In a suit for divorce, return of plaintiff to live with defendant, at his request and on his promise to abstain from repetition of the offense and to treat her as a husband should, does not prevent consideration in a subsequent suit for divorce of his acts prior to the bringing of the first suit; he having after the reunion repeated the acts of cruelty complained of before, or been guilty of some other like cause for divorce. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

The doctrine of condonation applies as well to cruelty as other grounds of divorce. Bingham v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 214.

In a suit for divorce for cruelty, it was error to refuse to instruct that, if the parties were equally at fault, verdict should be for the defendant; there being evidence raising an issue of recriminalization not submitted. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 959.

Failure to submit an issue of recriminalization in a suit for divorce for cruelty held not justified by the fact that there was evidence raising no such issue as to one of the specified acts charged in the petition. id.

If recriminalization on the part of an injured spouse is insignificant as compared with great provocation on the part of the other, a divorce may be granted. Staples v. Staples (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 130.

Allegations of cruelty.—See notes under Art. 1527, § 1144.6.

Evidence.—Evidence held not to justify a divorce for husband on ground of cruelty. Cunningham v. Cunningham, 22 C. A. 6, 53 S. W. 75.

Nor to justify a divorce for wife on ground of conduct by husband, rendering living with him unsupportable. id.

Proof that defendant called plaintiff a bitch on one occasion, and used other abusive language toward her, held not in itself to entitle her to a divorce for cruel treatment. Bush v. Bush (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 217.

A decree denying a divorce on the ground that the proof was not full and satisfactory was proper. Ingle v. Ingle (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 241.

Answer as evidence.—Allegations of answer charging plaintiff with adultery, in view of its plea of the general issue, held not evidence of a ground of divorce in that he had accused her of adultery. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

Instructions.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Occasional or habitual intoxication of the husband, if the latter is not continued for great length of time, and of such a character as to justify the wife for abandonment, is not ground for a divorce. Camp v. Camp, 15 T. 538.

Abandonment necessarily implied from separation, but a jury may find the intention of abandonment upon proof of unexplained continued absence for more than three years. Besch v. Besch, 27 T. 390; Harre v. Hare, 10 T. 555.

To constitute a voluntary separation with the intention of abandonment, it must appear that the plaintiff neither neither caused, procured, nor consented to the separation. McGowen v. McGowen, 52 T. 657.

A statement by a wife to her husband which induced a voluntary separation held not such excessive cruelty as relieved him from the effects of such separation and entitled him to a divorce for desertion. Gray v. Gray, 49 C. A. 345, 26 S. W. 46.

Where a husband deserted his wife, and, without intending to resume the marital relation, induced her to cohabit with him under the belief that the marital union had been restored, and again abandoned her, the period of desertion essential to a divorce was not interrupted. Womble v. Womble (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 473.

Offer of renewal of cohabitation.—An offer to return before the expiration of three years, after a voluntary abandonment, precludes the granting of a divorce on that ground. McGowan v. McGowan (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 399.

A wife who repents his wrongful desertion, and returns, intending to resume marital relations, the wife's failure to do so puts her in the wrong, and makes her the deserting party. Womble v. Womble (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 473.

Agreements for separation.—The conduct of the offending spouse may be such that the other may be justified in not objecting to a separation. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 729.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1527, § 1145.

Evidence.—Evidence held to entitle plaintiff to a decree on the ground of abandonment. Ervin v. Ervin (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 1125; Ogden v. Ogden, 144 S. W. 365.

Imprisonment for felony.—The commission of a felony, where there has been no conviction, is not a statutory ground for divorce; but the killing of the child of the wife by the husband may be such an outrage as to authorize a divorce. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 683.

The commutation of the punishment adjudged against one convicted of a felony is not equivalent to a pardon. Young v. Young, 61 T. 191.

Failure to support.—Mere failure to support wife and family is not ground for divorce where the husband endeavors in good faith to procure employment, although unsuccessful. Loring v. Loring, 17 C. A. 95, 42 S. W. 412.

Failure to support his wife is not of itself ground for divorce from the husband. Barrett v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 521.

Grounds existing at time of marriage.—A husband cannot have the marriage annulled because the wife was with child by him at the time of the marriage. McCulloch v. McCulloch, 69 T. 632, 7 S. W. 593, 5 Am. St. Rep. 96.

A divorce will not be granted for antenuptial incontinence. Griggs v. Griggs (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 941.

That a wife, before marriage, falsely represented to her husband that she was pregnant, thereby inducing the marriage, is not ground for divorce. Young v. Young (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 898.

Antenuptial pregnancy, followed by the birth of an illegitimate child of which the husband is not the father, is ground for a divorce, unless followed by condonation on the husband's part. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 661.

Change of name.—See Art. 5894.

Art. 4632. Plaintiff must be resident; suit not to be heard within 30 days; remarriage; divorce where marriage was to escape penalties for seduction; additional ground for divorce.—No suit for divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall be maintained in the courts of this state unless the petitioner for such divorce shall at the time of exhibiting his or her petition, be an actual bona fide inhabitant of the state for a period of twelve months, and shall have resided in the county where the suit is filed six months next preceding the filing of the suit; provided, that such suit shall not be heard or divorce granted before the expiration of thirty days after the same is filed; and provided, further, that neither party to a divorce suit, wherein a divorce is granted upon the ground of cruel treatment, shall marry any other person for a period of twelve months next after such divorce is granted, but the parties so divorced may marry each other at any time upon obtaining a license as provided in article 4610; provided that where a man marries the woman whom he seduces to escape penalties of the law punishing for seduction, the man shall not be entitled to a divorce for any cause within three years after such marriage, provided that this Act shall not apply to any case where either the husband or wife is insane.

Provided further that in addition to the grounds for divorce now provided by statute, that where any husband and wife have lived apart without co-habitation for as long as ten years, the same shall be sufficient grounds for divorce. [Act May 27, 1873, p. 117. P. D. 3459. Acts 1913, p. 183, sec. 1, amending Art. 4632, Rev. St. 1911.]

See Young v. Young (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 888.

Residence of plaintiff.—Suit may be brought by the wife in the county where she permanently resides, without reference to his residence or the place where the offense for which divorce is sought was committed. Jones v. Jones, 60 T. 451.

A continuous, actual residence in the county is required, and a constructive residence while the plaintiff lives in another or is bodily present there does not meet the requirements of the statute. It was intended by this statute not only to compel an actual good faith inhabitancy of this state, but an actual residence in the county where the suit is brought, and not a constructive or imaginary residence. Michael v. Michael, 34 C. A. 630, 79 S. W. 75.

Plaintiff in a divorce action must at the time of exhibiting his petition be an actual inhabitant of the state and have resided in the county where the suit is filed six months
The temporary absence of a wife from the county of her residence held not to defeat her residence in that county for the purposes of venue of a subsequent action for

This article demands an actual and continuous, as distinguished from a legal, residence; and, while it is not necessary that every day or every week must be passed in the county, the bulk of the time must be passed there. Dickinson v. Dickinson (Civ.
App.) 138 S. W. 295.

And a divorce decree recovered without actual, continuous residence by petitioner in the state and county for the time required, is void, and may be set aside for fraud in a direct proceeding though jurisdiction appears on the face of the proceedings. id.

Acquisition of domicile for purpose of divorce.—After a husband had abandonad his wife, for which she demanded a divorce, her residence could not be regarded as the residence of her husband, but depended on the place where she actually resided.

A wife on abandoning her husband held entitled to choose her residence for purposes of venue of a subsequent action for divorce. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.)
136 S. W. 1116.

—Suit against nonresident.—A suit for divorce may be brought against a non-resident defendant, where the marriage was solemnized and the grounds for divorce occurred in Texas. Trevino v. Trevino, 64 T. 361.

A decree of divorce held conclusive on the parties, though one of them was a non-resident of the state. Stuart v. Cole, 42 C. A. 473, 93 S. W. 1040.

Allegation and proof of residence.—See, also, notes under Art. 1824, § 19, and Art. 1827, §§ 114, 114d.

Residence in the county where the suit is brought for six months next preceding the bringing of the suit, as required by this article and Art. 1830, must be alleged and

A defendant, who defends the suit and who files a cross-bill, need not allege in the cross-bill that he has been a resident of the county in which the suit is pending for six months immediately preceding, notwithstanding this article which is applicable only to plaintiff filing the cross-bill. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 595.

Findings on jurisdictional questions.—Where a divorce case is submitted upon special issues, held, the jury must make findings as to jurisdictional questions to support

Evidence that plaintiff had lived in Texas all her life held to sustain a finding that she has the bona fide inhabitant of the state when she sued for divorce. Gamblin v.
Gamblin, 52 C. A. 479, 114 S. W. 408.

Art. 4633. [2979] Husband and wife competent witnesses.—In all suits and proceedings for divorce from the bonds of matrimony, the defendant shall not be compelled to answer upon oath, nor shall the petition be taken as confessed for want of answer, but the decree of the court shall be rendered upon full and satisfactory evidence, upon the verdict of a jury, if a jury shall have been demanded by either party, and if not, upon the judgment of the court affirming the material facts alleged in the petition. In all such suits and proceedings the husband and wife shall be competent witnesses for and against each other, but neither party shall be compelled to testify as to any matter that will criminate himself or herself; and where the husband or wife testifies, the court or jury trying the case shall determine the credibility of such witness, and the weight to be given such testimony; but no divorce shall be granted upon the evidence of either husband or wife, if there be any collusion between them. [Acts 1897, p. 49.]

App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Former law.—Before the amendment of the statute, neither party was a competent witness in regard to matters affecting the right to divorce. Stafford v. Stafford, 41 T.
111; Cornish v. Cornish, 56 T. 564.

In a suit by a wife, admissions by the husband that he gave the wife a venereal disease are not admissible. But on such issue it may be shown that he sent her a package of medicine with instructions how to use it. Hanna v. Hanna, 5 C. A. 51, 21 S. W.
720.

Admissions in pleadings as dispensing with proof.—An admission of the marriage in the answer does not dispense with its proof by competent evidence. Simons v. Simons,

Right of nonanswering defendant.—A defendant failing to answer is not precluded from resisting a divorce and can insist that the case shall be called in due order. Bost-

Evidence. See notes under Art. 3687.
Witnnees-Examination of.—Where in a suit for divorce both parties were represented and defendant's attorney declined to cross-examine a witness for plaintiff, the court was authorized to cross-examine the witness in order to bring out all the facts and avoid collusion, subject only to review for abuse of discretion. Ingle v. Ingle (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 241.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Suspicion as to the fidelity of the wife is not sufficient to authorize a divorce. Trevino v. Trevino, 64 T. 261; Burney v. Burney, 11 C. A. 174, 32 S. W. 328.

A decree to justify a decree of divorce should be full and satisfactory. No less as to the means of knowledge of the witnesses than to their credibility. Gardell v. Gardell, 42 C. A. 202, 94 S. W. 498.

The weighing of the testimony of a party to a divorce action is governed by the same considerations that of other witnesses, the credibility of such witness being for the jury in view of the interest of the witness and other circumstances tending to weaken or strengthen his testimony. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 624.

A divorce cannot be granted upon the uncorroborated testimony of the one seeking it. Lohmuller v. Lohmuller (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 765.

—Discretion of court.—The judge may refuse to render a judgment for divorce if the evidence is not satisfactory to him. Moore v. Moore, 22 T. 237; Haygood v. Haygood, 25 T. 576.

The trial court has wide discretion in determining whether the testimony warrants a divorce. Duffer v. Duffer (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 354.

The court must grant a divorce when it clearly appears from the undisputed testimony that defendant is entitled to one. Ogden v. Ogden (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 355.

Conclusiveness of findings of jury.—The verdict of the jury is not binding on the court on appeal in a divorce suit. Lohmuller v. Lohmuller (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 761.

In suits for divorce, the trial court is not bound by the finding of the jury upon questions of fact, but may render the judgment that justice requires. De Fierros v. Fierros (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

Vacation of decree for fraud.—A decree of divorce procured by perjury or fraud will not be set aside therefor, unless the perjury or fraud consists of intrinsic acts not established and determined in the divorce proceedings. Moor v. Moor (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 347.

Where plaintiff's evidence in a suit for divorce is conflicting, a decree for defendant will not be disturbed. Barrett v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 961.

J udgment reversal on ground of abandonment will not be reversed, where the plaintiff was the only witness to the fact of abandonment. Seago v. Seago (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 941.

An adjudgment that the court erred in granting a divorce, because there was no proof on the record that plaintiff was a bona fide resident of the state, or that she had resided in the county for six months, will not be reviewed, where the motion for new trial failed to call the question to the attention of the trial court. Wets v. Wetz, 27 C. A. 687, 68 S. W. 869.

A verdict in a divorce proceeding will not be set aside on appeal, though resting alone on the testimony of one of the parties. Barrow v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 129.

If the jury determined that the testimony of a party to a divorce action was credible and based their verdict thereon, they did not disturb their verdict, especially where it was approved by the trial court. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 624.

A finding of the trial court denying a divorce will be disturbed only when it clearly appears that the court has erred, and not when the right to divorce depends wholly upon the testimony of the plaintiff. Duffer v. Duffer (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 354.

In suits for divorce, the court of civil appeals is not bound by the finding of the jury upon questions of fact, but may render the judgment that justice requires. De Fierros v. Fierros (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

Art. 4634. [2980] Division of property.—The court pronouncing a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall also decree and order a division of the estate of the parties in such a way as to the court, shall seem just and right, having due regard to the rights of each party and their children, if any; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to compel either party to divest himself or herself of the title to real estate. [P. D. 3452.]

Jurisdiction of court to order division in general.—The court granting a divorce has authority to partition the separate from the community property and divide the latter. Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 58.

Where property for alimony is stricken, and nothing is left but suit for divorce, a money judgment is not justified. Boyd v. Boyd, 23 C. A. 200, 54 S. W. 380.

Where a wife sues for partition of real property, the court has no jurisdiction of property outside of the state to adjudge that it is community property and decree its partition. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 156, 57 S. W. 992.

In suits for divorce, jurisdiction to enforce certain claims of the husband's creditors out of property delivered to the wife pending investigation held to attach as incidental to the main suit, regardless of amount or value. Also held error to strike out certain items of the husband's creditors as foreign to the issues in the suit. Bradley v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1112.

The court has jurisdiction to inquire into the community property of the plaintiff and defendant, and to make disposition of the same between them. Ex parte Latham, 47 Cr. R. 208, 82 S. W. 1046.
In decreeing divorce to the wife, the court has power to make such a decree as will properly protect the wife and minor children in the use of community property which constitutes a homestead. Holland v. Ziliox, 38 C. A. 416, 86 S. W. 36.

Variance between the averment as to ownership of property in a citation and in a petition for divorce, and to adjudicate property rights, held not to be a tender where the averment was insufficient to support a judgment giving the property to plaintiff. Sperry v. Sperry (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 419.

The district court has jurisdiction to try a divorce proceeding, and, if the divorce is granted, to decree as to the property rights of the parties; but, if divorce is denied, the court has no power to adjust the property rights of the parties otherwise than fixed by law. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 333.

In a suit by a wife for divorce, the character and quantity of community property being shown, was authorized to direct partition by commissioners. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 697.

The court may adjust property rights in a divorce action, but cannot subject husband's interest in the homestead to debts due the wife. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 682.

Parties.—The statute does not prohibit a joint owner of lands that might be in controversy between the husband and wife to become a party to a proceeding looking towards the partition of such land. Weaver v. Manley, 46 C. A. 133, 101 S. W. 848.

And an instruction limiting the jury's consideration of plaintiff's separate property partitioned in divorce suit to which they are not parties. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 413.

Disposition of separate property.—As a general rule, the separate property should be restored to its owner. Fitts v. Fitts, 14 T. 443.

In a proper case the separate property may be placed in the hands of a trustee to pay the rents, etc., to the husband, wife and children in such proportions as the court may direct, and divesting the ownership. Or place it in the hands of a trustee, to be under the supervision of the court, for the support and education of minor children; but the title of either party to real estate cannot be divested. Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 58.

If a husband having, during marriage, by deed of gift, conveyed certain property to his wife for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, the property was deceded to the wife as her separate property. Stafford v. Stafford, 41 T. 111.

That there is a probability of an after-born child does not justify a court in granting permanent alimony to a wife out of the husband's separate property. Boyd v. Boyd, 22 C. A. 200, 54 S. W. 380.

A wife, paying premiums on a policy on the life of her husband assigned to her by the husband during the existence of the marriage relation, is, on the divorce of the parties, entitled to a lien on the policy for such premiums. Hatch v. Hatch, 38 C. A. 573, 80 S. W. 411.

But a money judgment against the husband, does not give the wife any right in or upon the life of the husband assigned to her. Property purchased by a husband with his separate funds and its proceeds, and property in which the same is invested, should be regarded as his separate property in a division in divorce proceedings. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

And an instruction limiting the jury's consideration of plaintiff's separate property to property paid for by him out of his separate means acquired prior to marriage held erroneous. Id.

Where after a default divorce decree in favor of a husband in which no disposition of the children nor provision for their support was made, no mention of either children or property having been made in the case, the husband brought habeas corpus against his former wife to obtain the custody of the children which was denied on account of the age, the judgment, in the hands of the wife, is to divest all part of certain of the husband's lands which were rented, to receive the rents and pay over a stated monthly sum to the former wife for the support of herself and the children, was proper, though the husband had remarried and occupied part of the lands as his homestead. Dvdslon v. App.) 133 S. W. 503.

Disposition of community property.—Such a division of the community property may be made as may be equitable and just, having reference to the condition of the parties and the support and education of the children. Trimble v. Trimble, 15 T. 18; Fitts v. Fitts, 14 T. 443; Simons v. Simons, 23 T. 544; Young v. Young (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 83.

Where the circumstances require it, the community property may be placed in the hands of a trustee, to be under the supervision of the court, for the support and education of the minor children. Rice v. Rice, 21 T. 58.

It is improper to divest either party of all title in the community property. Craig v. Craig, 31 T. 203.

A wife, in whose favor a decree of divorce is made, is entitled to satisfaction out of the mass of community property for such portion of her interest as she does not obtain in kind, and this as against a purchaser with notice, pending suit. Moore v. Moore, 59 T. 54.

The court may by decree provide for the use of the homestead by the wife and children. V. v. Domnau, 80 T. 445, 16 S. W. 425, 28 Am. St. Rep. 770.

The court may apportion to the wife her interest in the community estate free of any charge on account of the husband's liability for the community debts. Hubbard v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 388.

The husband held chargeable with rents of community estate and with community in his hands. Stone v. Stone (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1022; Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199. But he is not chargeable with rent of the residence nor the business homestead. And the husband is entitled to credits on community funds for alimony paid, and for payments on community debts and taxes, and expenses of manag-

Art. 4634

The court, in awarding a divorce to a wife, with half of the community estate exempt from execution, held not required to render judgment for the husband for the amount of the community debts. Franks v. Franks (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1110.

In an action for divorce and partition of the community property, if the homestead of the parties is not susceptible of partition, it will be sold. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 652.

A divorce decree, charging plaintiff with the care and custody of minor children, awarding her 200 acres of land, half in fee and the other half for life, and giving the defendant a 53.1-acre tract of land, one half in fee and the other half for life, and all the personal property in the community estate, worth about $9,000—was not inequitable, though it charged him with the total community debts, amounting to about $1,900. Huntsman v. Huntsman (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 351.

Judgment. — Where property questions were submitted on special issues, and the verdict found the monthly rental value of real estate, but not the time it was rented, a judgment thereon held erroneous. Stone v. Stone (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1022.

— Effect of disposition as against children or creditors. — A levy of execution upon community property after divorce of the owners thereof and sale thereunder held void. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 685.

A judgment in a divorce suit held not to divest a child of the parties of any interest he might have in the land independent of a trust conveyance to him. Winfree v. Winfree (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 36.

— Enforcement of order. — In a divorce case, court held to have power to commit defendant to jail for indefinite time to compel compliance with order in relation to adjudged property rights of plaintiff and defendant, notwithstanding in-applicability of statute with reference to punishment for contempt. Ex parte Latham, 47 Cr. R. 208, 82 S. W. 1046.

Permanent alimony. — There is no such thing in the state as permanent alimony. Bond v. Bond, 41 C. A. 129, 96 S. W. 1128.

Right of wife to compel husband to support her. — A wife cannot maintain an action against her husband to require him to support her, except by suit for divorce or a proceeding under Art. 4626. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 333.

Vacation of division of property.—In suit by divorced wife to set aside partition of community property made under agreement with husband, objection that she did not offer to return property received under the partition cannot be raised by general demurrer to petition. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

Where a wife sues to set aside a partition of community property, it is only necessary that she received under the partition that she manifest in her petition a willingness to restore the property received by her, or have it considered by the court in the partition. Id.

In a suit by a wife to set aside a partition of community property, findings held to sustain judgment that the agreement and settlement was procured by fraud of husband. Id.

Where a divorced wife seeks to set aside in favor of her decree for alimony a mortgage by her husband to take up a prior mortgage and a new loan, it is not error, on appeal, to set aside the mortgage, wherein she claim to the prior mortgage. Schultze v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 66.

Where, in a suit by divorced wife to set aside decree of divorce in so far as it affected her property rights, the jury found that certain property awarded the husband was community property, and fixed its value, the husband held not entitled to take such property upon payment of one-half of the value fixed by the jury. Bracht v. Bracht (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 895.

Property not disposed of by judgment of divorce.—If partition is not made of community property, either party may afterwards bring suit to recover his or her interest. Whetstone v. Coffee, 48 T. 269; Wimberly v. Pabst, 55 T. 687; Murray v. Murray, 66 T. 207, 18 S. W. 506; Gray v. Thomas, 83 T. 246, 18 S. W. 721; Henry v. Foshee, 84 T. 156, 19 S. W. 381.

In an action by a husband divorced against the divorced wife for property in Texas, the courts of Texas will apply the laws of this state without proof of the laws of Massachusetts. Blethen v. Bonner, 83 T. 141, 53 S. W. 1016.

Where a divorced wife was granted to a wife because of wrongs inflicted on her by her husband, and a subsequent proceeding by the wife for partition of the community property, that her conduct was such as to deprive her of an equal share of the property. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

A husband and wife, after divorce, became tenants in common of the community property, and either party received the entire interest. William­ son v. Gore (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 663. The former husband no longer represents the former wife nor the community estate. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 685.

Defendant having consented to a part of a divorce decree, requiring payment of certain sums of money, held not thereby, though with much relief was prayed in the pleadings. Connellee v. Werenskold (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 747.

The right of the community estate to claim the benefit of the wife's adverse possession of land conveyed to the husband under a tax deed held not destroyed by the subsequent divorce, and an unexecuted order for partition of the property then made. Callen v. Collins, 66 C. A. 620, 120 S. W. 546.

A husband, supporting a stepchild during marriage, held not entitled to judgment against the wife, obtaining a divorce, with alimony. Franks v. Franks (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1110.

Support of children.—A divorced wife cannot assert homestead rights in the separate estate of her husband. But as guardian of their children she may prosecute their rights in their father's homestead after his death. Their homestead rights are not affected by the fact that their custody had been awarded to the mother. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82.

The only authority for making provision for the children in the final decree in a divorce case is the general power given in this article which does not go further than to authorize the court to do so out of the property of the parties. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. A. 352, 57 S. W. 839.

The rights of the children of the union ought to be conserved, not by a fixed charge against either the father or the mother, but by the court, in the division of the estate between the parties. Bond v. Bond, 41 C. A. 129, 90 S. W. 1128.

Where the court, granting a divorce to a wife held that all the property owned and possessed by the husband was his separate property, and awarded the custody of the children to the wife, the court had no jurisdiction to order the husband to pay to the clerk $15 a month for the benefit of the children, and to make such allowance a lien on the husband's real estate, etc. Barry v. Barry (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 1142.

The duty of a father to support his children is not terminated by a decree of divorce obtained by him in a suit in which the question was not raised, nor will an order in habeas corpus award their custody to the mother impose the burden of support solely on her, especially where she and they are wholly without means of support except her earnings, so that a clause was properly inserted in the habeas corpus order providing for their support from the income of property owned by the husband. Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 503.

Where a judgment of divorce was secured by a husband in the absence of the wife, on his pleadings, in which he did not inform the court of either children or property, the court could at a later time appoint a trustee of the father's property for the maintenance of these children. Id.

Art. 4635. [2981] Condonation, connivance and collusion.—In any suit for divorce for the cause of adultery, if it shall be proved that the complainant has been guilty of the like crime, or has admitted the defendant into conjugal society or embraces after he or she knew the criminal fact, or that the complainant, if the husband, connived at his wife's prostitution, or exposed her to lewd company, whereby she became ensnared to the crime aforesaid, it shall be a good defense and a perpetual bar against said suit; or if it appears that the adultery complained of is occasioned by collusion of the parties, and done with intention to procure a divorce, or where both parties shall be guilty of adultery, then no divorce shall be decreed. [P. D. 3460.]

Adultery as bar to action.—A decree of divorce is properly refused, where it is shown that both parties have been guilty of adultery. Haines v. Haines, 62 T. 216.

Exhibit.—The affidavit of adultery is a bar to her action of divorce for any cause. Oster v. Oster (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 265.

Condonation.—A finding in a suit by the husband for divorce held a finding that he had condoned the wife's misconduct. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 91.

The doctrine of condonation applies as well to cruelty and other grounds for divorce as to adultery, except the act of cruelty is condoned only until the particular act is repeated; the condonation, however, being conditional that the injured party is to be treated with conjugal kindness and consideration in the future, and, if this is not accorded, the former act of cruelty is revived, providing the last act is not procured by the offensive conduct of the party complaining. Bingham v. Bingham (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 214.

Collusion.—Where, in divorce, the court does not pass on the merits, but denies a decree on the ground of collusion, on reversal the cause will be remanded without rendering a decree for either party. Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 53.

Art. 4636. [2982] Legitimacy of children; parties may marry again.—A divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall not in any wise affect the legitimacy of the children thereof; and either party may, after the dissolution of the marriage, marry again. [P. D. 3453.]

See Art. 4632, which modifies this article as to right to remarry.

Ligation of children after divorce.—The liability of a father for necessities for his children continues to exist after he is divorced from his wife. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. A. 392, 87 S. W. 838.

The duty to support children held not terminated by a divorce obtained by the father, nor cast on the mother by the award of their custody to her in proceedings after the decree. Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 503.

Where the court appointed a trustee of a divorced father's lands for the support of the children, the order directing the trustee to pay a specified monthly sum for their support held proper. Id.

Right to marry.—An implied prohibition against a second marriage resulting from a decree of divorce not expressly authorizing It will not be given extraterritorial effect. Wingo v. Rudder (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1073.

Art. 4637. [2983] Debts and alienations after suit filed.—On and after the day on which the action for divorce shall be brought, it shall not be lawful for the husband to contract any debts on account of the community, nor to dispose of the lands belonging to the same; and any alienation made by him after that time shall be null and void, if it be proved to the satisfaction of the court that such alienation was made with a fraudulent view of injuring the rights of the wife. [P. D. 3457.]

Applicability in general.—This article is applicable in a case in which divorce proceedings were pending in which the right to the property owned by the husband and wife was not put in issue. The general rule which makes the right of a purchaser pendente lite to the rights of the property sold in controversy applies. Berg v. Ingalls, 78 T. 522, 15 S. W. 579.

The court will not construe this article in a case where a deed is made by the husband on the same day that a suit for divorce is filed by the wife, when the evidence does not show that the suit was filed at an hour prior to the making and recording the deed. If the wife claims that the suit was filed before the deed was made, she should have shown that fact by evidence. Sparks v. Taylor, 99 T. 411, 90 S. W. 487, 488, 8 L. R. A. (N. S.) 591.

A sale of a former husband's alleged interest in community property held properly enjoined. Roemer v. Traylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 885.

For a conveyance to be void the property conveyed need not be community property, but may be separate property of the husband or property which he holds in trust for his wife. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

Definition—"Community property."—"Community property" includes the interest remaining in property purchased by a husband in his own name mainly with his wife's money subsequent to their marriage, after allowing his wife an interest proportionate with the part of the purchase price paid by her. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 288.

Validity of conveyances.—A deed was void which was executed by a husband after action brought by his wife for divorce, and which was fraudulently dated back and entered of record as of the day that the divorce action was brought. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

The wife's service of process on the husband is not essential to make void a conveyance made by him on or after the day the suit for divorce is brought. Id.

A conveyance made in violation of this statute was void regardless of the fact that the divorce action was subsequently dismissed. Id.

Rights of purchasers.—The purchasers of property sold by a husband in violation of this statute were entitled, in the wife's action against them, to protection by a lien or partition to the extent of the taxes paid by them and of the husband's separate interest in the proceeds of the sale of the land. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 299.

Conclusiveness of Judgment.—Where, pending a divorce suit by a wife, her husband was defendant in an action to cancel a deed to property claimed as community property, the real property of which action the wife had notice, and, after the wife had obtained her divorce, a judgment against the husband, canceling the deed, was binding on her. Gabb v. Boston (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 569.

Art. 4638. [2984] Inventory and appraisement; injunction.—At any time during a suit for divorce the wife may, for the preservation of her rights, require an inventory and an appraisement to be made of both real and personal estate which are in the possession of the husband, and an injunction restraining him from disposing of any part thereof in any manner. [P. D. 3458.]

Injunctive relief.—Divorce proceedings limit the authority of the husband over community property only when exercised for fraudulent purposes. If the wife require further protection an injunction must be invoked. Moore v. Moore, 73 T. 383, 11 S. W. 296.

A wife, on averment that the husband, pending suit, is likely to dispose of the property, is entitled to an injunction. Turner v. Turner, 47 C. A. 391, 106 S. W. 237.

The rights given in divorce cases by statute to sequestrate the property and to enjoin to restrain defendant from disposing of the property held not exclusive and to enjoin the husband from disposing of the property. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 124.

Appointment of receiver pending appeal.—Where a temporary injunction has been granted the wife in a divorce suit to restrain the husband from disposing of the community property, pending the suit, it is error to dissolve the injunction before the rights of the parties are adjudicated. Turner v. Turner, 47 C. A. 391, 106 S. W. 238.

Art. 4639. [2985] Temporary orders.—Pending any suit for a divorce the court, or the judge thereof, may make such temporary orders respecting the property and parties as shall be deemed necessary and equitable. [P. D. 3454.]

In general.—Under this article the court can appoint a receiver to take charge of the wife's interest pending a divorce suit. The fact that the husband's interest in the real property has been enjoined to protect the wife from damage from mismanagement or fraudulent disposition of the personal property, will not defeat the wife's right to have a receiver appointed to take charge of said personal property. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 128.

Appointment of receiver pending appeal.—Where defendant appealed from a judgment for divorce which divided community property, and executed a supersedeas bond, it was not within the jurisdiction of the district court thereafter to interfere with the community property by appointing a receiver for the conservation of plaintiff's interest. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 937, 1199.

And defendant was entitled to possession and control of the property pending appeal, and was responsible for plaintiff's interest in the property and in the rents and revenues. Id.

Art. 4640. [2986] Alimony.—If the wife, whether complainant or defendant, has not a sufficient income for her maintenance during the pendency of the suit for a divorce, the judge may, either in term time or in vacation, after due notice, allow her a sum for her support in proportion to the means of the husband, until a final decree shall be made in the case. [P. D. 3456.]

Definition.—"Final decree."—The term "final decree," as used in this article, means a decree finally terminating the action, and not a decree of the district court from which an appeal has been perfected by supersedeas, and hence the wife is entitled to alimony pending such appeal. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 937.

Jurisdiction of court in general.—Application for divorce gives the court jurisdiction to hear the question of alimony. Burns v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 233.

The rule that final judgments cannot be altered after the term at which they are rendered does not necessarily prevent the court from making further orders not inconsistent with the judgment, and under this article the fact that judgment was rendered granting a divorce to the husband without providing for the wife's maintenance would not prevent the trial court, after final adjournment for the term, from allowing alimony pending an appeal from the decree, on the ground that the husband had voluntarily provided for the support of his wife and children until the decree was rendered, when he expressed his willingness to continue to do so, but after rendition of the decree granting the divorce and awarding the children to his wife and after the appeal therefrom, refused to do so; the court having such power until final adjudication on appeal. Ex parte Lohmuller, 193 T. 474, 129 S. W. 824, 29 L. R. A. (N. S.) 303.

Claim to and award of alimony.—On appeal the decree of the district court as to alimony was reversed and rendered for a different amount, and the defendant was enjoined from disposing of his property for the purpose of avoiding payment. Wiley v. Wiley, 38 T. 386.

It was error to adjudge plaintiff entitled to one-half the income of the community estate accruing pendente lite, where there is nothing in the pleading or evidence on which to base it. Bohan v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 965. 3106
HUSBAND AND WIFE

The mere filing of a motion by a husband, instituting a suit for divorce, to dismiss the action does not destroy the claim of the wife for alimony and attorney's fees. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

Attorney's fees as alimony.—Where a divorce as prayed for by both husband and wife was refused, attorney's fees in favor of the wife against the husband were not recoverable as alimony. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 91.

Appeal.—In order to be entitled to judgment refusing a divorce, the court must be satisfied the order for alimony made pending suit for the instalments remaining due and unpaid. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 29; O'Haley v. O'Haley, 31 T. 502.

Accountability on partition for alimony received.—A wife on partition of the community property should be charged with alimony received pendente lite. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 937.

Enforcement.—On refusal of husband to pay alimony fixed by the court, the court can adjudge him to be in contempt, and can order him to be confined in the county jail until he complies with the order of the court. Ex parte Davis, 101 T. 607, 111 S. W. 394, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1146.

The enforcement of an order for alimony is not suspended by an appeal from a judgment granting or refusing divorce. Id.

Appeal.—An order granting alimony is not appealable. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

Art. 4641. [2987] Custody of children.—The courts aforesaid shall have power, in all cases of separation between man and wife, to give the custody and education of the children to either father or mother, as to the said court shall seem right and proper, having regard to the prudence and ability of the parents, and the age and sex of the child or children, to be determined and decided upon the petition of either party; and in the meantime to issue any injunction or make any order that the safety and well being of any such children may require. [P. D. 3461.]

In divorce cases, the jurisdiction of the court over the custody and support of minor children is a continuing one. Plummer v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 697.

Procedure, trial by court or submission to jury.—The court does not decide the question whether the trial court can submit the question of the custody of a child in a divorce case but decides that the trial court can submit the question on a special issue for the purpose of aiding him in making proper disposition of the child and upon their finding can make the disposition. The party complaining not having objected to the submission of the special issue waives his right to have the matter determined by the court without submitting it to the jury. Wright v. Wright, 69 C. A. 469, 110 S. W. 159, 160.

Grounds for award of custody.—The custody of the minor children is a question of the welfare of the children rather than the affections or feelings of the parents. Haymond v. Haymond, 74 T. 414, 12 S. W. 90; Trimble v. Trimble, 15 T. 18.

In granting a divorce to a wife for cruelty, held not to error to give the husband the custody of a four year old daughter. Norris v. Norris (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 405.

In the custody of the children, who were more than 14 years of age, and who expressed a desire to live with their mother, held properly awarded to her. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 943.

In action for divorce, evidence that plaintiff was without means, and if their child was awarded to her she and the child would be compelled to live with her father, who was a man of bad moral character, a drunkard, and a gambler, held admissible. Bush v. Bush (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 217.

Evidence that if their child was awarded to defendant it would be cared for by his unmarried sister, who was competent and had affection for the child, held admissible. Id.

A husband, obtaining a divorce and the custody of a minor child, is entitled to retain the custody, where he is a man of good moral character and has an income amply sufficient to enable him to care for the child, and where he has at all times well cared for the child. Morrison v. Miller (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 450.

When divorce is awarded the custody of a child to the wife, and awards alimony for the child's support, such decree is conclusive, if not appealed from. Schultz v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

Where a divorce decree was tainted with fraud, in so far as it awarded the custody of minor children to the husband, the doctrine of res adjudicata was not applicable. And the wife was entitled to have the custody of such children awarded to her. Trammell v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 119.

A judgment of divorce awarding to the wife the custody of the children held a mere judicial determination that she shall have the preference legal right to their custody. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

Modification of judgment.—Courts of equity have jurisdiction over the question of the custody of minors, their decrees always being subject to modification or change upon proper showing; the courts retaining jurisdiction over the child. Hall v. Whipple (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 304.

The burden is on one claiming that fact to show that conditions have so changed since the time of the divorce or awarding the custody of a minor child to one parent an improper custodian, requiring that custody be given to another. Grego v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 361.

The court may modify or alter its order as new issues or changed circumstances require. Plummer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 597.

Where a wife, who when her husband obtained a divorce and the custody of their child refused to perform the duties of a mother and was without a permanent home, subsequently acquired a home, with permanent employment and with opportunity to care for the child, and actually cared for the child, there was a changed condition sufficient to authorize the court to award to her the custody of the child. Ex parte Boyd (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 254.

Of foreign judgment.—Foreign decree, determining the custody of a minor child in this state, is held not a bar to a subsequent proceeding to modify it, on proof that the situation and character of the respective parties had changed. And evidence as to the conduct and situation of the parties prior to such foreign decree held admissible in corroboration. Wilson v. Elliott, 96 T. 472, 73 S. W. 346.

Though an order of court awarding to a spouse obtaining a divorce the custody of a child of the parties must be given full faith and credit by the courts of another state, it is res judicata only so long as the circumstances existing at the time of the order remain unchanged. Ex parte Boyd (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 264.

Order for support.—Where the court had denied a husband a divorce, and granted the custody of a child to the wife, order cannot be entered against the husband for a monthly payment for the child’s support. Defee v. Defee (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 274.

The statute does not authorize a decree compelling the husband to pay a monthly allowance to support a minor child whose custody is awarded to the wife. Ligon v. Ligon, 39 C. 352, 57 S. W. 598.

The power conferred by the latter clause of this article to make provision for the children was for exercise pendente lite as is clear from the use of the words “in the meantime.” Id.

Where a child is awarded to either party upon the dissolution of the marriage, the court cannot fix a charge against the other for its support, maintenance and education, until it arrives at a certain age. The child must be provided for in the division of the estate of the parties. Bond v. Bond, 41 C. A. 129, 90 S. W. 1128.

The court, having granted a divorce to a wife and found that the husband’s property was separate property, had no jurisdiction to order a monthly payment by the husband for the benefit of the children, and make same a lien on the husband’s realty. Barry v. Barry (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1142.

The court held entitled, in proceedings by a divorced husband to obtain custody of the children, on awarding the children to the mother, to appoint a trustee of the father’s lands to receive the rents and apply a part thereof to their support, “though a part of the lands were occupied by the father as a homestead.” Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 603.

A wife, upon being granted a divorce, held not entitled to recover from her husband amounts expended from her earnings in supporting minor children taken with her, while the parties lived apart. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524.

The court has no power, on granting a wife a divorce, to award alimony to the wife for the support of a child, whether it be temporary in its nature, or without any condition that the child shall live. Martin v. Martin (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 344.

Duration of liability imposed.—Where a decree of divorce awards the custody of a child to it required a payment by the husband for its support, but does not make such allowance a lien on his property, such allowance ceases on his dying testament, leaving such child sole legatee. Schultz v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 66.

Rejection of order.—In trespass suit to try title by children of a former marriage against minor children for whose benefit a trust was declared by a divorce decree in land separately owned by the father, the former cannot complain of a judgment making their title subject to the terms of the divorce decree; the decree being subject to modification on its application, if circumstances warrant modification. Plummer v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 597.

The court may modify its decree as to the support of children as new issues or changed circumstances require. Id.

Enforcement of order.—Provision, inserted by agreement in decree for divorce, for payment in support of minor child, is enforceable only by execution. Ex parte Gerrish, 42 Cr. R. 114, 57 S. W. 1123.

Appeal.—Assignment that court erred in awarding custody of children to wife on granting her a divorce, without hearing evidence as to who was best fitted to care for the child not supported. Wetz v. Wetz, 27 C. A. 677, 66 S. W. 889.

Discretion and review.—In cases of the custody and support of the children of a divorced couple, the law having committed such matters to the district judge’s sound discretion, his findings of fact are conclusive on appeal, unless an abuse of this discretion appears. Bemus v. Bemus (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 603.

Art. 4642. [2988] Costs.—The court may award costs to the party in whose behalf the sentence or decree shall pass, or that each party shall pay his or her own costs, as to the court shall appear reasonable.

Costs in general.—In a suit for divorce, judgment against defendant, settling property rights, costs the costs on him. Stone v. Stone (Civ. App.) 40 B. W. 1923.

Attorney’s fees as costs.—Attorney’s fees cannot be taxed as costs on behalf of the wife; but when the wife is without fault, her reasonable attorney’s fees are chargeable to the husband. McClelland v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 330.

No divorce was refused, attorney’s fees held not recoverable as costs of the suit. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 91.
Under the circumstances, held not just to allow the wife reasonable attorney's fees in a divorce action. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 524.

Charge against husband's interest.—The court can make costs in divorce by the wife a charge against the community interest of the husband. Ghent v. Boyd, 18 C. A. 88, 43 S. W. 891.

Liability for attorney's fees.—Husband held liable for attorney's fees of wife, where she has no separate property, and suit is dismissed by agreement of parties. Ceccato v. Deutschman, 19 C. A. 434, 47 S. W. 739.

In an action against a husband for attorney's services rendered the wife in divorce proceedings, plaintiff may recover if he show there was probable cause for divorce, and need not show that the divorce proceedings were necessary for the legal protection of the wife. But evidence of services rendered her in a suit against the husband for assault is irrelevant. And the complaint in the suit against the husband for aggravated assault on the wife is irrelevant, while the petition filed for divorce is admissible to prove that such suit had been filed. Bord v. Stubbs, 23 C. A. 242, 54 S. W. 638.

The husband and wife are both liable for reasonable counsel fees of attorneys prosecuting her suit for divorce, when it appears that the facts alleged were probably true and constituted such cruelty as rendered cohabitation insupportable. Hicks v. Stewart & Templeton, 53 C. A. 491, 118 S. W. 206.

The husband and wife are liable for reasonable attorney's fees necessarily incurred in her suit for divorce, regardless of her mental capacity to contract. Id.

The court refusing to grant a divorce held not entitled to render judgment for the wife against the husband for attorney's fees. Hill v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 91.

Attorney's fees, incurred by the wife in a divorce suit, held recoverable from the husband if such costs were necessaries. Id.

A husband is liable for attorney's fees incurred by the wife in prosecuting a suit for divorce, whether prayed for by the wife in the suit for divorce, or sued for by her attorney in a separate action. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

The mere filing of a motion by a husband suing for divorce, to dismiss the action, does not destroy the claim of the wife for alimony and attorney's fees. Id.

In a divorce suit by a wife, where a probable cause exists that she was entitled thereto, her husband is liable for attorney's fees contracted by the wife. McLean v. Randall (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 1116.

Procedure for recovery of fees.—There being no statutory provision for attorney's fees, proceedings to recover them of the husband held not ancillary to the main suit. Ceccato v. Deutschman, 19 C. A. 434, 47 S. W. 739.

Where a husband sued for divorce, and the wife answered and claimed attorney's fees, the court, dismissing the action on the motion of the husband, could in the same proceeding render judgment against the husband for attorney's fees. Varn v. Varn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 639.

Appeal.—On appeal in divorce, the appellate court will not determine the amount of attorney's fees where no finding in respect thereto was made below. Aycock v. Aycock (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 1139.

INJUNCTIONS

[For Injunctions to restrain infringement of trade marks, etc., see Art. 706.]

Art. 4643. Writs of injunction granted, when.—Judges of the district and county courts shall, either in term time or vacation, hear and determine all applications and may grant writs of injunctions returnable to said courts in the following cases:

1. Where it shall appear that the party applying for such writ is entitled to the relief demanded, and such relief or any part thereof requires the restraint of some act prejudicial to the applicant.

2. Where, pending litigation, it shall be made to appear that a party doing some act respecting the subject of litigation, or threatens or is about to do some act or is procuring or suffering the same to be done in violation of the rights of the applicant, which act would tend to render judgment ineffectual.

3. In all cases where the applicant for such writ may show himself entitled thereto under the principles of equity, and as provided by statutes in all other acts of this state, providing for the granting of injunctions, or where a cloud would be put on the title of real estate being sold under an execution against a person, partnership or corporation, having no interest in such real estate subject to the execution at the time of the sale, or irreparable injury to real estate or personal property is threatened, irrespective of any legal remedy at law. Provided, that no district judge shall have the power to grant any writ of injunction returnable to any other court than his own, unless the application or petition therefor shall state that the resident judge, that is, the judge in whose district the suit is, or is to be brought is absent from his district, or is sick and unable to hear or act upon the application, or is inaccessible, or unless such resident judge shall have refused to hear or act upon such application for the writ of injunction, or unless such judge is disqualified to hear or act upon the application; and the facts of, and relating to, such judge's absence, or sickness and inability, or disqualification, or inaccessibility, or refusal to act, must be fully set out in the application for the writ, or in an affidavit accompanying said application; and, in case of such absence or sickness and inability or inaccessibility or disqualification of the resident judge, or in case of his refusal to hear or act upon such application, no district judge shall have the power to grant the writ when the application therefor shall have once been acted upon by a district judge of the state; provided, that when the judge applied to shall have refused to hear or act upon such application he shall indorse thereon, or annex thereto, his refusal to hear or act upon such application, together with his reason therefor; provided, that nothing herein shall apply to the granting of writs of injunction by non-resident judges to stay execution or to restrain foreclosures, or to restrain sales under deeds of trust, or to restrain trespasses, or to restrain the removal of property, or to restrain acts injurious to or impairing riparian or easement rights where proof is made to the satisfaction of such non-resident judge that it is impracticable for the applicant to reach the resident judge and procure his action in time to effectuate the purpose of the application. A resident judge shall be deemed inaccessible, within the meaning of this act, when, by the ordinary and available means and modes of travel and communication, he can not be reached in sufficient time to effectuate the purpose of the writ of injunction sought. Whenever an application or petition for the writ of injunction shall be made to a non-resident judge upon the ground that the resident judge is inaccessible as hereinbefore defined, the party making such application, or his attorney, shall make and file with the application, as a part thereof or annexed thereto, an affidavit setting out fully the facts showing that the resident judge is inaccessible, and the efforts made by the applicant to reach and communicate with said resident judge, and the result of said efforts in that behalf; and, unless it appears from said affidavit that the applicant has made a fair and reasonable effort to procure the action of the resident judge upon said application, no non-resident judge shall have the power to hear said application upon the ground of inaccessibility of the resident judge; and should any non-resident judge hear said application upon said ground of inaccessibility of the resident judge, and should grant the writ of injunction prayed for, said injunction so granted shall be dissolved upon it being shown that the petitioner has not first made reasonable effort to procure a hearing upon said application before the resident judge. 1. Repeal of former act.—Pen. Code, arts. 593-595, authorizing suit to restrain the keeping of a disorderly house to be brought by any citizen, without showing that he is personally injured by the acts complained of, is not repealed by subdivision 3 of this article as amended by Acts 1915 Leg. p. 331, c. 6, which has reference largely to the practice with reference to granting writs, hearing thereof, and appeals and orders granted therein, but does not by its terms or necessary implication repeal the former provision. Ex parte Morgan, 57 Cr. R. 551, 124 S. W. 99, 136 Am. St. Rep. 996.

2. Infringement of trade-mark.—See Title 19.

Where it is doubtful whether an action is one at law or equity, injunction may issue therein and must be obeyed until dissolved. Ex parte Wartfield, 40 Cr. R. 413, 50 S. W. 933, 76 Am. St. Rep. 724.

The appropriate function of the writ of injunction held to afford preventive relief only. Norwood v. Leaves (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 53.

A writ whereby persons were restrained from intruding themselves on the county committee of the Democratic party, and members of the committee were restrained from attempting to include the intruders as members, held an injunction. Ware v. Welch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 263.

4. Nature of right protected.—The violation of an abstract right is not cognizable in any court much less in a court of equity, unless injury and damages are alleged and proven. Ellis v. Warren, 152 S. W. 408.

5. Discretion of court.—The right to relief by injunction against a nuisance is not an absolute right, but one resting in the sound discretion of the court. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1164.

No abuse of discretion held to appear in denying a mandatory injunction to compel defendant to fill up a ditch which drained the boundary between his and plaintiff's land. Simon v. Nance (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 861.

The granting of an injunction is not as a rule a matter of absolute right, but of discretion. Id.

6. Jurisdiction.—See, also, notes under Art. 4653.

The execution of a judgment can only be enjoined by the court in which it was rendered. Bell v. York (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 65.

An injunction will lie to restrain the collection of a judgment void for want of jurisdiction in the court rendering the same. Tucker v. Williams (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 556.

The district court of one county can enjoin the execution of a writ of possession issued by the district court of another county, while allowing the execution of an order of sale as to the same property. Modisett v. National Bank, 23 C. A. 555, 56 S. W. 1067.

Action to restrain sale of land under judgment need not be brought in court where judgment was rendered, where no attack is made on validity of judgment. Corbett v. Provident Nat. Bank, 23 C. A. 692, 57 S. W. 61.

The court in which a judgment was originally rendered is the court in which an injunction restraining an execution of the judgment is returnable, and a suit brought in the district court of another county, where a levy was made on land, to enjoin its sale and to set aside the judgment of the court of civil appeals affirming the judgment of the district court, was properly dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Ellis v. Harrison, 23 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 984.

The fact that the court was without jurisdiction to hear and determine the issue of a suit when it issued a temporary restraining order did not render its action in hearing a motion to dissolve, and rendering a judgment dissolving the injunction, void, thereby leaving the injunction still in existence. Id.

Where two petitioners in a suit to enjoin the sale of land levied on under an execution were not parties to the action from which the execution issued, but joined their co-plaintiffs in the execution of a supersedeas bond on appeal of the case, they were not such a court, the judgment of the district court to satisfy the judgment of the court of civil appeals affirming the judgment of the district court.

A county court of one county has not jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin execution of a judgment of a county court of another county. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Higbee, 32 C. A. 502, 74 S. W. 965.

In order to prevent a multiplicity of suits, equity will take cognizance of a controversy, determine the rights of the parties, and grant the relief required to meet the ends of justice. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 527, 113 S. W. 337.

A court of equity never aids in the commission of a wrong, nor in protecting or preserving an unjust advantage gained. Sanders v. Cauler, 52 C. A. 261, 113 S. W. 560.

The facts showing the inaccessibility of the resident judge, and the efforts made to reach him must be fully stated, in order that the judge to whom the application is presented may determine whether a fair and reasonable effort has been made to reach the resident judge. Unless this is done the affidavit is fatally defective. Lee v. Broocka, 54 C. A. 240, 114 S. W. 165.

Under this article and Art. 4684, which provides that motions to dissolve injunctions without determining the merits may be heard after answer filed in vacation as well as in term time on at least 10 days' notice to the opposite party, or his attorney, the word "vacation," as so used, meant the vacation of the district court of the county wherein the case was pending, in which an injunction was awarded, and hence, there being no statute fixing the place for hearing motions to dissolve, a judge granting an injunction in vacation may hear a motion to dissolve it in a county other than that in which the suit is pending. Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 366.

The court county rendering a judgment on appeal from a justice's court which was not voided, had alone authority to issue an injunction enjoining the judgment. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

Where the order of a judge to whom application was made for an injunction restraining sale of a homestead on execution in a county other than that to which the writ was directed, or if the judge of the district court of the county to which it was returnable was inaccessible, and the truth of the recital was not questioned, the judge could grant the injunction under this article. Parsons v. McKinley (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1984.

Under this article, where a decree had been rendered by a district court, and an application had been made to the judge thereof for an injunction restraining the levy of an execution based thereon, and had been denied, the judge of another district, though of concurrent jurisdiction and holding court in the same county, had no jurisdiction to grant the writ. Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Under Const. art. 5, §§ 8, 16, relating to the jurisdiction of the county and district courts in the issuance of executions, and this article and Art. 4658, providing that injunctions are not to be issued to and tried in the court of the county in which the writ was directed, or if the judge of the district court of the county to which it was returnable was inaccessible, and the truth of the recital was not questioned, the judge could grant the injunction under this article. Parsons v. McKinley (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1984.

A special judge elected by the practicing attorneys to hold court and conduct the business thereof in the absence of the regular district judge has no authority to issue a writ of injunction returnable to another county of the same judicial district. Wynn v. R. E. Edmonson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 308.

Judgment of all the issues. — The court, having acquired jurisdiction, can adjudicate all the issues in the case. Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 245; Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. 384; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

Where the district court has obtained jurisdiction by reason of an injunction sued out under property located under execution in another county, and the purpose of decreeing damages for detention of property by the officer and plaintiff in execution. Chambers v. Cannon, 62 T. 293.

Where a defendant in a judgment obtains an injunction restraining its execution on the ground that the judgment is void, the court will retain jurisdiction and render judgment on the original cause of action, if the plaintiff in execution is legally entitled to it on the merits. Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. 384; Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 241; Houske v. Vanderlip, 22 T. 221; Masterson v. Ashcom, 54 T. 324; Hale v. McComas, 59 T. 495; Stein v. Frieberg, 64 T. 271.

Equity, having obtained jurisdiction to enjoin an enforcement of certain void judgments by laborers for conversion of rice on which they claimed a lien, it was error to refuse to retain such jurisdiction to determine the existence of such lien. Houston Rice Milling Co. v. Hankamer, 43 C. A. 576, 97 S. W. 119.

Where a court takes jurisdiction of a proceeding to enjoin execution on a dormant judgment, it may, having taken such jurisdiction, proceed to determine all of the issues between the parties. Buller v. Hullinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 105.

8. Jurisdiction dependent on nature of subject-matter and amount in controversy. —

See notes under Arts. 1705, 1713, 1764, 1772.

10. Petition. — See also, notes under Art. 4649.

Where the court of appeal vacated an injunction restraining a judgment creditor of plaintiff's grantor from selling under execution realty held by plaintiff under a conveyance duly recorded before the levy, it will permit plaintiff on remand to amend the petition to enable it to bring a case within subdivision 3 of this article. Latham Co. v. Shelton, 57 C. A. 122, 122 S. W. 941.

The petition for injunction permitted by this article, "where a cloud would be put on the title of real estate being sold under execution against a person * * having no interest in such real estate subject to the execution at the time of sale, or irreparable injury to real estate is threatened," should show absence of such interest in such persons or that such injury would be done by the execution sale. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

11. Inadequacy of remedy at law.—The execution of a judgment will not be restrained on the ground that the court had refused a continuance, the party having a remedy by appeal. Western v. Woods, 1 T. 1.

An injunction for injunction to restrain the execution of a judgment of a justice of the peace and to remove the same to the district court for a new trial on account of error in the decision will not be granted, where the party applying, through negligence, has failed to prosecute a certiorari within the time prescribed by law. Fitzhugh v. Orton, 17 T. 274; Royse v. Cox, 22 T. 82; Muir v. Hunt, 36 T. 118; Garner v. Smith, 40 T. 505; Jordan v. Corley, 42 T. 284; Railway Co. v. Dowe, 70 T. 1, 6 S. W. 790.

An injunction to restrain the prosecution of an action of forcible entry and detainer before a justice of the peace, on the ground that plaintiff had no title to the land, or possession, or right to possession thereof, but that title and possession are with defendant, will be refused, as these facts could be set up as a defense to the action. Chadoin v. Magee, 20 T. 476. And, if it fails, defendant has his remedy by certiorari. Smith v. Ryan, 29 T. 661; Gibson v. Moore, 23 T. 611.

A judgment will not be enjoined where the party has a remedy by appeal. Windisch v. Gussett, 30 T. 744; Robinson v. Sanders, 33 T. 774; Jordan v. Corley, 42 T. 284; Horns v. Walker, 19 T. 200.

A party seeking possession of or protection against injury to land, in an action of trespass to try title or to foreclose a mortgage, must resort to the writ of sequestration. Injunction is not the remedy. Bateson v. Choate, 55 T. 239, 20 S. W. 64.

An injunction will not be granted where the law provides a full, complete, and adequate remedy. Railway Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 1134; Id., 88 T. 346, 31 S. W. 613, 31 L. R. A. 200; Railway Co. v. Ellison, 14 C. A. 706, 37 S. W. 972; Lightfoot v. Murphy, 47 C. A. 112, 104 S. W. 511; Frazier v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 661; Sidwell v. Orleans, 55 S. W. 283, where the statute points out a different remedy for contesting the same. Ex parte Mayes, 39 Cr. R. 36, 44 S. W. 821.

Equity will grant an injunction to enforce a covenant not to engage in a particular business, since there is no adequate remedy at law. Anderson v. Rowland, 18 C. A. 460, 44 S. W. 911.

Where city owning waterworks wrongfully refuses to furnish water to citizen, he has no adequate remedy at law, and may sue in equity. Dittmar v. City of New Braunfels, 20 C. A. 293, 48 S. W. 1114.

An injunction against the removal of a schoolhouse will not be dissolved on the ground that sequestration was an adequate legal remedy. Green v. Gresham, 21 C. A. 501, 53 S. W. 382.

Injunction suit by mayor to restrain ouster from office held improper; remedy at law being adequate. Riggins v. Thompson, 30 C. A. 242, 70 S. W. 578.

Failure to pursue remedy by appeal or certiorari gives no right to substitute a suit by injunction. Kyle v. Richardson, 31 C. A. 101, 71 S. W. 395.

Suits for injunction may be maintained in cases where the applicant is entitled to the relief demanded, although there may be an adequate remedy at law. Sullivan v. Dooley, 31 C. A. 589, 73 S. W. 83, 84.

A railroad company held to have no adequate remedy at law to prevent a trespasser from using its track on which to operate a railroad velocipede, and hence was entitled to an injunction to restrain such use. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 642.

Adjoining property owners held without any adequate remedy at law to restrain a railroad’s unlawful use of a street as a switchyard, and, therefore, were entitled to an injunction. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 177.

Equity will not aid a party, if his claim grows out of, or depends on, or is inseparably connected with, his own prior fraud or misconduct, but will leave him to his remedies and defenses at law. Sanders v. Casley, 22 C. A. 261, 115 S. W. 500.

That a note executed by plaintiff was obtained through the fraudulent representations of defendant is available as a defense in an action on the note, and therefore is not ground for the issuance of a writ of injunction restraining the enforcement of the note. Turner v. Patterson, 54 C. A. 581, 118 S. W. 556.

An injunction against maintaining an action cannot be made to serve the purpose of an appeal. Id.

It is always necessary to exhaust all legal remedies before an injunction will be granted. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shields, 56 C. A. 7, 120 S. W. 222.

A party held not entitled to an injunction restraining a justice of the peace on the ground that he had not exhausted his legal remedy. Jones v. Curtis, 56 C. A. 181, 120 S. W. 530.

In courts administering both law and equity the rules denying injunction, where there is a remedy at law should not be applied as rigidly as at common law. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 868.

Interference with a telephone company’s right to erect poles in a street leaves it without adequate remedy at law, where its line is completed to the city, and it is threatened with arrest of its employés if they proceed with the work. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telephone Company, (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 708.

Under this article one showing itself entitled to injunction under the principles of equity is entitled to the writ, where it is threatened with irreparable injury to its property rights independent of whether it has an adequate legal remedy. Id.

12. Trespass and injunction to real property.—An injunction may be issued under this article to prevent defendant in trespass to try title from inclosing the land and removing timber, though sequestration under article 709A is an adequate legal remedy.

Under this article, as amended by Acts 31st Leg. p. 355, c. 34, § 2, authorizing the judge of the district courts to grant injunctions where irreparable injury to reality is threatened, irrespective of any legal remedy, that the applicant has an adequate remedy at law would not prevent the granting of an injunction to prevent irreparable injury to reality if he is otherwise entitled thereto under equitable principles. Holbein v. De La Garza (App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Where the destruction of shade or ornamental trees situated in a city sidewalk abutting on a property of a private owner is not necessary in the furtherance of a public service, equity will restrain a threatened destruction thereof, though the owner may have an adequate remedy at law as defined by the rules of the common law; this article giving an equitable remedy by injunction may supplement an equitable remedy, where there is no adequate remedy at law and justice of the premises. Western Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Smithideal, 104 T. 235, 136 S. W. 1949.

In an action for cutting and removing timber from plaintiff's land and mingling and confusing it with defendant's own timber, where it was shown that defendant was threatening, and, unless restrained would, remove the property from the county and dispose of it, that he was insolvent, and irresponsible, and that unless defendant was restrained from removing the logs, plaintiff would lose their value, plaintiff was entitled to a temporary injunction, against the removal and disposal of the logs, pending the action under this article, as amended by Acts 31st Leg. 1st Ex. Sess. c. 34, authorizing the issuance of injunctions, where irreparable injury to personal property is threatened, irrespective of any legal remedy at law, and was not confined to real property by sequestration or attachment. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (App.) 154 S. W. 337.

13. Collection of taxes.—Several suits to collect taxes against the property of several owners should not be enjoined at the joint suit of such owners on grounds which are available as defenses in such suits. McMickle v. Hardin, 25 C. A. 222, 61 S. W. 322. An order by the state treasurer, against the state legislature, to restrain them from performing their duties under Acts 1905, c. 141, on the ground that the statute is unconstitutional, as the railroad company which seeks the injunction has an adequate remedy at law. Stephens v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 109 T. 177, 97 S. W. 809. The courts restrained by injunction will not be restrained, except where there is no adequate legal remedy. Cole v. Porto (App.) 155 S. W. 360.

Persons own the same kind of property, and who are affected in the same way by taxes imposed by the same officers, and whose rights are identical, may join in a suit to restrain collection of taxes, though not all have an adequate remedy at law under the express provisions of this article. Porter v. Langley (App.) 155 S. W. 1042.

14. Judgment and execution.—Injunction will not lie to restrain the enforcement of a judgment which can be reviewed by certiorari. Railway Co. v. Ware, 74 T. 47, 11 S. W. 918; Same v. Wright, 88 T. 346, 31 S. W. 613; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Glass (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 229.

Where goods are wrongfully taken under execution, the trial of right of property does not afford an adequate remedy and hence the sale may be enjoined. Summer v. Crawford (App.) 41 S. W. 825.

A surety on a bond in a chattel's suit cannot, by a separate action, restrain enforcement of a judgment entered therein by stipulations between the principal parties; his remedy being by appeal. Johnson v. Blum, 17 C. A. 260, 42 S. W. 791.

Injunction will not lie to prevent execution sale of real property where parties have adequate remedy at law. Modisette v. National Bank, 23 C. A. 589, 56 S. W. 1097.

Injunction against a judgment and execution held improperly refused on the ground of adequate remedy at law. Crook v. Lipscomb, 30 C. A. 567, 70 S. W. 993.

Injunction will not lie to restrain the sale of land where there is an adequate legal remedy. Hahn v. P. J. Willis & Bro., 31 C. A. 643, 73 S. W. 1064.

An injunction will not lie to restrain execution of a justice's judgment, rendered in a suit of which he had jurisdiction, where the amount involved was insufficient to sustain an execution. Modisette v. Coca Cola Co. v. Ry. Co. v. M. & A. Ry. Co., 28 S. W. 728.

The remedy for the error in computing interest accrued on a demand or otherwise, so that the judgment is rendered for an excessive sum, is by appeal or certiorari, and not by injunction. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warlington (App.) 113 S. W. 988.

The owner of land, holding it under a deed duly recorded prior to a levy to satisfy a judgment against another, has an adequate remedy at law, and the sale of the property under the levy will not be enjoined. Latham Co. Bankers, v. Shelton, 57 C. A. 122, 122 S. W. 941.

Injunction does not lie to restrain a sale under an execution on the ground of errors in the rendition of the judgment, but the remedy is by appeal. Denson v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 811.

Where a stock of goods levied on as that of a husband in fact belongs to the wife, equity will restrain the enforcement of the judgment, as by a proceeding at law to try the right of property the damages against the sheriff, both as to the goods seized and the remainder, would be released, the goods would have to be returned to the custody of the owner, but the satisfaction thereto and value of the right of property, writs as might have been levied before the trial, and the wife would be deprived of the right to have the goods replaced and sold with the stock, so that the remedy at law would not be plain and adequate. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robinson (App.) 143 S. W. 294.

The execution of a judgment taken in justice's court on imperfect service, or no service at all, will not be enjoined, where defendant has a remedy by appeal or writ of certiorari. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 234.

15. Keeping bawdyhouse.—See notes under Art. 4688.

16. Waiver of objection.—Where an injunction suit was instituted April 2, 1906, an objection that complainant had an adequate remedy at law, first made in an amended answer filed May 26, 1909, held waived by delay. Rogers v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 599.
17. Pleading inadequacy of remedy at law.—See notes under Art. 4619.

18. Injunction inequitable.—A taxpayer cannot be enjoined in the issue of bonds voted by a city, but which would be void even in the hands of a bona fide pur­chaser, since neither he nor the city could suffer any injury from the issue. Bolton v. City of Antonio (Clv. App.) 21 S. W. 64.

When, pending suit to enjoin an execution, a levy thereunder is released, and the exec­ution is returned with the release indorsed thereon, the injunction will be denied. Thompson v. Goolden, 48 C. A. 23, 106 S. W. 938.

A person is not entitled to an injunction to restrain a threatened injury, if the exec­ution of the threats is such as cannot be appropriated controlled by injunction. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy, 51 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.

A court will not grant injunctive relief or a mandatory decree which it could not en­force because the party cast is a nonresident of the state. Galina v. Farmer, 55 C. A. 603, 119 S. W. 874.

A temporary injunction will not issue to restrain city officers from paying interest warrants after they have paid the same. Heuermann v. Church (Clv. App.) 150 S. W. 212.

Temporary injunction against sale and delivery of municipal bonds does not lie if they were delivered before the application for the injunction was heard. Simpson v. City of Nacogdoches (Clv. App.) 152 S. W. 588.

The court, in determining the propriety of restraining a railway company from using its tracks in a street for railway purposes, on the ground that the same creates a nuisance to the injured an individual, held required to consider the relative injury to the individ­ual and that which would be inflicted on the company and the public by granting the in­junction. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff, 102 T. 433, 118 S. W. 134, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 749.

Where, in a suit between irrigation companies to enjoin defendant from taking water, the issuance of the injunction would have greatly injured the crops of defendant's ten­ants, and it is not clearly shown that it would have appreciably increased plaintiff's water supply or that its tenants needed a greater amount, a temporary injunction was properly denied. McFaddin v. Ir. Co. (Civ. App.) 91 C. A. 175.

If more damage is likely to result from granting a temporary injunction than by re­fusing it, it should not be granted, but any doubt as to whether greater injury will result in holding that it should be resolved in plaintiff's favor. Id.

20. Defense in general.—In a suit by commissioned branch pilots to restrain a defen­dant from acting as a branch pilot, it is no defense that plaintiffs have confederated together to prevent him from becoming a branch pilot and from pursuing his occupation as a pilot. Olsen v. Smith (Clv. App.) 68 S. W. 320.

Plaintiff in suit for injunction against nuisance, held not to have so conducted him­self as to bar injunctive relief. Faulkner v. Wells, 25 C. A. 621, 68 S. W. 327.

The fact that plaintiffs, while in the control of a corporation, made unlawful contracts in restraint of trade, does not prevent them after their control has expired to sue to re­strain the performance of such contracts. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Blount, 49 C. A. 138, 107 S. W. 1163.

Where the rights of the parties in an action for an injunction are doubtful, the court should look at the balance of convenience, and act upon the consideration of the comparativa­bility of the inconvenience which may arise from granting or withholding the injunction. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McPadden, Wills & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

In order to constitute an "estoppel in pais," on the part of one who seeks to enjoin the commission of a nuisance, it must be shown that the matters claimed to constitute an estoppel have in some material respect affected the conduct of the party invoking the estoppel. Gose v. Coryell (Clv. App.) 126 S. W. 1164.

In an action to enjoin a nuisance, prescription held not available as a defense. Id.

One entitled to an injunction restraining a railway company from continuing a nu­isance by using streets for switching purposes held required to act within a reasonable time after the creation of the nuisance. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff, 102 T. 433, 118 S. W. 134, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 749.

That a levee obstructing the usual flow of the waters of a stream forming a boundary between adjacent lands was allowed to remain for over 25 years without complaint was a bar to equitable relief to enjoin its continuance. Knight v. Durham (Clv. App.) 126 S. W. 591.

Long-continued acquiescence and lapse of time, independent of statute, will defeat the right to an injunction (Clv. App.) 146 S. W. 729.

Taxpayers held not to have lost the right to bring a suit to restrain the collection of an invalid tax levy by delaying such action until an attempt or threat to enforce collection of the tax. Petty v. McReynolds (Clv. App.) 157 S. W. 189.

22. Possession to support suit.—A private corporation given the exclusive possession and control of real estate, charged with its care and maintenance, has the right to defend its possession as against a trespasser by action to enjoin the trespass, and need not show express statutory authority, since the statute carried with it the grant of every power needed to carry its purpose into effect. Conley v. Daughters of the Re­public of Texas (Clv. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

23. Right of individual to restrain acts against public welfare.—No action lies to re­strain an interference with a mere public right, at the suit of one who has not suffered from or been threatened with a damage peculiar to himself. San Antonio v. Strumberg, 79 T. 366, 7 S. W. 764.

Where the collection of an illegal tax is about to be enforced, one or more persons against whom the tax is levied may enjoin its collection. Morris v. Cummings, 51 T. 615, 45 S. W. 355.

City of Austin v. McCall, 95 T. 565, 68 S. W. 791.

In an action by a city and others to enjoin removal of defendant railroad's offices and shops from the city, individual plaintiffs held to occupy no better position than plaintiff city as to relief prayed.

City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238.

Use of a street in the heart of a city as a switchyard held a taking for a private use which could be restrained at the suit of an adjoining property owner.

A hotel owner held to have the right to restrain the unlawful use of a city street by a railroad company for switching purposes.

An individual held not entitled to maintain an action for an injunction to restrain a railroad company from using tracks in a street, but the individual should be remitted to his action for damages.

The organization of an unorganized county cannot be restrained at the suit of a private citizen.

Complainants held to have suffered special damages different from that suffered by the public from the obstruction of a street by a board fence surrounding the building in process of erection, and were, therefore, entitled to maintain an injunction to restrain its continuance.

The court at the suit of a private citizen and taxpayer will not enjoin one from maintaining a saloon without first applying for a license in the manner required by Acts 743 and 7435, where he has a license which is duly posted as required by law.

A taxpayer held not entitled to sue to restrain a street railway company for constructing a switch on a street, on the ground that it interfered with the public safety.

To enjoin a private person to restrain the obstruction of a public road, he must show special injuries, peculiar to himself, from the obstruction, differing from the injury to the public generally, since otherwise suit must be brought by the public proper officers.

Owens v. Varnell (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 256.

Discontinuance of street car line may be enjoined at the suit of a landowner who had dedicated streets in consideration of an agreement to operate a line thereon, where its operation would not prevent the company from performing its duties to the public.

24. Proceedings in aid of which injunction is authorized.—Injunction held not to lie in aid of jurisdiction to issue the writ of habeas corpus in favor of persons held under criminal process.

25. Costs.—Plaintiffs held liable for costs on dissolution of injunction to restrain execution of an order for sale of real estate.

Owner of land taken for a public road held not entitled, on dissolution of an injunction restraining the road overseers from removing certain obstructions which the owner had placed in the road, to costs of the action up to the time of a correction of the award of damages.

Dunnman v. Nall (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 177.

Award of costs on perpetuating an injunction held proper.

Where defendant improperly sued out execution on a dormant judgment, the costs in enjoining execution on the judgment, although it had not been discharged, and might be revived, will be taxed against defendant.

26. Grounds for granting or denying temporary injunction.—Certain facts held to warrant granting of a temporary prohibitive injunction forbidding interference with canal.

Jeff Chaison Town Site Co. v. McPadden, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

Where a petition against a water company supplying the inhabitants of a city under a franchise is based on the theory that the water company is a public service corporation and, as such, compelled to furnish water at a reasonable rate, alleging the unreasonable rate of water charged and a threatened irreparable injury by shutting off petitioner's water supply for a preliminary injunction, restraining the shutting off of the supply.

Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

Temporary injunction against interference by city with construction of a railroad in a location held properly refused under the circumstances.

Lessee of ice cream privilege at park held entitled, on payment of arrears of weekly rentals, to temporary injunction against forfeiture of lease.

Dallas, 69 C. A. 448, 68 S. W. 320.
If the railroad company fails to construct sufficient culverts and sluices, and damage results from such failure, injunction will lie to compel such construction: and if a dam has been constructed across the channel of a stream over which the road passes, and the same causes nuisance by diverting the water from its natural channel and causing it to overflow and injure land of adjacent owners, an injunction will lie in favor of such owners to compel the removal of the dam. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 454.
Through a decree that a party open a public highway across its property made no

A railroad company may restrain the enforcement of an unreasonable order of the railroad commission, requiring the company to erect and maintain a depot at a place designated. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Chicago, R. L. & G. Ry. Co. (Cliv. App.) 114 S. W. 192.

Courts will not enjoin adoption of an ordinance within the legislative discretion of the governing body of a municipal corporation. Hatcher v. City of Dallas (Cliv. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

A court of equity cannot enjoin peace officers from enforcing a valid criminal statute. Rice v. Rice.

Where a railroad has not for five or six years used a portion of its track, which the erection of a sea wall by a city renders it impracticable to rebuild, a temporary injunction against interference by the city with the construction of a track on a new location, which would accomplish the whole purpose of the suit without a trial upon the merits, is properly refused. Galveston & W. R. Co. v. City of Galveston (Cliv. App.) 137 S. W. 724.

In mandamus to compel the county commissioners' court to take certain sections of land out of the E. school district, where they had been fraudulently placed by the commissioners in division of the county into common school districts, and permit them to be annexed to the C. independent district, the petition alleged that E. school district bonds were about to be issued, and would be signed by the county judge and treasurer on a certain day, and that, upon the issuance and sale of the bonds, they would become liens on the E. school district, including the sections sought to be annexed for 30 years, and prayed that the county judge and treasurer be restrained from signing the proposed bonds, and that the commissioners' court be restrained from buying them with county funds until they have been approved by the attorney general. Under this article and Const. art. 5, § 8, as governing giving a district its general supervisory control over the commissioners' courts, and general original jurisdiction over all causes of action whatever for which a remedy is not provided, a temporary injunction was properly granted as prayed. McLaughlin v. Smith (Cliv. App.) 140 S. W. 248.

Where the validity of evidences of indebtedness issued by the court of county commissioners to pay for the construction of a courthouse was doubtful. It being question-able, the issue of bonds under Act 193, c. 149, the issuance of such indebtedness will not be enjoined at the suit of taxpayers. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols ( Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

The question of the building of a courthouse rests in the discretion of the county commissioners, and hence, though the majority of the taxing voters are opposed, they are not entitled to an injunction to prevent the building of a courthouse according to plans selected by the court. Id.

45. — Levying and collecting tax.—It is not sufficient ground for an injunction restraining the collection of a tax upon a tax list actually made, that it has not been correctly described or that the assessment rolls prepared from the assessment actually made. Prima facie, the tax is due upon the assessment, and equity will not aid one who is himself in default. Harrison v. Vines, 46 T. 15.

The misdescription of the property of a taxpayer by the assessor, or a mere irregularity in his entry of it upon the assessment list or roll, furnishes no sufficient ground for enjoining the collection of a tax for which the plaintiff was justly liable, and with which his property had been legally assessed by the proper officer charged with that duty. George v. Dean, 47 T. 73.

Injunctions granted to restrain the sale of property levied on to satisfy a tax illegally assessed. George v. Dean, 47 T. 84; Bank v. Rogers, 51 T. 606; Court v. O'Connor, 65 T. 539; Davis v. Burnett, 77 T. 3, 13 S. W. 613; Schmidt v. Railway Co. ( Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 546.

Where cattle properly assessed for taxation in one county were also assessed in another county, it was not necessary, before applying for an injunction against the latter assessment to seek relief from the board of equalization, or other officers having control in that respect, whether the tax was important or unimportant, whether paid before or after the levy which was sought to be enjoined. It was sufficient if the right to the taxes had actually accrued to that county, and this was established by the previous assessment made thereon. Court v. O'Connor, 65 T. 334; Harderty v. Fleming, 57 T. 469.

The taxes on the wrong county were levied on property belonging to one of the plaintiffs, and cast a cloud upon the title thereto which would authorize an injunction to restrain the collection of the tax. Chisholm v. Adams, 71 T. 678, 18 S. W. 336.

The collection of illegal taxes will be restrained by injunction. Davis v. Burnett, 77 T. 3, 13 S. W. 613; Court v. O'Connor, 65 T. 539; see Rosenberg v. Weeks, 67 T. 674, 4 S. W. 899; Cook v. Railway Co., 24 S. W. 544, 5 C. A. 644.

An injunction will not be granted to prohibit a tax collector from demanding an occupational tax. Yellowstone Kit v. Wood, 18 C. A. 583, 43 S. W. 1068.

A property owner may be required to pay the legal tax before being granted equitable relief against an excessive tax. Konklon v. City of El Paso ( Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 879.

In the absence of a showing that school trustees did not act for the best interests of the district, the showing that the location of the school is bad, is no ground for restraining levy taxes ordered by the district. Boech v. Byrom, 37 C. A. 35, 83 S. W. 18.

The levy of a tax voted by a school district will not be restrained because the call for the election to authorize such tax was participated in by de facto trustees. Id.

Action for injunction held not maintainable by a county tax collector to enjoin collection of a judgment for delinquent taxes recovered by the county by persons unauthorized by law to receive it. Stringer v. Holle, 47 C. A. 632, 106 S. W. 1146.

An action to restrain an independent school district from issuing bonds to raise money for school purposes and from levying a tax on the property in the district to pay the same held not objectionable as a collateral attack on the corporate existence of the district. Parks v. West, 102 T. 11, 111 S. W. 726.

When the national bank stock was assessed in a county at 85 per cent. valuation, while all other property was assessed at a 41 per cent. valuation, there was discrimination and the stockholders might enjoin the collection of the excessive tax. Langley v. Smith ( Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 606.

When a school district has been organized under color of statutory authority, its corporate existence and the rights of the trustees to exercise their functions cannot be enquired into in a collateral proceeding to restrain a threatened levy and collection of taxes upon the property of plaintiffs. Coffman v. Goree Independent School Dist. ( Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 193.
A property owner who has not paid taxes assessed against him, nor offered to pay them, cannot sue to enjoin an excessive levy. McMahan v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1123.

On suit to restrain the collection of taxes, that excessive property was levied on is not available to plaintiff. 16.

A citizen against officers of a county to restrain the collection of taxes assessed against property is not a suit against the state, so as to require the consent of the Legislature to its institution. Porter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1042.

45. — Acts relating to roads or streets. — Injunction will lie to restrain the opening of a public road not legally established. Floyd v. Turner, 23 T. 252. But an injunction was refused on the ground that insufficient damages were awarded. Duer v. Police Court of Austin City, 34 T. 253.

Injunction will lie to restrain the opening of a public road under an order made without notice. Pending such injunction new proceedings may be taken to open the road, which would be a defense to the injunction, but costs will be allowed plaintiff up to date of regular condemnation. Evans v. Live Stock & Land Co., 81 T. 622, 17 S. W. 232.

The owner of a lot abutting on an alley held entitled to an injunction against the opening of the alley by another abutter, under authority of the city. Kalfrey v. Sullivan, 18 C. A. 488, 46 S. W. 258.

After a city has condemned one's property for the purpose of opening a street, and time for appealing therefrom has lapsed, and an ordinance is passed changing the street through the property, an injunction will lie to prevent the opening without new condemnation proceedings. City of San Antonio v. Sullivan, 23 C. A. 658, 57 S. W. 45.

Opening a public road by county commissioners' court will not be restrained, because of irregular proceedings, at the instance of one who consented to its selection and urged the erection of a street which are not shown to be insufficient or ineffectively provided for. Allen v. Parker County, 23 C. A. 536, 57 S. W. 703.

Injunction to prevent opening a road, because of irregular proceedings, held not to lie at the instance of the plaintiff, and is one arrested through residence in the neighborhood and recommendation of another route. 16.

A property owner is entitled to an injunction to restrain the opening of a contemplated road over his land, where there has been no valid condemnation of such land for the road. Pettitt v. Dallam County (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 252.

Where gates have been constructed across a third-class road under a statute permitting them when the right of way was granted to the county without compensation, held, that an injunction would lie to restrain their removal by the county authorities. Adkins v. Bumgardner (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 182.

An owner of land sought to be taken for a public highway held not entitled to enjoin the taking for want of just compensation on the ground that the jurors appointed to award the compensation did not possess the proper qualifications. Midleton v. Precinct No. 5, County (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 637.

An allegation that the commissioners' court did not after full investigation find that the public interest would be served by the alteration of a highway would not be ground for an injunction restraining the taking of land for that purpose. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

Owners of land through which a proposed road was laid held not entitled to resort to equity to restrain the opening of the road. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 235.

A number of residents and owners of land on a highway, who were similarly affected by a threatened discontinuance of the highway, could join in suing to restrain the discontinuance. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 469.

46. — Appointment and removal of and interference with officers. — An injunction will lie to restrain the usurpation of the office of county clerk by one claiming under an appointment by the commissioners' court, which did not have authority to determine whether or not a vacancy existed. Ehlinger v. Rankin, 29 S. W. 240, 9 C. A. 424.

A municipal officer de jure or de facto is entitled to an injunction to restrain the city council from unilaterally appointing anyone in his office and property thereof. Callaghan v. McCown (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 319; Same v. Tobin, 40 C. A. 441, 90 S. W. 328; Same v. Irvin, 90 S. W. 335.

One elected a member of the board of education of a city at a regular election for a specified term held entitled to an injunction to prevent one from wrongfully ousting him from office. Bonner v. Belsterling (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1154.

The superintendent of the public schools of a city, holding office for a specified term to which is attached a salary not due, is entitled to restrain persons usurping the office of board of education from removing him from his office or interfering with him in the discharge of his office. Lefevre v. Belsterling (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1159.

In a suit by a de facto incumbent of the office of chief of police of a city to determine the right to the office, the court, on an application by plaintiff for a temporary injunction, could not properly grant defendant a temporary injunction on his cross-bill. Perrett v. Wegner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 984.

Injunction held the proper remedy of a school superintendent to compel the school trustees to recognize his right to the office, and to prevent them from interfering therewith. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

47. — Publishing election returns. — Publication of the result of a local option election cannot be enjoined. Ex parte Myers, 39 Cr. R. 36, 44 S. W. 831.

Petition for injunction to restrain the publication of the result of a local option election, on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the law, held to state a cause of action within the cognizance of a court of equity. Sweeney v. Webb, 33 C. A. 324, 76 S. W. 766.

An injunction does not lie to restrain the commissioners' court from canvassing the returns and publishing notice of the result of a local option election. Robinson & Watson v. Wingate, 98 T. 267, 93 S. W. 182.

An injunction will not lie to restrain the declaration of the result of an election locating a county seat. Townsen v. Mersfelder, 49 C. A. 283, 109 S. W. 420.
48. Enforcement of void ordinance.—Injunction will lie to restrain the enforcement of an ordinance of a city which is void. City of Austin v. Austin City Cemetery Ass'n, 23 S. W. 518, 87 T. 330, 47 Am. St. Rep. 114.

The enforcement of a void ordinance, not resulting in irreparable injury to vested property rights, cannot be restrained. Wade v. Nunnelly, 19 C. A. 256, 46 S. W. 668.

One held not entitled to maintain a suit to restrain the enforcement of a void ordinance where no property rights will be affected by the enforcement thereof. Robinson v. City of Galveston, 51 C. A. 292, 111 S. W. 1076.

Where the enforcement of a void ordinance regulating plumbers will injure the business of a firm engaged in the plumbing business, injunction will lie to restrain the enforcement of the ordinance. Id.

Where the attempted enforcement of an invalid ordinance would constitute an invasion of property rights, its enforcement will be enjoined. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 S. W. 218, 115 S. W. 650.

Injunction lies to protect private rights against an illegal ordinance. Hatcher v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

The rule that equity will not interfere by injunction to prevent criminal prosecutions under a void city ordinance is subject to the rule that equity will grant relief where there is not a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law, and when it is necessary to prevent irreparable injury. City of Houston v. Richter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 189.

Equity, at the suit of numerous journeymen plumbers of a city suing for themselves and others similarly situated, may restrain by injunction the enforcement of a void ordinance, requiring journeymen plumbers to procure a city license and give a bond. Id.

49. Publication of libel.—The general rule is that injunction will not lie to restrain publication of a libel, especially in view of the guaranty of liberty of speech in Const. art. 1, § 8. Mitchell v. Grand Lodge, Free & Accepted Masons, 56 C. A. 306, 121 S. W. 179.

50. Nuisance.—An injunction will be granted to restrain the establishment of a nuisance. Jung v. Neraa, 71 T. 336, § 9 S. W. 344; Waters-Fierce Oil Co. v. Cook, 26 S. W. 96, 6 C. A. 573.

Where a barn and barnyard, used as a breeding ground and for dairy purposes, constitute a nuisance, an injunction will lie. Hockaday v. Wortham, 22 C. A. 419, 54 S. W. 1084.

Where a city granted a franchise to construct a sewer, and provided for its terminal on a creek flowing through plaintiff's land, which polluted the stream, an injunction restraining the maintenance of the terminal held properly granted. Donovan v. Royall, 26 C. A. 248, 63 S. W. 1064.

Where a cotton gin near a residence is a nuisance, in that it interferes with the comfortable enjoyment of the residence, the owner, though not residing there, is entitled to injunction against the nuisance. Faulkner v. Wells, 28 C. A. 621, 68 S. W. 327.

Where, in the proximity of a proposed cemetery to residence property, and the consequent depreciation of its value, affords no right of action to restrain the establishment of the cemetery. Elliott v. Ferguson, 37 C. A. 40, 83 S. W. 56.

Where an injunction was asked to restrain defendants from establishing a cemetery where it would pollute plaintiff's wells and springs held, that the rule as to the balance of convenience did not apply. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 453.

The right to abate nuisances is a well-established doctrine of equity courts, based on the maxim that the owner of property must so use it as to not materially injure another. Hamm v. Gunn, 51 C. A. 424, 113 S. W. 304.

In an action to abate a nuisance caused by noxious vapors arising upon the land of another, it must be shown that the injury visibly diminishes the value of plaintiff's property and the comfort and enjoyment of it. Boyd v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 109.

When the cause of annoyance and discomfort arising from a nuisance is continuous equity will restrain it. Id.

Injury to the business of keeping a hotel occasioned by a nuisance held susceptible to ascertainment and satisfaction in money so that an injunction would not lie to restrain the nuisance. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff, 102 T. 438, 118 S. W. 344, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 749.

Residents of cities, towns, or villages must of necessity submit to consequences resulting from occupations and pursuits carried on in the immediate neighborhood which are lawful and necessary for trade and commerce; and matters which, though in themselves annoying, are in the nature of ordinary incidents of city or town life, cannot be abated as nuisances. Gose v. Coryell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1164.

An injunction against the maintenance of a cotton gin alleged to constitute a nuisance should not be granted, unless, in addition to the proof ordinarily necessary to establish the existence of a nuisance, it appears that in maintaining the gin where located defendant is acting unreasonably; such question being one of fact to be determined from all the testimony. Id.

Locality is to be considered in determining whether a certain use of property is a nuisance, and, if so, whether relief should be awarded by injunction or the injured party be restricted to an action for damages. Id.

Equity will enjoin the construction of works not per se a nuisance, it must clearly appear that the operation thereof will create a nuisance. Robinson v. Dale (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 308.

Under subdivision 1 of this article, authorizing the court to restrain an act prejudicial to one aggrieved by a nuisance seriously affecting his health and life, and the comfortable enjoyment of his home, may sue in equity to abate the nuisance, though the person causing the nuisance is financially responsible for the damages incurred for the injury caused thereby one for which there is no adequate remedy at law. City of Austin v. Coe (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 733.

Owners of lots abutting upon a public square dedicated for county courthouse purposes held entitled to enjoin its use for the construction of a public comfort station by the town. Clement v. City of Paris (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 524.
INJUNCTIONS
Art. 4643

— Public or private injury.—An injunction will be granted in behalf of the state to abate a public nuisance which is an injury to the property or civil rights of the public at large and which it is her duty, as agent of the public, to prevent. State v. Goodnight, 70 T. 682, 11 S. W. 119; City of Belton v. Central Hotel (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 297; State v. Patterson, 14 C. A. 455, 37 S. W. 478.

52. — Operation of railroads.—An injunction to restrain a street railway company from operating its road held properly denied, on the ground that the injury was not irreparable. Rische v. Texas Transp. Co., 27 C. A. 32, 66 S. W. 324.

The authorities do not authorize the court to enjoin a public nuisance created by one pursuing the business of selling intoxicating liquor without a license, but the party seeking the remedy must show himself entitled to the writ under the general principles of equity unaided by himself by pleading averment of some statute enlarging the remedy. Spence v. Fenchler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

53. — Calling state convention.—An illegal call for a state convention will not be enjoined by a court of equity, since such relief would be purely for the protection of a political right. McDonald v. Lyon, 42 C. A. 494, 95 S. W. 57.

54. — Enforcement of resolution by insurance society.—Where the executive officers of a mutual benefit society attempt to enforce an unauthorized resolution, the member's remedy is by injunction. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

55. — Cancellation of or change in beneficiary certificate.—A mutual benefit association cannot be enjoined from issuing a new certificate changing the beneficiary as requested by the member, notwithstanding alleged equitable rights of plaintiff. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. of Texas v. Jones, 47 C. A. 533, 106 S. W. 184.

56. — Sale of note.—An injunction will be granted to restrain the negotiation of negotiable promissory notes obtained by fraud. Bedwell v. Thompson, 25 T. Sup. 247.

In a suit to restrain the sale of a vendor's lien note held by defendant against plaintiff, an objection to the complaint held untenable. Neal v. Whitlock, 45 C. A. 457, 101 S. W. 294.

57. — Sale of community property.—Pending suit for divorce the plaintiff, being a married woman, may obtain a writ of injunction to restrain her husband from selling or incumbering the community property. Art. 4643; Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 168.

58. — Transfer of property.—Injunction will be granted to restrain the fraudulent transfer of property. Washington County v. Schulz, 63 T. 32.

59. — Interference with corporate management.—Equity held to have jurisdiction of the suit of a corporation at the instance of its de facto officers to enjoin others claiming to hold the offices, where their acts interfere with the management of the corporation business. De Zavala v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 160.

60. — Use or control of live stock.—An injunction will be granted to restrain a person from controlling live stock on the range, the property of the plaintiff in the suit. Hickman v. Hickman, 5 C. A. 99, 27 S. W. 31.

Where the administration of the estate of a decedent was pending in the probate court, one suing for the foreclosure of a mortgage covering certain live stock belonging to the estate could not in such suit secure an injunction restraining the use of the animals. Daniel v. E. Steeple, & Co., 38 C. A. 58, 51 S. W. 121.

61. — Building party wall.—Where plaintiff agreed that defendant might erect a party wall on the division line between their respective lots, injunction is the proper remedy to prevent defendant from building the wall in an improper manner, without a showing of injury. Everly v. Duriskill, 24 C. A. 413, 58 S. W. 1046.

62. — Communicating with plaintiff's wife.—Restraining defendant in a suit for the partial alienation of a wife's affection from conversing with, or writing to her in any way, or associating with her, held not inconsistent with freedom of speech or of the press or of locomotion denied by defendant's having voluntarily married said woman, nor does the converse need to tend to a breach of marital relations between plaintiff and his wife. Ex parte Warfield, 40 C. R. 413, 50 S. W. 983, 76 Am. St. Rep. 724.

A railroad company is not entitled to an injunction against dealing in nontransferable tickets, which may thereafter be issued as occasion may arise. Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 199.

55. Erection or maintenance of levee or dam.—Equity will not interfere at the suit of an owner of land bordering on a stream with a right of the latter to erect levees on his own land, unless material injury results therefrom. Knight v. Durham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 591.

A married woman could not enjoin the maintenance of a dam by a corporation entitled to exercise of eminent domain, which would submerge a homestead, where the husband had waived prepayment of compensation before appropriation of the land, but was only entitled to recover compensation for her homestead. Reitzer v. Medina Valley Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 389.

56. Interference with right to water.—When the natural flow of water is diverted, so as to result in injury to the owner of land, an injunction should issue to prevent the continuance of the wrong. G., H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Tait, 63 T. 323. But see I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Malone, 1 App. C. C. § 254.

57. Injunction to restrain upper owner from maintaining dam held properly denied, where it appeared that interference with the flow was caused by obstruction in ditch for which defendant was not liable, and not by the dam. Standart v. Vivilon, 22 C. A. 142, 54 S. W. 44.

One who has prepared his land and planted a crop, relying on a contract whereby another was required to furnish him water, is entitled to an injunction compelling specific performance of the contract. Bay City Irr. Co. v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 454.

Grantee of lot and appurtenances held entitled to restrain vendee of former owner from selling rights to make connections with water main supplying plaintiff’s lot with water, where interference with plaintiff’s rights results to an adequate supply of water. Hunstock v. Limburger (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 327.

Under this article, and Art. 5008 et seq., declaring that unappropriated waters of flowing rivers may be acquired for irrigation and other purposes, a lower riparian owner may bring an action for temporary injunction against the diversion of water for the irrigation of nonriparian land in the absence of a showing that his land is now being used or is intended for immediate use or is prepared for agricultural or other purposes rendering the use of the water of the river necessary and beneficial. Biggs v. Leffingwell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 902.

Necessity for preventing defendant from obtaining prescriptive right to take water from above plaintiff’s riparian land held not sufficient to authorize the grant of a temporary injunction. Id.

An upper riparian owner cannot be enjoined by a lower owner from diverting water until the former shall construct an intake, headgate, canals and ditches, and a return ditch for surplus water, so that the diversion may be made without unnecessary waste, where by agreement with such lower owner the surplus water of the former owner was turned into the lower owner’s canal, as the rule requiring the return is for the benefit of and may be waived by the lower owner. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

A riparian owner cannot be deprived by injunction of water which a prior appropriator did not need. Id.

If the water supply of plaintiff irrigation company was not sufficient because another irrigation company, other than defendant, was taking with plaintiff’s consent more water than it was entitled to receive, defendant could not be held responsible for the shortage in plaintiff’s water supply, and itself enjoined from taking water. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

59. Pollution of water.—The wrongful pollution of a stream by one riparian owner to the injury of others may be enjoined. Teel v. Rio Bravo Oil Co., 47 C. A. 153, 104 S. W. 450.

60. Operation of mill.—One acquiring after maturity a note given by a buyer of half interest in a sawmill plant and timber held not entitled to restrain the operation of the mill and the creation of liens for wages of employees under Arts. 5648-5649. Norwood v. Lindsey (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 53.

61. Hearing and determination of application for injunction.—In a suit to enjoin defendants from locating a cemetery in a certain place on the ground that it would pollute the plaintiff’s wells and springs held, that it was not necessary for the jury to find which wells or springs would be polluted. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 453.

On an application for temporary injunction against interference by a city with the construction of a railroad track on a new location, where the city is confined on the hearing to a denial under oath of the allegations of the petition, and to such affidavits, rebutting the case as made by the petition and supporting affidavits, as could be procured by voluntary action of the witnesses, the cause will not be decided on the merits, though there is little dispute as to the main facts, the city being entitled to have its rights determined on a fair trial, where it can have compulsory process on its witnesses, with the right of cross-examination. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 724.

Right to the possession of archives, records, and other property belonging to a public office cannot be determined on an application for a temporary injunction in a suit to determine title to the office. Perrett v. Wegner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 984.

Upon hearing, after granting a temporary injunction provisionally, the judge could determine the meaning of a statute upon which plaintiff’s probable right to an injunction depended. Gibson v. Sterrett (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1189.

Equity will not enjoin the completion nor require the removal of a fence where the determination of the issues necessarily requires the determination of the title to the land upon which the fence is located. Walker v. Haley (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 689.

62. Decree.—If the plaintiff admits his indebtedness in his petition, upon the dissolution of the injunction the defendant is entitled to judgment for the amount due, on a prayer to this effect, and without specific allegations as to such indebtedness. Bourke v. Vanderlip, 22 T. 321; Willis v. Gordon, 22 T. 241.

While a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace cannot be revised in the district court, it would seem that in a suit brought in the district court by the defendant, to prevent by injunction the collection of the judgment on the ground of fraud, and because the judgment was dorted, the district court would have power to inquire whether the sum for which the judgment was rendered was still due, and if so to render a judgment against the plaintiff in the injunction suit for the amount. In such a proceeding, when it is shown that the judgment has not been paid, the injunction should be dissolved. Sey

In a suit by injunction to restrain the sale of property under a judgment erroneously rendered, the defendant, who was plaintiff in the injunction, can have the judgment set aside and the proper statutory judgment rendered therein. Krall v. Printing Press Co., 79 Tex., 155, 15 S. W. 565.

After enjoining the issuance of an execution on a void judgment, the court having obtained jurisdiction will render judgment for the amount shown to be due. Hickman v. Wis. & Edrington (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 322, citing Edrington v. Allabrooks, 21 T. 186; Willis v. Gordon, 25 T. 241; Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. Sup. 334.

A judgment in a suit to enjoin the sale of land under an execution need not determine the amount of the debt, where the only issue raised by the pleadings and evidence is whether the property is a homestead, and therefore exempt. Warren v. Kohr, 28 C. A. 331, 64 S. W. 62.

Where a complaint by the commissioned branch pilots seeks to restrain a pilot from acting as a branch pilot, the decree cannot include his associates, agents, and employees. Olsen v. Smith (Cliv. App.) 65 S. W. 320; Petterson v. Smith, 30 C. A. 139, 69 S. W. 542.

A decree restraining a defendant who has not been created a branch pilot from piloting any foreign vessels in or out of the Galveston port held too broad. Petterson v. Smith, 30 C. A. 139, 69 S. W. 542.

Where intervenor, in an action to restrain the enforcement of a judgment, admitted payment before intervention, plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Abe v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n (Cliv. App.) 78 S. W. 973.

A railroad held not entitled to object to a decree restraining certain acts as of a date when the railroad had voluntarily promised to desist from committing them. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Cliv. App.) 93 S. W. 177.

In a suit to restrain the collection of certain state privilege taxes, a judgment for the taxes should have been in favor of the state, and not in favor of the officers sued. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stephens, 44 C. A. 327, 99 S. W. 157; Stephens v. Morning Star Oil Co. (Cliv. App.) 99 S. W. 159; Southwestern Oil Co. v. State, Id.

In a suit to enjoin a breach of a contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system, a decree held not objectionable as requiring the use of existing machinery be of in the Hubbard City, 47 C. A. 106, 106 S. W. 16.

A decree restraining the manufacturer and seller of salt from violation of the anti­trust laws, without specifying what acts would constitute such violation, held insufficient. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Blount, 49 C. A. 138, 107 S. W. 1163.

In an action for injunction, held that the decree was unauthorized by the pleadings. Mundy v. Hart (Cliv. App.) 111 S. W. 236.

A decree in a suit for a mandatory injunction to compel obedience to a decree that defendant open a public highway across its property granting such relief held required to incorporate a certain provision in the latter decree. Santa Pe Townsite Co. v. Norval, 55 C. A. 485, 118 S. W. 762.

A judgment held erroneous in perpetuating an injunction without provision for its duration. Parres v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 190, 122 S. W. 399.

Where a petition seeks only to enjoin the construction of a railroad crossing over a street railroad, the court could not prescribe a particular character of crossing and require it, and no other, to be installed. Galveston W. Ry. Co. v. Galveston Electric Co. (Cliv. App.) 133 S. W. 1140.

A suit by a husband exercising control over a wife's separate property, a decree held not warranted by the pleading. Burns v. Burns (Cliv. App.) 136 S. W. 333.

An injunction will not be issued against unknown persons who are not made parties to the suit. Hamner v. Garrett (Cliv. App.) 133 S. W. 1058.

70. — Order for payment of deposit in court.—Defendants in execution sought by injunction to restrain the collection of an execution, the money having been deposited in court. Under a judgment for plaintiff in execution who asserted his right to the fund with prayer for general relief, he was entitled to an order for the payment of the money. Goodman v. Henley, 80 T. 499, 16 S. W. 432.

71. — Decree on sustaining demurrer to bill.—See notes under Art. 4663.

72. — Uncertainty.—Decree in suit against city to abate its waterworks dam as a nuisance held not objectionable as indefinite. City of Ennis v. Gilder, 32 C. A. 351, 74 S. W. 585.

A decree enjoining defendants from using the water of a creek and spring to irrigate undefined parts of a number of surveys was void for indefiniteness. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 T. 578, 86 S. W. 733, 70 L. R. A. 964, 107 Am. St. Rep. 653.

In an order of contract with a city to maintain a waterworks system, a decree held not too indefinite and uncertain to be enforceable in equity by ordinary process. Bounds v. Hubbard City, 47 C. A. 233, 105 S. W. 56.

Judgment, directing defendants assuming to act for plaintiff corporation to dismiss all actions brought by them and cancel all powers of attorney which they hold, held not erroneous for uncertainty. Nelson v. Lamm (Cliv. App.) 147 S. W. 664.

A decree, in a riparian owner's suit enjoining defendant from taking any water for nonriparian lands, except when the river was overflowing its banks at plaintiff's land, was too indefinite to be enforced. Biggs v. Lee (Cliv. App.) 147 S. W. 709.
73. Modification.—In an action to enjoin defendant from closing a road, a modification of the injunction on final hearing held not error. Smith v. Ernest, 46 C. A. 247, 102 S. W. 129.

Reformation of order granting an injunction allowed, where it grants a permanent injunction without notice, but the writ issued is in form a temporary injunction until the hearing. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McPadden, Wies & Kyle Land Co., 46 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

Plaintiffs, who were members of the minority faction of a religious society, held not entitled to complain of the modification of a temporary injunction which permitted the collection of dues and the admission of new members; it appearing that their right to the property and to protection from expulsion were preserved. Mendelson v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1149.

74. Recovery of damages and continuation of injunction.—Where plaintiff recovers, as damages for a nuisance, the amount or depreciation of his property, based on the permanency of the nuisance, he cannot also have the continuation of the nuisance enjoined. Hockaday v. Wortham, 22 C. A. 419, 54 S. W. 1094.

If a nuisance is permanent, so that the damage therefrom to adjacent property constantly and regularly occurs, the person injured may recover the resulting depreciation in the value of his property, both for the past and future at one time, and is entitled, in addition, to have the nuisance enjoined. If a nuisance to adjacent property was abatable, the person injured thereby would be entitled, in an action to abate the nuisance, to recover such damages as would fairly compensate him for having been deprived of the enjoyment of his property up to trial, and, in addition, to have the maintenance of the nuisance restrained. Kennedy v. Garrard (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 570.

In a Disposition of Property.—That the owner of a house cut off its top and moved it under telephone wires was no defense to his action for wrongful injunction against interference with the wires. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1069.

76. Evidence.—See notes under Art. 4619.

77. Judgments and orders appealable.—See notes under Art. 4644.

78. Assignments of error.—See notes under Art. 4644.

79. "Vacation" defined.—See notes under Art. 4646.

Art. 4644. Appeals allowed to courts of civil appeals.—Any party or parties to any civil suit wherein a temporary injunction may be granted, refused or dissolved, under any of the provisions of this title, in term time or in vacation, may appeal from the order or judgment granting, refusing or dissolving such injunction, to the court of civil appeals having jurisdiction of the case: but such appeal shall not have the effect to suspend the enforcement of the order appealed from, unless it shall be so ordered by the court or judge who enters the order; provided, the transcript in such case shall be filed with the clerk of the court of civil appeals not later than fifteen days after the entry of record of such order or judgment granting, refusing or dissolving such injunction. [Acts 1909, p. 354, sec. 2.]

Nature of proceeding.—Where defendant in replevin showed that the property in controversy was levied on by a constable who refused to accept a sufficient replevy bond, and prayed that the constable be compelled to accept the bond and deliver the property to defendant, the proceeding resulting in granting the relief demanded could not be treated as a temporary mandatory injunction, within this article and Art. 4646, but the proceeding must be treated as one for mandamus independent of the replevin action. Keasler Lumber Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 345.

Notice of application for an injunction.—This article did not contemplate changing the rule that an ex parte order for an injunction may be granted. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. of Oklahoma v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 662.

Judgments and orders appealable.—No appeal lies from the refusal of the district judge to grant an injunction in chambers. Gibson v. Templeton, 62 T. 655.

An appeal will not lie from an interlocutory order modifying and continuing in force a temporary injunction, where the record fails to show that the cause has been finally tried or disposed of. Medlin v. Seidemann (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 596.

There is no appeal from an order refusing to grant an injunction. In this case the court holds that the writ granted was a temporary injunction, and of course, an appeal would lie upon it being dissolved. Caswell v. Funderberger, 47 C. A. 455, 105 S. W. 1018.

It is only when a temporary injunction is granted or having been granted is dissolved that right of an appeal from the judge's order is given. City of Marshall v. Allen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 851.

Parties against whom an injunction has been granted, by filing a motion to dissolve, which motion was overruled, did not lose their right to appeal from the order granting the injunction. Jeff Chaison Town-Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle L. Co., 66 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

Acts 1907, c. 107, authorizes an appeal from an order granting a temporary restraining order, but does not extend to discretionary relief from the order granting the injunction. McDonald v. Denton (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 533, affirmed Denton v. McDonald, 104 T. 206, 135 S. W. 1148, 14 R. A. (N. S.) 453.

An agreement for postponement of a hearing for application for an injunction held not to operate as a restraining order, so as to make subsequent proceedings nothing more than the proceeding from which an appeal would not lie. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 568.

This article affords a speedy remedy by immediate appeal from such an order not previously allowed by law. Irrespective of the merits, and an appeal from a final judgment dissolving a preliminary injunction and dismissing the suit is not affected thereby, but is regulated by the statute regulating appeals generally. Hamner v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 961.

An order of a judge in vacation, requiring an irrigation company to furnish a sufficient amount of water to irrigate the crop of a person who had been adjudged entitled to such water, was not one granting a temporary injunction, but one granting a mandamus, and no appeal lay therefrom. Old River Rice Irrigation Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 494.

This article does not authorize an appeal from an order modifying a temporary injunction, and denying a motion to dissolve the same as modified. Powdrill v. Powdrill (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 275.

Since this article does not authorize an appeal from an order refusing to dissolve an injunction, nor limit the right to move to dissolve, defendant did not waive his right to appeal from a temporary injunction by filing a motion to dissolve. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 502.

Under this article the court of civil appeals may review on appeal a vacation order refusing a preliminary injunction. State v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 236.

Under Art. 4643 and this article an order of a court, determining an appeal bond for an appeal from a justice's court sufficient and denying the dissolution of an injunction to restrain a sale under execution of the judgment of the justice, is not a final judgment, and no appeal therefrom may be taken. LeBaume v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 301.

Under this article the court of civil appeals will hear an appeal in an action by a company seeking to condemn land to compel the owner to permit it to inspect and survey the land, coupled with an application for temporary injunction. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

An interlocutory order granting a temporary injunction is appealable. Ware v. Welch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 363.

An order-denying a motion to dissolve or modify a temporary injunction-is not given by this article. Welborn v. Collier (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 665.

This article does not make an order dissolving a temporary injunction a final order, but merely gives a right of appeal from such order, which is an interlocutory one and not appealable prior to the statute until final determination of the suit. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 658.

An appeal from an order dissolving a temporary restraining order is properly dismissed, and an appeal from an order modifying or involving the same issues is pending. Simpson v. City of Nacogdoches (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 663.

An order dissolving a temporary restraining order, made merely on the pleadings, and without evidence as to the merits, is not appealable. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 913.

Under this article a party may appeal from an order modifying a temporary injunction. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1149.

Necessity of objections or exceptions in trial court.—Where, in an action to enjoin the carrying out of a local option election, the question that the election was not held at the designated place cannot be first raised on appeal. Roper v. Scurlock, 29 C. A. 484, 69 S. W. 456.

In suit to enjoin opening highway, failure to allege variance between route as adopted and as ordered held to preclude urging objection on appeal. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 869.

This article as amended by the act of 1907 contemplates that some action must be taken in the court below calling in question the correctness of the proceedings before the appellate court can review its action. The errors assigned are such as may be waived where no objection has been urged in the court below, and no fundamental error of the trial is shown, therefore the appellate court has no power to review the action of the lower court. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co., 58 C. A. 116, 118 S. W. 786, which was affirmed.

Since a temporary mandatory injunction order may be made in chambers out of term, without notice to the adverse party, or hearing, an exception to the order granting such an injunction is not necessary to authorize an appeal therefrom. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 962.

Objection that an injunction against a nuisance was too broad cannot be reviewed on appeal, where no steps were taken below to limit the scope of the decree, which conformed to the prayer for relief and the findings. Nations v. Harris (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 334.

Assignments of error.—While under the direct provisions of Art. 4643, as amended by this article, formal assignments of error are not necessary on appeal from an order granting an injunction, the assignments of error in the record may be considered in determining the objections to the order, but it is immaterial whether such assignments...
technically comply with the court rule. Holben v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 42.

Notice of appeal.—Since a temporary mandatory injunction order may be made in chambers out of term, without notice to the adverse party, or hearing, a notice of appeal was not necessary to give a right to appeal from such an order. Young v. Dudden (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 892.

Matters included in transcript.—On appeal from the granting of an injunction at an ex parte hearing, it was error to include in the transcript defendant’s answer and application for fixing the amount of the appeal bond, where they were not filed until the injunction was granted. Wynn v. R. E. Edmonson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 310.

Filing transcript.—The petition with the flat of the judge endorsed thereon, granting the temporary injunction, was filed July 11th. This constituted the “entry of record of such order” within the meaning of section 2 of the act of 1907, amending this article, and to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction the transcript must have been filed within 15 days from 11th day of July. Baumberger v. Allen, 101 T. 352, 107 S. W. 526, 527.

Under this article it was sufficient that, within 15 days from the filing with the district court of the petition with the judge’s order indorsed thereon, a second transcript filed in the court of civil appeals showing that the transcript was filed within 15 days after entry of the order. Holben v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 42.

Under this article it was held that, though ordinarily the time of filing transcripts was not jurisdictional as shown by Art. 1608, in view of the fact that no appeal was taken, it is allowed from such orders and from the nature of the order itself the time of filing transcripts was jurisdictional, and the failure to file could not be waived by the parties so as to give the appellate court jurisdiction. C. B. Livestock Co. v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 854.

Under this article the court can acquire no jurisdiction where the record is not filed in the appellate court within the time specified. Powdrell v. Powdrell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 272.

Under this article and Arts. 4645, 4646, it is intended that the entire record be filed within 15 days, that the case may be disposed of with dispatch, so that the general statute relating to making and filing statements of fact, giving 30 days after adjournment therefore, does not apply, but, if the statement is not filed in the 15 days, relief can be had only under article 1382, providing for consideration of statements of fact not filed within the time prescribed by law, provided good ground is shown for such delay. Hinks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 955.

An appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction cannot be considered, where the transcript was not filed in the court of civil appeals within 15 days from the entry of record. Jaynes v. Burch (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 596.

Where within 15 days after the entry of an order granting a temporary injunction a party files the transcript in the court of civil appeals and duly complies with the other requisites of appeal, such as giving bond, etc., the right of appeal becomes a fixed right and cannot be defeated by any effort he may make to have the injunction dissolved in the court below. Houston Electric Co. v. Glen Park Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 965.

Where the record on appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction was filed in the court on appeal within 15 days after entry of the order, the appeal would not be dismissed though the record was not filed until more than 15 days after the entry of the order, an order in injunction to show cause why it should not be perpetuated. City of Houston v. Richter (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 189.

Suspension.—When an injunction is dissolved by final judgment, and an appeal is prosecuted by giving a supersedeas bond, the injunction is continued in force, and the court will enforce obedience to its mandates until it reverses them. Williams v. Pouns, 48 T. 141; L. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. P. W. & N. O. Ry. Co., 69 T. 58, 2 S. W. 199, 3 S. W. 664.

If the order granting an injunction limits its duration to the hearing of the cause in the court below on hearing the injunction is dissolved, the order of dissolution is not suspended by an appeal. Ft. Worth Ry. Co. v. Rosedale Ry. Co., 68 T. 163, 7 S. W. 381.

Where an injunction has been granted and dissolved, in the absence of an appeal bond, the injunction is not kept alive. Griffin v. State (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 156.

A temporary injunction restraining a defendant from selling intoxicating liquors on premises is not suspended by appeal under this article, with supersedeas bond required by Arts. 2101, 2103. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass’n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 613.

This article leaves it to the discretion of the court or judge to determine the operation of an appeal, but contemplates that suspension shall be pending the appeal, and his order after appellant’s order complies therewith by giving a supersedeas bond, and after the record is filed, giving the appellate court full jurisdiction. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 571.

Costs.—Where appellant included in the transcript pleadings which could not be considered, he was taxable with the costs of including same. Wynn v. R. E. Edmonson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 310.

Art. 4645. Proceedings on appeal.—It shall not be necessary to brief such case in the court of civil appeals or supreme court, and the case may be heard in the said courts on the bill and answer, and such affidavits and evidence as may have been admitted by the judge granting, refusing or dissolving such injunction; provided, the appellant may file a brief in the court of civil appeals or supreme court upon the furnishing the appellee with a copy thereof not later than two days before the case is called for submission in such court, and the appellee shall have until the day the case is called for submission to answer such brief. [Id. sec. 3.]

Filing transcript.—See notes under Art. 4644.

Discretion of lower court.—The action of the court on a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction will not be disturbed, in the absence of abuse of discretion, Lone Star Lodge, No. 1966, Knights of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1139.

Where the trial court modified a temporary injunction at the request of defendants, such order cannot be disturbed on appeal because, at the time of the modification, defendants were in contempt and might have been denied any relief on that ground: the trial court not being bound to deny relief for that reason. Mendelsohn v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1149.

Consideration of pleadings and evidence.—This act authorizes the court of civil appeals and the supreme court to consider the answer and affidavits and evidence only when such additional evidence is a part of the case before the judge at the time he made the order appealed from. When the hearing by the judge is ex parte, and the order is made on the allegations in the petition alone, the appellate court, in reviewing the action of the judge, should consider the petition alone. City of Paris v. Sturgeon, 50 C. A. 519, 110 S. W. 460.

In view of an express provision of the statute giving the right of appeal from an order dissolving a temporary injunction, held, that a document containing evidence as to which a motion to strike out and disregard was sustained below cannot be considered on such appeal. Daniels v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 569.

Where an application for a temporary injunction was denied solely on the ground that the bill showed no equities and no evidence was heard, the court on appeal must take the sworn bill as true and determine plaintiff's right therefrom. Midleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 697.

Proceedings on a motion to dissolve the injunction order appealed from, filed after the order was entered, held not to be considered on appeal. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

On an appeal from an order granting a preliminary injunction, held, that the appellate court would consider the entire record. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

Under this article a statement of facts or bill of exceptions need not be filed on appeal from an order denying an injunction, but the court of civil appeals may look to the answer and evidence as well as to the petition. Sutherland v. Cabiness (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 321.

The court on appeal in an injunction proceeding has no power to look to certificates of the clerks of the county and district courts, made part of the transcript, but which were not before the court below when the order for injunction was made. Baker v. Cros­ byton Southplains R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 569.

Relief to enjoin judgment below to action to set aside an order denying an injunction to the party granting the order, denied. Judgement to amend the petition, ordered, the day after dissolving the injunction, was considered on the issue, requiring similar consideration on appeal. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 182.

In the determination of an appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction made on plaintiff's verified bill alone, defendant's answer thereafter filed cannot be considered. Houston Electric Co. v. Glen Park Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 965.

Burden of proof.—Since this article authorizes appellate courts to dispose of appeals from injunction orders on the pleadings, and such affidavits and evidence as may have been admitted, if it is doubtful from the transcript whether the trial court acted upon evidence, other than the pleadings, the burden of showing what evidence was acted upon is upon the party claiming that evidence was introduced, other than as shown by the transcript. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

Questions reviewed.—Where the case is tried on its merits, exceptions to the sufficiency of the answer to authorize the court to dissolve a temporary injunction will not be considered. Jordan v. Chester (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 904.

The propriety of granting a temporary injunction need not be considered on appeal where there was no motion to dissolve it before final hearing. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 160.

On defendant's appeal from a temporary injunction, facts stated in the application to the district court to have the amount of the appeal bond fixed, which related to plaintiff's right to the injunction, held to be considered. Holbeln v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 42.

On appeal in an action by a property owner to enjoin county officers from condemning land and laying out a highway, the district court cannot review the amount of damages. Schlinke v. De Witt County (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 660.

Harmless error.—Complainant in a suit to enjoin the opening of a road for want of notice to him held not entitled to complain of a conclusion that the former commissioners' courts recognized the road as a second-class road, if there was evidence sustaining a conclusion that the road was in fact a second-class road. Smith v. Palo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1193.

Dismissal of appeal.—An appeal by plaintiffs in an action wherein a temporary injunction was granted, the court refused to permit the order of dissolution to recite the dismissal dismissed. Clevenger v. Carliker (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 177.

An appeal from the granting of a temporary injunction compelling appellant to furnish water to irrigate appellee's crop of rice will be dismissed; the subject-matter of the litigation having been satisfied by the order. Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 112.

It was no ground for dismissal of an appeal from a final judgment dissolving an injunction that it was in form an appeal from an order dissolving an injunction. Smith v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 426.
Art. 4645 INJUNCTIONS

In taxpayers' action to enjoin performance of contract with city, where it appeared that the performance had been and payment in full made, appeal from order denying temporary injunction would be dismissed. Langham v. City of Beaumont (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 869.

Where a temporary injunction restraining the removal of personal property from plaintiff's land was dissolved, and the property was removed pending the appeal which did not stay the order dissolving the injunction, the appeal will be dismissed; the case being moot, and the only point left being the question of costs. Electric Park Co. v. San Antonio Park Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1119.

Affirmation.—The court on appeal held authorized to affirm an order dissolving a temporary injunction, in view of the admissions on the argument that all acts sought to be restrained had been done. Liebovitz v. American Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1048.

Grounds.—Affirmance of a judgment granting an injunction held proper on grounds stated, though the trial court gave other grounds for its action. Hillman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 726.

Art. 4646. Case to have precedence on appeal.—Such case shall be advanced in the court of civil appeals or supreme court on motion of either party, and shall have priority over other cases pending in such courts. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4647. [2990] No injunction against a judgment, except, etc.

—No injunction shall be granted to stay any judgment or proceedings at law, except so much of the recovery or cause of action as the complainant shall in his petition show himself equitably entitled to be relieved against, and so much as will cover the costs. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363. P. D. 3930.]

Injunction against judgment or execution.—An execution on an award of arbitrators, which had been made a judgment of court, will not be restrained, no fraud being alleged. Johnson v. Troy, PAYLINE v. MEHL, 14 T. 57.

An injunction will be refused, where the ground for the injunction existed before the judgment and was known to defendant, or might have been discovered by ordinary diligence on his part. Freewitt v. Perry, 6 T. 350; York's Adm'r v. Gregg's Adm'r, 9 T. 85; Gibbons v. Moore, 22 T. 811; Crawford v. Wingfield, 22 T. 414; Harrison v. Vines, 46 T. 15; Overton v. Blum, 50 T. 417.

An injunction to restrain a judgment will be refused, when it appears that plaintiff therein is endeavoring to collect no more than was really due. Watrous v. Rodgers, 15 T. 410.

One who appeals from a judgment without giving supersedeas cannot enjoin its enforcement. Dunson v. Spradley (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 327.

In an action to enjoin the execution of a judgment, plaintiff, though not served with the summons, must show that he had a defense or other equity, or such relief will be denied. Fouws v. Warren (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 404.

Injunction by an administrator to prevent sale on execution of interest of certain heirs in land belonging to an estate in course of administration held not to lie. Hahn v. P. J. Willis & Bro., 31 C. A. 643, 73 S. W. 1084.

The holder of the record title, having possession, held not entitled to restrain a sale therefor under an execution as the property of a third person. Magoffin v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 843.

A defendant held entitled to restrain the enforcement of a judgment against him, though he had taken no proceedings under Rev. St. 1895, art. 1357, for the correction of the judgment. Holton, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Skeeter Bros., 44 C. A. 10, 94 S. W. 1064.

On an application to perpetually enjoin an execution for costs, held, that an injunction would not issue, whether the judgment was void or not. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1188.

A defendant suing to vacate a default judgment in trespass to try title held to sufficiently show a defense justifying relief. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

--- Tender of amount due.—One who seeks to enjoin the collection of a judgment for causes which would entitle him to relief from paying part of the amount adjudged against him must pay off or tender payment of so much of the judgment as under the averments of the petition equity cannot relieve against. Smith v. Smith, 75 T. 410, 12 S. W. 678.

The collection of a judgment on a contract, part only of which has been performed, will not be enjoined, unless the reasonable value of the services performed be tendered. Jordan v. Chester (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 904.

In an application for an injunction to restrain the collection of a larger amount than was due on a judgment, it was not necessary to deposit the amount due in court in order to maintain the action. Hamburger v. Kosinsky (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 554.

Under this article one of several makers of a note who seeks to restrain a judgment on the note must tender the part of the debt which he admits to be due from him. Twichell v. Askew (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1072.

Equity will not intervene at the instance of a judgment debtor to stay execution, unless he tenders payment of the amount admitted to be due. Shannon v. Hay (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 360.

Grounds for Injunction in general.—Injunctions have been granted to restrain the sale of real estate under execution when it will cause a damage on the estate. Huston v. Curi, 8 T. 339, 58 Am. Dec. 110; Clegg v. Varnell, 18 T. 294; Dunham v. Chatham, 21 3132
INJUNCTIONS

An injunction to restrain the sale of real estate under a decree of court, at the suit of a person having a party in interest, the proceedings in the suit, and the land or the owner of the land and said sale would result in unnecessary litigation and expense to petitioner, will be refused. Henderson v. Morrill, 12 T. 1; Cameron v. White, 3 T. 152; Carlin v. Hudson, 12 T. 302, 62 Am. Dec. 521. Injunction for costs in a suit, in which it is admitted that a part of the judgment is just, will not be restrained. Criswell v. Bledsoe, 22 T. 656.

An injunction to restrain a sale under execution, on the ground that the sheriff had levied on valuable, improved city lots for a comparatively insignificant debt, when he was not personally liable, and ample personal property in the county to satisfy the execution, will be refused, it appearing that the petitioner had not pointed out property to the sheriff and had failed to designate in his petition what or where his other property, subject to execution, was situated. Smith v. Frederick, 32 T. 266.

An injunction will lie to restrain execution when waived as to the principal. Parker v. Nations, 33 T. 210; Jenkins v. McNeese, 34 T. 189.

An injunction will lie to restrain execution when plaintiff is dead. Dalley v. Wynn, 33 T. 114.

When a defendant, through accident or mistake, and without default in the proper degree of watchfulness and care required by careful men in their own cases of equal importance, failed to present his defense fully, the court will, in its discretion, grant relief by injunction in the suit under the judgment and re-examine the case. Taylor v. Fore, 42 T. 256; Overton v. Blum, 50 T. 417.

A party cannot restrain by injunction the execution of judgment on the ground that it is unjust, unless he shows that he had a meritorious defense, and had used diligence to prove the fraud, accident, or omission of the opposite party, wholly unaffected by any fault or negligence of his own. Jordan v. Corley, 42 T. 284; Crawford v. Wingfield, 25 T. 414; Nevins v. Mc Kee, 61 T. 412; Contreras v. Hayes, 61 T. 104; Morris v. Edwards, 62 T. 205; Clegg v. Darrah, 63 T. 357; Harn v. Phelps, 65 T. 692; Ferguson v. Herring, 49 T. 126; Harrison v. Crumb, 1 App. C. C. § 991; Bullard v. White, 2 App. C. C. § 286; Byars v. Justin, 2 App. C. C. § 666.

A purchaser of a landlord's title under execution may stay proceedings by an insolvent landlord under a judgment in forcible entry and detainer proceedings brought against landlord, until the question of title can be determined. Texas Land Co. v. Turman, 53 T. 619.

Injunctions have been granted to restrain an execution against one not a party to the suit. Jeffus v. Allen, 56 T. 196.

An injunction will not be granted on the ground that the law prohibits an appeal by reason of the amount in controversy. It must also be shown that the judgment is unjust. Railway Co. v. Henderson, 35 T. 70, 18 S. W. 432.

Injunction is the proper proceeding to restrain an execution sale at the suit of a prior mortgagee, where a fraudulently marked mortgage was wrongfully executed in the name of a party having no authority to execute, and who took a subsequent mortgage on the faith of a contract with the mortgagors that the prior mortgage should remain in force until the entire debt was satisfied. Ivory v. Kempner, 21 S. W. 1006, 2 C. A. 474.

An injunction will not be granted to correct errors in a judgment which might have been corrected by legal remedies. Reast v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1003.

One whose goods were wrongfully taken under execution held entitled to an injunction against the sale. Sumner v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 825.

Where notes given in consideration of services to be performed were put in judgment before performance, and afterwards the payee neglected to perform, the enforcement of the judgment should be enjoined. Jordan v. Chester (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 304.

Where execution on a judgment for witness fees has not been issued to the county in which the judgment was rendered, levy of execution to another county will be enjoined. Nantoom v. Orient Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 188.

Equity held to have jurisdiction on the ground of a mistake of fact to relieve against a judgment entered on a forged agreement, though the adverse parties were innocent. Lindsley v. Sparks, 29 C. A. 56, 48 S. W. 204.

A person against whom two judgments had been rendered for the same obligation held not entitled to enjoin the collection of either judgment, in the absence of fraud. Mason v. House, 29 C. A. 509, 49 S. W. 911.

One is not entitled to have sale under execution enjoined because a portion of the property levied on belonged to deceased defendant. Corder v. Steiner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 272.

Plaintiff held entitled to an injunction restraining defendant from collecting more than the excess of her judgment against it over its judgment against her. Kelly Furniture, Carpet & Hardware Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 794.

A party entitled to an injunction to restrain judgment need not be shown to authorize the judgment debtor to enjoin its collection. Dashner v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 161, 68 S. W. 307.
Art. 4647 INJUNCTIONS (Title 69)

Agreement relieving defendants from liability on judgment to be rendered held not to lay a basis for injunction until actual levy of execution. Crook v. Lipscomb, 30 S. A. 567, 70 S. W. 953.

Even in cases of direct attack, a plaintiff seeking the interposition of the court's equitable powers by injunction to stay proceedings under an alleged void judgment must show judgment on its face that the judgment was not void, otherwise affirmatively shows a want of jurisdiction, or else that some equity against the judgment or defense to the cause of action upon which it is predicated exists. Foust v. Warren (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 496.

A judgment creditor's insolvency will entitle the judgment debtor to enjoin the collection of the judgment, so that a counterclaim which he has may be established as a credit against it. Norton v. Wochler, 31 C. A. 522, 72 S. W. 1026.

One held not entitled to have a judgment against him enjoined, because he and his attorney presented and argued the trial, and the other party refused to postpone. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Higbee, 32 C. A. 502, 74 S. W. 955.

Judgment for license tax held not void, so that relief by injunction against execution could not be had. Francis Bros. v. Robinson, 40 C. A. 326, 89 S. W. 803.

A wife owning a homestead interest in land held entitled to have it protected by injunction from a writ of possession or execution in a suit against her husband. Taylor v. Ward (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 465.

Purchaser of land held not entitled to enjoin execution of judgment for sale of land, obtained by vendor in suit on purchase money notes, by merely showing that suit had been brought against himself and the vendor by a person claiming title to the land. Brocks v. Lee, 46 C. A. 372, 102 S. W. 777.

In a suit in which her husband joined to enjoin a sale under an execution against the husband of real estate claimed by her, the court held authorized to grant the injunction. Texas Brewing Co. v. Hasso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

An injunction held to lie to prevent a cloud on title by a sale of a married woman's land under an execution against the husband. Barr v. Simpson, 54 C. A. 105, 117 S. W. 1041.

Defendant in execution held entitled to enjoin plaintiff in execution from further enforcing execution, where the latter had wrongfully recovered from a defaulting bidder the difference paid received on a re-sale; and the amount under the statute, belonged to defendant in execution. Shanley v. York, 54 C. A. 214, 118 S. W. 146.

Where the amount of an execution as stated in the advertisement of sale exceeds the judgment by only 20 cents, the difference, on an application for injunction against the sale should be disregarded as too trivial to be considered. Lee v. Broocks, 54 C. A. 220, 118 S. W. 164.

The failure of the advertisement of sale to state that the execution provided for collection of interest affects no ground for injunction. Ids.

Where a judgment in a justice court is for more than $20, and is appealed and tried de novo in the county court, the district court will not enjoin the judgment for errors committed by the justice. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 56 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 579.

An injunction sued out by a wife to prevent the sale of an execution on an execution against her husband may be perpetuated on a showing that she owns the property. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

To justify the issuance of an injunction by the district judge to enjoin a judgment, the judgment must be void, and the invalidity must be shown on its face or must appear affirmatively from the record. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

The enforcement of a judgment obtained against the owner of a lot in garnishment would be enjoined where a mechanic's lien was enforced for the same debt. Waples-Painter Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1027.

An order held not entitled to equitable relief against a default judgment on the ground that he was misinformed by his attorney. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robin­son (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

The district court has no power to enjoin the enforcement of a justice's judgment in a nonappealable case, unless it was obtained by fraud, accident, or mistake. Flow v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1081.

A default judgment based on the allegation that defendant was a copartnership, none of its members being parties, and service having been had on a certain person as agent of the alleged corporation, did not bind the partnership and enforcement of the judgment was properly enjoined on the theory that it was a nullity. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1122.

A suit for void of defendant in sequestration proceedings, where the releved chattels had been returned to the plaintiff, may enjoin a judgment, not only for the chattels, but for the withholding, though the return was not urged as a defense by the defendant. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 192.

The issuance of an order of sale on execution prior to the valid entry of the judgment being unauthorized, an injunction will issue against a sale of the property. Hubbard v. Willis State Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 458.

That persons have sold property and conveyed it by warranty deed authorizes them to apply for injunction to prevent its unlawful sale on execution as their property. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

Justice's judgment.—An injunction to restrain the collection of a judgment rendered in a justice's court, on the ground that the debt upon which the judgment was rendered was a portion of a debt due by petitioner for a sum exceeding the jurisdiction of the court which has been divided for the sole purpose of bringing two suits on the claim in the justice court, will be denied, it not appearing that petitioner was deprived of a right or remedy. Pryor v. Emerson, 22 T. 162.

An injunction to restrain execution of a judgment of a justice of the peace, on the ground that it was rendered on a note which was not due when the suit was commenced.
Title 69) INJUNCTIONS

and before the expiration of five days after service of citation, will be refused. McNeill v. Balmann, 28 T. 157.

An injunction will be granted to stay execution of a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace against a garnishee on his indebtedness on a note not due. Kapp v. Teel, 23 T. 511.

An injunction to restrain a justice of the peace from adjudicating a case arising under an unconstitutional statute will be refused. Jones v. Stallsworth, 55 T. 138.

Where the right of appeal is denied by statute, as where the amount in controversy is less than $20 in the justice’s court, an injunction will not be granted to restrain the execution of the judgment. Odum v. McManan, 67 T. 292; 3 S. W. 286.

A county court may by injunction restrain proceeding in a justice’s court to determine priority of attachments issued from each court. Moody v. McRimmon, 27 S. W. 780, 7 T. A. 582.

The district court may enjoin the enforcement of a judgment of a justice of the peace whatever the amount may be. Railway Co. v. Blankenbecker, 13 C. A. 249, 35 S. W. 331.

Defendant to a default in justice court held not entitled to relief by injunction against the judgment because of an alleged defective service of the summons. Sherman Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter, 24 C. A. 533, 69 S. W. 328.

Defendant was entitled to an injunction restraining enforcement of a judgment rendered by a justice after granting a new trial without notice. Smith v. Carroll, 28 C. A., 330, 66 S. W. 563.

A nonresident held entitled to restrain enforcement of a justice’s judgment without showing a valid defense. August Kern Barber Supply Co. v. Freeze, 96 T. 513, 74 S. W. 305.

Where a justice of the peace set aside a judgment by default the day after it was rendered and granted a new trial held, that the judgment rendered therein was not void, and injunction to restrain enforcement would not lie. Cohen v. Moore (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 422.

A judgment of a justice of the peace setting aside a judgment of dismissal rendered after the term of court in which the judgment of dismissal was rendered held of no validity and properly enjoined. Rivers v. Campbell, 51 C. A. 103, 111 S. W. 190.

Where there was evidence both ways of the plea of privilege interposed by defendant in a suit overruling the plea in overruling the plea was committed an error of law, the judgment rendered by him could not be enjoined. Cock Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 308.

Where a plea of privilege to be sued in another county is ignored by the justice of the peace or improperly overruled, the district court may enjoin the execution of the judgment. Id.

The district judge has power to enjoin prosecution of cases in justice court wherein it is alleged in the petition that the suits were instituted with the purpose of vexing, bankrupting and needlessly embarrassing plaintiff and in the injunction suit to determine the matters involved in suits in justice court. Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. v. MacMaster, 51 C. A. 527, 113 S. W. 339.

Facts which must be shown by one to enjoin him to an injunction restraining proceedings under a judgment of a justice, stated. Jones v. Curtis, 56 C. A. 181, 120 S. W. 530.

The enforcement of a judgment of a justice of the peace held not to be enjoined; the justice having jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties, and the judgment being merely erroneous. Hudson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 486.

Where a judgment was valid on its face, error in disregarding defendant’s plea of privilege in an action in a justice’s court cannot be remedied by injunction. Lyons Bros. Co. v. Colby (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 603.

Where appellant perfects an appeal from a judgment of a justice’s court, and thereby vacates the judgment, a dismissal of the appeal by the county court does not reinstate the judgment, and an injunction lies to restrain execution thereon. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Marks (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 659.

A judgment of a justice of the peace fixing a different rate than that fixed by the railroad commission held not void as to authorize an injunction to restrain collection thereof. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 380.

The district court has no power to enjoin enforcement of a justice’s judgment in a nonappealable case, unless it was obtained by fraud, accident, or mistake. Flow v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1081.

The privilege to be sued before a justice in a given district is a matter of defense and does not affect the validity of a judgment rendered, and hence enforcement of such judgment will not be restrained. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

Satisfied Judgment.—An injunction will be granted to restrain an execution upon a judgment which has been paid. Dickenson v. McDermont, 13 T. 246; Clow v. Merritt, 15 T. 13474; 67 T. 134, 2 S. W. 146.

The district court of one county has jurisdiction to restrain enforcement of a judgment of a justice of another county, where it is shown that the judgment has been satisfied. Osborne & Co. v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 73.

Dormant Judgment.—An injunction will be granted to stay execution upon a dormant judgment, a proceeding, when it is shown that the judgment has not been paid, the injunction should be dissolved. The only ground for not issuing execution on a dormant judgment being the legal presumption of its payment, when this presumption ceases, to perpetuate the injunction would be in fact to violate the rule which denies the right, unless irreparable injury would result from its being refused. Seymour v. Hill, 67 T. 385, 23135.
INJUNCTIONS

While execution on a dormant judgment is improper, it should not be permanently enjoined, where it appears that the judgment has not been discharged, and may be revived. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 328.

V

Void judgment. Injunction will be granted to enjoin a judgment rendered by one not in fact a judge (Walker v. McMaster, 48 T. 213), or rendered without service of process (Hamblin v. Knight, 81 T. 351, 16 S. W. 1082; 26 Am. St. Rep. 818; Edington v. Albright, 21 T. 186. See S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Howard, 22 S. W. 524, 3 C. A. 335; Clegg v. Railway Co., 228 S. W. 65, 3 C. A. 146; Stapleton v. Wilcox, 21 S. W. 977, 2 C. A. 642; Railway Co. v. Rawlins, 80 T. 579, 16 S. W. 430).

An injunction will not be granted to restrain the sale of personal property under an execution on a void judgment. Geers v. Scott (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 587.

Enforcement of judgment will not be enjoined for disqualification of judge. Dunson v. Sprinkle (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 327.

Where a plea of privilege to be sued in the county of one's residence, where properly entered and established, is ignored or improperly overruled by a justice, the execution of the judgment rendered by the justice may be enjoined as void for want of jurisdiction. Jennings v. Shiner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 276.

Enforcement of void judgment will be enjoined. Harrison v. Lokey, 26 C. A. 404, 63 S. W. 1030.

A judgment, void for want of jurisdiction, may be enjoined. Dasher v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

An injunction lies to restrain the execution of a void judgment where the invalidity appears affirmatively from the record. Ketelsen & Degetau v. Pratt Bros. & Seay (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1172.

A statutory judgment rendered against a married woman on her replevy bond held a nullity, and may be directly attacked in a suit to vacate the same and enjoin the execution thereof. Lane v. Moon (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 211.

Where neither the justice's court nor the county court to which the case was appealed acquired jurisdiction of complainants in a suit against them, the judgment of the county court against them will be enjoined. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 424.

To justify the issuance of an injunction by the district judge to enjoin a judgment, the judgment must be void, and the invalidity must be shown on its face or must appear affirmatively from the record. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

A judgment, void for want of jurisdiction, may enjoin the collection of a void judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, but cannot do so for mere error. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 389.

A default judgment against a partnership on allegations that it was a corporation and service having been had on a certain person as agent of the alleged corporation held void and its enforcement subject to injunction. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Kuy kendall (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1122.

Where plaintiff's homestead was sought to be subjected to the payment of a void justice's judgment against her, she was entitled to an injunction to restrain the sale of the homestead, but not to have the judgment declared void. Rainwater v. Gwaltney (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1191.

Exempt property.—Injunctions have been granted to restrain executions in favor of several plaintiffs levied upon exempt property. Cleeg v. Varnell, 18 T. 294.

Where a sheriff seized exempt property under an execution, sale by him may be enjoined, even though the property has been taken from the sheriff on a delivery bond; the giving of the bond being an additional ground for the injunction. Peevehouse v. Smith (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1196.

Where a sheriff seized exempt property under an execution, an injunction will issue to prevent its sale by him, even though the property has been taken from the sheriff on a delivery bond; the giving of the bond being only an additional ground for enjoining the sale. Id.

Judgment record lost.—An injunction will be granted to restrain an execution when the record of the judgment has been lost. Cyrus v. Hicks, 20 T. 483.

Direct or collateral attack.—An attack on a judgment by means of injunction is direct, and not collateral. Dasher v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

A cross-bill in a suit to enjoin defendant from entering on land claimed by plaintiff by virtue of a decree held a direct attack on the decree. Cleve nger v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1962.

A suit by a judgment debtor to vacate the judgment and to enjoin the execution of the same on the ground of its invalidity is a direct attack. Lane v. Moon (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 211.

A suit to enjoin the further enforcement of an execution, on the ground that the execution plaintiff had recovered sufficient from a defaulting bidder to satisfy his judgment which the execution defendant should have recovered, held not a collateral attack on the judgment in suit. Shanley v. Snedaker (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 149.

A suit to enjoin the enforcement of certain judgments foreclosing a city's alleged tax lien on certain property held a direct attack thereon. McMickle v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 74.

Art. 4648. [2991] Injunction to stay execution within twelve months, unless, etc.—No injunction to stay an execution upon any valid and subsisting judgment shall be granted after the expiration of one year from the rendition of such judgment, unless it be made to appear that an application for such injunction has been delayed in consequence of the fraud or false promises of the plaintiff in the judgment, practiced or made at the time of, or after rendition of, such judgment, or unless for some equitable matter or defense arising after the rendition of such judgment. If it be made to appear that the applicant was absent from the state at the time such judgment was rendered, and was unable to apply for such writ within the time aforesaid, such injunction may be granted at any time within two years from the date of the rendition of the judgment. [Id. P. D. 3931.]

An injunction may be granted within twelve months after the affirmation of a judgment made more than that time after the rendition of the judgment in the district court. Willis Point Bank v. Bates, 76 T. 329, 13 S. W. 269; Williams v. Haynes, 77 T. 283, 13 S. W. 1029, 19 Am. St. Rep. 762. This article does not apply to an injunction to protect the homestead against invasion under a judgment for the recovery of the wife of the party not a party. Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019. Nor to a suit to reform a judgment. Kempner v. Jordan, 26 S. W. 870, 7 C. A. 275. Nor to a suit brought by one not a party to the judgment. Kempner v. Ivory (Civ. App.), 29 S. W. 533. See Lumpkin v. Williams, 1 C. A. 214, 21 S. W. 567; Williams v. Lumpkin, 26 S. W. 483, 86 T. 641. See, for facts held to be insufficient to bring the plaintiff in an application for injunction within the exception of the above article of the statute. McCray v. Freeman, 17 C. A. 284, 43 S. W. 27.

Where defendant in an erroneous judgment learned of the judgment during the term at which it was rendered, but did not apply to the court for relief during such term, he could not afterwards enjoin its execution. Rowlett v. Williamson, 13 C. A. 28, 44 S. W. 674.

This article has no application to an action brought upon equitable grounds to vacate a judgment and enjoin its execution, but the period of time in which such action may be brought is determined by Art. 5698. Lane v. Moon (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 214.

The claim that the execution could not be enjoined because it was issued more than one year after rendition of judgment is untenable, where the injunction is sought "for some equitable matter or defense arising after the rendition of such judgment." Griffith v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 257. This article only applies to matters affecting rendition of the judgment and does not apply to matters that subsequently arose, and would not bar an injunction staying an execution on the ground that the judgment creditor, who caused the issuance of the execution, had ceased to be the owner of the judgment. Kruegel v. Rawlings (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 216.

Under this article a judgment debtor's right to enjoin the execution of the judgment to enable him to set off claims acquired since the rendition of the judgment was not barred. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 429.

Agreement to stay execution.—An agreement to stay execution in a case does not take it out of the statute. Pillow v. Thompson, 20 T. 206.

That a surety on a replevin bond in reliance on false statements of the defendant principal, who, after the disposal of the action, conspired with the plaintiff to defraud the surety, that he would settle the judgment against which the surety had a defense, and that it would be all right, delayed injunction proceedings for more than a year, will not, despite this article, preclude him from maintaining an injunction. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 192.

Art. 4649. [2992] Injunctions granted on sworn petition.—No writ of injunction shall be granted, unless the applicant therefor shall present his petition to the judge, verified by his affidavit taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths, and containing a plain and intelligible statement of the grounds for such relief. [P. D. 3929.]

Petition in general.—A petition to restrain collection of a tax held not to state that the board of equalization did not approve the assessment. Clawson Lumber Co. v. Jones, 20 C. A. 208, 49 S. W. 909.

Cross-bill to action to restrain contractor from interfering with certain premises, alleging lien for improvements which he had assigned, states no cause of action. Tian v. Lloyd, 21 C. A. 433, 52 S. W. 982.

Where the statute of limitations is pleaded by plaintiff, in an action against a city to enjoin it from interfering with a lot, described as bounded by certain streets, and the city disclaims any intention to interfere with any portion of the lot other than the designated streets; it is error to hold that the plan applies to a cross action by the city to enjoin plaintiff from interfering with the opening of the streets. City of San Antonio v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 97.

Petition to enjoin execution sale alleging judgment to be void on certain grounds held to admit its validity in other respects. Loan & Deposit Co. of America v. Campbell, 27 C. A. 52, 65 S. W. 65.

Certain pleadings construed in an action by a surviving wife and children to restrain a sale by execution against the estate of a deceased under an executed judgment and held to raise the questions as to whether such sale could then be made, and whether, after her death pending the action, her estate, or that of her deceased husband, or the community estate, were represented. Wingfield v. Hackney, 95 T. 490, 68 S. W. 252.

An action in suit to explain a judgment held to show good defense to original cause of action. Dasher v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307.

In a suit to restrain the erection of a building of combustible materials, allegations in the answer held properly stricken out. Chimine v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 230.

In proceedings to enjoin operation of a ferry, the question of plaintiff's want of consent held properly in issue by the pleadings. Parsons v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 120.

Where complainant prayed for an injunction, to which he was not entitled, his petition was properly dismissed, on the dissolution of the temporary injunction. Magoff v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 843.

In a suit to enjoin the collection of taxes on timber standing on county school lands, on the ground that it was exempt from taxation, allegations of the petition held to show that the title to the timber was vested in plaintiff. Montgomery v. Peach River Lumber Co., 54 C. A. 143, 117 S. W. 1061.

In an action to restrain the enforcement of a default judgment, on the ground of fraud in procuring the same, it is proper to plead all the facts in order to show fully the equal and bona fide interest of the Real Estate Agency & tt. v. City of San Antonio, 29 C. A. 135, 65 S. W. 456.

Refusal of a judge in chambers to sustain special exceptions to the petition for an injunction held not error. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 655.

In a suit to enjoin the Railroad Commission from enforcing rates, certain evidence held admissible under the allegations of the petition. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737, judgment reversed Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 106 T. 101, 145 S. W. 573.

In an action to enjoin a railway company from constructing a fence between its owner and plaintiff's lot, an exception to an allegation in the petition that the fence was apt to injure plaintiff having been overruled. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1063.

Averments that a judgment of a justice of the peace was void, and that the justice had no jurisdiction over the subject-matter or the person of plaintiff suing to restrain enforcement of the judgment, are mere legal conclusions. Fye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1084.

In an action to enjoin a justice's judgment on the ground of a previous judgment of nonsuit, an allegation that in the first action the justice stated that he would be compelled to render judgment for defendant is not equivalent to an allegation that judgment had been announced so that no nonsuit could be taken. Id.

Requisites of petition.—A petition to enjoin the collection of a tax because of the unlawful and excessive assessment should show that the petitioner had used every mode provided by the law for his relief, and should allege readiness to pay the tax admitted to be due. R. G. Grande R. R. v. Scanlan, 44 T. 649.

The petition must state all the material and essential elements entitling the party to relief, and negating every reasonable inference arising upon the facts so stated, that the party might not, under other pertinent supposed facts, be entitled to relief. Gillman v. El Paso & Gulf R. Co., 54 T. 499; Martin v. Sykes, 25 T. Sup. 197; Carter v. Griffin, 32 T. 212; Smith v. Frederick, 32 T. 256; Harrison v. Crumb, 1 App. C. C. § 992; Cameron v. White, 3 T. 152; Henderson v. Morrill, 12 T. 1; Carlin v. Hathaway, 22 T. 520; Ferguson v. Herring, 49 T. 130; Whitman v. Willis, 51 T. 421; Spencer v. Rosenthal, 58 T. 41; Purinton v. Davis, 66 T. 456, 1 S. W. 343; Braden v. Gose, 57 T. 37; Wheeler v. Gray, 23 S. W. 821, 5 C. A. 12.

A party seeking to enjoin a public officer as to his official acts must show his interest in the subject-matter and that he will be injured by the acts which he seeks to restrain. Caruthers v. Harnett, 67 T. 127, 2 S. W. 523; Jung v. Neratz, 71 T. 396, 9 S. W. 344.

A petition must state the facts showing the threatened injury. Land & Cattle Co. v. Board, 80 T. 489, 16 S. W. 312.

In a petition for an injunction against an execution on the ground that the judgment under which it issued had been violated in rendition of an agreement between counsel for the parties, it should be alleged that the attorneys had authority to make the agreement. Anderson v. Oldham, 92 T. 225, 18 S. W. 557.

The rule that he who seeks relief in equity from effects of a judgment rendered against him on personal service must show that he was not guilty of culpable neglect in not making use of the suit is simple and easily understood, but its application is often attended with difficulty. The facts in this case reviewed, and held to show a case entitling appellant to equitable relief. Lumpkin v. Williams, 1 C. A. 214, 21 S. W. 967.

As to allegations necessary to enable one to enjoin a sale of land under an execution to which he was not a party, see Cook v. Tex. & P. Ry. Co., 22 S. W. 29, 3 C. A. 145.

Petition to restrain sheriff from levy when bank stock in which plaintiff has an equity must state nature of his interest. Davis v. Beall, 21 C. A. 183, 50 S. W. 1086.

The elements of a party's case are the statements most strongly against him held reinforced in injunction suits by the requirement that the essential elements entitling plaintiff to relief shall be certain. City of Paris v. Sturgeon, 59 C. A. 319, 110 S. W. 459.
A petition in a suit to enjoin an execution on a justice's judgment held required to set out the evidence in support of the plea of privilege interposed in justice's court and overruled by Beall v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 308.

Requisites of petition by resident citizen for injunction restraining the commissioners' court from opening the ballot boxes and counting the votes cast at a local option election are clarey v. Hurst (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 223. In a suit for an injunction, the material facts calling for relief must be alleged with sufficient certainty to negative every other reasonable inference therefrom. Schlinke v. De Witt County (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 600.

The allegations of a petition for injunction should both aver and negative all facts upon which the right to the injunction depends. Weaver v. Emison (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 923.

The petition, in an action to restrain city officers from putting into effect ordinances for the paving of certain streets, and from collecting assessments therefor, should have alleged the sums sought to be collected, in order that the amount of the bond might be fixed under Art. 4650, providing that, when an injunction is applied for to restrain the execution of a money judgment or the collection of a debt, the bond shall be fixed in double the amount of the judgment or debt. Cole v. Forte (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 350.

Verification.—The pleadings relating to restraining processes or orders must be verified. Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 165.

A petition for temporary injunction sought during the pendency of a suit and prior to final trial must be sworn to. Johnson v. Daniel, 25 C. A. 587, 63 S. W. 1053.

A petition for an injunction, signed by plaintiff, to which the jurat of a proper officer certifying that it was subscribed and sworn to before him was attached, held sufficiently verified. Chancey v. Allison, 48 C. A. 441, 107 S. W. 605.

An affidavit to a petition for an injunction held sufficient. Paine v. Carpenter, 51 C. A. 191, 111 S. W. 430.

To enjoin complainant to an injunction restraining enforcement of a judgment pending appeal from an order dissolving an injunction restraining execution of the judgment, complainant was bound to file a sworn petition alleging that the appeal was based on a superseded bond. Lee v. Broocks, 51 C. A. 344, 111 S. W. 778.

An application only grounds relied on for temporary injunction were stated in an unsworn petition, a copy of which was made an exhibit to the petition for injunction and the affidavit did not pretend to state that the facts contained in the petition were true, it was improper to grant the injunction in the face of this statute requiring application for injunction to be sworn to. Lee v. Broocks, 54 C. A. 220, 118 S. W. 166, 168.

Verification to an affidavit to a petition for a preliminary injunction held insufficient. Moss v. Whitson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1084.

Under this article a petition for an injunction, verified by one of the attorneys of the plaintiff, that the facts alleged are within his knowledge and true, on information received from another, and that he believes the same to be true, is not sufficiently verified. Clary v. Hurst (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 840.

Under this article a temporary injunction should not be granted where the affidavit of verification is made on knowledge, information, or belief with nothing to show what statements are made on knowledge, and which on information or belief, since affidavits should be so direct and unequivocal that an indictment for perjury will lie if the oath is falsely made. Smith v. Banks (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 449.

Where none of the allegations of a petition for a temporary injunction were on information and belief, supporting affidavit that the allegations as to facts were true, that the allegations based upon knowledge and belief were true to the best of affiant's knowledge and belief was sufficient. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 337.

Sufficiency of petition.—A petition for an injunction to prevent the collection of a state tax, which discloses no individual damage about to be suffered from the sale sought to be enjoined, except that the sale would cast a cloud on the title of the plaintiff if not enjoined. Red v. Johnson, 55 T. 226. But see Galvaston Gas Co. v. County of Galveston, 54 T. 227.

A petition for injunction to restrain the sale of land for taxes assessed under the act of August 21, 1876, and which taxes were alleged to be excessive, is not sufficient to authorize the writ. If the petition shows no excuse for the failure of the plaintiff to take proper steps to refer, at the proper time, the valuation complained of to the board of equalization, H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. County of Presidio, 53 T. 518.

An allegation of a telegraph company to authorize an injunction to restrain the execution of a judgment against its property, the judgment having been obtained against another company. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Howard, 72 S. W. 324, 3 C. A. 335.

To enjoin execution sale of land as the property of plaintiff's grantor held good as against a general demurrer. Paddock v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 655, 41 S. W. 790.

Allegation of petition that county officers had diverted one fund to another held too vague for issuance of injunction. Clarke & Courts v. San Jacinto County, 18 C. A. 204, 48 S. W. 315.

Complaint in action by resident to enjoin performance by city of illegal contract to furnish water to a company outside the city held to show no sufficient reason for granting relief. Wood v. City of Victoria, 18 C. A. 575, 46 S. W. 281.

Petition by land owners of city tons from opening streets through plaintiff's land held insufficient, as not stating an entry by the county, except on proceedings in accordance with law. Hall v. La Salle County (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 862.

Petitioner alleged that alleged sewer is levying execution on property of others does not state ground for injunction. Davis v. Beall, 21 C. A. 183, 50 S. W. 1068.

A petition for an injunction to restrain the erection of a fence held demurrable, and to justify the dissolution of a temporary injunction restraining its erection. Slaughter v. Collup, 22 C. A. 578, 65 S. W. 182.
INJUNCTIONS

Petition in a suit to enjoin the sale of land levied on, because of homestead interests of plaintiffs in common with which they were tenants and which the defendants did not designate which part of the land was claimed as a homestead, was insufficient. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 57 S. W. 984.

A petition to restrain the collection of a larger sum than was due on a judgment held not demurrable as an attack on the validity of the judgment. Hamburger v. Kosminsky (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 958.

Where plaintiff's petition affirmatively shows that certain property is their homestead, and that the judgment is a sale of the defendants' interest, and shows that defendants are about to sell such homestead under execution, and prays an injunction, the petition is good as against a general demurrer. Wydle v. Capps, 27 C. A. 112, 65 S. W. 648.

Petition for injunction restraining commissioners' court from declaring a local option election valid held not to show that petition was entitled to sue because failing to allege that he was "legally" engaged in the retail liquor business. Harding v. Commissioners' Court of McLennan County, 55 T. 174, 66 S. W. 47.

A bill to enjoin a judgment creditor of a grantor from selling under execution realty conveyed to plaintiff held not to present a case for equitable relief. Chamberlain v. Baker, 23 C. A. 499, 67 S. W. 532.

A petition to enjoin a judgment creditor of a grantor from selling under execution realty conveyed to plaintiff, together with defendant's answer and the reply thereto, held to warrant the trial court in finding that the deed was void as against creditors. Id.

In a suit to enjoin a judgment, the petition held sufficient to justify a decree enjoining the issuance of execution thereon. Deleshow v. Edelen, 31 C. A. 416, 72 S. W. 412.

Allegation, in petition to enjoin opening highway, that plaintiff's damages have not been paid, held sufficient to let in proof. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 585.

Petition to show them entitled to hold not in publication of result of a local option election. L. Eppstein & Son v. Webb (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 337.

Allegations of a petition in a suit by a tenant held to entitle him to an injunction restraining the landlord from depriving him of a portion of crops and of the crops, and for damages sustained. Foster v. Roseberry (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 701.

Bill held not to show special injury to plaintiffs, entitling them to enjoin illegal call for state convention of political party. McDonald v. Lyon, 43 C. A. 484, 56 S. W. 67.

In bill to enjoin a sale of certain property, plaintiffs' petition alleging that they were entitled to point out property to be levied on by the sheriff held subject to exception. Stone v. Tilley (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 718.

A petition in a suit for an injunction to restrain defendants from locating a cemetery where it would pollute plaintiff's wells and springs held sufficient. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 463.

A petition to enjoin execution for costs held to show that injunction was sought "for preventing after the rendition of such judgment," under Art. 4648. Griffith v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 756.

A petition to enjoin execution for costs held to sufficiently allege that all were paid or a willingness and readiness to pay any balance unpaid. Id.

In a suit to enjoin the collection of taxes on timber standing on county school lands, petition held to show that plaintiff's theory was that the timber could not be taxed separately so long as it was not severed, irrespective of whether the county owned it, and hence was bad on general demurrer. Montgomery v. Peach River Lumber Co., 54 C. A. 143, 117 S. W. 1061.

Under a petition, held, that petitioner was entitled to a preliminary injunction to restrain company from shutting off his supply of water. Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

A petition for the restraint of a part of a street for building operations to the damage of occupants of adjoining property held not objectionable for failure to sufficiently allege that the obstructions were unlawfully erected, etc. American Const. Co. v. Seeig (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 565.

In an action for an injunction, the bill held sufficient as against a general demurrer. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 868.

A petition for an injunction restraining sale of land on execution as plaintiff's homestead held sufficient in the absence of special exceptions to entitle plaintiff to prove his homestead claim. Parsons v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1054.

A petition in a suit by a city to enjoin a telephone company from increasing its rates held to sufficiently make the franchise of the company a part of the petition. Panhandie Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. City of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 628.

A complaint to restrain levy on certain land, held insufficient, where it failed to allege that other lands pointed out to the officer, and of sufficient value, were clear of liens not homestead, etc. Pierson v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1093.

In a suit to restrain alleged violation of an original railroad company's contract by a reorganized corporation, certain allegations held insufficient to show that certain prior liens covered the property of the original company and remained after a sale to defendant. Kansas v. M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cole (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1094.

A petition by a railroad company to enjoin execution of a judgment against it in condemnation proceedings on land which was subject to a vendor's lien, showing that on failure to discharge the lien the execution would cause the company to pay an amount greater than the judgment, in order to free the land from the lien, stated ground for injunction. Baker v. Crosbyton Southplains R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 569.

A petition for injunction against execution, that the petitioner now tenders into court the balance of amount due on a judgment, and asks that on satisfaction thereof it be paid to defendant, or whoever is entitled to it, sustains an order for injunction, without actually showing that the money had been paid into the court. Id.

A petition for an injunction to restrain third persons from intruding as members of the same party, and to enjoin a national party from inducing the intrusion, alleging that plaintiffs were the duly qualified and elected members, and that defendants were without color of title and were mere intruders, held to sufficiently negative the inference that the proceeding was one to try title for the office. Wilch v. Wolch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 292.5

A petition held not to sufficiently allege fraud or other ground of equitable relief so as to authorize the enjoining of the enforcement of a justice's judgment, though it was made to be so because of the amount involved. Flow v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1087.

A petition by a public weigher to enjoin an unauthorized weigher held not open to general demurrer for failure to allege that the office of public weigher had been created by the state, and that necessary steps had been taken by the voters to the creation of such office. Perry v. Carlisle (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1155; Carlisle v. Perry, Id. 1158.

A petition to enjoin a sale of land which complainant claimed was her homestead, or a judgment recovered against her husband, since deceased, held not subject to a general demurrer. Bailey v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 531.

Allegations as to facts.—Injunction was sought against an irrigation ditch company to restrain it from taking lands of the plaintiffs for a site for dam and for ditches. It appeared that condemnation proceedings were pending under the statute. There was no allegation that the land was not within the arid portion of the state. Held error to grant a perpetual injunction. McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

Sufficiency of bill for injunction against execution held determinable from the facts alleged in it and those supplied by the answer. Paddock v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 652, 41 S. W. 700.

A petition for an injunction restraining the collection of a tax that states that the tax was unreasonable and excessive, and that the wishes of the land of the plaintiffs was for the use of certain persons. The petition for injunction should have specifically averred the facts that negative the public use. Mang v. Texas Transportation Co., 18 C. A. 478, 44 S. W. 998.

Where a petition for an injunction filed in the county court failed to allege the value of the subject-matter of the suit, a plea in reconvention claiming damages could not aid the petition, so as to give the court jurisdiction to grant the writ. De Witt County v. Wischkemper, 95 T. 455, 67 S. W. 882.

The facts as to possession by agent, which, if adverse to him, would have given them title, when contradicted by other allegations of petition, held not to entitle plaintiffs to injunction restraining sale of land on execution against agent. Brown v. Ikard, 33 C. A. 661, 77 S. W. 967.

The petition in a suit by a wife in which her husband joined to enjoin the sale of her land under execution against the husband held sufficient without alleging facts which make the property the wife's separate property. Texas Brewing Co. v. Bisso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

A bill to enjoin a judgment alleging that the judgment was void, but setting out no facts to show that it was void, held insufficient to authorize relief. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 56 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 579.

Facts alleged in the petition in trespass to try title held not to authorize the dispossession of defendants from the land by a mandatory injunction. Holben v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

It is not sufficient, in a suit for injunction, to merely allege that the commission of threatened acts will work irreparable harm; but the facts alleged must show such harm. The facts alleged in a petition, which was in the usual form in trespass to try title and for rent and damages, did not authorize the dispossession of defendants by mandatory injunction, either with or without notice; such an injunction being proper only where the necessity thereof was pressing. Id.

It is not sufficient, in a suit for injunction, to merely allege that the commission of threatened acts will work irreparable harm, but facts must be alleged showing that fact. Id.

A petition alleging abandonment by a husband, taking the children, and intention to remove them from the state, and the wife's desire and ability to retain them, authorized a temporary injunction against their removal from the jurisdiction. Green v. Green (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 587.

A bill to enjoin execution of a judgment of a justice of the peace not alleging facts showing invalidity of service, or facts saving his right to set the judgment aside from being barred by limitations, held insufficient. Board v. Adams, 146 S. W. 685.

In an action to enjoin a railway company from constructing a fence between its right of way and plaintiff's lot, an allegation that the right of way constituted a public highway to and from which plaintiff had a right of ingress and egress, etc., was subject to exception for failing to plead facts showing such a right. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayres (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 688.

A petition in a suit by a county and a city and the citizens thereof to restrain a railroad company from removing from the city its machine shops, roundhouses, and general offices held, in the absence of special exceptions, to state facts binding railroad company to restrain the shutting down of the shops and general offices in the city. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

A petition to restrain an execution sale under a justice's judgment, which alleged that the justice was without jurisdiction because the suit was based on 29 notes of $10 each and $650 against which a tax of $100 per annum was alleged, did not show that the amount involved was in excess of $200; there being no averment as to the date of the credit. Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843.

A petition to enjoin a substituted trustee from selling land which states that such trustee did not have authority under the trust deed, which was a conclusion, but pleads no facts showing whether the deed of trust gave him authority, was insufficient; a power to sell the strictly, was, in Hicks v. Murphy, (Civil App.) 151 S. W. 945.

INJUNCTIONS

The petition of a public weigher who sought to enjoin an unauthorized weigher from weighing produce which alleged that the plaintiff was the public weigher for the town of S. is not deficient for failing to allege that S. was a city; the word "town" being a generic word which includes cities, boroughs, and villages. Perry v. Carlisle (Civil App.) 151 S. W. 1155; Carlisle v. Perry, Id. 1155.

In an action to enjoin the cutting and removal of timber the mere allegation that plaintiffs would otherwise suffer irreparable damage was but a legal conclusion. Alford v. Luckie (Civil App.) 157 S. W. 299.

Inadequacy of remedy at law.—A petition in a suit for an injunction restraining execution upon a void judgment, showing on its face that the petitioner has a legal remedy, is demurrable. Givens v. Delprat, 28 C. A. 365, 67 S. W. 424.

When it is made to appear that the branch pilot from acting as such, an allegation that the defendant is insolvent, so that the statute authorizing a judgment against him is of no avail, shows plaintiffs without adequate remedy at law. Peterson v. Smith, 20 C. A. 129, 69 S. W. 542.

A suit to restrain issuance of an execution held without equity in that it appeared that the matters relied on could have been set up as a defense in the action. Wilson v. Cook (Civil App.) 91 S. W. 236.

A petition to restrain the prosecution of a suit in a sister state held to state no cause of action because of failure to show any inadequacy of the defense at law in the courts of the sister state. Lightfoot v. Murphy, 47 C. A. 112, 104 S. W. 511.

A petition for an injunction, though containing no allegation that the threatened wrong was real and that petitioner had such injury, and remedy, is sufficient in the absence of special exception. Mitchell v. Burnett, 57 C. A. 124, 122 S. W. 937.

Dissolution on demurrer to bill.—See notes under Art. 4663.

Evidence.—The plaintiffs, in seeking a perpetual injunction, had the burden of showing, by evidence tending to prove that any other effective equitable relief was not adequate, that there was a fundamental defect. McGee v. Reed Co., 75 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

Evidence held insufficient to entitle a judgment debtor to restrain execution. McCray v. Freeman, 17 C. A. 268, 48 S. W. 37.

When it is uncertain whether a verdict for plaintiff in an action to recover damages resulting from the wrongful removal of defendant's fence by the overseer of the road district is based on evidence that the damage was done by negligence in removal or on evidence of unauthorized removal, a decree perpetuating an injunction enjoining interference with defendant's fence is not entitled. Luckie v. Schneider (Civil App.) 57 S. W. 690.

Evidence in a suit to enjoin the collection of the judgment held not sufficient to show that defendant had not received credit for a payment alleged to have been made by him. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wade (Civil App.) 62 S. W. 807.

Where the plaintiff in an action to enjoin a trespass is in actual and exclusive possession of the land, it is not necessary to prove title from the government. Creswell v. Beakley, 28 C. A. 245, 67 S. W. 907.

Where, in a suit to restrain the maintenance of a cotton gin near a dwelling, it appears the dust and lint complained of issue from pipes extending through the roof, a finding of the jury that a fence about the gin would not obviate the difficulty is warranted. Faulkenbury v. Wells, 28 C. A. 621, 68 S. W. 327.

In a suit to enjoin a sewerage company from interfering with a private sewer in a public street, held, that plaintiff made a prima facie case on showing that he had acquired the title of the original owner of the sewer. Oak Cliff Sewerage Co. v. Marsalis, 30 C. A. 68, 69 S. W. 176.

In a suit by adjoining property owners to restrain a railroad's use of a street for a switchyard, evidence held sufficient to show that complainants had sustained special injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civil App.) 95 S. W. 177.

In a suit to enjoin defendant from entering the photograph business, evidence held to support a jury finding in favor of plaintiff. Parrish v. Adwell (Civil App.) 124 S. W. 441.

Certain proofs held not to authorize an injunction restraining the construction of a cotton gin on the ground that its operation would create a nuisance. Robinson v. Dale (Civil App.) 131 S. W. 308.

That one was in actual possession would be only prima facie evidence of his title or right of possession necessary to support his suit to enjoin another from trespassing thereon. Paul v. City of El Paso (Civil App.) 131 S. W. 455.

Under Art. 4643, providing for the grant of a writ of injunction where it shall appear that the party applying for the writ is entitled to the relief demanded, and such relief or, as are authorized by the act provide, requires the restraint of some act prejudicial to the applicant, and Rev. St. 1895, Art. 3115 et seq., declaring that unappropriated waters of flowing rivers may be acquired for irrigation and other purposes, a riparian owner is not entitled to a temporary injunction against the diversion of water for the irrigation of nonriparian land in being, because of a showing that his land is now being used or is intended for immediate use or is prepared for agricultural or other purposes rendering the use of the water of the river necessary and beneficial. Biggs v. Leffingwell (Civil App.) 132 S. W. 902.

Evidence held insufficient to authorize a temporary injunction restraining defendant from boring for oil on land held under a lease. Simms v. Reiner (Civil App.) 134 S. W. 278.

Where, in a suit to enjoin enforcement of a judgment, the truth of plaintiff's allegations was denied, it was error to perpetuate the injunction on no other proof than the affidavit on which the preliminary injunction was granted. Withers v. Linden (Civil App.) 138 S. W. 1117.

Evidence in a suit to restrain an obstruction to a public road held not to show any special injury to plaintiff different from that suffered by the public generally. Owens v. Varnell (Civil App.) 145 S. W. 256.

In a proceeding to enjoin the commissioners' court from building a new courthouse, evidence on motion to continue a temporary injunction held not sufficient to warrant a reasonable belief that the actions of the court were founded in fraud. McWilliams v. Commissioners, County of San Diego (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 384.

As a rule, injunction will be granted to prevent a cloud being cast upon a title to realty, when the evidence upon which plaintiff's right depends is not of record, or shown by the instruments upon which it depends. Weaver v. Emison (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 923.

Art. 4650. [2993] Judge's fiat to be indorsed on petition.—If, upon the inspection of such petition, it shall appear to the judge from the facts stated therein that the applicant is entitled to the writ, he shall indorse on such petition or annex thereto his written order directing the clerk of the proper court to issue the writ of injunction prayed for, upon such terms and under such modifications, limitations and restrictions as may be specified in said order; and the judge shall also specify in such order the amount of the bond to be given by the applicant as a prerequisite to the issuance of the writ. If the injunction be applied for to restrain the execution of a money judgment or the collection of a debt, the bond shall be fixed in double the amount of such judgment or debt. [P. D. 3933.]

Giving new bond.—Should it appear that the amount of the bond is insufficient, the judge may permit the plaintiff to give a new bond in a sufficient amount. Downes v. Monroe, 42 T. 307.

Time for filing bond.—It is error to permit a bond to be filed after judgment. Downes v. Monroe, 42 T. 307.

Validity of bond.—See notes under Art. 4654.

Duration of temporary restraining order.—It is obvious that under this article and Art. 4651 the judge is authorized to place upon a preliminary injunction such limitation as to the time of its operation as he may see proper; and an order indorsed by the judge on a petition for injunction, directing the clerk to cite defendants to appear at a certain time and place to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted and at the same time to issue "a restraining order to defendants [] pending such hearing" shows that the intention was to limit the operation of the order until such time as the parties could be heard upon the issue, whether under the allegations of the petition and answer, should be filed, an injunction to remain in force until the final disposition of the case should be granted. Riggins v. Thompson, 96 T. 164, 71 S. W. 14.

Art. 4651. [2994] Notice to opposite party, when.—Upon application for any writ of injunction, if it appear to the judge that delay will not prove injurious to either party, and that justice may be subserved thereby, he may cause notice of such application to be served upon the opposite party, his agent or attorney, in such manner as he may direct, and fix a time and place for the hearing of such application.

Power to issue ex parte injunction.—While the facts alleged in the petition did not show any reason for issuing even a prohibitory injunction without the notice provided for by Art. 4650, where delay will not injure either party, the issuance of the prohibitory injunction without notice was not such an abuse of the trial court's discretion as would justify its vacation. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

It is discretionary with the trial court, on application for a temporary injunction, to act upon plaintiff's petition without notice unto defendants, or to permit them to present pleadings and evidence and dispose of the matter as then presented. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

The power of equity to grant a preliminary injunction without notice should not be exercised, unless there is a pressing necessity for such action. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Rule as to mandatory injunction.—A mandatory injunction may be granted in a proper case without notice, even for the purpose of restoring to the owner possession of the premises of which he has been deprived by trespass. Holbein v. De La Garza (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 42.

Where a railroad company obligated by contract to maintain in a city its machine shops, roundhouses, and general offices had removed the same before suit was filed to restrain the company from violating its obligation, the court should not without notice grant a mandatory injunction compelling the company to remove its general offices from the present location to the city. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

The power of equity to grant a preliminary injunction without notice should not be exercised unless there is a pressing necessity for such action, and, as a general rule, a mandatory injunction should not be ordered before a final hearing of the case, and for the purpose of executing the judgment. 3d.

Duration of temporary restraining order.—See notes under Art. 4660.

Transfer of subject-matter after rule to show cause.—A party cannot avoid the effect of an injunction by transferring the subject-matter of the order to another before the issuance of the writ, when he knows that a rule has been granted to show cause. City of San Antonio v. Rischo (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 388.

Dissolution of ex parte injunction.—Ordinarily a temporary injunction granted ex parte will be dissolved on motion on answer under oath denying specific allegations of the petition, as required by Art. 4650, Daniels v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 545.

An order dissolving, on answer under oath clearly denying the material facts, and supported by ample testimony, a temporary injunction, granted without notice, on the petition, will be affirmed. Wainwright v. Cotter (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 419.

Art. 4652. [2995] Petition to be filed and cause docketed.—Upon the grant of any writ of injunction, the party to whom the same is granted shall file his petition therefor, together with the order of the judge granting the same, with the clerk of the proper court; and, if such writ of injunction does not pertain to a pending suit in said court, the cause shall be entered on the civil docket of the court in its regular order in the name of the party to whom the writ is granted as plaintiff and of the opposite party as defendant.

Venue.—A suit to enjoin a sale of land under a judgment to which the plaintiff is not a party may be brought in the county in which the land is situated. Huggins v. White, 27 S. W. 1066, 7 C. A. 563.

In an action to restrain the enforcement of a judgment against the land of a stranger to the judgment, the action was properly brought in the county where the land was situated. Horvets v. Dunman, 46 C. A. 177, 102 S. W. 462.

This article and the following article fix the venue of suits for injunction for causes other than to stay proceedings in a suit or execution on a judgment in the county of the domicile of defendant. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Under Art. 1830, subd. 27, providing that, when in any law authorizing any particular character of action the venue is expressly prescribed, the suit shall be commenced in the county to which the jurisdiction may be given, this article, and Art. 4652, providing that writs for injunction shall be returnable to and tried in the county in which defendant has his domicile, a suit against a railroad company for injunctive relief only can be brought in the county in which the corporation has its domicile. Id.

Art. 4653. [2996] Writs, where returnable.—Writs of injunction granted to stay proceedings in a suit, or execution on a judgment, shall be returnable to and tried in the court where such suit is pending, or such judgment was rendered: writs of injunction for other causes, if the party against whom it is granted be an inhabitant of the state, shall be returnable to, and tried in, the district or county court of the county in which such party has his domicile, according as the amount or matter in controversy comes within the jurisdiction of either of said courts. If there be more than one party against whom any writ is granted, it may be returned and tried in the proper court of the county where either may have his domicile. [Id. P. D. 3932.]

Application.—This article does not apply in case of an injunction to restrain collection of judgment of justice court, as the justice court has no power to issue writs of injunction or to determine issues dependent thereon. Foist v. Warren (Sup.) 72 S. W. 405.

In reference to proper county in which writs of injunction are returnable, this article should be looked to where an injunction has been issued against a county, rather than to Art. 1830 on the general subject of venue of suits. Little v. Griffin, 35 C. A. 515, 77 S. W. 635.

Where the suit is not to stay any proceedings in the case or to stay the execution on a judgment, but injunction is sought against the sale of a particular piece of property, and the injunction does not prevent the levy of the process upon any other property subject to it, an injunction can be sued out of another court than the one in which judgment was rendered and out of which execution was issued. In such case this article does not apply. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Peter, 35 C. A. 49, 80 S. W. 108.

This article does not apply where the injunction is to restrain an execution on a void judgment, where the invalidity affirmatively appears from the face of the record, and the injunction may be sued out in the county where the execution is sought to be levied. Ketelsen & Degetan v. Pratt Bros. & Sey (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1174.

This article applies to suits attacking the validity of the judgment, or presenting defenses properly connected with the suit in which it was rendered and which should have been adjudicated therein, and does not apply to a suit to enjoin the issuance of execution in favor of one not entitled to have it enforced. Kruegel v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 216.

Art. 1830, subd. 17, providing that no inhabitant of the state shall be sued out of the county of his domicile, except when suit is brought to enjoin execution of a judgment, in which case the suit may be brought in the county where the judgment was rendered, and this article, apply only when suit is to restrain execution of a judgment because of some infirmity in the judgment or the writ, or where some equity has arisen since the judgment which should prevent enforcement, and does not apply where the injunction is only to prevent sale of exempt property, in which case suit may be brought in any court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter in the county in which any defendant resides or in which the property, if realty, is situated. Parsons v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1084. 8144 Jurisdiction and venue.—See also, notes under Arts. 4643, 4652.

The first clause of this article is imperative. Hendrick v. Cannon, 2 T. 259; Winnie v. Grayson, 3 T. 429; Cook v. Baldridge, 39 T. 250; Hugo v. Dignowity, 1 App. C. C. § 188; George v. Dyer, 1 App. C. C. § 789.

An injunction to restrain the sale of land in A. county under an execution issued on a judgment rendered in B. county, must be returned to the court from which the execution issued. Seligson v. Collins, 64 T. 314, citing Hendrick v. Cannon, 2 T. 259; Winnie v. Grayson, 3 T. 429; Cook v. Baldridge, 39 T. 250.

When the plaintiff in injunction is not a party to or in any wise connected with a judgment in another county, or the execution issued thereon, an injunction to restrain the sale of goods under such execution levied in the county of plaintiff's residence is returnable to the proper court of the latter county. Brown v. Young, 1 App. C. C. § 744; And see Art. 97. 329; 342. 249.

Our courts have uniformly held that the court in which the judgment is rendered alone has jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin the execution of such judgment, unless such judgment is void. Adoue v. Wettermark, 22 C. A. 545, 68 S. W. 611.

A writ of injunction to restrain officer from selling property under execution must be sued out in the court issuing the execution. Id.

The district court has no jurisdiction in a case in which a substitute in suit to stay execution upon a judgment of the county court. The latter court only has jurisdiction. Smith v. Morgan, 28 C. A. 245, 67 S. W. 519.

Judgment of affirmance on a supersedeas bond, given on appeal by a third party solely from a judgment of foreclosure in a suit on a debt and to foreclose a mortgage lien, held not a judgment against appellant for the amount of the money judgment below against the mortgagee, but only an affirmation of the judgment then recovered, and hence appellant was entitled to resist execution thereunder by injunction from a court other than that rendering judgment of affirmance. Adoue v. Wettermark, 28 C. A. 603, 68 S. W. 533.

An injunction to restrain execution of an order of sheriff on a judgment must be brought in the court in which the judgment was obtained. Broocks v. Lee (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 757.

A writ of injunction to restrain execution of a judgment rendered by the county court is returnable to the county court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 353, 114 S. W. 671, 672.

The judgment of a county court prima facie valid is not subject to attack in any other court. (In this case judgment was sued out in the district court.) Wheeler v. Powell (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 695.

Under this article a district court has not jurisdiction to dissolve a temporary writ of injunction previously granted by the district judge, restraining a judgment rendered by the county court. Godfrey v. Lackey (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1148.

This article fixes the venue of trials on the merits of applications for injunctions to arrest the execution of judgments, and does not change the laws conferring jurisdiction on the county or district courts over the subject-matter. Smith Drug Co. v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 258.

This article does not give the district court jurisdiction to hear and determine an application for an injunction to restrain execution upon a judgment rendered in the county court. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Butler, 62 C. A. 327, 135 S. W. 1064.

Under this article a county court has jurisdiction to enjoin proceedings on an execution for costs out of that court. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1188.

Under this article the writ in a suit in the county court to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment of the Lee county court should be returnable to that court, unless the judgment sought to be enjoined was absolutely void. Hulisman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 726.

Under Const. art. 5, §§ 8, 16, relating to the jurisdiction of the county and district courts in executions, and Art. 4653 and this article, where the equities warranted, enjoin execution of a judgment of the county court, though he could not finally dispose of the injunction proceeding, which should be finally disposed of in the county court. Baker v. Crosbyton Southplains R. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 569. If a court has no jurisdiction to enjoin for inequity from the court for equity, the suit is not a suit for injunction within this article, providing that writs for injunction shall be returnable to and tried in the county in which defendant has his domicile. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Art. 4654. [2997] The bond for injunction.—Upon the filing of the petition and order of the judge hereinbefore provided for, in the proper court, and before the issuance of the writ of injunction, the complainant shall execute and file with the clerk a bond to the adverse party, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by such clerk, in such sum as may be affixed in the order of the judge granting the writ, conditioned that the complainant will abide the decision which may be made therein, and that he will pay all sums of money and costs that may be adjudged against him, if the injunction be dissolved in whole or in part. If the state be complainant in any petition for injunction, no bond shall be required. [P. D. 3933.]

Provision mandatory.—The provisions of this article are mandatory and no exception is made in favor of a receiver. Paine v. Carpenler, 51 C. A. 191, 111 S. W. 431.

Signature of attorney.—Objection to quash temporary injunction, on ground that plaintiff's name was not signed to the bond, held that his name might be signed thereto by his attorney, and thereupon the motion be overruled. Haynes v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 49, 111 S. W. 427.

INJUNCTIONS

Validly.—Where a bond is less onerous than required by the statute, as when it is executed for a less amount than the judgment enjoined, it is valid for the amount named in the bond. Miller v. Clemenza, 54 Tex. 351.

An injunction bond payable to one of the parties defendant "et al." will not be quashed. Parker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1031.

Order for bond by appellate court.—On appeal from a judgment granting an injunction, where it appears that plaintiff did not execute and file with the clerk of the court a bond for injunction, and that the district judge who granted the writ did not fix the amount of the bond to be executed as a condition precedent to the issuance of the writ as required by this article, the court of civil appeals, where the petition states grounds for injunctive relief, may enter such orders and judgment as should have been entered by the lower court, requiring the execution of the bond by plaintiff to be approved by the clerk of the district court. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. v. Water & Light Co. of El Campo (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 865.

Damages in general.—See notes under Art. 4667.

In an action on an injunction bond for the amount of the debt, costs, and interest, Warren v. Foust, 36 Tex. 59, 51 S. W. 333.

Where enforcement of a foreclosure decree is wrongfully restrained, the purchaser is entitled to recover on the injunction bond the rental value of the premises up to the time it was repossessed. Steves v. Saucedo, 83 Tex. 439, 17 S. W. 441.

Where an injunction restraining an execution sale is dissolved, judgment against the sureties on the injunction bond may not be rendered for the amount to be collected by the execution, without pleading and proof that the temporary injunction had caused such damage. Dillard v. Stringfellow & Hume, 90 Tex. 410, 111 S. W. 765.

The conditions of an injunction bond to abide the decision held not to prevent a second suit for the same relief, and plaintiff is not liable on the bond for defendant's expenses in defending another injunction suit, brought by plaintiff after the dissolution of the first. Carpenter v. First Nat. Bank of Sour Lake, 53 Tex. 23, 114 S. W. 904.

Profits.—Profits which would have been made if an established business had not been interfered with by injunction may be recovered. Galveston City R. Co. v. Miller et al. (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 1132.

Judgment against sureties in injunction suit.—Upon the dissolution of an injunction judgment cannot be rendered on the bond for the amount of the debt enjoined against the principal and sureties unless a cross-action is filed. If such an action is not filed, suit may be brought against the principal and sureties on the bond. Appleton v. Draughan, 11 Tex. 99, 32 S. W. 46.

It is unnecessary to cite sureties on an injunction bond to answer a plea of reconvocation in order to render judgment against them for damages caused by the injunction. Smith v. Wilson, 18 C. A. 24, 44 S. W. 556.

In a suit to enjoin the sale of property levied on under an execution, the direction of a verdict against plaintiff and the sureties on the injunction bond held erroneous. Webb v. Caldwell (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 97.

Action on bond.—Where defendant in injunction answered to the merits and reconvened for damages, but the action was tried and judgment rendered without reference to such plea, an action on the injunction bond for damages was not barred. Crenbitts v. Bryce, 24 C. A. 532, 60 S. W. 587.

On an action on an injunction bond, evidence examined, and held to warrant the amount of the verdict rendered. Hill v. Peeler (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1065.

In a suit to enjoin the sale of property under an execution, held, that the court properly allowed defendant to dismiss a cross-bill as to plaintiff, and prosecute his action against the sureties on the injunction bond. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

Art. 4655. [2998] Clerk to issue the writ.—When the petition, order of the judge and bond aforesaid are filed, it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue the writ of injunction directed in such order, in conformity with the terms thereof, and to deliver the same to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county for service and return.

Issuance of writ by clerk of another county court.—A temporary injunction held not subject to dissolution because the judge directed the clerk of the court of a county other than the one in which the suit was pending to issue the writ. Buchanan v. Barnsley (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 848.

Art. 4656. [2999] The writ and its requisites.—The writ of injunction shall be sufficient if it contains substantially the following requisites:
1. Its style shall be, "The State of Texas."
2. It shall be directed to the person or persons enjoined.
3. It must state the names of the parties to the proceeding, plaintiff and defendant, and the nature of the plaintiff's application, with the action of the judge thereon.
4. It must command the person or persons to whom it is directed to desist and refrain from the commission or continuance of the act enjoined, or to obey and execute such order as the judge has seen proper to make.
5. It shall state the term of the court to which such writ is returnable.
6. It shall be dated and signed by the clerk officially, and attested with the seal of his office; and the date of its issuance must be indorsed thereon.

Art. 4657. [3000] Writs may issue in different counties.—If there be several persons enjoined, residing in different counties, a writ shall issue to each of such counties.

Art. 4658. [3001] To whom delivered.—The clerk issuing any such writ of injunction shall deliver the same to the sheriff or any constable of his county, if the person enjoined be a resident of such county; if the person enjoined be a resident of some other county, the clerk shall forward such writ by mail to the sheriff or any constable of such county.

Art. 4659. [3002] Service and return of the writ.—The officer receiving any writ of injunction shall indorse thereon the date of its receipt by him, and shall forthwith execute the same by delivering to the party enjoined a true copy of such writ; and the original shall be returned to the court from which it issued, on or before the return day named therein, with the action of the officer indorsed thereon or annexed thereto, showing how and when he executed the same.

Art. 4660. [3003] Duty of defendant upon service of writ.—The party upon whom any writ of injunction is served shall obey the command thereof and refrain from the commission of the act enjoined so long as such injunction continues in force; or, if the continuance of an act or acts be enjoined, the person enjoined shall immediately cease such act or acts and thereafter refrain from their continuance so long as such injunction remains in force. Any person violating the provisions of this article shall be dealt with as hereinafter directed.

Art. 4661. [3004] Injunctions restrain attorneys, etc., as well as the party.—Any injunction restrains the counselors, solicitors, attorneys, agents, servants and employés of the party, as well as the party himself.

Parties affected.—An injunction does not affect a person not a party to the suit in the exercise of rights acquired before its institution. Shelby v. Burris, 18 T. 644. Nor can a stranger to the suit complain that a contract was made in violation of an injunction not affecting him at the time the contract was made. Hewitt v. Patrick, 26 T. 326.

Art. 4662. [3005] Citation to issue to defendants.—When any writ of injunction is issued, and such writ does not pertain to a suit pending in the court, the clerk of such court shall issue a citation to the defendant as in other civil cases, which shall be served and returned in like manner as ordinary citations issued from said court. But if any injunction is issued after notice to the defendant, as hereinbefore provided, no citation to such defendant shall be necessary.

Necessary parties defendant.—Under this article, Arts. 1869-1873, providing for citation to nonresident defendants and the manner of its service and return, Art. 1874, providing for citation by publication, and Art. 1885, declaring that no judgment shall be rendered against any defendant, unless upon service, acceptance, waiver of process or appearance held that, where nonresident execution creditors placed execution in the hands of the sheriff, who levied upon property claimed as a homestead, and the debtor then applied for an injunction against the sheriff, the execution creditors were necessary parties defendant, and that without notice to them in one of the statutory methods the injunction was a nullity. McCanless v. Gray (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 174.

Art. 4663. [3006] The answer.—The defendant to an injunction proceeding may answer as in other civil actions; but no injunction shall be dissolved before final hearing because of a denial of the material allegations of the plaintiff's petition, unless the answer denying the same is verified by the oath or affirmation of the defendant. [P. D. 3929.]

Answer.—An injunction may be made perpetual on the pleadings when the material allegations in the petition are not denied in the answer. Eason v. Killough, 1 App. C. C. § 604.

A general denial to a petition for an injunction, is not subject to general demurrer, but it makes it necessary for plaintiff to prove his case. Murphy v. Smith, Walker & Co., 38 C. A. 50, 84 S. W. 679. A.

In a suit to enjoin execution for costs, matters in the answer referring to matters occurring on the trial of the original cause held properly stricken out as immaterial. Griffith v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 756. B.

An order dissolving a temporary injunction rendered without notice on petition, will be affirmed, having been on an answer under oath, clearly denying material facts and supported by competent testimony. Wainwright v. Cotter (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 419. C.

Answer by all parties.—Where fraud is charged against several parties, all of the defendants must answer to authorize a dissolution of an injunction. Orr v. Moore, 1 App. C. C. § 687.

Decree on sustaining demurrer to bill.—An injunction may be wholly dissolved on sustaining a general demurrer to the bill. O'Neal v. Wills Point Bank, 64 T. 64.

A demurrer to a petition was sustained on two of the grounds assigned, and overruled as to the third. The plaintiff declined to amend and to proceed further with the case, and the defendant was given leave to defend for damages and costs. Held, that the action of the plaintiff was equivalent to a voluntary nonsuit, and the action of the court would not be revised on appeal. 126. D.

Where, in a proceeding to enjoin the enforcement of an order of the railroad commission, a general demurrer to the petition was overruled, and defendant declined to further answer, judgment was properly rendered for plaintiff. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 61 C. A. 447, 115 S. W. 345. 128.

This article contemplates a dissolution upon a denial alone, and does not apply to a dissolution on a demurrer on full hearing. Smith v. Palo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1198. 137.

Art. 4664. [3007] Dissolution in term time or vacation.—In all cases of injunction, motions to dissolve the same without determining the merits may be heard after answer filed, in vacation as well as in term time, at least ten days' notice of such motion being first given to the opposite party or his attorney. In such cases, the proceedings upon such hearing including the action of the judge upon the motion, shall be entered upon the minutes of the proper court by the clerk thereof, on or before the first day of the succeeding term of such court, and thereafter shall constitute a part of the record of the same. [P. D. 3934.]

See Duncan v. Herder, 57 C. A. 542, 122 S. W. 904.

Time for making motion.—A motion to dissolve a temporary injunction, made after both sides had announced ready and the jurors were taking their seats, was properly refused. Briggs v. New South Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 885. 126.

"Vacation" defined.—"Vacation," as used in Arts. 4642, 4664, means the vacation of the district court of the county wherein the case was pending, in which an injunction was awarded, and hence, there being no statute fixing the place for hearing motions to dissolve, a judge granting an injunction in vacation may hear a motion to dissolve it in a county other than that in which the suit is pending. Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 365. 137.

Consideration of merits.—On a motion to dissolve an injunction granted by the appellate court, the court will not consider questions involving the merits. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 842. 128.

Dissolution by ex parte injunction.—See notes under Art. 4651. 139.

Discretion of court.—Whether a temporary injunction should be continued in force on the principle that more harm would result to plaintiff if wrongfully dissolved than would result to defendant if wrongfully allowed to stand is within the court's sound discretion. Daniels v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 569. 139.

A court may grant an injunction without notice to defendant, refusing to join as defendant, or to dismiss at the instance of defendant or the coming in of his answer, unqualifiedly denying all the allegations of the bill material to the granting of the injunction, unless irreparable injury may result or some peculiar circumstances exist, when the court may, in its sound discretion, refuse to dissolve. 140.

The dissolution of a temporary restraining order rests largely in the discretion of the court, and its action will not be disturbed, in the absence of an abuse of discretion. 140.

Even if the sworn answer denies all of the equities of the bill, the dissolution of a temporary injunction is largely a matter of judicial discretion, to be decided upon the merits. Injunction 419, Texas v. Singleton Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 666.

Where the answer is a complete denial, the dissolution of a temporary injunction against the sale of land under a trust deed rests largely in the discretion of the trial court. Injunction 418, Rogers v. Corbin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 968.

In an action to enjoin the cutting and removal of timber, held, in view of the failure to establish defendants' insolvency, of the allegation of plaintiffs' insolvency, and of the nature of the injury, that a dissolution of the temporary injunction leaving the parties to their actions at law was a proper exercise of the court's discretion. Ait Bennett Lumber Co. of Texas v. Fall (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 209.

Dissolution on pleadings.—On a motion to dissolve on an exception to the petition, the allegations of the petition are taken to be true. Jackson v. Browning, 1 App. C. C. § 665.

Defendant's answer having denied all the material allegations of a petition, an interlocutory judgment was properly dissolved. Frazier v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 662.

On motion to dissolve a temporary injunction, the bill must be taken as true, in the absence of a sworn answer traversing the equity of the bill. Dawson v. Balbridge, 55 C. A. 124, 118 S. W. 693.

On motion to dissolve an injunction on bill and answer, the answer, when sworn to in so far as responsive to the bill, is taken as true. Id.

A temporary injunction will be dissolved, when the answer is sworn to and unequivocally denies all the material allegations of the bill, unless irreparable mischief is likely to ensue from its dissolution, or unless some peculiar circumstances exist. Id.

A temporary restraining order against a judgment is properly dissolved, when heard upon bill and answer denying all the material allegations of the verified bill. New York Chemical Co. v. Spell Bros., 56 C. A. 315, 120 S. W. 573.

A bill to enjoin a judgment held properly dismissed, where no request was made to retain the writ and bill and answer. Id.

A temporary injunction could be dissolved, though not prayed for by formal motion, where the answer contained such prayer. Smith v. Palo Pinto County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1193.

The principle that a temporary injunction will not be dissolved, in the absence of a specific denial under oath of the allegations of the bill, merely by reason of matters pleaded in confession and avoidance thereof, held inapplicable in a certain case. Rabb v. L. & N. R. R. Co., Canal Co. v. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 518.

On motion to dismiss an injunction on bill and answer, the verified answer must be taken as true in so far as it is responsive to the bill. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 1180.

A temporary injunction granted ex parte held dissolved at the instance of defendant, on the coming in of his answer explicitly denying the material allegations of the bill. Id.

In a suit to restrain the enforcement of a justice's Judgment, failure of the petition to show that plaintiff had a meritorious defense held no ground for dissolving a preliminary injunction. Withers v. Linden (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1117.

A verified answer only argumentatively denying the equities of plaintiff's bill, held insufficient to require the dissolution of a temporary injunction. Id.

Sworn answer held not to deny all of the allegations of a bill, so as to make it erroneous to continue a temporary injunction. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 489.

An affidavit accompanying the answer in an injunction suit held to sufficiently negative the allegations of the petition to warrant dissolution of the temporary injunction. Gibson v. Sterrett (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1189.

Where an injunction against enforcing a judgment was sought on the ground that the money had not been returned, the verified answer that none of the property had been returned for credit on the judgment was insufficient. Id.

A temporary injunction granted ex parte held dissolved at the instance of defendant, on the coming in of his answer explicitly denying the material allegations of the bill. Axtell v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 1182.

Where a judgment debtor sued to restrain the judgment creditor from enforcing the judgment, joining the constable to prevent a sale, and the judgment creditor and the constable filed sworn answers denying the material averments of the petition, the court could dissolve the temporary restraining order upon motion. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 412.

Evidence.—Affidavits are admissible in evidence on hearing on answer and motion to dissolve injunction restraining sale of land under decree. Brightman v. Fry, 17 C. A. 531, 43 S. W. 60.

The dissolution of a temporary injunction to restrain the commissioners' court from declaring the result of a local option election held proper under the evidence. Hill v. Roach, 26 C. A. 75, 62 S. W. 959.

An order dissolving an injunction restraining the sheriff from executing a writ of possession, where there is evidence that the land claimed in the injunction suit is not the same as that in the suit. Jett v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 309.

Dismissal of suit.—When the temporary injunction has been dissolved on the filing of an answer swearing away the equities of the bill, the plaintiff is entitled to a trial upon the merits, unless the right is expressly waived; and it is error to dismiss, though the plaintiff make no request for a trial on the merits. Pullen v. Baker, 41 T. 419; Fulgham v. Chevallier, 10 T. 518; Burnley v. Cook, 13 T. 586, 65 Am. Dec. 73; Dearborn v. Phillips, 21 T. 449; Texas Land Co. v. Turman, 53 T. 625; Roe v. Dailley, 1 U. C. 247 (Ga.); Simas v. Reddin, 20 T. 386; Lively v. Bristow, 13 T. 60; Clegg v. Darrah, 63 T. 357; Balbridge v. Cook, 27 T. 565, overruled, and the distinction laid down in Texas Land Co. v. Turman not recognized; Love v. Powell, 67 T. 15, 2 S. W. 456.

When an injunction is dissolved in chambers, the judge has no authority also to dismiss the suit, and consequently no appeal can be taken from such order. Price v. Bland, 44 T. 145; Grant v. Chambers, 34 T. 573; Alken v. Carroll, 37 T. 78; Coleman v. Goyne, 37 T. 582; Wagner v. Edmiston, 1 App. C. C. § 675.

When the injunction is dissolved by reason of a sworn denial of the facts stated in the petition, the suit should be continued for a hearing on the merits if plaintiff demands or indicate his wish that this should be done. Washington County v. Schulz, 63 T. 32; Floyd v. Turney, 23 T. 292; Horton v. Jones, Dallam, 466; L. & H. Blum v. Schram & Co., 58 T. 524.

When on the dissolution of an injunction, the plaintiff asks that the cause stand over for trial, it is error for the court to dismiss the suit if the averments of the petition entitled plaintiff to the relief sought, or could have been amended so as to state a good cause of action. Washington County v. Schulz, 63 T. 32; Hale v. McComas, 59 T. 494; Corsicana v. White, 57 T. 382; Pryor v. Emerson, 52 T. 162; Cook v. De La Garza, 13 T. 431; Gibson v. Moore, 22 T. 611; Pullen v. Baker, 41 T. 420; Gaskins v. Peebles, 44 T. 390; Sims v. Redding, 20 T. 387; Floyd v. Turner, 22 T. 292; Lively v. Bristow, 12 T. 60; Fulghum v. Chevalier, 10 T. 518; Bannister v. Cook, 27 T. 665; Edrington v. Allsbrooks, 21 T. 188; Eccles v. Daniels, 16 T. 127.

In a suit to set aside a judgment as obtained on perjured testimony, it was error, on dissolving the temporary injunction against a sale under the judgment, to dismiss the bill without a hearing on the merits. Avocet v. Dell & Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 443.

Upon a petition to enjoin defendant from selling plaintiff's property on execution, in which a temporary injunction has been granted, the court, on dissolving the injunction, should not dismiss the suit, although plaintiff does not affirmatively demand a trial upon the merits. McKenze v. Withers (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 413.

Dissolution on judgment in favor of defendant.—Absolute dissolution of a temporary injunction against a trespass by a condemnor on judgment in its favor held not improper. Rabb v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

Harmless error.—The denial of a motion for a postponement of the dissolution of an injunction, made on the sole ground that this article gave a technical right to 10 days notice of dissolution, where the motion party was not ready for trial or prejudiced in any matter, was not reversible error, since it did not cause the rendition of an improper judgment under rule 62a (149 S. W. x), providing that reversal shall be for no other cause. McWilliams v. Commissioners' Court of Pecos County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 368.

Art. 4665. [3008] Refunding bond on dissolution.—Upon the dissolution of any injunction restraining the collection of money, by an interlocutory order of the court or judge, made in term time or vacation, if the petition be continued over for trial, it shall be the duty of the court or judge to require of the defendant in such injunction proceedings a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk of the court; which bond shall be payable to the complainant in double the amount of the sum enjoined, and conditioned to refund to the complainant the amount of money, interest and costs, which may be collected of him in the suit or proceeding enjoined, in the event such injunction is made perpetual on final hearing. [P. D. 3937.]

Application of statute.—An injunction restraining a substituted trustee under a deed of trust from selling the land, but saying nothing about the collection of the notes for which the deed of trust was security, was not one restraining the "collection of money" within this article. Hicks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 845.

Intervener.—An intervener in a suit for debt and foreclosure of an attachment lien has no right to have the money withheld from the judgment debtor, unless he gives a bond conditioned that he will pay plaintiff all the damages he might sustain if the intervener failed to show that he was not entitled thereto. Elchoff v. Tidball, 61 T. 421.

Art. 4666. [3009] Judgment on such bond.—In the event such injunction is perpetuated on final hearing, the court may, on motion of the complainant, enter judgment against the principal and sureties in any bond taken in accordance with the provisions of the preceding article for such amount as may be shown to have been collected from such complainant. [P. D. 3938.]

Art. 4667. [3010] Damages for delay.—Upon the dissolution of an injunction, either in whole or in part, on final hearing, where the collection of money has been enjoined, if the court be satisfied that the injunction was obtained only for delay, damages thereon may be assessed by the court, at ten per cent on the amount released by the dissolution of the injunction, exclusive of costs. [P. D. 3935.]

Right to damages in general.—Where goods are illegally seized under execution, plaintiff may recover damages for the erroneous issuance of an injunction to prevent a sale. Sumner v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 825.

The court, upon dissolving an injunction restraining a void judgment, held not authorized to enter judgment against plaintiff and his sureties, nor to award damages under this article. Givens v. Delprat, 26 C. A. 363, 67 S. W. 424.
On plaintiff's dismissal of his suit for an injunction, defendant may recover damages for the wrongful suit out of the injunction. Cleveenger v. Cariker, 50 C. A. 562, 110 S. W. 796.

Where a temporary injunction staying the issuance of execution on a judgment which was not final was improperly dissolved, it was error to award the statutory penalty for violation of an injunction. Patterson v. Beddingfield, 61 Tex. Co. V. B. W. 907.

In an action for wrongful injunction restraining plaintiff from removing a building, plaintiff held entitled to recover damages from the date of defendant's refusal to surrender, and not from the date of the writ. Herrmann v. Allen (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 724.

An injunction restraining with a building held not to require him to leave appliances for moving houses which he had put under the building before the issuance of the injunction, and therefore on dissolution of the injunction he could not recover the value of the proper use of the appliances. Herrmann v. Allen, 103 T. 892, 128 S. W. 115.

Where defendant was wrongfully prevented from removing his property from plaintiff's premises by an injunction sued out by plaintiff, defendant was entitled to recover the damages proximately resulting on a plea in reconvention. Lancaster v. Roth (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 597.

Discretion of court.—The assessment of damages is within the discretion of the judge, and will not be revised unless there has been manifest error. Pierrpont v. Sasse, 1 App. C. C. § 408; Ross v. Lister, 14 T. 469; Fall v. Ratliff, 10 T. 291; Clegg v. Darragh, 63 T. 877; Perrin v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 29 B. W. 937.

The trial court only can determine the question whether the injunction was sued out for delay, and whether the penalty should be allowed. Carpenter v. First Nat. Bank, 53 C. A. 39, 114 S. W. 906.

The proper measure of damages against one who improperly enjoined the collection of taxes is interest on the amount enjoined. Rosenberg v. Weeks, 67 T. 578, 4 S. W. 899.

Where property is levied on to satisfy a judgment, and one who is not a party thereto claims an injunction restraining the sale of the property, the plaintiffs in the judgment are not entitled, upon a dissolution of the injunction, to recover against the principal and sureties in the bond the amount of their judgment then remaining unpaid, without alleging damage or injury resulting from the grant of the injunction. Robertson v. Schneider, 1 C. A. 408, 29 S. W. 1129.

In estimating damages to be allowed a mill owner on dissolution of an injunction restraining him from cutting and using certain timber, it is proper to consider the cost to him of moving his tramway to other timber and of moving it back again. French v. McCreary (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 894.

The allowance of $100 damages on dissolution of an injunction restraining the sale of certain personal property held a proper exercise of the trial court's discretion. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Jones, 43 C. A. 4, 58 S. W. 1129.

Attorney's fees or other expenses not taxable as costs held not recoverable as damages in a cross-action in the injunction suit. Carpenter v. First Nat. Bank of Sour Lake, 53 C. A. 33, 114 S. W. 904.

In an action for withholding possession of a building by wrongful injunction, the measure of damages was the reasonable rental value, and not interest on the value of the building. Herrmann v. Allen (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 794.

That the submission of an appeal from a judgment perpetuating an injunction was proper after stipulation held not to restrict defendant therein in an action for wrongful injunction to damages for the detention of his property which accrued subsequent to the final judgment of reversal on the appeal. 1d.

Under this article, held that where defendant, in a suit to enjoin an execution, brought a counterclaim for damages, but on the hearing showed no proof of damages caused by the temporary injunction, a judgment against the plaintiff and the sureties on his injunction bond for the full amount of the judgment upon which execution had issued was unauthorized. Patterson v. English (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 18.

Exemplary damages.—Exemplary damages are not recoverable for the malicious suit out of an injunction. Railway Co. v. Ware, 74 T. 47, 11 S. W. 918; Shackelford County v. Hounsfeld (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 358.

Liability on injunction bond.—See notes under Art. 4664.

Art. 4668. [3011] Disobedience a contempt.—Disobedience of an injunction may be punished by the court or judge, in term time or in vacation, as a contempt. [P. D. 3934.]

Power to punish.—Where a writ of injunction has been irregularly or improvidently issued, it must be obeyed until it is dissolved, and one may be punished for disobeying it. Ex parte Breeding (Cr. App.) 90 S. W. 635, 636.

Under the express provisions of this article the court may in vacation punish one for a violation of an injunction. Ex parte Looper, 61 Cr. R. 129, 124 S. W. 345, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 32.

Art. 4669. [3012] Procedure in case of disobedience.—In case of such disobedience, the complainant, his agent or attorney, may file in the court in which such injunction is pending, or with the district or county judge, as the case may be, in vacation, his affidavit, stating the person guilty of such disobedience, and describing the act or acts constituting... the same; and thereupon the court or judge shall issue, or cause to be issued, an attachment for such person, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, and requiring such officer to arrest the person therein named and have him before the court or judge at a time and place to be named in such writ.

Affidavit or complaint.—Under this article the issuance of attachment on the affidavit of another is a mere irregularity in process, so that one arrested under such circumstances, and who affiant is liable for proceedings. Nor for such irregularity, obtain his release by habeas corpus, which is a proper remedy only where the court was without jurisdiction in the matter, or so exceeded its jurisdiction that its judgment was void. Ex parte Morgan, 57 Cr. R. 551, 124 S. W. 99, 136 Am. St. Rep. 996.

The complaint calling to the court's attention the fact that relator had violated an injunction restraining him from maintaining a disorderly house, when signed by the county attorney officially, is sufficient, though not verified by him. Ex parte Yoshida (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1156.

Consideration of merits.—The court, in proceeding to enforce by contempt a temporary injunction, need not consider the merits of the controversy or whether the injunction was improperly granted, but it is sufficient that the injunction was granted and was violated. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 66 C. A. 182, 121 S. W. 213.

Writ of commitment.—Where relator was adjudged guilty of contempt in violating an injunction restraining him from continuing to run a disorderly house, a writ of commitment was made in the court which had issued the injunction, is not invalid because, through a clerical error, it recited that it was given in another court. Ex parte Yoshida (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1166.

Art. 4670. [3013] Persons guilty to be imprisoned.—On return of such attachment, the court or judge shall proceed to hear proof; and, if satisfied that such person has disobeyed the injunction either directly or indirectly, he shall be committed to jail without bail until he purges himself of such contempt, in such manner and form as may be directed by the court or judge.

Violation of decree and punishment.—Where a court has authority to enjoin, its writ must be obeyed until dissolved, though irregular and erroneously granted. Ex parte Wardfield, 40 Cr. R. 413, 60 S. W. 933, 76 Am. St. Rep. 724.

It is error to put the violation of a preliminary injunction by instructing that defendant's testimony in his own behalf is not to be construed, as it is also error to regard obedience to a preliminary injunction by instructing that defendant is entitled to a verdict. Lake v. Copeland, 31 C. A. 355, 72 S. W. 98.

The fact that defendant in injunction suit had answered by an attorney held not to show that he had knowledge of the issuance of injunction. Ex parte Stone (Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 1000.

A decree against officers and agents of an insurance society, restraining them from canceling a certificate, is enforceable only by attachment of bodies and punishing the company. Insurance Union v. Lundy, 112 S. W. 183.

Where persons against whom an injunction issued knew of it, its issuance, service, and conformity to statute held important. Ex parte Young, 103 T. 470, 123 S. W. 599.

Contempt.—In order to render one guilty of a contempt, consisting of the violation of an injunction, it is not necessary that the writ should have been served on him, if he had actual knowledge of its issuance. Ex parte Stone (Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 1000.

Under this article it appears that the sole authority vested in the court in such cases is to commit to jail until the recalcitrant party purges himself of such contempt in such manner and form as may be directed by the court; that is, on disobedience of an injunction, the court can imprison without bail and hold such party in custody until he purges himself after the manner and form directed by the court. Ex parte Morgan (Cr. App.) 96 S. W. 756.

Courts of civil appeals held to have jurisdiction to punish as for contempt of court an agent violating, pending an appeal therefrom, an injunction of the district court enjoining the selling by defendants, their agents, etc., of certain railroad tickets. Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 112, 90 S. W. 316.

An appellate court will not interfere with a judgment punishing for contempt in violating an injunction, unless the lower court was without jurisdiction or had no authority to render the particular judgment. Ex parte Garza, 50 Cr. R. 105, 96 S. W. 1059.

Complainant in an injunction suit held not to have so invited defendant to violate the injunction as to relieve defendant from contempt. Ex parte Cash, 50 Cr. R. 625, 99 S. W. 1118, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1304, 123 Am. St. Rep. 856.

The selling of tickets by a ticket broker, in violation of an injunction, held to have constituted a contempt.

An order for contempt for the violation of an injunction held sufficient. Id.

That an affidavit for contempt for violating an injunction was sworn to on information and belief only did not deprive the court of jurisdiction to punish the party charged. Ex parte Dupree, 101 T. 160, 106 S. W. 495; Ex parte Byrd, 101 T. 167, 106 S. W. 496.

An order for contempt for violation of an enjoined person held in an enjoined person held subjucnt to render him guilty of contempt in disregarding it, even though through a clerical error it was made returnable at a date prior to its issuance. Ex parte Testard, 101 T. 255, 106 S. W. 319; Ex parte Howard, 101 T. 254, 106 S. W. 321.
INJUNCTIONS

Title 69

The court having the power to restrain the grading of a sidewalk by a city in a proper case, that the injunction was erroneously issued under the circumstances would not prevent the city's agents from being guilty of contempt for violating the order. City of Marshall v. Allen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 849.

One who, with knowledge of an injunction against another, aids and abets the latter in violating the injunction, is guilty of contempt. Ex parte Testard, 102 T. 287, 115 S. W. 1155, 20 Ann. Cas. 117.

The court, in proceeding to enforce by contempt a temporary injunction, need not consider the merits of the controversy or whether the injunction was properly granted. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 183, 121 S. W. 213.

Parties having knowledge of injunction held guilty of contempt in disobeying it, whether parties to the suit and served with notice or not. Ex parte Young, 105 T. 470, 129 S. W. 599.

Under this article a provision, in an order committing persons for contempt in violating an injunction, that they be held until they purge themselves of the contempt in such manner as the court may direct, does not invalidate the judgment prescribing a fine and imprisonment; but, in case no direction is given by the judge who grants the writ, the parties will be entitled to be discharged on compliance with the expressed terms of the order. Id.

One restrained by a preliminary injunction held not entitled to urge in contempt proceedings for a violation of the injunction that he had not been given a speedy trial. Ex parte Roper, 61 Cr. R. 65, 134 S. W. 334.

Collateral attack on decree.—Where the court has jurisdiction of the parties and the matter adjudicated in the sense that it has jurisdiction of the class of cases to which the particular case belongs, an injunction is not absolutely void, however erroneous the decision may be, and hence cannot be questioned in proceedings for violation thereof. Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 112, 99 S. W. 316.

Art. 4671. [3014] General principles of equity applicable, when.—

The principles, practice and procedure governing courts of equity shall govern proceedings in injunctions when the same are not in conflict with the provisions of this title or other law.

Judgment.—See notes under Art. 4643.

Art. 4672. [3015] Injunction by the state.—The full right, power and remedy of injunction may be resorted to and invoked by the state at the instance of the county or district attorney or attorney general, to prevent, prohibit or restrain the violation of any revenue law of the state. [Acts 1888, p. 10, sec. 1.]

Art. 4673. [3016] Shall be cumulative.—The right and remedy provided by the preceding article shall be cumulative of other laws in force in this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

INJUNCTIONS IN PARTICULAR CASES

Article 4674. Unlawful sale, etc., of liquors may be enjoined.—Any person, firm or corporation in this state who may engage in, pursue, carry on, or maintain, any of the following described occupations or callings under the circumstances and conditions herein described, are hereby declared to be the creators and promoters of a public nuisance, and may be enjoined at the suit either of the county or district attorney in behalf of the state, or of any private citizen thereof.

1. Any person, firm or corporation who may engage in or pursue the business of selling intoxicating liquor without having first procured the necessary license and paid the taxes required by law.

2. Any person, firm or corporation who may, as owner, proprietor or agent, establish, manage or conduct any public place or business where intoxicating liquors are stored, kept, drunk, sold or dispensed within any county or precinct within this state, wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law.

3. Any person, firm or corporation who may, under the pretense of selling or dispensing intoxicating liquor on prescription, in any county or precinct in this state wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law, and who in thus selling or dispensing such intoxicating liquor violates the law; provided, if, on final hearing, such injunction is sustained, the license of such person shall be revoked, and he shall not thereafter be permitted to again pursue such business for a period of one year.

4. Any person who, as a physician, follows the business of writing and issuing prescriptions to persons contrary to law, prescribing the use of intoxicating liquors to such persons, in any county or precinct in this State wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law.

