.

A seller who retains the purchase price for goods sold by an agent confirms the sale and ratifies the terms thereof. Id.

In trespass to try title to land located under a certificate which was traded to plaintiff for another tract by defendants' mother after her husband's death, evidence that defendants afterward joined in a conveyance of the tract received by their mother held admissible as tending to estop them from denying her right to transfer the certificate. Vann v. Denson, 56 C. A. 220, 120 S. W. 1020.

51. Permitting improvements or expenditures—Erection of buildings.—Abutting owner held not estopped to sue to abate nuisance by erection of buildings in street, though he made no formal protest while they were being erected. Richardson v. Lone Star Salt Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 647.

The city held estopped to recover possession of building erected by county on city's land or possession of the land, or to require removal of the building. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 447, 128 S. W. 199, 129 S. W. 593.

The fact that a person moves into proximity to a nuisance after it has been begun and its business carried on will not preclude him from a recovery of damages arising therefrom. A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittimann (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

52. Construction of railroad.—Where a railroad company established a yard after the building of plaintiff's house, the fact that the main track was there when plaintiff moved into the house is not sufficient to estop defendant from claiming damages for latin injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Passons (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 239.

53. Improvements and expenditures by purchasers of land.—On the 7th of April, 1866, the wife of plaintiff wrote to defendant offering to sell him a part of their home on condition, in June, 1868, defendant's parents, who had bought relying upon acts open to their observation, and indicating the true boundary as recognized by those from whom they purchased and contiguous owners; and as between original owners and boundary, whereby one of them has been induced to make permanent and valuable improvements which he would not otherwise have made on land afterwards in controversy, the same should be enforced. Heffner v. Downing, 67 T. 576.

An express parol agreement by the owners of contiguous lands as to their boundary line will be recognized as binding between such persons. Houston v. Sneed, 15 T. 310; George v. Thomas, 16 T. 89, 67 Am. Dec. 612. Such an agreement may be implied from the acts and long acquiescence of parties, which should be enforced when a failure to enforce it would result in injuries to subsequent purchasers, who have bought relying upon acts open to their observation, and indicating the true boundary as recognized by those from whom they purchased and contiguous owners; and as between original owners and boundary, whereby one of them has been induced to make permanent and valuable improvements which he would not otherwise have made on land afterwards in controversy, the same should be enforced. Heffner v. Downing, 67 T. 576.

A married woman properly executed a deed conveying land, her separate property. It recited a consideration of $1,500, and the name of the grantee was in blank. The deed was placed by her husband in the hands of an agent to effect a sale, and the land was sold by him for $2,000, and the money paid to the husband, the wife refusing to receive any part of it. Held, that she was not estopped by the deed from recovering the land from the purchaser; but having remained silent for seven years, while the purchaser was improving the property, she was estopped from recovering possession until he sold for improvements. Cove v. Gammel, 67 T. 577.

A married woman conveyed a tract of land, her separate property, by a deed which was not properly acknowledged, and received the purchase money, which she expended in making improvements on her separate property. Held, that her heirs were not estopped from recovering the land, but the deed might serve as a basis for a claim.

54. Knowledge of facts.—Where a city and county acted with equal knowledge of facts, city held not estopped to claim title to the land of which county took possession under an agreement. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 103 T. 477, 128 S. W. 109, 129 S. W. 593.

That plaintiff railroad company did not object when defendant's track was laid across the land in controversy did not create an estoppel against plaintiff. If plaintiff's officials did not know at the time that it owned the land, Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Southern Ry. Co. (Tex. Co. Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 880.

55. Permitting sale or mortgage of property.—A judgment creditor assented to a conveyance by the judgment debtor of certain land embraced in the lien of the judgment, to a trustee to pay certain debts, including his own, and attended the sale under the deed of trust, but favoring the sale thereto, that he was not estopped from contesting the validity of the trust, or asserting the lien of his judgment against the purchaser at the trust sale; and such judgment creditor having afterwards purchased the same land under execution on his judgment and sold it to another who had notice of the previous sale, the last purchaser was in no better condition than his vendor. Luter v. Rose, 20 T. 639.

Plaintiffs brought suit to recover the community interest of their mother in land located by virtue of the headright certificate issued to their father during marriage and sold by him after the death of their mother. The defendants, among other matters, relied upon an estoppel by reason of plaintiffs having been present at the time of the sale and making no objections thereto. The defendant at the time of his purchase had full knowledge of the rights of plaintiffs. Held, that there was no estoppel. If the real owner permit a third person to purchase property without notice of his claim from the apparent owner, he will be estopped from asserting the title against such innocent and bona fide purchaser. Burleson v. Burleson, 28 T. 383.

In 1851, A. bought a tract of land on deferred payment purchased by the vendor's lien. In 1852, all the purchase money being due, B. demanded payment; S. told him that he had no money, but could sell the land for Confederate notes, which he would do if B. would receive that money in payment of the notes. B. would receive Confederate money, and desired S. to sell the land. About four weeks afterwards S. sold the land and tendered the money to B., who refused to receive it. In 1856 B. brought suit against S., recovered a judgment against him for the debt and foreclosure of his vendor's lien, and afterwards purchased the land under an order of sale issued on his Judgment. The vendee of S. was not a party to the suit. In 1869 B. brought suit for the land against J., who purchased from S. Held, that B. was estopped from claiming the land. Johnson v. Byler, 38 T. 696.

An owner of property in his actual possession held not estopped by his silence from asserting title thereto as against a purchaser thereof. Stanger v. Dorsey, 22 C. A. 673, 55 S. W. 139.

One in possession, or claiming under a registered deed, is not estopped to claim title against one whom he did not notify of his title. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 687.

Contract between law firm and person representing himself as agent of person having the legal title held inoperative as to the legal title, but as conveying an equitable interest by way of estoppel as against the equitable owner. Lewrighth v. Davis (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 499.

B.'s signing as witness a deed by G. to C. held not to estop B.'s heirs from claiming that the land unless C.'s vendees were influenced in their purchase by B. having witnessed G.'s deed. Roberts v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1120.

Creditor who had acquiesced in the debtor's sale of his entire stock held estopped to hold the buyer for conversion. First State Bank of Teague v. Walter & Hafner Jewelry Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 708.

56. — Public or judicial sale.—In 1853 R. and wife sold to L. a tract of land and executed a bond for title therefor. L. paid a portion of the purchase money and died in 1854. Administration was granted on L.'s estate, and in 1855 R. and wife filed their petition. L. was indebted to them for the balance of the purchase money, and procured an order of sale under which the land was sold and purchased by D. In 1857 D. brought suit for the land against R. and wife, who defended on the ground (among others) that the land was the separate property of the wife, who had never acknowledged the sale in the manner required by law. Held, that she was estopped from denying the validity of the administration sale. Dalton v. Rust, 22 T. 138.

On the 7th of August, 1831, a grant of land was made to Wm. Chase, as a colonist. At the time of the grant Chase was married to Eliza Page Chase, who died in 1833, leaving two children by a former marriage, to wit, J. W. Page and S. P. Page. J. W. Page died in 1834, leaving S. P. Page his only heir. William Chase, after the death of his wife, married Elizabeth, second wife, named Mary, and he died in Brazoria county in 1834. His widow, Mary, returned an inventory of his estate, on which was the league of land in controversy. One of the appraisers was J. W. Page. Afterwards Mary married Bayes, who joined her in the administration, and they afterwards returned an inventory to the land in controversy. In 1848 the land was sold by order of the probate court, S. P. Page being present at the sale. It also appeared that in 1833 J. W. Page was administrator of his mother's estate, and was also guardian of his brother. The land was used as a part of his mother's estate, was sold, by S. P. Page for his mother's interest in the land against the purchaser at the administration's sale, it was held that plaintiff was not estopped from recovering the land by reason of the facts above stated, it not appearing that he knew of his rights in the premises, or that the purchaser at the sale was influenced by his action. Page v. Arnim, 29 T. 53.

A. owner of land, conveyed it to B. by deed August 3, 1862. A judgment had been rendered against A. in 1869, which was supposed by all the parties to be a lien on the land, but which in fact was not. A died in 1899, and administration was duly granted on his estate. At the March term, 1870, of the county court, the plaintiff in the judgment filed his petition for the sale of the land, a sale was ordered and he became the purchaser. In 1869 D., who desired to purchase the land, went to see B. In reference thereto, and was told by B. that the land had been sold in satisfaction of the judgment and when told that such sale had not been made as he was satisfied that it would be made unless he paid off the judgment, and he preferred to keep his money and let the land go. Thereafter D. bought the land from the plaintiff in the name of B. Before D. took title, a judgment was entered against B. to induce him to abandon his purchase on certain conditions, which D. refused to accept. In an action by B. to recover the land from D., it was held that he was estopped from claiming it. Mayer v. Ramsey, 46 T. 371.

56. The guardian, in the name of his minor son, used money belonging to him in the purchase of land, taking the title in his own name. Afterward B. was appointed guardian in place of A., who had died, and presented a money demand against A.'s estate for the money of the purchase so used, and the land in question was sold under order of the court to pay this and other debts. Held, that the minor was estopped by the action of his guardian from recovering the land. Clayton v. McKinnon, 54 T. 296.

One whose land is sold at tax sale without the statutory notice held not estopped to ask that the sale be set aside. Bean v. City of Brownwood, 31 T. 684, 48 S. W. 992.

57. Silence.—A minor who executes a deed, remaining silent as to her age, is not estopped by a statement made by another party in her presence which she does not contradictively convey by her own act or words; she is not bound to restore the purchase money received by a third party and which never came into her possession. Vogelsang v. Null, 67 T. 465, 3 S. W. 561.

One held not estopped by failure to deny a certain statement. Powers v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 548.

Estoppel to claim title by silence supposes that the title is in the person estopped. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

If one remains silent when it is his duty to speak, he will not be heard to speak thereafter to the injury of one who was induced to act on the faith of his silence; but, if no duty to speak exists, no rights can be lost or acquired by silence. Id. Mere silence held not to prove ratification of agent's unauthorized act. Lightfoot v. Horn (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 696.

An estoppel involves the idea that a person has failed to speak when it was his duty to speak, so that he will not be allowed to speak when he desires to do so. Dudley v. Ray (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 778.

58. Negligence.—It is the duty of a depositor in a bank to know whether his account is correct or not, and promptly to report a forgery when detected. Should he negligently fail to make the examination and consequent discovery (when he could have discovered it), he will not be permitted to deny the genuineness of the checks, provided the bank be prejudiced by his failure. Schwartz v. National Bank, 67 T. 217, 4 S. W. 865; Weinstein v. Bank, 69 T. 38, 6 S. W. 171, 5 Am. St. Rep. 23.

Where plaintiff bank neglected to examine defendant's monthly statement, which showed a defalcation of plaintiff's cashier, plaintiff was estopped from thereafter recovering the funds. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 309, 71 S. W. 612.

Failure of child to sue for partition of homestead while occupied by surviving wife held not to estop her from suing thereafter. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

58 1/2. Particular matters.—Questions for jury. Art. 1971, § 80; instructions, Art. 1971, § 389; to claim new trial, Art. 2019, § 42; to allege error, Art. 2078, § 40; foreign receivers, Art. 2133, § 7; to assert invalidity of execution sale, Art. 3754, § 9; to claim homestead, Art. 3756, § 36; to assert invalidity of conveyance of homestead, Art. 3788, § 47; to claim separate property, Art. 4621, § 26; to assert rights under insurance contracts, Art. 4972, §§ 20, 70-86, 98; to assert usury, Art. 4980, § 27; to tenant to landlord's title, Art. 5491, § 9; to sue for rent, Art. 5491, § 39; to object to chattel mortgage, Art. 5662, § 12; to rely on limitations, Art. 5714, § 4; and other specific matters.

III. Persons Affected

59. Persons to whom estoppel is available.—The burden is on an appellant to show reversible error, and the appellee is not bound to contest the points raised on the appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blanchard (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 88.

If a grantee of land acquires title by estoppel, such title passes to his grantee on conveyance of the land. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

Any act by plaintiff, pursuant to an agreement between itself and another railroad company, could not be taken advantage of as an estoppel by defendant railroad company, which was not a party thereto. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 830.

60. Persons estopped.—In October, 1872, P. and wife moved away from their homestead in a rail car, the homestead being in a town renter who lived in it. In November, 1872, P. conveyed their homestead by a deed of trust to secure the payment of a loan. After the maturity of the loan and before a sale under the trust deed letters from the creditor to the husband were answered by the wife, promising to pay the debt and fully recognizing the trust deed. In November, 1872, P. and wife moved back on the mortgaged land, and signed an acknowledgment indorsed upon the trust deed, as follows: This is to certify that we this day move upon the place within described, by the permission of W. & D., and will hold possession only on their account. W. & B. were the creditors secured by the deed of trust, and at a sale under the trust deed in 1874 purchased the land. After the sale P. and wife acquired another homestead and sold their first homestead mentioned in the deed of trust to T. Held, that T. was not estopped from showing that the deed of trust was inoperative by reason of the property having been the homestead of P. and wife at the date of its execution. The Thomas v. Williams, 50 T. 259.
Heirs of intestate held not estopped to claim lands conveyed by void deeds because administrators recovered judgments for the purchase money. McCown v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 54.

46. Heirs held estopped to deny title acquired under a contract between a third person and the administrator. Halbert v. De Bode, 15 C. A. 615, 40 S. W. 1011.

Strangers to a contract held not bound by recitals therein as to alleged acts of a third person, under whom the claim. Id.

In trespass to try title a plaintiff claiming under a subsequent deed of gift from defendant's grantor, held bound by representations which would estop the grantor. Mars v. Morris, 48 C. A. 216, 106 S. W. 430.

A. held a note of B., payable one day after date and secured by deed of trust duly recorded. In the fall of 1878 or 1879, C. and others were negotiating with B. for the purchase of the land, in which negotiations A. took an active part. In answer to a question whether there were any liens upon the property, A. answered that they had all been discharged, and that B. held the releases, which should be recorded, and the purchase was then made. On the 3d of June, 1881, the note was indorsed by A. to plaintiff. In a suit brought October 20, 1882, for the balance due on the note and for foreclosure of the lien, it was held that plaintiff was estopped from enforcement of the lien. Fielding v. Du Bose, 63 T. 631.

A purchaser of certain land subject to an easement created by a contract of record held not estopped by a statement made by its grantor to the owner of the dominant tenement where a tenant in common is estopped from doing a particular act on the premises as against the owner of adjacent premises, the tenant, neither alone nor in conjunction with the co-tenant, will be permitted to act contrary thereto. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 842, 109 S. W. 418.

Allegations or recitals in pleadings in a suit to which parties in the case at bar were not parties cannot bind them. Schrifer v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 231.

61. Purchasers from person creating estoppel.—A judgment creditor assented to a conveyance by the judgment debtor of certain land embraced in the lien of the judgment to a fraudulent codebtor. Including his own, and attended the sale under the deed of trust, making no objection thereto, but favoring the sale. Held, that he was estopped from contesting the validity of the trust, or asserting the lien of his judgment on the contract trust sale and that purchaser at the time. Having afterwards purchased the same land under execution on his judgment, and sold it to another who had notice of the previous sale, the last purchaser was in no better condition than his vendor. Luter v. Rose, 20 T. 635.

On January 10th, 1881, A. held a note of B., payable one day after date and secured by deed of trust duly recorded. In the fall of 1878 or 1879, C. and others were negotiating with B. for the purchase of the land, in which negotiations A. took an active part. In answer to a question whether there were any liens upon the property, A. answered that they had all been discharged, and that B. held the releases, which should be recorded, and the purchase was then made. On the 3d of June, 1881, the note was indorsed by A. to plaintiff. In a suit brought October 20, 1882, for the balance due on the note and for foreclosure of the lien, it was held that plaintiff was estopped from enforcement of the lien. Fielding v. Du Bose, 63 T. 631.

A purchaser of certain land subject to an easement created by a contract of record held not estopped by a statement made by its grantor to the owner of the dominant tenement where a tenant in common is estopped from doing a particular act on the premises as against the owner of adjacent premises, the tenant, neither alone nor in conjunction with the co-tenant, will be permitted to act contrary thereto. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 842, 109 S. W. 418.

62. —Heirs of person creating estoppel.—Where the holder of the legal title is estopped from denying a trust in land, the estoppel may on his death be invoked against his heirs. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

62½. Estoppel of wife to claim separate property.—See notes under Art. 4821.

IV. Matters Precluded

63. Title or claim to property.—An estoppel against certain heirs' right to object to the equitable title to certain land acquired by a purchaser in partition held to operate against the heirs' claim to their mother's interest in the property as well as to the interest of their father. Murphy v. Sisters of the Incarnate Word of San Antonio, 43 C. A. 838, 97 S. W. 128.

A defendant held entitled to no interest in certain land in view of an estoppel by a partition by act of certain parties through whom he claimed. Berryman v. Bidle, 48 C. A. 624, 107 S. W. 932.

Rights and liabilities under contracts.—On the 26th of May, 1881, A. executed to B. a note for $666.66 and two other notes, amounting in the aggregate to $2,000. The notes were given for timber growing on certain lands claimed by B. Immediately after the date of the note A. entered on the lands and cut timber thereon. The first note fell due in eight months from its date and was paid at its maturity; a payment was also made on another of the notes. In August, 1883, one of the notes having been lost, A. gave another note in its place. Shortly after, this suit was brought, and A. pleaded a want of consideration, that B. was not the owner of the land, that the contract was procured by fraud, false pretenses, etc. Held that A. was estopped from setting up this defense. Warner v. Munshheimer, 2 App. C. C. 395.

Extant of estoppel of a buyer, receiving part of cattle contracted for with knowledge of defects, to deny that the remaining portion was defective, stated. Wigglesworth v. Uvalde Livestock Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1189.

Where a assignee agrees with a contractor to furnish lumber in accordance with certain plans, and the plans are changed, unknown to him, so as to require more lumber, the contractor can be held liable because of estoppel by conduct only for the value of the additional lumber required. Marks v. Jones (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 618.

65. Remedies.—A quickclaim by the heir to community property sold by the surviving spouse held not to estop the heir to sue on the community bond for her share of the community estate. Graham v. Miller, 26 C. A. 5, 62 S. W. 113.

66. Estoppel as law.—An estoppel may be relied on in a court of law as well as in equity. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.
cause he is a party to a suit or proceeding or interested in the issue tried. [Act May 19, 1871, p. 108. P. D. 6826.]

Competency of witnesses in general.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Competency of persons having no interest in the suit were joined as defendants to incapacitate them as parties, their evidence in behalf of defendant was properly admitted. McCrae v. Poor (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 47.

Interest of party or other person.—A party, to a negotiable instrument is a competent witness to show its invalidity. Parsons v. Philps, 4 T. 341; Hillebrant v. Ashworth, 13 T. 307.

The grantee in a written instrument is a competent witness to prove its execution. Lang v. Dougherty, 74 T. 226, 12 S. W. 29.

In an action by a church corporation to recover certain land which defendant claimed by adverse possession through her testator, members of the church held not so interested as to disqualify them to testify to conversations had with testator in his lifetime. Crosby v. First Presbyterian Church of El Paso, 46 C. A. 111, 59 S. W. 584.

The testimony of an agent in an action by a third person against the principal as to the extent of his agency is admissible on such issue. Rainey v. Kemp, 54 C. A. 486, 118 S. W. 630.

An agent is competent to testify to the agency and its extent. Autrey v. Linn (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 197.

An agent may testify as to the extent and nature of his authority. Cannel Coal Co. v. Luna (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 721.

Transfer, release or extinguishment of interest.—Evidence of plaintiffs, who conveyed and disclaimed, to evince the rule incapacitating parties as witnesses, held inadmissible in behalf of plaintiffs. McCrae v. Poor (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 47.

Art. 3689. [2301] [2247] Husband or wife not disqualified, except, etc.—The husband or wife of a party to a suit or proceeding, or who is interested in the issue to be tried, shall not be incompetent to testify therein, except as to confidential communications between such husband and wife.

Marriage.—One claiming a part of a decedent's estate, on the ground that she was decedent's common-law wife, was incompetent to testify on the question. Schwingle v. Keifer, 106 T. 609, 163 S. W. 1132.

Fraudulent acts of husband.—In a suit by the wife, her husband having refused to join, she was permitted to testify as to the fraudulent acts of her husband. Edwards v. Dismukes, 53 T. 606.

Interest.—The husband, plaintiff in a suit to recover the separate property of the wife, is, under Art. 3688, a competent witness. Turnley v. Texas B. & I. Co., 54 T. 451. It was also held that the husband or wife was a competent witness in a suit in which they were not parties, and in regard to which they had a joint interest. Cameron v. Fay, 55 T. 58; McKay v. Treadwell, 8 T. 176; Carrell v. Higgs, 1 U. C. 56.

In the issue whether a deed absolute in form, executed by husband and wife, is subject to a parol trust, the wife, testifying in support of the trust, held an interested witness. Whitfield v. Diffie (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 234.

Confidential communications.—As to confidential communications, see Mitchell v. Mitchell, 88 T. 101, 15 S. W. 706.

In an action by a woman against her former husband, her testimony that she had contracted a veneral disease from him during the existence of the marital relation held admissible. King v. Sassaman (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 937.

A husband, who had married a second time and conveyed to his second wife community property of the first marriage, might testify that, prior to the conveyance, he told her about the existence and interest of the children of the first marriage. Eddy v. Bosley, 34 C. A. 116, 78 S. W. 566.

Statements made by the husband to the wife at the time he purchases, or when he is having improvements made upon property, declarative of his intention in making the purchase or improvements, are admissible as res gestae for the purpose of showing his intention, in a case where his intention is a legitimate subject of inquiry, and the wife may testify in her own behalf as to such declarations. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 145.

Letters written by husband in his lifetime to his wife complaining of her lack of sincere affection for him, and of her conduct to his mother, held confidential communications, and inadmissible in aid of her contest of her husband's will. Lanham v. Lanham, 105 T. 111, 145 S. W. 336.

Confidential communications between husband and wife embrace all information coming to a husband or wife in consequence or by reason of the existence of the marriage relation. 1d.

Confidential communications between husband and wife are excluded even after the relation has been dissolved by death or otherwise. 1d.

On an issue as to an insane delusion on the part of testator toward his wife at the time of his mother's death, testimony that, while traveling to the funeral, he sat behind Art. 3690. [2302] [2248] In actions by or against executors, etc., certain testimony not allowed.—In actions by or against executors, administrators or guardians, in which judgment may be rendered for or against them as such, neither party shall be allowed to testify against the others as to any transaction with, or statement by, the testator, intestate or ward, unless called to testify thereto by the opposite party; and the provisions of this article shall extend to and include all actions by or against the heirs or legal representatives of a decedent arising out of any transaction with such decedent. [Id. P. D. 6827.]

2. Actions in which testimony is excluded.
3. Representative capacity or title or interest of party.
4. Possibility of judgment for or against party in particular capacity or right or interest.
5. Probate or contest of will.
6. Determination of construction of grant.
7. Persons whose testimony is excluded in general.
8. Parties whose testimony is excluded.
9. Nominal or unnecessary parties.
10. Legatee, devisee, heir or distrib-utee.
12. Partners.
13. Disclaimer or other discharge of interest.
14. Interest in subject-matter as disqualifying witness.
15. Relationship of witness to party or person interested.
16. Agent of party interested.
17. Manager of corporation.
18. Surviving party to contract or other transaction.
19. Husband or wife of party or other person excluded from testifying.
20. Termination or extinguishment of interest.
21. Parties as against whom testimony is excluded.
22. Survivor of joint parties to contract or other transaction.

1. Construction of act.—The exception to the general rule that no person shall be incompetent to testify because he is a party to a suit or proceeding or interested in the issue tried, which denies the right of an heir or legal representative of a decedent to testify as to any transaction or statement by decedent in an action by or against the heirs or legal representatives arising out of any transaction with decedent, unless called by the opposite party, will not be extended by judicial construction. Simon v. Middleton, 51 C. A. 531, 112 S. W. 441.
2. Actions in which testimony is excluded.—In a bill of review brought by the ward to revise the account of a guardian, either party is a competent witness in regard to the transactions between each other. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.
In a suit by the widow and children for damages against parties charged to have unlawfully taken the life of the deceased husband and father, the defendants are com-
3. Representative capacity or title or interest of party.—Plaintiff in action held not to sue as heir, nor defendants to claim title of inheritance, so as to render them incompetent to testify as to transaction with a decedent. Crenshaw v. Harris, 16 C. A. 263, 41 S. W. 391.

The exception excluding certain parties from testifying on account of interest will not be extended by implication. A plaintiff may be admitted to testify to declarations of a deceased partner of the defendant where suit had been brought against the firm and one of the parties died pending the suit, and his representatives were not made parties. Roberts v. Yarbrough, 41 T. 449.

In a suit against executors and another, to fix a liability against both, a defendant cannot be called by his codefendant, the executor, touching matters inhibited in the statute. Alexander v. Lewis, 47 T. 481.

After his father's death his son was sued for land given him by his father by parol contract, followed by possession and valuable improvements. The defendant was a competent witness to prove the transaction, he not claiming as heir or legal representative. Wooters v. Hale, 55 T. 563, 19 S. W. 134.

A suit by widow and minor children, where widow sues in her own right, defendant, as to her, can testify as to transactions with her deceased husband. Harris v. Warlick (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 356.

Evidence of personal transactions between the heir suing on a community bond and the deceased spouse held not within the statute as to transactions with deceased persons, the sureties not being sued as heirs or legal representatives. Graham v. Miller, 25 C. A. 5, 62 S. W. 113.

Where one sues in his individual right as well as in his representative capacity, a witness can testify under this article, but the court should instruct the jury not to consider the answer so far as it affects the official capacity (that is the estate which he represents) of the party to the suit. Field v. Field, 39 C. A. 1, 87 S. W. 725.

Under the article, a surviving partner, firm, is not a "legal representative" of the deceased partner. Shivel & Stewart v. Greer Bros. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 267.

In partition wherein defendant claimed under a deed which plaintiffs alleged was executed when defendant was not of age to enter into contracts, to prove by himself and wife what was said and done by himself and his mother, the grantor, at the time of the deed, was excluded as a statement by and as a transaction with his deceased ancestor affecting property involved in suit. Held error, as defendant was not claiming as heir, but under the deed the assault on which he could repel by his testimony the same as if he had been no kin to grantor. Ivy v. Ivy (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 682.

Where defendant and her husband executed a deed of community property to plaintiff, and the husband, dying, devised his half of the remaining community property to defendant as plaintiff sued to reform the instrument, alleging that certain property was represented by mutual mistake, the suit was not against defendant as heir or legal representative of the decedent. Harry v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 637.

4. Possibility of judgment for or against party in particular capacity or right.—When a defendant is not sued in his capacity as executor, and where judgment cannot be rendered against him as such between the heirs of the deceased, but between the heirs of his devisee this article does not apply. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 399.

Though defendant was executrix and heir of P. and sole beneficiary under his will, yet the action being against her personally, and it being alleged that, as trustee for plaintiffs, P. invested money belonging to them in property taking the title in his own name, and that he never repudiated the trust, and that defendant has taken possession of the property to them, and that she did deliver it in part to them, she is entitled to dispose of the trust property, the provision of this article that in actions by or against executors, "in which judgment may be rendered for or against them as such," neither party may testify to a transaction with or statement by deceased, and that shall apply as to a deceased, arising from a contract with him, does not apply, so as to render plaintiffs incompetent to testify to conversations and transactions with P. Tennison v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 948.

5. Probate or contest of will.—Persons interested under a will are competent witnesses to prove its execution. Martin v. McAdams, 27 S. W. 265, 97 T. 225. See Lewis v. Aylett, 45 T. 190; Watts v. Holland, 56 T. 54; Shilling v. Shilling (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 420; Paddock v. Lewis, 35 S. W. 320, 13 C. A. 265. The terms of this article will not be extended so as to embrace devisees or legatees. Newton v. Newton, 77 T. 608, 14 S. W. 187; Ingersoll v. McWillie, 20 S. W. 65, 9 C. A. 943; Caffey's Extra v. Caffey, 22 S. W. 78, 12 C. A. 616.

In a suit to contest the probate of a will a daughter of the testator is not forbidden by this statute, to testify as to a conversation between her and her father whose will she is seeking to set aside. The suit is not one arising out of transaction of the deceased with the daughter. Simon v. Middleton, 51 C. A. 531, 112 S. W. 446.

6. Determination of construction of grant.—This article applies only in suits in which the cause of action or defense asserted grows out of a transaction with the deceased not apply in suits involving the identity of the grantee of a land certificate. Keck v. Woodward, 53 C. A. 267, 116 S. W. 79.

7. Persons whose testimony is excluded in general.—In a purchaser's action against the executor of a deceased vendor for equitable relief from a sale induced by fraud, the testimony of a witness to the suit, and not a party thereto, is admissible. The deceased was not inadmissible under this article. Hagelein v. Bleschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

8. Parties whose testimony is excluded.—A party to a suit claiming under a parol gift from her deceased father is incompetent to prove the transaction, through which she claims. She is also incompetent to testify to the same transaction in behalf of her co­claimants under the same alleged gift. James v. James, 81 T. 373, 18 S. W. 1087.

A party plaintiff as next friend of a minor is within this article. Ellis v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 685.
In a suit by an executor on a note given to testator, held, that a defendant could not testify as to transactions with testator, though he admitted his indebtedness, and the only issues were with the other parties to the note. Coffin v. Loomis (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 611.

Where a trustee sues for conversion of the trust estate, and the beneficiaries are made parties by defendant, he, they could not be asked, as witnesses, to testify as to transactions with or statements by the deceased grantor of the trust. Herring v. Patten, 18 C. A. 147, 44 S. W. 50.

In a suit to break a will, persons who wish the will broken, but will not join the plaintiff in the suit, and are necessarily made parties defendant, are opposite parties within the meaning of this statute. Sanders v. Kirkle, 94 T. 504, 65 S. W. 626.

A defendant who is made party to the suit will not be permitted to testify as to a transaction between their principal and deceased in a suit against the administrator and heirs of the deceased. Haberzsett v. Dearing (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 546.

In a trespass to try title suit brought by the administratrix and heirs of deceased, a defendant cannot testify as to transactions with the deceased unless called by the opposite party. Rogers v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 832.

A party cannot testify as to acts of the deceased and himself, nor as to transactions between them. Edelstein v. Brown, 100 T. 403, 100 S. W. 129, 123 Am. St. Rep. 816.

This article does not prevent a surety on a claim bond given by decedent for the purpose of trying right of property from testifying in an action by decedent's administrator to set aside a default judgment on the bond that he was merely a witness, he heard decedent declare that the property belonged to him; the surety being a party to the judgment sought to be vacated, but not to the suit in which the testimony was given. Barker v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 609.

Under the express provisions of this article plaintiff in an action against the executor and heirs of a decedent, could not testify in her own behalf relative to a verbal agreement with decedent. Boiders v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 614.

9. Nominal or unnecessary parties.—One having no interest in common with parties calling him as a witness, and who though nominally a party to the suit has no interest in the result, is competent to testify as to statements and admissions against his interest at the time they were made by a deceased person in possession of property in litigation against those holding under him as heirs, legatees, etc. Oury v. Saunders, 77 T. 376, 13 S. W. 1030.

Where the wife of a deceased maker of a contract was a party, though not a proper or necessary party, to the action, held, that plaintiff was not precluded from testifying as to statements of deceased in regard to the contract in controversy. Kahler v. Caruthers, 9 C. A. 216, 46 S. W. 560.

In an action in the husband's name against an executor to recover on behalf of the community estate for services rendered testator, the wife is a real party to the suit, and cannot testify to transactions by herself or her husband with decedent, unless called by the opposite party. Wells v. Hobbs, 67 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

Under this article a husband joining his wife in a suit to establish an express trust brought against the children of the deceased holder of the legal title is not competent to testify as to declarations made by the deceased holder as to his holding the land in trust. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 729.

Where, pending a suit between G. and the heirs of a decedent, the heirs convey, without warranty, all their interest in the suit to L., and L. intervenes, the heirs being thus rendered merely nominal parties, the disqualification of G., under this article ceased, and may not be restored by withdrawal of L. Gurley v. Hanric's Heirs (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 721.

10. Legatee, devisee, heir or distributee.—This article does not apply in an action against legatees (Curtis v. Wilson, 2 C. A. 646, 21 S. W. 787) or devisees or an heir who is a party, when called by the opposite party (Mitchell v. Mitchell, 86 T. 101, 15 S. W. 705).

A plaintiff suing an executor on an account against his testator held incompetent to testify in his own behalf to transactions with decedent. Garrett v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 76.

In trespass to try title by heirs of one who had given a title bond against those claiming under the bond declarations made by the obligor to one of the plaintiffs were properly excluded. Tenzler v. Tyrell, 32 C. A. 443, 75 S. W. 57.

In a suit by an administrator against heirs for money belonging to estate, a defendant cannot testify as to transactions with deceased. Manchester v. Bursey, 41 C. A. 271, 91 S. W. 817.

An heir claiming against a deed from decedent to his wife cannot be permitted to testify concerning a conversation in which decedent declared that when he died his property would go to his side. Davis v. Davis, 44 C. A. 238, 98 S. W. 199.

Plaintiff in a suit against an executor cannot testify as to statements or absence of statements made by one under whom he claims as heir in a conversation with the testator of decedent. Tion v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 705.

Plaintiff, in foreclosure held not disqualified to testify by reason of being an heir and representative of the deceased mortgagee. Blair v. Breeding, 57 C. A. 147, 121 S. W. 869.

That plaintiffs are claiming as heirs of a decedent, other than the one whose statements they seek to prove, in no wise makes this article applicable, where otherwise inapplicable. Tennison v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 948.

In trespass to try title, by one not an administrator, to recover land originally patented by defendant's father, in which defendant claimed as heir and legatee of his father, evidence by defendant as to transactions and conversations with his father were not rendered inadmissible by this article. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

Under this article one who was a party to proceedings only as devisee and not as heir or representative could testify to declarations by testator that he had cut out his wife. Schnabl v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 115.

11. — Surviving spouse.— In a suit by heirs against wife of deceased husband, she cannot testify as to what he told her after they were married, concerning his property. Gilroy v. Richards, 25 C. A. 355, 63 S. W. 665.

A wife, who has a community interest in the subject-matter of the suit, is debarred as a witness under this statute although she is not a party to the suit. Hedges v. Williams (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 77, 78.

When the wife is a party to a suit between the heirs of her deceased husband, she cannot testify as to statements made by him, if she would be affected by a judgment for costs. M. A. v. Reed, 20 C. A. 318.

A husband gave a mortgage on land which was foreclosed and land bought by his creditor. In suit by creditor in trespass to try title against the heirs of his deceased wife to which suit he is a party, he cannot testify as to transaction with his deceased wife, by which it was shown that the land was the separate property of said wife. Barrett v. Eastman Bros. (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 1058.

In a suit against a wife and children of a deceased person involving title to community property of the wife and the deceased husband, this statute does not apply to statements of decease offered in behalf of the wife (because she owns absolutely in her own right one-half of the property), when she is not sued as executrix or administratrix, nor is asserting any right to the property as heir of her deceased husband, nor is administering the estate as surviving wife. Evans v. Scott (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 117.

Where a wife is party to suit together with children of deceased husband, and she claims half interest in the land involved in her own right, transactions with a deceased person may be proved as to her interest but not as to interest of the heirs of her husband, unless the husband is v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 316.

In an action on a benefit certificate, in which it was claimed by the insurance company that a check of $5.20, which they had sent deceased in full of his claim for sickness, was never returned, the wife may not, under this article, testify as to statement by the husband on receiving the check. Royal Fraternal Union v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 920.

Under this article a wife seeking to recover on a mutual benefit certificate issued to her husband, under an agreement as executrix on the certificate provided she paid the assessments, may testify as to the agreement as against the insurance order and a third person claiming as beneficiary. Eatman v. Eastman (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 165.

An action by one as surviving widow and sole heir of her deceased husband, though she be entitled to half the property sued for as survivor, is within this article, so that defendants may not testify to payments made to deceased. Spencer v. Schell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 111.

12. Partners.— The plaintiff alleges existence of partnership between White and Rascoe (during defendant's lifetime). The defendant White admits partnership. Mrs. Rascoe, executrix, denies it. The plaintiff and defendant White are not opposite parties so as to allow latter to testify under this article concerning transactions with deceased. Rascoe v. Walker-Smith Co., 98 T. 566, 86 S. W. 729.

13. — Disclaimer or other discharge of interest.— A defendant who, in a suit for real estate brought by an administrator, disclaims all interest, is a competent witness to acts and conversations of the decedent affecting the title. Eastham v. Roundtree, 56 T. 110; Markham v. Carothers, 47 T. 21.

Plaintiffs sued for land in their right as heirs, making M. and other parties defendants. His coddefendants also implored M. on his warranties to them. M. filed a disclaimer in the suit, but this did not render him competent to testify for the other defendants as to heirs' interest with the deceased ancestor, constituting a defense to the action. Bennett v. Land & Cattle Co., 1 C. A. 321, 21 S. W. 126.

A disclaiming defendant in trespass to try title is not a party, within this article. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 399.

Where by an amended petition an original party plaintiff is omitted, and he files a disclaimer of any interest in the suit, he may testify as to conversations with the testator of defendant executors. Oaks v. West (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1033.

Where one files a disclaimer and is dismissed, it would seem that this article does not apply and he can be called as a witness. But conceding that the disclaimer does not remove one as a party, still the inhibition does not apply when the cause of action does not arise out of a transaction with a person since deceased. Barrett v. Eastman, 28 C. A. 189, 67 S. W. 200.

In an action to recover a lot and rents as damages, testimony of a defendant who had executed a replevin bond making himself liable for such rents, but who had filed a general denial and also a disclaimer of any interest in the property, was inadmissible as to any transaction between himself and decedent relative to the property. Williams v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 693.

14. Interest in subject-matter as disqualifying witness.— This article does not apply to an interested witness who is not a party. Gilder v. Brenham, 67 T. 345, 3 S. W. 409; Howard v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 689.

The fact that a person is a devisee or legatee does not of itself disqualify him as a witness. Eatman v. Roundtree, 20 C. A. 318; Eatman v. Roundtree, 56 T. 110.

15. — Relationship of witness to party or person interested.— In an action by an executor to set aside a deed made by his deceased to defendant, the daughter of the defendant who is not a party to the action is not prohibited by this article from testifying in behalf of defendant as to statements made by the deceased. Armstrong v. Burt (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 172.

16. — Agent of party Interested.— This article cannot be extended so as to include within its terms the agent of a party to a suit against executors, even though the transaction sought to be established was done entirely by the deceased and such agent. Saunders v. Weeks (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 34.
4) EVIDENCE

Art. 3690

Where a mother delivered notes to her husband as trustees to collect and pay the proceeds to certain of their children, he was competent to testify, after her death, as to her statements when creating the gifts and establishing the trust. Jarrell v. Crow, 30 C. A. 629, 71 S. W. 397.

17. Manager of corporation.—The general manager of a corporation is not a party within the meaning of the above article to testifying, etc. Colonial & U. S. Mortgage Co. v. Thedford, 21 C. A. 254, 51 S. W. 265.

18. — Surviving party to contract or other transaction.—Testimony of a partner held admissible to support a claim of ownership. Lumpkin v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 661.

A decedent's partner can testify in a suit by the heir of the deceased against a person claiming land under a deed of trust sale of the partnership property. Barnett v. Houston, 19 C. A. 131, 44 S. W. 638.

S. was settled by S., a married woman, and her children by her first husband, against the widow and children of R., deceased. The husband of S., from whom she was separated but not divorced, testified as to certain conversations with R. Held, that the evidence was admissible. Redd v. Redd, 55 T. 29.

The husband of a party to a suit comes within the terms of the statute. Hicks v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 227.

Evidence of statements by deceased to his wife and plaintiff held incompetent, though the wife was not a party to the suit. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 827.

In a contest between plaintiff (a wife) and an executor over money deposited in a bank in the joint names of plaintiff and testator, alleged by plaintiff to be her separate property, neither the plaintiff nor her husband can testify about a transaction had with deceased. Tompkins v. McGinn (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 453.

In an action in the husband's name against an executor to recover on behalf of the community estate for services rendered testator, the wife is a real party in interest, and cannot testify to transactions by herself or her husband with deceased, unless called by the opposite party. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

20. — Termination or extinguishment of interest.—An independent executor can voluntarily resign as affecting his qualification as a witness. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

One who parted with all his interest in certain lands before suit was filed is not incompetent, under this article. Buckley v. Runge (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 533.

21. Parties as against whom testimony is excluded.—In an action against heirs made parties and defending by special guardian, the testimony of plaintiff as to any transaction with or statement by the original defendant is inadmissible. McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601. A party to a suit against heirs claiming property through their deceased ancestor cannot testify as to statements made to him by the decedent, or to transactions between deceased and third persons; and this although occurring at a time when the witness had no interest in such statements or transactions. Parks v. Caudle, 58 T. 216.

In a suit by an heir or devisee the parties may testify without restriction. Newton v. Newton, 57 T. 508, 14 S. W. 137.

Where land was conveyed to a son by his parents and he obtained divorce from his wife and died, in a suit by the wife against the parents for partition the testimony of the son deceased was without due consideration and was never delivered was admissible. Crenshaw v. Harris, 16 C. A. 263, 41 S. W. 391.

Where a residuary legatee sues the widow of the testator to set aside as a fraud on him, a deed made by her conveying property in which it is claimed that she has only a life estate, she can testify in behalf of her grantee, that she paid for the property with her separate money. The provisions of this article do not apply in an action by a legatee. Gibony v. Hutcherson, 20 C. A. 581, 50 S. W. 648.

The above article does not apply to an action against executors who are trustees for legatees in the will of deceased. Clark v. Clark, 21 C. A. 287, 51 S. W. 337.

A suit against heirs of the deceased to set aside a deed executed by plaintiff to deceased, testimony as to statements made by deceased to plaintiff at the time the deed was executed is not admissible. Lewis v. Whitworth (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1077.

Defendant to suit by guardian of minor heir of deceased held not competent witness as to transactions with such decedent. Bridge v. Carter, 33 C. A. 591, 77 S. W. 245.

The statute against a party testifying to transactions with testator held to prohibit it only to the heirs and legal representatives, and not as against his legatees and devisees. Emerson v. Scott, 29 C. A. 65, 87 S. W. 369.

Where husband sues as heir of deceased wife for partition of notes in which his wife was one of the principals, a defendant cannot testify in his own behalf as to an agreement of the deceased that principal's notes were to be paid to one of defendants. Jones v. Day (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 425.

The statute prohibiting a party from testifying to statements of a deceased person does not apply to actions by or against corporations. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 250, 101 S. W. 387.

Where plaintiff died between time of filing suit and the trial and his heirs were made parties plaintiff, evidence of conversations between the deceased and defendant is admissible. Duncan v. Jouett (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 981.
A surviving partner, suing for the benefit of the firm, is not a "legal representative" of the deceased partner. Shible & Stewart v. Greer Bros. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 297.

In trespass to try title by heirs of the deceased ancestor under whom defendant claimed, the defendant is incompetent to testify to statements made to him by the deceased ancestor. Dickey v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1181.

In an action to contract or other transaction.—The plaintiff was permitted to testify as to transactions between himself and the surviving partner, although the testimony might result in establishing a contract with a firm of which one partner was dead. Bennett v. Frary, 55 T. 415.

In an action by a surviving partner who is also executor of the decedent, the defendant cannot testify as to the statements of the decedent. Stuart v. Altman, 28 S. W. 461, 8 C. A. 657.

23. — Party as to whom person deceased acted in representative or fiduciary relation. — If the decedent had no legal title to a tract of land in trust for a title, as to which, in a suit by the heirs of H. against parties claiming under a deed from the widow and children of S., deceased, the widow of S. can testify respecting the ownership of her deceased husband. Lumkins v. Coates (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 580.

Under this article, testimony of plaintiff as to statements made by one acting as agent of defendant's intestate is not competent against the agent's heirs who are defendants. Mounger v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1970.

Principal of agent deceased or incompetent.—Certain evidence by a widow in relation to transactions with her deceased husband held to be admissible. Davis v. Weir (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1.

Subject-matter of testimony.—What constitutes transaction in general.—A party may testify to his want of knowledge of certain facts, it not appearing that such want of knowledge depended on any statement of the deceased. Martin v. Tibbles, 69 T. 201.

A party in reference to testifying to an alleged oral contract, in his account against him that he had called the attention of a deceased person to it, the executor of such decedent being a party to the suit. Eastham v. Randolph, 3 App. C. C. § 118.

A party is not permitted to testify against a witness and an independent party in suit on the part of the deceased; in other words, if the witness could testify that he at one time had in his possession a note which purport to be signed by the deceased and which note had subsequently been lost by him, such fact was certainly a fact independent of any act of or transaction with the defendant, but such statement cannot be used as evidence of the fact that the deceased had accepted such note, that being the issue in the case. Chosie v. Huff, 4 App. C. C. § 281, 18 S. W. 87.

One who, being party to a suit, claims title to land by deed from a deceased mother, in a suit where the plaintiff's title is a sheriff's deed, under execution sold to satisfy a judgment against a deceased father, is competent to testify from his own knowledge that the title to the land conveyed to his father before his father became the owner of the same, was for the separate means of his father. Harris v. Seinsheimer, 67 T. 356, 3 S. W. 307.

Defendant was properly permitted to testify, over the objections of plaintiff, as to facts tending to show that the land in controversy was his homestead in April, 1880, which was the time of the execution of a mortgage from him to plaintiff's testator. Moores v. Wills, 69 T. 109, 5 S. W. 675.

The declarations of a deceased vendor, made at the time he parts with possession of a deed, are admissible in evidence, in a suit to which his executor is a party, on an issue as to whether there was then a purpose to deliver the deed in consummation of a sale. His subsequent declarations, made after the registration of the deed, are not admissible. This article, on which objection thereto was based, does not apply to such a case. Steffan v. Bank, 69 T. 513, 6 S. W. 523.

Where a party in pending suit a party becomes in prime, the adverse party cannot testify as to conversations or transactions with him, but may state what he did. Hamilton v. Starr (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 587.

In a suit by an executor, evidence of conversations between defendants, tending to prove a transaction with testator, held incompetent. Coffin v. Loomis (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 511.

A widow and executrix held competent to testify that she bought property claimed by a legatee of her husband in her own right. Gibony v. Hutcheson, 29 C. A. 581, 50 S. W. 648.

An heir, in an action against his father's executors to recover an interest in his mother's community estate, held precluded from testifying as to his intention in executing a release of such interest to his father, by this article. Williams v. Emberger, 22 C. A. 532, 55 S. W. 598.

A creditor, in an action to subject the property of his debtor conveyed to the debtor's wife, held competent to testify to the entire transaction, though both the debtor and his wife were deceased. Gonzales v. Adoue (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 543.

To permit a witness to state that the execution debtor owned the property in controversy at the time of the levy held error. Cullers v. Gray (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 305.

Evidence by a party to a suit relating to a transaction with a decedent held inadmissible, under this article. Gillaspie v. Murray, 27 C. A. 550, 66 S. W. 552.

In an action against administrator on note of his intestate, certain evidence held not incompetent as concerning a transaction with deceased. Adam v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 954.

Where the testimony is not a "statement by" the deceased, and does not show "any transaction with the deceased", but refers to the conduct of the deceased and the party to the suit towards each other, and it does not show that the witnesses received their knowledge of the facts about which they testify from the deceased, it is not inadmissible under this article. Edelestein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1128.

Where it appeared that the wife after the death of the husband had executed a deed to part of the community land to her daughter, in a suit by other heirs for partition, 2720.
the only issue being as to the right of the wife to convey more than her community share, to her daughter to testify as to the delivery of the deed to her by her deceased mother. Jennings v. Borton, 44 C. A. 280, 98 S. W. 446.

Defendant was sued by executors of Mrs. Johnson, sister of defendant, on a note. It was permissible for him to prove that he and one of the makers of another note went to the decedent’s house and said that they could not accept the note unless he could deposit it in bank and that he could not testify as to what she said. He could explain why he and the maker went to see her sister. This testimony did not contravene this article. Huff v. Powell, 48 C. A. 582, 107 S. W. 365, 366.

Under the statute, a person suing as the heir of a grantee to recover land cannot testify as to declarations of the grantee that the deed, though reciting a consideration of $2,000, was in fact a deed of gift to her. Wolf v. King, 49 C. A. 41, 107 S. W. 617.

The estate of a wife by son of deceased and former wife against the surviving wife for partition of community property, it was not error to permit the wife to testify, without being called by the opposite party, that the money which other witnesses testified had been given her by her deceased husband was used in paying for their home place, and the balance was deposited in his bank; and that she had no means inadmissible money, other than the money her husband gave her. The case was tried without a jury and the court stated that he would confine the testimony to that other witnesses saw the deceased husband give the wife and would not consider it from any other source. S. v. Potter, 47 C. A. App.) 116 S. W. 629.

The exclusion of evidence in partition, as a statement by and a transaction with a deceased ancestor affecting property involved, held error. Ivy v. Ivy (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 652.

Certain testimony held objectionable as concerning a transaction with a decedent. Jordan v. Massey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 804.

Under this article one cannot testify to a marriage with decedent, where that is an issue. In re King (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 122.

On an issue whether a will was the result of an insane delusion, conceived by testator toward his wife at the time of his mother’s death, evidence that, while traveling to the funeral, testator sat behind his wife and “gazed” at her held admissible. Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 626.

In an action by a broker for commissions for a sale of land, in which defendant’s executrix was substituted upon his death, the issues being as to whether plaintiff was employed, or whether decedent rendered himself liable on an implied contract, testimony by plaintiff as to the details of a trip made by himself and the deceased, in which a strong box belonging to deceased was opened, and an abstract taken out and, after being taken to the courthouse, returned to the plaintiff, related to a transaction with the decedent, and was inadmissible. Heath v. Moore (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 709.

A widow contesting the probate of a will of her deceased husband on the ground of fraud, undue influence, and testamentary incapacity may testify as to the amount of property and money owned by her at her marriage, and that she had sold her property and loans and deposited in bank after the marriage, and that she had no means inadmissible as relating to transactions between herself and the deceased husband. McDonald’s Estate v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 593.

In an action to recover a lot and the rents thereon, held, that testimony of one of the defendants relating solely to what decedent did with reference to a deed executed by defendant, and to a transaction between defendant and a third person, was not incompetent as a transaction with the decedent. Williams v. Neill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 643.

Under the provision of this article, disqualifying a party to testify against an administrator to transactions with a decedent, one cannot testify to a marriage with decedent, where that is an issue against the administrator. Berger v. Kirby, 106 T. 611, 135 S. W. 1120.

26. -- Occupancy of land and delivery of property.—The plaintiff may testify in a suit against an administrator as to the value of the rents, the length of time deceased had possession and the means taken to oust her. Killifoll v. Moore (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1024.

In an action by an executor on a note made by defendants to decedent in payment of bar fixtures purchased by two of defendants, testimony by defendants that certain of the property purchased was never received, and that no credit was given defendants for the value thereof, and that the notes were given after part of the property was delivered, was incompetent under this article, because relating to a transaction with plaintiff’s testator. Lengelet v. Fliper (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 480.

27. -- Contracts.—A party to the suit may testify as to what he himself has done under and by virtue of a contract with the intestate. Potter v. Wheat, 53 T. 401.

In action against administrator for intestate’s board, plaintiff held incompetent to testify as to the agreement. Hartling v. Harriman, 18 C. A. 465, 41 S. W. 854.

Testimony was held not competent as evidence of a “transaction with, or a statement by,” a decedent, prohibited by Art. 3690. Walker v. Pittman, 18 C. A. 519, 46 S. W. 117.

Defendant cannot testify that he did not sign a written instrument indorsed at the time stated therein, where the other party thereto is dead. Hazelwood v. Pennybacker (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 199.

The absence of any sworn pleading denying the execution of a written contract declared on will not entitle plaintiff, upon proof that the contract is lost, to testify as to its contents, in an action against the heirs of the other contracting party. Ehrenworth v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 190.

The existence of a decree can testify to the contents of a lost deed in a suit between the grantee and the heirs of a grantor. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 56 S. W. 401.

Evidence that two of the three makers of a note signed as sureties held improperly admitted in an action thereof, though
In an action on a bond against the principal and the representatives of a deceased surety, the principal was a competent witness to testify that such deceased surety told him that he would remain on the bond. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Fossati (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1038.

28. — Services and value thereof.—The testimony of a physician in a suit against an administrator for pay for his services, as to treating and prescribing for deceased is inadmissible. Motley v. Schlichtenmair, 53 Car. 253, 33 S. W. 13. In an action against an executrix, plaintiff's testimony to services rendered and the value thereof held not objectionable as involving transactions with decedent. Buckler v. Conwell (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 367.

In an action in the husband's name against an executor to recover for services rendered testator, in which plaintiff's wife was in effect a party, the recovery being for the community estate, the wife testified that she rendered services for testator by milking the cows, mending the fence, and that during other housework she went to the stock every place he wanted to go, and waited on him all over the place in tending to the stock, etc., and plaintiff testified that he cut wood, fed the cattle, put up the hay, etc., harnessed the buggy, and carried testator almost every place there was anything to see to, and that when he moved to testator's farm he took with him corn and pork and other provisions, and the corn was fed to his and testator's horses, and the other supplies, as well as groceries bought by plaintiff, were eaten by him and testator. Held, that the witness' testimony that her husband took testator every place he wanted to go, and waited on him all over the place in feeding, etc., and carried him almost every place there was anything to see to, as well as plaintiff's testimony that groceries purchased by him were used by testator, was as to "transactions" with testator, and not admissible, but the other testimony admissible. Wells v. Hobbs (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 451.

29. — Partnership transactions.—A widow held competent to testify to affairs of a late firm composed of the deceased husband and others. Gordon v. McCall, 20 C. A. 283, 48 S. W. 1111.

30. — Payment or transmission of money.—In a suit by an administrator against the assignee of a note made by the intestate, to cancel the same on the ground of payment, the holder is not permitted to testify that the note has not been paid. Johnson v. Lockhart, 16 C. A. 32, 40 S. W. 640.

In an action on a note by an administrator, evidence as to a payment held inadmissible, as relating to transactions with a deceased person. Neitch v. Hillmann, 29 C. A. 544, 69 S. W. 494.

Plaintiff sued administrator for land or in alternative to recover on notes given for purchases of vendor's lien thereon by deceased and paid. Plaintiff was not permitted to testify that he had never received from deceased money on the notes sued on. The evidence was intended doubtless, to show that the money was received from deceased on other debts that none were deceased, and notes. This evidence is prohibited by this article. Abbott v. Stiff (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 350.

31. — Physical condition and mental capacity.—On the issue as to whether a will was the result of an insane delusion, conceived by testator towards his wife about the time of his mother's death, testimony of the wife that, while traveling to the mother's funeral on a train, the testator sat several seats behind his wife, and that every time she looked back at him he was "gazing" at her, was not inadmissible as being a "transaction" or "communication" with the testator. Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 635.

32. — Transactions between persons other than witnesses and persons subsequently deceased or incompetent.—A party to a suit against heirs claiming property through their deceased ancestor is precluded not only from testifying as to statements made by the deceased and to transactions occurred between the parties to the suit, but also as to any such statements to or transactions between the deceased and third persons; and this, although occurring at a time when the witness had no interest in such statements or transactions. Parks v. Caudle, 58 T. 216.

Wife competent to testify that a deed to her deceased husband from his deceased mother was a gift. Mahon v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 24.

Proof of statements made by deceased to his wife and to plaintiff cannot be proven in a suit by the administrator. Anglin v. Bartow (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 837.

Where mortgage notes were given to plaintiff's husband, since deceased, in payment for a restaurant, sold while plaintiff and decedent were husband and wife, so that the notes and mortgage were presumably community property, and plaintiff sues, as owner of one-half of the community, to foreclose, proof by her of the execution of the mortgage was not subject to the objection that she was disqualified by reason of being an heir and representative of her deceased husband. Blair v. Breeding, 57 C. A. 147, 121 S. W. 569.

In an administrator's action to recover real property and rents thereon, testimony of one of the defendants showing that he had never delivered a deed to decedent, that a codefendant had paid the purchase money for the property, and that the deed to decedent was delivered to such third party did not relate to transactions by decedent with decedent, but solely to what decedent himself did as to the deed and to a transaction between defendant and his codefendant, and hence was competent. Williams v. Neill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 693.

33. — Transactions or communications between witness and agent competent to testify.—Testimony of witness to a conversation had with a a. w. 801, 811. where deceased is not objectionable, when given by the party calling him, when it does not relate to any transaction with or statement by the ward. Davis v. Beall (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1082.

This article does not prevent a party suing on a contract made with an agent of a decedent from testifying to the transaction, where the agent is not incapacitated from testifying. Smith v. Olivarr (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 235.

This article cannot be extended so as to exclude testimony of plaintiff in a suit against an administrator as to statements made to him by the agent of the intestate.

relative to the sale shown by Intestate's deed. Mounger v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1070.

34. — Admissions or other statements by person subsequently deceased.—Competency of witness as to transaction with decedent determined. Lumkins v. Coates (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 688.
On a issue of title, the warrantor of defendants is not incompetent to testify to declarations of plaintiff's ancestor, through whom they claim as heirs. Parker v. Nusbaumer, 21 C. A. 180, 50 S. W. 46.
Where one claims under sale of land, it is inadmissible for him to state that the beneficary since deceased requested deed. Gillaspie v. Murray, 27 C. A. 580, 66 S. W. 253.
The statute prohibits either party from testifying "as to any transaction with," as well as to any "statement" by, the testator or Intestate. Saushe v. Loeb, 45 C. A. 544, 101 S. W. 451.

35. — Communications or instruments in writing.—A defendant is not a competent witness to prove the loss and contents of a receipt alleged to have been given by the plaintiff's Intestate (Garrison v. King's Administrator, 35 T. 183) or the loss of a deed (Howard v. Gilbrath (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 889).
A defendant in an action by an executor cannot prove the contents of a letter written by him to the deceased to show his acceptance of a deed made by the deceased. Blackan v. Shierman. 21 C. A. 517, 51 S. W. 886.
Where one sues the executors of his father's estate he cannot testify as to the purpose and intention of an instrument executed by him to his father during the latter's lifetime. Williams v. Emberson, 22 C. A. 522, 55 S. W. 601.

Long time past not inadmissible evidence under this article, it applying only to oral declarations. Hagenstein v. Blaschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

In an action by an administrator of a cestui que trust for an accounting, the trustor's book of account was Inadmissible, where he was required to prove its correctness by his own evidence. Watson v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 329.

37. Nature and effect of testimony.—The admission of the testimony of parties as to their own transactions is not reversible error. Witness whose competency is not questioned having testified to the same facts. Staley v. Hankla (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 20.

Where the defendant in a suit by an administrator against him is allowed to testify as to a transaction which he had with the deceased relative to the subject-matter of the suit, the case will be reversed, the claim that the judgment is supported by the uncontradicted and unimpeached evidence of other witnesses, not being so conclusively established harmless, although the case was tried by the court without a jury. Baugh v. Geiselman, 23 C. A. 143, 55 S. W. 615.
The testimony of a witness as to the deceased signing a note as surety is prohibited by this article, but as there was no testimony to show that deceased signed the note other than as surety the testimony was harmless. Coutlett v. U. S. Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 819, 820.
In trespass to try title continued in the name of plaintiff's executor after her death against defendant's heirs and legal representatives, they were not prejudiced by the court permitting the executor to testify that In a casual conversation with his testatrix he heard her say something about the land in controversy, heard her talk about "her farm down there," and never heard her say anything about its belonging to her alleged cotehan, over an objection that it was a violation of this article. Yealock v. Yealock (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 842.

38. Effect of admission of evidence on behalf of adverse party.—When a plaintiff has died after his depositions have been taken, and the suit is prosecuted by his executor, the defendant may testify as to the acts and declarations of the testator about which plaintiff had testified by deposition read in evidence. Runnels v. Eilden, 51 T. 48.
One against whom a judgment had been rendered on service of process by publication applied within proper time for a new trial, and obtained it, but after the former plaintiff's death, whose wife, as executrix, was made defendant. The deceased plaintiff had testified on the former trial, and his evidence was properly admitted on the second trial, for the defendant, who had been cited by publication, was not actually present in person or by counsel. Such evidence being admitted, the adverse party was also a competent witness. O'Neill v. Brown, 61 T. 34.

A defendant cannot introduce the depositions of the deceased plaintiff on file among the papers of the cause and then testify as to the transactions with the deceased mentioned in such depositions. Ivy v. Bondles (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 916.
The admission of plaintiff's testimony as to a transaction, objected to on the ground that it was a statement of a transaction with a deceased person, held not reversible error where the same facts were established by defendants. Clarke v. Adam, 30 C. A. 66, 69 S. W. 1016.

In an action against an executor for services rendered testator In which defendant's witness testified to a conversation with plaintiff, testimony by plaintiff which merely gave a different version of such conversation was admissible. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

39. Rebuttal of evidence on behalf of adverse party.—An administrator sued a distributee of an estate for money alleged to be assets, and In the defendant's possession. An adverse distributee testified, in behalf of the plaintiff, to admissions by the defendant of his possession of the money, held, that defendant was a competent witness in his own behalf to deny having made such admissions. Garner v. Cleveland, 35 T. 74.

In an action against an executor for services to testator, In which defendant's witness testified to a conversation with plaintiff, in which plaintiff stated the terms of his contract with testator and the latter's compliance therewith, testimony by plaintiff which merely gave a different version of such conversation with the witness, but did not refer to a different conversation with him, was admissible. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

Evidence of a transaction with a decedent held inadmissible, notwithstanding evidence brought out by the adverse party. Austin v. Rupe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 661. Evidence of conversation with decedent, as evidence by adverse party.—In an action against legatees, held not erroneous to permit defendants to testify as to conversations with testator when they were called by plaintiff. Clark v. Clark, 21 C. A. 371, 51 S. W. 357.

Where plaintiff sued an executor on his testator’s note, he is a competent witness when called by the defendant. Scott v. Menly (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 55; McKeon v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 406.

If defendants, as heirs of Louis Stahl, in a suit against Maria Stahl, surviving widow, took her ex parte deposition, which on their motion was quashed for misconduct in making her answers. Under the circumstances plaintiffs did not “call” Maria as a witness, so as to deprive them of the right to object to her testifying to statements of her deceased husband. Grieb v. Stahl, 101 T. 306, 107 S. W. 41.

Where plaintiff, on cross-examination, questioned defendant as to certain transactions by his deceased father, plaintiff cannot complain that defendant’s testimony on direct examination relating to the same transactions was incompetent as being testimony by an heir relating to the transactions of a decedent. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 914.

In an action on an instrument, certifying that defendant had received specified sums of money to loan for plaintiff’s intestate, and that he had advanced to her specified sums, leaving a balance due her, the administrator asked defendant whether the instrument was in his handwriting, to which he answered it was. Thereupon defendant’s counsel offered to prove that defendant had made a mistake in the instrument which would lead himself with a creditable sum, which evidence was excluded as relating to a transaction between decedent and defendant. Held that, notwithstanding the instrument was a “transaction with decedent” within this article, yet defendant, having been called by the administrator to testify to a part of the transaction, should have been permitted to testify to the whole of it. Watson v. Dodson, 57 C. A. 32, 121 S. W. 209.

Where a widow was cross-examined as to a transaction with her husband, it was competent for her, on redirect examination, to repeat or explain or qualify her testimony as against an objection that she was incompetent so to testify. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

41. Objections to admissibility, and exclusion.—When evidence has been given under this article, and its inadmissibility appears on cross-examination, it should be excluded. Branch v. Makeig, 28 S. W. 1050, 9 C. A. 399.

An objection made in the assignment of error that certain testimony was a statement by a deceased person and prohibited by this article cannot be considered on appeal when the objection was not made in the trial court. Boston v. McKenmamy, 29 C. A. 272, 68 S. W. 209.

An objection to all of the testimony of a witness will be disregarded where a part of it is admissible. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

42. Determination as to admissibility.—In an action against an executor for services rendered testator, in which defendant’s witness testified to a conversation with plaintiff, whether plaintiff’s testimony that he had no such conversation with the witness but made other and different statements to him referred to a different conversation than that testified to by the witness held for the trial court’s determination under the circumstances. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 461.

Art. 3691. [2303] [2249] Religious opinions, etc., do not disqualify.—No person shall be incompetent to testify on account of his religious opinions, or for want of any religious belief. [Const., art. I, sec. 5.]

Form of oath.—See notes under Art. 9.

Art. 3692. [2304] [2250] Printed statutes evidence, when.—The printed statute books of this state, of the United States, of the District of Columbia, or of any state or territory of the United States, or of any foreign government purporting to have been printed under the authority thereof, shall be received as evidence of the acts and resolutions therein contained. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 3712.]

Application in general.—When a code or statutes of another state have been published by authority, and purport to have been so published, a reprint of such book is admissible in evidence, without other evidence of its sanction by the government of the state. Ellis v. Wiley, 17 T. 134.

The printed statute book of another state is admissible in evidence when properly authenticated. Ex parte Lee, 1 App. C. C. 327; Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280. This includes only books purporting to have been printed by state authority, and does not embrace private or unofficial publications. Martin v. Payne, 11 T. 392.

A publication, made by statute of a territory presumptive evidence of the laws of that territory, is admissible in evidence in this state to prove a statute of the territory. Beard v. State, 47 Cr. R. 181, 83 S. W. 824.

A pamphlet held not to purport to have been printed under authority of another state, so as to be admissible as evidence of its laws. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Blasingame, 28 C. A. 402, 85 S. W. 819.

The decisions of the supreme court of a state are not admissible to prove the laws of that state, unless made by an introduction of the statute books of the state. A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smythe, 55 C. A. 557, 119 S. W. 896.
Mode of authentication.—The acts of the legislature of any state or territory, or of any country subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, may be authenticated by having the seal of such state, territory or country affixed thereto. R. S. U. S. § 965; Mosesby v. Burrow, 62 T. 336. This does not preclude the states from establishing other modes of authentication or proof. Martin v. Payne, 11 T. 292.

Art. 3693. [2305] [2251] Certified copies of acts, etc., evidence.

—A certified copy under the hand and seal of the secretary of state of any act of resolution contained in any of such printed statute books deposited in his office, or of any law or bill, public or private, deposited in his office in accordance with law, shall be received as evidence thereof. [Id.]

Charter of corporation.—In an action against a railroad company for breach of a construction contract, a copy of the company's charter certified to by the secretary of the territory which granted it was properly admitted in evidence. El Paso & S. W. R. v. Harris & Liebman (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 146.

Best and secondary evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rules 9-11.

Art. 3694. [2306] [2252] Copies of records of public officers and courts to be prima facie evidence.—Copies of the records of all public officers and courts of this state, certified to under the hand, and seal of the county surveyors, of the lawful possessor of such records, shall be admitted as evidence in all cases where the records themselves would be admissible; translated copies of all records in the land office, certified to under the hand of the translator, and the commissioner of the general land office, attested with the seal of said office, shall be prima facie evidence in all cases where the original records would be evidence. [Id. P. D. 3715.]

See, also, notes under Arts. 82, 3696.

Clifford v. Smith (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1161.

Documents of record in general.—Certified copies of the record of officers of district and county surveyors are admissible to show by what certificate a given survey was made. Stout v. Taul, 71 T. 458, 9 S. W. 329.

Only such documents as are required or permitted by law to be filed in a public office, to constitute an entry or record, may be proved by certified copy. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 155 S. W. 1176.

The district clerk can give a certified copy of entry in notarial record deposited in his office, and such copy is admissible in evidence. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 386, 55 S. W. 401.

A certificate of the clerk of a county court that at a certain time he had indexed a certain judgment record not competent evidence of such indexing. Lindsey v. State, 27 C. A. 540, 66 S. W. 322.

A county clerk's certificate of the record of an abstract of a judgment was not inadmissible in evidence because the page of the record of the judgment was not given therein. Weinert v. Bimmang, 29 C. A. 495, 85 S. W. 1001.

Article 1748, authorizes clerks of the county court to appoint deputies, and requires such deputy to be recorded in the office of the clerk and deposited with the clerk of the district court; while articles 3687-3712 authorize such record, and copies thereof, to be introduced in evidence. Article 2257 declares that such acts shall be ex officio notary public; articles 9-14 authorizing such officials to administer oaths and take affidavits. Held that, where a county clerk testified that he had appointed such a deputy, but that the deputy had been mislaid, a record of such deputy, which was acknowledged before a justice of the peace, is admissible in evidence. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 645.

Probate record.—The records of courts of probate come within the provisions of this statute. House v. House, 18 T. 600; Abercombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 589, 14 S. W. 196.
Certified copies of probate records, including inventories, etc., are admissible in evidence. Colley v. Bell, 69 S. W. 613, 17 Am. St. Rep. 293, 17 S. W. 175. Seal.—The clerk's certificate to copies of records of the district court must be authenticated by the seal of the district court. McCarty v. Burtis, 22 S. W. 422, 3 C. A. 439.

Order of commissioners' court.—In prosecutions under local option law it is proper to admit certified copies of the order of the commissioners' court. Johnson v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 968.

Pleadings.—Admissibility of pleadings in general, see notes under Art. 2887. Certified copies of pleadings in the courts of Texas, under the hand and seal of the custodians of the records of the courts in which the pleadings were filed, are admissible in evidence under this statute. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 599.

Judgment.—It is not an objection to the copy of a judgment that the transcript does not contain an abstract of the judgment by which the judgment was rendered, or that it did not have the signature of the presiding judge, or that it failed to show that the minutes of the court of the term at which the judgment was rendered had been signed by the judge. Mitcheson v. Wadsworth, 1 App. C. C. § 798.

A copy of a judgment which did not show on its face by what court it was rendered had attached to it a certificate of the clerk of a court that it was a copy of an order of court "as the same appears of record in my office in records of court minutes." Held sufficient. King v. Duke (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 335; Halbert v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 110. National Bank v. Bryan, 12 C. A. 973, 34 S. W. 481.

A judgment of a justice of the peace, certified to by the officers of the circuit court, is not admissible. I. B. Rosenthal Millinery Co. v. Lennox (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 401.

An order of a justice of the peace is admissible, inter alia, to introduce deeds, bills of sale, deeds of trust, etc., and a divorce decree contained in the minutes of the same court in which accused was being tried for murder was admissible without the judgment or a copy having been filed with the record in such prosecution and notice given to the defendant. See (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 149; 114 S. W. 149.

In an action to cancel a conveyance on the ground of the grantor's insanity, a document purporting to be a judgment of the county court duly certified by the clerk thereof as a correct copy of the order entered in the lunacy case held admissible. Mitchell v. Innis (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 290.

Records of land office.—A translated copy of a Spanish title in the general land office, certified by the translator, is admissible upon the certificate of the commissioner that the person making the aforesaid certificate is a Spanish translator. Spillars v. Curry, 10 T. 143; Swift v. Herrera, 9 T. 263.

The translation of an archival in the general land office, made by the Spanish translator and attached to his deposition as an exhibit, with his certificate of its correctness, is admissible in evidence, in connection with his testimony, showing his ability to read and write the Spanish language, and that he attached the exhibit as a translation of the archival Spanish paper. Houston v. Blythe, 69 T. 596.

The archives in the general land office showing the proceedings of the board of land commissioners are competent to show to whom and upon what proof headright certificates were granted. McNeal v. O'Connor, 78 T. 227, 14 S. W. 1069.

An order from the grantee of a land certificate to the clerk of the county land board, dated February 25, 1838, directing the disposition to be made of the certificate, is not an arch of which a certified copy can be given. Lott v. King, 79 T. 282, 15 S. W. 331.

The record on surveys, filed in the general land office, does not become part of the records of the same office, and it is not admissible in evidence in a suit at common law to determine boundaries of lands granted, as evidence of the manner of making of surveys as granted, unless made a part of the records of the county land office. Am. 423, 15 S. W. 278.

The records of the county land office are admissible in evidence. Haddock v. Gillum, 66 T. 314, 1 S. W. 339.

The general land office being competent to show to whom and upon what proof headright certificates were granted. McNeal v. O'Conor, 78 T. 227, 14 S. W. 1069.

Orders of the board of land commissioners are admissible in evidence, to establish the truth of their proceedings. Pendleton v. Shaw, 15 C. A. 439, 44 S. W. 1002.

The voluntary affidavit of a county surveyor, acting unoffically, as to the location of lines of old grants of land, does not become a part of the records of the county land office, and does not become part of the records of the county land office, held admissible. Hooks v. Colley, 22 C. A. 1, 53 S. W. 55.

In an action concerning public school lands, the original list of classified and appraised school land, on file in the county clerk's office, is admissible in evidence. Colley v. Burris (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 47.

In an action involving a conflict between surveys of state lands, a map compiled and published by the land office was admissible to identify the location of the surveys. Barrow v. Colley, 25 C. A. 13, 59 S. W. 913.

In an action involving a conflict between state surveys, the affidavit of the surveyor, explaining his field notes and filed in the land office, was not admissible as a public record.

In trespass to try title to school lands, certified copy of classification and appraisement shows 29 C. A. 594, 63 S. W. 457.

Where a power of attorney with reference to the sale of lands was recorded in a county in which none of the land was situated, a copy of the record filed in the land office did not become an archive of that office. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 37, 75 S. W. 894.

A copy of the land office file in the general land office which was neither acknowledged nor had been recorded was admissible in evidence, because it was a paper required or permitted to be filed in the general land office. Trewy v. Lowrie, 33 C. A. 568, 78 S. W. 29.

A copy of the records in the land office if proved by a competent witness, even though not connected with the land office, to be a true copy is admissible in evidence. It need not be a certified copy. Smithers v. Lowrance, 35 C. A. 25, 79 S. W. 1089.

A fact that transfers of school land had been preserved in the manner required by law and not admissible in evidence. Slaughter v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 898.

Copies of documents which were archives of the general land office held properly admissible in evidence. Keith v. Guedry (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 392.

Copies of letters of the land commissioner, preserved in the ordinary way, are copies of records of the land office. McKee v. West, 55 C. A. 460, 118 S. W. 1135.

A deed by a vendor to recover against his vendor the land, the sale of which to defendant by the state was claimed to have been forfeited, a certified copy of an award by the commissioner of the land office to a third party made subsequent to the sale by defendant to plaintiff held admissible, and to raise the presumption that the first sale had been forfeited before the second was made. Slaughter v. Cooper, 56 C. A. 159, 121 S. W. 173.

In view of Arts. 82 and 3996, held, that sketches and plats made in the general land office from maps of H. G. county were admissible under this article in a boundary line dispute concerning land located therein, though the maps were not made contemporaneously with the date of location of the different surveys. Myers v. Moody (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 920.

An Indorsement made on an original grant of land on file in the general land office held an archive of the office, rendering a certified copy of the Indorsement admissible in evidence. Davidson v. Ryle, 103 T. 299, 124 S. W. 616, 125 S. W. 881.

In view of Arts. 3690 and 3996, held, that a certified copy from the general land office of material, the deed wrapper, covering the plat, is admissible in evidence in an action to recover the lands, certificate and survey, and showing the various steps taken by the land commissioner as to the issuance of the certificate, survey, and patent, was admissible in evidence in trespass to try title, so far as material and relevant; but a certified copy from the general land office of a letter from the transferee of a certificate to the land commissioner, in closing surveys and the deed of transfer, and referring to the execution of a transfer by another, was not admissible under this article, not being an archive of the land office. Allen v. Clearman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1140.

A certified copy of an Indorsement and the authentication of which is insufficient to entitle it to registration, is inadmissible, because the thing copied is not a record of a public officer. Heintz v. Thayer, 92 T. 658, 50 S. W. 929.

A deed improperly acknowledged and transcribed on the records can be proven as an admission by a certified copy. Heintz v. Thayer 104 T. 323, 77 S. W. 274.

Notarial record.—The authority of district clerk to give certified copy of notarial record deposited in his office, and the admissibility in evidence of such copy is clear. Mayfield v. Robinson, 22 C. A. 385, 55 S. W. 401.

Examined copy.—Every (public) document which a party has the right to inspect may be proved by a duly authenticated copy, and where proof is by a copy, an examined copy duly made and sworn to by any competent witness is always admissible. Smithers v. Lowrance, 35 C. A. 25, 79 S. W. 1088.

Statement of facts.—A statement of facts filed in the clerk's office is not a record of his office such as he can authenticate a copy of for use in an appellate court. The law provides that the original statement of facts and not a copy must be sent up with the transcript. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 126.

Filed papers.—Where transfers of leases are filed in the land office without being acknowledged or recorded in the county where the land lies, which the law authorizes to be done, they become records of the office and certified copies of them are admissible in evidence. McKee v. West, 55 C. A. 460, 118 S. W. 1136.

Admissibility in federal court.—The federal courts do not require the certificate of a judge of a state court that the attestation of the clerk thereof is in due form. Edwards v. Smith (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1161.

Charter of corporation.—Under this article and Art. 3696, a certified copy of a certificate of authority issued by the secretary of state to an amusement company is properly received in evidence, in all cases in which the original is admissible. Gould v. State, 61 Cr. R. 195, 124 S. W. 659.

In an action for the price of goods, where defendant claimed that he had agreed with the seller to transfer the goods to the C. Company, a partnership, and offered proof that it was still a copartnership, the certified copy of the charter of the company and the affidavits of its incorporators were admissible to show that it was not a partnership, but a corporation. Holt & Smith v. Texas Moline Flow Co. (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 215.

Bond.—In view of Art. 3716, held that, in the absence of an affidavit denying the execution of a supersedeas bond filed in another county, in an action for breach thereof, the original bond was admissible in evidence, and plaintiff was not required to prove it by other evidence. "Garrett v. Gresham (Civ.App.) 156 S. W. 656."

Certified copy of chattel mortgage.—See notes under Art. 5657.

Art. 3695. [2307] [2252a] Record of surveys, evidence.—The county surveyor of the several counties of this state shall record in a well-bound book all the surveys in the county or district for which he was elected, with plats thereof that he may make, whether private or official; and certified copies of such record, under the official signature of the surveyor, may be used in evidence in any of the courts of this state. [Acts 1880, p. 70.]

Surveys.—Record of survey and field notes made under a headright held admissible, in trespass to try title, in aid of ancient instrument conveying headright. Yeary v. Crenshaw, 30 C. A. 399, 70 S. W. 579.

A certified copy of a resurvey made by the district surveyor of a county is admissible in evidence as a surveyor is required to keep copies of all surveys and plats in his office. Sullivan v. Solis, 52 C. A. 464, 114 S. W. 461.

In view of this article and Art. 3694, held, that a certified copy from the general land office of memoranda made upon the file wrapper, covering the papers relating to a certain land certificate and survey, and showing the various steps taken by the land commissioner as to the issuance of the certificate, survey and plat of the land, is evidence in trespass to try title, so far as material and relevant; but a certified copy from the general land office of a letter from the transferee of a certificate to the land commissioner, inclosing surveys and the deed of transfer, and referring to the execution of a transfer by another, was not admissible under Art. 3694, not being an archive of the land office. Allen v. Clearman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1149.

Art. 3696. [2308] [2253] Copies and certificates from certain officers are evidence.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, attorney general, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller, treasurer, adjutant general, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance and banking, and state librarian, to furnish any person who may apply for the same with a copy of any paper, document or record in their respective offices, and also to give certificates, attested by the seal of their respective offices, certifying to any fact or facts contained in the papers, documents or records of their offices, to any person applying for the same; and the same shall be received in evidence in all cases in which the originals would be evidence. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3806.]

Application of article.—See, also, notes under Arts. 32, 3694. This article applies only to such papers as are required or permitted by law to be filed with attorneys. Rogers v. Pettus, 80 T. 425, 15 S. W. 882. A certificate of the commissioner of the general land office was offered in evidence stating that there was on file in his office a duly authenticated transfer of a bounty warrant, gave names, description of certificate, etc. Held, that the transfer of a land certificate could not be shown in this manner. Smithwick v. Andrews, 44 T. 488. See Howard v. McKenzie, 44 T. 170, 189.

A certified copy of the records of the general land office is evidence other than the testimony of the commissioner as to their contents. Stafford v. King, 30 T. 257, 94 Am. Dec. 393. Hold v. Hale (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 990. 1.

The certificate must be confined to a statement of the facts contained in the records, and cannot state what has not been done in the general land office, or state a conclusion from certain assumed premises. Buford v. Bostick, 68 T. 63; West v. El Campo L. Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 474.

A certified copy of a land certificate, made by the commissioner of the general land office, the originals being on file in his office, as a link in the chain of title to a survey of land which has been properly returned to that office is admissible in evidence. Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481; Henrick v. Cavanaugh, 60 T. 1; Zedlin v. Swamaker, 13 T. 51.

Certificate of the land office commissioner, not a copy of any paper recorded in the office nor a statement of fact contained in any such paper, is not admissible. Fisher v. Ullmann, 22 S. W. 525, 3 C. A. 322.

A certificate of the land commissioner that the sections were classified as "dry grazing land and appraised at one dollar per acre under act of 1897 on March 23, 1899, and placed on the market the same day by Geo. W. Finger, commissioner of the general land office, state of Texas," is sufficient to prove prima facie that the commissioner of the general land office has had reclassified and reapproved the sections and had notified the county clerk of the proper county in writing, of such action, as the law required him to do. White v. Pyron (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 83.

If a land commissioner as to certain title or certain land held inadmissible in evidence in trespass to try title. Hamilton v. McAuley, 27 C. A. 556, 65 S. W. 205.

If a paper has become an archive of the land commissioner's office under Art. 5447, the commissioner is authorized to give copy thereof which is receivable with like effect as would have been the original. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 379, 68 S. W. 704, 705.

In trespass to try title to land patented by the state, a certified copy of the patentee's receipt for the payment held not objectionable as constituting no evidence of right to the land. Robles v. Cooksey (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 584.

A certified copy by the commissioner of the general land office of a certified copy of a judgment of the district court rendered in favor of one against others for title and possession of land is admissible in evidence, being as much so as the records of the general land office.

One of the material issues on the trial was whether appellee was an actual settler on the homestead at time of the award to him. The certificate of the land commissioner to the effect that the required proof of three years' occupancy had been filed in the land office and that the same was deemed "sufficient" was inadmissible in evidence, because the appellant's application to purchase had been made prior to such proof, and the issuance of the certificate, and he was not concluded by the certificate on the issue of appellee's actual settlement. White v. Watson, 34 C. A. 169, 78 S. W. 237.

In trespass to try title, in which plaintiff claimed under a transfer of a headright certificate, a certified copy of an affidavit by a stranger to the action that he was the owner of the certificate held inadmissible. Simmonds v. Simmonds, 35 C. A. 151, 79 S. W. 630.

A declaration canceling a lease under the hand and seal of the land commissioner and filed in his office is a "paper document or record" in the land office under this article. Bradford v. Brown, 37 C. A. 323, 84 S. W. 392.

In trespass to try title to certain land, held error to admit in evidence a part of a list of school lands certified by the commissioner of general land office, without admitting the whole list. Knapp v. Patterson, 96 T. 400, 99 S. W. 183.

This article never intended to make a copy of a letter finding its way into the land office evidence against the person whose name is signed to it, on the mere certificate of the commissioner that such letter is on file in his office, when the original itself, if offered, would not be admissible without proof that it had been written by the person whose name is signed to it. Flynt v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 866.

Certificate of the commissioner of general land office as to classification of section of school land as grazing land, held admissible in evidence. Smithers v. Lowrance, 100 T. 77, 93 S. W. 1064.

A certified copy of a letter relating to land matters, the original of which the commissioner is required to keep on file as a record or archive of the land office, is properly admissible as hearsay. 41 C. A. 554, 104 S. W. 615.

A certificate of the commissioner of the general land office, from which it does not appear that the fact that a map was made from actual surveys is shown by any record in the land office, held not admissible as evidence of that fact. Wilkins v. Clawson, 50 C. A. 110, 119 S. W. 109.

Under this article and Arts. 82 and 3694, held, that sketches and plats made in the general land office from maps of H. county were admissible in a boundary line dispute concerning land located therein, though the maps were not made contemporaneously with the date of location of the different surveys. Myers v. Moody (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 920.

In trespass to try title, a certified copy of a letter held admissible as a circumstance tending to show the transfer of a certificate covering the land in controversy from the patentee to another, through whom defendants claimed. Id.

In view of this article and Arts. 3694 and 3696, held, that a certified copy from the general land office of memoranda made upon the file wrapper, covering the papers relating to a certain land certificate and survey, and showing the various steps taken by the land commissioner as to the issuance of the certificate, survey, and patent, was admissible in evidence in trespass to try title, so far as material and relevant; but a certified copy from the general land office of a letter from the transferee of a certificate to the transferee, and the deed of said surveys and referring to the execution of a transfer by another, was not admissible under Art. 3694, not being an archive of the land office. Allen v. Clearman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1140.

A land office map, which appeared to be an archive of the land office and which was relevant, was not subject to the objections a. that it was rear ted, b. that it was not made, c. not proven to be correct, nor how made, or from what data. Haile v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1088.

The purposes of this article are to require the commissioner of the general land office to certify to the correctness of records and to certify to facts contained in the records, and a certificate stating facts as within the knowledge of the commissioner gained from some other source than the records of his office and embracing his conclusions from an examination of the records is inadmissible, but a certificate disclosing facts contained in the records of his office is admissible. Talley v. Laman County, 104 T. 396, 137 S. W. 1125.

In view of Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 4154, held, that a letter of a claimant of land under a certificate, protesting against the floating of the certificate on other land so far as it affected the land located and awarded to him, but not objecting to the floating of the balance of the certificate, constituted an "archive" of the land commissioner's office so that a certified copy of the same was admissible as provided by this article. Robertson v. Behlers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 657.

A certified copy of an affidavit and other instruments, on which a duplicate headright certificate was issued by the land department, held inadmissible to show the loss of the original and that the affiant was the owner thereof at the time the proceedings were taken. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 759.

Copy from copy.—Under ordinary circumstances, and under former decisions, copies taken from copies were in evidence, but in view of modern methods, it is much preferable to make contemporaneous and continuous assertions of title under claim of right, such as the originals of the copies would evidence, the admission of such remote copies cannot be regarded as error. Von Rosenberg v. Haynen, 86 T. 607, 29 S. W. 145.

Ex parte certificate.—An ex parte certificate as to facts not existing is not admissible in evidence. Myers v. Jones, 23 S. W. 662, 4 C. A. 330.

What constitutes fact.—An opinion of the commissioner of the general land office.
as to the validity of a grant on file in that office is not a fact which can be certified under Comptroller of state.—A certificate from the comptroller of the state showing what property of a citizen was rendered for taxes for specified years, "as shown by the records" of a county named in the certificate, is one which he is authorized to make, and is admissible in evidence.

The comptroller's certificate of the value of the property in a county taken from the assessment rolls thereof which are required to be filed in his office is admissible to prove the assessed value of the different parts of the county in a suit by the parent county against a defendant, and that it was not rendered by plaintiff or those under whom she claims, is admissible to prove ownership. Hirsch v. Patton, 49 C. A. 499, 108 S. W.

Redemption certificates from the office of the comptroller of the state, duly authenticated, purporting to show the amount of costs paid, were admissible in evidence under this article and Art. 3708. Typer & Knudson v. Tom (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 850.

State treasurer.—A certificate of the state treasurer which in substance states that the records of his office show that the land commissioner had deposited in his office a certain draft as payment in full for certain public charges for account of O.
H. T. and showing application of money is admissible under this article. Robles v.
Cooksey (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 588.

The statement of a county treasurer, kept in the office of the state treasurer, and certified by him to be correct, is admissible in evidence. Harper v. Marlon County, 32
C. A. 653, 77 S. W. 1044.

Certified copy from state treasurer's office of notice from general land commissio-nator to state treasurer of cancellation of lease of school land held inadmissible in evidence.
Trumble v. Burroughs, 41 S. W. 614.

A certified copy of a record of the state treasurer's office is admissible in evidence as original, where the original instrument itself would be admissible. Zettlemeyer v.
Shuler, 52 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 73.

Adjutant general.—A certified copy by the adjutant general of an instrument on file in the office purporting to be the muster roll of Fannin's command is admissible under this article in connection with other evidence, as tending to show that one under whom the title is claimed was the man whose name appears on said muster roll. Allen v. Halstead, 132 S. W. 324, 37 S. W. 556.

Secretary of state.—A sworn copy of the records in the office of the secretary of state, showing a forfeiture of the franchise of a corporation, is sufficient to prove the facts.

Under this article and Art. 3694, a certified copy of a certificate of authority issued by the secretary of state to an amusement company is properly received in evidence, in all cases in which the original is admissible. Gould v. State, 61 Cr. R. 195, 134 S. W. 696.

Commissioner of insurance and banking.—A bond of defendant, insuring the risk of a surety on the bond of a foreign insurance company, filed in the insurance department to enable such insurance company to do business in Texas, held a mere common law obligation not required by law to be filed in that department, and hence could not be proved by a certified copy thereof. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 155
S. W. 1178.

Art. 3697. [2309] [2254] Notarial acts and copies thereof are evidence.—All declarations and protests made, and acknowledgments, taken by notaries public, and certified copies of their records and of-official papers, shall be received as evidence of the facts therein stated in all the courts of this state. [Act June 24, 1876, p. 30, sec. 9. P. D. 4697.]

Certification by county clerk.—See Art. 6013.

Copies of records.—A notarial copy of a conveyance of land in Texas, and made before a notary public in Louisiana in accordance with the form and mode usual in that state, the original being entered in the notary's book and signed by the parties and the notary, although proved and recorded in the county where the land lies, is not admis-761.

A notary's record is competent to show that a lost deed was signed and acknowl-

Certificate.—Notary public's certificate evidence sufficient to fix the liability of an indorser, etc. Munzesheimer v. Allen, 3 App. C. C. § 65.

Copies of the notarial certificate recited that he was a notary of the county of
R. The signature and seal showed that he was a notary of H. county. It was held that

Art. 3698. [2310] [2255] In suits against delinquent officers, transcript from comptroller's office is evidence.—In suits by the state against any officer or agent thereof, on account of any delinquency or failure to pay to the state any money, a transcript from the papers, books, records and proceedings of the office of comptroller of public accounts, purporting to contain a true statement of accounts between the state and such party, authenticated under the seal of said office, shall be admitted as prima facie evidence; and the court trying the cause may thereupon render judgment accordingly; and all copies of bonds, contracts or other papers relating to, or connected with, any account between the state and an individual, sued as aforesaid, when certified by the comptroller of public accounts to be true copies of the originals on file in said office, and authenticated under the seal of said office, may be annexed to such transcript and shall be entitled to the same degree of credit that would be due to the original papers if produced and proved in court; but, when such suit is brought upon a bond or other written instrument, and the defendant shall by plea under oath deny the execution of such instrument, the court shall require the production and proof thereof. [Act Feb. 8, 1861, p. 14. P. D. 3704.]

Art. 3699. [2311] [2256] Copies of certain instruments prior to 1837 are evidence.—Copies of all conveyances and other instruments of writing between private individuals, which were filed in the office of any alcalde or judge in Texas previous to the first Monday in February, 1837, shall be admissible in evidence, and shall have the same force and effect as the originals thereof; provided, such copies are certified under the hand and official seal of the officer with whom the originals are now deposited. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 91. P. D. 3717.]

Time of recording.—An act of sale of one league of land was passed before the alcalde of the municipality of Austin in 1832, with three assisting witnesses. In August, 1837, the execution of the instrument was proven by one of the subscribing witnesses, and the signature of another of the subscribing witnesses was also proven. The county clerk of Austin county in 1851 certified to the correctness of copy of the foregoing deed on file in his office, and that he was the proper keeper of conveyances and other instruments of writing between private individuals which were filed in the office of the alcalde or judge of Austin’s first colony. Held, that the copy was admissible in evidence. Hubert v. Bartlett, 9 T. 27.

A deed executed before a judge of the first instance on the 26th of October, 1834, was recorded on the 2d of June, 1841, without having been proven for record. Held, that a copy from the record was not admissible in evidence. Holliday v. Cromwell, 25 T. 188.

The admissibility of an instrument conveying land, executed September 1, 1830, Martin v. Parker, 26 T. 253.

Power of attorney.—A power of attorney executed in Mexico in 1833 before a notary, held duly proven by the following testimony: 1. A certified copy of the act made by a notary, who certified that he was successor to the original notary before whom the act was made, and his records. 2. Certificate of three notaries to the genuineness of the signature and seal of the certifying notary. 3. The certificate and seal of the governor of the federal district of Mexico, which was verified by the certificate of the proper secretary of the department of foreign relations of the national government of Mexico, under the seal of that department. Williams v. Conger, 49 T. 582.

Necessity for accounting for copy of original.—The certified copy of an act of sale executed under the requirements of the civil law and deposited as an archive in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the land was situated, in 1835, is evidence, without accounting for the copy of the original usually given to the purchaser as evidence of title. Van Sickle v. Catlett, 76 T. 404, 13 S. W. 31.

Location of land.—The clerk of the county court can give a certified copy of an original act of sale executed November 22, 1836, which was in his possession. But a copy from the records of the original instrument recorded in a county in which the land is not located is not admissible in evidence. Broxson v. McDougal, 63 T. 193, citing Hutchings v. Bacon, 46 T. 415; State v. Cardinas, 47 T. 250.

Art. 3700. [2312] [2257] Recorded instruments admitted in evidence without proof, when.—Every instrument of writing which is permitted or required by law to be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court, and which has been, or hereafter may be, so recorded, after being proved or acknowledged in the manner provided by the laws of this state in force at the time of its registration, or at the time it was proven or acknowledged, or every instrument which has been, or hereafter may be, actually recorded for a period of ten years in the book used by said clerk for the recording of such instruments, whether proven or acknowledged in such manner or not, shall be admitted as evidence in any suit in this state without the necessity of proving its execution, provided, no claim adverse or inconsistent to the one evidenced by such instrument shall have been asserted during that ten years, provided, that the party to give such instrument in evidence shall file the same among the papers of the suit in which he proposes to use it at least three days before the commencement of the trial of such suit, and give notice of such filing to the opposite party or his attorney of record; and unless such opposite party, or some other person for him, shall, within three days before the trial of the cause, file an affidavit stating that he believes such instrument of writing to be forged. And, whenever any party to a suit shall file among the papers of the cause an affidavit stating that any instrument of writing, recorded as aforesaid, has been lost, or that he can not procure the original, a certified copy of the record of any such instrument shall be admitted in evidence in like manner as the original could be. And after such instrument shall have been actually recorded as herein provided for a period of ten years, it shall be no objection to the admission of same, or a certified copy thereof, as evidence, that the certificate of the officer, who took such proof or acknowledgment, is not in form or substance such as required by the laws of this state; and said instrument shall be given the same effect as if it were not so defective. [Acts 1846, p. 387. Acts 1907, p. 308. P. D. 3716.]

Cited, Crosby v. Ardoin (Clv. App.) 146 S. W. 709 (dissenting opinion); Wolf v. Wilhelm (Clv. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

Historical.—By the act of January 19, 1839 (3d Cong. p. 47; 1 Early Laws, art. 593), copies of deeds, etc., when the originals remain in the public archives, and were executed in conformity with the laws existing at their dates, duly certified by the proper officers, were admitted to record in the county where the land lay.

Construction of "three days."—The words "within three days before the trial of the cause," used in the statute, mean "at least three days before the trial," and should be so read. Hammond v. Connolly, 63 T. 62.

Application of article in general.—This act was applicable only to copies of instruments which at the date of the act remained in the public archives, which upon authentication by the public officers in charge of them could be recorded, and this section did not permit instruments then in private hands to be recorded on the faith of certificates made by officers of the preceding government. Lambert v. Weir, 27 T. 359; Wolf v. Welder, 42 T. 396.

Statutes in regard to admission of copies of records or written instruments held to apply only to those certified to by the clerks of the county courts of this state. Hallday v. Lambright, 29 C. A. 226, 63 S. W. 712.

This article applies in all cases where the certified copy of a recorded instrument is sought to be used in evidence, the original of which is permitted or required by law to be recorded in the office of the county clerk. Valentine v. Sweatt, 34 C. A. 135, 75 S. W. 386, 387.

This article includes conveyances of land and is broad enough to include a deed defectively acknowledged, is remedial in its nature and applies to suits pending at time it took effect as well as those thereafter executed. Haney v. Gartn, 51 C. A. 577, 113 S. W. 167.

This article applies only to deeds properly recorded in this state, and not to copies of deeds recorded in other states conveying land in this state. William M. Rice Institute v. Freeman (Clv. App.) 145 S. W. 688.

In view of Art. 3694, held, that this article applies exclusively to instruments between private parties, such as deeds of sale, deeds of trust, etc., and that a divorce decree contained in the minutes of the same court in which accused was being tried for murder was admissible without the judgment or a copy having been filed with the record in such prosecution and notice given to accused. Clayton v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 119.

Purpose of article.—The purpose of this article respecting registration is not to give notice, but to establish a rule of evidence, and under that statute if an instrument required or permitted by law to be recorded has been acknowledged or proved for recording elsewhere, the original, or copies, will, with the other provisions of the law, stand as though its execution had been proved as at common law, unless an affidavit of forgery be filed; and so also will a certified copy thereof. If the inability of the party offering it, to produce the original, be shown. Hancock v. Tran Lumber Co., 65 T. 225; Holmes v. Coryell, 63 T. 608; Beaumont Pasture Co. v. Preston, 65 T. 448.

It is simply intended by this article to render in certain cases instruments and copies of them, which had been recorded a designated period of time, admissible in evidence, which were not admissible under this article before it was amended, but would otherwise have to be proved as at common law. If the instrument was invalid before, it was invalid when Stump v. Stump, 223 S. W. 295, 113 S. W. 816.

Acknowledgment in general.—Where an instrument is not proven in the mode required for its admission to record, it acquires no authenticity from having been in trations prior to that date, but did not validate a previous defective acknowledgment. Id.

Record of a deed showing defective acknowledgment held inadmissible after evidence to the grantor that it property acknowledged. Scales v. Johnson (Civ.
App.) 41 S. W. 828.

The record of an assignment of a patent and a deed held admissible to show a conveyance of the land, with other evidence, though the assignment and the deed were not properly acknowledged, so as to be entitled to record. Schultz v. Tony Lumber Co., 36 C. A. 448, 32 S. W. 353.

An instrument appearing in the deed records in the handwriting of a deputy clerk, who was the grantor therein, constitute circumstantial evidence of the making of such a deed by the grantor, although the deed is not properly acknowledged for record.
Whitaker v. Thayer, 38 C. A. 537, 36 S. W. 364.

A record which is void because the deed was improperly acknowledged and not entitled to record is nevertheless admissible to establish the existence of the deed

The record of a deed where the certificate of acknowledgment is fatally defective, is a nullity, and a copy of the void record is not admissible for any purpose. The fact that it would be admissible if it had existed would not serve to prove the execution of a lost deed. But the existence of such a record cannot be proved by a certified copy thereof. A certified copy of a recorded instrument is evidence of the existence of the recorded instrument so certified has been properly acknowledged.
Wanza v. Trapp (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 878.

This article provides for the introduction of every instrument which is permitted or required to be recorded, and which has been recorded after being "acknowledged in the manner provided by the laws in force at the time of its registration." Held, that the quoted words mean not only that the certificate of acknowledgment itself must be formal, but also that the officer taking the same must have had authority to do so. Bled-

A tax deed, purporting to have been executed by the comptroller, but never ac-nowledged, was inadmissible. Wolfarth v. De Lay (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 617.

A document admitting that the title to the land in controversy was held in trust held admissible in evidence, though not acknowledged as required by law. Mortimer v.
Jackson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 941.

Location of land.—A deed for land in Wichita county was filed for record in Montague county, to which it was attached. The certificate of record upon the deed showed that it had been "recorded in Clay county records." The deed was offered in evidence as a recorded instrument under this article. Held: (1) Although the deed had been properly filed for record in Montague county, yet the certificate showing the record in Clay county records did not show the deed to have been properly recorded, and it was properly excluded. (2) As notice, the filing was proper and was effective. (3) In connection with the deed, and to show that it had been properly recorded, the original rec-cord book was competent evidence, and its exclusion was improper. (4) With the evidence in the record book that the deed had been properly recorded, the deed was admissible, there being no question as to the filing of the deed and notice under the statute.
Lanig v. Chisholm, 71 T. 417, 8 S. W. 470.

The registration of a deed in a county other than that in which the land is situated, unless attached to such county, is invalid. See Levrin v. Thorp, 24 S. W. 685, 3 C. A.
19; McCellen v. Cryer, 28 S. W. 691, § C. A. 437.

By Art. 1754 county clerks are recorders for their respective counties, and a certified copy of a deed not recorded in the county in which the land is situated is not admis-

A deed is admissible in evidence, although not recorded in the proper county, where no question of notice is involved and the record is not relied on to prove its execution.

A recorded copy of deed embracing land in separate counties, recorded in one only, held admissible, inadmissible to produce the original being shown. Western Union Tel. Co.

A certified copy of power of attorney recorded in a county other than that in which the land is located is inadmissible to prove its execution. Villareal v. McLaughlin (Civ.
App.) 62 S. W. 99.

Where a deed could, under the statute, be recorded in either of two counties, a certified copy from either county is admissible. Turner v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 154.

The recording of the abstract of the lease in the county where the land lies is sufficient to authorize the admission of a copy in evidence. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68
S. W. 704.

Where copies of deeds are recorded in the county where the land is situated as authorized by Art. 6828, they are admissible under this article. Logan's Heirs v. Logan, 31
C. A. 295, 72 S. W. 417.

This statute applies only to deeds properly recorded in this state, and not to copies of deeds recorded in other states conveying land in this state. William M. Rice Institute v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 688.

What are recorded instruments.—On the 5th of October, 1835, a deed for land exeuted before a second judge of the first instance was signed by the vendor, by the judge, by two instrumental and two assisting witnesses. The protocol was given to the party as evidence of title. The instrument thus authenticated was a public instrument which required no proof of its execution when offered in evidence, and when issued in 1830, deeds of land were required to be recorded. This instrument was admitted to record on the acknowledgment by the judge of his own signature and proof by him of the signature of the grantor. It was properly admitted in evidence as a recorded instrument, 28 Me. C. 148; Paschal v. Pelletier, 15 N. H. 489.

A transfer of a located land certificate, executed in 1840, was filed in the general land office in November, 1859. Patent for the land was issued May, 1873. On the 22d of October, 1872, a certified copy of the transfer was recorded in the county in which the land was situated. This instrument was admitted in evidence as a recorded instrument against one holding under a deed made in 1857 by the original grantee of the certificate. Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 15 S. W. 300.

Deeds in Mexico held an exhibit to archivé, so an office certificate as an evidence. De la Garza v. Macmanus (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 704.

A certified copy of a judgment in a district court of another county is not a recorded instrument within the meaning of this article and is admissible without having been filed three days before commencement of trial. Kerr v. Oppenheimer, 20 C. A. 140, 49 S. W. 149.

This article does not apply to instruments like a writ of execution, and parties who wish to prove that an execution was issued within the twelve months from the date of the judgment, where the court's docket does not show that it was so issued, do not have to give notice that the execution was lost and that they intend to use a certified copy of the execution. Where search for the execution has been made among the papers in the case and in the sheriff's office without avail, evidence alittle of the issuance of the execution can be introduced. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 277.

A certified copy of a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, which has been properly recorded in the county where the debtors or grantors did business is admissible in evidence after the deed being the deed, in a case of trespass to try title. Batts v. Moore (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1036.

An abstract of title made by a county clerk and certified by him to have been taken from the record of deeds in his office is admissible in evidence. Frugia v. Trueheart, 48 A. 105, 106 S. W. 736.

Record of a certain affidavit held not admissible in evidence. White v. McCullough, 55 C. A. 383, 120 S. W. 1093.

Filing before trial and notice. — The filing and notice simply relieves the party from proving the execution of the deed as a common law, unless impeached by affidavit; but does not preclude the opposing party from disproving the execution of the deed or from showing that it was a forgery. Jordan v. Robson, 27 T. 612.

The acknowledgment by a grantor of a deed for record does not render it admissible in evidence, except under the statute, after filing and three days' notice to opposite party. Wiggins v. Fleishell, 50 T. 57.

A certified copy of a judgment of the district court is admissible in evidence without being filed as required by Art. 3700. McDaniell v. Weiss, 53 T. 257.

A decree of partition is admissible as a muniment of title, without serving the defendant with notice before trial of his intention to offer it in evidence. Harvey v. Edens, 69 T. 420, 6 S. W. 306; Stevens v. Gelser, 71 T. 140, 8 S. W. 610.

An unrecorded instrument executed in 1841, and offered in evidence in 1887, is admissible without having been filed as required by this article. McCamant v. Roberts, 80 T. 318, 15 S. W. 580, 1054.

Notice is not necessary where the instrument is filed as a part of the petition more than three days before trial. Lignoski v. Crooker, 24 S. W. 785, 56 T. 324.

The execution and delivery of a deed is proven by witnesses, it need not be filed before the trial. McGehee v. Minter (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 718.

Certified copy of deed held inadmissible without compliance with statute. Henry v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 120.

A certified copy of a deed, filed three days before trial, and notice thereof is given is admissible in evidence, the attorney of the party filing the copy having shown that he could not produce the original. Boyd v. Leish (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 618.

The rejection of a copy of a deed on the ground that a certified copy was not filed in court three days before trial, and for the failure to give the statutory notice of the filing, held erroneous. Latimer v. Kershner (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1016.

In trespass to try title, where a deed under which plaintiff claimed referred to another deed, held proper to permit the record to be read in evidence, without filing a certified copy of the deed referred to and giving the statutory notice. Bracken v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 326.

The record of the rendition of each tax payer is required to be kept in the county clerk's office. The custodian of the same can identify it, and it is admissible in evidence without the three days' statutory notice required in the admission of deeds. Frazier v. State (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 533.

Certified copies of papers relating to incorporation of towns, which are required to be recorded by the county clerk's office, must be filed in such case and three days' notice given, before they can be introduced in evidence. Lamar v. State, 49 Cr. R. 563, 95 S. W. 512.

A certified copy of a marriage certificate is inadmissible in evidence for bigamy unless it has been filed among the papers in the case three days before the trial. Burton v. State, 101 S. W. 226, 51 Cr. R. 196.

Statement as to proper filing of a registered instrument in papers of suit, so as to be admissible without proof of execution. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 857.

This article applies only to such instruments as have been recorded previous to being filed among the papers in a suit. 1d.

It is only when it is desired to have an instrument, permitted or required by law to be recorded used as evidence without proof of its execution, that it is necessary to file it three days before trial, and notice given of such filing to the opposite party. Clayton v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 581.

In a suit to partition lands in which plaintiffs claimed an undivided one-half interest, the fact that the suit was a partition suit did not authorize the admission of a deed under which plaintiffs claimed title, without proof of its execution and without the three days' filing and notice to defendants, required by statute. Merrill v. Bradley, 52 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 561.

Under this article, providing that, to render a deed admissible in evidence, it must be filed in the case before the trial, with notice to the adverse party, and Code Cr. Proc. art. 784, making the rules of evidence in civil suits applicable in criminal actions, the deed records of a county, showing a lease of a building to an amusement company whose employee is on trial for permitting a theatrical performance in the building to be given without a license, was inadmissible, where a copy was not filed before the trial and notice given. Gould v. State, 61 Cr. R. 195, 134 S. W. 695.

A deed which has been drawn up under the common-law rule, though not filed before the beginning of the trial as prescribed by statute in such cases, is properly received in evidence. First State Bank of Tongue v. Harris (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1182.

In an action on a dramshop keeper's bond, the original bond and the judgment of the county court authorizing him to engage in the business of a retail liquor dealer are properly received in evidence, though they have not been on file among the papers of the case for three days, as provided by this article, relating to the introduction of certified copies of recorded conveyances. McElroy v. Sparkman (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 539.

Where defendant was notified to produce certain original deeds or that secondary evidence would be offered to prove their execution and contents, and the attorneys stipulated that the introduction of copies of the records of the deeds might be introduced, the receipt of such records in evidence, notwithstanding the technical failure to file certified copies and give three days' notice thereof, did not require a reversal, where it was not claimed that the deeds were forgeries. Hill v. Walker (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 687.

A certified copy of a judgment was admissible in evidence without having been filed with the papers in the case at least three days before the trial and notice thereof given to the opposite party or his attorney. James v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1073.

The fact that the record does not show a seal to the certificate of acknowledgment is immaterial. Alexander v. Houghton (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1102.

A deed not duly registered is inadmissible in evidence. Davidson v. Wallingford (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 286.

The rejection of a will as evidence because of a defect in the recording of it, which was afterwards corrected, held error, under the circumstances. Mattfeld v. Huntington, 17 C. A. 716, 43 S. W. 53.

Time of recording.—The mortgage under which defendants claim title, made by plaintiff's father, held admissible in replevin, though plaintiff did not know it was made, and it was not recorded until after suit was brought. Saenz v. O. F. Mumme & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 59.

The instrument must have been recorded at the date of filing. If not recorded until the day of trial, though properly acknowledged for record when filed three days previous, the deed was not admissible under this article. Gaines v. Ann, 26 T. 340.

Certified copy.—When a certified copy is offered in evidence showing that the original was proved for record before a notary, who stated in his certificate that he thereto affixed his official seal, it will be presumed that the notary's seal was properly attached to the original certificate, although no evidence of that fact appear on the copy. Ballard v. Perry, 28 T. 347.

A second certified copy, issued and certified at a date later than that of the original, and delivered to the party as evidence of title, is not admissible in evidence without proof of its genuineness. State v. Cardinas, 47 T. 289.

See circumstances under which a certified copy of a recorded instrument, the genuineness of which was impeached, was admitted in evidence. Brown v. Simpson, 67 T. 226, 2 S. W. 644; Davis v. Pearson, 26 S. W. 241, 6 C. A. 593.

The omission of a copy of a recorded patent taken from the county land register to prove title in behalf of the party offering it is reversible error when objection is made to its introduction and the statute was not complied with. R. G. & E. P. R. R. Co. v. Milmo Nat. Bank, 72 T. 467, 10 S. W. 563.

An examined copy of a certified copy of a recorded instrument is not admissible in evidence. Lasater v. Van Hook, 77 T. 660, 14 S. W. 270.

A certified copy of a deed not properly recorded held admissible to show execution. Guiler v. Musick (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 723.

A certified copy of a deed examined, and held not to be a certified copy of a certified copy so as to be inadmissible under the statute as a recorded instrument. Williams v. Cassida, 45 C. A. 315, 96 S. W. 1106.

A copy of the record of a document not entitled to be recorded held inadmissible as a certified copy of a legal record. West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas, 46 C. A. 102, 102 S. W. 927.

Under this article making a certified copy of any instrument affecting title to land admissible in a proper predicate is laid, and a party declaring that a certificate that a person named has filed proof of residence and occupancy of land for three years is a muniment of title and may be recorded, a certified copy of such a certificate is admissible in evidence on a proper predicate being laid. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1197.
Affidavit of loss, mutilation or inability to procure.—If the affidavit is made by any person other than a party to the suit it should exclude the party offering the evidence and he shall have the right to procure his evidence and to set it up in evidence. It is made of the party offering the evidence has it in his power to produce the original. Crayton v. Munger, 11 T. 234; Butler v. Dunagan, 19 T. 566; Hooper v. Hall, 30 T. 154; Foot v. Silliman, 77 T. 268, 15 S. W. 1032; Kauffman v. Shellworth, 64 T. 179.

If the affidavit is not and never was in possession of affiant, and that he does not know where the same can be found, is not in compliance with the statute. Crayton v. Munger, 11 T. 234; Hooper v. Hall, 30 T. 154.

The statute authorizing secondary evidence must be strictly complied with. Butler v. Dunagan, 19 T. 566.

A certified copy of a recorded instrument is admissible in evidence upon an affidavit that the original is lost and that it cannot be procured. Hurley v. Barnard, 48 T. 88; Evans v. T. 234; Foot v. Silliman, 77 T. 268, 13 S. W. 1032.

The affidavit must show diligent search and inquiry of the proper person and in the proper place. The loss must be proved if possible by the person in whose custody it was at the time of the loss, if such person be living; and if dead, application should be made to his representatives and search made among the documents of the deceased. Van­dergriff v. Piercy, 59 T. 371; Hill v. Taylor, 77 T. 295, 14 S. W. 366.

An affidavit by a party's attorney, stating "that he cannot procure the original, and that he has tried and done all he could to procure it," is insufficient. Kauffman v. Shellworth, 64 T. 179.

Though a certified copy of deed must be on file in the cause three days before the trial to authorize its introduction in evidence, the affidavit may be made at any time before the commencement of the trial. Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 390.

Hillsborough declared upon is mutilated, and such mutilation is averred and explained in the pleadings, there is no necessity for an affidavit in regard thereto to render it admissible in evidence, where proof other than that of the party himself is offered to explain the mutilation and establish the facts in regard to the execution and validity of such instrument. Dicks v. Austin College, 1 App. C. C. § 1069, citing Withee v. Fearing, 23 T. 505.

A certified copy of a deed is not admissible in evidence on mere proof that the party offering it caused the original deed to be attached to a commission to take testimony, and that the party who had not returned the same, although requested to do so. Such evidence does not establish the fact that the deed could not have been procured by the exercise of reasonable diligence. Crafts v. Daughtery, 69 T. 477, 6 S. W. 850.

Six months before a certified copy of a deed was offered in evidence it was filed with the petition, but was not referred to therein. The petition alleged that the original was in the custody of the defendant, and gave him notice to produce it, or secondary evidence of its contents would be offered on the trial. The defendant was its proper custodian. Held, that it was not necessary that the plaintiff should make affidavit that he could not procure the deed; the copy was admissible in evidence. Pennington v. Schwartz, 70 T. 211, 8 S. W. 32.

Certified copy of a deed is admissible upon affidavit as required in this article; proof of search, etc., for original not needed. Nye v. Gribble, 70 T. 465, 8 S. W. 608.

In Veach v. Holt, 71 T. 715, 9 S. W. 743, it is said that where a defendant in whose hands a private paper is presumed to be is without the jurisdiction of the court, he cannot be compelled to produce it, and from this fact the affidavit of the plaintiff or his attorney is not necessary to lay a predicate for the introduction of the copy.

A specific statement of the acts of diligence in searching for the lost deed is only necessary when made with a view to the introduction of parol evidence of the contents of the lost deed. Foot v. Silliman, 77 T. 268, 13 S. W. 1032. See Waggoner v. Aldorf, 81 T. 360, 16 S. W. 1083, for requisites of affidavit.

When an instrument is proved as at common law, a preliminary affidavit of its loss is unnecessary. Blanton v. Ray, 66 T. 61, 71 S. W. 264. When the original instrument is lost, a certified copy may be offered in evidence upon the same proof as would make the original admissible if it could be produced. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Stealey, 66 T. 468, 1 S. W. 185.

When the loss of an instrument and contents are shown, it is also necessary to prove its execution, and that it once existed as a valid instrument. Overand v. Menczer, 83 T. 120, 18 S. W. 301.

When secondary evidence of a deed that has been lost or destroyed is offered, it is not necessary to file a preliminary affidavit of the loss or destruction. Trimble v. Edwards, 84 T. 497, 19 S. W. 772. The evidence of a witness on the stand, instead of the affidavit, will be sufficient. Parks v. Caudle, 88 T. 236; Trimble v. Edwards, 84 T. 497, 19 S. W. 772. But it must be shown that there was diligent search and inquiry made of the proper person, and in the proper places, for the lost deed; the loss must be proved, if possible, by the person in whose custody it was at the time of the loss, if such person be living; and if dead, application should be made to his representatives, and search made among the documents of the deceased. Vandergriff v. Piercy, 33 T. 372; Hill v. Taylor, 77 T. 295, 14 S. W. 366; Trimble v. Edwards, 84 T. 497, 19 S. W. 772.

A certified copy of a deed is admissible on the affidavit of plaintiff’s attorney that neither he nor the plaintiff could procure the same. Southall v. Southall, 6 C. A. 694, 26 S. W. 180.

An affidavit that states that a deed is lost and affiant does not know where it is and states where it is recorded and attaches a certified copy, is sufficient under the statute, to admit evidence that it is lost and cannot be procured. Thompson v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 246, 68 S. W. 1031.
A defendant cannot introduce a copy of a deed which has been filed by his codefendant together with an affidavit of the loss of the original, but which has not been introduced in evidence. Stewart v. Roberts, 32 C. A. 661, 74 S. W. 950. An affidavit by one of several defendants that "the defendants nor either of them are or is able to produce the following described deed," etc., is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the article. Taliaferro v. Work, 32 C. A. 268, 75 S. W. 999.

Under the express terms of this article a certified copy of a deed is admissible on filing an affidavit that the original cannot be found or procured. Smith v. Burgher (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 75.

The latter part of this article, referring to the introduction of recorded instruments without proof of execution, applied only to the original instruments, and that copies of a record of deed of trust which had been duly acknowledged and recorded were inadmissible, in the absence of an affidavit of loss or inability to procure the original. Green v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 999.

In an action against an irrigation company for damages from failure to furnish water, it was error to admit a certified copy of its declaration of intention to appropriate the water, signed by the officers of the company, as one required to be recorded, where the same was not filed three days before the commencement of the trial and no affidavit was filed alleging the loss of the original instrument as required by this article. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 286.

Affidavit of forgery.—The genuineness of a deed under which plaintiff claims may be attacked although it may have been admitted as a recorded instrument and no affidavit of forgery has been filed. McGee v. Berrien (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 462.

The affidavit of forgery was filed as to deed relied on by defendants in suit for recovery of land, whether testimony offered to show execution of deed was sufficient to authorize its admission in evidence held for the court. Thompson v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 346, 58 S. W. 1036.

Where issue was whether deed under which defendants claimed was a forgery, after introduction of evidence in evidence either party might introduce testimony as to the execution of the deed.

When a certified copy of a deed was offered in evidence in trespass to try title, defendant objected to its admission on the ground that it did not sufficiently identify the land conveyed, and offered in evidence an original grant to another in the same colony in which the land conveyed was situated, and of the same date of the survey of the parties' remote grantor and issued by the same commissioner, but did not call the court's attention to an affidavit of forgery of the grantor, or object to the admission of the copy for want of proof of execution, or of the loss of the original deed, or object that the copy had not been filed for three days before trial with notice to them. Held, that the certified copy was properly admitted, and was prima facie evidence of the execution of the deed by the grantor. Houston Oil Co. v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533.

Where an affidavit of forgery was filed against an ancient recorded assignment of a lease, if a certified copy thereof was admissible, the affidavit only imposing on defendants the duty to prove the instrument as at common law. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

Where defendants based their title on a lost deed, producing neither the original nor a certified copy, but undertaking to show its execution and contents as at common law, an affidavit by plaintiffs of the forgery of the deed is of no effect, and should not be called to the attention of the jury by the charge. Rice v. Taliaferro (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 242.

Ancient documents.—See also notes under Art. 3687, Rule 16.

A certified copy of deed which had been recorded 30 years, with strong corroborating circumstances of its authenticity, will be admitted in evidence as a copy of an ancient instrument, the genuineness of which has been impeached by affidavit; otherwise, if there is no evidence showing the date of registration. Brown v. Simpson, 67 T. 225, 2 S. W. 644.

A copy of a deed purporting on its face to be the act of the corporation, certified to by the county clerk, and which recites that it was executed by the officers of the company under its corporate seal, is admissible in evidence, though a scroll by way of seal is placed in the copy where the corporate seal should have been attached in the original. The presumption must obtain that it was thus sealed, after the lapse of 28 years from its registration. Catlett v. Sturr, 70 T. 485, 7 S. W. 844.

A certified copy of a deed which has never been so acknowledged as to authorize its registration is not admissible in evidence on an affidavit of loss of the original. No length of time will render such copy admissible as an ancient instrument. Hill v. Taylor, 77 T. 228, 14 S. W. 366.

Where a deed not filed under this article is offered in evidence as an ancient instrument, an affidavit that it is forged is unnecessary, and if filed does not make additional proof necessary. Brown v. Perez (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 360.

Defective acknowledgment of deed actually recorded for ten years prior to assertion of title in suit, in so far as acknowledgment is required for purposes of conveyance and registration, is cured by this article. Arlola v. Newman, 51 C. A. 617, 113 S. W. 157, 158.

Where an instrument had been recorded for more than 30 years, even if it had not been so authenticated as to be entitled to record was admissible under this article, in addition to being held as admissible as an ancient document, it having come from the proper custody. Milwee v. Phelps, 65 C. A. 195, 115 S. W. 893.

If the original executed in 1838 was defectively acknowledged it was admissible as an ancient instrument, and if a copy was offered the defect was cured by this article. This state relates to a rule of evidence in which no one has a vested right. Sims v. Sealy, 53 C. A. 518, 116 S. W. 832.

Where a deed has been recorded for more than ten years, and no adverse claim has been asserted during that time, the deed or a certified copy is admissible, whether or not the certificate of acknowledgment was in form or substance such as required by law at time of record. Kin Kaat v. Lee (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 345.

A certificate of acknowledgment was required or not, should be admitted in evidence without proof of execution. Merriman v. Blalock, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 652.

Under this article providing that after an instrument has been recorded for 10 years it shall be no objection to its admission in evidence, or to that of a certified copy thereof, that the certificate of acknowledgment is not in form and substance such as required by law, a deed, or certified copy thereof, which has been recorded for 10 years, is admissible in evidence whether duly acknowledged or not. Bledsoe v. Haney, 57 C. A. 285, 123 S. W. 465.

This article did not authorize the admission of a will in evidence, in the absence of a judgment probating it. Dean v. Furrh (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 431.

This article relates only to the admissibility of deeds as evidence because of their having been recorded, without reference to their sufficiency as conveyances, and therefore was ineffective to give validity to a recorded deed by a married woman which was otherwise void for want of proper acknowledgment. Holland v. Votaw, 103 T. 534, 131 S. W. 406.

This article is ineffective to give validity to a deed by a married woman of her separate property, which was invalid for failure of the certificate of acknowledgment to recite that after executing the deed she declared she "did not wish to retract it." March v. Spivy (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 529.

After a prior deed, defectively acknowledged, had been of record for 10 years, it was good as against a subsequent purchaser, in the absence of proof that he was an innocent purchaser for a valuable consideration, without notice of such prior deed, even though expert witnesses were given, no further evidence than to make the certified copy admissible in evidence. Bledsoe v. Haney (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 612.

A certified copy of a duly recorded deed which had been recorded for more than 30 years held admissible in evidence. Rudolph v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 209.

See Arts. 7745-7746 and notes thereunder.

Art. 3701. Record books, certain declared valid records, etc.; certified copies, effect of.—All volumes constituting a portion of the records of any county organized prior to January 1, 1882, wherein are recorded deeds, mortgages or trust deeds, or other muniments of title to real estate situated in such county, which volumes and records are now and have been constantly among the archives of such county, as records thereof, shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be, in all respects lawful and valid records of such counties respectively, for all purposes whatsoever relating to titles to real estate, as effectually as if such books and records were originally records of such counties, respectively, and as fully and completely as if such counties had been duly organized at the dates of the filing for record of the instruments recorded therein, as shown therein. Certified copies of the instruments recorded in said volumes, made in accordance with law, shall have the force and effect that certified copies of original records have in organized counties; and same may be used for all purposes lawful for certified copies of original records in ordinary cases in organized counties. [Acts 1905, p. 36.]

Art. 3702. Certified copies of deeds, etc., to land in Archer county recorded in Jack county, when, etc.; evidence, when.—Certified copies of deeds, mortgages, trust deeds and all other instruments in any manner affecting titles to lands in Archer county, which were recorded in Jack county from the tenth day of August, 1866, to the tenth day of August, 1870, said certified copies being made under the hand and seal of the clerk of the county court of Shackelford county, shall be admitted in evidence in all suits where secondary evidence is admissible. [Acts 1897, p. 143.]

Art. 3703. [2319] [2263] Transcribed records, certified copies of, evidence, etc.—Where a county has been heretofore, or may hereafter be, created out of the territory of any organized county, and the records of deeds and other instruments required or permitted by law to be recorded, relating to lands or other property in such new county, have been transcribed and placed on record in such new county, in accordance with law, certified copies of such transcribed records in the new county may be admitted in evidence with like effect as certified copies of the original records. [Acts 1879, ch. 99, p. 106, sec. 3.]
Art. 3704. [2320] Transcribed records, effect of.—Transcribed records for new counties or for newly attached territory, as provided for by law, when properly verified and certified, shall have all the force and effect in judicial proceedings in courts of this state as the original records. [Acts 1879, p. 105.]

Art. 3705. [2313] [2257a] Certain abstracts of title evidence, when.—All abstracts of land titles, or land abstract books to lands in this state, compiled from the records of any county in this state, prior to the year 1890, which said records were partially or wholly destroyed or lost from any cause during the month of May, 1874, March, 1876, and January, 1889, shall hereafter be competent prima facie evidence of the truth of the data or memoranda therein contained and compiled prior to the year 1890, and shall be admissible in evidence in the courts of this state; provided, that the compiler or compilers of such abstracts of land titles or land title abstract books, shall have made heretofore, or before offered in evidence, affidavit before some officer authorized, at the time of making such affidavit, to take acknowledgments to deeds in this state, and to the effect that said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, were compiled by him from the records of the county prior to their destruction or loss, and that they contain a true and correct statement of the matters and things to which they relate; and provided, also, that it shall be admissible to offer in evidence any testimony tending to discredit or substantiate the reliability of such abstract of land titles or land title abstract books, or tending to show the compiler thereof to have been incompetent or unreliable, or competent and reliable; and provided, further, that a copy of such abstract shall be filed in the papers of the cause in which it is sought to be used, and notice given to the opposite party at least five days before the trial, and the same defense may be made as if copies of the original record had been filed; provided, further, that the party offering such abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, in evidence shall himself, or by his agent or attorney, have made affidavit that the original instrument to which the said data or memorandum relates is not then on record; and that he has made diligent search and inquiry for the same in places and from persons where and in whose possession it would most probably be found, and has been unable to find the same; that, to his best knowledge and belief, the same is lost or destroyed; and provided, further, that the owner of said abstracts of land titles, or of land title abstract books, shall have filed with the county commissioners' court his application in writing (which may be granted or refused, in the discretion of said court, and if refused, this article shall not become of force as to said application so refused) for an order of said court admitting to record in said court the contract of the said owner in writing, wherein the said owner shall bind himself, his heirs and assigns, as follows: That said owner, his heirs or assigns, will, whenever requested in writing, setting forth the data required by any party to any suit interested in introducing said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, produce the same without charge on the day demanded for introducing in evidence, and upon the trial of any cause in this state; provided, that if said owner, his heirs or assigns, are required to produce said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, in courts of any other county than that to the lands of which said abstract of land titles or land title abstract books pertain, they shall be, by the party at whose instance such production is required, reasonably compensated in advance for the time and expense of the said owner, his heirs or assigns. And the said owner in said contract shall bind himself, his heirs and assigns, to answer in full damages to any party damaged by the failure, or default of the said owner, his heirs or assigns, without good cause, to produce said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, data or memoranda, when demanded, as herein provided. And said contract shall further stipulate that no charge shall ever be made by said owner, his heirs or assigns, in excess of one dollar for each instrument or remove in any title, in the compilation of a complete abstract or title to the lands in the county to which said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, pertain, and that said owner, his heirs and assigns, will, upon request and payment of the fees therefor by any person, either make, compile and certify, or cause to be made, compiled or certified, within a reasonable time, a complete abstract of title to any land to which said abstracts of land titles, or land title abstract books, pertain; provided, that nothing herein contained shall ever be construed to in any way affect or apply to any suit or suits pending in any of the courts in this state on the twelfth day of July, 1891; provided, further, that the provisions of this article shall not apply if it can be shown by competent evidence that any such deeds were improperly recorded; provided, that, whenever any person, company or corporation has here­tofore complied with the law which is amended hereby, in order to make an abstract evidence, the said person, company or corporation shall not be required to do anything more or further under this article in order to have the benefits thereof. [Acts 1897, p. 146. Acts 1891, p. 136. Acts 1901, p. 44.]

Art. 3706. [2314] [2258] Certified copy of instrument sued on is evidence, when.—If suit be brought on any instrument or note in writing filed in any suit brought thereupon in any other court of this state, a certified copy of such instrument or note in writing, under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court in which the original may be filed, shall be admitted as evidence in like manner as such original might be: but, if the defendant shall plead and file an affidavit under oath that such original instrument or note in writing has not been executed by him, or by his authority, the clerk of the court having the custody of such original shall, on being subpoenaed as a witness, attend with the same on trial of the cause. [Acts 1891, p. 136. P. D. 3718.]

In general.—A certified copy of a note or mortgage, the original of which is on file in one cause, cannot, if objected to, be read in evidence in another cause pending in the same court. Morrison v. Bean, 22 T. 554.

Withdrawal of instrument.—The court will permit the withdrawal of an instrument on file in one cause, for the purpose of using it as evidence in another cause; or the clerk of the court may be compelled to attend with the instrument. Morrison v. Bean, 22 T. 554. A certified copy of a lost will is good as original. Hickman v. Gillam, 66 T. 314, 1 S. W. 339.

Secondary evidence.—The filing of a list of writings under this article does not preclude a party from proving his title by other evidence. Hendricks v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 777.

Secondary evidence of promissory notes upon which suit has been brought in another county is admissible. Osborne v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 73.

Place of other suit.—That a deed was filed in a suit in another county is not sufficient to authorize the admission of a copy in evidence. Bauman v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 917.

Art. 3707. [2315] [2259] Certified copies from heads of departments evidence.—Certified copies, under the hands and official seals of the heads of departments, of all notes, bonds, mortgages, bills, accounts, or other documents, properly on file in any of the departments of this state, shall be received in evidence on an equal footing with the originals, in all suits now pending, or which may be hereafter instituted, in this state, where the originals of such notes, bonds, mortgages, bills, accounts or other documents would be evidence. [Act Aug. 11, 1870, p. 62. P. D. 6825.]

Land office.—A transcript from the land office showing the action of the traveling board was competent to a certificate for one-third of a league of land, as taking the place of that for a league and labor having the same number and grantee. Ansaldoa v. Schwing, 81 T. 198, 15 S. W. 989.

Art. 3708. [2316] [2260] Assessment or payment of taxes may be proven, how.—Whenever in any cause it may be material to prove the assessment of any property for taxes, or the payment of any taxes, the certificate of the comptroller of such assessment from the rolls deposited in his office, or that the payment of such taxes is shown by the records of his office, shall be admissible in evidence to prove the same. [Act Feb. 15, 1858. P. D. 3708.]

Admissibility in evidence of tax records and receipts, see notes under Art. 3687.

Payment of taxes.—The payment of taxes may be shown by direct or circumstantial evidence. Watson v. Hopkins, 27 T. 837; Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460; Allen v. Woodson, 60 T. 451. The receipt of the tax collector is competent evidence. Deen v. Willis, 21 T. 643; The Miller v. In re S. W. 246. In re T. 162; the recovery of taxes the amount due was shown by a consolidated statement for the year 1871, made up under the directions of the justices of the peace of Galveston county, and coming from the controller thereof, although not certified as required by the instructions of the comptroller. Clegg v. Galveston, 1 App. C. C. § 60. Parol testimony to payment of taxes is competent. It is not necessary to produce the tax receipts. McDonough v. Jefferson County, 79 T. 556, 18 S. W. 490.

Redemption of title from the office of the comptroller of the state, duly authenticated, purporting to show the amount of costs paid, were admissible in evidence under Art. 3686, making the certificate of such officer as to facts contained in papers on record in his office admissible in evidence in all cases in which the originals would be evidence, and this article providing that the certificate of the comptroller of the payment of taxes, as shown by the records of his office, shall be admissible in evidence to prove such fact. Typer v. Knudson v. Tom (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 860.

Art. 3709. [2317] [2261] Rate of interest in this state presumed, unless, etc.—The rate of interest in any other state, territory or country is presumed to be the same as that established by law in this state, and may be recovered accordingly without allegation or proof of the rate of interest in such other state, territory or country, unless the rate of interest in such other country be alleged and proved. [1d.]

Rate of interest.—It is presumed that the rate of interest in another state is the same as our own. Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806; Harrison v. Ligner, 74 T. 58, 11 S. W. 1604.

Art. 3710. [2318] [2262] Execution of notes and other instruments presumed, unless, etc.—When any petition, answer, or other pleading shall be founded, in whole or in part, on any instrument or note in writing, charged to have been executed by the other party or by his authority, and not alleged therein to be lost or destroyed, such instrument or note in writing shall be received as evidence without the necessity of proving its execution, unless the party by whom or by whose authority such instrument or note in writing is charged to have been executed, shall file his affidavit in writing denying the execution thereof; and the like rule shall prevail in all suits against indorsers and sureties upon any note or instrument in writing. When any such instrument or note in writing is charged to have been executed by any testator or intestate, it shall be received in evidence in like manner, unless some suspicion is cast upon it by the affidavit of the executor or administrator of such testator or intestate. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 1443.]

Foundation of suit.—Letters alleged to have been written by a defendant to the plaintiff and containing acknowledgments of indebtedness may be made the foundation of a petition so as to be admissible without proof. Close v. Judson, 34 T. 258.

Where an instrument purporting to have been signed by the defendant is not the basis of the suit, he does not have to plead non est factum in order to prove that he did not sign it. Bateman v. Ward (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 518.

Necessity of plea of non est factum and verification thereof.—See Tarpley v. PNG. 2 Tex. 139; Parr v. Johnston, 15 T. 294; Barnett v. Logue, 29 T. 282; Lee v. Crosby, 1 App. C. C. § 140; Blair v. Breeding, 57 C. A. 147, 124 S. W. 889.

When the instrument purports to have been executed by an attorney, his authority and execution are presumed unless put in issue. Austin v. Towns, 16 T. 24; Reid v. Reid, 11 T. 585; Herndon v. Ennis, 18 T. 410; Brashear v. Martin, 25 T. 202. And this although the name of the defendant does not appear on the instrument. Sessions v. Henry, 88 T. 57.

A general denial is sufficient to require a party who relies on a lost instrument of writing to prove its execution. Hamphire v. Floyd, 39 T. 103.

Where the administrator in a suit on a promissory note against his decedent's estate is unwilling to make the affidavit required by law to a plea of non est factum, it is proper to permit the widow to intervene in the suit and make the necessary affidavit to the plea, where the intervention occasions no delay. Eborn v. Zimmelman, 37 T. 103; 28 Am. Rep. 318; Eccles v. Hill, 13 T. 67; Solomon v. Huey, 1 U. C. 265.

In a suit against two, as partners, to recover an amount alleged to be due on account of checks on the plaintiff drawn by one of the firm after its dissolution, under authority from the late partner to settle the firm debts, which were paid by plaintiff, in the absence of a plea under oath denying the authority of the drawer of the checks to bind the firm, they are admissible in evidence against both defendants, and their admissibility is not affected by the fact that they were signed alone by the members or by the agency, and are admissible against the company. (Civ. Co. v. Byers Bros. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 427.)

Where, in trespass to try title, plaintiff files an affidavit that the deed under which defendant claims is a forgery, such deed cannot be received in evidence until its execution has been proved by more than one witness, nor before the court has made an order to that effect. (Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 563.)

A contract, pleaded by one party, and its authenticity not denied by the adverse party, held admissible in evidence, though not signed by the parties at the end thereof. (Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 35 C. A. 189, 78 S. W. 837.)

A pleading not purporting to be a plea of non est factum need not be verified. (Home Circle Soc. No. 1 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 84.)

In an action on a benefit certificate, evidence that the beneficiary was unable to read the document and failed to disavow certain statements in the application as to the applicant's health, held admissible under similar allegations, over objection that application spoke for itself and was not denied under oath in the pleading. (Id.)

When the contract sued on was void and the contract was void because the contract was not made, the suit must be dismissed. (Id.)

Where a plea denying an agent's authority was unverified, it was proper for the court to permit defendant to assume the burden of showing want of authority. (Hamilton v. Bell, 37 C. A. 456, 84 S. W. 289.)
When a written receipt is pleaded in the answer, it must be read in evidence if plaintiff does not deny it in writing under oath. State Nat. Bank v. Stewart & Co., 39 C. A. 620, 88 S. W. 296.

See note to Art. 3696.

Execution and acceptance of drafts by executrix in her representative capacity held established under the statute when they were offered and introduced in evidence in an action thereon against her. Ellis v. Marshall Car Wheel & Foundry Co., 41 C. A. 501, 96 S. W. 689.

In the absence of a plea of non est factum or a denial of an assignment of a claim on a judgment to claimant under oath, the court did not err in permitting the assignment to be introduced in evidence without proof of execution. McCormick v. National Bank of Commerce (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 747.

Where a note signed by one making his mark and witnessed, was in part the basis of the suit and there was no denial under oath of its execution, it was admissible in evidence without proof of its execution. Bolden v. Hughes, 48 C. A. 496, 107 S. W. 91.

In an action on a note given for the price of land and foreclosure of vendee's lien, held error in admitting in evidence a certified copy of the deed and the note. Id.

In an action against a principal on an alleged written contract executed by its agent, the failure of the principal to deny under oath the agent's authority held not to authorize proof of acts and conduct of the agent not covered by the written contract. Waco Mill & Elevator Co. v. Allis-Chalmers Co., 49 C. A. 426, 109 S. W. 224.

Where a defendant in an action on a written instrument does not deny by affidavit the execution of the instrument, he may not object to the introduction in evidence of the instrument on the ground that its execution has not been proved. Dalton v. W. Co., 143 S. W. 241.

In an action on a written contract, evidence that a portion of the contract had been inserted without the knowledge of the defendants held inadmissible, in the absence of a denial of the contract under oath. Fish Bros. Wagon Co. v. G. F. Adams & Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 704.

Where defendant did not deny execution of guaranty, under this article, telegraphic message held provable by the typewritten copy received by the addressee. Hulme v. Levi-Zulski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Where plaintiff's cause of action against defendant carrier was in part based on the bill of lading, want of authority of carrier's agent to issue the bill could only be pleaded under oath. Wichita Falls Plessie Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1022.

In the absence of an affidavit denying the execution of a superseded bond filed in another county, the action for breach thereof, the original bond was admissible in evidence, and plaintiff was not required to prove it by a certified copy under Art. 3694. Garrett v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 505.

What constitutes a plea of non est factum.—In a suit against a partnership as the maker of a draft, a denial of partnership under oath is equivalent to a plea of non est factum. Timber Co. v. Lewis, 41 C. T. 481.

An answer in action to enforce contract to convey land, attacking the contract, need not be verified. Cook v. Roberson (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 866.

An answer alleging misapprehension on defendant's part in executing the note in suit, and decrying plaintiff's part held equivalent to a plea of non est factum, which should be verified. Hurt v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 675.

A plea duly sworn to by defendant that he "did not execute nor deliver the note to the payee for any purpose or indebtedness, whatever," is not a plea of non est factum and does not put the execution of the note in issue. Davis v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 334.

A plea admitting the execution of a written instrument, but alleging alteration thereof, is a plea of non est factum, and need not be verified. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Callister, 22 C. A. 64, 54 S. W. 388.

When a party has signed a written instrument reciting that on a particular day he received a stated sum of money from a certain person, his denial under oath of the fact that he received it on the contrary, or that he did not, is not a plea of non est factum, and cannot affect the question of the admissibility of the receipt in evidence. United Moderns v. Pistole, 38 C. A. 422, 86 S. W. 377.

It is not necessary that the execution of a written contract be denied under oath, in order to avoid it for duress, fraud, or mistake. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 426.

In an action against individuals as trustees of a church on a note and lien executed by them, this article held inapplicable in view of the allegations of the petition. Owens v. Caraway (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 474.

An affidavit of the forgery of a deed is sufficient to raise such issue, though made by a person not shown by the record to have sustained any relation to the defendants. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimbali (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 293.

Evidence tending to show that a broker signed a contract without authority may be introduced, though the execution of the contract is not denied under oath. Floresville Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Texas Refining Co., 55 C. A. 78, 118 S. W. 194.

Issues raised by plea.—A denial of the execution of a note does not put in issue the assignment or indorsement. Barnett v. Logue, 29 T. 233.

Under plea of non est factum, one may show that the note sued on was altered after delivery; but in such case the plea does not put in issue the signing. Davis v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 384.

A plea of non est factum in an action on a note held to require plaintiff to prove its execution. Memphis Coffin Co. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 697.

Effect of plea non est factum.—When a pleading of the defendant is founded on a written receipt, if it was obtained by fraud, accident or mistake, or was canceled, or for any other cause invalid, the fact by which it was proposed to avoid or invalidate it must be pleaded and proved. Kelly v. Kelly, 12 T. 452. Where the plea of non est factum alleges that the signature of defendant was obtained by fraud, the burden of proof is upon the defendant. Irvin v. Garrett, 50 T. 55. The burden of proof rests upon the party pleading the alteration of an instrument in writing. Muckleroy v. Bethany, 27 T. 551.

When an affidavit that the deed is forged is filed, the deed is not admissible in evidence without its execution. Powell v. Jones, 58 T. 31; Lewis v. Lewis, 28 T. 183; Belcher v. Fox, 60 T. 527. When admitted in evidence, the impeaching party may introduce testimony in support of his plea of non est factum. Cox v. Cock, 59 T. 521.

The plea of non est factum imposes upon the plaintiff the burden of showing the genuineness of an instrument, and that an alteration apparent upon the face of the instrument was made under such circumstances as to vitiate the instrument. Art. 2377: Bogarth v. Breedlove, 39 T. 561; Miller v. Alexander, 13 T. 497, 65 Am. Dec. 73; Partlow v. Chad, 40 T. 49; Harrods v. Stroud, 41 T. 267.

When a testimonial of a grant, purporting to have been issued in 1835, was attacked as a forgery, its execution must be established by the assisting witnesses thereto, or their absence must be accounted for and their handwriting proved. Houston v. Bythe, 60 T. 706.

A party who has filed an affidavit impeaching a deed filed by his adversary as a forgery may, if satisfied of its genuineness afterwards, withdraw his affidavit; nor would he be thereby precluded from afterwards asserting any right he might have under said deed. Hammond v. Connell, 63 T. 62.

Where non est factum is pleaded, proof of execution must be made by plaintiff. Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300.

Proof of deed for land executed in Louisiana in 1837 and challenged for forgery, how made. The plaintiffs having made a prima facie case of the genuineness of the instrument so attacked, the burden of proof is cast upon the party charging its forgery to rebut this. Smith v. Gillum, 80 T. 120, 15 S. W. 794.

In a suit to recover the property under the plea of non est factum, the judge may examine and compare papers in evidence, and from this and other evidence form his own conclusions. Millington v. Millington (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 320.

Where defendant, under oath, denies execution of the note sued on plaintiff has the burden. Hoy v. Hale (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 183.

Under an unverified plea of non est factum, a charge on forgery of a policy held properly refused. International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Bowell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1195.

When suit is brought on notes alleged to have been executed by authority of defendant, a separate denial by one is not a denial of the authority so far as any of the others are concerned. Hoxie v. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth, 20 C. A. 465, 49 S. W. 637.

Defendant in action on note pleading only general denial and suretyship cannot show alteration of note after delivery. Connor v. Thornton (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 354.

Where complainants in suit for recovery of land filed affidavit to the effect that deed relied on by defendants was a forgery, burden was on defendants to show execution of deed. Thompson v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 246, 58 S. W. 1030.

Allegation by plaintiff that a power of attorney was forged, unaccompanied by an affidavit of forgery, held not to shift the burden of proof on defendant. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 947.

Failure of defendant to produce the instrument sued on, the execution of which he denied by plea of non est factum, held not to shift the burden of proof, nor preclude defendant from introducing evidence to establish his plea. Laiing v. Shirley (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 532.

Where the defendant city, in an action on a renewed note executed by its mayor, pleads non est factum, the burden of showing that the mayor was authorized to execute such notes is on the plaintiff. City of Tyler v. Blocker, 22 T. 123.

In an action on a mutual benefit certificate, where the execution of a receipt for dues pleaded by plaintiff was not denied by defendant's plea under oath, which denied the authority of its financier to execute the receipt, defendant's denial under oath of the date and contents thereof did not affect its admissibility as evidence. United Moderns v. Pistole, 33 C. A. 422, 88 S. W. 377.

In an action on a written contract of sale, the buyers' plea of non est factum cast the burden of proving the execution of the contract upon plaintiff. Feagan v. Barton-Parker Mfg. Co., 42 C. A. 978, 58 S. W. 1978.

In trespass to try title, an affidavit made under the statute for the purpose of requiring defendants to prove the execution of a certain deed is not admissible as an item of evidence. Sydnor v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n, 42 C. A. 138, 94 S. W. 451.

When a plea of non est factum is filed by defendant the burden is on plaintiff to prove execution of instrument. Clymer v. Terry, 50 C. A. 300, 109 S. W. 1130.

An instrument, execution of which is denied in defendant's pleadings under oath, held admissible with evidence sufficient to raise the issue of its execution. Henderson v. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 671.

In an affidavit of forgery is filed as against an instrument, the burden is on the party claiming thereunder to establish its prima facie, after which the attacking party must prove non est factum. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 797.

Where, in an action on a draft, a plea non est factum was filed, the burden was on plaintiff to establish that a person executing it as agent of defendant had authority to do so. Simon v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 592.

In note alleged to have been signed by one under authority from defendant, in which defendant pleads non est factum, the burden is on plaintiff to show the authority of the person to sign the particular note sued on, as well as the fact of signing. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1092.
Instruments the execution of which must be denied. The execution of a title bond must be put in issue by the plea of non est factum. Year v. Cummins, 28 T. 91; Robinson v. Martel, 11 T. 149.

The execution of a written receipt must be put in issue by the plea of non est factum. May v. Pollard, 28 T. 677.

A receipt for stage fare is an instrument in writing within the meaning of this article. Sawyer v. Dulaney, 30 T. 479. And so is a wagoner's receipt. Lewis v. Lowery, 31 T. 663. Or a letter written by defendant to plaintiff acknowledging an indebtedness.

When suit is brought on an instrument in writing charged to have been executed by the adverse party, its execution can be put in issue only by a plea of non est factum, although the instrument on its face does not purport to be the act of the defendant. City Water Works v. White, 61 T. 536, citing Drew v. Harrison, 12 T. 290; Kelly v. Kelly, 12 T. 462; Reid v. Reid, 11 T. 551; Persons v. Frost & Co., 25 T. Sup. 130; Prince v. Thompson, 21 T. 490; Sessums v. Henry, 38 T. 41; Ferguson v. Wood, 23 T. 177; Lewis v. Lowery, 31 T. 663; May v. Pollard, 28 T. 678; and overruling Compton v. Stage Co., 25 T. Sup. 279; T. 508.

An ancient instrument may be contested by proper evidence without an affidavit of forgery. Parker v. Chancellor, 73 T. 475, 11 S. W. 658.

Where suit is brought on a building contract which gives a mechanic's lien, and on the note given for the price, neither proof of execution nor filing and notice are required. Bosley v. Pease (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 516.

This article does not apply to an instrument alleged to have been executed by the grantor of the other party. Lignoski v. Crooker, 24 S. W. 785, 56 T. 324. See Durham v. Atwell (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 316. Or when it is an original and its execution is proved. McGehee v. Minter (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 718.

An ancient document, not forming the foundation of a pleading, may be impeached without an affidavit of forgery or plea of non est factum. McDonnell v. De Leon Fuentes, 26 S. W. 732, 7 C. A. 136.

On an issue as to the title to land in which plaintiff relies upon a conveyance of the property to him, which conveyance is attacked as a forgery, the plaintiff may not introduce a copy of the conveyance. In evidence before proving the execution of the original. Robbins v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 773.

Where a deed, offered in evidence, is attacked as a forgery, its execution must be proved in a manner satisfactory to the court to render it admissible in evidence. Id.

An instrument executed by a carrier's agent, reciting the receipt of $10.25 for re- shipment of certain household goods, held a receipt, and not a contract, the execution of which was bound to deny under oath as a condition to denying its validity. Anderson v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 358.

Suit against executor.—In a suit against an executor or administrator, his affidavit to the best of his knowledge and belief is sufficient. Tarpley v. Poage, 2 T. 139.

In a suit against an executor on his testator's note, a sworn plea by the defendant that the note was forged, and does not believe that his testator did not execute the note, is a sufficient plea of non est factum. Scott v. Menly (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 55.

Art. 3711. [2321] [2264] Evidence of appointment and qualification of executor, etc.—Whenever it may be necessary to make proof of the appointment and qualification of an executor, administrator or guardian, the letters issued to them in the manner provided by law, or a certificate of the proper clerk under his official seal that such letters have been issued, shall be sufficient evidence of the appointment and qualification of such executor, administrator or guardian. [Act Feb. 25, 1863, p. 5. P. D. 1286.]

Outler v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 1003. As to mode of putting in issue the capacity of a party to sue, see ante, Art. 1908.

In federal courts.—Proceedings of courts of probate come within the provisions of the statutes of the United States. Ante, Art. 3894; House v. House, 16 T. 600; Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 588, 14 S. W. 196. In the absence of allegation and proof of laws of another state, they are presumed to be similar to the laws of our state. A certificate of the appointment and qualification of the administrator of an estate, sufficient under the statutes of this state, is presumed to be so under the laws of any other state, the official character and signature of the officer giving the certificate being proved in the manner prescribed by the act of congress. Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 588, 14 S. W. 196.

Art. 3712. [2323] [2266] Suit on sworn account.—When any action or defense is founded upon an open account, supported by the affidavit of the party, his agent or attorney, taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths, to the effect that such account is, within the knowledge of affiant, just and true, that it is due, and that all just and lawful offsets, payments and credits have been allowed, the same shall be taken as prima facie evidence thereof, unless the party resisting such claim shall, before an announcement of ready for trial in said cause, file a written denial, under oath, stating that such account is not just or true, in whole or in part, and if in part only, stating the items and particulars which are unjust; provided, that, when such counter affidavit shall be filed on the day of the trial, the party claiming under such verified account shall have the right to continue such cause until the next term of court; when he fails to file such affidavit, he shall not be permitted to deny the account, or any item therein as the case may be. [Acts 1883, p. 110.]

What constitutes open account.—The word "account" applies to transactions between persons in which, by sale upon the one side and purchase upon the other, the title to personal goods passes from one to the other, and the relation of debtor and creditor is thereby created by general course of dealing; and it does not mean one or more isolated transactions resting upon special contract. McCamant v. Batsell, 59 T. 363; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Nichols, 3 App. C. C. § 769; T. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. § 61. See Mullaly v. Goggin (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 666.

An account of a laborer is not an open account within the meaning of Art. 3712.

A. & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Daniels, 62 T. 70.

In a suit on a verified account for goods sold and delivered at the several dates mentioned, and at prices specified, in accordance with the terms of a special contract, and upon a letter of credit or guaranty executed by a third person, it was held that the account was an open account. Moore v. Powers, 16 C. A. 436, 41 S. W. 707.

An open account is one in respect to which nothing has occurred to bind either party by its statements; an account which is yet fully open to be disputed. A stated account is an account of many items, based upon agreements as to each item as to the prices and the time of payment. It is only an open account that is provable by an affidavit under this article. W. Groven Grain & Lumber Co. v. Mineola Box Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 745.

An isolated transaction by which a single article is sold at an agreed price is not such an account between the seller and buyer as may be verified under the statute in such a way as to dispense with proof by the seller suing for the price. Jacksonboro Stone Co. v. Fairbanks Co., 48 C. A. 639, 107 S. W. 667.

An account in part for items due for salary under a contract, and in part for board, involves isolated transactions resting on special contract, and is not an account where-by the relation of debtor and creditor is created by a general course of dealing, and though the account is sworn to, defendant need not deny the same under oath. Bishop v. Mount (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 442.

Accounts within article.—An account for merchandise sold and delivered and money advanced which Cahn v. Salinas, 2 App. C. C. 666, included.

Accounts not within article.—Entries of money loaned or advanced. Cole v. Dial, 8 T. 347. It seems that books are admissible to prove the payment of cash to order, goods delivered to order, goods delivered and cash paid to a third person on account of the person charged. Ward v. Wheeler, 18 T. 249.

An account against a railroad for services as a conductor (T. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 1 App. C. C. § 61); an account for work done in putting up lattice work, and making tables (Murray v. McCarty, 2 App. C. C. § 107); an account against a railroad for board of laborers and for services as foreman (G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schwartz, 2 App. C. C. § 765).

An account which is not due. Sims v. Howell Bros., 4 App. C. C. § 189, 15 S. W. 120. See Leverett v. Whyer, 4 App. C. C. § 186, 15 S. W. 112.

Where a claim is a mere aggregation of items based upon special contracts, with nothing open or undetermined. Ballard v. McMillan, 26 S. W. 327, 5 C. A. 679.

An account by a physician for his services. Garwood v. Schlickenmaier, 25 C. A. 176, 60 S. W. 574.

An account that does not appear to be an account for personal property sold and delivered by plaintiff to defendant in a general course of dealing. Oden & Co. v. Vaughn Grocery Co., 34 C. A. 115, 77 S. W. 967.

Time of filing affidavit to account.—The fact that an affidavit to the correctness of an open account was made more than four months before suit was brought does not prevent it constituting prima facie evidence, payments subsequent to its date being matters of defense. Hulme v. Levis-Zuloski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Affidavit after assignment of account.—An affidavit to an account, made after its assignment, will not support an action by the assignee. Carpenter v. Historical Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 656.

Nature of debt.—To entitle plaintiff to the benefit of this article it must appear that the debt claimed exists by contract between the parties to the suit, either express or implied. In other words, the action must be founded upon a contract. Davidson v. McCall Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 32.

Sufficiency of affidavit.—An affidavit which fails to state that an account is, within the knowledge of affiant, just and true, etc., is not in compliance with the statute, and if objected to excludes it as evidence. Shandy v. Conrales, 1 App. C. C. § 235.

And where it does not state that "all just and lawful offsets, credits and payments have been allowed," and that the account is due, it will not support a judgment by defaul

An affidavit that stated "that the several items of said account respectively mature as there stated," and it appeared that one of the items had not matured at the date of the affidavit, was held not to be in compliance with the statute. Shawnessy v. Le Giere, 1 App. C. C. § 379.

It is not an objection to an affidavit to account that it is made by one who was not a member of the plaintiff's firm. Moore v. Powers, 16 C. A. 456, 41 S. W. 707.

Affidavit verifying an account sued on, and held not sufficient to warrant judgment by default. Brin v. Washusset Shirt Co. (Cliv. App.) 43 S. W. 295.

An affidavit to an account that fails to state that the facts are "within the knowledge of affiant," and that "all just and legal offsets, credits and payments have been allowed and deducted," will be set aside.

A verified account, attached as an exhibit to the petition, is properly excluded from evidence where it does not indicate the items thereof nor their nature. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. v. Roquemore (Cliv. App.) 58 S. W. 449.

In an action on an account made out against a third person, the variance between the account and the affidavit, charging defendant with liability thereon, held immaterial. Pelican Lumber Co. v. Johnson Mercantile Co. (Cliv. App.) 69 S. W. 439.

In an action on an open account, an affidavit verifying the account held insufficient as not being on the affiant's personal knowledge. Daggett v. Sheppard (Cliv. App.) 110 S. W. 952.

In an action on an open account, where the affidavit, attached to the petition and received in evidence, as prima facie proof of the correctness of the account, was dated July 29, 1910, the fact that the account was dated September 27, 1910, did not render it defective, where it was apparent from other parts of the account that "1910" was inserted in the account in place of "1909" by a mere clerical error. Hulme v. Levi-Zuloksi Mercantile Co. (Cliv. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

The omission of ditto marks in sworn copy of account, attached to petition and received in evidence, held not to render the account insufficient. Id.

Effect of affidavit to account.—An account with an accompanying affidavit, as required by statute, with the proper officer's certificate thereto, and of its filing and registration, is admissible in evidence; the certificate of the officer being prima facie evidence of the facts it recites. Stuart v. Broome, 59 T. 466.

The affidavit to a sworn account against a partnership proves the partnership as well as all facts necessary to make out a prima facie case. Carder v. Wilder, 1 App. C. C. § 14, citing Persons v. Frost, 25 T. 129.

While the affidavit to an attorney's account for services did not authorize a judgment, yet the account and affidavit formed a pleading in the justice court, and it was error to permit Craig v. Fruitt (Civil) 94 C. 227, 102 S. W. 463.

When an account is sworn to under oath for the obtaining of a judgment, and the officer signs the certificate, his signature is prima facie evidence of the fact that the account is correct. Hallinan v. Levytansky, 46 C. A. 328, 103 S. W. 463.

A sworn answer in an action on an account held merely a plea of payment, and not to require the plaintiff to make proof of the various items. Oliver v. Edward Weil Co. (Cliv. App.) 138 S. W. 1139.

In an action on an open verified account, where the evidence showed certain payments appropriated by defendant firm and plaintiff to the payment of the account due from the firm to plaintiff, an instruction imposing the burden of proof on defendant to show direction to so appropriate the payments held properly denied. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Cliv. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

Counter affidavit.—The counter affidavit may be filed in the court where the cause is pending on appeal. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Norton, 1 App. C. C. § 403.

The affidavit should be according to the fact. The words "in whole or in part" should not be incorporated in the affidavit. Hensley v. Degener (Cliv. App.) 25 S. W. 1330.

When an account is unjust in part it should be so stated in the controverting affidavit. Id.

A sworn denial of the sworn account sued on held insufficient for failure to clearly specify the items claimed to be incorrect. Eberstadt v. Jones, 19 C. A. 480, 48 S. W. 568.

Where the answer states that the account sued on is "not just or true in whole, or in part," it embodies a denial of the account as a whole, and the addition of the words "or in part" makes the expression of the unjustness as a whole instead of qualifying it. Milam v. Ed. H. Harrell Lumber Co. (Cliv. App.) 97 S. W. 852.

When the justness of a verified account sued upon is in writing, denied under oath by defendant, it is incumbent on plaintiff to establish the debt claims against defendant and plaintiff required to establish it had not been sworn to as permitted by the statute. Rust v. Sanger Bros. (Cliv. App.) 105 S. W. 66.

Where suit is brought on a private account, and defendant by a sworn plea in writing denies that any part of the account is just, the verified account is inadmissible; no other evidence being required to show the indebtedness. Id.

Where defendant denied under oath the correctness of plaintiff's sworn account, it was not evidence of any fact. Pitman v. Bloch Queensware Co., 48 C. A. 330, 106 S. W. 724.

In an action on a sworn account, defendant's sworn plea, by admitting the correctness of the items of the account, made a prima facie case for plaintiff, though the plea also alleged that defendant was entitled to certain credits from the amount claimed as due, and the burden was upon defendant to establish such credits by other proof. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co. v. Jacobs, 57 C. A. 295, 122 S. W. 66.

A verified account held not admissible in evidence, notwithstanding the statute, in the absence of other evidence showing its correctness, where the opposing party filed an affidavit denying its correctness. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Western Coal & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 245.

Where a verified account is denied by defendant under oath, plaintiff must establish his cause of action as in ordinary cases. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 735.

Affidavit of defendants, in action on an open verified account, denying the truth of the account and their liability to plaintiff, held sufficient to authorize admission of evidence tending to show that they were not liable. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

A defendant sued on an itemized account due from a firm, in which he had been a partner, who files a sworn plea denying that he was a partner when the items specified in the account were sold, need not file a controverting affidavit of the verified account. Rodgers-Wade Furniture Co. v. Wynn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 340.

Failure to file counter affidavit and effect thereof.—A verified account is only prima facie evidence, and the defendant, without filing a controverting affidavit, may under proper pleadings show that the debt has been paid (G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. McGue, 1 App. C. C. § 461), or set up a counterclaim (Bach, Meira & Co. v. Ginocchio, 1 App. C. C. § 1316). But he cannot show that any of the items are incorrectly stated. Robinson v. Bogardus, 2 App. C. C. § 528; Cahn v. Salinas, 2 App. C. C. § 104.

A defendant may file a counter affidavit without denying the account, and unless the same is denied by plaintiff, the justice and correctness of the plaintiff's verified account. Bach v. Ginocchio, 1 App. C. C. § 1316; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schwartz, 2 App. C. C. 758.

In suit on verified account, defendant's failure to file counter affidavit does not preclude him from showing payment or from setting up counterclaim. Moore v. Powers, 18 C. A. 436, 41 S. W. 707.

A defendant may show, without filing a counter affidavit, that an account has been paid, in whole or in part. He may also, under a proper plea, prove a counterclaim. Id.

In an action on an unverified account the items need not be proved to satisfaction of jury. Smith v. Mather (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 257.

In an action against a county to recover expenses incurred in caring for persons while quarantined, defendant should be permitted to cross-examine as to the items, though no affidavit of denial was filed before the trial, as required in actions on account by Art. 3642. King County v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 610.

Where a person guaranteed the payment of an account in such manner as to become primarily liable, such affidavit was sufficient to establish the account as against him, whether or not the buyer was made a party to the suit. Hulme v. Levi-Zuloaski Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 781.

Right to continuance.—Plaintiff sued upon an itemized verified account for goods sold, and on the day of trial defendant filed a sworn answer alleging that he owed plaintiff nothing when the petition was filed except $15, which was not then due and which he tendered into court, and pleaded accord and satisfaction and claimed certain credits not allowed in plaintiff's account which, with the exception of $15, was alleged to be a full settlement of the account. Art. 3712 provides that, when an action is founded on a verified open account, it shall be taken as prima facie evidence of that fact, unless the other party files a written denial under oath, provided that, when the counter-affidavit shall be filed on the day of trial, plaintiff shall have the right to continue the cause until the next term. Held, that the answer raised the issue of the truth of the verified account so as to entitle plaintiff to a continuance as a matter of right. Bergman Produce Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 163.

Books of account as evidence in general.—See notes under Art. 3687, Introductory, §§ 87-95, 131, 149.

Art. 3713. [677] [601] Records of corporation are evidence.—The records of any company incorporated under the provisions of any statute of this state, or copies thereof duly authenticated by the signature of the president and secretary of such company, under the corporate seal thereof, shall be competent evidence in any action or proceeding to which such corporation may be a party. [P. D. 5967.]

Foreign corporations.—The statutory requirement that a corporation shall keep minutes of the acts of its directors, and that certified copies thereof shall be admissible as evidence, will be applied to a foreign corporation, in the absence of evidence as to the requirements of the statutes of the state of its domicile. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 247.

EXECUTION

Article 3714. Execution on judgment of district and county court, issued when.—From and after the adjournment of every district or county court, it shall be the duty of the clerk thereof to tax the costs in every case in which a final judgment has been rendered against the party liable therefor under such judgment, and which have not been paid by him, and to issue execution for the enforcement of such judgment and the collection of such costs. [Act June 4, 1873, p. 209, sec. 1. P. D. 3772.]

Includes all final judgments.—The provision in this article requiring execution to be issued covers all final judgments, and includes judgment of foreclosure of liens. Ryan v. Haley, 48 C. A. 187, 106 S. W. 762.

Final judgment.—See also notes under Title 37, Chapter 16.

Where judgment is rendered on affirmation by the appellate court, the district court may issue execution thereon. Cope v. Lindsey, 17 C. A. 293, 43 S. W. 29.

A judgment which does not dispose of all the parties is not a final judgment and will not authorize an execution thereunder. Texas Co. v. Beddington, 53 C. A. 10, 114 S. W. 894.

The payment of a judgment by a stranger to it will operate as an extinguishment.
of it, unless there is some understanding that it is to be continued in force for the ben­efit of the person making the payment. After such a payment the judgment will not sup­port an execution, and a purchaser at an execution sale under such satisfied judgment acquires no title to land so sold. Terry v. O’Neal, 71 T. 592, 9 S. W. 673. So an order of sale on a judgment foreclosing a vendor’s lien which has been settled is a nullity. Hardin v. Clark, 21 S. W. 977; Geers v. Scott (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 292.

Execution creditor purchasing at sale cannot claim that the judgment was not enti­tled to credit to the amount of his bid. Willis v. Sanger, 15 C. A. 655, 40 S. W. 229.

Even the satisfaction of his judgment set aside upon its appearing that he acquired no title to the property purchased, although he had notice of the facts at time of sale. Holton v. Hale, 21 C. A. 194, 51 S. W. 900.

The return of a sheriff on an execution, and entry of satisfaction of a judgment, will be set aside when the levy is made on property which the judgment debtor does not own. Massie v. McKee (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 119.

Where one of three defendants, against whom a joint judgment had been rendered, paid the entire sum due and took an assignment from the judgment creditor, the judg­ment was thereby extinguished, and the purchaser was not entitled to enforce contribu­tion by execution. Deleshaw v. Edelen, 31 C. A. 416, 72 S. W. 413.

Parties, who by their pleadings have asserted only a right to subject to their execu­tion, cannot, and the sale of property to invoke not in the position of a court of any equatable power to subject to payment of their judgment any equitable interest of such person in the land. Todd & Hurley v. Garner (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 314.

Entry of judgment.—An execution cannot be issued upon a judgment rendered, but not entered upon the minutes. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank, 55 C. A. 504, 119 S. W. 711.

The issuance of an order of sale on execution prior to entry of judgment is unau­thorized. Hubbart v. Willis State Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 468.

An entry in the record of judgment previously rendered related back to the original rendition, and cured the irregularity of issuing an order of sale after rendition, but before entry of judgment. Id.

Void or voidable judgment.—Where land is sold on execution issued on an erroneous but void judgment, the creditor cannot avail himself of the execution, as against purchaser under execution. Fockey v. Sterling, 18 C. A. 8, 44 S. W. 611.

An execution held void because it showed upon its face that it was issued under a void judgment. Underwood v. Brown, 29 C. A. 163, 68 S. W. 206.

A judgment rendered against a nonresident renders service by publication only being void for want of jurisdiction over the defendant, an execution sale thereunder passed no title. Horst v. Lightfoot, 108 T. 643, 132 S. W. 761.

Validation by amendment.—An execution, void because the judgment under which it was issued was void, cannot be validated by an amendment to the judgment subsequent to the issuance of the execution. Underwood v. Brown, 29 C. A. 163, 69 S. W. 206.

Judgment not providing for execution.—Execution sale held valid although execution issued on judgment which did not order its issue. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 53 S. W. 717.

An execution may issue on a judgment without any award thereof. Hartz v. Haus­ser (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 63.

An alias execution held properly issued on a judgment, notwithstanding there had been no specific direction for its issuance. Weddington v. Carver, 45 C. A. 63, 100 S. W. 786.

An execution may issue on a judgment not in terms providing therefor. Ryan v. Rainey, 48 C. A. 157, 106 S. W. 759.

Persons entitled to execution.—See notes under Art. 3729.

Loss or destruction of judgment.—When it appeared that the docket of the justice of the peace was lost or destroyed, and executions dependent upon the judgment ren­dered by such justice, and the sheriff’s deed was produced, accompanied by proof of possession of the land by the purchaser and those claiming under him, it should have been left to the jury to find whether there was such a judgment as recited in the execu­tions. Walker v. Emerson, 20 T. 706, 73 Am. Dec. 207.

An execution issued on a judgment destroyed by fire before it was renewed is an irregularity, and the sale of property thereafter for one-tenth of its value will be set aside. Beckham v. Medlock, 13 C. A. 61, 46 S. W. 402.

Judgments of county court transferred.—As to execution on judgments of county court where jurisdiction has been transferred to the district court, see ante, Art. 1711.

Under the former law it was held that the judgment of the county court in such case should be recorded in the minutes of the district court before an execution should be issued. Richard v. Belcher, 25 S. W. 740, 6 C. A. 284.

Judgment in attachment suit.—A judgment against a nonresident in a suit by attach­ment without personal service operates only upon the attached property, is enforced by an order of sale, and will not support an execution. Barelli v. Wagner, 6 C. A. 445, 27 S. W. 17.

Recital of judgment.—See notes under Art. 3729.

Description of and recitals as to parties.—See notes under Art. 3729.

Execution for costs.—See Art. 3922.

Taxation of costs.—The taxing of costs is not an adjudication by the clerk of the items specified nor of the amount, but is simply the performance of a ministerial duty, which if erroneous may be corrected by the court upon a motion made for that purpose. Patton v. Cox, 97 T. 253, 77 S. W. 1027.
Execution

Art. 3715. [2325] [2268] Execution before adjournment, when.—After the expiration of twenty days from and after the rendition of a final judgment in the district or county court, and after the overruling of any motion therein for a new trial or in arrest of judgment, if no superseded bond on appeal or writ of error has been filed and approved, the clerk shall issue execution upon such judgment upon the application of the successful party. [Id.]

Execution before adjournment.—The fact that the court rendering a final judgment has not adjourned at the time of the issuance of execution on such judgment is immaterial if 20 days have elapsed between the date of judgment and the date of the issuance. 70 T. 757, 5 S. W. 683.

Effect of premature issuance.—The premature issuance of an execution is irregularity, but the writ must be respected until it is vacated in a direct proceeding for that purpose. Sydnor v. Roberts, 33 T. 690, 86 Am. Dec. 64; Boggs v. Howard, 46 T. 184; Bumpass v. Hastings, 70 T. 26, 7 S. W. 649; House v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 640.

Effect of destruction of record.—The destruction or mutilation of the record does not divest the court or its officer of power to issue execution. McCormick v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 526. See Art. 6778.

Art. 3716. [2326] [2269] Execution issued before adjournment, superseded, when.—When an execution has been issued under the preceding article, and a superseded bond is afterward filed and approved within the time prescribed by law, the clerk shall immediately issue a writ of supersedeas suspending all further proceedings under such execution.

Recovery of land.—Ninety days' time.—The 90 days' time in which a party is allowed to pay money as a condition to the recovery of land does not begin to elapse until the supreme court has refused a writ of error to the court of civil appeals. Then the judgment of the district court begins to have effect. It was suspended until then by appeal upon supersedeas bond. Fenton v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 261.

Art. 3717. [2326a] When judgment shall become dormant.—If no execution is issued within twelve months after the rendition of a judgment in any court of record, the judgment shall become dormant and no execution shall issue thereon, unless such judgment be revived; but, where the first execution has issued within the twelve months, the judgment shall not become dormant, unless ten years have elapsed between the issuance of executions thereon, and execution may issue at any time within ten years after the issuance of the preceding execution. [Acts 1895, p. 2.]

When judgment shall become dormant.—A judgment upon which an execution has been issued within one year, continues in force for ten years, and at any time during that period another execution might be issued and the judgment enforced without being revived. Maddox v. Summerlin, 32 T. 482, 49 S. W. 1033.

A dormant judgment is one that has not been satisfied or barred by lapse of time, but is temporarily inoperative, so far as the right to issue execution is concerned. Gailey Mfg. Co. v. Dupre (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1048 (citing 3 Words and Phrases, p. 2183).

Judgment not cause of action.—Where no execution has been issued on a judgment within 12 months from its rendition, and none can be issued because of the inhibition of this article, and the judgment can only be revived under the same process provided by Art. 5896, the judgment is a cause of action within the purview of Art. 5702, stopping the running of limitations during the absence of the defendant from the jurisdiction. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 338.

Limitation.—Accrual of action.—Issuance of writ of garnishment held not an execution, so as to prevent a judgment being barred by limitations. Shields v. Stark (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 540.

Under Art. 2337, and this article, the cause of action on a judgment on which execution had been issued within the 12 months would not accrue until 10 years after the issuance of the last valid execution, and the 10-year limitations will start to run at that time, under Art. 5690, rather than under Art. 5896, providing for revival of a judgment.
by solre facias or an action of debt within 10 years after its date and not thereafter.

Validity of execution on dormant judgment.—While an execution sale made under a dormant judgment may be avoided by the defendant in execution, a stranger cannot object to such execution, or to the title of the purchaser at such sale, in a collateral proceeding. Boggess v. Howard, 40 T. 153; Riddle v. Turner, 52 T. 145; Meadre Co. v. Arlingdale, 53 T. 447; Laughter v. Seela, 59 T. 177.

A sheriff’s sale made under execution issued on a dormant judgment is voidable, and as to the purchaser who is a stranger to the proceeding it cannot be collaterally attacked. Hill v. Newman, 57 T. 265, 3 S. W. 271.

Revival of judgment.—Sale under execution, issued in favor of assignee, who caused judgment to be revived in assignor’s name, held valid. Bludworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 551, 63 S. W. 717.

Where judgment is defective because revived in favor of assignee in assignor’s name, objection therefor must be taken by appeal, and cannot be raised collaterally, by suing purchaser for the land sold under execution pursuant to said judgment. Id.

Where plaintiff’s judgment cannot be collected because defendant has no property in the state, and it is barred by the statute of limitations in the state in which he has property, plaintiff may sue on such judgment and obtain a new one. Stevens v. Stone, 94 T. 415, 60 S. W. 959, 86 Am. St. Rep. 861.

The issuance of an execution on a judgment of revivor only held an irregularity not affecting the title of the purchaser thereunder. Taylor v. Doom, 43 C. A. 59, 95 S. W. 4.

An execution may be issued under a judgment reviving an original judgment rendered by failure to issue execution thereon within a year, though the judgment of revivor did not provide for execution. Id.

Art. 3718. [2327] [2270] Execution from justice’s court.—Executions from the justices’ courts shall issue as provided in the title relating to said courts.

Art. 3719. [2328] [2271] Execution issued on removal of property, etc.—Upon the filing of an affidavit that the party against whom a judgment for money, other than a judgment for costs only, has been rendered, is about to remove his property out of the county, or is about to transfer or secrete his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, the clerk may issue execution immediately. [Act Jan. 27, 1842, p. 66, sec. 3. P. D. 3774.]

Art. 3720. [2329] [2272] On death of plaintiff, execution issued how.—Where a sole plaintiff, or one of the several plaintiffs, shall die after judgment, execution shall issue on such judgment in the name of the legal representative of such deceased sole plaintiff, or in the name of the surviving plaintiffs, and the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, as the case may require, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk, together with a certificate of the appointment of such representative under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court wherein such appointment was made. [Act Feb. 5, 1853. P. D. 13.]

Affidavit—Recitals.—It is not necessary that the execution should recite that the affidavit had been filed, etc. Scott v. Lyons, 59 T. 693.

Right of surviving partner to issue execution.—Surviving partner may issue execution on judgment in favor of the firm. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 277.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3721. [2330] [2273] On death of executor, etc.—When an executor, administrator, guardian or trustee of an express trust dies or ceases to be such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee after judgment, execution shall issue on such judgment in the name of his successor, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk, together with the certificate of the appointment of such successor, under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court wherein such appointment was made. [1d.]

Art. 3722. [2331] [2274] On death of nominal plaintiff.—When a person in whose favor a judgment is rendered for the use of another dies after judgment, execution shall issue in the name of the party for whose use the suit was brought, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk.
Art. 3723. [2332] [2275] On death of defendant, no execution for money.—Where a sole defendant dies after judgment for money against him, execution shall not issue thereon, but the judgment may be proved up and paid in due course of administration. [Act Feb. 5, 1853. P. D.
14.]

May issue against surviving defendants.—Where one of several defendants dies, execution may issue against the remaining defendants. Turner v. Smith, 9 T. 636; Kendrick v. Rice, 16 T. 204.

Against estate in hands of independent executor.—Execution may issue against the estate of the decedent in the hands of an independent executor under a will. Art.
3363; Lemmel v. Fuqua, 64 T. 505.

Issue after death—Effect.—An execution issued after the death of the defendant on a judgment rendered before such death is void; and under an execution issued in the lifetime of the defendant, proceedings subsequent to his death are void. So held in Conkrite v. Hart, 10 T. 160; Boggess v. Lilly, 18 T. 209; Chandler v. Burdett, 35 T.
42; McMuller v. Butler, 20 T. 402; Emmons v. Williams, 28 T. 776. This rule is questioned in Webb v. Mallard, 27 T. 80. In Cook v. Sparks, 47 T. 28, held, that a sale after the death of the defendant will be set aside on motion. In Taylor v. Snow, 47 T. 462, 26 Am. Rep. 211, held, that such sale may be avoided within the proper time and manner by any party having an interest in the property; and that it is void as against the administrator of the deceased defendant and parties acquiring title through administration. See Bynum v. Gowan, 9 C. A. 555, 29 S. W. 1119.

Death after issuance—Effect.—Where a judgment for taxes was rendered against a purchaser of land subject to a vendor's lien, and he died prior to a sale of the land on execution, the sale was void. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1070.

Collateral attack.—The death of the defendant before judgment cannot be set up in a collateral action to void a judgment thereon. Taylor v. Snow, 47 T. 462, 26 Am.
v. Lee, 26 T. 32; Bohanan v. Hans, 26 T. 445; McKe v. Brackett, 28 T. 443; Giddings
v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Fleming v. Seeligson, 67 T. 524; Ewing v. Wilson, 63 T. 88.

Foreclosure of vendor's lien must be presented to administrator.—A judgment foreclosing the vendor's lien in favor of the vendor after the death of the defendant is a claim for money against the estate of the decedent and must be presented to the administrator for action thereon. A suit to revive such judgment brought by an assignee without such presentation, and the rejection of it, in whole or in part, cannot be maintained against the heirs of the defendant pending an administration. Jenkins
v. Cahn, 72 T. 85, 19 S. W. 391; Cahn v. Woodward, 74 T. 549, 12 S. W. 319.

Abatement on death—Revival.—Where the time has elapsed in which administration could be had, the judgment against deceased should sue the heirs for their debt, or to revive the judgment that had abated by the death of the defendant.

Art. 3724. [2333] [2276] On death of defendant, execution for property.—In all cases of judgments other than money judgments, where the sole defendant, or one or more of several joint defendants, shall die after judgment, upon an affidavit of such death being filed with the clerk, together with the certificate of the appointment of a representative of such decedent, under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court wherein such appointment was made, the proper process on such judgment shall issue against such representative. [Id.]

Art. 3725. [2334] [2277] Terms “plaintiff” and “defendant” de-defined.—By the term, “plaintiff,” as used in this title, is meant the party in whose favor judgment is rendered, and by the term, “defendant,” is meant the party against whom judgment was rendered.

Art. 3726. [2335] [2278] County to which execution for money shall issue.—Where the execution requires that the judgment shall be made out of the property of the debtor, it shall be issued in the first instance to the county in which the judgment is rendered, and upon the return thereof that no property can be found, or not sufficient to satisfy the same, execution may be issued to any other county in the state.
[Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3784.]

Issuance to another county.—An execution issued in the first instance to a county other than that in which the judgment was rendered is irregular, but not void. Smith
A first execution, issued to a county in which an abstract of the judgment had been filed, instead of the county in which the judgment was rendered, was void.
Schneider v. Dorsey, 96 T. 544, 74 S. W. 536.

Issuance from wrong county.—An execution improperly issued to a county other than that in which the judgment was rendered is not void. Earle v. Thomas, 7 T. 583; Hancock v. Metz, 15 T. 205.

An execution, such as is required by this article, if issued in the first instance to a county other than the one in which the judgment was rendered, is not void, but

Vern. S. Civ. St. . 173
Art. 3726  EXECUTION  (Title 54)

is irregular. It may be avoided at the instance of the defendant in the judgment. An officer is bound to execute such an execution, and can justify under the same. If it is levied and the property sold by virtue thereof, an innocent purchaser will acquire a good title. It is such an execution as is within the provisions of Art. 3717, and if issued within twelve months from the date of the judgment will prevent it from becoming dormant. Cabell v. Orient Ins. Co., 22 C. A. 686, 66 S. W. 610.

Issuance to wrong county—Effect on purchaser.—When execution is issued to another county, the title of the purchaser thereunder is not affected by the fact that defendant had ample property to satisfy the judgment in the county where the judgment was rendered which he failed to point out when called upon. Sydnor v. Roberts, 13 T. 598, 65 Am. Dec. 84.

Restraining issuance to wrong county.—An execution must be issued first to the county in which the judgment is rendered, and an execution issued to another county first can be enjoined. Norwood v. Orient Insurance Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 188.

Injunctions against.—See notes under Title 69.

Presumption as to issuance.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Issuance to another county prevents judgment becoming dormant.—Under this article, Art. 3727, providing that, where the execution requires the sale or delivery of specific property, it may be issued to the county where the property or some part of it is situated, and Art. 5617, providing that duly recorded judgments shall be a lien unless plaintiff shall fail to have execution issued thereon within 12 months after the rendition thereof, an execution issued to a county other than the one where judgment was rendered for the sale of attached property in such other county prevented the judgment becoming dormant without the issuance of an execution to the county in which judgment was rendered within 12 months. Kingman Texas Implement Co. v. Borders (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 614.

Art. 3727. [2336] [2279] Execution for property shall issue.—Where the execution, or any writ in the nature thereof, requires the sale or delivery of specific real or personal property, it may be issued to the county where the property, or some part thereof, is situated.

Tract situated in two counties.—The sale of an entire tract situated in two counties may be made in either. Miller v. Edinburgh—American L. & M. Co. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 184.

Grounds for Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3728. [2337] [2280] To different counties.—Process in the nature of an execution which requires only the delivery of real or personal property may be issued at the same time to different counties.

Art. 3729. [2338] [2281] Requisites of an execution.—The style of the execution shall be, "The State of Texas." It shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, and shall be signed by the clerk or justice officially, and sealed with the seal of the court, if issued out of the district or county court. It shall correctly describe the judgment, stating the court wherein and the time when rendered, the names of the parties, the amount, if it be for money, and the amount actually due thereon, if less than the original amount, the rate of interest, if other than six per cent, and shall have the following requisites:

1. The several items of the bill of costs to be collected under the execution shall be indorsed thereon in intelligible words and figures.

2. If the judgment be for money simply, it shall require the officer to satisfy the judgment out of the property of the debtor, subject to execution.

3. If the judgment commands the sale of particular property for the satisfaction thereof, the writ shall be framed accordingly.

4. If the judgment be for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property, the writ shall require the officer to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may, at the same time, require the officer to satisfy any costs, damages or rents and profits recovered by the same judgment, out of any property subject to execution of the party against whom it is rendered.

5. If the judgment be for the recovery of personal property or its value, the writ shall command the officer, in case a delivery thereof can not be had, to levy and collect the value thereof for which the judgment was recovered, to be specified therein out of any property of the party against whom the judgment was rendered, liable to execution.

6. It shall require the officer to satisfy the costs adjudged against the party, and the further costs of executing the writ, out of any property liable to execution of the party against whom the judgment was rendered.

7. When an alias or pluries execution is issued, it shall show upon its face the number of previous executions which have been issued on the judgment. [Const., art. 5, sec. 12. Act June 4, 1873, p. 209, secs. 1, 2. P. D. 3772.]

See Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 101, 134 S. W. 323.

Officer to whom writ may be directed.—An order of sale addressed to the sheriff of the county in which the property is located shall be directed to the sheriff of the county in which the property is situated.

Previous executions.—Execution is not void for failure to state the number of executions previously issued. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 277.

Names of parties.—A failure to name the plaintiffs in a judgment, or a slight discrepancy between the names of the parties and judgment rendered, cannot be taken advantage of when such judgment is offered as a muniment of title to support a sheriff's deed made under it. Wyche v. Clapp, 43 T. 543.

A judgment rendered without giving in the entry the names of the parties, but in the caption giving the firm name, and no names being given in the body of the judgment, will support a sale under execution, reciting the names of all the parties, when the deed under such sale is collaterally attacked. Smith v. Chenault, 48 T. 456.

An execution against P. B. Clements is not supported by a judgment against J. B. Clements. Battle v. Guedry, 58 T. 111.

In 1867 G. recovered judgment against J. H. and F. C., it not appearing that any execution ever issued thereon. In 1881 execution was issued against S. C. and B. M. H., executors of the will of J. H., and directing that the judgment be satisfied out of the property of S. C. and B. M. H., executors, etc. Held, that the judgment did not support the execution or sale thereunder. Hart v. McDade, 61 T. 208.

It is manifest that the variance between the parties to the cause as they were designated in the execution and the judgment on which it issued is not sufficient to exclude a deed based on a sale under execution, it appearing that the cause, in its progress, sometimes docketed as it appeared in the judgment and sometimes as recited in the caption, giving the firm name, and no names being given in the body of the judgment, will support a sale under execution, reciting the names of all the parties, when the deed under such sale is collaterally attacked. Smith v. Chenault, 48 T. 456.

A sale under an execution which does not correctly state the name of the defendant is void. A correction of the execution which does not validate the sale, and if made after the sale, upon notice, would not validate the sale. Morris v. Balkham, 76 T. 111, 12 S. W. 376, 16 Am. St. Rep. 744; McKay v. Paris Bank, 76 T. 181, 12 S. W. 629, 16 Am. St. Rep. 854.

An execution in the name of C. alone on a judgment in favor of C. & L. as partners is not sufficient to support a sale, and the sale is invalid. Cleveland v. Simpson, 77 T. 96, 13 S. W. 351.

By the pleadings the action was shown to be against "Gilbert L. M." Judgment against "Gabriel L. M." Execution against property of "G. L. M." Sale of property of "Gilbert L. M.", not void. Haisell v. McMurphy (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 777.

An execution on a money judgment must name the person whose property is to be subjected to its satisfaction. Capps v. Leachman, 90 T. 499, 39 S. W. 917, 59 Am. St. Rep. 839.

Variances between execution and judgment held harmless, and the judgment sufficiently identified as the one on which the execution was issued. Harris v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 731.

A judgment and order for sale thereunder held to sufficiently show the judgment debtor. Dimock v. Johnson, 52 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 937.

The failure of the execution part of an order of sale to state the name of the party to which it was ordered, and the sale was invalid. Cleveland v. Simpson, 77 T. 96, 13 S. W. 351.

The property named in the order of sale did not bring a sufficient sum to pay the judgment held an irregularity only. White v. Taylor, 46 C. A. 471, 102 S. W. 747.

The failure of execution reciting judgment obtained against "John Dalziel," when it should have been "James Dalziel," is fatally defective under Art. 3729. Harkey v. Day (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1198.

Statement of amount.—An execution correctly described the judgment, stating the court before which it was rendered, the date of its rendition and the names of the parties to the suit, but misdescribed the amount of the judgment by reciting it as being for $13.37, debt due and interest, when the judgment was for $12.59 principal and 6 per cent. interest. The variance was held not material in a collateral proceeding. Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 603, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Waters v. Spofford, 58 T. 115.

An execution is not void because issued for too large an amount. Jackson v. Finlay (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 427.

Variances between execution and a judgment held not shown by reason of the fact that the execution was issued for a larger amount than the original amount of the judgment. Taylor v. Doon, 45 C. A. 69, 65 S. W. 4.

Recital as to date of judgment.—Where the description of a judgment in an execution was erroneous as to the date, but was otherwise correct, it did not render execution or sale thereunder void. Barnes v. Nix (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 202.

Description of property levied on, by which the property might be located by reference to records, held sufficiently definite. Focke v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 187.

Several executions.—Where several executions are issued on the same day, effect of. See Brackenridge v. Cobb, 21 S. W. 1094, 35 T. 448; Driscoll v. Morris, 21 S. W. 629, 2 C. A. 603.

Affidavit.—It is not necessary that the fact that an affidavit had been filed to obtain an execution instant should appear in or upon the execution. Lebreton v. Lamaire (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 211.
EXECUTION

Art. 3729

Cannot issue against independent executrix, etc.—An execution cannot issue against an independent executrix on a judgment recovered against the decedent and to which she was never a party. Govan v. Bynum, 17 C. A. 180, 43 S. W. 319.

Order of sale.—An order of sale is governed by the same rules as other executions. Plews v. Hammond, 22 T. 856.

Directions as to property to be taken.—An execution on a judgment which directed that execution issue to be levied upon the effects of A. C. H., deceased, which commands the sheriff “that of the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of E. J. N., executor of A. C. H., deceased,” he make the money adjudged, did not authorize or empower the sheriff to levy upon the property of the estate. Ante, Art. 3725. The defendants named in the writ were H. and D., and the additional description of them as the executrix and executor did not supply the place of a personal grant in a writ to levy upon the property of the estate, and sale of property of the estate thereunder is invalid. Hart v. McMcDade, 61 T. 212.

It is not a valid objection to the admissibility of a judgment in evidence as a link in a chain that the execution be levied upon the “effects” of the defendant. Unaffected by the context, the word “effects” is generally held to include only personal property, but no distinction could properly have been made by the court rendering the judgment between real and personal property, as both were equally subject to the debt, and it was not necessary for the judgment to define what property was to be levied on further than to indicate that it was to be satisfied out of the property of the defendant. Horton v. Garrison, 1 C. A. 31, 20 S. W. 773.

Conformity to judgment.—An order of sale directing sale for gold and for ten per cent., interest on execution, when the decree required a collection of “dollars” and interest at eight per cent., the variances were but irregularities and did not affect a sale thereunder. Hughes v. Driver, 60 T. 175.

A judgment was rendered for a sum certain and bore no interest. The execution under such a judgment recited that the judgment bore ten per cent. interest. The judgment appeared to be against Ann H., the execution recited the judgment against Anna H. Held, that the irregularity of the execution did not render it void in a collateral proceeding. Pitch v. Boyer, 61 T. 326.

Execution held not issued in accordance with the judgment in the case. Wear v. Gillon (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 817.

Evidence held to establish that an execution that was lost followed the judgment, and was correctly issued. Turner v. Crane, 13 C. A. 369, 47 S. W. 822.

Collateral attack.—The contradictions in the recitals in an execution and an indorsement thereon held not to render the execution void and a sale under it could not be collaterally attacked. Ayres v. Patton, 61 C. A. 186, 111 S. W. 1079.

The failure to correctly state the amount of the judgment and the costs is an irregularity which may justify the setting aside of the sale when sought in a direct action for that purpose, but does not render the sale void, and it cannot be attacked collaterally. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 6.

Persons entitled to execution.—A judgment of a court can be transferred by parcel, but in such case it must be enforced by execution in the name of the original plaintiff. Garvin v. Hall, 83 T. 295, 18 S. W. 731.

The term “issue,” as applied to an execution, includes its delivery to an officer for enforcement. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

Art. 3730. [2339] [2282] Returnable, when.—The execution shall be returnable to the first day of the next term of the court, or in thirty, sixty or ninety days, if so directed by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney. [Act June 4, 1873. P. D. 3775.]

No return day specified.—If no return day is specified in the execution it is returnable on the first day of the next term of the court from whence it is issued. Tillman v. McDonough, 2 App. C. C. § 52.

Art. 3731. [2340] [2283] Indorsements by officer.—The officer receiving an execution shall indorse thereon the exact hour and day when he received it, and, if he receives more than one on the same day against the same person, he shall number them as received; and, on failure to do, or in case of false indorsement, he and his sureties shall be liable, on motion in the court from whence the execution is issued, three days’ notice being given, to a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in execution for twenty per cent. of the amount of the execution, together with such damages as the plaintiff in execution may have sustained by such failure or such false indorsement. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3780.]

Effect of noncompliance.—An execution sale may be valid as against the judgment debtor, though the execution was not indorsed as required by this article. Wilson v. Swasey, (Sup.) 20 S. W. 44.
Penalty recoverable, when.—The penalty for failure to date and number is not recoverable where it does not appear that more than one execution has been received. De Witt v. Dunn, 15 T. 106.

Art. 3732. [2341] [2284] Execution leived on property of surety, when.—If it appear upon the face of an execution, or by the indorsement of the clerk, that of those against whom it is issued any one is surety for another, the levy of the execution shall first be made upon the property of the principal subject to execution and situate in the county in which the judgment is rendered. But, if property of the principal cannot be found which will, in the opinion of the officer, be sufficient to make the amount of the execution, the levy shall be made on so much property of the principal as may be found, if any, and upon so much of the property of the surety as may be necessary to make the amount of the execution. [Act Feb. 5, 1858. P. D. 4786.]

In general.—A surety, codefendant with his principal in the judgment, has a right to protect himself by causing property of his principal to be taken in satisfaction of the judgment; and where he was also vender to his principal by title bond for the property taken in execution, and after sale under the execution, pursuant to his bond, makes a deed to his principal with general warranty of title, he is not liable on his warranty by reason of the sale of the property so made under execution. Kelse v. Pratt, 26 T. 381.

A surety on a note is entitled to have execution issued first against the maker; and, if he pays off the judgment, he is entitled to an execution against the maker for the amount paid. Hollimon v. Karger, 30 C. A. 568. 71 S. W. 299.

Thus, a court, whether the judgment foreclosed is or is not subject to a prior lien, restricts the judgment to foreclose a lien on or in the real estate of the defendant in order to determine whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien. A court may thus, and should, in its discretion, in determining whether or not a judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien, deliberate upon the act of a prior lien before determining whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien. In other words, a judgment foreclosed is or is not subject to a prior lien, and the instruction from the court is to be determined by the court before determining whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien. And, in determining whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien, the instruction from the court is to be determined by the court before determining whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien. The instruction from the court is to be determined by the court before determining whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien. The instruction from the court is to be determined by the court before determining whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien. The instruction from the court is to be determined by the court before determining whether the judgment foreclosed is, or is not, subject to a prior lien.

Surety may restrain, when.—Under this article a surety may not obtain an injunction to restrain a sale of his property under an execution, unless he shows by the execution that he is a surety, and that the principal has property in the county in which the judgment was rendered sufficient to satisfy the judgment. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 811.

Sale of property of surety.—If, under execution against principal and surety, the property of both be seized, the sale of that belonging to the surety, without the sale of that belonging to the principal, would not render the sale void. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 85 T. 448, 31 S. W. 1084.

Release of surety.—When the issuance of an execution creates no lien on the debtor's property, the mere fact that the execution is held up by the creditor, unless it be so done in pursuance of a valid and binding agreement with the principal debtor, will not release the creditor. Beatty v. Chamberlain, 63 T. 198. See Parker v. Nations, 33 T. 210; Jenkins v. McNeese, 34 T. 189. See Art. 633.

Notice of sale.—That notices of sale on execution of a surety's property did not show that a levy was attempted on the principal's property as required by the judgment, held not to make the sheriff void. Hillman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 276.

Manner of levy.—In an action on certain notes and to foreclose a mortgage, the manner in which the execution should be levied stated. Trotti v. Gaar, Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 670.

Art. 3733. [2342] [2285] On death, etc., of officers, enforced by successor.—If the officer receiving an execution die or go out of office before the return of any execution, his successor or other officer authorized to discharge the duties of the office in such case shall proceed therein in the same manner that such officer should have done.

Erroneous recital of deed.—The fact that the execution was levied by one sheriff and the deed recited that it had been levied by the maker thereof, who succeeded him in office, offers no valid objection to the deed. Haskins v. Wallet, 69 T. 218.

Art. 3734. [2343] [2286] Enforced without delay.—When an execution against the property of any person is issued to an officer, he shall proceed without delay to levy the same upon the property of the defendant not exempt from execution, unless otherwise directed by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney. [R. S. 1879, 2286.]

Levy not made—Effect.—If the levy of an order of sale is not in fact made, it is only an irregularity and the sale is not void. Patton v. Collier, 13 C. A. 544, 38 S. W. 55.

Art. 3735. [2344] [2287] Estimation of deficiency from foreclosure sale and levy on other property.—Under Art. 2000, requiring a mortgage foreclosure judgment to direct the sheriff to sell the property and to make any deficiency out of the mortgagor's property, as in ordinary executions, and this article, a sheriff holding an order of sale under mortgage foreclosure cannot estimate in advance the proceeds that will probably result from the sale, and levy execution for the probable balance on another property, the judgment provided for by Art. 2000 and the writ thereunder being contingent as to any deficiency until it is rendered certain by levy, and a sale of the mortgagor's general property under a foreclosure judgment before exhausting the mortgaged property is void. Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 101, 134 S. W. 323.

Art. 3735. [2344] [2287] Levy of execution.—The officer shall first call upon the defendant, if he can be found, or, if absent, upon his agent within the county, if known, to point out property to be levied upon; and a levy shall first be made upon the property designated by the defendant or his agent; provided, that if it be personal property, the defendant or his agent deliver the same into the officer's possession; or, if it be real estate, that he deliver to the officer a description thereof by metes and bounds, and that it be situated in whole or in part within the county. If, in the opinion of the officer, the property so designated will not sell for enough to satisfy the execution and costs of sale, he shall notify the defendant or his agent thereof; whereupon the latter may make an additional designation. [Act June 4, 1873, p. 209, sec. 2. P. D. 3775.]

Statute directory.—The statute is directory, and while a levy not made as required might be set aside on a proper proceeding, or the officer making it might be liable for damages, a sale would not necessarily be void. Pearson v. Flanagan, 52 T. 266; Odle v. Frost, 59 T. 684.

Statute giving defendant privilege of pointing out property is directory. Beck v. Avindino, 82 T. 314, 18 S. W. 690.

In an action against a sheriff for conversion, irregularity in a levy of execution held immaterial. Cox v. Patten (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 64.

Selection of property.—A failure of an officer to call upon a party to point out property will not be a ground for setting aside a sale on account of inadequacy of price, unless it appears that such irregularity conduced to the inadequacy of the sum bid. Allen v. Pierson, 69 T. 604.

The validity of a sale is not affected by the fact that the return failed to show that the officer was called upon to point out the property, or who pointed it out, or that the notice of sale was posted. Crabtree v. Whiteselle, 65 T. 111; Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 S. W. 769; Sydnor v. Roberta, 13 T. 598, 66 Am. Dec. 84; Odle v. Frost, 59 T. 684; Donnebaum v. Timley, 54 T. 362.

Where the defendant seeks to enjoin the sale on the ground that the levy was made in violation of his right to point out property, he must show that he pointed out property liable to execution sufficient to satisfy the sum; or if such other property is insufficient, that he requested the sheriff to levy on it and sell it before the property he desired to reserve, and that the sheriff in either case refused. Kingsland v. Harrell, 1 App. C. C. § 726, citing Ross v. Listor, 14 T. 468; Smith v. Frederick, 32 T. 556; Cook v. De La Garza, 25 Texas, 148; Barbee v. Helfin, 1 App. C. C. § 744. The statute giving the defendant the privilege of pointing out property is directory, and the courts have refused to disturb sales when the defendant, for want of opportunity, had not exercised the right. But when the officer actually points out property his right cannot be ignored. Beck v. Avindino, 82 T. 314, 18 S. W. 690.

See Oppenheimer v. Robinson, 87 T. 174, 27 S. W. 95. The defendant or his agent has a right to designate property upon which execution shall be levied. Jackson v. Browning, 1 App. C. C. § 606.

An objection to a levy, because no opportunity to point out other property subject to sale was given, cannot avail where it is not shown that defendant had such, and desired it to be sold. Yett v. Iron City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1033.

A written description of the lots is not directly required by this article. A verbal designation of the property giving the number of the lots and the block and giving the name of the addition in which they are situated sufficiently points out the property. Beck v. Avindino, 68 S. W. 829, 29 C. A. 500.

Under this article, where an instrument departed from the requirements of a writ of execution, in that it directed the officer to levy upon certain specified real estate, instead of naming against the judgment debtor's property generally, thus peremptorily depriving him of his statutory right to point out his property, the writ was a void process on its face. Midditf v. Bedell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 271.

Under this article and Art. 3736, the judgment creditor need not point out the property to be sold, and by a sale on execution all that passes at the sale is the title of the judgment debtor at the date of the levy or acquired between that time and the sale, and the creditor, in the absence of special circumstances is not estopped from subsequently acquiring a title from the common source of title as against the purchaser at such execution. Decatur & Desh v. 130 S. W. 192.

Effect of failure to levy on property in order named.—A failure to levy upon property in the order named is immaterial, when it appears that the defendant had an opportunity to point out property to the officer before the levy was made and did not exercise that right. Anderson v. Oldham, 88 T. 225, 18 S. W. 557.
Delivery of personal property.—A defendant who fails to deliver personal property to the officer or to furnish him with some identification of it cannot defeat a levy on land. Anderson v. Oldham, 62 T. 228, 18 S. W. 557.

Levy upon exempt property.—Officer's liability.—See Art. 7130.

Principal and surety—levy.—The principal debtor cannot require that the levy be made upon the personal property of his surety, or of the surety on appeal of his codefendant, rather than on his own improved real estate. Kendrick v. Rice, 16 T. 254.

Amount of levy.—The value of the property which should be levied on by an officer levying execution stated. Mara v. Branch (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 651.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3736. [2345] [2288] Failure of defendant to designate property.—If no property be thus designated, or if an insufficient amount of property be designated, it shall be the duty of the officer to levy the execution upon the property of the debtor, subject to execution in the following order:
1. On personal or movable property.
2. On uncultivated lands; and
3. Upon cultivated lands. [Id. sec. 3.]

Property subject to execution.—Railroad shares are personal property and subject to levy and sale under execution. Baker v. Wasson, 63 T. 150.

Where the party has paid part of the purchase-money for land, he has an interest therein subject to execution. Mooring v. McBride, 62 T. 309.

Real estate conveyed in fraud of creditors is subject to execution against the purchaser. Hawkins v. Cramer, 63 T. 99.

An interest in land pending proceedings for partition is subject to execution, even when the levy and sale are made to satisfy costs in a pending suit. Brown v. Renfro, 63 T. 609.

A judgment against a mercantile firm and its members authorizes an execution against the firm assets as well as the individuals composing the firm. Sanger v. Overnier, 64 T. 57; Burnett v. Sullivan, 58 T. 635; Railroad Co. v. McGaughy, 62 T. 271; De Camp v. Bates (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 644.

Annual crops fit for harvest may be levied upon as personal chattels. Horne v. Gambrell, 1 App. C. C. § 997.

The fact that a debt was incurred after a trust resulted to the debtor does not preclude the creditor from subjecting the trust estate to the debt. Goodrich v. Hicks, 19 C. A. 528, 48 S. W. 798.

Interest of purchasers, cultivating land and having paid a part of the price, under an agreement for a deed on full payment, held liable to execution. Matula v. Lane (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 112.

Interest of beneficiary under resulting trust held subject to execution sale. Hirshfeld v. Howard (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 806.

A levy on a tenant's interest in a crop not removed from the premises held valid. Groshack v. Evans, 40 C. A. 215, 88 S. W. 899.

An assignment of a debtor's property to a trustee for the benefit of creditors held not to divest the title of the property from the debtor, which was, therefore, subject to execution. Peeples v. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 61.

An interest in land held by the estate, certified to the debtor, is subject to seizure and sale on execution. Tompkins v. Creighton-McShane Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 306.

A mature and ungathered crop is not exempt from execution by reason of the nature of the property. Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 692.

An officer having a surplus in his hands after a sale of property under execution and satisfaction of the judgment may subject it to a second execution against the defendant. Turner v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 539.

The equity of redemption in property mortgaged to secure a note is subject to levy and sale at the suit of other creditors. Hudson v. Childree (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1154.

Property not subject to execution.—Land contracted to be conveyed by a bond for title to the land to be selected by the purchaser and the contract depending upon payment by the purchaser cannot be sold under execution. Daucherty v. Cox, 13 T. 208. Adverse possession of land, notice of title of occupant. Markham v. Parker (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 82.

Property reserved by law for the family and exempt from execution is not subject to be levied on even with the consent of the head of the family. And where such property is pointed out by the defendant in execution, the sheriff cannot properly receive it. Ross v. Lister, 14 T. 469. See Art. 3737.

Notes and accounts cannot be levied on and sold. Taylor v. Gillean, 23 T. 508.

A levy made by the sheriff on lands lying without the limits of his county is void. Alfred v. Montague, 26 T. 732, 54 Am. Dec. 603.

An interest in land conveyed by parol contract, the enforcement of which is dependent on circumstances, is not subject to sale under execution against the purchaser. Hendricks v. Snediker, 30 T. 296; Edwards v. Norton, 55 T. 405; Day v. Stone, 59 T. 612; Mooring v. McBride, 62 T. 309.

Property in the hands of a receiver pending litigation is not subject to levy and sale until after the final decree; and a purchaser at a sale under execution acquires no title. Edwards v. Norton, 55 T. 456.
An uncertain equitable interest in land is not subject to sale under execution. Id. For example, by the terms of the contract the title remains with the seller until a deferred payment of purchase money is made, is not subject to sale under execution against the purchaser until the amount due is paid or tendered to the vendor. City National Bank v. Tufts, 63 T. 115.

An interest in land growing out of the vendor's lien is not subject to sale under execution. Willis v. Sommerville, 22 S. W. 781, 3 C. A. 509; Davis v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 435.

An interest in land acquired under a lease which does not permit a subletting is not subject to sale under execution. Moser v. Tucker, 26 S. W. 1044, 1105, 87 T. 94.

An execution against a husband and wife for a tort may be levied on the separate property of the wife, though it contains no specific directions for levy against such estate. Taylor v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1948.

A leasehold interest, in which the lessee has no general power to sublet, held not subject to levy and sale. Boone v. First Nat. Bank, 17 C. A. 356, 43 S. W. 594.

Execution levied on property sold under a fraudulent attachment against the judgment debtor creates no lien. Murphy v. Nash (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 944; Same v. Harlock, Id.; Same v. Deadrick, Id.

Neither taxes and public revenue, nor property acquired in collecting same, can be seized under execution against city. Gordon v. Thorp (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 357.

A spendthrift trust cannot be subjected to the payment of beneficiary's debts. Wood v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 351.

If execution debtor does not tender the officer personal property sufficient to satisfy the judgment, he cannot complain of the levy upon his land. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 966.

Where, in an action by a divorced wife to collect alimony in the divorce decree for the support of a child, on the husband's death pending the action, the payment of the amount should not be enforced by execution, but certified to the county court. Schultz v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

A vendor of land who has transferred the lien notes held to have no interest in the land subject to sale under the execution. Brotherton v. Anderson, 27 C. A. 587, 66 S. W. 685.

Where, in divorce proceedings by the wife, a homestead which is community property is set apart for the use of the wife and minor children, it is not subject to sale on execution against the divorced husband. Holland v. Zillox, 38 C. A. 416, 96 S. W. 36.

The interest of a vendor in land which has been sold on a credit and a lien retained to secure the payment of the purchase money held not subject to levy and sale under execution. Rutherford v. Mothershed, 42 C. A. 369, 92 S. W. 1021.

Where, pending a suit to subject a husband's alleged interest in land to plaintiff's judgment, plaintiff caused the husband's interests to be advertised for sale on execution, it would not be error to refuse to dissolve the execution on motion. Skinner v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 426.

The law in force when property is acquired affecting its liability to be taken in execution does not become a part of the contract of purchase. Lyon & Matthews Co. v. Modern Order of Prawitians (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 29.

Selection of property.—See notes under Art. 3735.

Order of sale.—When execution defendant made no tender of personal property sufficient to satisfy the judgment, he cannot recover damages on the ground that execution was levied on his land without a levy first being made on his personal property. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 984.

Power of courts of equity.—The power of courts of equity to aid the infirmity of the law and personal property is discussed in Prize v. Brady, 21 T. 614; Taylor v. Gillean, 23 T. 605; Arthur v. Batte, 42 T. 159.

Priorities.—Sales.—A sale of land under execution against a distributee of an estate is subject to a prior sale made under order of court, and enforcing a lien against the property of the estate. Query, as to the right of the purchaser at execution sale. Bradshaw v. House, 43 T. 143.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3737. [2346] [2289] Property not to be designated.—A defendant in execution can not point out property which he has sold, mortgaged or conveyed in trust, or property exempt from forced sale.

Art. 3738. [2347] [2290] Property sold, etc., can not be levied on, when.—Property which the judgment debtor has sold, mortgaged or conveyed in trust shall not be seized in execution, if the purchaser, mortgagee or trustee shall point out other property of the debtor in the county sufficient to satisfy the execution.

Art. 3739. [2348] [2291] Levy on real estate.—In order to make a levy on real estate, it shall not be necessary for the officer to go upon the ground, but it shall be sufficient for him to indorse such levy on the writ.

 Sufficiency of levy.—A levy and sale are void for uncertainty where the undivided half interest of R. and O. is levied on and sold, and R. and O. each individually owned such undivided half interest. Rogers v. Bradford, 96 T. 630.
EXECUTION

Art. 3741

SIGNATURE.—It is not necessary that the indorsement of levy be signed when it is made, if sufficient if the return, of which the levy forms a part, is signed. Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769; Miller v. Alexander, 13 T. 497, 65 Am. Dec. 73.

Indorsement on execution.—The failure of an officer to indorse a levy on execution cannot affect the rights of a purchaser on a collateral attack. Davis v. Hornbell (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 972.

A levy upon a tract of land subdivided into town lots is insufficient unless the separate lots levied upon are specified in the return upon the writ. Railway Co. v. Harrison, 72 T. 478, 10 S. W. 556.

The description of the land upon which a levy is made is sufficient, when reference is made to the record of deeds in a named county by which it can be made certain. Brown v. Elmdorf (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 145.

A levy on land, execution describing same as "the Tide Haven tract on Trespalacios, less 177 acres," held sufficient. Bldworth v. Poole, 21 C. A. 531, 53 S. W. 717.

Property not subject to execution.—See notes under Art. 3785.

Art. 3740. [2349] [2292] On personal property.—A levy upon personal property is made by taking possession thereof, when the defendant in execution is entitled to the possession; where the defendant in execution has an interest in personal property, but is not entitled to the possession thereof, a levy is made thereon by giving notice thereof to the person who is entitled to the possession, or one of them when there are several.

Personal property.—Sufficiency of levy.—To constitute a levy upon personal property it is necessary for the officer to take actual possession thereof, or to so control it as so that he would be guilty of trespass against the owner but for the writ under which he acts. Frobberg v. Johnson, 71 T. 558, 8 S. W. 465.

Where officer goes with an execution to defendant's store, which is locked, and without gaining entrance, nails strips across the door, and reads the writ, and notifies defendant, there is no levy. Lynch v. Payne (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 405.

Judgment creditor, levyin on one part of property in possession of defendant, must do so by actual seizure. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675.

Facts held not to show a completed levy of execution. Adoue v. Wettermark. 36 C. A. 585, 51 S. W. 797.

POSSESSION.—The act of possession must be according to the nature of the property; if it be goods, they should be within the officer's view and subject to his control. Or, he should perform some open act in pursuance of his title in relation thereto which would divest the possession of the defendant. Bryan v. Bridge, 6 T. 137; Portis v. Parker, 8 T. 23, 58 Am. Dec. 95; Converse v. McKee, 14 T. 20; Brown v. Lane, 19 T. 203; Grove v. Harris, 35 T. 320; Osborne v. Koehnghelm, 57 T. 91.

A levy upon a "stock of goods, wares and merchandise," appraised at a designated sum, is sooner, 50 T. 292. See Bourgeois v. Lewis, 20 T. 220, 57 S. W. 675.

When the officer goes to the defendant's locked store, and in the way of levy on goods within the store, nails strips across the door, and reads the execution in front of the house, and notifies the defendant, there is no levy. Lynch v. Payne (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 405.

In levying on the undivided interest of the debtor in personal property, in possession of one of the owners the officer has no authority to take possession of the property, and the levy would be properly made by giving notice to the one in possession. Hubert v. Hubert, 45 C. A. 503, 102 S. W. 550.

Under Art. 255, requiring an attachment to be levied as an execution on similar property is levied, and this article, an officer in attaching wood stacked on land must perform such possessory acts or take such undoubted control as to constitute a trespass; a 'trespasser' being one who unlawfully enters on or intrudes on another's land or who unlawfully and forcibly takes another's personality. Jones & Nixon v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 116.

Confusion of goods.—When the goods of the husband subject to a levy are commingled with other goods not subject to levy, and which are the separate property of the wife, the levy may be made on the interest of the husband, in analogy to the remedy given against partners for individual debt. Brown v. Bacon, 63 T. 595.

Levy, how made, where there is a confusion of goods, see Evans Co. v. Reeves, 26 S. W. 219, 6 C. A. 254.

Third party entitled to possession.—If property is levied on by seizure and not by notice in the hands of a third party who is entitled to possession the creditor does not secure a lien. Sutton v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 932.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3741. [2350] [2293] On stock running at large.—A levy upon horses, mules, jacks, jennets, horned cattle or hogs running at large in a range, and which can not be herded and penned without great inconvenience and expense, may be made by designating by reasonable estimate the number of animals and describing them by their marks and brands, or either; such levy shall be made in the presence of two or more credible persons, and notice thereof shall be given in writing to the owner or his herder or agent, if residing within the county and known to the officer.

Running at large in the range.—"Running at large in the range" will apply to cattle in a pasture of four hundred thousand acres, and including parts of three counties, intersected with roads, although the entrances may be guarded. Construing this article and Acts 661, 2 S. W. 842, 15 Am. St. Rep. 570; Miller v. Middlebrook, 70 T. 615, 8 S. W. 317; Slayden v. Middlebrook, 70 T. 615, 8 S. W. 317; it is not restricted to cattle owned by the person at the time of the levy and sale. The levy and sale confers upon the purchaser the right to gather, pen and select the stock wherever found. A sale not made in compliance with the provisions of the statute confers no title. Gunter v. Cobb, 82 T. 698, 17 S. W. 848.

A range or herd of cattle described as "running at large on the range in Motley county" is sufficient, in the absence of showing the cattle ranged in adjoining counties.

Sparks v. McHugh (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1048.

Stock in inclosure.—A range or herd of cattle cannot be made upon stock in an inclosure containing 1200 acres of land. Copeland v. Lindsey, 17 C. A. 203, 43 S. W. 29.

This article does not authorize a range levy upon stock in an inclosure containing 1280 acres of land. Lindsey v. Cole, 91 T. 463, 44 S. W. 276.

In custodia legis after levy.—Horses levied on as they run in the range are in custodia legis, and the sheriff on removal of the property from the county may pursue and recover them. Miller v. Middlebrook, 70 T. 615, 8 S. W. 317; Slayden v. Middlebrook, 70 T. 615, 8 S. W. 317.

Debtor retains control.—After a levy the owner remains in control for the purpose of caring for the stock. Id. See Gunter v. Cobb, 17 S. W. 848, 82 T. 598; Davis v. Dallas Bank, 26 S. W. 292, 7 C. A. 41.

Cattle owned by defendant and others.—Effect of levy on cattle the property of defendant and others. Donald v. Carpenter, 27 S. W. 1063, 8 C. A. 321.

Art. 3742. [2351] [2294] Levy on shares of stock, etc.—A levy on the stock of any corporation or joint stock company is made by leaving a notice thereof with any officer of such company. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 102.]

Levy in general.—A levy of the execution not in compliance with this article is void. Wagner v. Marsh, 10 C. A. 565, 21 S. W. 691.

Requisites of a valid levy on personality belonging to a partnership, to pay the debt of an individual partner, or on personality in the hands of a trustee, stated. Sumner v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 826.

Amount of stock.—If by any proper means the officer holding an execution can ascertain the number of shares of stock owned by the debtor, he may levy the execution upon so many as may be proper to satisfy it in the manner directed by the statute. But if he neither possesses nor can acquire such knowledge, the creditor should resort to the process of garnishment, through which he may reach the shares of stock and get a sufficient description of them and then have them sold under execution. Keating v. Stone & Sons' Live-stock Co., 83 T. 457, 18 S. W. 797, 29 Am. St. Rep. 670. See Smith v. Traders' Nat. Bank, 74 T. 457, 12 S. W. 113.

Art. 3743. [2352] [2295] Interest of partner.—A levy upon the interest of a partner in partnership property is made by leaving a notice with one or more of the partners, or with a clerk of the partnership.

Article exclusive.—This article excludes any other mode of levying upon the interest of a partner in partnership property. At common law only the interest of the partner remaining after the debts were settled could be sold; this ordinarily could be ascertained only by an account through a bill in equity. St. Louis Foundry v. Publishing Co., 74 T. 651, 15 S. W. 842, 15 Am. St. Rep. 570; Middlebrook v. Zapp, 79 T. 321, 15 S. W. 258. See same case, 73 T. 29, 10 S. W. 732; Claflin v. Pfeiffer, 76 T. 469, 15 S. W. 483.

Sufficiency of levy.—When an execution against the individuals composing a mercantile firm is levied on certain lots as the property of the firm, and a sheriff's deed conveys to the purchaser the estate, etc., of the firm, the interest or estate of an individual member of the firm will not pass by the sale. Rogers v. Bradford, 56 T. 630.

Where goods are conveyed by a partnership, to be applied to the payment of debts, the interest of the firm is subject to legal process at the suit of other creditors, to be executed in manner pointed out in the articles of partnership, but in ordinary cases of the sale of personal property, but the purchaser becomes the legal owner of whatever interest the execution debtor may have in the same, and he is left to ascertain and adjust the interest with the other partners and with the creditors of the partnership. Powell v. Jones, 3 App. C. C. § 258.

When the execution is levied upon partnership property the officer does not take possession of it. When the officer sells it under execution he does not deliver it to the purchaser, as in ordinary cases of the sale of personal property; but the purchaser becomes the legal owner of whatever interest the execution debtor may have in the same, and he is left to ascertain and adjust the interest with the other partners and with the creditors of the partnership. Powell v. Jones, 3 App. C. C. § 258.

When the execution was levied upon partnership property the officer does not take possession of it. When the officer sells it under execution he does not deliver it to the purchaser, as in ordinary cases of the sale of personal property; but the purchaser becomes the legal owner of whatever interest the execution debtor may have in the same, and he is left to ascertain and adjust the interest with the other partners and with the creditors of the partnership. Powell v. Jones, 3 App. C. C. § 258.

merchandise held not to affect the validity of the levy as to the other property seized. Jones v. McKee Drug Co., 25 C. A. 294, 34 S. W. 552.

A levy made by seizing property instead of giving notice as required by this and Art. 3746, though one of the claimants was in possession as joint owner, was not void however irregularly made. Davis v. Jones, 32 C. A. 424, 75 S. W. 64.

A levy of a defendant in a business partnership cannot be made under the statute by leaving a notice with the defendant in execution, but it is necessary for the execution creditor and the partner or partners whose interest is not levied upon that the statute be construed as requiring such notice to be left with one or more of the partners other than the defendant in execution or with a clerk of the partnership. Adoms v. Wettermark, 36 C. A. 585, 52 S. W. 799.

Under this article actual seizure of the attached property is not contemplated. If levy is made upon the interest of the partner and a notice given as required by this article, it is sufficient. Seal v. Holcomb, 48 C. A. 330, 107 S. W. 917.

Partnership property subject to execution against partner.—A levy of an execution to satisfy the separate debt of one of a firm cannot be defeated by any subsequent agreement between the partners. Thompson v. Tinlin, 25 T. Sup. 86.

Partnership property may be sold under a judgment and execution against one of the partners. Halsey v. McMurphy, 23 S. W. 647, 86 T. 100.

A seizure and sale of partnership property under an execution against a member of the firm are wrongful acts for which the creditor is responsible in damages. Currie v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 147.

Levy of attachment.—Though an attachment for debt of one of the partners of a firm was voidable only and regular on its face, its levy on partnership property, in a manner other than that prescribed by this article, was wrongful. First State Bank of Hamilton v. Jolvency & Nixon (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 671.

The levy of an attachment upon the interest of a partner in partnership property must be made by leaving notice with one or more of the partners, or with the clerk of the partnership, or it is void. Id.

Partnership debts.—Partnership debts are entitled to priority of payment out of the partnership effects before the individual debts of one of the firm. Converse v. McKee, 14 T. 30; Rogers v. Nichols, 20 T. 719; De Forest v. Miller, 42 T. 34; Longcope v. Bruce, 44 T. 454; Bradford v. Johnson, 44 T. 581; Weaver v. Ashcroft, 50 T. 427; Thompson v. Tinlin, 25 T. Sup. 66. See, also, Grant v. Williams, 1 App. C. C. § 368; Schley v. Hale, 1 App. C. C. § 930.

Partnership property in hands of trustee.—A levy upon and seizure of partnership property in the hands of a trustee for the payment of debts, the execution being against one of the partners, is unlawful; and the trustee is entitled to an injunction to compel a restoration of the property, upon a showing that the remainder of the stock would be greatly depreciated in value by the seizure and the trust estate thereby greatly damaged. Art. 3744; In re Tinlin, 25 T. Sup. 66. See, also, Grant v. Williams, 1 App. C. C. § 368; Schley v. Hale, 1 App. C. C. § 930.

Art. 3744. [2353] [2296] Goods pledged or mortgaged.—Goods and chattels pledged, assigned or mortgaged as security for any debt or contract, may be levied upon and sold on execution against the person making the pledge, assignment, or mortgage subject thereto; and the purchaser shall be entitled to the possession when it is held by the pledgee, assignee or mortgagee, on complying with the conditions of the pledge, assignment or mortgage. [R. S. 1879, 2296.]

A purchaser at execution sale against the mortgagor in possession has a superior title and right of possession, but subject to the equitable rights of the mortgagee. Silliman v. Gammage, 55 T. 365.

Remedies of mortgagee or pledgee.—Where property in possession of a mortgagee or pledgee is seized by the sheriff, and the pledgee’s possession is disturbed, he is entitled to the statutory remedy to try the right to the property. Osborne v. Koenigheim, 57 T. 91; Erwin v. Blanks, 50 T. 863; Garrity v. Thompson, 64 T. 857.

Trial of the right of property.—See Art. 7791.

Sufficiency of levy.—See notes under Art. 3743.

Property subject to execution.—See notes under Art. 3746.

Art. 3745. [2354] [2297] Shares of stock may be sold.—Shares of stock in any joint stock or incorporated company may be sold on execution against the person owning such stock. [Act March 13, 1875, p. 102.]

Interest subject to garnishment.—See notes under Art. 3742.

Grounds for Injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3746. [2355] [2298] Duty of officer as to property in his hands.—The officer shall keep securely all personal property levied on by him for which no delivery bond has been given; and, if any injury or loss should result to any party interested by his negligence, he and his sureties shall be liable to pay the value of the property so lost or the amount of injury sustained, and ten per cent thereon, to be recovered by the party injured on motion, three days' notice being given in the court from which the execution issued. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3782.]

Satisfaction presumed from levy, when.—The levy of an execution on personal property is, as a general rule, prima facie evidence of the satisfaction of the execution; but this presumption does not arise when possession remains with the defendant in execution. Cravens v. Wilson, 48 T. 324; Garner v. Cuttler, 28 T. 175; Cornelius v. Burford, 28 T. 203, 91 Am. Dec. 309; Hellbroner v. Douglas, 46 T. 402.

Sale of personality before possession.—A sale of personal property not present at the time of the levy and sale, or in some way under the control of the officer, is void, except in those cases where it is otherwise expressly provided by statute. Brown v. Lane, 19 T. 203. See Arts. 3741-3744.

Trial of right of property.—An officer who has surrendered personal property to a claimant cannot, before the trial, return the bond to the maker and receive the property. Durst v. Padgett, 24 S. W. 666, 5 C. A. 304.

Art. 3747. [2356] [2299] Expenses for keeping property.—The officer shall be authorized to retain out of the proceeds of personal property sold upon execution all reasonable expenses incurred by him in making the levy and keeping the property. [Id.]

Compensation for caring for live stock.—In view of Arts. 2000 and 7101, held, a court might properly allow a sheriff compensation in a proceeding against him to recover money collected by him under an order of sale, in which the sheriff filed an answer, claiming compensation for taking care of live stock levied on, which was equivalent to a motion to retain costs. Coleman Nat. Bank v. Futch (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 957.

Art. 3748. [2357] [2300] Defendant may give delivery bond and keep property.—Any personal property taken in execution may be returned to the defendant by the officer upon the delivery by the defendant to him of a bond, payable to the plaintiff, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer, to the effect that the property shall be delivered to the officer at the time and place named in the bond, to be sold according to law, or for the payment to the officer of a fair value thereof, which shall be stated in the bond. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3778.]

Privilege to defendant only.—The privilege of retaining possession is given to the defendant only. Harris v. Shackleford, 6 T. 133.

Lien released by acceptance of bond.—Whatever lien was created by the levy, was released by the acceptance of the delivery bond, unless the property was afterwards voluntarily delivered to the officer to be sold under the original levy. Webb v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 95.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3749. [2358] [2301] Property may be sold by defendant.—Where property has been relievied, as provided in the preceding article, the defendant may sell or dispose of the same, paying the officer the stipulated value thereof.

Art. 3750. [2359] [2302] Forfeited delivery bond.—In case of the non-delivery of the property according to the terms of the bond, and non-payment of the value thereof, the officer shall forthwith return the bond, indorsed, "forfeited," to the clerk of the court from which execution issued; whereupon, if the judgment remain unsatisfied in whole or in part, the clerk shall issue execution against the principal debtor and the sureties on the bond for the amount due, not exceeding the stipulated value of the property, upon which execution no delivery bond shall be taken, which fact shall be indorsed by the clerk on the execution. [Id. P. D. 3779.]

Original judgment.—The statutory judgment against the sureties on a forfeited bond does not discharge the original judgment. Cole v. Robertson, 6 T. 356, 55 Am. Dec. 784.

Presumption as to return.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Effect of forfeiture.—The forfeiture of a bond operates as a judgment (Smith v. Basinger, 12 T. 227; Burton v. Miller, 14 T. 299), which cannot be set aside except by direct proceedings for that purpose (Testard v. Nellison, 30 T. 139).

Art. 3751. [2360] [2303] Real property sold, how.—Real property taken by virtue of any execution shall be sold at public auction, at the court house door of the county, on the first Tuesday of the month, between the hours of ten o'clock, a. m. and four o'clock p. m. [Id. P. D. 3776.]

Marion county.—By the act of January 25, 1875, the sale of property under legal process and deeds of trust in Marion county is required to be made at the northeast corner corner of Austin and Walnut streets, in the city of Jefferson. Sp. Laws 14th Leg., S. S., p. 6. This was printed in April 3, 1833 (15th Leg., p. 3.)

Sale after return day.—A sale of land after return day of execution is void. Hester v. Duprey, 46 T. 652; Mitchell v. Ireland, 54 T. 501; Cain v. Woodward, 74 T. 549, 12 S. V. 319; Terry v. Cutler, 23 S. W. 539, 4 C. A. 570.

Tuesday, a legal holiday.—Sales may be made on Tuesday, although it is a legal holiday. Crabtree v. Whiteselle, 65 T. 111.

Sheriff cannot sell land lying without county.—A sheriff has no power to sell lands lying without the limits of his own county. When the land lies partly in his own and partly in another county, his sale is valid as to so much of the land as is within his county, and void as to the remainder. Alred v. Montague, 26 T. 732, 34 Am. Dec. 603.

Judgment ordering land of one county sold in another.—Where a judgment in partition orders sale of two tracts of land situated in two counties to be made in one county and sale is made thereunder, neither the judgment nor sale can be collaterally attacked on this account, though the statutes require land to be sold under execution in the county wherein situated. It is the judgment which protects the sale from collateral attack. Menard v. MacDonald, 52 C. A. 637, 116 S. W. 64, 65.

Art. 3752. [2361] [2304] Sale of lands, etc., elsewhere than at court house door.—Where by law the public sales of lands in any county are directed to be made at any other place than the court house door, the sales herein provided to be made at the court house door shall be made at the place designated by such law.

Art. 3753. [2362] [2305] Lots in a city or town, how sold.—If real property situated in any town or city, taken in execution, consist of several lots, tracts or parcels, each shall be offered separately, unless the same be not susceptible of a separate sale by reason of the character of the improvements thereon.

Application.—This article applies to an order of sale. Moore v. Perry, 13 C. A. 204, 36 S. W. 828.

The above statute relates to the manner of sale and not to the form of judgment. Glasscock v. Price (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 415.

Effect of noncompliance.—In the absence of any claim that property sold on execution was sacrificed, that the return on an execution fails to show that lots were sold separately is immaterial. Wilson v. Swasey (Sup.) 20 S. W. 48.

Sale of separate and detached parcels of land en masse held not to invalidate sale. New England Loan & Trust Co. v. Avery (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 673.

Four lots were sold in bulk worth $3,000 for only $375. The proof showed that the two unimproved lots were worth more than the judgment. The sale was properly set aside by the court. Moore v. Perry (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 878.

The fact that defendants were cited by publication and a number of lots were sold at an execution sale in bulk, as directly prohibited by this article, and no notice was given of the sale, as required by Art. 3757, taken in connection with gross inadequacy of price, are a sufficient basis for cancellation of the sale. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 573.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.

Art. 3754. [2363] [2306] Lands not in a city, etc., sold in lots, when.—When lands not situated in any town or city are taken in execution, the defendant in such writ in whom the legal or equitable title to such land may be vested, shall have the right to present to the officer holding such execution, at any time before the sale so as not to delay the same being made as advertised, a plat of said land as actually surveyed, in lots of not less than fifty acres, by the county surveyor of the county wherein said premises are situated. The plat shall be accompanied by the field-notes of each lot as numbered, with the certificate of the county surveyor, that the same are correct, and the defendant shall have the right to designate the order in which the lots shall be sold. [Act Feb. 22, 1875, p. 50.]

Subdivision and sale in parcels.—A levy of execution on 200 acres off the south end of 800 acres held to be sufficient. Turner v. Crane, 19 C. A. 389, 47 S. W. 822.

The levy being upon land, a party can protect himself against an excessive levy by having the land subdivided and sold in small tracts. Ellis v. Harrison, 54 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 986.

Property not subject to execution.—See Art. 3738.
Art. 3755. [2364] [2307] Sale of lots shall cease, when.—When a sufficient number of such lots are sold to satisfy the amount due on the execution, the sale shall cease at the request of the defendant. [Id.]

Art. 3756. [2365] [2308] Expenses of selling lots, how paid.—The expenses of the survey and all other expenses attending the sale of said land in lots, as hereinbefore provided, shall be paid by the defendant, and shall in no case constitute any additional cost in said case. [Id.]

Art. 3757. [2366] [2309] Notice of sale of real estate.—The time and place of making sale of real estate under execution, order of sale, or venditioni exponas, shall be advertised by the officer by having the notice thereof published in the English language once a week for three consecutive weeks preceding such sale, in some newspaper published in said county. The first of said publications shall appear not less than twenty days immediately preceding the day of sale. Said notice shall contain a statement of the authority by virtue of which the sale is to be made, the time of levy, and the time and place of sale; it shall also contain a brief description of the property to be sold, and shall give the number of acres, original survey, locality in the county, and the name by which the land is most generally known, but it shall not be necessary for it to contain field-notes. Publishers of newspapers shall receive for publishing said sales fifty cents per square for the first insertion and thirty cents per square for subsequent insertions, to be taxed and paid as other costs; for such publication, ten lines shall constitute a square, and the body of no such advertisements shall be printed in larger type than brevier; provided, that no fee for advertising any property in a newspaper under the provisions of this article shall exceed the sum of five dollars. If there be no newspapers published in the county, or none the publisher of which will publish the notice of sale for the compensation herein fixed, the officer shall then post such notice in writing in three public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court house door of such county, for at least twenty days successively next before the day of sale. The officer making the levy shall give the defendant or his attorney written notice of such sale, either in person or by mail, which notice shall substantially conform to the foregoing requirements. But nothing herein shall affect the method of advertising land under the powers conferred by any deed of trust or other contract lien. [Acts 1895, p. 168. Acts 1842, p. 66. Acts 1903, p. 104.]

In general.—When a notice of a judicial sale has not been properly given, if objection be made by defendant in execution without unnecessary delay, the sale may be set aside; if not made in reasonable time, it will be considered as waived. In a collateral proceeding it is not essential to the validity of an execution sale that there should have been an advertisement of the property; though if the irregularity is brought about by the fraudulent collusion of the purchaser, and the property sold for a grossly inadequate price, the sale may be avoided as to such vendee and those claiming under him with notice. Construing Art. 3769, held, that it was not the intention of the legislature that sales of property under execution should be void on account of mere irregularities in advertising or in failing to advertise such property, but it was intended that the injured party should seek redress from the officer, and this in consideration of the public policy that execution sales be sustained. Morris v. Hastings, 70 T. 25, 7 S. W. 645, 9 Am. St. Rep. 570.

A notice of sale in conformity with this article is sufficient. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Interior Land & Immigration Co., 14 C. A. 301, 37 S. W. 447.

The statute of 1886 governing sales under execution is brought forward in the Revised Statutes as this article. Marston v. Yaites (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 665.

This article supersedes the law of judicial sales in force at the date of the passage of Art. 3769. Fischer v. Simon, 95 T. 324, 66 S. W. 884.

Notice to defendant—Necessity and sufficiency.—An execution sale will be set aside if the defendant is not served with notice as the statute requires, where the defendant gave notice at the sale of such irregularity and the property sold for only two-fifths of its value. Leeper v. O'Donohue, 18 C. A. 531, 46 S. W. 327.

The sale made under execution for taxes will be set aside upon the showing that the sheriff failed to serve notice on the owner and that the property was worth $2,600 and sold only for $151.00 and that there was a portion of the property on which no buildings were situated, which, if sold, would have satisfied the judgment. Bean v. City of Brownwood, 81 T. 884, 45 S. W. 897.

A statute requiring sales under deeds of trust to be made on a certain day of the month prescribed, unless the deed executed be referred to a land for sale for sale "at any time" after default. Thompson v. Cobb, 95 T. 140, 65 S. W. 1030, 93 Am. St. Rep. 23.

Notice of the sale cannot be served upon an attorney appointed by the court to represent defendant cited by publication in a suit for taxes. Crosby v. Bannowsky, 95 T. 449, 68 S. W. 48.

The posting in the United States mail of a properly addressed and stamped notice is sufficient, whether the notice is received or not. Rogers v. Moore (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 115.

This article as amended by the twenty-eighth legislature requires the levying officer under execution or order of sale to give defendant or his attorney written notice of the sale, either in person or by mail, and the mailing of a notice of a sale under a tax lien is sent to the party does not require it. To require notice to see that the mailed notice is received is the same as requiring personal notice which the law does not demand. Rogers v. Moore, 100 T. 220, 97 S. W. 685.

Notice that a judgment existed, and that the same would be enforced by a sale of real estate if not paid, was not equivalent to the statutory notice required to be given to the defendant in execution that land levied on had been actually advertised for sale. Snouffer v. Heisig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

That a sale of real estate on execution failed to send notice by mail to the judgment debtor though knowing her address did not raise a conclusive presumption that such omission was the cause of a sale for a grossly inadequate price; and hence an instruction assuming that the inadequacy was produced by the irregularity, unless rebutted, was not throwing the burden of rebutting such prima facie presumption on the defendant, was correct. id.

An execution sale for an inadequate price held invalid where the constable holding the sale informed the owners of the land that the advertisement would be withdrawn and the sale discontinued. Guy v. Edmondson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 615.

The first publication of an execution sale of land should be full 30 days before the sale; the date of publication not being counted. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 513.

Length of notice.—Where a deed of trust requires 10 days' notice of sale, a sale made on the 18th pursuant to a notice published on the 8th is void. Lorch v. Hill, 2 C. A. 421, 21 S. W. 183.

Setting aside sale—Defects in or want of notice.—In an action to set aside an execution sale on the ground that the constable among others that the sale would not pass to evidence, that the defendant did not know of such statement held properly excluded. Guy v. Edmondson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 610.

A sheriff's deed will not be set aside on collateral attack for want of notice of the sale, in the absence of a showing that the irregularity was caused by the fraud or collusion of the purchaser, or that the property sold for a grossly inadequate price. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

Defects combined with inadequacy of price.—Real estate of the value of $1,200 was sold for the sum of $35 under an execution on a judgment for $566, with foreclosure of vendor's lien. Before the receipt of the amount of the bid by the sheriff and delivery of the deed, the plaintiff in the execution enjoined the sheriff from executing a deed on account of the gross inadequacy of price and that the execution had been issued by mistake and he was not present at the sale, the defendant in execution being insolvent. Hughes v. Duncan, 60 T. 72.

A sale for a grossly inadequate price, made without the knowledge of the defendant in execution, will be set aside. Schmidt v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 228; Martin v. Anderson, 23 S. W. 280, 4 C. A. 111. See Driscoll v. Morris, 21 S. W. 629, 2 C. A. 603.

The mere showing of 28 days' notice was not enough as a sale of the property sold for two-fifths of its value. Leeper v. O'Donohue, 18 C. A. 531, 45 S. W. 327.

In a suit to set aside a sheriff's deed, pursuant to a sale of real estate on execution, evidence held not to justify submission to the jury of the question whether the sheriff's failure to send notice of the sale to the judgment debtor contributed to the inadequacy of the price for which the property was sold. Snouffer v. Heisig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

At the time an execution sale was advertised to be made, there were two newspapers published in the county, either of which would have published the notice for the statutory fee, but the only advertisement of the sale that was made was by posted notices. There were three tracts of land sold, but they were not offered nor sold separately. The interest of the judgment debtor in the land was worth $1,800. The judgment creditor bid in the land for $15, paying a part of that amount as the cost of executing the writ and credited the balance on the judgment. After the sale had been advertised, the constable informed the agent of the owner of the land that the advertisement would be withdrawn and the property would not be sold, and this information was repeated to the owner on the day before the sale, and, relying thereon, no one interested in the land was represented at the sale. Held, that the jury in an action to set aside the execution sale and cancel the constable's deed were justified in finding that the sale should be set aside. Guy v. Edmondson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 615.

The fact that defendants were cited by publication and a number of lots were sold at an execution sale in bulk, as directly prohibited by Art. 3753, and no notice was given of the sale, as required by this article, taken in connection with gross inadequacy of price, are a sufficient basis for cancellation of the sale. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 513.

Excuse for failure to sue.—A party living out of the state and served by publication and having no legal notice of a sale under execution was excused from instituting a suit to have it set aside until several years later. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 513.

Grounds for injunction.—See notes under Title 69.
Art. 3758. [2368] [2310] “Court house door” defined.—By the “court house door” of a county is meant either of the principal entrances to the house provided by the proper authority for the holding of the district court; and where, from any cause, there is no such house, the door of the house where the district court was last held in that county shall be deemed to be the court house door. Where the court house, or house used by the court, has been destroyed by fire or other cause, and another has not been designated by the proper authority, the place where such house stood shall be deemed to be the court house door.

Notice posted near door sufficient.—It would seem that a notice posted near the door and in immediate view of it fully meets the purpose of the law. Howard v. Fulton, 79 T. 231, 14 S. W. 1061.

Sale not at court house door—Effect.—A sale under a deed of trust which required it to be made at the door of the court house of M. county, if made at any other place is void. Boone v. Miller, 85 T. 74, 23 S. W. 574.

Art. 3759. [2369] [2310a] Real estate sales under deeds of trust, how made.—All sales of real estate made in this state under powers conferred by any deed of trust or other contract lien shall be made in the county in which such real estate is situated. Notice shall be given as now required in judicial sales; and such sales may be made at public vendue, between the hours of ten o’clock a. m. and four o’clock p. m. of the first Tuesday in any month; provided, that, when such real estate is situated in an unorganized county, such sale shall be made in the county to which such unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes, and, where such real estate is situated in two or more counties, the sale may be made in any county where any part of the real estate is situated, after notice as required in judicial sales has been given in every county in which any part of such real estate is situated. 1. Historical.—The act of 1889 providing that real estate sales made under powers conferred by deeds of trust should be in the county in which the lands are situated, has no application to a deed of trust executed before the act was passed. Chandler v. Peters (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 877.

The law in regard to giving notice of sales under trust deeds has not been changed or amended since it was passed in 1889, and it has been brought forward into the Revised Statutes as this article. Swain v. Mitchell, 27 C. A. 62, 66 S. W. 62.

The act of 1889 prescribing mode of making sales under trust deeds is brought forward in the Revised Statutes as this article. Marston v. Yates (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 888.

The language of this statute means that such notice shall be given as was required at the time the act of 1889 went into effect. 1d.

The article applicable to judicial sales in force at the date of the passage of this article has been repealed, and is superseded by Art. 3757. Fischer v. Simson, 95 T. 234, 66 S. W. 884.

The act adopting the Revised Statutes in 1895 (Final Title, § 19), and also the act adopting the Revised Statutes in 1911 (Final Title, § 16), provided that the provisions of the Revised Statutes, so far as they are substantially the same as the statutes in force at the time when the Revised Statutes shall go into effect shall be construed as continuing thereto, and not as new enactments. The Revised Statutes of 1911 continued as Art. 3759 article 2369 of the Revised Statutes of 1895. In its exact language. Held, that a sale by a trustee in a deed of trust made in 1911 is to be governed by the act of 1889 rather than by a subsequent statute requiring service of notice on the defendant in execution, and hence no service on the mortgagee is necessary, especially in view of Art. 3757. Cobertt v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 885.

2. Trust deeds which may be foreclosed.—If a deed describe the note secured so sufficiently that it may be identified by the rejection of erroneous recitals, the trustee may enforce the deed in the manner prescribed therein without first reforming the description in equity. Thompson v. Cobb, 95 T. 140, 66 S. W. 1099, 93 Am. St. Rep. 829.
3. Nature and form of remedy.—The fact that a trust deed did not authorize the trustee to sell a property until both principal and interest had matured held not to prevent the mortgagee from foreclosing by suit. Warren v. Harrold, 92 T. 417, 49 S. W. 364.

A party cannot foreclose a deed of trust and also have a sale made by the trustee. Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 989.

4. Power as authority for sale in general.—A trustee with power to sell can act thereunder so long as any part of the secured debt remains unpaid. Groesbeck v. Crow, 86 T. 206, 29 S. W. 49.

Provisions in a trust deed held to make a sale and conveyance by the trustee proof of performance of all prerequisites to exercise of the power of sale. McCreary v. Reliance Lumber Co., 16 C. A. 45, 41 S. W. 485.

In the absence of statute, held, that the court had no power to change the terms of a mortgage relating to maturity and sale. Harrold v. Warren (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 687.

Deed of trust to secure debt having provided that recitations in any deed by trustee under power of will should be prima facie evidence of the truth thereof, recital of non-payment of debt is prima facie evidence. Allen v. Courtney, 24 C. A. 85, 58 S. W. 200.

Under the provisions of a deed of trust to secure a note, a recital in the deed executed thereunder by the trustee that the request to sell was made by the holder of the note held prima facie true. Swain v. Mitchell, 27 C. A. 62, 66 S. W. 61.

In selling under a trust deed, the trustee must strictly follow the terms of the deed, and the details prescribed as to the manner of the sale must be literally pursued. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 257.

A provision in a deed of trust for foreclosure by the trustee held only to authorize a request for foreclosure by the holder of the notes secured. Irion v. Yell (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 69.

A trustee must strictly follow the provisions of the trust deed in making a sale thereunder. McCollom v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1030.

A trustee in a deed of trust, with power to sell, held authorized to act under the power, so long as any sum is due on the debt secured thereby. Word v. Coley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 287.

The provisions of a trust deed authorizing a sale of the property of the grantor must be strictly complied with in all their details, though such details may seem unimportant and frivolous. Michael v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 468.

5. Revocation or suspension of power.—A partner's death does not defeat the power of sale in a trust deed to partnership land. Barnett v. Houston, 18 C. A. 134, 44 S. W. 685.

Power to sell under a trust deed held not affected by the death of the owner, where the time in which administration might have been taken had not expired. Silverman v. Mitchell, 19 C. A. 402, 47 S. W. 464.

Power to sell under a trust deed held not revoked by death of the grantor, but exercisable after the expiration of four years from his death. Gillaspie v. Murray, 27 C. A. 650, 66 S. W. 263.

A power to sell contained in a deed of trust to secure a debt is revoked by the death of the grantor, followed by administration of his estate. Markham v. Wortham (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 341.

Power of sale in deed of trust held revoked by death of one to whom was conveyed an interest in the land subject to payment of part of secured debt. Whitmire v. May, 29 C. A. 244, 69 S. W. 100.

Death of the owner of land subject to a deed of trust held to revoke the power of sale contained in the deed, so that the land could be applied to the debt only by proceedings in the administration of decedent's estate. Whitmire v. May, 50 T. 347, 72 S. W. 375.

Power of sale in trust deed held revoked by death of grantor, and sale thereunder void, provided that death of grantor should not affect the same. Texas Loan Agency v. Dingee, 33 C. A. 115, 75 S. W. 866.

A power of sale in a trust deed is revoked by the death of the holder of the equity of redemption in the land subject thereto, pending administration of his estate by an independent executor. Williams v. Armistead, 41 C. A. 35, 90 S. W. 326.

A power of sale in a trust deed held revoked by the death of a purchaser of the premises. Taylor v. Williams (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 827.

A power of sale in a deed of trust is not revoked by the death of the mortgagor after conveyance to a third person. Taylor v. Williams, 101 T. 388, 106 S. W. 815; Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 989.

A sale under a power in a deed of trust after the death of the grantor held voidable when made before administration is begun, and valid provided no administration is begun within the statutory time. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

The power of sale given in a mortgage or deed of trust is a power coupled with an interest, and continues in force and survives the death of the mortgagor. Wiener v. Zweib, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.

The power of sale given in a mortgage is a valuable right acquired by contract, independent of any mortgagee, and cannot be impaired by any subsequent act of the mortgagor with regard to the property. Hampshire v. Groesbeeck (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 666.

6. Right to foreclose.—In a suit to enjoin the foreclosure of a trust deed, that the land was previously sold held not to bar the execution of the trust, it appearing that the sale was void. Williams v. Armistead, 41 C. A. 35, 90 S. W. 926.

Evidence held to show one of two notices of a sale by a deed of trust had waived his right to enforce his lien so as to render sufficient a request to the trustee to sell made by the holder of the other note only. Hampshire v. Groesbeeck (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 666.
It was no excuse for the failure of a trustee in a deed of trust to strictly observe conditions imposed by the subscribers, that compliance had become impossible by payment of the note secured by the deed. Irion v. Yell (Cliv. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

7. Rights of junior incumbrancers.—The right of a mortgagee to redeem from the holder of senior equities held not to arise until his purchase of the equity of redemption under a sale under his deed of trust. Gamble v. Martin (Cliv. App.) 125 S. W. 386.

Where property was sold under a prior deed of trust, a subsequent mortgagee could not redeem. Hampshire v. Greesves (Cliv. App.) 130 S. W. 1065.

8. Authority to execute power and execution of power in general.—The trustee named in a trust deed held to have authority, even as against the beneficiary, to declare the mortgage due, and make the purchaser. Edinburgh American Land Mortg. Co. v. Briggs (Cliv. App.) 41 S. W. 1036.

Where a trust deed to a guardian of certain minor heirs empowered him to sell, such power did not pass to his successor as guardian. Gillisv. Murray, 27 C. A. 588, 66 S. W. 252.

A deed by a substituted trustee under a deed of trust improperly excluded because the sale was under an advertisement by the original trustee. Gamble v. Martin (Cliv. App.) 129 S. W. 336.

A substituted trustee under a deed of trust, having been appointed independent executor of the beneficiary, had no further authority to act as trustee in foreclosure proceedings. Irion v. Yell (Cliv. App.) 122 S. W. 69.

It is the duty of a trustee under a deed of trust to inform a beneficiary of an intended sale. Jones v. Lynch (Cliv. App.) 137 S. W. 395.

Evidence held to show a valid sale under a trust deed by a duly authorized substitute trustee. Edlund v. Jones (Cliv. App.) 141 S. W. 1030.

The trustee named in a mortgage deed of trust becomes the special agent of both parties. Hampshire v. Greesves, 104 T. 620, 143 S. W. 147.

9. — Substitute trustee.—Where trustee in deed given to secure notes dies before sale thereunder, on default the district court can appoint substitute trustee. Davis v. Converse (Cliv. App.) 46 S. W. 916.

On death of payee of notes secured by trust deed, and on death of the trustee, executors of the payee may sue for appointment of another trustee. Id.

That a trustee in a deed of trust had never accepted the appointment did not authorize the appointment of a substitute trustee, in the absence of refusal or disqualification of original trustee to foreclose. Bracken v. Bounds, 96 T. 200, 71 S. W. 547.

Where one has given a trust deed, and then sold the property to another, after which there was a foreclosing deed by a substitute trustee, his subsequent ratification of the appointment of the substitute trustee is ineffectual as against his vendee. Bemis v. Williams, 32 C. A. 933, 74 S. W. 332.

Where a trust deed, held, that a substitute trustee might not sell till the trustee had been requested and had failed to do so, or had become disqualified. Id.

Nonresident administratrix, as the legal holder of deed of trust on property of intestate in state, held to have the right to appoint a substitute trustee to sell the trust property, without having taken out letters of administration in the state. Peacock v. Cummings, 34 C. A. 431, 78 S. W. 1002.

Sale under deed of trust by substituted trustee held void. Davis v. Hughes, 35 C. A. 474, 106 S. W. 1161.

Sale by substitute trustee under deed of trust held valid, though no request was made on original trustee to make sale. Ward v. Forrester (Cliv. App.) 87 S. W. 751.

In a suit to cancel a sale under a deed of trust, the evidence held to warrant a finding that the substituted trustee was made by one other than the holder of the note. Wilder v. Moren, 40 C. A. 393, 89 S. W. 1087.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, the declination of a trustee in a deed of trust to act held to carry with it the idea that he had been requested to act. Wiener v. Woolf (Cliv. App.) 125 S. W. 599.

Stipulations in a trust deed as to the substitution of a trustee held valid. McCollum v. Jones (Cliv. App.) 141 S. W. 1080.

Appointment of a substituted trustee held in effect made by the holder of the deed, instead of by his attorney in fact. Michael v. Crawford (Cliv. App.) 150 S. W. 465.

The authority conferred in a deed of trust on the holder of a note to appoint a substituted trustee is not one of personal trust or confidence, so as to preclude a delegation thereof to the creditor's attorney in fact. Id.

Where the holder of a note secured by a deed of trust had in fact authorized an attorney to appoint a substituted trustee to sell property, though the power did not do so in terms, it was not essential that the authority be evidenced by a writing, and a subsequent written acknowledgment of authority and ratification of the exercise of the power was admissible as evidence of the fact. Id.

10. Time for exercise of power.—A sale by the trustee under power in a deed of trust pending administration of the estate of the deceased grantor is void. Harris v. Wilson (Cliv. App.) 40 S. W. 868.

A trust deed held not to authorize a sale until default both in principal and interest due at the maturity of the note is secured, and until a request to sell by its holder subsequent to maturity. Harrold v. Warren (Cliv. App.) 46 S. W. 657.

A trust deed, made and recorded more than 13 years prior to the time an act of sale under deed held not to apply to deeds executed before its enactment. Childs v. Hill, 20 C. A. 162, 49 S. W. 652.

A sale by the trustee at the request of the maker of a deed of trust after the debt secured by it had been paid held to pass the legal title. Montague County v. Meadows, 21 C. A. 256, 51 S. W. 556.

A power of sale in a mortgage cannot be exercised pending administration of maker's estate under an independent executor, even after the expiration of four years from his death. Swearingen v. Williams, 28 C. A. 559, 67 S. W. 1061.
Title 54) EXECUTION  Art. 3759

The mortgagee having exercised his option to declare all the notes due for default, and commenced foreclosure, the mortgagor cannot have it stopped by payment of what otherwise would have been due and costs to date. Lincoln v. Corbett, 31 C. A. 352, 72 S. W. 224.

The fact that notes secured by a deed of trust were given for purchase money held not to justify a sale under the deed, after the death of the grantee of the land, who had assumed the debt. Whitmore v. May, 96 T. 317, 72 S. W. 375.

A mortgagee can sell under a deed of trust on maturity of the debt. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 386.

11. Preliminary proceedings in general.—Where a deed of trust securing two notes authorized the trustee to sell the property upon the request of the holder of the notes, this did not authorize a sale by request of the holder of one of them; the other being unpaid while or in part. Hampshire v. Greaves (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 665.

12. Place of sale.—What a trust deed provides for sale at court house in a certain county, a sale at a court house in a different county is invalid. Beltei v. Dobbin (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 299.

A sale under a deed in a county other than that provided for in the deed held void. Chandler v. Peters (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 867.

Grantor in trust deed held estopped to claim that the sale was made in a wrong county, where he was present, and encouraged the sale. Id.

Where a trust deed only authorizes a sale of the property in a county other than that in which the land is situated, a sale thereunder in a county where it is situated is invalid. Galloway v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 180.

A deed of trust is not ineffectual because it provides for sale in county other than that in which the land lies. The statute should be read into the deed as a part thereof, and the power should be executed in the county in which the statute designates. Kerr v. Galloway, 94 T. 641, 64 S. W. 859, 860.

13. Time of sale.—A sale of land under a deed of trust is void, if made on a date other than the one stated in the deed. Galloway v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 860.

Words “within lawful hours,” in a deed of trust, held not to require sale on a day prescribed in a statute specifying the hours on such day when sales should be made. Thompson v. Cobb, 96 T. 140, 66 S. W. 1050, 93 Am. St. Rep. 829.

14. A trust deed of trust only required one notice of sale held not to affect its validity. Willis v. Sanger, 15 C. A. 646, 40 S. W. 229.

It is not necessary to give written notice to the debtor on a sale of real estate under a trust deed. Georghi v. Juergen (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 873.

This article does not prevent the parties to a trust deed from contracting for such additional notice as they think proper, as by requiring notice by advertising in a newspaper, though the act only required notice by posting in public places. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

Since this article provides that notice shall be given as required in judicial sales, held that, as no notice is required to be given to the defendant on a judicial sale of real estate, an instruction, in an action to set aside a conveyance pursuant to a foreclosure of the trust deed, directing a verdict for plaintiffs in case the jury found that the grantor in the deed was not notified of the sale, was properly refused. Morris v. Simons (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 809.

15. — Publication or other constructive notice.—Where a trust deed provided that notice of sale should be published for 20 days, a notice published for 19 days was insufficient. Childs v. Hill, 20 C. A. 162, 49 S. W. 653.

Foreclosure sale under a trust deed held valid, although the notices thereof were not posted by the substitute trustee himself. Walker v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 31.

A trustee in a trust deed, authorized to give notices of sale, may delegate the posting of notices to a subagent. Id.

A maker of a trust deed held to have made a foreclosure sale his own act, and to have waived any defects as to notices. Id.

A provision of a trust deed requiring notice of sale to be posted did not contemplate that the trustee should in person do the posting. Roe v. Davis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 960.

16. Sale in parcels.—Sale of lots as a whole under trust deed held no abuse of discretion, in the absence of evidence that a better price would have been obtained by a sale in parcels. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Dorenblaser, 30 C. A. 148, 69 S. W. 1019.

17. Order of offering for sale.—A trustee under a trust deed was not bound to first sell that part or parcel of the property in which the debt was secured by the deeds thereon from the mortgagor before foreclosure owned no interest, at least in the absence of request from such purchaser. McCollum v. Jones (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1030.

18. Persons who may purchase.—Purchaser of property assuming payment of two mortgages cannot purchase at foreclosure under the prior one, and claim as against the second. Beltei v. Dobbin (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 299.

Evidence held not to show that a son of the mortgagor purchased at foreclosure sale in the interest of the mortgagor, so as to cancel the debt. Morris v. Houseley (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 846.

A sale under a deed of trust given by plaintiff’s grantor, without her knowledge, held not to preclude her recovery of the land. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 931.

Heirs of a grantor held to have no right to question the validity of a sale under a trust deed made after the death of the grantor before any administration, but within the time when administration might be begun. Wiener v. Zwiebl, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.
Second mortgagee held not entitled to attack the validity of the foreclosure sale under, or pur due to, Walker v. Taylor (Clv. App.) 12 S. W. 311.

Inadequacy of price for which property covered by deed of trust was sold on foreclosure is insufficient in itself, without being supplemented by proof of bad faith, mistake, or undue advantage, to set aside the sale, Evans v. Erdman (Clv. App.) 155 S. W. 929.

Adequacy of price does not justify mortgagor's insanity as a sale made under foreclosure of a deed of trust, a sale was properly vacated where the land, which was worth from $2,500 to $3,000, was sold to the mortgagee for $101, subject to a $1,450 mortgage, James v. Chaney (Clv. App.) 164 S. W. 679.

24. Mortor in trust deed to remain in possession does not affect the right to enforce a power of sale. Dimmit County v. Oppenheimer (Clv. App.) 42 S. W. 1029.

21. Title and rights of purchaser.—Where a trust deed authorized sale by trustee on default, but not on default and of the same character, as in the deed, to show that the title passed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hearne (Clv. App.) 40 S. W. 50.

Evidence held sufficient to establish that the trustee in a trust deed had performed all requisites to a valid sale. McCreavy v. Reliance Lumber Co., 15 C. A. 46, 41 S. W. 485.

Deed of trust and title thereunder held to confer apparent title on purchasers, so that the conveyance of the legal title to innocent purchaser was a good defense to an action for recovery of the land. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 360, 84 S. W. 417.

Where defendant purchased certain property on foreclosure of a deed of trust, for himself and the other creditors secured by the deed, without paying any money, and thereafter repudiated the trust, it was not essential to plaintiffs' recovery that any tender should be made to defendant. Haywood v. Scarborough (Clv. App.) 102 S. W. 469.

A deed made without the notice required by the deed is of no effect. Meisner v. Taylor, 56 C. A. 137, 120 S. W. 1014.

Where a building did not become bound by a mortgage on the realty, it being not a fixture, the purchaser at the trustee's sale, acquired only the rights which the mortgagors had. Rice v. Finner (Clv. App.) 128 S. W. 85.

Bank purchasers property and assuming priority lien thereon held not to obtain any title as against a junior lien, by acquiring the debt secured by the prior lien and buying in at the trustee's sale on foreclosure. Hampshire v. Greeves (Clv. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

A sale under a power in a deed of trust after the death of the grantor, made before an administration was begun, but before the expiration of the time within which an administration might be begun, held effective to pass title to the purchaser, subject to a subsequent administration. Wiener v. Zwieb, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.

In a foreclosure action by a junior mortgagee in which a prior mortgagee was a party defendant, held, that a purchaser of title to the land acquired by sale under the prior lien might plead his title in bar of the right of the junior lienholder to foreclose. Hampshire v. Greeves, 104 T. 620, 143 S. W. 147.

The purchaser under a foreclosure sale in the exercise of a power of sale given in a mortgage takes the mortgagee's title divested of all incumbrances made since the creation of the power of sale. Id.

By a regular sale under a mortgage power of sale, the mortgagee and all persons claiming through or under him are chargeable with knowledge of an agreement of his vendor to discharge certain junior liens. Id.

22. Conveyance to purchaser.—A conveyance by a sheriff on foreclosure of a deed of trust held to pass all interest of the grantor in the tract described, notwithstanding the acreage was understated by mistake. Anderson v. Casey-Swasey Co. (Clv. App.) 130 S. W. 815.

A deed under a trust deed held not to convey title to the premises. Meisner v. Taylor, 56 C. A. 137, 120 S. W. 1014.

23. Proe-ceeds.—Where a sale of land under the terms of a trust deed is regularly made by the trustee, the trustor is not entitled to the benefits of another foreclosure. Davidson v. Jefferson (Clv. App.) 76 S. W. 766.

Unidentified proceeds of the sale of mortgaged property held not impressed with trust in favor of the mortgagees. Texas Moline Flow Co. v. Kingman Texas Implement Co., 32 C. A. 345, 80 S. W. 1048.

A payment of an indebtedness by the sale of mortgaged real property is an "involuntary payment," as to which the debtor has no right to make an application, under the rules governing voluntary payments. Blair v. Teel (Clv. App.) 163 S. W. 678.

On the death of a married woman's deed of trust of her real property given for a loan, part of which was paid over to her husband, and part of which was used for the benefit of her estate, held, that neither party, without the other's consent, could apply the proceeds first to the payment of either portion of the indebtedness, but that it must be applied in the order due from each party. Id.

Upon the sale of a tract upon which trust deeds were executed to secure notes held by a bank, held, that one who as to mortgagor was a surety on a note secured by a trust deed which was a second lien, but was a principal as to the bank, was entitled to have a part of the proceeds of the sale received by the bank credited to the payment of the note on which he was liable, after a note secured by a trust deed was paid, though he was not entitled to have two vendor's lien notes executed to the bank by the mortgagee for security for a judgment lien against the land credited upon his note. Abbott v. First Nat. Bank (Clv. App.) 155 S. W. 321.

A provision in a trust deed executed on lot[s] that it was security for future advances would permit the proceeds of the sale of the property upon which it also held a trust deed as a credit upon the note secured by the first-mentioned trust deed, as against a holder with a trust deed on such survey. 1d.

24. Fees and costs.—The sum of $50 is a reasonable compensation to a trustee for foreclosing a deed of trust given to secure a $4,000 note. Harris v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 311.

In the absence of a stipulation in a deed of trust as to expenses arising from its execution, the trustee is entitled to reasonable compensation. 1d.

The right of a trustee to compensation and to an allowance of attorney's fees on the foreclosure of the deed of trust held to rest on contract. Orient Trust Co. v. St. Louis Union Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 310.

If the mortgagee and the owner of the equity of redemption agreed that no trustee's fees should be allowed for the foreclosure proceedings, such fees should not be assessed against the owner of the equity of redemption. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

25. Operation and effect.—A valid sale by the trustee held not to satisfy the note and vendor's lien secured by the trust deed, and that plaintiff claiming under the grantor could not recover without payment of such balance. McCrea v. Relliance Lumber Co., 16 C. A. 45, 41 S. W. 485.

Sale under deed of trust held not to preclude the mortgagee's right to specific performance of the mortgagor's contract to convey. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 386.

A sale under a trust deed will cut off the equity of redemption of a junior lienholder who, without timely tender of the amount of the senior claim, files suit for foreclosure and adjustment of equities before the actual sale, but after the senior lienor's election to proceed by trustee's sale and after advertisement made. Tolleson v. Nobles (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 850.

26. Wrongful foreclosure.—One selling without authority from the owner land held in trust to secure a debt, is liable for the value of the land at the date of sale less the amount of the indebt[edness]; but if authorized to sell, is liable only for the amount actually received less such indebtedness. Ulman v. Devereux (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 472.

Where the court finds that the holder of the title to land as security for a debt due from the owner makes an unauthorized sale of the land, he is liable in damages for the value of the land at the date of sale, less the amount of the indebtedness. Ulman v. Devereux, 46 C. A. 499, 102 S. W. 1163.

Art. 3760. [2370] [2311] Sale of personal property.—Personal property taken in execution shall be sold on the premises where it is taken in execution, or at the court house door of the county, or at some other place if, owing to the nature of the property, it is more convenient to exhibit it to purchasers at such place. [Act Jan. 27, 1842. P. D. 3776.]

Art. 3761. [2371] [2312] Notice of sale of personal property.—Previous notice of the time and place of the sale of any personal property on execution shall be given for ten days successively, by posting up written or printed notices thereof in at least three public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court house door of the county and one at the place where the sale is to be made. [1d.]

In general.—If the judgment debtor has become the owner of property under Art. 3969, a valid levy of execution can only be made by seizure and not by merely giving notices. Hunst[ock] v. Rob[erts] (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675, 677.

Selling at place different from one named.—Where an officer sells personal property at a place different from the one named in the notice of sale, he becomes liable as a trespasser ab initio, although he may have paid over the proceeds of the execution. Mo[lett] v. Hodgens, 1 App. C. C. § 399.

Art. 3762. [2372] [2313] Personal property present at sale, except.—Personal property shall not be sold, unless the same be present and subject to the view of those attending the sale, when it is susceptible of being thus exhibited, except shares of stock in joint stock or incorporated companies, and in cases where the defendant in execution has merely an interest without right to the exclusive possession, in which case the interest of the defendant may be sold and conveyed without the presence or delivery of the property.

Art. 3763. [2373] [2314] Sale of stock running in range.—When a levy is made upon horses, mules, packs, jennets, horned cattle or hogs running at large in the range, under article 3741 of this title, it is not necessary that such stock, or any part thereof, should be present at the place of sale, and the purchaser at such sale is authorized to gather and pen such stock and select therefrom the number purchased by him.

Sale out of view.—The sale of an estray is illegal, when the estrayed animal sold is out of view of the bidders when sold. Floyd v. State (Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 691.

Art. 3764. [2374] [2315] When execution not satisfied.—When the property levied upon does not sell for enough to satisfy the execution, the officer shall proceed anew, as in the first instance, to make the residue.

Art. 3765. [2375] [2316] Conveyance to purchaser.—When a sale has been made and the terms thereof complied with, the officer shall execute and deliver to the purchaser a conveyance of all the right, title, interest and claim which the defendant in execution had in and to the property sold. [Id. P. D. 3795.]

Sheriff's deed.—The statute in regard to sheriff's deeds under execution provides that such deeds shall be for all the right, title, interest and claim which the defendant in execution had in and to the property sold. Ostrom v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 632.

Memorandum unnecessary.—No written memorandum is necessary to bind the sale. Lockridge v. Baldwin, 20 T. 393, 70 Am. Dec. 385.

Necesity.—A sheriff's deed is not necessary to pass title at a sheriff's sale of real estate. A valid judgment, execution and sale are sufficient for this purpose. But if a deed be made, and the recitals contained in it correspond with those in the return, they cannot be rebutted by collateral evidence in a collateral suit. Purchasers at a sheriff's sale have a remedy to correct a mistake by a direct proceeding brought in the court from which the execution issued, for the purpose of correcting or amending the return and to reform the deed. Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. 629, 4 S. W. 212.

The execution of a sheriff's deed is a ministerial act, and not essential to the validity of the sale made by him. Reeder v. Eldson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 750.

A judgment creditor held under the evidence to acquire no right to the property levied on. Wills v. Williams (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 601.

A judgment creditor held to acquire title at an execution sale though a deed from the sheriff was not executed. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Right to conveyance.—It is the duty of the purchaser to comply with the terms of the sale before he can demand a deed. Lockridge v. Baldwin, 20 T. 393, 70 Am. Dec. 386.

Recitals.—The recitals in a sheriff's deed that a particular interest in land had been levied on and sold will not conclude the purchaser at the sheriff's sale from showing, by the process under which the sale was made and the decree of foreclosure, that an interest other than that recited in the deed was actually offered for sale and sold, and that the purchaser became entitled to what he actually bought, although additional to that described in the deed as having been levied on. The recitals in a sheriff's deed are evidence of what was sold, but they are not conclusive. The sheriff's sale conveys to the purchaser whatever of title was subject to the sale as indicated in the decree of foreclosure and in the order of sale. Briscoe v. Bronaugh, 1 T. 333, 46 Am. Dec. 108; Lee v. Salinas, 15 T. 497; Tuttle v. Turner, 28 T. 773; Baird v. Trice, 51 T. 555; Rippeto v. Dwyer, 1 T. C. 498.

It is not necessary that either the execution or the execution should be recited in the sheriff's deed. And if there be an attempt to recite them, a mistake or misrecital will not impair the validity of the deed. Howard v. North, 5 T. 290, 51 Am. Dec. 769.

The recitals in the sheriff's deed will aid the description of the property in the return. Whitney v. Krapf, 27 S. W. 845, 8 C. A. 204.

A sheriff's deed not reciting in what county the land levied on was situated held sufficient when it recited that the levy was made by the sheriff of a certain county, and the sale was made therein. Turner v. Crane, 19 C. A. 392, 47 S. W. 823.

That the date of a judicial sale as stated in the sheriff's deed varies from the date stated in the return upon the order of sale does not render the sale void. Temple v. Branch Saw Co., 39 C. A. 606, 58 S. W. 442.

Where it appeared that the books, papers, and records of the justice's court had been lost, the recitation in defendant's deed by virtue of an execution sale, as to the judgment and execution, was sufficient to show the authority to sell the property under the execution. Smitherman v. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 623.

Title 54

Art. 3765

In a sheriff's deed, otherwise valid, reference is made to other well-known deeds for deeds required to are produced, and describe the land. Held, that such deed will convey title to the land so identified. Wright v. Lasiter, 71 T. 640, 10 S. W. 395.

The rule is well settled that less indulgence will be shown in favor of descriptions in deeds based on compulsory sales than applies to descriptions in deeds voluntarily executed by the owner. In compulsory sales under judicial process, if there is a patent ambiguity in the description of the land sold it cannot be aided by parol evidence, and the deed is void. See Aoy. v. Chaver, 202, 20 S. W. 1120.

A defective description of land in the levy and deed of the sheriff may be cured by a deed by the debtor to the purchaser as against subsequent creditors. Willis v. Nichols, 23 S. W. 1025, 5 C. A. 154.

A deed in execution and deed held sufficient. Watson v. McClane, 18 C. A. 212, 45 S. W. 176.

A sheriff's deed of a survey to different persons held not void because it described the several tracts only by the number of acres in each. Harris v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 781.

Description in a sheriff's deed held not to vitiate his levy. Turner v. Crane, 19 C. A. 869, 47 S. W. 822.

A sheriff's deed held to insufficiently describe the property. Edrington v. Hermann (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 936.

Description of land in sheriff's deed held insufficient. Edrington v. Hermann, 97 T. 123, 77 S. W. 408.

Where neither an execution levy nor the deed after sale particularly described the land, it was insufficient to convey title to the purchaser. Veatch v. Gray, 41 C. A. 145, 91 S. W. 324.

A deed executed by a sheriff, pursuant to a sale under an execution, is not void because of its failure to state that the land sold was located in the county. Reeder v. Eidson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 750.

A sheriff's deed does not require a more definite description than is necessary to the efficiency of a voluntary deed. Gallup v. Flood. 46 C. A. 644, 103 S. W. 425.

The rule that a description is sufficient if the land can be identified with the aid of extrinsic evidence applies to sales under execution. Anderson v. Casey-Swasey Co. (Civ. App,) 120 S. W. 918.

In trespasses to try title, constable's deed held not defective for want of a proper description of the property. Smitherman v. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 633.

A recital in a sheriff's deed, that the premises described therein, including 120 tracts, "were struck off to H. for the sum of $50, she being the highest bidder," etc., does not exclude the possibility that the tracts were sold separately. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

Execution.—The deed can be executed by a deputy sheriff who makes the levy and sale. Davis v. Rankin, 50 T. 279; Burrow v. Brown, 59 T. 457. A sheriff may amend his deed, even after he goes out of office. Fleming v. Powell, 2 T. 225. Title may be shown by valid judgment, execution and sale, payment of purchase-money, and facts necessary to entitle the purchaser to a deed. Fian­kle v. Madal, 57 T. 3, 57 S. W. 513; Higgins v. Bordages (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 352.

Title acquired by purchaser.—In derailing title under a sheriff's deed, a valid judgment and execution must be proven to support the deed. Wright v. Doherty, 50 T. 34; Critiswell v. Ragsdale, 18 T. 443; Walker v. Emerson, 20 T. 706, 78 Am. Dec. 207; Hart v. McDaniel, 61 T. 208.

A purchaser at an execution sale cannot acquire a better title than the judgment debtor has. Jones v. Powers, 65 T. 207.

The sheriff can convey by his deed only such property as was sold under execution, and he cannot cure defects in the description of the land by accurately describing it in his deed. Pfeiffer v. Lindsay, 66 T. 123, 1 S. W. 264.

The purchaser's title under a valid judgment, execution and sale becomes perfect upon the execution of the deed. If the return of the sheriff afterwards made is incorrect, and in contradiction of the deed, it cannot affect the purchaser's title already perfected. Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 453.

A sheriff's deed executed before the patent for the land sold was issued conveys no title in the absence of proof that at the time of the levy the land had been located. Watkins v. Hill, 2 C. A. 338, 31 S. W. 374.

A sheriff's deed to a headright certificate, which purported to convey all the rights and claim of the debtor therein, held not objectionable, as failing to convey anything. Harris v. Dunn (Civ. App,) 45 S. W. 781.

A purchaser at execution sale, to sustain his title, must show that the judgment debtor had title at the time of the sale. Thomas v. Morrison, 92 T. 323, 48 S. W. 500.

Sale of realty under execution is good only against interest of judgment debtor; and, if he has other property therefor, Barnes v. Krause (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 92.

When a purchaser of land on an execution sale had taken coal therefrom, prior there­to, under a claim of title by another deed, the claim for damages therefor is merged in the sheriff's deed. Suich v. Olson (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 568.

Where defendant has title to real estate at the time of the sale thereof under an execution against him, he cannot set up a title afterwards acquired as a defense to an action of trespass to try title by the execution purchaser. Bonner v. Ogilvie, 24 C. A. 237, 58 S. W. 1027.

After partition of community property on decree in divorce, purchaser at execution sale against husband acquires title only to tracts partitioned to the husband. Bryan v. Engleson, 26 C. A. 192, 62 S. W. 1072.

Where a judgment debtor owned an undivided half of 3,000 acres, part of a certain survey, an execution sale and sheriff's deed of all his "right, title, and interest in and to the same" are vacated with no title, though a few days after the sale the land was partitioned, and 2,235 acres allotted to him. Boyce v. Hornberger, 29 C. A. 237, 65 S. W. 701.

Where a deed by a purchaser at execution sale by its terms passes the legal title, and is recorded, the title given is, as against one claiming under a subsequent deed from the execution debtor, valid, though the grantee of the execution purchaser makes no claim to the land. Williamson v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 583.

As a general rule, title to property sold at judicial sale passes upon confirmation thereof and payment of the purchase money. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 578.

A title acquired by an execution defendant subsequent to the sale under the execution does not inure to the benefit of the purchaser. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Purchaser's equity of redemption held to pass on sale upon foreclosure of attachment by a creditor of the purchaser. Levy v. Pearsons (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 446.

Where a judgment for taxes was rendered against a purchaser of land subject to a vendor's lien, and the land was sold under such judgment, the purchaser acquired the vendor's interest only. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1670.

Possession of purchaser.—A purchaser under execution against a mortgagor cannot recover the premises from the mortgagee rightfully in possession, until the mortgage debt is paid. Murrell v. Kelly-Goode fellow Shoe Co., 18 C. A. 114, 44 S. W. 27.

Void execution held to give the purchaser no right to possession. Houston Ice & Bro, v. Strawton, 40 C. A. 378, 89 S. W. 1111.

Where a party suing for land claimed under an execution sale does not prove his title, but the defendant on cross-action has the land set aside, the mere fact that there were other parties claiming the property did not give plaintiff grounds for complaint. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 578.

Rights of purchaser from purchaser.—Bona fide purchasers in general, see notes under Art. 6524.

A plaintiff seeking to recover under a title acquired at execution sale must show that the land at the time of levy and sale was owned by the execution debtor. Ferryman v. Rayburn (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 915.

Where a sale on execution has been canceled by a judgment of a court having jurisdiction, a subsequent deed by the execution vendee passes no title. Aldridge v. Pardee, 24 C. A. 254, 40 S. W. 789.

The grantee of one who purchased land at an execution sale acting for the judgment creditor acquires no interest as against the judgment creditor, where the execution purchaser had no authority to sell. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Execution sale under dormant judgment.—See notes under Art. 3714.

Collateral attack.—If the recitals on the return of an execution correspond with those contained in the sheriff's deed as to the extent of the interest in land levied on and sold, parol evidence is not admissible in a collateral proceeding to correct or vary such recitals. Under such circumstances the party whose rights are prejudiced must seek relief in a direct proceeding brought to obtain it. (This case distinguished from Holmes v. Buckman, 214 S. W. 152.) Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. Nrs. 211. 5 S. W. 252.

Deed as evidence. In an action of trespass to try title, the defendant only pleading not guilty, a sheriff's deed offered by defendant, without a judgment and execution to support it, was properly excluded. Tudor v. Hodges, 71 T. 392, 9 S. W. 443.

Art. 3766. [2376] [2316a] Deeds to the state in usual form.—In all cases where property is purchased by the state, under article 357, the officer selling the same shall execute and deliver to the state a deed of conveyance to the same, as is prescribed for individuals in similar cases. [Acts 1879, p. 9.]

Art. 3767. [2377] [2317] Conveyance made after death of purchaser.—In case the purchaser, having complied with the terms of the sale, shall die before a conveyance shall have been executed to him, the officer shall convey the property sold to the purchaser, nevertheless, and the conveyance shall have the same effect as if it had been executed in the lifetime of the purchaser.

Art. 3768. [2378] [2318] Purchaser deemed innocent.—A purchaser at sale under execution shall be deemed to be an innocent purchaser without notice in all cases where he would be deemed to be such had the sale been made voluntarily by the defendant in person.

Bona fide purchaser in general.—A sale under execution upon a judgment erroneous but not void will be sustained where a stranger to the judgment is a purchaser. This rule does not apply to purchasers voluntarily made from a party to a suit. Harie v. Langdon, 60 T. 555; Treadway v. Eastburn, 57 T. 209; Mosley v. Gainer, 10 T. 393.

To a judgment buyer a bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration where he has paid less than the real value of the property, where but the price is grossly inadequate 2779.

An attorney who purchases at execution sale on a judgment in favor of his client cannot be called a bona fide purchaser, and the sale will be set aside in a direct proceeding for that purpose upon all additional grounds showing injustice or unfairness. McDavis v. Miller, 64 T. 381.

A purchaser at execution sale is deemed an innocent bona fide purchaser in all cases where he would be deemed to be such had the sale been made voluntarily by the defendant in person. An innocent purchaser from one who purchases with notice as full as that of the bidder for the parcel from whom he purchased. Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 452. The purchaser of property at an execution sale under a judgment which is void upon its face for want of service on the defendant acquires no title as against the original owner. Collins v. Miller, 64 T. 118.

A judgment creditor, who purchased the property of his debtor under execution and credited his bid on the debt, held not an innocent purchaser. Hirsch v. Howell (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 287.

The validity of a deed by a father to his children of property subject to a resulting trust in their favor held immaterial against a purchaser of such property on an execution against the father. Hicks v. Pogue, 33 C. A. 335, 76 S. W. 786.

A purchaser of land at an execution sale is acting either for himself or for the person to whom he causes the sheriff's deed to be made, the grantees in the sheriff's deed occupy the position of an ordinary purchaser at an execution sale, and takes his chances of getting title. Rosenthal & Debsberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

A purchaser of land at an execution sale, who does not make a valuable consideration for the same, and who, without knowledge of the real interest of the wife in the property, and that it had been acquired by her separately, would have acquired no title, and the fact that a lien on the land had previously been acquired by the record of the judgment would not affect the right of the wife to such land. Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 330.

A purchaser of land at an execution sale, under the apparent title to which is in the community, but which was paid for with the wife's separate means, is presumed to be the owner of the property, and the purchaser at execution sale under a valid judgment against him takes title, it is otherwise if it was purchased with the wife's separate property. The question of the rights of the purchaser at execution sale, held not to affect the right of the wife. Harris v. Selshmeier, 67 T. 355, 3 S. W. 367.

That an execution did not describe the judgment as to names of parties, etc.; that it appeared to have been issued as a first execution over a year from its rendition, would charge purchasers with notice of whatever appeared upon the face of the execution and might be developed by an examination of the judgment. Irvin v. Ferguson, 52 S. W. 831, 18 S. W. 876.

Land was acquired during coverture: afterwards the parties were divorced, the wife died, and the husband incurred debts, which were satisfied by a sale of the land under execution. Other than the recitals in the deed there was no evidence that the purchaser at the execution sale had notice of the wife's separate estate. Stevens v. Walsh, 66 T. 618.

Where at the time of a levy on land the creditor had no notice of a prior unrecorded judgment the sale is not defeated by the death of the creditor, the deed, though he had notice of it at the time of the sale. Blum v. Schwartz (Sup.) 20 S. W. 54.

The issuance of executions subsequent to the one under which the sale was made of land in litigation, to other counties, although fraudulent in attempting to hinder and delay other creditors, would not affect the title of the purchaser at execution sale having no notice of the facts constituting the fraud. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 65 T. 448, 21 S. W. 1034.

Purchaser of land at an execution sale with notice of equity in third person held to have bought subject thereto. Milby v. Regan, 16 C. A. 305, 41 S. W. 372.

Purchaser at execution sale held to acquire title as against one holding under unrecorded deed. West v. Loeb, 16 C. A. 399, 43 S. W. 612.

The sale of a wife's separate property at execution against the husband does not
The right of a cestui que trust held superior to those of an execution purchaser under a judgment against the trustee in whose name the property appeared as owner on the records. John B. Hood Camp Confederate Veterans v. De Cordova, 92 T. 202, 47 S. W. 622.

Title to land not derived through an execution sale, but through a subsequent purchase by the execution purchaser of the judgment debtor. Campbell v.antis, 21 C. A. 161, 51 S. W. 342.

Where real estate was the community property of the husband and wife, and the purchaser for a valuable consideration had no notice of the claims of the heirs of the wife therein, he took a title superior to that of such heirs. Smith v. Olson (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 568.

A judgment creditor, who purchased at an execution sale with notice that land was claimed by the debtor's wife as her separate property, held entitled to such interest in the land as constituted community property at the time of the sale. Hirsch v. Howell (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 887.

Purchasers at an execution sale against a husband, notified of a wife's title to the land sold, and referred to a deed, could not rely on mistake in deed and obtain a title superior to that of the wife. McCrory v. Lutz (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1094.

Owner of a lien notes held not estopped to set up his claim against an execution purchaser. Brotherton v. Anderson, 7 C. A. 587, 66 S. W. 63.

One purchasing land at an execution sale held to have constructive notice of vendor's lien, though the lien notes were not recorded. Id.

That an abstract of judgment was not recorded until after the judgment debtor had transferred certain land was of no avail to the transferee as against a purchaser at sale under the judgment, in the absence of any showing that the transfer was in good faith. Welnert v. Simmang, 29 C. A. 435, 63 S. W. 1011.

A failure to show good faith and notice of a purchaser at execution sale subsequent to deed by the debtor to his wife relieves those claiming through the wife from showing more than a vesting of title in her by the deed. Watts v. Bruce, 31 C. A. 347, 72 S. W. 258.

Where defendant purchased land from the purchaser at an execution sale, knowing that such sale had been set aside by the court, he cannot claim the land as an innocent purchaser. Day v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 426.

Possession of heir held referable to record title as heir, and not to unrecorded title as purchaser of heir's interest; and hence such possession by purchaser of unrecorded title. Sanger Bros. v. Collum (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 401.

Execution creditor, who becomes purchaser of realty, held to stand on footing of bona fide purchaser as against debtor's prior unrecorded deed. Id.

The rule relating to when a purchaser at execution sale may not be a bona fide purchaser held applicable only to a case where the purchaser claims to be a bona fide purchaser without notice of a prior conveyance. Clark v. Bell, 40 C. A. 39, 89 S. W. 38.

A purchaser at execution sale without notice of irregularities in the proceedings leading up to the sale is protected in his title if the judgment under which the sale is made be valid, and the execution and sheriff's deed be regular; purchasers without actual notice being charged only with notice of defects in the execution which appear upon its face or are developed by an examination of the judgment on which it is based. First Nat. Bank v. South Beaumont Land & Imp. Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 436.

In a suit to set aside a sheriff's deed to certain real estate, evidence held to warrant a finding that the purchaser had notice that the judgment debtor held title as trustee only. Smith v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

Judgment creditor as purchaser.—Where a judgment creditor purchases, it is not necessary that the money be in fact paid to the sheriff. The credit upon the execution is evidence of payment. Blum v. Rogers, 71 T. 669, 9 S. W. 595.

A purchaser at execution sale crediting the amount of his bid on the judgment is not a bona fide purchaser. Altman v. George, 12 C. A. 457, 34 S. W. 622; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 652; Cobb v. Trammell, 9 C. A. 537, 39 S. W. 482.
An execution creditor who bids in the property is not a purchaser for value, and takes subject to the rights of third persons. Focke v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 765.

The application of the bid of a judgment creditor for land sold under execution to costs of the sale and execution held insufficient to render such creditor a bona fide purchaser of the land. Hicks v. Pogue, 35 C. A. 333, 76 B. W. 786.

A creditor purchasing at his own execution sale is not an innocent purchaser, where he merely credits the amount of his bid on the judgment. Henderson v. Rushing, 47 C. A. 485, 105 S. W. 840.

Where land is bought at execution sale by the judgment creditor, held, that he is presumed not to have paid cash, but to have credited his bid on the judgment. Lightfoot v. Horst (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 606.

The judgment creditor buying at execution sale and crediting his bid on the judgment held not a bona fide purchaser. 1d.

Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Liens and Incumbrances on property.—In general.—A purchaser at a judicial sale subject to a lien held not to become personally liable for the amount secured by such lien. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 187.

Purchaser at foreclosure sale held to have taken the land free from other lien held by the judgment creditor, though purchaser paid less than the value and had notice of the other lien. Alston v. Piper, 34 C. A. 589, 79 S. W. 357.

Purchaser at foreclosure sale held to have taken the land free from another lien held by the judgment creditor, notwithstanding that the deed of trust foreclosed had purported to convey the entire interest, when as a matter of fact the grantor then had only a half interest. 1d.

Equitable liens in general.—An equitable lien for the purchase money of land is superior to the rights of a purchaser at execution sale with notice. Davis v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 435.

Vendor's lien.—As against a purchaser with notice of a vendor's lien acquired before sale under a judgment with a legal lien on the land, the operation of the lien of the vendor's lien is confined to the actual estate at the time such lien was fixed, and that, although the purchaser had no actual notice when the lien attached. Senter v. Lambeth, 59 T. 260; Calvert v. Roche, 59 T. 463.

One who acquires a purchaser's equity of redemption by buying land at execution sale cannot recover it from the vendor without finishing payment. Levy v. Persons (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 446.

Mortgage lien.—Execution sale of mortgaged lands passes title subject to the lien of the mortgage. Wilkins v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 277.

Attachment lien.—Title acquired under execution sale held superior to lien of attachment levied subsequent to judgment lien, notwithstanding unauthorized release of judgment. Corbett v. Provident Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 61.

Subsequent purchasers.—See notes under Art. 6324.

Art. 3769. [2379] [2319] Penalty for making sale otherwise than as authorized by law.—Any officer who shall sell any property without giving the previous notice herein directed, or who shall sell the same otherwise than in the manner herein prescribed, shall forfeit and pay to the party injured not less than ten nor more than two hundred dollars in addition to such other damages as the party may have sustained, to be recovered, on motion, five days' notice thereof being given, from such officer and his sureties.

Liability of officer.—The policy of our law seems to be that execution sales should be upheld, and that for his damages occasioned by failure to give proper notice of the sale the execution debtor should have his action against the officer guilty of the dereliction. Rogers v. Moore (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 113.

Where it appeared that plaintiff in execution and the officer who made a levy on exempt property were informed that the debtor was the head of a family, that he worked the horses levied on to make a living for himself and family, that he claimed the horses as exempt from execution, that he had no other team with which he could use and was not financially able to buy another, the plaintiff in execution and the officer committed a tort, and the officer was liable to the debtor for the consequences resulting from the levy and sale of the property. Railey v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 624.

Under this article an officer would be liable for damages resulting from his failure to advertise for sale goods levied upon. Mara v. Branch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 661.

Art. 3770. [2380] [2320] Officer or deputy shall not purchase.—If any officer making sale of property on execution, or his deputy, shall, directly or indirectly, purchase the same, the sale shall be void.

Art. 3771. [2381] [2321] Purchaser failing to comply.—If any person shall bid off property at any sale made by virtue of an execution, and shall fail to comply with the terms of the sale, he shall be liable to pay the plaintiff in execution twenty per cent on the value of the property thus bid off, besides costs, to be recovered on motion, five days' previous notice of such motion being given to the defendant; and, should the property on a second sale bring less than on the former, he shall be liable to pay to the defendant in execution all loss which he sustains thereby, to be recovered on motion as above provided. [Id. P. D. 3786.]

Construction of "twenty per cent."—The statute does not mean by the words "twenty per cent. on the value of the property thus bid off" the value of the property unencumbered, but relates to what is in reality actually sold. Towell v. Smith (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 186.

If the property be so incumbered that the sale passes a right of no value, no recovery of 20 per cent. on the value of the property bid off, can be had if the purchaser shall fail to comply with the terms of the sale. Towell v. Smith (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 186.

This article does not mean by the words "twenty per cent. of the value of the property thus bid off" the value of the property unencumbered, unless it is unencumbered; but it relates to what is really sold. If it is so incumbered that the sale passes a right of no value no recovery can be had under this article. Borden v. Fahey, 56 C. A. 218, 120 S. W. 564.

Liabilities of purchaser on failure to comply with bid.—Where a bidder at an execution sale fails to pay amount of his bid, the execution creditor is entitled to recover from the bidder 20 per cent. of the bid, but he is not entitled to recover from the bidder, the difference between the amounts for which the land was sold at first and second sales. The execution debtor is entitled to this difference. Shanley v. York, 54 C. A. 214, 118 S. W. 147.

Purchasing under mistake.—A creditor purchasing under the mistaken supposition that he can apply the amount of his debt to the payment of his bid may be relieved from his obligation to take the property and pay the money, unless his mistake was the consequence of his negligence. Interstate National Bank v. O'Dwyer (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 368.

A bidder at an execution sale whose bid is the result of a mistake held not to incur the penalty prescribed by Art. 3771. Borden v. Fahey, 56 C. A. 218, 120 S. W. 564.

Bid cancelled.—A purchaser at an execution sale may have the credit of his bid cancelled by showing that the property bought belonged to a third party. Holton v. Hale, 21 C. A. 194, 61 S. W. 900.

Right of defendant in execution to amount recovered.—Where plaintiff in execution recovered from a defaulting bidder the difference between his bid and the price obtained on resale, which, under the statute, belonged to defendant in execution, the execution defendant, not being a party to the action against the defaulting bidder, could recover from plaintiff in execution, if a proper proceeding, the amount wrongfully recovered by him. Shanley v. York, 54 C. A. 214, 118 S. W. 146.

Art. 3772. [2382] [2322] Re-sale of property.—When the terms of the sale shall not be complied with by the bidder, the sheriff shall proceed to sell the property again on the same day, if there be sufficient time; but, if not, he shall readvertise and sell the same as in the first instance. [Id. P. D. 3787.]

Art. 3773. [2383] [2323] Return of execution by mail.—When an execution is issued to any county other than the one in which the judgment is rendered, return may be made by mail; but money can not be thus sent except by direction of the party entitled to receive the same or his attorney of record.

Art. 3774. [2384] [2324] Money to be paid over.—When an officer has collected money on execution, he shall pay over the same to the party entitled thereto at the earliest opportunity.

Money where notice is given to the assignee. McClane v. Rogers, 42 T. 214; Hudson v. Morris, 55 T. 595.

Money of debtor in hands of sheriff.—When an officer holds an execution in favor of and against the same person, he may apply the money collected on one to the satisfaction of the other. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; Walton v. Compton, 28 T. 569; Cook v. Gatewood, 43 T. 185.

Money collected on execution in the hands of a sheriff, and belonging to a judgment debtor against whom the sheriff holds an execution, may be applied to the payment of such execution by the sheriff. Mann v. Kelsey, 71 T. 609, 12 S. W. 43, 10 Am. St. Rep. 800.

Liability of sureties on bond of justice of the peace.—See notes under Art. 2283.

Art. 3775. [2385] [2325] Failure to pay over money.—Should an officer fail or refuse to pay over money collected under an execution when demanded by the person entitled to receive the same, he shall be liable to pay to such person the amount so collected, with damages at the rate of five per cent per month thereon, besides interests and costs, which may be recovered of him and his sureties by the party entitled to receive the same on motion before the court from which said execution issued, five days' previous notice thereof being given to said officer and his sureties. [Id. P. D. 3781.]

Motion in what court—Motion must be made in the court from which the execution issued (De La Garza v. Booth, 19 T. 111; Lyndecker v. Batte, 15 T. 106; Beaver v. T. 53, 28 T. 478, 91 Am. Dec. 328) by the party to the unexecuted (Beaver v. Batte, 19 T. 111; Hicks v. Gray, 25 T. 82), and must be filed without unnecessary delay (Scogins v. Perry, 46 T. 111; Donley v. Wiggins, 52 T. 301).

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Penalty will not be enforced, when.—Damages are not recoverable when payment is refused or the ground of reasonable doubt as to who is entitled to the money. McKanahan v. Hall, 56 T. 59; Platt v. Phillips, 37 T. 9.

The penalty for failing to pay over money collected will not be enforced when there has been an unreasonable delay in instituting proceedings. Donley v. Wiggins, 58 T. 301.

Liabilities of sureties.—The sureties are not liable for money received after the return day of the execution, no previous levy having been made. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; Haley v. Greenwood, 28 T. 689; Thomas v. Browder, 33 T. 783.

The statute which authorizes suit against a surety without suing the principal applies to this motion. Poer v. Brown, 24 T. 34.

Motion.—Where a sheriff collects money on execution under a judgment on a forfeited recognizance, and fails to account, the district attorney may file a motion in the name of the state (under Art. 3773) for the use of the county. Russell v. State (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 69.

Art. 3776. [2386] [2326] Failure to levy or sell, penalty for.—Should an officer fail or refuse to levy upon or sell any property justly liable to execution, when the same might have been done, he and his sureties shall be liable to the party entitled to receive the money collected on such execution for the full amount of the debt, interest and costs, to be recovered on motion before the court from which said execution issued, five days' previous notice thereof being given to said officer and his sureties. [Id. P. D. 3796.]

It is necessary to show that the execution had been placed in the hands of the sheriff; and that while in his hands he had been required to make a levy when it was in his power to do so, and that he had failed. Lyendecker v. Martino, 38 T. 287.

Sureties not necessary parties.—In a motion against an officer for balance on judgment for not collecting the amount of the execution, his sureties need not be made parties. They can be included in the motion, but if the plaintiff does not see fit to include them, he need not. Murray v. Evans, 25 C. A. 385, 60 S. W. 788.

Motion in what court.—The motion may be made in the county court from which the execution was issued, although the amount of the judgment affirmed and damages exceeds $1,000. Banner v. Henry (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1038.

Five days' notice.—In computing the five days' notice, the time should be reckoned from the date of the acceptance and not from the date of filing the acceptance of service. Murray v. Evans, 25 C. A. 331, 60 S. W. 787.

Acceptance of service.—The waiver and acceptance of service filed by defendant dispenses with the issuance and service of notice of the motion as required by this article. Murray v. Evans, 25 C. A. 331, 60 S. W. 787.

What will excuse officer.—The existence of prior liens does not excuse the failure to sell. Smothers v. Field, 65 T. 435.

The sheriff may rebut by disproving the facts or may show matter in avoidance. Smothers v. Field, 65 T. 435; Cobbs v. Coleman, 14 T. 594; Dearborn v. Phillips, 21 T. 449; Anderson v. McKay, 30 T. 186.

Malicious prosecution of motion.—The rule that applies to ordinary civil suits applies to the character of proceeding provided for by motion under this article. The merely bringing of an unjust or unfounded suit against one, is not actionable; nor is one liable for damages for malicious prosecution of a motion under this article. Nowotny v. Grona, 44 C. A. 325, 58 S. W. 416.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827.

Art. 3777. [2387] [2327] Failure to return execution.—Should an officer neglect or refuse to return any execution as required by law, or should he make a false return thereof, he and his sureties shall be liable to the party entitled to receive the money collected on such execution for the full amount of the debt, interests and costs, to be recovered as provided in the preceding article. [Id. P. D. 3796.]

See Waxahachie Nursery Co. v. Sansom (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 422.

Motion, by whom.—Motion must be made by the plaintiff in the execution. Hicks v. Gray, 25 T. 82.

An assignee of a judgment who is entitled to receive the money when collected on an execution or order of sale in the hands of an officer and which is not returned is the proper party to a motion made to recover the money on account of the failure of the officer to return. The assignee of such judgment is not a proper party. Ranken v. Jones (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 688.

What will excuse officer.—When a motion was filed after a debt had been satisfied, the sheriff is not liable for nominal damages. Hamilton v. Ward, 4 T. 356; Underwood v. Russell, 4 T. 175.

Where the debt has been paid or defendant has no property, the sheriff is liable for nominal damages only. Smith v. Perry, 18 T. 510, 70 Am. Dec. 295.

A claim of immunity from liability by showing that the defendant is insolvent and the evidence cannot have been collected by the use of proper diligence, Smith v. Perry, 18 T. 510, 70 Am. Dec. 295; Griswold v. Chandler, 22 T. 637; Vaughn v. Watson, 295, 192, 23 S. W. 309. See Art. 3778. But that the service of process was insufficient is no answer to the motion. Griswold v. Chandler, 22 T. 637.

The sheriff having failed to return the execution he was liable for the full amount of the judgment unless it was made to appear that no injury resulted to the plaintiff, and merely showing that defendant in judgment was insolvent was not sufficient to relieve sheriff from liability, especially as there was other testimony showing that the defendant owned property subject to execution within sheriff's jurisdiction. Hale v. Bickett, 34 C. A. 393, 78 S. W. 531.

Art. 3778. [2388] [2328] Surplus to be paid to defendant.—If, on the sale of property, more money is received than is sufficient to pay the amount of the execution or executions in the hands of the officer, the surplus shall be immediately paid over to the defendant, his agent or attorney. [Id. P. D. 3777.]

Authority of sheriff to receive money.—A sheriff has authority to receive money only on the order of the court. Harris v. Ellis, 20 T. 4, 24 Am. Dec. 296.

After the return of the execution, the sheriff has no authority to receive payment of the judgment. Id.

Surplus subject to garnishment.—The excess of the proceeds of a sale under execution in the hands of the sheriff after satisfaction of the judgment is subject to garnishment by another creditor of the judgment debtor. Turner v. Gibson, 105 T. 488, 151 S. W. 793, 43 L. R. A. (N. S.) 571.

Under this article the officer ceases to hold the remainder of the proceeds in his official capacity or in the hands of the debtor to the execution debtor as the surplus, so that such surplus is subject to garnishment by a creditor of the execution debtor. Turner v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 839.

Officer may subject surplus to another execution.—An officer having a surplus in his hands after a sale of property under execution and satisfaction of the judgment may subject it to a second execution against defendant. Turner v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 839.

Money of debtor in hands of sheriff.—See notes under Art. 3774.

Art. 3779. [2389] [2329] Return of execution.—Every execution shall be returned forthwith, upon being satisfied by the collection of the money, or upon order of the plaintiff or his attorney indorsed thereon.

Sufficiency of return.—In trespass to try title, the return of the execution under which the sale was had held inadmissible for failure to sufficiently describe the property purported to be conveyed. Stipe v. Shirley, 27 C. A. 97, 64 S. W. 1012.

Sheriff's return to execution and his deed held not void for uncertainty of description when with extrinsic evidence they designate property intended to be conveyed. Buckner v. Vancleave, 34 C. A. 312, 78 S. W. 541.

Venditioni exponas necessary for sale.—A return of the execution exhibiting an interest vested on, and thereby showing property of the defendant in custodia legis for satisfaction of the judgment, requires the issuance of a writ of venditioni exponas in order to sell the property. Borden v. McRea, 46 T. 396. This writ confers upon the officer authority to sell pursuant to the levy advertised and ordered on the writ without re-advertising the property. Young v. Smith, 23 T. 598, 76 Am. Dec. 81.

Conflict in recitals.—Where there is a conflict between a sheriff's deed and his return, the recitals in the deed always control. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Conclusiveness.—The return of the sheriff cannot be impeached in a collateral proceeding. Schneider v. Ferguson, 77 T. 673, 14 S. W. 154; Rutledge v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 910.

The return of the sheriff cannot be collaterally attacked so far as the defendant is concerned. Rutledge v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 910.

Strangers to a proceeding in which an execution is issued may collaterally assail a return thereon. Holt v. Hunt, 18 C. A. 363, 44 S. W. 889.

Plaintiff cannot defeat defendant's title to property acquired at execution sale in a prior suit by claiming that the levy was defective, since that would be a collateral attack on the officer's return. Sparks v. McHugh, 21 C. A. 265, 51 S. W. 873.

Constable's return held conclusive as against parties to suit on collateral attack. Housels v. Fitte (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 588.

This statute must be followed in making the levy. The statute does not prescribe a form of the officers' return, nor does it provide that the return shall show the manner in which the levy was made. The return will be construed liberally and the presumption indulged that the levy was legally made. The return cannot be attacked collaterally. Arti v. Morris, 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 654.

A sheriff, sued for conversion by levy and sale under execution, held estopped from denying the legality of the levy by his return on the execution. Cox v. Paten (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 64.

In a suit between a judgment debtor and purchaser of the debtor's land at an execution sale, plaintiff held entitled to impeach the officer's return on the notice of sale, by showing that such notice was not in fact served as alleged. Moore v. Snowball, 36 C. A. 496, 62 S. W. 390.
Failure of the sheriff's return to show that written notice was given the defendants of execution sale held not conclusive that proper notice was not given. Paschall v. Brown (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 509.

Necessity of appraisement.—Sale of land under execution cannot be attacked, in action to try title, on ground of irregularity in sheriff's failure to append appraisement to return of execution. Blandworth v. Poole, 31 C. A. 561, 62 S. W. 717.

Cure of defects.—A defective return of the levy on land may be corrected by the recitals in the sheriff's deed. Whitney v. Kroop, 8 C. A. 304, 27 S. W. 843.

A clerical error in the return to an execution issued June 9th, reciting a levy on June 1st, did not vitiate sale thereunder; the levy having been made on July 1st. Davidson v. Chandler, 27 C. A. 418, 65 S. W. 1080.

Parol evidence to explain return.—See notes under Art. 3587.

Authority of sheriff to receive money.—See notes under Art. 3778.

Art. 3780. [2390] [2330] Death of defendant operates as supersedeas, when.—The death of the defendant after the execution is issued shall operate as a supersedeas thereof; but the lien of the execution, when one has been acquired by a levy, shall be recognized and enforced by the county court in the payment of the debts of the deceased.

Sale under execution issued after death.—A sale under execution issued after the death of a sole defendant, when the judgment is for money, is void. Conkrite v. Hart, 10 T. 146; McMfiller v. Butler, 20 T. 402; Hooper v. Caruthers, 78 T. 432, 15 S. W. 98; Bynum v. Gowan, 29 S. W. 1119, 9 C. A. 569.

Death prior to sale.—In view of Art. 3725, where a judgment for taxes was rendered against a purchaser of land subject to a vendor's lien, and he died prior to a sale of the land on execution, the sale was void. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1976.

Art. 3781. [2391] [2331] Death of plaintiff does not abate writ.—An execution shall not be abated by the death of the plaintiff therein after the execution has been issued, but the same shall be executed and returned in the same manner as if the plaintiff was still living.

Art. 3782. [2392] [2332] Execution docket.—The clerk of each of the several courts shall keep an execution docket in which he shall enter a statement of all executions as they are issued by him, specifying the names of the parties, the amount of the judgment, the amount due thereon, the rate of interest when it exceeds eight per cent, the costs, the date of issuing the execution, to whom delivered, and the return of the officer thereon, with the date of such return; and such docket entries shall be taken and deemed to be a record. [Id. P. D. 3773. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Entries in execution docket admissible.—Certified copies of entries in the execution docket are admissible in evidence. Schlescher v. Markward, 61 T. 99.

Art. 3783. [2393] [2333] Index to execution docket.—The clerk shall keep an index and cross-index to the execution docket; and, when execution is in favor of or against several persons, it shall be indexed in the name of each person.

Art. 3784. [2394] [2334] Penalty for failing to keep docket and index.—Any clerk who shall fail to keep an execution docket and index thereto, as hereinbefore directed, or shall neglect to make the entries therein, shall, besides being punished as provided in the penal law, be liable to any person injured for the amount of damages sustained by such neglect, to be recovered in a suit against him and his sureties on his official bond.

1. Indemnity to officer.—A sheriff has no right to demand an indemnity bond before levying upon real estate; and the refusal to give such a bond will not justify the sheriff in abandoning the levy and refusing to sell the property. Bryan v. Bridge, 6 T. 137.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that goods levied on equaled in value the indemnity bond so as to justify further indemnity before making new levy. Sease v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 407.

An officer holding an execution may require indemnity before levying on personal property. Id.

An indemnity bond, given a constable after the illegal levy of an execution to induce him not to return the property, is enforceable against the sureties. Hines v. Norris (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 791.

2. Withdrawal of execution.—An invalid execution may be withdrawn at any time before sale of property levied on or the intervention of the rights of third parties. Wingfield v. Hackney, 30 C. A. 35, 69 S. W. 446.

3. Suppression of competition at bidding.—An action by the owner of property sold for customs duties for a nominal consideration may be maintained by his agent, alleging fraud in the act of sale. Ney v. Lane (InProb. of Wm.) 68 S. W. 1014.

An arrangement between bidders on property sold under an execution held not to constitute an agreement to suppress competition. Snouffer v. Helsig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 911.

4. Rights of highest rejected bidder.—One whose bid, though the highest at execution sale was unaccepted, has a remedy by motion to vacate the sale to another. Rugey v. Moore, 23 C. A. 10, 54 S. W. 379.

5. Who may purchase at sale.—A county judge should not be permitted to purchase and hold land sold under an execution, which he controlled for the county. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1065; Felts v. Bell County, 103 T. 616, 132 S. W. 123.

6. Grounds for setting aside sale.—A sale under execution may be set asidé on account of the irregularity in the proceedings anterior to the sale, by a proceedings instituted for that purpose. Ay v. Dwyer, 27 T. 589, 68 Am. Dec. 667; Owen v. City of Navasota, 44 T. 617; Cook v. Sparks, 47 T. 28; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 319; Elam v. Donald, 58 T. 318.

A sheriff's sale made in violation of an agreement between all the parties in interest that the sale should not take place unless all were present, and at which the land sold for an inadequate consideration, was set aside. Ward v. Duer, 70 T. 231, 11 S. W. 118.

One purchasing property for one-fifteenth of its value at execution sale not founded upon a judgment of record is not an innocent purchaser. Beckham v. Medlock, 19 C. A. 61, 46 S. W. 452.

Rights acquired by innocent strangers for value under an execution on a judgment of a justice of the peace fair on its face will not be disturbed, though the judgment be invalid. Carpenter v. Anderson, 53 C. A. 491, 77 S. W. 291.

An execution sale of personalty held not subject to collateral attack. Hubert v. Herbert, 46 C. A. 503, 102 S. W. 948.

That a bid at execution sale was credited on the judgment and exceeded the judgment finally affirmed held not to sustain a collateral attack on the execution sale, even though the excess of the bid over the final judgment was not paid. Wade v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 506.

An execution sale held not open to collateral attack. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

A certain irregularity in proceedings leading up to a judicial sale held not such as to render the sale void, 'in the absence of a showing that persons intending to bid had notice of the defect, and because of it refrained from bidding. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. H. Smith, 14 Tex. & App. Co. (Clv. App.) 110, 119, 120, 123 W. 435.

A judgment creditor held not entitled to impeach the title of the purchaser at the execution sale on the ground of irregularities in the proceedings antedating and including the sale. Rosenthal & Desberger v. Mounts (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

A decision of the judgment after compromise of the execution plaintiff to stop the sale was voided in toto, though the compromise did not provide for payment of costs, and no notice thereof was given to the officer. Marshall v. Marshall (Clv. App.) 130 S. W. 765.

A sale of property in violation of law, made under the persuasion of one who became the purchaser, for a grossly inadequate price, may be avoided by the judgment debtor. Stone v. Day, 62 T. 18, 6 S. W. 441, 6 Am. St. Rep. 17.

A sale under execution of land at a grossly inadequate price will not be set aside for an irregularity unless it did not conduce to such result. Davis v. Estate of Davis, 28 W. 629. See Fuller v. L. & I. Co. (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 571; Davis v. Harnaell (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 972.

Where land was sold under execution, the owner cannot complain of inadequacy of price to which his conduct contributed. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1036.