5. Any person who shall engage in the business of peddling or "bootlegging" intoxicating liquor in any county or precinct in this State wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law.

6. Any person who canvasses or solicits orders for the sale of intoxicating liquor from persons other than those engaged in the lawful sale of the same in any county or precinct in this State wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited by law. [Acts 1907, p. 166, sec. 1.]

See Stockard v. Reid, 57 C. A. 125, 121 S. W. 1144; State v. De Silva, 105 T. 95, 145 S. W. 330.

Construction of statute.—A statute authorizing an Injunction against the keeping of a house for the sale of liquors without a license held at least a penal statute, and must be strictly construed. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

Who may bring suit.—A lessee held not to restrain the sublessee from selling intoxicants on the premises; but injunction will lie at the suit of a lessee, to prevent the sale on the premises by the sublessee of intoxicating liquors in violation of the original lease. Worth Fair Ass'n v. R. W. Duke, 132 S. W. 25, 410.

Liability of club.—A bona fide club, which, as a mere incident and without profit, furnishes liquor to its members, and not to the public generally, is not a person, "engaged in the occupation or business of selling intoxicating liquors," though each individual act of such club in territory where the sale of liquor is prohibited by law is a sale. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

Injunction against disorderly house.—An Injunction against a disorderly house for the sale of liquors without a license, held not sustainable, under Penal Code, art. 359, unless the persons doing the acts complained of may be prosecuted and convicted under the statute. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

Saloon without license limits.—The charter of Dallas (act of 1907) empowers the city to define limits within which saloons may be confined. Although one has obtained a saloon license under the act of 1907 regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, yet he can be enjoined from keeping a saloon without the prescribed limits in said city. Paul v. State, 48 C. A. 25, 106 S. W. 451.

Art. 4675. Procedure as in other cases.—The procedure in all cases brought under the preceding article shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as nearly as may be; provided, that, when the suit is brought in the name of the State by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id. sec. 2.]

Application.—By this act the legislature intended not to enlarge the powers of the district court to grant injunctions in local option cases, but rather to curtail them by requiring the judge in whose district the territory to be affected is situated to issue the writ only after the exceptions enumerated. Merrill v. Savage, 49 C. A. 292, 108 S. W. 410.

Petition.—A private person, to be entitled to a temporary injunction under this article, must allege that a person named pursued the business of selling intoxicating liquors without a license; and a mere allegation in the petition that liquors are kept for sale on premises described, without defendant obtaining a license, is insufficient. Spence v. Fenceher (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

Verification.—A petition to enjoin a corporate club from illegally selling intoxicating liquor, when not required to be verified, is no evidence, even though verified. Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

In a suit to enjoin an incorporated club from selling intoxicating liquors and keeping a place for the purpose of gaming, and for a forfeiture of its franchise, the petition, alleging the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors and the keeping of a place for gambling, need not be verified by affidavit; the provisions relating to quo warranto not requiring verification, and this article and Art. 4688 expressly waiving the requirement of verification in petitions for injunctions to restrain such acts. Id.

Validity of injunction.—An Injunction restraining a druggist licensed to sell liquor held not void because going beyond the limits authorized by law. Ex parte Roper, 61 Cr. R. 68, 134 S. W. 334.

Violation of injunction.—An injunction restraining a subtenant from selling intoxicating liquors on the leased premises held violated by sales made by a third person. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 122, 121 S. W. 215.

A person held not, on the showing made, subject to punishment for the violation of an injunction restraining the selling or keeping for sale of intoxicants. Ex parte Griffin, 60 Cr. R. 502, 132 S. W. 770.

One convicted of selling whisky in violation of the local option law and of an injunction held not entitled to plead his conviction in bar of contempt proceedings for a violation of the injunction. Ex parte Looper, 61 Cr. R. 129, 134 S. W. 345, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 32.

Art. 4676. Persons compelled to testify.—Any person may be compelled to testify and give evidence in any proceeding under the two preceding articles, but such evidence shall not be used against such person in any criminal prosecution in this state. [Id. sec. 4.]
INJUNCTIONS

Constitutionality.—This act is constitutional. Burckell v. State, 47 C. A. 393, 106 S. W. 190.

Art. 4677. Cumulative remedy.—The foregoing remedy by injunction shall not be held to supersede or repeal any law now in force correcting the evils defined, but shall be cumulative of all such laws. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4678. Sale of intoxicating liquors in local option territory enjoined.—The actual, threatened or contemplated use of any place, room, premises, building or part thereof, in any county, justice precinct, town, city or subdivision of a county, as may be designated by the commissioners' court of said county, in which the sale of intoxicating liquors has been prohibited under the laws of this state, for the purpose of selling intoxicating liquor in violation of law, or in which to keep, store or deposit any intoxicating liquor for the purpose of being sold in violation of law, or the possession of, or having under control or management at any such place, or any intoxicating liquor for the purpose and with the intent to sell the same in violation of law, shall be enjoined at the suit of the state, or of any citizen thereof. [Acts 1910, 3 S. S. p. 35, sec. 11.]

Constitutionality.—This is not a special law under the terms of our constitution, nor is it invalid, and where an injunction has been granted under the provisions of this law, its violation can be punished as for contempt. Ex parte Dupree, 101 T. 150, 106 S. W. 493, et seq.

Jurisdiction upon unsworn petition.—The fact that the petition is not sworn to is a mere irregularity, which does not deprive the district court of jurisdiction. Ex parte Dupree, 101 T. 150, 106 S. W. 493, et seq.

Application.—An injunction to restrain a club from selling intoxicating liquors to its members cannot be granted under Pen. Code, art. 358, defining a disorderly house, unless the persons doing the acts complained of may be prosecuted under the statute. State v. Duke, 104 T. 355, 137 S. W. 654.

This act is at least quasi penal and must be strictly construed. Id.

Art. 4679. Who made party defendant.—Any person, company, corporation or association of persons who may so use, or be about to use, or who may aid or assist in any such actual or threatened use, of such place, room, premises, building or part thereof, or any person who may have, possess or manage for any such purpose any intoxicating liquor, or who may aid or assist another in thus possessing, having or maintaining or managing intoxicating liquor for such purpose, may be made a party defendant to such suit. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4680. By whom prosecuted.—The attorney general and the several district and county attorneys shall institute and prosecute all such injunction suits that the said attorney general or district or county attorney may deem necessary; provided, that such suit may be brought and prosecuted by any one of said officers; and provided, further, that nothing contained herein shall prevent said injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name, and any such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by reason of the matters and things of which he complains. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4681. Same proceedings as in other cases, except.—The procedure in all cases brought hereunder shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, or where injunction is sought, as near as may be; provided, that where the suit is brought in the name of the state by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition therefor need not be verified, nor shall the state be required to pay or give security for costs or on appeal; and appeal by the state shall be perfected by giving notice thereof in open court, and all such cases shall have precedence on the docket of all courts where pending. [Id. sec. 14.]

Application.—The application of this law is not restricted to local option laws proper (Arts. 5715-5730), but the law is a cumulative remedy, and applies in any prescribed territory, without regard to the method by which laws inhibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors are enacted or put in operation. Paul v. State, 48 C. A. 25, 196 S. W. 452.
Art. 4682. General reputation evidence.—In any proceeding under the provisions of the three preceding articles evidence of the general reputation of the house, place, building, premises or part thereof, or of the business, occupation or pursuit of the defendant involved, may be admitted in evidence as tending to prove the allegations of the complaint; provided, that in any investigation no person shall be exempt from giving testimony therein, but the testimony given by a witness shall not be used against him in any criminal action or proceeding, nor shall any criminal action or proceeding be brought against such witness on account of any testimony so given by him. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4683. Injunction against soliciting orders in local option districts.—The actual, threatened or contemplated pursuit of any such business mentioned in articles 7479 and 7480 of the title, "Taxation," in any local option territory, by any person or firm or association of persons or corporations, without there having first been procured a license therefor as provided in said articles, shall be enjoined at the suit of the state at the instigation of either the county or district attorney, or at the suit of any individual citizen of the county where the business is, or is about to be, pursued; and it shall not be necessary for any citizen to show that he has any pecuniary interest involved; and the state shall not be required to give security for cost, and all the rules of evidence, practice and procedure that pertain to courts of equity generally, or that exist by virtue of any law of this state, may be invoked and applied in any injunction proceeding instituted hereunder. [Acts 1909, p. 53, sec. 6.]

Art. 4684. Injunction against sale of non-intoxicating liquors without license.—The actual, threatened or contemplated pursuit of any such business mentioned in article 7476 of the title, "Taxation," by any such person or firm or association of persons or corporations, without there having first been procured a license therefor as provided in said article, shall be enjoined at the suit of the state at the instigation of either the county or district attorney, or at the suit of any individual citizen of the county where the business is, or is about to be, pursued; and it shall not be necessary for any citizen to show that he has any pecuniary interest involved, and the state shall not be required to give security for cost, and all the rules of evidence, practice and procedure that pertain to courts of equity generally, or that exist by virtue of any law of this state, may be invoked and applied in any injunction proceeding instituted hereunder. [Acts 1909, p. 51. Amended Acts 1909, 2 S. S. p. 397.]

Art. 4685. Use of premises for gaming enjoined.—The habitual use, actual, threatened or contemplated, use of any premises, place, building or part thereof, for the purpose of gaming or of keeping or exhibiting games prohibited by the laws of this state, shall be enjoined at the suit either of the state or of any citizen thereof. [Acts 1905, p. 372.]

Application.—This law only applies to those who own or have some control over the premises where the gambling is carried on. Ex parte Garza, 50 Cr. R. 106, 95 S. W. 1060, 1061.

Who may bring suit.—A gambling house is, under the statute, a nuisance, and may be enjoined at the instance of any one injured thereby. Ex parte Allison, 48 Cr. R. 534, 90 S. W. 492, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 622, 13 Ann. Cas. 634.

Petition.—See for petition to enjoin the use of premises for gaming held to be sufficient, Cain v. State ex rel., 106 S. W. 770.

Verification of petition.—In a suit to enjoin an incorporated club from selling intoxicating liquors and keeping a place for the purpose of gaming, and for a forfeiture of its franchise, the petition, alleging the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors and the keeping of a place for gaming, need not be verified by affidavit; the provisions relating to quo warranto not requiring verification, and Art. 4675 and this article expressly waiving the requirement of verification in petitions for injunctions to restrain such acts. Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Art. 4686. Parties and proceedings.—Any person who may so use, or who may be about to use, or who may aid or abet any other person in the use of any premises, place or building or part thereof, may be made a party defendant in such suit. [Id. sec. 1.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 4688.
Application.—See notes under Art. 4688.

Art. 4687. Suits, by whom instituted.—The attorney general and the several district and county attorneys shall institute and prosecute all suits under the two preceding articles that said attorney general or such district or county attorney may deem necessary to enjoin such use; provided, that such suit may be brought and prosecuted by any one of said officers; and provided, further, that nothing in the above proviso contained shall prevent such injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name, and such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by the acts complained of. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4688. Procedure in other injunction cases.—The procedure in all cases brought hereunder shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as near as may be; provided, that when the suit is brought in the name of the state by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4689. Use of premises for bawdy houses enjoined.—The habitual, actual, threatened or contemplated use of any premises, place, building or part thereof, for the purpose of keeping, being interested in, aiding or abetting the keeping of a bawdy or disorderly house, shall be enjoined at the suit of either the state or any citizen thereof. Any person who may use, or who may be about to use, or who may aid or abet any other person in the use of any premises, place or building or part thereof, may be made a party defendant in such suit; provided, that the provisions of this and the succeeding article shall not apply to nor be so construed as to interfere with the control and regulation of bawds and bawdy houses by ordinances of incorporated towns and cities acting under special charters and where the same are actually confined by ordinance of such city within a designated district of such city. [Acts 1907, p. 246.]

Bawdy houses.—This article makes bawdyhouses, except those regulated by ordinances of incorporated towns and cities acting under special charters, nuisances, subject to be abated by injunction at the suit of the state or any citizen; and such right may be limited as is done in the proviso. Spence v. Fenchler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094.

Adequacy of legal remedy.—The fact that the remedy by criminal prosecution for keeping a bawdy or disorderly house is adequate held not ground for refusing an injunction as provided for by Acts 30th Leg. p. 246, c. 122. Clopton v. State (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 994.

Art. 4690. By whom brought; proceedings as in other injunction cases.—The attorney general and the several district and county attorneys shall institute and prosecute all suits that said attorney general or such district or county attorney may deem necessary to enjoin such use; provided, that such suit may be brought and prosecuted by any one of such officers; and provided, further, that nothing in the above proviso contained shall prevent such injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name; and such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by the acts complained of; and the procedure in all cases brought hereunder shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as near as may be; provided, that, when the suit is brought in the name of the state by any of the officers aforesaid, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id.]

See Spence v. Fenchler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1094; and see notes under Art. 4642.

Petition.—A petition to restrain the use of a disorderly house sufficiently describes the premises by stating that the house is situated on the north side of a designated street in the town, and giving the name by which the locality is generally known. Lane v. Bell, 53 C. A. 213, 116 S. W. 918.

Appeal.—In case of an appeal from an order granting an injunction to restrain one from keeping a disorderly house, the court of appeals will not consider an answer filed to the merits after issuance of the writ, since it was not before the trial judge. Jelinick v. State, 52 C. A. 492, 115 S. W. 909.
Art. 4691. Bucket shops may be enjoined.—The habitual use, actual, threatened or contemplated, of any premises, place or building, for carrying on bucket shops, as defined in the penal laws of this state, or the habitual use by or permitting to remain in any bucket shop as defined, any telegraph or telephone wires or instruments, actual or threatened, under circumstances prohibited by the penal laws of this state, shall be enjoined at the suit of either the state or any citizen thereof. [Acts 1907, p. 172, sec. 11.]

Art. 4692. Who may enjoin.—The attorney general or the several district and county attorneys shall prosecute all suits deemed by them necessary to enjoin such use; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent such injunction from issuing at the suit of any citizen of this state who may sue in his own name, and such citizen shall not be required to show that he is personally injured by the acts complained of. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4693. Procedure as in other cases.—The procedure in all cases brought under the two preceding articles of this chapter shall be the same as in other suits for injunction, as near as may be; provided, that when such suit is brought by any district or county attorney or by the attorney general, the petition for injunction need not be verified. [Id. sec. 13.]
INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—Actions for

[See Limitations. See Arts. 1838, 1895, 5696-6418.]

Art. 4694. Action for injuries resulting in death, brought when.

1. Right of action in general.
2. Conflict of laws.
3. Jurisdiction—Actions under laws of other state or foreign country.
4. Construction of statute as to carriers and railroads included.
5. "Another" defined.
7. "Passenger" defined.
8. "Person" defined.
10. — Officers.
12. Negligence of electric and telephone companies.
13. Negligence of owner or landlord of building.
15. Liability for act of agent or employé.
17. — Children.
18. — Imputed negligence.
19. — Necessity of pleading.
22. — Who are.
23. Assumption of risk.

Art. 4695. Character of wrongful act.

25. Nominal damages.
26. Exemplary damages.
27. Measure and amount of damages.
28. — Inadequate damages.
29. — Excessive damages.

46. — Negligence.
47. — Contributory negligence.
48. Instructions.
49. Questions for jury.
50. Harmless error.
1. Right of action in general.—The action accrues when the death is instantaneous.

If one whose mental faculties are suspended by intoxicating drink is induced by another, by wager or otherwise, to continue to swallow spirituous liquor to such excess as manifestly to endanger his life, and he dies therefrom, he who thus takes advantage of his intoxication and drunken condition is liable in damages to the surviving husband, wife, children and parents of the deceased. McCue v. Klein, 60 T. 168, 45 Am. Rep. 260.

Where a brakeman on defendant's train killed plaintiff's son, a trespasser on the train, and threw his body under the wheels, the mutilation of the body did not constitute a cause of action apart from the killing. Houston & T. Cent. R. Co. v. Bowen, 38 C. A. 165, 81 S. W. 80.

Where death is the result of two concurrent causes, it is not essential that both should be negligence in him, who put in operation, and his negligence in either is sufficient to render him liable. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Higgins, 44 C. A. 525, 99 S. W. 200.

To sustain an action by a widow for herself and as next friend for her minor children for the unlawful killing of her husband, held only necessary to show an unlawful killing of decedent by defendant. Gray v. Phillips, 54 C. A. 148, 117 S. W. 870.

The right of action to recover is wholly statutory. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks, 104 T. 320, 137 S. W. 1120.

Though General Provisions, § 3, provides that the rule that statutes in derogation of the common law shall be construed strictly shall not apply, but the statutes shall be liberally construed to effect their objects, a right of action for negligent death of a servant must be founded on a statute fairly construed. Id.

Under this article an action against a telephone company for the death of the wife of a subscriber does not lie where the death was the result of natural causes, but the company failed to provide a communication between the subscriber and a physician, which indirectly prevented the wife from receiving medical attention which might have saved her life, since the contingency is too remote on which to base an action based on breach of contract. Dewees v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 732.

Right of action against a private corporation for wrongful death exists only under this article. Williams v. Coca-Cola Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 758.

Under this article and Article 4665, an action cannot be maintained, unless decedent could have maintained an action for damages for his injury, had he not died therefrom, so that a guardian of infants could not maintain an action for damages to the infants for the wrongful murder of their mother by her husband, since the mother could not have maintained an action against defendant, her husband, had she survived. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 322.

At common law one cannot maintain an action for damages for wrongfully causing the death of a third person, though murder was committed in causing the death so as to subject defendant to a prosecution. Id.

2. Conflict of laws.—The rule that the right to recover damages resulting from personal injuries is governed by the law of the place where the injury was received held to apply to actions to recover for injuries causing death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1165.

3. Jurisdiction—Actions under laws of other state or foreign country.—See notes under Art. 1712.

4. Construction of statute as to carriers and railroads included.—This article includes street railroads. Bammell v. Kirby, 19 C. A. 198, 47 S. W. 392.

This article is intended to apply to common carriers, and does not apply to tram railroads owned and operated by private individuals on their own premises for private purposes. Ott v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 534.

Denial by the supreme court of a writ of error to review a decision of the court of civil appeals, adjudging that a logging road of a lumber company is a "railroad" within this article, is a decision of the supreme court that such road is a railroad, and the decision of the court of civil appeals on a subsequent appeal, and the court will not certify the question to the supreme court. Rice & Lyon v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 961.

Subdivision 1 of this article applies to carriers transporting persons or freight from some point of origin to some more or less distant point of destination, and does not apply to an elevator in an office building used to transport persons visiting the building; the words "other vehicle" meaning a vehicle performing, substantially at least, the same office and serving the same necessities as a railroad, steamboat, or steamship. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks, 104 T. 320, 137 S. W. 1120, reversing (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 147.

A logging railroad, owned and operated by a lumber company solely in its own business, is a railroad within this article. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Sup.) 125 S. W. 179.

5. "Another" defined.—The word "another," used in the second clause, refers to another person as a class of persons similar to that whose death is occasioned. Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 455, 20 S. W. 1029.

The word "another," as used in this article means another person, and includes private corporations. Williams v. Coca-Cola Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 759.

6. "Any railroad" defined.—The words "a railroad" in Art. 6640 are used in the same sense as the words "any railroad" in this article, and the latter repel the idea that a par

cicular class of railroads was not intended to be included, and persons not common carriers are liable for damages caused by operating railroads. Ludwick Timber Co. v. Taylor, 39 C. A. 302, 87 S. W. 359.

7. "Passenger" defined.—The shipper of cattle in charge of the same, riding on the freight train without charge, is a passenger. Railway Co. v. Alken, 71 T. 375, 9 S. W. 457.

8. Person defined. The word "person" means a natural person, and not an artificial person, such as a corporation. Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 455, 29 S. W. 1039.

A private corporation is a "person," within this article. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Palz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

9. Negligence of municipal corporation.—An action for damages does not lie in favor of any person of whose death of which a child was caused by the negligence or wrongful act of a municipal corporation. Sealright v. City of Austin ( Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 857.

10. Officers.—If city authorities cause the removal of a person afflicted with a contagious disease, and in doing so fail to exercise the care and prudence demanded, and cause death, they are responsible, though acting under a city ordinance. Aaron v. Broyles, 64 T. 316, 53 Am. Rep. 764.

Gross negligence is that entire want of care which would raise a presumption of a conscious indifference to consequences. Railway Co. v. Beeman, 74 T. 291, 11 S. W. 1102.

It is gross negligence to run an engine across a public street at a speed of fifteen miles an hour, contrary to ordinance, and without giving signals. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 21 S. W. 424, 2 C. A. 281.

Where deceased was killed in a collision, and the defense was that the air brake on defendant's train failed to work, held not error to charge that if, by reasonable care, defendant had stopped by other means, he would not have been negligent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ransom, 15 C. A. 689, 41 S. W. 826.

The fact that the hospital department is operated in connection with the claim and legal department for the benefit and profit of the railroad company, and as an essential department of the same, brings into existence a partnership between the hospital and the railroad company. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Freeman ( Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 643.

A railroad company established a hospital and contracted with its employes, in consideration of a monthly sum contributed out of their wages, to furnish them when sick or injured surgical and medical attention. One of its servants was injured and went to this hospital for treatment. There he was brought in contact with persons having smallpox, but left the hospital. The disease was developed on him, and he returned to his work for the railroad company. The smallpox soon developed upon him, and he was placed in a pesthouse under the control of a local surgeon in the employment of the company. The surgeon employed an incompetent and irresponsible person and put him in charge of the smallpox patients. The person left the camp which had disinfected his clothing, went upon the streets of a town, and met and communicated the disease to another person, who died. The railroad company was not liable for the death thus caused, as the negligence of the surgeon could not be regarded as the negligence of the road itself under subdivision 2 of this article, and the first subdivision does not apply because the maintenance of the hospital where the disease was contracted is not peculiar to the carrier's business, but merely collateral thereto. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Freeman, 74 S. W. 294, 1 Ann. Cas. 481.

Failure of a railroad company to exercise ordinary care in moving its train into a depot, by reason of which deceased was struck and killed, held actionable negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 41 C. A. 51, 90 S. W. 926.

The death of person sitting for railroad track where, when the trainmen discovered the object as they did not recognize it as a human being. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McMillan, 100 T. 662, 102 S. W. 103.

A railroad company held not liable for standing on the track, in the absence of something indicating to the trainmen that he was unable to leave or that he would not do so. Id.

In an action for the death of a person killed by a locomotive, duty of the engineer upon discovering the person's peril held to be to use every means at hand consistent with the safety of the train to avoid the injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Munn, 46 C. A. 276, 102 S. W. 442.

The maintenance of a cut and dump by a railroad 600 feet from a crossing was not negligence for failing to provide for its being visible at the crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bratcher, 64 C. A. 10, 118 S. W. 1091.

Maintenance by railroad company of tower house of interlocking plant held not negligence constituting independent ground of recovery for death at crossing. Id.

Defendant is not liable for negligence of a railroader occurring in or was directly connected with operating the road. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. McSween ( Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 139.

12. Negligence of electric and telephone companies.—Persons dealing with electric, and failing to exercise proper care to see that their plant is properly constructed, are responsible for damages resulting therefrom, though the plant itself is operated by their employes. Cole v. Parker, 27 C. A. 563, 68 S. W. 135.

An electric company and a telephone company held jointly liable for a death occurring to a death of a person who was attached to the electric company's pole by the telephone company, and allowed to remain in a dangerous position by both companies. San Marcos Electric Light & Power Co. v. Compton, 48 C. A. 586, 107 S. W. 1151.

An electric light company held not liable for the death of a trespasser through coming in contact with a live wire, charged through the failure of the company to

Under this article an electric company furnishing light to an employer is liable for the death of an employee of such employer occasioned by the electric company's negligence in permitting its light wires to become heavily charged with electricity and then permitting the employer's plant to be charged with electricity, by coming in contact with which the employé is killed. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 64 C. A. 367, 118 S. W. 842.

An electric company permitting an uncovered guy wire stretched over the roof of a building to become charged with electricity, in violation of ordinance, held liable for death of a person resulting therefrom. Burnett v. Ft. Worth Light & Power Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 175.

Decent's husband and children held not entitled to recover from a telephone company for her death, through the company breaking a general contract for telephone service, resulting in a delay in procuring a physician. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Solomon, 54 C. A. 396, 117 S. W. 214.

This article does not authorize an action for death caused by the failure of a telephone company to provide a way of communication between a subscriber and a physician to attend the wife of the subscriber suffering from a disease resulting in her death, for want of medical attention. Dewees v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 732.

13. Negligence of owner or landlord of building.—The owner of a defective hotel building held liable for the death of one killed, where he was lawfully on such premises. Texas Loan Agency v. Fleming, 18 C. A. 688, 46 S. W. 63.

A landlord held not liable for the death of a third person by falling through an unguarded door on an upper story of the premises. Texas Loan Agency v. Fleming, 92 T. 468, 49 S. W. 1039, 44 L. R. A. 279.

14. Negligence of master.—Employer held not to have furnished deceased employé with safe place to work. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626.

A master held not liable for the death of his servant by reason of his failure to provide a watchman to look out for engines entering the factory yard. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns, 95 T. 573, 74 S. W. 758.

A master held not liable for the death of his servant by his failure to enact rules for the safety of his employés. Id.

Under this article a right of action exists in favor of a wife and children against a lumber company for the death of the husband and father, alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendant, if the negligence upon which the suit is predicated is the personal negligence of defendant. The basis of the action in this case is the negligence of the company, the employer of the deceased, in failing to keep a railway track in repair. Both being appliances of which the deceased was required to make use in the performance of his duties. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 612.

Where defendant required deceased to go on top of certain tanks belonging to another, it was defendant's duty either to see that the tanks were properly constructed, or to warn deceased of their improper construction. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 332.

Death of employé struck by hoisting bucket held caused by the negligence of a vice principal who directed another employé to signal the engineer to permit the bucket to drop without warning the employé or ascertaining whether he was in a position of danger. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 197.

15. Liability for act of agent or employé.—Where the agent of an express company and the railway men in the depot at the place the purpose, and they kill a person under the assumption that he is attempting to commit a burglary, the company is not liable for damages for the death, since it is not alleged that the company is the proprietor, etc., of a railroad, and the death was not the result of its own wrongful act or omission. Kirby Co. v. Lipscomb & T. C. Ry. Co. 72 S. W. 75.

A party is not liable for the act or omission of his agents, causing death, but death must result from his own immediate act or omission, etc. If one is negligent in seeing that an electric plant is properly constructed before it is operated, then if an injury occurs, it is his immediate act, or rather his omission, though the plant was operated by his employés. Cole v. Parker, 27 C. A. 563, 66 S. W. 136.

The proprietor of an eating house is not responsible for the shooting by its agent of a patron, where the agent was not acting in any matter relating to his duties. Lytle v. Crescent News & Hotel Co., 27 C. A. 530, 66 S. W. 249.

Under this article one's liability for damages arises from his own wrongful act, negligence, unskilfulness or default, and not from any negligence on the part of an employé. Where the negligence of an employé concurs in causing the injury, but it could not have been avoided without the negligence of the employer, then the latter is just as liable as if there had been no concurrence. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 35 C. A. 558, 80 S. W. 1034.

Where a railway brakeman, after having killed a trespasser on the train, threw the body on the tracks to conceal the crime, the railway company was not liable for the mutilation of the body. Houston & T. Cent. R. Co. v. Bowen, 36 C. A. 155, 81 S. W. 80.

Where a brakeman on a freight train had authority to eject a trespasser, and in so doing shot and killed him, the railroad company was liable therefor. Id.

That a killing by a servant may be intentional and yet the result of his negligence, is within the statute. When the death is produced through the negligence in any recognized form, as a proximate cause, the statute applies. Any act which is merely rash, reckless, or wanton, as distinguished from intentional, or made without regard to consequences, is negligent. Id.
A railroad held liable under the statute for death caused by the negligence of its servants, though the servant intentionally does the act which is the proximate cause of death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Currie, 100 T. 136, 98 S. W. 1073, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 367.

Under this article an electric company is responsible for the negligence of its employees in leaving high voltage wires uninsulated, which results in the death of an employee. San Antonio Gas & Electric Co. v. Bodders, 46 C. A. 550, 103 S. W. 230, 231.

Under this article a party is not liable for the act or omission of his agents causing death, but death must result from his own immediate act or omission. Williams v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 125.

The proprietor, owner, charter or hirer of any railroad, or the receiver or other person in charge of any railroad, is liable for the death of person caused by the negligence of a servant or agent when such railroad is not used as a common carrier, but merely as an incident to the principal business. Kirby Lumber Co.'s Receivers v. Owens, 56 C. A. 370, 120 S. W. 936.

If a servant's death resulted from the negligence of the employer's agent placed in charge of its plant to control and direct the employés, the act of such servant would be the employer's act so as to make it liable. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 852.

The negligent failure of an employé of a corporation operating a electric light plant and using wires for the distribution of dangerous currents of electricity to inspect the appliances resulting in the death of a person by electric shock from a broken wire, is negligence of the corporation, and it is liable within subdivision 2 of this article. Jacksonville Ice & Electric Co. v. Moses (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 379.

Any negligence of a physician employed to treat a lumber company's employés' families held not chargeable to this company. Cameron v. C. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 139.

Under this article one maintaining a swimming pool for the use of the public, in which plaintiff's minor son was drowned, was only liable for his own negligence in failing to provide sufficient competent attendants to guard against such occurrences, but was not liable for the attendants' negligence, if any, in being late in reaching the shore. Levinskyl v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 959.

Under this article plaintiff cannot recover in the absence of proof that decedent was employed by the general manager, the only person for whose negligence the corporation would be liable, and in the absence of proof that the general manager negligently set decedent at work without warning. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp, 105 T. 130, 146 S. W. 902.

16. Contributory negligence.—Intoxication, when contributing to personal injury, is chargeable as negligence. Railway Co. v. Evans, 71 T. 361, 9 S. W. 325, 1 L. R. A. 479.

Contributory negligence does not result from a wrongful act, but from an intervening cause, such as the negligence of the party injured, a railroad company is not liable therefor. Railway Co. v. Chambers, 73 T. 296, 11 S. W. 279.

Where there are concurrent causes of an injury, each of which contributed thereto, the fact that one of the causes might have been avoided by the plaintiff, or that with reference to it he might have been guilty of contributory negligence, will not exempt the company as to the other cause. Railway Co. v. Shearer, 1 C. A. 343, 21 S. W. 133.

A person is guilty of contributory negligence who attempts to cross a railroad at a street crossing, is looking for trains, and is killed by a train which he might have seen if he had looked. Railway Co. v. Brown, 21 S. W. 424, 2 C. A. 381.

The fact that the engine was running at a rapid rate would not excuse want of care on the part of deceased. Id.

Contributory negligence for the death of one riding on its train in violation of a regulation of which reasonable publicity has been given, although the rule has at various times been violated. Railway Co. v. Lynch, 28 S. W. 262, 8 C. A. 515.

As to contributory negligence, see Railway Co. v. Lively, 14 C. A. 554, 38 S. W. 370; Railway Co. v. Griffin, 13 C. A. 508, 36 S. W. 1065.

Woman driving gentle horse over crossing obstructed by defendant, and killed by being thrown from the wagon after her horse had become frightened at the obstruction, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Bridges, 10 C. A. 194, 40 S. W. 536.

In an action for the death of a traveler at a highway crossing, held, that the deceased was guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Polk (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 343.

Where deceased was run over by a train in a place used by the public as a street, he was not a trespasser or guilty of contributory negligence by reason of being there. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matthews, 34 C. A. 302, 79 S. W. 71.

In an action against a railroad for the death of an employé of another railroad in an employing a railroad, deceased held not guilty of contributory negligence. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Murtile, 49 C. A. 273, 108 S. W. 988.

That a pedestrian was guilty of contributory negligence on a railroad track held not to preclude recovery for his death. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gullett (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 562.

A boy 10 years old, killed by a railroad train, held not chargeable with contributory negligence. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Abernathy, 28 C. A. 613, 68 S. W. 539.

A boy, 16 years of age and familiar with railroading, killed while riding on one of defendant's freight trains in violation of a rule of the company, held guilty of contributory negligence. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 35 C. A. 136, 79 S. W. 1101.

18. Imputed negligence.—The contributory negligence of the husband cannot be imputed to the wife by being injured by a collision with the train with the wagon driven by him. Railway Co. v. Kutac, 76 T. 473, 18 S. W. 327.

In a mother's action for death of a son at a railroad crossing, she is not bound by the negligence of one to whom she did not intrust the child. Taylor, B. & H. R. Co. v. Warner (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 442.

19. Necessity of pleading.—See notes at end of Chapter 8, Title 77.

20. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—Negligence of the injured party does not prevent recovery if the accident could have been avoided by use of reasonable care by the defendant. Railway Co. v. Farrell (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 942.

A railroad company held liable for the death of a trespasser on its train where it could have prevented or lessened the accident. De Palacios v. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 612.

Where a boy killed by defendant's train was discovered in his perilous position by defendant's servants in time to have possibly prevented his death, a judgment for negligence causing the death should be sustained, though he was also negligent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Halton (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 800.

Railway Co. v. A. walking on a railroad track was guilty of contributory negligence. It was necessary in order to recover for the death to prove that after the operations of the train discovered that deceased was in danger they failed to use all means at hand to stop the train. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Floege (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 56.

A railroad company is liable for the death of a pedestrian at a street crossing, though he be negligent in exposing himself to injury, if the employes in charge of the train knew of his peril in time to avoid his injury by the use of means and agencies at hand. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 584.

21. Fellow servants.—Negligence of an employe, caused by the negligence of a fellow employe, not occupying the position of principal, is not maintainable under subdivision 2 of this article. Bledsoe v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 910.

22. Who are.—See notes under Art. 6642.

23. Assumption of risk.—An employe assumes capacity to perform labor where the danger is patent. Eddy v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 295, citing Railway Co. v. French, 22 S. W. 644, 26 T. 96; Railway Co. v. Lemp, 59 T. 22; Railway Co. v. Tarver, 72 T. 360, 11 S. W. 1043; Railway Co. v. Hester, 64 T. 403.

One voluntarily exposing himself to an apparent danger of injury assumes the risk. Bonnet v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 826.

One, having the time and opportunity to learn of the condition of a lodging house as to fire escapes, by voluntarily remaining in the building assumed the danger of any failure to provide adequate escapes. Radley v. Knepany (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 447.

In an action for death from electric shock, held that the doctrine of assumed risk was not applicable. Electric Light Co. v. Halliburton, 86 S. W. 584.

The death of two or more concurrent causes, each must be a prominent efficient cause; for, if one of the alleged causes operates slightly with another, which is the prominent efficient cause, then proximate cause of death should be traced to the latter. Ellyson v. International & G. N. R. Co., 33 C. A. 1, 78 S. W. 668.

Where intestate's horse was frightened by the blowing off of steam from defendant's engine after deceased had gotten control of him, deceased's previous negligence in getting into the buggy held not the proximate cause of his death. Hord v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 33 C. A. 163, 76 S. W. 227.

Negligence of defendant in obstructing a street by a gangway held proximate cause of death of plaintiff's husband, notwithstanding intervening act of defendant's servant in running a truck down the gangway. Shippers' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 35 C. A. 558, 80 S. W. 1932.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of one struck by a train, the negligence of an employe held the proximate cause of decedent's death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 49.

If injuries received by decedent, through defendant's negligence, developed tuberculosis in decedent and minor children could recover, although she was predisposed to tuberculosis and died therefrom. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Groner, 51 C. A. 96, 111 S. W. 667.

The death of a servant, caused by the falling of a pile of cotton seed, held not the result of the action of gravity on the pile, but of the nonperformance of the duty of the master to protect him. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Currier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

In an action for death of a pedestrian, defendant's negligence in failing to discover and guard against decedent's peril and not his contributory negligence in walking on the track held the proximate cause of his death. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Broomhead (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 820.

26. Exemplary damages.—See notes under Art. 4696.

27. Measure and amount of damages.—Measure of damages resulting to the husband or children is as defined in the Railway Co. v. Southwick (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 692. Measure of damages for personal injuries not resulting in death, see Railway Co. v. Bowlin (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 918; Farrar v. Beeman, 63 T. 180; Railway Co. v. Curry, 64 T. 86; Railway Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 257; Railway Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 111; Railway Co. v. Muth, 7 T. C. A. 448, 27 S. W. 784; Mo., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 771.

In an action by the widow and children of the deceased for his death, the measure of damages was defined. Louisiana Western Extenal R. Co. v. Carstens, 19 C. A. 190, 47 S. W. 36.

In action for death, the measure of damages is the value of decedent's life "to the plaintiffs." Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson, 27 C. A. 420, 66 S. W. 72.

The statute relating to wrongful death does not limit the damages which may be awarded to children of the deceased to such as accrue during their minority. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Puente, 30 C. A. 246, 70 S. W. 52.

Damages for a wife and mother's wrongful death cannot be estimated with exactness, so that the amount is left to the jury's discretion. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

28. Inadequate damages.—A verdict of $500 for negligently killing plaintiff's husband, who was 28 years old, in perfect health, constantly employed, and contributed $300 per year for her support, held inadequate. Burns v. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. 26 C. A. 223, 62 S. W. 1027.

29. Excessive damages.—Verdicts for the following amounts have been sustained:

Verdicts for the following amounts held to be excessive:

Verdicts were held to be excessive: In an action by parents for the negligent death of their son, Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 541. And in an action by a child for the death of his father, Freeman v. Griewe (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 730.

30. Mitigation or reduction of damages.—Insurance money payable on an accident policy will not be set off against the damage caused by the negligent act of another, resulting in death. Tyler & S. E. Ry. Co. v. Rasberry, 13 C. A. 185, 34 S. W. 794.

Where the wife was killed in the negligence of the defendant, the subsequent marriage of the husband does not in any manner operate to mitigate the damages for which the wrongdoer was responsible. Railway Co. v. Younger, 90 T. 387, 35 S. W. 121.

Insurance on life of deceased is not to be considered in estimating the damages. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 846.

In an action by the wife for damages for the death of her husband, evidence that she obtained insurance money after his death is inadmissible in mitigation of damages. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cody, 20 C. A. 529, 50 S. W. 135.

That decedent's life was insured, and that plaintiffs would be entitled to collect the policy was no ground or reducing the damages allowable on account of his death. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemair, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

The wife of a husband for whom the insurance damages for the unlawful shooting and killing of her husband, evidence of the husband's abandonment of the wife is admissible on the issue of plaintiff's pecuniary damages. Holland v. Closs, 146 S. W. 671.

In the action by a wife for damages for the unlawful shooting and killing of her husband, the evidence of improper relations and the conduct of defendant with the daughter of defendant were admissible in mitigation of exemplary damages only. Id.

31. Elements of compensation—in general.—In an action by a wife for the wrongful death of her husband, the jury may give such damages as they think proportioned to the injury resulting from his death. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Loefler (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 236.

In an action for the negligent killing of plaintiffs' husband and father, plaintiffs are not entitled to recover a sum equal to all the benefits that would have been received from their deceased, in the future, had he not been killed. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Sivells, 28 C. A. 497, 67 S. W. 517.

The persons given a right for action for wrongful death by the statute held only entitled to recover damages upon showing actual damage sustained. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

32.—Loss of pecuniary benefits.—In an action for death of plaintiff's husband, she could recover the pecuniary damages sustained, and the measure was the probable amount that he would have contributed to her support. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Hines (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 152.

Adult children held not restricted to a recovery only for the loss of such pecuniary benefits from the death of their mother as would have resulted from her mental and bodily labor. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Long, 19 C. A. 649, 48 S. W. 599.

Measure of damages is a sum equal to the pecuniary benefit plaintiffs would have had had they been reasonably certain of receiving from deceased. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hughes, 22 C. A. 134, 54 S. W. 264.

In action for death of son, the parents are entitled to recover only the "present value" of such benefit that they might have received, and not the sum total thereof. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 931.

In an action for wrongful death, the measure of damages is such a sum of money as, if paid now, would fairly compensate plaintiffs for the pecuniary loss sustained. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Waller, 27 C. A. 44, 65 S. W. 219.

Parents, suing for death of infant son, held entitled to recover pecuniary value of his services to them after majority. Freeman v. Carter, 28 C. A. 571, 67 S. W. 527. Where, in an action for death, there was no evidence of pecuniary loss to decedent's father, finding in his favor was erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 542.

The measure of damages for death by wrongful act is the pecuniary loss sustained by plaintiffs. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brock, 35 C. A. 155, 60 S. W. 422.

In the action of plaintiff's 13-year-old child, plaintiff held entitled to allege and prove that they had a reasonable expectation of receiving pecuniary aid from decedent after he arrived at majority, which was of the value of $5,000. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Snowden, 44 C. A. 508, 59 S. W. 583.

In an action for death, an instruction confining plaintiffs' recovery to loss of pecuniary benefits and defining such term held proper. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rutland, 45 C. A. 621, 101 S. W. 529.

Parents suing for the negligent death of their minor son can only recover the pecuniary benefits they would have received from the son had he lived. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

In an action for wrongful death, recovery is limited to the present value of the pecuniary benefits plaintiffs have a reasonable expectation that decedent would have contributed to them had he lived, and excluding any allowance for grief and loss of society and affection. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1045.

Damages for the death of plaintiff's mother are to be measured by the children's pecuniary loss, and they are not entitled to damages for defendant's negligence inde-Title 70) INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

Art. 4694

A husband held entitled to recover for medical expenses necessarily incurred, in an action for the death of his wife resulting from a carrier's negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin, 32 C. A. 72, 74 S. W. 93.

A private corporation is liable for injuries resulting in death from its own wrongfulness as distinguished from the acts or omissions of its agents. Fleming v. Texas Loan Agency (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 583; Id., 87 T. 238, 27 S. W. 126, 26 L. R. A. 350. See Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 466, 20 S. W. 1029.

A telephone corporation is liable for damages for injuries resulting in death, when the negligence causing the injuries is the negligence of the corporation itself, as distinguished from its agents or servants. Citizens' Telephone Co. v. Thomas, 46 C. A. 20, 99 S. W. 880.

An action can be properly brought against an engineer of a train that runs over and kills a person, if he negligently causes the death. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 48 C. A. 115, 106 S. W. 766.

Under this article only persons and corporations engaged in the business of a common carrier or other corporations are liable for injuries resulting in death which are caused by the negligence of servants or agents. Other character of corporations are only liable for such injuries when they are the result of the negligent act or omission of the corporation, as distinguished from the act or omission of a servant or agent of such corporation. Halbert v. Tex. Tie & Lumber P. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 504.

Under a contract between a railroad company and an express company, the express company has the right to sue the railroad company for the death of a person killed by striking an express truck on a station platform and being dragged from a train and run over. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 971.

A private corporation including one engaged in supplying electricity is within subdivision 13 of this article, and it is liable for an action.
INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

Where a lighting company was directing plumbing being done by an employé of a hardware company, it could not absolve itself from liability for the employé from coming in contact with an electric wire upon the ground that the hardware company was an independent contractor for injury to whose employé it was not liable. Texas Traction Co. v. George (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 435.

An action for damages cannot be maintained against a receiver after his discharge. Railway Co. v. Wyile (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 771.

An action cannot be maintained against a receiver of a private corporation for death caused by his negligence. Parker v. Dupree, 28 C. A. 341, 67 S. W. 186.

39. Defenses.—The apprehension which moved defendant to shoot deceased in self-defense must be judged from the standpoint in which defendant was at the time. Croft v. Smith (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1089.

Where the evidence shows that the killing was intentional, to escape liability the defendant must show that it was done under a reasonable apprehension of fear of death or serious bodily harm. Id.

In an action for damages by a railroad company for death of a railway employee, the defendant's use of the railroad bridge in not a public bridge does not relieve the company from liability for the killing of a child thereon, resulting from an engineer's negligence in failing to see the child. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Harby, 28 C. A. 24, 67 S. W. 641.

That employés operating a work train had no knowledge of the dangerous position of a child on the train, or not to relieve the company from liability for his death. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Abernathy, 28 C. A. 113, 68 S. W. 539.

In an action by a posthumous child for the recovery of damages sustained by reason of his father's death caused by defendant's negligence, the fact that the mother and other children have recovered damages for such death is immaterial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Contreras, 31 C. A. 489, 72 S. W. 1051.

That death caused by turning a current of compressed air on a person could not be foreseen held not to affect liability thereafter. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Currie (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1100.

A defendant held not entitled to the perfect right of self-defense, and was liable to the widow and children of decedent for killing him. Gray v. Phillips, 64 C. A. 148, 117 S. W. 870.

40. Release.—In a suit brought under this article, if the injured party make a settlement with the wrongdoer, and for a valuable consideration releases the latter from liability for all injuries received through his negligence, and subsequently dies from the effects of such injury, an action by the wife and children of the deceased for damages on account of the death is barred by the release. Thompson v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 97 T. 596, 80 S. W. 991, 1 Ann. Cas. 231; Blount v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 305.

A release held not a bar to an action by a widow for the negligent death of her husband Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 607.

A release of all claim for damages which the releasor shall or may have sustained by reason of personal injuries on a certain date while in defendant's employment, executed voluntarily and with the same knowledge and means of knowledge of the extent of his injuries which defendant had, cannot be avoided because the parties were mistaken as to the extent of the injuries, which were greater than believed. San Antonio & N. R. Ry. Co. v. Zepeda, 57 S. W. 526, 124 S. W. 226.

41. Limitations.—See Title 77, Chapter 3.

42. Pleadings of plaintiff.—See notes under Art. 1327.

43. Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 2697.

44. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—The jury can estimate the damages to the parent from the negligent killing of a child upon evidence of his health, strength, aptitude or willingness to perform service, the reasonable benefit resulting therewith, etc., without the use of a definite sum by a witness. Railway Co. v. Cowser, 57 T. 304; Railway Co. v. Kindred, 57 T. 505; Winn v. Railway Co., 74 T. 32, 11 S. W. 907; March v. Walker, 48 T. 375; Brunswig v. White, 70 T. 504, 8 S. W. 35; Railway Co. v. Measles, 11 T. 474, 17 S. W. 124.

In an action by adult children against a railroad company for the death of their mother, held, that the evidence showed a loss of service of pecuniary value. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Long, 19 C. A. 649, 48 S. W. 599.

Evidence considered, and held sufficient to justify the damages awarded by verdict. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. French (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 562.

Evidence considered, and held sufficient to support a verdict for $1,500 damages for death of plaintiff's son. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Knight (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 440.

A jury may assess the amount a parent may reasonably expect from a son, negligently killed, after his majority, on evidence of good health, etc., without proof of any definite sum. San Antonio Traction Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 323.

That a father contributed different sums at irregular intervals to the support of his married daughter held to support a finding that she was damaged by his wrongful death. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 25 C. A. 204, 60 S. W. 803.

The subsequent use by plaintiff of money paid decedent as a consideration for a release from liability for an accident which caused decedent's death held not conclusive evidence of a ratification of the release. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brantley, 26 C. A. 11, 62 S. W. 94.

Evidence held to show that plaintiffs as subcontractors, and not defendants as owners, of dangerous premises where decedent was killed, were under obligation to have warned decedent. Antonio Queen, Proprietor v. San Antonio, San Antonio & N. R. Ry. Co. 148, 62 S. W. 939.

Facts held to show want of pecuniary interest in decedent's life, so as to preclude plaintiffs' recovery for his negligent death. Id.

In an action for death of plaintiff's mother, evidence held insufficient to show damage. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Folk (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 642. 3165
In an action for killing plaintiffs' decedent by a train while a trespasser on the railroad track, the jury was instructed to return a verdict for plaintiffs unless the evidence sustained the defendant's allegations of contributory negligence. Harris v. Florida Ry. Co. (App.) 64 S. W. 227.

In an action against a railroad company for negligence, causing death of a child attempting to cross the track, evidence held insufficient to support verdict for plaintiff. International & S. Ry. Co. v. Gear, 33 C. A. 492, 77 S. W. 272.

Evidence held not to show that person killed by current of compressed air had participated in an improper use of the air. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Currie (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1300.

A railroad company held not liable, under the facts, for the death of a pedestrian on its track. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Huber (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 568.

In an action against a railroad company for decedent's death by being struck by a train while lying on the track either asleep or drunk, evidence held to present the issues of negligence and of an adequate measure of damages. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Brannon, 43 C. A. 531, 96 S. W. 1905.

In an action for negligent death, the proof held sufficient to authorize plaintiffs to maintain the suit and to authorize the jury to fix the damages. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 48 C. A. 132, 196 S. W. 773.

Evidence, in an action for death, held insufficient to show that one of the plaintiffs was interested in the death of a deceased, so as to authorize a recovery in his favor. St. Louis & S. Ry. Co. v. Simms, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 403.

In an action by parents for the negligent death of a minor son, evidence held to justify a finding that they suffered damages by reason of his death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 541.

A railroad company held not liable, under the facts, for the death of a pedestrian on its track. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Huber (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 568.

In an action against a railroad for the death of its employee, evidence held insufficient to show that railroad's negligence was a proximate cause of the death. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Shoemaker, 98 T. 451, 84 S. W. 1049.

Where the evidence in an action for negligent death did not show the proximate cause of the accident, but left the same open to conjecture, there could be no recovery. Mt. Maron Coal Mining Co. v. Holt, 64 C. A. 411, 118 S. W. 832.

In an action against a railroad company for death claimed to have been caused by failure to provide adequate fire escapes, evidence held to show that the latter did not assume the risk. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 147.

In an action by parents for the death of their son, the evidence held to warrant a finding with approximately reasonable certainty that deceased would have furnished plaintiffs financial aid, and that they were therefore damaged by his death. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Huey (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1017.

Evidence, in an action by a father and married minor children to recover for the wrongful death of their wife and mother, held to show that the married children had no reasonable expectation of financial assistance from their mother. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

45. Proximate cause.—In an action against a railroad for the deaths of persons killed by a train, evidence held insufficient to show that railroad's negligence was the proximate cause of the death. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Shoemaker, 98 T. 451, 84 S. W. 1049.

Where the evidence in an action for negligent death did not show the proximate cause of the accident, but left the same open to conjecture, there could be no recovery. Mt. Maron Coal Mining Co. v. Holt, 64 C. A. 411, 118 S. W. 832.

In an action against a railroad company for death claimed to have been caused by failure to provide adequate fire escapes, evidence held to show such failure was not the proximate cause of decedent's injuries. Radley v. Knepley (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 447.

In an action for wrongful death of a child in a building, evidence considered and held that the violation of an ordinance requiring fire escapes was not the proximate cause of the injury. Radley v. Knepley, 104 T. 130, 138 S. W. 111.

Evidence held to sustain a verdict that defendant railroad company was not negligent primarily proximately resulting in the death of plaintiff's decedents, who were trespassing on the track when killed. Facham v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 511, 118 S. W. 154.
Art. 4694  INJURIES RESULTING IN DEATH—ACTIONS FOR

(TITLE 70)

48. Instructions.—For instructions in general, see notes under Arts. 1970-1972. A charge that is practically in the language of this article and Art. 4704, when no request is made for an additional charge on the subject of the measure of damages, is sufficient and is no ground for reversal. I & G. N. Ry. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 34.

50. Harmless error.—See notes under Arts. 1553, 1628.

Art. 4695. [3018] Character of wrongfull act.—The wrongful act, negligence, carelessness, unskilfulness, or default, mentioned in the preceding article, must be of such a character as would, if death had not ensued, have entitled the party injured to maintain an action for such injury. [Acts 1860, p. 32. Acts 1887, p. 44. Acts 1892, S. S., p. 5.]

Assumption of risk.—See notes under Art. 4694 and Title 116, Chapter 14.

Contributory negligence.—See notes under Art. 4694 and Title 116, Chapter 14.

Damages—Measure of.—See notes under Art. 4694.

Right of action of person injured.—Under this article and Art. 4694, an action cannot be maintained, unless decedent could have maintained an action for damages for his injury, had he himself been an injured person, so that a guardian of his estate could maintain an action for damages to the infants for the wrongful murder of their mother by her husband, since the mother could not have maintained an action against defendant, her husband, had she survived. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 322.

Under this article no action for the wrongful killing of one who lost his life on a railroad can be maintained if the deceased would not have been entitled to maintain an action himself. Sullivan-Banford Lumber Co. v. Watson (Sup.) 155 S. W. 179.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8, Title 37.

Questions for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Art. 4696. [3019] Exemplary damages.—When the death is caused by the wilful act or omission, or gross negligence of the defendant, exemplary as well as actual damages may be recovered. [Const., art. 16, sec. 26.]

In general.—This statute does not in any respect change the well-recognized rules for the determination of the liability of a railway company either to a passenger or an employee. Railway Co. v. Carlton, 60 T. 297.

The right to recover exemplary damages is limited to the surviving husband, widow, children or parents. Winnt v. Railway Co., 74 T. 32, 11 S. W. 907, 5 L. R. A. 173.

Construction of prior act.—The retaining of a servant in its service by the corporation, after it has not been cited to answer a petition, the allegations of which, charging gross negligence, are denied by the servant, will not of itself constitute ratification sufficient to authorize recovery of exemplary damages under this article. McGown v. International & G. N. R. Co., 85 T. 289, 20 S. W. 80.

Right to recover exemplary damages without actual damages.—Under article 16, § 26, of the constitution, exemplary damages for the wilful or negligent commission of a homicide cannot be recovered in cases in which no recovery can be had for actual damages. Rita v. City of Austin, 1 C. A. 455, 20 S. W. 1029.

The doctrine that there can be no exemplary damages without actual damages has not been overthrown, notwithstanding article 16, § 26, of the constitution and this article and Art. 4698 of the statutes. Not even in a case of gross negligence, if the jury find no actual damages, can a finding of exemplary damages be sustained. Adams v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 413, 79 S. W. 80.

This article did not change the common-law rule that exemplary damages cannot be recovered if actual damages were not recovered. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 232.

Art. 4697. [3020] Action commenced without regard to criminal proceedings.—The action may be commenced and prosecuted, although the death shall have been caused under such circumstances as amounts in law to a felony, and without regard to any criminal proceedings that may, or may not, be had in relation to the homicide. [Id.]

Evidence—Admissibility of.—See notes under Art. 3857, Rules 5 and 6.

Persons entitled to sue.—See notes under Art. 4694.

Art. 4698. [3021] For whose benefit action to be brought.—The action shall be for the sole and exclusive benefit of the surviving husband, wife, children and parents of the person whose death shall have been caused, and the amount recovered therein shall not be liable for the debts of the deceased. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 16.]

in general.—As to the construction of this article, see Johnson v. Farmer, 35 S. W. 1063.

Persons entitled to sue.—See Art. 1838.

It is not required that the deceased should have been under any legal obligation to contribute anything of pecuniary value to those to whom the right of action is given, to entitle them to recover. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Van Belle et ux., 26 C. A. 511, 64 S. W. 307.

Any one having right of action may sue for negligent death; but it must appear that the action is brought for the benefit of all. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. of Texas v. Whatley (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 589.

While the statute gives a right of action for death by wrongful act to the persons bearing to decedent the relationships named therein, such persons may only recover upon showing actual injury by reason of the death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 690.

— Parents.—Evidence held to show that deceased contributed to the support of his father, so as to authorize recovery by the father for his death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ford, 22 C. A. 151, 54 S. W. 37.

The fact that parents applied to the support of an unmarried daughter, who lived with them, a part of the sums received from their son, held not to deprive them of the right to recover to the full extent of contributions expected from him. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Connor (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 374.

Parents held not entitled to recover for the wrongful death of their son after his marriage. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee, 36 C. A. 482, 52 S. W. 306.

— Wife and children in general.—The subsequent marriage of the surviving wife does not abate right of action. Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. W. 484.

Where a divorced wife assumes custody of a daughter, and the father is killed after remarriage, the daughter is entitled to recover, since she had a legal right to support from her father. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Culpepper, 19 C. A. 182, 46 S. W. 922.

A wife held entitled to recover damages for her husband's death, notwithstanding his failure to support her for a long period prior to his death. De Garcia v. San Antonio & P. R. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 176 S. W. 275.

That a father had been divorced from the mother of the children, who were placed in the mother's custody by the court, and that the father from that time had not contributed to the support of the children, did not deprive them of the right to damages for his death. Santa Fe & Pacific R. Co. (Clv. App.) 236 S. W. 558.

The fact that several months before the death of decedent he and his wife had separated did not preclude her from recovering for his negligent death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 144.

A wife held entitled to recover damages accruing to her child through the death of the father, though the father did not support the child. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 928.

Where plaintiff's father rendered pecuniary assistance to plaintiff's family, and it is reasonably probable that he would have continued to do so, plaintiff may recover for his father's wrongful death. Freeman v. Morales (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 644.

— Adult children.—Adult children are not entitled to damages resulting from the death of their father, in the absence of proof of actual damage. Railway Co. v. De Buerg, 58 S. W. 829, 9 C. A. 108.

Adult children not dependent on the father for support cannot recover for his death through the negligence of another. Railway Co. v. Bishop, 14 C. A. 504, 37 S. W. 764.

Under the statute giving children a right of action for negligence causing the death of their father, the right of action is not limited to minors or to such children as cannot support themselves, nor is it necessary to prove that the father actually contributed anything to the support of his children. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dillworth (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 352.

Adult children not dependent on their father for support, and not receiving anything from him for their support, cannot recover for his negligent death. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James, 55 C. A. 588, 120 S. W. 269.

An adult married son has a pecuniary interest in the life of his mother, where she has since his marriage resided with him and has continuously performed the household labor for her. 3171 duties so as to enable his wife to devote her attention to her millinery business, and he may sue for her negligent death. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 88.

Married minor children.—A married daughter can recover damages for death of her father, though he was not bound to contribute to her support. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 25 C. A. 204, 60 S. W. 804.

That a minor daughter married after the death of her mother, resulting from wrongful act, would not prevent the daughter from recovering such damages as she sustained before her marriage, but minor children married at the time of her death are not entitled to recover. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Mills (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 590.

Posthumous child.—The word "children" includes a posthumous child. Nelson v. Railroad Co., 78 T. 1931, 14 S. W. 1931. 11 L. R. 111.

Grandchildren.—A judgment awarding recovery to the grandchildren of the person killed is erroneous. Houston & Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Harris et al. (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 229.

The word "children" does not include grandchildren. Railway Co. v. Elliott, 26 S. W. 455, 7 C. A. 216.

Necessity for valid marriage.—In a suit by a wife, a valid marriage must be shown. Railway Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 465.

Exemplary damages.—See notes under Art. 4698.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 4699.

Pleading—Allegation in petition of existence of beneficiary.—See notes under Art. 1827.

Art. 4699. [3022] Who may bring the action.—The action may be brought by all of the parties entitled thereto, or by any one or more of them for all. [Id.]

Damages—Appointment of.—See notes under Art. 4704.

Persons entitled to sue.—See notes under Art. 4698.

The father and mother may join in an action for the death of a child. Railway Co. v. Hall, 33 T. 675, 19 S. W. 121.

In an action for wrongful death, it is no answer to an objection made for want of proper parties plaintiff to reply that the claim of the unjoined beneficiaries is barred by the statute of limitations. Ft. W. & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 85 T. 516, 22 S. W. 578.

Recovery by husband and wife jointly for burial expenses of their minor son held not prejudicial to defendant, though such expenses were due to the husband alone. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evana, 16 C. A. 65, 41 S. W. 30.

Where the widow of the deceased sues for damages on account of death of her husband and the mother of deceased is the only other person who can also claim, and she is made defendant, and the jury give damages to the widow and none to the mother, the judgment is no answer because the mother was not made party plaintiff. She was before the court as defendant and the petition alleged that she was deceased's mother and asked that damages be apportioned to those entitled thereto. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 628.

The heirs of the deceased may join the widow as plaintiff in suits provided for by this statute, but if this is not done in good faith, but in collusion with defendant to cut off their rights, the plea of res judicata will not avail in a subsequent action to set aside a judgment so obtained. De Garcia v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 277.

In an action to recover damages for injuries resulting in death, all or any of the parties to whom the right of action belongs may bring suit. De Garcia v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 670.

In an action for death, persons who had no pecuniary interest in decedent's life were not proper parties plaintiff. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Mertink (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 153.

Under the statute giving a right of action to the relatives of a person wrongfully killed, an action for the death of a mother, leaving surviving her a husband and four daughters, cannot be maintained by the husband and one daughter alone. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Mertink, 101 T. 165, 105 S. W. 485.

In an action for negligent death, defendant held entitled to have all parties interested included as parties plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

An action for negligent death must be prosecuted in the name of all the beneficiaries or the name of one or more for the benefit of all. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Catron (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 404.

An adult married daughter, abandoned by her husband and living, with her young children, with her father, must be made a party plaintiff in an action for the negligent death of the father, and a decision adjudging that she has no pecuniary benefit, rendered in an action in which she is not a party, is not binding on her. Id.

Necessary parties.—All the surviving kindred related in the degrees designated in the statute are necessary parties. If one thus related is not made a party, and the existence of such necessary party is made known to the court during the trial, it would seem to be the duty of the court to suspend the trial and require such relative to be made

One suit should be brought for the benefit of all parties.  Should the defendant fail to require proper parties to be made, the objection is waived.  Railway Co. v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 686, 3 C. A. 583; Nelson v. Railway Co., 78 T. 621, 14 S. W. 1021, 11 L. R. A. 391, 22 Am. St. Rep. 81; Railway Co. v. Kutac, 72 T. 643, 11 S. W. 27.

Parents who have released their claim for damages are not necessary parties to the suit.  Id.

The father of the decedent, living in another state and not dependent upon the decedent, is not a necessary party to the suit.  Railway Co. v. Taylor, 24 S. W. 870, 5 C. A. 665; Railway Co. v. Henry, 75 T. 220, 12 S. W. 828; Railway Co. v. Younger, 10 C. A. 141, 29 S. W. 948; Railway Co. v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 664.

In a death action by decedent's widow and son for the use of decedent's mother, where the mother claimed no damages and testified that decedent was not contributing to her support at the time of his death, her then husband was not a necessary party to the action.  Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemair, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

An adult married daughter living with her father held required to be made a party in an action for his negligent death.  Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Catron (Civ. App.) 337 S. W. 404.

Who may intervene.—Where an attorney performs services for a widow in the prosecution of an action against a railroad company for negligence resulting in the killing of her husband, the claim of such attorney for compensation is not an interest in the cause of action which entitles him to intervene in such suit.  Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 477.

Action in name of beneficiaries.—The fact that an action under the state statute for the death of a railroad employee was brought in the name of the real beneficiaries, and not in the name of a surviving administrator or executor of the decedent's estate, did not prevent a recovery.  St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1039.

Authority to sue for others.—A stepfather may represent his wife's minor children as next friend in a suit for damages for the death of their father.  Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. 484.

A widow may bring suit for herself and for the benefit of all parties entitled to recover.  Railway Co. v. Renkin, 15 C. A. 229, 38 S. W. 829.

Where a wife sues for damages accruing from the death of her husband, she has the authority to sue for herself and for the benefit of the minor children without notice to them, and the failure to appoint a guardian ad litem does not render the judgment open to attack.  Taylor v. San Antonio Gas & E. Co. (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 674, 676.

Waiver of right of recovery by one plaintiff.—One of several plaintiffs may waive the right of recovery.  Railway Co. v. Elliott, 26 S. W. 456, 7 C. A. 216.

Pendency of other action.—In a suit by the widow and children of one alleged to have been killed by the negligence of a railway company, the fact that the deceased had instituted suit for damages resulting from the negligence before his death is no bar to the action.  Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. W. 484.

Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1327.

Admissibility of evidence, presumptions and burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 587.

Art. 4700. [3023] Executors, etc., may bring the action, when.—If the parties entitled to the benefit of the action shall fail to commence the same within three calendar months after the death of the deceased, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator of the deceased to commence and prosecute the action, unless requested by all of the parties entitled thereto not to prosecute the same.  [Id.]

Attacking authority to sue.—Where the authority of plaintiff to sue as administratrix was not attacked in the trial court, it cannot be attacked in the appellate court.  El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. v. Gutierrez (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 160.

Art. 4701. [3024] Suit does not abate by death of either party.—The action shall not abate by the death of either party to the record if any person entitled to the benefit of the action survives.  If the plaintiff die pending the suit, when there is only one plaintiff, some one or more of the parties entitled to the money recovered may, by order of the court, be made plaintiff, and the suit be prosecuted to judgment in the name of such plaintiff for the benefit of the persons entitled.  [Id. sec. 4.  F. D. 18.]

Death of party to suit.—Under this article and Arts. 4698, 4702, the right of action for death by wrongful act is restricted to the surviving husband, wife, children, and parents of decedent, and does not survive them.  Texas Loan Agency v. Fleming, 18 C. A. 668, 46 S. W. 63.

A cause of action growing out of an injury resulting in death is for the sole benefit of those to whom the right to sue is given, and the suit abates upon the death of those entitled to sue.  Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 480.

Art. 4702. [3025] Abates, when.—If the sole plaintiff die pending the suit, and he is the only party entitled to the money recovered, the suit shall abate.

Art. 4703. [3026] Executor, etc., of defendant made party, when. — If the defendant die pending the suit, his executor or administrator may be made a party, and the suit be prosecuted to judgment as though such defendant had continued alive. The judgment in such case, if rendered in favor of the plaintiff, shall be, to be paid in due course of administration. [Id.]

Art. 4704. [3027] Damages to be apportioned by the jury.—The jury may give such damages as they may think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death; and the amount so recovered shall be divided among the persons entitled to the benefit of the action, or such of them as shall then be alive, in such shares as the jury shall find by their verdict. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 16.]

Apportionment of damages.—Each of the parties plaintiff can recover only the damage he has sustained individually by reason of the death. Railway Co. v. Henry, 78 T. 220.1 220, 84 S. W. 256, 15 S. W. 104; Nelson v. Railway Co., 78 T. 621, 14 S. W. 1021, 11 L. R. A. 391, 22 Am. St. Rep. 81; Railway Co. v. Wilson, 24 S. W. 686, 3 C. A. 583.

The damages for the death of an infant child should be apportioned by the jury, whether the parents sue jointly or the husband sues alone. Railway Co. v. Schacco, 39 T. 350, 16 S. W. 31.

Damages are given both to the father and mother for their son’s death. Railway Co. v. Hall, 78 T. 785, 19 S. W. 121.

The failure of the jury to apportion the damages is not reversible error. Railway Co. v. Burleson (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1107; March v. Walker, 45 T. 372; Railway Co. v. Hudson, 8 C. A. 309, 28 S. W. 388.

Failure of the jury to apportion damages in action by parents for death of son held not prejudicial to defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evans, 16 C. A. 68, 41 S. W. 90.

Under the statute providing that in actions by two or more plaintiffs, the jury shall apportion a verdict among the plaintiffs, failure to do so is not error, where plaintiffs do not object. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lehman (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 618.

Where a verdict in favor of decedent’s parents was erroneous, but was sustainable in favor of his wife, a judgment based thereon and apportioning the damages would be reversed as to the parents and affirmed as to the wife. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Lee, 36 C. A. 482, 52 S. W. 306.

A defendant cannot complain of the manner in which a verdict was apportioned among the plaintiffs where the facts justified the submission of the issue as to whether each of the plaintiffs had suffered a loss. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Munn, 46 C. A. 276, 102 S. W. 442.

In an action for negligent death, by the mother, wife, and child of decedent, the jury must apportion the damages, and defendant cannot complain thereof. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scurlock (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 408.

Part of a verdict apportioning damages between two defendants in a death action held to be treated as surplusage, and judgment rendered against both defendants for the full amount. San Marcos Electric Light & Power Co. v. Compton, 48 C. A. 586, 107 S. W. 1151.

In an action for death, evidence held to sustain a verdict giving the entire damages to the wife and child of decedent, to the exclusion of the parents. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wall (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 453.

The verdict in a death action held sufficiently to dispose of a party’s action. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemak, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

Where the evidence made it an issue in a death action whether each plaintiff had suffered loss from decedent’s death, and the verdict for plaintiffs as a whole was not complained of as excessive, defendant cannot complain that the amount apportioned to one of plaintiffs was excessive. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 602.

Under this article a verdict in an action for death by the widow, minor children, and mother of decedent that the jury “find for the plaintiffs and fix the damages as follows,” giving the names of and the amounts awarded to the respective plaintiffs, was proper, and not reversible error. International & G. N. R. Co. v. White, 105 T. 567, 131 S. W. 811.

The damages which the widow and minor children are entitled to recover for the wrongful death of their husband and father should be apportioned by the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Salisbury (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 252.

Art. 4704a. Actions for death caused in foreign state or country.—That whenever the death or personal injury of a citizen of this state or of a country having equal treaty rights with the United States on behalf of its citizens, has been or may be caused by a wrongful act, neglect or default in any state, for which a right to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof is given by a statute or by law of such state, territory or foreign country, such right of action may be enforced in the courts of the United States, or in the courts of this state, within the time prescribed for the commencement of such action by the statute of this state, and the law of the former shall control in the maintenance of such action in all matters pertaining to procedure. [Acts 1913, p. 338, sec. 1.]

CHAPTER ONE

INCORPORATION OF INSURANCE COMPANIES

Article 4705. [3028] Forma tion of company.—Any number of persons desiring to form a company for the purpose of transacting insurance business shall adopt and sign articles of incorporation, and submit the same to the attorney general; and, if said articles shall be found by him to be in accordance with the law of this state, and of the United States, he shall attach thereto his certificate to that effect, whereupon such articles shall be deposited with the commissioner of insurance and banking.

Commissioner of insurance.—See Title 66, Chapter 7.

Application.—This article in its origin was, as in its language it is, a general provision applicable to all insurance corporations, except such as may be excluded by Arts. 4793, 4830, 4856 and 4860. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

A foreign assessment company writing insurance in Texas is subject to all the provisions of these articles, which contain most of the provisions of Acts 28th Leg. c. 69, relating to such subject. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Limitation by following article.—See notes under Art. 4706.

Art. 4706. [3029] What the articles of incorporation shall contain:

—Such articles shall contain:

1. The name of the company; and the name selected shall not be so similar to that of any other insurance company as to be likely to mislead the public.
2. The locality of the principal business office of such company.
3. The kind of insurance business which the company proposes to engage in.
4. The amount of its capital stock, which shall in no case be less than one hundred thousand dollars.

No limitation on preceding article.—This article specifies the information the articles of incorporation shall contain among others the amount of capital stock, but does not limit the general provisions of Art. 4706, providing for the incorporation of companies for the transaction of insurance business to stock companies or to any other class of companies. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

Art. 4707. [3030] Duty of commissioner of insurance when articles are deposited with him.—When the said articles of incorporation have been deposited with the commissioner of insurance and banking, and the law in all other respects has been complied with by the company, the commissioner shall make an examination, or cause one to be made by some competent and disinterested person appointed by him for that purpose; and if it shall be found that the capital stock of the company, to the amount required by law, has been paid in, and is possessed by it, in money, or in such stocks, notes, bonds or mortgages, as are required by law, and that the same is the bona fide property of such company, and that such company has in all respects complied with the law relating to insurance, then the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue to such company a certificate of authority to commence business as proposed in their articles of incorporation. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 33, sec. 7.]

Art. 4708. [3031] Company shall certify, under oath, that the capital is bona fide its property.—The corporators or officers of any such company shall be required to certify under oath to the commissioner of insurance and banking that the capital exhibited to the person making the examination is the bona fide property of the company so examined, which certificate shall be filed and recorded in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, sec. 7.]

Art. 4709. [3032] Where examination is made by other than commissioner.—If the examination be made by any other person than the commissioner of insurance and banking, the finding shall be certified under the oath of the person making such examination, and such finding and certificate shall be filed and recorded in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id.]

Art. 4710. [3033] Stock shall be divided into shares.—The stock of any company organized under the laws of this state shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4711. [3034] Capital stock shall consist of what.—The capital stock of a company shall consist—
1. In lawful money of the United States; or
2. In the bonds of this state or any county or incorporated town or city thereof, or the stock of any national bank; or
3. In first mortgages upon unincumbered real estate in this state, the title to which is valid, and the market value of which is double the amount loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings, unless such buildings are insured in some responsible company and the policy or policies transferred to the company taking such mortgage. [Acts 1889, p. 11.]

Art. 4712. [3035] Surplus money may be invested, how.—The surplus money of a company over and above its paid up capital stock may be invested in, or loaned upon the pledge of, public stocks or bonds of the United States, or any of the states, or stocks, bonds, or other evidence of indebtedness of any solvent dividend paying corporations, or in bills of exchange or other commercial notes or bills, except its own stock; provided, always, that the current market value of such stocks, bonds, notes, bills, or other evidences of indebtedness, shall be at all times during the continuance of such loans at least twenty per cent more than the sum loaned thereon. [Acts 1875, p. 33.]
Art. 4713. [3036] Company may change and re-invest its stock.—A company may change and re-invest its capital stock in like securities, as occasion may, from time to time, require. [Id.]

Art. 4714. [3037] Number and qualification of directors.—The affairs of any company organized under the laws of this state shall be managed by not more than thirteen nor fewer than seven directors, all of whom shall be stockholders in the company. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4715. [3038] Election of directors.—Within thirty days after the subscription books of the company have been filed, a majority of the stockholders shall hold a meeting for the election of directors, each share entitling the holder thereof to one vote; and the directors then in office shall continue in office until their successors have been duly chosen and have accepted the trust. [Id.]

Art. 4716. [3039] Annual meetings for election of directors.—The annual meeting for the election of directors of a company shall be held during the month of January, as the by-laws of the company may direct. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4717. [3040] Special meetings for election of directors.—If from any cause the stockholders should fail to elect directors at an annual meeting, they may hold a special meeting for that purpose, by giving thirty days' notice thereof in some newspaper in general circulation in the county in which the principal office of the company is located, and the directors chosen at such special meeting shall continue in office until their successors are duly elected and have accepted. [Id.]

Art. 4718. [3041] Quorum of stockholders.—No meeting of stockholders shall elect directors or transact such other business of the company, unless there shall be present at such meeting, in person or by proxy, a majority in value of the stockholders equal to two-thirds of the stock of such company.

Art. 4719. [3042] Directors shall choose president and other officers.—The directors shall choose by ballot from their own number a president and such other officers as the by-laws of the company may designate, who shall perform such duties, receive such compensation and give such security as the by-laws of such company may require. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4720. [3043] Directors may ordain by-laws, etc.—The directors may ordain and establish such by-laws and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as shall appear to them necessary for regulating and conducting the business of the company. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4721. [3044] Shall keep a record of their transactions.—It shall be the duty of the directors to keep a full and correct record of their transactions, which shall, at all times during business hours, be open to the inspection of the stockholders and other persons interested therein. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4722. [3045] Shall fill vacancies, and what shall constitute a quorum.—The directors shall fill all vacancies which shall occur in the board or in any of the offices of the company, and a majority of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Art. 4723. [3046] General incorporation law shall apply to insurance companies.—The laws relating to and governing corporations in general shall apply to and govern insurance companies incorporated in this state in so far as the same may not be inconsistent with the provisions of this title.
CHAPTER TWO

LIFE, HEALTH AND ACCIDENT INSURANCE COMPANIES

Article 4724. Terms defined.—A life insurance company shall be deemed to be a corporation doing business under any charter involving the payment of money or other thing of value, conditioned on the continuance or cessation of human life, or involving an insurance, guaranty, contract or pledge for the payment of endowments or annuities. An accident insurance company shall be deemed to be a corporation doing business under any charter involving the payment of money or other thing of value, conditioned upon the injury, disablement or death of persons resulting from traveling or general accidents by land or water. A health insurance company shall be deemed to be a corporation doing business under any charter involving the payment of any amount of money, or other thing of value, conditioned upon loss by reason of disability due to sickness or ill health. When consistent with the context and not obviously used in a different sense, the term, “company,” or “insurance company,” as used herein, includes all corporations engaged as principals in the business of life, accident or health insurance. The term, “home,” or domestic company, as used herein, designates those life, accident, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance companies incorporated and formed in this state. The term, “foreign company,” means any life, accident or health insurance company organized under the laws of any other state or territory of the United States or foreign country. The term, “home office,” of a company means its principal office within the state or country in which it is incorporated and formed. The “insured” or “policy-holder” is the person on whose life a policy of insurance is effected. The “beneficiary” is the person to whom a policy of insurance effected is payable. By the term, “net assets,” is meant the funds of the company available for the payment of its obligations in this state, including uncollected premiums.
not more than three months past due and deferred premiums on policies actually in force, after deducting from such funds all unpaid losses and claims, and claims for losses, and all other debts, exclusive of capital stock. The "profits" of a company are that portion of its funds not required for the payment of losses and expenses, nor set apart for any other purpose required by law. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 1.]

Venue of suit against foreign live stock insurance company.—See note under Art. 4744.

Art. 4725. Who may incorporate.—Any three or more citizens of this state, who shall be known as corporators, may associate themselves for the purpose of forming a life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company; provided, that no such company shall transact more than one of the foregoing classes of business, except in separate and distinct departments. In order to form such a company, the corporators shall sign and acknowledge its articles of incorporation before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments to deeds and file the same in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking. Such articles of incorporation shall specify:

(a) The name and place of residence of each of the incorporators.
(b) The name of the proposed company, which shall contain the words, "Insurance Company," as a part thereof, and which must not so closely resemble the name of any existing company transacting insurance business in this state as to mislead the public.
(c) The location of its home office.
(d) The kind or kinds of insurance business it purposes to transact.
(e) The amount of its capital stock, not less than $100,000, all of which capital stock must be subscribed and fully paid up and in the hands of the corporators before said articles of incorporation are filed, such capital stock to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each.
(f) The period of time it is to exist, which shall not exceed five hundred years.
(g) The number of shares of such capital stock.
(h) Such other provisions not inconsistent with the law as the corporators may deem proper to insert therein. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4726. Charter to be approved by attorney general, etc.—When such articles of incorporation are filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, together with an affidavit made by two or more of its incorporators that all the stock has been subscribed in good faith and fully paid for, together with a charter fee of twenty dollars, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to submit such articles of incorporation to the attorney general for examination; and, if he approves the same as conforming with the law, he shall so certify and deliver such articles of incorporation, together with his certificate of approval attached thereto, to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall, upon receipt thereof, record the same in a book kept for that purpose; and upon receipt of a fee of one dollar, he shall furnish a certified copy of the same to the incorporators, upon which, they shall be a body politic and corporate, and may proceed to complete the organization of the company, for which purpose they shall forthwith call a meeting of the stockholders, who shall adopt by-laws for the government of the company, and elect a board of directors not less than five, composed of stockholders; which board shall have full control and management of the affairs of the corporation, subject to the by-laws thereof as adopted or amended from time to time by the stockholders or directors, and to the laws of this state. The board of directors so elected shall serve until the second Tuesday in March thereafter, on which date annually thereafter there shall be held an annual meeting of the stockholders at the home office, and a board of directors elected for the ensuing year. At all meetings of the stockholders, each stockholder shall be entitled to one vote for each share of stock fully paid up appearing in his name on the books of the company, which vote may be given in person or by written proxy. The majority of the paid up capital stock at any meeting of the stockholders shall constitute a quorum. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4727. Amendment of charter.—At any regular meeting or called meeting of the stockholders, they may, by resolution, provide for any lawful amendment to the charter or articles of incorporation; and such amendment, accompanied by a copy of such resolution duly certified by the president and secretary of the company, shall be filed and recorded in the same manner as the original charter, and shall thereupon become effective. Stockholders representing a majority of the capital stock of any such company may in such manner also increase or reduce the amount of its capital stock; provided, that the capital stock shall in no case be reduced to less than one hundred thousand dollars fully paid up. A statement of any such increase or reduction shall be signed and acknowledged by two officers of the company and filed and recorded along with the certified copy of the resolution of the stockholders provided therefor in the same manner as the charter or amendment thereto. For any such increase or reduction, the company may require the return of the original certificates as other evidences of stock in exchange for new certificates issued in lieu thereof. The shares of stock of such company shall be transferable on its books, in accordance with law and the by-laws of the company, by the owner in person or his authorized agent; and every person becoming a stockholder by such transfer shall succeed to all the rights of the former holder of the stock transferred, by reason of such ownership. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4728. Examination by commissioner before commencing business.—When the first meeting of the stockholders shall be held and the officers of the company elected, it shall be the duty of the president or secretary to notify the commissioner of insurance and banking; and he shall thereupon immediately make, or cause to be made, at the expense of the company, a full and thorough examination thereof; and, if he shall find that all of the capital stock of the company, amounting to not less than one hundred thousand dollars, has been fully paid up and is in the custody of the officers, either in cash or securities of the class in which such companies are authorized by this chapter to invest or loan their funds, he shall issue to such company a certificate of authority to transact such kind or kinds of insurance business within this state as such officers may apply for and as may be authorized by its charter; which certificate shall expire on the last day of February next after the date of its issuance. Before such certificate is issued, not less than two officers of such company shall execute and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a sworn schedule of all the assets of the company exhibited to him upon such examination, showing the value thereof, together with a sworn statement that the same are bona fide, the unconditional and unencumbered property of the company and are worth the amounts stated in such schedule. No original or first certificate of authority shall be granted, except in conformity herewith, regardless of the date of filing of the articles of incorporation with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4729. Shall file annual statement.—Each life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, shall, after the first day of January of each year and before the first day of March following, and before the renewal of its certificate of authority to transact business, prepare, under oath of two of its officers, and deposit in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking, a statement, accompanied with the fee for filing annual statements of ten dollars, showing the condition of the company on the thirty-first day of December the next preceding, which shall include a statement in detail showing the character of its assets and liabilities on that date, the amount and character of business transacted, moneys received and how expended during the year, and the number and amount of its policies in force on that date in Texas, and the total amount of all policies in force; and the commissioner of insurance and banking may, from time to time, make such changes in the forms and requirements of the annual statements of companies as shall seem to him best adapted to elicit from the companies a true exhibit of their condition and method of conducting business; and such statement shall also contain and set forth an exhibit of the investments of such company; provided, that such terms and requirements shall elicit only such information as shall pertain to the business of the company. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4730. Renewal certificates.—Whenever any life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, or health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, transacting insurance business in this state, shall have filed its annual statement in accordance with the preceding article, showing a condition which entitles it to transact business in this state in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall, upon receipt of a fee of one dollar, issue a renewal certificate of authority to such company, which shall expire on the last day of February of the subsequent year. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4731. Copy of certificate for agents.—Any such company organized under the laws of this state, having received authority from the commissioner of insurance and banking to transact business in this state, shall receive from such commissioner, upon written request therefor, a certified copy of its certificate of authority for each of its agents in this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4732. To sue and be sued; commissioner only can enjoin.—Actions may be maintained by a company organized under the laws of this state against any of its policy holders, stock holders, or other person, for any cause relating to the business of such company; and actions may also be prosecuted and maintained by any policy holder, or the heirs or legal representatives of any such policy holder, against the company for losses which accrue on any policy; but no action shall be brought or maintained by any person other than the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state for the enjoining, restraining or interfering with the prosecution of the business of the company. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4733. Laws relating to corporations shall govern.—The laws relating to and governing corporations in general shall apply to and govern companies organized under this chapter, in so far as the same are pertinent and not in conflict with the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 9.]

Requirement as to notice.—Under Art. 5714, providing that a stipulation in a contract requiring notice to be given of any claim of damages which fixes the time within which it shall be given at less than 90 days shall be void, a provision of a casualty policy requiring notice of the injury to be given within 10 days would be void; this article not conflicting with that act. Royal Casualty Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 674.

Art. 4734. May invest in what securities.—A life insurance company organized under the laws of this state may invest in or loan upon the following securities, viz.:

(a) It may invest any of its funds or accumulations in the bonds of the United States or of any state, county, or city of the United States, or the bonds of any independent or common school district, or first mortgage bonds of any dividend paying railroad or electric railway company duly incorporated under the laws of the United States, or any state thereof.

(b) It may loan any of its funds and accumulations, taking as security therefor such collateral as under the previous subdivision it may invest in, and upon first liens upon real estate, the title to which is valid, and the value of which is double the amount loaned thereon; provided, that, if any part of such value is in buildings, such buildings shall be insured against loss by fire for at least fifty per cent of the value thereof, with loss clause payable to such company. It may also make loans upon the security of or purchase its own policies, but no loan on any policy shall exceed the reserve value thereof. No investment or loan, except policy loans, shall be made by any such insurance company, unless the same shall first have been authorized by the board of directors, or by a committee charged with the duty of supervising such investments or loans. No such company shall subscribe to, or participate in, any underwriting of the purchase or sale of securities or property, or enter into any such transaction for such purpose, or sell on account of such company jointly with any other person, firm or corporation; nor shall any such company enter into any agreement to withhold from sale any of its property; but the disposition of its property shall be at all times within the control of its board of directors. Every such company possessed of assets not authorized by this chapter shall dispose of the same within five years after July 10, 1909, unless such time is extended for good cause by the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4735. May hold real estate for what purposes and for how long.
—Every such insurance company may secure, hold and convey real property only for the following purposes and in the following manner:
1. One building site and office building for its accommodation in the transaction of its business and for lease and rental.
2. Such as shall have been acquired in good faith by way of security for loans previously contracted or for moneys due.
3. Such as shall have been conveyed to it in the satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings.
4. Such as shall have been purchased at sales under judgment or decrees of court, or mortgage or other liens held by such companies.

All such real property specified in subdivisions 2, 3 and 4 of this article, which shall not be necessary for its accommodation in the convenient transaction of its business, shall be sold and disposed of within five years after the company shall have acquired title to the same, or within five years after the same shall have ceased to be necessary for the accommodation of its business; and it shall not hold such property for a longer period, unless it shall procure a certificate from the commissioner of insurance that its interests will suffer materially by the forced sale thereof; in which event, the time for the sale may be extended to such time as the commissioner shall direct in such certificate. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4736. Director not to do certain things.—No director or officer of any insurance company transacting business in this state, or organized under the laws of this state, shall receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating, procuring, recommending or aiding in any purchase or sale by such company of any property, or any loan from such company, nor be pecuniarily interested, either as principal, co-principal, agent or beneficiary, in any such purchase, sale or loan; provided, that nothing contained in this article shall prevent a life insurance corporation from making a loan upon a policy held therein, by the borrower, not in excess of the reserve value thereof. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4737. May reinsure.—Any life insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, may reinsure in any insurance company authorized to transact business in this state, any risk or part of a risk which it may assume; provided, that no such company shall have the power to so reinsure its entire outstanding business until the contract therefor shall be submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and be by him approved, as protecting fully the interests of all the policy holders. [Id. sec. 13.]
Art. 4738. Dividends to be paid only from profits.—No life insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, shall declare or pay any dividends to its policy holders, except from the profits made by such company; provided, that this shall not prohibit the issuance of policies guaranteeing a definite payment or reduction in premiums, not exceeding the expense loading on said premiums; but, where said reduction exceeds said expense loading, the proper reserve therefor must be held by the company to provide for the deficiency so arising in the net premium; and provided, further, that this shall not apply to payments to holders of special or board contracts heretofore issued. No such life insurance company shall declare or pay any dividends to its stockholders, except from the profits made by said company, not including surplus arising from the sale of stock. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4739. Salaries.—No domestic life insurance company shall pay any salary, compensation or emolument to any officer, trustee or director thereof, nor any salary, compensation or emolument amounting in any year to more than five thousand dollars to any person, firm or corporation, unless such payment be first authorized by a vote of the board of directors of such life insurance company; provided, that the limitation as to time contained herein shall not be construed as preventing a life insurance company from entering into contracts with its agents for the payment of renewal commissions. No such company shall grant any pension to any officer, director or trustee thereof, or to any member of his family after his death. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4740. Disbursements to be made by vouchers only.—No domestic life insurance company shall make any disbursement of one hundred dollars or more, unless the same be evidenced by a voucher signed by, or on behalf of, the person, firm or corporation receiving the money and correctly describing the consideration for the payment. If the expenditure be for both services and disbursements, the voucher shall set forth the service rendered and statement of the disbursement made. If the expenditure be in connection with any matter pending before any legislature or public body, or before any department or officer of any state or government, the voucher shall correctly describe, in addition, the nature of the matter and of the interest of such company therein. When such voucher can not be obtained, the expenditure shall be evidenced by a paid check or an affidavit describing the character and object of the expenditure and stating the reason for not obtaining such voucher. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4741. Policies shall contain what.—No policy of life insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state, or be issued by a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state, unless the same shall contain provisions substantially as follows:

1. A provision that all premiums shall be payable in advance either at the home office of the company or to an agent of the company upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the officers who are designated in the policy.

2. A provision for a grace of at least one month for the payment of every premium after the first, which may be subject to an interest charge, during which month the insurance shall continue in force, which provision may contain a stipulation that, if the insured shall die during the period of grace, the overdue premium will be deducted in any settlement under the policy.

3. A provision that the policy, or policy and application, shall constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable not later than two years from its date, except for non-payment of premiums; and which provision may or may not, at the option of the company, contain an exception for violations of the conditions of the policy relating to naval and military services in time of war.
4. A provision that all statements made by the insured shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

5. A provision that, if the age of the insured has been understated, the amount payable under the policy shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age.

6. A provision that, after three full years premiums have been paid, the company, at any time while the policy is in force, will advance upon proper assignment of the policy and upon the sole security thereof at a specified rate of interest a sum equal to, or at the option of the owner of the policy less than, the legal reserve at the end of the current policy year on the policy and on any dividend addition thereto, less than a sum not more than two and one-half per centum of the amount insured by the policy, and of any dividend additions thereto; and that the company may deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness on the policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year, which provision may further provide that such loans may be deferred for not exceeding six months after application therefor is made. It shall further be stipulated in the policy that failure to repay any such advance, or to pay interest, shall not void the policy until the total indebtedness thereon to the company shall equal or exceed the loan value. No condition other than as herein provided shall be exacted as a prerequisite to any such advance. This provision shall not be required in term insurances, nor in pure endowments issued or granted as original policies, or in exchange for lapsed or surrendered policies; and no provision herein required shall compel any company to loan on any policy an amount greater than ninety-seven and one-half per centum of the face value thereof, including net dividend additions thereto.

7. A provision which, in event of default in premium payments, after premiums shall have been paid for three full years, shall secure to the owner of the policy a stipulated form of insurance, the net value of which shall be at least equal to the reserve at the date of default on the policy, and on any dividend additions thereto, specifying the mortality table and rate of interest adopted for computing such reserves, less a sum not more than two and one-half per centum of the amount insured by the policy and of any existing dividend additions thereto, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on the policy. Such provision shall stipulate that the policy may be surrendered to the company at its home office within one month from date of default for a specified cash value at least equal to the sum which would otherwise be available for the purchase of insurance, as aforesaid, and may stipulate that the company may defer payment for not more than six months after the application therefor is made. This provision shall not be required in term insurances.

8. A table showing in figures the loan values, and the options available under the policies each year, upon default in premium payments during the first twenty years of the policy or the period during which premiums are payable, beginning with the year in which such values and options become available.

9. A provision that if, in event of default in premium payments, the value of the policy shall be applied to the purchase of other insurances; and if such insurance shall be in force and the original policy shall not have been surrendered to the company and canceled, the policy may be reinstated within three years from such default, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company and payments of arrears of premiums with interest.

10. A provision that, when a policy shall become a claim by the death of the insured, settlement shall be made upon receipt of due proof of death and the right of the claimant to the proceeds, or not later than two months after the receipt of such proof.
Art. 4741  INSURANCE  (Title 71)

11. A table showing the amounts of installments in which the policy may provide its proceeds may be payable.

Any of the foregoing provisions, or portions thereof, not applicable to single premium policies shall, to that extent, not be incorporated therein. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4742. Policies shall not contain what.—No policy of life insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state, or be issued by a life insurance company incorporated under the laws of this state, if it contains any of the following provisions:

1. A provision limiting the time within which any action at law or in equity may be commenced to less than two years after the cause of action shall accrue.

2. A provision by which the policy shall purport to be issued or to take effect more than six months before the original application for the insurance was made, if thereby the insured would rate at any age younger than his age at date when the application was made, according to his age at nearest birthday.

3. A provision for any mode of settlement at maturity of less value than the amounts insured on the face of the policy, plus dividend additions, if any, less any indebtedness to the company on the policy, and less any premium that may, by the terms of the policy, be deducted; provided, that any company may issue a policy promising a benefit less than the full benefit in case of the death of the insured by his own hand while sane or insane, or by following stated hazardous occupations. This provision shall not apply to purely accident and health policies.

None of the foregoing provisions relating to policy forms shall apply to policies issued in lieu of, or in exchange for, any other policy issued before July 10, 1909. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4743. Policies of foreign companies may contain.—The policies of a life insurance company not organized under the laws of this state may contain any provision which the law of the state, territory, district or country, under which the company is organized, prescribes shall be in such policies when issued in this state; and the policies of a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state may, when issued or delivered in any other state, territory, district or country, contain any provision required by the laws of the state, territory, district or country in which the same are issued, anything in this chapter to the contrary notwithstanding. [Id. sec. 24.]

Venue of suit against foreign live stock insurance company.—Under this article, Art. 1830, subd. 28, Art. 4724, and Art. 1121, subd. 46, which latter article originally provided for the organization of fire and live stock, etc., insurance companies, but was amended in 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. c. 150) so as to provide that all insurance companies under such subdivision shall be in all respects subject to the provisions of Title 68, held, that a foreign live stock insurance company could not be sued on a policy in the county of plaintiff's residence, where the company did not have a representative or office therein, and the insured animal did not die there. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Krenek (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1181.

Art. 4744. Venue of suits on policies.—Suits on policies may be instituted and prosecuted against any life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, or health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, in the county where the home office of such company is located, or in the county where loss has occurred or where the policy holder or beneficiary instituting such suit resides. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 4745. Service of process.—Process in any civil suit against any domestic life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, may be served only on the president, or any active vice president, or secretary, or general counsel residing at the city of the home office of the company, or by leaving a copy of same at the home office of such company during business hours. [Id. sec. 34.]
Art. 4746. Losses shall be paid promptly.—In all cases where a loss occurs and the life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company liable therefor shall fail to pay the same within thirty days after demand therefor, such company shall be liable to pay the holder of such policy, in addition to the amount of the loss, twelve per cent damages on the amount of such loss together with reasonable attorney fees for the prosecution and collection of such loss. [Id. sec. 35.]

A foreign life insurance company doing business in Texas cannot avoid the 12 per cent. statutory penalty for a failure to pay a policy by a stipulation in it that it shall be payable, in the state of the corporation, in which no such penalty is provided for. Franklin Ins. Co. v. Villeneuve, 25 C. A. 356, 60 S. W. 1014.

Application to accident insurance company.—This article does not apply to accident insurance. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. J. B. Parker & Co., 96 T. 287, 72 S. W. 168; Id., 30 C. A. 621, 72 S. W. 621; Lane v. General Accident Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 524.

Application to assessment and fraternal associations.—The American Legion of Honor is a mutual benefit association and is not subject to the penalties imposed by this article. Legion of Honor v. Larmour, 81 T. 71, 16 S. W. 633.

It not being shown that defendant is a fraternal beneficiary association as defined by the statute, it is, like an insurance company, liable for 12 per cent. damages and attorney's fees, having failed to pay in full its certificate at maturity, and after demand, according to its liability. Sup. Council Am. Legion of Honor v. Storey, 97 T. 264, 78 S. W. 1.

This article having been repealed by Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, § 69, and the penalty clause of the latter act not being applicable to assessment companies, plaintiff in an action on an assessment policy in which the cause of the action did not accrue until after such repeal could not recover a penalty and attorney's fees. National Life Ass'n v. Haggard (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 353.

Demand.—It is necessary to make demand after the policy becomes due, before the penalties provided for in the statute can be recovered. The demand can be made after suit is filed and cause of action therefor is set up by amended petition. N. W. Life Assurance Co. v. Sturdevant, 24 C. A. 591, 59 S. W. 61.

A polite letter by attorneys requesting payment of amount due on policies is such a demand as will authorize recovery of 12 per cent. damages and attorney's fees if request is not complied with. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Mauer, 101 T. 553, 109 S. W. 1088.

This article does not authorize the court to impose the penalty unless there is proof of a willful refusal of the furnishing of proofs of death, and of a statement by insured to the policy holder that it would not pay, and the bringing of suit on the policy, is insufficient; the word "demand" meaning a request made on another to do a particular act under a claim of right. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

Where an insurance company refuses to pay a loss after proofs have been furnished, and thereupon plaintiff at once began suit, such suit did not constitute a statutory "demand," and she was therefore not entitled to recover statutory damages and attorney's fees on recovering the amount of the policy. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford, 103 T. 622, 131 S. W. 406.

In the absence of proof of demand of payment of a life policy prior to bringing suit thereon, plaintiff was not entitled to recover any penalty or attorney's fees. Bankers' Reserve Life Co. v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 226.

The penalty prescribed by this article is not recoverable in the absence of demand before suit, though it appears that demand would be ineffectual. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 554. 3187
Allegation of demand and refusal.—See notes under Art. 1827.
Amount of which penalty may be charged.—The 13 per cent penalty provided by statute for the failure of an insurance company to pay a life policy will only be charged on the portion of the amount due thereon which the company withholds. Franklin Ins.
Co. v. Villeneuve, 26 C. A. 306, 60 S. W. 104.

Where a policy is payable in installments, the penalty and attorney's fees are payable only on the amount due when suit is brought. New York Ins. Co. v. English, 95 T.
391, 67 S. W. 884.

Effect of filing interpleader.—Where an insurance company promptly filed its bill of interpleader to determine conflicting claims as to a policy, it was not liable for the statu-

Burden of proof.—See, also, notes under Art. 2687, Rule 12.

Under this article and Sayles Ann. Civ. St. 1895, Art. 3096, providing that that title shall not apply to mutual relief associations, if the principal officer thereof makes an annual statement as therein required, but that, if it refuses or neglects to make the annual report, it shall be deemed an insurance company conducted for profit and amena-tible to the laws governing such companies, the burden was on the party suing on a benefit certificate, and claiming to be entitled to the penalty and attorney's fees, provided by this article, to show failure to make the annual report required by article 3096. Grand Interest on Judgment.—See notes under Art. 4981.

Art. 4747. Certificate null and void, when.—Should any life insurance company, accident insurance company, life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company fail to pay off and satisfy any execution that may lawfully issue on any final judgment against said company within thirty days after the officer holding such execution has demanded payment thereof from any officer or attorney of record of such company, in this state, or out of it, such officer shall immediately certify such demand and failure to the commissioner of insurance and banking; and thereupon the commissioner shall forthwith declare null and void the certificate of authority of such company; and such company shall be prohibited from transacting any business in this state until such execution shall be fully satisfied and discharged; and until such commissioner shall renew his certificate of authority to such company. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 4748. Business of life insurance companies limited to certain kinds of business.—It shall be unlawful for any life insurance company, accident insurance company, life and accident, health and accident, and life, health and accident insurance company to take any kind of risks or issue any policies of insurance, except those of life, accident or health; nor shall the business of life, accident or health insurance in this state be in any wise conducted or transacted by any company which, in this or any other state or country, is engaged or concerned in the business of marine, fire or inland insurance. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 4749. Deposit of securities.—Any life insurance company, accident insurance company, life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, may, at its option, deposit with the treasurer of this state securities equal to amount of its capital stock, and may, at its option, withdraw the same, or any part thereof, first having deposited in the treasury in lieu thereof other securities equal in value to those withdrawn.
Any such securities, before being so originally deposited or substituted, shall be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and, when any such deposit is made, the treasurer shall execute to the company making the deposit a receipt therefor, giving such description to such securities as will identify the same; and such company shall have the right to advertise such fact, or print a copy of the treasurer's receipt on the policies it may issue; and the proper officers or agents of each in-curance company making such deposit shall be permitted, at all reasonable times, to examine such securities and to detach coupons therefrom and to collect interest thereon, under such reasonable rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the treasurer, and the commissioner of insurance and banking, of this state. The deposit herein provided for, when made by any company, shall thereafter be maintained as long as said company shall have outstanding any liability to its policy holders. For the purpose of state, county and municipal taxation, the situs of all personal property belonging to such companies shall be at the home office of such company. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 4750. Same.—Any life insurance company now incorporated, or which may hereafter be incorporated, under the laws of this state, may deposit with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, for the common benefit of all the holders of its policies and annuity bonds, securities of the kinds in which, by the laws of this state, it is permitted to invest or loan its funds, equal to the legal reserve on all its outstanding policies in force, which securities shall be held by said commissioner in trust for the purpose and objects herein specified. Any such company may deposit lawful money of the United States in lieu of the securities above referred to, or any portion thereof, and may also, for the purposes of such deposit, convey to said commissioner in trust the real estate in which any portion of its said reserve may be lawfully invested; and, in such case, said commissioner shall hold the title thereto in trust until other securities in lieu thereof shall be deposited with him, whereupon he shall reconvey the same to such company. Said commissioner may cause any such securities or real estate to be appraised and valued prior to their being deposited with, or conveyed to, him in trust as aforesaid, the reasonable expense of such appraisement or valuation to be paid by the company. [Acts 1909, p. 448, 2 S. S. sec. 1.]

Art. 4751. Policies shall have indorsed on face, etc.—After making the deposit mentioned above, no company shall thereafter issue a policy of insurance or endowment or annuity bond, except policies of industrial insurance, unless it shall have upon its face a certificate substantially in the following words: "This policy is registered, and approved securities equal in value to the legal reserve hereon are held in trust by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas," which certificate shall be signed by such commissioner and sealed with the seal of his office. All policies and bonds of each kind and class issued and the forms thereof filed in the office of said commissioner shall have printed thereon some appropriate designating letter or figure, combination of letters or figures or terms identifying the particular form of contract, together with the year of adoption of such form; and, whenever any change or modification is made in the form of contracts, policy or bond, the designating letters, figures or terms and year of adoption thereon shall be correspondingly changed. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall prepare and keep such registers thereof as will enable him to compute their value at any time. Upon written proof attested by the president or vice president and secretary of the company which shall have issued such policies or annuity bonds that any of them have been commuted or terminated, the commissioner shall commute or cancel them upon his register; and, until such proof is furnished all registered, contracts shall be considered in force for the purposes of this chapter. The net value of every policy or annuity bond, according to the standard prescribed by the laws of this state for the valuation of policies of life insurance companies, when the first premium shall have been paid thereon, less the amount of such liens as the company may have against it (not exceeding such value), shall be entered opposite the record of said policy or annuity bond in the register aforesaid at the time such record is made. On the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, the commission shall cause the policies and annuity bonds of each company accepting the terms of this chapter to be carefully valued; and the actual value thereof at the time fixed for such valuation, less such liens as the company may have against it, not exceeding such value, shall be entered upon the register opposite the record of such policy or bond, and the commissioner shall furnish a certificate of the aggregate of such value to the company. It shall be the duty of the commissioner to cancel mutilated or surrendered policies and annuity bonds issued by any such company, and register other like policies or bonds issued in lieu thereof. Each company, which shall have made the deposit herein provided for, shall make additional deposits from time to time, in amounts not less than five thousand dollars, and of such securities as are permitted by this chapter to be deposited, so that the market value of the securities deposited shall always be equal to the net value of the policies and annuity bonds issued by said company, less such liens as the company may have against them, not exceeding such net value. So long as any company shall maintain its deposits as herein prescribed at an amount equal to, or in excess of, the net value of its policies and annuity bonds as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of said commissioner to sign and affix his seal to the certificates before mentioned on every policy and annuity bond presented to him for that purpose by any company so depositing. The commissioner shall keep a careful record of the securities deposited by each company, showing by item the amount and market value thereof. If at any time it shall appear therefrom that the value of the securities held on deposit is less than the actual value of the policies and annuity bonds issued by such company and then in force, it shall be unlawful for the commissioner to execute the certificate on any additional policies or annuity bonds of such company until it shall have made good the deficit. Any company depositing under the provisions of this chapter may increase its deposits at any time by making additional deposits of not less than five thousand dollars of such securities as are authorized by this chapter. Any such company whose deposits exceed the net value of all policies and annuity bonds it has in force, less such liens (not exceeding such net value) as the company may hold against them, may withdraw such excess; and it may withdraw any of such securities at any time by depositing others of equal value and of the character authorized by this chapter in their stead; and it may collect the interest coupons, rents and other income on the securities deposited as the same accrue.

The securities deposited under this chapter by each company shall be placed and kept by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state in some secure safe-deposit, fire-proof box or vault in the city or town in or near which the home office of the company is located; and the officers of the company shall have access to such securities for the purpose of detaching interest coupons and crediting payment and exchanging securities as above provided, under such reasonable rules and regulations as the commissioner may establish. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4752. Fees for making deposits.—Every company making deposit under the provisions of this chapter shall pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking for each certificate placed on registered policies or annuity bonds issued by the company, after the original or first deposit is made hereunder, a fee of twenty-five cents; and the fee so received shall be disposed of by said commissioner as follows:

1. The payment of the annual rent or hire of the safety deposit fire-proof box above provided.

2. Payment for the services of a competent and reliable representative of said commissioner, to be appointed by him, who shall have direct charge of the securities and safety box containing the same, and through whom, and under whose supervision, the insurance company may have access to its securities for the purposes above provided. The sum paid such representative shall not exceed sixty dollars per annum for each company.

3. The balance of such fees shall be paid to, or deposited with, the state treasurer to the credit of the general fund. [Id. sec. 3.]
Art. 4753. Securities may include capital stock; securities to be increased.—Any life insurance company organized under the laws of this state and making the deposit provided for by this chapter, may include, as a part thereof, securities representing its capital stock, and any deposits of its securities heretofore or hereafter made in compliance with the laws of this state representing its capital stock, and shall only be required to deposit in addition thereto the remainder of its total reserve on outstanding policies and annuity bonds after deducting therefrom the amount of its capital stock securities so deposited. Deposits of securities made hereunder to the value of the reserve on all outstanding policies and annuity bonds shall be added to, and maintained from time to time as the reserve values increase, by the company issuing such contracts, or by any company which may reinsure or assume them; and such securities shall be held by the commissioner of insurance and banking and his successors in office in trust for the benefit of such policies and annuity bonds so long as the same shall remain in force. No company, making the deposit provided for herein, shall reinsure its outstanding business, or the whole of any one or more of its risks, except in or with a company or companies incorporated and organized under the laws of this state, or a company having permission to do business in this state. [Id. secs. 4, 5.]

Art. 4754. Sub-standard or extra hazardous policies.—If any life insurance company doing business under the laws of this state has written or assumed risks that are sub-standard or extra hazardous and has charged therefor more than its published rates of premium, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall in valuing such policies compute and charge such extra reserves thereon as is warranted by reason of the extra hazard assumed and the extra premium charged. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4755. No commissions to be paid officers.—No life insurance company transacting business in this state shall pay, or contract to pay, directly or indirectly, to its president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, actuary, medical director or other physician charged with the duty of examining risks or applications for insurance or to any officer of the company other than an agent or solicitor, any commission or other compensation contingent upon the writing or procuring of any policy of insurance in such company, or procuring an application therefor by any person whomsoever, or contingent upon the payment of any renewal premium, or upon the assumption of any life insurance risk by such company; and, should any company violate the provisions of this article, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to revoke its certificate of authority to transact business in this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4756. Co-operative companies.—The provisions of articles 4750 to article 4755, inclusive, shall likewise apply to and govern co-operative life insurance companies organized under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4757. Funds to be deposited in name of company.—Any director, member of a committee, or officer, or any clerk of a home company, who is charged with the duty of handling or investing its funds, shall not deposit or invest such funds, except in the corporate name of such company; shall not borrow the funds of such company; shall not be interested in any way in any loan, pledge, security, or property of such company, except as stockholder; shall not take or receive to his own use any fee, brokerage, commission, gift or other consideration for, or on account of, a loan made by or on behalf of such company. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 39.]

Art. 4758. Impairment of capital stock.—Any such insurance company transacting business within this state, whose capital stock shall be—come impaired to the extent of thirty-three and one-third per cent thereof, computing its liabilities according to the terms of this chapter, shall make good such impairment within sixty days, by reduction of its capital stock (provided such capital stock shall in no case be less than one hundred thousand dollars), or otherwise; and failure to make good such impairment within said time shall forfeit its right to write new business in this state until said impairment shall have been made good. And provided, that the commissioner of insurance and banking may apply to any court of competent jurisdiction for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of such company when its capital stock shall become impaired to the extent of fifty per cent thereof, computing its policy liabilities according to the American experience table of mortality and four and one-half per cent interest. And provided, further, that no company shall write new business in Texas when its net surplus to policy holders is less than one hundred thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 4759. Form of policies to be filed.—Life insurance companies shall, within five days after the issuance of, and the placing upon the market, any form of policies of life insurance, file a copy of such form of policy with the department of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 44.]

Art. 4760. Policy to be approved by commissioner.—No insurance company transacting business in this state shall hereafter be permitted to issue or sell any policy of industrial life insurance, or any policy of accident or health insurance, until the form thereof has been submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking. If the commissioner of insurance and banking shall approve the form of such policy as complying with the requirements of the laws of this state, the same may thereafter be issued and sold. If he shall disapprove the same, any such company may institute a proceeding in any court of competent jurisdiction to review his action thereon. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 4761. Must have certificate of authority.—No foreign or domestic insurance company shall transact any insurance business in this state, other than the lending of money, unless it shall first procure from the commissioner of insurance and banking a certificate of authority, stating that the requirements of the laws of this state have been fully complied with by it, and authorizing it to do business in this state. Such certificate of authority shall expire on the last day of February in each year, and shall be renewed annually so long as the company shall continue to comply with the laws of the state, such renewals to be granted upon the same terms and considerations as the original certificate. [Id. sec. 46.]

Art. 4762. Companies with $25,000 capital stock.—Companies may be incorporated in the manner prescribed by this chapter for the incorporation of life, accident and health insurance companies generally, which shall have power only to transact business within the state of Texas, and to write insurance only on the weekly or monthly premiums plan, and to issue no policy promising to pay more than one thousand dollars in the event of the death of the insured from natural causes, nor more than two thousand dollars in the event of death of any person from accidental causes, which may issue, combined or separately, life, accident or health insurance policies with not less than an actual paid up capital of twenty-five thousand dollars; provided, that all such companies shall be subject to all the laws regulating life insurance companies in this state not inconsistent with the provisions of this article; and provided, further, that such companies shall not be permitted to invest their assets in other than Texas securities as defined by the laws of this state regulating the investments of life insurance companies. [Id. sec. 56.]

Art. 4763. Unlawful dividends.—It shall not be lawful for any insurance company organized under the laws of this state to make any dividend, except from surplus profits arising from its business; and, in estimating such profits, there shall be reserved therefrom the lawful reserve on all unexpired risks and also the amount of all unpaid losses, whether adjusted or unadjusted, and all other debts due and payable, or to become due and payable, by the company. Any dividends made contrary to the provisions of this article shall subject the company making them to a forfeiture of its charter; and the commissioner of insurance shall forthwith revoke its certificate of authority; provided, that he shall give such company at least ten days notice in writing of his intention to revoke such certificate, stating specifically the reasons why he intends to revoke same. [Id. sec. 61.]

Art. 4764. Taxation of domestic insurance companies.—Insurance companies incorporated under the laws of this state shall hereafter be required to render for state, county and municipal taxation all of their real estate as other real estate is rendered; and all of the personal property of such insurance companies shall be valued as other property is valued for assessment in this state in the following manner: From the total valuation of its assets shall be deducted the reserve, being the amount of the debts of insurance companies by reason of their outstanding policies in gross, and from the remainder shall be deducted the assessed value of all real estate owned by the company and the remainder shall be the assessed taxable value of its personal property. Home insurance companies shall not be required to pay any occupation or gross receipt tax. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4765. Foreign companies, statement.—Any life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, incorporated under the laws of any other state, territory or country, desiring to transact the business of such insurance in this state, shall furnish said commissioner of insurance and banking with a written or printed statement under oath of the president or vice president, or treasurer and secretary of such company, which statement shall show:

(a) The name and locality of the company.
(b) The amount of its capital stock.
(c) The amount of its capital stock paid up.
(d) The assets of the company, including: first, the amount of cash on hand and in the hands of other persons, naming such persons and their residence; second, real estate unencumbered, where situated and its value; third, the bonds owned by the company and how they are secured, with the rate of interest thereon; fourth, debts due the company secured by mortgage, describing the property mortgaged and its market value; fifth, debts otherwise secured, stating how secured; sixth, debts for premiums; seventh, all other moneys and securities.
(e) Amount of liabilities to the company, stating the name of the person or corporation to whom liable.
(f) Losses adjusted and due.
(g) Losses adjusted and not due.
(h) Losses adjusted.
(i) Losses in suspense and for what cause.
(j) All other claims against the company, describing the same.

Provided that the commissioner of insurance and banking may require any additional fact to be shown by such annual statement. Each such company shall be required to file a similar statement not later than March 1 of each year. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 26.]

Art. 4766. To file articles of incorporation.—Such foreign life insurance company, or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company shall accompany such statement with a certified copy of its acts or articles of incorporation, and all amendments thereto, and a copy of its
by-laws, together with the name and residence of each of its officers and directors, and all of which shall be certified under the hand of the president or secretary of such company. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4767. Paid up capital stock.—No such foreign life insurance company, accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, shall transact any business of insurance in this state, unless such company is possessed of at least one hundred thousand dollars of actual paid up in cash money capital invested in such securities as provided under the laws of the state, territory or country of its creation; and no mutual life insurance company or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company operating on the old line or legal reserve basis, shall transact any business of insurance in this state, unless such company is possessed of at least one hundred thousand dollars of net surplus assets invested in securities provided for under the law of the state, territory or country of its creation. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4768. Deposits required.—Whenever the existing or future laws of any other state or territory of the United States, or of any other country, shall require of life insurance companies, accident insurance companies, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance companies, incorporated by this state, any deposit of securities in such other state, territory or country before transacting insurance business therein, then, and in every such case, all insurance companies of such state shall, before doing any insurance business in this state, be required to make the same deposit of securities with the treasurer of this state. [Id. sec. 29.]

Application.—This article does not apply to any other state of the United States, unless the laws of that state require such a deposit from companies incorporated in this state. Foreign companies must, however, deposit bonds or securities for the benefit of policy holders before doing business in this state, as provided for in Art. 4769. Selders v. Merchants’ Life Ass’n of America, 92 T. 394, 64 S. W. 703.

Art. 4769. Alien companies to deposit.—No foreign life insurance company or accident insurance company, or life and accident, health and accident, or life, health and accident insurance company, incorporated by or organized under the laws of any foreign government, shall transact business in this state, unless it shall first deposit and keep deposited with the treasurer of this state, for the benefit of the policy holders of such company, citizens or residents of the United States, bonds or securities of the United States or the state of Texas to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 4770. Deposit liable for judgment.—The deposit required by the preceding article shall be held liable to pay the judgments of policy holders in such company, and may be so decreed by the court adjudicating the same. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4771. When alien companies need not deposit.—If the deposit required by article 4769 has been made in any state of the United States, under the laws of such state, in such manner as to secure equally all the policy holders of such company who are citizens and residents of the United States, then no deposits shall be required in this state; but a certificate of such deposit under the hand and seal of the officer of such other state with whom the same has been made shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 4772. Assets, how invested.—The assets of any company not organized under the laws of this state shall be invested in securities or property of the same classes permitted by the laws of this state as to home companies or by other laws of this state in other securities approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking as being of substantially the same grade. [Id. sec. 57.]
Art. 4773. Shall file power of attorney.—Each life insurance company engaged in doing or desiring to do business in this state shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state an irrevocable power of attorney, duly executed, constituting and appointing the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state and his successors in office, or any officer or board which may hereafter be clothed with the powers and duties now devolving upon said commissioner, its duly authorized agent and attorney in fact for the purpose of accepting service for it or being served with citation in any suit brought against it in any court of this state, by any person, or by or to or for the use of the state of Texas, and consenting that the service of any civil process upon him as its attorney for such purpose in any such suit or proceeding shall be taken and held to be valid, waiving all claim and right to object to such service or to any error by reason of such service; and such appointment, agency and power of attorney shall, by its terms and recitals, provide that it shall continue and remain in force and effect so long as such company continues to do business in this state or to collect premiums of insurance from citizens of this state, and so long as it shall have outstanding policies in this state, and until all claims of every character held by the citizens of this state, or by the state of Texas, against such company, shall have been settled. And said power of attorney shall be signed by the president or a vice president and the secretary of such company, whose signature shall be attested by the seal of the company; and said officer signing the same shall acknowledge its execution before an officer authorized by the laws of this state to take acknowledgments; and the said power of attorney shall be embodied in, and approved by, a resolution of the board of directors of such company; and a copy of such resolution, duly certified to by the proper officers of said company, shall be filed with the said power of attorney in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, and shall be recorded by him in a book kept for that purpose, there to remain a permanent record of said department. [Acts 1909, p. 240, sec. 12.]

Art. 4774. Duty of commissioner in accepting service.—Whenever the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state shall accept service or be served with citation in any suit pending against any life insurance company in this state, as provided by the preceding article, he shall immediately enclose the copy of the citation served upon him, or a substantial copy thereof, in a letter properly addressed to the general manager or general agent of the company against whom such service is had, if it shall have a general manager or general agent within this state, and if not, then to the home office of the company, and shall forward the same by registered mail, postage prepaid; and no judgment by default shall be taken in any such case until after the expiration of at least ten days after the general agent or general manager of such company, or the company at its home office, as the case may be, shall have received such copy of such citation; and the presumption shall obtain, until rebutted, that such notice was received by such agent or company in due course of mail after being deposited in the mail at Austin. Article 4775. Investment in Texas securities.—Each and every life insurance company now engaged, or that may hereafter engage, in transacting the business of life insurance in this state, shall, as a condition of its right to transact such business in this state, invest and keep invested in Texas securities, as hereinafter defined, and in Texas real estate as hereinafter provided, a sum of money equal to at least seventy-five per cent of the aggregate amount of the legal reserve required by the laws of the state of its domicile, to be maintained on account of its policies of insurance in force written upon the lives of citizens of this state, which reserve is hereinafter denominated as its "Texas Reserves." And each such company, securing a certificate of authority to do business in this state, shall be deemed to have accepted such certificate subject to all of the conditions and requirements of this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 240, sec. 1.]

Art. 4776. Definition of "Texas securities."—The phrase, "Texas Securities," as used in this chapter, shall be held to include bonds of the state of Texas, or of any county, city, town, school district or other municipality or subdivision, which is now or may hereafter be constituted or organized and authorized to issue bonds under the constitution and laws of this state, promissory notes and other obligations, the payment of which is secured by a mortgage, deed of trust or other valid lien upon unencumbered real estate situated in this state, the title to which real estate is valid and the market value of which is double the amount loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings, unless such buildings are insured and kept insured in some company authorized to transact business in this state, and the policy or policies transferred to the company taking such mortgage or lien; the first mortgage bonds of any solvent corporation, incorporated under the laws of this state and doing business in this state, which has not in five years next preceding the date of the investment by such company in such mortgage bonds, defaulted for more than three months in the payment of interest upon its bonds or indebtedness, the market value of which bonds is equal to the amount invested therein; and loans made to policy holders on the sole security of the reserve values of their policies. And the investments required by this chapter, or any part thereof, may be made by the purchase of not more than one building site, and in the erection thereon of not more than one office building, or in the purchase at its reasonable market value of such office building already constructed and the ground upon which the same is located, in any city of the state having a population of more than four thousand inhabitants. And all real estate owned by life insurance companies in this state, on December 31, 1909, and all thereafter acquired under the provisions of this chapter, or by foreclosure of a lien thereon, shall be treated, to the extent of its reasonable market value, as a part of the investments required by this chapter. And "Texas Securities" as used in the following articles of this chapter shall be held to include every character of investment authorized by the terms of this article [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4777. Investments, how made.—The investments required by this chapter shall be made as follows:

(a) Each life insurance company which had a certificate of authority to transact business in this state April 2, 1909, the total amount of whose investments in Texas securities as of December 31, 1908, was equal to or exceeded seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves as of that date, shall have so invested not later than January 31, in each year, a sum of money equal to seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves as of the preceding December 31.

(b) Each life insurance company which had a certificate of authority to transact business in this state on April 2, 1909, the amount of whose investments in Texas securities as of December 31, 1908, was less than seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves as of said date shall have so invested, not later than January 31 in each year, a sum at least equal to seventy-five per cent of the amount by which its Texas reserves as of December 31 preceding exceeded the amount of its Texas reserves as of December 31, 1908, added to the amount of its total investments in Texas securities as of said date; and each such company shall, in addition, have so invested not later than January 31, 1910, a sum at least equal to ten per cent of the amount by which seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves as of December 31, 1908, exceeded the amount of its investments in Texas securities as of said date, and annually thereafter it shall have invested, not later than January 31, an additional ten per cent of the amount of such excess, until the total amount of its investments in Texas securities shall at least equal seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves.

(c) Each life insurance company not having a certificate of authority to transact business in this state on April 2, 1909, or that may thereafter discontinue writing new business under such certificate, shall, if it again obtain a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, be required to have invested in Texas securities annually as above provided, a sum equal to seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves; provided, that if on December 31 preceding the issuance of such certificate of authority, the amount of its investments in Texas securities was less than seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves it shall be required to have so invested annually as above provided, a sum equal to seventy-five per cent of the increase in its Texas reserves since December 31 last preceding the issuance of its certificate of authority, added to the amount of its total investment in Texas securities as of said date; and, in addition, it shall, not later than January 31 in each year after the issuance of its certificate of authority, have so invested ten per cent of the amount by which seventy-five per cent of its Texas reserves as of December 31 preceding the date of said certificate exceeded the amount of its total investments in Texas securities as of that date, and shall have invested annually thereafter, not later than January 31, an additional ten per cent of such excess, until the total amount of its investments in Texas securities shall at least equal seventy-five per cent of the amount of its Texas reserves. The proportionate amount of the Texas reserves required by this section to be invested in Texas securities as of any date shall thereafter be maintained; provided, that such investment shall not be required to be made by any life insurance company after it has ceased to do the business of life insurance or to write policies of life insurance in this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4778. Report showing amount of reserve.—That each life insurance company doing business in this state shall, not later than ten days after January 31 of each year, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, on a blank prepared and furnished by him for that purpose, a report showing the entire amount of the reserve on its entire business in force in this state on December 31, preceding, and an itemized schedule of its investments in Texas securities, which report shall be sworn to by either the president or a vice president and the secretary of such company. Such report shall contain such other information as may be required by the commissioner to determine whether or not such company has continuously and in good faith complied with this law; and for that purpose the commissioner may, whenever he shall deem it proper, require such special or supplemental reports as he may deem necessary. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4779. Report showing gross amount of receipts.—Each life insurance company not organized under the laws of this state, transacting business in this state, shall annually, on or before the first day of March, make a report to the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, which report shall be sworn to by either the president or vice president and secretary or treasurer of such company, and which shall show the gross amount of premiums collected during the year ending on December 31, preceding, from citizens of this state, upon policies of insurance; and each such company shall pay annually an occupation tax equal to three per cent of such gross premium receipts; provided, that when the report of the investment in Texas securities, as defined by law, of any such companies as of December 31, of any year, shall show that it has invested on said date as much as thirty per cent of its total Texas reserves, as defined by law, in promissory notes or other obligations secured by mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien on Texas real estate, the rate of occupation tax shall be reduced to two and six-tenths per cent; and, when such report shall show that such company has so invested on said date as much as sixty per cent of its total Texas reserve, the rate of such occupation tax shall be reduced to two and three-tenths per cent; and when such a report shall show that such company has so invested, on said date, as much as seventy-five per cent of its total Texas reserve, the rate of such occupation tax shall be reduced to two per cent; provided that all such companies shall in any event make the investments in Texas securities in proportion to the amount of Texas reserves as required by law. Such occupation taxes shall be for and on account of the business transacted within this state during the calendar year in which such premiums were collected, or for that portion thereof during which the company shall have transacted business in this state. [Acts 1909, 1 S. S., p. 264, sec. 1.]

Art. 4780. Taxes to be paid before certificate is issued.—Upon the receipt of sworn statements showing the gross premium receipts of such company, the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state shall certify to the treasurer of this state the amount of taxes due by such company for the preceding year; which taxes shall be paid to the state treasurer for the use of the state, by such company. Upon his receipt of such certificate, and the payment of such tax, the treasurer shall execute a receipt therefor, which receipt shall be evidence of the payment of such taxes; and no such life insurance company shall receive a certificate of authority to do business in this state until such taxes are paid. If, upon the examination of any company, or in any other manner, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be informed that the gross premium receipts of any year exceed in amount those shown by the report thereof, theretofore made as above provided, it shall be the duty of such commissioner to file with the state treasurer a supplemental certificate showing the additional amount of taxes due by such company, which shall be paid by such company upon notice thereof. It shall be the duty of the state treasurer of this state if, within fifteen days after the receipt by him of any certificate or supplemental certificate provided for by this article, the taxes due as shown thereby have not been paid, to report the facts to the attorney general, who shall immediately institute suit in the proper court in Travis county to recover such taxes. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 4781. Taxes imposed in this chapter to be sole taxes imposed.—No occupation tax other than herein imposed shall be levied by the state or any county, city or town, upon any life insurance company herein subject to the occupation tax in proportion to its gross premium receipts, or its agents. The occupation tax imposed by this act upon life insurance companies shall be the sole occupation tax which any company doing business in this state under the provisions of this chapter shall be required to pay. [Acts 1909, p. 240, sec. 6.]

Art. 4782. Companies deemed to have accepted provisions of this chapter, when.—Each life insurance company not organized under the laws of this state, hereafter granted a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, shall be deemed to have accepted such certificate and to transact such business hereunder subject to the conditions and requirements that, after it shall cease to transact new business in this state under a certificate of authority, and so long as it shall continue to collect renewal premiums from citizens of this state, it shall be subject to the payment of the same occupation tax in proportion to its gross premiums during any year, from citizens of this state, as is or may be imposed by law on such companies transacting new business within this state, under certificates of authority during such year; provided, that the rate of such tax to be so paid by any such company shall never exceed the rate imposed by this chapter upon insurance companies transacting business in this state; and each such company shall make the same reports of its gross premium receipts for each such year and within the same period as is or may be required of such companies holding certificates of authority; and shall at all times be subject to examination by the commissioner of insurance and banking, or some one selected by him for that purpose, in the same way and to the same extent as is or may be required of companies transacting new business under certificates of authority in this state, the expenses of such examination to be paid by the company examined; and the respective duties of the commissioner of insurance and banking in certifying the amount of such taxes, and of the state treasurer and attorney general in their collection, shall be the same as are or may be prescribed respecting taxes due from companies authorized to transact new business within this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4783. Companies desiring to do business after having ceased to do so.—Any life insurance company which has heretofore been, may now be, or may hereafter be, engaged in writing policies of insurance upon the lives of citizens of this state, which has heretofore ceased, or may hereafter cease, writing such policies, and which does not now or may not hereafter have a certificate of authority to transact the business of life insurance in this state, but which has continued or may continue to collect renewal or other premiums upon such policies, shall, before it may again obtain a certificate of authority to transact the business of life insurance in this state, report under oath to the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state the gross amount of premiums so collected from citizens of this state upon policies of insurance during each calendar year since the end of the period covered by the last preceding report by such company of gross premium receipts upon which it paid an occupation tax, and shall pay to the state a sum equal to the percentage of its gross premium receipts for each such year that was required by law to be paid as occupation taxes by companies doing business in this state, during such year or years; and, upon the payment of such sum and securing a certificate of authority to do business in this state, the penalties provided for the failure to pay such taxes and make such reports in the past shall be remitted. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4784. Failure to renew certificate, may do what.—Any company which shall fail to renew its certificate of authority or continue to write new business in this state shall, nevertheless, have the right to maintain an agent or agents in Texas for the purpose of collecting renewal premiums on outstanding business written by it under certificate of author-
Art. 4785. Commissioner may revoke certificate, when and how.—If any life insurance company, while holding a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, shall fail or refuse to comply with any of the provisions or requirements of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, upon ascertaining such fact, to notify such company by registered letter, properly addressed and mailed, or by any other form of actual notice in writing delivered to an executive officer of such company, of his intention to revoke its certificate of authority to transact business in this state at the expiration of thirty days after the mailing of such registered letter, or the date upon which such actual notice is served; and, if such provisions or requirements are not fully complied with upon the expiration of said thirty days, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to revoke the certificate of authority of such company; and, in case of such revocation, such company shall not be entitled to receive another certificate of authority for a period of one year, and until it shall have fully and in good faith complied with all such provisions and requirements of this chapter. Any company feeling itself aggrieved by the action of the commissioner in revoking its certificate of authority to do business in this state may bring suit against him in the court of Travis county having jurisdiction thereof, to annul and vacate the order revoking such certificate. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4786. Penalty for failure to report or investment.—If any company shall intentionally fail or refuse to make the investments required by this chapter, or make any report required by this chapter, or to make any special report requested by the commissioner of insurance and banking under the authority of this chapter, or generally to comply with any provision or requirements of this chapter, while holding a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, or after it shall cease to write new business or cease to hold such certificate, such failure or refusal shall subject such company, in addition to the penalty provided in the preceding article, in cases to which said article may be applicable, to the payment of a penalty of twenty-five dollars per day for each day that such company shall remain in default after the commissioner of insurance and banking shall notify such company of such default, in the manner provided in the preceding article, to be recovered in a suit to be brought by the attorney general in behalf of the state in the district court of Travis county. And in any suit that may be brought to recover such penalty or penalties, there shall be a prima facie presumption, subject to rebuttal, that any default that may have occurred was intentional, and that the notice required by this chapter was given, and the burden of proof shall be on the defendant company to prove that the investments required by this chapter were made as herein required whenever the question of whether or not such investments were thus made is in issue. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4787. Deposit by domestic company.—Any life insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, may, at its option, deposit with the treasurer of this state, securities in which its capital stock is invested, or securities equal in amount to its capital stock, of the class in which the law of this state permits insurance companies to invest their capital stock, and may, at its option, withdraw the same or any part thereof, first having deposited with the treasurer, in lieu thereof, other securities of like class and equal amount and value to those withdrawn. Any such securities, before being so originally deposited or substituted, shall be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and, when any such deposit is made, the treasurer shall execute to the company making such deposit a receipt therefor, giving such description of said stock or securities as will identify the same, and stating that the same are held on deposit as the capital stock investments of such company; and such company shall have the right to advertise such fact or print a copy of the treasurer's receipt on the policies it may issue; and the proper officers or agent of each insurance company making such deposit shall be permitted at all reasonable times to examine such securities and to detach coupons therefrom and to collect interest thereon, under such reasonable rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the treasurer and the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state. The deposit herein provided for, when made by any company, shall thereafter be maintained so long as said company shall have outstanding any liability to its policy holders in this state. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4788. Not to apply to certain companies.—The provisions of this chapter requiring investments in Texas securities shall not apply to any life insurance company, the total amount of whose Texas reserves does not exceed five thousand dollars, or to any such company doing only a reinsurance business in this state, but all of the other provisions of this chapter shall apply to such companies. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4789. Not to apply to fraternal beneficiary associations.—The provisions of this chapter shall not be held to apply to fraternal beneficiary associations as defined by the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4790. Companies desiring to loan money only.—Any life insurance company not desiring to engage in the business of writing life insurance in this state, but desiring to loan its funds in this state, may obtain a permit to do so by complying with the laws of this state relating to foreign corporations engaged in loaning money in this state, without being required to secure a certificate of authority to write life insurance in this state. [Id. sec. 18.]

CHAPTER FOUR

ASSESSMENT OR NATURAL PREMIUM COMPANIES

Article 4791. Foreign assessment companies.—Companies or associations organized under the laws of any other state of the United States, carrying on the business of life or casualty insurance on the assessment or natural premium plan, having cash assets of a sum not less than one hundred thousand dollars, invested as required by the laws of this state regulating other insurance companies, shall be licensed by the commissioner of insurance and banking to do business in this state, and be subject only to the provisions of this chapter; provided, however, that such company or association shall first file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a certified copy of its charter, a written agreement, appointing the commissioner of insurance and banking, and his successor in office, to be its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceeding against it may be served; a certificate under oath of its president and secretary that it is paying, and for the twelve months next preceding has paid, the maximum amount named in its policies or certificates in full; a statement under oath of its president and secretary of its business for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December preceding; a certified copy of its constitution and by-laws, and a copy of its policy and application; a certificate from the proper authority in its home state that said company or association is legally entitled to do business in such home state, and has at least one hundred thousand dollars surplus assets subject to its indebtedness. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to issue a license to any company or association complying with the provisions of this chapter; and every such company or association shall annually thereafter, before such license is renewed, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking on or before the first day of March, a statement under oath of its president and secretary, or like officers, of its business for the year ending December 31 preceding. [Acts 1889, p. 98, sec. 1.]

Application.—This article applies only to proceedings required to obtain a license to do business in Texas, and does not prevent any regulation of such companies which would result from applying other regulatory statutory provisions to them. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Art. 4792. Fees.—Every such company or association shall pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking, for the use of the state, the following fees: For filing copy of its charter, twenty-five dollars; for filing statement preliminary to admission, twenty dollars; for filing each annual statement after admission, twenty dollars; for license to company or association, one dollar. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4793. Shall not apply to mutual benefit associations.—The provisions of this chapter shall in no wise apply to mutual benefit organizations doing business in this state through lodges or councils, such as the Order of Chosen Friends, Knights of Honor, or kindred organizations.

Article 4794. Incorporation of.—Any number of persons, not less than five, may organize a corporation for the purpose of transacting the business of accident insurance, upon the co-operate or mutual assessment plan, without capital stock, by complying with the provisions of this chapter; provided, that all such persons shall be bona fide citizens and residents of the state of Texas. [Acts 1903, p. 174, sec. 1.]

Art. 4795. Charter, requirements of.—Such persons must sign and acknowledge, before an officer duly authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds, a written charter setting forth:

First. The name of such corporation, which name must not so resemble the name of any other company engaged in the insurance business in this state as to cause a probability of confusion.

Second. The number of its directors, and the names and residences of those who are to act as such for the first year.

Third. The location of its principal office, which must be within the state of Texas.
Fourth. It shall state that said corporation shall have no capital stock, and shall give the purpose for which same is organized, and the plan upon which it proposes to do business, by stating that its said business shall be conducted upon the assessment plan, without lodges.

Fifth. The term for which it is to exist, which shall not be for more than fifty years. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4796. Application to accompany charter, what it shall show.—Said charter shall be presented to the attorney general of this state, accompanied by affidavits of all said incorporators, showing that they are bona fide citizens of this state, by bona fide applications for insurance in said company, from not less than two hundred applicants, for not less than one hundred thousand dollars insurance, by an affidavit by one of its incorporators, showing that each of said applicants has deposited with applicant at least eighty cents on each one thousand dollars insurance so applied for by him, and by a certificate of some solvent bank, showing that all such advance funds are deposited therein to be turned over to the treasurer of such corporation when organized. Said attorney general shall carefully examine all said instruments; and, if he finds the same are in conformity with the requirements of this chapter, he shall give his approval, and file the same with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4797. Complete and ready for business, when.—When said charter has been filed with the commissioner, with the approval of the attorney general, accompanied by a filing fee of twenty dollars, the commissioner shall record the said charter and certificate of the attorney general in a book kept for that purpose, and shall, upon the receipt of fee for certified copy of charter of one dollar, furnish a certified copy of such charter and certificate of the attorney general to the corporators, and shall return to said corporators all such applications for membership, also a certificate that such charter has been filed and recorded in his office, and that said company is duly incorporated under the laws of the state of Texas, and authorized to transact the business set forth in its charter, stating same; upon the filing and recording of which charter, said association shall become a body politic and corporate, with the right to transact its said business in this state and elsewhere, according to the provisions of this chapter, to hold property and to alienate same, to contract, sue and be sued under its corporate name, and by that name shall have succession, and may by its board of directors make by-laws not inconsistent with law, and shall carry on its business subject to the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 3a.]

Art. 4798. What constitutes business of mutual assessment companies.—Any corporation which issues any certificate, policy or other evidence of interest to its members, whereby, upon his death or total disability, any money is to be paid by such corporation to such member, or beneficiary designated by him, which money is derived from voluntary contributions or from admission fees, dues and assessments, or any of them, collected, or to be collected, from the members thereof, and interest and accretions upon, and wherein the paying of such money is conditioned upon the same being realized in the manner aforesaid, and wherein the money so realized is applied to the uses and purposes of said corporation and the expense of the management and prosecution of its business, and which has no subordinate lodges or similar bodies, shall be deemed to be engaged in the business of mutual assessment accident insurance as contemplated by this chapter, and shall be subject only to the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4799. What such companies may or may not do.—Such corporations shall issue no certificate of stock, shall declare no dividends, shall pay no profits; and the salaries of all officers shall be designated in its
by-laws, and such by-laws shall provide for annual members' meetings, in which each member shall be entitled to vote, only in person, to the amount of insurance held. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4800. Notice of by-laws, how given.—Every such corporation must, before the adoption of any by-laws or amendments thereto, cause the same to be mailed to all the members and directors of such association, together with the notice of the time and place when the same will be considered, and same shall be so mailed at least ten days before the time for such meeting; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to by-laws adopted within sixty days after the incorporation of such company. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4801. Books and papers subject to inspection of members.—All books and papers of such corporation shall, at all reasonable times, be open for examination by members and their representatives. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4802. Commissioner to examine financial condition annually.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall annually or as often as he deems it necessary, in person or by one or more examiners, commissioned in writing, visit each and every such corporation and examine its financial condition and its ability to meet its liabilities. He shall have free access to all books and papers of the corporation, or agents thereof, and shall have power to examine under oath the officers, agents and employés of such corporation. He may revoke or modify any certificate of authority issued by him, when any conditions prescribed by law for granting it no longer exist. The expense of every such examination shall be paid by the corporation so examined. [Id. sec. 7a.]

Art. 4803. Statement to be filed; filing fees, etc.—Every such corporation shall, on the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, make and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state a report of its affairs and operations during the year ending on the thirty-first day of December immediately preceding. Such report shall be upon blank forms to be provided by such commissioner, and shall be verified by the oath of the secretary of such corporation, and shall contain answers to the following questions:
1. Number of certificates or policies issued or members admitted during the year.
2. Amount of indemnity affected thereby.
3. Number of death losses.
4. Number of death losses paid.
5. Number of other losses.
6. Number of other losses paid.
7. The amount received from each assessment in each class.
8. Total amount paid for losses.
9. Number of death claims for which assessments have been made.
10. Number of death claims compromised or resisted, and brief statement of reasons.
11. Number of other claims for which assessment has been made.
12. Number of other claims compromised or resisted, and brief statement of the reasons.
13. Does company charge annual dues, and, if so, how much?
14. Total amount received and the disposition thereof.
15. Does the company use moneys received for payment of claims to pay expense of the company in whole or in part, and, if so, state the amount so used.
16. Give total amount of salaries paid officers, and name of each salaried officer and the amount paid him.
17. Does the company guarantee fixed amount to be paid, regardless of amounts realized from assessments, dues, admissions, fees, etc.
18. If so, state the amount guaranteed and the security therefor.
Chap. 5) INSURANCE Art. 4807

19. Has the company a reserve fund?
20. If so, how is it created and for what purpose, the amount thereof and in what form and how invested?
21. Has the company more than one class of members?
22. If so, how many and what, and give amount of indemnity in each.
23. Give number of members in each class.
24. State when the company was organized.
25. Number of policies or memberships lapsed during the year.
26. Number of policies of each class at beginning and at the end of the year.
27. All assets applicable to payment of insurance, other than reserve fund, and how invested.
28. Amount received from all sources for payment of losses, and the disposition thereof; and, in case such corporation fails or refuses to make such report in full within said time, its charter and franchise shall be forfeited, as provided in article 4808. The following fees shall be paid annually: Filing annual statement, ten dollars; certificate of authority to corporation, one dollar; each certified copy thereof, one dollar. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4804. Certificate of membership; reserve funds.—Each certificate of membership, policy or other contract of insurance issued by such company shall bear on its face in red letters the following words: “The payment of the benefit herein provided for is conditioned upon its being collected by this company from assessments and other sources, as provided in its by-laws;” provided, that nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prevent the creation of a reserve fund by any such organization, which fund, or its accretions, or both, are to be used only for the payment of assessments or death losses, or benefits in case of physical disability, as provided in the by-laws of such corporation; provided, further, that at least sixty per cent of all amounts realized from assessments shall be used only for the payment of losses as they occur, or the balance thereof remaining after paying such losses transferred to such reserve fund; provided, further, that no part of such reserve fund shall be invested, except by order of the board of directors, in property or securities approved by such board. [Acts 1903, p. 311, sec. 9.]

Art. 4805. Notices of assessment must show what.—Each notice of assessments made by such corporation upon its members, or any of them, shall truly state the cause and purpose of such assessment, amount paid on the last claim paid, the cause of disability or death, the name of the member for whose death or disability such payment was made, the maximum face value of the certificate or policy, and, in case of disability, the maximum amount provided for in such policy or certificate for such disability, and, if not paid in full, the reason therefor. [Acts 1903, p. 174, sec. 10.]

Art. 4806. May change name of beneficiary.—Any member of such corporation shall have the right at any time, with the consent of such corporation, to change the beneficiary in his policy or certificate, without requiring the consent of such beneficiary; and such corporation shall give consent under such regulations as may be prescribed in its by-laws. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4807. Policy shall specify what; liability on.—Every policy or certificate issued by any such corporation shall specify the sum of money which it promises to pay upon the contingency insured against, and the number of days after the receipt of satisfactory proof of the happening of such contingency at which such payment shall be made; and, upon the happening of such contingency, such corporation shall be liable for the payment of such amount in full at the time so specified, subject to such legal defenses as it may have against same; provided, that, if the sum realized by it from assessments made in accordance with its by-laws to meet such payment, together with such other sums as its by-laws may provide shall be used for that purpose, shall be insufficient to pay such sum in full, for which it is so liable, then the payment of the full amount so realized shall discharge such corporation from all liability, by the reason of the happening of such contingency, and in that event such corporation shall be liable only for the amount so actually realized. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4808. Charter forfeited for not complying with provisions of this chapter.—If any corporation not incorporated under this chapter shall engage in any branch of mutual assessment accident insurance, as herein defined, or if any corporation organized under the provisions of this chapter shall transact business in any manner except as herein authorized, such corporation shall, in either event, be subject to the forfeiture of its charter and franchises; and the attorney general of this state shall immediately institute suit to forfeit its charter and dissolve it. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER SIX

CO-OPERATIVE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4809. Articles of incorporation; commissioner shall examine. —Nine or more persons, residents of the state of Texas, may form a co-operative life insurance company for the purpose of insuring the lives of individuals on the mutual, level premium, legal reserve plan, subject to the conditions and limitations prescribed in this chapter, by executing and acknowledging before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments to conveyances of real estate, articles of incorporation for that purpose. Such articles shall set forth:

1. The name and residence of each of the incorporators.
2. The name of the proposed company, which shall contain the words, "Co-operative Life Insurance Company," as a part thereof, and which shall not be so similar to that of any other life insurance company or association transacting business in this state as to mislead the public.
3. The location of the principal office from which the business of the company is to be transacted.
4. The number of directors and the name and place of residence of each of those who are to serve until the first regular election of directors, as provided by this chapter.

Such articles of incorporation shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall immediately submit them to the attorney general for his examination and approval as complying in all respects with the law. If the attorney general approve them, he shall so certify thereon in writing, and return them to the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall file the same in his office and issue to the company a certificate of authority, to which shall be attached a certified copy of the articles of incorporation, authorizing it to receive applications for insurance as provided in this chapter, and to collect premiums thereon, and to issue receipts therefor; which certificate shall expressly state that such company is not authorized to issue policies of insurance or transact any business other than that specifically authorized therein until it has received bona fide applications for insurance on the lives of at least two hundred individuals for not less than one thousand dollars each, which applications have been approved by a competent physician and on which the first annual premiums at adequate rates have been paid to the company, nor until these facts shall have been fully shown to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and he shall have issued to the company a certificate of authority to transact business as a co-operative life insurance company. If this showing is not made within six months after the date upon which such articles of incorporation are filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, it shall be his duty to cancel the certificate of authority of such company to receive applications for insurance, and to notify each incorporator of such action. When the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be notified that any such company has complied with all the foregoing provisions of this article, he shall make, or cause to be made, at the expense of such company, an examination thereof; and, if he shall find that the law has been in all respects fully complied with, it shall be his duty to issue to it a certificate of authority to transact the business of a co-operative life insurance company, in accordance with the terms of this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 285, sec. 1.]

Art. 4810. Officers, directors and policy holders, their powers and duties.—The business of a co-operative life insurance company shall be controlled and directed by a board of directors consisting of not less than five nor more than nine members, who shall be elected annually as provided in this chapter, those to serve until the first annual election to be named in the charter, and who shall hold office until their successors shall be elected and qualified, or until they shall be removed for improper practices. Such board of directors shall elect the officers of the company, which shall be a president, and such number of vice presidents as the by-laws may provide, a secretary, a treasurer, a medical director, and such other officers as the by-laws of the company may provide for, and shall fix the compensation of all such officers. The duties of all officers shall be prescribed by the by-laws. The by-laws governing the society until the date of its first annual meeting, as provided by this chapter, shall be adopted by the board of directors at their first meeting after the certificate of authority shall be issued authorizing the company to transact the business of a co-operative life insurance company. There shall be an annual meeting of all the policy holders of each co-operative life insurance company at the home office of such company on the second Tuesday in January after it shall have received a certificate of authority to transact the business of life insurance, and annually thereafter, at which the directors shall be elected for the succeeding year, and at which by-laws for the government of the company not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter or with the laws of this state may be adopted, and at which the existing by-laws may be repealed or amended. At such annual meeting, every policy holder shall be entitled to one vote for each five hundred dollars of insurance held by him; and any policy holder may execute his proxy authorizing and entitling the holder to exercise his voting powers, unless such proxy shall be revoked previous to such annual meeting. The president, secretary and treasurer shall each give a bond for the protection of the company and its policy holders in amount and with securities to be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, condi-

Art. 4811. Investment and disposition of funds; not to hold real estate, except.—Co-operative life insurance companies shall invest their funds only in bonds of the state of Texas, or of some county, city, town, school district, or other subdivision, organized, or which may hereafter be organized, and authorized, or which may hereafter be authorized, to issue bonds under the constitution and laws of this state, or in mortgages upon improved, unincumbered real estate, the title to which is valid, situate within the state of Texas, worth double the amount of the loan thereon exclusive of buildings, unless such buildings are insured in some fire insurance company authorized to transact business under the laws of this state, and the policy or policies transferred to the company, or in not more than one office building located in some city or town of this state in which the home office of such company is located, the actual value of which is not less than the amount invested therein. All moneys of any such company coming into the hands of any officer thereof or subject to his control, when not invested as prescribed in this article, shall be deposited in the name of such company in some bank or banks in this state which are subject to either state or national regulation and supervision, and which have been approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking as depositories therefor. No co-operative life insurance company shall purchase or hold real estate except the building in which it has its home office and the land upon which it stands, or such as it shall acquire in good faith through foreclosure sale or otherwise in satisfaction of debts contracted or loans made in the course of its dealings. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4812. Shall not borrow money or create debts, except.—No co-operative life insurance company shall have the power to borrow money for any purpose other than the payment of death losses. No such company shall have the power to incur any debt on any account, except under policies issued by it or for money borrowed to pay death losses, for which any portion of its assets over and above that which may represent or be derived from the expense loading of the premiums collected by it, shall in any event be subject to execution upon a judgment therefor. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4813. Policies to be valued by commissioner.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall annually make valuations of all outstanding policies of co-operative life insurance companies as of December 31 of each year, in accordance with the one year preliminary term method based upon the American Experience Table of Mortality, and three and one-half per cent interest per annum. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4814. Net premiums to be computed.—The net premiums upon all policies issued by any such company shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of this article, and no portion of such net premium collected upon any policy, and no portion of the gross premium collected upon any policy, except the expense loading, shall ever be used or applied for the payment of any expenses of the company of any kind or character, or for any other purpose than the payment of death losses, surrender values, or lawful dividends to policy holders, loans to policy holders, or for the purposes of such investments of the company as are prescribed in this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 4815. May set aside reserve.—Every co-operative life insurance company may maintain and set aside, before declaring any dividends to policy holders, in addition to an amount equal to the net value of its policies, computed as required by this chapter, a contingency reserve not exceeding the following respective percentage of said net values, to-wit: When said net values are less than one hundred thousand dollars, twenty per centum thereof, or the sum of ten thousand dollars, whichever is the greater; when said net values are greater than one hundred thousand dollars, the percentage thereof measuring the contingency reserve shall decrease one-half of one per cent for each one hundred thousand dollars of said net values up to one million dollars; and, thereafter, one-half of one per cent for each additional one million dollars; provided, that as the net values of said policies increase and the maximum percentage measuring the contingency reserve decreases, such company may maintain the contingency reserve already accumulated hereunder, although for the time being it may exceed the maximum percentage herein prescribed, but may not add to the contingency reserve when the addition will bring it beyond the maximum percentage. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4816. Shall make apportionment of surplus.—Every co-operative life insurance company organized under this chapter shall make an annual apportionment and accounting of divisible surplus to each policy holder after the end of the second policy year on all policies issued; and each such policy holder shall be entitled to and credited with or paid, in a manner hereafter provided, such a portion of the entire divisible surplus as has been contributed thereto by his policy. Upon the thirty-first day of December of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, every such company shall well and truly ascertain the surplus earned by it during such year; and, after setting aside from such surplus the contingency reserve provided in this chapter, it shall apportion to its policies upon which all premiums due and payable for the first two years thereof have been paid, the proportion of the remainder of such surplus which has been contributed by each such policy, and shall immediately submit a detailed report of such apportionment under the oath of its president or secretary to the commissioner of insurance and banking. If such commissioner shall find such apportionment to be equitable and just to the policy holders and to be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, he shall approve the same, and it shall become effective; and, if he shall not approve such apportionment, he shall make such changes therein as he shall deem equitable and just and necessary to make the same comply with the provisions of this chapter, and shall certify such changes to such company, whereupon such apportionment as changed by the commissioner shall become effective. The dividends declared as aforesaid shall be applied toward the payment of any premium or premiums upon such policy which shall come due more than thirty days after such apportionment shall become effective. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4817. Transact business only in Texas; form of policy.—Co-operative life insurance companies are authorized to transact business only within the state of Texas, and shall issue no policies other than whole life or twenty-payment life policies on the annual dividend plan; and the forms of all policies issued by any such company shall be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and all such policies shall have plainly printed both on the face and the reverse side thereof the words, “The form of this policy is prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas;” and it shall be the duty of the commissioner to revoke the certificate of authority of any company which shall issue any policy except upon such form so prescribed. All such policies may provide for not more than one year preliminary term insurance. No such company shall issue any policy or policies by which it shall be bound for more than five thousand dollars upon any one life at any time when the amount of its total insurance in force is less than ten million dollars. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4818. Medical examination.—No co-operative life insurance company shall enter into any contract of insurance upon the life of any person without having previously made, or caused to be made, a detailed medical examination, prescribed by its medical director and approved by its board of directors, of the insured by a duly qualified and licensed medical practitioner, and without his certificate that the insured was in sound health at the date of examination. [Id. sec. 9.]

INSURANCE

Art. 4819. Premiums, when to be paid, and notice of.—The policies issued by a co-operative life insurance company may provide that the premiums thereon may be paid annually, semi-annually, quarterly or monthly; and, in the event that such premiums are payable other than annually, no deduction shall be made from the amounts due on any policy in the event that the death of the policy holder shall occur prior to the completion of a full policy year. It shall be the duty of the company to mail from its home office to each policy holder a notice of the date upon which each premium is to become due at least thirty days prior to such date if the premium is payable annually, semi-annually, or quarterly, and at least ten days prior to such date if the same is payable monthly; provided, that local agents may be authorized and empowered by the board of directors to collect premiums and to give the notice required by this article. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4820. Loan value; non-forfeitable after three years.—After three full years premiums have been paid upon any policy in a co-operative life insurance company, the owner thereof shall be entitled, on proper assignment of such policy and on the sole security thereof, to borrow from the company a sum not greater than the reserve value thereof, and apply the same in payment of any premiums due or to become due upon such policy. In the event of default in the payment of any premium after three full years premiums have been paid upon any policy, the owner, within one month after any default, may elect to accept the value of such policy in cash, or to have the insurance continued in force from the date of default, without future participation and without the right to loans, for its face amount less any indebtedness to the company thereon, or to purchase non-participating paid-up insurance, payable at the same time and on the same conditions as such poli-icy. The cash value will be the reserve at the date of default computed in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, less such surrender charge as may be provided in the policy, not exceeding two and one-half per centum of the amount insured thereby and less any existing indebtedness to the company on such policy. Payment of such cash value may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. The terms for which the insurance will be continued, or the amount of the paid-up policy, will be such as the cash value will purchase as a net single premium at the attained age of the insured according to the American Experience Mortality Table and interest at the rate of three and one-half per cent per annum. If the owner shall not, within one month from such default, surrender the policy to the company at its home office for a cash surrender value or paid-up insurance, the company shall continue the insurance as above provided. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4821. Annual certificates and statements.—The original cercertificate of authority to transact the business of a co-operative life insurance company, issued to any such company by the commissioner of insurance and banking, shall expire on March 1 next succeeding the date of its issuance. Each such company is required to render annually, under oath by its president or a vice-president and its secretary or treasurer, and file not later than February 15 of each year, in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking, a statement, in such form and upon such blanks as may be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance and banking, accompanied by a filing fee of ten dollars, showning the condition of the company on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, which shall include a statement in detail showing the class and character of its assets and liabilities on said date, the amount and character of business transacted, moneys received and disbursed during the preceding calendar year and the number and amount of its policies in force on said date, and such other facts as may be required by the commissioner of insurance and banking. When such annual statement is filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, upon receipt of a fee of one dollar, if he is satisfied that the company has in all respects complied with the laws of the state, he shall issue a certificate of authority to such company for the year beginning March 1 after the filing of such statement. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4822. Agents shall have certificates.—No agent or other person shall solicit or receive applications for insurance in a co-operative life insurance company without a certificate of authority from the commissoner of insurance and banking, which shall expire on March 1 next after the date of its issuance. Such certificates of authority shall not be issued by such commissioner, except upon application therefor, signed by the president or secretary of the company, which application shall state that the contract between the company and such agent has been made in writing, and that a true copy of such contract is attached to and made a part of such application, and that such contract fully shows the entire compensation that such agent is to receive, directly or indirectly, on account of any services to be rendered by him for such company; and no such certificate of authority shall be issued by such commissoner, unless it shall be shown that the compensation to be paid such agent, together with all other expenses of any sort likely to be incurred in connection with or attributable to the obtaining of new inurance through such agent, shall not exceed eighty per centum of the expense loading in the premiums to be collected therefor. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4823. Annual examination and statement.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to have made, at least once in each calendar year, a thorough and full examination of the affairs of each co-operative life insurance company, the report of which examination shall be made to such commissioner under oath, which shall be accompanied by a list of all policy holders as shown by the books of the company, together with the postoffice address of each; and it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking, if he shall approve the report of such examination, after having given the officers of the company an opportunity to be heard, to mail a printed copy of such report to each such policy holder. The expense of each such examination and of mailing the copies of such reports to the policy holders shall be borne by the company examined. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4824. Additional examination; may suspend certificates; receiver.—If at any time the commissioner of insurance and banking deems it necessary to make an additional examination of any such company, he may do so; and, if as a result of any such examination or from other information, he shall have the opinion that the operations of the company are unsafe or hazardous to the policy holders' interests, or in violation of any law of this state, he shall suspend its certificate of authority, and direct its officers to call a special meeting of its policy holders and direct them to cease the further issuance of policies until such meeting is held. At such meeting of the policy holders, the commissoner of insurance and banking shall present the facts for such action as the policy holders may deem advisable. If, in the opinion of the commissoner of insurance and banking, such action of the policy holders when taken will not fully protect the interests of all policy holders, he shall apply to the district court of the county in which the home office of the company is situated, or to the judge thereof, in vacation, for the appointment of a receiver to take temporary charge of the business and affairs of such company, who shall receive the compensation allowed by law to state bank examiners, and who shall have all power and authority of the board of directors to manage and control the business and affairs of such company, subject to the orders of the district court or judge in vacation, until the reasons for his appointment shall, in the opinion of the judge appointing him, have been removed. At any time when the liabilities of any such company, computing its reserve liability upon the American Experience Table of Mortality and three and one-half per cent interest per annum, shall be in excess of its assets, the company shall cease the issuance of new policies until the impairment in its reserves shall be made good. Whenever the liabilities of any such company, computing its reserve liability upon the American Experience Table of Mortality and four and one-half per cent per annum, exceed its assets, the commissioner of insurance and banking may request the attorney general to file suit in the name of the state in the district court of the county in which such company is located for the appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs, and such action may be maintained. In any such action, such district court, or judge thereof, in vacation, shall have the power, if in his opinion the interests of the policy holders of such company require it, to enter an order providing for the re-insurance of all outstanding risks of such company in some other life insurance company authorized to do business in this state upon such terms and conditions as may be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking; and by such court, or the judge thereof, in vacation; and such court or judge may for that purpose direct the conveyance of the entire assets of any such company, or of any portion thereof, to such re-insuring company in consideration of such re-insurance. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4825. Taxes, how calculated; authorized to deposit securities. —For the purposes of state, county and city taxation, the amount of the reserve and contingency reserve of all co-operative life insurance companies shall be treated as debts due by them to their policy holders; and the total value of their property for such purposes shall be ascertained by deducting from the total amount of their gross assets the amount of such reserves and contingency reserves. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4826. General law as to deposits applicable to.—The provisions of article 4749 to article 4750, inclusive, in chapter 2 of this title, relating to the deposit of securities by insurance companies, shall likewise apply to and govern co-operative life insurance companies organized under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S. p. 448, sec. 8.]

Art. 4838. Distribution of funds.
Art. 4839. Organisation.
Art. 4841. Mergers and transfers.
Art. 4842. Annual license.
Article 4827. Fraternal benefit societies defined.—Any corporation, society, order or voluntary association, without capital stock, organized and carried on solely for the mutual benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government, and which shall make provision for the payment of benefits in accordance with section 5 [Art. 4832] hereof, is hereby declared to be a fraternal benefit society. [Acts 1913, p. 220, sec. 1.]

Art. 4828. Lodge system defined.—Any society having a supreme governing or legislative body and subordinate lodges or branches by whatever name known, into which members shall be elected, initiated and admitted in accordance with its constitution, laws, rules, regulations and prescribed ritualistic ceremonies, which subordinate lodges or branches shall be required by the laws of such society to hold regular or stated meetings at least once in each month, shall be deemed to be operating on the lodge system. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4829. Representative form of government defined.—Any such society shall be deemed to have a representative form of government when it shall provide in its constitution and laws for a supreme legislative or governing body, composed of representatives, elected either by the members or by delegates elected, directly or indirectly by the members, together with such other members as may be prescribed by its constitution and laws; provided, that the elective members shall constitute a majority in number and have not less than two-thirds of the votes, nor less than the votes required to amend its constitution and laws; provided, further, that the meetings of the supreme or governing body, and the election of officers, representatives or delegates, shall be held as often as once in four years. The members, officers, representatives or delegates of a fraternal benefit society shall not vote by proxy. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4830. Exemptions.—Except as herein provided, such societies shall be governed by this Act, and shall be exempt from all provisions of the insurance laws of this state, not only in governmental relations with the state, but for every other purpose, and no law hereafter enacted shall apply to them, unless they be expressly designated therein. [Id. sec. 4.]

Time for bringing action.—Agreement shortening time for bringing suit, see notes under Art. 0712.

Effect of incorporation under this chapter.—A corporation created as provided for in this article is expressly relieved from the provisions of Title 71 regulating other insurance companies. State v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 367.

Art. 4831. Benefits.—Every society transacting business under this Act shall provide for the payment of death benefits and may provide for the payment of benefits in case of temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease, accident or old age; provided the period of life at which the payment of benefits for disability on account of old age shall commence shall not be under seventy years and may provide for monuments or tombstones to the memory of its deceased members, and for the payment of funeral benefits. Such society shall have the power to give a member, when permanently disabled or on attaining the age of seventy, all or such portion of the face value of his certificate as the laws of the society may provide; provided, that nothing in this Act contained shall be so construed as to prevent the issuing of benefit certificates for a term of years less than the whole of life which are payable upon the death or disability of the member occurring within the term for which the benefit certificates may be issued. Such society shall, upon written application of the member, have the power to accept a part of the periodical contributions in cash, and charge the remainder, not exceeding one-half of the periodical contribution, against the certificate, with interest payable or compounded annually at a rate not lower than four per cent per annum; provided, that this privilege shall not be granted except to societies which have readjusted or may hereafter readjust their rates of contribution, and to contracts affected by such readjustment.

Any society which shall show by the annual valuation hereinafter provided for that it is accumulating and maintaining the reserve not lower than the usual reserve computed by the American Experience Table and five per cent. interest may grant to its members extended and paid-up protection, or such withdrawal equities as its Constitution and laws may provide; provided, that such grants shall in no case exceed in value the portion of the reserve to the credit of such members to whom they are made. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4832. Beneficiaries.—The payment of death benefits shall be confined to wife, husband, relative by blood to the fourth degree, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, stepmother, stepfather, stepchildren, children by legal adoption, or to a person or persons dependent upon the member; provided, that if after the issuance of the original certificate the member shall become dependent upon an incorporated charitable institution, he shall have the privilege, with the consent of the society, to make such institution his beneficiary. Within the above restrictions each member shall have the right to designate his beneficiary, and from time to time have the same changed in accordance with the laws, rules or regulations of the society, and no beneficiary shall have or obtain any vested interest in the said benefit until the same has become due and payable upon the death of the said member; provided, that any society may, by its laws, limit the scope of beneficiaries within the above classes. [Id. sec. 6.]

Beneficiaries in general.—A person having no insurable interest in the life of one insured cannot have a beneficiary interest in a policy of insurance on such life. Price v. Lodge K. of H., 68 T. 361, 4 S. W. 635; K. & L. of Honor v. Burke, 4 App. C. C. § 165, 15 S. W. 45.

Laws of a society construed, and held that, where a member never designated a beneficiary, his mortuary fund reverted to the society, though he left a widow. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Cleghorn (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1043.

One voluntarily paying dues of a member of a mutual benefit society held to have no claim on the mortuary fund. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that beneficiaries named in a benefit certificate were dependent on deceased. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Boliman, 23 C. A. 106, 58 S. W. 225.

Where the constitution of a mutual benefit insurance society provided that, on death of beneficiary, the sum specified should go to the next living relative in the order of wife, children, parents and brothers, the wife of a deceased member held entitled to the sum specified in the policy in preference to his brothers. Mattison v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, 25 C. A. 214, 60 S. W. 897.

A child of insured held not to recover on a life certificate payable to the wife of insured, without showing that the insured died before the wife. Screwmen's Benev. Ass'n v. Whitridge, 96 T. 639, 68 S. W. 501.

Under the provisions of a benefit certificate, held, that the relatives of the insured were entitled to the benefit, in the absence of proof that the named beneficiary survived the insured. Males v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World, 39 C. A. 184, 70 S. W. 108.

Benefit fund payable to a beneficiary who died before the member held to lapse to the society, and held not recoverable by the member's administrator. Home Circle Soc. of Goliad and Refugio Counties v. Hanley, 38 C. A. 547, 86 S. A. 641.

Under the laws of a mutual benefit insurance society, member held only entitled to appoint a beneficiary among his family and dependents. Coleman v. Anderson, 98 T. 870, 68 S. W. 729.
Second wife of insured held entitled to proceeds of certificate in mutual benefit association, in death of first wife and failure of insured to designate new beneficiary. Harris v. Harris, 44 C. A. 152, 97 S. W. 504.

Under the constitution of a mutual benefit society a member entitled to designate an illegitimate daughter as his beneficiary. Stahl v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 44 C. A. 293, 98 S. W. 944.

Where a benefit certificate provided for the payment of a sum for a monument at insured's grave, but there was no express recital as to whom it should be paid, held, that it should be paid to insured's wife. Woodmen of the World v. Torrence (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 652.

The classes named in this law, in the order named are entitled to the benefits of the certificate, when there is no designation of a beneficiary by the insured. If there is no one of the classes named capable of naming the same shall pass as provided by the laws and regulations of the association. But one who has no insurable interest cannot take the benefits of the certificate. Grand Lodge, Colored K. of P., v. MacKenzie (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 937.

By the terms of this law blood relatives can become lawful beneficiaries in certificates issued by the W. O. W., but where the applicant stated in the application that the beneficiary was his cousin, when in fact she was not, the certificate was void, by reason of fraud in procuring same. Gray v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 47 C. A. 609, 106 S. W. 177.

Where an insurance certificate was payable to insured in case of total disability or to plaintiff in case of death, if it matured in insured's lifetime, plaintiff could not recover thereon after insured's death. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

Vested right of beneficiary.—The beneficiary named in the certificate of a member of a mutual benefit insurance society held to have no vested property interest in the benefits of the other member. Coleman v. Andrus, 300 Ky. 570, 86 S. W. 720.

Under the constitution of a mutual benefit society a member desiring to change the beneficiary held required to actually furnish the sovereign clerk with the request therefor and certain proof. Flowers v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, 40 C. A. 593, 90 S. W. 526.

The method provided in the constitution of a mutual benefit society for a change of beneficiary held exclusive. Id.

A holder of certificate in a mutual benefit society held to fail to comply with the constitution relating to change of beneficiary. Id.

A defective application for a change of beneficiary in a benefit certificate could not be regarded as an assignment of the certificate to the proposed beneficiary. Id.

At tempted change of beneficiary of benefit certificate, not made in compliance with the constitution and by-laws of the association, held ineffectual. Gray v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World, 47 C. A. 609, 106 S. W. 176.

A holder of a mutual benefit certificate held entitled to change the beneficiary, notwithstanding his agreement with his wife and payments of assessments by her and by the lodge. Eatman v. Eatman (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 156.

Art. 4833. Qualifications for membership.—Any society may admit to beneficial membership any person not less than sixteen and not more than sixty years of age, who has been examined by a legally qualified physician, and whose examination has been supervised and approved in accordance with the laws of the society; provided, that any beneficiary member of such society who shall apply for a certificate providing for disability benefits need not be required to pass an additional medical examination therefore. Nothing herein contained shall prevent such society from accepting general or social members. [Id. sec. 7.]

Estoppel to deny membership.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Sufficiency of medical examination.—Medical examination of an applicant for membership in a fraternal order held sufficient, though not by the official examiner. Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Crawford, 32 C. A. 603, 78 S. W. 844.

Reinstatement of suspended member.—Suspended member held not entitled to reinstatement on paying one assessment, where another remained unpaid, though he had no notice of the latter. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Rothschild, 15 C. A. 483, 49 S. W. 553.

Expulsion of insane member.—Where a member of a fraternal insurance company was expelled because of excessive drinking, in accordance with the policy, it is immaterial that he was insane at the time of his expulsion. Kempe v. Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 688.

Art. 4834. Certificate.—Every certificate issued by any such society shall specify the amount of benefit provided thereby, and shall provide that the certificate, the charter or articles of incorporation (or, if a voluntary association, the articles of association), the Constitution and laws of the society, and the application for membership and medical examination, signed by the applicant, and all amendments to each thereof, shall constitute the agreement between the society and the member, and copies of the same, certified by the secretary of the society, or corresponding officer, shall be received in evidence of the terms and conditions thereof, and any changes, additions or amendments to said charter or articles of incorporation, or articles of association, if a voluntary association, a constitution or laws duly made or enacted subsequent to the issuance of the benefit certificates shall bind the member and his beneficiaries, and shall govern and control the agreement in all respects the same as though such changes, additions or amendments had been made prior to and were in force at the time of the application for membership. [Id. sec. 8.]

See note under Art. 4827.

Adoption of Art. 4947.—Rev. St. 1895, art. 3906a, as amended by Acts 1903, p. 94, c. 69, declaring that any provision in an insurance policy contracted for in Texas that the answers or statements in the application, if false, shall render the policy void or voidable, shall not constitute a defense unless shown to have been material to the risk and that whether it was material should be a question of fact to be determined by the court or jury trying the case, was not adopted by this article, and so left the question of materiality one of law for the court upon the jury's findings or upon the undisputed facts. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 353 S. W. 351.

Construction in general.—A clause in a certificate issued by a benefit association held to apply to a case of disability only. Roth v. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America, 153 L. 112, 23 S. W. 2d, 132 Am. St. 191, 192. A clause in the constitution of a benefit association which is susceptible of two constructions must be interpreted in favor of the beneficiary. Id.

The language of an insurance policy must be construed according to the intent of the parties, and from the words used, the subject matter to which they relate, and the matters naturally incident thereto. Daniel v. Modern Woodmen of America, 53 C. A. 570, 118 S. W. 211.

An insurance policy with respect to disability will be strictly construed against insurer and liberally in favor of insured, and, where the words thereof admit of two constructions, the one most favorable to insured will be adopted. Id.

An insurance policy issued by a fraternal benefit order, which is in fact a policy of life insurance, is, even before the death of the insured, a chose in action. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1067.

To whom payable.—An endowment certificate payable to the assured during his lifetime, and also payable upon his death, being subject to assignment and disposition by him, is payable to his administrator and becomes assets in his hands. White v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. §§ 399, 491. An application to a benevolent association directed that the policy should be payable to the four children of the applicant. The certificate recited that the sum due at his death should be paid to his children. Held, that the right to the benefit must be determined by the language of the certificate, and that an after-born child was entitled to share in the benefit equally with the four children named in the application. Thomas v. Leake, 67 T. 463, 3 S. W. 709.

An insurance certificate payable to the wife of the assured was renewed in the name of L., "creditor," who paid the past and future assessments and charged them to the assured. Held, that on the death of the assured L. was entitled to the proceeds to the extent of such payments by him, and that the surplus belonged to the widow of the assured, although he was entitled to L. on account of other claims, acquired after the renewal. Levy v. Taylor, 66 T. 652, 1 S. W. 900. A beneficiary certificate to one who has no insurable interest in the life of the insured is void except as to the beneficiary and is payable to the heirs of the assured. Schonfield v. Turner, 76 T. 324, 12 S. W. 626; 7 L. R. A. 189; K. & L. of Honor v. Burke, 4 App. C. C. § 165, 15 S. W. 46. If a member of a mutual insurance society does not designate a beneficiary his mortuary fund reverts to the society, even though he left a widow. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Cleghorn, 20 C. A. 124, 48 S. W. 760.

Omission of beneficiaries' names.—That beneficiaries' names were not inserted in a policy until after the death of insured, held no defense to the policy, they having been omitted by the insurer's fault. International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 3108.

Evidence held sufficient to establish the liability of a benefit association on a certificate delivered while the insured was very ill of a disease of which she died the next day. Home Forum Ben. Order v. Varnado (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 364.

Where an applicant is accepted by a mutual benefit society, but his certificate, though timely on the society, is not delivered, and the applicant has complied with all the requirements of the society, the society is liable, although the applicant dies before delivery of the certificate. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Dees, 45 C. A. 218, 100 S. W. 366.

Receipt of benefit certificate by clerk of local camp of beneficiary association held not a delivery to the insured. Modern Woodmen of America v. Owens (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 868.

Clerk of local camp of benefit association held not only justified in not delivering certificate, but to have no authority to deliver it when applicant was sick. Id.
Where delivery of a mutual benefit certificate is essential to completion of the contract or the act by which the insurer can take the risk, the delivery of the benefit certificate to the beneficiary after the death of the applicant did not amount to a delivery to him so as to bind the association. Id.

A provision of the by-laws of a fraternal insurance order as to the delivery of the certificate to the beneficiary without good health held to refer only to the original certificate. Eatman v. Eatman (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 165.

Acceptance by a member of an insurance order of a new certificate changing the beneficiary held not necessary to the taking effect of the new certificate. Id.

As a matter of law the head officers of the local camp held not a delivery to the member. McWilliams v. Modern Woodmen of America (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 641.

A certificate of membership in a mutual benefit society was never delivered to decedent, and he was never adopted as a member in accordance with the by-laws, he was not a member, and there could be no recovery of benefits in case of his death. Id.

Assignment of certificate.—An endowment certificate payable to the assured during his lifetime, and also payable upon his death, is assignable and becomes assets in the hands of the administrator. White v. Smith (Civ. App.) 2 App. C. C. 449, 461.

A party having no insurable interest in the life of another cannot receive an assignment of a policy of insurance issued upon the life of the latter upon an agreement merely to pay the premiums or assessments necessary to keep the policy in force. Such an assignment is in contravention of public policy, and the fact that the rules of the company may permit the transfer cannot validate it. Price v. Knights of Honor, 68 T. 361, 4 S. W. 633.

Where the constitution of an insurance association provided that the benefit should be paid to members of the insured's family, his heirs, or those dependent on him for support, an assignment of a certificate to one who was not related to the insured by blood or otherwise held void. Williams v. Fletcher, 26 C. A. 85, 62 S. W. 1082.

A personal beneficiary of a fraternal benefit policy and other property held in trust to have amounted to a binding contract, whereby the others were entitled to the proceeds of the policy, irrespecive of whether the assignment had complied with the laws of the insurer. Kendall v. Morrison, 33 C. A. 545, 65 S. W. 31.

If a mutual benefit society, prohibiting assignment of members' certificates, held unavailable as between a beneficiary and a third person paying assessments without an agreement for reimbursement. Coleman v. Anderson, 98 T. 570, 86 S. W. 730.

In an action for conversion of a portion of the proceeds of a benefit certificate, a judgment setting aside an assignment thereof by insured's widow on the theory that she had been overreached in the transaction as a matter of law held error. Roberts v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 886.

Pledge of certificate.—See also, notes under Art. 583.

The contingent interest of beneficiary of fraternal benefit certificate held sufficient to support a pledge thereof as collateral security for sums advanced by third persons, so that possession of the certificate could not be recovered without a repayment of the amount advanced. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 617.

Provision of constitution of association of locomotive engineers held not to authorize expulsion of member for going on the witness stand and testifying against a railroad. Thompson v. Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 41 C. A. 176, 91 S. W. 384.

Publication by fraternal association of notice of expulsion of member held legal or illegal in accordance with the legality or illegality of the expulsion. Id.

The association in expelling member must act in good faith and in pursuance of by-laws not violative of the laws of the land. Id.

Held, that a beneficial association had no right to expel a member for testifying in a cause. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 455.

That a member of a railroad brotherhood testified against a railroad company and his brother members held not ground for his expulsion. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson, 102 T. 89, 115 S. W. 144, 19 Ann. Cas. 1250.

Language of an insurance policy fairly susceptible of an interpretation which will prevent a forfeiture will be so construed. Daniel v. Modern Woodmen of America, 53 C. A. 670, 118 S. W. 211.

Forfeiture of a member of a benefit association died pending rehearing on appeal after the affirmance of a conviction for manslaughter, his certificate was not forfeited under a provision forfeiture if the member should be convicted of a felony. Woodmen of the World v. Dodd (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 254.

A member in a fraternal beneficiary association held not to have forfeited his rights against the insurer until notice of his delinquency had been given in the manner provided by the constitution of the insurer; and no other will suffice, in the absence of a custom or agreement by the beneficiary to receive notice in the manner, different manner. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, K. P. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

A mutual benefit certificate held rendered void by insured engaging in the sale of malt liquors. Modern Woodmen of America v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1065.

Pledge of certificate or membership, the certificate of a fraternal organization was not in good standing at the time of his death in the only subordinate temple to which he belonged, or could belong, there could be no recovery on the certificate. International Order of Twelve Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 320.

False representations in petition for reinstatement of a mutual benefit association, will avoid the insurance when material to the risk, though ignorantly made, especially where their truth is expressly warranted. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 351.

Nonpayment of dues or assessments.—Payment of dues or assessments in general, see Art. 4835.

Vern. Civ. St. — 202 8217

Chap. 7) INSURANCE Art. 4834
A member of a mutual benefit society not having complied with its constitution and by-laws, and being in arrear for assessments at the time of his death, no recovery could be had on his certificate. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks, 37 C. A. 424, 84 S. W. 425.

A member of a mutual benefit society held not subject to forfeiture of his certificate by reason of a non-payment for a particular assessment levied for a particular month, which he was subject to pay by reason of the absence of the clerk of his local camp, to whom the assessment was payable. Id.

By-laws of a mutual benefit insurance society, made a part of a benefit certificate, held to constitute forfeiture, without further act on the part of the society, - on the member's failure to pay dues as required by the society's constitution and by-laws. Id.

Nonpayment of monthly dues held not to operate as a forfeiture of a certificate issued by a fraternal benefit society. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen v. Dee (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 492.

Provided an accident insurance provision held to deny recovery to a beneficiary of a member who was in default when he sustained the injury resulting in his death, though at his death he had been reinstated. Travelers' Protective Ass'n v. America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1039.

Under a rule of a mutual benefit association, failure of a local lodge to pay insured's dues while ill, in the absence of notice of such illness required by the lodge's rule, held not to relieve insured from a forfeiture for nonpayment of dues. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

A provision in a policy for forfeiture for nonpayment of assessments, being for the benefit of the insurer, is to be strictly construed. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, 1 C. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1194.

Holder of policy in a mutual benefit association, by failure to pay assessments within 15 days after notice, as required by by-laws on face of policy, declaring forfeit for non-compliance, forfeited his rights. Hawkins v. Lone Star Ins. Union (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

Policy in mutual benefit association, held notice to the insured of conditions as to payment necessary to keep the policy in force. Id.

A member of a fraternal beneficiary association who paid benefits in advance to his local camp, and the camp was suspended, was entitled to receive benefits on account of disability, and, where they more than equaled assessments levied, his certificate could not be forfeited for nonpayment of assessments. Knights of the Modern Maccabees v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 675.

The constitution and by-laws of an association providing that a member cannot be suspended for nonpayment of dues while sick, it is immaterial that during her sickness she had stated that she knew she was in arrears, that she did not intend to pay any dues, and did not wish to keep up the Insurance. Grand Temple and Tabernacle in the State of Texas v. The Knights and Daughters of Tabor of the International Order of Twelve v. Counts (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1180.

False statements in application or examination.—Where an applicant for a life certificate states that he has never used narcotics, the association cannot defeat liability thereon by showing a use of narcotics which did not amount to a custom or habit. National Fraternity v. Karnes, 24 C. A. 607, 60 S. W. 576.

Statements by insured in his application for a life certificate held to be warranted which, if false, would avoid the policy, though they were made through mistake and in good faith. Id.

Assured's false statement that he had not been successfully vaccinated held not be a representation on the faith of which the policy was issued, so as to render the same void. Sovereign of the World v. Gray, 37 C. A. 500.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that deceased's answers in his application for insurance as to the state of his health were true. Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Crawford, 32 C. A. 608, 75 S. W. 844.

The applicant's answer, that he had never had any serious illness held a mere expression of opinion, which will not avoid the policy. Id.

Answers of insured to questions in a medical examination, accompanying his application for a policy, held warranties. Brock v. United Moderns, 36 C. A. 12, 81 S. W. 340.

Where insured warranted that he had not been under the care of a physician within five years prior to applying for a policy, which statement was untrue, the policy was void. Id.

Questions asked of insured in the application for a benefit certificate held to call for the extent of his use of intoxicants. Endowment Bank Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Townsend, 36 C. A. 651, 83 S. W. 220.

In an action on a certificate issued on the life of a daughter, by application of the father, held, that his false statement that she was in good health would not necessarily defeat recovery on the certificate. Home Circle Soc. No. 2 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 320.

A misstatement concerning medical attendance in an application for life insurance held not matter of law; its materiality depending on the surrounding circumstances. Modern Order of Proratorians v. Hollmig (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 474.

Breach of warranty consisting of a misstatement that insured was not pregnant in an application for insurance held fatal to a recovery, though unintentional, and though she died. Supreme Lodge v. Paynter v. Payne, 101 T. 449, 108 S. W. 1160, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1277.

Statements of the applicant in an application for insurance held statements of opinion merely, and, where the applicant in good faith believed them to be true, their falsity did not vitiate the policy notwithstanding its stipulations. Daniel v. Modern Woodmen of America, 52 C. A. 570, 118 S. W. 211.
Statements of applicant for benefit certificate as to his health held true in the sense intended. - Moderns v. Woodmen of America v. Civ. App. 150 S. W. 158.

Statement of applicant for benefit certificate that applicant did not have typhoid fever is a continuing warranty up to the consummation of the contract; and where within time in which contract could have been consummated the applicant became sick with typhoid could not have taken effect. Id.

Regarding date at which corrections were made in application for benefit certificate, when the applicant was sick, as the date of the certificate, statement in application that applicant was not sick and approval of examining physician, held a fraud on the association within its actual or apparent authority of the physician. Id.

Question of good faith in making answers in application for benefit certificate which were made warranties held immaterial. Id.

Under this article the term "risk assumed" must be taken to mean the hazard of the contract determined by the peril's menacing the life of the insured, and hence a false representation that defendant had never had a certain practicably incurable disease was material to the risk and would avoid the policy which provided that a false answer to such question avoided the policy, even though the applicant died of a wholly different disease.

An answer made to a question in an application for life insurance held not to avoid the policy. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 247.

An applicant's failure to disclose facts tending to show a retraction by another order held not to invalidate his benefit certificate. Id.

A finding that insured had an ulcer of the rectum held not necessarily inconsistent with his representations in his application as to having had the piles. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Hunter, 57 C. A. 115, 143 S. W. 535.

Where insured in his medical examination stated that he had had two miscarriages, proof that she had had two abortions did not show a breach of warranty. Royal Neighbors v. A. of America (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 885.

Where insured denied that she had had any illness within seven years prior to her application, proof that her physicians treated her for headache three years prior to the date of the policy did not necessarily defeat plaintiff's right to recover, the jury being authorized to find that such illness, if any, was not material to the risk assumed within this article. Id.

Statements, in an application for reinstatement in a mutual benefit association, that the applicant was of sound constitution, in good health, and that he had had no severe illness, local disease, or injury since his original petition, when in fact he had had malarial fever, had two operations for hydrocele, had suffered from dysentery and diarrhea or inflammation of the bowels, caused by catarh of the stomach, and had disease of the glands, were misrepresentations "material to the risk" within this article; any fact concerning the health, condition, or physical history of the applicant, which would naturally influence the association in determining whether it would grant the reinstatement, being material to the risk (citing 5 Words and Phrases, p. 4406). Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 251.

- Materiality of question of law on jury's findings.-See notes under Art. 171.

- Waiver.—Forfeiture of a life insurance policy held not waived by ignorance of the insured of the facts of the payment made for him by his mother, under which the forfeiture is claimed. United Moderns v. Pike (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 744.

- Evidence. — Evidence, in an action on a life policy containing a provision that the insurer shall not be liable if insured was not in good health when he received the policy, considered, and held sufficient to show that insured was in good health when he received the policy, so as to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Woodmen of the World v. Logan, 57 C. A. 456, 67 S. W. 131.

Waiver of the defense to an action on a benefit certificate that insured made false statements in his application must be based on actual and not constructive knowledge of the falsity held erroneous. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Roberts, 48 C. A. 328, 107 S. W. 626.

Evidence in an action on an insurance policy held to show that the insured acted in good faith in answering a question. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 247.

Evidence, in an action on a mutual benefit certificate, held to sustain a finding that insured was not affected with lung disease or tuberculosis, and had not changed his residence for his health. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Hunter, 57 C. A. 115, 143 S. W. 539.

Evidence held insufficient to show that member of benefit insurance society was not suspended for nonpayment of assessments at the time of his death. Knights of the Modern Maccabees v. Gills (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 713.

Board of directors of beneficial association held to have had authority to cancel a contract of membership. 'Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Dewey, 34 C. A. 419, 78 S. W. 1087.

Reduction of assessments required to be paid by the holder of a benefit certificate and reduction of the liability of the association held a sufficient consideration for an agreement canceling the member's original certificate and issuing another for a less amount. Cleveland A. H. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 364.

An original beneficiary certificate held revoked, though the designation of beneficiary in the second certificate was illegal. Grand Lodge Colored Knights of Pythias v. Mackey (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 907.

No consent of insurer, without insured's consent, to terminate a contract of life insurance, or relieve the insurer from liability thereon. Royal Fraternal Union v. Lundy, 61 C. A. 637, 113 S. W. 185.
Insured, on the alleged wrongful termination of his policy, may tender premiums, and on maturity sue for benefits. He may sue for damages for the wrongful cancellation of the policy, or sue in equity to determine whether the policy is still in force. Id.

Reinstatement.—Where an application for reinstatement by a member of a benevolent association, as required by the association, was without authority, statements in such application were nunc pactum. Supreme Lodge Nat. Reserve Ass’n v. Turner, 19 C. A. 346, 47 S. W. 44.

A provision of the constitution of a beneficial association held not to entitle a member whose certificate had been forfeited for nonpayment of dues to reinstatement as a member or right on payment of all arrearages within 60 days. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 396.

A policy in a mutual benefit association, forfeited by a failure of the insured to pay assessments, was not revived by an unaccepted tender of the arrearages, made in behalf of the insured at a time when it was known that he could not live. Hawkins v. Lone Star Ins. Union (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

Art. 4835. Funds.—Any society may create, maintain, invest, disburse and apply an emergency surplus or other similar fund in accordance with its laws. Unless otherwise provided in the contract, such funds shall be held, invested and disbursed for the use and benefit of the society, and no member or beneficiary shall have or acquire individual rights therein or become entitled to any apportionment or the surrender of any part thereof, except as provided in section 5 of this Act [Art. 4831]. The funds from which benefits shall be paid and the funds from which the expenses of the society shall be defrayed shall be derived from periodical or other payments by the members of the society and accretions of said funds; provided, that no society, domestic or foreign, shall hereafter be incorporated or admitted to transact business in this state which does not provide for stated periodical contributions sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligations contracted, when valued upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August 23, 1899, or any higher standard, with interest assumption not more than four per cent per annum, nor write or accept members for temporary or permanent disability benefits except upon tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent. per annum.

Deferred payments or installments of claims shall be considered as fixed liabilities on the happenings of the contingency upon which such payments or installments are thereafter to be paid. Such liability shall be the present value of such future payments or installments upon the rate of interest and mortality assumed by the society for valuation, and every society shall maintain a fund sufficient to meet such liability regardless of proposed future collections to meet any such liabilities.

Advance premiums.—Contract for mutual benefit insurance construed, and held, that advance premiums were in the nature of a membership fee, and not to meet bimonthly calls. Smith v. Covenant Mut. Ben. Ass’n, 16 C. A. 593, 43 S. W. 819.

Payment of assessments, premiums, and dues.—Forfeiture of certificate or membership for nonpayment, see notes under Art. 4834.

Right of one giving order on a mutual benefit insurance company for payment of advance premium of soliciting agent to withdraw the same without canceling the application determined. Smith v. Covenant Mut. Ben. Ass’n, 16 C. A. 593, 43 S. W. 819.

The holder of a life benefit certificate who had paid benefit assessments held not released from duty to pay other assessments. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Wenders, 31 C. A. 338, 72 S. W. 890.

The mere fact that a member of a fraternal insurance order had been permitted to pay two delinquent assessments held not to create a binding custom to receive delinquent assessments. Fraternal Union of America v. Hurlock, 33 C. A. 78, 76 S. W. 539.

Finding that subsequent payments by member after notice of virtual reduction of value of certificate by beneficial association were not an election to treat the contract as still in force held justified. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Batte, 34 C. A. 466, 79 S. W. 629.

An officer of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit association, who is authorized to receive and receipt for payments of monthly dues, may receipt therefor at the time of payment or at any time thereafter. United Moderns v. Pistole, 38 C. A. 422, 86 S. W. 377.

Mailing a draft to a former collector for a fraternal order held not payment to the order, and hence the member was properly suspended. Supreme Lodge of Pathfinder v. Johnson, 47 C. A. 109, 104 S. W. 508.

Where it does not appear that an accident insurance association had authorized remittances of dues by mail, payment is not made when the letter containing the remit-
It was no excuse for insured's failure to pay assessments on his certificate that he was unconscious and unable to attend to business when the assessment became due.

The court said a failure of dues to a benefit association is not payment until it is received.

An insurance company held bound to take from benefits due the amount of dues unpaid.

Royal Fraternal Union v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 920.

The court held the secretary of a local lodge of a mutual benefit society in going to delinquent members to collect assessments held a mere courtesy, on which no rights could be based.

Fletcher v. Supreme Lodge Knights & Ladies of Honor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 301.

Evidence of payment.—An entry made on the receipt book of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit association by the proper officer of such lodge, who was authorized to receive payment of dues, showing payment to him of monthly dues on a certain date, may be taken as true by the jury, although such officer testifies that the entry was false.

Evidence held to justify a finding that a member of a fraternal insurance order had not defaulted in the payment of dues for specified months.

Application of payment.—Where member of mutual company, with knowledge that his first payment was applied on membership fee, retains a certificate until forfeiture for nonpayment of bimonthly call, he cannot complain that such application was wrongful.

Recovery of premiums paid.—Member of benefit association held not entitled to recovery of premiums on ground of wrongful expulsion, he not having pursued his remedies within the order.

Supreme Council Catholic Knights of America v. Gambatti, 29 C. A. 80, 69 S. W. 114.

* Member of benefit association held not to have been expelled, and hence not entitled to refund premiums paid. 1d.

The mere fact that the expulsion of a member of a benefit association was void for want of notice and trial as provided by the association's laws held no defense to an action by him to recover premiums paid. 1d.

When a benefit association wrongfully expels a member, and is sued by him for the recovery of premiums paid, the association is not entitled to a credit for the value of the insurance during the time it was in force. 1d.

That defendant's assignor failed to make further payments on certain benefit certificates under a contract, after objection by the beneficiary, held no defense to his right to reimbursement for the amounts previously paid.

Coleman v. Anderson, 98 T. 570, 86 S. W. 730.

The holder of a mutual benefit certificate who exchanged it for a new certificate held not entitled to recover the premiums paid on the first certificate.

Person paying dues and assessments of member of fraternal society pursuant to contract with such member and beneficiaries held entitled to reimbursement for money so expended, though beneficiaries died before the decease of member.

Kelly v. Searcy, 100 T. 666, 102 S. W. 100, reversing (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 1090.

Where a life policy was void ab initio, the premiums paid, with interest thereon, were the measure of damages for a cancellation.

Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias v. Needey (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1, 446.

Rerating, without authority, by a fraternal benefit society of a member held a repudiation of the contract, so as to give the member a right to recover assessments paid.

Art. 4836. Investments.—Every society shall invest its funds only in securities permitted by the laws of this state for the investment of the assets of life insurance companies; provided, that any foreign society permitted or seeking to do business in this state which invests funds in accordance with the laws of the state in which it is incorporated shall be held to meet the requirements of this Act for the investment of funds; provided, that in case the constitution and by-laws of the grand lodge or governing body of any such association provides that all or any part of the beneficiary or mortuary or insurance fund of such association is paid in by or collected from the members of such subordinate or local lodge may be retained in the custody of and controlled and managed by such subordinate or local lodge, and designate what officers of such subordinate or local lodge shall have the custody and control of such fund and authorize such local officers to loan or invest the same, and such local officer shall have executed and filed, and shall from time to time when required by the commissioner of insurance and banking, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking such bond or other written instrument to be prescribed and approved in terms and amount by the commissioner of insurance and banking as will indemnify such fund against waste, depletion or loss through loans, investment or otherwise.
then such fund so secured shall be exempt from the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 10.]

See note under Art. 4827.

Art. 4837. Repealed. See Note under Art. 4827.

Art. 4838. Distribution of funds.—Every provision of the laws of the society for payment by members of such society, in whatever form made, shall distinctly state the purpose of the same and the proportion thereof which may be used for expenses, and no part of the money collected for mortuary or disability purposes or the net accretions of either or any of said funds shall be used for expenses. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4839. Organization.—Seven or more persons, citizens of the United States, and a majority of whom are citizens of this state, who desire to form a fraternal benefit society, as defined by this Act, may make and sign (giving their addresses) and acknowledge before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of incorporation, in which shall be stated:

First. The proposed corporate name of the society, which shall so closely resemble the name of any society or insurance company already transacting business in this state as to mislead the public or to lead to confusion.

Second. The purpose for which it is formed, which shall not include more liberal powers than are granted by this Act; provided, that any lawful, social, intellectual, educational, charitable, benevolent, moral or religious advantages may be set forth among the purposes of the society, and the mode in which its corporate powers are to be exercised.

Third. The names, residences and official titles of all the officers, trustees, directors or other persons who are to have and exercise the general control and management of the affairs and funds of the Society for the first year or until the ensuing election at which all such officers shall be elected by the supreme legislative or governing body, which election shall be held not later than one year from the date of the issuance of the permanent certificate.

Fourth. Such articles of incorporation and duly certified copies of the constitution and laws, rules and regulations, and copies of all proposed forms of benefit certificates, applications therefor and circulars to be issued by such society, and a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, conditioned upon the return of the advance payments, as provided in this section, to applicants, if the organization is not completed within one year, shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, who may require such further information as he deems necessary, and if the purposes of the society conform to the requirements of this Act, and all provisions of law have been complied with, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall so certify and retain and record (or file) the articles of incorporation, and furnish the incorporators a preliminary certificate authorizing said society to solicit members as hereinafter provided.

Upon receipt of said certificate from the commissioner of insurance and banking, said society may solicit members for the purpose of completing its organization and shall collect from each applicant the amount of not less than one regular monthly payment, in accordance with its table of rates as provided by its constitution and laws, and shall issue to each such applicant a receipt for the amount so collected. But no such society shall incur any liability other than for such advanced payments, nor issue any benefit certificate nor pay or allow, or offer or promise to pay or allow, to any person any death or disability benefit until actual bona fide applications for death benefit certificates have been secured upon at least five hundred lives for at least one thousand dollars each, and all such applications for death benefits shall have been regularly examined by legally qualified practicing physicians, and certificates of such examination have been duly filed and approved by the chief medical examiner of such society; nor until there shall be established ten subordinate lodges or branches into which said five hundred applicants have been initiated; nor until there has been submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking, under oath of the president and secretary or corresponding officers of such society, a list of such applicants, giving their names, addresses, date examined, date, approved, date initiated, name and number of the subordinate branch of which each applicant is a member, amount of benefits to be granted, rate of stated periodical contributions, which shall be sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligation, contracted, when valued for death benefits upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality, as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August 23, 1899, or any higher stan-ard, at the option of the society, and for disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience and for combined death and permanent total disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent. per annum; nor until it shall be shown to the commissioner of insurance and banking by the sworn statement of the treasurer or corresponding officer of such society, that at least five hundred applicants have each paid in cash at least one regular monthly payment as herein provided per one thousand dol-ars of indemnity to be effected, which payments in the aggregate shall amount to at least twenty-five hundred dollars; all of which shall be credited to the mortuary or disability fund on account of such applicants and no part of which may be used for expenses.

Said advanced payments shall, during the period of organization, be held in trust, and if the organization is not completed within one year as hereinafter provided, returned to said applicants.

The commissioner of insurance and banking may make such examination and require such further information as he deems advisable; and upon presentation of satisfactory evidence that the society has compiled [complied] with all the provisions of law, he shall issue to such society a certificate to that effect. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such society at the date of such certificate. The com-misston of insurance and banking shall cause a record of such certificate to be made and a certified copy of such record may be given in evidence with like effect as the original certificate.

No preliminary certificate granted under the provisions of this section shall be valid after one year from its date, or after such further period, not exceeding one year, as may be authorized by the commissioner of banking and insurance upon cause shown; unless the five hundred applicants herein required have been secured and the organization has been completed as herein provided; and the articles of incorporation and all proceedings thereunder shall become null and void in one year from the date of said preliminary certificate, or at the expiration of said extended period, unless such society shall have completed its organization and commenced business as herein provided. When any domestic society shall have discontinued business for the period of one year, or has less than four hundred members, its charter shall become null and void.
Every such society shall have the power to make a constitution and by-laws for the government of the society, the admission of its members, the management of its affairs and the fixing and readjusting of the rates of contribution of its members from time to time; and it shall have the power to change, alter, add to, or amend such constitution and by-laws and shall have such other powers as are necessary and incidental to carrying into effect the object and purposes of the society. [Id. sec. 12.]

Right to do business.—When a fraternal beneficiary association has filed with the secretary of state its charter, as required by this section, it has the right to begin business and to continue until enjoined by the suit of the attorney general. Trinity Life & Annuity Society, Love, 192 T. 977, 11 S. W. 1139.

Second charter as amendment of first. — A second charter of benefit insurance company held to operate as an amendment to a former one, and that deceased, agreeing to comply with future regulations, was bound by it. Bollman v. Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 725.

Constitution, by-laws and rules. — It will be supposed that the rules and regulations of mutual insurance companies are known to the members, and there must be substantial compliance therewith. Supreme Lodge of Protection, Knights & Ladies of Honor, v. Grace, 60 T. 569.

Where by-laws of a mutual benefit insurance company are inconsistent, the one most favorable to the member controls. Supreme Lodge, National Reserve Ass'n v. Mondrow-Mil, 79 C. A. 322, 49 S. W. 918.

A member in a mutual benefit association, as well as his beneficiary, held bound by changes in the by-laws, where the insured agreed in his application to abide by the by-laws which might be passed. Duer v. Supreme Council, Order of Chosen Friends, 21 C. A. 459, 53 S. W. 109.

Where charter of benefit insurance company was abandoned, and one obtained in another state was recognized, by deceased, held, the rules enacted under the new charter determined his rights. Bollman v. Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 725.

Where notice of a condition of a benefit certificate, which was part of the constitution, was intended to be given by inserting it in the certificate, but was not, the insured is not chargeable with knowledge on the ground that it was enacted as a by-law. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Fraley. 94 T. 200, 59 S. W. 875, 51 L. R. A. 886.

Where the insured committed suicide while insane, his certificate was not void for fraud, though the insurer provided condition to the contrary. Id.

The minor son and heir of a member of a fraternal insurance association, who failed to name a new beneficiary after the death of his wife, held entitled under its by-laws to recover on a certificate without joining the administrator of the insured as a party. Ording v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 361, 76 S. W. 51.

The meaning of the words "face value," in a by-law of a beneficial association relative to payment of certificates, defined. Supreme Council, American Legion of Honor v. Story (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 901.

By-laws of mutual benefit insurance association held not to require publication in official organ of adopted amendment to by-laws. Id.

A member of a mutual benefit association held bound by a provision of its by-laws rendering his certificate void in case of self-destruction. Id.

Benefits of beneficial association, limiting amount which would be paid on death claims to a sum less than face of member's certificate, could be treated as void, and full amount recovered by beneficiary, or member could regard it as repudiation of contract, and recover premiums paid. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Batte, 34 C. A. 456, 79 S. W. 629.

Provisions in the by-laws of a fraternal benefit society, inhibiting a member from assigning the certificate to secure a debt, or as collateral security, can only be taken advantage of by the society. Coleman v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1057.

In a suit involving the right of the original beneficiary in a mutual benefit certificate or in the member to recover the fund due them, the original beneficiary held not entitled to raise the question of noncompliance with the by-laws of the society governing the change of beneficiaries. Coleman v. Grand Lodge Colored Knights of Pythias (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 909.

The word "killed" as used in the constitution of a benefit association, held to refer to death of a member, and not to the accident or cause of death. Roth v. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America, 102 T. 241, 115 S. W. 31, 132 Am. St. Rep. 871, 20 Ann. Cas. 97.

Business methods," as to which a mutual benefit society was authorized to adopt new by-laws binding on existing members, includes the fixing of proper assessment rates. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

The constitution and laws of a fraternal insurance order held a part of the contract entered into by each member when he becomes a member. Lone Star Lodge No. 1095, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

Policy holders in an insurance association, agreeing to be bound by future by-laws passed, held to intend only such by-laws as the association has power to pass. Eaton v. International Travelers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 217.

Change of rates. — Authority to rerate members received from another organization, see notes under Art. 4581.

A by-law raising the assessment rates payable by an existing member of a mutual benefit society held not an impairment of a vested right. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 92.

Evidence held insufficient to show that an increase in the rates of a mutual benefit society was unreasonable. Id.

A mutual benefit society, both under its certificates and independent thereof, held entitled to pass new laws providing for rerating of members and increasing the amount of monthly premiums. Id.

Affairs of a mutual benefit society held not such as to render a further increase in rates unnecessary and unreasonable. Id.

A constitutional provision of a mutual benefit society, authorizing the rerating of members held applicable to existing members. Id.
A change of assessment rates of a mutual benefit society was not arbitrary where it fell equally on all of plaintiff's class. Id. A by-law providing for the rerating of the members of a mutual benefit society passed by the executive committee held not objectionable because not passed by the supreme legislative body. Id. Under constitution of a subordinate lodge held that an unrecorded proceeding fixing the monthly dues could not be regarded as a by-law. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, K. P. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

The constitution of a fraternal insurance corporation, providing that members taken over from other associations may be rerated, held prospective. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 105 T. 170, 146 S. W. 160.

A provision in a fraternal benefit certificate that the member will comply with the orders and by-laws adopted in the future held to refer only to such regulations as have reference to the duties and conduct of the members, as such, and not to a radical change greatly increasing the assessments. Id.

Art. 4840. Powers retained—Reincorporation—Amendments.—Any society now engaged in transacting business in this state may exercise, after the passage of this Act, all of the rights conferred thereby, and all of the rights, powers and privileges now exercised or possessed by it under its charter or articles of incorporation not inconsistent with this Act, if incorporated; or if it be a voluntary association, it may incorporate hereunder. But no society already organized shall be required to reincorporate hereunder, and any such society may amend its articles of incorporation from time to time in the manner provided therein or in its constitution and laws, and all such amendments shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking and shall become operative upon such filing, unless a later time be provided in such amendments or in its articles of incorporation, constitution or laws. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4841. Mergers and transfers.—No domestic society shall merge with or accept the transfer of the membership or funds of any other society unless such merger or transfer is evidenced by a contract in writing, setting out in full the terms and conditions of such merger or transfer, and filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, together with a sworn statement of the financial condition of each of said societies by its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, and a certificate of such officers, duly verified under oath of said officers of each of the contracting societies, that such merger or transfer has been approved by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the supreme legislative or governing body of each of said societies.

Upon the submission of said contract financial statements and certificates, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall examine the same, and if he shall find such financial statements to be correct and the said contract to be in conformity with the provisions of this section, and that such merger or transfer is just and equitable to the members of each of said societies, he shall approve said merger or transfer, issue his certificate to that effect, and thereupon the said contract or merger or transfer shall be of full force and effect. In case such contract is not approved, the fact of its submission and its contents shall not be disclosed by the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 14.]

Authority to re-rate.—A fraternal insurance corporation organized to receive the membership and assets of another fraternal insurance corporation and to assume its liabilities held not authorized to re-rate a member of the latter organization, pursuant to a constitution adopted by the former. Ericson v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 105 T. 170, 146 S. W. 160.

Art. 4842. Annual license.—Societies which are now authorized to transact business in this state may continue such business until the first day of April next succeeding the passage of this Act, and the authority of such societies may thereafter be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding April; provided, however, the license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. For each such license or renewal the society shall pay the commissioner of insurance and banking ten dollars. A duly certified copy or duplicate of such license shall be prima facie evidence that the licensee is a fraternal benefit society within the meaning of this Act. [Id. sec. 15.]
Art. 4843. Admission of foreign society.—No foreign society now transacting business, organized prior to the passage of this Act, which is not now authorized to transact business in this state, shall transact any business herein without a license from the commissioner of insurance and banking. Any such society shall be entitled to a license to transact business within this state upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking a duly certified copy of its charter or articles of association; a copy of its constitution and laws, certified by its secretary or corresponding officer; a power of attorney to the commissioner of insurance and banking as hereinafter provided; a statement of its business under oath of its president and secretary or corresponding officers in the form required by the commissioner of insurance and banking, duly verified by an examination made by the supervising insurance official of its home state or other state satisfactory to the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state; a certificate from the proper official in its home state, province or country that the society is legally organized; a copy of its contract, which must show that benefits are provided for by periodic or other payments by persons holding similar contracts; and upon furnishing the commissioner of insurance and banking such other information as he may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working, and upon showing that its assets are invested in accordance with the laws of the state, territory, district, province or country where it is organized, he shall issue a license to such society to do business in this state until the first day of the succeeding April, and such license shall, upon compliance with the provisions of this Act, be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding April; provided, however, that license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. Any foreign society desiring admission to this state shall have the qualifications required of domestic societies organized under this Act and have its assets invested as required by the laws of the state, territory, district, country or province where it is organized. For each such license or renewal the society shall pay the commissioner of insurance and banking ten dollars. When the commissioner of insurance and banking refuses to license any society or revokes its authority to do business in this state, he shall reduce his ruling, order or decision to writing and file the same in his office, and shall furnish a copy thereof, together with a statement of his reasons, to the officers of the society, upon request, and the action of the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be reviewable by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction within the state; provided, however, that nothing contained in this or the preceding section shall be taken or construed as preventing any such society from continuing in good faith all contracts made in this State during the time such society was legally authorized to transact business herein. [Id. sec. 16.]

diversion of benefits.—In the absence of proof of the law under which a fraternal beneficiary association is organized, it must be presumed that it comes within this article, admitting associations of another state to do business in this state when they have complied with certain requirements, and that there are the same limitations upon its corporate powers that are imposed upon corporations organized in this state. Any attempt to divert the benefit fund derived from the members from the purpose for which it was provided, and to appropriate it to payment of benefit certificate or policy issued by another corporation with which it had no power to consolidate is ultra vires and void. Whaley v. Bank's Union of the World, 89 C. A. 385, 88 S. W. 262.

Art. 4844. Power of attorney and service of process.—Every society, whether domestic or foreign, now transacting business in this state shall, within thirty days after the passage of this Act, any [and] every such society hereafter applying for admission, shall before being licensed, appoint in writing the commissioner of insurance and banking, and his successors in office to be its true and lawful attorney upon whom all legal process in any action or proceeding against it shall be served, and in such writing shall agree that any lawful process against it which is served upon such attorney shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the society and that the authority shall continue in force so long as any liability remains outstanding in this state.

Copies of such appointment certified by said commissioner of insurance and banking shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof and shall be admitted in evidence with the same force and effect as the original thereof might be admitted. Service shall only be made upon such attorney, must be made in duplicate upon the commissioner of insurance and banking, or, in his absence, upon the person in charge of his office, and shall be deemed sufficient service upon such society; provided, however, that no such service shall be valid or binding against any such society when it is required thereunder to file its answer, plodding [pleading] or defense in less than thirty days from the date of mailing the copy of such service to such society. When legal process against any such society is served upon said commissioner of insurance and banking he shall forthwith forward by registered mail, one of the duplicate copies prepaid and directed to its secretary or corresponding officer. Legal process shall not be served upon any such society except in the manner provided herein. [Id. sec. 17.]

Service under general law.—The act prescribes that citation may be served on the insurance commissioner. It does not repeal the general law authorizing service of citation on "local agents" of foreign corporations. This statute (of 1899) is merely cumulative of the general law on the subject, and therefore service in accordance with either statute is legal and sufficient. Bankers' Union of the World v. Nabors, 38 C. A. 35, 51 S. W. 93.

This article does not take away the right to serve them in the usual mode prescribed by general law, which mode must be adopted where the association has not complied with the act. Modern Woodmen of America v. Metcalfe (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 662.

Art. 4845. Place of meeting—Location of office.—Any domestic society may provide that the meetings of its legislative or governing body may be held in any state, district, province or territory wherein such society has subordinate branches, and all business transacted at such meetings shall be as valid in all respects as if such meetings were held in this state; but its principal office shall be located in this state. [Id. sec. 18.]

Meetings outside of state.—A mutual benefit society may hold meetings of its supreme legislative department, which has authority to make its laws, outside of the state of its incorporation. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, No. 956, v. Fraley, 94 T. 290, 59 S. W. 578, 51 L. R. A. 885.

A beneficial society cannot legally hold a meeting outside the state in which it was incorporated for the exercise of a corporate act. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Fraley (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 905.

Art. 4846. No personal liability.—Officers and members of the supreme, grand or any subordinate body of any such incorporated society shall not be individually liable for the payment of any disability or death benefit provided for in the laws and agreements of such society; but the same shall be payable only out of the funds of such society and in the manner provided by its laws. [Id. sec. 19.]

Liability of directors.—Directors in a voluntary insurance association held personally liable for the amount which a beneficiary should have received, where they wrongfully withheld payment on the member's death and paid it on account of a member subsequently deceased. Home Benefit Ass'n No. 3 of Coleman County v. Wester (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1029.

Art. 4847. Waiver of the provisions of the laws—Separate jurisdiction.—The constitution and laws of the society may provide that no subordinate body nor any of its subordinate officers or members shall have the power or authority to waive any of the provisions of the laws and constitution of the society, and the same shall be binding on the society and each and every member thereof and on all beneficiaries of members.

All grand lodges, by whatever name known, whether incorporated or not, holding charters from any supreme governing body, which were conducting business in this state upon the passage of this Act as a fraternal beneficiary association, upon what is known as the separate jurisdiction plan, shall be treated as single state organizations, and all reports required by the provisions of this Act shall be made and furlished by the officers of such supreme state governing body and shall embrace and contain the transactions, liabilities and assets of such state organization. [Id. sec. 20.]

Estoppel or waiver affecting right of forfeiture.—An act or promise of an officer superintending the business of a mutual benefit association, although beyond his power as defined in the by-laws of the association, if acted upon by a member, will bind the company. See facts in case from denying the privileges of membership to one who was claimed to have forfeited his membership. McCorkle v. Insurance Ass'n, 71 T. 149, 8 S. W. 516.

The knowledge by a benefit company of a member's excessive drinking, long prior to his member not estopped to the action, even if it did not effect suspension, where the certificate provided that it should become void if the holder drank to excess. Kempe v. Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 688.

Failure of subsequent assessments by the supreme lodge of a benevolent association from a subordinate lodge held to estop the supreme lodge from setting up suspension to defeat a recovery by a member of said lodge. Supreme Lodge Nat. Reserve Ass'n v. Turner, 15 C. A. 346, 47 S. W. 44.

Finding that there was no evidence that a benefit order knew that a statement in a member's application was false held supported by the evidence. Brown v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, 29 C. A. 373, 49 S. W. 893.

Where a beneficial society's charter provides that no agent shall waive any law of the order, the issuance of a certificate containing conditions different from those prescribed by amended certificates, which amendment was void, does not violate his official duty. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Fraley (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 905.

A lodge that receives an organizer properly equipped with literature and blanks to organize a local lodge is estopped from resisting liability on the certificate by his accepting an application for insurance with a knowledge of false warranties contained therein. National Fraternity v. Karnes, 24 C. A. 607, 60 S. W. 576.

Estopping a medical physician who signs a statement to enable another physician to get insurance held not to estop the association from relying on a breach of warranty. Id.

A local council of a fraternal insurance association held to have borne the relation of agent to the supreme council, and to have waived in its behalf a breach of warranty by an assured and his subsequent failure to abide by the rules of the order. Order of Columbus of Baltimore City, Md., v. Fuqua (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1020.

A fraternity's receipt of assessments from a person and delivery to him of a benefit certificate, cannot excuse from questions his membership, though he were not initiated. Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Crawford, 32 C. A. 603, 75 S. W. 844.

Forfeitures of policies in a benevolent insurance association held not waived by the acceptance of the policy by the local lodge, without protest, of reports of the local financier later than the by-laws directed. United Moderns v. Pike (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 774.

A waiver by a beneficiary society of the requirement that the applicant must be in good health may be established by showing that it had customarily and knowingly accepted persons not in good health. Home Circle Soc. No. 1 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 84.

A letter inclosing a blank application for reinstatement, sent to a member of a mutual benefit association, held not to constitute a waiver of his previous lapses. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks, 37 C. A. 424, 84 S. W. 425.

In an action on a fraternal life insurance certificate, plaintiff held entitled to show that the application was prepared by defendant's agent, and that defendant did not know it contained the statement of good health, or that condition of health was material. Home Circle Soc. No. 2 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 320.

In a society alleged to have absorbed another society by which plaintiff's wife was insured for plaintiff's benefit, held not liable on such certificate on the ground of equitable estoppel. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World, 39 C. A. 385, 88 S. W. 258.

Clerk of local camp of mutual benefit association held to have authority to waive provision in benefit certificate that no liability should begin thereon until delivered to insured in person, while in good health. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Carrington, 41 C. A. 29, 90 S. W. 921.

Certain fact held not to operate in favor of a claim by a beneficiary of a member of an accident insurance association for his death as a waiver of such member's failure to pay dues. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1039.

In an estoppel of a forfeiture of a certificate to the enforce a waiver of the fact that its local officer by mistake informed insured that a medical certificate was required in order to secure reinstatement. Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen v. Dee, 101 T. 597, 111 S. W. 356.

Custom of local lodges of a mutual benefit society to pay dues of sick members held not to create an estoppel against the association's right to enforce a forfeiture for non-payment of dues. Id.

A member of a mutual benefit society held to have consented to its change from the assessment to the monthly payment plan. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Ericson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 52.

The failure of a fraternal insurance order to surrender a certificate to the beneficiary therein on the death of the member held not a waiver of objections to liability, under the certificate Knight and Members of the World v. Hunter, 105 T. 121, 132 S. W. 116.

Acts constituting a waiver of a condition in a life policy requiring payment of the first premium before the policy takes effect stated. Supreme Lodge United Benevolent Ass'n v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 267.

Prepayment of the first premium on a life insurance policy as a condition precedent to its taking effect may be waived by parol by the insurer or its agent. Id.

A mutual benefit society formed by the consolidation of two societies created by laws of different states held not estopped from denying the legality of the consolidation and denying a liability to a member of one of the societies. Gordon v. American Patriots of Springfield, Ill. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 331.

A deputy head consul of a mutual benefit society held without power to waive a by-law requiring adoption as a condition to membership. McWilliams v. Modern Woodmen of America (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 641.

Collection of certain fees and dues by an organizer of a mutual benefit society held not to estop that society to deny that decedent was a member. Id.

A fraternal insurance company held estopped to assert that an answer of an applicant incorrectly transcribed by its medical examiner was false. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 247.

Forfeiture of policy for nonpayment of assessments held not waived by subsequent notices, nor by invitation to pay arrearages and be reinstated, if in good health, where insured took no steps towards reinstatement. Hawkins v. Lone Star Ins. Union (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

A fraternal beneficiary association which denied liability on a certificate of membership on account of nonmember ship of decedent at the time of his death waived any further proceedings by the beneficiary under its by-laws providing for an appeal from the executive committee. Knights of the Modern Maccabees v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 678.

Art. 4848. Repealed. See note under Art. 4827. The provisions of this article are included in section 20 of the new act (Art. 4847).

Art. 4848a. Benefit not attachable.—No money or other benefit, charity or relief or aid to be paid, provided or rendered by any such society shall be liable to attachment, garnishment, or other process, or be seized, taken or appropriated or applied by any legal or equitable process or operation of law to pay any debt or liability of a member or beneficiary or any other person who may have a right thereunder, either before or after payment. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4849. Constitution and laws—Amendments.—Every society transacting business under this Act shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a duly certified copy of all amendments of, or additions to its constitution and laws within ninety days after the enactment of the same. Printed copies of the constitution and laws, as amended, changed, or added to, certified by the secretary or corresponding officer of the society, shall be prima facie evidence of the legal adoption thereof. [Id. sec. 22.]

Under the articles of incorporation of a mutual benefit society, delegates, when assembled as the "Sovereign Camp," had power to adopt an amendment to the constitution changing the conditions of the benefit certificate. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, 255, v. Fraley, 94 T. 209, 59 S. W. 870.

A member of a beneficial association, accepting a certificate subject to laws that might be adopted before an amendment changing the conditions of certificates, which was void, held not precluded from questioning its validity. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Fraley (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 905.

Art. 4850. Annual reports.—Every society transacting business in this state shall annually, on or before the day of March, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking in such form as he may require, a statement under oath of its president and secretary or corresponding officers, of its condition and standing on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, and of its transactions for the year ending on that date, and also shall furnish such other information as the commissioner of insurance and banking may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working. The commissioner of insurance and banking may at other times require any further statement he may deem necessary to be made relating to such society.

In addition to the annual report herein required, each society shall annually report to the commissioner of insurance and banking a valuation of its certificates in force on December 31st last preceding, excluding those issued within the year for which the report is filed, in cases where the contribution for the first year in whole or in part are used for current mortality and expenses; provided, the first report of valuation shall be made as of December 31st, 1913, such report of valuation shall show, as contingent, liabilities the present mid-year value of the promised benefits provided in the constitution and laws of such society, under certificates the subject to valuation; and, as contingent assets, the present mid-year value of the future net contributions provided in the constitution and laws as the same are in practice actually collected. At the option of any society, in lieu of the above, the valuation may show the net value of the certificates subject to valuation hereinbefore provided, and said net value, when computed in case of monthly contributions, may be the mean of the terminal values for the end of the preceding and of the current insurance years.

Such valuation shall be certified by a competent accountant or actuary, or, at the request and expense of the society, verified by the actuary of the department of insurance of the home state of the society, and shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking within ninety days after the submission of the last preceding annual [annual] report. The legal minimum standard of valuation for all certificates, except for disability benefits, shall be the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Congress, August 23rd, 1899; or, at the option of the society, any higher table; or, at its option, it may use a table based upon the society's own experience of at least twenty years, and covering not less than one hundred thousand lives with interest assumption not more than four per centum per annum. Each such valuation report shall set forth clearly and fully the mortality and interest basis and the method of valuation. Any society providing for disability benefits shall keep the net contributions for such benefits in a fund separate and apart from all other benefit and expense funds and the valuation of all other business of the society; provided, that where a combined contribution table is used by a society for both death and permanent total disability benefits, the valuation shall be according to tables of reliable experiences, and in such cases a separation of the funds shall not be required.

The valuation herein provided for shall not be considered or regarded as a test of the financial solvency of the society, but each society shall be held to be legally solvent [solvent] so long as the founds [funds] in its possession are equal to or in excess of its matured liabilities.

Beginning with the year, 1914, a report of such valuation and an explanation of the facts concerning the condition of the society thereby disclosed, shall be printed and mailed to each beneficiary member of the society not later than June 1st, of each year; or, in lieu thereof, such report of valuation and showing of the society's condition as thereby disclosed may be published in the society's official paper and the issue containing the same mailed to each beneficiary member of the society. The laws of such society shall provide that if the stated periodical contributions of the members are insufficient to pay all matured death and disability claims in full, and to provide for the creation and maintenance of the funds required by its laws additional, increased or extra rates of contribution shall be collected from the members to meet such deficiency; and such laws may provide that, upon the written application or consent of the member, his certificate may be charged with its proportion of any deficiency disclosed by valuation, with interest not exceeding five per centum per annum. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4850a. Provisions to insure future security.—If the valuation of the certificates, as hereinbefore provided, on December 31st, 1917, shall show that the present value of future net contributions, together with the admitted assets, is less than the present value of the promised benefits and accrued liabilities, such society shall thereafter maintain said financial condition at each succeeding triennial valuation in respect of the degree of deficiency as shown in the valuation as of December 31, 1917. If at any succeeding triennial valuation such society does not show at least the same condition, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall direct that it thereafter comply with the requirements herein specified. If the next succeeding triennial valuation after the receipt of such notice shall show that the society has failed to maintain the condition required herein, the commissioner of insurance and banking may, in the absence of good cause shown for such failure, institute proceedings for the dissolution of such society, in accordance with the provisions of section 24 [Art. 4851] of this Act, or in the case of a foreign society, its license may be cancelled in the manner provided in this Act.

Any such society, shown by any triennial valuation, subsequent to December 31, 1917, not to have maintained the condition herein required, shall, within two years thereafter, make such improvement as to show a percentage of deficiency not greater than as of December 31, 1917, or thereafter, as to all new members admitted, be subject, so far as stated rates of contributions are concerned, to the provisions of section 12 [Art. 4839] of this Act, applicable in the organization of new societies; provided, that the net mortuary or beneficiary contributions and funds of such new members shall be kept separate and apart from the other funds of the society. If such required improvement is not shown by the succeeding triennial valuation, then the said new members may be placed in a separate class and their certificates valued as an independent society in respect of contributions and funds. [Id. sec. 23a.]

Art. 4850b. Valuation of certificates on accumulation basis; member may transfer to any plan; valuation on tabular basis; deficiency.—In lieu of the requirements of section 23 [Art. 4850] and 23a [Art. 4850a], any society accepting in its laws the provisions of this section, may value its certificates on a basis herein designated, "accumulation basis," by crediting each member with the net amount contributed for each year and with interest at approximately the next rate earned and by charging him with his share of the losses for each year, herein designated "cost of insurance," and carrying the balance, if any, to his credit. The charge for the cost of insurance may be according to the actual experience of the society applied to a table of mortality recognized by the law of this state, and shall take into consideration the amount at risk during each year, which shall be the amount payable at death less the credit to the member, except as specifically provided in its articles of laws or contracts no charge shall be carried forward from the first valuation hereunder against any member for any past share of losses exceeding the contributions and credit. If, after the first valuation, any member's share of losses for any year exceeds his credit, including the contribution for the year, the contribution shall be increased to cover his share of the losses. Any such excess share of losses chargeable to any member may be paid out of a fund or contribution especially created or required for such purpose.

Any member may transfer to any plan adopted by the society with net rates on which tabular reserves are maintained and on such transfer shall be entitled to make such application of his credit as provided in the laws of the society.

Certificates issued, rerated or readjusted on a basis provided for adequate rates with adequate reserves to mature such certificates upon assumption for mortality and interest recognized by the law of this state shall be valued on such basis, herein designated the "tabular basis"; provided, that if on the first valuation under this section a deficiency in reserve shall be shown for any such certificate, the same shall be valued on the accumulation basis.
Whenever in any society having members upon the tabular basis and upon the accumulation basis, the total of all costs of insurance provided for any year shall be insufficient to meet the actual death and disability losses for the year, the deficiency shall be met for the year from the available funds after setting aside all credits in the reserve or from increased contributions or by an increase in the number of assessments applied to the society, as a whole or to classes of members as may be specified in its laws, savings from a lower amount of death losses may be returned in like manner as may be specified in its laws. If the laws of the society so provide, the assets representing the reserves of any separate class of members may be carried separately for such class as if in an independent society, and the required reserve accumulation of such class, so set apart shall not thereafter be mingled with the assets of other classes of the society.

A table showing the credits to individual members for each age and year of entry and showing opposite each credit the tabular reserve required on the whole life or other plan of insurance specified in the contract, according to assumptions for mortality and interest recognized by the law of this state and adopted by the society, shall be filed by the society with each annual report and also be furnished to each member before July 1st of each year.

In lieu of the aforesaid statement there may be furnished to each member within the same time a statement giving the credit for such member and giving the tabular reserve and level rate required for a transfer carrying out the plan of insurance specified in the contract. No table or statement need be made or furnished where the reserves are maintained on the tabular basis. For this purpose individual bookkeeping accounts for each member shall not be required and all calculations may be made by actuarial methods.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the maintenance of such surplus over and above the credits on the accumulation basis, and the reserves on the tabular basis pursuant to its laws; nor be construed as giving to the individual member any right or claim to any such reserve or credit other than in manner as expressed in the contract and its laws; nor as making any such reserve or credits a liability in determining the legal solvency of the society. [Id. sec. 23b.]

Art. 4851. Examination of domestic societies.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, or any person he may appoint, shall have the power of visitation and examination into the affairs of any domestic society. He may employ assistants for the purpose of such examination, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have, free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society, and may summon and qualify as witnesses under oath and examine its officers, agents and employés or other person in relation to the affairs, transactions and conditions of the society.

The expense of such examination shall be paid by the society examined, upon statement furnished by the commissioner of insurance and banking and the examination shall be made at least once in three years.

Whenever after examination the commissioner of insurance and banking is satisfied that any domestic society has failed to comply with any provisions of this Act, or is exceeding its powers, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, or is transacting business fraudulently; or whenever any domestic society, after the existence of one year or more, shall have a membership of less than four hundred, (or shall determine to discontinue business) the commissioner of insurance and banking may present the facts relating thereto to the attorney general, who shall, if he deem the circumstance warrant, commence an action in quo warranto in a court of competent jurisdiction, and such court shall thereupon notify the officers of such society of a hearing, and if it shall then appear that such society should be closed, said society shall be enjoined from carrying [carrying] on any further business and some person shall be appointed receiver of such society and shall proceed at once to take possession of the books, papers, moneys and other assets of the society, and shall forthwith, under the direction of the court, proceed to close the affairs of the society, and to distribute its funds to those entitled thereto.

No such proceedings shall be commenced by the attorney general against any such society until after notice has been duly served on the chief executive officers of the society and a reasonable opportunity given to it, on a date to be named in said notice, to show cause why such proceeding should not be commenced. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4852. Application for receiver, etc.—No application for injunction against or proceedings for the dissolution of or the appointment of a receiver for any such domestic society or branch thereof shall be entertained by any court in the state unless the same is made by the attorney general. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4853. Examination of foreign societies.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, or any person whom he may appoint, may examine any foreign society transacting or applying for admission to transact business in this state. The said commissioner of insurance and banking may employ assistants, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society, and may summon and qualify as witnesses under oath and examine its officers, agents and employés and other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and conditions of the society. He may, in his discretion, accept in lieu of such examination of the insurance department of the state, territory, district, province or country where such society is organized. The actual expense of examiners making any such examination shall be paid by the society, upon statements furnished by the commissioner of insurance and banking. If any such society or its officers refuse to submit such examination or to comply with the provisions of the section relative thereto, the authority of such society to write new business in this state shall be suspended, or license refused until satisfactory evidence is furnished the commissioner of insurance and banking relating to the condition and affairs of the society, and during such suspension the society shall not write any new business in this state. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4853a. No adverse publications.—Pending during or after an examination or investigation of any such society either domestic or foreign, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall make public no financial statement, report or finding, nor shall he permit to become public any financial statement, report or finding affecting the status, standing or rights of any such society, until a copy thereof shall have been served upon such society, at its home office, nor until such society shall have been afforded a reasonable opportunity to answer any such financial statement, report of finding, and to make such showing in connection therewith as it may desire. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4854. Revocation of license.—When the commissioner of insurance and banking on investigation is satisfied that any foreign society transacting business under this Act has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of this Act, or is conducting business fraudulently, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, he shall notify the society of his findings, and state in writing the grounds of his dissatisfaction, and after reasonable notice require said society, on a date named, to show cause why its license should not be revoked. If, on the date named in said notice, such objections have not been removed to the satisfaction of said commissioner of insurance and banking, or the society does not present good and sufficient reasons why its authority to transact business in this state shall not at that time be revoked, he may revoke the authority of the society to continue business in this state. All decisions and findings of the commissioner of insurance and banking made under the provisions of this section may be reviewed by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction, as provided in section 16 [Art. 4843] of this Act. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4855. Examination of certain societies.—Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to affect or apply to grand or subordinate lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows or Knights of Pythias (exclusive of the insurance department of the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias) and the Junior Order of the United American Mechanics (exclusive of the beneficiary degree or insurance branch of the National Council Junior Order United States American Mechanics) or societies which limit their membership to any one hazardous occupation nor to similar societies which do not issue insurance certificates nor to an association of local lodges of a society now doing business in this state which provides death benefits not exceeding five hundred dollars to any one person or disability benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year to pay one person or both, nor to any contracts of reinsurance business on such plan in this state nor to domestic societies which limit their membership to the employés of a particular city or town, designated firm, business house or corporation, nor to domestic lodges, orders or associations of a purely religious, charitable and benevolent description which do not provide for a death benefit of more than one hundred dollars or for disability benefits of more than one hundred and fifty dollars to any person in one year.

The commissioner of insurance and banking may require from any such information as will enable him to determine whether such society is exempt from the provisions of this Act.

Any fraternal benefit society heretofore organized and incorporated and operating within the definition set forth in sections 1, 2 and 3 [Arts. 4827-4829] of this Act, providing for the benefits in case of death or disability resulting solely from accidents, but which does not obligate itself to pay death or sick benefits, may be licensed under the provisions of this Act and shall have all the privileges and shall be subject to all the provisions and regulations of this Act, except that the provisions of this Act requiring medical examinations, valuations of benefit certificates and that the certificates shall specify the amount of benefits, shall not apply to such society. [Id. sec. 29.]

Legislative power.—The legislature had the power to divide the different associations and orders into classes and to exempt those orders named in this section (16) from the general operation of the law. Supreme Lodge United Benev. Ass'n v. Johnson, 95 T. 1, 81 S. W. 19.

Art. 4856. Taxation.—Every fraternal benefit society organized or licensed under this Act is hereby declared to be a charitable and benevolent institution, and all of its funds and property shall be exempt from all and every state, county, district, municipal and school tax, other than taxes on real estate and office equipment, when same is used for other than lodge purposes. [Id. sec. 30.]

Arts. 4857, 4858.—Repealed. See note under Art. 4827.

Art. 4859. Provisions not to apply to local mutual aid associations; annual statement by such associations, etc.—The provisions of this Act shall not apply to incorporated or unincorporated mutual relief or benefit or burial associations operating upon the assessment plan, whose business is confined to not more than one county in the state, or to a territory in two or more adjacent counties included within a radius of not more than twenty-five miles surrounding the city or town in which its principal office is to be located, which is designated in its charter, which are hereby denominated local mutual aid associations; providing that such associations are in no manner directly or indirectly connected.
federated or associated with any such association, and do not directly or indirectly contribute to the expense or support of any other such association or to the officers, promoters or managers thereof. And, provided, that no person or officer shall receive from said association any payment on account of organization or other expenses or salaries not a bona fide resident of such county, in which such association is domiciled. The association above mentioned shall annually on or before March 1st, file a statement with the commissioner of insurance and banking, which shall be signed and sworn to by the president, secretary and treasurer or the officers holding positions corresponding thereto. Such statement shall show whether the association has during the preceding year done any business outside of the county in which it is domiciled, and shall state whether or not said association is associated, federated or directly or indirectly connected with any other, and shall show what, if anything, has been contributed during the preceding year by said association, or the members to any person or officer or director thereof for salaries, commissions or promotion expenses and the name and residence of the party or parties receiving the same. Should any person in such affidavit herein provided for make any false statement he shall be deemed guilty of false swearing, and punished as provided by law. The commissioner of insurance and banking may, at his option, and it shall be his duty, if not satisfied with said statement, to demand other and additional statements, and examine the books, papers and records of said association, either himself or by some other suitable person, authorized by him. Should it appear to the commissioner of insurance and banking that any such local mutual aid association is not carrying on business as set forth in this section, and is not entitled to the exemption therein set forth, such association shall be subject to and comply with all provisions of this Act as a fraternal beneficiary association. Every such local association claiming to be entitled to the benefit of the exemption created by this section shall plainly state upon its certificates, applications and all advertising matter, in a conspicuous manner, that said association is a local mutual aid association, or same shall be deemed subject to all provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4859a. Penalties.—Any person, officer, member or examining physician of any society authorized to do business under this Act who shall knowingly or willfully make any false or fraudulent statement or representation in or with reference to any application for membership, or for the purpose of obtaining money from or benefit in any society transacting business under this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty days, nor more than one year, or both in the discretion of the court; any person who shall willfully make a false statement of any material fact or thing in a sworn statement as to the death or disability of a certificate holder in any such society for the purpose of procuring payment of a benefit named in the certificate of such holder, and any person who shall wilfully make any false statement in any verified report or declaration [declaration] under oath required or authorized by this Act, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be proceeded against and punished as provided by the statutes of this state in relation to the crime of perjury.

Any person who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in any fraternal benefit society not licensed to do business in this state, or who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in such society not authorized as herein provided to do business as herein defined in this state, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars.
Any person who solicits for or organizes lodges of such association as are described in the first section of this Act without first obtaining from the commissioner of insurance and banking a certificate of authority showing that the association has complied with the provisions of this Act, and is entitled to do business in this state, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than three nor more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment; provided, the provisions of this section shall not be so construed as to prohibit any member or members of a local or subordinate lodge from soliciting any person or persons to become a member of any local or subordinate lodge already in existence; and providing, further, the provisions of this section shall not apply to any member or members of any local or subordinate lodge who participate in, supervise or directs or conducts the organization or establishment of any local or subordinate lodge within the limits of the county of his or their residence or lodge district. All certificates of authority for agents or solicitors shall be issued by the commissioner upon application made therefor by any of the general officers of the association, or by any agent whom the properly authorized governing body of the association has, by resolution, filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, duly empowered to make such application, and all such certificates shall be revoked by the commissioner upon the request of the association and may be revoked for cause upon like ground and in like manner as the certificates of authority of agents for life insurance companies under the laws of this state. All such certificates shall be renewed annually and shall expire on the first day of April of each year, and a fee of $1.00 shall be paid for the use of the state for the issuance of said such certificate.

Any society or any officer, agent or employé thereof neglecting or refusing to comply with or violating any of the provisions of this Act, the penalty for which neglect, refusal or violation is not specified in this section, shall be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars upon conviction thereof. [Id. sec. 32.]

Arts. 4860, 4861.—Repealed. See note under Art. 4827.

Determination of Insolvency.—Under Art. 4861 the power to levy additional assessments is an important factor in determining the corporation's insolvency. State v. Trinity Life & Annuity Society (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1174.

Decisions Relating to Subject

What constitutes the contract.—The constitution and by-laws and the policy of a fraternal benefit association constitute the contract between a member and the association, so far as the insurance is concerned. Haywood v. Grand Lodge of Texas, K. P. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1194.

Insurer's application to a fraternal benefit insurance company, the certificate, and the by-laws, with amendments, held to constitute the contract of insurance. Modern Woodmen of America v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1065.

Agents of association.—The medical examiner and worthy recorder of an insurance society held agents of the society while performing the duties of his office in the absence of a restriction on such authority contained in the contract of insurance. Modern Order of Praetorians v. Holmg (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 474.

A secretary of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit society acts as the agent of the subordinate lodge and its members, and not of the grand lodge, in sending up assessments. Grand Lodge United Brothers of Friendship of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 195.

Under the by-laws of an insurance society, the local secretary in collecting dues and assessments represents the society, and not the member. Supreme Lodge United Benevolent Ass'n v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 907.

Contingency upon which benefits become payable.—The constitution and by-laws of a beneficial association held not to authorize the recovery of a sick benefit by one who had been a member of the association less than six months when the illness commenced, though it lasted more than that time. Dabura v. Sociedad de la Union (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 835.

In an action to recover on a certificate from a fraternal benefit society on the ground of insanity held, that under the terms of the certificate it must be insanity such as would authorize an adjudication of insured's mental status by the courts. Knipp v. United Benev. Ass'n, 45 C. A. 357, 101 S. W. 272.
A member in a mutual benefit society held permanently and totally disabled within the meaning of the certificate. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen v. Dee (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 462.

That the evidence that a member of an accident insurance association died because of a certain injury is circumstantial held not to require that it be of such nature as not render the conclusion against the death as untenable as to call for the other conclusion so caused. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Roth (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1039.

A beneficiary certificate entitling the member to one-fourth of his benefit if he should "lose a foot" held not to mean that there must be a severance of the foot from the body held to mean a permanent loss of use of the foot. Modern Order of Praetorians v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 260.

Where insured while insane and resisting arrest was killed by a sheriff, his policy was continued for death while violating the criminal laws of the state. Woodmen of the World v. Dodg (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 254.

Where the evidence, in an action on a benefit certificate, shows that the insured was shot and killed in consequence of his violation of law, it is immaterial whether the person shooting him committed an offense. Woodmen of the World v. Hipp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 316.

Where the by-laws of an accident insurance association provided for payment only when an insured should receive accidental injury immediately and wholly disabling him from transacting any kind of business, the fact that the insured, a traveling salesman, continued a journey after his accident will not bar recovery. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Bosworth (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 346.

Evidence.—In an action on a mutual benefit certificate, evidence held to sustain a finding that insured's death was not suicidal. Grand Fraternity v. Melton (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 967; Same v. Green, 131 S. W. 442.

Evidence held not to raise an issue for the jury as to the intention of insured in a claim that the insured had been morally certain of his death. Evidence held to establish a higher degree of intent to commit suicide. Grand Fraternity v. Melton. 102 T. 399, 117 S. W. 788.

Evidence in an action on a fraternal benefit certificate held to: To show that insured was engaged in performing duties incident to the sale of intoxicating liquors when he died. Woodmen v. McConich (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 56.

To authorize a finding that K. was the aggressor in the fight in which insured was killed. Woodmen of the World v. McCooll (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 894. To sustain a finding that the insured did not die of a concealed disease. Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood v. Jones (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 297. To sustain a finding that insured did not commit suicide. Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 718.

Where the defense was that insured died by reason of a violation of law, and there was evidence that he went to another's house, and that the other was angered by language of insured, and approached him without any weapon, and that insured then struck him a violent blow, following which insured was shot, held not to show self-defense, so as to exempt him from a breach of the certificate. Woodmen of the World v. Hipp (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 316.

Proof of death.—Where the by-laws of a beneficial association require a report of the cause of death by the subordinate council to the supreme secretary, the beneficiary need not make proof of death. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Landers, 23 A. 635, 67 S. W. 307.

A fraternal insurance order held to deny liability, so that proof of death of member was unnecessary. Grand Fraternity v. Mulkey (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 242.

Release on part payment.—A receipt or release in whole, given on payment by a beneficial association of part of a certificate, held to be without consideration. Supreme Council, American Legion of Honor, v. Storey (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 901.

Insolvency of association.—The holder of a certificate against a mutual benefit association held entitled to enforce his rights against its assets which had been turned over to an invalid consolidation or under an invalid act of a receiver. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World, 39 A. 385, 88 S. W. 259.

A fraternal beneficiary association held not insolvent so as to authorize a termination of its business, though its unmatured obligations greatly exceeded its assets. State v. Trinity Life & Annuity Society (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1174.

Defenses in action on certificate.—A fine entered against a member of a beneficial association by the secretary held no defense to an action on the certificate. Scrwemen's Benev. Ass'n v. O'Donohoe, 25 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 683.

Amount recoverable.—Where insurer agreed to pay so much for each member in the order, not exceeding a specified sum, the fact that the members were not sufficient to pay the sum, and that the fund was not sufficient therefor, are matters of defense. International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1198.

A beneficiary of a $3,000 certificate, disabled to perform any or all kinds of labor, could recover only the sum of the annual installments due at the time of the trial, and not the entire amount of the certificate. Supreme Tent of Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Cox, 25 C. A. 366, 60 S. W. 971.

Where deceased surrendered a benefit certificate and accepted one for a lesser amount under a mistake of law, his beneficiary was not entitled to recover on the surrendered certificate, in the absence of evidence of misrepresentations. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 27.

Actions for breach of contract.—Improper motives of officers of fraternal benefit order in disorganizing and reorganizing local lodge held insufficient to constitute a cause of action against the order for conspiracy to deprive利益 of membership. Grand Lodge Order of Hermann's Sons of Texas v. Schubert, 36 C. S. 539, 83 S. W. 247.

To make conduct of a fraternal association in maliciously expelling a member actionable, it is not necessary that hatred or ill will by the association toward the member be shown. Thompson v. Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 41 C. A. 176, 91 S. W. 834.

Member of fraternal association who is wrongfully expelled held entitled to sue for damages. Id.
A member of a fraternal association wrongfully expelled therefrom need not exhaust his remedies within the order to correct its wrongful action, but may sue for damages. Thompson v. Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 41 C. A. 176, 91 S. W. 334; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453.

Held, further, that plaintiff was not limited to recovery of nominal damages. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453.

In an action for the publication of an order of expulsion of plaintiff from an association's journal, defendant cannot claim protection on the ground that the publication was privileged. Id.

A member of a beneficial association, having been wrongfully expelled, is not required to prosecute all his remedies by appeal within the association before instituting a suit for damages against his expulsion. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson, 102 T. 89, 112 S. W. 144, 19 Ann. Cas. 1250.

If a member of a beneficial association was entitled to recover damages for his wrongful expulsion, he was entitled to recover as actual damages, his pecuniary loss, also for mental suffering and humiliation, and the value of his insurance and traveling card forfeited. Id.

An expelled member of a beneficial association held entitled to recover for such expulsion if the members did not exercise an honest judgment in finding that a certain act constituted a violation of the member's obligation to the society, and used it as a pretext to expel him on another unwarranted charge, but not otherwise. Id.

A finding of the members of a beneficial association acting fairly and in good faith that a letter written by a member was a violation of the constitution and laws of the order is conclusive on the court on the question. Id.

The measure of damages for the wrongful cancellation of a life policy is the value of the policy at the time of its cancellation. Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias v. Neeley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1046.

Where a life policy was canceled by agreement between the parties and insured obtained a new certificate, which insurer wrongfully canceled, the measure of damages did not include the premiums paid on the first policy. Id.

Remedies of insured for wrongful cancellation of a policy on his life stated. Id.

The act of a fraternal insurance order held to give a member thereof a right of action against it. Id.

Rights as to lodge property.—Under the constitution of a fraternal insurance order, the right of members' of a subordinate order to property thereof held merely the right to use it during the meetings of the lodge. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1189.

Suspension of lodge.—Officers of supreme lodge of benevolent association held to have right to waive by-laws suspending a subordinate lodge for failure to promptly remit assessments. Supreme Lodge Nat. Reserve Ass'n v. Turner, 19 C. A. 346, 47 S. W. 44.

The suspension of a subordinate lodge of a benevolent association held not to suspend its members. Id.

A forfeiture of the rights of a subordinate lodge of a mutual benefit society held unauthorized because not in accordance with the laws of the order. Grand Lodge United Brothers of Friendship of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 195.

The suspension of a subordinate lodge of a fraternal insurance order held not to affect property rights of members within bill of rights, so that the suspension was not invalid because made without notice. Id.

The moral and social privileges of which members of a subordinate lodge have been deprived by reason of a suspension thereof held not properly within a bill of rights, so that the courts will not interfere therewith. Id.

Authority of court in certain matters.—The court, at the suit of the members of a subordinate lodge of a fraternal insurance order, held not authorized to interfere with the action of the supreme lodge suspending the subordinate lodge. Lone Star Lodge No. 1935, Knights and Ladies of Honor, v. Cole (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1180.

The courts will not interfere with the internal policy of a fraternal benefit association, whether incorporated or not, unless some valuable or property right is involved. Id.

Members of a fraternal insurance order held required to comply with the constitution relating to appeals from actions of officers, and they cannot first resort to the courts. Id.

CHAPTER EIGHT

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4860. Marine, fire and other than life and health insurance companies, may do what.

Art. 4863. Commissioner may permit capital stock of company to be reduced, when.

Art. 4864. When company is called upon to make good its capital stock, shall do what.

Art. 4865. Stockholders failing to pay when called upon, what course shall be taken.

Art. 4866. Company may create and dispose of new stock, when.

Art. 4867. Unlawful dividends.

Art. 4868. Penalty for making unlawful dividends.

Art. 4869. Insurance companies shall not purchase or hold real estate, except.

Art. 4870. Shall file bond.

Art. 4871. May deposit securities in lieu of bond.
Article 4862. [3074] Marine, fire and all other than life or health insurance companies, may do what.—It shall be lawful for any insurance company doing business in this state under the proper certificate of authority, except a life or health insurance company to insure houses, buildings and all other kinds of property against loss or damage by fire, and to take all kinds of insurance on goods, merchandise, or other property in the course of transportation, whether on land or water, or any vessel afloat, wherever the same may be; to lend money on bottomry or respondentia; and to cause itself to be insured against any loss or risk it may have incurred in the course of its business and upon the interest which it may have in any property by means of any loan or loans which it may have made on bottomry or respondentia; and generally to do and perform all other matters and things proper to promote these objects; to insure automobiles or other motor vehicles, whether stationary or being operated under their own power, against all or any of the risks of fire, lightning, wind storms, hail storms, tornadoes, cyclones, explosions, transportation by land or water, theft and collisions upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state, notification of their purpose to do so. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 34, sec. 8. Acts 1913, p. 209, sec. 1, amending Art. 4862, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4863. [3077] Commissioner may permit capital stock of company to be reduced, when.—Whenever the joint stock of any fire, fire and marine, or marine insurance company of this state becomes impaired, the commissioner of insurance and banking may, in his discretion, permit the said company to reduce its capital stock and par value of its shares in proportion to the extent of impairment; but in fixing such reduced capital no sum exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars shall be deducted from the assets and property on hand, which shall be retained as surplus assets; and no part of such assets and property shall be distributed to the stockholders, nor shall the capital stock of a company in any case be reduced to an amount less than one hundred thousand dollars. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 222, sec. 8, subd. 11.]

Art. 4864. [3078] When company is called upon to make good its capital stock, shall do what.—Any fire, marine, or inland, insurance company having received notice from the commissioner of insurance and banking to make good its whole capital stock within sixty days, shall forthwith call upon its stockholders for such amounts as shall make its capital equal to the amount fixed by the charter of such company. [Id. sec. 221.]

Art. 4865. [3079] Stockholder failing to pay when called upon, what course shall be taken.—In case any stockholder of such fire, marine, or inland insurance company shall neglect or refuse to pay the amount so called for, after notice personally given, or by advertisement for such time and in such manner as said commissioner shall approve, it shall be lawful for said company to require the return of the original certificate of stock held by such stockholder, and in lieu thereof to issue new certificate for such number of shares as such defaulting stockholders may be entitled to, in the proportion that the ascertained value of the funds of said company may be found to bear to the original capital of said company; the value of such shares, for which new certificates are issued, to be ascertained under the direction of said commissioner, and the company shall pay for the fractional parts of shares. [Id. sec. 8.]
Art. 4866. [3080] Company may create and dispose of new stock, when.—It shall be lawful for such fire, marine, or inland insurance company to create new stock and dispose of the same, and to issue new certificates therefor, to any amount sufficient to make up the original capital of the company. [Id.]

Art. 4867. [3087] Unlawful dividends.—It shall not be lawful for any life, health, fire, marine, or inland insurance company organized under the laws of this state to make any dividend, except from the surplus profits arising from its business; and in estimating such profits there shall be reserved therefrom a sum equal to forty per cent of the amount received as premiums on unexpired fire risks and policies, and one hundred per cent of the premiums received on unexpired life, health, marine, or inland transportation risks and policies, which amount so reserved is hereby declared to be unearned premiums; and there shall also be reserved the amount of all unpaid losses, whether adjusted or unadjusted; all sums due the company on bonds, mortgages, stocks and book accounts, of which no part of the principal or the interest thereon has been paid during the year preceding such estimate of profits, and upon which suit for foreclosure or collection has not been commenced, or which, after judgment has been obtained thereon, shall have remained more than two years unsatisfied, and upon which interest shall not have been paid; and, in case of any such judgment, the interest due or accrued thereon and remaining unpaid shall also be reserved. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4868. [3088] Penalty for making unlawful dividends.—Any dividends made contrary to the provisions of the preceding article shall subject the company making it to a forfeiture of its charter, and the commissioner of insurance and banking shall forthwith revoke its certificate of authority. [Id.]

Art. 4869. [3076] Insurance companies shall not purchase or hold real estate, except, etc.—No fire, marine, or inland insurance company organized under the laws of this state shall purchase or hold any real estate, except—

1. Such as shall be requisite for its convenient accommodation in the transaction of its business.
2. Such as shall have been mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for loans previously contracted or for money due.
3. Such as shall have been conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the legitimate business of the company or for money due.
4. Such as shall have been purchased at sales under judgments, decrees or mortgages obtained or made for such debts.

All lands purchased or held in violation of this article shall be forfeited to the state. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4870. Shall file bond.—Every fire insurance company, not organized under the laws of this state, applying for a certificate of authority to transact any kind of insurance in this state, shall, before obtaining such certificate, file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a bond, with good and sufficient surety or sureties, to be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, payable to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and his successors in office, in a sum equal to twenty-five per cent of its premiums collected from citizens or upon property in this state during the preceding calendar year, as shown by its annual report for such year; provided, however, the bond in no case shall exceed fifty thousand dollars, nor be less than ten thousand dollars, conditioned that said company will pay all its lawful obligations to citizens of this state. Such bonds shall be subject to successive suits by citizens of this state so long as any part of the same shall not be exhausted, and the same shall be kept in force unimpaired until all claims of citizens of this state arising out of obligations of said company have been fully satisfied. Such bonds shall provide that, in the event the company shall become insolvent or cease to transact business in this state, at any time when it has outstanding policies of insurance in favor of citizens of this state, or upon property in this state, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall have the power, after having given ten days notice to the officers of such company, or any receiver in charge of its property and affairs, to contract with any other insurance company transacting business in this state for the assumption and reinsurance by it of all the insurance risks outstanding in this state of such company which is insolvent, or which has ceased to transact business in this state, which contract shall also provide for the assumption by such reinsuring company of all outstanding and unsatisfied lawful claims then outstanding against such company which has become insolvent, or ceased to transact business in this state: and in the event of the commissioner making any such contract, and if the same shall be approved as reasonable by the attorney general and the governor of this state, the reinsuring company shall be entitled to recover from the makers of such bond the amount of the premium or compensation so agreed upon for such reinsurance. Any company desiring to do so may, at its option, in lieu of giving the bond required by this article, deposit securities of any kind, in which it may lawfully invest its funds with the state treasurer of this state upon such terms and conditions as will in all respects afford the same protection and indemnity as is herein provided for to be afforded by said bond. [Acts 1909, p. 182, sec. 1.]

When bond required.—Under this article and Art. 4871, requiring that before any company shall issue any policy it shall first have filed during the calendar year in which such policy may issue any policy it shall first have filed during the calendar year in which such policy may issue any policy it shall first have filed, “during the calendar year in which such policy may issue, a bond,” etc., and the practice and statutory provision, under which the state department did not issue the certificates to insurance companies until March, the words “calendar year,” as used in Art. 4871, would be read in connection with this article, and construed to mean the calendar year in which the certificate is to run. Since it is obvious that the legislature considered that the certificate was to run a calendar year, and since any other construction would leave an interval between January and March, during which time a policy issued by the company would not be preceded by a bond “filed during the calendar year.” Id.

Under the statutory provision that certificate of authority for an insurance company to do business in the state must be obtained annually, and this article, the filing of a bond is required whenever a certificate to do business was applied for. Id.

Obligation of bond.—Under this article and Art. 4871, which requires that, before any company shall issue any policy, it shall first have filed a bond conditioned for the payment of all lawful obligations to citizens of the state arising out of any policies or contracts issued by such company, a bond filed must contain all the conditions imposed by either section, except that the bond mentioned in this article would be limited by the language of Art. 4871 to include only lawful obligations arising out of insurance policies or contracts. Ectna Ins. Co. v. Hawkins, 103 T. 195, 125 S. W. 313.

Bond for benefit of policy holders.—A bond executed by defendant to indemnify a surety on the bond of a foreign insurance company to enable it to obtain a license to do business in Texas held to inure to the benefit of policy holders of the insurance company. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1176.

Art. 4871. May deposit securities in lieu of bond.—Every fire insurance company, not organized under the laws of this state, hereafter issuing, or causing or authorizing to be issued, any policy of insurance other than life insurance, shall first have filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking during the calendar year in which such policy may issue, or authorize or cause to be issued, a bond of good and sufficient sureties to be approved by such commissioner in a sum of not less than ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the payment of all lawful obligations to citizens of this state arising out of any policies or contracts.
issued by such fire insurance company; which such bond shall be subject to successive suits by citizens of this state so long as any part of the same shall not be adjusted, and so long as there remains outstanding any such obligations or contracts of such fire insurance company. This article shall not apply to any person, firm or corporation, or association, doing an inter-insurance, co-operative or reciprocal business. [Id. sec. 3.]

Obligation of bond.—See notes under Art. 4870.

Art. 4872. [3083] Annual statement of company.—It shall be the duty of the president or of the vice-president and secretary of each fire, marine or inland insurance company doing business in this state, annually, on the first day of January of each year, or within sixty days thereafter, to prepare under oath and deposit with the commissioner of insurance and banking of this state a full, true and complete statement of the condition of such company on the last day of the month of December preceding. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 37, sec. 17.]

Art. 4873. [3084] What the annual statement shall exhibit.—The annual statement required by the preceding article shall exhibit the following items and facts:
1. The name of the company and where located.
2. The names and residences of the officers.
3. The amount of capital stock of the company.
4. The amount of capital stock paid up.
5. The property or assets held by the company, viz.: The real estate owned by such company, its location, description and value as near as may be, and if said company be one organized under the laws of this state, shall accompany such statement with an abstract of the title to the same; the amount of cash on hand and deposited in banks to the credit of the company, and in what bank or banks the same is deposited; the amount of cash in the hands of agents, naming such agents; the amount of cash in course of transmission; the amount of loans secured by first mortgages on real estate, with the rate of interest thereon, specifying the location of such real estate, its value and the name of the mortgagor; the amount of all bonds and other loans, with the rate of interest thereon and how secured; the amount due the company in which judgments have been obtained, describing such judgments; the amount of stock of this state, of the United States, of any incorporated city of this state, and of any other stock owned by the company, describing the same and specifying the amount and number of shares, and the par and market value of each kind of stock; the amount of stock held by such company as collateral security for loans, with amount loaned on each kind of stock, its par and market value; the amount of interest actually due to the company and unpaid; all other securities, their description and value.
6. The liabilities of such company, specifying the losses adjusted and due; losses adjusted and not due; losses unadjusted; losses in suspense and the causes thereof; losses resisted and in litigation; dividends, either in scrip or cash, specifying the amount of each declared but not due; dividends declared and due; the amount required to reinsure all outstanding risks on the basis of forty per cent of the premium on all unexpired fire risks and one hundred per cent of the premium on all unexpired marine and inland transportation risks; the amount due banks or other creditors, naming such banks or other creditors and the amount due to each; the amount of money borrowed by the company, of whom borrowed, the rate of interest thereon and how secured; all other claims against the company, describing the same.
7. The income of the company during the preceding year, stating the amount received for premiums, specifying separately fire, marine and inland transportation premiums, deducting reinsurance; the amount received for interest, and from all other sources.
8. The expenditures during the preceding year, specifying the amount of losses paid during said term, stating how much of the same accrued prior, and how much subsequent, to the date of the preceding statement, and the amount at which losses were estimated in such preceding statement; the amount paid for dividends; the amount paid for return premiums, commissions, salaries, expenses and other charges of officers, agents, clerks and other employees; the amount paid for local, state, national, internal revenue and other taxes and duties; the amount paid for all other expenses such as fees, printing, stationery, rents, furniture, etc.

9. The largest amount insured in any one risk, naming the risk.

10. The amount of risks written during the year then ending.

11. The amount of risks in force having less than one year to run.

12. The amount of risks in force having more than one and not over three years to run.

13. The amount of risks having more than three years to run.

14. It shall be stated whether or not dividends are declared on premiums received for risks not terminated. [Id.]

Change of law.—So far as subdivision 7 is in conflict with section 8 of the act of 1907 (Suny. & Dom. Ins. Act 1907, p. 482, ch. 603) the latter must prevail. The act of 1907 prescribes with certainty what the report of the fire insurance company shall be upon the subject of the gross receipts, and its terms are not modified by the former laws. Fire Association v. Love, 101 T. 378, 108 S. W. 810.

Art. 4874. [3089] Policy shall be considered a liquidated demand.

—A fire insurance policy, in case of a total loss by fire of property insured, shall be held and considered to be a liquidated demand against the company for the full amount of such policy; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to personal property. [Acts 1879, ch. 73, p. 83.]

See Arts. 4874a, 4874b.

See, also, Merchants' Ins. Co. of New York v. Story et al., 13 C. A. 124, 35 S. W. 68.

Real or personal property.—When the petition describes and the evidence shows the fact that a dwelling house, which was attached to the soil and so described in the policy, was totally destroyed, at least a prima facie case is made justifying the court to treat the property as not personal and bringing the case within the terms of this article. Cooperative Ins. Ass'n v. Hubba, 63 C. A. 68, 115 S. W. 671.

Where property covered by a fire policy is clearly real estate, a provision in the policy that the property shall be considered personal for the purposes of the contract is void, because in contravention of this article, though, where the true status of the property is doubtful, it may be permissible for the parties by agreement to impress it with the character of personalty, provided the agreement is made in good faith, and not to contravene the statute. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

Validity of stipulation.—In case of loss of a house the policy, issued under this article, is a liquidated demand, and the insurer is liable for the full amount expressed in the policy, though the amount not exceeding the value of the property, notwithstanding there was subsequent insurance with the consent of the insurer, upon a stipulation that in the event of a loss it should only be liable for its proportion of three-fourths of the cash market value of the property at the time of the fire. So far as the policy covered personal property, its provisions as to the share of loss to be suffered by the insured should be allowed full force and effect. Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 578; East Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287.

Total loss.—When the loss is total it is a liquidated demand, and notice or proof of loss is not necessary. Suit may be maintained on the policy as on any other liquidated demand, with the single addition that the property on which it was issued was real property and that it had been totally destroyed. Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 582; Continental Ins. Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 602.

When a city ordinance prohibited the repair of a wooden building within its limits, when injured by fire to the extent of one-third its value, and an application to repair such a building is refused, the loss is total. H. & B. Ins. Co. v. Garlington, 66 T. 103, 18 S. W. 337, 59 Am. Rep. 613.

If an insured building is injured by fire so as to have lost its identity and specific character as a building, the loss is total. Id.

A total loss exists when the specific character and identity as a house is lost; it does not mean the entire destruction of its material. Royal Ins. Co. v. McIntyre (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 669.

There is no total loss of a building so long as the remnant of the structure standing is reasonably adapted to use as a basis upon which to restore the building to the condition in which it was before the injury. Royal Ins. Co. v. McIntyre, 90 T. 170, 37 S. W. 1068, 38 L. R. A. 672, 59 Am. St. Rep. 747.

The statute embraces a house without reference to the question of the fee-simple title to the building, or to the insurer. Oliver v. Parklin, 14 C. A. 512, 38 S. W. 60.

An insurance company cannot avoid its liability for total loss of a house on the ground that an excessive value was stated by the owner. German Ins. Company v. Jansen, 18 C. A. 196, 45 S. W. 228.

A building is a total loss within this article, where the remnant is inconsiderable compared with the part entirely destroyed, and does not constitute a sufficient basis to restore the burned building. Murphy v. American Cent. Ins. Co., 25 C. A. 241, 54 S. W. 407.

The question of injury to the foundation should not be considered by the jury in reaching a conclusion as to total loss. Id.

The loss is total where only part of one wall was left standing so as to be used in another building, and this event was condemned by the architect as unfit for use. Am. Cent. Ins. Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 956.

Liquidated demand.—Though by express provision of this article a demand on a fire policy, in case of total loss of the property insured, is a liquidated demand, a claim for breach of a contract to renew or procure insurance is an unliquidated demand within Art. 1350, providing that unliquidated damages cannot be set off in an action on a certain demand. Wise v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

Where a policy insured a building for a certain amount, and the furniture for another amount, the amount upon the building became a liquidated demand upon the total destruction of that structure, regardless of its value, under this article. Co-operative Ins. Ass'n of San Angelo v. Ray (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1122.

Measure of recovery.—Neither the jobbing, nor the ordinary price of the goods destroyed, nor the cost of manufacturing them, was held to furnish the measure of damages. Van Rensselaar v. Marine Ins. Co. v. Co., 18 C. A. 566, 45 S. W. 946.

The measure of damages under an insurance contract where loss is not total is the difference between the value of the whole property and damaged within the amount of the policy. Newkirk v. Everett, 18 C. A. 514, 44 S. W. 192.

Where goods insured are held by manufacturer thereof, their market price at time and place of destruction is the basis for determining loss. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 19 C. A. 306, 46 S. W. 651.

Where goods destroyed by fire were replaced by assured within 30 days, such was a reasonable time, and the cost of the goods fixed the measure of his recovery under the policy. Texas Moline Plow Co. v. Niagara Fire Ins. Co., 39 C. A. 168, 57 S. W. 192.

"Actual value" defined. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 690.

Insured held entitled to recover, not merely what secondhand goods would sell for, but what it would cost her to replace them. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 268.

A fire policy issued to a lessee construed, and held not to give to the lessee a right to recover the rental value of the property covered by the policy. Williamsburgh City Fire Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1097.

Liability of co-insurers.—An insurer held liable, under a three-fourths clause of a divisible policy, only for three-fourths of the value of each item covered, taken separately. Sun Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tufts, 30 C. A. 147, 50 S. W. 180.

The "co-insurance clause," limiting the risk to such proportion of the loss as the sum insured bears to the value of the whole property covered, is valid. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Moore, 21 C. A. 555, 51 S. W. 578.

Where a loss so far exceeds the whole insurance that each insurer will be liable to its full amount, an insurer cannot complain of the method of computation adopted. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 446, 69 S. W. 335.

When a policy is issued for an insurance on growing crops, it may be renewed by the policy holder to the extent of the insurance at the same rate per unit only from the date on which the policy was issued. The "lives insured clause" does not make the insurance inapplicable to the farmer's life. Bower v. Fawcett (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 845.

Fire policies held to constitute double insurance, limiting the liability of one insurer according to the terms of its policy. Id.

A stipulation in a fire policy held not to nullify a provision therein limiting insurer's liability to no greater proportion of the loss sustained than the amount insured by it bore to the whole insurance. Id.

Whether void or voidable by the issuance of a second policy, held that a prior policy should be considered as insurance in determining the second insurance company's liability under a clause providing that it was liable for no greater amount than its policy bore to the whole amount of the insurance. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. of Austin v. Barr (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 845.

Effect of foreclosure of mortgage.—Foreclosure of a mortgage on property insured by mortgagee held not to prevent her from recovering for loss under the policy. Sun Ins. Co. v. Bankwitz (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 98.

Notice of loss given on the day succeeding is a compliance with a condition requiring immediate notice. The plaintiff being absent at the time of the fire. Oakland Home Ins. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 587.

Under this article proof of loss may be made at any time before suit is brought. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Shacklett (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 583.

Art. 4874a. Breach or violation by insured of policy, etc., on personal property, not a defense, when.—That no breach or violation by the insured of any of the warranties, conditions or provisions of any fire insurance policy, contract of insurance, or application therefor, upon personal property, shall render void the policy or contract, or constitute a defense to a suit for loss thereon, unless such breach or violation contributed to bring about the destruction of the property. [Acts 1913, p. 194, sec. 1.]

Art. 4874b. Provisions not affected.—That the provisions hereof shall in no way affect or repeal the provisions of article 4874 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 in so far as the same relates to fire insurance policies upon real or mixed property. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4875. [3075] Reinsurance.—No fire, fire and marine, marine or inland insurance company doing business in this state shall expose itself to any one risk, except when insuring cotton in bales and grain, to an amount exceeding ten per cent of its paid up capital stock, unless the excess shall be insured by such company in some other solvent insurance company legally authorized to do business in this state.

2. Every fire, fire and marine, marine or inland insurance company doing business in this state may reinsure the whole or any part of any policy obligation in any other insurance company legally authorized to do business in this state. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall require every year from every insurance company doing business in this state a certificate sworn to before an officer legally qualified to administer oaths in the state of Texas, to the effect that no part of the business written by such company in this state has been reinsured in whole or in part by any company, corporation, association or society not authorized to do business in this state. Every insurance company doing business shall also furnish the commissioner of insurance and banking with a list of all reinsurances during the year in authorized companies, showing the name, amount and premium effected in each company.

3. Any insurance company authorized to transact the business of fire, fire and marine, marine and inland insurance in this state, failing to comply with the provisions of this article, shall forfeit its authority to do such business for a period of one year; and it is hereby made the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to investigate any complaint as to violation of said article; and, upon satisfactory proof that any company authorized to transact the business of fire, fire and marine, marine or inland insurance in this state has violated the provisions of this article, the said commissioner shall revoke the certificate of authority of the offending company.

4. The commissioner of insurance and banking, upon the payment of license fee of twenty-five dollars, issue to an agent who is regularly commissioned to represent one or more fire, fire and marine insurance companies authorized to do business in this state, a certificate of authority to place excess lines of insurance in companies not authorized to do business in this state; provided, that the party desiring such excess insurance shall first file with the commissioner of insurance and banking an affidavit that he has exhausted all the insurance obtainable from companies duly authorized to do business in the state.
5. Before receiving license provided for in section 4 of this article, party applying for same shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, payable to the governor of the state, for the faithful observance of the provisions of this article. Said bond to be approved by the commissioner, and to be for the benefit of the state of Texas.

6. Every agent so licensed shall report, under oath, to the commissioner of insurance and banking, within thirty days from the first day of January and July of each year, the amount of gross premiums received by him for such excess insurance, and shall pay the said commissioner a tax of five per cent thereon. The agent procuring a license as provided in this article shall keep a separate record of all transactions herein provided open at all times to the inspection of the commissioner, or his legally appointed representative. In default of the payment of any sums which may be due the state under this article, the said commissioner may sue for the same in any court of record in this state. [Act Feb. 17, 1875, p. 34, sec. 8. Amended Acts 1905, p. 112.]

Application.—This article does not forbid the taking of risks in excess of 10 per cent. of the capital stock, but requires that the excess shall be reinsured; and an insurance company, issuing a policy in a sister state on a building in excess of 10 per cent. of its capital stock without reinsuring the excess, violates the statute, though it is authorized under the laws of the sister state to take the risk. Glen Falls Ins. Co. v. Hawkins, 103 T. 327, 126 S. W. 1114.

CHAPTER NINE
STATE INSURANCE COMMISSION

Art. 4876. Companies deemed to have accepted provisions of law.—Every fire insurance company, every marine insurance company, every fire and marine insurance company, every fire and tornado insurance company, and each and every insurance company of every kind and name issuing a contract or policy of insurance, or contracts or policies of insurance against loss by fire on property within this state, whether such property be fixed or movable, stationary or in transit, or whether such property is consigned or billed for shipment within or beyond the boundary of this state or to some foreign country, whether such company is organized under the laws of this state or under the laws of any other state, territory or possession of the United States, or foreign country, or by authority of the federal government, now holding a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, shall be deemed to have accepted such certificate and to transact business thereunder, upon condition that it consents to the terms and provisions of this Act and that it agrees to transact business in this state, subject thereto; it being intended that every contract or policy of insurance against the hazard of fire shall be issued in accordance with the terms and provisions of this Act, and the company issuing the same governed thereby, regardless of the kind and character of such property and whether the same is fixed or movable, stationary or in transit, including the shore end of all marine risks insured against loss by fire. [Acts 1913, p. 195, sec. 3.]

Art. 4876a. Maximum rate of premiums for fire insurance.—After this Act shall take effect, a maximum rate of premiums to be charged or collected by all companies transacting in this state the business of fire insurance, as herein defined, shall be exclusively fixed and determined and promulgated by the state fire insurance commission created by this Act, and no such fire insurance company shall, after this Act takes effect, charge or collect any premium or other compensation for or on account of any policy or contract of fire insurance as herein defined in excess of the maximum rate as herein provided for, but may write insurance at a less rate than the maximum rate as herein provided for; provided, that when insurance is written for less than the maximum rate, such lesser rate shall be applicable to all risks of the same character situated in the same community. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4877. State insurance commission; appointment, etc.—That there may be reasonable and just insurance rates in Texas, there is hereby created a commission to be known as the “State Insurance Commission,” which shall be composed of the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall be chairman thereof, and two commissioners who shall be appointed by the governor by and with the consent of the senate, subject to removal as provided for removal of state officers by article 3528 of the Revised Statutes of Texas [Art. 6027, Rev. St. 1911, and this compilation]; the members of said commission other than the commissioner of insurance and banking shall be appointed as herein provided within ten days after this Act takes effect; one of said members to be so appointed shall be appointed for a term ending February 1, 1914, and biennially thereafter; the other of said members of said commission shall be appointed for a term ending February 1st, 1915, and biennially thereafter, and the governor in making his first appointments to fill these respective offices shall designate which of said officers shall fill the term expiring February 1st, 1914, and which of said officers shall fill the term expiring February 1st, 1915. The commissioner of insurance and banking, for the purpose of this Act, may be referred to as the commissioner of insurance. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4878. Compensation, etc.; appropriation.—The members of said commission other than the commissioner of insurance and banking shall each receive as compensation for their services the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2500.00) per annum; and the commissioner of insurance and banking shall receive as compensation or salary for his services under this Act, the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) per annum in addition to his compensation as now fixed by law. Such salaries of the said two appointed members of said commission, and the said five hundred dollars ($500.00) salary of the commissioner of insurance and banking, together with the necessary compensation of experts, the clerical force, and other persons employed by said commission, and all necessary traveling expenses, and such other expenses as may be necessary, incurred in carrying out the provisions of this Act, shall be paid by warrants drawn by the comptroller upon the state treasurer upon the order of said commission; provided, that the total amount of all salaries and said other expenses shall not exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) annually, and for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars ($125,000.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary for the period beginning April 1st, 1913, and ending August 31st, 1914. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4879. Insurance commission to fix rates, etc.—The state fire insurance commission shall have the sole and exclusive power and authority, and it shall be its duty to prescribe, fix, determine and promulgate the rates of premiums to be charged and collected by fire insurance companies transacting business in this state. As soon as practicable after this Act shall take effect, the state fire insurance commission shall begin the work of fixing and determining and promulgating the rates of premiums to be charged and collected by fire insurance companies throughout the state, and the making and adoption of its schedules of such rates, and then until such time as this work shall have been completed, said commission shall have full power and authority to adopt and continue in force the rates of premiums which may be lawfully charged and collected when this Act shall take effect, or any portion thereof, for such time as it may prescribe or until the work of making such schedules for the entire state shall be completed. Said commission shall also have authority to alter and amend any and all such rates of premiums so fixed and determined and adopted by it, and to raise or lower the same, or any part thereof, as herein provided. Said commission shall also have authority to employ clerical help, inspectors, expert and other assistants, and to incur such other expenses as may be necessary in carrying out the provisions of this Act; provided that such expenses, including the salaries of the members of the commission shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) per annum.

It shall be the duty of said commission to ascertain as soon as practicable, the annual fire loss in this state; to obtain, to make and maintain a record thereof and collect such data and information with respect thereto as will enable said commission to classify the fire losses of this state, the causes thereof, and the amount of premiums collected therefor for each class of risks and the amount paid thereon, in such manner as will be of assistance in determining equitable insurance rates, methods of reducing such fire losses, and reducing the insurance rates of the state, or subdivisions of the state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4880. Secretary and fire marshal.—For the purpose of facilitating the work of said commission, one of the appointed members thereof shall be selected by the commission as its secretary, who shall perform the duties which shall appertain to that position, and whose official title shall be "Secretary of the State Insurance Commission"; the other of said appointed members thereof shall be selected by said commission as fire marshal of the state insurance commission, and his official title shall be "Fire Marshal of the State Insurance Commission;" but the said members so selected as secretary and fire marshal as aforesaid, shall receive no compensation for filling their respective positions, other than their salaries as members of the state insurance commission, and shall perform the duties of those respective positions at the will of the commission, but their expenses incurred in performing the duties of these positions shall be paid as provided in this Act. [Id. sec. 7.]
Art. 4881. Duties of fire marshal.—It shall be the duty of the fire marshal of the state insurance commission, who, for the purpose of this Act, may be referred to as the state fire marshal, at the discretion of the board, and upon the request of the mayor of any city or village, or the chief of a fire department of any city or village or any fire marshal where a fire occurs within such city or village, or of a county or district judge, or of the sheriff or county attorney of any county, where a fire occurs within the district or county of the officer making such request, or of any fire insurance company, or its general, state or special agent, interested in a loss, or of a policyholder sustaining a loss, or upon the direction of the state insurance commission to forthwith investigate at the place of such fire before loss can be paid, the origin, cause and circumstances of any fire occurring within this state, whereby property has been destroyed or damaged, and shall ascertain if possible whether the same was the result of any accident, carelessness or design, and shall make a written report thereof to the state insurance commission, and shall also furnish in writing, to the county or district attorney of the county in which such fire occurred, all the information and evidence obtained by him including a copy of all the pertinent testimony taken in the case. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4882. Powers of fire marshal.—The state fire marshal shall have the power to administer oaths, take testimony, compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents and to enter at any reasonable time, any buildings or premises where a fire has occurred or is in progress, or any place contiguous thereto for the purpose of investigating the cause, origin and circumstances of such fire. And he may enter and examine at any reasonable time any building, structure or place for the purpose of ascertaining the fire hazard and may remove or require the owner or occupant to remove or safely store combustible material, dangerously exposed or improperly placed therein, and to remove any unnecessary exposure to fire hazard found therein; the said state fire marshal is hereby authorized when necessary to apply to a court of competent jurisdiction for the necessary writs or orders to enforce the provisions of this section, and in such case he shall not be required to give bond. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4883. When state fire marshal is unable to act.—If for any reason the state fire marshal is unable to make any required investigation in person, he may designate the fire marshal of such city or town or some other suitable person to act for him; and such person so designated shall have the same authority as is herein given the state fire marshal with reference to the particular matter to be investigated by him, and shall receive such compensation for his services as may be allowed by the state insurance commission. If the investigation of a fire is made at the request of an insurance company, or at the request of a policyholder sustaining loss, or at the request of the mayor, town clerk or chief of the fire department of any city, village or town in which the fire occurred, the expenses of the fire marshal, clerical expenses, witnesses and officers fees incident and necessary to such investigation shall be paid by such insurance company, or such policyholder of such city or town as the case may be, otherwise the expenses of such investigation are to be paid as part of the expenses of the state insurance commission. Provided, the party or parties, company or companies, requesting such investigation shall before such investigation is commenced deposit with the state insurance commission, an amount of money in the judgment of said commission sufficient to defray the expenses of said fire marshal in conducting such investigation. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4884. Action of fire marshal not to affect policies, etc.—No action taken by the state fire marshal shall affect the rights of any policyholder or any company in respect to a loss by reason of any fire so investigated; nor shall the result of any such investigation be given in evidence upon the trial of any civil action upon such policy, nor shall any statement made by any insurance company, its officers, agents or adjusters, nor by any policyholder, or any one representing him, made with reference to the origin, cause or supposed origin or cause of a fire to the fire marshal or to any one acting for him, or under his direction, be admitted in evidence or made the basis for any civil action for damages. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4885. Statements to be made to insurance commission; powers of commission.—That said commission is authorized and empowered to require sworn statements from any insurance company affected by this Act, and from any of its directors, officers, representatives, general agents, state agents, special agents and local agents of the rates and premiums collected for fire insurance on each class of risks, on all property in this state during any or all years for the five years next preceding the first day of January, 1913, and of the causes of fire, if such be known, if they are in possession of such data, and information, or can obtain it at a reasonable expense; and said commission is empowered to require such statements for any period of time after the first day of January, 1913, and said commission is empowered to require such statements showing all necessary facts and information to enable said commission to make, amend and maintain the general basis schedules provided for in this Act, and the rules and regulations for applying same and to determine reasonable and proper maximum specific rates and to determine and assist in the enforcement of the provisions of this Act. The said commission shall also have the right, at its discretion, either personally, or by some one duly authorized by it to visit the office whether general, local or otherwise, of any insurance company doing business in this state, and the home office of said company outside of this state, if there be such, and the office of any officers, directors, general agents, state agents, local agents or representatives of such company, and there require such company, its officers, agents or representatives to produce for inspection by said commission or any of its duly authorized representatives all books, records and papers of such company or such agents and representatives; and the said commission or its duly authorized agents or representatives shall have the right to examine such books and papers and make or cause to be made copies thereof; and shall have the right to take testimony under oath with reference thereto, and to compel the attendance of witnesses for such purpose; and any company, its officers, agents or representatives failing to make such statements and reports herein referred to and failing or refusing to permit the examination of books, papers and records as herein required, when so called upon or declining or failing to comply with any provisions of this section shall be subject to the penalties provided for in section 26 [Art. 4900] of this Act. Said commission shall be further authorized and empowered to require the fire insurance companies transacting business in this state or any of them, to furnish said commission with any and all data which may be in their possession, either jointly or severally, including maps, tariffs, inspection reports and any and all data affecting fire insurance risks in this state, or in any portion thereof and said commission shall be authorized and empowered to require any two or more of said companies, or any joint agent or representative of them, to turn over any and all such data in their possession, or any part thereof, to said commission for its use in carrying out the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4886. Rates to be reasonable; schedules of rates; powers and duties of commission; when rates take effect, etc.—The rates of premium fixed by said commission under and in pursuance of the provision of this Act shall be at all times reasonable and the schedules thereof made and promulgated by said commission as herein provided, shall be in such form as will in the judgment of the commission, most clearly and definitely and in detail disclose the rate so fixed and determined by said commission to be charged and collected for policies of fire insurance.

Said commission may employ and use any facts and information now in the possession of the present state insurance board, as well as all facts obtainable from and concerning fire insurance companies transacting business in this state, showing their expense and charges for fire insurance premiums, for any period or periods, said commission may deem advisable, which in their opinion will enable them to devise and fix and determine reasonable rates of premium for fire insurance. The said com-mmission in making and publishing schedules of the rates fixed and determined by it shall show all charges, credits, terms privileges and conditions which in any wise affect such rates, and copies of all such schedules shall be furnished by said commission to any and all companies affected by this Act applying therefor, and the same shall be furnished to any citizens of this state applying therefor, upon the payment of the actual cost thereof. No rate or rates fixed or determined by the commission shall take effect until it shall have entered an order or orders fixing and determining same, and shall give notice thereof to all fire insurance companies affected by this Act, authorized to transact business in the state. It shall be the duty of the state fire insurance commission, and of any inspector or other agent or employé thereof, who shall inspect any risk for the purpose of enabling the commission to fix and determine the reasonable rate to be charged thereon, to furnish to the owner of such risk at the date of such inspection, a copy of the inspection report, showing all defects that may operate as charges to increase the insurance rate.

Said commission shall have full power and authority to alter, amend, modify or change any rate fixed and determined by it on thirty days' notice, or to prescribe that any such rate or rates shall be in effect for a limited time, and said commission shall also have full power and authority to prescribe reasonable rules whereby in cases where no rate of premium shall have been fixed and determined by the commission, for certain risks or classes of risks, policies may be written thereon at rates to be determined by the company, provided, however, that such company or companies shall immediately report to said commission such risk so written, and the rates collected therefor, and such rates shall always be subject to review by the commission. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4887. Companies may petition for change of rates, etc.; credits for reduced hazards, etc.—Any fire insurance company or companies affected by this Act shall have the right at any time to petition the com-mmission for an order changing or modifying any rate or rates fixed and determined by the commission, and the commission shall consider such petition in the manner provided in this Act and enter such order thereon as it may deem just and equitable. The commission shall have full authority and power to give each city, town, village or locality credit for each and every hazard they may reduce or entirely remove, and also for all added fire fighting equipment, increased police protection, or any other equipment or improvement that has a tendency to reduce the fire hazard of any such city, town, village or locality, and also to give credit for a good fire record made by any city, town, village or locality. Said commission shall also have the power and authority to compel any company to give any or all policyholders credit for any and all hazards that said policyholder or holders may reduce or remove. Said credit shall be in proportion to such reduction or removal of such hazard and said company or companies shall return to such policy holder or holders such proportional part of the unearned premium charged for such hazard that may be reduced or removed. [Id. sec. 14.]
Art. 4888. Company to furnish policy holder with analysis of rate; schedules open to public.—When a policy of fire insurance shall be issued by any company transacting the business of fire insurance in this state, such company shall furnish the policyholder with a written or printed analysis of the rate or premium charged for such policy, showing the items of charge and credit which determine the rate, unless such policyholder has theretofore been furnished with such analysis of such rate. All schedules of rates promulgated by said commission shall be open to the public at all times, and every local agent of a fire insurance company transacting business in this state shall have and exhibit to the public copies of such schedules covering all risks upon which he is authorized to write insurance. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4890. Authority to revise schedules of rates.—The commission shall have full power and authority after having given reasonable notice, not exceeding thirty days, of its intention to do so, to alter, amend or revise any rates of premium fixed and determined by it in any schedules of such rates promulgated by it as herein provided, and to give reasonable notice of such alteration, amendment or revision to the public, or to any company or companies affected thereby. Such altered, amended or revised rates shall be the rates thereafter to be charged and collected by all fire insurance companies affected by this Act; provided, that no policy in force prior to the taking effect of such changes or amendments shall be affected thereby, unless there shall be a change in the hazard of the risk, necessitating a change in the rate applicable to such risk, in which event such policy shall be subject to the new rates. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4891. Commission to establish uniform policies, etc.—It shall be the duty of the state insurance commission to make, promulgate and establish uniform policies of insurance applicable to the various risks of this state, copies of which uniform policies shall be furnished each company doing business in this state, or which may hereafter do business in this state. That after such uniform policies shall have been established and promulgated and furnished the respective companies doing business in this state, such companies shall, within sixty days after the receipt of such forms of policies, adopt and use said form or forms and no other; also all companies which may commence business in this state after the adoption and promulgation of such forms of policies, shall adopt and use the same and no other forms of policies.

The said state fire insurance commission shall also prescribe all standard forms, clauses and endorsements used on or in connection with insurance policies. All other forms, clauses and endorsements placed upon insurance policies shall be placed thereon subject to the approval of the commission. The commission shall also have authority in its discretion to change, alter or amend such form or forms of policy or policies, and such clauses and endorsements used in connection therewith, upon giving notice and proceedings in accordance with section 21 [Art. 4895] of this Act. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4892. Certain provisions in policies void.—Any provision in any policy of insurance issued by any company subject to the provisions of this Act to the effect that if said property is encumbered by a lien of any character or shall after the issuance of such policy become encumbered by a lien of any character, that such encumbrance shall render such policy void, shall be of no force and effect, and any such provision within or placed upon any such policy shall be absolutely null and void. [Id. sec. 18.]
Art. 4893. Co-insurance clauses.—No company subject to the provisions of this Act may issue any policy or contract of insurance covering property in this state, which shall contain any clause or provision requiring the assured to take out or maintain a larger amount of insurance than that expressed in such policy, nor in any way providing that the assured shall be liable as co-insurer with the company issuing the policy for any part of the loss or damage which may be caused by fire to the property described in such policy, and any such clause or provision shall be null and void, and of no effect; provided that the co-insurance clauses and provisions may be inserted in policies written upon cotton, grain or other products in process of marketing, shipping, storing or manufacture. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4894. Right of persons to petition insurance commission.—Any citizen or number of citizens of this state or any policyholder or policyholders, or any insurance company affected by this Act, or any board of trade, chamber of commerce, or other civic organization, or the civil authorities of any town, city, or village, shall have the right to file a petition with the state fire insurance commission, setting forth any cause of complaint that they may have as to any order made by this commission, or any rate fixed and determined by the commission, and they shall have the right to offer evidence in support of the allegations of such petition by witnesses, or by depositions, or by affidavits; upon the filing of such petition, the party complained of, if other than the commission shall be notified by the commission of the filing of such petition and a copy thereof furnished the party or parties, company or companies, of whom complaint is made, and the said petition shall be set down for a hearing at a time not exceeding thirty days after the filing of such petition and the commission shall hear and determine said petition; but it shall not be necessary for the petitioners or any one of them to be present to present the cause to the commission, but they shall consider the testimony of all witnesses, whether such witnesses testify in person or by depositions, or by affidavits, and if it be found that the complaint made in such petition is a just one, then the matter complained of shall be corrected or required to be corrected by said commission. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4895. Regulations for hearings by insurance commission; actions to vacate or modify; injunctions or restraining orders; appeals, etc.—The state fire insurance commission shall give the public and all insurance companies to be affected by its orders or decisions, reasonable notice thereof, not exceeding thirty days, and an opportunity to appear and be heard with respect to the same; which notice to the public shall be published in one or more daily papers of the state, and such notice to the insurance company or companies to be affected thereby shall be by letter deposited in the postoffice, addressed to the state or general agent of such company or companies if the address of such state or general agent be known to the commission, or if not known, then such letter shall be addressed to some local agent of such company or companies, or if the address of a local agent be unknown to the commission, then by publication in one or more of the daily papers of the state, and the commission shall hear all protests or complaints from any insurance company or any citizen or any city, or town, or village or any commercial or civic organization as to the inadequacy or unreasonableness of any rates fixed by it or approved by it, or as to the inadequacy or unreasonableness of any general basis schedules promulgated by it or the injustice of any order or decision by it, and if any insurance company, or other person, or commercial or civic organization, or any city, town or village, which shall be interested in any such order or decision, shall be dissatisfied with any regulation, schedule or rate adopted by such commission, such company or person, commercial or civic organization, city, town or village shall have the right, within thirty days after the making of such regulation or order, or rate, or schedule or within thirty days after the hearing above provided for, to bring an action against said commission in the district court of Travis county to have such regulation or order or schedule or rate vacated or modified; and shall set forth in a petition therefor the principal ground or grounds of objection to any or all of such regulations, schedules, rates or orders; in any such suit, the issue shall be formed and the controversy tried and determined as in other civil cases, and the court may set aside and vacate or annul any one or more or any part of any of the regulations, schedules, orders or rates promulgated or adopted by said commission, which shall be found by the court to be unreasonable, unjust, excessive or inadequate, without disturbing others. No injunction, interlocutory order or decree suspending or restraining [restraining] directly or indirectly the enforcement of any schedule, rate, order or regulation of said commission shall be granted; provided, that in such suit, the court, by interlocutory order, may authorize the writing and acceptance of fire insurance policies at any rate which in the judgment of the court is fair and reasonable, during the pendency of such suit, upon condition that the party to such suit in whose favor the said interlocutory order of said court may be, shall execute and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking a good and sufficient bond to be first approved by said court, conditioned that the party giving said bond will abide the final judgment of said court and will pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking whatever difference in the rate of insurance, it may be finally determined to exist between the rates as fixed by said state fire insurance commission complained of in such suit, and the rate finally determined to be fair and reasonable by the court in said suit, and the said commissioner of insurance and banking, when he receives such difference in money, shall transmit the same to the parties entitled thereto.

Whenever any action shall be brought by any company under the provisions of this section within said period of thirty days, no penalties nor forfeitures shall attach or accrue on account of the failure of the plaintiff to comply with the orders, schedules, rates or regulations sought to be vacated in such action until the final determination of the same.

Either party to any such action, if dissatisfied with the judgment or decree of said court, may appeal therefrom as in other civil cases. No action shall be brought in any court of the United States to set aside any orders, rates, schedules or regulations made by said commission under the provisions of this Act until all of the remedies provided herein, shall have been exhausted by the party complaining.

If any insurance company affected by the provisions of this Act shall violate any of the provisions of this Act, the commissioner of insurance shall, by and with the consent of the attorney general, cancel its certificate of authority to transact business in this state. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4896. Insurance companies not to do certain things.—No company shall engage or participate in the insuring or re-insuring of any property in this state against loss or damage by fire except in compliance with the terms and provisions of this Act; nor shall any such company knowingly write insurance at any lesser rate than the rates herein provided for, and it shall be unlawful for any company so to do, unless it shall thereafter file an analysis of same with the commission, and it shall be unlawful for any company, or its officers, directors, general agents, state agents, special agents, local agents, or its representatives, to grant or contract for any special favor or advantages in the dividends or other profits to come thereon, or in commissions in the dividends or other profits to accrue thereon, or in commissions or division of commission, or any position or any valuable consideration or any inducement not specified in the policy contract of insurance; nor shall such company give, sell or purchase, offer to give, sell or purchase, directly or indirectly as an inducement to insure or in connection therewith, any stocks, bonds or other securities of any insurance company or other corporation, partnership or individual, or any dividends or profits accrued or to accrue thereon, or anything of value whatsoever, not specified in the policy; but nothing in this section or in this Act shall be construed to prohibit a company from sharing its profits with its policyholders, provided that such agreement as to profit-sharing shall be placed on or in the face of the policy, and such profit-sharing shall be uniform and shall not discriminate between individuals or between classes; provided, however, that no part of the profit shall be paid until the expiration of the policy. Any company, or any of its officers, directors, general agents, state agents, special agents, local agents or its representatives, doing any of the acts in this section prohibited, shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination; provided, however, that if any agent of [or] company shall issue a policy without authority, and any policyholder holding such policy shall sustain a loss or damage thereunder, said company or companies shall be liable to the policyholder thereunder, in the same manner and to the same extent as if said company had been authorized to issue said policies, although the company issued said policy in violation of the provisions of this Act. But this shall not be construed to give any company the right to issue any contract or policy of insurance other than as provided in this Act. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4897. Unlawful to accept rebate.—No person shall knowingly receive or accept from any insurance company or from any of its agents, sub-agents, brokers, solicitors, employés, intermediaries or representatives, or any other person, any rebate of premium payable on the policy, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other financial profits accrued or to accrue thereon, or any valuable consideration, position or inducement not specified in the policy of insurance, and any person so doing shall be guilty of a violation of the provisions of this section, and shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100.00) or by imprisonment in the county jail for not exceeding ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4898. Law not applicable to collection of premiums; certain policies to be in force.—The provisions of this law shall not deal with the collection of premiums, but each company shall be permitted to make such rules and regulations as it may deem just between the company, its agents, and its policyholders; and no bona fide extension of credit shall be construed as a discrimination, or in violation of the provisions of this Act.

All policies herefore issued or which shall hereafter be issued by any insurance company prior to the taking effect of this Act which provide that said policies shall be void for non-payment of premiums at a certain specified time, shall be and the same are in full force and effect, provided, that the company or any of its agents have accepted the premium on said policies after the expiration of the dates named in said provisions fixing the date of payment. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4899. Commissioner of insurance may revoke authority of company, when.—The commissioner of insurance, upon ascertaining that any insurance company or officer, agent or representative thereof, has violated any of the provisions of this Act, may, at his discretion, and with the consent and approval of the attorney general, revoke the certificate of authority of such company, officer, agent or representative; but such revocation of any certificate shall in no manner affect the liability of such company, officer, agent or representative to the infliction of any other penalty provided by this Act, and provided, that any action, decision or determination of the commissioner of insurance and banking and the attorney general in such cases shall be subject to the review of the courts of this state as herein provided. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4900. Unlawful for company or agents to evade law.—Any insurance company affected by this Act, or any officer or director thereof, or any agent or person acting for or employed by any insurance company, who, alone, or in conjunction with any corporation, company or person, who shall wilfully do or cause to be done, or shall wilfully suffer or permit to be done any act, matter or thing prohibited or declared to be unlawful by this Act, or who shall wilfully omit or fail to do any act, matter or thing required to be done by this Act or shall cause or wilfully suffer or permit any act, matter or thing directed not to be done, or who shall be guilty of any wilful infraction of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars ($300.00), nor more than one thousand dollars ($1000) for each offense. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4901. Persons testifying in trials for violation of law not to be prosecuted.—No person shall be excused from giving testimony or producing evidence when legally called upon to do so at the trial of any other person or company charged with violating any of the provisions of this Act on the ground that it may incriminate him under the laws of this state; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he may testify or produce evidence under this Act, except for perjury in so testifying. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4902. Law not to apply to certain companies.—This Act shall not apply to purely mutual or to purely profit-sharing fire insurance companies incorporated or unincorporated under the laws of this state, and carried on by the members thereof solely for the protection of their property and not for profit; nor to purely co-operative inter-insurance and reciprocal exchange carried on by the members thereof solely for the protection of their property and not for profit. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4903. Gross premiums tax.—There shall be assessed and collected by the state of Texas, an additional one and one-quarter (1 1/4) per cent. of the gross premiums on all fire insurance companies doing business in this state, according to the reports made to the commissioner of insurance and banking as required by law; and said taxes when collected shall be placed in a separate fund with the state treasurer to be expended during the current year, in carrying out the provisions of this Act; and should said amount collected be more than necessary to pay all expenses, the state fire insurance commission may reduce the rate for the next succeeding year, so that no more money will be collected than is necessary to pay all necessary expenses of maintaining the commission, which funds shall be paid out on requisitions made out and filed by the commissioner when the comptroller shall issue warrants therefor. [Id. sec. 29.]

See Art. 7376 for provision as to gross premium taxes.

Exemption.—Under this article, an insurance company which had paid such an occupation tax in 1909 at the rate of 2 per cent. under an existing law is not exempted: the provisions for such exemption referring to future legislation, and not to existing statutes. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Von Rosenberg, 103 T. 571, 132 S. W. 467.

Mandamus.—Mandamus to require commissioner to impose tax assessments, see notes under Title 89.

Art. 4904. Unconstitutionality of part not to affect whole law.—If any part of this Act be for any reason held unconstitutional, it shall not affect any other portion or part of this Act. [Id. sec. 30.]
CHAPTER TEN
MUTUAL FIRE, LIGHTNING, HAIL, AND STORM INSURANCE COMPANIES

Article 4905. Incorporation; for what purposes.—Any number of persons, not less than seven, who shall be resident citizens of the state of Texas, may form and incorporate a company for the purpose of mutual insurance against loss or damage by fire, lightning, hail and storms, and for all or either of such purposes; provided, that every company incorporated, under the provisions of this Act shall embody the word “mutual” in its title, which shall appear upon the first page of every policy, and renewal receipt. [Acts 1913, p. 54, sec. 1.]

See Art. 4907p.

Article 4906. Application for permit; contents of application; fee; duty of commissioner of insurance and banking.—When any number of persons, not less than seven, desire to organize a mutual insurance company, as herein provided, they shall make application to the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas for permission to solicit insurance on the mutual plan.

Such application shall contain:
(1) The name of the company, and the name selected shall not be so similar to that of any other insurance company as to be likely to mislead the public.
(2) The locality of the principal business office of such company.
(3) The kind of insurance business the company proposes to engage in.
(4) The names and places of residence of not less than seven persons making such application for such permit.
(5) An affidavit of at least one of said applicants, stating the places of residence and names of such applicants correctly.

Upon receipt of such application, together with a fee of one dollar, in payment for filing such application, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall at once file said application, and issue to said applicant a permit authorizing said applicant to solicit insurance on the mutual plan, in accordance with the terms of the application, but not to issue policies of insurance. [Id. sec. 2.]

Article 4907. Conditions, etc., for obtaining charter; charter or articles of association, how executed; shall contain what; duty of commissioner.—No such company shall be granted a charter, or be authorized to issue policies of insurance, until insurance, upon not less than one hundred separate risks, the total amount of which insurance shall not be less than one hundred thousand dollars has been applied for and entered on the books of said company, and until an amount equal to not less than fifty per cent of the first premiums for such insurance has been paid in cash to such company, a premium note being taken for the balance, if any, and such mutual [annual] premiums must aggregate not less than twice the maximum liability to be incurred on any one risk, and no policy of insurance shall be written, or liability, as an insurer, be incurred by said company, until a statement subscribed and sworn to by the president and secretary of said company, stating that the above provisions have been complied with, has been filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, together with certified copies of the company's proposed charter, and by-laws.

The charter or articles of association of said company shall be signed and acknowledged by at least four of the original applicants for said permit, and shall contain:

1. The name of the company.
2. The purpose for which it is formed.
3. The place or places where its business is to be transacted, and the location of its principal business office.
4. The term for which it is to exist.
5. The number of its directors, or trustees, and the names and residences of those who are elected for the first year.

When said applicants have complied with all of the above requirements, and have filed the necessary copies of their charter and by-laws with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, and have paid the fees and taxes required by the laws of the state of Texas to be paid, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall record said charter, and furnish said company with a certified copy thereof, and shall issue to said company a certificate of authority showing it has complied with the laws of the state of Texas, and authorizing it to do business until the last day of the following February. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4907a. Supervision of commissioner of insurance and banking; duties of commissioner, examination and certificate; suspension of permit; forfeiture.—Every mutual fire, lightning, and storm insurance company incorporated in this state shall be under the supervision of the commissioner of insurance and banking, who shall make or cause to be made, an examination of the affairs of each mutual insurance company, at the company's expense, at least once in every two years and at such other times as he deems proper, and he shall thoroughly and carefully inspect books, accounts and records of the company, and if upon such inspection the affairs of such company are found to be in a sound condition and the company thus solvent and able to fulfill its obligations, he shall issue to the company a certificate showing the result of such examination. If upon examination he is of opinion that the mutual insurance company is insolvent or has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of law governing it, he may suspend the company's permit and shall give such company written notice of that objected to, and failing such being remedied [remedied] within thirty days, he shall report the same to the attorney general, who shall at once bring suit to forfeit the charter of such company. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4907b. Annual statement of company.—Every mutual insurance company transacting business in the state shall, before the month of March in each year, file in the office of the commissioner of insurance a statement showing the exact condition of affairs of the company upon the 31st day of December preceding, such statement being in conformity with such forms as the insurance commissioner may furnish. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4907c. Who are members; right to vote and share in benefits. —Every person to whom a policy of insurance has been issued by a mutual company incorporated in this state shall be a member of such company so long as his policy remains in force and shall be entitled to one vote at the meetings of the members of such companies, and shall further be entitled to his equitable share of all benefits derived from being a member of such company. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4907d. Liability of members.—The by-laws of every company organized under this Act shall provide that every member, in addition to his annual premium paid in cash, or in cash and premium notes, shall be liable for a sum equal to another annual premium, or it may provide a sum equal to three or five annual premiums, such additional liability being assessable at the discretion of the insurance commissioner or the company's board of directors, for the members proportionate share of losses and expenses should the company's funds become impaired. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4907e. By-laws; premiums or assessments; surplus fund, etc.—The by-laws of such companies shall specifically provide for the rules and regulations of the government, providing for the collection of adequate premiums or assessments, either all in cash or part cash and part by note, such premiums being based upon the greater or less risk attached to the property insured, and they shall state clearly and plainly the extent of each member's liability to other members, shall provide for the accumulation of a surplus fund to which shall be added not less than 10 per cent of the annual saving, being made by the company, shall require [provide] for the bonding of the company's officers and shall name such other provisions and safeguards as may be deemed proper and not contrary to the laws of the state, and a notice in heavy type shall be printed on all policies calling to the attention of the insured that the by-laws are a part of his contract with the company. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4907f. Funds, how invested.—Funds of mutual companies may be invested in United States bonds, Texas state bonds, county or city bonds of the state of Texas, provided that such bonds are issued by authority of law and that interest upon them has never been defaulted, or in first mortgages on improved real estate within the state where the first mortgage does not exceed 50 per cent of the value of the land and improvements thereon. [Id. sec. 9.]

Garnishment of funds.—See notes under Art. 271.

Art. 4907g. Limitation of expenses.—The expenses of all companies incorporated under this Act must not exceed an amount equal to 35 per cent of the annual premiums, and a statement must be made annually to the commissioner of insurance and banking by the president or secretary of the company that they are being so limited. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4907h. Solvency and profit, how determined; reserve.—In determining the solvency of any mutual company organized for any purpose mentioned in this Act, and in determining the profit or saving to be distributed among members, 40 per cent of the actual cash premiums paid on policies in force for one year and a pro rata of all premiums received on risks that have more than one year to run shall be deemed to be a sufficient reserve under the said policies and no dividends to members shall be paid out of this reserve. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4907i. When assets insufficient; notice to commissioner and examination.—If any time the admitted assets of any mutual company, operating under this Act shall come to be less than the largest single risk for which the company is liable, then the president and the secretary of the company shall at once notify the commissioner of insurance and banking, and he may make an examination into the company's affairs if he deems it best. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4907j. Suspension or revocation of license for insufficient assets; forfeiture.—If, upon the examination of the company's affairs, as required in section 12 [Art. 4907i], it appear that the largest single risk for which the company is liable exceeds the admitted assets of the company, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall immediately suspend or revoke the license of the company until the assets of the company are increased by assessment or otherwise, sufficiently to meet the requirement.

The company shall have thirty days within which to meet this requirement, and if within that time it fails to do so the commissioner of insurance and banking shall refer the matter to the attorney general of the state of Texas, with instructions to institute proper legal proceeding to forfeit the charter of said company. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4907k. Laws applicable.—Every mutual company organized for any purpose mentioned in this Act, shall be amenable to, and subject to, the provisions of all laws of this state governing stock fire insurance companies, in so far as they are applicable to mutual companies, and not in conflict with the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4907l. Penalties, etc.—Any mutual company that shall wilfully violate, or fail to comply with the provisions of this Act shall be subject to, and liable to pay, a penalty of not less than five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars for each violation thereof, and such penalty may be collected and recovered in an action brought in the name of the state of Texas, in any court having jurisdiction thereof; and for any violation or failure to comply with any of the provisions of this Act, the commissioner of insurance and banking may suspend a company's permit, or license, and while suspended, such company shall be prohibited from writing or renewing any insurance policies. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4907m. Foreign companies may be admitted, when.—Mutual companies incorporated under the laws of any other state, or foreign government, for any, or all of the purposes, specified in the first section [Art. 4905] of this Act, and duly licensed to transact business in such other states or government, and that have not less than one hundred thousand dollars assets in excess of liabilities, shall, when they have complied with the requirements and restrictions of this Act, as far as applicable to them, be admitted to do business in this state, and the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue to any such company, so complying, a permit authorizing such company to do business in this state until the last day of the following February. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4907n. Fees; taxes.—Every mutual company operating under this Act shall pay to the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, for obtaining a charter, a fee of twenty dollars, and for each license granted, or renewal thereof, a fee of one dollar, and for filing each annual statement a fee of ten dollars annually on the 31st day of each December, and when the insurance commissioner has certified to the treasurer of the state of Texas, the correct amount to be paid, every mutual company operating under this Act shall pay to the treasurer of the state of Texas one-half of one per cent of all of the net premiums, or assessments, received by it during the year, and no other tax shall be required of such mutual company, or companies, their officers and agents, except such fees as shall be paid to the commissioner of insurance as required by law. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4907o. Withdrawal of securities deposited under former law.—Any mutual fire, lightning and storm insurance company which has deposited securities with the state treasurer of the state of Texas, in accordance with chapter 10, title 71, of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911, repealed in section 20 [Art. 4907p] of this Act, may withdraw from such depository any securities so deposited, upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas, a declaration of its intentions to comply with the provisions of this Act, and upon the execution and delivery to the state treasurer of the state of Texas of a proper receipt for such securities, which receipt shall release the state treasurer from all further liabilities on account of such deposit, or the withdrawal thereof. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4907p. Laws repealed.—Chapter 10, title 71, of the Revised Statutes of the state of Texas of 1911, and all other Acts, or laws, or parts of laws, in conflict with this Act, or in conflict with any portion of this Act are hereby repealed, but nothing in this Act shall be deemed to apply in any way to the present law governing county mutual insurance, or farmer’s mutuals, now operating under lodge systems, or printers’ mutuals and such companies and associations shall not be subject to the provisions of this Act, except that they will make annual reports to the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 20.]

Arts. 4908–4918.—Repealed. See Art. 4907p.

Construction of Prior Act

Application of old Art. 4910.—This act authorizes the garnishment of securities held in trust by the state treasurer, belonging not only to companies incorporated under the act, but those belonging to all other companies acting thereunder. Robbins v. Middifff, 46 C. A. 272, 102 S. W. 431, 432.

Jurisdiction to forfeit charter.—The district court of Travis county had jurisdiction to forfeit for cause the charter of a mutual fire insurance company whose domicile was at Houston and appoint a receiver for the company. Graham v. Sparks, 56 C. A. 453, 121 S. W. 597.

Garnishment.—See notes under Art. 271.

CHAPTER TEN A

FARMERS’ MUTUAL HAIL INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4918a. Who may incorporate.—Private corporations may be created without a capital stock within this state by the voluntary association of seven or more persons, resident citizens of this state who collectively own not less than 1,000 acres of growing crops of all kinds for the purpose of mutual insurance against loss or damage by hail; provided, that every company incorporated under the provisions of this Act shall embody the word “mutual” in its title. [Acts 1913, p. 40, sec. 1.]

See Art. 4907p.

Art. 4918b. Application for permit; contents; duty of commissioner of insurance and banking; applicants to execute promissory notes, etc.—When any number of persons not less than seven desire to organize a mutual hail insurance company as herein provided, they shall make application to the commissioner of insurance and banking for permission to solicit business under the mutual plan, stating the principal place of business and name of the company; that said company is to be organized for the insurance of growing crops against loss or damage by hail. Upon receipt of said application the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue said applicants a permit to solicit insurance against loss or damage by hail on the mutual plan in accordance with the terms of the application, but not to issue policies of insurance. Said mutual company shall take from each applicant an obligation specifying the property to be insured and the amount to be paid as the first assessment evidenced by a promissory note for such sum and payable on or before the 31st day of the succeeding December, and upon the state of Texas granting to said mutual insurance company a charter authorizing it to do business in this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4918c. Commissioner of insurance and banking, on approval of applications and notes, etc., to certify to secretary of state; permit; charter; license and fees; notes of applicants.—When applications have been secured for insurance with such company from at least two hundred applicants residing in not less than twenty-five different counties of this state, the first assessment or premium on which applications shall amount to at least ten thousand dollars, for which notes of solvent parties founded on actual bona fide applications for insurance payable upon the granting the charter by the state to said mutual hail insurance company, which premium notes shall be a lien on the crop insured, or otherwise secured, and which notes and applications shall be submitted to the commissioner of insurance and banking, and when he finds the applications and notes to be genuine and secured by liens on growing crops or otherwise secured, he shall upon the payment of a fee of twenty-five dollars, certify the fact that he has examined and approved said applications and notes to the secretary of state, who shall upon an application of said persons to which application shall be attached the said certificate of the commissioner of insurance and banking, permit said company to incorporate and issue to it a charter. A certified copy of the charter shall thereupon be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, who, upon the payment of the fees required by law, shall issue to said mutual hail insurance company a license to solicit and transact business and issue policies against loss or damage by hail. Every person making application for insurance in such company prior to the granting of a charter to such company and signing a non-negotiable promissory note shall be liable upon the note upon the granting of a charter by the state, and if payment is refused, suit may be brought on same in any court in this state having jurisdiction of the amount at the principal office of said insurance company. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4918d. Application shall state what.—The application for charter shall state the name of the corporation, the purpose for which it is formed, the place of its principal office, the term for which it is to exist, the number, name, and residence of its directors for the first year and shall be subscribed and acknowledged by seven or more of the applicants. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4918e. Board of directors; officers; bond of treasurer.—Upon the issuance of a charter by the secretary of state to such mutual hail insurance company the persons making application for such charter shall constitute a board of directors for the first year, which board of directors shall, consist of not less than seven persons all of whom shall be residents of this state.

The officers of such company shall be such as may be provided by the by-laws, and the treasurer or the secretary and treasurer, if such offices should be combined in one, shall execute a bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars payable to the commissioner of insurance and banking and his successors in office conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties and that he will account for all moneys, notes or other assets that may come into his hands said bond shall be signed by two or more good and solvent sureties, or be executed by a guaranty company authorized to do business in this state, and shall be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 5.]
Art. 4918f. Policies on growing crops; applications and contracts; insufficient premiums, etc.—Mutual hail insurance companies organized under the provisions of this Act may issue policies on growing crops of all kinds against loss or damage by hail only. Any person desiring insurance in such company shall make application on blanks furnished by the company and shall pay the full amount of the premium in cash or secured notes. Provided, that no contract shall be made providing for payment of any obligation by the insured for or on suit on any such obligation of the insured, except those given by the charter members referred to in section 3 [Art. 4918c] of this Act, in any county other than the county in which the insured has his domicile. In case the whole amount of the premium collected by such company for any one year shall be insufficient to pay all losses occurring during said year, after paying the necessary expenses for said year, the persons insured by such company shall receive their proportionate share of the sums realized from said premiums after deducting the expenses therefrom in full satisfaction of their losses, and no member shall be liable to the company or to any other person for more than the premium, which shall be paid by him or secured to be paid by him in making his application for insurance. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4918g. Premiums, how used; funds, how invested; reserve fund.—All companies incorporated under this Act shall set aside 60 per cent of all premiums collected as a policy holder's fund for the payment of losses which fund shall be used for no other purpose, and the remainder of the gross premiums collected shall be used, if needed, for paying the expenses of said company, and if not needed for such purpose such remainder not so used shall be added to the policy holders' fund at the end of the current year, and if, at the end of such current year, the total of said policy holders' fund has not been appropriated or necessary in the payment of losses to policy holders, then such amount of said fund so remaining may be invested in first mortgage notes on lands in this state, said investment not exceeding 50 per cent of the value of said lands, or in bonds of this state, or in county, city, town or school district bonds of this state, provided said bonds have been approved by the attorney general, which funds or securities shall be deposited in trust for said policy holders with any bank approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking as a reserve fund, which fund may be used for the payment of policy holders, if necessary, in case of excessive and unprecedented losses, and such company may collect and receive the interest and dividends thereon to be used in defraying the expenses and paying the losses of said company. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4918h. Rates, how fixed.—The board of directors of such company shall have the authority to fix the rates to be charged for such insurance, and may fix at their discretion different rates for different sections of the states based upon the frequency of hail storms in such sections. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4918i. Annual report of corporation.—Every such corporation shall on or before January 1st, or within thirty days thereafter, each year make and file with the commissioner of insurance and banking, a report upon blank forms to be furnished by such commissioner which report shall be verified by the oath of the secretary of such corporation and shall show the number of policies issued for the preceding year, the number and amount of losses paid, the gross amount received from premiums, the amount of expenses paid, and the amount set aside or invested during the year as a reserve fund, if any, and the books, records, and documents of such corporation shall be subject to the inspection and examination of the attorney general or the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 9.]
Art. 4918j. Fees.—The following fees shall be paid by companies organized under this law:

In addition to the application fee, charter fee, to the secretary of state when charter is issued, $25.00 annual franchise tax of $50.00; and to the commissioner of insurance and banking for filing annual statement, $5.00, certificate of authority to corporation $1.00 and no other fees shall be paid by said companies. [Id. sec. 10.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN
PRINTERS' MUTUAL FIRE AND STORM INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4919. How incorporated.—Private corporations may be created within this state by the voluntary association of three or more persons for the organization of printers' mutual fire and storm insurance associations without an authorized or subscribed capital stock, and for the purpose of insuring against loss by fire or storm only such property as may be owned and operated for the purpose of publishing daily, weekly or other periodical newspapers, or such as may be incident thereto or conducting job printing offices. [Acts 1905, p. 225.]

Art. 4920. Certificate to do business, how obtained.—Before beginning operations, the company provided for in this chapter must obtain from the commissioner of insurance and banking a certificate of authority such as is issued to mutual fire and tornado insurance companies doing business in this state, first making a showing to said commissioner that the company has fully complied with all the requirements of law applicable to such mutual fire and tornado insurance companies; provided, that no officers of printers' mutual fire and storm insurance associations shall be required to give a bond, except the treasurers thereof, who shall annually file a bond with good securities and in amount to be approved by said commissioner. [Id. Amended Acts 1909, p. 219, sec. 2.]

Art. 4921. Shall report annually and pay fee.—All printers' mutual fire and storm insurance associations, which transact business in only one county, shall report annually, on or before the last day of February, to said commissioner on blanks prepared by him, and pay to said commissioner as a fee for filing the same the sum of five dollars; and such associations shall not be required to pay the annual franchise tax collected of other corporations under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 1a.]

CHAPTER TWELVE
MUTUAL COMPANIES INSURING AGAINST LOSS BY BURGLARY, ETC.

Art. 4925. Policy holders.
Art. 4926. Commissioner agent for service of process.
Art. 4927. Statement submitted and license issued annually.
Article 4922. What companies entitled to license.—Any insurance company organized and incorporated on the mutual plan, under the laws of this state or any other state, for the purpose of insuring against loss or damage resulting from burglary and robbery, or any attempt thereat, and securing against the loss of money and securities in course of transportation, when shipped by registered mail, shall be authorized, admitted and licensed to do business in this state, as provided in this chapter. [Acts 1899, p. 107, sec. 1.]

Art. 4923. Certain conditions; premium contracts to constitute part of assets.—Before any such company shall be authorized to transact business in this state, except to solicit and receive applications for insurance and portions of premiums thereon, as provided in this chapter, it shall have in force five hundred or more policies on which the premiums shall have been paid in cash, or shall be evidenced by the written contracts of the policy holders, on which not less than one-fifth of the amount shall have been paid in cash, and the cash and contracts for premiums shall amount in the aggregate to a sum of not less than one hundred thousand dollars. The premium contracts so held shall constitute a part of the assets of the company. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4924. Must file copy of charter and statement; impaired reserve, etc.; line of business; must set aside reserve.—And every such company, association or partnership shall also file a certified copy of its charter, articles of incorporation or deed of settlement, together with a statement under the oath of the president or vice-president and secretary of the company, for which he or they may act, stating the name of the company and place where located, a detailed statement of its assets, showing the number of policy holders, aggregate amount of premium contracts, the amount of cash on hand, in bank or in the hands of agents, the amount of real estate and how the same is encumbered by mortgage, the number of shares of stock of every kind owned by the company, the par and market value of the same, amount loaned on bond and mortgage, the amount loaned on other securities, stating the kind and amount loaned on each, and the estimated value of the whole amount of such securities, and other assets or property of the company, also stating the indebtedness of the company, the amount of losses adjusted and unpaid, the amount incurred and in process of adjustment, the amount resisted by the company as illegal and fraudulent, and all other claims existing against the company; and for a company organized under the laws of any other state, a copy of the last annual report, if any, made under any law of the state by which such company was incorporated; and no agent shall be allowed to transact business for any such company whose reinsurance reserve, as required in this chapter is impaired to the extent of twenty per cent thereof, while such deficiency shall continue. Nor shall it be lawful for any agent or agents to act for any company or companies referred to in this chapter directly or indirectly, in taking risks or transacting the business of burglary and robbery insurance, or the insuring of the safe shipping of money and securities by registered mail in this state, without procuring from the insurance commissioner a certificate of authority stating that such company has complied with all the requirements of this chapter which apply to such companies, and as to companies organized under the laws of any other state, there shall be added the name of the attorney appointed to act for the company.

Any company organized, admitted and licensed to transact business in this state under this chapter shall confine its line of business to that stated in the first article of this chapter, and shall confine its business in this state to banks, bankers, loan companies and county treasurers, and shall not issue any policy or policies to any person, firm or corporation in this state other than banks, bankers, loan companies and county treasurers. Every such company shall set aside a reinsurance reserve of fifty per cent of its premiums, whether collected in cash or represented by the obligations of the policy holders, as written in its policies. [Id. secs. 3 and 4.]

Art. 4925. Policy holders.—Policy holders of any company organized and admitted to transact business in this state under this chapter shall be held liable to pay the membership fee and premium on their insurance as paid, or contracted to be paid, at the time the policy is taken out, and shall not be held liable for any further or other assessments or claims on the part of the company or its policy holders. The membership fees and premiums agreed upon may be collected in cash at the time the policy is issued or evidenced by a written obligation of the policy holder as may be agreed upon by the company and the policy holder. Such payment or obligation shall be the limit of the liability of the policy holder to the company for premium on their insurance.
[Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4926. Commissioner agent for service of process.—It shall not be lawful for any insurance company, association or partnership incorporated by, or organized under, the laws of any other state of the United States for any of the purposes specified in this chapter, directly or indirectly, to take risks or transact any business of insurance in this state by any agent or agents in this state until it shall first appoint an attorney in this state, who shall be the commissioner of insurance and banking, on whom process of law can be served, and file in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking a written instrument duly signed and sealed, certifying such appointment; and any process issued by any court of record in this state, and served upon such attorney by the proper officer of the county in which such attorney may reside or be found, shall be deemed a sufficient service of the process upon said company; but service of process upon such company may also be made in any other manner provided by law. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4927. Statement submitted and license issued, annually.—The statement and evidences of new membership, assets, and investments required by article 4924 of this chapter shall be renewed from year to year in such manner and form as may be required by said insurance commissioner, with an additional statement of the amount of premiums received in this state during the preceding year, so long as such agency continues; and the said insurance commissioner, on being satisfied that the membership, assets, securities and investments remain secure, as hereinbefore mentioned, shall furnish a renewal of the certificate as aforesaid. [Id. sec. 7.]

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

FIDELITY, GUARANTY AND SURETY COMPANIES

Art. 4928. To act as trustee, etc., and do general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety, etc.—Private corporations may be created to act as trustee, assignee, executor, administrator, guardian, and receiver, when designated by any person, corporation or court to do so, and to do a general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety and grantor of the fidelity of employees, trustees, executors, administrators, guardians or others appointed to, or assuming the performance of any trust, public or private, under appointment of any court or tribunal, or under contract between private individuals or corporations; also upon any bond or bonds that may be required to be filed in any judiciary proceedings; also to guarantee any contract or undertaking between individuals, or between private corporations, or between individuals or private corporations and the state and municipal corporations or counties, or between corporations and individuals; to act as executor and testamentary guardian when designated by such decedents; or to act as administrator or guardian when appointed by any court having jurisdiction; also, on any bond or bonds that may be required of any state official, district official, county official or official of any school district or of any municipality; provided that the commissioners courts of each county shall have the right to reject any or all official bonds made by surety companies and in their discretion may require any or all officials to make their official bonds by personal sureties; provided, also, that any such bond may be accepted and approved by the officer charged by law with the duty of accepting and approving the same without being signed by other securities than such corporation, and provided further, that when any such bond shall exceed fifty thousand dollars in penal sum, the officer or officers charged by law with the duty of approving and accepting such bond, may require that such bond be signed by two or more surety companies, or by one surety company and two or more good and sufficient personal sureties, in the discretion of the principal or official of whom the bond is required, and any statute or law to the contrary, or requiring any such bond to be signed by two or more good and sufficient sureties, shall be governed and controlled by the provisions of this article; provided also that each corporation, making or offering to make any bond under this article, shall publish in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where such company is organized or has its principal office on the first day of February of each year, a statement of its condition on the previous thirty-first day of December, showing under oath its assets and liabilities that a copy of said statement be filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking before the 1st of March, of the year following, and a fee of $25.00 be paid to that officer for filing the same, and that an examination of its affairs may be made at any time by the commissioner of insurance and banking; such examination to be at the expense of the company; provided that said corporation organized under the provisions of this article shall have a paid up capital stock of not less than $100,000.00, and shall keep on deposit with the state treasurer money, bonds or other securities in an amount not less than $50,000.00; and said securities be approved by the commissioner of insurance and banking, and that this amount be kept intact at all times. And further providing that all foreign corporations transacting the business of a guaranty and fidelity company in this state file with the commissioner of insurance and banking an affidavit showing that such foreign company has on deposit with the state treasurer of its home state $100,000.00 or more, in money, bonds or other securities for the protection of its policyholders. [Acts 1897, p. 128, sec. 37. Amended Acts 1903, p. 197, sec. 1. Acts 1913, p. 123, sec. 1, amending Art. 4928, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 4929. Surety company's bond is a legal bond, when.—Whenever any bond, undertaking, recognizance or other obligation, is by law or the charter, ordinances, rules and regulations of a municipality, board, body, organization, court, judge or public officer, required or permitted to be made, given, tendered or filed, and whenever the performance of any act, duty or obligation, or the refraining from any act, is required or permitted to be guaranteed, such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guarantee may be executed by a surety company, qualified as hereinbefore provided; and such execution by such company of such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty shall be in all respects a full and complete compliance with every law, charter, rule or regulation that such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty shall be executed by one surety or by one or more sureties, or that such sureties shall be residents, or householders, or freeholders, or either, or both, or possess any other qualification and all courts, judges, heads of departments, boards, bodies, municipalities, and public officers or every character shall accept and treat such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty, when so executed by such company, as conforming to, and fully and completely complying with, every requirement of every such law, charter, ordinance, rule or regulation; and provided any suit on any bond issued under articles 4928 and 4929, shall be brought at the place provided by article 4934, Revised Statutes, 1911, and if the corporation issuing the bond sued on has no agent in the county where said bond was issued then the commissioner of banking and insurance of this state is made, by consent of the said company, its agent on whom service of process may be held. [Acts 1897, p. 244, sec. 1. Acts 1913, p. 123, sec. 1, amending Art. 4929, Rev. St. 1911.]

Requisites of bond. — It is not necessary to state in the bond that the company is authorized to do business in Texas. Such lack of authority may be proved. Clopton v. Goodhar (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 972.

Sequestration bond signed by a surety company as one surety is sufficient. Id.

Under this article a bail bond executed by a solvent bonding company should be accepted, either in the form of a bond approved by the sheriff, or in open court as a recognizance. Ex parte Cook, 61 Or. R. 449, 136 S. W. 67.

Art. 4930. Requirements to be complied with. — Such company, to be so qualified to do act as surety or guarantor, must comply with the requirements of every law of this state applicable to such company doing business therein; must be authorized under the laws of the state where incorporated, and under its charter, to become surety upon such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty; must have a fully paid up and safely invested and unimpaired capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars; must have good available assets exceeding its liabilities, which liabilities for the purpose of this chapter shall be taken to be its capital stock, its outstanding debts and a premium reserve at the rate of fifty per centum of the current annual premiums on each outstanding bond, undertaking, recognizance and obligation of like character in force; must file with the commissioner of insurance, statistics, history and agriculture [commissioner of insurance and banking] a certified copy of its certificate of incorporation, a written application to be authorized to do business under this chapter, and also, with such application, and in each year thereafter, a statement verified under oath made up to December 31, preceding, stating the amount of its paid up cash capital, particularizing each item of investment, the amount of premiums upon existing bonds, undertakings, [recognizances and obligations of like character in force upon which it is surety; the amount of liability for unearned portion thereof estimated at the rate of fifty per centum of the current annual premiums on each such bond, undertaking, recognizance and obligation in force, stating also the amount of its outstanding debts of all kinds, and such further facts as may be by the laws of this state required of such company in transacting business therein; and, if such company be organized under the laws of any other state than this state, it must also have on deposit with a state officer of one of the states of the United States, not less than one hundred thousand dollars in good securities, deposited with, and held by, such officer for the benefit of the holders of its obligations; must also appoint an attorney in this state upon whom process of law can be served, which appointment shall continue until revoked or another attorney substituted, and must file with the commissioner of insurance, statistics and history and agriculture [commissioner of insurance and banking] written evidence of such appointment, which shall state the residence and office of such attorney; and such service of process may also be made upon the commissioner of insurance of this state, by virtue of his office, and shall be as effective as if made upon said attorney; and must also have on deposit with the treasurer of this state at least fifty thousand dollars in good securities, worth at par and market value at least that sum, of the value of which securities the commissioner of insurance shall judge, held for the benefit of the holders of the obligations of such company. Said securities so deposited with said treasurer to remain with him in trust to answer any default of said company as surety upon any such bond, undertaking, recognizance or other obligation, established by final judgment upon which execution may lawfully be issued against said company; said treasurer and his successors in office being hereby directed to so receive and hereafter retain such deposit under this act, in trust, for the purposes hereof; such company, however, at all times to have the right to collect the interest, dividends and profits upon such securities, and, from time to time, to withdraw such securities, or portions thereof, substituting therefor others of equally good character and value, to the satisfaction of said treasurer; and such securities and substitutes therefor shall be at all times exempt from, and not subject to, levy under writ or process of attachment; and, further, shall not be sold under any process against such company until after thirty days notice to said company, specifying the time, place and manner of such sale, and the process under which, and purposes for which, it is to be made, accompanied by a copy of such process; provided, however, that whenever any such company, domestic or foreign, has been engaged in this state in the business contemplated by this act, has made deposit in this state, in trust or otherwise, of securities, to answer any default of such company upon any such bond, undertaking, recognizance, guaranty or stipulation, such securities so deposited shall be by the trustee or custodian thereof transferred and delivered to said treasurer of this state in trust for the same purposes under and subject to all the rights and equities of all parties interested, and to the terms and provisions of this act; and thereupon such deposit shall remain in trust under and subject to the terms and provisions of this act; and, whenever such deposit has been made with a trustee by order of any court or other authority, it shall be the duty of the court or other authority, by order or otherwise, to direct such transfer to said treasurer; and, in case such deposit is less than the sum of fifty thousand dollars, then] said company must deposit with said treasurer securities sufficient to increase said deposit to said sum of fifty thousand dollars, as required by this chapter; provided, domestic corporations chartered for the purpose of doing business under this chapter within this state alone shall be required to deposit securities as hereinafore provided for to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars. [Acts 1897, p. 244, sec. 2.]

Art. 4931. Certificate to issue, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, upon due proof by any such company of its possessing the qualifications in this chapter specified, shall issue to such company a certificate setting forth that such company has qualified, and is authorized for the ensuing year to do business under this chapter, which said certificate shall be evidence of such qualification of such company, and of its authorization to become and to be accepted as sole surety on all bonds, undertakings, recognizances and obligations required or permitted by law or the charter, ordinances, rules or regulations of any municipality, board, body, organization or public officer, and the solvency or credit of such company for all purposes, and its sufficiency as such surety. [Id. sec. 3.]

Proof of solvency.—Where objection is raised to the solvency of a bonding company that has signed an indemnifying bond as surety, the appellate court cannot know without a statement of facts that the trial court did not have before it enough to satisfy itself that the surety company had been duly authorized to do business in this state, in which event proof of its solvency was unnecessary. Romine v. Howard (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 692.

Art. 4932. Certificate to be surrendered, how.—Any such company, domestic or foreign, may at any time surrender to the commissioner of insurance and banking its said certificate of qualification, and shall thereupon cease to engage in said business of sureship; and such company shall thereupon be entitled to the release and return of its said deposit as aforesaid, in manner following: Said company shall file with said commissioner of insurance and banking a statement in writing, under oath, giving the date, name, and amount of all its then existing obligations of sureship in this state, briefly stating the facts of each case to said commissioner, who, after examination of the facts, shall require said company to file with the treasurer of this state a bond, payable to the state, in a sum equal to the whole amount of its liability in this state, under its contracts, conditioned for the faithful performance and fulfillment of all its outstanding obligations, or it may, at its option, reinsure its risks in some surety company authorized to do business in this state, or cancel all bonds on which it is liable, and return a pro rata of the premium received thereon, whenever such cancellation and return can be done without impairing its obligation to third parties. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4933. May withdraw from bond.—Any surety company may withdraw from the bond of any trustee, guardian, assignee, receiver, executor, administrator or other fiduciary, in like manner and by like proceeding as is now provided by law in the case of individual sureties. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4934. May be sued on bond, where.—If any suit shall be instituted upon any bond or obligation of any surety company, the proper court of the county wherein said bond is filed shall have jurisdiction of said cause; and service therein shall be made, either upon the attorney for said company, by this chapter required to be appointed, or upon the commissioner of insurance and banking; and such service shall be to all intents valid and effectual as service upon said company. And such guaranty, fidelity and surety companies shall be deemed resident of the counties wherever they may do business, and the doing or performing any business in any county shall be deemed an acceptance of the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4935. Defaulting company; claims paid, how.—Should any company of the character named or enumerated in this chapter fail or refuse to pay any loss by it incurred in this state within sixty days after its liability thereupon shall have been by suit finally determined, upon satisfactory proof, to the treasurer of this state, of such liability and of its non-payment, said treasurer shall, out of the deposits so made with him, as by this chapter provided, pay said loss, and, when he shall have done so, he shall, at once, certify to the commissioner of insurance and banking the fact of such default on the part of said company; whereupon said commissioner shall forthwith cancel and annul the certificate of authority of such company to do business in this state; provided, that such payment shall not operate to release the company from payment of any balance which it still may owe after such payment by the treasurer of this state has been made. [Id. sec. 7.]
Art. 4936. Who are agents.—Any person who solicits business for or on behalf of such corporation, or makes or transmits for any person other than himself, any application for guaranty or security, or who advertises or otherwise gives notice that he will receive or transmit same, or who shall receive or transmit same, or who shall receive or deliver a contract of guaranty or security, or who shall examine or investigate the character of any applicant for guaranty or security than himself, or who shall refer any applicant for guaranty or security to such corporation, whether any of said acts shall be done at the instance and request, or by the employment of such corporation, or other corporation or person, or any person who shall issue indemnifying bonds or contracts, whose solvency and compliance with his said bonds or obligations is guaranteed, directly or indirectly, by any corporation, shall be held to be the agent of such corporation so far as relates to all the liabilities and penalties prescribed by this chapter. [Id. sec. 8.]

Powers of agent.—Under this article, where a guaranty company intrusted a bond to the seller of oil to deliver it to the buyer, it not only made the seller its agent for the delivery of the bond, but the seller became the agent under the statute, where it was not only empowered to deliver the bond, but to attach to it the contract referred to in it; provision being made for its attachment, and the contract being made a part "as fully as if recited in detail herein." San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. J. M. Abbott Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 373.

Art. 4937. Penalty for accepting corporation which has not complied with law.—Any person, association of persons, or corporations, who shall accept any corporation created for the purposes, or either of them, mentioned in article 4928, without such corporation having previously complied with the provisions and requirements of this chapter and having received from the commissioner of insurance and banking the certificate of authority provided for in this chapter shall forfeit the sum of five hundred dollars, to be recovered by suit in the name of the state in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4938. Cancellation of bond; statement of cause.—When any corporation shall cancel a bond of guaranty or indemnity, or shall notify the employer of the person whose fidelity is guaranteed that said corporation will no longer guarantee or be security for the fidelity of said person, or when said corporation has once guaranteed the fidelity of any person, or acted as security therefor, and on application refuses to do so again, it shall furnish to such person a full statement in writing of the facts on which the action of the corporation is based, and, if such action be based in whole or in part on information, all such information; and any such corporation failing or refusing to furnish any such written statement within thirty days after a request therefor, shall be liable to such person injured in the sum of five hundred dollars, in addition to all other damages caused thereby, which may be sued for and recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4939. Authority revoked, when.—If any such corporation shall fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall revoke the certificate of authority issued said corporation. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4940. Charged with public use.—Corporations created for the purposes mentioned in article 4928 are hereby declared to be charged with a public use. [Id. sec. 12.]
CHAPTER FOURTEEN

EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4941 Reserve, how reported and calculated.

Article 4941. Reserve, how reported and calculated.—Every insurance company which has for ten years or more undertaken to insure persons, firms or corporations against loss or damage on account of the bodily injury or death by accident of any person, for which loss or damage said persons, firms or corporations are respectively responsible, shall, on or before the first day of October in each year, render to the insurance commissioner a statement in writing of its business transacted in the United States, which shall show separately for each of the five calendar years constituting the first half of the period of ten years next preceding the thirty-first day of December of the year in which the statement is made:

1. The number of persons reported injured under all its forms of liability policies, whether such injuries were reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives, and whether such injury resulted in loss to the company or not.

2. The amount that, on or before the thirty-first day of August of the year in which the statement is made, had been paid on account or in consequence of all injuries so reported, including therein all payments on suits arising from such injuries.

3. The number of suits or actions under such policies on account of injuries reported which have been settled, either by payments or compromise.

4. The amount paid in settlement of such suits or actions on or before the thirty-first day of August of the year when the statement is made, including therein all payments made on account or in consequence of injuries from which the suits arose, whether prior to or later than the date when the suits were brought. Every such company shall, in its financial statements hereafter made in this state, use the experience so ascertained for computing its outstanding losses under all its forms of liability policies, irrespective of the date when the policies were issued. The average cost per suit of settling such cases, as computed by the data required in this article, shall be multiplied by the number of suits or actions pending on account of injuries reported prior to eighteen months previous to the date on which the condition of the company is to be ascertained and shown, which suits or actions are being defended for or on account of a holder of any such policy, also the average cost on account of each injured person, determined as aforesaid from the company's experience, shall be multiplied by the number [of injuries reported within the eighteen months prior to] making the statement of the company's condition, whether such injuries were reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives. From the sum of these two products so ascertained there shall be deducted the amount of all payments made on account or in consequence of said injuries reported within eighteen months, this amount so deducted to be taken as of the date at which the said statement is made. The sum remaining after making this deduction shall be charged as the liability of the company on account of outstanding losses. Any admitted company issuing liability contracts, which, by reason of its limited experience in liability underwriting, cannot furnish the information required by this article shall, nevertheless, until it is able to comply with said requirements, be charged with a liability for outstanding losses upon all kinds of its lia-ability policies an amount not less than the amount resulting from the following process:

The number of suits or actions pending on account of injuries reported prior to eighteen months previous to the date of making up the statement, whether such injuries were reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives, which are being defended on account of the holder of any policy, shall be multiplied by the average cost per suit as shown by the average experience of all other admitted liability companies ascertained from the data required by this article, also the number of injuries reported under said policies at any time within eighteen months of making up the statement, whether reported to the home office of the company or to any of its representatives, and whether such injuries resulted in loss to the company or not, shall be multiplied by the average cost for each injured person as shown by the average of said experience of all other admitted liability companies, ascertained from the data required by this article. From the sum of these two products there shall be deducted the amount of all payments made on account or in consequence of said injuries reported within eighteen months, this amount to be taken as of the date at which the statement is made. A sum not less than the amount remaining after this deduction shall be charged as a liability for outstanding losses to liability companies covered by the provisions of this paragraph. The average cost for suits and for injured persons required by this paragraph shall, on or before the first day of December of each year, be furnished by the insurance commissioner to every such company which has not had an experience of ten years in liability underwriting. Besides the reserve provided for in this article, each such company shall be charged as a liability with all unpaid losses of which the company received notice on or before December 31, and all other debts and liabilities. If the capital stock of any such company, computing its liabilities in accordance with the provisions of this article, shall be at any time impaired to the extent of twenty per cent thereof, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of insurance and banking to give notice to the company to make good its whole capital stock within sixty days; and, if this is not done, he shall require the company to cease to do business within this state, and shall thereupon, in case the company is organized under the authority of the state, immediately institute legal proceedings to wind up the affairs of such company. [Acts 1909, p. 193, sec. 54.]

Note.—Employers' insurance association, see Title 77, Chapter 5.

Art. 4942. Commissioner may accept certificate, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, in calculating the reserve liability of any such company, may accept the certificate of the officer of any other state charged with the duty of supervising such company as to any such company organized under the laws of such state; provided, such certificate shows that such liability has been computed in accordance with the provisions of the preceding article.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN A

CASUALTY AND OTHER INSURANCE COMPANIES, EXCEPT FIRE, MARINE AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4942a. May be incorporated for what purposes.

Art. 4942b. Articles of incorporation to specify what.

Art. 4942c. Commissioner of insurance and banking to submit articles to attorney general; when; certificate of attorney general; record and fees.

Art. 4942d. Officers; subscription books.

Art. 4942e. Capital stock, amount of; how paid or invested; deposit of securities; certificate authorizing to do business, etc.
Art. 4942a. May be incorporated for what purposes.—Any three (3) or more persons, a majority of whom shall be residents of the state of Texas, may associate in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and form an incorporated company for any one or more of the following purposes:

(a) To insure any person against bodily injury, disablement or death resulting from accident and against disablement resulting from disease.

(b) To insure against loss or damage resulting from accident to or injury sustained by an employé or other person for which accident or injury the assured is liable.

(c) To insure against loss or damage by burglary, theft or house breaking.

(d) To insure glass against breakage.

(e) To insure against loss from injury to person or property which results accidentally from steam boilers, elevators, electrical devices, engines and all machinery and appliances used in connection therewith or operated thereby; and to boilers, elevators, electrical devices, engines, machinery, and appliances.

(f) To insure against loss or damage by water to any goods or premises arising from the breakage or leakage of sprinklers and water pipes.

(g) To insure against loss resulting from accidental damage to automobiles or caused accidentally by automobiles.

(h) To insure against loss or damage resulting from accident to or injury suffered by any person for which loss and damage the insured is liable; excepting employers liability insurance as authorized under subdivision “b” of this section.

(i) To insure persons, associations or corporations against loss [loss] or damage by reason of giving or extending of credit.

(j) To insure against loss or damage on account of circumstances upon or defects in the title to real estate and against loss by reason of the non-payment of the principal or interest of bonds, mortgages or other evidences of indebtedness.

(k) To insure against any other casualty or insurance risk specified in the articles of incorporation which may be lawfully made the subject of insurance, and the formation of a corporation for issuing against which is not otherwise provided for by this Act, excepting fire, marine and life insurance. [Acts 1911, p. 237, sec. 1.]

Art. 4942b. Articles of incorporation to specify what.—Such persons shall associate themselves together by articles of incorporation in writing for the purpose of forming an accident or casualty insurance company, which articles shall specify the name by which the company shall be known, the place in which its principal office will be established or located, the amount of its capital stock, the general object of the company, and the proposed duration of the same. Any name not previously in use by any existing company may be adopted. The commissioner of insurance and banking shall reject any name or title, when in his judgement [judgment] it too closely resembles that of any existing company or is likely to mislead the public. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4942c. Commissioner of insurance and banking to submit articles to attorney general, when; certificate of attorney general; record and fees; meeting of stockholders; by-laws; directors.—When such articles of incorporation are filed with the commissioner of insurance and banking, together with an affidavit [affidavit] made by two or more of its incorporators that all the stock has been subscribed in good faith and fully paid for, together with a charter fee for $20.00, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to submit such articles of incorporation to the attorney general for examination, and if he approves the same as conforming with the law, he shall certify and deliver such articles of incorporation, together with his certificate of approval attached thereto, to the commissioner of insurance and banking; who shall, upon receipt thereof, record the same in a book kept for that purpose, and upon receipt of a fee of $1.00 he shall furnish a certified copy of the same to the corporators, upon which they shall be a body politic and corporate, and may proceed to complete the organization of the company, for which purpose they shall forthwith call a meeting of the stockholders, who shall adopt by-laws for the government of the company and elect a board of directors not less than three, composed of stockholders, which board shall have full control and management of the affairs of the corporation, subject to the by-laws thereof as adopted or amended from time to time by the stockholders or directors and to the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4942d. Officers; subscription books.—The subscribers to said articles of incorporation shall choose from their number a president, a secretary, a treasurer and such number of directors not less than three (3), who shall continue in office for the period of one year from the date of filing articles of incorporation, and until their successors shall be duly chosen and qualified, as hereinafter provided. They shall open books for the subscription of stock in the company at such times and places as they shall deem convenient and proper, and shall keep them open until the full amount specified in the certificate is subscribed. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4942e. Capital stock, amount of; how paid or invested; deposit of securities; certificate authorizing to do business; etc.—Any company organized under the provisions of this Act shall have not less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) of capital stock subscribed, paid in, in cash, with an additional fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) of capital stock subscribed and fully paid in, in cash, for every kind of insurance, more than one of which it is authorized to transact as specified in any of the subdivisions; provided, that such companies with two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) of capital stock subscribed and fully paid in, in cash shall be authorized to transact all and every kind of insurance specified in any and all of the subdivisions of section 1 [Art. 4942a] of this Act; all of which said capital stock shall be paid up or invested in bonds of the United States or of this state or of any county or of any municipality of this state or in bonds or first liens upon unencumbered real estate in this state or in any other state in which such company may previously have been duly licensed to conduct an insurance business; and provided in either instance such real estate shall be worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon. The value of such real estate shall be determined by a valuation made under oath by two freeholders of the county where the real estate is located, and if buildings are considered as part of the value of such real estate they must be insured for the benefit of the mortgage, upon such company furnishing evidence satisfactory to the commissioner of insurance and banking.
that the capital stock as herein prescribed has been all subscribed and paid up in cash in good faith, and that such capital stock has been invested as herein prescribed, and upon the deposit of the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) of such securities or in cash with the state treasurer, then the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue to said company a certificate authorizing it to do business. No part of the capital paid in shall be loaned to any officer of said company. In the event any such company shall be required by the law of any other state, county or province as a requirement prior to doing an insurance business therein, to deposit with the duly appointed officer of such other state, county or province, or with the state treasurer of this state, any securities or cash in excess of the said deposit of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) hereinbefore mentioned, such company, at its discretion, may deposit with the state treasurer securities of the character authorized by this Act, or cash, sufficient to enable it to meet such requirements. The state treasurer is hereby authorized and directed [directed] to receive such deposit and to hold it exclusively for the protection of all policy holders of the company. Any deposits so made to meet the requirements of any such other state, county or province shall not be withdrawn by the company except upon filing with the commissioner of insurance and banking evidence satisfactory to him that the company has withdrawn from business, and has no unsecured liabilities outstanding in any such other state, county or province by which such additional deposit was required, and upon the filing of such evidence the company may withdraw such additional deposit at any time. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4942f. Corporate powers.—A corporation organized or doing business under the provisions of this Act, shall, by the name adopted by such corporation, in law, be capable of suing or being sued, and may have the power to make or enforce contracts in relation to the business of such corporation; may have and use a common seal, and may change and alter the same at pleasure, and in the name of the corporation or by a trustee chosen by the board of directors, shall in law, be capable of taking, purchasing, holding and disposing of real and personal property for carrying into effect the purposes of their organization; and may by their board of directors, trustees, or managers, make by-laws and amendments thereto, not inconsistent with the laws or the constitution of the state, or of the United States, which by-laws shall define the manner of electing directors, trustees or managers and officers of such corporations, together with the qualifications and duties of the same, and fixing the term of office. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4942g. Annual statement of company to commissioner.—The president, vice president and secretary, or a majority of directors or trustees of such company organized under the provisions of this Act shall annually, on the first day of January or within sixty days thereafter, prepare and deposit in the office of the commissioner of insurance and banking a verified statement of the condition of such company on the 31st day of December of the preceding year, showing:

First. Name and where located, (a) names of officers, (b) the amount of capital stock, (c) the amount of capital stock paid in.

Second. Assets, (a) the value of real estate owned by said company, (b) the amount of cash on hand, (c) the amount of cash deposited in bank or trust company, (d) the amount of bonds of the United States, and all other bonds, giving names and amounts with par and market values of each kind, (e) the amount of loans secured by first mortgage on real estate, (f) the amount of all other bonds, loans and how secured, with rate of interest, (g) the amount notes given for unpaid stock and how secured, (h) the amount of interest due and unpaid, (i) all other credits or assets.
Third. Liabilities, (a) the amount of losses due and unpaid, (b) the amount of claims for losses unadjusted, (c) the amount of claims for losses resisted.

Fourth. Income during the year, (a) the amount of fees received during the year, (b) the amount of interest received from all sources, (c) the amount of receipts from all other sources.

Fifth. Expenditures during the year, (a) the amount paid for losses, (b) the amount of dividends paid to stockholders, (c) the amount of commissions and salaries paid to agents, (d) the amount paid to officers for salaries, (e) the amount paid for taxes, (f) the amount of all other payments or expenditures.

Sixth. Miscellaneous, (a) the amount paid in fees during the year, (b) the amount paid for losses during the year, (c) the whole amount of insurance issued and in force on the 31st day of December of the previous year. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4942h. Commissioner may amend statement, etc.—The commissioner of insurance and banking is authorized to amend the form of statement and to exact such additional information as he may think necessary in order that a full exhibit of the standing of companies organized and doing business under this Act may be shown. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4942i. Failure to file statement; duty of commissioner, etc.—Upon the failure of any company organized or doing business under this Act to make the deposit or to file the statement in time as stated in the preceding section, the commissioner of insurance and banking shall notify such company to issue no new insurance until there should have been a compliance with said requirements, and it shall be unlawful for any such company to thereafter issue any policy of insurance until such requirements shall be complied with. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 4942j. Commissioner may examine books, etc.—The commissioner of insurance and banking may at any time make personal examination of the books, papers and securities of any company organized and doing business under the provisions of this Act, or may authorize or empower any other suitable person to make such examinations, and for the purpose of securing a full and true exhibit of its affairs, he or the person selected by him shall have power to examine under oath any officer of said company relative to its business management. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4942k. Commissioner may revoke authority to do business, when; receiver, etc.—If the commissioner of insurance and banking shall at any time from the report of examination that the company has not complied with the provisions of this Act, he shall revoke its certificate of authority to do business in this state, and shall refer the facts to the attorney general, who shall proceed to ask the proper court to appoint a receiver for said company, who shall, under the direction of the court, wind up the affairs of said company. But in no other way can the commissioner of insurance and banking or any other person restrain or interfere with the prosecution of business of any company doing business under provisions of this Act, except in actions by judgment creditor or in proceedings supplementary to execution. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4942l. Company may change securities on deposit.—Companies organized under the provisions of this Act shall have the right at any time to change their securities on deposit with the state treasurer by substituting for those withdrawn, a like amount in other securities of the character provided for in this Act. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4942m. May increase capital stock, how.—Any company organized under the provisions of this Act may increase the capital stock of the same at any time after the intention to so increase the capital stock shall have been ratified by a two-thirds vote of the stockholders, and after notice of the purpose to so increase the capital stock has been given
Art. 4942n. Dividends.—The directors of any company organized under this Act shall not make any dividends except from the surplus profit arising from their business, no dividends shall be declared except at the close of the year and at the time when, by law, the company is required to file its annual statement with the commissioner of insurance and banking. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4942o. Collection of interest on securities on deposit.—The state treasurer shall permit companies having securities on deposit with him under the provisions of this Act, to collect the interest as the same may become due, and shall deliver to such companies respectively the coupons or other evidences of interest pertaining to such deposits; provided, however, that upon failure of any company to deposit additional security as called for by the commissioner of insurance and banking, or pending any proceedings to close up or enjoin it, the state treasurer shall collect the interest as it becomes due and hold the same as additional security in his hands belonging to such company. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4942p. Penalty for doing business without certificate.—Any company organized or doing business under this Act without a certificate as provided for in this Act shall forfeit one hundred dollars ($100.00) for every day it continues to write new business in this state without such certificate. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4942q. Suits for penalties.—Suits brought to recover any of the penalties provided for in this Act shall be instituted in the name of the state of Texas, by the attorney general or by a district or county attorney under his direction, either in the county where the principal office is situated or in the county of Travis. Such penalties, when recovered, shall be paid into the state treasury for the use of the school fund. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4942r. Funds, how invested.—No company organized under the provisions of this Act shall invest its funds over and above its paid up capital stock in any other manner than as follows:

(a) In bonds of the United States or of any of the states of the United States which are at or above par. (b) In bonds or first liens on unencumbered real estate in this state or in any other state, county or province in which such company may be duly licensed to conduct an insurance business, and provided in each instance such real estate shall be worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon. The value of such real estate shall be determined by a valuation made under oath by two freeholders of the county where real estate is located, and if buildings are considered as a part of the value of such real estate they must be insured for the benefit of the mortgages. (c) In bonds or other interest-bearing evidence of indebtedness of any county, incorporated city, town or school or sanitary district within this state, or in any other state, county or province in which said company may be duly licensed to conduct an insurance business, and provided that such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness are issued by authority of law, and that interest upon them has never been defaulted. (d) In the stocks or bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any solvent dividend-paying corporation incorporated under the laws of this state, or of the United States or of any state, county or province in which such company may be duly licensed to conduct an insurance business. (e) In loans upon the pledge of any mortgage, stock or bonds, or other evidence of indebtedness, acceptable as investments under the terms of this Act if the current value of such mortgage stock, bond or other evidence of indebtedness is at least twenty-five (25) per cent more than the amount loaned thereon. [Id. sec. 18.]
Art. 4942s. Real estate may be held for what purposes.—No company organized under this Act shall be permitted to purchase, hold or convey real estate, except for the purpose and in the manner herein set forth:

First. For the erection and maintenance of buildings at least ample and adequate for the transaction of its own business.

Second. Such as shall have been mortgaged to it in good faith for money due.

Third. Such as shall have been conveyed to it in the satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings and which must be taken in by the company on account of the debt secured by such mortgage.

Fourth. Such as shall have been purchased at sales upon judgments, decrees or mortgages obtained or made for such debts, and no company incorporated as aforesaid shall purchase, hold or convey real estate in any other cases or for any other purpose. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4942t. Real estate, when disposed of, etc.—All real estate acquired as aforesaid, except such as is occupied by buildings used in whole or in part for the accommodation of such companies in the transaction of its business, shall, except as hereinafter provided, be sold and disposed of within ten years after such company shall have acquired title to the same. No such company shall have such real estate for a longer period than that above mentioned, unless the said company shall procure a certificate from the commissioner of insurance and banking that the interests of the company will suffer materially by a forced sale of such real estate, in which event the time for the sale may be extended to such time as the commissioner of insurance and banking shall direct in said certificate. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4942u. Commissioner to issue certificate of authority to transact business, when.—The commissioner of insurance and banking, upon due proof by a company organized under the provisions of this Act, of its possessing the qualifications required, shall issue a certificate setting forth that it has qualified and is authorized for the ensuing year to do business under these statutes, which certificate or a copy thereof shall be evidence of such qualifications and of the company's authority to transact business authorized by this Act, mentioned in the preceding sections [Arts. 4942a-4942t], and of its solvency and credits. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4942v. What companies subject to provisions.—Only companies organized and doing business under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to its provisions. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4942w. Fees.—The commissioner of insurance and banking shall charge for filing the preliminary statement or for filing the annual statement required by the provisions of this Act, a fee of ten dollars; and for each certificate and seal he shall charge a fee of one dollar. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4942x. Process against company, how served.—Proceed [process] in any civil suit against any casualty company organized under the laws of this state may be served only on the president, or any active vice president or secretary, or general council residing at the city of the home office of the company, or by leaving a copy of same at the home office of such company during business hours. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4942y. May decrease capital stock, how.—Any company organized under the provisions of this Act may decrease the capital stock of same at any time after the intention to so decrease the capital stock shall have been ratified by a majority vote of the stockholders, and after notice of the purpose to so decrease the capital stock has been given by publication in some newspaper of general circulation for a period of four consecutive weeks. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4942z. Provisions cumulative.—This Act is cumulative as to insurance legislation in this state, and as to the mode and manner of organizing and doing insurance business in this state, and shall not be construed to repeal any law now in force in this state. [Id. sec. 26.]

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 4943. Must publish certificate of commissioner.—It shall be the duty of every insurance company doing business in this state, whether life, health, fire, marine or inland, to publish annually, within thirty days after the issuance thereof, a certificate from the commissioner of insurance and banking that such company has in all respects complied with the laws in relation to insurance.

Art. 4944. Companies organized in this state; unlawful dividend.—It shall not be lawful for any life, health, fire, marine or inland insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, to make any dividend except from the surplus profits arising from its business; and, in estimating such profits, there shall be reserved therefrom a sum equal to forty per cent of the amount received as premiums on unexpired fire risks and policies, and one hundred per cent of the premiums received on unexpired life, health, marine or inland transportation risks and policies; which amount so reserved is hereby declared to be unearned premiums; and there shall also be reserved the amount of all unpaid losses, whether adjusted or unadjusted; all sums due the company on bonds, mortgages, stocks and book accounts, of which no part of the principal or the interest thereon has been paid during the year preceding such estimate of profits, and upon which suit for foreclosures or collections has not been commenced, or which, after judgment has been obtained thereon, shall have remained more than two years unsatisfied, and upon which interest shall not have been paid; and, in case of any such judgment, the interest due or accrued thereon and remaining unpaid shall also be reserved.

Art. 4945. [3081] Association of companies not permitted to do business, until.—In the event that any number of insurance companies, whether life, health, fire, marine or inland, should associate themselves together for the purpose of issuing or vending policies or joint policies of insurance, such association shall not be permitted to do business in this state until the taxes and fees due from each of said companies shall have been paid and all the conditions of the law fully complied with by each company; and any company failing or refusing to pay such taxes and fees, and to fully comply with the requirements of law, shall be refused permission by the commissioner of insurance and banking to do business in this state.

Art. 4946. [3082] Notice to be published, etc.—Whenever, by any provision of this title, any notice or other matter is required to be published, it shall, unless otherwise provided, be published for three successive weeks in two newspapers printed in the state, and which have a general circulation in the state.

Art. 4947. Misrepresentation must be material to avoid contract.—Any provision in any contract or policy of insurance issued or contracted for in this state, which provides that the answers or statements made in the application for such contract, or in the contract of insurance, if untrue or false, shall render the contract or policy void or voidable, shall be of no effect, and shall not constitute any defense to any suit brought upon such contract, unless it be shown upon the trial thereof that the matter or thing misrepresented was material to the risk or actually contributed to the contingency or event on which said policy became due and payable, and whether it was material and so contributed in any case shall be a question of fact to be determined by the court or jury trying such case. [Acts 1903, p. 94, art. 3096a.]

Former law.—This article was not adopted by Art. 4834, providing that benefit certificates should not be contestable unless material to the risk, and so left the question of materiality one of law for the court upon the jury's findings or upon the uncontested facts. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 351.

Constitutionality of prior act.—Rev. St. 1895, tit. 58, as amended by Gen. Laws 1903, c. 65, providing that any provision in an insurance contract that any answers or statements made therein, or in the application, if untrue or false, shall render the policy void, shall be of no effect, unless the matter misrepresented is material to the risk, and that the provisions of the act shall not apply to policies of life insurance containing a clause making the policy indutiable after two years or less, provided premiums are duly paid, and that a misrepresentation made in the application for life insurance shall be valid in any suit upon the contract two years or more after its issuance, where the premiums are paid and received without notice to the assured of the intention to rescind the contract because of misrepresentation, unless it is shown at the trial that it has been material to the risk and intentionally made, is not unconstitutional as insuring companies' property without due process of law under Const. U. S. Amend. 14. § 1. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186.

Nor is the act unconstitutional, as denying insurance companies the equal protection of the law, guaranteed by Const. U. S. Amend. 14, § 1, since the statute does not classify the companies, but classifies the contracts, and furnishes on its face sound reason for such classification. Id.

Construction in general.—The language of the legislature indicates that it was the intent of the legislature that it should cover every kind and class of insurance, and was not limited to life insurance. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186.

This article does not apply to fraternal beneficiary societies. Modern Woodmen of America v. Owens (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 856.

The statute is remedial within the rule that in construing remedial statutes the courts will look to the evil to be remedied and construe it liberally to accomplish the legislative purpose. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Strickler (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 599.

This article, relating to insurance, did not except assessment companies, and made a foreign assessment company writing insurance in Texas subject to all the provisions of Acts 4947-4950, inclusive, which contained most of the provisions of Acts 28th Leg. c. 69, regulating non-life insurance. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 355.

Repeal of article.—Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, regulating insurance, did not repeal any of the provisions of Acts 28th Leg. c. 69, containing this article, so as to render such provision inapplicable to a foreign assessment company doing business in Texas. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 355.

Warranty.—A stipulation in a policy as to the occupancy of the building insured is a warranty. Sun Ins. Co. v. Texas Foundry & Machine Co., 4 App. C. C. §§ 31, 15 S. W. 34.
In order to constitute a statement or promise of the insured a warranty, it must be made a part of the policy, either by appearing in the body of the instrument, or by a proper reference in the policy to some other paper in which it is for represent as to whether such other paper was regarded by the insurer and insured as a part of the policy, the doubt will be resolved by the courts in favor of the insured. When a policy of insurance is in its terms inconsistent, or ambiguous in its provisions, it must be construed most favorably for the assured. Goddard v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 69, 1 S. W. 906, 60 Am. Rep. 1.

A false statement as to a disease is a warranty, unless the same was temporary and due to exceptional causes. Life Ins. Co. v. Simpson, 88 T. 333, 31 S. W. 501, 25 L. R. A. 768, 53 Am. St. Rep. 757.

An answer in application as to the character of a building held not a warranty where a special agent, after examination, canceled the policy, and issued a new one for an additional premium. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Padgitt (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 800.

A clause in a fire policy held to cause other statements in the application to operate as representations only, though they were sufficient in themselves to constitute warranties. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

In an action on a life insurance policy, which provided that the representations and answers made in the application were warranties, it was held the contract was completely set forth in the policy and application, alleged answers to questions not copied in the policy held immaterial. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 34 C. A. 131, 78 S. W. 386.

A stipulation in an application for a life policy held not to modify the warranty and make the answers of the insured mere representations. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 778.

The use of the word "warranty" in an application for life insurance held not necessarily to create a warranty in law, whether one was intended being a question to be determined from a construction of the policy, the application, and the medical examiner's report. Reppond v. National Life Ins. Co., 100 T. 519, 101 S. W. 786, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 951, 15 Ann. Cas. 619.

A representation or statement in an application for insurance held not to constitute a promissory warranty. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Wade (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1186.

Avoidance of policy for misrepresentation or breach of warranty or condition.—Forfeiture of policy for breach of promissory warranty or condition subsequent, see notes at end of this title.

As to the effect of material misrepresentations by the insured at the time policy is obtained, see Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. National Exchange Bank (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 333; Sullivan v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 999.

The fact that insured made a false statement unintentionally, which he could have avoided by due diligence, held not to avoid the policy. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 619.

The contract is complete when the policy is issued, and an application signed thereafter does not relate back and become a part of the original contract, so as to render insured bound by representations therein, unless there is a consideration for such subsequent act. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Bynum (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 579.

Machinery that has been in use much longer than is represented in an application for insurance thereon, but has been rebuilt, and is practically new and of the represented value, the representation is substantially correct. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

Failure of insured in a life policy to give certain information held a material misstatement, avoiding the policy. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1012.

Where the statements in an application for a life policy are made warranties, it is essential to the validity of the policy that the statements are true. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 778.

An insurer making every statement of the application a warranty held to a strict rule when endeavoring to avoid payment of a policy because of answers to inquiries which it has framed. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

Answers in an application for life insurance when operating as affirmative warranties need only be substantially true; but, where they are not substantially true, the insurer may treat the policy as forfeited without reference to the materiality of the answer. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 792.

— Covenant to keep books or inventory.—Breach of covenant as to keeping books or inventory in general, see notes at end of title.

This article does not apply to a provision in a policy as to keeping books. Home Ins. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 625.

This article has no application to a covenant in a policy to keep an inventory in an iron safe and produce it after fire. National Fire Ins. Co. v. J. W. Caraway & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 453.

— Title or interest.—It seems that a warranty that the insured building stands on land owned in fee simple is not broken when the equitable title only is in the vendee, and

A surviving partner of a mercantile firm has not the "entire, unconditional and sole ownership of the property" so as to insure the stock of goods in his own name, without disclosing the interest of the estate of the deceased partner, when such disclosure is required by the policy. Pentart Ins. Co. v. Crescent Ins. Co. 35 T. 521.

A stipulation that a policy should be void if the insured buildings are not on ground owned by the insured is valid. Home Ins. Co. v. Smith (Clv. App.) 29 S. W. 264.

A material misrepresentation as to the state of the insured's title to the property will avoid the policy. Queen Ins. Co. of America v. May (Clv. App.) 35 S. W. 339.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff was the sole, absolute, and unconditional owner of the property insured, within the requirements of the policy. Phoenix Assurance Co. v. Deavenport, 16 C. A. 283, 41 S. W. 399.

The fact that part of the furniture insured was owned by the wife of the insured before their marriage held not a breach of warranty of sole and unconditional ownership.

Where a person doing business under a firm name insures his goods in such name, representing that they belonged to such firm, held not a violation of a provision that the policy should be void for misrepresentation. Bonnet v. Merchants' Ins. Co. (Clv. App.) 42 S. W. 318.

A person who succeeded a firm, and took out insurance in its name, under which he transacted business, did not thereby violate a provision avoiding the policy if his interest was not fully stated. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Bonnet (Clv. App.) 48 S. W. 1104; Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Bonnet (Clv. App.) 48 S. W. 1110.

Where a married woman held absolute owner of property within a policy requiring sole interest, and her husband was entitled to homestead therein, Sun Ins. Office v. Beneke (Clv. App.) 53 S. W. 98.

Policy of insurance on property, warranted to be the insured's, described as household and kitchen furniture contained in a certain building, held not rendered void by the fact that furniture of another was contained in the same building. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Nations, 24 C. A. 652, 69 S. W. 817.

Condition in fire policy as to sole ownership of property held breached. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Calhoun, 28 C. A. 409, 67 S. W. 155.

A condition of insurance policy that a single individual is insured in a firm name does not avoid the policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 445, 69 S. W. 235.

In an action on a fire policy, evidence held to show that the property covered belonged, not to plaintiff, but to the woman with whom he was living in adultery. McCarty v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 C. A. 122, 76 S. W. 394.

In an action on a fire policy a mortgagee, an assignee that under the circumstances stated assured was the sole and unconditional owner of the property, as required by the policy, held proper. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Ruddell, 37 C. A. 35, 82 S. W. 826.

Incumbrances.—A condition in a policy on a building that it should be void if the building was on ground not owned by the insured in fee simple is not broken by a lien on the land. Alamo Fire Ins. Co. v. Lancaster, 28 S. W. 126, 7 C. A. 677.

The insurer is charged with notice of recorded liens on insurance property in the absence of any statement relating thereto. Insurance Co. v. Holcomb (Clv. App.) 31 S. W. 1086.

A policy of insurance covering many articles of furniture is not avoided as to unincumbered property by a stipulation that a policy should be avoided by a mortgagee of the property. German Ins. Co. v. Lockett, 12 C. A. 159, 24 S. W. 173.

Incumbrances do not avoid a policy where the insured represented himself as the sole, absolute and unconditional owner. Burlington Ins. Co. v. Coffman, 13 C. A. 439, 35 S. W. 406.

A note secured by a mortgage on property insured, which was never delivered, held not a breach of a mortgage condition in the policy. Insurance Co. of North America v. Wicker, 93 T. 330, 55 S. W. 740.

A mortgage existing against property insured held a breach of a mortgage condition in the policy, though the mortgage was discharged the day after the execution of the policy. Id.

Under a stipulation that the policy should become void if the subject of the insurance be personality and be incumbered, forfeiture cannot be claimed for false statement as to Incumbrances; the subject of insurance being partly real and partly personal. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Clv. App.) 60 S. W. 820.

Insurance on certain specified articles held not rendered void as to all, because one article was incumbered by a chattel mortgage. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

Condition in fire policy held to have been breached by insured. Curlee v. Texas Home Fire Ins. Co., 31 C. A. 471, 73 S. W. 831.

Facts held insufficient to show that property insured was not subject to a lien for a part of the price, as represented, within a provision of the policy that it should be void if insured was not true. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. American Cement Plaster Co., 37 C. A. 629, 84 S. W. 1115.

A purchaser of real estate receiving a deed retaining a vendor's lien for the unpaid part of the price held to acquire the entire, unconditional, and sole ownership within a fire policy. Wright v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 54 O. A. 8, 138 P. 122.

A fire policy stipulating that it shall be void on the interest of insured becoming other than unincumbered held void because of a vendor's lien on the property. Id.

While this article relates to fire as well as life policies, it applies only where there are misstated incumbrances in the application or in the policy itself, and does not apply to a provision in the policy making it void if the property be or become incumbered by a chattel mortgage; there being no representation made by insured. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Clv. App.) 125 S. W. 363.
A warranty in a fire policy against inclusions existing at the time on the property insured and the value thereof renders the policy void.

This article applies to covenants of warranty as well as to statements in the application not made warranties by the contract, and a stipulation in the policy relating to liens on the property which was equivalent to a representation that no liens existed, as well as stipulations in building had knowledge that the statement was true, that were representations in the contract of insurance within the statute, so that a misrepresentation with reference thereto could not be set up as a defense without showing that it was material. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Waco v. Stricker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 699.

Value of property.—Overvaluation of property insured will avoid the policy when it is so gross and clear as to have been intentional or fraudulent. It is immaterial that it was the result of mistake. Overvaluation by an agent is imputable to his principal. Home Ins. Co. v. Eakin, 2 App. C. 64 to 65, 34 N. Y. 367. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Home Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 486.

Overvaluation by insured held not material to the risk under a nonvalued policy and material only to the question of fraud and false swearing. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

To establish fraudulent overvaluation of property insured by a valued policy, it must be shown that insured knew that the property was worth less, or the actual value must be so much less than that stated as to warrant a presumption of fraud. Id.

A misrepresentation of the value of property insured by a valued policy, not a mere error in judgment, is material, and, if intentional, avoids the policy. Id.

Under this article misrepresentation by an insured as to the value of a building and personal property therein will not avoid the policy. Co-Operative Ins. Ass'n of San Angelo v. Ray (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1152.

Misstatement of age.—The failure of insured to mention that a gambling concern was connected with his insured saloon held not such a concealment of a material fact as to avoid the policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nunn (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 88.

Health and physical condition.—The trivial illness of insured on the day on which he executed his life policy, through his bad health and habit, held not to be a misstatement to the injury or damage to the policy, which required him to be in good health on such day. Woodmen of the World v. Locklin, 28 C. A. 485, 67 S. W. 331.

The words "injuries or wounds," and the words, "other injuries," in an application for accident insurance, held only to refer to such serious wounds or injuries not specified as might affect the risk taken by insurer in insuring against accidents. Tren ton v. North American Acc. Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 276.

Under the terms of a life policy, insurer held to have incurred no liability where insured was at the time of delivery affected with a mortal disease. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Betz, 44 C. A. 587, 99 S. W. 1140.

A declaration in a life policy held not to qualify another provision, so as to require only good faith in answering the medical examiner's questions. Supreme Lodge Knights and Ladies of Honor v. Payne (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 523.

The answer "No" to the question to an applicant for life insurance whether she had suffered "abortion" held not false, where she had suffered only one. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Crenshaw (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 975.

Medical attendance.—Untrue statements as to medical attendance, in an application for life insurance warranting their truth, held material, and to preclude recovery on the policy. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Harris, 94 T. 36, 57 S. W. 635, 86 Am. St. Rep. 813.

False statements of insured that she had not been treated by a physician, except in childbirth, for 10 years, and had no disease of the liver, held warranties, and to void the policy, whether material or not. Flippens v. State Life Ins. Co., 30 C. A. 362, 79 S. W. 787.

Where a physician testified that he had treated insured, and she permitted him to prescribe for her, it was immaterial that she did not summon him, as regards the falsity of her statement that she had not been treated by a physician. Id.

The insurer to life insurance to qualify for life insurance held not to give notice to the insurer that any other physician than those mentioned in the application had treated the applicant, and the policy was noneffective in view of the application making the applicant's statements warranties. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 773.

Where a life policy made the statements in the application warranties, and insured did not give the name of the physician who had treated him within five years when answering the question calling on him to give the name and address of each physician consulted during the past five years, there was a misstatement avoiding the policy. Id.

The failure of an applicant for life insurance to state the name of one of the physicians who attended him within five years preceding the application held not a breach of warranty. Ring v. National Life Ins. Co., 100 T. 519, 161 S. W. 786, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 981, 35 Ann. Cas. 618.

Occupation and family history.—Provision of a policy of life insurance held to constitute a warranty of the truth of the statements made in the application, so that a discrepancy between the ages of the insured and the stated and their actual ages caused the forfeiture of the contract. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Pinson, 94 T. 553, 63 S. W. 531.

Habits and age.—Proof that insured occasionally drank to excess held not a breach of warranty that he did not drink once a month. Equitable Life Assur. Soci. v. Liddell, 32 C. A. 262, 74 S. W. 87.

The word "use," in a question put to an applicant for life insurance in relation to intoxicating liquors, held to mean habit or custom, and a negative answer was not false.
because the applicant had drunk liquor. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Terry, 37 C. A. 486, 81 S. W. 656.

Insured held bound by statements in his application, as to his age, made by his father, to whom he referred the company's agents. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 546.

In action to recover the balance due on a life insurance policy, evidence held not to conclusively show that the insured in his application misstated his age. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Lennox, 103 T. 138, 124 S. W. 623.

A statement by an applicant for life insurance as to occupation held substantially false so as to justify forfeiting the policy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 702.

-- Other insurance. -- A warranty that an applicant for life insurance had a policy in another company called the "Mutual Reserve" was not proven to be broken by evidence showing there had been another policy, which was void, in the "Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association." Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Coalson, 22 C. A. 64, 54 S. W. 388.

A warranty that an applicant for insurance had never made application for insurance under which no policy was issued is not broken by the fact that a company wrote out, and sent to its agent a policy for applicant which was never delivered. Id.

A fire insurance policy provided that it should be void if assured then had, or there­after procured other insurance. Held, construing this article under the assumption that it was enacted with knowledge of the judicial doctrine of promissory warranties and rep­resentations, and requiring strict compliance with the former, that it did not abolish such doctrine, and the policy was avoided by carrying policies in other companies, $750 in excess of the $37,000 concurrent insurance permitted, and the small amount of the excess, compared with the total insurance permitted, did not excuse the violation of the provi­sions of art. 263, former, of Colonial Assur. Co., 56 C. A. 627, 121 S. W. 517.

The liability of an insurance company under a provision as to the effect of other insur­ance held fixed at the time that a loss occurs. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Fordtran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 692.

Insured in a life policy held authorized to conclude that a question as to other insur­ance related only to policies in regular insurance companies, and not insurance in frater­nal orders and accident policies. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

An application for insurance in an old life insurance company calling for other insur­ance held not to require disclosure of accident policies and certificates in fraternal assessment orders and local societies. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford, 103 T. 522, 131 S. W. 406.

Art. 4948. No defense based upon misrepresentation valid, unless, etc.—In all suits brought upon insurance contracts or policies hereafter issued or contracted for in this state, no defense based upon misrep­resentations made in the applications for, or in obtaining or securing the said contract, shall be valid, unless the defendant shall show on the trial that, within a reasonable time after discovering the falsity of the misre­presentations so made, it gave notice to the assured, if living, or, if dead, to the owners or beneficiaries of said contract, that it refused to be bound by the contract or policy; provided, that ninety days shall be a reasonable time; provided, also, that this article shall not be construed as to render available as a defense any immaterial misrepresentation, nor to any wise modify or affect article 3096aa [4947].

Constitutionality of prior act.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Application.—See notes under Art. 4947.

This article applies to mutual relief associations as well as to other insurance com­panies and the defendant must show that the alleged false statements contained in the application were material, if it would avoid the risk on this account. Modern Order of Pretorians v. Hollmig (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 846.

The provisions of this article do not apply to fraternal and beneficiary associations. Modern Order of Pretorians v. Hollmig (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 846.

The peculiar wording of this statute makes it apply only to the truth or falsity of answers or statements in the application or contract and not what was agreed in the contract to be performed. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co., 56 C. A. 383, 118 S. W. 1087.

This article applies to covenants of warranty as well as to statements in the applica­tion not made warranted by the contract, and a stipulation in the policy relating to the property which was equivalent to a representation that no liens existed, as well as a stipulation guaranteeing that the building had brick chimneys and flues throughout, were representations in the contract of warranty within the statute, so that a misre­presentation with reference thereto could not be set up as a defense without showing that it was material. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Stricker (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 599.

Notice.—Under this article a company not having given the prescribed notice was absolutely barred from defending an action on the policy because of alleged misrep­resentations in the application. National Life Ass'n v. Hagelstein (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 353.

Art. 4949. Shall not constitute defense, unless shown, etc.—Any provision in any contract or policy of insurance issued or contracted for in this state, which provides that the same shall be void or voidable, if any misrepresentations or false statements be made in proofs of loss or of death, as the case may be, shall be of no effect, and shall not constitute any defense to any suit brought upon such contract or policy, unless it be shown upon the trial of such suit that the false statement made in such proofs of loss or death was fraudulently made, and misrepresented a fact material to the question of the liability of the insurance company upon the contract of insurance sued on, and that the insurance company was thereby misled, and caused to waive or lose some valid defense to the policy. [Id. art. 3096cc.]

Construction in general.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Art. 4950. Policies governed by laws of Texas, notwithstanding stipulation to the contrary.—Any contract of insurance payable to any citizen or inhabitant of this state by any insurance company or corporation doing business within this state shall be held to be a contract made and entered into under and by virtue of the laws of this state relating to insurance, and governed thereby, notwithstanding such policy or contract of insurance may provide that the contract was executed, and the premiums and policy (in case it becomes a demand) should be payable without this state, or at the home office of the company or corporation issuing the same. [Id. art. 3096dd.]

Construction in general.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Art. 4951. Policies of insurance to be accompanied by copy of questions, etc.—Every contract or policy of insurance issued or contracted for in this state shall be accompanied by a written, photographic or printed copy of the application for such insurance policy or contract, as well as a copy of all questions asked and answers given thereto. The provisions of the foregoing articles shall not apply to policies of life insurance in which there is a clause making such policy indisputable after two years or less, provided premiums are duly paid; provided, further, that no defense based upon misrepresentation made in the application for, or in obtaining or securing, any contract of insurance upon the life of any person being or residing in this state shall be valid or enforceable in any suit brought upon such contract two years or more after the date of its issuance, when premiums due on such contract for the said term of two years have been paid to, and received by, the company issuing such contract, without notice to the assured by the company so issuing such contract of its intention to rescind the same on account of misrepresentation so made, unless it shall be shown on the trial that such misrepresentation was material to the risk and intentionally made. [Id. art. 3096eee.]

Art. 4952. No level premium policies shall be issued.—No level premium policy of life insurance shall be issued or sold by any company in this state after December 31, 1909, which provides for more than one year preliminary term insurance. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 16.]

Art. 4953. Policies shall contain entire contract.—Every policy of insurance issued or delivered within this state on or after the first day of January, 1910, by any life insurance company doing business within this state, shall contain the entire contract between the parties, and the application therefor may be made a part thereof. [Id. sec. 17.]

Parts of policy.—The written portions of the policy will control the printed when they conflict. G. H. Ins. Co. v. Jacobs, 56 T. 365.

Where there are no words of reference to the application in the policy, it forms no part thereof. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

Where a paper attached to the policy, and describing the goods insured, makes the policy subject to a clause attached thereto, such clause is a part of the contract, and constitutes a warranty. City Drug Store v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 21.

Art. 4954. Companies shall not discriminate.—No insurance company doing business in this state shall make or permit any distinction or discrimination in favor of individuals between insurants (the insured) of the same class and of equal expectation of life in the amount of, or payment of, premiums or rates charged for policies of life or endowment insurance, or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon; nor shall any such company or agent thereof make any contract of insurance or agreement as to such contract other than as expressed in the policy issued thereon; nor shall any such company, or any officer, agent, solicitor or representative thereof, pay, allow or give, or offer to pay, allow or give, directly or indirectly, as an inducement to insurance, any rebate of premiums payable on the policy, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, or any paid employment or contract for service of any kind, or any valuable consideration or inducement whatever not specified in the policy contract of insurance; or give, sell or purchase, or offer to give, sell or purchase, as an inducement to insurance, or in connection therewith, any stocks, bonds or other securities of any insurance company or other corporation, association or partnership, or any dividends or profits to accrue thereon, or anything of value whatsoever not specified in the policy, or issue any policy containing any special or board contract or similar provision, by the terms of which said policy will share or participate in any special fund derived from a tax or a charge against any portion of the premium on any other policy. Any company or agent violating the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code; and the said company shall, as an additional penalty, forfeit its certificate of authority to do business in this state, and the said agent shall, as an additional penalty, forfeit his license to do business in this state for one year; provided, the company shall not be held liable under this article for any act of its agent, unless such act was authorized by its president, one of its vice presidents, its secretary or an assistant secretary, or by its board of directors. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4955. Shall apply to all companies.—All the provisions of the laws of this state applicable to the life, fire, marine, inland, lightning; or tornado insurance companies, shall, so far as the same are applicable, govern and apply to all companies transacting any other kind of insurance business in this state, so far as they are not in conflict with provisions of law made specially applicable thereto. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 4956. Corporations may be incorporated to transact one or more kinds of insurance business.—Corporations may be incorporated, under the laws of this state, to transact any one or more kinds of insurance business other than life, fire, marine, inland, lightning or tornado insurance business in the same manner, and by complying with the same requirements, as prescribed by law for the incorporation of life insurance companies; provided, that no such company shall be incorporated having the power to do a fidelity and surety business or a liability insurance business with a paid up capital stock of less than two hundred thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 4957. Chapter does not apply to fraternal beneficiary companies.—None of the terms or provisions of this chapter shall apply to, nor in any wise affect, fraternal beneficiary associations as defined by the laws of this state, nor apply to companies carrying on the business of life or casualty insurance on the assessment or annual premium plan, under the provision of this title. [Id. sec. 65.]

Application.—A fraternal beneficiary association of another state, the relief funds of which are created by assessments on its members, which has subordinate lodges to which application is made for membership and which issues benefit certificates, the amount payable on which is under a by-law dependent on the sum collected by assessments, comes within the provisions of this article and is not liable under Art. 4746, except in case of failure of its principal officer to make the required statement. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Story, 97 T. 564, 78 S. W. 2.

A live stock insurance company, organized under Art. 1211, subd. 46, to "conduct a live stock insurance company or business upon a mutual or co-operative plan without authorized capital stock and to issue policies of indemnity," to its members, is not such a mutual relief association as is mentioned in this article. State v. Burgess, 101 T. 524, 109 S. W. 923.

Art. 4958. Shall not misrepresent terms of policies, etc.—No life insurance company doing business in this state, and no officer, director or agent thereof, shall issue or circulate, or cause or permit to be issued or circulated, any estimate, illustration, circular or statement of any sort misrepresenting the terms of any policy issued by it, or benefits or advantages to be promised thereby, or the dividends or share of surplus to be received thereon. [Id. sec. 67.]

Art. 4959. Policy shall not be defeated.—No recovery upon any life, accident or health insurance policy shall ever be defeated because of any misrepresentation in the application which is of an immaterial fact and which does not affect the risks assumed. [Id. sec. 68.]

In general.—See notes under Art. 4947.

Art. 4960. [3061] [2943] Insurance unlawful unless authorized by commissioner of insurance.—It shall not be lawful for any person to act within this state, as agent or otherwise, in soliciting or receiving applications for insurance of any kind whatever, or in any manner to aid in the transaction of the business of any insurance company incorporated in this state or out of it, without first procuring a certificate of authority from the commissioner of agriculture, insurance, statistics and history [commissioner of insurance and banking].

Art. 4961. [3093] Who are agents.—Any person who solicits insurance on behalf of any insurance company, whether incorporated under the laws of this or any other state or foreign government, or who takes or transmits other than for himself any application for insurance or any policy of insurance to or from such company, or who advertises or otherwise gives notice that he will receive or transmit the same, or who shall receive or deliver a policy of insurance of any such company, or who shall examine or inspect any risk, or receive, or collect, or transmit any premium of insurance, or make or forward any diagram of any building or buildings, or do or perform any other act or thing in the making or consummating of any contract of insurance for or with any such insurance company other than for himself, or who shall examine into, or adjust or aid in adjusting any loss for or on behalf of any such insurance company, whether any of such acts shall be done at the instance or request, or by the employment of such insurance company, or of or by any broker or other person, shall be held to be the agent of the company for which the act is done, or the risk is taken, as far as relates to all the liabilities, duties, requirements and penalties set forth in this chapter; provided, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to citizens of this state who arbitrate in the adjustment of losses between the insurers and insured, nor to the adjustment of particular or general average losses of vessels or cargoes by marine adjusters who have paid an occupation tax of two hundred dollars for the year in which the adjustment is made; provided, further, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to practicing attorneys at law in the state of Texas, acting in the regular transaction of their business as such attorneys at law, and who are not local agents, nor acting as adjusters for any insurance company.

[Acts 1879, S. S., p. 32.]

"Insurance broker" defined.—"Insurance agent," "insurance broker," defined. The broker is the agent of the insurer as to the premium, but for nothing else. In all other respects he is the agent of the insured. Insurance Co. v. Brown, 82 T. 631, 18 S. W. 713. Bond of agent.—Under the terms of a bond, an insurance agent held bound to turn over all property received by virtue of the agency to the receiver of the company.

Authority of agent.—Authority of agent as to premiums, see notes at the end of this title.

An agent's representation as to the amount of surplus which would accrue on a certain policy held a mere statement of opinion; and hence assured was not entitled, as a matter of law, to recover the difference between the amount paid and the amount stated. Donoho v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 22 C. A. 192, 54 S. W. 645.

Acts of insurance agent held to bind the company, as within the apparent scope of his authority. Insurance Co. of North America v. Bell, 26 C. A. 129, 60 S. W. 262.

The law declares the person performing the acts specified to be the agent of the company for which he acted, so as to render it liable for taxes for doing business within the limits of the state, but does not confer any power or authority upon him, with reference to making contracts, or to make the insurance company liable for any act that he did, except as specified in that law. Insurance Co. v. Walker, 94 T. 745, 61 S. W. 711.

The answers inserted by an agent in an application for a fire policy held binding on the insured. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 667.

Insurance to its agent, an insurance company takes the polices on property of insolvent or financially crippled debtors does not avoid a policy written on such a risk, unless it appear that insured had knowledge of such prohibition. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

An insurance company, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that the insurer was bound by an agreement its agent made with an insurance broker acting for plaintiff. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 625.

Restriction.—Where one solicits insurance, writes out, takes and forwards the application to a company, collects the premium and delivers the policy, he is the agent of the company, with all the usual powers, rights, duties and obligations the relation confers or demands, and no restriction of his power or authority contained in the application or contract of insurance is valid. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 824.

This article, being originally a part of the revenue act of 1879 does not prevent an insurance company from limiting the power of soliciting agents to bind it by information received in procuring the contract of insurance. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 871.

Tender of premium to agent.—A bank in this state having acted as an agent of an insurance company in another state, a tender of premiums could be made to it until the agency is revoked and notice given to the insured. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Field (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 836.

Agent for insured or insurer.—A local insurance agent in issuing a fire policy held to have acted not as an agent of insured or of the payee, but for the insurer. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

Where an insurance broker agreed with the owner to keep the property insured for a certain time, the broker's act in securing a policy to replace a worthless one insured to the owner, though he did not know of the act. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 625.

Liability of agent.—Where an insurance company is authorized to do business in this state, it, and not its agents, is bound upon the contract. Hudson v. Compere, 94 T. 419, 61 S. W. 380.

Where agents of a foreign insolvent fire insurance company unauthorized to do business in Texas, and known by the agents to be so unauthorized, entered into a conspiracy with such company to defraud one, and procured for him a fire insurance policy on property that was destroyed during the life of the policy, they come within the two preceding articles and are personally liable. Price v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 986.

In suit to recover on a policy of fire insurance, where the insurer imploade his agent and asked judgment over against him in the event of a recovery by the insurer, evidence held to warrant a verdict in favor of the agent. Shawnee Fire Ins. Co. v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 854.

An insurance broker held liable to his principal, with whom he had agreed to procure reinsurance, for failure to notify the principal that the present insurance on the property was worthless; the insurer having become insolvent. Diamond v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 428.

Liability of insurer.—A company held to have waived a provision in its contract that its agent should forward premium notes at the end of a month by accepting them sooner without objection. Lea v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 17 C. A. 451, 43 S. W. 927.
An agent held entitled to commissions on a policy withdrawn by the company before delivery, id.

Where an insurance company claims exemption from liability to its agent by reason of the terms of its contract, it must allege and prove that such terms were complied with. Id.

The fact that an insurance agent gave private information sent to him by his principal to the public is not binding on the principal, so as to make him responsible as for libel. Schultze v. Jalonick, 18 C. A. 286, 44 S. W. 580.

Where a promise by an agent of a life insurance company to return a premium note to an applicant in case the applicant should not accept the policy was unauthorised, the applicant was entitled to recover the amount of the note where he declined the policy and the agent fraudulently negotiated the note to an innocent purchaser. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seldel, 62 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 345.

Where an agent may exercise discretion as to the issuance of policies, and the risk is a legal one, insurer is bound by the agent's acts within his real or apparent authority. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 283.

Where an insurance agent obtained negotiable notes of applicants for policies, knowing that one of the policies would not be issued, and transferred the notes to an innocent holder, he perpetrated a fraud for which the insurance company was responsible. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1187.

A provision in contracts of general agency for a life insurance company, as to deductions from the agent's commissions on renewal premiums, where the agent did not collect all the premiums held by him, was not held to apply to commissions on all policies written by the agent, and not merely those policy holders who removed from the state. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Reinhardt (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 596.

Provision in a contract of general agency for a life insurance company as to commissions on renewal premiums after discontinuance of the agreement held not to entitle the agent to commissions free of the provision for deduction where the premiums were not collected by him. Id.

If a contract of general agency for a life insurance company is doubtful as to whether a provision as to deduction from renewal premiums when not collected by the agent applies to policies written under prior contracts, held the practical construction put on it by the parties on termination of the agency should control. Id.

Where the general office of insurer sent a policy to a local office, where, according to rule, it was held pending an investigation of the applicant, and not being satisfied with the risk, it was declined, and the policy recalled, and no premium was ever paid, the agent was not entitled to commissions. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hodnette (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 615.

In an action by a life insurance broker for commissions for securing liability business for defendant, evidence held insufficient to establish any agreement for the payment of commissions. Zeina Life Ins. Co. v. Farrell (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 283.

Liability of insured.—Insured, procuring broker to obtain policy, held liable to the broker for the premium paid by him. Holmes v. Thomason, 25 C. A. 389, 61 S. W. 604.

Where a broker, without being applied to, procured a policy on property of insured and paid premiums thereon, he cannot recover the same of the insured. Id.

Forfeiture of agent's rights.—A contract of employment as soliciting agent for an insurance company construed, and held that the agent did not in consequence of a certain fact forfeit his rights under the contract. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

The failure of a soliciting agent of an insurance company to make reports called for by his contract of employment held to forfeit his rights under the contract. Id.

Discharge of agent.—A contract of employment as soliciting agent for an insurance company construed, and held to authorize the company to discharge the agent for specified grounds. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

Art. 4962. [3094] Taxes to be assessed against, when.—Whenever any person shall do or perform within this state any of the acts mentioned in article 4961 for or on behalf of any insurance company therein referred to such company shall be held to be doing business in this state, and shall be subject to the same taxes, state, county and municipal, as insurance companies that have been legally qualified and admitted to do business in this state by agents or otherwise are subject, the same to be assessed and collected as taxes are assessed and collected against such companies; and such persons so doing or performing any of such acts or things shall be personally liable for such taxes. [Id. sec. 3.]

Penalty, etc.—Any person who shall do any of the acts mentioned in article 4961 for or on behalf of any insurance company without such company has first complied with the requirements of the laws of this state, shall be personally liable to the holder of any policy of insurance in respect of which such act was done for any loss covered by the same. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4963. Policies to be issued only through resident agents, except.—Any fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety, or fidelity insurance company, legally authorized to do business in this state, is hereby prohibited from authorizing or allowing any person, agent, firm or corporation that is a non-resident of the state of Texas to issue, or cause to be issued, to sign or countersign, or to deliver, or cause to be delivered, any policy or policies of insurance on property, person or persons located in the state of Texas, except through regularly commissioned and licensed agents of such companies in Texas; provided, however, that this law shall not apply to property owned by the railroad companies or other common carriers, and provided, further, that upon oath made in writing by any person that he can not procure insurance on property through such agents in Texas it shall be lawful for any insurance company not having an agent in Texas to insure property of any person upon application of said person, upon his filing said oath with the county clerk of the county in which such person resides. [Acts 1903, p. 232, sec. 1.]

Art. 4964. Affidavit to be filed before certificate will issue.—Before a certificate or license to any fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance companies is issued authorizing it to transact business in this state, the insurance commissioner shall require in every case, in addition to the other requirements already made and provided by the law, that each and all such insurance companies herein mentioned shall file with him an affidavit that it has not violated any provision of this law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4965. Agents, etc., prohibited from paying commissions to non-residents.—Any person, agent, firm or corporation licensed by the commissioner of insurance to act as a fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance agent in the state of Texas, is hereby prohibited from paying, directly or indirectly, any commission, brokerage or other valuable consideration on account of any policy or policies covering property, person or persons, in the state of Texas, to any person, persons, agent, firm or corporation that is a non-resident of the state of Texas, or to any person or persons, agent, firm or corporation not duly licensed by the commissioner of insurance and banking of the state of Texas as a fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance agent. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4966. Penalty for violation.—Whenever the commissioner of insurance and banking shall have or receive notice or information of any violation of any of the provisions of this law, he shall immediately investigate, or cause to be investigated, such violation, and if a fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance company has violated any of such provisions aforesaid, he shall immediately revoke its license for not less than three months, nor more than six months for the first offense, and, for each offense thereafter, for not less than one year; and, if any person, agent, firm or corporation licensed by the commissioner of insurance and banking as a fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance agent shall violate or cause to be violated any of the provisions of this law, he shall, for the first offense, have his license revoked for all companies for which he has been licensed, for not less than three months, and for the second offense he shall have his license revoked for all companies for which he is licensed and shall not thereafter be licensed for any company for one year from date of such revocation. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4967. Commissioner authorized to examine books, witnesses, to discover violations.—For the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this law, the commissioner of insurance and banking is hereby authorized and it is made his duty, at the expense of the company investigated, to examine at the head office, located within the United States of America, all books, records and papers of such company and also any officers or employees thereof under oath, as to violations of this law, and he is further hereby empowered to examine person or persons, administer oaths, and send for papers and records, and failure or refusal upon the part of any life [fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance company, person or persons, agent, firm or corporation, licensed to do business in the state of Texas, to appear before the commissioner of insurance and banking when requested to do so, or to produce records and papers, or answer under oath, shall subject such fire, fire and marine, marine, tornado, rent, accident, casualty, liability, health, elevator, disability, plate glass, burglary, bonding, title, surety or fidelity insurance company, person, persons, agent, firm or corporation to the penalties of this law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Books, etc., transferred from department of insurance and banking.—See notes under Title 85.

Art. 4968. Solicitor deemed agent of company.—Any person who shall solicit an application for insurance upon the life of another shall in any controversy between the assured and his beneficiary and the company issuing any policy upon such application be regarded as the agent of the company, and not the agent of the insured, but such agent shall not have the power to waive, change or alter any of the terms or conditions of the application or policy. [Acts 1909, p. 192, sec. 18.]

Art. 4969. What persons debarred from acting as agent.—No corporation or stock company shall be licensed or granted a certificate of authority as the agent or representative of any life insurance company in soliciting, selling or in any manner placing life insurance policies or contracts in this state. No life insurance company shall, after June 30, 1903, be granted a certificate of authority to transact business in this state, which has or is bound by any valid subsisting contract with any other corporation, by virtue of which such other corporation is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, in [any] percentage or portion of the premium or other income of such life insurance company for any period. No person shall hereafter be granted a certificate of authority as the agent of any life insurance company, who, after June 30, 1903, enters into any contract with any corporation other than such life insurance company, by virtue of which such other corporation is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, any compensation earned by him as agent for such life insurance company, or any percentage or portion thereof for any period. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 4970. Company to notify commissioner of appointment of general agent.—Every such foreign company shall, by resolution of its board of directors, designate some officer or agent who is empowered to appoint or employ its agents or solicitors in this state, and such officer or agent shall promptly notify the commissioner in writing of the name, title and address of each person so appointed or employed. Upon receipt of this notice, if such person is of good reputation and character, the commissioner shall issue to him a certificate which shall include a copy of the certificate of authority authorizing the company requesting it to do business in this state, and the name and title of the person to whom the certificate is issued. Such certificate, unless sooner revoked by the commissioner for cause or canceled at the request of the company employing the holder thereof, shall continue in force until the first day of March next after its issuance, and must be renewed annually. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 4971. Revocation of agent’s authority, grounds for.—Cause for the revocation of the certificate of authority of an agent or solicitor for an insurance company may exist for violation of any of the insurance laws, or if it shall appear to the commissioner upon due proof, after notice that such agent or solicitor has knowingly deceived or defrauded a policy holder or a person having been solicited for insurance, or that such agent or solicitor has unreasonably failed and neglected to pay over to the company, or its agent entitled thereto, any premium or part thereof, collected by him on any policy of insurance or application therefor. The commissioner shall publish such revocation in such manner as he deems proper for the protection of the public; and no person whose certificate of authority as agent or solicitor has been revoked shall be entitled to again receive a certificate of authority as such agent or solicitor for any insurance company in this state for a period of one year. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 4972. [3096ee] Foreign corporations held to accept provisions of this title.—The provisions of this title are conditions upon which foreign insurance corporations shall be permitted to do business within this state, and any such foreign corporations engaged in issuing insurance contracts or policies within this state shall be held to have asserted thereto as a condition precedent to its right to engage in such business within this state. [Acts 1903, p. 94.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN
INDEMNITY CONTRACTS

Art. 4972a. Certain indemnity contracts not subject to insurance laws.
Art. 4972b. Representative to file declaration with commissioner of insurance and banking, etc.; citations served on commissioner.
Art. 4972c. Annual report to commissioner.
Art. 4972d. Commissioner to issue certificate of authority, when; fee.
Art. 4972e. Corporations may exchange indemnity contracts.
Art. 4972f. Representative violating act, when guilty of misdemeanor; commissioner may reject application, or revoke certificate.

Article 4972a. Certain indemnity contracts not subject to insurance laws.—The making of contracts between individuals, firms or corporations, providing indemnity among each other, from casualty or other contingency or from fire loss or other damage to their own property, shall not be subject to the laws of this state, relating to insurance. [Acts 1913, p. 210, sec. 1.]

Art. 4972b. Representative to file declaration with commissioner of insurance and banking, etc.; citations served on commissioner.—The attorney, agent or other representative, acting for such individuals, firms or corporations, shall file with the commissioner of insurance and banking, of this state, a declaration in writing, verified by the oath of such attorney, agent or other representative, setting forth: (a) The name or title of the office through which such individuals, firms or corporations exchange such contracts. (b) A copy of the form of contract under or by which such indemnity is to be effected. (c) The location of the office or offices through which such contracts are to be issued. (d) That service of process may be had upon the commissioner of insurance and banking in this state, in all suits arising out of such contracts. Citation served upon the commissioner shall be accompanied by a certified copy of the petition, which shall be immediately sent by registered mail to the attorney of the concern, who shall have at least ten days thereafter within which to answer. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 4972c. Annual report to commissioner.—Such attorney shall make a sworn report to the commissioner of insurance and banking, on or before the first day of March every year, showing the financial condition of the association at the office where such contracts are issued, on December 31st, immediately preceding. Such report shall show the income and disbursements of the association for the calendar year; the assets and liabilities on the 31st day of December; a statement of the total number and amount of indemnity contracts issued during the year, and the total number (but not the names) and amount outstanding on said date; together with such other information as the commissioner may require in order for him to ascertain and know that the requirements of this Act have been complied with. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 4972d. Commissioner to issue certificate of authority, when; fee.—Every attorney, agent or other representative through whom are issued or negotiated any contracts, for indemnity of the character referred to in this Act, shall procure from the commissioner of insurance and banking annually a certificate of authority, stating that all the requirements of this Act which are applicable, have been complied with; and upon such compliance and the payment of the fee of $20.00 the commissioner of insurance and banking shall issue such certificate. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 4972e. Corporations may exchange indemnity contracts.—Any corporation now or hereafter organized under the laws of this state shall, in addition to the rights, powers and franchises specified in its articles of incorporation, have full power and authority to exchange indemnity contracts of the kind and character herein mentioned. The right to exchange such contracts is hereby declared to be incidental to the purposes for which such corporation is organized, and as much granted as the rights and powers expressly conferred. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 4972f. Representative violating act, when guilty of misdemeanor; commissioner may reject application, or revoke certificate.—Any attorney, agent or other representative who shall take any application for or execute any of the contracts provided for herein, without complying with the provisions of this Act entitling him to a certificate of authority hereunder, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. The commissioner, for reasonable cause, shall have authority to reject any application made under this Act, or to revoke any certificate of authority granted hereunder. [Id. sec. 6.]

72. Authority of agent in general.
73. Effect of provisions in application of policy.
74. Knowledge or notice of facts.
75. Delivering policy with knowledge of facts.

1. Duty to insure.—A builder is not required to protect himself against loss by fire by insuring the property of another which he is constructing or repairing; and if a fire occurs and destroys the structure during the progress of the work, his failure to do so will not be regarded as negligence. Wels v. Devlin, 67 T. 507, 93 S. W. 726, 60 Am. Rep. 28, 38.

2. Notice to mortgagor of provisions of policy.—Where a mortgagee agreed to attend to the insurance on the mortgaged premises and procured policies of insurance thereon and retained them in its possession, the mortgagee was chargeable with notice of their provisions. Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co. v. Obenchain (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 611.

One to whom a policy is payable as his interest may appear, and having a lien on the property, held to have an insurable interest entitling him to sue for a loss. Sun Mut. Ins. Co. v. Keating, 20 C. A. 147, 50 S. W. 189.

A bailee having possession of property under an agreement to keep it insured may take out a policy in his own name for the benefit of the owner. Wagner v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 92 T. 549, 50 S. W. 568.

Grantor, who has deposited deed in escrow, has insurable interest, and may recover upon policy, if title remains in him at time of loss. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Nowlin (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 198.
A husband has an insurable interest in property owned by his wife and minor children, his former husband, and occupied as the homestead of husband and wife. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Wingfield, 32 C. A. 194, 73 S. W. 847.

Evidence held to show that alleged mistake of insurance company in supposing that property insured belonged to person other than plaintiff was not due to negligence on its part. Morrell v. Missouri Fire Ins. Co., 33 C. A. 122, 76 S. W. 194.

4. Insurable interest in human life.—A creditor purchasing a policy of insurance upon the life of the debtor, upon the death of the debtor takes only his debt and the aggregate of premiums he has paid, with interest upon his debt and outlay. Cawthon v. Perry, 76 T. 385, 3 S. W. 268; Goldbaum v. Blum, 79 T. 635, 15 S. W. 564.

It is against the public policy of this state to allow any one who has no insurable interest to be the owner of a policy of insurance upon the life of a human being. Cheever v. Edick, 47 Am. St. Rep. 107.

A community creditor has no insurable interest in the life of the wife. Cameron v. Barcus, 31 C. A. 46, 73 S. W. 423.

Niece, having no expectation of pecuniary benefit from uncle, except occasional gift held to have no insurable interest in his life. Id.

The idea that a wife's interest as assigne of a policy on her husband's life ceases on the divorce of the parties is applicable to an endowment policy issued to the husband. Hatch v. Hatch, 35 C. A. 373, 80 S. W. 411.

A wife's interest as assignee of a policy on her husband's life ceases on the divorce of the parties, except so far as she has paid premiums.

One to whom insured assigns his life policy, not being a relative of his and not alleging any insurable interest in his life or in the policy, held not entitled to recover on it. Dugger v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 385.

An assignment without insurable interest to one who has no insurable interest to recover in Texas only to the extent of reimbursing the assignee for the amount paid out by him. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 51.

5. Existence of contract.—Evidence held to show that no binding contract of insurance was created between the parties. Atkins v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 563.

6. Executory agreement to insure.—In the absence of any requirement in the by-laws or charter of a mutual insurance company, or of any statutory provision, its executory agreement to insure which leaves nothing to be done but to deliver the policy is valid. State Wide Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 958.

A verbal contract of insurance held not consummated during the lifetime of the insured. Dickey v. Continental Casualty Co. 40 C. A. 199, 89 S. W. 426.

A contract of insurance can be effectuated by parol, and in the absence of any requirement in the by-laws or charter of a mutual insurance company, or of any statutory provision its oral contract of insurance which leaves nothing to be done but to issue and deliver the policy is valid. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 960.

8. Ratification of contract.—A contract of insurance by an agent who acts for both parties is voidable, and if the insurer fails to refund the premium within a reasonable time after he is apprised of the fact he ratifies the contract. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. City of Seasidevile (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 415.

Where an insurance contract is voidable, the insured, by bringing suit on the contract before his premiums are returned, ratifies it, and may enforce it. Id.

Repudiation by an insurer on the ground that its agent had acted for insured held under the facts not sufficiently prompt. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

9. Acceptance of application.—A contract of life insurance is not completed until acceptance of the application. As to effect of retaining the premium, quere. Life Ins. Co. v. Rudolph, 45 T. 464.

10. Effect of altering application.—An insurance company, by altering an application for insurance, may be concluded from defenses reserved therein, without affecting the beneficiary's right to recover on the policy. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Coalsen, 22 C. A. 64, 54 S. W. 388.

In the absence of any provision in an insurance company's charter, or in the statute under which it was organized, an absolute unconditional policy, issued thereby, will not be abrogated by the court as ultra vires. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Masonic Temple Co., 26 C. A. 139, 62 S. W. 970.

Evidence in an action on a fire insurance policy on lumber held insufficient to show fraud on the part of the insurance agent, in inserting in the policy a clause requiring a certain clear space surrounding the lumber. Keller v. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co., 27 C. A. 102, 65 S. W. 695.

The insurance may make anyone a beneficiary in a life policy.}

13. What law governs.—Contracts made in another state by an insurance company, chartered by the laws of and doing business in such state, are governed by its laws. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 280.
Contract of insurance intended to be performed in the state held governed by the laws of the state. Sieders v. Merchants' Life Ass'n of United States (Civil App.) 51 S. W. 947. The legal effect of an insurance contract, making the principal and premiums payable in a state other than that of the insured's residence, is to be determined by the laws of the state. W. v. Merchants' Life Ass'n of United States, 96 S. W. 194, 54 S. W. 753.

The fact that the law requires foreign insurance companies, as a condition precedent to their doing business in Texas, to establish an office and appoint an agent upon whom service of process can be made, does not, where the principal and premiums are made payable in the state, operate to make the contract performed in, and its legal effect to be determined by the laws of, Texas. Id. A contract of insurance held subject to the laws of the place of its issue, notwithstanding a limitation of liability until its delivery. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Harris, 94 Tex. 15, 65 S. W. 625, 58 Am. St. Rep. 818.

Where a life policy issued in Texas provides that it shall be governed by the laws of another state, the statutes applicable are considered as part of the written contract. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Orlopp, 25 C. A. 254, 61 S. W. 386.

Where a life policy provides that it shall be governed by the laws of a foreign state, the provisions of a statute applying thereto cannot be waived by the parties. Id. Where a policy is to be construed by the laws of another state, in the absence of evidence as to such laws, it is not error to charge that it should be construed as under the law of the state where the court is sitting. Ash v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n, 26 C. A. 501, 63 S. W. 944. Provision of New York law regulating forfeitures of life policies held not to govern a policy application for which was made in Texas and which was delivered in Texas. Cowen v. Equitable Life Ins. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 494.

Provision of an insurance contract relating to the laws governing its construction held to have no application whatever to an action brought in this state predicated upon a breach of the contract by insured. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civil App.) 140 S. W. 396.

14.—Construction in general.—An ordinary life insurance policy, payable to the heirs of the assured, vests title to the amount of the insurance in the heirs of the assured. Splawn v. Chew, 60 T. 532; Mullins v. Thompson, 51 T. 7; White v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. § 400. The same rules of law apply in the construction of insurance contracts as in contracts in general. City Drug Store v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. (Civil App.) 44 S. W. 51.

The language of an insurance policy should be construed most favorably to the insured. London & I. Fire Ins. Co. v. Davis, 37 C. A. 348, 84 S. W. 690.

An application for insurance, the policy issued thereon and the notes given for the premiums held part of one transaction, and must be considered together in ascertaining the terms of the policy. North American Acc. Ins. Co. v. Bowen (Civil App.) 102 S. W. 163.

The rule that a policy must be construed most liberally in favor of the beneficiary has no application where there is no ambiguity nor uncertainty in the language sought to be construed. Continental Casualty Co. v. Wade, 101 T. 102, 105 S. W. 35.

Where the language of an indemnity contract is susceptible of more than one construction, that construction most favorable to the party indemnified should be adopted; the company having prepared the obligation and chosen the language used. Griffin v. Zuber, 52 C. A. 288, 113 S. W. 961.

Where the language of a fire policy is susceptible of another than the literal construction that construction most favorable to the insured. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 117.

Where the language of a contract of insurance is plain and unambiguous, the contract must be enforced as written, but such construction as will preserve the intention of the parties must be adopted. Id.

The court, in construing a fire policy, held required to adopt the construction giving to insured the protection under the general terms thereof, and relieving insurer from any increased hazard against which it undertook to provide. Id.

Where a policy is capable of two interpretations equally reasonable, that construction most favorable to insured must be adopted. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civil App.) 133 S. W. 465.

Where a contract was prepared by an insurance company, it must be construed most favorably to the assured. Dorroh-Kelly Mercantile Co. v. Orient Ins. Co., 104 T. 196, 135 S. W. 1165.

An insurance policy must be liberally construed in favor of the insured and against a forfeiture. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of the Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Neurenberg (Civil App.) 144 S. W. 257.

A condition of forfeiture must be construed against the insurer, and so as to prevent a forfeiture if the language used will admit of such a construction. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civil App.) 153 S. W. 396, 757.

15.—Consideration.—Though an application for a fire policy did not promise to pay the premium on the delivery of the policy, the obligation to pay the premium held a consideration for the policy on which insurer could sue. Ginnings' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civil App.) 147 S. W. 629.

16. Delivery and acceptance.—A contract may be consummated by letter deposited in the postoffice; and when an offer is made contemplating an acceptance in this manner, and a letter accepting is properly mailed, the agreement is complete; but to be properly mailed, the letter should be duly posted, and the date of the posting must...
Art. 4972f  INSURANCE  (Title 71)

The holder of a policy of insurance, who has an opportunity to inspect it before he accepts it, is chargeable with knowledge of its contents, in the absence of fraud, misrepresentation or concealment. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63.

A delivery of a policy to the broker or agent appointed by the insured to procure it is a delivery to the latter. Holmes v. Thomason, 25 C. A. 339, 61 S. W. 504.

The delivery of a policy by an insurance company in accordance with a written application constitutes a contract between the parties. 'Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Jones, 32 C. A. 146, 73 S. W. 978.

A mere intention by the officer executing a life policy that it should become effective as soon as executed held not to make it effective. Id.

17. — Validity of policy issued while another was in force.—Where insured erroneously believing that a prior fire policy had terminated, procured a new policy, the new policy held effective. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 475.

18. — Property covered.—A marine policy on property in general terms, "laden or to be laden on board," will not cover property laden upon deck; but if the property is named, and is such as is usually carried on deck in the particular trade, the policy will cover property so carried. If a general usage to carry goods on deck exists, contracts of trade will be construed to fit such usage. O. M. Ins. Co. v. Reymerschoffer, 56 T. 234; Meagher v. Lufkin, 21 T. 391.

An open policy covered property belonging to the insured, or held by it in trust, or on commission, or sold and not delivered. The insured advanced money to a third party to purchase cotton and return the money when the cotton was sold, and if it was shipped that the bill should be taken in the name of the insured. Held, that the cotton was not covered by the policy. First Nat. Bank v. Lancashire Ins. Co., 62 T. 461.

A policy on furniture whose value exceeded the amount of the policy held not to attach to furniture subsequently purchased. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 109.

Policy construed, and held to cover the entire house, together with a specified personal property therein. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1131.

When policy covers specified contents of saloon, and afterwards a safe is placed in the saloon upon which a mortgage is given, the safe is not covered by the policy, and therefore the mortgage does not avoid it. Moriarty v. U. S. Fire Ins. Co., 19 C. A. 669, 49 S. W. 182.

A policy of insurance construed and held to cover cars which were out of repair and on storage tracks. Philadelphia Underwriters v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 104, 71 S. W. 419.

Goods stored with one are within the insurance policy taken out by him on goods "held in trust." Southern Cold Storage & Produce Co. v. A. F. Dechman & Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 456.

A fire policy held to cover cotton on open cars placed on a spur track adjacent to a depot preparatory to the transportation thereof on such cars. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 117.

Fire insurance covers gifts. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 609.

A policy "on merchandise consisting of clothing made and in process of making, and materials therefor," embraces all goods, wares, and merchandise on hand and the tools and implements of the business as conducted by insured. Oklahoma Fire Ins. Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 440.

19. — Valued policy.—A policy which does not indicate an intention of the insurer to value the risk and loss held not a valued policy. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 293.

20. — Estoppel of insured as to objections.—Insured was not estopped from asserting that a life policy was procured by misrepresentations, where he declined to accept the policy written so as to mature differently from the time represented, and refused to deliver it to the company's adjuster. Stenger v. Colorado Nat. Life Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1193.

21. — Modification.—It is not within the power of an insurer against the consent of the insured to substitute another insurer in the carrying out of its undertakings. Wash. Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

In action by insured for recovery of premiums and damages for the insurer's breach of its contract, held that a company which had taken over the contracts and assets of the original company and had assumed its obligations was liable. Id.
22. Reformation.—Policy will not be reformed on a ground of mistake in insertion of name of owner eight months after date of policy and after property has been burned. Wagner v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 49.

Fact that insurance agent negligently omitted to follow directions of insured in writing application held no ground for reformation of the application. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 494.

One suing on a fire policy which misstates the building in which the property insured was located need not, in order to recover, first secure a reformation of the policy. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Brannon, 99 T. 351, 89 S. W. 1057, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 548, 13 Ann. Cas. 1066.

An insured held not precluded from having a mistake in the policy corrected. Id.

A policy, which by mutual mistake does not embody the intent of the parties, may be reformed. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 259.

An insurance policy may be reformed after, as well as before, loss, if assured has not been guilty of laches. Id.

A fire policy, not accepted by insured, but returned to insurer and canceled by insurer, is not the subject of reformation. Jefferson Fire Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 319.

23. Renewal.—The fact that a contract to renew a fire policy was entered into in August while the policy did not expire until the following March held not to affect the validity of the contract. Orient Ins. Co. v. Wingfield, 49 C. A. 202, 108 S. W. 786.

The jury held authorized to find the existence of a contract to renew an insurance policy. Id.

Payment of premium is not essential to the validity of a contract to renew a fire policy, and in ascertaining whether payment of the premium has waived the course of dealing by the parties, the biton of the application must be looked to. Id.

An action held maintainable on a contract to renew a fire policy where no renewal policy was issued. Id.

A contract to renew a fire policy held presumptively to call for a policy exactly similar to the one held. Id.

24. Loans on policies.—An insurance company held not compelled to make a loan to plaintiff according to the terms of a policy issued to him, unless he satisfies his wife's lien on the policy to the amount of premiums paid by her. Hatch v. Hatch, 35 C. A. 372, 80 S. W. 411.

25. Premiums.—A policy is valid, though the premium be never paid, if a credit was intentionally given, unless it has actually been canceled before loss. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Mims, 1 App. C. C. § 1333.

An insurance premium held payable at any time within the days of grace allowed, not being due at 5 o'clock p. m. of the last day of grace. Aetna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

Where the last day for the payment of a premium on an insurance policy falls on Sunday, the policy has until the succeeding Monday to pay the premium. Id.

Where the cash part of a quarterly premium due in June and payable in advance was unpaid, the insured had no right to require the company to apply thereon a distribution of less than the full cash part of the premium, paid some time in August under an independent "board contract," since he had no right to require the acceptance of less than the full cash part of the premium. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 253.

While the rate is an element of the contract which must be agreed upon, yet where the policy is for one year and the proximate amount of the premium is known, and the exact amount is a mere matter of calculation, and the applicant agreed to pay whatever amount the premium should be, the contract can be enforced. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 963.

In action on insurance policy, evidence held not to tend to show that an extension of time of payment of premiums was applied for, or given, or that the insurer's collecting agents had power to grant such extension. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 404.

An agent of a life insurance company held to have authority to make a verbal agreement with an applicant for a policy that a premium note signed by the applicant shall be surrendered in case he declines to receive the policy. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seldel, 52 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 945.

A cashier of an insurance company held authorized to extend the time for the payment of an annual premium on a policy. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 184.

Provision in a contract of general agency for a life insurance company as to collecting renewal premiums on policies written by others held not to require the company to allow such agent to collect them. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Reinhardt (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 596.

Under a New York statute and a policy of insurance, the insurance company held required to give notice of maturity of premiums to nonresidents of that state. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Berwald (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 438.

28. Payment by check or note.—A negotiable note received by the agent of the insurance company is a sufficient payment of the premiums. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Mims, 8290.
1 App. C. C. J. 1324. Payment of the premium to an agent in a draft is a valid payment, although prohibited. If the draft was collected. Life Ins. Co. v. Ray, 50 T. 511.

A company held to have already accepted a check as payment of the premium of a life policy, or to have waived strict compliance with its terms in regard thereto. Northwestern Life Assur. Co. v. Sturdevant, 24 C. A. 331, 69 S. W. 61.

A policy or company held justified in returning a draft drawn to an agent of the insured without notifying the insured of its nonacceptance. Mullins v. Hartford Life Ins. Co., 26 C. A. 383, 63 S. W. 999.

A life insurance agent held to have apparent authority to accept notes for less than the full amount of premiums on taking applications for insurance. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1137.

29. Liability for premiums paid by creditor or insurance agent.—Where an insurance agent paid the premium on a policy, and took the note of the insured for the amount so paid, there was full consideration for the note, though the company was insolvent, and soon thereafter failed. Hudson v. Compere, 24 T. 449, 61 S. W. 386.

A debtor held not liable for premiums paid by a creditor on insurance taken out by the creditor for his own benefit on the debtor's life, in the absence of an agreement imposing such liability. Stacy v. Parker (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 532.

30. Refusal of the company to change the beneficiary in a life insurance policy held no defense to an action on note for the premium. Harris v. Scrivener (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 705.

Failure of insurer to notify plaintiff of the amount of a premium due on a specific date held of paying an amount on the duty of paying the last preceding premium. Kray v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 50 C. A. 555, 111 S. W. 421.

31. Failure of consideration.—Where defendant discovered that certain policies had been issued to him by his fraud before such plaintiff's contract had been performed by the insurance company, there was an entire failure of consideration for notes given for the premium thereon. Curry v. Stone (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 263.

In an action on a note given for a first premium of a life insurance policy, evidence held to establish a total failure of consideration. Struve v. Moore (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1175.

32. Evidence as to payment.—Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the premium of a fire insurance policy had been paid. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cameron, 18 C. A. 237, 45 S. W. 158.

In an action where the wife of insured contested the right of a beneficiary to the proceeds of a policy, the premium of which had been paid out of the community estate of the husband and wife, evidence held insufficient to show that such payments were a fraud on the wife. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

Under provision of policy providing for cancellation at request of either party on return of premium, where company's agent takes note for portion of premium and reports the premium as paid before cancellation the company must return so much of the unearned premium as is derived from the amount of the note. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Mungo Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

Misservice of mail held insufficient to excuse failure to give required notice of action for insurance to the company on payment of premium. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Elliott, 93 T. 144, 63 S. W. 1014.

An insurance company, having sold a note given by the insurer for the first premium, is liable to the insured for the amount thereof on its breach of the insurance contract. Austin Life Ins. Co. v. Wood (Civ. A. D.) 57 S. W. 255.

Insured in a fire policy canceled at his solicitation held to have waived the repayment of the unearned premium as a prerequisite to the cancellation. Ragley Lumber Co. v. Insurance Co. of North America, 42 C. A. 611, 94 S. W. 185.

The fact that an insurance agent who had received a premium note from an applicant for insurance which he promised to return in case the policy was not accepted negotiates the note and at once disappeared supported a finding that the promise to return the note was made with intent to defraud. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seidel, 52 C. A. 278, 118 S. W. 345.

An action against a life insurance company to recover the amount of a premium note delivered to defendant's agent by plaintiff on his applying for a policy held to be an action for rescission, and not one for damages for deceit so as to permit plaintiff to relief on the ground of fraud of the agent. Id.

Where a contract for life insurance was not fully consummated, the applicant for a policy was entitled to recover from the insurance company the amount of note delivered to the agent of the company which note the agent agreed to return to the applicant in case he did not accept the policy. Id.

Defendant S., having applied for a $50,000 policy and executed a negotiable note for a part of the premium which the agent transferred, held entitled to reject a policy for $30,000, and to protection by the insurance company against liability on the note. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1137.

34. Right to assign policy.—The right of the insured to transfer policy cannot be affected by acts of the insurer subsequent to the issuance of the policy. Scottish-Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

A life insurance policy held assignable by its policyholder as security for the debt as against the rights of the beneficiary. McNeill v. Chinn, 45 C. A. 551, 101 S. W. 465.
The beneficiary in an ordinary life insurance policy takes a vested interest which cannot be affected, unless the act of the insured contains a reservation that the insured may change the beneficiary or assign the policy, etc. Id.

36. Form of transfer of policy. — A parol transfer or gift of a life insurance policy, accompanied by a delivery thereof, is effective to transfer the proceeds of the policy. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id. 586; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same. Id. Provisions of a policy with reference to the forms by which the policy might be assigned or the beneficiary changed held to benefit the assignee, which it was entitled to waive. McNell v. Chinn, 46 C. A. 561, 101 S. W. 465.

37. Consideration for transfer of policy. — Policies payable to insured, his executors or assigns, held assets which he could transfer, in the absence of a fraudulent intent to hinder or delay creditors. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id. 586; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

38. Consent of insurer to assignment. — The consent of the insurer to the transfer of a fire policy to a purchaser of the property inures to the benefit of the co-owner, though his name be not expressly mentioned. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 643. Certain insurance agents held to have apparent authority to consent to a transfer of insurance on transfer of a property. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

40. Delivery of assignment. — Mailing assignment in duplicate of policy to insurer, in compliance with policy, is sufficient delivery to assignee. Burgess v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 602. Actual delivery of assignment of policy to assignee, who was assignor's adopted child, was unnecessary to validate assignment. Id.

41. Rights of assignee. — Where insurance policies were indorsed payable to a mortgagee, such mortgagee had an interest in the policies of which it could not be deprived by the acts of the owner and insurers in canceling such indorsement and making new ones to the owner without its consent. Security Co. v. Panhandle Nat. Bank, 93 T. 579, 57 S. W. 22.

Assignee of policy of fire Insurance, knowing that the delivery of the policy was unauthorized, that it had never been accepted by the insured, and that on failure to pay premiums it was automatically canceled, held not entitled to recover. Polk v. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1128.

42. Rights of beneficiary after transfer. — Where policy on life of husband payable to wife is transferred to secure husband's debt, when the debt is barred it may be sued on by wife. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123.

43. Waiver of assignment. — An instrument held, as an assignment, in general, is the old beneficiary in a life policy, to be a substitution of a new beneficiary; the provision in the policy for a particular manner of evidencing any change in beneficiary being for the benefit of the company, which alone could claim it. Fuos v. Dietrich (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 291.

44. Effect of transfer. — The transfer of a life Insurance policy held to operate as an assignment of the proceeds of the policy to plaintiff as security for a debt and as a change of beneficiary from insured's daughter to his wife. McNell v. Chinn, 46 C. A. 551, 101 S. W. 465.

45. Cancellation of policy. — A policy which provides that the insurance may be terminated at any time at the option of the company is avoided from the time when the insured has notice that the proper local agent is instructed that the risk is terminated, the premium not having been paid. S. F. & M. Ins. Co. v. McKinnon, 58 T. 507.
A fire policy may be canceled when the right to do so is reserved, by notice to the insured that the policy is terminated and return of the unearned premium. Continental Ins. Co. v. Busby, 3 App. C. C. § 101; Planters' Ins. Co. v. Walker Lodge, 1 App. C. C. § 753.

47. Reassignment of policy by insured. — The unauthorized and unratified appointment of a new beneficiary, the act of the insured in transferring a policy held not an abandonment of his first policy, in the absence of consent by the beneficiary. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Berwald, 97 T. 111, 76 S. W. 442, 1 Ann. Cas. 682.

Applicant held not estopped to deny knowledge of falsity of representations of insurer. Where a party, through his insurer, have informed himself from means at hand. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 560.

Where policies were issued on an application containing false statements written therein by insurer's agent, it was insurer's duty, on discovering the fraud, to disclose the same to the insurance company, and tender the policy for cancellation. Curry v. Stone (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 263.

One applying for a life policy held not estopped from complaining of the falsity of the representations made by the agent soliciting the insurance. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 580.

In an action by an insured for the cancellation of a life policy based on the fraudulent representations of the soliciting agent, the action of the court in informing the jury that the insured was not estopped from showing the kind of policy agreed on held proper. Id.

Death of insured revokes all offers of cancellation made by him prior to his death, and not accepted by insurer prior thereto. Id.

Rights of parties to contract of insurance having become fixed by death of insured, insurance company could not then accept insured's offer of cancellation by withdrawal of its order for payment of premium. Id.

Plaintiff held not estopped by her conduct from collecting amount of insurance policy by suit. Id.

49. Condition precedent to action to rescind policy.—In suit to avoid insurance contract, by being held, per plaintiff to offer payment of premiums or could defendant not be prejudiced by plaintiff's retention of binding receipt or policy. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 560.

Evidence in an action to recover premiums and for damages for breach of its contract held sufficient to support a finding that the original insurer had transferred all of its assets to another company, and that the two companies had been consolidated; that the correspondence between plaintiff and the original insurer showed that plaintiff must look to a substituted company for all information touching his rights; that the insurer's demand for the plaintiff that the plaintiff had gone out of business; and that the insurer had abandoned the performance of its contracts. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

Where insurer assigned its policies, transferred its assets, shifted to another company and dissolved it beyond its own power to perform such obligation, except so far as it could compel performance by such other company, there was a breach of its contract entitling the insured to a recovery, and that the assignee was solvent and able and willing to carry out the original contract did not prevent a breach. Id.

51. Damages recoverable from insurer on cancellation or breach of contract.—In an action by an insured for the cancellation of a life policy, based on the fraudulent representations of the soliciting agent of the insurer, the insurer held not liable for exemplary damages. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 560.

Omission of its contract by the insurer, the insured, during his lifetime, has a present right of action for the recovery of damages. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

The measure of damages in an action by an insured to recover premiums and damages for the insurer's breach of contract stated. Id.

52. Forfeiture of policy for breach of promissory warranty, covenant or condition subsequent.—An open policy covered property of the insured situated in certain stores, to be specified in the book attached to the policy. The property having been removed from the place named was not thereafter covered by the policy. First Nat. Bank v. Lancaster Ins. Co., 62 T. 461.

Wearing apparel, jewelry, etc., described in an insurance policy as being insured "while located and contained as described herein and not elsewhere," and "all while contained in the above-described building," are not covered by the policy if the loss occurs in another house. British-Amer. Assurance Co. v. Miller, 91 T. 414, 44 S. W. 60, 39 L. R. A. 545, 66 Am. St. Rep. 901.

Temporary breach of policy, where there is no specific forfeiture attached, and which breach does not exist when loss occurs, and which does not contribute to loss, does not defeat recovery on the policy. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Munger Imp. Cotton Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

Forfeiture clauses will be construed most strongly against the insurer. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 49 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

If the language in an insurance policy is fairly susceptible of a construction preventing a forfeiture, such construction will be adopted. Aetna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

Forfeitures will not be given effect unless the facts on which they depend bring the case clearly within the provisions of the policy. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Society v. Cheaney Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1163.

Appeal by an insurance company from an assignment of a policy held to constitute a new contract, whereby the assignee could not be charged with prior breaches of the policy. National Fire Ins. Co. v. J. W. Caraway & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 486.

Where on the sale of Insured property the insurance was assigned to the grantees, there was a transfer within the terms of a new protecting the grantor's reserved interest, and hence the latter could only recover in case of loss such an amount as was recoverable by the grantees. Dumphry v. Commercial Union Assur. Co., Limited, of London (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 116.

Statute as to forfeiture of policy is part of policy. Id.

54. What law governs.—A contract of insurance made in Texas held governed by the laws of New York, where the home office of the company was located. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Bradley (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 387.

Life insurance policy taken out in Texas held, under term of policy, not governed by statute of New York relative to notice to pay premiums as condition of forfeiture. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Bradley, 98 T. 230, 82 L. R. A. 509.

55. Proceedings to give effect to forfeiture.—When an insurance policy provides that it shall be forfeited for nonpayment of premiums before a stipulated date, time is of the essence of the contract and the failure to so pay terminates it ipso facto. Equitable Life Assur. Co. v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 147 S. W. 1152.

A provision avoiding a fire policy held not to make it ipso facto void by the issuance of a second policy on the property by another company. Southern Nat. Ins. Co. of Austin v. Barr (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 845.

Under the provisions of insurer's receipt and of a note given to extend a policy until default in payment of the note when all rights thereunder should cease and the policy be ipso facto null and void, failure to pay the note at maturity forfeited the policy, and no action on the part of the insurer was required to declare such forfeiture. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 294.

56. Change in occupancy of building.—A recital in a policy that the house insured is occupied for a particular purpose is a warranty that it shall be occupied for no other purpose. Banking Co. v. Stone, 49 T. 4.

Where the insured agrees to obtain the insurer's consent to vacancy or change of occupancy, held not error to define "occupancy" as such occupancy as the parties might be presumed to have intended. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 513.

57. Building becoming vacant.—Where there was a stipulation in a policy that it was to become vacant and so remain for thirty days, etc., it was immaterial whether or not the risk is increased thereby. Insurance Co. v. Long, 51 T. 89.

Where, for extra compensation paid, there was a stipulation that the building might remain vacant for sixty days, "all openings to be kept securely closed," the insurer cannot defeat a recovery in case of loss unless he shows that the insured negligently permitted the openings to remain unclosed, that the risk was thereby increased, and the property was probably damaged by reason of such negligence. Eakin v. Home Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 370.

A temporary vacancy, for the time reasonably necessary for the outgoing tenant to remove his goods and the incoming tenant to place his in the building, is not within a clause in a policy providing if the building became vacant. East Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 999; Id., 12 C. A. 533, 34 S. W. 388.

Where defendant left a large part of his furniture in the house, and placed a room in possession of a servant, who slept there, the house did not become vacant within the meaning of a contract of insurance. German-American Ins. Co. v. Evants, 94 T. 490, 62 S. W. 417.

An insured house held to have been occupied when destroyed by fire, within a provision of the policy. Agricultural Ins. Co. of Watertown, N. Y., v. Owens (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 828.