The fact that the sum bid on execution sale of personal property was inadequate does not in itself invalidate the sale. Hurst v. Roberts, 175 S. W. 514; Husk v. Scott (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 514.

Inadequacy of price held not sufficient to justify setting aside a sale under execution. Martin v. Byrson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 615.

A purchaser of land at execution sale, known to be worth $2,500, for 553, held not bona fide, so as to support the conveyance. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 484, 77 S. W. 291.

When an execution sale is attacked, it is not necessary to show affirmatively that the ground relied on to avoid it in connection with inadequacy of price occasioned the inadequacy. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 321, 112 S. W. 355.

Inadequacy of price alone does not render a judicial sale, publicly made, void, and is not ground for setting it aside after confirmation and payment of the purchase money. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

Effect of inadequacy of price at an execution sale as invalidating the sale stated. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

Where a constable sold a large number of lots at an execution sale, the fact that a party who the court had not charged the sale set aside did not render it improper to include the value of all the lots to arrive at a proper conclusion as to inadequacy of price. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

Where property has been sold at execution sale at a very inadequate price, a court of equity will set the sale aside, where defendant makes a prompt offer to pay the indebtedness, costs, and interest. Id.

A sale under execution will be set aside for slight irregularities where gross inadequacy in price is shown. Peters v. Rice (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1191.

An execution sale of property under a levy in violation of law, made under the persuasion of one who became the purchaser thereof at such sale for a grossly inadequate price, may as to such purchaser be avoided by the judgment debtor. Stone v. Day, 69 T. 13, 2 S. W. 642, 5 Am. St. Rep. 17.

Gross inadequacy of price alone is not ground to avoid a sale, but if accompanied with slight irregularities attending the sale will avoid a sheriff's sale. Jones v. Pratt, 77 T. 210, 13 S. W. 887; Smith v. Perkins, 81 T. 152, 16 S. W. 690, 25 Am. St. Rep. 794.

A judgment creditor knows his debtor to be insolvent, for an inadequate consideration, held voidable. Houghton v. Rice, 15 C. A. 551, 40 S. W. 348.

Irregularities combined with inadequacy of price will not affect an execution sale, unless the irregularities contributed to the inadequacy. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1036.

An execution sale of property which had previously been conveyed by the debtor for the fraudulent purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors will not be set aside at the instance of the fraudulent grantee on the ground of inadequacy of price. Clark v. Pell, 49 C. A. 28, 89 S. W. 58.

Certain irregularities in an order of sale, coupled with inadequacy of price, held sufficient to set aside a judicial sale. White v. Taylor, 46 C. A. 471, 102 S. W. 747.

A purchaser's fraud in making the purchase with knowledge that the judgment had been satisfied, in connection with inadequacy of price, was sufficient to warrant setting aside an execution sale. Marshall v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 765.

10. Actions to set aside sales—Defenses. —A judgment creditor's agent, who arrived at the place of holding a judicial sale in time to have bid if the sale had not been made half an hour earlier than usual, is not guilty of such negligence as will defeat such creditor's right to set it aside for inadequacy of price. Lee v. Texas & O. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 501, 55 S. W. 972.

11. — Jurisdiction. — See notes under Title 55, Chapter 3.

12. — Limitations and laches. — See notes under Title 87, Chapter 2.

An execution debtor complaining of inadequacy in price at sale of his property should promptly act to avoid such sale against the necessary parties. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 85 T. 448, 21 S. W. 1034.

Purchaser of land sold under execution held not required to accept a tender of the amount paid from the judgment debtor on demand for reconveyance. Valdez v. Cohen, 23 C. A. 475, 56 S. W. 376.

Judgment setting aside sale on execution at suit of plaintiff will not be disturbed, though amount of bid tendered by plaintiff was not deposited in court. Johnson v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 587, 63 S. W. 1023.

In an action to set aside an execution sale, a tender of the amount of money actually paid by the purchaser held sufficient. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 618.

Where an execution debtor notified the execution purchaser, before the sale that the judgment had been settled, a case of fraud was shown, and the debtor was not required to tender to the purchaser the amount of his bid in an action to set aside the sale. Moore v. Perry (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 258.

14. — Parties.—See notes at end of Title 77, Chapter 5.

17. — Setting aside sale.—Where a party seeks to set aside a sale of lots under an execution sale brought against defendants for such lots, but the defendants claimed only a portion of them and prayed for cancellation of the constable's deed on the ground that the sale was fraudulent, and defendants prevailed, the plaintiff lost title to the lots not claimed by defendants. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 573.

18. — Collateral attack on sale.—Plaintiff in trespass to try title held land by deed from a purchaser of it at an execution sale. The defendants in possession in reconvention pleaded that they held by deed from the heirs of the defendant in the execution, and set up facts as avoiding the sale, tendering the purchase money and interest. The plea was filed more than ten years after the sale. No other parties were made or asked to be made. Held, that the plea in reconvention could not be considered as a direct attack, but only collateral, and that matters in avoidance of the sale would not avail as a defense, or as grounds for recovery by the defendants, the sale not being void. Smith v. Perkins, 81 T. 152, 15 S. W. 806, 26 Am. St. Rep. 794.

To set the judgment under which corporate stock was sold under execution is valid does not preclude an attack on the sale for irregularities calculated to affect the price for which the stock was sold. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. South Beaumont Land & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 496.

To set an execution sale immune from collateral attack, there must be a valid judgment and execution. Bailey v. Block, 104 T. 110, 134 S. W. 323.

Where plaintiff brings trespass to try title, claiming under an execution sale, and defendants tender the amount of the judgment, but attempt to set aside the sale for fraud, such attempt is a direct, and not a collateral, attack upon the sale. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 673.

19. — Purchase by agent.—Persons to whom property was struck off at judicial sale held not bound by the purchase unless the person assuming to bid in their behalf was authorized. Richards v. E. V. & J. F. O'Neal (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 302.

20. — Title of purchaser in general.—Title acquired at a sheriff's sale may be shown by proof of the validity of the judgment, issuance of execution thereon, a sale thereunder, and payment of the purchase money. Reeder v. Edison (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 750.

21. — Equities against debtor.—Judgment debtor held not estopped to dispute the validity of an execution sale under a judgment by confession, where the judgment was confessed by her attorney for a larger amount than was authorized. Cordray v. Neuhaus, 25 C. A. 247, 61 S. W. 415.

Where a husband purchased a moiety of certain land partly with his wife's money, the wife was entitled as the husband's creditors to an undivided interest in proportion to the amount of consideration she contributed. Skinner v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 426.

22. — Effect of reversal of judgment.—See notes under Art. 2029.

When a sale is made under a void judgment the owner of the property is not bound to refund the purchase money. Stegall v. Huff, 54 T. 193.

A purchaser at a sheriff's sale who, after paying money on his bid which discharges the judgment, received a defective sheriff's deed, may be subrogated to the lien of the original judgment. His right of action does not depend on his possession; if in possession he cannot be disturbed in it by the original judgment debtor until the money paid by him in discharging the judgment has been refunded. Jones v. Smith, 55 T. 333.

A purchaser at a sale made under a decree of court which had no jurisdiction may still under some circumstances be a purchaser in good faith, and as such entitled to compensation for improvements made on land purchased before eviction. French v. Grenet, 57 T. 278.

The claim of a defendant in possession under a void judicial sale for the value of necessary and beneficial repairs made by him on improved real estate, and which have enhanced the value of the property, is based upon a higher equity than if the improvements were merely ornamental or new. Id.

A purchaser who has made permanent and valuable improvements in good faith is also entitled to compensation for his improvements. Allen v. Pierson, 60 T. 604; Jones v. Smith, 55 T. 383.

A purchaser at sheriff's sale whose money, paid on the purchase, satisfied the judgment under which the sale was made, is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the plaintiff in execution, if the sale should be held void. Flaniken v. Neal, 67 T. 625, 4 S. W. 212.
Where defendants claim under an invalid execution sale against plaintiffs' ancestors, the latter being required to pay the amount bid at the sale as a condition precedent to a recovery. Hayes v. Gallaher, 21 C. A. 88, 51 S. W. 280.

In an action by the purchaser at an execution sale against the interest of a partner, to recover such interest, recovery is not limited to the goods bought at the sale and actually in the hands of the defendant at the time of trial, but the plaintiff is entitled to compensation for the property disposed of intervening the sale and trial, as for a conversion. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

A vendee at an execution sale, which is set aside for invalidity of the judgment, held entitled to be reimbursed by the judgment debtor to the extent of the sum paid. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 484, 77 S. W. 291.

Where plaintiffs, in a suit to set aside an execution sale of land, were not the sole owners thereof at the time of the sale being vacated, on the sale being vacated, they were only required to return such portion of the purchase price as corresponded to their proportionate interests in the land. Moore v. Snowball, 36 C. A. 495, 82 S. W. 330.

An execution purchaser, on the failure of title, cannot recover from the execution creditor the amount of his bid. Rosenthal & Deisher v. Mounts ( Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 192.

Execution to enforce decree foreclosing vendor's lien held not susceptible of levy on naked legal title, reserved by grantees to secure purchase money on resale, after assignment. Property was vendor's lien notes taken for the price on such resale. Ross v. Bailey ( Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 561.

That the holders of vendor's lien notes accepted part payment on the notes from the debtor and his grantees after their maturity, as they had been extended, would not estop them from enforcing a judgment of foreclosure, since the debtor and his grantees, in making such payment, were merely doing what they were bound to do. Shannon v. Hay (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 365.

When land was purchased subject to vendor's lien notes, which were afterwards foreclosed, but where action on the judgment was stayed on the execution of extended notes, which provided that the agreement was intended to stop further action on the judgment until maturity of such notes, the purchaser was not entitled to enjoin the execution against the creditors to obtain a new judgment. Id.

24. Wrongful execution.—Ownership in common of personal property by the heirs of a decedent, accompanied by actual possession at the time the property was levied on, is sufficient as against a purchaser at an execution sale against the tenant in possession to entitle him to maintain a suit to recover the property on the theory that it was exempt. Rogers v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 68.

26. — Liability of creditor in general.—An execution creditor who is not present at the time property is levied on, and does not authorize or sanction abuse of such property, is not liable for damages. Almsa v. Moses (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 791.

27. — Selling property not levied on.—Where a judgment orders the sale of specific premises, the sheriff cannot thereunder sell other land to satisfy a balance due. Giesecke v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1034.

Property not levied on should not be sold under execution. Mara v. Branch (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 661.

28. — Separate causes of action.—See notes under Art. 1327.

29. — Conditions precedent.—A wife held entitled to sue for the conversion of corporate stock by a sale thereof, under execution against the husband, without paying a note held by the husband's judgment creditor and secured by stock pledged by the husband. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 221.

30. — Damages in general.—In estimating plaintiff's damages resulting from the sale of exempt property, his indebtedness was not added to the value of the property on sale, the interest of such property not being determined until the property was taken into account and credited on such damages. McGaughey v. Meek, 1 App. C. C. § 1197. In rendering judgment against the defendant for the value of the exempt article wrongfully sold by him under execution, he is not entitled to deduction for the sum realized from its wrongful sale to apply to the payment of the debt for which the execution issued. Cone v. Lewis, 64 T. 331, 53 Am. Rep. 767.

In an action for damages for value of property illegally seized and sold, in computing damages the amount the goods sold for and a balance on the judgment should be owed as credits, the goods seized being in excess of value over the judgment. Beck v. Avondino, 82 T. 314, 18 S. W. 690.

Measure of damages for wrongful seizure of personal property under judicial process is its value and interest. Gilmour v. Heimze, 85 T. 75, 29 S. W. 1727.

In an action for the seizure and sale of property under execution which belonged to a person not a party to the writ and was purchased by the owner, the measure of damages is the amount paid, with interest, and the depreciation in value. Field v. Munster, 11 A. 341, 32 S. W. 417.

The measure of damages for the wrongful seizure of mules levied on as the property of a third person is their value at the time of the seizure, with interest. Nelson v. Ashmore (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 935.

In an action for wrongful levy of execution, charge to allow damages in respect to plaintiff's crops, when the same had not in fact been levied on, required reversal. Baughn v. Allen (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 207.

The measure of damages for a levy on exempt crops is, so far as the mere conversion of the crops is concerned, the value thereof. Moore v. Graham, 25 C. A. 235, 69 S. W. 206.

In an action for an alleged wrongful levy, the measure of damages held the value of the goods seized, less the amount of the judgment. Avindino's Heirs v. Fr. Beck & Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 539.

In action for unlawful entry into plaintiff's dwelling, and seizure and sale of a piano therein under an order of sale, the measure of plaintiff's damages determined. Hillman v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787.
A statutory levy on land held not to authorize a recovery, in the absence of specific damages. Adoue v. Wettermark, 36 C. A. 566, 82 S. W. 787.

Damas for suffering and sickness are not recoverable in an action for wrongful levy on property. Almsa v. Moses (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 791.

Value of use and hire of animals wrongfully seized under execution and detained for over two years, held not to be estimated by value of use and hire by the day or by the month. Railey v. Hopkins, 50 C. A. 600, 110 S. W. 779.

In an action for wrongful levy of execution, the intentions of the officer making the levy held immaterial. Rainey v. Kemp, 54 C. A. 486, 118 S. W. 630.

The levy of an attachment on exempt property authorizes a recovery by the owner of the actual damages sustained, and where the writ was issued and levied maliciously and without probable cause, he may recover exemplary damages. Carroll v. First Nat. Bank of Denison (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 816.

The measure of damages for a wrongful levy and seizure of goods is the goods, or their value, with compensation for the detention. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

Where an officer wrongfully levied on two horses of defendant, and for five or six days defendant was not permitted to use the horses, and the reasonable value of their use was about $3 per day apiece, a judgment for $8 damages was authorized. Parlin & Orendorff Implement Co. v. Clements (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 368.

An owner of property wrongfully levied on under execution, who refrains from using the property under the instructions of the officer making the levy, and who is thereby for a time deprived of its earning capacity, may recover the reasonable value of its use during and up to the time he was informed of the release of the levy. Id.

31. — Exemplary damages.—If an illegal levy and seizure of property is oppressive and the conduct of the officer malicious, exemplary damages may be recovered against not only the officer, but any other person who knowingly encouraged or directed the malicious act. He who accepts benefit under an illegal levy upon the property of another, after knowledge of the illegal act, will be responsible equally with the officer for such damage as is the natural and proximate result of the illegal act. Brown v. Bridges, 70 T. 661, 8 S. W. 502.

In the absence of bad faith, oppression, or wantonness, vindictive damages cannot be recovered for wrongful levy. Willis v. Chowning, 18 C. A. 625, 46 S. W. 45.

In an action for the wrongful levy of an execution, an allowance of $50 for attorney’s fees as a part of vindictive damages allowed held not error. Deleshaw v. Edelen, 31 C. A. 416, 72 S. W. 418.

Exemplary damages held not recoverable for a levy on land, in the absence of actual damages. Adoue v. Wettermark, 36 C. A. 566, 82 S. W. 787.

In an action against a constable for levying on exempt property, and doing so in a malicious and oppressive manner, plaintiffs held entitled to recover exemplary damages. Paroux v. Cornwall, 40 C. A. 529, 90 S. W. 537.

In an action for unlawfully levying on plaintiff’s property and selling the same, evidence held sufficient to warrant exemplary damages. Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 431, 94 S. W. 428.

In an action for damages for alleged wrongful levy of execution, instructions authorizing a recovery for exemplary damages held erroneous. First Bank of Mertens v. Steffens, 51 C. A. 211, 111 S. W. 782.

32. — Mitigation of damages.—In action for unlawful entry into plaintiff’s dwelling, and seizure and sale of a piano therein, under an order of sale, held proper to show what amount of the proceeds of the sale of the piano had been credited on the judgment in mitigation of plaintiff’s damages. Hillman v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787.

33. — Remote damages.—Certain damages resulting from a wrongful levy under an execution held not too remote. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 221.

34. — Attorney’s fees.—See notes under Title 27, Chapter 34.

35. — Mental anguish.—Mental anguish, or the effect on the standing as an individual, or as a minister of the gospel, of a member of an unincorporated missionary association from a wrongful levy on the property of the association, is too remote to form the basis for damages. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

36. — Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1327.

37. — Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 5.

Evidence in action for damages for loss of crop from wrongful levy examined, and held sufficient to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Parker v. Hale (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 555.

In an action for unlawfully levying upon and selling plaintiff’s property, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding as to the market value of the property on the date of the levy. Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 431, 94 S. W. 428.

EXEMPTIONS

Chapter 1. Property Exempt from Forced Sale.

Chapter 2. Excess Over Homestead, etc., How Set Apart and Subjected to Execution.

CHAPTER ONE

PROPERTY EXEMPT FROM FORCED SALE

Article 3785. [2395] [2335] Property exempt from, to every family.—The following property shall be reserved to every family, exempt from attachment or execution and every other species of forced sale for the payment of debts, except as hereinafter provided:

1. The homestead of the family.
2. All household and kitchen furniture.
3. Any lot or lots in a cemetery held for the purpose of sepulture.
4. All implements of husbandry.
5. All tools, apparatus and books belonging to any trade or profession.
6. The family library and all family portraits and pictures.
7. Five milch cows and their calves.
8. Two yoke of work oxen, with necessary yokes and chains.
9. Two horses and one wagon.
10. One carriage or buggy.
11. One gun.
12. Twenty hogs.
13. Twenty head of sheep.
14. All saddles, bridles, and harness necessary for the use of the family.
15. All provisions and forage on hand for home consumption; and,

2. Constitutional provisions.—It is the duty of the legislature to protect from forced sale a certain portion of personal property belonging to families. Const. art. 16, § 48.

4. Repeal of statute.—An exemption statute in force when a debt was contracted cannot be repealed if the repeal materially impairs the contractual obligation. Lyon & Matthews Co. v. Modern Order of Praetorians (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 29.

5. Family.—The term ‘family,’ used in its generic sense, embraces a household composed of parents and children and other relatives or domestics and servants; in short, every collective body of persons living together within the same curtilage, subsisting in common, directing their attention to a common object—the promotion of their mutual interest and happiness. Wilson v. Cochran, 31 T. 680, 98 Am. Dec. 653.

6. Grandparent and grandchild.—A granddaughter, with her parents’ consent, living with her grandmother and maintained and supported by her, the arrangement being terminable at the will of either, was held not to have been a constituent of her family and entitled to the homestead freed from the claims of creditors. Phillips v. Price, 12 C. A. 408, 34 S. W. 184. See Clark v. Goin (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 705; Rocq v. Green, 60 T. 483.

8. Persons divorced or living apart.—A divorced wife cannot assert a claim for herself in the homestead of her former husband after his decease. The children of a man, after his divorce from his wife, are constituents of his family, and entitled to the homestead exemption, although their custody had been awarded to the wife. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 655, 17 S. W. 82; Bahn v. Stacke, 89 T. 203, 34 S. W. 103, 59 Am. St. Rep. 40. Id. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 651. See Rogers v. Fox, 4 App. C. C. § 85, 18 S. W. 781.

9. Divorce obtained by wife held not to affect her homestead rights in community property decreed to her and formerly occupied by her husband. Holland v. Zilliox, 38 C. A. 416, 84 S. W. 36.
Where plaintiff, though married, had no children, and was divorced from her husband, and thereafter her family consisted only of herself, she could not claim a home-

Facts held not to show an abandonment of a homestead by a husband retaining the custody of his children, notwithstanding a divorce obtained by the wife. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

A judgment of divorce, awarding the wife costs of the suit, cannot be satisfied out of the homestead of the husband, while he retains custody of the children, though the judgment of divorce grants custody to the wife. Id.

Where a marriage is dissolved by divorce, the homestead rights of the parties depend on the presence of other constituents of the family and the subsequent relations of the parties to those constituents. Id.

The duty of a husband to support his children, notwithstanding a divorce awarding the wife the custody of the children, held to constitute the husband and children, when living together, a family entitled to a homestead. Id.

The award of the custody of the children to the wife upon granting her a divorce held not to discharge the husband's obligation to support them, so as to divest him of his homestead right as head of a family; the children in fact living with him on the homestead, and the husband doing so even if the children had lived apart from him. Speer

A married man is head of a family, though he is living apart from his wife, and has attempted to secure a divorce; none having been obtained. Ray v. Curry (Civ.
App.) 126 S. W. 26.

Property owned by one who has been divorced and has no children, so that the family consists of her alone, is not her homestead. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.)
135 S. W. 186.

Where a divorced woman acquired hotel property by exchanging other land therefor, and lived in the hotel, which was rented to another person, but her children resided in another county, and, on borrowing money, gave a lien on the hotel property to secure the payment of the money, the hotel property was her property, and the homestead

The husband's status as head of the family is not destroyed by divorce, and hence he can claim a homestead exemption. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 682.

A district court, in a divorce action, cannot subject the husband's interest in the homestead to the payment of claims by the wife for counsel fees and reimbursement for community debts paid out of her separate property. Id.

9. — Adulterous relations. — The benefit of the homestead law cannot extend to a man and woman living together in adultery. But a natural obligation rests on the father of illegitimate children to support them, and they living with him may constitute such a family as may assert homestead rights. Lane v. Phillips, 69 T. 240, 6 S. W. 610,

The award of the custody of the children within the state under the statute, there must be a family, and the family must exist by authority of law, and not in violation thereof. Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 789.

Where a woman and her putative husband were living together illegally at the time he bought certain property, they did not constitute a family within the meaning of the homestead law, so as to permit such property being declared homestead property, and a conveyance of the land by him was not void because she did not join therein. Id.

10. Residence in state. — A nonresident who is the head of a family, and who owns exempt property which he brings into the state temporarily, is entitled to claim the

11. Household furniture. — The exemption of household and kitchen furniture includes only furniture for the family, and will not include beyond this furniture used in hotels and restaurants. Heidenheimer v. Blumenkron, 56 T. 808; Frank v. Bean, 3 App. C. C. § 211.

The statute embraces all necessary, convenient or ornamental articles with which a

A piano is "household and kitchen furniture," when used as furniture in housekeeping. It is not exempt when placed in the salesroom of a music dealer for sale. McCoy v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1065.

12. Implements of husbandry. — What constitutes an implement of husbandry is a question of fact to be submitted to the jury. Henry v. McLean, 1 App. C. C. § 1079.

As to the exemption of a mowing machine and threshing machine, see Tucker v. Napier, 1 App. C. C. § 670. A mill and gin with their machinery are not exempt, unless they are a part of exempt real estate. Miller v. James, 66 T. 494, 2 S. W. 314.

13. Tools and apparatus belonging to trade or profession. — The business of saddle, harness and collar making is a trade. Nicholas v. Porter, 26 S. W. 859, 7 C. A. 302; Green
v. Raymond, 68 T. 80, 4 Am. Rep. 601; Cone v. Lewis, 64 T. 351, 53 Am. Rep. 767; Alsup

The word "trade" includes commercial and mechanical pursuits and business occupations, with the possible exception of the learned professions, the liberal arts and agriculture. The word "profession" is defined to be the occupation, not mechanical, agricultural or the like, to which one devotes himself. Betts v. Maler, 12 C. A. 219, 26 S. W.
710. See cases cited.

14. Printer and publisher. — The printing press, type and cases needed in a printing office and owned by an editor and publisher of a newspaper are exempt. Green

The tools and apparatus of a job printer exempt. St. Louis Type Foundry v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 691.

15. Restaurant. — The furniture of a restaurant, such as lunch counter, shelving, stools, stove, cooking utensils, dishes, etc., is not exempt under this article, and there-

15. — Soda fountain.—A soda fountain is not a tool or apparatus belonging to a trade or profession and is not exempt from execution under this article and Art. 3788. McClellan v. Crennan (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1048.

17. — Question for jury.—Whether property is exempt depends on the evidence and is a question of fact for the jury. Tucker v. Napier, 1 App. C. C. § 870. See, also, notes under Art. 1971, § 82.

19. Milch cows.—A heifer bought by a debtor with the bona fide intention that it should be raised and bred is exempt. Heifers which had never been milked, but which were with calf when the levy was made, and which the debtor, who was the head of the family, was keeping as his milch cows, are exempt. Patterson v. English (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 18.

Two colts that have never been used for family purposes can be selected as the two horses exempted by the above article. Hall v. Miller, 21 C. A. 384, 61 S. W. 26.

If husband have in his possession four horses, two the separate property of his wife and two community, or his separate property, he can select for purpose of exemption the two not the separate property of his wife and his creditors could not complain. McCleland v. Barnard, 28 C. A. 118, 81 S. W. 592.

22. Provisions and forage.—Cotton on hand is not included in either the term "provisions" or "forage," and is not exempt from forced sale. Seligson v. Staples, 1 App. C. C. § 1072.

Corn necessary for home consumption, and exempt, is not made subject to levy because the debtor owned 100 hogs, instead of 20, the number exempt from execution. Burris v. Booth (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 186.

On an issue of whether what was attached was exempt, held, the court should have followed the language of the statute, exempting provisions and forage for home consumption. Bell v. Fox, 37 C. A. 522, 84 S. W. 594.

23. Wages.—See, also, Childress v. Franks (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 885.

Fast-due wages left with employer because they cannot be collected held "current wages," and exempt. But past-due wages voluntarily left with employer held not "current wages," and not exempt. Davidson v. F. H. Logeman Chair Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 824.

24. Evidence.—Where the garnishee admitted the indebtedness to the debtor, the burden was upon the debtor to establish a plea that the fund in the garnishee's hands was exempt. Lyon & Matthews Co. v. Modern Order of Praetorians (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 29.

25. Waiver of exemptions of personal property.—Where a reservation of a lien on exempt personal property by partitioners was intended to indemnify them as garnishees only, such reservation did not affect plaintiff's right to an exemption against other creditors. Rogers v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 68.

Where partitioners of decedent's personal property delivered plaintiff's share to him conditioned on his return to them if necessary to satisfy a garnishment, the partitioners could assert their right to the property only on proof that they had discharged the liability, in which case they would be entitled only to foreclose their lien, and hence plaintiff's creditors could not acquire the rights of partitioners by a sale of the garnishee's share to plaintiff and against plaintiff's garnishees. id.

26. Wrongful levy on exempt property.—See, also, notes at end of Title 54.

27. Cemetery lots exempt.—See Art. 767.

28. Exemption from court and county taxes.—See Art. 1275.

29. Setting apart homestead and other exemptions of decedent.—See Title 52, Chapter 13.

30. Fraudulent conveyance of homestead.—See notes under Art. 3986.

Art. 3786. [2396] [2336] "Homestead" defined.—The homestead of a family, not in a town or city, shall consist of not more than two hundred acres of land, which may be in one or more parcels, with the improvements thereon; the homestead in a city, town or village, consisting of a lot or lots, not to exceed in value five thousand dollars at the time of their designation as a homestead, without reference to the value of any improvements thereon; provided, that the same shall be used for the purposes of a home, or as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of a family; provided, also, that any temporary renting of the homestead shall not change the character of the same when no other homestead has been acquired. [Acts 1897, p. 131.]
1. But one homestead allowed.
2. Effect of having other property.
3. Estate or interest sustaining homestead right.
   4. --- Building.
   5. --- Leasehold.
   6. --- Life estate.
   7. --- Mortgaged land.
   8. --- Tenants in common.
   9. --- Partnership property.
10. Intent to acquire homestead.
11. Use and occupation as homestead necessary.
12. --- Character and mode of use or occupancy.
13. Purpose of occupancy and use.
14. --- Illegitimate business.
15. --- Business homestead.
16. Character of homestead as urban or rural.
17. --- Extent and value of homestead.
18. --- Homestead in town or village.
20. Separate tracts or lots.
21. Part of building.
22. Time of acquisition of homestead.
23. Change of homestead.
24. --- Evidence of homestead right.
25. Crops on homestead.
26. Rents and royalties.
27. Abandonment of homestead.
28. --- Consent of wife.

2. Effect of having other property.—The fact that a person claiming a homestead had other property held not to preclude him from setting up such a claim. Purtner v. Edgewood Distilling Co., 16 C. A. 359, 41 S. W. 184.

3. Estate or interest sustaining homestead right.—A homestead may be established on land held by tenants in common, but not to prejudice the right of the co-tenant. Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 150; Swearingen v. Bassett, 65 T. 267; Luhn v. Stone, 65 T. 439.

4. Homestead right of the wife attaches to any interest in land owned by husband and wife in common or by either separately. Such a right will attach to an equitable estate, an estate for life, or to a leasehold interest. Baines v. Baker, 60 T. 135; Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

While the title of a vendee who has not paid for land occupied by him as homestead is not good as against his vendor, as against all others his title is good. Lee v. Welborne, 71 T. 600, 9 S. W. 471.

The homestead right will attach to an equitable estate, an estate for life, or a leasehold interest. Phillips v. Warner, 4 App. C. C. § 147, 16 S. W. 425.

The wife's homestead rights attach to separate property of the husband when occupied, equally as if it were community. Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

Possession of improvement and payment of price under parol sale of land give vendee a title to which a homestead may attach. Dotson v. Barnett, 16 C. A. 253, 41 S. W. 99.

Where vendor's lien notes on land which became a homestead after delivery of the notes are paid, the homestead rights of the maker's wife attach. James v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 26.

Where land had been occupied adversely by a husband and wife as a homestead for 10 years, it could not be disposed of by the husband without the consent of the wife. Hennessy v. Savings & Loan Co., 22 C. A. 591, 55 S. W. 124.

Where real estate is conveyed in trust for children, and a life estate retained by husband and wife in interest therein, a sufficient estate in the co-widow to enable them to establish a homestead on the land. Silverman v. Landrum (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 107.

Evidence considered, and held, that a homestead right could not attach to property deeded with a reservation of a life estate, during the life of the life tenant. Hampton v. Gilliam, 23 C. A. 87, 56 S. W. 573.

Intention of remainderman to occupy land as homestead on expiration of life estate will not give homestead right. Loessin v. Washington, 23 C. A. 515, 57 S. W. 990.

Where a husband and wife have held peaceable adverse possession of real estate for 10 years, cultivating and enjoying the same, the wife's title thereto cannot be impaired by the husband's executing a lease of it without the wife's knowledge. Williams v. City of Georgetown (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 551.
A homestead right can be asserted, as against all but the state, by a purchaser of school lands, though 'part of the price is not paid. Gibbons v. Hall (Civ. App.) 59 S. W.
814.
Homestead right held to have attached to premises, prior to an incumbrance by the husband, so that the wife's interest could not be devested without a conveyance in which she joined, or by abandonment. Texas Land & Mortg. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.)
67 S. W. 173.
It is not necessary that a debtor should hold an assignable interest in land to claim an exemption thereof as his homestead. Birdwell v. Burleson, 31 C. A. 31, 72 S. W.
446.
That property to which defendants held title and occupied as their homestead was not paid for did not give them a homestead right, except as against the vendor or the
A conveyance to complainant in fee simple with a condition subsequent is sufficient to support his claim that the property is exempt as homestead. Tracy v. Harbin, 40 C.
A. 395, 88 S. W. 898.
A wife is not entitled to homestead in land on which she resides, where her husband has never been the legal or equitable owner thereof. Elam v. Carter, 55 C. A. 648, 119
S. W. 914.
The adverse possession by husband and wife with a view of acquiring title to a homestead creates only an inchoate right to the land, and at any time before the title is perfected the possession may, regardless of the consent of the wife, be interrupted,

4. Building.—A house, although the owner has no interest or estate in the land on which it stands, is exempt from the home of the family or a place of business. Cullera v.
James, 66 T. 494, 1 S. W. 314.
5. Leasehold.—The following charge defines a homestead in the leasehold interest in land: "If you believe from the evidence that plaintiff rented for the year 1857 the land, on which was raised the cotton while an execution was pending, and was also a tenant on said land, and that said land was the homestead of himself and family for that year and occupied as such, though for only one year, then the sale of the crop, under the law, would be exempt as a growing crop on his homestead, not subject to sale under defendant's execution." Phillips v. Warner, 4 App. C. C.
§ 147, 16 S. W. 423.

and had title to the same conveyed to his children, with a life estate only in himself,
The owner of a life estate in land may assert a homestead therein. Powell v. Ott
(Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1014.
7. Mortgaged land.—A homestead may be designated upon mortgaged land.
8. Tenants in common.—The head of a family, residing on a tract of 50 acres of land, situated a mile distant from another tract of 246 acres, which also belongs to him, and on which he and children of his wife claimed homestead rights in the entire property, held, that such rights attached only to the interest owned by her deceased husband at the time the trust deed was executed; second, improvements made by the decedent with the separate funds of his wife upon the property entitled her to protection pro tanto; third, all children of the deceased party were necessary parties to the action by the creditor seeking an enforcement of the trust on the property; fourth, partition should be made in such manner as to protect the interests of all the parties in the property. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210.
M. owned an undivided interest of one-third in a tract of land containing 200 acres, and claimed the same as his homestead. M.'s interest in the land having been sold under a judgment against him, the purchaser claimed that M.'s homestead interest was restricted to the 200 acres of land which included his improvements, and did not extend to his interest in the remaining 100 acres. Held, that such rights attached only to the interest owned by her deceased husband at the time the trust deed was executed; second, improvements made by the decedent with the separate funds of his wife upon the property entitled her to protection pro tanto; third, all children of the deceased party were necessary parties to the action by the creditor seeking an enforcement of the trust on the property; fourth, partition should be made in such manner as to protect the interests of all the parties in the property. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210.

to protect the interests of all the parties in the property. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210.
M. owned an undivided interest of one-third in a tract of land containing 200 acres, and claimed the same as his homestead. M.'s interest in the land having been sold under a judgment against him, the purchaser claimed that M.'s homestead interest was restricted to the 200 acres of land which included his improvements, and did not extend to his interest in the remaining 100 acres. Held, that such rights attached only to the interest owned by her deceased husband at the time the trust deed was executed; second, improvements made by the decedent with the separate funds of his wife upon the property entitled her to protection pro tanto; third, all children of the deceased party were necessary parties to the action by the creditor seeking an enforcement of the trust on the property; fourth, partition should be made in such manner as to protect the interests of all the parties in the property. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210.

A tenant in common, who establishes and improves a homestead on the common property, is entitled to have allotted to him the portion of the land so improved, or so much of it as may be equal in value to his share of the entire tract, independent of the improvements. Parr v. Newby, 73 T. 468, 11 S. W. 490; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 156; Jenkins v. Vois, 54 T. 639.

The head of a family is entitled, as against creditors, to a full 200-acre homestead, with improvements, out of a 400-acre tract in which he has an undivided half interest. Carroll v. Jeffries, 39 C. A. 126, 57 S. W. 1060.

Homestead rights in land held as tenants in common can be claimed to 200 acres of land, whose homestead of 160 acres equals the other 240 acres in value, has no interest in 40 additional acres. Id.

A tenant in common may acquire a homestead in land owned in common with others. Powell v. Ott (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1019.

9. Partnership property.—A partner in a solvent firm may designate his interest in partnership realty as a part of his homestead, either as a residence or place of business. Meuringen v. Bassett, 65 T. 267.

A partner held entitled to a homestead in firm lands, subject to rights of copartners. Gordon v. McCall, 29 C. A. 253, 48 S. W. 1111.

As against the creditors of a firm, a partner who has built a house and resides on firm land, may select a homestead, including his improvements. Williams v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 56.

One partner, without consent of the other, cannot select a homestead out of two tracts belonging to the firm in an irregular form, so as to include all the improvements on both tracts. Id.

One partner, residing on the firm property which is used for milling purposes, cannot, without his copartner’s consent, select a homestead therein, so as to include the mill and its fixtures. Allen v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 64.

A person, residing on partnership lands with his copartner’s consent, can claim a homestead in such land. Id.

10. Intent to acquire homestead.—A designation of premises, accompanied by acts of preparation and followed by residence, will protect the homestead; but until the homestead rights are vested the intention may be abandoned. Kempner v. Comer, 73 T. 194, 11 S. W. 194.

Homestead rights attach to a lot that is purchased with the intention of improving it as a home and fenced and shade trees planted and sidewalks built. Bell et al. v. Greathouse, 20 C. A. 475, 49 S. W. 258.

Land held to be a widower’s homestead, where he lived on it, while intending to make it a home for himself and a minor child when he got through school in another state. Crehan v. Bray (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 622.

The grantor of a deed of trust held not to have had homestead rights in property conveyed; and hence his subsequent conveyance thereof, after foreclosure of such deed trust, passed no title. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 781.

Answers of jury to special interrogatories in an action to recover rent, sold under execution and claimed by plaintiff as a homestead, held to sustain judgment for plaintiff. Foley v. Holtkamp, 28 C. A. 123, 66 S. W. 891.

Property of a husband during his lifetime can only be set apart as a homestead by acts of his indicating an intent to so designate the property. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 129, 107 S. W. 141.

Statement of what must be shown to sustain right to homestead, where the property was not actually occupied when the claim arose. Dinwiddie v. Tims, 52 C. A. 72, 114 S. W. 400.

Elements of intention necessary to impress on unoccupied premises a homestead character under the Constitution, stated. Parker v. Cook, 57 C. A. 234, 122 S. W. 419.

The act of a husband residing in Oklahoma in secretly leaving his wife, and going with their children to Texas, where he purchased land and resided on it with the children for about 15 months, when he sold it to defendant, indicated an intent to impress the land with the character of a homestead, so that the wife was entitled to the benefit of her discovery of the whereabouts of the husband and children after the husband had sold the land. Crutchley v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 658.

11. Use and occupation as homestead necessary.—The use of property as a home must co-exist with the intention that it shall be a home to invest it with the homestead character. Fort v. Powell, 59 T. 321; Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Felder (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 64.

Where a family occupy a homestead, the homestead right will not attach to another tract of land purchased and improved with the intention to occupy it as a residence at some future time. Bray v. Alkin, 60 T. 688.

Where there has been no previous occupation of land as a homestead, to invest it with that quality it is essential that there be an existing bona fide intention to dedicate the property as a homestead, accompanied with such acts of preparation and subsequent occupation as will amount to notice of a dedication. Gardner v. Douglas, 64 T. 76, citing Franklin v. Combs, 18 T. 417, 70 Am. Dec. 292; Barnes v. White, 53 T. 628; Brooks v. Chatham, 57 T. 31; Swope v. Stantzenberger, 59 T. 389; Sowera v. Peterson, 59 T. 215; Burgher v. Henderson, 9 C. A. 521, 29 S. W. 522.

The occupation of real estate by husband and wife with an existing intention to make it their homestead constitutes it then the duration of such occupancy. A subsequent removal with no intention of abandonment does not defeat the homestead rights, even when a purchaser had no notice of former occupancy. Parr v. Newby, 73 T. 468, 11 S. W. 490.

A head of a family occupying a house and lot in a town under a five years’ lease cannot establish a homestead right in rural property never occupied by him by improvements made with reference to its future use as a residence, so as to defeat a mortgage thereon executed by him. Johnston v. Martin, 51 T. 18, 16 S. W. 550.
Dedication of unoccupied land as a homestead is not shown by the erection of a building thereon, the intention to use and occupy it not being otherwise shown. Collier v. Betterton, 29 S. W. 490, 8 C. A. 479.

A homestead is not established by an intention to occupy land as such, accompanied by trilling acts of preparation. Bente v. Lange, 29 S. W. 512, 8 C. A. 528; Wolf v. Butler, 28 S. W. 51, 8 C. A. 449.

A homestead is not dedicated by a mere intention to occupy the land as such. Adams v. Kaufman, 11 C. A. 179, 32 S. W. 712.

To constitute a homestead, there must be actual occupancy as such or present intent to so occupy and acts indicating such intent. Willerson v. Jones (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1046.

A woman after her second marriage, moved off of some property inherited from her first husband, who never lived upon it, and her sons remained in possession. When she died she left the property to her sons, who claimed it as their mother’s homestead. Held, such property is not exempt from the payment of decedent’s debts, as it was not her homestead. Craddock v. Burleson, 21 C. A. 259, 55 S. W. 644.

That husband and wife intend to live on certain land as their homestead does not make it their homestead before they occupy or improve it. Muckelroy v. House, 21 C. A. 673, 52 S. W. 1058.

An intention to occupy property at a future time as a homestead held not to create a homestead right. O’Brien v. Woeltz, 94 T. 145, 55 S. W. 945, 58 Am. St. Rep. 829.

The intention of a householder and his wife to move onto a farm owned by them when they were able to build thereon was not sufficient to impress the farm with the character of a homestead. George v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 138.

Land not used and claimed as a homestead held not to be treated as such, to the exclusion of land so used, when the owner mortgaged the latter land, though he made oath it was not his homestead. Temple v. Watkins Land Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1188. To constitute an intention in the future in the possession of land sufficient to render it exempt as homestead property. Johnson v. Burton, 39 C. A. 249, 87 S. W. 181.

Certain property, never having been occupied by a husband and wife as a family residence, held not to have constituted a homestead as a matter of law. Steves v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

A party sold his saloon business for $1,800, part in cash and notes and $400 in a piece of land with house on it, in which he never lived but said he intended it for a homestead, and not to use it. Under the circumstances the property was not exempt as a homestead from forced sale. McGovern v. Taliaferro (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 815.

Lots intended for a homestead held not subject to a mortgage executed by the owner and his wife. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. J. M. Sharp & Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 180.

Under the constitutional provision relating to homesteads on premises not in a city, and stating that the homestead shall be used as a home or a place to exercise the calling of the head of the family, a carpenter, who avows his intention of working at his trade, refusing to reside on the farm because he cannot make a living on it, and who does not intend to occupy it until he can pursue his calling in the vicinity of the homestead so as to enable him to support his family, and whose only excuse for not occupying the premises is its unfitness to make a living on, and who delays settling on the premises for almost a year before an action to enjoin the levy of an execution against the property to satisfy a judgment against him, cannot claim a homestead in such action. Park v. Cook, 57 C. A. 238, 125 S. W. (Civ. App.) 415.

A lot of land purchased by a debtor’s wife with an intent to erect a music room, to be used in connection with the debtor’s teaching business and conveyed to him, held not to constitute a part of the debtor’s business homestead. Harrington v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 650.

If one has never lived on property, a secret intent to occupy it as a home at some indefinite time in the future would not invest it with a homestead character; but, if he bought it and would be allowed a reasonable time to make necessary arrangements to occupy it as such; but his intent to so occupy it must be shown by acts of preparation begun with reasonable promptness, and its occupancy cannot be delayed merely as a shelter to his family. Parson v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1084.

Where the owners of land did not live upon it, and rented it out, and there was no house thereon, a mere vague intention to make it a homestead in the future cannot render it such. Wiseman v. Watters (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 134.

Though when one exchanged his house for wild, unimproved land he declared an intention to subsequently make it his home, and afterwards, while trying to sell it, stated that if he did not sell it he intended some time to live on it, yet, he having done nothing to improve it, and been prevented by various circumstances from moving on it, he could not claim it as homestead property. Black v. Hans (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 221.

Plaintiffs in trespass to try title could not assert a homestead exemption in land which they had never used or occupied as a homestead. Cook v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 279.

Character and mode of use or occupancy.—A lot adjoining a lot used for a homestead is not thereby exempt, unless it is also used as a part of the homestead. Andrews v. Hagadon, 54 T. 571; Pereyev v. Kottwitz, 54 T. 497.

An uninclosed lot in a city on which the owner occasionally stakes out his horse or cattle to graze exclusive of others, does not bring the lot within the homestead exemption. Effinger v. Cates, 61 T. 590.

A fence separating a lot from that which is occupied as a homestead, and is erected under circumstances showing that it was the intention of the owner to rent it permanently, accompanied by the execution of a deed of trust thereon, with a declaration of abandonment of the homestead right, it is not exempt. Stringer v. Swenson, 62 T. J. See Medienka v. Downing, 58 T. 32.

The following are the test of other property as a home, which may be still owned by husband and wife, becomes immaterial, if at the time of the levy the property seized under
1. Execution was actually occupied and used as the home residence. Ingle v. Lee, 70 T. 609, 4 S. W. 325.

A married man with family owned two adjoining lots under one inclosure. He leased one of the lots, upon which was a house. Becoming involved, he obtained possession of the leased lot and appropriated it to home uses. He had the legal right to do so, for the house built thereon for his debts, if driven from liens and if unoccupied, it was fixed by his creditors. Milburn Wagon Co. v. Kennedy, 75 T. 212, 18 S. W. 28.

A lot selected for a home, upon which improvements are commenced, does not lose its exemption by reason of temporary absence. Dobkins v. Kuykendall, 81 T. 180, 16 S. W. 743.

K., having a wife and children, owning no land, bought an unimproved tract for a home. At once they selected the place thereon for the house, laid a stone foundation, and had the house uncompleted; building elsewhere. They bought land elsewhere; the husband and wife parted; the wife and children returned to the land. Held, the testimony showed facts sufficient to complete the homestead rights.

Vacant lots are impressed with the homestead character by an intention and preparation to use them as homes, Co. v. Embree, 55 T. 615, 34 Am. St. Rep. 822; Gallagher v. Keller, 87 T. 472, 29 S. W. 647; Id., 4 C. A. 454, 23 S. W. 296; King v. Wright (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 530.

Improvements on a lot preparatory to its occupancy, with intention to occupy it, evidence of homestead rights. Gallagher v. Keller (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 248.

Homestead rights cannot attach to separate and distinct houses, although each may at some time have been occupied by the owner as a residence. Hendrick v. Hendrick, 12 C. A. 49, 34 S. W. 894.

The mere depositing of dirt upon a lot to fill depressions is not such an act of preparation as will, in connection with intention, give it the homestead character. Churchwell v. Sweeney, 29 C. A. 166, 68 S. W. 185.

It is essential to constitute a homestead that the parties asserting it shall have actually moved part of their belongings thereon. Davidson v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 822.

Defendant's possession of land awarded to one of his minor children by a partition decree held to exempt that part of the tract inherited by him through the death of one child as his homestead. Birdwell v. Burleson, 31 C. A. 31, 72 S. W. 446.

A tract of land held as a matter of law not to be the homestead of the owner. Ryon v. George, 32 C. A. 504, 75 S. W. 48.

Certain property held used "for purposes of the home" and a part of the homestead. Lacour v. L. W. Levy & Co., 49 C. A. 163, 108 S. W. 190.

Property upon which a materialman's lien was attempted to be fixed held the owner's homestead, so that the liens were void. Republic Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 317.

13. Purpose of occupancy and use.—Where a detached lot is continuously used in connection with the home residence so as to contribute to the comfort of the home place, as for a pasture or stable in which to keep the domestic animals of the family, it is invested with the homestead character. Axer v. Bassett, 63 T. 546; Blum v. Whitworth, 66 T. 360, 1 S. W. 108; Effinger v. Cates, 61 T. 590; Little v. Baker (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 305.

A person occupying land in which he has an inheritable interest, and continuing to occupy it after descent, with a manifest intention to appropriate it as a homestead, accompanied by acts illustrating his purpose, acquires a homestead interest therein, which will attach to such portion of the land as may be set apart to him, on partition, with the other heirs. Crabtree v. Whiteselle, 65 T. 111; Luhn v. Stone, 65 T. 439.

Lots in a block in a town or city not actually improved or used in connection with the homestead are not exempt. Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110; Blum v. Rogers, 78 T. 531, 15 S. W. 115; Langston v. Maxey, 74 T. 155, 12 S. W. 27; Cullum v. Price (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 711.

The mill house of a miller with the land upon which it is situated, the mill yard and adjacent outhouses used in connection therewith are exempt. Maroney Hardware Co. v. Connellie (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 448.

A part of a house standing upon lots exempted as a homestead cannot be subjected to forced sale on the ground that such part of the property is leased or rented for other purposes. Foggard v. Ford, 87 T. 185, 27 S. W. 57, 25 L. R. A. 155.

The use of a land in a city, detached from that on which the family resides, to raise products for home consumption, is a use of such property for the purposes of a home. Waggener v. Haskell, 13 C. A. 669, 36 S. W. 711; Steves v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 1026.

Evidence held to show that certain premises were a homestead, notwithstanding there were two tenements thereon, one of which was rented. Storrie v. Woesner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 837.

A lot on which the owner built a residence, which she rented for 15 years, to obtain revenue to live elsewhere, is not a homestead. McDonald v. Ortiz (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 473.

The principal use to which land is applied determines its character. Where house is built for and let to tenants though a part of the lot on which it is built is used as a garden for ornamentation and for ingress and egress to the dwelling house, such user does not make the gardener a tenant. v. Littie, 21 C. A. 380.

So much of a lot adjacent to the owner's residence as is occupied by his barn is a part of his homestead. Wurzbach v. Mengel, 27 C. A. 290, 65 S. W. 673.

The use of land determines its character, as to whether it is a homestead or not. Harris v. Matthews, 36 C. A. 424, 81 S. W. 1198.

Where a person is possessed of several different parcels of land, aggregating over 200 acres, all of which are used for the purpose of a home, he has the right to designate any 200 acres his homestead, though the use may be a mere convenience and produce little or no revenue. Pickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

Part of a lot adjoining a homestead was segregated from it and cannot be claimed as exempt, where that part had been improved and leased for business purposes, and the only use of it by the family was to occasionally store a few articles of household use.

furniture, and brief use as a cigar factory. Blair v. Park Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 718.

The principal use of land must be considered in determining whether it is exempt as a homestead. Id.

14. Illegitimate business.—A place where business prohibited by the penal laws, such as gambling, is conducted, is not protected; and, even if it is innocent, conducted simply to conceal that which was illegal. Tillman v. Brown, 64 T. 181; Chase v. Swann, 88 T. 218, 30 S. W. 1046, 53 Am. St. Rep. 742.

15. Business homestead.—Where a lot in a town is occupied as a place of business, another homestead in a way incidentally useful or profitable in carrying on such business will not exempt it from forced sale. McDonald v. Campbell, 57 T. 614.

The Constitution of 1876 extended the exemption to the place of business of the head of the family. Inge v. Cain, 65 T. 75; Miller v. Menke, 56 T. 539; Wright v. Straub, 64 T. 64, 38 S. W. 317. This protection exists only as long as it is used. Shryock v. Latimer, 57 T. 674; Wright v. Straub, 64 T. 64; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 320; Griffee v. Maxey, 58 T. 214; Harle v. Richards, 78 T. 10, 38 S. W. 257; Hill v. Estate of R. B. Hill, 85 T. 103, 19 S. W. 1016; Hull v. Naumberg, 1 C. A. 182, 20 S. W. 1126. Where the owner of a business has his business engaged in another business, the exemption is not necessarily lost thereby. Bowman v. Watson, 66 T. 295, 1 S. W. 273. But if the head of the family dies while using it as his place of business, the property passes to his widow and heirs as a part of the homestead. Cliff v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64.

as to where a part of a homestead house of the head of a family, the remaining portions of the lots are exempt from forced sale, unless it is shown that such part is put to some use other than that connected with the business.

The lots must be used as the place where the head of the family exercises his calling or business. It is his workshop, office or other place where he habitually is, in the course of his calling, and not any other lot or building which he may incidentally use in connection with it. Hinzle v. Moody, 1 C. A. 26, 20 S. W. 769.

The constitution exempts not only a "lot" but "lots" as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of a family, and does not restrict this calling or business to any single branch or department. Schneider v. Campbell, 1 C. A. 314, 21 S. W. 65.

A business homestead can be established by the intention to appropriate the property as a place of business. Wolf v. Butler, 28 S. W. 61, 8 C. A. 468.

One or more adjoining places of business can only claim one as a business homestead. Parrish v. Frey, 18 C. A. 271, 44 S. W. 322.

The question of whether a building erected in place of one's business homestead, which had been burned, was a business homestead, held to depend on the owner's intention. Kahlke v. Carruthers, 18 C. A. 216, 45 S. W. 182. A business homestead upon the death of a husband remains as such to the wife where she continues to use it as a place of business. Evans v. Pace, 21 C. A. 368, 51 S. W. 1094.

An owner of a gin bought a lot and house adjoining, used it as a place for his hired man, who looked after the gin, to sleep. Held, such house and lot did not constitute a part of the business homestead.

Property cannot be held as a part of a business homestead unless situated in contiguity with it. Woeltz v. Woeltz (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 905.

Neither a husband conducting two businesses in different places, nor his wife on his death, can claim both properties as exempt business homesteads. Wingfield v. Hackney, 30 C. A. 39, 69 S. W. 446.

One carrying on business, at intervals when health permits, indiscriminately in two places, held not entitled to claim one of them as a business homestead, unless he was using it when it was levied on. Gibbs v. Hartenstein (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 59.

A business homestead established by a debtor as a business homestead, was an entirety, occupancy sufficient to exempt any part thereof was sufficient to exempt the whole. Billings v. Matlage, 36 C. A. 619, 82 S. W. 805.

Lots held not exempt as a part of the homestead within the place preserving the place of business, as a part of the homestead under certain conditions. Schmick v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 568.

The pursuit of rooms held not the pursuit of a calling or business within the Constitution relating to homesteads. Lyon v. Files, 60 C. A. 630, 110 S. W. 999.

Certain facts held to show that parcels of land were a part of a business homestead. Rowe v. Island Plow Co., 12 C. A. 276, 111 S. W. 973.

Where property was originally purchased by a debtor's wife for the erection of a building to be used as a music room in connection with the debtor's teaching business, 2798 but the debtor thereafter purchased the lot from his wife and persuaded her not to build the music room on it. At the time the lot was bought, he was still a student, and at the time the music room was completed and occupied, it was not exempt as a part of the debtor's business homestead. Harrington v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 650.

Where a school teacher maintained a normal college where pupils were taught and boarded on a lot of land not connected from that on which the college buildings were located, and used as a baseball ground and to raise vegetables to supply the students' tables, were not exempt as his business homestead. Id.

18. Character of homestead as urban or rural. — There can be no blending of urban and rural homesteads. A part of a homestead which was within the limits of the city under the Thirty-seventh Amendment to the Constitution of 1870, was not exempt from the levy of execution for the debts of its owners, see Welcher v. Lasley, 69 N. Y. 377. See also Ariz. v. Hyndman, 33 S. W. 711; Keith v. Hyndman, 57 T. 425; Swearingen v. Bassett, 65 T. 271; Williams v. Willis, 84 T. 398, 19 S. W. 683. See Foost v. Sanger, 13 C. A. 410, 25 S. W. 404.

To establish an exception to the rule that homestead rights cannot be blended so that an exemption can be partly in town and partly in the country, the burden of establishing facts making a case an exception to the rule devolved upon the claimant. Keith v. Hyndman, 67 T. 425.

A homestead may be within the corporate limits of a city, and still be rural, within Const. art. 16, § 61. Wilder v. McConnell, 91 T. 600, 45 S. W. 146.

Land held not to lose its character of rural homestead by the fact that it was included within city limits the owner platted part of it. Atkinson v. Phares, 20 C. A. 150, 49 S. W. 653.

Certain lots held to be urban property in a suit to enjoin the levy of execution thereon on the ground that they were part of plaintiff's rural homestead. Harris v. Matthews, 36 C. A. 424, 51 S. W. 1198.

A rural homestead may be changed into an urban homestead and, after such change, the land acquired is not within the homestead limit which is not actually used for homestead purposes, loses its homestead character. Ayres v. Patton, 61 C. A. 186, 111 S. W. 1079.

In determining whether a homestead is urban or rural, the corporate line does not control. First Nat. Bank v. Litchfield (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 350.

17. Extent and value of homestead. — There is no limit as to the value of the improvements on a residence homestead in a city, town or village. Chase v. Swayne, 88 T. 218, 30 S. W. 1049, 63 Am. St. Rep. 742.

The extension of the corporate limits of a town over a rural homestead, though 30 acres and the house are within the city limits. Part Exchange Bank v. Huten, 21 C. A. 286, 52 S. W. 278.

Where one resided on a 16-acre tract within a town, adjoining a larger tract used for pasturing, and there was a small farm about the middle of the tract, the homestead could not be extended to any of the tract which lay without the town limits. Batts v. Middlesex Banking Co., 26 C. A. 515, 63 S. W. 1046.

Where original homestead was not worth $5,000 when so designated by debtor, but was worth more when he acquired other property, creditor held not entitled to excess in original homestead, unless debtor insisted on holding after-acquired land as part of such homestead. Fitzhugh v. Connor, 32 C. A. 277, 74 S. W. 83.

Property occupied by a husband and wife held homestead, so that the husband could not convey a railroad right of way by a deed in which the wife did not join. Gulf, B. & S. R. R. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 817.

A homestead in town or village. — Evidence held to show that a mortgagor's homestead was in a village, within the meaning of the Constitution, and that farm by him mortgaged was therefore no part of such homestead. Mikael v. Equitable Securities Co., 32 C. A. 182, 74 S. W. 67.

The extension of the corporate limits of a city to include a rural homestead does not, of itself, affect the pre-existing homestead rights of the owner. Clark v. Nolan, 38 T. 421. But the rule does not apply when the owner acquires and dedicates streets, etc. Waggener v. Haskell (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 74.

A city extended so as to bring within its limits a rural homestead. Held, that the fact that the owners divided it into different lots and built houses on it, which they rented and used to support the family, did not destroy its homestead character. Wilder v. McConnell (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 807.

A homestead may be within corporate limits and still rural as to the exemption. This is a case where rural homestead is included in city limits without consent of owner. Wilder v. McConnell, 91 T. 600, 45 S. W. 146.

Where a real estate owner acquires an adjacent tract, and the first tract is afterwards included in a village, the entire tract constitutes an urban homestead, and the latter tract cannot be held under execution, even if it was issued after the first tract was included in the village. Latham v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 70.

Where a city is authorized to extend its corporate limits so as to include agricultural lands, a homestead right in such lands must be determined by the conditions existing when such right is questioned, and not at the time when such property was acquired. Lauchheimer v. Saunders, 27 C. A. 484, 65 S. W. 600.
Constitutional guaranty of homestead does not prevent its character as urban or rural at the time of its acquisition from being changed by actual extension of a town around the same. L. H. Lauchheimer & Sons v. Saunders, 97 T. 137, 76 S. W. 750.

20. Separate tracts or lots.—When tracts of land claimed as a rural homestead are widely separate, they are within the homestead protection if used for homestead purposes; but when the rural homestead has been fixed on one of them, there must be such use of the whole tract as to make it a single parcel to invest in a homestead character which would be required to make an original designation of a homestead. Brooks v. Chatham, 57 T. 51. See Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 195. As to renting a rural homestead, see Foreman v. Meroney, 42 T. 723. Under the constitutions of 1845, 1856 and 1869, in order for several city lots to constitute one homestead they had to be used for homestead purposes, and not merely as a place of business for the head of the family. Inge v. Cain, 65 T. 76; Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 1356. See, also, Hand v. Hancock, 17 T. 592.

Homestead may be established on one or more lots in a town or city. Bailey v. Bauknigh (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 56.

A tract distant four miles from that on which debtor resided, both being used for raising garden truck, and necessary for support of debtor's family, held part of homestead, though rented out on shares. Badeischwiler v. Ship, 21 C. A. 86, 50 S. W. 644.

A party living on a lot, in a village containing a schoolhouse and a few residences, and cultivating a farm in the county, can claim both as a homestead. Crisp v. Thrash (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 92.

Two adjoining lots held to constitute a homestead, though they had separate houses on each. Weidemeyer v. Bryan, 21 C. A. 428, 53 S. W. 553.

Residence of claimants on separate tract held not inconsistent with their claim. Maupin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 633.

Land held not deprived of homestead character by mere fact of family's residence on lots forming part of addition to city. Jolly v. Diehl, 38 C. A. 549, 86 S. W. 965.

Land outside a town held not part of the homestead of one residing in the town. Parker v. L. Moody & Co., 43 C. A. 492, 96 S. W. 659.

A parcel of land, though detached from the homestead property, held a part of the homestead within the constitution. Autry v. Reesor, 102 T. 123, 108 S. W. 1162.

A 57-acre tract in the country forms no part of a homestead consisting of a block in an unincorporated town. Dignowity v. Lindheim (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 966.

Lots in intervening lots held not a part of a business homestead. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Alten, 102 T. 356, 116 S. W. 1144.

Where one owning several tracts of land wishes to select his homestead, the tracts must be considered one, and he may select any part thereof not embracing more than 200 acres. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 52 C. A. 66, 119 S. W. 728.

An urban homestead given by Const. art. 16, § 51, providing that such homestead shall consist of a lot or lots not exceeding $5,000 in value, may consist of a lot or lots, contiguous to or separated from each other, provided they are put to such uses as contribute to the enjoyment of the home. Harrington v. Mayo (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 650.

Land on which the college building of a school teacher was situated held exempt as his business homestead, but not so as to disconnected parcels of land on which students were boarded. Id.

Where a debtor maintained a college, disconnected tracts of land used as a baseball ground and as a vegetable garden held not exempt as the debtor's business homestead. Id.

Part of a lot adjoining a homestead held segregated from it and not subject to exemption. Blair v. Park Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 718.

A rural homestead may consist of separate and disconnected tracts of land, provided they do not exceed 200 acres. Dillard v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 662.

21. Part of building.—Homestead exemption held to extend to abandoned part of a building, where such part was not separated or partitioned from the main building. Bente v. Sullivan, 52 C. A. 454, 115 S. W. 350.

Vacant lots conveyed to plaintiff, who agreed to furnish money with which to erect a house thereon, and reconvey to grantor, serving a vendor's lien for money advanced, did not become grantor's homestead until reconveyance, and hence was not exempt from the lien. East Town Co. v. Grigg, 93 T. 451, 96 S. W. 49.

23. Change of homestead.—Mere purchase of other property than that on which defendants resided as their homestead held insufficient to create a homestead right therein. Powars v. Palmer, 36 C. A. 212, 81 S. W. 817.

Where defendants' homestead rights in certain property were fully protected when a husband married, regardless of ownership of them, they could not acquire homestead rights in the property subject to such lien. Id.

The fact that at the time of marriage a woman was occupying her separate property as homestead and minor children did not prevent the husband, while acting in good faith, from moving his family therefrom and acquiring some other homestead. Duncan v. Hand (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 233.

24. Evidence of homestead right.—The positive and formal declaration of the husband and wife will not divest of the homestead protection urban property actually used as such. Kaufman v. Ruhl, 65 T. 722; Medlenka v. Downing, 53 T. 82; Jacobs v. Hawking, 63 T. L.
EXEMPTIONS

Art. 3786

The designation of a lot of land for homestead purposes may be shown by the acts of the owner before and after a levy and sale under execution. Gallagher v. Keller, 29 S. W. 647, 87 T. 472.

A finding that a lot adjoining plaintiff's residence lot was not a part of the homestead held justified by the evidence. Jones v. Lee (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 195.

Intent of wife in selecting homestead held admissible to show intent of husband, and the use of the land, it will be held such, though the owner and his wife testify they had no homestead intent. Batts v. Middlesex Banking Co., 26 C. A. 515, 63 S. W. 1046.

Evidence held to justify a finding that plaintiff, in an action to recover realty sold under execution, had formed an intention to occupy the land as homestead prior to the execution. Foley v. Holtkamp, 23 C. A. 123, 66 S. W. 891.

In trespass to try title to land sold to defendant under execution, the burden was on plaintiffs to establish their claim that the land was their homestead when defendant purchased. Collins v. Collins, 51 C. A. 223, 111 S. W. 665.

Defendant, who, after buying a lot and contracting for materials for a house thereon, left the county with his family because of indictments against him, has the burden of proving the purpose at the time plaintiff acquired material

Evidence in trespass to try title, in which plaintiff claimed under a purchase at a sale under a trust deed executed by defendant, held to sustain a finding that the land covered by the trust deed was not defendant's homestead. Roe v. Davis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 950.

Matured crops grown on, but not severed from, the homestead, are exempt from forced sale. Judson v. Saburn, 27 C. A. 239, 66 S. W. 45.

Unsevered crops on a tract of leased land, separate from another leased tract, where the dwelling is situated, and leased from another landlord, but occupied in connection therewith as a homestead, are exempt from attachment. Moore v. Graham, 29 C. A. 255, 69 S. W. 200.

Growing crops on one's homestead held not to have lost their exempt character. Stagg's Heirs v. Filand, 31 C. A. 245, 71 S. W. 762.

An ungathered crop on the homestead of a debtor is exempt from forced sale. Parker v. Hale (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 555.

Where land, though rented, was the homestead of the tenant, ungathered cotton was exempt from forced sale. Nunn-Weldon Dry Goods Co. v. Haden (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 72.

The seizure of cotton growing on the debtor's homestead, under writ of attachment, held wrongful, authorizing the debtor to recover damages for the wrongful attachment. Pate v. Vardenman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 317.

A mature and ungathered crop is not exempt from execution by reason of the nature of an interest in the homestead. Cunningham v. W. Looke, 155 C. A. 109, 97 S. W. 206.

Where a contract created the relation of landlord and tenant, plaintiff was entitled to claim crops grown on the land as exempt on the theory that they were the proceeds of his homestead. McCullough Hardware Co. v. Call (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 718.

Rent due from one trespassing on a homestead are exempt to the owner thereof. La Master v. Weldon, 47 C. A. 375, 43 S. W. 700.

27. Abandonment of homestead.—The fact that a part of the ground claimed as an urban homestead is used for purposes of mere convenience and pleasure will not divest it of its homestead character. Medlenka v. Downing, 50 T. 32.

The whole or any part of an urban homestead may be lost by abandonment or by the erection thereon of buildings inconsistent with the homestead use. Medlenka v. Downing, 50 T. 32; Wynne v. Hudson, 66 T. 1, 17 S. W. 110. But if such abandonment is attempted by the husband in fraud of the rights of a wife, or with intent to evade the prohibition against giving liens thereon, the property, being really still a part of the homestead, would continue impressed with the homestead character. Medlenka v. Downing, 50 T. 32.

The lapse of eight days between the cessation of business and the sale of the premises on which business was conducted, there having been no abandonment of the premises, will not destroy their exemption as a homestead. Scheuber v. Ballow, 64 T. 106.

A husband and wife agreed to separate, divided their rural homestead, and conveyed one-half to K. to hold in trust for the husband. The husband lived apart from his wife, but acquired no homestead exemption in the tract conveyed to K. was not divested. Crockett v. Templeton, 65 T. 134.
Abandoned homestead become subject to execution, without regard to intent of owner to put the property to different uses. Freeman v. Cates, 22 C. A. 625, 55 S. W. 524.

28. Consent of wife. — The abandonment by the husband alone defeats the homestead right of the children. Long-continued absence may be evidence of abandonment, but is not conclusive if there is an intention to return. Thorn v. Dill, 56 T. 145; Smith v. Uzeil, 56 T. 315; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 319.

An instruction held erroneous, as requiring a wife to concur with the husband in his intention to abandon the homestead. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Guliletem, 15 C. A. 469, 40 S. W. 225.

Renunciation by husband without consent of wife held a fraud on homestead right. Arnold v. Macdonald, 22 C. A. 487, 55 S. W. 529.

In an action by a husband and wife to recover from their homestead an innocent third person purchasing from plaintiffs' mortgagee, held, that the acts of the husband cannot affect the wife's interest. Blank v. Garner (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 918.

The determination of a husband to abandon his homestead is binding on his wife, who remained with him in his absence from the county. Rockwell Bros. & Co. v. Hudson, 67 T. 507, 123 S. W. 185.

A wife cannot be deprived of her homestead by her husband, without her consent, accepting a lease of it from a person who has no title thereto. Lumpkin v. Woods (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1139.

Where a husband and wife live on a homestead, the separate property of the husband, and the wife in legally devised Ine, so as to be incapacitated from consenting to a deed of the homestead by conjoint, and privy acknowledgment, and the husband, with homestead's, his under by the homestead, his sale, and after such removal, with no intent to defraud the wife, is valid, regardless of whether, at the time of the removal and abandonment, he intended to acquire another homestead, or whether another homestead had in fact been acquired. Gilley v. Troop (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 954.

A husband acting in good faith may abandon a homestead and acquire a new one, regardless of his wife's wishes. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

29. Absence from homestead and other acts. — The words "to use and occupy," whether reading in the title, section 52, of the constitute, does not require a residence on the land. When left either from necessity or convenience by the family, no Homestead abandoned if not occupied, when. Graves v. Campbell, 74 T. 579, 12 S. W. 490; Parer v. W. Aultman, 113 C. 73, 37 S. W. 167. A business homestead is abandoned by the cessation of business therein. Will v. Bounds, 25 S. W. 716, 6 C. A. 512; Tackaberry v. National Bank, 55 T. 495, 22 S. W. 151, 299. Homestead abandoned for three years prior to conveyance held subject to lien of prior judgment against the husband, held not to divest the homestead of the owner. Oppenheimer, 20 C. A. 149, 49 S. W. 148. Where a divorce decree gave the wife one half of the homestead absolutely, and the use of the other half during the children’s minority for their support, the husband’s oyster by judicial process, putting his wife in possession of the whole tract, held not to divest the homestead of her half right in the land, so that he could repossess it as a homestead after his wife sold her interest in the whole tract. Speer v. Goodnight v. Sykes, 102 T. 461, 119 S. W. 86, 132 Am. St. Rep. 896.

The mere fact that a married man had some kind of business at a particular place and that he was living there with his family, attending to it at the time of his death, did not show as matter of law an abandonment of his homestead located elsewhere. McComas v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 694. Removal from a homestead with a fixed intent not to return is an abandonment, though another homestead has not been acquired. Republic Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Wm. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 317. Where a widow occupying premises as a homestead married, and she and her husband voluntarily left the premises, with no intent on the part of the husband to again make the same a homestead of the family, the property became subject to execution sale. White v. Cowies (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 932. That a husband intended to sell out a livery business belonging to his wife and move to another place, will not constitute abandonment of the business homestead so long as he was actually in possession thereof, using and occupying it as such. Farmers’ State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

30. — Intent to return to homestead. — Abandonment of a homestead may be shown by long absence of the family and other circumstances tending to show an intention to abandon. Sanders v. Sheran, 68 T. 655, 2 S. W. 894. A qualified intention of one leaving a homestead not to return to it, if he can sell it and invest the proceeds in a home that will suit him better, is not an intention which, connected with domicile, will operate an abandonment. Id. A removal with no intention of abandonment does not defeat the homestead rights, even when a purchaser had no notice of former occupancy. Parr v. Newby, 73 T. 486, 11 S. W. 490. A rural homestead is not lost by a temporary absence for the purpose of schooling the children of the family. Reinstein v. Daniels, 75 T. 646, 13 S. W. 21; Aultman v. Allen, 12 C. A. 227, 33 S. W. 679.

That the head of the family when he left the homestead intended to return and use and occupy it is evidence that it was not abandoned. Rollins v. O’Farrel, 77 T. 96, 15 S. W. 1021; Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723; Graves v. Campbell, 74 T. 579, 12 S. W. 238; Locke v. Bonnell, 14 C. A. 354, 37 S. W. 250. A homestead exemption is lost by voluntarily leaving the homestead with the intention not to return, the husband and wife concurring. Myers v. Evans, 81 T. 217, 16 S. W. 1060; Reece v. Renfro, 68 T. 192, 4 S. W. 645; Graves v. Campbell, 74 T. 579, 12 S. W. 238; Archibald v. Jacobs, 6 S. W. 175, 69 T. 248; Mortgage Co. v. Norton, 71 T. 683, 10 S. W. 301; Fellart v. Decker, 72 T. 881, 10 S. W. 696; Kemper v. Comer, 73 T. 208, 11 S. W. 194. An offer to sell the homestead while temporarily absent is not evidence of abandonment. Aultman v. Allen, 12 C. A. 227, 33 S. W. 679.

An urban homestead is lost by abandonment with the intention not to return. Keller v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 667. Temporary abandonment of homestead and living on rented premises held not to forfeit homestead right. Building & Loan Ass’n of Dakota v. Guillemet, 15 C. A. 649, 40 S. W. 225. Where a father is compelled from sickness to leave his homestead, and his children find shelter elsewhere, it is not such an abandonment as to deprive his children of rights therein. Mealy v. Lipp, 16 C. A. 163, 40 S. W. 624. Family living off their homestead farm for eight years, for the purpose of educating their children in town, held not to be a conclusive abandonment of homestead. Gunn v. Wynne (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 290.

To prevent abandonment of a homestead, the intention to return and occupy and use it as must continue to exist in the mind of the owner, who has moved away. Schwartzman v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 113. A levy on a homestead is good if made after the formation of the intention of the owner to permanently abandon the property as his homestead. Bell v. Greathouse, 20 C. A. 478, 49 S. W. 258. Lease of business homestead, with intention of returning thereto on expiration of lease, held not to constitute an abandonment of homestead while intention to return continued. Alexander v. Lovitt (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 685. A homestead so far as its character as such by the owner’s removal to the homestead of his wife and residing there with her. Canning v. Andrews, 38 C. A. 233, 85 S. W. 22.

A removal to another state intended as temporary only and accompanied at all times during the absence by an intention to return and recoup the homestead will not defeat 2803
Abandonment of a homestead held accomplished by going away with the definite intention never to return. Sykes v. Speer (Clv. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

The intent to return, which will prevent a removal from a homestead from constituting an abandonment, must continue during the entire absence. Lynch v. McDow, 54 C. A. 390, 117 S. W. 884.

To constitute an abandonment of a homestead, it must appear that there was a removal with a fixed intention never to return. Armstrong v. Neville (Clv. App.) 117 S. W. 1010.

Conduct of a person held not to show a fixed intention never to return to his homestead.

The abandonment of a homestead by removal therefrom depends on whether the removal was with the fixed intention of not returning to the place as a home. Thigpen v. Russell, 55 C. A. 211, 118 S. W. 1080.

That the claimants of homestead received a deed of other property held not to show abandonment, if they at all times intended to return to the homestead. Id.

An offer to sell a homestead was not necessarily inconsistent with the claimants' intention to return thereto and reoccupy it as a home, if they did not sell. Id.

For removal from the homestead to be an abandonment, there must be an intent not to return, and when the intention not to return has not been formed, the homestead character is not destroyed, though another home has been acquired, for absence, however long, is merely a circumstance tending to show abandonment, and will not be conclusive where there are other circumstances showing an intent to return. Wiener v. Zweb (Clv. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

An abandonment of a homestead is accomplished only by removal therefrom coupled with an intention never to return. Herman v. Smith (Clv. App.) 141 S. W. 1087.

In the absence of the husband's or wife's absence, the homestead character of the homestead property will not be abandoned, either from necessity to make a living or other causes not of her own making, does not thereby lose her homestead rights. Id.

When a new homestead is not acquired, the total abandonment of the old one with the intention not to return must be clearly shown. Gouhenant v. Cockrell, 20 T. 98; Crow v. Alvords, 28 T. 534; Thomas v. Williams, 50 T. 374; Smith v. Uptown, 66 T. 315; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 323; Reece v. Renfro, 68 T. 194, 4 S. W. 545; Cantine v. Dennis (Clv. App.) 37 S. W. 184.

When a part of a homestead is sold, including the residence, the homestead right in the tract is divested until a new home is acquired. Scott v. Dyer, 60 T. 135, citing Shepherd v. Cassidy, 20 T. 24, 70 Am. Dec. 372; Gouhenant v. Cockrell, 20 T. 96. That the wife and family remained on the homestead until it could be sold for the purpose of defraying the expenses of joining her husband in another state is not sufficient. McDaniel v. Ragsdale, 71 T. 28, 8 S. W. 625, 10 Am. Rep. 729; Traders' Ins. Co. v. Chase, 11 C. A. 13, 81 S. W. 1103; Dobkins v. Kuykendall, 81 T. 180, 16 S. W. 743; Gallagher v. Keller (Clv. App.) 30 S. W. 248.

When the husband in good faith removes from a former homestead and with his wife occupies a new homestead, it operates as an abandonment of the original homestead. Slavin v. Wheeler, 61 T. 654. See Welborne v. Downing, 73 T. 527, 11 S. W. 505. And so when they remove from the state. Perry v. Scott, 63 T. 205, 7 S. W. 334.

The acquisition of another residence without intent to make it a homestead does not constitute a permanent abandonment of the original homestead. Baum v. Williams, 16 C. A. 497, 41 S. W. 840.

Where a woman who has a homestead marries and lives on the homestead of her husband, with no intent of repossessing herself of her former home, she cannot claim it as a homestead. Ghent v. Boyd, 18 C. A. 85, 43 S. W. 891.

Where plaintiff, after selling their original homestead, moved from it to the new homestead, made a partial payment thereon, and obligated himself to pay the balance, the original homestead was abandoned. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Clv. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

32. — Conveyance or sale.—When husband and wife unite in a conveyance of the homestead in order to abandon it, the homestead is divested. Edmondson v. Blessing, 42 T. 696; Blessing v. Edmondson, 49 T. 335. See Marier v. Handy, 68 T. 421, 31 S. W. 635.

A. sold his homestead and acquired another. His vendee executed to his vendor of the first homestead notes in lieu of other notes given by A. to the original vendor, with the agreement that they should be secured by a lien on the land. The land afterwards passed to another, that his vendee became the insolvent C. a note. He was responsible to the original vendor on the substituted notes. Thorne v. Dill, 56 T. 145.

A. and wife conveyed to B. their homestead, receiving payment, a part in cash and a note unsecured by a vendor's lien for the balance. A. afterward transferred the note to C. and canceled the trade, the former receiving from B. a conveyance of the land and executing to C. a note to be substituted in place of the note transferred by A. to C. Held, that the homestead right of A. and wife in the land was subject to the lien of the note so executed to C. Brooks v. Young, 60 T. 32.

A. sold his conveyance of a homestead, in contemplation of abandonment, and to be held for the grantor, subjects it to sale under execution. Willis v. Pounds, 25 S. W. 715, 6 C. A. 512.

EXEMPTIONS

Art. 3786

A new homestead cannot be established before the actual abandonment of the old homestead.

1d. A deed by a wife after her husband's death held not an abandonment of her homestead where grantor, pursuant to the deed, continues to live on the property. Wilson v. Fields (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1024.

Plaintiffs, being owners of one-half interest in lands subject to the occupancy of their mother as a homestead, on her abandonment of homestead after sale of her interest, became entitled to possession of the entire tract. De Garcia v. Losano (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 280.

A vendee of property under an absolute deed, alleged by creditors of the vendor to be a mortgage and to be paid in full, cannot set up as against the creditors that it is the vendor's homestead. Palm v. Chernowsky, 25 C. A. 405, 67 S. W. 165.

Where the holder of a homestead conveyed the same to one of the members of her family, but retained in possession, her possession as a tenant at sufferance was sufficient to sustain her right of homestead. American Nat. Bank v. Cruger, 31 C. A. 17, 71 S. W. 784.

The owner of a business homestead, by conveying to another, abandons his homestead. R. E. Bell Hardware Co. v. Riddle, 31 C. A. 411, 72 S. W. 614.

That one intends to sell his homestead, and not to invest the proceeds in another home, does not show conclusively an absolute intent to abandon it. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 590, 110 S. W. 181.

An intention and efforts to sell a homestead held not to constitute an abandonment thereof. Id.

Land adjoining the owner's residence, which had been improved and rented out, held subject to levy on execution. Williams v. Cleveland, 18 C. A. 123, 44 S. W. 659.

A homestead held not abandoned, where the owner divided the lot by a fence and rented a portion of it temporarily. Shook v. Shook, 21 C. A. 177, 60 S. W. 731.

Where a homesteader puts up a part of his residence homestead for a store and rents it, it loses its residence homestead character. King v. C. M. Hapgood Shoe Co., 21 C. A. 217, 51 S. W. 532.

When part of the homestead lot is detached and buildings erected thereon for the purposes of a temporarily rented such detached property ceases to be a part of the homestead. Torres v. Cuneo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 828.

A lease of a homestead held sufficient evidence to support a finding that there was such an abandonment as would render the property subject to execution. Warren v. Kohr, 26 C. A. 331, 64 S. W. 62.

The fact that houses on lots adjacent to the owner's residence have been rented for ten years or more, and that the rent money is necessary for the support of his family, is conclusive that the lots have been permanently set apart as tenant houses. Wurzbach v. Mengel, 27 C. A. 290, 65 S. W. 679.

A leasing of a business homestead for three years, with an option of five, is a fixed intention to resume business on the property. Alexander v. Lovitt (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 927.

The owner of a business homestead held to have abandoned it by a sale of his business and a lease of the homestead. Alexander v. Lovitt, 95 T. 661, 69 S. W. 68.

The rental of a part of a debtor's business homestead held insufficient to establish an abandonment thereof. Billings v. Matlage, 36 C. A. 619, 82 S. W. 906.

This article does not expressly confer upon the owner the power to rent the homestead. The execution of a lease of the community homestead for a term of two years by the husband alone is void, because not signed and acknowledged by the wife, and the court is not authorized to construe such void lease as good for one year, and treat the holding of the lessee a renting for one year. Halle v. Halle (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 436.

Temporary renting of a part of the homestead does not constitute divestiture of the homestead character of the property. H. P. Drought & Co. v. Stallworth, 46 C. A. 159, 100 S. W. 188.

The renting of a portion of a rural homestead deprives the rented part of its homestead character. Autry v. Reason, 102 T. 128, 113 S. W. 748.

34. — Waiver.—A maker of a note secured by a vendor's lien may in a suit to foreclose the lien waive his homestead rights. Zeno v. Adam, 54 C. A. 36, 117 S. W. 1039.

Evidence in support of evidence, see note to Art. 35.

Evidence held to show segregation and abandonment of a business homestead, so as to render it liable to execution. Carothers v. Lange (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 658.

Evidence considered, and held to show that a husband had parted 1 lot out from the homestead block of 12 lots, and abandoned it himself, before conveying it by his deed, in which his wife did not join, and that such deed conveyed a good title. Drew v. McWhorten, 27 C. A. 456, 66 S. W. 331.

In determining whether property once a homestead has been permanently abandoned, all the circumstances and facts must be considered. H. P. Drought & Co. v. Stallworth, 46 C. A. 159, 100 S. W. 188.
The abandonment of a homestead should not be found to exist unless it is clearly shown by all reasonable ground of dispute. Armstrong v. Neville (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1010.

A fact held not to show an abandonment of a homestead. McComas v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 594.

Evidence held to support a finding of abandonment of part of a homestead. Burns v. Seeks (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 705.

36. Estoppel to claim homestead.—Representations as to homestead an estoppel, when. Haswell v. Forbes, 27 S. W. 566, 8 C. A. 415.

A recital in a mortgage signed by husband and wife that certain property not occupied by them was not the homestead operates as an estoppel. McQuaile v. Scott M. & L. I. Co., 29 S. W. 163, 9 C. A. 415.

Parties may be estopped from claiming exemption of homestead by fraudulent representations. Edder v. Short (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 246.

Declarations of intention not to occupy premises as a homestead not actually occupied as such will estop a claim thereto against one who, under a belief of such declarations, has loaned money on the security of such property. Harmson v. Weiche (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 192.

A husband cannot estop himself and wife from asserting right of homestead by taking a lease from a third person. Dotson v. Barnett, 16 C. A. 258, 41 S. W. 99.

Mere representations do not estop mortgagors to claim homestead in mortgaged premises. Saundin v. Parriss, 16 C. A. 497, 41 S. W. 182.

The wife is not estopped from setting up her claim to the homestead because she signed the deed, there being no privy acknowledgment, and because it was through her instrumentality that the sale was made and the money was counted into her lap. Hess v. Wells, 17 C. A. 196, 44 S. W. 107.

Representations by borrowers that a certain place was their homestead, which were relied on by the lender, held to estop borrowers from claiming other property as a homestead. Burns v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 653.

In action to set aside judgment foreclosing vendor's lien, owners of premises held estopped to set up homestead exemption in the premises. Butler v. Carter (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 632.

Where defendant in an application for a loan designated a part of his farm and a tract belonging to his wife as a homestead, and plaintiff accepted a mortgage on the balance, defendant held estopped from setting up a homestead in the mortgaged land. Hunter v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 850.

Children of mortgagee held estopped to claim homestead. Leslie v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 576, 64 S. W. 1037.

Where defendant and wife occupied two separate pieces of property in a manner calculated to convey the impression that each was a homestead, a deed of trust on one reciting that it was not a homestead, together with a written designation, executed at the same time, declaring that the other was a homestead, held to raise the question of estoppel. Parriss v. Hayes, 95 T. 185, 66 S. W. 305.

Failure to record deed to homestead held not to preclude wife from asserting homestead rights as against purchaser of fraudulent vendor lien notes, executed by husband in connection with subsequent recorded, but fictitious, deed. Texas Land & Mortg. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 173.

Hawes held not estopped from claiming that their father's homestead had been abandoned. Beck v. Avindino, 29 C. A. 500, 68 S. W. 827.

Grantor in deed of trust in homestead held not estopped to assert that the property was his homestead. Letzerich v. Lidiak, 31 C. A. 120, 79 S. W. 773.

A trust that the land was held to be a homestead and not the homestead would not estop the grantor from afterwards asserting it to be such. Crebbin v. Mosely (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 815.

Husband and wife, mortgaging homestead, held not estopped to assert that it was homestead. Shickles v. Lewis, 33 C. A. 8, 75 S. W. 836.

An application for a loan on a mortgage held to estop the mortgagor from claiming any homestead right in his mortgaged premises. Thompson Sav. Bank v. Gregory, 36 C. A. 575, 82 S. W. 802.

Where claimants are not in actual possession, subjecting the property to homestead use, representations amounting to fraud will estop them from thereafter claiming the property as homestead and against persons acting on such representations. Stevens v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

Where property has actually become a homestead, mere declarations of the owner and her husband negating the idea of homestead made while they were occupying the property as a homestead, does not change its homestead character, and no estoppel arises from such declarations. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 620.

No representations in a deed by a man and his wife, in the actual possession of homestead property, will defeat the exemption, though, if claimants are not in actual possession, amounting to fraud will prevent them from setting up the homestead claim as against persons acting on such representation without knowledge of the exemption claim. Deaton v. Southern Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 294.

Where a married man is in actual possession of property, using the same as a homestead, and mortgages, either by himself or his wife, will defeat the constitutional exemption, for those dealing with them cannot ignore the notice conveyed by the actual use of the property. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

37. Conveyance or incumbrance of homestead.—A conveyance by husband and wife, absconding from its face, of a homestead, with a contemporaneous agreement with the vendee that it shall be reconveyed on repayment to him of the money constituting the consider-

A homestead created prior to the owner executing a note which did not include any of the purchase price of the land, the payee could acquire no lien on the land as security for the note. Sweet v. Lyon, 39 C. A. 450, 88 S. W. 384.

Under Const. art. 15, § 51, and this article, the homestead right of a married woman rests upon the status of a wife, and that as such she actually used and occupied the 200-acre homestead for the purpose of a home, at the time of its attempted alienation, and did not join in the execution of the conveyance or in any way assent thereto. McCracken v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 693.

39. Agreement as to boundaries.—The right of adjoining landowners to agree as to their common boundary is not affected by the fact that one of the lots is a homestead. McKeen v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 404.

A homestead is subject to an actual bona fide sale. Johnston v. Fraser (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 232.

A deed by the grantee of a trust deed executed at the request of the owner held to convey title. Alford Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 622.

41. Conveyance between husband and wife.—The husband cannot execute to his wife a mortgage upon their homestead to secure a loan from her. Madden v. Madden, 79 T. 595, 15 S. W. 490.

A conveyance of exempt community property by an insolvent husband to his wife is valid against his subsequent creditors. Texarkana Bank v. Hall (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 73.

42. Mortgage.—Parol evidence alone is not sufficient to establish that a conveyance of the homestead, absolute and duly acknowledged, was intended as a mortgage, unless the proof is clear, satisfactory and convincing. Brewster v. Davis, 59 T. 478.

The wife is a necessary party to suit foreclosing a lien upon the homestead. Thompson v. Jones, 60 T. 94.

An absolute deed conveying the homestead to secure a debt is a mortgage, and therefore void. Williams v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 270; Odum v. Menafee, 11 C. A. 119, 33 S. W. 129.

The conveyance of a homestead was made to evade the homestead law. Afterwards money was borrowed secured by a deed of trust on it from a party whose agent knew the character of the transaction. Deed of trust was held void and the holder of the lien debt in the absence of pleadings was not permitted to show that the agent took the deed of trust with the intent to defraud his principal. Stephenson v. Yeargan, 17 C. A. 111, 42 S. W. 636.

The intention to abandon a homestead will not validate a mortgage given thereon. Caywood v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 927.

Where grantees of a homestead took a note from the grantee, reserving a vendor's lien, and executed a written assignment of the note, acknowledging the validity of the lien and guaranteeing payment of the note, instrument held not invalid as a mortgage of homestead. Breneman v. Mayer, 24 C. A. 164, 58 S. W. 725.

A mortgage held not void because its execution constituted one of the acts by which the lien described was segregated from the homestead. O'Brien v. Woeltz, 94 T. 146, 58 S. W. 843, 86 Am. St. Rep. 829.

A mortgage on land used for homestead purposes, but not included in a prior designation of the homestead, held valid. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 60 S. W. 775.

Whether land is exempt as a homestead from operation of a trust deed is to be determined by the conditions existing at the time such deed is given. Cribbin v. Moseley (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 815.

A mortgage given on the homestead by the husband and wife is absolutely void, though at the time it was given the mortgagee had formed the intention of abandoning the homestead. Delaney v. Walker, 24 C. A. 617, 72 S. W. 601.

A deed of trust for security on a rural homestead and also on a town lot is void as to the homestead, but valid as to the town lot. Dignowity v. Baumblatt, 33 C. A. 363, 85 S. W. 834.

A deed of trust of an urban homestead is not given validity by a temporary abandonment of the premises. Id.

A deed of trust for security on an urban homestead is void, though the homestead consists of two tracts of land. Id.

That a deed of trust executed by a husband and wife on their homestead was ineffectual to create a lien thereon did not avoid their personal obligation to pay the debt secured thereby. Fontaine v. Nuse, 33 C. A. 358, 85 S. W. 852.

A deed of trust, which was void as a homestead at the time of the execution of the deed, was not subject to the mortgage lien. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1003.

Agreement by debtor that creditor should take deed to land occupied as homestead and void same as security for debt due other than purchase money held void. Blake v. Lowry, 43 C. A. 17, 93 S. W. 621.

A mortgage of a homestead held not to create a lien as against a married mortgagee living thereon with his wife. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 778.

A mortgage or trust deed given on a homestead by the owner and his wife, is void, no matter what method was adopted to fix a lien thereby or how firm the belief that a lien could be created. Hall v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 489.
Conveyance of a homestead to a creditor of the husband and a reconveyance to him by the creditor rendering the homestead as part of the same tract as an invalid attempt to incumber the homestead. Sanger Bros. v. Brooks, 101 T. 115, 105 S. W. 37.

A mortgage of fixtures attached to a homestead, void under the constitution, prohibiting liens on homesteads, was not vitiated by the subsequent cancellation of the title on which the homestead right was predicated. Doak v. Moore, 48 C. A. 584, 109 S. W. 405.

A mortgage of fixtures attached to the homestead cannot be rendered valid by agreement that the property shall be treated as chattels. Id.

Where one owning adjoining tracts embracing more than 200 acres has impressed the homestead character on parts of tracts, his dwelling, garden, etc., must be included in his homestead, and the excess of 200 acres may be mortgaged by him. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 56 C. A. 65, 119 S. W. 728.

Where a mortgage by means of a deed absolute on its face was placed on a homestead, it is void so far as the homestead is concerned. O'Neill v. O'Neill (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 729.

Statement of conditions on which the head of a family having more than 200 acres impressed with the homestead character may designate 300 acres as a homestead, and mortgage the balance. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1063.

Plaintiff, furnishing money to pay purchase money notes given for a homestead conveyed to her, held not prevented from enforcing a mortgage lien against the homestead. Parker v. Bushing (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 281.

Commissions paid to procure a loan for the purchase of a homestead, constituting no part of the original contract for the purchase, cannot be secured by a lien on the homestead. Young v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 679.

An unmarried man, though the head of a family, can create a valid lien on his homestead. Davis v. Converse (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 510.

An unmarried man may mortgage his homestead, though the same is exempt from execution. Brown v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

An unmarried woman may mortgage her homestead, though she is the head of a family of minor children. McGee v. Tiller (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 866.

44. — Effect of abandonment or termination of homestead right.—A recorded lien attaches to land as soon as it has lost its homestead character by abandonment. Marks v. Dell, 10 C. A. 97, 23 S. W. 699; Glasscock v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 677.

The abandonment of a city homestead, and the designation of a country place as a homestead, permits the mortgaging of such city property. White v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 653.

A deed of trust of a business homestead held valid, where, prior to its execution, the grantor had an intention to abandon the premises, which he did after its execution. Sanger v. Hicks Co., 22 C. A. 473, 56 S. W. 776.

Where a husband and wife joined in the sale of their homestead, which was community property, the contract was enforceable as against the husband on the termination of the homestead either by abandonment or death of the wife. Levy v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 61 S. W. 364.

Prior to the present constitution, a deed of trust of the homestead, executed by the husband alone to secure a community debt, held valid on the death of the wife. Wiel­ ner v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 699.

45. — Excess over homestead. — Where a mortgagee desires to subject to the payment of his debt the interest of a debtor in land in excess of the homestead right, and there are other joint owners of the land, the proper practice is to make such joint owners parties for partition before sale. Jenkins v. Voltz, 54 T. 636.

The owner of a 340-acre tract of land can sell 4 acres in one corner over which a road passes, as there is more than sufficient left to constitute the homestead. Neiman v. Schuster (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1075.

A trust deed on business homestead held valid to the extent that the combined value of the unimproved lots used for business and residence homestead purposes exceeded $5,000. St. Louis Brewing Ass'n v. Weikler, 23 C. A. 6, 54 S. W. 390.

A mortgage executed after a declaration of a homestead on the land was void, except as to the amount in excess of the 200 acres allowed. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 129 W. 619.

In determining whether there was an excess of over 200 acres allowed as a homestead in several tracts, in a proceeding to foreclose mortgage liens, the field notes showing an excess were prima facie proof of that fact. Id.

46. — Consent of wife. — See Art. 1115 and notes.

47. — To deny validity. — Transfer of purchase-money notes received in simulated sale of homestead estops husband and wife from setting up simulated character of the transaction. Campbell v. Crowley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 373.

Husband and wife not estopped, by reconveyance of homestead to them from grantee under a void mortgage, from asserting character of the transaction against purchaser of notes with notice. Id.
Abandonment of homestead, and transfer of notes received in simulated sale of said property to purchaser with notice, will not estop husband and wife from setting up simulated character of transaction. Id.

Grantee of purchaser of homestead at trustee's sale, who took conveyance without notice of simulated character of trust deed, is entitled to protection in action by husband and wife to recover property. Id.

Mortgagors submitting to a judgment foreclosing the mortgage lien could not thereafter claim that the mortgage was void because of the homestead character of the property. Blair v. Guaranty Savings, Loan & Investment Co., 54 C. A. 443, 118 S. W. 668.

48. Rights of purchasers or mortgagees.—A simulated sale was made of the homestead to enable the grantees to borrow money for the husband. A party who loaned money to the grantee is charged with notice of his agent of the character of the sale in the absence of evidence that the agent colluded with the other parties to defraud his principal. People's Building, Loan & Savings Association v. Dailey, 17 C. A. 38, 42 S. W. 364.

Improvements placed on land by a purchaser with the knowledge of a widow's homestead rights thereafter become part of the realty and inure to the benefit of the homestead estate. Hillen v. Williams, 25 C. A. 288, 60 S. W. 997.

Where land of a lunatic on which he resided as head of a family was sold to pay debts, the question as to whether the purchaser acquired a good title held dependent on whether the property was the homestead of the lunatic when it was sold. Griffin v. Harby, 33 C. A. 586, 88 S. W. 163.

One mortgaging land not used openly in connection with his home held estopped from claiming it as a homestead. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 56 C. A. 65, 119 S. W. 728.

A lien held not fixed by the abstracting of a judgment as against premises occupied by the debtor and his wife as a homestead. Garth v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 611.

The sale of a homestead under a deed of trust for an indebtedness, part only of which is a valid lien, under the constitution is void. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 825.

Where the whole indebtedness, part of which was a valid lien on the homestead, was embraced in one note, payments made thereon should be applied to discharge that part of the indebtedness which was a valid lien on the homestead. Id.

Where all that part of a debt secured by a deed of trust on a homestead which was a valid lien on the homestead had been paid before the sale of the property under the deed of trust, the trustee had no power to sell, and the sale by him conveyed no title. Id.

Where a debt secured by a deed of trust constituted a valid lien on the homestead of T. and wife, at the date of the execution of another deed of trust to B. and formed a part of the amount secured by the second deed of trust, to this extent the deed of trust was a lien on the homestead. Id.

B., holding a deed of trust on a homestead, held to have a valid lien on the homestead for taxes paid. Id.

In satisfying a mortgage lien on land designated as a homestead, held, that any excess over the 200 acres allowed as a homestead should be located out of a tract sold by the homesteader. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

49. Rights of bona fide purchasers.—See notes under Art. 6824.

A forced sale of a homestead, except for that which the constitution makes it liable, is void, and a grantee of the purchaser at such sale acquires no better title than the purchaser did. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

An attempted sale of land under execution, while it was occupied as a homestead by the head of a family, was void, and conveyed no title to the purchaser. Speer & Goodnight v. Sykes, 102 T. 461, 119 S. W. 86, 122 Am. St. Rep. 896.

53. Rights of surviving husband, wife, children or heirs.—See Title 32, Chapter 18.

Art. 3787. Proceeds of sale of homestead exempt for six months. — The proceeds of the voluntary sale of the homestead shall not be subject to garnishment or forced sale within six months after such sale. [Id.]
A husband has the right to control the proceeds of the homestead. AlvorArt. 3787EXEMPTIONS (Title 55)Art. 3787. [2397] [2337] Property exempt to others than families. The following property shall be reserved to persons who are not constituents of a family, exempt from attachment, execution and every other species of forced sale: 1. A lot or lots in a cemetery, held for the purpose of sepulture. 2. All wearing apparel. 3. All tools, apparatus and books belonging to any trade or profession. 4. One horse, saddle and bridle. 5. Current wages for personal services. [Act Aug. 15, 1887, p. 127, sec. 2. P. D. 6834. Const., art. 16, sec. 28.] See Const. art. 16, § 49. Wearing apparel.—A diamond stud worn continuously and used for fastening a shirt front is “wearing apparel” and exempt. In re Smith (D. C.) 99 Fed. 532. 2310

Tools and apparatus belonging to trade or profession.—A bicycle used by an architect is not exempt from forced sale. Smith v. Horton, 19 C. A. 28, 46 S. W. 401.

A single man, who is a land, loan, and insurance agent, is not entitled to a buggy and harness as exempt from execution as tools and apparatus belonging to his trade and profession. Gates v. McClure, 27 C. A. 459, 66 S. W. 224.

A typewriter is not exempt, as a tool belonging to the profession of a physician, though he uses it in correspondence and advertising his business. Massie v. Atchley, 28 C. A. 114, 66 S. W. 683.

Furniture in restaurant.—Furniture used in a restaurant business such as dishes, ranges, counters, stools and the like is not exempt from forced sale under this article. Stone v. Schneider-Davis Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 134.

Cemetery lots exempt from forced sale.—See Art. 767.

Art. 3789. [2398] [2338] Ferryboat, etc.—There shall be reserved to every ferryman exempt from attachment, execution and every other species of forced sale, except as hereinafter provided, one ferryboat, keel or flatboat; used as a ferryboat, with the necessary tackle for operating the same, not exceeding in value five hundred dollars; but such exemption shall not apply to any recovery for damages sustained by the negligence or other improper conduct on the part of such ferryman. [Act Feb. 13, 1858, p. 21, sec. 1. P. D. 3802.]

Art. 3790. [2399] [2339] Public property of counties, cities and towns exempt.—The property of counties, cities and towns, owned and held only for public purposes, such as public buildings and the sites therefor, fire engines and the furniture thereof, and all property used and intended for extinguishing fires, public grounds and other property devoted exclusively to the use and benefit of the public, shall also be exempt from forced sale; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent the enforcement of the vendor's lien, the mechanic's or builder's lien, or other liens existing on the eighteenth day of April, 1876, when the existing constitution went into effect. [Const., art. 9, sec. 9.]

Property exempt.—Property of a city not held for public purposes is subject to sale under execution against a city. City of Laredo v. Nalle, 55 T. 382; City of Sherman v. Williams, 54 T. 422, 19 S. W. 606, 21 Am. St. Rep. 66; City of Laredo v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 482.

No equitable lien is created on fund due a contractor in hands of a county, by reason of actual notice of claim of materialman for material furnished the contractor for the construction of a county courthouse. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Kroeger, 23 C. A. 672, 57 S. W. 980.

The property of a religious and charitable hospital is not exempt from execution, though services are given free to those who cannot pay, and all sums received are expended in maintenance of the establishment. Armendarez v. Hotel Dieu (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1039.

Road work.—The construction of roads is a public work and laborers and materialmen have no lien. National Bank of Denison v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1123.

Art. 3791. [2400] [2340] Public libraries.—All public libraries shall be exempt from attachment, execution and every other species of forced sale. [Act Aug. 15, 1870, p. 127, sec. 2. P. D. 6834.]

Art. 3792. [2401] [2341] Homestead exemption does not apply, when.—The exemption of the homestead provided for in this chapter shall not apply where the debt is due:
1. For the purchase money of such homestead or a part of such purchase money.
2. For taxes due thereon.
3. For work and material used in constructing improvements thereon; but in this last case such work and material must have been contracted for in writing, and the consent of the wife, if there be one, must have been given in the same manner as is by law required in making a sale and conveyance of the homestead. [Const., art. 16, sec. 50.]

Purchase money.—The homestead exemption cannot prevail against the enforcement of the purchase-money therefor. The husband can settle and adjust the indebtedness for the purchase-money by a rescission of the contract, by reconveying the land to the vendor without being joined by his wife. De Bruhl v. Maas, 54 T. 474; Roy v. Clarke, 75 T. 29, 13 S. W. 846; Clitus v. Langford, 24 S. W. '325; McCarty v. Brackenridge, 1 C. A. 170, 20 S. W. 997. See Lippencott v. York, 24 S. W. 275, 56 T. 275.

Where a deed conveying land by its terms reserves a lien upon the property to secure the payment of a specific sum of money, a homestead right is not acquired by the purchaser as against the lien, though the sum named constitutes no part of the purchase money proper. Berry v. Bogness, 62 T. 239.

A vendor's lien on a homestead, acquired by virtue of a void transfer of title to one who afterwards purchased and then foreclosed, is void. Discord v. West, 63 S. W. 514.

A note which also reserves a vendor's lien given to cover accrued interest on a vendor's lien note on the homestead constitutes a valid lien. Green v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 6.

In action on vendor's lien note, held, that land was homestead was immaterial. Bond v. National Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 71.

A vendor's purchase money lien on land is valid, though the land was purchased and then a homestead. James v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1076.

An instruction that a purchase-money lien reserved in notes was valid, notwithstanding the defense of homestead, held erroneous under the evidence. Evans v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 362, 60 S. W. 1012.

Where a lien appearing to be for the purchase is created on land of a homestead character, a good-faith purchaser of such lien may enforce it. Jones v. Male, 26 C. A. 181, 62 S. W. 827.

Evidence held to show that notes recited as consideration for deed were given in payment for the property, and therefore that vendor retained the legal title until their payment; a vendor's lien being reserved. Walsh v. Ford, 27 C. A. 573, 66 S. W. 854.

Action by a vendor held to be to enforce a debt for purchase money to which the homestead rights of defendants were subject, and not to enforce a lien on a homestead created without the wife's consent. Naquin v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 908.

On release of lien on homestead during life of wife, the wife's rights held to vest in her free of lien, and on her death her heirs will take free of lien. Boles v. Walton, 32 C. A. 595, 74 S. W. 81.

A homestead right held not superior to a prior lien for purchase money. Smith v. Owens, 49 C. A. 51, 197 S. W. 929.

A homestead is subject to sale on foreclosure of purchase price notes at the suit of a bona fide assignee thereof. Hightower Bros. v. W. F. Taylor Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 651.

Defendant had a vendor's lien upon a number of lots, and a bank had a mortgage upon a part of them. Defendant released two lots not included in the bank's mortgage. Held, that the fact that the lots released were the homestead of the purchaser did not prevent the release from inuring to the benefit of the bank. First State Bank v. Clark (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1.

One who paid the notes representing the price of a homestead could enforce a mortgage given by the owners to secure the money advanced. Parker v. Bushong (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 281.

Where real property, subject to vendor's lien notes, becomes the homestead of the purchaser, the homestead is nevertheless subject to the lien notes. Quinn v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 955.

The homestead claim is inferior to a vendor's rights to the unpaid purchase money. Evans v. Marlow (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 347.

Loans and advances for purchase money.—A note and mortgage executed by husband and wife for money borrowed to prevent the sale of the homestead for unpaid purchase money, and which on its face declares that it is executed for the purchase money of the homestead, subrogates the holder, when the money is applied in paying the lien, to the rights of the original vendors. Such a note afterwards renewed for a larger amount and including money not used to satisfy the vendor's lien is still entitled to a lien on the homestead paying the original vendor in discharging the mortgage. Hicks v. Morris, 67 T. 658; Joiner v. Perkins, 59 T. 302; Warhund v. Merritt, 60 T. 27; Bovles v. Beal, 60 T. 322; Morris v. Gelsecke, 60 T. 635.

The husband can incumber the homestead lots for unpaid purchase money by mortgage, if the consent of the wife not being a prerequisite. Archenhold v. B. C. Evans Co., 11 C. A. 138, 32 S. W. 795.

A mortgage on the homestead to secure a loan of money, a part of which was used to take back a vendor's lien, is not in evidence, and, prior to improvement, is void. A homestead cannot be subject to a lien, except in the manner provided by the constitution. Building & Loan Ass'n v. Logan (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1088.

One seeking to avoid foreclosure of mortgage on homestead held required to tender payment of valid portion of debt represented by loan used in paying vendor's lien on the homestead. Dixon v. National Loan & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 541.

Where a purchaser of realty pays the price and then borrows from the vendor, the lien in the deed for such borrowed money is void. Jones v. Male, 26 C. A. 181, 62 S. W. 827.

A mortgage executed to secure money to pay for the land mortgaged can be enforced against a claim of homestead. Crow v. Kellman (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 564.

A trust deed on a homestead to secure money obtained to buy the lot and erect the building held a valid lien, under Const. art. 16, § 60. Bayless v. Standard Savings & Loan Ass'n, 15 C. A. 354, 87 S. W. 872.

Commissions paid to procure a loan for the purpose of a homestead, constituting no part of the original contract for the purchase, cannot be secured by a lien on the homestead. James v. Cheney.(Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 679.

Taxes.—A special assessment against a homestead for street paving is not a tax within the meaning of the constitution authorizing the homestead to be sold for taxes due thereon. Lovenberg v. Galveston, 17 C. A. 169, 42 S. W. 1024.

A sale of a homestead for a greater amount of taxes than could legally be assessed against it, is void. Hayes v. Taylor, 17 C. A. 449, 43 S. W. 314.

The defendant is not a necessary party in a suit to foreclose a lien on the homestead. Bean v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1036.

The lien on homestead for improvements—No forced sale of a homestead, since the adoption of the constitution of 1876, can be made for work done and materials furnished in constructing improvements on it, unless the contract therefor is in writing, and the consent of the wife given thereto under the formalities required in making a conveyance. Barnes v. White, 53 T. 428.

The lien exists only when the material exists only when the note is given was furnished under a previous contract duly executed. A contract made and acknowledged afterwards does not give a lien on the homestead. Taylor v. Huck, 65 T.
233; Reese v. Corlew, 60 T. 79.

it was executed and acknowledged, without accident by H or registration of it or the notes. Moreno v. R. B. Spencer & Bro., 37 C. A. 69, 82 S. W.
1064.

When a husband and wife executed a note to secure a mechanic's lien on their homestead, the husband, without the consent of his wife, could not renew the note, which was about to be barred by limitations. Sudduth v. Du Bose, 42 C. A. 226, 93 S. W. 236.

A wife held estopped to deny the authority of her husband to declare the completion of a building contract on which declaration a trustee was authorized to deliver the notes secured by a mechanic's lien on the homestead to the contractors. Roane v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 782.

One held entitled to enforce a lien against a homestead for an improvement thereon.
Hicks v. Texas Loan & Investment Co., 51 C. A. 298, 111 S. W. 784.

Under the statute giving a lien on a homestead for improvements, both the contract and the employment of the work and material on the homestead in compliance therewith are made essential to the lien. Murphy v. Williams, 103 T. 155, 124 S. W. 900.

the homestead, see Lippencott v. York, 24 S. W. 275, 86 T. 276.

Where the purchaser of reality pays the price and then borrows from the vendor, who has not lien for which the loan, the purchaser does not acquire title by such payment and by making slight improvements, so as to defeat such lien by a claim of homestead. Jones v. Male (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 827.

For a mere loan of money a lien cannot be created on a homestead. Murphy v. Will­ liams (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 41.

One advancing to a contractor money on notes secured by a lien on a homestead to enable the owner to improve the sale held entitled to a lien thereon to the amount of the advances. Id.

Where a husband and wife gave notes secured by a lien on the homestead to obtain money to improve the homestead and the money was used for such improvements, the lender was entitled to the lien. Id.

Under Const. art. 16, § 50, a deed of trust on a homestead, in so far as it concerns money lent the owner to improve the property, although it was afterward in fact used for that purpose, was void, since this was not a contract in writing for work and materials used in improvements on the property. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 126 S.
W. 781.

Attorneys fees—Homestead held liable to claim for attorney fees, where creditor is obliged to litigate his right to a lien. Sproulle v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 693.

Attorney's fees provided for in a mortgage on the homestead to secure the costs of improvements thereon cannot be enforced against the homestead. Harn v. American Mut.

Attorney's fees provided for in a building contract executed by a husband and wife for the improvement of the homestead are not a lien on the homestead, though the contract

A provision in a contract for the erection of a house on a homestead, giving an attorney's fee on foreclosure of a mechanic's lien, held invalid. Summerville v. King (Sup.) 84 S. W. 642.

Pre-existing liens.—The husband has the right in good faith to convey the community homestead in settlement of a valid lien thereon, or to adjust it as he sees proper, without being joined with his wife. White v. Sheppard, 16 T. 172; Clements v. Lacey, 51 T. 160; Hicks v. Morris, 57 T. 656; Wheatley v. Griffin, 60 T. 213; Investors' Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Loyd, 11 C. A. 449, 33 S. W. 760.

Where the land claimed as a homestead is charged with equities and incumbrances antedating the purchase, the husband, acting in good faith, has the right to adjust such equities and incumbrances by substituting for them a new lien on the land. Robinson v. Doss, 53 T. 502.

A homestead right is subordinated to a lien on the premises when dedicated as a homestead. Claybrooks v. Kelly, 61 T. 634; Gage v. Neblet, 57 T. 374; Wright v. Straub, 64 T. 644; Warbund v. Merritt, 60 T. 24.

A person was living on rented premises, intended to purchase them for a homestead, and did so purchase, but prior thereto a judgment was rendered against him. Held, that his right of homestead was superior to the lien of the judgment. Freiberg v. Walzem, 85 T. 284, 21 S. W. 60, 84 Am. St. Rep. 808.

Occupation of land as a homestead will not defeat a prior lien. McCandless v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1112.

A judgment lien cannot be extended to the homestead. But a judgment lien once fixed is superior to a subsequently acquired homestead right. Wallis v. Wendler, 27 C. A. 235, 66 S. W. 44.

Plaintiffs held precluded from asserting a homestead claim to land as against one holding prior equities and incumbrances thereon. Cahill v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 281.

The purchaser of a homestead acquired it unaffected by the lien of a judgment against the grantor. Howard v. Mayher, 39 C. A. 529, 88 S. W. 409.

A trust deed held to create a lien superior to the homestead right, though the land was afterwards actually used as a homestead. Watson v. City Nat. Bank of Texarkana, 66 C. A. 123, 119 S. W. 515.

The lien of an execution is superior to homestead rights subsequently acquired by the debtor. Id.

Any homestead interest held subject to rights under a contract made prior to acquisition of the interest. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 339.

Mechanics' liens on homesteads.—See Art. 5631.

Art. 3793. [2402] [2342] Exemptions not to override claims for rent, etc.—The exemption of personal property provided for in this chapter shall not apply when the debt is due for rents and advances made by a landlord to his tenant, under the provisions of title eighty, or to other debts which are secured by a lien on such property. [Act April 2, 1874, p. 56, sec. 1.]

Mortgage or lien.—A sale of exempt property under execution is not justified by the claim that it was subject to a lien for the debt on which execution was issued when such lien was not foreclosed by the judgment. McGaughery v. Meek, 1 App. C. C. § 1196.

Personal property exempt from forced sale is subject to a mortgage or lien given by the owner. Rose v. Martin (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 234.

A municipal ordinance prohibiting stock from running at large held to empower the holding of animals, exempt from execution, found running at large, for the costs and compensation provided for in the ordinance. Thompson v. City of Brownwood, 44 C. A. 625, 98 S. W. 598.

Article 3794. [2403] [2343] Voluntary designation of, and who may set aside, homestead in the country.—When the homestead of a family, not being in a town or city, is a part of a larger tract or tracts of land than is exempt from forced sale as such homestead, it shall be lawful for the head of the family to designate and set apart the homestead, not exceeding two hundred acres, to which the family is entitled under the constitution and laws of this state. [Act May 7, 1873, p. 64, sec. 1, et seq. P. D. 6994a, et seq.]

Designation of rural homestead out of part of larger tract.—Where the homestead of 200 acres is a part of a larger tract, the husband, acting in good faith, can define the homestead and mortgage the excess. Mackey v. Wallace, 25 T. 526; Holleman v. Smith, 29 T. 357; Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 33; Slavin v. Wheeler, 61 T. 655; McDannell v. Ragdale, 71 T. 56, 18 S. W. 665, 10 Am. St. Rep. 753; Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 163, 21 S. W. 1019; Mitchell v. Nix, 1 U. C. 126; Cervenka v. Dyches (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 316.

Courts cannot control the designation of a rural homestead out of a large tract, so as to include land never used or claimed as homestead by the family. Freeman v. Hamblin, C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

It is as a homestead of part of a large tract of land, see Cervenka v. Dyches (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 316.

The homestead is on a tract of land exceeding 200 acres, and the owner thereof owns another tract of land not connected with the homestead tract and in no way used for the purposes of a home, the head of the family cannot designate a part of the homestead tract and the piece not contiguous—and not used for the purposes of the home—as his homestead, so as to entitle him to mortgage the part of the homestead tract left out of the designation. If, however, the detached had been used for the purposes of a home in connection with the homestead tract, then he could designate 200 acres out of the two tracts so as to include all the detached portion. Affleck v. Wagemann, 93 T. 361, 55 S. W. 312.

Where a party entitled to select a certain quantity of land as a homestead selected more than he was entitled to, commissioners appointed to make partition had power to reduce the homestead to the proper amount by cutting off such part of the land as they saw fit. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 125.

Fact that designation of homestead was planned, prepared, and executed at instance of mortgagee held not to affect validity of mortgage. Fickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

The purpose of this and the succeeding article is to provide a means by which a homestead may be designated out of a larger tract, but the husband is not limited by these articles from otherwise making the designation, the only limitation being that he cannot exclude his residence. Morris v. Pratt, 53 C. A. 181, 116 S. W. 947.

The purchase of the tract in allowing a homesteader to designate in good faith, out of a larger tract, a particular tract actually used as a homestead is to locate the homestead within the boundaries of the land so designated, and to exclude other lands from the claim. And a particular tract designation of a homestead is not invalid as to the claimant or creditors because the tracts designated contained in excess over the 200 acres allowed by statute, since the excess would not be exempted from execution sale, and could be set aside, as provided by law, in case of levy. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

Urban homesteads.—The provisions of this chapter have no application to homesteads in towns and cities. Pellat v. Decker, 72 T. 578, 10 S. W. 696; Mortgage Co. v. Norton, 71 T. 663, 10 S. W. 301.

Wife's consent to designation.—When there is an excess of land in a rural homestead, the homestead may be designated by the husband, but in such designation he cannot renounce the actual homestead,—that is, the place of residence. Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019.

Where the husband designates the land used for homestead purposes as a homestead, it is binding on him and his wife, though done without her knowledge and though the designation included his wife's separate land, and thereby excluded better lands of his own, more advantageously located. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 69 S. W. 780.

On an issue as to whether property was the homestead of plaintiff and wife, it was proper to charge that the husband alone has the right to designate the homestead. Evans v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 362, 69 S. W. 1012.

When the husband, as the head of his family sets apart a homestead, it is not essential to the validity of the designation that it be signed by the wife, or, in the absence of fraud, that it be assented to or concurred in by her. Fickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

A husband can designate mortgaged land as a homestead, and the wife need not sign the designation nor acknowledge the same, under this article and Arts. 3795 and 3796. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1009.
The husband may choose the homestead, regardless of the wishes of the wife. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 620.
The husband has the right to choose the homestead for the family. White v. Cowles (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 982.

Effect of designation.—If a husband and wife make a formal declaration that their homestead be less than 200 acres, or that another tract of acres be designated as such homestead, such declaration shall not operate to reduce their homestead, when a larger number of acres, not exceeding 200, are in fact occupied as a homestead. Radford v. Wood, 65 T. 471.
The designation of a particular area as a place of business homestead is binding on the husband, and prevents the designation of another such homestead as against third parties who acted upon the former in good faith. Parrish v. Frey, 18 C. A. 271, 44 S. W. 332. The homestead character of an orchard, intended for family use and located within a reasonable distance of the family residence, is held not to invalidate a homestead designation in which it was not included. Irin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 60 S. W. 778.

Under the statute permitting the designation of a homestead out of a large tract, the fact that the designation included more than the 200 acres allowed by statute would not invalidate the homestead as to such 200 acres. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 619.

Setting apart homestead other exemptions of decedent.—See Title 52, Chapter 18.

Art. 3795. [2404] [2344] Mode of setting it apart.—The party desiring so to designate and set apart the homestead shall file for record with the clerk of the county court of the county in which the land, or a part thereof, may be, an instrument of writing containing a description by metes and bounds, or other sufficient description to identify it, of the homestead so claimed by him, stating the name of the original grantee and the number of acres, and, if more than one survey, the number of acres in each.

Necessity and sufficiency of designation.—A head of a family by living upon a tract of land, less than 200 acres thereby sufficiently designates such tract as a homestead, even if other lands are owned by the head of the family. Coates v. Caldwell, 71 T. 19, 8 S. W. 922, 10 Am. St. Rep. 725.

Written declaration in a mortgage that the homestead was not on the mortgaged tract, but was on another, held a sufficient designation of a homestead. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co. v. Dulock (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 172.

Declarations by a husband, on mortgaging one of two properties, indicating his intention to hold the other as his homestead, only bind the wife and render the mortgage valid in case the unmortgaged property is then used as a homestead. Parrish v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1044.

Evidence held to authorize a finding that certain land was impressed with a homestead character. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1062.

One can designate a homestead out of a larger tract by executing and acknowledging a deed of trust upon the excess in acreage of land owned by him over the 200 acres which he was entitled to hold as his homestead. Of course the 200 acres must include his residence. Morris v. Pratt, 53 C. A. 181, 116 S. W. 647.

Art. 3796. [2405] [2345] Instrument to be recorded, etc.—Such instrument shall be signed by the party and acknowledged or proved as other instruments for record, and shall state that the party has designated and set apart as his homestead the tract or tracts of land so claimed by him; and such instrument shall be recorded by the clerk in the record of deeds of said county.

Art. 3797. [2406] [2346] Excess over homestead subject to execution.—Where the owner of such a homestead, part of a larger tract, as is described in article 3794, has failed to designate and set apart his homestead as provided in the three preceding articles, the excess of such tract or tracts of land over and above the homestead exemption may be partitioned and separated from such homestead and subjected to levy and sale under execution, if otherwise subject, as hereinafter directed. [Id.]

Execution sale of excess.—The excess over 200 acres of a rural homestead may be sold under execution by a levy and sale of the debtor's interest in the whole. See following articles; also Art. 3817. Beall v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 881.
Transfer of excess.—See notes under Art. 3788.

Art. 3798. [2407] [2347] Owner to be notified to set apart, etc.—The sheriff or constable holding an execution against the owner of such excess of land, over and above his exempted homestead, and not separated and partitioned therefrom, may, on his own motion, and shall, if required by the plaintiff in execution, his agent or attorney, notify the defendant in execution to designate and set apart his homestead from the remainder of the land so owned and occupied by him, and that on his failure to do so within ten days the sheriff or constable will proceed to have such partition made as provided by law. [Id.]

Art. 3799. [2408] [2438] Notice, what.—The notice mentioned in the preceding article shall be written or printed, and shall be signed by the sheriff or constable. [Id.]

Art. 3800. [2409] [2439] Service of notice.—Such notice may be served on the defendant by the sheriff or constable by reading the same to him, or by leaving a copy of the same at his place of residence, with some person over fourteen years of age. [Id.]

Art. 3801. [2410] [2430] Return of service.—The sheriff or constable shall return said notice to the court from which the execution issued, with his return indorsed thereon, showing how he executed the same. [Id.]

Art. 3802. [2411] [2351] Return prima facie evidence.—The notice and return indorsed thereon shall be filed by the proper officer of the court, and shall be prima facie evidence of the facts stated. [Id.]

Art. 3803. [2412] [2352] Defendant may designate his homestead.—On the service of such notice, the defendant in execution shall have the right, within ten days thereafter, to designate and set apart his homestead from any excess of land owned by him, and deliver the same to the sheriff or constable. [Id.]

Art. 3804. [2413] [2353] Mode of making designation by defendant.—The designation and setting apart so made by the defendant shall be such as is required by articles 3795 and 3796. [Id.]

Art. 3805. [2414] [2354] Designation to be recorded.—The sheriff or constable shall deliver the designation or setting apart of the homestead so made to the clerk of the county court of the county in which such homestead, or a part thereof, is, and such clerk shall forthwith record the same in the record of deeds of his said county. [Id.]

Art. 3806. [2415] [2355] Effect of, when made by defendant.—Such designation and setting apart of the homestead made by the defendant under any of the preceding articles shall operate as a relinquishment of all right of homestead in the excess of land so partitioned from the homestead, and shall be binding on the defendant, and all others in privity with him, and the same, or a certified copy of the record thereof, shall be admitted in evidence of the facts stated therein. [Id.]

Art. 3807. [2416] [2356] Defendant failing, officer to appoint commissioners.—If the defendant in execution shall fail or refuse, within ten days after such notice, to so designate and set apart his homestead, the sheriff or constable holding such execution shall, at the earliest practicable time, summon either verbally or in writing three disinterested freeholders of the county, neighbors of the defendant in execution, as commissioners to designate for the defendant his homestead. [Id.]

Art. 3808. [2417] [2357] Commissioners to designate homestead.—The commissioners shall, as soon as practicable, proceed to partition the homestead of the defendant from the remainder of the tract or tracts, and may, if they deem it necessary, call in a surveyor to assist them. The action of such commissioners shall be reduced to writing and signed by them, or a majority of them, and shall be sworn to before some officer authorized to administer oaths, which shall be sufficient to admit the same to record. [Id.]

Art. 3809. [2418] [2358] Requisites of designation by commissioners.—The designation of the homestead by such commissioners shall contain all the requisites prescribed for a designation and setting apart by the defendant, and, in addition thereto, shall state that the commissioners making the same were summoned by the sheriff or constable holding said execution to perform such duty and that the designation of the homestead made by them is fair and just to the best of their judgment and belief. [Id.]

Art. 3810. [2419] [2359] To be returned and recorded; effect of.
—The commissioners shall return their said designation to the sheriff or constable, who shall deliver the same to the clerk of the county court to be recorded; and such designation, or a certified copy thereof, shall have the same effect as if the defendant had made the same under the provisions of this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 3811. [2420] [2360] Sheriff's return.—Whenever a homestead is designated under the provisions of this chapter, the sheriff or constable holding said execution shall make due return thereon, showing:
1. That notice to designate his homestead was given to the defendant in execution, referring to said notice and return thereon, which shall be returned with said execution.
2. That the designation of his homestead was delivered to him by the defendant, and has been filed by him with the county clerk, stating the dates of such delivery and filing.
3. If the defendant has failed or refused to deliver to him the designation of his homestead within the time prescribed by law, the return shall show that fact, and also that commissioners were duly appointed by him, and that the designation made by such commissioners was filed by him with the clerk of the county court, stating the times when said acts were done; and such return shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated. [Id.]

Art. 3812. [2421] [2361] Compensation of commissioners and surveyor.—The commissioners shall be entitled to receive for their services the sum of two dollars per day, and the surveyor the sum of five dollars per day, to include pay for chain carriers. [Id.]

Art. 3813. [2422] [2362] Fees of clerk, etc.—The sheriff or constable and clerk shall, for their services, be entitled to such fees as are, or may be, allowed by law. [Id.]

Art. 3814. [2423] [2363] Fees, etc., taxed as costs.—Such fees and expenses shall be taxed as part of the costs of the execution against the defendant and collected as other costs. [Id.]

Art. 3815. [2424] [2364] Excess to be sold.—Whenever the homestead of the defendant in execution has been designated in either of the modes prescribed in this chapter, the officer holding said execution may proceed to sell the excess over and above the homestead, in accordance with the law governing sales under execution. [Id.]

Art. 3816. [2425] [2365] Defendant may change, etc., but, etc.—
The defendant may, at any time after his homestead has been designated and set apart in either of the modes pointed out in this chapter, change the boundaries of his said homestead by an instrument executed and recorded in the manner provided for in articles 3795 and 3796, but such change shall not impair the rights of parties acquired prior to such change.

Rights of mortgagee.—Under this article, a change of the boundaries of a homestead would not affect the rights of a mortgagee in land, included within the boundaries after the change, which had accrued theretofore, so that he could enforce his lien as to

Art. 3817. [2426] [2366] Provisions of this chapter cumulative.—
The provisions of this chapter in regard to the designation of the homestead are cumulative, and shall not be construed so as to interfere with, or abrogate, any other mode or remedy now known to the law for subjecting the excess of the homestead tract of land over and above the exemption to forced sale, or any mode known to the law for producing partition by the purchaser at such execution sale, between himself and the owner of the homestead. [Id.]

Designation after execution sale.—A debtor can designate by metes and bounds his 200-acre homestead out of a larger tract in which his interest has been sold under execution. Beall v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 881.

Marshaling assets.—As to marshaling of assets where land is subject to homestead rights and a mortgage. Henkel v. Bohenke, 26 S. W. 645, 7 C. A. 16.

In order to protect a homestead, mortgagor held entitled to have land purchased at a foreclosure sale in bankruptcy proceedings first sold to satisfy a vendor's lien existing against all of the land. Deaton v. Southern Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 294.

Art. 3818. [2427] [2367] Personal property may be designated, etc.—Where there is more personal property of the same kind than is exempt from execution, the head of the family, or other person entitled to such exemption, may point out the portions to be levied on; but, if he fails to do so within a reasonable time after being requested by the officer holding the execution, such officer may make the selection for himself; but such notice shall only be necessary when the defendant is at the time to be found within the county, by leaving a copy of the same at his place of residence, with some person over fourteen years of age. [Id.]

Designation before levy.—The defendant in execution, in possession of a larger number of horses than exempt, has a right to designate those upon which the execution may be levied. Yancy v. Felker, 3 App. C. C. § 249.

Designation after levy.—Where officer levying attachment does not request defendant to select exemptions, the latter may do so at the trial. Hall v. Miller, 21 C. A. 336, 51 S. W. 36.

Marshaling assets.—Where a chattel mortgage covering exempt and nonexempt property has been recorded, the mortgagor can require the mortgagee, in foreclosing, to first exhaust the nonexempt property. Baughn v. Allen (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 297.
ART. 3819. EXPRESS COMPANIES

ART. 3819. Express companies declared common carriers, and duties defined.
ART. 3820. Railroad commission to regulate rates, etc.
ART. 3821. Penalties against, and railroad commission to enforce.
ART. 3822. Powers of commission over, same as over railroads.

[See notes on the subject in general, at end of title.]

ART. 3819. [2428] Express companies declared common carriers and duties defined.—Every person, firm or corporation which shall do the business of an express company, upon railroads or otherwise, in this state, by the carrying of any kind of property, money, papers, packages or other things, are hereby declared to be common carriers, and shall receive, safely carry and promptly deliver at the express office nearest destination every such article as may be tendered to them, and in the carriage of which they are engaged; provided, that no such company shall be compelled to carry any gunpowder, dynamite, kerosene, naphtha, gasoline, matches or other dangerous or inflammable oils, acids or materials, except under such regulations as may be prescribed by the railroad commission. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation so engaged to demand or receive for such services other than reasonable compensation. [Acts 1891, p. 48.]

ART. 3820. [2429] Railroad commission to regulate rates, etc.—The railroad commission of the state of Texas shall have power, and it shall be its duty, to fix and establish reasonable and just rates of charges for each class or kind of property, money, papers, packages and other things to be charged for and received by each express company on all such property, money, papers, packages and things which, by the contract of carriage, are to be transported by such express company between points wholly within this state, which rates or charges may be made to apply to all such companies, and may be changed or modified by said commission from time to time in such manner as may become necessary. Said commission shall have the same power to make and prescribe such rules and regulations for the government and control of such express companies as is, or may be, conferred upon said commission for the regulation of railroads.

ART. 3821. [2430] Penalties against, and railroad commission to enforce.—Every express company doing business in this state which shall demand or receive a greater compensation than that which may be prescribed and fixed by the said railroad commission for the transportation of any class or kind of property, money, papers, packages or things, shall be deemed guilty of extortion, and shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each offense; provided, that, if it shall appear that such violation was not wilful, said company shall have ten days to refund such overcharges or damages, in which case the penalty shall not be incurred. And the said commission shall have authority and it shall be its duty to sue for and recover the same in the same manner as may be prescribed by law for like suits against railroad companies.

ART. 3822. [2431] Powers of commission over, same as over railroads.—The said commission shall have authority, and it shall be its duty to call upon such express companies for reports, and investigate their books in the same manner as may be prescribed by law for the regulation of railroad companies, and the said commission shall have power and authority to institute suits, sue out such writs and process as may be applicable and authorized for the regulation of railroad companies.
All laws, rules and regulations made and prescribed for the government and control of railroads, in so far as they are applicable, shall be of equal force and effect against all express companies.

Art. 3823. To keep general office in this state, etc.—Every incorporated express company shall keep a general office in this state, at some place on the line of its transportation, in which it shall keep its books, accounts and contracts, relating to express business, or copies thereof, embodying all books, papers and contracts, or copies thereof, showing the value of its property of all kinds, and the amount of all its receipts and disbursements on account of the express business done in this state.
The books, papers and contracts required to be kept in said general office shall at all times be subject to inspection and examination by the officers of the state of Texas, and by any member or members of the railroad commission of Texas, or by its authorized agent, officer or employé.
A failure to comply with any of the foregoing provisions of this article shall subject the offending company, and any officer, agent or employé of such company so offending, to a penalty of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars. And a failure to comply with the foregoing provision shall subject the company so offending to forfeit its charter and privileges of doing business as an express company in this state. The railroad commission of Texas shall report to the attorney general of the state the name of any company, and the officers, agents or employés thereof, violating any of the provisions of this and of articles 3824 and 3825, and any suits to recover the penalties herein prescribed, or to forfeit the charter of such express company doing business in this state, shall be instituted and prosecuted in a court having jurisdiction, in the county of Travis, in the state of Texas, by the attorney general of the state. [Acts 1897, p. 14, sec. 1.]

Art. 3824. To furnish information to railroad commission.—Any incorporated express company with its principal office in another state, and doing business as such express company in this state, is hereby required to provide and keep, in its general office in this state, a copy of its charter, and to make full annual statements of the value of all its property, including a like statement of all its indebtedness, and of all its annual receipts and expenditures as such express company, to the railroad commission of Texas, at such time or times as may be prescribed by it; which statement shall be certified to be correct, and shall be sworn to by the president and secretary, or general manager in Texas, of such company; and such company shall permit any member or members of the railroad commission of Texas, or its authorized agent, to freely examine any and all books, papers and contracts, in said office;
and, should any such company, or any person in charge of said office, refuse to permit such examination, this shall be sufficient ground for the withdrawal, by this state, of its privilege of doing business as such express company in this state; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general of the state to institute and conduct suits for that purpose in a court having jurisdiction in Travis county, in the state of Texas. [Id.
sec. 2.]

Art. 3825. To give notice of place of general office.—Every express company doing business as such in this state shall, within ninety days after the passage of this act, establish the general office provided for in this act, at some point on their line of transportation in this state, and shall immediately give notice in writing to the railroad commission of Texas of the place at which such general office is located, and shall, at the same time, give notice in writing to the said commission of the name and official designation of the person or persons, officer or officers, charged with the management of such general office, and shall, from time to time, give like notices in writing of any change of location of such general office, or of the person or persons, officer or officers, charged with the management. A failure to comply with any of the provisions of this article shall be sufficient cause for withdrawing from such express company the privilege of doing business as such in this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Negligence in general.—Where a person was killed by coming in contact with an express truck on a station platform and being dragged from a train and run over, the act of the servant of the express company in leaving the truck within 18 inches of the train held not the act of the express company. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 971.

An express company operating over a railroad owes the railway employés and all others rightfully on or near the track a duty to use ordinary care to not injure them. Wells Fargo & Co. v. McIntyre (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1196.

Express company as carrier.—Where two parties have made a contract, which is broken by one of them, the damage which the other party ought ordinarily to receive for such breach is such as arises in the usual course of things from the breach itself, or such as may be reasonably supposed to have been contemplated by both parties at the time of contracting as the probable result of its breach. Pac. Ex. Co. v. Darnell, 62 T. 639.

The consignor may maintain against the carrier an action for breach of its contract, without reference to his property in the goods shipped. Railway Co. v. Smith, 84 T. 348, 19 S. W. 569; Railway Co. v. Scott, 4 C. A. 78, 26 S. W. 239; Railway Co. v. Klepper (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 567.

An express company is responsible for damages resulting from delay in delivery of freight. Pacific Express Co. v. Black, 27 S. W. 830, 8 C. A. 563; Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Battle, 5 C. A. 532, 24 S. W. 363.

Consignee of express package held entitled to exemplary damages on malicious disregard of his rights by the express company. Gary v. Wells Fargo & Co.'s Express (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 845.

The fact that an express company had notice of plaintiff's connection with medicine shipped to her agent, subsequent to shipping, does not make it liable for special damages for failure to promptly deliver thereafter. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Redman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 671.

In an action against an express company for failure to promptly deliver medicine shipped to plaintiff's agent, evidence held insufficient to show notice of plaintiff's connection with the shipment. Id.

Evidence examined and held insufficient to prove a contract with a carrier to carry goods at less than the tariff rates. Wells Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

In an action for the loss of goods shipped by express, evidence held sufficient to support a finding against the carrier on the issue of the shipper's fraud in attempting to get the goods carried for less than the established rate. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Nelson-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 614.

Since a duty to disclose the contents of a package ordinarily does not rest on the shipper, In absence of a request by the carrier for such information, the mere failure of a shipper to state that the package contained a valuable ring did not absolve the carrier from liability for loss of the ring. Head v. Pacific Express Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 882.

Representations made by a shipper's agent to a carrier as to the nature of the goods bound the shipper to the same extent as made by himself. Id.

A reply by a shipper, in answer to an inquiry of the carrier's agent as to whether the package contained anything breakable or anything requiring it to be given special attention, that it did not, was not a false statement of the facts, though the package contained a valuable diamond ring. Id.

Though a carrier was absolved from liability as insurer because of misrepresentations by the shipper as to the nature of the goods shipped, whereby the carrier was induced to omit precautions which it would otherwise have employed, it was liable as bailee for exercise ordinary care to safely deliver the property. Id.

Authority of agent.—An express company held liable for refusal of driver to deliver express package where it ratified his conduct. Gary v. Wells Fargo & Co.'s Express (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 845.

An agent of an express company did not have authority to agree for the company to pay the undertaker's charges on a corpse and ship it. Gathright v. Pacific Express Co. (Sup.) 146 S. W. 1186, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Pacific Express Co. v. Gathright, 130 S. W. 1035.

The local agent of an express company had no authority to make a contract for a shipment from another city having an office to his own city. Id.

A station agent has authority to bind the carrier by a contract to furnish a particular kind of car for the transportation of fowls. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Hennessy (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1153.
Title 56) EXPRESS COMPANIES Art. 3825

One dealing with the agent of an express company is not bound by secret instructions given by the company to such agent. Id.

An instruction that a local express agent had no authority to bind the company by a contract to furnish a special car was properly refused: the agent having such apparent authority without reference to the carrier's usual course of business or private instructions to its employees. Id.

Limitation of liability.—A contract with an express company for the transportation of goods, which is made in Illinois, which limits its liability, contrary to an Illinois statute, does not limit the company's liability for loss occurring outside the state. Pittman v. Pacific Exp. Co., 24 C. A. 685, 69 S. W. 349.

Where a carrier receiving a package for transportation, under a contract stipulating that in no event should it be liable beyond $50 at which sum the property was valued, failed to deliver the package, it breached its contract and became liable for the full value thereof as against the defense that payment of the full value which exceeded $50 would make it liable to prosecution for violation of the law requiring equal charges, because the charges were based on a $50 valuation. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 614.

A special contract limiting a carrier's liability will not be presumed from inference, custom, or failure to object. Pacific Express Co. v. Rudman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 268.

A provision in a bill of lading that the carrier should not be held liable beyond $50, "unless the true value is stated herein, and an extra charge paid, based upon such higher value," is not void as an attempt to arbitrarily limit liability for loss from negligence without regard to real value. Pacific Express Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 340.

Express company as employer.—Loading express matter in a car in a dangerous manner is not a breach of the duty to furnish a safe place to work, which an express company owes to a servant employed to ride in one of its cars. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 29 C. A. 489, 68 S. W. 533.

Evidence held to justify a jury in finding that injuries to servant resulted from employer's negligence in failing to provide safe truck and platform, and that the injuries are permanent. Wells, Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 441.

In an action for injuries to a servant of an express company, caused by the falling of parcels from a truck, a finding that the defect in the truck was the proximate cause of the injury held unauthorized. Wells-Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle, 100 T. 577, 102 S. W. 167.

FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS

Art. 3826. Commission merchant defined.—Any person, firm or corporation pursuing, or who shall pursue, the business of selling produce, or goods, wares or merchandise of any kind upon consignment for a commission, shall be deemed to be a commission merchant. [Acts 1907, p. 61, sec. 1.]

Factor.—A factor is one to whom goods are sent for sale on commission. The consignor is the principal holding the general property. Milburn Mfg. Co. v. Peak, 59 T. 399, 34 S. W. 102.

Where goods were shipped to be sold by the consignee, and the proceeds remitted to the consignor, there was no sale, the consignee being an agent merely. Barnes v. Darby, 18 C. A. 468, 44 S. W. 1029.

An agent employed by bankrupts to purchase cotton for them with his own funds on a salary, held a factor. Couture v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

Art. 3827. Bond of.—Every commission merchant is hereby required to make bond in the sum of three thousand dollars, entered into with two or more good and sufficient sureties, who are residents of this state, and who shall make affidavit before some officer authorized to administer oaths, that they in their own right, over an above all exceptions, are worth the full amount of the bond they sign as sureties, payable to the county judge of each county in which such commission merchant maintains an office, and to the successors in office of such county judge as trustees for all persons who may become entitled to the benefits of this Act; conditioned that such commission merchant will faithfully and truly perform all agreements and contracts entered into with consignors for said produce, goods, wares or merchandise, that said commission merchant will promptly receive and sell such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, and will on receipt of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise class the same, and if such class as made by such commission merchant is not as high as that made and sent to him by the consignor, he (the commission merchant), will immediately notify the consignor of such fact and of the class made by him; and, as soon as sold will send to the consignor a full and complete account of sales of same, giving an itemized account thereof, and the price received, the dates of sales, and shall, within five days after said produce, goods, wares or merchandise are sold, send to the consignor the full amount received for the same, less the commission due said commission merchant under the contract of consignment, which bond shall be approved by the county judge of the county in which said commission merchant maintains an office, and by said county judge filed for record in the county clerk's office as chattel mortgages are now authorized to be filed by law; provided, that any commission merchant may be bonded under the provisions of this Act by a solvent surety company, doing business in this state, to be approved by the county judge under the provisions of this Act. 1907, p. 61, sec. 2.
Art. 3828. Bond made where; suit in same county.—Such bond shall be made and filed for record in each county in which such commission merchant maintains an office, and in which county suits may be maintained upon such bond by any person claiming to have been damaged by a breach of its condition; provided, that said bond shall not become void upon the first recovery thereon, but may be sued upon until the amount thereof is exhausted; provided, however, that when said bond by suits of recovery has been reduced to the sum of fifteen hundred dollars, that said commission merchant shall be required to enter into a new bond in the sum of three thousand dollars as required in the first instance under the provisions of this chapter; which said new bond shall be liable for all future contracts, agreements or consignments thereafter entered into by said commission merchant and consignor of such produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise, and upon failure of said commission merchant to give said new bond, as above required, he shall cease doing business in this state; provided any commission merchant, as herein defined, who shall engage in business as such commission merchant, without first making and filing the bond provided for in articles 3827 and 3828, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars. [Id.]

Art. 3829. [2432] Factors, etc., prohibited from being interested in their own sales.—No factor or commission merchant, to whom any cotton, sugar, produce or merchandise of any kind is consigned, for sale on commission or otherwise, shall purchase the same or reserve any interest whatever therein upon the sale of the same, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name or through the instrumentality of another, for his own benefit or for the benefit of another, or as factor or agent of any other person, without express license from the owner or consignor of such cotton, sugar, produce or other merchandise, or some person authorized by him, given in writing so to do, under a penalty of forfeiture of one-half the value of cotton, sugar, produce or other merchandise so purchased or sold, to be recovered by the owner of the same by suit before any court of competent jurisdiction in the county where the sale took place, or wherein the offending party resides. [Act Feb. 11, 1860. P. D. 3803.]

Right to represent both buyer and seller.—A person cannot act for both buyer and seller and receive commissions from both except by consent of both parties. Tinsley v. Penniman, 12 C. A. 591, 34 S. W. 365.

Art. 3830. Factor to render account of sales and give particulars under penalty.—Upon the shipment of any produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise, consigned for sale to any factor or commission merchant, it is hereby made his duty that such commission merchant will faithfully and truly perform all agreements and contracts entered into with consignors for said produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares and [and] merchandise; that said commission merchant will promptly receive and sell such produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise, in accord with the contract of consignment and will on receipt of such produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise class the same, and if such class as made by such commission merchant is not as high as that made and sent to him by the consignor, he, (the commission merchant), will immediately notify the consignor of such fact and of the class made by him and as soon as sold will send to the consignor a full and complete account of sales of same, giving an itemized account thereof, and the price received, the dates of sales, and shall, within five days after said produce, cotton, sugar, goods, wares or merchandise are sold, send to the consignor the full amount received for the same, less the commission due said commission merchant under the contract of consignment; and if cotton, sugar, or other produce sold by weight, the weight of the same in gross, and the tare allowed, and be accompanied by the certificate or memorandum, signed by the weigher who weighed the same, of the weight and condition as required by law, and upon failure of the said commission merchant to comply with any one of the provisions of this article, he and the bondsmen required by this chapter shall be liable for all actual damages incurred by the consignor by reason thereof, and in addition thereto a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered by the consignor in a suit filed for said actual damages and for said penalty. [Act Feb. 11, 1860. P. D. 3804. Acts 1913, p. 178, sec. 1, amending Art. 3830, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 3831. [2434] No charge allowed for mending, etc., unless same has been actually done.—No commission merchant or factor shall be permitted to make any charge for mending, or patching, or roping bales, or for cooperage or repairing bales, or for labor, or hauling, or cartage, or for storage, marking or weighing, unless the same has been actually done; and, in case of any such charge, a bill of particulars shall be rendered notwithstanding any usage or custom to the contrary to make such charge, by rate or average; and the person offending against the provisions of this chapter shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five hundred nor less than one hundred dollars, to be recovered by the owner or consignor, as in the two preceding articles. [Id. P. D. 3805.]

Art. 3832. [2435] Drawbacks, rebates, etc., prohibited.—All drawbacks and rebate of insurance, freight, transportation, carriage, wharfage, storage, compressing, baling, repairing, or for any other kind of labor or service, of or to any cotton, grain or any other produce or article of commerce, paid or allowed, or contracted for, to any common carrier, shipper, merchant, commission merchant, factor, agent or middleman of any kind, not the true and absolute owner thereof, are forever prohibited. [Const., art. 16, sec. 25.]

Art. 3832a. Prescribing the duties of a shipper.—Every consignor of produce, goods, wares or merchandise in this state consigning produce, goods, wares, merchandise to commission merchants to be sold on commission shall, when he consigns such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, send to such commission merchant a written statement in which such consignor shall state the amount, the quality or class, the condition of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise so consigned, and if said commission merchant, on receipt of same, fails to promptly notify said consignor of any objection he may have to the class, quality or quantity so consigned, then such statement shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that said consignment of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise is truly stated in said statement by the consignor to said commission merchant, provided further, that when such produce, goods, wares or merchandise is received by said commission merchant, such commission merchant shall give to the agent of the railroad or other carrier so delivering such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, a receipt for same which receipt shall state the quality, quantity, grade and condition of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise, and said agent of the railroad or other carrier shall keep such receipt on file in his office subject to the inspection of any one interested in such shipment, for six months from the date of such receipt. [Acts 1913, p. 178, sec. 1, amending Title 57, Rev. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 178, sec. 1, amends Arts. 3827, 3828, and 3830, tit. 57, ch. 1, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, so as to read as set forth by said preceding articles, and by adding to said title and chapter article "3833," etc. This article is here designated as 3832a, to distinguish it from Art. 3833, post.
Art. 3832b. Not to apply to cotton, etc.—None of the provisions of this bill shall apply to cotton, and nothing herein shall be construed as repealing or affecting any existing laws touching the subject of commission merchants or brokers as the same relates to the handling of cotton. [Id. sec. 1a.]

Art. 3832c. Livestock commission merchants defined.—That any person, firm or corporation pursuing or who shall pursue the business of selling livestock, cattle, cows, calves, bulls, steers, hogs, sheep, mules, horses, jacks and jennets, or any of them upon consignment for a commission or other charges, or who shall solicit consignments of live stock as a commission merchant or who shall advertise or hold himself out to be such, shall be deemed and held to be a livestock commission merchant within the meaning of this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 93, sec. 1.]

Art. 3832d. Bond of.—That all livestock commission merchants be and they are hereby required to make bond each in the sum of $10,000.00 entered into with two or more good and sufficient sureties, who are residents of this state, or some surety company duly and legally authorized to do business in this state, payable to the county judge of the county in which such livestock commission merchant resides or has his principal office, and to his successors in office, as trustees for all persons who may become entitled to the benefits of this Act, such bond to be filed in the county where such commission merchant has his principal office or place of business, in which county suits may be maintained on such bond and such bond shall be conditioned that such livestock commission merchant will faithfully and truly perform all agreements entered into with consignors with respects to receiving, handling, selling and making remittances and payments made to him, which bond shall be approved by the county clerk of the county in which such livestock commission merchant resides, or has principal office and by him, be filed and recorded. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 3832e. Suits on bond.—That the bond provided for by the preceding section may be sued upon and recovery had thereon by any person claiming to have been damaged by a breach of its conditions; provided, that said bond shall not become void upon the first recovery thereon, but may be sued upon until the amount thereof is exhausted. That upon the exhaustion of said bond by recoveries thereon, said livestock commission merchant shall be required to make and file a new bond conditioned as provided in section 2 [Art. 3832d] hereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 3832f. New bond required, when.—That if it shall come to the knowledge of the said county judge or the county clerk that either or all of the sureties on said bond are, or may become insolvent, then it shall be the duty of said county judge or said county clerk to require said livestock commission merchant to enter into, execute and deliver a new bond, as herein provided for. [Id. sec. 3a.]

Explanatory.—Section 4 of this act is purely criminal in character, and is omitted.

Art. 3832g. Bond filed, where; fees.—The bond herein mentioned shall be filed and kept by the county clerk of the county where filed, who shall receive the sum of fifty cents for each such bond, same to be paid by such commission merchant. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 3832h. Laws not repealed.—It is expressly declared that none of the provisions of title 57 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 [Arts. 3826-3832] are affected or in anywise modified or repealed by the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 3832i. Laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith be, and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 7.]
DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Authority to sell.—The mere fact that the owner of lands gave a land agent a list of the lands, with the net price per acre of the same, does not constitute an agency with authority to sell. White v. Templeton, 79 T. 454, 15 S. W. 483. See Graves v. Bains, 78 T. 92, 14 S. W. 256.

Authority under two instruments.—An agent having authority under two instruments may act under either. Douglas v. Baker, 79 T. 495, 15 S. W. 801.

Sale without authority.—A commission merchant selling cotton without authority is liable for the highest price during the season and after the sale. Porter v. Heath, 2 App. C. § 125.

A cotton factor is liable to the owner of cotton shipped to him by a cotton dealer and sold as the property of the dealer, although the factor believes it to be the property of the owner. An inferential contract for advances, therefore, in the factor's usual business, was not necessarily meant to be a contract for sale of goods and the advances made being paid on such advances. Kempen v. Thompson, 45 C. A. 257, 100 S. W. 351.

Revocation of authority.—The authority of a real estate broker can be revoked at any time before a sale. Neal v. Lehman, 11 C. A. 461, 34 S. W. 153.

In action against commission merchant on a contract for outright purchase of cattle made with defendant's agent, issue as to custom of commission merchants with reference to advance on shipments is immaterial. Greer v. First Nat. Bank of Marble Falls (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1045.

Duty and liability in general.—Where defendant's agent exercised ordinary care to obtain the fair market value of plaintiff's cotton as a factor, defendant held not liable in damages to plaintiff, although the cotton was sold for less than their market value. Drum-Flato Commission Co. v. Union Meat Co., 33 C. A. 887, 77 S. W. 634.

A broker marketing goods on commission was not responsible for a failure of the goods to realize a profit in the market where sold, where he did not ship them with foreknowledge of their realizing no profit. Webster v. Richardson, 55 C. A. 391, 119 S. W. 142.

Liability for goods destroyed.—Brokers through whom goods were sold held not liable on an agreement that the goods should be returned to them at a certain place where the goods were destroyed by fire before they were returned there. Flotner & Stoddard v. Markham Warehouse & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 443.

Liability as to proceeds.—Fund retained by factors as the proceeds of a sale made in the course of their business held to constitute a trust fund, the character of which is not changed by a deposit thereof to their individual credit. Interstate Nat. Bank v. Claxton (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 44.

An assignee of certain drafts on a commission merchant attached to bills of lading for corn shipped held liable to the consignee for the difference between the amount paid on such drafts and the value of the corn. F. Groos & Co. v. Brewer, 34 C. A. 146, 78 S. W. 359.

Assignees of drafts on a commission merchant which had been refused by the drawee, held not entitled to object to his failure to draw other drafts on the drawers of the original drafts under a subsequent arrangement, until after corn for which the original drafts were drawn had been sold, in the absence of proof of prejudice. Id.

Plaintiff held entitled to recover from defendant proceeds of the sale of rice belonging to plaintiff, paid to third person, and thereafter paid over to him, and further held not to do so. Post v. Houston Rice Milling Co., 35 C. A. 842, 80 S. W. 1025.

Del credere agency.—A factor selling goods under a del credere commission, it seems, is liable to the seller. Peake, 89 T. 309, 34 S. W. 102.

A contract by a merchant to sell goods on commission at a price fixed by the manufacturer held a contract of sale, where the merchant guarantees payment. Williams v. Drummond Tobacco Co., 17 C. A. 635, 44 S. W. 185.

Advances.—Factors held not entitled to recover from principal for money advanced to purchase goods, more than at average price paid for all goods so purchased. Beakley v. Rainier (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 702.

Under the terms of a contract between a cotton factor and shipper, the factor held to have no right to deduct from the proceeds of sales and apply it to an advancement made by him. Kempen v. Patrick, 43 C. A. 216, 95 S. W. 51.

Interest on advances.—See notes under Art. 72.

Compensation.—An agent employed to sell land for a specified sum is entitled to compensation only if he finds a person ready and willing to purchase at the price named and on the terms specified. Kennedy v. Clark, 1 App. C. § 843. See Burns v. Hill, 2 App. C. § 523.

His right to a commission is forfeited by gross neglect or misconduct. Nugent v. Matthews, 1 App. C. § 1173.

An authority to sell land at "$7,500, net" does not entitle the agent to the entire proceeds of the sale above that sum, but entitles him to reasonable compensation only. Turnley v. Michael, 4 App. C. § 223, 18 S. W. 912.

In an action to recover a commission for selling land, held, that the agent was not entitled to recover, where he acted in bad faith and in hostility to the interests of his principal. Smith v. Tripis, 21 S. W. 722, 2 C. A. 267.

A broker is not entitled to commissions for a sale not consummated or not in conformity with his instruction. O'Brien v. Gilliland, 4 C. A. 40, 23 S. W. 244. See Taylor v. Cox (Sup.) 7 S. W. 89, 16 S. W. 1063.

Where a factor was employed to sell two train loads of cattle which were shipped in one, he was not entitled to recover commissions for sale of subsequent load of cattle, the sale of which indirectly grew out of the first sale. Taylor v. Johnston, 30 C. A. 471, 70 S. W. 1022.

In an action by a broker for commissions, evidence held to support a finding of plaintiff's negligence in marketing goods as to a part only of the shipments made by him. Webster v. Richardson, 55 C. A. 391, 119 S. W. 142.