A policy upon several buildings which provided for lapse if any one of them remained vacant for more than ten days is avoided where only one is vacant. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Coghlan (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 266.

58. Failing of building.—Cupola of building, blown off in a storm, held to be a material part of the building, within provision of fire policy by which it was avoided if a material part of the building fell. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tomkies, 96 T. 197, 71 S. W. 814; Id., 30 C. A. 404, 71 S. W. 812.

59. Special causes increasing risk.—"Increased hazard," referred to in a fire policy, did not include dangerous conditions on adjacent premises. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 485.

Increased hazard for which a fire policy can be forfeited held limited to hazards resulting from physical changes in the property. Id.

In insurer held not entitled to claim that an anonymous letter received by insured increased the risk, in the absence of proof by insurer that the conditions referred to in the letter actually existed to insured's knowledge. Id.

A fire policy providing for forfeiture for an increase of hazard by any means within the control or knowledge of insured held not to require insured to communicate an increase of hazard arising from knowledge of an attempt by others to burn adjoining property. Id.

The hazard insured against under a fire policy defined, and held to include losses from incendiary fires communicated from other premises. Id.

An increase in hazard within a fire policy must be determined by a comparison with the conditions existing when the policy was written. Id.

In an action on a fire insurance policy, evidence held to show that plaintiff increased the risk. Simpson v. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 491.

A single effort by an unknown person to set fire to property covered by a fire policy held not within a stipulation of the policy. Williamsburgh City Fire Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1097.

60. Precautions against loss.—A provision of a policy, making it void if the hazard be increased by any means within the control or knowledge of the insured, held not to void the policy because, on attempt of a third person to burn the property, insured did not notify the insurer, or do anything to prevent its repetition. Williamsburgh City Fire Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co., 103 T. 608, 132 S. W. 121, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 603.
A warranty in a policy of marine insurance that a competent watchman should always be on watch and where a competent watchman was kept on watch, the fact that different members of the crew were required to stand different watches, and that they also performed other duties, not in violation of the warranty. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 291.

Such warranty is complied with by the providing of a competent watchman, and the fact that he was asleep at the time of the accident will not avoid the policy. Id.

61. Additional insurance.—A provision that no additional insurance upon the same property shall be obtained without the consent of the company, expressed in writing on the policy, is reasonable and valid. N. O. Ins. Ass'n v. Griffin, 66 T. 232, 18 S. W. 508.

A policy not to take additional insurance without notice to the insurer held not a warranty imposing forfeiture for breach. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Carter, 23 C. A. 359, 57 S. W. 315.

A stipulation in a policy avoiding it if other insurance is taken out without insurer's consent is reasonable and proper. Orient Ins. Co. v. Prather, 25 C. A. 446, 62 S. W. 99.

In an action on a fire policy, defended on the ground that plaintiff violated the provision against additional insurance, evidence that plaintiff notified defendant's agent that he had procured additional insurance held insufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Adkins Ins. Co. v. Eastman (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 431.

The rights of an insurer, under accident policies limiting the issuance of one policy to a person for a single period, held not affected by its failure to return to the insured before the injury to him the premium paid under one of the two policies issued to one person. Id. v. Rentz, v. Traveller's Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1016.

Stipulations in accident policies issued to the same person at the same time for a single period held to render one of the policies void. Id.

Under the provisions of a policy, held that an overvaluation in obtaining concurrent insurance did not avoid the policy. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Waggener, 44 C. A. 144, 27 S. W. 541.

Strict compliance with a clause in a fire insurance policy, forbidding other concurrent insurance unless permitted, is essential to a recovery. Gross v. Colonial Assur. Co., 56 C. A. 627, 121 S. W. 617.

In an action on an insurance policy, evidence held to show that plaintiff had no insurance except that represented by the policy of defendant. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Fordran (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 692.

Evidence held insufficient to show that insured goods from one stable were so intermingled with insured goods in another stable, so as to avoid a policy providing for its avoidance in case insured obtained other insurance. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Society v. Cheaney Bros. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1183.

That other insurance shall constitute additional insurance within a policy, the property covered by both policies must be the same. Id.

That insurer after ascertaining a contemplated arson on adjoining premises took out additional insurance held not to constitute such fraud as would void the policy sued on if the new policy did not exceed the amount of the current insurance authorized by the contract in question. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 465.

A fire policy held invalidated by the procurement of insured by additional insurance. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Dorroh (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 476.

A stipulation in a fire policy as to additional insurance held to include an invalid additional policy. Id.

The cancellation of a new fire policy after a fire held not to prevent a forfeiture of the original policy stipulating against additional insurance. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to show a fire policy void by a provision in a fire policy prohibiting other insurance forfeits the policy. Dumpy v. Commercial Union Assur. Co., Limited, of London (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 118.

A conveyance of property insured, reserving to the vendor a lien for the unpaid portion of the price and assignment of a fire policy thereon, held to create a new contract of insurance in which the vendee were the "insured." Id.

Where a lienholder procured additional insurance without authority of the owner, who had procured a policy stipulating that it should be void if insured procured other insurance, the owner's policy was not void. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

62. Taking inventory and keeping books and safe.—Failure to keep books or inventory as violation of Art. 4947, see notes under that article.

A conveyance of property insured, reserving to the vendor a lien for the unpaid portion of the price and assignment of a fire policy thereon, held to create a new contract of insurance in which the vendee were the "insured." Id.

Where a lienholder procured additional insurance without authority of the owner, who had procured a policy stipulating that it should be void if insured procured other insurance, the owner's policy was not void. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

Evidence held to establish a violation of a clause requiring the keeping of a set of books showing sales by insured. Beville v. Merchants' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 914.

An “iron safe” clause held to be a promissory warranty. Id.

A policy held divisible, and hence breach of iron safe clause did not preclude recovery for loss of stock. Tufts, 20 C. A. 145, 58 S. W. 195.

Failure to comply with a condition requiring an inventory to be kept in a fireproof safe held not ground for avoiding policy. Kemendo v. Western Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 293.

A substantial compliance with an iron-safe clause held necessary to entitle the assured to the benefits of his policy. Western Assur. Co. v. Kemendo, 94 T. 367, 60 S. W. 661.

The insured is responsible for the negligence of his employees in the performance of a condition in the policy requiring the preservation of an inventory of the insured property.

Id.

The furnishing by insured of invoices of goods placed in the insured’s store held not a substantial compliance with condition of policy requiring an inventory. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia v. Masterson, 26 C. A. 518, 61 S. W. 262.

The fact that it was not customary nor practicable for manager of insured grocery store to receive invoices of farm produce generally held not an excuse for failure of insured to comply with condition of policy requiring an inventory. Id.

Iron safe clause in fire policy, as to keeping complete record of purchases, sales, etc., of stock covered, held breached where the cash book was negligently lost and destroyed in the fire. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia v. Calhoun, 28 C. A. 409, 67 S. W. 153.

An iron-safe clause, attached to an insurance policy, held to be a part thereof, and to constitute a warranty. Couch & Gilliland v. Home Protection Fire Ins. Co., 22 C. A. 44, 73 S. W. 1077.

Where insured, in policy containing “iron safe clause,” keeps the books, etc., in an iron safe believed to be fireproof, the policy is complied with, though the books, etc., while in the safe, are destroyed by fire. Underwriters’ Fire Ass’n v. Palmer & Co., 22 C. A. 447, 74 S. W. 603.

The character of an inventory of insured goods, required by the stipulation of a fire policy, determined. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Monger & Henry (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 792.

A policy held divisible, and hence breach of iron safe clause where, permitted a set of books required by his insurance policy to be burned. Rives v. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 424.

A provision requiring insured to keep a set of books held not complied with by books of other showing the same facts. Id.

Failure to keep account of goods taken from stock for domestic consumption held not violation of clause in policy requiring books of account to be kept. Atl. Ins. Co. v. Pitts, 34 C. A. 214, 78 S. W. 370.

While the iron safe clause in an insurance policy is a warranty, the breach of which will avoid the policy, yet, where it is open to two constructions, that one will be given it which favors the insured. Id.

Insured held to have substantially complied with iron safe clause. Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 378.

An iron safe clause in a policy held substantially complied with, where books and papers preserved disclose a correct record of the business, etc., though one of the inventories and some of the invoices were left out of the safe, and were destroyed. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 718.

A requirement in a fire insurance policy that the insured should “preserve and produce the last preceding inventory, if such has been taken,” held to be construed most strongly against the company, as meaning the last inventory taken before the issuance of the policy. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Stenson, 34 C. A. 471, 79 S. W. 896.

In an action on a fire policy, held, that there had been a substantial compliance with the “iron safe” clause. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Moore, 26 C. A. 211, 81 S. W. 673.

Iron-safe clause construed, and held to require the keeping and production of the inventory of stock taken prior to the date of the policy. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings, 98 T. 115, 81 S. W. 705.

Where insured, after loss, produced records showing a complete history of his business, there was no breach of an iron-safe clause contained in the policy. First Nat. Bank v. Cleveland, 36 C. A. 478, 82 S. W. 337.

In an action on a fire policy, books of account introduced by insured held to show a substantial compliance with the policy. Fire Ass’n of Philadelphia v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 48.

Facts reviewed, and held that insured complied with the condition in his policy to keep a set of books clearly presenting a complete record of business transacted. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

A requirement of a fire policy that insured keep a set of books clearly presenting a record of all sales and purchases is not complied with by the preservation of slips from a cash register. Henry v. Green Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 836.

The inventory of goods on hand taken two or three days before the fire cannot take the place of the accounts of cash sales kept by insured, as required by the policy. Scottish Union & National Drug Co., 55 C. A. 261, 118 S. W. 1086.

The failure of insured to keep an account of his cash sales of goods, as required by his policy, is a forfeiture of the insurance as a matter of law. Id.

In an action on a fire policy, plaintiff held not entitled to recover because of breach of warranty of inventory and the making of an invoice showing a complete list of purchases and sales. German Ins. Co. v. Bevill (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 31.

Under a provision requiring an inventory of a stock of goods insured within three months after the policy was issued, held, that an intentional failure to inventory from 3305 one-tenth to one-fifth of the value of the stock breached the provision so as to prevent

Failure to keep inventory of insured property in a safe, as required by policy, where by it was lost, held to prevent recovery on policy. National Fire Ins. Co. v. J. W. Carawall, 330 Cal. 441 (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 458.

The court cannot vary the terms of a contract providing for a complete inventory of

Where there was no inventory as required by a policy taken within a year prior to its issuance, and no inventory taken within 30 days thereafter, the policy was forfeited. Id.

Where there was omitted purposely from an invoice articles of the value of $3,000 or $4,000, held, a claim of a substantial compliance with a provision for a complete itemized statement could not be maintained. Id.

An invoice must contain a complete itemized statement of the stock on hand in order to meet the requirements of the covenant, in a policy or the assured can have no right of recovery thereon. Id.

A policy of insurance, which is to be void if the “subject of insurance” be mortgaged, held not rendered void by a mortgage on a part of the property. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Wilderspin (Clv. App.) 118 S. W. 1131.
A fire policy on merchandise and fixtures held not invalidated as to the furniture and the extinguishment of a chattel mortgage on the merchandise. Spring Garden Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Brown (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 292.

Insurance company liable although no policy was issued, because it had agreed to attend to the matter, held not relieved of liability by a conveyance as security two years later because if issued, would have been subsequent to such conveyance. Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co. v. Obenchin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 611.

65. Assignment of policy.—A life policy payable to the heirs or assigns of the assured is assignable. Mullins v. Thompson, 51 T. 7.

A clause prohibiting the assignment of a policy does not prohibit its transfer as collateral security. Scottish-Union & National Ins. Co. v. Andrews & Matthews, 40 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 419.

An assignment of a policy by mistake, there having been no delivery and no consideration thereon, besides being made without the knowledge of the insurer, did not avoid the policy under a clause prohibiting an assignment. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Waggener, 44 C. A. 144, 97 S. W. 641.

Insurer having waived the requirements of a life policy as to the form of an assignment of the policy by insured to secure a debt, no one else could attack the form. Clark v. Southwestern Life Ins. Co., 52 C. A. 38, 113 S. W. 335.

66. Keeping or use of prohibited articles.—Custom of insurer not to permit use of gasoline held subordinate to implied permission insured to use the same. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Green, 15 C. A. 531, 41 S. W. 74.

Insurance of household furniture and supplies, shown to ordinarily include gasoline and gasoline stoves, is repugnant to prohibition of the use of gasoline, and such prohibition accordingly fails. Id.

"Where "French electric fluid," made from gasoline, was used on insured premises, and there was no evidence that it was the same as gasoline, held, that a finding that no illuminating gas was generated on the premises, and no gasoline was used on the premises, was warranted. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Shearman, 17 C. A. 466, 43 S. W. 590.

An insurer holding the keeping of or use of gasoline on the insured premises, held not avoided by a temporary use as an experiment. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Shearman, 29 C. A. 345, 60 S. W. 598.

A prohibitory clause in a fire insurance policy against keeping gasoline on the insured premises held not to prevent insured from keeping it in a shed on his lot, outside the insured building. Id.

Operating a laundry held not a trade or manufacture, within a clause of a fire policy prohibiting the use of gasoline, so as to preclude proof of a custom of using gasoline, to explain or avoid the prohibition. Northern Assur. Co. of London, England, v. Crawford, 24 C. A. 674, 69 S. W. 916.

Warranty in a fire insurance policy that no gasoline should be "kept, allowed, or used" on the premises held not to include the temporary use of a small quantity. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Wade, 95 T. 598, 68 S. W. 977, 58 L. R. A. 714, 98 Am. St. Rep. 870.

Gasoline used on other premises held not kept, used, or allowed on the premises insured within the meaning of a fire policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Chancey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 577.

67. Nonpayment of premiums or assessments.—To prevent a forfeiture of a policy by nonpayment of premiums by a tenant, such a tender should be repeated as often as under the terms of the policy the premium was due. Life Ins. Co. v. Le Fert, 52 T. 504.

A policy is terminated by failure to pay premiums when due. A tenant of payment, to operate as a payment, must be made on the very day when due, and must be unconditional, when due on demand need not be made before demand. When due on or before a stated day, tender may be made at any time on or before the day fixed. Continental Ins. Co. v. Busby, 3 App. C. C. § 100.

A tender of a premium to an agent one day before it falls due will prevent a forfeiture. Manhattan L. Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 250.

A policy which was to become a paid-up term policy on nonpayment of a premium held not to become such if, at the time of the default, a past-due premium note was unpaid. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Wilkes, 92 T. 453, 49 S. W. 1238.

A condition in a life policy held not to prevent forfeiture for failure to pay an assessment within 30 days, as required by the policy, where the insured does not die within 6 months thereafter. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass' n v. Lovenberg, 24 C. A. 365, 59 S. W. 314.

The failure of insured to surrender his policy within six months after default in a premium, as provided by the policy, held to defeat his right to paid-up insurance. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Evans, 25 C. A. 663, 64 S. W. 74.

The nonperformance of a premium note held, under the terms of a life insurance policy, to defeat recovery thereon. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1010.

Under a statute requiring notice that, unless a premium on a policy is paid at maturity, the policy will be forfeited, except the insured's right to the surrender value or paid-up policy, a mere notice that, if the premium is not paid, the policy lapses, held insufficient. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Hallum, 32 C. A. 324, 73 S. W. 554.

An insurance company's failure to have a premium note at the place where it was payable at maturity held not to prevent a forfeiture of the policy for nonpayment of the note. Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Knights of Tabor Lodge of Camp County, 32 C. A. 328, 74 S. W. 809.

Under a fire policy, providing that failure to pay a premium note shall render the policy void, failure to pay a premium note, the receipt for which contained a similar provision, avoided the policy. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1012.

Provision of life insurance policy, contemplating the sending of notice of accruing premiums to insured, held not to continue the policy in force indefinitely in case of failure to give such notice. Id.

Failure of insured to pay a premium note at maturity held to terminate the insurance, in the absence of waiver. National Life Ins. Co. v. Manning, 38 C. A. 498, 86 S. W. 618.

Where insured elected to pay an insurance premium annually by giving a notice therefor, but made default in payment thereof, payments made could not be applied as quarterly payments to keep the policy in force for part of the year. Id.

A payment of interest on a premium in default after insured's death held insufficient to restore the policy. Id.

Insured, after default in payment of a premium note, held only entitled to a restoration of the insurance by payment of the amount due and furnishing evidence of good health, as required by the policy. Id.

The failure to pay a premium note held to avoid a life policy. Id.

Where, in an action on a life insurance policy, the company claimed it had been forfeited for nonpayment of premium notes, evidence held to sustain a finding that the notes were taken by the agent in part payment of the policy. Id. v. National Life Ins. Co., 190 T. 519, 101 S. W. 786, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 981, 15 Ann. Cas. 618.

An accident policy, premium notes, and application therefor construed, and held that a failure to pay any one of the premium notes at maturity operated to put an end to the policy without notice to the insured. North American Acc. Ins. Co. v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 163.

An insurer in an accident policy held required to apply so much of the sum due the insured on account of an accident to the satisfaction of unpaid premium notes as was necessary for that purpose to prevent a forfeiture of the policy for nonpayment of the premium. Id.

Allowing the 30 days of grace, an insured held to have died within the protection of his policy. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

In an action on an insurance policy, a holding in favor of the beneficiary extending the term of the policy and declaring unnecessary the payment by the beneficiary of an unpaid premium held justified. Id.

Failure of plaintiff to pay an extra assessment without complaint or demand for explanation from insurer held not to justify his failure to pay a subsequent, regular, and proper assessment for which the policy was forfeited. Kray v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 56 C. A. 555, 111 S. W. 421.

Plaintiff's failure to complain of irregularity of special assessments on a policy on B.'s life held a waiver of the irregularity, and to preclude a claim that the amounts paid thereon should be applied to the discharge of certain regular assessments. Id.

Where an insurance policy required the payment of premiums on October 1st, but allowed an extension of 30 days, that day falling on Sunday, the 30-day extension held to begin to run at midnight on October 1st, and the policy was forfeited before insured's death on November 1st. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly, 102 T. 46, 112 S. W. 1038, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 759, 132 Am. St. Rep. 852.

A failure to pay a premium when due held to forfeit a policy. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 184.

In an action on a life policy, evidence held not to show that insured obtaining an extension of the time of the payment of an annual premium, and dying before payment, would not have paid the premium had he lived. Id.

Where the insurer agreed to look solely to the broker procuring the insurance for the premiums, the nonpayment of a premium did not affect the right of the insured to recover on a fire policy; the insurer's remedy being an action against the broker. Hart v. Fire Ins. Co. v. Fuerst & Fuerst (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 655.

Under provisions of a policy and of an extension note, held, that policy was avoided by a default in the payment of an extension note. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

A provision in an extension note, given for a premium due, and in the insurer's receipt, for forfeiture of account of default in payment, was unreasonably intended to prevent express provisions of the policy that the amount was payable, "all premiums and indebtedness hereon having being fully paid." Id.

Failure of insured to pay insurance premium when notified by local agent that it was due held not to relieve the company, the mortgagee, from liability where it had agreed to attend to the insurance, had done so for a time, and had not notified the insured that it would not continue to do so. Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co. v. Obenchalin (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 611.

Where the assignee of an insurance policy did not pay the last premium due because of the insurer's failure to present the receipt for payment in accordance with its custom, the assignee's failure to discover the nonpayment for some years, it appearing that the insured was still alive, and the policy had been merely filed away, does not bar him on the ground of laches. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Davis (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1184.

Owing to the custom of the insurer to make demand for premiums, an insurance policy, which was assigned to the insured's creditor, cannot be forfeited for nonpayment of the tenth and last premium, where a demand was not made by the insurer. Id.

There being no cotton insured by a policy on a cotton gin, a warranty relating to keeping the gin put into and taken out of the gin house" becomes immaterial. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 820.

The policy providing that "the entire policy shall be void," a forfeiture cannot be claimed for a part of the policy. Id.

The breach of a condition in an application for a fire policy requiring insured to keep barrels of water in the insured mill will not prevent a recovery for a loss occurring at a time when no one was at or near the mill. Delaware Ins. Co. v. Harris, 26 C. A. 537, 64 S. W. 867.

49. Reinstatement of lapsed policy.—A life policy, incontestable after five years except for nonpayment of premiums, when forfeited on that ground, is again contestable on reinstatement, and may be forfeited for fraud in securing its revival. Ash v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n, 26 C. A. 501, 63 S. W. 944.

Defendants made in an application for reinstatement of a lapsed life policy "as a basis for the reinstatement" are warranties, and, if false, the contract is invalid. Id.

Where the option of an insurance company to reinstate a lapsed life policy is induced by fraud of the insured, the reinstatement may be avoided. Id.

50. Pennei or waiver of conditions or right of forfeiture.—Where there is a provision that, if the risk is increased, the policy is void, mere silence on the part of the company, failure to give notice, make objection or return any part of the premium will not constitute a waiver of the forfeiture occasioned by the increased risk. Texas Banking & Ins. Co. v. Hutchins, 53 T. 61, 37 Am. Rep. 760; Banking Co. v. Stone, 49 T. 13; Insurance Co. v. Lacroix, 45 T. 170; Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

A policy of insurance contained the following clause: "If the assured shall have or shall hereafter have any other insurance on the property hereby insured, or any part thereof, or property written herein, * * * then and in every such case this policy shall be void." Another insurance was obtained on the same property without procuring the indorsement of consent on the first policy, but notice was given the company who had issued the company, and made no objection to the additional insurance, said nothing about canceling the first policy, and did nothing to indicate a wish to do so. On the contrary, after knowing of the second insurance, the agent of the company in which the first insurance was effected, used no risk on the same property in other companies represented by him. Held, that it was the duty of the first insurers to elect, within a reasonable time, whether they would enforce the policy or abandon it; and having by their silence allowed the assured to believe the policy still in force, they were stopped from alleging the contrary when the attempt was made to enforce the other. Crescent Ins. Co. v. Griffin, 59 T. 509.

Waiver of default in payment of premium note, how shown. Insurance Co. v. Perky, 5 C. A. 698, 24 S. W. 1050.

Where insurers refuse to pay on special grounds, it is a waiver of their right to object on the ground of the insufficiency of the preliminary proof. Standard L. & A. Ins. Co. v. Koen, 11 C. A. 273, 33 S. W. 133.

A condition that the policy should be void if the interest of insured was other than sole and absolute ownership held waived. Wagner v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 92 T. 549, 60 S. W. 568.

Stipulation in policy that misrepresentation as to title would avoid it held waived. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 24 C. A. 140, 57 S. W. 876.

Course of dealings between an insurance company and the insured, under an open policy containing a clause requiring the insurer to declare the company of risks as soon as known. Insurance Co. of North America v. Bell, 25 C. A. 129, 60 S. W. 262.

A company held not to have waived the breach of a provision in a policy that it would not transfer any part of the title to the property insured. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Ransom (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 144.

Forfeiture of fire policy by reason of breach of condition held to have been waived. German-A. & L. Ins. Co. v. Evans, 25 C. A. 809, 61 S. W. 658.

Where insurer consented to a transfer of the property and an assignment of the policy, a breach of condition by the original holder held no defense to an action for a subsequent loss. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 440.

Breach of condition in fire policy held not to have been waived by company. Curlee v. Texas Home Fire Ins. Co., 31 C. A. 471, 73 S. W. 851.

Fire insurance company held estopped to assert forfeiture of policy for want of indorsement of consent to other insurance. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Eastman (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 253.

A stipulation in a policy, insuring an employer against damage for injuries to its employees held not waived by the act of the insurer. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. v. Waymire (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 452.

Accident insurance company held not in a position to claim a forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums induced by the negligence of its own agent. Johnson v. Standard Life & Accident Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 831.

An estoppel against an insurance company from the acts of its local agent to assert forfeiture held the same as in case of an individual insurer present and acting. Continental Casualty Co. v. Bridges (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 170.
Facts held to establish a waiver of payment of premium on an accident policy on a specified date. 1d. Evidence held to show a waiver by insurer's agent of a clause in a fire policy forbidding transfer of the property without insurer's consent. British America Assur. Co. v. Francisco (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1144.

Policy. Though insurer's agent knew that insured occupied leased premises, and that his property was subject to the statutory lien, there was no waiver of a clause rendering the policy void if the property "be or become incumbered by a chattel mortgage," where the lease contained a clause of which the agent was ignorant, giving the landlord lien for nonpayment of rent, containing all exemption laws, and providing that the lien should be cumulative of all statutory liens and remedies. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 363.

Waiver in a fire policy held not entitled to insist that an increased hazard had not been waived by it. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Chancey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 577.

A waiver of the forfeiture of a life policy held to result from acts of insurer. 1d.

An insurer held authorized to elect not to forfeit a policy for nonpayment of a premium when due. 1d.

A stipulation in an insurance policy for forfeiture on nonpayment of premiums before a stipulated date is for the benefit of the insurer and may be waived by him. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 147 S. W. 1152.

The forfeiture of an insurance policy for nonpayment of a premium is waived without any agreement to that effect by negotiations or transactions with the insured after knowledge of the forfeiture. 1d.

Whether an insurance company waives forfeiture for nonpayment of a premium does not depend on anything the insured does or on whether he was misled; a waiver not based upon express stipulation is not implied. On facts stated, held, that letters of an insurer amounted to a waiver of forfeiture of a policy for nonpayment of premiums, but that its letter written after a premium was due, but before the right to forfeiture accrued thereon, was not a waiver of a forfeiture of nonpayment of such premium. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

An insurer, who denies liability under a fire policy, thereby waives the stipulation therein that any loss shall not be payable until 60 days after receipt of proofs of loss, and cannot claim that a suit brought on the policy within such time is premature. Oklahoma Fire Ins. Co. v. McKey (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 440.

Waiver of a forfeiture of a life policy for nonpayment of premiums may result from any unequivocal acts by the insurer, after knowledge of the forfeiture, without action by insured. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 152 S. W. 625.

What conditions may be waived.—An insurance company may waive any condition of its policy therefor, or any other fact. P. & A. Life Ins. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 1 App. C. C. § 1347; Ins. Co. v. Waters, 10 C. A. 363, 30 S. W. 576; Sun Ins. Co. v. Tex. Foundry & Machine Co., 4 App. C. C. § 33, 18 S. W. 34; Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Witt (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 786. An insurance company may, through its authorized agent, contract by parol for the renewal of a policy of insurance, although it may be stipulated on the face of the policy itself that it shall not be done. Cohen v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 325, 3 S. W. 296, 60 Am. Rep. 34. A condition in the policy that there should be no transfer or assignment of the same except by writing on the policy, is waived by a verbal consent to a transfer or assignment by an agent of the insurer. Fire Ins. Co. v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 333.

A policy of insurance stipulated that "agents of this company have no authority to waive any part of the printed terms or conditions of insurance as herein expressed; and no printed or written restrictions hereof, which by the terms of this policy may be subject to waiver, shall be deemed to have been waived, except by distinct, specific agreement, clearly expressed in the body of the policy." Held, that any condition which might have been waived in writing and not otherwise, must be deemed, within the meaning of the stipulation, a condition or restriction "subject to waiver," and to such only does the stipulation apply. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63.

A requirement in a policy that premiums should be paid at a designated place may be waived. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 230.

A clause in a policy of life insurance, exempting the insurer from liability until actual payment of premium, may be waived. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 34 C. L. 133, 78 S. W. 34.

A forfeiture of a policy for nonpayment of premium or of a premium note may be waived by the insurer. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 293.

Authority of agent in general.—A policy contained a stipulation that it should be void in case of other insurance thereon without the consent of the company written thereon. The agent of the company was notified by the assured that additional insurance had been obtained. The company having failed to indorse the same upon the policy, or to notify the assured of the risk, was stopped from setting up the additional insurance as a defense. Insurance Co. v. Lyons, 33 T. 253; Crescent Ins. Co. v. Griffin, 59 T. 509. See, also, N. O. Ins. Ass'n v. Griffin, 66 T. 232, 18 S. W. 505.

One of the conditions of the policy was that there should be no transfer unless the company indorsed in writing the company was indorsed. There was no such indorsement, but it was shown that the agent of the company knew of the transfer and had consented thereto. Held, that the company was estopped by the act of its agent. Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 333.

The face of its policy upon its face may provide that it shall not be valid unless countersigned by the company's general agent, yet if other insurance was obtained with the verbal consent of such agent, who promised to indorse his consent on the policy, and afterwards made written memoranda of a renewal, but not on the policy.
and no objection was made by the company, the company would be bound, and the consent of the company to the subsequent insurance can be shown otherwise than by indorsement. Insurance Co. 69 T. 382, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St.

73. — Effect of provisions in application or policy.—An insurance company that waives a condition in a policy that it will only be bound by writing to any future contract in regard thereto, may not preclude itself from making a parol contract to change that stipu-tation; and if through its general agent the stipulation is disregarded, and the company fails to repudiate its act, when good conscience requires that if it be disapproved it should be done promptly, the company will be bound. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S.

An insurer held estopped from asserting the invalidity of a policy, delivered with full knowledge of the facts on which its validity may be disputed. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 688.

76. Acceptance of premiums.—The company, by receiving the premium for fire insurance, with knowledge of the true state of title of the property insured, is estopped from denying the right of the insured to recover on the ground that his interest in the property was other than the entire unconditional and sole ownership for his own use. L. & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Erde, 65 T. 118.

Act of agent in accepting payment of premium after due held ratified by the company. Id.

Although, after maturity of payment of premium notes, which provided that, if not paid at maturity, the policy was forfeited, is a waiver of the right to a forfeiture. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 546.

Although an insurance company can avoid a policy where the agent acts for both parties, yet it must return the premium within a reasonable time after knowledge of the facts has come to it, else it will be held to have ratified the contract; and where the contract of insurance is voidable the insurer can, by bringing suit before the premium is returned, ratify it, and may enforce it. Insurance Co. v. City of Smithville (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 412.

Acceptance, after maturity, of payment of a premium note, nonpayment of which was null and void, is not a waiver of the right to assert a forfeiture. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Wilkes, 92 T. 468, 49 S. W. 1038.

Acceptance of a payment on conditions which were complied with held a waiver of a requirement of "satisfactory evidence of good health," etc. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Assur. Co. v. Bozeman, 21 C. A. 490, 62 S. W. 94.

Payment of assessments on a life policy after it has been forfeited for failure to make such payments, and the taking of a receipt which states that the payment was received on the condition that the insured was in good health, does not reinstate such policy, where the insured was not in good health when the payment was made. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Assur. Co. v. Limberg, 24 C. A. 365, 69 S. W. 314.

Where an insurer issues a policy, and accepts premiums thereon, with knowledge of facts that constitute a violation of a provision in the policy, and would make the same void, and the insured, such insured has waived the provision violated. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Post, 25 C. A. 428, 62 S. W. 140.

Receipt of premium held to estop insurance company from relying on misrepresentation as to title to property. Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 378.

Acceptance by insured of an installment on a premium note after default held not a waiver of a forfeiture of the policy by failure to pay the note at maturity. National Life Ins. Co. v. Manning, 33 C. A. 498, 86 S. W. 618.

The fact that insured did not promptly return or retain a premium held not to reinstate a forfeited contract. Moore v. Supreme Assembly of Royal Soc. of Good Fellows, 42 C. A. 366, 93 S. W. 1677.

Forfeiture of an accident policy for nonpayment of premiums when due held waived, the company having afterwards received them. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jennings, 45 C. A. 14, 99 S. W. 423.

77. --- Demand for payment of premium.---When a policy of insurance provides for a forfeiture upon failure to pay the premiums which are to fall due, but does not stipulate that upon such failure the overdue premiums shall be considered as earned, a demand for a payment of such premium constitutes a waiver of the forfeiture. It is otherwise when the policy stipulates that upon default in any installments the insurance shall cease and the installments shall be considered as earned. Cohen v. Insurance Co., 67 T. 1025, 677 A. 296, 66 Am. Rep. 24.

78. --- Extension of time for payment of premium.---Extension of time for the payment of a premium note, after it had matured and the policy had been forfeited for failure to pay the note at maturity, and payment of the note after loss, held not to estop insurer or on a new forfeiture. Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Knights of Taber Lodge of Camp County, 32 C. A. 328, 74 S. W. 809.

Act of insurance company's collector in stating that he would call again for premium held not to show an extension, or waiver of forfeiture, nor that the premium was never collected. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assurance, 37 C. A. 490, 84 S. W. 404.

79. --- Suing to recover premium.---A provision that a life policy shall be void on failure to pay a premium note is waived by suing on such a note. National Life Ins. Co. v. Reppond (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1012.

80. --- Offer of loan on policy.---Offer of loan on policy, by the superintendent of the department of the company at its home office, held to be the act of the company and to constitute a waiver notwithstanding provision that policy could be varied only by specified officers. Equitable Life Assurance Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 126, 147 S. W. 1152.

Offer of loan on policy for purpose of paying premium, made after policy had lapsed, held not conditional on insured furnishing certificate of good health so as to negative recognition of the continued validity of the policy. Id.

In determining whether company waived forfeiture, offer of loan with which to pay premiums after a lapse, made by a superintendent of a department of the company and transmitted to the insured by the cashier of a local agency, held to be considered as if made direct to insured by the superintendent. Id.

A waiver of an insurance company for nonpayment of premiums by an offer of a loan is operative for a reasonable time thereafter during which insured may adjust the premium. Id.

Where, after the expiration of the days of grace within which a premium on a life policy should be paid, the insurer offered to make a loan with which to pay premiums without reinstatement, the forfeiture was waived. Equitable Life Assurance Society of United States v. Ellis, 105 T. 526, 152 S. W. 625.

81. --- Examination by adjuster.---An adjuster held to have waived a breach of "an iron safe clause" by examining and estimating loss at insured's request, and by

The right to claim a forfeiture of a fire policy for noncompliance with the iron safe clause held waived by insured being subjected to an examination under oath by the adjuster, with knowledge of the facts. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nunn (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 66.

Waiver of production of inventories by an insurance adjuster, without knowledge of the loss of one of them, held not a waiver of a condition of the iron safe clause, requiring the keeping and production of such lost inventory. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings, 98 T. 155, 81 S. W. 705.

A forfeiture of the policy by failure of insured to keep an account of cash sales held not waived by requiring insured to submit to several examinations. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Weeks Drug Co., 55 C. A. 283, 118 S. W. 1086.

Empire Indemnity Company held not estopped from denying liability under the policy, where its adjuster's act did not injure or mislead the injured employer. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Tyler Box & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 283.

82. Denial of liability as waiver of right to demand of payment.—Where an insurance company, upon an offer to furnish proofs of death of the insured, denied liability on the policy, it thereby waived its right to demand of payment, and could not contend that because of failure to demand payment as required a judgment against it was erroneous in including the statutory penalty and attorney's fees. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. v. Wilmerth (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 778.

83. Accepting proofs of loss.—Where defective proofs have been made, a refusal to pay on special grounds, or a denial of liability, unless predicated upon the defects in the preliminary proofs, is a waiver of all the defects therein, and estops the insurer from insisting thereon thereafter as a ground for defeat of its liability. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 441.

A requirement by the company of proofs of loss after full information as to breaches of policy is a waiver of its right of forfeiture. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Moriarty (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 628.

84. Form and requisites of express waiver.—A waiver of the conditions of a policy must be supported by a consideration, or must be such as to estop a party from insisting on a performance of the contract. Sun Ins. Co. v. Tex. Foundry & Machine Co., 44 App. C. C. § 32, 15 S. W. 934.

Where an insurance agent, having authority to consent to a transfer of the property, orally consented thereto, the insurer was bound thereby. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 440.

It is a waiver as to forfeiture clauses in insurance contracts may be shown notwithstanding an express provision of the policy forbidding it. British America Assur. Co. v. Francisco (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1144.

An insurer whose agent consented in advance to additional insurance, and a slip showing such agreement, was estopped from asserting a forfeiture, though such slip was not attached to the policy until after the loss. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1152.

85. Effect of waiver.—A waiver by an insurance company of a ground of forfeiture is not a waiver of another ground of which it has no knowledge. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 702.

Where a forfeiture of an insurance policy is once waived because of the course of dealings between the parties, it cannot later be interposed to defeat recovery. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1184.

86. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence in action on policy held to support finding of waiver of production of books of account, Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 387; insufficient to charge an insurance agent with knowledge that plaintiff's interest in the property was other than sole and unconditional ownership. Weeks v. Cummings & Marine Ins. Co. v. Weeks (Civ. App.) 712. Sufficient to sustain a plea that defendant waived its right to insist on a forfeiture of the policy, Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1033; to sustain a finding that the insurer was advised by its agent of the full amount of concurrent insurance carried, which exceeded that permitted by the policy. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cronin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 649; to justify a finding that the insurer in a life policy waived forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums at maturity, Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 184; sufficient to support a finding that the forfeiture of a policy for nonpayment of the premium had been waived. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 125 T. 526, 147 S. W. 1152; insufficient to warrant a finding that the insurer issued the policy without notice that an insurance broker was acting as agent of the insured, Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 625.

87. Curing forfeiture.—Payment of a mortgage on insured property before loss does not cure a forfeiture for failure to give the insurer notice of the existence of the mortgage in time to effect a cure. Wick Co., v. Northwest American v. Wick (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 399.

88. Risks and causes of loss—Marine Insurance.—A policy of marine insurance upon a vessel while in the waters of the Mexican gulf held in force, where the vessel was in a river, when the gulf tide ebbed and flowed. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.

There can be no recovery, under a policy insuring a vessel against the adventures and perils of the sea, for the sinking of the vessel caused by the negligence of the watchman in failing to close the side valve, which caused it to tip over, or to tip so far that water ran in from the top and foundered it. Id.

89. Insurance of property.—Evidence in an action on a fire policy examined and held sufficient to justify the finding that the fire was negligently set by a third party, which had been imploeed by the insurance company as a defendant. Philadelphia Underwriters v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry., 91 C. A. 184, 71 S. W. 419.
Evidence held insufficient to show that insured fraudulently caused a fire. Milwaukee Mut. Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 599.

A live stock insurance policy held to prohibit recovery, where the animal died without the county named in the policy. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Krenke (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1181.

90. — Indemnity insurance. — There can be no recovery on a policy insuring assured against his liability on cotton consigned to him as warehouseman, the loss occurring without his negligence. Allen v. Royal Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 931.

Employed of insured under employer's liability insurance policy held to be engaged in employment at time of his death. Bailey v. Casualty Co. of New York v. Lone Oak Cotton Oil & Gin Co., 35 C. A. 260, 80 S. W. 541.

An insurance contract to indemnify the sureties of a postmaster for loss caused by his embezzlement of money order funds, etc., should be construed with reference to the federal statutes, and not under state statutes defining the offense. Griffin v. Zuber, 52 C. A. 288, 114 S. W. 961.

91. — Life insurance. — When the policy provides that if within two years from date of policy the insured shall commit suicide, and the evidence shows that within that time the insured did commit suicide, it is not error to instruct the jury to find for the company. Parish et al. v. Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co., 19 C. A. 457, 49 S. W. 153.

In an action on a policy, evidence held insufficient to show that deceased's death was caused by poison administered by his wife, who was the beneficiary. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Mellott (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 887.

In action on life policy, evidence held sufficient to show that deceased came to his death by natural causes, and not from suicide. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Liddell, 32 C. A. 252, 74 S. W. 87.

Evidence in an action for damages for refusal to pay a death benefit certificate held to show that insured committed suicide. Loyal Americans of the Republic v. McClelland, 50 C. A. 256, 109 S. W. 972.

Evidence held to show that an insured committed suicide. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 50 C. A. 233, 109 S. W. 1120.

The fact that a pistol could only be fired by pulling the trigger does not show beyond a reasonable doubt that the person killed by a shot from the pistol intentionally fired it. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 769.

A finding that insured in a life policy, void if he committed suicide within a specified period, did not commit suicide must stand, unless the evidence establishes that the shooting causing his death was intentional to that degree of conclusiveness which precludes a reasonable doubt to the contrary. Id.

In an action upon a life policy void on the suicide of insured, evidence held to justify a finding that insured's death was accidental, and not suicidal. Id.

Evidence, in an action on a benefit certificate, defended on the ground that insured died in consequence of his violation of law, held sufficient to show that insured was killed because of an assault made by him in violation of a penal statute. Woodmen of the World v. Husk (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 216.

92. — Accident and health insurance. — An accident which provides against death or injury resulting from fighting, intentional injury, or violation of law is forfeited by engaging in a fight voluntarily, and being shot while so engaged. Morris v. Travelers' Ins. Co. 45 S. W. 398.

Accident insurance policy construed, and held, that where insured died from effect of an overdose of morphine, given to cure delirium tremens, the insurer was not liable. Flint v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1679.

In an accident policy, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that death occurred through external means, and not because of insured's diseased condition. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 23 C. A. 74, 56 S. W. 87.

Evidence in an action on an accident policy held to show that the death of insured did not result from an anesthetic alone. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Glass, 29 C. A. 159, 67 S. W. 1062.

An injury inflicted by one protecting himself from an unprovoked assault is intentionally incurred within the meaning of an accident policy. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York v. Smith, 31 C. A. 111, 71 S. W. 391.

An accident policy exempting insurer from liability for death by voluntarily or involuntarily taking poison held to include death resulting from an accidental taking of a poisonous medicine. Kennedy v. Ætna Life Ins. Co., 31 C. A. 505, 72 S. W. 692.

A stipulation in an accident policy held not to relieve the insurer from liability for injuries sustained by the insured while on a hunting expedition. Wilkinson v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1016.

A stipulation within the clause of an accident policy exempting insurer from liability. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America v. Well, 40 C. A. 629, 91 S. W. 886.

Facts held not to show, as matter of law, that death of insured resulted from exposure to unnecessary danger or obvious risk, so as to limit the company's liability. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jennings, 45 C. A. 14, 59 S. W. 423.

The word "injury" in certain policy of accidental insurance held to include fatal injury. Continental Casualty Co. v. Morris, 46 C. A. 394, 102 S. W. 732.

Claim under an insurance policy relating to the payment of funeral benefits held not repugnant to the policy. General Accident Ins. Co. v. Hayes, 55 C. A. 272, 113 S. W. 990.

Evidence, in an action on an accident insurance policy, held sufficient to support a finding that plaintiff lost the sight of both his eyes as the result alone of the injury to his right eye, and not as the result of any kind of disease. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 432.

"Voluntary exposure" to unnecessary danger or obvious risks, within the meaning of an accident policy, is a conscious or intentional exposure to a known risk, and not a mere inadvertent or accidental one. Continental Casualty Co. v. Deeg ( Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 455.

The death of a collector by sunstroke while pursuing his work on a hot day was not within an accident policy insuring against death by sunstroke due to external, violent, and accidental means. Bryant v. Continental Casualty Co. ( Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 636.

A health declared, and having excepted September 19th, he sustained an injury which continuously incapacitated him from labor during the time of the injury until he died so as to authorize a recovery on an accident policy. Continental Casualty Co. v. Wade ( Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 677.

Insured held an insurance which continuously incapacitated him from labor during the time of the injury until he died so as to authorize a recovery on an accident policy. Continental Casualty Co. v. Wade ( Civ. App.) 101 T. 102, 105 S. W. 35.

Accident insurance policy for $400 providing that for injury intentionally inflicted by any person other than insured the liability was limited to one-fifth the amount otherwise payable construed, and held that, upon the assassination of assured, the beneficiary was entitled to recover only $80. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corporation v. Stedman ( Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 692.

Life insurance.—Under a life policy, notes given for a premium, with interest, held a proper charge against the amount of the policy. Southwestern Ins. Co. v. Woods N. A. Bank ( Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 114.

Because of a provision for deducting the amount of the premium from the face of the policy, a beneficiary of a life insurance policy held to have the right to recover thereon, though the premium was not paid within the time required. Aetna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Wimberly ( Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 775.

Notice and proof of loss.—Validity of provision in policy requiring immediate notice, see notes under Art. 5714.

Necessity of proof.—Where a life insurance policy makes it a condition precedent to recovery thereon that proofs of death be furnished in accordance with the provisions of the policy, and there is a failure to furnish such proof and no waiver of the provision is claimed nor excuse shown, there can be no recovery. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 50 C. A. 239, 106 S. W. 1120.

Estoppel or waiver as to proofs.—Where proofs are prepared under directions of the agent and with his approval imperfections therein are waived. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Althaus ( Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 833.

Insurance company's denial of liability on policy, though made to a third party, will operate as waiver of proofs of loss. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Nowlin ( Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 158.

Failure to furnish a magistrate's certificate of loss will not prevent recovery, where the same was not requested till suit was brought, 60 days after loss. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Shacklett ( Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 583.

An insurer's denial of liability held a waiver of proofs of loss and of the insurer's right to 60 days within which to pay the same. Connecticut Fire Ins. Co. v. Hilbrant ( Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 558.

That plaintiff, at the time he demanded blanks for proofs of death from insurer, was not in a position to receive payment, did not prevent insurer’s refusal of blanks from operating as a waiver of proofs of death. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 24 C. A. 131, 78 S. W. 388.

It is unnecessary for insured to prove furnishing of proofs of loss, where insurer refuses them, or would have ignored them. Woodall v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1090.

Proofs of loss under a fire policy are waived, where the insurer denies its liability. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Moore, 56 C. A. 312, 81 S. W. 573.

A provision in a fire policy held not to apply after an adjustment of the loss has been made. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 497, 92 S. W. 1968. Ignorance of insurer at the time of an adjustment under a fire policy of facts which might have shown that the limit of the policy held of no avail if the insurer might have known them and was not fraudulently prevented from learning them. id.

An insurance company, on receipt of proof of death, held charged with notice of any discrepancies between the statements therein and those contained in the application. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1003.

Effect of insurer’s refusal to pay certain sick benefits because the final proof indicated that insured had not been confined for the required period stated. General Accident Ins. Co. v. Hayes, 52 C. A. 272, 113 S. W. 990.

99. — Fraud, false swearing or misstatement.—False swearing to avoid a policy after loss must be willful. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 519.

In order to take out a case of false swearing in making the proof of loss by fire, so as to affect the policy, the facts alleged to be false must have been known to have been such by the party swearing to them. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Shearn, 17 C. A. 456, 43 S. W. 530.

Where the amount of fire policy is by statute made a liquidated demand in case of total loss, the liability of the insurer cannot be avoided by showing an excessive valuation in the proof of loss. German Ins. Co. v. Jansen, 18 C. A. 190, 45 S. W. 220.

Misstatement as to ownership of property in proof of loss held not fraudulent, so as to avoid the policy. Weitzel v. Fire Ins. 77 C. A. 876. Misstatement in notice of accident and proof of death as to cause thereof held not to relieve the company from liability on an accident policy. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jenkins, 46 C. A. 34, 99 S. W. 423.

100. — Proofs of injury or loss.—Where proofs of accident furnished showed injury and disability, it was only necessary for insured, in furnishing further proofs, to show continuance of disability. Woodall v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1090.

Where a building insured was totally destroyed, it was immaterial that the proofs of loss were furnished by the mortgagee, to whom the policy was payable. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Ruddell, 37 C. A. 30, 82 S. W. 526.

102. — Adjustment of loss.—Neither party to a policy is concluded by an adjustment as to rights arising from facts not considered when an adjustment was made. The assignee of a policy is not bound by an adjustment of the loss with the assignor, the insurer having previous notice of the assignment. Fire Ass’n of London v. Blum, 63 T. 282.

An open policy is one in which the sum to be paid in case of loss is not fixed in the contract, but if left open to be proved by the claimant, or to be determined by the parties, and this determination is called an adjustment of the loss. Fire Insurance Ass’n v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 332.

A stipulation in a policy by which it is agreed that the amount of loss shall be determined by an appraiser, is valid, and if such appraiser be made a condition precedent to the bringing of a suit upon the policy it will be enforced. Insurance Co. v. Clancy, 83 T. 113, 18 S. W. 438; id., 71 T. 5, 8 S. W. 630; American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Base, 90 T. 330, 38 S. W. 1119.

A disagreement merely as to the basis of determining the loss does not call an arbitration provision into force. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 18 C. A. 588, 45 S. W. 945.

103. — Demand of appraisal.—A fire insurance policy construed, and held that, where the company did not demand an appraiser until more than 60 days after the loss occurred, 3 weeks after receipt of proofs of loss, the demand was too late. Lion Fire Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 203, 68 S. W. 305.

104. — Waiver as to adjustment.—Where the company accepts proofs of loss made by insurer, it waives the right to have the question of loss determined by arbitrators. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 18 C. A. 588, 45 S. W. 945.

Provisions in policy requiring submission of amount of loss to appraisers held waived, and agreement made between insurer and appraisers on all points except amount of loss, and proofs of loss are retained, is a waiver of all points except manner of determining loss. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 19 C. A. 305, 46 S. W. 851.

Where an insurer fails to demand an appraisal within the time prescribed by the policy, it waives its right thereto. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 445, 69 S. W. 235.

Insurance company held to have waived its right to reappraisal of property injured in fire. American Fire Ins. Co. v. Dell, 13 C. A. 11, 75 S. W. 319.
105. Validity and effect of appraisal or award.—Where policy provided for arbitration and award and the award was invalid through no fault of the insured, an action on the policy could be maintained. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1131.

Where arbitrators gave no notice of the time and place of their meeting, and refused to permit a party to appear before them, the award was void. Id.

Appraisers held to have no authority to refuse to appraise property claimed by insured to have been destroyed. American Fire Ins. Co. v. Bell, 33 C. A. 11, 75 S. W. 319.

An arbitration award under fire policies held not inadmissible as not complying with the provisions under which arbitration was had. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Frosch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 600.

Under an agreement to arbitrate a fire loss, the award binds insurer; especially where the policy provides for arbitration on disagreement. Id.

107. Setting aside adjustment.—An adjustment of a loss under a fire policy may be set aside on a showing that it was fraudulent or made through a mistake of fact. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 497, 92 S. W. 1065.

The fact that the custody of stepchildren has been taken from their stepmother after her father's death cannot defeat the recovery from her of their share in a life insurance policy. Clausen v. Jones, 38 C. A. 376, 46 S. W. 183.

The holder of a life insurance policy has the power to direct that his children shall share the proceeds thereof. Id.

In an action by the beneficiary of an insurance policy, the proceeds of which were claimed to have been paid under an agreement whereby the homestead was conveyed to enable the husband to purchase other incumbered property, the husband agreeing to take out sufficient insurance to pay the incumbrances, the carrying of insurance in favor of his estate and an only child, coheir with the wife, constitutes a partial performance of the agreement, and the amounts thereof which were paid to or became the property of the wife cannot be held to constitute payment of a policy of which she is a beneficiary. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

109. Policy payable to creditor.—Where a policy was payable to a creditor of insured as his interest might appear, otherwise to the executor, held that the company must show that it had a lien on the property to which the policy belonged. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 92 T. 584, 50 S. W. 572.

A creditor holding a policy payable to him as collateral, and who has paid the premiums thereon, in order to recover, must show any assignment of it to himself, as he is the absolute owner. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 24 C. A. 425, 58 S. W. 1033.

Where a creditor insures his debtor's life as security, on the debtor's death the creditor can only recover the debt with interest at 6 per cent. and the premiums paid by him. Stacy v. Parker (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 532.

110. Policy payable to mortgagee.—Where policies are made payable to a mortgagee, the owner and the insurer cannot, without the mortgagee's consent, make any lien or charge in the policies that will affect its rights. Pan Handle Nat. Bank v. Security Co., 18 C. A. 96, 44 S. W. 15.

A mortgagee held to have such an interest in the property as would entitle him to collect insurance money. Id.

Mortgages of an intestate's property were not entitled to insurance money payable to them under the mortgage, where the intestate's administrator had restored the property to the condition it was in before the fire. Huey v. Ewell, 22 C. A. 638, 55 S. W. 606.

111. Trustee.—A stepmother's conduct towards her stepchildren does not disqualify her from the collection of the policy issued in her name, as authorized by her deceased husband. Clausen v. Jones, 18 C. A. 376, 45 S. W. 183.

112. Remaindermen.—Where a fire policy is payable to one having a life estate, in case of a loss the remaindermen are entitled to the excess over the value of the life estate. Grant v. Buchanan, 36 C. A. 334, 51 S. W. 859.

113. Assignment of claim.—An assignment of a fire insurance policy after a loss has occurred will not vitiate the policy. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Scott, 1 U. C. 534.

Where a fire policy by its terms was payable to a third person, insured could not, after the loss, assign his claim so as to defeat the rights of the payees under the terms of the policy. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

A fire policy may be assigned orally after the loss. Id.

An assignment of a life policy held to give to the assignee an interest in the policy to the amount insured owed the assignee. Smith v. Hessey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 256.

An assignment of the proceeds of a fire insurance policy need not be accepted by the company's agent in order to become effective, if the company had notice of the assignment. Prentice v. Security Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 525.

An order by an insured requesting the local agents of a fire company to pay to defendant out of insured's policy the amount of a specified note for the sum named therein was drawn upon a specific fund so as to operate as an assignment thereof within the rule that an interest in a chose in action can only be assigned by an order drawn upon a specific fund. Id.

Since a fire policy, the proceeds of which were assigned by a written order, was nonnegotiable, the assignee could not, as a purchaser without notice, refuse to take it and arise with respect to conflicting claimants; the rule that the first in time is the first in right obtaining. Id.

Where it was agreed when plaintiff sold land in consideration of an assignment of an interest in a fire policy that the deed should not be delivered to insured until plaintiff received the proceeds of the policy, no question of innocent purchaser could arise to plaintiff or assignee of such policy. 139

If the assignee of the proceeds of a fire policy had no knowledge of fraud by the insurance company in adjusting the loss with insured, another claimant to the proceeds could not rely upon fraud as against such assignee. 1d.

A finding that a company that had not been assigned an interest in an insurance policy must have agreed to its terms at the same time to make it effective was properly refused. 1d.

114. Time for payment.—A stipulation that the insurer may have 60 days after proofs are made to pay the loss, etc., is waived by its unconditional refusal to pay. E. T. Fire Ins. Co. v. Dyche, 56 T. 665.

115. Election to repair or rebuild.—A stipulation in a policy for the right to rebuild in case of total loss is void. Fire Association v. Brown (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 997; Insurance Co. v. Lively, 15 C. 352. 33 S. W. 996.

An offer to repair a building incapable of being put in the same condition it was before the loss will not relieve the insurer from liability. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Woodward, 18 C. A. 496, 45 S. W. 185.

Where the insurer was offered an opportunity to rebuild the house destroyed, and failed to do so, a plea that it offered to rebuild, and was refused permission to do so will not avail it. 1d.

116. Release.—A release procured by an insurance adjuster of a claim on a life policy, by fraudulently representing that the policy was void because not having been delivered in the good health of the insured, would not be binding. Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley, 29 C. A. 494, 68 S. W. 695.

That insured, injured through the negligence of his employer, settled with the latter and released his liability held not a defense to an action for accident insurance. Jttna Life Ins. Co. v. J. B. Parker & Co., 30 C. A. 621, 72 S. W. 621.

In an action to recover the balance due on a life insurance policy, evidence held not to conclusively show a valuable consideration for a release of her claim executed by plaintiff. Life Ins. Co. v. Lenoxx, 103 T. 1324, 18 L. Rep., 146.

117. Subrogation of insurer.—After the delivery of the bill of lading by a carrier, the shipper insured the cotton covered by it. The bill of lading stipulated that in case of loss the carrier should have the benefit of any insurance. The cotton was destroyed in transitu, and the policy was paid to the shipper, who transferred to the insurance company the right to sue. Held the insurer. Hold the money paid thereby no rights against the carrier. E. & F. M. Ins. Co. v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 63 T. 476, 61 L. Rep. 681.

A clause in a bill of lading that the carrier shall have the full benefit of insurance is not void. An open policy which stipulates that “this insurance shall not inure to benefit of carrier” is not void as in restraint of trade. Insurance Co. v. Easton, 73 T. 167, 11 S. W. 180, 3 L. R. A. 424.

An action cannot be maintained by the insured against an insurance company when inconsistent stipulations with the carrier he has defeated the insurer's right of subrogation. In case of such inconsistent stipulations a payment by the insurance company is voluntary, and no subrogation would follow from such payment against the carrier. Railway Co. v. Insurance Co., 84 T. 149, 18 S. W. 489.

Where an insurance policy stipulated that the company, on paying any loss to the mortgagee on which it denied liability to the owner, should be subrogated to the mortgagee's right, held a judgment in a mortgagee's favor should decree subrogation. Alamo Fire Ins. Co. v. Davis, 25 C. A. 342, 60 S. W. 802.

An insurer against accidental injury held not subrogated to the rights of assured, injured through the negligence of a third party to recover damages for such negligence. Jttna Life Ins. Co. v. R. B. Parker & Co., 98 T. 387, 72 S. W. 1157.

The right of subrogation given to an insurer issuing a fire policy held a valuable right and material to the risk. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. La Grange & Lockhart Com'r, 77 T. 172, 190 L. Rep. 115.

118. Interest.—A stipulation that no claim shall bear interest until judicial demand is valid. Insurance Co. v. Lacroix, 45 T. 183; Id., 35 T. 349, 14 Am. Rep. 378.

When the policy provides that it shall be paid within 60 days after proof of loss, interest does not run until the expiration of that time. Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 787.

119. Conditions precedent to action on policy.—A provision in a policy of insurance on the homestead that in case of garnishment payment shall not be required until garnishment is disposed of is void. Insurance Co. v. Chase, 11 C. A. 12, 81 S. W. 1103.

An insurance company, in a suit on a policy, could not complain that plaintiffs had failed to pay interest on money paid them in pursuance of an invalid agreement of release, where the money so paid was credited on the amount recovered. Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley, 29 C. A. 494, 68 S. W. 695.

120. Limitations by provisions of policy.—See notes under Art. 5714.

121. Demand on a fire policy. In an action on a fire policy payable to a plaintiff, the fact that insured, plaintiff's debtor, obtained from the clerk of the court the premium which had been paid for the policy, held not to affect plaintiff's right to prosecute the action. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1085.

An insured whose executor on the personal policy had no defense that the insurer had paid the proceeds to an assignee under an assignment for moneys advanced, to be used by insured in gambling transactions in cotton futures. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 61.

Insurer having paid the proceeds of policies to an assignee having no insurable interest, with notice of his adverse claim against the Insurer's estate, held not entitled to justify the payment on the theory that the assignee received the money in trust for those equitably entitled thereto. 1d.
122. Defense available against mortgagee.—Where a fire policy was issued, payable to a mortgagee as his interest might appear, any defense available against the insured was available against the mortgagee. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co. v. Ruddell, 37 C. A. 36, 82 S. W. 826.

123. Judgment on policy payable in installments.—Where a policy was payable in 10 annual installments unless insured should file a written consent to have the same paid at his death, a judgment on the policy in the absence of such consent, requiring payment of the face value of the policy, was error. New York Life Ins. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 440.

A refusal of a life insurance company to pay the first installment of policy payable in annual installments held not to authorize judgment against it for the whole amount. New York Life Ins. Co. v. English, 96 T. 268, 72 S. W. 58.

124. Reinsurance.—Where an insurance company which contracted to reinsure the risks of another company expressly restricted its liability to claims arising by reason of death, held, it was not liable upon a cash surrender value provision of a policy. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Green (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 1131.

125. Recovery of payment.—An insurance company that has paid a policy obtained by fraud in ignorance of that fact is entitled to recover the sum paid. Life Ass'n v. Parham, 80 T. 518, 16 S. W. 316.

An insurance company held not entitled to recover back money paid because of a mistake due to its ignorance of facts. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Blackstone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 702.

A marine insurer, which expended money in salvaging a sunken vessel, held entitled to recover back such expenditures, it appearing that it was not liable under the policy. Mannheim Ins. Co. v. Charles Clarke & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 291.
TITLE 72
INTEREST

4973. Definition of interest.—"Interest" is the compensation allowed by law or fixed by the parties to a contract for the use or forbearance or detention of money.

See Depositaries.

1. "Interest."—A commission paid a broker to secure a loan upon the borrower's homestead is not interest, and cannot be collected as such. James v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 679.

2. Interest as damages—Indemnity for loss or injury.—When the injured party is entitled to indemnity for loss or injury, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 82 T. 293; Willis v. Whitsett, 67 T. 673, 4 S. W. 253; Heldenheimer v. Ellis, 67 T. 427, 3 S. W. 666.

3. Interest will not be allowed from date of an injury to date of judgment as part of the damages. T. & N. O. R. Co. v. Carr, 91 T. 323, 43 S. W. 18.

In an action by the purchaser of an ice machine against the seller for failure to deliver, plaintiff held not precluded from recovering interest on sum spent by him in preparing his building for the reception of the machine. Fred W. Wolf Co. v. Galbraith (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1100.

The measure of damages in cases where a purchaser refuses to receive property contracted for is ordinarily the difference between the contract price and the market value at the time and place of delivery, with interest. Texas & Louisiana Lumber Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 444.

Where plaintiff failed to deliver certain hogs as required by a contract for the sale of improvements on land, defendant's measure of damages was the value of the hogs at the time they should have been delivered with interest to the date of the trial at 6 per cent. Taylor v. McFatter (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 396.

Where plaintiff was entitled, as damages for breach of contract, to a much larger sum than the amount he owed defendant, interest on the amount due defendant was properly disallowed. Kirby Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings & Co., 57 C. A. 291, 122 S. W. 273.

In action for the contract price of building a party wall, held that interest on the amount of recovery could be allowed only from the date of substantial performance. Stude v. Koehler (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 193.

In an action by a street improvement contractor for a balance due on a contract for improvement, the city held liable for interest. City of Beaumont v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 984.
Title 72) INTEREST

Art. 4973

In an action for breach of defendant's contract to relieve two lots from a mortgage, in consideration of the value of the lots retained by her at the time it was sold under the mortgage, with interest at 6 per cent. Green v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 999.

In an action for breach of warranty, interest is allowed upon difference between actual worth and what article would have been worth if as represented. Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 53.

Where title to land sold with a warranty failed, and the warrantee was liable for rent for the land from the time of judgment of eviction, interest from that time on the damages recovered against his warrantor was properly allowed. Mayer & Schmidt v. Wooten, 46 C. A. 192; 102 S. W. 433.

8. Wrongful seizure under attachment.—Interest is allowed as damages in an action for the wrongful seizure of personal property under an attachment. Evans v. Reeves, 56 S. W. 215; 6 C. A. 294.

In a suit to recover damages for the wrongful seizure and conversion of plaintiff's goods under attachment, the measure of actual damages is the value of the goods, with legal interest by way of damages from the date of the unlawful seizure. Willis v. White, 67 T. 673; 4 S. W. 253.

In conversion, where plaintiff asks merely a specified sum actual damages, interest from the conversion is not recoverable. Sanger v. Thomasson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 408.

Where property conveyed to a taxpayer is acquired by a tax in proceedings and sold to a third person, the taxpayer is entitled to interest on the value of the property from the date of its sale by the city. City of Houston v. Walsh, 27 C. A. 121; 66 S. W. 106.

Damages for conversion of cattle held to be their value at the time of conversion, with interest. Daugherty v. Lady (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 837.

Interest on recovery in action against assignee for benefit of creditors for appropriation to himself of property belonging to estate held to run from the date of rendition of judgment. McCord v. Nahours, 101 T. 494; 109 S. W. 913.

Under the facts plaintiff held not entitled to recover interest as damages for defendant's conversion of a note. Morris v. Smith, 61 C. A. 357, 112 S. W. 130.

The general measure of damages for conversion of property is its market value at the time and place of conversion, with legal interest. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Neches Iron Works, 57 C. A. 249, 122 S. W. 64.

Under the facts, held a garnishee was liable for interest, as having appropriated the money. City of San Antonio v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 666.

In the conversion of building materials for the conversion of the property thereof, and legal interest from the date of the conversion. Baldwin v. G. M. Davidson & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 685.

In an action for the conversion of mortgaged personal property, held, that interest might be awarded as damages. Barron v. San Angelo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 142.

The measure of damages for the conversion of personal property is the value of the property converted with legal interest from the date of the conversion. First Nat. Bank v. Mimsola State Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 609.

In an action against a carrier for damages to a shipment of cattle, the interest allowed is allowed as damages, and not as interest. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dolan (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 391.

Instraining the jury, in an action for injury to a live stock shipment, if they find for plaintiff, to allow him interest from the date of the injury on the amount they find held, holding the petition presented such interest. Ft. Worth & G. R. Ry. Co. v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 813.

11. Rate and computation.—When a party is entitled to recover damages for the wrongful destruction of his property, interest on its value should be allowed from the date of its destruction. Railway Co. v. Tankersley, 63 T. 57; Heldenheimer v. Ellia, 67 T. 427, 3 S. W. 666.

Plaintiff was entitled to interest on the damages sustained from defective quality of goods shipped, from the time he received the goods. Connor v. S. Blaisdell, Jr., Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 390.

In an action for damages for a horse killed by a railroad, interest cannot be recovered upon the value of the horse from the date of the killing. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Barton (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 797; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1056.

One who recovers for damages to his barn by a fire set by engine is entitled to interest thereon from the loss. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shepard (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 800.

In an action against a railroad company for killing plaintiff's mule, plaintiff held not entitled to recover interest on the value of the mule from the time of the injury to the time of the trial. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Guthrie (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 211.

One suing for the negligent destruction of property by fire may recover interest from the date of the loss. Steger v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 174.

A percentage of the value of the property, claimed as interest in an action for damages, is in fact part of the damages and not interest eo nomine. Rotan Grocery Co. v. McIntire & T. Bourgeois, of Texas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 678.

In a statutory action for the killing of animals, an instruction to award plaintiff such sum as, if paid in cash at the time of trial, would compensate him for his loss, held erroneous, in that under the instruction interest might have been awarded. Ft. Worth & S. G. Ry. Co. v. Chisholm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 923.

In a statutory action for the killing of animals, interest cannot be awarded as compensation. Id.

13. — Discretion of court.—When interest is recoverable as damages it rests within the discretion of the judge under proper instructions. Heldenheimer v. Ellis, 67 T. 427, 2 S. W. 666.

An agreement to pay more than the legal rate of interest for the detention of money after the date of the maturity of the note, is void. Parks v. Lubbock, 92 T. 656, 51 S. W. 322.

Interest on amount found due on accounting.—Interest on the amount found due in an accounting cannot be allowed for the time the entire funds were on deposit in a bank to abate the result of the accounting. Gresham v. Harcourt (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1058.

31. Interest on claim of partner.—Sums due by one partner to another do not bear interest at the rate fixed by the parties agreeing, but if the interest shall be paid, such agreement shall govern. McKay v. Overton, 65 T. 82.

Interest may be allowed on the sum due to a partner before a partnership accounting, where the sum is withheld after due, and accounting prevented by the misconduct of the other partner. Corralitos Co. v. Mackay, 31 C. A. 316, 72 S. W. 624.

Under a partnership agreement, a partner owning the real estate used by the partnership held not entitled to interest on the amount so invested. Hatzfeld v. Walsh, 56 C. S. 573, 190 S. W. 256.

32. Tender of principal or interest.—In a suit against an administrator he may save interest by tendering into court the money remaining in his hands; but if he resists the proceedings of one entitled thereto, it is proper to charge him with interest from the time the money should have been paid over, or demand made. Simpson v. Knox, 1 U. C. 569.

Where a sheriff, wrongfully claiming to withhold fees for money in his hands received from the sale of land for delinquent taxes, makes a tender of the balance, held not to relieve him from interest. City of San Antonio v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 139.

Tender of payment at a bank where a note was payable, before maturity, held not to constitute a valid tender, nor stop the running of the interest. Kelly v. Collins (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 957.

A tender of interest held insufficient in amount, justifying the creditor in refusing it and electing to call for the principal. Schwantowsky v. Dykowsky (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 373, 377.

Where a pledgor claimed a conversion of collaterals by the pledgee, and did not tender the balance of the debt, the pledgee was entitled to recover interest on such balance to the time of the trial. Oriental Bank of New York v. Western Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1178.

Where a judgment against a city on city warrants drew interest, a tender by the city on condition that no interest could be exacted was insufficient to relieve it from liability for interest. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 629.

33. Collection of interest.—Interest is as much a part of the judgment as the principal, and its collection is enforced by the same means. Jones v. United States & Mechanic Trust Co., 47 C. A. 490, 105 S. W. 326.

The remedy for the error in computing interest accrued on a demand or otherwise, so that the judgment is rendered for an excessive sum, is by appeal or certiorari, and not by injunction. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warlington (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 988.

34. Recovery of interest paid.—In an action for alleged overcharges of interest, plaintiff held not entitled to recover an overcharge of interest after the payment of the advances, not pleaded. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 373.

Art. 4974. [3098] “Legal interest.”—“Legal interest” is that interest which is allowed by law when the parties to a contract have not agreed upon any particular rate of interest.

What law governs.—Interest, when not expressly stipulated, is payable according to the laws of the state where the contract was made, unless payment is to be made at a different place, the law of which will then govern. Andrews v. Hoxie, 6 T. 171; Able v. McMurray, 10 T. 350.

A note executed in another state, not stipulating the rate, will bear interest at the rate prescribed in Texas, in the absence of proof of the legal rate in such state. Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806.

Interest on a contract executed in another state and to be performed in this state is to be computed according to the law of this state in the absence of a stipulation as to the rate. Byers v. Brannon (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 492.

Interest anterior to date.—A contract may stipulate for interest anterior to its date, if actually due. Andrews v. Hoxie, 5 T. 171.

Current statutory interest.—Current statutory interest is governed by the rates in force from time to time. Ellis v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 908.

One paying the note of another by contract is not subrogated to the rights of the payee, and can only recover the amount paid by him with legal interest. Halbert v. Paddleford (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 592; Id. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1092.

Liability of guardian for.—See Art. 4150.

Recovery of interest on warrants, debts.—See Art. 4172.

Interest on county warrants.—County warrants, which are silent as to interest and specify no time of payment, do not bear interest. Ashe v. Harris County, 55 T. 49.

Interest on claim for paving.—A street railroad company, contracting to pay for paving between the rails, must pay only the legal rate of interest on balance due. Houston, City, & St. Ry. v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 663, 72 S. W. 230.

Interest on note.—Where wrongful garnishment merely delayed collection of a note, interest is recoverable at the legal rate for the time during which collection is prevented. Foster v. Emmett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 530.

Effect of change of legal rate.—How interest, as compensation for detention of money recoverable, is computed, when there has been a change in the legal rate. Watkins v. Junker, 90 T. 584, 40 S. W. 11.
Art. 4975. [3099] "Conventional interest."—"Conventional interest" is that interest which is agreed upon and fixed by the parties to a written contract, not to exceed ten per cent per annum.

Rate of interest on city's indebtedness.—See Art. 876.

Municipal bonds.—See Art. 612.

Rents and profits.—See Art. 632.

Interest on sum lost through wrongful garnishment.—Where wrongful garnishment results in entire loss of a note, interest is recoverable at the contract rate. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 233.

Consideration for interest agreement.—Where plaintiff was liable under an original building and loan contract only for the principal, less payments made, because of usury, a second contract purging the original of usury held not void as to the interest for one year. Continental Bldg. Co. v. Johns, 94 T. 497, 62 S. W. 741.

Increase or reduction of rate.—Surrender of a debtor's right to extinguish the debt at once, and his agreement to pay interest thereafter, held a sufficient consideration for the creditor's agreement to reduce the rate of interest. Delta County v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 902.

In an action involving the extension of a note secured by a deed of trust at a greater rate of interest, evidence held to sustain a finding that the loan was extended upon an increased rate of interest. Boyle v. Byers (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 1112.

One who purchased lumber and assumed certain purchase-money notes of the seller, secured by lien was only liable on the notes for the amount thereof, together with the 10 per cent. interest stipulated therein which had accrued to the date of the judgment in favor of the seller, and 5 per cent. interest on such aggregate amount. Instead of 10 per cent., the interest stipulated in the notes. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 599.

Art. 4976. [3100] Distinction between legal and conventional recognized by law.—The distinction between legal and conventional interest shall be known and recognized by the laws of this state. [Act Jan. 18, 1840. P. D. 3939.]

Art. 4977. [3101] Six per cent the legal rate.—On all written contracts ascertaining the sum payable, when no specified rate of interest is agreed upon by the parties to the contract, interest shall be allowed at the rate of six per cent per annum from and after the time when the sum is due and payable. [Acts 1892, S. S., pp. 4, 5.]

"Ascertaining the sum payable."—Under this article and Const. art. 5, § 18, which declares that county courts shall have concurrent jurisdiction with district courts when a matter in controversy does not exceed $1,000, exclusive of interest, held, that where a petition in an action in a county court alleged that plaintiff purchased land of defendant and paid $1,000 as earnest money, and that under the contract, if the trade fell through on account of defendants' default, such amount was to be refunded; that defendant had refused the sum in question, and recovery thereof was sought, with interest, the county court had no jurisdiction, as the amount payable was not ascertainable from the terms of the contract, and the interest sued for could not be recovered as damages. McNeill v. Casey (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1129.

A contract of employment which specified a definite salary ascertained the amount payable, within this article, providing that interest shall be allowed at 6 per cent. per annum on written contracts "ascertaining the sum payable," when no rate is specified, and the amount stipulated does not constitute the "amount in controversy," as constituting damages, as affecting the jurisdiction of the county court of a suit on the contract. Carter Grocer Co. v. Day (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 366.

Computation.—When money is payable at date, or generally, interest runs from date, and the date, when omitted in the written contract, may be proven. Richardson v. Elliot, 10 T. 190; Van Norman v. Wheeler, 13 T. 316. And see Cook v. Cook, 19 T. 434.

A grantee recovering money paid for land which he did not get is entitled to interest from the time the $ is paid. Bennett v. Latham, 18 C. A. 403, 46 S. W. 934.

Where, on appeal, it appeared that the computation of interest in the judgment was on an incorrect basis, held, that the judgment would be reformed in that respect on appeal. Masterson v. F. W. Heitmann & Co., 33 C. A. 476, 87 S. W. 227.

Where one agreed to pay another a specified sum when able, interest did not run until he became able. Russick v. Wilrod (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 142.

The holders of certain notes held entitled to interest from maturity, notwithstanding an extension agreement. Dashiel v. W. L. Moody & Co., 44 C. A. 87, 97 S. W. 843.

An order for the payment of money drawn for immediate payment out of funds due the drawer is payable on demand, and interest is rightfully allowed from the date of demand. Foley v. Houston Co-op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 160.

A mortgage creditor, who collected on insurance on the improvements more than enough to extinguish the principal of the debt, held not entitled to collect more interest than that which had accrued at the collection of the policy. Dallas Trust & Savings Bank v. Story, 55 C. A. 84, 118 S. W. 781.

It being the duty of a broker through whom goods are bought to notify the buyer of the arrival of the goods, or to deliver, upon the price thereof, would be entitled to interest only from the time of such notification. Plotner & Stoddard v. Markham Warehouse & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 443.

Change of time from which interest runs, either accelerating or delaying it, held a material alteration of an instrument. Baldwin v. Haskell Nat. Bank, 194 T. 122, 138 S. W. 864.

In an action on a bond given to a city by the grantee of a municipal franchise to secure operation of its plant within one year, interest was allowable from expiration of that time, the obligation maturing then. Grayson v. City of Marshall (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1034.

Compound Interest.—A contract may stipulate for interest anterior to its date, if actually due, and for interest upon interest already accrued. Andrews v. Hoxie, 5 T. 171.

When payments are by agreement applied to the principal, which is thereby extinguished, the accrued interest which remains unpaid does not bear interest, unless otherwise expressly stipulated. Tooke v. Bonds, 29 T. 419.

A stipulation that interest past due shall bear interest is valid. Lewis v. Paschal, 57 T. 315; Roane v. Ross, 84 T. 46, 19 S. W. 339; Miner v. Bank, 53 T. 559; Crider v. San Antonio Real Estate, Balancing & Loan Ass'n, 59 T. 597, 55 S. W. 1047.

When partial payments are made, interest is to be computed to the time when a payment alone, or in conjunction with preceding payments, shall equal or exceed the interest due. Deduct the payment and calculate interest on the balance until the next payment is made. Ogle v. Frost, 59 T. 684; Hampton v. Dean, 4 T. 455; Hearn v. Cutherford, 10 T. 216; Clark v. Brown, 48 T. 212.

When interest is payable annually, unpaid interest bears legal interest. Roane v. Ross, 84 T. 46, 19 S. W. 339.

The payee of a note is entitled to interest at 6 per cent. on all unpaid annual installments of interest from the date they became due until paid. Stone v. Pettus, 47 C. A. 14, 103 S. W. 413.

A deed of trust executed to secure certain vendor's lien notes, bearing simple interest only, held to obligate one of the signers of the deed to pay the notes with compound interest, and to bind the land of the other signer for the payment of the notes and compound interest as surety. Irion v. Yell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

A written acknowledgment indorsed on a deed of trust held to nullify a provision of the deed of trust for compound interest for a period of ten years. Id.

The court in partition of real estate which has been in possession by one of the parties by tenants paying rent to him may not compound the interest on the rents in addition to the equities of the parties. Miller v. Odell, 213 S. 355.

Guaranty.—A, on the 28th of January, guaranteed the payment for a wagon to be sold by B. to C., payable November 1st following. C. gave his note for the price of the wagon, with interest at 12 per cent. from date. Held, that A. was not liable for interest. Vogelsang v. Mensing, 1 App. C. C. § 1166. L. executed to G. his note for the price of goods sold on credit, with interest at 10 per cent. At the same time E. gave to G. his obligation, reciting that he was responsible for the amount bought by L. Held, that E. was liable for interest. Looney v. Le Geirse, 2 App. C. C. § 531.

Art. 4978. [3102] Six per cent on open accounts, when.—On all open accounts, when no specified rate of interest is agreed upon by the parties, interest shall be allowed at the rate of six per cent per annum from the first day of January, after the same are made. [Id. sec. 2.]

Open account.—Parties may agree as to the rate of interest on an open account and as to the time when the account shall become due. Whittaker v. Wallace, 2 App. C. C. § 560.

The printed heading to an account of goods sold contained the following words and figures:

Terms  30 days discount 5 per cent.
Cash  10 "  "  6 "  "

Held, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the price for the goods sold was due on delivery; yet, if the money was paid in 30 days, a discount of 5 per cent., and if paid in 10 days a discount of 6 per cent., would be allowed to the debtor. Moss v. Katz, 69 T. 411, 6 S. W. 764.

Money advanced under a contract or at the instance and request of another is not an open account within this article. Courturie v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

Computation.—In the absence of a contract, interest on an open account is computed from the first day following the date of the account. Railway Co. v. Greathouse, 82 T. 104, 17 S. W. 834; Railway Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 324; Mills v. Haas, 27 S. W. 263, 674; Frick Co. v. Wright, 23 C. A. 340, 55 S. W. 608; Erb-Springall Co. v. Pittsburg Glass Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1165; Browning v. El Paso Lumber Co., 149 S. W. 886. Interest cannot be allowed on an open account for 1897, where it is alleged that the services were performed the latter part of 1896 and the fore part of 1897, where it is not stated when the account became due, nor that there was any agreement as to interest. Frick Co. v. Wright, 25 C. A. 346, 55 S. W. 610.

Interest is not recoverable from the date an open account is due as damages for nonpayment. Erb-Springall Co. v. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1165.

Money had and received.—Interest is recoverable on money had and received and on money lent and advanced. Close v. Fields, 13 T. 623; Hicks v. Bailey, 16 T. 229; Grimes v. Hagood, 19 T. 246; Burnett v. Henderson, 21 T. 588; Pauska v. Dus, 31 T. 67.

Payment when work satisfactorily completed.—This article does not apply to a contract for boring wells to be paid for when work is completed to the satisfaction of the field superintendent. Interest is payable on the claim from the time the work is accepted. Guiffey Petroleum Co. v. Hamill (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 460.

Art. 4979. [3103] Ten per cent the conventional rate.—The parties to any written contract may agree to and stipulate for any rate of interest not exceeding ten per cent per annum on the amount of the contract. [Id.]

Stipulation as to rate.—Conventional interest runs until payment. Hopkins v. Crittenden, 10 T. 189; Coles v. Kelsey, 13 T. 75; Hagood v. Alkin, 57 T. 611; Washington v. First Nat. Bank, 64 T. 4. 3328
On breach of a written contract the obligee, which by its terms stipulates for ten per cent interest for nonpayment of interest for and to be delivered to such obligee under it, when there is a partial delivery only, the obligor recovers judgment, he is entitled to the contract price of the articles delivered and the conventional interest specified in the contract. The breach does not entitle the defendant to the amount allowed by the statute when no interest is specified by the contracting parties. Parks v. O'Connor, 70 T. 377, 8 S. W. 104.

A contract partly in writing and partly oral which stipulates for a prohibited rate of interest is in violation of the statute. Dunman v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 499.

The omission of the words "rate of" from the words "bear interest at the rate of per annum from " was filled by drawing a line through the blank after the words "rate of" with a pen, if the note be regarded by reason thereof as containing a patent ambiguity, it should be construed as indicating an essential erasure of the entire interest clause and to show that no interest was to be paid. Couturie v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

Art. 4980. [3104] Contracts for greater per cent void.—All written contracts whatsoever, which may in any way, directly or indirectly, violate the preceding article by stipulating for a greater rate of interest than ten per cent per annum shall be void and of no effect for the amount or value of the interest only; but the principal sum of money or value of the contract may be received and recovered. [Id.]

15. Compensation for detention of property.
16. Payment of interest in advance.
17. Computation.
18. Rights and remedies of parties.
19. — Application of payments.
20. Stoppage or counterclaim.
22. — Party assuming to pay note or loan.
23. — Junior mortgagee.
24. — Recovery.
25. Penalties and forfeitures.
26. Who may plead.
27. Waiver and estoppel.

1. In general.—The restriction in this statute to written contracts is held a violation of section 11 of article 16 of the constitution. The constitution reads "all contracts," etc. Dunman v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 499.

This is the only statute which declares a contract for a greater rate of interest than 10 per cent, void and has no reference to any other to written contracts. Quinlan's Estate v. Smye, 21 C. A. 156, 50 S. W. 1068.

2. What law governs.—A foreign loan company engaging in business without a permit held bound by usury laws of state, though the contract provided for performance in another state, where it would be valid. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67.

A foreign loan association, doing business in Texas under a permit from the state, by reasons of a th party interest it should be performed in Texas, subjects the contract to the usury laws of Texas. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 19 C. A. 52, 47 S. W. 71.

A usurious building and loan note negotiated in Texas is governed by the laws of that state, though executed and performed in another state, by the laws of which it is not usurious. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n v. Bessonette (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 52.

3. Intent.—The intent to take usury constitutes the offense. Henry v. Sansom, 21 S. W. 70, 2 C. A. 150.

4. Loan in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.

5. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.

6. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.

7. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.

8. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.

9. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.

10. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.

11. Loans in general.—Interest cannot be charged upon a premium on a loan made by a building and loan association to a member thereof. Such a contract is usurious, and the vice is not cured by an entry made by the association, after foreclosure sale, of a credit to the borrower of a sufficient sum to show usury, when the amount of the excess is insignificant. Feigthal v. Cotton State Bldg. Co., 25 C. A. 390, 61 S. W. 423.

Where, in accumulating interest, the amount charged is to a small extent greater than allowed by law and is so made by mistake, it is not usurious. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 462, 39 S. W. 1102.
Art. 4980 INTEREST

(Title 72)

Contract for the payment of premiums and interest on a loan held usurious, where the premiums and interest together exceed the statutory rate of interest. Nat. Loan & Inv. Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67; Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Go forth, 57 S. W. 700.

A deduction by a loan association of a "bonus" of $120 from a loan of $1,200, and a charge of $10 a month interest, held to render the loan usurious. People's Building, Loan & Inv. Co. v. Keller, 20 C. A. 616, 50 S. W. 132.

Where the evidence of a borrower as to facts surrounding a loan claimed to be usurious were not contradicted, it will be assumed that the association knew and agreed to the transactions as testified to by him.

Where a pretended subscription to stock was a scheme to avoid the usury laws, and such contract and the contract for the loan were one transaction, the contract is usurious. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Reily (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 561.

Upon the maturity of the borrower before the maturity of his stock, and payment of a loan admitted to be usurious, the association is entitled to only the original sum loaned, less the interest paid and the value of the stock at the date of withdrawal. Rogers v. People's Building, Loan & Saving Ass'n (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 382.

A contract for loan held usurious on its face. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Go forth, 94 T. 259, 59 S. W. 571.

A loan is not usurious because it draws the highest legal rate of interest from a time preceding the delivery of the money to the borrower, where it was set aside for his use at such time. Geisberg v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 478.

Facts held to show that certain stock issued was fictitious, and the whole transaction a cover for usury, and to warrant a judgment cancelling a mechanic's lien securing the loan, the amount paid thereon did not exceed the principal. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 587.

A contract to pay 10 per cent. interest per annum on principal, interest, and cost of taking up a judgment on a debtor's land, including a note for $500 as further security, held usurious. Naunbar & Gobich, 25 C. A. 107, 59 S. W. 17.

Where a building and loan association, in defense of an action to cancel a loan as usurious, set up a second contract as purging the original of usury, it was error to charge that the jury was only the plaintiff, if they found the original contract was usurious. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Jones, 94 T. 497, 62 S. W. 741.

Where the by-laws of a building and loan association provided that borrowers should pay a certain interest, together with the premium on the loan, held the premium should be considered in arriving at a conclusion as to whether such loan was usurious. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 318, 63 S. W. 562.

By-laws of a building and loan association, and the contract for a loan thereunder, construed to call for more than 12 per cent. per annum interest, and hence to be usurious. Ibid.

To hold stock subscription to building association on making a loan usurious, it must appear that the association intended that the borrower should not in reality become a stockholder. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1071.

Evidence examined, and held, that a subscription for stock, in a building association, an application for a loan, etc., were but one transaction, and a mere scheme to cover usurious interest. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daughterty, 27 C. A. 430, 68 S. W. 131.

To hold a loan approved, to secure a mortgage, to agree to pay, not only legal interest, but also a judgment on which he and the lender are liable, does not render the loan usurious. Southern Trading Co. v. State Nat. Bank, 35 C. A. 5, 79 S. W. 644.

5. Bills, notes and other instruments for the payment of money.—If a note is offered for discount by the maker, it is usurious between him and the party to whom it is delivered, the difference from the face value is greater than the highest legal per cent. Otherwise, if the transaction was a sale of the note. Crowler v. Stephens, 2 App. C. C. § 302.

K. loaned H. money on notes bearing 10 per cent. Interest to maturity and 12 per cent. thereafter. The 10 per cent. attorney fees allowed for 10 per cent. The note was placed with an attorney for collection; and as the same time and as a part of the same transaction H. contracted to ship to K. during the cotton season, for sale on a commission of 2½ per cent. to K., one bale of cotton for every $10 loaned, or in default thereof to pay K. at the end of the season $1.25 for each bale he failed to ship, as liquidated damages. The claim made being only for the amount of the note, and the loan being made for the purpose of promoting consignments of cotton, held not usurious. Huddleston v. Kemppner, 1 C. A. 211, 21 S. W. 946.

Usury as to part of a note taints the whole transaction. Ledbetter v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 840.

Note given to building and loan association for balance due, with maximum legal interest, is usurious, when stock taken by the association was credited at less than withdrawal value in making up the balance. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Sesbe (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 875.

Under the evidence, held, that a note was usurious. First Nat. Bank v. Ledbetter, 17 C. A. 613, 42 S. W. 1018.

A stipulation in a note held to impose a penalty to enforce prompt payment only, and not to be usurious. Parks v. Lubbock (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 466.

A note providing for highest legal rate of interest and for exchange is not usurious, where the exchange was not made for interest on a usurious contract. Stuart v. Tenison Bros. Saddlery Co., 21 C. A. 530, 53 S. W. 83.

A note which provides for the highest legal rate of interest, and also that, on default, the principal, together with delinquent taxes on property conveyed to secure the note, should become due, is not usurious. Id.

Where a deed of trust securing a note recited that they were in extension of a prior note to which the holder was subrogated, in an action thereon it was error to hold that the holder of the deed was not entitled to interest on account of usury therein; 8330

A note binding the maker to pay $235 for a loan of $200 held to be a contract stipulating for usurious interest, within this article. Rosetti v. Losano, 96 T. 57, 70 S. W. 264.

Payment of usurious interest by one other than maker of note, calling for such interest, held a payment by maker. Lasater v. First Nat. Bank, 96 T. 345, 72 S. W. 1057.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, a finding that it provided for the payment of usurious interest, and that coupons and notes were given for interest, held justified. Norris v. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co., 88 S. W. 500.

In an action by a national bank to collect a note, evidence held sufficient to authorize the presumption of payment of usurious interest. Trabue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a verdict for the cancellation of the note and the deed of trust on the ground of usury. Interstate Savings & Trust Co. v. Hornsby (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 960.

6. — Renewal note.—When usurious interest is included in a note given in renewal of a note, the vics of usury will inhere in it and in all subsequent renewals of the note. National Bank v. Wayburn, 81 T. 57, 16 S. W. 554.

A recovery of the original indebtedness held warranted in a suit on renewal notes calling for usurious interest. Calm v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

Lawful interest on an indebtedness held not recoverable in a suit on usurious renewal notes. Id.

A renewal contract to pay money carrying into it an usurious agreement of the former contract is usurious and illegal. Id.

7. Contracts.—Every contract, without regard to its form, which stipulates for a higher rate of interest than allowed by law is usurious. International B. & L. Ass'n v. Biering, 56 T. 476, 25 S. W. 622, 26 S. W. 39; Duncan v. Hough (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 945.

When by the terms of the contract payment by a time certain may avoid usury, the contract's terms is such case being a contract for a time certain only to avoid the default. Crider v. San Antonio Real Estate, Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 13 C. A. 399, 37 S. W. 237; Id., 99 T. 597, 35 S. W. 1047.

An agreement in renewal of a usurious contract, and bearing maximum legal interest, is usurious, where the interest paid under the first contract is not deducted from the principal. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Seboe (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 875.

A contract for the usurious interest due on another contract is also usurious. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 319, 63 S. W. 552.

To determine the question of usury in a contract, it must be tried by the statutory limitation of 10 per cent. per annum, for the use, forbearance or detention of the money for one year. G. & H. Inv. Co. v. Grimes, 94 T. 609, 63 S. W. 861.

A contract for the repayment of the purchase money of certain land, bought by defendant with money furnished by plaintiff, held usurious. Burkitt v. McDonald, 26 C. A. 426, 64 S. W. 694.

In an action to recover usury, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that cotton contracts, notes payable on the loan, were given to secure them. Waxahachie Loan & Trust Co. v. Turner, 32 C. A. 281, 74 S. W. 792.

Where a wife, subsequent to 1882, promised in writing to pay her husband's note, which was barred by limitations, and which contained a promise to pay interest at 12 per cent., the executing a new and distinct liability, was subject to the usury law in force at that time, and no interest subsequent to her promise could be allowed; but, the plea of usury being personal to the one asserting it she could not claim any benefit of that which was done by others, and hence interest to the date of such new promise was properly allowed. Vinson v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1095.

Where a lease of personality was uncertain as to whether it provided for usury, plaintiff could not recover a penalty, nor could defendant, in a cross-action, recover an alleged balance due. Stewart v. Lattner (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 651.

If a contract is usurious on its face, any amount of interest collected thereon constitutes usury. Id.

Where a note bearing the highest legal rate of interest provides for an additional percentage for fees in case it is collected by attorneys, such percentage cannot be recovered, as usurious, where it has actually been paid for such collection. Stuart v. Tenison Bros. Saddlery Co., 21 C. A. 550, 55 S. W. 52.

An agreement between the parties to a mortgage for the mortgagee's payment of a certain tax, under threatened legislation which was not adopted, held not to render the mortgage usurious. Norris v. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co., 95 T. 176, 82 S. W. 500.

A mortgage providing for interest at less than the maximum legal rate held not usurious on its face by reason of a provision requiring the borrower to repay money paid by the lender for taxes and assessments. Id.

A mortgage providing not to apply to obligations for the payment of taxes. Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 423, 93 S. W. 141.

9. Extension of time on contract.—A debtor desiring an extension of time gave a note for the principal and interest then due, adding thereto legal conventional interest on the entire amount up to the time to which the extension was given. After maturity the note was payable 1 per cent. per annum. In case of suit. Held not to be usurious. Miner v. Paris Exchange Bank, 53 T. 559.

Where, as a consideration for giving time on a loan, a sum in excess of the legal interest on the agreed price is added to the principal, the contract is usurious. Fisher v. 21 S. 90, 3 C. A. 81.

When a renewal or extension contract to pay money carried into it an agreement of the first contract for the payment of usurious interest, the renewal was also rendered illegal, and payments of interest received thereunder were properly applied in the reduction of the principal. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

An original promise to pay interest at a legal rate is not impaired by a subsequent promise to pay usurious interest. Krause v. Pope, 78 T. 478, 14 S. W. 618.

If a contract for the loan of money, as made, is not usurious, the fact that the settlement before maturity, by applying to the extinguishment of the debt the value the amount of certain stock which it was necessary to subscribe for in order to obtain the loan, may show that more has been paid than the loan would amount to, with lawful interest, would not render it so. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Bryan, 21 C. A. 565, 54 S. W. 277.

A subsequent usurious agreement held not to invalidate a loan in the hands of one who took under a contract subrogating him to the rights of the original creditor. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 518, 65 S. W. 552.

Where indebtedness was not contract, but the contract of renewal was, no interest may be recovered upon such indebtedness, as usury is not the excess above what might lawfully be collected, but is the entire amount of the interest. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

A contract held not rendered invalid by a subsequent usurious transaction in connection therewith, so that the amount of an original indebtedness may be recovered, though suit is on notes given in renewal, the consideration for which in addition to the renewal was the giving of usurious interest. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

12. Judgment paid with usurious loan.—The mortgage sought to be foreclosed being usurious, held, that the judgment which was paid from the proceeds of the loan secured by the mortgage could be enforced where the pleadings showed plaintiff entitled to recover the same. Choult (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 157.

Where a debtor made a usurious contract with one who took up a judgment against his land, he would still be liable for the amount of the judgment, with interest and costs, though the contract was avoided as usurious. Nesbit v. Goodrich, 25 C. A. 28, 60 S. W. 917.

13. Payment of Installments of principal.—Where monthly payments of interest and premium on loan and shares of its stock held as collateral exceed 10 per cent. a year on amount loaned, the contract is usurious. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67; People's Building Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Kellor, 20 C. A. 616, 50 S. W. 183.

A contract whereby the principal of a loan, and 10 per cent. interest for 10 years, are added, and the amount divided into equal monthly installments, held usurious. Galveston Inv. & Gr. Co. (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 457.

A contract to erect a house for a price to be paid in installments held not a contract to loan money, subject to the usury laws. Cain v. Texas Building & Loan Ass'n, 21 C. A. 61, 51 S. W. 879.

Charge of interest for full amount of loan during term, notwithstanding payments on principal, held usurious. Sproule v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 693.

Contract held not usurious in providing that payments on stock should apply as of the date they were made, thus reducing the principal. Geiberg v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 478.

Where money is borrowed from a building company at the full legal rate of interest, and the borrower is required to subscribe for stock to be paid in monthly installments, an agreement that payments on the stock shall be payments on the loan, when the loan is finally paid, does not make the contract usurious. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 805.

Where an agreement of debtors was to pay an existing indebtedness in monthly installments half of each installment to be applied on the principal and the other half on the interest for two years, at which time the sum on interest was to be reduced, and the reduction added to the payment of the principal, and the installment payment of interest in the second year at the stipulated amount would have the effect of exacting more than 10 per cent. on the principal owing at that time, the contract was usurious and illegal. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

14. Commissions.—A commission on a loan on which is paid the highest legal rate of interest does not make the transaction usurious, when the person to whom the commission is paid is the agent of the borrower. Stuart v. Tenison Bros. Saddlery Co. 21 C. A. 530, 53 S. W. 83.

A contract, collateral to a note bearing interest, providing for commissions for sale of cotton, held not usurious unless made for the purpose of concealing a design to charge usurious interest on the loan. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 466, 95 S. W. 1102.

15. Compensation for detention of property.—Where the price of property is fixed by agreement, compensation charged for its detention is interest, and, if in excess of the lawful rate, usurious. Galveston & H. Inv. Co. v. Grymes (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 467.
16. Payment of interest in advance.—Deducting interest on a note in advance held not usurious, where the note bore interest only from maturity. Webb v. Fahey (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 19.

A contract is not usurious simply because the highest rate of interest is charged, which is payable monthly in advance, and the over-due interest bears interest. Gelbsg v. Mutual Building Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 478.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that a loan of money stipulated for 18 per cent. interest payable in advance, and was therefore usurious. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 764.

17. Computation.—Rule for computing interest to determine usury, where the right to declare the debt due in case of default is contained in the contract, defined. Seymour Opera House Co. v. Thurston, 18 C. A. 417, 45 S. W. 815.

18. Rights and remedies of parties.—The penalty for stipulating in the contract for usurious interest on the loan, the interest only. The principal sum or value of the contract may be received and recovered. Clayton v. Ingrey (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 881.

An accommodation maker of a note given to a national bank can set up the defense of usury to defeat the recovery of interest. Trabue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

Remedy available on payment of usury to national bank stated. Id.

19. Application of payments.—Payments, in the absence of a contrary intent, will be applied to extinguishment of interest. Hampton v. Deans, 4 T. 455; Hearn v. Cutberth, 10 T. 216; Watson v. Mims, 56 T. 481. But if usurious interest is stipulated, payments will be applied to the principal. Stanley v. Westrop, 16 T. 200.

When money is applied to a usurious interest, if the payment is made in liquidation of that portion of the contract which is legal, and the bank may afterwards avoid the penalty fixed by act of congress for collecting usurious interest by relinquishing claim for it. If a partial payment on the debt is, by agreement, applied to the payment of the payment of usurious interest, the locus penitentiae cannot exist. Stout v. Bank, 69 T. 384, 8 S. W. 808.

It has been held by the supreme court that payment on a contract affected with usury is payment upon the principal, applied by the law, notwithstanding it was paid and received as a payment of interest. Int. Nat. Bldg. Ass'n v. Biering, 86 T. 476, 25 S. W. 622, 28 S. W. 59.

Payments on usurious mortgage amounting to face of loan, however applied by the loan company, held payment in full. National Loan & Investment Co. v. Stone (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 67.

A borrowing member held entitled to have usurious interest paid and stock credits on his loan, thus entitling him to a cancellation of the debt and the security on payment of the balance, within a withdrawal clause in the by-laws. Crenshaw v. Hedrick, 19 C. A. 65, 47 S. W. 71.

Since the part of a note providing for usurious interest is void, the maker is not confined to his statutory right to recover double interest paid, but may apply such payments on the principal debt. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Bessonette (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 62.

A special finding that plaintiff purchased stock merely to obtain a loan held not to require application of amount paid thereto as to the principals debt as illegal interest. Leary v. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n, 58 T. 1, 19 S. W. 632.

Arbitrations and by-laws of an association held to entitle a borrowing stockholder to have payments on stock applied in payment of a usurious loan. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Keller, 20 C. A. 616, 50 S. W. 183.

In an action on a note, sureties may plead usury, and have the usurious interest paid credited as a payment on the principal of the debt. Roberts v. Coffin, 22 C. A. 127, 53 S. W. 597.

Renewal purchase-money notes, with renunciation of title to vendor and assumption of relation of tenant, being void for usury, payments of rental should be applied to reduce original debt. Arnold v. Macdonald, 22 C. A. 487, 55 S. W. 259.

Where a loan of money is made at a usurious interest, all payments of interest will be credited on the principal of the debt. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 430, 65 S. W. 131.

Where a building and loan contract was usurious, the court properly charged plaintiff with the amount of the loan and credited him the value of the stock and the sums paid on interest and premium. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Marston, 39 C. A. 100, 69 S. W. 1034.

Sureties on a note held entitled to a reduction of principal to a certain amount because of usury. Titterington v. Murrell (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 810.

Where a contract stipulates for usurious interest, all interest payments in excess of 10 per cent. on final settlement will be applied to the principal. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 704.

Where usury is set up as a defense, the court, if asked, may apply the sums paid as a credit on the principal, but is not warranted in so doing, where only an abatement of further Interest is sought. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

20. Set-off or counterclaim.—In Huggins v. National Bank, 6 C. A. 33, 24 S. W. 256, it was held by a court of civil appeals that the payment of usurious interest to a national bank constituted a set-off or counterclaim as a set-off of a principal of a note on which suit is brought, following Barnet v. Bank, 58 U. S. 555, 55 L Ed. 212; Bank v. Dearing, 91 U. S. 29, 23 L. Ed. 196; Driesback v. Bank, 104 U. S. 52, 26 L. Ed. 658; Stennett v. Bank, 101 U. S. 397, 26 L. Ed. 107; Bank v. Morgan, 132 U. S. 141, 15 Sup. Ct. 27, 39 L. Ed. 313.

The right to set up usury in notes secured by prior liens is not defeated by taking a mortgage subject to such prior liens. Johnson v. Lasker Real Estate Ass'n, 21 S. W. 961, 2 C. A. 494.
Usurious interest paid on a note to a national bank cannot be pleaded as a set-off or contribution against the principal of the note. Commanche National Bank v. Dauberty (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 413.

Where a note for the purchase price of land was transferred to a building and loan association, which made a usurious contract with the purchasers relative to the loan, and subsequently the association transferred the loan to a third party, held, that the purchasers should be credited with the amount paid to the association on premium, interest, and sinking fund under such usurious agreement. State Nat. Loan & Trust Co. v. Fulfer, 26 C. A. 318, 68 S. W. 652.

Whether a building contract bearing legal interest is shown to be but part of a transaction for procuring a usurious loan from a building association, the association, as assignee of such contract, cannot enforce it without respect to the usury in the loan. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 430, 68 S. W. 131.

Where a purchaser for value of an indebtedness and a mechanic's lien contract securing it had no knowledge or notice of any facts or agreements that would render the original agreement for the loan usurious, and was induced to make the purchase by representations of the debtor that the debt was valid, his rights as a purchaser would not be affected by any illegality or usury existing. Caln v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 762.

22. — Party assuming to pay note or loan.—One assuming to pay a loan is not relieved from any part of the contract by reason of its being tainted with usury. Johnson v. Association, 2 C. A. 499, 21 S. W. 961; Maloney v. Eaheart, 81 T. 284, 16 S. W. 1030; Voculovitch v. Midwest. Bldg. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 1012.

A party assuming a note as a part of the consideration of his purchase cannot plead usury against it. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Price, 18 C. A. 370, 46 S. W. 92.

A party who assumes as a part of the purchase money an existing debt cannot plead usury against it. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Sellers, 19 C. A. 201, 46 S. W. 370.

One who, as part consideration of purchase, agrees to pay a certain obligation held estopped to plead usury. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Price, 18 C. A. 370, 46 S. W. 92.

A purchaser from mortgagor, assuming payment of mortgage, cannot set up usury as a defense. People's Building, Loan & Savings Ass'n v. Sellers, 19 C. A. 201, 46 S. W. 370.

Usury cannot be pleaded by a purchaser who assumes a usurious debt as part of the purchase price. North Texas Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n v. Hay, 23 C. A. 95, 56 S. W. 580.

A subsequent purchaser of mortgaged property, who assumed payment of a mortgage debt, cannot raise the question of usury in the original contract. Southern Home Building & Loan Ass'n v. Wipana, 24 C. A. 644, 69 S. W. 265.

23. — Junior Mortgagee.—A mortgage to secure a debt of which a large part was usury was settled by a conveyance of land. A junior mortgagee by suit set up the usury in the first mortgage and was allowed to redeem for the debt without interest. Maloney v. Eaheart, 81 T. 281, 16 S. W. 1030.

One who takes second mortgage from one estopped to pay usury to the first is also estopped. Building & Loan Ass'n of Dakota v. Price, 18 C. A. 370, 46 S. W. 92.

A surety who pays a note tainted with usury, having knowledge of the usury when he does so, cannot recover the amount of the usurious interest from his principal. Boren v. Boren, 23 C. A. 241, 68 S. W. 184.

Persons entitled to recovery penalty for usury paid national bank limited to those who pay or their representatives. Travue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

25. Penalties and forfeitures.—The entire amount of the interest is forfeited and uncollectible. Ramsey v. Thomas, 14 C. A. 431, 33 S. W. 259.

In an action to have a debt declared paid by the application of payments of usurious interest, it is error to charge that a contract for interest over 10 per cent. will cause a forfeiture of all interest. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Rawlins (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 805.

Under the statute, the taint of usury forfeits any further interest, and thereafter leaves only the principal as what is actually owing to the creditor. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

26. Who may plead.—A bona fide creditor of an insolvent debtor may urge the defense of usury against the claim of another creditor. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. v. Mas99, 27 S. W. 781, 8 C. A. 184.

The maker of a usurious note, renewing the same to one who had purchased it at solicitation and in ignorance of the taint of usury, is estopped from asserting that defense in an action against him on the note. Smith v. White (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 809.

Art. 4981. [3105] Judgments, rate of interest on.—All judgments of the several courts of this state shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from and after the date of the judgment, except where the contract upon which the judgment is founded bears a specified interest greater than six per cent per annum and not exceeding ten per cent per annum, in which case the judgment shall bear the same rate of interest specified in such contract and after the date of such judgment. [1d.]

Former law.—The act of April, 1891 (Acts 1891, p. 87), did not affect the law therefor- in force as to conventional interest. Williams v. National Bank (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 171.

The rate of interest on a judgment is not affected by a subsequent statute reducing the rate. Railway Co. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 477.

Judgment on liquor dealer's bond.—This article, when construed with Art. 4973 and the cases of Johnson v. Jolls, 97 T. 493, 79 S. W. 513, does not apply to judgments recovered for breaches of conditions of liquor dealer's bond. Hawthorne v. State, 39 C. A. 123, 87 S. W. 840.

A judgment in a suit on a retail liquor dealer's bond should not bear interest, as it is in effect a judgment for penalties. White v. Manning, 46 C. A. 398, 102 S. W. 1163.

Judgment on contract.—A judgment not expressing the rate of interest will bear interest at the legal rate. Townsend v. Smith, 20 T. 465, 70 Am. Dec. 400.

When the rate of interest is not specified in the contract, the judgment will carry with it only the legal rate then existing. Bush v. Wilson, 23 T. 148; Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 588.

The interest due on the principal sum at the date of the judgment, when included in it, also bears interest. Whittaker v. Wallace, 2 App. C. C. § 861.

Judgment upon city warrants.—Judgment in an action against a city for an amount due on warrants held, under this article, properly made to bear interest. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 53 C. A. 561, 114 S. W. 909.

Under this article a judgment against a city for a sum due on city warrants for current expenses or the year when payment bears interest may be exacted out of funds then applicable, or which may thereafter become applicable, to the payment of the warrants in numerical order, though the charter of the city specifically provides that warrants shall not bear interest. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 650.

Judgment on note.—Under this article judgment in an action on a note should bear interest at the rate of 10 per cent. stipulated for in the note. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 209.

One who purchased lumber and assumed certain purchase-money notes of the seller was only liable on the notes for the amount thereof, together with the 10 per cent. interest stipulated therein which had accrued to the date of the judgment in favor of the seller, and 6 per cent. interest on such aggregate amount, instead of 10 per cent., the interest stipulated based on the agreement to assume payment of the notes, and not on the notes themselves.

Judgment for conversion of notes.—An action for conversion of notes is not an action based on them, so that judgment for plaintiff would bear the same rate as the notes, pursuant to this article, and a judgment providing for interest in excess of 6 per cent., the rate provided thereby for judgments in general, violates such section. Wilkinson v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 691.

Attorney's fee.—Attorney's fees included in a judgment bear interest at the same rate as the principal sum. Chowning v. Chowning, 3 App. C. C. § 154; Carver v. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co., 29 C. A. 434, 68 S. W. 711.

Interest on allowance to receiver.—An order making a receiver a partial allowance for compensation, which interest is allowed upon which this article is based.

Jones v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 47 C. A. 430, 106 S. W. 328.

Where the court made an order fixing the allowance of a receiver to be paid out of the earnings of the property, and there were earnings sufficient to pay the allowance, but instead of taking the amount, the receiver used it for the improvement of the property, he is not entitled to interest on the amount allowed him and used as above stated.

Judgment for recovery of usury.—A judgment in an action to recover double usurious interest bears interest as any other judgment. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 766.

Judgment held by trustee in bankruptcy.—Trustee's trustee in bankruptcy held not entitled to interest on a judgment for the amount of community property of bankrupt invested in improvements erected on separate property of bankrupt's wife. Collins v. Bryan, 49 C. A. 86, 83 S. W. 483.

Art. 4982. May recover double usurious interest paid.—If usurious interest, as defined by the preceding articles, shall thereafter be received or collected upon any contract, either written or verbal, the person or persons paying same, or their legal representatives, may, by action of debt, instituted in any court of this state having jurisdiction thereof, in the county of the defendant's residence, or in the county where such usurious interest shall have been received or collected, or where said contract has been entered into, or where parties paying same reside when such contract was made, within two years after such payment, recover from the person, firm or corporation receiving the same double the amount of such usurious interest so received and collected. [Acts 1907, p. 277.]

Change in law.—Prior to the act of 1892, only the excess of interest agreed upon above the highest rate allowed by law could be recovered back. Garza v. Sullivan, 10 C. A. 3335.
A. 880.

amount by unlawful contract was unlawful under the constitution, plaintiff was entitled to recover a penalty imposed by statute on persons receiving usury, though the statute was passed after the contract was made. Southern Home Building & Loan Ass'n v. Thompson, 24 C. A. 76, 58 S. W. 202.

This article has not been repealed by the amendatory act of 1907 as to offenses committed prior to the time when the act of 1907 took effect. Stewart v. Lattner, 53 C. A. 330, 116 S. W. 861.

Nature and ground of remedy.—A person suing to recover a penalty under this statute must bring himself strictly within its terms. Whittlow v. Culwell, 16 C. A. 266, 40 S. W. 642.

If the building and loan association had avoided receiving, in the interest payments, any interest in excess of 10 per cent. on the principal actually existing at the time, the penalty would not have attached. In other words a party, after making a usurious contract, may refrain from taking more interest than is allowed, and avoid the penalty.

This has no reference to the other rule which entitles a party to have usurious interest paid credited as principal. The effect of this rule is to allow a recovery for double a limited number of payments of interest. Mathews v. Interstate B. & L. Ass’n (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 666.

A written contract is not affected by an oral agreement for usurious interest, so as to entitle the party paying the usurious interest to recover double the amount paid as interest, the distinction between the amount of usurious interest paid on the written instrument under the oral agreement should be credited on the principal of the written instrument. Quinlan’s Estate v. Smye, 21 C. A. 156, 59 S. W. 1068.

If the contract was unlawful when made, under the constitution the legislature could affirm the contract after the penalty was made. Southern Home B. & L. Ass’n v. Thompson, 24 C. A. 76, 58 S. W. 202.

Although the first payments are not themselves usurious, yet if the contract as an entirety is usurious the taint of usury will run to all the interest and a double recovery had for all interest paid. American B. & Ass’n v. Daugherty, 27 C. A. 450, 65 S. W. 125.

The right of action given by this article to one who has paid usurious interest, accrues where such interest is paid in property. Taylor v. Sturgis, 29 C. A. 270, 68 S. W. 538.

An action to recover usurious interest payments under this article held a civil action, and the judgment rendered a civil recovery. Id.

Where one sues to recover usurious interest paid by him, he is not entitled to sue for interest on the amount due at time of filing suit; because the suit is for a penalty. Id.

The burden of proof of one paying usurious interest against the payee, to recover the statutory penalty, stated. Long v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 345.

A contract provided that defendant had leased from plaintiff certain goods valued at $2,651.95, for which defendant agreed to pay as rental $260, with 10 per cent. interest per month in the event that he failed to understand the amounting to the value of the goods they should become his property. Plaintiff having paid the entire amount, together with $235.23 interest, sought to recover double that amount as a penalty for usury, and defendant filed a general denial and a cross-action, seeking to recover the excess, alleging that the contract was usurious. Held, the plaintiff was entitled to recover double the interest, the plaintiff was bound to pay 10 per cent. per annum on the whole amount, or whether he was only required to pay interest on the monthly installments of $250; and hence plaintiff could not recover a penalty for alleged usury, nor could defendant recover the alleged balance under his cross-action. Stewart v. Lattner (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 631.

A contract under which a money lender received 10 per cent. interest and also a cash payment of $20 on a loan of $257 held usurious, entitled the borrower to recover double the amount of any interest he had paid. Holcomb v. Ely (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 666.

Amount and extent of penalties.—A person suing under this article is entitled to recover double the whole amount of interest paid, and not double the excess over what might lawfully have been contracted for and received. Smith v. Chilton, 98 T. 447, 39 S. W. 267.

In an action by the administrator to recover double the amount of usurious interest paid on a contract, and to cancel a note, held, that an exception to a claim by the holder of the note for taxes paid on decedent’s property securing the same was properly overruled. Cassidy v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1023.

This article imposes the principal debt if paid, but the penalty for usury can be recovered only on what remains after extinguishment of the debt by application of such paid interest. Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Peighlal, 28 C. A. 575, 67 S. W. 524.

For recovering or collecting usurious interest the penalty is double the amount of the interest received on the note. Clayson v. Ingrum (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 831.

If a contract is usurious on its face, then any amount of interest collected constitutes usury, and the defendant is entitled to recover double the amount so collected as interest. Stewart v. Lattner (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 631.

This article does not limit the amount recoverable to double the amount of inter-
"Usurious interest."—The phrase "usurious interest" in this article means that double the amount of all the interest paid (if usurious) may be recovered, and not double the excess of the interest over the lawful rate. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 274, 118 S. W. 765.

Persons entitled to enforce penalties.—The recovery of the penalty is confined to the person paying it, or his legal representative. Therefore the sureties are not entitled to demand it. They can plead usury and have the principal of the debt credited with the usurious interest paid. Roberts v. Coffin, 22 C. A. 127, 53 S. W. 597.

The right of action for double the amount of the usurious interest paid is assignable as to authorize the assignee to maintain suit therefor. It is immaterial whether the usurious interest was paid in property or money. Taylor v. Sturgis, 29 C. A. 270, 68 N. Y. 538.

Continuing partner held entitled to recover penalty provided by statute for payment of usurious interest on firm note. Lasater v. First Nat. Bank, 96 T. 345, 72 S. W. 1057.

Payment of certain notes by surety held not to give the principal a cause of action to recover a penalty under the federal statutes relative to action of usury by national bank. Lasater v. First Nat. Bank, 40 C. A. 237, 88 S. W. 429.

Persons liable.—A corporation to whom usurious notes were indorsed, and who received the usurious interest, was alone liable for the penalty. Webb v. Galveston & H. Inv. Co., 32 C. A. 516, 76 S. W. 327.

Recovery is only allowed against the party "receiving or collecting" the interest. Where plaintiff borrowed from defendant $235, and gave his note for $274, and cotton contracts to secure same and at different times paid defendant $203.50, which was endorsed on the note, and defendant assigned third party, inasmuch as the payments did not amount to the principal sum borrowed, the defendant had no interest and plaintiff could not recover from him the statutory penalty. Western Bank & T. Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 465, 93 S. W. 1194.

Defendant paid the plaintiffs $5,900 to the plaintiffs taking their note secured by deed of trust of lands, and for one year and eight months collected interest at 12 per cent. per annum, amounting to $1,100, and at maturity the land covered by the deed of trust was sold, and a credit of $3,300 applied on the note which was then assigned without recourse, in addition the note by the assignee, the plaintiffs pleaded specially that the assignee ought not to recover interest, and did not ask a credit of usurious interest on the principal, but the assignee offered a credit on the principal debt of the amount of usurious interest and judgment was so entered. At about the same time the plaintiffs sued under this article to recover from the defendant double the usurious interest received by him. Held, that, notwithstanding the judgment, the assignee's act in allowing the credit on the principal was a voluntary credit, of which the defendant who had no title to the note and who was not a party to the assignee's action thereon, could take no benefit, so that he was liable for the statutory penalty. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 302.

Actions for penalties.—In an action for the penalty for usury, where the transaction is usurious on its face, it is error to direct a verdict for defendant. Mathews v. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 694.

The recovery provided for in this article can only be had in "an action" therefor and not merely by a purely defensive pleading setting up usury and payment. This right of recovery is a cause of action and not a mere defense and the statute which gives the right that it is to be recovered "in an action of debt." The defendant in such a case cannot recover the penalty claimed by him in any way without a basis in the pleading and that basis must be a plea sufficiently setting up a cross action against the plaintiff for the penalty. Rosetti v. Lozano, 96 T. 57, 70 S. W. 206.

In an action for penalty for usury and interest it is not an action for a tort required by Art. 2308, subd. 6, to be brought in county where injury is inflicted, but is an action for debt and must be brought in county of defendant's residence. Wartman v. Empire Loan Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 501.

All payments of the usurious interest upon which payment has been made must join in a suit to recover double the amount of interest paid, even if some have paid different amounts and some have paid none. Alston v. Orr (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 226.

The right of recovery under this article is a distinct cause of action, and not a mere defense, and a right of action thereunder did not exist in an action on a usurious note or until the debtor paid the judgment obtained therein, so that the failure to set up the usury in that action would not bar a subsequent action under the statute for the penalty. Long v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 345.

Where usurious interest is charged and actually paid and received, and the payment is intentionally appropriated by the parties to the discharge of the usurious interest, the right to the penalty of twice the amount of interest paid, given by this article, attaches at once, though the principal has not been paid. Taylor v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 202.

Limitations.—Even if the right to recover double usurious interest paid were available to a surety, he cannot set it up after the lapse of two years from the payment. Roberts v. Coffin, 22 C. A. 127, 53 S. W. 597.

Cross-section.—One who has paid usurious interest may, when he is sued on the debt, recover the statutory penalty for collecting such interest in a cross-action in such suit, or may, at his election, subsequently bring an independent suit for the penalty under this article. Long v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 345.

Compromise,—A right to sue for usurious interest paid may be the subject of compromise. Whitlow v. Culwell, 16 C. A. 856, 40 S. W. 642.

A compromise agreement in settlement of a usurious claim held not to purge the transaction of usury. Dunnan v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 499.

Presumption as to rate of interest.—See notes under Art. 3709.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.
Art. 4982

INTEREST

Parol evidence to establish usury.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 25. Interest on amount recovered.—In an action for double usurious interest payments under Arts. 4981, 4982, plaintiff held not entitled to recover interest until after judgment. Baum v. Daniels, 55 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 754.

Art. 4983. [3107] Usury, how pleaded.—No evidence of usurious interest shall be received on the trial of any case, unless the same shall be specially pleaded and verified by the affidavit of the party wishing to avail himself of such defense.

Where the maker of two notes permits judgment to be entered on one without pleading usury, he cannot have the amount of usurious interest in such judgment deducted from the second note. Henry v. Sansom, 21 S. W. 70, 2 C. A. 150.

Sufficiency of pleading.—Plaintiff's petition held not to show usury in the contract set out, or a scheme to evade the law against usury. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Bryan, 21 C. A. 563, 54 S. W. 372.

A petition that does not distinctly aver that plaintiff's decedent did in fact pay usurious interest or that the person alleged to have paid the interest was plaintiff's agent is defective. Cassidy v. Scottish Am. Mort. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1030.

Where defense of usury is set up as originating in one of two contracts sought to be enforced, it is error to treat both contracts as usurious. Harn v. American Mut. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n, 55 T. 73, 65 S. W. 176.

The answer of the maker of a note, when sued thereon, held, when not excepted to, sufficient to support a judgment for double the amount of usurious interest paid. Rosetti v. Lozano, 96 T. 57, 70 S. W. 294.

A petition to recover double the amount of usurious interest paid held required to allege when and to whom the interest was paid. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 466, 93 S. W. 1193.

Verification.—Where usury appears from the plaintiff's pleadings, it may be raised by exception not verified. Krause v. Pope, 78 T. 478, 14 S. W. 616.

A plea setting up payment of usurious interest must be sworn to before the question of usury can be inquired into on the facts. Cassidy v. Scottish-Am. Mort. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1030.

Under Art. 4982, which authorizes recovery of double the amount of usurious interest charged and received, and this article, held, that where a petition alleged that plaintiff executed his note, and that plaintiff does not remember the exact consideration received, "but believes and here alleges that the same was given in renewal of former loans," that on each of such former loans plaintiff was charged usurious interest, the exact amount of which he is unable to state, but that it was greatly in excess of 10 per cent. per annum, and that "if at such time plaintiff received any money, the advance interest * * * as also the Interest for such sums as was renewed in said note, was counted at the rate of said note at a rate greatly in excess of" 10 per cent. per annum, as this article applies to actions to recover the statutory penalty, the word "defense" meaning "cause of action," and the petition merely alleging plaintiff's belief as to the usurious interest, it was insufficient as a verified petition. Nocona Nat. Bank v. Bolton (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 242.

Notice.—Before commissioners' court can assume jurisdiction, where irrigating ditches and farms are owned jointly by two or more persons, such persons should be notified by some means beforehand. Cordero v. State (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 102.

Art. 4991. [3115] Certain waters declared state property.—The unappropriated waters of the ordinary flow and underflow and tides of every flowing river or natural stream, of all lakes, bays or arms of the gulf of Mexico, collections of still water, and of the storm, flood or rain waters of every river or natural stream, canyon, ravine, depression or watershed, within the state of Texas, the title to which has not already passed from the state, are hereby declared to be the property of the state, and the right to the use thereof may be acquired by appropriation in the manner and for the uses and purposes hereinafter provided. [Acts 1913, p. 358, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1913, p. 358, sec. 101, repeals chapters 1 and 2 of Title 73, Revised Statutes 1911, and all other laws in conflict.

DECISIONS RELATING TO PRIOR ACT

Cited, Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1092; Orange County v. Cow Bayou Canal Co., 143 S. W. 563; Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co., 154 S. W. 1176; American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co., 155 S. W. 336. See also: Drainage, etc., of land and water on land; lease for irrigation, etc., by corporations, for the purposes of irrigation to condemn lands necessary for their uses and purposes, violates Const. art. 1, § 17, providing that no person's property shall be taken, damaged, or destroyed for public use without adequate compensation being made, unless by his consent. Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 711.

These articles are not invalid because of the failure to provide a method for determining what portions of the state are arid, and what amount of land is necessary, since these questions are determinable by the courts, especially in view of the provision that the property should be condemned as is prescribed in the case of railroads, and the requirement of Art. 6506, applicable to railroads, that if the company and owner cannot agree upon the damages, the company shall state, in writing, the property sought to be condemned, the object is sought to be condemned, the name of the owner and residence, and file such statement with the county judge, to enable the court to determine if the property is necessary for the purposes of the corporation. Id.

Construction.—All the provisions of Act of 1855 (of which these articles are a part) apply to canal corporations whether formed under said act or under the general incorporation statute. It is true the purpose of supplying water to any of the industries named in said act. The rights conferred and duties imposed by said act upon canal corporations formed for the purposes of irrigation apply as well to a canal corporation formed under the general incorporation law "for the purpose of irrigation and milling, navigation and stock raising" as to one formed under the provision of said act for "irrigation, mining, milling, the construction of water works for cities and towns and for stock raising." Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 464.

These articles make a public grant for the purpose of reclaiming public school lands in the arid and semiarid regions by irrigation, and must be liberally construed to carry out the legislative purpose. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jaynes, 104 T. 355, 138 S. W. 670.

These articles assume that the legislature was familiar with the condition of the arid and semiarid portions of Texas, where a large part of the public school lands are located: and, in view of such assumption, the act discloses a legislative intent to provide for the acquisition of dam and reservoir sites on the public school lands as well as on all other lands when necessary for the creation of irrigation projects, and hence the act must be construed to give to irrigation corporations the right by implication to acquire easements for such sites on public school lands. Id.

What waters are public property.—Waters of the Pecos river are public property, subject to the easement of public owners, and a statutory appropriation of the excess is effected. Lee v. Locks (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 799.

Arid portion of the state.—The "arid portion of the state," to which the act applied, was defined to be "lands in that part of the state where rainfall was insufficient for agricultural purposes, and irrigation therefore necessary." This as to any given tract of land is a question of fact, to be determined as any other fact: nor have courts judicial knowledge as to such facts. McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 587, 22 S. W. 339.

The act was not inoperative because it does not declare what part of the territory of the state should be subject to its operation. Id.

Art. 4992. [3116] Purposes for which storm, flood or rain waters may be diverted.—The storm, flood or rain waters described in the preceding section may be held or stored by dams, in lakes or reservoirs, or diverted by means of canals, ditches, intakes, pumping plants, or other works, constructed by any person, corporation, association of persons, or irrigation district created under the statutes, for the purpose of irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, the construction and operation of waterworks for cities and towns, or for stock raising. [Id. sec. 2.]

Former law.—Section 2 of the act of 1889 did not operate and probably was not intended to operate, on the rights of riparian owners existing when the law was passed, but was intended to operate only on such interests as were in the state by reason of its ownership of lands bordering on rivers or natural streams. McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 95 T. 587, 22 S. W. 398.

Art. 4993. [3117] The ordinary flow and underflow of flowing streams may be diverted, etc.—The ordinary flow and underflow of the flowing water and tides of every natural river, or stream, within the state of Texas, may be taken or diverted from its natural channel by any of the persons named in the preceding section [Art. 4992] for any of the purposes stated therein; provided, that such ordinary flow and underflow shall not be diverted to the prejudice of the rights of any riparian owner without his consent, except after condemnation thereof in the manner hereinafter provided. The waters of any arm or inlet of the gulf of Mexico, or of any salt water bay, may be changed from salt to sweet or fresh water, and held or stored by dams, dikes or other structures, and taken or diverted by any of the persons named in this section for any of the purposes stated herein. [Id. sec. 3.]

Change in law.—The common-law rule that the ownership of riparian rights is inseparable from the ownership of the land was abrogated by this article; the statute recognizing the right of sale or condemnation of riparian rights. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

Priorities.—Riparian rights are superior to any right of appropriation under this article and Art. 4995 providing that as between appropriators the first time is the first in right. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1176.

Art. 4994. [3118] Purposes of appropriation.—The appropriation of water must be for irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, the construction and operation of waterworks for cities and towns, or for stock raising. Provided that so far as practicable and within the limits of the public welfare the water engineering board hereinafter created shall subordinate the appropriation of water for power to the appropriation of water for irrigation. [Id. sec. 4.]

See Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002.

Art. 4995. [3119] Priority of appropriation.—As between appropriators, the first in time is the first in right. [Id. sec. 5.]

Prescriptive right.—Where dam is built above another and water of stream diverted and emptied into stream below lower dam for over 20 years, owner of upper dam thereby acquired prescriptive right to maintain his dam and race. Cape v. Thompson, 21 C. A. 651, 53 S. W. 268.

Point to which water would flow held proper measure of extent of prescriptive right acquired to the same. Hall v. Carter, 33 C. A. 230, 77 S. W. 19.

Prescriptive right to use water for irrigation only embraces extent of use actually made of water while acquiring right. Id. Facts held to authorize a finding that defendant's prescriptive right to use water did not go to extent of use exercised by him in certain years. Id.

In an action to establish riparian rights, evidence held insufficient to show that defendants had acquired the right to appropriate one-half of the flow of a spring by prescription. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 T. 578, 86 S. W. 733, 70 L. R. A. 964, 107 Am. St. Rep. 655.

Where the holder of a contract easement for the taking of water from a stream for irrigation purposes always claimed under the contract, he could not acquire a right by prescription. Metcalf v. Faucher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1038.

Occupation of a mill site and water power privilege held not adverse. Briggs v. Avary, 47 C. A. 488, 106 S. W. 994.
Priorities.—Nonriparian lands acquire rights to water by statutory appropriation alone, and the first appropriator in time is first in right. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

Art. 4995a. State divided into water divisions.—The state shall be and is hereby divided into three water divisions, as follows:

All that portion of the state of Texas lying north of the twenty-ninth parallel, north latitude, and west of the one hundredth meridian west longitude, shall constitute water division No. 1.

All that portion of the state of Texas lying east of the ninety-seventh meridian west longitude, and south of the thirtieth parallel north latitude, together with all that portion lying north of the thirty-first parallel north latitude and east of the one hundredth meridian west longitude, shall constitute water division No. 2.

All that portion of the state of Texas not embraced in water division No. 1 or water division No. 2, as hereinbefore defined, shall constitute water division No. 3. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 4995b. Board of water engineers created.—There shall be and is hereby constituted a board of water engineers, to be composed of three members, one of whom shall be appointed from each of the respective water divisions described in the preceding section [Art. 4995a]. The members of such board shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and shall each hold office for a term of six years, and until his successor is appointed and qualified; provided, that at the first appointment made under this Act, one member shall be appointed to serve for two years, one member shall be appointed to serve for four years, and one member shall be appointed to serve for six years, to the end that one member may be appointed every two years after the passage of this Act. No person shall be appointed a member of the board who has not such technical knowledge and such practical experience and skill as shall fit him for the duties of the office. Each member of such board shall enter into bond to be approved by the governor, made payable to the governor and his successors in office, in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars, with not less than two personal sureties, or with one surety or guaranty company authorized to do business in this state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and for the delivery to the governor or other officer appointed by the governor to receive same, of all moneys, books and other property belonging to the state then in his hands or under his control, which shall be constitutional as a member of such board. The governor shall have power to remove at any time, for cause, any member of the state board of engineers, after said member shall have been given a full, free and public hearing by the governor, in his own behalf, before final action is taken, and shall appoint a successor. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 4995c. Salary.—Each member of such board shall receive a salary of thirty-six hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 4995d. Sessions, clerks, etc.—The members appointed shall meet at Austin and organize and elect one of their number chairman of said board. A majority of said board shall constitute a quorum to transact business. Said board shall appoint a secretary at a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, and may appoint such experts and employees as may be necessary to perform any duty that may be required of them by this Act, and fix their compensation. The secretary shall keep full and accurate minutes of all transactions and proceedings of said board and perform such duties as may be required by the board. The board shall have power to make all needful rules for its government and proceedings; and shall have a seal, the form of which it shall prescribe. The board shall be furnished with an office at Austin with necessary furniture, stationery, supplies, etc., at the expense of the state, to be paid for on the order of the governor. [Id. sec. 9.]
Art. 4995e. Expenses.—The members, secretary, experts, and employees of the board shall be entitled to receive from the state their necessary traveling expenses while traveling on the business of the board, to be paid out on the order of the governor, upon an itemized statement sworn to by the party who incurred the expense and approved by the board. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 4995f. May hold sessions at any place, etc.—The board may hold sessions at any place in this state when deemed necessary to facilitate the discharge of its duties. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 4996. [3120] Record of appropriations to be filed, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district who shall have heretofore constructed or partially constructed any dam, reservoir, lake, canal, ditch or other work for any of the purposes named in this Act, who have not heretofore done so, shall, within one year after this Act goes into effect, and not thereafter, file for record in the office of the county clerk of the county where the dam, lake, reservoir, pumping plant, intake, or headgate, ditch or canal may be situated, or to which said county may be attached for judicial purposes, and which shall be recorded by said clerk as hereinafter provided, a sworn statement in writing showing approximately the number of acres of land that will be irrigated, the name of such ditch or canal, the point at which the headgate thereof is situated, the size of the ditch or canal and width and depth, and the carrying capacity thereof in cubic feet per second of time, the name of said stream from which said water is taken, the time when the work was commenced, the name of the owner or owners thereof, together with a map showing the route of such ditch or canal; and when the water is to be taken from a reservoir, dam or lake, the statement above provided for shall show in addition to the ditch and other things provided for, the locality of the proposed dam, reservoir or lake, giving the names or numbers of the surveys upon which it is to be located, its holding capacity in cubic feet of water, the acreage and surface feet of land that will be covered, and the limits of such lake, reservoir or dam, and the area of the watershed from which the storm or rain water will be collected. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 4996a. County clerk shall record, etc.—The clerk of the county court shall promptly record the statements and maps, the filing and record whereof is provided for in section twelve [Art. 4996] hereof; and shall index the same as is provided for the indexing of deeds of conveyance to real estate; and shall receive for such filing and recording the same fees provided by law for the recording of deeds; and shall make and furnish certified copies of such instruments upon demand, in the same manner, and receive the same fees therefor, as is now provided for the making and supplying of certified copies of the records in his office. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 4996b. Statement to be filed with board, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, who shall have heretofore filed for record, or shall hereafter, in compliance with the provisions of section twelve [Art. 4996], file for record the sworn statement in writing as set out therein, shall, within one year after this Act shall take effect, file in the office of the board a certified copy of such sworn statement and a true copy of the map as described in section twelve [Art. 4996], and in addition thereto, a sworn statement showing what has been done under or in pursuance of such filing or statement;
what work or construction has been completed or partially completed; what portion of said work is in use and what portion is in possession and not in actual use; what amount or volume of water is being actually taken, diverted or used and for what purpose; and the amount or volume of water, as near as may be, that has been diverted, taken or used, and for what purpose, in each and every year since such original filing was made; and if such water was diverted, taken or used for irrigation, the statement shall show, as near as may be, a description and the area of lands being irrigated at said time, and the number and names of the users and consumers of water at said time. Every such statement shall be accompanied by a designation of the name and postoffice address to which any notice authorized or required under this Act shall be directed, and such address shall continue in force until written notice of a change in such address is filed with the board.

Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, who has, prior to the first day of January, 1913, actually taken or diverted any water and applied same to any of the uses and purposes named in this Act, and is at the date of the filing of the statement herein provided to be filed, continuing to use and apply such water, who shall, within one year after this Act shall go into effect, file with the board the sworn statement last described in this section, shall, as against the state, have the right to take and divert such water to the amount or volume thus being actually used and applied; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to affect or relate to any priority or right as between any claimants, appropriators, or users from any source of water supply. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 4996c. Application to appropriate water.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, who shall, after this Act shall take effect, desire to acquire the right to appropriate for the purposes stated in this Act, unappropriated water of the state, shall, before commencing the construction, enlargement, or extension of any dam, lake, reservoir, or other storage work, or of any ditch, canal, headgate, intake, pumping plant, or other distributing work, or performing any work in connection with the storage, taking, or diversion of water, make an application in writing to the board for a permit to make such appropriation, storage, or diversion.

Such application shall be in writing, and sworn to; shall be in duplicate, and shall set forth the name and postoffice address of the applicant; the source of water supply; the nature and purposes of the proposed use; the location and description of the proposed dam, lake, reservoir, headgate, intake, pumping plant, ditch, canal or other work; the time within which it is proposed to begin construction; and the time required for the application of the water to the proposed use; and if such proposed use is for irrigation, a description of the lands proposed to be irrigated and, as near as may be, the total acreage thereof.

Such application shall be accompanied by a map or plat drawn on tracing linen on a scale not less than two inches to the mile, showing substantially the location and extent of the proposed works; the location of the headgate, intake, pumping plant or point of diversion by course and distance from permanent natural objects or land marks; the location of the main ditch or canal and of the laterals or branches thereof; the course of the river, stream or other source of water supply; the position and area of all lakes, reservoirs, or basins intended to be used or created, and the water line thereof; the intersection with all other ditches, canals, laterals, lakes or reservoirs, the proposed work will touch or intersect, or with which connections will be made; and shall represent in ink of different color from that used to represent the proposed works, the location of all ditches, canals, laterals, reservoirs, lakes, dams, or other work of like character then existing on the ground, with a designation of the name of the owner thereof. Such map or plat shall contain the name of the proposed work or enterprise; the name or names of the applicant or applicants, and a certificate of the surveyor, giving the date of his survey, his name and postoffice address, and also the date of the application which it accompanies.

Provided, however, that nothing in this Act shall be held or construed to require the filing of an application or procuring of any permit for the alteration, enlargement, extension, or addition to any canal, ditch, or other work that does not contemplate or will not result in an increased appropriation or the use of a larger volume of water. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 4996d. Additional data may be required.—If the proposed taking or diversion of water for irrigation is of greater volume than thirty cubic feet of water per second of time, the board may require the following in addition: A continuous longitudinal profile of the main ditch or canal, showing the grade or level of the bottom thereof, and of the top of the levies, and of the maximum discharge line, the horizontal scale of which profile shall be not less than one inch to one thousand feet and the vertical scale not less than one inch to twenty feet; a plat showing cross sections of such main ditch or canal at a sufficient number of points to show the different forms, whether in excavation, in fill, in siphons or flumes, and which plat shall be drawn on a horizontal and vertical scale of one inch to twenty feet; plats of any dams, cribs, embankments or other proposed construction to obstruct any river, stream, lake, pond or other source of water supply, which shall be on a longitudinal scale of not less than one inch to two hundred feet, and cross sections thereof on a scale of not less than one inch to twenty feet; the nature of the material to be used and the method of proposed construction; and a plat on a scale of not less than one inch to four feet, showing in detail the timber, brush, stone or other construction except earth. The maps or plats of all proposed lakes or reservoirs shall show the maximum area to be submerged, with a description thereof, and with sufficient topographical details to enable the contents thereof to be approximately determined, and the contours of such lake or reservoir shall be on a scale of not less than five-foot vertical intervals.

The board may also require the filing of a copy of the engineer's field notes of any survey of such lake or reservoir, and may require plans and specifications, showing in detail all headworks, wasteways, wastegates and of construction for the control or drawing off of all flood or impounded waters.

The board may, in case the applicant is an incorporated company, require the filing of certified copies of the applicant's articles of incorporation, together with a statement of the names and addresses of its directors and officers; and of the amount of its authorized and of its paid-up capital stock.

If the applicant be other than an incorporated company, the board may require the filing of a sworn statement, showing the names and addresses of the person or persons interested in same and the extent of such interest and of the financial condition of each such person.

Every such application shall be accompanied by the fees hereinafter provided, and shall not be filed or considered until such fees are paid. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 4996e. Preliminary examination.—Upon the filing of such application, accompanied by the data and fees hereinafter provided, it shall be the duty of the board to make a preliminary examination thereof; and if it appear that there is no unappropriated water in the source of supply, or that for other reasons the proposed appropriation should not be allowed, the board may thereupon reject such application; in which case, if the applicant shall elect not to proceed further, the board may return to such applicant any part of the fees accompanying such application.

The board shall determine whether the application, maps, plats, contours, plans, profiles and statements accompanying same, are in compliance with the provisions of this Act and with the regulations of the board and may require the amendment thereof. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 4996f. Applications to be recorded.—All applications filed with the board shall be recorded in a well bound book kept for that purpose in the office of said board, and shall be indexed alphabetically in the name of the applicant, of the stream or source from which such appropriation is sought to be made, and the county in which appropriation is sought to be made. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 4996g. Action upon application.—It shall be the duty of the board to reject all applications and refuse to issue the permit asked for, if there is no unappropriated water in the proposed source of supply; or if the proposed use conflicts with existing water rights, or riparian rights, or is detrimental to the public welfare. It shall be the duty of the board to approve all applications and issue the permit asked for, if such application is made in proper form in compliance with the provisions of this Act and the regulations of said board; and is accompanied by the fees required in this Act; and if the proposed appropriation contemplates the application of water to any of the uses and purposes provided for in this Act; and does not impair existing water rights or riparian rights, and is not detrimental to the public welfare. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 4996h. Notice of hearing of application, etc.—Before the board shall approve any such application and issue any such permit, notice of such application shall be given substantially in the following manner:

Such notice shall be in writing; shall state the name of the applicant and his residence; the date of the filing of the application in the office of the board; the purpose and extent of the proposed appropriation of water; the source of supply; the place at which the water is to be stored; or to be taken or diverted from the source of supply; together with such additional information as the board may deem necessary. If the proposed use is for irrigation, such notice shall contain a general description of the location and area of the land to be irrigated. Such notice shall also state the time and place when and where such application will be heard by the board. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 4996i. Publication of notices, etc.—Such notice shall be published once in each week for four consecutive weeks prior to the date stated in such notice for the hearing of such application in some newspaper having a general circulation in that section of the state in which the source of water supply is located. In addition to such publication, a copy of such notice shall be transmitted by the secretary of the board, by registered mail, addressed to each claimant or appropriator of water from such source of water supply, the record of whose claim or appropriation has been filed in the office of the board. Such notices shall be mailed not less than twenty days before the date set for the hearing. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 4996j. Hearing upon application.—At the time and place stated in the notice, the board shall sit to hear such application. Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, may appear, in person or by attorney, and enter appearance in writing in said matter, and present objection to the issuance of permit. The board may receive evidence, orally or by affidavit, in support of and in opposition to the issuance of such permit; and may also hear arguments. It shall have power to adjourn such hearing from time to time and from place to place, and after full hearing to render decision in writing approving or rejecting such application. Such application may be approved or referred to in whole or in part. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the board from rejecting any application in whole without the issuance of the notice herein required. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 4996k. Cost of publication.—The cost of publication of the notice herein required and the postage for mailing thereof shall in each case be paid by the applicant. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 4996l. Suit upon rejected application.—If the board shall reject any application in whole, the applicant or applicants may, within sixty days after the entry of such order, institute a suit in the district court of the county in which such appropriation is sought to be made, in which such applicant or applicants shall be plaintiff, and all claimants or appropriators of water from the same source of water supply who have filed in the office of the board a record of their claims or appropriations as hereinbefore provided, shall be made defendants. In any such case, the process, pleading, and practice shall be in accordance with the practice of the district court as provided in other civil cases. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 4996m. Appeals.—If any application be granted in whole or in part, any party, or number of parties acting jointly who may feel aggrieved by any such decision of the board may appeal from its action to the district court of the county in which the appropriation of water is sought to be made. All persons appealing shall be joined as plaintiffs in the district court, and all other parties who have entered their appearance in writing before said board in said matter shall be joined as defendants. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 4996n. Petition and bond.—The party or parties appealing shall, within sixty days next after the date of the decision of the board appealed from, file in the district court to which the appeal is taken a petition in writing, setting forth the order of the board appealed from and their objections thereto, together with a prayer for the relief sought; and shall also, within such time, enter into a bond, to be approved by the district clerk, in such amount as the district clerk shall fix, payable to all defendants in said suit, conditioned that he, they, or it shall prosecute such appeal to effect and pay all costs and damages which may be adjudged against them, or either or any of them. Upon the filing of such petition and bond, and the approval of the bond by the district clerk, the appeal shall be deemed perfected. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 4996o. Proceedings stayed.—The clerk of the district court shall immediately upon the perfecting of the appeal in his court, transmit to the office of the board a certificate, under the seal of the court, to the effect that said appeal has been perfected. Such certificate shall be entered of record in the office of the board; and thereupon further proceedings by said board in said matter shall be suspended until the determination of such appeal. Process shall issue out of said district court to all parties defendant in said proceeding in the same manner as provided by law in other civil cases originally instituted in such court. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 4996p. Transcript.—The party or parties appealing shall, within ninety days after the appeal is perfected, file in the office of the clerk of such district court a certified copy or transcript of all records in the office of the board relating to such application and the action of the board thereon. By agreement of all parties filed with the secretary, any part of such records may be omitted from such transcript. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 4996q. Trial de novo.—When appeal to the district court is perfected, a trial de novo shall be had. The process, pleadings and practice shall follow, as near as may be, the procedure provided in other civil cases originally instituted in said court. [Id. sec. 29.]
Art. 4996r. New parties may be made.—Any claimant or appropriator of water from the same source of supply, and any party having or claiming an interest in the rights involved in any such suit, shall have the right to intervene therein in the district court, new or additional parties may be made to such suit; and any party shall have the right to interplead any other person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 4996s. Board may intervene.—The board, in behalf of the state, may intervene in any suit or proceeding authorized by this Act. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 4996t. Attorney general to represent board.—In all litigation to which the board may be a party the attorney general shall represent the board. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 4996u. Precedence on appeal.—When an appeal is taken as provided in this Act from any decision of the board, such cause shall have precedence in the district court over other civil causes not entitled to a like precedence; and if an appeal be taken from the district court to the court of civil appeals, or from the court of civil appeals to the supreme court, such cause shall have like precedence; provided, that all appeals or writs of error from any judgment rendered in any of such courts shall be perfected or sued out within ninety days from the date of such judgment, and not thereafter. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 4996v. Decree of court filed with board.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court, immediately upon the entering of any final judgment, order or decree in any suit or proceeding in which an appeal is taken to the district court as provided in this Act to transmit a certified copy of such judgment, order or decree to the board. If such judgment, order or decree of the district court be appealed from, then upon final determination thereof in the appellate court, it shall be the duty of the clerk of such court to transmit a certified copy of said judgment, order or decree to the board. Same shall be forthwith entered upon the records of the board. Upon the termination of such litigation the board shall comply with the final order or decree therein. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 4996w. Transmission of certified copy of judgment to board of water engineers.—When any court of record in this state shall render any judgment, order or decree affecting in any manner the title to any water right, claim, appropriation or irrigation works, or any matter over which the board of water engineers is given supervision under the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of the clerk of such court to forthwith transmit to the office of the board a certified copy of such judgment, order or decree. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 4996x. Permit stayed pending appeal.—No permit shall be issued by the board until the expiration of sixty days after the date of the decision of the board granting the application, in whole or in part; or if an appeal be taken as provided in this Act, no such permit shall be issued until the final termination of such appeal. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 4996y. Form of permit, etc.—Every permit issued by the board under the provisions of this Act shall be in writing, attested by the seal of said board, and shall contain substantially the following: The name of the applicant to whom issued; the date of the issuance thereof; the date of the filing of the original application therefor in the office of the board; the use or purpose for which the appropriation of water is proposed to be made; the amount or volume of water authorized to be appropriated; a general description of the source of supply from which the appropriation is proposed to be made; and if such appropriation is for irrigation, a description and statement of the approximate area of the lands to be irrigated; together with such other data and information as the board may prescribe. If such permit is issued in pursuance of the judgment or decree of any court as provided in this Act, same shall in all respects conform to the requirements of such judgment or decree. Upon the issuance of such permit, same shall be transmitted by the secretary of the board by registered mail to the county clerk of the county in which the appropriation is to be made; and upon receipt of a recording fee of one dollar to be paid by the applicant, such clerk shall file and record the same in a well-bound book provided and kept for that purpose only, and to index the same alphabetically under the name of the applicant and of the stream or source of water supply, and thereupon to deliver such permit upon demand to the applicant. Such permit, when thus filed in the office of the county clerk, shall be constructive notice of the filing of the application with the board; of the issuance of the permit; and of all the rights arising thereunder. [Id. sec. 37.]

Arts. 4997, 4998. Repealed. See note under Art. 4991.

Art. 4999. Work to begin in ninety days, etc.—Within ninety days after the date of issuance of the permit provided for in this Act, the applicant seeking to appropriate water thereunder shall begin actual construction of the proposed ditch, canal, dam, lake, reservoir or other work, and shall prosecute the work thereon diligently and continuously to completion; provided, that the board may by an order entered of record, extend the time for beginning the actual construction of such work for a period not to exceed twelve months from the date of issuance of such permit; and further provided, that if any applicant shall fail to comply with the requirements of this section, he, they, or it shall thereby forfeit all rights under such permit. If any applicant to whom a permit is issued shall, after beginning the actual construction of work as provided in this section, fail to thereafter prosecute the same diligently and continuously to completion, the board may, after notice to the applicant, and giving him an opportunity to be heard, by an order entered of record, revoke and cancel such permit, in whole or in part. A certified copy of such order shall be forthwith transmitted by the secretary of the board, by registered mail, to the clerk of the county in which such permit is recorded, and which order shall be recorded by said county clerk; provided, that any applicant whose permit is thus canceled or revoked or sought to be canceled by the board shall have the right to contest same in the district court in the same manner as provided in this Act for the rejection of an application. [Id. sec. 38.]

Arts. 5000, 5001. Repealed. See note under Art. 4991.

See Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002; Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co., 153 S. W. 711.

Art. 5001a. Use of water permit forbidden.—Any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, or any agent, officer, employé or representative of any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, who shall wilfully take, divert or appropriate any of the water of this state, or the use of such water, for any purpose, without first complying with all the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and each day that such taking, diversion or appropriation of water shall continue shall constitute a separate offense; and the possession of such water, except when the right to its use is acquired in accordance with the provisions of law, shall be prima facie proof of the guilt of the person, association of persons, corporation, irrigation district, or the agent, officer, employé or representative of any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district. [Id. sec. 39.]
Art. 5001b. State may recover penalty.—In addition to the punishment prescribed in the last preceding section [Art. 5001a], any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, or any agent, officer, employé or representative of any such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, who shall willfully take, divert, or appropriate water of the state, or the use of such water, without first complying with the provisions of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars per day for each and every day that such taking, diversion, appropriation, or use may be made, and the state may recover such penalties by suit brought for that purpose in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 5001c. Date of priority.—When any permit is issued under the provisions of this Act, the priority of the appropriation of water or the claimant's right to the use of such water shall date from the date of the filing of the original application in the office of the board. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 5001d. Board to measure streams, make reports, etc.—It shall be the duty of the board to make or cause to be made measurements and calculations of the flow of streams from which water may be appropriated as provided in this Act, commencing such work in those streams most used for irrigation or other beneficial uses; to collect data and make surveys; to determine the most suitable location for constructing works to utilize the waters of the state; to ascertain the location and area of the lands best suited for irrigation; to examine and survey reservoir sites; and wherever practicable, to make estimates of the cost of proposed irrigation works, and of the improvements of reservoir sites. It shall be the duty of the board to make itself conversant with the water courses of the state and of the needs of the state concerning irrigation matters and the storage and conservation of the waters of the state for other purposes. The board shall make biennial reports in writing to the Governor, in which shall be included the data and information collected by said board, and in which shall be included such suggestions as to the amendment of existing laws and the enactment of new laws as the information and experience of the board may suggest. The board shall keep in its office full and proper records of its work, observations and calculations, all of which shall be the property of the state. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 5001e. Board to make rules, etc.—The board may adopt and enforce such rules, regulations and modes of procedure as it may deem proper for the discharge of the duties incumbent upon it under the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 43.]

Art. 5001f. Fees.—The board shall charge and collect for the benefit of the state the following fees:

For filing each and every application for the storage of water, a fee of twenty-five dollars; provided, that if the application shall contemplate and propose the storage of water in excess of five thousand acre feet, an additional fee of one dollar shall be charged for each additional one thousand acre feet or fractional part thereof.

For filing each and every application which contemplates and proposes the taking or diversion of water for irrigation purposes, one cent per acre for each and every acre proposed to be irrigated.

For filing each application contemplating and proposing the taking, diversion or use of flowing water for any other purpose than storage or the irrigation of land as hereinbefore provided, seventy-five cents for each cubic foot of water per second of time sought to be appropriated; provided, that if the appropriation shall contemplate the storage and diversion and use of water, for any two of such purposes, the fee charged and collected shall be based upon only one of such purposes, and that shall be the one for which the highest fee is provided herein.
For the filing of each and every exhibit, map, affidavit or other paper authorized to be filed in the office of the board of water engineers, a filing fee of ten cents.

For the recording of each and every paper authorized or required to be recorded in the records of the office of the board, a fee of fifteen cents per folio of one hundred words.

For making and certifying each and every copy of any instrument or paper authorized to be certified under the sale [seal] of such board, a fee of fifteen cents per folio, including the certificate.

For making and certifying copies of any map or blue print thereof authorized to be filed in the office of the board, the same fees as are now or may be prescribed by law for the making and certifying of such copies by the commissioner of the general land office.

For filing each application for extension of time within which to complete work a fee of twenty-five dollars. [Id. sec. 44.]

Art. 5001g. Extension of time.—When the holder of any permit issued under the provisions of this Act has actually commenced construction of work thereunder, and has prosecuted and is prosecuting same with diligence as provided in this Act, the board may, upon an application in writing, presented to the board, for good cause shown, by an order entered of record, extend the time within which construction is required to be completed; provided, the board shall not consider or grant any application for such extension until the applicant has first paid the fees provided therefor. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 5001h. Standard of measure.—A cubic foot of water per second of time shall be the standard unit for the measurement of flowing water, both for the purpose of determining the flow of water in streams and for the purpose of distributing water for beneficial uses. The standard unit of volume of static water shall be the acre foot.

Units Defined.—A cubic foot per second of time is the quantity of water that will pass through a square foot opening in one second when flowing at an average velocity of one foot per second. An acre foot is the quantity of water required to cover one acre one foot deep. [Id. sec. 46.]

Art. 5001i. Water right.—A water right is the right to use the water of the state when such use has been acquired by the application of water under the statutes of this state and for the purposes stated in this Act. Such use shall be the basis, the measure and the limit to the right to use water of the state at all times, not exceeding in any case the limit of volume to which the user is entitled and the volume which is necessarily required and can be beneficially used for irrigation or other authorized uses. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 5001j. Right limited to beneficial use.—Rights to the use of water acquired under the provisions of this Act shall be limited and restricted to so much thereof as may be necessarily required for the purposes stated in this Act irrespective of the carrying capacity of the ditch, and all the water not so applied shall not be considered as appropriated. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 5001k. Right forfeited by abandonment.—Any appropriation or use of water heretofore made under any statute of this state or hereafter made under the provisions of this Act which shall be wilfully abandoned during any three successive years, shall be forfeited and the water formerly so used or appropriated shall be again subject to appropriation for the purposes stated in this act. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 5001l. Dams constructed prior to March 28, 1913; right to appropriate waters, etc.—Any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, having prior to March 28th, 1913, constructed any dam or dams across any river, or other stream, for the purpose of stor-
IRRIGATION AND OTHER WATER RIGHTS

Art. 5001m. IRRIGATION AND OTHER WATER RIGHTS

ing water for any of the purposes set forth in section 2 [Art. 4992] of this Act shall have the right to appropriate the ordinary flow or underflow, or the storm, flood or rain waters of such stream, in amounts and quantities equal to the holding capacity of such dam or dams, by making application as provided for in section 14 [Art. 4996b] of this Act, and such application shall have priority over all other applications; and, provided, that any such person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district thus impounding water in any river channel, lake or reservoir and appropriating the same shall have the right to collect from any riparian owner who shall divert such impounded water from said reservoir by pumping or otherwise a reasonable sum for the water so diverted, such sum to be determined by the board of water engineers, based upon the benefits accruing to such riparian owner by reason of the construction of such dam, lake or reservoir and the impounding of such waters therein, provided, the owner of such dams, lake or reservoir, and the owner of riparian rights using such water cannot agree upon the price to be paid therefor. [Id. sec. 49a.]

Art. 5001m. Conservation of storm water authorized.—Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district having in possession and control storm, flood, or rain waters conserved or stored under the provisions of this Act may enter into contract to supply same to any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district having the right to acquire such use; provided, that the price and terms of such contract shall be just and reasonable and without discrimination and subject to the same revision and control as hereinafter provided for other water rates and charges; provided, that if any person shall use such stored or conserved water without first entering into contract with the party having stored or conserved the same, such user shall pay for the use thereof such charge or rental as the board shall find to be just and reasonable, and subject to revision by the court as herein provided for other water rates and charges. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 5001n. Use of streams for conveying stored water.—For the purpose of conveying and delivering storm, flood or rain water from the place of storage to the place of use as provided in the preceding section [Art. 5001m], it shall be lawful for any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district to use the banks and bed of any flowing natural stream within this State; under and in accordance with such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the board of water engineers; and such board shall prescribe rules and regulations for such purpose. No person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district who has not acquired the right to the use of such conserved or stored waters as provided in the last preceding section shall take, use, or divert same. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 5001o. Penalty for unlawful interference.—Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, of [or] the agent, officer, employee, or representative of any such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district who shall wilfully interfere with the passage of or take, divert, or appropriate such conserved or stored water during the passage and delivery thereof as provided in the last two preceding sections [Arts. 5001m, 5001n], shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 5001p. Injunction authorized.—It shall be the duty of the district court, or the judge thereof, of any judicial district in or through which the conserved or stored waters described in the last three preceding sections [Arts. 5001m—5001o] may pass, at the suit of any party having an interest therein, upon it being made to appear that any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district or any agent, officer, employee, or representative thereof is interfering with or threatening or about to interfere with, the passage, or is taking, diverting, appropriating, or threatening, or about to take, divert, or appropriate, any conserved or stored waters, in violation of the provisions of the last three preceding sections; to issue such writ or writs of injunction, mandamus, or other process as may be proper or necessary to prevent such wrongful acts. [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 5002. [3125] Formation of corporations authorized.—Corporations may be formed and chartered under the provisions of this Act and of the general corporation laws of the state of Texas, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating canals, ditches, flumes, feeders, laterals, dams, reservoirs, lakes and wells, and of conserving, storing, conducting and transferring water to all persons entitled to the use of the same for irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, to cities and towns for waterworks, and for stock-raising. [Id. sec. 54.]

Construction of prior act—Eminent domain.—See, also, notes under Art. 5004a.

This article conferred the right of eminent domain only upon corporations and associations formed for the purpose of supplying water to the various industries named in the article, or to enable them to furnish water to the public and did not confer that right upon corporations formed for the purpose of conducting the various industries named in the act. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 466.

A corporation formed for irrigation purposes under this article may exercise the power of eminent domain subject to legislative regulations. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Under this article and Art. 5004, providing that all corporations and associations formed for the purpose of irrigation, etc., as provided in that chapter, may obtain the right of way over private lands, and also land for dams and reservoirs, by condemnation, a corporation formed under Art. 1121, subd. 23, providing that corporations may be formed for the construction, maintenance, and operation of dams, reservoirs, etc., and other necessary appurtenances, for the purposes of irrigation, navigation, etc., is entitled to acquire land by eminent domain proceedings. Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 711.

Where an irrigation company acquired under the irrigation statutes superior rights to the waters of a river, it became a quasi public corporation chargeable with duties as such, though not such as to vest in its vendors vested in them the riparian rights to the waters of such river. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 288.

Gift of right of way.—Gift of right of way to irrigation company held revocable, there being no estoppel. Toyah Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

Art. 5002a. [3125] Sale of water rights authorized.—All such corporations shall have full power and authority to make contracts for the sale of permanent water rights, and to have the same secured by liens on the land or otherwise, and to lease, rent, or otherwise dispose of the water, controlled by such corporation for such time as may be agreed upon, and in addition to the lien on the crops hereinafter provided for, the lease or rental contract may be secured by a lien on the land or otherwise. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 5002b. [3125] Persons entitled to use water.—All persons who own or hold a possessory right or title to land adjoining or contiguous to any dam, reservoir, canal, ditch, flume or lateral constructed and maintained under the provisions of this Act, and who shall have secured a right to the use of water in said canal, ditch, flume, lateral, reservoir, dam or lake, shall be entitled to be supplied from such canal, ditch, flume, lateral, dam, reservoir or lake with water for irrigation of such land, and Duty to supply water.—An irrigation company, being a quasi public corporation, owed the owner of land contiguous to its canals the duty to provide water for irrigating such land in a reasonable manner and at reasonable rates. The company's obligation to supply water could not be excused by the exercise of reasonable diligence. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

Contracts to supply water.—Limitation of the liability of an irrigation company for damages for failure to furnish water to its lessee held not prevented by the fact that the company is a common carrier. Moore-Cortes Canal Co. v. Gyle, 36 C. A. 442, 82 S. W. 350.

An irrigation company under its contract to furnish water held required to furnish facilities for delivering the water on the land. Sisk v. Gravity Canal Co., 52 C. A. 12, 113 S. W. 196.

A corporation organized under this article, which contracts with a person entitled to water for irrigation to furnish him with a full supply of water to make a crop, cannot excuse nonperformance of the contract on the ground of a drought or other cause, so that it cannot comply with the contract without discriminating against other consumers of water. Erp v. Raywood Canal & Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 897.

A stipulation in a contract by a corporation to furnish water for irrigation for a crop held not unreasonable. Id.

In an action to recover against an irrigation company for failure to furnish water resulting in damage to plaintiff's crop of rice, evidence held to show that the crop for the year was short one-third of a sack per acre. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 545.

A contract for the furnishing of water for irrigation construed. Id.

One who merely owned an irrigation canal and had not been constructed under this article, with a lateral running through plaintiff's land with his consent, and who agreed to furnish plaintiff water to irrigate his rice crop, could make a valid contract limiting damages from his failure to do so to a certain sum per acre; the irrigation plant owner not undertaking the discharge of a public duty, so that the reasonableness of the provision of the contract is for the parties to decide. Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1002.

Under this article one maintaining an irrigation canal could not impose unjust or unreasonable terms by contract upon water users; any such terms being void. Id.

In an action against an irrigation company for damages for failure to furnish sufficient water to raise a full crop on a stipulated number of acres, whether a later contract, by which the company agreed to furnish a limited amount of water, was executed by plaintiff under material, where the failure to furnish the water was occasioned by drought or accident, both contracts being subject to the provisions of this article. Raymond Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Erp, 105 T. 161, 146 S. W. 155.

A company by an irrigation company to supply only sufficient water to produce an average crop of a certain amount per acre is not manifestly illegal, but might be valid under certain circumstances; but a provision limiting the amount of damages per acre is invalid. Id.

In an action against an irrigation company on an oral contract, whether a later contract was executed under dureas held immaterial, where the failure to furnish the water was occasioned by accident or drought. Id.

A contract by an irrigation company to supply only sufficient water to produce an average crop of a certain amount per acre is not manifestly illegal, but might be valid under certain circumstances, but a provision limiting the amount of damages per acre is invalid. Id.

An irrigation company chartered under this article, being a quasi public corporation, owed the duty to the owner of the water to land contiguous to its canals to furnish water for, and the only matters open to verbal contract with reference to the water were the price and terms upon which, and the time at which, it would be delivered. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

Where a plantation company entitled to be supplied with water by an irrigation company makes a demand therefor, it is bound by the language of such demand, though the demand be unnecessary. Id.

Notice to an irrigation company that a plantation company had about "20,000 cabbage plants pulled" which would be a total loss unless water was obtained at once held sufficient to notify it of all special damages growing out of the loss of the cabbage plants. Id.

A provision in a contract by an irrigation company limiting its liability to $10 per acre for negligent failure to supply water was void. Id.

Liability for breach.—Measure of damages, in action for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigating purposes, stated. Raywood Rice, Canal & Milling Co. v. Wells, 33 C. A. 545, 77 S. W. 253.

Where defendant contracted to furnish water for irrigation, but plaintiff refused to execute a proper contract tendered him, he could not recover for failure to furnish sufficient water to save his crop. Colorado Canal Co. v. Mayes, 38 C. A. 271, 85 S. W. 448.

In action by owner of land for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation, expenses held to be deducted from owner's share of crop in estimating damages. Barlow Irr. Co. v. Cleghon (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1023.

In action for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation, plaintiff held entitled to recover for crops lost by his inability to plant. Id.

An irrigation company can only excuse its failure to furnish water according to contract by proof that its failure resulted from inevitable accident, or a cause that could not be obviated by ordinary care and foresight. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 400.

An irrigation company, having negligently or willfully failed to furnish water to a consumer according to contract, held liable for any damages suffered in loss of or injury to the consumer’s crops by reason of the breach of contract. Id.

In an action by a lessee for damages for failure of the lessor to furnish water to irrigate Improve the land for crop, evidence held insufficient to sustain the judgment for the amount of damages awarded. Dunlap v. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling, Co., 43 C. A. 269, 95 S. W. 43.

Plaintiff irrigation company held not liable for breach of a contract to furnish water, for any damage that had occurred prior to five days after written notice to be served by defendant for water, as provided by the contract. Gravity Canal Co. v. Sisk, 43 C. A. 194, 95 S. W. 724.

That plaintiff’s 1903 crop was destroyed by a natural overflow of water, did not relieve an irrigation company from liability for destroying his 1904 crop by overflowing his land. McLellan v. Brownsville Land & Irrigation Co., 46 C. A. 249, 103 S. W. 206.

Plaintiff held not barred from recovering for the overflow of his crops by an irrigation company for failing to build levees or embankments to avoid such overflow. Id.

In an action by a company for overflowing irrigation canal, it was held that it did not turn the water directly on plaintiff’s land, but caused it to flow first over others’ lands. Id.

An irrigation company, having contracted to furnish water to irrigate defendant’s land, held not a necessary or proper party to a suit by defendants’ tenants for breach of defendants’ agreement to furnish water to irrigate the leased land. Stockton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 423.

Division of a crop between the lessee and lessor held not to estop the lessee from claiming damages for breach of the lessor’s contract to furnish water for irrigation. Bellingham v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 25.

On suit for breach of defendant’s contract to supply plaintiff, a tenant, with water for a rice crop, held error to authorize recovery of a share of the additional rice which would have been raised if the land had been properly irrigated, which would have gone to the landlord. Cannon v. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Cannon (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 729.

In an action against an irrigation company for failure to supply water, instruction that the measure of damages was the difference in the market value of the crop as raised and what it would have been if sufficient water had been supplied, less the cost of harvesting the additional crop, and that if failure to supply sufficient water was caused by accident or drought plaintiff could not recover, held proper. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Erp, 105 T. 161, 116 S. W. 155.

The cost of marketing crops held a proper feature of damages in an action for a failure to supply water for irrigation purposes under a contract. Biggs v. Maulding (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 681.

A water company contracted to give an owner a permanent right to water, on payment of a certain sum, and provided that the “vendee” should receive water during the life of the agreement. Held, that a lessee of premises before payment of the amount provided was not entitled to maintain an action for a failure to supply water. Id.

The rule requiring a person whose crops were destroyed through the failure of an irrigation company to furnish water to mitigate his damages merely required that he make a reasonably diligent inquiry for other plants in the vicinity and did not require that he seek plants elsewhere. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mississippi Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 288.

The damages for the destruction of the crop of cabbage should have been measured by the average price from the date of the destruction to the date when it would have been harvested. Id.

The measure of damages for the destruction of cabbage plants to be transplanted, through failure to irrigate the land, was the value of the probable yield under proper cultivation when mature and ready for sale, less the expense of such cultivation and the cost of marketing. Id.

Where an irrigation company’s failure to furnish water was primarily due to its own neglect, it did not relieve it from liability for damages that the low water in the river contributed to the result. Id.

In order to entitle a plantation company to recover damages from an irrigation company for failure to furnish water as it had contracted to do, it was not essential that the plantation company continually repeat a request for water which it knew could not be supplied. Id.

Limitation of liability.—Irrigation companies authorized to exercise the power of eminent domain are quasi public corporations, and cannot limit their liability to the public by contract. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 400; Colorado & Southwell, 56 C. A. 93, 99 S. W. 355.

An irrigation company sued for failure to furnish sufficient water held not entitled to rely upon a release of liability contained in a contract for service for the succeeding season. Lone Star Canal Co. v. Cannon (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 799.

Art. 5002c. [3125] No discrimination against users.—If the person, association of persons, corporation owning or controlling such water, and the person who owns or holds a possessor right or title to land adjoining or contiguous to any canal, ditch, flume or lateral, lake or reservoir, constructed or maintained under the provisions of this Act, fail to agree upon a price for a permanent water right, or for the use or rental of the necessary water to irrigate the land of such person, or for mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, or stockraising; such person, association of persons or corporation shall, nevertheless, if he, they or it, have or control any water not contracted to others, furnish the necessary water to such person to irrigate his lands or for mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power or stockraising, at such prices as shall be reasonable and just, and without discrimination. [Id. sec. 57.]

Prior act.—Art. 5002 reserved to those owning land adjoining or contiguous to the canal a definite right to the use of the water in the canal, and imposed upon the canal company such reciprocal duties to the public as to make the corporation quasi public in character and charged it with public trust. It could not sell to any one person more than his proportionate share of the water in the canal. It could establish reasonable rules as to when application for use of water shall be made, and if one having right to use of the water failed to use the same at proper time, and when not at proper demand, if all the water that the canal could furnish was contracted for, he could not enforce his demand. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 466, 468.

Art. 5002d. [3125] Water to be prorated.—In case of shortage of water from drouth, accident or other cause, all water to be distributed shall be divided among all consumers pro rata, according to the amount he or they may be entitled to, to the end that all shall suffer alike, and preference be given to none; provided, that nothing in this section contained shall be held to preclude any such person, association of persons or corporation owning or controlling such water from supplying the same to any person having a prior vested right thereto under the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 58.]

Prior act.—Under Art. 5002, a failure by an irrigation company to furnish a customer sufficient water to raise a full crop on a stipulated number of acres according to contract will not subject the company to damages if compliance therewith would, on account of shortage of water from such causes, deprive other customers of the right to pro rata distribution. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Exp, 165 T. 161, 146 S. W. 155.

While the statute contemplates that an irrigation company may be unable to supply all consumers with an adequate amount of water, this could not defeat recovery for failure to supply water, where the failure did not arise from the fact that other consumers used the whole supply. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 286.

Art. 5002e. [3125] Permanent water right and easement.—The permanent water right shall be an easement to the land and pass with the title thereto; and the owner thereof shall be entitled to the use of the water upon the terms provided in his or their contract with such person, association of persons or corporation, or, in case no contract is entered into, then at just and reasonable prices, and without discrimination. Any instrument of writing conveying a permanent water right shall be admitted to record in the same manner as other instruments relating to the conveyance of land. [Id. sec. 59.]

Art. 5002f. Regulation of rates; discrimination; complaint; deposit. —If any person entitled to receive or use water from any canal, ditch, flume, lateral, dam, reservoir or lake, or from any conserved or stored supply, shall present to the board his petition in writing, showing that the person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, owning or controlling such water has a supply of water not contracted to others and available for his use, and fail or refuse to supply such water to him, or that the price or rental demanded therefor is not reasonable and just or is discriminatory; and that the complainant is entitled to receive or use such water and is willing and able to pay a just and reasonable price therefor; and shall accompany such petition with a deposit of twenty-five dollars; it shall be the duty of the board to make a preliminary investigation of such complaint and determine whether there is probable ground therefor. If said board shall determine that no probable ground exists for such complaint, same shall be dismissed, and the deposit may, at the discretion of the board, be returned to the complainant or paid into the state treasury. [Id. sec. 60.]

Art. 5002g. Order on complaint; deposit and bond for costs; certified copy of complaint to be sent to defendants.—If the board shall determine that probable ground exists for such complaint, it shall enter an order setting said matter for hearing at a time and place to be named therein. The board may, in its discretion, require the complainant to make an additional deposit, or to enter into bond in an amount fixed by the board, conditioned for the payment of all costs of such proceeding, and which bond shall be approved by the board. Thereupon it shall be the duty of the secretary of the board to transmit a certified copy of the petition of complainant and of the order setting same for hearing, by registered mail, addressed to the party or parties against whom such complaint is made, and which notice shall be deposited in the mails at least twenty days before the date set for such hearing. [Id. sec. 61.]

Art. 5002h. Hearing; evidence; adjournments; decision.—At the time and place stated in such order, the board shall sit to hear such complaint. It may hear evidence orally or by affidavit in support of or against such complaint, and may hear arguments, and shall have power to adjourn such hearing from time to time and from place to place, and upon completion thereof shall render decision in writing. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 5002i. Appeal; supersedeas.—Appeal from such decision of the board may be taken within the time and in the manner as hereinbefore provided for other appeals from the decision of such board. The decision may be suspended by the filing of a supersedeas bond in the same manner as now provided in other civil cases; provided, that the board shall fix the amount of the bond necessary to stay the execution of any such order. [Id. sec. 63.]

Art. 5002j. Issuance of subpoenas authorized, etc.—In any examination, investigation or proceeding authorized before the board of water engineers, such board shall have power to issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses under such rules as the board may prescribe.
Each witness who shall appear before the board by order of the board, at a place outside of the county of his residence shall receive for his attendance, one dollar per day and three cents per mile travelled by the nearest practicable route in going to and returning from the place of meeting of said board, which shall be ordered paid by the comptroller of public accounts upon the presentation of proper vouchers sworn to by such witness and approved by the chairman of the board; provided, that no witness shall be entitled to any witness fees or mileage who is directly interested in such proceeding. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 5002k. Who may administer oaths, etc.—In any examination or hearing held before the board of water engineers, the board shall have authority to adjourn such hearing from time to time and from place to place. Each member of such board and the secretary thereof shall be authorized to administer oaths. [Id. sec. 65.]

Art. 5002l. Certified copies.—Upon application of any person, the board shall furnish certified copies of any order or decision of record of such board, or of any paper, map or other document filed in the office of such board, and such certified copies under the hand of the secretary and the seal of the board shall be admissible in evidence in any court in the same manner and with like effect that the original would be entitled to. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 5002m. Rules may be prescribed, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, conserving or supplying water for any of the purposes authorized by this Act shall have the right to make and publish all reasonable rules and regulations relating to the method and manner of supply, use and distribution of water, and prescribing the time and manner of making application for the use of water and of payment therefor. [Id. sec. 67.]

Art. 5002n. Conveyances, how made.—Every conveyance of a ditch, canal or reservoir, or other irrigation work, or any interest therin, shall hereafter be executed and acknowledged in the same manner as the conveyance of real estate, and recorded in the deed records of the county or counties in which such ditch, canal or reservoir is situated, and any such conveyance which shall not be made in conformity with the provisions of this Act shall be null and void as against subsequent purchasers thereof in good faith and for valuable consideration. [Id. sec. 68.]

Note.—Sections 69-71 are purely criminal in their nature, and are here omitted.

Art. 5002o. Partnership ditches.—In all cases where irrigation ditches are owned by two or more persons, or by mutual or co-operative companies or corporations, and one or more of such persons, or shareholders shall fail or neglect to do or to pay for his proportionate share of the work necessary for the proper maintenance and operation of such ditch, the owners or shareholders, desiring the performance of such work as is reasonably necessary to maintain and operate the ditch may, after having given ten days' written notice to such joint owner, or owners, or shareholders who have failed to pay for or perform their proportionate share of work necessary for the operation and maintenance of said ditch, proceed themselves to do such work or cause the same to be done, and may recover therefor from such person so failing to perform or pay for his share of such work, in any court having jurisdiction over the amount, the reasonable expense or value of such work or labor so performed. [Id. sec. 72.]

Art. 5002p. Surplus water to be returned.—All surplus water taken or diverted from any running stream not used by the appropriator or disposed of to consumers for the purposes stated in this Act, shall, wherever reasonably practicable, be conducted back to the stream from which taken or diverted. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 5003. [704] Preliminary surveys.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district shall have power to cause an examination and survey for its proposed work to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous reservoir sites and rights of way for any of the purposes authorized by this Act and for such purposes shall have the right to enter upon the lands or waters of any person. [Id. sec. 74.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 4991 et seq. Not a grant of right of way.—Rights of way over private lands for irrigation canal held not granted by statute itself, company being obliged to obtain a grant or condemnation. Toyah Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

Art. 5004. [3126] Right of way over public lands.—Every person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district formed for any of the purposes authorized by this Act, are hereby granted the right of way not to exceed one hundred feet in width and the necessary area for any dam and reservoir site over all public, public free school, university and asylum lands of this state, with the use of the rock, gravel and timber on such reservoir site and right of way for construction purposes, after paying such compensation as the board of engineers may determine, and may acquire such reservoir site and rights of way over private lands by contract. [Id. sec. 75.]

This article grants over public lands only the right of way with the use of materials therein for construction purposes, and does not grant the right to appropriate such lands for dam sites and reservoirs, and the fact that the use of public lands for a reservoir may be indispensable to the project as designed by a corporation does not justify it in taking public lands for such a purpose. Jayne v. Imperial Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1137.

This article does not prevent condemnation of a way 200 feet wide over private land. Reiter v. Las Vegas Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 915.

An irrigation corporation held possessed of right by implication to use a part of the public school lands for a dam and reservoir site. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 396, 138 S. W. 575.

Grants of the power of eminent domain are strictly construed, and the methods set forth in the statute granting the power must be strictly followed. Reiter v. Medina Valley Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 380.

Proceedings.—Under this article and Art. 6483, which provides that no railroad shall enter upon private property except for a lineal survey, until it shall agree with and pay
Art. 5004a. Eminent domain.—Any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district or any city or town may also obtain the right of way over private lands and also the land for pumping plants, intakes, headgates and storage reservoirs, by condemnation by causing the damages for any private property appropriated by any such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district, or city or town to be assessed and paid for as provided in cases of railroads, provided that in exercising the right of eminent domain, as authorized in this section, there shall be no condemnation of the water rights of riparian owners or appropriators now using or appropriating said water, or who may use or appropriate same, in any stream or lake, or water impounded by them in the channel of such stream or lake by damming same. This provision shall not affect the common law right of condemnation for municipal use by cities and towns. [Id. sec. 76.]

In general.—The act (Gen. Laws 1889, p. 100) gave to corporations formed for irrigating purposes the right to condemn any property necessary for the uses and purposes of the enterprise for which the corporation was created. If such property will pass or may be included under the term "lands." McGhee Irrigation Co. v. Hudson, 85 T. 857, 23 S. W. 398.

Under the power to condemn lands would be included the right to take water, but the water is not of whether taken above or upon the land of a riparian owner whose right to have the water flow in its accustomed course and quantity is invaded. Id.

The fact that a corporation is authorized by its charter to construct, maintain and operate a canal for other purposes as well as that of irrigation does not change its character as a canal corporation for the purpose of irrigation, or disqualify it as a donee of the power of eminent domain conferred by these articles. It is not intended to restrict the right of eminent domain conferred in these articles to corporations formed exclusively for purposes of irrigation. The purpose of these articles is to confer additional powers upon corporations formed for irrigation purposes. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 464.

When a corporation has been formed, and its charter is valid and permits it to engage in the business of irrigation alone, this article grants it the power of condemnation. Borden v. Trespalacios Rice & Irr. Co., 98 T. 494, 86 S. W. 11, 107 Am. St. Rep. 640.

State held entitled to improve navigable streams without compensation for injuries to right to use the water for irrigation. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848.

Where the petition alleges that plaintiff has under Art. 5009 a statutory lien on all the rice raised on the lands described in the contract, and the contract is attached to the petition as an exhibit, and is such a contract as is appropriate to be made, only by a corporation created for purposes of irrigation under Arts. 4991 to 5010, it is sufficient to show the character of the corporation. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 458.

Generally each of several owners of land sought to be condemned is entitled to have the damages due him separately awarded, but where ownership of land is in dispute a single award is proper; the fund being held for apportionment on settlement of the dispute. Rabl v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

A deposit by condemnor of land held to have sufficiently conformed to the award. Id.

In a condemnation proceeding, held, that the commissioners, on the hearing as to damages, cannot inquire into the truth of the facts on which the jurisdiction is invoked. Id.

That plaintiff and another claimed the same land shows prima facie that there could be no such agreement as to damages between plaintiff and a company seeking to acquire a right of way as would defeat the company’s right to institute condemnation proceedings. Id.

In a proceeding to condemn land for an irrigation project, a document filed by petitioner, tendering defendant the use of water from the proposed reservoir on stated conditions, in mitigation of damages was not a pleading and was properly stricken. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 360.

In a proceeding to condemn land, an instruction authorizing the jury to consider special damages, if any, to land not taken, and allow defendant the difference in the market value of the land, if any, before and after the taking, which damage, if any, the jury will find in addition to the value of the land taken for the reservoir, held erroneous as authorizing a double recovery for the land not taken. Id.

Art. 5005. Repealed. See note under Art. 4991.

Art. 5006. [3128] Public roads and bridges.—All such persons, association of persons, corporations, and irrigation districts shall have the right to run along or across all roads and highways necessary in the construction of their work and shall at all such crossings construct and maintain necessary bridges, culverts, or siphons and shall not impair 3359.
the uses of such road or highway; provided, that if any public road or highway or public bridge shall be upon the ground necessary for the dam site, reservoir, or lake, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to change said road and to remove such bridge that the same may not interfere with the construction of the proposed dam, reservoir, or lake; provided further, that the expense of making such change shall be paid by the person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district desiring to construct such dam site, lake or reservoir. [Id. sec. 77.]

Liability for repairs.—Under this article and Art. 5014, which empowers county commissioners to cause all necessary bridges to be kept in repair, on a company's refusal to comply with its duty, the county can make the repairs and enforce reimbursement from the company therefor without first applying for mandamus to compel the company to make them. Orange County v. Cow Bayou Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 963.

Art. 5008. [704] May cross streams, etc.—Such person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district shall have power to construct its ditch or canal across, along or upon any stream of water. [Id. sec. 78.]

Art. 5009. [3130] Liens, etc.—Every person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, who has heretofore constructed or may hereafter construct any ditch, canal, dam, lake or reservoir for the purposes of irrigation, and who shall lease, rent, furnish, or supply water to any person, association of persons, or corporation for the purpose of irrigation, shall, irrespective of contract, have a preference lien superior to every other lien upon the crop or crops raised upon the land thus irrigated. [Id. sec. 87.]

Art. 5009a. Enforcement of liens.—For the enforcement of the lien provided for in the preceding section [Art. 5009], every such person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district shall be entitled to all the rights and remedies prescribed by chapter 1, title 80, of the Revised Civil Statutes of this state for the enforcement of the lien as between landlord and tenant. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 5011. Surveys under reclamation act.—When in the examination of any irrigation or reclamation project under the provisions of the act of congress, known as the reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, it shall be found advisable or necessary to irrigate or reclaim lands within the limits of this state, the secretary of the department of the interior is authorized to make all necessary examinations and surveys for and to locate and construct irrigation or reclamation works within this state and to perform any and all acts necessary to carry into effect the provisions, limitations, charges, terms and conditions of said reclamation act. [Id. sec. 79.]

Art. 5011a. Reclamation projects.—The provisions of this Act shall in all things apply to the construction, maintenance and operation of any irrigation works in this state, constructed under what is known as the federal reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, and the amendments thereto in so far as the provisions of this Act are not inconsistent with said act of congress or the amendments thereto or the regulations prescribed by the secretary of the department of the interior in conformity to such reclamation act and the amendments thereto. [Id. sec. 80.]

Art. 5011b. Diversion of water from watershed prohibited when.—It shall be unlawful for any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district to take or divert any of the water of the ordinary flow, underflow, or storm flow of any stream, water course, or watershed in this state into any other natural stream, water course, or watershed to the prejudice of any person or property situated within the watershed from which such water is proposed to be taken or diverted. [Id. sec. 81.]
Art. 5011c. Application to board of water engineers; hearing; appeals.—Before any person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district shall take any water from any natural stream, water course, or watershed in this state into any other watershed, such person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district shall make application to the board of water engineers for a permit so to take or divert such waters, and no such permit shall be issued by the board until after full hearing before said board as to the rights to be affected thereby, and such hearing shall be held and notice thereof given at such time and such place in such mode and manner as the board may prescribe; and from any decision of the board an appeal may be taken to the district court of the county in which such diversion is proposed to be made in the mode and manner prescribed in this Act for other appeals from the decision of the board. [Id. sec. 82.]

Note.—Section 83 is purely criminal, and is here omitted.

Art. 5011d. Reservoirs and canals, etc., to be fenced.—Unless the person, association of persons, corporation, or irrigation district owning or controlling any ditch, canal, reservoir, dam, or lake shall keep the same securely fenced, no cause of action shall accrue in their favor against owners of livestock for any trespass thercon. [Id. sec. 84.]

Art. 5011e. Alienation of land required, etc.—Any corporation organized under the provisions of the general laws of this state, or the provisions of this Act for any of the purposes stated in this Act, shall have the power to acquire lands by voluntary donation or purchase in payment of stock or bonds or water rights; and to hold, improve, subdivide, and dispose of all such land and other property; and to borrow money for the construction, maintenance and operation of its canals, ditches, flumes, feeders, reservoirs, dams, lakes, wells and other property and franchises to the extent of the value thereof to secure the payment of any debts contracted for same; provided, no corporation shall issue stock or bonds except for money paid, labor done, or property actually received, and all fictitious increases of stock or indebtedness shall be void; and provided further, all lands acquired by such corporation except such as are used for the construction, maintenance, or operation of such canals, ditches, laterals, feeders, reservoirs, dams, lakes, wells and other necessary works, shall be alienated within fifteen years from the date of acquiring said lands or be subject to judicial forfeiture. [Id. sec. 85.]

Art. 5011f. Directors may be elected.—Any corporation organized under the provisions of the general laws of this state or the provisions of this Act, for any of the purposes stated in this Act, may elect directors or trustees to hold office for a period of three years and may provide for the election of one-third in number thereof each year. [Id. sec. 86.]

Note.—Section 90 makes it a misdemeanor to permit Johnson grass and Russian thistle to go to seed near a reservoir or water course, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

Art. 5011g. Artesian wells.—An artesian well is defined for the purposes of this Act to be any artificial well in which, if properly cased, the waters will rise by natural pressure above the strata in which they are found. [Id. sec. 91.]

Art. 5011h. Certain artesian wells declared nuisances.—Any artesian well which is not tightly cased, capped and furnished with such mechanical appliances as will readily and effectively arrest and prevent the flow from such well, either over the surface of the ground about the well or wasting from the well through the strata through which it passes is hereby declared a public nuisance and subject to be abated as such. [Id. sec. 92.]
Art. 5011i. Waste defined.—Waste is defined for the purposes of this Act in relation to artesian wells to be the causing, suffering or permitting the waters of an artesian well to run into any river, creek or other natural water course or drain, superficial or underground channel, bayou, or into any sewer, street, road, highway, or upon the land or any other person than that of the owner of such well, or upon the public lands, or to run or percolate through the strata above that in which such water is found: unless it be used for the purposes and in the manner in which it may be lawfully used on the premises of the owner of such well; provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the use of such water, if suitable, for the proper irrigation of trees standing along or upon any street, road or highway, or for ornamental ponds or fountains, or the propagation of fish or for the purposes authorized by this Act. [Id. sec. 93.]

Note.—Section 94 makes the wasting of water a misdemeanor, and is omitted.

Art. 5011j. Record of boring, etc.—Any person boring or causing to be bored any artesian well shall keep a complete and accurate record of the depth and thickness and character of the different strata penetrated, and when such well is completed, shall transmit by registered mail to the board of water engineers a copy of such record. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction therefor shall be fined in any sum not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 95.]

Art. 5011k. Oil wells.—Nothing in the preceding sections numbered ninety-one to ninety-five [Arts. 5011g–5011j], inclusive, shall be construed to apply to any oil well, and the status of such oil wells shall be unaffected by this Act. [Id. sec. 96.]

Art. 5011l. Certain riparian rights.—Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed as a recognition of any riparian right in the owner of any lands the title to which shall have passed out of the state of Texas subsequent to the first day of July, A. D. 1895. [Id. sec. 97.]

Art. 5011m. Vested rights not affected.—Nothing in this Act contained shall be held or construed to alter, affect, impair, increase, destroy, validate or invalidate any existing or vested right, existing at the date when this Act shall go into effect. [Id. sec. 98.]

Art. 5011n. Certain rights not impaired.—Nothing in this Act shall be held or construed to in any manner impair any right of any riparian land owner as same has been heretofore and is now recognized under the laws of this state as construed by the decisions of our supreme court. [Id. sec. 98a.]

Art. 5011o. Partial unconstitutionality not to invalidate, etc.—If any provision of this Act shall be held unconstitutional, it shall not be held to invalidate any other provision of this Act. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 5011p. Water-users' associations incorporated under United States reclamation act; no charter fees or franchise taxes.—Whereas, the congress of the United States has set apart certain funds arising from the sale of public lands of the United States, for the reclamation of arid land in certain states of the Union, by the construction of reservoirs and irrigation works therein; and,

Whereas, By special act of the congress of the United States, the benefits of such reclamation act have been extended to the state of Texas; and,

Whereas, By the terms of such Act the beneficiaries thereunder are required to refund to the government the cost of such works, and under the regulations of the department of the interior the farmers applying for water from such irrigation works are required to incorporate themselves into water-users associations, having an authorized capital equivalent to their debt to the United States government, such capital stock being appurtenant to the land and representing the mortgage placed upon the land to reimburse the government the cost of the irrigation works.

Now, therefore, be it enacted: That water-users associations, incorporated under the terms of the United States reclamation act, approved June 17, 1902, and the regulations of the United States department of the interior, made in pursuance of such Act, organized and carried on for the purpose of enabling citizens and residents of this state to avail themselves of the benefits of said reclamation act, shall not be subject to the laws of this state relating to charter fees and franchise taxes. [Acts 1911, p. 42, sec. 1.]

Art. 5011q. Lease of water rights in Guadalupe river; purposes of lease; supply to consumers; monopoly prohibited; rights of lienholders or purchasers.—The governor, the attorney general and the commissioner of the general land office of the state of Texas, or any two of them, be and are hereby authorized to lease to Cuero Light and Power Company or any other person, firm or corporation upon such terms and for such consideration as they may prescribe for a period not to exceed fifty years, any or all the water rights belonging to the state of Texas in and to the Guadalupe river in DeWitt county; Provided, also that the governor, the attorney general and the commissioner of the general land office, shall lease said water rights to said Cuero Light & Power Company, or to any other parties, at a rate of not less than one-tenth of one per cent annually, upon the gross earnings of said lessees.

Provided, however, that the water rights granted shall be for hydro-electric and power purposes only, and no one person, firm or corporation shall be granted the right to construct a greater number of dams in said river than is sufficient to generate with machinery ordinarily used for such purposes, not exceeding 1800 h.p. measured when the river is at its minimum flow, calculated by the standard method of hydraulic measurement.

Provided, further, that any firm, corporation or person to whom such lease is made shall distribute the power when sold to the public without discrimination, and shall sell the same to consumers in the same class and under like conditions at the same price and upon the same terms.

Provided, however, said leasehold may be sold, but no encumbrance or sale of leasehold which creates a trust or monopoly shall ever be made, nor shall any sale or leasehold ever be made to any trust or monopoly.

Provided, also, that any lien-holder, bond-holder or purchaser shall have no greater rights than the lessee hereunder, and shall be subject to the same liabilities and duties to the State. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 29, sec. 1.]

Art. 5011r. Mode of use; priority of right; compensation to third persons; duties of governor, attorney general and commissioner of the general land office; arbitration.—Said lessee or lessees shall have the right, power, privilege and authority to maintain any dam already in existence and to erect, build, construct, maintain and operate additional dams across the Guadalupe river in DeWitt county, Texas, and to build reservoirs, lakes, locks, abutments and buildings across the Guadalupe river in said county, necessary for the use of the privileges and rights hereby granted them, and any person firm or corporation now owning dams or having acquired property for the purpose of building a dam or dams under this Act, shall have priority over others in making such lease or leases and in the event a lease or leases shall be made to some person, firm or corporation other than one having a dam or dams or having acquired property for the purpose of constructing a dam or dams across said river in said county, then the person, firm or corporation so leasing said water rights and bed of said stream shall under the condition of such lease or leases be required by the governor, attorney general and commissioner of the general land office, or any two of them, to compensate the owner of said dam or dams now constructed, or property now acquired in such amount, and upon such terms as may be fixed by the governor, attorney general and commissioner of the general land office, if and as leases are made to others than the owners of the property above described, then the fact of leasing will require party leasing to submit to the arbitration herein provided. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5011s. Right to dam river.—Said lessee shall have the right, power, privilege and authority, in any manner to dam and overflow the Guadalupe river and its tributaries in said county, and in any manner to deepen, lower, drain and excavate said channel to said river, its bed and banks, and in said stream as far as the water from said dams may be backed or impounded and to include said Guadalupe river and its tributaries from said point up said stream as far as the water being backed or impounded from said dam shall extend. [Id. sec. 3.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Rights of riparian owners.—The appropriation of water for natural uses, such as for the use of cattle, and for household purposes, which must be absolutely supplied, can afford no ground of complaint by the lower proprietors, even if it were entirely consumed. Rhodes v. Whitehead, 27 T. 304, 84 Am. Dec. 631; Baker v. Brown, 55 T. 377.

The rights of a riparian proprietor to the use of the water may be restricted or lost by grant or by prescription. Baker v. Brown, 55 T. 377.

The doctrine of "reasonable use" of water for irrigation purposes obtains in Texas. Id.

Riparian lands must be both within the limits of the original survey or grant by the government of a stream, and within the watershed of such stream, and actually touch its waters. Id.

A riparian proprietor held not ordinarily entitled to divert water to land lying beyond the watershed of the stream, unless the supply is so abundant that other riparian proprietors will not be deprived of water. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 T. 678, 86 S. W. 723, 107 Am. St. Rep. 663.

Subject to the right of natural use, each riparian proprietor is entitled to the reasonable use of the waters of a stream for irrigation. Id.

A riparian proprietor cannot sell water to others to irrigate nonriparian lands. Id.

Riparian rights cannot extend beyond the original survey as granted by the government. Id.

A canal forming a deep water connection between a navigable stream and the sea was a practical improvement of the navigation of the stream, to which a riparian owner's right to use the water for irrigation was subordinated. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 848, judgment reversed 100 T. 192, 97 S. W. 686, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 656.

Taking of water from stream for irrigation held not within rule giving riparian owners right to use water for ordinary or natural uses. Id.

A riparian owner injured by a pollution of a stream held entitled to maintain an action therefor. Telle v. Rio Bravo Oil Co., 47 C. A. 153, 104 S. W. 420.

In an action by a riparian owner for damages to his cattle by the pollution of a stream, the measure of his damages was the difference in the market value of the cattle and their market value had they not been so damaged. Benjamin v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 473, 108 S. W. 468.

Where a riparian owner used the water of a stream for his cattle, and had no other water for them to drink, he was not obliged to remove the cattle from the premises to prevent their injury from drinking oil emptied into the stream by another riparian proprietor, unless he could do so at moderate expense, nor was he bound to sell his cattle as soon as he could find a market or at all if he did not wish to. Id.

In suits for damages to his property caused by drinking oil emptied into the stream by another proprietor, plaintiff need not show, in order to recover, that the cattle were in a healthy condition prior to the time they drank the oil. Id.
A railroad riparian owner which pollutes the water of a stream and materially injures another riparian owner is liable for any injury so resulting from its acts. Id.

One may lawfully remove gravel accumulated in the bed of a river, so long as he does not interfere with the rights of other citizens in the gravel. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 115 S. W. 685.

With a legal right of a riparian owner or one living near a stream has been invaded by the use of another riparian owner is a question of fact depending upon whether such use is reasonable. Boyd v. Schreiner (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 100.

One may leave his hogs on his premises, and recover for the killing thereof, where another, without his consent, and to a stream thereby to escape into that stream, or to escape drinking which they are killed. Mexia Light & Power Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 534.

One, negligently allowing oil to escape onto the premises of another, and into a stream, thereby kept there are killed, is liable. Id.

The right of a riparian owner to the water of a stream for irrigation purposes held not confined to a use of the water as it flows by, but he may store it in reservoirs for future use, provided this can be done consistently with the rights of the lower owners. Stainthorpe v. Johnson, 57 C. A. 242, 122 S. W. 300.

Each riparian owner has for irrigation purposes equal rights in the stream, and the use of each must be reasonable as to the rights of the others. Id.

A purchaser of land bounded on a stream held not required to submit to injurious effects on his land resulting from an obstruction existing at the time of the purchase. Knight v. Durham (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 591.

The canal of an irrigation company which has condemned all the waters of a stream should be treated the same as the stream as affecting the question whether land of a purchaser from the company on the line of the canal is riparian land. McKenzie v. Deason (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 246.

Riparian lands, without reference to location on the stream or to any statutory appropriation, have equal rights to a reasonable use of the water. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 523.

A riparian owner has no right to have any certain amount of water flow on past his land even as against one irrigating nonriparian lands; his right being limited to that needed to irrigate. Biggs v. Lee (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 709.

If the water of a river is sufficient only for the riparian owners, it must be equally divided between them. Id.

The waters of the Pecos river are public property, subject to the easement right of riparian owners to use such water as is reasonably sufficient for domestic and stock raising purposes and for irrigating the riparian lands, and a statutory appropriation of the water in excess of the riparian owners' needs is effective. Id.

A riparian owner was entitled to the amount of water reasonably necessary to irrigate his land after making due allowance for that water which at times, by reason of the small flow, was charged with mineral substance as to be useless for irrigation. Id.

All land abutting upon a running stream is "riparian" as to that part of the survey which lies within the watershed of the stream. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1376.

The rights of riparian owners to use water of a stream for irrigation are equal as between upper and lower owners; the water being proportioned in accordance with the number of acres of riparian land owned by each. Id.

Rights under grants or conveyances.—Ditches and waters necessary for beneficial use of land conveyed held to pass by the deed as appurtenances. Toyah Creek Irr. Co. v. Hutchins, 21 C. A. 274, 52 S. W. 101.

A partition deed construed, and held to reserve to the owners of the respective tracts the right to maintain the irrigating ditches and tanks for watering stock, and use the water thereby derived. Stratton v. West, 190 S. W. 240.

A contract for the construction of a dam and the taking of water from the stream for irrigation purposes held not to create in the grantee an exclusive right to the water impounded by the dam. Metcalfe v. Faucher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1038.

The grantee in the easement for the taking of water from the stream for irrigation purposes held entitled, also, to similarly use the waters of the stream under an equitable apportionment. Id.

"Appurtenance" defined, and held that grantee of lot with all rights and appurtenances thereto acquired right to use of water main constructed by former owner, but no rights to the main itself. Hunstock v. Limburger (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 327.

Grantee of lot and appurtenances, including right to adequate water supply, held not entitled to moneys received by vendee of former owner from sales of rights to connect with the main where the sale of such rights did not interfere with his adequate water supply. Id.

An instrument whereby one landowner granted another the right to erect a dam and carry water across the first landowner's land held to give the second landowner exclusive right to the water impounded by the dam. Metcalfe v. Faucher (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1114.

Ancient Mexican grants of water rights held to grant to each grantee water rights in common. San Juan Ditch Co. v. Cassin (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 815.

Where grantees of water rights have only equal rights in the waters of a stream, each must use the water with a due regard to the rights of the other grantees. Id.

Actions to establish or protect rights.—Consumers of water taken by statutory appropriation from a public stream, who obtained their rights by contract from the appropriating company, have no direct right in the water which makes them necessary parties to an action against the company for an infringement of the right of appropriation of another appropriator, and a right to have them made parties was waived by a failure to object. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

Consumers of a company having a right to appropriate water which has been infringed may be properly made parties to an action against the infringer by allegation and proof that the appropriator had refused to protect its appropriation to their injury. Id.
Contracts to supply water.—By irrigation companies, see notes under Art. 50028.

The act of damages incurred by a lessee for failure of the company to furnish water to irrigate the land to raise a crop determined. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. v. Langford Bros., 32 C. A. 401, 74 S. W. 926; Dunlap v. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co., 43 C. A. 269, 96 S. W. 43; McFaddlin v. Sims, 43 C. A. 519, 97 S. W. 215.

Utter for furnish water the lessor to find limiting its liability for damages resulting from failure to furnish sufficient water, the limitation of liability held to apply, not only to a failure to furnish sufficient water, but to a failure to furnish.

Therein, a lessee for repairing the injury to a tenant's crop, evidence that the landlord had no water for that purpose held immaterial.

DAMAGES TO LAND.

An action by tenants against their landlords on a contract to furnish water for irrigating failure to supply water recover by the landlords warranted that an irrigation company would perform its contract with the landlords to furnish such water. Stockton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 428.

In an action for breach of a landlord's agreement to furnish water to irrigate the tenant's crop, evidence that the landlord had no water for that purpose held immaterial.

DAMAGES TO PROPERTY.

Liability for injury to property.—Construction of railroads, see notes under Art. 6432.

While for tort in so placing irrigation ditches as to injure adjacent land the officer superintending the work would be personally liable, yet in a suit to abate the ditch the irrigating company would be a necessary party. In such action, joined with one for damages against the president alone, it was error to order the removal of the ditch. A chartered company is liable for its torts, and has no more right to commit them than a natural person. An irrigation company is bound to construct its works so as not to trespass upon the rights of adjacent landowners. Its officers and servants committing such wrong would also be liable for a trespass. Bates v. Van Pelt, 1 C. A. 155, 20 S. W. 944.

In an action for an irrigation company to construct an irrigation canal to drain water, and providing an insufficient substitute therefore, held liable for resulting damage from flood. Barstow Irr. Co. v. Black, 39 C. A. 80, 86 S. W. 1036.

Persons whose land was flooded by the obstruction of a natural drain by an irrigation canal embankment held not prevented from recovering damage by their failure sooner to cut the embankment, so as to drain the land. Id.

A corporation which constructed an irrigation canal embankment so as to obstruct natural drainage, and providing an insufficient substitute therefore, held liable for resulting damage from flood. Barstow Irr. Co. v. Black, 39 C. A. 80, 86 S. W. 1036.

In an action for damages by flooding plaintiff's land held that his action was not barred on the theory that he could have prevented the damage by closing the opening in an irrigation ditch on defendant's land. Cody v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1109.

In an action for damages to plaintiff's rice crop owing to an overflow of water from defendant's canal, the measure of damages as to the rice destroyed determined. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims, 45 C. A. 790, 94 S. W. 265.

In an action against an irrigation company for overflowing crops, held error to exclude evidence as to the heavy expense plaintiff would have incurred in protecting the crops. McLellan v. Brownsville Land & Irrigation Co., 46 C. A. 249, 103 S. W. 206.

In an action for injuries by the withdrawal of waters of an artificial lake, the measure of the owner's damages is the difference in value of the land before and after such withdrawal. Fin & Feather Club v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 150.

Where a landowner acquires the right to flood adjoining land, the owner acquires a real right in the height of water over the ordinary height of water thereafter. Duson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 321.

Pollution of wells.—In a suit to enjoin defendants from locating a cemetery in a certain place, evidence examined, and held to sustain the finding that the establishment and use of the cemetery as proposed would pollute the water used by plaintiffs. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 453.
The measure of damages for temporary injury to a well on a farm making it unfit for use is the annual damages up to the time of trial by being deprived of its use for domestic or farm purposes. Texas Co. v. Giddings (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1142.

— By oil or gas.—See notes at end of Title 134.

Use of well as affecting rights of adjoining owners.—Railroad's use of a well, constructed on its land and fed by percolating waters, held limited to a reasonable use, in connection with its land as land, against an adjoining well owner. East v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 646.

Actions for conversion of water—Evidence.—In an action for the alleged conversion of water from a well, evidence examined, and held to show that the well was not on plaintiff's land and that he could not recover. Couch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 947.

Articles 5012-5107.—Repealed. See Art. 5107-105.

Art. 5107-1. Commissioners' courts authorized to establish irrigation districts; boundaries; petition; notice of hearing, etc.—The county commissioners' court of any county in this state, at any regular or called session thereof, may hereafter establish one or more irrigation districts in their respective counties in the manner hereinafter provided. Said districts may or may not include within their boundaries, villages, towns, and municipal corporations, or any part thereof, but no land shall at the same time be included within the boundaries of more than one irrigation district created under this Act. Such irrigation district, when so established, may make irrigation improvements therein, or may purchase improvements already existing or may purchase improvements and make additional improvements and issue bonds in payment therefor, as hereinafter provided.

Upon the presentation to the county commissioners’ court of any county in this state, either at a regular or any called session of said court, of a petition signed by a majority in number of the holders of title or evidence of title to lands situated within the proposed districts and representing a majority in value as indicated by the state and county assessment rolls of all of said lands praying for the establishment of an irrigation district and setting forth the necessity, public utility and feasibility, and setting forth the proposed boundaries thereof and designating a name for such irrigation district, which name shall include the name of the county. The said commissioners' court shall, at the session when said petition is presented, set the same down for hearing at some regular or special session of said court called for the purpose not less than thirty nor more than ninety days from the presentation of said petition, and shall order the clerk of said court to give notice of the date and place of said hearing by posting a copy of said petition and the order of the court thereon in five public places within said proposed district, and one at the county court house door of said county. Said clerk shall receive as compensation for such service one dollar for each notice so posted and five cents per mile for each mile necessarily traveled in posting such notices. Such notices shall be posted for at least twenty days prior to the date of such public hearing. The clerk shall make due return of a true copy of such notice, showing the time when and the places where such notices were posted, and shall file the same in his office and among the papers affecting such district. [Acts 1913, p. 386, sec. 1.]

Art. 5107—2. Who may contest, etc.; jurisdiction, etc.—Upon the day set by said county commissioners' court for the hearing of said petition, any person whose lands would be affected by the creation of such district may appear before said court and contest the creation of such district or contend for the creation thereof, and may offer testimony to show that such district is or is not necessary, and would or would not be of any public utility, and that the creation of such district would or would not be feasible or practicable. Said county commissioners shall have exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine all contests and objections to the creation of such district and all matters pertaining to the same, except as is hereinafter provided, and may adjourn the hearing of any matter connected herewith from day to day, and all judgments rendered by said court in relation thereto shall be final, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5107—3. Court to make findings, etc.—If, at the hearing of such petition, it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that the organization of such district and the construction or purchase of the construction and purchase of the proposed irrigation plant is feasible and practicable, and that it is needed and would be a public benefit and a benefit to the lands included in the district, then the court shall so find, and cause its findings to be entered of record. But if the court should find that the irrigation of such district is not feasible and practicable and that it would not be a public benefit or is not needed or would not be a public utility, then the court may enter such findings of record and dismiss the petition at the cost of the petitioners. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5107—4. Appeals from order granting or dismissing petition.—If at the hearing provided for in section 3 [Art. 5107—3] of this Act the court shall enter an order granting or dismissing the petition for the organization of said district at the cost of petitioners, then and in that event the petitioners, or any one or more of them, or any one owning lands situated in such proposed district, may appeal from said order to the district court, and in the event of such appeal, said cause shall be tried under the rules prescribed for practice in the district court, and shall be tried de novo and the clerk of the commissioners' court shall transfer to the clerk of the district court within thirty days from the date of notice of appeal, all records filed with the county commissioners' court, and it shall be unnecessary to file any other or additional pleadings in said court. The final judgment on appeal shall be certified to the commissioners' court for their further action. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5107—5. Election to be held, when, etc.—After the hearing of the petition as provided for in section 2 and 3 [Arts. 5107—2, 5107—3] of this Act, if the commissioners' court shall find in favor of the petitioners for the establishment of a district according to the boundaries as set forth in said petition, the county commissioners' court shall order an election to be held within said proposed irrigation district at the earliest possible legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the following propositions: "For the Irrigation District," "Against the Irrigation District,” and the election of five directors and an assessor and collector as is hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5107—6. Notice of election.—After the ordering of the election as provided in the preceding section [Art. 5107—5], notices of such election shall be given stating the time and place or places of holding the election and showing the boundaries of said proposed district, and such notices shall also show the presiding officer or officers appointed for the holding of said election. Such notices shall be posted in four public places in such proposed district, and one shall be posted at the court house door of the county in which such proposed district is situated, shall be posted for twenty days previous to the date of the election, and shall contain the proposition to be voted upon and names of offices to be filled at such election. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5107—7. Election, how conducted; ballots.—The manner of conducting such election shall be governed by the election laws of the state of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided, and at such election none but resident property tax payers, who are qualified voters of said proposed district shall be entitled to vote on any question submitted to the voters thereof at such election. The county commissioners' court shall name a polling place for such election in each voting precinct or part of a voting precinct embraced in said district, and shall also select and appoint two judges, one of whom shall be the presiding judge, and two clerks at each polling place named, and shall provide one and a half times as many ballots for said election as there are qualified resident tax-payer voters within such district, as shown by the tax rolls of said county. Said ballots shall have printed thereon the following: “For the Irrigation District,” “Against the Irrigation District,” and said ballot shall also contain a space in which to write the name or names of the officer or officers to be selected at such election, and each voter at such election may write or have printed upon said ballot the name of the parties voted for as directors and as assessor and collector, and there shall be no other matter placed upon said ballot. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5107—8. Oath of voter.—Every person who offers to vote in any election held under the provisions of this Act, shall first take the following oath before the presiding judge of the polling place where he offers to vote, and for such purpose the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer same: “I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of ______ county, and that I am a resident property tax payer of the proposed irrigation district voted on at this election, and have not voted before in this election.” [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5107—9. Return and canvass of votes; directors.—Immediately after the election, the presiding judge at each polling place shall make returns of the result in the same manner as provided for in general elections for the state and county officers and the commissioners’ court shall, at a regular session or a special session called for that purpose, canvass such vote, and if it be found that the votes of two-thirds of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon shall have been cast in favor of the irrigation district, then the court shall declare the result of said election in favor of the establishment of said district, and shall enter the same in the minutes of said court, and shall also canvass the vote for directors and assessor and collector, and issue or cause to be issued to the five directors receiving the highest number of votes certificates of their election and to the person receiving the highest number of votes for assessor and collector, a certificate of his election as provided under the general election law. Provided, however that should it be found that two or more persons had received the same number of votes for the fifth position or the position of the fifth director, then the said commissioners’ court shall select one of said persons to fill said position. [Id. sec. 9.]
Art. 5107-10. Orders establishing district; name and number.—If the commissioners' court shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the establishment of the irrigation district, then said court shall cause to be made and entered in the minutes of said court an order setting forth facts substantially as follows: "In the matter of the petition of ______ and ______ others, praying for the establishment of an irrigation district as in said petition described and designated as ______ County Irrigation District No. ______; Be it known that an election was called for that purpose in said district and held on the ______ day of _______, A. D. 19__, and two-thirds majority of the resident property tax-payers voting thereat voted in favor of the creation of said irrigation district. Now, therefore, it is ordered by the court that said irrigation district be and the same is hereby established under the name of ______ County Irrigation District No. ______, with the following metes and bounds (which field notes shall be copied in the record)."