TITLE 58
FEES OF OFFICE

CHAPTER ONE
CERTAIN STATE OFFICERS

Art. 3833. [2436] [2372] Secretary of state, commissioner general land office, and other officers to furnish copies and certificates.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller, treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance and banking, state librarian, adjutant general, and attorney general, to furnish any person who may apply for the same with a copy of any paper, document or record in their respective offices, and also to give certificates, attested by the seals of their respective offices, certifying to any fact or facts contained in the papers, documents or records of their offices, to any person applying for the same. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3806.]

See note under Art. 3832a.

Art. 3834. [2437] [2373] Fees of such officers for copies and certificates.—It shall be lawful for the officers named in the preceding article to demand and receive the following fees for the services mentioned therein, except as otherwise specially provided in this chapter: [Acts 1907, p. 283. P. D. 3807.]

For copies of any paper, document, or record in their offices, in the English language, including certificate and seal, for each hundred words................................................................. $ .15

For copies of any paper, document, or record in their offices, in any other language than the English, including certificate and seal, for each hundred words.................................................. .25

For each translated copy of any paper, document, or record in their offices, including certificate and seal, for each hundred words... .30

For the copy of any plat or map in their offices, such fee as may be established by the officer in whose office the same is made, to be determined with reference to the amount of labor required ...............................................................

For each certificate not otherwise provided for......................... .50

Art. 3835. [2438] [2374] Shall not charge officers of state for copies.—Nothing contained in the two preceding articles shall authorize either of the officers therein named to demand or receive fees from any officer of the state for copies of any papers, documents, or records in their offices, or for any certificate in relation to any matter in their offices when such copies or certificates are required in the performance of any of the official duties of such officer. [Id. P. D. 3810.]

Art. 3836. [2444] [2379] Shall keep fee book and render account of fees quarterly.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller, treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance and banking, state librarian, adjutant general and attorney general, respectively, to keep fee books in their several offices in which they shall enter all the fees received for any of the services named in this chapter; and they shall quarterly file with the comptroller an account of all fees so received by them respectively; which account shall be verified by the affidavit of the officer rendering the same; and such officers shall also, at the end of each quarter, pay over to the treasurer of the state all money received by them respectively under the provisions of this chapter. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3808.]

2. SECRETARY OF STATE

Art. 3837. [2439] Fees of state department.—The secretary of state, besides other fees that may be prescribed by law, is authorized and required to charge for the use of the state the following fees:

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation created for the purpose of operating or constructing a railroad, magnetic telegraph line or street railway or express company, authorized or required by law to be recorded in said department, a fee of two hundred dollars to be paid when said charter is filed; provided, that if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed one hundred thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of fifty cents for each one thousand dollars authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation intended for the support of public worship, any benevolent, charitable, educational, missionary, literary or scientific undertaking, the maintenance of a library, the promotion of painting, music or other fine arts, the encouragement of agriculture or horticulture, the maintenance of public parks, the maintenance of a public cemetery not for profit, a fee of ten dollars to be paid when the charter is filed.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, of a private corporation created for any other purpose, intended for mutual profit or benefit, a fee of fifty dollars shall be paid when said charter is filed; provided, that, if the authorized capital stock of said corporation shall exceed ten thousand dollars, it shall be required to pay an additional fee of ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock, or fractional part thereof, after the first.

For each commission to every officer elected or appointed in this state, a fee of one dollar; and each and every state, district, county and precinct officer elected or appointed in this state is required to apply for and receive his commission; provided, that the secretary of state shall not be required to forward copies of laws to nor attest the authority of any officer in this state who fails or refuses to take out his commission as required herein.

For each official certificate, a fee of one dollar.
For each warrant of requisition, a fee of two dollars.
For every remission of fine or forfeiture, one dollar.
For copies of any paper, document or record in his office, for each one hundred words, fifteen cents.

For each and every charter, amendment or supplement thereto, taken out under chapter 16, title 25, Revised Statutes, (channel and dock corporations), a fee of two hundred dollars shall be paid to the secretary of state for the use and benefit of the state, which shall be paid when the charter, amendment or supplement thereto is filed for record.

For each foreign corporation obtaining permit to do business in this state shall pay fees as follows: fifty dollars for the first ten thousand dollars of its authorized capital stock, and ten dollars for each additional ten thousand dollars, or fractional part thereof; provided, that the fee required to be paid by any foreign corporation for a permit to engage in the manufacture, sale, rental, lease or operation of all kinds of cars, or to engage in conducting, operating or managing any telegraph lines in this state, shall in no event exceed ten thousand dollars; provided, however, that mutual building and loan companies, so called, whose stock is not permanent, but withdrawable, shall pay a fee of fifty dollars for the first one hundred thousand dollars, or a fractional part thereof, of its authorized capital stock, and ten dollars for each additional one hundred thousand dollars, or a fractional part thereof; and where the company is a foreign one, then the fee shall be based upon the capital invested in the state of Texas. [Acts 1907, S. S., p. 500. Acts 1905, p. 135. Acts 1889, p. 93. Acts 1889, p. 87. Acts 1883, p. 72. Acts 1909, S. S., p. 267.]

Construction and operation in general.—Under the rule that if a statute is capable of two constructions, one of which will render it valid and the other invalid, the former construction will be adopted, this article though broad enough to embrace foreign or interstate business, should be construed to apply only to domestic or intrastate business, so as not to violate the commerce clause of the federal Constitution. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 194.

A foreign corporation, not empowered to do so by the federal government, has no authority to transact a local or domestic business in a state, unless authority be granted by the state, which can impose any conditions as a prerequisite to permission to do such business, and the corporation cannot question the reasonableness or validity of the law prescribing the conditions, and hence the state could exact a fee; the sum depending upon the amount of the corporation’s entire capital stock, the major portion of which was outside of the state. Id.

Under Const. art. 4, § 22, and this article, where a foreign corporation doing a local nongovernmental business in the state had not paid the fee, it was exercising a corporate power not authorized by law, and the attorney general under the constitution could proceed to prevent it from further exercising such unlawful power, regardless of what other penalty the legislature had prescribed. Id.

Indorsement on railroad bonds.—Secretary of state cannot charge fee of $1.00 for making indorsement on railroad bonds required by R. S. 1895, art. 45811. State ex rel. G. H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Hardy, 93 T. 340, 55 S. W. 322, 323.

Amendment to charter of corporation.—When a corporation files an amendment to its charter that does not increase its capital stock, it is only required to pay the fixed fee of $100, and nothing additional. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tod, 94 T. 632, 64 S. W. 778.

Art. 3838. Minimum fees in certain cases.—The minimum fee for any foreign building and loan company shall be two hundred and fifty dollars; provided, further, that the fee required to be paid by any foreign corporation for a permit to do the business of loaning money in this state shall in no event exceed one thousand dollars. [Id.]

Art. 3839. Pending suit not affected.—Nothing in this chapter, nor in articles 1315 and 1316, shall in anywise affect any suit now pending in the name, or in behalf of, the state of Texas, as against any foreign corporation. [Id.]

Art. 3840. Fees paid in advance to secretary and by him to treasury monthly.—All fees mentioned in articles 3837 and 3838 shall be paid in advance into the office of the secretary of state, and shall be by him paid into the state treasury monthly. [Id.]

3. ATTORNEY GENERAL

Art. 3841. [2440] [2375] Fees of attorney general.—The attorney general shall be entitled to the following fees:

For each affirmation of judgment in cases to which the state may be a party involving pecuniary liabilities to the state, ten per cent on the amount collected if under one thousand dollars, and five per cent for all above that sum, to be paid out of the money when collected.
For all cases involving the forfeiture of charters, heard on appeal before the supreme court or court of appeals, twenty-five dollars.
But the whole amount of fees allowed the attorney general shall not exceed the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, and the excess of such fees over two thousand dollars per annum shall be paid into the state treasury. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 284, sec. 2.]

4. COMMISSIONER OF GENERAL LAND OFFICE

Art. 3842. [2441] [2376] Fees of commissioner of general land of-

7. RAILROAD COMMISSION

Art. 3845. Fees of railroad commission.—The railroad commission of Texas shall be, and it is hereby, authorized to charge fees for copies of all papers furnished by it, except such as may be furnished to some department of the state government, as follows:

For copies of any paper, document or record in its office, including certificate and seal, to be applied by the secretary, for each one hundred words, fifteen cents; provided, that this article shall not be so construed as to authorize the charging of such fees for railroad companies or other persons for tariff sheets for their own use, which such tariff sheets are in force.

The fees so charged and collected shall be accounted for by the secretary of the railroad commission and paid into the treasury as provided for in article 3836. [Acts 1899, p. 297.]

CHAPTER TWO

CLERKS OF THE SUPREME COURT AND COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS

[Acts 1901, p. 24.]

Constitutionality.—The provisions in the law limiting the fees and compensation of officers in counties less than 30,000 in population is not a local or special law. A law which relates to persons or things as a class is a general law, while a law which relates to particular persons or things of a class is special and comes within the constitutional prohibition. Kabelmacher v. Kabelmacher, 21 C. A. 317, 51 S. W. 353.

The act of 1897, page 5, in so far as it regulates the compensation of officers and their fees is unconstitutional. A law contains more than one subject not expressed in the title the law is void only as to that subject not expressed. Id.

Fees for transcript.—District clerks are entitled to 10 cents per 100 words for making transcripts on appeal. Section 7 of the act of the called session of the 25th legislature, page 12, does not apply. Kabelmacher v. Kabelmacher, 21 C. A. 317, 51 S. W. 353.

District clerks cannot charge more than 10 cents per 100 words for making transcripts in civil cases on appeal. McLennan County v. Graves, 26 C. A. 49, 62 S. W. 122.

Fee for recording return of citation.—A clerk cannot charge a fee for recording return of citation, because there is no law requiring such return to be recorded. Texas, M. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 25 C. A. 116, 51 S. W. 543.

Fees in receivership proceedings.—In railroad receivership proceedings, an allowance to the clerk of court held an allowance for a special duty imposed by the court. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 296.

The court has controlled the fees. This statute regulates the fees of the clerk in civil actions, and he is not entitled to 5 per cent. commission on moneys collected for the state as penalties for violating the anti-trust laws. Article 1120 (1143) of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not apply to civil actions in behalf of the state to recover penalties. State v. Hart, 98 T. 162, 79 S. W. 948, 949.

One order for several cases.—Where by agreement of parties one order is to apply to a number of cases, and but one order is entered upon the minutes of the court, the clerk is entitled to a fee but for one order. Henrick v. Ake, 75 T. 142, 12 S. W. 818.

Subpoena.—The insertion of a name in a subpoena, within the statute fixing fees for the district court clerk, held only to be made by the clerk or his deputy. Altgeit v. Calaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Discrimination.—The clerk cannot discriminate between litigants and charge fees against one at a higher rate than he would be entitled to charge the other if the latter had been cast in the suit. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. v. State, 57 C. A. 165, 122 S. W. 427.

Clerk of criminal district court.—See Art. 2212.

Art. 3856. Clerk shall compare and certify copies, etc.; fees.—Whenever, in any suit, a certified copy of any petition or any other instrument is necessary in the district court, it shall be lawful for the plaintiff or defendant to prepare such true and correct copy thereof, and submit the same to the clerk of the district court, whose duty it shall be to compare the same with the original instrument, and, if found to be correct, he shall attach his certificate of true copy. For such services he shall receive fifty cents for each certificate and seal, and, in addition thereto, the sum of ten cents per page, three hundred words to the page, for each page of each copy. But nothing in this or the preceding

Certified copies of petitions.—Under this and the preceding article, where a clerk received and used printed matter prepared by plaintiff to obtain the benefit of such section, from which, by pasting sheets together and filling blanks, he made copies of a petition, he is estopped to claim the larger fee, under section 1, for making copies of such petition. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. v. State, 57 C. A. 165, 122 S. W. 427.

Art. 3857. [2454] [2390] Fees in probate matters.—In matters relating to estates of deceased persons and minors, when the same are transacted in the district court, the clerk of such court shall receive the same fees that are allowed therefor to clerks of the county court.

Art. 3858. [2456] [2392] Compensation for ex officio services.—The clerk of the district court shall receive, in addition to the fees hereinafter allowed, for the care and preservation of the records of his office, keeping the necessary indexes, and other labor of the like class, to be paid out of the county treasury on the order of the commissioners’ court, such sum as said commissioners’ court shall determine. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 287, sec. 8. Acts 1879, ch. 81, p. 92.]

3. CLERKS OF THE COUNTY COURT

Art. 3860. [2457] [2393] Fees of clerks of county court.—Clerks of the county court shall receive the following fees:

- Filing each paper ........................................... $ 05
- Issuing notices, including copies for posting or publication .... 75
- Docketing each application, complaint, petition or proceeding, to be charged but once ........................................... 10

Note—A party who files a deed for record is not required to pay the recording fees before the record is made. William Carlisle & Co. v. King, 103 T. 620, 133 S. W. 241.

Recovery of fees paid county.—Where a county clerk by mistake collected fees in excess of those allowed by law, and paid them over to the county, he, being liable for their repayment to the parties paying them, may recover them from the county. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 592.

A county clerk held estopped from asserting that fees collected and paid over to the county were illegal. Tarrant County v. Rogers, 104 T. 224, 135 S. W. 110.
Art. 3861. [2458] [2394] Compensation for preserving the records, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge at each term of his court to inquire into and examine the amount of labor actually and necessarily performed by the clerk of his court, in the care and preservation of the records of his office, in the making and keeping of the necessary indexes thereto, and other labor of a like class, and to allow said clerk a reasonable compensation therefor, not to exceed the fees allowed him by law for like services, and not to exceed one hundred dollars annually, to be paid out of the county treasury upon the sworn account of such clerk, approved in writing thereon by the county judge. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 287, sec. 9.]

Compensation for new indexes.—As Art. 1763 makes it the duty of the county clerk to keep proper indexes of all records of his office, where the commissioners' court makes a contract with the county clerk to make new indexes of deeds and other public records of his office for $5,000, the clerk must account for this money in his settlement with the said court for fees of his office received during his term under the maximum fee bill law. Tarrant County v. Butler, 35 C. A. 421, 80 S. W. 659.

The commissioners' court had no authority to agree to pay the county clerk a certain sum for work in indexing the record, and hence the county was not bound by such an agreement and may recover from the clerk the amount paid him for doing the work in excess of what it actually cost. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 692.

Art. 3862. [2459] [2395] Compensation for ex officio services.—For all ex officio services in relation to roads, bridges and ferries, issuing jury scrip, county warrants, and taking receipts therefor, services in habeas corpus cases, making out bar dockets, keeping county convict book, keeping record of trust funds, filing and docketing all papers for commissioners' court, keeping road overseer's book and list of hands, recording all collection returns of delinquent insolvents, and list of lands sold to individuals for taxes, recording county treasurers' reports, recording reports of justices of the peace, recording reports of animals slaughtered, and services in connection with all elections, and all other public services not otherwise provided for, to be paid upon the order of the commissioners' court out of the treasury, the clerk shall receive the sum of not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars per annum for each one thousand inhabitants of his county; provided, that the total amount paid the clerk in any one year shall not be less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, said amount to be paid quarterly. No county clerk shall be compelled to file or record any instrument of writing permitted or required by law to be recorded until after payment or tender of payment of all legal fees for such filing or recording has been made; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to include papers or instruments filed or recorded in suits pending in the county court. [Acts 1881, p. 99.]

Mandatory provision.—The provision that county clerks shall receive for all ex officio services not less than $10 nor more than $25 per annum for each 1,000 inhabitants in his county, the total in one year to be not less than $50 nor more than $500, was mandatory. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

Repeal.—Acts 17th Leg. c. 87, in so far as it was mandatory, is repealed by Acts 25th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 5, entitled "An act to fix certain civil fees to be charged by certain county officers, * * * to limit and regulate the compensation of the * * * clerk of the county court * * * and to repeal all laws in conflict herewith," fixing, by section 10, the maximum fees that may be retained by the clerk of the county court at $2,500 per annum, and, in addition thereto, one-fourth of the excess fees collected by him, but providing in section 13 that the commissioners' court shall not be debarred from allowing compensation for ex officio services not to be included in estimating the maximum provided in the act, when, in their judgment, such compensation is necessary; such compensation not to exceed the amount now provided by law for such services. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

Notice of deed as affected by failure to pay filing fee.—See note under Art. 6824.

Collecting money on an execution or an order of sale, when the same is made by a sale, for the first one hundred dollars or less, four per cent; for the second one hundred dollars, three per cent; for all sums over two hundred dollars, two per cent. When the money is collected by the sheriff without a sale, one-half of the above rates shall be allowed him.

For every day the sheriff or his deputy shall attend the district or county court, he shall receive two dollars a day, to be paid by the county, for each day that the sheriff by himself or a deputy shall attend said court. [Acts 1876, p. 289. Acts 1897, S. S. p. 13. Acts 1879, p. 92. Acts 1889, p. 80.]

Service on several defendants.—A sheriff is entitled to a fee for each copy of citation served where there are more defendants than one in a suit residing in same county. Moore et al. v. McClure et al., 26 C. A. 458, 84 S. W. 816.

Attending commissioners’ court.—A sheriff is not entitled to $2 a day for attending on the commissioners’ court, but his compensation was the ex officio allowance under Art. 3586. Robinson v. Smith County, 33 C. A. 351, 76 S. W. 684.

Attending criminal court.—A county is liable to the sheriff for only $2 a day for each day that he or his deputy may attend upon a criminal district court, even though the judge of the court may require the sheriff to have two deputies attend upon the court because necessary. Ledbetter v. Dallas County, 51 C. A. 140, 111 S. W. 194, 196.
Sale under one order to different purchasers.—Where a sheriff sells under one order of sale and at one place and time a number of pieces of land to different purchasers, it is only one sale, and he is entitled to commissions on the aggregate amount received and not commissions allowed by law on each separate piece. McLennan County v. Graves, 94 T. 635, 64 S. W. 861.

Collecting debt without sale.—Under Art. 3864 where a party holding a vendor's lien collected his money after foreclosure without a sale, the sheriff could not recover his commission. Lee v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1196.

Execution and deed.—Sheriff is allowed $1.50 for levying execution and $2 for a deed to each purchaser. Eustis v. Henrietta, 91 T. 325, 43 S. W. 259.

Where a sheriff sells lands at one sale to different parties, he is allowed $2 for each deed which he executes to purchasers. McLennan County v. Graves, 94 T. 635, 64 S. W. 861.

Delinquent tax proceedings.—A sheriff held entitled to commission for money collected on a sale of land for taxes, though he received money collected under the same order from other parcels without sale. City of San Antonio v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 130.

A sheriff is not entitled to compensation for service of notices of the sale for delinquent city taxes on parties and their attorneys. Id.

Foreclosing vendor's lien.—Where a county forecloses a vendor's lien on school lands under an order directing that the lands be sold in certain parcels held proper to allow the sheriff to tax the costs as for several sales, rather than as for one sale. McLennan County v. Graves, 26 C. A. 49, 62 S. W. 122.

Where a county forecloses a vendor's lien on school lands, the sheriff held entitled to retain from proceeds costs of the suit and sale. Id.

Caring for attached property.—The sheriff is entitled to charge his reasonable expenditures in taking care of attached property. Worley v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 784.

Sheriff's charge for taking care of attached property held unreasonable. Id.

Mileage.—A sheriff, charging for service of process, can only rightfully charge for the distance actually traveled in any case, but he is entitled to charge the amount specified in the statute for each writ, though he may serve a number in making one trip. When two or more persons are mentioned in the same writ, he can charge for but one mileage. Railway Co. v. Dawson, 69 T. 519, 7 S. W. 63.

Application of fees to indebtedness.—A commissioners' court, on allowing claims of a sheriff for fees of office, could not appropriate the amount so allowed to the payment of an indebtedness from the sheriff to the county. Denman v. Coffee, 42 C. A. 78, 91 S. W. 809.

Art. 3865. [2461] [2397] Sheriffs' fees for serving process from supreme court, etc.—Sheriffs shall be allowed for all process issued from the supreme court or courts of civil appeals, and served by them, the same fees as are allowed them for similar service upon process issued from the district court. [Act March 9, 1875, p. 70, sec. 3.]

Art. 3866. [2462] [2398] Compensation for ex officio services.—For summoning jurors in district and county courts, serving all election notices, notices to overseers of roads and doing all other public business not otherwise provided for, the sheriff may receive annually not exceeding five hundred dollars, to be fixed by the commissioners' court at the same time other ex officio salaries are fixed; provided, that, in counties exceeding twenty-five thousand population at last decennial census, sheriffs may receive an additional amount not exceeding fifty dollars for each five thousand population in excess of twenty-five thousand up to fifty thousand population, to be paid out of the general funds of the county on the order of the commissioners' court. Provided, that the total amount of compensation which may be paid annually under the provisions of this act shall not exceed the sum of eight hundred dollars. [Acts 1905, p. 91.]

For fees of sheriff in lunacy cases, see Art. 165.

Taking care of property levied upon by virtue of any legal process, all reasonable and necessary expenses, to be taxed and allowed by the court to which such process is returnable. Collecting money under an execution or order of sale, when a sale is made, four per cent on the amount actually collected by him. When the money is collected by him without a sale, two per cent on the amount actually collected by him. [Id. p. 291, sec. 13. Acts 1889, p. 80.]

Art. 3869. [2465] [2401] Fees for services in district or county courts.—For all services performed by constables in business connected with the district and county courts, they shall receive the same fees allowed sheriffs for the same services. [Id.]

7. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Art. 3870. [2466] [2402] Per diem pay of county commissioners.—Each county commissioner, and the county judge when acting as such, shall receive from the county treasury, to be paid on the order of the commissioners' court, the sum of three dollars for each day he is engaged in holding a term of the commissioners' court, but such commissioners shall receive no pay for holding more than one special term of their court per month. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 292, sec. 14.]

Compensation as member of commissioners' court.—See notes under Art. 3852.

8. ASSESSOR OF TAXES

Art. 3871. Assessors' compensation.—Each assessor of taxes shall receive the following compensation for his services, which shall be estimated upon the total values of the property assessed, as follows: For assessing the state and county tax, on all sums for the first two million dollars or less, five cents for each one hundred dollars of property assessed; and on all sums in excess of two million dollars and less than five million dollars, two and one-fourth cents on each one hundred dollars; and on all sums in excess of five million dollars, one and seventeenth cents on each one hundred dollars; one-half of the above fees shall be paid by the state, and one-half by the county; and for assessing the poll tax five cents for each poll, which shall be paid by the state. The commissioners' court may allow to the assessor of taxes such sums of money, to be paid monthly from the county treasury, as may be necessary to pay for clerical work, taking assessments and making out the tax rolls of the county, such sums so allowed to be deducted from the amount allowed to the assessor as compensation upon the completion of said tax rolls; provided, the amount allowed the assessor by the commissioners' court shall not exceed the compensation that may be due by the county to him for assessing. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 8, sec. 8.]

9. COLLECTOR OF TAXES

Art. 3872. Collector's compensation.—There shall be paid for the collection of taxes, as compensation for the services of the collector, beginning with the first day of September of each year, five per cent on the first ten thousand dollars collected for the state, and four per cent on the next ten thousand dollars collected for the state, and one per cent on all collected over that sum; for collecting the county taxes, five per cent on the first five thousand dollars of such taxes collected, and four per cent on the next five thousand dollars collected, and one and one-fourth per cent on all such taxes collected over that sum; and, in counties owing subsidies to railroads, the collectors shall receive only one per cent for collecting such railroad tax; and, in cases where property is levied upon and sold for taxes, he shall receive the same compensation as allowed by law to sheriffs or constables upon making a levy and sale in similar cases, but in no case to include commissions on such sales; and, on all occupation and license taxes collected, five per cent. [Id. p. 8, sec. 9.]

Taxes paid by predecessor.—An incoming tax collector held entitled to recover commissions on taxes paid by the outgoing collector for the benefit of the taxpayers, in order to benefit himself to the extent of the commissions. Graves v. Bullen, 53 C. A. 581, 115 S. W. 1177.

10. COUNTY TREASURER

Art. 3873. [2467] [2403] County treasurers’ commissions.—The county treasurer shall receive commissions on the moneys received and paid out by him, said commissions to be fixed by order of the commissioners’ court as follows: For receiving all moneys, other than school funds, for the county, not exceeding two and one-half per cent, and not exceeding two and one-half per cent for paying out the same; provided, however, he shall receive no commissions for receiving money from his predecessor nor for paying over money to his successor in office. [Id. sec. 15.]

See Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Amount discretionary with commissioners’ court.—Under Const. art. 16, § 44, giving county treasurer such compensation as may be provided for by the county court, the amount of commission is discretionary with that court; but it cannot validly provide that he shall receive no commission, and, on such order being made, the treasurer is entitled to the commission fixed by a previous order. Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267.

When not fixed by court entitled to maximum.—When commissions are not fixed by order of the court, the treasurer is entitled to the maximum fees. Bastrop County v. Hearn, 70 T. 563, 8 S. W. 302.

Serving more than one year.—If the county treasurer holds more than a year before his successor qualifies, he is entitled to pay at the same rate for the time he holds. Davenport v. Eastland, 94 T. 277, 60 S. W. 244.

Under this article, the treasurer who served more than one year was entitled to commissions as money was received and paid out, and not a proportionate amount of the commissions for the time he served. Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267.

Maximum allowance.—The county treasurer is entitled to only $2,000 per annum to be paid out of the fees fixed by the commissioners’ court, if such fees should amount to that much. Davenport v. Eastland, 94 T. 277, 60 S. W. 244.

Funds on which commission should be paid.—The county treasurer is entitled to the custody of all county funds and the commissions thereon. Wall v. McConnell, 65 T. 567; Trinity County v. Vickery, 65 T. 564. See post, Art. 2467.

No distinction can be made between general and special funds belonging to the county, and no authority exists in a commissioners’ court to deprive the treasurer of the right to his commissions for receiving and paying out county funds by directing their receipt and disbursement by any other person. In such case a right of action in favor of the treasurer exists to recover the amount allowed by law for receiving and paying out the money. Bastrop County v. Hearn, 70 T. 563, 8 S. W. 392.

Making reports.—A county treasurer is not entitled to fees for making the reports required by Arts. 1437, 1446, of the Revised Statutes. Wharton County v. Ahldag, 84 T. 12, 19 S. W. 291.

Bonds and amounts received from sale thereof.—A county treasurer is not entitled to commissions on county bonds delivered to a contractor and which had never been sold. Baylor County v. Taylor, 3 C. A. 523, 22 S. W. 983.

A treasurer cannot be deprived of his statutory fees by the delivery of bonds to a contractor. Waller County v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 876.

A county treasurer is not entitled to commissions on bonds surrendered by the owner in lieu of new ones issued to him. Farmer v. Aransas County, 21 C. A. 549, 53 S. W. 607.

Money realized from sale of bonds held to belong to county, so as to entitle its treasurer to commissions thereon. Presidio County v. Walker, 29 C. A. 609, 69 S. W. 97.

County scrip.—The county treasurer is not entitled to commissions on county scrip delivered for cancellation (Wharton County v. Ahldag, 84 T. 12, 19 S. W. 291), or received in payment of and value of taxes (id.) or received by him from the tax collector and reported for cancellation (McKinney v. Robinson, 84 T. 489, 19 S. W. 699; Baylor County v. Taylor, 3 C. A. 523, 22 S. W. 983).

Payment or purchase of judgment.—Evidence, in an action against a county by its ex-treasurer for commissions on the theory that the county borrowed money of a bank and therewith paid a judgment against the county, held sufficient to sustain a finding that the transaction was but a purchase by the bank of the judgment. Benefeld v. Marion County, 45 C. A. 245, 56 S. W. 713.

Rate.—Under this article, courts cannot interfere with an order fixing the commission at 1½ mills on the dollar. Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267.

Art. 3874. [2468] Commissions on school fund.—The treasurers of the several counties shall be treasurers of the available public free school fund and also of the permanent county school fund for their respective counties. The treasurers of the several counties shall be allowed for 2847 receiving and disbursing the school funds one-half of one per cent for receiving, and one-half of one per cent for disbursing; said commissions to be paid out of the available school fund of the county; provided, no commissions shall be paid for receiving the balance transmitted to him by his predecessor, or for turning over the balance in his hands to his successor; and provided, further, that he shall receive no commissions on money transferred. [Acts 1891, p. 147.]

Transfer of funds to county depositaries.—Under Const. art. 16, § 44, providing that the legislature shall prescribe the duties of the county treasurer, who shall have such compensation as may be provided by law, the legislature, notwithstanding this article, had power to pass Acts 51st Leg. ch. 12, transferring the custody of such funds to the county depositaries, thus relieving the county treasurers of any liability for such funds so deposited, and providing that no commissions shall thereafter be paid for receiving or disbursing the same. Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Art. 3875. [2469] [2405] Commissions shall not exceed $2,000 annually.—The commissions allowed to any county treasurer shall not exceed two thousand dollars annually. [Id. Acts 1879, ch. 69, p. 79.]

11. DISTRICT AND COUNTY SURVEYORS

Art. 3876. [2470] [2406] District and county surveyors’ fees.—District and county surveyors shall receive the following fees: [Id. sec. 16.]

Inspecting and recording the field-notes and plat of a survey for any tract of land over one-third of a league........................ $ 3 00

[Act 1881, p. 71.]

Field work by deputy surveyor.—When field work is done by a deputy surveyor he is entitled to the legal fees therefor. Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Void contract for payment of fees.—A contract for the payment of higher fees than prescribed by law is void. Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335. See Keith v. Fountain, 3 C. A. 391, 22 S. W. 191.

12. INSPECTOR OF HIDES AND ANIMALS

Art. 3877. [2471] [2407] Fees of inspector of hides and animals.—Inspectors of hides and animals for each county or district shall receive the following fees:

For each hide or animal inspected........................................ $ 10
If more than fifty hides or animals are inspected in the same lot at the same time for the same person, for each hide or animal in excess of fifty......................................................... 03
For each certificate of acknowledgment.................................. 50

13. NOTARIES PUBLIC

Art. 3878. [2472] [2408] Fees of notaries public.—Notaries public shall receive the following fees:

3916. Certain officers shall keep list of fees posted, etc.
3917. Fees shall not be demanded in advance, etc.
3918. Execution for costs.
3919. Bill of costs shall accompany execution.
3920. Execution shall issue on demand of person entitled to costs.
3921. Preceding articles, etc., do not apply to executors, etc.
3922. Execution for costs shall not issue until, etc.
3923. No fee allowed for filing certain papers.
3924. Any other fees of office.
3925. State's attorney fees in school land litigation.
3926. Defense attorney fees in such cases.

Article 3880. Official failing to take out commission shall not receive fees or compensation, etc.—Any official who refuses or fails to take out a commission shall not be entitled to receive or collect, either from the state or from individuals, any fee or fees, or any sum or sums of money, as fees of office, or compensation for official services; and it shall be unlawful for the comptroller of public accounts, any county commissioners' court, any county auditor or any other person whose duty it is to approve claims or accounts of public officials, to approve or to pay any claim or account in favor of any and all such officers who have failed or refused to take out and pay for their commission as officials as required by this article; and the secretary of state shall, from time to time, as such commissions are issued by him, furnish a list thereof to the comptroller of public accounts and the county commissioners' court and the county auditor, with the name of the county in which such officers reside, and of the district judge. [Acts 1907, p. 501.]

Art. 3881. Maximum amount of fees allowed.—Hereafter the maximum amount of fees of all kinds that may be retained by any officer mentioned in this section (article) as compensation for services shall be as follows: County judge, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding two thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; assessor of taxes, an amount not exceeding two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars per annum; justices of the peace, an amount not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum; constables, an amount not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum; provided, that this Act shall not apply to justices of the peace or constables except those holding offices in cities of more than twenty thousand inhabitants, to be determined by the last United States census. [Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1912, p. 246, sec. 1, amends Rev. St. 1911, arts. 3281-3283, 3887, 3889, 3892, 3897, 3898, and 3903. Section 2 provides that this law shall take effect December 1, 1914.

Constitutionality.—This article is not repugnant to article 5, section 21, state constitution. Hare v. Grayson County (Civ. App.) 11 S. W. 656.

Repeal of statute.—Acts 17th Leg. c. 87, providing that county clerks shall receive certain sums for ex officio services, in so far as it was mandatory, is repealed by Acts 25th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 5, entitled "An act to fix certain civil fees to be charged by certain county officers. * * * to limit and regulate the compensation of the * * * clerk of the county court * * * and to repeal all laws in conflict herewith," fixing, by section 10, the maximum fees that may be retained by the clerk of the county court at $250 per annum, and, in addition thereto, one-fourth of the excess fees collected by him, but providing in section 15 that the commissioners' court shall not be debarred from allowing compensation for ex officio services not to be included in estimating the maximum provided in the act, when, in their judgment, such compensation is necessary; such compensation not to exceed the amount now provided by law for such services. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

"Fees of all kinds."—The phrase "fees of all kinds" embraces every kind of compensation allowed by law to a county clerk unless excepted by some provision of the statute. Ellis County v. Thompson, 96 T. 22, 68 S. W. 49.

In Acts 25th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 5, § 10, fixing the maximum amount of fees of all kinds that may be retained by any officer as compensation for his services, the phrase "fees of all kinds," as applied to the clerk of the county court embraces every kind of compensation allowed by law to him, unless excepted by some provision of the act. Navarro County v. Howard (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 857.

Art. 3882. Maximum fees in certain counties.—In any county shown by the last United States census to contain as many as twenty-five thousand inhabitants the following amounts shall be allowed, viz: county judge, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding three thousand dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; district attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars per annum; inclusive of the five hundred dollars allowed by the constitution and paid by the state; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; assessor of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars per annum. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Art. 3883. Maximum fees in counties containing city of 25,000 inhabitants, etc.—In counties containing a city of over twenty-five thousand inhabitants, or, in such counties as shown by the last United States census, shall contain as many as thirty-eight thousand inhabitants, the following amount of fees shall be allowed, viz: county judge, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; sheriff, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; clerk of the county court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; county attorney, an amount not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars per annum; district attorney, an amount not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars, inclusive of the five hundred dollars allowed by the constitution and paid by the state; clerk of the district court, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; collector of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; assessor of taxes, an amount not exceeding twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum; provided, the compensation fixed herein for sheriffs and their deputies shall be exclusive of any rewards received for the apprehension of criminals or fugitives from justice. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3881.

District and county attorneys.—See Arts. 363, 365.
In counties that cast 7,500 votes or more in presidential elections, the county attorney is entitled to retain for his individual services fees to the extent of $2,500 and one-fourth of the excess. Hare v. Grayson County (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 656.

Art. 3884. County attorney, compensation in certain counties.—The county attorney in those counties having no district attorney, where he performs the duties of district attorney, may receive the same compensation as provided for the district attorney. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 43, sec. 10.]

For fees of county attorney in lunacy cases, see Art. 165.

Art. 3885. District attorney, compensation of.—The maximum fixed for the compensation of the district attorney shall be construed to be the amount which that officer is authorized to retain of fees allowed such officer in his district, whether composed of one or more counties. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 3886. County judge, compensation as superintendent of public instruction.—In counties where a county judge acts as superintendent of public instruction, he shall receive such other salary as may be provided by the commissioners' court, not to exceed the sum of six hundred dollars per annum. [Id. sec. 10.]

Salary or county judge as county superintendent.—This article empowers the commissioners' court to allow county judges for services as county superintendents of public instruction a salary not to exceed $600 per annum. This precludes the idea that they are any longer entitled to commissions as provided by the old law. Stevens v. Campbell, 28 C. A. 213, 63 S. W. 162.

Art. 3887. Last United States census to govern in all cases.—The last United States census shall govern as to population in all cases. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 43, sec. 10. Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1, amending Art. 3887, Rev. St. 1911.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Art. 3888. Amounts allowed to be retained out of fees collected; state not responsible.—The amounts allowed to each officer mentioned in articles 3881 to 3886, inclusive, may be retained out of the fees collected by him under existing laws; but in no case shall the state or the county be responsible for the payment of any sum when the fees collected by any officer are less than the maximum compensation allowed by this chapter, or be responsible for the pay of any deputy or assistant. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 9, sec. 11. Acts 1907, p. 50.]

Amount which might be retained.—The term "maximum" means the specified sum, $2,500 (in this case), and the phrase, "The excess of the fees collected by the said officers" signifies that sum which remains after taking from the whole the maximum and the amount paid to deputies. Hence the officer is entitled to retain one-fourth of the amount he receives above the maximum after he has paid his deputies. Ellis County v. Thompson, 96 T. 32, 64 S. W. 927.

Art. 3889. Fees, how disposed of; excess fees, etc.—Each officer named in this chapter shall first, out of the fees of his office, pay or be paid, the amount allowed him, under the provisions of this chapter, together with the salaries of his assistants or deputies. If the fees of such office collected in any year be more than the amount needed to pay the amount allowed such officer and his assistants and deputies, same shall be deemed excess fees, and of such excess fees such officer shall retain one-fourth: and in counties having between 25,000 and 38,000 inhabitants until such one-fourth amounts to the sum of twelve hundred and fifty dollars; and counties containing a city of more than 25,000 population, or in which county the population exceeds 38,000, until such one-fourth amounts to the sum of fifteen hundred dollars, such population to be based on the United States census last preceding any given year. All amounts received by such officer as fees of his office beside those which he is allowed to retain by the provisions of this chapter,

Art. 3890. Officer not collecting maximum fees, etc., may retain out of delinquent fees collected, remainder paid to treasurer.—Any officer mentioned in articles 3881 to 3886, who does not collect the maximum amount of his fees for any fiscal year and who reports delinquent fees for that year, shall be entitled to retain, when collected, such part of such delinquent fees as is sufficient to complete the maximum compensation for the year in which delinquent fees were charged, and also to retain the one-fourth of the excess belonging to him, and the remainder of the delinquent fees for that fiscal year shall be paid as here­in provided for when collected. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 9, sec. 11. Acts 1907, p. 50.]

Art. 3891. Fees of district clerks in counties having more than one district.—In all counties in this state having more than one judicial district, the district clerks thereof shall in no case be allowed fees in excess of the maximum fees allowed clerks in counties having only one district court. [Id.]

Art. 3892. Delinquent fees, collection of, commissions on, remainder paid to treasurer.—All fees due and not collected as shown in the report required by article 3895 shall be collected by the officer to whose office the fees accrued; and, out of such part of delinquent fees as may be due the county, the officer making such collection shall be entitled to ten per cent of the amount collected by him, and the remainder shall be paid into the county treasury, as provided in article 3889 of this act. It shall not be legal for any officer to remit any fee that may be due under the law fixing fees. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 10, sec. 13.]

Cannot remit fees.—Since the statute prescribes the county clerk's fees for transcribing the records and making new indexes, a contract between the county clerk and county commissioners fixing the clerk's compensation for such work even for less than the legal amount was invalid: the county clerk under Pen. Code 1911, art. 113, and this article, having no right to remit any part of his fees. Russel v. Cordwent (Clv. App.) 152 S. W. 339.

Collection of fees after expiration of term.—After a county officer has gone out of office he has no right to collect the fees that accrued to his office while he was the incumbent. Ellis County v. Thompson, 95 T. 22, 66 S. W. 49.

Fees of clerk of district court.—See Art. 3856 et seq.

Art. 3893. Compensation for ex-officio services, when may be allowed by commissioners' court; proviso.—The commissioners' court is hereby debarred from allowing compensation for ex-officio services to county officials when the compensation and excess fees which they are allowed to retain shall reach the maximum provided for in this chapter. In cases where the compensation and excess fees which the officers are allowed to retain shall not reach the maximum provided for in this chapter, the commissioners' court shall allow compensation for ex-officio services when, in their judgment, such compensation is necessary; provided, such compensation for ex-officio services allowed shall not increase the compensation of the official beyond the maximum amount of compensation and excess fees allowed to be retained by him under this chapter. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 10, sec. 13. Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1, amending Art. 3893, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 3894. Officials named in articles 3881 to 3886 to keep accounts; duty of grand jury and district judge as to.—It shall be the duty of those officials named in articles 3881 to 3886, and also the sheriffs, to keep a correct statement of the sums coming into their hands as fees and commissions, in a book to be provided by them for that purpose, in which the officer at the time when any fees or moneys shall come into his hands shall enter the same; and it shall be the duty of the grand jury (and the district judge shall so charge the grand jury) to examine these accounts at the session of the district court next succeeding the first day of December of each year, and make a report on same to the district court at the conclusion of the session of the grand jury. [Acts 1897, S. S. sec. 16.]

Art. 3895. Officers to make sworn statement, etc., to show what.— Each officer mentioned in articles 3881 to 3886, and also the sheriff, shall, at the close of each fiscal year, make to the district court of the county in which he resides a sworn statement showing the amount of fees collected by him during the fiscal year, and the amount of fees charged and not collected, and by whom due, and the number of deputies and assistants employed by him during the year, and the amount paid, or to be paid each. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 11. Acts 1907, p. 50.]

Art. 3896. Fiscal year defined, and regulation of reports.—A fiscal year, within the meaning of this chapter, shall begin on December 1 of each year; and each officer named in articles 3881 to 3886, and also the sheriff, shall file the reports and make the settlement required in this chapter on December 1 of each year. Whenever such officer serves for a fractional part of a fiscal year, he shall nevertheless file his report and make a settlement for such part of a year as he serves, and shall be entitled to such proportional part of the maximum allowed as the time of his services bears to the entire year. However, an incoming of­ officer elected at the general election, who qualifies prior to December 1 next following, shall not be required to file any report or make any settlement before December 1 of the following year; but his report and settlement shall embrace the entire period dated from his qualification.
[Acts 1897, S. S. p. 11, sec. 19.]

Art. 3897. Monthly report; statement of expenses; audit, etc.—At the close of each month of his tenure of such office each officer whose fees are affected by the provisions of this Act shall make as a part of the report now required by law, an itemized and sworn statement of all the actual and necessary expenses incurred by him in the conduct of his said office, such as stationery, stamps, telephone, traveling expenses and other necessary expense. If such expense be incurred in connection with any particular case, such statement shall name such case. Such expense account shall be subject to the audit of the county auditor, and if it appear that any item of such expense was not incurred by such officer, or that such item was not necessary thereto, such item may be by such auditor or court rejected. In which case the correctness of such item may be adjudicated in any court of competent jurisdiction. The amount of such expense, referred to in this paragraph, shall not be taken to include the salaries of assistants or deputies which are elsewhere herein provided for. The amount of such expense shall be deducted by the officer in making each such report, from the amount, if any, due by him to the county under the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1897, S. S.
1911.]

See note under Art. 3881.

Art. 3898. Certain officers not required to report fees or keep statement; proviso as to district attorney.—The officers named in articles 3881 to 3886, in those counties having a population of twenty-five thousand inhabitants or less shall not be required to make a report of fees as provided in article 3895, or to keep the statement provided for in article 3894; the population of the county to be determined by the last United States census; provided, that all district attorneys shall be required to make the reports and keep the statements required in this chapter. [Acts 1913, p. 246, sec. 1.]

Art. 3899. Collector and assessor to file with comptroller copies of sworn statements.—The tax collector and tax assessor, at the time of their settlement of accounts with the comptroller, shall file with him a copy of the sworn statement required under article 3895. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 11, sec. 18.]

Art. 3900. Officer recovering money or fees belonging to another shall inform him and pay over on demand, etc.—It shall be the duty of every county and precinct officer in the state of Texas who shall, in his official capacity, collect or receive any money or fees belonging to any witness, officer or other person, to inform such person of the collection of such money or fees, and to promptly pay the same over on demand to the person entitled thereto, taking receipt therefor, which shall be entered or noted in the fee book of such officer. [Acts 1907, p. 120.]

Art. 3901. Officers to report fees collected, etc., requisites of report. —On or before the second Mondays in February, May, August and November of each year, said officers shall make report in writing and under oath to the commissioners' court of their respective counties of all such moneys and fees so collected by them during the quarter last preceding, and remaining in their hands uncalled for, giving the number and the style of each cause in which said moneys or fees accrued, and the name of the person entitled thereto; which report shall be filed with the county clerk of said county, and the same shall be by him kept and preserved for future reference and examination. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 3902. Officers to pay over fees, etc., to treasurer after four years, etc.; statements; disposition.—Every officer collecting or having the custody of any money or fees embraced within the provisions of this and the two preceding articles, at the expiration of four years from the time of collecting or receiving such money or fees, in all cases where the same have not been paid over to the person or persons entitled thereto, shall pay the same to the county treasurer of his respective county, accompanying the same by an itemized statement, as provided in article 3901, which statement shall be filed and kept by said treasurer; and said money or fees shall be by him placed to the credit of the road and bridge fund of the county; and the treasurer shall issue to the said officer his receipt for said money or fees, itemizing the same as above provided, which receipt shall be filed by said officer with the county clerk of his respective county; provided, that any officer, upon retiring from office, having any money or fees in his hands embraced within the provisions of this and the two preceding articles, and which are not due to be turned over to the county treasurer as herein provided, shall turn the same over to his successor in office, together with an itemized list of the same as hereinbefore provided, taking proper receipt therefor; and his successor shall report and pay over the same to the county treasurer in accordance with the provisions of this article. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 3903. Officer may appoint deputies, how; county judge not to influence appointment, etc.; compensation, how paid.—Whenever any officer named in articles 3881 to 3886 shall require the service of deputies or assistants in the performance of his duties, he shall apply to the county judge of his county for authority to appoint same; and the county judge shall issue an order authorizing the appointment of such a number of deputies or assistants as in his opinion may be necessary for the efficient performance of the duties of said office. The officer applying for appointment of a deputy or assistant, or deputies or assistants, shall make affidavit that they are necessary for the efficiency of the public service, and the county judge may require, in addition, a statement showing the need of such deputies or assistants; and in no case shall the county judge attempt to influence the appointment of any person as deputy or assistant in any office. Provided, that in all counties having a population in excess of 100,000 inhabitants, the district attorney of any district, or the county attorney of any county where there is no district attorney, is authorized, with the consent of the county judge of the county for which such appointment is intended, to appoint not to exceed two (2) assistants in addition to his regular deputies or assistants, the number of said deputies not to exceed two for the entire district, regardless of the number of counties it may contain, which two assistants shall not be required to possess the qualifications prescribed by law for district or county attorneys, and who shall perform such duties as may be assigned to them by the county attorney of such county, or the district attorney of such district, and who shall receive as their compensation $100.00 per month, to be paid in monthly installments out of the county funds, of the county for which such appointment is made, by warrants drawn on such county funds; and provided, further, that in counties having a population in excess of one hundred thousand inhabitants, the district attorney in the county of his residence or the county attorney where there is not a district attorney, shall be allowed by order of the commissioners court of the county where such official resides, as in the judgment of the commissioners court may be necessary, to the proper administration of the duties of such office, not to exceed, however, the sum of $50.00 per month. Such amount as may be thus necessarily incurred shall be paid by the commissioners court upon affidavit made by the district attorney or the county attorney, showing the necessity of such expense and for what same was incurred. The commissioners court may also require any other evidence as in their opinion may be necessary to show the necessity of such expenditure but they shall be the sole judge as to the necessity for such expenditure and their judgment allowing same shall be final. The maximum amount allowed for deputies or assistants for their services shall be follows, towit:

First assistant or chief deputy, a sum not to exceed a rate of twelve hundred dollars per annum; others not to exceed a rate of nine hundred dollars per annum.

Provided, however, that in counties having a population of 37,500 or over, the maximum salaries allowed for deputies or assistants for their services shall be as follows:

First assistant or chief deputy, a sum not to exceed a rate of eighteen hundred dollars per annum; heads of each department not to exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars per annum; others, not to exceed a rate of twelve hundred dollars per annum.

The county judge in issuing his order granting authority to appoint deputies or assistants, shall state in such order the number of deputies or assistants authorized and the amount to be paid each; and the amount of compensation allowed shall be paid out of the fees of office to which said deputies or assistants may be appointed, and shall not be included in estimating the maximum salaries of officers named in articles 3881 to 3886. [Acts 1897, S. S. p. 10, sec. 12. Acts 1913, p. 286, sec. 1, amending Art. 3903, Rev. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Art. 3903, Rev. St. 1911, was amended by Acts 1913, p. 246, approved April 3, 1913, the amendment to take effect December 1, 1914. Such article was again amended at the same session of the legislature (Acts 1913, p. 286) so as to read as above, but the act was made to take effect from and after its passage. The later amendment was approved April 7, 1913.

Art. 3904. [2474] [2410] Office rent, stationery, etc., to clerks of supreme court and courts of appeals.—There shall be allowed to the clerks of the supreme court and courts of civil and criminal appeals, reasonable office rent, stationery and furniture for their offices, to be paid on the order and approval of their respective courts out of the appropriation for the contingent expenses of said courts. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 285, sec. 4.]
Art. 3905. [2475] [2411] Stationery, etc., allowed certain county officers.—There shall be allowed to county judges, clerks of the district and county courts, sheriffs and county treasurers, such books, stationery, including blank bail bonds and blank complaints, and office furniture as may be necessary for their offices, to be paid for on the order of the commissioners' court out of the county treasury; and suitable offices shall also be provided by the commissioners' court for said officers at the expense of the county. And such books and stationery as are necessary in their performance of their duties shall also be furnished justices of the peace by said commissioners' court. [Acts 1885, p. 112.]

Art. 3906. [2476] [2412] No fees allowed on motions for security for costs, etc.—Clerks of the district and county courts and justices of the peace shall receive no fees for motions or judgments upon motions for security for costs, nor for taking and approving a bond for costs. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 3907. [2477] [2413] Judgment containing several orders, one fee only shall be charged.—A judgment containing several orders shall be considered as one judgment, and only one fee shall be charged by the court, clerk or justice of the peace for rendering or entering the same. [Id.]

Art. 3908. [2478] [2414] Fees of officers for taking acknowledgments, etc.—Clerks of the district and county courts and other officers authorized by law to take acknowledgment or proof of deeds or other instruments of writing shall receive the same fees for taking such acknowledgment or proof as are allowed notaries public for the same services.

Art. 3909. [2479] [2415] Clerks are prohibited from acting as conveyancers, etc.—All clerks and their deputies are prohibited from charging any fees or commissions for writing deeds, mortgages, bills of sale, or any other conveyance for any person, unless they pay the same tax, if any, which may be required by law to be paid by conveyancers or attorneys at law. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 3910. [2480] [2415] Fees in suits to be taxed against party cast, etc.—The fees allowed in this title pertaining to suits or actions in courts shall be allowed and taxed in the bill of costs against the party cast in the suit or action wherein any such service shall be rendered, except where it is otherwise provided by law or adjudged by the court. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 3911. [2481] [2417] No charge for copies of papers, when.—No copy of a paper not required by law to be copied shall be allowed and taxed in the bill of costs; and, if any party or attorney shall take out copies of his own pleadings, or of papers filed by him in any cause, it shall be at his own expense, and no charge for such copies shall be allowed in the bill of costs. [Id.]

Art. 3912. [2482] [2418] No fee for examinations.—No clerk of a court, justice of the peace or other officer shall be allowed to charge any fee for the examination of any paper or record in his office. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 3913. [2483] [2419] Officers shall keep fee books.—Every officer entitled by law to charge fees for services shall keep a fee book, and shall enter therein all fees charged for services rendered; which fee book shall, at all times, be subject to the inspection of any person wishing to see the amount of fees therein charged. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 3914. [2484] [2420] Fee bill shall be produced, etc., before fees are collectible.—None of the fees mentioned in this title shall be payable to any person whomsoever until there be produced, or ready to be produced, unto the person owing or chargeable with the same, a bill or account in writing containing the particulars of such fees, signed by the clerk or officer to whom such fees are due, or by whom the same are charged, or by the successor in office, or legal representative of such clerk or officer. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 3915. [2485] [2421] Penalty for demanding, etc., fees unlawfully.—If any of the officers named in this title shall demand and receive any higher fees than are prescribed to them in this title, or any fees that are not allowed by this title, such officer shall be liable to the party aggrieved for fourfold the fees so unlawfully demanded and received by him, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction, and may also be punished criminally for extortion, as prescribed in the Penal Code. [Id. sec. 24. See Acts 1879, ch. 108, sec. 9.]

Penalty applies only to fees named.—The penalty prescribed in this article applies only to fees named in this title. Wood County v. Cate, 75 T. 215, 12 S. W. 535.

Fee to notary making premature protest.—The payment of the regular fee to a notary making a premature protest in ignorance of the law is not extortion within the meaning of this act, and having been paid voluntarily cannot be recovered back. Hirshfield v. Bank, 83 T. 452, 18 S. W. 743, 15 L. R. A. 638, 29 Am. St. Rep. 666.

Liability for fees unlawfully received.—Even if a county clerk under the common law and in equity was not liable for the return of fees collected in excess of the amounts allowed by law, he is made liable by this article. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 685.

Art. 3916. [2486] [2422] Certain officers shall keep list of fees posted, etc.—It shall be the duty of county judges, clerks of the district and county courts, sheriffs, justices of the peace, constables and notaries public of the several counties, to keep posted, at all times, in a conspicuous place in their respective offices a complete list of fees allowed by law to be charged by them respectively. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 3917. [2487] [2423] Fees shall not be demanded in advance, etc.—Officers receiving any process to be executed shall not be entitled in any case to demand their fees for executing the same in advance of such execution, but their fees shall be taxed and collected as other costs in the case.

Art. 3918. [2488] [2424] Execution for costs.—It shall be lawful for any clerk of a court or justice of the peace, when any suit is determined in their respective courts and the costs are not paid by the party against whom the same have been adjudged, to issue execution therefor against such party, under the same rules governing executions in other cases, to be levied and collected as in other cases. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 3919. [2489] [2425] Bill of costs shall accompany execution.—A bill of costs, showing each item thereof, for which the party against whom the execution issues is liable, shall accompany each execution or order of sale. [Id.]

Art. 3920. [2490] [2426] Execution shall issue on demand of person entitled to costs.—Any person to whom any costs are due in a suit or action, which has been determined, may demand that execution issue therefor; and, thereupon it shall be the duty of the clerk or justice of the peace to issue execution for all costs due by such party at once.

Art. 3921. [2492] [2428] Preceding articles, etc., do not apply to executors, etc.—The preceding articles in relation to executions and payment of costs do not apply to executors, administrators or guardians, but in cases where costs are adjudged against an estate of a deceased person, or of a ward, the same shall be collected as provided in the titles, "Estates of Decedents," and, "Guardian and Ward." [Id. sec. 26. Acts 1879, ch. 81, p. 93.]

Art. 3922. [2493] [2429] Execution for costs shall not issue, until, etc.—No execution for costs shall issue in any case until after judgment rendered therefor by the court.

See Art. 2030 et seq.

Execution for costs.—An execution must be authorized by, and conform to, the judgment; if there be no judgment for costs there can be no execution for them, unless it be Art. 3923. [2494] [2430] No fee allowed for filing certain papers.
—No clerk or justice of the peace shall be entitled to any fee for filing any process or paper issued by him and returned into his court.

Art. 3924. [2495] Any other fees of office.—Any other fees of office not embraced within this title, but otherwise provided for, shall not be affected by the provisions hereof.

Art. 3925. [2495a] State's attorney fees in school land litigation.—
District and county attorneys who have represented, or may hereafter represent, the state in suits for the recovery of interest and purchase money due the state on account of sales of school lands, made under the laws of 1879 and 1881, or for the forfeiture of said lands on account of non-payment of said interest and purchase money, shall be allowed a fee of ten dollars for each of such cases in which the state recovers judgment; said fees to be approved by the judge who tried the case, or his successors in office, and certified by the clerk of the trial court, and when so approved and certified shall be paid out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; provided, that, in cases where suits are filed by one district or county attorney and judgment obtained by his successor in office, the fee shall be equally divided between them. [Acts 1893, p. 29.]

Art. 3926. [2495b] Defense attorney fees in such cases.—A fee of five dollars for every suit heretofore or hereafter brought [shall] be allowed attorneys appointed by the court to represent the defendant in all cases where the state recovered judgment and where the costs can not be made out of the defendant; said fee to be paid by the state upon the presentation of an account allowed by the district court trying said case, stating the number and style of the suit and that the state recovered therein, that the attorney was appointed and represented the defendant therein, and that the costs can not be recovered out of said defendant. [1d.]

decisions relating to subject in general

Authority of court to fix compensation.—Unless the statute expressly provide for fees for the particular service performed by an officer, the courts have no power to fix a compensation for the services rendered. Wharton County v. Aldag, 84 T. 12, 19 S. W. 291. See James v. Wilson, 7 T. 230.

Assignment of compensation.—It is contrary to public policy for a public officer to assign or give a lien upon his unearned compensation, either salary or fees, and such assignment or lien is void. Bank v. Fink, 24 S. W. 356, 86 T. 303, 40 Am. St. Rep. 833; Williams v. Ford (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 723.

A contract with a candidate for public office to pay him certain sums for the privilege of selecting his deputies and receiving his fees held void. Willis v. Weatherford Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 472.

Where the fees of a public officer are collected by another under a void assignment of such fees, such collection is ineffectual as to such officer, and they are still uncollected so far as he is concerned. Id.

Where, acting under a void assignment, an assignee has collected the fees of an officer, the moneys so collected cannot be recovered from such assignee by the officer, or reached by his creditors in garnishment proceedings. Id.

Contract for additional compensation.—Where the law fixes the compensation which an officer shall receive for given services, he cannot contract to receive from other sources any additional compensation for such services. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1188.

Right of county attorney to retain fees.—Rev. St. 1895, art. 2455c, provides that the county attorney shall receive in addition to his stated salary one-fourth of the excess of the fees collected by him. Article 2455d requires a sworn statement showing the amount of fees collected and the amount of fees charged and not collected. Article 2455f declares that all fees due and not collected shall be collected by the officer to whose office the fees accrued, and out of such part of delinquent fees as may be due the county the officer making such collection shall be entitled to 10 per cent. and the remainder shall be paid into the county treasury. Held that, before the county is entitled to any fees collected by the county attorney, it must appear that when he received such fees, he had collected in fees the maximum compensation allowed him by law, for, until then, he is entitled to all fees collected, and the county has no interest therein. Lattimore v. Tarrant County, 57 C. A. 610, 124 S. W. 265.

Recovery of fees paid.—Under the common law and in equity, where a county clerk by mistake collected fees in excess of those allowed by law, he is liable for the repayment to the parties paying them of the excessive amounts collected and the county is not entitled to an accounting therefor; and if he has paid them over to the county, he may recover them from the county. Tarrant County v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 592.

Article 3927. [2496] [2431] "Sufficient fence" defined.—Every gardener, farmer or planter shall make a sufficient fence about his cleared land in cultivation, at least five feet high, and make such fence sufficiently close to prevent hogs from passing through the same; but it shall be unlawful for any persons whomsoever, by joining fences or otherwise, to build or maintain more than three miles lineal measure of fence running in the same general direction without a gateway in the same, which gateway must be at least eight feet wide, and shall not be locked. [Act Feb. 5, 1840, p. 179. P. D. 3838. P. C. arts. 685, 686. Acts 1884, p. 37.]

Object of laws.—The statute requiring farmers and others to make a sufficient fence about cleared land in cultivation was designed for the protection of crops inside the enclosure against stock running at large. The failure to keep a fence around a growing crop, which in its nature could not be regarded as dangerous to stock, would not render the owner in possession liable for injury which might result to animals that had entered and been injured by eating of the crop. Fennell v. Railway Co., 70 T. 670, 8 S. W. 486.

The purpose of this act is to give landowners complying with its requirements as to fences a special remedy for damages by trespassing stock, irrespective of negligence. Posey v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 937.

Necessity for gateway.—It is unlawful to build or maintain, by joining or otherwise, more than three miles of fence running in the same direction without a gateway.

Negligence in construction of fences.—A landowner owes no duty to persons trespassing upon his lands in the construction of fencing not along public highways, and there can be no negligence in the construction of such fencing. Worthington v. Wade, 82 T. 26, 17 S. W. 520.

Barbed wire fence in town or city.—A barbed wire fence may be constructed within the limits of a town or city, if not prohibited by an ordinance, and in the absence of evidence showing it to be a nuisance the owner is not liable for injury to stock caused thereby. Roberison v. Wooley, 22 S. W. 828, 6 C. A. 237.

Duty to repair fences.—The lessee of rented premises must keep the fences in repair. Taul v. Shanklin, 1 App. C. C. § 1138.

The owner of land pasturing cattle for pay is bound to keep up the fences. He cannot recover pay for pasturage of cattle escaping by reason of defective fencing, and is responsible for damages resulting from their loss. McAuley v. Harris, 71 T. 631, 9 S. W. 679.

One tearing down another’s fences is bound only to put the fence in as good a condition as it was before it was torn down. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McMurrough, 41 C. A. 216, 91 S. W. 320.

Where defendant orally contracted to pasture certain cattle at a certain price per head, an agreement that he would not overstock the pasture nor permit the fences surrounding the same to become out of repair will be implied. J. B. Wallis & Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 43.

Contributory negligence.—The failure of an owner to exercise ordinary care in repairing a fence torn down by another so as to keep stock from trespassing on his crops is contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McMurrough, 41 C. A. 216, 91 S. W. 320.

Lawful fence—Stock laws.—See Arts. 7227, 7254.

Fences around irrigation farms.—See Art. 4990.

Article 3928. [2497] [2432] Complaint before justice of the peace, when made.—When any trespass shall have been done by any cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, on the cleared and cultivated ground of any person, it shall be lawful for such person to complain thereof to any justice of the peace for the county where such trespass shall have been done, and such justice is hereby authorized and required to cause two disinterested and impartial freeholders to be summoned, who, with such justice, shall view and examine on oath whether complainant's fence be sufficient or not, and what damages it has sustained by such trespass, and certify the same in writing; and, if it shall so appear that said fence be sufficient, then the owner of such cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, shall make full satisfaction for the trespass to the party injured, to be recovered before any tribunal having cognizance thereof.

Object of laws.—See notes under Art. 3927.

Necessity and sufficiency of inclosure.—Where the fence is sufficient, damages for injuries to crops by another's stock can be recovered; otherwise not. Hoskins v. Huling, 2 App. C. C. § 161.

At common law the right of pasturage on uninclosed land vested in the owner of the land, and the right of common, in the absence of his consent, did not exist. The owner of cattle grazing upon the land of another was responsible for all damage done by them, whether the land was inclosed or not. In Texas, if the owner of land takes no steps to guard against intrusion by the cattle of another, he cannot complain if they graze upon it. If he incloses it, his inclosure must be respected, even though it is not inclosed with a statutory fence. Davis v. Davis, 70 T. 153, 7 S. W. 826; Abbey v. Shiner, 24 S. W. 91, 5 C. A. 287; Pace v. Potter, 85 T. 473, 22 S. W. 300.

Under this article and Art. 3927 it is essential to plaintiff's right to recover that he establish that his land was inclosed with a sufficient fence at least five feet high. Gest v. Dube (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 965.

Injuries by stock coming from land in common inclosure.—Plaintiff and defendant owned lands adjoining. By the fences of other landowners the territory occupied by the plaintiff and defendant became surrounded by fences. The defendant put cattle upon his lands. Held that such act and course in damages from his cattle pasturing upon the lands of the plaintiff; otherwise if the defendant had taken and held exclusive possession of the lands of the plaintiff within such an inclosure, Plaintiff v. Potter, 85 T. 473, 22 S. W. 300.

The rule that a party whose lands are in a common inclosure with the lands of another cannot complain of damages from stock wandering from the other party's lands to his own does not apply so as to prevent his recovery of damages from cattle which are pastured upon his lands under a claim of right. Tandy v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 481.

It is not material to a cattle owner's liability for trespass that the lands are not properly inclosed with a fence, where he committed the trespass by pasturing his cattle thereon under a claim of right. Id.

Liability for injuries by cattle breaking through fence.—Where plaintiff's cattle were injured by defendant's bulls breaking through a feeding pen, consisting of a fence sufficient to turn ordinary cattle, defendant was liable for the injuries. Trammell v. Turner (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 325.

In an action for damages from a trespass by defendant's cattle, an issue as to whether defendant "knew and intended" that the cattle herded by him outside of plaintiff's fence would break the fence was not erroneous. Moore v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1007.

The owner of cattle who herded them just outside another's pasture was not liable for their trespass after breaking through the fence, in the absence of anything tending to show that the cattle were breachy. Id.

In an action for damages caused by defendant having driven cattle upon a strip of land known and intending that they should break plaintiff's fence, a charge on the circumstances under which plaintiff would be entitled to recover held not erroneous. Moore v. Pierson, 100 T. 113, 94 S. W. 1132.

The duties and liabilities of the owner of stock and of landowners in case of damage from the breaking of fences by cattle permitted to roam at large stated. Posey v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 937.

Communicating disease.—One held liable where his cattle broke through the fences of another and communicated a dangerous disease to his cattle, though defendant did not know that his cattle were infected with such disease. Clarendon Land, Investment & Agency Co., Limited, v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 170.

Inclosing land of another.—One who by mistake builds a fence on the adjoining land of another may remove it to his own land. Long v. Cude, 75 T. 225, 12 S. W. 827.

Where the owner of several tracts of land in inclosing them within one large inclosure necessarily incloses a tract belonging to another, this is an appropriation of such other person's land, and the pasture owner is liable in trespass to try title for rental value of the tract thus inclosed, although the pasture fence contains gates every three miles, and the pasture owner disclaims title and possession of such tract. St. Louis Cattle Co. v. Vaught, 1 C. A. 355, 20 S. W. 855.

Joining fences.—See notes under Art. 3932.

Summary of report.—In an action on a report of viewers for damage caused by stock under Arts. 3927-3939, the report held insufficient to sustain an action. Gest v. Dube (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 965.

Under this article and Art. 3928, providing that, in case of depredations by cattle on crops, a justice, he and two freeholders may examine and report on oath the condition of the fence and the extent of the damage on which an action may be maintained, such report was not conclusive of the sufficiency of complainant's fence, but that defendant was entitled in an action on the report to show that the fence maintained was not it in fact five feet high, and that it had a water gap through which stock entered at will. Id.

Nature of remedy.—This and following articles, providing for distraint of animals breaking through a close surrounded by a lawful fence and causing damage to crops, create a remedy proceeding; and hence the statute must be strictly followed before liability can attach. Gest v. Dube (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 965.
issues and proof.—Under the allegations of the petition in an action for damage to crops from trespassing stock, plaintiff held not bound to prove that the fence around the premises was of any particular kind. Posey v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 937.

Plaintiff in an action for injuries to crops caused by trespassing stock held entitled to have the issue of whether his fence was sufficient to exclude cattle not of a fence-breaking nature submitted to the jury. In this only case the evidence warranted a finding that defendant was negligent in permitting his stock to run at large. Id.

Measure of damages.—The measure of damages for injuries to the crop is the actual loss sustained, which ordinarily is the value of the crops destroyed. Taul v. Shanklin, 1 App. C. C. § 1129.

Art. 3929. [2498] [2433] Stock may be impounded, when.—In case of a second trespass by the same cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, the owner, lessee or proprietor of the premises upon which the trespass is committed may, if he deem it necessary for the protection and preservation of his premises, or the crops growing thereon, cause such stock to be penned and turned over to the sheriff or constable and held responsible to the person damaged for all damages caused by said stock and all costs thereon. [P. D. 6845.]

Summary remedy.—See note under Art. 3928.

Sufficiency and conclusiveness of report.—See note under Art. 3928.

Art. 3930. [2499] [2434] Owner of cattle, etc., not liable, when.—If it shall appear that the said fence is insufficient, then the owner of such cattle, horses, hogs or other stock, shall not be liable to make satisfaction for such damages. [Id. P. D. 6845.]

Liability for damages.—One herding animals upon inclosed pasturage belonging to another is liable for the damage done the land, the measure of which is the market value of the pasturage. Dignowitty v. Ballantyne, 3 App. C. C. § 195.

The owner of a cattle has a right to permit them to run large at upon the open range, or upon his own inclosed lands, unless they are known to be breathy, or fence breaking, vicious or diseased. The liability upon the stock owner having notice is for such damages as that character of animals might be expected to commit. Clarendon L. I. & A. Co. v. McClelland, 89 T. 483, 35 S. W. 474, 31 L. R. A. 669, 59 Am. St. Rep. 70. This article modifies the common law doctrine of absolute liability and limits the liability of the owner of stock to damages inflicted upon premises which are inclosed by a lawful fence. Frazer v. Bedford (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 573.

A landowner is not entitled to a remedy for trespass by stock, unless he fences with a sufficient fence. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Fruitt, 49 C. A. 370, 110 S. W. 966.

Art. 3931. [2500] [2435] Persons injuring stock, liable, when.—If any person whose fence shall be adjudged insufficient shall, with guns, dogs or otherwise maim, wound or kill any horses, cattle, hogs or other stock, or cause or procure the same to be done, such person so offending shall make full satisfaction to the person injured for all damages by such person sustained, to be recovered before any tribunal having cognizance thereof. [P. D. 3840.]

Right to shoot cattle breaking through a good fence.—Where a person has a good fence, and another's cattle break through it, he has a right to shoot them to protect his crop. Huffman v. State, 54 Cr. R. 469, 110 S. W. 749.

Art. 3932. [2501] Unlawful to remove adjoining fence except, when.—Hereafter, it shall be unlawful for any person who is a joint owner of any separating or dividing fence, or who is in any manner interested in any fence attached to, or connected with, any fence owned or controlled by any other person, to remove the same, except by mutual consent or as hereinafter provided. [Act March 17, 1887. Act April 6, 1889, p. 45.]

Joining fences.—If one proprietor incloses his land by a fence on the line, an adjoining proprietor may join fences. Nolan v. Mendere, 77 T. 565, 14 S. W. 167, 19 Am. St. Rep. 801.

Right to remove fence.—Where a landowner joins his fence to a right of way fence, and afterwards receives notice to disconnect it, which he disregards, held that he cannot recover damages occasioned by its removal by the company. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 848.

If one has joined his fence to another's so as to utilize that other's in forming his own inclosure, that other does not have to notify him before he can move his own fence. McNeely v. State, 50 Cr. R. 278, 96 S. W. 1083.

It is not criminal for one in the actual peaceful and quiet possession of a fence to remove it. Fitzsimon v. State, 62 Cr. R. 440, 138 S. W. 110.

Damages for conversion of fence.—In an action for conversion of a certain fence, plaintiff's measure of damages held, not what he paid for the fence, but its market value. If it has no market value; otherwise its reasonable value at the time he was to have received it. Harrison v. McGehee (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 613.

Art. 3933. [2502] Can not separate fence, except, how.—Any person who is the owner or part owner of any fences connected with or adjoining to any fences owned in part or in whole by any other person shall have the right to withdraw or separate his fence or part of fence from the fence of any other person or persons in this state; but such person who desires to withdraw or separate such fence from the fence of any other person shall give notice in writing to such person, his agent, attorney, or lessee, of his intention to separate or withdraw his fence, or part thereof, for at least six months prior to the time of such intended withdrawal or separation. [Id.]

Court in which action must be brought.—A suit to restrain the removal of a division fence must be instituted in the district court. Scripture v. Kent, 1 App. C. C. § 1057; Daubenauer v. Devine, 51 T. 488, 32 Am. Rep. 637. See Owens v. Frather, 1 App. C. C. § 1131, where it is held that a suit for damages for the removal of rails on a division fence may be brought in the county court.

Fence does not include hedge.—The word "fence" as used in this and preceding article has no reference to and does not include within its meaning a hedge. But where a hedge is the dividing line between two tracts of land it cannot be destroyed by either party without trespassing on the rights of the other. Brown v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 49.

Damages for removal.—The measure of damages for the removal of a fence without compliance with the requirements of the statute is the value of cattle scattered and lost thereby, reasonable diligence having been used to find them, and the reasonable expense, if any, of gathering them. St. Louis Cattle Co. v. Gholson (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 269.

Art. 3934. [2503] Adjacent owners required to remove fence, how. —Any person who is the owner of any fence wholly upon his own land to which the fence of another is adjoining or connected in any manner, may require the owner of any such fence to disconnect and withdraw the same back on his own land by first giving notice in writing, for at least six months, to such person, his agent, attorney, or lessee, to disconnect and withdraw his fence back on his own land. [Id.]
Article 3935. [2504] [2436] Termination of fiscal year.—The fiscal year of the state shall terminate on the thirty-first day of August of each year, and appropriations made for the support of the state government shall conform thereto. [Acts 1901, p. 9. Acts 1857, p. 17.]

Art. 3936. [2505] [2437] Accounts to be closed and reports compiled.—All officers who are required by law to report annually or biennially to the legislature or governor shall close their accounts on said date, and as soon thereafter as practicable shall prepare and compile their respective reports. [Id. P. D. 3864.]

Art. 3937. [2506] [2438] Secretary of state to have reports printed.—All annual or biennial reports intended for the use of the legislature or governor shall be transmitted by the respective officers to the secretary of state on or before the first day of November; and the secretary of state shall cause the same to be printed in accordance with the laws regulating public printing, as soon as practicable: all biennial reports to be printed before the assembling of the legislature. [Id. P. D. 3865.]

Art. 3938. [2507] [2439] Legislators to be furnished with copies of reports.—Upon the organization of the legislature, the secretary of state shall transmit to the presiding officers of both houses ten copies of each printed report for the use of the members of the legislature. [Id. P. D. 3866.]

Art. 3939. Purpose of title.—The purpose of this chapter is to require all appropriations for the support of the state government to conform to the fiscal year as provided in article 3935; and all officers that are required by law to report annually or biennially to the legislature or governor to close their accounts, transmit their reports at a uniform date; and all laws or parts of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [Id.]
ART. 3940. FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER

ARTICLE 3940. [2519] [2440] In what cases the action will lie.—If any person (1) shall make an entry into any lands, tenements or other real property, except in cases where entry is given by law, or (2) shall make any such entry by force, or (3) if any person shall wilfully and without force hold over any lands, tenements or other real property after the termination of the time for which such lands, tenements or other real property were let to him, or to the person under whom he claims, after demand made in writing for the possession thereof by the person or persons entitled to such possession, such person shall be adjudged guilty of forcible entry and detainer, or of forcible detainer, as the case may be. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 155, sec. 1.]

Persons entitled to sue.—The action must be brought by the tenant whose possession is disturbed, and not by his landlord. Hays v. Porter, 27 T. 92.

A claimant of land who has been turned out of possession by a writ issued in a suit to which he was not a party can maintain this action. Laird v. Winters, 27 T. 440, 86 Am. Dec. 620; Wyatt v. Munroe, 27 T. 368.

One intending to purchase school land which he had caused to be surveyed, and who is not an actual settler thereon, cannot maintain an action of forcible entry and detainer. Richardson v. Westmoreland, 4 App. C. C. § 315, 19 S. W. 432.

An action can be maintained by one to whom the defendant in possession has attorned. Grabfelder v. Gazetti (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 446; Cadwallader v. Lovec, 10 C. A. 1, 29 S. W. 666.

Under this article and Art. 3941, one who was in the actual possession of premises and was forcibly ejected therefrom, under an execution which did not include the premises taken, by another who entered and held possession, was entitled to maintain forcible entry and detainer to recover possession. Cranberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1123.

Persons against whom action may be brought.—This action cannot be maintained against one who entered upon land under a contract of purchase. Cunningham v. Ammerman, 3 App. C. C. § 352.

Existence of relation of landlord and tenant.—A lease by express contract by one tenant to his cotenant of his interest in the property creates the relation of landlord and tenant as between themselves. McKie v. Anderson, 78 T. 207, 14 S. W. 576; Grabfelder v. Gazetti (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 446.

In order to constitute a forcible detainer under this article, the relationship of landlord and tenant must exist. Francis v. Holmes, 54 C. A. 608, 118 S. W. 881.

Action against owner for destruction of improvements.—One who unlawfully enters upon and improves a portion of a tract of land when the other portion is in actual possession by the true owner of the entire tract may maintain an action for damages against the true owner of the land for a forcible destruction of his improvements, his forcible ejection from the premises, and the removal of his personal effects therefrom. Sinclair v. Stanley, 69 T. 718, 7 S. W. 611.

Premises leased for immoral purposes.—An action for forcible detainer can be maintained when the premises are leased for immoral purposes. Murat v. Micand (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 312.

Entry during absence of occupant.—An entry upon the premises during the casual absence of the occupant is within the statute. Holmes v. Holloway, 21 T. 268.
Prior possession of plaintiff.—One who has leased an inclosed pasture and has stock therein and is in control thereof, although he does not live on the premises, is in actual possession of same, and if another enters upon and takes possession, during the absence, and without consent of the lessee, he is guilty of forcible entry and detainer, within the meaning of the law. Zuecher v. Startz, 53 C. A. 442, 115 S. W. 1175.

In cases of forcible entry and detainer a tenant may defend by showing that he purchased the landlord's title, or that he has attorned to another who has so purchased. Texas Land Co. v. Turman, 53 T. 619.

He cannot set up an adverse title acquired before his tenancy commenced. Hoskins v. Bigham, 1 App. C. C. § 1027.

Against a plaintiff suing for possession a purchaser under him on an executory contract for non-payment of purchase money (the purchaser being in possession when the contract was made) possession was indicated by false and material representations of the plaintiff, presents a proper defense. In such a case the defendant may retain possession and defeat a recovery, except as to the interest of his vendor. Hammers v. Hanbrick, 68 T. 412, 7 S. W. 545.

One cannot enter and forcibly take possession of land from another, even under a claim of title, without submitting himself to an action for forcible entry and detainer. McRae v. White (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 793.

Where a lessee has accepted rent from one unlawfully in possession and has treated him as a subtenant, the lessor cannot maintain a possessory action. McSweeney v. Ellerman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 270.

— Under defective writ.—A writ, under which land was taken, which did not include the land taken, was not color of authority so as to prevent the person ousted from recovering such land by forcible entry and detainer. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

Where the execution was, under which land was taken and the possessor ousted, and the judgment upon which it was issued, did not include the land taken, it was immaterial, upon his maintaining in forcible entry and detainer that the judgment creditor was entitled to a judgment foreclosing a lien upon the land taken, and that it was not included in the judgment by mistake; the remedy of forcible entry and detainer being to prevent the violent entries, irrespective of the ultimate right of ownership or superiority of title. Id.

Demand.—A demand for possession on the day before bringing forcible entry and detainer held sufficient. Beauchamp v. Runnels, 35 C. A. 212, 79 S. W. 1105.

Jurisdiction of justice of the peace.—In this class of cases the justice's court acts as a court of general jurisdiction, and its judgment in a case where it has jurisdiction over the parties is not void, however erroneous it may be. Clayton v. Hurt, 32 S. W. 876, 88 T. 595.

The tenant's right to possession ceases as well upon the happening of some contingency stated in the contract of lease, as upon the expiration of the term and the landlord's right to re-enter begins. Not in the one case more than in the other is it necessary to resort to the district court to have determined the landlord's right to possession. The right to the possession is properly determined in the justice court in a forcible entry and detainer suit. Walther v. Anderson, 52 C. A. 560, 114 S. W. 414, 417, 418.

Trespass to try title in lieu.—One in whose favor the action may lie may bring an action of trespass to try title in lieu of this proceeding. Thurber v. Conners, 57 T. 96; Andrews v. Parker, 48 T. 94; McDannell v. Cherry, 64 T. 177.

Art. 3941. [2520] [2441] "Forcible entry" defined.—A "forcible entry" or an entry where entry is not given by law within the meaning of this chapter is:

1. An entry without the consent of the person having the actual possession.

2. As to a landlord, an entry upon the possession of his tenant at will or by sufferance, whether with or without the tenant's consent.

Peaceable entry by one entitled to possession.—A forcible entry upon a peaceable possession is unlawful. But one lawfully entitled can make peaceable entry, even when another is in occupation, and such entry restores him to complete possession. Heironimus v. Duncan, 11 C. A. 618, 33 S. W. 287; See Baker v. Cornelius, 6 C. A. 27, 24 S. W. 949; Sinclair v. Stanley, 64 T. 67; Id., 65 T. 718, 7 S. W. 611.

Art. 3942. [2521] [2442] Other cases of forcible detainer.—A person shall be adjudged guilty of forcible detainer also in the following cases:

1. Where a tenant at will or by sufferance refuses, after demand made in writing as aforesaid, to give possession to the landlord after the determination of his will.

2. Where the tenant of a person who has made a forcible entry refuses to give possession, after demand as aforesaid, to the person upon whose possession the forcible entry was made.

3. Where a person who has made a forcible entry upon the possession of one who acquired it by forcible entry refuses to give possession on demand, as aforesaid, to him upon whose possession the first forcible entry was made.

4. Where a person who has made a forcible entry upon the possession of a tenant for a term refuses to deliver possession to the landlord, upon demand as aforesaid, after the term expires; and, if the term expire whilst a writ of forcible entry sued out by the tenant is pending, the landlord may, at his own cost and for his own benefit, prosecute it in the name of the tenant. It is not material whether the tenant shall have received possession from his landlord or have become his tenant after obtaining possession.

Parol evidence to show written demand.—That the demand was made in writing as required by statute can be shown by parol. Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. § 347.

Estoppel to deny landlord’s title.—See notes under Title 80.

Possession under contract of purchase.—Where possession is given under a contract of purchase, an action of forcible entry and detainer, or forcible detainer will not lie. Francis v. Holmes, 54 C. A. 608, 118 S. W. 881.

Art. 3943. [2522] [2443] Venue.—Any justice of the peace of the precinct where the property is situated shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine any case arising under this title. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 3944. [2523] [2444] Citation.—Whenever the party aggrieved, or his authorized agent, shall file his complaint in writing and under oath with such justice of the peace, it shall be his duty immediately to issue his citation to the sheriff or any constable of his county, commanding him to summon the person against whom complaint is made to appear before such justice, at a time and place named in such citation, such time being for not more than ten nor less than six days from the date of the citation. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 3944a. Suit for rent may be joined; judgment, etc.—A suit for rent may be joined with an action of forcible entry and detainer, wherever the suit for rent is within the jurisdiction of the justice court. In such case the court, in rendering judgment in the action of forcible entry and detainer, may at the same time render judgment for any rent due the landlord by the renter; provided the amount thereof is within the jurisdiction of the justice court. [Acts 1911, p. 27, sec. 1.]

Acts 1911, p. 27, sec. 1, enacts that Title 49 of Rev. Civ. St. of 1895 be amended so as to add to Art. 2523 another article, to be known as Art. 2523a.

Suit for rent in connection with one for forcible entry and detainer.—The only exception permitting a suit for rent in connection with one for forcible entry and detainer is that in favor of landlords as against their tenants, where the rents claimed are in such amount as to give the justice’s court jurisdiction. Hengy v. Hengy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1127.

Art. 3945. [2524] [2445] Requisites of the complaint.—The complaint named in the preceding article shall describe the lands, tenements or premises, the possession of which is claimed, with certainty sufficient to identify the same; and it shall also state the facts which entitle the complainant to the possession and authorize the action under the first three articles of this title. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 155.]

Requisites and sufficiency of complaint.—The complaint should allege that the premises or a part thereof are situated in the precinct in which suit is brought and that the relation of landlord and tenant exists between the parties. Yarbrough v. Chamberlain, 1 App. C. C. § 1122. The facts must be clearly stated in the complaint. Cooper v. Marchbanks, 22 T. 1.

The land must be described (Ochoa v. Garza, 1 App. C. C. § 929; Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. § 346) so as to identify it (Murat v. Micaud [Civ. App.] 25 S. W. 312).

For a complaint held sufficient, see Irvin v. Davenport, 84 T. 512, 19 S. W. 692; McHenry v. Curtis, 3 App. C. C. § 269.

Complaint in forcible entry and detainer held insufficient, because it does not locate the land in the precinct where action is brought, does not sufficiently describe the land, does not state statutory grounds for bringing the action, and shows no ouster. Lasater v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 221.

A complaint in an action of forcible entry and detainer in justice court held not insufficient to give the court jurisdiction for failure of the jurat to show by whom it was verified. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 968.

Description of land in complaint for forcible entry and detainer held not incapable of supporting a judgment. Evetta v. Johns (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 778.

Amendment.—A complaint in forcible entry and detainer may, as far as the description of the property is concerned, be amended like any other pleading. Evetta v. Johns (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 778; Granberry v. Storey, 127 S. W. 1122.
Title 61) FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER—Art. 3951

Variance.—Where a complaint in a forcible detainer avers complainant’s possession of the premises and demise of them to defendant, and the evidence fails to show such possession and any demise for any term, complainant cannot recover. Willis v. Roan (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 966.

Art. 3946. [2525] [2446] Service and return of citation.—The sheriff or constable receiving such citation shall execute the same by reading it to the defendant, or by leaving a copy thereof with some person over the age of sixteen years, at his usual place of abode, at least five days before the return day thereof; and he shall return such citation, with his action written thereon, to the justice of the peace who issued the same, on the day assigned for trial. [Id.]

Art. 3947. [2526] [2447] Either party may demand a jury; precept for and service.—Either party to the suit shall have the right of trial by jury, by making demand for a jury to the justice of the peace on or before the day for which the case is set for trial, and paying the jury fee of three dollars; and, when a jury is demanded, the justice of the peace shall issue a precept to the sheriff or any constable of the county, commanding him to summon a jury of six men, qualified jurors of the county, to appear before him on the day set for trying the complaint, to serve as jurors, and shall be returned with the name of the jurors thereon to the said justice of the peace on the day assigned for trial. If no jury be demanded, the case shall be tried by the justice of the peace without a jury. [Acts 1876, p. 155. Acts 1897, p. 16.]

Art. 3948. [2527] [2448] Other jurors may be summoned, when.—If any of the jurors summoned as aforesaid shall fail or refuse to attend, or shall be excused after being challenged, a jury shall be completed by causing other qualified jurors to be summoned immediately. [Acts 1876, p. 155.]

Art. 3949. [2528] [2449] Shall be docketed and tried as other cases, etc.—The cause shall be docketed and tried as other cases; and the justice of the peace shall have authority to issue subpoenas for witnesses, to enforce their attendance, and to punish for contempt. [Id.]

Art. 3950. [2529] [2450] Right of possession the only issue.—On the trial of any case of forcible entry, or of forcible detainer, under the provisions of this title, the only issue shall be as to the right to actual possession; and the merits of the title shall not be inquired into.

See, also, note under Art. 3944a.

What issues may be determined.—The only question in issue is the right of possession without regard to the merits of the title. Comley v. Standfield, 10 T. 546, 60 Am. Dec. 219; Warren v. Kelly, 17 T. 544; Smith v. Ryan, 29 T. 661; Clark v. Snow, 24 T. 242; Boaz v. Graham, 1 App. C. C. § 159; Wilson v. Beauchamp, 1 App. C. C. § 713; Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. § 448. This remedy is given when the premises are in the quiet occupancy of one, and are forcibly entered upon by another, or where a lessee, after the expiration of his lease, refuses to restore possession to his lessor. An inquiry as to the title is not permitted in such cases. Railway Co. v. Cahill (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 232.

In forcible entry and detainer, the title to improvements erected by the lease cannot be determined. Meyer v. O’Dell, 18 C. A. 210, 44 S. W. 546.

An action of forcible entry and detainer in justice’s court involves only the issue of prior possession; and hence a plea to the jurisdiction on the assumption that the case involves the issue of title should be overruled. Renfro v. Harris, 25 C. A. 58, 66 S. W. 450.

Where an owner and a would-be purchaser make an agreement of sale on certain conditions and possession is given by the owner, and the conditions fall, the relation of landlord and tenant is not established, so as to authorize a suit for forcible entry and detainer or forcible detainer. The issue is one of title and not of possession. Francis v. Holmes, 64 C. A. 608, 118 S. W. 881.

On a partnership accounting, an instruction that no rents of lands claimed to be partnership property could be awarded because certain judgments in forcible entry and detainer cases had established defendant’s right thereto was erroneous, since under this article and Art. 3947, a judgment in forcible entry and detainer merely disposes of the right of possession and determines nothing concerning the rents. Heney v. Heney (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 1127.

Art. 3951. [2530] [2451] Trial may be postponed for cause.—For good cause shown, supported by affidavit by either party, the trial may be postponed for a time not exceeding six days. [Id.]

Effect of improper postponement.—An improper postponement of a case of forcible detainer in justice’s court for more than six days was a mere irregularity, which would not affect the justice's jurisdiction so as to make the judgment subject to collateral attack in an action between the parties for breach of a rent contract. Calhoun v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 688.
Art. 3952 FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER (Title 61)

Art. 3952. [2531] [2452] Hearing and judgment without jury.—On the day named in the citation for trial, or on the day to which the case may be postponed according to the provisions of the preceding article, if no jury is demanded, the justice of the peace shall hear the evidence and render his judgment of guilty or not guilty of the charge as stated in the complaint. [Acts 1876, p. 155. Acts 1897, p. 16.]

Art. 3953. [2531] [2452] Jury case, impaneling; hearing; verdict. —If a jury is demanded by either party, the jury shall be impaneled and sworn as in other cases; and, after hearing the evidence, they shall return their verdict of guilty or not guilty of the charge as stated in the complaint. [Id.]

Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.
Direction of verdict.—Where, in an action of forcible entry and detainer of school land, it clearly appeared that plaintiff was in possession, that his possession was recognized by the land office, and that defendant entered unlawfully, it was not error to direct a verdict for plaintiff. Renfro v. Harris, 28 C. A. 58, 66 S. W. 469.

Art. 3954. [2532] [2453] Judgment of the court, and writ, etc.—If the justice of the peace, if no jury is demanded, or the jury, in case one is demanded, find the defendant guilty, the said justice of the peace shall give judgment thereon for the plaintiff to have restitution of the premises and for costs; and he shall award his writ of restitution and may issue execution for the costs, but, should the defendant be found not guilty, judgment shall be given in favor of the defendant and against the plaintiff for all costs, and execution may issue therefor. [Acts 1876, p. 155. Acts 1897, p. 16.]

A judgment for possession at some future time is void. Maybin v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 111.
The entry in the docket of a justice in an action of forcible entry and detainer held not to show a valid judgment. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 558.

Art. 3955. [2533] [2454] Writ of restitution not to issue for two days.—No writ of restitution shall issue until the expiration of two days from the rendition of the judgment. [Acts 1876, p. 155.]

Fixture can be removed.—Property affixed to the land of another under a license from the owner is personal property which can be removed within a reasonable time after notice. Wright v. Macdonnell, 30 S. W. 907, 89 T. 140.
Issuance of writ not to issue. —A writ of restitution, issued while a motion for new trial in forcible entry and detainer was pending, is not void. Rosenfield v. Barnett, 26 C. A. 71, 64 S. W. 944.

Art. 3956. [2534] [2455] May appeal, when and how.—Either party, his agent or attorney, may appeal from any final judgment rendered by the justice of the peace in such case, to the county court of the county in which the judgment is rendered, by giving notice thereof in open court and by filing with such justice of the peace, within five days after the rendition of said judgment, a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by said justice of the peace, and payable to the adverse party, conditioned that he will prosecute his appeal with effect, or pay all costs and damages which may be adjudged against him; and no motion for a new trial shall be necessary to authorize such appeal. [Id. p. 163, sec. 21.]

Appeal.—Judgment of restitution in an action of forcible entry and detainer, in favor of a defendant in an action of trespass to try title, admissible, though the action be still pending in the court of appeals. Westmoreland v. Richardson, 21 S. W. 167, 2 C. A. 175.
As to the right of appeal, see Emerson v. Emerson (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 425.

Art. 3957. [2535] [2456] Form of appeal bond.—The appeal bond made in the preceding article may be substantially as follows:

"The State of Texas,

"County of ________

"Whereas, Upon a writ of forcible entry (or forcible detainer) in favor of A B, and against C D, tried before ________, a justice of the peace of county, a judgment was rendered in favor of the said A B on the day of , A. D. , and against the said C D, from which the said C D has appealed to the county court; now, therefore, the said C D and , his sureties, covenant that he will prosecute his said appeal with effect and pay all costs and damages which may be adjudged against him.

"Given under our hands this day of , A. D. ."

Art. 3958. [2536] [2457] Duty of justice in case of appeal.—Whenever such appeal bond shall be executed and filed, the justice of the peace shall stay all further proceedings on the judgment, and he shall immediately make out a transcript of all the entries made on his docket of the proceedings had in the case before him; and he shall file the same, together with all the original papers, with the clerk of the county court of the county in which the trial was had, on or before the first day of the first term of said court, or, if there be insufficient time, on or before the first day of the next succeeding term thereof.

Art. 3959. [2537] [2458] Trial de novo.—The clerk of the county court shall docket the cause, and the same shall be tried de novo, with or without a jury, as in other cases.

Necessity for making objections in court below.—Defendant in forcible entry and detainer, who had appeared and answered to an amended complaint, held not entitled on appeal to object to the allowance of the amendment. Evetts v. Johns (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 778.

An objection that the land sought to be recovered in forcible entry and detainer proceedings was insufficiently described in the complaint, cannot be first made on appeal. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

Art. 3960. [2538] [2459] Damages may be proved, when.—On the trial of said cause in the county court the appellee shall be permitted to prove the damages for withholding the possession of the premises from the appellee during the pendency of the appeal, and for the reasonable expenses of the appellee in prosecuting or defending the cause in the county court; and, if the possession of the premises be not adjudged to the appellant, the said court shall render judgment also in favor of the appellee and against said appellant and the sureties on his bond for the damages proven and all costs.

Damages recoverable.—The amount recoverable in the county court is limited to the damages accruing during the pendency of the appeal, and the reasonable expenses incurred in the county court. Steele v. Steele, 2 App. C. C. 348.

The rental value of the premises for the wrongful withholding of the possession in an action of forcible entry and detainer and the fees of the attorney can be recovered under the above article. McRae v. White (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 795.

Art. 3961. [2539] [2460] Judgment by default, when.—Should the defendant, by himself or his attorney, fail to enter an appearance upon the docket of the county court on appearance day, and before the case is called regularly for trial, the facts alleged in the complaint may be taken as admitted, and judgment by default may be entered accordingly. [Id.]

Default only in county court.—In forcible entry and detainer cases judgments by default are allowed only in the county court and they are tried at a regular term, and not summarily as in justice court. Stacks v. Simmons, 68 S. W. 960.

Art. 3962. [2540] [2461] Judgment of county court, final, etc., except, etc.—After a trial upon the merits, the proper judgment shall be rendered upon the law and the facts, or upon the verdict of the jury, as the case may be; and the judgment of the county court finally disposing of the cause shall be conclusive of the litigation, and no further appeal shall be allowed, except where the judgment shall be for damages in an amount exceeding one hundred dollars.

Constitutionality.—This law was declared to be unconstitutional in the case of Supreme Lodge United Benevolent Association v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 661. The court held that section 16 was the only part unconstitutional, but that it was so interwoven and connected with the other provisions of the law as to render them inoperative without it; therefore the whole law was held to be inoperative.

When appeal will lie.—An appeal cannot be taken from the judgment of the county court, except when there has been a judgment for a sum exceeding $100 on a trial upon

Under this article an appeal will not lie from a county court judgment dismissing an appeal from a justice's judgment allowing no damages. Lane v. Jack, 25 C. A. 466, 61 S. W. 422; Kerlin v. Bassett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 526.

Assignment of error.—Where plaintiff was an actual settler on school land, an assignment of error that the court by overruling exceptions to defendant's plea to jurisdiction, decided "that a naked trespasser, who has fenced in free land, may invoke the remedy of forcible entry and detainer, and dispossess a bona fide settler," it without merit. Ren­tro v. Harris, 25 C. A. 58, 86 S. W. 460.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—In an action to recover realty claimed by adverse posses­sion, a judgment in forcible detainer by a third party ejecting defendants from a part of the premises held admissible only to fix the time when the change in the location of the fence inclosing the premises was made. Williams v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 551.

Where a complaint for damages for an eviction under a writ of restitution issued on a void judgment in forcible entry and detainer states that the justice of the peace and plaintiff knew that the judgment was void, a demurrer will be sustained on the ground that the defendants were acting under color of law. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 968.

Judgment in forcible entry and detainer held res judicata in a subsequent suit for damages for eviction under the judgment. Rankin v. Hooke (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1086.

In an action for damages for ousting plaintiff from premises under a judgment in unlawful detainer, claimed to be void because defendant therein was of a different name from the plaintiff, evidence held to show that plaintiff was the defendant in the unlawful detainer suit, and the judgment therein. Anderson v. Zorn (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 836.

Art. 3963. [2541] [2462] Writ of restitution, etc., by whom issued and served.—The writ of restitution, or execution, or both, shall be issued by the clerk of the county court according to the judgment rendered, and the same shall be executed by the sheriff or constable, as in other cases; and such writ of restitution shall not be suspended or superseded in any case by any appeal taken from such final judgment in the county court.

Art. 3964. [2542] [2463] Shall not bar action for trespass, etc.—The proceedings under a forcible entry, or forcible detainer, shall not bar an action for trespass, damages, waste, rent or mesne profits.

Judgment as barring right to rent.—On a partnership accounting, an instruction that no rents of lands claimed to be partnership property could be awarded because certain judgments in forcible entry and detainer cases had established defendant's right thereto was erroneous, since under Art. 3929 and this article a judgment in forcible entry and detainer merely disposes of the right of possession and determines nothing concerning the rents. Henry v. Henry (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1127.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Damages from judgment or writ of restitution.—It is no defense to an action for an eviction under process issued on a void judgment rendered in forcible entry and detainer proceedings that the plaintiff was in wrongful possession of the property. Stacks v. Sim­mons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 968.

— Liability of justice and plaintiff in general.—Where a judgment of forcible entry and detainer is void, defendant is not bound to move to set it aside or appeal, but may maintain an action for damages against the justice who rendered the judgment and the plaintiff in the action for injuries received in attempting to enforce such judgment. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 968.

— Liability for invalid writ or unauthorized service.—A voidable writ of restitution held to justify the plaintiff in the writ and the officer executing the same. Rosen­field v. Barnett, 26 C. A. 71, 64 S. W. 944.

The plaintiff in forcible entry and detainer held not liable for the premature issuance of the writ of restitution and its service in an unauthorized manner. Id.

Crops.—One claiming possession of land as tenant cannot recover of the alleged landlord for conversion of a crop planted after judgment for the landlord in an action of forcible entry and detainer. Rankin v. Hooks (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1006.

A tenant ejected from irrigated garden land in forcible detainer by the landlord for failure to pay rent cannot recover for the crops planted on the land when he was evicted. Calhoun v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 686.
FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Article 3965. [2543] [2464] Written memorandum required to maintain certain actions.—No action shall be brought in any of the courts in any of the following cases, unless the promise or agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum thereof, shall be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or by some person by him thereunto lawfully authorized:
1. To charge any executor or administrator upon any promise to answer any debt or damages due from his testator or intestate, out of his own estate; or,
2. To charge any person upon a promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another; or,
3. To charge any person upon any agreement made upon consideration of marriage; or,
4. Upon any contract for the sale of real estate or the lease thereof for a longer term than one year; or,
5. Upon any agreement which is not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof. [Act Jan. 18, 1840. P. D. 3875.]

1. Promises to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.
2. Nature of debt or default.
3. Promise to debtor to discharge debt.
4. Promise to indemnify.
5. Original or collateral promise in general.
7. Guaranty.
8. New consideration beneficial to promisor.
9. Promise to pay from property of debtor.
10. Discharge of original debtor.
11. Agreements not to be performed within one year—in general.
12. — Possibility of performance.
13. — Commencement of period.
14. — Sufficiency of performance possible within one year.
15. Creation of estates or interests in general.
17. Assignment, grant or surrender of existing estates, interests or terms.
18. — Exchange.
19. — Establishment of boundary.
20. — Partition.
22. — Nature of property.
23. — Judicial sales.
24. Law prior to enactment.
27. Part performance—in general.

FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

1. Promises to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—
   An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.
   One orally submitting another’s debt to arbitration held not liable to pay the award not having promised to do so in writing. Bryant v. Ellis’ Adm’t, 20 C. A. 298, 49 S. W. 294.
   The verbal promise of the president of defendant railway company to pay a debt of a construction company held unenforceable under the statute of frauds. Texas Southern Ry. Co. v. Pyle (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 234.
   An oral agreement by one to pay another’s debt is not within the statute of frauds rendered to the third person is within this article. E. J. Chauvin & Co. v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 383.
   The verbal promise of defendant to pay a debt of his brother to plaintiff, upon purchasing the brother’s business, was prima facie within the statute of frauds. Estes v. Bryant. Fort-Daniel Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1177.

2. Promisor to pay a debt of another.—The agreement of defendant to pay plaintiff’s debt to another, held void because the plaintiff has no right to promise the debt of another. Ziegler v. Bickel (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1018.

3. Promise to pay a debt of another.—It must be the same debt for which the original debtor is liable, and not a different undertaking. The promise required to be in writing must be a collateral and not an original or independent one. Wattenbarger v. Hodges, 38 C. A. 1329, 86 S. W. 1014.

4. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

5. Nature of debt or default.—It must be the same debt for which the original debtor is liable, and not a different undertaking. The promise required to be in writing must be a collateral and not an original or independent one. Wattenbarger v. Hodges, 38 C. A. 1329, 86 S. W. 1014.

6. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

7. Nature of debt or default.—It must be the same debt for which the original debtor is liable, and not a different undertaking. The promise required to be in writing must be a collateral and not an original or independent one. Wattenbarger v. Hodges, 38 C. A. 1329, 86 S. W. 1014.

8. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

9. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

10. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

11. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

12. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.

13. Promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another in general.—An agreement by one to pay for certain work if another does not is within the statute of frauds. Lotts v. Ivy, 14 C. A. 701, 37 S. W. 766.
reasonable time; but when the guaranty absolutely and unconditionally provides that the principal shall pay a specified sum at a stated time, no undertaking is necessary before executing the guaranty. Johnson v. Nasworthy, 4 App. C. C. § 108, 16 S. W. 758.

A promise to "see paid" a claim for services rendered another ordinarily implies security. Rentfrow v. Lancaster, 10 C. A. 321, 31 S. W. 225.

A verbal contract by a carrier to answer for the default or miscarriage of others is not within the statute of frauds, connecting lines being deemed the agents of contracting lines. Thompson v. Railway Co., 11 C. A. 145, 32 S. W. 427.

When the undertaking is to pay another's debt, the burden is on the party who seeks to show that undertaking is an original and independant contract so as to escape the statute. Henry v. Kizer Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 278. The evidence to show an existing contract relation between the plaintiff and a third party, and to prove that a promise by the defendant to pay the debt of such party is a new and independent undertaking, and not a contract of suretyship, must be clear and satisfactory. Ridgell v. Reeves, 2 App. C. C. § 436.

A creditor held not estopped, by an account showing one to be a surety, from showing that he agreed to become primarily liable. Nixon v. Jacobs, 22 C. A. 97, 53 S. W. 625.

A promise by a bank to pay for goods to be sold on its credit to a depositor is not within the statute of frauds, and hence need not be in writing. First Nat. Bank v. Cown, 444, 60 S. W. 829.

An owner's oral promise to see that a materialman was paid held within the statute of frauds. Nichols v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1051.

Under the provision of the statute of frauds that no one shall be held to pay the debt or perform the obligation of another, unless the undertaking so to be done in writing, where one purchases the subject of a written contract and undertakes its performance, the undertaking, though oral, is binding. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238.

A contract by the operators of a sawmill for services of a physician to be rendered to his mill hands held an original obligation, and not a contract to answer for the debts of the mill hands, within the statute of frauds. Lennard v. Texarkana Lumber Co. 46 C. C. 392, 94 S. W. 333.

In an action to recover the price of lumber, evidence that a contract executed by another was the contract of a defendant held not objectionable as obnoxious to the statute of frauds in relation to agreements to answer for the debt of another. Southern Pine & Cypress Co. v. Bruce Lumber Co. 45 C. A. 150, 95 S. W. 29.

A liability asserted against defendant held on an original promise, and not on a promise to pay another's debt, within the statute of frauds. American Brewing Ass'n v. Gousett (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 357.

To take an oral promise to pay another's debt out of the statute of frauds (Art. 3665), it must be original; a promise to "secure the payments" for merchandise sold another being insufficient. Porter v. Norman (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1173.

A principal's promise to reimburse his surety for paying the principal's debt is not within the statute of frauds. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 929.

An agreement by defendant to pay the premiums on an insurance policy issued in the name of another held not within the statute of frauds, as a promise to pay another's debt, where the policy was taken out at defendant's request, and was in fact for his benefit. Ripley v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 974.

A partner's promise to pay a debt of the firm made in the course of a settlement was an original promise not within the statute of frauds. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 551.

7. Guaranty.—A verbal guaranty made at the request of a firm to certain of its creditors to pay certain subsisting demands against the firm, followed by payment, made after and with notice of the dissolution of the partnership, constitutes a good cause of action against each partner. Lenmon v. Stowe, 57 T. 444.

Where, in pursuance of a verbal guaranty, the guarantor has discharged the debt of another, he can recover from the debtor the amount paid for his use. Id.

Where a contract of guaranty is delivered to the creditor's agent, notice of acceptance by the principal is not necessary. Lemp v. Armcogel, 86 T. 690, 26 S. W. 941.

8. New consideration beneficial to promisor.—If the consideration of the promise is the discharge of an existing debt, and the debt is discharged in consequence of the promise, it is an original contract which need not be in writing. Bason v. Hughart, 2 T. 476; Smith v. Montgomery, 3 T. 204; Warren v. Smith, 24 T. 484, 78 Am. Dec. 115; Hill v. Frost, 59 T. 25.

A promise to pay the debt of another, based upon an original and independent consideration, creates a direct obligation from the promisor to the promissee, which the latter may enforce. Leamon v. Box, 20 T. 329; Muller v. Riviere, 59 T. 442, 46 Am. Rep. 251; Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 202; Morris v. Gaines, 82 T. 267, 17 S. W. 538; Cohen v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 59; Bartley v. Rhodes (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 604.

The terms of a contract by which one party agrees to pay over to another party a sum of money for a third party, the first party being indebted to the second and the second party discharging the statute of frauds without cooperation, is valid. Montgomery v. Schrimpff, 21 T. 27, 73 Am. Dec. 221; Hill v. Frost, 59 T. 25; Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 240; Blankenship v. Tillman, 4 App. C. C. § 296, 18 S. W. 646; Bartley v. Rhodes (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 604.

When one for a sufficient consideration undertakes to pay the debt due to another by a third party, the agreement is not within the statute of frauds. Thomas v. Hammond, 47 T. 42; Monroe v. Buchanan, 27 T. 241; Rollins v. Hope, 18 T. 446; G., H. & B. Ry. Co. v. Alcorn, 46 C. C. § 786; Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 240; McOwa v. Schrimpff, 21 T. 27, 73 Am. Dec. 221; Cannon v. McDaniel, 46 T. 303; Hicks v. 2875

A., in consideration of the promise of B. not to foreclose a deed of trust held upon a stock of goods executed by her deceased husband, and of his promise to continue to furnish her goods as to the case of her husband, as in the case of trust, promised verbally to pay B. for the amount due from her husband out of the proceeds of an insurance policy on his life. Held, that A.'s promise was not within the statute of frauds, as the consideration in part grew out of a new transaction and rested upon fresh and substantial personal benefit to herself. Muller v. Riviere, 59 T. 540, 45 Am. Rep. 291.

A promise to pay his own debt by the discharge of a debt of another is not within the statute. Spann v. Cochran, 63 T. 240.

Promise to answer for another's debt held to be for promisor's benefit, and not within Statute. Lyon v. Lindsay (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 1101.

An action cannot be maintained on an oral promise to pay the debt of another, where the promise is collateral to the debt and does not discharge it. Starr v. Taylor (App.) 56 S. W. 543.

In an action to enjoin the removal of defendant's railroad offices and shops from plaintiff city, defendant held bound by oral adoption of contract to perpetually maintain the same in the city. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 238.

A parol promise to pay the note of another resting upon a valuable consideration is not within the statute of frauds, where its main purpose was to subserve the interest of the promisor. Blakeney v. Nalle & Co., 45 C. A. 635, 101 S. W. 875.

Undertaking by banking firm to pay debts of a bank, based upon a sufficient consideration, held not within the statute of frauds. Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank, 48 C. A. 246, 107 S. W. 598.

An obligation to pay for goods sold and delivered to another held enforceable, notwithstanding the statute of frauds. Old River Lumber Co. v. Skeeters (Civ. App.) 14 S. W. 511.

An agreement to pay another's debt must be supported by a consideration moving to the promisor from the creditor. Estes v. Bryant-Fort-Daniel Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1177.

Plaintiff who had furnished materials for a building to the contractor, was given an order by the architect, approved by the contractor, on the owner, who refused to pay on the ground that defendant, another materialman, had notified him not to pay anything further to the contractor except for labor bills. Plaintiff's representative then called on defendant and told its managing member that unless plaintiff's claim was paid it would sue defendant. If defendant would see that the claim was paid it would do nothing. Defendant's managing member told him that it would see that plaintiff's claim was paid, and, relying on this promise, plaintiff did nothing further. Held, that the promise, although oral, was based on sufficient consideration, and hence not void under the statute of frauds. B. B. Spencer & Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 991.

The statute of frauds is no defense to an action on a note assumed as part of the purchase price of property. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 722.

9. Promise to pay from property of debtor.—Where one having the funds of another in his hands verbally promises to pay the debt of such person, he is bound thereby. Woods v. Davis, 1 App. C. C. § 952.

A landlord's assent to his tenant's agreement to ship plaintiff 400 sacks of rice, as part of an agreement by which plaintiff loaned $300 to the tenant, held not a contract to answer for the tenant's default, within the statute of frauds. Groesbeck v. T. H. Thompson Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 346.

An agreement to collect and pay over held not one to answer for the debt or default of another within the statute of frauds. American Nat. Bank v. Petry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1040.

10. Discharge of original debtor.—The discharge of a debtor will support the promise of another to pay the debt. First Nat. Bank v. Border, 29 S. W. 659, 9 C. A. 670.

11. Agreements not to be performed within one year.—In general.—It is only where the lease or contract alleged shows by its terms that it is for a longer term than one year, or that the performance thereof was not to be within a year, that the defect would exist which would bring the action within the statute of frauds. Robb v. Railway Co., 82 T. 392, 18 S. W. 707.

A verbal agreement by a railway company to issue a free pass to a creditor and stop trains at his house, in part satisfaction of a judgment, is not within the statute. Railway Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 411.

An agreement for the extension of the time for the payment of a note for a longer term than one year is within the statute of frauds. Kearnby v. Hopkins, 14 C. A. 166, 36 S. W. 506.

A contract of employment to commence at a future date and run for twelve months is within the statute. Moody v. Jones (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 278.

An oral promise to extend a note for one year, and that thereafter the note shall not become due until a year after the payee has notified the maker to pay is void. Tunstall v. Clifton (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 244.

An oral promise to extend a note for a year, and that thereafter the note shall not become due until a year after the payee has notified the maker to pay is void. Tunstall v. Clifton (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 244.

An oral promise to extend a note for a year, and that thereafter the note shall not become due until a year after the payee has notified the maker to pay is void. Tunstall v. Clifton (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 244.

A contract for physician's services held not within the statute of frauds as a contract not performable within a year. Lennard v. Texarkana Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 402, 94 S. W. 353.
Where an original contract of employment was void under the statute of frauds, a new contract made subsequently, which obeyed statutory defects, did not constitute a novation. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

In an action for breach of a contract of employment, evidence held to exclude the operation of a custom of hiring employees, relied on to take the case out of the statute of frauds. Hill v. Gardiner (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 465.

A contract to bore a well held not within the statute of frauds. Hall v. Cook (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 449.

An oral lease of premises for less than one year is valid. Dickinson Creamery Co. v. Lueck (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 904.

A subsequent contract changing any of the terms of a written lease of more than one year, required by the statute of frauds to be in writing, must also be in writing. East v. A. C. Heath & Son (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1022.

Contracts for the extension of notes for one year are not within the statute of frauds because not in writing. Matthews v. Towell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 169.

Where a broker, to effect a sale, verbally agreed with the purchaser to join the vendor in a guaranty that the property would bring a certain rental for 15 months, such agreement would not bind the broker until reduced to writing and signed, under this article. 1d.

An oral employment contract held invalid under the statute of frauds, so far as related to defendant's services for the months a cotton gin was not in operation during the season of 1908-09. Guitar v. McGee (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 622.

A parol contract binding one to care for and breed the stock of the owner for three years for a part of the increase is void within the statute of frauds, and, where the owner takes possession within a few months after the making of the contract, he cannot rely on the party from rescinding the reasonable value of the pasturage furnished. Crenshaw v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 234.

Strictly speaking, a lease is a term for years; and if it exists for a longer period than one year it must, under the statute, be in writing. Ellis v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 802.

12. Possibility of performance.—An agreement that may or may not be performed within a year, as circumstances control, is not within the statute. Throuvenin v. Lea, 26 T. 612; Thomas v. Hammond, 47 T. 42; Jones v. Green (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1087.

A parol contract was for a lease of land for one year, with the privilege reserved by the lessee of continuing the lease five years should he so desire. Held, that the contract was not within the statute of frauds, as it might or might not be performed within one year. Murphy v. Service, 2 App. C. 1903, § 747.

An agreement which may be terminated within the year by the death of a party thereto is not within the statute. Weatherford Ry. Co. v. Wood, 30 S. W. 859, 88 T. 191, 28 R. A. 526.

An agreement not to engage in a particular business for two years may possibly be performed within one year, and hence is not within the statute. Erwin v. Hayden (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 610.

A contract held capable of performance within one year, and hence not within the statute. Hintze v. Krabenschmidt (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 38.

An agreement to look after land and pay taxes on it for the use of it is not within the statute of frauds. New York & Texas Land Co. v. Dooley, 33 C. A. 658, 77 S. W. 1080.

Where a mortgagee of land died pending a suit to set aside the mortgage for duress and his son, who had purchased the land, intervened, certain evidence as to agreement between the father and son held not objectionable, as showing a contract to be performed between them in the future. Gray v. Freeman, 37 C. A. 556, 84 S. W. 1105.

If the plaintiff agrees, as he is authorized by law to do, to perform the vendor's agreement "at any time," was not within the statute of frauds. Booher v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 956.

A contract to form a partnership within a year for the handling and sale of cattle within five years held not within the statute of frauds. Shropshire v. Adams, 40 C. A. 358, 89 S. W. 445.

Where a verbal contract is capable of being performed, and is performed by one of the parties thereto, within one year from the date of the making of the contract, it is not within the statute of frauds and the other party is bound by the contract. City of Tyler v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 59 T. 491, 91 S. W. 4.

A new arrangement for the employment of plaintiff for the remainder of a term specified in a contract which was within the statute of frauds held an original contract of employment not within the statute. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 559, 101 S. W. 867.

An oral contract of employment made November 20, 1905, covering a period from January 1, 1906, to December 31st of that year, was within the statute of frauds. Id.

An employment contract held not obnoxious to the statute of frauds requiring contracts not to be performed within a year to be in writing. Texarkana Lumber Co. v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 506.

A contract for the payment of rents as a portion of the consideration for the conveyance of land held impossible of performance within a year, and hence not within the statute of frauds. Tipton v. Tipton, 55 C. A. 192, 118 S. W. 842.

A contract between a city and a railroad, whereby the railroad, in consideration of a right of way, agrees to locate and keep its general offices and shops in the city capable of being executed and actually executed by one party within a year from its making, is not within the statute of frauds. Kansas City, M. & O. R. Co. v. City of Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251.

A promise to marry plaintiff as soon as defendant could have a suitable home erected and wind up his business held not within the statute of frauds as one not to be performed within a year. Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 390.

In an action against a surety on a note, an allegation that plaintiff agreed for a consideration to extend the time of payment for one year, and that the principal debtor might pay the note by work for plaintiff, and that he had done work of greater value than the amount due on the note, was not objectionable. It was not necessary that the oral contract that the note might be paid in work was within the statute of frauds as a contract for services not to be performed within a year; the services having been actually performed and it not appearing that they could not have been performed within a year. Le v. Durham (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1135.

13. — Commencement of period. — The time between the making of a lease and the commencement of it in possession is not part of the term; and the parol lease for one year may be made to commence in futuro. Styles v. Rector, 1 App. C. C. § 957; Roberts v. Thompson, 4 App. C. C. § 1190; Batteanou v. Maddox, 86 S. W. 51. Tenant holding over. City of San Antonio v. French, 80 T. 575, 16 S. W. 440, 26 Am. St. Rep. 763.

14. — Sufficiency of performance possible within one year. — Where one side of a contract is to be performed within the year, and is so performed, the contract is not within the statute, although the other side may be in its nature incapable of performance within a year. Miller v. Roberts, 18 T. 16, 67 Am. Dec. 688.

15. Creation of estates or interests in general.—In our statute the words "or an interest in, or concerning real estate," which appear in the English statute, are omitted. As a consequence, many verbal agreements concerning real estate, or creating an interest or trust in real estate, can be here enforced which would come within the terms of the English statute. Anderson v. Powers, 99 T. 213, citing James v. Pulcro, 5 T. 516, 55 Am. Dec. 742; Evans v. Hardeman, 15 T. 480; Stuart v. Baker, 17 T. 417; Miller v. Roberts, 13 T. 16, 67 Am. Dec. 688; Bullion v. Campbell, 27 T. 633; Smock v. Tandy, 26 T. 132; Gibbons v. Bell, 45 T. 418.

A contract that the expenses incurred by parties as coplaintiffs in a suit to recover certain lands were to be refunded when the suit was decreed, and the lands recovered in it partitioned among the plaintiffs, is not within the statute. Gonzales v. Chartier, 63 T. 36.

Parol agreement between an upper and lower dam owner, whereby latter was built first, that, if diversion of water by upper dam should injuriously affect lower dam, was to be refunded does not inure to benefit of one who purchased lower dam without notice thereof. Cape v. Thompson, 21 C. A. 681, 53 S. W. 368.

Parol evidence is admissible to show privity of possession between several parties for different periods, which, added together, complete the time necessary to establish title by adverse possession. Johnson v. Simpson, 22 C. A. 290, 54 S. W. 298.

A contract to deliver to one a certain amount of the proceeds of the sale of land is not one for sale of land within the statute of frauds. Parries v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

A verbal agreement between a vendor and persons signing a note as sureties for the purchaser on his securing an loan on the purchase price, that the sureties should have a vendor's lien on the premises, is void under the statute of frauds. Single­ tary v. Goeman (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 436.

An agreement to acquire land for another is not within the statute. Low v. Gray (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 270.

Under Statute of Frauds, subd. 4, a perpetual tenancy, whereby the lessee was to have possession of the land as long as he paid the yearly rental, is void unless created by an instrument in writing. Hill v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 247.

17. Assignment, grant or surrender of existing estates, interests or terms.—A verbal promise of a father to give his children certain land in lieu of land of theirs which he had sold was the deed upset. Arnold v. Ellis, 29 C. A. 802, 48 S. W. 883.

A transfer of title to land cannot be shown by parol. Thompson v. Dutton (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 641.

In an action on a note given for the conveyance of a leasehold estate, the fact that the conveyance was not evidenced by writing, and that no possession was taken, was no defense. Wilkinson v. Sweet (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 702.

The gift or relinquishment of a life estate is a gift of lands within the statute of frauds. The plea sufficiently set up the statute of frauds, though it characterized the estate of the life tenant as an estate which might be for more than a year. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 62.

An agreement for the release of a vendor's lien held enforceable in equity even though it could be considered as within the statute of frauds. McKinley v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 112.

A certificate of land issued by the state may be transferred by parol at any time before the land is surveyed and located. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 199, 98 S. W. 192.

A deed of conveyance of frauds, held decedent could not devise himself of title to land by a verbal agreement. Jante v. Culbresh (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 279.

A person claiming real estate under a parol sale or gift, can obtain no assistance from the law, because it declares such sale or gift invalid, and in order to enforce such parol agreement he must prove possession and the making of valuable improvements of a permanent character, or other facts showing that the transaction is a fraud upon the pur­ chaser or donee if not enforced. Altgelt v. Escalera, 51 C. A. 108, 110 S. W. 590.

A lien on a vendor's lien retained in the deed is not supported by a sufficient consideration. Atteberry v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1025.

Where complainants alleged that they were induced to execute an absolute deed to certain property by defendant's promise to execute a contract to convey the land to the vendee, the vendee, who promised defendant's vendee, refused to perform and did not intend to perform, such fraud was not available to complainants as a means of procuring the legal title to the land after the contract had been fully executed.
and the relations of the parties had ceased, as distinguished from a rescission, since to grant each a parol contract for the sale of a parcel of land, in violation of the statute of frauds. May v. Cearly (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 165.

A parol agreement to release claims in community property held not enforceable. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

18. Exchange.—Where a daughter appropriated land owned jointly with her father, and, as a part of his appropriation of a tract belonging to her separately, there was a void verbal exchange. Lafer v. Powell, 30 C. A. 604, 71 S. W. 549.

The validity of an agreement for the settlement of a boundary does not depend on the accuracy with which the line is run. Time and long acquiescence are not necessary to the validity of a parol agreement fixing a compromise division line. Cooper v. Austin, 58 T. 494.

A parol agreement between adjoining owners that a survey of the boundary line shall be made, which is done, is not within the statute of frauds, and can be enforced. Masterson v. Bokel, 20 C. A. 435, 51 S. W. 39.

A parol agreement fixing the boundary line between two lots as the center of a wall, acquiesced in for 16 years, held not within the statute of frauds. Roberts v. Tellman Dry Goods Co., 42 C. A. 696, 92 S. W. 1060.

When a boundary line has been established by agreement, it may be afterwards changed without an agreement in writing. McDonald v. McCrabb, 47 C. A. 259, 105 S. W. 238.

An agreement between adjoining landowners as to their common boundary is not within the statute of frauds. McKeon v. Roan (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 404.

The removal of an established boundary line by landowners and subsequent recognition of the boundary line established is not obnoxious to the statute of frauds, though not in writing or within the statutes regulating conveyances of real estate. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 757.

An oral agreement between adjoining landowners that surveyors ascertain the boundary line held not within the statute of frauds. Hill v. Walker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1160.

A written verbal agreement for the settlement of an uncertain boundary line is binding between the parties, because no title is affected thereby, such an agreement was void, because it was a parol conveyance of land in violation of the statute of frauds, where the division line had been marked by a fence for more than 20 years and the fence, though not originally on the true boundary, had been determined by boundary by limitations. Cook's Hereford Cattle Co. v. Barnhart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 662.

20. Partition.—A parol partition of land among joint tenants or tenants in common is not within the statute of frauds or the statute regulating the transfer of real estate by married women (Aycock v. Kimbrough, 71 T. 330, 12 S. W. 71, 10 Am. St. Rep. 746), and may be made by a married woman in parol (Martin v. Harris (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 91).

Contract construed, and held to be one for the sale of land, and within the statute, unless by Sullivan, 91 T. 599, 44 S. W. 941.

A parol agreement by a husband, who has conveyed an undiscovered 110 acres of land out of a 310-acre homestead owned by him and his wife as community property, that the purchaser shall take his 110 acres out of a certain part of the property, where not made in fraud of the homestead rights of the wife, is valid. Mass v. Brumberg, 28 C. A. 145, 66 S. W. 468.

21. Contracts for sale of interests in land.—An agreement for the rescission of an executory contract for the sale of land is within the statute. Dial v. Crain, 10 T. 444.

As to the effect of a parol contract for the sale of land founded upon a good consideration, see Boze v. Davis, 14 T. 331; Hendricks v. Sneliker, 30 T. 296; Curlin v. Hendricks, 35 T. 235; Murphy v. Stell, 43 T. 123.

Land located, surveyed and ready for patent has, in contemplation of law, been acquired by the owner of the certificate, and a verbal agreement to convey an interest in it is within the statute of frauds, and specific performance cannot be enforced. Aiken v. Hall & McDonald, 1 T. C. 318.

The words "any contract for the sale of real estate" include every agreement by which one promises to alienate an existing interest in land upon consideration either good or valuable; hence a contract to convey land in consideration of labor or services to be rendered is within the statute. Sprague v. Haines, 68 T. 215. 4 S. W. 371.

An agreement between two or more persons for the joint acquisition of land is not within the meaning of the statute of frauds, a contract for the sale of land which, to be valid, must be in writing. Gardner v. Randall, 70 T. 453, 7 S. W. 781; Reed v. Howard, 71 T. 304, 9 S. W. 109.

The time for the performance of a contract for the sale of land may be extended by a verbal agreement. Bullis v. Presidio Mining Co., 75 T. 548, 15 S. W. 397.

R. by parol, contracted with W. for land, entered into possession, and R. was unable to pay, and C. made the payment of the greater part of the purchase-money to W., when W. deeded the land to R., who at the same time deeded the same to C. R. and wife refused to yield possession, and the wife claimed homestead rights in two hundred acres of the tract. It was found that, as against W., R. and his wife could not assert homestead rights. As C., by payment to W., was subrogated to his rights, he took the land by trans—showing equities, and tendering unpaid purchase money before judgment. Folk v. Kyser, 21 C. A. 676, 63 S. W. 87.

An alleged executed parol agreement for sale of land held not enforceable because

An agreement between a vendor and purchaser with reference to a reconveyance of land and the vendor's purchase thereof on foreclosure of his lien held to be an agreement to convey land within the statute of frauds. Foster v. Ross, 33 C. A. 615, 77 S. W. 999.

A parol contract to convey land is void, where the land is not surveyed, and is not specifically agreed upon and identified, and two years has elapsed before the vendee has taken possession of the land under the purported contract, and five years has elapsed before vendee is insisting on enforcement of the contract. Willey v. Whaley (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1166.

A verbal sale of land does not convey title, unless the vendee takes possession of the land and makes valuable and permanent improvements. Kelth v. Kelth, 39 C. A. 363, 87
S. W. 384.

In order to take a parol agreement to sell land out of the statute of frauds, there must have been an executed parol agreement to sell, and the vendee must have made improve-

A parol sale of land by the wife, with the consent of the husband, was valid under the law in force prior to 1840. Monroe v. Searcy, 20 T. 348. See Heirs of Reddin v. Smith, 67 T. 26.

25. Sale of lumber.—An owner's parol agreement to pay for lumber previously contracted for by a contractor, to be used in rebuilding the owner's house, was void under the statute of frauds. Marks v. Jones (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 619.

26. Assignment of name.—An agreement made by an obligor for a release of the statute of frauds, the agent, though not authorized by his alleged principal, is not liable thereon. Morrison v. Hazzard (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 385.

27. Part performance.—In general.—Part performance referable to a parol agreement will take the case out of the statute. Castlemann v. Sherry, 42 T. 53; Ponce v. McWhorter, 50 T. 563.

An oral agreement for a letting of land for a greater period than one year may be taken out of the statute by part performance. Anderson v. Anderson, 13 C. A. 527, 36 S. W. 816.

Acts of a purchaser of personal property in reliance on performance by defendant held not such part performance as would take the contract out of the statute of frauds. Jones v. Moore, 120, 72 S. W. 420, 31 C. A. 420.

Facts held not to show such part performance as to take contract for sale of land out of statute of frauds. Wiley v. Whaley (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1165.

Liability under agreement to pay certain writing obligatory in consideration of conveyance of land to obligors held not defeated merely because agreement was not in writing. Conly v. Hampton (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 1171.

Defendants, having cut and appropriated timber from plaintiff's land under an oral contract, held not entitled to defend a suit for the value thereof on the ground that the contract was within the statute of frauds. Alford Bros. & Whiteside v. Williams, 41 C. A. 436, 91 S. W. 636.

In trespass to try title, where defendant claimed the premises under a verbal lease, certain facts made, to take suit held inadmissible because of operation of the statute of frauds. Lechenger v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 633.

Where a written contract of employment was within the statute of frauds as not performable within a year, part performance was ineffective to validate it. San Antonio & Laredo Pub., Co. v. Salinas, 101 S. W. 867.

The statute of frauds (Art. 5965) has no application to a contract to transfer a lease of land belonging to the public school fund and to assist the purchaser of the lease in purchasing the land from the state, where the plaintiff has performed the contract and the defendant has received the benefit of the performance. Belcher v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 833.

Part performance is available to remove a lease for more than a year from the operation of the statute of frauds. Dockert v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 592.

Notwithstanding the invalidity of a lease under the statute of frauds, the lessee is liable for such part performance thereof as he knowingly receives the benefits of. Garrett v. Danner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 678.

While the statute of frauds prevents the creation by parol of an irrevocable license with respect to real property, yet where there has been a parol license under a definite contract, with such part performance as the case out of the statute and equity will enforce the licensee's rights in case of attempted revocation. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 552.

When the relator's statement, upon his lessor's statement that he could have the property as long as he paid the rent, borrowed money to discharge his obligations to the lessor, there is no such change of position as to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds. Hill v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 247.

28. Possession.—In parol sale of land followed by possession, the vendee promising to pay a stipulated price, the vendee tendering a deed, the vendee cannot defeat recovery of the purchase-money under the statute of frauds. Watson v. Baker, 71 T. 739, 9 S. W. 887.

Mere possession, without the making of permanent improvements, held insufficient to entitle a donee of land to specific performance. West v. Webster, 39 C. A. 272, 87 S. W. 196.

Entry into possession of premises and performance of consideration held not such part performance as to take a parol contract for the conveyance of land out of the statute of frauds. Terry v. Craft (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 844.

The provision of the statute of frauds that no action shall be brought, etc., applying to those who interpose an oral contract respecting lands as an affirmative defense, a defendant in possession of premises cannot interpose a verbal lease of five years in defense of his possession. Lechenger v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 638.

A purchaser of land held in such exclusive possession as to warrant specific performance of a parol contract of sale. Babcock v. Lewis, 52 C. A. 8, 113 S. W. 584.

An oral contract for sale of land cannot be enforced so as to constitute a defense for one in possession under it in trespass to try title; the consideration not having been performed. Epperson v. Tucker, 109 T. 547, 131 S. W. 408.

29. Payment.—The mere payment of the purchase money to the holder of the legal title to land, upon an agreement that the title is to be held for the payor, does not create an equitable title capable of enforcement. Wright v. Bearrow, 13 C. A. 146, 35 S. W. 190.

Specific performance of an oral contract to convey land will not be granted, in the absence of possession or permanent improvements made thereon, though the purchase price has been paid. McCarty v. May (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 804.

Defendant having sought a parol extension of a lease and paid the rent for part of the extended period, held not entitled to claim that it was unenforceable under the statute of frauds. Dockery v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

Though a lease was insufficient under the statute of frauds, if the lessee with the lessor's knowledge and acquiescence, as part performance of the contract, furnished supplies and boarded the lessor and his hands when he had not agreed to do so, the lessor will be liable for the reasonable value of such part performance, of which he received the benefit. Garrett v. Danner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 678.

Payment of the purchase price, unaccompanied by possession, will not support a parol sale of an oil estate. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 675.

30. — Improvements.—Improvements of insignificant value, and paid for by the use and occupation of the land, will not take the contract out of the statute. Eason v. Eason, 61 T. 225.

Improvements not exceeding the value of rents held sufficient to take a parol gift out of the statute of frauds. Id.

To constitute a parol sale, so that, improvements having been made, there was a right to specific performance. Kutseman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 842.

In trespass to try title, certain improvements held not sufficiently substantial to warrant acquiescence of defendant's title to the land under a parol gift. Hutcheson v. Chandler, 47 C. A. 124, 104 S. W. 434.

In a suit for specific performance of an oral contract to convey land, certain improvements made on the property held insufficient to entitle defendant to a specific performance. (Civ. App.) 140 T. 641, 108 S. W. 311.

A parol gift of land accompanied by improvements by the donee after the donor's death is invalid under the statute of frauds. Hammond v. Hammond, 49 C. A. 482, 108 S. W. 1024.

Certain improvements made by a donee under a parol gift of land during the donor's lifetime held insufficient to take the gift out of the statute of frauds. Baldwin v. Riley, 49 C. A. 557, 108 S. W. 1192.

Expenditures and improvements by a purchaser of land under a parol contract held not so insignificant as to warrant a refusal of specific performance, though they did not equal in value what the purchaser had gained by his occupancy of the land. Babcock v. Lewis, 52 C. A. 8, 113 S. W. 584.

Certain improvements held insufficient to take a parol gift of land out of the statute of frauds. Elam v. Carter, 55 C. A. 649, 119 S. W. 914.

A parol gift of land is invalid unless the donee has made sufficient improvements to take the case out of the statute of frauds. Id.

Inventories of $100 in improvements held too small an amount, in comparison with the value of a section of land, to furnish the basis for specific performance of an alleged parol gift thereof. Atchley v. Perry, 55 C. A. 585, 120 S. W. 1105.

An oral transfer of a homestead from husband to wife may be made without her obtaining exclusive possession, provided she makes improvements based thereon during her lifetime other than those naturally required to make the place habitable. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

Where a parol purchaser has been fully compensated for his improvements or has gained more by his possession than he has expended in improvements, such improvements will not avail him as a ground for specific performance. Cook v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 997.

The owners of certain oil land executed a deed which, by mistake of the description, excluded one-third of an acre intended to be conveyed. After the death of one of them, the grantee sunk an oil well on the excluded land, which exhausted the oil. Held, that a temporary easement to be established could not be ascertained since, after the death of one of the grantors, title by sale could not be perfected by ejecting improvements, and, the well having exhausted, the oil was no longer an improvement. Gilmore v. O'Neil (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1162.

31. — Possession and payment.—When the lessee takes possession of the premises and pays a part of the rent, it will take the parol contract out of the operation of the statute. Randall v. Thompson, 1 App. C. C. § 1101.

Where by virtue of a parol lease for a period longer than one year the landlord places the tenant in possession of the premises, and receives from him one or more installments of rent in accordance with the terms of the lease, it constitutes such part performance as will take the contract out of the statute of frauds and the same may be enforced in accordance with its terms. Sorrells v. Goldberg, 34 C. A. 265, 78 S. W. 712.

Fact that vendor of land under parol contract remained in possession until her claim to recover for the consideration given by her was barred by limitations held not to entitle her to specific performance, or create an estoppel against the grantor's estate. Terry v. Craft (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 844.

32. — Possession and improvements.—When the purchase money for land has been paid, and the vendee has taken possession and made valuable improvements, with the belief that it was under a parol contract for its sale. Dixon v. McNeill (Civ. App.) 126 T. 961; Robinson v. Davenport, 46 T. 333; Castleman v. Sherry, 42 T. 59; Moreland v. Stubblefield, 5 T. 552; Dugan v. Colville, 8 T. 176; Ottenhouse v. Burleson, 11 T. 87; Whitson v. Smith, 15 T. 36; Taylor v. Ashley, 15 T. 56; Neatherly v. Ripley, 21 T. 434; Hubbard v. Horn, 24 T. 278; Bracken v. Hambrick, 25 T. 408; Taylor v. Roland, 25 T. 293; Howard v. Rogers, 32 T. 215; Johnson v. Settegast, 38 T. 96; Robinson v. Davenport, 46 T. 333; Castleman v. Sherry, 42 T. 59; Moreland v. 2882

If the vendor under a parol contract puts the vendee in possession and afterwards refuses to complete his contract, he must pay for the improvements made by the occupant. Thouvenin v. Lea, 26 T. 612; Saunders v. Wilson, 19 T. 194.

If under a parol gift of lands followed by possession and large expenditure in improvements thereon by the grantee, it is necessary that the terms and conditions of such contract be clear and free from ambiguity, and that possession was taken and improvements made with the requisite strength of it. Permissive occupation by the father and acceptance of the gift by the son will not be sufficient to bring the case within the rule. Murphy v. Stell, 43 T. 123.

Possession of land and improvements thereon made after the death of the vendor will not be held a contract, Ryan v. Wilson, 56 T. 36; Whitsett v. Miller, 1 U. C. 203; Woodbridge v. Hancock, 70 T. 18, 6 S. W. 813.

Where a vendee or donee of land has been placed in possession and made improvements of value sufficient to entitle the party to a specific performance, the use of the premises will go with the equitable right to the property. Wells v. Davis, 77 T. 666, 14 S. W. 237.

Equities of a parol gift of land held to take it out of the statute. Davis v. Potter, 20 C. A. 657, 59 S. W. 615.

An oral contract to clear land for the use thereof for three years held taken out of the statute of frauds by contract performance. Wanhaseaff v. Fontoja (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 663.

In trespass to try title based on a parol gift together with possession and improvements thereunder, evidence held to show that the improvements were not of such a character as to take the gift out of the operation of the statute of frauds. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 61.

The possession of land by one claiming it as a gift to her for life, with remainder to her children, and the making of permanent valuable improvements thereon, was sufficient to take both the life estate and the remainder out of the statute of frauds. Combs v. Well (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 147.

In order that equity may sustain a parol gift of land, possession must have been taken and substantial improvements made by the donee upon the faith of the gift. Hutchinson v. Chandler, 47 C. A. 124, 104 S. W. 434.

A parol gift of land accompanied by possession and improvements held valid in equity, notwithstanding the statute of frauds. Hammond v. Hammond, 49 C. A. 452, 108 S. W. 1024.

To take a parol gift of land out of the statute of frauds, possession must be taken by the donee and substantial improvements made with the acquiescence and during the lifetime of the donor. Baldwin v. Riley, 49 C. A. 557, 108 S. W. 1192.

Where a party relies upon possession and improvements under a verbal sale of land to entitle the sale out of the statute of frauds, it must appear that the possession was taken and improvements made during the life of the vendor and under such circumstances as to afford a presumption that he knew of and acquiesced therein. Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 989.

The rights of a party claiming land through possession and improvements under a verbal sale are unaffected by the fact that he has a deed thereto from the same party who made the oral sale, but which was intended by the parties as a mortgage. Id.

The rule that a donee of land is entitled to specific performance if he takes possession of the land and makes improvements is based upon equitable principles of estoppel, and the relative values of the improvements and of the land must be considered. Cook v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 997.

A parol gift of land is unsustaining, unless it is shown that the donee had possession and made improvements with the knowledge and consent of the donor. Yealock v. Yealock (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 842.

A parol sale of land will be upheld where the vendee is put in possession, and, relying on the sale, makes valuable improvements, such circumstances creating an equitable title which will be protected in equity. Dixon v. McNees (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 679.

33. Payment and improvements.—An action brought by a party against another for specific performance of an unwritten agreement conveying lands in consideration of labor and improvements made on the land, cannot be maintained, even though the land has been thus paid for in full, unaccompanied by other facts, such as exclusive possession and the like. Ward v. Stuart, 62 T. 333; Ann Berta Lodge v. Leverton, 42 T. 18. An executed parol sale of land, the purchase money being paid and possession taken, followed by improvements, constitutes a good title in the vendee. Harold v. Sumner, 78 T. 581, 14 S. W. 995.

In trespass to try title, a plea attempting to set up the statute of frauds in defense held good. Talmage v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 61.

The statute of frauds held not to avail where land being sold by parol, and the vendor having failed to make title, the purchaser sues for money paid and improvements made. Burleson v. Tinnin (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 356.

Improvements made and part payment of the price of land held to entitle the purchaser to specific performance of an oral contract of sale. Bahcoock v. Lewis, 52 C. A. 8, 118 S. W. 884.

34. Contracts implied by law on part performance.—A widow's contract to convey land in consideration of the husband's oral agreement, which failed to perform, held sufficient to take the husband's oral agreement out of the statute of frauds, and entitle the purchaser to specific performance. McCarty v. May (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 894.

Where defendant's testator failed to comply with an oral agreement to convey land to plaintiffs, in consideration of their conveyance of land to another, plaintiffs were entitled to recover from his estate the value of the land conveyed by them. Id.

And for the carrying of live for a share of the increase, must be determined as if no contract had been made, and the one caring for the stock for a term of years for a share of the increase, must be determined as if no contract had been made, and the one caring for the stock for a term of years for a share of the increase, must be determined as if no contract had been made, and the one caring for the stock could recover the reasonable value of feed furnished. Crenshaw v. Bishop (Clv. App.) 145 S. W. 284.

36. Contracts completely performed.—A surety's answer, in a suit on a note, that for a valuable consideration the time was extended for one year with the privilege to the principal debtor of paying the note in work, and that the value of such work performed and held not objected to the note, held, in the ground that the oral contract was a contract for services not to be performed within a year, and within the statute of frauds. Lee v. Durham (Clv. App.) 156 S. W. 1135.

38. Modification of contract.—A subsequent contract changing any of the terms of a written for more than one year required by the statute of frauds to be in writing must also be in writing. Beard v. A. A. Gooch & Son (Clv. App.) 150 S. W. 1022.

Nothing short of a subsequent contract in writing meeting the requirements of the statute of frauds can change a written agreement whose interest is to be charged with a conveyance of part of the land owned by tenants in common. Gurley v. Hanrick's Heirs (Clv. App.) 139 S. W. 721.

A contract of sale of timber held not subject to modification by parol agreement. Adams v. Hughes (Clv. App.) 140 S. W. 1163.

Equity will enforce a verbal gift of land from the father to his son when clearly established, if it be accompanied by possession followed by improvements made on the land by the son's gift with the consent of the father. Willis v. Green & others (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 478.

An owner of land cannot urge the statute of frauds to invalidate a parol sale thereof between adverse claimants to which he was not a party. McManus v. Matthews (Clv. App.) 65 S. W. 589.

Special answer in trespass to try title held not demurrable on the ground that the contract therein alleged was within the statute of frauds, and that the court had no jurisdiction to hear a claim for the recovery of money alleged to have been paid thereunder. Brown v. Randolph, 26 C. A. 86, 52 S. W. 983.

A parol sale or gift of real estate cannot be enforced at law, but equity will grant relief if possession and the making of permanent valuable improvements are shown or other facts showing that the transaction is a fraud upon the purchaser or donee if not entered. Altgelt v. Escalera, 51 C. A. 108, 110 S. W. 390.

40. Persons to whom statute is available.—The invalidity of a parol contract within the statute cannot be set up by a stranger to it. The defense is personal to the one sought to be charged. Railway Co. v. Settegast, 79 T. 256, 15 S. W. 288; Robb v. Railway Co., 82 T. 392, 18 S. W. 707.

The maker of a note for land to which he has been admitted into possession and deed offered him cannot plead want of consideration of the note merely because the sale was by parol. Busby v. Bush, 79 T. 656, 15 S. W. 638.

The defense that a transfer of land is void under the statute cannot be raised by a third party. Bell v. Beazley, 18 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

Where defendant not only sought parol extension of the written lease, but paid rent for the part of the time for which extension was granted, he could not then assert that the extension was invalid under the statute. Dockery v. Thorn (Clv. App.) 126 S. W. 593.

Owner employing a broker to procure a purchaser but reserving right to sell held entire property to the broker, and to sell the land to a third person prior to a sale by the broker. Lewis v. Vaughan (Clv. App.) 144 S. W. 1156.

Where, as a part of the consideration for the purchase of property, the purchaser assumed and agreed to pay certain notes, he cannot assert that his agreement was void by the statute of frauds, as a parting with title to property, in reliance on the promise, rendered the debt the original obligation of the purchaser. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Clv. App.) 146 S. W. 723.

41. Writing subsequent to oral agreement.—Where a written escrow agreement provided for the delivery of the deed upon approval by an attorney of the deeds deposited with the escrow holder, a contemporaneous parol agreement by which the parties were to deliver other abstracts which were to be considered in connection with the deeds deposited in passing upon the title could not be grafted upon the written agreement and voided at violating the statute of frauds (Art. 3962), unless the escrow agreement was first reformed, so as to embody the terms of the parol agreement. Cress v. Holloway (Clv. App.) 135 S. W. 209.

42. G. being the owner of an undivided third of certain lands, and H. having an interest in said lands, being the sole owner of such two-thirds, H. contracted in writing to convey to G. and C., in consideration of their defending against the claims of others to part of such two-thirds interest, an undivided one-sixth interest in his personal share of the lands, and in such contract G. agreed to relinquish to C. his interest in said one-sixth, the contract further providing that one sixth interest was to secure to C. to be taken out of H.'s interest in said lands, after deducting the one-third interest belonging to G. Held, that nothing short of a subsequent contract in writing of the statute of frauds could change such agreement, so as to allow the land conveyed to C. by H. and G., in execution of such agreement, to be charged to the interest of G. in partition between him and H. Gurley v. Hanrick's Heirs (Clv. App.) 139 S. W. 721.

43. Waiver of bar of statute.—A deed repudiated by the vendee, and destroyed with his consent, afterwards be claimed by him as a compliance with the statute of frauds. Sullivan v. O'Neal, 66 T. 423, 1 S. W. 185.
Title 62) FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES Art. 3965

Where the lessor urged the statute of frauds as a bar to the enforcement of a lease as to only a part of the term covered, and sought to rely on an oral contract for the whole term, he waived his right to assert its invalidity. Garrett v. Danner (Civ. App.)
46 S. W. T. 676.

42. Trusts.—An agreement by purchaser at execution sale to hold the land subject to reconveyance to the execution debtor held not void, because oral. Brown v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 162.

A grantor of an absolute conveyance may by parol create a trust in favor of a stranger to the deed. Barnet v. Houston, 18 C. A. 134, 44 S. W. 889.

A contract for the conveyance of real estate held in form subject to specific per-

44. Description of parties.—An instrument of writing purporting to be a contract to convey land that does not give the names of the sellers nor any description of them, nor refer to any paper where the names can be ascertained will not support

45. Description of land.—A deed held not void under the statute, though the description of the land was defective. Regan v. Milby, 21 C. A. 21, 60 S. W. 877.

46. Statement of price.—It is not necessary that the price stipulated to be paid should be expressed in writing. Adkins v. Watson, 12 T. 199; Thomas v. Hammond, 47 T. 42; Fulton v. Robinson, 55 T. 401.

Purchase price of land, not embraced in contract for sale thereof, held may be

47. Signature.—Written authority is not necessary to enable an agent to bind his principal in an executory contract for the sale of land. Huffman v. Cartwright, 44 T. 296; Marlin v. Kosmyroski (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1042.

A contract for the sale of land, signed by a part owner, will not bind the other.

be charged therewith, and need not be binding upon both parties. Hazzard v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 244.

A writing reciting that the person signing the same was a justice of the peace of the town of Socorro, and that in 1854, in the month of August, he had given possession to "T." resident of T., of a piece of land in a place called the "acequia dura," consisting of the measurements shown by an annexed survey, to hold in the right of a neighbor, as T. has the rights of citizenship, having done all the ditch work necessary and that such land was given him with the consent and pleasure of the neighbors and T. may be warranted in the same, and there is no adverse claim, "as I have freely done this act," and that such resident shall be obligated to record this document in the office of the county that it may have greater force. The writing was signed, "L., Justice of the Peace." Held, that the writing was insufficient to take the transaction out of the statute. Skov v. Coffin (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 460.

Under this article specific performance being sought by the vendor, it is enough that the signing is by the vendee alone. Black v. Hans (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 309.

48. Contents of memorandum in general.—The memorandum of the sale of land should be so reasonably definite and certain within itself, or by other writing referred to, that the contract can be made out as to parties, consideration and subject-matter, without resort to parol evidence. Johnson v. Granger, 51 T. 42; Dial v. Crain, 10 T. 444; Peters v. Philips, 19 T. 74, 70 Am. Dec. 319; Patton v. Ruckel, 29 T. 402; Norris v. Hunt, 51 T. 609; Fulton v. Robinson, 55 T. 401; Watson v. Baker, 71 T. 733, 9 S. W. 867.

A memorandum must describe the land, the subject of the contract, with sufficient exactness to identify it. Parol evidence cannot add to an imperfect contract a material part to supply a description in it to the subject of the contract. Watson v. Baker, 71 T. 733, 9 S. W. 867.

A writing: "Proposition: All costs and lawyers' fees for litigation $150; also $1,000 for choice of corner." "I accept the above proposition. T. H. Zandersson"—held void as a contract since void. Zandersson v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 277.

A memorandum held too indefinite to constitute a contract for sale of land, within the statute. Zandersson v. Sullivan, 91 T. 499, 44 S. W. 484.

A memorandum executed by a justice of the peace of the town of Socorro relating to the conveyance of land to a resident of the town held sufficient to take the transaction out of the statute of frauds. Skov v. Coffin (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 450.

A later written by defendant's agent as platzman held not a sufficient memorandum to bind defendants to pay plaintiff's claim for back wages against a former land company. Warner v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 809.

49. Time of making memorandum.—The memorandum in writing of a contract for the sale of land, required by the statute of frauds, may not only be shown by correspondence, but may be made subsequent to the agreement. Black v. Hans (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 309.

50. Statement of consideration.—Where a county conveyed school lands to defendant, taking his obligation for the price, a subsequent written contract reducing such interest held not within the statute of frauds. Delta County v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 902.

A memorandum of receipt made by the agent of the owner of land held a sufficient contract of sale under the statute of frauds. Donnell v. Currie & Dohoney (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 58.

52. Separate writings.—In a suit to enforce a contract for the sale of land, certain conversations between the parties held insufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds. Dillard v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 138.

A letter sent by H. to B. stating, "Inclosed find deed of land I bought from you," and asking that it be signed by H. and wife, and returned, and the inclosed deed, reciting that B. and wife, in consideration of a stated amount, conveyed to H. the described land, are sufficient to take the oral contract out of the statute. Black v. Hans (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 309.

53. Parol acceptance of written offer.—A verbal acceptance of an offer made in writing and signed by the party to be charged is sufficient. Anderson v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 331.

54. Promises by executors and administrators.—An administrator is not bound personally by an agreement to make good to a purchaser any loss he may sustain by reason of defect in title to land sold by him unless the agreement is in writing. Club Land & Cattle Co. v. Dallas County, 26 C. A. 449, 64 S. W. 875.

The parol promise of an executrix after the death of her husband to pay for services rendered him during his lifetime is void under this statute. Flannery v. Chadney, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1035.

55. Contracts as ground of defense.—Where an owner makes a parol contract for the care of his stock for three years for a part of the increase and within a few months thereafter takes possession of the stock he cannot rely on the contract to prevent the recovery of the reasonable value of the pasturage furnished. Crenshaw v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 284.

56. Pleading.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 3.

57. As ground of defense.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 8.

58. Demurrer raising defense.—See notes at end of Title 37, chapter 2.

59. Objections to evidence of oral contract.—In trespass to try title, plaintiff held entitled to have defendant's witnesses so that he could not raise defense of the statute of frauds by objecting to such evidence. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 61.
While a general denial is sufficient to let in the defense of the statute of frauds, defendant, to be held good by objecting to parol evidence, sought to prove the contract sued on. International Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 521, 96 S. W. 93.

In an action for breach of a contract of employment, the defense of the statute of frauds held not raised by a request for a peremptory instruction for defendant. Id.

A failure to object to parol evidence proving the contract relied on to constitute a cause of action operates as a waiver of the statute of frauds, not specially pleaded. Id.

Evidence.—Though a nuncupative will cannot pass title to land, yet it is admissible, when offered in connection with other evidence, to show that the deceased had previously made a parol sale or gift of the land to the devisees. Woolridge v. Hancock, 70 T. 13, 6 S. W. 818.

A deed and writing held competent to show parol conveyance had been brought within the Texas Mahoney (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 363.

Evidence of a written agreement to sell land does not preclude the jury from basing their verdict on a parol agreement preceding the alleged written agreement. Bringhurst v. Texas Co., 39 C. A. 500, 87 S. W. 893.

An oral promise by defendant to pay a debt of his brother to plaintiff, upon purchasing the brother's business, was prima facie within the statute of frauds. Estes v. Bryant-Port-Daniel Co. (Civ. App.) 140 B. W. 1177.

Art. 3966. [2544] [2465] Conveyance to defraud creditors, etc., void.—Every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer of, or charge upon, any estate, real or personal, every suit commenced, or decree, judgment or execution suffered or obtained, and every bond or other writing given with intent to delay, hinder or defraud creditors, purchasers, or other persons of or from what they are, or may be, lawfully entitled to, shall, as to such creditors, purchasers or other persons, their representatives or assigns, be void. This article shall not affect the title of a purchaser, for valuable consideration, unless it appear that he had notice of the fraudulent intent of his immediate grantor, or of the fraud rendering void the title of such grantor. [P. D. 3876.]

1. Validity of transfer in general.—D. conveyed to P. land and real estate of the estimated value of $5,000. At the same time P. executed to D. an instrument reciting the conveyance of the property, and agreed to sell the same on the best terms possible, and out of the proceeds was (1) to retain compensation to himself not exceeding ten percent; (2) to retain an amount sufficient to pay costs and attorney's fees to defend the interest of the persons named in the schedule; (3) to pay out the remainder pro rata to the persons named in the schedule; and if, after the claims of the persons named in the schedule had been paid, there was a remainder, to pay the same to any creditor of said D. which he (P.) might elect. Held, the reservation to the assignee to declare future preferences rendered the assignment fraudulent and void. Moody v. Paschal, 60 T. 483.

2. Badges of fraud.—Conveyance of a stock of merchandise to the creditor's agent held to constitute a valid sale, as against attaching creditors. Tripplett v. Morris, 18 C. A. 50, 44 S. W. 684.

1. Deed conveying grantor's expectancy to real estate held not fraudulent as against subsequent creditors. Searcy v. Gwatney Bros., 36 C. A. 158, 81 S. W. 576.

2. Badges of fraud.—Conveyance of a stock of goods, followed on the same day by a transfer of notes and accounts, held one transaction. Value of property exceeding debt secured held a badge of fraud. Bailey v. Brown, 21 S. W. 73, 3 C. A. 177.

The fact that one to whom an insolvent transferred his firm interest is insolvent, and cannot pay debts of old firm, held not to make transaction fraudulent. Bell v. Beazley, 18 C. A. 639, 46 S. W. 401.
The employment of the grantor of a stock of goods, after execution of a trust deed of the same, as clerk by the trustee, does not invalidate the deed for fraud. Bolts v. Engelke (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 899.

The retention of the possession of personalty by the seller creates a rebuttable presumption that the sale is fraudulent. Perry v. Patton (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1018.

Mere indolence, indulgence and delay in the collection of a dishonored note is not a badge of fraud. Eason v. Garrison & Kelly, 36 C. A. 574, 82 S. W. 800.

That the value of property transferred by an insolvent to a preferred creditor exceeds the debt does not invalidate the transfer, if the value is reasonably proportioned to the debt. Awtall v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 302.

3. Collusive suits.—A fraudulent diversion of a debtor's property is as frequently accomplished by a collusive suit as by a direct transfer, and both means are denounced by the statute in the same terms. Martin Clothing Co. v. Page, 1 C. A. 537, 21 S. W. 702.

The transfer of a judgment by an insolvent debtor is not fraudulent where he receives in part payment a house and lot which he claims as a homestead, although he made the transfer to prevent his creditors from reaching the judgment. Thompson v. International & G. N. R. Co., 45 C. A. 285, 100 S. W. 197.

5. Property subject to claims of creditors in general.—Party having no lien on fund due his debtor in hands of county cannot maintain action to set aside fraudulent transfer thereof. Herring-Hall-Marvin Co. v. Kroeger, 23 C. A. 672, 57 S. W. 380.

Where a husband has taken the title to land purchased with his wife's money, the fact that the husband and wife join in a conveyance of the property to a stranger to prevent its seizure for the husband's debts does not render the conveyance void as in fraud of his creditors. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper, 39 C. A. 59, 87 S. W. 235.

If the conveyance of exempt property is simulated and colorable, merely made upon a secret trust that the vendee should hold the property for the vendor after the latter had abandoned the use of it, by its subsequent abandonment it becomes liable to be taken in execution. Cox v. Shropshire, 26 T. 113.

7. Homestead.—Where a homestead is conveyed with intent to defraud creditors, but the grantor continues in occupation, the conveyance is not in law fraudulent as to such creditors. Brown v. Moore (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 781.

The conveyance of a homestead, even for the purpose of avoiding the payment of the grantor's debts does not fail within this article. Jolly v. Diehl, 38 C. A. 549, 86 S. W. 966.

Sale by mortgagor to mortgagee of crop gathered and ungathered from his homestead and partly exempt and partly nonexempt held not fraudulent as to creditors. Nunn-Weldon Dry Goods Co. v. Haden (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 73.

On attachment of land claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed to defendant debtor, a court, assuming the land and his wife claiming as a homestead, the case held determinable upon the status of the homestead claim at the time of the conveyance. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 599, 110 S. W. 181.

If property had not been abandoned as a homestead when it was conveyed to the owner's wife, an intent to abandon in the future did not make the conveyance fraudulent as to his creditors. Id.

A conveyance of a homestead, whether with or without consideration, and though to defraud the owner's creditors, is valid, and will not be set aside as fraudulent. Holt v. Beazley (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 173.

That a wife allowed her son to manage her separate property and conduct the business in his name will not deprive her of any right or equity which she might have, even though the arrangement was fraudulent. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 253.

8. Insolvency element of fraud.—The sale of property by a debtor in failing circumstances, known to the purchaser, for a fair consideration paid in money or negotiable notes, may be fraudulent. Seligson v. Brown, 61 T. 130.

When property has been conveyed in good faith by a debtor to his creditor in payment of the debt, if the creditor knew that the creditor knew that he owed other debts which would not be paid. Rider v. Hunt, 6 C. A. 238, 25 S. W. 314.

A conveyance by an insolvent debtor of all his property not exempt for cash to one knowing his indebtedness is fraudulent where the purchase money is not applied to his debts. Proctor v. Buck Stove Co. (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1110.

A bona fide sale without fraudulent intent on part of vendor, for a fair and valuable consideration, is not void on account of the vendor's insolvency. Cox v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 65.

Grantee holds chargeable with notice of grantor's insolvency, and deed void as against creditors, though grantee was innocent of any corrupt motive. Paddock v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 655, 41 S. W. 700.

Where a grantor known to grantee to be insolvent receives the purchase price of the property conveyed in money and notes, to be used in grantor's discretion, the conveyance held void as in fraud of creditors. Armstrong v. Elliott, 20 C. A. 41, 49 S. W. 635.

Mere fact that grantor is insolvent not to make a transfer of his property to a creditor invalid as to other creditors. Moore v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 899.

A deed from an insolvent, with or without a consideration, executed under such cir-
A transfer of property by an insolvent to one having knowledge of the insolvency held not presumptively fraudulent. Meyer Bros. Drug Co. v. Durham, 35 C. A. 71, 79 S. W. 860.

Mere insolvency of a buyer of goods and his concealment of such fact does not necessarily indicate an intention to defraud, justifying a rescission by the seller. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills v. Weber, 46 C. A. 433, 102 S. W. 471.

The insolvency of a vendee at the time of a sale will not defeat the title of vendee purchasing for a valuable consideration without notice of the vendor's insolvency. Folkes v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 953.

A purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor though he pays full value, if chargeable with intent, acquires the property against the creditors, and such creditors may proceed by execution, attachment, or garnishment. McIntosh & Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 539.

An insolvent debtor may transfer property in good faith to a creditor in payment of the debt provided the consideration, though the same, exceeds the debt. Whitesides v. Bacon (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 301.

9. Reservations and trusts.—A failing debtor may in good faith provide for the payment of designated debts by a mortgage of property with a power of sale, and such an instrument is not invalid because of the interest that might possibly remain to the mortgagor after the payment of the enumerated debts. Such an interest, if any, can be reached by unsecured creditors through proper process. Scott v. McDaniel, 67 T. 315, 3 S. W. 291. An insolvent debtor may prefer partnership debts. Chesser v. Clamp, 10 C. A. 550, 30 S. W. 466.

Where a preferred creditor pays money or executes a negotiable note to his insolvent debtor as part consideration for his purchase of the debtor's goods, the transaction will not be held to be void in law where the goods have been knowingly received than are reasonably required to pay the debt. Oppenheimer v. Half, 68 T. 409, 4 S. W. 562; Blankenship v. Willis, 1 C. A. 657, 20 S. W. 952.

Reserving trifling amounts by a debtor in making an assignment is no indication of fraud, and the acts are worthless in the assignment, when it appears they were all he had. Black v. Vaughn, 70 T. 47, 7 S. W. 604.

If a creditor purchase from his debtor goods exceeding in value the amount of the debt, and cancel the debt in part payment, and the sale is in all respects fair and honest, he will be protected like any other purchaser. The fact that the surplus in value was paid to the creditor is immaterial, unless the transaction was made for the purpose of giving the debtor the advantage of such surplus, and in order to defraud his other creditors. Allen v. Carpenter, 68 T. 108, 15 S. W. 247; Black v. Vaughn, 70 T. 47, 7 S. W. 604; Oppenheimer v. Half, 68 T. 409; 4 S. W. 562; Harness Co. v. Schoellkopf, 71 T. 418, 9 S. W. 336.

A conveyance in trust of goods by an insolvent debtor, the proceeds of after, satisfying a particular debt, to be paid to the grantor, is not necessarily invalid. Otherwise where the value of the goods greatly exceeds the amount of the debt, and the trustee is allowed six months in making a sale. Greer v. Richardson Drug Co., 1 C. A. 634, 20 S. W. 1127.

A conveyance of property in trust for the payment of debts, empowering a sale at retail, is valid unless the property in value exceeded the valid debts intended to be secured. Rainwater-Boogher Hat Co. v. Weaver, 23 S. W. 914; 4 C. A. 594; Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 726, 75 Am. Dec. 506; Simon v. Ash, 1 C. A. 202, 20 S. W. 719. See Gregg v. Cleveland, 83 T. 187, 17 S. W. 77.

A creditor may lawfully pay his debtor a sum of money in consideration of a sale of goods not exceeding in value the amount of the debts. Phillips v. Schoellkopf (Sup.) 29 S. W. 645, citing Oppenheimer v. Half, 68 T. 409, 4 S. W. 562.

Where the trustee of a mortgage for the residuary interest, a finding that the mortgage was void because of agreement to purchase at a reduced price held sustained by the evidence. Frost v. Mason, 17 C. A. 465, 44 S. W. 53. Where a person conspires with a debtor to defraud his creditors, and purchases property from a trustee for less than it is worth, is liable to the creditor for the difference between the value and the amount paid, though the trustee has applied the proceeds to the payment of bona fide claims. Kosminsky v. Hamburger, 21 C. A. 341, 61 S. W. 53.

Where a husband, fearing alimony would be decreed against him in a divorce suit, conveyed land to be held for him, a reconveyance would not be denied; it not appearing that alimony was ever decreed. Rivera v. White, 94 T. 538, 63 S. W. 125.

That a conveyance was in trust held not proven by grantor's admissions. Moulton v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1114.

A grantor executing a deed to defraud his creditors may not create a trust in favor of a third person. Roth v. Schroeter (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 203.

A conveyance by a trustee under a secret trust to the beneficiary held not fraudulent as against creditors of the trustee, unless the beneficiary knowingly permitted the trustee to represent that he was the owner of the property, inducing creditors to extend credit on the faith of it. Stone v. Stitt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 862.

Where a person makes an absolute conveyance of land without consideration, in fraud of his creditors, though with an understanding that it is to be held only in trust, neither he nor his heirs can enforce the trust against the grantee nor a purchaser from the grantee. Scarborough v. Blount (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 312.

The purchaser of the equity of redemption, for a valuable consideration made by the mortgagor with a creditor to convey his property to the creditor, who agreed to pay the surplus after paying the debts to mortgagor's wife. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 530.

10. Right of debtor to prefer creditor.—A debtor, though in failing circumstances, has the right, in making an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors, 2869.
to prefer creditors, if done bona fide; and if the purpose is to pay honest debts, either by a general distribution or by expressing preference among his creditors, it will be valid. Baldwin v. Peet, 22 T. 717, 75 Am. Dec. 806; Blum v. Simpson, 71 T. 628, 9 S. W. 662.

An insolvent debtor has the right to pay one or more of his just debts with money or property, conveyed at a fair price, either to the debtor or to some other person who, by the terms of the sale, is bound to see, and does see, that the money or property is appropriated for that purpose. The fact that a preference is thus designedly given, and the effect of the delay, or even defects in their does, not render such payment or conveyance fraudulent and void. But if the purpose of the debtor, within the knowledge of such creditor, is to secure to himself an interest in the property so conveyed, or to place the same, or any part thereof, beyond the reach of his creditors, or to cause the payment, void. Fischl, 65 T. 311; Schneider v. Sansom, 62 T. 201, 50 Am. Rep. 521; Hamilton v. East Texas Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 448; Schneider v. Bullard, 1 App. C. C. § 1185; Gamble v. Talbot, 2 App. C. C. § 731; Pessels v. Schwab Clothing Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 514; Pion v. Watterman, 10 C. A. 192, 39 S. W. 565.

A debtor has the legal right to pay one or more of his just debts with money or property (Sweeney v. Conley, 71 T. 543, 9 S. W. 545; Willis v. Whitsett, 67 T. 673, 4 S. W. 253), though he may thereby withdraw from the reach of other creditors property which they might subject to the payment of their debts equally just; and for that purpose the debtor may convey or sell the property at a fair price to some person who, by the terms of the sale, is bound to see, and does see, that the money is at once appropriated to that purpose. And so a bona fide creditor can, by agreement, acquire a valid lien upon property of an insolvent debtor. The intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors cannot exist where the purpose is to appropriate the property of the debtor or the proceeds of its fair value to the payment of one or more just debts, in a manner and at a time the creditor to be paid. Knowledge by the purchaser is the debtor intended, after paying certain debts, to apply the residue of the property to the payment of other just debts, even by way of preference, would not vitiate the sale. Ellis v. Ellis, 648; Numsen v. Ellis, 3 App. C. C. § 135; Bailey v. Crittenden, 3 App. C. C. § 179; Williams v. Perry, 3 App. C. C. § 210.

A sale by a falling debtor for the purpose of applying the proceeds of sale to the payment of his debts is not fraudulent as to creditors not sharing in the proceeds of such sale. Sweeney v. Conley, 71 T. 543, 9 S. W. 545; Willis v. Whitsett, 67 T. 673, 4 S. W. 252.

An insolvent debtor may pay certain of his creditors in full, and leave others unpaid, and may sell property for such purpose. Rogers v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 599.

13. — Individual debt of partner.—The preference of the individual debt of a partner by the conveyance of both partners of the firm assets, they being insufficient to satisfy all the firm creditors, is fraudulent as to the latter. Bloch v. Sprunce, 12 C. A. 309, 33 S. W. 1002.

12. — Sureties.—Sureties may assume the debt of their principal and take property at a reasonable price whether principal be solvent or insolvent. Traders' Bank v. Clare, 76 T. 47, 13 S. W. 183.

13. — Mortgages and other transfers as security.—A creditor may in good faith secure his debt from a falling or insolvent debtor, although his mortgage may delay and hinder other creditors in the collection of their debts. Ellis v. Valentine, 65 T. 497; Ricks v. Haas, 65 T. 293, 25 S. W. 1002; Haas v. Kraus, 27 T. 256, 86 T. 687; Refining Co. v. Harrison, 9 C. A. 141, 29 S. W. 500; Wood v. Castlebury (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 653.

An insolvent debtor has the right to transfer a debt due himself as a collateral to secure other debt, and to reserve to himself in the transfer of any balance that may remain after the satisfaction of his own debt does not render the transfer fraudulent. McClure v. Sheek's Heirs, 66 T. 426, 4 S. W. 562. Mortgages as well as purchasers are protected. Hardware Co. v. Kaufman, 77 T. 138, 5 S. W. 283. See Steffan v. Bank, 69 T. 517, 6 S. W. 825; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648; Shoe Co. v. Mars, 82 T. 493, 17 S. W. 370; Rives v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 707.

A mortgage by an insolvent debtor to creditors to secure an actual indebtedness and an additional sum advanced is fraudulent as to other creditors. Willis v. Adoue, 76 T. 118, 29 S. W. 63.

A mortgage with power to sell is not void as to a creditor by reason of a direction that the sales shall be made in regular course of business. Simon v. McDonald, 25 T. 233, 20 S. W. 52.

A deed of trust for the benefit of creditors is not void as to bona fide creditors, though fraudulent as to others. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Lastinger (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 924.

A mortgage executed to secure the payment of a note in consideration of an extension of time is supported by a valuable consideration, and is superior to the equitable rights of another in the mortgaged property not known to the mortgagee. Halbert v. Fawcett (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 523.

Trust deed for creditors held not fraudulent on its face. Moore v. Blum (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 561.

Trust deed of firm property to secure debt of existing firm and of a prior firm held not void as in fraud of creditors. Bell v. Beasley, 13 C. A. 639, 45 S. W. 401.

A deed of trust for creditors not under general assignment law held fraudulent in requiring creditors in a certain class to release their claims in full. Temple Grocer Co. v. Clabaugh, 16 C. A. 665, 48 S. W. 452.
Acceptance of a deed of trust for certain creditors by one not participating in the fraudulent intent with which it was executed held to make it a lien to secure the debt of such creditor. Sutton v. Simon, 91 T. 636, 45 S. W. 559.

Terms of a mortgage to secure creditors considered, and held not fraudulent as to creditors whose claims were not secured thereby. Fry v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 621.

Where a mortgage given by husband and wife was valid, it was immaterial to the husband’s creditors whether a deed under which the wife claimed to have derived sole title to the property was fraudulent. Avery v. Popper, 45 S. W. 551.

A mortgage to secure a valid debt held not fraudulent, though the mortgagee knew that the debtor’s motive was to secure him in preference to other creditors. Cameron v. Cates (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 398.

A conveyance by an insolvent debtor to secure creditors, where there is one preferred bona fide accepting creditor, is not illegal, though the other parties intended to defraud the nonpreferred creditors. Cleveland v. People’s Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 623.

That insolvent tenant mortgaged his property to secure future rent and payment of debts held not to make landlord liable as garnishee to tenant’s creditors. Mayer v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 68.

Deed of trust conveying certain creditors, made with intent to delay other creditors, will be held not for benefit of creditors without knowledge of such intent. Wade v. Odle, 21 C. A. 656, 54 S. W. 786.

Property conveyed by deed preferring creditors being less than the amount of debts secured, an attaching creditor cannot complain of provision in deed tending to hinder unsecured creditors, the preferred creditors being innocent of fraud. Wade v. Odle, 21 C. A. 656, 54 S. W. 786.

A mortgage to secure a fictitious debt, executed by an insolvent mortgagee with the intent of defrauding mortgagee’s creditors, with the void as against the mortgagee’s creditors. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

A mortgage in good faith on firm property to secure a firm debt and an individual partner’s debt held valid, though the firm was insolvent. 16.

Where mortgage was given to secure present debt, a subsequent oral agreement that it should cover future advances held void as to creditors of the mortgagor. F. Groos & Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 402.

If the security and the subject of the security is a valid and subsisting debt and a bona fide transaction, evidenced by a note, then the fact of executing a mortgage intended by the parties as security is not sufficient to make the mortgage void as to creditors, especially where there had been an agreement in advance of the note for the security. L. Childree (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1154.

14. Preference of wife.—An insolvent debtor may prefer a creditor, and even though the creditor preferred be his wife the transaction is valid if open and made for the bona fide purpose of paying a debt. Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 18; Weir Plow Co. v. Carroll, 4 App. C. C. 178, 15 S. W. 122; Beville v. Hendrick (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 317; Jacobs v. Wo­mark (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 436.

The rule that the debtor can prefer can apply where the wife is the creditor of the husband. Thompson v. Hervey, 2 App. C. C. § 506.

An insolvent husband can prefer and pay the bona fide debt owing his wife over debts of other creditors. Massie v. McKee (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 119.

It is not improper for an insolvent merchant to either transfer his property itself in discharge of a debt or to sell it for money and pay the debt with the money, or to do both. It only prohibits him from disposing of it “with intent to delay,” etc. Sanger v. Colbert, 84 T. 668, 19 S. W. 583.

H., being indebted, executed a chattel mortgage with power of sale to P. as trustee, conveying all his stock of goods, worth $1,400, for the benefit of certain creditors, and preferring the bank of which P. was cashier. At the same time H. withdrew from the bank, with its consent, the balance of his deposit, $223. It was held that a creditor may validly pay his debitor a sum of money in consideration of a sale to him by the latter of a stock of goods in payment of his debts, provided the said sum do not exceed in value the amount of such debt. On the other hand it is well established that if in such a case the value of the goods is greater than the original indebtedness the transaction is fraudulent. Phillips v. Schoelkopf (Sup.) 29 S. W. 645; id. (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 918.

Transfer by insolvent to one having knowledge thereof, in payment of an antecedent debt exceeding the value of the property transferred, is valid. Texas Drug Co. v. Shielde, 29 C. A. 774, 48 S. W. 842.
Transfer by an insolvent of all his property in payment of a debt held fraudulent as to creditors. Haff v. Goldfrank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1095.

The invalidity of an insolvent's transfer of his property to a creditor in payment of the debt, the property largely exceeding the debt, held not dependent on the creditor's knowledge.

A transfer in payment of a pre-existing debt, though the intent be to delay and defraud creditors, is valid. Texas Drug Co. v. Baker, 20 Tex. A. 684, 50 S. W. 157.

Where one of several creditors, knowing that the debtor is insolvent, accepts a conveyance from him of only such property as is reasonably sufficient to discharge the debt, the conveyance is valid. Breach v. Garth (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 594.

A party who took goods in satisfaction of a debt is not estopped, in a proceeding attacking the conveyance to him as fraudulent, from showing the real value of the goods.

Where a wife with her husband's consent purchases her debtor's property and assumes payments of debts due other creditors to procure satisfaction of a debt to her, the conveyance is not fraudulent. Hugo & Schmelter Co. v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 163.

Where a debtor conveys all his property in payment of a debt, and the value of the property greatly exceeds the amount of the debt, the conveyance is fraudulent as against the other creditors of the debtor. Clark v. Bell, 49 C. A. 39, 89 S. W. 38.

A conveyance by the maker of a note in payment thereof held not fraudulent as to the maker's creditors, though the person to whom the conveyance was made had acquired the note to protect the maker from suit on it. Riske v. Rotan Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 708.

Plaintiff, having been induced to sell goods by a false statement of his vendees as to his financial condition, a large indebtedness to defendants having been omitted therefrom with their connivance, may avoid the sale and recover the property from defendants, to whom the goods were transferred in payment of this pre-existing indebtedness. Parlin & Orendorff v. Co. v. Glover, 45 C. A. 93, 98 S. W. 59.

That the value of property transferred by an insolvent to a preferred creditor exceeds the amount of the debt does not invalidate the transfer, if the value is reasonably proportioned to the debt. Awalt v. Schooler (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 307.

Insolvent debtor held entitled to pay one creditor to the exclusion of others, provided the transaction be in good faith. Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 455.

Where, prior to the levy of a writ of attachment against an insolvent debtor, he transferred the property to another creditor in satisfaction of a debt, and it did not appear that the property was reasonably worth more than sufficient for its satisfaction, the transferee was held to enter the property as the attachment creditor.

16. — Moral obligation. — Where defendant's mother conveyed land to him by gift in consideration that he should build thereon and live near her in her old age, and should convey if he did not do so, the moral obligation which defendant assumed was a sufficient consideration to protect a reconveyance, voluntarily made, from attack by his creditors as without consideration and fraudulent. Paris Grocery Co. v. Burns, 56 C. A. 223, 120 S. W. 552.

A transfer of property by an insolvent husband to his wife, to whom he is indebted, which is of no greater value than reasonably sufficient to pay her debt, is valid as against his other creditors. Thompson v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 666, 60 S. W. 354.

Conveyance of land from husband to wife in satisfaction of a bona fide debt held not fraudulent as against creditors of the husband. McCrory v. Lutz, 94 T. 650, 64 S. W. 760.

Bank stock, transferred by a wife to her husband to qualify him as a director, on the understanding that on his election he should retransfer the same, held not subject, after the retransfer, to garnishment by a creditor of the husband. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 550.

Settlement between a husband and wife under certain conditions held valid as against creditors. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 566, 109 S. W. 909.

The transfer of property by a debtor to his wife to pay an indebtedness to her is not fraudulent if no more property is transferred than is reasonably sufficient to satisfy the debt, as a falling debtor has the right to prefer one or more of his creditors to the exclusion of others. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 722.

18. — Partial invalidity or illegality. — Where the value of goods did not exceed the debt, exclusive of interest, in satisfaction of which they were transferred, it was immaterial, in attacking the transfer as fraudulent, what portion of the interest was usurped. Blenkner v. Groover (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 249.

19. Fraudulent intent of debtor. — Trust deed in favor of creditors to hinder and delay other creditors held not void as to creditors secured thereby whose claims were not fraudulent. Galveston Dry Goods Co. v. Blum, 23 C. A. 703, 57 S. W. 1121.

A transfer of property from debtor to creditor is not invalidated by the mere fact that it is made in order to defeat another creditor in the collection of his claim. Moore v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 890.

A conveyance of real estate, unless made with the intent of placing the same beyond the reach of the creditors of the grantor, is not fraudulent as to subsequent creditors. Searcy v. Gwaltney Bros., 26 C. A. 158, 81 S. W. 576.

20. — Knowledge or notice of intent and participation therein. — When property is purchased for a valuable consideration from an insolvent debtor, and the conveyance is attacked as fraudulent by a creditor, it devolves upon him to prove that the conveyance was made by the vendor with a fraudulent intent, and not that the same was known to the purchaser. But when the conveyance is made to a third party for the benefit of certain preferred creditors, it is then immaterial whether this intent was known to either the trustee or the beneficiaries, and if the deed was executed with the intent to delay, 2802
Title 62) FRUDS AND FRAUDULICNT CONVEYANCES Art. 3966

The deed shall be made with the intent on the part of the seller to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, and that intent was known to the purchaser, or could have been known by the use of diligence, the sale is void, though made for good and valuable consideration, and the fact which justifies the purchaser could have ascertained by a proper use of the knowledge he actually possessed. Taylor v. Townsend, 61 T. 144; Wright v. Lynn, 16 T. 34; Mills v. Howeth, 19 T. 250, 70 Am. Dec. 381; Humphries v. Freeman, 22 T. 45; Weisiger v. Chihsom, 28 T. 789; Blum v. Simpson, 58 T. 392; Blum v. Carpenter, 65 T. 185, 15 S. W. 347.

A sale by a debtor for the purpose of defrauding his creditors is void when his vendee had notice of facts sufficient to put a man with ordinary prudence upon notice of the purpose of the vendor. Blum v. Simpson, 71 T. 625, 9 S. W. 662.

A purchaser from a failing debtor who sold in fraud of his creditors, in order to hold the property must show that he, having no notice of the fraud, paid cash or had given his negotiable notes for the consideration. Tillman v. Heller, 78 T. 597, 14 S. W. 700, 11 L. R. A. 628, 22 Am. St. Rep. 77.

It being shown, however, that a valuable consideration was paid, the creditor must show that the purchaser had actual or constructive knowledge of the fraudulent intent. La Page v. Slade, 79 T. 473, 15 S. W. 496.

A conveyance to secure a bona fide debt is invalid if made with a fraudulent intent and the creditor in such intent. Mixon v. Symonds, 61 S. W. 772, 2 C. A. 623; Stuart v. Smith (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 1026.

Purchase of property of debtor by creditor to amount of debt held valid although purchaser may have had knowledge of intent of debtor to hinder other creditors. Head v. Riche (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 630.

Purchaser from insolvent will be protected unless he knew of fraudulent intent. Wofford v. Farmer, 90 T. 661, 40 S. W. 788; Id. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 739; Hilboldt v. Waugh, 65 S. W. 326.

A purchase from an insolvent held not fraudulent though purchaser knew of insolvency, where he did not know of any intent to defraud creditors, even as to the sale of the property, for the purchaser must have no notice of the debtor's intent. Koch v. Bruce, 20 C. A. 634, 49 S. W. 1191.

Intention to aid an insolvent debtor in hindering creditors will not invalidate a transfer of personalty in settlement of a bona fide debt, if no excess of property is received. Gardner v. Bankey (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 367.

A mortgage to secure a bona fide debt, executed by an insolvent mortgagee with intent to hinder his creditors, held valid, unless the mortgagee participated in the fraudulent intent. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

No one, however, will render a fraudulicnt character of deed of trust executed by her son, by reason of knowledge in her husband. M. A. Cooper & Co. v. Sawyer, 31 C. A. 626, 73 S. W. 992.

The purchase by a creditor of property from an insolvent debtor with knowledge of the insolvency is not fraudulent as to other creditors by reason of the debtor's intent to defraud them, in the absence of participation by the purchasing creditor in such fraudulent intent. Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 481, 94 S. W. 425.

A sale made with the intention of defrauding creditors was held invalid against them if the vendee knew of such intent, or had constructive notice thereof. Baze v. Island City Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 462.

An attachment against grantor held to afford no evidence against grantee of the indebtedness, and, without further proof, the party asserting it does not put himself in a position to attack the conveyance as fraudulent. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 509, 109 S. W. 909.

Role as to validity of transfers by insolvents to preferred creditors where such creditor acts in good faith, stated. Wast v. Schoeler (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 202.

Where a mother furnished the money for the purchase of real estate, the legal title to which was taken in the name of her son, a conveyance by him to his mother before any creditor of the mother had attached the property would not be set aside as against the creditors, because it appeared that the mother knowingly permitted the son to represent that he was the owner of the property, and thereby caused creditors to extend credit to him on the faith of his ownership. Stone v. Stitt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 862.

Moreover, even of insolventness and even a sale void as to creditors, unless the purchaser had notice of a fraudulent intent on the part of the buyer to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, or knowledge of such facts as would put a reasonably prudent man upon inquiry, under this article. Melroy v. Stone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 944.
A purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor, though he pays full value, if chargeable with notice of the seller's fraudulent intent, acquires no title as against creditors, and such creditors may proceed by execution, attachment, or garnishment. Mcintosh & Warren v. Owasso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

Sales by an insolvent debtor to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors, when the intent could be shown to have been by the debtor, or to hinder or delay other creditors, or to prevent them from collecting their debts. Id.

21. Persons entitled to assert invalidity in general.—A person who is not a creditor or a subsequent purchaser without notice cannot assert the invalidity of a conveyance made by one who afterwards becomes his debtor. De Garza v. Galvan, 55 T. 53.

A creditor holding a debt discharged in bankruptcy, upon which he afterwards recovered judgment, cannot attack for fraud a conveyance made prior to the judgment. Hooks v. Kenney, 137 T. 196; Biggs v. Fantrick, 59 T. 570; Cason v. Chambers, 62 T. 305.

Pending a suit for divorce, the wife, when asserting her claim for alimony, is, within the meaning of the statutes prohibiting fraudulent conveyances, to be deemed a creditor. Lott v. Kaiser, 61 T. 655. See Murray v. Murray, 66 T. 207, 18 S. W. 506, for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, conveyed to B. certain property subject to execution, and which was afterwards sold under a judgment against L. In consideration of the sale B. executed to L. his note for the purchase money. Before its maturity, the note having been lost, L. transferred his interest to M., who was not shown to have paid value therefor, and he, after the maturity of the lost note, transferred it to S. Held, in an action by S. against B. on the note, the latter could set up the fraudulent character of the transaction in bar. Davis v. Sittig, 65 T. 497.

La property is fraudulently conveyed, but having the effect of hindering and delaying other creditors, are not voidable by them. Martin-Brown Co. v. Perrell, 77 T. 199, 13 S. W. 975.

Creditors held to be stopped from attacking a transfer of corporate property as fraudulent, where they have acquiesced in such transfer. Tenney v. Ballard, Webb & Burnette Hat Co., 17 C. A. 144, 43 S. W. 296.

A conveyance made with intent to defeat a certain creditor will be set aside in his favor, whether the claim existed at the time of the conveyance or was then merely in contemplation. Thayer v. Pennington (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 313.

Lands fraudulently conveyed can be subjected to such part of judgment against grantor as represents indebtedness prior to the lien. Heath v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 63, 45 S. W. 123.

Where a defendant in a divorce suit voluntarily conveys his real estate, and one knowledge of the facts takes it as security for debts owing by defendant, such conveyance held fraudulent as to the claim of the wife for alimony. Schultz v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

Whether the transaction between a debtor, who executed a deed for the benefit of creditors, and an alleged creditor, was fraudulent, held immaterial to one whose claim against the debtor was fraudulent. Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 32 C. A. 531, 75 S. W. 203.

One not a creditor at the time of a conveyance held not entitled to attack it as fraudulent. Riske v. Rotan Grocery Co., 37 C. A. 494, 84 S. W. 243.

The courts have construed the word "void" used in this article as meaning "voidable." A deed is void between creditors or purchasers intended to be defrauded. The land conveyed by such deed cannot be recovered from the grantee, without first obtaining a decree annulling such deed in a suit brought for that purpose. Rutherford v. Carr (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 660.

Purchaser of land at execution sale, title to which had been conveyed by judgment debtor to a stranger prior to sale and was of record at the time, held not entitled to defeat judgment owner's title. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper, 39 C. A. 99, 87 S. W. 235.

Where a debtor transfers property with intent to shield it, future, as well as existing, creditors, may have the conveyance set aside as fraudulent. Maffi v. Stephens, 49 C. A. 554, 108 S. W. 1005.

One having a claim for unliquidated damages, as for slander, held entitled to protection against fraudulent conveyances. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 385, 118 S. W. 1159.

22. Validity as between original parties or their representatives.—A conveyance void as to creditors is valid against the vendor, his heirs and representatives. Danzey v. Smith, 9 T. 411; Epperson v. Young, 9 T. 155; McClenny v. Floyd, 10 T. 159; Wilson v. Trawick, 10 T. 428; Hoesser v. Krause, 29 T. 466; Selman v. Wilson, 1 App. C. C. § 896; Stephens v. Adair, 32 T. 214, 18 S. W. 102; Farrell v. Duffey, 5 C. A. 455, 27 S. W. 20; Phillips v. Henry (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 154; Emery v. Bartfield, 156 S. W. 311.

Where a deed was made to hinder and delay the vendor's creditors, the title passed to the vendee to be divested only by the creditors of the vendor, or innocent purchasers from him. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 92.

A conveyance sufficient to convey title cannot be attacked by the legal representatives of grantor because it was made to defraud creditors. William J. Lemp Brewing Co. v. La Rose (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 460.

One who has conveyed his property to another to hinder and delay his creditors cannot afterwards set up the statute of frauds in avoidance of the conveyance, in a suit by his ex-wife. Strickler v. Strickler (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 298.

Nor can his wife, who has intervened in the action, making a claim of her separate property, set up the statute of frauds. Such claim can only be made by creditors of the grantor. Id.
Title 62) FRAUDS AND FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Art. 3966

Administrator cannot assail conveyance by intestate on ground that it was made when insolvent and in fraud of creditors. Burges v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 602.

Where a debtor conveyed land to defraud his creditors, his devisee cannot impeach such conveyance by proof of such fraud. Hunter v. Magee, 31 C. A. 304, 72 S. W. 230.

A deed fraudulent as to creditors held valid as against the grantor's heirs. Davis v. Davis, 44 C. A. 238, 98 S. W. 198.

An undisplaced intent of a grantor in a deed, fraudulent as against creditors, not to pass title thereby, held not to invalidate the deed as between the parties. Id.

Where one party loans money, the lender intending to place such money beyond the reach of his creditors, and the borrower, with knowledge of such intent, agreeing to conceal the transaction, held illegal, and the notes invalid. Smith v. Carey, 50 C. A. 117, 110 S. W. 157.

Conveyance by debtor to defraud creditors held binding between the parties. Robertson v. Hefley, 55 C. A. 388, 118 S. W. 1159.

Neither one who executes a deed, nor his administrator, can question it on the ground that its purpose was to defraud creditors. Phillips v. Henry (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 184.

A sale by plaintiff to defendant, and his contract in consideration, held binding on defendant, though plaintiff had previously made a fraudulent conveyance of the property to defendant. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

A conveyance made by the grantor to defraud his creditors cannot be set aside at the suit of his heirs. Roth v. Schroeter (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 203.

A husband could not impeach the validity of a deed by his wife by mere proof that he executed it to defraud creditors. Brantley v. Brantley (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1024.

Where a husband gives her wife certain horses and brands them with her recorded brand for the purpose of defrauding creditors, neither he nor his heirs can take advantage of her fraud and recover the title from her. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Where a person conveys land by a deed absolute on its face and without consideration, in fraud of his creditors, although with an understanding that the land is only to be sold to him as principal, he nor his heirs can enforce the trust against the grantee or a purchaser from the grantee with notice of the fraud; such conveyances being subject to impeachment only by subsequent creditors and purchasers without notice. Scarborough v. McLaughlin (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 312.

23. Purchasers from grantee.—See notes under Art. 6524.

Neither a fraudulent grantor nor his heirs can enforce a trust in favor of the grantor against a purchaser from the grantee. Scarborough v. Blount (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 312.

24. Property purchased by debtor in the name of another.—A judgment creditor without lien can maintain suit to subject to his judgment land bought by the debtor, the deed for which was taken to another in fraud of creditors. Arbuckie v. Werner, 77 T. 45, 13 S. W. 963.

Where A. loans B. money to buy property, and the purchase is made for B., though title is taken in A.'s name for the purpose of protecting the property from B.'s creditors, the property belongs to B., and is subject to his debts. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

25. Creditors.—Pending a suit for damages the defendant sold all of his property with the avowed purpose to avoid the payment of the judgment which might be rendered against him. Held, that the plaintiff in the suit was a creditor within the meaning of the statute; and the action can be maintained by such creditor purchasing at the sale under his judgment to cancel and declare void the conveyance made by the defendant in the suit to a third party with notice. Cox v. Shropshire, 25 T. 113; Holden v. McLaury, 60 T. 228.

Pending a suit for divorce the wife, when asserting her claim for alimony is, within the meaning of the statute, to be deemed a creditor. Lott v. Kaiser, 61 T. 665.

The plaintiff in a judgment for damages for cutting and carrying away timber without the consent of the owner is a creditor within the meaning of the statute. Cole v. Terrell, 71 T. 549, 9 S. W. 665.

26. Subsequent creditors.—Right of creditor to attach goods fraudulently sold by debtor is limited to goods sold after the debt was contracted. Bergson v. Dunham (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 17.

27. Nulity of transfer.—Finding that a chattel mortgage was made for the purpose of defeating a judgment creditor, and that the mortgagee had notice of such design, held sufficient to sustain a judgment refusing foreclosure. Cates v. Riley (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 979.

As between the fraudulent vendee and the creditor the title remains with the debtor and the transaction is to be treated as if it had never been made and it is void as to creditors. Rutherford v. Carr, 99 T. 101, 87 S. W. 816.

28. Rights and liabilities of grantees.—In determining the liability of the purchasing creditor, in a suit by other creditors, if the purchase be deemed fraudulent, the value of the goods transferred in payment of the preferred claim at the time of their transfer and conversion is the measure of the preferred creditor's liability, and not the sum realized afterwards from their sale. Oppenheimer v. Half & Bros., 68 T. 490, 4 S. W. 562.

If property conveyed to hinder and defraud creditors be seized under legal process to satisfy the debt of the grantor, and it is sold for a grossly inadequate price, under irregular proceedings, the grantee can, by proper proceedings, having the sale set aside. The right of such grantee is subordinate only to that of the creditors, and his participation in the fraud does not place him beyond the pale of protection in reference to their illegal acts. McKee v. Jordan, 691, 5 Am. St. Rep. 527.

So far as proceeds of a fraudulent conveyance go to purchase of other lands by the grantee, such lands can be subjected to debts of grantor. Heath v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 65, 46 S. W. 123.
A creditor held to have no cause of action against one who has converted property conveyed to him by the debtor in fraud of creditors. William J. Lemp Brewing Co. v. La Rose (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 460.

A deed executed by an insolvent, without intent to defraud, for a consideration less than the market value, should be treated as a mortgage for the actual sum paid. Schuster v. Foll, 23 C. A. 206, 54 S. W. 777.

Disbursements by fraudulent grantee cannot be recovered of creditor who procures conveyance to be set aside. Cooper v. Friedman, 23 C. A. 555, 57 S. W. 581.

A grantee of a bankrupt's land fraudulently conveyed held not entitled to an allowance for improvements made by him. McWilliams v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 596.

Fraudulent grantees of land subject to constructive trust in hands of grantor held to take the land subject to the trust, so that a conveyance to an innocent purchaser rendered the fraudulent grantees liable for the value of the land to the estatuque trust. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 380, 84 S. W. 417.

A bona fide purchaser for value held not chargeable with fraud, though the vendor was insolvent. Kopperl v. Standard Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 1169.

Garnishee held liable for value of piling received from third person to whom defendant had made a sham transfer. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 844.

In action for conversion of goods taken under attachment against third person, whether transfer of land in another state was fraudulent as to creditors held immaterial; the question being whether goods taken in exchange belonged to attachment debtor or plaintiff. Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 433.

In direct proceeding against purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor with intent to defraud creditors, cannot obtain a personal judgment unless he has obtained a lien upon such goods. McIntosh & Warren v. Ossowo Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

In direct proceeding against garnishee, held that judgment could not be rendered for goods sold as trustee for the estate of the assignor to whom he purchased the goods from the debtor in good faith, and had none of the goods in his possession when the garnishment writ was served. Id.

Though defendant purchased the property of an insolvent with the intention of enabling the judgment creditor to defeat the plaintiff's lien, where it has been rescinded and cannot be regained by the plaintiff, plaintiff cannot recover a personal judgment, under this article; the statute merely invalidating the sale and authorizing the creditor to seize the property. May v. Merchants' & Planters' Nat. Bank of Mt. Vernon (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 1194.

Recovery of property.—The re-conveyance of property held in trust is not fraudulent. Peck v. Jones, 10 C. A. 325, 30 S. W. 352. See Betts v. Weir Flow Co., 84 T. 543, 19 S. W. 705.

Where the fraudulent grantee re-conveyed to the grantor, held that the latter was not estopped to assert title as against creditors of the fraudulent grantee, who gave the credit on the faith of the fraudulent grantee's ownership of the property. Biccochi v. Casey-Swasey Co., 91 T. 259, 42 S. W. 963, 66 Am. St. Rep. 875.

Assignments for creditors.—See Title 9.

Registration.—See Title 118, Chapter 3.

Remedies of incumbered property.—Debtor, seeking to enforce right to redeem incumbered property bid in by secured creditor, as arising from creditor's estoppel, held not guilty of fraud toward other creditors, precluding exercise of right. First Nat. Bank v. Moore Co., 40 C. A. 476, 79 S. W. 53.

Debtor's intent, in arranging with creditor, secured by trust deed, to bid in property and hold it subject to debtor's right of redemption, to defraud other creditors, held not to prevent his enforcement of the agreement. Id.

Rights of mortgagor's creditors.—A designation to the agent of a mortgagee, of property conveyed by the mortgagee, which remained in the mortgagee's possession mingled with other property, held to sufficiently identify such property as against creditors. Avery v. Fopper (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 951.

A creditor of a mortgagor of part of a herd of animals purchasing at his own execution sale is charged with notice of the mortgagor's right to designate which of the animals shall be subject to the lien. Id.

Cancellation of fraudulent conveyance.—A deed made to defraud creditors, which was never delivered, though recorded by one having no authority to do so, will be canceled at suit of administrator of the grantor dying in possession. Blackman v. Schier, 91 C. A. 517, 61 S. W. 856.

Remedies of creditor.—A creditor may follow property conveyed in fraud of creditors rather than foreclose his lien on property taken in payment thereof. Holloway Seed Co. v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 77.

The judgment creditor of a fraudulent vendor may sue to set aside the conveyance, or he may levy on the land and sell it for the payment of his debt, and in the latter case the purchaser at execution sale takes the title. Rutherford v. Carr, 99 T. 101, 87 S. W. 815.

Under the facts, held, that goods purchased by the sheriff, and paid for out of the proceeds of sale of the original goods could not be taken by a levy and sale under execution issued on a judgment against the vendor and in favor of a defrauded creditor. Guyton v. Chasen, 46 C. A. 354, 101 S. W. 290.

Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 203.

Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to show that certain deeds by debtors were not fraudulent as to creditor. Duveneck v. Kutzer, 17 C. A. 577, 43 S. W. 641.

Evidence held sufficient to show knowledge of the fraudulent intent of the mortgagor by the agent of mortgagees. Frost v. Mason, 17 C. A. 455, 44 S. W. 63.
Evidence concerning a sale from defendant considered, and sale held fraudulent, regarding value as the property. Bogard v. Brown (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 862.

Evidence held sufficient to support verdict that defendant was not indebted to debentor in any amount. Matula v. Lane, 22 C. A. 391, 55 S. W. 504.

Evidence of good faith of conveyance held insufficient to warrant setting aside verdict of jury finding same fraudulent as to creditors. Bruce v. Koch (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 189.

Evidence that held to sustain finding that deed to son was made in fraud of creditors.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to sustain a finding that a transfer of the land by a judgment debtor was fraudulent as against plaintiff. Tinley v. Corbett, 27 C. A. 651, 66 S. W. 910.

In an action by a creditor to recover land claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed, facts held not to authorize an instruction that the sale was fraudulent as a matter of law. Wyman v. Robertson, 33 C. A. 131, 71 S. W. 655.

Evidence held to establish that an attempted sale of a merchant's stock of goods was fraudulent as against his creditors. R. G. Blossman & Co. v. Friske, 33 C. A. 191, 76 S. W. 72.

Evidence held sufficient to have sustained finding that agreement permitting debtor to redeem incumbered property was not in fraud of other creditors. First Nat. Bank v. Moor, 34 C. A. 476, 79 S. W. 63.

A sale of cotton held not fraudulent as to creditors of the vendor under the evidence.

Sparks v. Ponder, 42 C. A. 431, 94 S. W. 428.

Under the facts held a conveyance was fraudulent. Stitt v. Stone, 47 C. A. 93, 103 S. W. 1192.

A recited consideration in comparison with value of land held so small as that it might well be held to furnish sufficient evidence of malice fide. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 605, 109 S. W. 909.

Where concert of action between an alleged creditor and the judgment defendant appears to defeat a prior deed by the judgment defendant as in fraud of creditors, there should be some further proof of the indebtedness than the judgment against defendant. Id.

Evidence in an action wherein plaintiffs attached land claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed to defendant debtor's wife and claimed by the debtor and his wife as a homestead held to sustain a verdict for defendants. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Burge, 49 C. A. 599, 110 S. W. 181.

FRAUDULENT.

FRAUD.

FRAUDULENT.

Evidence held insufficient to show that an alleged fraudulent conveyance was made by a debtor for the bona fide purpose of paying his creditors. Id.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to show that plaintiff's grantor did not convey property to plaintiff with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud defendant, who held the property as an attaching creditor, under this article, and that plaintiff had no notice of the fraudulent intent of his grantor, if there was any such intent. Folkes v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 958.

Evidence in garnishment held to justify a finding that a sale by defendant to a third person without notice of the claim, that the facts were known to the agent of the garnishee. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

Evidence in a suit involving right to sell land on execution held to sustain findings that there had not been a fraudulent conveyance. Todd & Hurley v. Garner (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

In an action to cancel a deed as in fraud of creditors, evidence held insufficient to show notice of grantor's alleged fraudulent intent. Starkey v. H. O. Wooten Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 692.

In an action to cancel a deed as in fraud of creditors, evidence held insufficient to show lack of consideration. Id.

Evidence, in an action to set aside a conveyance as in fraud of creditors, held sufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. McIlroy v. Stone (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 944.

Art. 3967. [2545] [2466] Voluntary conveyances.—Every gift, conveyance, assignment, transfer or charge made by a debtor, which is not upon consideration deemed valuable in law, shall be void as to prior creditors, unless it appears that such debtor was then possessed of property within this state subject to execution sufficient to pay his existing debts; but such gift, conveyance, assignment, transfer or charge shall not on that account merely be void as to subsequent creditors, and though it be decreed to be void as to a prior creditor, because voluntary, it shall not for that cause be decreed to be void as to subsequent creditors or purchasers. [P. D. 3876, 3877.]

Transactions between husband and wife.—A deed from the husband conveyed property which the wife had attempted at a former time to convey without being joined by him. Her conveyance recited a consideration of $1,500 received by her, and this deed was referred to in a subsequent conveyance by the husband, although his deed recited a nominal consideration. Held, in proceedings by a creditor attacking the deed from the husband, that prima facie it was based on a consideration deemed valuable in law. Deutsch v. Allen, 57 T. 88.

Where at the time of a gift by a husband to his wife the husband had lands subject to execution in excess of his indebtedness, such gift is valid. Nor can such gift be avoided by a subsequent creditor by merely showing that it was without consideration. Terry v. Winter, 71 T. 592, 9 S. W. 672.

Deed of gift from a husband to wife held fraudulent as to community creditors. New England Loan & Trust Co. v. Avery (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 673.

For a gift to a wife by improvements on her separate property with community money, the judgment against the husband and another must be shown that judgment creditor was his creditor at time of gift, that the debt exists, and that the gift was fraudulent, all the judgment debtors being insolvent, and remedies at law exhausted. Maddox v. Summerlin (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1020.

Evidence that a husband was insolvent at the time of a conveyance to his wife, in an action to subject the property to his debts. Gonzales v. Adoue (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 543.

Facts held not to show that a creditor's indebtedness was a continuing debt, as to entitle him to sue to set aside a voluntary conveyance by the debtor to his wife. Gonzales v. Adoue, 94 T. 120, 58 S. W. 951.

A warranty deed of land from a husband to his wife cannot be adjudged to be a conveyance in trust for a subsequent conveyance at the suit of a subsequent creditor, unless it is clearly shown that the terms of the deed do not express the real transaction and that the wife accepted the conveyance as in trust. O'Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 545.

Conveyance by an insolvent held not fraudulent as to plaintiff as a gift of property subject to Sturgis Bank's debt. Moulton v. Sturgis, 84 S. W. 1114.

Husband held not to have been indebted to his wife, and assignment of rent executed by him in trust for her benefit held void as to creditors. Grevils v. Smith, 29 C. A. 150, 68 S. W. 291.

An instruction that a husband's gift of exempt property to his wife is good, unless made with intent to defraud his creditors, held error. McClelland v. Barnard, 36 C. A. 118, 81 S. W. 591.

A creditor of a husband whose debt had been discharged in bankruptcy held not entitled to object that a subsequent gift of money by the husband to his wife was invalid. Sparks v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 740.

A husband's conveyance to his wife, in consideration of love and affection, vested the legal title in her, subject to prior incumbrances and existing debts, if he was insolvent. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921.

Money saved by a wife from money allowed her by her husband for household expenses amounted to a gift from the husband as against his creditors. Zuckerman v. Mullen, 48 C. A. 357, 107 S. W. 78.

A direct gift by a husband to his wife held not absolutely void because existing creditors of the husband will be without means to satisfy their claims. Sullivan v. Fant, 61 C. A. 116, 119 S. W. 607.

On the issue whether a gift by a debtor to his wife was made with the intent to defraud his creditors, evidence held not to show that he did not have other property remaining sufficient to satisfy his creditors, rendering the gift valid. Id.

Where conveyance to a wife by a husband intended by him to be a fraud on creditors depends on whether or not he had sufficient property remaining to satisfy his creditors. Id.

A bill of sale of corporate stock by a husband to his wife, made to defraud his creditors, and not in satisfaction of a valid debt, does not pass the title to the wife, as he knew of his fraudulent purpose. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 221.

Where a husband and wife lived together, the fact that he retained possession of land which he conveyed to her is of little force in determining whether the transaction was valid, Releff v. Porter, 55 C. A. 395, 188 S. W. 14.

An agreement between husband and wife, whereby the wife shall have as her separate property certain cattle and their increase, to be branded as hers, cannot control the statute defining community property, and the agreement can be given no greater effect than to vest in the wife a separate right to all the cattle branded prior to the husband's failure. If, any, to be possessed of sufficient property to pay existing debts, and the branding of cattle thereafter is as against existing creditors a gift only. Cone v. Belcher, 57 C. A. 493, 124 S. W. 149.

Where defendant conveyed property to another, for the purpose of having it conveyed to his wife, in order to prevent it from being subjected for his debts, his wife would hold the property in trust for defendant, even if it was conveyed in terms to her separate use. Du Perier v. Du Perier (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 197.

Where a husband conveyed his homestead through another to his wife to prevent his creditors from attempting to subject it for debts, but did not intend to abandon his homestead, the husband's intention in conveying was not in fraud of creditors, and would not prevent him from recovering it from his wife as trust property. Id.

To enable third persons to attack a deed of gift from husband to wife on the ground that it was without consideration, they must have been creditors of the husband when the conveyance was made. Kane v. Kuehn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 352.

Where a husband gave his wife title to personal property in fraud of his creditors, he could not recover title from her. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Where an insolvent's wife had not conspired with her husband to conceal community funds invested in improvements on her property, and had not contracted to pay for the improvements, she was not personally liable to his creditors to the amount of funds so invested. Kane v. Ammerman (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 818.

Effect of gift by insolvent debtor.—A gift by an insolvent debtor is void as to prior creditors, but not necessarily so as to subsequent creditors. Dosche v. Nette, 51 T. 265, 14 S. W. 1015.

As to pre-existing debts, the gift is by the statute prima facie void, and the property is subject to the payment of the debts of the donor unless the donee should make it appear that he was, at the time the gift was made, possessed of property within this state subject to execution sufficient to pay his existing debts. Maddox v. Summerlin, 92 T. 483, 49 S. W. 1033.

A voluntary deed, made in contemplation of insolvency, but not recorded or delivered for more than a year, is fraudulent as to a creditor the debt to whom was contracted in the meantime. Owen v. Foley, 30 C. A. 86, 69 S. W. 811.

A voluntary conveyance is invalid against the grantor’s creditors without reference to knowledge or want of it on the part of the grantee of the grantor’s indebtedness. Clark v. Bell, 40 C. A. 39, 89 S. W. 38.

Under this article, a gift of land subject to vendee's lien notes given by the vendee is void as to the absence of a showing that the purchaser had property remaining after the conveyance, sufficient to pay his debts. Shannon v. Butterly (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 853.

Right of subsequent creditors to avoid gift.—One in possession of land under a parol gift, claiming it as his own, and who afterwards receives a deed for the same, cannot be affected by the claim of a creditor of the donor when the credit was extended after the date of the parol gift and after actual occupancy of the donee. Willis v. McIntyre, 70 T. 34, 7 S. W. 594, 8 Am. St. Rep. 574.

While a mere voluntary conveyance cannot be attacked by subsequent creditors, yet where such conveyance is shown to have been made with intent to defraud a creditor, such creditor can attack the conveyance, and on showing such fraud the conveyance will be set aside and the property subjected to the judgment. Cole v. Terrell, 71 T. 549, 9 S. W. 665.

Where a party, engaged in unlawfully cutting timber upon the lands of another, shows to have contemplated a continuance of such trespasses, makes a voluntary conveyance of all his property, such facts are sufficient to support a finding of the fraudulent intent, and to avoid the conveyance in favor of the owner of the land upon which such trespasses were committed. Id.

A trust conveyance by a husband and wife, though voluntary or made with intent to defraud the husband’s existing creditors, cannot be impeached by subsequent creditors without proof (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 846.

A deed of gift by an insolvent to his wife, fraudulent as to his creditors, is not fraudulent as to a subsequent creditor, unless made with a view of contracting the subsequent debt and intent to defraud such creditor. O’Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 845.

Where a husband purchased lots in the name of his wife, and for her benefit, and erected improvements thereon, his subsequent creditors could not sue to subject such property to the payment of the claims. Kane v. Ammerman (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 815.

Right of agent to avoid gift.—An agent through whom a gift is being effectuated cannot, after title has vested in him for that purpose, have the gift declared void, where the effect would be to enable him to keep the property for himself. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 607.

Art. 3968. [2546] Gift of goods, etc.—No gift of any goods or chattels shall be valid unless by deed or will, duly acknowledged or proven up and recorded, or unless actual possession shall have come to, and remained with, the donee or some one claiming under him. [P. D. 3876.]

What are “goods and chattels.”—This article does not apply to an interest in real estate, and a transfer by will of a deed duly proved and recorded in another state, where the property was situated and by the laws of which the title had vested. Lafferty v. Murray, 27 T. 372; Evans v. Murray, 27 T. 383. See Chevalier v. Wilson, 1 T. 161; Dutrell v. Noble, 14 T. 640; Hillard v. Frantz, 21 T. 192.

The conveyance of money in a bank are not “goods or chattels.” They are choses in action. They are an evidence of incorporeal rights, and not in such action corporeal property. A gift of them is not within the meaning of this article. Cowen v. First Nat. Bank, 94 T. 547, 63 S. W. 555.

A father holding three notes made by his son, dictated a letter to the son stating that he had given the first note to a daughter, the second to another son, and the third to the son addressed, but this writing was not acknowledged or proven up and recorded. Held, that the words “goods and chattels” did not include choses in action, and that the writing, though not acknowledged or proven, was sufficient to constitute a valid gift of the note. Schauer v. Von Schauer (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 145.

Requisites of gifts.—Where a letter from a son to his mother, referring to the collection of notes which he held against his sister, was so indefinite and unintelligible that it could not be determined from the instrument as it stood whether a gift was intended or whether the son merely gave directions concerning the collection, the instrument cannot be given a meaning by changing the words and punctuation marks. Merchants v. Rogan (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 956.

Delivery.—This article indicates the exclusion of a symbolical delivery or a constructive possession, and the mere act of placing a brand on a calf is not sufficient to constitute a valid gift to an infant. Love v. Hudson, 24 C. A. 377, 59 S. W. 1128.

In marking and branding by a father for his minor children cattle which were running on the range with a large herd belonging to himself and others, there was all the delivery the law required, the circumstances under which it was equivalent to an actual delivery, and nothing more is required by this article to sustain a parol gift. Coke & Reardon v. Ikard, 29 C. A. 409, 87 S. W. 869.

A parol gift is void unless actual possession of the property comes to and remains with the donee. Eldridge v. McDow, 46 C. A. 270, 102 S. W. 433.

Under this article, and Art. 7160 providing that no cattle brands, except such as are recorded, shall be recognized as any evidence of ownership, no title passed to cattle which were branded with a peculiar brand by the owner pursuant to his express intention that they and their issue should belong to his niece where the latter never had actual possession of the cattle which continued to run on the donor's range and to be looked after by him, and the brand was not recorded. Eldridge v. McDow (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 516.

Art. 3969. [2547] [2468] Loan of chattels.—Where any loan of goods or chattels shall be pretended to have been made to any person with whom, or those claiming under him, possession shall have remained for the space of two years without demand made and pursued by due process of law on the part of the pretended lender; or when any reservation or limitation shall be pretended to have been made of a use of property, by way of condition, reversion, remainder or otherwise in goods and chattels, the possession whereof shall have remained in another as aforesaid, the same shall be taken as to the creditors and purchasers, of the persons aforesaid so remaining in possession, to be fraudulent within this chapter, and that the absolute property is with the possession, unless such loan, reservation or limitation of use of property were declared by will, or by deed or other instrument in writing, duly acknowledged or proved and recorded.

Loan defined.—The provisions of this statute apply to loans, etc., only. A transaction which does not contemplate the return of specific property and that its use should be gratuitous is not a loan. Templeman v. Gibbs, 24 S. W. 721, 86 T. 358.
The word "loan" means a gratuitous bailment, only such creditors can invoke the statute as have acquired a lien on the particular property. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675.
The purpose of this article is to render chattels subject to it when possessed under the circumstances pointed out by it; and by "loan" is meant where the owner places some specific thing in the hands of a borrower to be used by him without compensation, but at some future time to be returned. Woodward v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 77, 78.

Law of limitation.—This article is a law of limitation as well as of registration, and the lender can recover the property by proceedings instituted within two years, as prescribed by the statute. City National Bank v. Tufts, 63 T. 112.

Application of article to liens reserved.—This article applies to loans of chattels exclusively and has no bearing upon liens reserved. Eason v. Garrison & Kelly, 36 C. A. 574, 82 S. W. 891.

Exception of property held under will.—This statute by its terms excepts property held under a will declaring the purpose of its use. Even if this were not true, it could not be given the effect to divest the principal of title to property held by an agent at the suit of the agent's creditors. The application of the statute is limited to the condition stated therein. Cox v. Patten (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 64.

Allowing firm to deal with goods as its own.—The owner of a stock of goods intrusting it to a firm, and allowing it to deal with the goods as its own, held estopped as to creditors of the firm from claiming the goods. Holder v. Shelby (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 599.

Art. 3970. [2548] Chattel mortgage void, when.—Every mortgage, deed of trust or other form of lien attempted to be given by the owner of any stock of goods, wares or merchandise daily exposed to sale, in parcels, in the regular course of the business of such merchandise, and contemplating a continuance of the possession of said goods and control of said business, by sale of said goods by said owner, shall be deemed fraudulent and void. [Acts 1879, p. 60.]

Old Art. 2549 was same as old Art. 3327, and will be found as Art. 5654.

Validity of mortgage in general.—When a mortgage of goods is executed with a secret agreement that the grantor should remain in the possession of the goods and sell them, and he did so remain in possession with the consent of the grantee, and they were by him exposed for sale, the instrument is within the prohibition. National Bank of Texas v. Lovenberg, 63 T. 588; Duncan v. Taylor, 63 T. 646.

A chattel mortgage of a stock of goods which by its terms provides that the mort-gator shall retain possession of them and expose and sell them at retail, replenishing the stock by purchase on credit from time to time from the mortgagee, and accounting to him for their cost and a former indebtedness, as to creditors void. Wilber v. Krat. 72 T. 533, 11 S. W. 540. But it is not void as between the parties. Brewing Ass'n v. Manufacturing Co., 81 T. 95, 18 S. W. 797.

Purchase of entire stock.—This article is not applicable to a purchase of the dealer's whole stock in trade, such as lumber, where the purchaser assumes payment of a debt which is a charge on the dealer's property. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 298.

Mortgage of part of goods.—Mortgage of a part only of a stock of goods is fraudulent and void. B. F. Avery & Sons v. Waples, 19 C. A. 672, 49 S. W. 151.

Security for purchase price.—In a sale of goods by a manufacturer to a retail merchant by a written contract wherein it is stipulated that the goods remained the property of the manufacturer until settled for in the manner provided in the contract: Held, that the provisions of the above article do not apply to such goods. Bowen v. Lansing Wagon Works, 91 T. 385, 43 S. W. 872.

This article does not apply to a contest between the parties to a mortgage in which other creditors have no interest. Parker v. Bank (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 1071.

Art. 3971. Merchandise, sales in bulk, void when, etc., unless, etc.—Any sale or transfer of any portion of a stock of merchandise, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade in the usual and regular prosecution of the seller's or transferrer's business, or a sale or transfer of an entire stock of merchandise in bulk, shall be void as against creditors of the seller or transferrer, unless the purchaser or transferee shall, at least ten days before the sale or transfer, in good faith, make full and explicit inquiry of the seller or transferrer as to the name and place of residence or place of business of each and all creditors of the seller transferrer, and the amount owing to each such creditor by the seller or transferrer, and obtain from the seller or transferrer a written answer to such inquiries, which answers shall be sworn to by the seller or transferrer, and unless the purchaser or transferee, at least ten days before the sale or transfer, in good faith, notify or cause to be notified personally, or by registered mail, each of the seller's or transferrer's creditors, of whom the purchaser or transferee has knowledge, of said proposed sale or transfer. [Acts 1909, p. 66.]

See Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

Construction.—This article gives no preference to any class of creditors, and provides no special remedy for the collection of debts, but leaves each creditor to pursue such course as he may elect; nor does it prefer wholesale merchants as creditors. Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874.

Where a trustee of a stock of goods belonging to an insolvent, preferring certain creditors to the exclusion of others, sold the stock, the sale was void under this article. Terrell Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 671.

Constitutionality.—Under Const. art. 1, § 19, providing that no citizen shall be deprived of life, property, liberty, privileges, or immunities, except by due course of law, this article is invalid, unless it is a reasonable regulation in the exercise of the police power. Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874.

This article does not place unreasonable limitations on the power and rights of sellers of merchandise; but it is a reasonable regulation governing selling debtors, and is valid. Id.

The title of purchaser.—Under this article, assuming its validity, the purchaser of a dealer's entire stock in trade, as against the creditors of the seller, acquired no title to the goods until the payment of the debts owing on the goods and paid by him. McIntosh v. Warren v. Owosso Carriage & Sleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 239.

Purchaser not personally liable.—See notes under Art. 3972.

Art. 3972. Purchaser conforming to provisions, not accountable.—Any purchaser or transferee who shall conform to the provisions of article 3971 shall not in any way be held accountable to any creditor of the seller or transferrer for any of the goods, wares or merchandise that have come into the possession of said purchaser or transferree by virtue of such sale or transfer. [Id. sec. 2.]

See Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874.

Purchaser not personally liable.—A purchaser of a stock in bulk, without complying with the Bulk Sales Law, is not liable to a creditor who has not acquired a lien; no personal liability being created by either section 1 or 2 of such law. Bewley v. Sima (Civ.
App.) 146 S. W. 1076.

Art. 3973. Not applicable in what cases.—Nothing in articles 3971 and 3972 shall apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers or any public officer conducting a sale in his official capacity, nor to a sale or transfer of stocks of merchandise for the payment of bona fide debts, where all creditors share equally and without preference in the sale or transfer or the proceeds thereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

See Nash Hardware Co. v. Morris, 105 T. 217, 146 S. W. 874.
TITLE 63
GAME, FISH, OYSTERS, ETC.

CHAPTER ONE GAME, FISH AND OYSTER COMMISSIONER

Article 3974. Office created.—The office of game, fish and oyster commissioner is hereby created, and the governor is hereby authorized to appoint a competent person as game, fish and oyster commissioner for the state of Texas. [Acts 1895, p. 70.]

Article 3975. Qualifications of.—The person appointed to the office of game, fish and oyster commissioner shall be a citizen of the United States and a resident of the state of Texas. He must be familiar with the habits of game, fish and oysters and have some knowledge of navigation. [Acts 1899, p. 312. Acts 1895, p. 70.]

Article 3976. Office, where kept.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall have his office in the state capitol in the city of Austin, Texas, during the term of his office, which shall be for two years. [Acts 1911, p. 62, sec. 1. Explanatory.—Acts 1911, p. 62, sec. 1, amends Art. 2510 of Chapter 175 of the acts of the regular session of the twenty-sixth legislature, as to read as above. Section 2 repeals laws in conflict, etc.]

Article 3977. Oath and bond.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall file with the secretary of state a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by the secretary of state, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, conditioned that he will faithfully perform the duties of his office; and he shall take the oath prescribed for sheriffs; and, when he shall have filed said bond and taken said oath, he shall enter upon the duties of said office. Said bond shall not be void on the first recovery, but may be sued on from time to time in the name of the state or any person injured until the whole amount has been recovered. [Acts 1895, p. 70.]

Article 3978. Seal.—The said commissioner shall have a seal, consisting of a star with five points, together with the words “Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner of Texas.” [Acts 1895, p. 70.]

Article 3979. General duties and powers.—The duties of the game, fish and oyster commissioner are the execution of the game, fish and oyster laws of this state. In the execution of these laws, he shall exercise the powers and authority given to sheriffs by the laws of this state. [Acts 1895, p. 70. Acts 1905, pp. 128–129.]
CHAPTER TWO

FISH, OYSTERS, ETC.

Art. 3980. Public rivers, etc., property of state, etc.; under jurisdiction of commissioner, etc.—All of the public rivers, bayous, lagoons, lakes, bays and inlets in this state and all that part of the gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of this state, together with their beds and bottoms, and all of the products thereof, shall be, continue and remain the property of the state of Texas, except so far as their use shall be permitted by the laws of this state. So far as this use shall relate to the fish and oyster industry, the state game, fish and oyster commissioner shall have jurisdiction and control thereof according to the authority vested in him by the fish and oyster laws of this state. [Acts 1905, p. 129.]

Right to take oysters in public waters.—The right to take oysters in public waters of the state is not a privilege subject to the bestowal by the state on whom it pleases, but a public right of all the citizens. Gustafson v. State, 40 Cr. R. 67, 48 S. W. 518, 4 L. R. A. 615.

Ownership of fish in artificial lake.—Fish confined in an artificial lake belong to the owner of the land covered by the water in which they are found. Fin & Feather Club v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 150.

Defendant held liable for the value of fish willfully brought through fish traps from a portion of an artificial lake belonging to plaintiff into the part belonging to defendant. Id.

Art. 3981. [2518] Private and public oyster beds defined.—All oyster beds shall be public or private; all not designated private shall be public. All natural oyster beds and oyster reefs of this state shall be deemed public, and a natural oyster bed shall be declared to exist when as many as five barrels of oysters may be found therein within twenty-five hundred square feet of any position of said reef or bed; and any lands covered by water containing less oysters than the above amount shall be subject to location at the discretion of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, but this shall not apply to a reef or bed that has been exhausted within a period of eight years. [Acts 1907, p. 236. Acts 1899, p. 314. Acts 1895, p. 70.]

Art. 3982. [2518] Riparian rights prescribed.—Whenever any creek, bayou, lake or cove shall be included within the metes and bounds of any original grant or location in this State, the lawful occupant of such grant or location shall have the exclusive right to use said creek, lake, bayou, or cove for gathering, planting or sewing oysters, within the metes and bounds of the official grant or patent of said land. Provided, that the fish and oyster commissioner may require the owner of oysters produced on such lands when offered for sale to make an affidavit that such oysters were produced on his land. No person shall locate water or ground covered with water for planting oysters along any bay shore in this state nearer than 100 yards from the shore. [Acts 1913, p. 297, sec. 1.]

"An Act to amend articles 3982, 3983, 3984, 3986, 3987, 3988, 3990, 3992, 3995, 3998, 3999, 4004, 4005, 4006, 4008, 4009, 4013, 4014, 4016, 4019, and to repeal articles 4020 and 4021, of chapter 2, title 63, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, so as to provide better protection of the fish and oyster industries of this state, prescribing riparian rights, the prerequisites to the issuance of license to catch fish, oysters, etc.; providing for examination of location, surveys, etc., permit to gather seed oysters and to whom and by whom granted, the distribution of fines collected and the disposition of funds; the methods of sale, nets, etc., and providing the prerequisites for permission to sell and conditions upon which permission may be granted to use dredges on reefs, providing for deputy fish and oyster commissioners and defining and describing certain duties of the game, fish and oyster commissioner and his deputies, and declaring an emergency.

"Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Texas:

"Section 1. That articles 3982, 3983, 3984, 3986, 3987, 3988, 3990, 3992, 3995, 3998, 3999, 4004, 4005, 4006, 4008, 4009, 4013, 4014, 4016, 4019, of chapter 2, title 63 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1911, be and the same are hereby amended so as to hereafter read as follows:"

Following section 1 appear 38 articles, numbered consecutively 3982 to 4019, both inclusive. Of the articles of the new act 3982 to 4011 both inclusive, correspond in subject-matter to the corresponding articles of the Revised Statutes; 4012 embraces the subject-matter of Arts. 4012 and 4013 of the Revised Statutes; 4013 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4014 of the Revised Statutes; 4014 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4015 of the Revised Statutes; 4015 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4016 of the Revised Statutes; 4016 embraces the subject-matter of Art. 4018 of the Revised Statutes; and 4017, 4018, and 4019 introduce new matters.

If the title and the enacting clause is sufficient to supersede those articles of the Revised Statutes not specifically enumerated, all those articles are dispensed with, except 4017 and 4019 as to which there is no corresponding subject-matter in the new act.

The last-named articles have been retained in this compilation. As far as possible the articles of the new act have been given the numbers which they bore in the same or in a modified form in the Revised Statutes. All of the articles of the new act have been placed in this compilation.

Art. 3983. [2514] Special tax on fish, turtle, terrapin, oysters and shrimp taken from the public coast waters.—For the purpose of protecting the fish and improving the natural oyster reefs and protecting both the natural reefs and private oyster beds and to carry out the fish and oyster laws of the state of Texas and as one of the conditions upon which the state consents to the taking or removing of fish from her waters, or to the fishing or removal of oysters from her natural reefs, or the use and rental of her water bottoms for oyster propagating purposes there shall be and is hereby levied a special tax of one-fifth of one cent per pound on all fish, turtle, terrapin and shrimp taken for market from the public waters within the jurisdiction of this state and a tax of two cents per barrel on each and every barrel of oysters gathered from the said waters of this state, whether from the natural reefs or private oyster beds for sale or shipment, provided that oysters taken from any waters for bedding purposes shall not be subject to this Act until again taken up for sale or shipment. This special tax shall be paid to the fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, by the persons bringing said fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters to market, whether he be the person who fished said products or his agent, before he shall be allowed to sell same or to consign same to any other party for sale, shipment or storage, and the fish and oyster commissioner may fix times of the day at which inspection and permits shall be made and granted.

For all purposes mentioned in this title a barrel of oysters shall be deemed and taken to consist of three boxes of oysters of the following dimensions: ten inches wide by twenty inches long and thirteen and one-half inches deep inside measurement and rounded off to a height of two and one-half inches in center above the top of the box. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Constitutionality of act.—This article, and Arts. 3985 and 3986, are not unconstitutional, though the title to the act amending them only refers to the sections amended and does not state the subject of the act. If the articles amended are sufficiently identified by reference in the title, and the articles amended themselves sufficiently indicate the purposes of the amendment, the title of the amendment is sufficient. It is not required that the title should serve as an index to the various provisions of the act. Raymond v. Kibbe, 43 C. A. 209, 95 S. W. 728.

Art. 3984. Registration of fish boats, etc., in public waters; application; certificate; fees; marking boats, and providing who shall fish.—Any person who is a citizen of the United States wishing to use a boat in catching or taking fish, green turtle, terrapin or shrimp or gathering oysters for market in the public waters of this state, in accordance with the provisions of the fish and oyster laws of this state, shall apply to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputies for permission to do so. Such applicant will furnish said officer under oath his name, place of residence, the name and kind of boat to be used by him, together with the number of men to be employed by him, thereupon the officer shall register such boat, which register number shall be distinctly painted on each side of the bow of such boat, for which registration he shall pay the said officer one dollar and fifty cents and the said officer shall furnish the applicant with a certificate of such registration. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3985. [2514] Permit to sell, with receipts of seizure and sale; proceeds, how disposed of.—When the special tax provided for in article 3983 of this chapter has been paid, it shall be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, receiving the tax, to give a receipt for same, together with a permit authorizing the holder thereof to dispose of the products on which the special tax has been paid. A duplicate of which receipt and permit shall be retained in the office of said commissioner issuing same. This permit shall be given by the person delivering said products to the person, firm or corporation to whom the products mentioned therein shall be sold or delivered for sale, shipment or storage. Any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters found in the possession of any packer, buyer or commission man, for the disposition of which he can not show the state's permit, shall continue the property of the state, and may be seized by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or any of his deputies, and sold, the proceeds thereof to go to the fish and oyster fund of the state. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Constitutionality of act.—See notes under Art. 3983.

Art. 3986. [2518k] License to catch or take fish, oysters, etc.; prerequisites to issue of.—Any captain or master of any boat wishing to engage in the business of catching or taking any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters from the waters of the state for market shall, before engaging in such business, secure from the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, a license granting to him permission to take from the waters of the state, fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters; provided, that the licensee in exercising the privilege named in this license shall at all times be governed by the fish and oyster laws of this state, for the purpose of obtaining this license the person desiring same must make written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or one of his deputies in which he, the applicant, shall set forth under oath that he is a citizen of the United States, the name, class and register number of his boat. If the application be for a license to use seines and nets, the applicant shall state the number, class and length of the seines and nets to be used by him and if the application be for a license to gather oysters, he must state the number of tongs to be used by him and the applicant shall also agree that because of the privilege he shall receive from the state of Texas of taking fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters from her waters, all such products at all times shall be subject to inspection by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or any of his deputies, and that said application shall authorize said commissioner or any of his deputies to enter at any time the boat or any house where he, the applicant, may have such products stored and inspect same; and he, the applicant, shall further agree to pay to the state of Texas a special tax provided for in article 3983 of the fish and oyster laws. This application having been duly executed and handed to the game, fish and oyster commissioners, or any of his deputies accompanied by the applicant’s registration certificate and the fee for the license applied for, it shall thereupon be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or the deputy receiving the same, to issue to the applicant a license to engage in the business set forth in his application and license shall be subject to such limitations and control as is herein prescribed and as is or may be prescribed by the criminal laws of this state. Said license must be signed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, stamped with the seal of office and state the name of the licensee, name and class of his boat and the date of issuance.
Such license shall be for twelve months if for fishing for fish, turtle or shrimp, and from September the 1st to April the 1st following the date of license if for gathering oysters; and from August the 1st to May the 1st if granted for the purpose of catching terrapins, and for said license the applicant shall pay the sum of one dollar, the license so issued shall be kept on the boat subject to the inspection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or any of his deputies, and it shall not be good for any other person nor on any other boat than the original named therein without the consent of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, having first been had, which consent or assignment shall be written across the face of said license: provided, that if at any time such licensed captain or master of a boat shall violate any of the fish and oyster laws of this state, or shall at any time refuse to comply with any provisions made in this application for license, the game, fish and oyster commissioner is authorized to cancel said license and the boat registration certificate, notice of which shall be given by the fish and oyster commissioner in writing and delivered to the license. Any person wishing to engage in the taking or catching of any fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters for market as the employé of a crew of any reg-
Art. 3986  GAME, FISH, OYSTERS, ETC.  (Title 63)

istered boat, shall procure a license in the same manner and character as the captain or master of any registered boat engaged in taking or catching fish, turtle, terrapin, shrimp or oysters for market, provided that one license so issued under this article shall authorize the licensee to engage in taking or catching of any of the products named herein.  [Id.]

See notes under Art. 3982.

Art. 3987.  Licenses to wholesale dealers in fish and oysters; wholesale dealer defined.—For the better protection of the fish and oyster industry, any person, firm, or corporation engaged in or who may engage in the business of wholesale dealer or dealers in fish or oysters shall on or before the first day of September of each year secure from the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, a license granting such person, firm or corporation permission to engage in said occupation.  A wholesale dealer in the meaning of this Act is on who is engaged in the fish or oyster business as a dealer supplying the wholesale or retail [retail] trade by sales of quantities of fifty pounds or more of fish, or oysters in quantities or lots of five barrels or more, provided, one who has a license under article 3986 and pays the tax of one-fifth of one per cent per pound on fish caught and sold shall not be considered a wholesale dealer.  Provided, that two gallons of shucked oysters shall be considered a barrel of oysters.  [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3988.  Application for license; requisites; agreement for inspection, record, forfeiture, etc.—For the purpose of obtaining a wholesale dealer's license, the applicant desiring same, shall make written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or one of his deputies in which he, the applicant shall set forth under oath if so required that he is a citizen of the United States and that he does because of the privilege for which he applies for from the state of Texas, agree that all products bought or sold or had for sale by him shall at all times be subject to the inspection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or any of his deputies, and in said application he shall authorize said commissioner or any of his deputies to enter his place of business or any place where he may have such products stored and inspect same.  He shall also agree to keep a correct record of all purchases made by him under this chapter in a book to be furnished by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and he shall further agree that failure on his part to keep a correct record and comply with all provisions of his application shall be grounds for the forfeiture of his license granted him under the application there aforesaid; and provided, further, that the violation of any of the fish and oyster laws of this state or the violation of any of the rules and regulations of the fish and oyster commissioner of this state, shall be and constitute a forfeiture of said license.  [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3989.  Issuance of license; requirements; tax; cancellation of license.—The application for a wholesale dealer's license having been duly executed and delivered to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or any of his deputies, together with the fee for same, it shall then be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputy to pass upon same, and if said application is found to comply with the law and the rules and regulations of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, a license shall be issued to said applicant permitting such applicant to engage in the business set forth in the application, said license to be signed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, stamped with the seal of office and state the name of the licensee, place of business and the kind of license applied for and shall be good for twelve months following the date of issuance, and for such license the applicant shall pay a tax of one dollar for each one thousand pounds of fish handled by him and a tax of one cent per barrel of oysters handled by him, which tax shall be paid monthly; the tax to be paid on the first of each month which may be due upon the said products handled during the preceding month, as per the record book hereinbefore mentioned. For the failure or refusal of any licensee to pay said tax, the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, shall have authority and it shall be his duty to cancel such license. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3990. Deposit of estimated amount of tax, etc.—The applicant for any license under this Act based upon fish and oysters handled, shall upon the issuance of such license, deposit with the game, fish and oyster commissioner an amount of money, to be fixed by the said commissioner, sufficient to cover the estimated amount of tax that would be due by applicant upon the monthly business of applicant, and against which deposit the tax due may be charged by the commissioner, and said applicant shall make additional deposits in sufficient amounts to at all times maintain a deposit sufficient to cover the estimated tax that may be due by applicant, which additional deposit shall be made upon request of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3991. [2518m] Location for planting oysters, who may obtain; application; fee.—Any person who is a citizen of the United States or any corporation having been chartered in this state, shall have the right of obtaining a location for planting oysters and making private oyster beds within the public waters of this state, by making written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputy, describing the location desired. A fee of ten dollars cash must accompany such application. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3992. [2518m] Examination of location; survey.—When the application and fee provided for in article 3991 has been placed in the hands of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, it shall then be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputy to examine thoroughly the location desired as soon as practicable, with tongs, dredge, or any other efficient manner; and if the same be not a natural oyster bed or reef and exempt from location by any section or article of this chapter, he shall have the location surveyed by a competent surveyor. In making said location said surveyor shall plant two iron stakes or pipes on the shore line nearest to the proposed location, one at each end of the proposed location, which said stakes or pipes shall be not less than two inches in diameter and be set at least three feet in the ground. Said stakes or pipes shall be placed with reference to bearings of not less than three natural or permanent objects or land marks. And the locator shall place and maintain under the direction of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, a buoy at each corner of his oyster claim farthest from land. All locations for private oyster beds shall be made outside of the riparian limits, as defined in the laws relating thereto. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3993. [2518m] A certificate; requisites; fee.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, shall give the locator a certificate signed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner and stamped with the seal of his office; such certificate shall show the date of application, date of survey, number, description of metes and bounds with reference to the points of the compass and natural and artificial objects by which the said location can be found and verified; and the locator shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputies, a fee of ten dollars for every fifty acres or fractional part thereof, for the examination of said location, including the certificate; provided, that the ten dollars theretofore paid by the locator with his application shall be deducted from this fee. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3992.

Art. 3994. [2518m] Certificate to be filed and recorded; fee; evidence.—At any time not exceeding sixty days after the date of such certificate of location, the locator must file the same with the county clerk of the county in which the location is situated, who shall record the same in a well-bound book kept for the purpose, and the original with a certificate of registration shall be returned to the owner or locator; the clerk shall receive for the recording of such certificate the same fee as for recording deeds; the original or certified copies of such certificates shall be admissible in evidence under the same rules governing the admission of deeds or certified copies thereof. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3992.

Art. 3995. [2518m] Locator protected in possession.—Any person so locating shall be protected in his possession thereof against trespass thereon in like manner as freeholders are protected in their possessions as long as he maintains all stakes and buoys in their original and correct position and comply with all laws, rules and regulations governing the fish and oyster industries. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3992.

Art. 3996. [2518p] Location limited; foreign corporations excluded.—No person, firm, or corporation shall ever own, lease or otherwise control more than six hundred and forty acres of land covered by water, the same being oyster locations under this chapter, and within the public waters of this state; and any person, firm or corporation that now holds six hundred and forty acres of oyster locations shall not be permitted hereafter to acquire, lease or otherwise control more; provided, that no corporation shall lease or control any such lands covered by water unless such corporation shall be duly incorporated under the laws of this state. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3992.

Art. 3997. [2518n] Owner of private location and assignee to keep stakes in place; may fence, provided.—Any person, firm or corporation who has secured, or may hereafter secure a location for a private oyster bed in this state, shall keep the two iron stakes or pipes and buoys as provided for in article 3992 in place, and shall preserve the marks so long as he is the lessee of said location, and this shall apply also to any person, firm or corporation, acquiring any location by purchase or transfer of any nature; and said locator or the assignee of any locator, shall have the right to fence said location, or any part thereof; provided, that said fence does not obstruct navigation through or into a regular channel or cut leading to other public waters. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3992.

Art. 3998. [2518n] Rents to be paid for locations; forfeitures, etc. —Every locator or assignee of any locator of a location for private oyster beds in this state shall pay the following amounts as rent for his location; in addition to the locating fee of ten dollars as prescribed in article 3993 of this chapter, he shall pay the sum of fifteen cents per acre to the first day of January following the date of application, to be paid to the game, fish and oyster commissioner on receipt of the certificate of location; the rent for next four years from the first day of January above named shall be twenty-five cents per acre per annum; and the rent thereafter shall be seventy-five cents per acre per annum; the rent shall be paid to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and shall be due on January 1st of each year; and, if not paid by March 1st of the same year, the locator or the assignee of any locator shall forfeit all right to the location, and the same shall revert to the state. Provided a locator shall not sell his oyster claim within a period of four years from date of location unless he has expended not less than five dollars per acre on such claim. Provided the lessee of any oyster location may forfeit or sell a part of his claim under rules of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and with his consent. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 3999. Permit to gather seed oysters, to whom and by whom granted, etc.; on what beds, etc.; fees, etc.—Any person who is a citizen of the state of Texas, or any corporation having been chartered in the state of Texas, wishing to plant oysters on location obtained from the state, or on private property in the state, must make written application to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, for a permit or license, which shall entitle the holder to gather seed oysters from the date of permit to such time as may be designated by the game, fish and oyster commissioner thereafter, by dredge, tongs or hand, without culling, on such reefs or beds as may be designated by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, in said permit; provided, that in no instance can there be designated a bed or reef on which marketable oysters are being gathered in paying quantities or on which marketable oysters have been gathered within two years, but the bed or reef so designated shall be an old or abandoned bed or reef, or one on which oysters do not get in marketable condition during the oyster season or on such reefs where the oysters are so thickly set as to warrant the commissioner in granting a permit to have them thinned, and in taking oysters from such reef or bed, the work shall be done with a view to reclaiming and improving such reef or bed; for the permit above named, the applicant shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or his deputy, the sum of five dollars, and shall pay all expenses for examining and locating such reef or beds designated. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4000. Duties of commissioner.—It shall be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, to collect the special tax imposed by this chapter, and enforce its payment, to inspect all products so taxed and verify the weights and measures thereof, to collect all license fees, to collect all rents on locations for planting oysters, to examine, or have examined, all streams, lakes, or ponds, when requested so to do, for the purpose of stocking such waters with fish, best suited to such location, and he shall procure and furnish such stock fish from the nearest fishery, and at the cheapest rate possible to parties applying for same. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4001. [2515] Commissioner to keep record, to show what.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall keep a record book, which shall be well bound, and in which shall be recorded all special taxes collected, all licenses issued and license fees collected, all certificates issued for locations of private oyster beds, showing the date of certificate and application, when and how the applications were executed and the manner in which the bottoms were examined and rents collected for such locations, showing also all stock fish furnished, to whom furnished, and the cost of same, the streams, lakes or ponds, stocked, number and kinds of fish used in each, and showing all collections and disbursements in and from his office. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4002. Commissioner to keep accounts with locators.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall keep an account with each and every person, firm or corporation, holding certificates for the location of private oyster beds in this state, showing the amounts received, as rents, etc. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4003. [2516] Commissioner to make annual report to governor, to be printed, etc.; requisites; penalty.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall make, on the thirty-first day of August of each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, not later than October 1st of each year, a report to the governor, showing the condition of the fish and oyster industry. The report shall show special taxes collected, the number and class of all boats engaged in the fish and oyster trade, the number of licenses issued and license fees collected, the number, place and acreage of private oyster beds, and rents received therefor, and all other amounts collected from whatever source, and the disbursements thereof, as provided for in this chapter with such observations and remarks as pertain to the industry. The report shall also contain a statement of all stock fish furnished, to whom furnished, the cost of same, the streams, lakes, or ponds stocked, the number and kind of fish used in each, and the condition of such plants, with any other data he may obtain on the subject. The governor shall order a sufficient number of copies of such report to be printed and filed in the secretary of state's office, for the purpose of free distribution to parties interested therein. Failing to make such report within the time specified, the said commissioner may, in the discretion of the governor, be dismissed from his office. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4004. [2518d] Deputies in coast counties; special deputies over entire coast; appointment; powers.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is authorized to appoint deputies for each of the vessels owned by the state and employed in the fish and oyster department. Such boat deputies shall have and exercise the same powers and duties as the game, fish and oyster commissioner in the enforcement of the fish and oyster laws; provided, that such deputies shall at all times be subject to the orders of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and any and all laws, or parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this article are hereby repealed. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4005. [2517] Shore and interior deputies; appointment; powers and duties.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is authorized to appoint such other shore and interior deputies as he may deem necessary for the enforcement of the law. And such shore deputies and interior deputies shall have and exercise the same powers and duties as the game, fish and oyster commissioner in the enforcement of the law, and be at all times subject to his orders. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4006. [2518k] Qualifications of deputy fish commissioner, etc. —No person shall hold the office of deputy fish and oyster commissioner who is not a citizen of the United States and resident of the state of Texas. All deputies shall hold their office at the pleasure of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4007. [2518g] Oath and bond of deputy commissioner.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, each deputy fish and oyster commissioner, shall file with the fish and oyster commissioner a good and sufficient bond, with two or more sureties, in the sum of one thousand dollars, and take the same oath of office as the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and said bond and oath shall be governed by the provisions of article 3977. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4008. [2518f] Duties of deputy fish commissioner, etc.—Each deputy fish and oyster commissioner shall be ex-officio game commissioner, and shall exercise the duties and powers of game commissioners under the direction of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4009. [2518e] Weekly reports by deputies; with remittances; annual reports.—All deputy fish and oyster commissioners, shall make a weekly report to the game, fish and oyster commissioner of all funds collected by them, remitting along with said report all sums of money collected by them during the said week, and shall make an annual report to the game, fish and oyster commissioner not later than August first of each year, which report shall set forth in detail such acts as are provided for in article No. 4003, and article 4014. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4010. [2518] Commissioner responsible for his deputies.—The commissioner shall be responsible, on his bond, for the official acts of his deputies. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4011. [2518] Fish and oyster fund.—All the money derived by the state from fines for infraction of the fish and oyster laws, fees for licenses, and taxes on private oyster beds, and taxes on fish and oysters, shall be kept by the comptroller separate under the head of, "Fish and Oyster Fund." [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4012.—Superseded. See Art. 4013.

Art. 4013. Fines distributed, how.—Of all fines collected for infraction of the fish and oyster laws, ten per cent. shall go to the prosecuting attorney and the residue shall go to the fish and oyster fund of the state. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4014. [2518c] Disposition of funds collected by deputies.—All funds collected by deputy fish and oyster commissioners along the coast to register certificates, licenses, fees and rents for locating private oyster beds and any other fees that may be prescribed, shall be, by said deputies and each of them, paid over weekly to the game, fish and oyster commissioner. Such funds so collected by the game, fish and oyster commissioner weekly from the deputy game, fish and oyster commissioners, shall be by the game, fish and oyster commissioner deposited monthly in the state treasury, to the credit of the fish and oyster fund. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4015. [2517] Compensation of commissioner.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall for his services in the fish and oyster department, be allowed the sum of eighteen hundred dollars per annum, to be paid out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid in the same manner as other officers of the state. He shall also be allowed a sum not to exceed six hundred dollars per annum for office rent, traveling and other expenses, to be paid on vouchers approved by the governor, showing that such amounts have actually been expended in the performance of his duties of said office and he shall be allowed all stationery, books, blanks, tags, state laws and charts necessary to the execution of the duties of his office. [Id. Acts 1899, p. 70. Acts 1899, p. 313.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4016. [2518c] Compensation of deputy commissioners.—Out of the special fish and oyster funds all deputy fish and oyster commissioners shall be paid their salaries and expenses monthly, on the approval of the game, fish and oyster commissioner; the comptroller drawing his warrant in favor of each of said persons on said special fish and oyster fund as follows:—Deputies on boats shall receive seventy-five dollars per month; deputies on shore and interior shall receive fifty dollars per month when permanently engaged, or two dollars per day for each day's service when specially employed. Provided, that the deputy fish and oyster commissioners in service at Caddo Lake shall receive monthly salaries of seventy-five dollars each. Provided, that the game, fish and oyster commissioner shall appoint when he deems it necessary, a

[2518i] Fees for making arrests, etc.—In making arrests, summoning witnesses and serving processes, the commissioner, or his deputy, shall be allowed the same fees and mileage as sheriffs, the same being charged as costs and collected the same as are sheriff's costs and fees. [Acts 1895, p. 70.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4018. Commissioners' court may appropriate money for stocking waters with fish; deputy for, etc.—The commissioners' court of any county bordering on any stream or having within its borders any public stream, lake or pond, shall have the right to appropriate a sum not to exceed two hundred dollars per annum, out of the general fund of the county or so much thereof as said court may deem necessary for the purpose of stocking said waters with fish, and at the request and recommendation of said commissioners' court, the state game, fish and oyster commissioner shall appoint a deputy fish commissioner for said county, who shall have charge of all public waters in said county for the purpose of stocking and protecting same, and the commissioners' court shall pay the said deputy for his services such amount as may be agreed upon, not to exceed two dollars and fifty cents per day. [Acts 1913, p. 297, sec. 1.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4019. Improving, etc., the natural oyster beds of Matagorda Bay; expenditure authorized, provided, etc.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is hereby authorized to use and expend the sum of three thousand dollars, or as much thereof as may be necessary, out of the fish and oyster fund, for the purpose of improving and reviving the natural oyster beds in Matagorda bay, in the state of Texas, by constructing a canal from the northeast end of said bay, connecting same with the lakes and bayous leading into the San Bernard river, for the purpose of conducting salt water into said bay; and said amount of three thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of said fish and oyster fund for such purpose, said money to be paid out upon the approval of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, and by warrant drawn by the state comptroller on the state treasurer; provided, that in no event shall the state be liable for the payment of any indebtedness created by virtue of this article, and the said game, fish and oyster commissioner shall only create such indebtedness when there are sufficient funds in said fish and oyster fund, not otherwise appropriated, to meet such indebtedness. [Acts 1909, S. S., p. 328.]

Art. 4019a. Seines, nets, etc.; inspection; tags, etc.—The mesh of all seines and nets used for taking fish in salt waters, not including the bag, shall be not less than one and one-half inch square mesh. The mesh of bags and for fifteen feet on each side of the mouth of the bag shall be not less than one and one-fourth inch square mesh. No seine used for taking fish shall be over twelve hundred feet in length. All such seines shall be inspected by the game, fish and oyster commissioner, or one of his deputies, and shall be properly tagged with a metallic tag, which tag shall be provided at the cost of the owner of the same. The mesh of shrimp nets shall be not less than one-half inch square mesh and not more than fifty feet long and four feet deep. The mesh of the turtle nets shall be twelve inches square. [Acts 1913, p. 297, sec. 1.]

See note under Art. 3982.
Art. 4019b. Person leasing oyster claim, etc.; permission to seine for drum fish, etc.; duty of commissioner; payment to be made, etc.; penalty for violation.—Any person leasing an oyster claim or oyster reef in waters where seining is prohibited, may apply to the game, fish and oyster commissioner for permission to seine for drum fish in such waters. In his application he shall make oath that the drum fish are seriously damaging his oysters, and that if he is permitted to seine for such drum fish in such waters, he will not take or destroy any other food fish but will throw them back in the water. If the commissioner is satisfied that such damage is being done, he may grant such permission to the person applying for it, specifying in such permit the length and mesh of the seine to be used, the length of time in which it is to be used, and the claim or reef on which it is to be used. And such commissioner shall assign a deputy fish and oyster commissioner to superintend such seining and no seine shall be dragged except in his presence, and for which, a person obtaining the permission to seine, as set forth above, shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, $2.50 per day to be placed in the special fish and oyster fund, for such services. The person granted such permission shall board the deputy fish and oyster commissioner during his superintendence of such seining. If the person obtaining the permission shall violate any of the provisions of this Act, he shall be prosecuted and punished under the criminal laws of this state applicable in such cases. [Id.]

See note under Art. 3982.

Art. 4019c. Permission to dredge reef of oysters; duty of commissioner; payment to be made, etc.—Whenever a reef of oysters is over eight feet below the surface of the waters, the game, fish and oyster commissioner may grant permission, to any one applying for it, to dredge on such reef. And in doing this the commissioner shall state the character and number of dredges to be used and the length of time for which they shall be used. The person to whom such privilege shall be granted shall not dredge except in the presence of a deputy fish and oyster commissioner, assigned to such duty by the game, fish and oyster commissioner. And the person granted such permission shall furnish board to such commissioner on board of the dredge boat or other boat on the reef and shall pay to the game, fish and oyster commissioner $2.50 for all days or parts of days during such dredging, which money shall be placed in the special fish and oyster fund. [Id.]

Arts. 4020, 4021.—Repealed. See Art. 4021a.

Art. 4021a. Laws repealed.—That articles 4020 and 4021, said title, and all other laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4021b. What included within act, and under management, etc., of game, fish and oyster commission.—All of the islands, reefs, bars, lakes and bays within tidewater limits from the most interior point seaward coextensive with the jurisdiction of this state and such of the fresh water lakes within the interior of this state as may not be embraced in any survey of private land, together with all the marl and sand of commercial value, and all the shells or mudshell, of whatsoever kind that may be in or upon any island, reef or bar, and in or upon the bottoms of any lake, bay or shallow water, and also all fishing waters, fish hatcheries and oyster beds, within the jurisdiction and territory herein defined, are included within the provisions of this Act, and all such islands, reefs, bars, lakes, bays, shallow waters, and the marl, sand, shells, or mudshell and oyster beds and fishing waters and fish hatcheries, located as herein defined, are, for the purpose of this Act, hereby placed under the management, control and protection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Acts 1911, p. 118, sec. 1.]
Art. 4021c. Certain fresh water lakes shall not be sold; open to public; proviso, etc.—Such of the fresh water lakes within this state as may not be embraced in any survey of private land shall not be sold, but shall remain open to the public; provided, should the game, fish and oyster commissioner stock them with fish, he is authorized to protect same for such time and under such rules as he may prescribe. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4021d. Powers of commission; marl, sand, shells, mudshell, oyster beds and fishing waters.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner is hereby invested with all the power and authority necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, and shall have full charge and discretion over all matters pertaining to the sale, the taking, carrying away or disturbing of all marl or sand of commercial value, and all shells or mudshell and oyster beds and fishing waters, and their protection from free use and unlawful disturbing or appropriation of same, with such exceptions and under such restrictions and limitations as may be provided herein. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4021e. Marl, etc., shall not be purchased, taken, carried away, or disturbed, except, etc.—None of the marl or sand or shells or mudshell included within the preceding sections of this Act shall be purchased, taken, carried away or disturbed except as provided in this Act, nor shall any oyster beds, fishing waters or fish hatcheries within the territory included in this Act be disturbed except as herein provided. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4021f. Application to purchase or operate; permit; revocation; no special privilege or exclusive right.—Any one desiring to purchase any of the marl and sand of commercial value and any of the shells or mudshell included within the provisions of this Act, or otherwise operate in any of the waters or upon any island, reef, bar, lake or bay included in this Act, shall first make written application therefor to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, designating the limits of the territory in which such person desires to operate. If the game, fish and oyster commissioner is satisfied the taking, carrying away or disturbing of the marl, sand or shells or mudshell in the designated territory would not damage or injuriously affect any oysters, oyster bed, fish inhabiting the waters thereof or adjacent thereto, and that such operation would not damage or injuriously affect any island, reef, bar, channel used for frequent or occasional navigation nor change or otherwise injuriously affect any current that would affect navigation, he may issue a permit to such person after such applicant shall have complied with all regulations and requirements prescribed by said commissioner. The permit shall authorize the applicant to take, carry away, or otherwise operate within the limits of such territory as may be designated therein, and for such substance or purposes only as may be named in the permit and upon the terms and conditions therein. No permit shall be assignable, and a failure or refusal of the holder to comply with the terms and conditions of the permit shall operate as an immediate termination and revocation of all rights conferred therein or claimed thereunder. No special privilege or exclusive right shall be granted to any person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, to take or carry away any marl, sand or shell or mudshell from any territory nor to otherwise operate in or upon any island, reef, bar, lake, or bay included in this Act. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4021g. Sale of marl, sand, shells or mudshell, when authorized; proceeds, how disposed of, etc.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner, by and with the approval of the governor, may sell the marl, sand and shells or mudshell, included within this Act, upon such terms and conditions as he may deem proper, but for not less than four cents
Art. 4021h. Commission may locate oyster beds and establish fish hatcheries.—So far as the proceeds arising under this Act may be sufficient, the said commissioner may locate suitable places for oyster beds and advise the public of such locations, and may establish fish hatcheries on the coast or elsewhere in the fresh water lakes and streams of the interior upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe. [Acts 1911, p. 118, sec. 7.]

Art. 4021i. Permits to counties, cities, towns, etc.—If any county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town should desire any marl, sand or shell or mudshell included in this Act for use in the building of any road or street, which work is done by such county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town, such county or any subdivision of a county, city or town may be granted a permit without charge and shall have the right to take, carry away or operate in any waters, or upon any islands, reefs, or bars included in this Act, and this whether such county, subdivision of a county, city or town does the work under its own supervision or by contract, but such county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town shall first obtain from the said commissioner a permit to do so, and the granting of same for the operation in the territory designated by such county, or any subdivision of a county, city or town, shall be subject to the same rules, regulations and limitations and discretion of the said commissioner as are other applicants and permits. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4021j. Taking away, disturbing, fishing or operating, etc., without permit misdemeanor.—If any person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, shall, for himself or itself, or for or on behalf of or under the direction of another person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, take or carry away any of the marl, sand or shells or mudshell included in this Act, or shall disturb any of said marl, sand shells or mudshell or oyster beds or fishing waters, or shall fish in any fresh water lake or shall operate in or upon any of said places for any purpose other than that necessary or incident to navigation or dredging under state or federal authority, without having first obtained a written permit from the game, fish and oyster commissioner for the territory in which such operation is carried on, such person, association of persons, corporate or otherwise, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in a sum of money not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, and one-half of the proceeds arising from such fines shall be appropriated to the road and bridge fund of the county in which the conviction is had and one-half shall be appropriated to the fish and oyster fund. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4021k. Sand may be taken from Galveston bay without payment, etc.—Provided, however, that there may be taken and appropriated from beneath the waters of Galveston bay, sand for filling and raising the grade of Galveston island, without making payment therefor to the game, fish and oyster commission or to the state of Texas. [Acts 1911, p. 118. Amended, Acts 1913, p. 329, sec. 1.]
CHAPTER THREE

GAME

Art. 4022. Wild animals, birds, etc., property of public.—All the wild deer, wild antelope, wild Rocky Mountain sheep, wild turkey, wild ducks, wild geese, wild grouse, wild prairie chickens (pinnated grouse), wild Mongolian or English pheasants, wild quail or partridges, wild doves, wild pigeons, wild plover, wild snipe, wild jack snipe, wild curlews, wild robins, wild Mexican pheasants or chachalaca and all other wild animals, wild birds and wild fowls found within the borders of this state, shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be, the property of the public. [Acts 1907, p. 278.]

Art. 4023. Hunting licenses required of non-residents; requisites and duration; fee.—It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person who has not been a bona fide inhabitant of, and resident citizen of, this state for six months last past to hunt for or kill any game or birds protected by the laws of this state without first procuring a hunting license from the game, fish and oyster commissioner permitting him to do so, and paying to said commissioner the sum of fifteen dollars. Said license shall be dated when issued and shall remain in force until the first day of September following thereafter. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S. p. 456. Acts 1907, p. 256.]

Art. 4024. Non-resident licensee may take home game lawfully killed, provided, etc.—Any person to whom a non-resident license to hunt for game in this state has been issued may take to his home beyond the boundaries of this state such game as he has himself lawfully killed, not to exceed one day's bag limit, and under such restrictions and regulations as may be prescribed by the game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Acts 1907, p. 256.]

Art. 4025. Hunting licenses required of residents, when; requisites; authority given, duration; fee.—It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person to hunt or kill any game quadrupeds or game birds or wild fowl protected by the game laws of this state, except in the county of his residence or in counties adjoining the county of his residence or on land owned or controlled by him, without first obtaining a state hunting license from the game, fish and oyster commissioner permitting him to do so. Any person who has been a bona fide resident of this state for six months last past may procure a hunting license to hunt outside the boundaries of the county in which he resides, by paying a license fee of one dollar and seventy-five cents to the county clerk of the county in which he resides, to be dated when issued. Such license shall expire the first day of September of each year following such date. Such license shall authorize the person named therein to use firearms in the hunting or killing of game or game birds during the hunting season of that year, but only in the manner and time prescribed by law. Such license shall limit the number and quantity of game which may be taken or killed, in accordance with the provisions of law governing the subject. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 456.]

Art. 4026. County clerk to issue local hunting licenses, etc., keep stubs of, etc.—The county clerk of each county in this state is hereby authorized to issue local hunting licenses, under his official seal, to all persons complying with the provisions of this chapter, and shall fill out correctly and preserve the stubs attached thereto. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Id.]

Art. 4027. County clerk to keep record.—The county clerk shall keep a complete and correct record of hunting licenses issued, showing the name and place of residence of each licensee, and the serial number and date of the license so issued, in a book to be furnished by the game, fish and oyster commissioner; which record shall be kept in his office and be open to the inspection of the public at all times during office hours. Said books and license stubs and unused licenses shall always be open to inspection of the game, fish and oyster commissioner or his deputies. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Id.]

Art. 4028. Monthly report of licenses by county clerk, in duplicate, to commissioner and comptroller.—The county clerk shall, within ten days of the close of each calendar month, make out a detailed report in duplicate under the seal of his office, showing the serial number and date of each license issued, and the name and residence of the person to whom issued; he shall forward one copy to the game, fish and oyster commissioner at Austin, and one copy to the comptroller, who shall charge the game, fish and oyster commissioner with the amount so shown to be remitted. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Id. p. 457.]

Art. 4029. Commissioner to enforce laws for protection, etc., of wild game, etc., bring actions, etc., for fines, etc.; powers.—It is hereby made a special duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner to enforce the statutes of this state for the protection and preservation of wild game and wild birds, and to bring, or cause to be brought, actions and proceedings in the name of the state of Texas to recover any and all fines and penalties provided for in the laws now in force, or that may hereafter be enacted, relating to wild game and wild birds. Said game, fish and oyster commissioner may make complaint and cause proceedings to be commenced against any person for violation of any of the laws for the protection and propagation of game or birds, without the sanction of the county attorney of the county in which such proceedings are commenced; and in such case he shall not be required to furnish security for costs. [Acts 1907, p. 254.]

Art. 4030. Power to seize birds and animals, when; disposition of.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall, at any and all times, seize and take possession of all birds and animals that have been caught, taken or killed, or had in possession or under control, or have been shipped contrary to any of the laws of this state, and such seizure may be made without a warrant. All birds or animals seized by the commissioner shall be disposed of in such manner as may be directed by any court having competent jurisdiction to hear and determine cases for violation of the game and bird laws of this state. [Id.]
Art. 4031. Commissioner to keep record; to contain what.—It shall be the duty of the game, fish and oyster commissioner to keep in his office, in the capitol of this state, a well bound book in which he shall keep a complete list of the licenses issued, fines collected and a statement of all prosecutions instituted for violation of the game, fish and oyster laws, and the result of same. Said records shall be kept open for the inspection of the comptroller and the public. [Acts 1907, p. 256. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 457.]

Art. 4032. Monthly report by commissioner.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner, at the close of each calendar month, shall file with the comptroller a report in writing and detail, stating the service performed by him during the last preceding month, including a detailed statement of the suits commenced at his instance and the disposition made of same, all fines, licenses and other fees collected, their disposition, and any other particulars he may deem proper. [Acts 1907, p. 255. Id. p. 455.]

Art. 4033. Commissioner may appoint chief deputy; office in capitol; oath; duties.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall have power to appoint a chief deputy, who shall maintain an office in the capitol of the state; said chief deputy shall take the constitutional oath of office and shall act as general assistant to said game, fish and oyster commissioner, and, during the absence, sickness or disability of the commissioner, he shall exercise the duties of said commissioner. Said chief deputy shall devote his entire time to the work of his office. [Acts 1907, p. 255.]

Art. 4034. Bond of chief deputy.—The chief deputy game, fish and oyster commissioner shall, before assuming the duties of his office, file with the secretary of state a good and sufficient bond in the sum of five thousand dollars for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. [Id. p. 256.]

Art. 4035. The commissioner may appoint deputy game commissioners; powers.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall also have power to appoint deputy game commissioners, who shall have the same power and authority as herein provided for the game, fish and oyster commissioner himself, subject to the supervision and control of and removal by the said game, fish and oyster commissioner. [Id. p. 255.]

Art. 4036. Disposition of fees and fines received by commissioner.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall, at the time of each monthly report required of him by this chapter, pay over to the state treasurer all fines, license and other fees collected by him, which shall be credited to the special fund provided for in this chapter. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 455.]

Art. 4037. Disposition of fines by court or deputy commissioner.—All fines collected in the county or district courts of this state for violation of the game and bird laws of this state, shall, within thirty days from date of the collection, be forwarded by the court, or the deputy game commissioner, to the game, fish and oyster commissioner, who shall deposit same in the state treasury, and same shall be credited to the special fund provided for the payment of salaries and expenses of deputies appointed under the provisions of this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 4038. Disposition of license fees received by county clerk.—The county clerk shall, with each monthly report required of him by this chapter, remit to the game, fish and oyster commissioner at Austin, all license fees collected by him, less twenty-five cents for each license issued, which he may retain as his fee. Upon the receipt of such report and remittance, the game, fish and oyster commissioner shall deposit same in the state treasury to the credit of the special fund provided for in this chapter; and the comptroller shall credit said commissioner with the amount of the deposits so made. [Id. p. 457.]

Art. 4039. Hunting license fund; a separate salary, etc.; fund.—All funds paid into the state treasury from the sale of hunting licenses shall be set apart as a special fund for salaries and expenses of the game, fish and oyster commissioner and his various deputies, as provided in this chapter; provided, that the fund derived from the sale of hunting licenses contemplated by this chapter shall never be combined with the fish and oyster fund of the state; nor shall said fish and oyster fund ever be liable for the payment of any of the expenses contemplated by this chapter, but shall be kept intact and for the sole purpose of paying the expenses and maintaining the fish and oyster department of the state, as now provided by law; and the said commissioner and his deputies shall not be paid out of any other funds. [Acts 1907, p. 256.]

Art. 4040. Compensation of commissioner and deputies.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner shall receive, in addition to the salary now paid him for his services in the fish and oyster department, the sum of seven hundred dollars per annum, and his actual and necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of his said duties, to be paid monthly on the warrant of the comptroller, on the approval of his vouchers therefor. The chief deputy shall receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars and his actual and necessary expenses incurred by him in the discharge of the duties of his office, to be paid monthly on the warrant of the comptroller, and on the approval of his accounts and vouchers therefor. Each deputy commissioner shall receive three dollars per day for each day actually spent in the discharge of his duties under the direction of the commissioner, and their actual expenses necessarily incurred when so employed, to be paid monthly on the warrant of the comptroller, on the approval of itemized vouchers verified under oath and certified and approved by the game, fish and oyster commissioner; provided, that the total amount paid out by the warrant of the comptroller for the salaries and expenses of the game, fish and oyster commissioner, his chief deputy and the other deputies provided for in this chapter, shall not exceed the amount received by the state treasurer from the sale of hunting licenses and the collection of fines and penalties in cases for the violation of the game and bird laws of this state. And in no event shall the state ever be liable for the pay of any of the deputy commissioners provided for in this chapter. [Id. pp. 255–256, secs. 5–6.]

Art. 4041. Chief deputy to furnish blank hunting licenses to county clerk; accounts.—It shall be the duty of the chief deputy game, fish and oyster commissioner to prepare and furnish to each county clerk blank hunting licenses with stubs attached, numbered serially. Said chief deputy shall open an account with each county clerk and charge him with the number of licenses furnished said clerk. Said account shall show the serial number of such licenses. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 456, sec. 10.]

Art. 4042. Commissioner and deputies made fire commissioners; deputies.—The game, fish and oyster commissioner and his deputies appointed under the provisions of this chapter are hereby made fire commissioners, and it shall be their duty, in addition to their duties provided for in this chapter, to caution sportsmen or other persons, while in the woods or marshes or prairies, of the danger from fire, and to extinguish all fires left burning by any one, to the extent of their power, and to give notice to any and all parties interested, when possible, of fires raging and beyond their control, to the end that same may be controlled and extinguished. [Acts 1907, p. 257, sec. 12.]
TITLE 63 A

GOVERNING BOARDS OF STATE INSTITUTIONS

Art. 4042a. How composed; qualifications.

Art. 4042b. Members of boards of institutions of higher education, how selected.

Art. 4042c. Members divided into classes; terms, etc.; duties of boards.

Article 4042a. How composed; qualifications.—The board of regents of the university of Texas shall be composed of nine persons, who shall be qualified voters; the board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas shall be composed of nine persons, who shall be qualified voters; the state board of regents of the normal colleges shall be composed of six persons, who shall be qualified voters; the board of regents of the college of industrial arts for women shall be composed of six persons, three of whom may be women; the board of managers of the blind institute, the deaf and dumb institute, the deaf, dumb and blind institute for colored youths, the Confederate home, the Confederate woman's home, of each of the insane asylums, the epileptic colony and the orphans home, shall each be composed of six members, who shall be qualified voters. [Acts 1913, p. 191, sec. 1.]

Art. 4042b. Members of boards of institutions of higher education, how selected, nominated and appointed; vacancies; members of existing boards.—The members of the governing board of each of the state institutions of higher education mentioned in section 1 [Art. 4042a] shall be selected from different portions of the state, and shall be nominated by the governor and appointed by and with the advice and consent of the senate. In event of a vacancy on said board, the governor shall fill said vacancy until the convening of the legislature and the ratification by the senate. The members of each of said boards who shall be in office at the time this Act takes effect shall continue to exercise their duties until the expiration of their respective terms, as shall be determined according to requirements of section 3 of this Act [Art. 4042c], and additional members shall be appointed in the manner prescribed herein to fill out the membership herein provided for. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4042c. Members divided into classes; terms, etc.; duties of boards.—The following members of the several governing boards shall be divided into equal classes, numbered one, two and three, as determined by each board at its first meeting after this Act shall become a law, these classes shall hold their offices two, four and six years respectively, from the time of their appointment. And one-third of the membership of each board shall hereafter be appointed at each regular session of the legislature to supply the vacancies made by the provisions of this Act and in the manner provided for in section 2 [Art. 4042b], who shall hold their offices for six years, respectively. The duties of the several governing boards shall be determined by law heretofore enacted or that may hereafter be enacted, no changes in the said duties being made by this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]
TITLE 64
GUARDIAN AND WARD

[See title Fees of Office.]

CHAPTER ONE
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 4043. Jurisdiction of county court over. — The county court shall appoint guardians of minors, persons of unsound mind and habitual drunkards, settle accounts of guardians, and transact all business appertaining to the estates of minors, persons of unsound mind and habitual drunkards. [Const., art. 5, sec. 16. Act June 16, 1876, p. 19, sec. 4.]

Guardianship of dependent and neglected children. — See Title 38, Chapter 1.

Suit by next friend. — See Title 37, Chapter 22.

Jurisdiction as affected by will. — Provision in will that courts shall have no further jurisdiction than to probate will as applied to guardian held to fail for want of power in testatrix. Buckley v. Herder (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 703.

Art. 4044. Jurisdiction of district court over. — The district court shall have appellate jurisdiction over the county court in all matters of guardianship, and original control and jurisdiction over guardians and wards, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. [Const., art. 5, sec. 8.]

See, also, notes under Art. 1706.

Jurisdiction to determine custody of minors. — Jurisdiction to determine the right to the custody of a minor is conferred by the constitution upon the district court, and can be invoked only by an original proceeding brought in that court, and cannot be exercised on an appeal in guardianship proceeding begun in a county court. Estes v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 145.

Art. 4045. Who are minors. — Male persons under twenty-one years of age, and females under twenty-one years of age who have never been married, are minors. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 175, sec. 2.]

Disabilities and privileges of infancy. — See notes at end of Title 94.

Marriage as terminating disability of infancy. — See notes under Art. 4628.
Art. 4046. [2553] [2472]  Who are persons of unsound mind.—Persons of unsound mind are idiots, lunatics or insane persons. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4047. [2554] [2473] Who is an habitual drunkard.—An habitual drunkard is one whose mind has become so impaired by the use of intoxicating liquors or drugs that he is incapable of taking care of himself or property. [Id.]

Art. 4048. [2555] [2474] Record books of estates shall be used, etc.—The record books used for the business of estates of decedents shall also be used for the business of guardianships.

Art. 4049. [2556] [2475] What papers shall be recorded.—The following papers shall be copied at length into the minutes of the court:
1. All applications, citations and returns upon citations.
2. All notices, whether published or posted, with the returns thereon.
3. All bonds and official oaths.
4. All inventories, appraisements and lists of claims, after the same have been approved by the court.
5. All reports of sales, renting or leasing of property, and of loaning or investing money, after such reports have been approved by the court.
6. All accounts and exhibits of the guardian, after the same have been approved by the court. [Id. p. 191, sec. 186.]

Art. 4050. [2557] [2476] Orders, etc., of court shall be at regular terms, unless, etc.—All decisions, orders and judgments of the court in matters of guardianship shall be rendered and entered on the minutes of the court at a regular term thereof, and in open court, except in cases where it is otherwise specially provided.

Entry on records of orders and decrees in guardianship proceedings.—All orders and decrees in probate and guardianship proceedings must be entered upon the records at the term of court at which they are made, and unless so recorded they are nullities. Teague v. Svaas, 48 C. A. 151, 102 S. W. 460.

Under Arts. 4091-4096, the power to appoint a temporary guardian is conferred on the judge, while the power to pass on a contest and make a permanent appointment is vested in the court; and an order of the court appointing a permanent guardian must be made in term time and entered in the minutes, as required by Arts. 4050, 4083, and under Arts. 3219, 4050, the appointment is a nullity, unless so entered. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1137.

Art. 4051. [2558] [2477] Provisions, etc., governing estates of decedents govern guardianships, etc.—The provisions, rules and regulations which govern estates of decedents shall apply to and govern such guardianships, whenever the same are applicable and not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this title.

Entry on minutes of orders in guardianship proceedings.—This article in connection with Art. 3223 does not change the requirement of Art. 4050 that all orders in matters of guardianship shall be entered on the minutes of the court. Orders not so entered are void. Blackwood v. Blackwood's Estate (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 483.

Removal of money by guardian of nonresident minors.—Under this article and Arts. 3554, 4262-4262 a guardian could not remove money held by a clerk of the probate court paid him in a damage suit which belonged to nonresident minors, unless he complied with the conditions of title 14 by giving bond to secure debts. Hoffman v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 825.

Dismissal of appeal.—See notes under Art. 4055.

Art. 4052. [2559] [2478] Any person may contest proceedings.—Any person has the right to appear and contest the appointment of a particular person as guardian, or to contest any proceeding which he deems to be injurious to the ward, or to commence any proceeding which he considers beneficial to the ward, such person being liable for the costs occasioned by him in the case of his failure. [Id. p. 170, sec. 18.]

Contest of appointment.—Where one claiming to be the guardian appointed in another jurisdiction contests the appointment of a subsequent guardian in Texas, the material question is not the right of the contestant to maintain the suit (because under this article any one can do this), but conceding the right to commence the suit whether there is ground for relief. Hagan v. Snider, 44 C. A. 139, 98 S. W. 214.

Art. 4053. [2560] [2479] Case of guardianship shall be called at each term.—It shall be the duty of the county judge, at each regular term of his court, to call each case of guardianship upon his docket, and to make such orders therein as may be necessary, and to see that such orders, together with all papers required to be recorded, are entered upon the minutes, and to hold guardians and the officers of his court to a strict accountability for the performance of their duties with reference to guardianships.

Art. 4054. [2561] [2480] Meaning of "term of court."—Whenever a term of the county court is mentioned in this title, it is meant a term of such court held for the transaction of probate business.

Art. 4055. [2562] [2481] Appeals, etc., may be taken under the rules provided by law.—The judgments, orders, decrees and proceedings of the court in relation to guardianships may be appealed from to the district court by any person who may consider himself aggrieved there­by; or the same may be revised and corrected by certiorari, or bill of review, in the manner and under the rules and regulations provided by law.

Parties on appeal.—Where a guardian dies pending an appeal from the probate to the district court, and there being no administration on his estate nor necessity therefor, it is proper to make his heirs parties and prosecute the case in their name. Magness v.
Berry, 29 C. A. 567, 69 S. W. 987.

Dismissal of appeal.—Under this article and Arts. 4051, 3631, 1889, held error to dismiss an appeal to the district court from a judgment of the probate court approving a

CHAPTER TWO

IN WHAT COUNTY PROCEEDINGS SHALL BE COMMENCED

Art. 4056. Guardianship of estate of minor shall be commenced where parents reside.

Art. 4057. Where the parents reside in different proceedings shall be commenced where parents reside.—A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian for the estate of a minor shall be commenced in the county where the parents of such minor reside. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 176,

sec. 19.]

Jurisdiction of courts.—Under this article and Arts. 4058, 4077, a proceeding to appoint a guardian of the estate of a minor who has a parent living should be brought in the Persons for whom guardians may be appointed.—Under the act of March 16, 1848 (Early Laws, art. 1853, § 2), it was held that the county court had authority to appoint a guardian for minors, nonresidents of this state, who had estates here, and to order the sale of property as in other cases. Neal v. Bartleson, 65 T. 478.

Art. 4057. [2564] [2483] Where parents reside in different counties.—If the parents of the minor do not reside in the same county, the proceedings for such guardianship shall be commenced in the county where the parent who has the custody of the minor resides. [Id. sec.
20.]

Art. 4058. [2565] [2484] Proceedings for guardianship of an orphan shall be commenced, where.—A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian of the person and estate of an orphan, or of either, shall be commenced in the county where the last surviving parent of such orphan resided at the time of the death of such parent, or where such orphan is found, or where the principal estate of such orphan may be. [Id.
sec. 21.]

Jurisdiction of courts—Residence of parents.—Under this article and Arts. 4056, 4070, a proceeding to appoint a guardian of the estate of a minor who has a parent living should be brought in the county of the latter's residence. Estes v. Presswood (Civ. App.)
137 S. W. 145.

Residence of Infant.—"Residence," in its technical sense, of an orphan is not essential to the power of the probate court to appoint a guardian. The mere presence Art. 4059. [2566] [2485] Persons of unsound mind and drunkards.
—A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian of the person or estate, or of either, of a person of unsound mind, or an habitual drunkard, shall be commenced in the county where such person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard resides.

Jurisdiction of courts.—The fact that one is confined in an asylum in another county than his residence does not deprive the latter of jurisdiction in matters of guardianship of his estate. The residence is not thereby changed. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 398, 80 S. W. 246.

Art. 4060. [2567] [2486] Where a guardian has been appointed by will.—Where a guardian has been appointed by will, proceedings for letters of guardianship shall be commenced in the county where the will has been admitted to probate.

CHAPTER THREE
COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS

Art. 4061. [2568] [2487] Commenced by written application.—
A proceeding for the appointment of a guardian is commenced by written application, filed in the county court of the county having jurisdiction of the case. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 177, sec. 23.]

Art. 4062. [2569] [2488] Who may make application, and what the same shall contain.—The application may be made by any person, and it shall state:
1. The name, sex, age and residence of the minor.
2. The estate of such minor, if any, and the probable value thereof.
3. Such facts as show the jurisdiction of the court over the case. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4063. [2570] [2489] Clerk shall issue citation, which shall state what.—Upon the filing of such application, the clerk shall immediately issue citation, which shall state that an application has been filed, and by whom, for the guardianship of the person or estate, or both, as the case may be, of the minor, naming such minor, and shall cite all persons interested in the welfare of such minor to appear at a term of the court named in such citation, and contest such application if they see proper to do so.

Necessity of citation.—The power of the court to appoint a permanent guardian is statutory, and the citation prescribed by statute is jurisdictional, and an appearance in court does not dispense with the necessity of the citation. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1137.

Art. 4064. [2571] [2490] Citation shall be served, how.—Such citation shall be served by posting copies thereof for not less than ten days before the first day of the term of the court at which the application is to be acted upon, one of which copies shall be posted at the court house, and two other copies at two other public places in the county, not in the same city or town.

Art. 4065. [2572] [2491] Return of citation.—The sheriff or other officer serving such citation shall return the same, stating thereon, in writing, the time and places, when and where, he posted such copies, and shall sign such return officially.
Art. 4066. [2573] [2492] Minor fourteen years old or over shall be personally cited.—If the minor be fourteen years of age or over, such minor shall be personally served with citation to appear and answer such application; or such minor may, by writing filed with the clerk, waive the issuance of such citation, and make choice of a guardian. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4067. [2574] [2493] County judge shall commence proceedings, when.—Whenever it shall come to the knowledge of the county judge that there is within his county any minor without a guardian of his person or estate, he shall cause a citation to be posted to all persons interested in the welfare of such minor to show cause at a regular term of his court why a guardian of such minor should not be appointed; and, if such minor be fourteen years of age or over, he shall be personally cited. [Id. sec. 28.]

Jurisdiction of courts.—Under this article in a proper case the judge can appoint a guardian of a minor, and by virtue of Art. 4245 he has the same right to appoint a guardian of person of unsound mind. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 246.

CHAPTER FOUR

PERSONS ENTITLED TO BE APPOINTED GUARDIANS, AND PERSONS WHO ARE DISQUALIFIED

Art. 4068. Father entitled, where parents live together.—Where the parents of the minor live together, the father is the natural guardian of the person of the minor children by the marriage, and is entitled to be appointed guardian of their estates. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 175, sec. 8.]

Removal of guardian—Party entitled to ask for.—See notes under Art. 4200.

Art. 4069. [2576] [2495] Parents equally entitled, when.—Where the parents do not live together, their rights are equal; and the guardianship of their minor children shall be assigned to one or the other, according to the circumstances of each case, taking into consideration the interest of the child alone. [Id. sec. 9.]

Effect of award of custody in divorce suit.—When the custody of a child has been given to one of the parents in a suit for divorce under Art. 4041, the court has no authority to grant guardianship to another. Jordan v. Jordan, 23 S. W. 531, 4 C. A. 559.

Art. 4070. [2577] [2496] Surviving parent entitled.—Where one of the parents is dead, the survivor is the natural guardian of the persons of the minor children, and entitled to be appointed guardian of their estates. [Id. sec. 10.]

Jurisdiction of courts.—Under this article and Arts. 4066, 4068, a proceeding to appoint a guardian of the estate of a minor who has a parent living should be brought in the county of the latter’s residence. Estes v. Presswood ( Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 146.

Surviving mother after remarriage.—A married woman is not incapacitated from acting as guardian of her infant children by a former marriage, but, on the contrary, is by statute given the preference as guardian of such children. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

Stepmother as surviving parent.—The stepmother is not a parent within the meaning of this law, so as to give a preference right of appointment as guardian of minor children of her deceased husband over blood relatives of such children. Heinemeyer v. Arlitt, 29 C. A. 140, 67 S. W. 1035, 1040.

Waiver of right to guardianship by surviving parent.—The right of one to letters of guardianship under the statute is waived when at his request another received the ap-appointment and qualified; and this rule is not affected by the fact that such person is the surviving parent. Kahn v. Israelson, 62 T. 221; Cole v. Dial, 12 T. 100; Cook v. Bybee, 24 T. 280; Mayes v. Houston, 61 T. 690.

Art. 4071. [2578] [2497] Surviving parent may appoint guardian by will, etc.—The surviving parent of a minor may, by will or written declaration, appoint any person not disqualified to be guardian of the persons of his or her children after the death of such parent; and such person shall be entitled to be appointed guardian of their estates also after the death of such parent. [Id. sec. 11.]

Appointment by will.—When a guardian of the estate of a minor child has been appointed at the request of the mother, she cannot appoint another by will. Potts v. Terry, 28 S. W. 122, 8 C. A. 394.

Art. 4072. [2579] [2498] Who entitled to guardianship of orphans.—Where the minor is an orphan, and no one has been appointed by the parent to be the guardian of such minor, as provided in the preceding article, the nearest ascendant in the direct line of such minor, if not disqualified, is entitled to the guardianship of both the person and the estate of such minor. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4073. [2580] [2499] Where ascendants are equally entitled. —If there be more than one ascendant in the same degree in the direct line, they are equally entitled; and the guardianship shall be given to one or the other, according to circumstances, taking into consideration the interest of the orphan alone. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4074. [2581] [2500] Collateral kin entitled, when.—In case the orphan has no ascendant in the direct line, the guardianship shall be given to the nearest of kin in the collateral line, who comes immediately after the presumptive heir or heirs of the orphan; and, if there be two or more in the same degree, the guardianship shall be given to the one or the other, according to circumstances, taking into consideration the interest of the orphan alone. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4075. [2582] [2501] Where no one who is entitled applies, court shall appoint, etc.—If there be no relative of the minor qualified to take the guardianship, or if no person entitled to such guardianship applies therefor, the court shall appoint some proper person to be such guardian.

Stepparent as relative.—The stepparent is not a relative within the meaning of this law, so as to give such parent right of appointment as guardian over blood relatives of the minors. Heinemier v. Arlitt, 25 C. A. 140, 67 S. W. 1039, 1040.

Art. 4076. [2583] [2502] Who entitled in case of person of unsound mind, etc.—In the case of a person of unsound mind, or an habitual drunkard, the nearest of kin to such person, who is not disqualified, shall be entitled to the guardianship; and, where two or more are equally entitled, the guardianship shall be given to one or the other, according to circumstances, taking into consideration the interest of the ward alone. If such ward have a husband or wife who is not disqualified, such husband or wife shall be entitled to the guardianship in preference to any other person.

Art. 4077. [2584] [2503] Court shall appoint proper person, when. —If no person who is entitled to such guardianship and who is qualified shall apply therefor, the court shall appoint some proper person to be such guardian.

Art. 4078. [2585] [2504] Who are not qualified to be guardians.—The following persons shall not be appointed guardians:
1. Minors, except the father or mother.
2. Persons whose conduct is notoriously bad.
3. Persons of unsound mind.
4. Habitual drunkards.
5. Those who are themselves or whose father or mother are parties to a lawsuit, on the result of which the condition of the minor or part of his fortune may depend.
6. Those who are debtors to the minor, unless they discharge the debt prior to such appointment; but this subdivision does not apply to the father or mother of such minor. [Id. sec. 16.]

Persons entitled to appointment.—When one designated by statute as having prior right of guardianship is not disqualified by reason of matters mentioned in this article then he is entitled to be appointed guardian, even though the court might believe that one not given preference by statute would fill the position better. The court has no discretion in the matter. Helnemier v. Arlitt, 29 C. A. 146, 67 S. W. 1039, 1040.

Disqualification by interest.—The result of the suit under this subdivision must affect the condition of the minor or part of his estate. A lawsuit against a party who is in no way liable to the minor will not disqualify him from being appointed guardian of the person or estate of the minor. Davis v. Hammack (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 114.

In a proceeding by the adopted mother of a minor ward to be appointed his guardian, judgment was entered removing the acting guardian and appointing her, and pending appeal to the district court the acting guardian suing for the benefit of the ward brought trespass to try title and for rents, the suit resulting in a judgment that buildings erected by her were intended as a gratuity to the ward, and that she was not indebted to him, and thereafter the order removing the acting guardian was affirmed and she was appointed guardian. Held, that under this article the issues in the suit to try title were not material to her competency, since the interests of the ward were fixed by law, and since any ground of objection to her had been removed before her appointment. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 673.

Character of mother.—In a contest between a paternal grandfather and a mother for the custody of an infant, it is error to exclude the issue as to the mother's reputation for chastity and veracity. Ward v. Ward, 34 C. A. 104, 77 S. W. 629.

Art. 4079. [2586] [2505] Minor fourteen years of age may select his own guardian.—A minor who is fourteen years of age or over has the right to select a guardian, either of his person or estate, or both; which selection may be made in open court, in person or by attorney; and the person selected, if qualified, shall be entitled to be appointed guardian, except in the case where the surviving parent of such minor has appointed a guardian by will or written declaration; in which case, the person so appointed shall be entitled to the guardianship.

In general.—As to the construction of the provisions of this chapter and this article and Art. 4084, see Jordan v. Jordan, 23 S. W. 581, 4 C. A. 559.

Under this article and Art. 4084, the right of a minor to select his own guardian is absolute, if he does not select any of that class of persons excluded by the statute, and the person so selected is suitable and competent. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 673.

Article 4080. [2587] [2506] Court may proceed to appoint, when.

—At a regular term of the court, after notice shall have been given by citation duly served as required by law, the court may proceed to the appointment of a guardian.

Necessity of citation.—See notes under Art. 4083.

Art. 4081. [2588] [2507] What facts must appear before appointment is made. —Before appointing a guardian, the court must be satisfied:

1. That the person for whom a guardian is sought to be appointed is a minor, a person of unsound mind or an habitual drunkard.
2. That the court has jurisdiction of the case.
3. That the person to be appointed guardian is not disqualified to act as such and is entitled thereto; or, in case no person who is entitled thereto applies therefor, that the person appointed is a proper person to act as such guardian.

Art. 4082. [2589] [2508] Only one guardian of the person or estate shall be appointed, except, etc.—Only one guardian can be appointed of the person or estate; but one person may be appointed guardian of the person, and another of the estate, whenever the court shall be satisfied that it will be for the advantage of the ward to do so. Nothing in this article shall be held to prohibit the joint appointment of husband and wife. [Act Aug. 15, 1870. P. D. 6926.]

Number of guardians.—Only one guardian of the estate of a minor can be appointed, and a sale by one claiming to act as guardian while the minor has another lawful guardian is void. St. Paul Sanitarium v. Crim, 38 C. A. 1, 84 S. W. 1114.

Art. 4083. [2590] [2509] Order of appointment shall contain what.—The order of the court appointing a guardian shall be entered upon the minutes of the court, and shall specify:
1. The name of the person appointed.
2. The name of the ward.
3. Whether the guardian is of the person, of the estate, or of both the person and estate of such ward.
4. The amount of the bond required by such guardian.
5. If it be the guardianship of the estate, the order shall also appoint three or more discreet and disinterested persons to appraise such estate, and return such appraisement to the court.
6. It shall direct the clerk to issue letters of guardianship to the person appointed when such person has qualified according to law.

Requisites of order of appointment.—The order of the court appointing the guardian must show whether it is of the person or of the estate, or both. Gill v. Everman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 914.

Time of making and entry.—Under this article and Arts. 3219, 4050, 4091-4096, the power to appoint a temporary guardian is conferred on the judge, while the power to pass on a contest and make a permanent appointment is vested in the court; and an order of the court appointing a permanent guardian must be made in term time and entered in the minutes, and under Arts. 3219, 4050, the appointment is a nullity, unless so entered. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1187.

Setting aside.—If an appointment of guardian is made by a court not having jurisdiction, the order may be set aside by such court on a proper proceeding instituted for that purpose. Munson v. Newson, 9 T. 108; Finch v. Edmonson, 9 T. 504.

County court, sitting in probate, held to have jurisdiction to entertain a petition to set aside an order appointing a guardian; the ground of objection being that no proper citation was served prior to such appointment. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 831.

Collateral attack.—A judgment of the county court appointing a guardian for a person of unsound mind cannot be collaterally attacked. Flynn v. Hancock, 36 C. A. 396, 80 S. W. 245.

Conclusiveness.—Order appointing third party guardian of certain children held conclusive as to fitness of the third party and unfitness of the mother. Beardsley v. Thomas, 31 C. A. 452, 72 S. W. 411.

Art. 4084. [2591] [2510] Minor having guardian may select another, when.—A minor having a guardian of his person or estate, appointed by the court, may, upon attaining the age of fourteen years, by application in writing filed in the court in which such guardianship is pending, select another guardian of his person or of his estate; and, if the court is satisfied that the person selected is suitable and competent, the appointment of such person as guardian shall be made, and the letters of guardianship to the former guardian shall be revoked; except, in the case where such former guardian has been appointed by the will or written declaration of the parent of such minor, in which case the minor shall not be permitted to select another guardian, unless such appointed guardian die, resign or is removed from such guardianship.

Right of infant to select another guardian.—A child 14 years of age cannot at will leave his or her guardian and choose another; in the absence of essential legal proceedings in the probate court. Grego v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 361.

Under this article and Art. 4084, the right of a minor to select his own guardian is absolute, if he does not select any of that class of persons excluded by the statute, and the person so selected is suitable and competent. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 673.

Under this article the question as between an acting guardian and the one selected by a minor ward is wholly a question of the competency of the guardian selected, and the fact that the acting guardian had acted at the oral request of the ward’s father. that to appoint the guardian selected would place his funds under control of one not related to him, and that the acting guardian had competently and profitably managed his estate were not material to and did not put in issue the competency of the guardian selected. id.

Art. 4085. [2592] [2511] Another guardian shall be appointed, when.—Whenever a person appointed guardian fails to qualify as such, according to law, or dies, resigns, or is removed, the court shall appoint another guardian in his stead.

Art. 4086. [2593] [2512] Guardian of minor continues in office, until, etc.—The guardian of a minor continues in office, unless sooner discharged according to law, until the minor arrives at the age of twenty-one years, or, being a female, marries, or until such minor shall die. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 178, sec. 38.]

Liability of guardian to minor attaining full age.—A guardian was required by order of court to give a new bond but failed to do so, whereupon another guardian was appointed, who qualified. when the minor arrived at full age he sued former guardian for waste committed by him. This he could do regardless of whether the former guardian was removed by order of court above referred to or not. It is not necessary to entitle the minor to sue after he becomes of age, that settlement should first be made and the discharge formally entered of record. Hix v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 422, 423.

Art. 4087. [2594] Guardian of person of unsound mind, etc., continues in office until, etc.—The guardian of a person of unsound mind or an habitual drunkard shall continue in office, unless sooner discharged according to law, until the ward shall be restored to sound mind or to correct, sober habits, as the case may be, or shall die. [Acts 1876, p. 175.]

Art. 4088. [2595] Court may appoint a receiver, when.—When, from any cause, the estate of a minor, person of unsound mind or of an habitual drunkard is without a guardian, and such estate is likely to injure or waste, the county judge shall, upon application or without application, either in term time or in vacation, appoint some suitable person to take charge of such estate, as receiver, until a guardian can be regularly appointed, and shall make such other orders as may be necessary for the preservation of such estate. Such appointment and orders shall be recorded in the minutes of the court, and shall specify the duties and powers of such receiver; and the provisions of the law governing in the case of a temporary administration upon the estate of a decedent shall govern in the case of a receiver appointed under this article, so far as the same are applicable. If, during the pendency of such receivership, the wants of such minor, person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard should require the use of the means of such estate for their subsistence, clothing or education, the county judge is hereby authorized, and it shall be his duty, upon application or without application, either in term time or in vacation, to appropriate by an order entered upon the minutes of his court, out of the effects of such estate, an amount sufficient for such purpose; said amount to be paid by such receiver upon such claims for the subsistence, clothing or education as may have been presented to such county judge and approved, and by him ordered to be paid. If, at any time, the receiver shall have on hand any money belonging to such estate beyond what may be necessary for the present necessities of the beneficiary of said estate and the current expenses thereof, he may, under the direction of the county judge, loan said money for such length of time as said county judge may direct, for the highest legal rate of interest that can be obtained therefor, in the manner and upon the security and terms provided in article 4141. [Acts 1885, p. 81.]

Liability of receiver.—A receiver of money of an infant held liable for interest having converted such funds to his own use. Brockschmidt v. Becker (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 111.
Art. 4089. [2596] [2515] Guardianship of estate of non-resident minor.—When a minor or person of unsound mind resides out of the state and owns property in this state, guardianship of the estate of such minor or person of unsound mind may be granted when it is made to appear that a necessity exists for such guardianship, in like manner as if such minor or person of unsound mind resided in this state; and the court making such grant of guardianship shall take all such action and make all such orders in reference to the estate of the ward, for the maintenance and support or education and care of such ward, out of the proceeds of such ward's estate, in like manner as if the ward had resided in this state and guardianship of the person of said ward had been granted by said court, and the ward had been sent abroad by the order of the court for education or treatment. [Id. p. 176, sec. 22.]

Art. 4090. [2597] [2516] Letters shall issue, when, and shall state, what.—When a person appointed guardian has qualified as such, by taking the oath and giving the bond required by law, the clerk shall issue to him a certificate, attested by the seal of the court, stating the fact of such appointment and qualification and date thereof; which certificate shall constitute letters of guardianship, and be evidence of the authority of the person to whom issued to act as guardian. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Setting aside order.—See notes under Art. 4083.

CHAPTER SIX
TEMPORARY GUARDIAN

Art. 4091. County judge may appoint temporary guardian of person and estate of minor, when, etc.—Whenever it may appear to the county judge that the interests of any minor and his or her estate, or either, require immediate appointment of a guardian, he shall, either in open court or in vacation, without citation and with or without written application therefor, appoint some suitable person temporary guardian of the person of such minor and his or her estate, or either, as the case may be; and the appointment so made may be made permanent, as hereinafter provided for. [Acts 1905, p. 18, sec. 1.]

Jurisdiction of court to appoint temporary guardian.—Under this chapter the power to appoint a temporary guardian is conferred on the judge, while the power to pass on a contest and make a permanent appointment is vested in the court; and an order of the court appointing a permanent guardian must be made in term time and entered in the minutes, as required by Arts. 4058, 4059, and under Arts. 3219, 4059, the appointment is a nullity, unless so entered. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1157.

Guardian ad litem.—See Title 37, Chapter 12.

Art. 4092. Order shall state what.—The order of the court in making such appointment shall state that unless the same is contested at the next regular term of the court, after service of citation, the same shall be made permanent. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4093. Court to determine contest; pending what, temporary guardian to act; exhibit where appointment set aside.—In case such appointment is contested, the court shall hear and determine the same as the law and the facts require; and, during the pendency of such contest, the person so appointed as temporary guardian shall continue to act as such; and, in case such appointment is set aside, the court shall require the person so appointed to make out, and file in court, under oath, a complete exhibit of the condition of such minor's estate, and what disposition, if any, he has made of the same, or any portion thereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4094. Appointment not effective till oath and bond.—Such appointments shall not take effect, until the person so appointed has taken the oath and given bond as required by law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4095. Upon appointment, citation to issue; requisites.—Immediately after such appointment so made, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to issue citation; which shall state the name of the person appointed, and when so appointed, and the name of the minor, or minor's estate, or both, as the case may be, and shall cite all persons interested in the welfare of such minor to appear at the term of court named in such citation, and contest such appointment if they so desire; and, that, if such appointment is not contested at the term of court so named in the citation, then the same shall become permanent. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4096. Provisions of title 51 apply.—That all the provisions of this title, relating to the guardianship of the persons and estates of minors shall apply to temporary guardianship of the persons and estates of minors, in so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

OATH AND BOND OF GUARDIANS

Art. 4097. Oath of guardian. Art. 4106. Bond of father or mother under twenty-one years of age valid.

Art. 4098. Bond of guardian of the person. Art. 4107. New bond may be required, etc.

Art. 4099. Bond of guardian of the estate. Art. 4108. Guardian shall cease to act as such, when.

Art. 4100. What sureties required. Art. 4109. Surety may be relieved in same manner, etc.

Art. 4101. Premium on surety company bond to be paid by guardian. Art. 4110. Oath and bond to be presented within twenty days.

Art. 4102. Surety company bonds validated. Art. 4111. Oath and bond to be recorded, etc.

Art. 4103. Bond where same person is guardian of both person and estate. Art. 4112. Sureties released, when, etc.

Art. 4104. No bond required when will, etc., has dispensed with it.

Art. 4105. Bond of married woman as guardian.

Article 4097. [2598] [2517] Oath of guardian.—The guardian shall take an oath faithfully to discharge the duties of guardian of the person (or of the estate, or of the person and estate, as the case may be) of the ward, according to law; which oath shall be indorsed on the bond of such guardian, and may be taken before any officer of the county in which the proceedings for such guardianship are pending, authorized to administer oaths generally. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 177, sec. 35.]

Art. 4098. [2599] [2518] Bond of guardian of the person.—The bond of a guardian of the person of a ward shall be in an amount to be fixed by the court granting such guardianship, not to exceed one thousand dollars, and shall be made payable to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending, and to be approved by such county judge, conditioned that such guardian will faithfully discharge the duties of guardian of the person of such ward. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4099. [2600] [2519] Bond of guardian of the estate.—The bond of the guardian of the estate of a ward shall be in an amount equal to double the estimated value of the personal property belonging to such estate, plus a reasonable amount, to be fixed at the discretion of the county judge, to cover rents, revenues and income derived from the renting or use of real estate belonging to such estate, payable to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending and to be approved by such county judge, conditioned that such guardian will faithfully discharge the duties of guardian of the estate of such ward according to law; and it shall be the duty of such county judge to annually examine into the condition of the estate of the ward, and the solvency of such guardian's bond, and to require such guardian at any time it may appear that such bond is not ample security to protect such estate and the interest of his ward; to execute another bond in accordance with law. And, in such case, he shall notify the guardian as in other cases; and should damage or loss result to the estate of any ward through the negligence of such county judge, to perform the duties herein-prescribed, such county judge shall be liable on his official bond, payable to such ward, in an amount equal to the loss due to such negligence. [Acts 1895, p. 231. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Rev. St. 1911, Art. 4099.]

Necessity of bond.—One appointed as guardian, but who does not take the oath, give the bond, or file any inventory, and whom the court does not recognize as such, is neither a guardian de jure nor de facto. Stephens v. Hewett, 22 C. A. 303, 54 S. W. 301.

Requisites and validity of bond.—Guardian's bond held not invalid, as being more numerous than required by law, Caddou v. Caddou (Civ. App.) 1911, 81 S. W. 635.

A guardian's bond, payable to the county judge, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as guardian, and appearing to be the bond of the guardian of certain minors, held a sufficient bond. Fahey v. Boulmay, 24 C. A. 279, 59 S. W. 300.

Bond of guardian of person and estate.—See notes under Art. 4103.

Amount.—The estimated value of the minor's estate made in the application for letter of guardianship is not binding on the court but the court can estimate the value, and where the bond is made in double the value of such estimate and the amount of the inventory is sufficient. Greer v. Ford, 31 C. A. 289, 72 S. W. 74.

Under this article the bond must be double the value of all the property, both real and personal. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

An order reducing a bond to less than double the estimated value of the estate is null and void and can be attacked collaterally. Id.

Liabilities of sureties.—A guardian who before his appointment obtains illegal possession of the ward's property and disposes of it is required to account therefor after his appointment, and the sureties on his bond would be liable for his default in this respect. Sargent v. Walls, 67 T. 483, 3 S. W. 721.

Where a guardian fails to pay money directed by the court to be paid to a certain person, such person has a right of action at once on his bond. Fahey v. Boulmay, 24 C. A. 279, 59 S. W. 300.

Where a father was appointed guardian of his children in 1879, from which time until 1890 their property brought no income, his sureties, in an action on a bond, cannot sue for charges for the support of the wards between these dates, in the absence of an order authorizing such charges by the guardian. Allen v. Stovall (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 87.

Where a guardian received money through the settlement of a legal controversy in which his wards were interested, it cannot be contended that a surety on the guardian's bond was not liable because the guardian had no authority to make the settlement. Allen v. Stovall, 64 T. 618, 63 S. W. 863; Stovall v. Allen, Id.

The fact that a guardian loaned the wards' money without leave of the court did not relieve the guardian or his surety from responsibility therefor. Freedman v. Vaille (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 322.

The fact that a guardian loaned to himself a part of the ward's estate did not pass the same out of his hands as guardian, nor affect the liability of the surety on his bond. Id.

A surety on a guardian's bond is not liable for interest, after the death of the guardian, until the ward demands a settlement from the surety. Id.

A surety on a guardian's bond is not liable for interest that the guardian could have realized by loaning money before the execution of the bond. Id.

A minor of interest in two wards equally interested in the estate cannot lawfully expend more than half of the estate for one of them, and the surety is presumed to know. Id.

Liability of a surety on a bond of a guardian of two wards whose estates are jointly administered determined. Id.

A guardian and her surety held liable for funds of her ward used without order of court, though for the ward's support. Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69.

It cannot be said that his bank deposit certificate of a tangible nature, payable at any time to sureties was equivalent to placing the banker's promissory note due on demand in their hands, and was practically placing that much money with them. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

Though when a guardian returned misappropriated money to the estate he intended to withdraw it again, his surety, having been discharged before it was again misappropriated, was not liable therefor. Id.

A guardian's successor having paid a judgment for which neither he nor the ward's estate was liable for the return of the purchase price of an unconfirmed sale of the ward's real estate, such succeeding guardian could not recover over against the original guardian's estate either in his own behalf or by subrogation to the rights of the purchaser. McMinn v. Cope ( Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 899.

Payment.—Where a guardian procured life insurance payable to his ward for the purpose of indemnifying his surety against liability, payment of such insurance to the ward is a satisfaction of the liability of the guardian's estate, or of his surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Schelsper. 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 871.

Actions on bonds.—Jurisdiction.—See notes under Art. 1706.

Articles 2777 and 2778 of the Revised Statutes of 1895 were held unconstitutional, and the guardian's bonds must be brought in the county or district court. Handy v. Woodhouse ( Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 40; Timmins v. Bonner, 85 T. 564.

Limitations.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 2.

Equities and defenses.—Sureties on bond held estopped to assert that the money dealt with was property of the wards, belonged to guardian personally. Frenkel v. Caddou ( Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 638.

Sureties on a guardian's bond held estopped to claim that he held the ward's property, misappropriated by him, as executor. Gillespie v. Crawford ( Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 621.

Surety on bond held bound, though he stated to the judge that he would sign if other parties would sign, but is told by the judge to sign unconditionally or not at all. Bopp v. Hansford, 38 C. A. 340, 65 S. W. 744.

Where the law provided for a new bond by guardian, and it was executed and approved, the sureties cannot, in an action thereon, question its validity because ordered without citation to guardian. Id.

Sureties on a guardian's bond held not entitled under the evidence to offset charges for the guardian's maintenance of the wards against damages for a breach of the bond. Allen v. Stovall, 94 T. 618, 63 S. W. 863; Stovall v. Allen, Id.

A surety on a guardian's bond held not entitled to certain credits. Freedman v. Vance ( Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 322.

Whatever credits a guardian is entitled to for disbursements may be shown as a defense to an action against the guardian's surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Schelsper. 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 871.

Where a guardian has converted a portion of the ward's property, to the extent of such conversion the surety of the guardian is not entitled to credit for amounts paid out for the benefit of the ward. Id.

Where a guardian was primarily liable on his bond, and on the guardian's death a certain sum was distributed to the ward, the guardian's surety was entitled to set such amount off against its liability for a defalcation committed by the guardian. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan ( Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 854.

An action upon a judgment against a guardian and the sureties on his bond held that defendants were estopped from attacking the validity of orders approving the bond, the guardian's reports, etc. Minchew v. Case ( Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 366.

Parties.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In an action on a guardian's second bond, it being shown that on removal he owed the estate a sum which he failed to pay on order and demand, there being no evidence that the defalcation occurred under the first bond, plaintiff need not show that default occurred on second bond. Hornung v. Schramm, 22 C. A. 327, 54 S. W. 616.

The failure of a guardian, or his representatives on his death, to make a proper settlement, is not enough to fix a liability either on the guardian or his surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Schelsper. 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 871.

Conclusiveness of decree against guardian.—A county court's decree against a guardian as to an amount due by him is binding on the sureties on his bond, though they were not cited in the proceeding. Fahey v. Boulmuy, 24 C. A. 275, 59 S. W. 300.

Art. 4100. [2601] [2520] What sureties required.—Any bond required by the provisions of this chapter to be given by a guardian shall be subscribed by such guardian, and by at least two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the county judge of the county in which the guardianship is pending; or such bond shall be subscribed by such guardian and by one or more corporations authorized and empowered to issue and execute guaranty or indemnity bonds, guaranteeing the fidelity of executors, and administrators and guardians, and authorized to carry on such business in this state by the laws thereof; and where a guardian's bond is made with a corporation or corporations as surety or sureties thereon, the provisions requiring two sureties shall not apply, but the same may be made with one corporation as surety, if the judge of the court shall deem such surety sufficient. [Acts 1897, p. 52. Acts 1876, p. 177. Acts 1899, p. 229.]

Bond of guardian of person and estate.—See notes under Art. 4103.

Art. 4101. [2601] [2520] Premium on surety company bond to be paid by guardian.—In all cases where such bond is made by any corporation authorized to issue and execute guaranty or indemnity bonds, the premium on such bond shall be paid by the guardian, and shall not be paid out of the estate of his ward. [Acts 1897, p. 52. Acts 1876, p. 177. Id.]

Art. 4102. [2601] [2520] Surety company bond validated.—All bonds of guardians heretofore made in this state with a corporation or corporations as surety or sureties thereon are hereby validated and made effectual in like manner to the same extent as if made under the provisions of the two preceding articles. [Acts 1897, p. 52. Acts 1876, p. 177. Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4103. [2602] [2521] Bond where same person is guardian of both person and estate.—Where the same person is appointed guardian of both the person and estate of a ward, only one bond shall be given by such guardian, varying the form thereof to suit the case. [Acts 1876, p. 177, sec. 34.]

Bond of guardian of persons and estates.—Where one bond is given by a guardian of both the persons and estates of the minors, which is in substantial compliance with Arts. 3316, 3319, it is sufficient to support a judgment against the sureties of such bond. Hornung v. Schramm, 22 C. A. 327, 54 S. W. 615.

Art. 4104. [2603] [2522] No bond required when will, etc., has dispensed with it.—When the surviving parent of a minor has provided by will, regularly probated, that a guardian appointed by such will shall not be required to give bond for the management of the estate devised by such will, the direction shall be observed, unless it be made to appear at any time that such guardian is mismanaging the property, or is about to betray his trust; in which case, upon proper proceedings had for that purpose, such guardian may be required by the court to give bond as in other cases. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 4105. [2604] [2523] Bond of married woman as guardian.—Where a married woman may be appointed guardian, she may, jointly with her husband, or without her husband, if he be absent from the state or refuse to join in the bond with her, execute such bond as guardian as the law requires, and acknowledge the same before any officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments of married women to written instruments; and such bond shall bind her estate in the same manner as if she were unmarried, but shall not bind her husband as surety unless he sign and be approved as such. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 4106. [2605] [2524] Bond of father or mother under twenty-one years of age valid.—A bond executed by the father or mother of a minor, as guardian of such minor, when such father or mother is under twenty-one years of age, shall be as valid as if he or she were of full age. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 4107. [2606] [2525] New bond may be required, etc.—The county judge shall have power to require new bonds of guardians in all cases where he has power to require new bonds of executors or administrators, and under the same rules and regulations, and with like effect.

New bond.—As under this statute a new bond of the guardian may be required under the same rules and regulations and with like effect as may be required of executors and administrators, and as, under Art. 3319, sureties on an executor's or administrator's bond may require a new bond to be given, so a new bond may be required of the guardian by his sureties. Miller v. Miller, 22 C. A. 362, 53 S. W. 362.

The circumstances under which a new bond may be required of executors and administrators, under Art. 3316, are made to apply to guardians by this article. Moore v. Hancorn (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

A county judge, under this article and Arts. 3316–3319, has no authority to decrease the amount of a guardian's bond. Id.