All irrigation districts hereafter created shall bear the name of the county in which it may be located as a part of its name, and shall be numbered consecutively as created and established under the order of the commissioners' court. Provided, however, that all districts heretofore established and otherwise named shall not be required to change its name, but may do so by filing with the commissioners' court a declaration in writing declaring such intentions, such declaration to be recorded as is hereinafter provided for the record of the order of the commissioners' court establishing irrigation districts, but the numbers assumed thereby shall not conflict with the numbers of irrigation districts hereafter created. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 5107-11. Copy of order to be filed and recorded.—After the making and entering by the commissioners' court of the order establishing irrigation districts as herein provided, the said court shall cause to be made a certified copy of such order, which shall be filed with the county clerk of the county in which such district is situated and shall cause same to be duly recorded in the deed records of said county and properly indexed in the same manner providing for the recording and indexing of deeds, and such recordation shall have the same effect, in so far as notice is concerned, as is provided for the record of deeds and all costs in connection with the making and recording of such copies shall be paid by the district. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 5107-12. Bonds and oaths of directors.—Within ten days after the making and entry of the order of the commissioners' court declaring the result of the election and the establishment of the irrigation district as hereinbefore provided, or as soon thereafter as is practicable, the directors elected at such election shall each make and enter into a good and sufficient bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, each, payable to the irrigation district, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duties to be approved by the commissioners' court; provided, however, that after the organization of such district, all bonds required to be given by any director, officer or employee of such irrigation district shall be approved by the directors of such districts, and said directors shall take the oath of office prescribed by statute for the commissioners' court, except that the name of the irrigation district shall be substituted for the name of the county in said oath of office; and the bond and oath herein provided for shall be filed with the county clerk of the county within which said district is situated and be by him recorded in the official bond records for said county, and after its record, said bond shall be delivered by the county clerk to the depository selected by such district under the provisions of this Act, and shall be by it safely kept and preserved as part of the records of said district. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 5107-13. President and secretary; quorum.—The directors for such irrigation district shall organize by electing one of their number as president and one as secretary; and any three of whom shall constitute a quorum; and a concurrence of three shall be sufficient in all matters pertaining to the business of their district except the letting of contracts and the drawing of warrants on the depository, which shall require the concurrence of at least four of said directors. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 5107—14. Qualifications of directors.—No person shall be elected a director for any irrigation district created under this Act unless he is a resident of the state of Texas and owns land subject to taxation within said irrigation district, and who, at the time of such election, shall be more than twenty-one years of age. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 5107—15. Assessor and collector; bond, etc.; qualifications; compensation.—The office of assessor and collector herein provided for shall be filled by the same person, and before entering upon his duties as such assessor and collector, he shall qualify by making and entering into a good and sufficient bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as assessor and collector, and for the paying over to the district depository of all sums of money coming into his hands as such collector; provided, however, that the directors shall require additional security in the event in their judgment the same may become necessary; and such assessor and collector shall be a resident of the district, or any town within the general boundaries of the district, and a qualified voter in the county, and shall receive such compensation for his services as may be provided by the board of directors, not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 5107—16. Survey of boundaries, etc.—It shall be the duty of the directors, immediately after they qualify as such, to cause an actual survey of the boundaries of such district to be made according to the boundaries designated in the petition for the establishment of such district, or to adopt in whole or in part such boundaries where already established, and to have said boundary marked by suitable monuments. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 5107—17. Petition for exclusion of lands.—The owner or owners of the fee of any land constituting a portion of any irrigation district may, within thirty days after the election, qualification and organization of the first board of directors for such irrigation district, file with said board a petition praying that such lands may be excluded from and taken out of said district. The petition shall describe the lands which the petitioners desire to have excluded by metes and bounds, and such petition must be acknowledged in the same manner and form as is required in cases of conveyance of real estate. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 5107—18. Notice of hearing, etc.—Upon the filing of a petition for the exclusion of any lands from said district with the board of directors, they shall immediately set said petition down for hearing for a day certain, not to exceed ten days, however, from the date of the filing thereof, and shall cause notice of such hearing to be given by the posting of written or printed notices of the time and place of such hearing at three public places within said district. Such notice shall contain a copy of the petition for exclusion. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 5107—19. Hearing; board of directors to determine whether lands shall be excluded, etc.—The board of directors, at the time and place mentioned in such notice, shall proceed to hear the petition and all objections thereto, and shall determine whether or not said lands, or any portion thereof, shall remain as a portion of such district; and if upon such hearing said directors shall determine that the land desired to be withdrawn from said district or any portion thereof is not susceptible to irrigation from the system proposed to be provided, then such non-irrigable lands shall be excluded therefrom; provided, however, that in the event such petition is not filed within thirty days from the date of the qualification of the first board of directors, then no such petition shall thereafter be filed or considered by such board, and such excluded lands and the owners thereof thereby waive all rights to be served with water from such irrigation system. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 5107—20. Petition for inclusion of lands; survey; lands, when admitted, etc.; application, how executed and recorded.—The owner or owners of the fee to lands contiguous to any irrigation district created under this Act may file with the board of directors of said district a petition in writing, praying that such land be included in such district. The petition shall describe the tract or body of land owned by the petitioners by metes and bounds, and upon the filing of such petition with the board of directors, said board of directors shall cause an accurate survey of the said tract of land to be made and the boundaries thereof marked upon the ground, and said tract of land may be admitted as a part of the irrigation district provided it can be irrigated without prejudice to the rights of any of the lands originally contained therein to be first furnished with an adequate supply of water, and when said lands are so admitted, they shall immediately become subject to their proportionate share of any taxation or bonded indebtedness that may have been created against said district and subject to such reasonable charge against such lands for the purpose of defraying its part of the expense of maintenance, operation or other necessary expenditures previously made as may be determined by the board of directors. If the lands described in said petition are admitted as a part of the district, the application for such admission shall be signed and acknowledged as provided for deeds, and shall be recorded in the deed records of the county in which such district is situated, together with the order of the directors endorsed thereon. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 5107—21. Powers and duties of directors.—The board of directors herein provided for shall have control over and management of all the affairs of such irrigation district, shall make all contracts pertaining thereto, and shall employ all necessary employés for the proper handling and operation of such district, and especially may employ a general manager, attorneys, a bookkeeper, an engineer, water master and such assistants and laborers as may be required, and they may also buy all necessary work animals, motors, pumps, engines, boilers, machinery and supplies as may be required in the erection, operation and repair of the improvements of the district. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 5107—22. Director not to be interested in contract; penalty.—No director of any irrigation district, irrigation engineer or employee thereof shall be directly or indirectly interested either for themselves or as agents for any one else in any contract for the purchase or construction of any work by said irrigation district, and if any such person shall directly or indirectly become interested in any such contract, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine in any sum not to exceed one thousand dollars, or by confinement in the county jail for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 5107—23. Defined districts; powers; judicial notice.—All irrigation districts established under the provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be defined districts within the meaning of section 52, article 3, of the constitution and may, by and through its directors, sue and be sued in any and all courts of this state in the name of such irrigation district, and all courts of this state shall take judicial notice of the establishment of such districts and said districts shall contract and be contracted with in the name of such districts. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 5107—24. Districts may acquire lands, how.—Irrigation districts created under the provisions of this Act are hereby empowered to acquire the necessary right of way for all reservoirs, dams, wells, canals, laterals, sites for pumping plants and all other improvements contemplated by this Act by gift, grant, purchase or condemnation, and it may acquire the title to any and all lands necessary or incident to the successful operation thereof in addition to any of the above in the manner herein provided, except that in no event shall such irrigation district have the right to acquire by condemnation any irrigation system that may be now or may hereafter be built by any individual or corporation authorized to appropriate water and construct irrigation plants under the irrigation laws of this state or any of the rights of such person or corporation appertaining to such system, but any and all such plants and rights may be acquired by contract from the owners thereof in the same manner that any other property may be acquired, and all such irrigation districts shall have full authority and right to acquire water rights and privileges in any way that any individual or corporation may acquire same and to hold the same either by gift, purchase, devise, appropriation or otherwise. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 5107—25. Assessments; duties and powers of assessor and collector; statements and lists; penalties, etc.—Immediately upon the qualification of the assessor and collector, as hereinbefore provided, he shall enter upon the discharge of his duties, and shall at once proceed to make an assessment of all of the taxable property, both real, personal and mixed, in his said district; and such assessment shall be made annually thereafter. Said assessment shall be made upon blanks to be provided by the directors for such district. Said assessment shall consist of a full statement of all property owned by the party rendering same in said district and subject to taxation therein, and shall state the full value thereof. There shall be attached to each such assessment an affidavit made by the owner or his agent rendering said property for taxation to the effect that said assessment or rendition contains a true and complete statement of all property owned by the party for whom said rendition is made in said district and subject to state and county taxation therein; and in addition to all such assessment or renditions made by the owner or agents of such property, the tax assessor shall make out similar lists of all property not rendered for taxation in such districts that is subject to state and county taxation therein. Each and every person, partnership or corporation owning taxable property in such district shall render same for taxation to the assessor when called upon so to do, and if not called upon by the assessor, the owner shall, on or before June first of each year, nevertheless, tender for taxation all property owned by him in the district subject to taxation. And all laws and penal statutes of this state providing for securing the rendition of property for state and county taxes, and providing penalties for the failure to render such properties shall apply to all persons, partnerships or corporations owning or holding property in any irrigation districts. The tax assessor shall have authority to administer oaths to fully carry out the provisions of this section. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 5107—26. Board of equalization; appointment; duties; secretary, etc.—The directors for each irrigation district created under the provisions of this Act shall, at their first meeting, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and annually thereafter, appoint three commissioners, each being a qualified voter and resident property owner of said district, who shall be styled the "Board of Equalization," and at the same meeting the said board of directors shall fix the time for the meeting of such board of equalization for the first year; and said board of equalization shall convene at the time fixed by the directors to receive all assessment lists or books of the assessor for said district for examination, correction, equalization, appraisement and approval, and at all meetings of said board, the secretary of the board of directors shall act as secretary thereof, and keep a permanent record of all the proceedings of said board of equalization. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 5107—27. Oaths of members.—Before entering upon the duties as such board of equalization, each of the members thereof shall take and prescribe the following oath: "I, ———, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will, to the best of my ability, make a full and complete examination, correction, equalization and appraisement of all property contained within said district, as shown by the assessment lists or books of the assessor for said district," and said oath shall be spread upon the minutes to be kept by the secretary of said board. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 5107—28. Duties and powers of board of equalization.—The board of equalization herein provided for shall cause the assessor to bring before them, at the time fixed for the convening of said board, all the assessment lists or books of the assessor of said district for their examination, that they may see that each and every person has rendered his property at its full value; and said board shall have power to send for persons and papers, to swear and qualify persons who testify, to ascertain the value of such property, and if they are satisfied it is too high, they shall lower it to its proper value; and if too low, they shall raise the value of such property to a proper figure. Said board shall have power to correct any and all errors that may appear on the assessor's lists or books, and shall have further authority to add any and all property to said lists or inventories that may have been omitted therefrom. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 5107—29. Value, how equalized; complaints.—The board of equalization shall equalize, as near as possible, the value of all of the property situated within said district, having reference to the location of said property and the improvements thereon situated. And any person may file with said board at any time before the final action of said board, a complaint as to the assessment of his or any other person's property, and said board shall hear said complaint, and said complainant shall have the right to have witnesses examined to sustain said complaint as to the assessment of said property, or as to a failure to render any property owned by any person, partnership or corporation situated within said district subject to taxation which has not been properly assessed. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 5107—30. Assessor to furnish lists; board to appraise.—The assessor for such district, at the same time that he delivers to said board his lists and books, shall also furnish to said board a certified list of the names of all persons who either refuse to swear to, or to sign, the oath or affirmation as required by this law, together with the list of the property of such persons situated within said district, as made by him through other information, and said board shall examine the list and appraise the property so listed by the assessor. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 5107—31. Value, when raised; notice to owner.—In all cases where the board of equalization shall find it their duty to raise the value of any property appearing on the lists or books of the assessor, they shall, after having fully examined such lists or books, and corrected all errors appearing therein, adjourn to a day not less than ten nor more than fifteen days from the date of adjournment, such day to be fixed in the order of adjournment, and shall cause the secretary of said board to give written notice to the owner of such property, or to the person rendering same, of the time to which said board may have adjourned, and that such owner or person may at that time appear and show cause why the value of such property should not be raised, which notice may be served by depositing the same, properly addressed and postage paid, in any postoffice within the county. [Id. sec. 31.]
Art. 5107—32. Hearing; may lower value; approval and return of lists; general rolls and approval of same.—The board of equalization shall meet at the time specified in said order of adjournment and shall hear all persons the value of whose property has been raised; and if said board is satisfied they have raised the value of such property too high, they shall lower the same to its property value; and said board of equalization, after they have finally examined and equalized the value of all the property on the assessor's lists or books, or that may have been placed thereon by said board of equalization, shall approve said lists or books and return them, together with the lists of unrendered property to the assessor that he may make up therefrom his general rolls as required by this Act; and when said general rolls are so made up the board shall immediately reconvene to examine said rolls, and approve the same if found correct, and the action of the board at the meeting last provided for in this article shall be final and shall not be subject to revision by said board or by any other tribunal thereafter. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 5107—33. Compensation of members and secretary.—The members of the board of equalization and the secretary, while acting as secretary of said board, shall each receive such compensation for their services to be allowed by the directors for said district as they may deem just and reasonable, not to exceed, however, the sum of three dollars per day for the time actually engaged in the discharge of such duties. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 5107—34. Assessor and collector to make up assessment; duplicate rolls; records.—After the return to the assessor and collector of the assessment lists and books duly approved by the board of equalization, as hereinbefore provided for, the said assessor and collector shall make up the assessment of all taxable property situated in said district upon duplicate rolls, and after the approval of said rolls by the board of equalization, one of same shall deliver the same to the directors of said irrigation district, to be by them kept as a permanent record in their office, and all lists and books of said assessor shall be caused to be substantially bound and by him kept as a permanent record of his office, and be delivered, together with all other records of his office to his successor, upon his election and qualification, or, in case of a vacancy in such office to the directors for said irrigation district. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 5107—35. Collection of taxes; duties of assessor and collector, etc.—The assessor and collector shall collect all taxes due to said irrigation district, and shall, at the expiration of each week, pay over to the depository selected by said district all moneys by him collected, and shall report to the directors for such irrigation district on the fourth Saturday in every month all moneys so collected by him and paid over to the depository as hereinbefore provided, and shall perform all such other duties, and in such manner and according to such rules and regulations as the board of directors may prescribe, and for the convenience of the persons, firms or corporations owing such tax, shall keep and maintain an office with the board of directors for such irrigation district, where all such taxes may be paid. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 5107—36. Assessor and collector to be charged and credited, etc.; settlement and report.—The assessor and collector shall be charged by the directors for such irrigation district, upon a permanent finance ledger to be kept for said purpose by said district, with the total assessment as shown by the assessment rolls; and proper credit shall be given to the assessor and collector for all sums of money paid over to the depository as shown by his monthly reports as hereinbefore provided for, and upon the final annual settlement, the said assessor and collector shall make up a full, complete report of all taxes that have not been collected, which said report shall be audited by said board of directors, and proper credits given therefor, and such annual settlements shall be made on the first Monday in May of each year. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 5107—37. Term of assessor and collector.—The assessor and collector for said district shall hold office for the term of two years, and until his successor has been elected and qualified; provided, that the as-soressor and collector first elected to said office shall hold office only until the next general election to be held in said district for the election of officers, as provided by this Act. [Id. sec. 37.]

Art. 5107—38. Assessment, when made.—The assessment provided for in this Act shall be made upon all property subject to taxation in said district on the first day of January of each year, and such assessment shall be completed and the lists and books ready to deliver on or before the first day of June of each year. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 5107—39. Board of equalization shall convene, when; shall complete, when.—The board of equalization, after the first year, shall convene annually on the first Monday in June of each year to receive all of the assessment lists or books of the assessor of said district for examination, correction, equalization, appraisement and approval, and for the addition thereto of any property found to be unrendered in said district, and shall complete the examination and equalization of said lists and rolls by the second Monday of said year, and shall complete and deliver said rolls to the assessor and collector by the second Monday in July of said year, and the said assessment rolls shall be completed by the assessor and approved by the board of equalization, and returned to said assessor and collector by the first Monday in September of each year after the first assessment as hereinbefore provided. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 5107—40. Taxes, when due and payable.—All taxes provided for by this Act shall become due and payable on the first day of October of each year, and shall be paid on or before the 31st day of January thereafter. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 5107—41. Property returned delinquent; taxes, when lien, etc.
—All lands or other property which have been returned delinquent or which may hereafter be returned delinquent shall be subject to the provisions of this Act, and said taxes shall remain a lien upon said land, although the owner be unknown, or though it be listed in the name of a person not the actual owner, and though the ownership be changed, the land may be sold under the judgment of the court for all taxes, interest, penalty and cost shown to be due by such assessment for any preceding year. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 5107—42. Delinquent tax roll.—It shall be the duty of the directors for such irrigation district to cause to be prepared by the tax colclector, at the expense of such district, a list of all lands upon which the taxes remain unpaid on the 31st day of January of each year and such list of lands shall be known as a delinquent tax roll, and such delinquent tax roll shall be delivered to the secretary of such district, to be by him safely kept as a part of the record of his office. Such delinquent record shall carry a sufficient description to properly identify the land shown to be delinquent therein. Such description may be made by reference to lot or block number. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 5107—43. Delinquent tax record.—Upon receipt of such delin-quently tax roll by the directors of said irrigation district, the said directors shall cause said record to be recorded in a book which shall be labeled “The Delinquent Tax Record of . . . . County, Irrigation District No. . . .” and shall be accompanied by an index showing the name of delinquents in alphabetical order. [Id. sec. 43.]
Art. 5107—44. Delinquent tax record to be published.—Upon the completion of said delinquent tax record by any irrigation district, it shall be the duties of the directors thereof to cause the same to be published in some newspaper published in the county in which said district is situated for three consecutive weeks, but if no newspaper is published in the county, such list may be published in a newspaper outside of the county to be designated by such directors by a contract duly entered into, and a publisher's fee of not to exceed twenty-five cents for each tract of land so advertised; and said publication and any other publication in a newspaper provided for in this Act may be proven by the affidavit of the proprietor of the newspaper in which the publication was made, his foreman or principal clerk, annexed to a copy of the publication, specifying the time when and the paper in which the publication was made. [Id. sec. 44.]

Art. 5107—45. Suit to collect; petition, etc.—Twenty days after the publication of such notice, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the directors for such irrigation district shall employ an attorney to bring suit in the name of the irrigation district in the district court of said county for the purpose of collecting all taxes, interest, penalty and costs due upon said land. Said petition shall describe all lands upon which taxes and penalties shall remain unpaid and the total amount of taxes and penalties due thereon with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for the sale of said land at the rate of six per cent per annum, and shall pray for a judgment for said amount, and for the fixing, establishing and foreclosing of the lien existing against said land; that said lands be sold to satisfy said judgment for all taxes, interest, penalty and costs, and for such other relief to which such district may be entitled under the law and facts. All suits to enforce the collection of taxes as provided in this Act shall take precedence and have priority over all other suits pending in the district court. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 5107—46. Suit, how conducted; foreclosure; land, when may be sold in subdivisions; disposition of surplus.—The proper persons shall be made parties defendants in all such suits, and shall be served with process and other proceedings due therein as provided by law for suits of like character in the district court of this state, and in case of foreclosure, order of sale shall issue to the lands sold thereunder as in other cases of foreclosure; but if the defendant or his attorney shall, at any time before the sale, file with the sheriff or other officer in whose hands any such order of sale shall be placed a written request that the property described therein shall be divided and sold in less tracts than the whole, together with a description of such subdivision, then such officer shall sell the lands in said subdivision as the defendant may request, provided same are reasonable, and in such case, shall sell only as many subdivisions as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment, interest, penalties and cost, and after the payment of the taxes, interest, penalties and costs adjudged against it, the remainder of the purchase price, if any, shall be paid by the sheriff or other officer executing said order of sale to the defendant or his attorney of record. [Id. sec. 46.]

Art. 5107—47. Tax deeds; effect.—In all cases in which lands may be sold for default in the payment of taxes under the preceding section, it shall be lawful for the sheriff or other officer selling the same, or any of his successors in office, to make a deed or deeds to the purchaser, or to any other person to whom the purchaser may direct the deed to be made, and any such deed shall be held in any court of law or equity in this state to vest a good and perfect title in the purchaser thereof, subject to be impeached only for actual fraud. [Id. sec. 47.]

Art. 5107—48. Compensation of attorney; fees of officers.—The attorney representing such district in all suits against delinquent taxpayers that are provided for in this Act shall receive for such services such compensation as may be allowed by the directors for such irrigation district; provided, however, that in no event shall said fees exceed fifteen per cent of the amount of taxes so collected. The sheriffs, district clerks and other officers, executing any writ or performing any service in the foreclosure of delinquent taxes on any lands situated in such irrigated district shall receive the same fees for such services as is provided by statute as fees for like services performed in connection with the discharge of the duty of their respective offices. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 5107—49. Penalty for failure to pay tax; how enforced, etc.—If any person shall fail or refuse to pay the taxes imposed upon him or his property by this Act, until after the 31st day of January next succeeding the return of the assessment roll for said irrigation district, a penalty of ten per cent on the entire amount of such tax shall accrue, which penalty, when collected, shall be paid over to such district. And the collector of taxes shall by virtue of his tax roll seize and levy upon and sell so much personal property as shall be sufficient to make the amount of such taxes, together with the penalty above provided, interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum and all costs accruing thereon. If no personal property be found for seizure and sale as above provided, the collector shall make up and file with the secretary of the district the delinquent tax list hereinbefore provided for, charging against same all taxes, penalties and interest assessed against the owner thereof. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 5107—50. Redemption before sale.—Any delinquent taxpayer whose lands have been returned delinquent, or any one having an interest therein, may redeem the same at any time before his lands are sold under the provisions of this Act, by paying to the collector the taxes due thereon with interest at the rate of six per cent and all costs and the penalty of ten per cent as provided for in this Act. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 5107—51. Engineer; appointment and duties; maps and surveys.—After the establishment of any such irrigation district, and after the qualification of the board of directors, and after the return of the list of assessments of the taxable property situated in such district the board of directors for such district may appoint an engineer, whose duty it shall be to make a complete survey of the lands contained in said district, and to make a map and profile of the several canals, laterals, reservoirs, dams and pumping sites in such district and connected therewith, which shall also show any part of said canals, laterals, reservoirs and dams or pumping sites extending beyond the limits of such district, which said map shall show the name and number of each survey and shall also show the area in number of acres contained in such district. Provided, however, that such engineer may adopt any and all surveys heretofore made by any person, firm or corporation who have applied for or appropriated any water for irrigation under the general laws of this state; and provided, further, that said engineer may adopt all surveys for canals, laterals, reservoirs, dams or pumping sites shown on said maps or plats, or may adopt other maps, plats and surveys of the correctness of which he may be satisfied. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 5107—52. Maps and profiles shall show what, etc.—The maps hereinbefore provided for shall show the relation that each canal and lateral bears to each tract of land through which it passes and the shape into which it divides each tract, and how much and what part of each tract can be irrigated therefrom, and where the canal or lateral cuts off any less than twenty acres of land from any tract, the map shall show the number of acres so divided therefrom and the number of acres in the whole tract, showing the shape of such small tract and its relation to the canal or lateral. And such profile map shall also show in detail the number of cubic yards necessary to be moved or excavated in order to make such reservoir, canal or lateral, and shall show in detail the specification for all other works necessary to the construction of all improvements proposed to be made in such district, and give the estimated cost of each, and when said map, profile specifications and estimates shall have been completed by the engineer as herein provided, he shall sign the same in his official capacity and file them with the secretary of said board. Provided, however, that where said district contains any pumping plants, canals, dams, ditches or reservoirs, heretofore created and which is contemplated to be purchased or acquired by said irrigation district, then such map or plat and estimates as hereinbefore provided for shall show such improvements and the price or probable price at which the same may be acquired, and where additional improvements of canals, ditches, laterals, reservoirs or pumping plants are to be constructed, such report shall contain the detailed information with reference to such additional improvements as is provided for in this section. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 5107—53. Election for issuance of bonds, etc.—After the establishment of any such irrigation district and the qualification of the directors thereof, and after the making and filing of such maps, profiles, specifications and estimates as provided for in the preceding section of this Act [Art. 5107—52], and after the making and return of the assessment roll by the assessor and collector for said district as provided for in this Act, the board of directors may order an election to be held within such irrigation district at the earliest possible legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the proposition and none other "For the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax and Payment Therefor," "Against the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax and Payment Therefor." [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 5107—54. Notice of election.—Notice of such election, stating the amount of bonds, which shall not exceed the engineer's estimate and all necessary incidental expenses and the cost of additional work which may become necessary by any change or modification made by the directors for such irrigation district, stating the time and places of holding the election, shall be given by the secretary of the board of irrigation directors by posting notices thereof in four public places in such irrigation district, and one at the court house door of the county in which such proposed irrigation district is situated. Such notice shall be posted for twenty days previous to the date of the election, and shall contain the proposition to be voted upon as set forth in the preceding section of this Act [Art. 5107—53], together with the engineer's estimate of the probable cost of construction of the proposed improvement, and estimate of incidental expenses or of the purchase of improvements already existing, or of the purchase of such existing improvements and construction of additions thereto, as the case may be. [Id. sec. 54.]

Art. 5107—55. Election, how conducted, etc.—The manner of conducting such election shall be governed by the election laws of the state of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided. None but resident property taxpayers who are qualified voters of said proposed district shall be entitled to vote at any election on any question submitted to the voters thereof by the directors for such irrigation district at such election. The directors for such irrigation district shall name a polling place for such election in each voting precinct or part of the voting precinct embraced in said irrigation district, and shall also select and appoint two judges, one of whom shall be the presiding judge, and two clerks, for each voting place designated in said order; and shall provide one and one-half times as many ballots for said election as there are qualified resident taxpayers within such irrigation district, as shown by the tax rolls of said county. Said ballot shall have written or printed thereon these words and no others: “For the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax in Payment Therefor,“ and “Against the Issuance of Bonds and Levy of Tax in payment therefor.” [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 5107—56. Oath of voter.—Every person who offers to vote in any election held under the provisions of this Act shall first take the following oath before the presiding judge of the polling place where he offers to vote, and the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer same: “I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of —— County Irrigation District No. ——, and that I am a resident property tax-payer of said district, and that I have not voted before at this election.” [Id. sec. 56.]

Art. 5107—57. Return and canvass of votes.—Immediately after the election, the presiding judge at each polling place shall make return of the result in the same manner as provided for in general elections for state and county officers, such return to be made to the secretary of such district, who shall keep same in a safe place, and deliver them, together with the returns from the several polling places, to the directors of such irrigation district, who shall, at a regular session, or a special session, called for the purpose of canvassing said vote, at such session canvass the vote, and if it be found that the votes of two-thirds majority of the resident taxpaying voters voting therein shall have been cast in favor of the issuance of the bonds, and levy of tax, then said directors shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the issuance of the bonds and levy of tax and payment therefor, and shall cause the same to be entered in their minutes. [Id. sec. 57.]

Art. 5107—58. Order for issuance of bonds; limit of amount; additional bonds may be issued, when.—After the canvass of the vote and declaring the result as provided for in the preceding section [Art. 5107—57] the directors for said irrigation district shall make and enter an order directing the issuance of bonds for such district sufficient in amount to pay for such proposed improvements together with all necessary, actual and incidental expense connected therewith; provided, however, that said bonds shall not exceed in amount one-fourth of the actual assessed value of the real property in such district, as shown by the assessment thereof made for the purpose of determining the value thereof, or at the last annual assessment, as provided for in this Act, and not to exceed the amount specified in said order and notice of election. Provided, however, that if, after an election has been held for the issuance of bonds and the tax authorized and levied, and bonds have been authorized to be issued, or have been issued as provided for in this Act, the directors for said irrigation district shall consider it necessary to make any modifications in said irrigation district, or in any of the improvements thereof, or shall determine to purchase or construct any further or additional improvements therein and issue additional bonds upon the report of the engineer made as hereinbefore provided and authorized by this Act, or upon its own motion shall have the right to order a hearing for said purpose, or either or any of them, a notice thereof shall be given as for the original hearing, and if upon such hearing the directors for said irrigation district shall find it necessary to make said additional improvements, or purchase such additional property in order to carry out the purposes for which said district was organized, or to best serve the interest of such district, said finding shall be entered on record, and notice of an election for the issuance of said bonds shall be given, and such election held within such times and the returns of such election made as hereinbefore provided for in cases of original election, and if two-thirds majority of the property taxpaying voters of the district voting thereon vote in favor of additional bond issue and levy of tax and payment therefor, said directors shall declare such result, and enter the same in the minutes of said directors, and order such bonds to be issued as in the manner otherwise provided in this Act. [Id. sec. 58.]

Art. 5107—59. Execution and terms of bonds.—The bonds issued under the provisions of this Act shall be issued in the name of the irrigation district, signed by the president and attested by the secretary, with the seal of said district affixed thereto, and such bonds shall be issued in denominations of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars each, and such bonds shall bear interest at the rate of not to exceed six per cent per annum, payable annually or semi-annually. Such bonds shall by their terms provide the time, place or places, manner and conditions of their payment, and the interest thereon as may be determined and ordered by the directors for such irrigation district, and none of such bonds shall be made payable more than forty years after the date thereof. [Id. sec. 59.]

Art. 5107—60. Suit to contest validity, etc.—No suit shall be permitted to be brought in any court of this state contesting or enjoining the validity of the formation of any irrigation district created under the provisions of this Act, on any bonds issued hereunder, except in the name of the state of Texas by the attorney general, upon his own motion, or upon the motion of any party affected thereby upon good cause shown, except as herein provided. [Id. sec. 60.]

Art. 5107—61. Action to determine validity of bonds before sale; summons; notice to attorney general.—Any irrigation district in this state desiring to issue bonds in accordance with this Act shall, before such bonds are offered for sale, bring an action in the district court in any county of the judicial district in which said irrigation district may be situated, or in the district court of Travis county, to determine the validity of any such bonds. Such action shall be in the nature of a proceeding in rem, and jurisdiction of all parties interested may be had by publication of summons for at least three weeks in some paper of general circulation published in the county where the action is pending, and in the county in which said district is situated. Notice shall also be served upon the attorney general of the state of Texas of the term of court to which said suit is made returnable. Such notice to the attorney general shall contain a copy of all of the proceedings had in the formation of such district, and in connection with the issuance of said bonds. [Id. sec. 61.]

Art. 5107—62. Duty of attorney general; issue, how determined, etc.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general to make a careful examination of all such proceedings and require such further evidence and make such further investigation as may seem to him advisable. He shall then file an answer tendering the issue as to whether or not such district has been legally established and as to whether such bonds are legal and binding obligations upon such district. The issue thus made shall be tried and determined by the court and judgment entered upon such finding. Upon the trial of such cause the court may permit any person having an interest in the issue to be determined, to intervene and participate in the trial of the issues made. All suits brought under the provisions of this Act shall have preference over all other actions in order that a speedy determination as to the matters involved may be reached. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 5107—63. Errors in proceedings may be pointed out by court and corrected; judgment after correction.—Upon the trial of the issues made under the preceding section of this Act [Art. 5107—62], if the judgment of the court shall be adverse to the district, then such judgment may be by said district accepted, and the errors pointed out in such proceedings may be corrected, in the manner designated or directed by said court, and when so corrected, the judgment of the dis-district court shall be rendered showing that said corrections had been made, and that the bonds issued thereunder are binding obligations upon said district. And thereafter the judgment, when so finally made and entered, shall be received as res adjudicata in all cases arising in connection with the collection of said bonds or any interest due thereon, and as to all matters pertaining to the organization and validity of said district. [Id. sec. 63.]

Art. 5107—64. Copy of decree to be filed with comptroller of public accounts; record; evidence.—After the making and entry of the judgment of the district court, as hereinbefore provided, the clerk of said court shall make a certified copy of such decree, which shall be a part of the orders and decrees connected with such election, and said court decree shall be filed with the comptroller of public accounts, and to be by him recorded in a book kept for that purpose, and said certified copy, or a duly certified copy of said record made by the comptroller shall be received in evidence in all litigation thereafter arising which may affect the validity of such bonds, and shall be absolute evidence of such validity. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 5107—65. Comptroller to register bonds; certificate.—Upon the presentation of said bonds, together with a certified copy of the decree of the district court, as provided for in the preceding article, the comptroller shall register said bonds, together with a certified copy of the judgment, as herein provided for, in a book to be provided for that purpose, and shall attach to each of said bonds a certificate of the fact that the decree of the district court as required by this Act has been filed with him in his office; such certificate to be signed by him officially, and the seal of his office attached thereto. [Id. sec. 65.]

Art. 5107—66. County clerk to keep record of bonds, etc.; duty of secretary of district; fees.—Before the issuance of any bonds under the provisions of this Act, the county commissioners court in which said district is situated, in whole or in part, shall provide a well bound book in which a record shall be kept by the county clerk of all bonds issued, with their numbers, amount, rate of interest, date of issue, when due, where payable, and the annual rate per cent of tax levy made each year to pay the interest on said bonds, and to provide a sinking fund for their payment, and said book shall at all times be open to the inspection of all parties interested in said district, either as taxpayers or bond holders, and upon the payment of any bond an entry shall be made in said book, showing such payment, and the secretary of such irrigation district shall furnish to the county clerk certified copies of all orders made in connection with the issuance and levy and assessment of taxes for the payment of interest and creating a sinking fund for the final payment of such bonds. The county clerk shall receive for his service in recording all instruments of the irrigation district required to be recorded the same fees as are provided by law for other like service. [Id. sec. 66.]

Art. 5107—67. Bonds, how sold or disposed of.—After the issuance of said bonds, and after the registration by the comptroller of public accounts for the state of Texas, as provided by this Act, the board of directors for such district shall offer for sale and sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best possible price, but none of said bonds shall be sold for less than the face value thereof and the accrued interest thereon, and as fast as said bonds are sold, all moneys received therefrom shall be immediately paid over by the board of directors to the depository for said district. Provided, however, that the board of directors may exchange bonds for property to be acquired by purchase under contract, or in payment of the contract price for work to be done for the use and benefit of said irrigation district. [Id. sec. 67.]
Art. 5107—68. Construction and maintenance fund; expenses.—All expenses, debts and obligations necessarily incurred in the creation, establishment and maintenance of any irrigation district organized under the provisions of this Act shall be paid out of the construction and maintenance fund of such irrigation district, which fund shall consist of all moneys received by said district from the sale of the bonds of such district, or as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 68.]

Art. 5107—69. Taxes for interest, sinking fund and expenses.—Whenever any such irrigation district bonds shall have been voted, and before the issuance thereof the directors for such irrigation district shall levy taxes upon all property within said irrigation district, whether real, personal or mixed, and sufficient in amount annually to pay the interest on such bonds, as it shall fall due, together with an additional amount to be annually placed in a sinking fund sufficient to discharge and redeem said bonds at their maturity, and the said directors for such irrigation district may annually levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon all property within said district, whether real, personal or mixed, sufficient in amount to pay for the expenses of assessing and collecting such taxes from year to year until said bonds, together with all interest thereon, are fully paid and discharged. [Id. sec. 69.]

Art. 5107—70. Interest and sinking fund.—There is hereby created what shall be termed the "Interest and Sinking Fund" for such district, and all taxes collected under the provisions of this Act shall be credited to such fund, and shall never be paid out, except for the purpose of satisfying and discharging the interest on said bonds, or for the cancellation and surrender of such bonds and to defray the expense of assessing and collecting such tax, and such fund shall be paid out upon order of the directors for such irrigation district upon warrants drawn therefor, as hereinbefore provided, and at the time of such payment the depository for said district shall receive and cancel any interest coupon so paid or any bond so satisfied or discharged, and when such interest coupon or bond shall be turned over to the directors, the account of such depository shall be credited with the amount thereof, and such bond or interest coupon shall be cancelled and destroyed. [Id. sec. 70.]

Art. 5107—71. Maintenance and operating fund.—There shall also be created a fund to be known as "Maintenance and Operating Fund," and such fund shall consist of all moneys collected by assessment or otherwise for the maintenance and operation of the properties purchased or constructed or otherwise acquired by such district, and out of this fund shall be paid the salaries of all officers other than the assessor and collector, and of all employés of every kind whatsoever, all expenses of operation of every kind, whether the same be for water distribution or for operation of machinery, canals, ditches, laterals or otherwise, such debts to be paid upon a warrant executed as otherwise provided herein. [Id. sec. 71.]

Art. 5107—72. Terms of officers elected.—The term of office of all officers elected for such district shall be for two years, and until their successors are elected and qualified; provided, however, that all officers elected at the first election held under the provisions of this Act shall hold office only until the next regular election to be held in said district for the election of such officer. [Id. sec. 72.]

Art. 5107—73. Annual election for district officers.—There shall be held on the first Thursday in January, 1914, and every two years thereafter, a general election, at which time there shall be elected five directors for such district, and one assessor and collector, who shall be the elective officers for such district. [Id. sec. 73.]
Art. 5107—74. Other employees.—All other persons employed or representing said district shall be employed by the board of directors for such time and under such terms and conditions as said board of directors shall deem best for the interest of said district; provided, however, that no contract shall ever be made with any person or employee for a longer period of time, at any one time, than one year, and the salaries of all such employees, or the compensation to be received by them, shall be fixed by the Board of Directors at the time of the employment. [Id. sec. 74.]

Art. 5107—75. Vacancies in office of assessor and collector.—The directors for any irrigation district created under this Act shall have authority to fill all vacancies in the office of assessor and collector by appointment, and the party so appointed shall hold his office until the next regular election and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 75.]

Art. 5107—76. Vacancies in office of director, etc.—All vacancies in the office of director for such irrigation districts shall be filled by the board of directors by appointment, and the director so appointed shall hold office until the next regular election, and until his successor has been elected and qualified. Provided, however, that where the number of directors shall have been reduced by the death or resignation or from other cause to less than three, then such vacancies shall be filled by a special election to be ordered by the president of said board of directors, or by any two members of said board, said election to be ordered and held after the giving of notice for the election of said officers as provided for the holding of general elections; and further provided, that if said president or two of the directors shall fail or refuse to order such election, then said election may be ordered by the district judge of any judicial district in which said irrigation district may be situated upon a petition signed by any five parties interested in the election of said directors, whether said interested parties be taxpayers or bondholders; and when so ordered, notices shall be given of said election, and such election held in the manner provided for the holding of general elections, and the directors elected at such election shall hold their office until the next general election, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified. In the event that less than a quorum exists to approve the bonds of such elected directors, then such bonds shall be approved by the county commissioners' court in which such directors reside. [Id. sec. 76.]

Art. 5107—77. Compensation of directors.—The directors provided for by this Act shall receive as compensation for their services the sum of five dollars per day for each and every day necessarily taken in the discharge of their duties as such directors, and said directors shall file with the secretary for such district a statement verified by their affidavit of the number of days actually taken by them in the service of said district, said statement to be filed on the last Saturday in each month, or as nearly thereafter as practicable, and before a warrant shall issue for the payment of such services. [Id. sec. 77.]

Art. 5107—78. Eminent domain.—The right of eminent domain is hereby conferred upon all irrigation districts established under the provisions of this Act for the purpose of condemning and acquiring the right-of-way over and through all lands, private and public, except as hereinafter indicated, necessary for making reservoirs, canals, laterals and for pumping sites, drainage ditches, levees and all other improvements necessary and proper for such districts, and the authority hereby conferred shall authorize and empower such irrigation districts to condemn all lands, private and public, for the purpose herein indicated beyond the boundary of such irrigation districts and in any county within the state of Texas; the right of eminent domain shall not extend to land used for cemetery purposes, nor to property owned by any person, association of persons, corporation or irrigation district, and used for the purpose of supplying water under the laws of this state and necessary for the making of reservoirs, canals, laterals, pumping sites, levee and drainage ditches, or other appurtenant works by such owner. All such condemnation proceedings shall be under the direction of the directors and in the name of the irrigation district, and the assessing of damages and all procedure with reference to condemnation, appeal and payment, shall be in conformity with the statutes of the state for condemning and acquiring right-of-way by railroad companies, and all such compensation and damages adjudicated in such condemnation proceedings shall be paid out of the construction and maintenance fund of said district. [Id. sec.
78.]

Art. 5107—79. District, when and how dissolved; debts, how collected, etc.—In the event that any irrigation district heretofore esablished shall not within two years after the taking effect of this Act, or any irrigation district which may hereafter be established, shall not within two years after the conclusion of the organization of such district, begin to acquire the necessary canals, ditches, flumes, laterals, reservoirs, sites, dam-sites, pump plants, and all other things necessary to the successful operation of an irrigation district, by lease, purchase or construction, and diligently pursue the purposes for which said district was created, then and in that event said district shall be dissolved without the necessity of taking any action in connection therewith, and any party having interest therein, or to whom any debt may be due and owing by said district, may collect such debt in the manner provided by law for the collection of any debt due by any person, association of persons, or corporations, and such debt shall be a lien upon the property of such district when established by any court of competent jurisdiction, and the judgment of said court shall provide for the enforcement and payment of such debt and judgment, in the same manner as judgments for a debt against cities or towns that have been dissolved, may be enforced; and provided further that any district heretofore organized, or hereafter organized under the provisions of this Act, may voluntarily dissolve by the same vote and in the same manner provided herein for the organization of districts; but provided further that no dissolution shall be had until all debts and obligations have been fully paid and discharged. [Id.
sec. 79.]

Art. 5107—80. Districts in two or more counties; how established, etc.—Where any irrigation district proposed to be established lies partly within two or more counties, the petition provided for in this Act shall be presented to the county commissioners' court of each county in which a portion of said district shall lie, and all notices provided for in this Act to be given in the formation of an irrigation district shall be given in each and every county in which any portion of said territory proposed to be included in such district shall lie. The elections herein provided for, for the establishment of an irrigation district, shall be ordered as herein provided by the county commissioners' court of each county in which any portion of said district may lie, for the portion of said district lying in said county. The election returns in such county shall be made to the commissioners' court, and the said commissioners' court shall appoint all necessary officers, furnish all necessary supplies and give all necessary notices as herein provided in the same manner as if the territory lying in said county was in itself to be incorporated in an irrigation district. The said election shall be held in each county in the portion of the district therein situated and the return of such election shall be made to the county commissioners' court or any other officer authorized to receive same, and shall be by them duly canvassed and the result duly declared.
After canvassing, determining and declaring the result of said election, the county judge or presiding officer of the commissioners' court shall certify and report the result of said election to the county judge of the county in which the largest portion of any such district is situated and said county judge shall canvass said vote and declare the result thereof, and if it be determined that at least two-thirds of the property tax-payers voting thereon in said entire district have voted in favor of the creation of said irrigation district, the said county judge shall declare the result thereof in the manner herein provided. Said county judge shall make and publish the order provided for in this Act, relating to districts wholly within one county and shall cause copies of such order to be filed with the county clerk of each county in which any portion of said district may lie which shall be held to be a proclamation of the result of said election. The board of directors elected for such district shall meet and qualify and shall have charge of the affairs of the district in the same manner as herein above provided for districts lying wholly within one county. The bonds of such directors shall be approved by the commissioners' court of the county in which they reside, a copy of the order approving the bond or bonds shall be filed with the county clerk of the county in which such district is situated, who shall cause same to be duly recorded in the deed records of said county and properly indexed in the same manner provided for the recording and indexing of deeds. [Id. sec. 80.]

Art. 5107—81. Official bonds and oaths.—Where a district lies in two or more counties, the officers of such district shall furnish bonds and take the oath of office and qualify before the commissioners' court of the county in which the portion of the district lies in which they reside or in which their property is situated. [Id. sec. 81.]

Art. 5107—82. Petition for district in two or more counties, how heard; appeal from dismissal, etc.—When a petition asking for the establishment of an irrigation district is filed in two or more counties, the commissioners' court of each county shall proceed to hear and determine the matters therein set forth with reference to the territory within their said county in the same manner as provided herein for territory wholly within one county, and in the event any one or more commissioners' courts in which any part of said district is situated shall dismiss the petition and find against the petitioners, then the said petitioners or any part of them may appeal from the decision of such court to the district court, in which event they shall file notices of appeal with the commissioners' court of each county in which said petition has been acted upon and the clerk of each said court shall transmit all original papers and a true copy of all orders made by each said courts to the court to which said appeal is taken and the said court shall hear and determine said matter by consolidating said causes. The appeal herein provided for shall be taken in the same manner as provided in section 4 [Art. 5107—4] of this Act, and the district court of any county in which any portion of said irrigation district is situated shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine said appeal and said cause shall be tried in said court as provided for the trial and appeal of any civil action, except that no formal pleadings shall be required other than the notices of appeal herein provided for. [Id. sec. 82.]

Art. 5107—83. Lands in adjoining county may be included, how, etc.—Wherever an irrigation district has been formed under this Act lying wholly within one county, and it is to the advantage of such district and of land owners lying in the adjoining county or counties to have such adjoining lands added to or included in such established irrigation district, then same may be so included in or added to the territory already included in such established irrigation district in the following manner: The owners of the fee shall make application to the directors of the established district to which they desire to be annexed, which application shall be in writing, and shall describe the lands covered by the application by metes and bounds and same shall be acknowledged in the same manner and form as now required for the acknowledgment of deeds, and if said land is a homestead or the separate property of a married woman, it shall be acknowledged by both husband and wife. The directors of the irrigation district shall set said petition or application down for hearing on some certain date and shall give notice of such hearing in the same manner as provided in section 1 [Art. 5107—1] of this Act and shall consider same in the same manner as provided for the consideration of petitions by the county commissioners' court as set out and provided in sections 2 and 3 [Arts 5107—2, 5107—3] of this Act, and in the event that they shall find and determine that it is for the advantage of such established district and for the advantage of the lands sought to be added thereto, to so include said lands in said district, then they shall so find and enter said finding of record in the minutes of said directors, and they shall thereupon order an election to be held in said established district to determine whether or not said additional territory shall be permitted to be added thereto, which election shall be held after thirty days' notice, which notice shall be given by posting copies of such notice in five public places in said district for at least twenty days next preceding the day of election, and if there be a newspaper published in said district, by publishing such notice for at least once a week for three weeks next preceding the day of said election. The said notice shall be given by the irrigation directors, which said directors shall furnish all necessary supplies for said election and shall appoint two judges and two clerks for all polling places in said district to conduct said election and make return thereof, when officers shall take the oath of office prescribed by the general election laws of the state, and they shall make returns of said election to the irrigation directors of the district, but in all other things said election shall be held in conformity with the general election laws of the state. At such election there shall be submitted the question, and none other, "Shall the proposed territory be added to the district?" and there shall follow said sentence the word "yes" and just below the word "no."

If two-third majority of the resident property tax payers of said district vote yes, then the said territory may be added and become a part of said district in the same manner as if originally incorporated therein and subject to all laws governing said district; provided that the directors of said district may require the owners of said lands to pay into the interest and sinking fund of said district their proper pro rata part of charges theretofore made against the lands in said district to pay interest and sinking fund upon bonds of said district. If the application or petition for the addition of lands to the district as herein provided for shall cover a number of different tracts of land, or if there be included in the territory so described in said application or petition property tax payers other than those signing and acknowledging such application, or if there be included in such territory as many as ten property tax paying voters, then, at the same time the election above provided for is held in said established district, there shall also be held and conducted under the same rules and regulations as above provided for elections within such established territory, an election in such territory that is proposed to be added except that the notice of election shall include a full description by metes and bounds of the territory included within such proposed addition. The ballot for such election shall have printed thereon "for addition to irrigation district" and "against addition to irrigation district," but shall not contain any other matter whatever. In the event that two-thirds majority of the resident property tax paying voters voting thereon at said election vote in favor of the addition of such territory, then same may be added to such irrigation district.
by a proper order of the irrigation commissioners entered upon the minutes of such irrigation district, said order to be made within twenty days after the holding of such election, and said territory so added shall thereafter be and become an integral part of said district subject to all laws governing said district as completely and as fully as if same had been included in the district in its original formation; provided, however, that no water shall be furnished for irrigation of land included within said district until the owners and holders thereof shall have fully paid the charges fixed against such land by the directors as a condition to their admission into the district as provided for in this Act. Such additions to such irrigation district shall not in any manner affect the officers, employés and affairs of such district, but the voters of such added territory shall have a right to participate in all matters of the district considered or voted upon thereafter. [Id. sec. 83.]

Art. 5107—84. Directors and officers may enter lands, etc.; preventing entry misdemeanor.—The irrigation directors of any district and the engineer and employés thereof are hereby authorized to go upon any lands lying within said district, for the purpose of examining same, locating reservoirs, canals, dams, pumping plants and all other improvements, to make maps and profiles thereof; and are hereby authorized to go upon the lands beyond the boundaries of such districts in any county for the purposes stated, and for any other purposes necessarily connected therewith, whether herein enumerated or not. And any person who shall wilfully prevent or prohibit any such officers or employés from entering any lands for such purposes shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars for each day he shall so prevent or hinder such officer or employé from entering upon any lands. [Id. sec. 84.]

Art. 5107—85. Contracts, how let; notice.—Contracts for making and constructing reservoirs, dams, canals, laterals, pumping plants, check gates, sluice gates, and all improvements whatsoever of said irrigation district shall be made by the irrigation directors, to the lowest responsible bidder, after giving notice by advertising same in one or more newspaper of general circulation in the state of Texas, and in one newspaper published in the county, if there be one in the county, and one newspaper in such irrigation district if there be one in the irrigation district, which notice shall be published once a week for four consecutive weeks; and also by posting notices for at least twenty days in five public places in the irrigation district, and one at the court house door of the county or counties in which such district is situated. [Id. sec. 85.]

Art. 5107—86. Bidders to receive copies of reports and profiles; bids, how made, etc.—Any person, corporation or firm, desiring to bid on the construction of any work advertised as provided for herein, shall upon application to the irrigation directors be furnished with a copy of the engineer's report, and profile, showing the work to be done, provided the irrigation directors may charge therefor the actual cost of having such report and profiles made and furnished. All bids or offers to do any such work shall be in writing, and sealed and delivered to the president or secretary of the irrigation directors, together with a certified check for at least five per cent of the total amount bid, which said amount shall be forfeited to the district in the event the bidder refused to enter into a proper contract for his bid as accepted. Any or all bids may be rejected in the judgment of the directors. All bids shall be opened at the same time. [Id. sec. 86.]

Art. 5107—87. Contracts to conform to act, etc.; how executed, filed and recorded.—All contracts made by the irrigation district shall be in conformity with and subject to the provisions of this Act, and the provisions of this Act shall be a part of all contracts in so far as ap-
Art. 5107—88. Contractors' bonds.—The person, firm or corporation to whom such contract is let shall give bond payable to the irrigation district in such amount as the directors may determine to not exceed the contract price, conditioned that he, they or it, will faithfully perform the obligations, agreements and covenants of such contract, and that in default thereof they will pay to said district all damage sustained by reason thereof. Such bond shall be approved by the irrigation directors, and shall be deposited with the depository of the district, a true copy thereof being retained in the office of such directors. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 5107—89. Contracts to contain specifications; supervision; reports of engineer; bridges and culverts across railroads.—All such contracts shall contain a full statement of the specifications for all the work included in the contract, and all such work shall be done in accordance with the specifications under the supervision of the irrigation directors and the irrigation district engineer. As the work progresses the engineer of such district will make full reports to the irrigation directors, showing in detail whether the contract is being complied with or not in the construction and when the work is completed the engineer shall make a detailed report of same to the irrigation directors, showing whether or not the contract has been fully complied with according to its terms, and if not in what particular it has not been so complied with. The irrigation directors, however, will not be bound by such report, but may in addition thereto fully investigate such work and determine whether or not such contract has been complied with. The irrigation district is hereby authorized and empowered to make all necessary bridges and culverts across or under any railroad track and roadway of such railway to enable them to construct and maintain any canal, lateral or ditch necessary to be constructed as a part of the improvements of such district. Such bridges or culverts shall be paid for by the irrigation district; provided, however, that notice shall first be given by such irrigation district directors by delivering a written notice to any local agent, division superintendent, or roadmaster of such railway, and the railway company shall be allowed thirty days to build such bridges or culverts at their own expense, if they should desire to do so, and according to their own plans; provided, such canal, culvert or ditch shall be constructed of sufficient size not to interfere with the free and unobstructed flow of water passing through the canal or ditch, and shall be placed at such points as are designated by the irrigation district engineer, or directors. [Id. sec. 89.]

Art. 5107—90. Bridges and culverts across canals, etc.—Irrigation districts are hereby authorized and required to build all necessary bridges and culverts across and over all canals, laterals and ditches made and constructed by such district, whenever the same crosses a county or public road, and shall pay for the same out of the funds of such district. [Id. sec. 90.]

Art. 5107—91. Surplus moneys, how used.—After the full and final completion of all the improvements of such district as herein provided for, and after the payment of all the expenses incurred under the provisions of this Act, the irrigation directors are authorized to use the re-maintaining funds of the irrigation district for the best interests of such district in preservation, up-keep and repair of the works of such district; provided, however, such additional expenditures shall in no event exceed the amount of surplus money, or bonds to the credit of such district, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id. sec. 91.]

Art. 5107—92. Duties of directors; inspection; payment of contract price; contracts with partial payments.—The irrigation directors shall have the right, and it is hereby made their duty, at all times during the progress of the work being done under any contract, to inspect the same; and upon the completion of any contract in accordance with its terms, they shall draw a warrant on the depository of the district for the amount of the contract price in favor of the contractor, or his assignee; and if the irrigation directors shall deem it advisable in order to obtain more favorable contracts, they may advertise a contract to be paid for in partial payments as the work progresses, and such partial payments shall not exceed in the aggregate seventy-five per cent of the amount of work done, the said amount of work completed to be shown by certified report of the engineer of the district. [Id. sec. 92.]

Art. 5107—93. Directors to make semi-annual reports.—The irrigation directors shall make a semi-annual report on the first days of July and December of each year, showing in detail, the kind, character and amount of work done in the district, the cost of same, the amount of each warrant drawn, and to whom paid, and for what purpose paid, and other data necessary to show the condition of improvements made under the provisions of this Act, and each report shall be verified by them, a copy of which shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county or counties in which such district is situated, and shall be open to public inspection. [Id. sec. 93.]

Art. 5107—94. District acquiring established system to continue to supply water, etc.—When an irrigation district acquires an established irrigation system which has supplied water to lot owners in a city, town or village and such city, town or village is not included in such district, such district shall continue to supply water to such lot owners for a reasonable annual rental. [Id. sec. 94.]

Art. 5107—95. Persons desiring to receive water to furnish statements; directors to estimate expense; expense, how paid; assessments; contracts with users; directors may borrow money; liens; interest; list of delinquents; sale or lease of water right by directors.—Between the first day of January and the first day of March of each year, every person desiring to receive water during the course of the year, or at any time during the year from the irrigation district, shall furnish to the secretary of the board of directors a specific statement of the acreage intended by him to be put under irrigation and for which water is to be used, and as near as may be a statement of the different crops to be planted by him, and the acreage of each. If such statements should not be furnished within this time, there shall be no obligation on the part of the irrigation district to furnish such water to such person for that year. On the first day of March of each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the board of directors shall carefully estimate the expense to be incurred during the course of the next succeeding twelve months for the maintenance of the irrigation system and its operation. One third of the amount so estimated shall be paid by the assessments against all irrigable lands within the district, pro rata per acre, that is to say, against all lands to which the district is in condition to furnish water, but without reference as to whether such land is to be actually irrigated or not; the other two-thirds of the expense of maintaining and operating the plant shall be paid by the persons taking water under the system. This amount shall, as nearly as may be, equitably pro rated among the water takers, and in making such assessments the board of directors may take into consideration the acreage to be planted by each water taker, and the crop to be grown by him; provided, however, that each water user shall be charged the same price per acre for use of water upon the same class or character of crops. All assessments shall be paid in three installments, the first of which shall be for one-fourth of the total assessment, and shall be payable on April first of each year; the second installment shall be for one-fourth of such assessment and shall be payable on the first day of July of each year; the balance of the assessment shall be payable on or before December first of each year. And if the crop for which such water was furnished shall be harvested prior to the time of the payment of any installment the entire assessment shall become due and shall be paid within ten days after the harvesting of such crop, and before the removal of such crop from the county or counties in which the district is situated. The board of directors may, at their discretion, require every person desiring water during the course of the year to enter into a contract with the irrigation district, which contract shall indicate the acreage to be watered, the crops to be planted, and the amount to become due, and the terms of payment; and it may be further required that the water taker shall execute a negotiable note or notes for such amounts, or for parts thereof. The making of such contracts shall not constitute a waiver of the lien given by this Act upon the crops of the water taker for the service furnished to him. If the water taker shall water more land than is called for in his contract, he shall pay for the additional service rendered as and at the times hereinbefore indicated. To secure money for the operating and maintenance expense of the district, the board of directors shall have authority to borrow money with interest not exceeding ten per cent per annum, and may hypothecate any of its notes or contracts with water takers or accounts against them. The irrigation district shall have a first lien superior to all other liens upon all crops of whatsoever kind grown upon each tract of land in the district to secure the payment of the assessment herein provided for, and all such assessments shall bear interest from the time due and payable at the rate of ten per cent per annum. All land owners shall be personally liable for all assessments herein provided for, and if they shall fail or refuse to pay same when due, the water supply shall be cut off and no water shall be furnished to the land until all back dues are fully paid. This provision shall bind all parties persons and corporations owning or thereafter acquiring any interest in said lands. The directors of all irrigation districts shall, within ten days after any assessment is due, post at a public place in said district a list of all delinquents and shall thereafter keep posted a correct list of all such delinquents; provided, however, that if the parties owning such assessments shall have executed notes and contracts as hereinbefore provided, they shall not be placed upon such delinquent list until after the maturity of such notes and contracts. In the event said board of directors in the utilization of the water shall sell or lease any water right for any other purpose than irrigation, said contract shall be so conditioned and restricted as to be subservient to the use of the water for irrigation. [Id. sec. 95.]

Art. 5107—96. When assessments are more than sufficient, or are insufficient; notice of additional assessments.—In the event the assessments made as provided for in the preceding section [Art. 5107—95] should be more than sufficient to meet the necessary obligations of the district, the balance shall be carried over to the next season; and in the event the assessments made are not sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of such district, the balance unpaid shall be assessed, pro rata, in accordance with the assessments previously made for the then current year, and shall be paid under the same conditions and penalties within ninety days from the time such assessment is made. Public notice of all such assessments shall be given by posting printed notices thereof in at least three public places in the irrigation district, and printed notices shall be mailed to each land owner; provided, however, each land owner shall furnish to the board of directors his correct post office address. Such notice shall be given by posting and mailing such notice five days before the assessment is due, and in the event of special assessments such notice shall be given within five days after such assessments are levied. [Id. sec. 96.]

Art. 5107—97. Irrigation district may purchase system of drainage district.—Included in the plans of any irrigation district may be the necessary drainage ditches, or other facilities for drainage, and necessary levees for the protection of land under the system; and every irrigation district may purchase the system or any part of any system belonging to a drainage district. The purchase, however, shall provide for the payment of the debts of the drainage district or the assumption of such debts, and the amount of such debts paid or assumed is to be considered in determining the bond issuing capacity of the irrigation district. [Id. sec. 97.]

Art. 5107—98. Assessments for operation and maintenance, how collected; bond and duties of collector.—All assessments for operation and maintenance expenses made under the provisions of this Act shall be collected under the direction of the irrigation directors, by an officer designated by them, which said officer shall give bond in such sum as they may direct conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties and accounting for all moneys collected. He shall keep a true account of all money collected, and deposit the same as collected in the district depository, and shall file with the secretary of the directors a true statement of all money collected once each week. The collector shall use a duplicate receipt book, and shall give a true receipt for each collection made, retaining in such book a true copy thereof, which shall be preserved as a record of the district. [Id. sec. 98.]

Art. 5107—99. Accounts and records of district.—The directors of an irrigation district shall keep a true account of all their meetings and proceedings, and shall preserve all contracts, records of notices, duplicate vouchers, duplicate receipts, and all accounts and records of whatsoever kind, in a fire-proof vault or safe, and the same shall be the property of the district and shall be delivered to their successors in office. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 5107—100. District depositories.—The directors of such irrigation district shall select a depository for such district under the same provisions as are now provided for the selection of depositories for the counties in this state; and the duties of such depositories shall be the same as now prescribed by law for county depositories. However, in the selection of depositories, the directors of such irrigation districts shall act in the same capacity and perform the same duties as is incumbent upon the county judge and members of the commissioners’ court in the selection of county depositories; and all laws now in force or hereafter to be enacted for the government of county depositories shall apply to and become a part of this Act. [Id. sec. 100.]

Art. 5107—101. Monthly reports of depositories, etc.—The irrigation district depository shall make a report of all moneys received, and of all moneys paid out, at the end of each month, and file such reports with such vouchers among the records of said district in its own vault, and shall furnish a true copy thereof to the irrigation directors, and shall when called upon allow same to be inspected by any taxpayer or resident of such irrigation district. Such records shall be preserved as the property of such district, and shall be delivered to the successor of such depository. [Id. sec. 101.]

Art. 5107—102. Directors to maintain office; meetings.—The directors of each irrigation district shall have and maintain a regular office suitable for conducting the affairs of such district, within such irrigation district, or within a town situated within the general boundary lines of such irrigation district, and not removed therefrom. And such directors shall hold regular meetings at said office on the first Monday in February, May, August and November of each year, at ten o'clock a.m., and shall hold such other regular and special meetings as they may see fit. And any resident taxpayer or interested party may attend any such meeting of such directors, but shall not participate in any such meetings without the consent of the directors, and shall have no authority to vote upon any matter considered by such directors, but may present such matters as they desire to such directors in an orderly manner. [Id. sec. 102.]

Art. 5107—103. Surety company bonds.—All officers and employés of an irrigation district, who may be required to give bond or security may furnish bonds of surety companies to the approval of the directors; provided, however, whenever such a surety company bond is furnished by any such officer or employé, the surety company furnishing same shall file for record in the office of the county clerk where such irrigation district is situated a duly executed power of attorney, showing the authority of the person signing such bond for said company, to so sign same, and said power of attorney shall be duly executed by the officers of said company, and have attached the company seal; and such power of attorney shall remain on file in said office. All such official bonds shall be deposited with the district depository and be preserved by it as the property of said district. [Id. sec. 103.]

Art. 5107—104. Meetings, where held; vouchers; accounts, etc.—All meetings of the irrigation directors shall be held at the regular office of the district. All vouchers issued for the payment of any funds of the district shall be signed by at least four directors and shall refer to the book and page of the minutes allowing such account. All vouchers shall be issued from a regular duplicate book retaining a duplicate which shall be preserved. The directors shall have kept a complete book of accounts for such district, and shall, on June first of each year select a competent auditor who shall examine the accounts, books and reports of the depository, the assessor and collector and the directors, and make a full report thereon a copy of which shall be filed with the depository and a copy with the directors and one with the county clerk of the county or counties in which such district is situated. Such report shall be filed by September 1st of each year. [Id. sec. 104.]

Art. 5107—105. Laws repealed; districts organized under prior law.—The act of the twenty-ninth legislature, being chapter 50 of the Acts of 1905, and being articles 5012 to 5107 inclusive of chapter 3, title 73 of the Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas is hereby repealed. All irrigation districts heretofore organized under the terms and in accordance with the provisions of the said Act, are hereby expressly declared to be validly created, organized, described and defined, with boundaries as prescribed by the order of the commissioners’ court organizing the same, or as the same have since been changed by the board of directors thereof, in the manner provided in the said Act. Such districts, however, shall hereafter be governed by the provisions of this Act; provided, however, that the duly constituted and qualified officers of such district shall continue to perform the duties of such officers until the next general election held under the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 105.]

JAILS

Art. 5108. Commissioners' court to provide. Commissioners to see that jails are properly kept.

Art. 5109. Sheriff keeper, etc.

Art. 5110. Shall be constructed to enable executions to be had in death penalty.

Art. 5111. Commissioners to see that jails are properly kept.

Art. 5112. United States marshal may use jails.

Art. 5113. Marshal liable for fees.

Article 5108. [3132] Commissioners' court shall provide jails, etc. -The commissioners' courts of the several counties shall provide safe and suitable jails for their respective counties, and shall cause the same to be kept in good repair. [Act July 22, 1876, p. 57, sec. 4.]

Art. 5109. [3133] Sheriffs the keepers of jails, etc.—Each sheriff is the keeper of the jail of his county; and he shall safely keep therein all prisoners committed thereto by lawful authority, subject to the order of the proper court, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such prisoners. [Act Aug. 26, 1856; May 12, 1846. P. D. 2504, 5718. C. C. P. 49.]

Art. 5110. [3134] Jails shall be so constructed that the penalty of death may be executed within the walls thereof.—All jails hereafter erected shall be so constructed that the penalty of death may be conveniently executed within the walls thereof; and it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of any county having a jail already erected, if the same is not so constructed as that the penalty of death can be conveniently executed therein, to have the construction of the same so altered as that the penalty of death may be conveniently executed within its walls, if practicable to do so without too great an expense to the county.

Art. 5111. [3135] Duty of commissioners' courts to see that jails are properly kept.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' courts of the counties to see that the jails of their respective counties are kept in a clean and healthy condition, properly ventilated, and not over-crowded with prisoners, and that they are furnished with clean and comfortable mattresses and blankets sufficient for the comfort of the prisoners therein confined.

Appointment of physician.—Commissioners' court held authorized to appoint county physician at stated salary to attend prisoners at county jail and paupers at poorhouse. Galveston County v. Ducie, 91 T. 665, 45 S. W. 793.

Responsibility of marshal for condition of jail.—A city marshal delivering a prisoner to the jail janitor is not responsible for the unhealthy condition of the cells, in the absence of evidence that he had control thereof. Bishop v. Lucy, 21 C. A. 326, 50 S. W. 1029.

Art. 5112. [3136] United States marshal may use jail.—Sheriffs and jailers shall receive into the jails of their respective counties such prisoners as may be delivered or tendered to them by any United States marshal or his deputy for any district of Texas, and shall safely keep such prisoners until they are demanded by such marshal or his deputy, or are discharged by due course of law. [Act Aug. 30, 1856, p. 88, sec. 1. P. D. 4796.]

Art. 5113. [3137] Marshal liable for jail fees.—In the cases provided for in the preceding article the marshal, by whose authority such prisoners are received and kept, shall be directly and personally liable to the sheriff or jailer for the jail fees and all other expenses of the keeping of such prisoners, such fees and expenses to be estimated according to the laws regulating the same in other cases. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 4797.]
JURIES IN CIVIL CASES

ART. 5114. [3138] Who are competent jurors.—All male persons over twenty-one years of age are competent jurors, unless disqualified under some provision of this chapter.

ART. 5115. [3139] Who are disqualified, in general.—No person shall be qualified to serve as a juror who does not possess the following qualifications:

1. He must be a citizen of the state and of the county in which he is to serve, and qualified under the constitution and laws to vote in said county; provided, that his failure to pay poll tax as required by law shall not be held to disqualify him for jury service in any instance.

2. He must be a freeholder within the state, or a householder within the county.

3. He must be of sound mind and good moral character.

4. He must be able to read and write, except in cases provided for in the succeeding article.

5. He must not have served as a juror for six days during the preceding six months in the district court, or during the preceding three months in the county court.

6. He must not have been convicted of felony.

Payment of poll tax.—The court can dispense with the payment of poll tax as a qualification of jurors whenever such prerequisite would encumber or hinder the district and other inferior courts of the county in the administration of justice and a proper and expeditious trial of cases. But the qualification cannot be dispensed with where there are at least 3,000 qualified poll tax paying jurors in the county, and who are not disqualified to sit as jurors. Taylor v. State, 47 Cr. R. 101, 51 S. W. 334.

Jurors are not disqualified for not having paid poll tax if the requisite number of jurors could not be found in the county who had paid their poll taxes. S. A. & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Lester (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 403.

It must be made to appear to the judge, that is, shown by evidence furnished by either party, that the requisite number of qualified jurors cannot be had in a county to try a case before a party can be forced to take a juror who has not paid his poll tax. The fact that the judge is satisfied in his own mind that such is the case, is not sufficient. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Lester, 99 T. 214, 89 S. W. 754.

It is neither a disqualification nor cause of challenge that a juror has not paid his poll tax. King v. State (Cr. App.) 109 S. W. 388.

JURIES IN CIVIL CASES

Art. 5117

Householder.—Discharge of juror on the ground that he was not a householder held proper. McArthur v. State, 41 Cr. R. 335, 57 S. W. 847.
Where a juror owned and controlled a room, he was qualified as a householder. Mays v. State, 50 Cr. R. 166, 96 S. W. 329.

Education.—Facts held to show a Mexican juror was not disqualified for insufficiently understanding the English language. Essary v. State, 53 Cr. R. 596, 111 S. W. 927.

Discretion of court.—When objection to juror is on ground other than those contained in the statute the discretion of the trial judge in passing upon the objection will not be revised unless it appears that the ruling results in preventing a fair and impartial trial. Hance v. Pettus, 47 C. A. 14, 103 S. W. 415.

Art. 5116. [3140] Exception in certain cases.—Whenever it shall be made to appear to the court that the requisite number of jurors able to read and write can not be found within the county, the court may dispense with the exception provided for in the fourth subdivision of the preceding article; and the court may in like manner dispense with the exception provided for in the fifth subdivision, when the county is so sparsely populated as to make its enforcement seriously inconvenient. [Id. secs. 16, 26.]

Art. 5117. [3141] Jurors disqualified to try a particular case.—The following persons shall be disqualified to serve as jurors in any particular case:

1. Any witness in the case.
2. Any person interested, directly or indirectly, in the subject matter of the suit.
3. Any person related by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree to either of the parties to the suit.
4. Any person who has a bias or prejudice in favor of or against either of the parties.
5. Any person who has sat as a petit juror in a former trial of the same case, or of another case involving the same questions of fact. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 83, sec. 26.]

Competency in general.—Competency of jurors determined. Arnold v. State, 38 Cr. R. 1, 43 S. W. 784; Id., 38 Cr. R. 5, 40 S. W. 735.
That jurors belong to an opposite political party is no ground for challenge in an election contest. Gray v. State, 19 C. A. 521, 49 S. W. 699.
That jurors selected to try defendant for a violation of a local option law were Prohibitionists held no ground for reversal of a conviction. Lively v. State (Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1048.

Member of organization.—Parties may ask jurors on their voir dire if they belong to a secret order. Burgess v. Singer Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1110.
Interrogatories asked of jurors as to whether they did not belong to a law and order society, etc., held properly excluded. Dodd v. State (Cr. App.) 82 S. W. 510.
In trespass to try title, jurors otherwise qualified held not disqualified because members of an organization known "as actual settlers." Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.
In a prosecution for violating the local option law, held not error to refuse to set aside the jury because many of the jurors were members of a local option league, and some had voted for local option. Deadweyler v. State, 57 Cr. R. 63, 121 S. W. 861.

Witnesses.—The fact that a person subpoenaed as a witness was received as a juror is not error when he did not testify on the trial. Railway Co. v. Brinker, 68 T. 500, 3 S. W. 99.
Witnesses on application for change of venue in criminal cases held not incompetent jurors. Hardin v. State, 40 Cr. R. 208, 49 S. W. 607.
It is not error to exclude a witness in the case from the jury before the jury is sworn, even though the party objecting to such exclusion has exhausted all his challenges and has to take another juror from the talesman. Mundine v. Paula, 28 C. A. 46, 66 S. W. 255.
Where a juror during the progress of the trial is called as a witness and testifies, and is thereby excused by both sides as a juror and the case is finished with only eleven jurors, this of itself does not constitute reversible error. Walker v. Dickey, 44 C. A. 110, 98 S. W. 660, 661.
That jurors were subpoenaed as witnesses held not to disqualify them under the circumstances. Edgar v. State, 59 Cr. R. 491, 125 S. W. 141.

A sheriff who had been a deputy sheriff and had acted as bailiff during the term at which accused was tried, and had waited on the court and had charge of the jury in a felony case at the same term, was not competent as a juror in accused's case. Chapman v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 580.

Pecuniary interest.—That a juror lives upon the land involved, so as to be interested in the particular suit, or is related within the third degree to any of the parties, is ground for challenge. Veramendi v. Hutchins, 56 T. 414.

Taxpayers of a city are not, for that reason, disqualified to sit as jurors in a suit against the city for damages. City of Marshall v. McAllister, 18 C. A. 159, 43 S. W. 1043.

Residents and taxpayers are not disqualified by Art. 5117 as jurors in a case in which the county is an interested party. Watson v. Dewitt County, 19 C. A. 150, 46 S. W. 1061.

The husband of the niece of the plaintiff's wife is incompetent as a juror in a suit for damages for personal injuries. If the plaintiff should recover, the recovery will be community property. If he should fail, the community property of himself and wife will be liable for costs, and therefore his wife has an interest in the suit. Railroad Co. v. Elliott, 22 C. A. 31, 54 S. W. 410.

That a jurymen in an action against a city has a damage suit pending against the city growing out of a totally different subject-matter is no disqualification. City of San Antonio v. Diaz (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 549.

Relationship to party or person interested.—That the wife of a brother of a party is a sister or niece of a juror does not disqualify. Johnson v. Richardson, 52 T. 481.

That a juror is related within the third degree to any of the parties is ground for challenge. Veramendi v. Hutchins, 56 T. 414.

A juror whose wife's sister is the wife of the plaintiff, in a suit for damages, is incompetent. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670.

A juror whose wife's sister is a juror of a plaintiff at a suit at the time of trial may, in the recovery of damages for personal injuries, be challenged for cause. The damages, when recovered, would be community property of the plaintiff and his wife, and she, though not a nominal party, would be substantially a party to the suit. Railway Co. v. Horne, 69 T. 643, 9 S. W. 446.

A brother of a defendant who disclaims, but has a claim for improvement on land which both parties agree to pay, is incompetent as a juror. Davidson v. Wallingford (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 286.

The trial court did not abuse its discretion by sustaining a challenge for cause to jurors related within the third degree of consanguinity to stockholders of a bank which is sued to recover usurious interest. National Bank of Dangerfield v. Ragland (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 661.

A juror, in a prosecution for murder, whose wife was the first cousin of decedent's wife, who had died leaving sons who were private prosecutors in the case, was disqualified, and a new trial should have been granted for such reason. Stringfellow v. State, 42 Cr. R. 588, 61 S. W. 719.

A juror, who states that he is a warm personal friend of one of the state's principal witnesses, and who states that he does not know accused or his principal witnesses, and who declares that he can give accused a fair and impartial trial, is not disqualified. Gilles v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 317.

Where a juror is related in the third degree to a person who owns a house, built on the land in controversy by permission of defendant, the juror is disqualified. Zarate v. Villareal (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 328.

The sustaining of the state's challenge to a juror because his sister had married accused was erroneous. Holmes v. State (Cr. App.) 157 S. W. 487.

Business connection or transaction with attorney.—It is no ground for challenge that defendant's attorney had been involved in litigation against a juror. Goodall v. State (Cr. App.) 47 S. W. 358.

Age of juror.—That a juror was over 60 years of age was not, under the former law, a cause for challenge. Breeding v. State, 11 T. 257.

Prior service as juror.—The fact that a juror had tried defendant for a similar offense held no ground for challenge. Arnold v. State, 38 Cr. R. 1, 49 S. W. 734.

A juror who heard the testimony of the same prosecuting witness in a similar prosecution against another person, and who has formed an opinion as to defendant's guilt, is disqualified. Drye v. State, 40 Cr. R. 125, 49 S. W. 93.

Fact that jury had just tried a charge against prosecutor for abusive language against a third party immediately following defendant's assault on such witness held not ground of challenge. Gruesendorf v. State (Cr. App.) 56 S. W. 624.

Jurors having fixed opinions as to guilt, formed from having heard a companion case against accused, are incompetent. Goble v. State, 42 Cr. R. 601, 49 S. W. 968.

Service of party as juror in a murder prosecution, such party having served in a prior suit involving many of the facts held not ground for a new trial; defendant's attorney having also been counsel in such former prosecution. Garcia v. State (Cr. App.) 63 S. W. 309.

On a prosecution for receiving stolen property, held error to allow on the jury those who had served on the jury in the trial of the thief. Clark v. State, 44 Cr. R. 536, 72 S. W. 591.

In a criminal prosecution, jurors who had sat on the jury in a similar prosecution of the same defendant held properly excluded for cause. Holmes v. State, 52 Cr. R. 853, 106 S. W. 1160.

That part of a panel had just convicted accused on a trial involving the same issues and the rest of the panel had heard the testimony in that case and had formed a fixed opinion on its merits held sufficient ground for quashing the panel. Rose v. State, 53 Cr. R. 162, 109 S. W. 153.

Overruling a challenge for cause to jurors who had convicted in other cases of the same character on the testimony of the same prosecuting witness held error. Green v. State, 54 Cr. R. 3, 111 S. W. 933.
The relation of prosecuting witness to another prosecution held not to disqualify jurors. Irwin v. State, 56 Cr. R. 347, 116 S. W. 591.

That jurors in a prosecution for violation of the local option law had sat on a former prosecution of accused for an illegal sale of liquor and had convicted him would not disqualify them as having formed an opinion, where the alleged sales in the two cases were made to different persons and the state relied on different witnesses. Ross v. State, 56 Cr. R. 275, 118 S. W. 1034.

That a part of the panel had sat in another local option case, in which the verdict of guilty was founded upon the testimony of one who was also a witness in the present case, held not to render the jury incompetent. Bailey v. State, 58 Cr. R. 226, 120 S. W. 419.

That one was a member of a grand jury which indicted a party for swindling did not of itself disqualify him as a juror in a civil action against such party for fraud and deceit based on the same charges, there being no attempt to show injury resulting from the juror's past service on the grand jury. Mounce v. Crowson ( Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 916.

In a prosecution for violating the local option law, certain jurors held not disqualified for bias because of having previously convicted accused of another similar offense. Edgar v. State, 59 Cr. R. 252, 127 S. W. 1965.

Compelling defendant to select a jury from a panel including jurors who had sat in a case in which the principal defensive matter was the same as in the present case held error. Edgar v. State, 59 Cr. R. 488, 129 S. W. 140.

It was error to compel accused to accept jurors who had served in previous trials of others for the same offense, where the only witnesses against accused had testified for the state. Hardgraves v. State, 61 Cr. R. 412, 136 S. W. 144.

Where a prosecution rested upon the testimony of the same witness as in other similar prosecutions in which defendants had been convicted, held that defendant was entitled to another jury. Smith v. State, 61 Cr. R. 328, 136 S. W. 154.

A request to the grand jury not holding the indictment held not to disqualify him as a juror, but to be only ground for challenge. Bryan v. State, 63 Cr. R. 208, 139 S. W. 581.

In a prosecution for illegally selling liquor, accused's motion to discharge the regular jury was denied and it appeared that the defendant had already tried and convicted on charges in cases of the same character on the testimony of the same witnesses who would appear against accused held properly refused. Ausbrook v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 1177.

Bias and prejudice.—The examination of a juror may extend to the bias or prejudice relating to the subject-matter of the litigation as well as to the parties personally. Bailey v. Terrell, 69 S. W. 670.

A party should use reasonable diligence to ascertain whether jurors are impartial. Blanton v. Myers, 72 T. 417, 10 S. W. 462.

Under the statute disqualifying a juror who has a bias or prejudice a railroad employee is disqualified from being a juror in an action against the railroad company. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 506.

Defendant cannot complain of prejudice of a juror formed from the trying the case in which he was convicted. Griffin v. State (Cr. App.) 52 S. W. 848.

Statements by a juror prior to trial held to show him disqualified on the ground of prejudice and partiality. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 60 S. W. 582.

Jurors who state on their voir dire that they have no prejudice against one indicted for violating the local option law held not disqualified by reason of having contributed for the employment of counsel in a local option election contest. Taul v. State (Cr. App.) 61 S. W. 394.

In a prosecution for violating a local option law, defendant held entitled to ask the juror whether he prejudiced a person who was in a position at the time to violate the law in question. Patrick v. State, 45 Cr. R. 587, 78 S. W. 947.

A challenge for cause on the ground of bias of a juror because of expressed friendly relations to plaintiff held improperly overruled. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Blanton, 36 C. A. 307, 81 S. W. 537.

A challenge of a juror may be properly sustained under this article where he is prejudiced against an important witness of one of the parties, if in the opinion of the court the prejudice renders him an unfit person to sit on the jury. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Sage, 43 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 1074.

It is not an objection to a juror that he is prejudiced against an important witness of one of the parties. Id.

In a prosecution for homicide, facts held insufficient to show prejudice on the part of a juror. Wallace v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 1080.

Jurors in a murder trial held not disqualified for prejudice. Cason v. State, 52 Cr. R. 220, 106 S. W. 337.

In a trial of one negro for murdering another, jurors held not objectionable because they would give more weight to a white person's testimony than to a negro's. Moore v. State, 52 Cr. R. 336, 107 S. W. 540.

Bias or prejudice by a juror in favor of or preconceived ideas of the rights of one of the parties, are incompatible with a fair trial by an impartial jury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dickens, 54 C. A. 637, 118 S. W. 612, 618.

Where a juror in an action in which a negro was a party stated on his voir dire that he had no prejudice against the negro race, while he was so prejudiced against the race that he would not believe what a negro said when opposed to the statement of a white person, application of the negro who was defeated must grant a new trial on the ground of the prejudice of the juror. Makey v. Dryden (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 633.

It was proper to refuse a question asked of a juror on his voir dire as to whether he was prejudiced in case he gave the same credit to defendants' witnesses as to the same credit to the state's department that he would otherwise give him, as tending to commit the juror on the question of the credibility of a witness before he had testified. Ellis v. State (Cr. App.) 104 S. W. 1016.
Influence on verdict.—Jurors stating that they could try defendant impartially had formed an impression not sufficient to influence his verdict held no error, where he did not serve, and defendant's peremptory challenges were not exhausted. Danny v. State (Cr. App.) 46 S. W. 247.

Where a juror who had formed an opinion stated that he could give defendant a fair trial, held not error for the court to overrule a challenge for cause. Parker v. State, 45 Cr. R. 334, 77 S. W. 782.

Formation and expression of opinion as to cause.—The fact that the juror had an opinion held not to render him incompetent. Bratt v. State (Cr. App.) 41 S. W. 624.

Opinions as to guilt, expressed on the voir dire, held not to disqualify jurors. Sawyer v. State, 39 Cr. R. 557, 47 S. W. 659.

One who has formed an opinion as to accused's guilt, derived from statements of witnesses before the trial, is disqualified to sit as a juror. Keaton v. State, 40 Cr. R. 199, 49 S. W. 90.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a juror had expressed an opinion as to defendant's guilt before he was selected. McGrew v. State (Cr. App.) 49 S. W. 226.

A juror who had a fixed opinion of defendant's guilt held disqualified. Gallaher v. State, 40 Cr. R. 296, 50 S. W. 388.

One who was on the ground immediately after a homicide, if not actually present at the killing, and is familiar with all the main points of the case, is not a proper juror at the trial. Nelson v. State (Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 107.

Veniremen held not disqualified by reason of having formed an opinion. Tellis v. State, 45 Cr. R. 574, 61 S. W. 17.

An examination of a juror held not to show he had such an opinion as to disqualify him. Taylor v. State, 44 Cr. R. 547, 72 S. W. 396.

Where other cases were pending against defendant, he was entitled to inquire of jurors who had heard the evidence in a case previously tried if they would have a fixed opinion as to the guilt of accused, if it should transpire that the evidence in the two cases was similar. Barnes v. State (Cr. App.) 88 S. W. 805.

A juror in a criminal case held qualified, though he had formed a prior opinion. Bloe v. State, 55 Cr. R. 539, 117 S. W. 163.

A juror held not disqualified by reason of the fact that he had formed an opinion of the guilt or innocence of accused relying on insanity. Tubb v. State, 55 Cr. R. 606, 117 S. W. 588.

While the statute does not in express terms allow a juror to be challenged on the ground that he has expressed an opinion about the merits of the case still under this article and Art. 5106 the court is given general power to entertain a challenge on any ground that unites a person to sit on a jury. The law exacts a fair and impartial trial, and this requirement becomes a delusion if men with bias or prejudice are permitted to sit in judgment on a case. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dickens, 54 C. A. 637, 118 S. W. 615.

Jurors who have formed and expressed an opinion prior to the time of their acceptance or the jury to the effect that accused is guilty are disqualified jurors. Slack v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 107.

From rumor and newspaper report.—In a prosecution for murder, a juror testified on his voir dire that he had talked of the case with one who had been a juror on a former trial, and who had assessed the death penalty; that he had an opinion not based on talking with a witness, or on knowledge, and not fixed, but an impression of defendant's guilt derived from newspapers, hearsay, and general talk; and that he could render a fair verdict. The juror on the former trial was not intimated as a witness, and what was ascertained from him was not disclosed. Held not sufficient to require a dismissal for cause. Johnson v. State, 49 Cr. R. 314, 94 S. W. 224.

A juror held not disqualified by an opinion, based on a newspaper account. Campos v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 100.

A juror held qualified, notwithstanding an opinion formed from reading the newspapers. Grossoehmig v. State, 57 Cr. R. 241, 121 S. W. 1113.

From evidence at former trial.—Where an action had been twice tried, the jury disagreeing each time, the fact that a juror had heard of such trials and the result, but not how the Jurors stood, is not ground for excluding him. Texas M. R. Co. v. Crowder, 25 C. A. 536, 64 S. W. 90.

In a murder trial, retention of a juror who knew that accused had been convicted on a former trial held not prejudicial error. Moore v. State, 52 Cr. R. 338, 107 S. W. 540.

That jurors stated on their voir dire that they knew of the verdict on defendant's former trial would not disqualify them. Arnwine v. State, 54 Cr. R. 213, 114 S. W. 786, 892.

From evidence at trial of other cause.—A juror who states that he believes, from what he had heard other jurors say, that the testimony of the prosecuting witness in another case, that defendant sold him liquor, is true, is disqualified. Drye v. State, 40 Cr. R. 125, 48 S. W. 83.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, held, that there was no error in refusing to allow the jurors to be examined as to whether they knew anything about the facts of a former case. Woodroe v. State, 50 Cr. R. 212, 96 S. W. 30.

Influence of opinion on verdict.—A juror who had an opinion as to defendant's guilt, but stated he could sit, defendant an impartial trial, held competent. Hamlin v. State, 39 Cr. R. 679, 47 S. W. 656.

If a juror's opinion is based on the truth of rumors and newspaper articles, and he states that, if the evidence presents a different state of facts, he will disregard his former opinion, Harrison v. State, 49 Cr. R. 672, 51 S. W. 388.

A challenge to jurors expressing a "fixed opinion" that appellees "ought to recover" should doubtless have been sustained by the court, although they said that their judgment would not be influenced thereby. But as no injury is shown to have resulted to 3400 appellant the assignment raising the question will be overruled. Choctaw, O. & T. Ry. Co. v. True, 30 C. A. 309, 80 S. W. 121.

Personal opinions and scruples.—In the trial of a suit on a liquor dealer’s bond, it is not a cause of challenge to a juror that he has a bias in favor of, or a prejudice against, the business of selling liquors by retail. Grady v. Ragan, 2 App. C. C. § 263. See Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, T. S. W. 670; Houston Waterworks Co. v. Harris, 36 C. 475, 83 S. W. 46.

A juror, because of his statement as to conscientious scruples against inflicting the death penalty, held disqualified to sit in a prosecution for rape. Sawyer v. State, 39 Cr. 557, 47 S. W. 660.

It was held proper to refuse to let defendant ask the jury whether they were prejudiced against the offense, as distinguished from other offenses. Leach v. State (Cr. App.) 49 S. W. 688.

A juror has scruples against the infliction of the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. It is not error for the court to explain circumstantial evidence by means of an illustration, though the illustration states an extreme case. Morrison v. State, 40 Cr. 475, 51 S. W. 358.

A juror who was prejudiced against the defense of insanity in general because often unfounded, but had no opinion on defendant's plea of insanity, was not disqualified. Cannon v. State, 41 Cr. 467, 56 S. W. 381.

On prosecution for homicide, it was not error for the state, in examining jurors on their voir dire, to ask whether they had scruples against inflicting the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. Johnson v. State, 44 Cr. R. 332, 71 S. W. 25.

In homicide, a challenge to jurors who had conscientious scruples against inflicting the death penalty in case of circumstantial evidence held well taken. Martin v. State, 47 Cr. R. 28, 83 S. W. 390.

Prejudice against the crime of murder does not disqualify a juror. Franks v. State, 47 Cr. R. 638, 88 S. W. 923.

Prejudice against the plea of insanity held not to disqualify a juror in a prosecution for murder. Id.

The testimony of a juror as to his competency on a trial for rape held not to show his incompetency. Dues v. State, 56 Cr. R. 32, 117 S. W. 979.

A juror was disqualified to sit in a murder case in which the sole defense was insanity, who stated on his voir dire that he would require overwhelming proof of insanity before acquitting on that ground. Jones v. State, 60 Cr. R. 139, 131 S. W. 672. The testimony of jurors on their voir dire examination held not to show bias. Williams v. State, 60 Cr. R. 453, 132 S. W. 345.

A juror who testified on his voir dire that he would require accused to prove the defense of insanity beyond a reasonable doubt was properly received as a juror, where he further stated that he would be governed by the charge of the court. Maxey v. State (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 952.

J urors were subject to challenge for cause in a murder case, where they stated that they had conscientious scruples against, and would not impose, the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. Grant v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 760, 42 Le. R. A. (N. S.) 428.

Examination of juror on voir dire in general.—See notes under Art. 5196.

Time for making objection.—See notes under Art. 5206.

Inhabitants of county eligible as jurors in suits against county.—See note under Art. 1307.

Art. 5118. [3142] Who are liable to jury service; who are exempt from jury service.—All competent jurors are liable to jury service, except the following persons:

1. All persons over sixty years of age.
2. All civil officers of this state and of the United States.
3. All overseers of roads.
4. All ministers of the gospel engaged in the active discharge of their ministerial duties.
5. All physicians and attorneys engaged in actual practice.
6. All publishers of newspapers, school masters, druggists, undertakers, telegraph operators, railroad station agents, ferrymen, and all millers engaged in grist, flouring and saw mills.
7. All presidents, vice-presidents, conductors and engineers of railroad companies when engaged in the regular and actual discharge of the duties of their respective positions.
8. Any person who has acted as jury commissioner within the preceding twelve months.
9. All members of the national guard of this state under the provisions of the title, "Militia."
10. In cities and towns having a population of fifteen hundred or more inhabitants, according to the last preceding United States census, the active members of organized fire companies, not to exceed twenty to each one thousand of such inhabitants. [Id. p. 78, sec. 25.]

Notaries public.—A notary public is not exempt by reason of his appointment. See Art. 6002.

Art. 5118 JURIES IN CIVIL CASES

Fireman.—An active member of a voluntary fire company held exempt from jury service, under Art. 5118 et seq. Ex parte Krupp, 41 Cr. R. 355, 54 S. W. 590.

Art. 5119. [3143] Where several fire companies in one town, etc.
—If there be more than one organized fire company in such town or city, the whole number of exemptions provided for under subdivision 10 of the preceding article shall be equally divided between such companies. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5120. [3144] List of members selected to be delivered to the clerk.—Before such exemption of any member of such fire company shall be made available, the members so to be exempted shall be selected by their respective companies; and their names shall be handed in to the clerks of the district and county courts, respectively, by the chief of the fire department of such city or town, or in case there be no such officer, then by the foreman of the company. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5121. Filing of exemptions.—All persons summoned as jurors in any court of this state, who are exempt by statutory law from jury service, may, if they so desire to claim their exemptions, make oath before any officer authorized by law to administer oaths, or before the officers summoning such persons, stating their exemptions, and file said affidavit at any time before the convening of said court with the clerk of said court, which shall constitute sufficient excuse without appearing in person. [Acts 1907, p. 216.]

CHAPTER TWO

JURY COMMISSIONERS FOR THE DISTRICT COURT, APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATION, ETC.

[Repealed by Acts 1907, p. 272, sec. 13, as to counties designated in Chapter 5.]

5123. Shall serve but once in each year.
5124. Commissioners to be notified.
5125. Failing to attend shall be fined.
5126. Oath of jury commissioners.

Art. 5127. Failure of commissioners, etc.
5128. To be instructed in their duties.
5129. How they shall be kept.
5130. Clerk to furnish stationery, etc.
5131. To have use of assessment rolls.

Article 5122. [3145] Jury commissioners, appointment and qualifications.—The district court of each county shall, at each term thereof, appoint three persons to perform the duties of jury commissioners for said court, who shall possess the following qualifications:
1. They shall be intelligent citizens of the county and able to read and write.
2. They shall be qualified jurors and freeholders of the county.
3. They shall be residents of different portions of the county.
4. They shall have no suit in such court which requires the intervention of a jury. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 79, sec. 4.]

Commissioners from different parts of county.—There was no error in overruling a motion to quash a venire, because selected by jury commissioners taken from different parts of the county, where there was no proof that the commissioners were not from different parts of the county. Dailey v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 821.

Interest in suits pending.—A person is not disqualified to serve as a commissioner on the ground that his father is a party to a suit, or that he is transacting business as a merchant with persons parties to pending suits. Veramendi v. Hutchins, 56 T. 414.

A motion to quash a venire in a criminal case will not be sustained because one of the jury commissioners was interested as a party in several suits on the jury docket of that term. Whittle v. State, 45 Cr. R. 468, 66 S. W. 771.

Prejudice as disqualifying.—That jury commissioners selected to try defendant for a violation of a local option law were Prohibitionists held no ground for reversal of a conviction. Lively v. State (Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1648.

Review of discretion of court.—The discretion of a trial judge in selecting jury commissioners is not subject to review by an appellate court. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 910.

Same commission summoning jurors for three terms.—See note under Art. 5123.

Appointing new commission to summon additional jurors.—See note under Art. 5127.
Art. 5123. [3146] Shall serve but once in a year.—The same person shall not act as a jury commissioner more than once in the same year. [Id. sec. 5.]

Same commission summoning jurors for three terms.—Const. art. 16, § 19, declares that the Legislature shall prescribe by law the qualifications of grand and petit jurors. Art. 5123 provides that the district court of each county, at each term, shall appoint jury commissioners. Code Crim. Proc. art. 384, also declares that the district judge, at each term of the district court, shall appoint three persons to act as jury commissioners, and article 389 provides that the commissioners shall select from the citizens of the different portions of the county 16 persons to be summoned as grand jurors for the next term of court. Held that, where there were six terms of court a year in a judicial district, the judge at the November, 1911, term had no jurisdiction to direct jury commissioners for that term to draw three grand jurors for the succeeding January, March, and May, 1912, terms, as an indictment found by a grand jury so drawn was invalid. Woolen v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 1165.

Art. 5124. [3147] Commissioners to be notified of their appointment, etc.—The court shall cause the persons appointed as jury commissioners to be notified by the sheriff or any constable of such appointment, and of the time and place when and where they are to appear before the court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Waiver of citation.—The issuance of a citation to jury commissioners held waived by their appearance in response to a notice. Williams v. State, 46 Cr. R. 216, 75 S. W. 889.

Art. 5125. [3148] Failing to attend, shall be fined.—If any person appointed a jury commissioner shall fail or refuse to attend and perform the duties required without a reasonable excuse, he shall be fined by the court in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5126. [3149] Oath of jury commissioners.—When the persons appointed appear before the court, the judge shall administer to them the following oath: "You do swear faithfully to discharge the duties required of you as jury commissioners; that you will not knowingly elect any man as a juryman whom you believe to be unfit and not qualified; that you will not make known to any one the name of any jurymen selected by you and reported to the court; that you will not, directly or indirectly, converse with any one selected by you as a jurymen concerning the merits of any case to be tried at the next term of this court until after said cause may be tried or continued, or the jury discharged." [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5127. [3150] Failure of commissioners, etc.—If from any cause the jury commissioners should not be appointed at the time prescribed, or should fail to select jurors as required, or should the panels selected be set aside, or the jury lists returned into court be lost or destroyed, the court shall forthwith proceed to supply a sufficient number of jurors for the term under the provisions of this title, and may, when it may be deemed necessary, appoint commissioners for that purpose. [Id. sec. 13.]

Appointing new commission to summon additional jurors.—Juries were selected for the second and third weeks of a term in session. The term having continued longer than anticipated, the judge appointed other commissioners, who selected other jurors for the residue of the term. On a challenge to the array it was held that the first commissioners should have been reconvened to have selected additional jurors, but the course pursued was a mere irregularity, from which no injury appeared to have resulted. Rountree v. Gilroy, 57 T. 176.

When regular jury has been discharged for the term, court can appoint three jury commissioners and have them select jurors for trial of causes still pending in the court. Lang v. Henke, 22 C. A. 490, 55 S. W. 375.

Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 715, providing that, when there are no regular jurors for the week from whom to select a jury, the court shall order the sheriff to summon forthwith such number of qualified persons as it may deem sufficient, and from those summoned a jury shall be formed to try the case, and this article, the action of the court in appointing jury commissioners to draw the jury for the trial of a criminal prosecution at the term of court then in session was not error. Schuh v. State, 58 Cr. R. 165, 124 S. W. 903.

The jury commission appointed at one term of court selected jurors for six weeks of the following term. At the expiration of that time, there still being a number of cases on the docket, the trial judge appointed a new commission to draw jurors for four weeks longer. Held that, although he might have reassembled the old commission, if that were possible, or have directed the sheriff to summon jurors as provided by Code Cr. Proc. art. 716, the action taken by him was proper under this article. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 910.

Ordering sheriff to summon jurors.—The court has power to have venires summoned through the sheriff, when jury commissioners have not been appointed. Smith v. Bates (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 64; H., E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Vinson (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 544.

When the jury commissioners fail to elect jurors, the statute clearly authorizes the court to order the sheriff to summon a jury. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Hatchell, 22 C. A. 498, 55 S. W. 187.

Authority is given the court in clear and unmistakable terms to order the sheriff to summon the jury, if the jury commissioners have failed to select jurors. Railroad Co. v. Fambrough (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 188; Lang v. Henke, 23 C. A. 496, 55 S. W. 376.

When the jury commissioners have failed to select a jury for a certain week of a term, the sheriff, in summoning a venire for such week, is not confined to jurors selected by the jury commissioners for other weeks of the term. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

When any cause jury commissioners have failed to provide a jury for the term or part of a term the court can order the sheriff to summon a jury. Green v. State, 53 Cr. R. 490, 110 S. W. 924, 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 706.

This article and Art. 5170 give the court authority to order the sheriff to select jurors to try a case when the jury commissioners have not made selections. Gray v. Phillips, 54 C. A. 148, 117 S. W. 877.

Necessity of happening of contingency.—When none of the contingencies mentioned in this article have occurred the court has no power to force a party to try his case before a jury not selected in the manner prescribed by the statute. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Pullen, 33 C. A. 148, 75 S. W. 1085.

Review of court's discretion.—The right and discretion to select jury commissioners is confined in the judge and not subject to review. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 910.

Art. 5128. [3151] To be instructed as to their duties.—When the jury commissioners have been sworn and organized, the judge shall proceed to instruct them as to their duties, and shall designate to them for what weeks they shall select petit jurors, and the number of jurors selected for each week. Each person serving as jury commissioner shall receive as compensation therefor the same amount as now provided by law for the services of petit and grand jurors; provided, that no such commissioner shall receive any pay as such for any day for which he has received, or is entitled to receive, compensation as petit or grand juror. [Id. sec. 6. Amended Acts 1909, p. 178.]

Art. 5129. [3152] To be kept free from intrusion and not to separate.—The jury commissioners shall retire in charge of the sheriff or constable to some suitable apartment, and shall be kept free from the intrusion of any person during their session, and shall not separate, without leave of the court, until they have completed the duties required of them. [Id.]

Art. 5130. [3153] Clerk to furnish stationery and list of exempt persons, etc.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to furnish the jury commissioners with all necessary stationery, and also with a list of the names of all persons appearing, from the records of the court, to be exempt or disqualified from serving on the petit jury at each term. He shall also deliver to them the envelope mentioned in article 5148, and shall take their receipt therefor, showing whether or not such seal remained unbroken. [Id. secs. 4, 6. Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 170, sec. 6. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Art. 5131. [3154] To have use of assessment roll.—It shall be the duty of the county clerk, or other legal custodian of the same, to furnish the jury commissioners with the last assessment roll of the county. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 79, sec. 6.]
CHAPTER THREE

JURY COMMISSIONERS FOR THE COUNTY COURT, APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATIONS, ETC.

[Repealed by Acts 1907, p. 272, sec. 13, as to counties designated in Chapter 5.]

Art. 5132. Jury commissioners, appointment and qualification, powers and duties.

Art. 5133. Oath.

Art. 5134. To select jurors for six months.

Article 5132. [3155] Jury commissioners for the county court, appointment and qualification, powers and duties.—The county court shall, at its first term after the thirty-first day of December and the thirtieth day of June of each year, appoint three persons to perform the duties of jury commissioners for said court, who shall possess the same qualifications as jury commissioners for the district court, and the same proceedings shall be had in the county court by the officers thereof and by the commissioners for procuring jurors as are required by this title for similar proceedings in the district court, except as modified by the provisions of this chapter. [Id. p. 81, sec. 15. Acts 1884, p. 27.]

Effect of disregarding statute.—The intentional disregard of a county judge of the statute requiring him to appoint jury commissioners to select jurors for the term of the county court is a violation of the right of trial by jury guaranteed by the bill of rights. White v. State, 45 Cr. R. 897, 76 S. W. 1067.

Art. 5133. [3156] Oath.—The oath to be administered to the jury commissioners for the county courts shall be as follows: "You do solemnly swear faithfully to discharge the duties required of you as jury commissioners; that you will not knowingly elect any man as a jurymen whom you believe to be unfit and not qualified; that you will not make known to any one the name of any jurymen selected by you and reported to the court; that you will not, directly or indirectly, communicate with any one selected by you as a jurymen concerning the merits of any case to be tried by this court within the next six months, until said case shall have been tried or otherwise disposed of." [Acts 1876, p. 79, sec. 4.]

Art. 5134. [3157] To select jurors for six months.—Such commissioners shall select jurors for all the terms of the county court to be held within six months next after the adjournment of the first term of said court after the said thirty-first day of December and the thirtieth day of June of each year, and the county judge shall designate the number of jurors to be so selected for each term and week. [Acts 1884, p. 28.]

Sheriff's summoning jurors instead of commission.—A motion to quash the array of jurors should be sustained, where they were not chosen by commissioners as the law directs, but selected and summoned by the sheriff. Irwin v. State, 67 Cr. R. 531, 129 S. W. 127.

CHAPTER FOUR

PROCEEDINGS OF THE JURY COMMISSIONERS IN THE SELECTION OF JURORS

[Repealed by Acts 1907, p. 272, sec. 13, as to counties designated in Chapter 5.]

Art. 5135. Selection of jurors, how made.

Art. 5136. Drawing of jurors, how conducted.

Art. 5137. Venire facias, special, how drawn.

Art. 5138. List to be certified, sealed, etc.

Art. 5139. To be delivered to the judge.

Art. 5139a. And by him to the clerk.

Art. 5140. Clerk and deputies to be sworn.

Art. 5141. Same.

Art. 5142. District court commissioners to make out jury list for county court.

Art. 5142a. Which shall be delivered to the county clerk.

Art. 5143. And by him to the commissioners for his court.

Art. 5144. And by him to the commissioners for his court.

Art. 5145. Persons included in such lists not to be selected as jurors in county court.

Art. 5146. County court commissioners to make out lists for district court.

Art. 5147. To be delivered to district clerk.

Art. 5148. And by him to commissioners for his court.

Art. 5149. Persons included in such lists exempt.

Art. 5150. Lists of jurors to be destroyed.
Article 5135. [3158] Selection of jurors, how made.—The jury commissioners shall select from the citizens of the different portions of the county, liable to serve as jurors, one hundred persons, or a greater or less number if so directed by the court, free from all legal exceptions, of good moral character, of sound judgment, well-informed, and, so far as practicable, able to read and write, to serve as petit jurors at the next term, if in the district court, and for the next six months, if in the county court, and shall write the names of such persons on separate pieces of paper, as near the same size and appearance as may be, and fold the same so that the names can not be seen. [Acts 1876, p. 79, sec. 7.]

In general.—It is the policy of the law that jurors be drawn by commissioners and not selected by the sheriff or any officer. Knight v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 268.

Negroes.—That the three negroes on a trial jury panel summoned to try a negro were peremptorily challenged by the state held not a denial of equal protection of laws to defendant. Whitney v. State, 43 Cr. R. 197, 62 S. W. 879.

Facts held not to show discrimination against negroes in drawing jurors. Hubbard v. State, 43 Cr. R. 564, 67 S. W. 415.

Evidence examined, and held to show that there was discrimination against the colored race in the formation of the jury which tried defendant. Smith v. State, 44 Cr. R. 90, 69 S. W. 151.

A motion to quash a special venire on the trial of a negro charged with crime, because the negro race was discriminated against in the selection of the jury, held properly denied. Thompson v. State, 45 Cr. R. 357, 77 S. W. 449.

Misconduct of a juror held waived by defendant’s consent to an order excusing him, and to proceed with 11 jurors. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Toliver, 37 C. A. 437, 84 S. W. 375.

Considering the testimony as to negroes qualified and the evidence regarding exemptions, the court is not prepared to say that the jury commissioners did not, in the selection of both the grand and petit jurors, allow the negro race their proper rate of qualified jurors. Thomas v. State, 49 Cr. R. 633, 95 S. W. 1072, 1073.

On motion to quash an indictment and a petit jury panel on the ground of race discrimination, certain testimony held irrelevant. Washington v. State, 51 Cr. R. 542, 103 S. W. 879.

Under the facts, a motion to quash a venire in the trial of a negro for murder on the ground of racial discrimination held properly denied. Macklin v. State, 53 Cr. R. 197, 109 S. W. 145.

The objection that talesmen were drawn by the sheriff before exhausting the regular panel of jurors cannot be raised first on review. Houston Electric Co. v. Seagar, 54 C. A. 255, 117 S. W. 900.

Evidence, on a motion to quash the special venire, held not to sustain the ground of discrimination as to race in the composition of the jury. Pollard v. State, 58 Cr. R. 299, 125 S. W. 390.

That for many years no negro had been selected or impaneled as a grand or petit juror could be considered, on a motion to quash a special venire, where the law has been in every respect complied with. Id.

The asking of a question of the jurors on their voir dire examination held not ground for reversal. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Shackle (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188.

Cases in term of court.—That the jury was drawn by jury commissioners for another term of court, the term of court having been changed by the legislature after the commissioners were appointed, was not error. Carter v. State, 46 Cr. R. 430, 76 S. W. 437.

Art. 5136. [3159] Drawing of jurors, how conducted.—The names of the persons so written and folded shall be deposited in a box, and, after being well shaken and mixed, the commissioners shall draw therefrom the names, one by one, of thirty-six persons, or a greater or less number where the judge has so directed, for each week of the term of the district court or terms of the county court for which a jury may be required, and shall record such names as they are drawn upon as many separate sheets of paper as there are weeks of such term or terms for which juries will be required. [Id.]

Drawing jurors for more than week.—An objection that the jury panel was not drawn for each week of the term, but was drawn for the whole term (of three weeks) cannot be sustained because the statute does not make this a ground of challenge. The only ground being that the officer has acted corruptly in summoning the jury. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 63 C. A. 361, 116 S. W. 384.

Art. 5137. [3159a] Special venire list.—The jury commissioners shall furthermore select one man for every one hundred of population in any county, or a greater or less number if so directed by the court, and these shall constitute a special venire list, from which shall be drawn the names of those who shall answer summons to the special venire facias, after the petit jurors for the term have been drawn on any venire one time during such term, and the drawing of the veniremen from the special venire list shall be done in the same manner as prescribed for other jurors, and no citizen who has served as a petit juror for one week during any term of court shall, during said term, be compelled to answer summons to more than one special venire facias; nor shall any citizen be compelled to answer summons to a special venire facias more than twice during any one term of court; provided, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply in counties having a population of less than two thousand inhabitants. [Acts 1905, p. 17.]

Repeal.—Acts 1907, p. 272, § 13, repeals this article as to counties designated in Chapter 5.

How long jurors may be required to serve.—This article provides that after the petit jurors for the term have served one week they can be drawn on a venire one time during said term, and that no citizen who has served as a petit juror for one week during any term of court, shall, during said term, be compelled to answer summons to more than one special venire facias. Nor can he be compelled to answer summons to a special venire more than twice during one term. Moore v. State, 49 Cr. R. 629, 55 S. W. 915.

When recourse may be had to special venire.—This article and Art. 5161 provide for the special venire list to be drawn by the jury commissioners appointed by the court out of which talesmen are to be drawn or selected when the special venire authorized by the old law has been exhausted. No recourse is to be had to this special venire list until the original special venire drawn in the case from the jury for the term has been exhausted, unless the contingency arises as provided in amended Art. 661. Code Cr. Proc. 1911; Gabler v. State, 49 Cr. R. 623, 55 S. W. 523.

Manner of drawing from special venire.—This article does not change the venire law, which requires the names of all the veniremen to be placed in the box prior to the drawing of the venire. Wallace v. State, 50 Cr. R. 374, 97 S. W. 471.

Art. 5138. [3160] Lists to be certified, sealed up and indorsed.—The several lists of names drawn, as provided in the preceding article [5136], shall be certified under the hands of the commissioners to be the lists drawn by them for the said several weeks, and shall be sealed up in separate envelopes, indorsed, “List of petit jurors for the ____ week of the _____ term of the ____ court of _____ county,” [filling the blanks]. [Acts 1876, p. 79, sec. 7.]

Art. 5139. [3161] To be delivered to the judge.—The commissioners shall write their names across the seals of the envelopes and deliver them to the judge. [Id.]

Art. 5139a. [3162] And by him to the clerk.—The judge shall deliver such envelopes to the clerk, or to one of his deputies in open court, and the court may instruct the clerk to indorse on any of such envelopes that the jury for that week shall be summoned for some other day than Monday of said week. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5140. [3163] Clerk and deputies to be sworn.—The judge shall at the same time administer to the clerk and each of his deputies an oath, in substance as follows: “You do solemnly swear that you will not open the jury lists now delivered to you, nor permit them to be opened until the time prescribed by law; that you will not, directly nor indirectly, converse or communicate with any one selected as a juror concerning any case pending for trial in this court at its next term,” if in the district court; or if in the county court, “within the next six months.” [Id. secs. 8, 28.]

Art. 5141. [3164] Same.—If for any reason such oath should not be administered to any of the deputies, or should the clerk subsequently appoint a deputy, the clerk shall administer to such deputy a like oath. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5142. [3165] District court commissioners to make out jury lists for county court.—The jury commissioners for the district court shall, in addition to the other duties required of them, make out for the use of the jury commissioners of the county court a complete list of the names of all the persons selected by them as grand and petit jurors, and shall place said list in an envelope and seal the same and write their names across the seal; and shall address said envelope to the jury commissioners of the county court of the proper county, and shall deliver the same to the district judge in open court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 170, sec. 1.]

Art. 5143. [3166] Which shall be delivered to the county clerk.—The district judge shall, without delay, deliver said envelope to the county clerk or one of his deputies, and, at the time of delivery, administer to said clerk or deputy, as the case may be, the following oath: “You do solemnly swear that you will, to the best of your ability, safely keep this envelope, and that you will neither open the same nor allow it to be opened, except as provided by law; and that you will cause it to be delivered to the jury commissioners of the county court next hereafter appointed in and for this county.” [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5144. [3167] And by him to the commissioners for his court.—At the first term of the county court thereafter held, at which jury commissioners are appointed, it shall be the duty of the county clerk to deliver said envelope to the jury commissioners or one of them appointed at said term, and take a receipt therefor; and said receipt shall state whether the seal of said envelope be broken or not. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5145. [3168] Persons included in such lists not to be selected as jurors in county court.—After the jury commissioners, appointed by said county court, shall have assembled for business, they shall open said envelope and read said list of names, and no person named on said list shall be selected as a juror by said commissioners. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5146. [3169] County court commissioners to make out lists for district court.—The jury commissioners of the county court shall, in addition to the other duties required of them, make out for the use of the jury commissioners of the district court a complete list of the names of all persons selected by them as jurors, and shall place said list in an envelope and seal the same, and write their names across the seal and address said envelope to the jury commissioners of the district court of the proper county, and shall deliver the same to the county judge in open court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 170, sec. 5.]

Art. 5147. [3170] To be delivered to the district clerk.—The county judge shall, without delay, deliver said envelope to the district clerk, or one of his deputies, and, at the time of delivery, administer to said clerk, or his deputy, as the case may be, the following oath: “You do solemnly swear that you will, to the best of your ability, safely keep this envelope, and that you will neither open the same nor allow it to be opened, except as provided by law, and that you will cause it to be delivered to the jury commissioners of the district court next hereafter appointed in and for this county.” [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5148. [3171] And by him to the commissioners for his court.—At the first term of the district court thereafter held, it shall be the duty of the clerk to deliver said envelope to the jury commissioners or one of them appointed at said term, and to take a receipt therefor, and said receipt shall state whether the seal of said envelope be broken or not. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5149. [3172] Persons included in such lists not to be selected as jurors in district court.—After the jury commissioners appointed at said term of the district court shall have assembled for business, they shall open said envelope and read said list of names, and no person named on said list shall be selected as juror by said commissioners. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5150. [3173] Lists of jurors to be destroyed.—It shall be the duty of the jury commissioners, in both the district and county courts, before leaving the apartment in which they shall have selected jurors, to destroy said list of names; and it shall be unlawful for them, or any of them, to make known to any person the name of any juror on said lists. [Id. sec. 9.]

CHAPTER FIVE

SELECTION OF JURORS IN COUNTIES WITH CITIES OF CERTAIN POPULATION

Art. 5151. Selection of jurors in certain counties.
Art. 5152. Names to be written on cards.
Art. 5153. Cards placed in wheel; description of wheel.
Art. 5154. Jurors drawn by whom, when, how, etc.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 5151. Selection of jurors in certain counties.—That between the 1st and 15th days of August of each year, in all counties in this state having therein a city or cities containing a population aggregating twenty thousand (20,000) or more people, as shown by the United States census of date next preceding such action, the tax collector of such county or one of his deputies, together with the tax assessor of such county or one of his deputies, together with the sheriff of such county or one of his deputies, together with the county clerk of such county or one of his deputies, together with the district clerk of such county or one of his deputies, shall meet at the court house of such county and shall select from the list of qualified jurors of such county as shown by the tax lists in the tax assessor’s office for the current year, the jurors for service in the district and county courts of such county for the ensuing year in the manner hereinafter provided. [Acts 1907, p. 269, sec. 1. Amended Acts 1911, p. 150, sec. 1.]

Cited, Todd v. State, 65 Cr. R. 199, 131 S. W. 606.

Constitutionality.—This law is constitutional in the opinion of the majority of the court, but Judge Davidson dissents, and is of the opinion that the law is unconstitutional and void. Logan v. State, 54 Cr. R. 74, 111 S. W. 1028; Huddleston v. State, 54 Cr. R. 95, 112 S. W. 64, 139 Am. St. Rep. 875; Brown v. State, 54 C. A. 121, 112 S. W. 89; Smith v. State, 54 Cr. R. 289, 113 S. W. 289; Jones v. Same, 54 Cr. R. 507, 113 S. W. 761; Dallas Consol. Electric St. R. Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 781; Same v. Chambers, 55 C. A. 331, 118 S. W. 851; Gates v. State, 56 Cr. R. 571, 121 S. W. 370; Beaver v. State, 63 Cr. R. 681, 142 S. W. 11.

This law has been held to be constitutional by the court of criminal appeals in Smith v. State, 54 Cr. R. 298, 113 S. W. 289, and this court in deference to that court holds the act to be constitutional. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Danforth, 63 C. A. 419, 116 S. W. 148.

This article held constitutional. Rarow v. State, 57 Cr. R. 10, 121 S. W. 512.

This article is a "general" and not a special law, within Const. art. 3, § 66, prohibiting the passage of any local or special law regulating the summoning or impaneling of juries. Houston Electric Co. v. Faroux (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 922.

Denial by the supreme court of a writ of error to review a decision of the court of civil appeals adjudging the validity of this article amounts to a decision that the law is valid and is conclusive on the court of civil appeals in a subsequent case. Rice & Lyon v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 961.

Does not repeal provisions relative to summoning talesmen.—This act does not repeal the statutory provision relating to the summoning of talesmen, and where less than 24 names are drawn from the wheel the judge can order the sheriff to summon talesmen to fill up the panel. Houston Electric Co. v. Seegear, 54 C. A. 356, 117 S. W. 902, 903.

Art. 5152. Names written on cards.—The aforesaid officers shall write the names of all men who are known to be qualified jurors under the law, residing in their respective counties, on separate cards of uniform size and color, writing also on said cards, whenever possible, the post-office address of the jurors so selected. [Acts 1907, p. 269, sec. 2.]

Art. 5153. Cards placed in wheel, etc.—The cards containing the aforesaid names shall be deposited in a circular, hollow wheel, to be provided for such purpose by the commissioners' court of the county; and said wheel shall be made of iron or steel and shall be so constructed as to freely revolve on its axle; and said wheel shall be kept locked at all times, except when in use as hereinafter provided, by the use of two separate locks, so arranged that the key to one will not open the other lock; and said wheel, and the clasps thereto attached into which the locks shall be fitted, shall be so arranged that said wheel can not be opened unless both of said locks are unlocked at the time the wheel is opened; and the keys to such locks shall be kept, one by the sheriff and the other by the district clerk; and the sheriff and the clerk shall not open such wheel, nor permit the same to be opened by any person, except at the time specified in this chapter, and in the manner and by the persons herein specified; but said sheriff and clerk shall keep such wheel, when not in use, in a safe and secure place, where the same can not be tampered with. [Id. sec. 3.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 5151.
This article held constitutional. Lee v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 706.

Art. 5154. Jurors drawn by whom, when and how.—Not less than ten days prior to the first day of a term of court, the clerk of the district court, or one of his deputies, and the sheriff, or one of his deputies, in the presence and under the direction of the district judge, if jurors are to be drawn for the district court, or the clerk of the county court, or one of his deputies, and the sheriff, or one of his deputies, in the presence and under the direction of the county judge, if jurors are to be drawn for the county court, shall draw from the wheel containing the names of jurors, after the same has been well turned so that the cards therein are thoroughly mixed, one by one the names of thirty-six jurors, or a greater or less number where such judge has so directed, for each week of the term of the district or county courts for which a jury may be required, and shall record such names as they are drawn upon as many separate sheets of paper as there are weeks for such term or terms, for which jurors will be required; and, at such drawing, no person other than those above named shall be permitted to be present; and the officers attending such drawing shall not divulge the name of any person that may be drawn as a juror to any person. [Id. sec. 4.]

District clerk to draw jury.—The district clerk and not the clerk of the criminal court is the proper person to draw the jury. Jones v. State, 55 Cr. R. 535, 117 S. W. 128.

Art. 5155. List to be certified, etc.—The several lists of names drawn, as provided in the preceding article, shall be certified under the hand of the clerk or the deputy doing the drawing, and the district or county judge in whose presence said names of jurors were drawn from the wheel, to the list drawn by said clerk for the said several weeks, and shall be sealed up in separate envelopes indorsed, “List of petit jurors for the . . . week of the . . . . term of the . . . . court of . . . . county,” (filling in the blanks properly) and the clerk, or his deputy doing the drawing, shall write his name across the seals of the envelopes and shall then immediately deliver the same to the judge in whose presence such names were drawn, or to his successor in office, in case of the death of such judge before such delivery can be made to him. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5156. Judges to deliver list to clerk.—The judge shall deliver such envelopes to the clerk, or to one of his deputies, and shall in his discretion instruct the clerk to indorse on any of such envelopes that the jury for that week shall be summoned for some other day than Monday of said week, and the judge shall, at the same time, administer to the clerk and to each of his deputies an oath in substance as follows: “You and each of you do solemnly swear that you will not open the jury lists now delivered to you, nor permit them to be opened, until the time prescribed by law, nor communicate to anyone the name or names of the men appearing on any of the jury lists, that you will not, directly or indirectly, converse or communicate with any one selected as juror concerning any case pending for trial in this court at its next term. So help you God.” [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5157. Jurors drawn; disposition of cards.—When the names are drawn, as provided in article [5154], the cards containing such names shall be sealed in separate envelopes, indorsed, “Cards containing the names of jurors for the ............. week of the ............. term of the ............. court of ............. county,” (filling in the blanks properly); and said envelopes shall be retained securely by the clerk, unopened, until after the jury has been impanelled for such week; and, after such jurors so impanelled have served four or more days, the envelopes containing the cards bearing the names of the jurors for that week shall then be opened by the clerk, or his deputy, and those cards bearing the names of men who have not been impanelled and who have not served as many as four days, shall be immediately returned to the wheel by the clerk, or his deputy; and the cards bearing the names of the men serving as many as four days shall be put in a box provided for that purpose for the use of the officers mentioned in article 5151, who shall next select the jurors for the wheel. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5158. Loss of wheel, etc.—If, for any reason, the wheel containing the names of jurors be lost or destroyed, with the contents thereof, or if all the cards in said wheel be drawn out, such wheel shall immediately be refurnished, and cards bearing the names of jurors shall be placed therein immediately, in accordance with articles 5151, 5152 and 5153; and the judge of the court desiring jurors for a regular or special term of his court may have the same selected in accordance with chapters 2, 3 and 4 of this title, in the event that such new wheel can not be furnished in time to comply with the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 8.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Applicability of wheel law to certain cities only.—The provision of the Code requiring that a venire should be drawn from a wheel applies only to counties containing a city of more than 20,000 population. Asbeck v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 925.

CHAPTER SIX

SELECTED JURORS—HOW SUMMONED, ETC.

Art. 5159. Clerk to make out jury lists and deliver to sheriff.—Within not more than thirty days and not less than ten days prior to each term of the court, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the district and county courts, respectively, to open the list of jurors selected for such term, and to make out a copy of the same, duly certified under his hand and the seal of his office, and deliver the same to the sheriff. Where the judge has directed that the jurors for any week shall be summoned for some other day than Monday, the clerk shall note such order for the information of the sheriff. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 10.]

Art. 5160. Sheriff to notify jurors.—On the receipt of such lists it shall be the duty of the sheriff immediately to notify the several persons named in such lists to be in attendance on the court on the day and week for which they were respectively drawn to serve as jurors for said week. [Id.]

Disqualification of sheriff.—In suit on liquor dealer's bond to recover damages for unlawful sale of liquor to plaintiff's son, a motion to quash a venire, summoned by the sheriff because of his having made affidavits charging the alleged illegal sales held properly denied. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

Duty in general.—A sheriff must summon a juror though he be sick. Gay v. State, 40 Cr. R. 242, 49 S. W. 612.

A sheriff must summon a juror though he claim to be exempt as being over age. Id.

Art. 5161. Special venire, how summoned.—Whenever district court shall have convened, and a day shall have been set for the trial of the different capital cases which call for a special venire, the men whose names may have been drawn to answer summons to the venire facias in the different capital cases shall be immediately notified by the sheriff to be in attendance on the court on the day and week for which they were respectively drawn to serve as veniremen for said day and week; and such notice shall be given at least one day prior to the time when such duty is to be performed, exclusive of the day of service. [Acts 1905, p. 17.]

Art. 5162. [3176] Notice to jurors, how served.—Such notice may be orally delivered by the sheriff to the juror in person, or in case such juror can not be found, then a written memorandum thereof, signed by the sheriff officially, may be left at the juror's place of residence, with some member of his family over sixteen years of age. [Acts Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171.]

Notice by mail.—The method of summoning jurors prescribed by this article should be obeyed, and the sheriff who attempts to summon jurors personally should not merely give them notice by mail. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

Jurors attending because of notice given in another manner than as provided in this article are not subject to challenge, the statute not being mandatory but merely directory, and so where telegrams were given notice by mail, challenges to their competency were properly overruled where it did not appear that the challenging party was in any way prejudiced. Id.

It was not ground for a challenge to array that the jury had been summoned by postal card, instead of orally, where the actual attendance of the jurors was thereby secured; the statute being merely directory, and no such grounds of challenge to array being specified by Arts. 5155-5201, relating thereto. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 991.

Art. 5163. [3177] Time of service.—Such notice shall be served at least three days prior to the first day of the term of court, exclusive of the day of service.

Art. 5164. [3178] Sheriff's return.—The sheriff executing such summons shall return the lists on the first day of the term of the court at which such jurors are to serve, with a certificate thereon of the date and manner of service upon each juror; and, if any of said jurors have not been summoned, he shall also state the diligence used to summon them, and the reason why they have not been summoned. [Id.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

JURIES FOR THE WEEK—HOW MADE UP

Art. 5165. Jurors for the week, how selected.

Art. 5166. If not selected on day appointed may be subsequently done.

Art. 5167. If practicable, to be of jurors selected by jury commissioners.

Art. 5168. May be filled up, how.

Art. 5169. May be adjourned.

Art. 5170. Oath to be administered to the sheriff when jurors not selected are to be summoned by him.

Art. 5171. Court may hear excuses of jurors.

Art. 5172. Defaulting juror to be fined.

Article 5165. [3179] Jurors for the week, how selected.—On Monday of each week of the court for which a jury shall be summoned, and for which there may be jury trials, or where the jury trials for the week have been set for some other day, then on such day the court shall select thirty qualified jurors, or a greater or less number, in its discretion, to serve as jurors for the week. [Id.]

Ordering sheriff to summon venire.—The court has no authority to order the sheriff to summon a venire for the trial of a civil cause. Lewis v. Merchant, 4 App. C. C. § 118, 16 S. W. 172; Cassidy v. Kluge, 73 T. 156, 12 S. W. 13.

Art. 5166. [3180] If not selected on day appointed, may be subsequently done.—Should such selection from any cause not be made on the day appointed, it may be made on any subsequent day.

Art. 5167. [3181] If practicable, to be of jurors selected by jury commissioners.—Such jurors shall be selected from the names included in the jury list for the week, if there be the requisite number of such in attendance who are not excused by the court.

Dismissing jury until later date.—Construing this article and Art. 5166, the court has power to dismiss a jury selected for any week of a term until another week or further day of the term for service. Howard Oil Co. v. Davis, 76 T. 630, 13 S. W. 665.

Sheriff to summon additional jurors.—See note under Art. 5168.

Art. 5168. [3182] May be filled up, how.—If the requisite number of such jurors be not in attendance at any time, the court shall direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of qualified persons to make up the requisite number of jurors. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 80, sec. 11.]

Sheriff to summon additional jurors.—If there is no dereliction of duty or Intentional disregard of the statute on the part of the judge, whereby there is forced upon the defect, as a part only of the jurors summoned by the jury commissioners for the week, it is the judge's duty under this article and Art. 5167 to require a sufficient number of talesmen to make up the requisite number to be summoned. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perry, 38 A. 81, 36 S. W. 34.

Appointing new commission to summon additional jurors.—See notes under Art. 5127.

Taking jurors from another court.—Where there are two district courts in one county, the judge of one has no right to order sheriff to bring in regular jurors of the other courts to serve in his court. They should be summoned as provided by law. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Glivin (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 985.

Talesman at trial of cause.—See notes under Art. 5205.

Art. 5169. [3183] May be adjourned.—The court may adjourn the whole number of jurors for the week, or any part thereof, to any subsequent day of the term, but jurors shall not be paid for the time they may so stand adjourned. [Id. p. 83, sec. 24.]

Dismissing jury until later date.—The court has power to dismiss a jury selected for any week of a term until another week or further day of the term for service. Oil Co. v. Davis, 76 T. 630, 13 S. W. 665.

Art. 5170. [3184] Oath to be administered to the sheriff when jurors not selected are to be summoned by him.—Whenever it may be necessary to summon jurors who have not been selected by jury commissioners under the provisions of this title, the court shall administer to the sheriff and each of his deputies the following oath: "You do solemnly swear that you will, to the best of your skill and ability, and without bias or favor toward any party, summon such jurors as may be ordered by the court; that you will select none but impartial, sensible and sober men, having the qualifications of jurors under the law; that you will not, directly or indirectly, converse or communicate with any jurymen touching any case pending for trial; and that you will not by any means attempt to influence, advise or control any jurymen in his opinion in any case which may be tried by him. So help you God." [Id. sec. 12.]

Failure to administer oath.—The sheriff, having been sworn at the beginning of the term, need not be sworn again prior to summoning talesmen to fill out a special venire. Deon v. State, 37 Cr. R. 506, 40 S. W. 266.

Though in a civil action the officer sent to summon talesmen was not sworn according to law, the irregularity was not available to defendant as error. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 564.

The failure of the court to administer to officers summoning jurors not selected by jury commissioners the oath required by this article is error. Sewall v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 569.

Art. 5171. [3185] Court may hear excuses of jurors.—The court may hear any reasonable excuse of a juror, supported by oath or affirmation, and may either release him entirely or until some other day of the term.

Excusing juror after being impaneled.—The judge, for good cause, may excuse a juror after he has been impaneled. Railway Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 254.

Article 5173. [3187] Right of trial by jury to remain inviolate, subject, etc.—The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate, subject to the following rules and regulations. [Const., art. I, sec. 15.]

Functions of court and jury.—See notes under Art. 1971. Action of court infringing right of trial by jury.—The direction of a verdict in a civil action held not a violation of the constitutional guaranty of trial by jury. Henry v. McNew, 367 S. W. 2d 288, 69 S. W. 2d 213.

Constitutional right of trial by jury held not violated in instructing a verdict for defendants. Henry v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 599.

Prima facie all questions of fact are for the jury, and unless it appears without doubt that what would ordinarily be a question of fact has, from the state of the evidence, become a question of law, a court cannot deprive a party of his constitutional right of trial by jury by deciding the question. Merritt v. State, 42 C. A. 496, 94 S. W. 372.

Plaintiff, after the erroneous denial of its motion for a jury trial, having submitted its entire case to the court, could not insist on a reversal where the undisputed evidence required a verdict for the defendants. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 847.

In an action by a parent to recover the custody of her minor child, an order overruling plaintiff's motion for a new trial, and upon its own motion decreeing that plaintiff should have custody of the child for one month in each year, was an invasion of the province of the jury. Cobb v. Works (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 349.

Trial by jury in probate matters.—See, also, notes under Art. 3221. A contestation of the probate of a will must on demand be tried by a jury. Cockrill v. Cox, 65 T. 669.

Right to jury trial.—The right of trial by jury cannot be defeated by a legislative enactment. C. & M. Ry. Co. v. Morris, 68 T. 49, 2 S. W. 457.

A defendant may not arbitrarily be deprived of his statutory right of a trial by a jury selected by the jury commissioners. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bigham (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 432.

Suits in equity.—On request of plaintiff a suit in equity was properly submitted to a jury on special issues. Henry v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 428.

On submitting issues in an equity case, only such matters of fact as in some way tend to establish or defeat a cause of action need be submitted. Id.

Contempt proceedings.—A party prosecuted by contempt proceedings for the violation of an injunction cannot demand a jury trial. Ex parte Allison, 48 Cr. R. 634, 90 S. W. 492, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 622, 13 Ann. Cas. 654.

Mandatory injunction.—In a suit for a mandatory injunction to compel obedience to a decree that defendant open a public highway across its property, it was not error to grant a jury trial. Santa Fe Townsite Co. v. Norvell, 55 C. A. 488, 118 S. W. 762.

Injunction proceedings.—In guardianship proceedings, an issue as to the ward's sanity held formed, which the court could determine without a jury where no jury was demanded. Ferguson v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 632.

Determination of venue.—On the question whether a defendant was a resident of the county in which an action was brought, so as to give the court jurisdiction of his person, he was entitled to trial by jury. J. D. Hudgins & Bro. v. Low, 42 C. A. 556, 94 S. W. 411.

Issues of fact presented by a plea of privilege are triable by a jury, unless a jury is waived. Koil v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 859.
Effect of denial of jury trial.—A judgment will not be reversed on account of the denial of the right of trial by jury, when no other judgment could be rendered on the facts. Caldwell County v. Harbert, 68 T. 321, 4 S. W. 607.

Findings of jury in divorce suits.—In suits for divorce, neither the trial court nor the court of civil appeals is bound by the finding of the jury upon questions of fact, but may, in their sound discretion, disregard the verdict and render the judgment that justice requires. De Fierros v. Fierros (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1067.

Waiver of right.—Plaintiff's right to trial by jury in a suit to restrain the collection of certain taxes held waived. Nalle v. City of Austin, 41 C. A. 423, 93 S. W. 141.

One on trial for a misdemeanor being not entitled to waive a jury after the hearing of the evidence and require the court to assess the punishment on a plea of guilty. Johnson v. State, 55 Cr. R. 507, 118 S. W. 1148.

The statute providing that in misdemeanor cases a jury may be waived by accused requires a formal waiver. Id.

A jury question cannot be waived in criminal cases. Davis v. State, 64 Cr. R. 8, 141 S. W. 264.

Art. 5174. [3188] Must be demanded and jury fee be paid.—No jury trial shall be had in any civil suit, unless an application therefor be made in open court and a jury fee be deposited, or an affidavit be made of inability to make such deposit, as hereinafter prescribed. [Const., art. 5, secs. 10, 17.]

Necessity of jury when demanded.—When a demand for a jury has been made, and the fee therefor paid by one of the parties when the case is regularly reached, neither the judge nor the opposite party has authority, in his temporary absence and without his assent, to proceed in the trial without a jury. Lacroix v. Evans, 1 App. C. C. § 744.

A demand at a previous term demanded a trial by jury and paid the fee, it was improper at a subsequent term and in his and his attorney's absence for the court, upon a statement by the plaintiff's attorney that the defendant would waive a jury, to pass on the action himself. Hays v. Housewright (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 922.

It is not sufficient in demanding a trial by jury, the defendant by not complaining that the court had discharged several of the jurors. Doll v. Mundline, 7 C. A. 98, 28 S. W. 87.

Manner of demanding jury to be strictly enforced.—Demand for a jury made by defendants joined by plaintiff during the trial held properly refused. Goldman v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 283.

The law as to how a jury shall be demanded in order to entitle a party to jury trial should be strictly enforced, where, even admitting his witnesses would testify as he states, a directed verdict for the other party would be justified. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 255.

Demand in open court.—Written application filed with the clerk, and not brought to the court's attention, is not made in "open court," without providing that no jury trial shall be had, unless application therefor be made in open court. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 255.

Time for demanding jury.—See notes under Art. 5175.

Jury fee.—Where the one demanding a jury trial withdraws the jury fee, he cannot complain that the case was not tried by a jury. Harris v. Kellum & Rotan Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 283.

Where no jury fee has been paid, plaintiff is entitled to have the case tried as a nonjury case, although it is entered on the jury docket. Ransom v. Leggett (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 688.

The refusal of a jury trial was not error, where plaintiff neither offered to pay the jury fee nor made affidavit of his inability to pay it. Kruegel v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 680.

Time for depositing jury fee.—See note under Art. 5180.

Review of court's discretion.—In the absence of a clear showing of an abuse of discretion, the refusal of the trial court to grant a jury trial, where the demand for a jury was not made within the time prescribed by statute, will not be disturbed on appeal. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 658.

Art. 5175. [3189] Time of demand.—Any party to a civil suit in the district or county court desiring to have the same tried by jury, shall make application therefor in open court on the first day of the term of the court at which the suit is to be tried, unless the same be an appearance case, in which event the application shall be made on default day. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 11.]

Excuse for failure to demand on first day.—The failure to demand a jury on the first day of the term is excused when the presiding judge was not competent to enter the order. Hays v. Hays, 66 T. 606, 1 S. W. 885.

Demand on appearance day.—On the call of the docket on default day no jury was demanded after the call was completed, and the jury cases were set for a future day, the non-jury cases were called for trial, and, an application for a continuance of the case having been overruled, plaintiff demanded a jury. Held, the application came too late. Hunt v. Makemson, 56 T. 9.

The terms "default day" and "appearance day" have the same meaning, and an application on the fourth day of the term is too late. Cruger v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 282.
Failure to demand in time.—When a proper demand for a jury has not been made, the defendant is not entitled to have the damages assessed by a jury. Bumpass v. Moffett, 50 T. 756, 8 S. W. 596.

If a jury is not demanded at the proper time a party cannot, as a matter of right, afterwards demand that his case shall be tried by a jury. Cabell v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 104 T. 636, 64 T. 403; McPadden v. Preston, 64 T. 541; Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 474; Ellis v. Bonner, 27 S. W. 667, 7 C. A. 539; Brooks v. Pegg (Sup.) 8 S. W. 595. If demanded at a subsequent term it should be granted. Noel v. Denman, 76 T. 596, 18 S. W. 516. A jury after the jury docket is disposed of and four days before the case is called for trial is improperly refused. Petri v. Bank, 83 T. 424, 18 S. W. 752, 29 Am. St. Rep. 657; Denton Lumber Co. v. Bank (Sup.) 18 S. W. 962.

One who was negligent in not being present at the trial in person or by attorney cannot complain that his case was not retained on the jury docket. Harris v. Kellum & Rotan Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1027.

A demand for a jury trial was held to have come too late. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Thompson, 18 C. A. 273, 44 S. W. 402.

Where defendant had performed every requirement for a jury trial, but was absent on the day of the trial, it was error to try the cause without a jury, since her right was not forfeited by absence. Fitzgerald v. Wygal, 24 C. A. 372, 59 S. W. 621.

Where, after a case had been called and postponed, defendant's counsel paid the jury fee, but made no demand for a jury trial, and did not call the court's attention thereto until after the case was regularly called for trial on the nonjury docket, and the granting of a jury trial would necessitate a postponement of the trial to a subsequent week, and greatly inconvenience plaintiff, who was a nonresident, and who had twice journeyed from his home to attend the trial, the refusal to grant a jury trial was proper. City Loan & Trust Co. v. Sterner, 57 C. A. 617, 124 S. W. 207.

Jury necessity.—Where art. 1, § 15 of the Constitution empowering the legislature to pass laws regulating the right to trial by jury, is not mandatory, and a litigant may only be deprived of a jury trial when his delay in demanding a jury and tendering the jury fee will probably work injury to the adverse party. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank of Victoria (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 558.

In the absence of a clear abuse of discretion, the refusal of the trial court to grant a jury trial, where the demand for a jury trial was not made within the time prescribed by statute, will not be disturbed on appeal. Id.

Application in open court for jury trial, without which Art. 5174, provides there shall be no jury trial, was properly denied, where not made until the case was called for trial, subsequent to the first day of the court, and the other party was ready for trial, with its witnesses in court; and a postponement of three weeks would be necessary for a jury trial. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach, Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 285.

Jury necessitating continuance.—Where a demand for a jury, not made within the prescribed time, if acceded to would continue a case for the term, it may properly be refused. Petri v. Lincoln Nat. Bank, 83 T. 425, 18 S. W. 752, 29 Am. St. Rep. 657; Id., 84 T. 153, 19 S. W. 379. See Cabell v. Shoe Co., 81 T. 104, 16 S. W. 811.

Where a party complies with the requirements of the statute he is entitled to a jury trial although to grant such right may compel a continuance when one party is ready and anxious to try. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 549.

A demand in open court for jury trial, without which Art. 5174, provides there shall be no jury trial, was properly denied, where not made until the case was called for trial, subsequent to the first day of the court, and the other party was ready for trial, with its witnesses in court; and a postponement of three weeks would be necessary for a jury trial. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach, Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 285.

Jury necessitating continuance.—Where a demand for a jury, not made within the prescribed time, if acceded to would continue a case for the term, it may properly be refused. Petri v. Lincoln Nat. Bank, 83 T. 425, 18 S. W. 752, 29 Am. St. Rep. 657; Id., 84 T. 153, 19 S. W. 379. See Cabell v. Shoe Co., 81 T. 104, 16 S. W. 811.

Where a party complies with the requirements of the statute he is entitled to a jury trial although to grant such right may compel a continuance when one party is ready and anxious to try. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 549.

A demand in open court for jury trial, without which Art. 5174, provides there shall be no jury trial, was properly denied, where not made until the case was called for trial, subsequent to the first day of the court, and the other party was ready for trial, with its witnesses in court; and a postponement of three weeks would be necessary for a jury trial. Where a party complies with the requirements of the statute he is entitled to a jury trial although to grant such right may compel a continuance when one party is ready and anxious to try. Wm. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 549.
Art. 5179. [3193] Same as to appearance docket.—On the call of the appearance docket at each term of the court, the court shall in like manner note in each appearance case whether or not a jury trial is applied for, and by whom.

Art. 5180. [3194] Jury fee.—The party applying for a jury trial in the district or county court shall, on the same day, deposit with the clerk, to the use of the county, a jury fee of five dollars if in the district court, and of three dollars if in the county court. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 11.]

Time for depositing jury fee.—A discretion may be exercised by the judge in allowing the deposit of the jury fee if made before trial and no injury results to the adverse party. Hardin v. Blackshear, 60 T. 132. See Wood v. Kieschbaum (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 326.

The plaintiff filed an affidavit under Art. 2053, and the clerk thereupon placed the case on the jury docket. While the parties were engaged in selecting a jury the defendant objected to the case being tried by a jury on the ground that the affidavit did not conform to Art. 5181. Plaintiff asked leave to amend his affidavit, which was refused. He then deposited the jury fee with the clerk and demanded a trial by jury, which was refused. Held, that a trial by jury should have been allowed. Berry v. T. & N. O. Ry. Co., 60 T. 654.

A jury was demanded on the first day of the term and the jury fee paid on the second day. Held, that when no injury resulted to the opposing party, and neither the business nor the trial of the cause was delayed thereby, the jury fee should have been accepted and the jury allowed. Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 473.

A jury was demanded by the plaintiff at the proper time and the cause was placed on the jury docket but the jury fee was not then paid. A motion to strike the case from the jury docket on the ground that the jury fee was not paid on the first day of the term was sustained, although it appeared that it was paid before the motion was filed. Held error. Allyn v. Willis, 65 T. 65.

This article is not mandatory regarding the deposit, which may be made on the second day and before the case is called for trial. Allen v. Plummer, 71 T. 546, 9 S. W. 672; Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 478; Hardin v. Blackshear, 60 T. 132.

The failure to pay the jury fee on the day required should not deprive a party of a jury trial when the plaintiff is not prejudiced thereby or the business of the court disturbed. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Everheart, 10 C. A. 468, 32 S. W. 90.

Case transferred from county to district court.—When a jury has been demanded in the county court and fee paid, on the transfer of the case to the district court the party making the demand has a right to a jury. Warner v. Crosby, 75 T. 295, 12 S. W. 745.

Art. 5181. [3195] Oath of inability to make jury fee deposit.—The deposit mentioned in the preceding article shall not be required when the party shall, within the time limited for making such deposit, file with the clerk an affidavit in writing signed by him, to the effect that he is unable to make such deposit, and that he can not, by the pledge of property or otherwise, obtain the money necessary for that purpose. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 81, sec. 18.]

Defective affidavit.—A party having filed a defective affidavit was on the call of the case for trial permitted to deposit the fee in cash. Berry v. T. & N. O. Ry. Co., 60 T. 604.

Art. 5182. [3196] Cases heretofore entered on jury trial docket, excepted.—The preceding article shall not apply to cases which have been heretofore properly entered on the jury trial docket in accordance with former laws.

Art. 5183. [3197] Order of court.—Upon a compliance with the foregoing provisions, the court shall order the clerk to enter the suit on the jury docket. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 171, sec. 11.]

Late demand for jury necessitating continuance.—See notes under Art. 5175.

Art. 5184. [3198] Clerk to keep jury docket.—It shall be the duty of the clerks of the districts and county courts each to keep a docket, to be styled, "The Jury Docket," in which shall be entered in their order the cases in which jury trials have been ordered by the court. [Id.]

Art. 5185. [3199] Jury trial day to be fixed.—The court shall, by an order entered on the minutes, designate any day during the term for the taking up of the jury docket and the trial of causes thereon; and such order may be revoked or changed at discretion. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 81, sec. 14.]

Changing order of cases on jury docket.—The court may require a cause to be tried out of its order upon the jury docket without reference to the consent of the parties.
The exercise of this power may be revised on appeal, it appearing that a party has been injured. Waller v. Shuford, 72 T. 165, 10 S. W. 408.

Absence of jury as ground for continuance.—The absence of a jury under the orders of the court on the day set for trial is not a ground for continuance. Cole v. Terrell, 71 T. 549, 9 S. W. 668.

Art. 5186. [3200] Application for jury not to be withdrawn, unless, etc.—When one party has applied for a jury trial, as herein provided, he shall not be permitted to withdraw such application without the consent of the parties adversely interested.

Art. 5187. [3201] When application withdrawn, court may permit jury fee to be withdrawn also.—When a party who has applied for a jury trial has been permitted under the preceding article to withdraw such application, the court may, in its discretion, by an order permit him to withdraw also his jury fee deposit.

CHAPTER NINE

CHALLENGES

Art. 5188. Challenge to the array of jurors.
5189. Not allowed, when.
5190. Challenge to array must be in writing.
5191. Court shall decide at once.
5192. Proceedings when challenge to array is sustained.
5193. Challenge to a particular juror.
5194. Challenge for cause.

Art. 5195. On trial of challenge for cause, evidence to be heard.
5196. Certain questions not permissible.
5197. Peremptory challenge.
5198. Number in district court.
5199. In the county court.
5200. Challenge to a particular juror made orally.
5201. Court to decide challenges promptly.

Article 5188. [3202] Challenge to the array of jurors.—Any party to a suit which is to be tried by a jury, before the jury is drawn, challenge the array of jurors upon making it to appear that the officer summoning the jury has acted corruptly, and has wilfully summoned jurors known to be prejudiced against the party challenging or biased in favor of the adverse party. [Id. p. 83, sec. 25.]

Applies only to venires summoned by sheriff.—This article only applies to venires which have been summoned by the sheriff under a valid order of the court, and does not restrict the right of the litigant to question the power of the court to order a venire to be summoned by the sheriff and to substitute such a venire for one regularly drawn by the jury commissioners and which had been duly sworn and impaneled. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Pullen, 33 C. A. 143, 75 S. W. 1085.

Necessity of corruption or misconduct.—In order to challenge an array selected as talesmen, there must be alleged corruption, or such other conduct on the part of the officer as the statute requires. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perry, 38 C. A. 81, 85 S. W. 64.

Jurors were drawn for the second, third and fourth weeks of the term, but the case was not tried during these weeks. The judge summarily ordered the sheriff to summon a jury for the 6th week, to try the case. Only one or both of the causes stated in this article can be urged to support the challenge to the array and as neither was interposed the motion to quash the venire was properly overruled. Haywood Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 494.

An objection to a jury that the panel was not drawn for a particular week, but was drawn for the whole term of three weeks is not good. There is only one ground of challenge to the array, and that is the corruption of the officer summoning the jury. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 53 C. A. 351, 116 S. W. 368.

Summons by mail.—Under this article and Art. 5189, which prohibits challenge to an array where the jurors have been selected by jury commissioners under title 75, it is not ground for such challenge that 10 names were taken from the jury wheel at a time, where the names were written down in the order in which they were taken out, nor that some of the jurors were not summoned in person, notice being mailed to them, where 35 regular jurors obeyed summons and the court excused for good cause down to 24, who were regularly impaneled, and where no challenges were made for cause. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

It was not ground for a challenge to array that the jury had been summoned by postal card, instead of orally, as provided by Art. 5162, where the actual attendance of the jurors was thereby secured; such statute being merely directory, and no such grounds of challenge to array being specified by this and the following articles. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

Time for objection.—An exception to the manner of impaneling a jury is waived, unless taken at the time the jury is impaneled; and it cannot be raised by embodying the entire motion for new trial in a bill of exceptions. Black v. State, 46 Cr. R. 580, 84 S. W. 302.
Where accused, tried at one term, accepted, without objection, the jury selected at a prior term, he could not after trial complain of the time of the selection of the jury. Kinch v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 649.

Nature of motion.—A motion to quash the jury panel must be deemed a challenge to the array, though not expressly purporting to be such. Freeman v. McCloy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

Art. 5189. [3203] Not allowed, when.—No challenge to the array shall be entertained where the jurors have been selected by jury commissioners under the provisions of this title.

Prejudice—remedy.—Under the express provisions of this article, where jurors have been selected by jury commissioners, a challenge to the array will not be entertained, and such a challenge will be deemed as to be prejudiced against an accused person was properly overruled, his proper remedy being by motion for a change of venue. Columbo v. State (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 910.

Art. 5190. [3204] Challenge to array must be in writing, etc.—All challenges to the array must be in writing, setting forth distinctly the grounds of such challenge, and must be supported by the affidavit of the party, or some other credible person.

Challenging each juror.—Where jurors are improperly brought in and offered to a party, and he challenges each one as presented, this is not a challenge to the array. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gilvin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 985.

Officer of the court.—Challenge to the array, under Code Cr. Proc. 1895, arts. 661, 663, must be made in writing, on oath that the officer summoning has acted corruptly. Arnold v. State, 38 Cr. R. 1, 40 S. W. 734.

Art. 5191. [3205] Court shall decide at once.—When a challenge to the array is made, the court shall hear evidence, and shall decide without delay whether the challenge shall be sustained or not.

Art. 5192. [3206] Proceedings when challenge to the array is sustained.—If the challenge be sustained, the array of jurors summoned shall be discharged, and the court shall order other jurors to be summoned in their stead, and shall direct that the officer who summoned the persons so discharged, and on account of whose misconduct the challenge has been sustained, shall not summon any other jurors in the case. [Id.]

Art. 5193. [3207] Challenge to a particular juror.—A challenge to an individual juror is either—
1. A challenge for cause; or
2. A peremptory challenge.

Challenge for cause.—See notes under Art. 5194.

Art. 5194. [3208] Challenge for cause.—A challenge for cause is an objection made to a particular juror, alleging some fact which, under the provisions of the first chapter of this title, disqualifies him to serve as a juror in any case, or in the particular case, or which, in the opinion of the court, renders him an unfit person to sit on the jury.

Competency in general.—See notes under Arts. 5115, 5117.

Grounds not specified in statute.—Constructing this article and Art. 5116 held, that the trial court may allow the challenge of a juror for cause on other grounds than those which the statute declares shall render him disqualified in the particular case. This power is discretionary, and when exercised it will not be reversed, unless it has resulted in preventing a fair and impartial trial. Courts v. Neer, 70 T. 468, 9 S. W. 40.

Necessity for challenge.—Where defendant had not challenged a juror for cause or otherwise, held not error to allow the juror to act. Kugard v. State, 38 Cr. R. 681, 44 S. W. 988.

Where an accused failed to question a juror, the fact that he was not qualified held not ground for reversal. Corley v. State (Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 1073.

Time for raising objections.—See notes under Art. 5208.

Right to complain of failure to sustain challenge.—Denying defendant's challenge to certain jurors held not prejudicial error where he afterwards peremptorily challenged them. Sawyer v. State, 39 Cr. R. 557, 47 S. W. 669.

Accused cannot complain of the action of the court in overruling a challenge for cause, whereby he was compelled to exhaust his peremptory challenges, if, after the juror was excused, another juror was drawn, and accused accepted him without objection. Morrison v. State, 40 Cr. R. 473, 51 S. W. 365.

Where the bill of exceptions did not show defendant had at any time exhausted his peremptory challenges, held not error for the state to accept a juror, thereby compelling defendant to exhaust one of his peremptory challenges. Renfro v. State, 42 Cr. R. 393, 56 S. W. 1712.

When a challenge for cause was overruled, accused should have excused the juror peremptorily, if he had any peremptory challenges left. Chapman v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 568.

One accused of murder is not entitled to complain of the sustaining of challenges for cause to jurors, where he had several unexhausted peremptory challenges. Grant v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 780, 42 L. R. A. (N. S.) 458.

Examination of juror.—See notes under Art. 5186.

Art. 5195. [3209] On trial of challenge for cause, evidence to be heard.—Upon a challenge for cause the examination shall not be confined to the answers of the juror, but other evidence may be heard in support of or against the challenge.

Examination of juror.—In examining a juror on his voir dire it is not improper to ask him if he knows anything about the facts of the case or if he has made up his mind about the case. The examination need not be confined to the literal language of the statute, but may extend to an inquiry as to the bias or prejudice relating to the subject-matter of the litigation as well as to that which may be felt toward the parties personally. A refusal to allow such examination touching the qualification of a juror affords cause for a reversal. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 658, 7 S. W. 670.

The court may have discretion to ascertain the state of feeling existing between proposed jurors and litigants. Davis v. Panhandle Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 926.

A motion to require state's attorney to disclose the names of parties employing counsel to assist him to enable defendant to inquire of the jurors if they were related to them held properly refused. McGee v. State, 37 Cr. R. 668, 49 S. W. 967.

Question on voir dire examination of a juror in the trial of a negro for murder of a white man considered, and held proper, as tending to show whether or not he was prejudiced against the negro for killing a white man. Fendrick v. State, 39 Cr. R. 147, 46 S. W. 689.

Defendant was not entitled to ask the jurors what was meant by various legal terms, as bearing on their mental fitness. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Belt, 24 C. A. 381, 59 S. W. 607.

Where the court refuses to permit a party to ask jurors improper questions touching their competency, it is not the duty of the court to indicate what questions he would permit him to be asked. Ibid.

Where one of the jurors on his examination stated he had expressed no opinion, defendant held not estopped, by his failure to examine the juror further, from thereafter objecting to him on the ground that he expressed an opinion. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 60 S. W. 652.

In criminal cases certain conduct on trial held not erroneous as a challenge to a juror during his absence from courtroom. Dodd v. State, 44 Cr. R. 480, 72 S. W. 1015.

One on trial for homicide held not entitled to ask jurors certain questions to enable him to properly exercise his peremptory challenge. Yardley v. State, 50 Cr. R. 644, 100 S. W. 395, 133 Am. St. Rep. 869.

Where, before accused had been called on to exercise his right of challenge, the court had interrogated the entire jury as to whether or not they had served as jurors in that court for six years within the last six months, and they had all either answered "No," or made no dissent to the question, accused might assume in challenging that they had not so served. Benton v. State, 52 Cr. R. 360, 107 S. W. 838.

In a prosecution for seduction, exclusion of certain question to juror on voir dire examination not to answer to another similar question which was allowed. Faulkner v. State, 53 Cr. R. 258, 109 S. W. 199.

A question asked prospective jurors in a trial for violating the local option law held proper. Irvine v. State, 55 Cr. R. 347, 116 S. W. 581.

In a prosecution for illegally selling liquor, it was not error to permit a private prosecuting attorney to ask the jury concerning their attitude towards testimony of detectives, that he might intelligently exercise his peremptory challenges. Morrow v. State, 56 Cr. R. 619, 120 S. W. 491.

Questions to jurors on their voir dire held not improper as tending to commit them to a large verdict. Rice v. Ragan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1148.

The court's action in excluding a question to the juror on voir dire examination as to whether they would give accord the benefit of any reasonable doubt on the question of his insanity held proper. Jones v. State, 60 Cr. R. 129, 131 S. W. 572.

On a trial for rape, where a juror testified that he served as juror in a criminal assault case, the exclusion of a question asked juror as to the verdict therein was not error. Wragg v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 342.

Defendant held entitled to ask each of the veniremen whether they would give him the benefit of the presumption of innocence and the benefit of reasonable doubt throughout. Caton v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 596.

A statute attorney, in examining the jurors before impanelment, that the law made it a felony to engage in the occupation of selling intoxicants in local option counties, followed by a question whether the jury believed that was a good and wholesome law and ought to be enforced as any other law, to which they answered, "Yes," was not reversible error on the ground that it tends to prejudice the facts. Wilson v. State (Cr. App.) 154 S. W. 671.

Discretion of court.—Discretion of court on challenge of juror for cause will not be reviewed unless clearly abused. Riddles v. State (Cr. App.) 46 S. W. 1058.

The scope of the preliminary examination of jurors, though resting in the discretion. of the trial judge, may be reviewed by the appellate court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pipe Rr. ( Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1011.

The refusal to allow the defendant to ask certain questions on the preliminary examination of jurors held an abuse of the discretion of the trial court. Id.

In the absence of anything showing an abuse of the trial court's discretion in disposing of the juror, its action will not be disturbed; the presumption being that the trial court satisfied itself that there was no misconduct on the juror's part. Stratton v. Riley ( Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 606.

The discretion of the trial court in overruling the motion in such case held abused. In view of the testimony of the jurors as to discussion as to attorney's fees and medical bills. Id.

Art. 5196. [3210] Juror not to be asked certain questions.—In examining a juror, he shall not be asked a question the answer to which may show that he has been convicted of an offense which disqualifies him, or that he stands charged by indictment or other legal accusation with theft or any felony.

Does not excuse negligence in ascertaining qualifications.—This article does not excuse want of diligence in other respects to ascertain a juror's qualifications, and after trial it is too late to object that a juror was under indictment. Sinshheimer v. Edward Well Co. ( Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 187.

Art. 5197. [3211] Peremptory challenge.—A peremptory challenge is made to a juror without assigning any reason therefor.

In general.—In a prosecution for theft, refusal to allow defendant peremptory challenges held not error. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 75 S. W. 298.

Examination of juror.—Examination in trial for cause, see notes under Art. 5196.

Certain question to jurors with a view of peremptory challenges held improper. Dray v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 65.

Art. 5198. [3212] Number of peremptory challenges in district court.—Each party to civil suit in the district court shall be entitled to six peremptory challenges. [Act Dec. 1, 1871, p. 61, sec. 6.]

More than one plaintiff or defendant.—Where there is more than one defendant the challenges are limited to six, when the issues to be tried between the plaintiff and the defendant are the same. This rule is not affected by the fact that the extent of liability may be different. Hargrave v. Vaughn, 82 T. 347, 18 S. W. 696; Wolf v. Perryman, 82 T. 112, 17 S. W. 772.

When two or more defendants have a common defense, they are considered as one party. Allen v. Waddill ( Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 273; Jones v. Ford, 60 T. 127; Wolf v. Perryman, 82 T. 112, 17 S. W. 772; Hargrave v. Vaughn, 82 T. 347, 18 S. W. 696.

If the issues are different, each is entitled to challenges. Rogers v. Armstrong, 30 S. W. 848. When the plaintiff and an intervener are making a common fight against a garnishee and none against each other, they constitute one party. Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co. v. Liberty Ins. Co., 28 S. W. 1027, 8 C. A. 227.

On the trial of right of property between the attaching creditors of the vendee and the vendor, the former constitute a single party and are allowed but six challenges. Raby v. Frank, 12 C. A. 126, 54 S. W. 777.

On the trial of the right of property between a mortgagee and the purchasers at an execution sale, the purchasers held entitled only to the challenges allowed to a single party. Watts v. Dubois ( Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

Where defendants did not exercise or attempt to use all the six challenges which they were entitled, they could not complain of a refusal to allow them separate jury list and six peremptory challenges each. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 619, 69 S. W. 183.

Where there are two defendants in a case and one as warrantee pleads over against his co-defendant as warrantor for recovery on his warranty they are each entitled to six challenges. If there are no antagonistic interests among several defendants to a suit, they are considered but one party and are collectively entitled to but six challenges. Waggoner v. Dodson, 96 T. 6, 60 S. W. 994.

Where the interests of two defendants jointly sued were identical, they were not entitled to separate jury lists or more than six peremptory challenges. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barnes ( Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1041.

Each of several defendants, having conflicting claims, held entitled to six peremptory challenges. First Nat. Bank v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co., 97 T. 201, 77 S. W. 419.

In an action against several defendants; entitled to six peremptory challenges each, it was not error to allow the defendants to consult in exercising their challenges. Id.

Defendants having antagonistic interests are distinct parties within the statute relating to challenges to jurors. Sweeney v. Taylor Bros., 41 C. A. 365, 92 S. W. 442.

Each defendant was not entitled to six peremptory challenges, where there was no fact issue between them, though one raised an issue between himself and plaintiff not raised by the other defendant. Wittlip v. Spreen, 51 C. A. 544, 112 S. W. 98.

In an action against two street railway companies and a city for injuries to a traveler on a street rendered defective because the track protruded over the surface thereof, the two companies held entitled to only six peremptory challenges between them. Cities Service Co. v. Light Co., 12 C. A. 148, 116 S. W. 65.

Each defendant is entitled to six peremptory challenges when there is a controversy between them. Hogsett v. Northern Texas Traction Co., 55 C. A. 72, 118 S. W. 807.

In trespass to try title, where one of the defendants pleaded over against the other as having wrongfully invaded his land, and the other pleaded a general denial, each were entitled to six challenges, though there was no real contest between them. Hannay v. Harmon ( Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 406.
Where connecting carriers made a common defense to the same attorneys at suit for injury to live stock in transit, and did not require separate jury lists, it was not error to limit the number of their peremptory challenges to six between them. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 829.

— Intervener.—When there is an intervenor but there is no contested issue between him and the defendants, it is proper to treat them all as defendants and restrict them to the number of challenges allowed defendants in a civil action. Baum v. Banger (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 650.

Conflict of laws.—One is entitled only to the number of challenges allowed by law at the time of the trial. Edmonson v. State (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 154.

Art. 5199. [3213] In the county court.—Each party to civil suit in the county court shall be entitled to three peremptory challenges. [Act Aug. 1, 1878, p. 83, sec. 27.]

Antagonistic interests of codefendants.—When suit is brought against two or more railroads for damages under Acts 1899, p. 214 (Art. 1830, § 25), each defendant is entitled to three peremptory challenges in the county court in selecting the jury. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Stell (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 981.

Where there is more than one defendant in a case in the county court and the interests of the codefendants are antagonistic, each defendant is a party to the suit in the sense in which that term is used in the statute and is entitled to the number of challenges named in the statute. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Bingham, 40 C. A. 465, 89 S. W. 1114.

Art. 5200. [3214] Challenge to a particular juror made orally, etc. —Challenges for cause and peremptory challenges to a particular juror may be made orally on the formation of a jury to try the case, as provided in articles 5206 and 5208.

Art. 5201. [3215] Court to decide challenges promptly.—The court shall decide without delay any challenge to a particular juror; and when the challenge is sustained the juror shall be discharged from further attendance or from the particular case, as the case may be.

Time for raising objections—Waiver.—See notes under Art. 5208.

CHAPTER TEN

FORMATION OF THE JURY FOR THE TRIAL OF A CAUSE

Art. 5202. [3216] Clerks to provide a box.—The clerks of the district and county courts shall each provide and keep a box with a sliding lid, suitable for the purposes indicated in this chapter. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 82, sec. 21.]

Art. 5203. [3217] Shall place names of jurors in the box.—When the parties to a civil cause, which is to be tried by a jury, have announced themselves ready for trial and no challenge to the array is made, the clerk shall write the names of all the regular panel for the week on separate slips of paper, as near the same size and appearance as may be, and shall place such slips in the box provided for in the preceding article, and shall mix them well. [Id.]

Time for making challenges for cause.—See note under Art. 5206.

Art. 5204. [3218] Shall draw and record names.—The clerk shall draw from the box, in the presence of the court, the names, one by one, of twenty-four jurors, if in the district court, or so many as there may be, if there be a less number in the box; and the names of twelve jurors if in the county court, or so many as there may be if there be a less number in the box; and shall write the names as they are drawn upon several slips of paper and deliver one slip to each of the parties to the suit or their attorneys. [Id. sec. 22.]

When to be drawn.—The names of the jurors should be drawn and the lists made after the parties have announced ready for trial. Railway Co. v. Ketich, 74 T. 287, 11 S. W. 1117.

Panel containing less than 24.—That the panel from which the jury is drawn is not full is immaterial. Railway Co. v. Greenlee, 70 T. 665, 8 S. W. 122; Railway Co. v. Duvall, 13 C. A. 348, 36 S. W. 695.

The parties may be compelled to strike the jury from a panel containing more than 12 but less than 24 names. Gray v. State ex rel. Langham, 19 C. A. 531, 49 S. W. 699.

Art. 5205. [3219] Where names of full jury not found in the box.

Where there are not so many names drawn from the box as twelve, if in the district court, or six, if in the county court, the court shall direct the sheriff to summon such number of qualified persons as it may deem necessary to complete the panel; and the names of the persons so summoned shall be placed in the box and drawn and entered upon slips as provided in the preceding article.

In general.—Where a juror, after selection, cannot be found, permitting a talesman to go on the jury held without prejudice. Moore v. Dunn, 18 C. A. 371, 41 S. W. 530.

Appellant held to have consented to the selection of the jury by any means adopted by the court, and hence not entitled to object to the manner of such selection on appeal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Foster, 26 C. A. 497, 63 S. W. 952.

Where a case is called, a jury was out, and, after exhausting the remainder of the panel, talesmen were called and qualified, and plaintiff had exhausted his challenges on the list before the other jury returned, it was not error to complete the trial jury from such talesmen. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Wright, 31 C. A. 519, 71 S. W. 760.

A party to a trial at a time when a trial must have been held before a picked up jury held to have waived objection to such jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Coggins & Dunaway, 44 C. A. 423, 99 S. W. 1082.

Under the statute permitting trial to proceed with less than 12 jurors in certain cases, a motion to withdraw a juror for interest developed by the evidence held properly denied. Zarate v. Villareal ( Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 328.

Talesmen not to be summoned while 12 remain on panel.—Construing this article and Arts. 5205, 5208, held, that the object of the statute was, as far as practicable, to secure the qualification of the jury from the names selected by the jury commissioners, and to prevent delay in the formation of a jury. If, when a jury is to be impaneled, as many as 12 names remain of the panel for the week, no talesmen should be summoned until challenge names have been made. If, after challenge for cause, as many as 12 remain in the jury box, both parties must then proceed to make their peremptory challenges. Whenever the number is less than 12, either when first drawn or after challenges for cause, or peremptory challenges, then, and not before, the court may order others to be summoned by the sheriff. Railway Co. v. Greenlee, 70 T. 553, 8 S. W. 123.

Where as many as 12 regularly drawn jurors remained it is reversible error to add the names of talesmen until the list of those regularly drawn has been reduced by challenge. Houston Electric Co. v. Seegar, 64 C. A. 255, 117 S. W. 903.

Art. 5206. [3220] Challenge for cause to be made, when.—When as many as twelve or more jurors, if in the district court, six or more, if in the county court, are drawn, and the slips containing their names are delivered to the parties, if either party desire to challenge any juror for cause, such challenge shall now be made.

Construing Art. 5208 and this article, held, it is contemplated by the statute that the challenge of jurors for cause should be made after their names are drawn by the clerk and the jury lists delivered to the parties, but this may be waived by counsel. If, before the delivery of the list, an exception be taken to the questions propounded to test the qualification of the juror, it cannot be objected on appeal that the examination was conducted at an improper time, when no such objection was urged before. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670.

A party failing to make any effort to ascertain whether jurors are impartial, or failing to object when discovered after trial commenced, cannot urge the objection after a verdict. Blanton v. Mayes, 72 T. 417, 19 S. W. 452.

Where a juror stated on his voir dire that he had expressed no opinion, but during the trial stated what he should have expressed by the juror, and he immediately moved for suspension of the trial and the juror's removal, he was in the exercise of due diligence. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 562.

Objection to juror, because not a householder in the state, cannot be made after verdict. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Woodward, 26 C. A. 985, 63 S. W. 1051.

Where defendant failed to question a juror as to his ability to read or write, the discovery after the trial that he could not read or write or understand the English language, is not sufficient ground for setting aside the verdict. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 229.

Failure to investigate jurors' competency on voir dire held to preclude urging their prejudice on motion in arrest. Russell v. State, 44 Cr. R. 65, 73 S. W. 190.

Refusal to permit challenge of juror after impanel held not error. Andrews v. State (Cr. App.) 76 S. W. 918.
Permission granted to plaintiff's counsel, after the jury had been impaneled, to interrogate a juror as to an opinion expressed derogatory to plaintiff, held not error. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Paschall, 41 C. C. A. 357, 92 S. W. 446.

An objection that a juror who sat in the trial was not qualified is too late when not made until after verdict. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

Jurors held not disqualified, especially when the objection to their competency was made after the jury was impaneled. King v. State, 50 Cr. R. 321, 97 S. W. 488.

An objection that a juror is disqualified because he had served more than six days within the six months preceding the trial comes too late after verdict. Waggoner v. Porterfield, 56 C. A. 169, 118 S. W. 1094.

There is no negligence in relying on what a juror professes on his voir dire, which will preclude a grant of a new trial asked for on the ground of disqualification subsequently discovered. Makey v. Dryden (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 633.

The errors in this article are of equal importance, and it being too late after trial to raise the question of a juror not being a freeholder or householder, and not knowing how to read and write, is likewise too late after trial to object that a juror was under indictment for a felony, though Art. 5156 prohibits a juror being questioned as to his having been indicted or convicted; that not excusing want of diligence in other respects to ascertain qualifications. Sinshelmer v. Edward Well Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 187.

If accused was not accorded the right to challenge any member of the petit jury at the time of its organization, it could be raised by him when called on to announce ready for trial. Ex parte Martinez (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 959.

Objection that a juror was not competent because he could not read and write the English language comes too late after verdict. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 438.

The competency of a juror accepted by parties cannot be attacked after the verdict has been rendered. Stratton v. Riley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 608.

Error in overruling challenge for cause—Failure of record to show that peremptory challenges were exhausted.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 26.

Art. 5207. [3221] When number reduced, etc., by challenge for cause.—If the number of jurors be reduced by challenge for cause to less than twelve in the district court, or six in the county court, the court shall order other jurors to be drawn or summoned, as the case may be, and entered upon the slips in place of those who have been set aside for cause.

In general.—Where a party had exhausted his challenges on the list of jurors furnished, it was error to so draw talesmen that he was obliged to accept them without opportunity to challenge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 18 C. C. A. 399, 46 S. W. 619.

Completing a jury by summoning talesmen held not error. Gonzales v. State, 88 Cr. R. 257, 125 S. W. 396.

Filling vacancy after trial has begun.—After the full jury of 12 men has been selected and the trial commenced, and a juror is disabled so that he cannot continue to serve, the court has no authority to have talesmen summoned and force the parties to select a juror from the talesmen to fill up the jury. But under Art. 5215 the court can compel the parties to proceed with the trial before the 11 remaining jurors. Waggoner v. Sneed, 53 C. A. 278, 118 S. W. 549.

Art. 5208. [3222] Peremptory challenge to be made, when.—When a juror has been challenged and set aside for cause, his name shall be erased from the slips furnished the parties; and, if there be remaining on such slips not subject to challenge for cause, twelve names, if in the district court, or six names, if in the county court, the parties shall proceed to make their peremptory challenges if they desire to make any. [Id.]

List not to be read until both parties have stricken.—The defendant is not entitled to have the list of jurors remaining after the striking by plaintiff, called before he passes on the jury. Insurance Co. v. Brown, 2 U. C. 160.

Art. 5209. [3223] Lists to be returned to the clerk and jury to be called.—When the parties have made their peremptory challenges, or when they decline to make any, they shall deliver their slips to the clerk; and the clerk shall, if the case be in the district court, call off the first twelve names on the slips that have not been erased, and if the case be in the county court, the clerk shall call off the first six names on the slips that have not been erased, who shall constitute the jury to try the case.

Right of parties to Jury list.—Refusal of a separate jury list to defendants jointly sued on a bond held not error. Janes v. Ferd Helm Brewing Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 896.

Art. 5210. [3224] When jury is left incomplete.—When, by peremptory challenges, the jury is left incomplete, the court shall direct such number of other jurors to be drawn or summoned, as the case may be, as the court may consider sufficient to complete the jury; and the same proceedings shall be had in selecting and impaneling such jurors as are had in the first instance.

Challenging talesmen.—A party who has not exhausted his challenges may exercise his right to challenge when talesmen are called to complete the jury. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 50 T. 101, 18 S. W. 706.

Art. 5211. [3225] Jurors to be sworn.—When the jury has been selected, such of them as have not been previously sworn for the trial of civil causes, shall be sworn by the court, or under its direction.

Effect of not swearing.—Judgment will not be reversed because record fails to show that jury were sworn, no point having been made in trial court. Gay Ranch Co. v. Rowland (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1086.

Judgment rendered on a verdict of a jury which was not sworn is not necessarily void. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 327, 135 S. W. 1064.

Waiver of objections.—It is too late after trial to object that a juror was not sworn. Burns v. Mathews (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 79.

Defendant, failing to object that the jury had not been sworn, held to have waived the defect, and a judgment entered on a verdict against defendant was not void though it recited that the jury was not sworn. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Butler, 52 C. A. 331, 114 S. W. 671.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

OATH OF JURORS IN CIVIL CASES

Art. 5212. Jury shall be sworn.

Article 5212. [3226] Jury shall be sworn.—Before the trial of any civil cause, the jurors shall be sworn by the court, or under its direction. [Act Feb. 13, 1858, sec. 10. P. D. 3984.]

Presumption that jury was sworn.—See notes under Art. 3687. Rule 12.

Art. 5213. [3227] Form of oath.—The form of the oath to be administered to jurors in civil cases shall be in substance as follows: “You, and each of you, do solemnly swear that in all cases between parties which shall be to you submitted, you will a true verdict render, according to the law, as it may be given you in charge by the court, and to the evidence submitted to you under the rulings of the court. So help you God.” [Id. P. D. 3984.]

Affirmance.—Error in discharging a juryman, who desired to affirm, but would not be sworn, is not cured because defendant had not exhausted his peremptory challenges when the jury was completed. Riddles v. State (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1068.

CHAPTER TWELVE

JURIES—HOW CONSTITUTED, AND THEIR VERDICTS

Art. 5215. Death or inability of jurors in district court pending trial.

Art. 5216. Jury in the county and justices' courts.

Art. 5217. The entire jury must concur in the verdict.

Article 5214. [3228] Jury in district court.—The jury in the district courts shall be composed of twelve men; but the parties may by consent agree, in a particular case, to try with a less number. [Const., art. 5, sec. 13.]

In general.—The discharge of a juror because improper influence was exercised on him does not warrant the court in proceeding to trial with the remaining jurors, over objection. Sunset Wood Co. v. Broadway (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 487.

Necessity of less than 12 signing verdict.—When a juror is excused from service by counsel for both parties after the trial has begun, and a verdict is rendered by the remaining 11, it is not necessary that all should sign it. Lumber Co. v. Hancock, 70 T. 312, 7 S. W. 724.

Where a juror becomes sick during the trial and is excused by both parties, it is not necessary for remaining 11 to sign the verdict; but it is proper for it to be signed by the foreman. If the juror had died or been disabled, the remainder could have returned the verdict; but all the remaining jurors should have signed the verdict. Gray v. Freeman, 37 C. A. 556, 84 S. W. 1116.

Art. 5214. [3229] Death or inability of jurors in district court pending trial.—Where, pending the trial of any case in the district court, one or more of the jurors, not exceeding three, may die or be disabled from sitting, the remainder of the jury shall have power to render the verdict; but in such case the verdict shall be signed by every remaining member of the jury. [Id. Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 82, sec. 19.]

Necesstit for signing verdict.—Where a juror dies or becomes disabled, the verdict should be signed by the remaining jurors. Gray v. Freeman, 37 C. A. 556, 84 S. W. 1116.

Art. 5215. [3230] Jury in county and justices' courts.—The jury in the county courts and in courts of justices of the peace shall be composed of six men. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 5217. [3231] Entire jury must concur in verdict.—No verdict shall be rendered in any case except upon the concurrence of all the members of the jury trying the same. [Id. sec. 19. Const., art. 5, sec. 13.]

Method of arriving at verdict.—Where, in an action on an order drawn on funds due a contractor, a verdict is rendered for the only amount for which it could be rightfully rendered, a contention that it is a subtraction verdict is unavailing. Foley v. Houston Co-op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 160.

A verdict reached by an agreement made beforehand that each juror should write down the amount he would award, and that the total of such amounts should be divided by 12, should be the verdict, and rendered for a sum equal to the quotient, will be reversed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bounds (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 289.

Quotient method of obtaining part of a verdict for damages, held to render the verdict illegal. Whisenant v. Schawe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 146.

Where the jury differed as to the amount of the recovery and agreed to divide by 12 the sum each should name, but it was understood that the method was not to be binding as to the result, and a verdict was thereafter agreed to by all, the court properly refused to set aside the verdict. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 707.

New jury on disagreement.—Where the first jury disagreed, the court may again set the case for trial during the same term and call a new jury. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Crowder, 25 C. A. 536, 64 S. W. 90.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

COMPENSATION OF JURORS OF THE DISTRICT AND COUNTY COURTS IN CIVIL CASES

Art. 5218. Pay of jurors.

Art. 5220. Jury scrip receivable at par for all county taxes.

Article 5218. [3232] Pay of jurors.—Each juror in civil cases shall receive two dollars and fifty cents for each day, and for each fraction of a day, he may serve or attend as such juror. [Acts 1911, p. 104, sec. 1, amending Art. 3232, Rev. St. 1895.]

Art. 5219. [3233] Certificate of jury service.—The amount due to jurors shall be paid by the county treasurer upon the certificate of the clerk of the district or county court in which such service was rendered; which certificate shall state the service, when rendered, by whom rendered, and the amount due therefor. [Act Nov. 12, 1866, p. 201, sec. 1.]

Mandamus to compel issuance of certificate.—It not being the duty of the clerk to deliver certificates evidencing jury service to any person than to those who rendered the service, he cannot be compelled by mandamus to deliver them to any other person. Pace v. Ortiz, 72 T. 437, 10 S. W. 541.

Art. 5220. [3234] Jury scrip receivable at par for all county taxes. —All certificates issued under the provisions of the foregoing article shall, without further action by any authority, be receivable at par for all county taxes. The same may be transferred by delivery, and no rule or regulation made by the commissioners’ court or other officer or officers of a county shall defeat the right of the holder of any such certificate to pay county taxes therewith. [Id.]
CHAPTER ONE

THE STATE JUVENILE TRAINING SCHOOL

Art. 5221. Board of trustees.
Art. 5222. Meetings of boards.
Art. 5223. Board to have advisory control; employment of superintendent; annual reports.
Art. 5224. Shall provide instruction, etc.
Art. 5225. The superintendent.
Art. 5226. Powers and duties of the superintendent.
Art. 5227. Salaries, etc., how paid.
Art. 5227a. Religious services; chaplain; salary.

Article 5221. [2941] Name of institution; board of trustees; tenure; qualifications; compensation; approval of accounts.—The institution known as "The State Institution for the Training of Juveniles," located at Gatesville, shall be named and known as "The State Juvenile Training School," hereafter to be designated as "The Training School." The government of the said school shall be vested in a board of trustees, composed of six persons. The members of the board shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, and may be removed by him for cause stated in writing, after an opportunity to be heard. Two members of the board so appointed shall serve for a term of two years; two members for a term of four years, and two members for a term of six years, the length of their respective terms to be determined by lot. All succeeding appointments shall be for a term of six years each; provided, that if vacancies occur, appointments shall be made for the unexpired term. The members appointed shall be persons of high character and ability, known for their interest in the welfare of the unfortunate classes. Each member shall receive $5.00 per day and traveling and other necessary expenses while engaged in the performance of official duties, for which the comptroller shall issue his warrant on the account, verified by said member and approved by the chairman of the board. The chairman of said board shall not approve any expense account of any trustee until same has been allowed by a majority of the board. [Acts 1909, p. 103. Acts 1913, S. S., p. 7, sec. 1, amending Art. 5221, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5222. [2942] Election of chairman and secretary; meetings of board.—Said board shall elect one of their members as chairman and one as secretary of the board. The board shall hold four regular meetings each year and shall hold such special meetings at such times and places as are deemed necessary, when requested so to do in writing by two members of the board. [Id. sec. 2, amending Art. 5222, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5223. [2943] Board to have advisory control; employment of superintendent; annual reports.—The board of trustees shall have advisory control of the said training school. It shall employ the superintendent. It shall make an annual report to the governor setting forth in full all the facts pertaining to the school, including receipts and dis-
Art. 5224. [2944] Provision of suitable instruction; what shall be taught.—Said board of trustees and the superintendent shall provide for, establish and maintain suitable instruction and training of the inmates of said institution. Said instruction shall include common school, as well as industrial, or agricultural branches, or either or all, as may be deemed desirable by said board and superintendent; provided that it shall be the duty of said board and superintendent to arrange that each student of said training school shall receive a reasonable amount of instruction in the school of letters and industrial branch each year. Each inmate shall be given definite instruction and training in some useful occupation. Each inmate shall be given such moral training and discipline as he is capable of receiving. The prime end to be sought by said board is to reform, educate and train the children committed to the institution, into industrious and useful law-abiding citizens, strengthen their self-control and place them in a moral environment that will build character and inculcate correct ideas of civic virtue and responsibility. [Id. sec. 4, amending Art. 5224, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5225. [2945] The superintendent; removal; qualifications; oath and bond.—The board of trustees shall appoint a superintendent of said school who shall not be removed without cause, which shall be stated by said board in writing and filed with the secretary of state for public record, and in case board desires to dismiss said superintendent it shall give him two months' notice. The superintendent shall be a man of high moral character, education and training, and who shall have had experience in handling wayward and delinquent boys. The superintendent shall before entering upon the duties of his office take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall give a bond in the sum of $10,000 payable to the governor or his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. Said bond shall be signed by the superintendent and two good and sufficient sureties, or by himself and some solvent surety company, authorized to transact business in Texas, and shall be approved by the secretary of state and be deposited in his office. [Id. sec. 5, amending Art. 5225, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5226. [2946] Powers and duties of superintendent.—The superintendent shall have control and management of the training school, subject to the provisions of this law and the regulations adopted by the board.

1. It shall be the duty of the superintendent to keep a register in which he shall enter the name, date of reception, previous moral character, habits and education, so far as can be ascertained, his conduct and deportment, educational and vocational advancement while in said school, the discharge, death, escape, commutation of time, parolment and punishment of each inmate or person admitted to said institution.

2. He shall see that the buildings are kept in good and sanitary order, and that the premises are kept in a healthful and cleanly condition.

3. He shall keep or cause to be kept, the books of the institution fully exhibiting all moneys received and disbursed, the source from which received and purposes for which the same is expended; provided, that all supplies for the institution shall be purchased by the state purchasing agent the same as for other similar institutions. The said books shall give a complete record of all products produced on the farm, or received from any source, and shall show the disposition made of the same, whether sold or consumed. Said books shall at all times be open for the inspection of the board of trustees or the governor, or to any one appointed by the governor to inspect or audit said books.

4. At the first regular meeting after the first of the months of March and September the superintendent shall make a semi-annual report in duplicate, in writing under oath, showing in detail the fiscal operations of the institution since the last report, giving under appropriate heads the total number of inmates in the institution at the date of the report, the number received since last report, the number discharged since last report, the number paroled, or otherwise discharged, with such recommendations for the improvement of management or other matter as he may deem proper. One of said reports, shall be presented to the board of trustees at their regular quarterly meeting and the other shall be forwarded to the governor.

5. It shall be the duty of the superintendent to make supplemental reports in writing to the board of trustees on any matter within the scope of his duties, when requested to do so by the president of the board of trustees. [Id. sec. 6, amending Art. 5226, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5227. [2947] Employment of subordinate officers, teachers and employés; character and habits of employés; salaries; accounts.—The superintendent shall employ and may dismiss for cause stated in writing to the board, such sub-ordinate officers, teachers and employees as may be deemed requisite, and necessary to the conduct, administration and maintenance of said institution, up to the standards of efficiency and utility essential to accomplish the best results; provided that it shall be a violation of the rules of said institution for any employee to use tobacco or intoxicating liquors in any form while on duty, and should any employ be guilty of violating this rule, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to discharge such employee.

The salaries and compensation of all subordinate officers, teachers and employés aforesaid, shall be fixed by the board of trustees, not to exceed the amounts appropriated for same, and the same shall be prescribed by said board in the form of an itemized account sworn to by said superintendent; and the same shall be paid monthly on the comptroller's warrants based upon such sworn itemized account aforesaid. Said account shall contain the name and address of each person and the amount due and for what service; provided, that no account for salary shall be presented by said superintendent until the same has been fixed by said board as herein provided. [Id. sec. 7, amending Art. 5227, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5227a. Religious services; chaplain; salary.—The board of trustees shall provide for religious services at said state institution, for the benefit of the inmates thereof, and to that end shall employ a chaplain, who shall be an ordained minister of the gospel, and the superintendent shall require all inmates in said institution, who are physically able, to attend at least one religious service on each Sunday. Such chaplain shall, under the direction of the superintendent, devote his time to the religious and moral training and education of said inmates, and to visiting sick inmates at such times and occasions as may be necessary, and shall receive an annual salary not to exceed ($720.00) seven hundred and twenty dollars; provided, such chaplain may also be a teacher, such as is provided in article 2947. [Acts 1911, p. 211, sec. 1.]

Art. 5228. [2948] Who to be confined; discharge of inmates.—There shall be confined in said state training school for boys all persons confined in the state institution for the training of juveniles at the time this law takes effect, and all persons committed to the state training school for boys, and all persons who may be sentenced to a term in said state institution for the training of juveniles before this law takes effect, and their present status and terms of sentence shall not be affected by this law; also all juveniles committed to said institution by any court within this state acting under authority of law. Provided, that all inmates sentenced to the state institution for the training of juveniles shall only be required to serve out their unexpired terms in said institution, at which time they shall be released. [Acts 1909, p. 103. Acts 1913, S. S., p. 7, sec. 8, amending Art. 5228, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5229. [2949] Same; separation of races.—Hereafter all male persons under the age of seventeen years who shall be convicted of a felony, or other delinquency in any court within this state, unless his sentence be suspended, as provided by law, or otherwise disposed of or by reason of the length of the term for which he is sentenced, he is required under the law to be confined in the state penitentiary, shall be confined in the Texas training school for boys, provided that the white boys shall be kept, worked and educated entirely separate from the boys of other races, and shall be kept apart in all respects. [Id. sec. 9, amending Art. 5229, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5230. [2950] Grading and promotion of inmates; leave of probation; final discharge; return to institution.—The said board of trustees shall establish and maintain in the said school a system of grading and promotion on a basis of the moral, intellectual and industrial advancement of the pupils. When the superintendent is satisfied that any inmate has acquired sufficient self-control, moral habits and industrial efficiency, and suitable employment, under responsible, sober and moral person, can be found for the said inmate, he shall with the approval of the chairman of said board of trustees, grant said inmate a “leave of probation.” For the purpose of securing homes and employment for the inmates of the school and of visiting and supervising them while on probation, a furlough officer shall be employed who shall, when not engaged with his duties as furlough officer, assist in teaching, and in the general work of the school, under the direction of the superintendent. When employment has been secured for any inmate he shall be sent out on a furlough, with the condition that the person furloughed, and his employer, shall send a written report, at the end of each month thereafter for a period of twelve months, to the furlough officer, stating the habits and demeanor of the said furloughed person. If each of the said reports be favorable the superintendent shall recommend to the governor that a full release be granted to the said furloughed person and that his term of commitment be terminated. Upon the termination of the term of commitment by the governor the furloughed person shall be finally discharged, with none of his legal rights impaired or abrogated. In the event any of said monthly reports shall be deemed unfavorable, or for any reason be not sent as herein provided, and the said superintendent should for any reason become convinced before the expiration of the said twelve months that the said furloughed person should be returned to the state training school for further training or discipline, the said furloughed person shall, in that event, forfeit his leave of probation, and shall be returned to said institution. If his said employers shall fail or refuse to return said furloughed person to said institution, it shall be the duty of the furlough officer, any sheriff, or other peace officer, upon notice from the superintendent, to take said furloughed person into custody, under the same conditions as if said person were an escaped inmate, and return him to said institution in the manner prescribed in the law for apprehending and returning escaped inmates. No inmate of the said state training school for boys, who shall be committed to said school by a judgment of a district court after the conviction upon a charge of felony, shall be granted a leave of probation, furloughed or released before the expiration of the term for which he shall be so committed, unless same be recommended by the superintendent and a majority of the board of trustees, and is approved by the governor. In case any such inmate
Art. 5231. [2951] Indeterminate sentence; limitation of term; majority of inmate.—Commitments to the training school shall be upon the indeterminate sentence plan; provided that no inmate shall be committed to said institution for a longer period than five years; provided, that no inmate shall remain or be detained in said institution or upon parole under the control of the officers of said school, after he has reached the age of twenty-one years. [Id. sec. 11, amending Art. 5231, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5232. Inmates to be classified; care and training.—The superintendent shall divide inmates into such classes and shall house, feed and train such inmates in such manner as he may deem best for the development and advancement of the child. [Id. sec. 12, amending Art. 5232, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5233. [2952] Shelter, food, clothing, books, etc.—All inmates of said institution shall be provided with shelter, wholesome food and suitable clothing, books, means of healthful recreation, and other material necessary for their training, at the expense of the state, except as otherwise provided by law. [Id. sec. 13, amending Art. 5233, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5234. [2953] Escape of inmates; failure to return on breach of furlough; apprehension; costs.—If any inmate confined in the state training school for boys shall escape therefrom, or if on leave of probation or furlough, and is ordered returned and the employer of said furloughed person fails or refuses to return him as provided in this law, it shall be the duty of the superintendent of said institution or any officer or employee of same, or the sheriff or any peace officer, to apprehend and detain him. It shall be lawful for any person to apprehend such escaped inmate and forthwith deliver him to any sheriff or peace officer; any such escaped inmate shall be returned to said school by any sheriff, peace, furlough or probation officer; and the costs of his return shall be paid by the county from which said inmate was sentenced; provided, if any inmate committed to said institution on a charge of felony shall escape, the costs of his return to said institution shall be paid by the state, on warrant of comptroller, based upon a sworn itemized statement of said expense account, approved by said superintendent. [Id. sec. 14, amending Art. 5234, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 5234a. Corporal punishment prohibited, except; mode of punishment; violation of act; penalty.—Corporal punishment in any form shall not be inflicted upon the inmates of said institution except as a last resort to maintain discipline, and then only in the presence of the superintendent, and a resident nurse; and at no time shall any inmate be struck more than twenty times, and that only with such instrument and in such manner as will inflict reasonable and moderate punishment, considering the age, size and strength of the culprit and the strength of the person administering such punishment, and at no time shall any weapon or instrument of torture be used, or any instrument which by its make, coupled with the manner of its use would be calculated to inflict bodily injury. Any one violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $25.00 nor more than $100.00 or sentenced to not less than thirty days, nor more than ninety days in jail, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [Id. sec. 15.]
CHAPTER TWO

GIRLS' TRAINING SCHOOL

Art. 5234b. School to be established. [Acts 1913, p. 289, sec. 1.]

Art. 5234c. Purpose of school; duties of board of control; hospital. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5234d. School shall be under state board of control for eleemosynary institutions; if no such board, shall be under board of control, composed and appointed, how; terms; site, etc. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5234e. Superintendent, officials and teachers; salaries; removal of superintendent.

Article 5234b. School to be established.—That there be established and maintained at some place in the state of Texas, to be selected by persons in authority, where suitable farm lands may be secured, a school upon the cottage plan for the education and training of the dependent and delinquent girls of the state, to be known as the girls' training school.

Art. 5234c. Purpose of school; duties of board of control; hospital. —It shall be the purpose of this home and school to provide an institution of training for girls who, by their own misconduct, or by their unfavorable surroundings, have become dependent or delinquent and need the care and attention not heretofore provided, and in the accomplishment of the purposes of this Act, the board of control shall provide wholesome and proper quarters, and exercise and diversion, and shall make provision for training in all of the useful arts and sciences to which women are adapted, to prepare them for future womanhood and independence. A proper hospital is to be provided, and instructions given therein in nursing, sanitation and hygiene.

Art. 5234d. School shall be under state board of control for eleemosynary institutions; if no such board, shall be under board of control, composed and appointed, how; terms; site, etc.—The girls' training school shall be under the control and management of the state board of control for the eleemosynary institutions of this state. Should there be no such board created, then the school shall be under the management of a board of control, composed of five persons, one of whom shall be the superintendent of public instruction of the state of Texas; another shall be the ranking professor of domestic economy in the college of industrial arts; the remaining three to be appointed by the governor, at least one of whom shall be a woman.

One of three members to be selected by the governor shall be appointed for a term to end January 1, 1915, one other for a term to end January 1, 1917, and the third for a term to end January 1, 1919. At the expiration of each term a successor shall be appointed by the governor then in office for a term of six years. The said board is hereby empowered to select a site for the location of said school, to purchase the same and to build and equip such modern buildings, on the cottage plan, as the appropriation herein provided for will permit.

Art. 5234e. Superintendent, officials and teachers; salaries; removal of superintendent.—The board of control shall employ as superintendent of this school a woman of previous experience and training in a similar or like institution, who shall have power to appoint and discharge all subordinate officials and teachers for the school which it may be necessary to employ. The board of control shall fix the salary of the superintendent and all employees. The said board shall also
Art. 5234f. Dismissal or parole of inmates; duties and powers of board, superintendent, etc.—No girl shall be dismissed or paroled until some suitable home has been found for her and only then upon the written recommendation of the superintendent to the board of control, or she has become married with the consent of the authority of such institution and the superintendent, provided, that the provision of this Act shall not be construed to interfere with the governor of the state in exercising executive clemency when in his judgment it may seem best. Any girl who is thus paroled from the institution shall be under the supervision and guidance of the superintendent, who shall require that she write bi-weekly letters to the superintendent or matron of the school for the first six months, and monthly letters thereafter; that the person under whose care or employ the girl is placed shall write monthly letters to the superintendent or matron of the school for the first six months and semi-annually thereafter.

The board of control, superintendent or some other employé of said training school may visit the place where the girl is living or is employed, and it shall be the duty of the person having the girl in custody to answer all questions asked by said visiting committee concerning the conduct, employment or treatment of said girl. If, in the judgment of the board, it should be to the best interests of the girl that she be returned to the school, the board is hereby empowered to have her returned. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5234g. Rules and regulations; time of pupils, how distributed, etc.—The superintendent, with the approval of the board of control, shall make all necessary rules and regulations for the government of the training school, and shall provide that the time of the pupils is properly distributed between the school of letters and the industrial and domestic pursuits, according to the needs of pupil and the facilities at hand. Provision shall be made for giving diplomas or certificates of proficiency for graduates from the nurses training school or any industrial school that may be established by the directors. [Id. sec. 8.]

Explanatory.—Sections 5 and 6 relate to commitment of delinquents to the institution by the juvenile court, and have been placed in Title 38, Chapter 2, as Art. 2201a and 2201b.

Art. 5234h. Expenses of members of board, etc.—If, at the time this bill becomes effective, there shall be no board of control and it becomes necessary for the board herein authorized to be created, to act, they shall be paid such amounts as will be necessary to cover the actual expenses incurred in the discharge of the duties as members of such board. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 5234i. Appropriation, not accessible until subscriptions from counties and cities, etc.; committee to secure funds, etc.—There is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue of the state of Texas, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) for the purchase of land for a site and for the erection of buildings herein provided for, provided, however, that such appropriation shall not be accessible until a like sum of $25,000.00 shall have been subscribed and paid to said board of control, by private subscription or gifts from counties and cities and for the purpose of securing such funds of $25,000.00 and such other funds as they may be able to secure by private subscription or gifts from counties and cities of this state, there is hereby created the following committee composed of five members to work in conjunction with said board of control: President Humane Society of Texas, President Federated Clubs of Texas, President Mothers' Council and Parent-Teachers Association, and two other persons to be selected by the governor.

This committee in conjunction with the board of control of said school, are hereby empowered to adopt such plans as they deem wise and expedient to be used in the securing of such funds.

Authority is hereby granted unto the several cities and counties of this state to donate from their general funds such amounts as the proper authorities deem wise to be used in the establishment of the said school. [Id. sec. 11.]
TITLE 77

LABOR

CHAPTER ONE

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS

Article 5235. Bureau to be under commissioner of labor.—The bureau of labor statistics shall be under the charge and control of a commissioner of labor statistics. [Acts 1909, p. 59, sec. 1.]

Art. 5236. Oath; bond; office to be at capitol; governor may remove.—The commissioner of labor statistics shall be appointed by the governor, whose term of office shall begin on the first day of February of every odd-numbered year, and shall continue for two years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. The commissioner may be removed for cause by the governor, record thereof being made in his office, and any vacancy shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment. Said commissioner shall give bond in the sum of two thousand dollars, with sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and he shall also take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution. He shall have an office in the capitol building; and, except as hereinafter provided, he shall safely keep and shall deliver to his successors all records, papers, documents, correspondence and property pertaining to or coming into his hands by virtue of his office. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5237. Biennial report of commissioner; his general duties.—The commissioner shall collect, assort, systematize and present in biennial reports to the governor, statistical details relating to all departments of labor in Texas, and especially as affecting or bearing upon the commercial, social, educational and sanitary conditions of the employers and their families, the means of escape from dangers incident to their employment, the protection of life and health in factories and other places of employment, the labor of children and of women and the number of hours of labor exacted of them, and, in general, all matters and things which affect or tend to affect the prosperity of the mechanical, manufacturing and productive industries of this state, and of the persons employed therein. Said commissioner shall, also, as fully as may be done, collect reliable reports and information from each county, showing the amount and condition of the mechanical, mining and manufacturing interests therein, and all sites offering natural or acquired advantages for the location and operation of any of the different branches of industry, and he shall, by correspondence with interested parties in other parts of the United States, or in foreign countries, impart to them such informotion as may tend to induce the location of manufacturing and producing plants within the state, together with such information as may tend to increase the employment of labor and the products of such employment in Texas. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5238. Report to contain what; to be printed and distributed.—In each biennial report, the commissioner shall give a full statement of the business of the bureau since the last preceding report, and such information as may be of value to the industrial interests and to persons employed therein, showing, among other things, the number of laborers and mechanics employed, the number of apprentices in each trade, with the nativity of such laborers, mechanics and apprentices, the wages earned, the savings from the same, the age and sex of the persons employed, the number and character of accidents, the sanitary conditions of places where persons are employed, the restrictions put upon apprentices when indentured, the proportion of married employés living in rented houses, with the average rental paid, the value of property owned by such employés, and a statement as to the progress made in schools in operation for the instruction of students in mechanic arts, and what systems have been found most practical; but such reports shall not contain more than six hundred printed pages, and the same shall be printed and distributed in such manner as is or may be provided by law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5239. Commissioner may issue process, administer oaths, etc.—The commissioner shall have power to issue subpoenas, administer oaths and take testimony in all matters related to the duties herein required of the said bureau, but such testimony must be taken in the vicinity of the residence or office of the person testifying. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5240. Reports and return, how long preserved.—No report or return made to the bureau under the provisions of this chapter, or the penal laws of this state, and no schedule, record or document gathered or returned by its officers or employés shall be destroyed within two years of the collection or receipt thereof; but, at the expiration of two years all such reports, returns, schedules, records and documents as shall be considered by the commissioner to be of no further value, shall be destroyed, provided that the permission of the governor shall first be obtained for such destruction. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5241. Commissioner may enter factories, mills, etc.—Upon the written complaint of two or more persons, or upon his failure otherwise to obtain information in accordance with the provisions of this law, the commissioner shall have the power to enter any factory, mill, workshop, mine, store, business house, public or private work, or other establishment or place where five or more persons are employed at work when the same is open and in operation, for the purpose of gathering facts and statistics, such as are contemplated by this chapter, and for the purpose of examining into the methods of protecting employés from danger and the sanitary conditions in and around such building or place, of all of which the said commissioner shall make and return the bureau of labor statistics a true and detailed record in writing. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 5242. Commissioner to report violations to district and county attorneys.—If the commissioner shall learn of any violation of the law with respect to the employment of children, or fire escapes, or the safety of employés, or the preservation of health, or in any other way affecting the employés, he shall at once give written notice of the facts to the county or district attorney of the county in which the law has been violated, or of some other county, if any there be, having jurisdiction of the offense, and the county or district attorney to whom such notice has been given shall immediately institute the proper proceedings against the guilty person. [Id. sec. 10.]
Art. 5243. Salary and compensation of commissioner and employés.—The commissioner of labor statistics shall receive a salary of $2,000.00 per annum, payable monthly, and he shall be allowed a clerk and statistician at a salary of $125.00 per month, two factory inspectors, and one safety appliance inspector at a salary of $125.00 per month each, to be appointed by him, and such other employés and assistants as the legislature at any time in the future authorize. The commissioner shall also be allowed all necessary postage and stationery and other expense of a similar character necessary to the transaction of the business of the bureau, and the said salaries shall be paid as in the case of other state officers. In addition to his salary the commissioner and any employé of the said bureau shall be allowed his actual and necessary traveling expenses while in the performance of his duties under this Act, but the total expenses of the said bureau, outside of the salaries paid, shall not exceed six thousand dollars per annum. [Acts 1909, p. 59, sec. 12. Acts 1911, p. 17. Acts 1913, p. 237, sec. 1, amending Art. 5243, Rev. St. 1911.]

CHAPTER TWO

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Art. 5244. Right to organize.—It shall be lawful for any and all persons engaged in any kind of work or labor, manual or mental, or both, to associate themselves together and form trades unions and other organizations for the purpose of protecting themselves in their personal work, personal labor, and personal service, in their respective pursuits and employments. [Acts 1899, p. 262, sec. 1.]

Contracts in general.—Where a contract between boilermakers and apprentices and a railroad's receiver provided against discharge except for cause, the receiver was not authorized to discharge an employé for failure to execute a release of liability for injuries sustained by the employé through the receiver's alleged negligence. Freeman v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 294.

A contract between boilermakers and apprentices and a railroad's receiver, prohibiting discharge except for cause, held not subject to modification by a custom against continuing the service of an employé having an unadjusted claim against the receiver. Id.

Suspension of trade union.—Suspension from a trade union without notice or hearing held invalid. Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n No. 2 v. Taylor, 22 C. A. 367, 56 S. W. 553.

Art. 5245. Other rights and privileges.—It shall not be held unlawful for any member or members of such trades union or other organization or association, or any other person, to induce or attempt to induce by peaceable and lawful means, any person to accept any particular employment, or quit or relinquish any particular employment in which such person may then be engaged, or to enter any pursuit, or refuse to enter any pursuit, or quit or relinquish any pursuit in which such person may then be engaged; provided, that such member or members shall not have the right to invade or trespass upon the premises of another without the consent of the owner thereof. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5246. Not to apply to what organizations.—The foregoing articles shall not be held to apply to any combination or combinations, association or associations of capital, or capital and persons, natural or artificial, formed for the purpose of limiting the production or consumption of labor's products, or for any other purpose in restraint of trade; provided, that nothing herein contained shall be held to interfere with the terms and conditions of private contract with regard to the time of service, or other stipulations between employers and employés; provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to repeal, affect or diminish the force and effect of any statute now existing on the subject of trusts, conspiracies against trade, pools and monopolies. [Id. sec. 3.]

CHAPTER THREE

HOURS OF LABOR OF FEMALES

Article 5246a. Certain manufacturing and mercantile establishments, etc.—No female shall be employed in any manufacturing or mercantile institution engaged in the manufacture of clothing, shirts, overalls, jumpers or ladies garments or any mercantile establishment or work shop or printing office, dressmaking or millinery establishment, hotel restaurant or theatre or telegraph or telephone office or establishment for more than fifty-four (54) hours during any one week, the hours of such employment to be so arranged as to permit the employment of such females at any time so that she shall not work more than a maximum of ten (10) hours, during the twenty-four (24) hour period for one day. Provided, however, that at the time of great disaster, calamity or epidemic, telephone establishments may work their operators with their consent a greater number of hours in any one day, than above stated, said operators to be paid not less than double their regular compensation for such extra time; provided this Act shall not apply to females who are registered pharmacists; provided, this Act does not apply to cities containing a population of 5000 or less as shown by the last federal census. [Acts 1913, p. 421, sec. 1.]

Note.—By section 4 the act took effect October 1, 1913.

Art. 5246b. Laundries.—No female shall be employed in any laundry for more than fifty-four hours in any one week; the hours of such employment to be so arranged as to permit the employment of such female at any time so that she shall not work more than a maximum of eleven hours during the twenty-four hour period of one day, provided that if such female is employed for more than ten hours in any one day she shall receive pay at the rate of one and one-half times her regular pay for such time as she is so employed for more than ten hours per day. [Id. sec. 1a.]

Art. 5246c. Seats to be provided.—Every employer in any manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment, or workshop, laundry, printing office, dressmaking or millinery establishment, hotel, restaurant or theatre, or telegraph or telephone establishment and office or any other establishment employing any female shall provide suitable seats for all female employees and permit them to use such seats when not engaged in the active performance of the duties of their employment. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5246d. Not applicable to stenographers.—Provided that this Act shall not apply to stenographers. [Id. sec. 2a.]

Note.—Section 3 is purely criminal and is here omitted.

CHAPTER FOUR HOURS OF LABOR UPON PUBLIC WORKS

Article 5246e. Eight hour day.—Eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen or mechanics now employed or who may hereafter be employed by or on behalf of the state of Texas, or by or on behalf of any county, municipality, or political subdivision of the state, county or municipality in any one calendar day, where such employment, contract or work is for the purpose of constructing, repairing or improving buildings, bridges, roads, highways, streams, levees, or other work of a similar character, requiring the service of laborers, workmen or mechanics. [Acts 1913, p. 127, sec. 1.]

Art. 5246f. Contracts deemed on basis of eight hour day; laborers employed by contractors; emergencies, etc.—All contracts hereafter made by or on behalf of the state of Texas, or by or on behalf of any county, municipality or other legal or political subdivision of the state, with any corporation, persons or association of persons for the performance of any work, shall be deemed and considered as made upon the basis of eight hours constituting a day's work. It shall be unlawful for any corporation, person or association of persons having a contract with the state or any political subdivision thereof, to require or permit any such laborers, workmen, mechanics or other persons to work more than eight hours per calendar day in doing such work, except in case of emergency, which may arise in times of war, or in cases where it may become necessary to work more than eight hours per calendar day for the protection of property, human life or the necessity of housing inmates of public institutions in case of fire or destruction by the elements. In such emergencies the laborers, workmen, mechanics or other persons so employed and working to exceed eight hours per calendar day shall be paid on the basis of eight hours constituting a day's work; provided that not less than the current rate of per diem wages in the locality where the work is being performed shall be paid to the laborers, workmen, mechanics or other persons so employed by or on behalf of the state of Texas, or for any county, municipality or other legal or political subdivision of the state, county or municipality, and every contract hereafter made for the performance of work for the state of Texas, or for any county, municipality or other legal or political subdivision of the state, county or municipality, must comply with the requirements of this section; provided, that nothing in this Act shall affect contracts in existence at the time of the taking effect of this Act; provided further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the present law governing state and county convict labor while serving their sentences as such. [Id. sec. 2.]

Note.—Section 3 is purely criminal and is here omitted.

Art. 5246g. Laws repealed.—All laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed, and expressly an Act passed at the regular session of the thirty-second legislature, known as House Bill No. 98, and being the same Act that was attempted to be vetoed by the governor, but which veto was held ineffective by the supreme court because the veto message was filed with the secretary of state after the expiration of twenty days as held by the supreme court in the case of R. B. Minor, et al., vs. C. C. McDonald, Secretary of State. [Id. sec. 4.]
CHAPTER FIVE

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY—INSURANCE

Part I

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY FOR INJURIES, AND COMPENSATION THEREFOR

Art. 5246h. Actions for personal injury or resulting death; defenses excluded.--In an action to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by an employee in the course of his employment, or for death resulting from personal injury so sustained, it shall not be a defense:

1. That the employee was guilty of contributory negligence; but in such event the damages shall be diminished in the proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to such employee, provided that no such employee who may be injured or killed shall be held to have been guilty of contributory negligence where the violation by such employer of any statute enacted for the safety of the employees contributed to the injury or death of such employee.

2. That the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow employee.

3. That the employee had assumed the risk of the injury incident to his employment; but such employer may defend in such action on the ground that the injury was caused by the wilful intention of the employee to bring about the injury.

4. Provided, however, in all such actions against an employer who is not an [a] subscriber as defined hereafter in this Act, it shall be necessary to a recovery for the plaintiff to prove negligence of such employer or some agent or servant of such employer acting within the general scope of his employment. [Acts 1913, p. 429, sec. 1.]

91. Injury avoidable by care of master.

1. DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF MASTER IN GENERAL

1. Injuries to or death of railroad employe.—See Title 115, Chapter 14.
2. Nature of master’s duty in general.—An employer does not insure the safety of his employe, being bound only to use ordinary care for his safety. Commerce Cotton
An employer is not required to foresee the negligence of an employe and guard
3. Relation of parties.—An employer’s duty to one who volunteers to do certain work is different from its duty to one regularly employed to do it. Davis, Pruner &
4. Independent contractors.—A person employed by the day to do a piece of work, and allowed by the contract to adopt his own methods of performing it,—the employer paying the expenses incurred, and looking to him for results only,—is an independent contractor. City of Groesbeck v. Pinson, 58 S. W. 620, 21 C. A. 44.
5. Acts done under employment or by invitation of master's servants.—Plaintiff was employed to work in the bottling department of defendant's brewery, and was injured in defendant's washhouse while taking empty beer kegs from stacks and painting them; the washhouse being a different department, the superintendent of which was intrusted to a different foreman from the one in charge of the bottling department. Plaintiff was not employed to work in the department in which he was injured. The foreman of the bottling department had no authority from defendant, as plaintiff knew, to permit plaintiff to work in that department. Held, that in respect to the work plaintiff was doing when he was injured, the relation of master and servant did not exist between him and the defendant, and plaintiff could not recover as a servant of defendant for his alleged injuries. Freeman v. San Antonio Brewing Co., 85 S. W. 1165, 38 C. A. 396.

A servant, inexperienced and under age, was injured while at work on the double-board of a derrick. The foreman saw him go up the derrick to work on the double-board, and did not instruct or warn him, but permitted him to work there. Held, that he was not a volunteer, but must be regarded as having been put to the work by the foreman. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

Where a master divided his business into departments, and required employés idle in their own departments to help in some other department, and the foreman of a department received an employé of another department and accepted his services and directed him, the employé was not a volunteer, but was engaged in the performance of his duties. Buildings v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 915.

A traction company is not liable to plaintiff injured while employed by or assisting its servant in cleaning electrical machinery, where the plaintiff looked to the servant for his pay. Bissack v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1086.

6. Scope of employment.—Plaintiff, while directly employed as a cake runner or trucker, in the press room of defendant's oil mill, having been familiar with the duties of a former puller, and he and his co-employés in such room having frequently exchanged work with each other, and this practice having been known to and acquiesced in by defendant, he, when injured in working the puller, while temporarily relieving the former puller, was not a mere volunteer, but a servant of the defendant. Belton Oil Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 884.

Though there was a custom in defendant's mill before plaintiff's injury therein while temporarily exchanging work with another employé for men to exchange work, yet defendant was not required to prove that employee had been furnished or consented to work in the new department. Held, that the employer was not negligent in failing to prevent the exchange of positions, defendant was not liable for the injury. Id.

A lumber company's teamster held a mere licensee in passing along a logging railroad track to his work as affecting the company's liability for injury caused by a passing train. Hopkins v. Garrison-Norton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 310.

7. Medical attendance on injured employés.—A company employed and paid physicians, and undertook to treat its employés when sick or injured, deducting 50 cents per month from each employé's wages. The employés had no interest in the fund thus raised, nor in its distribution, and when they ceased their employment their right to treatment ended. The surplus of the fund each year was retained by the company. Held, that the company was liable to an injured employé for unskilful treatment by its physician. Texas & P. Coal Co. v. Connaughton, 50 S. W. 173, 20 C. A. 642.

Defendant, a mining company, is not entitled to immunity from liability for malpractice in treatment of plaintiff, an injured employé, by the company's physician, on the ground that the physician was selected by plaintiff's employé's union, and defendant only acted gratuitously in taking from employés' wages a certain amount monthly, and paid out the same for medical treatment of injured employés, where the evidence fails to show that the union selected or employed the physician who, after the first few days, treated plaintiff for a number of months. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. McWain, 57 C. A. 512, 124 S. W. 202.

Where a mining company undertakes to furnish medical treatment for its employés, it is liable for the negligence of the physician employed by it in discharge of such undertaking, though it makes no deduction therefrom from the wages of the employés. Id.

8. Cause of injury.—In an action for injury caused by defendant's lumber falling on his employé, a charge authorizing a recovery though the falling of the lumber was not due to defendant's negligence was properly refused. Mayton v. Sonnefield (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 608.

Where an employé engaged in stacking flour was injured in consequence of the stack giving way because of the defective manner in which the flour had been stacked, the failure of the employer to employ a helper did not contribute to the injury. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

4. A servant may be liable for negligence alone. W. v. v. and G. v. (Sup.) 87 S. W. 322.

5. A servant is not bound to furnish a servant, handling bottles filled with charged mineral water, a master to prevent injuries from an explosion, where bottles charged to the pressure of those which the servant was handling had never been known to explode, and such explosions could not be and were not anticipated. Dulling v. G. A. Mfg. Co. v. (Sup.) 87 S. W. 889.

6. A master is not exempt from responsibility for negligent injury to a servant merely because the particular injury could not have been anticipated, if he could have reasonably foreseen that some injury might result as the natural consequence of the negligence. Fry v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

7. Where, in an action for the death of an employed while performing his duties as foreman in a lumber yard, the evidence showed that the accident was caused by the combination of a defective locomotive engine called "track to sink and slide," throwing the footboard over against a plank sidewalk, a charge that, if decedent was injured by the sliding of the track, and by the exercise of ordinary care could not have anticipated such an occurrence, a verdict should be found in favor of the defendant, was properly refused. It not being necessary, to render the employer liable, that he should have foreseen the exact occurrence which caused the accident, but that it being enough that he might reasonably have anticipated an incident of this nature to occur as a result of the defective track or defective engine, or both. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 95 S. W. 607, 41 C. A. 622.

8. Where a defect in machinery is liable to cause some injury to a servant, the fact that the particular accident which did result was improbable and not to be reasonably expected will not relieve the master from liability therefor. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 396, 105 S. W. 831.

9. A master is not liable to his servant for an injury resulting from pure accident, or from causes which could not be reasonably anticipated, unaccompanied by lack of ordinary care on the master's part, but the fact that an accident was so unusual and extraordinary that it could not reasonably have been expected to happen does not relieve the master from the effect of his negligence; and, where an injury is such that it might have been reasonably anticipated, he is liable, where his negligence proximately caused the injury. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda, (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 842.

10. An employer held not required to anticipate that oil would be ignited by lightning. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

11. Joint liability of separate employers.—Where one company made an executoy sale of its property, which under an remainder, they are both liable for injuries to an employee. San Antonio Waterworks Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 181.

12. Plaintiff, an employed of one of defendant corporations, was injured by reason of defective appliances, while assisting both corporations in the placing of certain oil tanks, under the supervision and direction of a common foreman for both corporations. Held, both defendants were bound to use ordinary care to furnish plaintiff with reasonably safe appliances, and that a failure to perform that duty through their common foreman rendered both or either of such corporations liable for plaintiff's injuries. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons, 87 S. W. 842, 39 C. A. 183.

13. Contracts limiting or releasing liability.—An agreement by a parent, as an inducement to the employment of a minor child, to hold the employer harmless for any injury to the child occasioned by the employer's negligence, is contrary to public policy and void, whether applied to active or passive negligence. Pacific Express Co. v. Watson, 57 C. A. 111, 124 S. W. 127.

II. APPLIANCES AND PLACES FOR WORK

S. W. 695; Farmers' Gin & Milling Co. v. Jones, 147 S. W. 668; Gamer Co. v. Gamage, Id. 43; 721: Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Luckie, 153 S. W. 635; Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright, 154 S. W. 1168; City of Austin v. Gross, 156 S. W. 635.

An employed, after complaining of insufficient light, continued to work on the promise of the foreman to furnish more light, which was not done, and was injured while performing the work, ordered to do by the foreman. Held, that the employer was guilty of actionable negligence. Hillje v. Hettich (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 491, judgment reversed 67 S. W. 90, 95 Tex. 321.

An employer, employing men to stack lumber in its lumber yard, is required to exercise only a reasonably safe foundation for the lumber stacks, and a like degree of care to maintain it in such condition. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Dickerson, 94 S. W. 154, 42 C. A. 694.

When defendant had employed deceased to do certain work on and about certain oil tanks furnished and controlled by another, which work required him to go on top of the tanks, it was defendant's duty to see that the tanks were properly constructed. In so far as their improper construction might involve danger to deceased while engaged in the service, to warn him of the dangers, or to warn him of the construction and the dangers arising therefrom. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 332, questions from court of civil appeals certified 100 T. 358, 99 S. W. 1024, and judgment reversed on rehearing (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 276, affirmed 101 T. 126, 105 S. W. 315.

The master's duty to furnish reasonably safe appliances for the use of his servants does not require him to attend to the regulation of parts which necessarily have to be adjusted in the course of their use for particular work, and the adjustment of which is incidental to their ordinary use. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Wille, 52 C. A. 560, 114 S. W. 186.

The employer is required to exercise care as to the safety of premises only in case the injury to the employee could have been foreseen by an ordinarily prudent person. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 917.

It is a master's duty to provide his employees a reasonably safe place to work. Perris Press Brick Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 499; Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark, 136 S. W. 322; Freeman v. Mireles, 127 S. W. 1162; Fraser-Johnson Brick Co. v. Brang, 132 S. W. 683; Texas Co. v. Spanjole, 132 S. W. 683.

A master must exercise care to furnish the servant a safe place to work and safe instrumentalities to work with, and he must take precautions for the safety of the servant when he has knowledge of facts which suggest danger to the servant in the prosecution of his work. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 912.

The law held to impose on a master stated duties as to the safety of servants. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

Owners of buildings held required to provide suitable and reasonably safe machinery of a kind used by skilled gin operators for their employees. Guiltar v. Randel (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 642.

13. Delegation of duty.—Where the contract of hiring requires the workmen to provide or erect the scaffolds upon which to work, the employer is not responsible for injuries sustained by defendants therein. Maughner v. Behnegg, 69 S. W. 317, 13 C. A. 295.

Where a deck hand on a tugboat was injured by stepping on a siphon pipe, which another deck hand had carelessly left lying on the deck—it being the duty of the deck hands to keep the deck clear—the negligence was in a mere detail of the business, for which the owner of the boat was not responsible. Direct Nav. Co. v. Anderson, 69 S. W. 174, 29 C. A. 65.

Where plaintiff, a truckman of defendant express company, was injured by being struck by the wheels of a truck while crossing a railroad track, it was shown that defendant's agent directed the performance of the duty undertaken by plaintiff, and knew of the defect in the crossing before the accident, and had complained thereof to the agents of the railroad company, doctoring the defect by reason of a contract between it and the railroad company under which the duty of keeping the premises in repair devolved upon the latter. Pacific Express Co. v. Shivers, 92 S. W. 45, 41 C. A. 291.

The duty of a master as to the safety of servants may be delegated without affecting responsibility of the master for its proper performance. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

14. Failure to furnish tools or appliances.—In a suit for personal injuries received by plaintiff while attempting to clean an alleged defective lint in a cotton-oll mill, it is proper to charge that if plaintiff was not provided with proper implements to perform the services incident to his immediate employment, and through inexperience did not know it was dangerous to undertake to do such work with said implements, he can recover damages, unless plaintiff shall be instructed that he must provide suitable implements were provided, and whether defendant was negligent in not providing such implements; and also, though defendant did not provide suitable implements, yet plaintiff cannot recover unless such failure to provide him proper implements was the proximate cause of the injury. Hillbary v. Texas Co., Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 140.

Where a servant required to keep a machine running had to put in place an iron bolt thereon, which required a nut to hold it, and the master failed to furnish a bolt with a nut for that purpose, and the servant, exercising ordinary care, attempted to secure the nut by wrapping the bolt and, while so doing, was injured, the master was liable. Greenview Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harkey, 48 S. W. 1006. 20 C. A. 225.

A sugar mill company operating a railroad on its plantation held not required to carry cork screws upon its engine for use in putting it back upon the track, if demale, Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1148.
15. Custom and usage.—An instruction in an action for injuries to an employé while stacking lumber in consequence of the foundations of the stack giving way, making it the duty of the employer to provide such safe foundations for its stacks as were commonly used by skilled and experienced millmen, was erroneous, for the employer could not absolve itself from responsibility by providing a foundation such as was customarily used by some millmen. If ordinary care required more, it would be liable for a failure to do so, if ordinary care did not require it. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Dickerson, 94 S. W. 153, 42 C. A. 504.

That defendant’s equipment was in general use in the same business is not conclusive that defendant exercised ordinary care. Lyon v. Bedgood, 54 C. A. 19, 117 S. W. 897.

In a personal injury action by a servant, where the only inference to be reasonably drawn from the evidence was that the master, so far as it was raised, had the same as a matter of law to have been in the exercise of due care, Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 349.

Where a master failed to guard an excited used to generate electricity, which was wholly unguarded except for a few openings necessary for the adjustment of the machine, held, that he was not guilty of negligence; it appearing that no other manufacturer of electricity guarded the machine. Id.

16. Appliances or places owned, controlled or provided by third persons.—An electric lineman was injured by coming in contact with two live wires placed within a few inches of each other on the same side of the pole, when they should have been placed on opposite sides and on opposite ends of the cross-arm. The lineman did not know that the current was on, though he had heard that it was to be turned on as soon as repairs were completed. The employer knew that the wires were improperly placed and that there was a possibility of the wires crossing when the actual placing the wires was done. Held, that the employer was negligent. General Electric Co. v. Murray, 74 S. W. 50, 32 C. A. 226.

A master who rents balance cars for use in his business held required to use ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe cars and maintain them in such condition. Texas Traction Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

Where a master owes to his servant the duty of exercising ordinary care to furnish a reasonably safe place to work, he cannot be held to have a right to discharge such discharge, that he did not control the place where he had put the servant to work. Cooper v. Robichung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1059.

17. Defects in tools, appliances and places for work in general.—In an action by an employé to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by reason of a defective hand cutter, the instrument the jury found to have been the cause of the injuries was in its employés safe machinery; the only duty of the master being to use ordinary care to avoid such defects as might expose employés to danger when the machinery is used with ordinary care. Eddy v. Adams (Sup.) 15 S. W. 490.

Where an employer of his servant engaged in setting up a machine in a building is to exercise ordinary care to make the premises safe for him while engaged at his work, and if the employer is negligent in having an object in a such place and in such condition as to fall on him, while he was where his work called him, the master would be liable, in the absence of contributory negligence. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917.

Where a servant of a manufacturer of structural work, employed in a building as a member of the rivet gang, was ordered to pick up scraps of iron between piles of steel beams in the yard of the factory, the manufacturer was required to exercise reasonable care to make the place for the servant to work reasonably safe, and where the beams were unconditionally piled, and the servant was injured in consequence of a pile falling on him, the manufacturer is liable. V. Boyles (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 21.

The death of a servant, caused by the falling of a pile of cotton seed, held not the result alone of the action of gravity on the pile, but of the nonperformance of the duty of the master to protect him. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

18. Temporary appliances, structures or dangers.—A master constructing a building is not liable for a transitory danger to which an employé is exposed, due to no fault of plan or construction. Armour & Co. v. Dumas, 93 S. W. 710, 43 C. A. 36.

A master is not responsible for injuries from the place becoming unsafe through the negligence of the workmen in the manner of carrying on the work, where he has furnished a reasonably safe appliance and place, and he need not keep the place safe at every movement so far as such safety depends on the due performance of the work by the workmen. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Palz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

Generally, an employer owes a nonassignable duty to furnish a safe place in which his employés are to work, but not when the danger is transitory and due to no fault of plan or construction, but to the nature of the work. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCabe (Sup.) 134 S. W. 363.

The rule that the master is not liable for injuries to a servant while engaged in making a dangerous place safe held not to apply where a coal digger is preparing an entry in a mine for props, at the time and in the manner directed by the vice principal. Reid Coal Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 941.

The rule requiring a master to furnish a servant with a safe place to work does not apply, where the servant is at work on a structure which is undergoing constant changes. Lowrey v. Fitzhugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1106.

The nondelegable duties of an employer is to provide a reasonably safe place in which to work is subject to the exception that the employer need not keep the working place safe when the work of the employé makes the place more or less dangerous as the work advances. Producers’ Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1052.

The allowing of excelsior from a cutter to pile up around the machine for baling it, in the absence of the servant, who fed the machine, on an errand for the master, rendering the work of feeding the machine dangerous, was not a mere transitory condition, 3446.
not to have been anticipated by the master in providing a safe place to work. Hartshorn v. Williamson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 264.

19. Detectors or dangerous machinery.—A wooden platform over the rollers of an oil mill, containing a slot through which the machine was fed, was broken, and sagged down until it almost touched the rollers, though it should have been several inches above them. The teeth on the rollers were so dull that the oil cakes had to be forced against the rollers in feeding the machine, and was the danger of the breakage of the belt would have in increasing plaintiff's danger. E. P. Schow & Bros. v. McCluskey (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 386, judgment affirmed 113 S. W. 739, 102 T. 129, 20 Ann. Cas. 1.

Where a cotton mill company, with knowledge that an employee employed by it as a doffing boy, with his mother's consent, was a minor, changed his work and put him to work around a carding machine without his mother's knowledge, which work was more dangerous, and while so working he was injured as the proximate result of such change and his capacity to earn money diminished, the cotton mill company is liable. Hilltop Cotton Mills v. King, 51 C. A. 518, 112 S. W. 132.

Where a paper manufacturing company maintained wood pulp digesters covered by a heavy lid, fitting in a groove in which it was necessary to place a hydraulic gasket to prevent the escape of steam and acid vapor, it was guilty of negligence in using a gasket known to be defective, as a result of which steam and acid vapor escaped, causing injuries to an employee. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1168.

20. Buildings.—Where 50-pound sacks of flour were stacked without laying the sacks in alternate cross layers, thereby tending the sacks, the employer was negligent in placing an employee on the stack, which with instructions to work thereon. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

21. Fire escapes.—Ordinances of city of Dallas require the owners or lessees of buildings in the city to provide two stories high in a city of four stories in height, and that fire escapes be provided. Defendant was a wholesale drug company, occupying a four-story building, with its city department and offices on the ground floor, its packing room and heating plant in the basement, and its stock on the remaining floors. On the third floor defendant's cutting machine and other machinery, and two others, were employed in bottling goods and compound prescriptions, the room containing vessels for fluids and a drug mill, but no other machinery; the entire output of the laboratory being less than 2 per cent, of the business, and three-fourths of that was bottled goods. No one was employed on the third floor. At the first floor, and plaintiff, a minor, was employed on the third floor to a building below and was injured. Held, in an action for loss of his services, that the evidence was not sufficient to present the issue as to whether defendant was operating a factory requiring fire escapes. Herrschel v. Texas Drug Co., 61 S. W. 419, 26 C. A. 1.

22. Scaffolds, ladders and supports.—A master is bound to furnish the servant with a safe place to work and must use ordinary care in doing so; therefore, where a master had a scaffold painting a roof, and he was using ladders which were tied together, one on each side of the roof ridge, if they were tied with a chain in the usual manner which the master had reason to believe was safe, and which an ordinarily prudent person under those circumstances would have believed to be safe, the master is not liable because there came apart and caused an injury to the servant. Planters' Gin Co. v. Washington (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 880.

In an action for injuries to a servant by the fall of a loose plank being used as part of a scaffold under circumstances wherein the material was being constantly removed from one to another by defendant held not negligent in failing to provide a safe place to work. Lowrey v. Fitzhugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1150.

23. Mines and other excavations.—Where the timber crew in a mine had commenced to brace the roof of one of the rooms, and while at work there a member of the track crew, whose duty it was to lay track and clear away obstructions, was killed by the caving in of the roof and deceased had nothing to do with the work of timbering or proping, the master was not absolved from liability under the rule as to the liability to servants who are engaged in the business of making safe an unsafe place. Lone Star Lignite Mining Co. v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 841.

The rule that a master must furnish a safe place to the servant in which to work is applicable to a mineowner. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

Where employees in drilling oil wells were supplied with necessary tools, including a jet, for the job that they would not be considered as negligence if one of them, who was killed by gas escaping as the work progressed, the employer did not fail to provide a reasonably safe place in which to work. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1032.

24. Electrical apparatus and structures.—Where it was the duty of a lineman to inspect the poles erected by him, and determine whether they were suitable, and to reject those found unfit, the master was not negligent in sending to him a defective pole, which defect could be plainly seen. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 290.

Where it is the duty of the general manager of an electric light company to determine whether poles were suitable for the use intended, and it is not the duty of the line man to inspect them, the general manager must exercise ordinary care to select poles reasonably safe for use. Id.

The rule of safe place applies to electric light poles and wires. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 473.

25. Shipping.—On the loading of a vessel merchandise was drawn up an inclined plane to the deck level, and then by a derrick and sling swung over a certain hatch.
The arm of the derrick was too low to swing the merchandise over the center of the hatch, but swung it six inches from the center, and not much nearer another hatch, under which plaintiff was working. When the load, when reaching the deck level, was not opposite the center of the hatch, it was the duty of the gangwayman to adjust it, so it would swing over the center. A load swung over the hatch under which plaintiff was working might be sufficient to injure him. Held sufficient to show the injuries to be due to defective rigging or handling. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 263, judgment reversed 70 S. W. 950, 96 Tex. 99.

26. Covering or guarding dangerous machinery or places.—A petition showing that plaintiff was employed in defendant's service, while undertaking, in the course of his employment, to pass over a line shaft, became entangled in it and the pulley attached to it, and was injured thereby; alleging that it was negligence to construct the shaft without a covering to protect employés from it while the machinery was in operation, as it was dangerous in that condition, and that the danger was known to defendant, or might have been by the exercise of reasonable care, and was not known to plaintiff.—Is sufficient in its allegations of negligence. Miller v. Itasca Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 366.

Plaintiff, an employé in defendant's foundry, while carrying a ladle of molten metal stepped into a hole which defendant had excavated a few minutes before in an unusual place—in a path way used by employés—and left unguarded. Plaintiff had no knowledge of the hole, and when he stepped into it he was burned by spilled material from the ladle. Held, that plaintiff was injured by defendant's negligence. San Antonio Foundry Co. v. Drish, 85 S. W. 440, 38 C. A. 214.

27. Latent defects.—Where the evidence allows of a finding that the parting of a wire cable from a hook at its end, resulting in an employé being struck by a car moved thereby, and carried into a hole within the breaking of the cable for the part to which the cable was fastened by passing through an opening, and then having the wires at the end within the socket untwined, spread out, turned back, and then filled with melted lead, it is proper to charge on latent defects; there being evidence that this was the breaking, and that method of fastening, and the cable before it was put in. Quintana v. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co., 37 S. W. 393, 14 C. A. 447.

To charge that defendant was not required to guard against latent defects which could not have been discovered by such inspection as a reasonably cautious person would have given, and that, if the elevator fell by reason of latent defects that could not have been discovered prior to the accident by the use of reasonable care (that is, such care as an ordinarily prudent person would have used in defendant's position), then defendant was not liable, did not require a higher degree of care than is imposed by law. The Oriental v. Barclay, 41 S. W. 117, 16 C. A. 193.

If defects in a rope used by defendant in loading a vessel were such as to be undiscoverable by an inspection made with ordinary care, defendant was not negligent toward an employé injured by the rope breaking and the chute supported by it falling on him by permitting the rope to be used. Suderman & Dolson v. Woodruff, 47 C. A. 229, 105 S. W. 217.

Plaintiff was sent to the top of a telephone pole to cut wires, and after the wires were cut, the pole fell, injuring plaintiff. The pole was white cedar, and its fall was caused by its rotten condition. It had not been inspected by defendant, other than the superficial observation of the pole after its erection. Plaintiff, when he was directed to ascend the pole, kicked it for the purpose of ascertaining whether it was sound, and discovered no defect. Held, that there was no negligence on the part of defendant in failing to discover the condition of the pole. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Tucker, 114 S. W. 790, 103 Tex. 294, reversing 50 C. A. 476, 98 Tex. 90.

28. Inspection and test.—It is the duty of an electric company stringing its wires on a pole belonging to another to inspect it before sending its employés to work there. San Antonio Edison Co. v. Dixon, 42 S. W. 1099, 17 C. A. 329.

Where a derrick was erected by experienced men, but was thereafter removed, under instruction of the manufacturer, by inexperienced men, and the manufacturer was required to inspect to see whether it had been properly erected after removal, he was guilty of such negligence as rendered him liable to a servant for injuries received by its fall. Westbrook v. Crowds (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 135.

An employé while raising a smokestack, was injured by its fall, caused by the straightening of a hook in the block and tackle. The only test as to the sufficiency of the hook consisted in striking the smokestack with the hands while it was being lifted from a wagon to the ground. Held, to justify a finding that the employér was negligent in failing to properly test the appliance. El Paso Foundry & Machine Co. v. De Guerere, 46 C. A. 86, 101 S. W. 814.

A master purchasing an appliance of an approved pattern from a reputable dealer is not thereby released from the duty of inspecting the same until something happens in its use which directs attention to an imperfection, as reasonable inspection is imposed by law at all times. Alamo Dressed Beef Co. v. Yeargan (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 721.

A defect in an appliance, procured by a master from a reputable dealer, which ordinarily the manufacturer will discover on reasonable inspection, would be a defect for which the master, in the performance of his duty of inspection, is responsible.

Where brick burners had been in the habit for two or three years of using a shed along the side of a kiln to go upon to avoid the gases and heat, and nails of wood had been nailed thereon to keep them from slipping while so doing, the duty of inspection to see that the shed was in a safe condition for so doing was upon the employer. Ferris Press Brick Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 499.

An employé in a cotton oil mill was injured through the use of a defective cloth in forming a cake of cotton seed meal, held, that the master was not necessarily exonerated, because he supplied a sufficient number of good cloths. Leonard Cotton Oil Co. v. Burnes (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1932.
Defendant held bound, not only to use reasonable care to furnish reasonably safe tools, but to use the same care in keeping them in reasonably safe condition. Freeman v. S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1160.

In an action for injuries to a coal miner, instruction held to correctly state the duty of a master to furnish a safe place. Adams v. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1178.

A mineowner has the duty of inspecting the mine. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

It is the employer's duty to inspect electric light poles and wires, and see that they are reasonably safe from defects and dangers. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

29. Knowledge by master of defect or danger.—Defendant was a wholesale drug company occupying a four-story building, and on the third floor were the chemists, plaintiff's mistress, and two standing prescriptions in compoundatories, wire over which were knives, when it was the custom of most of the employees including plaintiff's son, to be absent; but he had been requested by the chemist to remain and his presence in the building was known only to the chemist, who was not present when the fire broke out. The first and third floors were connected by a speaking tube, so that the boy could have been notified, had his presence been known. The fire spread with such rapidity that the employees on the first floor had but little time to escape, and plaintiff's son, being unable to escape otherwise, jumped from the third-story window and was seriously injured. Held, that in an action to recover for his injuries, there being no contention that the fire was caused by defendant's negligence or that it could have been extinguished, it was not error to direct a verdict for defendant. Hornschel v. Texas Drug Co., 61 S. W. 419, 26 C. A. 1.

The mere fact that defendant's foreman, plaintiff's superior, was not aware of the defect which caused plaintiff's injury, is not sufficient to relieve defendant from liability for failure to exercise ordinary care to keep the tools, machinery, and appliances reasonably safe for his servant's use. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Dilvans, 47 C. A. 396, 106 S. W. 631.

Actual knowledge is not necessary to fix liability for injuries through dangerous instrumentalities, but the master will be liable if he has failed to exercise due care in ascertaining the condition or affairs of the premises bringing about the injury. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Solcher (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 26.

If it is notorious that an appliance is defective or unfit, knowledge of its condition will be imputed to the master, and, where a dangerous agency continues for such length of time that due care would cause discovery by the master, he is charged with knowledge of it.

1. A master is chargeable with constructive notice of what naturally and probably will happen as the result of what he knows, and he must foresee what experience will teach him is likely to follow from a given state of facts. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

A master held chargeable with knowledge of the condition of machinery and the unsafe character of work in connection therewith. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 562, 141 S. W. 512.

If the master knows, or by the exercise of ordinary care can know, that the tools or place of work furnished to the servant are not reasonably safe, he is chargeable with negligence. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1168.

The duty of a master to furnish safe places to work includes the duty of maintaining them in that condition. Raney v. Houston Lighting & Power Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 178.

31. Improper or unusual use or test.—There was no negligence in failing to furnish a servant with a reasonably safe hammer, where the hammer furnished was ordinarily as safe as any other for doing the work, could have been used without danger at any other place, and was rendered dangerous solely by the act of the servant in using it, without necessity therefor, at a place where it could readily be caught in the machinery. Hettich v. Hillie, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

Fact that an employee injured by being caught by bolts and nuts projecting from a revolving spliced shaft came into contact with them because of his arms giving way when he attempted to secure rafters to draw himself up over the shaft did not affect the question of the employer's negligence in using the shaft without first covering the splice. Longview Cotton Oil Co. v. Thurmond, 55 C. A. 499, 119 S. W. 136.

A master is liable for injuries caused by a defective window sill customarily used with his knowledge and acquiescence to stand on while oiling machinery, though it was not primarily intended for that purpose. Williams v. Hennefield, 57 C. A. 54, 129 S. W. 567.

32. Proximate cause of injury.—Deceased was employed at the bottom of a mine shaft in shoveling empties and placing loaded cars on the cage. The timber supporting the cage, and the sheet-iron surface surrounding it, had become decayed or misplaced, so that loaded cars could not be placed thereon without some one getting on the cage to pull them on and adjust them. While deceased was so engaged, the cage, without notice to him, would have started with the loaded cars in it, and the deceased was caught between the cage and shaft, and injured. Held, that the untimely hoisting of the cage, and not defendants' negligence in permitting the timbers and sheet-iron surface surrounding the cage to become misplaced, was the proximate cause of the injury, and hence there could be no recovery. Houston, 61 S. W. 529, 25 C. A. 67.

An instruction, defining "proximate cause" as "such a cause in the absence of which injury would not have happened," was erroneous as ignoring the distinction between proximate and remote cause, and leaving out the essential element that the result must be substantially certain to follow, and the probable consequence in the light of all the attending circumstances. Gulf Cooperage Co. v. Abernathy, 54 C. A. 137, 116 S. W. 869.
Plaintiff, a night shovel'er in defendant's seedhouse, slipped just after entering and stepped into a conveyor box and was injured. Negligence was alleged, in that the conveyor had been lengthened without notice to him, and that additional lights had not been furnished, as promised. Plaintiff knew, when he entered the building, that the conveyor box extended beyond the point where he stepped, prior to its extension, and the box was repairable by the available means. The defendant's failure to provide the light promised and to warn plaintiff of the extension of the conveyor was not the proximate cause of the injury. Brazos Oil & Light Co. v. Crawford, 57 C. A. 383, 122 S. W. 916.

Where plaintiff attempted to pull from a sprocket wheel a sprocket chain, which from its worn condition had wound itself round the wheel, and was injured by the chain suddenly falling out by breaking or unhooking, causing his hand to fly backwards. If not, he knew, the worn condition of the chain was not the proximate cause of the injury. Dayton Lumber Co. v. Hastings (Civ. App.) 262 S. W. 863.

Where an employe of a paper mill company, on seeing steam and acid vapor escaping from a defective gasket on a wood pulp digester, climbed out of a window, and hung on the sill to avoid being scalded, and while in that position lost his hold, and fell to the ground, and was injured, the negligence of the employer in maintaining a defective gasket was the proximate cause of the injury. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1168.

The proximate cause of the injury to an employe, fireman of a stationary engine, was the negligent starting of it by the engineer, a fellow servant, before the fireman had time to get away, after turning the fly wheel by hand, as a preliminary to starting; the defect in the engine, on account of which it had been stopped, being only the occasion. Mansfield Oil Mill Co. v. Edgmon (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1012.

III. METHODS OF WORK, RULES, AND ORDERS

33. Methods of work and duty to protect servant in general.—That a business might have been carried on in a less dangerous manner is immaterial, where the servant has been sufficiently instructed. Mitchell v. Comanche Cotton Oil Co., 61 C. A. 506, 118 S. W. 158.

34. Delegation of duty.—The duty to furnish a safe place to work, which an express company owes to a servant employed to ride in one of its cars, extends only to the construction and equipment of the car, and loading express matter by another servant in a dangerous manner is not a breach of this duty. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 68 S. W. 528, 29 C. A. 489.

36. Rules.—Reasonableness and sufficiency.—In a suit for personal injuries received by an inexperienced hand while attempting to clean an alleged defective litter in a cotton-oil mill, the jury should be instructed that, even though they believe plaintiff was ordered to do this work in addition to the work he was originally employed to do, that of itself does not entitle him to recover, but that they must find that defendant was guilty of negligence, and that plaintiff himself was not guilty of negligence contributing, directly and proximately, to his injuries. Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 874.

Deceased was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was repairing a cable over railroad tracks in his employer's factory yard, the accident being caused by the smokestack of an engine striking the cable. Decedent's employer had made rules that for the adjustment of railroad engines into the yard should be opened only on orders of the weighmaster, and it was customary, when engines desired to enter the yard, to give four blasts of the whistle. Engines did not usually enter the yard often, less than once a day, and on the day in question, before deceased started to work on the platform, he had only been ordered by his foreman to enter the yard and left the yard, which he did. The accident was caused by the engine again entering the yard without the gate being opened according to the custom, and without whistling. Held that, decedent's employer having promulgated rules, which, if followed, would have provided for decedent's safety, it was not guilty of negligence in failing to make other rules therefor. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns, 74 S. W. 768, 96 T. 572, reversing (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626.

37. Construction and operation.—A rule of an owner of a coal mine held not to require a miner to discover the condition of the roof to the extent of relieving the owner from the duty of maintaining a safe place to work. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

38. Negligence in giving orders.—While plaintiff was running a log carriage in a sawmill, the saw veered, and struck the head block of the carriage, and displaced it, and on the return trip scraped against it, making a loud noise, whereupon the engines were stopped. Held, that defendant's foreman, in ordering the engineer to go ahead, before examining the saw, was guilty of negligence, though the saw was new and of standard makes. Lumber Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 636.

The negligence of a yardmaster in pulling a pin and uncoupling a car, pushed by the engine, to let it run down a grade, and then signalling the engine to stop, after the car had acquired too great speed, is not excused by the fact that he was prevented from stopping it and uncoupling it and stopping the engine by the sticking of the pin. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 118.

IV. WARNING AND INSTRUCTING SERVANTS

39. Duty to warn and instruct in general.—Plaintiff's son was employed by a drug company, and a fire occurred in the building at noon, when it was the custom of most of the employes, including plaintiff's son, to be absent; but he had been requested by the chemist to remain, and his presence in the building was known only to such chemist, who was not present when the fire broke out. The first and third floors were connected by a speaking tube, so that the boy, who was on the latter floor, could have been notified of the fire, had his presence been known. The fire spread with such rapidity that the employe had no time to escape, and when he entered the room, the window and was injured. Held, that no issue of liability of defendant on the theory of discovered peril was presented by the evidence. Hernandez v. Texas Drug Co., 61 S. W. 419, 26 C. A. 1.

40. Delegation of duty.—The duty of a master to instruct a servant as to all abnormal or unexpected conditions, the comprehension of which he has no means to safeguard himself against, is not delegable, and the failure of the master to perform this duty is negligence. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Blivens, 47 C. A. 396, 106 S. W. 851.

41. Inexperienced or youthful employe.—Where plaintiff was employed by defendant to drive one of its teams after he told defendant that he was an expert driver, and required a gentle team, which defendant promised to give him, but instead it knowingly gave him a dangerous team, without notice to him, and plaintiff, while exercising due care, was run away with and injured, a verdict in his favor is sustained by the evidence. Wrought Iron Range Co. v. Martin (Civil App.) 28 S. W. 557.

A youthful and inexperienced servant’s knowledge that it is dangerous to come in contact with saws does not relieve the master from warning him that, in repairing a machine in a certain manner, he is in danger of coming in contact with a saw thereon. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harkey, 48 S. W. 1065, 29 C. A. 225.

Plaintiff, while employed by defendant company, was ordered by a vice principal of the coal tar. While painting the tar, with coal tar, some of the tar popped into his eye, eventually causing its loss. Plaintiff was ignorant of such work, and was not told of such danger by the vice principal. Coal tar was a proper material to paint boilers with, and no such accident was shown to have occurred before, and the vice principal was not aware of any danger that might arise from its use. Held, that the master was not liable for negligence in not instructing the servant of the danger, as it was not such a danger as would require special precautions to avoid. San Antonio Gas Co. v. Robertson, 56 S. W. 323, 80 T. 505, reversing (Civil App.) 55 S. W. 347.

Plaintiff, an inexperienced miner, was employed in trucking oil cake to a number. An elevating belt frequently became choked, and the foreman would then call plaintiff and others to assist him in unchoking it. Plaintiff was directed to get on the crusher, and press with one foot on the belt, and in doing so slipped, and his foot was crushed. Held, that it was the duty of the instructed thereby the inexperienced minor at work more dangerous than that for which he was engaged to warn him of the danger. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

A servant, who had worked for five or six weeks about the premises and machinery in repairing which he was injured, a part of whose duties had been oiling the machinery, and knew the manner of repairing the same, having repaired similar parts before, could not be considered an inexperienced workman in the sense of imposing on his employer the duty of instructing him, or warning him in such a way as to save him from exposure to the danger which brought about his injury. Hettich v. Hillie, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

Where an inexperienced servant operating a planing machine was injured by the timber he was working on being thrown back by the knifes having been reset by the foreman in the servant’s absence and without his knowledge, the master was guilty of negligence in having failed to warn him of the change. Texarkana Table & Furniture Co. v. Webb (Civil App.) 86 S. W. 782.

Where, in an action for injuries to a servant caused by a defective driftpin used by him, plaintiff alleged that the pin when in proper condition was adapted to the use and purpose intended, and if the pin had been suitable, and the head thereof surrounded with soft or malleable iron, particles would not have been thrown therefrom nor the injury occurred, plaintiff was not entitled to object to certain instructions on the theory that the work in which the servant was engaged was dangerous of itself, and that defendant was bound to warn such servant, who was a minor and inexperienced, though the danger was obvious. Wood v. Texas Cotton Product Co. (Civil App.) 88 S. W. 456. This he was not relieved of the duty of warning an employed of the danger incident to work on a building, because the servant represented he was experienced and competent to do the work, if the vice principal saw immediately before the employee’s accident, from his acts, that he was inexperienced. McCracken v. Lan- try & Sons Co., 101 S. W. 529.

A master need not warn a servant, though an infant, of ordinary risks and dangers which the servant actually knows and appreciates, or which are so apparent that one of

An employer need not warn an employee against dangers incident to the work, where the latter has represented himself to be competent and the employer is ignorant of his incompetence. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 365.

One held not to warn his employee against danger, incident to work outside of the ordinary employment. Henry v. McCown (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1170.

It is the duty of a master to warn a boy of all dangers not obvious, or not brought home to his knowledge by the exercise of ordinary care in the performance of his duties; a failure to do so being negligence. Hartshorn Bros. v. Williamson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 264.

42. Dangers known to employé.—Where a servant has knowledge of certain dangers incident to his employment, the failure of the master to give adequate warning of such dangers does not render him liable for an injury resulting therefrom. Ldonia Cotton Oil Co. v. Swain, 65 S. W. 693, 27 C. A. 65.

A boy between 19 and 20 years of age, who had worked on a farm for 6 years, and was well acquainted with farm work, including the handling of oats, loaded sheaf oats on a wagon, and while sitting on the oats and driving over a well-known road the wagon struck a rough place, and he was thrown off and injured. Held, that the master was not liable, though he had not warned the boy of the danger. Tucker v. Nat. Loan & Insurance Co., 89 S. W. 879, 35 C. A. 474.

If a servant knew enough to put one of ordinary prudence on inquiry as to the charged condition of a wire, the master was relieved of giving notice of its condition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Burton, 53 C. A. 378, 115 S. W. 364.

If a servant knows the danger and the means of avoiding it as well as the master, there is no need of instructing him. Brownwood Oil Mill v. Stubblefield, 53 C. A. 488, 116 S. W. 626.

Where an employer promised his stationary engineer at the close of the workday on Saturday to remedy a defective condition in the engine room made by the dripping of oil onto the platform, that the employer was not bound to warn the engineer when he went to work on the next Monday morning of the dangerous condition created by the oil on the floor, in addition to the fact that the oil was still there; the engineer being familiar with the danger. Dallas Oil & Refining Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 415.

43. Dangers from extraneous sources.—Decedent, a railroad switchman, having taken the knuckle from the coupling of his switch engine, in order to haul a defective car, was warned by his foreman that he would proceed up the track to examine other cars that were to be moved, and directed decedent after placing the car to return to the same track. This decedent did, and, while readjusting the knuckle of the coupling, was caught between the engine and the next car, shoved along the track by another crew entering from the other end of the switch, without warning to him. Held, that decedent's foreman, having knowledge of decedent's position, was negligent in failing to warn decedent of the danger. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

Any negligence of the master in not warning an experienced employee as to danger was a negligence, and the employee was guilty of ordinary negligence in failing to observe the cause of his injury from accidental slipping and falling into the saws. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 424.

44. Sufficiency and effect of warnings or instructions.—Where the master warned and instructed a servant when first employed, he need not repeat the warning. Mitchell v. Comanche Cotton Oil Co., 51 C. A. 506, 113 S. W. 183.

If defendant's foreman warned plaintiff in time for him to have removed his hand from the place of danger, and plaintiff heard the warning, this would be a defense, whatever its proper denomination. Waggoner v. Sneed, 53 C. A. 278, 118 S. W. 547.

45. Proximate cause of injury.—Where a sleeping car company for many years used an insect poison without accident, its cars were in no respect different in its composition to show that it was dangerous when properly used, the failure of the company to warn a servant that it was dangerous was not negligence which proximately caused an injury to the servant by an explosion of the poison. Pullman Co. v. Caviness, 53 C. A. 540, 116 S. W. 410.

V. NUMBER AND COMPETENCY OF FELLOW EMPLOYÉS.

46. Number required for work.—A wire cable, running between two of defendant's buildings, and over a railroad track, was lowered for repairs. There was an engine working on the track, and defendant's superintendent directed the man in charge of the work to watch the men putting up its cars while it was nothing in its composition to show that it was dangerous when properly used, the failure of the company to warn a servant that it was dangerous was not negligence which proximately caused an injury to the servant by an explosion of the poison. Pullman Co. v. Caviness, 53 C. A. 540, 116 S. W. 410.

Decedent was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was at work repairing a cable over railroad tracks, the accident being occasioned by the smokestack 3432.
of an engine striking the cable. The premises were those of the decedent's employer, and were inclosed by a high fence, railroad trains having access thereto. It was customary for the engineman to enter, and the employer had a man to open the gate, but there was no one to warn employees engaged in the work decedent was. An approaching engine was not visible from the platform where decedent was stationed. On the occasion in question the engineman was absent when the decedent entered. Held, that the employer was negligent in failing to furnish a safe place to decedent in which to work. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626, judgment reversed 74 S. W. 758, 98 T. 573.

Defendant was not guilty of negligence in failing to provide a watchman to look out for engines approaching the yard. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns, 74 S. W. 755, 96 T. 573, reversing (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626.

Where a servant, ordered to assist in handling a wooden beam with inadequate assistance, in consequence of his incapacity, of the weight of the beam, and the number required to safely handle it, and the master was charged with a knowledge of the danger of the undertaking, the master was liable for the injuries received by the servant while assisting in handling the beam. San Antonio Traction Co. v. De Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 429.

A master's liability to adopt a reasonably safe and practicable method of work includes the duty to provide a sufficient number of men therefor. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

48. Competency.—The employment of men to assist in the erection of telegraph poles, without making any inquiry as to their competency for such work, is negligent, and the employer is liable to a fellow servant for an injury resulting therefrom. Postal Tel. Cable Co. of Texas v. Coote (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 912.

It has been held that a servant is incompetent if he has exercised proper care in selecting the servant and ascertaining his fitness.

Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 80 S. W. 347, 36 C. A. 18.

One act of negligence on the part of a servant held insufficient to charge the master with negligence in employing him. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

49. Proximate cause of injury.—To render a master liable for injuries to a servant caused by the negligence of an incompetent fellow servant, such incompetency must have been the cause of the injury. Campbell v. Wing, 5 C. A. 431, 24 S. W. 366.

Decedent was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was at work repairing a cable over railroad tracks; the accident being occasioned by the smokestack of an engine striking the cable. The premises were those of the decedent's employer, and were inclosed by a high fence: railroad trains having access thereto. It was customary for an engine to whistle when about to enter, and the employer had a man to operate the gate; but there was no one to warn employees engaged in the work decedent was. An approaching engine was not visible from the platform where decedent was stationed, and on the occasion in question the gate was absent when the engine entered. Held, that the employer had been negligent in failing to have a watchman was a concurring proximate cause with the negligence of the railroad company in entering the yard without a signal, and in colliding with the cable, so as to charge the employer. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626, judgment reversed 74 S. W. 758, 98 T. 573.

VI. NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW SERVANTS

50. Operation of railroads.—See Title 115, Chapter 14.

In an action by a railroad employee against his employer for personal injuries to his wife, caused by the negligence of another employee, the rule that an employee cannot recover for the master for injury caused by the act of a fellow servant has no application. Campbell v. Harris, 4 C. A. 252 S. W. 56.

Under Art. 4694, subds. 1, 2, private corporations other than common carriers are not liable for the death of an employee caused by the negligence of another employee, but are liable for deaths caused by the negligence of a vice principal. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 197.

52. Nature of common service in general.—The operator of an elevator in an hotel is a fellow servant of a chambermaid riding on the elevator in the discharge of her duties. Oriental Inv. Co. v. Sline, 41 S. W. 130, 17 C. A. 626.

A guard employed to ride on an express car and protect it from robbers is a fellow servant of the express messenger, not entitled to recover for injuries inflicted by his negligence. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Page, 68 S. W. 528, 29 C. A. 489.

Plaintiff was employed in a cotton gin as a millwright, his duties being to look after the machinery, and everything pertaining thereto in the gin. Held, that he was an employee engaged in sweeping rubbish into the basement, and engaged in work of erecting the building, and not one having authority over the others. Armour & Co. v. Dumas, 95 S. W. 710, 43 C. A. 36.

Plaintiff and P. were common day laborers in defendant's employ. F., at the direction of his employer, neither of whom were authorized to employ or charge plaintiff, called him to assist in holding a chisel which was being driven into a piece of timber. The chisel was insecurely fastened, so that, when plaintiff pulled down on it as he was directed to do, it flew out, and he fell, and was injured. Held, that F. was plaintiff's fellow servant, and that plaintiff could not recover for his negligence, if any, in setting the chisel. Vitter Mfg. Co. v. Kent, 47 C. A. 462, 165 S. W. 525.

A bricklayer having no duty to erect scaffolds as a place to work, such structures being furnished by the master and erected by carpenters separately engaged, is not a fellow servant with the carpenters. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 379.

A servant of a manufacturer engaged in structural work, who is employed in a building construction, and a co servant engaged in piling steel beams in the yard, are not fellow servants. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Boyles (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 492.

Servants held fellow servants. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Catron (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 404.

Employés in a sawmill, engaged in removing planks from a saw as fast as they are sawed, are fellow servants. Bledsoe v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 910.

Employés engaged in drilling oil wells, each doing a specific part of the work, and neither having the power to employ and discharge, are fellow servants. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1082.

A fireman engaged to assist plaintiff who had charge of the engines in an electric power house is plaintiff's fellow servant. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 349.

53. Nature of act of fellow servant and performance of duties of master.—A servant cannot recover for injury from negligence of a co servant in moving the lever of a machine, though the co servant's duties were merely to take and pay the product of the machine and he had been directed not to touch the machine. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. De Vond (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 43.

In loading and arranging express matter in the car, an express messenger is acting within the scope of his ordinary duties as servant, and a fellow servant cannot recover because of the negligent manner in which the arranging is done. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Page, 65 S. W. 528, 29 C. A. 489.

The failure of a servant to stop machinery when he observes that another servant is working in a dangerous manner, is the negligence of the former, for which the master is not responsible. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 79 S. W. 869, 35 C. A. 36.

A servant having authority to direct and control another servant in the performance of his duties is not a fellow servant of the latter while giving orders to the latter. Id. The act of the employee of a corporation is the act of the corporation and the latter is not liable for the act of the employee. Id. Negligence of an employee in discharging the duty of a fellow servant, may be recoverable. Bledsoe v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 910.

Negligence of an engineer in an electric power house charged with the duty of watching an indicator showing contacts between live and dead wires held to render the master liable for injury to a lineman. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 475.

The rule that a master is not liable to a servant for a fellow servant's negligence does not apply to negligence consisting of the omission of a duty owed by the master to the servant. Id.

The duty of a master to furnish a servant a reasonably safe scaffold on which to work is not delegable to fellow servants. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 327.

Where employees drilling oil wells were supplied with proper appliances, including a jet to protect themselves from escaping gas, and it was the duty of the latter to act when necessary, his failure to use it to protect against escaping gas, causing the death of a co employee, was a breach of duty of the employé, for which the employer was not liable. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1032.

A master is liable for the negligence of a servant who is discharging the primary or nonassignable duty of the master to provide a safe method for work. Judson & Littie v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

54. Vice principals.—Where a superintendent, having power to hire, discharge, and control men, possesses knowledge necessary to an employé's safety, the principal is charged with his neglect to impart it to the employé. Connor v. Saunders, 9 C. A. 56, 29 S. W. 1140.

A foreman who has no power to employ or discharge is a fellow servant, and not a vice principal. Maughmer v. Behringer, 46 S. W. 917, 19 C. A. 299.

A想找 an employee of the defective account of a derrick used for loading a ship. The one acting as foreman in the absence of the regular foreman had absolute charge of the work and the adjustment of the machinery, and had taken the place of another employé, and permitted the latter to go and hire men. The employer also knew that such acting foreman was in authority. Held, the that the acting foreman was not a fellow servant, but a vice principal. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203, judgment reversed 70 S. W. 950, 96 Tex. 99.

A vice president of C., and placed him in charge of its shipping department as superintendent, giving him control thereof, defendant was liable for C.'s negligence whereby a laborer employed by him was injured. Roberts v. Fielder Salt Works (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 615.

The washhouse foreman of a brewery, who has no authority to employ or discharge, and the person who piles up kegs to be washed, are fellow servants of one engaged in washing them, so that he cannot recover of the master for injury from the falling of the kegs on the account of the negligent piling, or the negligence of the foreman in giving no notice when seeing the kegs leaning. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Pisch, 77 S. W. 1047, 23 C. A. 684.
Mere passive consent by an employer that one employed direct another, when unaccompanied by a duty or the desire on the part of the employer to obey the directions given, will not fix liability on the employer for negligent directions of the directing employee. Texas & P. Coal Co. v. Manning, 78 S. W. 545, 34 C. A. 322.

Where neither express authority to one employed to direct another, nor knowledge of such authority on the part of the employer brought home to the employer how the employee was sustained in the relation of vice principal, was shown, consent on the part of the employer to the exercise by the employee of such authority will not support an inference or presumption of authority to such employed to direct and control the other. Id.

An employee's negligence for the negligent employer employed is injured, unless the foreman had the power to employ or discharge the employee. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 79 S. W. 859, 35 C. A. 36.

An assistant general manager of a corporation, who has general authority in the conduct of its business and the direction of its work, is a vice principal and not a fellow servant with inferior servants engaged in the actual operation of the business, although he has no power to employ and discharge such inferior servants. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Arrington, 91 S. W. 607, 41 C. A. 342.

A foreman directing an employed to work in a particular place is not a fellow servant of the employer. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

Authority to employ and discharge makes an employed a "vice principal," regardless of his duties of service. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 455.

Mere proof that an employed was a foreman, unaccompanied by any proof that he was employed to perform the personal and nondelegable duties of the employee, or that he was a vice principal for whose acts the employer was liable. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733, reversed, 103 Tex. 253, 126 S. W. 2.

Though W., foreman of defendant's sawmill, had authority to employ and discharge employees only after consultation with defendant's president, yet he, having authority to direct and control the other employees and supervise their work, was a vice principal as to plaintiff's intestate, an employed therein taking B., another employed, from his regular duty of blowing the horn and sending him hurtful bolts in a broken floor plate, in doing which B. came in contact with a lever, setting machinery in motion, killing intestate; so that defendant was liable for the foreman's negligence in so sending B., knowing he was incompetent and inexperienced and ignorant of the character and use of the machinery amidst which he was instructed to work. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 35.

One who is the foreman of a department in an establishment divided into departments, with power to hire and discharge employees in that department, is a "vice principal" in the conduct of that department, and any negligence on his part in any conduct of the business committed to him is negligence of the master. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

One who is a "vice principal" who is employed to hire, direct, and discharge employees or to whom the employer has delegated a duty owing to workmen, though otherwise he may be a fellow servant; it being the authority given in a particular matter, and not the grade of service, which determines the issue of vice principal or fellow servant. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 363.

Where a master places a servant in charge of certain work with authority to control and direct other servants, such superior servant represents the master while in the performance of such duties. Northwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Risier, 197 S. W. 1188.

It is not essential that one have the power to employ and discharge employees in order to be a vice principal. Wichita Cotton Oil Co. v. Hanna (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1000.

A servant held a vice principal. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 Tex. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

A fire boss of a mine represents the mineowner in the performance of the duties of inspection. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

A foreman of a factory in full charge thereof, in the absence of the manager, was a vice principal, with the liability of the common employer for injury to a fellow servant resulting from the explosion negligently caused by the foreman. Williams v. Coca-Cola Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 755.

A foreman giving orders to those placed under him to work by the employer in reference to the work under his control and supervision necessarily speaks for the employer, and is a vice principal as to the employed by whom he had authority. City of Greenville v. Branch (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 478.

When a servant by whose negligence plaintiff was injured had authority to direct and control employee, the foreman, without authority to employ and discharge employees, he was plaintiff's fellow servant, except as to nondelegable duties with which he might have been invested. Lowrey v. Fitzhugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1190.

A servant without power to employ or discharge is not a vice principal, but as to servants of the same master is a fellow servant. Johnson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

55. Nature of act or omission, and performance of duties of master.—One of two employed, in the erection of a compressor, superintended the carpenter work, and the other the machinery. The latter, in hoisting a heavy girder, called the former to his assistance, and while there a hoisting bolt slipped, on account of its greasy condition, and fell, striking him a fatal blow. Held, that as it was the duty of the company in the first instance to remove the grease, and as such duty was nontransferable, the failure of the superintendent of the machinery to do so on the neglect of a fellow servant as precluded a recovery. Terrell Compressor Co. v. Arrington (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 59.

The foreman of a telegraph company in charge of the construction of its lines is the vice principal, as it is responsible for any negligence given by his negligently hiring incompetent men. Postal Tel. Cable Co. of Texas v. Coote (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 912.
Where plaintiff was employed by the superintendent, and told to report to a foreman, and plaintiff was not instructed in his duties, or warned of danger by the superintendent, and those others by the foreman, were called by him in starting and elevating belt on certain machinery managed by him, the foreman was a vice principal, and not a fellow servant, of plaintiff. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

A vice principal having control of the loading of a vessel, who takes the place of the gangwayman whose duty it is to give orders for the movements of a derrick used in hoisting goods, is not, while so acting, a fellow servant. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 958, 95 S. W. 719.

Where plaintiff was injured by the fall of a barrel which had been negligently set on a joist above where plaintiff was working, and the barrel fell when another servant went on the joist to get a barrel in obedience to the order of his foreman, the latter's act did not constitute negligence on the part of plaintiff's fellow servant. G. A. Duerrler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

Where an employer places a fellow servant in the construction of a building, with authority to control and direct the workmen, who are instructed to obey his orders, and was workman receives injury while obeying the foreman's order, the foreman's negligence is the employer's. McCracken v. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co., 45 C. A. 485, 101 S. W. 529.

An employé while working on the top of a stack of flour was injured in consequence of the fall thereof. The flour had been stacked before his employment began. He was directed by the employer's foreman to work on the stack. Held, that the injury was not caused by a fellow servant. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

A servant, while actually engaging in the work with other servants, is not a vice principal as to such servants, though he has power to direct and control them. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

The duty of a principal is the duty of the servant, in so far as it is in operation in proper condition for use, the act of the servant in undertaking to repair in a defect therein is that of a mere intruder, for whose unauthorized act the master is not responsible. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co., 105 S. W. 268, 126 S. W. 2, reversing (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 725.

When a man in a sawmill to whom a foreman in a sawmill is properly ordered to report, as the master is in the performance of a nondelegable duty, and is not a fellow servant of the sawyer.

A servant was killed while attempting to release a freight elevator. A truck loaded with flour was wheeled into the elevator, and when the two front wheels got on the elevator it went down, and a fellow employé grabbed the cable, and the elevator started up so that the front wheels were caught between the floor of the elevator and the floor of the building. The work on releasing the elevator was done under the directions of the vice principal. Held, that the master was liable on it appearing that the release of the elevator was within the sphere of the duties committed to the vice principal and that the direction he gave was, under the circumstances, negligent, though he acted in the absence of the elevator rider as the progress of the work. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Paiz (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

The rule that a master is not liable ordinarily for the negligent act of a foreman proximately resulting in injury to a servant, unless the master had the power to employ or discharge the servant, does not apply to a foreman giving orders to those who have been placed by the master under him to work, and in reference to work under his control, but he speaks for the master and is a vice principal. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 492.

Though one be a vice principal as to general management and control of work, if his negligence be that of a collaborator and not in exercising his authority, he is, as to such negligence, a fellow servant and not a vice principal, Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 282.

If a vice principal on hearing a negligent order given permits it to be obeyed, he thereby makes it his own. Id.

A servant supervising the erection and shifting of scaffolds on a building held a vice principal. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Riser (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1185.

In determining the liability of the master for injuries to a servant, certain questions held immaterial. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 583, 141 S. W. 518.

A vice principal held authorized to direct a servant to assist in releasing a stalled freight elevator used in the work. Id.

A foreman in a mill held a vice principal. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper, 105 T. 21, 142 S. W. 1163.

The act of a foreman, throwing a lighted match into a pool of oil, held not an act for which the master was liable. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

A servant, injured in setting up a rock crusher through the negligence of the carpenter, who, though directing operations, had no power to hire and discharge, cannot recover from the master; the carpenter being a more fellow servant. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 105 T. 407, 150 S. W. 1156.

Death of employé struck by hoisting bucket held caused by the negligence of a vice principal, who directed another employé to signal the engineer to permit the bucket to drop without warning the employé or ascertaining whether he was in a position of danger. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 197.

56. Existence of relation of master and servant in general.—Where no proof is offered in support of the allegation that plaintiff was engaged in executing the business of his master when he was injured by the negligence of defendant's servants whom he was asked to assist, in the course of employment, and cannot recover, since in such case he would be a mere volunteer standing in the same position as a regular employé. Bonner v. Bryant, 79 T. 540, 15 S. W. 491, 28 Am. St. Rep. 361.

A servant injured in consequence of negligent work done by servants before his employment began and such servants are not fellow servants. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 492.
Plaintiff, a servant of a transfer company who was directed to take a team and do some loading for a well-driven company, was injured by the direction of the well-driving company's foreman, a servant of that company and a fellow servant of its servants. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 225.

57. Servants of separate masters in same work.—Lesseses of a paternity are not responsible for an injury to a convict by the defective construction of a bunk made by a servant of the convict commissioners having charge of the convicts. Cunningham v. Moore, 56 T. 373, 49 Am. Rep. 812.

When the injured person, plaintiff's wife, was working for her husband, who was boarding the men of defendant company under an agreement that the company should retain them on his board and pay it to plaintiff, the wife and the engineer were not fellow servants. Brown v. Sullivan, 71 T. 470, 10 S. W. 288.

A servant of a contractor erecting a building and a servant of an independent contractor are not fellow servants. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 872.

58. Concurrent negligence of master and fellow servant.—An action for the death of plaintiff's son, through negligence of a railroad company in allowing slabs to obstruct the side of a switch, where the negligence of the defendant is shown, in the absence of contributory negligence of the part of the deceased, recovery is not defeated by contributory negligence of fellow servants. Howe v. St. Clair, 8 C. A. 101, 27 S. W. 890.

The employer is liable for an injury to an employee from the concurrent negligence of the master and fellow servants. Sincere v. Union Compress & Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 326.

A foreman who directs a servant to work beneath a place where another servant is working, and fails to warn the lower servant that the end of a timber being sawed off by the upper servant is about to fall, is guilty of such negligence as will render his master liable, though the upper servant is also negligent. American Cotton Co. v. Smith, 69 S. W. 448, 29 C. A. 425.

Where a servant employed in a cotton gin, while passing from one part of the works to another, was struck by a piece of cotton of the building by another servant in the discharge of his duty, the fact that the injured servant and the one discharging the bale were fellow servants would not preclude a recovery, if the injured servant was hurt through the negligence of the master in failing to provide a safe passageway for the servant to discharge the cotton, or in failing to instruct him to give a proper warning before discharging the bale. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 36 C. A. 18, 80 S. W. 847.

If negligence of the master concurs with that of a fellow servant in producing the injury, the master is as liable for the consequences thereof as though his negligence was the sole cause of the injury. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Elchhorn, 44 C. A. 658, 99 S. W. 715.

Plaintiff, a laborer employed by defendant, which operated a railroad, was ordered to ride on flat cars loaded with telephone poles, the cars being pushed by a locomotive. The road was uneven, and the rocking of the cars caused the end of the poles on the front of the car to fall, whereupon defendant's general manager cried out, and plaintiff, noticing the condition of the poles, jumped off the car and was injured. The poles would not have fallen had a certain pin been placed in a standard on the front of the car. All of the hands had been engaged in loading the car, but plaintiff had not assisted in fixing the standard, and knew nothing as to its condition. Held, that an instruction that, if there was negligence in failing to secure the standard and negligence in allowing the track to be rough and uneven, a verdict should be returned for plaintiff was proper. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Mounce, 46 C. A. 230, 102 S. W. 142.

If the breaking of a rope and consequent injury to an employee was due to the concurrent negligence of the master in selecting the employee and the fellow-servants in using it, the employers are liable. Sudderan & Dolson v. Woodruff, 47 C. A. 229, 105 S. W. 217.

An employee in a sawmill was injured while adjusting a guide pin of a circular saw, by the slings of the wrench used to tighten the pin. The wrench was worn, and loosely fitted the head of the pin, which was also worn. A co-employee had put cloth in the threads of the guide pin to hold it more securely, and the employee put a severer strain on the wrench than ordinary. Held, that the act of the co-employee was not the proximate cause of the injury. Quin v. Glenn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 725, reversed 103 T. 253, 128 S. W. 2.

Where a servant of a contractor erecting a building was injured by the fall of a ladder because of the negligence of the contractor in improperly securing it, and in putting a servant to work beneath it where he might be injured by its fall if displaced, the contractor failed to use ordinary care to furnish the servant a reasonably safe place to work, and his negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, though the displacement of the ladder was caused by the negligence of a fellow servant. Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973.

A master is liable for injury to a servant through its negligence, though there is concurring negligence of a fellow servant. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 55.

Where the negligence of the master concurs with the negligence of a servant, the master is liable. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 283.

Act of a fellow servant in untying a rope, whereby a scaffold was precipitated to the ground, cannot, held not the proximate cause of the injury. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Riser, 137 S. W. 1138.

Where the master's negligence in failing to guard dangerous machinery is the proximate cause of injury, he is not relieved from liability by the fact that plaintiff's fellow servant was negligent in operating the machine. Armour & Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 865.

59. Willful acts and gross negligence of fellow servants.—A corporate employer is not liable for injuries to a new employé inflicted by its officers and employés while attempting, in sport, to lay the new employé across a barrel for the purpose of paddling.
him, as an initiation into the service, though the custom of initiating all new officers and employees had existed for years with the knowledge and acquiescence of the officers and managers, and both of the employer and of the employees being wholly without the scope of their authority. Medlin Milling Co. v. Bourtiel, 104 Tex. 87, 133 S. W. 1042, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 109, reversing (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 442.

VII. ASSUMPTION OF RISK

60. Operation of railroads.—See Title 115, Chapter 14.

Where a servant is injured from one of the known dangers ordinarily incident to his service without negligence on his part, his injury is ascribed to one of the ordinary risks of such service, and it is presumed that the master or servant must appear before the doctrine of assumed risk is applicable. Louisana & T. Lumber Co. v. Brown, 50 L. A. 482, 109 S. W. 950.

The defenses of assumption of risk and contributory negligence are inconsistent, and the existence of one necessarily excludes the other. Armour & Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 961.

62. Reliance on care of master.—In an action for injuries received through the negligence of a co-laborer, an instruction that plaintiff would be put on inquiry to ascertain, before engaging in work with such laborer, whether he was a man of ordinary intellect, and who appeared to be an expert and of money, was not calculated to develop knowledge of such want of capacity, plaintiff could assume that the master had exercised reasonable discretion in selecting the servant. B. Lantry Sons v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 58 Tex. 837.

Where plaintiff was injured by the fall of a barrel insecurely placed on a joist above the floor of the room in which plaintiff was working, she did not assume the risk, she being under no obligation to inspect the premises for such dangers, nor to presume that defendant would negligently place the barrel in an insecure position. G. A. Duerrler Mfg. Co. v. Elborne, 44 L. A. 338, 89 S. W. 715.

Where a bricklayer goes upon a scaffold as a place of work, the scaffold having been built by carpenters engaged in the same general employment, he has the right to assume that the master has performed his duty to provide a safe place to work. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 370.

A servant need not anticipate the master's negligence, and he does not assume the risks of the failure of the master to perform his duty. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Currie (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1129.

A servant is not bound to use ordinary care to see whether the master has discharged his duty of furnishing a safe place for work, but may presume that the master has discharged his duty, without assuming the risk arising from the failure to do so, unless he knows or should have known that the place was dangerous. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1050.

63. Dangers incident to nature of work.—A servant assumes the risk of all dangers ordinarily incident to his employment. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Burton, 55 L. A. 378, 115 S. W. 364; Alamo Dressed Beef Co. v. Yeargan (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 721; Freeman v. Anglo-Dutch Co. v. Protector, 115 S. W. 519; Arcolla Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey, 144 S. W. 1148; Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson, 154 S. W. 684; Taylor v. White, 156 S. W. 349.

In a servant's action for injuries an instruction that plaintiff assumed as matter of law the risk ordinarily incident to the employment to injury resulting from risks ordinarily incident to the work, the verdict should be for defendant that by the expression "risk ordinarily incident to the work" is meant a risk of injury that does not grow out of an act of negligence on the part of defendant or his other employees, etc., stated. Satisfaction v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1072; Freeman v. Anglo-Dutch Co. v. Protector, 115 S. W. 519.

64. Defective or dangerous tools, appliances and places.—Plaintiff in entering the employ of defendant assumed the ordinary risks of the service for which he was employed, and if he was employed for the purpose of "riveting," and the flying or chipping of the tools used for this purpose was one of such risks, and he was injured thereby, he could not recover. H. S. Hopkins Bridge Co. v. Burnett, 85 Tex. 16, 19 S. W. 866.

Plaintiff was injured by a piece of steel which flew off a rivet hammer used by a co-employé, while holding a sledge hammer against a rivet. He had been at the work five or six days, and knew nothing as to the condition of the rivet hammers. The tool company making the hammers had a high reputation, and its tools were in high standing. Such hammers must be highly tempered, to serve their purpose, and, being so, are liable to chip and crack when in use. All of the rivet hammers were strapped, and unshivered, and had been for five or six days. Employés testified that there was little likelihood of the hammers cracking or shivering when sound, but that, becoming cracked, there was great liability of pieces chipping off. It was further shown that the cracked condition of the hammer from which the piece causing the injury fell was apparent on a casual examination; also, that defendant had a man on the scene as superintendent of the work. Held, that an instruction that, it being shown that the hammers by which plaintiff was injured were made by a company whose tools were of high standing, and that such hammers must be highly tempered, and therefore liable to crack when in use, plaintiff assumed the risk, was erroneous; defendant being injured by such chipping or cracking, and therefore the finding should be for defendant, was properly refused, since the facts, as shown, did not apply to hammers which had become cracked and chipped from use. De La Vergne Refrigerating Mach. Co. v. Stahl, 60 S. W. 319, 24 C. A. 471.

When on deck hand of tugboat, a part of whose duties consisted in keeping the deck clear, stepped on a siphon pipe lying on the deck, causing him to slip and be caught in a coil of rope attached to a tow, the risk of such an accident was one which he had assumed. Direct Nav. Co. v. Anderson, 69 S. W. 174, 29 C. A. 65. 3485.
The question of a master's negligence in failing to provide his servant with a reasonably safe place to work does not arise where it is clearly shown that the servant himself selected the place at which he performed the work for convenience sake, and without any order or suggestion from his foreman, whereas the work could have been done elsewhere without incurring the danger incident to the performance of the work in the place chosen. Hetten v. Young, 77 S. W. 710, 43 C. A. 571.

An employed in charge of a gin stand, and required to watch the machinery, look out for defects, and unchoke the same on it becoming choked up with cotton seed, assumed the risk of injury resulting to him in consequence of his hand being carried into the saws while unchocking the machinery. Thompson v. Planters' Compress Co., 48 C. A. 355, 106 S. W. 470.

Where it is the duty of the servant to keep the machine he is operating in proper condition for use, he assumed the risk of injury from defects therein. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co., 103 T. 259, 126 S. W. 2, reversing (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 2.

Where temporary structures, erected to complete a main structure, are put up by the same workmen as are engaged on the main structure, the workmen who have put it up assume the risk of such structure being unsafe. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 376.

The rule that a master must exercise ordinary care to furnish a servant a reasonably safe place to work does not apply where the place becomes unsafe during the work. Adams v. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1178.

An operator of an electrical ironer in a laundry does not assume the risk of injury from explosions caused by defective wiring. Kampmann v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 161.

A servant engaged in winding up doors of hallast cars rented by his master for use in his business does not assume a risk of injury caused by the breaking of a chain. Texas Traction Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

Where a man was instructed to use a ladder in ascending poles, he did not assume the risk of injury from defects in a pole, received while climbing the same in the usual manner. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1052.

An employé may assume that the place in which he works is reasonably safe. Farmers' Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 668.

DANGEROUS OPERATIONS AND METHODS OF WORK.—A servant in entering the master's employ assumed the ordinary risks of the service for which he was employed, and if he was employed for the purpose of "riveting," and the flying or chipping of the tools used for that purpose was one of such risks, and if he was injured thereby, he could not recover. H. & S. Hahn v. Bridge Co. v. Burnett, 19 S. W. 886, 85 T. 16.

Where a servant went into the mouth of an elevator bin to cave cotton seed which had become lodged therein, he assumed the risk of digging in the bottom of the bin, when the seed slipped and crushed him. Brown v. Miller (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 647.

Plaintiff was employed in an oil mill, and was directed to get on the crusher, and put one foot on the belt, which had choked, to press it down, and in doing so he slipped, and his foot was caught in the crusher. It was not shown that there was any rule as to how the work should have been performed. Held, that it was not error to refuse to instruct that, if the defendant knew or ought to have known how the business was conducted, he assumed the extraordinary hazard arising from the manner in which it was conducted. Washacuhie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 65 S. W. 236, 27 C. A. 334.

A longshoreman working in the hold of a vessel under an open hatch, and injured by the fall into the hatch of merchandise which is being loaded into another hatch, did not assume the risk. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203, Judgment reversed 70 S. W. 950, 96 Tex. 99.

While an employé may assume that the master has done his duty in furnishing a reasonably safe place to work, and is not required to make an inspection, yet, when he is instructed to do work in a particular manner and knowingly violates such instructions, he assumes the risk of any resulting injury. Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 322.

A servant employed to shovel cotton seed from a seed pile into a conveyor assumes the risk of injury occasioned by the fall of the pile by gravity. Vernon Cotton Oil Co. v. Cotton (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 504.

On facts stated, held, that a servant injured by attempting to lift a pipe from a ditch had not assumed the risk. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Clayton (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 268.

INADEQUATE RULES OR DIRECTION OF WORK.—Decedent was killed by the throwing down of a platform on which he was at work repairing a cable over railroad tracks, the accident being occasioned by the smokestack of an engine striking the cable. The premises were those of the decedent's employer, and were inclosed by a high fence, railroad trains having access thereto. It was customary for an engine to whistle when about to enter, and the employer had a man to operate the gate, but there was no one to warn employees engaged in the work decedent was. An approaching engine was not visible from the platform where deceased was stationed, and on the occasion in question the gateeman was absent when the engine entered. The engine occluding the accident had entered the yards once before that morning, and the employer's superintendent instructed decedent's foreman in decedent's presence not to go to work until the engine left the yard. After the engine left, and the gate had been closed, decedent went to work. On its return the engine gave no signal. Held, that the decedent did not assume the risk. Merchants' & Planters' Oil Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626, Judgment reversed 74 S. W. 758, 96 Tex. 573.

INCOMPETENCY OR NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW SERVANTS.—A guard employed to ride on an express car and protect it from robbers, by accepting a bribe, or by incompetence, assumes the risk of injury resulting from the negligence of fellow servants in the usual course of the company's business. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 65 S. W. 528, 29 C. A. 489.

An employé engaged in mixing concrete for a building in process of construction was injured in stepping on a protruding through and nails protruding through the floor on which he was at work. Employés engaged in taking care of the rubbish had placed the board there. Held, that the employé received his injuries from a cause, the risk of which he assumed. Armour & Co. v. Dumas, 95 S. W. 710, 43 C. A. 38. 3459
A servant assumes the dangers arising from the negligence of his fellow servants when committed in the performance of their own duties as well as those which are obvious and incidental to their employment. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 15 S. W. 225.

68. Knowledge by servant of defect or danger.—Plaintiff was employed in taking clinders and ashes from a pit covered with two loose, heavy plates of iron. He placed one plate on its edge, stuck it with a stick, and while at work the plate fell, injuring him. He had worked there six weeks, and knew of the condition of the plate covers, and had full opportunity to know of any defects which would render the plate thus secured dangerous. Held, that he could not recover. Brown v. Brown, 71 T. 365, 9 S. W. 261.

Where an employee knew or should have known that a hammer used by him for "riveting" was unsuited to the work, he was not entitled to recover from the master for an injury occasioned by its use. H. S. Hopkins Bridge Co. v. Burnett, 19 S. W. 896, 15 T. 18.

Plaintiff was engaged in loading iron for defendants. While attempting to lift on a car a piece of iron, one end of which was not raised to the top of the car, it struck the side of the car, and burned back on plaintiff. He was at work, and knew how many men were necessary to load iron of that size. He testified that it required from six to ten men to load that kind of iron, while only five handled this one. Held, that plaintiff was not entitled to recover, since he knew, as well as defendants, the danger of loading the iron with that number of men. Eddy v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 295.

Though plaintiff had applied for and been given employment, and put to doing certain work, yet from this it could not be presumed that he knew the dangerous condition of work in which he was employed thereafter, on the discharge of the person who had done it, told that he must do. Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 432.

An instruction, that, if plaintiff knew that a fellow servant was of low order of intelligence, that result from employment that might reasonably be expected to work with him, in so far as such injury might result from that condition, was correct. B. Lantry Sons v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 887.

A wooden platform over the rollers of an oil mill, containing a slot through which the oil flowed, was smeared, until it almost adhered, and sagged, but it should have been several inches above them. The teeth on the rollers were so dull that the oil cakes had to be forced against the mechanism in the feeding machine, and the hand of an employé was caught and injured while forcing an oil cake against the rollers. He had fed the machine but a short time before the accident, and knew of the defective condition of the platform. He did not know that the teeth of the rollers were dull, but knew that the hard oil cakes had to be forced into the rollers, which was the resultant thereof. Held, that such employé assumed the risk of his hand being caught while feeding the oil cake. Price v. Co. v. Shaw, 65 S. W. 360, 27 T. 198.

A servant ordered to take a certain number of men with him, and go to a certain place and get a wooden beam, who knew of the weight of the beam and the number of men required to handle it, assumed the risk and injury from undertaking to handle it with an inadequate force. San Antonio Traction Co. v. De Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 420.

A servant assumes the risk in performing work alone in a place where the conditions are such that he must necessarily know that he is exposed to danger, whereas the work could be done elsewhere without any such exposure; and he cannot count on the negligence of the master in failing to provide two men to do the work. Hettich v. Hillje, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

A servant who was aware of the fact that a conveyor box was open, and of the danger in working with the hammer just above the revolving screw, and who was not so working under the pressure of a peremptory order from the foreman, assumed the risk, and any negligence in having the conveyor uncovered was immaterial.

An employé was injured in washing a ladle, it having been and was to be washed, having known of the slanting slippery floor and of the throbbing from the engine, assumed the risk thereof. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Pisch, 77 S. W. 1047, 33 C. A. 884.

A man owing to his position and skill assumed the risk of his hand being crushed by machinery and to employ a sufficient number of competent and skillful servants, he is not responsible for injuries to a servant caused by his failure so to do, if the servant knew, or by the exercise of ordinary care for his own safety would have known, of such failure, as the servant assumed the risk arising from the negligent failure of the master in such particulars. Smith v. Armour & Co., 54 S. W. 675, 37 C. A. 633.

Plaintiff, an employé in defendant's foundry, while carrying a ladle of molten metal, stepped into a hole which defendant had excavated a few minutes before in an unusual place in a pathway used by employés and left unguarded. Plaintiff had no knowledge of the hole when he stepped into it, and was burned by spilled material from the ladle. Held, that the hole being in an unusual place in the pathway, where plaintiff had never known one to be placed before, and his attention not having been called thereto, he did not assume the risk. San Antonio Foundry Co. v. Driah, 55 S. W. 440, 38 C. A. 214.

A risk, though known to the servant, is not deemed in law to have been assumed unless the danger arising from such risk is, likewise, known by him. Peck v. Peck, 87 S. W. 248, 39 T. 18, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 257.

One employee, who knew that a machine was in the pit the plate of the hole when he stepped into it, and was burned by spilled material from the ladle, held, that the hole being in an unusual place in the pathway, where plaintiff had never known one to be placed before, and his attention not having been called thereto, he did not assume the risk. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co., 51 S. W. 333, 41 C. A. 267.

Where a servant was injured while wheeling salt in defendant's factory by reason of the defective construction of a runaway, and such defect was not known to the servant nor patent to observation, he did not assume the risk. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 131.

A servant, whose duty it is to move lumber in a truck over a roadway from a sawmill to the place where it is piled, does not assume the risk of injury from the breaking of a shaft, nor knew that such accidents occasionally happened. William Cameron & Co. v. Realmuto, 45 C. A. 305, 100 S. W. 194.

Though an employé struck in the eye by a rivet thrown from a pulley belt on the brake apparatus of a truck, thereafter for his injuries therefrom, for his injuries therefrom, where it appeared that, if it was defective, he knew of its condition and assumed the risk, he can recover on the theory that the belt's breaking was caused by a pulley negligently permitted to remain in a defective condition; plaintiff not knowing of such defect. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Co., 107 W. T. 242, reversing Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Pointdexter (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 439.

A servant, thoroughly experienced in the work, who continues to operate a defective machine, without promise on the part of the master of guaranty against injury or of maintenance thereof, where he has full knowledge of the defects and of its effect on the operation of the machine. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. Scott, 51 C. A. 117, 112 S. W. 107.

Where a servant's duties required him to adjust one end of a skid to an ice chute and place the other end on his wagon, he was chargeable with knowledge of the condition of the apparatus from his daily use thereof. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Willis, 52 C. A. 556, 114 S. W. 189.

A servant assumes the risk of all dangers from the master's negligence, whose existence he knows, or could have learned of by that care which a prudent man would have used under the circumstances, so that if a servant knew that a wire was dangerously charged, or was warned sufficiently to put an ordinarily prudent man upon notice that it might be, he assumed the risk of injury therefrom. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Burton, 53 C. A. 378, 115 S. W. 364.

A true test of whether a servant, who did not fully comprehend his danger when injured, was relieved from assumption of the risk, is: Would a person of ordinary prudence in his situation, and a similar situation, in a like situation, have assumed or assumed the danger or risk? Brownwood Oil Mill v. Stubblefield, 53 C. A. 165, 115 S. W. 626.

Where an employé directed by the foreman to jump on the tongue of a wagon while drawn by an engine knew of the danger of falling and of being injured or such danger was obvious, he assumed the risk of such danger. Texas Bitulithic Co. v. Hutson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 146.

If a servant stepped into an open elevator shaft when there was sufficient light in the shaft to render the danger of so doing patent and open to the common observation of persons possessing the experience and discretion to appreciate such a danger, which the servant possessed, the injuries would be the result of an assumed risk. Swift & Co. v. Martine, 53 C. A. 475, 117 S. W. 269.

An employé in a sawmill was injured while adjusting a guide pin of a circular saw, by the slipping of the wrench used to tighten the pin. The wrench was worn, and loosely fitted the head of the pin, which was also worn, both of which facts he knew. He was an experienced man, and was familiar with the tightening of the guide pin. He voluntarily continued to work with the defective appliances. Held, that he assumed the risk as a matter of law, precluding a recovery. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733, reversed 105 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2.

A mine operator failed to construct an appliance to prevent water cars from being pushed into a shaft. An employé engaged in emptying the water cars was killed by falling into the shaft. He had worked around the mouth of the shaft for a number of months, and he knew that there was no appliance to prevent cars from falling into the shaft if pushed therein in the absence of the cage. There was nothing to show that duty of the cage not to the operators of the water cars but to emptying the water cars. The absence of the cage was apparent to the employé if he paid any attention. Held, that the employé assumed the risk as a matter of law. Mt. Mar. M. Co. v. C. & T. Volt, 54 C. A. 411, 118 S. W. 149.

An experienced line man in the employ of a telephone company injured, while climbing one of its poles, by placing one hand on a messenger wire, which he knew to be grounded, and the other one on an iron step, in contact with which, as he could have seen, was another pole of the city, which at such time should have been dead, but which was charged through contact, at a distance, with the wire of a third company, owing to its negligence, assumed the risk from the negligence of the telephone company in not keeping the wire away from the step, it being the rule with such electricians to deal with each wire as if it were charged, and he, though ignorant of the presence of electricity in the wire, having equal facility with his master for knowing thereof. Ft. Worth Light & Power Co. v. Moore, 55 C. A. 157, 113 S. W. 831.

Plaintiff, after being employed three days in defendant's seedhouse, was injured by his arm being caught in a set screw projecting from the collar of a revolving shaft as he was endeavoring to adjust a belt. The screw was near the end of the shaft. 15 feet from the floor, and, when plaintiff had occasion to be near it, it was difficult for him to observe it, because the shaft and screw were revolving at high speed. He did not know of the screw, which projected from one to two inches above the collar of the shaft, and which was both unusual and dangerous. Held, that plaintiff, being entitled to assume that the machinery was reasonably safe, did not assume the risk of the danger he was subjected to by the screw. Wagoner v. Porterfield, 55 C. A. 163, 113 S. W. 1094.

Where a servant working with a cotton bale press was familiar with any supposed defects in it, knew that it would occasionally drop cotton onto the floor, and that it was necessary to replace it between the rollers, as a man of mature years knew the danger of playing between the rollers, and that by using his hands to replace the rollers, and that by using his hands to replace the rollers, he assumed the risk of injury from replacing between the rollers with his hands cotton fallen from the press. Maxwell Ginning Co. v. Wallian, 57 C. A. 42, 121 S. W. 182.

A servant, knowing of defects in appliances, may recover for injuries resulting therefrom, where he did not know of the danger in their use. Muse v. Abele (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 430.
A servant does not assume the risk of his master's negligence, unless he knows or is charged with knowledge thereof, and of the danger arising therefrom. Buchanan & Gilder v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 799.

Where the place where a servant was injured did not become dangerous during the progress of the work he was doing, but was dangerous when his master put him there to work, and the danger, he did not know of it, the servant was liable. Solich v. Houston & Texas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 978.

A servant who had for seven months been using a passageway and was thoroughly acquainted with all of the surroundings and with the condition of the lights, and knew all the dangers connected with approaching too close to machinery near the passageway, assumed the risk from insufficiency of the lighting of the way. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Solich (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 26.

A servant does not assume the risk from the failure of the master to do his duty, unless he knows of the failure and the attendant risks, or in the ordinary discharge of his duties. A servant who injured the known defects of machinery, in a negligent manner, was not relieved from the assumption of risk, is under no duty of exercising ordinary care to discover the danger of removing a pulley belt while the machinery is in motion, which the master, without any warning as to danger, orders him to do in a certain way. Gentry v. Stephen­ville Nat'l Bank (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 879.

A servant, holding a steel cutter to cut off the heads of rivets while a fellow servant strikes the same with an iron maul, does not assume the risk of injury by the breaking off of slivers of steel by reason of the force of the blow, unless he knows of the defects of the cutter, or the defects are so obvious as to charge him with knowledge of them, and of the danger incident thereto. Buchanan & Gilder v. Blanchard (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1158.

The test of assumed risk is whether the employer actually knew of the danger in time to avoid it, and, if not, whether an ordinarily careful man in performing his work would have discovered the dangerous condition, and as an ordinarily prudent man have anticipated the peril. Freeman v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1194.

The duty of the general manager of an electric railway company to determine whether poles are suitable for the use intended and it is not the duty of the lineman to inspect them, the lineman does not assume the risk of injury by climbing a pole which looks unsafe, but the pole is defective, then the pole must be in charge of his own duty must have acquired that knowledge. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 299.

Where plaintiff, while working at night on the double boards of an oil derrick, slipped therefrom and was injured, and when he went there he knew that there was no light on that part of the derrick, and that the manner of doing the work necessarily caused water and mud to be on the boards, he assumed the risk of the absence of light and the slippery condition of the boards incident to the mud and water. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes, 103 Tex. 515, 131 S. W. 531, affirms judgment. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

If a bricklayer goes upon a scaffold, and there discovers it is in immediate danger of falling, and without using proper care to protect himself from injury remains thereon, waiting for another division of workmen to repair it, he assumes the risk of his position. Texas 'N' St. Ry. Co. v. Strong (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 376.

Where a bricklayer has discovered the danger that a scaffold would fall, and immediately after and before he could protect himself from injury by the use of ordinary care, the scaffold fell, he did not assume the risk of injury. Id.

If a serviceman was injured while painting a roof because two ladders which were tied together, one being on one side of the ridge of the roof and the other on the other, came apart, the servant assumed the risk and cannot recover if he saw how they were tied, and knew as well as anyone, whether or not it would hold. Planters' Gin Co. v. Washington (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 880.

Plaintiff was employed by a packing company to work on a sausage grader, and had worked about a month and a half before he was injured. The day before he was injured, the man who worked well with the machinery had told the plaintiff to do it, and the plaintiff went on the machine and lost his hand. The machine did not feed well, and plaintiff pushed the meat down upon the knives with his hands, and he knew that, if his hands came in contact with the conveyor, he would be injured. Held, that the injuries were caused from a risk which he assumed as incident to the employment, and for which his employer was not liable. Fiddick v. Houston Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 446.

A servant, though he owes no duty of inspection, cannot shut his eyes to dangers obvious to the ordinary man, and he assumes the risks of a danger of which he has actual knowledge and of assumed hazards as he would have learned by the ordinary circumstances of a prudent man. Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 366.

Where a servant knew of knots in a lever before it broke, and of the effect of the knot, knowing it to be weak and insufficient, he assumed the risk of injury therefrom by continuing in the service. Texas Co. v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 512.

A servant, in order to be charged with an assumption of risk on the ground that he knew of the existence of the defect, must not only know of the situation, but also of the danger that is likely to result from it. Lone Star Lignite Mining Co. v. Caddell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 841.

A servant, to assume a risk, must know the danger, or, in the prosecution of his work, must necessarily know of it. Alamo Oil & Refining Co. v. Curvier (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1132.

A servant assumes risks from defects of which he has knowledge. Leonard Cotton Oil Co. v. Burnes (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1082.

Where a servant appreciated the danger before he was injured, it was immaterial whether he knew or not he was employed on the job, the employer was not liable. Consumers' Lignite Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1178.

Where a lathe operator was injured by a defect in the machine, the defense of assumed risk was limited to whether he knew or could have known of the danger by the
A servant who knew of the defect in one timber of a lumber dock held to have assumed the risk of injury therefrom. Griffin v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 303.

An experienced coal miner held to have assumed the risk of a certain injury as a matter of law. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Beall (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 363.

A telephone lineman who did not know of defect in pole, used in the construction of a telephone line, and which he was required to ascend, did not assume the risk of injury from the defect while climbing in a careful manner. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1052.

A servant injured by falling through a hole in a floor with which he was familiar, and who chose a dangerous way when there were several safe ways for him to use, held to have assumed the risk. Wolfshohl v. W. & S. Coal Co. Patton (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 315.

If injury to an employee through derailment of a hand car on which he was riding resulted from excessive speed of the car, his knowledge of the car's defective condition would not preclude his being assumed to assume risk. Beck v. Texas Co., 105 Tex. 303, 148 S. W. 295, reversing Texas Co. v. Beck (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 439.

A servant is not bound to inspect a pick furnished him by the master to determine whether it is properly tempered. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

A servant who was employed by or engaged in assisting a traction company's agent in cleaning electrical machinery and knew of the danger therefrom when the current was on, the assumed the risk of injury, and the company was not liable therefor. Bialack v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1088.

A servant who undertakes to do work, he assumes the ordinary perils incident thereto, is not applicable to the performance of services with defective machinery, unless such defects are known to him, and he appreciates the danger therefrom. Griffin v. W. & S. Lumber Co. 160 Tex. 355, 160 S. W. 560.

A servant having knowledge of defective machinery in the performance of his work does not assume every possible risk which might result therefrom, including extraordinary risks of which the master should know, unless they be obvious or the servant has the knowledge and appreciation of the complete appearance of the machinery. Where plaintiff, injured by catching his hand in spools while guiding the rope on them, knowing that he could not reach the switch from his position near the spools in order to stop the machine if he caught his hand in the rope, which he knew might happen, he assumed any risk from the location of the switch. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Wolfshohl (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 644.

An experienced employee in drilling oil wells who knows of the danger of escaping gas without using a jet, and who continues in the employment without using a jet, assumes the risk of injury by escaping gas. Producers' Oil Co. v. Bush (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1032.

A servant knowing that the number of men present to perform a particular piece of work is insufficient assumes the risk involved in the undertaking with such number. Judson & Little v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 223.

Employed on an elevator shaft in an unfinished building, who with knowledge of the negligent manner of operating a hoisting bucket in the shaft placed himself in a position to be struck by a descending bucket, held to have assumed the risk of injury from the employer's negligence. William Miller & Sons Co. v. Wayman (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 197.

69. Inexperienced or Youthful Employment.—Plaintiff made a contract with the defendants, whereby plaintiff's 16 year old son was to be employed in defendants' cotton gin to assist in cleaning bales of cotton. The boy was inexperienced in the work, and had been employed about two months, when he was injured while assisting one of the workmen, G., in cleaning out a gin stand in one of the square bale gins. Just before the accident the boy was not at his regular place, but standing near the gin, and G. called to the boy, G., to get the gin stand, as he had become "choked," and required to be cleaned at once. The work in the gin was done under the personal supervision of one of the defendants, who, at the time, was standing near where the boy was cleaning the gin, but the boy did not see the boy until just before the accident, and because of the noise of the machinery he had not heard G. call. G. was not a foreman, but of equal rank with all the workmen, and he had never been authorized to call others to his assistance, and had never done so before. Held insufficient to show a cause of action against defendants for injuries, since the boy was a mere volunteer in cleaning the gin, G. not having authority to call him to his assistance. Werner v. Truutwein, 61 S. W. 447, 25 C. A. 608.

Plaintiff, an inexperienced minor, was employed in an oil mill in trucking oil cake to a crusher. An elevator, which frequently became choked, and the foreman would then call plaintiff and others to assist him in unchoking it. Plaintiff was directed to get on the crusher, and press with one foot on the belt, and in doing so he slipped, and his foot was crushed. Held, that in view of the plaintiff's inexperience, and that he was working under the immediate direction of the foreman, and had little opportunity to consider the act, a verdict in his favor should be sustained. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

A servant must be held to have known that, if he got underneath an overhanging rock, and struck it with a sledge hammer, portions of it would necessarily fall, and, if he was in the way, he would be struck, although he had previously had no experience in digging under rock. Hightower v. Gray, 83 S. W. 254, 86 C. A. 674.

An employee placed at work near a stack of flour Improperly stacked, and who did not know the danger of working thereon, did not assume the risk. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowen (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

Where an infant servant has been properly instructed and warned, his minority usage to buy material factor in estimating the master's liability, and the defenses of assumption of risk and contributory negligence are then available against him, where under the same circumstances such defenses would be available against adults. Mitchell v. Comanche Cotton Oil Co., 61 C. A. 506, 113 S. W. 158.
In an action for injuries to a minor servant, an instruction that, if plaintiff was incapable of running the machine, and had not been warned of the danger, he did not assume the risk, was not erroneous, since plaintiff assumed the risk of such dangers as were open and obvious to one of his age and experience. Gulf Cooperage Co. v. Abernathy, 54 C. A. 137, 116 S. W. 669.

A servant 18 years old, and inexperienced in working on a derrick used in drilling oil wells, does not assume risk resulting from the master permitting the double-board on which he worked to slant, and be slick from oil and water, unless warned of the danger. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1623.

Where plaintiff assumed the risk, nor to have been guilty of contributory negligence. Henry v. McCown (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1170.

It is not enough to establish assumption of risk, as matter of law, by an inexperienced youth that he knew if he got his hand under the knife of the machine, from which he had no way it would be cut, but it must be shown that he understood the probability of getting it under there when doing his work. Bryson v. Moore (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 233.

70. Obvious or latent dangers.—The main issue was whether the servant knew, or had been warned, of the danger of injury. The defendant introduced testimony that the danger was open to common observation, and that the servant had been duly warned. Held, that it was error to refuse to instruct on the law of assumed risks. Planters' Oil Co. v. Mansell (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 918.

Where a servant of mature years was directed to go to a sand bank for a load of sand, and was injured by the caving of the bank as he alighted from his wagon, and the physical condition of the bank and the probability of its caving were as obvious to the servant as to the master, the servant assumed the risk. Ft. Worth Stockyards Co. v. Whittington, 78 S. W. 303, 9 C. A. 165.

The risks which the servant assumes are, first, those which are ordinarily connected with his particular work, and with which it is assumed that he is acquainted; and, second, those risks which are manifest, whether they arise from the nature of the business, the manner in which it is conducted, or the use of improper or defective appliances. Hightower v. Gray, 83 S. W. 254, 36 C. A. 674.

The employé was of mature years, and his testimony showed that he knew the difference between a sharp and dull edge, and with a dull chisel he was inexperienced in this kind of work, and did not know that the particles would fly with force, or would bound back if they struck an iron surface. Held, that having knowledge of the obvious conditions which led to his injury, he was chargeable with knowledge of the danger, and assumed the risk. San Antonio Sewer Pipe Co. v. Noll, 83 S. W. 900, 37 C. A. 269.

An employé in loading a vessel assumed the risk of injury from such defects in a rope used as would not have been disclosed to the master by an inspection conducted with ordinary care. Kilgore & Dolsen v. Woodruff, 47 S. W. 226, 102 S. W. 217.

Danger of the caving of a ditch in which plaintiff, an ordinary laborer, was working at the time of his injury, held not so obvious as to charge him with assumption of the risk. Collum v. Austin v. Gress (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 535.

71. Notice or complaint to master.—Where plaintiff called the attention of the foreman to a defect in the machinery near which he was at work, and was assured by the foreman that he was in no danger therefrom, and, relying on this statement, returned to work, where he was injured in a peculiar manner, not to be ordinarily expected by him, there was no assumption of risk. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Bivens, 47 C. A. 296, 106 S. W. 831.

An employé built a scaffold to remove the walls of a building pursuant to the orders of his employer. The employé was an experienced scaffold builder. The employer ordered the employé to break down a lintel to take 1,200 pounds. The employé expressed the opinion that the scaffold was not strong enough, but the employer urged that it was sufficient, and the employé and co-employés attempted to remove the lintel, and the scaffold broke, injuring the employé. Held, that he assumed the risk. Kilgore v. Hightower, 52 C. A. 1111.

Where a servant calls the master's attention to a defect in a machine which he is operating, and the master undertakes to repair it and informs the servant he has done so, directing him to use it, the servant is under no duty to inspect. Hughes-Buie Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 323.

72. Promise to remedy defect or remove danger.—Plaintiff, a brakeman, on the objection of defendant's agent to pulling derailed cars, because of a defective drawhead, replied that he hoped that the same would break, because then defendant would have to repair it. The agent then told a carpenter to fix it immediately, but it was not repaired for 12 days; and plaintiff continued using it, with knowledge of its defective condition, and was injured. Held, that since the instructions given by the agent to repair were intended to facilitate the master's business, and not for the employé's protection, it was not defendant's duty to repair plaintiff from the risk relieved plaintiff in using it in its defective condition, without objection, after the instructions were given. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 55 S. W. 362, 22 C. A. 596.

In an action by an employé for injuries resulting from the defendants' failure to furnish the necessary lights at accident after the defendants' foreman had promised to do so, the testimony of the foreman that he had general charge and a right to employ and discharge all employés is sufficient to support a finding that he was authorized to bind defendants by his promise to furnish the lights. Hiltje v. Hettich (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 491, Judgment reversed, 67 S. W. 90, 55 Tex. 32.

Where an employé, after complaining of insufficient light at the place of employment, continued to work on the promise of the foreman to furnish more light, which was not done, and the employé was thereby injured, he will not be deemed to have assumed the risk involved by remaining at work. Id.

A promise by a master to furnish light in a place where a servant is required to work, which is dangerous for the want thereof, does not prevent the assumption of risk by the servant in continuing to work therein, after the master has had a reasonable time.

A promise made by a city to an employé to repair a defective bridge would not justify the employé in remaining at work, so as to make the city liable for injuries resulting from the defect, where, by reason of the fact that many like promises to repair the defect had been made, he must have known, he had no intention to make the repairs. City of Houston v. Owen (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 785.

The promise to repair would not make the city liable for the injuries where it was clear from the evidence that the employé had no intention of quitting work even if the repairs were not made, but made his complaint merely because he thought the bridge might be injured by a failure to repair. Id.

Where a servant informs the master of a defect in appliances, and the master promises to have it repaired, and the employé works long, as he had the servant, so lands to expect, and does expect, that the master will repair, does not, by continuing in the employment, assume the additional risk from the master's neglect, and, if injured, may recover if one of ordinary prudence would have continued in the service. Medlin Milling Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 839.

A servant injured because of insufficient light held not to have assumed the risk. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 378.

Where a baker requested the master to repair defective lights near his place of work, and had reasonable grounds to believe that a promise to do so would be complied with, he did not assume the risks from such defective lights by continuing his employment for a couple of days after such promise. Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 654.

A servant held to have assumed the risk of injury from unguarded machinery as a matter of law, where his first request to have it guarded was not heeded, and upon his last request some two months before the injury his superior promised to have it guarded as soon as he could, but fell short. Taylor v. Wrigley, 63 L. R. 503.

73. Compliance with commands.—Where a person ordered by his foreman to pass a rope under electric wires understands the danger of coming in contact with such wires, he assumes the risk in obeying the order. Newn v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 659.

Plaintiff was employed in an oil mill, and was directed to get on the crusher, and put one foot on the belt, which had been, to press it down, and in doing so he slipped, and his foot was caught in the crusher. It was not shown that there was any rule as to how the work should have been performed. Held, that it was not error to instruct that a person who had assumed the risk ordinarily incident to the business. Wanzelhable Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 66 S. W. 226, 27 C. A. 334.

Risks involved in carrying out the master's orders are not assumed by the servant, unless there is danger involved and threatening just a prudent man would undertake it. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 70 S. W. 869, 35 C. A. 36.

Where a servant was killed while attempting to obey an order to assist in releasing a freight elevator, the master, to invoke doctrine of assumed risk, must show that ordinary care had been exercised to ascertain the condition of the elevator. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

Servant undertaking by order of master to lift weight beyond his capacity held to assume the risk of so doing. Gulf Pipe Line Co. v. Clayton (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 268.

74. Risks outside scope of employment.—Plaintiff having been instructed by the foreman to perform work other than he had contracted to do, and not in the line of his employment, and with which he was not familiar, it cannot be said, as matter of law, that he assumed the risk of being injured by a danger thereof of which the employer knew, but did not warn him. Hillsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 432.

Plaintiff was employed in doing work that was outside of his duties does not affect the doctrine of assumed risk, where there was no danger involved in the work itself, and the danger to which the servant became exposed was created by himself in selecting the place he did for its performance, whereas there were other safe places available for the purpose, though possibly not so convenient. Hettich v. Hillje, 77 S. W. 641, 33 C. A. 571.

Plaintiff, a sawmill employé, was injured by the fall of a ladder leading from the first to the second floor of defendant's mill. The ladder had been fastened both at the top and bottom, and had been provided by defendant for use of the men; but prior to the injury a substantial stairway had been erected, and the ladder had been ordered removed, and the men told not to continue to use it. Plaintiff denied that he had ever heard such orders, and there was evidence that other employés continued to use the ladder with the knowledge of the foreman. The foot of the ladder was located near a rope used in hoisting timber to the second floor, which rope caught under the bottom of the ladder, tilting it over, and causing plaintiff to fall. Held, that plaintiff did not assume the risk incident to the use of the ladder, instead of the stairway, as a matter of law. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co., 94 S. W. 1068, 43 C. A. 304.

Employé riding on employer's log train for his own benefit held a licensee, and not to be so riding on the employer's implied invitation. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 847.

An employé in a paper mill does not assume the risk of an injury received while attempting to escape from a room that is filled with scalding hot steam and acid vapor from a digester that had been insecurely closed with a defective gasket. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1168.

The fact that a servant knows that a fellow servant is negligent does not preclude a recovery resulting from the concurrent negligence of the fellow servant and a vice principal. Clayton & Co. v. Smith, 89 S. W. 148, 29 C. A. 32.

A servant employed in a cotton gin was using a passway, going from one portion of the works to another, where he was struck by a bale of cotton thrown by another servant, according to custom, from the second story of the building. In an action for the injuries there was evidence showing that, while plaintiff knew that it was dangerous to use the passway, the danger did not exist if the servant who was charged with the duty of throwing the bale was experienced, or had been instructed to give the proper warning before discharging the bale, that no warning was given at the time of the accident, and that plaintiff did not know of the incompetency of the servant who threw the bale, it was his care and duty to refuse to use the passway with the knowledge of the danger would justify a verdict in favor of defendant, since plaintiff, under the circumstances, had a right to assume that the servant charged with the duty of throwing the bale would give the proper warning and that he was a competent servant. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 80 S. W. 847, 36 C. A. 18.

A servant cannot claim indemnity, although he is working under the immediate supervision of the master, where the danger is so obvious and apparent that no ordinarily prudent man would avoid it. High v. Gray, 83 S. W. 254, 36 C. A. 574.

A servant does not assume the risk of injury resulting from the negligence of the master or the foreman who represents him. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co., 103 T. 253, 126 S. W. 2, (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733.

A servant does not assume the risk incident to the negligent performance of the master, through his foreman, of the duties it owed him, but only the risks of which he had knowledge, actual or constructive. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 35.

An employer's assumption of obvious risks does not release the employer's liability for injury caused by the employer's intervening negligence. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 353.

This risk is one which a servant assumes only such as arise after the master has exercised due care. Hugo, Schmeltzer & Co. v. Paiz, 104 T. 563, 141 S. W. 518.

A servant does not assume risks arising from the master's failure to do his duty unless he knows of it and the attendant risks or must have acquired such knowledge. Texas Tractor Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 169.

A servant may assume that appliances are reasonably safe and the manner of conducting the business reasonably safe.

An employer's assumption of obvious risks from machinery does not absolve the master from liability if, concurrently therewith, the extinguishment of the light under which he was working as a result of defendant's failure to repair it contributed to his injury. Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 684.

VIII. CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE

76. Application of the doctrine in general.—Inadvertency is synonymous with inattention, heedlessness, carelessness, negligence, and thoughtlessness, so that a servant cannot recover for injuries caused through his own inadvertence. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Waddohi (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 644.

77. Statutory provisions.—An act declaring that contributory negligence of an employee shall not bar a recovery, but that the damages shall be diminished, is not unconstitutional. Freeman v. Kennerly (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 565.

78. Care required of servant.—It is the duty of an employee to use ordinary care for his own safety. Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 322.

It is the duty of a servant in the discharge of his duties to use reasonable care for his own safety. Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1148.

79. Inexperienced or youthful employee.—An employee, a green hand, was put in charge of machinery, which outwardly indicated no danger, as attendant upon the wip­ ing of a certain plate attached to it, and was directed by the superintendent to wipe such plate without any caution, whereby he was injured. Held, that he was not negligent in failing to examine the machinery as to how to handle the danger. Howard Oil Co. v. Farmer, 56 T. 301.

The rule as to the care to be exercised by an inexperienced person set to operate dangerous machinery by his employer is such care as the use of implements and in the operation of the machinery as an ordinarily prudent man of his experience and in his situation would ordinarily use while performing the same duties, and not 'such care as a man of his experience and in his situation would ordinarily use.' Hilsboro Oil Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 874.

Where a master directed a youthful and inexperienced servant generally to repair a machine, and the servant did it in the precise manner in which he had on a previous occasion been told to fix it, without being warned that that method was dangerous and improper, the servant was not guilty of contributory negligence. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harken, 48 S. W. 256, 20 C. A. 225.

Plaintiff, an inexperienced youth, being suddenly called to go on a crusher to assist in unchoking a belt, fulfilled his duty if he exercised ordinary care in doing so, and was not chargeable with negligence in not having ascertained what dangers were incident to such work. Waxahachie Cotton Oil Co. v. McLain, 68 S. W. 526, 27 C. A. 334.

Though the lumber which falls on a minor employed while, by direction of the fore­ man, doing different work from what he was employed to do, was negligently piled, recov­ ery cannot be had for his injury if, considering his age and intelligence, he was not exercising proper care, or the danger was obvious. Hildenbrand v. Marshall, 69 S. W. 492, 30 C. A. 135.

An inexperienced employed who was placed at work on a stack of flour improperly stacked, and who did not know of the danger of working thereon, was not guilty of contributory negligence. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 916.

A minor servant, when not warned, need exercise only such care as one of ordinary prudence would exercise in like circumstances, would be guilty of contributory negligence when he falls to exercise such degree of care, and hence, in an action for injuries to a minor servant while operating dangerous machinery, an instruction that, if plaintiff was inexperienced and was not warned, he could not be... guilty of contributory negligence, was erroneous. Gulf Cooperage Co. v. Abernathy, 54 C. A. 137, 116 S. W. 1063.

Minor places the injured person in the same position as an inexperienced adult so far as machinery is concerned, and where the danger is apparent, or the servant has been warned of the danger, negligence will be imputed to a minor, as well as an adult, if any injury is received from the machinery. Kriech v. Richter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 166.

A servant, 18 years of age, had worked in a bakery for nearly a year and was familiar with a machine containing cog wheels and was ordered by his foreman to clean it. He was in motion, and, while cleaning it, his fingers were caught in the cogs. He knew of the situation of the cog wheels and there was evidence that the servants had been instructed to beware of the machinery and cogs. There was no evidence that plaintiff was weak-minded. Held, that he was guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

A minor employed not to have assumed the risk, nor to have been guilty of contributory negligence. Henry v. McCown (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1170.

In an action for injury to a paper cutter operator caused by the blade unexpectedly falling, held improper to authorize the jury to consider certain matters on an issue of contributory negligence. National Biscuit Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 65.

80. Reliance on care of master.—In the absence of knowledge to the contrary, an employed may assume that the employer has exercised ordinary care in furnishing him a reasonably safe place in which to work. Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co., 90 S. W. 717, 41 C. A. 47.

A servant may act on the assumption that an appliance is properly constructed for the purposes which it is to be used. Williams v. Hennefield, 57 C. A. 54, 120 S. W. 867.

A servant may rely on the performance of the duty of the master to furnish a safe place to work and safe instrumentalities with which to work. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Fals (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

An employed is not guilty of contributory negligence, where he relies upon the assurance by his employer or a vice principal, as to the safety of a place of work, tools, machinery, or appliances, or upon a promise to protect and guard the employed from danger. Where the danger is obvious or imminent that no ordinarily prudent person would encounter it. Beck v. Texas Co., 106 Tex. 380, 148 S. W. 295, reversing Judgment Texas Co. v. Beck (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 439.

81. Scope of employment.—In an action for the death of a cotton oil company employed by a caving of a mass of cotton seed hulls, it was error to refuse to instruct that if, while decedent was asleep, the hulls in flowing from a chute covered him, and he was thereby suffocated, there could be no recovery. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 451.

82. Choice of ways and places for work.—A servant employed in a cotton gin, while using a passageway from one part of the works to another, was struck by a bale of cotton thrown from the second story of the building by another servant in the discharge of his duties. Held, that if the injured servant could have used another and convenient passageway, in the exercise of ordinary care, he should have taken, his failure to do so was contributory negligence. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonte, 90 S. W. 847, 56 C. A. 18.

Plaintiff, a sawmill employed, was injured by the fall of a ladder leading from the first to the second floor of defendant's mill. The ladder had been fastened both at the top and bottom, and had been provided by defendant for use of the men, but prior to the injury a substantial stairway had been erected, and the ladder had been ordered removed and the men told not to continue to use it. Plaintiff denied that he had ever heard evidence that other employees was evidence to show that the ladder with the knowledge of the foreman. The foot of the ladder was located near a rope used in hoisting timber to the second floor, which rope caught under the bottom of the ladder, tilting it over, and causing plaintiff to fall. Held, that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co., 94 S. W. 1068, 43 C. A. 304.

83. Occupying dangerous position.—Where plaintiff was thrown from the pilot of defendant's engine attached to a log train on which plaintiff was riding, and the proximity of his injury was the dangerous position which he had voluntarily taken, instead of selecting a more secure place on the train, he was guilty of contributory negligence, as a matter of law, precluding a recovery. Burns v. Charterist Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 163.

84. Knowledge of defects or dangers.—If a servant's injuries were caused by the insecurity of a temporary brace which he and other servants nailed to the structure, he must be held to have known it and at least jointly responsible for its insecurity. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

85. Duty to discover or remedy defects or dangers.—A servant is not required to use diligence to discover defects not obvious in appliances furnished him, or in the place provided for his work, but may assume that the master has discharged his duty in respect to such appliances. Farrington (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 63.

An employed was injured by the falling of a hoisting block, used in raising a heavy timber, which was caused by its greasy condition. The employed knew of its condition previous to the accident, but the director of the work had undertaken to remove the grease, and the employee had no notice of his failure to do so. Held, that he had a right to assume that the hoisting block had been put in reasonably safe condition before undertaking the work. Id.

In an action for injuries caused by a piece of steel which flew off plaintiff's co-worker's riveting hammer, it was agreed that riveting hammers are necessarily brittle to some extent, and liable to collapse while in use. Held, that the employment did not imply that unless plaintiff did not know, and by the use of ordinary care could not have known, of the condition of the hammer, he could not recover, was proper. De La Vergne Refrigerating Mach. Co. v. Stahl, 60 S. W. 319, 24 C. A. 471.

It is held that the trimmer was required to report by entries in what was called the "Trouble Book" any defect that he saw on the lines did not preclude his recovery for the injury, where he was not instructed to look for defects not observable without the application of some test, and was not furnished with appliances to test the rods, etc. Du­pree v. Thompson, 66 S. W. 596, 27 C. A. 668.

A trimmer employed by an electric light company, who, in caring for a lamp at the top of a 30-foot pole, used the iron rods supporting the lamp to steady himself, his weight being on the step below, was not guilty of contributory negligence, where the rods appeared to be solid iron three-fourths of an inch in diameter, though they were in fact hollow and rusted, so that they broke, causing him to fall to the ground. Id.

A master seeking to excuse himself from liability for failing to inspect his property, which resulted in the injury of his servant, must show that the duty of such inspection was one of the primary objects of the servant's employment. Dupree v. Alexander, 68 S. W. 739, 29 C. A. 31.

Where a deck hand on a tugboat, while fastening a rope attached to a tow, stepped on a siphon pipe which had been carelessly left on the deck, it was a danger that he should have guarded against; and if he failed to do so, and was injured, he was guilty of contributory negligence. Direct Nav. Co. v. Anderson, 69 S. W. 114, 29 C. A. 85.

There is no duty of care in discovering defects in appliances furnished by a master is not laid on the servant, yet the servant is expected to take such care for his safety as a person of ordinary prudence would take under like circumstances; and therefore if a servant is ignorant of the defect and danger of an appliance, and acts as much care as a person of ordinary prudence would take under the circumstances, and is the proximate cause of his injury, the master is not liable. Horton v. Ft. Worth Packing & Provision Co., 76 S. W. 211, 33 C. A. 156.

A servant is not required to inspect the appliances that are furnished him, but can assume that they are reasonably safe. Peck v. Peck, 57 S. W. 248, 99 T. 10, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 257.

Where, in an action by an employee for injuries received in consequence of the falling of a scaffold on which he was at work, defendant pleaded contributory negligence, an instruction that, where a servant is placed at work by the master in a certain place, the servant has a right to presume that the place is safe and will be reasonably safe by the master using ordinary care, was not erroneous. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 140.

A servant of an express company was not required to inspect the trucks or platform where he worked to ascertain if the company had performed its duty to furnish reasonably safe tools and place to perform his work. Wells, Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 441, judgment reversed 100 T. 577, 102 S. W. 107.

Plaintiff was injured by the fall of a barrel insecurely placed on a joist above the floor of the room in which she was working. Held, that there was no negligence on plaintiff's part proximately contributing to her injury sufficient to preclude her from recovery. Croft v. F. & N. Surf. Lunch Co., 41 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

An employee is not required to exercise diligence to discover defects in appliances furnished. Waggoner v. Sneed, 53 C. A. 273, 118 S. W. 547.

A servant is not required to inspect the machinery if not charged with the duty of discovering defects in a window sill customarily used for the work. Williams v. Hennesfield, 57 C. A. 54, 120 S. W. 567.

Brick burners who had been in the habit for two or three years of using a steam沿on the kiln deck, when, in trying to avoid the hazard of a hot brick having been nailed thereon to keep them from slipping, were not required to inspect the shed to see that it was in a safe condition, but could rely upon the presumption that the employer had done his duty in inspecting the shed. Ferris Press Brick Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 498.

Where an electric light company was required to furnish a lineman constructing an electric line with proper poles, and it negligently furnished a defective pole, which broke while he climbed it, the company could not urge that he was negligent in falling to inspect the pole before defects, for he could rely on the assumption that the company exercised ordinary care to select reasonably safe poles. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 299.

A bricklayer who has discovered that the scaffold on which he is to work is in immediate danger of falling cannot wait thereon for it to be repaired, unless his conduct in so doing is that of an ordinarily prudent man. Texas Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 370.

A servant employed as oiler in a mill who knows that there are many unguarded set screws and that there must be a set screw in every set collar, but who does not know that the screws are exposed, need not inspect the appliances, and his failure to make an examination and discover that a set screw which caught him and injured him was exposed did not make it a sudden accident. Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 389.

An employee injured while using a defective appliance held a chargeable with knowledge of the defect. Kampmann v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 161.

An engineer failing to request proper appliances held entitled to recover for injuries caused by Siggins Mills Co. v. Lackey (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1148.

A rule of a coal mine owner, that employees must use precautions to prevent accidents and should not work in an unsafe place when timber would remedy the danger, did not require a miner to discover the condition of the roof to the extent of relieving the master from the duty of maintaining a safe place to work. Stag Canon Fuel Co. v. Rose (Cliv. App.) 145 S. W. 677.

LAW

Art. 5246h

The rule that a servant is under no obligation to use ordinary care to ascertain whether his master has furnished a reasonably safe place to work has no application, where the injury is to a vice principal. Raney v. Houston Lighting & Power Co. (Cliv. App.) 153 S. W. 174.

A master being bound to exercise ordinary care to furnish a safe place for his servants to work, it is not their duty to inspect the place so furnished. City of Austin v. Gress (Cliv. App.) 166 S. W. 535.

96. Dangerous methods of work.—Where it was necessary for a brakeman on a logging train to ride on a car loaded with logs, and there was no other place for him to ride than on the stringer, he was not negligent in riding there, so as to preclude a recovery for his death in a collision between the train and a car. Ragley Lumber Co. v. Parks, 46 Tex. S. 529, 103 S. W. 724.

Plaintiff's failure to attach guy wires to a defective telegraph pole before beginning to work thereon held contributory negligence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tweed (Cliv. App.) 138 S. W. 1155.

97. Disobedience of rules or orders.—Where a servant of a street railroad company was injured while riding on a car which the company provided for its servants, to be used while going to and from work, the fact that a rule of the company prohibited the workmen from so riding was no defense to an action for negligence causing the death. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth (Cliv. App.) 84 S. W. 352.

Where an employe violates instructions which are known to him, while engaged in a dangerous employment, and such violation contributes to his injury, he cannot recover. Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark (Cliv. App.) 136 S. W. 322.

98. Compliance with commands or threats.—Where a fuel oil equipment company was obligated to be used as a certain oil tank at the defendant cotton company, in which work plaintiff was injured while under the direction of plaintiff's foreman, who ordered plaintiff to assist in the work, plaintiff was entitled to assume that in so doing he was working for defendant, and that his foreman had authority to have the work done and to order plaintiff to assist therein. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons, 87 S. W. 842, 39 C. A. 189.

Where a servant was killed while attempting to release an elevator pursuant to the directions of the vice principal, the doctrine that the master was not liable if the injuries were sustained by the use of the elevator in a manner different from that in which it was intended to be used did not apply. Hugo, Schmelzer & Co. v. Palz (Cliv. App.) 128 S. W. 912.

99. Acts in emergencies.—An act of defendant's superintendent in calling a warning, and in an excited manner to prevent an injury, which caused plaintiff to jump from a railroad car and sustain the injuries complained of, was not an act of negligence on the part of the superintendent, but might be considered with other circumstances in determining whether plaintiff was warranted in jumping from the car. Mounce v. Lodwick Lumber Co. (Cliv. App.) 91 S. W. 240.

Where, in suit for injuries to a servant while at work on the double-board of a derrick, it appeared that, because the board slanted and was slick from oil and water, he was in the act of falling, that to save himself he caught at the traveling block while in motion, and his hand caught between the cable and sheaves and was drawn into the block and injured, there was nothing to show he put his hand in the traveling block without exercise of ordinary care, for under the circumstances he was incapable of exercising any care save that arising from instinct of self-preservation. Producer's Oil Co. v. Bass (Cliv. App.) 129 S. W. 1028.

In a servant's action for injuries in endeavoring to save a fellow servant's life, it must appear that such fellow servant was in a perilous position through the master's negligence. Jos. & Simon Lins Realty Co. v. McDonald (Cliv. App.) 133 S. W. 535.

In a railroad company, was not guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to escape by way of a window, and falling from the window to the ground below in an effort to escape from scalding steam and acid vapor which was being emitted from a wood pulp digester owing to a defective gasket. Yellow Pine Paper Mill Co. v. Wright (Cliv. App.) 154 S. W. 1165.

100. Proximate cause of injury.—Where a person negligently ordered to pass a rope under electric wires is injured by accidentally or negligently coming in contact with the wires, the act of the person injured, and not the negligence in giving the order, is the proximate cause of injury. Newnem v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Cliv. App.) 47 S. W. 666.

Where a servant, in the performance of his duties, attempts to mend a certain belt in close proximity to a certain machine for the reason that there is not sufficient light at any other place, but with full knowledge of the position, operation, and dangerous character of the machinery, and is injured thereby, the failure of the master to furnish sufficient light is not the proximate cause of the injury. Hilljje v. Hetlich, 67 S. W. 90, 96 T. 321, reversing (Cliv. App.) 65 S. W. 491.

The negligent raising of the lever of a machine by the employed, bringing the carriage forward and injuring him, prevents his recovery of the employer, notwithstanding the absence of a spring from the lever, where in any condition of the machine the effect of raising the lever was to bring the carriage forward, and the lever was raised by hand even if the machine was supplied with the spring to hold the lever down. Anderson v. Jefferson Cotton Oil & Refining Co., 74 S. W. 342, 32 C. A. 288.

101. Injury avoidable by care of master.—It was not error to charge that if defendant by its agents could, by ordinary care, have avoided the consequences of the negligence of the person injured, or if by direct act of its agents caused the act which produced the injury, it would have been avoidable. Hoo v. Brown, 51 S. W. 239.

A servant employed in a cotton gin was using a passway, going from one portion of the works to another, when he was struck by a bale of cotton thrown by another servant, according to custom, from the second story of the building. In an action for the injuries there was evidence showing that, while plaintiff knew that it was dangerous to use the passway, the danger did not exist if the servant who was charged with the duty of throwing the bale was experienced, or had been instructed to give the proper warning before discharging the bale, that no warning was given at the time of the accident, and that plaintiff did not know of the incompetency of the servant who threw the bale. Held, that defendant's motion for a new trial on the ground that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence was properly overruled. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Jonts, 80 S. W. 847, 36 C. A. 18.

Where plaintiff selected the pilot of defendant's logging engine on which to ride to the place where he was to continue his work, and just prior to his being thrown therefrom he was preparing to alight, while the train was in motion, in accordance with the order of his foreman, the fact that he was in plain view of defendant's engineer at the time, and that the latter made no effort to stop the train, was insufficient to raise the issue of discovered peril. Burns v. Chronister Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 103.

Art. 5246hh. Inapplicable to certain classes of employees.—The provisions of this Act shall not apply to actions to recover damages for the personal injuries or for death resulting from personal injuries sustained by domestic servants, farm laborers, nor to the employees of any person, firm or corporation operating any railway as a common carrier, nor to laborers engaged in working for a cotton gin, nor to employees of any person, firm or corporation having in his or their employ not more than five employees. [Acts 1913, p. 429, sec. 2.]

Art. 5246i. No right of action against subscribing employer; compensation from Texas Employees Insurance Association; exemptions.—The employees of a subscriber shall have no right of action against their employer for damages for personal injuries, and the representatives and beneficiaries of deceased employees shall have no right of action against such subscribing employers for damages for injuries resulting in death, but such employees and their representatives and beneficiaries shall look for compensation solely to the Texas Employees Insurance Association as the same is hereinafter provided for; provided, that all compensation allowed under the succeeding sections herein, shall be exempt from garnishment, attachment and all other suits or claims, as are current wages now exempted by law. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5246ii. Employees, etc., of nonsubscribing employer may sue; may not participate in benefits of association.—Employees whose employers are not at the time of injury subscribers to said association and the representatives and beneficiaries of deceased employees who at the time of injury were working for nonsubscribing employers cannot participate in the benefits of said insurance association, but they shall be entitled to bring suits, and may recover judgment against such employers, or any of them, for all damages sustained by reason of any personal injury received in the course of employment, or by reason of death resulting from such injury, and the provisions of section 1 [Art. 5246h] of this Act shall be applied in all such actions. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5246j. Recovery of exemplary damages in certain cases not excluded.—Nothing in this Act shall be taken or held to prohibit the recovery of exemplary damages by the surviving husband, wife and heirs, or such of them as there may be, of any deceased employee, whose death is occasioned by homicide, through the wilful act or omission or gross negligence of any person, firm or corporation, the employer of such employee at the time of the injury causing the death of the latter, and in all cases where exemplary damages are sought under this section, in case the injured party has already been awarded actual damages by the board herein provided, said fact and said amount so received shall be made known to the court or jury trying said cause for exemplary damages; and on the issue for exemplary damages he shall have the same defenses as under the existing law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5246jj. No compensation for incapacity not extending beyond one week.—No compensation shall be paid under this Act for an injury which does not incapacitate the employee for a period of at least one week from earning full wages, but if incapacity extends beyond one week, compensation shall begin on the eighth day after injury. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5246k. Aid during first week; notice of injury.—During the first week of the injury the association shall furnish reasonable medical aid, hospital services, and medicines when needed, and if it does not furnish these immediately as and when needed, it shall repay all sums reasonably paid or incurred for same, provided, reasonable notice of injury shall be given to the said association, and this provision requiring notice shall apply to all subsequent sections of this Act providing for compensation. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5246kk. Compensation where death results; how distributed. —If death should result from the injury, the association hereinafter created, shall pay to the legal beneficiary of the deceased employee a weekly payment equal to 60 per cent. of his average weekly wages, but not more than $15.00 nor less than $5.00 a week, for a period of three hundred and sixty weeks from the date of injury; provided, that the compensation herein provided for shall be distributed according to the law providing for the distribution of other property of deceased. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5246l. Where deceased employee leaves no beneficiaries or creditors; where only creditors, etc.—If the deceased employee leaves no legal beneficiaries, or creditors the association shall pay all expenses incident to his last sickness, and in addition a funeral benefit not to exceed one hundred dollars; provided, where the deceased leaves no beneficiaries as provided herein, but leaves creditors, the association shall be liable to such creditors for an amount not exceeding the amount that would otherwise have been due beneficiaries, which amount paid shall not exceed amount due such creditor or creditors. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 5246l. Compensation while incapacity is total.—While the incapacity for work resulting from the injury is total, the association shall pay the injured employee a compensation equal to 60 per cent. of his average weekly wages but not more than fifteen dollars, nor less than $5.00 a week, and in no case shall the period covered by such compensation be greater than four hundred weeks. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 5246m. Compensation while incapacity is partial.—While the incapacity for work resulting from the injury is partial, the association shall pay the injured employee a weekly compensation equal to 60 per cent. of the difference between his average weekly wages before the injury and the average weekly wages he is able to earn thereafter, but in no case to be more than $15 a week; and the period covered by such compensation to be in no case greater than three hundred weeks. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 5246mm. Compensation for specified injuries.—In case of the following specified injuries the amounts hereinafter named shall be paid by the association in addition to all other compensation; (a) For the loss by severance of both hands at or above the wrists, or of both feet at or above the ankle, or the loss of one hand and one foot, or the reduction to one-tenth of the normal vision in both eyes, 60 per cent. of the average weekly wages of the injured employee, but not more than fifteen dollars nor less than five dollars a week for a period of one hundred weeks. (b) For the loss by severance of either hand at or above the wrist, or either foot above the ankle, or the reduction to one-tenth of normal vision in either eye, 60 per cent. of the average weekly wages of the injured employee, but not more than $15 nor less than $5 a week, for a period of fifty weeks. (c) For the loss by severance at or above the second joint of two or more fingers, including thumbs and toes, 60 per cent. of the average weekly wages of the injured employee, but not more than $15.00 nor less than $5.00 a week, for a period of twenty-five weeks. (d) For the loss by severance of at least one joint of a finger,
Art. 5246n. Guardian of mentally incompetent or minor employé may act.—If an injured employé is mentally incompetent or is a minor at the time when any rights or privileges accrue to him, under this Act, his guardian or next friend may in his behalf claim and exercise such rights and privileges. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 5246nn. No waiver of rights.—No agreement by an employé to waive his rights to compensation under this Act shall be valid. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 5246nnn. Lump sum for death or total permanent disability.—In cases where death or total permanent disability results from an injury, the liability of the association may be redeemed by payment of a lump sum by agreement of the parties thereto, subject to the approval of the "Industrial Accident Board" hereinafter created. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 5246o. Cause of action for death survives, when.—In all cases of injury resulting in death, where such injury was received in the course of employment, cause of action shall survive. [Id. sec. 16.]

PART II
INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENT BOARD

Art. 5246oo. Industrial accident board created; how constituted and appointed; term of members.—There shall be an "Industrial Accident Board" consisting of three members, and the same is hereby created, to be appointed by the governor, one of whom shall be designated as chairman, and the term of office shall be two years for members of the board. [Acts 1913, p. 432, sec. 1.]

Art. 5246ooo. Qualifications of members; legal advisor.—One member of the industrial accident board shall be at the time of its appointment, an employer of labor in some industry or business covered by this Act; one shall be at the time of his appointment a wage earner employed in some industry or business covered by this Act, and the third member shall be, at the time of his appointment a practicing attorney of recognized ability, said member to act in the capacity of legal advisor to the board in addition to his other duties as a member thereof. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5246p. Salaries and expenses; secretary; offices.—The salaries and expenses of the industrial accident board shall be paid by the state. The salary of the chairman shall be three thousand dollars a year, and the salaries of the other members of the board shall be two thousand and five hundred dollars a year each. The board may appoint a secretary at a salary of not more than two thousand dollars a year and may remove him at any time, furnishing him, upon demand with a statement of the cause of his removal. It shall also be allowed an annual sum not exceeding five thousand dollars a year, for clerical services, traveling and other necessary expenses. The board shall be provided suitable offices.
in the capitol or some other convenient building in the city of Austin, where its records shall be kept. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5246pp. Duties and powers of board; employé claiming to be injured shall be examined, etc.—The board may make rules not inconsistent with this Act, for carrying out and enforcing its provisions, and may require any employé claiming to have sustained injury, to submit himself for examination before such board or some one acting under its authority at some reasonable time and place within the state and as often as may be reasonably ordered by the board, to a physician or physicians authorized to practice under the laws of this state. If the employé requests, he shall be entitled to have a physician or physicians of his own selection present to participate in such examination. Refusal of the employé to submit to such examination shall deprive him of the right to compensation during the continuance of such refusal. When a right to compensation is thus suspended no compensation shall be payable in respect of the period of suspension. Process and procedure shall be as summary as may be under this Act. The board or any member thereof shall have power to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths, inquire into matters of fact, and to examine such parts of the books and records of the parties to a proceeding as relate to questions in dispute. All rulings or decisions of the board relating to disputed claims shall be based upon questions of fact, and in accord with the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5246ppp. Notice of injury.—No proceedings for compensation for injury under this Act, shall be maintained unless a notice of the injury shall have been given to the association or subscriber, as soon as practicable after the happening thereof, and unless the claim for compensation with respect to such injury shall have been made within six months after the occurrence of the same; or, in case of the death of the employé, or in the event of his physical or mental incapacity, within six months after death or the removal of such physical or mental incapacity. [Id. sec. 4a.]

Art. 5246q. Questions to be determined by board; party who does not consent may sue; suits, how brought and determined.—All questions arising under this Act, if not settled by agreement of the parties interested therein, shall, except as otherwise herein provided, be determined by the industrial accident board. Any interested party who is not willing, and does not consent to abide by the final ruling and decision of said board on any disputed claim may sue on such claim or may require suit to be brought thereon in some court of competent jurisdiction, and the board shall proceed no further toward the adjustment of such claim; provided, however, that whenever any such suit is brought, the rights and liabilities of the parties thereto shall be determined by the provisions of this Act, and the suit of the injured employé, or persons suing on account of the death of such employé, shall be against the association, if the employer of such injured or deceased employé is at the time of such injury or death a subscriber, as defined in this Act, in which case the recovery shall not exceed the maximum compensation allowed under the provisions of this Act, and the court shall determine the issues in such cause instead of said board. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5246qq. Compensation where independent contractor or sub-contractor is employed; indemnity.—If a subscriber enters into a contract, written or oral, with an independent contractor to do such subscriber's work, or if a contractor enters into a contract with a sub-contractor to do all or any part of the work comprised in such contract with the subscriber, and the association would, if such work was executed by employés immediately employed by the subscriber, be liable to pay compensation under this Act to such employés, the association shall pay to such employés any compensation which would be payable to them under this Act if the independent or sub-contractors were subscribers. The associations shall, however, be entitled to recover indemnity from any other persons who would have been liable to such employés independently of this section, and if the association has paid compensation under the terms of this section, it may enforce in the name of the employés, or in its own name and for its own benefit the liability of such other persons. This section shall not apply to independent or sub-contractors on any contract which is merely auxiliary and incidental to, and is no part of or process in, the trade or business carried on by the subscriber. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5246qqq. Employer to keep record of injuries; to make reports; penalty for failure.—Every employer shall hereafter keep a record of all injuries, fatal or otherwise, received by his employés in the course of their employment. Within eight days after the occurrence of an accident resulting in a personal injury to an employé, a report thereof shall be made in writing to the industrial accident board on blanks to be procured from the board for that purpose. Upon the termination of the disability of the injured employé, or if such disability extends beyond a period of sixty days, the employer shall make a supplemental report upon blanks to be procured for that purpose. The said report shall contain the name and nature of the the business of the employer, the location of the establishment, the name, age, sex and occupation of the injured employé, and shall state the date and hour of the accident, and the nature and cause of injury, and such other information as the board may require. Any employer failing or refusing to make any such report within the time herein provided, or failing or refusing to give to said board any information demanded by said board relating to any injury to an employé which information is in the possession of, or could have been ascertained by the employer by the use of reasonable diligence shall be liable for and shall pay to the state of Texas a penalty of not more than one thousand ($1000) dollars for each and every offense, the same to be recovered in a suit to be instituted and prosecuted by the attorney general, or under his direction, either in the district court of Travis county, or in the county in which any defendant resides at the option of the said attorney general. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5246rrr. To exercise powers of subscribers until their first meeting.—Until the first meeting of the subscribers, the board of directors shall have and exercise all of the powers of the subscribers, and may adopt by-laws not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, which shall be in effect until amended or repealed by the subscribers. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5246s. Officers.—The board of directors shall annually choose by ballot a president who shall be a member of the board, a secretary, a treasurer and such other officers as the by-laws may provide. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5246ss. Quorum; vacancies.—Seven or more of the directors shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Vacancies in any office may be filled in such manner as the by-laws may provide. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5246sss. Who may be subscriber.—Any employer of labor in the state may become a subscriber excepting as provided in part I, section 2 of this Act [Art. 5246hh]. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5246t. First meeting; notice.—The board of directors shall, within thirty days of the subscription of twenty-five employers call the first meeting of the subscribers by a notice in writing, mailed to each subscriber at his residence or place of business not less than ten days before the date fixed for the meeting. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5246tt. Subscriber to have how many votes.—In any meeting of the subscribers each subscriber shall have one vote, and if a subscriber has five hundred employees to whom the association is bound to pay compensation, he shall be entitled to two votes, and he shall be entitled to one additional vote for each additional five hundred employees to whom the association is bound to pay compensation, but no subscriber shall cast, by his own right, or by right of proxy, more than ten votes. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5246ttt. No policy shall be issued until, etc.—No policy shall be issued by the association until not less than fifty employers have subscribed, who have not less than two thousand employers [employés] to whom the association may be bound to pay compensation. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 5246u. Same subject.—No policy shall be issued by the association until a list of the subscribers, with the number of employees of each; together with such other information as the commissioner of banking and insurance may require, shall have been filed with the department of banking and insurance, nor until the president and secretary of the association shall have certified under oath that every subscription on the list so filed is genuine and made with an agreement with every subscriber that he will take the policies so subscribed for by him within thirty days of the granting of a license to the association by the commissioner of banking and insurance to issue policies. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 5246uu. No further policies shall be issued, when.—If the number of subscribers falls below fifty, or the number of employés to whom the association may be bound to pay compensation falls below two thousand, no further policies shall be issued until other employers have subscribed, who, together, with existing subscribers, amount to not less than fifty, who have not less than two thousand employees to whom the association may be bound to pay compensation said subscriptions to be subject to the provisions of the preceding section. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 5246uuu. License to issue policies, when to be granted.—Upon the filing of the certificates provided for in the two preceding sections the commissioner of banking and insurance shall make such investigations as he may deem proper and if his findings warrant it, grant a license to the association to issue policies. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 5246vv. Groups of subscribers; premiums.—The board of directors shall distribute the subscribers into groups in accordance with the nature of the business and the degree of hazard incident thereto. Subscribers within each group shall annually pay in cash such premiums as may be required to pay the compensation herein provided for the inquiries [injuries] which may occur in that year. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 5246v. May fix mutual contingent liability.—The association may in its by-laws and policies fix the mutual contingent liability of the subscribers for the payment of losses and expenses not provided for by its cash fund, but such contingent liability of a subscriber shall not be less than an amount equal to and in addition to the cash premium. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 5246vvv. Assessments shall be made, when.—If the association is not possessed of cash funds above its insured premiums sufficient for the payment of incurred losses and expenses, it shall make an assessment for the amount needed to pay such losses and expenses upon the subscribers liable to assessment therefor in proportion to their several liability. Every subscriber shall pay his proportional part of any assessment which may be levied by the association, in accordance with the laws and his contract, on account of injuries sustained and expenses incurred while he is a subscriber. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 5246w. Dividends; premium assessments and dividends for groups; what funds, etc., available for claims.—The board of directors may, from time to time, by vote fix the amount to be paid as dividends upon the policies expiring during each year after retaining sums sufficient to pay all compensation which may be payable on account of injuries sustained and expenses incurred. All premiums assessments and dividends shall be fixed by and for groups as heretofore provided in accordance with the experience of such group, but all the funds of the association and the contingent liability of all of the subscribers shall be available for the payment of any approved claim for compensation against the association. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 5246ww. Premiums, etc., shall be filed with commissioner of banking and insurance; approval.—Any proposed premium, assessment, dividend or distribution of subscribers shall be filed with the commissioner of banking and insurance and shall not take effect until approved by him after such investigation as he may deem proper and necessary. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 5246www. Rules for prevention of injuries; review.—The board of directors shall make and enforce reasonable rules for the prevention of injuries on the premises of subscribers, and for this purpose the inspector of the association shall have free access to all such premises during regular working hours. Any subscriber aggrieved by such rule or regulation may petition the industrial accident board for a review, and it may affirm, amend or annul the rule or regulation. [Id. sec. 18.]
Art. 5246x. Subscribers shall notify employé, etc.—Every subscriber shall, as soon as he secures a policy give notice, in writing or print, to all persons under contract of hire with him that he has provided for payment of compensation for injuries with the association. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 5246xx. Same subject; notice on ceasing to be subscriber; shall file copy of notice.—Every subscriber shall, after receiving a policy, give notice in writing or print, to all persons with whom he is about to enter into a contract of hire, that he has provided for payment of compensation for injuries by the association. If any employer ceases to be a subscriber, he shall, on or before the day on which his policy expires, give notice to that effect in writing or print to all persons under contract of hire with him. In case of the renewal of his policy no notice shall be required under this Act. He shall file a copy of said notice with the industrial accident board. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 5246xxx. Association shall pay subscriber amount of judgment, when.—If a subscriber, who has complied with all the rules, regulations and demands of the association, is required by any judgment of a court of law to pay any employé any damages on account of any personal injury sustained by such employé during the period of subscription, the association shall pay to the subscriber the full amount of the judgment and the cost assessed therewith, if the subscriber shall have given the association notice of the bringing of the action upon which the judgment was recovered, and an opportunity to appear and defend same. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 5246y. Corporate powers shall not expire, etc.—The corporate powers of the association shall not expire because of failure to issue policies or make insurance. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 5246yy. Directors may incur certain expenses; how paid.—The board of directors appointed by the governor under the provisions of part III, section 2 of this Act, [Art. 5246rr] may incur such expenses in the performance of its duties as may be approved by the governor; such expenses shall be paid by the state out of any funds not otherwise appropriated, not to exceed five thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 23.]

PART IV
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 5246yyy. Terms defined.
5246yyyy. Certain insurance companies may insure liability; provisions applicable, etc.
5246z. Subscriber ceasing to be employé; refund of premium.

Art. 5246zz. Partial invalidity not to affect other provisions, etc.
5246zzz. Laws repealed.
5246zzzz. When to take effect.

Article 5246yyy. Terms defined.—The following words and phrases, as used in this Act, shall, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, have the following meaning: “Employer,” shall include the legal representatives of any original employer. “Employee” shall include every person in the service of another under any contract of hire, expressed or implied, oral or written, except one whose employment is but casual, or is not in the usual course of the trade, business, profession or occupation of the employer. Any reference to any employee who has been injured shall when the employee is dead, also include the legal beneficiaries of such employee to whom compensation may be payable. “Average weekly wages” shall mean the earnings of the injured employee during the period of twelve calendar months immediately preceding the date of injury divided by fifty-two; but if the injured employee lost more than two weeks during such period, then the earnings for the remainder of the twelve calendar months shall be divided by the number of weeks remaining after time last [lost] has been deducted. When, by reason of the shortness of the time of the employment of the employee, it is impracticable to compute the average weekly wages as above defined, it shall be computed by the industrial accident board in any manner which may seem just and fair to both parties. “Association” shall mean the “Texas Employees [Employers'] Insurance Association,” or any other insurance company authorized under this Act to insure the payment of compensation to injured employees, or to be beneficiaries of deceased employees. “Subscriber” shall mean any employer who has become a member of the association by paying a year's premium in advance and received the receipt of the association therefor, provided, that the association holds a license issued by the commissioner of banking and insurance as provided for in part III, section 12 of this Act [Art. 5246uuu]. [Acts 1913, p. 436, sec. 1.]

Art. 5246yyyy. Certain insurance companies may insure liability; provisions applicable, etc.—Any insurance company, which term shall include mutual and reciprocal insurance companies lawfully transacting a liability or accident business within this state, shall have the same right to insure the liability to pay the compensation provided for by part one [Arts. 5246h–5246o] of this Act, and when such company issues a policy conditioned to pay such compensation the holder of such policy shall be regarded as a subscriber so far as applicable under this Act; and when such company insures such payment of compensation it shall be subject to the provisions of parts one, two and four [Arts. 5246h–5246qqq, 5246yyyy–5246zzz] and of sections 10 [Art. 5246u], 17 [Art. 5246www] and 21 [Art. 5246xxx] of part three of this Act, and shall file with the commissioner of banking and insurance its classification of premiums none of which shall take effect until the commissioner of banking and insurance has approved same as adequate to the risks to which they respectively apply and not greater than charged by the association, and such company may have and exercise all of the rights and powers conferred by this Act on the association created hereby but such rights and powers shall not be exercised by a mutual or reciprocal organization unless such organization has at least fifty subscribers, who have not less than two thousand employees. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5246zz. Subscriber ceasing to be employer; refund of premium.—Any subscriber who has paid his annual premium as provided in section I, part four of this Act [Art. 5246yyy], but who ceases to be an employer after three months and before the expiration of one year, may by satisfactory proof of such fact made to the industrial accident board as herein created be entitled to a refund of such portion of the annual premium so paid by him as the portion of the year in which he is not an employer bears to the whole year, provided that in no event shall more than three-fourths of the annual premium by any subscriber who claims the benefit of this refund, ever be refunded. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5246zzz. Partial invalidity not to affect other provisions, etc.—Should any part of this Act be, for any reason held to be invalid or inoperative, no other part or parts shall be affected thereby, and if any exception to or limitation upon any general provision herein contained shall be held to be unconstitutional or invalid or ineffective the general provision shall nevertheless stand effective and valid as if it had been enacted without exception or limitation. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5246zzzz. Laws repealed.—All laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5246zzzzz. When to take effect.—This Act shall take effect and be in force on and after the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirteen. [Id. sec. 6.]
CHAPTER ONE

AUTHORIZING GOVERNOR TO PURCHASE LANDS FOR STATE USE

Article 5247. Governor to purchase, when.—When any land shall be required by the state for the use of the state penitentiaries, or any other of the public institutions of the state, or for any other public use, the governor of the state is hereby authorized and empowered to purchase said land, or the right to the use thereof, for the purpose for which the same may be required. [Acts 1903, 1 S. S., p. 10, sec. 1.]

Art. 5248. Land may be condemned.—Should the governor in the exercise of the power conferred by the preceding article not be able to agree with the owners of any land which, or the use of which, may be needed for any public use as aforesaid, upon the compensation to be paid therefor, such land may be condemned for such public use in the name of the state of Texas as herein provided. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5249. Land, how condemned.—Whenever it may become necessary to condemn any land for any public use as hereinbefore provided, upon the direction of the governor, proceedings shall be instituted against the owner of said land, and of any interest therein, by the attorney general of the state, or under his direction, by the proper district or county attorney, who shall file with the county judge of the county in which said land, or a part thereof, may be situated, a statement showing the land sought to be condemned, and the purpose thereof, the names and places or residences of the owners of the same, or if not known, stating that fact. Upon the filing of the statement provided for in this article, it shall be the duty of said county judge, in term time or vacation, to appoint three disinterested freeholders of said county who are qualified voters therein, as special commissioners to assess the damages to accrue to the owner of said property by reason of such condemnation. Said special commissioners shall, in their proceedings, be governed and controlled by the laws in force in reference to the condemnation of right of way for railroad companies and the assessment of damages therefor; and the proceedings shall be in accordance with such law, the State of Texas occupying the position of the railroad company; and all laws in reference to the applications for the condemnation for right of way of railroad companies, including the measure of damages, the service of notice, actual or constructive, on the owners of said property, the right of appeal and the like not inconsistent with the other provisions of this chapter, shall apply to the application by the state and these proceedings. But it is expressly provided that in case of such condemnation of property, should the award of damages be deemed by the governor excessive, the same shall not be paid; but in such case the state shall pay the costs of such proceedings, and no further action shall be taken thereunder. [Id. sec. 3.]
Art. 5250. Costs.—Should the damages awarded be less than had been offered by the state to said property owner, the costs of such proceedings shall be taxed against said owner, and may be collected by execution as in other cases or paid by the state and deducted from the amount to be paid said owner upon such award. Should the amount awarded be greater than the amount offered by the state, such costs shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5251. Right of way for penitentiary railroad.—Should any land be purchased by the governor, or condemned as herein provided, for the purpose of obtaining right of way for any railroad or train road, to be built or extended and operated in connection with, or for the use of, any of the penitentiaries of this state, or any of the farms of this state, and used in connection with the state penitentiaries, the penitentiary board is hereby authorized and required to pay, out of any money authorized by law to be used for the support and maintenance of said penitentiaries, the damages and costs herein provided for in case of condemnation, or the price of said property if purchased by voluntary purchase by the governor as herein provided. [Id. sec. 5.]

[See notes of decisions relating to law of eminent domain in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 5252. May purchase for certain purposes.—The United States government may purchase, acquire, hold, own, occupy and possess such lands within the limits of the state of Texas as they shall deem expedient and may seek to occupy and hold as sites on which to erect and maintain light houses, forts, military stations, magazines, arsenals, dock yards, custom houses, postoffices, and all other needful public buildings and for the purpose of erecting and constructing dams, locks and dams, for the straightening of streams by making cutoffs, building levees, or for the erection of any other structures or improvements that may become necessary in developing or improving the waterways, rivers and harbors of Texas; and the consent of the legislature of the state of Texas is hereby expressly given to any such purchase or acquisition made in accordance with the provisions of this law. [Acts 1905, p. 101, sec. 1.]

Art. 5253. May institute condemnation proceedings.—All purchases or acquisitions of land by the United States government for any of the purposes mentioned in the preceding article shall be effected by the proper agent of the United States government with the owners thereof, or by any judicial proceedings as hereinafter prescribed; that is to say, whenever the owners of the land desired by the United States government can not agree with the United States authorities thereto authorized upon the price thereto, then the said United States government is authorized, under the direction of the proper law officer to institute proceedings against the owner of said land, or the owners of any interest therein in the county court of the county in which the land may be situated, and in the same manner as is provided for the condemnation for right of way for railroads, except as hereinafter indicated. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5254. Statement to be made in writing.—If the said government of the United States and said owner can not agree upon the value of said land, or the damages thereto, caused by the erection or construction of the improvement required, it shall be the duty of the United States officer having the matter in hand and authorized thereto by the United States government, to state in writing the real estate and property condemned, the object for which it is to be condemned, the name of the owner thereof and his residence, if known, and file same with the county judge of the county in which said property, or a part thereof, is situated; provided, if the owner resides in either county in which the land is situated, the same shall be filed in the county of his residence. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5255. Commissioners to be appointed.—Upon the filing of said statement, the county judge shall, either in term time or in vacation, appoint three disinterested freeholders of said county as commissioners to assess said damages, giving preference to those that may be agreed upon between the United States government and the owner of said property. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5256. Commissioners to be sworn.—The said commissioners shall be sworn by the county judge, or by any officer qualified to administer oaths, to assess said damages impartially and according to law. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5257. Hearing, when and how.—Said commissioners shall, without delay, appoint a time and place for the hearing of said parties; and the day appointed shall be the earliest day practicable, and the place, the nearest practicable place to the said property, or at the said county seat of the county in which the property is situated, or a part thereof. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5258. Notice to be given.—The commissioners shall issue a notice in writing to each of the parties, notifying them of the time and place selected for the hearing. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5259. Notice to be served.—Said notice shall be served upon said parties at least five days before the date of the hearing, exclusive of the day of service, and shall be served by the delivery of the copy of same to the party, his agent or attorney, and may be served by any person competent to testify. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 5260. Return of notice.—The party making such service shall return the original notice to said commissioners, or any one of them, on or before the day set for said hearing, with his statement thereon, showing how and when same was served. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 5261. In case of minor, lunatic, etc.—When the property in controversy is the property of a deceased person, or minor, or of a person of unsound mind, and such estate has a legal representative, or such minor, or person of unsound mind, has a guardian, the notice shall be served upon such a legal representative or guardian. But if said minor, or person of unsound mind, have no legal representative, then said commissioner shall appoint a guardian ad litem, as courts of record are authorized to do, to protect the interest of said minor, or person of unsound mind, and shall allow reasonable compensation therefor, which shall be allowed and taxed as part of the costs of the proceedings. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 5262. In case of non-resident.—When the property in controversy belongs to a non-resident of this state, or to an unknown person, or to persons whose residence is unknown, or who secrete themselves so that service cannot be had on them, then such notice may be served upon said owner by publication in the same manner as provided in article 1874 of the Revised Statutes of the state of Texas; provided, that said cause may be tried by said commission on any day not less than four weeks after the publication of said notice. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 5263. Hearing postponed, for what.—When the service of notice has been perfected, the commissioners shall at the time and place appointed or at any other time or place to which said hearing has been adjourned, proceed to hear said parties, but if upon the day set for the hearing, the serving of notice has not been perfected, the hearing shall be postponed from time to time until the service has been perfected. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 5264. Witnesses.—Said commissioners, for the purpose mentioned in this law, shall have the power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the giving of testimony and to administer oath and punish for contempt as fully as is provided by law for the district or county court. The rules for damages to be applied in these cases shall be the same as those prescribed for ascertaining the amount of damages in condemnation for right of way proceedings for railroads. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 5265. Compensation.—The compensation for the commissioners shall be the same as is prescribed by law for commissioners in performing similar services in condemnation of right of way for railroads. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 5266. Decision in writing.—When the said commissioners shall have assessed the damages, they shall reduce their decision to writing, stating therein the amount of damages due to the owner of such real estate, if any be found to be due, and shall date same, sign it, and file it with the county judge without delay. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 5267. Vacancies, how filled.—If said commissioners, or either of them, from any cause be unable or fail to act as such, the county judge shall appoint another commissioner or commissioners to fill the place or places left vacant by those who are unable or fail to act. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 5268. Commissioners may adjudge cost.—The commissioners may adjudge the cost against either party, and shall in their finding state against whom it is adjudged and the amount thereof, and file same with their award with the county judge. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 5269. Tried in county court, when.—If either party be dissatisfied with the decision of such commissioners, he may, within ten days after the same has been filed with the county judge, file his opposition thereto in writing, setting forth the particular cause or causes of his opposition, and thereupon the case shall be set down on the county court docket for trial as other civil cases. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 5270. County judge to enforce decree, etc.—If no objections are filed to such decision within the time prescribed in preceding article, the said judge shall have same entered on the record and shall make necessary provisions to enforce the same. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 5271. United States to deposit money, etc.—Upon the filing of the award of the commissioners with the county judge, stating the amount of damages and costs which the United States government shall pay before taking possession of the property, if the United States government shall deposit the amount of the award of the commissioners, together with all costs adjudged against the said United States, they may proceed immediately to the occupancy of the said land and to the construction of their said improvements without awaiting the decision of the county court. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 5272. United States liable for costs, when.—If, after the filing of the objections to the award, the case shall be retried in the county court and a judgment rendered against the United States for a larger sum than that found in the award of the commissioners, then the said United States government shall be responsible for the costs of said appeal, as well as for the amount adjudged against it in said county court. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 5273. [372] [331] Acquisition of public land by United States.—When the state of Texas may be the owner of any land desired by the United States for any of the purposes specified in this title, the governor may sell such land to the United States, and upon payment of the purchase money therefor into the treasury of the state, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office, upon the order of the governor, to issue a patent to the United States for such land in like manner as other patents are issued. [Act Feb. 13, 1854, p. 102. P. D. 5450.]

Art. 5274. [373] [332] Title to United States to be recorded.—All deeds of conveyances, decrees, patents, or other instruments vesting title in lands lying within this state in the United States, shall be recorded in the land records of the county in which such lands, or a part thereof, may be situate, or in the county to which such county may be attached for such purpose; and until filed for record in the proper county they shall not take effect as to subsequent purchasers in good faith, for a valuable consideration, and without notice. [Act April 4, 1871, p. 19. P. D. 7693, 4th ed., 7810.]

Art. 5275. [374] [333] Governor may cede jurisdiction.—Whenever the United States shall acquire any lands in this state, for any of the purposes and in either of the modes authorized by this title, and shall desire to acquire constitutional jurisdiction over such lands for said purposes, it shall be lawful for the governor of this state, in the name and behalf of the state, to cede to the United States exclusive jurisdiction over any lands so acquired, when application may be made to him for that purpose, which application shall be in writing and accompanied with the proper evidence of such acquisition, duly authenticated and recorded, containing, or having annexed thereto, an accurate description by metes and bounds of the lands sought to be ceded. [Act Dec. 19, 1849, p. 12. P. D. 5449.]

Art. 5276. [375] [334] State to retain concurrent jurisdiction.—No such cession of jurisdiction shall ever be made, except upon the express condition that the state of Texas shall retain concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over the lands so ceded, and every portion thereof, so far, that all process, civil or criminal, issuing under the authority of this state, or any of the courts or judicial officers thereof, may be executed by the proper officers of this state, upon any person amenable to the same, within the limits of the land so ceded, in like manner and with like effect as if no such cession had taken place; and such condition shall be always inserted in any instrument of cession under the provisions of this title. [Id.]

Art. 5277. [376] [335] U. S. lands to be exempt from taxation.—The United States shall be secure in their possession and enjoyment of all lands acquired under the provisions of this title; and such lands and all improvements thereon shall be exempt from any taxation under the authority of this state so long as the same are held, owned, used and occupied by the United States for the purposes expressed in this title, and not otherwise. [Act April 4, 1871, p. 19. Id.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO LAW OF EMINENT DOMAIN IN GENERAL

Eminent domain defined. City of Austin v. Nalle, 102 T. 556, 120 S. W. 988.

The right of eminent domain is inherent in the Legislature and is impliedly reserved in all dedications and grants. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

Eminent domain is the right or power of a sovereign state to appropriate private property for the promotion of the general welfare. The power is an attribute of government and is inherent in it, and embraces all cases where the property of the individual is taken without his consent by such sovereign power. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

The power of eminent domain is the right of the sovereign to take private property for public uses. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 388.

2. Distinction from other powers.—Limitation on power of eminent domain, requiring adequate compensation, held not to restrict the proper employment of the police power. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. City of Dallas, 98 T. 396, 54 S. W. 648, 70 L. R. A. 656.

Police regulations do not constitute a taking under the right of eminent domain. Hatcher v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 914.

3. Constitutional provisions.—The purpose of the constitutional provision prohibiting the damaging or destroying of private property for a public use without compensation was to place public, or quasi public, corporations upon the same basis with private persons as to liability for such injuries. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 53 C. A. 576, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

4. Delegation of power.—The right of eminent domain conferred by law on an individual or a corporation can be exercised only by the strictest adherence to the terms of the grant. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1064.

Grants of power of eminent domain are strictly construed, and methods set forth in the statute granting the power must be strictly followed. Beltzer v. Medina Valley Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 380.

The delegated power of eminent domain can only be expressly conferred by statute, and such statutes are construed strictly in favor of the owner of the condemned property. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 388.

The right to take private property for a public use may only be exercised under the protection of a legislative grant and under the conditions attached thereto. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 925.

Property subject to condemnation.—The right of eminent domain does not exist as to public land. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 138 S. W. 575.

7. Sufficiency of provision for compensation.—Under the constitution, a city held not entitled to collect an assessment for benefits resulting from a street improvement without showing that adequate compensation will be made for the assessment, by showing that the improvement will be put in within a reasonable time. City of Austin v. Nalle (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 128.

8. Taking or injuring property as ground of compensation.—In general.—A municipal corporation for lands taken for and damages caused by, the construction of a public improvement, though the contract under which the improvement was constructed was void. Harrison v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1064.

9. Nature of injury to property not taken.—Where a city permanently occupied land by turning it into a ditch over it, the owner was entitled to the value of the land so taken under Const. art. 1, § 17. Harrison v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 515.

To constitute a damaging of private property within the constitutional provision prohibiting the damaging of private property for public use without compensation, there must be an interference with its free use and enjoyment, resulting in some physical inconvenience, discomfort, or detriment. Helbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 576, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

A property owner is not bound to keep his premises attractive, or to refrain from making them unattractive or offensive to the aesthetic sense of his neighbors, so long as his use thereof does not interfere with their use of their own property. Id.

Where damage to real property is permanent, so that the depreciation in its market value constitutes the measure of damages, recovery may be had for prospective as well as present injuries. Id.

Where injuries to a public highway were not permanent, but were capable of being remedied by the wrongdoer or others interested in the highway, abutting owners could not recover for prospective injuries to the property, based upon the depreciation in its market value. Id.

10. — Damages to abutting property from construction or maintenance of railroad.—See notes at end of Chapter 5 of Title 115.

11. Measure of compensation—In general.—An owner of land, part of which is condemned, is entitled to the market value of the portion taken and the depreciation in value of that not taken, thus entitling him to the value of that taken, even if the remainder is enhanced in value. Ft. Worth Improvement Dist. No. 1 of Tarrant County v. Weatherred (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 560.

12. — Deduction of benefits.—Special benefits to property injured by the construction of public works held available as an offset against any damages. Burton Lumber Corp. v. City of Houston, 45 C. A. 363, 101 S. W. 822.

An owner seeking damages for the maintenance of public work, not encroaching on the half of the street lying next to his property, held required to submit to a deduction for special benefits accruing from the works. Id.

13. Condemnation of land for particular purposes—For streets in cities and towns. —See Arts. 1003-1006, 1066, 1067, 1069.

14. By cities and towns for water supply, sewerage disposal or hospitals.—See Arts. 1003-1006.

15. By private corporations for waterworks in cities and towns.—See Arts. 1004, 1005.

16. By telegraph corporations.—See Art. 1232.

17. For union depot sites.—See Arts. 1247, 1248.

18. By macadam and plank road companies.—See Art. 1269.

20. Pipe lines for oil, gas, and salt companies.—See Art. 1306.

21. Right of way for gas and electric companies.—See Art. 1321.

22. Irrigation, mining, milling, waterworks and stockraising.—See Art. 5004.

23. By railroads for right of way and other purposes.—See Chapter 8 of Title 115.

24. For Interurban railroads.—See Arts. 6733, 6737.
TITLE 79
LANDS—PUBLIC
[See Final Title, §§ 4, 5, 9, 13, 15, and table of Land Laws in Appendix.]

Chapter 1
PUBLIC DOMAIN

Article 5278. Vacant public lands belong to free school fund.—All vacant public lands, not otherwise appropriated, except islands, lakes and bays within tidewater limits along the gulf of Mexico, are the property of the public free school fund. [Acts 1900, p. 29.]

Character of school lands.—When lands by legislation have been appropriated to the public school fund, the legislature cannot by subsequent legislation change their character as public school lands, and if by mistake of the land commissioner they were not charged to the school fund in the adjustment made by Act Feb. 23, 1906, and the school fund has not been compensated therefor, this does not affect their character as school lands. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 611.

Article 5279. [4036] All public lands retained at annexation.—In order that the provisions of law relating to the public domain may be brought together, the following extract is made from the joint resolutions of the congress of the United States for annexing Texas to the United States, approved March 1, 1845, and the joint resolution of the congress of the republic of Texas assenting to the same, approved June 23, 1845, viz.: “Said state, when admitted into the Union, * * * shall also retain all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits, to be applied to the payment of the debts and liabilities of said republic of Texas, and the residue of said lands, after discharging said debts and liabilities, to be disposed of as said state may direct,” etc. [Joint Res., June 23, 1845.]

See Appendix for tabulation and other representation of omitted or repealed land laws.

Quarantine station.—Land occupied by quarantine buildings erected by the state of Texas on the east end of Galveston Island held not land excepted from a prior grant by the republic of Texas, and therefore did not pass to the United States under the cession of public property on the admission of Texas into the Union. State v. Jadwin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 490.

1. Public domain.—The public domain consists of unappropriated lands, which are subject to the control of the state. Day Land & Cattle Co. v. State, 65 T. 526, 4 S. W. 866; State v. Delesdener, 7 T. 76; Sherwood v. Fleming, 35 T. Sup. 498; Teague v. Green, 26 S. W. 618, 7 C. A. 368.

Lands under a void grant issued November 20, 1835, after land offices were closed, held not " titled land," within the meaning of the constitution and statutes. Williams v. League (Cliv. App.) 44 S. W. 570.

2. Spanish and Mexican grants.—As to titles in Cameron, El Paso, Hidalgo, Kinney, Nueces, Presidio, Starr and Webb counties, see Sayles' Early Laws, arts. 2555, 3486.

In an action of trespass to try the defendant's title was a colonial grant for which he had received a testimonio properly executed. His title was not affected by the fact that the protocol was not signed by the commissioner. Titus v. Kimbro, 8 T. 216.

In 1831 a concession of land was made to Juan Jose Acosta. The surveyor in his report describes the land as having been surveyed for Juan Justo Llredo. The act of possession being dated September 30, 1834. It was held true possession. In the use of the last name was corrected by the context. Clay v. Holbert, 14 T. 189.

In an action of trespass to try title plaintiff claimed the land in controversy under a grant to M. in 1834, and a conveyance by M. to plaintiff in 1840, made in good faith and for a valuable consideration. The plaintiff admitted that he was a native of the United States, that he came to Texas in 1835 without his family, and after remaining three weeks returned to the United States, and had never been in Texas since as a citizen, and had never taken possession of the land. Held, that the issue of the grant precluded an inquiry into the merits and qualifications of the grantee, and that the title in the hands of a purchaser was not affected by the conduct of the grantee. Johnston v. Smith, 21 T. 722; Styles v. Gray, 10 T. 503; Hardiman v. Herbert, 11 T. 656; Hatch v. Dunn, 34 T. 620; Fonten v. Hicks, 22 T. 155; Luter v. Mayfield, 26 T. 355; Howard v. Colquhoun, 28 T. 134; Ruiz v. Chambers, 16 T. 656; Babb v. Carroll, 21 T. 767; Bradshaw v. Smith, 53 T. 474; Todd v. Fisher, 28 T. 243; Lindsay v. Jaffray, 56 T. 631; Palmer v. Curtner, 55 T. 67; Walters v. Jewett, 28 T. 201; McPhail v. Burns, 42 T. 146; Cawson v. Trevino, 35 T. 132.

The want of authority of the officer in extending a title prior to the revolution of 1836, which rendered it void, must be shown by the law, or that he attempted to exercise his authority beyond the territory over which he had jurisdiction, or something of like character, and not from proof of mere error of the officer in extending title to one not in fact legally entitled, but who he believed was entitled to receive it. Hunrick v. Jackson, 55 T. 17.

Conveyance by citizen of the state of Coahuila in 1834 of his right as a colonist to locate land held recognized by constitution of republic of Texas. Stone v. Crenshaw, 30 A. 234, 70 S. W. 562.

On the extension of final title to a Texas land grant, the fee held to have vested in an applicant's attorney in fact and not in the applicant. Surghenor v. Taliaferro (Cliv. App.) 95 S. W. 448.

Where, in 1824, the government of Coahuila and Texas granted four leagues of land for colonization purposes, and a town was established as the seat of municipal government of the colony, it was within the power of the congress of Texas to place the title in the town to the unsold portion of the grant for the use and benefit of its citizens. City of Victoria v. Victoria County, 100 T. 438, 101 S. W. 190.

Where a Spanish grant vested in the grantee, an estate in fee, persons claiming title as heirs of the grantee need not show that he never forfeited the land. Flores v. Hovel (Cliv. App.) 125 S. W. 965.

A Spanish grant held not void because of insufficient description of the land granted. Id.

A Spanish grant held to vest a perfect title in the grantee subject to conditions subsequent. Id.

3. Lands subject to colonization.—Under the general colonization act declaring that there cannot be colonized lands within 10 leagues of the coast of the gulf of Mexico, the interior line of the littoral leagues lying between given coast points is not determined by following the curvatures of the coast. A straight line between the two outer termini of the end lines may be drawn when the line is short and there is no great curvature of the coast; but, if otherwise, the rule is to meander the coast line, plat the surveys, and lay down a straight line between the two coast points; from a point of intersection with that line, run a perpendicular 10 leagues into the interior, and from the apex runs a line to either end of the boundary parallel to the base line. Hamilton v. Menifee, 11 T. 718.

4. Grant to United States—Accretion.—The grant by the republic of Texas to the United States of specific lands devoted to public defense held not to entitle the latter to lands subsequently attached by accretion to that part of Galveston Island previously used for defense. State v. Jadwin (Cliv. App.) 95 S. W. 490.

5. Grant of lands under water.—Soil under public navigable waters may be the subject of a grant by the sovereign. Baylor v. Tillicheb, 29 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 720.

6. Acquisition of the rights of municipalities.—The republic of Texas held to possess the power to designate the purposes for which the proceeds from the sales of public lands of a municipality might be appropriated. Board of School Trustees of City of San Antonio v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Cliv. App.) 177 S. W. 147.

When deeds from grantees to landholders from grants held executed by the mayor of Socorro held charged with notice of the power of the mayor to execute the deed. Skov v. Coffin (Cliv. App.) 177 S. W. 460.

7. Land certificates—Former law.—See Appendix for omitted or repealed land laws. A file of a certificate made before the reservation of the land by the state or other purposes is void if the survey was not made till afterwards; it being made within a year from the file. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State (Cliv. App.) 62 S. W. 114.
The issuance of a certificate to those designated therein as heirs of the party entitled is conclusive of their right to it on a collateral inquiry, whether the decision of the board was right or not. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 486; Fleming v. Giboney, 81 T. 422, 17 S. W. 13.

One who for a period of thirty-seven years sleeps upon his claim to an interest in a land which is openly asserted and who, during all that period, makes no effort to repel the assertion of the adverse claim, is estopped from asserting his rights by reason of his laches. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

A land certificate issued without authority, defective in terms, rejected by the court of claims, not recommended by the land board, and not established by suit, is void. White v. Martin, 68 T. 540, 17 S. W. 727.

Land certificates held to be property, so that title is governed by law of domicile. Ward v. Cameron, 97 T. 466, 80 S. W. 69.

Evidence held to sustain the finding that the original certificate under which the land was located was issued to plaintiffs' ancestor. Buster v. Warren, 55 C. A. 644, 85 S. W. 1063.

Facts held to show that an act of the legislature intended to confirm in one a right to a tract of land as the head of a family. Houston Oil Co. v. Gallup, 60 C. A. 369, 189 S. W. 7, 9.

A land certificate is the obligation of the government entitling the owner to secure the designated quantity of land by following the requirements of the law. Waterman v. Charlton, 105 T. 510, 130 S. W. 171.

The title to the land ordinarily depends on and follows the title to the certificate, and the ownership of the certificate constitutes title to land. Id.

The issuance of a patent upon location and survey made for owners of certificates vests in the patentee the absolute title to the land, except as against the state or some one having a prior legal or equitable right. Murphy v. Luttrell, 56 C. A. 149, 120 S. W. 905.

One locating land under a certificate held not a mere trespasser, but an owner of an interest in the land under a conditional certificate. Durren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 372.

Under Paschal's Dig. arts. 4302 and 4511 et seq., it was the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to notify himself that the original certificate was a valid one, before issuing an unlocated balance certificate, and it will be presumed that he discharged this duty; hence, where a survey was made in B. county in 1858, under which land was patented in 1847 and canceled in 1855, because in conflict with older valid claims, and not for any infirmity of the certificate, and another survey, made in B. county in 1847 by virtue of the certificate, was patented during that year, and the former certificate, after being canceled the patent issued on the survey made in 1858, again recognized the certificate as valid by issuing the unlocated balance certificate, the original certificate was prima facie valid. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1062.

The right of the holder of a land certificate to obtain title to land by location of the certificate descends to his heirs, but, until location, no title to any land is acquired. Black v. Hennessy (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1975.

Fact that a land certificate between defendant and his coheirs precluding him from successfully claiming an interest in land located by them. Robertson v. Brothers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 657.

Under Paschal's Dig. art. 4167, invalidating sales of land under conditional certificates, a conditional certificate passes no title, legal or equitable, to the purchaser. Sauvage v. Wauhop (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 259.

Where a special act, authorizing the issuance of a certificate to the original holder of an unconditional certificate, is a pure donation, conferring no rights upon the holder's assignees or assigns, both the legal and equitable owners of the special act certificate; and a patent thereunder vests them with the legal title. Broussard v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 347.

For laws and decisions relating to certificates for land under colony contracts of Peters, Castro, Fisher and Miller, German Emigration Company, and Mercer, see Early Laws of Texas, and Sayles' Real Estate Laws of Texas, vol. 1, arts. 164-194.

8. Headright certificates. A headright certificate was issued in 1838 to the father of plaintiff; the mother died in 1839; in 1851 the father transferred his interest in the certificate to J., and J. made a similar transfer to M.; in 1855 a duplicate certificate, the original having been lost, was issued in the name of the father, and in 1860 the land was patented to M., as his assignee. Up to the issuance of the patent the absence of the defendant from the state would prevent the running of the statute of limitations against him. After the issuance of the patent the statute was suspended and remained suspended until March 30, 1870. From 1874 to 1879 the county in which the land lay was not attached for judicial purposes to any organized county. Held that, under the facts of this case, the heirs of the mother were not estopped from asserting their community interest in the land. Merrill v. Roberts, 64 T. 441.

In 1839 L. with his wife and children emigrated to Texas; in the same year he died and he married again; on January 10, 1840, a conditional certificate for six hundred acres was issued to him; in the winter of the same year his wife, leaving surviving his last wife and the children of his first wife. In November, 1849, an unconditional certificate was issued to L. or his heirs, it not appearing which; in September, 1851, the land was surveyed under the certificate, and in 1874 patented to the heirs of L. Held, that the heirs were entitled to the land to the exclusion of the last wife. Marks v. Hill, 46 T. 345.

The authority to patent upon first-class headright claims is based upon the report of the traveling board that the certificate is genuine, or, if adverse, upon the certificate.
being established as genuine by suit; any other evidence is insufficient authority. Miller v. Bronson, 60 T. 583.

A certificate granted by the legislature in lieu of an unrecommended first-class headright certificate is a gratuity, and inures to the benefit of the grantee, and does not confer title upon an assignee of the unrecommended land certificate. McKinney v. Brown, 51 T. 94.

The action of a legally constituted board of land commissioners in 1838, deciding who were the heirs of a deceased party who had been entitled under the law to land, and issuing to them a headright certificate, is conclusive of their right to it in a collateral inquiry in like manner and on such certificate to those designated therein as heirs of the party entitled, is conclusive on the question of their heirship. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495, citing Styles v. Gray, 10 T. 506; Hardiman v. Herbert, 11 T. 601; Ruis v. Chambers, 15 T. 598; Babb v. Carroll, 21 T. 767; Bowman v. Hicks, 22 T. 155; Smith v. Smith, 28 T. 474; Todd v. Fisher, 28 T. 243; Lindsey v. Jackson, 55 T. 631; Howard v. Colquhoun, 23 T. 134; Walters v. Jewett, 28 T. 201; McPhail v. Burris, 42 T. 145; Palmer v. Cupturn, 55 T. 67; Hanclick v. Jackson, 55 T. 32.

Contract for location of headright certificate and deed held to vest a legal title. Stone v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1077.

Recitation in a certificate held conclusive that the grantee of bounty lands fell in the Alamo, and hence the heirs of a soldier by the same name, who survived, could not hold lands under such certificate. Dick v. Malone, 24 C. A. 97, 58 S. W. 168.

Location by one owner of certificate, or by others by the sale of the certificate, where they did not know of location. Kirby v. Estell, 24 C. A. 106, 68 S. W. 264.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover on the ground that the evidence was not sufficient to show that the headright certificate to the land under which defendant's unobtained title was issued to plaintiff's father, though the person to whom it was issued was of the same name. Stafford v. Kreinhop (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 166.

A headright certificate, which has not been examined by the traveling board of land commissioners, or which has not been established as genuine, and valid by a judgment of the district court, is void, and will not authorize a survey. Pope v. Anthony, 29 C. A. 298, 68 S. W. 521.

Plaintiffs of a board of land commissioners as to death of the grantee in a conditional headright certificate held not conclusive.uster v. Warren, 35 C. A. 644, 80 S. W. 1963.

Evidence held insufficient to show plaintiffs were the heirs of B., to whose administrator a headright certificate was issued. Buleenline v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 468.

Recital in a headright certificate issued by a board of land commissioners to one as administrator of B., that B. was killed at the Alamo held to require strong evidence to overcome it. Id.

5. Bounty land certificate.—The pay of soldiers under joint resolution of November 24, 1836, held not limited to money, but to include land grants for service, including the time between the soldier's leaving home and his mustering into the service. Halated v. Allen (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1068.

A bounty land certificate held a grant based on the consideration of the soldier's service. Id.

A certificate issued to the heirs of those who fell at the Alamo was a mere gratuity evidencing the gratitude of the republic for the soldier's sacrifice, the right to which vested in his estate, and was not subject to sale by the administrator for the payment of debts. Todd v. Masterson, 61 T. 616, citing Rogers v. Kennard, 54 T. 35; Ames v. Hubby, 49 T. 710. It is otherwise where a certificate was issued to the heir under a pre-existing contract or obligation in favor of the ancestor, Godden v. Haddon, 18 T. 100; Soye v. Kennard, 54 T. 30; Todd v. Masterson, 61 T. 616; Allen v. Clark, 21 T. 404; Hornsby v. Bacon, 20 T. 556; Warnell v. Finch, 15 T. 163; Marks v. Hill, 46 T. 345.

The survey and location of public land by virtue of a bounty warrant issued by the state is sufficient to sever the land from the public domain and vest title in the owner of the warrant for whom the location and survey were made. Stubbfield v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 406.

A certificate and patent to the heirs of a soldier of the war of Texas for her independence held a certificate and patent to those who were the heirs of such person at the time of his death. Waterman v. Charlton (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 779.

Effect of a statute, passed to relieve one entitled to a bounty warrant certificate barred by limitations, stated. Sherman v. Pickering, 56 C. A. 637, 121 S. W. 536.

Special act directing the issuance of a certificate for two tracts of land to the original owner of an unconditional headright certificate, passed at the instance of his assignee, to whose transfer the patent thereunder issued, held not a bounty or donation to the heirs of the original holder. Broussard v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 347.

10. — Confederate certificate.—Where a survey was located and patented to plaintiffs by virtue of a Confederate certificate, and the alternate survey for the school fund was not located contiguous thereto, held, that their location was illegal, and that they could not convey good title. Maurice v. Upton (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 594.

A certificate that the lands were located under "Confederate certificates" does not make title thereto invalid. Brackenridge v. Claridge, 91 T. 527, 44 S. W. 819, 43 L. R. A. 593.

The unauthorized act of the commissioner of the general land office in issuing patents for lands under veteran donation certificates which had previously been appropriated to the public school fund cannot operate as an estoppel against the state. Eul v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

12. Duplicate certificates.—A duplicate land certificate, issued in place of one lost by the commissioner of the land office, confers no greater right than the original. Kemper v. State, 31 C. A. 363, 72 S. W. 885.

Where a duplicate certificate in lieu of one lost could be obtained under existing laws, it was competent for the legislature, under the constitution of 1870, to direct the issuance of an original certificate in satisfaction of a pre-existing right which had once been evidenced by a certificate which had been lost. If such a certificate had been in existence, and the party entitled to such certificate was entitled to authorize the grant of a new certificate by the legislature under the constitution of 1870. Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481, citing constitution of 1870, art. 10, sec. 6; Bacon v. Russell, 57 T. 415.

As a duplicate certificate professes to confer no rights other than such as the original gave, if there be no original it confers no rights whatever. Following Gunter v. Meade, 78 T. 634, 14 S. W. 562. It seems also to have been held in that case that the fact of an original certificate having been used for one labor would not give such jurisdiction to the commissioner of the general land office as would render a duplicate for a like labor and labor issued thereon voidable only and not void. Land & Mortgage Co. v. State, 1 C. A. 616, 23 S. W. 258.

A duplicate certificate issued where there was no original or where the original has been satisfied is void. Gunter v. Meade, 78 T. 634, 14 S. W. 562; Texas Land & Mortgage Co. v. State, 1 C. A. 616, 23 S. W. 258.

A special act directing a certificate to issue in lieu of another one pronounced void is, ex officio, a statutory warranty. White v. Martin, 66 T. 540, 17 S. W. 253, 1883, validating surveys and patent by virtue of certificates issued under special laws passed under the constitution of 1870, cannot retract and make that, which was no title at all at the time another title accrued, superior to that other title. White v. Martin, 66 T. 540, 17 S. W. 727.

A mere irregularity in the issuance of a duplicate cannot avail a subsequent locator claiming the land under a different title. Seibert v. Richardson, 5 C. A. 504, 23 S. W. 899.

Validity of locations and surveys made under original certificates held not affected by mistake in having duplicate certificates issued and surveys made thereunder. Ey1 v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

Where the land commissioner issues a duplicate certificate, though in fact the original was not lost, the real owners, on establishing their ownership, could accept the duplicate, take possession thereof, and would in equity be entitled to recover the land. Jackson v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 928.

Issuance of unconditional land certificate and duplicate certificate upon loss of the unconditional certificate had not a judicial determination that the location under the original certificate had been abandoned. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Toler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1111.

13. Transfer of certificates.—A purchaser for value under a patentee is not chargeable with constructive notice of latent defects in the transfer of the certificate upon which the patent issued, when there is nothing upon the face of the patent which would put a prudent man on such inquiry as would lead to notice of such defects. Wimberly v. Fabst, 55 T. 587.

Conditional certificates issued to emigrants and settlers under the land law of 1837, and prior to the passage of the act of January, 1838, were transferable by the grantee. Graham v. Henry, 17 T. 164.

The prohibition of the grantees of conditional certificates to assign them was first introduced by the act of January 4, 1838, and was confined to claims acquired under that act. Graham v. Henry, 17 T. 164; Ferry v. Glass, 25 T. 368; Merriweather v. Kennard, 41 T. 273.

A transfer of a land certificate upon which was based the delivery of a patent to the land by the commissioners, when found in the land office, is an archive, and a certified copy thereof is admissible in evidence. Burket v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495.

A verbal sale of a land certificate conveys the vendor's right thereto. In 1838 the assent of the husband to a verbal sale by the wife of her interest in a certificate was not required to be in writing. After a lapse of nearly 40 years such assent was presumed, it being shown that the husband was aware of the sale. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

The transfer of a land certificate conveys only an equitable title; the conveyance of land after location gives such title that it will at once become a legal title if the patent is issued in the name of the original grantees. Satterwhite v. Ross, 61 T. 178; Adams v. House, 61 T. 640; Abernathy v. Stone, 81 T. 430, 16 S. W. 1102; Oulmell v. Borroum, 13 C. A. 458, 35 S. W. 942.

A land certificate after location loses its character as personal property and becomes a chattel real, title to which can no longer pass by parol. Hearne v. Gillett, 62 T. 32.

An unlocated land certificate is personal property and passes title by sale and delivery. The owner of a certificate may elect to treat adverse possession as a conversion, and, if he seeks to recover its value, must bring his action within two years from the accrual of such right to do so. But his failure to recover the land located by such certificate. Barker v. Swenson, 66 T. 407, 1 S. W. 117; Citing Andrews v. Smithwick, 20 T. 111; Smithwick v. Andrews, 24 T. 488; Andrews v. Smithwick, 24 T. 544. And see Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 625; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 530;
Land certificates are sold under execution or in course of an administration, the right to secure land under it passes to the purchaser, as under a voluntary sale. Barks v. Swenson, 66 T. 407, 1 S. W. 117.

A land certificate with a blank indorsement thereon prior to its location is, when unexplained, prima facie evidence of title in the holder. Fisher v. Ullman, 22 S. W. 523, 3 C. A. 222.

Assignment of certificate after patent conveys an equitable title. Hume v. Ware, 28 S. W. 935, 87 T. 380.

An unconditional certificate issued to an assignee is prima facie evidence of his title. Davis v. Bargas, 88 T. 662, 32 S. W. 674.

Evidence held insufficient to convey to the vendee all the right, title, and interest in a headright certificate held to pass all the grantor's interest, whether or not the certificate had been located. McCoy v. Pease, 17 C. A. 303, 42 S. W. 659.

Deed conveying certain land, reciting the number of certificates under which it was located prior to the location, held to convey only an equitable title. Flash v. Herndon (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 608.

Where one holding certificate conveyed an equitable title to the land located thereunder, and on receiving patent conveyed the land to another, the legal title was vested in such other. Id.

The legal title to land patented to assignor of certificate after assignment held to vest in assignee. Batcheller v. Besanson, 19 C. A. 137, 47 S. W. 296.

Evidence held insufficient to raise a presumption of the transfer of a land office certificate necessary to support plaintiff's title. Id.

A party claiming to be the assignee of a headright certificate for the land in controversy could not, by mere lapse of time, unaided by acts of ownership, be declared the owner, though no one had asserted a contrary title. Morgan v. Butler, 29 C. A. 470, 56 S. W. 689.

Evidence held to create presumption that the father of plaintiff had assigned a headright certificate to the land in controversy to defendant's predecessor, which would authorize a judgment for the defendant. Stafford v. Krehl (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 166.

A sale of a located headright certificate conveys the land itself. Odell v. Kennedy, 26 C. A. 439, 64 S. W. 802.

Evidence held insufficient to show land located under headright transferred to plaintiff's ancestor. Stone v. Crenshaw, 30 C. A. 394, 70 S. W. 582.

The files of a suit for a certificate for land held such that reasonable diligence would have shown one buying land, patent for which was issued on a certificate of the land to claimant, that there was a new trial in which judgment was against claimant. Kemper v. State, 31 C. A. 363, 72 S. W. 888.

Written contract held to show a sale of land certificates. Ward v. Cameron, 97 T. 466, 59 S. W. 65.

A husband's sale of wife's land certificates held a reduction to possession, so as to bar her right. Id.

Land certificates in name of wife held chosen in action to which husband only absolute title, in common-law state, by reducing to possession. Id.

Evidence held not sufficient to require a finding by the trial court that the holder of a headright certificate ratified an invalid contract to enter to the land and pay the expenses in consideration of the transfer of one-half the land, or accepted the benefit of the contract and verbally or by a deed which had been lost conveyed half of the land. Brook v. Payne (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 859.

The sale of a bounty warrant or certificate issued by the state for public lands prior to the location thereof held to pass title without a written transfer. Stubblefield v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 406.

The transfer of a bounty warrant passes to the transferee the equitable title to land subsequently entered under it. Clark v. Hoover, 51 C. A. 181, 110 S. W. 792.

An unlocated land certificate was personal property. Phillips v. Palmer, 56 C. A. 91, 120 S. W. 911.

Evidence held insufficient to show the conveyance of a certain headright certificate to the one under whom plaintiff claimed. White v. McCullough, 56 C. A. 383, 120 S. W. 1093.

A certain outstanding title to land held not to be asserted against a purchaser for value without notice thereof. Ingalls v. Orange Lumber Co., 56 C. A. 543, 122 S. W. 53.

Evidence held not sufficient to require a finding by the trial court that the holder of a headright certificate ratified an invalid contract to enter to the land and pay the expenses in consideration of the transfer of one-half the land, or accepted the benefit of the contract and verbally or by a deed which had been lost conveyed half of the land. Brook v. Payne (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 859.

Land certificates prior to their location are personal property which may be transferred as any other chattel. McLain v. Pate (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 718.

Under Pascha's Dig. arts. 5612, 5613, 5629-5631, 5635, 5638, 5771, relating to settlement of debts of personalty and the sale of which do not specifically require that an order of court be had for the sale of personalty, the transfer of a land certificate by an administratrix before her discharge is valid without an order of court, though made 18 years after letters were taken out. Id.

An unlocated land certificate is a chattel, title to which may pass by parol sale and delivery. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 375, 3491.
Evidence held not to show that a purchaser of headright certificates retransferred them. Mitchell v. Stanton (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1032.

The original holder of a headright certificate having assigned the same and then obtained a duplicate on an affidavit of loss of the original, no title passed to an assignee of the duplicate as against those holding under the original. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 703.

Where an original headright certificate was assigned, and thereafter the assignor obtained a duplicate under which land was located, the assignee of the original was entitled to claim such location. Id.

Where defendants had the legal and equitable title to land located under an assigned original headright certificate, the doctrine of stale demand did not apply to their claim thereto as against one holding under a duplicate certificate. Id.

Under Paschal's Dig. art. 4140, which authorized a board of land commissioners to issue a certificate of lands to one claiming as assignee of a person entitled, a certificate that a specified person, as assignee of another, proved himself, according to law, to be entitled to one league and one labor of land secured to the assignor or his assigns by the certificate is conclusive on the question of the assignee's rights as such, at least as against all persons other than his claimed assignee and those holding under the latter, in a proceeding to recover the land. Early v. Compton (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 694.

Rights acquired by an assignee under a headright certificate, by having the land located and surveyed and the field notes returned as required by law, held sufficient to support trespass to try title. Sabine Valley Timber & Lumber Co. v. Cagle (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 697.

Assignments of headright certificates by husband before his divorce from his wife held to pass title to the whole land to the assignee. Steddum v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 273.

A recital in a duplicate headright certificate that the original certificate had been lost, as shown by the oath of the certificate holder, was sufficient, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to sustain a finding that the certificate had not been assigned previous to that time. Id.

14. — Good faith in transfer.—A grant by the state to land to a transferee of a certificate for land held under a forged transfer held to be divested by the state or by the original holder of the certificate or his heirs on proof of the fraud and forgery. Blair v. Hennessy (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1076.

A purchaser from a patentee acquiring title under a forged transfer of a certificate for land held a bona fide purchaser. Id.

The remedy of one defrauded of the right to acquire title in consequence of a forgery of a certificate of land held only personal against the one committing the fraud. Id.

The purchaser of an unlocated land certificate, though in good faith, for value, and without notice, will not be protected against prior transfers thereof from his vendor, in the absence of facts raising an estoppel. Tompkins v. Creighton-McShane Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 306.

The mere fact that a transfer of an unlocated land certificate was not recorded held not to render a subsequent purchaser from the same holder a purchaser in good faith, and without notice. Id.

A headright certificate, before the location of land thereunder, is personal property within the rule that a purchaser can acquire no better title than his vendor has. Crosby v. Affleck (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 708.

15. Entries and locations under former law.—See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Defendant received from plaintiff $1,000 with which to buy land certificates, two-thirds of the land so located to belong to plaintiff and one-third to defendant. The defendant failed to locate the land certificates according to the terms of the contract, and, at the time of the defendant the acts of the breach of the contract, the money received by the defendant, with legal interest from the time he received it, is the measure of damages. Durst v. Swift, 11 T. 281; Sutton v. Page, 4 T. 147; Garrett v. Gaines, 6 T. 448; Hall v. York, 16 T. 28; Mitchell v. McLeomore, 9 T. 161; Murchison v. Payne, 37 T. 365; Eborn v. Zimpleman, 47 T. 565; 28 Am. Rep. 310; Close v. Fields, 13 T. 626; White v. Affleck, 1 U. C. 78.

A title to land is not divested by a mere declaration of abandonment. Railway Co. v. McGehee, 49 T. 499; Hanrick v. Cavanaugh, 60 T. 1; Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 75.

Trespass to try title can be maintained by one who has settled upon vacant land, upon which he filed as a pre-emptor, and procured, as such, a survey of the same. The claim of such a one constitutes an equitable though defeasible title, which, on compliance with the pre-emption law, would mature into a legal title. Buford v. Gray, 51 T. 331.

The right to land attaches at the date of the file and application and cannot be defeated by the refusal of the officer to accept the location. De Montel v. Speed, 53 T. 339; Hamilton v. Avery, 20 T. 612; Sherwood v. Fleming, 25 T. 408; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 155; Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 408; Groesbeck v. Harris, 52 T. 411, 19 S. W. 850.

A junior location will support a patent except as against a prior title. Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 408; Thompson v. Johnson, 2 U. C. 258.

A locator does not lose his right through the fault of the surveyor unless a subsequent locator is misled thereby. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 65 T. 186.

The equities of the locator of a land certificate, who locates without contract with the owner, do not extend to fixing a right in the land secured by the location, even to a lien upon it for his compensation. Grimes v. Smith, 70 T. 217, 8 S. W. 39; Boone v. Hulsey, 71 T. 176, 9 S. W. 531.

A location is not void on account of a mere irregularity. Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1102.
Prior or subsequent knowledge of a partial location of a certificate, or subsequent conflict, does not deprive the purchaser from claiming a subsequent location on the ground of exclusive benefit, where the first location was for the exclusive use of his vendor’s co-owner. Estell v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 8.

The owner of an undivided interest in a certificate may locate thereunder for his exclusive benefit, free from any interest of such certificate. Sproul v. T. M. Masterton, 55 S. 777, 110 S. W. 734.

Payments of fees at the land office held not to give a claim against the interest of minors in land, in the absence of a contract by a duly qualified guardian. Ellis v. Le Bow, 30 C. A. 449, 71 S. W. 576.

General laws authorizing locations or entries upon and surveys of public lands or public domain or vacant lands do not apply to lands that have previously been appropriated, reserved, or set aside. Roberts v. Terrell, 101 T. 577, 110 S. W. 733.

Parties claiming a forfeiture of a location of public lands, by virtue of Act Aug. 30, 1856 (4 Legis. Dig. art. 4210), it having been shown that the land was located under a valid certificate, should bring the case within its terms. Keith v. Guerry (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 392.

The rights of one locating land under a certificate and of those claiming under him held not open to the objection of a state demand. Duren v. Bottoms (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 376.

Taking land in satisfaction of an agreement to survey a larger tract in consideration of a third interest held to divest the owner of such tract and his heirs of any interest in the smaller. Addington v. Howard (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 268.

Location under an unconditional land certificate held to have exhausted the holder’s right to appropriate public lands, and location under an unconditional certificate subsequent to the issuance of such certificate, the duplicate unconditional certificate having been lost, was void. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Toler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1111.

The constitution of 1846, article 14, section 2, required that land certificates in existence as of adoption should be surveyed and returned to the general land office within five years after its adoption, or be forever barred.

Vacant public land.—The granting of a certificate to be located upon “vacant public land” contemplates vacant land subject to location; the phrase being generally used interchangeably with others to indicate lands subject to location or settlement. Roberts v. Terrell, 101 T. 577, 110 S. W. 734.

A certificate granted with the right of location upon any of the vacant public lands of the state within or without the several reservations theretofore created by law held only to be located upon lands subject to location of which islands are not a part. 101 T. 577, 110 S. W. 734.

The patent can be void only on a face contrary to the patent. The adverse claimant must show a superior equitable right to rebut such presumption. Johnson v. Eldridge, 49 T. 607.

The words “land titled,” used in section 2, article 14, of the constitution, embrace land covered by that evidence or right which the state gives through a patent, and are not restricted to those lands which are held under patent, which, in the absence of this section, would be deemed sufficient to confer title. If for reasons not appearing on the face of a patent the grant would be void or voidable, the land embraced in the calls of the patent would, for the purposes contemplated by the section, be deemed “land titled.” Truehart v. Babcock, 51 T. 169; Summers v. Davis, 49 T. 554; Westrope v. Chambers, 51 T. 188; Bryan v. Crump, 55 T. 10; Day Land & Cattle Co. v. State, 68 T. 526, 4 S. W. 865; De Court v. Sproul, 66 T. 385, 1 S. W. 357; Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 91; Woods v. Darret, 28 T. 438; Sherwood v. Fleming, 25 T. Sup. 427; and Patrick v. Nance, 26 T. 301, cited.

Under section 2, article 14, of the constitution, any location made on land which, before the adoption of that constitution, had been patented, is illegal, though the patent may have issued under the laws of the state authorized to convey title. Hanrick v. Dodd, 62 T. 91, and Miller v. Brownson, 50 T. 583. When an illegal location is made on “land titled,” the subsequent cancellation of the patent will not validate the location. O’Connor v. Johnson, 69 T. 571, 8 S. W. 519.

However irregular or illegal may have been the course of procedure which led to the issuance of a patent to land, the land covered by it is not subject to future location. Adams v. Railway Co., 70 T. 552, 7 S. W. 729.

Application.—The right of the owner of a land certificate to unappropriated land is fixed by the date of his file and application. De Montel v. Speed, 53 T. 329; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Groesbeck v. Harris, 82 T. 411, 19 S. W. 850.

The law does not require the application for entry to be made by the owner of the certificate. The possession of the certificate with ability to deliver the surveyor is sufficient to support the entry. The rightful owner alone can complain, and he may adopt the act and the ownership of the land remains in him. The surveyor may write out the application. Beatty v. Masterton, 77 T. 168, 13 S. W. 1014.

A subsequent application for a survey of public lands held not in conflict with a prior one, if the prior application be considered an application in gross. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Surveys.—On the 1st of June, 1840, a tract of land was located by the proper files made in the office of the county surveyor; before the return of the field-notes to the land office the same land was relocated in 1846 and a patent issued in 1848. In 1853 the field-notes of the first location were returned to the land office within the time prescribed by law. In a contest between those claiming under the first location and those claiming under the patent, it was held that the latter were bound by the matters shown by the records of the surveyor’s office constituting an appropriation of the land, and that those holding under the location had the better title. Wylie v. Wynn, 26 T. 42.

Failure in the surveyor of the land office to delineate upon the maps in the office a grant of land which does not affect such grant in any way, and which could not affect the consequent location for which a patent has been issued. Elliott v. Mitchell, 47 T. 445.

By the act of November 29, 1871 (P. D. 7096), it was necessary that the certificate should be filed with the survey in the general land office within twelve months, and the act that the withdrawal of such certificate from the general land office should render such location and survey null and void. The withdrawal contemplated by the statute was intended to designate the act of the owner or some one for him, consenting that by his act the location and survey formerly made should become null. The theft or unauthorized withdrawal of a certificate from the general land office will not have the effect of rendering null a location and survey. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 487; Snider v. I. & G. N. R. R. Co., 52 T. 366.

The owner of land certificates who employs and pays the deputy surveyor for the work of actually surveying the land on which the certificates are located, and who destroys all his expenses, is not liable to the county surveyor for the fees for surveying, there being no contract between the deputy and the principal surveyor in regard thereto. Hall v. Thompson, 61 T. 594.

One who files, in a proper manner, and delivers a valid land certificate to the county surveyor, has twelve months within which to have the land applied for surveyed, as against the time noticed that he has taken these steps, so that he has taken such this though the county surveyor fails to make the proper file entry, and did not keep either the application or the certificate in his office, but deposited them elsewhere for safe-keeping. Cassin v. O'Sullivan, 61 T. 594.

A certificate filed-notes are filed in the land office, if the second survey covered land which could not have been embraced in the survey first made, it is necessary for the parties to proceed as in an original appropriation of the land. If the location originally made would cover the land embraced in the survey last made, then the first survey can be corrected so as to conform to the original location. Railway Co. v. Thompson, 65 T. 319.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that the survey was made in accordance with the location. Id.

If the location originally made would cover the land embraced in the survey last made, the first survey cannot be corrected so as to conform to the original location, notwithstanding the first survey and the certificates were still in the general land office. Id. If the surveyor made the survey not covered by the first survey, the parties must proceed as in an original appropriation of land. Id.

Where a survey is made under two certificates, an acceptance of a patent under one of them does not operate as an abandonment of the location and survey of the land not covered by the other evidence showing such an intention. Id.

A locator does not lose his right through the fault of the surveyor unless a subsequent locator is misled thereby. Id.

A survey made on the location of a land certificate cannot be corrected by making a survey on entirely different lands, Adams v. Railway Co., 70 T. 252, 7 S. W. 729.

When a block of surveys embracing many locations under certificates belonging to the same owner is in partial conflict with land previously appropriated, only so much of each location as may be in entire or partial conflict with older surveys can be floated. Although the owner of a land certificate was mistaken in his initial point of survey, yet if he surveyed vacant land which he intended at the time to thus appropriate, such survey deprives him of the right afterwards to float his certificate and locate it on other land. Id.

A location not followed by a survey within the time mentioned is void, as to one having an adverse interest. De La Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 440, 10 S. W. 539; Greenwood v. McLeary (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 798.

A location of land by entry or file, not followed by a survey within twelve months, is void, and the land becomes subject to relocation under other land certificates. Relocation of same certificates upon the land is forbidden. De La Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 440, 10 S. W. 539.

A failure to return the certificate to the land office within twelve months after the survey is fatal to any right thereunder. Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

Under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4055, 4123-4126, 4131, 4138, 4142, a certificate filed with a survey not drawn in the land office cannot be withdrawn for any purpose. Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

See N. Y. & Texas Land Co. v. Thomson, 83 T. 169, 17 S. W. 920; Lockhart v. Keller (Sup.) § 9 S. W. 179.

For rules applicable to question of boundary, see Rand v. Cartwright, 82 T. 399, 18 S. W. 794.

The withdrawal from the land office of the certificates and field-notes by an unauthorized person does not make void the location. The most that would be required in such case would be that the owner take means for its return within reasonable time after knowing of the withdrawal of the certificate. Musselman v. Strohi, 83 T. 473, 18 S. W. 857.

A survey prior in point of time, in the absence of equities, confers a prior right. Moler v. Weige (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 850.

If a second set of field-notes made after the expiration of the time prescribed constitute a relocation, then the certificate is barred; otherwise not. The commissioner in issuing the patent decided the second field-notes to be merely a correction of the original survey, which was made in time. Even if this was error, it would not make the patent void and subject to collateral attack. Tarlton v. Kirkpatrick, 1 C. A. 107, 21 S. W. 405.

While the law requires the two surveys for the individual and state, to be contiguous to each other, yet if made apart, they are irregular but not void, and surveys thus illegally made have been validated by law. See Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1102; Smith v. McGaughey, 87 T. 61, 26 S. W. 1073; Barrow v. Gridley, 25 C. A. 13, 59 S. W. 602.

The failure to file field-notes in the time prescribed by this article does not invalidate a location. N. Y. & T. Land Co. v. Gardner, 11 C. A. 404, 32 S. W. 786; Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 445, 10 S. W. 539.

Where a party complies with the laws in making locations, the validity of the survey will not be affected by any refusal of surveyor or commissioner of land office to recognize its validity. Pardee v. Adamson, 19 C. A. 263, 46 S. W. 43.

The fact that surveys made under a certificate for the entry of public land are not contiguous is an irregularity of which the state alone can take advantage. Eyi v. State, 47 C. A. 297, 54 S. W. 667.
A senior survey of public land must have its quantity of land out of the public domain, and junior surveys must give way to it. McCabe v. Campbell ( Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 111.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that appropriated school lands were surveyed as required by Rev. St. 1395, arts. 4130-4132. Elwood, Arnett & Associates v. A. A. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 146.

A locator of a land certificate must make an entry thereof, or application for survey, in which the land desired is described with sufficient certainty to apprise the surveyor what particular land he is required to survey; and where such application describes the land by metes and bounds the application must be held to have segregated the land described and none other, from the public domain, and a general statement of the locator as to what he intended must yield to the particular description of the land desired. Texas Mexican Ry. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1176.

19. Location.—A valid location and survey is a legal title as distinguished from an equitable right. Oclot v. Ferris (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 845; Duren v. Railway Co., 24 S. W. 255, 56 T. 237.

The location of a land certificate upon the public domain subject to location severs the land covered by it from the mass of the public domain for twelve months from the date of the location. McKinney v. Grassmeyer, 51 T. 376; Threadgill v. Bickerstaff, 29 S. W. 757, 57 T. 250.

A joint owner of a land certificate may separately locate the interest owned by him, so as not to create therein a tenancy in common in it with those owning the other interests in the certificate. Glasscock v. Hughes, 55 T. 461. A sale of a part of a land certificate, as a half interest, gives the vendee the right to locate such interest for himself. Farris v. Gilbert, 50 T. 330.

While a valid location of a land certificate upon public lands confers a vested right, it is subject to the right of the legislature to prescribe a time within which the owner must perform the remaining acts required by law to the completion of his title, and to annul the right of the owner to non-compliance with the law requiring the performance of such acts. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 437.

The right of a person who has located a valid land certificate upon vacant public lands must be the same to be surveyed and the surveyor's certificate returned to the general land office within the time prescribed by law, is a vested right, and is entitled to all the protection given to such right under every constitution of the republic and state. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 457, citing Sherwood v. Fleming, 25 T. Sup. 1586; Hart v. Gilbreath, 14 T. 335; Smith v. Taylor, 24 T. 677; Duren v. Railway Co., 88 T. 291, 24 S. W. 258; Illies v. Feriches, 11 C. A. 575, 32 S. W. 915.

A location is not void on account of a mere irregularity. Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1162.

Nothing short of the location of a land certificate or other evidence of right on and survey of land will entitle a party to the maintenance of an action of trespass to try title. Fall v. Nation, 17 C. A. 160, 42 S. W. 46.

Grantee of a void grant of land issued after land offices were closed November 13, 1835, held not entitled to the land under Act Feb. 8, 1875, where another person had in 1874holder, Williams v. League (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 576.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff's location did not include lands claimed by defendant under another location, and that the locations were not conflicting. Clawson v. Williams, 87 C. A. 130, 66 S. W. 702.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain the finding of the jury as to the location of the land in controversy. Cochran v. Moorer, 39 C. A. 75, 87 S. W. 160.

The survey and location of land by virtue of a valid bounty warrant is sufficient to segregate land from the public domain and vest title in the owner of the warrant for whom the survey and location were made and is sufficient title to authorize the maintenance of action for trespass to try title. Stubblefield v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 405.

One who located a certificate of land under contract to procure patent in the name of another, who should hold one-third of the land for his benefit, held to have acquired equitable title to one-third of the land. Morris v. Unknown Heirs of Hamilton (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 96.

Evidence held to authorize a finding that a survey was located on a prior survey. Warner v. Sapp (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 125.

A holder of a state land certificate on which an unlocated balance remained held entitled to locate land thereunder from the date of the return to the general land office of correct field notes of the survey thereof. Munson v. Terrell, 101 T. 220, 105 S. W. 1114.

Whether authority was given to locate a certificate, as between the parties to an action involving the land, was of no importance, as the location inured to the benefit of the owner of the certificate, if he wished to avail himself of it. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

20. Entry.—The law does not require the application for entry to be made by the owner of the certificate. The possession of the certificate with ability to deliver it to the surveyor is sufficient to support the entry. The rightful owner alone can complain, and he may adopt the act and the ownership of the land remains in him. The surveyor may write out the application. Beatty v. Masterton, 77 T. 168, 13 S. W. 1014.

In the absence of additional facts showing that the title to public land, acquired by a subsequent superior or different from that of the entryman, any defects available against the latter's title are available against such grantee. Walraven v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 96 T. 331, 74 S. W. 530.

LANDS—PUBLIC

(Art. 5279)

Failure of owner of certificate for the entry of public lands to make written entry or application describing the land applied for held a mere irregularity, which does not invalidate the location and survey made by the surveyor. Ex parte Smith, 27 Tex. Co. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

21. — Lifting certificate.—Where land certificates were not located until after the time allowed from the locator's entry, the certificates could not afterwards be lifted and located. Ayers v. Mexican Ry. Co. v. Smith, 59 Tex. 284, 43 S. W. 1110. Under the statute, an order authorizing the lifting of a certificate of location of school land held void. Taivley v. Lamar County, 104 Tex. 255, 137 S. W. 1125.

22. — Transfers and contracts.—Conveyance of title in grantee on judgment creditor's certificate. 49 S. W. 27.

The act of December 21, 1857, provided that the lands thereby granted should not be subject to a sale or alienation, mortgage or execution during the lifetime of the person to whom such warrant or patent shall be granted. This only restrained sale or alienation, containing that he could devise or bequeath said land and any other property owned by him. Ames v. Hubby, 49 T. 765. And see Todd v. Masterton, 61 T. 618, as to the construction of various acts granting lands to soldiers.

The equity of the locator of a land certificate who locates without contract with the owner do not extend to fixing a right in the land secured by location to a lien upon it for his compensation. Grimes v. Smith, 70 T. 217, 8 S. W. 33.

The purchaser of a certificate with knowledge of a prior partial location cannot locate the remainder for his exclusive benefit, even where the first location was without knowledge of his grantees. Estell v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 8.

When confederate land scrip has been located, and the land surveyed, the scrip becomes merged in the land, though no patent has issued, and a deed to the land passes title. W. C. to Bruce, 51 S. W. 235.

Evidence held to show the execution of a locative contract, the performance thereof, and to establish equitable title in defendants. Logan v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 395.

A pre-emptioner after having fulfilled all the statutory requirements for a patent can only convey his interest by an instrument in writing. Wilson v. Nugent (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 241.

A written transfer of a certificate after the location of public land thereunder operates as an equitable transfer of the land so located. Alford Bros. & Whiteside v. Williams, 41 C. A. 456, 91 S. W. 636.

Prior to the location of a public land certificate, the rights of the holder thereunder may be transferred by parol. id.

Actual knowledge by a subsequent locator of the previous location by another precludes him from deriving any advantage from the fact that the surveyor's office contained no evidence thereof at the date of the subsequent location. Waterhouse v. Corbett, 40 C. A. 512, 96 S. W. 651.

The location and survey of public land held to separate the land from the public domain so far as the right of the locator to sell was concerned. Sims v. Sealy, 53 C. A. 518, 126 S. W. 630.

A location under a land certificate by the administrator of the original holder who had transferred it was not void, but inured to the benefit of the transferee. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Toler (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1111.

23. — Priorities.—In 1855 a conditional certificate for 640 acres was issued to L. and located by him in R. county. An unconditional certificate was afterwards issued to him and located in P. county subsequent to the passage of the act of August 30, 1856 (Laws 1856, c. 146, § 2; Rev. St. 1895, art. 4134). The field notes of the surveys for both locations were duly returned to and filed in the land office. Subsequently a duplicative certificate was issued, rectifying the loss of the unconditional certificate, and under this certificate the land in controversy was located. There was no evidence of any abandonment of the location in R. county. Held, that the first location exhausted the right of the holder to appropriate public land, and the subsequent locations were void. Thompson & Toler v. Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1111.

Even if the location under the original certificate was abandoned, the location under the duplicate certificate was valid, since that made under the unconditional certificate in P. county being valid, the act of 1856 (Laws 1856, c. 145, § 2; Rev. St. 1895, art. 4134) expressly prohibited the lifting or floating of the certificate and its subsequent location upon other land. id.

A prior locatior, followed by the statutory diligence in making survey and returning the field-notes, is an appropriation of the land against any claim having its inception subsequent to such date. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. McGehee, 49 T. 481; Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153. It cannot be prejudiced by any subsequent wrongful or fraudulent act of the surveyor. Hughes v. Perry, 21 T. 778.

A junior locatior will support a patent except as against a prior title. Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 408; Thompson v. Johnson, 2 U. C. 252.

A patent issued on a junior location is voidable at the suit of the party having the prior right, but is valid as to all other persons. Gullett v. O'Connor, 54 T. 499; League v. Ragan, 59 T. 427; De Court v. Sproul, 96 T. 368, 1 S. W. 237.

As against a junior locator with notice that a survey upon a prior location was actually made in the field, the certificate of the surveyor failing to show that fact, it may be shown by parol the failure or refusal of the commissioner of the general land office to issue a patent on such defective certificate cannot affect its validity. Holmes v. Anderson, 59 T. 481.

The relocation of a certificate under article 4136, Rev. St. 1895, does not affect a prior location duly made on the land by another. De La Garza v. Cassin, 72 T. 440, 10 S. W. 553.

A survey prior in point of time, in the absence of equities, confers a prior right. Mohler v. Welge (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 850.

24. — Homestead donations under former law.—See Roberts v. Trout, 13 C. A. 70, 35 S. W. 325; Yost v. Pettigrew, 12 C. A. 87, 38 S. W. 215. See also, Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.
A contract for the joint acquisition of title to vacant land is neither within our statute of frauds nor against public policy. Such contract can be enforced by partition of such lands. Such rights can attach to the land when acquired subject to any burden, legal or equitable, upon it at the time of its occupancy as homestead. A contract to acquire land to be used as homestead does not require the assent of the wife, and it will be enforced without her aid or consent, even after its occupancy as the homestead. Reed v. Howard, 71 T. 204, 9 S. W. 109.

Rev. St. 1895, art. 4171, cited, Gallup v. Thacker, 103 T. 310, 126 S. W. 1120.

The state may exercise such supervisory control as may be necessary to enforce the performance of the trust upon which the land is donated, but it cannot by legislation divest the land and purposes therein contemplated when it was originally granted. Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 155; Milam County v. Blake, 54 T. 169; Palo Pinto County v. Gano, 60 T. 249.

When the application of the established rules by which the true location of the boundary of a grant is to be determined results or confusion, that rule must be adopted which most consistently with the intention of the party, grant, in the light of all the surrounding facts and circumstances. Lilly v. Blum, 70 T. 704, 6 S. W. 279; Meade v. Blum Land Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 298.

This article when construed in the light of sections 2, 4, and 5 of article 7 of the constitution of 1875, does not preclude the public free school lands. T. C. Eyo Co. v. Bowman (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 556.

Patent of land as a homestead donation held not subject to collateral attack by defendant in action of trespass to try title brought by the patentee to recover certain other lands. 65 S. W. 209, con. 65 S. W. 209.

The persons intended by a state grant to the heirs of a certain person are those who would have inherited the right granted had it existed at his death. Waterman v. Charleston, 65 T. 310, 120 S. W. 1190, 120 S. W. 171.

When a legislative grant is not made in discharge of some obligation of the government that the law would recognize, the grant is not in a legal sense anything but an act of sovereign grace and a pure donation. Sherman v. Pickering, 56 C. A. 633, 121 S. W. 596.

One cannot acquire the right to a quarter section of state land as a homestead by having others than himself or his assigns actually occupy the land for him, so that one who attempted to do so could not establish an equitable title in himself, as against one to whom the patent was issued as the actual occupant. Rogers v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 938.

25. Application.—This article was intended to protect land from location by another for the period of 30 days after its occupancy or settlement by one intending to pre-empt it before the expiration of the period of 30 days after its occupancy. It was intended for the benefit of the occupant seeking a homestead donation, and was never intended to prohibit the occupant from making his application for land at any time after the expiration of the 30 days, if no location made by a third party intervened. Gammage v. Powell, 61 T. 628.

A location by virtue of a land certificate upon land occupied by a pre-emption settler, after the expiration of 30 days from his occupancy, and before the application of the settler for land, interposes no bar to the subsequent application of the settler. Id.

That application was not made for the land by the pre-emptor within 30 days after his settlement, but where the appli­cation in made before any other valid claim attached to it. McCarthy v. Gomez, 85 T. 10, 19 S. W. 999.

An application made for a homestead donation in the name of the wife, but made by the husband for a homestead for the family, is not invalid because not made in name of the husband. Id.

The application must be made within the time prescribed by the statute. Jones v. Hart (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 704.

The acts of January 27, 1854, February 13, 1854, and November 12, 1866, and Rev. St. 1895, art. 4163, are substantially the same, and if the required affidavit is not made the survey would not be valid. Miller v. Moss, 65 T. 179.

Issuance of patent on false affidavits of occupancy of land claimed as homestead donation held not to defeat the equity of another, who took steps to acquire the land as a homestead donation. Drinkard v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 198.

27. Present location.—The lowest grade, course or distance is made to prevail over the highest grade, when, upon applying the calls of the grant to the land, the surrounding and connected circumstances adduced in proof to explain the discrepancy show that course or distance is the most certain and reliable evidence of the true locality of the grant. Booth v. Striplen, 26 T. 444; Stafford v. King, 30 T. 567; 94 Am. Dec. 304; Davis v. Smith, 61 T. 21; Fagan v. Stoner, 67 T. 387; 3 S. W. 44; Booth v. Uphur, 26 T. 70; Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 100, 7 S. W. 315.

To avoid the forfeiture under this article the settler must show a legal excuse for the failure to record and return the field-notes. Taylor v. Criswell, 4 C. A. 166, 23 S. W. 434.

A survey may be made after the expiration of the time if no other rights intervene. Truehart v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 842.

Where a homestead done, after completing the three years' occupancy, removes therefrom the county office filing such in the land office, the same, another person, in good faith relocating the same, will take a good title from the state. Gallup v. Thacker, 103 T. 310, 126 S. W. 1120.

Neither one who failed to apply for a survey of pre-empted land and failed to return the field notes to the General Land Office within the time required by Rev. St. 1895, art. 4171, nor his grantees acquired any preference right to the land. Cook v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 716.

Grant which did not describe land so it could be identified or specify any particular quantity held void for uncertainty. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1117.

28. Occupation and abandonment.—If a homestead becomes abandoned, it will lose its character as such after the time period and in the manner described in the homestead law.

29. Settlement.—A homestead is not established until the homestead is occupied and the homestead claim is perfected.

30. Transfer.—Under the statute prohibiting the alienation of land, located by virtue of a homestead warrant, during the lifetime of the grantee, a lease for 99 years constitutes an alienation in violation of the statute, and is void. Overby v. Johnston, 45 C. A. 548, 84 S. W. 131.

ART. 2579 LANDS.—PUBLIC

The term "public" in this context refers to land that is held by the state or federal government for public use. The definition of public land is often associated with lands held in trust for the public's benefit or use, such as parks, forests, and national monuments. Public lands are subject to federal oversight and regulation, and their uses are often governed by specific laws and regulations. This context is likely used in the discussion of public lands for their role in natural resource management, environmental conservation, and public recreation.

32. Rights and liabilities of purchaser from city.—A purchaser of land from a city having the absolute power of sale held not required to see that the proceeds of such sale are properly applied in accordance with the purposes for which the land was held. Board of School Trustees of City of San Antonio v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 147.

CHAPTER TWO

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

Art. 5280. General land office established.—There shall be one general land office, which shall be at the seat of government, where all land titles which have emanated, or may hereafter emanate, from the state shall be registered, except those titles the registration of which may be prohibited by the constitution. [Id. sec. 1.]

Historical.—The present land system was substantially established by the act of December 22, 1836 (1st Cong., p. 318), and December 14, 1837 (2d Cong., p. 62). By the fourteenth article of the plans and powers of the provisional government of Texas, land commissioners, empresarios, or persons in anywise concerned in the location of land under the laws of Mexico, Coahuila and Texas, were ordered to cease their operations and desist from further locations until the land offices were established. The act of the consultation closing the land offices took effect November 13, 1835. Constitution of Republic, General Provisions, § 10; Constitution of 1845, art. 7, § 21; Constitution of 1876, art. 13, § 6; Jones v. Menard, 1 T. 785; Donaldson v. Dodd, 12 T. 351; Edgar v. Galveston City Co., 21 T. 302; Parker v. Bains, 59 T. 15.

The general land office was not practically opened until some time in 1844. Dobbin v. Bryan, 8 T. 276; State v. Delesdenier, 7 T. 76; Emmons v. Oldham, 12 T. 18; All transfers of certificates on file in the general land office are archives. Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 165.

Salary of commissioner.—See Title 120, Chapter 1.
Removal of commissioner.—See notes under Title 98, Chapter 1.

Papers, maps and field-notes.—A paper is deemed to have been filed in the general land office only when it shall have been delivered into the custody of the commissioner, or of some one appointed by him under law to receive it, to be kept in its proper place for the inspection of parties interested. Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 457.

Art. 5281. Commissioner to have custody of books, etc.—The commissioner of the general land office shall have custody and control of all books, records, papers, maps and original documents appertaining to the titles of lands heretofore and by the provisions of the law denominated archives; and the said books, records, papers and original documents shall become and be deemed the books and papers of said office. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 71.]

See Title 8; Sayles' Early Laws, arts. 2855, 3466; Act Aug. 15, 1870, 12th Leg., S. S., p. 201; State v. De Leon, 64 T. 553; Garza v. State, Id. 670; Elliott's Admin'r v. Mitchell, 47 T. 446.

Custody.—Where the testimony showed that the county clerk's office of a county was the place where original ancient grants of land had been kept and recorded since the day of the republic, and a witness testified that more than 30 years before when he was deputy county clerk, he had found an original grant in the archives of the office, and another witness testified that he got the original grant from the office of the county clerk, and that the county clerk authorized the witness to bring the document into court, the original grant was properly received in evidence, though under Act Dec. 22, 1836, the commissioner of the general land office was entitled to the custody of the grant, since the fact that such custody was not obtained did not affect the validity of the grant, or render it inadmissible by a party claiming under it. Flores v. Hovel (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 606.
Art. 5282. [4044] Night watchman.—The said commissioner is hereby authorized to employ one night watchman for the general land office, at a salary not to exceed six hundred dollars per annum. [Act Feb. 27, 1875, p. 56.] See Art. 4410.

Art. 5283. Papers to be kept in land office, how.—The commissioner shall adopt the most convenient method for filing papers and preserving the records of said office; provided, a list of all papers in each file shall be retained in the file, and each employee who files a paper shall place his own name thereon. [Acts 1909, p. 429, sec. 6.]

Art. 5284. [4045] Examination of papers, etc., permitted, when.—Any one desirous to examine any of the papers, records or files in the general land office shall first obtain the consent of the commissioner, or the chief clerk, in writing so to do, and an order for the detail of a clerk of said office to be present and superintend such examination. [Act June 2, 1873, p. 180. P. D. 7099kk.]

Commissioner's discretion.—To the commissioner of the general land office is committed the discretion of permitting anyone to examine the papers, files, and records in the general land office, and the supreme court has no power to compel him to give his consent to such examination. This article and Art. 5285 prescribe the manner in which persons may be allowed to examine the records in the land office. Anderson v. Rogan, 93 T. 182, S. W. 242.

Art. 5285. [4048] Clerk to examine papers after, etc.—After an examination is made, the clerk in charge of same shall carefully examine the papers of said file and see that they are all in place. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 7099mm.]

Art. 5286. [4049] Lithographic copies of maps to be printed.—The commissioner of the general land office is authorized to contract for the printing and delivery to him of lithographic copies of maps of the various counties of this state; provided, that the cost of such printing and delivery shall not exceed two cents per copy. [Acts 1879, p. 40.]

Art. 5287. [4050] To be copyrighted.—When said commissioner has prepared the official copy of the map of any county from which such lithographic copies are to be printed, he shall copyright the same in the name and for the benefit of the state of Texas, in accordance with the laws of copyright of the United States. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5288. [4051] To be sold at fifty cents.—When such copies are received by the commissioner, he shall offer the same for sale at not less than fifty cents nor more than one dollar per copy, regulating the price by the amount of labor required in the original compilation of such maps, and transcribing same; provided, that when a party desires to purchase at any one time one hundred or more copies of the maps of any county or counties, he shall be allowed a discount on the fixed price of the same of twenty per cent. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5289. [4052] Proceeds to be placed in state treasury.—All moneys received from the sale of maps, as above provided, shall be paid into the state treasury as are all other fees received by the general land office. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5290. [4053] No transfers, etc., shall be withdrawn.—No transfer or deed that may be a link in any chain of title to any certificate on file in the general land office shall be withdrawn by any one; but the commissioner shall, on demand, deliver to the interested party certified copies, which shall have the same force and effect as the originals; provided, if in any suit there is any question as to the genuineness of any such original, the commissioner shall deliver the same to the party to whom the same may be ordered by the court where such suit is pending; and in such case it shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to retain in his office a duly certified copy of such original, which, in case of the loss of the original, shall have the same force and effect as the original. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 7099nn.]

See notes at end of Chapter 1.

Admissibility of certified copy.—See notes under Arts. 3696 and 5337.

Archives.—See notes under Art. 82.