Art. 4108. [2607] [2526] Guardian shall cease to act as such, when.—When a guardian has been required to give a new bond, he shall thereafter refrain from acting as such guardian, except to preserve the property committed to his charge, until he has given such new bond and the same has been approved. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 4109. [2608] [2527] Surety may be relieved in same manner, etc.—A surety upon the bond of a guardian may be relieved from his bond, in the same manner and with like effect, as is provided in the case of a surety upon the bond of an executor or administrator. [Id.]

Art. 4110. [2609] [2528] Oath and bond to be presented within twenty days.—The oath and bond of a guardian shall be presented to the county judge within twenty days after the order appointing such guardian, either in term time or in vacation, for the action of such judge.

Art. 4111. [2610] [2529] Oaths and bonds shall be recorded.—The oaths of guardians and their bonds, when approved, shall be immediately filed with the clerk of the county court and recorded in the minutes of said court and safely preserved.

Art. 4112. [2611] [2530] Sureties released, when, etc.—When a new bond has been given and approved, the sureties upon the former bond of such guardian shall not be liable for any misconduct of such guardian occurring after the approval of such new bond, and shall be released from all liability for the acts of such guardian occurring after the approval of such new bond. [Id. sec. 44.]

Liability of original sureties.—If a guardian returns misappropriated funds to the estate and thus accounts for the ward's property, and his surety is discharged, and another bond is given by the guardian, and he afterwards withdraws the funds from the estate, which he may have intended to do when he borrowed the funds and deposited them with the estate, the surety on the first bond, who had been discharged, is not liable. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 689.

As affecting a former surety's liability for a guardian's misappropriation of funds, the succeeding sureties' possession of estate property was the possession of the ward. Id.

Release of by ward.—Release by a ward of his deceased guardian's estate without consideration or knowledge of his rights immediately after he became of age held not conclusive against his right to recover on deceased guardian's bond. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 894.

Release or discharge by court.—Action in reducing a guardian's bond to a sum considerably less than the value of the ward's property being null and void, an order discharging the sureties on the old bond was invalid. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 686.

The bond of a guardian held satisfied by acts of the guardian, so that an order of the court discharging the surety terminated its liability. Moore v. Hanscom, 101 T. 293, 106 S. W. 876.

After the death of a guardian, the probate court has no power to release the guardian's estate and his bondsmen from liability on the deceased guardian's bond. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 894.

CHAPTER EIGHT

INVENTORY, APPRAISEMENT AND LIST OF CLAIMS

Art. 4112. Inventory shall be returned, when.

4113. List of claims.

4114. Affidavit of guardian to inventory.

4115. Property held in common shall be specified.

4116. Additional inventory, when.

4117. Additional inventory may be corrected.

Art. 4118. Appraisers to be appointed in such case, when.

4119. Additional inventory to be required, when.

4120. Inventory may be corrected.

4121. Inventories, etc., evidence.

Article 4113. [2612] [2531] Inventory shall be returned in thirty days, etc.—It shall be the duty of every guardian of an estate, as soon as he shall have collected the estate, and within thirty days after he has taken the oath and given bond, with the assistance of any two of the appraisers appointed by the court, to make and return to the court a true and perfect inventory of all the property, real and personal, belonging to said estate, which has come to the knowledge of such guardian; and each article of such property shall be appraised by such appraisers, and the appraised value thereof stated opposite the same in the inventory; and the same shall be subscribed and sworn to by such appraisers before any officer of the county in which the inventory is made, authorized by law to administer oaths generally. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 179, sec. 50.]
Art. 4114. [2613] [2532] List of claims.—The guardian shall also make out and attach to such inventory and appraisement a list of all claims due or to become due belonging to the estate. Such list shall state:

1. The name of each person indebted to the estate.
2. The nature of such indebtedness, whether by note, bill, bond or other written obligation, or by account or verbal contract.
3. The date of such indebtedness, and the date when the same was due or will be due.
4. The amount of each claim and the rate of interest thereon, and the time for which the same bears interest. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 4115. [2614] [2533] Affidavit of guardian to inventory, etc.—The guardian shall annex to the inventory, appraisement, and list of claims, an affidavit in substance as follows: "I, A B, guardian of the estate of C D, do solemnly swear that the inventory and list of claims annexed hereto are a true and perfect inventory and list of all the property, real and personal, belonging to said estate that has come to my knowledge;" which affidavit shall be subscribed and sworn to by such guardian before some officer of the county in which the same is made who is authorized to administer oaths generally.

Art. 4116. [2615] [2534] Property held in common shall be specified.—If any property be held or owned by the ward in common with another or others, it shall be distinctly stated in the inventory or list of claims, as the case may be, the items thereof that are so held or owned, the names and the relationship, if any, of the other part owner or owners, and the interest or share of such ward in such property. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 4117. [2616] [2535] Additional inventory, when.—Whenever any guardian of an estate shall discover any property belonging to such estate which has not been inventoried and appraised, or any claim that has not been embraced in the list of claims, he shall forthwith make out and return to the court an additional inventory or list of claims, embracing such property or claims, as the case may be. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 3890.]

Additional inventories.—Under this article and Arts. 4118, 4119, additional inventories are allowed, but in each instance the increase and not the decrease of the value of the estate is contemplated. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 671.

Art. 4118. [2617] [2536] Appraisers to be appointed in such case, when, etc.—Where an additional inventory of property has been returned by the guardian, the court shall appoint appraisers to appraise such property, as in the case of original inventories, or such appraisers may be appointed before the return of such additional inventory, either in term time or in vacation, by an order of the court entered upon the minutes.

See notes under Art. 4117.

Art. 4119. [2618] [2537] Additional inventory, etc., may be required, when.—Whenever it shall be shown to the county judge that any guardian has not returned to the court an inventory and appraisement and list of claims of all the property belonging to his ward, such judge shall cause such guardian to be cited, either in term time or in vacation, and require him to return to the court an additional inventory and appraisement, or an additional list of claims, as the case may be, in the same manner as in the case of original inventories and appraisements and lists of claims are required to be returned, and within the same time; but such inventory and appraisement and list of claims shall only embrace such property as has been omitted in previous inventories and appraisements and lists of claims. [Id.]

See notes under Art. 4117.
Art. 4120. [2619] [2538] Inventories, etc., may be corrected, etc. —Erroneous inventories, appraisements and lists of claims may be corrected, and new appraisements may be ordered, under the same rules and regulations as are provided in the case of estates of decedents.

Effect of error in inventory.—Where a father, as guardian of his minor children, included in the inventory his own real estate, he was not thereby devested of title, or estopped to deny the correctness of the inventory. Koppelmann v. Koppelmann, 54 T. 40, 57 S. W. 570.

Art. 4121. [2620] [2539] Inventories, etc., evidence.—All inventories, appraisements or lists of claims, when approved by the court, or the record thereof, or copies of the same or of the record thereof, duly certified under the seal of the clerk of the county court having charge thereof, may be given in evidence in any suit by or against such guardian, but shall not be conclusive against the ward, if it be shown that there is other property or claims of such ward not included therein, or that the estate or claims were actually worth more than the value at which they are set down in such inventories, appraisements or lists. [Id. P. D. 3900.]

Article 4122. [2621] [2540] Of the person.—The guardian of the person is entitled to the charge and control of the person of the ward, and the care of his support and education, and his duties shall correspond with his rights. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 75.]

Rights of parents.—See notes under Title 94.

Art. 4123. [2622] [2541] Same subject.—It is the duty of the guardian of the person of a minor to take care of the person of such minor, to treat him humanely, and to see that he is educated in a manner suitable to his condition, and, if necessary for his support, that he learn a trade or adopt some useful profession. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4124. [2623] [2542] Guardian of the estate.—The guardian of the estate is entitled to the possession and management of all property belonging to the ward, to collect all debts, rents, or claims due such ward, to enforce all obligations in his favor, to bring and defend suits by or against him; but, in the management of the estate, the guardian shall be governed by the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 76.]

Possession and management of estate.—The guardian has no authority by special agreement to bind his ward in a partition of the estate in which he is interested, unless ordered or sanctioned by the court. Rainey v. Chambers, 56 T. 17.

A guardian cannot contract with an attorney for legal services in the recovery of land to share the recovery with such attorney. Glassgow v. McKinnon, 79 T. 116, 14 S. W. 1050.

A guardian cannot convey property to his ward in discharge of debt without his knowledge or assent so as to protect such property against other creditors. Cabell v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 81 T. 194, 16 S. W. 811.

A guardian has no authority to release a security for a debt due his ward and take other security instead. Freiberg v. De Lamar, 27 S. W. 151, 7 C. A. 263.

A contract by a widow as guardian of her children, for location of a headright certificate, held valid. Stone v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1077.

Contract by guardian for attorney's services, which could be performed by any person of business capacity, held binding only on guardian. Moore v. Bannerman (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 825.

Guardian cannot compromise a claim without authority from court. Davis v. Beall, 21 C. A. 183, 50 S. W. 1086.

Art. 4125. [2624] [2543] Of both person and estate.—The guardian of both person and estate has all the rights and powers, and shall perform all the duties of the guardian of the person, and of the guardian of the estate. [Id. sec. 79.]

Art. 4126. [2625] [2544] Guardian of the estate shall manage same prudently.—It is the duty of the guardian of the estate to take care of and manage such estate as a prudent man would manage his own property; and he shall account for all such rents, profits and revenues as the estate would have produced by such prudent management. [Id. sec. 77.]

Management of estate.—Under the act of May 18, 1848, containing a similar provision, it was held that a guardian was authorized to employ persons to find and locate a land certificate in consideration of an interest in the land. Ellis v. Stone, 25 S. W. 405, 4 C. A. 167; Wren v. Harris, 78 T. 349, 14 S. W. 696.

Art. 4127. [2626] [2545] Duty to collect estate.—It is the duty of the guardian of the estate, immediately after receiving letters, to collect, and take into possession, the personal property, books, title papers, and other papers belonging to the estate. [Id. sec. 48.]

Collection of assets.—Where the widow in her own behalf and that of her minor children had by contract which was filed in the case transferred to her attorneys one-half of claim for injuries which caused death of husband and father, the court could not in rendering judgment on verdict of jury giving damages award any part of the recovery in favor of the minors to the attorneys. No one had any right to receive or dispose of the money except a duly appointed guardian who would pay it out under the orders of the probate court. In case of such an erroneous judgment appellate court will set it aside and render proper judgment. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 38 C. A. 858, 80 S. W. 1036.

Art. 4128. [2627] [2546] Shall use diligence to collect claims, etc. —The guardian of the estate shall use due diligence to collect all claims or debts owing to the ward, and to recover possession of all property to which the ward has a title or claim; provided, there is a reasonable prospect of collecting such claims or debts, or of recovering such property; and, if he neglects to use such diligence, he and his sureties shall be liable for all damages occasioned by such neglect. [Id. sec. 78.]

Collection of claims.—A guardian need not bring suit on his predecessor's bond for money properly expended, though the vouchers are not in proper shape. —Young v. Gray, 65 T. 99.

Guardians are not liable for failure to collect claims due the estate unless they neglect to use diligence. Read v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 79.

— Contracts for.—A guardian has no power to contract with an attorney to share land recovered in payment for legal services in suit therefor. Glassov v. McKinnon, 79 T. 116, 14 S. W. 3950.

— Authority to compromise.—A guardian cannot compromise a claim of his ward without authority of the probate court. Davis v. Beall, 32 C. A. 406, 74 S. W. 325.

— Property subject to accounting.—A guardian, who before his appointment obtains illlegal possession of the ward's property and disposes of it, must account therefor after his appointment. Sargent v. Wallis, 67 T. 483, 3 S. W. 721.

— Authority to discount notes.—Where a guardian had no authority to discount vendor's lien notes to the maker, such discount did not relieve the latter from liability, nor the vendor from the lien. Brown v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 944.

The maker of vendor's lien notes belonging to a minor's estate, discounted by the guardian without authority, held not entitled to a credit for the amount paid the guardian as a payment on the notes. Id.

Individual interest in transaction.—A father's compromise of his own claim against a railroad company for injuries to his minor son for the sum of $2,500, under an agreement to settle both claims for $4,000, gave him such an adverse interest as guardian in the settlement of his son's claim as to make such settlement void, though he had received his own money before his appointment as guardian and the court's approval of the settlement of the son's claim. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

Ratification of unauthorized act.—See notes under Title 94.

Art. 4129. [2628] [2547] May take property for debt due ward, when.—The guardian of the estate may receive property in payment of any debt due to the ward, in all cases where he shall be of the opinion — that the interest of his ward will be advanced thereby, being responsible for a prudent exercise of the discretion hereby conferred. [Id. sec. 92.]

Art. 4130. [2629] [2548] Guardian of estate shall pay to guardian of person, etc.—When different persons have the guardianship of the person and estate of a ward, the guardian of the estate must pay over to the guardian of the person, semi-annually, a sufficient amount of money, to be fixed by the court, for the education and maintenance of the ward, and, on failure, shall be compelled to do so by order of the court, after being duly cited. [Id. sec. 93.]

Art. 4131. [2630] [2549] Education and maintenance of ward.—The court may direct the guardian of the person to expend, for the education and maintenance of his ward, a specific sum, although such sum may exceed the income of the ward’s estate; but, without such direction of the court, the guardian shall not be allowed, in any case, for the education and maintenance of the ward, more than the clear income of the estate. [Id. sec. 94.]

In general.—The rule prescribed in this article is mandatory. Smythe v. Lumkin, 62 T. 234.

Expenses incurred by guardian for support of ward in excess of income cannot be allowed unless made under direct order of court. Eastland v. Williams’ Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

This article is mandatory, and in the absence of previous direction by the court the guardian cannot be allowed to expend more for the education and maintenance of the ward than the clear income of the estate. Read v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 78.

An order directing the guardian to expend for the education and maintenance of his wards so much of the corpus of the estate “as may be necessary” for such purpose held void, under this article. Wheeler v. Duke, 29 C. A. 20, 67 S. W. 909.

Without an order of court entered upon the minutes the guardian cannot go beyond the clear income for the education and maintenance of the ward. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 20.

A guardian may not, without leave of court, use the corpus of the ward’s estate for his maintenance. Freedman v. Vallie (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 322.

Obligation of parent.—A mother of limited means supporting her minor children can charge funds belonging to them into her hands with reimbursing her for such expenses without the orders of the probate court. Frybe v. Tierman, 76 T. 286, 13 S. W. 370.

While it is the duty of the father to provide for the support and education of his child out of his own means, he cannot use the income of the child for that purpose unless authorized by the court. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 532.

Amount of allowance.—Expenses in excess of the income of a ward’s estate will not be allowed a guardian except upon previous orders directing such expenses. Eastland v. Williams’ Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

The court cannot allow expenditures made by the guardian for the education and maintenance of the ward in excess of the income of the ward’s estate except in cases where the court has directed the expenditure of a specific sum. Blackwood v. Blackwood’s Estate, 92 T. 478, 49 S. W. 1045.

The guardian cannot be allowed, for the education and maintenance of the ward, more than the clear income of the estate, without an order of the court. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 157.

Order for allowance.—Necessity.—See notes under Art. 4060.

Under this article in connection with Art. 4060, the guardian is not entitled to an allowance for expenses paid out in excess of the income of the ward’s estate unless an order authorizing such expenditure is entered upon the minutes of the court. Blackwood v. Blackwood’s Estate (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 483.

Sufficiency.—A mere verbal order from the county judge is insufficient. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

Art. 4132. [2631] [2550] Property held in common with others.—If the ward holds or owns any property in common, or as part owner with another person, the guardian shall be entitled to possession thereof.
Art. 4133  GUARDIAN AND WARD

in common with the other part owner or owners in the same manner as other owners in common, or joint owners, would be entitled. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 4133. [2632] [2551] Guardian shall not dispute ward’s title, except, etc.—The guardian, or his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns shall not dispute the right of the ward to any property that shall have come into the possession of such guardian, as guardian, except such property as shall have been recovered from the guardian, or there be a personal action pending on account of it. [Id. sec. 69.]

CHAPTER TEN

RENTING AND LEASING PROPERTY, AND INVESTING AND LOANING MONEY, OF WARD

Art. 4134. Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of court. Art. 4144. Judge to investigate investment, etc.

4135. Duty of guardian to rent out property, when, etc. 4145. Order of court on such application.

4136. May rent improved property, other than, etc., without order. 4146. Contract of investment must be approved by the court.

4137. Court may order improved property rented. 4147. Title to be made to ward, and property to be inventoried, etc.

4138. Unimproved land may be leased. 4148. Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not rent land.

4139. Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not rent land. 4149. County judge shall see that fund is invested, etc.

4140. Money shall be invested, how. 4150. Guardian’s liability for interest.

4141. Security for money loaned; approval by county judge, order, etc. 4151. Shall not be personally responsible for money loaned, when.

4142. County judge not relieved from responsibility on bond. 4152. Shall report renting to court.

4152b. Application to judge; notice; hearing, approval and order.

Article 4134. [2633] [2552] Guardian may carry on or rent farm, etc., under order of the court.—If there be a farm, plantation, manufactory or business belonging to the estate, and if the same be not required to be at once sold for the payment of debts, it shall be the duty of the guardian of such estate, upon an order of the court, to carry on such farm, plantation, manufactory or business or rent the same, as shall appear for the best interest of the estate. In coming to a determination, the court shall take into consideration the condition of the estate, and the necessity that may exist for the future sale of such property for the payment of debts or the education and maintenance of the ward, and shall not extend the time of renting any such property beyond what may consist with the interests of the estate and of the ward. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182, sec. 86.]

Liability of guardian for rent.—Where a guardian, without order of court, cultivated a farm belonging to the ward, and appropriated the proceeds, he was liable to the estate for the reasonable rental value of the farm. Farlin & Orendorff Co. v. Webster, 17 C. A. 561, 45 S. W. 569.

Death of guardian as terminating lease.—A lease of an infant’s lands by a guardian of the person, but not of the estate, expires with the death of the guardian. Maxwell v. Urban, 22 C. A. 566, 55 S. W. 1124.

Art. 4135. [2634] [2553] Duty of guardian to rent out property, when, etc.—When an order of the court is made directing property to be rented, it shall be the duty of the guardian to obey such order and rent the property for the best price that can be obtained therefor, taking good security for the payment of the rent, and that the tenant will not commit, nor permit any other person to commit, waste on the rented premises. [Id. sec. 87.]

Art. 4136. [2635] [2554] May rent improved property other than, etc., without order.—The guardian may rent the improved property of the ward, other than such property as is named in article 4134 without an order of the court authorizing him to do so, and either at public or private renting; but, when he rents without an order of court, he shall be required to account to the estate of the ward for the reasonable value of the rent of such property for the time the same was so rented.

Art. 4137. [2636] [2555] Court may order improved property rented, etc.—The court may order the farm, plantation, manufactory, business, or any improved property of the estate to be rented, either at public or private renting, for any length of time, not exceeding one year, and upon such terms and conditions as the court may deem for the best interests of the ward.

Art. 4138. [2637] [2556] Unimproved land may be leased.—If the ward own wild or unimproved real property, the guardian may let out the same on improvement leases, under order of the court, for such length of time, and upon such terms and conditions as the court may direct in its order. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 4139. [2638] [2557] Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not rent land out, etc.—Any person, upon complaint in writing filed with the clerk of the county court, may cause the guardian of the estate of a ward to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why he should not be required to rent out the farm, plantation or other improved property of the ward, or why he should not be required to lease for improvement the wild or unimproved lands of the ward; and, upon the hearing of such complaint, the court shall make such order as may, in his judgment, be for the best interest of the estate.

Art. 4140. [2639] [2558] Money may be invested, how.—If, at any time, the guardian of the estate shall have on hand any money belonging to the ward beyond what may be necessary for the education and maintenance of such ward, such guardian shall invest such money in bonds of the United States, of the State of Texas, of any county of the State of Texas, of any district or subdivision of any county of the State of Texas, of any incorporated city or town in the State of Texas or loan the same for the highest rate of interest that can be obtained therefor. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182, sec. 89. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4140, Rev. St. 1911.]

Loans.—Where a guardian deposits money in bank and places the certificate in the hands of surety on his bond to hold while he is on the bond, the county court has the authority to direct the disposition by the guardian, but the guardian has no legal authority to loan or invest it except by direction of the county court. The money belongs to the estate. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 888.

That a loan by a guardian was not made and secured strictly according to statute could not prevent a recovery by the guardian on a note given for the loan. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1016.

Art. 4141. [2640] [2559] Security for money loaned; examination by attorney.—When the guardian loans the money he shall take the note of the borrower, the same to be secured by mortgage with power of sale on unencumbered real estate situated in this state, worth at least twice the amount of such note, or on collateral notes secured by vendor's lien notes, as collateral, or may purchase vendor's lien notes; provided, that at least one-half has been paid, in cash or its equivalent, on the land for which said notes were given.

When the guardian loans the money of the ward as provided in this article, or invests the money of the ward as provided in this article or invests the money of the ward as provided in article 4140 of this chapter, as amended, he shall not pay over or transfer any money in consummation of such investment, loan or purchase until he shall have submitted, or caused to have been submitted, all bonds, notes, mortgages, documents, abstracts and other papers pertaining to such investment, loan or purchase to some reputable attorney for examination, and shall have received an opinion in writing from such attorney to the effect that all papers pertaining to such investment, loan or purchase are regular and that the title to such bonds, notes or real estate is good. That the attorney making such examination shall be paid a reasonable fee, not to exceed one per cent of the amount so invested or loaned, which shall be paid by the guardian out of the funds of the ward. [Acts 1876, p. 182. Acts 1897, p. 196. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4141, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4142. County judge not relieved from responsibility on bond.—Nothing contained in the last preceding article shall relieve the county judge from responsibility on his bond as now provided by law. [Acts 1876, p. 182. Acts 1897, p. 196.]

Art. 4143. [2641] [2560] Investing money in real estate.—When the guardian may think it best for his ward to have any surplus money on hand invested in real estate, he shall file an application in writing in the court where the guardianship is pending, asking for an order of such court authorizing him to make such investment. Such application shall state the nature of the investment sought to be made, and the reasons why the guardian is of the opinion that it would be for the benefit of the ward to have the same made. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182.]

Liability of vendors for unauthorized investment.—When an investment in land has been made without the order of court, the vendors are liable for the funds so received. Smoot v. Richards, 8 C. A. 146, 27 S. W. 967.

Art. 4144. [2642] [2561] Judge to investigate investment, etc.—When any such application is filed, the attention of the judge of the court shall be called thereto and he shall take the matter under consideration and proceed to make such investigation as may be necessary to obtain all the facts concerning the investment; but shall not render an opinion or make any order on the application until after the expiration of five days from date of filing. [Acts Aug. 18, 1876, p. 182. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4144, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4145. [2643] [2562] Order of the court on such application.—Upon the hearing of any such application, either at a regular term of the court or in vacation, if the court be satisfied that such investment will be beneficial to the ward, an order authorizing the same to be made, shall be entered upon the minutes, which order shall specify the investment to be made, and shall contain such other directions as the court may think it advisable to make. [Id., amending Art. 4145, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4146. [2644] [2563] Contract of investment must be approved by the court.—When any contract has been made for the investment of money in real estate, under order of the court such contract shall be reported in writing to the court by the guardian, and it shall be the duty of the court to inquire fully into the same, and if satisfied that such investment will benefit the estate of the ward, and that the title to such real estate is valid and unencumbered, the court may approve the contract and authorize the guardian to pay over the money in performance of the same; but no money shall be paid out by the guardian on any such contract until such contract has been approved by the court by an order to that effect upon the minutes of the court; and this order may be made at a regular term or in vacation. [Id., amending Art. 4146, Rev. St. 1911.]

In general. The contract must be approved by the court. Hurst v. Marshall, 75 T. 452, 13 S. W. 33.

As to investments of ward's money, see Smoot v. Richards, 8 C. A. 146, 27 S. W. 967.

Art. 4147. [2645] [2564] Title to be made to ward and property to be inventoried, etc.—When the money of the ward has been invested in real estate, the title to such real estate shall be made to such ward; and such real estate shall be inventoried, appraised, managed and accounted for by the guardian as other real estate of the ward.

Art. 4148. [2646] [2565] Guardian may be cited to show cause why he should not invest or loan money.—When there is any surplus money of the estate in the hands of the guardian, any person may, by complaint in writing filed in the court in which such guardianship is pending, cause such guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of such court, to show cause why such surplus money should not be invested or loaned at interest, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter; and, upon the hearing of such complaint, the court shall enter upon the minutes such order as the law and the facts may require.

Art. 4149. [2647] [2566] County judge shall see that money is invested, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge, whenever it is made known to him in any manner that there is surplus money belonging to the ward in the hands of the guardian, to cause such guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why said money should not be invested, or why it should not be loaned at interest under the provisions of this chapter.

Art. 4150. [2648] [2567] When guardian is liable for interest.—If the surplus money in the hands of the guardian belonging to the ward can not be invested or loaned at interest as directed in this chapter, after due diligence to do so by the guardian, he shall be liable for the principal only of such money. But, if the guardian neglects to invest such money or loan the same at interest when he could do so by the use of reasonable diligence, he shall be liable for the principal and also for the highest legal rate of interest upon such principal for the time he so neglected to invest or loan the same. [Acts 1876, p. 182, sec. 90.]

Interest on funds of estate.—A guardian is chargeable with legal interest on money belonging to his ward which, by reasonable diligence, he could have invested or loaned. Smythe v. Lumpkin, 62 T. 242.

A guardian, failing to lend the ward's money, is liable for 10 per cent. interest, if by ordinary diligence he could have made the loan. Freedman v. Vailie (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 222.

Where a guardian has funds of the estate in his hands which he could have loaned, but did not, he is liable for the highest rate of legal interest (10 per cent.) for the time the money was not loaned. Logan v. Gay (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 593.

A guardian liable for funds of her ward expended without order of court held liable in addition for interest on the money at 10 per cent. from the time when she could have loaned the money, with order of court. Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69.

It is the guardian's duty to loan the ward's money as required by Art. 4146, and if he neglects to do so, he is liable for the highest rate of interest for the time he neglected to do so. This statute is imperative. Whitfield v. Burrell (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 157.

Compound interest.—Compound interest is allowed to reach profits. If the trust fund has been invested, the guardian will be accountable for the profits or for interest, at the option of the cestui que trust. Reed v. Timmins, 52 T. 84.

Art. 4151. [2649] [2568] Shall not be personally responsible for money loaned, when.—The guardian shall not be personally responsible for money loaned under the direction of the court, on security approved by the court, in case of the inability of the borrower to pay the same, and the failure of the security, unless such guardian has been guilty of fraud or negligence in respect to such loan or the collection of the same; in which case, he and the sureties upon his bond shall be liable for whatever loss his ward may have sustained by reason of such fraud or negligence. [Id. sec. 91.]

Liability of guardian for bank deposit.—A guardian, depositing in a bank regarded solvent funds of the ward until invested under order of court, is not liable for a loss of the money through failure of the bank, but is liable for funds deposited in a bank for a fixed period, without an order of the probate court, in case of a loss of the money through a failure of the bank. Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69.

Art. 4152. [2650] [2569] Shall report renting, etc., to court.—The guardian shall report to the court in writing, and verified by his affidavit, the renting or leasing of property belonging to the estate, or the investment or loaning of money belonging to the estate, within thirty days after any such transaction, stating fully the facts of such transaction.
Art. 4152a. Guardian may make mineral leases.—That guardians of the estates of minors, or of any other persons, appointed under the laws of the state of Texas, which have heretofore been appointed or which may hereafter be appointed, shall have the authority to make mineral leases for the estates of their wards. [Acts 1913, p. 261, sec. 1.]

Art. 4152b. Application to judge; notice; hearing, approval and order.—That whenever a guardian of the estate of any person shall desire to make a mineral lease upon the real estate of his ward, he shall apply to the county judge of the county where such guardianship is pending for authority to make and execute such mineral lease, and such application shall be in writing and sworn to by such guardian, and the county judge shall either in term time or in vacation hear such application, and shall require proof as to the necessity and advisability for such mineral lease, and if he shall approve the same, he shall enter an order on the minutes of the probate court, either in term time or vacation, authorizing the guardian to make such mineral lease, and the terms upon which the same shall be made; provided, that no lease shall extend beyond the time that the ward shall come of age.

Before such application shall be heard by the county judge, notice of such application shall be given by the guardian for one week prior to the time such application shall be heard, by publishing same in some newspaper of the county where said guardianship is pending for one issue of said paper, and such notice shall state when and where such application shall be heard.

It is further provided that after notice and hearing of said application and the granting of the same by the probate court, that said guardian shall be fully authorized to make a mineral lease upon the real estate of his ward in accordance with the judgment of the county court acting upon the same. [Id. sec. 2.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

SALES

Art. 4153. Certain property to be sold.
4154. Sales of wild stock.
4155. When real estate may be sold.
4156. Guardian shall apply for order to sell real estate, when.
4157. Guardian shall be cited, when.
4158. Hearing on applications for sale of real estate.
4159. [Repealed.]
4160. Considerations in ordering sale.
4161. May be for cash or credit, as court deems the advantage.
4162. Order of sale shall state, what.
4163. In what county real estate sold.
4164. Terms of sale.

Art. 4165. Guardian shall not purchase property belonging to the ward.
4166. Bidder failing to comply with bid, liable, when.
4167. Sales may be continued.
4168. Guardian’s sales governed by the same rules as executions.
4169. Notice of private sale not required.
4170. Sale of mortgaged property to be under terms as court may direct.
4171. Mortgage dischargeable without sale.
4172. Guardian may reduce rate of interest on ward’s debts, how.
4173. Renew evidence of debt, when.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 4153. [2651] [2570] Perishable property shall be sold.—The guardian of the estate, as soon as practicable after appraisement, shall apply for an order of the court to sell at public or private sale, for cash or on credit not exceeding six months, all the personal property belonging to the ward that is liable to perish, waste or deteriorate in value, or that will be an expense or disadvantage to the estate to keep on hand. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 80.]

Art. 4154. [2652] [2571] Sales of wild stock.—If the guardian shall represent to the court on oath that there is stock belonging to the estate which he is unable to collect or command, the court may order that the same be sold at public auction, on such credit as the court may deem reasonable, not exceeding twelve months, taking notes bearing interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the day of sale, with good and sufficient security for the purchase money. Such sale shall be advertised, made, returned and acted upon by the court the same as sales of real estate. [Id. secs. 84, 85.]

Art. 4155. [2653] [2572] When real estate may be sold.—When the income of the ward’s estate, and the personal property thereof, and the proceeds of previous sales, are insufficient for the education and maintenance of the ward or to pay the debts against the estate, the guardian of the person, or of the estate, or any person holding a valid claim against the estate, may, by application in writing to the court in which such guardianship is pending, ask for an order for a sufficient amount of real estate to be sold to make up the deficiency, or when the property of the ward consists in whole or in part of real estate that is non-revenue bearing property and is not calculated to have any reasonable increase in value or when property of the ward consists in whole or in part of an undivided interest in real estate and the guardian believes it to be to the best interest of the estate of the ward to sell such real estate he may, by application in writing to the court in which such guardianship is pending ask for an order for such real estate to be sold. [Acts Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, secs. 101, 102. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4155, Rev. St. 1911.]

Authority of foreign court.—A curatrix, acting under authority of a probate court of Louisiana, could not make a valid conveyance of land belonging to the ward and situated in Texas. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 57, 75 S. W. 894.

Sale by person other than guardian.—Filing of transcript showing appointment of foreign guardian being not to authorize the domestic tribunal to order sale of ward’s realty by person not appointed guardian. Kelsey v. Trioler, 32 C. A. 177, 74 S. W. 64.

Sale of part or whole of land.—In an action to set aside the sale of land by the guardian of an insane person, where the property sold was in one parcel, the propriety of selling part of it instead of the whole was a question for the county judge in ordering the sale. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 119 S. W. 762.

Sale of interests of other tenants in common.—The guardian of a minor tenant in common cannot sell the interests of others in the land merely because all of the interests so held in common are chargeable with common debts. Broom v. Pearson, 95 T. 499, 85 S. W. 790.

Disposition of proceeds.—The proceeds of the sales are not to be paid to the wards, but should be paid out by the guardian or his successor under orders of the court for the purposes only which authorize the court to have the land sold. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelper, 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 872.

Art. 4156. [2654] [2573] Guardian shall apply for order to sell real estate, when.—It is the duty of the guardian to apply for such order whenever it appears that a necessity exists therefor, and to set forth fully in his application such necessity, and accompanying the application with an exhibit, under oath, showing fully the condition of the estate. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 105.]

Application in general.—A guardian’s sale held not invalid because the application set forth an object not authorized by statute. Driggs v. Grantham (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 408.

Oath.—A sale of land made by a guardian under order of the court held not avoidable on the ground that the oath described him as “guardian,” without also reciting “of the person and estate.” Greer v. Ford, 91 C. A. 389, 72 S. W. 72; Same v. Morrison, 1d.

Art. 4157. [2655] [2574] Guardian shall be cited, when.—When the application for the sale of real estate is filed by any other person than the guardian of the estate, the guardian of the estate shall be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why the order should not be made, and also to present to the court an exhibit, under oath, showing fully the condition of the estate.

Art. 4158. [2656] [2575] Hearing on application for sale of real estate.—Whenever an application for the sale of real estate is filed, it shall be the duty of the clerk to immediately call the attention of the judge of the court in which such guardianship is pending to the filing of the application, and the judge shall designate a day to hear such application, which may be heard in term time or vacation, provided, such application shall remain on file at least five days before any orders are made and the judge may continue such hearing from time to time until he shall have been satisfied as to the facts concerning the application. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 104. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4158, Rev. St. 1911.]

Validity of notice of application.—In an action to set aside a sale of an insane person's land by her guardian, objections that only 15 days had elapsed between posting notice of application for sale and the return thereof, and that reference to the ward's name in the notice of application for sale was somewhat different from the designation of the estate over which the guardianship was exercised, held immaterial. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 782.

Art. 4159. Repealed. See Acts 1913, p. 321, repealing this article and amending articles 4099, 4140, 4141, 4144, 4145, 4146, 4155, 4158, 4161, 4162, 4163, 4164, 4173, 4177, 4181, 4187, 4188, and 4281.

Art. 4160. [2658] [2577] Advantage of estate to be considered in ordering sale.—When a sale of real estate is ordered, it shall be of the property which the court may deem most advantageous to the estate to be sold. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 181, sec. 103.]

Art. 4161. [2659] [2578] May be sold on what terms.—A sale of real estate may be ordered to be made for cash or for part cash and part credit, at public auction or private sale, as may appear to the court to be to the best interest of the estate. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 9. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4161, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4162. [2660] [2579] Order of sale shall state what.—An order for the sale of real estate shall state:

1st. The property to be sold, giving such description of it as will identify it.

2nd. Whether it is to be sold at public auction or at private sale, and, if at public auction, the time and place of such sale.

3rd. The necessity and purpose of such sale.

4th. It shall require the guardian to file a good and sufficient bond, subject to the approval of the court, in an amount equal to twice the amount for which such real estate is sold.

5th. It shall require the sale to be made and the report thereof returned to the court in accordance with law. [Acts 1876, p. 181, sec. 100. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4162, Rev. St. 1911.]

Necessity for order.—Where there was no order of the county court for nor confirmation of a sale of land by a guardian and the report of the sale was disapproved by the county court, the guardian had no authority to convey the interest of the wards. Rippy v. Harlow, 46 C. A. 52, 101 S. W. 861.

An order of sale is essential to the validity of a guardian's sale. Teague v. Swasey, 46 C. A. 151, 102 S. W. 458.

Validity in general.—The validity of an order is not affected by the fact that the application therefor cannot be shown. Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

Order for guardian's sale held irregular, and not void. Greer v. Ford, 31 C. A. 389, 72 S. W. 73; Same v. Morrison, 1d.

Description of property in order.—Under the statute in force in 1860 the validity of a sale of real estate made by the guardian under the order of the probate court was not affected by the failure to accurately describe the land in the order, the statute being merely directory. Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

Indefiniteness of description of land belonging to a ward, ordered to be sold by his guardian, held not material where the land was ordered sold at private sale. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

Extending time of sale.—The court has power to extend the time of sale without a written application therefor. Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 599, 14 S. W. 202.

Order of sale as conclusion of legal necessity therefor.—Construing an order of sale and vacating In 1866, it is held that an order of sale and confirmation of it are conclusive of its legal necessity, and that the sale passed the title. Weems v. Masterton, 80 T. 45, 15 S. W. 990; Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 599, 14 S. W. 202.

The sale.—A purchaser under an order of the court for sale of property of an estate need not look beyond such order and inquire as to its regularity, or whether facts exist supporting such order. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44.

Art. 4163. [2661] [2580] In what county real estate shall be sold.

—All private sales of real estate shall be made in the county where the guardianship is pending; all public sales of real estate shall be made in the county where the real estate is situated and such public sales shall be advertised and the sale made as is provided in section 4168 of chapter 11, title 64, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1911. [Acts of 1876, p. 181, sec. 108. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4163, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4164. [2662] [2581] Terms of sale.—The terms of sale of real estate when made partly on credit shall be that the cash payment be not less than one-third of the purchase price, and that the purchaser give his note or notes for the deferred payments maturing in equal annual amounts, the last note to mature not later than five years from date of deed, said note to bear interest from date at a rate of interest not less than six per cent, payable annually, and in default of the payment of principal or interest or any part thereof when due shall mature the whole debt; all notes for the deferred payments to be secured by vendor's lien, retained in deed and notes upon the property sold and further secured by deed of trust, upon the property sold, with usual provisions for foreclosure and sale upon failure to make payments provided in deed and notes. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 9. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4164, Rev. St. 1911.]

Amount of cash payment.—In an action to set aside the sale by the guardian of an insane person's property, the fact that one-third of the value of the improved property was paid in cash, as required by statute, held not to vitiate the sale where the deferred payments were amply secured. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

A guardian's sale of an insane person's lands under order of court will not be set aside because made on a smaller cash payment than provided by statute, where the estate was not harmed. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Statement of inadequacy of price necessary for disturbance of a guardian's sale of an insane person's land under order of court. 1d.

Sale for inadequate price.—A guardian of an insane person having right to set aside sale because of inadequacy of price can accept such a sum from the purchaser in addition as would make a fair price for the land. Fitzwilliams v. Davie, 18 C. A. 51, 43 S. W. 840.

Art. 4165. [2663] [2582] Guardian shall not purchase property belonging to ward.—It shall not be lawful for the guardian to take the estate of his ward or any part thereof, at its appraised value, or to become the purchaser, either directly or indirectly, of any property of the estate sold by him; and, if any guardian shall, either directly or indirectly, become the purchaser of any property of his ward, at a sale made by such guardian, upon the complaint in writing of any person, and, after service of citation upon such guardian, and upon proof of such complaint, such sale shall be declared void by the court, and shall be set aside, and an order to that effect entered upon the minutes; and the costs of such sale, and of the proceedings to set the same aside, shall be adjudged against such guardian individually.

Applicability of statute in general.—The provisions of this article apply where the property has been conveyed by the guardian to another. Hampton v. Hampton, 39 S. W. 423, 9 C. A. 497.

Prior agreement of guardian.—An agreement by a guardian of an insane person with the subsequent purchaser of land of his ward as to the price that he would pay for the property will only vitiate the sale thereof if it appears that such agreement had the effect of preventing the guardian from securing a better price at the sale. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

The prior agreement of the guardian for sale of an insane person's land held not such as to require the sale under order of court to be set aside. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 185.

Purchase by Judge.—A Judge is incapable of purchasing at a guardian's sale, the validity of which must be passed on by him in his official capacity. Nona Mills Co. v. Wingate, 51 C. A. 669, 133 S. W. 132.

Sale to guardian's attorney.—A guardian's sale to the attorney of the guardian and minors held, on bill of review, to be set aside; the guardian and attorney having known that part of the proceeds were to be used and appropriated by the guardian. Parker v. Bowers, 37 C. A. 252, 84 S. W. 250.

Limitation of action by minor.—See notes under Art. 4178.

Art. 4166. [2664] [2583] Bidder failing to comply with bids shall be liable, etc.—When any person shall bid off property offered for sale by a guardian, and shall fail to comply with the terms of the sale, the facts shall be reported to the court by the guardian; and such person so failing to comply shall be liable to pay such guardian, for the use of the estate, ten per cent on the amount of his bid; and, also, the deficiency in price on the second sale of such property, if any such deficiency there be, to be recovered by suit in any court of the county where such sale was made having jurisdiction of the amount claimed.

Art. 4167. [2665] [2584] Sale may be continued from day to day.
—Public sales may be continued from day to day in case the day set apart for any such sale shall be insufficient to complete the same, by giving public notice verbally of such continuance at the conclusion of the sale each day; and the continued sale shall commence and conclude within the hours prescribed for public sales under execution.

Art. 4168. [2666] [2585] Guardians' sales governed by same rules as execution sales.—The laws regulating sales under execution, so far as the same relate to the advertisement and sale of property and the procedings incidental thereto, and are not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, shall apply to and govern public sales by a guardian of the property of the ward. [Acts 1876, p. 181, secs. 82-111.]

Notice of sale.—That a notice by a guardian for the sale of land was not published for the length of time prescribed by statute does not render a sale under an order of court made upon such defective citation void as against a purchaser under such order.

Guardians—An order of sale of land of insane person held not to deprive the court of jurisdiction to make the sale. Fitzwilliams v. Davie, 18 C. A. 81, 43 S. W. 840.

Notice of sale.—See notes under Art. 4168.

Art. 4169. [2667] [2586] Notice of private sale not required.—
When a private sale of the property of the ward is made by a guardian, note of such sale is not required to be given.

Art. 4170. [2668] [2587-2588] Sale of mortgaged property to be made on such terms as court may direct.—Any person holding a claim against the estate of a ward, secured by mortgage or other lien, may obtain an order for the sale of the property upon which he has such mortgage or other lien, or so much thereof as may be required to satisfy the claim, by causing citation to be posted and the guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why such order should not be made; and such sale shall be made upon such terms as the court may direct; which terms shall be stated in the order of sale; and the notice and other proceedings shall be the same as in other sales by guardians. [Id. secs. 100, 107.]

Art. 4171. [2669] [2589] Mortgage or lien may be discharged without sale.—Should it appear to the court that the discharge of such mortgage or other lien, out of the general assets, would be beneficial to the estate, the payment may be ordered to be so made, instead of ordering a sale of the property. [Id. sec. 106.]

Art. 4172. [2670] Guardian may reduce rate of interest on ward's debts, how.—Should an estate in the hands of a guardian be involved in debt, and, upon proper showing made to the court, it shall appear that the guardian can pay off and discharge existing debts to the advantage of the estate by the hypothecation or mortgage of real estate at a lower rate of interest, or upon more advantageous terms than the old indebtedness, the court may, in its discretion, by order made for that purpose, allow the guardian to pay off and discharge existing debts by the execution of a good and sufficient mortgage or deed of trust upon real estate to secure the person furnishing the money with which to discharge said indebtedness; acts of guardians under this article to be reported to the court and approved as in case of sales; nor shall any guardian renew any indebtedness or evidence thereof except by order of the court, made upon application and notice as in case of sales of land. [Acts of 1892,
S. S., p. 10.]
Art. 4173. [2671] May renew debt, when.—Should a guardian not have sufficient funds in hand belonging to the estate of his ward to pay and discharge any existing debt, he may renew the evidence of the same in like manner as his ward could, were he able to act; and such act of the guardian shall have the same force and effect with reference to such novated paper as if done by the ward; provided that no such guardian shall renew the evidences of any debt against the estate of his ward which shall have become barred by the statutes of limitations; nor shall such guardian renew the evidences of any debt that may have been made or contracted by his ward during his minority or other disabilities. [Acts of 1892, S. S., p. 10. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4173, Rev. St. 1911.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Liability of purchaser for misapplication of proceeds.—Where wards attack a sale made by their guardian, who made the sale and received the purchase money, they are bound by the act of the guardian in receiving the purchase money, whether it was ever received by them or not. Their relief for the money, if not received, is upon the guardian's bond. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 55 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44. See Ellis v. Stone, 23 S. W. 406, 4 C. A. 157.

One buying notes from guardian, which he knows belong to the estate, held liable to the ward if proceeds are misappropriated by the guardian. Gillespie v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 621.

CHAPTER TWELVE
REPORTS OF SALES AND ACTION OF THE COURT THEREON

Art. 4174. Sales shall be reported, when.
Art. 4176. May be in term time or vacation.
Art. 4177. Action of court upon the report.
Art. 4178. Sale to be set aside, when.
Art. 4179. Conveyance of property sold.
Art. 4180. Conveyance of real estate, etc.

Art. 4181. No conveyance until, when.
Art. 4182. Penalty for neglect to take note and mortgage.
Art. 4183. Vendor's lien to be retained.
Art. 4184. When property is not sold at time ordered.

Article 4174. [2672] [2590] Sales shall be reported in thirty days. —All sales of the property of the ward shall be reported to the court in which the guardianship is pending, by the guardian, within thirty days after the sale is made.

Sale—Report and confirmation of as necessary to passing title.—See notes under Art. 4177.

Failure to report sale as ground for removal.—Where a grandfather, who was guardian of the estate of his minor grandson, failed to file a report of a sale of personal property within the time required by this article, and it was shown that he delayed the report because awaiting a final disposition of proceedings proper for inclusion therein, and that he had never misappropriated any of his ward's funds or been willfully neglectful of his interests, it was not an abuse of the trial court's discretion to refuse to remove him. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 23.

Art. 4175. [2673] [2591] Report of sale and its requisites.—The report of any sale shall be in writing, and shall be subscribed and sworn to by the guardian before some officer authorized to administer oaths. It shall show:
1. The time and place of the sale.
2. The property sold, giving a description of the same.
3. The name of the purchaser of the property.
4. The amount for which each article of property was sold.
5. The date of the order of sale.
6. Whether such sale was at public auction or was a private sale.
7. The terms of the sale.
8. Whether or not the purchaser has complied with the terms of the sale.

"Complied with" construed.—The words "complied with" as used in this article, defined (citing 2 Words and Phrases, p. 1370). McMinn v. Cope (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 809.
Effect of defects in reports.—The validity of a guardian’s sale cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding because of his failure to state the price. In his report of the sale, Taffinder v. Merrell, 95 T. 55, 65 S. W. 177, 93 Am. St. Rep. 814.

Where a guardian reported the sale of a lot to one person, when one-half had been sold to one and the other half to another, and the sale was confirmed as reported, the court could not require the actual purchasers of their respective shares to be bound by the guardian’s report.

Where the purchaser at a guardian’s sale paid the full value of the land with property, and the guardian reported the sale as for cash, and it was so confirmed, the title passed to and remained in the purchaser while such order stood unreversed. Stroud v. Hawkins, 38 C. A. 321, 67 S. W. 534.

Art. 4176. [2674] [2592] Report may be in term time or vacation.—A report of sale may be made in term time or in vacation, and, when returned, shall be filed by the clerk and the filing thereof noted in the case upon the judge’s docket.

Art. 4177. [2675] [2593] Action of the court on the report; proviso.—At any time after the expiration of five days from the filing of a report of sale, it shall be the duty of the court in which the same has been filed to inquire into the manner in which such sale was made, and hear evidence in support of or against such report and, if satisfied that such sale was fairly made and in conformity with law, and that the guardian has filed his bond as required herein, which has been duly approved by the court, the court shall cause to be entered upon the minutes a decree confirming such sale, and order the report of sale to be recorded by the clerk, and the proper conveyance of the property sold be made by the guardian to the purchaser, upon compliance by such purchaser with the terms of sale; provided that in cases pending at the time this law becomes effective and in which the guardian has a satisfactory bond filed, equal to twice the amount of all personal property of the ward and twice the amount of the real estate sold, he shall not be required to file a new bond. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 185, sec. 113. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4177, Rev. St. 1911.]

A confirmation of the sale of real estate by the court is essential to the validity of the title. Swenson v. Besse (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 143; McMinn v. Cope, 112 S. W. 809; Gillean v. Witherspoon, 121 S. W. 809.

Where a sale of a ward’s land by guardian under order of court was neither reported to, nor confirmed by, the court, and there was no evidence of any act on the court’s part which would indicate that it had ever recognized or acquiesced in the sale as a completed act, the sale was invalid; confirmation being necessary to pass title. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 809.

Necessity of confirmation to charge guardian with proceeds.—A guardian is not accountable to the ward’s estate for the proceeds of the sale until the sale has been confirmed. McMinn v. Cope (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 811.

Proof of a formal order confirming the sale may be supplied by evidence of such acts upon the part of the court as would satisfy the jury that the court recognized and acquiesced in the sale, and that the purchase money had been paid and deed executed. Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

Conclusiveness of confirmation.—The confirmation of a sale is conclusive in a collateral proceeding where the record does not affirmatively show that jurisdiction did not attach. Edwards v. Halbert, 64 T. 667.

Where a guardian’s sale is authorized and confirmed by the court, the decrees are conclusive in a collateral proceeding that the sale was for a lawful purpose, in the absence of evidence to the contrary. Taffinder v. Merrell, 95 T. 56, 65 S. W. 177, 93 Am. St. Rep. 814.

Rights of purchaser before confirmation.—If before confirmation of sale of personal property, the property has been delivered and the purchase-money applied to payment of valid claims, in a suit for the property the purchaser may have his equities adjusted or may be subrogated to the rights of the creditors. Harrison v. Ilgner, 74 T. 86, 11 S. W. 1064. See Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 699, 14 S. W. 202.

Validity of sales.—A guardian with the means of his ward purchased land and took a deed in his own name. A subsequent guardian obtained a judgment against him for the money invested in the land, to satisfy which the land was sold under an order of the court. In a suit by the ward for the land against a subsequent purchaser who had made improvements in good faith without notice, held, first, the ward was precluded from recovery by the action of the last guardian in obtaining a judgment upon a money demand, and, second, the ward had no such equity as would enable him to disturb a purchaser in possession. Clayton v. McMinn, 54 T. 206.

In 1885 the wife, joined by her husband, conveyed a tract of land, part of her separate property, to a trustee, for the use and benefit of her minor children. The deed provided that the trustee should have the power to sell the property at the request of the Art. 4178. [2676] [2594] Sale shall be set aside, when.—If the court is not satisfied that the sale was fairly made and in conformity with law, an order shall be entered upon the minutes setting the same aside, and ordering the property to be again sold, if necessary.

Necessity for returning purchase money.—When jurisdiction is invoked to set aside a sale made by a guardian, the court has the power to attach the proceeds of the sale to such order: e.g., requiring return of purchase-money. Kendrick v. Wheeler, 85 T. 247, 20 S. W. 44.

Wards held entitled to recover lands sold by their parents without returning the money received, where it was not shown, that the money was expended for their benefit, or that their parents were unable to support them. O’Connor v. Vineyard (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 55.

Statement of rule for accounting, where a guardian’s sale to the attorney of himself and the minors is set aside, because the guardian and attorney knew part of the proceeds were to be appropriated by the guardian. Parker v. Bowers, 37 C. A. 262, 84 S. W. 380.

In the absence of evidence that the minor received the benefit of the proceeds from the sale of his property by a guardian unlawfully appointed, he may recover the property, without tender of the price paid at such sale. St. Paul Sanitarium v. Crim, 38 C. A. 1, 94 S. W. 1114.

The estate of a ward and his succeeding guardian held liable for so much of the purchase price of an unconfirmed sale of the ward’s real estate as was applied directly to the benefit of the ward or his estate. McMinn v. Cope (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 809.

In a suit by a ward after becoming of age to set aside a sale of her real estate by her guardian, she was not required to tender a return of the purchase money as a condition precedent to relief. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 493.

—— Allowance for improvements.—Where the sale of an insane person’s land by her guardian was set aside on account of irregularities in the sale, the purchasers at the sale were properly allowed the value of their improvements. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 346, 110 S. W. 762.

Limitations.—See notes under Art. 6708.

Evidence.—In an action of trespass to try title, a guardian’s deed offered by defendant held prima facie proof that the sale was regular, but not presumptive evidence of the existence of all the prerequisites to a valid sale. Teague v. Swasey, 48 C. A. 151, 102 S. W. 458.

Though Art. 4155 provides for application by the guardian to the county court for sale of “a sufficient amount of real estate” to pay the debts of the ward’s estate, evidence that one acre would have sold for enough, is insufficient to negative the finding of such court of necessity for sale of the entire tract, so as to authorize setting aside of the sale; the tract being small and undivided, so that it might be more advantageous to the estate to dispose of it as a whole. Comstock v. Lomax (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 185.

Evidence on certiorari to avoid a guardian’s sale of land of an insane person under order of court held not sufficient to raise the issue of a sale at a grossly inadequate price. Id.

Election of remedies.—Pendency of suits to compel an accounting by a guardian and his bondsmen of the proceeds of a sale of real estate belonging to plaintiff held not an election of remedies precluding plaintiff from maintaining a proceeding to vacate the sale. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 493.

Art. 4179. [2677] [2595] Conveyance of property sold.—After a sale has been confirmed by a decree of the court, and after the purchaser has complied with the terms of the sale, the guardian shall execute and deliver to the purchaser a proper conveyance of the property purchased by him. In the case of a sale of personal property, no conveyance shall be necessary; but the decree of the court confirming the sale shall vest the right and title of the ward to the property sold in the purchaser, and shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of the law have been complied with in making such sale.

Art. 4180. [2678] [2596] Conveyance of real estate.—If the property sold be real estate, the conveyance shall be by deed, and shall refer to the decree of the court confirming the sale and ordering the conveyance to be made, by giving the date and term of the court of such order; and such conveyance shall vest the right and title of the ward to such real estate in the purchaser, and shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of the law have been complied with in making such sale. [Id. sec. 115.]

Collateral attack of sale.—The sale of land under the order of court cannot be attacked collaterally for fraud. Weems v. Masterton, 89 T. 46, 15 S. W. 590; Bouldin v. Miller, 28 S. W. 940, 87 T. 359.

Refusal to procure valid deed.—Plaintiff, purchasing land of defendant guardian, held entitled to personal judgment against him for conversion, where he sent him a deed he knew to be void, and refused to return the money or procure a valid deed. Eversberg v. Miller (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 223.

Power of attorney.—A power of attorney signed for an infant by his guardian is not binding upon the infant where the guardian was not authorized to bind him thereby. Merrill v. Bradley, 53 C. A. 927, 121 S. W. 561.

Property conveyed.—A guardian’s deed made by order of court, setting off to a locatoe his locative interest, held to convey no interest except that of the ward. Rhine v. Joyce (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 445.

Necessity of proving authority of grantor.—A deed purporting to convey the interest of minors held inadmissible, in the absence of evidence that the grantor was their guardian or had authority to convey. Ellis v. Le Bow, 30 C. A. 449, 71 S. W. 576.

Confirmation of deed.—Where a guardian’s deed was invalid, the ward, after becoming a married woman, could not ratify and confirm it by accepting a part of the purchase money with full knowledge of the facts. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 909.

Art. 4181. [2679] [2597] No conveyance until terms of sale have been complied with.—No conveyance of real estate sold shall be executed and delivered by the guardian to the purchaser until the terms of sale have been complied with by such purchaser; and when such sale has been made for part cash and part credit, it shall be the duty of the guardian, before delivering a conveyance of the property sold to the purchaser, to take from such purchaser a note or notes for the deferred payment, bearing interest at a rate not less than six per cent per annum, payable annually, secured by the vendor’s lien and a deed of trust, with usual provisions for foreclosure and sale, as additional security, and to file such deed of trust for record in the county where such real estate is situated. [Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4181, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4182. [2680] [2598] Penalty for neglect to take note and mortgage, etc.—Should the guardian neglect to take the note, security and mortgage, and file such mortgage for record in the proper county before delivering to the purchaser a deed, as required by the preceding article, such guardian and the sureties upon his bond shall be liable for whatever loss may accrue to the estate of the ward by reason of such neglect.

Art. 4183. [2681] [2599] Vendor’s lien to be retained, when.—All notes executed for the purchase money of real estate, under the provisions of this chapter, shall hold the vendor’s lien on the real estate for which such notes were given against all persons having notice, express or implied, in favor of the estate, whether the mortgage be recorded or not; and such lien shall, in no case, be waived.

Art. 4184. [2682] [2600] When property is not sold at the time ordered, etc.—If, from any cause, the guardian shall fail to sell any real estate ordered to be sold, at the time specified in the order, he shall report the facts to the court or judge, accompanied by his affidavit of the truth thereof, and the court or judge, either in term time or vacation, may, by an order entered upon the minutes, appoint another day for such sale, and so on, from time to time, until the sale is completed. [Id. sec. 116.]

ANNUAL ACCOUNTS

Art. 4185. Of guardian of the person.
Art. 4186. Of guardian of estate.
Art. 4187. Annual account shall remain on file five days, etc.
Art. 4188. Citation on annual account.

Art. 4189. Account must be proved by vouchers or other evidence.
Art. 4190. Action of the court on account.
Art. 4191. Citation to return account, when.
Art. 4192. Penalty for failing to return.
Art. 4193. [Repealed.]

Article 4185. [2683] [2601] Annual account of guardian of person.—The guardian of the person, where there is a separate guardian of the estate, shall annually return to the court an account, supported by his affidavit, showing the items of expenditure since the last account for the education and maintenance of the ward. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 120.]

Right to credit for payment of ward's expenses.—In order to entitle a guardian to credit for paying on his own motion the expenses of maintaining his ward from the income of the estate, the income and expenditures must run concurrently. Logan v. Gay (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 883.

Interest charged guardian as income.—Interest charged against a guardian on money in his hands which he should have lent is to be added to the income of the estate. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 18.

Art. 4186. [2684] [2602] Annual account of guardian of estate.—The guardian of an estate shall annually return to the court an account showing:
1. Any property that may have come to his knowledge belonging to his ward which has not been previously inventoried or listed.
2. Any changes in the property of the ward which have not been previously reported.
3. A complete account of receipts and disbursements since the last annual account.
4. All claims that have been allowed by him against the estate since the last annual account that are still unpaid.
5. All claims that have been rejected by him since the last annual account, and whether the same have been sued upon or not.
6. The money and property still on hand, and the condition of such property, and the use that is being made of the same.
7. Such other facts as may be necessary to show the true and exact condition of the estate.

Annexed to such account, shall be the affidavit of the guardian that it contains a correct and complete statement of the matters to which it relates. [Id. sec. 119.]

Right to charge for improvements.—A widow cannot charge her minor child with improvements made by her on their joint estate. Calhoun v. Stark, 13 C. A. 60, 35 S. W. 410.

Art. 4187. [2685] [2603] Annual account shall remain on file five days, etc.—When an annual account is presented, it shall be filed; and the filing thereof noted upon the judge's docket, and, without being acted on, shall remain on file five days. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 121. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4187, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4188. [2686] [2604] Hearing on annual account.—At any time after the expiration of five days from the date of the filing of an annual account, the judge may act on such account and may continue the hearing thereon from time to time until fully advised as to all items of such account. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 122. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4188, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4189. [2687] [2605] Accounts must be proved by vouchers or other evidence.—The guardian must produce and file proper vouchers for every item of credit claimed by him in his account, or support the same by other satisfactory evidence. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 186, sec. 124.]

Art. 4190. [2688] [2606] Action of the court on the account.—If the account be found incorrect, it shall be correctly stated; and, when so corrected, or if found correct, it shall be approved by an order of the court entered upon the minutes. [Id. sec. 125.]

Orders on accounting.—These orders are not final adjudications. The burden of proof rests upon the party who seeks to review or set aside an order. Young v. Gray, 65 T. 99; Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222; Oldham v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 648.

Art. 4191. [2689] [2607] Guardian shall be cited to return account, when.—If the guardian fail to return an annual account, as required by the provisions of this chapter, he shall be cited to return the same at the next term of the court, and show cause for failing to return such account at the proper time. [Id. sec. 128.]

Art. 4192. [2690] [2608] Penalty for failing to return account.—If the guardian fail to return such account, after being cited to do so, or fail to show good cause for failing to return such account at the proper time, he may be fined by the court not exceeding five hundred dollars, for the use of the county; and he and his sureties shall be liable for all fines imposed and damages sustained by reason of such failure. [Id. sec. 129.]

Art. 4193.—Repealed. See Acts 1913, p. 321, repealing this article and amending articles 4099, 4140, 4141, 4144-4146, 4155, 4158, 4161-4164, 4173, 4177, 4181, 4187, 4188, and 4281.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

DEATH, RESIGNATION AND REMOVAL OF GUARDIANS

Art. 4194. [2691] [2609] When guardian dies.—When a guardian dies, the court, on application, shall appoint another. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 179, sec. 54.]

Art. 4195. [2692] [2610] Resignation of guardian.—When a guardian wishes to resign, he shall present his application in writing to that effect to the court, and accompany such application with a full and complete account of the condition of the estate and of his guardianship verified by his affidavit. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 4196. [2693] [2611] Citation in such case.—Upon the filing of such application and account, the clerk shall issue a citation to all persons interested in such guardianship, which citation shall state:

1. That such guardian has filed his application for leave to resign the guardianship, and has accompanied the same by an account for final settlement thereof.

2. It shall notify all persons interested in the guardianship to appear at a certain term of the court, commencing on such a day and month, and contest the account of the guardian, if they see proper to do so. [Id. sec. 56.]
Art. 4197. [2694] [2612] Service of such citation.—Such citation shall be published once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper in the county, if there be one regularly printed therein; if not, then such citation shall be duly posted for at least twenty days before the return term thereof; and such citation shall be duly returned by the officer executing the same. [Id. sec. 57.]

Art. 4198. [2695] [2613] Action of court upon application and account.—Upon the hearing of such application and account, if it appear that such guardian has accounted for all the estate according to law, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes that he delivered the estate remaining in his possession, if any there be, or the person of his ward, or both, as the case may be, to some person who shall have been or may be appointed and qualified as guardian in his place; upon compliance with such order and surrender of his letters of guardianship, such guardian shall be permitted to resign his trust and be discharged; and an order to that effect shall be made by the court and entered upon the minutes of the court. [Id. sec. 58.]

Art. 4199. [2696] [2614] Removal of guardian without notice, when.—Guardians shall be removed in the following cases, without notice, at the regular term of the court:

1. When they neglect to return, within thirty days after qualification, an inventory and list of claims of the property of the estate, as far as such property has come to their knowledge.

2. When they have been required to give a new bond, and neglect to do so within the time prescribed.

3. When they have removed from the state. [Id. sec. 59.]

Removal—Grounds for in general.—The enumeration in Arts. 4199-4201 of grounds for removing guardians excludes the idea of removal on any ground not so named. Kahn v. Israelson, 62 T. 221.

A guardian, appointed on a mother’s waiver of right to the guardianship of her daughter under 14 years of age, held not removable at the instance of one claiming through a grandmother’s waiver of right, after the mother’s death. Polasek v. Janecek, 22 C. A. 411, 55 S. W. 622.

Discretionary power of court.—In view of Arts. 4185, 4191, the failure of a guardian to file a report of a sale of personal property, as required by Arts. 4174, 4175, is not a mandatory ground for removal, under this article, but the court has discretionary power of removing such guardian. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 23.

Art. 4200. [2697] [2615] Removal after citation.—A guardian may be removed by the court of its own motion, or on the motion of any person interested in the ward, or his estate, after being cited to answer:

1. When he fails to return any account which he is required to return by any of the provisions of this title.

2. When he fails to obey any order of the court or judge, consistent with this title.

3. When there is good cause to believe that he has misapplied, embezzled or removed, or is about to misapply, embezzle or remove from the state, the property committed to his charge, or any part thereof.

4. When he is proved to have been guilty of gross neglect or mismanagement in the performance of any of his duties as guardian.

5. When he becomes of unsound mind, or becomes an habitual drunkard, or is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of years.

6. When, if he be the guardian of the person, he cruelly treats the ward, or neglects to educate and maintain the ward as liberally as the means of such ward and the circumstances of the case demand. [Id. sec. 60.]

Applicability of statute in general.—Subdivision 3 of this article applies as well to guardians of the person as to guardians of the estates of minors. Parlah v. Alston, 66 T. 194.

Application for removal.—Where a guardian is removed under this article, upon an application which was defective, the error is immaterial. Cherry v. Wallis, 65 T. 443. Estoppel to ask for removal.—Where one entitled to receive an appointment consents to the appointment of another, he cannot be heard to ask the removal of such guardian in order to be appointed in his stead. Kahn v. Israelson, 62 T. 221. Citing Hayes v. Houston, 61 T. 690; Cook v. Bybee, 24 T. 280; Cole v. Dial, 12 T. 100.

Art. 4201. [2698] [2616] Order removing guardian shall state what, etc.—The order of the court removing a guardian shall state the cause of such removal, and shall require such guardian to surrender his letters of guardianship, and shall also further require such guardian to deliver the person of the ward, or his estate, or both, as the case may be, to some person who has been appointed guardian and has qualified as such in his place. [Id. secs. 61–2.]

Notice of appointment of successor.—Where a guardian has been appointed on notice, no further application or notice is required for the appointment of his successor on his removal. Brown v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 944.

Modification of order.—Where, on removal of guardian, the court orders him to pay a certain sum, being the amount in his hands as set out in his report, such amount may subsequently be increased by the court. Bopp v. Hansford, 18 C. A. 340, 45 S. W. 744.

Effect of order.—Where, after conditional discharge of a guardian, the court directed him to sell certain of the ward’s land, the order of discharge could not be invoked to annul the order of sale. Gillean v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 309.

An order discharging a guardian on payment of court costs held not an absolute or final discharge. 1d.

Art. 4202. [2699] [2617] Person removed shall not be reappointed.—When any person shall have been removed from the guardianship of the person or estate of a ward, he shall not afterward be reappointed to such guardianship. [Id. sec. 63.]

Art. 4203. [2700] [2618] When guardian dies, etc., estate shall be accounted for and delivered, etc.—If a guardian die, resign, or be removed, he or his legal representatives shall account for, pay and deliver to the person legally entitled to receive the same, all the property of every kind belonging to the estate of the ward at such time and in such manner as the court shall order; and, in case of a refusal to comply with an order of the court to that effect, the same may be enforced by attachment and punishment as for contempt. [Id. sec. 64.]

Conclusiveness of judgment.—The judgment of the court determining what property the guardian had of the ward in his hands is conclusive both against the guardian and the sureties on his bond. Bopp v. Hansford, 18 C. A. 340, 45 S. W. 744.

Authority of probate court.—On the death of a guardian, and the appointment of a new guardian, the probate court is without authority to adjudicate matters between the ward and the estate of his former guardian. American Bonding Co. of Baltimore v. Logan (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 394.

Art. 4204. [2701] [2619] Subsequent guardian shall account for what.—When a guardian succeeds a former guardian, he shall be required to account for all the estate which came into the hands of his predecessor, and shall be entitled to any order or remedy which the court has power to give, in order to enforce the delivery of the estate, and the liability of the sureties of his predecessor for so much as is not delivered. But such subsequent guardian shall be excused from accounting for such of the estate as he has failed to recover after the use of due diligence. [Id. sec. 65.]

In general.—It has been intimated that this article might authorize a second guardian to go behind and revise the settlement of the first guardian. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 74, 18 S. W. 222; Young v. Gray, 65 T. 39; Oldham v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 848.

Remedy of successor.—Such remedy as the county court had power to give should be sought, or it should be shown that it could give no adequate remedy, before the successor of the deceased guardian is authorized to bring an independent action in the district court against the surety on his bond. Yet if the point is not raised in the district court, and the latter’s jurisdiction is acquiesced in, the case will be considered as one within the original jurisdiction of the district court. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Schelpner, 37 C. A. 393, 83 S. W. 872.

Art. 4205. [2702] [2620] Subsequent guardian succeeds to what.—A subsequent guardian shall succeed to all the rights, powers and duties of his predecessor, and shall proceed with the guardianship in all respects as if it were a continuation of the same by the same guardian.
CHAPTER FIFTEEN CLAIMS AGAINST THE ESTATE

Article 4206. [2703] [2621] Guardian may pay claim without authentication, when.—A guardian may pay any claim against the estate of his ward which he knows to be just, without the authentication thereof. [Id. sec. 95.]

Liability of minor.—A minor may be held to his contracts obtained by fraudulent representations which naturally and reasonably induce persons ignorant of his minority to believe he is of full age, and deal with him on that assumption. Harseim v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 977.

Presentation of claims.—As to the necessity of presenting claims before suit, see Low v. Felton, 84 T. 378, 19 S. W. 693.

Article 4207. [2704] [2622] Claim shall not be allowed unless supported by affidavit, etc.—The guardian shall not allow, and the court shall not approve, any claim, except as provided for in the preceding article, unless it be accompanied by an affidavit of the claimant, that the claim is just, that nothing has been paid or delivered toward the satisfaction of such claim, except what is mentioned or credited (if any), that there are no counter claims known to the affiant which have not been allowed, and that the sum claimed is justly due. [Id. sec. 154.]

Pleadings to establish claims.—No formal pleadings to establish a claim in a guardianship matter are required either in the county court or on appeal. It is only necessary to file such papers as the statutes require. Bradshaw v. Lyles, 55 C. A. 384, 119 S. W. 918.

Article 4208. [2705] [2623] Where claim is not founded on written instrument, affidavit shall state facts.—Where the claim is not founded on an instrument in writing or an account, in addition to the statement required by the preceding article, the affidavit must state the facts upon which the claim is founded. [Id. sec. 155.]

Article 4209. [2706] [2624] When a claim belongs to a corporation, who shall make affidavit.—When a claim belongs to a corporation, the cashier, treasurer or managing agent of such corporation shall make the affidavit required to authenticate it. [Id. sec. 156.]

Article 4210. [2707] [2625] Affidavit by officer of corporation, executor, etc., shall state what, etc.—When an affidavit authenticating a claim is made by an officer of a corporation, an executor, administrator, trustee, assignee, agent or attorney, it shall be sufficient to state in such affidavit that he has made diligent inquiry and examination and that he does verily believe that nothing has been paid and delivered toward the satisfaction of such claim, except the amount credited (if any), that

There are no counter claims which have not been allowed, and that the sum claimed is justly due. [Id. sec. 157.]

Art. 4211. [2708] [2626] Affidavit may be made before what officers.—The affidavit authenticating a claim may be made before any officer authorized to administer oaths. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Art. 4212. [2709] [2627] Memorandum of allowance or rejection on claim.—When a claim is presented to the guardian, properly authenticated, he shall indorse thereon or annex thereto a memorandum in writing signed by him, stating the time of its presentment, and that he allows or rejects it, or what portion thereof he allows, if any. [Id. sec. 159.]

Art. 4213. [2710] [2628] Effect of failure to make memorandum.—The failure of a guardian to indorse on, or annex to, any claim presented to him, his allowance or rejection thereof, shall be deemed a rejection of such claim; and, in such case, the costs, if the claim be established, shall be adjudged against the guardian to be paid out of his own estate. [Id. sec. 160.]

Art. 4214. [2711] [2629] Rejected claim, if not sued on in ninety days, barred.—When a claim, or part thereof, has been rejected by the guardian, the claimant, if he does not submit thereto, shall institute suit thereon within ninety days after such rejection, or the same shall be barred. [Id. sec. 162.]

Art. 4215. [2712] [2630] Memorandum evidence.—When a rejected claim is sued upon, the indorsement thereon or annexed thereto of its rejection shall be taken to be true without proof, unless it be denied under oath. [Id. sec. 165.]

Art. 4216. [2713] [2631] When claim is allowed, shall be presented, etc.—After a claim has been presented to the guardian and allowed, the claimant shall present it to the clerk of the court in which the guardianship is pending, who shall enter it upon the claim docket. [Id. sec. 161.]

Art. 4217. [2714] [2632] Claims shall be examined, etc., by the court.—At each regular term of the court, all claims which have been allowed and entered on the claim docket shall be examined by the court and approved or disapproved, in the same manner as is provided for claims against the estates of decedents. [Id. sec. 164.]

See notes under Art. 4230.

Art. 4218. [2715] [2633] Any person may contest claim.—Any person may appear and contest the approval of any claim, or any part thereof, and shall be entitled to process to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of testimony as in ordinary suits. [Id. sec. 166.]

Art. 4219. [2716] [2634] Court shall hear evidence on claim.—Although a claim be properly authenticated and allowed, if the court be not well satisfied it is just, it shall send for persons and papers, and may examine the claimant and the guardian under oath and hear other evidence. If the court be not entirely convinced in such case by evidence other than the testimony of the claimant that the claim is just, it shall be disapproved. [Id. sec. 167.]

Art. 4220. [2717] [2635] Order of approval or disapproval is a judgment.—The order of approval or disapproval of a claim has the force and effect of a judgment. [Id. sec. 168.]

Effect of allowance of claim.—Where claims against the estate of a ward are allowed by the guardian and approved by the county judge, but no order to such effect is entered on the minutes, the allowance is a nullity, and not a judgment, and the claims may be struck out on a bill of review. De Cordova v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1942.

GUARDIAN AND WARD

Art. 4228

Under the statutes, an allowance of a claim against the estate of a ward in excess of the income of the ward at the time of its allowance is invalid, unless the claim was created under an order of court authorizing expenditure in excess of such income, even though it is subsequently approved by the court. Id.

Where a claim is presented to the guardian and allowed by him and approved by the court and entered on the claim docket and the approval indorsed on the claim, the claim is established as a judgment against the estate and makes it the duty of the guardian to pay, and no order on the minutes in addition to that on the claim docket is required. Logan v. Gay, 96 T. 603, 90 S. W. 852.

Art. 4221. [2718] [2636] Appeal may be taken from action of court on claim.—When a claimant or any person interested in a ward shall be dissatisfied with the action of the court in approving or disapproving a claim in whole or in part, he may appeal therefrom to the district court, as in the case of any other judgment rendered by said court.

See notes under Art. 4290.

Art. 4222. [2719] [2637] Action of court shall be indorsed on claim, etc.—When a claim is acted on by the court, the court shall indorse thereon, or annex thereto, a memorandum in writing, signed officially, stating the action of the court upon such claim, and shall also enter such action upon the claim docket.

See notes under Art. 4290.

Art. 4223. [2720] [2638] Lost claim may be proved, how.—When a claim has been lost and can not be produced, the claimant may make an affidavit of the facts and present it to the guardian, with the same effect as the claim itself; but, in such case, the claim must be proved by competent testimony, other than such claimant's affidavit or oath, produced in court or taken by deposition, before it shall be approved by the court. [Id. sec. 174.]

Art. 4224. [2721] [2639] Claim held by guardian, established, how.—A claim which the guardian held against the ward at the time of his appointment, or which has since accrued, is exhibited by being filed, verified by the affidavit of the guardian; after which it takes the same course as other claims. [Id. sec. 158.]

Guardian's claim for expenses.—When the income for the period covered by the guardian's claim for expenditure for education and support has been applied thereon, he may not be allowed the balance of the claim. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 76 S. W. 16.

Art. 4225. [2722] [2640] When claim is said to be exhibited.—A claim is said to be legally exhibited:
1. When it is properly presented to the guardian, and after being allowed by him is filed.
2. When, after being rejected, suit is commenced thereon. [Id. sec. 169.]

Art. 4226. [2723] [2641] When a claim is said to be established.—A claim is said to be established:
1. When it has been allowed by the guardian and approved by the court.
2. When, in a suit thereon, it has been sustained by the judgment of the proper court. [Id. sec. 170.]

See notes under Art. 4290.

Art. 4227. [2724] [2642] When a claim may be exhibited.—Claims which have not been legally exhibited within the year may be exhibited at any time afterward, before the estate is closed, or suit on such claims would be barred by the general law of limitation. [Id. sec. 172.]

Art. 4228. [2725] [2643] Limitation is interrupted, how.—The general law of limitations is interrupted:
1. By filing a claim which has been allowed.
2. By commencing a suit upon a rejected or disapproved claim within ninety days after such rejection or disapproval.

Art. 4229. [2726] [2644] Guardian shall not purchase claim.—It shall not be lawful for a guardian, either directly or indirectly, to purchase for his own use any claim against the estate of his ward; and, upon proof to the satisfaction of the court of the violation of this provision, the court shall disapprove the claim.

Bona fide purchaser of claim.—The doctrine of innocent purchaser does not apply to a purchase of a claim against the estate of a ward, which has been allowed by the guardian and approved by the county court; the court's action being invalid, and not constituting a judgment, because the appeal is not entered of record. De Cordova v. Rodríguez (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1042.

Art. 4230. [2727] [2645] Claim established by judgment shall be filed, etc.—When a claim has been established by judgment, a certified copy of such judgment shall be filed with the clerk of the court in which the guardianship is pending, and entered upon the claim docket as other claims are entered. [Id. sec. 164.]

In general.—This article applies only where a guardianship is actually pending; and hence, in an action against an insane person, it was error to direct payment of judgment in the due course of guardianship proceeding, where it appeared that no guardian had ever been appointed. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 679.

Art. 4231. [2728] [2646] Cost incurred in exhibiting, etc., a claim; taxed, how.—The costs incurred in the exhibition and establishment of claims shall be taxed as follows:
1. If a claim be allowed and approved, the estate shall pay the costs.
2. If a claim be allowed, but disapproved, the claimant shall pay the costs.
3. If a claim which has been rejected be established, the estate shall pay the costs. [Id. sec. 190.]

Art. 4232. [2729] [2647] Claim docket.—The claim docket required to be kept in estates of decedents shall be used also for the estates of wards, and under the same rules as far as applicable.

Art. 4233. [2730] [2648] Payment of claims.—It shall be the duty of the guardian to pay all claims against the estate of his ward that have been allowed and approved, or established by suit, as soon as practicable; and the court may, at any time, either in term time or in vacation, by an order entered upon the minutes, direct the order in which the claims against the estate shall be paid, and the amount to be paid on each claim, when the funds are not sufficient to pay them all in full.

Right of bank to apply money on deposit.—Money deposited in a bank by a guardian to his credit as guardian is the property of the ward, and the bank cannot apply it to the payment of any order made by the guardian in any other character than that of guardian. Moore v. Hanscom, 101 T. 296, 109 S. W. 876.

Art. 4234. [2731] [2649] Creditor may obtain order for payment of claim.—Any creditor of the estate of the ward whose claim has been approved by the court, or established by judgment, may, upon application in writing to the court in which such guardianship is pending, at a regular term thereof, obtain an order for the payment of such claim, upon proof being made that there are funds in the hands of the guardian subject thereto, or, if there be no funds, or not sufficient for the payment of such claim, and if to await the receipt of funds from other sources would involve an unreasonable delay, an order shall be made for the sale of property of the estate sufficient to pay the debt. [Id. sec. 96.]

Order of payment.—Where an order is secured as provided in this article, but the execution is against the minor's property, instead of against the property of the guardian, it is wholly void and is not a claim on the minor's property, and it is proper to dissolve an injunction to restrain levy of execution. Thompson v. Gooldby, 48 C. A. 23, 106 S. W. 936.

Art. 4235. [2732] [2650] Execution shall issue against guardian, when.—If any guardian shall fail to pay any claim ordered by the court to be paid when demanded, upon affidavit of the demand and failure to pay being filed with the clerk of the court making such order, an execution shall be issued for the amount ordered to be paid such claimant, and for the costs of such proceeding against the property of such guardian. [Id. sec. 97.]

See notes under Art. 4234.
Art. 4236. [2733] [2651] Sureties on guardian's bond shall be cited, when, etc.—If the execution provided for in the preceding article be returned not satisfied, the sureties upon such guardian's bond may be cited to appear at a regular term of the court from which such execution issued, and show cause why judgment should not be rendered against them for such debt, interest and costs. [Id. sec. 98.]

Art. 4237. [2734] [2652] Citation and judgment in such case.—Citation in such case may be issued to any county in the state; and, upon the return thereof duly served, if good cause to the contrary be not shown, the court shall render judgment against the sureties so served in favor of the claimant for the amount of the claim ordered to be paid as aforesaid, and remaining unpaid, and ten per cent damages thereon, together with interest and costs; and execution may issue thereon accordingly. [Id. sec. 99.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

GUARDIANSHIP OF PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND AND HABITUAL DRUNKARDS

| 4239. Duty of county officer to file information, when. | 4248. Restraint of enraged ward. |
| 4240. Requisites of information. | 4249. Insane person at large. |
| 4241. Jury shall be impaneled. | 4250. Who are liable to maintain persons of unsound mind. |
| 4243. If verdict is against defendant, guardian shall be appointed. | 4252. County may recover expenses. |
| 4244. New trial may be granted, when. | 4253. Proceedings to discharge ward from guardianship. |
| 4245. Provisions as to minors apply to persons of unsound mind, etc. | 4254. Same subject. |
| 4246. Order for support of ward's family. | 4255. Court may discharge from guardianship without jury, when. |

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 4238. [2735] [2653] County judge shall issue warrant on information.—If information be given to the judge of the county court that any person of the county is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, and is without a guardian, such judge, if satisfied that there is good cause for the exercise of his jurisdiction, shall, either in term time or in vacation, issue a warrant to the proper officer commanding that such person be brought before him at a time and place to be named in such warrant. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 141.]

In general.—A proceeding in the county court to have one adjudged a lunatic, cannot be treated as a probate proceeding under this article. Glenn v. State (Clv. App.) 107 S. W. 612.

Jurisdiction.—The court of the county of the husband's residence has jurisdiction of proceedings for the appointment of a guardian for an insane wife on the decease of her husband. Schwartz v. West, 27 C. A. 186, 84 S. W. 282.

A wife having been regularly adjudged insane, the court of another county in which the husband acquired a residence may assume jurisdiction of her estate and appoint a guardian, without a sworn information showing her to be insane. Id.

Art. 4239. [2736] [2654] Duty of county officer to file information, when.—It shall be the duty of any county officer who may discover any person who resides in the county to be of unsound mind, and without a guardian, to file information thereof with the county judge of such county, who shall issue his warrant as provided in the preceding article.

Art. 4240. [2737] [2655] Requisites of information.—The information provided for in the two preceding articles shall be in writing, and shall state the name of the person charged with being of unsound mind or an habitual drunkard, if his name be known, and, if unknown, such person shall be described, and that such person is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, as the case may be, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the informant; and such information shall be subscribed and sworn to by the informant before some officer of the county authorized to administer oaths.

Art. 4241. [2738] [2656] Jury shall be impaneled.—When the person charged is brought before the judge he shall, either in term time or in vacation, cause to be impaneled a qualified jury to try the case and decide whether such person is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, as charged in the information.

Art. 4242. [2739] [2657] Proceedings and trial.—The case shall be docketed in the name of the county as plaintiff, and the person against whom the information is filed as defendant; and the proceedings and trial therein shall be governed by the same rules and regulations that govern in ordinary suits in the county court, unless otherwise provided.

Art. 4243. [2740] [2658] If verdict is against defendant, guardi-ian shall be appointed.—If it be found by the jury that the defendant is of unsound mind, or is an habitual drunkard, as charged, the court shall proceed, immediately and without further notice, to appoint a guardian of the person and estate of such defendant in the same manner as in the case of a minor. [Id. sec. 143.]

Effect of adjudication in general.—At common law, a judgment declaring a person a lunatic is, as against strangers to the proceeding, prima facie evidence of such lunacy.
Herndon v. Vick, 18 C. A. 583, 46 S. W. 852.

An adjudication of Insanity held not admissible in a suit to set aside a prior deed

An adjudication by a court of competent jurisdiction that a person is a lunatic held to fix his status as a lunatic. Mitchell v. Stanton (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1033.

In a suit to try title by the guardian of a lunatic, proceedings in lunacy held admissible. Id.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Effect of foreign judgment.—A Maine judgment, appointing a guardian for a person adjudged a lunatic, in evidence of lunacy in a suit in Texas involving the lunatic's title to

Art. 4244. [2741] [2659] New trial may be granted, when.—The court may, for good cause shown, at any time within ten days after the verdict has been returned, set aside such verdict and grant a new trial to either party; but, when two juries have concurred in a case, the second verdict shall not be set aside. [Id. sec. 144.]

Art. 4245. [2742] [2660] Provisions as to minors apply to persons of unsound mind, etc.—All the provisions of this title relating to the guardianship of the persons and estates of minors shall apply to the guardianship of the persons and estates of persons of unsound mind and habitual drunkards, in so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with any provision of this chapter.

Art. 4246. [2743] [2661] Order for support of ward's family.—
The court by which any person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard is committed to guardianship may make orders for the support of his family and the education of his children when necessary. [Id. sec. 177.]

Art. 4247. [2744] [2662] Husband or wife first entitled to guardianship.—If the person committed to guardianship is married, the husband or the wife of such person, as the case may be, shall be entitled first in order to the guardianship.

Art. 4248. [2745] [2663] When ward is furiously mad.—If any person shall be furiously mad, or so far disordered in his mind as to endanger his own person or the person or property of others, it shall be the duty of the guardian or other person under whose care he may be, and who is bound to provide for his support, to confine him in some suitable place until the first regular term of the county court of his county, when the court shall make such order for the restraint, support and safe-keeping of such ward as the circumstances may require. [Id.
sec. 178.]
Art. 4249. [2746] [2664] When insane person is not confined or in charge of any one.—If any such person of unsound mind as is specified in the preceding article shall not be confined by those having charge of him, or if there be no person having such charge, any magistrate may cause such insane person to be apprehended and may employ any person to confine him in some suitable place until the county court shall make further order thereon, as provided in the preceding article. [Id. sec. 179.]

Art. 4250. [2747] [2665] Who are liable to maintain persons of unsound mind, etc.—Where the person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard has no estate of his own, they shall be maintained:
1. By the husband or wife of such person, if any, if able to do so.
2. By the father or mother of such person, if able to do so.
3. By the children and grandchildren of such person, if able to do so.
4. By the county in which said person has his residence. [Id. sec. 180.]

Art. 4251. [2748] [2666] Expenses of confinement to be paid, how.—The expenses attending the confinement of an insane person shall be paid by the guardian out of the estate of the ward, if he has any estate: and, if he has no estate, such expense shall be paid by the person bound to provide for and support such insane person; and, if not so paid, the county shall pay the same. [Id. sec. 181.]

Art. 4252. [2749] [2667] County may recover back expenses paid.—In all cases of appropriations out of the county treasury for the support and confinement of any person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard, the amount thereof may be recovered by the county from the estate of such person, or from any person who, by law, is bound to provide for the support of such person, if there be any such person able to pay the same. [Id. sec. 182.]

Art. 4253. [2750] [2668] Proceedings to discharge ward from guardianship.—If any person shall allege in writing and under oath that a person who has been adjudged to be of unsound mind, or an habitual drunkard, has been restored to his right mind, or to correct, sober habits, as the case may be, the guardian of the person and of the estate of such ward shall be cited to appear before the county judge on a day and at a place named in such citation, either in term time or in vacation, and show cause why such ward should not be discharged from further guardianship, or the guardian may appear without such citation. [Id. sec. 183.]

Jurisdiction.—A court held to have jurisdiction of the property and person of an insane person with authority to determine whether his reason had been restored. Ferguson v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 632.

Art. 4254. [2751] [2669] Same subject.—If the fact of such alleged restoration be doubtful, the court shall, either in term time or in vacation, cause a qualified jury to be impaneled to try the issue as in the first instance, and if it be found by such jury that the ward has been restored to his right mind, or has reformed, he shall be discharged from guardianship by an order to that effect entered upon the minutes; and the guardian shall immediately settle his accounts and deliver up all the property remaining in his hands to such ward. [Id.]

Art. 4255. [2752] [2670] Court may discharge from guardianship without jury, when.—If the fact of such alleged restoration be not doubtful, the court may, without the intervention of a jury, make the order discharging the ward from guardianship, as provided in the preceding article. [Id.]

Conclusiveness of judgment reciting restoration to sanity.—A judgment reciting a person's restoration to sanity is conclusive only of his status at the time the judgment was rendered. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 290.
Art. 4255  GUARDIAN AND WARD

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Guardian's release of ward's interest.—An insane person's guardian's release of the ward's interest as an heir in a note held void. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 638.

Recovery by guardian of interest surrendered by executors.—An insane person's guardian held entitled to recover the interest of his ward as an heir, in a note surrendered by the executors without authority. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 638.

In absence of an adjudication of habitual drunkenness, one cannot escape liability on a contract on the ground that he was intoxicated when he executed it. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1716.

Statements of test of rights of one to avoid on the ground of insanity his contract made after he had been adjudged insane. Gee v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 625.

Releases.—In an action against a railroad for the negligent killing of plaintiff's intestate at a highway crossing, an instrument releasing the railroad from liability held not binding because of the releaser's mental incapacity. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Brantley, 26 C. A. 11, 62 S. W. 94.

Where one is mentally incapacitated to transact business when executing a release for damages for personal injuries, the release held not binding on her. Johnson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 36 C. A. 487, 81 S. W. 1197.

Ratification.—A person purchasing machinery while insane held to have ratified the contract after regaining his reason. Newman v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 425.

Validity of conveyances.—A lessee may not avoid payment of rent to a grantee of the lessor, accruing subsequent to the conveyance, by showing that the lessor at the time of the conveyance was insane. Vogel v. Zuercher (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 737.

A deed of an insane person is voidable only. Id.

Strangers and persons who are merely privies in an estate of an insane grantor may not avoid the deed. Id.

A conveyance by an insane person is merely voidable, but the facts that the grantee did not know of the insanity and that the conveyance was obtained without fraud and for an adequate consideration does not prevent an avoidance thereof. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 168 S. W. 238.

Validity of power of attorney.—A power of attorney executed by an imbecile is not void, but voidable. Williams v. Sapieha, 94 T. 430, 61 S. W. 115.

Liability for amount received under invalid contract.—Conveyance of an incompetent's lands will not be rescinded, in the absence of an offer to place the purchaser in statu quo. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 947.

In the absence of proof that an imbecile has the money or property acquired with it, or that it has been expended for necessaries, he is not required to return it before rescinding a power of attorney and a deed of land pursuant thereto. Williams v. Sapieha, 94 T. 430, 61 S. W. 115.

The contract of a lunatic being voidable only, one of whom he borrows money on his note may recover such portion thereof as he uses for necessaries or for the protection and benefit of his estate. First Nat. Bank v. McGinty, 29 C. A. 639, 69 S. W. 495.

Actions in general.—Contention that action was brought by lunatic, and not by guardian, held without merit. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 245.

Guardian as party to action begun before ward became insane.—When the husband became insane pending suit, it was held that his guardian should be made plaintiff, and the action could not be prosecuted by the wife. T. & F. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 19 S. W. 481.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1910, § 48.

Evidence.—Where a guardian, suing to set aside his ward's deed, alleged that the ward has always been an incompetent, the defendant can show his treatment by his relatives, and the taking of a judgment against him by his mother. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 72.

Evidence in an action for conversion of goods held to justify a finding that plaintiff's intestate was not of unsound mind when he ratified a sale of the goods to defendant. Denny v. Stokes, 31 C. A. 425, 72 S. W. 209.

Knowledge of incompetency.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that a purchaser of incompetent's lands bought without knowledge of such incompetency. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 947.

Judgment.—A judgment on a note foreclosing a vendor's lien held voidable for fraud at plaintiff's election on his being restored to sanity. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 323, 112 S. W. 356.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
NON-RESIDENT GUARDIANS AND WARDS

Art. 4256. Non-resident guardian may obtain letters in this state, how.

4257. Such guardian may remove property out of state, etc.

4258. Resident executor, etc., may be ordered to deliver property.

Art. 4259. Property shall not be removed until debts are paid, etc.

4260. Benefits of this chapter shall not extend, etc.
Article 4256. [2753] [2671] Non-resident guardian may obtain letters in this state, how.—Where a guardian and his ward are non-residents, such guardian may file in the county court of any county a full and complete transcript from the records of a court of competent jurisdiction where he and his ward reside, showing that he has been appointed and has qualified as guardian of the estate of such ward; which said transcript shall be certified by the clerk of the court in which the proceedings were had, under the seal of such court, if there be one, together with a certificate from the judge, chief justice or presiding magistrate of such court, as the case may be, that the attestation to such transcript is in due form; and upon the filing of such transcript the same may be recorded, and the guardian shall be entitled to receive letters of guardianship of the estate of such minor situated in this state, upon filing a bond with sureties, as in other cases, in double the amount of the estimated value of such estate. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 180, sec. 70.]

Ancillary appointment.—On application of nonresident guardian to be appointed guardian of the estate of his ward, a finding that the ward and her father were domiciled in the state of her nonresident guardian held justified by the evidence. Orr v. Wright (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 629.

On application to appoint a nonresident guardian as guardian, evidence that ward's property could not be sold except at a sacrifice held inadmissible. Id.

The nonresident applicant for letters of guardianship of estate of minor must show that he has been duly appointed and has duly qualified as guardian of the estate in some other state or country to entitle him to letters in this state. Gill v. Everman, 94 T. 209, 59 S. W. 531.

Appointment of a nonresident guardian as guardian in the state, on defective showing as to qualifications, held void, in the absence of a showing that the laws of the foreign state were different from those of this state. Id.

Statutory provisions.—Mississippi statutes providing for appointment of a nonresident guardian held similar to the Texas statutes on the same subject, so as to authorize appointment of nonresident guardian in Texas. Orr v. Wright (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 629.

Proof of foreign appointment.—Transcript held insufficient to show that the appointment of a nonresident guardian was of the minor's estate, and not of his person. Gill v. Everman, 94 T. 209, 59 S. W. 531.

The transcript must show that the nonresident guardian was appointed and that he qualified before he can, in this state, obtain letters of guardianship of the estate of the minor for the purpose of removing the same out of the state. Gill v. Everman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 914.

Disposition of property by foreign guardian.—In view of Arts. 3854, 4051, a foreign guardian may not under this chapter remove money of nonresident minor paid the clerk of the probate court in a damage suit, unless he complies with the conditions of this article by giving bond to secure debts. Hoffman v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 625.

Extraterritorial effect of letters.—Letters of guardianship held to have no legal force beyond the territorial limits of the state in which they are granted. Hoffman v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 625.

Art. 4257. [2754] [2672] Such guardian may remove property out of state, etc.—Upon the recovery of the property of the ward, if it be personal property, such guardian may remove the same out of the state, unless such removal would conflict with the tenures of such property, or the terms and limitations under which it is held; and, if it be real property, he may obtain an order for the sale of it and remove the proceeds; such sale shall be made, returned and acted upon by the court as other sales of real estate by a guardian. [Id. sec. 71.]

Art. 4258. [2755] [2673] Resident executor, etc., may be ordered to deliver property.—Any resident executor, administrator or guardian having any of the estate of such ward may be ordered by the court to deliver the same to such non-resident guardian. [Id. sec. 72.]

Art. 4259. [2756] [2674] Property shall not be removed until debts are paid, etc.—There shall be no removal from the state of any of such property, until all the debts known to exist against the estate have been paid, or the payment thereof secured by bond payable to the judge of the county court and approved by the clerk. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 4260. [2757] [2675] Benefits of this chapter shall not extend, etc.—The benefit of the provisions of this chapter shall not extend to the residents of any state, territory, district or country in which a similar law does not exist in favor of the residents of this state. [Id. sec. 74.]
CHAPTER EIGHTEEN REMOVAL OF GUARDIANSHIP

Article 4261. Application to remove guardianship to another county.
When a guardian desires to remove the transaction of the business of the guardianship from one county to another, he shall file in the court where such guardianship is pending a written application asking for authority to do so, and state in such application his reasons for desiring such removal. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 185, secs. 117-18.]

Article 4262. Citation to sureties in such case.—Upon the filing of such application, the clerk shall issue citation to the sureties upon the bond of such guardian, citing them to appear at a regular term of the court, to be named in such citation, and show cause why such application should not be granted. [Id. sec. 118.]

Article 4263. Action of the court on application.—Upon the hearing of the application, if no good cause be shown to the contrary, and if it appear that the removal of the guardianship would be to the interest of the ward, the court shall enter an order upon the payment of all costs that have accrued.

Article 4264. Transcript to be made and transmitted by clerk, etc.—When such order of removal has been made the clerk shall record all papers of the guardianship required to be recorded, and that have not already been recorded, and shall make out a full and complete certified transcript of all the orders, decrees, judgments and proceedings in such guardianship, and, upon the payment of his fees therefor, shall transmit such transcript, together with all the original papers in the case, to the clerk of the county court of the county to which such guardianship has been removed.

Article 4265. When order of removal shall take effect. —The order removing a guardianship shall not take effect until the transcript provided for in the preceding article has been filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county to which such guardianship has been ordered removed, and until a certificate of that fact from the clerk filing the same, under his official seal, has been filed in the court making such order of removal.

Article 4266. Guardianship when removed shall be proceeded with, how, etc.—When a guardianship has been removed from one county to another, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, it shall be proceeded with in the court to which it has been removed as if it had been originally commenced in said court; but it shall not be necessary to record any of the papers in the case that have already been recorded in the court from which the same has been removed.
CHAPTER NINETEEN

FINAL SETTLEMENT

Article 4267. [2764] [2682] When guardianship shall be settled.—
When the ward dies, or, if a minor, arrives at the age of twenty-one years, or, if a female, marries, or, if a person of unsound mind or habitual drunkard, is restored and discharged from guardianship, the guardianship shall be immediately settled and closed and the guardian discharged, as provided in the following articles of this chapter.

In general.—Direction in a will for payment of share of minor devisee upon her marriage, or of what may then be in guardian’s possession, or proceeds thereof, held to require guardian to account for proceeds of real estate and moneys collected, if not expended in support and maintenance of ward. Sutton v. Harvey, 24 C. A. 26, 57 S. W. 879.

The statute applies to money which the guardian is entitled to hold and does hold during his administration of the estate, and not to that which it is his duty to deliver to his ward immediately upon settlement. When the time comes for delivery, the ward is entitled to demand and receive the money. Logan v. Gay, 99 T. 603, 90 S. W. 861.

Under the statute, a guardian must render final settlement when the ward becomes 21 years old, and until he submits the same, is not entitled to an absolute discharge. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Grounds for rendering final account and discharge of guardian.—Upon the death of a ward the county court has jurisdiction to settle the guardian’s account. Veal v. Fortson, 57 T. 482.

The guardianship of a female is terminated by her marriage. Carpenter v. Soloman, 1 App. C. C. § 34, 14 S. W. 1074.

It would seem that action by the probate court upon the final account and the discharge of the guardian specified in this article was not contemplated until the ward dies, arrives at the age of 21 years or, in the case of a female, marries. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 962.

Who must render account.—Person named executrix and guardian of children of testatrix held to have acted as guardian, so as to be liable to account to executor of one of the children. Buckley v. Herder (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 763.

Jurisdiction of courts.—The probate court has no jurisdiction to partition the land of minors in a proceeding under this title. League v. Henecke (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 729.

The probate court retains jurisdiction to require final settlement though the ward has become of age. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

An action against a guardian and his sureties for $50 for the guardian’s conversion of the ward’s property, brought by the ward after termination of the guardianship, under this article, by the ward attaining full age and by her marriage, is within the jurisdiction of the district court; and an order of the probate court, requiring the guardian to report, does not prevent the maintenance of the action. Kretzschmar v. Peschel (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1021.

Limitations.—The statute does not begin to run until the guardian’s discharge. Allen v. Stovall, 94 T. 610, 63 S. W. 866.

Article 4268. [2765] [2683] Guardian shall file account for final settlement, which shall show, what.—The guardian shall file with the clerk of the court in which the guardianship is pending his account for final settlement of such guardianship; which account shall show fully and completely:

1. The property, rents, revenues and profits received by the guardian and belonging to his ward during his guardianship.
2. The disposition made of such property, rents, revenues and profits.
3. The expenses and debts, if any, against the estate remaining unpaid.
4. The property of the estate remaining in the hands of such guardian, if any.
5. Such other facts as may be necessary to a full and definite understanding of the exact condition of the guardianship.
6. Such account shall be subscribed and sworn to by the guardian before some officer authorized to administer oaths.

Art. 4269. [2766] [2684] Guardian may be cited to make final settlement, etc.—Should the guardian fail to file his account for final settlement at the proper time, the court shall, upon its own motion, or upon the complaint in writing of any one interested in the estate, cause such guardian to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and file such account.

In general.—The proceeding mentioned in this article is not an "action" within Art. 5680, and the four years' statute does not apply. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 155, 156.

Art. 4270. [2767] [2685] Citation when account is filed.—Upon the filing of an account for final settlement, the clerk shall, if the ward be living and resident in the state, and his residence be known, issue a citation notifying such ward of the filing of such account, and of the term of court at which the same will be acted upon, and that he may appear and contest such account, if he see proper to do so.

Art. 4271. [2768] [2686] Same subject.—If the ward be not living but there is an executor or administrator of his estate legally qualified, such executor or administrator shall be cited, as provided in the preceding article.

Art. 4272. [2769] [2687] Same subject.—If the ward be not living, and there be no executor or administrator of his estate, or if the ward be a non-resident of the state, or if his residence be unknown, citation shall be published once a week for three successive weeks, in some newspaper published in the county, if there be one regularly published therein; if not, then such citation shall be duly posted for at least twenty days before the return term thereof.

Art. 4273. [2770] [2688] Action of the court upon account.—After citation has been duly served, the court shall proceed to examine the account for final settlement, and to hear all exceptions and objections thereto (if any), and the evidence in support of or against such account, and if the same is found to be fair, just and correct, an order shall be entered upon the minutes approving it, and directing the guardian to deliver the estate remaining in his hands to the ward or other person legally authorized to receive the same; and, upon compliance with such order, the guardian shall be discharged, and such guardianship closed by an order to that effect entered upon the minutes.

Right to inquire into account.—When a guardian renders his final account, the probate court can inquire into it to determine whether it is fair and correct. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Under this article the court has power to revise the final settlement of a guardian after his discharge at any time after the entry of the order of approval and discharge and before the bar of limitation is complete. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 906.

Objections to final report.—Allowance of guardian's account before final settlement having been made held not conclusive, on objections to final report. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

Conclusiveness of finding.—The recital in a judgment approving the accounts of a guardian and discharging him from the guardianship that the ward had arrived at full age will not, In a suit brought against the guardian by the ward to revise the final settlement, conclude him from showing that he was still a minor when the final settlement was made and the judgment rendered. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

A recital in a judgment discharging a guardian that the person under guardianship was of age is conclusive until set aside, though the petition contain recitals indicating that she was not. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 899.

Validity of judgment.—A judgment discharging a guardian is not a nullity merely because the petition was wanting in some of the formalities prescribed by the statute. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 65 S. W. 899.

A judgment of probate court approving final account of guardian and discharging him while his ward is still a minor is not absolutely void. Id.

Judgment for ward's next friend.—Where on accounting an amount is found due from guardian, judgment should be rendered in favor of the minor's next friend, directing payment to county court, to be held until ward arrives at majority, or some legally authorized person shall apply therefor. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.
Chap. 19)  GUARDIAN AND WARD  Art. 4279

Effect of judgment.—An order approving an account of guardians, including items of their account as administrator, held a final adjudication of the account as guardians. De Berry v. Wootters (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 385.

The decree of the probate court upon final accounting of a guardian, operates as an account stated between the guardian and ward, as well as the formal discharge of the trust relationship. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Collateral attack on judgment.—The county court in matters of probate being one of general jurisdiction, held, its orders and judgment in settlement of a guardianship and of a decedent's estate cannot be collaterally attacked. Hassell v. Steinmann (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 948.

Presumption from lapse of time as to close of guardianship.—See note under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Authority to set aside order of discharge.—The order of discharge may be set aside during the term it was made, and no appeal lies thereon. Lehman v. Gajasky, 76 T. 666, 11 S. W. 1122.

Action to set aside order of discharge.—In an action to set aside a judgment discharging a guardian, barred by limitations, evidence held insufficient to warrant setting it aside. Stewart v. Robbins, 27 C. A. 188, 66 S. W. 889.

Art. 4274. [2771] [2689] Account shall be re-stated, when.—Should the account be found to be incorrect in any particular, the court shall cause the same to be corrected and re-stated, and make such order in relation thereto as may be necessary to a full and fair settlement of the guardianship.

Art. 4275. [2772] [2690] Guardian must produce vouchers, etc.—The guardian must produce and file proper vouchers for every item of credit claimed by him in his account, or support the same by other satisfactory evidence.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Art. 4276. [2773] [2691] Court shall appoint attorney to represent ward, when.—When the ward is dead and there is no executor or administrator of his estate, or when the ward is a non-resident, or his residence is unknown, the court shall appoint an attorney to represent the interest of such ward in the final settlement with the guardian, and shall allow such attorney reasonable compensation for his services out of the ward's estate.

Appearance of minor by next friend.—On citation of guardian to make final report, the minor may appear by her mother, as next friend. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

Art. 4277. [2774] [2692] Debts that could not be collected to be excluded.—In the settlement of the account of the guardian, all debts due the estate which the court is satisfied could not have been collected by due diligence, and which have not been collected, shall be excluded from the computation. [Id. sec. 130.]

Art. 4278. [2775] [2693] Labor or services of ward to be accounted for, etc.—In the settlement of any of the accounts of the guardian, he shall account for the reasonable value of the labor or services of his ward, or the proceeds thereof, if any such labor or services have been rendered by such ward; and the guardian shall be entitled to reasonable credits for the board, clothing and maintenance of his ward.

Art. 4279. [2776] [2694] Guardian may be attached, etc., when.—When a guardian who has been ordered by the court, upon final settlement, to deliver the estate to the ward, or other person legally authorized to receive the same, fails to obey such order, he may be attached and punished as for a contempt of court.

Limitations.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 2.

Judgments against guardians.—See Title 37, Chapter 16.

CHAPTER TWENTY

COMPENSATION OF GUARDIANS, EXPENSES AND COSTS OF GUARDIANSHIP

4281. Commissions of guardian.  4287. In proceedings against persons of un­sound mind, etc.
4282. Extra compensation, when allowed.  4288. Same subject.
4283. Expenses incurred to be allowed.  4289. Cost laws apply to guardianships.
4284. Pay of appraisers.  4285. Guardian of person receives no pay.—The guardian of the person alone is entitled to no compensation.  [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 189.]

Art. 4281. [2780] [2698] Commissions of guardians.—The guardian of the estate shall not be entitled to or receive any fee or commission on the estate of the ward when first delivered to him; but shall be entitled to a fee of five per cent on the gross income of the ward's estate and five per cent on all money paid out; provided, the term "money paid out" shall not be construed to include money loaned or invested or paid over on the settlement of the guardianship.  [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 40. Acts 1913, p. 321, sec. 1, amending Art. 4281, Rev. St. 1911.]

Commissions.—The guardian should be allowed commissions only on sums actually paid out. Reed v. Timmins, 52 T. 84.
A judgment allowing a guardian commissions held not void for uncertainty, where the account as approved shows the exact amount of receipts and disbursements, and the statute fixes the commission. Petty v. Petty (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 922.
That a judgment allowing a guardian commissions irregularly taxed the commissions as costs of the guardianship held not fatal. Id.
The share of the estate of one ward cannot be diminished by guardian's commissions and disbursements made on account of the other ward. Freedman v. Valle (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 922.
This article determines the amount to be paid executors in a case where the testator provided that the executors should be paid for their services as guardians one-half the fees allowed by law in such cases. Thomas v. Matthews, 51 C. A. 304, 112 S. W. 122.

Art. 4282. [2781] [2699] Extra compensation, when allowed.—If the guardian manages a farm, plantation, manufactory or other business of his ward, the court may allow him a reasonable compensation for such services.  [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 187, sec. 40.]

Art. 4283. [2782] [2700] Expenses incurred to be allowed.—All necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by the guardian in the preservation and management of the ward's estate, and in the collecting or attempting to collect claims or debts due the ward, and in recovering, or attempting to recover, property to which the ward has a title or claim, and all reasonable attorneys' fees necessarily incurred in the management of such guardianship, shall be allowed the guardian, to be paid out of the estate on satisfactory proof thereof being made to the court.  [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 4284. [2783] [2701] Pay of appraisers.—Appraisers appointed by the court to appraise the property of the ward shall be allowed two dollars each for every day that they are necessarily engaged in the performance of such duty, to be paid out of the estate.

Art. 4285. [2784] [2702] Costs shall be adjudged against the guardian, when.—In all cases where the guardian shall neglect the performance of any duty required of him, and shall be cited to appear before the court on account thereof, he shall pay all costs of such proceeding out of his own estate; and the court shall adjudge the same against him.  [Id. sec. 191.]

Art. 4286. [2785] [2703] Costs shall be adjudged against applicant, when.—In all cases where a party shall make any application or opposition, and on the trial thereof he shall be defeated, all costs occasioned by such application or opposition shall be adjudged against such party by the court. [Id. sec. 192.]

Costs.—Where a non-resident guardian sues in Texas for guardianship of the estate situated in Texas, and to remove the same (being personal property) out of the State, and the resident guardian opposes the application and is cast in the suit, the costs must be adjudged against him personally. Lanlus v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 170.

Where sureties on guardian's bond voluntarily make themselves parties to suit on the bond and lose in the county and district court, it is proper in the latter court to adjudicate costs of both courts against the guardian and themselves. Whitfield v. Burrell, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 157.

Where a stranger volunteers to prevent the father of a non compos mentis from being appointed guardian and seeks the appointment himself and is defeated it is proper to adjudge the costs against him. Hefley v. Hugen, 56 C. A. 273, 129 S. W. 957.

Art. 4287. [2786] [2704] In proceedings against persons of unsound mind, etc.—When any person is found to be of unsound mind or to be an habitual drunkard, the cost of the proceeding shall be paid out of his estate; or, if his estate be insufficient to pay the same, such costs shall be paid out of the county treasury, and the judgment of the court shall be accordingly. [Id. sec. 195.]

Art. 4288. [2787] [2705] Same subject.—If the defendant, in the case mentioned in the preceding article, be discharged, the person at whose instance the proceeding was had shall pay the costs of such proceeding; unless the informant be an officer acting in his official capacity in filing the information, in which case the costs shall be paid out of the county treasury. [Id.]

Art. 4289. [2788] [2706] Cost laws apply to guardianships.—The provisions of law regulating costs and security therefor shall apply to matters of guardianship, where the same are not expressly provided for in this title. [Id. sec. 189.]

Article 4290. [2789] [2707] Right of appeal.—Any person who may consider himself aggrieved by any decision, order or judgment of the court, or by any order of the judge thereof, may appeal to the district court as a matter of right, without bond. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 192, sec. 197.]

Cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhrer (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 506.

Nature of remedy.—The action of the county court in establishing a claim as a judgment against the estate of a ward can be questioned only by the direct revisory proceeding provided by statute. Logan v. Gay, 99 T. 603, 90 S. W. 861.

Jurisdiction.—On appeal in the district court from a judgment of the probate court approving a guardian’s account, the jurisdiction of the district court is appellate only. Magness v. Berry, 29 C. A. 567, 69 S. W. 987.

Where, in a contest over the appointment of a guardian for an incompetent, the court passed on the father’s right to act as guardian, it gave jurisdiction to the district court to revise the proceedings. Hefley v. Hugen, 56 C. A. 273, 129 S. W. 956.

Appealable.—The appointment of a guardian by a court not having jurisdiction will be revok ed on appeal. Wall v. Clark, 15 T. 321.

An order discharging a guardian may be set aside at any time during the term, and from such action of the court there is no appeal. Lehman v. Gajusky, 75 T. 566, 12 S. W. 1128.

A guardian can appeal from an interlocutory order of the court requiring him to report as to the disposition of property not subject to the jurisdiction of the court. Halbert v. Allord, 82 T. 297, 17 S. W. 555.
A nonresident guardian may appeal from an order refusing to appoint him guardian of the estate in Texas without giving bond. Orr v. Wright, 45 S. W. 429.

Order of probate court denying application of one to be appointed guardian of the person of an infant, and rescinding a previous order vacating the appointment of another as such guardian, held final order, from which an appeal lies. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 881.

The legislature, we think, considered that neither this article nor Art. 4300 or 4301 authorized the revision of the order of approval or disapproval of a claim by the several procedures therein mentioned, but their intention manifested by Art. 4221 was to give the right of appeal only. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 76 S. W. 19.

Waiver of right to appeal.—A party held to have waived his right to appeal from a judgment appointing a guardian for an incompetent. Hefley v. Hugen, 56 C. A. 273, 129 S. W. 956.

Parties on appeal.—See notes under Art. 4055.

Sufficiency of evidence to support findings.—A finding in proceedings to compel a guardianship accounting, which was supported by the evidence, will not be disturbed on appeal. Whitfield v. Burrell, 34 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 153.

Art. 4291. [2790] [2708] Notice of appeal.—An appeal is taken by causing an entry of notice thereof to be made on the record during the term at which such decision, order or judgment is entered; or, if such decision, order or judgment be made in vacation, by causing the entry of such notice to be made before the close of the next regular term of the court thereafter. [Id. sec. 198.]

Art. 4292. [2791] [2709] Transcript on appeal.—When notice of appeal has been given, a certified transcript of the proceedings shall be made out by the clerk and transmitted to the district court of the county; such transcript shall not contain anything that does not relate to the decision, order or judgment appealed from. [Id. sec. 199.]

Art. 4293. [2792] [2710] Several appeals may be embraced in same transcript, when.—When notice of appeal has been given by the same person from more than one decision, order or judgment of the court in the same guardianship, at the same term, all of the appeals may be embraced in the same transcript. [Id.]

Art. 4294. [2793] [2711] Transcript shall be made out, etc., within what time.—If there be not time to make out such transcript before the first day of the next term of the district court after such appeal is taken, it shall be transmitted to such court within sixty days after such appeal is taken. [Id. sec. 200.]

Art. 4295. [2794] [2712] Appeal shall not suspend decisions, etc., unless, etc.—The appeal shall not suspend the decision, order or judgment, except in the cases mentioned in the succeeding article, unless the appellant, within twenty days after the entry of notice of appeal, shall file a bond in an amount fixed by the court at the time of entry of appeal, signed by two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to, and approved by, the clerk, conditioned that the appellant shall perform the orders and judgment which the district court may make therein, in case the decision be against him. [Id. sec. 201.]

Art. 4296. [2795] [2713] Appeal suspends decision, etc., without bond, when.—An appeal suspends the decision, order or judgment, without bond:
1. When taken by a claimant from the disapproval of his claim.
2. When taken by the guardian or trustee, except where the controversy is respecting the rights of guardianship or the settlement of an account. [Id. sec. 202.]

Art. 4297. [2796] [2714] Judgment of district court shall be entered of record, etc.—When a certified copy of the judgment of the district court in the case is received, it shall be entered of record upon the minutes of the county court as the judgment of such county court. [Id. sec. 203.]

Art. 4298. [2797] [2715] Judgment dismissing appeal, etc.—Where a certified copy of the judgment of the district court dismissing an appeal or quashing a supersedeas is received, it shall be entered of record on the minutes of the county court, and the decision, order, or judgment of the county court which was appealed from shall stand as if no appeal or supersedeas had been taken or obtained. [Id. sec. 204.]

Art. 4299. [2798] [2716] Appeal shall be tried de novo.—Appeals from the decision, order or judgment of the county court or county judge to the district court in cases of guardianship shall be tried in the district court de novo; and the judgment of the district court therein shall be certified to the county court to be carried into effect. [Act May 13, 1846. P.D. 1460.]

Cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhrer (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 605.

Evidence.—On appeal from an order allowing in part a claim against an estate in the hands of a guardian, it was not error to permit claimant to read in evidence the account sued on, and the statement filed in the county court, stating in detail the services for which claim was made. Bradshaw v. Lyles, 55 C. A. 384, 119 S. W. 918.

Art. 4300. [2799] [2717] Bill of review may be brought.—Any person interested may, by a bill of review, filed in the court in which the proceedings were had, have any decision, order or judgment rendered by such court, or by the judge thereof, revised and corrected on showing error therein. But no process or action under such decision, order or judgment shall be stayed except by writ of injunction. [Id. sec. 205.]

In general.—In an action to review the final settlement of a guardian, the latter held required to justify an expenditure out of the corpus of the estate by proof of an order of court permitting such use. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

In an action to review the final settlement of a guardian, the court could not charge the guardian with the difference between the appraised value as shown by the inventory and the value of the property as accounted for in his accounts. Id.

In an action to review the final settlement of a guardian, the restatement by the court of the account as to all of the wards held not error, though one of them was not a party to the suit. Id.

The statutes do not provide for a bill of review except in guardianship matters, where any person interested may, by such bill filed in the court in which the proceedings were had, have the same revised and corrected, as authorized by this article, and in certain other specified cases. Robbie v. Upson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 406.

Necessity for first proceeding by bill of review.—See notes under Art. 4301.

Orders or judgments reviewable.—A person may attack orders of probate court directing the sale of his realty while he was under guardianship though such orders are utterly void. Kelsey v. Trisler, 32 C. A. 177, 74 S. W. 67.

Under this article an order of approval of an account and discharge of a guardian is an order or judgment within the statute. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

Grounds for bill of review.—Error in discharging sureties on a guardian's bond before the filing of a new bond may be corrected by bill of review under this article, and a bill of review filed by any person interested in a guardianship will lie for errors of law apparent on the face of the decree. Miller v. Miller, 21 C. A. 352, 63 S. W. 362.

Nature of remedy.—When a bill is brought under this statute, it is not a collateral, but a direct, attack upon the decision, order or judgment sought to be corrected. De Cordova v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1042.

Limitations.—See notes under Title 87, Chapter 2.

Requisites of bill of review.—A bill of review need not conform to the rules, and is not limited by the restrictions of the equity practice as applicable to that remedy. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222, citing Janson v. Jacobs, 44 T. 573; Seguin v. Maverick, 24 T. 526, 76 Am. Dec. 117. And see Young v. Gray, 60 T. 641.

Under this article a bill attacking the guardian's accounts both for errors of law apparent on the accounts and on a state of facts, the effect of which was to charge fraudulent conduct, was sufficient. Nicholson v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

Findings.—The findings of the court on a bill of review to vacate a guardianship settlement should designate the particular items found incorrect and which correct, and should specify the corrections and revisions of accounts made by the court. Jones v. Parker, 67 T. 76, 3 S. W. 222.

Jurisdiction of appellate courts.—Under Const. art. 5, § 16, and this article, where a county court rendered judgment against a guardian and the surety on his bond for a default in a bill in the nature of a bill of review, and defendant surety pleaded a prior proceeding approving the guardian's final account and discharging the surety, an appeal from such judgment should be made to the district court only, and not to the court of civil appeals in the first instance. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhrer (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 808, affirming 132 S. W. 595.

Art. 4301. [2800] [2718] Certiorari.—Any person interested may also have any decision, order or judgment of the county court or county judge revised and corrected by writ of certiorari from the district court 2975.
under the same rules and regulations as are provided in estates of decedents.

In general.—A decree confirming a sale of ward's land will not be reviewed on cer­

Necessity for first proceeding by bill of review.—Though Art. 4300 provides for a bill of review to correct orders and judgments of the probate court, it does not follow that such means of correcting improper judgments should be resorted to before seeking to accomplish the same result by certiorari. Linch v. Broad, 70 T. 92, 6 S. W. 751.

Under this and the preceding articles a party interested in a guardianship proceeding in the county court, may, without first proceeding by bill of review in that court, petition the district court for a writ of certiorari. Jirou v. Jirou, 104 T. 136, 135 S. W. 114.
HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS

Art. 4302. Appointment and term of office.
Art. 4303. Oath and bond.

Art. 4309. Copies of reports delivered to whom.
Art. 4310. What public officers entitled to copies of general laws.

Article 4302. [2801] His appointment and term.—A secretary of state shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and shall be continued in office during the term of service of the governor by whom he was appointed, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. [Const., art. 4, sec. 21. Act May 9, 1846. Amended Acts 1899, p. 3. O. & W. 1818.]

Art. 4303. Oath and bond.—He shall, within twenty days after he has received notice of his appointment, and before he enters upon the duties of his office, give a bond, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, with not less than six good sureties, to be approved by the governor, conditioned that he will faithfully execute the duties of his office; and shall take and subscribe to the oath prescribed by the constitution, which, together with the bond, shall be deposited in the office of the comptroller of public accounts. [Acts 1899, p. 3.]

Art. 4304. [2802] Shall register governor’s acts.—He shall keep a fair register of all the official acts of the governor, and, when required, shall lay the same, and all minutes and other papers in relation thereto, before the legislature, or either branch thereof. [Id. sec. 2. O. & W. 1819.]

Art. 4305. [2803] His general duties.—He shall keep his office at the seat of government or other place where the sessions of the legislature may be held; he shall, in a separate book suitable for the purpose, keep a complete register of all the officers appointed and elected in the state, and commission the same when not otherwise provided for by law; he shall arrange and preserve all the books, maps, parchments, records, documents, deeds, conveyances and other papers belonging to the state that have been, or may be properly deposited there, and sealed with the seal of the state, and also similar copies of any act, law or resolution of the United States, or either of them, from the originals in his office; which copies shall be as legal and conclusive in evidence and to all intents and purposes in the courts of this state as the originals would have been; and he shall, when required, furnish the governor, the legislature or either branch thereof, with such copies, and shall affix the seal of the state to all certificates of official character that may emanate from his office. [Id. sec. 13. O. & W. 1820.]

Duty to make report.—Secretary of state hold required to make report of receipts and expenditures. Madden v. Hardy, 82 T. 613, 60 S. W. 926.

Art. 4306. [2804] Shall receive and bind enrolled bills, etc.—He shall attend at every session of the legislature for the purpose of receiving bills which have become laws, and immediately after the close thereof shall cause all such bills and all the enrolled joint resolutions of the legislature to be bound together in a volume to be kept in his office, and the date of the session to be written or stamped thereon, a certified copy of which he shall deliver to the public printer, together with an index of the same, and he shall carefully examine and compare the printed copy with the certified copy and correct all the errors contained in the former. [Id. sec. 4. O. & W. 1821.]

Art. 4307. [2805] Shall forward laws, etc., to certain foreign officials.—The secretary of state shall forward to the librarian of congress and the secretary of state of the United States, the secretary of the treasury of the United States, and the executive departments of all of the states of the union, to each foreign librarian or government with whom a system of library exchange may be established, as he may deem advisable, copies of all laws and judicial reports printed and published by order of the legislature, and at the expense of the state. [Act March 20, 1848. Amended Acts 1909, p. 124. O. & W. 1825.]

Art. 4308. [2806] Disposition of books received.—The secretary of state shall turn over to the person in charge of the state library, immediately upon their receipt, all books, maps, charts or other publications of a political or miscellaneous character received at his office; and he shall, in like manner, turn over to the librarian of the supreme court at the capitol all volumes of reports of the courts of any other state or territory received by him; and he shall, in like manner, turn over to the state library, all printed volumes of the statutes or laws of any nation, state or territory, to be deposited in said state library for the same use and purpose as the other books kept there. [Amended Acts 1909, p. 124, sec. 8.]

Art. 4309. [2807] Copies of reports to be sent to whom.—The secretary of state shall deliver, by mail or otherwise, to each justice of the supreme court, each judge of the courts of appeals, the attorney general, the assistant attorney general, the governor, each district judge of the state, each professor of law of the university of Texas, the librarian of said university, and to the county judge of each county for the use of the counties, one copy of the reports of the supreme court and court of appeals, hereafter issued; also shall furnish to each district judge of the United States for Texas one copy of each of said reports for each branch of his courts; and, when it appears that any of the reports of either of said courts have been heretofore furnished and not returned to the department of state, or when they are hereafter delivered by the state to either of the said officers or authorities, the secretary shall have no authority to send another copy, except on proof that the same have been destroyed by fire, or have been rendered valueless by long use, to be evidenced by the certificate of the officer demanding to be resupplied with such report. [Acts 1887, p. 114.]

Art. 4310. [2808] What officers entitled to receive copies of laws.—The following officers shall be entitled to receive one copy of each of all general and special laws hereafter passed by the legislature, to-wit: The governor and heads of departments, each member of the legislature, the judges of the several courts throughout the state, and the clerks of said courts, and each county attorney. The following officers shall be entitled to receive one copy each of all general laws hereafter passed by the legislature, to-wit: County treasurer, county surveyor, sheriff, assessor of taxes, collector of taxes, inspector of hides and animals, justice of the peace, constable and county commissioner. [Acts 1885, p. 68.]

Art. 4311. [2809] How distributed.—The secretary of state shall distribute the printed laws of each session of the legislature to the officers named in the preceding article, as follows: He shall mail or deliver in person to the governor and heads of departments, and to all state or district officers, a copy each, as therein provided; and he shall forward to the county judge of each county a sufficient number of said laws to supply each county officer named in the preceding article with a copy. [Act Feb. 2, 1850, p. 99, sec. 3. P. D. 4585.]

Art. 4312. [2810] May sell copies of laws.—The secretary of state is authorized to sell copies of the general and special laws of the state of Texas that have been or may hereafter be published, at a price not to exceed twenty-five per cent above cost of publishing; provided, that a sufficient number of all laws published be reserved from sale for the use of the state; and provided, further, that any money realized in excess of the costs attending such sale shall be placed to the account of the general revenue in the state treasury. [Acts 1883, p. 33.]

Art. 4313. [2811] Legislative journals, how distributed.—He shall distribute to the governor and heads of departments, and to each member of the legislature, a copy of the printed journals of both houses; and he shall also forward to the county judge of each county two copies of said journals, one to be deposited in the office of the clerk of the district court and the other in the office of the clerk of the county court, for the use of said courts respectively. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 4586.]

Art. 4314. [2812] Digest of laws, how distributed.—Whenever a digest or revision of the laws of the state has been or shall be subscribed for, or published by the state, a sufficient number of copies of each volume thereof shall be forwarded to the county judge of each county to furnish one of said copies to each judge of the supreme and district courts and courts of appeals, to each clerk of the supreme, district and county courts, and courts of appeals, and to each justice of the peace that may be a resident in said county; and it shall be the duty of said county judge to deliver one copy of each of said volumes to each of said officers that may reside in said county. [Id. sec. 5. P. D. 4587.]

Art. 4315. [2813] Executive officers entitled to copies.—The secretary of state shall also deliver to each of the executive officers at the seat of government one copy of each volume of any edition of a digest or revision of the laws of the state, whether such books shall be subscribed for or published by the state, which shall belong to said office; and the officer receiving any such volume shall be bound to deliver it to his successor, and shall be liable to pay his successor the costs and charges that may be necessary to supply the office with any book he may neglect so to deliver. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 4589.]

Art. 4316. [2814] Officers shall receipt for books.—Whenever any officer shall receive a copy of any report, statute, digest or journal, he shall receipt for the same to the officer distributing it, who shall file such receipt in his office; and said books shall be deemed to belong to the office of said officer to whom they are delivered, and shall, at all reasonable hours, be subject to the inspection and examination of any citizen of this state; and, should any of said officers fail or refuse to deliver any of said books to his successor in office when demanded by him, the officer so failing or refusing shall be liable to pay such successor the costs and charges that may be necessary to supply the office of such successor with any of said books that he shall so fail or refuse to deliver. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 4588.]

Art. 4317. [2815] Shall distribute United States laws.—The secretary of state shall forward to the clerk of the county court of each county, for the use of the county, one copy of all the acts of the congress of the United States which may be received in his office. [Act May 9, 1846, p. 189, sec. 6. P. D. 4582.]

Art. 4318. [2816] May appoint chief and other clerks.—The secretary of state shall appoint a chief clerk and such number of assistant clerks as may be authorized by law, each of whom shall receive such compensation as may from time to time be fixed by appropriation.

Art. 4319. [2817] Chief clerk may act, when.—In the absence of the secretary of state, or his inability to act from any cause, the chief clerk may perform all the duties required by law of that officer. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 5094.]

CHAPTER TWO

COMPTROLLER OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

[See "Education—Public" Ch. 11.]

Art. 4320. Election and term of office. — That there shall be elected by the qualified voters of this state, at the time and places of election for members of the legislature, a comptroller of public accounts, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., p. 37, sec. 1.]

Art. 4321. Vacancy, how filled. — In case of a vacancy in the office of comptroller of public accounts, the governor shall fill the same by appointment for the unexpired term; which appointment shall be submitted to the senate for confirmation in accordance with law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4322. Bond. — The comptroller shall, within twenty days after he shall have received notice of his election or appointment and before he enters upon the duties of his office, give a bond, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, in the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars, with not less than six good sureties, to be approved by the governor, conditioned that he will faithfully execute the duties of his office, and shall take and subscribe to the oath prescribed by the constitution, which, together with the bond, shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state; which said bond shall not be void on the first recovery of part or of the whole of the penalty, and shall thereafter continue in force for the whole amount of the penalty thereof, and may be sued on from time to time, and shall be deemed to extend to the faithful performance of the duties of his trust until his successor shall be duly qualified, and shall have entered upon the duties of his office. [Id. sec. 3.]

Liability on bond.—The comptroller and his chief clerk are responsible to the state where a deficit of state funds occurs in their department. Brown v. Sneed, 77 T. 471, 14 S. W. 246.

Art. 4323. Seal.—He shall procure, at the expense of the state, a seal with the words, “Comptroller’s Office, State of Texas,” engraved around the margin, and a star with five points in the center thereof, which shall be used as the seal of the comptroller’s office in the authentication of all his official acts, except warrants drawn on the treasury of the state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4324. Accounting officer.—It shall be the duty of the comptroller of public accounts to superintend the fiscal concerns of the state, as the sole accounting officer thereof, and manage the same in the manner required by law; he shall also perform such official acts as were required of the secretary of the treasury of the republic of Texas, when not otherwise provided by law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4325. Shall keep accounts between state and United States.—He shall keep and state all accounts between this state and the United States, and all other accounts in which the state is interested, including all moneys received by the state as interest and other payments on land and office fees of his and other departments of the state government, and all other moneys received by the state from whatever source and for whatever purpose, and suggest plans for the improvement and management of the public revenue. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4326. Examine accounts of persons indebted to state.—He shall examine and settle the accounts of all persons indebted to the state, and certify the amount or balance to the treasurer, and direct and superintend the collection of all moneys due the state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4327. Accounts to be verified by affidavit.—He shall require all accounts presented to him for settlement, not otherwise provided for by law, to be made on forms prescribed by him, and all such accounts shall be verified by affidavit taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths, touching the correctness of the same, or by oath or affirmation, which may be administered by himself in any case in which he may deem it necessary; and all such accounts of the same class and kind shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4328. Shall require statements.—He shall require all persons who shall have received any moneys belonging to the state, and shall not have accounted therefor, to settle their accounts; and shall, from time to time, require all persons receiving moneys or having the disposition or management of any property of the state, of which an account is kept in his office, to render statements thereof to him. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4329. Audit claims against state.—He shall audit the claims of all persons against the state in cases where provisions for the payment thereof have been made by law, unless the auditing of any such claim shall be otherwise specially provided for. [Id. sec. 10.]

Usurpation of power.—Usurpation by the state comptroller of powers given another department to review certain accounts, though long continued, cannot give him the right to exercise that power. Rochelle v. Lane, 105 T. 350, 148 S. W. 568.

Art. 4330. Certain claims to be presented before legislature convenes.—All sheriffs, attorneys and all other parties holding claims against the state of Texas, for which no warrants have been issued, and the appropriation for which has been exhausted, shall present the same to the comptroller of the state for his consideration at least thirty days before the meeting of each regular session of the legislature of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4331. Claims to have priority.—The comptroller of the state of Texas is authorized and directed to audit no claims against the state not presented within the time prescribed in the preceding article of this chapter, until all claims presented prior to that time have been considered and passed upon by him. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4332. Warrants on treasurer.—He shall draw warrants on the treasurer for the payment of all moneys directed by law to be paid out of the treasury; and no warrant shall be drawn unless authorized by law; and every warrant shall refer to the law under which it is drawn; and no warrant shall be issued in favor of any person, or the agent or assignee of any person indebted to the state, until such debt be paid.
[Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4333. No warrants to be drawn, unless.—No warrant shall be drawn on the treasurer of this state by the comptroller based alone on the requisition of any individual or board, except as otherwise provided by law; but, in all cases, an account must first be made in pursuance of some specific appropriation, and filed with the comptroller by some one duly authorized and verified by affidavit. [Id. sec. 14.]

Requisition by Individuals.—Where claims against the state are based alone on the requisition of an individual—i.e., any person or board authorized by law to make the same—the comptroller is not authorized to draw his warrant on the treasurer, unless the claim is made pursuant to some specific appropriation; the comptroller not being clothed, however, with absolute or arbitrary power to withhold his warrant, his duty to issue it being mandatory, if an appropriation for the purpose in question has been made and the requisition follows the appropriation. Fulmore v. Lane, 104 T. 499, 149 S. W. 405, 1082.

Art. 4334. Shall prescribe forms.—He shall prescribe and furnish the forms to be used by all persons in the collection of the public revue and the mode and manner of keeping and stating their accounts, and shall adopt such regulations, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws, as he may deem essential to the speedy and proper assessment and collection of the revenues of the state; and all such forms of the same class, kind and purpose shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4335. Allowance to tax collector.—He shall remit, or make an allowance, to every tax collector in the auditing of his accounts, for all sums of money which, in his judgment, have been illegally assessed.
[Id. sec. 15a.]

Art. 4336. Comptroller's account to be approved by secretary of state.—The account of the comptroller against the state shall not be passed to the treasurer until approved by the secretary of state. [Id.
sec. 16.]

Art. 4337. Bonds to be deposited in office.—All liens, mortgages, bonds and other securities for money given to this state or any officer, and being for the use of the state, unless otherwise specially directed, shall be deposited in the office of the comptroller. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4338. [2830] Audited claims to be reported to legislature.—
The comptroller of the state of Texas shall keep a book for the purpose of registering and indexing all audited claims against the state, and, on the meeting of the regular session of the legislature, shall make a minute report of the same to the two houses thereof, giving the names and amounts of all audited claims. [Acts 1876, p. 281.]

Art. 4339. Accounts to be closed, when.—The accounts of the comtroller shall be annually closed on the last day of August; and he shall exhibit all books, papers, vouchers and all other matters pertaining to his office, for the examination of either branch of the legislature, or any committee which may be by them appointed, whenever required by them to do so. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., sec. 18.]

Art. 4340. Shall render account to governor, when.—In addition to the reports required by the constitution, the comptroller shall exhibit to the governor, on the first Monday of November of each year, and at such other times as he shall require, an exact and complete statement of the funds of the state, of its revenues, and of the public expenditures during the preceding year (or for such other times as may be required), with a detailed estimate of the expenditures to be defrayed from the treasury for the ensuing year, specifying therein each object of expenditures and distinguishing between such as are provided for by general or special appropriation, and such as are required to be provided for by law, and showing the means from which such expenditures are to be defrayed. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4341. Shall preserve books, records, etc.—The comptroller of public accounts shall preserve the books, records, papers and other things belonging to his office, and deliver the same, without injury or damage, to his successor. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4342. To be notified of deficiencies, when.—All heads of departments, managers of state institutions or other persons intrusted with the power or duty of contracting for supplies, or in any manner pledging the credit of the state for any deficiency that may arise under their management or control, shall, at least thirty days before such deficiency shall occur, make out a sworn estimate of the amount necessary to cover such deficiency until the meeting of the next legislature; and such estimate shall be immediately filed with the governor of the state, who shall thereupon carefully examine the same and approve or disapprove the same in whole or in part. When such deficiency claim, or any part thereof, has been so approved by the governor he shall indorse his approval thereon, designating the amount and items thereof approved and the items disapproved, and file the same with the comptroller; and the same shall be authority for the comptroller to draw his deficiency warrant for so much thereof as may be approved; but no claim, or any part thereof, shall be allowed or warrants drawn therefor by the comptroller, or paid by the treasurer, unless such estimate has been so approved and filed. If there is a deficiency appropriation sufficient to meet such claim, then a warrant shall be drawn therefor and the same shall be paid; but, if there is no such appropriation, or if such appropriation be so exhausted that it is not sufficient to pay such deficiency claim, then a deficiency warrant shall issue therefor; and such claim shall remain unpaid until provision be made therefor at some session of the legislature thereafter; provided, that the provisions of this section [article] shall not apply to fees and dues for which the state may be liable under the general laws; provided, further, when any injury or damage shall occur to any public property from flood, storm or any unavoidable cause, the estimate may be filed at once, but must be approved by the governor as provided in this section [article].

Art. 4343. Chief clerk.—The comptroller shall appoint a chief clerk, who, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall be required to take the oath prescribed by the constitution, and give bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, payable in like manner as the bond of the comptroller, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, whose duty it shall be to discharge the duties of the comptroller when the comptroller may be unavoidably absent or incapable, from sickness or other cause, to discharge said duties, and, under the direction of the comptroller, to supervise the keeping of the books, records and accounts of the department, and to perform such other duties as may be required.
of him by law and by the comptroller; and, in the event the office of the comptroller should become vacant by death, resignation or otherwise, said chief clerk shall act as comptroller until a comptroller is appointed and qualified.

Art. 4344. Deposit warrants.—The comptroller shall have printed uniform deposit warrants, which shall be of four classes: "State revenue," "available school," "permanent school," and "miscellaneous," and which shall be prepared in triplicate and marked "original," "duplicate, and "triplicate," respectively. Each class shall be separately serially numbered, and shall be on paper of a different color from the other classes. He shall provide for the use of his department a warrant register for each class of deposit warrants, each volume of which shall be appropriately designated by number or otherwise, and the pages of which shall be ruled and the lines numbered consecutively. When a deposit warrant is prepared, it shall be registered in the deposit warrant register for the class to which it belongs and on the line in such register corresponding in number with the number of the deposit warrant registered.
A distribution of the amount stated in each deposit warrant shall be posted in detail to the ledger containing accounts for each source of revenue. The triplicate deposit warrant shall be, on receipt by the treasurer of the amount stated therein, receipted by the treasurer and delivered to the person making the deposit, the original to the state treasurer, who shall file the same numerically; and the duplicate shall be, on receipt of the amount stated therein, receipted by the treasurer, and by him returned to the comptroller, who shall file same numerically. The printed forms for these warrants shall be so prepared and arranged that the original, duplicate and triplicate may, by use of carbon sheets, all be prepared at one and the same writing; and no deposit shall be received into the state treasury on any account, except upon a deposit warrant issued as herein provided.

Art. 4345. Deposit receipts.—The comptroller shall have printed uniform deposit receipts, to be issued by the comptroller to cover moneys and other securities received and held by the state treasurer for which no deposit warrant is issued, or the issuance of a deposit warrant for which, if deferred, except office fees of the state treasurer. Such receipts shall be prepared in duplicate and marked "original" and "duplicate, respectively, and shall be serially numbered; and the printed form for these receipts shall be so prepared and arranged that the original and the duplicate may, by the use of carbon sheets, both be prepared at one and the same writing. The duplicate shall be receipted by the treasurer, and by him returned to the comptroller, and the original delivered to, and retained by, the state treasurer. He shall provide his office with separate registers, prepared in like manner and form, as the register provided for in article 4344 of this chapter, in which he shall register the deposit receipts, issued in like manner as is provided for the registration of deposit warrants, and shall provide a separate ledger in which shall be kept appropriate accounts for all matters for which such deposit re-cceipts are issued.

Art. 4346. Claims and accounts.—All claims and accounts against the state shall be submitted on forms prescribed by the comptroller, and in duplicate, when required by him, and, except claims for pensions, shall be so prepared as to provide for the entering thereon, for the use of the comptroller's department, as well as other appropriate matters, the following:

(a) Signature of the head of the department or other person responsible for incurring the expenditure, or of the person on whose account the expenditure was incurred.

(b) Appropriation number.

(c) Initials of the person ascertaining if there are funds available.
(d) Initials of the person auditing the claim.
(e) Number and date of warrant issued with the initials of the person preparing the warrant.
(f) Initials of the person posting to ledger.
(g) Initials of the person comparing the claim and warrant.

Art. 4347. Claims to be classified.—There shall be three classes of claim forms, as follows:

1. "General," which shall consist of: (a) payrolls, covering departmental and institutional services; (b) traveling expense vouchers; (c) purchases and services other than personal; and (d) sheriff and court claims; and under the head of sheriff and court claims the comptroller may provide for different forms, such as those for sheriffs, county attorneys, district attorneys, district clerks, district judges, witnesses and all other like claims relating to the judiciary; but those of the same kind, use and purpose shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form.

2. "Special," covering all claims for which special warrants are issued and all claims and accounts under this head of the same kind, use and purpose shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form.

3. "Pensions." The forms for pensions shall be prescribed by the comptroller, and shall be uniform in size, arrangement, matter and form.

Art. 4348. List of claims to be kept.—When claims and accounts are received, it shall be ascertained if there are funds available therefor; and the persons making the examination shall indicate such fact by marking his initials upon such claim; and, if there are no funds available, that fact shall be written or stamped upon such claim; and the same shall be held to await the authority to issue a proper warrant therefor. When a claim has been audited and warrant drawn therefor, the claim shall be numbered with the same number as the warrant; and such claim shall be filed numerically according to class, "general," "special," and "pension," respectively. There shall be kept, either in book form or in the form of a card index, an alphabetical index of claimants; but, as to pay rolls, the department or institution shall be the claimant. The index shall show only the name of the claimant and the number of the claim. After the expiration of two years, such claims shall be removed from the files and otherwise securely stored and preserved as records.

Art. 4349. Pay warrants.—The comptroller shall have printed uniform pay warrants, which shall be of three classes, "general," "special," and "pension." Such warrants shall be prepared in duplicate, and shall be marked "original," and "duplicate," respectively; and each class shall be serially numbered and shall be of a color of paper different from the other class. Such warrants shall be prepared so as to provide for entering thereon, in addition to other appropriate matter, the following:

(a) Initials of the person in the comptroller's department comparing the warrant with the claim.
(b) Initials of the person in the comptroller's department registering the warrant.
(c) Designation of the fund against which the warrant is drawn.

Art. 4350. Pay warrants registered.—The comptroller shall provide a pay warrant register for each class of pay warrants, each volume of which shall be appropriately designated by number or otherwise, and the pages of which shall be ruled, and the lines numbered consecutively. When a pay warrant is prepared, it shall be registered in the pay warrant register for the class to which it belongs; and such entries in those registers shall be on the line corresponding in number with the number on the pay warrant register; and such registry shall consist only of an entry of the amount and name of the payee of such warrant; and, if a warrant is erroneously prepared and not issued, or is canceled, or is properly shown to be lost or destroyed, such fact shall be noted in the register opposite the number of such warrant in the register. One person shall be designated by the comptroller as warrant clerk and such person shall prepare or be responsible for the preparation of all pay warrants, and shall be accountable to the comptroller for warrants coming into his possession. No warrant shall be prepared except on presentation to the warrant clerk of a properly verified and audited claim, the proper auditing of which claim shall be evidenced by the initials written thereon by the person auditing the same; and such claim so verified and audited shall be sufficient and the only authority for the preparation of a warrant or warrants. When a warrant has been properly prepared, the claim upon which it was prepared shall be initialed with the initials of the warrant clerk, and such warrant shall be registered as herein provided; and the fact of the registration thereof shall be shown by writing thereon the initials of the person registering the same. When a warrant is properly prepared, it shall be, with the claim upon which it is based, passed to the comptroller for his signature or the signature of such person as may be authorized by law to sign the same in his stead. Such warrant shall then be passed to, and registered in, the treasurer's department and signed by the state treasurer, or some person authorized by law to sign for him, and returned to the comptroller's department. Such warrant shall then be delivered by the comptroller to the person entitled to receive it; and he shall, at his option, take a receipt from such person therefor; which receipt shall be filed in his office. The printed forms for these warrants shall be so prepared and arranged that the original and duplicate may, and the same shall, by the use of carbon sheets, be prepared at one and the same writing.

Art. 4351. Law not to apply to pension warrants.—Applications for pensions and the issuance of pension warrants shall not be subject to the provisions of this chapter. Such warrants shall be separately serially numbered.

Art. 4352. Registration of bonds.—The comptroller shall procure for the use of his department suitable books appropriately ruled and printed, to be known as "bond registers," the volumes of which shall be separately designated by number or otherwise, in which he shall register alphabetically all state, county, school, municipal, and drainage or other such bonds required by law to be registered by him. Neither the bonds nor opinion of the attorney general, nor the record or other papers or documents relative thereto, shall be recorded in full; but only the name of the authority issuing and the names and official capacities of the officers signing such bonds, the date of issue, date of registration, amount of principal, date of maturity, number, time of option of redemption, rate of interest and day of the month of each year when the interest shall fall due, of each bond so registered, shall be entered upon such register; and, on the same line where such entry is made, shall be provided blank spaces in which shall be entered the date of payment or redemption of each bond when the same is paid or redeemed; and, when any bond is paid or redeemed, it shall be the duty of the proper officer of the authority paying such bond to notify the comptroller of the fact and date of such payment or redemption, and for entering the file number of all documents and other papers filed in connection with such bond; and all papers and documents pertaining to such bonds shall be filed and appropriately numbered.

Art. 4353. Account of bonds belonging to each fund to be kept separate.—The comptroller shall keep appropriate accounts by funds, showing a short description of the essential features of each, of each bond or of each purchase of similar or like bonds, or other securities purchased by and belonging to the permanent school and other funds of the state; each of which accounts shall be charged with the principal of such bond or purchase; and, with each separate item of interest payments to accrue thereon, and shall be credited with payments as made. He shall also keep controlling or total accounts of such bonds or other securities; which accounts shall be kept with respect to the total amount of bonds or other securities belonging to each separate fund; each of which controlling accounts shall be balanced quarterly at the same time as and the balance of which shall correspond with like accounts kept by the state treasurer.

Art. 4354. State general ledger.—The comptroller shall establish and maintain a double entry system of bookkeeping to be in charge of the chief bookkeeper. The accounts of each of the funds shall be opened in a "state general ledger," and, at the start, credited with a balance of the funds on hand. An account shall also be opened with the state treasurer and charged with the cash on hand and the balance in depositories. Each charge shall represent the aggregate amount of cash held by him for the various funds. Thereafter, no entry shall be made in the ledger except by means of the double entry system. Warrants issued shall be charged in monthly totals to the fund accounts. Accounts shall be opened for the purpose of showing the amount of outstanding pay warrants from time to time; which accounts shall be credited with the warrants issued and charged with the warrants paid. All outstanding pay warrants, at the time this act shall go into effect, shall be definitely ascertained, and the account started with a credit for the aggregate amount, and the several fund accounts charged with the outstanding pay warrants against said accounts respectively. The comptroller shall charge the state treasurer in totals with all deposit warrants as issued and credit him with warrants paid so that the balance in the treasurer's hands, together with the balance in the state depositories, shall agree with the balance shown by this account.

Art. 4355. Revenue ledger.—The comptroller shall keep a ledger, to be known as "revenue ledger," in which a distribution shall be made of the revenues derived by the state from all sources, and the amount derived from each source, as stated. The sources of revenue printed on the back of the duplicate in each deposit warrant issued therefor by the comptroller shall be posted to the revenue ledger, and its balances periodically agreed with the deposit warrants issued.

Art. 4356. Ledger for accounting of tax collectors.—The comptroller shall keep the accounts of tax collectors in a separate ledger, one for current taxes and the other for delinquent and insolvent taxes, and these ledgers shall be made self-balancing by means of controlling accounts.

Art. 4357. Ledger for account of state treasurer.—The comptroller shall keep a suspense ledger in which the accounts of the state treasurer shall be stated in respect to moneys held by him, pending the issuance of deposit warrants and moneys and securities held, other than those for state purposes, for all of which the comptroller shall issue deposit receipts, posting the same in total to this ledger. It shall also include the accounts of heads of departments for all moneys received by them, and not deposited with the state treasurer; which accounts shall be kept in monthly totals based upon monthly reports furnished to the comptroller by each of the heads of departments.

Art. 4358. Shall keep journals.—The comptroller shall keep journals through which all entries are made in the ledgers.

Art. 4359. Issue duplicate warrants, when.—The comptroller of public accounts, when satisfied that any original warrant drawn upon the state treasurer has been lost, or destroyed, or when any certificate or other evidence of indebtedness approved by the auditing board of the state has been lost, is authorized to issue a duplicate warrant in lieu of the original warrant or a duplicate or a copy of such certificate, or other evidence of indebtedness in lieu of such original; but no such duplicate warrant, or other evidence of indebtedness, shall issue until the applicant has filed with the comptroller his affidavit, stating that he is the true owner of such instrument, and that the same is in fact lost or destroyed, and shall also file with the comptroller his bond in double the amount of the claim, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the governor, to be approved by the comptroller, and conditioned that the applicant will hold the state harmless and return to the comptroller, upon demand being made therefor, such duplicates or copies, or the amount of money named therein, together with all costs that may accrue against the state on collecting the same.

Art. 4360. Duty when duplicates are improperly issued.—If, after the issuance of said duplicate or copy, the comptroller should ascertain that the same was improperly issued, or that the applicant or party to whom the same was issued was not the owner thereof, he shall at once demand the return of said duplicate or copy if unpaid, or the amount paid out by the state, if so paid; and, upon failure of the party to return same or the amount of money called for, suit shall be instituted upon said bond in the court having jurisdiction of the amount in controversy, in the city of Austin, Travis county, Texas.

Art. 4361. Comptroller and treasurer to examine and cancel warrants.—The comptroller shall examine the disbursements of the treasurer at the end of each quarter, and shall, together with the treasurer, cancel the warrants which have been paid in such manner as to prevent their future circulation, and shall examine if the receipts acknowledged by the treasurer during the quarter correspond with the deposits, and if the balance of money reported to be in his possession is actually in his hands.

Article 4362. [2849] His election and term of office.—There shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state, at the time and places of election for members of the legislature, a state treasurer, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualifi-Const., art. 4, sec. 2.]
Art. 4363. [2850] Vacancies, how filled.—Should a vacancy occur in the office of the state treasurer, the governor shall fill the same by appointment for the unexpired term; which appointment shall be submitted to the senate, if in session, for confirmation. [Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 2.]

Art. 4364. [2851] His oath and bond.—The state treasurer shall, within twenty days after he shall have received notice of his election, and before he enters upon the duties of his office, give a bond payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, in the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars, with no less than six good sureties, to be approved by the governor, conditioned that he will faithfully execute the duties of his office, and shall take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution, which, together with the bond, shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state; which said bond shall not be void on the first recovery of part, or of the whole of the penalty, but shall thereafter continue in force for the whole amount of the penalty thereof, and may be sued on from time to time, and shall be deemed to extend to the faithful performance of the duties of his trust, and until his successor shall be duly qualified and shall have entered upon the duties of his office. [Act March 19, 1846, p. 10, sec. 1. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 3. P. D. 5282.]

Art. 4365. [2852] New bond may be required.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general, with the comptroller, on the first days of June and December of every year, to examine the bond of the treasurer and make diligent inquiry into the condition of the sureties on said bond; and, if, in the opinion of the attorney general, said bond is not sufficient, from death, removal, insolvency of said sureties, or from any cause, to secure the state in her rights, then, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to notify said treasurer in writing of the insufficiency of said bond; and, should said treasurer fail, for the space of twenty days from the date of such notice, to furnish a sufficient new bond, it shall be the duty of the governor forthwith to suspend said treasurer from office. [Act May 3, 1873, p. 62, sec. 3. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 4.]

Art. 4366. [2853] Failing to give new bond.—Should the treasurer be suspended from office under the provisions of the preceding article, it shall be the duty of the governor to appoint some suitable person as treasurer, who shall give bond as in other cases, said bond to be approved by the governor; and the appointee shall perform the duties of treasurer until the suspended officer shall give a new bond to be approved by the governor, as in other cases. [Id. sec. 4. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 5.]

Art. 4367. [2854] Shall receive moneys on warrant of comptroller.—The treasurer shall receive, on the warrants of the comptroller of public accounts, all moneys which shall, from time to time, be paid into the treasury of the state, receipting for the same upon duplicate and triplicate warrants; which duplicate shall be deposited with the comptroller, and the triplicate given to the person depositing such moneys. [Act March 19, 1846, sec. 2. P. D. 5283. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 6.]

Art. 4368. [2855] How money to be paid out.—The treasurer shall countersign and pay all warrants drawn by the comptroller of public accounts on the treasury, which are authorized by law; and no money shall be paid out of the treasury except on the warrants of the comptroller. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 5284. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 7.]

Selling at discount.—Neither the comptroller nor any other state officer is responsible for the deficit when a warrant is sold at a discount for want of funds in the treasury. State v. Wilson, 71 T. 291, 9 S. W. 155.
Art. 4369. [2856] Shall keep strict accounts.—He shall keep true, regular and methodical accounts of the receipts and expenditures of the public moneys of the treasury, and close his accounts annually on the thirty-first day of August, with the proper and legal vouchers for the same, distinguishing between the receipts and disbursements of each fiscal year. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 5285. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 8.]

Art. 4370. [2858] An account for each appropriation.—He shall also open an account in the treasury for all appropriations of money made by law, so that the appropriations and the application in pursuance thereof may clearly and distinctly appear. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 5287. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 9.]

Art. 4371. [2859] Shall make an annual exhibit to the governor.—In addition to the reports required by the constitution, the treasurer shall submit to the governor on the first Monday of November of each year, and at such other times as he shall require, an exact statement of the condition and situation of the treasury, and of the balance of money remaining therein to the credit of the state, with a summary of the receipts and payments of the treasury during the preceding year, or for such other period of time as may be specially required, and shall exhibit all books, papers, vouchers and other matters pertaining to his office, for the examination of the legislature, or either branch thereof, or any committee which may be by them appointed, whenever required by them to do so. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 5288. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 10.]

Art. 4372. [2860] Public moneys and that only to be kept in the treasury.—All moneys received by the treasurer shall be kept in the safes and vaults of the treasury; and it shall not be lawful for the treasurer to keep or receive into the building, safes or vaults of the treasury any money, or the representative of money, belonging to any individual, except in cases expressly provided for by law; nor shall it be lawful for said treasurer to appropriate to his own use, or loan, sell or exchange any money, or the representative of money, in his custody or control as such treasurer. [Act May 3, 1873, p. 62, sec. 1. P. D. 5290. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., sec. 11.]

Art. 4373. [2861] May appoint chief clerk, etc.—The treasurer shall appoint a chief clerk, who shall be required to give bond in the sum of twenty thousand dollars, payable to the governor of the state, and conditioned as is the bond of the state treasurer, and shall appoint such other employés as may be authorized by law; each and all of whom shall receive such compensation as may from time to time be appropriated by law for that purpose. [Amended Acts 1909, 2 S. S., sec. 12.]

Art. 4374. [2862] Chief clerk may act, when and how.—The chief clerk of the treasurer's office shall, whenever by reason of sickness, unavoidable absence or other cause, the treasurer is not able to act, sign his own name as acting treasurer, and do such other acts and things as the treasurer himself might legally do; and the legal acts and signatures of such chief clerk as acting treasurer shall be as valid as the acts and signatures of the state treasurer himself. [Amended Acts 1909, 2 S. S., sec. 13.]

Art. 4375. [2863] Shall turn over to his successor.—The treasurer shall, at the close of his term of office, deliver into the possession of his successor the moneys, securities and all other property of the state, together with books, vouchers, papers and evidences of property in his possession, and all other matters and things which pertain to the office of state treasurer. [Act March 19, 1846, p. 10, sec. 8. P. D. 5289. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 14.]
Art. 4376. [2863a] Custodian of school fund bonds.—The treasurer of the state of Texas is hereby made the custodian of all bonds in which the school funds of the state of Texas have been, or may hereafter be, invested; and it is hereby made his duty to keep said bonds in his custody until the same shall be paid off, discharged, or otherwise disposed of by the proper authorities of said state. [Acts 1895, p. 9. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 15.]

Art. 4377. [2863b] Duty with respect thereto.—Said treasurer shall, upon the payment of any installment of interest, see that the proper credit is given, and that the coupons on said bonds, when paid, shall be properly separated therefrom and canceled by said treasurer. [Id. Re-enacted Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 16.]

Art. 4378. Certain money returned to counties.—Whenever there is money in the state treasury placed there to pay off any of the obligations due by any county, city or town, and it is made to appear to the comptroller, by certified copy of the records of county commissioners' court, or by other satisfactory evidence, that said obligations are no longer outstanding against such county, city or town, then it shall be the duty of the comptroller to draw a warrant on the state treasury in favor of such county, city or town for the amount of money so remaining in the treasury; and the state treasurer shall pay such money on said warrant of the comptroller to the treasurer of such county, city or town, for the benefit of the general fund of such county, city or town. [Acts 1901, p. 19.]

Art. 4379. Deposit warrant register.—The state treasurer shall cause to be prepared a deposit warrant register designed with columns for state revenue, available school fund, and miscellaneous; all warrants to be entered consecutively and distributed to the proper columns. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 438, sec. 17.]

Art. 4380. Shall post daily totals.—The state treasurer shall cause the daily totals of state revenue and all available school deposit warrants to be posted to the fund accounts in the ledger, and the items in the miscellaneous column to be posted in detail, except that deposit warrants for bonds sold or redeemed shall be posted in a bond book. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4381. Register of warrants issued.—The state treasurer shall keep registers of warrants issued, one for general warrants, and one for special warrants. In the case of pensions, the comptroller shall furnish a list of those issued; which list shall be compared with the warrants and shall constitute the treasurer's register of pension warrants issued. The date of payment of all warrants shall be stamped on the above registers. The state treasurer shall keep a "warrants paid register" with columns headed "general," "special," and "pensions." In this register, the general and special warrants shall be entered when paid in detail and the pension warrants in one daily total. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4382. Certain other accounts.—The state treasurer shall keep accounts called "warrants payable, general," "warrants payable, special," and "warrants payable, pensions," to which, when opened, shall be credited the daily totals of the several registers of warrants issued and charged with the daily total of warrants paid of each class, so that the balance of these accounts shall represent the aggregate amount of outstanding warrants. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4383. Outstanding warrants.—Outstanding warrants shall be listed each month from the registers of warrants issued, and a list thereof sent to the comptroller for his record. With this list, the state treasurer shall furnish a statement showing the aggregate amount of general, special and pension warrants paid during the month. [Id. sec. 21.]
Art. 4384. General revenue account.—The state treasurer shall charge the daily totals of the general warrants issued from the register to "general revenue" account in the ledger. The daily total of pension warrants issued shall be similarly treated; while the special warrants issued shall be charged to the fund account to which they apply, except that those issued for bonds purchased shall be posted to the bond book. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4385. Appropriation ledger.—The state treasurer shall charge all pay warrants issued under the authority of appropriations in detail to the "appropriation ledger," an account being kept for each appropriation, which shall be credited with the amount of the appropriation. The total of the appropriation so credited shall be charged to an account called "appropriation voted." The daily totals of the general warrants issued shall be credited to this account, so that the balance shall represent the aggregate amount of unused appropriation. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4386. Daily statement from land office.—The state treasurer shall receive daily from the general land office a detailed list of remitters of money for interest, principal and leases of school, university and asylum lands, together with the actual remittances, which he shall cash and deposit in his vault, if the necessity arises. A deposit receipt shall be issued by the comptroller for the daily total of such remittances; and the cashier of the treasurer's department shall keep a cash book, to be called "suspense cash book," in which to enter these deposit receipts, and any others issued for cash received for which no deposit warrants can be issued, or when their issuance is delayed. When deposit warrants are issued, they shall be credited in this cash book, as well as any refunds; and the balance shall represent the aggregate of items still in suspense. Refunds shall be made in a manner similar to that in present use, except that they shall all be made on the comptroller's authority. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4387. Office fee book.—The state treasurer shall keep an office fee book in which shall be entered in detail all fees earned by the treasury department; which fees shall be deposited into the treasury to the credit of the general revenue at the end of each month on a deposit warrant issued by the comptroller. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4388. Cash balancing book.—The treasurer shall keep a book, to be called "cash balancing book," for the purpose of arriving at the daily cash balance, in which shall be entered the daily totals of all receipts and disbursements. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4389. Ledger to contain what.—The ledger kept by the state treasurer shall contain accounts for each fund, which shall be credited with the existing balances and with the daily totals of deposit warrants except those issued for bonds. The pay warrants issued, except those for bonds, shall be charged to the several fund accounts from the warrant register in daily totals. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4390. Bond book.—The state treasurer shall keep a bond book, with columns for each fund, which shall start with the aggregate amount of bonds now held and be charged with all subsequent additions and credited with all bonds sold or redeemed. The entries in the bond book shall be posted from the deposit warrant and special warrant registers, being the deposit warrants issued for bonds sold or redeemed and special warrants for bonds purchased. The treasurer shall also keep a bond register, in which shall be entered the essential details of all bonds held by him and belonging to any state fund. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4391. Bond, etc., register.—The state treasurer shall keep a suitable register in which to enter all bonds, cash and other securities lodged with him by bond investment, surety and insurance companies, and state depository banks, and all other bonds lodged with him under the provisions of the statutes, the registration of which is not otherwise provided for by law. The relinquishment of these securities shall be on the authority of the comptroller. The state treasurer shall keep a separate bond book in which to enter all these transactions consecutively, posting each item to the register; which book shall be opened with the aggregate of securities now held. [Id. sec. 29.]

CHAPTER FOUR

COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE

[See "Public Lands"—Ch. 2.]

Art. 4392. [2864] His election and term.—There shall be elected by the qualified voters at the time and places of election for members of the legislature, a commissioner of the general land office, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor in office, and shall reside at the capital during his continuance in office. [Const., art. 4, secs. 2, 23.]

Art. 4393. [2865] Vacancies, how filled.—In case of a vacancy in the office of commissioner of the general land office, the governor shall fill the same by appointment, which shall be submitted to the senate, if in session, for confirmation; and the person so appointed shall hold said office for the unexpired term.

Art. 4394. [2866] His bond and oath.—The commissioner of the general land office shall, before he enters upon the discharge of the duties of his office, enter into a bond with three or more sureties, in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his official duties, and take and subscribe the oath prescribed by the constitution; which bond, after being approved by the governor, shall, together with the oath, be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Act May 12, 1846, p. 232, sec. 5. P. D. 4096.]

Art. 4395. [2867] Seal of office.—The commissioner of the general land office shall procure a seal of office with the words, "General Land Office, the State of Texas," engraved around the margin, and such other device as the governor shall approve; which approval shall be certified and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 4089.]

Art. 4396. [2868] His general duties.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner to superintend, control and direct the official conduct of all subordinate officers of the general land office, and to execute and perform all acts and things touching or respecting the public land of the state of Texas, or rights of individuals in relation thereto, as may be required of him by law. [Id. sec. 1. P. D. 4091.]

Art. 4397. [2869] Give information to the governor, etc.—The commissioner of the general land office shall give information to the governor, or either branch of the legislature, concerning the public lands, or the general land office, from time to time, as may be required. [Id. sec. 12. O. & W. 1155.]

Art. 4398. [2871] Chief clerk.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint a chief clerk, who shall hold his office at the pleasure of the commissioner, and shall enter into bond, with three or more sureties, in the penal sum of twenty thousand dollars, payable to the governor and his successors in office, for the use of the state, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office; which bond shall be approved by the governor and filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Acts 1846, p. 232, sec. 4. P. D. 4094.]

Art. 4399. [2872] May act as commissioner, when.—In case of sickness, absence, death or resignation of the commissioner of the general land office, it shall be lawful for the chief clerk to perform all the duties required of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 4095.]

Art. 4400. [2873] Spanish translator.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint a translator who shall thoroughly understand the Spanish and English languages, and who shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and give bond, with three or more good sureties, in the penal sum of twenty thousand dollars, payable to, and to be approved by, the governor, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. [Id. sec. 3. Act Dec. 14, 1837, p. 62, sec. 33. P. D. 4094, 4097.]

Art. 4401. [2874] His duties.—It shall be the duty of said translator to translate into the English language, and record in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, all the laws and public contracts relating to titles of lands which are written in the Spanish or Castilian language, and also to translate and record in like manner all original titles or papers relating thereto which are written in said language, and which may be on file in the general land office. [Id. sec. 34. P. D. 4098.]

Art. 4402. [2875] Receiving clerk.—The commissioner of the general land office shall, with the consent and approval of the governor, appoint a suitable person to act as receiving clerk for the land office; and the person thus appointed shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, qualify and execute a bond in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, payable to the governor and approved by him, conditioned as other official bonds for a faithful discharge of the duties of his office; which bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Act Nov. 10, 1866, p. 161, sec. 1.]

Art. 4403. [2876] Shall receive and receipt for money.—It shall be the duty of the receiving clerk to receive all funds that are required to be paid to the commissioner by existing laws, and to give to the person depositing money a certificate of deposit stating the amount, name of party, and character of claim upon which deposited; and, if any funds are received of a general character in advance of fees and dues, it shall be so stated; and the receiving clerk shall be responsible therefor to the state or individual. [Id. p. 162, sec. 2.]

Art. 4404. [2877] Shall register receipts and payments.—The receiving clerk shall keep a book or books, in which he shall enter each deposit separately, giving name of party, number of claim and situation of land sought to be perfected, and shall keep all letters and other vouchers filed in neat and regular order and number corresponding with his books, and shall make a report to the treasurer on the last day of each month of all funds in his hands due the state, paying the same in and taking the receipt in his own name in the same manner as heretofore required by law of the commissioner. [Id.]
Art. 4405. [2878] Shall report to the governor, etc.—It shall be the duty of the receiving clerk to furnish the governor, through the commissioner of the general land office, on or before the meeting of the legislature, a correct report of the condition of his office, the money received, giving character of claim, the money paid out and character of payment; and it shall be his duty to keep separate columns in his books, showing the amount of specie or the amount of currency or other funds paid in; and, in his reports to the treasury he shall pay in kind all funds in his hands that belong to the state of Texas, and, upon his removal or resignation, shall turn over his books, accounts and money in hand to his successor, when properly qualified, or to the commissioner, taking a receipt for the same. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4406. [2879] If defaulter, to be removed.—The commissioner shall from time to time examine the books and accounts of the receiving clerk and note that they are properly kept, and, if any defalcation is found, shall report the same to the governor at once, who shall suspend him from office until an examination is made, and, if found guilty, he shall be removed and proceedings instituted upon his bond to recover whatever deficit may occur. [Id.]

Art. 4407. [2880] Chief and other draftsmen.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint one chief draftsman, and such number of compiling or assistant draftsmen as may from time to time be authorized by law, whose duty it shall be to make out and complete maps of all surveys made in the several counties and districts from the maps furnished by county and district surveyors; and they shall from time to time, as surveys are made in the several counties and land districts and forwarded to the general land office, as required by law, plat such surveys upon the proper county or district maps. Such chief draftsman and other draftsmen shall also perform all drafting and other duties as may be required of them by the commissioner of the general land office, for the benefit of the state or individuals. [Act Feb. 5, 1841, p. 150. P. D. 4100.]

Art. 4408. [2881] Appointment of clerks.—The commissioner of the general land office shall appoint such number of clerks as may from time to time be authorized by legislative appropriation or other law of the state; and such clerks and the compiling and assistant draftsmen provided for in the preceding article, shall receive such compensation for their services as may be appropriated for that purpose.

Art. 4409. [2882] Salary of chief clerk, etc.—The chief clerk, translator, receiving clerk and chief draftsman shall receive such compensation for their services as may from time to time be appropriated by law for that purpose.

Art. 4410. [2883] All employés may be removed by the commissioner.—All clerks, draftsmen or other employés of the general land office, including the chief clerk, translator, receiving clerk and chief draftsman, shall hold their offices and positions, at the pleasure of the commissioner, and may be removed by him at any time for satisfactory cause.

Art. 4418a. Shall advise heads of departments, district and county attorneys, legal authorities, with respect to issuance of bonds, etc.; shall prosecute suits to recover properties escheated; shall not advise other officials.—That in addition to the duties now or that may hereafter, be imposed upon the attorney general by law, he shall, at the request of the governor or the heads of the departments of the state government, including the heads and boards of penal and eleemosynary institution, and all other state boards, regents, trustees of the state educational institutions, and committees of either branch of the legislature, give them advice in writing upon any question touching the public interest, or concerning their official duties. He shall counsel and advise the several district and county attorneys of the state, in the prosecution and defense of all actions in the district or inferior courts, wherein the state is interested whenever requested by them, after said attorney shall have investigated the question, and shall with the question presented to the attorney general submit his brief also. He shall counsel and advise the proper legal authorities in regard to the issuance of all bonds that the law requires shall be approved by him, and it shall also be his duty to institute and prosecute, or cause to be instituted and prosecuted, all suits and proceedings necessary to recover for and on behalf of the State all properties, real, personal or mixed, that have heretofore escheated or that may escheat to this state under the provisions of title 51 of the Acts of 1911, or under any other law now in existence, or that may hereafter be enacted, and the attorney general is hereby prohibited from giving legal advice or written opinions to any other than the public officials named above. [Acts 1913, p. 48, sec. 1.]

Art. 4419. [2892] Shall inspect accounts in offices of treasurer and comptroller.—He shall at least once a month inspect the accounts in the offices of the state treasurer and the comptroller of public accounts, of all officers, and of individuals charged with the collection or custody of funds belonging to the state, and shall proceed immediately to institute, or cause to be instituted, against any such officer or individual, who is in default or arrears, suit for the recovery of funds in his hands; and he shall also institute immediately criminal proceedings against all officers or persons who have violated the laws by misapplying, or retaining in their hands, funds belonging to the state.

Art. 4420. [2893] Required to attend sales and bid in land.—In any case wherein any property shall be sold by virtue of any execution or order of sale issued upon any judgment in favor of the state, except executions issued upon judgments in cases of scire facias, the agent or attorney representing the state, by and with the advice and consent of the attorney general of the state, is hereby authorized and required to attend such sales, and bid on, and buy in, for the state said property, when it shall be deemed proper to protect the interest of the state in the collection of such judgment; provided, that in no case shall the amount bid by him exceed the amount necessary to satisfy said judgment and all costs due thereon. [Acts 1879, S. S. pp. 9–10.]

Art. 4421. [2894] To execute deeds.—In all cases where property is so purchased by the state, the officer selling the same shall execute and deliver to the state a deed of conveyance to the same, such as is prescribed for individuals in similar cases. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 4422. [2895] May sell such property, how.—The agent or attorney of the state buying for the state any such property at such sale shall be authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the attorney general, at any time to sell or otherwise dispose of said property so purchased in the manner and upon such terms and conditions as he may deem most advantageous to the state; and, if sold or disposed of for a greater amount than is necessary to pay off the amount due upon the judgment and all costs, the remainder shall be paid into the state treasury and placed to the credit of the general revenue; and when such sale is made the attorney general shall, in the name of the state, execute and deliver to the purchaser a deed of conveyance to said property, which deed, when so signed by him, shall vest all the right and title to the same in the purchaser thereof. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4423. [2896] Agent of county authorized to bid in for county and to sell same.—When any such property is sold under execution or order of sale issued upon any judgment in favor of the county, including executions issued upon judgments in cases of scire facias in the name of the state, the attorney or agent so representing the county, by and with the advice and consent of the commissioners’ court, shall have the same authority to buy and dispose of such property for the county as the agent or attorney for the state is given in this chapter in similar cases; and, when any property is so purchased by the agent or attorney of the county, the officer so selling the same shall execute and deliver to the county a deed of conveyance to the same; and, whenever the property so bought in for the county is sold, the county commissioners’ court shall execute and deliver to the purchaser thereof a deed of conveyance in the name of the county to such property. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4424. [2897] Sale of judgments against insolvents.—Whenever the principal and sureties upon any judgment held by the state are insolvent, so that under any existing process of law said judgment or any part thereof can not be collected, there shall be, and is hereby constituted, a board consisting of the attorney general, comptroller and treasurer of the state, who are hereby empowered and authorized by such advertising as they may deem necessary to offer for sale at public outcry, or by private sale, as they may deem to the best interest of the state, all the right of the state to such judgment; and, if by public sale, if the amount bid on the same should not be deemed sufficient, they shall refuse to accept the same, and dispose of the same in any manner deemed by them most advantageous to the interest of the state, and upon sale shall make a proper assignment of said judgment to the purchaser. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4425. [2898] Register of official acts.—The attorney general shall keep in proper books, to be provided for that purpose at the expense of the state, a register of all his official acts and opinions, of all actions and demands prosecuted or defended by him or any district or county attorney, in which any portion of the revenue of the state is involved, and of all proceedings had in relation thereto, and shall deliver the same to his successor in office. [Acts 1846, p. 204. Id. sec. 12. P. D. 209.]

Art. 4426. [2899] Shall pay over collections immediately.—All money received by the attorney general for debts due or penalties forfeited to the state, shall be paid by him into the treasury immediately after the receipt thereof. [Id. sec. 11. P. D. 208.]

Art. 4427. [2900] Enforce forfeiture of charters, etc.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general, unless otherwise expressly directed by law, whenever sufficient cause exists therefor, to seek a judicial forfeiture of the charters of private corporations; and he shall at once take steps to seek such forfeiture in all cases where satisfactory evidence is laid before him that any corporation receiving state aid has, by the non-performance of its charter conditions or the violations of its charter, or by any act or omission, misuser or non-user, forfeited its charter or any rights thereunder. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 312, sec. 1.]

Art. 4428. [2901] And inquire into all charter rights.—He shall also especially inquire into the charter rights of all private corporations and, from time to time, in the name of the state, take such legal action as may be proper and necessary to prevent any private corporation from exercising any power or demanding or collecting any species of taxes, tolls, freight or wharfage not authorized by law. [Const., art. 4, sec. 22.]

Art. 4429. [2902] No admission to prejudice.—No admission, agreement or waiver, made by the attorney general, in any action or suit in which the state is a party, shall prejudice the rights of the state. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 206, sec. 14. P. D. 211.]

Art. 4430. [2903] Office, where kept.—The attorney general shall reside and keep his office at the seat of government. [Id. sec. 15. P. D. 212.]

Art. 4431. First office assistant to act, when.—In case of the absence or inability to act of the attorney general, the first office assistant of the attorney general shall discharge the duties which devolve by law upon the attorney general. [Act 1903, p. 117, sec. 1.]

Art. 4432. [2904] Assistant attorney general.—The governor shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, if in session, an officer to be styled the assistant attorney general, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the election and qualification of his successor. The assistant attorney general shall assist the attorney general in representing the interests of the state in all suits, pecas and prosecutions in the supreme court and courts of appeal. [Acts March 15, 1875, p. 179. Acts 1903, p. 117.]

Special attorney—When state officer.—In order to constitute an attorney employed by the attorney general an officer of the state, his appointment and continuance in office must be coterminous with the term of office of the attorney general. Terrell v. Sparks, 104 T. 191, 135 S. W. 519.

Where an attorney appointed by the attorney general to represent the state in litigation did not take an oath of office or qualify, held, that he was not an officer of the state. Id.

Employment contract.—A contract of employment by an attorney general held a contract of the state. Terrell v. Sparks, 104 T. 191, 135 S. W. 519.

Art. 4433. [2906] Further duties.—The assistant attorney general shall represent the state in all cases in the district or inferior courts of any county when required so to do by the governor or attorney general; and he shall, in addition thereto, perform such other duties as may be required of him by law or by the governor or attorney general. [Id.]

Art. 4434. [2907] Governor authorized to order civil suits, when.—The governor is authorized to order through the proper officials the institution, prosecution or defense of any civil action or suit whenever he deems such course proper for the assertion or defense of any right of the state, and to render to said officials such assistance as to him may seem necessary or expedient. [Acts 1887, p. 138.]

CHAPTER SIX
COMMISSIONER OF AGRICULTURE

Art. 4435. Election and qualification.—A commissioner of agriculture shall be elected by the people at the same time and in the same manner, who shall qualify and assume office, as all other state officers. He shall be an experienced and practical farmer, and shall have knowledge of agriculture, manufacture and general industry. [Acts 1907, p. 127, sec. 1.]

Art. 4436. Term of office.—The term of office of said commissioner shall be two years, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. Any vacancy occurring in said office shall be filled for the unexpired term by appointment of the governor. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4437. Oath and bond.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, he shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall execute a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the state of Texas, to be approved by the governor, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, which oath and bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4438. Location of office.—The office of the commissioner shall be located in the city of Austin. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4439. Chief clerk.—Said commissioner shall appoint one chief clerk, who shall possess a practical knowledge of agriculture, horticulture, manufacturing and kindred industries, and the proper methods of marketing the products of said industries. He may appoint such other clerks as the labors of his office may require, and all clerks shall be removable at the pleasure of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 7.]
Art. 4440. Chief clerk shall act, when.—The chief clerk shall possess all the powers and perform all the duties attached by law to the office of commissioner during the necessary or unavoidable absence of the commissioner, or his inability to act for any cause. The commissioner shall be responsible for the acts of his chief clerk, who shall, before entering upon the duties of his position, take the oath required of the commissioner, and shall enter into bond in the sum of three thousand dollars with two or more sureties to be approved by the governor, and payable to the state of Texas, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4441. Same.—The chief clerk shall discharge such duties as may be prescribed by the commissioner; his annual salary shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum, payable monthly on certificate of the commissioner, and his expenses while traveling on the business of the office, under the direction of the commissioner, shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4442. Seal.—The commissioner shall have and may use a seal of office, the design of which shall consist of a star with five points, surrounded by a wreath of olive and live oak; said seal shall not be less than one and a half and not more than two inches in diameter, and on the margin thereof around the wreath shall be inserted the words, "Commissioner of Agriculture, State of Texas," or some intelligible abbreviation thereof. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4443. Duties.—The duties of the commissioner shall be as follows:
1. He shall cause to be executed all laws in relation to agriculture.
2. He shall encourage the proper development of agriculture, horticulture and kindred industries.
3. He shall encourage the organization of agricultural societies; and, for the benefit of the agricultural communities, he shall cause to be held farmers' institutes at such times and at such places throughout the state as will best promote the advancement of agricultural knowledge and the improvement of agricultural methods and practices. He shall publish and distribute such papers and addresses read or delivered at these institutes as he shall deem to be of value to the farming interest.
4. He shall investigate the subject of sub-soiling, the problems of drainage and of irrigation, their relation to agriculture, with a view to extending the area of the same, and the best modes of effecting each in the different portions of the state.
5. He shall investigate and report upon the question of broadening the market and of increasing the demand for cotton goods and all other agricultural and horticultural products, both in the United States and in foreign countries. Further, it shall be his duty to compile the statistics showing from abroad the number of bales of cotton consumed by the spinners, and demands for our cotton, the methods and course that sales to foreign countries now take, showing the purchasers, brokers, etc., through whose hands the cotton largely passes after leaving the producers, likewise showing in what countries an increased trade could be worked up, and thereby giving a better outlet for the trade and the best method to bring consumer and purchaser together, and all other information beneficial to farmers.
6. He shall cause to be investigated the diseases of grain, cotton, fruit, and other crops grown in this state, with a view to discovering remedies for such diseases. He shall also investigate the habits and propagation of the various insects that are injurious to the crops of this state, and the best methods for their destruction. The protection of fruit trees, shrubs and plants shall be under his direct supervision and control, and he shall have and exercise all the powers and perform all the duties in relation thereto, conferred or imposed by law.
7. He shall investigate the subject of grasses and report upon their value and the cultivation of the varieties best adapted to the different sections of the state. He shall also collect and publish information relating to forestry, tree planting, the best means of preserving and replenishing forests, and shall encourage the planting and culture of nut trees and recommend such legislation as may be necessary for the protection, restoration and preservation of the forests of this state.

8. He shall inquire into the subjects connected with stockraising, dairying and poultry; the obtaining and rearing of such domestic animals and fowls as are of most value, and the breeding and improvement of the same. He shall encourage the raising of fish and the culture of bees.

9. He shall investigate and report upon the growing of wool, and the utility and profit of sheep raising; he shall also inquire into the culture of silk, its preparation for market and its manufacture.

10. He shall correspond with the department of agriculture at Washington, and with the departments of agriculture of the several states and territories of the United States, and, at his option, with those of foreign countries, and with the representatives of the United States in foreign countries, with the view of gathering facts and information that will aid and advance the interests of agriculture in Texas. He may also, for the same purpose, correspond with such organizations, societies, associations and individuals in the state as he may choose, having for their object the promotion of agriculture in any of its branches.

11. He shall collect and publish statistics and such other information regarding such industries of this state and of other states as may be considered of benefit in developing the agricultural resources of this state. He shall cause a proper collection of agricultural statistics to be made annually; and, to this end, he shall furnish blank forms to the tax assessors of each county before the first of January of each year, including forms as to the acreage in cotton, grain and other leading products of the state, to be filled out by persons assessed for taxes, together with such instructions as will properly direct said assessor in filling them out. It is hereby made the duty of said tax assessor to return said blanks, with accurate answers, to the commissioner of agriculture on or before the first day of June following. It is further made the special duty of the said tax assessor to forward by registered mail to the commissioner of agriculture lists of the names and addresses of all ginners within their counties when asked to do so by the commissioner. It shall be the duty of the commissioner to furnish to every ginner blank forms for reports, which forms shall be filled out by said ginners as the commissioner may direct, and returned by them to the commissioner. In order to facilitate the collection and collation of accurate information concerning the various subjects treated of in this chapter, the heads of the several state departments, and of the state institutions, are hereby required to furnish accurately such information as may be at their command whenever called upon for same by said commissioner. In the prosecution of his work, the commissioner is hereby empowered to enter manufacturing establishments chartered or authorized to do business in this state, and said corporations shall furnish such information as said commissioner may request of them.

12. He shall make and publish such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4444. Shall be member of board of directors of A. & M. college.—The commissioner of agriculture shall be ex officio a member of the board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college of the state, and shall be allowed all necessary expense in attending the meetings of said board. [Id. sec. 12.]
Art. 4445. Shall make report.—The commissioner shall make and submit to the governor, on or before the first day of November of each year, a full and comprehensive report showing the work and expenditures of his office during the fiscal year preceding, which report shall be transmitted by the governor to the legislature. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4446. Report printed and distributed.—Under the direction of the commissioner, the public printer shall print annually not to exceed ten thousand copies of the annual report of said commissioner, said report to be distributed to the farmers through the farmers' institutes and other agricultural organizations or otherwise, at the discretion of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4447. Commissioner shall co-operate with A. & M. college.—No provision of this chapter shall be construed as to in any way conflict with the scope and character of the work of the agricultural and mechanical college or of the agricultural experiment stations, but the said commissioner shall co-operate with the said agricultural and mechanical college and said agricultural experiment stations in all lines looking toward the agricultural and horticultural interest of the state. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4448. Duties as to irrigation.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of agriculture to prepare and make public reports on the present system of irrigation now in operation in this state, the cost of maintenance and operation of same, the character and kind of irrigation plants which result in the greater saving to the users of water, the class and character of water contracts entered into by the various canal companies; he shall also inquire into the reasonableness and fairness of rates being charged for water by the various canal companies in this state, and, from time to time, shall make public the result of his inquiries; he shall collect and publish statistics and other information regarding the irrigation of rice and other crops as may be of benefit in developing and collaborating a more efficient system of laws safeguarding and defining the rights of users and sellers of water for irrigating purposes; and he shall make up and file an annual report on same with such recommendations as he may deem beneficial to the industry, which report shall be filed with the governor and transmitted to the legislature. [Act 1909, p. 353, sec. 1.]

Art. 4449. To employ engineers.—The commissioner of agriculture is hereby empowered and authorized to employ a competent engineer and expert, possessing a practical knowledge of the application of irrigation to the raising of rice and other crops, for the purpose of assisting him in performing the duties required of him in the preceding article. [Id. sec. 2.]

BUREAU OF COTTON STATISTICS

Art. 4450. Shall maintain bureau of cotton statistics.—The commissioner shall maintain in the department of agriculture a bureau of cotton statistics, as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1907, p. 313.]

Art. 4451. Public ginners, who are; to obtain certificate.—All custom ginners of seed cotton in this state are declared to be public ginners. Any person or persons, firm or corporation in this state, before engaging in the business of public ginners, shall obtain from the county clerk of the county in which gin is located a certificate after the following form:

Number ...........

This is to certify that ........................................... of ........................................ county, Texas, has this day filed affidavit required by law of all public ginners in this state.

(Seal.)

County clerk of ............. county, Texas.

[Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4452. Affidavit.—The form of affidavit to be made to, and filed with, the county clerk shall be as follows:

I, ................................................ of ........................................ county, Texas, do solemnly swear that I will, so long as I may operate a public gin, make and forward a true and correct report of the number of bales of cotton ginned by me to the commissioner of agriculture at Austin, as required by law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4453. Certificate furnished commissioner.—The county clerk shall number each certificate issued by him consecutively, beginning at number one, and shall immediately forward to the commissioner of agriculture the name and postoffice address to whom certificate was issued. The clerk shall issue certificates to all ginners and shall take the affidavits as herein required without cost to ginners. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4454. Commissioner to furnish blanks.—The commissioner of agriculture, upon receipt of information of the issuance of a ginner's certificate from any county clerk in this state, shall immediately forward all necessary blanks to the public ginner for making official cotton report, which shall consist of the following:

Envelopes addressed to the commissioner of agriculture, Austin, Texas; and there shall be printed upon the upper left hand corner the words, "Official Cotton Report of ............... County," also blanks, to-wit:

Official Cotton Report.
Certificate No. ..........

Commissioner of Agriculture,
Austin, Texas.

Sir: This is to certify that I have ginned ......................... bales of cotton from the ............... day of ............... 19.......... to the ......................... day of ............... 19..........
(Signed) ................................................................

[Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4455. Ginners to report to commissioner.—All public ginners shall make and forward reports to the commissioner of agriculture on the blanks furnished them, by the third of each month, stating the exact number of bales ginned by them the preceding calendar month. This report must be made by all ginners, unless they have ceased to operate, the notice of which must be forwarded to the commissioner of agriculture. These reports must be securely sealed by ginners. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4456. Reports opened and made public, when.—The commissioner of agriculture shall open, on the eighth of each month, and tabulate the official cotton reports of the various counties in the presence of three credible witnesses, who shall be appointed by the governor. The complete report, showing total number of bales of cotton ginned, shall be given out to the public, including the press, at eleven o'clock a. m., on the ninth of each month. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4457. Revealing contents of reports punishable.—If the commissioner of agriculture, his assistants, or any one else connected with the opening and tabulating of these official cotton reports, or any other person, shall give out any information as to the number of bales of cotton ginned before the time specified by this act, shall, upon conviction, be punished as provided by the Criminal Code. [Id. sec. 7.]

PROTECTION OF FRUIT TREES, SHRUBS AND PLANTS

Art. 4458. Shall supervise protection of trees, etc.—The protection of fruit trees, shrubs and plants shall be under the supervision and con-
Art. 4459. Proceedings where diseased trees, etc., are found.—No person in this state shall knowingly or wilfully keep any peach, almond, apricot, nectarine or other trees affected with the contagious disease known as yellows. Nor shall any person keep for sale any apple, peach, plum or other tree affected with nematode galls, crown galls, or root rot. Nor shall any person knowingly or wilfully keep any plum, cherry or other trees affected with the contagious disease or fungus known as black knot; nor any tree, shrubs or plant infested with or by the San Jose scale or other insect pest dangerously injurious to, or destructive of, trees, shrubs or other plants; nor any orange or lemon trees, citrus stocks, cape jasmines or other trees, plants or shrubs infested with "white fly," or other injurious insect pests or contagious diseases of citrus fruits; nor subtropical plants, shrubs, evergreens or ornamentals; nor any China, forest or other trees, shrubs or plants, infested with injurious insect pests or contagious diseases. Every such tree, shrub or plant shall be a public nuisance, and as such it shall be the duty of the commissioner of agriculture, or his representatives, to abate it; and no damage shall be awarded for entering upon the premises upon which there are trees, shrubs or plants infested with yellows, black knot, crown gall or other infectious or dangerous disease, or infested with San Jose scale or other dangerous insect pest, for the purpose of legally inspecting the same; nor shall any damages be awarded for the treatment by the commissioner of agriculture, or his duly authorized agents or representatives, of such trees, shrubs or plants, or for altogether destroying such trees if necessary to suppress such insect pest or disease, if done in accordance with the provisions of this article. But the owner of the trees, shrubs or plants shall be notified immediately upon its being determined that such trees, shrubs or plants should be destroyed, by a notice in writing signed by the commissioner, or the person or persons representing him; which said notice in writing shall be delivered in person to the owner of such trees, shrubs or plants, or left at the usual place of residence of such owner, or, if such owner be not a resident of the locality, to notify by leaving such notice with the person in charge of the premises, trees, shrubs or plants, or in whose possession they may be. Such notice shall contain a brief statement of the facts found to exist, whereby it is necessary to destroy such trees, shrubs or plants, and shall call attention to the law under which it is proposed to destroy them, and the owner shall, within ten days from the date upon which such notice shall have been received, remove and burn all such diseased or infested trees, shrubs or plants. If, however, in the judgment of said commissioner, or person representing him, any tree, shrub or plant infested with any disease, or infested with dangerously injurious insects, can be treated with sufficient remedies, he may direct such treatment to be carried out by the owner under the direction of the commissioner, agent, employé or representatives. In case of objections to the findings of the chief inspector, employés or representatives of the commissioner, an appeal may be made to the commissioner, whose decision shall be final. An appeal must be taken within five days from service of said notice, and shall act as a stay of proceedings until it is heard and decided. When the commissioner, or chief inspector, or employer or representative appointed by him, shall determine that any tree or trees, shrub or other plants must be treated or destroyed forthwith, he may employ all necessary assistance for that purpose; and such representative or representatives, agent or agents, employé or employés, may enter upon any or all premises necessary for the purpose of such treatment, removal or destruction. But such commissioner, or the person representing him, shall, before such treatment or destruction, first require the owner or person in charge of the trees, shrubs or plants, to treat or destroy same, as the case may be; and, upon the refusal or neglect upon the part of said owner or person in charge to so treat or destroy such trees, plants or shrubs, then such commissioner, chief inspector, or person or persons representing him, shall treat or destroy such trees, shrubs or plants; and all charges and expenses thereof shall be paid by such owner or person in charge of said trees, shrubs or plants, and shall constitute a legal claim against such owner or person in charge, which may be recovered in any court having jurisdiction, upon the suit of such commissioner, or chief inspector, or the county attorney of the county where the premises are situated, together with all costs, including an attorney fee of ten dollars, to be taxed as other costs. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4460. Nurseries to be examined and certificates issued.—The commissioner of agriculture shall cause an examination to be made at least once each year of each and every nursery or other place where trees, shrubs or plants, commonly known as nursery stock, are grown or exposed for sale, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the trees, shrubs or plants therein kept or propagated for sale are infected with contagious disease or diseases, or infested with insect pests. If, after such examination, it is found that the said trees, shrubs or other plants so examined are apparently free in all respects from any contagious or infectious disease or diseases, dangerously injurious insect pest or pests, the said commissioner shall issue to the owner or proprietor of the stock so examined a certificate setting forth the fact that the stock so examined was at the time of such examination apparently free from any and all such disease or diseases, insect pest or pests. No such certificate shall be negotiable or transferable, and shall be void if sold or transferred. Any such act or sale or transference shall be punishable as provided by this law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4461. Shipments of nursery stock to be accompanied by certificate.—All nursery stock consigned for shipment, or shipped by freight, express or other means of transportation, shall be accompanied by a copy of said certificate attached to each car, box, bale, bundle or package. When such box, bale, bundle or package, contains nursery stock to be delivered to more than one individual, partnership, or corporation, each portion of such nursery stock to be delivered to such individual, partnership or corporation, shall also bear a copy of the certificate of inspection issued as provided in the preceding article. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4462. Nursery stock shipped into state; certificate of inspection.—No individual, partnership or corporation outside the state shall be permitted to ship nursery stock into this state without first filing with the commissioner of agriculture a certified copy of his or their certificate of inspection issued by the proper authorities in the state in which the proposed shipment originates. This certificate must show that the stock to be shipped has been examined by the proper officer of inspection in that state or province, and that the stock is apparently free from all dangerous insect pests or contagious diseases; and, when fumigation is required by the commissioner of agriculture, that the stock has been properly fumigated. Immediately upon receipt of the filing with the commissioner of agriculture of this certificate, he shall, in addition, make further investigation as to the moral standing and integrity of the applicant as will satisfy him that the applicant is entitled to receive a certificate. A fee of five dollars shall be required from the applicant, upon receipt of which the commissioner of agriculture may issue a certificate permitting the applicant to ship into the state. Each box, bale or package of nursery stock from outside the state shall bear a tag on which is printed a copy of the certificate of this state, and also a copy of the certificate of the state in which it originates. [Id. sec. 3.]
Art. 4463. Transportation companies not liable, when.—No transportation company or common carrier shall be liable for damages to the consignee or consignor for refusing to receive for transportation or deliver such trees, packages, bales, bundles or boxes when not accompanied by copies of the certificates provided for in the preceding article. The agent of such companies or common carriers shall report any such shipment to the commissioner of agriculture immediately. Shipments of nursery stock into this state, or originating within the state, without tags or proper certificates as provided for in article 4462 shall be dealt with as in article 4459. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4464. Commissioner to revoke certificate, when.—The commissioner shall have power to revoke any certificate which has been issued when he shall find that false representations have been made by the party or parties to whom certificates have been issued, or who have refused to comply with the law, instructions, rules and regulations given by the commissioner of agriculture as required by the provisions of this chapter and its enforcement. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4465. Provisions, how enforced.—The commissioner of agriculture shall enforce the provisions of the foregoing articles, and make and enforce such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with such articles, as may be deemed necessary for carrying the same into effect, including the provisions relating to the inspection of nurseries, orchards, forest trees, greenhouses, and all other products originating from the same, within the meaning of these articles. He shall also appoint one person who shall be designated as chief inspector, whose duty it shall be to inspect, or cause to be inspected, under the directions of the commissioner of agriculture all trees, plants and shrubs of every kind whatsoever, grown, produced or offered for sale by any nursery, dealer, individual or corporation in this state, and also to inspect, or cause to be inspected, all orchards provided for above, and may employ such other person or persons, expert or experts, as may be necessary from time to time for administering and carrying into operation and enforcing these provisions; provided, the chief inspector shall not, during the time of such service, be interested in or connected with any nursery business whatsoever. The said commissioner shall fix and collect reasonable fees for the inspection provided for, and not less than two dollars and fifty cents nor more than fifteen dollars shall be charged for each inspection. All fees collected shall be paid to the department of agriculture and credited to the fund provided for administering this law. Any persons or experts employed by the commissioner of agriculture for the purpose of administering the provisions, rules and regulations hereof shall be paid a salary. Such salary shall not exceed the sum of five dollars per diem and traveling expenses while actually engaged in performing their duties, the same to be paid out of any fund made available to the department of agriculture for the enforcement of this law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4466. Provisions, how enforced by prosecution.—To enforce the provisions hereof, and the rules and regulations of the commissioner of agriculture in reference thereto, suit shall be entered by the county attorney in any court having jurisdiction, and the sheriff or peace officer of any such court shall perform his usual duties in enforcing the provisions hereof. Any moneys appropriated for the department of agriculture for the administration of these provisions shall be available for use to the amount necessary for the enforcement hereof, as indicated herein; provided, that all fines collected from proceedings hereunder shall revert to the available school fund of the county in which the prosecution originates and is tried. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4467. Terms defined.—The term “nursery stock,” within the meaning of these articles, shall include all fruit trees and vines, shade trees and forest trees, whether such shade or forest trees be especially grown for sale in a nursery or taken from the forests and offered for sale; all scions, seedlings, roses, evergreens, shrubbery or ornamentals, also such greenhouse plants, or propagation stock, all classes of berry plants, cut flowers taken from plants, bushes, shrubs or other trees growing in this state, which may be a medium for disseminating injurious insect pests and contagious diseases. The term "nursery" shall be construed to mean any grounds or premises on which nursery stock is grown, or exposed for sale. "Being in the nursery business" applies to any individual, partnership or corporation which may either sell or grow, or both grow and sell, nursery stock regardless of the variety or quantity of nursery stock sold or grown. The term "dealer" shall be construed to apply to any individual, partnership or corporation not growers of nursery stock, but who buy and sell nursery stock for the pur-purpose of reselling and reshipping under their own name or title, indedependently of any control of those from whom they purchase. An "agent of a nursery or dealer" shall be construed to apply to any individual, partnership or corporation selling nursery stock, either as being entirely under the control of the nursery or dealer with whom the nursery stock offered for barter and traffic originates, or some co-operative basis for handling nursery stock with the grower or dealer, as specified in this article. Any such agent shall have proper credentials from the dealer he represents or co-operates with, and, failing in that, any such agent shall be classed as a dealer, and subject to such rules and regulations as may be adopted relative to them, and shall be amenable to the same penalties for violations of any provisions of these articles, or the rules and regulations of the commissioner. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4468. Rules and regulations by commissioner.—The commissioner of agriculture shall prepare suitable rules and regulations for the traffic of cape jasmine cut flower shipments, also for the shipment of such greenhouse and floral plants as may require control, in order that the purposes for which this law is established may be accomplished. He shall also provide such rules and regulations concerning city, private or public parks, avenues of shade trees, shrubbery and ornamentals along the streets of cities, for city residences, and city property generally, as will secure a protection and immunity from insect pests and contagious diseases intended to be provided for by this law. It shall be the duty of city administrations through their proper officers, the duty of owners of parks, of city residence or other city property, to obey these rules and regulations, and co-operate with the commissioner of agriculture, or his representatives, in enforcing such rules and regulations, or any provisions of this law. [Id. sec. 9.]

BOLL WEEVIL—REWARD FOR EXTERMINATION

Art. 4469. Reward.—The sum of fifty thousand dollars is appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated for the purpose of discovering a practical remedy for the destruction of the boll weevil, said money to be used as hereinafter set forth, to-wit: That said money be held in the state treasury subject to a warrant drawn thereon signed by the governor, president of agricultural and mechanical college and the commissioner of agriculture of Texas. That said persons shall constitute a board whose duty it shall be to offer, in the name of the state of Texas, the said named fifty thousand dollars to any person or persons who shall discover and furnish a practical remedy for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil in Texas. That said money shall not be drawn from the treasury until it has been thoroughly proven as hereinafter provided that the person or persons in whose favor the warrant is drawn have produced a practical remedy that will destroy the cotton boll weevil. Said board of three as aforesaid shall act jointly with a committee of five practical farmers to be appointed by the governor from five representative districts of the cotton producing belt of the state where the cotton boll weevil is prominent. [Acts 1903, p. 72,
sec. 1.]

Art. 4470. Expenses and claim for reward.—The sum of two thousand five hundred dollars, or so much thereof as is necessary, be and the same is hereby appropriated to pay the expenses and per diem of the board appointed to pass on the remedy produced, said money to be used out of any money not otherwise appropriated and paid out under direction of the governor; provided, that each member shall be allowed five dol-ars per day for his services. The persons presenting their claims for said reward must subscribe to the following oath, to wit: “I, .........., have discovered a practical method by which the cotton boll weevil can be destroyed at a cost of not more than one dollar per acre per annum, and cause no bad effect to the cotton. My method is so economical that it can be used by all cotton planters.” [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4471. Farmers to make affidavit.—Said five practical farmers, reputable citizens, shall subscribe to the following oath: “I, .........., swear (or affirm) that I have witnessed experiments and applications of Mr. .......... in the destruction of the cotton boll weevil at ..........
I further swear (or affirm) that this method of destroying the weevil is so economical and practical that, if followed as directed by .........., will effectually destroy the weevil affecting cotton. That I have wittnessed the test made for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil .........., that I have not received anything, or been offered anything, of value to secure my vote or influence in securing the reward for the party or parties claiming the same, and I do further swear (or affirm) that, to the best of my judgment, that the method offered by .........., which I have seen tested, is economical, practical and will destroy the cotton boll weevil, if followed as directed.” [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4472. Discoverer to report to governor.—After the person or persons claiming said reward have complied with the above demands, he or they shall report to the governor that he or they have discovered a practical remedy for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil. [Id.
sec. 4.]

Art. 4473. Farmers appointed to experiment.—It shall then be the duty of the governor to appoint five practical farmers, of good character and reputation, as aforesaid, selecting one from each of five representative districts of the cotton producing belt of Texas, who shall assemble at a place designated by the governor, where experiments will be carried on by the party or parties claiming said reward, and, in case of refusal, resignation or disqualification of any member of the committee, the governor shall appoint another from the representative district so vacated to fill his place. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4474. Oath; preliminaries before payment of reward.—Those who have been selected by the governor to pass upon the practicability and expediency of the method by which he or they propose to kill or destroy the cotton boll weevil shall subscribe to the following oath: “I,
.........., do solemnly swear that I am not related to the party or parties who are now claiming said reward, neither am I in any way interested in his patent or proposed means of destroying the cotton boll weevil.” After a fair test or tests covering all points claimed by the inventor or discoverer of a practical remedy for the destruction of the cotton boll weevil have been made, or may be made from time to time covering two consecutive years, to satisfy fully all members of the commmittee appointed by the governor, commissioner of agriculture, and the president of the agricultural and mechanical college, that the remedy propounded by the party or parties having been given a fair test for two consecutive years under every requirement of the committee appointed by the governor, and having been by them declared to be so economical, practical and effective and that the cost of same does not exceed one dollar per acre per annum, will so report to the governor, in writing, giving in full the details of the experiment witnessed, and recommending that the governor, commissioner of agriculture and the president of the agricultural and mechanical college pay to the party or parties who have made the test the reward offered by the state of Texas. [Id. secs. 6, 7.]

Art. 4475. Same.—After the aforesaid board of practical farmers, acting jointly with the governor, commissioner of agriculture and president of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas, have passed on the claims of all who make application for the aforesaid reward, and have decided upon the most meritorious claim presented as hereinafter required, then shall a period of two successive years elapse in which the people may put into practical application the remedy recommended. And, if at the expiration of the two years it has, in the judgment of the aforesaid board, proven a success, the fifty thousand dollars shall be awarded to the person or persons discovering or inventing said remedy. Provided, that the insecticide, device or machine, if patented, or, if any insecticide, the formula of same shall be conveyed to the state of Texas before said party competing for the prize shall have the right to have same tested by the board free of charge; provided, further, this remedy shall not interfere with the discovery of any remedy by the state of Texas in the experimental station or by the agricultural and mechanical college; and provided, also, no man shall receive any benefit until he first proves that he was the first discoverer of such remedy; and the governor shall have the right at any time to suspend this appropriation provided a satisfactory remedy has in his judgment been discovered by the state experimental board. [Id. sec. 8.]

AGRICULTURAL AND EXPERIMENTAL STATIONS

Art. 4484. Board of directors of A. & M. college to assist U. S. government in maintaining stations.—The board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas are authorized and directed to assist the national government in maintaining an experiment station for the purpose of conducting experimental culture of tobacco and carrying on researches and experiments in tobacco growing under the direction of the national government's expert in the seventeenth representative district. [Act 1909, p. 278, sec. 1.]

Article 4485. [2908] Appointment by the governor.—The governor shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, a commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall be a citizen of the state and experienced in matters of insurance. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 219, sec. 2; Acts 1887, p. 99; Acts 1889, pp. 53-54; Const., art. 16, sec. 38.]

Art. 4486. [2909] His term of office.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until the appointment and qualification of his successor. [Id. secs. 2, 5.]

Art. 4487. [2910] Vacancies in office, how filled.—The governor may fill any vacancy occurring in the office of commissioner of insurance and banking, and report the name of the person so appointed to the senate, if in session, or at the next succeeding session of the legislature. Should the senate fail to confirm the appointment made by the governor within ten days after being advised thereof, then the said office shall be deemed vacant and a new appointment shall be made until the office is filled. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4488. [2911] Oath and bond.—Within fifteen days after notice of his appointment, and before entering upon the duties of his office, he shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall give a bond to the state of Texas in the sum of five thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the governor, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, which oath and bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. p. 219, sec. 3.]

Art. 4489. [2912] May appoint clerks.—Said commissioner may appoint a competent chief clerk and such other clerks as the labors of his office may require; and all clerks shall be removable at the pleasure of the commissioner. [Sen. Jour., 1895, p. 478.]

Art. 4490. [2913] Chief clerk, duties of.—The chief clerk shall possess all the power and perform all the duties attached by law to the office of commissioner during the necessary or unavoidable absence of the commissioner, or his inability to act from any cause. The commissioner shall be responsible for the acts of his chief clerk, who shall, before entering upon the duties of his position, take the oath required of the commissioner; he may also be required by the commissioner to enter into bond with security, payable to said commissioner, for the faithful performance of the duties of his position. [Id.]

Art. 4491. Title and seal of office.—The said commissioner shall be styled, the commissioner of insurance and banking, and shall have a seal of office, the design of which shall consist of a star with five points, with letters composing the word “Texas,” arranged between the respective points thereof; said seal to be not less than one and a half and not more than two inches in diameter, and on the margin, “Department of Insurance and Banking,” or an intelligible abbreviation thereof. Such seal thus formed and impressed shall be the seal of office of the department of insurance and banking. [Acts of 1889, p. 53. Acts 1907, p. 127, sec. 16.]

Art. 4492. [2915] Ineligibility of certain persons.—No person who is a director, officer or agent of, or directly or indirectly interested in, any insurance company, except as insured, shall be a commissioner or clerk; and it shall be unlawful for such commissioner, or any person employed by him or in any way connected with his office, to purchase all or any part of any mine or mineral land, to be in any manner interested in such purchase, during the term of his office or employment. [Acts of 1887, p. 99. Acts 1888, p. 10.]

Art. 4493. [3050] Duties of commissioner.—In addition to the duties required of the commissioner of insurance and banking, he shall perform other duties as follows:
1. Shall execute the laws.—To see that all laws respecting insurance and insurance companies are faithfully executed.

2. File articles of incorporation and other papers.—To file and preserve in his office all acts or articles of incorporation of insurance companies and all other papers required by law to be deposited with him, and, upon application of any party interested therein, to furnish certified copies thereof upon payment of the fees prescribed by law. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 59, par. 2.]

3. Calculate net value of policies.—He shall, as soon as practicable in each year, calculate or cause to be calculated in his office, by an officer or employed of his department, the net value on the thirty-first day of December of the previous year of all the policies in force on that day in each life or health insurance company doing business in the state, upon the basis and in the manner prescribed by law. [Id. par. 3.]

4. Shall see that the company has net value of policies on hand.—Having determined the net value of all the policies in force, it shall be his duty to see that the company has in safe securities of the class and character required by the laws of this state the amount of said net value of all its policies, after all its debts and claims against it and at least one hundred thousand dollars of surplus to policy holders have been provided for. [Id. par. 4.]

5. May accept the valuation of commissioners of other states.—He may accept the valuation made by the insurance commissioner of the state under whose authority a life insurance company was organized, when such valuation has been properly made on sound and recognized principles, as a legal basis as above; provided, the company shall furnish to him a certificate of the insurance commissioner of such states, setting forth the value calculated on the data designated above of all the policies in force in the company on the previous thirty-first day of December, and stating that, after all other debts of the company and claims against it at that time, and one hundred thousand dollars surplus to policy holders, were provided for, the company had, in safe securities of the character required by the laws of this state, an amount equal to the net value of all its policies in force, and that said company is entitled to do business in its own state. [Id. par. 5.]

6. Shall see that company furnishes certificate.—Every life insurance company doing business in this state during the year for which the statement is made that fails promptly to furnish the certificate afore-said shall be required to make full detailed lists of policies and securities to the insurance commissioner, and shall be liable for all charges and expenses consequent upon not having furnished said certificates. [Id. par. 6.]

7. Shall calculate the reserve on fire insurance.—For every company doing fire insurance business in this state, he shall calculate the reinsurance reserve for unexpired fire risks by taking fifty per cent of the premiums received on all unexpired risks that have less than one year to run, and a pro rata of all premiums received on risks that have more than one year to run; provided, that, when the reinsurance reserve, calculated as above, is less than forty per cent of all the premiums received during the year, the reinsurance reserve in this case shall be the whole of the premiums received on all of its unexpired risks. For every company transacting any kind of insurance business in this state, for which no basis is prescribed by law, he shall calculate the reinsurance reserve upon the same basis prescribed in this section [article] as to companies transacting fire insurance business. [Id. par. 7.]

8. Shall charge premiums.—In marine and inland insurance, he shall charge all the premiums received on unexpired risks as a reinsurance reserve. [Id. par. 8.]

9. Duties when company's capital is impaired.—Having charged against a company other than life, the reinsurance reserve, as prescribed by the laws of this state, and adding thereto all other debts and claims against the company, he shall, in case he find the capital stock of the company impaired to the extent of twenty per cent, give notice to the company to make good its whole capital stock within sixty days, and, if this is not done, he shall require the company to cease to do business within this state, and shall thereupon, in case the company is organized under authority of the state, immediately institute legal proceedings to determine what further shall be done in the case. [Id. par. 9.]

10. Shall publish results of investigation.—The commissioner shall publish the result of his examination of the affairs of any company whenever he deems it for the interest of the public. [Id. par. 10.]

11. Shall suspend or revoke certificate.—He shall suspend the entire business of any company of this state, and the business within this state of any other company, during its non-compliance with any provision of the laws relative to insurance, or when its business is being fraudulently conducted, by suspending or revoking the certificate granted by him; and he shall give notice thereof to the insurance commissioner or other similar officer of every state, and shall publish notice thereof; provided, that he shall give such company at least ten days notice in writing of his intention to suspend its right to do business or revoke the certificate of authority granted by him, stating specifically the reason why he intends to so suspend or revoke such certificate of authority. [Id. par. 11.]

12. Shall report to attorney general.—He shall report promptly and in detail to the attorney general any violation of law relative to insurance companies or the business of insurance. [Id. par. 12.]

13. Shall furnish blanks.—He shall furnish to the companies required to report to him the necessary blank forms for the statements required. [Id. par. 13.]
14. Shall keep records.—He shall preserve in a permanent form a full record of his proceedings and a concise statement of the condition of each company or agency visited or examined. [Id. par. 14.]

15. Give certified copies.—At the request of any person, and on the payment of the legal fee, he shall give certified copies of any record or papers in his office, when he deems it not prejudicial to public interest, and shall give such other certificates as are provided for by law. [Id. par. 15.]

16. Report annually to governor.—He shall report annually to the governor the names and compensations of his clerks, the receipts and expenses of his department for the year, his official acts, the condition of companies doing business in this state, and such other information as will exhibit the affairs of said department. [Id. par. 16.]

17. Send copies of reports to.—He shall send a copy of such annual report to the insurance commissioner or other similar officer of every state and to each company doing business in the state. [Id. par. 17.]

18. Report laws to commissioners of other states.—On request, he shall communicate to the insurance commissioner or other similar officer of any other state, in which the substantial provisions of the law of this state relative to insurance have been, or shall be, enacted, any facts which by law it is his duty to ascertain respecting the companies of this state doing business within such other state. [Id. par. 18.]

19. See that no company does business, when.—He shall see that no company is permitted to transact the business of life insurance in this state whose charter authorizes it to do a fire, marine, lightning, tornado or inland insurance business, and that no company authorized to do a life or health insurance business in this state be permitted to take fire, marine or inland risks. [Id. par. 19.]

20. Admit mutual companies, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall admit into this state mutual insurance companies organized under the laws of other states and who have two hundred thousand dollars assets in excess of liabilities engaged in cyclone, tornado, hail and storm insurance. [Id. par. 20.]

Art. 4494. May change form of annual statement.—The commissioner of insurance and banking may, from time to time, make such changes in the forms of the annual statements required of insurance companies of any kind, as shall seem to him best adapted to elicit a true exhibit of their condition and methods of transacting business; provided, that such terms and requirements shall elicit only such information as shall pertain to the business of the company. [Id. sec. 60.]

Art. 4495. Duty when parties refuse to appear and testify.—Whenever any person shall refuse to appear and testify or to give information authorized by this chapter to be demanded by the commissioner of insurance, such commissioner may file his application under oath with any district judge or district court within this state, where said witness is summoned to appear; and it shall be the duty of said judge to summon said witness, administer oaths as required by law and require answers to such questions; and such judge or court shall have power to punish for contempt as now provided by law. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 63.]

Art. 4496. Sheriffs, etc., shall execute service.—Sheriffs and other peace officers of this state shall execute process directed to them by the commissioner of insurance and make return thereof to him, as in the case of process issued from any of the courts. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 4497. Shall issue certificate of authority, when; revoke certificate, when.—Should the commissioner of insurance and banking be satisfied that any company applying for a certificate of authority has in all respects fully complied with the law, and that, if a stock company, its capital stock has been fully paid up, that it has the required amount capital or surplus to policy holders, it shall be his duty to issue to such company a certificate of authority under the seal of his office, authorizing such company to transact insurance business, naming therein the particular kind of insurance, for the period of not less than three months nor extending beyond the last day of February next following the date of such certificate. And, if any such insurance company organized under the laws of any state or country, after having obtained a certificate of authority from the commissioner of insurance and banking, or other officer authorized to issue such permit to do business in this state, shall bring in any federal court any suit or action against any citizen of this state, or shall remove any suit or action heretofore or hereafter commenced in any court of this state, to which it is a party, to any federal court, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall forthwith revoke and recall the certificate of authority of such insurance company to do and transact business in this state; and no renewal of authority shall be granted to such insurance company to do business in this state for a period of three years after such revocation; and such insurance company shall thereafter be prohibited from transacting any business in this state until again duly authorized by law. [Id. sec. 40.]

Compelling issuance of certificate.—See notes under Title 89.
Refusal of permit—Grounds.—Where the commissioner of insurance is empowered to revoke an existing permit issued to an insurance company because it violates the law, he may refuse to grant a permit for the same reason. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Hawkins, 103
T. 327, 126 S. W. 1114.

Art. 4498. Shall compute reserve liability of companies.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, as soon as practicable in each year, to compute the reserve liability on the thirty-first day of December of the preceding year of every company organized under the laws of this state, or authorized to transact business in this state, which has outstanding policies of insurance on the lives of citizens of this state, in accordance with the following rules:

1. The net value on the first day of December of the preceding year of all outstanding policies of life insurance in the company issued prior to the first day of January, 1910, shall be computed according to the terms of said policies on the basis of the American experience table of mortality, and four and one-half per cent interest per annum.

2. The net value on the last day of December, of the preceding year, of all policies of life insurance issued after the thirty-first day of December, 1909, upon the basis of the actuary's or combined experience table of mortality, with four per cent interest per annum; provided, that the policies of any such life insurance company thereafter issued upon the reserve basis of an interest rate lower than four per cent shall be computed upon the basis of the American experience table of mortality with interest at such lower rate per annum; provided, that any company which, on January 1, 1909, was writing policies on the basis of four and a half per cent, may continue on that basis until January 1, 1912, and its policies shall be so valued.

3. In every case in which the actual premium charged for an insurance is less than the net premium for such insurance computed according to its respective tables of mortality and rate of interest aforesaid, the company shall also be charged with the value of annuity, the amount of which shall equal the difference between the premium charged and that required by the rules above stated, and the term of which in years shall equal the number of future annual payments due on the insurance at the date of the valuation. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4499. Shall calculate reinsurance reserve.—On the thirty-first day of December of each and every year, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall have computed in his office the reinsurance reserve for all unexpired risks of all insurance companies organized under the laws of this state, or transacting business in this state, transacting any kind of insurance other than life, fire, marine, inland, lightning or tornado insurance, by taking fifty per cent of the gross premiums on all unexpired risks that have less than one year to run and a pro rata of all premiums received on risks that have more than one year to run. [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 4500. Shall examine companies, have free access to books, etc. —The commissioner of insurance and banking shall, at the end of each two years, or oftener if he deems necessary, in person or by one or more examiners, commissioned in writing, visit each company organized under the laws of this state, and examine its financial condition and its ability to meet its liabilities. He shall have free access to all the books and papers of the company or agents thereof relating to the business and affairs of such company, and shall have power to summon and examine under oath the officers, agents and employees of such company and any other person within the state relative to the affairs of such insurance company. He may revoke or modify any certificate of authority issued by him when any conditions or requirements prescribed by law for granting it no longer exist; provided, that he shall give such company at least ten days notice in writing of his intention to revoke or modify such certificate of authority issued by him, stating specifically the reasons why he intends to revoke or modify such certificate. The expense of every such examination shall be paid by the company so examined, but the commissioner shall not make any charge for services except for traveling or other actual expenses and shall furnish the company with an itemized statement of such expenses. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 4501. Powers and duties of commissioner in case of examination.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, for the purpose of examination authorized by law, has power either in person or by one or more examiners by him commissioned in writing:

1. To require free access to all books and papers within this state of any insurance companies, or the agents thereof, doing business within this state.

2. To summon and examine any person within this state, under oath, which he or any examiner may administer, relative to the affairs and conditions of any insurance company.

3. To visit at its principal office, wherever situated, any insurance company doing business in this state, for the purpose of investigating its affairs and conditions, and shall revoke the certificate of authority of any such company in this state refusing to permit such examination. The reasonable expenses of all such examinations shall be paid by the company examined.

4. He may revoke or modify any certificate of authority issued by him when any conditions prescribed by law for granting it no longer exist.

5. He shall also have power to institute suits and prosecutions, either by the attorney general or such other attorney as the attorney general may designate, for any violations of the law of this state relating to insurance; and no action shall be brought or maintained by any person other than the commissioner of insurance and banking for closing up the affairs or to enjoin, restrain or interfere with the prosecution of the business of any such insurance company organized under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 4502. [3054] Transfer of securities by commissioner not valid unless countersigned by treasurer.—No transfer by the commissioner of securities of any kind, in any way held by him in his official capacity, shall be valid unless countersigned by the treasurer of the state. [Acts 1879, p. 224, sec. 13.]
Art. 4503. [3055] Duty of treasurer in regard to such transfers.—
It is the duty of the state treasurer:
1. To countersign any such transfer presented to him by the commissioner.
2. To keep a record of all transfers, stating the name of the trans­feree, unless transferred in blank, and a description of the security.
3. Upon countersigning, to advise by mail the company concerned, the particulars of the transaction.
4. In his annual report to the legislature, to state the transfers and the amount thereof, countersigned by him. [Id.]

Art. 4504. [3056] Free access to records, books, etc., given to commissioner and treasurer.—For the purpose of verifying the correctness of records, the commissioner of insurance shall be entitled to free access to the treasurer's records, required by the preceding article, and the treasurer shall be entitled to free access to the books and other documents of the insurance department relating to securities held by the commissioner. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4505. [3057] Instruments executed by commissioner, and copies of papers in his office made evidence.—Every instrument executed by the commissioner of insurance of this state, or of any other state, in which the substantial provisions of the laws of this state relating to insurance have been, or shall be, enacted, pursuant to authority conferred by law, and authenticated by his seal of office, shall be received as evidence; and copies of papers and records in his office certified by him, and so authenticated, shall be received as evidence with the same effect as the originals. [Id. p. 223, sec. 11.]

Papers deposited in commissioner's office.—An undertaking by defendant was attached to the bond of a foreign insurance company filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, which undertaking reinsured the surety on such bond, and provided that it was agreed by defendant that the reinsurance should inure to the benefit of the commissioner of insurance and banking, "and to any and every party who may be a beneficiary under said bond," and that an original action against defendant might be maintained "upon said bond and this contract just as if [defendant] had signed said original bond." Held that defendant by such undertaking made itself a party to the original bond filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking as if it had originally signed the bond, so that an authenticated copy of such bond was admissible in evidence in an action against defendant by a policy holder in the insurance company, under this article. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

Art. 4506. [3058] Commissioner authorized to make inquiries of company, etc.—The commissioner of insurance is authorized to address any inquiries to any insurance company in relation to its busi­ness and condition, or any matter connected with its transactions which he may deem necessary for the public good or for a proper discharge of his duties; and it shall be the duty of the company so addressed to promptly an­swer such inquiries in writing. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 39, sec. 18.]

Art. 4507. [3059] Annual statement to be tabulated and submitted to legislature by commissioner.—It shall be the duty of the commis­sioner to cause the information contained in the annual statements of companies to be arranged in tabular form and prepare the same in a single document for printing, and submit the same to the legislature as a portion of his regular report to that body. [Id. p. 43, sec. 28.]

Art. 4508. [3060] Insurance company's certificate of authority to transact business to be revoked, when.—Should any insurance company fail or neglect to pay off and discharge any execution, issued upon a valid final judgment against said company, within thirty days after the notice of the issuance thereof, then in that event the certificate of au­thority of said company to transact business of insurance shall be re­voked, canceled and annulled, and said company shall be prohibited from transacting business of insurance in this state until said execution be satisfied. [Acts 1879, ch. 144, p. 159.]
CHAPTER EIGHT

STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

Art. 4509. Election of. — There shall be elected, at each general election for state and county officers, a state superintendent of public instruction, who shall hold his office for a term of two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall receive an annual salary of twenty-five hundred dollars, and may employ as many clerks as may be necessary to perform the duties of his office; provided, that no greater number shall be employed than the legislature has appropriated salaries for. The superintendent shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law. Appeal shall always lie from the rulings of the state superintendent to the state board of education. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 24.]

Art. 4510. General duties. — The superintendent of public instruction shall be charged with the administration of the school laws and a general superintendency of the business relating to the public schools of the state. He shall hear and determine all appeals from the rulings of the decisions of subordinate school officers, and all such officers and teachers shall conform to his decisions, unless they are reversed by the state board of education. He shall prescribe suitable forms for reports required of subordinate school officers and teachers, and blanks for their guidance in transacting their official business and conducting public schools, and shall, from time to time, prepare and transmit to them such instructions as he may deem necessary for the faithful and efficient execution of the school laws, and by whatsoever is so communicated to them, shall they be bound to govern themselves in the discharge of their official duties. He shall examine and approve all accounts of whatsoever kind against the school fund that are to be paid by the state treasurer, and, upon such approval, the comptroller shall be authorized to draw his warrant. [Id. sec. 25.]

General supervision. — Where the state superintendent decides a teacher's contract valid in an action by her to compel recognition, the defense that other contracts were made which, if enforced, would create a deficiency, cannot be raised. Town of Pearsall v. Wellington (Cliv. App.) 68 S. W. 369.

Appellate powers. — A county superintendent held to have lost his right to appeal from a decision of the state superintendent to the state board of education by failing to take his appeal with due diligence. Watkins v. Huff (Cliv. App.) 63 S. W. 322.

Appeal must first be made to superintendent of public instruction in school matters before resort is had to civil courts. McCollum v. Adams (Cliv. App.) 110 S. W. 527.

Under this article an appeal to, and a decision by, the superintendent is a condition precedent to a right of any party complaining of the decisions of a subordinate officer to bring the matter in controversy before the courts. Trustees of Chillicothe Independent School Dist. v. Dunby (Cliv. App.) 142 S. W. 1097.

Art. 4511. Instructions binding. — The state superintendent shall advise and counsel with the school officers of the counties, cities and towns and school districts as to the best methods of conducting the public schools, and shall be empowered to issue instructions and regulations, binding for observance on all officers and teachers in all cases wherein the provisions of the school law may require interpretation in order to carry out the designs expressed therein, also in cases that may arise in which the law has made no provision, and where necessity requires some rule in order that there may be no hardships to individuals, and no delays or inconvenience in the management of school affairs.  [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4512. Shall note educational progress.—It shall be the duty of the state superintendent of public instruction to inform himself concerning the educational progress of the different parts of this state and of other states. In so far as he may be able, he shall visit different sections of this state and address teachers' institutes, associations, summer normals and other educational gatherings, to instruct teachers and arouse educational sentiment; and the legislature shall make adequate appropriation for necessary traveling expenses, or those of his representative, when in the service of the state.  [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 4513. Shall have school laws printed.—He shall cause to be printed for general distribution such number of copies of school laws as may at any time be necessary, to be determined by the state board of education.  [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4514. Shall furnish plans for school buildings.—It shall be the duty of the state superintendent of public instruction to prepare as many as three sets of plans for public school buildings, the said plans being designed to meet the needs of rural schools of various sizes, and, upon request of any of his representatives, shall furnish copies of such plans and specifications.  [Id. sec. 81. Amended Act 1909, p. 21.]

Art. 4515. Shall make report.—The state superintendent shall, one month before the meeting of each regular session of the legislature and ten days prior to any special session thereof, at which, under the governor's proclamation convening the same, any legislation may be had respecting the public schools, make a full report to the board of education of the condition of the public schools throughout the state. Such report shall give all the information called for by the board of education, and contain such other matters as the state superintendent shall deem important.  [Id. sec. 46. Acts 1905, p. 263.]

Art. 4516. Governor shall lay report before legislature.—The governor shall lay such report before the legislature, and two thousand copies of said report shall be printed in pamphlet form for the use of the legislature and for distribution among the various school officers and libraries within the state, and the superintendents of public schools of other states and territories of the United States and Canada, and the bureau of education at Washington city.  [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 4517. School officers to make reports to state superintendent.  —The state superintendent shall require of county judges, county, city and town superintendents, county and city treasurers and treasurers of school boards, and other school officers and teachers, such school reports relating to the school fund and other school affairs as he may deem proper for collecting information and advancing the interests of the public schools, and shall furnish the county, city and town superintendents and other school officers and teachers, for the use of such officers and teachers, the necessary blanks and forms for making such reports and carrying out such instructions as may be required of them; and any county judge, or county, city or town superintendent, assessor, treasurer or teacher, who shall wilfully fail to make such report within twenty days after the same shall have been required by the state superintendent to be filed, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction be fined as provided in the Penal Code; and said fine shall be paid, when collected, to the available school fund.  [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 4518. Reports to be filed.—The state superintendent shall file all reports, documents and papers transmitted to him and the state board of education by county or city school officers, and from all other sources, pertaining to public schools, and keep a complete index of the same. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4519. Shall pro rate available funds monthly.—On the first day of each month, the state superintendent of public instruction shall pro rate to the several counties, cities and towns and school districts constituting separate school organizations, according to the scholastic population of each, the available school money collected during the preceding month and then on hand as shown by the certificate issued that day to him by the comptroller, and shall thereupon certify to the comptroller the total sum pro rated to each; and such certificate shall be authority for the comptroller to draw his warrant in favor of the treasurer of each such county, city or town or school district for the amount stated in such certificate. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 432, sec. 5.]

Art. 4520. Shall disburse warrants drawn by comptroller.—He shall receive from the state treasurer all warrants drawn by the comptroller in favor of the treasurer of the available school fund of each county, city or town, and each school district having control of its public school, and shall transmit such warrants to the respective treasurers in favor of whom they are drawn. [Id. sec. 5.]

CHAPTER ONE

TEXAS STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

Art. 4521. Texas state board of health; how constituted.
Art. 4522. Salaries and expenses of president and members.
Art. 4523. Time and place of meeting of board.
Art. 4524. Officers and assistants appointed; salaries and duties.
Art. 4525. Members of board to qualify; commissions to issue.
Art. 4526. Bond of the president.
Art. 4527. President shall have charge of state quarantine.
Art. 4528. General powers and duties of the state board of health.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on subject of police power.]

Article 4521. Texas state board of health; how constituted.—The Texas state board of health shall consist of seven members, who shall be legally qualified practicing physicians, who shall have had at least ten years experience in actual practice of medicine within the state of Texas, of good professional standing, who shall be graduates of reputable medical colleges, to be appointed biennially by the governor on or before the tenth day of March following his inauguration. One member of said board, who shall be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate, shall be designated by the governor as state health officer, and who shall be president and executive officer of the board. The members of said board shall hold their office for a term of two years, and until their successors shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed for cause. [Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 1.]

Art. 4522. Salaries and expenses of president and members.—The president of said board shall receive annually a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars. The other six members of said board shall receive no salary, but each of said members shall be allowed for each and every day he shall be in attendance upon the meetings of the board the sum of ten dollars, including the time spent in travel, and three cents per mile going and coming for actual expenses, to be paid on their vouchers when approved by the president of the board and the governor, by warrant drawn by the comptroller against the general appropriation provided by law for that purpose; provided, no member shall receive more than five hundred dollars annually. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4523. Time and place of meeting of board.—A majority of the members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The board shall meet at Austin quarterly on a day to be fixed by the board, or hear and determine all appeals from the rulings and decisions of subordinate as often and at such time and places as such meetings shall be deemed necessary for the board. Timely notice of such meetings shall be given to each member of the board by the president thereof. The board shall be convened on call of the president, or on demand of three members of said board made in writing to the president.
The office of said board shall be in the capitol, at Austin; and the said board shall be furnished with all necessary equipment and supplies, including laboratory supplies, books, stationery, blanks, furniture, etc., as other offices of the state are furnished, including suitable rooms for its offices and laboratories, necessary for carrying on the work of the board, and to be provided in the capitol building, or other suitable buildings, to be designated by the governor. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4524. Officers and assistants appointed; salaries and duties.—
The president of the board shall appoint, with the approval of the governor, the following officers and assistants:

1. An assistant state health officer, who shall be a legally qualified practitioner of medicine under the laws of the state of Texas, and who shall have had five years experience in the practice of medicine in this state, whose duty it shall be to assist the president of the board in a general supervision of the affairs of his office and in the enforcement of quarantine and sanitation throughout the state. Said assistant state health officer shall receive an annual salary of two thousand and four hundred dollars.

2. A registrar of vital statistics, whose duty it shall be to correct, record, compile and tabulate the vital and mortuary statistics of the state as provided by law, and shall also be secretary of the board, and perform such other duties as may be directed by the president of the board, and he shall receive an annual salary of one thousand and eight hundred dollars.

3. A chemist and bacteriologist, who shall be learned in chemistry, pathology, and bacteriology and he shall receive a salary of one thousand and eight hundred dollars per annum. He shall make examinations and analyses of such things and matters as may be submitted to him by the board, or the state health officer, and shall report results of such examiinations in such manner and form as may be directed by the board.

4. One stenographer and bookkeeper combined, at a salary of one thousand and two hundred dollars per annum.

5. One inspector, at a salary of one thousand and eight hundred dollars per annum. It shall be the duty of such inspector to conduct such inspection as required by the board and the president of the board, and to assist in the enforcement of all sanitary and quarantine laws of the state, and to perform such other necessary services as may be prescribed by the president of the board. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4525. Members of board to qualify; commissions to issue.—
Members of the board shall qualify by taking the constitutional oath of office before an officer authorized to administer oaths within this state.
Upon presentation of oaths and their certificates of appointment signed by the governor, the secretary of state shall issue commissions to them under the seal of the state, which shall be evidence and be authority to act as such members of the board. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4526. Bond of the president.—The president of the board shall execute bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the governor and his successors in office, conditioned for faithful performance of his official duties, to be approved by the governor, and filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4527. President shall have charge of state quarantine.—The president of the board shall, besides his other duties, have charge of and superintend the administration of all matters pertaining to state quarantine. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4528. General powers and duties of the state board of health.—The state board of health shall have general supervision and control of all matters pertaining to the health of citizens of this state, as provided herein. It shall make a study of the causes and prevention of infection of contagious diseases affecting the lives of citizens within this state and except as otherwise provided in this Act shall have direction and control of all matters of quarantine regulations and enforcement and shall have full power and authority to prevent the entrance of such diseases from points without the state and shall have direction and control over all sanitary and quarantine measures for dealing with all diseases within the state and to suppress same and prevent their spread. [Acts 1913, p. 147, sec. 1, amending Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 9, thus superseding Art. 4528, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4528a. Dissemination of information for prevention of communicable disease; bulletins; free lectures and exhibits; employment of assistants; expenses; encouragement of local societies.—The state health department shall disseminate information concerning the cause, nature, extent and prevention of communicable disease and shall arrange for free lectures and health exhibits, and shall cause to be printed and distributed free of cost to the people, bulletins, pamphlets, circulars, leaflets, cards, and other printed matter, printed in English, Spanish and German, containing useful information for the protection of the individual and the public health. The state health department shall send a public health exhibit in a railway car or cars over the lines of railroads in the state of Texas and shall cause the exhibit to be displayed in the cities and towns on railway lines. With the display of the exhibit there shall be given free lectures and talks to the people, illustrated, where possible, with stereopticon and moving pictures, and printed matter containing useful information pertaining to the protection of health and prevention of disease shall be distributed. The details of the work shall be planned by the state health department and the state health officer may employ assistants to carry on the work, for such periods of time as may be necessary and shall fix their salaries, provided that the salary of the director of the work shall not exceed $200.00 a month and the salaries of traveling representatives shall not exceed $125.00 a month and the salaries of other employees shall not exceed $100.00 a month. Necessary expenses of such employees shall be paid in the same manner that expenses of other employees of the state are paid. The state health officer may designate any employee as a health officer, and during their term of service, employees so designated shall have the power and authority of a health officer.

The state health department shall encourage the organization of county and city societies and committees for the prevention of disease and protection of the public health and may co-operate with any corporation organized under the laws of Texas for benevolent and charitable purposes, in the movement to disseminate information concerning the

Art. 4528b. Free transportation on railroads.—It shall be lawful for any railroad company to furnish free of charge a car or cars for the display of the public health exhibit and to furnish free transportation to the persons actually engaged in the work in connection with the display of the public health exhibit. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4528c. Expenditures by counties and cities.—It shall be lawful for the commissioners' court of any county or of the city council of any city or the city commissioners of any city or other governing body of any city or town to contribute to the local expense of the display of the public health exhibit. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4528d. State health officer may accept donations.—It shall be lawful for the state health officer to accept donations and contributions to the expense of the display of the public health exhibit. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4528e. Appropriation; expenditures subject to approval of governor.—There is hereby appropriated, to be disbursed at the discretion of the state health officer, for the purposes mentioned in section 1 of this Act, in the same manner as other expenses of his office, the sum of $2000.00 for the cost of preparation of the exhibit, $3000.00 for the expenses of the work until September 1st, 1913, and $10,000 for the expenses of the work from September 1st, 1913, to September 1st, 1914, and $10,000 for the expenses of the work from September 1st, 1914 to September 1st, 1915. Provided no obligation shall be incurred nor money expended under the provisions of this Act unless first approved by the governor. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4534.—Repealed. See Acts 1911, p. 173 [Art. 4553a.]

Art. 4535. Perform duties of state health officer.—It shall be the duty of said Texas state board of health to perform all functions and duties now imposed by existing laws upon the state health officer; and whenever state health officer is mentioned in the present laws, the Texas state board of health shall be deemed to succeed in purpose and effect, whenever such statutes are not in conflict with this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 340, sec. 12.]

Art. 4536. Members of board may enter, examine and inspect, etc.—The members of the board of health and every person duly authorized by them, upon presentation of proper authority in writing, are hereby empowered, whenever they may deem it necessary in pursuance of their duties, to enter into, examine, investigate, inspect and view all ground, public buildings, factories, slaughter houses, packing houses, abattoirs, dairies, bakeries, manufactories, hotels, restaurants and all other public places and public buildings where they may deem it proper to enter for the discovery and suppression of disease and for the enforcement of the rules, regulations and ordinances of the sanitary code for Texas after it has been adopted, promulgated and published by the board for the enforcement of any and all health laws, sanitary laws or quarantine regulations of this state. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4537. Investigations by board; powers and duties of court.—The members of said board of health and its officers are severally authorized and empowered to administer oaths and to summon witnesses and compel their attendance in all matters proper for the said board to investigate, such as the determination of nuisances, investigation of public water supplies, investigation of any sanitary conditions within the state, investigation of the existence of infection, or the investigation of any and all matters requiring the exercise of the discretionary powers invested in said board and its officers and members, and in the general scope of its authority invested by this chapter. The several district judges and courts are hereby charged with the duty of aiding said board in its investigations and in compelling due observance of the provisions of this chapter; and, in the event any witness summoned by said board or any of the officers or members of the same shall prove disobedient or disrespectful to the lawful authority of such board, officer or member, such person shall be punished by the district court of the county in which such witness is summoned to appear as for contempt of said district court. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4538. Office of county physician abolished; office of county health officer substituted.—The office of county physician is abolished within the several organized counties of this state, and instead the office of county health officer is created; and such office of county health officer shall be filled by a competent physician legally qualified to practice under the laws of the state of Texas and of reputable professional standing. [Id. secs. 17-18.]

Art. 4539. Qualification, appointment and compensation of county health officer.—It is hereby made the duty of the commissioners’ court by a majority vote in each organized county to appoint a proper person for the office of county health officer for his county, who shall hold office for two years and until his successor shall be appointed and qualify, unless sooner removed for cause. Said county health officer shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office, and shall file a copy of such oath of office and a copy of his appointment with the Texas state board of health; and, until such copies are so filed, said officer shall not be deemed legally qualified. Compensation of said county health officer shall be fixed by the commissioners’ court; provided, that no compensation or salary shall be allowed, except for services actually rendered. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4540. Office of city health officer substituted for city physician.—The office of city physician for the several incorporated cities and towns within this state is abolished, and instead created the office of city health officer; and such office of city health officer shall be filled by a competent physician, legally qualified to practice medicine within this state, of reputable professional standing. [Id. secs. 20, 21.]

Art. 4541. City health officer.—The city council or the city commissioners, as the case may be, of each incorporated city and town within this state shall elect a qualified person for the office of city health officer by a majority of the votes of the city council or city commission, as the case may be, except in cities which may be operated under a charter providing for a different method of selecting city physicians, in which event the office of city health officer shall be filled as is now filled by the city physician, but in no instance shall the office of city health officer be abolished. The city health officer, after appointment, shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office, and shall file a copy of such oath and a copy of his appointment with the Texas state board of health, and shall not be deemed to be legally qualified until said copies shall have been so filed. [Id. sec. 22.]

Status of officer.—The health officers of a city are officers of the state, their functions are governmental and are conferred in the interest of the public at large. White v. City of San Antonio, 94 T. 313, 60 S. W. 427.

Art. 4542. City health officers to be appointed by board, when.—In case the authorities hereinafter mentioned shall fail, neglect or refuse to fill the office of county or city health officer as in this chapter provided, then the Texas state board of health shall have the power to ap­point such county or city health officer to hold office until the local au­thorities shall fill such office, first having given ten days notice in writ­ing to such authority of the desire for such appointment. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4543. Duties of county health officer.—Each county health of­ficer shall perform such duties as have heretofore been required of county physicians, with relation to caring for the prisoners in county jails and in caring for the inmates of county poor farms, hospitals, discharging duties of county quarantine and other such duties as may be lawfully re­quired of the county physician by the commissioners' court and other of­ficers of the county, and shall discharge any additional duties which it may be proper for county authorities under the present laws to require of county physicians; and, in addition thereto, he shall discharge such duties as shall be prescribed for him under the rules, regulations and re­quirements of the Texas state board of health, or the president thereof, and is empowered and authorized to establish, maintain and enforce quarantine within his county. He shall also be required to aid and as­sist the state board of health in all matters of local quarantine, inspec­tion, disease prevention and suppression, vital and mortuary statistics and general sanitation within his county; and he shall at all times re­port to the state board of health, in such manner and form as it shall pre­scribe, the presence of all contagious, infectious and dangerous epi­demic diseases within his jurisdiction; and he shall make such other and further reports in such manner and form and at such times as said Texas state board of health shall direct, touching such matters as may be proper for said state board of health to direct; and he shall aid said state board of health at all times in the enforcement of its proper rules, regulations, requirements and ordinances, and in the enforcement of all sanitary laws and quarantine regulations within his jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4544. County health officer under direction of board; proceed­ings against for failure in duty.—In all matters with which the state board of health may be clothed with authority, said county health officer shall at all times be under its direction; and any failure or refusal on the part of said county health officer to obey the authority and reasonable commands of said state board of health shall constitute malfeasance in office, and shall subject said county health officer to removal from office at the relation of the state board of health; and pending charges for removal said county health officer shall not receive any salary or com­pensation; which cause shall be tried in the district court of the county in which such county health officer resides. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4545. Duty of health officers as to indigent consumptives.— Hereafter, when any indigent person suffering from tuberculosis is so­journing in any other county than his residence makes application for financial relief to any county health officer or commissioners' court of any county in this state, or the mayor or health officer of any city in this state, before any relief is granted, he shall make an affidavit that he is indigent and unable to provide for himself. When such affidavit is made, it shall be the duty of the county health officer, mayor, city health officer or county judge to forthwith notify the state health officer of the case, giving the name of the patient and the place of his residence. If such patient is a bona fide citizen of any county within the state of Texas, it shall be the duty of the state health officer, and he shall have the power, to purchase a ticket for said patient and furnish him with sufficient additional means to purchase food en route to his former home, and return such patient thereto. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4546. County health officers under direction of board; proceed­ings against for failure of duty.—In the event any county health officer shall fail or refuse to properly discharge the duties of his office, as prescribed by this chapter, the state board of health shall file charges with the commissioners’ court for the proper county, specifying wherein such officer has failed in the discharge of his duties; and at the same time the state board of health shall file a protest with the county clerk and the county treasurer against the payment of further fees, salary or allowance to said county health officer; and, pending such protest and charges, it shall not be lawful for such county health officer to be paid or to receive any subsequently earned salary, fees or allowances on account of his office, unless such charges are shown to be untrue and are not sustained. After five days notice in writing to said county health officer, the commissioners’ court shall hear the charges, at which hearing the county judge shall preside, and the state board of health may be represented. Either party, the state board or the county health officer, may appeal from the decision of said court to the district court of the county; and, pending such appeal, no salary, fees or allowance shall be paid to said county health officer for any subsequent earned salary; and, in the event the charges shall be sustained, the county health officer shall be charged to pay all costs of court, and shall forfeit all salary, fees and allowances earned subsequent to the date of filing the charges and protests. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4547. No cost or appeal bond required of board.—No bond for costs, or bond on appeal, or writ of error shall be required of the state board of health or state officials in any actions brought or maintained under this chapter. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4548. Duties of city health officer enumerated.—Each city health officer shall perform such duties as may now or hereafter be required by the city councils and ordinances of city physicians, and such duties as may be required of him by general law and city ordinances with regard to the general health and sanitation of towns and cities, and perform such other duties as shall be legally required of him by the mayor, councils, commissioners or the ordinances of his city or town. He shall, in addition thereto, discharge and perform such duties as may be prescribed for him under the directions, rules, regulations and requirements of the state board of health and the president thereof. He shall be required to aid and assist the state board of health in all matters of quarantine, vital and mortuary statistics, inspection, disease prevention and suppression and sanitation within his jurisdiction. He shall at all times report to the state board of health, in such manner and form as shall be prescribed by said board of health, the presence of all contagious, infectious and dangerous epidemic diseases within his jurisdiction, and shall make such other and further reports in such manner and form and at such times as said state board of health shall direct, touching all such matters as may be proper for the state board of health to direct, and he shall aid said state board of health at all times in the enforcement of proper rules, regulations and requirements in the enforcement of all sanitary laws, quarantine regulations and vital statistics collection, and perform such other duties as said state board of health shall direct.
[Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4549. City health officer may be removed, when and how.—In all matters in which the state board of health may be clothed with authority, said city health officer shall at all times be governed by the authority of said board of health, and failure or refusal on the part of said city health officer to properly perform the duties of his office as prescribed by this chapter shall constitute malfeasance in office, and shall subject said city health officer to removal from office at the relation of the state board of health, which cause shall be tried in the district court of the county in which such city health officer resides. [Id. sec.
28.]
Art. 4550. Board to file charges against city health officer.—In the event of a failure or refusal of said city health officer to properly discharge his duties of his office, the state board of health shall file charges against said city health officer with the council or city commission of the proper town or city, which shall specify in what particulars said city health officer has failed in respect to the discharge of his duties, and shall at the same time file a protest with the city secretary and city treasurer against the payment to said city health officer of further fees, salary or allowance; and, pending such charges and protest, no further salary, fees or allowance shall be paid to said city health officer, unless such charges are shown to be untrue and not sustained. After five days notice in writing to said city health officer, the charges shall be heard before the mayor and council, or the mayor and commission, of the town or city in which said city health officer shall reside, at which hearing the state board of health may be represented, and either the city health officer or the state board of health shall have the right of appeal to the county court of the county in which the city or town is situated; and, if said charges be sustained, said city health officer shall be adjudged to pay all costs of court, and shall forfeit all salary, fees and allowances accrued subsequent to the date of filing of the charges and protest originally and which may be due him on account of his office. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4551. Compensation of city health officer.—The compensation of city health officer shall be fixed by the mayor and council, or the mayor and commissioners, of the respective towns and cities within this state. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 4552. Annual conference of county and city health officers.—There shall be an annual conference of county health officers and city health officers of this state at such time and place as the state board of health shall designate, at which conference the president or some member of the state board of health shall preside. The several counties, towns and cities may provide for and pay the necessary expense of its county health officer or city health officer for attendance upon said conference. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 4553. Legal proceedings in name of board; duty of attorney general in regard to.—In all matters wherein the board of health shall invoke the assistance of the courts, the action shall run in the name of the state of Texas; and the attorney general shall assign a special assistant to attend to all legal matters of the board; and, upon demand of the board, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to promptly furnish the necessary assistance to the board to attend to all its legal requirements. [Id. sec. 31.]

Police Power

Health regulations.—Things susceptible to use to the injury of health can be regulated under the police power. Hernandez v. State (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 170.

Art. 4553a. Sanitary code.—The following rules are hereby enacted as the "Sanitary Code for Texas," adopted for the promotion and protection of the public health and for the general amelioration of the sanitary and hygienic condition within this state, for the suppression and prevention of infectious and contagious diseases, and for the proper enforcement of quarantine, isolation and control of such diseases, to wit:

QUARANTINE AND DISINFECTION

Rule 1. Physicians shall report contagious and pestilential diseases and deaths from same.—Every physician in the state of Texas shall report in writing or by an acknowledged telephone communication to the local health authority, immediately after his or her first professional visit, each patient he or she shall have or suspect of suffering with any contagious disease, and if such disease is of a pestilential nature, he shall notify the president of the state board of health at Austin by telegraph, or telephone at state expense, and he or she shall report to the said health authority every death from such disease immediately after it shall have occurred. The attending physician is authorized and it is made his duty to place the patient under restrictions of character described hereinbelow in the case of each and every respective disease.

Rule 2. Local health authority means city or county health officer or local board of health.—For the purpose of these regulations, the phrase “local health authority” shall be held to designate the city or county health officer, or local board of health, within their respective jurisdictions.

Rule 3. “Contagious diseases” shall include Asiatic cholera, etc., and be reported to the president of the state board of health.—The phrase “contagious disease” as used in these regulations shall be held to include the following diseases, whether contagious or infectious; and as such shall be reported to all local health authorities and by said authorities reported in turn to the president of the state board of health: Asiatic cholera, bubonic plague, typhus fever, yellow fever, leprosy, smallpox, scarlet fever (scarlatina), diphtheria (membranous croup), epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis, dengue, typhoid fever, epidemic dysentery, trachoma, tuberculosis and anthrax.

Rule 4. City and county health officers to keep record of contagious diseases.—City and county health authorities shall keep a careful and accurate record of all cases of contagious diseases as reported to them, with the date, name, age, sex, race, location and such other necessary data as may be prescribed by the state board of health. And they shall also make a monthly report of all contagious diseases, of which they may be cognizant, to the president of the state board of health, before the fifth of the following month, upon blank forms provided by the state board of health. The reports on tuberculosis are to be privately kept and are to be considered in the light of a confidential communication, not for the purpose of isolation, but with the object of education in sanitary precautions, and to supply literature of the state board of health.

Rule 5. Rules and regulations as to quarantine and disinfection to be observed by health authorities, etc.—The following rules of instruction for the regulation of quarantine, isolation and disinfection in the several contagious diseases, hereinbefore mentioned, are to be observed by all boards of health, health officers, physicians, school superintendents and trustees, and others. All health authorities of counties, cities, and towns in this state are hereby directed and authorized to establish local quarantine, hold in detention, maintain isolation and practice disinfection as hereinafter provided for, of all (such infected) persons, vehicles or premises which are infected or are suspected of being infected with any of the above named diseases whenever found.

(a) Absolute quarantine includes, first, absolute prohibition of entrance to or exit from the building or conveyance except by officers or attendants authorized by the health authorities, and the placing of guards if necessary to enforce this prohibition; second, the posting of a warning placard stating "contagious disease," in a conspicuous place or places on the outside of the building or conveyance; third, the prohibition of the passing out of any object or material from the quarantined house or conveyance; fourth, provision for conveying the necessaries of life under careful restrictions to those in quarantine.

(b) Modified quarantine includes, first, prohibition of entrance and exit, and in absolute quarantine except against certain members of the family authorized by the health authorities to pass in and out under certain definite restrictions; second, the placing of a placard as before; third, isolation of patient and attendant; forth, prohibition of the carrying out of any object or material unless the same shall have been thoroughly disinfected.

(c) Absolute isolation includes, first, the confinement of the patient and attendants to one apartment or suite of apartments, to which none but authorized officers or attendants shall have admission; second, screening of room and entire house if necessary with not less than 16-mesh wire gauze; third, the prohibition of passing out of the sick room of any object or material until the same has been thoroughly disinfected; fourth, protection of the air of the house by hanging a sheet, kept constantly moist with a disinfectant solution, over the doorway of the patient's room or rooms and reaching from the top of the floor; fifth, if in the opinion of the local health authority the patient can not be treated, with reasonable safety to the public, at home, the removal of the patient and exposures to a contagious disease hospital or pest house.

(d) Modified isolation includes the confinement of the patient and attendants to one room or suite of rooms, to which none but authorized officers or attendants shall have admission, but allowing the attendants to pass out of the room after disinfection of person and complete change of clothing; second, screening as above mentioned; third, the prohibition of passing any object or material out of the sick room until it has been disinfected; fourth, protection of the doorway as before.

(e) Special isolation includes, first, prohibition of patient from attending any place of public assemblage; second, the providing of separate eating utensils for the patient; third, prohibition of sleeping with others or using the same towels or napkins.

(f) By complete disinfection is meant disinfection during illness, under direction of attending physician, of patient's body, of all excretions or discharges of patient and of all articles of clothing and utensils used by patient, and after recovery, death or removal, the disinfection of walls, woodwork, furniture, bedding, etc.

(g) By partial disinfection is meant disinfection of discharges or excretions of patients and their clothing and the room or rooms occupied by the patient during illness.

Rule 6. Disinfection shall be done according to direction of state board of health.—All disinfection prescribed in these regulations shall be a part of the control of the disease, and shall be done according to the direction of the Texas state board of health in its circular on disinfection.

Rule 7. Health authority shall placard all houses where contagious diseases exist.—Upon notice that smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, or other quarantinable disease exists within his jurisdiction, it shall be the duty of the local health authority to have the house in which such disease prevails placarded by placing a yellow flag or card not less than eight inches wide and twelve inches long with the words "contagious disease" and the quarantine regulations printed thereon in a conspicuous place on said house.

Rule 8. Persons forbidden going to or leaving quarantined premises.—After the house is flagged, or placarded, all persons, except the attending physician or health officer, are forbidden from going in or leaving such premises, without the permission of the local health authority, and the carrying off, or causing to be carried off, of any material whereby such disease may be conveyed, is prohibited until after the disease has abated and the premises, dwelling and clothing have been disinfected and cleaned as the local health authority may direct.

Rule 9. Person affected or exposed to contagious diseases shall obey health authority.—It shall be the duty of all persons infected with any contagious disease, or who, from exposure to contagion from such disease, may be liable to endanger others who may come in contact with them to strictly observe such instructions as may be given them by any health authority of the state, in order to prevent the spread of such contagious disease, and it shall be lawful for such health authorities to command any person thus infected or exposed to infection to remain within designated premises for such length of time as such authority may deem necessary.

Rule 10. Persons having certain diseases shall not be allowed on thoroughfares.—All persons having any quarantinable disease are prohibited from riding on any public vehicle or conveyance, and form being upon public thoroughfares or in public assemblages.

Rule 11. Placard shall not be destroyed or removed.—No person, or persons, shall alter, deface, remove, destroy or tear down any card posted by a local health authority. The occupant or person having possession or control of a building upon which a quarantine notice has been placed shall within twenty-four (24) hours after the destruction or removal of such notice by other than the proper health authority, notify the local health authority of such destruction or removal.

Rule 12. Quarantinable pestilential diseases; absolutely quarantined.—In the management and control of the following pestilential diseases: cholera, plague, typhus fever and yellow fever, the house must be placarded, premises placed in absolute quarantine, patient in absolute isolation and a complete disinfection done upon death or recovery taking place.

Rule 13. Quarantinable dangerous contagious diseases; modified quarantine.—In the management and control of leprosy, smallpox, scarlet fever (scarlatina), diphtheria (membranous croup), and dengue, it is required that the house be placarded, premises placed in modified quarantine, patient in modified isolation, and complete disinfection done upon death or recovery.

Rule 14. Non-quarantinable contagious diseases.—The management and control of typhoid fever, cebor-spinal meningitis (epidemic), epidemic dysentery, trachoma (acute catarrhal conjunctivitis), tuberculosis and anthrax require special isolation and partial disinfection.

Rule 15. Quarantinable for school purposes; barred from school twenty-one days.—Persons suffering from measles, whooping cough, mumps, German measles (rubella) and chickenpox, shall be required to be barred from school for twenty-one days (at the discretion of the local health officer) from date of onset of the disease, with such additional time as may be deemed necessary, and may be readmitted on a certificated [certificate] by him attesting to their recovery and non-infectiousness.

Rule 16. Minor diseases to be excluded during illness.—Those actually suffering from tonsillitis, scabies (itch), impetigo contagiosa, favus, shall be excluded from school during such illness and be readmitted on the certificate of the attending physician attesting to their recovery and non-infectiousness.

Rule 17. Above rules not to abrogate other measures.—Provided, that the above requirements shall in no sense be construed as abrogating any additional precautionary measures enforced by local health authorities, but it is expected that additional restrictive measures will be taken, at the discretion of the local health authorities when the necessity arises, more especially in the more densely populated cities and towns, or when violations of quarantine occur.

Rule 18. Health authorities to investigate reported cases.—Whenever a local health authority is informed or has reason to suspect that there is a case of smallpox, scarlet fever, or other reportable disease within the territory over which he has jurisdiction, he shall immediately examine into the facts of the case and shall adopt the quarantine or employ the sanitary measures as herein provided.

Rule 19. Health authority shall see that quarantine and disinfection is carried out.—Within his jurisdiction, each and every local health authority shall see that the quarantining or disinfection of any house, building, car, vessel, or vehicle, or any part thereof and of any articles therein likely to retain infection, is carried out, and that all persons who have been in quarantine, are required to take a disinfecting bath before the same are released. And in the event of the disease having been smallpox, all persons exposed shall be isolated for eighteen days from the time of last exposure unless successfully vaccinated.

Rule 20. Premises occupied by persons with contagious diseases to be disinfected before reoccupied.—No person shall offer for hire or cause or permit any one to occupy apartments previously occupied by a person ill with smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or tuberculosis, or any quarantinable disease, until such apartments shall have been disinfected under the supervision of the local health authority.

Rule 21. On failure to disinfect premises they shall be placarded.—Whenever these rules and regulations, or whenever the order or direction of the local health authority requiring the disinfection of articles, premises or apartments, shall not be complied with, or in case of any delay, said authority shall forthwith cause to be placed upon the door of the apartment or premises a placard as follows: "These apartments have been occupied by a patient suffering with a contagious disease and they may have become infected. They must not be again occupied until my orders directing the renovation and disinfection of same have been complied with. This notice must not be removed, under penalty of the law, except by an authorized health official."

Rule 22. Nurses and midwives shall report redness of eyelids or inflammation to health authority.—Whenever any nurse, midwife or other person not a legally qualified practitioner of medicine shall notice inflammation of the eyes or redness of the lids in a new-born child under his or her care, it shall be the duty of such person to report the same to the local health authority, or in his absence, any reputable physician, within twelve hours of the time the disease is first noticed.

Rule 23. Householders or heads of families to report contagious diseases.—Every hotel proprietor, keeper of a boarding house or inn, and householder or head of a family in a house wherein any case of reportable contagious disease (including tuberculosis) may occur, shall report the same to the local health authority within twelve hours of the time of his or her first knowledge of the nature of such disease, unless previous notice has been given by the physician in attendance; and in cases of quarantinable diseases until instructions are received from the said local health authority shall not permit any clothing or other article which may have been exposed to infection to be removed from the house;
nor shall any occupant of said house change his residence elsewhere without the consent of the said local health authority.

Rule 24. Persons suffering from reportable diseases shall not work where food products are produced.—No person suffering with any reportable disease, or who resides in a house in which there exists a case of smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or typhoid fever, shall work or be permitted in or about any dairy, or any establishment for the manufacture of food products, until the local health authority has given such a person a written certificate to the effect that no danger to the public will result from his or her employment or presence in such establishment.

Rule 25. Health authority shall send attending physician printed matter.—Immediately after being notified of any case of smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria [diptheria], typhoid fever, or tuberculosis, the local health authority shall send to the attending physician, or with his approval directly to the patient the printed matter published by the state board of health relative to the prevention and control of such diseases.

Rule 26. Persons with trachoma or contagious catarrhal conjunctivitis to be excluded from schools.—Persons afflicted with trachoma, granulated lids, or contagious catarrhal conjunctivitis must be excluded from schools, public assemblages, and from close association with other individuals, unless they are under the constant care and strict supervision of a competent physician, and hold a certificate from said physician stating that active inflammation has subsided, said certificate to be countersigned by a local health authority.

Rule 27. Schools temporarily closed and disinfected.—A school house wherein a child suffering from smallpox, scarlet fever or diphtheria has been present, shall be deemed infected and must be temporarily closed and thoroughly disinfected and cleaned under the supervision of the local health authority before the reopening of the school.

Rule 28. School may be reopened after disinfection and vaccination.—In the event of the aforementioned disease being smallpox and in case the board of trustees having passed a regulation requiring a successful vaccination of all teachers and pupils, the school may be reopened immediately after the disinfection and cleaning, and all teachers and pupils who have been successfully vaccinated may return; otherwise the school shall be kept closed eighteen days or until the local health authority directs otherwise.

Rule 29. Health authority to notify superintendents of pupils from infected houses.—The local health authority shall notify the superintendent or principal of any school of the locations of quarantinable diseases, and if the superintendent or principal finds any attendants in such school who live in said houses, he shall deny them admission to the said schools, only admitting them again upon presenting a certificate from the attending physician, countersigned by the local health authority, that there is no longer danger from contagion.

Rule 30. Children with contagious diseases shall not attend school.—No superintendent, principal or teacher of any school, and no parent, master or guardian of any child or minor, having the power and authority to prevent, shall permit any child or minor, having any quarantinable disease, or any child residing in any house in which any such disease exists or has recently existed, to attend any public, private, parochial, church or Sunday school until the requirements of these rules shall have been complied with.

Rule 31. Health authorities to assume control of quarantine in their jurisdiction.—In all incorporated cities and towns the city health authorities shall assume control and management of contagious diseases and exposures and practice quarantine, isolation and disinfection as herein provided. In those portions of all counties in this state, outside of incorporated cities and towns, the county health officer shall assume management and control of contagious diseases and exposures and practice quarantine, isolation and disinfection as herein provided.

Rule 32. These rules not to prevent local rules of quarantine if no conflict.—Nothing contained in these regulations shall be construed to prevent any city, county or town from establishing any quarantine which they may think necessary for the preservation of the health of the same; provided, that the rules and regulations of such quarantine be not inconsistent with the provisions of these regulations and be consistent with and subordinate to said provisions, and the rules and regulations prescribed by the governor and state board of health. It shall be the duty of the local health authority to at once furnish the president of the state board of health with a true copy of any quarantine orders and regulations adopted by said local authorities.

Rule 33. Health authorities may pass through quarantine lines. —All health authorities shall have the privilege and shall be allowed to pass through all quarantine lines, whether instituted at the instance of state or local authorities, they first requesting permission and acquainting the officers or guards in charge with the fact of their being properly authorized health officers, and with the additional statement that they are fully acquainted with the nature of the disease that they are visiting, and further that they will take proper precautions to prevent carrying the infection themselves.

VITAL STATISTICS

Rule 34. Physicians, surgeons, midwives and parents shall report births.—All physicians, surgeons or accoucheurs (midwives) who may attend at the birth of a child, or, in the absence of such attendance, either parent of the child, shall report the fact, together with all statistical data relating thereto, within five days from time of the birth to the city or county registrar as hereinafter provided for.

Rule 35. Undertakers shall report deaths.—Every person acting as undertaker shall file with the proper registrar a certificate of death and all persons furnishing a coffin or box in which to bury the dead shall be deemed undertakers.

Rule 36. City and county “registrar.”—For the purposes of these rules and regulations the phrase “county registrar” shall be held to designate the clerk of the county court, when a birth or death is returnable from a county, outside of incorporated cities or towns; and in all such incorporated cities and towns the term city registrar shall be held to designate the city health officer or other city official, acting as registrar for said city, and all returns of births and deaths accruing [occurring] outside of incorporated cities and towns shall be made to the county registrar of the county in which said births and deaths occur; all returns of births and deaths occurring within any incorporated city or town shall be made to the city registrar of the city or town in which said births and deaths occur, and all returns of deaths where the bodies are buried within any incorporated city or town shall be made to the city registrar.

Rule 37. In incorporated cities and towns, city health officer to act as city registrar, etc.—Each and every incorporated city or town in the state of Texas shall constitute a primary registration district. In such incorporated city or town, the city health officer shall be and shall be known as the city registrar. Each city registrar shall appoint a deputy whose duty it shall be to act in his stead in case of absence, illness or disability, and both city registrar and his deputy shall be subject to all rules and regulations herein mentioned. Provided, that in cities or towns where the city secretary or other city officials are, at the date of promulgation of the sanitary code for Texas, officiating as registrars of births and deaths under local ordinances which require a burial permit, based upon a duly accredited death certificate, before allowing the dead to be buried, such officers shall be continued as city registrars in and for such cities and towns, but shall be subject to the rules and regulations herein contained. That the body of any person whose death occurs in any said registration district shall not be interred, deposited in a vault or tomb, cremated or otherwise disposed of, or removed or transported from said registration district until a permit for burial, removal or other disposition shall have been properly issued by the city registrar of the registration district in which the death or interment occurs. And no such burial or removal permit shall be issued by any registrar until a complete and satisfactory certificate and return of the death has been filed with him as hereinafter provided. Provided, that a transit permit issued in accordance with the law and health regulations of the place where death occurred, whether in Texas or outside of the state, may be accepted by the city registrar of the district where the body is to be interred or otherwise finally disposed of, as a basis upon which he shall issue a local burial permit, in the same way as if the death occurred in his city, but shall plainly enter on the face of the copy of the record which he shall make for return to the state registrar the fact that it was a body shipped in for interment, and give the actual place of death. But when a body is removed from a district in Texas to an adjacent or nearby district for interment, not requiring the use of a common carrier or the issue of a transit permit, then the city registrar's burial permit from the district where death occurred may be accepted as authority for burial. It shall be the duty of the aforementioned city registrar to record in a permanently bound book, which shall be secured from the city for that purpose, all births and deaths which shall occur within their respective cities and towns, together with such statistics and data as shall be furnished him by the birth certificates and death certificates herein elsewhere provided for, and it shall be the duty of said city registrar to transmit all such original birth and death certificates received during the preceding month to the state registrar of vital statistics at Austin on or before the tenth day of the following month.

Rule 38. Form of certificate.—All certificates of births and deaths shall be made in the manner prescribed by the state board of health and in the form of certificate prescribed by the state registrar to the aforementioned registrars.

Rule 39. Undertaker shall fill out certificate and obtain particulars. —In case of death (including stillbirths), in which any undertaker buries the dead or assists at such burial, it shall be the duty of such undertaker to accurately and properly fill out the death certificate as provided by the state registrar, in so far as regards the "personal and statistical particulars," and further, he shall obtain from the physician or coroner the answers to questions under the heading of "medical particulars" of the death certificate; said death certificate to be mailed or handed in by the undertaker to the county registrar within five days after said death occurs; provided, that in case the undertaker can not communicate with the physician or coroner within the five days specified, he shall mail the death certificate to such physician or coroner, as accurately and properly filled out as possible, for such physician or coroner to complete the "medical particulars" of the death certificate, in which event the aforesaid physician or coroner shall make report to the proper registrar.

Rule 40. Physicians shall promptly give medical particulars to undertaker.—It shall be the duty of every physician in the event of a death (including stillbirths) occurring in any case at which said physician is the last in attendance, to promptly and accurately fill out the questions in the "medical particulars" of the death certificate when the death certificate is presented by the undertaker.

Rule 41. Physician last in attendance shall report rural deaths.—In the event of a death occurring in the rural districts of the state and no undertaker being in attendance or responsible for the report of the death, the physician last in attendance or the coroner, in the event of his being called in, shall accurately and completely fill out the certificate of death and transmit it to the county registrar.

Rule 42. Coroner shall give information, also head of house.—In case of death (including stillbirths) where a coroner shall hold an inquest to ascertain the cause of death, the said coroner shall answer the questions (medical particulars) as in rule 39 to be answered by the attending physician, and answer them in as full and complete manner as the information from such coroner's inquest will permit; and when a person dies without medical attendance and does not require the attendance of a coroner, the head of the household where such death occurs, or the next of kin, shall immediately notify the local health authority who shall, after proper investigation, and, if deemed necessary by him, after an autopsy to determine the cause of death, issue a certificate of death.

Rule 43. Superintendents of hospitals to give information.—If the deceased died in a hospital or other institution, the person acting as undertaker shall present the certificate to the superintendent or head of such institution for the special information indicated on the blank for such cases. The undertaker shall then fill in the other information above required and transmit the complete certificate to the proper registrar.

Rule 44. Undertakers shall report physicians for neglect of giving information.—In the event of the neglect or refusal of the physician, coroner, superintendent or person in charge of any hospital or other institution to promptly and accurately fill out the death certificate as above required, and sign it, when so requested by an undertaker, the same shall be immediately reported by the undertaker to the state registrar for the purpose of prosecution.

Rule 45. Stillborn or those dead births of seven months gestation to be reported.—All stillborn children (those dead at birth after seven months gestation) shall be registered as births and also as deaths, and a certificate of both the birth and the death shall be filed with the proper registrar, in the usual form and manner, the certificate of birth to contain in place of the name of the child, the word "stillborn." The "medical particulars" of the death certificate shall be signed by the attending physician, if any, or midwife, and shall state the cause of death as "stillborn," with the cause of the stillbirth, if known, whether a premature birth, and, if born prematurely, the period of uterine gestation, in months, if known.

Rule 46. Clerks shall record all statistical data.—The clerk of the county court in every county in the state of Texas shall record all statistical data relating to such births and deaths as are reported to him from his county outside incorporated cities and towns in a permanently bound book which he shall secure and keep for that purpose, in form as supplied by the state registrar, and shall transmit the original certificates to the state registrar by the tenth of each month following the month in which they are received.

Rule 47. Sextons shall keep record.—All sextons or superintendents of cemeteries are required to file all burial permits received and to record in a permanently bound book, the names of all persons interred, date of interment, place of burial, number of the grave or section of cemetery where buried and name of undertaker; and shall before the tenth of the following month make a report to the state Registrar of all deceased persons deposited in their respective cemeteries during the preceding month.
Rule 48. State registrar shall supply blanks, etc.—The state registrar shall prepare, print and supply to all city and county registrars all blanks and forms used in reporting births and deaths or in otherwise carrying out the purposes of this regulation, and each county shall print and supply their county registrar and each city council supply their city registrar with a permanently bound book, in form prepared by the state registrar for recording all statistical data relating to births and deaths in their respective jurisdictions; and the state registrar shall prepare and issue such detailed instructions as may be required to secure the uniform observance of its provisions and the maintenance of a perfect system of registration. He shall carefully examine all certificates received and if any such are incomplete or unsatisfactory he shall require such further information to be furnished as may be necessary to make the record complete and satisfactory. And all physicians, midwives, informants or undertakers connected with any case, and all other persons having knowledge of the facts, are hereby required to furnish such information as they may possess regarding any birth or death upon demand of the state registrar, in person, by mail, or through the county or city registrar. He shall further arrange, bind and permanently preserve the certificates in a systematic manner.

Rule 49. City and county registrars shall furnish blanks to those required to report.—It shall be the duty of the city and county registrars to supply blank forms of certificate and such instructions as are applied to them by the state registrar to all in their respective jurisdictions who are required to make reports under these regulations.

Rule 50. City and county registrars examine all certificates of birth and death.—Each city and county registrar shall carefully examine each certificate of birth or death when received, and if any such are incomplete or unsatisfactory, he shall require such further information to be furnished as may be necessary to make the record complete and satisfactory. He shall number consecutively the certificates of birth and death, in two separate series, beginning with the "number one" for the first birth and first death in each calendar year.

DEPOTS, RAILWAY COACHES AND SLEEPING CARS

Rule 51. Contagious diseases barred from public vehicles.—No person known to be suffering from any contagious disease such as smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles or whooping cough shall be allowed to enter or ride in any day coach, sleeping car, interurban car or street car, and when any such person is discovered to be in any car as mentioned above, it shall be the duty of the conductor or other individual in charge of said car to notify the nearest or most accessible county or city health officer and the latter shall remove and isolate said patient as is proper in such case or circumstance.

Rule 52. Depots, etc., to be ventilated and heated.—Each depot, railway coach, sleeping car, interurban car and street car while in use for the accommodation of the public shall be properly ventilated, and, if necessary, heated, and a sufficient amount of heat shall be furnished in time of need so that fresh air can be supplied without causing it to become unduly or uncomfortably cold; and the janitor, conductor, caretaker or other person in charge shall see to it that the air is replenished with fresh air from time to time as needed to prevent the same from becoming foul, unsanitary or oppressive.

Rule 53. Cuspidors to be provided, disinfected, etc.—Cuspidors must be provided in adequate numbers in all waiting rooms of depots and railway stations; each day coach shall be provided with one cuspidor for each seat or every two chairs, and two in each smoking apartment; except that in each parlor car there may be as few as one cuspidor to every three seats and two cuspidors used in the smoking apartment; in each sleeping car shall be placed one cuspidor to each section and three cuspidors in the smoking apartment, one of which cuspidors, in the absence of a dental lavatory, shall be of an unusually large size and placed near the wash basin for use in washing the teeth; each aforementioned cuspidor shall contain not less than one-third of a pint of an approved disinfectant solution, and the cuspidor shall be emptied, washed in a similar solution and replenished each trip or every twenty-four hours.

Rule 54. Dry cleaning prohibited.—Dry dusting and dry sweeping is prohibited at all times in waiting rooms of depots and railway stations, or in railway coaches, sleeping cars, interurban cars and street cars.

Rule 55. Coaches to be cleaned after each trip; how cleaned.—Railway day coaches shall be thoroughly cleaned at the end of each trip, and in no instance shall the day coach go uncleaned longer than two days when such coach is in use; the thorough cleaning of day coaches shall consist as follows:

(a) Windows and doors shall be first opened and the aisle-strip, if there be any, removed, and, when possible, thoroughly sunned.

(b) All upholstery shall be dusted and brushed, using the vacuum process cleaning apparatus whenever possible.

(c) Floor mopped or swept, after it has been sprinkled with an approved disinfectant solution, or preferably cleaned by sprinkling with sawdust moistened with said approved disinfectant and sweeping. After cleaning, as described, the floor must be scrubbed with soap and water to which may be added the same disinfectant solution.

(d) Closet floors, urinals, toilet bowls, and walls must be cleaned by washing, scouring and wiping with an approved disinfectant solution, to which soda ash or other cleansing agent may be added.

(e) All arms of seats and window ledges must be wiped free of dust with a damp cloth (preferably one wet with disinfectant solution).

(f) Provided, that where the vacuum cleaning apparatus is installed and coaches are thoroughly cleaned with this method daily, the aforementioned method of brushing, cleaning and scrubbing may be used as seldom as once in each period of seven days.

Rule 56. Railway stations to be cleaned.—The sanitary method of cleaning as prescribed in the foregoing rule must be followed in the sanitation of waiting rooms of depots and railway stations once in every twenty-four hours.

Rule 57. Dining cars, etc., to be thoroughly cleaned.—Parlor, buffet and dining cars must be cleaned at cleaning terminals, as set forth in rule 55 of this chapter. Carpets and draperies to be removed, dusted, sunned and aired. Food boxes, refrigerators, closets, drawers, and cupboards to be cleaned, scalded and treated with a solution containing 2 per cent formaldehyde, or other approved disinfectant.

Rule 58. Interurban and street cars to be washed, disinfected, etc.—Interurban cars and street cars must be washed with a hose and scrubbed thoroughly once every twenty-four hours, and must be disinfected with formaldehyde gas under the supervision of the local health authority immediately after any case of contagious disease has been discovered therein.

Rule 59. Sleeping cars to be cleaned; disinfected.—All sleeping cars shall be cleaned at cleaning terminals according to the methods set forth in rule 55 above, at least twice during a period of every seven days; shall be disinfected with formaldehyde gas at least twice during a period of seven days; upon routes designated by the president of the state board of health, all sleeping cars shall be disinfected as seldom as once during a period of seven days. In addition to the foregoing, all sleeping cars shall be disinfected immediately after any case of contagious or in-fecious disease is discovered therein. All blankets used in sleeping cars must be thoroughly sterilized and washed at intervals of not more than ninety days.

Rule 60. Record of disinfection to be kept and signed.—On each passenger car operated in the state of Texas a disinfection record must be kept and preserved, and on same the following records are to be entered and kept, viz:
1. Place and date of each disinfection.
2. Length of time devoted to each such thorough disinfection.
3. Each item in said record shall be inserted immediately after each act recorded, and the signature of the person or persons doing said cleaning or disinfection must appear beneath the said records.

Rule 61. Water coolers to be provided; manner of cleaning.—
All depots, railway coaches, sleeping cars, or interurban cars must be provided with a water cooler for the use of patrons and the traveling public; such water cooler must be so constructed as to be easily removed for the purpose of cleaning; must be emptied, rinsed and cleaned, and must be scalded and sunned when possible once in each period of twenty-four hours, and must be filled with good and wholesome drinking water when in service. Ice for use in water coolers must not be dumped on floors, sidewalks or car platforms. It must be washed and must be handled with ice-tongs.

Rule 62. Expectorating on floors prohibited.—Expectorating on the floor or walls or furniture of any waiting room in any depot, on any depot platform, in any railway coach, sleeping car, interurban car, or street car in this state, is prohibited. Placards calling attention of passengers and employés shall be hung in a conspicuous place in each of the aforementioned rooms and cars.

Rule 63. Expectorating in basins prohibited.—Brushing of teeth or expectorating in basins used for lavatory purposes is prohibited, and placards calling attention of passengers and employés shall be hung in a conspicuous place in the dressing room of passenger coaches.

Rule 64. Separate compartments for negro porters.—Sleeping car companies shall provide compartments and bedding for their negro porters separate from those provided for their white passengers.

Rule 65. Negro porters prohibited from sleeping in.—Negro porters shall not sleep in sleeping car berths nor use bedding intended for white passengers.

Rule 66. Certain floor covering prohibited.—No waiting room in any depot or railway station shall be floored in part or entirely with burlap, cocoa matting, or sacking cloth.

Rule 67. Water closets to be provided.—All depots and railway station shall provide adequate urinals and water closets for patrons and the traveling public; must keep them in proper sanitary condition, and if within five hundred feet of any public sewer, must make permanent sanitary connection with same. Any privy or box closet furnished by any such railway company shall be protected from flies by screening or other effective method, including hinged lids or other device for covering the opening in the seats of said closets. Such privies and closets as are not in connection with a sanitary sewer shall be provided with a watertight box, or other receptacle underneath, and when full or at any time when its condition shall create a nuisance or become unsanitary, and in no instance shall such box-closet go longer than one month before it must be emptied and disinfected with 5 per cent carbolic acid solution or other approved disinfectant solution.

Rule 68. Railway premises shall be drained.—The premises of all depots and railway stations shall be thoroughly drained, so that no stagnant water will collect on said premises.
Rule 69. All cisterns, etc., shall be screened.—All cisterns, fire water barrels, or other water containers upon the premises of any depot or railway station shall be screened with not less than 16-mesh wire gauze.

GOVERNING THE PREPARATION FOR TRANSPORTATION OF DEAD BODIES

Rule 70. Bodies dead of pestilential diseases.—No body of any person dead of Asiatic cholera, bubonic plague, typhus fever or small-pox shall be transported except in a hearse or undertaker’s wagon unless said body shall have been cremated.

Rule 71. Bodies dead of dangerous contagious diseases.—The bodies of those who have died of diphtheria (membranous croup), scarlet fever (scarlatina, scarlet rash), glanders, anthrax or leprosy, shall not be accepted for transportation unless prepared for shipment by being thoroughly disinfected by (a) arterial and cavity injection with an approved disinfectant fluid, (b) disinfecting and stopping all orifices with absorbent cotton, and (c) washing the body with the disinfectant, all of which must be done by a licensed embalmer, holding a certificate as such. After being disinfected as above, such body shall be encased in an air-tight zinc, tin, copper or lead-lined coffin, or iron casket, all joints and seams hermetically soldered, and all enclosed in a strong, tight wooden box. Or, the body being prepared for shipment by disinfecting as above, may be placed in a strong coffin or casket, and said coffin or casket enclosed in an air-tight copper or tin case, all joints and seams hermetically soldered and all enclosed in a strong outside wooden box.

Rule 72. Bodies dead of non-quarantinable contagious diseases.—The bodies of those dead of typhoid fever, puerperal fever, erysipelas, tuberculosis and measles, or other dangerous communicable disease, other than those specified in rules 70 and 71, may be received for transportation when prepared for shipment by filling cavities with an approved disinfectant, washing the exterior of the body with the same, and stopping all orifices with absorbent cotton and encased in an air-tight coffin or casket; provided, that this shall apply only to bodies which can reach their destination within forty-eight hours from time of death. In all other cases such bodies shall be prepared for transportation in conformity with rule 71. But when the body has been prepared for shipment by being thoroughly disinfected by an embalmer holding a certificate, as in rule 71, the air-tight sealing may be dispensed with.

Rule 73. Bodies dead of other diseases.—The bodies of those dead of diseases that are not contagious, infectious or communicable may be received for transportation when encased in a sound coffin or casket and enclosed in a strong outside box; provided, they reach their destination within thirty hours from time of death. If the body can not reach its destination within thirty hours from time of death, it must be prepared for shipment by filling cavities with an approved disinfectant, washing the exterior of the body with the same, and stopping all orifices with absorbent cotton, and encased in an air-tight coffin or casket. But when the body has been prepared for shipment by being thoroughly disinfected by a licensed embalmer as in rule 71, the air-tight sealing may be dispensed with.

Rule 74. Persons accompanying bodies dead of contagious diseases.—In cases of contagious or infectious diseases, the body must not be accompanied by persons or articles which have been exposed to the infection of the disease, unless certified by the health officer as having been properly disinfected; and before selling passage tickets, agents shall carefully examine the transit permit and note the name of the passenger in charge, and of any other proposing to accompany the body.
and see that all necessary precautions have been taken to prevent the spread of disease. The transit permit in such cases shall specifically state who is authorized by the health authorities to accompany the remains. In all cases where bodies are forwarded under rule 71, notice must be sent by telegraph to health officer at destination, advising the date and train on which the body may be expected. This notice must be sent by or in the name of the health officer at the initial point, and is to enable the health officer at destination to take all necessary precautions at that point.

Rule 75. Bodies not shipped by express.—Every dead body not shipped by express must be accompanied by a person in charge, who must be provided with a passage ticket and also present a full first-class ticket marked "corpse" for the transportation of the body, and a transit permit showing physician's or coroner's certificate, name of deceased, date and hour of death, age, place of death, cause of death, and if of a contagious or infectious disease, the point to which the body is to be shipped, and when death is caused by any of the diseases specified in rule 71, the names of those authorized by the health authorities to accompany the body. The transit permit must be made in duplicate, and the signatures of the physician or coroner, health officer and undertaker must be on both the original and duplicate copies. The undertaker's certificate and paster of the original shall be detached from the transit permit and pasted on the end of the coffin box. The physician's certificate and transit permit shall be handed to the passenger in charge of the corpse. The whole duplicate copy shall be sent to the official in charge of the baggage department of the initial line and by him to the secretary of the state board of health at Austin.

Rule 76. Bodies shipped by express.—When dead bodies are shipped by express, the whole original transit permit shall be pasted upon the outside box, and the duplicate forwarded by the express agent to the secretary of the state board of health at Austin.

Rule 77. Disinterred bodies treated as contagious.—Every disinterred body, dead from any disease or cause, shall be treated as contagious or dangerous to the public health and shall not be accepted for transportation unless said removal has been approved by the state or local health authorities having jurisdiction where such body is disinterred, and the consent of the health authorities of the locality to which the corpse is consigned has first been obtained; and all such disinterred remains shall be enclosed in a hermetically sealed (soldered) zinc, tin or copper-lined coffin or box. Bodies deposited in receiving vaults shall be treated and considered the same as buried bodies.

Rule 78. Transfer of dead bodies in transit.—When it may become necessary to transfer dead bodies in transit from one railway train to another, or from one station to another, or from a station to a ferry, the affidavit of the undertaker and permit of the local health officer accompanying the remains shall be in all cases sufficient authority for such transfer.

Rule 79. Certificate furnished by undertaker.—No common carrier shall accept for transportation any body unless a certificate is furnished by the undertaker preparing such body for shipment to the effect that the foregoing rules have been complied with in the preparation for transportation of said body.

Any person who shall violate any of the rules, regulations or provisions of the sanitary code of Texas, as herein set forth, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than ten dollars and not more than one thousand dollars.

Provided, this Act shall not be construed to repeal any of the laws of this state now in force affecting the public health, which are not

CHAPTER THREE POLLUTION OF WATERS

Art. 4553b. Polluting certain waters unlawful; penalty for violation, etc.

Art. 4553c. Enjoining pollution; penalty for violation of injunction, etc.

Art. 4553d. Certain cities, towns, persons, etc., to have three years to make arrangements for sewera ge.

Art. 4553e. State board of health to enforce; inspector, how appointed; duties.

Article 4553b. Polluting certain waters unlawful; penalty for violation, etc.—That it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, private or municipal, to pollute any water course or other public body of water, from which water is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes, in the state of Texas, by the discharge, directly or indirectly, of any sewage or unclean water or un clean or polluting matter or thing therein, or in such proximity thereto as that it will probably reach and pollute the waters of such water course or other public body of water from which water is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes. A violation of this provision shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars and not more than one thousand dollars. When the offense shall have been committed by a firm, partnership or association, each member thereof who has knowledge of the commission of such offense, shall be held guilty. When committed by a private corporation, the officers and members of the board of directors, having knowledge of the commission of such offense, shall each be deemed guilty; and when by a municipal corporation, the mayor and each member of the board of aldermen or commission, having knowledge of the commission of such offense, as the case may be, shall be held guilty, as representatives of the municipality; and each person so indicated, as above, shall be subject to the punishment provided hereinabove. Provided, however, that the payment of the fine by one of the persons so named shall be a satisfaction of the penalty as against his associates for the offenses for which he may have been convicted. Provided, the provisions of this Act shall not apply to any place or premises located without the limits of an incorporated town or city, nor to manufacturing plants whose effluents contain no organic matter that will putrefy, or any poisonous compounds, or any bacteria dangerous to public health or destructive of the fish life of streams or other public bodies of water. [Acts 1913, p. 90, sec. 1.]

Art. 4553c. Enjoining pollution; penalty for violation of injunction, etc.—Upon the conviction of any person under section 1 of this Act [Art. 4553b], it shall be the duty of the court, or judge of the court, in which such conviction is had, to issue a writ of injunction, enjoining and restraining the person or persons or corporation responsible for such pollution from a further continuance of such pollution; and for a violation of such injunction, the said court and the judge thereof shall have the power of fine and imprisonment, as for contempt of court, within the limits prescribed by law in other cases; provided, that this remedy by injunction and punishment for violation thereof shall be cumulative of the penalty fixed by section 1 of this Act; and the assessment of a fine for contempt shall be no bar to a prosecution under section 1; neither shall a conviction and payment of fine under section 1, be a bar to contempt proceedings under this section. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 4553d. Certain cities, towns, persons, etc., to have three years to make arrangements for sewerage.—Any city or town of this state, with a population of more than fifty thousand inhabitants, which has already an established sewerage system dependent upon any water course or other public body of water, from which water is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes, or which discharges into any water course or other public body of water, from which is taken for the use of farm live stock and for drinking and domestic purposes shall have three years from and after the taking effect of this Act within which to make other provisions for such sewage. Cities and towns of less population than fifty thousand inhabitants shall have three years within which to make other arrangements for the disposal of such sewage. Any person, firm or corporation, private or municipal, coming under or affected by the terms of this bill or any independent contractor having the disposal of the sewage of any city or town, shall have three years within which to make other arrangements for the disposal of such sewage, or other matter which may pollute the water, as defined in this bill. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4553e. State board of health to enforce; inspector, how appointed; duties.—The Texas state board of health is authorized, and it is hereby made its duty, to enforce the provisions of this Act; and to this end, the governor shall appoint, by and with the consent of the senate, an inspector, to act under the direction of the said board of health and the state health officer, making such investigations, inspections and reports, and performing such other duties in respect to the enforcement of this Act as the said board of health and the state health officer may require. [Id. sec. 4.]

CHAPTER FOUR
CHARBON DISTRICTS

Art. 4553f. Charbon districts.—That all of that portion of the state of Texas in which charbon or anthrax has heretofore been prevalent or any district of the state of Texas in which charbon or anthrax may become prevalent, shall be known as charbon districts and shall be subject to the provisions hereof. [Acts 1913, p. 147, sec. 2 (10a).]

Art. 4553g. Cases of animals suffering from charbon or anthrax to be reported; failure to report misdemeanor.—That each person residing in a district where charbon or anthrax is prevalent or where the same is supposed to be prevalent shall report in writing to the county health officer, who in turn shall report in writing to the president of the state board of health at Austin, all cases where an animal or animals are suffering with charbon or anthrax or supposed to have such disease, and each physician practicing in the state of Texas shall report in writing to the president of the state board of health all persons suffering from charbon or anthrax or supposed to be suffering from same and in case of failure to do so any person so failing shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $10.00 nor more than $25.00 and each case of which no report is made shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. (10b).]

Art. 4553h. State board of health to employ bacteriologist; duties; salary; appropriation.—That the state board of health shall employ a bacteriologist at a salary of not more than $300.00 per month and during the time that charbon or anthrax is prevalent he shall make an examination and analysis and a scientific research for the purpose of combating with said disease and said bacteriologist may be kept in the district affected by charbon as many months each as the state board of health deems necessary and for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act the sum of four thousand ($4000.00) dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue not otherwise appropriated which shall be paid out on warrant drawn by the president of the state board of health and attested by the secretary of said board. [Id. (10c).]

Art. 4553i. Duties of board; isolation of stock.—That the state board of health acting through one of the members or through the local health officer in the county where charbon is reported to be prevalent shall in person or through some one employed by them, visit all stock reported to have charbon or anthrax and see that proper steps be taken for the isolation of same from other stock and also isolate other stock which have been exposed to said disease and so keep same isolated for such a period as it may deem necessary. [Id. (10d).]

Art. 4553j. Carcasses to be destroyed; failure misdemeanor.—That carcasses of stock which have died from charbon or anthrax shall be destroyed by burning by the owner or person in charge within 24 hours after death and any owner or person having charge of said animals who should fail to destroy said carcasses as herein provided shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $25.00 nor more than $100.00 and each 24 hours after the first 24 hours that said carcass is permitted to remain undestroyed shall be considered a separate offense. [Id. (10e).]

Art. 4553k. Powers and duties of county health officer; isolation or quarantine proclamation; penalty for failure to obey.—The county health officer shall be the exclusive judge of the necessity of isolation or quarantine of all animals infected therewith and when in the judgment of said county health officer there exists a necessity thereof [therefor] said county health officer shall issue a proclamation directing that all animals of certain classes which he may specify in the infected district, in either the entire county or any political subdivision thereof, shall be placed and kept in an enclosure by the owners or keeper thereof, and any owner, or keeper of such animals for the owners, who shall fail or refuse to obey the requirement of such proclamation shall be fined in any sum not less than $10.00 nor more than $50.00 and where any owner or keeper for the owner shall have more than ten animals subject to the quarantine regulations herein provided the fine shall be doubled and each day that any owner or keeper for such owner shall fail to comply with the proclamation of said county health officer, shall constitute a separate offense and such quarantine shall continue and be in effect as long as in the judgment of such county health officer it may be necessary to prevent the spread of charbon or anthrax. [Id. (10f).]

Art. 4553l. Proclamation, when sufficient.—The proclamation of the county health officer provided for in section 10f of this Act [Art. 4553k] shall be sufficient, if it name the kinds or classes of stock to which it shall apply and it shall be published in some newspaper published in the county if there be one; and if there be no newspaper it shall be posted in three public places in said county one of which shall be at the court house door of such county if the proclamation pertains to the whole
Art. 4553m. May prohibit running at large of animals; submission to voters; ballots, etc.; commissioners' court to issue proclamation when vote in favor of prohibiting.—In all counties now affected with charbon or anthrax, or which may hereafter become affected, the qualified voters of such county or any political subdivision thereof may, in the manner hereinafter provided, prohibit the running at large of cattle, horses, sheep, goats and hogs or any of such animals within such county or subdivision thereof; provided that, upon the petition of ten per cent of the qualified voters of such county or subdivision, thereof presented to the commissioners' court of such county in open session, requesting such court to order an election to be held in such county or political subdivision thereof said petition to state the territory within which an election is requested and the kinds of animals to be affected and also for what portions of the year it is desired to prohibit such stock from running at large, or whether the entire year, it shall be the duty of said commissioners' court to order such election to be held within such territory as may be petitioned for, naming the kinds of animals to be affected thereby and as designated in the order for such election; and such commissioners' court shall also designate in said order of election the time within which such stock is to be prohibited from running at large, whether for the entire year or for portions thereof; which the said court is hereby authorized to do in accordance with the petition therefor. Such commissioners' court is hereby authorized and it is made its duty to provide for the holding of such elections and compensation of officers thereof, provided that the expense of such election shall be borne by the county wherein such election is ordered and held; and provided further that in any such election so to be held the ballots shall read as follows:

"For the Running at Large of Domestic Animals," and "Against the Running at Large of Domestic Animals."

Returns of such election shall be made by the presiding officers of the precinct or precincts of the county where such election is held, to the county judge of such county, whose duty it shall be to forthwith call the commissioners' court together for the purpose of canvassing the returns; and if it shall be found by the commissioners' court, upon a canvass of such returns, that a majority of the qualified voters of the county or subdivision thereof wherein such election was held, is in favor of prohibiting the running at large of such domestic animals as hereinbefore named, then it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such county to forthwith declare the result of said election and give public notice thereof by proclamation of such court to be issued and posted within three public places of the county or subdivision thereof in which such election has been held. [Id. (10h).]

Art. 4553n. Permitting animals to run at large after proclamation unlawful; penalty, etc.—From and after the issuance and posting of the proclamation hereinabove provided for, it shall be unlawful for any owner or keeper of such animals hereinabove designated or any of them to permit such animals as have been voted upon to run at large within such county or subdivision thereof at any time within which the same has been prohibited; and in case of failure or refusal of any owner or keeper of such stock or any of them to comply with such proclamation he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined in any sum not less than five dollars ($5.00) nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00) and each day that any owner or keeper for such owner shall fail to comply with the law as herein provided for, shall constitute a separate offense.
The venue of such prosecution shall lie in the counties where the offense is committed. [Id. (10i).]

Art. 4553c. Laws repealed and unrepealed.—This Act shall not be construed to repeal the laws of this state now in force affecting the public health, which is not clearly in conflict herewith but shall be construed to be cumulative to the said law but all laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. (10j).]

CHAPTER FIVE
SPECIAL QUARANTINE REGULATIONS

Art. 4554. Governor may issue proclamation, when.—The governor is empowered to issue his proclamation declaring quarantine on the coast, or elsewhere within this state, whenever in his judgment quarantine may become necessary; and such quarantine may continue for any length of time as in the judgment of the governor the safety and security of the people may require. [Acts 1891, p. 188.]

Notice of proclamation.—The governor is empowered to quarantine against any point when he has reason to believe that there is danger from yellow fever or other contagious or infectious disease, and when he issues his quarantine proclamation every citizen is charged with knowledge of it, and if a buyer orders goods at a time when the customary route of shipment is quarantined, he is in no position to claim damages for a deviation in the shipment from the accustomed route. Mobile Fruit & Trading Co. v. Boero (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 361.

Art. 4555. May issue proclamation, when.—Whenever the governor has reason to believe that the state of Texas is threatened at any point or place on the coast, border or elsewhere within the state with the introduction or dissemination of yellow fever contagion, or any other infectious and contagious disease that can and should, in the opinion of the Texas state board of health, be guarded against by state quarantine, he shall, by proclamation, immediately declare said quarantine against any and all such places, and direct the Texas state board of health to promptly establish and enforce the restrictions and conditions imposed and indicated by said quarantine proclamation; and when from any cause the governor can not act, and the exigencies of the threatened danger require immediate action, the Texas state board of health is empowered to declare quarantine as prescribed in this article, and maintain the same until the governor shall officially take such action as he may see proper. [Acts 1891, p. 188, sec. 4.]

Art. 4556. Local quarantine.—The law in regard to local quarantine by the inhabitants of any point or points on the coast or elsewhere in the state shall remain in full force when in conformity with this title; provided, that in all differences and disputes between any such points, contiguous or remote, within this state, such differences and disputes shall be immediately by the local health authorities, if any, and if none, by the inhabitants themselves, reported and submitted to the governor; and, on the receipt of such report, he shall forthwith order the state health officer to such points with instructions to investigate the same and report the exact condition of things, and upon investigation of such report shall issue his proclamation declaring the determination of the issue, and by said proclamation the aforesaid differences shall be governed and determined. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4557. [4328] Local to be subordinated to state authorities.—
Whenever quarantine is declared by the governor or by any county or corporate authorities in the state, it shall be the duty of such authorities to establish a quarantine station or stations where any person may be detained for such length of time as, in the discretion of the quarantine officers, the public safety may demand; provided, that all county and municipal quarantine shall be subordinate, subject to and regulated by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the governor or Texas state board of health. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4558. [4329] Shelter, etc., to be furnished by health officer to persons detained.—It shall be the duty of the Texas state board of health to furnish persons detained by them with necessary shelter and subsistence (not including crews of vessels, except such as are removed by the quarantine officers from infected vessels), and to provide all other things essential for the protection and comfort of those held in quarantine, and all such expenses authorized by the Texas state board of health and approved by the governor shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4559. [4330] Expenses, etc.—All the costs and expenses of enforcing and maintaining the general quarantine, or such as are ordered by the governor or Texas state board of health shall be paid out of the fund appropriated for quarantine purposes. All quarantine officers appointed by the governor shall be selected and commissioned by the governor of the state, and shall be paid by the state, and all health authorities of the state, or of any county or city thereof, shall obey the rules and regulations prescribed by the governor or Texas state board of health. The regular officers in charge of regular established quarantine stations on the coast shall be allowed one hundred and fifty dollars per month while on duty at their respective stations; provided, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to the port of Galveston; and provided, that the officer in charge of said station shall receive two hundred dollars per month. Temporary officers, or those commissioned by the governor to guard against threatened epidemics, and those stationed at railway crossings on the Rio Grande shall receive one hundred and fifty dollars per month while on duty, and such other pay for extra expenses actually incurred as may be deemed just by the governor and Texas state board of health. All quarantine officers, whether of towns, cities, counties or state, shall be authorized to administer oaths to any person or persons suspected of violating any quarantine regulations; and any person or persons swearing falsely shall be punished according to the provisions of the Penal Code. [Acts 1895, p. 142.]

Art. 4560. [4331] Stations to be provided.—It is hereby made the duty of any county, town or city authority upon the coast or elsewhere in Texas, at as early a day as practicable after the promulgation of the governor’s proclamation declaring quarantine, to provide suitable stations where they are not now provided, at sufficient distance from the usual places of landing of vessels, or the depots of railroads coming into their respective counties, towns or cities, and to select, appoint and employ a competent physician as health officer, subject to the approval of the governor, at such stations, and to furnish said officer with such guards, employés and other things as may be necessary to render such quarantine effective; and said county, town or city authorities may provided for the establishment and maintenance of quarantine, subordinate, subject to, and regulated by, such rules and regulations as the governor and Texas state board of health may prescribe. [Acts 1883, p. 17.]

Art. 4561. [4332] Governor may appoint local health officer, when. —Whenever, on the coast of Texas or elsewhere in this state, the authorities of any county, town or city fail, refuse or neglect to establish quarantine as provided in the preceding article, then and in that event the governor shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to appoint a health officer and to prescribe such regulations for the government of the same as he may deem necessary. [Acts 1891, p. 186.]

Art. 4562. [4333] Incoming vessels to be stopped.—It shall be the duty of all health officers and all quarantine authorities to stop each and every vessel from any infected port or district, notwithstanding the said vessel may have a clean bill of health, if deemed necessary, (and such health officers or quarantine authorities shall have power so to do) to take the affidavit of the master of said vessel as to the health of himself and crew from the time of sailing from said infected port or district; and such officers and authorities shall detain said vessel at quarantine for such length of time as may be prescribed by the governor and Texas state board of health in their rules and regulations governing quarantine; and all such officers and authorities may use force if necessary in order to discharge the duties imposed upon them by the provisions of this title and the rules and regulations of the governor and Texas state board of health. [Acts 1883, p. 17.]

Art. 4563. [4334] Vessels from infected ports.—Any vessel arriving at any of the quarantine stations of this state, designated by the proper authorities, from any infected port or district, without a clean bill of health from the proper officers from said port or district, shall be taken possession of by the health officer or other quarantine authority at the station at which said vessel arrives, and be held by the same until all fines that may have been assessed against the master of said vessel for a violation of the quarantine laws, rules and regulations have been paid, or until said vessel shall have been releived in accordance with law. [Acts 1891, p. 188, sec. 12.]

Art. 4564. [4335] Payment of fine, etc.—The payment of the fine which may be assessed against the master of such vessel shall not operate as a release or discharge of the vessel from quarantine, but the same rules shall apply as in case of other vessels placed in quarantine. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4565. [4336] Expenses to be itemized.—It shall be the duty of the county, town or city authorities aforesaid, as soon as quarantine ceases to exist, to forward to the comptroller of the state an itemized account of all receipts and expenditures made by them, and when approved by the governor and Texas state board of health, said comptroller shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer for the payment of any balance that may be due said authorities, or either of them, and pay into the treasury any excess of receipts over expenditures as a credit to the quarantine fund. [Acts 1883, p. 18.]

Art. 4566. [4337] Corporate authorities may establish quarantine, when.—Nothing contained in this title shall be construed to prevent any town, city or county from establishing any quarantine which they may think necessary for the preservation of the health of the same; provided, that the rules and regulations of such quarantine be not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, and be consistent with, and subordinate to, said provisions and the rules and regulations prescribed by the governor and Texas state board of health. [Id.]

Art. 4567. [4338] Municipal authorities may cooperate, how.—The municipal authorities of towns and cities, and commissioners' courts of the counties wherein such towns and cities are situated, may co-operate with each other in making such improvements connected with said towns, cities and counties as may be deemed by said authorities and courts necessary to improve the public health and to promote efficient sanitary regulations; and, by mutual agreement, they may provide for the construction of said improvements and the payment therefor. [Acts 1879, S. S. p. 9.]

Art. 4568. [4340] Commissioners' court may direct county physician to declare quarantine, when.—Whenever the commissioners' court of any county has reason to believe that they are threatened at any point or place within or without the county limits with the introduction or dissemination of a dangerous, contagious or infectious disease that can and shall be guarded against by quarantine, they may direct their county health officer to declare and maintain said quarantine against any and all such dangerous diseases; to establish, maintain and supply stations or camps for those held in quarantine; to provide hospitals, tents or pest houses for those sick of contagious and infectious disease; to furnish provisions, medicine and all other things absolutely essential for the comfort of the well and the convalescence of the sick. The county physician shall keep an itemized account of all lawful expenses incurred by local quarantine, and his county shall assume and pay them as other claims against the county are paid. Chartered cities and towns are embraced within the purview of this article, and the mere fact of incorporation does not exclude them from the protection against epidemic diseases given by the commissioners' court to other parts of their respective counties. The medical officers of chartered cities and towns can perform the duties granted or commanded in their several charters, but must be amenable and obedient to rules prescribed by the Texas state board of health. This article, however, must not be construed as prohibiting any incorporated town or city from declaring, maintaining and paying for local quarantine. [Id. sec. 15.]

Location of pest-house.—The commissioners' court can be enjoined from establishing a smallpox pest-house in close proximity to a public schoolhouse, because such house is a nuisance and the court has no authority to maintain a nuisance. Thompson v. Kimbrough, 23 C. A. 350, 57 S. W. 328.

Maintenance and supplies to inmates.—A county whose commissioners' court has determined that they are threatened with the introduction or dissemination of a dangerous, contagious or infectious disease, that can and should be guarded against by quarantine and has directed the county physician to declare and maintain such quarantine, should furnish, to those thus detained, such provisions, medicines and other things as are absolutely essential to their comfort and convalescence, and is legally liable therefor. It is not optional with the county to assume the duty of supplying these things. Nor is a county excused because there is no county physician to keep an itemized account of expense incident to the quarantine. King County v. Mitchell, 31 C. A. 171, 71 S. W. 611.

Expenses—Liability of county.—Where a ranchman and his employees were in quarantine, expenditures necessarily made by him in supplying their needs were not voluntary, so as to preclude recovery from the county. King County v. Mitchell, 31 C. A. 171, 71 S. W. 610.

Art. 4569. [4341] Bond of health officer at Galveston.—The quarantine or health officer at Galveston, Texas, shall give bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the governor, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the care and preservation of any steam vessel or vessels belonging to the state at his station, and for the faithful performance of his duty. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4570. [4342] To prescribe rules, etc.—It is hereby made the duty of the governor and Texas state board of health, upon completion of the disinfecting warehouse at Galveston or any port on the coast of Texas, to prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the disinfection of all vessels and their cargoes and passengers arriving at said ports from any infected port or district, the object of such rules and regulations being to provide safety for the public health of the state without unnecessary restrictions upon commerce and travel. [Id. sec. 17.]
Art. 4571. [4342a] Sale of condemned property.—The state health officer be and is hereby authorized, with the advice and consent of the governor, to sell to the best advantage of the state, for cash, any property in the quarantine service that is useless, and to apply the proceeds thereof to the general revenue of the state of Texas, and make due report of said sale or sales to the governor. [Acts 1895, p. 2.]

Art. 4572. Vessels to be disinfected; fees of quarantine officer, etc.—Any vessel arriving at a port of this state, and required, to be disinfected by the terms of the governor's quarantine proclamation, shall be disinfected by the quarantine officer of such port and shall pay to such quarantine officer such fees as may be prescribed by the governor, before being released from quarantine. All vessels boarded by the quarantine officer of any port shall pay to such officer such fees as are prescribed by the governor. The quarantine officer receiving such fees shall give bond in such sum as may be prescribed by the governor for the safe keeping of such collection, and shall report and remit them to the Texas state board of health at least once every month. [Acts 1901, p. 266.]

Art. 4573. Persons to disinfect at their own expense.—Every person having control of any public building, railway company, sleeping car company, or other corporation, company or individual, or the receiver thereof, engaged in the carrying of passengers in this state, shall, at their own expense, within a prescribed time after receiving notice of the promulgation of the rules and regulations of the state board of health in relation thereto, carry the same into effect, or be punished as prescribed in the Penal Code. [Acts 1903, p. 180.]

Art. 4574. In case of irreconcilable conflict.—Any provisions of this chapter which may irreconcilably conflict with the provisions of the foregoing chapter, shall yield to such provisions.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Liability for spread of contagion.—Railroad company, taking charge of an employed afflicting with smallpox, held to owe to each individual member of the community the duty to prevent the spread of the disease, and hence liable to a person injured by the failure to perform such duty. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood, 95 T. 223, 66 S. W. 444, 56 L. R. A. 923, 83 Am. St. Rep. 824.

Person afflicted with contagious disease held to be under the control of person having him in charge while delirious, so that the latter was liable for damages arising from failure to exercise due care in preventing him from going at large. Id.

Railroad company held not relieved from liability for damages resulting from the spread of contagion by a smallpox patient, with whose custody it was charged, by reason of the fact that the city in which the patient became ill would not be liable for failing to maintain an effectual quarantine. Id.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's child from defendant's negligence in allowing smallpox patient, whom it had charge of, to escape, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence in not having the child vaccinated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 892.

In an action for injuries from negligence in allowing smallpox patient, whom defendant had charge of, to escape, evidence held to show negligence. Id.

Article 4575. Dairy and food commissioner; appointment, salary and bond.—Immediately after the taking effect of this Act, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the governor shall appoint a suitable person to be dairy and food commissioner, who shall be a practical analytical chemist and bacteriologist, which office is hereby created, and which commissioner so appointed shall hold office for a term of two years or until his successor is appointed and qualified. Said commissioner shall receive an annual salary of $2000.00. Before entering upon the duties of his office he shall subscribe and file in the office of the secretary of state an oath of office in the form prescribed by law, and shall enter into bond with the state of Texas, in the sum of $10,000.00, with sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties. [Acts 1911, p. 76, sec. 9.]

Note.—Acts 1911, p. 76, sec. 26, repeals chapter 94, Acts 31st Leg., and all other laws in conflict, and hence supersedes Arts. 4575-4595, Rev. St. 1911. Acts 1911, p. 76, sec. 22, made an appropriation to carry into effect the act for the remainder of the year ending August 31, 1911. Sections 2 and 19 of Acts 1911, p. 76, are purely criminal, and hence are here omitted.

Constitutionality of act.—The pure food law is not unconstitutional as to one charged with violating the act because the title does not specifically refer to and describe the offense, which is done in the body of the act. Focke v. State (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 267.

The pure food law is not unconstitutional as to one charged with selling fruit not protected from flies, dust, and dirt, because the offense charged is not contained or disclosed in the caption, but in the body of the act. Green v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 211.