Art. 5291. [4061] Receipts for papers, etc.—No paper, certificate, copy or document, other than a patent, shall be delivered by the commissioner to the owner until he has receipted for the same, in which receipt shall be stated his place of residence, his postoffice, and, if delivered to the agent or attorney, shall state in addition his residence and postoffice, which receipt shall be filed by the commissioner with the other papers; provided, that, when the commissioner has good reason to doubt the genuineness of any transfer, power of attorney, or other paper on file in the general land office, he shall not permit any one to obtain an official copy thereof until such doubts have been removed. [Id. sec. 9. P. D. 7099ss.]

Art. 5292. [4062] Commissioner and sureties responsible, when.—The commissioner of the general land office and the sureties on his official bond shall be responsible to any party injured by removal, withdrawal or alteration of any record or file in said general land office, unless said commissioner can show that such removal, withdrawal or alteration has taken place by permission of the party owning said file or record. [Id. sec. 12. P. D. 7099uu.]

LAND DISTRICTS

Art. 5293. What counties are separate land districts.

Art. 5294. When county becomes a land district.

Art. 5295. When county to have a surveyor.

Art. 5296. “Land districts” defined.

Art. 5297. County or district failing to organize as separate district.

Art. 5298. Unorganized counties attached to organized counties.

Art. 5299. Counties attached.

Article 5293. [4063] What counties are separate land districts.—Every organized county which has heretofore complied, or may hereafter comply, with the laws in force permitting a county to become a land district, is hereby declared a separate land district. [K. S. 1879.]

For former land districts, see 2 Sayles’ Civ. St. 1889, p. 308; Sayles’ Supp. 1894, p. 708.

Art. 5294. [4064] When county becomes a land district.—When any organized county shall elect a surveyor, and he shall give bond and be qualified as provided by law, said county shall be a separate land district. [Acts Jan. 26, 1858. P. D. 1082.]

Art. 5295. [4065] When county to have a surveyor.—Each county becoming a land district shall have at least one surveyor, who shall keep his office at the county seat; and such office shall be supplied with a map or maps of all the surveys made in such county, with a file or entry book, and a record book of the field-notes of all surveys in the county.

Surveyor de facto.—The surveyor of one county, who as such assumes, in violation of statute, to make surveys in another county in which another officer is alone empowered to survey, cannot be de facto the surveyor of such other county, even though his acts as such be generally acquiesced in and sanctioned by the commissioner of the general land office. Cox v. Railway Co., 68 T. 226, 4 S. W. 455.

Preservation of transcripts.—Evidence held not to conclusively establish that the surveyor of a land district did not perform his statutory duty, and collect and preserve the transcripts and records. Pardee v. Adamson, 19 C. A. 265, 46 S. W. 45.

Validation of surveys.—Surveys made in violation of law in certain counties have been validated. Early Laws, arts. 830, 1225, 396a.

Art. 5296. [4066] “Land districts” defined.—All “land districts” now created by law and having a district surveyor shall remain and con-continue as such, subject, however, to alteration by any organized county within its limits, or any part of such district, becoming a separate land district as provided by law.

Art. 5297. [4067] County or district failing to organize as separate land district.—Any organized county, or newly created district, which may fail or refuse to organize as a separate land district as provided by law shall continue to form a part of the land district to which it was formerly attached until it shall have complied with the provisions of law relating to the election and qualification of a surveyor, and until such surveyor shall have procured the necessary maps, field-notes, copies and records as required by law. [Act Feb. 8, 1860.  P. D. 1090.]

See Marshals v. Creanger, 2 C. A. 368, 21 S. W. 545.

Historical.—Rev. St. 1879, arts. 3822-3833, defined the former land districts. See also, Acts March 11, 1881, April 2, 1883, April 9, 1883, March 24, 1885, Feb. 27, 1885, April 1, 1887 (2 Sayles' Civ. St. 1889, arts. 3825a, 3825b, 3833a-3833m), defining other districts. Certified copies of certain maps, field-notes and sketches of surveys were made public archives when filed in the office of the district surveyors (2 Sayles' Civ. St. 1889, art. 3820a).

Art. 5298. [4067a] Unorganized counties attached for land purposes, etc.—Each county in this state that is unorganized, or that has not so completed its organization as to become a separate land district under the requirements of the law, shall be attached to some organized county for surveying purposes; and the county surveyor of such organized county shall be the surveyor for the land district thus constituted, and the records of all files and surveys of land in such district shall be kept at his office. [Amend. 1895, Sen. Jour. p. 481.]

Art. 5299. [4067b] Counties attached.—The land districts composed of more than one county are defined and the unorganized counties are attached for surveying purposes as follows:

The county of Bailey is attached to Crosby county. [R. S., 1895.]
The county of Crane is attached to Ector county. [Act Feb. 3, 1909, p. 11.]
The county of Loving is attached to Reeves county. [Id.]
The counties of Cochran and Hockley are attached to Lubbock county. [Act Mar. 13, 1905, p. 31.]

CHAPTER FOUR

5313. Duty on change of boundary.
5314. Contested elections, in what court tried, etc.
5315. Their duties, how regulated.
5316. Deputy district surveyors.
5317. Special county surveyor for unorganized counties.

Art. 5318. Deputy surveyor of new county to procure maps.
5319. Surveys of deputy to be placed on map.
5320. Surveys in unorganized counties.
5321. Special deputies.
5322. Surveyor not authorized to survey until, etc.

5331. Neglect or failure of duty.
5332. Shall turn over books, etc.
5333. County clerk to take charge of books, when.
5334. Commissioners may have record transcribed, when.

Article 5300. County surveyor, when elected.—At each regular biennial election for state and county officers, there shall be elected in each county, by the qualified voters thereof, a county surveyor, who shall reside in the county and keep his office at the county seat, who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor may be elected and qualified. [Const., art. 16, sec. 44. Act Jan. 26, 1858, p. 199. Act Aug. 19, 1876.]

Surveyor de facto.—To constitute a de facto officer he must have such colorable right to the office, the duties of which he undertakes to discharge, as might induce the public to suppose without inquiry that he is de jure the officer. The surveyor of one county, who, as such, assumes in violation of statute to make surveys in another county in which another officer is alone empowered to make surveys, cannot be de facto the surveyor of such other county, even though his acts as such be generally acquiesced in and sanctioned by the commissioner of the general land office. Cox v. Railway Co., 68 T. 236, 4 S. W. 456.

Scope of powers.—The district surveyor of one county was not authorized to make the surveys in another county, where that county at that time was attached to a different land district than that to which the surveyor belonged. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. De Berry, 34 C. A. 180, 78 S. W. 736.

Art. 5301. [4069] Oath and bond required.—Before entering upon his duties, the county surveyor shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall enter into bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court of the county, in such sum as may be fixed by such commissioners' court, not to be less than five hundred dollars nor more than ten thousand dollars payable to the governor and his successors in office, conditioned that he will faithfully perform all of the duties of his office, which bond shall be deposited and recorded in the county clerk's office of the county. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 1081, 4522. Amended Acts 1897, p. 26.]

Art. 5302. [4070] Commissioners' court to fill vacancy.—Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of county or district surveyor in any of the counties, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of the county in which such vacancy occurs to fill by appointment such vacancy, such appointment to continue in force until the next general election. In the event such commissioners' court shall fail to appoint a person to fill such vacancy, or if they shall appoint a person to fill same and he shall fail to qualify and act as such surveyor, then any county or district surveyor of the nearest county or district to such county, who may be accessible and willing to act shall be authorized to do surveying in such county, and for his services he shall be entitled to receive the same fees and compensation as are now provided by law for county and district surveyors, and such surveyor shall be subject to the same law as is now applicable to county and district surveyors for the faithful performance of their duties. In making a survey under the provisions hereof, said surveyor shall make out and return said field-notes in the manner and form as required under article 5336, but he shall sign the field-notes officially, as the surveyor of his own county or district, and also cause to be attached to said field-notes, so made by him, a certificate of the county clerk of proper county, to the fact that there is no qualified surveyor of such county. [Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 219. Amended Acts 1905, p. 371.]

Art. 5303. [4071] Duties of county surveyor.—Each county surveyor shall receive and examine all field-notes of surveys which have been, or may hereafter be, made in said county, and upon which patents are to be obtained, and shall certify to the same according to law, and shall record such field-notes in a book to be kept by him for that purpose; and he shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by law. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4522.]

Art. 5304. [4072] Surveyor to report to commissioners' court as to inclosed school lands.—It shall be the duty of the surveyor of each county to make a report to the county commissioners' court on the first Monday in June each year of the number of sections of public school lands in his county inclosed during the past year, and the names of the person or persons controlling such inclosed lands, and the number of sections controlled by him or them respectively. [Acts 1879, p. 101.]
Art. 5305. [4073] Shall record all field-notes in his district.—The surveyors of the several counties of this state shall record in a well-bound book all the surveys in the county or district for which he was elected, with the plats thereof that he may make, whether private or official; and such record shall be open to the inspection of the public: for which service the surveyor may charge, in addition to the fees now allowed by law for field work, twenty cents per hundred words for such record. [Acts 1881, p. 71.]

Filing field-notes.—Filing of field-notes in the district surveyor's office was not essential to an appropriation of school lands. Elwood, Arnett & Arnett v. Copeland (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 146.

Art. 5306. [4074] Shall plat surveys upon map, etc.—It shall be the duty of every district, county and special county surveyor, once in every three months, to plat upon the map of his district or county all surveys made to that date within the three preceding months, and transmit sketches and field-notes of same to the commissioner of the general land office, together with a list of all land certificates or warrants on file in his office, giving the number, date and quantity in acres of each, stating by whom and to whom the same purports to have been issued, and when and by whom filed; and any surveyor failing or refusing to comply with the provisions of this article shall be subject to a fine of five hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered by the state before the district court on complaint of any party aggrieved, or of the proper county or district attorney, whose duty it shall be to prosecute all such suits. A certificate from a postmaster certifying that a letter or package containing the returns herein provided for was mailed in his office, addressed to the commissioner of the general land office, shall be evidence of the fact in any suit against a surveyor under this article. [Act Jan. 26, 1858. P. D. 1087.]

Contents of certificate.—The failure in the officers of the land office to delineate upon the maps in the office a grant on file in its archives will not affect such grant in favor of a subsequent location upon which a patent had been issued. Elliott v. Mitchell, 47 T. 445.

Under the statute in force in 1855 (Paschal's Dig. art. 4573), which only required that the surveyor keep a book and register entries for an application for surveys in his county, and that the certificate must be in his hands when he made the survey, and remain in his office until he returned the field notes to the General Land Office, article 1087, which required him once in every three months to plat upon the map of his county all surveys made to that date within the three preceding months, and articles 1086 and 4523, which declared that his books, maps, etc., should be open at all times for inspection, held, that it was not necessary to embody the description of a certificate in the field notes of a survey made under it. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1052.

Art. 5307. [4075] Record books furnished.—The commissioners' courts of the several counties shall furnish the county surveyors of their respective counties with the necessary books of record pertaining thereto. [Act March 9, 1875. Act Feb. 2, 1860. P. D. 1089.]

Art. 5308. [4076] Deputies appointed; oath and bond required, etc.—The county or district surveyor shall appoint as many deputy surveyors as he may deem necessary for the county or district, and shall administer to them the oath of office, and take the bond hereinafter prescribed, and shall furnish them such instructions as may be furnished to him from time to time by the commissioner of the general land office; and such deputy surveyor, before he enters upon the duties of his office, shall enter into bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court, in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the governor and his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, which bond shall be deposited and recorded in the clerk's office of the same county; and the county or district surveyor shall immediately report such appointment to the commissioner of the general land office, and state when such deputy entered upon the discharge of the duties of his office. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4522.]

Duties of deputy.—It seems that it is the duty of the deputy surveyors to do the field work; there is no statute which makes it the duty of the principal surveyor to do such work. Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 325.

Liability for fees.—See Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Individual interest in purchase of public lands.—See State v. Thompson, 64 T. 690.

Art. 5309. [4077] Chain carriers and markers.—It shall be the duty of each deputy district or county surveyor to administer an oath to each individual employed by him as chain carrier or marker for the faithful performance of his duties as such, in accordance with the instructions given him; and no person under the age of sixteen years shall be employed in either of the above capacities; and, further, it shall be the duty of said deputy to subscribe the name of each of the chain carriers to his field-notes previous to returning the same to the county surveyor. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4523.]

Art. 5310. [4078] Deputy surveyors shall return field-notes.—It shall be the duty of all deputy surveyors to make returns of the field-notes of every survey by them made, within three months after making the survey, to the county or district surveyor for his approval; and any deputy neglecting to do so shall be liable for damages at the suit of any person thereby injured. [Act Feb. 5, 1840. P. D. 4112.]

Filing field notes.—Filing of field notes in the district surveyor's office was not essential to an appropriation of school lands. Elwood, Arnett & Arnett v. Copeland (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 146.

Art. 5311. [4079] County surveyor may do work of deputy.—Any county surveyor may do the work of a practical surveyor, and may also perform all the duties required of a deputy surveyor, and in such case he shall make out, certify to, record and return the field-notes under his own official signature. [Act Dec. 20, 1837.]

Duties of county surveyor.—The county surveyor is not required to do the work of a deputy. Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Art. 5312. [4080] Shall keep a map in his office for inspection.—It shall be the duty of each county or district surveyor to make out and keep in his office, free for the inspection of all persons, a map on which all the surveys made in his county shall be laid down and properly connected; which map shall be corrected at the end of every three months. [Act Feb. 5, 1840.]

Art. 5313. [4081] Duty on change of boundary.—Hereafter, when any change may take place in the boundaries of any county, it shall be the duty of the surveyor of any county from which territory may be so taken, to furnish the surveyor of the county including such territory with a full and complete copy of all the field-notes of surveys made in the same. [Act Feb. 5, 1840.]

Art. 5314. [4082] Contested elections, by what court tried.—Whenever the election of any person to the office of county or district surveyor may be contested, like notice shall be given and proceedings had as in case of contested elections for county officers. When the district is composed of one county, the contest shall be tried in such county; but where the district is composed of more than one county, then such contest shall be tried in the county from which the district takes its name. [Act Feb. 7, 1853.]

Art. 5315. [4083] Their duties, how regulated.—All district surveyors shall be governed in the discharge of their official duties by the same provisions of law which regulate and prescribe the duties of county surveyors so far as the same may be applicable; and, upon their removal from office or at the expiration of their term of office, they shall deliver to their successors all records, books, papers, maps and other things appertaining to the office. [Act May 12, 1846.]

VERN.S.CIV.ST.—220 5505
Art. 5316. [4084] Deputy district surveyors.—Each district surveyor shall appoint one or more deputy surveyors, who shall qualify and give bond in manner and form as required of deputy county surveyors, and whose duties shall be the same as those of deputy county surveyors so far as the same may be applicable; and, when such surveyor does the work of surveying in a new county, he shall notify the special county surveyor acting under his direction, and report his work to him to be mapped and noted on his records.

Art. 5317. [4085] Special county surveyor for unorganized county.—It shall be the duty of each district surveyor, within twenty days after his election, to appoint as his deputy a special county surveyor for each unorganized county within his district, who shall hold his office during the term of his principal, unless sooner superseded by the appointment of another as his successor. The district surveyor shall immediately notify the commissioner of the general land office of every such appointment. Each special county surveyor so appointed shall have all the powers, perform all the duties and be subject to all the penalties appertaining to county surveyors, and shall keep, in addition to the returns to be made to his principal, a record and map of all the transactions in his office, to become part of the county surveyor's records of such county whenever it may be organized. All such special county surveyors shall reside and keep their offices in their respective counties, if there be settlements in the same, but if there be no settlements in the county, then at the nearest town to such county. Whenever any county may elect a county surveyor, who shall have qualified and given bond, and who shall have procured the maps and records required by law, the district surveyor within whose district such county may have been, or may be at the time, and his deputy shall cease to exercise any official acts within the same. [Act Jan. 26, 1858. P. D. 1085.]

Status.—Deputy surveyors in unorganized counties attached to surveying districts are mere assistants to the district surveyor, and their appointment does not relieve him from the duty of making surveys in such unorganized counties. Tex. Mex. Ry. Co. v. Locke, 63 T. 633.

Art. 5318. [4086] Deputy surveyor of new county to procure maps.—Deputy surveyors of the several new counties shall procure from the district surveyors of their respective districts, or make out the same, a map of all the surveyed lands situated in the new county to which such deputy may be assigned, which shall be kept in the office of such deputy at the county site, for the inspection of all persons interested. [Act May 11, 1846. P. D. 4276.]

Art. 5319. [4087] Surveys of deputy to be placed on map.—All surveys made by a deputy surveyor in a new county, after being examined and placed upon the map of the district, shall be placed upon the county map. [Id. P. D. 4277.]

Art. 5320. [4088] Surveys in unorganized counties.—In any unorganized county to which a special deputy surveyor may have been appointed, or may hereafter be appointed, the district surveyor of the land district to which it is attached, or his deputies, may make surveys, the field-notes of which shall be recorded in a separate book for each of such unorganized counties, and also in the ordinary record books of the land district; but before making such surveys he shall notify the special deputy surveyor thereof and afterward report the field-notes to him, to be mapped out and noted on his records. [Act Feb. 8, 1860. P. D. 1091.]

Art. 5321. [4089] Special deputies, bond, etc.—The district or county surveyor of any county shall have the power to appoint a special deputy, who shall be empowered to perform all official acts which said district or county surveyor may legally perform; and the said special deputy surveyor, before entering on the discharge of his duties, shall give bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the governor, for the faithful discharge of the same, which shall be approved by the commissioners’ court of the county and filed with the county clerk thereof. [Id. P. D. 1092.]

Art. 5322. [4090] Surveyor not authorized to survey, until, etc.—Any surveyor, elected as provided by law, in a county not previously a separate land district, shall procure a certified map of the surveys in said county, and a certified copy of all files, applications and locations of lands therein from the surveyor’s office of the land districts to which said county belonged, and file the same in his office for the inspection of any one interested in examining the same. [Act Jan. 26, 1858.]

See Art. 5335.

Surveyor’s noncompliance with law.—The failure of the surveyor to observe the requirements of this article and Arts. 5323 and 5324 will not affect the title of one claiming under an official survey. Tex. Mex. Ry. Co. v. Locke, 63 T. 623.

Art. 5323. [4091] To return field-notes of county boundaries.—When the surveyor shall have complied with the provisions of the preceding article, it shall be his duty immediately to make out and return to the general land office field-notes properly certified to, of the boundaries of such county; and the commissioners’ court of said county shall make the necessary provision for paying the expenses thereof. [R. S. 1879.]

Art. 5324. [4092] Transcript to be obtained from land office, when.—Whenever the maps, field-notes of surveys or other records, or any part thereof, of the surveyor’s office in any county or land district shall from any cause be lost or destroyed, or when any new county shall organize, or new land district is created, it shall be the duty of such county or district surveyor to obtain from the commissioner of the general land office a transcript of such maps, field-notes of surveys or other records of his office of his county or land district, certified to as required by law, and for obtaining which he shall be entitled to five cents per hundred words, and the state shall be entitled to ten cents per hundred words, to be paid by the commissioners’ court of his county; said transcript of records so certified shall answer all the purposes and have the same force and effect in law that the original could have. [Acts 1885, p. 92. Amend. 1895, Sen. Jour., p. 482.]

See note under Art. 5322.

Art. 5325. [4093] Authorized to rent office.—The district and county surveyors are authorized to rent some suitable building or room in which to keep their offices in case the said surveyors can not be provided with offices in the court houses of their respective counties. [Act Aug. 18, 1876, p. 196.]

Art. 5326. [4094] Rent of office, how paid.—The county commissioners’ court shall make the necessary arrangement for paying the rent of an office rented by said surveyors, upon satisfactory evidence showing that the rent was reasonable and the office necessary, and that there was no office provided for said surveyors in the court house of their county. [Id.]

Art. 5327. [4095] To have a deputy in office, when.—In all cases where the county surveyors do not reside at the county seats of their respective counties, they shall and are hereby required to have deputies in their respective offices residing at said county seats, who shall keep their offices open and the records thereof subject to the examination of any person interested therein, and who shall have authority to receive and file land certificates or other evidences of right to land, and also to receive and record all files or designations of land to be surveyed. [Act Feb. 25, 1863. P. D. 1093.]

Art. 5328. [4098] Right to examine books, etc.—Any person interested for himself, or as agent or attorney of another, shall at all times have the right to examine the books, papers, plats, maps or other archives belonging to the office of any district, county or special surveyor, on the payment of the fee fixed by law. [Act Jan. 26, 1858. P. D. 1086.]

Art. 5329. [4100] Transcripts, etc., by whom paid for.—The transcripts of records and maps, together with the examination of the same, shall be paid for by the county for the benefit of which they are made, allowing ten cents for every one hundred words in copying said records, and three dollars per day for each day the draftsman may be actually and necessarily engaged in copying maps, as provided by law; and clerks and district surveyors for examining and certifying transcripts of records shall have three dollars per day. [Act March 20, 1848. P. D. 1078.]

Art. 5330. [4101] Surveyors to establish true meridian, etc.—The district or county surveyors of the several counties, in order to secure uniformity in the courses indicated by the different surveyors’ compasses or other instruments used within their several jurisdictions, shall, in some convenient place at their respective county seats, establish a true meridian by a substantial monument, to be erected at the expense of the county, and shall adjust, or cause to be adjusted, to the said meridian all such instruments before being used within their respective jurisdictions, and shall keep in their offices a standard chain of the true measurement of ten varas, to which all chains used by themselves or their deputies shall be adjusted before being used in the measurement of lines of surveys. [Act June 2, 1873, p. 173. P. D. 7099sss.]

Art. 5331. [4102] Responsible for neglect or failure, etc.—All surveyors shall be held responsible to parties interested for any cost that may accrue in rectifying any errors that may occur in their work by reason of neglect or failure to comply with the requirements of the preceding article. [Id. P. D. 7099ttt.]

Art. 5332. [4103] Shall turn over records, etc.—Upon the removal from office, or at the expiration of the term of office, of any county or district surveyor, he shall deliver to his successor all records, books, papers, maps and other things appertaining to his office. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 4525.]

Historical.—Sayles’ Civ. St. 1889, art. 3868, legalized the election of county surveyors on February 15, 1876, and confirmed their official acts.

Art. 5333. [4104] County clerk shall take charge of books, etc., when.—Whenever an organized county from any cause has not a qualified county surveyor, the county clerk of such county is hereby required to take charge of all records, maps and papers belonging to the county surveyor’s office and safely keep the same in his office. [Act Oct. 18, 1866, p. 31.]

Art. 5334. [4105] Surveyor’s records may be transcribed.—Whenever the county commissioners’ court of any county shall deem the same necessary, they shall order the surveyor’s records to be transcribed in good and substantial books, in a plain hand, by the surveyor or special deputies sworn to make true copies of the same, for which services they shall be allowed not more than ten cents per hundred words, to be paid out of the county treasury. [Act Nov. 6, 1871, p. 18.]

CHAPTER FIVE
SURVEYS AND FIELD-NOTES

Art. 5335. What authorizes a survey.
Art. 5336. Field-notes shall describe what.
Art. 5337. Copy obtained on loss of original field-notes.
Art. 5338. Surveys on navigable streams.
Art. 5339. Surveys shall be in a square.
Art. 5340. Notice to settlers.
Art. 5341. Trial as to disputed line before justice of the peace.
Art. 5342. Surveys stricken from map, when.
Art. 5335. [4142] What authorizes a survey.—All surveys shall be made by authority of law, and by a county, district or deputy surveyor duly appointed or elected and qualified.

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Art. 5336. [4144] Field-notes shall describe what.—The field-notes of every survey shall state—
1. The county or land district in which the land is situated.
2. The authority under or by virtue of which it is made, giving a true description of same.
3. The land by proper field-notes with the necessary calls and connections for identification (observing the Spanish measurement by varas).
4. A diagram of the survey.
5. The variation at which the running was made.
6. It shall show the names of the chain carriers.
7. It shall be dated and signed by the surveyor.
8. The correctness of the survey, and that it was made according to law, shall be certified to officially by the surveyor who made the same; and also that such survey was actually made in the field, and that the field-notes have been duly recorded, giving book and page.
9. When the survey has been made by a deputy, the county or district surveyor shall certify officially that he has examined the field-notes, has found them correct, and that they are duly recorded, giving book and page of record.

Field-notes.—The survey of certain tracts was not actually made by the surveyor; the calls began at an object stated by course and distance from a certain corner of survey 146, which was actually established on the ground; the objects called for were the same objects designated as the corners of certain grants actually located at different places, but so represented on the maps that the calls for objects at their corners were proper for corners of the surveys made. Held, if the corner of a survey was actually established on the ground, or could be established from other calls, the true position of the tracts designated can be established. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Thompson, 65 T. 186.

The statute in force in 1855 (Paschal's Dig. art. 4577) only required that the surveyor keep a book and register entries for an application for surveys in his county, and that the certificate must be in his hands when he made the survey, and remain in his office until he returned the field-notes to the general land office. Art. 1087 required him once in every three months to plat upon the map of his county all surveys made to that date within the three preceding months, and arts. 1086 and 4522 declared that his books, maps, etc., should be open at all times for inspection. Held, that it was not necessary to embody the description of a certificate in the field-notes of a survey made under it. Compton v. Hatch (Clv. App.) 135 S. W. 1082.

The term "field-notes" in its ordinary sense means the notes made by the surveyor in the field while making a survey, describing by course and distance, and by natural or artificial marks found or made by him, where he ran the lines and made the corners. State v. Blacios (Clv. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

Presumptions as to survey.—See notes under Art. 3587, Rule 12.

Requisites and sufficiency of surveys.—No rights can be acquired under a legislative ratification of an illegal survey as against an intervening survey legally made before the passage of the act. Cox v. Railway Co., 68 T. 226, 4 S. W. 465.
Failure of surveyor of public lands to conform to description embraced in the entry and application held a mere irregularity, not invalidating the surveys. Eyl v. State, 37 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 607.

Description or field-notes of land intended to be mortgaged in application for loan held not essential to validity of mortgage, so that the fact that at time it was signed by the applicant it contained no description, and that a description and field-notes were afterwards inserted, is immaterial. Pickett v. Gleed, 33 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

A description in field-notes of a survey of public lands held sufficient, so that holders of other certificates were stopped to deny notice thereof. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1062.

Where field-notes of a survey of public land contained the words "also by virtue of the same certificate," held, that the description in the field-notes of 768,578 sq. vs. was also by virtue of the description of 8,678,973 sq. vs. Id.

Where a patent has been issued on an office survey alone, the land granted may not be identified on the ground subsequently made, where more conclusive proof is in existence. Finberg v. Gilbert, 104 T. 539, 141 S. W. 82.

A court in determining the location of land in a patent, where there has been an insufficient survey, held required to ascertain the intention of the parties gathered from the grant in the light of the acts constituting the survey. Id.

A surveyor of a grant of public lands held required to make a survey sufficient to locate and identify it as actually made on the ground. Id.

A grant of public land held not invalid because of the failure of the surveyor to make a proper survey; but, where the survey is defective, the grant must be located by a survey made in conformity with the calls as reported by the surveyor. Id.

Evidence held to require a finding that a survey was improperly located, and that a ruling of the land office rejecting it for that reason was proper. Lucas v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1195.

Art. 5337. [4146] Copy obtained on loss of original field-notes.—When the original field-notes of any survey made by authority of law shall have been heretofore, or may be hereafter, lost or destroyed, it shall be lawful for the party who owned the same, or his agent, on making affidavit of the loss or destruction of such field-notes and filing the same in the office of the county or district surveyor, to apply to such surveyor of the county where the survey was made and recorded and obtain from him a certified copy of the record thereof, which copy shall be as valid and efficient in law as the original was, and shall secure to the party all the rights before the commissioner of the general land office that the original would have done. [Id. P. D. 4552.]

Art. 5338. [4147] Surveys on navigable streams.—All lands surveyed for individuals, lying on navigable water courses, shall front one-half of the square on the water course and the line running at right angles with the general course of the stream, if circumstances of lines previously surveyed under the laws will permit; and all streams, so far as they retain an average width of thirty feet, shall be considered navigable streams within the meaning hereof, and they shall not be crossed by the lines of any survey. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4529.]

Legality.—A survey extending across a navigable stream is illegal. N. Y. & Texas Land Co. v. Thompson, 87 T. 105, 17 S. W. 920.

The statute is merely directory, and, though a stream was within the statutory definition, the fact that a line of a survey crossed it would not render the survey illegal or void. Bunnell v. Sugg (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 701.

Under this article, held, that a contention that a survey is void on account of crossing a navigable stream is not available against a patent issued by the state on the part of one claiming under a junior grant. Id.

Grantee's title.—Navigability of waters is a question for the jury. Jones v. Johnson, 6 C. A. 262, 26 S. W. 660.

A survey borders on a lake, a strip extending into the water beyond a straight line called for by the surveyor held a part of such survey. Bland v. Smith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 49.

There is no difference in the effect of a grant fronting a navigable stream and one fronting on a stream declared by statute to be navigable because of its width, and the locator's title extends only to the water mark and title to the channel of the stream remains in the state. City of Austin v. Hall, 95 T. 591, 57 S. W. 564.

Public rights.—Under this article the public would have a right to the use of streams more than 39 feet in width as navigable public highways whenever they have sufficient water for such purpose. Orange Lumber Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 664.

Art. 5339. [4148] Surveys shall be in a square.—All surveys not made upon navigable water courses shall be in a square, so far as lines previously surveyed will permit. [Id.]

Art. 5340. [4150] Notice to settlers.—It shall be the duty of the surveyor in all cases, before he runs a division line between two settlers or occupants claiming lands, to notify in writing the parties interested before running the same; and any survey which may be made contrary to the true intent and meaning of this article shall not be a lawful one. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4528.]

Art. 5341. [4151] Trial as to disputed line before justice of the peace.—When two or more persons can not agree to a division line of any land which has never been surveyed agreeably to law, it shall be lawful for either party to apply to any justice of the county or territory in which the land lies, or if there be no justice of the peace in the county or territory, then to the nearest justice in any county or territory, and make oath that he has tried and has not been able to settle the dispute between himself and one or more other persons (naming them) concerning a division line; and the said justice shall issue a warrant to any lawful officer to summon the party or parties defendant, together with six disinterested jurors, to meet upon the premises in dispute, together with such witnesses as either party may choose to have summoned, to give evidence on a certain day, naming at what time and place; the justice shall also meet the parties, examine all the testimony before the jury, who shall on oath hear and determine the case in dispute, and shall also determine who shall pay the costs of suit; each juror in such case shall be allowed two dollars per day for such services, the other officers, such fees as have already been established by law for other similar services; provided, that, if the land in dispute shall be on a county line, it shall be lawful for a justice of either county in which part of the land may be to act in such case; and in case either party be dissatisfied with the decision they shall have the right to appeal to the county court within ten days upon giving bond and security for the costs. [Id. P. D. 4527.]

Art. 5342. [4152] When surveys void.—All surveys represented upon the maps of the general land office, the field-notes of which shall not be returned to the general land office, under the provisions of this chapter, and for which there are no titles on file in said office, shall be null and void, and be stricken from the maps of said office, when it is made to appear to the commissioner of the general land office, by the certificate of the county clerk of the county in which the land is situated, that there is no title to said survey on record in said county, and by the affidavits of two credible citizens of said county that the said land is not occupied by the owner nor by some person holding for him. [Acts 1885, p. 50.]

See Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

Art. 5343. [4153] Liability for failing to survey.—If any district or county surveyor shall fail, neglect or refuse, when the amount of lawful surveying fees of any location of land may be tendered to him by any person legally entitled to the survey, to make or cause the survey of the same to be made within one month of the time of the tender to him of said surveying fees, he and his sureties shall be liable on his official bond to the party or parties legally entitled to the same, in the amount of damages or injury said party or parties may sustain by reason of such neglect, refusal or failure, to be recovered before any competent tribunal. [Id. P. D. 4569.]

See Bates v. Thompson, 61 T. 335.

Art. 5344. [4154] Field-notes to be sent back for correction, when. —If, upon examination of the field-notes of a survey in the general land office, they are found to be incorrect, it shall be the duty of the commissioners to cause a plain statement of the errors, with a sketch of the map, to be forwarded by mail, or by the party interested, to the surveyor who made the survey, with a requisition to correct the same and return corrected field-notes to the general land office. [Act Oct. 24, 1871, p. 11.  P. D. 7091.]

See Tarleton v. Kilpatrick, 1 C. A. 107, 21 S. W. 405.

Correction.—The commissioner of the general land office being charged with the duty of correcting surveys and field-notes (9 Gammel's Gen. Laws, p. 107) corrected field-notes of surveys approved and adopted by such commissioner identifying the land claimed by plaintiff under his patent, constitutes a prima facie case in his favor. Finberg v.
Gilbert (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 978.

Where changes in field-notes as they were originally made were made after the rights of parties contesting the survey had become fixed, such rights could not be af-

Art. 5345. [4155] The same corrected and returned, how.—It is hereby made the duty of surveyors who shall have made and delivered incorrect field-notes, upon the requisition of the commissioner of the general land office, provided for in the preceding article, or of the party interested, to make corrected field-notes and return the same to the general land office without delay and without any additional compensation.
[Id.  P. D. 7092.]

Art. 5346. [4156] Correction by certificate, when made.—When a conflict of survey does not exist on the ground, but appears only on the maps or in the field-notes, it shall only be required of the surveyor to make an official certificate of the facts and furnish a true sketch of the survey with its connections. [Id.]

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Art. 5347. [4261] Commissioner to have surveys made, when.—
For the purpose of ascertaining the conflicts and errors in and making proper corrections of surveys of lands made for the common school, university or asylum funds, or other surveys in which the state may be interested, directly or indirectly, in cases where, from discrepancies or imperfections in field-notes, it may become necessary for the proper compilation of maps, or for the proper location and identification of said lands upon the ground, the commissioner of the general land office is hereby invested with full power and authority to have such surveys made as he may deem necessary, and to appoint competent surveyors for this purpose. [Acts 1887, p. 107.]

Resurveys.—Where two surveys appeared to have been contiguous by the record of the original survey, the fact that subsequent resurveys and alterations in the record showed that they were not contiguous did not invalidate the surveys. Barrow v. Grid-

The rule for resurvey by the land commissioner of school lands sold to a purchaser and containing an excess of acreage stated. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 148 S. W. 141.

Correction of surveys.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that the numbers of certain surveys were changed in the land office by the commissioner and orders given to the surveyor to make the same changes in the field notes. Lee v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 161
S. W. 868.

Art. 5348. [4262] Bonds, etc.—Any surveyor appointed under the provisions of this law shall make and execute a bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned and payable the same as bonds of county and district surveyors; he shall also take the oath prescribed by the constitution for other officers; said bond to be approved by the commissioner of the general land office and shall be conditioned as other survey-or's bonds. He shall be under the control and direction of the commissioner of the general land office; and, under such direction, may survey the common school, university and asylum lands, or other lands in which the state may be interested, and prepare and return field-notes of same and certify to any and all facts, and generally do and perform such official acts as might lawfully be done by a county or district surveyor, and shall sign his name officially as "state surveyor." [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 5349. [4263] May have lands surveyed, when.—The commissioner of the general land office may have any lands belonging to the common school, university or asylum funds, or other lands in which the state may be interested, or lands alternating therewith, surveyed or resurveyed, and field-notes or corrected field-notes of same returned to his office by any surveyor appointed under this law, which field-notes shall have the same force and effect as if made by the county or district surveyor of the county or district in which said land lies; and, upon the adoption and approval of said field-notes by the commissioner of the general land office, he shall forward to the surveyor of the county or district in which said land lies, certified copies of said field-notes, which thereafter shall be a part of the records of said surveyor's office. In carrying out the provisions of this law, the commissioner of the general land office may, when requested by the owner of lands alternating with the lands resurveyed under the provisions of this law, cancel patents, and in lieu thereof issue patents in accordance with said resurvey; provided, that all such owners shall pay the expenses incurred in making such corrected surveys of their lands and in issuing said patents; provided, that no claims shall be created against the state for services performed under this law in the absence of a previous appropriation therefor. [Id.]

Acceptance of resurvey.—It is a condition precedent to the consummation of an agreement for the resurvey of school lands by a state surveyor as authorized by Rev. St. 1896, arts. 4261-4266c, that the resurvey be accepted by the land office, unless waived by the parties. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 1110.

Art. 5350. Mineral lands to be surveyed; points marked; surveyor appointed; his salary.—The commissioner of the general land office of Texas may employ a state surveyor, or surveyors, whose duty it shall be to definitely locate on the ground such school land surveys, or blocks of surveys as the said commissioner may designate between the Pecos river and the Rio Grande, commencing at such point in the mineral bearing territory of Brewster county as may appear to be most advantageous to the state. The said surveyor, or surveyors, shall qualify as now provided by statute for state surveyors before entering upon his duties, and shall be under the direction of and subject to the orders of said commissioner. He shall file in the general land office the field-notes and maps of his work; and, when approved by the commissioner, the lines so established, as evidenced by such field-notes and maps, shall be the established lines of the surveys or blocks of surveys represented thereby. All surveys made shall be marked by permanent natural or artificial objects. The said surveyor shall receive for his services, not to exceed one hundred and sixty-five dollars per month, and to be paid in the same manner as are other employes of the said land office. [Acts 1907, p. 285, sec. 1.]

Art. 5351. Land commissioner to co-operate with United States geological survey; regulations as to co-operation.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized to confer with the director of the United States geological survey, and to accept the co-operation of the United States with this state in the execution of a topographic survey and map of the territory which is hereby authorized to be surveyed. The said commissioner shall have the power to arrange with said director, or other authorized representative of the United States geological survey, concerning the details of said work and the method of its execution; provided, that the said director of the United States geological survey shall agree to expend on the part of the United States upon said work a sum equal to that hereby appropriated, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to secure the proper topographic map or maps. In arranging details heretofore referred to, the said commissioner shall, in addition to such other provisions as he may deem wise, require that the topographer in charge shall give a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned and payable the same as that required of the surveyor provided for above, and that the maps resulting from this survey shall be similar in general design and quality to the Van Horn quadrangle of El Paso county, edition of March, 1906, made by the United States geological survey, and shall show the outlines of all surveys, and kinds of timber and vegetable growth of commercial value, the location of all natural or artificial water roads and shall show the contour lines showing the elevation and depression for every one hundred feet in vertical interval of the surface of the county; that the resulting map or maps shall wholly recognize the co-operation of the state of Texas and that as each manuscript quadrangle of the map or maps is completed, the commissioner shall be furnished by the United States geological survey with photographic copies of the same, and as the engraving on each quadrangle is completed, the commissioner shall be furnished by said director with the resulting maps. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5352. Persons owning private lands may co-operate.—Should any person or persons, owning private lands which alternate with the school land, desire to co-operate with the commissioner of the general land office in having the surveying done and in having the topographic map or maps made, as above provided for, such services and co-operation may be accepted upon a fair division of the expense. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5353. General authority of commissioner to have surveys made; compensation of official; state surveys, etc.—Whenever the commissioner of the general land office shall deem it to the best interest of the state to cause to be made a survey or resurvey of any land or lands which are now, or which may be, owned or claimed by the state of Texas, or which commissioner may deem it expedient to have surveyed, or resurveyed, in order to determine whether such land or lands are owned or should be claimed or sued for by the state of Texas, he may designate and employ one or more competent and experienced surveyors, each to be known as, "Special state surveyor," to do such work, and shall be authorized to allow and pay, as hereinafter provided, reasonable compensation for such services, the amount of such compensation to be determined by such commissioner, not exceeding in any instance the rate of two hundred dollars per month, and may also incur and pay, as hereinafter provided, any and all reasonable expenses which may be incidentally involved in or connected with the making of any and all such surveys and resurveys. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5354. Official surveyors, how commissioned; qualified.—Any such designation of any and all such surveyors shall be evidenced by a written instrument which shall be signed by the commissioner of the general land office, officially, and attested by his seal of office, and such written instrument shall designate, in at least general terms, the land or lands which such surveyor or surveyors may be so designated and employed to survey or resurvey; and before doing any such work, such surveyor or surveyors shall take and subscribe before an officer authorized by law to administer oaths within this state, an affidavit to the effect that affiant will faithfully, impartially and to the best of his knowledge and ability make the survey or resurvey called for in such instrument of designation; and such affidavit shall be endorsed upon or attached to such instrument of designation. Such instrument of designation, together with such affidavits, shall be filed in the general land office before any such work shall be done thereunder. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5355. Field-notes to be returned; force and effect of.—Field-notes and a plat of any and all such surveys and resurveys, signed by such special state surveyor, or surveyors, shall be returned to and filed in the general land office, and shall thereafter have the same force and effect as if made and returned by a district or county surveyor under existing laws. [Id. sec. 8.]

See note under Art. 5336.

Former law.—Act Feb. 10, 1852 (Laws 1852, c. 69), provided that the field notes of all surveys made previous to the passage of the act "shall be laid out and returned in the manner required by law to the general land office on or before the 31st of August, 1853, or they shall become null and void, and the said surveys shall become vacant land, and be subject to be relocated and surveyed as in other cases by a person holding a genuine land certificate or other legal evidence of claim to land." Held, that the act referred only to surveys of land made under laws of the republic or state of Texas, and not to titles previously granted by the Spanish or Mexican government. State v. Gallardo (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 664.

Conflicting surveys.—Where the field-notes of a survey actually made in 1840 were recorded, and a patent issued in 1846, such patent was held superior to another issued in 1846 on a conflicting survey made in 1844. Waterhouse v. Corbett, 43 C. A. 512, 96 S. W. 651.

Where a survey under which plaintiff claimed was the oldest, the superior right was in the plaintiff, notwithstanding that other surveys were patented first. Compton v. Hatch (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1052.

Where one having a junior survey accepted a patent according to corrected field-notes, he cannot claim any land included in the original survey, but excluded from the corrected survey and patent. Jones v. Petty (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 663.

Where surveys are in conflict, the junior survey must yield to the senior survey to the extent of the conflict. Guillory v. Allums (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 668.

Evidence held to justify a finding of a conflict in surveys of public lands, so that, to the extent of the conflict, the junior survey must yield. Id.

Art. 5356. Conflicts in alternate surveys; how adjusted.—In all cases where land certificates granted by the state have been located in a block or blocks of two or more alternate surveys, and either or all of such surveys are found to be either wholly or partly in conflict with older valid surveys, such individual surveys as may not be patented in such block or blocks, and which may conflict as aforesaid, and such school surveys, except those which may be sold, or those which may have been sold and were in good standing on the thirty-first day of October, 1898, or those for which there may be pending purchase applications in general land office at the time said commissioner of the general land office shall issue his instructions to the surveyor, as hereinafter provided, may be adjusted under the direction of the commissioner of the general land office as provided herein. [Acts 1899, p. 330, sec. 1.]

Art. 5357. Surveyor's duties in adjusting conflicts.—When any such adjustment is desired, as mentioned in the preceding article, the said commissioner shall, upon request of the party owning such individual survey or surveys, or, in the absence of such application, upon his own judgment, direct the proper surveyor of the county in which such conflicting surveys may be situated, to survey such sections as may be in conflict, and so alter or change the field-notes of each and every survey for which an adjustment is sought, except where the school survey has been sold or applied for as above provided; and, in making such change or alteration, the said surveyor shall divide the total area of the individual survey and its alternate school survey equally between the individual and the school survey, unless there is an excess, in which case the excess shall go to the school survey, and patents shall issue accordingly; provided, that the state shall not be required to pay any costs in the matter of resurveying and setting the boundary lines of said lands as provided for in this chapter. [Id. sec. 2.]

Segregation of excess.—The land commissioner, on discovery of an excess of school lands in a section or survey purchased from the state in good faith, must segregate the excess by separating it from the body of the section as resurveyed in a body as near a square as practicable, starting at the beginning corner of the original survey. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91.

Art. 5358. In case of conflict, to issue in what cases.—The commissioner of the general land office shall ascertain the entire number of acres in the school surveys wholly or partly free from conflict, exclusive of any excess there may be in each of said school sections, in any particular block, and also the entire number of acres in the individual surveys free from conflict in such block, and shall issue patents on enough of the individual surveys, if there be enough, to equal in area the total... area of said school surveys so wholly or in part free from conflict, without considering the excess in each school section; and, in case the total area of the individual surveys in any particular block exceeds the total area of the school surveys, then such excess shall be equally divided between the individual and the school surveys, and patents shall issue accordingly; and if in any case the total area of the school surveys in any particular block, not including any excess there may be in each school section, nor to give any individual any more than their respective total complement by reason of such resurvey, exceeds the total area of the individual surveys, then such excess shall be equally divided between the individual and school surveys, and patents shall issue accordingly; provided, sufficient amount of the school surveys not sold or applied as aforesaid remain to admit of such division. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5359. In cases of conflict number of surveys changed; correction made to protect purchasers.—Where purchasers of school lands have been misled as to the correct lines of their surveys, and have improvements thereon, the commissioner of the general land office may, by the written consent of the purchaser of the school survey and the owner of the individual survey, filed in the general land office, be authorized to change the number of surveys, or have them so corrected as to protect the improvements of the purchaser of the school lands. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5360. Third persons protected.—The provisions of this chapter shall not affect prior valid rights of third persons. [Id. sec. 5.]

Chap. 5) LANDS—PUBLIC Art. 5360

peal dismissed 43 S. W. 1, 91 T. 315; Wilkins v. Clauson, 37 C. A. 162, 83 S. W. 742; Ramsauer v. Ball (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 590; Francis v. Patterson, 143 S. W. 678; Rosenthal v. San Co., 61 S. W. 613; Crosby v. Stevenson, id. 1116.

Where other calls of a survey are found to be more material and certain, the jury may, if necessary, disregard a particular boundary line called for in the field notes. Jones v. Andrews, 62 T. 561.

In tracing a survey, controlling importance need not be given to the line first run. Ayers v. Harris, 64 T. 296; Same v. Lancaster, Id. 306.

In arriving at a boundary line as originally run, natural objects are controlling calls; artificial objects, second in importance; course, third; and distance, fourth; and, where there is still uncertainty, that rule should be adopted most consistent with the intent of the grant. Luckett v. Scruggs, 73 T. 519, 11 S. W. 529.

Where all the calls made by the locating surveyor cannot be strictly observed, as few should be regarded as mistakes. Hill v. Smith, 8 C. A. 312, 35 S. W. 1079.

Where plaintiff, in a suit to recover land, only established a conflict between a call for a well-established corner of another survey and one for the established line of another survey, he is not entitled to recover, since the calls are of equal dignity. Morgan v. Nexes (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 155.

Where, on an issue as to the location of a boundary line, it appears that some of the calls in the field notes of the surveyor must be treated as mistakes, those should be selected as made by mistake which will produce the fewest possible conflicts. Lyon v. Waggoner, 37 C. A. 205, 83 S. W. 46.

While, in ascertaining boundaries, calls for rivers and streams are, standing by themselves, awarded highest dignity, calls for artificial objects, the next, and calls for courses and distances the next, yet the relative weight of the various classes of calls is evidentiary merely, and not absolute, and aided by other facts the weakest may overcome the highest, the purpose of the inquiry being to find the footsteps of the surveyor, thus a call for a river will yield, when it is shown that the surveyor did not actually reach the marked line of an adjacent call for a mark will be made to yield, and even a call for an unmarked prairie line will prevail over a call for courses and distances, when it reasonably appears from the evidence that the surveyor actually went to it and intended by his field notes to include the land bounded by it. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 46 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 936.

In locating boundaries, resort is to be had first to natural landmarks, next to artificial monuments, then to adjacent boundaries, and last to courses and distances. Ridgell v. Atkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 129.

The relative dignity of calls in field notes in ascertaining the location of a survey is, first, natural objects, such as streams and timber; second, artificial objects, such as the fixed line of an adjoining survey about which there is no dispute, and then courses and distances. Wilkins v. Clauson, 60 C. A. 92, 119 S. W. 100.

The corner or section of a survey designated by the field notes as the beginning corner or section has no more importance in locating the survey than any other corner or section, so that where all the sections of a survey were surveyed by the same person, in absence of evidence to the contrary the surveys were actually made, it is permissible to begin at the south boundary line and run the sections north, though the field notes call for the beginning at the northern tier of sections of the survey and each tier of sections calls to begin on the tier to the north of it. State v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 652.

As a rule, calls in field notes should be given priority as follows: First, calls for natural objects; second, calls for artificial objects; third, calls for courses; fourth, calls for distance; and, as a corollary to the latter two, calls for quantity. But such rule is not absolute, as calls for a higher order may sometimes be made by mistake, when the calls for lower order those should prevail, and the error be considered, which, under the circumstances, most clearly indicate the intention of the grant. Id.

Where two calls of a grant of public land descriptive of a line or corner lead to different results, the presumption is that one of the calls was inserted by mistake, and the other meant to be the correct one. Id. Rules relating to the comparative dignity of calls are designed to aid in determining which calls of a survey were made by mistake, but the rules relating to actual surveys are frequently not applicable to office surveys. Gilbert v. Finberg (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 607.

3. — Control of elements consistent with intention. — Where there is a call for a corner, designated in a former deed as "K. 's corner," which was not marked, certain, or notorious, and the purchaser buys by a survey, which is the repetition of a former survey, and its lines were established and notorious, he cannot claim to that corner, when he would thus obtain a very much larger tract of land than he purchased; it being clear that the tract so surveyed was intended to be the one set off on partition to his trustee, grantor, who had only this title to convey. Bragg v. Lockhart, 11 T. 190.

Where the boundaries described in a deed to land are inconsistent with each other, those agreed upon to be the best serve to manifest the face of the deed. Browning v. Atkinson, 37 T. 633.

When two descriptive calls are given in a survey, both of equal dignity, as a call for a corner and a marked line, preference will be given to that which is most consistent with the intention derived from the entire description. Harrell v. Morris (Sup.) 5 S. W. 626.

On an issue of the north and south boundary between parties claiming under adjacent surveys, the court held that it was the intention of the surveyor to have defendant's (the later) survey join plaintiff's on the east. It was subsequently found that, to join the surveys, the call for distance on defendant's south line would be short 56 varas in a line 1,300 varas long, and would give the survey 306 acres, instead of the stated 300, and that the evident intention of the surveyor to leave no vacancy between the surveys should control the slight error of distance. Brown v. Bedinger, 72 T. 247, 19 S. W. 90.

A grantor conveyed "lot 1, block 2, town of Concho, M.'s addition to San Angelo, said lot being 60 feet front by 120 feet deep." Afterwards he conveyed to the same gran-
Where the description in a deed contains no patent ambiguity, but, on its application to the land described, it results in a lot of the most singular shape, plainly never intended by the parties, there is no error in ignoring the calls for courses, and applying only the distance, so the evidence thereon is outweighed by the objections to be conveyed may be thereby fully identified. Talkin v. Anderson (Sup.) 19 S. W. 350.

Where the evidence shows it was the intention of the parties to a deed that only the land comprised within the description by courses and distances should be included, such description would control one by number of lot and block. Mullaly v. Noyes (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 145.

Where the deeds in plaintiff's chain of title called for the east line of the H. survey as a western boundary, but in the survey made at the time of purchase, the surveyor stopped at a "rock" before the call for distance was satisfied, for the sole reason that he believed he had reached the H. line, and plaintiff's deed recited an intention to convey the same number of acres as was conveyed by previous deeds in the chain of title, there was evidence showing an intention to convey all the land within the boundaries named in the deed, and the fact that the survey subsequently made erroneously located the boundary did not preclude plaintiff from obtaining the land up to the exact line of the H. survey. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

If the land in a deed is divided into two or more sections and notes of office surveys, calls found to have been made under a mistake as to the relative position of the surveys may be disregarded, and effect given to the real intention of the person who made the field notes. Sellman v. Sellman (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 48.

Where a copy of the plat of the survey and the intention of the surveyor in making the survey, whose lines are uncertain, is the controlling question, the jury should consider his purpose as gathered from what he did in making the survey, the description of the land he gave, and all the circumstances attending the transaction, but not the intention which found expression in his plat, Masterson v. Ribble. 78 S. W. 355, 34 C. A. 270.

The courts will uphold boundaries where a technical error in a call may be disregarded, and the territory attempted to be described thereby ascertained; and any call may be disregarded in order to ascertain the footprints of the surveyor in establishing the boundary of the territory attempted to be marked out on the land. Williams v. State. 107 S. W. 1121, 52 Cr. R. 371.

Where a block of sections of public lands was so marked on a map in the state land office as embraced between two rivers, but the lines of the eastern tier of sections in the block had not been marked on the ground by the surveyor, and it was the intention of the surveyor, the locator, and the state to grant land extending the distance necessary to make up the several tiers of sections as shown on the plat, such intention would not be nullified by the surveyor locating the sections under the mistaken impression that the F. river was east of them; the mistake in plotting being insufficient to control the calls for course and distance embodied in the field notes. Gilbert v. Harris (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 392.

Where different calls in grants of public lands lead to conflicting results, preference must be given to the calls which most probably indicate the intention of the government, as expressed in the face of the grant, read in the light of the surrounding circumstances. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 229.

Calls for marked bearing trees control calls for points supposed to be fixed by other deeds. Mitchell v. Burdett, 22 T. 833.

A surveyor, having run one line to and established a corner at a large spring on which a tree was growing, returned to the beginning, and ran the opposite lines, and, having established another corner, called thence by course and distance to the first one; but a line on such course and distance would materially deflect from the first corner. Held, the first corner would prevail over the course and distance, though the tract thereby included therein was not of the correct width, or, if the certificate for said land and distance were followed, the excess would only be 64 acres. Robertson v. Mosson, 26 T. 248.

When a patent called for fixed and natural objects as corners, and also for the line of another survey, the former is the controlling call, especially when the latter is of uncertain locality. Jones v. Leath, 32 T. 293.

Where there were calls for natural objects, and evidence as to their locality, all tending to fix a disputed line of a grant, an instruction, in effect, telling the jury to resort to evidence in determining the line, is erroneous. Ayers v. Harris, 64 T. 296.

A requirement in a grant that the boundary lines shall be run so as to include certain cultivable lands is a call for a natural object that will control courses and distances. Clark v. Hills, 67 T. 141, 2 S. W. 355.

An instruction that a call for a natural object, such as a creek, or for an artificial object, such as a well-marked and long-established public road, will control course and distance, and also the lines of the survey, unless such lines are actually marked upon the ground, is properly refused where the calls for the creek and road in the survey are in conflict, to so locate the survey would force it 2,500 varas away from all its other connections. Jones v. Andrews, 72 T. 5, 9 S. W. 170.

Plaintiff alleged a vacancy of 1,590 varas between two surveys having a common east line and three others lying to the east of them. Four of them were made by one surveyor, at about the same time, and all, by mutual use of the same lines and corners, were evidenced in line, and to identify the same. There were several stakes, or, at any rate, marked lines were found on the ground, and, to locate their exterior lines by measurement from identified corners of adjacent surveys, several thousand varas distant to the east and west, and measuring the required distances towards the interior, the vacancy would therefore be from other near corners. But, measuring from these new corners, the discrepancy on one side of the line would be trifling. There was evidence from which the court might well find, as it did, that a pile of stones claimed by defendants as a corner in the common line was such corner. No vacancy was shown on the survey map. Each of the corners identified on the map was found by measurements from contiguous surveys, and, while there was an apparent excess of land in some of the surveys, there was no vacancy. Bookner v. Hart, 77 T. 146, 12 S. W. 15.

Though call for natural objects in a deed as a general rule controls courses and distances, it does not control absolutely. Linney v. Wood, 66 T. 22, 17 S. W. 244.

Land had been conveyed to plaintiffs, less "a certain piece or parcel of land herefo­fore called W. N. B. R. 983, section 106," by deeds referred to as defendant. The survey of which such deed made the north and south lines of the land (a parallelogram) each 135.6 varas long, commencing at the "west boundary line of the Parker county survey," whereas that line, as established by objects, and with reference to which, as so established, the parties had contracted, was 70 varas farther east than the calls of the deed of distance. Plaintiffs claimed the intervening strip. Held, that the line as est­ablished by objects, and not by the calls of the deed for distance, should prevail, and that defendant was entitled to judgment. Davis v. Baylor (Sup.) 19 S. W. 522.

Where a controversy over surveys and other boundary lines, courses and distances yield to natural and ascertained objects, Warden v. Harris (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 834.

The field notes of the survey of the J. county school land, described its northeast corner as "northeastly corners," the field notes of a survey of its southwest corner as "a series of surveys made 30 years ago as one block, and calling for another, called for the southwest corner of a survey to the northeast which was well established, and for the north line of the school land survey as located by the witness." The calls for distance in the school land survey were nearly all erroneous and excessive. The evidence tended to show that, by fixing the northeast corner where witness had found it, it would be a little too far east, and, taking it for the northwest corner of said adjoining survey, one of the calls of the land line could not fit, and, not a little, the north line of the school land survey would extend a few varas beyond the south line of the survey located towards the northeast, for whose southwest corner one of the surveys in said block of surveys called. Held, that the defendant should find the monument disregarded, and by the witness taken as the northeast corner. Allen v. Worsham (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 525.

Where a boundary line is sufficiently identified along its course by natural objects, it will control distance wherever it is called for in the field notes of a survey, if there is a conflict; but the presumption being that the surveyor actually made the survey on the ground, and established the corners as called. Burge v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 81.

Where there is no ambiguity on the face of a deed which calls for marked corners, found on the ground, and the course and distance of one of the lines do not correspond with such corners, the line must run straight between the corners. Sloan v. King, 69 S. W. 541, 29 C. A. 599.

Where a deed calls for a line identified by natural and artificial objects called for, such line will prevail over an inconsistent call for distance. Thaxton v. Wadsworth (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 91.

Where a survey called for a specified distance to a stake, the call for distance must yield on the location of the stake being established, the order of control of conflicting calls being, first, natural objects; second, artificial objects; and, third, courses and distances. Thatcher v. Matthews, 101 T. 125, 105 S. W. 317.

Where a survey called for a specified distance to a stake, the call for distance must yield on the location of the stake being established. Thatcher v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1006.

The courts, in grading the dignity of the different classes of calls found in deeds descriptive of land, intended only to establish a rule for arriving at the location of the boundaries actually established, and the rule that monuments and natural objects are superior to course and distance does not impeach the sufficiency of course and distance to locate a boundary, but course and distance must yield to the superior grade in cases of conflict. Jaggers v. Stringer, 47 C. A. 571, 106 S. W. 151.

The general rule that monuments and natural objects will prevail over calls for course and distance, in cases of conflict, does not apply where the surrounding circum­stances show that the superior marks were placed by inadvertence, or that there was a verbal mistake in the description of the monument or natural object. Id.

A tract was surveyed, and the corners of blocks, lots, streets, and avenues were marked by stakes. The surveyor died soon after, and another surveyor was employed to prepare a plat from the one made at the time of the survey and put it in a condition for record. The corner of a lot as located by the course and distance called for by the plat did not coincide with the corner located by the surveyor's stake. Held, that the stake fixed by the surveyor controlling the calls for course and distance in the plat. Wirkselser v. Board (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 983.

In determining boundaries where there are conflicting calls, calls for course and distance must yield, first, to natural objects, and, second, to artificial objects. Weston v. Mocker (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 461.

Where the calls for courses in the field notes of the W. survey were general and con­flicting, a finding of the court in passing on the facts without a jury that a call for an old building which was nearest the beginning point was more material and certain than...
calls for adjoining surveys, and that it was entitled to greater weight in tracing the footsteps of the surveyor who located the W. survey than the calls given by other surveyors. The calls for corners in adjoining surveys subsequently made, was justified. Jordan v. James, 53 C. A. 408, 115 S. W. 872.

Where there is a conflict between distance and artificial objects, calls for distance must prevail from the face of the paper. If, however, these objects are identified on the ground by bearing trees, or are identified on the ground by monuments which would yield the calls for corners and lines if not so great as to require an exception to such rule. Daughtrey v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1060.

5. — Control of water courses, highways and fences over other elements.—Where a surveyor, on one side of a natural or artificial objects and lines lying on the lines will be so run as that none of them shall cross the river, notwithstanding that, if the courses and distances were followed, the tract would include land across the river. Phillips v. Ayres, 46 S. 901.

On a question whether a sheriff, in executing a writ of possession, correctly interpreted a part of the decree calling for a line from a point on a lake; “thence southward with the meanders of said lake 405 varas to the mouth of the lake on the south bank, thence south,” the jury were warranted in finding that he should have run the line from the point on the lake instead of from the point to which the 405 varas were carried, since, that point was necessarily variable, depending upon the distance from the water line at which the meanders were run. Jackel v. Reiman, 78 T. 588, 14 S. W. 1001.

The patent to a survey, after establishing the northeast corner, called “thence west 6,127 varas, a stake in the south bank of W., a cottonwood 4 inches in dia. brs. S. 45 ½ deg. W. 217 varas, a do. 12 in. in dia. brs. S. 43 ¼ deg. W. 210 varas, a bushy topped elm mkd. S. brs. N. 39 deg. E. about 418 varas.” Locating the northwest corner 413 varas from the elm as called for, in the patent made the distance between the northeast and northwest corners 6,343 varas. Held, that as the court had changed its course since the survey, and there was evidence that the northwest corner when originally located was 203 varas from the elm, the call for the distance between the two corners, and not the call for course and distance from the bearing tree to the northwest corner, should prevail, since the call for the bank of the river was originally the controlling circumstance by which the northwest corner would be located. Meade v. Leon & H. Blum Land Co. (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 286.

Where a survey of land borders on a marsh or lake, a strip of three acres of land extending into the water beyond a straight line called for by the surveyor, and shown on the map of the land, is part of such survey; and this, though the law requires the court to follow the footsteps of the surveyor in determining the boundary of a given tract. Bland v. Smith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 49.

Calls for course and distance must yield to a call for the meanders of a creek. Moore v. Oggins (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 183.

A call for a creek in the field notes of a survey calling for a stake as the beginning, and from thence north at 3,200 vrs. a creek, at 3,800 vrs. a stake, thence west at 4,125 vrs. a stake, etc., to the point of beginning, is a descriptive and not a locative call, and is not of higher dignity than a call for course and distance. Bunkle v. Smith (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 745.

Where, notwithstanding a call for a river or a marked line of an older survey, it is shown by other evidence that the survey did not reach the stream or the marked line, the call for the river or line will yield. Gooden v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science, and Art v. Gieseke (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 612.

6. Control of metes and bounds or courses and distances over other elements. — A general recital of quantity in a deed or grant must yield to metes and bounds. Dalton v. Rust, 22 T. 133.

A course and distance from an established point will prevail over a supposed line and corner which at the time of the grant had not been run and established. McCown v. Hill, 26 T. 359.

When the lines called for are of doubtful identity, course and distance should be resorted to, as furnishing the best evidence, the case is susceptible of, since it is only when lines called for in a deed are actually marked, and can be identified, that they control calls for course and distance. Browning v. Atkinson, 37 T. 623.

Where, from actual corners, lines not marked are run by course and distance, and a surveyor finds a different name from that called for in the field notes, it may be inferred that the call for the stream was a mistake, and to that extent course and distance would be regaded, instead of the call for a stream elsewhere marked. Jones v. Burgett, 46 T. 384.

While the general rule, in determining the location of a survey where there are conflicting calls, is that courses and distances must yield to natural or artificial monuments or objects, there are cases where courses and distances will control, as where it is apparent from the face of the grant that such monuments or objects were inserted by mistake, or laid down by conjecture and without regard to rule. Robinson v. Doss, 53 T. 496. Where a call in a deed is for "a corner" in a prairie, with the call to designate it: thence "S., 30 deg. E., with the west line of the A. survey," the call for the older survey does not control the call for distance, the evidence showing a mistake of the surveyor. Oliver v. Mahoney, 61 T. 610.

Where one of the lines of a survey is established, the other lines may be determined by course and distance called for in such a call, disregarding a call for a survey evidently caused by a mistake arising from the inaccuracy of the map in use at the time. Book v. Hunter, 62 T. 582.

A line or corner of another survey called for in field notes made without an actual survey may be disregarded, when evidently called for by mistake, and to observe them would be inconsistent with all other calls, and with the course and distance called for, and the utmost intention of the parties. Id. 583.

Where the upper and lower corners of a tract were identified as located on a river, but the back line of the survey could not be identified by finding either the northwest corner, which was the second called for by the grant, or by identifying the northeast corner by the objects called for, but a marked line was found on the proper course of the east line prolonged beyond what was disputed as the northeast corner, and the first line called for by the grant was the west line, and ran back from one of the established corners on the river, the jury should have been instructed that if they could not fix the northeast corner for the back line, by monuments or marks, they should fix it by courses and distances of the survey, the first or back line being extended to meet the recognized east line as extended beyond the point disputed as the northeast corner. Ayers v. Harris, 64 T. 296.

A deed of conveyance described the land by courses, "to include 571 acres of land, and, if such point will not include sufficient of land to make the complement, 571 acres, it is to run north," under a certain survey, for the deficiency. Held, that the grantee was not restricted to 571 acres, if the tract described contained more. Johnson v. Garrett, 25 T. Sup. 13.

The upper half of a tract of land was taken by a widow for her community share in the land. Subsequently a person purchased from an heir a portion of the whole tract, which had bounded bounds, and bounded the boundaries of the tract, and the widow. Held, that the purchaser could not complain, in an action for partition by one of the heirs, that the widow's half was not included in the suit. Franks v. Hancock, 7 U. C. 354.

A deed purported to convey 160 acres of land, described by metes and bounds, under a survey. The line of the B. survey was once called for, and if treated as controlling, it reduced from 559 to 44 varas a line purporting to have been run according to distance, and reduced the number of acres to 90. The lines and corners connecting the two surveys were in an unoccupied prairie, and the parties knew nothing of the boundaries of either tract. The field notes of that part of the survey did not point to or call for any natural boundary or visible landmark. Held, that the call for distance was controlling. Webb v. Brown, 2 U. C. 38.

Courses and distances will not be made subordinate to an unmarked prairie line, which could not itself be ascertained except by running the boundaries of another survey according to course and distance. Gerald v. Freeman, 68 T. 201, 4 S. W. 258; Johnson v. Archibald, 73 T. 56, 14 S. W. 397, 22 Am. St. Rep. 27.

The southeast corner of a survey was fixed with reasonable certainty, though not by the objects called for, which had disappeared, and the northwestern corner with absolute certainty, and corners from these corners, on courses called for, would intersect at a point from which the true bearing of a tree referred to in the patent would be S., 30 W., 96 varas. The patent named the bearing of the tree from the corner as S., 30 E., 96 varas. Held, that the point of intersection, found by running lines as described, should be considered in determining the corner, rather than the tree corner, and not the tree, from the tree given in the patent, and rejecting the courses from the southeast and northwest corners. Davidson v. Killen, 68 T. 406, 4 S. W. 561.

Where, in an office survey, a line was described as running from a fixed point south to a mark on the prairie line, not established, not the true line, and using a direction not designated course, it being intended that the line should run north and south, held, that the second line named being descriptive, and not locative, should be disregarded, and that the line should follow the course named. Lilly v. Blum, 70 T. 764, 6 S. W. 279.

Though courses and distances are the lowest in dignity and importance of calls employed in grants, yet, when the land can be more certainly identified by running the courses and distances, the grant should be so determined. Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 150, 7 S. W. 315.

It is not prejudicial error to charge that, if the jury can fix the lines of the survey in harmony with its calls and known corners, then the fact that the lines would include more than the area called for in the grant becomes immaterial, and the extent of the area shall not be considered as a circumstance further than the correctness, with all the evidence in the case, in following the footsteps of the original surveyor, and fixing the true boundaries of said grant," where the lines as claimed by plaintiff include more than was intended to be conveyed by the grant. Ayers v. Harris, 77 T. 106, 13 S. W. 785.

Plaintiffs' survey described the courses as running south a certain distance to the northern boundary line of survey No. 128, and east along the northern boundary of No. 128 and No. 122; but according to the distance recited in the survey the west line would fail short of the line, having a strip of land, No. 128, it is true, not designated boundary of plaintiffs' survey. The survey of No. 122, made about the same time as plaintiffs' survey, called for the south boundary of plaintiffs' survey as its northern boundary, and made about the same dates as the surveys made in the above survey, it appearing that such was the boundary line. Held, that the courses and boundaries will prevail against the distance recited in plaintiffs' survey, making it extend south to the north boundaries of Nos. 138 and 132. Wyatt v. Foster, 79 T. 413, 16 S. W. 679.

In trespass to try title, there was evidence that one B., the original grantor of the land, had fixed the outer boundaries of the farm lots of which plaintiff's and defendant's lots were subdivisions, and also that a line had been originally run and marked along where the street had terminated. There was further evidence that the grantees of B., through whom plaintiff and defendant, respectively, claimed title, may have fixed by agreement a line between the lots in controversy. Held, that course and distance line of the street westwardly of the said lot No. 29, as hereinafter described, means for the determination of the line between the lots, since there was other evidence authorizing a finding as to the boundary between the parties. Machon v. Randle, 66 T. 283, 17 S. W. 472.

When a surveyor establishes two initial points on the ground itself, and from these the remaining surveys are plotted in on a map, and in the plot calls are made for a river, the true course of which the surveyor has mistaken, the surveys must be run out as plotted, the calls for the river yielding to course and distance. New York & T. Land Co. v. Thomson, 83 T. 199, 100, 21 S. W. 920.

The statement of the quantity of land supposed to be conveyed, and inserted in deeds by way of description, must yield to courses and distances. Rand v. Cartwright, 83 T. 399, 14 S. W. 794.

When a departure from either course or distance becomes necessary, the distance should yield. Id.

Land granted by the state had been simply platted on paper without an actual survey having been made. The second corner called for was 360 yards further distant from the beginning corner than the distance specified in the patent. There were other calls in the patent for well-established monuments. Held, that other calls of the patent, as well as course and distance, should be looked to in determining what was the particular land intended to be conveyed. Roberts v. Helm, 1 C. A. 196, 20 S. W. 1984.

A survey called for from a certain point south 712 varas; thence east 1,438 varas, calling for the northeast corner of survey No. 1,158, which was an open corner. It was contended that the call for the northeast corner of 1,158 should control, extending the line as read "south 712 feet" and extending 1,438 varas, or"south 712 feet east 1,438 varas," as there was no other evidence that plaintiff is confined to the 50 feet of land lying between the fence and stakes, since the courses in a deed must yield to distances when such was the evident Intention of the parties. Waring v. Blasingame, 94 S. A. 46, 21 S. W. 769.

Where the calls in a surveyor's field notes can be ascertained, they control an ascertainable object not called for. Ratliff v. Burleson, 7 C. A. 621, 25 S. W. 983, 26 S. W. 1063.

Where there are no monuments, the land must be bounded by the courses and distances as described in the patent deed. Id.

The courses and distances in the survey about which there is a dispute will prevail over those of adjacent surveys. Tippen v. McCampbell (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 647.

Where there is a call in the field notes of a younger survey for the west line and southerly line of the older survey, the corners of all the latter survey cannot be run at a variation different from that called for in its field notes, to reach an unmarked tree not clearly identified as the original corner, but must be run at its proper course and distance. Williams v. Beckham, 6 C. A. 735, 25 S. W. 652.

In supposing the surveyor mistakenly reached the western lines of an older survey when running the course and distance called for, the calls for course and distance should control in locating boundaries. Apanas Pass Colonization Co. v. Fippen (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 312.

The International & Great Northern survey No. 500 called for the south line of the Silvey league as its northern boundary. It also called for the northeast corner of I. & G. N. survey No. 11 as its northwest corner. The north line of the I. & G. N. surveys was a continuous one, and at the time such surveys were made the Silvey southern line was shown by the maps of the general land office, and was then supposed to be at the point called for by the field notes of the I. & G. N. surveys. Subsequent surveys showed that the Silvey line was located further north. The I. & G. N. surveys could not be extended so as to reach the Silvey line as it was truly located, without disregarding calls for distance, as well as calls for surveys on which they were based. Held, that the call for the Silvey line, manifestly a mistake, was controlled by the calls for distance and the other surveys. Layton v. New York & T. Land Co. (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 1120.

The rule that marked trees and lines, when found on the ground and identified, control calls for courses and distances, has no application where the survey was not made on the ground, but was copied from other surveys. Bell v. Preston, 47 S. W. 735, 733, 19 C. A. 375.

A call in a patent read, "Thence south with the east boundary line of the Thompson survey 1,344 varas, to the northeast corner on the S. B. line of the John Davis survey." The call for the S. B. line of the Davis survey was incorrect, as that line would have to be extended farther to the corner. Held, that the corner of the Thompson survey and the distance being correct, they would control. Warden v. Harris (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 834.

A survey of plaintiff's land called for the well-established corner of another survey, and extended beyond that corner another 360 feet, and plaintiff's surveyor, in laying his survey, supposed that corner was the northeast corner of another survey, and extended beyond it. Held, that the survey it was accepted that that corner marked the western boundary of another survey adjacent to plaintiff on the east, which the owner occupied, but it was later discovered that the true boundary of such survey was a considerable distance further east. The line from the corner to plaintiff's south line marking his eastern boundary was well established by the marks and calls for distances, but the survey called for the western boundary of the adjacent survey. Held, that plaintiff's eastern boundary did not extend to the lands in question. (Organ v. Mow; survey, 41 S. W. 156).

In a suit to determine a boundary the court cannot properly state to the jury that the location of a certain stake as a corner of the survey was the controverting inquiry, and, if the surveyor, who made the survey, joined it, that would terminate the controversy, as the call for the stake could not control the call for distance from the beginning corner. Matthews v. Thatcher, 78 S. W. 61, 33 C. A. 133.

Lines and boundaries described in a deed cannot be controlled by objects found on the land, indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, where there are no calls in the deed for such objects. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 81 S. W. 781, 36 C. A. 121.

Where, in an action to determine a disputed boundary, there is sufficient evidence to induce the belief that there is a mistake in a call for natural or artificial objects, and not in the call for course and distance, the latter will prevail. Hamilton v. Blackburn, 43 C. A. 153, 95 S. W. 1094.

Where the call for distances in a senior survey includes land in a junior survey, and there is nothing to limit the force of the call for distances in the senior survey, the call for distances therein controls. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

Lines and boundaries described in a deed cannot be controlled by objects found on the ground, indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, where there are no calls in the deed for such objects. Brodbent v. Carper (Clv. App.) 100 S. W. 183.

The rule that where the lines of a survey were run on the ground, and a monument fixed in a certain place was called for, the call for the monument is superior to the call for course and distance does not apply where the monument called for was not placed in position by the surveyor, but was merely an office call, and when, in such a case, a call for course and distance will maintain the integrity of an older survey, it will take precedence over the fictitious call for a monument. Holdsworth v. Gates, 50 C. A. 347, 110 S. W. 527.

An office survey was intended to follow the line of an older survey, and called for a monument which was not located on the ground. Following the call for course and distance, the original shape of the older survey would be preserved, while, following the call for the beginning corner of the older survey, the integrity of the original shape of the survey would be destroyed. Held, that the call for course and distance governed, and the boundary of the office survey must follow the call for course and distance. Id.

In determining the true dividing line between surveys, if, from a definite beginning point, the monuments with reasonable certainty locate and identify the line, course and distance will control. Guill v. O'Bryan (Clv. App.) 121 S. W. 593.

Where no marked trees are on a patented survey identified as those of the grant, the true boundary must be ascertained by courses and distance given in the patent. Id.

Where nothing appears on the face of grants, or from testimony, to indicate that any other course was observed in making the surveys than true north and south lines, and the adoption of magnetic lines would lead to results inconsistent with calls of one of the grants, the true north and south lines should control. Barrera v. Guerra (Clv. App.) 122 S. W. 502.

Where there is a discrepancy between the call for quantity in a deed and the boundary calls therein, the call for quantity must yield to the calls in the field notes for the location of the lines. Pratt v. Townsend (Clv. App.) 125 S. W. 111.

When land is described by clear and distinct metes and bounds, from which the boundaries can be readily ascertained, such description will control any general words of description added thereto. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Clv. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Where marked trees Nos. 13, 8, 14, and others, and unmarked trees in locating such surveys, that the N. W. corner of the H. survey with reference to which they were located was 256 varas west from where it was in fact, at a point due north from the recognized N. E. corner of survey No. 13, the call for course and distance from the undisputed boundary line is the true corner of No. 13 and No. 8, instead of the mistaken call for the N. W. corner of the H. survey, should be adopted; the fact that such latter corner was well identified not making the call for it controlling. Irrespective of the mistake in its location. Lafferty v. Stevenson (Clv. App.) 137 S. W. 219.

The calls for the line of another survey do not prevail over courses and distances. Love v. Jones (Clv. App.) 138 S. W. 1128.

Where the land contained in an office survey was described as laid out by courses and distances, it embraced only the amount of the description. Id.

Where a line called for in the field notes of a county school land survey was an open unmarked line, the corners of the school survey must be located by course and distance. Polk County v. Stevens (Clv. App.) 143 S. W. 204.

Where the field notes of a county school land survey are complete and consistent the calls must control. Id.

The calls in the report of commissioners of partition and the decree and deeds purport thereto for a certain corner of a league as the starting point and courses and distances therefrom govern, in the absence of agreement to the contrary or estoppel, the question of boundary over calls in the field notes of the commissioners' surveyor for trees identifying corners. Blair v. McGuire (Clv. App.) 147 S. W. 354.

Course and distance will control natural marks or boundaries, if it appears that the latter were inserted by mistake, or were laid down by conjecture, and without regard to rule. Crosby v. Stevenson (Clv. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

7. Control of lines marked or surveyed over other elements.—Where the lines of a survey have been run, and can be found, they constitute the true boundaries, which must not be departed from, or made to yield to course and distance, and thereby lose the definite and definite matter of description or identity. Bolton v. Lann, 16 T. 56.

Lines actually marked must be adhered to, though they vary from the course or distance. Dalby v. Booth, 16 T. 565; Anderson v. Stamp, 19 T. 469; Bartlett v. Hubert, 21 T. 5; Scott v. Upham, 23 T. 564; Williams v. Mayfield, 24 T. 564; Marshall v. Crawford, 2 U. C. 477; Luckett v. Bragg, 72 T. 519, 11 S. W. 529; Worsham v. Morgan (Clv. App.)
Art. 5360

LANDS—PUBLIC

(Title 79)

Where the map or diagram, bounded by a pair of its sides by the lines of former surveys, which lines are called in the grant, but the actual survey, through mistake, has not been made so as to coincide with said lines, the lines actually run will control the lines here described. Stamps v. T. G. L. 460.

Calls for marked lines control calls for points supposed to be fixed by other deeds. Mitchell v. Burdett, 22 T. 633.

The rule that the corner of a survey is not necessarily a more certain and material marking than matching trees called a line or marked, and will not necessarily control calls for those objects, obtains where the grant calls for the southwest corner of another survey as the beginning corner, and no such bearing trees or witness trees as those wherein described were to be found there, nor any such marked line run through there. The court held that if 1,000 yards north of said southwest corner, the surveyor was probably mistaken in supposing, when there, that he was on the corner. Duren v. Presberry, 25 T. 612.

Calls in a grant, any identified lines or points that were run and established on the ground previous to the grant will prevail over course and distance, regardless of the configuration or excess of area resulting from closing the lines. McGown v. Hill, 26 T. 658.

The location of the lines of a survey is to be determined by the lines as actually run upon the ground, where this can be ascertained; nor will this rule be varied because a call is made to run to the line of an older survey, if that line was never reached in the survey actually made, but the surveyor stopped at another line, which was mistaken for it. Burnett v. Burris, 30 T. 561.

The statement of the quantity of land supposed to be conveyed and inserted in deeds by way of description must yield to marked lines. Id.

Proof that a surveyor established a line and corner will control a call for an adjoining survey, which would be reached by prolonging the line further. Castlemane v. Pouton, 51 T. 84.

A call for a corner, which though not recognized by natural or artificial objects at the perimeter established marked lines by establishing a line intersecting, will take preference of a call for distance. Buford v. Gray, 51 T. 331.

A call for a corner, not recognized by natural or artificial objects, but clearly established by marked lines, will prevail over a call for quantity. Id.

Where the grantor has issued two surveys for the same tract of land, each located and surveyed at the same time, and which call for a common marked corner and a common divisional line, the location of the dividing line is not affected by the fact that by observing it an excess of 1,000 acres would be contained in one of the surveys. Bunton v. Carrwell, 53 T. 498.

The corner of an adjoining survey, called for as a beginning point, does not necessarily control, but will yield to other satisfactory indicia as to where the true line was in fact drawn. A call for the corner as a beginning was a mistake of the surveyor, capable of correction by other objects corresponding with the calls in the grant. Jones v. Andrews, 62 T. 652.

Where a marked line is called for in a league grant, and that line can be identified, it will control a call for a course and distance; but where the grant calls for no line, but the field notes in the title call for a width of 2,000 varas, and one line being well established, an old line with marks corresponding in age with the date of the grant is found at such a distance from it as will make the grant 2,560 varas wide, the mere fact of such a line being found will not compel the extension of the grant to such line, instead of the 2,000-vara line. Fagan v. Stoner, 67 T. 286, 3 S. W. 44.

The grantor described the land by the true distances bounding the tract, but, by mistake, referred to a boundary line which made the grant convey a strip in excess of the land in the grant. The latter moved his fence and the grantee, as an object, the extra strip, recorded his deed, and conveyed to defendant, a bona fide purchaser. In an action by the grantor to recover of defendant, held, that the boundary as fixed on the ground grew by the calls for distance recited in the deed to defendant's grantor. Garrison v. Crowell, 67 T. 625, 4 S. W. 65.

Where the defendant's title to a certain tract of land depended upon whether the land was included in plaintiff's survey or not, and it appeared that, if the boundaries of plaintiff's land were determined according to the course and distance called for in plaintiff's patent, the tract would not be therein included, while it would if the boundaries were determined according to certain marked corners called for, held, that the marked corners called for should be taken as the true corners, and the course of the lines hence run as designated in the field notes without regard to distance. McAninch v. Freeman, 69 T. 446, 4 S. W. 369.

In a controversy concerning the true boundary of a tract of land which had been surveyed at different times and by different methods, the rule that marked lines shall control in establishing the boundary does not prevail, unless it is shown that they were made upon the original survey. Moore v. Whitcomb (Sup.) 4 S. W. 373.

If there are conflicting calls indicating two distinct lines of a survey, that actually run by the surveyor will prevail. Duff v. Moore, 68 T. 270, 4 S. W. 530.

The rule that a call for a marked line will prevail over a call for distance does not apply where there are no objects, natural or artificial, to show the line. Id.

In an action to recover a tract of land lying between a slough and a river, plaintiff claimed that the line and corner taken by the grant was that marked by the river, and the defendant introduced evidence that the surveyor who surveyed the grant meandered the slough instead of the river. Held that, in determining the true boundaries of the grant, the sole question was to ascertain exactly where the surveyor ran his lines, and, if it appeared that he ran the line along the slough, they should find for the defendant. Allen v. Koepsel, 77 T. 505, 14 S. W. 151.

Where the calls of the field notes of the title papers under which both parties claim begin at the corner of a certain survey, and plaintiff's title papers locate that corner at a rock set in the ground, which is there at the time of trial, but the survey made by order of court shows that this rock is not at the place where the calls in the original survey were run, because of the fact that it is not to be determined by the line and distance of the original survey, but it is to be located by the jury where it appears from the evidence to have actually been located originally. Evans v. Foster, 79 T. 48, 15 S. W. 170.

In an action involving the location of a boundary line between the M. and the A. surveys, it appeared that the M. survey adjoined the A. on the north, and that the disputed line was located in each survey by reference to the south lane of the P. survey, which was marked on the ground. The P. survey adjoined the M. on the west. The two surveys were made by the same surveyor. The calls of the A. survey, when compared with those of the M. survey, were found to differ, in part, by reason of the additional diagonal runs made by the M. surveyor. The lines of the M. survey were not shown to have been made on the ground, were as follows for the western and northern boundaries: From the S. W. corner "N. 10,017 varas, to a stake in S. B. line of the P. survey; thence E., passing S. E. cor. of said P. survey, and S. W. cor. of the M. survey, 15,194 varas, thence in the parallel line, 15,194 varas; thence S. 4,116 varas parallel to the west and south lines of the survey, described therein as follows: From N. W. corner "S. 3,885 varas, pass N. E. cor. of P. survey, 13,655 varas, S. E. cor. of same on N. line, then S. 7,327 varas, going bearing 50 degrees; and thence said line, 8,737 varas, to beginning." The course "N. 10,017 varas" in the A. survey would carry the M. corner of that survey 1,084 varas north of the south line of the P. Held, that the south line of the P., being marked on the ground, and being called for in both the A. and the M. surveys, would control the courses and distances given therein, and the south line of the P., extended east, was the boundary between the M. and the A. Montague County v. Clay County Land & Cattle Co., 80 T. 392, 16 S. W. 902.

A deed professed to convey "400 acres, more or less, out of the southeast corner" of a certain survey, and described the tract conveyed by notes and bounds, courses and distances. According to the courses and distances the land conveyed did not reach to the east line of the survey. It was proved that when the tract was surveyed by the M. surveyor, it did not and should not be found controlled by the west corners of the tract. The position of these corners was not disputed. There were 400 acres within the courses and distances named in the deed. Held, that the deed passed title to all the land between the west corners of the tract and the east line of the survey. Baker v. N. L. Light, 8 T. 627, 16 S. W. 690.

In surveying and subdividing a grant the northern line was established and marked on the ground south of the true northern line. The northeastern subdivision was conveyed to defendant according to the plat made of the survey, the deed also calling for a certain number of acres; the number contained in it taking the line as established and marked for its northern boundary. Plaintiff had not seen the line on the ground, and bought according to the plat, which indicated the subdivision to be in the extreme northeast of the grant; but, for a long time thereafter, he supposed the line as marked to be the line marked fixed the northern boundary of plaintiff's purchase. Smith v. Boone, 84 T. 526, 19 S. W. 702.

Where land is actually surveyed, and its lines marked, they control over the general description "up the bayou." Lutcher & Moore Lumber Co. v. Hart (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 94.

Where a purchaser bought a subdivision of an original survey, which survey, as made upon the ground, is shown with certainty, calls in the deed must yield; and the fact that the deed, by mistake, called for a north line 226 varas further north than the surveyor actually ran and established the line, does not entitle such purchaser to go to that line, and take in land not embraced in the original survey. Shelton v. Bone (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 224.

Where there was an inconsistent description in a survey, by reason of a call for two points to be coincident, which in fact were not so, and there was evidence that one point was located on the ground at the time of said survey, and that it corresponded with other descriptions in the survey, thereby tending to show that the line of said survey was intended to control the other line, it will be the duty of the court to determine the point which could only be located by course and distance from an established corner several miles away. Utley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 906.

In making an original survey intended to segregate a particular tract of land from the public domain, the surveyor establishes and marks a corner so it can thereafter be identified on the ground as called for in his field notes, such corner will control a call for another object as another corner, when he did not go on the ground, and established such other corner, but merely supposed that course and distance from the corner established would reach it. Cox v. Finks (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 95, appeal dismissed 43 S. W. 1, 91 T. 318.

Where field notes called for unmarked lines of surrounding older surveys, the position of which could be actually ascertained, and there was no evidence as to how the survey was actually made, it was presumed that the surveyor actually made the survey on the ground, and such unmarked lines prevailed over calls for courses and distances, in case of conflict. Waggoner v. Daniels, 44 S. W. 946.

Where a foreclosure decree designated quarter sections of land, but the distance called for in the field notes does not cover all of such quarter sections, the calls for the marked and established corners override the calls for distance, where nothing more appears to the contrary, thus carry two quarter sections, and the calls for distance but one. Galloway v. State Nat. Bank (W. App.) 56 S. W. 236.

Where, at one end of the line of an original survey, there are evidences of the remaining line in the survey, that is to be regarded as a marked line, and its location cannot be ascertained by running the lines of the original survey by course and distance. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

Where it appears in a boundary suit that there are well-known and undisputed original corners established on the ground in surrounding surveys, that fact does not control other calls which are conflicting, but such fact must be considered by the jury, together with all the other circumstances in evidence, to determine the conflicting calls. Masterson v. Ribble, 78 S. W. 358, 34 C. A. 270.
A call for a marked line as a boundary, which is well marked and defined, controls a call for a beginning corner evidently not on the true boundary line, but in all probability located after the location of the surveys of the land. Deaton v. Foazie (Civ. App.) 90 S.
 W. 534.
A corner called for in a deed will, if identified, be accorded the weight and dignity of a marked line, and will control a call for distances, unless overcome by force of circumstances and shown to be a mistaken call. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 49 C. A. 618, 90
S. W. 898.
In order that a call for a marked boundary line may overcome a call for courses and distances, it must be identified on the ground; but, if this is done, it is immaterial that the marked corner has been destroyed. Id.
The lines as actually run and the corners as actually established, when consistent with other locative calls, fix the true boundaries of a survey. Thatcher v. Matthews, 101 C. 308, 195 S. W. 217.
An owner of 50 acres of land made a subdivision from it which he called a 50-acre subdivision, but there was no evidence that the entire 50-acre tract was included therein. The map of the subdivision purported to have been made from actual survey on the ground, and that in known and fixed object designated was a country road on the west of the tract. The dimensions of all the lots were shown, and they either adjoined each other or were separated by a roadway of designated width. Plaintiff purchased a lot which lay 110 feet from the east line of the subdivision. Held that, in the absence of evidence by the original surveyor, it could not be located 110 feet west of the east line of the original undivided tract, which would be 197.93 feet further east from the country road than the distance shown on the map, but the general rules of surveyor to be followed in laying the lines of a survey should be applied. Cheek v. Foster, 50 C. A. 337, 110 S. W. 765.
Calls for the corners of adjoining surveys must be rejected when they conflict with
8. Control of calls for adjourns over other elements.—A call for an old established boundary, course or distance, or a call for a land grant, 38 T. 96; Woods v. Robinson, 58 T. 655; Langermann v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 124; Morse's Heirs v. Williams, 142 S. W. 1156.
Where a survey called to commence in the immediate neighborhood of a well-known corner, runs 316.12 varas to the corner of anther survey, and by following the distance none of the natural or artificial objects called for could be found at the places named, whereas, if the first line stopped at the distance of 750 varas, every crossing of the creek, spring, and artificial object called for was found, the long distance called for should be disregarded, and the survey should be made to stop at 750 varas.
A description in a deed reciting that the tract contained 500 acres, being part of the
C. survey, the other part of which had been sold to G., will control a contradictory description by courses and distances, where the part sold to G. is clearly identified. Ragsdale v. Robinson, 48 T. 379.
The field notes of three grants all gave the northern boundary of a fourth grant as their southern boundary. The distance, however, from the south line of such fourth grant to the south line of the three grants, exceeded by 240 varas the distance called for as the width of the southern grant. Held that, notwithstanding such discrepancy, the south line of the three grants would be considered the north line of the other, many years after the surveys were made and the monuments referred to had disappeared.
Freeman v. Mahoney, 57 T. 621.
A call in a survey for the line of another survey, which is an open line on the prairie at the point of intersection, will not yield to a conflicting call for distances when the location of the open line is certainly determined by natural objects, marked lines, and fixed corners of abutting surveys. Fordtran v. Ellis, 58 T. 245.
Where a survey calls for adjacent grants that bound it without dispute on four or more sides, and five of the corners of such survey are established, the boundaries of such surveys will be determined by the calls for the previous adjacent grants, and by a line run so as to establish the sixth and last corner as called for in the grant, and from that corner run the crossing lines, disregarding both course and distance, if necessary, so as to embrace within the lines of the patent all of the land lying between the adjacent surveys called for in the patent as constituting the outer boundaries of the grant.
A call for the marked line of an older adjoining survey will prevail over a call for distance, the presumption being that the surveyor identified the line called for by the marks on the ground. This mistake occurred in the measurement or calculation of the distance. Duff v. Moore, 68 T. 270, 4 S. W. 530.

Where it was the evident intention of the officers of the state to include in the locations all land between the boundaries of surveys, it was not shown that more land was embraced in the field notes than they so intended, and the configuration of the land was not changed, held, that the abutting surveys called for would be the correct boundaries, and that the locations should extend to them when no modification was shown. Duff v. Reiley, 68 T. 600, 4 S. W. 533.

In an action involving the boundary to land, an instruction that though "no survey has ever been made, yet if the calls of the patent to the land for other and surrounding surveys are such that the land conveyed by the patent can be identified," there is an indication, is where the eastern boundary is in conflict and no survey is called for except on the north. Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 100, 7 S. W. 315.

The northwest corner of a survey was plainly marked, and part of the west line was also marked. The rest of the survey had apparently not been run on the ground, but the southeast corner was ascertainable from the field notes, being located on an established line of another survey, and at a given distance from an established point. The lines of survey as called for in the field notes were correct as to courses, but were too short to reach from one of said corners to the other. Held, that the survey included all the land between the corners bounded by the lines as extended so as to reach from one corner to the other. Randall v. Gill, 77 T. 351, 14 S. W. 134.

Where for unmarked lines of surrounding surveys, the position of which can be accurately ascertained, and there is no evidence as to how the survey was actually made, such unmarked lines will prevail over courses and distances, in case of a conflict. Maddox v. Fenner, 79 T. 279, 15 S. W. 227.

In determining the bounds of a survey a call for another survey definitely located is properly ignored where, if followed, it will necessitate a total disregard of course and distance, and cause the remaining bounds both to conflict with several other surveys and to end so far from the starting point as to exclude about 1,000 acres from the survey. Gregg v. Hill, 82 T. 405, 17 S. W. 838.

Where a junior survey was not made on the ground, and the calls are for the surrounding surveys, the lines of such surveys will be the lines of the junior survey. Kuechler v. Wilson, 82 T. 628, 18 S. W. 317.

Where, in describing a boundary line, another known line is called for, and the distance gives out before reaching the line called for, the distance is to be disregarded. Worsham v. Chisum (Civ. App.) 86 T. 905.

The northeast corner of survey No. 11 is 60 acres south of the southwest corner of survey 426, and bearing trees of the southwest corner of the latter survey do not correspond with the bearing trees described in the patent of survey No. 11 as the southwest corner of said survey. The northeast corner of survey No. 11 is at a point 68 acres south of the southwest line of survey 426, called for as being the north line of said survey. Held, that there was a vacancy between the two tracts, notwithstanding the field notes in the patent of survey No. 11 gives its north boundary line as identical with the south boundary line of survey 426. Koch v. Fenner (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 286.

Where the boundaries of a survey were in issue, and there was no evidence as to how the survey was made, a call in the field notes for a line fixed with certainty should prevail over a call for distance, which, if followed, would make a shortage in the quantity of land called for by the grant. Besson v. Richards, 58 S. W. 611, 24 C. A. 64.

In a controversy as to the boundary of a survey, located by projection from a certain point, the evidence showed that there was no dispute as to the northern boundary of said survey, or as to the southern boundary of surveys on the north. The surveyor's field notes called for a line commencing at the northwest corner of the survey on the north, and running along the boundaries of the adjoining surveys; mentioned by name, but the lines given did not bring such boundary line to within 400 faras of such surveys. Held, that the surveyor was held, that his intention to include in such survey all the land between the surveys mentioned. Coleman County v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 383.

When a survey is located by projection from a certain point, and a boundary thereof does not correspond with the boundary line of adjoining surveys, which are mentioned in the field notes of such survey, in determining whether the calls for distance in such survey or the calls for the latter surveys shall control the survey must be con-strored by reference to the calls in the grant, and such calls cannot be aided by the lines and calls of other surveys not mentioned in the field notes, and the intention of the surveyor at the time of the location must be ascertained and given effect.

Where the beginning corner of a survey located on a river cannot be accurately identified on the ground on account of changes in the river, other surveys adjoining, and marked or unmarked, referring to the said surveyors, the prairie corners of the former survey by artificial objects, may be looked to in identifying the beginning corner; but, if the beginning corner is located, from the evidence, within a radius inconsistent with the reputed prairie corners, the latter must yield. Matthews v. Couch, 26 S. W. 61, 33 C. 133.

Where the surveyor laying out the S. survey, 65 years before the controversy in question, called for every angle and offset in any adjacent survey, and the east line of the adjoining Y. survey was called as the western boundary of the S. survey, which line could not be located with due accuracy, and also called for the southeast corner and the east line of the A. survey, which was definitely fixed, such unmarked lines, designated as the eastern boundaries of the Y. and H. surveys, controlled calls for courses and distances which came 2,055 varas short of the survey on the east line of the Y. survey. Steusoff v. Jackson, 40 C. A. 328, 89 S. W. 445.

A survey of a tract of land called for the old surveys on every side thereof and for courses and distances without any distances being measured on the ground. The calls for the old surveys were the most material calls. Held, that the calls for the older surveys controlled, and included in the survey the land bounded by the old surveys though others had subsequently, pursuant to the scrap act, made surveys within such boundaries. Isaacs v. Texas Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1940.

The calls of land may as well be the subject of miselement as any other object, and such a call will control course and distance. Ridgell v. Atherton (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 129.

Where it appears from a survey that it was the intention of the surveyor in making an actual survey to make one of actual distances the boundary line of the office survey, which line was well marked and defined, the fact that the distance called for in the office survey would overlap the boundary of the actual survey is of no consequence, since the call for distance must yield to the course, and this is so, though it is claimed that the survey called for had been abandoned. Shindler v. Lutcher & Moore Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 941.

The calls in a patent constitute a written description, and when not ambiguous or conflicting, the boundaries of the land granted are to be determined from some of the calls of the patent or other facts curing conflicting calls, and hence where patent of the H. survey by its calls ties a boundary line in dispute to the G. and A. surveys, and neither the H. survey nor the G. nor A. survey ties to any call for the B. survey, and the calls in the H. G. and A. surveys are not uncertain, a line traced from the B. survey could not be considered. Guili v. O'Bryan (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 593.

The call in a patent of a survey for the south line of another survey as its north line controls a call for distance which will not make its north line reach the other survey. Goldman v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 282.

A call in the patent of a survey for a fixed and undisputed line as a boundary cannot be controlled by the lines and corners marked on the ground by the original surveyor in making the survey; his field notes making no reference to such objects. Id.

The reason why a call for an unmarked prairie line will control over a call for distance is because the surveyor probably did not know where such line was, being unmarked, but supposed it as indicated by the call for distance, and ran his line to the distance called for in the field notes, and called for the unmarked line under the mistaken belief that he had reached it, but a call for an unmarked prairie line will control over a call for distance where its location is easily ascertained by running it from known lines or corners, so that it might be reasonably supposed that the location of such line was more probably accurate than the measurement of the distance thereto. State v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 652.

Where an unmarked line of an older survey is called for and it can be identified with certainty, it will supersede a call for distance. Goodson v. Fitzgerald (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 696.

Where a marked line of an adjacent survey is called for, and such line can be ascertained with accuracy, but there is no evidence as to how the survey was actually made, and a controversy arises as to whether course and distance or the marked line shall be used or may be considered on the ground not showing the footsteps of the surveyor, though there are no calls for such objects in the grant. Id.

Calls in a deed held controlled by reference to partition decree and calls for adjoining. Morse's Heirs v. Williams (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1186.

A call for a line or corner of another survey, made under a misapprehension as to the true location of such survey, will not control as to the location of a survey calling for such corner or line. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

In determining the relative importance of locatable calls, designations for adjacent surveys or artificial objects in determining the boundaries of grants. Crosby v. Stevan-son (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1110.

9. Control of maps, plats and field notes other elements.—Field notes named in a decree of partition as determining the boundaries are conclusive among the parties thereto, although a plait of the commissioners in conflict therewith also forms part of the decrees. It v. W., 49 T. 711.

The lines of a grant cannot be extended in conformity with a map deposited in the land office in 1847 without field notes, but accompanied by an explanatory letter of the surveyor, where such extension would violate distance, quantity, boundaries, and config-

5. Where two surveys made by the same surveyor at about the same time call for a common division line, and are mapped as adjoining, the fact that an excess exists in the amount of land included in one or both along the line of junction is not sufficient reason for separating them in favor of one subsequently locating on such excess. Status v. Smith, 36 C. A. 655, 30 S. W. 282.

A description of land as part of a tract or survey is general, and will be controlled by boundaries indicated on a plat or map. Boggess v. Allen (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 195.

Judge Allen v. Boggess, 58 S. W. 333, 94 T. 583.

Where the issue is the location of a boundary line between adjoining lands, that method of constructing the line should be adopted which will present an arrangement of several surveys as nearly identical with that shown by the original map as possible, in the opinion of the court of courses and distances, which would result in the destruction of the original configuration of the surveys. Lyon v. Waggoner, 37 C. A. 205, 83 S. W. 46.

Where the field notes of a survey are complete in themselves, and contain no inconsistent calls, and can be identified by course and distance from the beginning corner, it is not permissible to look to the field notes of another survey to create inconsistency in the calls of the survey which are complete in themselves. Upshur County v. Le­wright (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1013, modifying 99 S. W. 441, on rehearing.

The lines of a grant must be established by the calls contained in its field notes where there is no conflict or inconsistency in them. Polk County v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

10. Control of quantity over other elements. On an issue involving the location of a certain boundary line, it was proper to charge that the jury should not consider any quantity of land in the west quarter and none of them in determining the original location of such disputed line. Branch v. Simons (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 40.

In settling a boundary line dispute, its location is not controlled by quantity of land in the respective parcels, where the proper course from a known starting point is given, though quantity may be considered in solving a doubt as to the true variation to be adopted in running the line. McDonald v. McCrabb, 47 C. A. 253, 105 S. W. 238.

There was no objection about the dividing line between tracts of land conveyed by deed and containing in reality only 124 acres, and adjoining land in the same survey, and such line and the respective corners called for in the deed were distinctly marked and established, the grantee was limited to the lands described in the deed, and the mere restatement following the description calling for such line and corners, "Containing 160 acres, being the north half of said survey," did not control, since a general description cannot control a particular description, about which there is no doubt. Ridgell v. Atherton (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 129.

The fact that the number of acres included within the lines run according to courses and distances equaled the number called for, while the adoption of other lines would embrace an area largely in excess thereof, was evidence in support of the judgment adopting the lines run according to courses and distances. Hughes v. State, 67 C. A. 306, 133 S. W. 177.

Calls for quantities will not prevail over calls for corners and lines which are identified on the ground by bearing trees. Granberry v. Storey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1122.

11. Natural and permanent objects. Conflict with other elements, see ante.

Lines and boundaries cannot be constructed with reference to objects that may be found on the ground in the footsteps of the surveyor when there are no calls in the grants for such objects. Hamilton v. Blackburn, 43 C. A. 153, 95 S. W. 1094.

Where the bearing trees called for in a senior survey had disappeared, a claimant under a junior survey was entitled to show the location of the trees. Keystone Mille Co. v. Peake (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

12. Artificial monuments and marks. Conflict with other elements, see ante.

The identity of a tree relied on in fixing the northwest corner of the M. survey is not sufficiently shown to call for a change in the lines as fixed by surveyors 50 years ago, where the tree seems to have been recently marked, and the marks are not such as surveyors make in marking bearing trees; where the south line of another survey on which such corner rests is a well-defined line, running much of the way through timber, and such tree is 30 rods south of such line; and where a surveyor who located a younger survey west of it in 1857 testified positively that he found an oak tree called for by the M. survey as its northwest corner, on which he fixed the northeast corner of the younger survey, and that such tree was a bearing tree, the subsequent destruction of which was clearly shown. Williams v. Beckham, 6 C. A. 739, 26 S. W. 652.

Lines and boundaries cannot be constructed with reference to objects that may be found on the ground as indicating the footsteps of the surveyor, when there are no calls in the grants for such objects. Hamilton v. Blackburn, 43 C. A. 153, 95 S. W. 1094.

Where a stake is placed to locate a corner of a survey, the stake fixes the corner as conclusively as if the corner was marked by a permanent object. Thatcher v. Matthews, 101 T. 123, 106 S. W. 317.

The court will attach considerable importance to a call in a grant of a Mexican state for stone monuments in the field notes, where the law of the state required corners to be erected of quarried rock and lime mortar. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

13. Courses and distances. Conflict with other elements, see ante.

Where a marked line can be found, it must be pursued as far as it may be done in its whole extent; but, if it does not extend to the point of intersection, then it must be extended until intersection is made, taking the course called for in required by the deed. George v. Thomas, 16 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612.

Where a division line exists at both extremities, and for a principal part of the distance, it will be considered a continuous line. Id.
A grant of flats beginning at the corner of a lot, "and running thence north, 150 varas, along the channel of the river, thence eastwardly, with the channel of the river, with the general course of the island, at the distance of at least 150 varas from the shore, to a stake 150 varas from the easternmost point of the island"—should be construed as running the boundary line from the starting point eastwardly, keeping at least 150 varas from the shore, to the channel, and not, in a direct line, to the nearest point of it. Galveston v. Menard, 23 T. 349.

A grant described a third line, by course and distance, to a stake in the line of another survey; thence, along such line, by course and distance, to the upper river corner of such other survey. The line of the other survey ran across a prairie, and was not marked except by blazes on a few scattering trees near the river. To make the intersection called for, the course and distance of the third line called for would have to be materialized, and the third line should be held, that the course and distance only, and the fourth line by course, with a prolongation of the distance to close the line, if necessary. Booth v. Strippleman, 26 T. 436.

In trespass to try title to determine the northern boundary of Burnet's colony, under the alleged "a point clear of riparian boundary lines parallel with the river Sabine; thence, on a line, to Navasato creek; thence down the creek"—the evidence should be confined to a direct west line from said "point," and, if such line would pass north of Navasoto creek, it must be varied so as to strike the north boundary of Burnet's colony. Good v. Willsford, 72 T. 385, 12 S. W. 163.

Where the shape of a tract was intended to be a square, and the lines called for in the patent are of equal length, the fact that the course of one line is S., 85 deg. E., instead of S., 50 deg. E., is an obvious clerical mistake, corrected by the other calls. Harmon v. Good, 44 T. 638.

Land was described as "the lower or south half" of a tract. The boundary running nearest north and south ran north, 19 deg. E., and the other ran north, 71 deg. W. Relying on a line run by a line run divided by a line run, the most southerly part was that conveyed. Farley v. Dealonge, 69 T. 488, 6 S. W. 786.

Where neither the corners of plaintiffs' nor defendants' land are satisfactorily established, and there is a well-established and identified corner of another survey, from which by course, in both surveys, plaintiff's and defendant's lines, course should be followed, though the boundaries thus established include land within the boundaries of plaintiffs' junior survey. Griffith v. Rife, 72 T. 185, 12 S. W. 163.

A call in a survey read, "Thence east with the south line of the Davis survey, S. 19 deg. E. 507.8 varas, to a stake and west line of the Becton survey." The south line of the Davis survey did not strike the west line of the Becton survey, but, if the latter were prolonged south, it would strike the Davis survey at the southeast corner. Held, that the call should go to the Davis southeast corner. Warden v. Harris (Civ. App.) 47 T. 834.

A call in a patent read, "Thence south 744 varas, to place of beginning." To reach such beginning it was necessary to go north 518 varas. Held, that the word "south" should read "north." Id.

It is immaterial, that, in the absence of natural or artificial objects identifying a survey on the ground, the proper method of locating it is to run course and distance from the nearest identified object or corner called for in the field notes of the survey or its connections, is not a rule of law of universal application. Smith v. Jarvis, 47 C. A. 198, 16 S. W. 118.

14. Reversing calls.—Only when the lines of a survey were actually run and measured on the ground can the calls be reversed to ascertain the boundaries. Ayers v. Lancaster, 84 T. 305.

The order in which the surveyor gives the lines and corners in his certificate of a survey is immaterial; and where the thing to be determined is a line running from a fixed object, directly west a given distance, to another fixed object, and the object called for at the eastern end has been obliterated and that at the western end remained, by reversing the true line designated by reversing the proper course and distance from the western end. Griffin v. Roe, 2 U. C. 611.

In trespass to try title, the issue related to the east boundary line of plaintiff's league and labor of land. By following the calls of the field notes from the northwest corner (not on the river), south along the river (on a river), south west, then north, and thence west, the point of beginning would not be reached by about 1,000 varas; whereas, by reversing the calls and traveling the lines east, south, and west, the south line would reach the river in about 1,000 varas less than called for in the notes. There was evidence tending to show that the north line had been surveyed, and that the south line had not. Held, that it was not error for the court to reverse the calls, and trace the lines east, south, and west, so as to harmonize the objects of the grant. Swenson v. Willard, 84 T. 424, 19 S. W. 613.

It is not error in ascertaining the true locality of the back line of a survey fronting, with established corners, on a river, to reverse the calls of the survey, if it is found that thereby the discrepancy in the area of the survey is lessened, and the back line falls using the line of the alleged conflicting survey, which is, moreover, of prior date; the recognized rule being that the beginning corner in the certificate of survey is of no higher dignity than any other corner. Miles v. Sherwood, 84 T. 485, 19 S. W. 835.

The rule as to reversing the calls of a survey in order to establish a disputed boundary does not apply when the only evidence tending to identify any corner or line of the disputed land is evidence in reference to one corner, and the other boundary can be established by running course and distance. Pierce v. Schram (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 718.

It is by reversing the calls of a grant, a more accurate result can be obtained in locating the land surveyed than by following the order of the field notes, that method should be pursued. Burge v. Poindeexter (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 81.

Where from is apparent from the face of a deed that there is a mistake as to the directions in the legal description, the calls may be reversed in order to ascertain the intention of the grantor. Moore v. Loggins (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 183.

Where the calls mentioned in a deed conveying part of a survey are such that they would extend beyond the survey and would not close, but it is apparent from the deed itself which part of the survey was intended to be conveyed, the court, looking at the record and the other marks and field notes, and seeing a way to harmonize them, may take part of them in reverse direction, so as to close the survey, and may ascertain by translation from the area mentioned in the deed the direction of the last call, which would make clear the grantor's intention to convey certain land, and the deed is not void.
(Ch. 6, Art. 16, V. Code, § 17; Hurley v. King, 160 Va. 110, 38 S. W. 169.)

Calls in the field notes of a survey may be reversed, when a call for a posterior line is more definite than the first line, and more clearly shows the footsteps of the surveyor, but otherwise the calls should be followed in the order given in the field

In determining the location of a survey, it is as lawful and persuasive to reverse the courses as to follow the order in the certificate. Crosby v. Stevenson (Civ. App.)
166 S. W. 1110.

15. Location of corners.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

The ascertainment of any one corner of a survey is sufficient to identify it, where the courses and distances are given; and, in order to ascertain a corner, the surveyor is not confined to the discovery of landmarks called for in the field notes, but may resort to his recollection of objects not mentioned in the field notes. De Leon v. White, 9
T. 693.

Effect should be given to all the several corners of a survey if it can be done, and a second or third corner may be as useful in locating the survey as the beginning corner; but a third corner, which is at best doubtful, cannot, in fixing the position of the survey, prevail over the beginning corner; and especially is this the case where the survey in question is based upon an older one, and the beginning corner is identical with a corner of that older survey, which is identified on the ground. Hord v. Oliver (Sup.)
5 S. W. 57.

An instruction making the importance of an established northeast corner, in locating the west side of a survey, dependent upon the survey, dependent upon the fact that the line was not run, is erroneous, as such corner has the same weight for the purpose in question, whether the western line was run or not. Scott v. Pettigrew, 73 T. 321, 12 S. W. 161.

Where the beginning corner of a survey is the southwest, but the southeast corner is equally well identified, a charge limiting the jury to finding the unidentified northeast corner by the first and second lines from the southwest corner is erroneous, as the southeast corner is of equal importance, unless the line from the former corner was actually run and measured, and that from the latter not. Scott v. Pettigrew, 73 T. 321, 12 S. W. 161; Lancaster v. Ayers (Sup.) 12 S. W. 163.

In an action to establish a boundary line, where the beginning corner calls for a wild chimney, and none of the other corners or lines have been marked on the ground, it is error to charge that "a beginning corner is of no higher dignity or importance than any other corner of the survey," since the true location of the beginning corner is controlling. Ayers v. Beatty, 6 C. A. 491, 24 S. W. 386.

An adjacent survey is a survey located by courses and distances, it is error to instruct that, if a corner of an adjoining survey was a well-marked corner, the jury might adopt it as a beginning corner in locating the land in controversy, where a calculation from the corner of other adjoining surveys would vary such location, and there is testimony that a corner of the land in controversy was established on the place where the calculation from such other adjoining surveys would locate it, though the corners marked testified to as having been placed are not mentioned in the deed nor field notes of the land in controversy. Davis v. Coleman, 40 S. W. 606, 16 C. A. 310.

Where part of plaintiff's land was a part of the railroad, or was a part of the position of its southwest corner. The field notes of the survey placed the beginning, the southeast corner, on the west line of an old survey, but calls in the north and south line from railroad, with same calls for the same western line, was mistaken as to the location of the railroad or the west line of the old survey.
From contemporaneous surveys it was apparent that the surveyor knew the location of the road, and actually placed the southeast corner east of such west line. Held, that such testimony was erroneous, since, by placing the beginning corner where the surveyor actually located it, and traversing the length of the south line, the southwest corner would fall short of the land in dispute. Hunt v. O'Brien (Civ. App.)
50 S. W. 487.

A deed described as commencing on an extension of a street a given distance from a city tract line which crosses the street obliquely at an acute angle from northwest, to southwest. Held, that the deed called for a line at right angles from the city trace line, and not the longer line extending from the point where the tract line crossed 116 S. W. 1198.

16. Location of lines.—Conflict with other elements, see ante.

If the line cannot be traced in its whole extent, still it is to be observed, and cannot be departed from where it can be found and traced, especially after long-continued

When a surveyor sought to correct and enlarge a survey, which he had made with plainly marked lines and established corners, by simply running out one line from a corner of the tract, establishing no corner there, but calling for that distance in his field notes, and said notes called for the bearing trees at the corners established in the original survey, it was held that the true boundary line was that formed in the original survey, and that there was in fact no correction of the survey at all. Bartlett v.
Hubert, 31 T. 3.

A deed purporting to convey "one hundred acres of the land, known in the division of the Morgan league as part of the lot No. 12, having the original lines of the said league for its north and south boundaries, and adjoining the boundaries by lot No. 11," is a specific grant of 100 acres, having for the western boundary a line running parallel with the west line of lot No. 11, so as to include 100 acres adjoining that lot. Lenon
v. Walker, 2 U. C. 668.

A surveyor, in running a division line where it strikes the bend of a river, may go around it, and continue his line at a point on the river directly in the course of the line he was running, so as to give to the tract on each side of the line its proper quantity of land. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.

If the beginning point is established, lines should be run in both directions as far as possible, and the gap closed as seems most consistent with all the calls. Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 312, 28 S. W. 1079.

Where a surveyor does not run on the ground some of the lines of the survey when he makes the location, but adopts lines run by a former surveyor, such lines must be followed as if he actually ran them on the ground. Lester v. Hayes, 38 S. W. 55, 14 C. A. 643.

The western boundary of the L. survey as called for in the patent being N., 30° W., and the W. survey as shown by the S. survey of Smith, by his line at a point on the river directly in the course of the line he was running, so as to give to the tract on each side of the line its proper quantity of land. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.

If the beginning point is established, lines should be run in both directions as far as possible, and the gap closed as seems most consistent with all the calls. Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 312, 28 S. W. 1079.

The western boundary of the L. survey as called for in the patent being N., 30° W., and the S. survey as shown by the S. survey of Smith, by his line at a point on the river directly in the course of the line he was running, so as to give to the tract on each side of the line its proper quantity of land. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.

If the beginning point is established, lines should be run in both directions as far as possible, and the gap closed as seems most consistent with all the calls. Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 312, 28 S. W. 1079.

The western boundary of the L. survey as called for in the patent being N., 30° W., and the S. survey as shown by the S. survey of Smith, by his line at a point on the river directly in the course of the line he was running, so as to give to the tract on each side of the line its proper quantity of land. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.

If the beginning point is established, lines should be run in both directions as far as possible, and the gap closed as seems most consistent with all the calls. Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 312, 28 S. W. 1079.

The western boundary of the L. survey as called for in the patent being N., 30° W., and the S. survey as shown by the S. survey of Smith, by his line at a point on the river directly in the course of the line he was running, so as to give to the tract on each side of the line its proper quantity of land. Tucker v. Smith, 68 T. 473, 3 S. W. 671.
quint vendee of the maker of such deed, the unsold balance of the league passed, although it was over 1,000 acres. Hunter v. Beal, 10 S. W. 657.

The description in a deed was as follows, viz.: "Beginning at the west corner of the G. survey; thence S., 45° E., to B.'s corner; thence N., 45° E., to B.'s corner on T.'s line; thence N., 45° W., to the south boundary line of the E. survey; thence S., 45° W., to the north boundary line, to include 571 acres of land, and, if 571 acres will not include enough land to make the complement, 571 acres. It is to run north on said E. survey for the deficit." Held, that it passed all the grantor's land in the G. league, bounded on one side by B.'s line and on the other by T.'s line, and that what it lacked of D.'s league was supplied from the E. league. Johnson v. Garrett, 25 T. Sup. 13.

A deed conveying a portion of a block of land described by the boundaries as "beginning with the southeast corner of the block; thence west, with the south boundary line of said block, to a stake," and then gave the remaining boundaries by courses and distances, "so as to contain five acres of land off the east side of the block." Held, that the deed limited the quantity of land intended to be conveyed to five acres, and that the length of the first line called for in the deed was not specified because it was for east to west, and was only limited with other calls in the deed, to make an area of five acres. Henry v. Whitaker, 82 T. 5, 17 S. W. 509.

A description of land in a deed gave the length and direction of three lines, running from the beginning point south, east, and north to a well-defined point, thence calling to go west and south far enough to include 400 acres conveyed. There was nothing to indicate that the lines thus given would not close, but a calculation demonstrated that a line running from the northeast corner only such a distance west as that a line running south from the northwest corner would reach the beginning point would not embrace the 400 acres within the boundaries described. The defect in the description consisted in the failure to state the length of two of the lines, and the unknown lengths of the survey. Held, that to close the survey by courses and distances, was fatal, but would be sustained by supplying the line necessary to close the survey, which would include the quantity. Tompkins v. Thomas, 64 C. A. 440, 118 S. W. 561.

18. Maps, plats and field notes.—Conflict with other elements, see ante. Where there is a conflict as to the location of land by a survey, but two corners thereof can be definitely identified, the courses and distances may be ascertained from the field notes, and the entire survey constructed therefrom. Rand v. Cartwright, 82 T. 398, 15 S. W. 794.

It is error to charge that the intention of a surveyor that a line should run the distance called for in his field notes, rather than to a corner called for, must be determined by evidence outside of the call, in the notes themselves. Mock v. Hatcher (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 30.

The field notes of a surveyor stated that on a line running from a corner he found a corner with bearings, and that the point where he found the bearings was a specified distance south of another corner. Another surveyor, making a survey and map, showed by his measurements that such corner with bearings was not that distance from the corner referred to in the field notes. Held, that the field notes were not evidence of the location of the corner with the bearings. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 64.

Field notes do not locate lines on the ground, but merely furnish data by which surveyors can locate them. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Morin, 53 C. A. 531, 116 S. W. 656.

Where two adjoining lots in a block are conveyed in accordance with the plat of the block, their boundaries will be located in accordance with such plat, and they will not be affected by the transfer, by the same owner, of another lot under a prior plat, giving the same dimensions and boundaries. This is with the rule. Toudouse v. Keister, 90 S. W. 681.

The term "field notes" in its ordinary sense are the notes made by the surveyor in the field while making a survey, describing by course and distance, and by natural or artificial marks found or made by him, where he ran the lines and made the corners. State v. motorists (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Where a map attached to the grant of a Mexican state has letters on which, without any explanation, are meaningless, but under the map in the original grant is an explanation of the same, made by the surveyor general, showing that the letters indicate the boundaries of surrounding surveys, the explanation indorsed on the map is a part thereof. Id.

19. Adjoining or adjacent lands.—Conflict with other elements, see ante. The line of a tract of land may as well be the subject of a call as any other object. Marshall v. Crawford, 2 U. C. 477.

Where a deed calls for the corner of a survey as it was supposed to be at the time of execution, and it is afterwards found that the survey was wrongly located, it will, if such was the intention of the parties, convey the land located where the corner of the survey was supposed to be, and not land situated where the true corner is subsequently established. Koenighalm v. Miles, 67 T. 113, 2 S. W. 81.

A subsequent locator is not entitled to rely upon a single call in a previous survey of an adjoining grant to determine the boundary line, when such call is in conflict with others. Davidson v. Killen, 83 T. 406, 4 S. W. 561.

The boundaries of a survey may be located by surrounding surveys referred to in its field notes, though its corners and lines cannot be found on the ground, and though there is a discrepancy in the boundaries as compared to the field notes and its boundaries as so located. Longoria v. Shaeffer, 77 T. 547, 14 S. W. 190.

Where the boundaries of a survey cannot be located by its own calls and field notes, they may be established by the field notes of adjacent surveys. Kuecher v. Wilson, 82 T. 638, 4 S. W. 371.

An action of trespass to try title to land involved the question of whether the land sought to be recovered was a part of the Mary Beacham league or a vacancy between that survey and the Panchuck league. In the field notes of the Mary Beacham it west line called for the east line of league No. 2. League No. 2 was afterwards resurveyed, and called the "Punchard league." There was not so much land in the new survey, and the distances had been shortened, and the north line was not the same as the north line of the Mary Beacham, on being run from its northeast corner, as called for by witness trees, gets its complement before reaching the east line of the Punchard survey, leaving vacant the amount of land sought to be recovered, except about eight acres, conceded to be in the Mary Beacham. Held, that without the exception of the eight acres, they did not form a part of the Mary Beacham league, but was a vacancy between that survey and the Punchard league. Moore v. McCown (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 1112.

The only work actually done on the ground in locating sections of two tracts of land was to establish a corner of one section in one tract and the corner of another section in the other tract, then found to be a designated number of miles apart east and west, and to meander streams and to run lines two miles apart through the territory intended to be appropriated by the sections to form the tracts. From data furnished by such work the tracts were platted and their field notes made in the surveyor's office. Held, that no one of the sections forming the tracts could be regarded as having been actually surveyed, and its lines and corners fixed on the ground. Austin v. Espuela. Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1138.

Tracts 1 and 2 were surveyed at about the same time by same surveyor, but no survey in either tract called for any survey in the other. The work actually done on the survey of a section in one tract and a corner of the tract of land adjacent to it were made, the field notes of which called for a beginning at a corner in tract 1. Held, that there was nothing to indicate any reason why the surveys in tract 1 and in the lands adjacent should not be constructed from the identified corner in tract 1 to the corner in tract 2.

Where the calls for course and distance of a disputed boundary are inconsistent, lines in adjacent surveys tied to those in controversy can be consulted in determining the true boundary. The surveyor's notes (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 412.

Any facts which tended to show the actual footsteps of the surveyor in making the different subdivisions that compose the respective blocks could be used to ascertain the boundaries of the blocks, which were merely the boundaries of the outside subdivisions, and, where no mark could be found designating and fixing the lines of the outside subdivisions, they could be fixed by marked corners and footsteps around inside surveys to which they were tied by the field notes. Taft v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 457.

It is only in the absence of other means of identification that known calls in other surveys can be apportioned. Dutton v. Williams (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 1151.

Where the northeast corner and east line of a tract of land conveyed corresponded with the southeast corner and line of a larger grant, held, that it must be assumed that the southeast corners also corresponded. Morse's Heirs v. Williams (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1186.

Deeds executed on same day held to be construed together, in determining a boundary line. Id.

A survey of a junior grant entirely surrounded by senior grants held an office survey, disclosing an intention of the surveyor to extend the boundaries of the junior grant to the boundaries of the senior grants. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

20. Waters and water courses.—Conflicting elements, see ante.

A right in private individuals to the flats in front of their lots out to the channel may be equitably and lawfully claimed, and, without being subject to the control of the public. City of Galveston v. Menard, 23 T. 349.

In the absence of all other evidence, where the deed, in defining the boundary of the appellant's land, said, "thence down the main channel of the Comal spring," the thread of the stream of the Comal was the utmost limit of the rights of the appellant. Muller v. Landa, 31 T. 265, 98 Am. Dec. 529.

Under a grant to a city of land described as extending to the seashore, and bounded by it, the shore is not included, and the city cannot interfere with baths erected on the shore, unless they constitute a nuisance. Galveston City Surf Bathing Co. v. Heldenheimer, 63 T. 559.

21. Meandered waters. — A deed described the property conveyed in part as follows: "Thence down said creek with its meanders as follows: East 200 vrs.; south, 45 deg. E., 3 vrs. distant, and an elm br. N., 19 deg. E., 7 vrs. distant. Thence up said branch with its meanders as follows: North 130 vrs.: N., 45 deg. W., 150 vrs.; north 380 vrs., a lyn br. N., 70 deg. W., 2 vrs." Held, that the meandering of the branch was the boundary to the end of the call last recited, and a claim that the line should follow course and distance was untenable. Griffin v. Barbee, 68 S. W. 698, 29 C. A. 325.

Although a grant calls for marked corners upon the bank of a nonnavigable stream, and for a line or lines between such corners which do not correspond with the center of the stream, the grantee's line extends to the center of the stream, unless there is a clear intention that the grantor wished otherwise. Dutton v. Vierling (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 450.

22. Accretion and avulsion. — When a stream, being a boundary, alters its channel by a gradual process of way, the boundary shifts with the channel; but, if it changes its use by making "a" visibly, as boundary adheres to the abandoned channel. Collins v. State, 3 T. App. 323, 30 Am. Rep. 142.

Where a river forming a boundary line of plaintiff's premises has, through avulsion, changed its channel, plaintiff is not entitled to recover land beyond the thread of the river as it was before the change. Rodrigues v. Hernandez, 79 S. W. 343, 25 C. A. 78.
A city had no authority to prevent the removal by plaintiff of a bank of gravel which had been formed on an accrual of land, which abutted to plaintiff's land, in such portion of the accrual was within the city limits, where such removal did not interfere with the proper use of the city streets or create a nuisance. Goar v. City of Rosenberg, 53 C. A. 215, 115 S. W. 653.

23. Islands. Where, by the terms of a grant of islands, the entire area was bounded by the east and west forks of the river, such fact does not of itself make the grantor liable for an area comprised within the island, excepting the river, or that part of the island comprised within the river, where the same was correctly delineated. Petrino v. Gross (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 43.

A finding that the land in controversy, consisting of an island, was embraced within the surveyors' line, by fixing the lines from the river to the extreme point of the island, comprising such grant at over three leagues from the mouth of the river, was not erroneous, as being in conflict with the terms of the grant, where such grant, which conceded one league of land bounded by the east and west forks of the river, definitely located the islands by a line at about one-half league from the mouth of the river, and the maps and sketches in evidence showed that the width thereof was greatly less than the length of a side of a square league. Id.

24. Public ways. An owner platted his land into lots, blocks, and streets. The location of the streets on the ground could not be fixed from information derived from the unrecorded plat or from any defined monuments, either natural or placed on the ground by the surveyor of the plat. The dedicatory sold and pointed out the lines of streets to lots sold, and the city opened the streets in accordance with such designation. Held, that the lines pointed out by the dedicatory should govern as to subsequent purchasers.

The sale of land bounded by an alley carries to the purchaser the fee to the center of the alley, unless otherwise provided expressly or by clear implication; that the grantor, after conveying, intended to withhold his interest in the alley, being never presumed. Wiess v. Goodhue, 46 C. A. 142, 102 S. W. 793.

A deed conveying the blocks on each side of a street passes the title to the fee of the street to the grantee. Cocke v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 46 C. A. 363, 103 S. W. 407.

25. Railroad rights of way. The right of way of a railroad is not a public highway, within the rule of construction in such a case, or lands bounded by a public highway, in the sense as to make a deed conveying for a right of way as a boundary convey the owner's interest in the land between the boundary of the right of way and the railroad track. Judgment (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 847, reversed. Couch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 99 T. 404, 90 S. W. 850.

26. Priority of grants and deeds. Act Feb. 1, 1845, requiring owners of land by titles from the Mexican government, the lines of which were not correctly marked, to have the same resurveyed and plots returned to the land office, which plots would be delineated on the quarter to be regarded as the only true boundaries of said land, not being compulsory, where the owner of such a grant failed to avail himself of it, and the land was patented to another, the elder grant, if capable of identification, must prevail. Byrne v. Fagan, 16 T. 391.

Where two surveys are contemporaneous, neither can claim any advantage over the other from mere priority in the date of the final title. Nor can the boundary of one be enlarged by reason of the other being pronounced invalid by the courts years afterwards. Welder v. Carroll, 29 T. 317.

It appeared that a certain road, constituting the dividing line between plaintiffs' and defendants' lands, could not be precisely located by physical evidences on the ground; that the meanders of such road were given by calls for courses and distances in the first survey of defendant's land, and continued in the survey of plaintiffs' land, which was made first, but was not shown to have been authorized; that neither of these sets of field notes called for the other; that a survey of plaintiffs' land, upon which their patent was issued, was made subsequent to another defendant's land, and the issue of their patent thereon; and that the meanders of the road, as called for in the respective patents, were irreconcilable. Held, that the original survey of defendants' land was superseded by that upon which their patent was issued, and that the latter will prevail over that of plaintiffs' junior patent. Griffith v. Ede, 72 T. 155, 12 S. W. 186.

27. Priority of surveys. Where, in a conflict as to the boundaries between two surveys, it appears that the later survey was not made on the ground, but in the surveyor's office, and from his memory of a former survey, and that it called for certain trees as an established corner of an adjoining survey, while in fact the trees were not on such survey, the former survey must control. Penley v. Flowers, 5 C. A. 191, 23 S. W. 749.

Where the original surveys agree with maps that have been in use for many years, they should not be held erroneous because they do not agree with resurveys made long afterwards, and based upon the assumption that information furnished by living persons as to the locality of lines and corners is absolutely correct. McCombs v. Sheldon (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1114.

The location of original corners by a subsequent survey is not conclusive where such location is not based on an actual discovery of then existing corners. Knippa v. Unlau (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 915.

Where marks on a line of a survey were not quite as old as those on the surrounding older surveys, but there was evidence that the marks were not as old as those on other surveys surveyed previously, no presumption to the contrary exists, no presumption to the contrary exists, no presumption to the contrary exists. Morgan v. Mowles (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 155.

Where, in an action to establish the boundaries of a senior survey, defendant opposed the location of a line made in delineating a junior survey, together with proof of the general reputation and recognition of surveyors in making contiguous surveys, but no witness claims to have found evidence of the original junior survey, and there is no evidence of possession or acquiescence, held, that the courses and distances must control, and the junior yield to the senior survey. Hornberger v. Giddings, 71 S. W. 383, 21 C. A. 293.
Where a survey previously located has its beginning and last corners on a river and the land included in the original surveying surveys, the surveyors, identifying the rivers or prairies, other adjoining lands, and other adjacent surveyors, identifying the prairie corners by artificial objects, which are not called for in the previous survey, are not admissible to extend the distances in the prior survey from the known corners. Matthews v. Thatcher, 76 S. W. 61, 23 C. A. 133.

A survey claimant on a river has a vested right in the land embraced in the boundaries of the survey. As against another surveyor. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

The field notes of a junior survey cannot be resorted to for the purpose of creating an ambiguity in the calls of a senior survey. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 841.

Where the calls for distances in a senior survey includes land in a junior survey, and there is nothing in the field notes of the called for distances in the senior survey, the call for distances therein controls. 1d.

The rule that a prior location made by an office survey is valid, and will prevail over any subsequent survey, though actually surveyed on the ground, that may conflict therewith, is not applicable to the prior location appropriates the land, has no application where the calls in an office survey limit the boundary in a certain direction to a line of another survey, well marked with a corner established, which was actually made on the ground, and where the call for distance conflicts with the call for such line. Shindler v. Lutcher & Moore Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 841.

Where the calls in an office survey are based on another survey actually made on the ground and established at the time, both surveys recognizing a landmark which could only be known by an actual survey, the fact that the field notes of the office survey were dated one day earlier than the field notes of the actual survey did not affect the priority of the actual survey. 1d.

A survey takes its position on the ground according to its own field notes, uncontrolled by calls in the field notes of junior adjacent surveys. Williams v. McLeary (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 251.

The weight to be given to a call for a line or corner of a senior survey in determining the land included in a junior survey depends on whether the lines or corners of the senior survey were probably known to the surveyor at the time of the junior survey. State v. Palacios (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 229.

28. Remedies for establishment of boundaries.—A suit will not lie to have judicially ascertained and determined a division line, if the line had been run by former owners, and could be in part discovered. George v. Thomas, 15 T. 74, 67 Am. Dec. 612.

It is proper for the owners of contiguous land to compel the other to permit him to run the dividing line, and it appears that the line had been run by former owners, it was held that the right to have a divisional line run and judicially established, if necessary, rests on the same principle as a right to an action for specific performance. 1d.

Equity does not take jurisdiction of a suit to settle a boundary between adjoining landowners, merely because the line is in dispute, but there must be some additional ground of equity jurisdiction. Nye v. Hawkins, 65 T. 690.

An ambiguity in the description in a deed, arising when it is sought to apply the description to the property, may be corrected in an action to establish a boundary, and a resort to equity is unnecessary. Sloan v. King, 77 S. W. 48, 33 C. A. 537.

29. Practice and procedure.—See notes under Titles 37 and 123.

30. — Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3587.

31. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—The verdict gave defendant a lot 20 varas in depth. Evidence was given. One witness averred that the depth by actual measurement made by him was 20 varas, but he measured from a point shown to him by plaintiff's son, which was not established as a true point by proof. Held, that the evidence of measurement did not have a conclusive effect on the finding of the jury. McCarthy v. Jumera, 17 T. 629.

If a boundary line between two surveys was marked on the ground, and it can be ascertained by a resurvey, following the calls in the title and map forming part of it and the ancient landmarks made by the original surveyor, or if its locality can be proved by witnesses from their personal knowledge or on information derived from general reputation, or from its having been pointed out to them by the surveyor by whom it was run, or others who were present at the time and cognizant of the fact, this will fix its position, though there may be a discrepancy between its position thus ascertained and that given by the calls or plat on the grant. Welder v. Carroll, 29 T. 317.

The fact that a certain line of survey was generally, but erroneously, understood to be at a certain place, should be considered in determining what weight ought to be given to the calls for that line in a deed to a neighboring tract; and in determining what lands were conveyed by such deed, other calls therein may be given a controlling influence. Jones v. Powers, 65 T. 297.

The report of a surveyor appointed by the court is entitled to no more weight as evidence than the testimony of a witness who knows the facts. McAninch v. Freeman, 69 T. 416, 4 S. W. 369.

If the evidence in the case, from all the surrounding and connecting circumstances, satisfies the jury that the true location of a grant can be more certainly found by running course and direction, called for in the field notes from such corners as they may find to be marked and established on the ground, than by observing the calls for natural or artificial objects, they must so determine it. Bigham v. McDowell, 69 T. 190, 7 S. W. 315.

Where there are two conflicting surveys, and the evidence of a surveyor who ran the lines of both showed with reasonable certainty the true location of the disputed boundary to be as alleged by plaintiff, and there is no evidence to establish a different line, the court should give the judgment for plaintiff. Houston v. Brown, 77 T. 313.

In an action to try title to land, where the title depends upon the location of a line, proof beyond a reasonable doubt is not necessary. Scott v. Pettigrew, 72 T. 321, 12 S. W. 161.

Where there is evidence that a surveyor was mistaken as to where he was when he located a certain survey, it is proper to allow the survey to stand as he testifies he located it, without crediting his testimony as to where he was. Hume v. Hermesdkt (Sup.) 12 S. W. 235.

In trespass to try title it appeared that the northeast corner of plaintiff's land was the same as defendant's southwest corner, but that was not natural or due to any survey made by the field notes. Plaintiff's northeast corner and defendant's southwest corner were well identified, and, following course and distance from the corners, located the boundary line as claimed by plaintiff. Defendant's land was surveyed in 1838, and the line located where it was determined until 1860. In 1860, when a new survey was made, and the line was determined as described, the distance was 200 feet and 0 inch.

In trespass to try title the contention between the parties depended on the proper quantity of land in the original grant under which defendants claimed. The official maps of the county, and the testimony of those who had been the county surveyors for many years, and others who had surveyed grants of the land, showed that it cornered at a stone, and at a tree marked with the grantee's initials, which were, according to testimony established by the colonial surveyor, and had been used as the true monuments. According to this evidence the grant was as claimed by defendants. Plaintiff's evidence consisted of old surveys, maps, and field notes purporting to have been made by the colonial surveyor, giving courses and distances, and monuments not exactly shown as claimed by plaintiff, and the grant as shown by defendant's evidence should prevail. Withers v. O'Connor, 76 T. 185, 13 S. W. 743.

Where the field notes of a survey, and maps made by different county surveyors, show that the west line of a certain survey is the east line of a former survey, and that line has been surveyed more than 47 years, the line is correct. Where the distances of the respective surveys show a gap between them is not sufficient, after such lapse of time, to prove that the surveys do not actually adjoin. Standlee v. Burkitt, 78 T. 618, 14 S. W. 1040.

Surveys Nos. 323 and 324 were patented to plaintiff's husband. In 1870 his agent employed one B. to survey No. 324, and one W. had survey No. 323. B. did not find the corners called for in the field notes, and located the lines by their relation to the lines of other surveys as shown by a land-office plat. Soon afterwards W. purchased No. 323 by the description given in the patent. In 1879 the bearings of the trees called for by the field notes were discovered, and the lines were run in accordance therewith. The survey of 1870 gives the land in dispute to the intervener, who claims under W., and the other gives it to No. 324. Held, that a verdict sustaining the survey of 1870 should not be disturbed. Koenigheim v. Sherwood, 79 T. 508, 16 S. W. 23.

In trespass to try title the controversy was in respect to the location of the boundary between the Stone and Woodford leagues, which was the north boundary of the land in suit. Several leagues, including the Stone and Woodford leagues, were located contiguous to each other by a surveyor in 1834; and the evidence showed that they were surveyed on a common base line. In running out the Duggins league, and the Hood and Stone leagues, north of it, the north boundary of the Duggins was clearly established, and a continuation of the north line of the Duggins was intended to be the north line of the Woodford. Plaintiff claimed that the northeast corner of the Duggins, which was northeast corner of Woodford, was fixed by the southeast corner of the north of the base line, as the line was indicated by all the other evidence. The call in the Duggins field notes was "an elm, 15 inches in diameter, brs. S. 88° E., 21 yrs.; and a hackberry, 10 inches in diameter, brs. N., 88° W., 23 yrs." The bearing claimed by plaintiff was the same as "H, in a small prairie." Two witnesses, as a tree, marked by them as a guide to the corner. There was in fact an elm 135 varas south of the corner, as claimed by plaintiff, marked with old colony marks. The Woodford league was a square, whose sides were 5,000 varas; and, running the west line by course and distance, both trees were near the continuation of the line, but the distance gave out before defendant's elm was reached, and the distance to plaintiff's elm was 5,940 varas. No witness undertook to identify the corner positively. There was even more doubt about the northeast corner of the Woodford. Held, that plaintiff failed to sustain his claim by the evidence. Stephens v. Motl, 87 T. 64, 18 S. W. 99.

The northeast and southeast corners of a survey were well known, and marked on the ground. The calls were for north and south boundaries of 698 varas in length. If the southeast corner was run outward as the beginning point, the line to the call in a certain direction, and at a certain distance from a certain corner of another tract, then the north and south boundaries would be 1,900 varas in length, and the survey would contain more than twice the amount of land it was intended to include. Moreover, any boundary of the corner line, nor corner lines, would refer to as being at such corners, could be found on the ground, locating the southwest corner according to the calls therefor. If, however, the west boundary be located 698 varas west of the east boundary, the survey would contain all that it was intended to include, and the corners would be found next to the southeast corner of the tract, which might be those referred to in the description. Moreover, one of the chain bearers testified that in making the survey the lines were run on the ground commencing at the northeast corner, and that they ran north and south boundary lines, about 700 varas, which were justified in finding the western lots. Held, that the survey to be 698 varas west of the east line as determined by the corners on the ground. Lumpkin v. Draper (Sup.) 18 S. W. 1063.

Plaintiff and defendant owned adjoining tracts of land, the two together constituting

a parallelogram. The controversy involved a strip of 40 acres lying between the two, caused by a prolongation of defendant's line from the 3,200 varas alleged by him. Defendant's survey covered for 1,800 varas, but he offered parol evidence to show that the lines actually laid down by the surveyors were 2,200 varas long. The southwest, northeast, and southwest corners of defendant's survey were positively identified, as the difference between them was found to be those set out in his survey, without evidence of two witnesses, relied on by defendant to show the extension, differed as much as 54 varas as to the length of his side lines. Held, in view of such difference, and of the fact that defendant's tract could be located without difficulty according to the calls of his deed, that plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Williams v. Winslow, 84 T. 371, 19 S. W. 513.

Courses and distances must yield to the demands of an actual survey when the evidence determines the fact of such survey: so that, where the surveyor's field notes show actual courses and corners, there are but two points, contiguous, and evidence of such surveys are still found which reasonably indicate an excess in the distance of the lines of 250 varas in 7,116 varas, at the date of the survey (1856), containing a tract of 76 varas in a right variance of 30 varas should not overcome the other evidence pointing to the fact that the surveys are contiguous. Graham v. Dewees, 85 T. 355, 20 S. W. 127.

On an issue as to whether there was a vacancy between the east line of the A. survey and the north line of the L. T. R. Co. survey, the reports of the surveyors were contiguos—one north of the other—it appeared that the south line of the A. survey, in terms, ran “east 1,866 varas to the west line of the C. T. R. Co. survey No. 2, thence north 3,679 varas to the northwest corner of the C. T. R. Co. survey No. 1,” and the field notes of the A. survey stated that the east line of that survey and the west line of the C. T. R. Co. surveys were coincident. It further appeared that the existence of a vacancy between the two lines would involve a violation of the west call of the A. survey, while the absence of such vacancy would harmonize with the surrounding surveys. Held, that a verdict finding in favor of a vacancy to the west of the evidence, and should be set aside. Waggener v. Daniels, 4 C. A. 354, 25 S. W. 735.

In a suit concerning the boundary line between lands of H. and A., the surveyor, who had, in the court, fixed it as a line, was the court by objects on the ground, which were called for in deeds to H. and his vendors. There was evidence that H. acquiesced in such line, and that his vendors had recognized it, and that a tree called for near a stream had been washed away, but another tree, marked and described as the one called for in the deed, stood in the proper position, and was positively identified by the surveyor as the call in the deed. Held sufficient to establish the boundary line as claimed by H. Adams v. Half (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 334.

All parties claimed under a partition decree about 35 years old. A surveyor appointed by the court stated that he had run the north line of the survey from east to west, finding most of the bearing trees described in said decree, and some stakes; that he found the east line of the west quarter, which had been set off in the partition, plainly marked; that at defendant's request he then ran the north line east from the point which defendant asserted to be the west corner of the line, said point being 520 varas east of the point asserted by the plaintiff, and fixed by witness in running the line west, and failed to find any bearing trees, and found a conflict of 520 varas. Two county surveyors testified that they had surveyed the same land, and came to the same conclusion. Held, that the west line was as contended by plaintiff. Butts v. Caffall (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 373.

Where, in trespass to try title, the issue is as to the location of a boundary line, and the evidence, conflicting, all that can be required of plaintiff is to show the boundary line as claimed by him, by a preponderance of the evidence. Briggs v. Pierson, 7 C. A. 638, 26 S. W. 457.

Where defendant claims title through a survey whose calls are the lines of certain older surveys surrounding it, if no evidence to support his claims is found in the surveys, the verdict should be for plaintiff. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartz (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 782.

The field notes of the survey in suit and those of another tract, surveyed at about the same time, called for a common bearing tree at the southwest corner of the tract in suit. A marked tree was found, and the original bearing trees of adjoining surveys, calling for the southwest corner of the tract in suit, were identified. A line run by following the lines of an older survey towards the point where it had a common bearing tree with the southwest corner of the tract in suit fell short only 34 varas of the point at which a surveyor appointed by the court had fixed such corner. Held, that the evidence sufficiently established the position of the southwest corner. Stansus v. Smith, 8 C. A. 635, 20 S. W. 262.

In an action involving the question of boundary, the jury adopted a survey reported by S., except that they established the southwest corner 105 varas west of where S. located it. There was evidence that S. measured the south line from the bank of a river, that it was about 1,062 varas from the line from the same tree, the cedar trees, that the surveys made prior to the grant called for a cedar tree at such point, and that the river had materially moved its channel eastward. Held, that the verdict, as to such corner, was supported by the evidence. Taylor v. Brown (Civ. App.) 8 S. W. 312.

An original plat called for a tree that was identified by marks made on it by the maker of the original survey, and, starting from the point fixed by the tree, the plat fixed the direction of a line which plaintiff claimed was the boundary in controversy, and on which defendant had erected a stone wall. Defendants' surveyors fixed another line, but they did not deny the existence of the tree nor explain why they disregarded it in making their survey. Held, that a judgment for defendants was not sustained. Ostrom v. Layer (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1096.

The field notes of the survey, under which plaintiff claimed title to the land in dispute, called for the beginning corner at the northwest corner of the L. survey. The southwest corner of the latter survey was well established and recognized, and a line run therefrom N., 30° W., 1,400 varas, reached the point claimed by plaintiff as the gining corner of the survey. This point was designated in the field notes as a rock mound, whence a willow tree bore S. 36° E.; and, though these monuments were not found during the survey in 1878, he located the northwest corner of the L survey by running course and distance from its southwest corner, and found an old mound of rock answering the description in the field notes, and that, while he did not find the willow tree, he did find a branch where the course and distance willows had grown, and there were stumps of willows at the proper bearing and distances from said course. The calls in the field notes of defendant's patent made defendant's east line overlap the west line of the S. survey as thus ascertained 222 varas. Held, that the location of the southwest corner of the S. survey was at the northwest corner of the L survey, and that the land described in defendant's patent overlapped plaintiff's west line 222 varas. Bullard v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 925.

Where to establish the line of a survey at a certain tree, claimed by one party to be an original line tree, would do violence to the course of such line and the width of the survey as originally called for, but to place it according to the contention of the other party, would conform to the original calls, a judgment in favor of the latter was proper. Richardson v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 974.

Evidence in suit to establish the boundary between adjoining owners held insufficient to establish that claimed by defendant. McCulloch v. Patman (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1012.

In an action involving a disputed boundary line, evidence held to sustain a judgment in favor of defendants. Barrow v. Lyons, 38 C. A. 685, 86 S. W. 773.

On an issue as to the location of a boundary, evidence held insufficient to show the existence of a monument called for in a deed under which one of the parties claimed. Chew v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 525.

The declaration of a former owner of land as to his boundary line, corroborated by evidence of general reputation during a long period of time, is, in the absence of opposing evidence, sufficient to support a finding locating the boundary accordingly. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 898.

In an action of trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to support a judgment sustaining the contention of the plaintiff as to the location of a boundary. Camp v. Locas (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 932.

In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to sustain the court's finding as to the location of a boundary. Harris County Irr. Co. v. Hornberger, 42 C. A. 450, 94 S. W. 145.

Evidence on the issue of the location of a boundary between senior and junior surveys examined, and held not to locate lost bearing trees called for in the senior survey, and the distances called for therein control. Keystone Mills Co. v. Peach River Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 64.

In trespass to try title, evidence examined, and held to show the boundary line of a survey was located as claimed by defendants. Davidson v. Equitable Securities Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 757.

On issue as to the location of a boundary, evidence considered, and held sufficient to sustain the finding of the jury as to the location. Beckham v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 131.

Where, in trespass to try title, plaintiffs claimed under the P. grant and a witness who was a surveyor, civil engineer, and chief draftsman in the general land office testified that the P. survey could not be identified, mapped, or patented because it did not call for any other surveys or objects that appeared on the official map by which its relative position could be determined, and that he was unable to locate the P. survey by the calls for its lines contained in two adjoining surveys, the field notes of the latter surveys shown to be delineated on official maps, which called for the boundary lines of the P. survey, did not necessarily establish the location of such survey on the ground with such certainty as to require a finding that the land described in plaintiffs' petition was covered by the P. survey, Smith v. Downs, 71 C. 215. McRae v. W. & S. Grant, 5 C. 293.

Where plaintiff in trespass to try title seeks to overcome the proof that the calls for course and distance and the description of his tract, as shown by his deed, are deficient in substance with precision, and to locate a corner which does not accord both with the configuration of the tract and with the quantum of land specified, and establish the corner at another place, he can do so only by showing with reasonable certainty, not only the existence of the monument or natural object mentioned in his field notes, but that the object is in conflict with the calls for course and distance contained in it. Jaggers v. Stringer, 106 S. W. 151, 47 C. A. 571.

On the issue of the existence of vacancies between surveys, evidence held to warrant a finding that vacancies did not exist. Austin v. Espuela Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1158.

In trespass to try title involving disputed boundaries, testimony by a tenant of one of the tracts that the owner of the other had pointed out the boundary line, but not showing that they had an agreement that it should be placed at that point, was insufficient to establish a boundary by agreement or create an estoppel. Hunter v. Malone, 49 C. A. 116, 103 S. W. 709.

Evidence, in an action involving the position of a survey, held to sustain a finding as to the corner. Simpson v. De Ramirez, 30 C. A. 25, 110 S. W. 1056.

Evidence held to establish a boundary line between two surveys as an extension of a particular line. Kinnsley v. Petterson (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 105.

In an action involving the location of a boundary line, evidence held to establish plaintiff's claim. Franklin v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1168.

In trespass to try title, in which the defense was that a prior survey fully covered the land called for by plaintiff's patent, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the calls of the prior survey were certain and the survey was covered and claimed by plaintiff, and left nothing to satisfy plaintiff's patent. Hackbarth v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 591.

In an action to determine the boundary between two surveys, evidence held to show that the true line ran so as to include the disputed land in defendants' survey. Gull v. O'Bryan (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 593.
Evidence held to sustain a judgment establishing a boundary line between certain surveyors. Smokey v. Moody (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 920.
Evidence held to show that the south boundary line of a tract conveyed out of a survey was the south boundary of such survey, as referred to in the deed, and not a line a certain distance south of a point designated on a plat. Rameaur v. Wall (Civ. App.) 175 S. W. 590.

In trespasses to try title to determine the location of a boundary, evidence held to sustain a verdict fixing the boundary in accordance with plaintiff's contention. Walker v. Hollis (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 567.

Evidence held to establish a verdict fixing the south boundary line of a specified survey. Billups v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1121.

In an action by the state to recover a tract claimed to exist as a vacancy between a state road and the 50-cent line under the 18th Leg. c. 52) and certain leagues, evidence held to sustain a finding that no vacancy existed, in that defendant's survey was actually located on the ground along the boundary line of such leagues. State v. Sulfow (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 655.

In cases in which the controversy title was the location of the north boundary of a certain survey, evidence held to sustain a finding that such line was as claimed by defendant. Cochran v. Casey (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1145.

Evidence in a suit to determine the boundary between two surveys held to sustain the finding as to the location thereof. Cleveland v. Bruce Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1183.

In trespasses to try title to a strip of land plaintiff introduced in evidence deeds under which defendant claimed, which deeds described the land as a lot in a city block fronting on a designated street. According to the position of the block as indicated by monuments erected by the city after plaintiff and a remote grantee of defendant had acquired their respective tracts, the strip was a part of plaintiff's lots. The undisputed evidence old that the block had been correctly fixed as to its position by the monuments, but there was evidence indicating that one of the lines of the block as it originally existed was some distance from the place fixed by the monuments. At the time the deceased husband of plaintiff purchased, the locality was in the brush, and the husband had laid off his lots surveyed and built a fence on the lines then given him. Held that, though the deeds in defendant's chain of title referred to a city block, the deeds were not conclusive between the parties as to the true boundary line between their lots. Campbell v. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 756.

In an action to recover land, evidence held to support a finding that the land was within the boundaries of a designated league, and within boundaries described in deeds under which defendant claimed. Cole v. Webb (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 245.

In an action for damages for cutting and removing timber and carrying away gravel, evidence held insufficient to show that a line claimed by the defendants as the defendants' tracts was made by the surveyor preparatory to and as a basis for the issuance of a patent to the section. Burke v. Braumiller (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 206.

Evidence held to support a verdict locating a boundary line at the distance called for in a deed, where such deed described the property by an unspecified section. Jones v. Petty (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 663.

In an action to recover land, evidence held to support a finding that the defendant had made no recovery of the land. Ewing v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1117.

In an action to try title involving a disputed boundary line, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. League v. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science and Art (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1182.

In a boundary dispute evidence of a marked line, recognized for more than 40 years, held sufficient to establish an old marked line. Wm. M. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science and Art v. Gieseke (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 612.

Evidence in trespasses to try title held to show that the survey in controversy was located as claimed by plaintiff, showing that the first call of the field notes "along line of" a certain survey was inadvertent. Gilbert v. Finberg (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 597.

Evidence held to support a verdict locating a boundary line at the distance called for in a deed, where such deed described the property by an unspecified section. Jones v. Petty (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 663.

Witness' testimony as to location of crossing by which grant was located held valueless to establish a valid grant, where the effect would be to locate the grant in a town whose officers could not legally make such a grant. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

In trespasses to try title involving a disputed boundary line, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. City of San Antonio v. League (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 256.

33. Injunctions and findings.—See notes under Title 37, Chap. 15, and under Art. 7755.
34. Judgment and enforcement thereof.—See notes under Title 37, Chap. 15, and under Art. 7755.
35. Agreements between parties.—It is only where there is a doubt as to the identity of the dividing lines, or the parties may establish their possession by a part agreement. Houston v. Sneed, 15 T. 307.

Courts will not disturb parol agreements of boundaries, but will encourage such settlements of disputed, conflicting, or doubtful boundaries, as a means of suppressing spiteful and vexatious litigation. McArthur v. Henry, 22 T. 801.
The east and west halves of a 640-acre tract were, by partition, respectively apportioned to the wives of E. and W. W. being desirous of improving the west half, and no surveyor being chosen, as testified to by E. and W., as to the size, these two of them, "stepped off the land the best they could, so as to enable W. to know where to erect his fence." E. remarked that it made no difference whether they were over the line or not, and accordingly erected his fence to the northwards. It did not appear that this fence was adopted as a line, or that any line was marked beyond the fence, which extended but a small part of the distance across the tract, and which varied from the direction of the corresponding lines of the tract 5 degrees; and he had frequently said that he would extend E. and W. talk about the land, and had never heard either of them say that there was any line established between them, and had never heard that the fence was recognized as a line. Held, that the evidence was insufficient to establish a verbal partition line. Dement v. Williams, 44 T. 158.

Where neighbors are in doubt about their boundaries, and both are ignorant where they are, and they in good faith establish divisional lines between them, and these lines are held for a period within the time prescribed by law for the establishment of such lines, the same is prima facie prima facie prima facie evidence of the true boundary. Conn. v. Hagemeister, 158 W. 506.

Where owners of adjoining estates agree, verbally, on a compromise line as the dividing line between them, it is not necessary to the validity of such an agreement that the line be established or marked. West v. Board of Trustees, 213 W. 492. Where adjoining owners, intending to establish a division line according to the true boundary, by mistake agreed on a line which did not conform to the true boundary, the agreement was not void. Cooper v. Austin, 58 T. 494; Harn v. Smith, 79 T. 310, 15 S. W. 240, 23 Am. St. Rep. 340; Lecomte v. Toudouze, 83 T. 298, 17 S. W. 1047, 27 Am. St. Rep. 870.

Plaintiff, whose land was claimed adversely, agreed to the appointment of parties to settle and survey the location of a line, supposing that the controversy only involved the line between two old boundary lines which had been surveyed. The claimant had procured a patent to a narrow strip of land which was included in the plaintiff's original survey, but not included according to the facts in the patent based thereon. Plaintiff was entitled to the adverse character of the patentidan plaintiff was entitled to the adverse character of the patent, and the judge held that the patent did not correctly set out his field. Held, that plaintiff was entitled to have his agreement canceled. Morrill v. Bartlett, 58 T. 644.

Two pre-emptioners on adjoining, unsurveyed state lands agreed on a dividing line. One said his improvements were on the other's land, and the other represented to the purchaser that he did not claim any of the land improved. The purchaser agreed with the nonvendor that all the vacant land should be surveyed in the nonvendor's name, he to convey to the purchaser all the land included in the survey on the purchaser's side of the agreed line. When patented, the purchaser to pay his share of the expenses. Under this agreement, the purchaser continued the improvements on his side of the agreed line, and, when the survey was made as agreed, offered to pay his share of the expenses. Held, that a subsequent purchaser of the land, having notice of the agreements concerning it, could not recover from the first purchaser the land which he had improved, and which he was to have by the agreements concerning the division line, survey, and patent. Mitchell v. Nix, 1 U. C. 126.

A division line is run by the agreement and direction of adjoining landowners, for the purpose of settling a dispute, and it is agreed on and acquiesced in by them at the time and for more than a year afterwards, the parties must abide by it. Eberling v. Weyel, 2 U. C. 501.

A parcel adjustment of boundaries between adjoining owners does not operate as an estoppel, where the party setting it up has not changed his position for the worse, nor the other acquired any rights under it. Bridges v. Johnson, 69 T. 714, 7 S. W. 596.

A mere license by the owner of one tract of land permitting the owner of an adjoining tract, when which and the tract between is disputed, to erect and occupy over the true line, will not amount to an agreement accepting the line claimed by the license as the boundary, though his possession extends up to the line so claimed. Wright v. Lasater, 71 T. 640, 10 S. W. 235.

Where the vendor and defendant once agreed to establish a line with reference to the land in controversy, but never executed the agreement, does not affect plaintiff's rights. Evans v. Foster, 79 T. 48, 15 S. W. 170.

Where adjoining owners are in doubt as to the boundary, and after a survey agree upon a certain line, their agreement is valid, and the line as established by it will be held to be the true line. Levy v. Maddox, 81 T. 110, 15 S. W. 683.

An agreement between adjoining owners as to their boundary, by which one gains several feet more than his deed calls for, cannot affect the quality of the property boundary between him and another adjoining owner on the opposite side. Bohny v. Petty, 81 T. 524, 15 S. W. 80.

Where a division line between two tracts of land owned by different persons has been extended in the wrong place, and the parties then expressly agreed that it should be the line between them, it becomes their established division line. Harrell v. Houston, 66 T. 278, 17 S. W. 781.

The fixing of a boundary line by parol is not within the operation of the statute of frauds, since, when the boundary is fixed by the parties, they hold up to it, not by virtue of the parol transfer of title, but by virtue of their title deeds. Lecomte v. Toudouze, 82 T. 298, 17 S. W. 1047, 27 Am. St. Rep. 870.

In trespass to try title between adjoining landowners, defendant testified that he had settled the disputed boundary line by oral agreement with plaintiff and her husband, and that a bend in the line was to be made to allow plaintiff to retain certain improvements she had made. The county surveyor testified that, at the request of defendant and without their consent, he had surveyed the true line under their direction, so as to leave plaintiff her improvements, and that they expressed their satisfaction with the line as run. The surveyor was corroborated by three witnesses as to the agreed line. The parties immediately erected a fence on the the true line, the fence till the beginning of suit, 18 months afterwards. Held, that the parties had established the boundary by oral agreement. Id.

Where a dispute arises as to the eastern boundary of a certain survey, an agreement between the owner with a neighbor owning part of the land east, bringing the line entered upon to assert, as against the owner to such neighbor, east, that the line as originally claimed by such owner is the true boundary. Langer-

Where the adjoining owners agreed to convey their land to a third person, the location of the division line must be determined by the facts and conditions existing at the time of the conveyance, and cannot be subsequently shifted by an agreement to which all persons interested in the lands are not parties. Donaldson v. Rall, 37 S. W. 16, 14 C. A. 336.

A tenant who has the right to possession of land in common law and in the possession of the defendants for 16 years by plaintiff's grantor, was sufficient to sustain a conclusion that the prior owners of the two lots agreed, at the time the wall was built, that the division line should be established as the center of the party wall, as indicated in the agreement. Roberts v. Co., 22 S. W. 590, 92 C. A. 1062.

Defendant's remote grantor agreed with certain heirs owning land south of his that his south line was a line running east from a bois d'arc stake, excluding the tract in controversy, but the subsequent conveyances bounded the land as adjoining the heir's land and including the disputed tract. Held that, neither defendant nor his immediate grantor having known of the agreed line, he is not bound thereby; the stake being insufficient to give notice thereof, and no possession of the land cut off by the agreed line having been taken by the heirs, nor anything done to put purchasers upon notice of the agreement. Taylor v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 314.

Where the boundary between two lots of land is in dispute, the owners may agree upon a division line as the true boundary between them, and the agreed line is binding upon them and those claiming under them, whether it be the true boundary or not. Nickerson v. Roan (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 495.

A tenant or subtenant had no authority as such to bind the owner of the land by an agreement as to boundaries with an adjoining owner. Hunter v. Malone, 49 C. A. 116, 166 S. W. 709.

After an uncertain boundary line had been fixed by agreement of the abutting owners, one of them sold to defendant, and an action was subsequently brought by a purchaser of the property on the opposite side of the line to try title to the strip of land in question, the true line was fixed by agreement and the owner, having known of the line as fixed by agreement and the original line, held, that an instruction to find for defendant if the boundary line was fixed by agreement as alleged, regardless whether the purchaser of the property on the other side of the line at the time of his purchase knew of the agreement fixing such line, was properly refused. Louisa v. Dupuy, 23 C. A. 113.

Where an uncertain boundary line was fixed by agreement of the owners, and defendant purchased the land on one side of the agreed line believing that the same belonged to the surveyor owned by his vendor, and in good faith paid value therefor, knowing the line was the agreement line, not knowing that there was any mistake, the owners of the other survey would be estopped to deny that the boundary line fixed by agreement was not properly located. Id.

Where the exact location of a boundary line is uncertain, and it is located by an agreement of the abutting owner, knowledge on the part of a person who subsequently purchases a part of the property that the agreed line is not the true line will not defeat his right to hold to said line if he purchases on the faith of such agreement. Id.

A boundary line fixed by agreement of adjoining owners is binding upon them, regardless of whether it is the true line. Provident Nat. Bank v. Webb (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 426.

Where there was an excess of land in a block over the acreage embraced in the original survey, the owners, one of them having been one of the original signers of the agreement for a resurvey and adjustment of boundaries, one of the signers could not recover a strip from another in conformity to the resurvey, where thereby the latter would lose a portion of the land embraced in the original field notes of his land, because, of his inability to obtain any land from the one who refused to sign. Smith v. Gilley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1107.

An oral agreement between two landowners to have their boundary line run held

A boundary line held an award consolation line helps the landowners. Id.

Where the means of information were equally open to both parties to a boundary agreement, a mistake as to the true location of the line as shown by an approved survey was not sufficient to invalidate the agreement, unless one of the parties knew the true line and thereby gained an advantage over the other. Denton v. English (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 264.

Where one of the parties to a boundary agreement, who knew about a survey fixing the true line, concealed that fact from the other and thereby induced him to sign a boundary agreement to his disadvantage, the action of the first party constituted such fraud as would invalidate the agreement. 1d.

36. Estoppel in general.—The owner of a grant of land employed a surveyor to survey a boundary line and mark the same, and defendant in that survey was induced to believe a fact not true; and the other party to the contract was estopped from denying the same fact; that is, the fact of the existence of the line as surveyed. Potvin v. Pultz, 36 S. W. 289.

37. Estoppel in conveyance by deed.—The fact that the plaintiff had a description of the land which was wrong, and that the survey was inaccurate, was evidence of estoppel in possession. Wilson v. Easterly, 46 S. W. 902.

38. Estoppel in favor of defendant.—The defendant, in his answer, denied a fact, and, at the trial, the plaintiff failed to prove it. Such a defendant is not estopped by a plaintiff's failure to prove a fact for which he is not responsible. Rosenbach v. Ebenstein, 19 S. W. 371.

39. Estoppel in possession.—A claim of title is not estopped by the possession of an adjoining owner, in the absence of a showing that the land in possession is the same land claimed by the adjoining owner. Murphy v. Schatz, 37 S. W. 994.

40. Estoppel in possession.—A defendant, after he had entered into possession of the land claimed by the plaintiff, refused to yield up the possession, and the plaintiff's surveyors surveyed and marked the land. The plaintiff was entitled to recover title to the land so surveyed and marked. Love v. Barber, 17 T. 312.

41. Estoppel in possession.—A plaintiff, who did not enter into possession of the land claimed by him until after the defendant had entered into possession, was held to be estopped from denying the defendant's title. Williams v. Newell, 37 S. W. 997.

42. Estoppel in possession.—A defendant, who had entered into possession of the land claimed by the plaintiff, was held to be estopped from denying the plaintiff's right to possession. Bloyd v. Marks, 50 S. W. 753.

43. Estoppel in possession.—A defendant, who had entered into possession of the land claimed by the plaintiff, was held to be estopped from denying the plaintiff's right to possession. Bloyd v. Marks, 50 S. W. 753.

44. Estoppel in possession.—A defendant, who had entered into possession of the land claimed by the plaintiff, was held to be estopped from denying the plaintiff's right to possession. Bloyd v. Marks, 50 S. W. 753.

45. Estoppel in possession.—A defendant, who had entered into possession of the land claimed by the plaintiff, was held to be estopped from denying the plaintiff's right to possession. Bloyd v. Marks, 50 S. W. 753.

46. Estoppel in possession.—A defendant, who had entered into possession of the land claimed by the plaintiff, was held to be estopped from denying the plaintiff's right to possession. Bloyd v. Marks, 50 S. W. 753.
of the fence, either on the theory of an agreed boundary or by estoppel, he having acted on the boundary pointed out. Parrish v. Williams (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1867.

If a boundary line is marked out by a tenant occupying the adjoining tract, and such tenant placed a fence on the line designated, the owner was not estopped, independently of adverse holding or limitations, from claiming to the true line. Hunter v. Maloney, 39 A. 116, 103 S. W. 709.

Plaintiff and his family had a homestead in one half of a city lot, but a narrow strip thereof was inclosed with the other half of the lot by a fence. Defendant purchased the adjoining lot without any inquiry as to the true boundary, and subsequently erected improvements upon the strip belonging to plaintiff. Plaintiff did not object to the erection of the improvements on his land, nor did he make any misrepresentations inducing their erection thereon; but his wife, upon learning that defendant was occupying the strip, objected thereto. Held, that plaintiff was not estopped from asserting the true boundary between his homestead and defendant's lot. Werkheiser v. Foard (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 983.

If plaintiff and defendant's grantor in locating a boundary fence acted under a mistake that the line thereof was the boundary line, neither were estopped from showing that it was not. In fact, the real boundary line, or showing where such line really is, and plaintiff not having represented, nor induced defendant to believe, when defendant purchased, that the fence was on the line, defendant is in no better position than his grantor, and plaintiff was not estopped to show that the fence was located by mistake and was not on the line. Weston v. Meeker (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 461.

In trespass to try title involving land along a boundary line, defendant was not estopped to claim title to the land by limitation or otherwise because of any act of his remote grantor while acting as a commissioner in the partition of plaintiff's grantor's ancestor's estate; it appearing that if the report of partition signed by him embraced the disputed land he did not know it, and that the surveyor for partition, who was, also, the remote grantor, in such remote grantor's possession that the fence now claimed by defendant as the boundary was the boundary. Id.

An instrument executed by the general manager of a company which recited that by mistake the company had put its fence on a part of an adjacent survey of another without showing the distance over the line of the survey, except that the fence was located "too far west" operated, in the absence of any evidence, as an admission that the fence was not on the boundary between the two surveys, and that the true boundary line was not west thereof, and operated as an estoppel against limitation of title or adverse possession. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1659.

Where there is a dispute as to the boundaries of land conveyed, and the grantor agrees to be bound by a survey of the land, and the survey does not sustain his contention, he is not estopped to claim in opposition to the survey as against a subsequent grantee, and does not acquiesce in such claim. Held, that the original grantor to give him notice of such grantor's repudiation of the survey. Pierce v. Texas Rice Development Co., 52 C. A. 205, 114 S. W. 857.

Adjacent as to the boundary, as a boundary, as subsequently one of the owners permitted a forfeiture of his land to the estate. Thereafter his son was awarded the land by the state, and the son subsequently conveyed it to such owner. Held that, as there was no privity of estate in such owner's present and former holdings, his acts prior to the forfeiture were not available as an estoppel against him in establishing the boundary. Runkle v. Smith, 52 C. A. 186, 114 S. W. 865.

Representations by plaintiff's ancestor in defendant's possession as to a boundary line would not estop plaintiffs from asserting the true boundary line as against defendant, who were not induced to influence defendant's possession, and did not rely thereon. Gaffney v. Clark (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 330, rehearing denied 118 S. W. 606.

Where it did not appear that plaintiff's testator had actual notice of a resurvey of part of the land in defendant's father, or if he had been induced to do or omit to do anything to her prejudice by reason thereof, plaintiff was not entitled to the benefit of a plea of estoppel. Hill v. Collier (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1084.

A grantee of 200 acres of land, to be taken out of a larger tract, who recorded his deed and, in selecting the land, included land not owned by the grantor, was not estopped from relocating the land, where his original selection was made by mistake. Wing v. Red (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 301.

Grantees are estopped, by pointing out boundaries, from afterwards asserting title to the land within the boundaries pointed out. Zander v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 222.

Where one of the owners is a married woman, and the line is run fairly and honestly, and is acquiesced in by her, it ought to be as binding on her as on others. Id.

Although the presumption in favor of a boundary line acquiesced in by adjoining proprietors is strengthened by lapse of time, there is no per se rule of duration, and each case must be determined according to its own circumstances, modifying the conclusiveness of the presumption. Floyd v. Rice, 28 T. 341.

In a boundary case between two adjoining landowners, it appeared that defendant built his fence and erected his improvements with reference to a particular line contented for by him as the true division line. The parties derived their respective title from one common source. There was some evidence that plaintiff had acquiesced in such a line long after he had erected three and one-half bound, which evidence that on one occasion plaintiff's ancestor pointed out to a witness a line different from that now claimed by plaintiff, and possibly the same line claimed by defendant. Held, that a verdict for defendant would not be disturbed. McArthur v. Henry, 35 T. 801.
Though one of two adjoining proprietors has been led to establish, or acquiesce in the establishment of, a line as the true boundary between the estates, by the misrepresentation of the other, still the line is binding on him as to purchasers from the other, who make improvements relying upon the supposed boundary. Notice to such purchasers that he does not recognize the line as the true boundary is sufficient, however, to save his rights, and he need not actually take steps to prevent their trespass. Hefner v. Downing, 37 T. 576.

The presumption that a boundary line acquiesced in is the true one, though strengthened by lapse of time, does not become conclusive in any fixed period, and depends for its strength largely upon the degree of information as to his rights possessed by the person to be charged. Medlin v. Wilkins, 60 T. 469.

Acquiescence for more than 30 years in a division line precludes either party from setting up a new line. Davis v. Mitchell, 66 T. 623.

Where, in an action to recover land, there is no evidence that plaintiff assented to the location of the boundary line claimed and used by the defendant, he is not estopped, unless by limitation, from asserting his claim. Horst v. Herring (Sup.) 8 S. W. 306.

Plaintiff's father, who conveyed the land to him as a gift, while owner caused the boundary line to be established and permanently marked, and defendant, while the line was so recognized, bought the adjoining tract, relying on such boundary, and made improvements, and occupied the land for many years without adverse claim by plaintiff. Held, that the latter was estopped to deny that such line is the true boundary. Anderson v. Jackson (Sup.) 13 S. W. 20.

An acquiescence by one of the heirs of a testator in a boundary line established by the executor does not bind the other heirs. Largow v. Glover, 77 T. 418, 14 S. W. 141.

An owner's failure to object to improvements on that part of his lot lying beyond his fence, that is, the true boundary for several years, he being ignorant of a mistake in their location, is not such acquiescence in the boundaries so established as prevents him from recovering up to the true line. Bohny v. Petty, 81 T. 624, 17 S. W. 85.

Where a division line between two tracts of land owned by different persons has been extended in the wrong place, and accepted and acquiesced in as the dividing line from 1872 to 1883, it becomes their established division line. Harrell v. Houston, 66 T. 278, 17 S. W. 721.

Where adjoining landowners agree on a disputed division line, and such line is acted on and acquiesced in by them, it is binding on them, and those claiming under them, without regard to the length of time it was so acted on and acquiesced in. Bailey v. Baker, 4 C. A. 296, 23 S. W. 454.

Plaintiff is not estopped from asserting title to property to a given line by recognizing another line prior to receiving the deed under which he claims. Reed v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 966.

A boundary line may be established by agreement or by acquiescence in and acceptance and recognition of a line as a boundary. Wardlow v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 828.

In an action involving a disputed boundary line, claimed by defendant to be identical with a line shown to have been run by a surveyor for a county road, an instruction implying that any acquiescence by plaintiff and defendant, or those under whom they claim, however small, in the line run by the surveyor, should defeat recovery, is error. Vogt v. Geyer (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 117.

Acquiescence in a boundary line, not amounting to an estoppel, is merely a fact to be weighed by the jury in determining the correct boundary. Id.

Where one adjoining owner occupied up to a certain line, and allowed the other owner to do so, believing, induced by a mistake in a survey, that such was the true line, it cannot be presumed that such line was agreed on as the boundary. Stier v. Latreyc (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 589.

The fact that adjoining landowners acted on a boundary line for six years, and until plaintiff discovered a shortcoming in his acreage, in his own interest, did not constitute an estoppel against plaintiff's obtaining a determination of the true boundary, but his acquiescence was a fact proper to be submitted to the jury. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

Where all parties interested in a tract of land purchase their interests with reference to a fence line, and such line is recognized as the dividing line for more than 20 years, it must be taken as the true line. Sullivan v. Michael, 39 C. A. 564, 87 S. W. 1061.

Long acquiescence in a boundary line raises no presumption of law that the line is the properly established and determined boundary line. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 849.

To establish a boundary by agreement or create an estoppel, somebody must have been misled to their injury, and mere acquiescence in a boundary, where no one has been induced to change his situation, for a period short of the longest period of limitation, would not be sufficient. Hunter v. Malone, 49 C. A. 116, 108 S. W. 709.

Where a line coinciding with a fence between two parcels was fixed and determined by original owners, and for more than 30 years was recognized and acquiesced in by all claiming under them, it would not avail plaintiff in trespass to try title, that this was not the true boundary. Roberts v. Blount (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 933.

38. Practical location by parties.—Where the position of one of the corners called for was not accurately known to either party, and each had equal opportunity to inform himself in regard to it, and they, acting together, disregarded information given to them, and met and marked at the time, ignoring a right on the land which afterwards appeared, one got 50 acres of land more than he was entitled to upon an equal division which they intended to have made, it was held the losing party was nevertheless bound by the division so made. Hoxey v. Clay, 20 T. 582.

Where a deed calls for a certain corner and line of a known survey, but the parties, by mistake, lay other lines and corners on the ground, and the rights of innocent parties afterwards become fixed by the lines and corners as laid down, such lines and corners will control those of the survey. Blumberg v. Mauer, 37 T. 2.
A dividing line fairly agreed upon and marked out by the owners of adjoining tracts of land will be conclusive upon both, and those claiming under them, as to the true locality of their dividing line, unless it may subsequently, after long acquiescence, be ascertained to vary from the course called for in the deeds under which the parties claimed prior to agreeing upon the line; and the rule is the same whether the marked line be recored called for in the deed, or whether it be subsequently marked and establish-

One who marks and records evidence of the boundaries of his land is estopped from afterwards alleging, as against a subsequent locator of adjoining land, that the boundary was in error. Whitehead, 55 T. 85.

Where, in 1858, parties owning adjoining land took possession, and afterwards, by mutual consent, moved their fences, reducing the width of a lane between them, and in 1874 caused a survey to be made resulting in one's withdrawal of his fence, the other, in an action of trespass to try his claim brought in 1880, was estopped from asserting a different line. Davis v. Smith, 61 T. 18.

In an action to recover a strip of land as a part of survey 25, defendant claimed that the line as surveyed appeared that plaintiff had built a fence between the two surveys, which was agreed by them to be the true boundary line, that the fence stood for 12 years, and during that time had been acquiesced in by them as the correct line; that plaintiff, with the consent of defendant's grantor, had joined a fence to this line, inclosing survey 25 and the strip in question. Held, that the line as established was the true boundary, and that the strip in question was a part of survey 25. King v. Mitchell, 1 C. A. 701, 21 S. W. 50.

Where defendant and plaintiff's grantor agreed on the line between their lots, and built a fence thereon, plaintiff, as subsequent grantee, is bound by such line. Eddie v. Tinnin, 7 C. A. 371, 26 S. W. 732.

If the grantee fenced to his south line as he knew it to be, and as it had actually been surveyed by the surveyor and by himself, the surveyor not being a cotrograntee, relying on such designation of boundary, bought from their common grantor the land lying south of this fence, those claiming under the first grantee would be estopped from claiming land south of the same. Holland v. Thompson, 15 C. A. 471, 35 S. W. 19.

A field of acts in building a fence and maintaining a line as a boundary for several years from asserting that the line was at some other point. Schiele v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 303.

39. Private surveys.—The boundary of land, the legal title to which is in the state, cannot be fixed, as against the state, by a surveyor merely employed to survey it, and who makes a mistake in the boundary line, nor by failure to correct the mistake, as the state cannot be bound by estoppel. Saunders v. Hart, 57 T. 8.

A boundary line fixed by a surveyor employed by various property owners is not binding an adjoining owner, who was not a party to the surveying, and who never acquiesced in the line as fixed by the surveyor. Kampmann v. Heints (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 329.

Where, on a private survey of land described in a deed, the surveyor abandons a call for the beginning corner, which was clearly erroneous, and adopts a new beginning corner, whereby the boundaries are made to substantially comply with the other calls of the deed, in determining what land was conveyed by the deed the boundaries as fixed by the survey will control. Blackburn v. Norman (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 718.

A boundary line fixed in 1857 by the court, and accepted by the adjoining owners for 20 years, will not be changed to conform with a survey made in 1877 by one of the owners, who thereafter claimed to the new line, and built a fence along that line the following year, and occupied the space between the old line and the new 15 years. Stark v. Homuth (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 761.

Where the purchaser of a tract of land bounded by one of the lines of an original survey caused the same to be surveyed at the time of his purchase, he is not bound by the latter survey, and the original boundary line can be located on the ground. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

40. Official surveys.—See notes under Art. 5336 et seq.

41. Apportionment of excess or deficiency.—Where a block is subsequently found to contain more land than the aggregate amount called for by the surveys of the tracts within it, the proper course is to divide the surplus proportionally among the several tracts. Welder v. Carroll, 39 T. 317.

Where an entire tract of land is conveyed by two deeds, that for each portion calling for the line of the other as a boundary line, and the tract contains more land than the amounts expressed in the deeds, the excess must be divided between the two grantees in proportion to amounts called for in the deeds, irrespective of the prices paid therefor. Sellers v. Reed, 46 T. 377.

In an action to settle the boundary line between two tracts of land, where the surveys were made at the same time, by the same person, and call for each other, but no boundary line was fixed on the ground, a space left between them, according to the surveyor's field notes, will be apportioned to the owners of the tracts in proportion to their respective interests. Ware v. McQuinn, 7 C. A. 197, 26 S. W. 196.

On an issue as to the boundary between two surveys, none of whose original corners can be found, where but one corner of an adjacent survey is on the north and one corner of a survey, the distance between the north and south corners is in excess of that called for by the field notes, the boundary in question should be determined by apportioning such excess to the two surveys whose corners are found, and measuring the distance called for in the field notes from the line thus ascertained on the north. Knipps v. Upman (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 918.

Two adjacent tracts were surveyed by locating a corner in each tract a specified distance apart. On a resurvey, it was found that the distance was greater, and the surveyor in making a resurvey disposed of the excess by apportioning it between the sections so surveyed. Held, that the excess was properly disposed of. Austin v. Espuels Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1138.

Where a plat of lots in a block specifies the frontage of each lot, with one exception, any deficiency in the width of the block will fall on that lot, and its width will be the length of the block minus the sum of the width of the other lots. Toudouze v. Keller (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 185.

Where a block of surveys are made by the same surveyor as one piece of work, each of such surveys fronting on a river, but only one corner on the river is found on the northern survey, and one on the southern survey, and none found on any of the intervening surveys and the field notes of each survey call for lines and corners of the adjoining surveys for its own lines and corners, and there is an excess in distance over that called for in the field notes of the different surveys between the two original corners found and identified, and no ambiguity or conflicting calls appear in the field notes or on the surveys' sketch, the excess should be prorated between the several surveys according to their respective widths as called for in the original field notes. And, when the dividing lines between said surveys are so found, the western boundary of each being the river, which is not shown to have changed its position, the north and south lines and the eastern boundary of any of the surveys are established by running east the course and distance called for from the river, and thence north or south as called for in the field notes, the distance called for, by adding the proportion of the excess in distance found to belong to each survey. Johnson v. Knipp (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 906.

Where there is an excess of land left on the west side of a block of land by reason of the fact that the entire tier of surveys from east to west is tied to the east line of the block by specific calls for courses and distances, it would require an agreement by all the owners of such tier of sections before it could be apportioned among them. Gilley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 338.

PATENTS

Art. 5361. Requisites of patent. —Every patent for land emanating from the state shall be issued in the name and by the authority of the state, under the seal of the state, and under the seal of the general land office, and shall be signed by the governor and countersigned by the commissioner of the general land office; and before the delivery thereof to the party entitled thereto it shall be registered in a well-bound book kept in the general land office for the recording of patents. [Art May 12, 1846. P. D. 4279, 4281.]

Validity. — As to who are permitted to question the validity of a patent, see Todd v. Fisher, 36 T. 232; Martin v. Brown, 62 T. 485; Decourt v. Sproul, 66 T. 371, 1 S. W. 337; N. Y. & T. Land Co. v. Gardner, 11 C. A. 404, 32 S. W. 786. A patent for a survey of land will not be held void because of difficulty in determining its locality, or because it is not susceptible of being located in the usual way, where there exists any means of identifying the land sought to be included. Finberg v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 979.

The issuance of a patent to public lands is a ministerial act and must be performed according to law. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 315.

Where no actual survey of public lands was made, all matters of description in the patent must be considered to determine the particular lands conveyed. Finberg v. Gilbert, 104 T. 538, 141 S. W. 92.

Patents under a legislative act held to be presumed to have accepted the patent and thereby have become bound by the survey upon which it was based. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.
Conclusiveness.—Upon the questions of fact upon which the patent is based, in the absence of fraud, the patent is conclusive. Styles v. Gray, 16 T. 503; Russell's Heirs v. Randolph, 11 T. 460; Decourt v. Sproul, 66 T. 388, 1 S. W. 387; Taylor v. Lewelyn, 79 T. 96, 14 S. W. 1052; Boon v. Hunter, 62 T. 882.

A patent to the plaintiff is evidence of title, unless the defendant shows a valid grant to someone prior to the date of the location and survey on which plaintiff's patent was issued, or that defendant had the prior and superior equitable title to the land at the date of said patent. Miller v. Brownson, 59 T. 583.

It can be attacked only by the state or one having color of title to the land. Bryan v. Shirley, 53 T. 466; Leavitt v. Bogan, 55 T. 597.

When title is sought to be deraigned through one to whom the patent issued, as the assignee of another, it is not necessary to go behind the patent to show a legal or equitable right of the assignee to the certificate on which the patent issued as against one who took under such certificate as prima facie owner. Mats, 64 T. 339.

If suit be brought upon lands patented but upon illegal surveys, the certificate being genuine, no one not claiming under a right prior to the issuance thereof can question the validity. 90 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58.

The decision of the officer, commissioner or tribunal authorized to issue titles to land is conclusive of the facts necessary to sustain the grant. Smith v. Walton, 82 T. 547, 18 S. W. 217.

The patent is evidence conclusive that the land, if vacant, was subject to sale and patent under act of March 11, 1881. Koch v. Poerner (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 385.

Upon prior patents having been issued by virtue of a purchase and payment under a certain act establishes in the patentee at least a prima facie right to the land. Burkhead v. Bush (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 67.

One who subsequently to issuance of a patent to school land held not authorized to attack it. Fronroy v. Atkinson, 45 C. A. 324, 100 S. W. 1923.

Party other than state or one claiming title to land under reservation in favor of the state held not entitled to have patent declared invalid. Keenan v. Slaughter, 49 C. A. 198, 108 S. W. 705.

Where a resurvey of land was had, and the former field notes corrected so that the survey embraced less land, and a patent issued on the corrected field notes only, the owner, in the absence of a showing of mistake, is bound by the patent calls. Gull v. O'Bryan (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 935.

Proof of a patent to a third person held not to preclude plaintiff's recovery on prior possession. Saxton v. Corbett (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 75.

A patent to school land held not subject to attack by subsequent purchaser of school land. Miller v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 440.

After land sold by the state under another act is subsequently acquired and patented under a subsequent contract made under a different act, it is too late to question the validity of the conveyance to the subsequent parties holding under it. Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 650.

Improvements made on land by one knowing that it belonged to the state do not prevent the state from patenting the land to any one else, or affect the right of the patentee to recover title and possession. Dunn v. Wing, 103 T. 393, 128 S. W. 108.

A patent to a state land can only be attacked by the state, or by one having a right in the land prior to that of the patentee. Id.

Recitals.—A purchaser is charged with notice of all facts recited in the patent under which he claims title. Renick v. Dawson, 55 T. 107.

When a patent is in a patent to land and show that one of the mesne conveyances of the certificate on which the patent issued was made by a bankrupt to his assignee in bankruptcy, the patentee acquires by virtue of his patent only such estate as the bankrupt could convey, and took the property subject to all the equities with which it was charged at the time of the bankruptcy. Id.

Where other recitals identified a certificate as No. 907, the officials of the general land office correctly treated the No. 707 as a clerical error. Jackson v. Nora Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 228.

Field notes and maps referred to in grant may be considered in aid of description contained in grant. Goodson v. Fitzgerald, 40 C. A. 619, 90 S. W. 896.

Transfer.—See this case for facts upon which it was held that the issuance of a patent to the assignee was transferred after its location inured to the benefit of the transferee. Bachelev v. Besancel, 19 C. A. 137, 47 S. W. 296.

Prior improvements as bearing on patent rights.—Improvements made on land by one knowing that it belonged to the state, and without having done anything entitling him to hold it, do not prevent the state from patenting the land to any one else, and do not affect the right of the patentee to recover title and possession. Dunn v. Wing, 103 T. 393, 128 S. W. 108.

Parties affected by judgment canceling patent.—The judgment in a proceeding between parties canceling a patent does not affect those not parties to the suit. Musselman v. Stroh, 83 T. 473, 18 S. W. 857.

One, by filing new recited notes as corrected field notes of the original survey and taking a patent, might have canceled the original field notes and annulled his title to land in the original notes omitted from the new notes. Montgomery County v. Angier, 32 C. A. 451, 74 S. W. 957.

Art. 5362. [4176] When patent to be issued.—Whenever the field-notes of a survey and the land certificate by virtue of which the same was made have been returned to and filed in the general land office within the time prescribed by law, if it shall appear after due examination that such survey was correctly and legally made upon vacant and unappropriated land, and that the land certificate is genuine and unsatisfied, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to make out and deliver to the rightful owner thereof, his agent or legal representative, a patent for the land described in said survey. [Act Jan. 20, 1840. P. D. 4286.]

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 12.

Persons entitled.—An incumest right to a patent for a disputed tract of land may be abandoned by filing new surveys excluding such tract and including another, and obtaining a patent thereunder. Wise County Coal Co. v. Phillips, 21 C. A. 293, 53 S. W. 331.

Effect of mistake.—When the commissioner of the general land office was mistaken as to the boundaries of a county, the claimant of land depending on the commissioner's acts ought not to be held responsible. Magee v. Chadoin, 30 T. 844.

A patent issued by mistake to one having no right to the land is invalid. McWhirter v. Allen, 1 C. A. 649, 20 S. W. 1097.

A patent to Jarrod E. G. held to pass title to Jared E. G., Jr. Clark v. Groce, 16 C. A. 453, 41 S. W. 688.

Claimants under a patent held not entitled to have it corrected so as to interfere with the rights of claimants under a later patent conflicting with the certificate and survey on which the former patent was based. Lubbock v. Binn, 20 C. A. 467, 50 S. W. 684.

Where a state land certificate was located for one Hansford, but the patent was issued to one Hansford, a finding that the certificate had been located for Hansford will be reformed, to comply with the certificate, as a clerical error. Hansford v. Morton, 22 C. A. 467, 55 S. W. 987.

Field notes set out in a patent containing less land than the original patent, under which plaintiff claimed, held not to constitute a fatal variance, where all the land was included in the original patent. Id.

The fact that an error was made in the name of the patentee in a state land patent did not change the patentee's legal title to an equitable claim, subject to the defense of stale demand. Id.

Where the commissioner of the general land office, in issuing patents, acts on the surveyor's correction of original field notes, a presumption arises that the correction was authorized. Ward v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 751.

Certain discrepancy between power of attorney to sell land and patent for the land held immaterial. Kane v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 164, 96 S. W. 937.

Art. 5363. [4177] When to be referred to attorney general.—Should it appear to the commissioner of the general land office, from the records of his office or from information on oath given him, that there is some illegality in the claim, he shall, if he deems it necessary, refer the matter to the attorney general, whose decision in writing shall be sufficient authority for him to issue or withhold the patent as the case may be.

Art. 5364. [4178] Map of county to be filed.—No patent shall be issued upon any claim, unless a map of the county in which the same is situated shall be on file in the general land office. [Act Jan. 19, 1841. P. D. 4305. Acts 1879, ch. 121, p. 129.]

Mistake as to county boundaries.—When the commissioner of the general land office was mistaken as to the boundaries of a county, the claimant of land depending on the commissioner's acts ought not to be held responsible. Magee v. Chadoin, 30 T. 844.

Failure to delineate on maps.—The failure in the officers of the land office to delineate upon the maps in the office a grant on file in its archives will not affect such grant in favor of a subsequent location upon which a patent had been issued. Elliott's Adm'r v. Mitchell, 47 T. 496.

Art. 5365. [4179] Patents on surveys in two counties.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue patents in all cases upon surveys of land lying in two or more counties or districts, where no conflict between such surveys and others exist, and to which there is no other objection than that of a division in said surveys, occasioned by a county or district boundary passing through them; provided, the field-notes shall have been recorded in the office of the county or district surveyor of both counties or districts. [Act May 9, 1846. P. D. 4315.]

Art. 5366. [4180] Patents on more than two surveys, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue patents to the legal owner of a land certificate in all cases where the same has been located in two surveys, and where the same is bound by other surveys. [Act April 7, 1846. P. D. 4314.]
Art. 5367. [4181] In case of conflict, how patent may issue.—In cases where conflicts exist between surveys, the commissioner of the general land office shall be authorized and is hereby required to issue patents to such portions of such surveys as are free from conflicts. [Act May 9, 1846. P. D. 4316.]

Art. 5368. [4182] Shall issue patent to assignee, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby required to issue patents to, and in the name of, the assignee of any genuine land certificate issued in conformity to law. [Act May 12, 1846. P. D. 4294.]

Rights of assignees.—Transfers of certificates prior to the issuance of patents to the original owners or their heirs or legal representatives will inure to the benefit of those to whom the certificates were transferred. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495; Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 T. 166; Adams v. House, 61 T. 639; Neal v. Bartonson, 6T. 478; Capp v. Terry, 75 T. 291, 13 S. W. 52; Davis v. Bargos, 12 C. A. 59, 33 S. W. 648. See De Cordova v. Blais, 12 C. A. 530, 34 S. W. 146.

The sale of a land certificate after its location effects an equitable transfer of the land located by virtue of it. Lewis v. Johnson, 68 T. 444, 4 S. W. 644.

The defense of innocent purchaser is inapplicable to cases involving conflicting claims as purchasers of school land. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

Record.—See notes under Title 118, Chapter 3.

Art. 5369. [4183] Before issuing to assignee, transfers, etc., must be filed.—Before any patent shall issue to the assignee under the preceding article, he must present and file a sufficient and properly authenticated chain of transfer, assignment or obligation for title, or a power of attorney showing a transfer from the original grantee to the assignee. [Id.]

Filing chain of transfer.—Unless the chain of title of transfer, assignment, or obligation for title, or power of attorney is filed, the commissioner cannot issue patent. Peterson v. Rogan, 94 T. 176, 59 S. W. 232.

Art. 5370. [4184] Patent may issue to assignee without transfer, when.—All patents may issue in the name of the assignee when the certificate was granted in the name of the assignee, without an exhibition of a chain of transfers as prescribed in the preceding article. [Act Feb. 3, 1845. P. D. 4292.]

Assignment.—A patent inures to the benefit of the assignee of the certificate by virtue of which the land was located. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495.

Art. 5371. [4185] Patents to deceased persons shall inure to whom.—All patents which have heretofore been issued by the authorities of the republic or the state of Texas, in the names of persons deceased at the time of issuing such patents, and all patents for lands which may be issued hereafter by authority of the state of Texas, in the names of persons deceased at the time at which said patents may be issued, shall be, to all intents and purposes, as valid and effectual to convey and secure to the heirs or assignee, as the case may be, of such deceased persons, the land so patented, or which may be so patented, as though such deceased persons had been in being at the time such patents bear date. [Act Dec. 24, 1851. P. D. 4228a.]

See Cole v. Grigsby, 89 T. 225, 35 S. W. 792.

Construction.—Under Act March 31, 1853, p. 38, surveys and patents on warrants issued under special laws enacted after March 31, 1870, and prior to April 11, 1876, were validated. See Sayles' Civ. St. 1859, art. 3964a. The following rulings were made under the act of 1833:

When the proviso to an act of the legislature restricts its benefits to designated persons, the fact that a claimant of such bounty belongs to the designated class must be shown before he can recover. Blum v. Looney, 69 T. 1, 4 S. W. 857.

The provision of Act March 31, 1833, is legal, but in order to be effective to one claiming its benefits as a settler entitled to a headright, he must allege and show that he was an actual settler in Texas as far back as March 2, 1824. The issuance of a patent cannot afford evidence of this fact. Id.

That act did not retroact and make that which was no title at all at the time another title accrued superior to that other title. White v. Martin, 68 T. 349, 17 S. W. 127.

Where a land claim was granted to R. by special act, passed February 19, 1873, it is held, under the authority of Ralph v. Skerrett, 82 T. 486, 17 S. W. 843, that the validating act of March 31, 1833, inured to the benefit of the heirs of R., although patent had issued to him thereon, and he had died prior to the date of such validating act. Russell v. Bates, 1 C. A. 605, 21 S. W. 132.

Rights of heirs.—The issuance of a patent to those designated in the certificate as heirs of the parties entitled to the land is conclusive as to the question of their heirship. Burkett v. Scarborough, 59 T. 495; Grigsby v. May, 81 T. 240, 19 S. W. 343. See Vera-mendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531. A grant to two persons, heirs of J. F., deceased, it appearing from the recitals in the grant that it was based on the emigration to and settlement in Texas of J. F., vested the title in the parties named, in trust for the benefit of all his heirs. Delk v. Punchard, 64 T. 360.

The fact that a patent was subsequently issued to the heirs of a testator held not to affect the right of devisees under his will to recover the land. Dean v. Jagoe, 46 C. A. 389, 108 S. W. 196.

A widow, applying as the head of a family for land, held to acquire an equity thereto perfected by an act of the legislature, so that the title passed by her will to her devisee. Houston Oil Co. v. Gallup, 56 C. A. 369, 109 S. W. 957.

While ordinarily a patent to the heirs of a decedent conveys the title to those who are the true heirs at law, yet, where the certificate on which the patent is based shows that it was granted by a board or a court to particular persons as such heirs, the patent is to be regarded as a grant to those persons. Houston Oil Co. v. Hayden, 104 T. 175, 125 S. W. 1149.

A land certificate having been located, a portion of the land was allotted to defendant, and he subsequently sold parts thereof to others. The other heirs having applied to the state land commissioner to float the certificate, defendant objected so far as it affected the land so awarded to him and a balance certificate was issued to the other heirs which they floated on other land. Held, that such facts established partition of the certificate between defendant and the other heirs, and that he was estopped to claim any part of the land located by them. Robertson v. Brothers (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 927.

Art. 5372. [4186] In what order patents shall issue.—The commissioner of the general land office is authorized and required to patent surveys in the order in which they may be made ready for patenting, without regard to the order of filing in the general land office or the order of application; provided, that, when application is made for patent on any claim, and the office fees therefor have been paid, such claim shall have preference over claims for which no application has been made; provided, such surveys shall have been regularly mapped, or there be sufficient evidence that no previous survey has been legally filed in the land office covering the same ground as represented on the maps of the office. [Act April 8, 1861. P. D. 4300. Acts 1879, S. S., ch. 27.]

Art. 5373. [4187] Patents on unrecommended certificates prohibited.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby prohibited from issuing a patent upon any survey that shall have been made by authority of a certificate issued prior to March 16, 1840, and has not been returned as genuine and legal by the commissioners appointed by the act of January 29, 1840, or by authority of a warrant issued for military services, unless the same shall have been presented to and approved by the secretary of war, the adjutant general, or the commissioner of the court of claims, as heretofore prescribed by law, or unless said certificate or warrant shall have been issued by authority of a special act of the legislature; and any patent issued contrary to the provisions of this article shall be null and void, unless the person claiming such patent shall produce to the commissioner of the general land office the judgment or decree of a district court of the republic or state of Texas, from which no appeal was taken within the time prescribed by law, that he is justly entitled to the amount of land under the constitution and laws. [Act January 29, 1840. P. D. 4288. Acts 1879, ch. 121, p. 129.]

See Appendix for repealed and omitted land laws.

Art. 5374. [4189] Patent may be canceled in whole or in part, where issued by mistake.—Where a patent to land has been or may hereafter through mistake be issued upon any valid claim for land which is afterward found to be in conflict with any older title, it shall be competent for the owner of such patent, or any part of the land embraced therein, and within such conflict, to return the same to the commissioner of the general land office for cancellation, or in case the owner of such land in conflict can not obtain the patent, then he shall return instead thereof legal evidence of his title to such patent, or part thereof; and in either case he shall make and file with the said commissioner an affidavit in writing that he is still the owner of the same, and has not sold or transferred it; and, should it appear from the records of the general land office, or from a duly certified copy of a judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction before which the title to such land may have been adjudicated, that such conflict really exists, it shall be lawful for him to cancel the patent, or such part thereof as shall appear to belong to the party so applying. [Act March 10, 1885, p. 76.]

Fraud.—Sale of school lands under a false representation of the grantor that he had resided thereon for three years, which would entitle him to a patent, held fraudulent, so as to authorize cancellation. Settle v. Stephens, 18 C. A. 695, 45 S. W. 969.

The state is not required to refund the purchase money paid for school lands on setting aside a patent for fraud in obtaining it. State v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 599.

The fraud which will vitiate a patent issued by the proper authority of the state must be fraud practiced on the state or its duly constituted agents, and not on a claimant of the land. Holetz v. Platt, 49 C. A. 377, 109 S. W. 207.

Purchaser for value.—A grantee, taking a deed from a patentee of land in consideration of advances previously made, held not a purchaser for value, as against the state's right to set aside the patent for fraud. State v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 599.

Where plaintiff's application and survey of public lands were fraudulently altered, and the land was subsequently patented to defendant's grantor, plaintiff held not entitled to the land as against such grantor. Robles v. Cooksey (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 584.

That the patentee of land defrauded the state in procuring the patent held not to entitle another who illegally attempted to have it patented for himself to recover the land from the patentee, or his grantee, with notice. Rogers v. Blackshear (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 928.

Art. 5375. [4190] When in partial conflict, may be canceled.—In cases where there is only a partial conflict, the commissioner of the general land office may, under like circumstances and in like manner as is provided for in the preceding article, cancel any patent presented to him, and issue a patent to the applicant for such portion of the land covered by his patent as may not be in conflict with the older title, where from the field-notes the same may be done. [Act Feb. 3, 1874. P. D. 4302.]

Art. 5376. [4191] Commissioner required to deliver patent, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue and deliver all patents now or hereafter ready for delivery to the person entitled to receive the same, when it appears from the books of said office that the legal fee for said patent has been at any time heretofore deposited in said office and not withdrawn. [Acts 1891, p. 182.]

Art. 5377. Patents on homestead claims, to issue when.—The commissioner is directed to issue patents to all homestead claimants, pre-emptors, and other persons who settled upon public lands in good faith and attempted to purchase the same and had the field-notes thereto returned to and actually filed in said land office prior to October 23, 1898, where the law under which said settlement, pre-emption or purchase was made is complied with, and patent could legally issue thereto, had it not been for the decision of the supreme court of the state of Texas in the case of Hoge vs. Baker, rendered on October 23, 1898; provided, proof of occupancy shall be filed in the land office and payment of patent fees made. [Amended Acts 1903, p. 228, sec. 9.]

Art. 5378. [4192] Refunding of fee when patent can not issue.—Upon proper proof being made to the comptroller that deposits have been made in any special funds of moneys, for which deposits and payments no patents for lands can be issued for which such payment may have been or may hereafter be made, the comptroller is authorized to issue his warrant in favor of such parties for such amount as may be found to be due; provided, this article shall not apply to surveys, the errors in which may be corrected. [Acts 1883, p. 113.]

Note.—This article was chapter 111 of Laws 1883, and was amended and superseded by chapter 104 of Laws 1895. The chapter was inserted by the codifiers of 1895 as article 4150c. See Art. 5404 herein.

Art. 5379. [4193] When patent may be delivered to agent.—No patent shall be delivered in any case to an agent or legal representative until he shall have filed written authority from the owner.

Art. 5380. [4194] Commissioner required to issue patents on certificates not reported by clerks, when.—The commissioner of the general land office is authorized and required to issue patents to lands that have been surveyed and returned to the general land office and have been suspended because the clerks of the county courts have failed to make reports as required by law, when said commissioner is satisfied from evidence in his office that such patents should issue. [Acts 1883, p. 82.]

Note.—This article originally read: “The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized and required to issue patents to lands that have heretofore been surveyed,” etc. See 2 Sayles’ Civ. St. 1889, art. 3967a.

Art. 5381. [4195] Penalty for failure to pay fees on patents; venue, etc.—If any patents remain in the land office six months after the owners are notified of the issuance, and to pay the dues on the same, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to add to the amount of said fees a penalty of ten per cent per month for the whole time the fees may remain unpaid, and to collect said penalty and fees from the persons or corporations to whom said patents have been granted; and said commissioner shall have no authority to deliver any patent for land or certified copy of field-notes or certificate thereof until the whole amount of said fees and penalty shall have been paid, and it is made the duty of the attorney general to bring suit for the same in the district court of Travis county. [Acts 1879, p. 62.] Fees payable.—Fees are payable upon all patents issued from the land office. Taylor v. Hall, 71 T. 213, 9 S. W. 141.

Art. 5382. [4196] State shall have a lien to secure the fees.—The state of Texas has and shall hereafter have a lien upon all the land conveyed by or included in all patents to land granted by the state for the amount of fees and penalties provided for in the preceding article, and said land shall be subject to be sold in satisfaction of the same. [Id.]

Art. 5382a. Surveys validated; when patent to be issued.—That in all cases where parties resurveyed or re-located lands by virtue of any valid land certificates previously surveyed and on file in the general land office, with or without having taken out certified copies thereof, and thereby failed to comply strictly with the law, such last named survey which in law might be deemed a re-location, shall be valid, and the owner shall hold thereunder, thereby abandoning all other surveys previously made, and the commissioner of the general land office is authorized to issue patents therefor. Provided such re-location shall not be patented if made in conflict with any valid location or survey previously made. [Acts 1889, p. 107, sec. 1. Amended Acts 1913, p. 357, sec. 1.]

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter. See, also, Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.]

Article 5383. [4265] Locations validated.—Any and all public lands heretofore surveyed by railroads, or corporations, or any company, or any person in this state, for the benefit of the public free schools of this state, by virtue of any certificate, valid or invalid, void or voidable, be and the same are hereby declared to be lands belonging to the public free schools of this state. [Acts 1883, p. 4.]

Application.—This article was intended to apply to all lands heretofore surveyed for the benefit of the public free schools, and to appropriate such lands to that fund, and it applies to surveys in which there are irregularities in the manner of making the same, or to a failure to comply with the statutory provisions with reference to the entry or

Art. 5384. [4266] Lands sold for taxes to state, etc.—When lands are sold in unorganized counties and bid in by the comptroller for the state for the taxes due thereon, and are not redeemed by the owner thereof, nor his agent, within two years, by the party redeeming the same paying double the amount for which said land was sold, then the land thus sold and unredeemed shall become vacant and revert to and become a part of the public free school fund, to be sold and disposed of as other lands belonging to the public free school fund are to be sold and disposed of by law. [Acts 1879, p. 140.]

Art. 5385. All unappropriated lands declared part of permanent school fund.—All lands heretofore set apart under the constitution and laws of Texas, and all of the unappropriated public domain remaining in the state of Texas, of whatever character, and wheresoever located, including any lands hereafter recovered by the state, except that included in lakes, bays and islands along the gulf of Mexico within tide-water limits, is set apart and granted to the permanent school fund of the state; and all such lands heretofore or hereafter recovered from railroad companies, firms, persons, or other corporations by the state, by suit or otherwise, and constituting a part of said school fund as herein provided, shall be disposed of as other school lands, except as otherwise provided by law. In all cases where said land, or any portion thereof, has been surveyed into tracts of six hundred and forty acres, more or less, and field-notes thereof returned to and filed in the general land office, the same is hereby declared a sufficient designation of said land; and the commissioner of the general land office shall dispose of the same by the survey and block numbers contained in said field-notes. [Acts 1900, p. 29. Acts 1899, p. 123.]

Constitution.—For construction of article 7, section 2, of the constitution, setting apart school lands, see G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. State, 77 T. 367, 12 S. W. 988, 13 S. W. 619; Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 50 T. 249, 16 S. W. 58; Pulliam v. Runnels County, 79 T. 369, 16 S. W. 277.

Retroactive operation.—Acts 56th Leg. c. 81, declaring that all lands theretofore or thereafter recovered by the state shall at once become part of the permanent school fund, cannot have a retroactive effect as to land, the patent to which was prior to such act validated by the legislature, after having been declared invalid by a judgment in favor of the state. State v. Powell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 746.

Lands included in appropriation.—In the case of lands equitably owned by the public free school fund, one whose homestead survey thereof under which he claims not having been made until October, 1899, and the benefit of these laws of 1896 and 1900 being limited to those whose homestead surveys were made prior to such time, it cannot avail him that he became an actual settler and made application for such survey before that time. Burkhead v. Bush (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 68.

Where one has taken all necessary steps in 1896 and subsequently to acquire land under the homestead laws as then existing, before the land had been withdrawn by the act of 1900, he has title superior to one who purchases from the state (land in question) as school land by patent issued to him in October, 1902. Lane v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1071.

Art. 5386. [4253] One-half of public domain added to permanent fund, etc.—After the payment of the amounts due from the state to the common free school fund out of the proceeds of the sales heretofore made, or hereafter to be made, of that portion of the public lands set aside for the payment of the public debt by an act approved July 14, 1879, and an act amendatory thereof approved March 11, 1881, and the payment directed to be made to the common school and university funds by an act approved February 23, 1883, the remainder of said land, not to exceed two million of acres, contained in the counties and territory specially mentioned in said acts, or the proceeds thereof, set aside by said acts for the payment of the public debt, heretofore or hereafter to be received by the state, shall one-half thereof constitute a permanent endowment fund for the university of Texas and its branches, including the branch for the instruction of colored youths. [Acts 1883, p. 71.]

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.
Art. 5387. [4254] The asylum lands.—The four hundred thousand acres of land set apart for the lunatic asylum, the blind asylum, the asylum for the deaf and dumb, and an orphan asylum, in equal portions of one hundred thousand acres for each of said asylums, by the provisions of an act of the legislature entitled, "An act setting aside and appropriating land for the benefit of asylums," approved August 30, 1856, is hereby recognized and set apart to provide a permanent fund for the support, maintenance and improvement of such asylums. [Const., art. 7, sec. 9. Act Aug. 30, 1856, p. 76.]

See Early Laws, Art. 2595.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Islands.—The term "reservation" used in the grant of a certificate, held intended in the sense of lands subject to appropriation which have at different times been reserved temporarily from general and subjected to particular locations, and does not include islands. Roberts v. Terrell, 101 T. 577, 110 S. W. 733.

It is the policy of the state of Texas to reserve its islands from location. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 318.

A public land certificate issued under a special act, not authorizing its location on an island, held not subject to location on an island belonging to the state. Id.

Certain special acts held not to constitute a ratification of the location of certain land certificates by W. on islands belonging to the state. Id.

Lands situated on islands in Texas are reserved from location. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State, 104 T. 168, 135 S. W. 622.

Abandonment of appropriated lands.—Title to a part of public lands appropriated for a particular use held to become a vested right not impaired by abandonment. Talley v. Lamar County, 104 T. 256, 137 S. W. 1156.

Lease of reserved lands.—The acts creating the Memphis and El Paso reservation did not operate as an appropriation of the lands, but only as a mere withdrawal from the location by others than those for whose benefit the reservation was created, and do not preclude the lease of unlocated portions thereof by the commissioner of the general land office. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 703.

CHAPTER EIGHT

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 5388. No officer to be interested in public land, etc.—No person elected or appointed to any position of trust in the general land office, or employed in such land office, shall, directly or indirectly, be concerned in the purchase of any right, title or interest in any public land, either in his own name, right or interest for any other person, or in the name or right of any other person in trust for himself; nor shall take nor receive any fee or emolument for negotiating or transacting the business of said office, other than those fees allowed by law. [Act Dec. 14, 1837. P. D. 4090.]

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

Cancellation of patent to surveyor.—By the provisions of Pen. Code, art. 164, no county or district surveyors or their deputies shall be indirectly or indirectly engaged in the purchase of public land. When patent has been issued to such purchaser, the state can maintain an action to cancel the patent without returning or offering to return the purchase-money paid by the defendant to the state. State v. Thompson, 64 T. 690.

Art. 5389. Abstract to be corrected when necessary.—The commissioner of the general land office shall make it the special duty of one of his clerks to constantly correct the abstract of patented, titled and surveyed lands required to be kept in his office according to errors discovered, changes by cancellation of patents, changes of county lines, and creation of new counties, and to add all new patented surveys at the date of the patent. [Id. sec. 4.]

Excerpts admissible in evidence,—Excerpts from the abstract of Texas land titles, published by the land commissioner as required by this article, are admissible in evidence in trespass to try title. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1197.

Art. 5390. [4216] Supplemental abstract furnished, when.—During the month of August of each year hereafter, the commissioner of the general land office shall have made out and furnished to the comptroller of public accounts a supplementary abstract of all patents that have been issued from his office during the year ending on the thirty-first day of August. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5391. [4217] Abstract to be printed, etc.—The comptroller of public accounts is hereby authorized to have one thousand copies of said supplementary abstracts printed and bound for distribution among those officers of the state and counties whose duties require the use of said abstract, the surplus copies to be sold at a reasonable price to parties applying for them; provided, that, if the demand for copies of said abstract shall be greater than the supply provided for by this article, an additional number of five hundred copies may be printed. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5392. [4218] Printing of, how paid for, etc.—The sum necessary to pay for the printing and binding of said supplemental abstracts shall be paid out of the general appropriation made by the legislature for printing; and all money's received by the comptroller by the sale of said abstracts shall be paid into the treasury to the credit of said appropriation. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 5393. [4218a] Certain locations validated.—The titles to all lands located by virtue of certificates issued to railroad companies in whole or in part for sidings, switches or turnouts, and which lands were transferred by any of said companies, or their duly appointed receivers or assigns, prior to the first day of January, A. D. 1891, to purchasers in actual good faith for value, and are now owned by such purchasers, their heirs or assigns, be and the same are hereby validated to such purchasers, their heirs or assigns, and also to all actual settlers on such lands so far as the state may have any claim, and that the titles to all public free school, university, or asylum lands located by virtue of such certificates are also validated, whether the locations were voidable or not by reason of their having been made by the wrong surveyor; provided, that this article shall not apply to lands for the recovery of which suit has already been instituted by the state, nor be construed to validate locations made on lands that were at the time appropriated or reserved from such locations, nor shall it be construed to in any manner apply to or affect the rights of third parties heretofore acquired in good faith; provided, further, this article shall not apply or be held to validate titles in the following other cases:

1. Where said lands were transferred through foreclosure proceedings against such companies to trustees or mortgagees or other persons or corporations interested in mortgages on said lands, or who held said lands for such interested persons or corporations, and where the apparent title to said lands was still in said companies or their receivers or their transferees at such foreclosure sale on January 1, 1891, and have not been subsequently transferred to actual settlers on such land or to bona fide purchasers thereof for value and without notice.