Art. 4576. May be removed; vacancy, how filled.—The governor shall have the power to remove such commissioner at any time in his discretion and in case of a vacancy in the office of commissioner from any cause, the governor may appoint another person to fill the same. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4577. Assistant chemists; appointment; salary; bond.—The said commissioner is hereby authorized and empowered, with the advice and consent of the governor, to appoint two assistant chemists. The salary of the assistant chemists shall be $1500.00 per annum each. The assistant chemists shall each enter into bond with the state of Texas for the sum of $5000.00, with sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4578. Stenographer; appointment and salary.—The commissioner shall appoint one stenographer for the transaction of the business of his office. Said stenographer shall receive an annual salary of $900.00. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4579. Inspectors; appointment; duties; salary.—The commissioner shall have power to appoint two inspectors at a salary of not to exceed $1200.00 per annum each, whose duties it shall be to collect samples of foods and drugs, and places where foods and drugs are manufactured, or kept for sale, and to perform such other duties as may be prescribed and directed by the commissioner, according to his rules and regulations. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4580. Expenses of department provided for.—The actual and necessary expenses of the dairy and food commissioner and his assistants and deputies in the performance of their official duties shall be paid by the state. The amounts for the same shall be audited by the comptroller and upon his warrant drawn upon the state treasury. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4581. Office and laboratory.—The office and laboratory of the dairy and food commissioner shall be at the state capitol, and office and laboratory room shall be furnished in the capitol building. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4582. Duties and powers of commissioner.—It shall be the duty of the dairy and food commissioner, or any inspector or deputy appointed by him, to carefully inquire into the quality of the foods and drug products manufactured or sold or exposed for sale, or offered for sale in this state, and they may in a lawful manner procure samples of the same and make due and careful examination and analysis of all or of any such food and drug products, to discover if the same are adulterated, or misbranded, impure, or unwholesome, in contravention of this Act, and it shall be the duty of the commissioner to make complaint against the manufacturer or vender thereof, in the proper county, and furnish the evidence thereon and thereof to obtain a conviction for the offence charged. The dairy and food commissioner, or his inspectors, or any person by him duly appointed for that purpose, shall make complaint and cause proceedings to be commenced against any person for the violation of any of the laws relative to adulterated, misbranded, impure or unwholesome food, and in such case he shall not be obliged to furnish security for costs; and he shall have power in the performance of his duties to enter into any creamery, factory, store, salesroom, drug store or laboratory, or place where he has reason to believe foods or drugs are made, prepared, sold or offered for sale or exchange, and to open any cask, tub, jar, bottle or package containing or supposed to contain any article of food or drug and examine or cause to be examined the contents thereof, and take therefrom samples for analysis. The persons making such inspection shall take such sample of such article or product and he shall mark or seal such sample and shall tender at the time of taking it to the manufacturer or vender of such product or to the person having the custody of the same the value thereof, and a statement in writing of the reason for taking such sample. It shall also be the duty of the dairy and food commissioner to formulate, publish and enforce such rules and regulations as may be necessary to enforce this Act, and he shall adopt the standards for foods, food products, beverages, drugs, etc., and the methods of analysis authorized as official by the United States department of agriculture in so far as they are applicable in the light of modern discovery and scientific research. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4583. Unlawful for officers to issue certificates in what cases.—It shall be unlawful for the dairy and food commissioner or his deputy or assistants while they hold office to furnish to any individual, firm or corporation any certificate as to the purity or excellency of any article manufactured or sold to or by them to be used as food or drug or in the preparation of foods or drugs. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4584. Annual report of commissioner; contents.—The commissioner shall make an annual report to the governor on or before the 31st day of August in each year which shall be printed and published at the expense of the state, which report shall cover the entire work of his office for the preceding year, and shall show, among other things, the number of manufactories and other places inspected and by whom, the number of specimens of food and drug articles analyzed, and the number of complaints entered against any person or persons for the violation of the laws relative to the adulteration of foods and drugs, the number of convictions had and the amount of fines imposed therefor, together with such recommendations relative to the statutes in force as his experience may justify. [Id. sec. 18.]
Art. 4585. Bullets; notices of judgments.—The commissioner is hereby empowered with authority to issue bulletins quarterly, or as often as in his judgment he may deem advisable, showing the work of the commissioner. And he shall give notices of the judgments of the courts, by publication, in such manner as he may prescribe by the rules and regulations, and the expenses of such publications shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4585a. Condemnation, confiscation and forfeiture of articles adulterated or misbranded; suit, how brought; judgment; duties and fees of district and county attorneys; bond for delivery to owner.—That any article of food or drug that is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act shall be liable to be condemned, confiscated and forfeited by a suit to be brought in the district court of the county where said article of food or drug is located, by a suit to be filed in said court in the name of the state of Texas as plaintiff, and in the name of the owner thereof as defendant, if said owner be known; if he be unknown, then in the name of said article of food or drug, and service shall be obtained in said cases in the same manner that the law provides that service shall be obtained in civil cases. That upon a trial of said case, if it be determined by the court or jury trying said case that said article of food or drug is misbranded or adulterated, or of a poisonous or deleterious character within the meaning of this Act, the same shall be disposed of by destruction or sale in accordance with the judgment of the court, and the proceeds thereof, if sold, less the legal cost and charges, shall be paid into the treasury of this state. And it is hereby made the duty of the different district and county attorneys in this state to file forfeiture and condemnation suits under this Act at the request of the dairy and food commissioner, and said district or county attorneys, as the case may be, shall be entitled to a fee of $15.00, to be paid out of the proceeds arising from the sale of the property condemned, said fee to be in addition to all other fees allowed by law, and shall be over and above the fees allowed under the general fee act of this state. It is further provided, that upon payment of the costs of such forfeiture or condemnation proceeding by the owner of the property proceeded against and by his executing and delivering a good and sufficient bond in double the value of the goods proceeded against, payable to the state of Texas, conditioned that said articles shall not be sold or otherwise disposed of contrary to the provisions of this Act, the court may by order direct that said goods be delivered to the owner thereof. In all proceedings begun under this section, either party may demand trial by jury, of any issue of fact joined in any such case, and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4585b. Names and addresses of manufacturers and vendors to be registered with commissioner; fees; pure food fund.—All manufacturers of foods and drugs doing business in the state of Texas, or all such persons as shall bring into and offer for sale within the state any article of food or drug, shall annually register their firm names and addresses with the dairy and food commissioner and shall pay to said commissioner a fee of $1.00 for such registration on or before the first day of September of each year. Such fees shall be turned over by the commissioner to the state treasurer and set apart as a fund to be known as “The Pure Food Fund,” which fund, or as much thereof as may be necessary, may, with the advice and consent of the governor, be used by the commissioner for paying the expenses of the dairy and food department. The amounts for such expenses shall be audited by the comptroller upon his warrant drawn upon the state treasury. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4585c. Additional assistants; compensation.—The said dairy and food commissioner shall be authorized to appoint, such additional inspectors, chemists, clerks and other additional assistants as in his judgment may be necessary, whose compensation shall be paid out of the registration fees and penalties collected by the commissioner. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4585d. Dairy and food department to assist.—The dairy and food department shall assist the state board of health in such manner and at such times as may be necessary for protecting the public health of the state. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4586. Manufacture and sale of adulterated and misbranded foods prohibited.—That no person, firm or corporation, shall within this state manufacture for sale, have in his possession with the intent to sell, offer or expose for sale, or sell or exchange any article of food, or drug which is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act. The term "food" as used herein shall include all articles used for food, drink, flavoring, confectionery or condiment, by man, whether simple, mixed or compounded. That the term "drug" as used in this Act shall include all medicines and preparations for internal or external use recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary, and any substance or mixture of substances intended to be used for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease of either man or animal. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4587. Drugs, confectionery and foods, when deemed adulterated.—That for the purposes of this Act an article shall be deemed to be adulterated: (a) In the case of drugs; (1) if, when sold under or by a name, recognized in the eighth decennial revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia or in such United States Pharmacopoeia as was official at the time of labeling it, or in the National Formulary, it differs from the standard strength, quality or purity laid down therein; (2) if, when sold under or by a name not recognized in the eighth decennial revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia, but which is found in some other Pharmacopoeia or other standard work on materia medica, it differs materially from the standard of strength, quality or purity laid down in such work; (3) if its strength, quality or purity falls below the professed standard under which it is sold. (b) In the case of confectionery: If it contain terra alba, barytes, talc, chrome yellow, or other mineral substance or poisonous color or flavor, or other ingredients deleterious or detrimental to health or any vinous, malt or spirituous liquor or compound, or narcotic drug. (c) In the case of food; (1) if any substance has been mixed and packed with it so as to reduce or lower or injuriously affect its quality or strength; (2) if any substance has been substituted wholly or in part for the article; (3) if any valuable constituent of the article has been wholly or in part abstracted, or if the product be below that standard of quality, quantity, strength or purity represented to the purchaser or consumer; (4) if it be mixed, colored or powdered, coated or stained in a manner whereby damage or inferiority is concealed; (5) if it contain any added poisonous or other added deleterious ingredient which may render such article injurious to health, provided, that when in the preparation of food products for shipment they are preserved by any external application applied in such manner that the preservative is necessarily removed mechanically, or by maceration in water or otherwise, and directions for the removal of said preservative shall be printed on the covering of the package, the provisions of this Act shall be construed as applying only when said products are ready for consumption; (6) if it consists in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed or putrid animal or vegetable substance, or any portion of an animal or vegetable unfit for food, whether manufactured or not, or if it is the product of a diseased animal, or one that has died otherwise than by slaughter. For the purpose of this Act, the term "filthy" shall be deemed to apply to food not securely protected from flies, dust, dirt, and as far as may be necessary by all reasonable means from all foreign or injurious contaminations. [Id. sec. 2.] Art. 4588. Term "misbranded" defined.—That the term "misbraned," as used herein, shall apply to all drugs or articles of food or articles which enter into the composition of food, the package or label of which shall bear any statement, design or device regarding such article or the ingredients or substances contained therein which shall be false or misleading in any particular. That for the purposes of this Act an article shall also be deemed to be misbranded: (a) In the case of drugs: (1) if it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the name of another article; (2) if the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part and other contents shall have been placed in such package, or if the package fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any morphine, phenocetice, opium, cocaine, heroin alpha, or beta eucaine, chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate, or acetanelid or any derivative or preparation of any such substances contained therein. (b) In the case of food: (1) if it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article; (2) if it be labeled or branded so as to deceive or mislead the purchaser or purport to be a foreign product when not so, or if the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part and other contents shall have been placed in such package, or if it fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any morphine, opium, cocaine, heroin alpha, or beta eucaine, phenacetin chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate or acetanelid, or any derivative or preparation of any of such substances contained therein; (3) if in package form and the contents are stated in terms of weight or measure, they are not plainly and correctly stated on the outside of the package; (4) if the package containing it or its labels bear any statement, design or device regarding the ingredients or the substances contained therein, which statement, design or device shall be false or misleading in any particular, provided that an article of food which does not contain any added poisonous or deleterious ingredient shall not be deemed to be adulterated or misbranded in the following cases: First in case of mixtures or compounds which may be now or from time to time hereafter known as articles of food, under their own distinctive names, and not an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article, if the name be accompanied on the same label or brand with a statement of the place where said article has been manufactured or produced; second, in the case of articles labeled, branded or tagged so as to plainly indicate that they are compounds, imitations or blends; that the term "blend," as used herein, shall be construed to mean a mixture of like substances, not excluding harmless coloring or flavoring ingredients used for the purpose or coloring and flavoring only; and provided, further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed as requiring or compelling proprietors or manufacturers of proprietary foods which contain no unwholesome added ingredients to disclose their trade formulas except in so far as the provisions of this Act may require to secure freedom from adulteration or misbranding.
[Id. sec. 3.]

Arts. 4589, 4590. Repealed. See note under Art. 4575. The provision of Art. 4589 has been carried into section 2 of the new act (Art.
4587).

Constitutionality of act.—See note under Art. 4575.

Art. 4591. Manufacture and sale of certain foods, discolored and adulterated, prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture, sell, offer or expose for sale or exchange any article of food to which has been added formmaldehyde, boric acid or borates, benzoic acid or benzoate sulphurous acids or sulphites, salicyclic acid or salacylates, abrastal, beta naphthal, fluorine compounds, dulcin, glucin cocaine, sulphuric acid or other mineral acid except phosphoric acid, any prepara-tation of lead or copper or other ingredient injurious to health; provided, that nothing in this Act shall be construed as prohibiting the sale of catsups, sauces, concentrated fruits, fruit juices, and like substances preserved with one-tenth of one per cent of benzoate of soda, or the equivalent benzoic acid, when a statement of such fact is plainly indicated upon the label; provided, further, that the oxides of sulphur may be used for bleaching, clarifying and refining food products. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4592. Baking powder to be labeled, how.—Whoever manufactures for sale within this state, or offers or exposes for sale or exchange or sells any baking powder or compound intended for use as a baking powder under any name or title whatsoever shall securely affix or cause to be securely affixed to the outside of every box, can or package containing such baking powder or like mixture or compound a label distinctly printed in plain capital letters in the English language, containing the name and residence of the manufacturer or dealer, and the ingredients of the baking powder. Baking powder containing less than 10 per cent of available carbon dioxide shall be deemed to be adulterated. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4593. Sale of impure milk prohibited.—That it shall be unlawful for any person either by himself or agent to sell or expose for sale or exchange any unwholesome, watered, adulterated or impure milk or swill milk or colostrum, or milk from cows kept upon garbage, swill or any other substance in a state of putrefaction or other deleterious substances, or from cows kept in connection with any family in which there are infectious diseases, or from sick or diseased cows; provided, "skim milk" may be sold if on the can, or package from which such milk is old, the words "skim milk" are distinctly painted in letters not less than one inch in length. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4594. Repealed. See note under Art. 4575.

Art. 4595. Exemptions from prosecutions.—That no dealer shall be prosecuted under the provisions of this Act, when he can establish a guaranty signed by the wholesaler, jobber, manufacturer, or other party residing within this state or in the United States from whom he purchases such article, to the effect that the same is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act, designating it. Said guaranty, to afford protection, shall contain the name and address of the party making the sale of such articles to such dealer, and in such case said party or parties shall be amenable to the prosecutions, fines and other penalties, which would attach, in due course to the dealer under the provisions of this act. [Id. sec. 7.]

CHAPTER SEVEN
EMBALMING BOARD

Art. 4596. Embalming board; how constituted; terms of office; qualifications, how removed.—The state board of embalming shall consist of five members to be appointed by the state board of health, and all vacancies occurring in the board shall be filled by the said board for the unexpired term. The term of each member of said board shall be for two years. The members of said board shall be practical embalmers, having experience in said business, and the care of, and the disposition of, dead human bodies. The members of said board shall be citizens of this state. The appointing board shall remove any member of said board for neglect of duty, incompetency or improper conduct. [Acts 1903, p. 123, sec. 1.]

Art. 4597. Board, when appointed; vacancies, when filled.—The board shall be appointed on or before the first day of June, and all vacancies occurring by the expiration of their respective terms of office shall be filled annually on the aforesaid date. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4598. Certificates of appointment; members qualify.—The state board of health shall furnish each person appointed to serve on the state board of embalming a certificate of appointment, and such appointee shall qualify by taking the usual oath of office before any officer authorized by law to administer oaths in this state, within ten days after said appointment has been made, and this fact shall be noted on the certificate of appointment, and shall be filed with the board of embalmers. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4599. Duties and powers of board.—The board of embalming shall have the power and it shall be its duty:
1. To prescribe a standard of proficiency as to the qualifications of those engaged, and who may engage, in the practice of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of dead bodies in this state.
2. To meet at least once in each year, and oftener, as the proper and efficient discharge of its duties may require. At least fifteen days' notice of the time and place of meeting of said board shall be given by publication in at least three daily newspapers published in different towns and cities of the state. Three members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of all its business and the performance of all its duties.
3. To elect a president and secretary from the members of said board, who shall serve for one year, or until their successors shall be elected and qualified.
4. To adopt a common seal.
5. To adopt rules and regulations and by-laws from time to time not inconsistent with the laws of the state or the United States, whereby the performance of all the duties of said board and the practice of embalming dead human bodies shall be regulated. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4600. Application to engage in business; fee; skill required.—Every person engaged or desiring to engage in the practice of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of dead human bodies within the State of Texas shall make a written application to the state board of embalming for a license, accompanying the same with a license fee of five dollars, whereupon the applicant as aforesaid shall present himself or herself before said board at a time and place to be fixed by said board; and, if the board shall find upon examination that the applicant is of good moral character, possessed of the knowledge of the venous arterial system, the location of the heart, lungs, bladder, womb and other organs of the human body, and the location of abdominal, pleural and thoracic cavities, location of the carotid, brachial, radial, ulnar, femoral and tibial arteries, a knowledge of the science of embalming and the care and disposition of the dead, and has a reasonable knowledge of sanitation and the disinfection of bodies of diseased persons, and the apartment, clothing and bedding in case of death by infectious or contagious diseases, the board shall issue to said applicant a license as a duly licensed embalmer, authorizing him to practice the science of embalming. Such license shall be signed by a majority of the board and attested by its seal. All persons receiving license under the provisions of this chapter shall have said license registered in the county clerk's office in the county in the jurisdiction of which it is proposed to carry on said practice, and shall display said license in a conspicuous place of business of said person so licensed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4601. Renewal of license; fee for.—Every registered embalmer, who desires to continue the practice of his profession, shall annually thereafter, during the time he shall continue in such practice, on such date as said board may determine, pay to the secretary of said board a fee of two dollars for the renewal of said license. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4602. License to be revoked, when, how.—The state board of embalming shall be and is hereby authorized to revoke any license issued by them for good and sufficient cause, subject to the right of appeal to the state board of health, whose decision shall be final. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4603. Department to be self-sustaining; moneys received, how appropriated.—All expense, salaries, and per diem to members of this board shall be paid from fees received under the provisions of this chapter, and shall in no manner be an expense to the state. All moneys received in excess of per diem allowance, and other expenses provided for, shall be held by the secretary of said board as a special fund for meeting the expenses of the board. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4604. Unlawful to practice without license.—It shall be unlawful for any person not a registered embalmer to embalm or pretend to practice the science of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of the dead, unless said person is a registered embalmer, within the meaning of this chapter. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4605. Provisions do not apply to what.—Nothing in this chapter shall apply to, or in any manner interfere with, the duties of any municipal, county and state officer, or state institution, nor apply to any person simply engaged in the furnishing of burial receptacles for the dead, but only to such person or persons engaged in the business of embalming in connection with the care and disposition of the dead. [Id. sec. 10.]

Decisions in General

Removal of county physicians.—Where county removes physician appointed for stated time at stated salary without cause, held liable for salary less what he was able to earn because of release from duties as county physician. Galveston County v. Ducie, 91 T. 566, 46 S. W. 799.
Art. 4606  HOLIDAYS—LEGAL

TITLE 67
HOLIDAYS—LEGAL

[For institution of suits on, see Art. 1816].

Art. 4606. What are legal holidays.

Art. 4607. Arbor day.

Article 4606. What days are legal holidays.—The first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the second day of March, the twenty-first day of April, the third day of June, the fourth day of July, the first Monday in September, the twelfth day of October, and the twenty-fifth day of December, of each year, and all days appointed by the president of the United States, or by the governor, as days of fasting or thanksgiving, and every day on which an election is held throughout the state, are declared holidays, on which all the public offices of the state may be closed, and shall be considered and treated as Sunday or the Christian Sabbath for all purposes regarding the presenting for payment or acceptance and of protesting for and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks and promissory notes placed by the law upon the footing of bills of exchange. [Acts 1893, p. 4. Acts 1911, p. 52, sec. 1, amending Art. 2939, Rev. St. 1895, as amended by Acts 1905, p. 14.]

Effect in general.—The statute does not require the public offices of the state to be closed on legal holidays, nor prohibit the courts from transacting business. In enumerating what is forbidden to be done on a holiday, and leaving the performance of other things discretionary, it is manifest that judicial acts, not specially prohibited, which are performed on that day, are not void. Houston & E. & W. Tex. Ry. Co. v. Harding, 63 T. 162; Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414; 4 S. W. 548.

The provision that all public offices of the state may be closed on legal holidays is not mandatory. While a court may adjourn if it sees fit or may take no action on a legal holiday, yet any action taken by it would not be illegal. An indictment found by a grand jury impaneled on a legal holiday is not therefore invalid. Webb v. State (Cr. App.) 40 S. W. 989.

Sunday.—See notes under Art. 1816.
Judicial proceedings.—See notes under Art. 1816.

Art. 4607. [2940] Arbor day.—The twenty-second day of February of each year, the same being a legal holiday, is further set apart and designated as “Arbor Day,” to be devoted to the planting and cultivation of forest, shade and ornamental trees throughout the state, and to be observed for that purpose in such manner as may seem best to the people of each community. [Acts 1889, p. 78.]

Celebration of Marriage

Article 4608. [2954] Who authorized to celebrate rites.—All regular licensed or ordained ministers of the gospel, Jewish rabbis, judges of the district and county courts, and all justices of the peace of the several counties are authorized to celebrate the rites of matrimony between all persons legally authorized to marry. [Act Nov. 1, 1866, p. 72. Acts 1891, p. 96. P. D. 7119.]

Applicability of statute in general.—The statute is merely directory, and the fact that the minister celebrating a marriage was not ordained as provided by law does not render the marriage void, provided there was a valid common-law marriage. Holder v. State, 35 Cr. R. 19, 29 S. W. 793.

Ceremonial marriage in general.—See Early Laws, arts. 212, 290, 1002.

A marriage duly solemnized in Texas, while subject to the laws of Mexico, though the husband might have had a former wife living, imposed upon the second wife, if ignorant of this fact, all the obligations and invested her with all the rights of a lawful wife, so long as this ignorance continued. Smith v. Smith, 1 T. 621, 46 Am. Dec. 121.

Recitals of the will of a mother held sufficient evidence, where undisputed, to prove coverture of a daughter at the time a cause of action arose and was instituted, and to prevent the bar of limitation. Summerhill v. Darrow, 94 T. 71, 57 S. W. 942.

Where a man and woman, after being married once, have a second ceremony performed, the first marriage not being dissolved, the second marriage, though of no effect if the first was legal, will be effective if the first was void. Knapp v. State, 54 Cr. R. 633, 114 S. W. 836, 130 Am. St. Rep. 903.

Certain facts held to raise a presumption that a ceremonial marriage was valid. Clayton v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1083.

In an action for partition, evidence held to show a ceremonial marriage between plaintiff's parents. Id.

Where a formal marriage is proved, evidence simply that the parties were reputed in the locality to be unmarried is insufficient as a matter of law to disprove the marriage. Id.

Marriage may be contracted without complying with the statutes, and without any ceremony by an officer or minister of the gospel. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1124.

In Protestant countries marriage is regarded as a civil contract, subject to the control and regulation of the law of the state; nothing more is needed to constitute it a valid contract than capacity to contract, and mutual consent and mutual wills, expressed in the manner prescribed for its proper attestation and authentication. Rice v. Rice, 31 T. 174; First Nat. Bank v. Sharpe, 12 C. A. 253, 33 S. W. 676.

Under the law of Mexico in force in Texas prior to the revolution, marriage was regarded as a civil contract, but it was not constituted by mere cohabitation without an intention to enter into a state of matrimony and assume its duties and obligations. Lewis v. Ames, 44 T. 319.

The relation of husband and wife, and the rights, privileges, duties, and obligations arising therefrom, are precisely the same whether the marriage was a common-law or statutory one. Stevens v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

1. Husband and wife are living together when they occupy the same dwelling, eat at the same table, hold themselves to the world, and conduct themselves as husband and wife. Levy v. Goldsoll (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 420.

Marriage is not a contract, but a status created by the mutual consent of one man and one woman. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 153 S. W. 1124.
HUSBAND AND WIFE

Art. 4608

As abating suit.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 7.

A marriage under common law or license regularly issued is valid. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cody, 30 C. A. 520, 60 S. W. 125.

Where a man and woman commenced to cohabit at a time when the woman was the wife of another, subsequently holding themselves out as husband and wife held not to establish a common-law marriage. Edelstein v. Brown, 35 C. A. 625, 80 S. W. 1027.

The rule as to the evidence required to show a common-law marriage stated. Edelstein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1126.

On an issue as to whether defendant had been the husband of a certain woman, evidence held to justify a finding that on the granting of a divorce to the woman from another she and defendant had agreed to become husband and wife. Id.

If the parties are within the marriageable age, a common-law marriage is valid. Jackson v. Banister, 47 C. A. 317, 105 S. W. 66.

Living together as man and wife under a mutual agreement to live in the relation constitutes a common-law marriage. Knight v. State, 55 Cr. R. 243, 116 S. W. 56.

Consent of the parties to be husband and wife, and not merely living together, constitutes a common-law marriage. Id.

A common-law marriage exists when a man and woman enter into an agreement to become husband and wife, and in pursuance of such agreement to live together and cohabit as husband and wife, and hold each other out to the public as husband and wife. Wofford v. State, 60 Cr. R. 624, 122 S. W. 929; Berger v. Kirby, 105 T. 611, 153 S. W. 1130.

Evidence, in an action to recover personality belonging to a decedent, on the ground that plaintiff was his wife, held to sustain a finding that she made no agreement to become defendant's wife, or that any agreement made was not made in good faith with intention to cohabit thereunder. Grigsby v. Reib (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1027.

Marriage by cohabitation and reputation.—Where the only evidence relied on to prove marriage is of cohabitation and repute, then reputation inconsistent with the matrimonial character of the parties is sufficient to make an issue of fact. Clayton v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1092.

To establish a marriage by reputation, there must be a consensus of opinion that the parties living together are husband and wife. Schwingle v. Kefler (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 194.

Consent of parties in general.—The mutual consent of the parties is necessary to the creation of the marriage relation; the contract being a civil contract in that a church ordinance or civil law is not required. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 132 S. W. 1124.

Marriage by mutual agreement.—A contract per verba de presenti or per verba de futuro cum copula is a valid common-law marriage. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

A mere agreement to become husband and wife without a present intention to assume that relation does not constitute a marriage. Grigsby v. Reib (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1027.

A present agreement to be husband and wife, not followed by cohabitation, does not constitute a valid marriage. Grigsby v. Reib (Sup.) 132 S. W. 1124.

To constitute a valid marriage by agreement, the cohabitation must be professedly as husband and wife, so that the parties may be known as husband and wife by their conduct. Id.

An agreement between a man and woman that they would live together as long as they desired but either could dissolve the marriage at any time, did not constitute a lawful marriage by agreement. Schwingle v. Kefler, 105 T. 609, 153 S. W. 1132.

Pleading allowing proof of common-law marriage.—See notes under Art. 1827, § 1144 1/2.

Duress.—A marriage consummated while the man is under arrest for murdering the woman, on the advice of the officers of the law and bystanders that, by marrying, the party under arrest would be relieved from further prosecution, is not void on the ground of duress. Johns v. Johns, 44 T. 40.

Certain facts held not to show a marriage under duress. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

Ratification.—One held to have ratified a marriage entered into under duress. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

Effect of informal or invalid marriage.—See notes under Arts. 4621, 4622.

Art. 4609. [2955] Who not permitted to marry.—Males under sixteen and females under fourteen years of age shall not marry. [Id.]

Persons who may marry.—Bigamy is prohibited, but a person is not punishable therefor whose husband or wife has been continually remaining out of the state, or shall have voluntarily withdrawn from the other and remained absent for five years, the person marrying again not knowing the other to be living within that time. Divorced persons
HUSBAND AND WIFE

Art. 4610. [2956] License.—Any person desirous of marrying shall apply to the clerk of the county court, and shall receive from him a license directed to all persons authorized by law to celebrate the rites of matrimony, which shall be sufficient authority for any one of such persons to celebrate such marriage. [Act June 5, 1837. P. D. 4666.]

Licenses and licensing officers—Failure to procure license.—It is not a prerequisite to the validity of a marriage that a license issue. Chapman v. Chapman, 11 C. A. 392, 32 S. W. 564; Burks v. State, 50 Cr. R. 47, 94 S. W. 1040.

Authority to issue license.—See Art. 1782.

Duty and liability of officers.—In action by a father against a clerk for illegal issuance of a marriage license to his minor daughter, plaintiff held estopped, by statement made to daughter, from saying she did not have his consent. Evans v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 149.

When application is made to clerk for marriage license it is his duty to ascertain whether he is authorized to issue license. Id.

A clerk who issued a marriage license to a girl but a few months over 14 years of age held not liable to the parent for the loss of the daughter's services. Jackson v. Banister, 47 C. A. 317, 105 S. W. 66.

Art. 4611. [2957] Consent of parent or guardian, etc.; consent of county judge when no parent or guardian.—No clerk shall issue a license without the consent of the parent or guardian of the parties applying, if there be a legally appointed guardian of either party to such license, said consent to be given in person or in writing, signed and acknowledged by said parent or guardian before an officer authorized to take acknowledgements, unless the parties so applying shall be, in case of the male twenty-one years of age, and in case of the female eighteen years of age, and if there be any doubt in the mind of the clerk of the county court issuing such license, he shall not issue said license unless there shall be presented to him a certificate under oath from their parent or guardian or some person other than the contracting parties that the contracting parties have attained the ages aforesaid; provided, further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the issuance of marriage license in seduction prosecution. Provided, that in cases where any minor has neither parent nor guardian, then the clerk shall not issue a license without the consent of the county judge of the county. of the residence of such minor, such consent to be in writing and signed and acknowledged by such county judge. [Acts 1911, p. 63, sec. 1, amending Art. 2957, Rev. St. 1895.]

Art. 4612. [2958] Record and return of licenses.—The said clerk shall record all licenses so issued by him in a well-bound book kept for that purpose; and it shall also be the duty of the persons solemnizing the rites of matrimony to indorse the same on the license and make return of the same to the office of the clerk of the county court within sixty days after the celebration aforesaid; which return shall also be recorded as aforesaid. [P. D. 4668.]

Art. 4613. [2959] Certain intermarriages prohibited.—It shall not be lawful for any person of Caucasian blood or their descendants to intermarry with Africans or the descendants of Africans; and, should any person as aforesaid violate the provisions of this article, such marriage shall be null and void. [P. D. 4670. P. C. 326.]

Presumptions arising from cohabitation.—As the laws forbid the intermarriage of the white man with a mulatto woman, it is not presumed that a marriage was contracted as man and wife, of a white man with a mulatto woman, from 1837 until his death in 1858. Oldham v. McIver, 49 T. 556, citing Clements v. Crawford, 42 T. 601, and overruling Honey v. Clark, 37 T. 656.

Marriage of slaves.—As to marital rights of persons held in slavery, see Honey v. Clark, 37 T. 686; Clements v. Crawford, 42 T. 601; Oldham v. McIver, 49 T. 556; Kinlow v. Kinlow, 72 T. 639, 10 S. W. 729.

Where slaves cohabiting together continued to live together as man and wife after their emancipation, their marital status became legal, entitling the wife and her children to property acquired during the existence of such relation. Waaf v. Sesumus, 28 C. A. 183, 66 S. W. 886.

Art. 4614. [2960] Marriages by bond, etc., validated.—Whereas, many persons heretofore, previous to the passage of an act approved June 5, 1837, regulating marriages, and for other purposes, had, for the want of some person legally qualified to celebrate the rites of matrimony, resorted to the practice of marrying by bond, and others have been married by various officers of justice not authorized to celebrate such marriages, and whereas, public policy and the interest of families require a further legislative action on the subject, therefore, all such marriages are declared legal and valid to all intents and purposes, and the issue of such persons are declared legitimate children and capable of inheritance. [Act Feb. 5, 1846. P. L. 4571.]

Legalizing marriages.—By the ordinance and decree of 1836 (1 Early Laws, art. 213), marriages under existing laws were declared legal. After that date marriages could be celebrated by judges, alcaides, commissaries and ministers of the gospel.

By the act of June 5, 1837 (1st Cong., p. 253; 1 Early Laws, art. 290), former marriages were legalized on condition that the parties publicly solemnized the rites before a proper officer within six months from the passage of the law. All former marriages where either party died while living as husband or wife with the other were declared legal, and the children were legitimized.

In 1834 C. and B. contracted marriage by bond and lived together a few months. In 1834 C. and B., living together as man and wife, and having a child about six months old, contracted marriage by bond, A. and B. having previously canceled their bond. A short time afterwards C., while living with B. as man and wife, died. Held, that the second marriage was legalized by legislation on that subject, and the issue of C. and B. legitimized. Nichols v. Stewart, 15 T. 226.

A man married a wife in Texas before an alcalde in 1831. The marriage, not having been solemnized by a Catholic priest, was void. In 1834 he separated from his wife and was remarried to another by a person without official authority, and continued to live with the second wife until 1857, when he deserted her and married a third wife. Held, that the second marriage was legalized by the acts of 1836, 1837 and 1841, and the first and third marriages were void. Rice v. Rice, 31 T. 176.

Marriage by bond.—Parties were married in Texas by bond on the 23d of July, 1830, but separated prior to the death of the husband in 1835. The question being whether a child born of the marriage was the legal heir of the father and could inherit his estate, it was held that the contract of marriage evidenced by the bond above mentioned was valid. Sapp v. Newson, 27 T. 557.
Art. 4615. [2961] Issue legitimated.—In cases where persons have so intermarried agreeably to the custom of the times, and where husband or wife has since died, then and in that case the issue of such marriages are hereby legitimated. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4672.]

Art. 4616. [2962] Cohabitation of certain persons considered as marriage.—All persons who at any time heretofore have lived together as man and wife, and both of whom, by the laws of bondage, were precluded from the rites of matrimony, and continued to live together until the death of one of the parties, shall be considered as having been legally married, and the issue of such cohabitation is declared legitimate; and all such persons as were so living together in such relation on the fifteenth day of August, 1870, shall be considered as having been legally married, and the children heretofore or hereafter born of such cohabitations are declared legitimate. [Act Aug. 15, 1870, p. 127. P. D. 7120.] See notes under Art. 4608.

Hearsay evidence of marriage.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 85.

Article 4617. [2963] What stipulations may be made.—Parties intending to enter into the marriage state may enter into what stipulations they please, provided they be not contrary to good morals or to some rule of law; and in no case shall they enter into any agreement, or make any renunciation, the object of which would be to alter the legal orders of descent, either with respect to themselves, in what concerns the inheritance of their children or posterity, which either may have by any other person, or in respect to their common children; nor shall they make any valid agreement to impair the legal rights of the husband over the person of the wife, or the persons of their common children. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4632.]

Registration of marriage contract.—See notes under Title 118.

Art. 4618. [2964] How authenticated.—Every matrimonial agreement must be acknowledged before some officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments to deeds, and attested by at least two witnesses; the minor capable of contracting matrimony may give his consent to any agreement which this contract is susceptible of, but such agreement must be made by the written consent of both parents, if both be living; if not, by that of the survivor; if both be dead, then by the written consent of the guardian of such minor. [P. D. 4633.]

Art. 4619. [2965] Can not be altered after marriage.—No matrimonial agreement shall be altered after the celebration of the marriage.

A postnuptial contract between husband and wife, renouncing her interest in the community property which they possess or may thereafter acquire, is a nullity. Proetzsel v. Schroeder, 83 T. 684, 19 S. W. 292.

Art. 4620. [2966] Reservation by wife must be recorded.—When the wife, by a marriage contract, may reserve to herself any property, or rights to property, whether such rights be in esse or expectancy, such

Article 4621. [2967] Separate property; management; joinder of husband; permission by district court where husband refuses to join, etc.; wife's property not subject to husband's debts; conveyance of homestead.—All property, both real and personal, of the husband owned or claimed by him before marriage, and that acquired afterwards by gift, devise or descent, as also the increase of all lands thus acquired shall be his separate property. The separate property of the husband shall not be subject to the debts contracted by the wife, either before or after marriage, except for necessaries furnished herself and children after her marriage with him. All property of the wife both real and personal, owned or claimed by her before marriage, and that acquired afterwards by gift, devise or descent, as also the increase of all lands thus acquired shall be the separate property of the wife. During marriage the husband shall have the sole management, control and disposition of his separate property, both real and personal, and the wife shall have the sole management, control and disposition of her separate property, both real and personal; provided, however, the joinder of the husband in the manner now provided by law for conveyance of the separate real estate of the wife shall be necessary to an encumbrance or conveyance by the wife of her lands, and the joint signature of the husband and wife shall be necessary to a transfer of stocks and bonds belonging to her or of which she may be given control by this Act; provided, also, that if the husband shall refuse to join in such encumbrance, or conveyance, or transfer of such property the wife may apply to the district court of the county of her residence, and it shall be the duty of the court, in term time or vacation, upon satisfactory proof that such encumbrance, conveyance or transfer would be advantageous to the interest of the wife, to make an order granting her permission to make such encumbrance, conveyance or transfer without the joinder of her husband, in which event she may encumber, convey or transfer said property without such joiner. Neither the separate property of the wife, nor the rents from the wife's separate real estate, nor the interest on bonds and notes belonging to her, nor dividends on stocks owned by her, nor her personal earnings shall be subject to the payment of debts contracted by the husband. The homestead, whether the separate property of the husband or wife, or the community property of both, shall not be disposed of except by the

1. Applicability in general.—This article applies to real estate owned by nonresidents.
2. Definitions.—Under this article and Article 4621, ownership resting in adverse possession for 10 years, existing in part before marriage and in part after marriage, is community property; the word “acquired” denoting all property coming to husband or wife during coverture by title, other than by gift, devise, or descent; and the word “claim,” when applied to land, importing a legal or equitable right to the land; and the words “owned or claimed” signifying a legal or equitable ownership, or legal or equitable right to demand the land. Sauvage v. Vauhoup (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 292.
3. “All property, both real and personal.”—There being no statute limiting the power of a married woman in the conveyance of any of her separate property, if joined by her husband, and the phrase, “all property, both real and personal” as used in the statute as designating the property that shall constitute separate property, being used in a general sense, a married woman, joined by her husband, can make a valid conveyance of her expectancy in the community estate of her mother. Daggett v. Barre (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 969.
4. “Increase.”—Profits arising from the sale of the lands of a married woman, the husband as her agent continuing to buy with her funds and sell, are within the term “increase” in this article. Evans v. Purinton, 12 C. A. 158, 34 S. W. 360.
5. Adverse possession between husband and wife.—See also, note under Article 5681. Where a wife went into adverse possession before marriage, and the title ripened by limitation during marriage, held, the land is her separate property. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Speights (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 572. Where title to land occupied by a husband and wife is perfected by adverse possession after his death, the land becomes the wife’s separate estate. Cook v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 279.
6. Separate estate of husband in general.—Whether a grant of land to a colonist was separate or community property is determined as follows: If the surviving husband received the grant by reason of his immigration, etc., independent of his status as a married man at the date of his wife’s death, it was his separate property. If an increased quantity was given to the survivor by reason of the fact that at the date of the death of the wife there was then a married man it was community property. Hodge v. Donald, 55 T. 341, Wimberly v. Pabet, 55 T. 347. See Durat v. Dougherty, 31 T. 560,

Land acquired by a surviving husband under an act of the legislature granting land to settlers in Peters' colony, passed after the death of the wife, is the separate property of the husband. 19 S. W. 242; Bowers v. Bowby, 11 S. C. 452. Evidence held to establish a business that the husband was his separate property. Halloway v. Shuttes, 21 C. A., 188; 51 S. W. 233.

Land in the state purchased by a married man with money earned during coverture in the husband's name, and the wife on his divorce is not entitled to one-half thereof. Hitehen v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 571.

Land purchased by a husband before his marriage is his separate property, and, if paid for with community funds, the community estate is entitled to a reimbursement. Hitehen v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 571.

A husband, by purchasing an outstanding title to the wife's property with community property, acquired no interest therein. Gebhart v. Gebhart (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 364.

An insurance policy on the life of the wife, paid for with community funds, on the death of the wife becomes the separate property of the husband. Martin v. McAllister, 94 T. 567, 63 S. W. 625.

Where a husband furnished $1,500 of the purchase price of certain land out of his separate property, to that extent the land become his separate estate. Letot v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1121.

Where a husband who had been occupying public land with his wife applied after her death for a survey, and obtained patent, the land is his separate land, and no interest vested in the wife. Simpson v. Oats (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 340.

An interest in real estate inherited by a man is his separate property. Sauvage v. Scott (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

If an assignment of a headright certificate to an assignee, who obtained a patent in 1852, was prior to the holder's divorce from his wife, the title to the land passed to the assignee, and third persons could acquire no title under the wife. Stedum v. Kilby Labor Co. (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 273.

7. Foreclosure.—Judgment against wife.—The court in a suit to foreclose a mortgage executed by a mortgagee who was single at the time held not authorized to render judgment against his wife. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 249, 102 S. W. 779.

Gifts to, or for, husband.—A wife, by her husband, can convey her separate property to a third person, who may convey to the husband. Hitehen v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 304, 86 T. 240.

Facts held not to raise a presumption that a wife had made a gift to her husband. Tison v. Gass, 46 C. A. 183, 102 S. W. 751.

Conveyances held not to make land the separate property of the husband, and the conveyances were only valid in so far as they subjected the land to the payment of money borrowed. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 636.

Trusts.—Under wife's conveyance of her separate estate to her husband as trustee, with power to use and invest at such times as he in his discretion may see proper, after investing in land, he had power to sell and reinvest. Scottish-American Mortgage Co. v. Massie, 94 T. 393, 60 S. W. 544.

10. Conveyances of husband's separate estate.—Land, title to which is in the husband before marriage, is his separate property, and may be conveyed without his wife's consent, where it has not become their homestead. Wright v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 390.

11. Actions by husband.—In a suit by a husband for value of timber cut from land which is his separate property, his wife is neither a necessary nor proper party. Railway Co. v. Starr, 22 C. A. 363, 58 S. W. 398.

An action to try title by the husband and wife, an appeal can be prosecuted from a judgment rendered in favor of defendants. Corley v. Rens (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 923.

12. Abandonment by husband as affecting rights of parties.—A husband, having unjustifiably abandoned his wife, held not entitled to any part of the rental value of his property in her life, but was entitled to one-half of the rents accruing therefrom thereafter. Cervantes v. Cervantes (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 799.

A husband and wife, as regards their individual property, are separate and distinct persons. He cannot bind her separate property, dispose of it, subject it to the payment of debts, or renew a debt for which it was bound, so as to prevent the bar of the statute of limitations. Read v. Allen, 56 T. 176; Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 344; McGee v. White, 23 T. 180.

An annuity due a person before marriage and payable thereafter is separate property. Krohn v. Krohn, 23 S. W. 416, 5 C. A. 125.

Where the origin of the title precedes the marriage, land acquired during the marriage is the separate property of the spouse in whom the title originates. Sueder v. Lamberth, 41 T. 530, 44 S. W. 931.

Where a husband and wife actually separate for good, a division of their community property fairly consummated is effectual, and what each obtains becomes separate property. Batia v. Batia (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 664.

If a husband and wife have permanently separated, divided their community estate, in a suit by the wife to set aside the settlement as having been procured by fraud the husband's relation to her should be considered, in connection with the circumstances surrounding the transaction, in determining its character. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 160, 87 S. W. 992.
Where a deed was intended as a joint gift to a husband and wife, they were each invested with an undivided half of the land as their separate property. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

The rule that a title when perfected, relates back to and takes effect from the time of its origin, and that the status of property, as separate or community, is determined by the character of the right in which it had its inception, does not apply where a claim to property rests on adverse possession, partly before and partly during marriage, but applies only where the right to the land is referred, in the first instance, to some legal or equitable claim before marriage. Sauvage v. Wauhop (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 263.

Where property is purchased partly with the separate estate of the wife and partly with community funds, the wife acquires a separate interest proportionate to the amount of her separate property. Tex. Molina & Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 360.

In a controversy to which the state is not a party, whether public land purchased from the state in the name of either husband or wife is community property or separate property must be determined by the character of the right by which the title thereto had its inception. McConnell v. Midland Grocery & Dry Good Co. (Sup.) 134 S. W. 1167.

A non-negotiable note given for the separate property of the wife and payable to her order is her separate property. Hamilton v. Brooks, 51 T. 142; Morris v. Edwards, 1 App. C. C. § 548; Kemper v. Comer, 73 T. 196, 11 S. W. 194.

The mere deposit of money by a husband at the account of his wife, a receipt for the same being taken in her name, does not of itself show that it was intended as a gift to the wife. Wilkins v. O. F. B. & E. C. Co. 26 T. 501; citing Mitchell v. Marr, 26 T. 329; Huston v. Curl, 8 T. 239, 58 Am. Dec. 110; Veramendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531.

When property is purchased partly with the means of the wife, her interest is proportioned to the amount paid by her. Cleveland v. Cole, 65 T. 402, citing Love v. Robertson, 7 T. 6, 56 Am. Dec. 41; Claiborne v. Tanner, 18 T. 68; Zorn v. Tarver, 45 T. 519; Battle v. John, 49 T. 203; Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 37.

The right of a married woman to own property is as absolute as that of her husband. Montgomery v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 1304.

A stock of goods, the separate property of the husband, was at the date of his death. The property to the extent of the goods, was protected against those claiming in the deceased wife. Schmidt v. Huppman, 73 T. 113, 11 S. W. 172.

A contract to acquire land by a married woman by means of a land certificate held by her as her separate property may be parol. Ikard v. Thompson, 81 T. 285, 16 S. W. 1019; Bennett v. Virginia Ranch, Land & Cattle Co., 21 S. W. 126, 1 C. A. 321.

The earnings of the wife, as between herself and her husband, are her separate property. Civ. v. Witter, 26 S. W. 854, 7 C. A. 305.

Where separate funds of the wife and community funds are used for the purchase of land, she has an equitable interest in the land proportioned to her investment. Goddard v. Reagan, 28 S. W. 352, 8 C. A. 272.

If a husband conveys community property to his wife, this converts it into her separate property. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 820.

When the policy is payable to the wife, the obligation which it evidences is her separate property, and when the note, to secure which the policy has been transferred, becomes void by statute of limitations, the estate cannot be divided between the survivors. Price v. Davis, 60 T. 597, citing L.J., App. 7 T. 664, 3 C. A. 171.

That the interest of the wife in the property was protected against those claiming after the death of her husband. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123.

A conveyance by husband and wife of property in trust for the support of the wife and children, but not for the latter, but does not pass to the wife. The property is sold, and the proceeds, less the purchaser's advances, are taken. The proceeds were paid to her, and she was not subject to husband's debt to the bank. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Center v. Hill (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 526.

That a wife permitted a strip of land owned individually by her in a city to be placed by adjoining lots owned by her husband did not affect her separate title as against the husband's heir. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 705.

A husband and wife agree that certain horses and their increase shall be the wife's separate property, and he branded them with the needed brand. This agreement is binding upon him and his heirs and invalid only as to community creditors. Jordan v. Marcanell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Where a married woman's money is invested in land in her husband's name, she owns, in her separate right, a part of the land proportionate to the amount of her funds.

Where title to land occupied by a husband and wife is perfected by adverse possession after his death, the land becomes the wife’s separate estate. Cook v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 279.

A married woman with her husband’s consent may purchase public school land from the state. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

Where a third person agreed to give a wife money to buy land from the state, the first payment was made out of money so given, and it was intended that the deferred payments would become the wife’s separate property, though the husband joined in notes for such deferred payments, and a judgment against the husband was not a lien thereon. 1d.

15. What law governs.—Evidence held not to show that common-law rule as to marital ownership of real estate, res judicata in respect to her separate estate prevailed in foreign state. Clardy v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 194, 58 S. W. 52.

16. Conveyances or gifts to or for use of wife as her separate property.—Land conveyed to a married woman by a deed of gift is her separate property. Fisk v. Flores, 45 S. 340; Aldridge v. Huddleston, 49 S. 710; Swearingen v. Bridge, 25 S. W. 658, 6 C. A. 425.

Property conveyed to a wife “to her sole and separate use” becomes her separate property, whether the consideration was paid with separate or community funds. Morrison v. Clark, 55 T. 487.

It is not material to a conveyance to the wife of his separate property, or of the community property, so as to vest the title in her as separate property, provided the rights of creditors are not encroached upon. Brown v. Brown, 61 T. 56; Rilly v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 394, 86 T. 240.

A husband, being indebted to the wife, conveyed to her a certain tract of land for the purpose of discharging said debt, but without the knowledge or consent of the wife. At the time of the delivery of the deed to the wife she was informed by her husband that the land to be conveyed he had previously conveyed and it was then unrecorded. Held, that the wife could not, as a bona fide purchaser, hold the land against the prior unrecorded deed. Pearce v. Jackson, 61 T. 642.

A husband, being indebted to the wife on account of her separate funds used by him in common agreements, paid or borrowed from the land, which by his direction was conveyed to the wife in payment of such indebtedness. Held, that the land was her separate property. McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648; Ross v. Kornrumpf, 64 T. 399.

The application of the separate funds of a wife in part payment of a tract of land, with her approval, gives her a proportional interest in the land, and, when the deed is taken by the husband in his name, the trust in favor of the wife is created, and she becomes the equitable owner of such proportional interest. Blum v. Rogers, 71 T. 669, 9 S. W. 595.

A deed to a married woman, “her heirs and assigns, to her proper use, benefit and behoof forever in fee simple,” with warranty against all debts, etc., and against the lawful demands of any persons whatsoever to the devisee that it is the wife’s separate estate, or put a purchaser upon inquiry as to her equities. Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 19 S. W. 450.

A conveyance of land by a husband to the wife for a valuable consideration vests title in husband without the recital that it was intended for her separate use. Swearingen v. Reed, 21 S. W. 383, 2 C. A. 364.

Property purchased with the separate means of the wife, part cash and part in note, is her separate property. Parker v. Pogarty, 25 S. W. 700, 4 C. A. 415.

A conveyance to a wife, for cash and on credit, the funds so used being her separate estate, vests title in her. Sinshelmer v. Kahn, 24 S. W. 553, 6 C. A. 143.

As to deed of the husband to his wife, see Frank v. Frank (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 818. As to deed to married woman, part payments being out of community funds, see Cavil v. Walker, 26 S. W. 554, 7 C. A. 305.

Gift by the husband to his wife of the income to accrue from her separate property is valid as between themselves. Bruce v. Koch (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 626.

Land conveyed separate, where the purchase is entirely on credit. Harrison v. Mansur-Tibbetts Implement Co., 16 C. A. 630, 41 S. W. 842.

Land conveyed by heirs to a wife in consideration of the release of the claim she has as sole legatee against the estate of the ancestor is her separate estate. O’Connor v. Vineyard, 91 T. 488, 44 S. W. 485.

Evidence held not to show that land conveyed absolutely to a wife was on a parol trust for the husband’s benefit. Hunter v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 820.

Where land is bought with separate funds of the wife, and the deed taken in her name, the fact that subsequent improvements are paid for out of community funds does not deprive of title. Schwartzman v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 113.

Conveyance to wife to take effect after husband’s death, whether construed as a will or fee simple, held not to vest any interest in the wife; both having conveyed to third party during the husband’s life. Phillips v. Phillips, 23 C. A. 352, 57 S. W. 59.

An intention of the husband to convey property to his wife in her separate estate may be shown by recitals in the deed of a consideration which, if moving from her, would indicate such a character to the property. Kahn v. Kahn, 94 T. 114, 58 S. W. 825.

In an action for divorce, held proper to award land to the wife as her separate property. Gebhart v. Gebhart (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 964.

A deed to a woman for life, “to receive for her sole and separate use, and no other,” the rents and profits thereunder are her separate property. Sullivan v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 680.

Property deeded to a wife in consideration of her relinquishment of rights in a homestead became hers, and the lien of a judgment against the husband could not attach thereto. Drake v. Davidson, 28 C. A. 184, 66 S. W. 889.

Money borrowed by a wife after her marriage, for the purpose of paying taxes on her separate property, did not belong to her separate estate. Grevila v. Smith, 29 C. A. 150, 58 S. W. 281.

Deed to a married woman construed, and held to convey land as her separate estate. Lauver v. Powell, 50 C. A. 694, 71 S. W. 464; Merriman v. Blaack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 285. A deed from a husband to a wife is sufficient to vest the title in her, without any recital that it was to become her separate estate. Watts v. Bruce, 31 C. A. 347, 72 S. W. 268.

Land purchased by husband and wife, to which title was taken in wife's name in consideration of her signing a deed to other land, held to be the wife's separate estate, irrespective of proportion of purchase price contributed by her or intention of husband. McKinney v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 217.

A conveyance of real estate by a husband to his wife makes the land conveyed her separate estate, irrespective of whether the deed specifically so declares. Jones v. Humby, 39 C. A. 644, 88 S. W. 492.

Title to land conveyed to a married woman while sole, and held by her and her husband for the period of limitations, held vested in her as her separate property. Alford Bros. & Whitelede v. Williams, 41 C. A. 436, 91 S. W. 636.

If a husband has bought land with his separate funds, and has held the deed made to his wife, as between the parties, was sufficient to show that he intended it as a gift to her. Tison v. Gaas, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 751.

An agreement between a creditor and the debtor and his wife held to constitute a gift of real estate to the wife. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

Land purchased by a married woman held her separate property so far as the land was paid for out of her separate funds, and community property so far as it was paid for with her husband's separate funds, by her on a note by herself and husband. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 105, 117 S. W. 1041.

A deed from a husband, directly conveying land to the wife, vests title thereto in her as her separate estate. Kin Kald v. Lee, 54 C. A. 622, 115 S. W. 342; Same v. Buck (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 345.

Land purchased by a husband with his wife's funds for her benefit, under an agreement that it is to be her separate property, held her separate property, though the deed is taken in his name. Hunt v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 674.

When a husband's money, a man purchases land, taking the title in his own name, the land is her separate estate, and, if sold by him after her death, the proceeds belong to her heirs. Oaks v. West (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1033.

Evidence held to show that land conveyed to a husband was purchased for the benefit of his wife as her separate property out of the earnings of their minor son, and that the husband was not estopped from using the earnings, and therefore it belonged to her. Goldstein v. Cockrell (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 273.

Where a husband invested money of his and of his wife in shares of stock, taking the certificate in his own name, and he disposes of more than his share, held that, as against his creditors she has only an unedited interest in those remaining. Mathis v. Hoopes (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 544.

A wife, furnishing from her separate estate a part of the purchase price of land purchased by her husband, held to acquire an equitable title in the land to the extent of such payment. Strnad v. Strnad, 29 C. A. 124, 68 S. W. 269.

Under the undirected testimony of a wife as to land bought for her by her husband, held, that the deed vested in her the separate right and estate to the land, and that he had no interest therein. Herring v. Hardin, 29 C. A. 300, 88 S. W. 828.

Where title to property bought by a husband would otherwise vest in him alone, held that the wife acquires no title therein because he bought it with money she loaned him. Biethen v. Bonner, 30 C. A. 586, 71 S. W. 299.

Facts held to establish that a wife was the equitable owner of certain land, purchased by her husband with funds under an agreement to take title in her name, which he violated. Sparks v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 740.

Husband held to hold title to certain land paid with his wife's money in trust for the wife. Sparks v. Taylor, 99 T. 411, 90 S. W. 485, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 351.

Property purchased by a husband, title to which is taken in his own name, and which he subsequently pays for out of his wife's money, becomes her separate property. Levy v. Crane, 53 C. A. 189, 114 S. W. 172.

Land paid for with funds of the wife is a part of her separate estate, though the deed thereto was taken in the husband's name. Ligon v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 930.

If a wife's separate funds are used by her husband in paying for land, the equitable title thereto must be vested in her, and she would have the right of disposing of the land, even though the deed be taken in his name. Heints v. Heints, 66 C. A. 403, 120 S. W. 941.

Where a married woman's money is invested in land in her husband's name, she owns, in her separate right, a part of the land proportionate to the amount of her funds invested therein. Kingman-Texas Implement Co. v. Herring Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 394.

19. Trusts in favor of wife.—When the husband takes a bond for title to himself for the purchase of land paid for by the wife, and with the intention that the balance should be paid with her separate means, a resulting trust arises in favor of the wife, irrespective of the existence of any contract, where property is purchased by the husband with his wife's funds, and title is taken in his name. Metarod Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper, 30 C. A. 99, 87 S. W. 235.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to sustain a finding that the lands in controversy were located by virtue of certificates paid for with money belonging to the separate estate of the wife of the person in whose name title was taken. Id.

In certain facts held material on the issue of title in land purchased by a husband and in part paid for with the wife's money. Sparks v. Taylor, 99 T. 411, 90 S. W. 485, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 351.

An agreement between a husband and wife, whereby the wife paid the note, even by the husband for the price of land, and in consideration that the land should be hers, held not to create a resulting trust in the wife's favor. Allen v. Allen, 101 T. 362, 107 S. W. 53, reversing (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 53.

A title to property deeded by a husband in trust for his wife for life, and for her children after her death cannot be arbitrarily devested nor disturbed except according to the terms of the deed. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

Evidence in proceedings to garnish asset money deposited in a bank held to sustain a finding that the money was deposited as the separate property of the wife of the judgment debtor. Kingman-Texas Implement Co. v. Herring Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 394.

29. Management of separate estate of wife.—The authority conferred on a husband of managing the wife’s separate property gives him the power to bind the same for expenses incurred in the purchase and preservation. Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 329.

It is the separate property, given for the separate property of the wife, and payable to her order, cannot be transferred by the husband without her authority, and parties having notice of her rights would void such unauthorized act of her husband. Hamilton v. Brooks, 51 T. 142; Morris v. Edwards, 1 App. C. C. § 449; Kemper v. Cohn, 73 T. 186, 11 S. W. 194.

A husband cannot bind the wife and her separate property, unless the same is done with her knowledge and by her authority and consent. Adamson v. Shiel, 4 App. C. C. § 294, 18 S. W. 464.

When the wife’s separate estate consists of securities which may be legally converted into money, the husband cannot, after conversion, appropriate it to the payment of debts for which the wife’s separate estate is not liable, or mingle it with funds belonging to himself or the community estate, or invest it in his own name, without rendering his estate liable for its repayment. Richardson v. Hutchins, 68 T. 81, 3 S. W. 276.

A husband has a right to check out of a bank money deposited by the wife as her separate property. He has authority also to collect the purchase money of the wife’s separate property. Coley v. First National Bank, 17 C. 123.

That officers of a bank knew her husband to be a man of dissolute habits would not make the bank liable for checks drawn by him against his wife’s money deposited in her name. Id. A pledge of a stock certificate bought with the separate funds of the plegdro’s wife, to one having no notice thereof, is valid. Anderson v. Waco State Bank, 92 T. 506, 49 S. W. 1080, 71 Am. St. Rep. 867.

Where a husband deposited his wife’s separate money on the understanding that he is to draw it out, the bank is bound to pay his checks drawn on the fund. Coleman v. First Nat. Bank, 94 T. 665, 68 S. W. 868, 86 Am. St. Rep. 871, affirming (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 93.

Payments of rent by a lessee to a husband under a lease of the wife’s separate property, while the husband was apparently in the rightful custody of her separate property, is a bar to a recovery of such rents by the wife. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 218, 70 S. W. 328.

Where a debtor assigned certificates of stock to a husband for the benefit of the wife, the assignment of the husband to the assignment was bindine on the wife. South Texas Nat. Bank v. Texas & L. Lumber Co., 30 C. A. 413, 70 S. W. 768.

Where a husband appropriated the entire income of his wife’s separate estate to his own benefit, contributing nothing to her support, nor paying taxes, he may be enjoined from interweaving with such estate, and the management and control thereof be given to her. Dority v. Dority, 96 T. 218, 71 S. W. 950, 60 L. R. A. 941.

Though a lease of a wife’s separate estate was originally void because of her failure to join therein, it was rendered valid and binding, when, with full knowledge of the facts, she assigned, and acknowledged an assignment with the lease contract annexed. Ascarete v. Pfaff, 34 C. A. 375, 78 S. W. 974.

A husband has no right to convert to his use the separate estate of the wife, and she cannot recover her separate estate by him wrongfully converted, and can have a resulting trust declared in her favor in land held by him in his own name and paid for in whole or in part by her separate funds. Heintz v. Heintz, 56 C. A. 403, 120 S. W. 942.

Under this article, that a debtor, after transferring a growing crop of rice to his wife, remains in possession of and manages it, and that accounts with the owner of the land on which the crop transferred was raised was kept in the name of the husband as they had been kept previous to the transfer, does not indicate that the transfer was simulated and fraudulent. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

This article does not invest a husband with a right of property in the wife’s separate property, nor give him the right of disposition thereof; and he has not, by reason of such possession, the right to mortgage the property to his creditor, though the wife has failed to file a schedule of property, as provided by Arts. 6945, 6946. Walker v. Farmers & Merchants’ State Bank (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 312.

The husband has the right of possession, management, and control of the wife’s separate property, but without her consent he has no power to dispose of it. Givens v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 623.

This article invests a husband with such control of his wife’s separate property as is necessary to the proper exercise of the right, and completely suspends her management thereof, permitting him to deal with it as with his own, notwithstanding any agreement by him with her to the contrary, except that he cannot incumber or convey it to persons having notice of her ownership, and hence though money belonging to a wife’s separate estate was deposited in a bank by the wife with her husband’s apparent authority, and evidenced by the passbook, that only the depositor could withdraw it, the husband could afterwards withdraw such deposit without making the bank liable therefor to the wife in the absence of intervening rights of third parties; the husband’s action in withdrawing the money being a resumption of his management of the property which he revoked his wife’s implied agency for him in depositing the money. Waggoner Bank & Trust Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 691.

31. Ratification.—Where a married woman and her husband affirm her contract, the other party cannot avoid it because of her incapacity. Stringfellow v. Early, 15 C. A. 857, 48 S. W. 871.

32. Authority of husband after separation.—A husband, after separation, will not be permitted to manage the wife's separate property. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 338.

33. Authority of wife after separation.—When a husband has deserted the wife, is separated from her, or confined in the penitentiary, she is authorized to manage her separate property, and to make contracts as a sole. Walker v. Stringfellow, 30 T. 570; Blancket v. Dugat, 5 T. 607; Wright v. Hava, 10 T. 130, 58 Am. Dec. 399; Pallerton v. Doyle, 13 T. 3; Ann Berta Lodge v. Leverton, 42 T. 15; Carothers v. McNese, 43 T. 221; Zimpleman v. Robb, 55 T. 274; Davis v. Saladee, 57 T. 326; Wright v. Blackwood, 57 T. 641; Ezell v. Dodson, 60 T. 331; Black v. Black, 62 T. 296; Heldenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287; Slator v. Neal, 64 T. 227; Clements v. Ewing, 71 T. 379, 9 S. W. 315.

A wife held entitled to manage a suit to cancel leases of her separate property fraudulently executed by the husband after permanent separation. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 338.

34. Conveyance of homestead.—See notes under Art. 1115.

35. Conveyance of separate estate of wife.—See notes under Art. 1114.

Without her consent, a wife's separate property cannot be appropriated by others with her husband's permission. Therriault v. Comparc (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 750.

A husband of the husk his property is invalid, unless he has express authority from her to sell or unless she ratified the sale. Hudspeth v. State, 54 Cr. R. 571, 112 S. W. 1069, 130 Am. St. Rep. 894.

A deed by a widow, who has remarried, and the surviving daughter, also married, to a one-fourteenth interest in land having descended as heir apparent, whereas only a one-fourteenth interest descended to him, passes a one-fourteenth interest only: the warranty not operating against the grantors. Fritchard v. Fox (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1058.

36. Parties in suits for wife's separate property.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 5.

37. Measure of damages for wrongful conveyance.—Measure of recovery by wife on account of her husband's act in taking title to and disposing of land purchased with her money, stated. Sparks v. Taylor, 97 T. 411, 90 S. W. 485, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 381.

38.Joinder of wife as party of interest in land received.—Joinder of a wife in conveyance of land held to waive her interest in land received therefor by the husband, which was subject to his debts on his death. Phillips v. Phillips, 23 C. A. 532, 57 S. W. 59.

39. Conveyance after wife's death.—Where, after the death of the wife, her husband sells her separate property, and with the proceeds buys land, taking the title in his name, he holds as trustee for her heirs, and a purchaser from him with notice takes charged with such trust. Oaks v. West (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1033.

40. Consideration.—A conveyance of a large amount of the wife's property and small amount of the husband's, for a consideration of one dollar paid by each to the other, to a trustee to convey to the husband to be held as community property, is without consideration. Kellett v. Trice, 56 T. 168, 66 S. W. 51.

41. Consideration.—A wife's separate property mortgaged for money loaned to him became liable on the same principle as a surety, and anything which would operate as a discharge for a surety would release the lien on the property. Red River Lumber Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 968.

An unauthorized extension by a husband and his creditor of time of payment of a debt secured by a trust on the wife's separate property released the lien on the property. Id.

42. Conveyance after wife's death.—Where, after the death of the wife, her husband sells her separate property, and with the proceeds buys land, taking the title in his name, he holds as trustee for her heirs, and a purchaser from him with notice takes charged with such trust. Oaks v. West (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1033.

43. Conveyance by heir.—The holder of a note payable to a married woman, transferred by the husband in due course of trade without notice that it was in fact the wife's separate property, takes a superior separate title thereto. James v. Jacques, 38 T. 326, 32 Am. Dec. 613; Chapman v. Allen, 15 T. 283; Love v. Robertson, 7 T. 9, 54 Am. Dec. 164; Fox v. Brady, 1 C. A. 590, 50 S. W. 1024.

A purchaser from a husband of land acquired during marriage, the deed to which is made to the wife, is not thereby put upon inquiry as to any equity she might have in respect to it, but is protected if he buys in ignorance of her claim to it as separate property. The rule is otherwise if the deed show that the consideration paid was the wife's separate estate or that the purchase was designed for her separate benefit. And so the purchaser acquires no title if at the date of his purchase he has reasonable information of these facts. Kirk v. Navigation Co., 45 T. 213; Cooke v. Bremond, 27 T. 836; Rogers v. I. C. & N. T. R. R., 48 T. 561; Dean v. Smith, 52 T. 92; McDaniel v. Weiss, 55 T. 266; Wallace v. Campbell, 54 T. 87; Cline v. Upton, 56 T. 319; Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648; Ross v. Korn­rum, 64 T. 244, 54 S. W. 174. A married man to whom a deed for land was made, paid for with the money of his wife, is her trustee, and a purchaser from him with notice acquires no title. Parker v. Coop, 68 T. 114; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 652; Blum v. Rogers, 71 T. 683, 9 S. W. 909; Coble v. Trammell, 73 T. 334; Co. v. McWhorter, 78 S. W. 351.

A purchaser from a woman, to whom a patent for the land sold issued after the death of her husband, takes title as against the heirs of the deceased husband, unaffected by his community interest, in the absence of notice of its existence. Wren v.
Peele, 64 T. 374.

If title to property be in the name of the husband alone, a purchaser from him who has paid value without actual notice of the wife’s interest will be protected against her claim or the claim of her heirs. Edwards v. Brown, 60 T. 229, 4 S. W. 380, 6 S.
W. 87.

A bona fide purchaser for value from the husband of land apparently community property, protected against the undiscovered claims of separate ownership by the Deed from purchaser at execution sale construed, and held to vest the beneficial interest in the grantee, as well as the legal title, under certain facts. Williamson v.

Goff (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

Where the legal owner of land dies, leaving three children and a wife, who remaries and has a child from such marriage, and after the death of the mother one of the three children of the legal owner dies, a purchaser must take notice of the child of the second marriage, which is an heir to the child who died, and will be deemed to have notice of the right of such child to share in the equitable marital interest held by

44. Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3887, Rule 12.

45. Authority of wife to give or sell her personal estate.—A wife’s right of disposition of personal property is as unrestricted as if she were a feme sole, and her separate acknowledgment of a mortgage of such property is not required by the statute.
Wilkinson v. Rowland, 3 App. C. C. 11; Bledsoe v. Pitts, 47 C. A. 578, 105 S. W.
1142, et seq.

46. Forms of conveysance.—Such contracts of a married woman made in 1855 as she could properly make by parol for the acquisition of land or for its partition may equally affect declarations, even when not acknowledged by her in the manner that the statute requires to make effectual her conveyance of real estate. Ikard v. Thompson, 81 T. 236, 16 S. W. 1019.

It has been held under the act of 1846 that a wife could convey separate personal property without writing subscribed and privy acknowledgment. Ballard v. Carmichael, 83 T. 365, 13 S. W. 734.

Under the act of April 30, 1846 (Sayle’s Early Laws, art. 1670), a conveyance of personal property by a married woman must be by a written instrument privy ac-certain horses and their increase should be her separate property held binding on his

49. Liability of husband or wife.—A husband is liable for exemplary as well as actual damages for slanderous words uttered by the wife. Patterson & Wallace v.
Frazer (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 146.

A husband converts the wife’s separate estate into money or other property and appropriates that to the benefit of himself or to the benefit of the community, he is liable to the wife or to her estate or heirs for its value. Tison v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 103 S. W. 751.

A husband is not personally liable on a building contract made by his wife before marriage for the benefit of her separate estate. Johnson v. Griffiths & Co. (Civ. App.)
135 S. W. 683.

A wife is not liable personally for rents collected by her husband after sequestration of land which had been her separate property. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Wandeloh

Where a husband sold grass from his wife’s land but failed to deliver the same, he was liable for breach of contract regardless of his ownership or right to sell. Kreisle

In an action on a note, in which defendant relied on coverture, a decree of divorce is admissible in evidence to show that she was a feme sole at the time of the suit, and had ratified the contract made while she was a feme covert. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.)
156 S. W. 917.

A woman conducting her own business, buying furniture with her separate property, at a time when she was permanently separated from her husband, and only two months before she was divorced from him, and who ratified the sale after divorce by payments thereon, cannot rely on coverture to defeat the sale. Id.

50. Enforcement.—A wife may maintain against her husband a suit by attachment levied on their community property, to secure payment of a debt which is her separate property, due from the husband. Ryan v. Ryan, 61 T. 473. And see Black v.
Black, 62 T. 296.

A wife, who is a creditor of her husband, has no greater remedial rights than

The wife of a contractor who, with his consent, was in active charge of the erection of things pertaining thereto, was authorized to execute transfers of money to materialmen from the funds due. A. A. Fielder Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 606.

53. Ratification or repudiation of agency.—Husband held to have ratified purchase by his wife so as to render him liable. Wright v. Couch (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 521.

54. Evidence of agency.—See notes under Art. 359, Rule 12.

55. Authority as agent.—During the absence of a husband, the wife, as his agent, is authorized to do such acts as are necessary for the proper care of the estate, and for her support according to the station and means of the husband. Cheek v. Bellows, 41 T. 633; McAfee v. Robertson, 41 T. 885; Kelley v. White, 41 T. 647; Sorrel v. Clayton, 42 T. 188.

56. Agency of husband for wife.—The acts or declarations of a husband touching his wife's title to her separate property cannot prejudice her rights. Blair v. Pinkley, 76 T. 983, 12 S. W. 985.

Where the trustee of a trust deed, with knowledge of its satisfaction, buys in the land for his wife, she takes it tainted with his fraud. Allen v. Garrison, 92 T. 846, 60 S. W. 339.

A husband held not invested with authority to agree, without his wife's consent, that a judgment in her favor might be set aside, and entered in favor of her adversary. Winter v. Texas Land & Loan Co. (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 802.

That an agency to employ an attorney for his wife will not be presumed from the mere fact that he is her husband and made the contract for the benefit of her separate estate. Cushman v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1031.

Where a wife participated with her husband in fraudulent representations as to the amount of land conveyed by her to plaintiff, he was liable therefor, though he acted as her agent. Lewis v. Hoeldtke (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 309.

Where, in an action for breach of contract to sell cattle, the evidence showed that defendant had authority to sell, the issue whether the cattle were the separate property of her husband held immaterial. Glibbens & Roundtree v. Hart (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 185.

Evidence held to show that a husband was authorized to place his wife's property with one charged with its escheatment. Henderson v. State, 55 Cr. R. 640, 117 S. W. 829.

Though a husband may be appointed by her as his agent, the relation must be proved, not being presumed. Id.

A husband may be the agent of his wife to make contracts binding her separate estate, but the agency will not be presumed from the marital relation. Smith v. Olivarrt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 235.

A wife held bound by a contract made with her husband as her agent. Id.

A wife, obtaining possession of real estate, pursuant to a contract made with a husband as her agent, cannot approve the agreement so far as it relates to her advantage, and reject the part which imposes a burden on her. Id.

Husband held to have implied authority to make stipulations relating to delivery of deed of wife's separate property which shall not be violative of her instructions or in fraud of her rights. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960.

It is not presumed that a husband acts as agent for his wife in extending time of payment of a debt for security of which her separate property is mortgaged. Red River Nat. Bank v. Bray (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 968.

A husband, being the agent of his wife, is entitled to receive and receipt for her share in the surplus proceeds of the sale of land sold under foreclosure sale. Shannon v. Bretty (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 858.

A wife is not liable personally for rents collected by her husband after sequestration of land which had been her separate property. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Wandelohr, 106 T. 226, 146 S. W. 1186.

Where a wife agreed that a note payable to her might be pledged to secure a loan to her husband but did not consent to sale, and did not indorse the note, a transfer by him was beyond the scope of his agency. Morgan v. Hays (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 315.

Where a husband had knowledge of the dissolution of a partnership, his wife would also be charged with notice. Thompson v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1161.

1. Applicability in general.—This article applies to real estate owned by nonresidents. In Loring v. Babb, 7 C. A. 660, 26 S. W. 99.

2. Validity of marriage affecting property rights.—Land granted to a married man as a colonist is the community property of himself and wife. A reputed wife, not legally married, but living with her husband in Texas at the date of the grant, is entitled to one-half of the land on the death of the husband. Babb v. Carroll, 21 T. 749.

A and B. married in Illinois in 1839 and separated in 1846 without a divorce. A came to Texas in 1844, returned to his former home in the spring of 1845, and in the fall returned to Texas with his children of a former marriage and with the avowed purpose of abandoning his wife, who remained in Illinois with her children, never having removed to Texas. In 1852 A. married T. in Texas, with whom he lived as his wife until his death in 1864. T. had no knowledge of A.’s former marriage. The property in controversy situated in Texas was acquired after the last marriage. Held, in a contest between B., the first wife, and a child of A. by his last wife, that B. was entitled to one-half of the property acquired by A. in Texas. The court expresses no opinion as to the rights of the last wife in property acquired during the last marriage. Fourth v. Bouth, 57 T. 889.

A putative wife held entitled to one-half of the property jointly acquired during the cohabitation. Lawson v. Lawson, 30 C. A. 43, 69 S. W. 246.

Where a husband married his wife at a time when she was mentally incompetent, the marriage was void, and he acquired no rights in her property by virtue thereof. Holland v. Riggs, 53 C. A. 367, 118 S. W. 167.

3. Community property in general.—Whether a grant of land to a colonist was separate or community property is determined as follows: If the surviving husband received the grant by reason of his immigration, etc., independent of his status as a married man, at the time of his wife’s death, it was community property; if an increased quantity was given to the survivor by reason of the fact that at the date of the death of the wife he was then a married man, it was community property. Hodge v. Donald, 55 T. 344; Wimberly v. Pabst, 55 T. 587. See Durst v. Dougherty, 81 T. 650, 17 S. W. 388; Proeschel v. Schroeder, 83 T. 634, 19 S. W. 292; Stiles v. Japhet, 84 T. 91, 19 S. W. 455; Gaston v. Wright, 83 T. 282, 19 S. W. 576.
Merchandise purchased by a wife with money borrowed on the faith of her separate property is community property. Heldenheimer v. McKeen, 63 T. 229.

Where property purchased by a wife is to be paid for out of proceeds of crops on her land, it is community property. Cleveland v. Cole, 65 T. 402; Connor v. Hawkins, 66 T. 639, 2 S. W. 520.

Property purchased by a wife on credit is community property. Epperson v. Jones, 65 T. 425; Smith v. Bailey, 66 T. 553, 1 S. W. 627.

The grant of a headright certificate in 1838 to a married man, reciting that fact and the date of his immigration to Texas, does not constitute such certificate community property, and it remained with his children, who, upon married subsequent to his arrival in Texas, although the parties were living together as husband and wife at the date of the certificate. Boone v. Hulse, 71 T. 176, 9 S. W. 531.

A cause of action for a wrong to a wife is community property. Telegraph Co. v. Kerr, 23 S. W. 584, 4 C. A. 230.

If the husband did not, with his separate means, pay for land acquired after marriage, his wife was a tenant in common with him. House v. Williams, 16 C. A. 122, 49 S. W. 414.

A wife held to acquire no community interest in land conveyed to her husband without consideration to enable him to qualify as surety. Crenshaw v. Harris, 16 C. A. 263, 41 S. W. 391.

Money derived by mortgage of wife's separate lands is community property. Canfield v. Moore, 16 C. A. 472, 41 S. W. 718.

Where a husband and wife were separated for good and divided their community property, the mere fact that they years afterwards began living together again did not convert it into community property. Batla v. Batla (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 684.

Lands purchased in part with funds from community estate of husband, and partly with separate estate of wife, is community property to extent of investment of community funds. Clardy v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 196, 58 S. W. 52.

A property held in equity, its value being a resulting trust in favor of the community estate of husband and wife in property purchased at foreclosure, which was not changed by subsequent payments made to the purchaser out of the separate estate of the wife. Hirshfeld v. E. S. Kord (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 55.

Where a life tenant of land executed a deed of her interest to plaintiff, the holder of the fee-simple title, and her husband, at the same time that plaintiff deeded her interest in other land to the life tenant, and the deeds did not show that the consideration for the wife's interest in lands, the interest conveyed to plaintiff became community property. Scales v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 336.

That a surviving spouse purchases land with money secured from community property after the death of the other spouse does not impress the character of community property on the land so purchased. Griffin v. McKinney, 25 C. A. 492, 62 S. W. 78.

Proceeds of insurance policy on wife's life, payable to the husband, held to be the latter's separate property, and not community property. Martin v. McAllister, 94 T. 567, 63 S. W. 624.

If land purchased by husband and wife was bought partly for cash and partly on credit, and the cash was paid out of community funds, the land was community property, and, if the husband paid the balance, the property was chargeable therewith. Moore v. Moore, 25 C. A. 600, 58 S. W. 59.

Lands in Texas bought by a married man, with money which was his separate property, under the laws of the state where he earned it, held not community property. Blethen v. Bonner, 30 C. A. 585, 71 S. W. 290.

A deed to subject community lands in payment of note, wife's answer held not to show that title had been devested out of community estate and invested in her. Teague v. Lindsey, 31 C. A. 161, 71 S. W. 573.

Land purchased with the separate funds of a wife held not community property, subject to the husband's debts. Hall v. Levy, 31 C. A. 260, 72 S. W. 283.

Where a deed on a pecuniary consideration conveyed land to husband and wife, its legal effect was to convey the property to them as a community. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

Deed to wife, consideration for which is paid in community funds, held to convey title to the community, and place the lands under the husband's control. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

A ring purchased by a wife during coverture is community property, in the absence of evidence that it was purchased with her separate funds. Sweeney v. Taylor Bros., 41 C. A. 396, 92 S. W. 442.

The property acquired by husband and wife during marriage, otherwise than by gift, devise, or descent, held community property. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

A second wife held to have, as to the property acquired during the continuance of the relation existing between herself and a man not divorced from former wife, the rights of a lawful wife. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 53.

Land bought by a married woman becomes community property unless paid for by her separate means, or unless the title was placed in her own name for the purpose of making a gift to her. Wade v. Wade (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 188.

Where a man and wife settle on 160 acres of public land for the purpose of securing the land, the homestead, under the statute, and the wife dies in about a year, and the man marries again, and he and his second wife are living on the land when occupancy...

ripen as title, the land is the community property of the second marriage. Cremer v. Briccoe (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 936.

Even if application for a survey of public land were made by a husband during his wife's lifetime, if she dies before patent issues, she has obtained no community interest in the land. Simpson v. Oats (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 949.

Land acquired during the existence of a second marriage, by the exchange of land which constituted community property of the first marriage, does not become community property of the second marriage. Haring v. Sleton (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 393.

Whoever paid on or proceeds of life insurance taken out by her husband for his children by a former marriage, premiums of which had been paid from community funds. Rowlett v. Mitchell, 52 C. A. 583, 114 S. W. 845.

Part of proceeds of fraternal life insurance held to have become community property. Woodfin v. Woodfin (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 627.

All property conveyed to either a husband or wife during the marriage relation will, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, be presumed to be community property. Kin Kald v. Lee, 64 C. A. 622, 119 S. W. 342; Same v. Buck (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 346.

Property purchased on credit and afterward paid for with proceeds of the sale or mortgage of the wife's separate estate is not community property. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 55 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

The rights acquired under a tax deed conveying property to the husband was community property. Callen v. Collins, 56 C. A. 620, 120 S. W. 546.

Land purchased by the husband during marriage is part of the community estate. Edwards v. White (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 914.

Where a woman marries in ignorance of the fact that the man she marries has and lives with him until his death in ignorance of the existence of the former wife, she is entitled to the rights of a lawful wife in the property acquired by them or either of them during their marriage, regardless of whether she contributed anything to the community property. Id.

Even though a deed by its terms conveyed to a wife in her separate right, it could be shown that she took title under an express trust for the benefit of the community or her husband. Du Perier v. Du Perier (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 10.

Where a deed from a third party to a wife does not in terms convey the property to her separate use, or show that the consideration was paid out of her separate estate, title vests prima facie in the community. Id.

That the apparent title to lots was in a married woman does not of itself authorize a finding that they were her separate property. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

Where a wife purchased goods on credit to enable her to conduct a mercantile business in her own name, such goods became community property, so as to make her husband liable for the price, whether or not he knew that she purchased them on credit for her store. Richburg v. McLawaline, Knight & Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1166.

A contract by a husband for the purchase of state school land held a community obligation through which the wife acquires a half interest in the land. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 847.

Though, under this article and Art. 4623, a house purchased by the husband with his earnings after marriage, and the deed taken in the name of the wife, is community property, if the deed was obtained for a criminal purpose, or for a criminal transaction, by or through the party alleged to be the owner, then was the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Unimproved land purchased by a husband during the life of his first wife, which was improved by buildings, and which the family was occupying as a homestead before her death, is community property, even though no part of the purchase price had been paid, and the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Unimproved land purchased by a husband during the life of his first wife, which was improved by buildings, and which the family was occupying as a homestead before her death, is community property, even though no part of the purchase price had been paid, and the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Unimproved land purchased by a husband during the life of his first wife, which was improved by buildings, and which the family was occupying as a homestead before her death, is community property, even though no part of the purchase price had been paid, and the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Unimproved land purchased by a husband during the life of his first wife, which was improved by buildings, and which the family was occupying as a homestead before her death, is community property, even though no part of the purchase price had been paid, and the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Unimproved land purchased by a husband during the life of his first wife, which was improved by buildings, and which the family was occupying as a homestead before her death, is community property, even though no part of the purchase price had been paid, and the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Unimproved land purchased by a husband during the life of his first wife, which was improved by buildings, and which the family was occupying as a homestead before her death, is community property, even though no part of the purchase price had been paid, and the wife's interest therein descended and vested in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price, which was a community debt. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1142.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.
Real estate, the legal title to which was acquired by a husband during marriage, is community property, and a mere payment by him of the price out of his separate funds or not must be determined by the character of the right by which the title thereto had its inception. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

An instruction that all property deeded to either husband or wife during marriage and at all times possessed at the death of either of them is community property, unless the contrary be "satisfactorily proven," was not erroneous as on the weight of the evidence in view of this article, and the following article. Wood v. Dean (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 363.

Property purchased on credit for a business carried on by a husband on the wife's property and paid for out of the proceeds of such business is community property and not the separate property of the wife. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

5. Right of second community.—A second community cannot acquire an interest in land on which the wife is a tenant for life as survivor of the first community or create a charge against it by placing improvements thereon. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 710.

6. Life insurance.—Where a husband and wife assigned an insurance policy as collateral, the wife's death prior to that of her husband defeated the assignment and all rights predicated thereon. Stevens v. Germania Life Ins. Co., 26 C. A. 156; 62 S. W. 624.

A wife cannot claim the proceeds of an insurance policy on the life of her husband, even though the premium be paid out of their community estate, unless the payments are made with intent to defraud her. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

7. Interest, increase, rents, profits and products of separate property.—Interest accruing on the separate funds of the wife is community property. Branden v. Gose, 57 T. 37; Cabell v. Meinzer (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 306; Parrish v. Williams, 53 S. W. 79.

While the increase of cows, the separate property of the wife, becomes community property, a lien upon the unborn calves cannot be obtained by a levy of an execution upon the cows. Blum v. Light, 81 T. 414, 16 S. W. 1099.

Lumber sawed in a mill, the separate property of the wife, from trees grown on her separate property, the rents accruing on her realty, are community property. Hayden v. McMillen, 23 S. W. 430, 4 C. A. 478.

Rents of wife's separate property belong to the community. Schefflin v. Small, 23 S. W. 482, 4 C. A. 493.

Goods purchased with the profits of the wife's separate money, and on credit, are community property. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Lastinger (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 924.

The increase of live stock during the existence of the married relation is community property, though it is the increase of stock which is the separate property of the husband or wife. Wofford v. Melton, 26 C. A. 486, 63 S. W. 543.

The rents of a married woman's separate estate are community property, and, where assigned as security by husband and wife for the former's debt, are not discharged by an extension of time of payment given to the husband. De Berrera v. Frost, 33 C. A. 580, 77 S. W. 637.

The increase of cattle given to a married woman is community property. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 106, 117 S. W. 1041.

An interest in real estate inherited by a man is his separate property; but an interest purchased during his marriage is presumptively community property. Sauvage v. Wauhop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

Though the increase of live stock owned by the wife and existing before the death of her husband is community property in the absence of an agreement otherwise between them, the increase of her live stock after his death is not community property. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

A crop of hay grown on the land of the wife is community property and subject to sale by the husband. Kreisle v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1132.
8. Improvements on separate property.—A house constructed on the separate property of the wife, and paid for with community funds, remains part of the community. Maddox v. Summerlin, 92 T. 483, 49 S. W. 1033, 59 S. W. 567.

Where a wife used community funds to make improvements and pay taxes on her husband’s separate property, such property was liable to the wife’s heirs for one-half of the cost. Cervantes v. Cervantes, 83 S. W. 2d 76.

Where improvements on land owned separately by husband and wife were erected with community funds, such improvements became community property. King v. Summerlin (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

In an action by a wife for her separate property and for a half of the community property, the husband held not entitled to be reimbursed for improvements made on the separate property of the wife. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 145.

In the absence of community property, the wife is entitled to an interest in the improvements. The improvements would be community property, so that the husband would have an interest in the property. Brady v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 739.

The general rule that property acquired during marriage is presumptively that of the community does not apply to improvements made upon realty shown to be the separate estate of one of the spouses; and, in an action between a surviving husband and a daughter of his deceased wife to determine whether certain property was separate or community property, a showing by the surviving husband, to the satisfaction of the jury, that the property belonged to him individually makes a prima facie case of his ownership of the improvements, and it devolves upon the daughter to rebut the case thus made, in order to establish her claim for reimbursement for one-half of the value of the improvements. Darden v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 544.

9. Earnings of husband or wife.—A husband held entitled to have money earned by the family and for loans and necessary personal necessities applied first to the necessary. Cline v. Hackbarth, 27 C. A. 391, 65 S. W. 1086.

Money earned by a married woman by teaching school is community property in the absence of an agreement between herself and husband that it shall be her separate estate. Barr v. Slaton, 64 S. W. 117, 67 S. W. 1044.

The earnings of a husband and wife belong to the community estate, and are under the control of the husband. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

10. Partnership.—As to rights and liabilities of a married woman as partner in a mercantile business, see Middlebrook v. Zapp, 73 T. 28, 10 S. W. 732.

Money obtained by a husband as damages for personal injuries sustained subsequent to marriage is community funds. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 599.

A right of action against a railroad for personal injuries to a husband held community property, one-half of which might be set apart to the wife on divorce. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 T. 392, 67 S. W. 538.

Damages for a wife’s loss of credit as a merchant and destruction of her business are community property and recoverable only by her husband. Ainsa v. Moses (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 731.

Damages for personal injuries to either husband or wife are community property. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231.

Damages recovered by a widow and children for a malicious criminal prosecution against the husband for being community property, damages recovered will be equally divided between the widow and children. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Groseclose (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 736.

Damages sustained by a husband and wife for injuries to the wife, being community property, are recoverable to the extent that a single verdict, including damages to both, was allowed. Posener v. Long (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 691.

What law governs.—Where the husband received money belonging to the wife at their marriage, which became his by the common law, and afterwards he invested the money in land in Texas, held, that such land was not community property. McDaniel v. Harley (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 322.

Under the Spanish law, property held by either spouse before marriage, remains the separate property of such consort, and the status of the property is to be determined by the origin of the title. Welder v. Lambert, 91 T. 516, 44 S. W. 281.

Facts held not to show that one was domiciled in Texas, and was temporarily absent, so that the laws of Texas would determine his martial rights to property earned while absent. Blethen v. Bonner, 30 C. A. 585, 71 S. W. 290.

14. Existence of community.—A woman who marries a man holding a divorce, without knowing that such divorce is void, is entitled to a partnership or community interest in property jointly acquired during the time she lives with him as his wife, and she can assert her rights thereto against the lawful wife and her children after the husband’s death. Morgan v. Morgan, 1 C. A. 315, 21 S. W. 154.

That plaintiff, while maintaining illicit relations with deceased, worked for him without receiving any wages, is insufficient to give her a community interest in deceased’s property. Harris v. Hobbs, 22 C. A. 367, 54 S. W. 1085.

A putative wife, so long as she acts innocently, has the rights of a lawful wife as to the property acquired by her and her supposed husband, in analogy to the rule which governs coparcners. Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 789.

15. Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 4632.

16. Evidence—Sufficiency—Proof that at the marriage the husband had much money and the wife nothing, and that during the marriage their property decreased, does not rebut the presumption that the property belongs to the community. Schmidt v. Garey, 49 T. 49.
That part of the purchase money for land purchased by a husband during the life of the first wife was first during the life of his second wife is a sufficient evidence that the money so paid was the community of the husband and the second wife. Medlenka v. Downing, 69 T. 32.
The testimony of a husband that property possessed jointly by himself and wife when she died was not separate property cannot control the legal effect which attaches to the detail of facts connected with its acquisition, which impress it with the character of community property. Peet v. Railway Co., 70 T. 522, 8 S. W. 203.
Where, at the time property was sold, the husband's separate property, if any, was commingled with the community property, any presumption that might arise from statements in deeds that the real estate which was purchased by a part of the proceeds of sale was his separate property, is rebutted and its status as community property is shown. A. v. W., 24 C. A. 160, 57 S. W. 993.
Direct testimony of an intention to make land separate property of wife held necessary to prevent the legal presumption that it was community property. Hirsch v. Howell (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 887.
Evidence held not to support a verdict that property was community property. Riddle v. Riddle (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 970.
Testimony held not to contradict evidence that property was not community property. Gilbert v. Edwards, 32 C. A. 460, 74 S. W. 959.
Whether or not certain lands were community property, the presumption that they were held rebutted. Thayer v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 1050.
The presumption that property conveyed to a wife is community property may be overcome by proof showing that it is the wife's separate property. Hames v. State, 46 Cr. R. 562, 61 S. W. 708.
The presumption that land conveyed to a husband during marriage was purchased with community funds may be rebutted by showing that as a matter of fact he bought the land and paid for it out of his separate funds. York v. Hilger (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1117.
When property is acquired ten years after marriage, it is presumptive evidence of the presumption that it is community, that strong and satisfactory evidence will be required to destroy its community character. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 815.
In trespass to try title, evidence held not to rebut the presumption of community interest. Henry v. Vaughan, 46 C. A. 391, 103 S. W. 182.
The proof rebutting the presumption that property acquired during coverture is community, and to establish its separate character, must be clear and satisfactory. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 719 S. W. 148.
Where community property was involved, evidence held to show that the wife was the mother of four children. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.
Evidence held to justify a finding that real estate was community property of a husband and wife. Wing v. Red (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 301.
Where a wife living with her husband purchased land from the state in her name, pursuant to an agreement with a third person that he would give the wife the money to cover the expenses and pay for the land, the first payment, interest, and taxes were paid by her out of money so given her, the husband and wife both expected that deferred payments would be met by means of such gifts, and neither had any reasonable expectation or hope that they would be able to finish paying for the land unless such gifts were made as promised, the facts overcome the presumption that land purchased by the husband and wife living together is community property, although the husband joined in the notes for the deferred payments, and hence, the land being her separate property, a purchaser from the husband and wife took it free from a lien of a judgment against the husband. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 164 S. W. 1157.
17. Management conveyances, Incumbrances or gifts of community property before separation. While a husband may convey property he holds in the name of the wife, without her consent, for her benefit, to a third person, it is sufficient evidence that the conveyance was made for her benefit and this is a gift of interest in the conveyance to the third person. Smith v. C. & O. R. R., 19 C. A. 446, 31 S. W. 472.
A pre-existing debt is a sufficient consideration of a trust deed on community property. Boehm v. Beuter, 16 C. A. 380, 41 S. W. 658.
Jointure of a wife is not necessary to a trust deed given by the husband on community property.
In the absence of fraud on the rights of his wife, a purchaser of land may renew the original purchase-money note after it is barred by limitations, and thereby bar her rights in the premises, though the land is his homestead. Jackson v. Bradshaw, 24 C. A. 30, 67 S. W. 878.

Where a note reserving a vendor's lien, executed to a husband and wife for the purchase-money, is transferred to a third party by action on the note, it is error to decree an undivided half of the lot to the wife free from the lien, and foreclose the lien as to the husband. Noel v. Clark, 25 C. A. 136, 60 S. W. 356.

Under the facts, a husband's fraudulent conduct, creating a charge on community property, did not bind the wife. Cetti v. Dunman, 26 C. A. 495, 64 S. W. 787.

A deed by a husband of an undivided 110 acres out of a 310-acre tract owned by him and his wife as community property, and occupied by them as a home, will pass the title thereto, though the wife does not join therein. Mass v. Bromberg, 28 C. A. 146, 66 S. W. 468.

Where two-thirds of the land on which a lake was situated was community property, whether a grant of water rights, executed by husband and wife, was properly executed by the husband, held immovable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fenn, 33 C. A. 563, 76 S. W. 927.

A wife's contract for the sale of community property in payment of community debts held binding on her and on her children. Hughes v. Landrum, 40 C. A. 196, 89 S. W. 85.

A wife alone with the assent of her husband may make a valid conveyance of community real estate. Roos v. Basham, 41 C. A. 561, 91 S. W. 656.

A husband may sell or pledge community property purchased by the wife. Sweeney v. Taylor Bros., 41 C. A. 365, 92 S. W. 442.

A married woman, seeking to set aside a deed of community property on the ground of the fraud of the grantor, her son, held not entitled to recover all the land; the son owning an interest by inheritance from her husband. Wade v. Wade (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 188.

A husband may convey community property without the wife joining in the deed. Zuckerman v. Munz, 45 C. A. 357, 107 S. W. 78.

A deed from a husband alone held sufficient to convey the title to community property other than homestead. Best v. Kirkendall (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 932.

A deed by a husband to his wife with remainder to the children held to convey the entire estate, and not merely the husband's interest therein. Lindly v. Lindly (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 467, judgment affirmed (Sup.) 113 S. W. 756. And the wife may not claim title to half the land as her community interest therein, on the theory that the transaction was governed by the doctrine of election. Id.

In an action to try title to land in which defendant claimed an interest as the putative wife of plaintiff's grantor, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant did not in good faith believe that she was lawfully married to plaintiff's grantor, or that she was his wife at the time title to the property was acquired by him. Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 789.

A married woman's deed of gift to her children held to convey her interest in the community estate, though her husband's name does not appear as grantor in the deed and he held the record title. Couch v. Schwalbe, 51 C. A. 94, 111 S. W. 1046.

The husband cannot by gift to himself convey community property into his separate property, neither during his lifetime nor by will. Rowlett v. Mitchell, 52 C. A. 559, 114 S. W. 845.

The absolute right of a husband to dispose of community property held to end with the termination of the marriage relation. Id.

A man, while a widower took out a policy in W. O. W. for benefit of his children by first marriage; continued to pay premiums on policy from community funds of second marriage without intent to defraud second wife. This he could do because his right to dispose of community funds is absolute so long as it is not exercised to defraud his wife. Id.

Where the boundary between land constituting the community and homestead of a husband and wife and the land of the adjacent owner is in dispute, an agreement between the adjacent owner and the husband alone, fixing the boundary, is valid. Moreno v. Salazar (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 391.

Land conveyed by a married woman and her husband held not subject to a levy under execution issued under a judgment against the husband. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 106, 117 S. W. 1041.

A pretended sale of a stock of merchandise by one to his wife held ineffectual. Dawson v. Baldrige, 55 C. A. 124, 118 S. W. 593.

Conveyances held not to make land the community estate of husband and wife, and the conveyances were only valid in so far as they subjected the land to the payment of money borrowed. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 638.

That husband and wife, contributing community property, jointly made a contract of partnership with another does not invalidate the contract as between the husband and the third party if understood only with the husband, and the wife not engaging in the conduct of the business. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

Though a husband can dispose of community property without his children's consent or without his wife's consent when not in fraud by her rights, he cannot give her interest to a stranger. Harris (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 527.

A married man may without oonent of his wife make partition with one to whom he and his wife have conveyed an undivided half of community property, so long as his homestead rights are respected. Paschall v. Brown (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 509.

The property by a wife and children in community estate in consideration of the husband and father conveying to them other land is not enforceable, though the conveyances were made. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 35.

A grantee of a purchaser of state lands who agrees to pay the state a specified sum per acre, and who moves on the land with his wife and family, may, during the life of his wife, convey without her consent, in order to relieve himself of his burden to the state, or the community. Jones v. Harris (Cliv. App.) 125 S. W. 69.

Under the constitutions of 1845 and 1866, held, that a husband's trust deed of community property, subject to a homestead, without the wife's consent, became an effective trust deed on the death of the wife. Wiener v. Zwieb, 116 T. 262, 131 S. W. 771, 147 S. W. 867.

An absolute deed of a husband to community property held to vest the title. Snipes v. Morton (Cliv. App.) 144 S. W. 286.

A husband, in the absence of fraud on the rights of the wife, was competent to convey community rights by transfer of his interest. The effect of such conveyance was not vitiated by the wife's knowledge of such conveyance. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Davidson (Cliv. App.) 152 S. W. 856.

A husband's power to convey community property, not burdened with homestead rights, in the absence of fraud on the rights of the wife, without her joining, conferred by the evidence, to which time the marriage relation is legally dissolved, id.

18. Recovery for ouster.—A wife cannot sue for damages for being ousted from land purchased by her husband, and upon which she was living with him at the time of such ouster. Jackson v. Bradshaw, 28 C. A. 394, 67 S. W. 495.

19. Trusts in favor of wife.—Rents of a wife's separate property belong to the community and may be conveyed to a trustee to apply to her support. Scheppfin v. Small, 23 S. W. 453, 4 C. A. 498.

20. Sale of expectancy in community estate.—A wife's expectancy in the community estate of her living mother is, after the death of her father, the subject of sale by her. Barre v. Daggett, 105 T. 572, 153 S. W. 120.

21. Insanity of wife.—When the wife is hopelessly insane the husband can alone convey the homestead, which is community property. In this case, even if insanity of the wife does not give the husband the right to convey alone, the deed is effective because at time of sale the homestead had been abandoned. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Shields, 20 C. A. 548, 56 S. W. 219.

22. Insanity of husband.—A wife whose husband is insane may not convey community property constituting the homestead and make contracts as a feme sole. Heldenheim v. v. Moore, 52 T. 195.

23. Evidence.—Evidence held to support a finding that the use by a husband of community funds of his second marriage to pay premiums on a life policy in favor of the children of his first marriage was not with intent to defraud his second wife. Rowlett v. Mitchell, 55 C. A. 669, 114 S. W. 848.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant in purchasing was put on inquiry as to plaintiffs' claim to the land as community property. Ross v. Martin (Cliv. App.) 128 S. W. 718.

Evidence that it was generally known that husband and wife were separated, and that property conveyed by his separate deed was community property, held insufficient to justify an inference of fraud, or charge the purchaser with notice of the husband's fraudulent intent to deprive his wife of her interest. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Davidson (Cliv. App.) 152 S. W. 856.

24. Abandonment or separation or dissolution of community as affecting title of parties.—As to the property rights of a married woman abandoned by her husband. Insurance Co. v. May (Cliv. App.) 35 S. W. 829.

Evidence that it was generally known that husband and wife were separated, and that property conveyed by his separate deed was community property, held insufficient to justify an inference of fraud, or charge the purchaser with notice of the husband's fraudulent intent to deprive his wife of her interest. Rowlett v. Mitchell, 55 C. A. 669, 114 S. W. 848.

In an action to subject community lands to payment of a debt, cross-action set up by wife held not maintainable, in that it sought a partition of community property, in which proceeding plaintiff had no concern. Teague v. Lindsey, 31 C. A. 161, 71 S. W. 873.

Statement of right of husband, who has desecrated his wife, to dispose of community property, King v. King, 41 C. A. 478, 91 S. W. 635.

The right of a wife to her share in the community property acquired by her husband held not forfeited, where the husband abandoned the wife and a child, and the wife, erroneously believing that he had obtained a divorce, married. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 299, 104 S. W. 514.

A wife having been abandoned by her husband held entitled to collect and expend for her necessities wages earned by the husband, and to receive thereof to the husband's employer. Irwin v. Irwin (Cliv. App.) 110 S. W. 1011.

25. Abandonment or separation as affecting right to manage, incumber or convey.—When a husband has deserted the wife, is separated from her, or confined in the penitentiary, she is authorized to manage community property and to make contracts as a feme sole. Walker v. Stringfellow, 30 T. 570; Blanchet v. Bugat, 5 T. 507; Wright v. Harrell, 224; Caldwell v. Doyle, 13 T. 180; Fullerton v. Leverton, 42 T. 18; Carothers v. McNee, 48 T. 221; Zimpelman v. Robb, 53 T. 274; Davis v. Saladee, 57 T. 352; Wright v. Blackwood, 57 T. 644; Ezell v. Dodson, 60 T. 331; Black v. Black, 63 T. 256; Heldenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287; Slator v. Neal, 64 T. 222; Clemens v. Douglass, 61 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

Where a husband abandons his wife she may assert her rights in the community property and may intervene in an suit against the husband by his creditors for her own protection. Cuillers v. James, 66 T. 494, 1 S. W. 314.

A wife, after a separation of a husband by his wife, without the intention of returning held, that the husband had a right to incumber the community property and to pass a fee simple title thereto. Mabry v. Kennedy, 49 C. A. 45, 108 S. W. 176.

26. Conveyance of a widowed wife to community property held admissible in trespass to try title on a showing of abandonment by the husband. Snipes v. Morton (Cliv. App.) 144 S. W. 286.

In trespass to try title against a husband and wife, evidence held to show an abandonment by the husband of the wife, so as to clothe her with power to sell community property. Id.
Art. 4622
HUSBAND AND WIFE

That husband and wife were living apart, and had been separated for several years, did not deprive the husband of the authority to convey community real property by separate deed, nor was it sufficient to show that such conveyance was fraudulent as to the wife. But evidence that it was generally known in the neighborhood that the husband and wife were separated, and that the land was community property, was insufficient to charge the purchase of fraud or cause of a fraudulent intent of the husband to deprive the wife of her interest therein. Ragley-McWilliams Lumber Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 856.

26. — Divorce as affecting right to manage, incumber or convey.—After divorce the husband can only bind his half interest in property by a new contract. A new contract for the purpose of one-half interest in a community land would convey his entire interest therein. The remaining half, if the sale by metes and bounds made an equitable division, would be the property of the wife, with legal title in the husband or his heirs. In absence of any conveyance an equitable title of the wife with the equitables holding the legal title, can recover the land. Goode v. Jasper, 71 T. 48, 9 S. W. 132.

After divorce, if the community property is not disposed of by the decree, the former husband and wife are tenants in common of such property, and the former husband no longer represents the former wife or the community estate. Boemer v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 635.

27. — Authority, interest and liability of survivor.—See notes under Art. 2469 and Title 52, Chapter 29.

28. — Presumptions.—See notes under following article and Art. 3687, Rule 12.

29. — Actions for community property.—A husband’s right to sue for money alleged to be community property may be defeated by proof under a general denial, that it was his wife’s separate property. Michael v. Rabe, 56 C. A. 441, 120 S. W. 665.

While suit to recover on an account due a community should be brought by the husband, that the wife was made party plaintiff was not ground for dismissing the cause; dismissal of the wife on timely exception being the proper remedy. Gentry v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 162.

Since the damages sustained by husband and wife for personal injuries to the wife are community property, it was no objection, in a suit by both to recover damages, that the husband had no independent interest. Posener v. Long (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 591.

30. — Right of action by abandoned wife against husband.—An abandoned wife held not entitled to recover a personal judgment against her husband for an alleged fraudulent disposition by him of wages constituting community property. Irwin v. Irwin (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1017.

31. — Quieting husband’s title.—The husband’s title to community property will not be quieted against the unfounded verbal assertion of the wife to title. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

32. — Rights and liabilities of heirs.—See notes under Art. 2469 and Title 52, Chapter 29.

33. — Liabilities.—See notes under Title 87.

34. — Redemption of community from liens.—In a suit to enforce a vendor’s lien, the wife of the vendee, being entitled to a community interest in the land, held entitled to redeem. Cavin v. Wichita Valley Townsite Co., 36 C. A. 336, 82 S. W. 342.

35. — Administration of community property.—See notes under Title 52, Chapter 29.

36. — Allowance to widow and children.—See notes under Title 52, Chapter 17.

37. — Descent and distribution.—See notes under Art. 2469.

Art. 4623. [2969] Presumption as to community property.—All the effects which the husband and wife possess at the time the marriage is dissolved shall be regarded as common effects or gains, unless the contrary be satisfactorily proved. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4638.]

Applicability in general.—The presumption which obtains when the marriage is dissolved, that property in the possession of either spouse belongs to the community, applies to dissolution by divorce as well as by death. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 996.

Presumptions and burden of proof.—Property found in the possession of either husband or wife at the time the marriage is dissolved is presumed to be community property. Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 179; Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 16; Heidheimer v. Loring, 26 S. W. 59, 6 C. A. 560; McCelvey v. Cryer (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 175; Perkins v. Adams, 17 C. A. 331, 43 S. W. 529; Edelstein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1129.

The presumption in favor of the community, resulting from a deed made to either husband or wife, may be rebutted by proof that it was bought with the separate funds of either. When the deed is made to the wife, it may be shown to be for her benefit, not only from the advance by her of the purchase money, but if the funds be advanced from the separate means of the husband, the presumption of a gift arises, and if from the separate funds it may be proven that the husband intended a gift, and directed the deed to be made in her name. Dunham v. Chatham, 21 T. 231, 73 Am. Dec. 253; Smith v. Strahan, 16 T. 314, 67 Am. Dec. 622; Higgins v. Johnson, 20 T. 355, 70 Am. Dec. 794; Meahl, 24 T. 356, 76 Am. Dec. 106; Hatchett v. Conner, 30 T. 104; Tucker v. Carr, 23 T. 95. Such a trust cannot be ingrafted on a deed to the prejudice of creditors or purchasers without notice; and the fact that a conveyance is made to a married woman does not put the purchaser upon inquiry. Cook v. Bremond, 27 T. 467, 99 Am. 577; A. W. v. Oberhier, 52 T. 453; McDaniell v. Weiss, 53 T. 257; Wallace v. Campbell, 54 T. 87.

Plaintiff, suing as a female sole, alleged that she was the owner and entitled to possession, and that she held by regular chain of title, which she filed. One of the deeds was made while her husband was living. Held, that there was no error in refusing to charge that presumptively the land was community property. Distinguished from Hatchett v. Conner, 30 T. 104.

One who bought from the state school lands in the name of his wife, in pursuance of a contract with other parties, by the terms of which they also should purchase other sections, all of which were to be used for mining purposes, must be presumed, in the absence of evidence, to have used community funds in acquiring the lands patented to her. If, at the time of purchase, it was the intention of the husband that the land should belong to her, then, as to the husband and his heirs, and those claiming under him with notice, the land would be regarded as the separate property of the wife. Edwards v. Brown, 49 T. 329, 4 S. W. 350, 8 S. W. 67; Britton v. Wolf, 46 T. 347, 4 S. W. 42, 394, 944. Where a deed is made to a wife without a recital that it is intended for her separate use does not destroy the presumption that it is community property. Sinzheimer v. Kahn, 6 C. A. 143, 24 S. W. 533; Cooke v. Bremond, 27 T. 459, 86 Am. Dec. 626; French v. Strumberg, 66 T. 541, 109 Parker & Coop, 60 T. 312.

Presumptions will not be indulged in evidence of the recitals in a conveyance. Mariposa L. & C. Co. v. Silliman, 26 S. W. 978, 87 T. 142.

A married woman's record brand on cattle raises the presumption that they are community property, if acquired during coverture, unless the record shows contrary. Rhodes v. Alexander, 19 C. A. 552, 47 S. W. 754.

Deeds to and by the wife held not to destroy the presumption that the land acquired during coverture was community estate. Maxson v. Jennings, 19 C. A. 700, 48 S. W. 781. Where the property is purchased with community funds, and the deed is taken in the wife's name, there is no presumption that it was to become her separate estate by gift from the husband. Schwartzman v. Cabell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1158.

Nor is it necessary that the land should be separate means because the conveyance, made after the husband's death, recites that the consideration was paid by her. Clark v. Clark, 21 C. A. 371, 51 S. W. 337.

Where a deed executed by the surviving wife of one who during his life held the title in the name of the other for less than five years, it should be presumed that the land was community property. Wolf v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 238.

Personal property, acquired during marriage, is presumed to have been earned by one or the other, or both, members of the community. Thayer v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 1650.

Facts held to give rise to presumption that land conveyed to a husband during marriage was purchased with community funds. York v. Hilger (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1117.

The court may assume, when there is nothing to show when the property of deceased was acquired, that it was acquired during the existence of the marriage relation. Stein v. Mertz, 42 C. A. 35, 94 S. W. 449.

The legal presumption that land purchased by a husband and wife during the existence of the community property prevails in the absence of proof to the contrary. Letot v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1121.

In an action by the children and heirs at law of a deceased woman to recover her community interest from her surviving husband, the burden of proof was on defendant to satisfy the presumption that the property acquired during the marriage was his separate property. Edelstein v. Brown (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1126.

A sale of land by a trustee to his wife, held presumed to have become the common property, and cannot be held against an application to set aside the sale accompanied by an offer to do equity. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 565, 109 S. W. 909.

The consideration for land conveyed to husband during lifetime of wife being cash, in the absence of evidence that the money was the separate property of the husband, the presumption is that the land at the death of the husband was community. Frey v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 593.

Where land is "reciprocally possessed" at the dissolution of the marriage by the death of one of the parties, it must be regarded as common effects or gains unless the contrary is clearly shown. Phillips v. Palmer, 127 S. W. 850.

The rule that property acquired during marriage is presumptively that of the community held not to apply to improvements made upon realty shown to be the separate estate of one of the spouses. Darden v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 944.
Where, on a wife securing a divorce, her husband testified that he had separate property at the marriage, but that he kept no separate account of the funds, but made a "Duke's Mixture" of the whole thing, and he made no attempt to trace the changes and mutations of the property, a decree dividing it as community estate was proper. Ervin v. Ervin (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1139.

It is strongly intimated during a first marriage acquired to the community estate of that marriage. Lynch v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 461.

The presumption that property acquired during the existence of the relation of husband and wife was community property is rebuttable, and may be overcome by a showing that the consideration was from the separate means of one of the spouses. Winfield v. Rilling (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 528.

Property sued for by a husband will be presumed to be community property of both husband and wife. Blackwood v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 516.

Real estate acquired during marriage and occupied by the parties is presumptively community property, and on the death of the husband, leaving no children living at the time of his death, the title vests in the surviving wife. Ross v. Martin, 104 T. 553, 140 S. W. 482, 141 S. W. 818.

A payment by a husband on community property soon after the death of his wife does not raise a presumption that the money belonged to his separate estate. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

Where a woman executed a deed as survivor of the community estate, and marriage, death of the husband, and destruction of county records were shown, the facts justified a presumption that the property was community property and that the grantor had authority to sell. Crosby v. Arloin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 789.

Public land purchased from the state in the name of either husband or wife while they are living together is prima facie community property, but the presumption may be overcome by proof that, as between the husband and wife, such land is the separate property of one or the other. McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

An instruction that all property devised to either husband or wife during marriage and all effects possessed at the death of either is presumed to be community property, unless the contrary can be "satisfactorily proven," was not erroneous as to the weight of the evidence in view of this article and Art. 4622. Wood v. Dean (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 863.

Art. 4624. What property subject to debts of wife; husband must join in certain contracts.—Neither the separate property of the husband nor the community property other than the personal earnings of the wife, and the income, rents and revenues from her separate property shall be subject to the payments of debts contracted by the wife, except those contracted for necessaries furnished her or her children; provided, the wife shall never be the joint maker of a note or a surety on any bond or obligation of another without the joinder of her husband with her in making such contract. [Act March 13, 1848. P. D. 4643. Acts 1913, p. 61, sec. 1 amending Art. 4624, Rev. St. 1911.]

Authority to contract in general.—When a husband has deserted the wife, is separated from her, or confined in the penitentiary, she is authorized to manage the community property and her separate property, and to make contracts as a feme sole. Walker v. Wright v. Duurat, 5 T. 570; Blanchard v. Hays, 10 T. 130, 60 Am. Dec. 200; Fullerton v. Doyle, 18 T. 3; Ann Berta Lodge v. Leverton, 42 T. 18; Carothers v. McNee, 43 T. 221; Zimpelman v. Robb, 52 T. 274; Davis v. Saladee, 57 T. 326; Wright v. Blackwood, 57 T. 644; Essell v. Dodson, 60 T. 351; Black v. Black, 62 T. 435; Steinfeldshenie v. Thomas, 65 T. 297; Slater v. Neal, 64 T. 222; Clemens v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

The laws of another state authorizing a married woman to contract debts as a feme sole, a debt contracted by her in that state can be sued on in this state. Merriell's v. State Bank, 24 S. W. 554, 5 C. A. 428.

A married woman has power to compromise a suit and agree on a judgment in person or by attorney. Cordray v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 245.

A married woman can contract for the purchase of property, part in cash and part on time. For the deferred payment her separate property cannot be held liable, but she would be protected to the extent of the cash consideration paid out of her separate estate. Pitt v. Elser, 7 C. A. 47, 32 S. W. 148.

Parties under coverture are bound by their agreements made in the course of judicial proceedings and upon which a judgment is entered. Blagge v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 756.

Since no cause of action exists against a married woman as a partner in a mercantile firm, a garnishment against her alone, in an action against the firm, is properly quashed. Cleveland v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

A check signed by a wife alone, with her husband's consent, is valid. Ragsdale v. Groos (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 256.

A widow who has remarried may renew a note given by her former husband and herself as part of the price of property and thereby extend the time in which to pay the price. Proetzl v. Rabel, 21 C. A. 559, 54 S. W. 373.

The debts named may be contracted by the wife without reference to abandonment by the husband. Shaw v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

A judgment cannot be rendered against a married woman on notes not executed for necessities furnished to her or family, or for the preservation of her separate estate. Noel v. Clark, 25 C. A. 136, 60 S. W. 356.

Where plaintiff kept house, and nursed and cared for an invalid wife, under promise of a legacy, which was not given, the fact that the invalid's husband lived with her, and hence necessarily received benefit from the service, did not affect plaintiff's right to compensation from the wife's estate. Von Carolwitz v. Bernstein, 29 C. A. 8, 66 S. W. 464.

An agreement by a married woman for division of property, as between herself and husband on the one side, and her adult children on the other side, is valid. Crouch v. Crouch, 30 C. A. 288, 70 S. W. 1066.

The authority granted the wife by this article is strictly construed, and no appeal to the equitable powers of the court can be made to bind the wife not executed under the provisions of the statute. Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 639, 77 S. W. 150. Forthwith, the provisions already intimated, and of the existence or nonexistence of the circumstances and facts, that would authorize her to execute a contract such as is authorized by this article. Haas v. American Nat. Bank, 42 C. A. 167, 94 S. W. 439, 440.

A woman's right to make contracts, and to be bound by contracts, as far as her separate estate is concerned, is absolute. Bennett v. Mellor, 45 C. A. 625, 103 S. W. 215.

One held not entitled to defeat recovery for a married woman's services on the ground that she was not authorized by her husband to contract therefor. O'Connell v. Stoneman (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1174.

A wife held not personally liable for a piano not purchased for her separate estate. Wright v. Couch (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 321.

A married woman is not liable on her note, where the consideration was a previous debt due from her husband. Burnham-Hanna-Munger Dry Goods Co. v. Carter, 52 C. A. 294, 113 S. W. 782.

A married woman cannot bind herself for debts by ordinary contract, except as authorized by this article, and is not liable on a contract to pay a commission for the sale of her real or personal property, which was not signed by the husband nor acknowledged by the wife. Billingsly v. Swenson Land Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 194.

A partnership contract between husband and wife jointly with a third person held not invalid on that account between the husband and third person. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

A married woman because of her coverture was not liable on notes given by her for the price of a piano. Hall v. Dechert (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1133.

A wife has no legal capacity to make a contract to sell her separate property, either directly in her own name or indirectly, by not authorizing her husband to do so, where there is no evidence that the contract is for necessaries or for the benefit of her separate property. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960.

A married woman is not bound by a parol contract for the payment of commissions for the sale of land. Caldwell v. Scott Bros. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1192.

A rental contract of a farm constituting the separate property of a married woman, which gives to the lessee the use of the farm for his own benefit for a year in consideration of a stipulated rental in money, is not a contract for the benefit of the separate property of the wife within this article, and she is not bound thereby. Taylor v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1061.

A married woman's contract for a purpose other than such as is expressly authorized by statute is void. Thompson v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 706.

In general, a married woman cannot make a contract or be bound by one made for her, or under her authority, not for necessaries, or for the benefit of her separate property. Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1085.

The conveyance in an action by a married woman, in which her husband joined, alleged the making of a contract with defendant, a real estate broker, by the wife in the husband's presence, and with his consent, by which she was to have a share of the broker's commissions on sales to purchasers sent him by her. An amended petition, filed after a motion to dismiss for limitations, in which the husband was named as sole plaintiff, alleged the making of the contract by him. Held, that the contract alleged in both petitions was the same; and hence the cause was not barred by limitations. Since the cause alleged in the original petition was the husband's contract, made by the wife as agent, in view of this article, which is the only statute authorizing a married woman to contract. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

A married woman has no power, except as a is given by statute, to bind herself personally by a contract.

Abandonment by husband.—Wife held competent to lease premises in absence of husband, where judgment in action of forcible entry and detainer had been rendered. Golden v. City of Galveston, 20 C. A. 584, 50 S. W. 416.

A wife who has been abandoned by her husband can execute a valid mortgage to secure a debt theretofore incurred for necessaries. Fermier v. Brannan, 21 C. A. 543, 53 S. W. 699.

When abandoned by the husband a wife's contracts are treated as those of a feme sole, and she can make contracts, not only concerning her separate estate, but in certain instances, as to the community estate. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

Where a married woman has been abandoned, she may contract without joining her husband. Heagy v. Kastner (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 788.

A wife who has been abandoned by her husband may act as a feme sole, pay community debts, and dispose of property that is separate, and the community property, either for that purpose or to secure necessaries for herself and family, as the survivor of the consensual partnership, and is authorized to bind herself by a note executed to secure an extension of the community debt. Crowder v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1166.

A married woman, buying furniture with her separate property, at a time when she was permanently separated from her husband, and only two months before she was divorced from him, and who ratified the sale after divorce by payments thereon, cannot rely on coverture to defeat the sale. Peck v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 817.
Avoidance of contract with wife.—Though a married woman is not bound by her contract, the other party to the contract cannot refuse to perform it. J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 560.

Necessaries and family expenses as charges.—To charge the estate of a wife with a debt incurred by her, it must be shown that it was contracted by herself or by her express authority, for necessaries for herself or children, or for the benefit of her separate property, and that the charges were reasonable and proper. Harris v. Williams, 44 T. 124; Watkins v. Frazier, 54 T. 245; Christensen v. Smith, 44 T. 120; Butler v. Robertson, 11 T. 142; Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 329; Rhodes v. Gibbs, 29 T. 492; Trimble v. Miller, 21 T. 241; Trousdale v. Underwood, 27 T. 255; Covington v. Burleson, 21 T. 355; Menard v. Sydnor, 29 T. 257; Lee v. Crosby, 1 App. C. C. § 140; Seyar v. Cowan v. Harloe, 1 App. C. C. § 929; Rosenbaum v. Morgan, 1 App. C. C. § 177; Kelley v. Embree, 1 App. C. C. § 192; Wheeler v. Burks (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 434; Finks v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 711. Contra, see McPadden v. Crumpler, 20 T. 574; Christmas v. Smith, 19 T. 122; Brown v. Ector, 19 T. 346; Haynes v. Stovall, 23 T. 620. And see George v. Stevens, 21 T. 670; Magee v. White, 23 T. 190; Stansbury v. Nichols, 20 T. 145.

Evidence held sufficient proof of possession of separate estate by wife to sustain judgment against her for necessaries. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

In an action against the estate of a wife for necessary personal services rendered to her, it is not necessary to show that her husband was unable or refused to pay for such services. Von Carlowitz v. Bernstein, 28 C. A. 8, 66 S. W. 464.

Necessaries furnished by a married woman are necessary for herself and children held enforceable against her separate property. Hild v. Hellman (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 44.

A married woman's note after the death of her husband held not enforceable against her unless it was for necessaries, or if she had converted community property. J. B. New¬ton & Sons v. Eagle (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1161.

What are necessaries.—When husband and wife have lived in one place and in rented property, and for the benefit of the wife's health have moved to another place and lived in rented property for a while, and then the wife concludes to build a home, the house purchased is not such a necessary as will bind the wife's separate property for its payment. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Headly, 21 C. A. 154, 50 S. W. 1078, 57 S. W. 563.

An attorney at law cannot maintain an independent suit against the husband for legal services rendered the wife in divorce proceedings against him, as for necessaries furnished the wife. An agreed fee cannot be collected unless it was reasonable. Bord v. Stubbs, 22 C. A. 242, 54 S. W. 633.

Attorneys employed by a wife to prosecute a divorce can recover from the husband therefor only on a showing that the suit was instituted by the wife in good faith and for proper cause. Dodd v. Hefn, 26 C. A. 104, 62 S. W. 811.

Under the facts, held, that a wife had no authority to bring a child into the family without her husband's consent, and to execute a note for the tuition of such child in a business college. Haas v. American Nat. Bank, 42 C. A. 167, 94 S. W. 439.

A wife purchasing the articles will be the judge of what are necessary for herself and children, subject to decision of court and jury as to whether they are reasonable and proper. Desmond v. Dockery (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 115.

Husband's liability for necessaries.—A husband is liable for necessaries furnished the wife after he has abandoned her. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

Debts or liabilities charged on separate estate.—A married woman is not personally liable for the unpaid purchase money of land conveyed to her by direction of the husband. Ellis v. Wright, 27 T. 229; Farr v. Miller, 24 T. 214; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 356; Menard v. Sydnor, 29 T. 257.

A married woman, by mortgage or deed of trust executed by herself and husband, and duly acknowledged under the statute, can incumber her separate property for the payment of the debt. Trimble v. Miller, 24 T. 214; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 356; Menard v. Sydnor, 29 T. 257; Lynch v. Elkes, 21 T. 229; Rhodes v. Gibbs, 29 T. 432; Hollis v. Francois, 5 T. 195, 51 Am. Dec. 760; Shelby v. Burtis, 18 T. 644; Wiley v. Prince, 21 T. 637; Hall v. Dotson, 55 T. 520; Wilkinson v. Rowland, 3 App. C. C. § 11. In such a case the property conveyed stands as surety for the debt, and whatever will discharge an individual surety will, under similar circumstances, discharge the property; as, that an action on the debt is barred as to her. Wofford v. Unger, 55 T. 490.

A wife is liable for the value of materials used in beneficial improvement of her separate property, the title to which is in a trustee, when, by her own consent, the trustee permits the husband, as his agent, to manage the property and contract debts in the trustee's name. Perkins v. Baker, 38 T. 45.

A married woman, who by her own act, or that of a ferry, is not liable for damages occasioned by the negligence of her husband or his servants. Henry v. Volz, 1 App. C. C. § 775.

A married woman, who voluntarily pays her money or other personal property upon a contract made by her, or in any way that would bind a man, cannot recover it back simply because she is a married woman. If she repudiates her contract she must return what she has received. Pitts v. Elser, 28 S. W. 518, 87 T. 347.

When the wife signs notes with her husband for his debt, and executes a mortgage on her separate property to secure the same, she occupies the position of a surety for the debt, and if she refuse a surety, an action by the ordinary will release her property, and an extension of the time of payment of the notes without the consent of the wife will release her property. Beattie v. Keller (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 408.

Allegations that creditors, by a deed on community property and also separate property, of the debtor's wife, were permitted to be squandered, held to charge laches on their part constituting cause for relief to parties claiming the separate property through a conveyance from the wife. Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 255, 61 S. W. 541.

Where services were rendered married woman in behalf of her separate estate, held unnecessary to show that they benefited such estate. Emerson v. Kneessl (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 551.

Where a debtor conveys property to a wife to satisfy a debt due her separate estate, and she pays, upon other debts due others, the conveyance vests title in the property in her, and imposes on her the obligation of paying the debts assumed. Hugo & Schmeltzer Co. v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 163.

In order to enforce a note for attorney's fees against a wife's separate property, it must appear that the note was authorized by the contract of a debt, or that she authorized her husband to make it. Cushman v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1031.

Property devised to a woman for life, "to receive for her sole and separate use, and no other," the rents and profits thereunder, is her separate property, so that rents are not subject to the debts of her husband. Slinner (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 350.

The separate estate of a wife is not liable for services rendered in nursing her deceased husband, though contracted for by her. Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1035.

The land of a married woman, hypothecated for an obligation of her husband, held not bound; the agreement under which it was hypothecated not having been complied with. Schneider v. Sellers (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 126.

Release of community property of husband and wife by creditor held to release lien of trust deed on real estate of wife securing husband's debt. Schneider v. Sellers, 98 T. 360, 84 S. W. 417, affirming (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 126.

The wife is jointly liable with her husband for torts committed by her, and her separate property may be subjected to a judgment rendered against her therefor. Magerstadt v. Lambert, 39 C. A. 472, 87 S. W. 1068.

The insolvency of a husband does not affect the rule that a contract or extension of his debt, not participated in by the wife, discharges her property which stands as surety for his debts. De Bois v. Boy, 39 C. A. 472, 87 S. W. 476.

A husband has no authority to extend any indebtedness secured by a mortgage on the wife's separate property. Id.

A deed of trust given by a husband and wife on her separate property to secure his debt held not to have authorized him to make extensions so as to deprive her of any rights she might have the reason of an extension not participated in by her. Id.

A judgment over against a married woman in favor of a surety in a mortgage held erroneous. Little v. Diefmann, 42 C. A. 392, 106 S. W. 1137.

Where the contract provided that the money loaned the husband and wife was to be expended in making an improvement upon the wife's separate property, but it was not so used the wife's separate property cannot be held for the debt, though she joined her husband in giving a lien on her property to secure the debt. To hold her liable on the contract it must be shown that the labor was furnished or improvement made for the purpose of benefiting her separate property. Stronter v. Brackenridge, 51 C. A. 170, 118 S. W. 633; Id., 102 T. 386, 118 S. W. 654.

A married woman's debt was contracted by a wife, or by her authority, and was for the benefit of her separate estate, she and her separate estate were bound therefor. Teel v. Blair (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 478.

Where a part of a loan evidenced by a note executed by a husband and wife secured by deed of trusts on her separate property was used as intended to pay prior liens on the property and taxes and premiums for insurance on the property, the property was primarily liable for such part under this article, and a change in the contract made by the creditor and the husband, who was the principal debtor, did not release the property from liability for such part. Dearing v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 876.

A married woman is not bound by a parol contract for the payment of commissions for the sale of land. Caldwell v. Scott Bros. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1192.

Where a married woman, to whom property had been devised for life, with remainder over in state court had a mortgage hypothecated in favor of one, who brought an action to construe the will, such action was for the benefit of her separate estate; and hence she was liable for the allowance therein made to the guardians ad litem for the infant defendants, though the court held that she was not entitled to maintain such action. Thompson v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 706.

A married woman's contract for a purpose other than such as is expressly authorized by statute is void. Id.

Where a contract for the building of a house was for the benefit of the separate estate of the wife, who signed with her husband, a judgment in an action for the debt was properly entered as personal against both husband and wife, as a married woman is authorized so to contract. Calm v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

A married woman's contract for the construction of a house on her separate property for a reasonable price was valid without the acquiescence or consent of the husband. Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1065.

Where property of a married woman had been sold under a trust deed and title taken in the name of the mortgagee, under an express agreement, of record, that it might be redeemed upon paying the indebtedness for which it had been sold, the payment of such indebtedness was not a "purchase of property," so as to be forbidden as a purpose for which she could borrow money. Blair v. Teel (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 878.

A loan made a married woman, separata estate, cannot be made a charge on such estate except as to the property upon which she has executed a deed of trust to secure its payment. Id.

A married woman's note for borrowed money is not binding upon her, unless the money was used for the benefit of her separate estate. Id.

-- Mercantile business and partnerships.—A wife cannot become a partner in business with her husband or any one else. Neither the wife nor husband can invest her separate property in a mercantile business, and thereby become entitled to the profits arising therefrom as part of her separate estate. Her separate estate cannot be subject to the debts of the preferred partnership, but she would be a creditor of the firm to the extent of her share in its profits. If such an arrangement was formed by the wife with the assent of her husband, he would become liable as partner by reason of his interest in the profits created by the investment of the wife's money. Miller v. Marx, 65 T. 131; Wallace v. Finberg, 46 T. 35; Cox v. Miller, 54 T. 36; Brown v. Chancellor, 61 T. 497; Green v. Ferguson, 62 T. 625; Cockrum v. McCracken, 1 App. C. C. § 65; Batio v. Holland, 2 App. C. C. § 469. A wife may become a merchant, but she must conduct the business with goods which are her separate property, and must not invest the community estate or the credit of her husband in the purchase of goods, if she wishes them to be exempt from his husband's debts. She cannot purchase on credit, but must buy for cash only, and be ready to show that the money so used is her separate means. The profits become community property. If property is mixed with her separate money used in their purchase, she must be prepared to show how much of her own money entered into the purchase. The burden of proving this is not upon the creditor who seizes the goods for her husband's debt. Epperson v. Jones, 65 T. 425; Citing Cleveland v. Cole, 65 T. 402; Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 41; Green v. Ferguson, 62 T. 599. A married woman is not bound for debts contracted for carrying on a mercantile business. Steinback v. Weil, 1 App. C. C. § 936; Cockrum v. McCracken, 1 App. C. C. § 65. When the wife's separate means are used as the capital stock of a partnership, she becomes a creditor of the concern for the amount contributed. Smith v. Bailey, 66 T. 585, 1 S. W. 627.

Assent of husband to wife charging her separate estate.—The assent of the husband is unnecessary to enable the wife to charge her separate estate with debts contracted under this article. Booth v. Colton, 13 T. 369.

Liability of husband.—The husband is liable with the wife on a joint contract executed by them for the improvement of the wife's separate property. Smotridge v. Lovell, 35 T. 65, citing Cartwright v. Hollis, 5 T. 152; Haynes v. Stovall, 23 T. 627; George v. Stevens, 31 T. 673. Horse purchased by wife for use in business of her own is not a necessary for which husband is liable. Palmer v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1122.

Both husband and wife are liable for necessaries furnished the wife after abandonment by the husband. Id.

Where a married woman, amply provided for, left her husband, he was not liable for her debts for necessaries, unless she left with his consent. Cline v. Hackbarth, 27 C. A. 391, 66 S. W. 1086.

Mere failure of a husband to give notice of his wife's separation from him held not to render him liable for goods purchased by her. Sanger v. Bernay (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 608.

A husband held not liable on notes given by his wife without his knowledge to enable the wife's sons to carry on a business. Richburg v. Sherwood, 101 T. 10, 102 S. W. 995.

A husband is not liable on notes given by his wife, without his knowledge, for goods purchased for a business conducted by their sons in her name, nor for the debt evidenced by the notes, though he did not protest upon learning of the transaction. Richburg v. sheriff (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 524.

Enforcement.—Mortgage held entitled to foreclose on the husband's life interest in the wife's separate property covered by the deed. Dearing v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 876.

Where a piano was not purchased by a husband or by his wife as his agent, nor for the community estate, but by the wife individually, neither the husband nor the estate were liable on notes given by the wife for the price. Hall v. Decherd (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1192.

A note of a married woman cannot be enforced against her after the death of her husband, unless it was for necessaries or unless she has conveyed property of the community estate which was subject to the payment of community debts. J. B. Newton & Son v. Pelente (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1161.

A personal judgment is improperly rendered against wife, in an action against husband and wife, to recover the balance due for materials for erecting a house on the homestead; there being no showing that the homestead selected was necessary as a home for the wife, and it only appearing that the husband contracted for the erection of the building upon their homestead with the wife's consent. Howell v. McMurry Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 848.

A contract by a married woman for the drilling of a well on her separate real property for a reasonable price was for the improvement thereof, and was enforceable against her. Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1065.

Parties to actions.—See notes under Arts. 1839-1841.

Art. 4625. [2971] Judgment and execution in such case.—Upon the trial of any suit as provided for in the preceding article, if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court and jury that the debts so contracted or expenses so incurred were for the purposes enumerated in said article, and also that the debts so contracted or expenses so incurred were reasonable and proper, the court shall decree that execution may be levied upon either the common property or the separate property of the wife, at the discretion of the plaintiff. [P. D. 4644.]

In general.—Although the debt sued for may be for the benefit of the wife's separate property, yet if it was not contracted for by herself or her authority, her separate estate cannot be held liable. Parker v. Wood (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 941.

Verdict.—A general verdict for plaintiff under this article is sufficient, without reciting in the verdict finding of facts. The verdict, when construed with reference to the pleadings, implies that the jury found the facts. Evans v. Gray, 38 C. A. 442, 86 S. W. 375. contra, see Powers v. Parks (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 718.
Form of judgment and execution.—A judgment against the husband and wife on a debt contracted by them for the benefit of her separate property may be levied on the community property, or on her separate property, at the discretion of the plaintiff. Grant v. Whittlesey, 42 T. 320.

A judgment against a husband and wife for services rendered for the benefit of the separate property may be levied on the community property or on her separate property, at the discretion of the plaintiff. Evans v. Breneman (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 80.

In a suit against husband and wife for debt contracted by wife for her separate property, the court should order payment out of her community estate, or from her separate estate. Emerson v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 561.

It is not sufficient to restrain execution against a wife's separate property on a judgment against husband and wife on a joint note, on the contention that the note was not given for necessary, or for expenses incurred for her separate estate, or for any tort committed by her. Walters v. Cantrell (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 790.

It was held that a judgment against a husband and wife state specifically that the separate property of the wife was liable therefor. Smith v. Ridley, 30 C. A. 158, 70 S. W. 235.

The failure of a judgment against a husband and wife to specifically authorize execution against the wife's separate property does not invalidate it or prevent satisfaction thereof out of such property. Love v. McGill, 411 C. A. 471, 91 S. W. 246.

A debt incurred on a contract to give a minor girl a year's course at a business college, under some circumstances, may be a necessary, and reasonable and proper within this respect. Haas v. American Nat. Bank, 42 C. A. 167, 94 S. W. 441.

A statutory judgment rendered against a married woman on her replevy bond held a nullity and may be directly attacked in a suit to vacate the same and enjoin the execution therefrom. L. C. Moon, 46 C. A. 655, 103 S. W. 719.

A valid judgment against a married woman may be collected out of either her separate or community estate. id.

Where a piano was purchased by a married woman for her minor sons, and a chattel mortgage to secure the purchase money notes the seller was entitled to a foreclosure of his lien. Hall v. Dechard (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1131.

A contract by a married woman for the drilling of a well on her separate real property for a reasonable price, as for the improvement thereof, and was enforceable against her. Lemon v. Bidly (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1066.

The error in a judgment against a married woman arising from its failure to specifically award execution against the wife's property, as provided by this article, does not render the judgment subject to collateral attack. White v. Cowles (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 382.

Art. 4626. [2972] Husband failing to support wife, etc.—Should the husband fail or refuse to support his wife from the proceeds of the lands she may have, or fail to educate her children as the fortune of the wife would justify, she may, in either case, complain to the county court, which, upon satisfactory proof, shall decree that so much of such proceeds shall be paid to the wife for the support of herself and for the nurture and education of her children, as the court may deem necessary. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4637.]

In general.—When the husband has assumed a power of disposition or control over property inconsistent with her rights, this action of itself affords a sufficient reason for omitting to join him in an action which has for its object a restoration or preservation of the rights of which he has sought to deprive her. In such case the district court has jurisdiction to grant an injunction to restrain such proceedings. It is not necessary that proceedings taken by the husband, which he has submitted to his will, should necessarily be injurious to the rights of the wife. A decree of the district court directing the husband to maintain his wife and children when he has refused to do so, is not void for want of proper authority to render the decree. W. B. v. B., 73 C. 399.

Agency of wife to purchase necessaries.—Marriage alone confers on the wife an agency to purchase necessaries for herself and children. If her husband fails to supply them, whether goods purchased are necessaries is a question for the jury. Wailing v. Hannig, 73 T. 680, 11 S. W. 547; Clements v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

Effect of abandonment of wife by husband.—The right of a married woman to support by the husband is not lost by reason of his abandonment of her. Railway Co. v. Spilker, 61 T. 427, 48 Am. Rep. 297; Clements v. Ewing, 71 T. 370, 9 S. W. 312.

Action by wife for support and alimony.—A wife cannot maintain an action against her husband to require him to support her, except by suit for divorce or a proceeding under this article. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 333.

Decrees.—A decree under this article in favor of the wife is conclusive of the rights of the wife. Young v. Willis, 63 T. 388.

Action against husband.—In a suit against a husband, the wife is neither a necessary nor proper party when there is no prayer to subject the separate property of the wife to the payment of the debt. Wailing v. Hannig, 73 T. 580, 11 S. W. 547.

In an action against a husband for rent of rooms let to his wife and for the price of goods, etc., it was held that defendant was entitled to provide his wife with a home furnished according to his position in life and circumstances. Fields v. Florence (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 137.

Art. 4627. [2973] Community property liable for debts.—The community property of the husband and wife shall be liable for their debts contracted during marriage, except in such cases as are specially excepted by law. [Act Aug. 26, 1856.]

Community debts.—What are.—Land standing in name of husband and wife held subject to mechanic's lien of materialman who had no notice that wife claimed it as separate estate, and who was informed by the husband that it was his property. Hord v. Owens, 8 C. A. 21, 48 S. W. 193. Where a husband and wife were living together on school land when a purchase was made by the wife, and continued to live thereon until a litigation arose, the presumption is that the purchase was made by the husband's consent, and the obligation for the purchase price is a valid community debt. Neighbors v. Anderson, 94 T. 437, 61 S. W. 146, 62 S. W. 417.

Neither party owning community property can create debts and make them a charge on the property, nor use the proceeds of the property in the payment of such debts, after a divorce, except in the case of judgments rendered. Moor v. Moor (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 347.

Where a husband and wife separately owned an undivided half of certain real estate, a debt created by them for the erection of improvements on the land was a community debt. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1059.

A debt created by the husband during the existence of the marriage relation is prima facie a debt of the community. Dever v. Selz, 33 C. A. 558, 87 S. W. 891.

Evidence held to show that a husband gave his separate property to his children, and executed a note and deed of trust to secure his obligation to the children on account thereof, so as to make the obligation enforceable against community property. Word v. Colley (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 567.

A "community debt" is a liability made by a husband during marriage; and the husband surviving the wife may renew the community obligation and make it a charge on community property. Id.

A deed, dated November 1, 1902, conveying property for a consideration named, payable in cash, and promissory notes given for the remainder, was prima facie evidence of an existing community debt. Norwood v. King (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 366.

--- Consideration.—Extension of time secured by a wife who had been abandoned by her husband by the execution of her sole note for the payment of a community debt constituted a sufficient consideration for the note. Crowder v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1166.

Community and separate debts—Property liable for.—Community property is liable to execution for the debts of the wife contracted before marriage. Taylor v. Murphy, 50 T. 291.

Where judgment is recovered against the husband and wife for a debt contracted by her before marriage, the judgment may direct that execution shall be levied upon separate property only. Muse v. Burns, 3 App. C. C. § 77; Tarlton v. Weir, 1 App. C. C. § 146, citing Nash v. George, 6 T. 236; Booth v. Cotton, 13 T. 359; Rountree v. Thomas, 32 T. 298.

Crops raised on land on separate property of the wife and children, who by agreement paid debts created by them for their separate use, are not subject to the debts of the husband. Nelson v. Frey, 4 App. C. C. § 248, 16 S. W. 250.

The separate estate of one member of the community must reimburse the community for any proper improvements made in good faith upon the separate estate with community funds. Furr v. Winston, 66 T. 521, 1 S. W. 537, citing Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 66; Bond v. Hill, 37 T. 656.

Judgment against husband for community debt held superior to a prior judgment in favor of the husband's interest in the community property. Ghent v. Boyd, 18 C. A. 88, 43 S. W. 881.

A sale under a judgment on a note given by a husband for the price of land purchased by him passes whatever community interest the wife has in the land. Culmore v. Medlenka (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 676.

A wife's land cannot be subjected to the husband's debts, unless the improvements were made with his or community funds, to defraud creditors, in which she participated. Moore v. Sumrall, 152 S. W. 1033, 49 S. W. 1033, 452.

A judgment creditor may sell merely the interest of the husband in the community property, where the husband does not object, notwithstanding the wife's share is liable under the judgment. Campbell v. Antis, 21 C. A. 161, 61 S. W. 343.

Where the husband uses the wife's separate funds to improve his property, it becomes liable for such funds so long as it remains in his hands or in the hands of his heirs. Parish v. Williams (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 79.

Creditor, having notice that land was purchased with intention that it should become separate estate of wife, cannot subject same to judgment against husband. Clardy v. Wilson, 24 C. A. 196, 65 S. W. 62.

An agreement by a married woman, together with her husband, that her cattle should be held as security for community debts to be incurred by him, was valid. Word v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 365.

The separate property of a wife cannot be sold to reimburse the community estate for improvements made out of community funds. Collins v. Bryan, 40 C. A. 85, 88 S. W. 432.

Community property is subject to a judgment founded on the wife's torts, even though it involves only personal damages. Patterson v. Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 146.

A wife who advanced to her husband money owned in her own name could not complain of a judgment after his death, which treated the advancement as a charge against the community estate of the parties. Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 165 S. W. 219.

In an action by a wife for her separate property and for a half of the community property, the husband held not entitled to recover for improvements made on the property. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 145.

A wife's separate property would only be bound for the payment of a community debt by reason of a mortgage executed thereon by her for that purpose. Herr v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

Evidence, in an action on a note, brought against a married woman and her husband, to charge her separate property, held sufficient to sustain allegations that upon the first application for the loan it was represented that they wanted the money to improve her separate estate, and afterwards, and before the money was loaned, that it was wanted to pay off debts for which her separate estate was liable, and that it was used. Blair v. Teel (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 878.
All community property of an estate, except the homestead, is liable for community debts. Williamson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 968.

The fact that improvements on the wife's separate property are paid for with community funds does not give community such interest in the property as can be taken by execution against the husband. Schwartzeman et ux. v. Cabell et al. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 116.

Where a piano was purchased by the wife individually, neither the husband nor the community estate were liable on notes given by her for the purchase. Hall v. Decherd (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1133.

A husband is not liable for the ordinary general community debts contracted by his wife without his authority. Jones v. O. W. Lyman Millinery Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 864.

A wife is not personally liable for the community debts contracted by her husband. Vinson v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1066.

A wife who has been abandoned by her husband can bind herself by the execution of a note for the settlement of community debts. Crowder v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1166.

Conveyance of community property by survivor in payment of debts.—See notes under Title 52, Chapter 29.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3537, Rule 12.

Rights and remedies of creditors.—After death of one spouse, see notes under Title 52, Chapter 29.

It is no defense to an action on a note representing a debt chargeable against community property that such property has been exhausted or appropriated. Brown v. Adams (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 761.

Where a husband and wife agreed that certain horses and their increase should be the wife's separate property, the agreement was invalid as to community creditors. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

Art. 4628. [2974] Female under 21 emancipated by marriage.— Every female under the age of twenty-one years, who shall marry in accordance with the laws of this state, shall, from and after the time of such marriage, be deemed to be of full age, and shall have all the rights and privileges to which she would have been entitled had she been at the time of her marriage of full age. [Act March 13, 1848. P. D. 4642.]

In general,—Only those females under 21 who had never been married being minors, disability of minority is removed by marriage. Grayson v. Loftland, 21 C. A. 593, 52 S. W. 151.

Termination of guardianship.—The guardianship of a female is terminated by her marriage. Carpenter v. Soloman, 4 App. C. C. § 34, 14 S. W. 1074.

Limitations.—Despite this statute, the marriage of a woman under 21 years of age will not start the running of the statute of limitations until she reaches her majority. Gibson v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 694.

Art. 4629. [2975] Rights of persons married elsewhere.—The marital rights of persons married in other countries, who may remove to this state, shall, in regard to property acquired in this state during the marriage, be regulated by the laws of this state. [P. D. 4639.]

In general.—Parties married in Tennessee at a time when the common law was in force which declared that marriage operated as a gift from the wife to the husband of all personality reduced to possession by the husband during marriage. They afterwards removed to Texas and the husband invested the money his wife had at her marriage in land here. Held, the land was the husband's separate property. McDaniel v. Harley (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 323.

Art. 4629a. May apply to district court to be feme sole for mercantile and trading purposes, how.—Any married woman within this state may, with the consent of and joined by her husband, apply to the district court of the county in which she may be a bona fide resident for judgment or order of the said court removing her disabilities of coverture and declaring her feme sole for mercantile and trading purposes. [Acts 1911, p. 92, sec. 1.]

Art. 4629b. Petition; contents.—Said application shall be in the form of a petition in writing, addressed to said court, setting out the cause or causes which make it desirable or advantageous to said married woman to be so declared feme sole. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4629c. Hearing on petition.—Upon the filing of said petition same shall be docketed as in other cases, and at any time thereafter the district court may, in term time, take up and hear said petition and evidence in regard thereto. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4629d. Decree declaring married woman feme sole for mercantile and trading purposes; effect of decree.—If upon a hearing of said petition, and evidence relating thereto, it should appear to the court that it would be to the interest and advantage of the said married woman so applying, then said court shall enter its order or decree declaring said married woman feme sole for mercantile or trading purposes, and thereafter the said married woman may, in her own name, contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, and all of her separate property not exempt from execution under the exemption laws of Texas, shall thereafter be subject to her debts and liable under execution therefor, and her contracts and obligations shall be as binding on her as if she were a feme sole. Provided, however, that no married woman shall convey or encumber her separate real property except as now provided by law. [Id. sec. 4.]

DECISIONS IN GENERAL

Right of action by husband for damages to wife.—Husband may recover damages for the physical and mental suffering of his wife, caused by the negligence of the defendant. Pacific Express Co. v. Black, 27 S. W. 839, 8 C. A. 363.

A husband, in an action for a nuisance causing the sickness of his wife, may recover for the loss of the society and the comfort of the wife. Neville v. Mitchell, 23 C. A. 89, 66 S. W. 679.

Article 4630. [2976] Marriage may be annulled, when.—The district court shall have power to hear and determine suit for the dissolution of marriage, where the causes alleged therefor shall be natural or incurable impotency of body at the time of entering into the marriage contract, or any other impediment that renders such contract void, and shall have power and authority to decree the marriage to be null and void. [Act Jan. 6, 1841. P. D. 3449.]

See McNeill v. Casey (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1130; Dillingham v. Kerr, 139 S. W. 911.

Art. 4631. [2977] Divorce may be granted in what cases.—A divorce by separation from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed in the following cases:

1. Where either the husband or wife is guilty of excesses, cruel treatment or outrages toward the other, if such ill treatment is of such a nature as to render their living together insupportable.

2. In favor of the husband, where his wife shall have been taken in adultery, or where she shall have voluntarily left his bed and board for the space of three years with the intention of abandonment.

3. In favor of the wife, where the husband shall have left her for three years with intention of abandonment, or where he shall have abandoned her and lived in adultery with another woman.

4. In favor of either the husband or wife, when the other shall have been convicted, after marriage, of a felony and imprisoned in the state prison; provided, that no suit for divorce shall be sustained because of the conviction of either party for felony until twelve months after final judgment of conviction, nor then if the governor shall have pardoned the convict; provided, that the husband has not been convicted on the testimony of the wife, nor the wife on the testimony of the husband. [Act May 27, 1876, p. 16. P. D. 3451.]

See Art. 4632 for additional grounds for divorce.

5. Insults. 15. Evidence.
7. Allegations of cruelty. 17. Failure to support.
8. Evidence. 18. Grounds existing at time of marriage.
10. Instructions. 20. Change of name.

1. In general.—The power to grant divorces for causes arising after marriage is restricted to those enumerated in the statute. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3; Sharman v. Sharman, 18 T. 521.

Words and acts which affect the mental feelings enter into the definition of legal cruelty. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3; Nogees v. Nogees, 7 T. 539, 59 Am. Dec. 78. Cruel treatment is ground for divorce, when it is of such a character as to create a reasonable apprehension of danger to the physical safety of the party complaining. Hullker v. Hullker, 64 T. 47; Sheffield v. Sheffield, 3 T. 75; Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3.

That a wife at one time expressed fear that her husband would poison her is not cause for divorce. After the act alleged as grounds for divorce, the fact that the husband seeking the divorce endeavored to induce the wife to live with him negatively the allegation that the act was such as to render their living together insupportable. Sapp v. Sapp, 71 T. 348, 9 S. W. 255.

Religious opinions, doctrines or practices which are not immoral cannot be made a ground for divorce. Haymond v. Haymond, 74 T. 414, 12 S. W. 90.

In absence of personal violence by the husband, as a blow with the flat in the face, or an act creating a reasonable apprehension of personal safety, may be a sufficient cause for divorce against the husband. Miller v. Miller, 72 T. 250, 12 S. W. 187; Hullker v. Hullker, 64 T. 44.

In absence of physical violence by the husband, such cruel treatment to the wife must be shown as will produce a degree of mental distress threatening to impair her health. Eastman v. Eastman, 75 T. 473, 12 S. W. 1107; Bush v. Bush (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 217.

Where the wife made a false statement as to where she had been, in response to a question put by the husband, held, that an accusation impugning misconduct on her part, in the absence of any explanation by her, could not be considered malicious. Long v. Loring, 17 C. A. 21, 42 S. W. 642.

A husband held justified in using reasonable and necessary force to protect himself against the wife's interference while he was properly chastising their child. Id.

A refusal of wife to grant husband intercourse has been ground for divorce, when he is old and his virility impaired. Varner v. Varner, 35 C. A. 431, 86 S. W. 386. Nor is the unjustifyable refusal of a spouse to engage in sexual intercourse a ground. Nor is refusal of a wife to engage in sexual intercourse save under conditions a ground. Lohmuller v. Lohmuller (Civ. App.) 12 S. W. 751.

The act of the husband in taking from the mother the infant child and going with it out of the country, and keeping it from the mother for the space of more than a year, and not returning it at all, is not in terms a ground of divorce, and is not such "cruel treatment or outrages" as will authorize a divorce under this subdivision and article. Slaughter v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 194.

A husband, pursuing a course of harsh conduct toward his wife, violently threatening to assault her, cursing and abusing her, and using insulting epithets, and falsely charging her with want of chastity, and thereby rendering it unsafe for her to live with him, is guilty of cruelty justifying a divorce. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 638.

In an action for divorce for cruel treatment, a requested charge requiring plaintiff to prove the existence of evidence that defendant on one occasion seized her by the hair, snatched her around, and slammed her head and body violently against the bedstead many times, was objectionable, as the substance of the issue would have been established by proof that defendant slammed her head, but not her body, or her body and not her head, against the bedstead once, and not several times. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 697.

Untrue charges by a husband of unchastity and infidelity against his wife constitute cruel treatment entitling the wife to a divorce. Aycock v. Aycock (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1155; Jones v. Jones, 60 T. 451; Bahn v. Bahn, 62 T. 518, 80 Am. Rep. 553; Williams v. Williams, 67 T. 198; 2 S. W. 825; Scott v. Scott, 61 T. 119. Though the charges do not have the effect of seriously impairing the physical health of the wife. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524. But the mere charge of adultery on part of the husband, made by the false, though false, is not ground for divorce in favor of husband. McAllister v. McAllister, 71 T. 695, 10 S. W. 294.

A wife who without provocation abuses her husband's daughter of a former marriage, defames the memory of the husband's deceased wife, wantonly assails his character, publishes him as indolent and good for nothing, demands his expulsion from a benevolent society as unworthy of membership, assaults him, constantly abuses him, applies to him in the hearing of others, or in the presence of others, any opprobrious epithets, and causes him to perform the duties of a wife, thereby rendering his living with her undependable, is guilty of excesses and cruel treatment, justifying a divorce. Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 379.

A wife's surveillance of her husband does not constitute cruel and inhuman treatment, entitling him to divorce, if caused by his matrimonial misconduct. Dickinson v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 205.

Malapropism and abusive language, not involving an attack on a wife's chastity, at intervals, is not sufficient cruel and inhuman treatment to justify a divorce. Bingham v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 214.

The enormity of alleged cruel and inhuman treatment, consisting of words and abusive language, should be considered in the light of the environment and circumstances surrounding the parties. id.

That a faithful wife disturbed by jealousy, on learning of the infidelity of her husband, called him names which, in English amount to no more than "poor person" or "tramp" held not such cruel treatment as afforded ground for divorce. De Fierryos v. Fierryos (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

Question for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Proclamation.—Misconduct of plaintiff, to defeat the right to a divorce for cruelty, need not equal defendant's, but must be reasonably calculated to have provoked defendant's misconduct. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 959.

Condonation.—Condonation or reconciliation is not a bar to complaint as to past outrages, etc., where there has been subsequent ill treatment or reasonable apprehension of further violence. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 5; Noguees v. Noguees, T 7, 538, 58 Am. Dec. 78.

Evidence of cruel treatment of husband held inadmissible, as having been condoned. Dority v. Dority (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 106.