2. Where said lands have been transferred by said companies in evasion and fraud of the laws of alienation applicable thereto and the title is now in the name of the original vendees of said companies. [Acts 1895, p. 36.]
Art. 5394. Failure to alienate, no forfeiture when.—The failure of any railway company or other original grantee of any valid alternate land certificate to alienate their lands or any portion thereof, granted to them within the periods specified in the laws under which said lands were granted, or by any other law of the state of Texas, shall not be deemed a sufficient cause for forfeiting such lands, or any part thereof, by the state of Texas; provided, it shall appear that such lands have in fact, by a bona fide sale, been already alienated to actual purchasers; and provided, further, that all lands now held by such original grantee shall be sold to actual bona fide purchasers on or before the first day of July, 1910, otherwise such lands as are not so alienated shall revert to and become the property of the state of Texas; provided, further, that all lands affected by this article shall be alienated in tracts not to exceed four sections to any one person or persons, and that no person, persons, or corporations shall make more than one purchase of said lands. [Acts 1903, p. 130.]

Art. 5395. Must alienate within what time.—Any railway company which has in any manner whatsoever acquired title to or interest in any land in this state, not required in the construction, operation or repair of its railway, or for yards, stations, or other facilities, shall alienate the same in good faith on or before the first day of July, 1910, otherwise the same shall be forfeited to the state at the suit of the attorney general. [Id.]

Art. 5396. [4274] Surplus segregated from public domain, when.—Surveys and blocks of surveys made by virtue of valid alternate scrip be and the same are hereby declared to segregate from the mass of the public domain all land embraced in said surveys, or blocks of surveys, as evidenced by the corners and lines of same, or by calls for natural or artificial objects, or the calls for the corners and boundaries of other surveys, or by the maps and other records in the general land office. [Acts 1889, p. 104.]

Application.—In order to become the beneficiary under Arts. 5396-5398, the person invoking their protection must show that he is a purchaser of the entire section before he can claim the prior right to purchase the excess and (2) he must exercise that right within the period of six months after the date of the resurvey which discloses the excess. Willoughby v. Long (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 648.

Resurvey.—Where the state has received and approved an application to purchase a section of school land, previously surveyed by authority of law in good faith, Arts. 5396-5398 contemplate that the land commissioner may sell the excess to the purchaser of the section or survey affected thereby, without segregating the excess from the body of the section or survey does not give the commissioner arbitrary or discretionary authority to segregate the excess from the body of the section and locate it in any portion of the section regardless of improvements or of the quality of the land segregated as compared with other portions of the section, and without regard to equitable rules governing the partition and distribution of lands. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91, 143 S. W. 141.

Resurvey.—Where the land commissioner, after discovering an excess of school land in a section or survey sold to a bona fide purchaser, desires to segregate the excess as authorized by Arts. 5396-5398, he must begin the resurvey at the beginning corner of the original survey, and leave the section or survey in a body and as near a square as may be practicable, and, after giving the purchaser his quantum of acreage, lop off the excess. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91, 143 S. W. 141.

Rights of purchaser.—A survey of state land containing 685 acres was purchased as containing 640. Defendant, a subsequent purchaser, having sold 200 acres to a third person, sold 485 to plaintiff. Held, under Arts. 5396-5398, that, no segregation having been made, plaintiff cannot assume that the 45-acre excess will be taken from his tract, and hence cannot recover from defendant such deficiency in the acreage purchased by him. Gale v. Wright (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1163.

Under Arts. 5396-5398, a vendee of a purchaser of a section containing excess lands is entitled to have the original purchaser purchase the excess for the vendee's benefit, or purchase the same in his own name as the purchaser's assignee; and hence, on a shortage in the sale quantity being discovered by reason of the existence of an excess in the survey, the purchaser's vendee was entitled to perfect his title to the excess and to recover from the purchaser under his warranty of title such sum as the vendee was required to expend for the purpose, not to exceed the amount paid to the purchaser in the first instance for the shortage, with legal interest. Wright v. Gale, 104 T. 450, 140 S. W. 91, 143 S. W. 141.

Art. 5397. [4275] Belong to public free school fund.—All excess in said surveys are donated and declared to belong to the public free school 3557 fund of the state; and it shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to ascertain, by any and all means practicable, the existence and extent of such excesses, and to provide for and direct such surveys, or corrected surveys, as may be necessary for this purpose; provided, that, where such surveys were made in blocks of two or more surveys, said respective surveys shall remain on the ground consecutively as placed therein, as shown by the maps, sketches and field-notes originally returned to the general land office; provided, that the person who has already purchased, or who may hereafter purchase from the state the particular section to which surplus shall by such resurvey be made contiguous, shall have the prior right for the period of six months after such resurvey shall have been made, in which to purchase such excess on the same terms on which such purchaser has already bought or may buy. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5398. [4276] Excess to be added.—All such surveys which, under the direction of the commissioner of the general land office have been or may be hereafter corrected, so that all excess in the original surveys shall be placed in the surveys belonging to the public free schools, are hereby validated, and the action of the commissioner is hereby ratified; and he is directed and authorized to issue patents to the owners thereof, and to sell such surveys belonging to the public free schools, securing to the state the benefit of such excesses. [Id. sec. 3.]

Application.—See notes under Art. 5396.
Where the draughtsman in the land office, according to custom in such office, adopted the designation and numbering of such surveys made by the surveyor and appearing in the field notes, it was a sufficient compliance with this article. Eyl v. State, 27 C. A. 297, 84 S. W. 610.

Art. 5399. [4277] Shall not affect.—The provisions of this law shall not apply to nor affect the rights of the third persons heretofore acquired in good faith. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5400. [4278] Conflicts.—Nothing in the preceding four articles shall apply to any lands for which patents have been issued. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5401. [4279] Even numbered surveys in conflict, etc.—Where the common school or even numbered surveys in conflicting locations, made by virtue of alternate land certificates, are not identical or upon the same land, the commissioner of the general land office may, where he deems it to the interest of the state to do so, change the numbers of the surveys in the conflicting locations so as to make the common school or even numbered surveys in both locations identical; provided, that the commissioner of the general land office shall not change the numbers of surveys without the written consent of the owner of the certificates by virtue of which said surveys are made. [Acts 1889, p. 104.]

Art. 5402. [4271] Land, how sold and proceeds invested.—Each county may sell or dispose of the lands granted to it for educational purposes in such manner as may be provided by the commissioners' court of such county; and the proceeds of any such sale shall be invested in bonds of the state of Texas, or of the United States, and held by such county alone as a trust for the benefit of public free schools therein, only the interest thereon to be used and expended annually. [Id.]

See, also, notes under Arts. 1370, 1372.

Title and rights of counties in general.—The title of a county to school lands, the patent of which it had received from the state before the adoption of the constitution of 1869, was not divested by section 8, article 9, of that instrument, which gave to the legislature control of such lands. That section would only affect such school lands as had not been patented. Galveston County v. Tankersley, 33 T. 651. The authority of this decision is recognized in Worley v. State, 48 T. 1; but the court says: "We are by no means prepared to assert to what is said in the opinion in that case denying the power of the state over lands granted by her to her own political subdivisions for public purposes."

The state cannot arbitrarily take from a county its school lands. Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153.

The state may exercise such supervisory control as may be necessary to enforce the performance of the trust upon which the land is donated, but it cannot by legislation divert its use to other and different parties and purposes than those contemplated when it was originally granted. Milam County v. Bateman, 54 T. 153; Milam County v. Blake, 54 T. 159; Palo Pinto County v. Gano, 60 T. 249.

The counties may sell or dispose of their lands in such manner as the commissioners' court may direct. Palo Pinto County v. Gano, 60 T. 249.

The entire proceeds of the sale of land belong to the permanent school fund of the county. Fullam v. Tomlinson v. Hopkins County, 57 T. 572; Cassin v. La Salle County, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 132.

County school lands are exempt from taxation while owned by the county. Land & Cattle Co. v. Board, 80 T. 489, 16 S. W. 312.

The grant of any lands to counties for educational purposes was to impose upon the several counties the duties of trustees as to such lands. Board of School Trustees v. Webb County (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 488.

Construction of grants.—The legislature intended to prescribe one broad general rule to the construction of grants of school lands to counties and that rule is that the land included shall be sold and held to be sold and held to the land office without regard to mistakes in surveying. * * * * Where lines are given which embrace all of the land between two sets of surveys but the surveyor by a mistake not shown by his return has erroneously stated the distance, the lines given in the land are made to conclusively control whether the distance and quantity are as the surveyor intended or not. Steward v. Coleman County, 95 T. 446, 67 S. W. 1017, 1018.

Powers of commissioners' court in general.—See also, Title 40, Chapter 2.

Purchasers of school lands held charged with notice of any want of power of a commissioner appointed to sell such lands by an order of the commissioners' court. Logan v. Stephens County (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 109.

The commissioners' court is authorized to sell the county's lands in such manner as they pr. Mde. Eason v. San Augustine County v. Madden, 39 C. A. 256, 67 S. W. 1057.

Const. art. 7, § 6, as it existed in 1811, provided that lands granted to counties for school purposes might be sold by the counties as provided by the commissioners' court; the proceeds to be held for the benefit of the public schools. Const. 1876, art. 5, § 18, declared that the commissioners' court should have and jurisdiction over all county business as was conferred by the constitution or laws of the state, and this article and Art. 2271, made it the duty of the commissioners' court to provide for the disposition of all county school lands in the manner provided by the commissioners' court. Held that the provisions authorized the commissioners to do as was done by the law, and if the law permitted, they could only be sold "in the manner" provided by the commissioners' court, which had no power to delegate to the county judge the power to make such sales as agent for the county, and sales so attempted to be made by him were invalid. Gallup v. Liberty County, 67 C. A. 176, 122 S. W. 291.

Ratification of sale.—Where a county had full power to sell certain school lands, but the sale was invalid because made by the county judge under a ultra vires delegation of authority by the commissioners' court, the county, having received the purchase money and used it for county purposes, thereby ratified the sale and was not entitled to recover the land. Gallup v. Liberty County, 67 C. A. 176, 122 S. W. 291.

Approval of a sale of the timber on school lands by the commissioners' court and the receiving of the purchase money and use thereof by the county for school purposes held a ratification of the sale. Carter v. Lumber Co. v. Angelina County (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 292.

The order of the commissioners' court approving a sale of timber on school lands need not be in writing to constitute a ratification of the sale. Id.

Contracts for purchase.—The commissioners' court has the authority to release the original vendees from their liability on a vendor's lien note for the purchase money of the county and to sell the obligation to the person to whom such vendees sold secured by a deed of trust on the land. Waggoner v. Wise County, 17 C. A. 220, 43 S. W. 836.

A sale of school lands held executory prior to payment of the price authorizing the commissioners' court to reduce the rate of interest on the purchaser's obligation. Delta County v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 902.

One of defendants held not to have taken a part of land as agreed under a contract between plaintiff and defendants, whereby each was to take a certain amount of land purchased from the county. Ellerd v. Cox, 52 C. A. 66, 114 S. W. 410.

Where one of several parties to an agreement for the purchase of county land defaulted in his payments, the county held not entitled to recognize certain persons as entitled to take up his interest as against another party to the agreement though an option to do so had been expressly reserved. Id.

The county held not a necessary party to an action by one of several parties to an agreement, under which they bought county lands, to enforce his right to take up the interest of a defaulting party to the agreement. Id.

A county held to rescind its contract to sell school land. Tinney v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 184.

There is no distinction between an express provision and an implied provision in a county's executory contract for the sale of its school lands, as to the county's right to rescind it, in case of a breach by the grantee. Fullerton v. Scurry County (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 971.

Right of purchaser to enforce specific performance of contract for school lands after his own breach, as dependent on the provisions of the contract as to forfeiture of payments made, stated. Id.

Existing law as to a county's right to rescind an executory contract of sale of its school lands held to enter into an executory contract of sale, and become a part of it. Id.

As a contract of sale among school owners in such lands, ineffectual to pass title, held not to raise a limitation against the county. Id.

Judicial proceedings, by which a county recovered judgment for school lands which it had sold, held not to divest grantees of the purchaser from their right to tender and obtain specific performance of the original contract upon certain conditions. Id.
County selling school lands and retaining a vendor's lien held entitled, upon breach of contract, to rescind the contract and retake possession, without notice to the purchaser's grantees or their representatives. 1d.

County held to have the right to rescind its executory sale of school lands and to resume possession thereof on breach by the purchaser, without notice of rescission to his inquity grantees or heirs. Id.

On county's rescission of entire executory contract for the sale of its school lands, held, that a minor grantee, although without notice of a rescission by the county, could not acquire an undivided interest in common with the school fund. Id.

Sale for money—A county cannot convey a part of its school lands to pay expenses of its location. Tomlinson v. Hopkins County, 57 T. 572.

Where a part of the consideration of the sale of county school land is other than money, the sale is invalid. Tomlinson v. Hopkins County, 57 T. 572; Cassin v. La Salle County, 17 C. A. 127, 21 S. W. 432.

The entire consideration must be money. If a part of the consideration is anything other than money the sale is invalid, if the purchaser knew the fact or might have known it, however innocent of any intention to defraud or deceive he may have been. San Augustine County v. Madden, 29 C. A. 257, 87 S. W. 1057.

Fact that a purchaser of county school lands in addition to paying full value for the land agrees to release a claim against the county held not to invalidate the sale. Taber v. Dallas County, 101 T. 241, 106 S. W. 332.

Payment for services in subdividing land.—Where county commissioners convey school lands for services in subdividing the whole tract, in a suit to recover from a subsequent grantee it is not incumbent on the county to pay the defendant the value of such services. Dallas County v. Club Land & Cattle Co., 85 T. 299, 65 S. W. 394.

Employment of agents and payment of commission.—The commissioners' court held to have power to appoint agents to sell county school lands on specified terms, convey the lands, receive the purchase money, deposit it to the credit of the school fund, and make an annual report pursuant to a written contract. Matagorda County v. Casey, 49 C. A. 35, 108 S. W. 476.

A stipulation in a contract with agents for the sale of county school lands held not an agreement to pay them out of the proceeds of the sale; and hence on its face an unauthorized disposition thereof. Id.

Where county commissioners without authority authorized a sale of school lands by the county judge, the fact that he was allowed a commission out of the purchase price, all of which belonged to the county school fund, did not invalidate the sale. Gallup v. Liberty County, 57 C. A. 175, 122 S. W. 391.

Amount for which sold.—Fact that it should be subsequently found that county school land was in fact worth more than it brought held not to avoid the sale fairly made. Taber v. Dallas County, 101 T. 241, 106 S. W. 332.

Warranty of title.—A county held not liable on a warranty of title contained in a deed of county school lands, which deed the commissioner making the same had no authority to execute. Logan v. Stephens County (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 109.

Boundary agreement.—A county may dispose of the fee in its school lands only by sale, and cannot make such disposition by a boundary line agreement. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

Abandonment of lands purchased.—On facts stated, held, that the grantees of a purchaser of county school lands had abandoned their rights therein. Fullerton v. Scurry County (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 971.

Lease.—A county may lease its school lands. McNees v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 816.

Liability of sureties on treasurer's bond.—When the school lands are sold on credit, the county taking the purchaser's notes therefor, the interest upon the notes becomes a part of the available school fund, and the sureties on the treasurer's bond are liable for the safe-keeping of such moneys that come into his hands. Simons v. Jackson County, 68 T. 426.

Investment of school fund.—This article does not restrict the general power of the court over the investment of the school fund. Boydston v. Rockwall County, 24 S. W. 272, 86 T. 334. See Kentucky Cattle Raising Co. v. Bruce, 78 T. 269, 14 S. W. 619.

The county has no authority to loan the proceeds of sales on a note secured by deed of trust of lands belonging to the borrower, but he cannot avoid such note and security under the plea of ultra vires. Albright v. Allday (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 646.

Dissolution of funds.—Where county school land is sold by the trustees in good faith for full market value, the validity of the sale held to depend upon whether they have applied all the proceeds to the school fund, as required by Const. 1876, art. 7, § 6. Taber v. Dallas County, 101 T. 241, 106 S. W. 332.

Art. 5403. [4272] Actual settlers to have preference.—In any sale of county school lands, under the provisions of the preceding article, the actual settlers residing on said lands shall be protected in the prior right of purchasing the same to the extent of their settlement, not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres, at the price fixed by the commissioners' court, which price shall not include the value of existing improvements made thereon by such settlers. [Id.]

in general.—A settler's occupancy operates as a notice of his claim against purchaser. County v. Earle, 71 T. 468, 12 S. W. 66.

Actual settlement at the time the county offers the land for sale gives the settler a prior right to purchase, which is assignable. Best v. Baker, 3 C. A. 551, 22 S. W. 1067, 24 S. W. 679; Harris v. Byrd, 3 C. A. 677, 22 S. W. 659.

A settler on school lands belonging to a county cannot be deprived of his right to pre-emption without an offer to sell made in good faith. Carrington v. Harris (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 197.
That one moved on county land knowing it was for sale, and remained there five years, held not to relieve county from duty of offering land to him before selling it to another. Id.

Who are actual settlers.—See notes under Art. 5416.

A settler upon school land belonging to a county cannot be deprived of his pre-emption by a sale to another without an offer to sell first having been made to him in good faith and a rejection on his part. Carrington v. Harris (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 197.

Assignee.—The settler’s right to purchase may be lawfully transferred to another. Baker v. Millman, 2 C. A. 342, 21 S. W. 297. See Perkins v. Miller, 60 T. 61.

Vested right.—The preference right created no vested right after the period of preference has expired, unless the settler took, before the expiration of the period, such further steps as the law required to bring about a purchase by him. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

Price.—To defend against the county, the settler must buy at the price fixed by the court of the county which owned the land. Clay County Land Co. v. Wood, 71 T. 460, 9 S. W. 340; Same v. Earle, 71 T. 466, 12 S. W. 65; Baker v. Dunning, 77 T. 28, 18 S. W. 617; Baker v. Millman, 77 T. 46, 13 S. W. 618.

The settler has the prior right to purchase the block occupied by him, on tender of the price fixed by the county on the block. Ward v. Worsham, 8 C. A. 22, 24 S. W. 849. See Patterson v. True (Sup.) 2 S. W. 860.

Art. 5404. [4159c] Land purchase money refunded, when.—Upon proper proof being made to the comptroller that money has been in good faith paid into the state treasury upon lands for taxes, lease and purchase money, for which, on account of conflicts, erroneous surveys, or illegal sales, patents can not legally issue, or upon lands which patents have issued and have been or may hereafter be legally canceled, the comptroller is hereby authorized to issue his warrant for the amount so paid into the treasury in favor of the parties who have in good faith paid such money, for which they receive no consideration; provided, that this article shall not apply to surveys, the errors in which may be corrected; and provided, further, that whenever the official records of the general land office shall show that patents for such lands can not legally issue upon such surveys, on account of conflicts, erroneous or illegal sales, or that patents issued on such lands have been legally canceled, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to issue his certificate to that effect, which certificate filed with the comptroller shall be sufficient proof to authorize him to act under the provisions hereof. [Id. p. 162.]

CHAPTER NINE

SALE AND LEASE OF PUBLIC FREE SCHOOL AND ASYLUM LANDS

[See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.]
Article 5405. [4218b] Sale and lease of public lands provided for.
—All lands set apart for the benefit of the public free schools, the lunatic asylum, the blind asylum, the deaf and dumb asylum, and the orphan asylum shall be sold and leased under the provisions of this chapter.

[Acts 1895, p. 63.]

In general.—Under the laws in force October 2, 1882, the school lands could be withdrawn from the market. Kentucky Cattle Raising Co. v. Bruce, 78 T. 269, 14 S. W. 619.

The time within which lands shall be sold is within the discretion of the legislature.

Act March 23, 1887, p. 61, considered in Cox v. Finks (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 96; Id., 91 T. 318, 43 S. W. 1.

Constitutional provisions.—The constitution does not inhibit the lease of the school lands. Smisson v. State, 71 T. 222, 9 S. W. 112; Fitzgerald v. State (Sup.) 9 S. W. 150; Cunningham v. State (Sup.) 11 S. W. 571; Falls County v. Delaney, 73 T. 463, 11 S. W. 463; Ex parte Smith, 33 T. 321, 13 S. W. 655; Arnold v. Wilson, 59 T. 508, 19 S. W. 228; 9 S. W. 129; Coleman v. Lord, 72 T. 238, 10 S. W. 91; Swenson v. Taylor, 80 T. 584, 16 S. W. 326.

Section 4, article 7, of the constitution of 1876, provides: "The lands herein set apart to the public free school fund shall be sold under such regulations, as at such times, and on such terms as may be prescribed by law." While this commands that the lands shall be sold, it leaves it entirely to the discretion of the legislature when it shall be done. It fails to direct that the entire body of such lands shall be immediately sold, or that until sold no other disposition shall be made of them. See Brown v. Shiner, 84 T. 505, 19 S. W. 858; Swenson v. Taylor, 80 T. 584, 16 S. W. 326.

The legislature may deal with the public school lands in any manner not inconsistent with the express provisions of the constitution. Imperial Irr. Co. v. Jayne, 104 T. 395, 133 S. W. 575.

Art. 5406. [4218c] Duties of commissioner of the general land office. —The commissioner of the general land office is hereby vested with all the power and authority necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter, and shall have full charge and discretion of all matters pertaining to the sale and lease of said lands, and their protection from free use and occupancy and from unlawful enclosure, with such exceptions and under such restrictions as may be imposed by the provisions of this chapter, or by the constitution of the state. He shall, as soon as practicable, adopt such regulations not inconsistent with the constitution or this chapter as may be deemed necessary for carrying into effect the provisions of this chapter, and may from time to time alter or amend such regulations so as to protect the public interest; but all regulations shall be submitted to the governor for his approval before adoption or promulgation. He shall adopt all necessary forms of applications for sales or leases, and all other forms necessary or proper for the transaction of the business imposed upon him by this chapter, and may, from time to time, call upon the attorney general to prepare such forms; and it shall be the duty of that officer to furnish the commissioner of the general land office with such advice and legal assistance as may be requisite for the due execution of the provisions of this chapter; and it shall be the duty of such commissioner to call upon the attorney general for advice whenever there is any doubt as to the meaning of this chapter, or any provisions thereof. [Id.]

Powers of commissioner.—The authority given the commissioner of the land office to lease public lands, Acts 1895, is not in conflict with article 14, § 6, Const. 1876, authorizing homestead donations. Bain v. Simpson, 18 C. A. 429, 45 S. W. 395.

The law both before and after the amendment of 1897 clearly authorized the commissioner of the land office to lease the school, asylum and other lands, and the leasee is entitled to recover as against trespassers. Sullivan v. Hall, 22 C. A. 440, 55 S. W. 579.

It would seem that the land commissioner is given the power, when necessary, to cause a transfer (if not theretofore done by the secretary of the land board) of obligations of purchasers of school lands from the treasurer's office to his own, and the land commissioner could not forfeit the land without incurring a forfeiture on the obligation. Comanche Co. v. Brightman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 976, 977.

The adoption of rules and regulations by the commissioner held not a condition precedent, essential to the validity of sales and leases of certain public lands. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 903.

Under this article the land commissioner is nominally invested with a very enlarged discretion in reference to the sale and lease of the school and asylum lands. But the restrictions with reference to the sale are so specific as to deprive him practically of all discretion in the matter. This is not so with regard to a lease. He can make a lease for not less than three cents an acre and for not longer than five or ten years as the case may be (Art. 5452). In the one case the state makes the offer the acceptance of which is the contract. In the other the making of the lease is confided to the discretion of the commissioner. When he has made a lease for 10 years, it will be presumed that he has examined the question and found that the quality of the land is such as to permit a lease for that term. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 656.

Art. 5407. Classification and valuation.—The commissioner of the general land office may, from time to time, as the public interest may require, classify or reclassify, value or revalue, any of the lands set apart for the benefit of the public free school, lunatic asylum, the blind asylum, the deaf and dumb asylum and the orphan asylum, designating the same as agricultural, grazing, or timbered land, according to the fact in the particular case; and he may prescribe such regulations in relation there to as he may deem necessary to secure a correct classification; provided, all agricultural lands shall be sold at not less than one dollar and fifty cents per acre, and all grazing lands shall be sold at not less than one dollar per acre. He may also reclassify any lands heretofore erroneously classified, upon the official certificate of the commissioners' court of the county in which said land is situated, or of the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes, certifying what the proper classification should be, said certificate to be signed by the entire commissioners' court, including the county judge, or upon such other evidence as may be satisfactory to the commissioner. And it shall be his duty to notify in writing the county clerk of each county the classification and valuation affixed upon each section of land in his county, and each county attached to it for judicial purposes; and he shall forward the same to the county clerk of the county for which said list was made, or to the county clerk of the county to which the said county is attached for judicial purposes. The said commissioner shall also notify said clerk of each and every sale as soon as they are made. Upon receipt of said list, or any notice required to be given under the provisions of this act, the county clerk receiving the same shall forthwith file and record said list or notice in a well bound book to be kept for that purpose. When informed of the sale of any land, the clerk shall enter on his books, opposite the description of the land so sold, the name of the purchaser and the date sold, and the said list and notice of sale so furnished the said clerk, and the said books shall be considered public records, and be open to public inspection; and it is hereby made the duty of the county clerk to exhibit the said book and the records to any person who shall apply therefor. When any portion of said land has been classified to the satisfaction of the commissioner of the general land office, under the provisions of this chapter, such land shall be subject to sale, but to actual settlers only, except where otherwise provided by law; provided, that the purchaser shall not include in his purchase more than two sections of agricultural land.

See Appendix for omitted and repealed land laws.

In general.—What is probably meant by "when any portion of the school land has been classified to the satisfaction of the commissioner it shall be subject to sale," is that it is again "subject to sale" as it originally was when classified to the satisfaction of the commissioner—to be put upon the market and sold in the same manner. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 315, 61 S. W. 535.

This law was intended merely to give fuller and more accurate information as to unclassified lands in order to help purchasers and facilitate sales. It was not intended to stop sales which were then going on and continued to be made under other provisions. Lands were not taken off the market and sales suspended by this act until the statement provided by section 1 had been made to the county clerks. Barnes v. Williams, 105 T. 444, 119 S. W. 90.

Powers and duties of commissioner.—See notes under Art. 5406.

The commissioner has no discretion in regard to sale to an applicant. Burnett v. Wimburn (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 968. The act does not apply where, after location, the number of acres is reduced by correcting adjoining surveys. Thompson v. Longdon, 87 T. 254, 28 S. W. 931.

Under this article the commissioner is himself empowered to make the classification, and this classification and appraisement are necessary for the sale of the lands. When a purchase commissioner cannot lease, to what class the land belonged in the first instance without the aid of a previous classification. He is presumed to have done his duty, and having made a lease for 10 years, his action is conclusive as to the right of the lessee under the lease. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 656.

The act of 1887 did not give a preference right to a settler upon land prior to its classification. No right is acquired by actual occupancy before the land is put on the market. Hobert v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 710.

Public school lands cannot be bought until they are classified and put on the market for sale. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

A purchaser of school lands cannot maintain an action of trespass to try title against one holding under lease from the state without showing that the lands had been classified and appraised by the commissioner of the land office. Thompson v. Autry (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 581.

After judgment declaring forfeiture of land is filed in the land office the commissioner may reject application of former purchaser on the ground that the same had not been listed by the county clerk and put on the market. Willoughby v. Townsend, 93 T. 30, 53 S. W. 581.

Classification and appraisement are not necessary in respect to land leased. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 656.

Classification and reappraiserment.—An approval of a reappraiserment of all school lands "which appeared on the market" held not to constitute a reappraiserment of a tract which had previously been awarded to plaintiff. Bowerman v. Pope, 25 C. A. 70, 61 S. W. 330, 75 S. W. 1093.

When an application to purchase school land at $1 per acre is made while the land is appraised at $2 per acre, and the appraisal is changed to $1 per acre and the land thereafter awarded to the applicant at such price on such application, the award is void under acts of St. 1901, 4218b, 29, 4218c, 4218e, 20 S. W. 297.

This act did not require a new classification and appraisement of the public lands offered for sale by the state, nor did it suspend the sale thereof, until the land commissioner could make up and send out the revised lists. Where one makes application on May 7, 1901, for land which was classified as dry grazing land and appraised at $2 an acre May 27, 1896, and was an actual settler, he was entitled to the land over one who had been awarded the land at $1 an acre by the commissioner September 2, 1890, but who was not an actual settler. The fact that the commissioner made such an award which was void did not take the land off the market. Briggs v. Key, 30 S. A. 565, 71 S. W. 43.

A sale of school lands reappraised at $5 an acre to an applicant applying for the purchase of the reappraised value was fixed at $1 an acre is not a sale in compliance with law. Erp v. Tillman, 103 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1057.

The commissioner of the land office can approve of the appraisal of school lands by the commissioners' court, although not made strictly in compliance with the statute. Dooley v. Maywald, 18 C. A. 386, 45 S. W. 221.

Fifteen years after sale of school lands, purchaser could assume that tabulated report from the commissioner's court had been filed with commissioner of land office, as required by Blackburn (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 79.

Notice of classification and effect thereof.—The filing of the notification by the commissioner of the classification is not essential, and an application is not insufficient for that reason. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

School land is not subject to sale on the same day that it is forfeited for non-payment of interest. If the inhabitants fail to notice to the county clerk by the land commissioner that the land is offered for sale. The fact that the commissioner had previously advertised the land for sale does not dispense with necessity of sending notice to county clerk. Boswell v. Terrell, 97 T. 259, 78 S. W. 4.

Under this article and Art. 5409, land is on the market for sale when the clerk of the county court receives notice of the classification and reappraisal, and the act of 1905 does not conflict with these articles in this respect. Estes v. Terrell, 99 T. 622, 92 S. W. 407.

Effect of classification and valuation.—An actual settler applying to purchase school land under law of 1897, at a price less than its appraised value, held entitled to award, where the commissioner, before acting on application, reduced the price to less than that appraised. Hendrix v. Erp (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 135.

A party has no right to buy at $1.50 per acre land put on the market at $2.00, and hence the deposit and his obligation to buy at $1.50 per acre give him no rights; neither does it make any difference that three days after his deposit and obligation the land was reappraised at $1.60 per acre. Gracey v. Hendrix, 93 T. 28, 51 S. W. 846.

Where school land was reappraised at $2 per acre, the fact that it appeared on the books of the land office without reappraisal, and that land so listed was understood to be on sale at $1.50 per acre, held not to invalidate an application to purchase it at that price. Wood v. Commissioners, 61 S. A. 73, 75 S. W. 1981.

Where the price of school lands has been fixed by the commissioner, an application for and award of the land to a proposed purchaser at a less price is void. Nard v. Baker, 27 C. A. 461, 66 S. W. 306.

Award of school lands to applicant at a reduced price held valid. Threadgill v. Butler, 33 C. A. 347, 77 S. W. 43.

The commissioner of the general land office held not required to sell at less than $2 per acre public school lands, a classification of which valuing it at $2 per acre was regularly made by him and recorded in his office, though on the same day he forwarded to the county clerk a "corrected and revised list of all unsold school lands," showing it to be valued at $1 per acre. Wilson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 818.

When notice of the classification and reappraisal is sent to the county clerk, and is received by him, the tract is subject to sale and the land commissioner is without authority to postpone the sale to some future date. Estes v. Terrell, 99 T. 622, 92 S. W. 407.

Where school lands are classified and prices fixed and placed on the market, it is an offer of sale by the state the acceptance of which by an actual settler completes the sale. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 432.

Where an application for the purchase of school land reappraised at $3 per acre was not acted on until after the commissioner had reappraised the land at $5 per acre, a sale to the applicant at $3 per acre was not a sale in compliance with law. Erp v. Tillman, 103 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1057.

An application to purchase school land at a price below that at which it has been reappraised and offered for sale secures no right to the applicant, and the application does not constitute an acceptance of an offer to sell subsequently made for a price below that stated in it. Id.

A sale of public school lands at a price less than the appraised value is invalid. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 157 S. W. 1160.

Cancellation of sales for errors in classification.—The land commissioner, after he has made a classification and reappraisal under the law, and has awarded the land to a purchaser, has no right to cancel a sale to a purchaser on the ground alone that he failed to act in the classification and reappraisal. The conditions precedent to the power to sell having been complied with (by the commissioner) and the purchaser, by his application having accepted the offer to sell thus held out by the statute through such action of the commissioner and having complied with the statutory requirements, there was a complete executory contract of sale. Harper v. Terrell, 94 T. 479, 75 S. W. 949.

Evidence.—See, also, notes under Arts. 3987, 3996.

In a school land, evidence considered, and held insufficient to show that the land had not been appraised at the price for which it was awarded to an applicant. Davis v. McCauley, 25 C. A. 211, 65 S. W. 1124.

In trespass to try title by the purchaser of school lands, held, that there was nothing to show a classification and reappraisal prior to his application. Corrigan v. Fitzsimmons (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 68.

Evidence held to show prima facie classification and reappraisal of home section before the grant. Stolley v. Lilwall, 38 C. A. 45, 94 S. W. 689.
Art. 5408. Advertisement of land.—In cases where lands may be leased and the same shall come on the market by reason of the expiration of such lease, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to notify the county clerk ninety days, when practicable, before the expiration of such lease of the date of such expiration. When a lease is for any cause canceled, he shall notify the county clerk of that fact and fix a date not less than ninety days thereafter on and after which applications to purchase may be filed. All notices of expiration and cancellation of leases shall be forthwith recorded as required for notices of classification and valuation. The commissioner shall adopt such means as may be at his command that will give the widest publicity as to when land will be on the market for sale by reason of expiration of any lease. Such publicity shall, when practicable, be given ninety days in advance of such expiration. When a lease is canceled for any cause, the land shall not be for sale until ninety days thereafter. Immediately after the cancellation of a lease or leases the commissioner shall proceed to give publicity to the fact, the same as is herein required with reference to publicity of expiring leases. If there are no other satisfactory or sufficient means at the command of the commissioner that will give the necessary publicity, he shall have printed at the expense of the state, to be paid out of the appropriation for public printing, a list or lists of the lands, and send them out in the mail and to every person requesting them. Such lists shall also contain a brief statement as to how one shall proceed to purchase the land. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 2.]

Effect of outstanding lease.—Invalid sale of lands to lessee cannot be treated as continuation of lease, though payments exceeded amount due under lease. Burnam v. Terrell, 97 T. 309, 78 S. W. 500.

A part owner of a lease of state school lands cannot alone waive the lease, so as to authorize purchase of the lands. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 569.

Mere proof that a state lease had been executed for a period sufficient to embrace an award of state school land, without showing that the lease had been forfeited or the rights thereunder duly waived, held insufficient to show the award invalid. Hood v. Pursley, 39 C. A. 476, 87 S. W. 870.

A lease of school lands held void and no obstacle to a subsequent award to defendant on which judgment was rendered. Buchanan v. Barnsley, 51 C. A. 253, 112 S. W. 118.

Expiration of lease.—Premature application for purchase, see notes under Art. 5419.

A lease of public lands for five years from April 16, 1897, held to have expired midnight April 16, 1902. Patterson v. Terrell, 96 T. 509, 74 S. W. 19.

Purchase after cancellation of lease.—The provisions of this article relating to the giving of notices as to land which becomes subject to sale by the termination or cancellation of a lease, were not applicable to land which must be surveyed before it can be sold under section 8 of the act of March 15, 1905; no land being subject to sale upon cancellation thereof, so that the fact that the full 30 days' notice was not given to the county clerk upon the cancellation of a lease of unsurveyed land would not affect the validity of the survey and sale of such land under section 8. Meador v. Robison, 103 T. 206, 125 S. W. 684.

Art. 5409. [4218g] Sales by commissioner, how made.—The purchaser shall transmit to the land commissioner one-fortieth of the aggregate purchase money for the particular tract of land, together with his application, affidavit and his obligation to the state, duly executed, binding the purchaser to pay to the state on the first day of November of each year thereafter, until the whole purchase money is paid, one-fortieth of the aggregate price, with interest at the rate of three or five per cent per annum, according to his purchase, on the whole unpaid purchase money, which interest shall also be payable on the first day of November of each year; and, upon receipt of one-fortieth of the purchase money, and the affidavit and obligation aforesaid, by the commissioner, the sale shall be deemed and held effective from the date the application, affidavit and obligation are filed in the general land office. [Acts 1895.]

Art. 5410. Actual settlers, applications.—All sales shall be made by the commissioner of the general land office, or under his direction. Any person desiring to purchase any of the surveyed land mentioned in this chapter shall make a separate application in writing for each tract applied for and be addressed to the commissioner of the general land office.
It shall sufficiently designate the tract sought to be purchased, and give the price offered therefor, which shall not be less than the appraised value fixed by the commissioner. Each application shall contain the affidavit of the applicant to the effect that he desires to purchase the land for a home, or as additional to the home applied for, or as additional to his own land which has been theretofore purchased from the state, or as additional to his own private land, as the case may be, and that he is or will, as the case may be, in good faith, become in person an actual bona fide settler on some portion of the land he purchases, or upon his other land, as the case may be, within ninety days from the date his application is accepted, also that he is not acting in collusion with others for the purpose of buying the land for any other person or corporation, and that no other person or corporation is directly or indirectly interested in the purchase thereof; also every application shall be accompanied by the obligation of the applicant in a sum equal to the amount of the deferred payment offered for the land. Said application, affidavit and obligation shall be filed in the land office through due course of mail and not by any one in person, in an envelope addressed to the commissioner of the general land office at Austin, Texas; and, when the land is to come on the market at some future date, the envelope shall have endorsed thereon as follows: "Application to buy land; Sections ...., Block ...., Grantee ...., County ...., Date on market ....," and the blanks shall be properly filled out. When the envelope so endorsed is received in the land office, it shall be safely and securely kept and preserved by the commissioner, or his chief clerk, without being opened until the day following the date endorsed thereon as to when the land comes on the market, and one or both of them shall begin at ten o'clock a. m., on the day following the day the land comes on the market, to open the envelopes for inspection of the applications, and such action as is herein provided for, and in the presence of the applicants, if they desire to be present, or in the presence of such person as they may designate to represent them; and said applications shall immediately be filed, together with all other applications received up to that time for the same land. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 3.]

See Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101; Hanna v. Atchison, 141 S. W. 190.

Rights of applicants in general.—A petition, in a suit to recover school land by an applicant for the purchase thereof, not alleging that he is either an actual settler on the land or is an owner of and actual settler on other lands, held fatally defective. Sterling v. Self, 30 C. A. 284, 70 S. W. 228.

Under the law in force in 1897, an applicant could not purchase more than two agricultural sections, and an application for three (or four) is improper and forms no basis and could be excluded from evidence, and having been excluded he can offer no evidence of his obligation, or payment and settlement. Goehali v. Read, 35 C. A. 461, 81 S. W. 554.

An application for the purchase of school lands is properly rejected, where at the time the application is made the records of the commissioner’s office show they are under lease or have been sold to another person. Bradford v. Brown, 27 C. A. 323, 84 S. W. 392.

If school land is unsold and is lawfully on the market for sale, the application of one who may be entitled to purchase and who complies with all the terms of the statute and the rules of the land office, cannot be arbitrarily rejected by the land commissioner; and when one who is suing upon his rejected application has brought himself within the terms of the law, he has overcome the presumption that the commissioner has acted lawfully in rejecting his application. Knapp v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 694.

Under the facts, one who made a bid for school lands held not entitled to an award. Hobbs v. Robison, 103 T. 89, 124 S. W. 89.

In view of this article the provisions of Art. 5408, relating to the giving of notice as to land which becomes subject to sale by the termination or cancellation of a lease, were not applicable to land which must be surveyed before it can be sold under section 8 of the act of April 15, 1905; no land being subject to sale upon cancellation of a lease until it is surveyed, so that the fact that the full 90 days notice was not given to the county clerk upon the cancellation of a lease of unsurveyed land would not affect the validity of the survey and sale of such land under said section 8. Meador v. Robison, 103 T. 306, 125 S. W. 684.

When land is on the market in general.—Premature application, see post.

When the legislature spoke of land “to come on the market at some future date,” they meant merely such lands as were to be subject to sale at a time subsequent to the making of the applications, and that the word “future” was intended to relate to the time at which the application was made, and not to the time at which the statute was passed or took effect. Florence v. Terrell, 99 T. 757, 92 S. W. 32.

Other sales.—A fraudulent purchase and sale does not interpose a legal obstacle to another purchaser. A sale can be contested in the courts at any time before the final proof is made. A subsequent purchaser is not bound to wait for the state to obtain a judicial forfeiture of the prior fraudulent purchase. Metzler v. Johnson, 1 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 462; Hill v. W. I. Backcock, 21 S. W. 517.

Where an application to purchase school lands was regular, and the applicant was an actual settler thereon until his assignment to another, the award of the land to such applicant until it was declared forfeited by proper proceedings; and a subsequent applicant, alleging abandonment, could not recover the lands. Duncan v. State, 28 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 903.

An award of school lands by the commissioner of the general land office, void because the applicant was not an actual settler, did not take the land off the market. Briggs v. Key, 30 C. A. 655, 71 S. W. 43.

Uncancelled award held sufficient to keep school lands from being subject to a subsequent application. May v. Hollingsworth, 36 C. A. 665, 80 S. W. 641.

Evidence not to show a prior award of state lands had been canceled, so as to place it on the market, when plaintiff made application to purchase it. Smith v. Hughes, 39 C. A. 113, 86 S. W. 926.

Where school land had been once sold it could not again be put upon the market until the sale had been legally forfeited. Bumpass v. McLendon, 45 C. A. 519, 101 S. W. 491.

An applicant to purchase school land, claiming that a prior application by the holder of a 1/4 was invalid, held required to show a termination of the state's rights under the lease. Patterson v. Knapp (Sup.) 103 S. W. 489.

The commissioner of the general land office is powerless to sell school lands which has been legally sold previously where the prior purchase is kept in good standing. Zetter v. C. A. Shuler, 52 C. A. 645, 116 S. W. 78.

One claiming school land under a subsequent award must show the invalidity of the previous sale. Id.

A sale of school land after it had been sold to another, and while the prior sale was in force, does not affect the title of the prior purchaser or of the state. Polhe v. Robertson, 102 T. 274, 115 S. W. 1166.

On abandonment of purchase of school land, substitution of third person for another purchaser held complete, and sufficient, to take the land off the market. Fitzhugh v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 913.

Public school lands were not subject to purchase where a prior sale thereof had not been officially canceled when the application to purchase was filed, so that the subsequent sale was unauthorized and conveyed no right. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

A cancellation of a void award of public lands to a minor is not necessary to a subsequent award of the land to an adult. Rainer v. Durrill (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 589.

Purchase by married and married women.—As the act authorizing the sale of school lands (July 8, 1879), and declaring that "any" person may become a purchaser, etc., did not expressly authorize minors to become purchasers, a sale to a minor who complies with the law, creates no contract between the state and the minor which could be enforced against the state by one who afterwards bought the minor's interest in the land under an order of a probate court, and then paid the balance of the purchase money to the state treasurer. State ex rel. Walker v. Rogan, 33 T. 248, 54 S. W. 1018.

The contention that a married woman had no right to acquire school lands, because she could not act in a capacity other than that of the contracting party, must be sustained. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 535.

A minor is entitled to purchase land under this article. Watson v. White, 26 C. A. 442, 64 S. W. 828.

A minor who is an old enough to become an actual settler under statutes making that the age qualification of a purchaser should be upheld, especially in view of the decisions and the action of the land department of the state authorizing such sales. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 535.

A minor is entitled to purchase land under this article. Watson v. White, 26 C. A. 442, 64 S. W. 828.

A minor who is an actual settler is not denied the privilege of buying additional lands by reason of his minority. White v. Watson, 34 C. A. 169, 78 S. W. 297.

Sales of public lands are not void because made to a minor. Taylor v. Lewis, 38 C. A. 390, 85 S. W. 1011.

In a proceeding to cancel a sale of school land on the ground of the purchaser's minority, the state must allege and maintain it by proof. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 698.

An award of public lands to a minor is invalid. Rainer v. Durrill (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 589.

The removal by the district court of the disability of infancy of one to whom public land had been previously awarded does not avoid an award to an adult made subsequent to the award to the minor and prior to the removal of disability. Id.

Necessity and sufficiency of application in general.—An application to purchase public school lands, accompanied by an affidavit of settlement thereon for a home, are conditions precedent to acquiring title. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

An application to purchase school lands, where in compliance with the act of 1895, is good, under the amendatory act of 1897. Abilen Live Stock Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 885.

When the application complies substantially with the statute and one-forthieth of the aggregate purchase price is tendered, the erroneous recital of the balance of the purchase money due may be treated as surplusage or at most as a clerical error and the right of the applicant—an actual settler and intending purchaser—cannot be thus defeated. See Keef v. Sisk, 26 S. W. 941.

Application to purchase school land held not void for certain irregularity. Faulcett v. Sheppard, 33 C. A. 64, 76 S. W. 538.
An application for the purchase of school lands held to sufficiently describe the lands to empower the commissioner to sell the same. Lindsey v. Terrell, 100 T. 548, 101 S. W. 1078.

Closure of state land does not of itself confer any right in or to the land, but only gives a preference right to purchase. Underwood v. King, 102 T. 561, 119 S. W. 295.

An application by one who has purchased the east 240 acres of 529 1/2 acres surveyed and placed on the market as school land, which describes the land applied for as additional land to his 240 acres, does not sufficiently describe the land, and an award thereof by the commissioner is not a sale in compliance with the law. Erp v. Tillman, 100 T. 574, 131 S. W. 1657.

Under the provisions of this article requiring the original purchaser of public land to forward his application properly describing the land, and Art. 5436 authorizing him to sell and the substitute purchaser to file his application with the commissioner of the general land office, together with the duly authenticated conveyance or transfer from the original purchaser, a proper description in the substitute purchaser's affidavit, if required, was substantially complied with by application of the substitute purchaser, with the attached obligation describing the land correctly and including the county where it was located, so as to authorize the commissioner to recognize him as a purchaser of the land, though the application itself omitted the county. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson ( Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

Time for making application.—An application and affidavit, made for the purpose of acquiring title to public school lands, which should have been sworn to before the land was put on sale, but otherwise regular, held insufficient. Cordill v. Moore, 17 C. A. 217, 43 S. W. 298.

An application to purchase public school lands is properly made after the lands are classified and placed on the market, but not before notification thereof has been filed. 1d.

An application to purchase school lands, filed before the same have been placed on the market by the commissioner by listing the same with the county clerk, is properly rejected. Townsend, 93 T. 50, 53 S. W. 581.

An application to purchase public school land, which was made the same day, but prior to the receipt of the notice by the county clerk of its classification and appraisal, but reached the general land office afterwards, held not invalid. Lester v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 429, 53 S. W. 916.

Where one who applied to purchase school lands before settlement afterwards settles on the land, without making a new application, but relies on the application made, he waives, in a contest with another applicant, any superior right by reason of his settlement. Natchez v. Hall ( Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 118.

Where a settler on school land applies for an additional tract before acquiring title to his home tract, but acquires such title before the application is considered, the award held valid. 1d.

Under the alleged statement of facts in trespass to try title to school lands, held, that the court must assume that the land was regularly on the market at the time of plaintiff's application to purchase the land. Hardman v. Crawford, 95 T. 193, 66 S. W. 206.

Where two or more applications for the purchase of leased school lands are filed prior to the expiration of the lease by persons other than the lessee, the first applicant is entitled to the land, if the other applicants do not file a further application after the lease expired. McChristy v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 79.

Where several applications to purchase leased school lands were all premature, because made before the expiration of the lease, but one of the applicants filed another application after the expiration of the lease, he was entitled to the land, though his first application was for a larger tract than the other premature applications. A lease of school land for a term of two years from August 26, 1899, cannot be regarded as expiring prior to 12 o'clock midnight of August 26, 1901, and an application to make purchase prior thereto is premature. 1d.

Prematurity of affidavit to accompany application for purchase of school lands held immaterial. McChristy v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 79.

Where, in trespass to try title to school lands, plaintiff fails to show that the land was classified at the time of his application to purchase, he cannot recover. Anderson v. Walker ( Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1003.

Application to purchase public school lands leased for two years from August 26, 1899, held not premature, though filed after midnight August 25, 1901. McChristy v. Jackson ( Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 569.

Application to purchase public lands as an actual settler held not affected by the fact that it was sworn to a few hours before the settlement. Allen v. Frost, 31 C. A. 232, 71 S. W. 767.

An application for the purchase of certain public lands held entitled to an acceptance of his application, though it was filed with the county clerk prior to the expiration of a lease of the land. Patterson v. Terrell, 96 T. 509, 74 S. W. 19.

As against one who applied to purchase the land after the county clerk has received notes of valuation, one who has applied to purchase before the receipt by the clerk of such notice acquires no right or title in the land by his application, because his application was prematurely made. Ford v. Brown, 96 T. 537, 74 S. W. 537.

The land is not on the market for sale until the notice of the valuation placed upon it has been complied with by the county clerk of the county in which it is located. The law itself makes the offer of the sale of the land by the action of the commissioner in giving notice to the clerk. The specific requirement of the statute as to the manner in which the application shall be made necessarily implies that the value of the land should be determined and the applicant sufficiently notified, and considered. We think, therefore, in connection with such requirements, we think it was the intention of the legislature by requiring notice to be given to the county clerk of the valuation to afford all persons equal opportunity to purchase. Id.

An application by an actual settler to purchase school land, though premature, held to give title against one who made an invalid application to purchase. Ford v. Brown, 33 C. A. 198, 75 S. W. 893.

An application for school lands, made after classification and appraisement, but before notice thereof has reached the clerk, is void. Corrigan v. Fitzsimmons (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 68.

An outstanding lease of public school lands precludes an application to purchase them, though the lessee is ineligible as a purchaser. Fruit v. Scovine (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 976.

In a suit to recover school land awarded to plaintiff, proof that he was an actual settler at the time he applied for the land is unavailing, in the absence of evidence of classification and appraisement. Smithers v. Lowrance, 35 C. A. 35, 78 S. W. 1088.

A premature application to purchase public school lands held not to give applicant a right to the land, where, before their award to her, another made proper application. Perry v. Rutherford, 39 C. A. 477, 87 S. W. 1064.

Award of school lands based on application made before lands were regularly on the market held valid. Williams v. Barnes, 44 C. A. 228, 99 S. W. 127.

When a lease has been canceled and the land placed again on the market, a purchaser has no right to file his application to buy until the date fixed by the commissioner for filing. Id; and if he files before this, it is held that the commissioner has the right to reject it. Fine v. Robison, 102 T. 406, 118 S. W. 126.

If public school land is not on the market and subject to sale when application therefor is filed, a subsequent award by the commissioner, after the land comes on the market, in the present application, is void. Tillman v. Lamp (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 547.

If public school land is not on the market when application therefor is filed, the application confers no rights upon the applicant, and cannot be made effective by the acceptance of the land commissioner. Id.

An application for the purchase of school land, filed more than a month before the cancellation of a prior sale to another and acted on after the cancellation of the prior sale and after the commissioner had reappraised the land, raising its value from $3 to $5 per acre, is insufficient, and a sale to the applicant on his application is ineffectual. Epp v. Tillman, 199 T. 574, 131 S. W. 5057.

An application for the purchase of school land, made prior to the cancellation of a previous sale of land to another, is an application to purchase land not open to purchase until the previous sale is canceled, and no right is acquired at the time of the filing of the application prior to the cancellation. Id.

One, who has filed prematurely an application for the purchase of school land so that he cannot secure a right because the land cannot then be bought, has the right to make application when the proper time has arrived, and under proper circumstances this may consist in the use for that purpose of the papers already prepared and on file and the payment already in the proper hands. Id.

Application for the purchase of school land filed more than a month before the cancellation of a prior sale to another, and acted on after the cancellation of the prior sale and reappraisal of the land by the commissioner, held ineffectual to give the applicant title. Id.

Mode of filing or presenting application.—Filing of application to purchase school lands held sufficient. McGee v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 75.

An application for the purchase of school land cannot be set aside, and the land awarded to one who had sent a bid which did not reach the commissioner's office in time because the letter containing it remained in the post office, owing to absence of an employé of the land office whose duty it was to get the mail. Byrne v. Robison, 103 T. 20.

— Application by agent.—The proposed purchaser of school lands is authorized to employ an agent to present his application. Sweet v. Slough (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 884.

Under law regulating purchase of school lands, requiring purchaser to make affidavit and execute notes for price, one acting as agent of another to present latter's application to commissioner of land office is deemed to be his agent only to extent of lands described in application. Sweet v. Slough (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 1043.

Where application to be made.—Where the land lies in two counties application to purchase may be made in either. DAVIS v. Burnett, 35 C. A. 30, 79 S. W. 105.

Successive applications.—Rights under a first application to purchase public school lands held not waived by a second application. Perry v. Rutherford, 39 C. A. 477, 87 S. W. 1064.

Withdrawal of application.—A party seeking to claim school land as a purchaser from the state held to have withdrawn his application to purchase and forfeited his right to claim the land as a purchaser. Hamilton v. Gouldy, 46 C. A. 506, 103 S. W. 1117.

Case of state school land held entitled to contest the validity of a prior purchaser's title, on the ground that his purchase was made for the benefit of a third party. Thomson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 441.

When the purchaser agrees with a third party to allow him the use of so much of the land as he wishes, as the purchaser did not need any huge sum with which to make payment, this is not acting in collusion with another within the meaning of the law. Wyatt v. Lyons, 25 C. A. 88, 60 S. W. 576.

One who is not a bona fide purchaser of a section of agricultural land but who settled upon and attempted to purchase for the benefit of others acquires no title as against one who subsequently applies to purchase in good faith. Logan v. Curry (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 83.
The title of a purchaser of school land is not subject to collateral attack on the ground that he purchased in collusion with another, and hence was not a bona fide purchaser. Logan v. Curry, 95 T. 664, 69 S. W. 129.

When the affidavit is made this concludes the question of good faith as to the matter of collusion. Id.

No one except the state can raise the question of fraud and collusion between applicants for the purchase of state public lands. Thomson v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 649.

An adverse claimant cannot assail the title of a purchaser of school lands on the ground that in making his affidavit, he acted in collusion with some other person. Hamilton v. Votaw, 31 C. A. 634, 73 S. W. 1091.

Right of persons to purchase public lands as detached sections held not prevented by their inducing another to buy other lands, so as to make such sections detached, where he purchased in good faith. Maney v. Eyres, 33 C. A. 497, 77 S. W. 428, 966.

Only the state can attack as collusive a purchase of public school lands, made on proper affidavit and compliance with all legal requirements. Maney v. Eyres, 33 C. A. 497, 77 S. W. 428, 966.

Only the state can raise the issue of collusion after an award of school lands. May v. Hollingsworth, 35 C. A. 665, 80 S. W. 841.

Contracts having for their object the acquisition of public lands in a lawful manner are not void as against public policy. Williams v. Finley, 99 T. 468, 90 S. W. 1087.

A contract, binding a purchaser from the state of school lands to execute to another a bond for title and complete the statutory period of occupancy necessary to perfect title, is not void as contrary to public policy. Johnson & Moran v. Buchanan, 54 C. A. 328, 116 S. W. 875.

Collusion between persons interested in the purchase of state land held not to strengthen the rights of an adverse claimant. Underwood v. King, 102 T. 561, 119 S. W. 298.

Where the applicant for lands makes the affidavit required by a purchaser, and the computation of the value of the land, he is without power to cancel the sale because of collusion. Mitchell v. Robison, 103 T. 642, 132 S. W. 465.

One purchasing lands under an executory contract to convey held not entitled to compel specific performance of the agreement; the land being state school land, and the agreement being collusive for the purpose of defrauding the state. Purington v. Brown (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1089.

The payment of fees for a cancellation of the original award, and the making of a new award of school lands to a purchaser by the original purchaser, was not such collusion as would invalidate a purchase-price mortgage given to the original purchaser. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Right and interest of purchaser.—Purchase-money notes, given to a party who sells unappropriated public land that he has no right to, are without consideration. Rayner Cattle Co. v. Bedford, 91 T. 642, 45 S. W. 554.

A purchaser of school lands held to take it incumbered with the public road previously established by a commissioner's court. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 812.

A purchaser of school lands from the state, whose purchase is in good standing, is entitled to possession as an ordinary vendee, and the state cannot, in the absence of special fraud, take it and award it to the claimant collusively to the title of the vendee. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

Land included in application or purchase.—A purchase of a section of land held not to include an excess included in the original survey. Willoughby v. Long (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 646.

A purchase from the state held to include a whole survey. Willoughby v. Long, 96 T. 194, 71 S. W. 545.

The remedy of the state, where it sells by the acre a whole survey containing more than one hundred acres, is to state by metes and bounds. Id.

An application for 400.8 acres of the south part of a certain section held subject to location anywhere in the south part of such survey. Morgan v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 164.

Opening applications.—The word "day" in this section means not the next calendar day, but the next day on which the land office is required to be open, and when land comes on the market at the end of the week, on the 20th of April (the 21st being a legal holiday, and the 22d Sunday), the next day when applications can be opened and considered is Monday, the 23d. Fessenden v. Terrell, 100 T. 273, 98 S. W. 649.

Art. 5411. Cash payments, how remitted.—Such applicants shall transmit with their applications the required first payment in the form of money or remittance collectible on demand in Austin, and convertible at par into money on the order of the state treasurer, without liability; provided, that, should a remittance be made payable to the commissioner of the general land office, such payment shall not be invalid for that reason, but the commissioner shall endorse it to the state treasurer without incurring liability and the same shall be treated as if payable to the treasurer. If the payment is not made as required in this article, the application shall be void. [Acts 1909, p. 429.]

Mistake.—Applicant's right to purchase cannot be defeated by a mistake of the land commissioner or state treasurer in inadvertently returning a part of the purchase money which the applicant has tried to retransmit. Fauccett v. Sheppard, 24 C. A. 562, 69 S. W. 277.

Art. 5412. Remittances, how accounts kept.—When an envelope enclosing an application to purchase land is opened and the remittance for the first payment is in the general land office, the commissioner shall cause such remittance to be listed in triplicate daily, and in such form as to show the purpose and amount of each remittance, the name and address of the applicant, and transmit the remittance and two of the lists to the treasurer. On receipt thereof, the treasurer shall check the remittances with the lists, and, if found to be correct, he shall receipt one of the lists and return it to the commissioner and retain the other list; and thereupon the commissioner shall deliver the third list retained by him to the comptroller of public accounts. The treasurer shall at once collect all collectible remittances and report to the commissioner and comptroller all remittances not collectible in Austin. The items not collected shall be returned to the commissioner, and the application for which such remittances were made shall be void. All first payments thus collected by the treasurer shall be retained by him until he receives notice from the commissioner of the final disposition of the applications to purchase; and thereupon he shall at once return to each applicant the amount shown to have been paid on his rejected applications. A duplicate of the notice to the treasurer of accepted and rejected applications and the amount of first payment shall be transmitted to the comptroller. On the last working day of each month, the treasurer shall deposit in the treasury to the credit of the proper fund the sum collected by him on accepted applications during that month. [Id.]

Art. 5413. Awards, how made; notice and accounts of.—Notices of awards shall be prepared and issued by the commissioner, and shall be appropriately numbered, and shall be so worded as to constitute a receipt for first payment when signed as such by the commissioner. Books shall be prepared containing two copies of the notice of award and a suitable number of coupons to be used by the applicant in making subsequent payments on the land. The notice of award shall be prepared in duplicate, one to be detached from the book and retained in the land office, the other, with the coupons attached, to be sent to the applicant. The coupons in each book shall be prepared in duplicate, each of which shall be numbered with the same number as that on the notice of award. The form of the coupons shall be so prepared as to be suitable for, and shall be used by the remitter in making all subsequent payments on the land, the original to be so worded as to be used as a receipt for remittances when signed as such by the commissioner. The remitter shall describe each tract of land on which he is making remittance by properly filling in the blanks on both the original and duplicate coupons, and shall enter in the proper blanks the amount remitted as interest, and the amount remitted as principal, and both the original and duplicate shall be mailed to the commissioner with the remittance. The commissioner shall likewise furnish former purchasers with similar coupon books, without notice of award, which coupon shall be used by them in the same manner as herein provided when making remittances for interest or principal, or both. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5414. Remittances, disposition of and accounts of.—All accounts with purchasers and lessees of the lands mentioned in the preceding articles and university land shall be kept in the general land office. A remittance payable to the commissioner of the general land office shall not be invalid for that reason, but he shall endorse it to the treasurer without incurring liability. Immediately on receipt thereof the commissioner shall list in triplicate, separate from first payments, all money and other forms of remittances received for the purposes stated in this article and in such form as to show the amount of each remittance, the name and address of the remitter, and the probable fund to which the remittance should be deposited. The remittances and two of the lists aforesaid shall be transmitted to the treasurer. On receipt thereof, the treasurer shall check the remittances with the list, and if found to be correct he shall receive one of the lists and return it to the commissioner and retain the other list, and thereupon the commissioner shall deliver the third list retained by him to the comptroller. The treasurer shall at once collect all collectible remittances and report to the commissioner and comptroller all remittances not collectible in Austin. The items not collected shall be returned to the commissioner. On the last working day of each month, the treasurer shall deposit into the treasury to the credit of the proper fund, as indicated by the lists theretofore furnished him by the commissioner, eighty per cent of all collections which have come into his hands during that month upon such lists, and hold the remaining twenty per cent thereof upon deposit receipts issued therefor by the comptroller; provided, when the commissioner shall have issued receipts to the remitters for remittances, he shall immediately notify the comptroller and treasurer definitely the fund or funds to which the whole of such remittances so receipted for should have been applied; and thereupon the treasurer shall deposit to the credit of the proper fund or funds the remaining twenty per cent of such remittances so receipted for. The commissioner shall furnish all available data to the state board of education when requested to do so by said board. The commissioner, treasurer and comptroller shall each keep an account with each fund mentioned in the preceding articles according to the lists and notices given and received by them. [Id.]

Art. 5415. Purchaser's name to be given; permanent records to be kept.—Persons making payments of interest, principal or lease rentals on land shall give the name of the original purchaser or lessee and sufficiently designate the land. All lists and notices provided in the preceding articles, to be given by the commissioner to the treasurer and comptroller, shall be retained in each of those departments as permanent records thereof. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5416. Award and settlement.—When the applications and obligations aforesaid have been filed in the general land office, and upon inspection they are found correct and the land is found to be classified and valued, and on the market for sale the day the application was filed, or on any prior date and still unsold, and the first payment made as required by law, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to award the land to the one offering the highest price therefor. If two or more applicants offer the same price for the same land, the same being the highest price offered, they shall be advised of that fact and a date fixed not less than thirty days thereafter within which time they may again file applications, and notice shall be sent to the clerk and other publicity shall be given that said lands are still on the market to any one, and the time in which applications to purchase the same may be filed as in the first instance. The applicant offering the highest price shall receive the award. If the second or subsequent applications should be found to offer the same price, the procedure shall be as in the first instance. An application at a less price than the former application contained shall not be considered. An application to purchase land coming on the market at some future date shall not be considered for award prior to the day next following the day the land comes on the market for sale. Land that is or may be on the market, and not filed on as herein provided, may be filed on and sold to any one at any time upon proper applications filed in the land office as herein provided, and in accordance with law, except the envelope enclosing the application shall not be required to have any memorandum thereon, and, if two or more applications should be filed the same day for the same land, the one offering the highest price shall be accepted, but, if two or more such applicants should offer the same price, the commissioner shall proceed as herein provided for in the first filing. All sales shall date from the day the successful applicant's application was filed in the land office. The applicant shall have ninety days from the date of the acceptance of his application within which to actually settle upon the land so purchased; and he shall within thirty days after the expiration of said ninety days given within which to make settlement, file in the land office his affidavit that he has in good faith actually in person settled upon the land purchased by him. Should the applicant fail to make and file the affidavit and proof of settlement as herein provided within the time specified, the commissioner of the general land office shall indorse that fact upon his application, cancelling the same, and immediately place the same upon the market by notice to the clerk, fixing a date not less than thirty days thereafter when applications may be filed for the purchase thereof; and any sum which may have been paid upon a former application, canceled as aforesaid, shall be forfeited to the fund to which the same belonged. All sums paid in by an unsuccessful applicant shall be returned to him. Provided, if for any cause a designated home tract can not be awarded to an applicant and there be no other obstacle to the award of one or more tracts as additional thereto, such applicant shall be permitted, without prejudice, to designate one of the additional tracts as a home tract, which shall, with such other tracts as he has applied for and are within five miles thereof, be awarded to the applicant. The commissioner shall advise the applicant why he can not award to him the home tract and request a new designation by his affidavit; and, in default of such affidavit being filed in the land office within thirty days after such notice, the commissioner may reject all the applications of such applicant, but, should no rights intervene, such affidavit may be considered at any time prior to a rejection. The affidavit shall be sufficient authority for the change of the home tract, and shall relate back to the date of the filing of the application in the land office. A purchaser may live on any tract designated as a home, or move from any designated home tract to any of his additional land, at any time during the required three years residence on the land. The applicant shall accompany the application aforesaid with his obligation to the state, duly executed, binding the purchaser to pay to the state at the land office at Austin, Texas, on the first day of November of each year thereafter, until the whole purchase price is paid, one-fortieth of the aggregate price, with interest at the rate of three per cent per annum on the whole unpaid purchase money, which interest shall also be payable on the first day of November of each year; and in default of the interest the land shall be forfeited as now provided by law. At the same time the applicant applies to purchase the land, he shall also deposit in the land office one-fortieth of the aggregate price of the same as the first payment thereon. A purchaser shall not transfer his land prior to his actual settlement thereon, and evidence of that fact filed as herein provided; and any attempt to so transfer by deed, bond for title, or other agreement shall operate as a forfeiture of the land to the fund to which the same belonged, together with all the payments made thereon; and when sufficiently informed of the facts which operate as a forfeiture, the commissioner shall note the fact of forfeiture upon the application and proceed to place the land on the market by notice to the proper county clerk and advertisement in the manner provided for canceled leases. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 4.]

Estoppel against state.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 37, ¶ 19.

Acceptance and rejection.—An unsigned indorsement, made on the back of an application to purchase school lands, showing the date of its rejection, is not evidence to show that the application was rejected. Smith v. Russell, 23 C. A. 554, 66 S. W. 687.

The acceptance of the offer of the state, and the compliance by the applicant to purchase therewith, held to be what will constitute him a purchaser of school lands, and not the acceptance of his application by the land commissioner. Tillman v. Erp ( Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 647.

Conflicting claims—Priorities.—The law awards the land to the first applicant who is able to make affidavit to actual settlement and comply with the other requirements of the statute. The fact that some other person may have preceded him in settling thereon, but not in making application to purchase, will not deprive him of his right. Hobart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 710.

When an applicant for the purchase of school lands by mistake enters upon the wrong land, such mistake will not invalidate his title as against a subsequent applicant, who has not, prior to the correction of the mistake, acquired any right by taking possession. White v. Hall (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 810.

When application is made to purchase school lands as an actual settler held to convey superior title over a subsequent attempted purchase. Martin v. Marr, 26 C. A. 55, 62 S. W. 932.

In trespass to try title, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover by reason of a prior application to purchase school lands. Cleck v. Hay, 26 C. A. 45, 62 S. W. 935.

Evidence held not to show that the acts of the county clerk in making and mailing an application to purchase public school lands gave the applicant an undue preference, so as to render the application invalid. Lester v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 429, 63 S. W. 916.

When lands have been awarded to an actual settler as pasture lands, one subsequently discovering oil therein cannot acquire a prospector's rights. Chappell v. Rogan, 94 T. 550, 65 S. W. 1066.

Where applications to purchase school lands were both premature, land held properly awarded to party first filing the application. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 285, 67 S. W. 89.

In trespass to try title to school land, where plaintiff's application to purchase, dated Friday, was indorsed as filed on Sunday, and defendant's two days later, an instruction that plaintiff's "was filed on any other day than Sunday, about the time or soon after he made it, the jury should find for him," was error. Stephens v. Porter, 29 C. A. 555, 69 S. W. 423.

An applicant who files for the purchase of school land before the expiration of a lease thereon and for which there is an applicant filing after the award to him. Smith v. Zesch, 30 C. A. 444, 70 S. W. 775.

Acts 1900, 1st called Sess. p. 33, § 7, does not deal with the question as to whom or how the land is to become subject to sale at all. Assuming that a sale is to be made, it determines the rights of applicants and fixes the priority of right to purchase when the land being on the market, he seeks to become a purchaser. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 906.

On an issue whether the application of plaintiff to purchase school land or that or of defendant first reached the hands of the commissioner of the land office, evidence held insufficient to sustain a verdict for defendant. Coody v. Harris, 38 C. A. 465, 81 S. W. 1233.

Where plaintiff and defendant filed rival applications to purchase two sections of school land, held immaterial that plaintiff filed his application for the second section before defendant filed his. Fellers v. McFatter, 46 C. A. 336, 101 S. W. 1065.

It is the application and not possession that fixes title in the purchaser of public school lands. Possessed land being, but an applicant who filed his application to purchase prior in time to any other legal applicant acquires title. Id.

Where an applicant to purchase school lands by mistake settled on adjoining land, and on discovering the mistake immediately removed to the land applied for she was entitled to the same as against a subsequent locator and applicant with notice of her claim. Morgan v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1164.

Where a prior purchaser of school lands took up her residence a short distance from his good faith, and on discovering her mistake, moved one mile, the land, she was entitled to it as against a subsequent locator with notice. Morgan v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 736.

A good-faith applicant to purchase school lands held entitled to it as against a prior applicant. Morrow v. Williams' Adm'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 766.

Who may make objections.—The issue of the good or bad faith of the purchaser, who is an actual settler on the land, cannot be made by a mere trespasser. Gray v. Thompson, 5 C. A. 32, 25 S. W. 928; Swan v. Busby, 5 C. A. 65, 24 S. W. 303.

The disability of minority can not be urged by a person seeking to purchase school land after the commissioner of the land office had awarded it to such person laboring under the disability of minority. Weatherford v. McPadden, 21 C. A. 260, 51 S. W. 548.

Where there was no objection on the part of the state to a sale of school land to defendant because she was a married woman, a subsequent lessee from the state cannot question her right to purchase on that ground. Anderson v. Neighbors, 25 C. A. 694, 61 S. W. 145.

Attitude of owner of school land lease with regard to the time of expiration thereof held to prevent him from attacking the validity of a sale to another applicant on the ground that his application was prematurely filed. Corbin v. McGee (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1068.

There is nothing in our law that will prevent an actual settler who has compiled with the statute in an effort to purchase school lands from showing that a previous award, made within less than three years from the date of his own application and settlement, was a nullity by reason of the fact that such prior applicant did not comply with the essential requirements of actual settlement at the time of the application under which such prior award had been made, although a certificate of occupancy has been issued by the commissioner to the first applicant. Lamkin v. Matsler, 22 C. A. 218, 73 S. W. 971.

This case is distinguished from Logan v. Curry, 95 T. 564, 69 S. W. 129.

An applicant for the purchase of school land cannot question the sufficiency of the proceedings of such purchaser thereof after the commissioner has issued his certificate. Harper v. Dodd, 30 C. A. 287, 70 S. W. 223.

Defendants held not entitled to complain of acquisition by plaintiffs from an original defendant filing a cross-action of the latter's title to land involved. Stubblefield v. Han- son (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 405. 3875
Where the sale of school lands is permitted to stand by the state, another cannot buy the same land unless the sale was or has become null and void. Weyer v. Terrel, 109 T. 409, 100 S. W. 133.

In trespass to try title by a grantee of the purchaser of the land from the state, defendant cannot show that the purchaser perpetrated a fraud on the state, without showing that he himself to the land other than through the purchaser. Elliott v. Morris, 46 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 209.

Any collusion in securing a second award of school lands after a sale by the purchaser can be taken advantage of only by the state. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1941.

Where, by reason of the lapse of a year from the award of public school lands to plaintiff, the sale became valid as between him and a third person, though invalid as against the state, because a prior sale had not been canceled, no one could acquire a valid title to the absence of action by the state to forfeit plaintiff's purchase. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

Improvements and other expenditures.—A settler upon vacant public lands cannot recover from a subsequent purchaser from the state the value of improvements made by him. Finks v. Cox (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 615.

An instruction authorizing the jury to consider defendant's acts and misconduct before and after the date of her application to purchase school lands for the purpose of determining the good faith of her settlement held proper. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

In an action of trespass to try title to school land between rival applicants, plaintiff could not claim to have made any improvements on the land in good faith after his application was rejected as having been made at the same time defendant's was and after filing the suit, and could not recover from defendant the value of such improvements. Fellers v. McFatter, 46 C. A. 335, 101 S. W. 1065.

A grantee of a purchaser of school lands paying one-fortieth of the price in cash is in valid improvements made in the state, and improvements on the land cannot be urged against him. Hamman v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1082.

Right to maintain trespass to try title.—J. actually settled upon state school land fraudulently purchased by K., and duly made application to purchase the same from the state, tendering the first payment thereof, which was refused because of prior sale to K. Held that j. has the right to tender entitled J. to recover his money with interest, in trespass to try title and to recover judgment for the land. Metzler v. Johnson, 1 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 1116.

Purchaser of school land held to have title sufficient to support an action against a mere trespassor. Dowding v. Ditmore, 26 C. A. 696, 65 S. W. 485.

A purchaser of school lands cannot maintain trespass to try title to recover such lands without showing that the lands had been classified and appraised. Corrigan v. Pitts Alpkins (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 68.

A purchaser of school lands from the state, whose purchase is in good standing, is entitled to possession as an ordinary vendee, and the state cannot, in the absence of special authority, maintain trespass to try title, even though another makes claim adversely to the title of the vendee. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

Rents and profits.—One buying of the state public school lands, of which another is in possession under a void lease, held entitled to recover of him rent from the time of his purchase till placed in possession on termination of their litigation over title. Buchanan v. Wilburn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1198.

Bona fide purchaser.—The defense of innocent purchaser is inapplicable to cases involving conflicting claims as purchasers of school land. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

An actual settler is not required to occupy the land for a period beyond the time necessary to make him an actual settler in good faith. Perkins v. Miller, 60 T. 61.

One who claims under another who had resided on the land is not an actual settler. Perkins v. Miller, 60 T. 61; Taylor v. Burke, 66 T. 643, 1 S. W. 910.

Actual settlement by the original purchaser or some one holding under him is sufficient. Chancey v. State, 84 T. 529, 19 S. W. 706. K. holding section of school land under the act of 1897. His application and affidavit therefor represented him to be an actual settler. He was not in fact an actual settler, nor had he purchased the land in good faith. Held, such purchase conferred no title on him nor his assignee, against one who afterward settled on the land and duly applied to the court. Metzler v. Johnson, 1 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 1116.

One who is not in fact an actual settler, or who does not purchase in good faith, acquires no title. Id.

A mere trespasser cannot litigate the issue. Gray v. Thompson, 5 C. A. 32, 23 S. W. 926.

The applicant must be an actual settler in good faith on the land. Busk v. Lowrie, 26 T. 128, 23 S. W. 983; Martin v. McCarty, 74 T. 128, 10 S. W. 221; Luckie v. Watt, 77 T. 253, 18 S. W. 1035.

The amendment of April 8, 1899, authorized the sale of detached or isolated school lands to actual settlers only. Persons not actual settlers could not purchase such lands. Cameron v. State, 26 S. W. 863, 7 C. A. 35.

One who settles on a section of school land is entitled to purchase all or any portion of it. Anderson v. Townsend, 12, 43 S. W. 50.

The plaintiff put a covered wagon bed on the land, placed bedding and provision box in it, set up a stove outside, fenced in a small piece of ground, put some feed in the enclosure, ate dinner and stayed all night. He made application for the land the following day. Held, that this as to whether he was a settler in good faith should be submitted to the jury together with his action in regard to the land. Borchers v. Mead, 17 C. A. 32, 43 S. W. 300.

Evidence held to show that the claimant was an actual settler on the land. Borchers v. Mead, 17 C. A. 32, 43 S. W. 300; Willoughby v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 335; Singleton v. Wright, 54 S. W. 249; Smith v. Russell, 23 C. A. 544, 66 S. W. 687; Taylor v. Lewis, 33 C. A. 390, 85 S. W. 1011.

It is not the law that no one may be an actual settler on school lands without residing thereon. Waggoner v. Daniels, 18 C. A. 235, 44 S. W. 946.

A person who occupies school land "preparatory to and with the bona fide intention of thereafter removing on and residing on said land as his home" is not an actual settler, id. A person who goes on a section of vacant school land and sticks up a dozen sticks as evidence of his occupation is not an actual settler, it being shown that he was a farm hand and worked elsewhere, and did not complete his tithes till eight months afterward. Jordan v. Payne, 15 C. A. 583, 45 S. W. 189.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff was not "an actual settler," as required in affidavit of application to purchase state lands. Hart v. Menefee (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 854; Lee v. Green, 24 C. A. 109, 58 S. W. 196, 847; Thomson v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 649.

Evidence showing that plaintiff, the day before she made application to purchase as an actual settler on state school land, picked out a place for a house, and that no one was occupying the land, 17 C. A. There were no improvements, is insufficient to show that plaintiff was an actual settler when she made her application. Renner v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 867.

It is no evidence against one’s claim as settler in C. county that claimant’s husband was compelled to serve on jury in H. county; he having rejected, and claimed residence in C. county. Barnett v. Murray (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 784.

The definition of the residence of a married man contained in Art. 2941, as being the place where his wife resides, is not necessarily to be applied in determining whether one is a settler on school lands. If there be no appearance of husband and wife and the latter’s absence is but temporary, and the intention of both is as soon as practicable to reside upon the land as their home, active settlement and occupancy being shown in the husband, the rule does not require the actual presence of the wife. Chandler v. Baughman, 62 S. W. 485, 55 S. W. 125.

This article entitles any actual bona fide owner of and resident upon any lands other than free school, asylum or public lands to purchase three additional sections situated within the five-mile radius from the land he so owns and upon which he so resides the same as if he had applied to purchase public school lands from the state in the first instance. The owner or his vendee, who has applied to purchase other lands from the state is required to reside continuously upon such patented land, or on some portion of the land applied for, for three years after the application to purchase the additional land is made, and a failure so to do forfeits the land applied for without any action of the commissioner. McKnight v. Clark, 24 C. A. 89, 58 S. W. 147.

See this case for facts which do not make one an actual settler on public land bought for a home. Hall v. White, 94 T. 452, 61 S. W. 385.

An applicant for the purchase of school land does not lose his right thereto by mistakenly and in good faith settling on adjacent land, believing it to be the tract he applied for. Hall v. White, 94 T. 452, 61 S. W. 385.

Unless an applicant to purchase state public land is an actual settler thereon, he obtains no right thereto, though he thereafter makes a sufficient settlement. Thomson v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 649.

The long continued use of an existing home by one who has applied to purchase school land, as an actual settler, may furnish convincing evidence that he did not intend to make his home, and do so for himself alone. Willingham v. Floyd, 32 C. A. 161, 73 S. W. 831.

A purchaser of land which is not detached must comply with conditions of actual settlement. Witcher v. Wiles, 54 C. A. 60, 13 S. W. 359.

An award of public free school lands to one as an actual settler thereon, and of other said lands to the additional thereto, is of no validity, unless such person is an actual settler in good faith. W. v. Snow, 33 C. A. 229, 76 S. W. 255.

See this case for evidence which was sufficient to show that a purchaser of school lands was not an actual settler in good faith as required by this article, though his absence from the lands amounted to an abandonment under the homestead exemption law. Mann v. Greer, 33 C. A. 517, 77 S. W. 34.

One who actually occupies and settles on land, intending to make it his home, is an actual settler. May v. Hollingsworth, 35 C. A. 665, 80 S. W. 841.

Evidence held to sustain a finding against the good faith of plaintiff’s settlement on land which he made application to purchase from the state. Smith v. Hughes, 39 C. A. 113, 86 S. W. 926.

On an issue as to whether defendant was an actual settler on school lands when he applied to purchase, the evidence held sufficient to show such settlement. Smith v. Florence, 43 C. A. 557, 96 S. W. 1096.

School lands can be sold to actual settlers only. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Terrell, 102 T. 406, 100 S. W. 1136.

In trespass to try title to certain school lands, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that defendant entertained an honest belief that she had located on the land applied for, that she was justified in so believing, and that she continued so to believe until she moved onto the lands, immediately after discovering her mistake. Morgan v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1164.

The policy of the state in the disposition of its school lands is to sell only to those who will actually settle upon them and occupy them as homes. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 872.

A sale of school lands to one not an actual settler is a nullity. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 432.

One who makes his home on public lands is an “actual settler” thereon, within the statute permitting such settlers to purchase additional school lands, though his habitation is such that it can hardly be called a house. Corrigan v. Fitzsimmons, 51 C. A. 444, 111 S. W. 753.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to support a finding that defendant was an actual settler on a half section of land when he applied to purchase additional school lands.

Held, that there was no failure to reside on school land so as to warrant a cancellation of its purchase. Bustin v. Robinson, 102 T. 526, 119 S. W. 1140.

Evidence held to support a finding that a purchaser of school lands substantially complied with the law as to residence on the lands. State v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 520.

A purchaser of state school lands may not fulfill the conditions of settlement and occupancy by proxy. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 847.

Where, in a suit involving conflicting claims to state school land, the evidence showed that plaintiff and accused were married men and the head of a family, purchased the land; that he in person, at or before the purchase, went on the land, and that subsequently he was there one or more times assisting in making improvements; that the wife, excepting temporary absences, continuously occupied the land, making improvements thereon, and that the husband or retained away the greater part of the time pursuing his business; that he purchased the land for a home, and that his business was necessary to secure money with which to pay his indebtedness on the land—a charge that if plaintiff did not actually and in person settle on the land he could not recover, and that occupancy by one’s wife without his presence was not sufficient, was erroneous as unduly emphasizing the necessity of plaintiff’s personal occupancy, and in excluding a consideration of the acts of the wife. Id.

An “actual settler” as involving title to school land is one who actually occupies and settles upon the land, intending to make it his home. Beaty v. Yell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 911.

Conduct of applicant for purchase of school land held to raise issue as to abandonment of purchase. Fitzgibbons v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 912.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff claiming as a purchaser of school lands did not acquire or settle upon the land in good faith. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Evidence held to show abandonment of plaintiff’s residence in a particular county, warranting vacation of his purchase of school land therein. Lane v. Samora (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 818.

An instruction that settlement on school land for the purpose of purchasing the same might be made in a tent was objectionable, as intimating that settlement in a tent was a compliance with the law. State v. Haley (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1003.

On the issue of whether there was a sufficient settlement by one who becomes a subsequent purchaser of public school lands, emphasis should not be given by instructions to the fact that the settlement and occupancy must be “in person,” thus tending from the jury’s consideration the acts of his wife in aid of his settlement and occupancy, to which, as well as all other circumstances, the jury may look; Acts 29th L. may not have any influence upon it, by the use of the word “in person,” to the prior requirements as to settlement, being directed in terms only to an original purchaser of school lands, and not repealing Art. 5436, as to the affidavit a substitute purchaser thereof shall make as to settlement. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 246.

A purchaser of school lands conveying it shortly after award and then leaving it for more than seven months for more or less unexplained absence abandoned it as a matter of law, though he claimed the conveyance was not absolute, and that he intended to return. Ahearn v. Hall (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 612.

Only the original purchaser can make the settlement required by the statute and the affidavit proving such settlement; a settlement by his wife being insufficient. McWhorter v. Ericksen (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 624.
Affidavit.—A sale to one whose application and affidavit stated that he was an actual settler, when in fact he was not, conveys no title. Hitson v. Glasscock, 2 C. A. 617, 21 S. W. 710; Metzler v. Johnson, 193 C. A. 137, 20 S. W. 1116.

An application to purchase state lands made on Sunday is not void. Willoughby v. TownSEND, 18 C. A. 724, 45 S. W. 361; Id. (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 335.

An affidavit held not to comply with the requirements that an application for the purchase of school lands shall be accompanied by affidavit that applicant desires to purchase the land for a home and has in good faith settled thereon. Willoughby v. TownSEND, 59 T. 85, 53 S. W. 351, reversing (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 355.

A failure to file a copy of the affidavit of an applicant for the purchase of additional school lands to affix seal held not to make the application junior to a subsequent application. Watson v. White, 26 C. A. 442, 64 S. W. 826.

Under these authorities requiring an intending purchaser to swear that he is not purchasing for another, a title bond given by a prospective purchaser while the land is still public domain is void because it seems to require a false affidavit by the purchaser. Mahoney v. Tubbs, 34 C. A. 96, 77 S. W. 825.

When one applies to purchase additional land, but by mistake his application is made to purchase as an actual settler, his affidavit reciting that he is an actual settler (which is untrue), but in all other respects sufficient, and had made the cash payment and afterwards has paid the annual interest, as against a collateral attack by a subsequent applicant for the same land, Wecker v. Lewis, 36 C. A. 18, 79 S. W. 356.

This act requires not only a settlement upon the land, but also the filing of an affidavit thereof before the land can be transferred. Good v. Terrell, 100 T. 275, 98 S. W. 641.

A sale of school land before the affidavit of settlement is actually on file in the land office, works a forfeiture of the purchase. Brown v. Terrell, 100 T. 309, 99 S. W. 542.

Where one fails to file his affidavit of settlement within 120 days from the date of the deed application, it will be immaterial, and the land again placed on the market. Jones v. Terrell, 101 T. 410, 100 S. W. 137.

The date of the deed is not conclusive evidence of the date of the transfer, and where the deed is wrongly dated, as of a date anterior to that of filing of affidavit of settlement, and the deed is made by the grantor, the sale having been canceled, mandamus will issue to compel a reinstatement. Patton v. Terrell, 101 T. 221, 100 S. W. 1116.

Under this article and Art. 5421, giving preference rights of purchase to original lessees or their assignees, and providing that if one purchasing under the section does not comply with the law as to settlement and residence, the sale shall be canceled, a purchaser under Art. 5421 need not file the affidavit required by this article. Hanna v. Atchison (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 199.

The sale of delivery by filing for record, and not the date of the deed purchasing public land, nor of the acknowledgment, would control as to whether the deed conveying state school land was void as being executed before the filing of an affidavit of settlement by the original purchaser. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 336.

The statute does not require that the obligation for the payment of the purchase money shall describe the land. But having undertaken to describe it, the obligation would be void if it described a different tract of land than that described in the application. Id.

Fact that insufficient obligation was given with application to purchase school land held immaterial, where proper obligation was afterwards filed. Faucett v. Sheppard, 33 C. A. 64, 75 S. W. 538.

Deposit.—The first payment must be in the treasury at the time the bids are opened to entitle the applicant to the award of the land. Rawls v. Terrell, 101 T. 157, 105 S. W. 489.

The provision that, “at the same time the applicant applies to purchase the land he shall deposit in the state treasury one fortieth of the aggregate price of the same as the first payment thereon,” does not apply to a sale of eighty acres which is required to be by cash. Buffle v. Terrell, 101 T. 487, 109 S. W. 861.

A deposit in the state treasurer's office of a check on a bank by the highest bidder for school land open to competitive bidding held a payment, entitling the bidder to the land. Whitis v. Robison, 103 T. 369, 117 S. W. 429.

Under the statute such deposit is a condition precedent to the purchase of the land, and it is improperly awarded to one who, though the highest bidder, has not made his deposit, as against a lower bidder who has made his deposit. Fitzhugh v. Johnson, 105 T. 318, 148 S. W. 256.

Forfeiture or cancellation of purchase.—Evidence considered in action to recover school lands, and held, that an award of the land to plaintiff's grantor was properly canceled. Spence v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 159.

The commissioner of the general land office has a right to cancel an award of public domain not authorized by law. Moore v. Ragan, 96 T. 376, 73 S. W. 1.

Commissioner of general land office, or successor, held to have power to rescind sale of public lands made by mistake. Burnam v. Terrell, 97 T. 309, 78 S. W. 500.

It is the duty of the land commissioner to award the forfeit when settlement (on the land) has not been made in the 90 days, and this without exception or qualification. Suares v. Terrell, 100 T. 315, 99 S. W. 542.

The commissioner of the land office cannot cancel an award to a purchaser of school land; that being a judicial act, authority for which is vested in the courts. Trimble v. Burroughs, 52 C. A. 266, 113 S. W. 551.

School lands settled on and sold to another held to be the subject of contract, though the lands were forfeited after the sale was made. Bynum v. Hobbs, 56 C. A. 557, 121 S. W. 900.

A commissioner of the general land office is not authorized to forfeit a purchase of land on the ground of the purchaser's minority, nor on the ground of collusion. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

A purchaser of state lands made the necessary payments and settled thereon. A defective affidavit of settlement was made when he executed a conveyance and instructed his agent to deed. He did not know until the affidavit was filed after the date of the deed, which recited that the payment of the price should be by notes bearing interest from the date of the deed. There was no proof as to when the note was paid. Held, that the purchase was subject to forfeiture under the provision of this article that any attempt of a purchaser to transfer his land prior to his actual settlement, and evidence of that fact duly filed, shall operate as a forfeiture. Payne v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 703.

The conveyance of the purchaser to his grantee disclosed that fact; and the grantee, if consulted, would have disclosed that he bought the land from the purchaser. The purchase was forfeited, and thereafter, a third person purchased from the state. Held, that the grantee of the original purchaser was not entitled to recover the lands from the subsequent purchaser, id.

Purchase of additional lands.—Sayles v. Civ. St. art. 4218ff, provided that "any actual bona fide owner of and resident upon any other lands contiguous to said lands, or within a radius of five miles thereof, may also buy any of the aforesaid lands." The two language articles, 4215 and 4218ff, provided for placing in the possession of any person in all things compro­mised from the state, but article 1218ff comprehended any actual bona fide owner of land, who filled the other requirements mentioned therein. Smith v. Rothe (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 755.

A statute authorizing a purchaser of a home section of school lands to purchase additional sections to the exclusion of actual settlers held not unconstitutional as class legislation. McGrew v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 68.

The statute providing that a bona fide owner and resident of lands may purchase additional land does not authorize the purchase of land intended as a home place and additional lands at the same time. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 561.

The right to purchase additional lands is expressly conferred by Rev. St. 1895, art. 4215, as amended by the act of 1897, which is not affected by the act of 1901. The amount of land to be purchased under the statute was determined not by the number of surveys and not by the quantity in acres. The words "home section" include within their meaning a survey of less than 640 acres of land. Hazelwood v. Rogan, 96 T. 295, 67 S. W. 84.

Where an application for additional school lands is rejected, the applicant acquires no right to the land thereunder, unless it is shown that the land was within five miles of his home tract. Spencer v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 180.

Since the statute gives to the owner of the other lands the right to purchase school lands in proximity thereto, when the owner does so purchase he acquires the title, and at any time before the right of a third party has intervened he ought, in case the mistake or the description of the land upon which he bases his right to purchase has been inadvertently made, be permitted to show the fact and to correct his application. Nesting v. Terrell, 97 T. 18, 75 S. W. 486.

Where, one in his application to buy additional lands, but through mistake alleges in the application that he is an actual settler, but in all other respects he complies with the law, and after discovery of the mistake he files another application in the correct manner, he will be awarded the land over one who files application subsequent to the first application of the other party and previous to his second. Ratliff v. Terrell, 97 T. 622, 80 S. W. 600.

The legislature did not by the use of the words "owner of other" intend to include the owner of a lot or lots in a town. The law means the owner of agricultural or grazing lands. Conn v. Terrell, 97 T. 578, 80 S. W. 605, 609.

When a purchaser in good faith purchases several sections of school land had written below the description the words, "Settlement is on No. 4." it was not sufficient to indicate that that was the applicant's home section, and that he was residing thereon at the time of application. Goethal v. Read, 35 C. A. 461, 81 S. W. 592.

To try to purchase additional school land, purchaser held bound to prove that the land was within the prescribed distance of other land owned or settled on by him. Knippa v. Brown (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 658.

Where an application to purchase a home section fails because of the superior rights of a lessee of the land, a claim of the applicant to the other section as "additional lands" must also fail. Sanford v. Terrell (Sup.) 87 S. W. 655.

Evidence that the land commissioner had rejected plaintiff's application on other grounds held insufficient proof that plaintiff had not purchased all the additional land he was entitled to buy. Reininger v. Fannell, 46 C. A. 137, 101 S. W. 816.

However essential it may be that a purchaser of additional lands is an actual resident upon his home section or "other lands," there is nothing in the statutes requiring the applicant for additional lands to state in his sworn application that such is the fact. The only requirement is the matter about collusion. Fohlh v. Robertson, 44 C. A. 326, 116 S. W. 862.

— Settlement on and title to home tract.—When there has been a bona fide purchase under previous laws, under the act of 1881 and there has been an actual bona fide occupancy and residence upon such section for three years prior to the act of 1881, an additional section within a radius of five miles of the land so occupied may be purchased. The purchaser need not in person reside on the original section nor make his home thereon. But the original section must either be occupied by himself or some one for him. Thompson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 841.

The law does not require that the actual owner and resident, should have purchased the land from the state on which he resides and which is contiguous to or within a radius of five miles of the land he has purchased. The possession of the land under deeds for many years, has made valuable improvements thereon and paid taxes, he is a bona fide owner and resident upon the land on which he resides and is entitled to purchase although there may be a break in his chain of title. The very laudable intent not to disrupt a perfect title, but an ownership and residence in good faith situated with reference to the land he wishes to purchase as the statute demands. Smith v. Rothe (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 754.

Sayles v. Civ. St. art. 1897, Art. 4218f, as amended by articles 4218ff and 4218ff therein, required that both the original purchaser and his vendee must be an actual settler upon the said tract in order to give a right in any case to any additional lands. Schwartz v. McCall, 94 T. 10, 67 S. W. 34.

A party cannot recover if there is no proof that the land sued for is within a radius of five miles of the land occupied by him. The burden is on plaintiff to show this. Faucci v. Sheppard, 24 C. A. 663, 60 S. W. 277.

Where applicants for the purchase of additional public lands were unmarried men, having an abode elsewhere, and made no substantial improvements, nor remained any considerable length of time on the land, the question of a bona fide settlement was for the court. Lyon v. Lyons, 25 C. A. 88, 60 S. W. 275.

Settlement on the additional land sought to be purchased within six months from the date of the application is not required. Settlement on the home tract is sufficient. Dabbs v. Judge, 95 C. A. 201, 50 S. W. 512.

One who was not an actual settler on the land which he had bought in good faith for a home under provisions of Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218ff, cannot buy additional land, although he has been prevented from actually settling on the purchased land by sickness. Jones v. Bourjouis, 28 C. A. 94, 60 S. W. 267.

To entitle one to additional land he must not only be a resident—an actual settler—upon school land within the prescribed radius, but he must also have been a purchaser thereof. One who marries the widow of a purchaser and thereafter resides with her on the land is not eligible to buy additional land. Boyd v. Montgomery, 27 C. A. 268, 66 S. W. 243.

An actual settler can purchase section or fraction of section upon which settlement is made and at the same time as much as three additional sections provided they are contiguous to or within radius of five miles of home section. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 901.

Settlement on leased school land prior to the expiration of the lease does not give right to adjoining lands. Mcgee v. Corbin (Civ. App.) 33 C. A. 386, 98 Tex. 184.

Original wrongful entry on home section of applicant for purchase of additional school lands held immaterial. Mcgee v. Corbin, 96 T. 35, 70 S. W. 79.

Instruction, in action, by applicant to purchase additional school lands, to recover such lands, held immaterial as to eventual immaterial of applicant's predecessor on home section. Coody v. Harris, 31 C. A. 160, 71 S. W. 607.

When one has resided on his home section for three years, the additional land purchased by him, though unpatented is subject to sale under execution issued on a judgment against him. Martin v. Bryson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 616.

Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218ff, only applies to those who have bought additional lands as the owners of lands other than school lands. Roberson v. Sterrett, 96 T. 180, 71 S. W. 385, 73 S. W. 3.

It contemplates that the purchaser may perfect his title to the additional lands purchased by him by the continued residence for three years upon his original land or upon the land so purchased; and it would seem that he is allowed to tack his occupancy of the purchased land on that of the land originally owned by him in order to make up the designated period, provided there is no lapse between the two. In the event he fails to make such continued residence and occupancy, the law provides that his purchase shall work a forfeiture and this is the only forfeiture prescribed in this article. Id.

Plaintiff in trespass to try title held not precluded from questioning defendant's actual settlement on his home section, when he applied to purchase the land in controversy as additional land. Ford v. Brown, 33 C. A. 198, 75 S. W. 890.

An actual settler on school land, who claims the right to purchase additional land, must not only have actually occupied and settled upon his land, but must intend to make it his home. Mahoney v. Tubbs, 34 C. A. 96, 77 S. W. 822.

The right to purchase additional lands is limited by the statute to "bona fide purchasers." No such right is extended to a mere occupant of other lands. Trevey v. Lowrie, 33 C. A. 696, 78 S. W. 19.

In order to constitute one a qualified purchaser of additional lands, he must be the owner of his home or base survey. He need not have vested in him an indefeasible legal title, or such right as entitled him to the full benefits of a verbal contract between him and the legal owner of his home tract, he would be the "owner" within the purview of this statute. Bone v. Cowan, 37 C. A. 519, 84 S. W. 386.

Where defendant was not an actual settler on a home section of school lands at the time additional land was awarded to her, such award was ineffective. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1010.

Where the state land commissioner did not contest relator's right to purchase his homestead tract of school land as such, he could not deny his incidental right to purchase additional land subject to sale. Murphy v. Terrell, 100 T. 297, 100 S. W. 130.

Where petitioner's application to purchase his home section was invalid, the land commissioner properly canceled his application for additional tracts until relator had selected a new home section. Bogel v. Robison, 102 T. 496, 119 S. W. 1144.

A bona fide purchaser of a home section of the land held for the same purpose that the school land held by the vendor as the base for the purchase of school section held thus authorized to make the home section a base for such a purchase. Doe v. Ellis, 49 C. A. 561, 130 S. W. 891.

Occupancy of additional land—A settler on agricultural land purchasing pasture lands is not required to remove and settle on one of the other tracts. Watts v. Wheeler, 10 C. A. 117, 30 S. W. 257.

This article does not provide that in case of sale by original purchaser of additional land he may purchase or to purchase a homestead section of school land as such that the failure of his vendee to occupy and continue to reside upon the land so purchased by him, shall subject him to forfeiture as does Art. 5426, and the omission indicates that it was not the intention that such rule should apply to the sale of additional lands purchased in the same manner as the owner of lands other than school lands as provided for in Art. 5426. Roberson v. Sterrett, 96 T. 180, 71 S. W. 385, 73 S. W. 3.

Under Sayles' Civ. St. art. 4218ff, persons who owned and occupied lands other than those purchased from the state could become the owners of additional lands out of the... public domain upon a compliance with the statute regulating such sales. Whether the purchaser occupies the additional lands or not is optional with him. Roddy v. White, 32 C. A. 422, 73 S. W. 569.

Conclusiveness of rejection or acceptance of application.—The award of the land commissioner is not conclusive as to the facts. Eastin v. Ferguson, 4 C. A. 643, 23 S. W. 918.

Where commissioner determines to which of two rival applicants for the purchase of school lands an award shall be made, it is immaterial whether he assigned a proper reason therefor, if he decided properly. Willoughby v. Townsend, 93 T. 80, 53 S. W. 581.

The validity of an award of school lands will not be considered, in an action by the person to whom the land is granted for damages against a mere trespasser, who exhibits no title to the land. Forst v. Rothe (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 575.

Acceptance by the commissioner of the general land office of application to purchase land as an actual settler is not conclusive of such settlement against a subsequent applicant. Franklin v. Kerlin, 1 C. A. 380, 74 S. W. 592.

An award of school lands to an applicant to purchase same as additional land held not evidence that the same was located within the prescribed distance of other land owned or settled on by him. Knopp v. Brown (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 658.

Proof of an award of land by state land commissioner makes a prima facie case of ownership in the one receiving the award, sufficient to entitle him to recover until proper evidence the commissioner of the general land office is shown to have exceeded his authority in making the award. Holt v. Cave, 39 C. A. 62, 85 S. W. 309.

An award of school land by the commissioner is prima facie evidence that the land was on the market and that all prerequisites to his power to make the sale had been met. Hood v. Pursley, 39 C. A. 475, 87 S. W. 790.

In trespass lands, try title and enter certain school land, it was not error for the court to refuse to charge that the act of the commissioner of the general land office in awarding the land to defendant was prima facie evidence that she was an actual settler on her home section. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1019.

Stating that award to a purchaser of school land does not fix title in the purchaser as against one making due application to purchase unless such purchaser has complied with the law authorizing an award, and was legally qualified to purchase, if plaintiff was not entitled to it, it was awarded to him. If it remained open to settlement by defendant, and, if defendant complied with the law, his rights were not affected by a rejection of his application by the commissioner of the general land office. Barnes v. Williams' Ad'mr (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

Certificate of sale.—The land commissioner has the power to give a certificate as to any fact, appearing of record in his office, but we do not believe that he has the power under the head of "Remarks" to state that the section of school land had been sold, and that the sale was still in good standing. Knopp v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 394.

Mistake in middle initial of person named in certificate of sale of school land held immaterial. Trimble v. Burroughs, 41 C. A. 554, 95 S. W. 614.

Release of purchaser.—An action releasing the original purchaser of school lands and awarding the same lands to his purchaser held not against public policy. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

Art. 5416a. Validating act.—That in all cases where persons have on file in the general land office valid application to purchase school and other public lands and awards to them have been duly made on such application and such persons failed to settle on their lands within the ninety days required by law, but have in fact settled thereon in good faith to make the same their home, and in all cases where the applicant did become an actual settler on the land but failed to file his affidavit of good settlement within the time required by law but did file the affidavit and such purchaser or his legal assignee has continued to reside thereon then and in that event such settlement and attempted purchases are hereby declared to be valid. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 21, sec. 1.]

See Final Title for list of validating acts.

Validating acts.—Effect of an act validating locations under Confederate veteran certificates on action pending, determined. Cox v. Finks (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 95.

Act Feb. 8, 1875, validating a void grant of land in 1856, held to confer no title as against an actual settler under Const. 1869, art. 10. Williams v. League (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 570.

The objection that, on the sale of state land, no tabulated statement was filed in the surveyor's office, cannot be made available where the omission was cured by a healing act. Garrett v. Finclater, 21 C. A. 635, 53 S. W. 819.

Even if sale of public school land made in 1898 be void, because to a minor, it is validated by Acts 1899, p. 259. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 73 S. W. 73.

Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 4269, providing that vested rights shall not be disturbed by the location of school land in favor of a county, a location of school land for the state under another act, providing that all alternate sections of land reserved to the state or that shall be afterd made to railroads or other corporations, and one-half of the public domain, etc., shall constitute a public school fund, will prevail over a subsequent location of county school land, although a patent is first issued on Satin S. 128, 57 C. A. 345, 104 S. W. 948.

Under Rev. St. 1885, art. 4269, providing that in surveys of school lands the calls for distance must prevail over calls for natural objects, where the calls for distance will give the land intended, otherwise not, the court, in ascertaining the boundaries of a county school land grant, will so construe the field notes as to give the county the benefit of those calls that are most favorable to its interests when they can be ascertained with a reasonable degree of certainty, though by so doing some other call may be displaced which may, under ordinary rules of construction of determining the superiority of calls, be given effect and made to control when the lines of county school lands are not involved, and a boundary line which can be ascertained with a reasonable degree of certainty will control the call for distance if in accordance with the conditions prescribed in the statute, but in determining a lost line in a county school land grant the ordinary rule of construction, in recognition of the controlling influence of established corners, controls. Polk County v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 294.

Art. 5417. To whom awarded, when application rejected.—If for any cause an application for land or timber which offers the highest price cannot be accepted, those offering the next highest price and filed on same day shall be considered in their order of price until one may be awarded. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6e.]

Art. 5418. Eight section counties; complement of land.—One who has not purchased any land and in the counties of Brewster, Crockett, Edwards, El Paso, Jeff Davis, Kinney, Pecos, Presidio, Sutton, Terrell and Val Verde, not to exceed eight sections of six hundred and forty acres each, more or less, which are wholly within said counties. One who has heretofore, or who may hereafter, purchase a complement as aforesaid, shall not purchase any more. One who has purchased or may hereafter purchase on condition of settlement four sections of six hundred and forty acres each, more or less, wholly or partly within any county other than those herein-above named since said date, shall not purchase any more on condition of settlement. One who has purchased less than a complement, as aforesaid, may hereafter purchase in any county such number of sections as his lack of a complement in the county of the former purchase bears to a complement in the county of such former purchase. One who has heretofore purchased land on condition of settlement, which lies partly within an eight-section county and partly within a four-section county, shall be considered for the purpose of future purchase by him as having purchased in a four-section county. Every additional survey applied for shall be situated within five miles of the designated home tract, except the survey on which the lessee, who may apply [to buy] out of his lease, may have placed permanent and immovable improvements of the value of five hundred dollars, need not be within such radius. No survey shall be sold in any county except as a whole, notwithstanding it may be leased in two or more parts. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 490, sec. 6.]

See Gaddes v. Terrell, 101 T. 574, 110 S. W. 429.

Purchase of additional sections.—One who has purchased four sections under a former law (that of 1901) in one of the excepted counties, is authorized under the law of 1906 to buy the whole or any part of four additional sections. "Complement," as used in this section means eight sections. One who has bought less than four sections in an excepted county under a former law can purchase enough under this section (Acts 1908, p. 167, § 6) to fill up the complement of eight sections. Ross v. Terrell, 99 T. 502, 90 S. W. 1094.

Art. 5419. Settlement and residence.—All of the surveyed school land wholly or partly within the counties of Andrews, Brewster, Cameron, Crane, Crockett, Dimmit, Duval, Ector, Edwards, El Paso, Gaines, Hidalgo, Jeff Davis, Kimble, Kinney, La Salle, Loving, Maverick, McMullen, Midland, Pecos, Presidio, Reeves, Starr, Sutton, Terrell, Terry, Upton, Uvalde, Val Verde, Ward, Webb, Winkler, Yoakum, Zapata and Zavala shall be sold on condition of settlement as provided by this act and existing statutes, except tracts of one hundred acres or less shall be sold for cash. The land purchased by one, either for cash or on deferred payment without condition of settlement, shall not be computed against him in his purchase on condition of settlement. Every purchaser on condition of settlement shall in person reside continuously on either the designated home tract or on some portion of the land purchased as additional thereto, for three consecutive years next succeeding the date of the award of the home tract, or from the date of the award of the first tract, as additional to a home already owned, as the case may be, including the ninety days allowed to settle. The proof of such settlement and residence shall be made as now provided by statute. [Id. sec. 6a.]

Requirement as to residence.—When a purchaser has proved his occupancy of the home tract, and is in actual occupancy when he applies for and is awarded an additional section, he does not have to occupy either section for three years next after the purchase of the additional section. Zettlemeyer v. Shuler, 52 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 80.

This article added nothing to the former statute requiring purchasers to reside on the land and to reside in a home for three consecutive years after their purchase, except that it repealed the permit to reside elsewhere six months in each year for the purposes specified. State v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 550.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy or abandonment.—See Arts. 5424, 5425, and notes. Proof and certificate of occupancy.—See notes under Art. 5444.

Art. 5420. Limitations as to purchases.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby prohibited from selling to the same party more than one complement of four or eight sections of land, according to the county; and all applications to purchase land shall also disclose the prior lands purchased by the applicant from the state, if any, and the residence of the applicant at said time; and, if it appear therefrom, or from the records in the land office, that said applicant has already purchased land aggregating four or eight sections, according to county, since April 19, 1901, his application shall be rejected; provided, this shall not apply to sales made to a purchaser and afterwards canceled as invalid for some reason other than abandonment, and where the purchaser himself was not at fault. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 3.]

See Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

Not repealed.—Acts 27th Leg. c. 125, § 3 (Art. 5420 herein), was not repealed by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103, § 8 (Art. 5432 herein). Houston v. Koonce (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1189; id. (Sup.) 158 S. W. 202.

Limitations as to amount of land.—See, also, Arts. 5418, 5419.

The purpose of first part of this section seems to have been mainly to prevent one who had previously purchased four sections from making a new settlement and purchasing again. This inhibition was not contained in the previous laws. The language that the commissioner “is hereby prohibited from selling to the same party more than four sections of land” was probably used out of abundant caution to reaffirm the existing rule on the subject. Hazlewood v. Rogan, 95 T. 296, 67 S. W. 84.

The words “four sections” refer rather to surveys than to quantity of acres, and the sections may contain less than 640 acres each. Id.

Acts 27th Leg. c. 125, § 3 (Art. 5420 herein), prohibiting the commissioner of the general land office from selling to the same person more than four sections of land, was not repealed by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103, § 8 (Art. 5423 herein), providing for the survey and sale of public school lands, but the two acts so far as they relate to the same subject, are to be construed together; and hence, where one had purchased four sections under the act of 1901, a further purchase of two sections under the act of 1906 was void. Houston v. Koonce (Sup.) 156 S. W. 202.

No limitation in certain counties.—See Art. 5422.

Art. 5421. Right of lessees.—An original lessee of a lease executed prior to April 15, 1905, who has never parted with any interest in his lease, except by purchase, may purchase out of such lease in whole surveys only one complement of sections, or such part thereof as will make his total purchase since April 19, 1901, not to exceed eight or four sections, according to the county; provided, an original lessee who has not heretofore exercised his right to buy one complement of sections out of one or more leases and should not hereafter desire to do so, may assign one or more leases to a qualified purchaser, and his assignee shall have the same right to purchase out of the leases one complement of sections, or such number thereof as the assignor may be qualified to purchase, or such number as the assignee may be qualified to purchase; provided, that in case the assignment should have been made and acknowledged before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments the assignee may exercise that right as provided for under the act of April 15, 1905. Only one complement shall be sold out of any lease, including that heretofore sold out of it. One who desires to buy land out of his lease shall first give written notice to the commissioner of the general land office, and specify the land he wants to buy not less than sixty days prior to expiration of the lease. The commissioner shall make, or cause to be made, an inspection of the land, if he is not already in possession of sufficient information, and appraise same at its reasonable market value, and advise such person and the proper county clerk of the value placed thereon. Thereafter the land shall be subject to sale to the lessee only during the life of the lease. After a lease expires or is canceled, no one shall have any preference to purchase any land contained therein. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 5.]

Constitutionality—This act, giving a preference to lessees and their assignees to purchase the lands held by them under lease, is not unconstitutional. Glasgow v. Terrell, 100 T. 581, 102 S. W. 100.

Leases of public lands in general.—See notes under Art. 5452.

Lessee's right of purchasing.—See, also, Arts. 5452, 5453, and notes.

The privilege of a lessee of state lands to purchase the land within 60 days after the expiration of the lease, destroyed by the transfer of the lease, held not revived by the transferee quiet claiming his interest in the lands to lessee. Adkinson v. Porter (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 43 (decided under prior act).

A lessee of state lands is entitled to a preference right to purchase the land provided his right is exercised by completing the purchase before the expiration of his lease. Wel­hauen v. Terrell, 100 T. 150, 97 S. W. 79.

Petitioner by erroneous indorsement on his applications to purchase state lands, held to have lost his preference right to purchase as lessee. Id.

The act of 1905 gives to a lessor or to the assignee of an entire lease the right to purchase, and also, to one not owning an entire lease, but providing in express terms that the provision shall apply only to leases existing at the time of the passage of the act. Trezevant v. Terrell, 100 T. 288, 99 S. W. 94.

Time of exercising privilege.—A lessee's right to purchase in preference to others is conditional on his exercising the right before the expiration of his lease. Welhausen v. Terrell, 100 T. 160, 97 S. W. 78.

The assignee of a lease which has expired has no preference rights of purchase of land which came on the market September 1, 1906. Murphy v. Terrell, 100 T. 397, 100 S. W. 122.

Where the lessee after the expiration of his lease and before September 1, 1905, applied to the land commissioner notifying him of his purpose to buy the premises covered by the lease he had no prior right to purchase the land. Patterson v. Chenshaw, 47 C. A. 405, 105 S. W. 995 (decided under Acts 1905, p. 167, § 11).

Land that may be acquired.—The purpose of this article was to define the rights of lessees and their assignees, and the purpose of the limitation was to hedge against any construction that would permit an applicant to acquire by purchase more than four sections, save in the counties excepted in Article 5418. Ross v. Terrell, 99 T. 502, 90 S. W. 1094.

By the words “tracts of land,” only such lands as were actually surveyed at the time the act was to take effect, and possibly such detached parcels of 640 acres or less, as could be brought under the act without making an additional survey were intended to be included in the word tract. Raper v. Terrell, 100 T. 297, 99 S. W. 93 (decision before the amendment of 1907).

The holder of a lease of school lands, who is an actual settler, is entitled to purchase all the land embraced in his lease. Patterson v. Knapp (Sup.) 105 S. W. 489.

Rights of assignee.—It would seem from Acts 1906, 1st called Sess., p. 33, § 7, that whenever the lessee assigned or conveyed a right upon the assignee of a lessee, they were expressly mentioned. Hazelwood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 67 S. W. 82.

The privilege of a lessee of state lands to purchase the land within 60 days after the expiration of the lease in preference to other purchasers is a personal privilege, destroyed by his transferring the lease to another. Adkinson v. Porter (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 43 (decided under prior act).

Where outstanding lease of school land has been assigned to purchaser and homestead occupant of a neighboring section, it is no obstacle to his purchase of the leased section. Mitchell v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 373, 74 S. W. 48.

The assignee of the rights of a lessee of public land may purchase the land during the life of the lease. Fields v. Davis (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 52.

When a lessee is entitled to purchase, it is no bar to an application by the assignee, on surrendering the same, to purchase the lands covered thereby. Walker v. Marchbanks, 32 C. A. 303, 74 S. W. 929.

When after the lease part of the lands were sold to a third party with the consent of the lessee, and the lessee then assigned the remainder of the lease, the assignee is entitled to purchase, because, while he is not the assignee of the entire original lease, yet he is the assignee of the “entire lease,” when the assignment was made, within the meaning of this law. Garza v. Terrell, 99 T. 506, 90 S. W. 1093 (decision before the amendment of 1907).

The preference right given under this article to lessees and their assignees to purchase lands held under lease, is not confined to assignees who were such when the act took effect. Glasgow v. Terrell, 100 T. 581, 102 S. W. 190.

Where assignment of lease was executed, but not acknowledged when the act of 1907 was executed, the assignee could not purchase under the law of 1905, and as he did not give his notice 60 days before the expiration of the lease, he could not purchase under the law of 1907. Ross v. Terrell, 101 T. 254, 106 S. W. 1117.

Effect of application or purchase upon lease.—Where the lessee of public school lands filed with the commissioner of the land office a consent for their sale to a certain person, and her attempted purchase was void, the lease continued in force. Smith v. McClain, 96 T. 656, 74 S. W. 754.
Where the holder of a lease of school lands makes a valid purchase of the lands, the lease is terminated. Patterson v. Knapp, 101 T. 587, 102 S. W. 97.

Where the holder of a lease of school land applied to purchase on the maturity of an installment of rent, the fact that an award was not made until after notices to state treasurer did not affect the presumption that the lease was not canceled because of the sale. Patterson v. Knapp (Sup.) 103 S. W. 489.

Where an entire section of school land was embraced in an unexpired lease when the lessee applied to purchase certain of the leased land, including the east half of such section, and thereafter, during the term of the lease, the purchase was forfeited, the west half of the section remained subject to the lease, and could not be resold. Ford v. Terrell, 101 T. 327, 107 S. W. 40.

That a lessee of public school land who makes application to purchase it, and tenders his lease for cancellation, is not entitled to buy; does not subject the land to purchase by another. Halbert v. Terrell, 102 T. 29, 112 S. W. 1906.

Art. 5421a. Certain sales and leases validated, etc.—All sales made out of leases of unsurveyed school lands that may have been erroneous by reason of a lack of definiteness of lease-holds and unmarked survey lines, and all sales made on lines of four-section counties and eight-section counties, and such sales of land as may have been [made] in a four-section county, and other sales as may have been made in an eight-section county, as may have been erroneous on account of a lack of clearness in the statute regulating the rights of purchasers in four-section counties and eight-section counties, are hereby validated and declared to be good sales so far as probable errors herein mentioned may affect such sales; provided that nothing in this Act shall validate or affect any land sales or titles for which suits may be now pending in any of the courts of this state on behalf of the state. The commissioner of the general land office may issue his official certificate on all proofs of occupancy now on file in the general land office previous to the taking effect of this Act, whether such proofs were filed within two years’ period of grace as provided by law, or not. [Acts 1911, p. 206, sec. 1.]

See Final Title for list of validating acts.

Art. 5421b. Certain settlements and attempted purchases validated. —In all cases where persons have made valid applications to purchase land on the condition of becoming an actual settler thereon within ninety days after the date of acceptance and award under the Act of April 15, 1905 [Arts. 5407, 5408, 5410, 5416], and Acts amendatory thereto, and the land was subject to sale and the application was accepted and award was issued as required by law, and the applicant did become in person an actual bona fide settler on the land within the time required by law, but did not file in the general land office the required affidavit of settlement within the time required by law, but did file the affidavit, and such purchaser, or his legal assignee, has continued to reside thereon, then, and in that event, such settlement and attempted purchases are hereby declared to be valid; provided that this Act shall not validate any land acquired by fraud. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5422. Sales without settlement.—The surveyed school and asylum land and the timber thereon situated wholly within any county other than those named in article 5419 shall be sold in whole tracts only, and without condition of settlement or limit as to quantity, and either for cash with the right to patent at once, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on the deferred payment, together with all the pains and penalties of forfeiture for non-payment as is now or may hereafter be provided by law. All applications for the purchase of land without settlement, and either for cash or on deferred payment, shall be in writing and accompanied by the affidavit of the applicant that he desires the land for his own benefit and not for any other person or corporation. When any such purchase is fully paid for, the land may be patented. No land on which there is merchantable timber shall be sold until the timber is sold for cash and fully paid for. Should two or more applicants offer the same price for any tract on the same date, the same being the highest price offered, and one should offer full cash payment and another should offer one-fortieth cash payment and balance on time, the application on deferred payment shall be accepted. Such of the land in the counties included within this section as is now sold, but which may hereafter become subject to sale, shall not be subject to sale until the former sale shall have been canceled and the land and timber, if any thereon, shall be reappraised by the commissioner, and a date fixed not more than sixty days from the date of such cancellation, when it may be subject to sale to the one offering the highest price therefor. Notice of such cancellation and reappraisal shall be mailed to the proper county clerk, together with the date when the land and timber, if any, will be subject to sale. [Acts 1907, p. 490, secs. 6b and 6e.]

Construction of language of statute.—The surveys referred to in this law clearly appear to be the sections, and the purpose is to require each section, no part of which has been sold, to be sold as a whole, and not in subdivisions as heretofore. The fact that part of a section may be under lease and is thereby temporarily kept off the market is not made to take it out of the rule. Ford v. Terrell, 101 T. 327, 107 S. W. 49.

"Such land" means under the provision of the act, lands that are subject to sale without the condition of actual settlement. The previous section of the act (Art. 5419 herein) mentions by name the counties in which actual settlement is required. Hamilton v. Terrell, 101 T. 326, 107 S. W. 48.

Application to purchase in general.—Whenever the money is deposited an application being on file, it may be considered provided some adverse application has not been filed for the purchase of the land. Respondent had applied for twelve parcels of land and deposited one forty-fifth of price in the treasury but his applications had been rejected for all except one eighty-acre tract which was required to be sold for cash, the payment on which amounted to $575. He then applied for the purchase of this tract for cash and directed that the money on deposit be applied to the payment. The land was awarded to him, but afterwards the award was canceled. This was error. Buckley v. Terrell, 101 T. 437, 109 S. W. 861.

Art. 5423. [4218] Forfeiture of purchase by non-payment of interest, etc.—If upon the first day of November of any year any portion of the interest due on any obligation remains unpaid, the commissioner of the general land office shall endorse on such obligation, "Land Forfeited," and shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the account kept with the purchaser; and thereupon said land shall thereby be forfeited to the state without the necessity of re-entry or judicial ascertainment, and shall revert to the particular fund to which it originally belonged, and be resold under the provisions of this chapter, or any future law; provided, the purchaser of land prior to August 20, 1897, shall have the right, at any time within six months after such endorsement of "Lands Forfeited" to institute a suit in district court of Travis county, Texas, against the commissioner of the general land office, for the purpose of contesting such forfeiture and setting aside the same, upon the ground that the facts did not exist authorizing such forfeiture, but, if no such suit has been instituted as above provided, such forfeiture of the commissioner of the general land office shall then become fixed and conclusive. In any cases where lands have been forfeited to the state for the non-payment of interest, the purchasers, or their vendees, may have their claims reinstated on their written request, by paying into the treasury the full amount of interest due on such claim up to the date of reinstatement, provided that no rights of third persons may have intervened. In all such cases, the original obligations and penalties shall thereby become as binding as if no forfeiture had ever occurred. If any purchaser shall die, his heirs or legal representatives shall have one year in which to make payment after the first day of November next after such death, and shall be absolved and exempt from the requirement of settlement and residence thereon; provided, that all necessary and temporary absence from such land of such purchaser, for the time of not more than six months in any one year, for the purpose of earning money with which to pay for the land, or for the purpose of schooling his children, shall not work a forfeiture of his title; provided, further, that nothing in this article contained shall be construed to inhibit the state from instituting such legal proceedings as may be necessary to enforce such forfeiture, or to recover the full amount of the interest and such penalties as may be due the state at the time such forfeiture occurred, or to protect any other right to such land; which suits may be instituted by the attorney general, or under his direction, in the proper court of the county in which the land lies, or of the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes. [Acts 1895. Acts 1897, p. 39, sec. 1. Art. 4218i, Acts 1895, amended Acts 1897, p. 184. Art. 4218i, Acts 1895.]

Constitutionality of various acts.—Act Feb. 23, 1885, declaring that failure to pay interest on school lands prior to a certain date should not forfeit the purchaser's rights, was constitutional. Capps v. Garvey (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 379.

Legislature may authorize land commissioner to declare forfeiture for nonpayment of interest in sale of school lands, without reference to law under which rights of purchaser accrued. Waggoner v. Flack, 21 C. A. 449, 52 S. W. 584.

This act (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218i) simply enforces a right which existed in the state from the formation of the contract. It takes away no right of the purchaser, unless it can be said that he had the right to demand that the particular remedy provided by the act of 1878 should be followed. A subsequent statute which simply changes the remedy without impairing rights is not repugnant to any constitutional provision. Hathaway v. Williams, 22 T. 342, 54 S. W. 598.

Not repealed.—Act March 26, 1897, did not repeal Acts 1895, p. 67, § 11, so as to prevent a forfeiture for nonpayment of interest. Waggoner v. Flack, 92 T. 633, 51 S. W. 530.

The act of 1905 only repeals laws in conflict with it. This article provides that if a purchaser of school lands shall die, his heirs or legal representatives shall have one year in which to make payment after the 1st day of November next, after such death, and shall be exempt from the requirement of settlement and residence thereon. There is nothing in the act of 1905 that conflicts with this provision, and, hence it is not repealed. Clark v. Terrell, 100 T. 277, 98 S. W. 642.

Acts 1905, p. 163, § 6 (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5418 herein), is not in conflict with the provision in article 4218i, Rev. St. 1895 (Art. 5423 herein), permitting absence from the land not exceeding six months without forfeiture, and therefore the act of 1905 does not repeal said provision. Gaddes v. Terrell, 101 T. 574, 110 S. W. 439. But see note under "Temporary absence for six months," post.

Act 27th Leg., c. 225, § 2 (re-enacted as Art. 5424 herein), and Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218i (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5423 herein), were not repealed by Acts 30th Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 20, §§ 6, 6a (Arts. 5419, 5425, herein), nor were they repealed by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103 (see Art. 5416 herein). Lefever v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Statutes not retroactive.—See, also, note under "Forfeiture for nonpayment of interest in general," post.

Act April, 1886, providing for forfeiture of school lands on default, does not apply to a contract made under act of 1883. Blum v. Fristoe (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 656.

Under Act April, 1889, providing for forfeiture of school lands, no forfeiture can be had prior to November 1, 1895. 1d.

Previous law.—Previous § 2 and 30 of the act of April 13, 1883, provide for the forfeiture of purchases of public school lands upon nonpayment of interest by March 1st of each year by indorsement upon the purchaser's obligation, without a judicial ascertainment of the facts. The acts of February 16, 1885, and of February 23, 1885, are construed as repealing the provisions of the act of 1883, authorizing a summary forfeiture. There was therefore no law in force between August 1 and November 18, 1887, under which purchases of land under the act of 1883 could be declared forfeited for nonpayment of interest. If such annual instalments of interest shall not be paid as herein provided, the state may bring suit for their collection and enforce the state's vendor's lien. Stock Co. v. McCarty, 85 T. 412, 21 S. W. 598. This ruling was made without the court's attention being called to the act of 1887. The ruling is corrected in the later case of Anderson v. Waco State Bank, 85 T. 618, 25 S. W. 344.

Interest or instalments in general.—See Cases' Ann. Civ. St. 1887, art. 4218i, did not in terms extend the time of the maturity of the annual instalments, but in effect it did so, by withholding from the commissioner the power to forfeit for nonpayment of interest until the time named and when the person whose claim had been forfeited thereafter, to August 1, but previous to November 18, 1897, for the years 1896 and 1897, he paid all the interest that was due within the meaning of the article at the date of reinstatement. Pardue v. White, 21 C. A. 121, 50 S. W. 591.

A subsequent instalment to tear is to be considered as due for the terms as of the time thereon. The subsequent commissioner of the land office has refused the first instalment, and rejected the application in favor of a rival applicant. Willoughby v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 335.

Forfeitures disfavored.—Forfeitures of public free school lands by the commissioner of the general land office are disfavored, and will not be sustained upon doubtfull authority. Jernigan v. Blum, 46 T. 608, 163 S. W. 165.

Forfeiture for nonpayment of interest in general.—The commissioner of the land office can declare a forfeiture of school lands bought under the act of April 1, 1887, for the failure to pay interest. Fristoe v. Blum, 92 T. 76, 45 S. W. 988.
The commissioner of the land office is authorized to declare forfeiture of land for failure to pay interest accrued prior to this act. Waggoner v. Flack, 92 T. 633, 51 S. W. 330 (decided under Act No. 32, March 26, 1897).

The right of a vendor to rescind a contract of sale for the nonpayment of purchase money does not depend upon the life of the vendee and the commissioner can declare the land forfeited "forfeited" to the vendor if the amount of interest due is not required to take action on the 1st day of November, but can act after that date if the interest is unpaid on said date. McKinley v. Keath, 24 C. A. 570, 59 S. W. 813. The commissioner can only forfeit the land when the fact exists which authorizes him to forfeit. Hence he cannot set aside an inadvertent, unauthorized attempt to forfeit. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 76 S. W. 73.

The state has power, through a declaration of the land commissioner, to forfeit a suit of its lands for the nonpayment by the vendee of the interest on price. Lawless v. Wright, 39 C. A. 26, 86 S. W. 1039.

Statement of land commissioner that a purchaser of public lands was in good standing held not to estop the state to declare a forfeiture for a prior nonpayment of interest. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 636, 92 S. W. 451.

Notice to purchaser.—In absence of statute, failure of commissioner of land office to give notice that claim for land is subject to forfeiture for nonpayment of interest held not to estop the state to declare forfeiture. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 625, 92 S. W. 461.

Indorsement of forfeiture.—The rescission of the contract does not depend upon the act of the commissioner in indorsing the words "forfeited" thereon and causing entry to that effect to be made. Default in payment and subsequent payment are proper for rescission. Island City Savings Bank v. Dowlearn (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 306. (This decision affects act 1891.)

So important is it that the land shall be indorsed "forfeited" that the time allowed the purchaser in this article in which to contest the forfeiture by suit is fixed by the date of its declaration. McCulloch v. McConkey, 25 C. A. 333, 61 S. W. 535; Comanche Co. v. Brightman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 976.

Under this article a land commissioner indorsed upon the contract with the original purchaser, and also upon the file wrapper which contains all the papers, and upon the account in the land office, the words "forfeited." Held, such indorsement was sufficient, without placing it upon the obligation of the second substitute purchaser. Hoefer v. Robison, 104 T. 159, 135 S. W. 371.

Death of purchaser.—See, also, note under "Not repealed," ante.

Where the husband applied to purchase school lands, the fact that the wife died did not entitle the children to a further time in which to make payment, under the provision for the heirs when the purchaser dies. Simon v. Stearns, 17 C. A. 13, 43 S. W. 60.

After the death of a purchaser (who dies owing interest on his purchase) the land commissioner cannot declare a forfeiture of the land, until the expiration of one year from the 1st day of November next after the death of the purchaser. Potter v. Robison, 102 T. 448, 119 S. W. 92.

The contract of a husband to buy public land is a community obligation and the wife acquires a half interest in the land by virtue of the contract even though she does not sign the contract. She thus becomes a "purchaser" and her heirs have the right to pay the overdue interest within one year after 1st of November next after her death, the husband having died before the wife died. Leaverton v. Robison, 102 T. 616, 120 S. W. 169.

Reinstatement.—See, also, Art. 6428, and notes.

The commissioner of the land office is only authorized to make a reinstatement of the account where no rights of third persons have intervened. Waggoner v. Flack, 21 C. A. 449, 52 S. W. 584.

The statute in a case in which the right of a former purchaser to be reinstated is later placed on the applicant. The limit thus is to cases where after forfeiture "no rights of third persons may have intervened." Cobb v. Webb, 26 C. A. 467, 64 S. W. 793.

See this case for facts held sufficient to show that one had actually settled on land that had been forfeited to the state for nonpayment of interest, and application for reinstatement, after such actual settlement, was properly refused. Price v. Bates, 32 C. A. 374, 74 S. W. 608.

The provision in this article for the forfeiture of land for nonpayment of rent is in every way weakens or affects the proposition that a forfeiture restores the land to the public domain and reinvests in the title in the state. Where one has bought land from the state and forfeiture was declared for nonpayment of rent, and land put on sale again, and another has bought and after holding a while has relinquished his title to the state, and the former has been reinstated, the reinstatement did not have the effect of continuing the title, whether legal or equitable in him after the forfeiture, and the 10-year statute of limitation was interrupted by the time that elapsed from the date of the order to the reinstatement. Lawless v. Wright, 39 C. A. 26, 86 S. W. 1040.

Where purchase of land has been forfeited for nonpayment of interest, the purchaser cannot be reinstated if rights of other persons have intervened. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 626, 92 S. W. 451.

Where the west quarter of a section was the only part of the section on the market, an application to purchase complying with the law in all respects save that it designated the land applied for as 160 acres of the named section without other description, was held, such application with the right to contest standing with the requirement of the commissioner to perfect his description, and when the letter perfecting the description was filed in the land office the same day that a former purchaser applied for reinstatement, reinstatement was properly refused. Lindsay v. Terrell, 100 T. 548, 101 S. W. 1073.

Under this article the right to reinstatement is absolute, and is not defeated by the act of the commissioner in erroneously awarding the land to a third person. Davis v. Yates (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 281. 3589
The right of a purchaser of school land forfeited for nonpayment of interest to retain or be held to become fixed as of the date of his compliance with the statute authorizing reinstatement. Id.

A purchaser of school land who has been reinstated as purchaser after forfeiture held entitled to claim the land as against one claiming under an erroneous award of the land to the forfeiture. Id.

Under this article an application for a reinstatement made after a subsequent purchaser had completed his purchase came too late. Jones v. Robison, 104 T. 70, 133 S. W. 879.

A misrepresentation of facts by the treasurer of the land office as to condition of accounts in his office does not entitle one to reinstatement of a forfeited purchase after the rights of legal purchasers have intervened. Id.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy.—See Arts. 5434, 5435, and notes.

Temporary absence for six months.—A settler does not forfeit his rights by being absent not exceeding six months for the purpose of educating his children and making money to pay for the land. Under the laws of 1895 the settlement must be for the bona fide purpose of making a home. Willoughby v. Townsend, 18 C. A. 724, 45 S. W. 861.

The provision in this article for temporary absence from the land not exceeding six months is not repealed by section 6 of the act of 1905 (Art. 5419 herein) requiring a residence of three successive years next succeeding the date of the purchase of the home tract. Gaddes v. Terrell, 101 T. 574, 110 S. W. 439.

The act of 1907 (Art. 5419 herein), requiring purchasers to reside in person continuously on the land, nullified the permit of the former law to reside elsewhere six months in the year for the purposes specified. State v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 539.

Under this article, where a purchaser, after remaining in actual possession thereon for 10 days, went to an agricultural college to take a course in veterinary surgery under contract with other persons who paid his expenses and his salary and paid him more than double what he had been receiving when he returned with his certificate from the college, his purpose being to earn an increased salary to pay for the land, and his intent being to return to the land, which he did, in good faith, being absent less than 3½ months, his absence was within the article and did not work a forfeiture of his purchase. Ramsey v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 939.

A purchaser left his land to take a course in veterinary surgery under a contract for his services when he returned, with the proceeds which he intended to pay what he owed on the land. Held, that this article contemplates only an absence when actually earning the money, and the absence for the purpose of schooling is not within its terms and would work a forfeiture. Ramsey v. Patterson, 105 T. 378, 150 S. W. 889.

Suits to enforce forfeitures.—As to attorney's fees in school land litigation, see Arts. 3925, 3926.

A county attorney has no right to appear and represent the state to enforce forfeiture of school lands. Duncan v. State, 28 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 904, 905.

Art. 5423a. Purchasers after January 1, 1907, and before January 1, 1913, who have forfeited for non-payment of interest, may repurchase, when.—In case any of the publicly held school lands that has been purchased from the state after January 1st, 1907 and prior to January 1st, 1913, on condition of settlement and residence may hereafter be forfeited for the non-payment of interest in the manner now provided by law the owner of such land at the date of forfeiture, provided the forfeiture was made by reason of interest accrued or accruing prior to the passage of this Act, shall have the right for a period of ninety days after notice of classification and appraisement of his land, as herein provided, to repurchase any of such tracts, not to exceed one complement of sections upon the terms and conditions prescribed in this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 336, sec. 1.]

Art. 5423b. Owner to advise commissioner of wish to repurchase; duties of commissioner.—When any of the land included within the preceding section has been forfeited for the non-payment of interest, the commissioner of the general land office shall forward such a list of land to the proper county clerk, and within thirty days after the receipt of said list by the clerk, the owner mentioned in the preceding section, who may wish to repurchase any or all of the land, not to exceed one complement of sections, as now provided by law, that he may have permitted to be forfeited, shall advise the commissioner of the general land office of such wish. As soon as practicable after the receipt of such advise by the commissioner, he shall furnish the board of appraisers hereinafter provided for, a complete list of all such lands, together with the names of all persons who have advised him of this desire to repurchase said lands, or a part of their complements of sections, giving the post-office address of each person, as well as such other information he may have in his possession as will enable said board to properly appraise said lands as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 5423c. Board of appraisers, how constituted, etc.; duties; forfeited owner to file application to repurchase, etc.; provisions applicable.—There is hereby created a board of appraisers, consisting of three members, to be composed of the commissioner of the general land office, and two members to be appointed by the governor of the state. Said board shall organize, take the constitutional oath of office and elect one of its members chairman and one secretary thereof, which board and each member thereof shall have the power to administer oaths and take testimony by depositions or otherwise, and said board when organized shall notify the commissioner of the general land office of the facts of its organization and that it is ready to receive from him the list of lands, names of forfeiting purchasers, and other information and data, as provided for in section 2 [Art. 5423b] of this Act. Upon receipt of such data and information, said board shall ascertain the reasonable values of said land and appraise accordingly, and shall prepare triplicate notices of the appraisement and classification, sending one to each of the forfeiting owners and to the commissioner of the general land office, and retaining one in its possession until the completion of its duties under this Act; when same, together with all the papers and data in the possession of said board, shall be deposited by the secretary thereof with the commissioner of the general land office, who shall keep same on file in his office as an archive thereof. If such forfeiting owner desires to repurchase the land at the appraised value placed thereon by said board, he shall file his application therefore [therefor] in the general land office within ninety days after the date of notice of appraisement, together with one-fortieth of the appraised value and his obligation for the remaining portion of the purchase price, bearing 3 per cent. interest per annum. The said one-fortieth cash payment shall conform to the requirements now prescribed for the first payments on applications for the purchase of other public free school lands. Before any application shall be accepted and the award issued thereon under the right herein given, the applicant shall deposit in the general land office for the use of the general fund a sum of money equal to seven and one-half dollars for each section of land awarded herein, for the purpose of reimbursing said fund for the moneys drawn therefrom under the provisions of this Act. The land commissioner shall pay into the state treasury all money paid into his office under this section of this Act, and the treasurer shall place same to the credit of the general fund. All terms, conditions and penalties now provided for the sale of public free school lands shall apply, govern and control all sales made under this Act, except as may be otherwise provided herein. If the land purchased under the right given herein shall have been resided upon, for three years as required by law prior to the date of purchase, and sufficient proof of that fact shall be in the general land office, the purchaser shall not be required again to reside on it; but, if such residence shall not have been completed prior to the date of repurchase, then the purchaser shall purchase the land upon condition of settlement and residence and continue to reside upon the land in person until he shall have completed the required three years of continuous residence next succeeding the date that the original residence was begun. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5423d. Commissioner to sell if right to repurchase not exercised, etc.—If the owner at the date of forfeiture shall not exercise his right to repurchase, the commissioner of the general land office shall again place the land on the market for sale as is now provided by law for the sale of leased land. In all such sales the same terms, conditions, limitations, prices and penalties and regulations now prescribed by law for the sale of other public free school land in the same county and the payments therefor, shall govern such sales. [Id. sec. 4.]
Art. 5423e. Liens on repurchased land unimpaired.—Provided, that whenever any land, affected by this Act, is forfeited and afterwards re-purchased under the rights of repurchase given by this Act, to the owner at the time of forfeiture, any lien legal or equitable, and any valid contractual right in favor of any person, firm or corporation, existing against, in and to, said land, or any part of same at the time of forfeiture, shall remain unimpaired and in full force and effect as if no such forfeiture had occurred. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 5423f. Compensation of board of appraisers, etc.—Each member of the board of appraisers provided for by this Act except the commissioner of the general land office shall receive as compensation for his services the sum of ten dollars per day for each day actually employed in the performance of his duties as a member of said board, not to exceed ninety days, together with all necessary expenses, including the necessary expenses of the commissioner of the general land office; provided, however, that number of days of actual service for which said member shall have received compensation, as well as expenses incurred by said board in the performance of its duties, shall be stated under oath in writing by said board, or some member thereof, and which, when approved by the governor, shall be filed with the comptroller, who shall thereupon issue a warrant upon the state treasurer for the same. There is hereby appropriated out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated the sum of ten thousand dollars or so much thereof, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 5424. Permanent improvements to be erected by purchaser; forfeiture.—Every purchaser shall be required within three years after his purchase to erect permanent and valuable improvements on the land purchased by him, which improvements shall be of the reasonable market value of three hundred dollars. If any purchaser shall fail to reside upon and improve in good faith the land purchased by him as required by law, he shall forfeit said land and all payments made thereon to the state, to the same extent as for the non-payment of interest, and such land shall be again upon the market as if no such sale and forfeiture had occurred; and all forfeitures for non-occupancy shall have the effect of placing the land upon the market without any action whatever on the part of the commissioner of the general land office; and, if any purchaser shall be forced to yield possession of the land purchased by him from the state on account of any writ or other judicial process issued from a court of competent jurisdiction, or be compelled to temporarily yield his possession from a well-grounded fear of death or serious bodily injury, such absence shall not work the forfeiture provided by law for non-occupancy; but no writ of injunction shall issue in any case involving the title or possession of lands herein referred to where the applicant has an adequate remedy at law by sequestration or otherwise. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 3.]

Not repealed.—This article and article 4218b, Rev. St. 1895 (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5423 hereof), held not repealed by Acts 30th Leg. Ext. Sess. c. 20, §§ 6a, 6e (Arts. 5419, 5425, herein) nor by Acts 29th Leg. c. 103 (see Art. 5416 herein). Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Not retrospective.—Where one contesting an award of school land made his application before this statute took effect, the question whether the owner to whom the land was awarded continued to reside on the land after the award is immaterial. Davis v. McCauley, 28 C. A. 211, 66 S. W. 1124.

It was not the intention of the legislature in passing this law to affect in any manner the rights of those who had purchased under the previous law and whose account was in good standing in the general land office. It did apply to lands, which had been previously sold, but which had been forfeited, or might thereafter be forfeited, in accordance with the provisions of laws under which they had been bought. Bates v. Bratton, 96 T. 279, 73 S. W. 158.

A sale of school land prior to the adoption of this article is governed by the law of 1895 (Acts 1895, p. 66, c. 47), requiring forfeitures of sales of school land for nonresidence to be declared by the commissioner. Samples v. Weaver, 59 C. A. 962, 121 S. W. 1129.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy or abandonment.—Art. 5423 permits temporary absence from the land for not more than six months when such absence is necessary for certain purposes. See, also, notes under Art. 5444, which requires the commissioner to prescribe regulations respecting occupancy by purchasers for three years after purchase. And see Art. 5425 and notes.

See this case for facts which show that the plaintiff was entitled to the land as an actual settler which had applied for, and obtained from the land commissioner the right to purchase. Singleton v. Wright (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 249.

A purchaser executed a bond reciting a sale of the land and obligating himself to make title after proof of three years' occupancy. Prior thereto the purchaser leased the land to the obligee, reserving the use of it and continuing in possession of part of the land. This was not an abandonment of the land, subjecting it to another sale, Wiles v. C A. 69, 75 S. W. 890.

Absence from the land for eight months while attending a normal school in a distant county, is a failure to reside upon the land purchased as required by law, and works a forfeiture of the land. Andrus v. Davis, 99 T. 303, 89 S. W. 775.

If one moves off the land and abandons the same, he forfeits all rights acquired by virtue of his application to purchase. Edwards v. Terrell, 100 T. 26, 93 S. W. 426.

Where school land sold by the state was not abandoned, the land commissioner had no authority to forfeit the sale on the ground, and his action could not affect plaintiff's lien on the land created prior thereto. Bumpass v. McLendon, 46 C. A. 519, 101 S. W. 491.

If a person leaves the land for six months without a well-grounded fear of death or serious bodily harm, he forfeits his purchase. Overfelt v. Vinson, 46 C A. 381, 103 S. W. 1109.

Where a purchaser actually settled on the land within 90 days, his absence from the land prior to this actual settlement was not such a failure to reside on the land as forfeited the purchase. Ramsey v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 980.

In an action to quiet a conveyance of public school lands made by plaintiff when an infant, allegations in the petition of plaintiff's purchaser from an individual and plaintiff's occupancy thereafter for a couple of months, but not showing whether plaintiff's grantor had purchased from the state, or the length of his occupancy of the land, are insufficient to show plaintiff's abandonment of the land within three years, so as to forfeit his title. Salse v. Barron (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1039.

Does not ipso facto work forfeiture.—Land purchased and abandoned will not be treated as forfeited until so declared by the land commissioner. Adams v. Terrell, 101 T. 351, 107 S. W. 538.

This section should not be construed to mean that non-occupancy results ipso facto in a forfeiture of the land and placing the same on the market for sale without any action on the part of the land commissioner. Williams v. Keith (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1059.

Under this article abandonment by an actual settler purchaser will not ipso facto place the land at once upon the market, but it can only be done by the declaration of forfeiture by the commissioner as prescribed by statute. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

A nonoccupation of school lands purchased from the state alone does not work a forfeiture ipso facto. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Under this article nonoccupancy does not ipso facto constitute such a forfeiture as will place the land upon the market, subject to resale, without cancellation of the prior sale. Erp v. Robinson (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

Further action by commissioner unnecessary.—If the purchaser or his vendee failed to reside upon the land as the law requires, it became forfeited, and the land again on the market without any action of the commissioner. The rule has been held to be different when after three years proof thereof has been made and the commissioner has issued his certificate of that fact. Bates v. Bratton (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 39.

Under this article no action by the commissioner is necessary to work a forfeiture; and hence no one on the part of the applicant on the land forfeiture application that it was forfeited for failure to reside on the land was not evidence of forfeiture as against the purchaser. Slaughter v. Cooper, 56 C. A. 169, 121 S. W. 173.

Under this article a cancellation by the land commissioner of the sale of school lands on the purchaser's own request did not result in any filing against another party, fixes the status of the first party's claim, without any further action by the commissioner. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Fear of death or bodily harm.—The fear of death or serious bodily injury, which will excuse a purchaser of state school lands for abandoning the same within three years after the purchase, need not be such as would be given way to only by a man of ordinary prudence and courage. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 569.

If such fear as in law justified plaintiff in temporarily yielding his possession continued since the abandonment, he would not while under such fear, be required to resume such possession in order to prevent a forfeiture of his rights. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1013.

Removal in obedience to judgment.—Where an applicant for the purchase of state lands obeyed a judgment of ouster, and moved off without waiting to be put off by an officer, such relinquishment of possession did not constitute an abandonment of the application. Clark v. Hart, 28 C. A. 66, 62 S. W. 935.

Good faith of settler.—Under this article a citizen, as well as the state by a direct proceeding, may attack the bona fides of a settlement on public lands even after a certificate of three years' occupancy has been granted by the land commissioner, since the certificate is not conclusive as to the purchaser's bona fides in settling upon the land. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Under this article, which is similar to Rev. St. 1895, art. 42181 where the commissioner declares property to be in actual occupancy, because the purchaser did not reside therein as required by law, this necessarily involves an inquiry into and a finding adverse to the purchaser's good faith. 1d.

Effect of forfeiture.—This section does not forbid a purchase merely because the applicant has suffered a forfeiture of a previous purchase on the ground of abandonment and there is no provision in the statutes which does so. The only penalty attached to

When the purchaser of school land, after cancellation for abandonment, voluntarily made a second application and was awarded a second allotment, he acquiesced in the cancellation of his first purchase. Williams v. Robison, 103 T. 90, 124 S. W. 85.

Decisions under article 42181, Rev. St. 1895.—Rev. St. 1895, art. 42181, provided for forfeiture for non-payment of interest as well as for non-occupancy. This provision was omitted as Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 5423, the provision as to forfeiture for non-occupancy was omitted.

This article makes the failure to reside upon the land purchased and not upon the "other land" the ground of forfeiture. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 25 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 555. It is only after the land commissioner has marked the land "forfeited" that the land can be resold.

The statute declares that forfeiture shall result from the failure to reside upon and improve the land, and does not require any action of the land commissioner or other officer as a prerequisite to the forfeiture. Hardman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 662; Comanche Co. v. Brightman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 976. The term "occupancy" as used in the statutes regulating the sale of school lands means actual settlement and residence upon the land. Hardman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 662.

On a contest between applicants to purchase school lands, award held void and to leave the land subject to sale, without a forfeiture being declared, as prescribed by Art. 5423. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 116.

Under this article lands which had become subject to forfeiture by reason of the failure of the purchaser to continue his residence upon the same as required by the act were not subject to be sold again until the commissioner had declared the forfeiture. Bates v. Bratton, 96 T. 279, 72 S. W. 157, 158.

The phrase "improvements in good faith," as used in Rev. Stat. 1895, art. 42181, only means improvements are necessarily incidental to the required settlement. It was not required that the improvements should be to any specified amount. McLendon v. Bumpass, 51 C. A. 586, 114 S. W. 464.

Under Acts 1895, p. 67, c. 47, § 11 (Rev. St. 1895, art. 42181), regulating the sale of public lands for actual settler, subject to forfeiture for failure to comply with the condition of three years' occupancy, is not forfeited to the state, with the effect of being again upon the market for sale, by the mere fact of abandonment of the purchaser, but to have that effect the land commissioner must make formal declaration of such forfeiture by the indorsement "Land forfeited" on the purchaser's obligation. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 547.

Where a purchaser of school land while the law of 1895 (Acts 1895, p. 63, c. 47), requiring forfeitures of sales of school land for nonresidence to be declared by the commissioner, was in force, conveyed land to a grantee, who received possession before a forfeiture for the purchaser's abandonment had been declared, the grantee took such title as would support an action against a mere trespasser. Samples v. Wever, 56 C. A. 662, 121 S. W. 1129.

Parol sale of improvements.—A parol sale of improvements made by a settler on public land and not attached to the land held valid. McCullers v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 602.

Lien on improvements.—A lien acquired by plaintiff on school land sold by the state before the purchaser had completed the three years' occupancy required by statute was valid, and could be enforced after the requisite occupancy had been completed. Bumpass v. McLendon, 45 C. A. 519, 101 S. W. 491.

Art. 5425. Forfeiture for failure to settle on land, etc.—One who has heretofore, or who may hereafter, purchase land out of a lease or otherwise on condition of settlement in the counties named in article 5419 and fails to settle thereon within the required time, or fails to file in the land office his affidavit of settlement within the required time, or fails to comply with the law as to residence on the land, or executes a transfer contrary to the provisions hereof, except those stated in this chapter as not being void, he shall forfeit the land and all payments made thereon to the fund to which the land belongs; and, when the commissioner shall be sufficiently informed of the facts which operate as a forfeiture, he shall cancel the award or sale by noting the act of forfeiture on the obligation, and mail notice of that fact to the proper county clerk. Such land shall not be subject to sale again at a less price than the former sale price, unless the commissioner shall have reappraised the land at a less price after noting the act of forfeiture. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6e.]

Forfeitures disfavored.—Forfeitures of public free school lands by the commissioner of the general land office are disfavored, and will not be sustained upon doubtful authority. Salgado v. Baldwin, 105 T. 508, 152 S. W. 165.

Forfeiture—in general.—The land commissioner is authorized to forfeit for the specified causes, and the attorney general is authorized to bring suit for the protection of any other right. The contract not being void, the purchaser is entitled to have the evidence which the statute prescribes of its existence and of his compliance with its terms preserved and kept up in the land office by the action of the commissioner until his rights under it have been terminated by the state. The commissioner himself cannot cancel.
a sale on the ground alone that he made a mistake in the classification and appraisement. He is not in all matters pertaining to public school lands the representative of the state. Harper v. Terrell, 96 S. W. 479, 96.

Where the action of the land commissioner in canceling a sale of school lands is proper, it is immaterial whether he assigns the proper reason for his action. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 912.

A commissioner of the general land office is not authorized to forfeit a purchase of school land on the ground of the purchaser's minority, for, though the state could cancel a sale on that ground in a proceeding for that purpose. Id.

Under this article a forfeiture for "collusion and failure to settle upon and occupy and improve the land in good faith as a home, as required by law," is unauthorized. Salgado v. Baldwin, 105 T. 608, 125 S. W. 165.

For nonpayment of interest.—See Art. 5423 and notes.

For nonoccupancy or abandonment.—See notes under Art. 5424.

Failure to settle in good faith.—Acts 30th Leg. c. 20, § 6e (re-enacted with modifications as Art. 5425 herein), wherein grounds for declaring a forfeiture of a purchase of school land are specified without mention of a failure to settle in good faith, does not change the law as to a settlement in good faith, and authority to declare a forfeiture for failure to so settle, as section 6a (Art. 5419 herein) expressly provides that the land shall be sold on condition of settlement as provided by this act and existing statutes. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

Forfeiture for unauthorized transfer.—Under Arts. 5435, 5436, and this article, where a holder of a right to a title in school lands transferred his interest within less than 12 months after the sale to him by the state, the award to him became ipso facto forfeited and the land reverted to the state free of any Incumbrance which the purchaser may have placed thereon. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1041.

Conclusiveness and effect of forfeiture.—In an action to determine entry, and detainer of school land, it is not proper to go outside the records of the land office to show a state of facts which would impeach such records and show a forfeiture not declared by the office. Henfro v. Harris, 25 C. A. 56, 66 S. W. 460.

Conclusiveness and effect of forfeiture.—In an action to try title to land, the fact that the land commissioner had forfeited the sale to the party under whom plaintiff claims was not conclusive against him, but he could show that the attempted forfeiture was unauthorized and of no effect. Bumpass v. McLendon, 45 C. A. 518, 101 S. W. 491.

The forfeiture by the commissioner of the general land office of a school land purchase is not conclusive as to the purchaser's rights. Zettelmeier v. Shuler, 52 C. A. 648, 115 S. W. 78.

Art. 5426. [4218ff] Forfeiture of home tract works forfeiture of other land, when.—When any purchaser buys and settles upon a section, or part of a section, of school lands, and buys, either at the same time or subsequently, other lands in addition thereto, a forfeiture for any legal cause of the part on which he resides, at any time before the three years residence thereon has been completed, shall work a forfeiture of the entire purchase, except such part thereof as he may have previously sold to another. But, after the three years residence has been completed, a forfeiture of the home tract shall not of itself work a forfeiture of the other tract or tracts. [Acts 1895, amended 1897, p. 184.]

Application.—This article applies to those who have purchased a section or a part of a section of school lands, and who have subsequently or at the same time bought an additional section. Roberson v. Sterrett, 96 T. 380, 71 S. W. 385, 73 S. W. 3.

Forfeiture of part of the tract on which the tract to which the tract forfeited of title to the additional land bought. Dabbs v. Rothe, 25 C. A. 201, 60 S. W. 815.

Art. 5427. [4218h] Terms of repurchase of forfeited agricultural lands.—The owner of land which is in fact agricultural, purchased prior to August 20, 1897, and which land is not subject to forfeiture at said date, shall not be permitted, in case said land is forfeited, to purchase said forfeited land from the state for a less price per acre than the contract price under the former sale. [Acts 1895, amended 1897, p. 184.]

Art. 5428. [4218f] Purchasers prior to July 30, 1895; rights under forfeiture.—Where any of the lands referred to have been sold prior to July 30, 1895, in quantities greater or less than forty acres or multiples thereof, and are in good standing as to interest payments, they may be patented in such quantities. Any owner of land purchased prior to said date, and which land has been or may be forfeited for non-payment of interest, shall have ninety days prior right, after the land is again placed upon the market, to purchase said land without the condition of settlement and occupancy, in case it has been occupied for three consecutive years as required by law; but, if not, then he shall reside thereon until the occupancy under the first and last purchase shall together amount to said term of three years; provided, that, when any forfeiture has been made, the commissioner of the general land office shall add to the appraised value of such land the amount of interest due thereon at the time of forfeiture, which shall be paid in cash with the first payment of one-fourtieth of the appraised value of the land when purchased under the preference right to purchase given herein. [Acts 1895, amended 1897, p. 184. Art. 4218j, Acts 1895.]

Right to preference.—Where school lands had been sold by the settler after application to purchase, but before securing the patent, he has no prior right to purchase them as owner after forfeiture for failure of the grantee to pay the interest due state as agreed. Settle v. Stephens, 18 C. A. 695, 46 S. W. 969.

The person who is the owner at the time of the forfeiture is declared to have 90 days' prior right to purchase the land after it is placed upon the market. Unless he complies with the statute in the particulars named (regarding the purchase) during the 90 days grace given him, the commissioner has no power to award him the land over other legal applications made during that time, nor can the commissioner extend the time beyond the 90 days. Cobb v. Webb, 26 C. A. 467, 61 S. W. 794.

A corporation is not entitled to the preference right of 90 days, where it is the vendee of the original purchaser, to buy detached land situated in a county organized prior to January 1, 1875. The prior right for 90 days to purchase such lands did not change the legal qualification of the purchaser prescribed in article 4218s, Rev. St. 1885. Mound Oil Co. v. Terrell, 99 T. 639, 52 S. W. 464.

Art. 5429. Timber lands defined; regulations for sale of.—The commissioner of the general land office shall adopt such regulations for the sale of timber on timbered lands as may be deemed necessary and judicious, subject to the provisions of this chapter. By timbered lands is meant lands valued chiefly for the timber thereon. [Acts 1901, p. 296, sec. 8.]

Rule regarding application.—This section authorizes the land commissioner to adopt a rule requiring the purchaser as a prerequisite to purchase the timber on the timbered lands referred to, to make and file in the land office a written application therefor of a certain prescribed form in substance. Hornbeck v. Terrell, 24 C. A. 70, 85 S. W. 480.

Art. 5430. Same.—One who applies to purchase the timber shall file his application in writing in the general land office in the manner now provided for the filing of applications for the purchase of land, and pay to the land office the full cash payment according to the price offered therefor, but not at a less price than that fixed by the commissioner. Should two or more persons each apply to purchase the timber and land on the same day, and one should offer more for the timber but less for the land than a competitor, then the one offering the highest price for the timber shall have an option for thirty days, as now provided by law for designating home tracts, to take the land at the highest price offered by such competitor. Should the one offering the highest price for the timber not want the land at such highest price, but should want the timber, it shall be awarded to him. Should one who applies for both timber and land offer the highest price for the land, but a lower price for the timber, he shall have an option of thirty days as aforesaid to purchase the land, if it should not be purchased by the one who offers the highest price for the timber; but, should the one who offers the highest price for the timber and the lesser price for the land not want the land at such high price, nor should he exercise his option by purchasing the timber alone, then the land and timber shall be awarded to the one offering the highest price for the land, and next highest price for the timber. The commissioner shall appraise all timber at its reasonable market value, and it shall not be sold at a price less than that so fixed by him. Should two or more applications for timber alone be filed on the same day, the one offering the most therefor shall be accepted. All timber shall be sold in full tracts. The purchaser of timber without the land shall have the right of ingress and egress upon the land for a period of five years after date of award for the purpose of removing or protecting the timber thereon, and the purchaser shall be entitled to all the timber thereon for that period and no longer. After that time the title to the timber shall revert to the fund to which the land belonged and be again subject to sale by the state, unless the land shall sooner be sold and fully paid for and patent issued thereon; and in that even the timber shall revert to the owner of the land. The owners of timber heretofore purchased, which has not been removed and the five years in which to remove same or to purchase the land have not expired, but may expire on or before November 1, 1907, may purchase the land on that date at the price fixed by the commissioner and without condition of settlement, either for cash or on deferred payment, with five per cent interest as provided in this chapter for other purchasers without settlement. In case the five years do not expire before said date, only the owner of the timber shall have the right to purchase the land as herein provided at any time prior to the removal of the timber and within the five years allowed in which to remove same. Land on which timber has heretofore been sold, and the timber has been or may be removed, or the five years shall have expired and the land not purchased by the owner of the timber, shall not be sold until it is re-classified and re-appraised by the commissioner, and a date fixed not more than sixty days after such action for the sale thereof. Notice of such action and date fixed for sale shall be mailed to the proper county clerk. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 66.]

Purchasing of timber withdraws land from sale.—Under Slayes' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q, (re-enacted with additions and modifications as Art. 5430 herein), no one may purchase land on which the timber has been sold and stands until the expiration of five years from the sale, except the purchaser of the timber, or his vendee, so that a sale of the timber withdraws the land from sale to an actual settler during the five years, and for that period it can be sold only to the purchaser of the timber, or his vendee thereof.

Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1101.

Rights of purchaser of timber cannot be impaired.—Where by Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, a purchaser of timber on public lands has the right to purchase the land itself within five years without being an actual settler thereon, this right could not be affected by Acts 1901, p. 296, c. 125, § 8 (Art. 5431 herein) passed thereafter, containing the same provisions as section 16, except that purchasers of timber must settle on the land, since the right was a part of the consideration for the sale of the timber and was a vested right which could not be impaired by subsequent legislation. Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.

The rights of a purchaser of timber on public lands, under Slayes' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q (re-enacted with additions and modifications as Art. 5430 herein), are contractual and vested, and may not be impaired or taken away by future legislation; and, where a purchaser of timber has the right under the statute to purchase the land on the terms fixed in the statute, his rights are not affected by the subsequent laws of 1901, though so intended by the legislature. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.

The state could not grant to a patentee land that it had previously contracted to sell to the purchaser of timber, and any patent impairing such purchaser's right to acquire title by compliance with the terms of his contract was void, and passed no title. Kirby v. Webb (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 232.

Rights acquired by purchaser of timber.—Failure of a purchaser of standing timber to be cut and removed from land to pay a sum as rental for an extension of his right to the exercise of privileges granted held not to forfeit his title to the uncut timber on the land. Montgomery County Development Co. v. Miller-Vidor Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1016.

An instrument construed as a conveyance of standing timber as personalty, to be severed and removed from the land. Id.

Corporation may purchase land.—See, also, Art. 5432.

Under Slayes' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q (re-enacted with additions and modifications as Art. 5430 herein), the fact that a corporation is the real purchaser of the timber on public lands does not prevent it from purchasing the land within the time prescribed. Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1101.

When purchaser's right to land accrues.—Where a purchaser of the timber on school land filed prior to the removal of the timber an application to purchase the land, and paid the price at the same time, he became entitled under the statute to the land, and his cause of action against an adverse claimant accrued at that time and not at the time of a subsequent award of the land to him; that being mere evidence of his existing right to the land. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. McGrew (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 191.

Purchaser need not be actual settler.—Acts 1895, p. 63, c. 47, § 3, relating to the sale of public school lands, provides, in section 3, for a classification thereof and when classified to be subject to sale but to actual settlers only, with a limitation of quantity in certain cases, and provides, in sections 8 and 9 (pages 64 and 65), the time for settlement of the land and proof thereof. Section 16 (page 68) of the act provides that the Commissioner of the general land office shall adopt regulations for the sale of timber lands, and that purchasers of timber shall have five years to remove the timber, and that when all the timber is taken off the lands may be classified and sold as grazing land, and that a purchaser of timber within the five years may purchase the land on which the timber is standing under the act. Held, the provisions of the statute evidently contemplated two classes of purchasers, actual settlers on the land and purchasers of timber, and the quoted words at the end of section 16 did not refer to preceding sections, and hence a purchaser of timber buying the land was not obliged to settle thereon to get good title. Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 166.
A purchaser of timber on public lands, under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218q (repealed with modifications as Art. 5430 herein), authorized to cut timber, need not be an actual settler. (Wing v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101.)

Effect of issuance of patent in disregard of preference.—In pursuance of Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, a purchaser of timber on public land exercised the right given by the section to purchase the land itself, but did not comply with all the terms of the section in making application to purchase, before he made application to purchase, the timber had been erroneously classified as "grazing land" and so sold and patent issued to the purchaser, the title of whom was void as against the purchaser of the timber, if he had complied with the terms of the Act. Held, in trespass to try his right to the timber against the vendee of the purchaser of grazing land, that the court, in adjudging that plaintiff was entitled to the land on his compliance with the provisions of the act granting him the right of purchase, would not cancel the patent to defendant's vendee, since the said plaintiff established a good title until a better title by compliance with the statute. (Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.)

Art. 5431. Timber and lands sold prior to August 12, 1907.—The purchaser of timber prior to August 12, 1907, shall have five years from that date within which to remove the timber therefrom, and, in case of failure to do so, such timber shall thereby be forfeited to the state without judicial ascertainment; provided, that all timbered lands sold prior to such date, from which the timber has been cut and taken off, may be placed on the market and sold as agricultural or grazing lands, according to classifications to be made by the land commissioner; provided, that upon application of the purchaser or his vendees of any such timber made within five years from the purchase of such timber, the commissioner of the general land office shall have said land classified at the expense of the owner of said timber as agricultural or grazing land, and the owner of said timber shall have the right to purchase said land at the valuation fixed by said commissioner on the same terms and conditions as other lands of like classification are sold under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1901, p. 296, sec. 8.]

Vested rights cannot be impaired.—See, also, note under Art. 5430.

Where by Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, a purchaser of timber on public lands has the right to remove the provisions made for the land itself, any right whatever of said land itself, thereon, this right could not be affected by this article passed thereafter, containing the same provisions, except that purchasers of timber must settle on the land, since the right was a part of the consideration for the sale of the timber and was a vested right which could not be impaired by subsequent legislation. (Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.)

Under Acts 27th Leg. c. 125, a purchaser of timber with the right to purchase the land at any time before five years but before the timber has been removed a part of the consideration for which he paid the state, has a vested right when the state accepts his application to purchase the timber, and he compiles with the terms of such purchase, which could not be impaired by a sale of any part of the land and the issuance of patents thereto from the state to another, during the time in which the purchaser had the statutory right to buy the land; and the fact that the act of 1907 relieved those holding such purchase of the requirement of actual settlement did not change the date of his purchase of the timber as the date upon which his right to purchase the land became vested. (Kirby v. Conn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 232.)

Who may exercise right to purchase.—Under this article the commissioner need not inquire as to whether the vendee is a remote vendee, or not, or any other person, growing out of the fact that the latter furnished the price for the conveyance to the remote vendee, and, where the legal title to the timber is in a vendee of the purchaser, a third person has not the right to purchase the land. (Ragley v. Robison, 103 T. 240, 128 S. W. 1.)

Settlement on land necessary.—Acts 1895, p. 68, c. 47, § 16, gave a purchaser of timber on public school lands the right to buy the land itself within five years without settling on the land. (Acts 1901, p. 296, c. 125, § 8 (Art. 5431 herein), contained the identical terms as section 16, except that, after providing that the owner of the timber shall have the right to purchase the land, it further provides "at the valuation fixed by the commissioner on the same terms and conditions as other lands of like classification are sold under the provisions of this chapter," and the sections other than section 8 provided for sale to actual settlers only. Held, that section 8 would be construed to change the rule in section 16 that a timber owner could purchase the land itself without settling on the land. (Hooks v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 156.)

Art. 5432. Unsurveyed or scrap lands.—Any person desiring to purchase any portion of the unsurveyed school lands shall first make a written application to the surveyor of the proper county or district in which the land, or a portion thereof, is situated, signed and sworn to by the applicant, giving his postoffice address, and designating the land he desires by metes and bounds, as nearly as practicable, and stating that he desires to have the land surveyed with the intention of buying it, and that he is not acting in collusion with or attempting to acquire land for another person or corporation. It shall be the duty of the surveyor... to file and record such application, and to survey the land and file the application and field-notes in the land office within ninety days from the date of the filing of the application, together with a properly prepared and certified sketch of the survey, with the variations at which all lines were run. The land shall be surveyed under the instructions of the commissioner of the general land office. The applicant shall pay to the surveyor one dollar as a filing fee, and his further lawful fees for surveying the land. When the surveyor returns the application and field-notes to the land office, he shall report under oath the classification and market value of the land, and also the timber thereon and its value, which may be considered in connection with such other evidence as may be required in determining the class and price to be given the land or timber. If, upon inspection of the papers, the commissioner is satisfied, from the report of the surveyor and the records of the land office, that the land is vacant and belongs to the school fund, and the survey has been made according to law, he shall approve same and notify the applicant that the land is subject to sale to him, stating the classification, price and terms, which shall be the same as that for surveyed lands, except as herein provided; provided, all unsurveyed vacant tracts not disclosed by the official maps in use in the land office at the time an application for the survey is filed, may be sold for cash, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on the deferred principal, and without condition of settlement and improvement, and with the right to pay the same out at any time and obtain patent; all unsurveyed vacant tracts which are subject to overflow, or situated in bottoms or swamps or otherwise so as to be unsuitable for settlement, may be sold for cash or for one-fortieth cash, with five per cent interest on deferred principal, and without condition of settlement and improvement, and with the right to pay the same out at any time and obtain patent; all unsurveyed vacant tracts not exceeding six hundred and forty acres, and not less than one hundred acres, which are disclosed by the official maps in use in the land office at the time an application for a survey is filed, and which are now or may be entirely surrounded by valid surveys or sold school surveys, shall be sold as a whole, and may be sold for cash, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on deferred principal, and without the condition of settlement and improvement, and with the right to pay same out at any time and obtain patent; all unsurveyed vacant tracts of one hundred acres or less shall be sold for cash only; all other unsurveyed vacant tracts disclosed by the official maps in use in the land office when an application for survey is filed, shall be sold on condition of settlement and improvement as provided by law for the sale of surveyed land; provided, that land heretofore or hereafter recovered by the state from claimants holding or claiming same under Spanish or Mexican titles shall be considered as vacancies disclosed by the official maps, and the person who in good faith so held or claimed such land under the claim aforesaid shall have a prior right for ninety days after the date of the final recovery of such land hereafter, to file on and purchase four sections of six hundred and forty acres each for cash, or for one-fortieth cash with five per cent interest on the deferred principal, and without the condition of settlement, and with the right to pay same out at any time and obtain patent. When the land is applied for and purchased under this article, without condition of settlement and improvement, the application to purchase shall otherwise conform to the requirements of applications for surveyed land, except as to settlement and designation of home tract. In all cases of the sale of any land on deferred payments and without the condition of settlement and improvement, as provided for in this article, the merchantable timber thereon, if any, shall first be paid for in cash. All land appropriated to the public school fund by the act of February 23, 1900, and which has heretofore been surveyed at private expense, may be sold under the provisions of this article relating to undisclosed vacancies and swamp lands. If within sixty days from the date of the notice of approval of any survey as herein provided, the applicant shall not have filed in the land office his purchase application at the appraised value fixed on the land, and in compliance with this article, such land shall be placed on the market for sale, upon the same terms and conditions as other surveyed school land. When any land, lying between older surveys, is held by the commissioner of the general land office to be unsurveyed or vacant land appropriated to the public school fund by the act of February 23, 1900, and is sold as such under the provisions of this chapter, and thereafter any suit arises between the owner or owners of such older surveys, and the purchaser from the state or his vendees, any final judgment rendered in such suit shall be deemed and held conclusive as to the existence or non-existence of such vacancy; provided, if in any suit judgment is obtained through collusion or fraud against the state, the same may be set aside and vacated at the suit of the state any time within five years thereafter. All unsurveyed tracts of six hundred and forty acres or less shall be sold as a whole, and all tracts of more than six hundred and forty acres shall be sold in such tracts as may be required or approved by the commissioner. No one shall hereafter have any preference to purchase any unsurveyed land, except as provided in this chapter for original lessees out of leases. All tracts containing one hundred acres or less, wheresoever situated, shall be sold for cash and without condition of settlement. All applications to purchase land under any preference right, which were filed in the land office prior to August 12, 1907, shall be accepted. No corporation shall purchase any land under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 8.]

See Houston v. Koonce (Sup.) 156 S. W. 202.

Right to cause survey and purchase in general.—Defendant held entitled to apply to have surveyed, classified, and to purchase unsurveyed state land within plaintiff's enclosure, subject to plaintiff's prior right, without settling on the land. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 534.

The right given by Acts 1905, p. 164, § 8, to an applicant who has caused public land previously unsurveyed, to be surveyed for the purpose of buying it within sixty days after the approval of the survey, is not taken away by the provisions of section 6 of the act of 1907 (provision quoted re-enacted in Art. 6432 herein), that "no one shall hereafter have any preference to purchase any unsurveyed land, except as provided in this act for original lessees out of leases." The right given in the law of 1905 is not a preference right in the sense of the above question from the law of 1907. Fence v. Robison, 103 T. 489, 119 S. W. 1146.

Where title is in dispute.—Where there is a dispute as between the state and another party as to the title of a tract of land the commissioner cannot be compelled to make a sale. Act Feb. 23, 1906, p. 29, c. 11, § 6, as amended by Act April 16, 1901, p. 253, provides that such lands as appear on the maps or records of the general land office not to be claimed by other parties, and to such as had been adjudged to the state, if ever so claimed. Juencke v. Terrell, 88 T. 237, 82 S. W. 1026.

Land held under lease.—Where the land is held under a lease, and the lease is in good standing, the fact that the legislative act appropriated the lands to the public school funds, and provided for their sale cannot be considered as ipso facto abrogating the lease. The lease is valid and conferred upon the lessee the sole right to the use of the land covered thereby until such right was legally divested in the manner provided by law. Adair v. Hays, 31 C. A. 446, 72 S. W. 287.

The provisions of Art. 6406 relating to the giving of notice as to land which becomes subject to sale by the termination or cancellation of a lease were not applicable to land which must be surveyed before it can be sold under this article; no land being subject to sale upon cancellation of a lease until it is surveyed, so that the fact that the full 20 days' notice was not given to the county clerk upon the cancellation of a lease of unsurveyed land would not affect the validity of the survey and sale of such land under this article. Meador v. Robison, 103 T. 206, 125 S. W. 564.

Time of application.—The fact that an application to purchase school land was dated prior to the approval of the survey is insufficient to avoid the conclusion that the application was entertained by the surveyor before the land was on the market. Dooley v. Maywald, 18 C. A. 386, 45 S. W. 221.

The action of the surveyor in entertaining an application to purchase school land before the commissioner of the land office approved the appraisal report of the commissioners' court will not render void the sale of the land to the applicant, in the absence of the rights of third parties intervening. Id.

Effect of application for survey.—The application merely secures the right to have the survey made and in 60 days after the approval of the field notes be made by the commissioner of the general land office and notification that it was on the market to become the purchaser as required in cases of sales of other school lands. Adair v. Hays, 31 C. A. 446, 72 S. W. 257.

An application for surveying public lands by metes and bounds held not to furnish notice precluding the subsequent location and survey of lands outside the tract so described. Weber v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Tender of cost of survey.—Evidence held to establish a valid tender of the cost of surveying certain state land so as to protect plaintiff’s right prior to purchase. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 334.

Application under act of 1900.—A petition for mandamus to compel the land commissioner to rescind his action in canceling the contract of purchase, is fatally defective under Acts 1900, p. 29, § 6, when it fails to show that the land sought to be purchased is a part of a tract embracing 2,560 acres or less, and fails to allege that the land was embraced in the terms of the section because it shows no right in the applicant to purchase and no right in the commissioner to sell the land. Moore v. Rogan, 96 T. 375, 73 S. W. 1.

When sale must be for cash.—Under Acts 1900, p. 164, § 8, only unsurveyed vacant tracts of eighty acres or less shall be sold for cash only, so that where a tract of 80 acres was surveyed under the act of 1900 as amended by the act of 1901, the commissioner of the land office could sell upon the payment of one-fourth of the purchase money and the balance on time with interest. Hamman v. Presswood (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1663.

Field notes must be filed within 90 days.—In October, 1906, an application was filed by C. and the land surveyed in November, 1906, and the application and field notes filed in the land office in December, 1906. The field notes conflicted with other surveys, and the surveyor who had surveyed the land was notified in February, 1907, that his application for the same land was filed in December 24, 1906, and surveyed 2, 1908, which application and field notes were filed in the land office March 3, 1909, and found correct. February 16, 1909, corrected field notes were filed by C. The commissioner refused to value the land on C.’s application, as M.’s application was filed prior to the return of the certificate that under this act it held, the former right to the surveyor for C. should within 90 days return correct field notes, and, M. having filed his application and a survey having been made before the corrected field notes of C. were returned to the land office, after the 90 days, M. acquired a superior right to purchases and the land was properly conveyed. Cox v. Robison, 103 T. 364, 157 S. W. 806.

Preference given party who has improved or inclosed land.—Acts 1905, p. 167, § 8, gave the person whose inclosure embraced any unsurveyed school lands, or who had improved the same, the right to purchase the same in preference to others at any time within 90 days notice given as provided therein. The following cases were decided under that or similar acts:

Under Acts 1899, c. 54, p. 45, a person having a preference right must be a settler within the inclosure. Hume v. Grady, 27 S. W. 584, 46 T. 477.

That defendant settled on and improved vacant state land within plaintiff’s inclosure did not deprive plaintiff of the prior right to purchase within 90 days after the land had been surveyed, classified, and appraised. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 334.

When land is situated in one’s inclosure he has the preference right to purchase at any time within 90 days after it was surveyed, classified and appraised and he has received notice thereof. Id.

Where one person has the land inclosed and another has improvements on it, the statute does not prefer the owner of the land to the owner of the improvements. The latter has the same right as the former to buy 160 acres, and where the owner of the improvements has secured a patent to the land the owner of the inclosure must show a better title. King v. Underwood. 122 S. W. 1121, 112 S. W. 334.

Equities of adverse claimant.—Where B. abandoned certain land in controversy in 1896 and made no claim thereto until 1905 prior to which plaintiff had acquired a right to purchase, no equities survived B.’s abandonment which he could transfer to defendant. King v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 334.

The statute authorizing the sale of detached and isolated sections of school land, without requiring settlement, applies to sections which were not isolated when the act was passed, but which subsequently became so. Thomas v. Wolfe, 18 C. A. 22, 40 S. W. 182.

The question whether or not a section is subject to sale thereunder is to be determined from its situation, as shown by the state maps at the time of sale. Id.

If the purchaser acts in good faith a sale will not be held unlawful because it may subsequently be discovered that a mistake was made in the mapping and location. Id. Evidence held insufficient to show that a sale of school land as isolated land was invalid. Id.

The statute is mandatory; and it is the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to accept all bids for isolated sections and parts of sections of the school lands at a dollar an acre upon the purchasers tendering the part of the purchase money, and the obligation for the balance, as shown by the general law, whether the lands are classified as agricultural, timbered or grazing. State ex rel. Weber v. Egan, 94 T. 62, 51 S. W. 1016, 55 S. W. 559, 57 S. W. 940.

After the commissioner of the general land office has declared a forfeiture in the case of a detached and isolated section it is not necessary for him to report the forfeiture to the county clerk of the county in which the land is situated before it is again subject to purchase. All that is necessary to acquire an inchoate title is to make application to the commissioner, and to tender the amount of cash required together with a statutory obligation for the balance. Id.

This article (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218y) applies to a county that had been organized prior to January 1, 1876, but whose organization had lapsed and was not reorganized as said date, but was again organized thereafter. Tompkins v. McKinney, 93 T. 629, 57 S. W. 804.

The word "may" in this article (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218y) ought to be construed in its literal sense—that is to say, as a word merely conferring a power upon the commissioner to sell the lands therein specified at one dollar per acre and not as making it obligatory upon him to do so, and therefore mandamus will not lie to compel him to do so. Weber v. Rogan, 94 T. 62, 54 S. W. 1016, 55 S. W. 559, 57 S. W. 941, 942.

By buying under the law applying to detached land can not have his title attacked because he may desire to let some one else have the benefit of his purchase. The sale of such land is inhibited to none but a corporation. Wurzbach v. Burkett (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 596.

Certain state lands held detached lands at the time of their sale. Hamilton v. Votaw, 31 C. A. 684, 73 S. W. 1091.

That one was entitled to purchase public lands as actual settler held not to render valid his purchase of sections as isolated, when in fact connected. Bumnam v. Terrell, 97 T. 309, 78 S. W. 500.

Sale of connected sections as isolated held not rendered valid by subsequent invalid sale of the connecting section. Id.

The act of the land commissioner in determining whether lands are isolated and detached is ministerial and not judicial. And where he acts under a mistake in believing that the lands are detached and makes a sale, when he discovers his mistake he can rescind his previous action and cancel the award, or his successor can do this. Id.

There is no conflict between the proviso of Gen. Laws 27th Leg. p. 253, c. 88, providing that actual settlement of unsurveyed and detached lands containing less than 640 acres shall not be necessary, and section 7 of Act April 19, 1901, which provided that all lands which are or may become detached shall be sold to actual settlers only, the latter only applying to surveyed lands, and the proviso was not repealed by said act. The two laws having been passed by same legislature, and not being in conflict, should be construed as one act. McGrady v. Terrell, 98 T. 427, 84 S. W. 611.

The forbidding sale of school lands to any but actual settlers, an exception is made in case of "isolated and detached" lands lying in certain counties, but by the terms of this article (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218y) a sale to a corporation is not permitted. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Terrell, 100 T. 406, 100 S. W. 134.

By the express terms of Acts 1901, p. 296, § 7, the exception in Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218y, as to "isolated and detached" lands, is eliminated in express terms, and such lands are made subject to sale to actual settlers only. One must become an actual settler upon school lands within 90 days after the land is awarded to him. Id.

Vacancies between surveys.—Claimant to vacant public domain, in action of trespass to try title, held entitled to show that the land claimed as vacant was outside the corrected boundaries of original surveys under which plaintiff claimed. Austin v. Espuela Land & Cattle Co., 34 C. A. 39, 77 S. W. 830.

One who has not acquired any right to land held not entitled to litigate the question of a vacancy between surveys under which another claims the land. Hickey v. Collyns, 40 C. A. 565, 90 S. W. 716.

State cannot intervene in suit between adverse claimants.—The provision that, when any suit arises between the owners of the older survey and the purchaser, any final judgment shall be conclusive as to the existence of such vacancy, but, if the judgment be obtained through collusion against the state, it may be vacated at any time within five years, does not authorize the state to intervene in such an action. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

Corporation cannot purchase.—See, also, notes under Arts. 5428, 5430.

Land subject to classification as agricultural or grazing land cannot be sold to a corporation. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Terrell, 100 T. 406, 100 S. W. 135.

Art. 5433. Minerals, gayule and lechuguilla reserved.—The land which is now or may hereafter be classed as mineral may be sold for agricultural or grazing purposes, but all sales of such land shall be upon the express condition that the minerals shall be and are reserved to the fund to which the land belongs, and such reservation shall be stated in all applications to purchase; provided, should any person who has no authority or right to so do cut or remove any mineral, gayule or lechuguilla from the land belonging to the public free school fund, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code, and in addition thereto judgment shall be rendered against the defendant in behalf of the state in a sum of money equal to the value of the substance so cut or removed, which shall be collected as under execution; and when collected, the money shall be remitted to the state treasurer and by him credited to the fund to which the land belongs. The commissioner shall adopt all 3002
the necessary rules and regulations for the execution of the several provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6f.]

Applies only to land designated as mineral land.—Provision, in statute for sale of public school and asylum lands, for affidavit by applicant as to knowledge of minerals, and that as to reservation of minerals, apply only to lands designated as mineral lands. Schendell v. Rogan, 94 T. 585, 63 S. W. 1001.

Mines and mining.—See Title 93.

Art. 5434. Sale of gayule and lechuguilla.—The commissioner of the general land office may, with the consent and approval of the governor and attorney general, sell the gayule, lechuguilla, growing or found upon the public free school land, exclusive of timber. The sales may be upon such terms, conditions and limitations as they may deem most advantageous, having in view the protection of the interest of the school fund and the state. They may also enter into such contracts as they may deem wise for the purpose of having determined the commercial properties and value of any and all such material, and for such purpose they may enter into executory contracts of sale; provided, they shall not in such contracts cause the expenditure of public money nor incur any liability on the state. [Acts 1907, p. 251.]

Art. 5435. Transfers.—One who hereafter buys land on condition of settlement shall not sell any part of such purchase prior to one year after date of award of the home tract, nor prior to one year after date of the award of the first additional tract purchased to a formerly acquired home, unless the required residence has sooner been completed. After the lapse of the time aforesaid, the purchaser may sell all of his land, or any part thereof, in whole tracts, according to his purchase, to another qualified purchaser, who will become an actual bona fide settler on some part thereof at date of his transfer, if the residence is not complete, and such assignee shall complete the residence on the land by continuous residence thereon as required of his vendor; and if the vendor does not sell all of his purchase he shall continue to reside upon his home tract, or on some part of that retained, until the completion of the residence required of him. A purchaser on condition of settlement under this chapter, or any former law, who may have the right to sell his land, or a part of it, may sell his whole home tract, or one or more of his additional tracts, as a whole, according to his purchase, to another purchaser who owns a designated home tract within five miles of each of such tracts as he may purchase as assignee, and the assignee may take each of the tracts as additional to his own designated home tract; provided, the total tracts so purchased by an assignee prior to the completion of the residence of the vendor, together with the former purchase of the assignee, shall not exceed one complement of sections. In such cases, the assignee shall continue to reside in person upon either his formerly designated home tract, or on one of his formerly acquired additional tracts, or on one of his additional tracts purchased as assignee, continuously until the completion of the residence required of him under his former purchase and that of his vendor. No tract hereafter purchased shall be transferred, except as a whole, prior to the issuance of patent thereon; but, should a transfer of less than a whole tract be made after the purchaser has the right to sell in whole tracts under the provisions of this chapter, such transfer shall not be void, but the owner shall not be substituted as assignee on the records of the land office. The failure to pay the interest on the whole of such tract shall operate as a forfeiture of every part thereof. [Acts 1907, p. 490, sec. 6d.]

Explanatory.—It has been the purpose to group the decisions since this law took effect here, while decisions relative to transfers prior thereto will be found under Art. 5436, as also all decisions having express reference to that article. Cases relative to transfers of land as additional to the transferee’s home tract will also be found under this article.

Right to transfer in general.—A contract agreeing to convey school land, when an action involving the title thereto should have terminated favorably to the contracting party, held not invalid. Hudman v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 186.

A sale of school lands awarded by the state before the three years' occupancy prescribed as a prerequisite to the issuance of final title by the state is not against public policy. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Time of transfer.—Under this article and Arts. 5425, 5436, where a holder of a right to a title in school lands transferred his interest within less than 15 months after the sale to him by the state, the award to him became ipso facto forfeited and the land reverted to the state free of any incumbrance which the purchaser may have placed thereon, and, where his vendee later secured an award from the state, he took the land free from the incumbrance of a trust deed executed by the vendor. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

Transfers of tracts additional to home tract in general.—A charge that a grantee of school state lands from the original purchaser must have occupied the original tract as a condition precedent to his right to purchase additional land was error. Thomson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 841.

Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4215 ff., a sale by a purchaser before the completion of the three years' occupancy, to one not an actual settler on the land sold, did not forfeit title thereto, because the purchaser has the right to sell to one not an actual settler. Nesting v. Terrell, 97 T. 18, 75 S. W. 486.

A purchase of additional school land by owner of other lands, is not forfeited but his interest passes to vendee, not an actual settler, where he continues to own and occupy the land made the basis of the purchase. It was not necessary that the purchaser nor any of his vendees should occupy the land. Miller v. Halford, 34 C. A. 243, 78 S. W. 239.

2. Limitation on amount of land.—Before this law went into effect a father had purchased four sections and his son two and part of another. After this law became effective the son conveyed one of his sections to his father and the father conveyed one of his to the son. The land commissioner had no right to cancel the son's conveyance because the son was entitled to more than he had conveyed. He gave up one of his sections when he obtained the one from his son. Cunningham v. Terrell, 101 T. 613, 111 S. W. 652.

Location of land.—Under this article, held, that it was not necessary that the land purchased be wholly within a radius of five miles of the home tract: it being sufficient that the land to be purchased be not more than five miles from the home section at the nearest point of the home section to that sought to be purchased. Bradford v. Robinson (Sup.) 141 S. W. 769.

Title or rights acquired by transferees.—Though a purchaser of school land might mortgage his interest before he had completed the three years of occupancy, his subsequent sale thereof before the termination of the occupancy and therefore before his interest was subject to a judgment lien would prevent the mortgage lien from attaching to the land in the hands of the purchaser. Bourn v. Robinson, 49 C. A. 157, 107 S. W. 873.

Though the state may wholly ignore a subsequent purchaser of school land and recognize only the contract of the original purchaser, it does not follow that, as between the original purchaser and the vendee of an interest in the former's inchoate title the conveyance is void. Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 650.

The grantee of a substituted purchaser of school land, having been also duly substitut ed as a purchaser in the General Land Office and complies in all things with the law governing such purchase, irregularities as to a virtual settler, an officer of public sales to the grantor or the original purchaser from the state become immaterial as affecting his title. Goodwin v. Koonee (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 620.

A purchaser of the rights of one to whom school lands has been awarded occupies by such interest him in his own position as an original purchaser, but he takes subject to any right to the land intervening between the award and his purchase. Davis v. Yates (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 281.

One made by one having contract with the state for purchase of public land held not in privity with the state, and so not entitled to attack the forfeiture of such public land by the state, and through it a patent of the land to another on a subsequent sale. Breen v. Morehead, 104 T. 264, 136 S. W. 1047.

Evidence in trespass to try title brought by one purchasing from a purchaser of state land, held to show that the intention of plaintiff and his grantor was that the land should not be conveyed prior to the grantor's filing his notice of settlement in the land office. Payne v. Cox (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 336.

Art. 5436 was not repealed by this act, and a substituted purchaser under this article becomes an original purchaser from the state. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1041.

A subsequent purchaser of school lands from the original purchaser, who held a recorded mortgage from an intermediate purchaser, was not an innocent purchaser. Id.

A grantee of one to whom school lands have been awarded by the commissioner of the general land office acquires, prior to issuance of patent, an equitable title, and he may enforce rights which his grantor could enforce against third persons claiming under an obligee in a bond for title, though annual interest installments due to the state have not been paid. Spotts v. Whittaker (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 422.

Liens for and collection of purchase price.—Where the state through its regular authorized officer makes an award of public lands to one authorized to purchase, the land so far passes out of the state as to authorize its sale by the commissioner creating between himself and his purchaser the relation of vendor and vendee, and, where possession accompanies such transfer, the second purchaser may not thereafter successfully plead a privity of estate upon the forfeiture of his vendor's title. Slaughter v. Cooper, 66 C. A. 169, 121 S. W. 173.

That the land office, after forfeiting school land, which was sold by the settler to another, reinstated the sale and awarded the land to such other, held good defense to the plea of failure of consideration for the notes given for the lands, which were secured by a vendor's lien.

A substituted purchaser of school lands legally awarded by the state had a vendible title, though the three years' occupancy, requisite to issue of final title, had not been completed, which was sufficient to support a purchase-money mortgage and notes therefor. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 191 146 S. W. 1941.

Where a subsequent purchaser of school lands acquiesces in the acts of his vendor in procuring the cancellation of the original award, and the making of a new award to the purchaser, he is estopped to object to the validity of his mortgage to the original purchaser. Id. Id.

A pre-existing debt for a balance due on the purchase price of school lands, though the vendor had no title thereto, held a good consideration for a mortgage thereon, executed on the cancellation of the vendor's rights and an award to the purchaser. Id. Id.

In an action to recover money paid for land, to actual settler under contract with state, judgment in another action held inadmissible to show evasion under the rule that the law by which the rights of vendor and vendee are adjusted as to private lands is inapplicable where the attempted conveyance is of public domain. Slaughter v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 597.

Registration of conveyance.—A conveyance of the equitable ownership of a homestead settler in the public domain acquired by the completion of three years of continuous occupancy held subject to registration with the county court, so as to be constructive notice to subsequent purchasers. Phillips v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 319.

Art. 5435a. Transfers other than personal; accounts with transferees, etc.—Upon presenting to the commissioner of the general land office of a regular chain of transfer to any of the sold public free school, university or asylum lands of this state, where same have been or may hereafter become matured under occupancy as required by law, in cases where occupancy is required, and where the terms and conditions of sale by the state to the original purchaser thereof have been otherwise complied with in cases where occupancy is not required, from the heir or heirs, executor, administrator or survivor in community of any deceased owner thereof, or from the guardian of any minor or person of unsound mind, who are the owners thereof, or from any trustee under deed of trust, or mortgagee in any mortgage with power of sale, or transfer executed by the sheriff or other officer of any court of this state having competent jurisdiction, by virtue of any execution or order of sale issued out of such court, and in all cases where title emanates from and is authorized by any court proceedings of the courts of this state, it shall be the duty of said commissioner to cause such chain of transfer to be filed together with the proper and necessary obligations and other instruments of verification hereinafter provided for, and thereupon the commissioner shall separate the account of the land so transferred from the account of the original or parent tract, and shall open a new account for the land so transferred in the name of the person filing such transfer, in the same manner as accounts are now opened with persons filing personal transfers. [Acts 1911, p. 32, sec. 1.]

Art. 5435b. Certified copies to be filed with transfers, etc.—When the transfer of any executor, administrator, or guardian is so filed it shall be accompanied by a copy of the order of the probate court appointing such executor, administrator or guardian of such estate and approving and confirming the sale of which such transfer is the evidence, duly certified to by the clerk of the county court of the county in which such order of confirmation was made. When the transfer of any survivor in community is so filed it shall be accompanied by a copy of the order of the probate court appointing such survivor in community, and also by a copy of the oath and bond, and the order approving same, of such survivor in community, all duly certified to under the hand and seal of the county clerk of the county where such orders were made and such oath and bond are filed. When the transfer of any trustee in any deed of trust, or any mortgagee under a mortgage with power of sale is filed as provided in this Act, it shall be accompanied by a copy of the deed of trust or mortgage, as the case may be, under which such transfer was made, duly certified to under the hand and seal of the county clerk of the county in which such land may be situated. When any transfer of a sheriff or other officer of a court is filed as provided in this Act, it shall be accompanied by a copy of the execution, order of sale or other process authorizing the execution of such transfer, together with the sheriff's return thereon, which copy shall be duly certified to under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court from which such execution or order of sale issued. When the judgment or decree of any court of this state is filed wherein the title to any of such lands is decreed out of the owner, such judgment shall be duly certified to by the clerk of the court in which judgment was rendered. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5435c. Transfer fees.—The commissioner shall charge and collect such fees for filing the transfers provided for in this Act as are now charged for filing personal transfers, and in addition thereto he shall charge and collect a fee of fifty cents for the certified copies which accompany each transfer, the same to be paid into the state treasury as other fees are now paid. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 5435d. Provisions applicable to transfers other than personal. —The lands described in section 1 [Art. 5435a] of this Act shall be subject to patent in like manner as lands that are transferred by chain of personal transfer, and shall be subject to the same conditions and penalties as are prescribed by law for other free school, university and asylum lands of this state; provided that patent when issued shall issue in the name of the person to whom said land was last transferred by personal transfer as shown by such transfers on file in the land office; provided, that the commissioner of the general land office shall deliver said patent to the party entitled thereto as shown by the mesne conveyances on file in his office; provided, that no account shall be opened and no patent issued as provided for in this Act, except in such quantities as are now provided by law in cases of personal transfer. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5435e. Purchasers of land in certain counties may sell within year, etc.—One who has heretofore bought or who may hereafter buy public free school land on condition of settlement and occupancy in the counties of Andrews and Bailey, Cameron, Cochran, Crane, Dimmit, Duval, Ector, Gaines, Hidalgo, La Salle, Loving, McMullen, Midland, Starr, Terry, Upton, Winkler, Yoakum and Zavala, may sell after one year from date of award any portion of said land to another in the manner provided in article 4218k, Revised Civil Statutes of 1895, but such assignees shall complete the residence thereon as provided in section 6 [Art. 5435] of the land sales act of 1907, approved May 16th, 1907. [Acts 1911, p. 154, sec. 1.]

Art. 5436. [4218k] Lands patented, when.—Purchasers shall have the option of paying the purchase money for their lands in full at any time after they have occupied the same for three consecutive years; and when they have made such payment in full, together with the proof that they have occupied the land for three consecutive years, they shall receive patents for the same upon payment of the patent fee prescribed by law. Purchasers prior to August 12, 1907, may also sell their lands, or a part of the same, in quantities of forty acres, or multiples thereof, at any time after the sale; and in such cases the vendee, or any subsequent vendee, or his heirs or legatees, shall file his own obligation with the commissioner of the general land office, together with the duly authenticated conveyance or transfer from the original purchaser and the intermediate vendee's conveyance or transfer, if any there be, duly recorded in the county where the land lies, or to which said county may be attached for judicial purposes, together with his affidavit, in case three years residence has not already been had upon said land and proof made of that fact, stating that he desires to purchase the land for a home, and that he has in good faith settled thereon, and that he has not acted in collusion with others for the purpose of buying the land for any other person or corporation, and that no other person or corporation is interested in the purchase, save himself; and thereupon the original obligation shall be surrendered or canceled or properly credited, as the case may be, and the vendee shall become the purchaser direct from the state, and be subject to all the obligations and penalties prescribed by law, and the original purchaser shall be absolved in whole or in part, as the case may be, from further liability thereon; and, if he or his vendor has already resided on his home section for three years, or when he or his vendor, or both together, shall have resided upon it for three years, the additional lands purchased may be patented at any time. [Acts 1895.]

Explanatory.—It has been the purpose to group the decisions having express reference to this article and all those decided prior to the time that Art. 6435 went into effect here, while all other cases relative to transfers will be found under that article. All cases relative to transfers of land as additional to the transferee's home tract will also be found under Art. 6435.

This article was not repealed by Acts 30th Leg. 1st Ex. Sess. c. 20, which provides in section 6d (Art. 6435 herein) that "one who hereafter buys land on condition of settlement shall not sell any part of such purchase prior to one year after date of award of the home tract," and a substituted purchaser under that section will become an assignee of the vendee. Clark v. Altizer (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 1941.

Right to transfer in general.—An actual settler who tenders the purchase money has an interest which he can transfer. Wood v. Wesson (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 1099.

Land sold under this article to the person selected by the original purchaser. O'Keefe v. McPherson, 35 C. A. 313, 61 S. W. 536.

The original purchaser of state lands, having an interest which will ripen into title by the payment of the purchase price, may make a valid contract for the sale of his interest. Gunther v. Cartledge, 26 C. A. 808.

The statute authorizes the actual settler to convey to another, but requires of the vendee to make the same character of settlement upon the land as was required of the original purchaser. The state allows an actual settler to be substituted by another of the same qualifications, but an actual settler can not transfer the land before the expiration of three years' occupancy unless the state at the time gets another actual settler in the place of the one that is released. Hardman v. Crawford, 96 T. 193, 66 S. W. 208.

One who purchases lands from the state under a contract which provides for certain payments upon the making of which he will become entitled to a patent and in default of any of which he forfeits all rights under his contract has a vendible interest in such lands prior to their forfeiture, and one which is subject to execution. Martin v. Bryson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 615.

Land awarded by commissioner of general land office, occupied for three years, proofs having been made, held subject of sale and mortgage. Logue v. Atkinson, 35 C. A. 303, 80 S. W. 137.

The state allows an actual settler to be substituted by another with the same qualifications and performing the same duties, but there is no provision by which land once sold to and occupied by an actual settler can be transferred before the expiration of three years' occupancy, to another person, unless the state at the same time acquires another actual settler in the place of the one that is released. Dugat v. Means (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 364.

Mortgages.—Land duly awarded and occupied for three years, proof of which has been made, may be mortgaged. Logue v. Atkinson, 35 C. A. 303, 80 S. W. 137.

A mortgage executed by the purchaser of school lands before he had completed the three years' term, enforced against the succeeding purchaser, after he had completed and made proof of the requisite occupancy. Harwell v. Harrison, 43 C. A. 343, 95 S. W. 39.

Form of transfer.—Transfer of land certificate with name of vendee in blank held good as against one making the transfer. Walker v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1045.

Title, rights and liabilities of substitute purchaser.—A transfer of a contract for the purchase of school land, who takes all the statutory steps to have himself substituted as purchaser, and is so substituted, is entitled to all the rights he would have had if he had been an original purchaser. Thomas v. Wolfe, 15 C. A. 22, 40 S. W. 183.

Under the laws relating to the sale of state school land, a failure of the vendee to substitute his obligation to the state for unpaid purchase price for that of the original purchaser held not to work a forfeiture of vendee's title. Lee v. Green, 24 C. A. 109, 58 S. W. 1847.

A valid sale of an unconditional land certificate by the administrator of the owner thereof is sufficient to pass title thereto to the purchaser. Harvey v. Petty (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 858.

One who purchases lands from the state under a contract which provides for certain payments upon the making of which he will become entitled to a patent, has an interest therein which is subject to execution. Martin v. Bryson, 31 C. A. 98, 71 S. W. 615.

A sale to a substitute purchaser of public lands held valid, without regard to validity of preceding sales, though the first payment was made only by the original purchaser. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 75 S. W. 71.

When the terms of the statute have been complied with the sale to a substitute vendee is to all intents and purposes a new sale upon substantially the same terms and conditions. If the sale was an original one, save that actual settlement seems not to be required where three years' occupancy has already been had, and proof of that fact made and save that the substitute applicant is not by said article required to make the first payment as in case of the original purchaser. Id.
Bona fide purchasers of county school lands held to acquire a good title against the county, notwithstanding invalidity of original conveyance from the county. San Augustin v. Means, 26 C. A. 257, 87 S. W. 1056.

Where defendant obtained the rights of K. in the purchase of certain state lands, and was substituted as the purchaser, he was entitled to the benefit of K.'s cash payment required, under law. Pannell v. W. R. and M. Co., 152 S. W. 156.

A purchaser of the rights of one to whom school land has been occupied by substitution, on the commissioner accepting him, the position of an original purchaser, but he takes subject to any right to the land that he intervened between the award and his purchase. Pannell v. W. R. and M. Co., 152 S. W. 156.

Where a purchaser of school land abandoned his purchase, the substitution of a third person for another purchaser was complete and took the land off the market, though the attempted sale to the second purchaser was void for his failure to deposit the first payment required by law. Findlater v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 281 (2d case).

Under this article, held, that the claim of one purchasing from the original purchaser after the settlement was complete, and an affidavit of settlement was filed and who continued his settlement and paid all dues and made valuable improvements thereon, would not be forfeited because he did not file the application to become a substituted purchaser.

Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4291 (Art. 5410 herein), requiring the original purchaser of public land to forward his application properly describing the land, and article 4292 (Art. 5410 herein), a proper description in the substitute purchaser's affidavit, if required, was substantially complied with by application of the substitute purchaser, with the attached obligation describing the land correctly and including the county where it was located, so as to authorize the commissioner to recognize him as a purchaser of the land, though the application itself omitted the county. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

Settlement upon land.—The purchaser, in the event of his vendor not having resided on the land for three years must file his affidavit stating that he has in good faith settled upon the land, and he must show that his settlement has covered the period of three years. Hardman v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 662.

Actual settlement by a substitute purchaser is not required, where three years' occupancy has already been had and proof thereof offered. Johnson v. Bibb, 32 C. A. 471, 78 S. W. 72.

Land sold to an actual settler cannot be transferred until it has been occupied for three years, unless the state at the same time acquires another actual settler in the place of the first one. Dugat v. Means (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 364.

Title to state owned land can only be secured by an original or substituted purchaser from the state, accompanied with actual settlement and continued occupancy, and while one may accept a transfer from another and make settlement and occupancy of the land, its only right is that of a substituted purchaser, and as such, he must make the affidavit of settlement required by this article, and swear that he is purchasing the land for his home, and that he is not acting in collusion with others. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 887.

On the issue of whether there was a sufficient settlement by one who becomes a substitute purchaser of public school lands, emphasis should not be given by instructions to the fact that the settlement and occupancy must be "in person," thus tending to exclude from the jury's consideration the acts of his wife in aid of his settlement and occupancy, to which, as well as all other circumstances, the jury may look; Acts 29th Leg. c. 103 (Art. 5410 herein), even if adding anything, by the use of the words "in person," to the prior requirements as to settlement, being directed in terms only to an original purchaser of school lands, and not repealing this article. Ericksen v. McWhorter (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 246.

Plaintiff in an action involving conflicting claims to public school lands, of which he became substitute purchaser, and which were thereafter forfeited by the land commissioner, on the ground of plaintiff's failure to reside thereon, and then sold to defendant, may recover his purchase from the state, which constituted part of the consideration given by them for the lands involved, and that they thereafter acquired no other property for a home till the purchase in question; plaintiff in becoming a substitute purchaser being required by this article to make affidavit, etc., his purpose and good faith being therefore in issue, and the fact of his old home having been surrendered and having been of considerable value being circumstances relevant and material on the issue of his good faith and illustrative of the purpose and act on which he relied as constituting settlement, there being evidence that he may have been residing before his purchase his wife in person went on the land for the purpose of making a home thereon, and that he, with the same purpose, was thereafter there a number of times and assisted in making improvements.

In a school lands suit plaintiff sued from the state before the expiration of the three years' occupancy by such purchaser. Plaintiff's wife immediately went on the land, made her home thereon, but plaintiff did not personally go thereon for over two months, and was not there continuously after that time. Held, that there was not a sufficient settlement on the land by plaintiff under this article. McWhorter v. Ericksen (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 624.

Liens for and collection of purchase money.—The purchaser of school land may sell on credit and foreclose his lien while the title is in the state. Wilson v. Hampton, 2 U. C. 429.

A purchaser sold to another with the understanding that the latter could forfeit and buy back from the government, and he reserved a vendor's lien to secure the contract price. Held, that the vendor's lien attached after the land had been reobtained by such vendee from the state. Garrett v. Findlater, 21 C. A. 635, 53 S. W. 839.

Where a land grantee, before he sold his disposition to the original grantee, for the nonpayment of interest, the vendor of the latter cannot resist payment of his purchase money notes on the ground that the original application to purchase contained a misdescription of the land. Gunnels v. Cartledge, 26 C. A. 633, 64 S. W. 868.
Proof and certificate of occupancy.—See art. 5444 and notes.

Right to attack sale or patent.—When patent has been issued no one claiming under an after-acquired right can attack patentee’s title. That only the state can do by direct proceeding. Logan v. Curry, 95 T. 664, 69 S. W. 128; id. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 82.

Until the grant is made (by issuance of patent) the sale or transaction is in fieri and subject to collateral attack for want of actual settlement. After patent has been issued the title is not subject to collateral attack by subsequent applicants. Id.

The validity of a patent to land cannot be attacked by one in possession as a trespasser of land covered by the patent. Yarbrough v. De Martin, 28 C. A. 376, 67 S. W. 177.

Error in patent regarding grantee’s name held, on the evidence, not to vitiate title. New York & Texas Land Co. v. Dooley, 33 C. A. 636, 77 S. W. 1080.

Art. 5437. Same.—Land which has been sold by the state prior to August 12, 1907, and which has been or may be subsequently transferred in tracts other than in legal multiples, may, in the discretion of the commissioner, be so patented. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 9.]

Art. 5438. [4218k] Payments and patents for town sites.—Whenever a town shall be located and established upon any lands sold under this or any former law, the purchaser or his vendee shall be permitted to pay the entire balance of principal and interest due the state upon such land and obtain a patent therefor at any time; but no such payment shall be permitted or patent issued until such purchaser or owner of such land shall file in the general land office a certified plat of such town, made by a surveyor, which shall be accompanied by the affidavit of the owner of such land, corroborated by the affidavit of five disinterested and credible citizens of the county, to the effect that a town, giving its name, has been located and established upon the land, and that there has been erected therein, and is being occupied by bona fide citizens, twenty business and residence houses, or either, or both. [Acts 1895.]

Art. 5439. Application of railroad to buy, to contain what.—Any railroad company owning, operating or constructing a line of railway in this state, desiring to purchase any portion of the public free school, university or asylum lands in this state, under the provisions of this law and the succeeding articles, for the location and establishment thereon of town sites, depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops, round houses or water stations, shall file with the commissioner of the general land office, if the land desired be public free school or asylum lands, and with the board of regents of the state university, if the land desired is university land, an application to purchase each tract so desired, supported by the affidavit of its president, vice-president or chief engineer, which application shall:

First. Describe by metes and bounds or otherwise sufficient to satisfy the commissioner of the general land office, or the board of regents of the state university, as the case may be, of the particular tract or tracts of land that it desires to purchase under the provisions of this law.

Second. Said application shall show that said land so applied for is desired and needed by said railway company for some one or more of the purposes for which the sale of such lands are authorized by this article, and that it is the intention of said railway company to speedily use said land for such purpose or purposes.

Third. That said application is not made for the use or benefit of any other person or corporation than the applicant, nor in collusion with, or in the interest of any other person or corporation whatsoever; and

Fourth. That said railway company applying for said land shall furnish the commissioner of the general land office, or board of regents of the state university, as the case may be, with a plat and map, together with the field-notes of each tract of land so applied for, if required by such commissioner, or board of regents, which plat and map shall accompany said application and affidavit. [Acts 1905, p. 58.]

Right of way over public lands.—See Art. 6482 and notes.

Art. 5440. Land, how sold and patent issued.—When any such application or applications shall be filed with the commissioner of the general land office for the purchase of public school land, or with the board of regents for the purchase of university land, under the provisions hereof, said commissioner, or said board of regents, as the case may be, shall investigate the matter therein set forth; and, if after such investigation, he or they shall be satisfied that the statements made in such application are true, he or they shall then determine and fix the fair and reasonable value of such tract or tracts of land, regardless of any lease therein, unless the lessee should have two hundred dollars worth of improvements thereon, in which event the consent of the lessee shall be first obtained, and he or they shall advise the applicant of the price so fixed; and, if said railway company desires said land at the price so fixed, it shall pay therefor in cash to the state treasurer the price so fixed by the commissioner of the general land office, or said board of regents, as the case may be; and the treasurer shall give his receipt showing such payment, whereupon there shall be issued and delivered to the said railway company a patent for said tract or tracts of land, to be properly executed by the governor and the commissioner of the general land office upon payment of the patent fee therefor; provided, that no mineral land shall be sold under this law. [Acts 1903, p. 127.]

Art. 5441. Limitations as to purchase.—The amount of land that may be purchased by any one railway company, or for any one railway company, under the provisions of this law, for the several purposes named in these articles, and the conditions and limitations imposed thereon, shall be as follows: If such land is desired for the purpose of the location and establishment thereon of depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops or round houses, said railway company shall be permitted to purchase only such an amount of land as may be necessary for the proper operation and maintenance of said railway, which fact shall be determined by said commissioner of the general land office, or said board of regents, as the case may be; and, if desired by them, they may, for that purpose, have the advice and assistance of the engineer of the railroad commission of Texas; and, if said land applied for be desired for water stations at points on or near said line of railway where it is necessary to construct and maintain a dam and reservoir for the impounding of rain water, for the operation and use of said railway, sufficient land may be sold for such purpose as may be necessary for the proper construction, preservation and maintenance of such water station, not to exceed six hundred and forty acres for each water station. And, if said land be desired for the location and establishment thereon of a town site, not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres shall be sold for each town site. Provided, that, if any railway company shall fail to use said land so purchased by it under any of the provisions of these articles, for the purpose for which same was sold, within five years from the date of the patent for each tract of land sold, said land, and all improvements thereon belonging to said railway company shall revert to the fund to which it formerly belonged. And provided, further, that, if said land is sold for town site purposes, such tract must be at least eight miles distant from any other tract of land sold for the same purpose to said railway company, and, after such sale, no other tract or tracts of land shall ever be sold to said railway company, or its assigns, for town site purposes, adjoining said tract sold for such purpose. And provided, further, that if the land applied for be for the purpose of depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops or round houses, the land applied for for such purposes must adjoin the line of road, railroad tracks or right of way of said railway company; and all lands sold for town sites must either adjoin said railway tracks, line of road or right of way, or adjoin land sold under the provisions hereof to said railway company for depots, stations, yards, divisional terminals, shops or round houses. And provided, further, that all lands acquired for town site purposes under these articles shall be in good faith placed upon the market for sale, and said railway company shall alienate the title to said land so sold to said railway company within the term of ten years after acquiring title to same. And provided, further, that, if said land be desired for a water station and reservoir for the impounding of rain water for the use and operation of said railway, each tract sold for such purpose must be within three miles of the line of road of said railway company, and must be at least eight miles distant from any other tract sold to the same railway company for same purpose; and, when said tract of land sold for water stations does not adjoin said line of road of said railway company, said railway shall have the right of way over any lands belonging to either of the funds mentioned in this act for its water mains from its said water station to its line of railway. [Acts 1905, p. 58.]

Art. 5442. Applications for less than 320 acres to particularly describe.—If any railway company desires to purchase any public free school land under the conditions and provisions of the foregoing articles out of any tract of such public free school land containing less than three hundred and twenty acres, it shall, in its application therefor, describe by metes and bounds, or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the commissioner of the general land office, the particular portion of any existing survey which it may so desire to purchase, and such commissioner shall be and is hereby authorized to sell such number of acres so applied for, though less than the whole survey, under the provisions and conditions of the foregoing articles, but all sales of less than the entire tract shall be in eighty acre tracts, or multiples thereof. [id. sec. 4.]

Art. 5443. No actual settlement required.—This law shall not be construed to require any character of actual settlement to be made upon the land sold under its provisions previous to the sale and patent thereof, nor shall it be construed in any way changing or modifying the present laws in relation to the sale of public free school, university and asylum lands of this state, except as provided for in the preceding articles. Whenever any land is sold to railway companies for the purposes mentioned in this chapter and shall be used for any other purposes than those mentioned in this chapter, then such land shall revert back to the state. All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Acts 1903, p. 127.]

Art. 5444. [4218j] Regulations as to occupancy.—The commissioner of the general land office shall prescribe suitable regulations whereby all purchasers shall be required to reside upon, as a home, the land purchased by them for three consecutive years next succeeding the date of their purchase, except when otherwise provided. Such regulations shall require the purchaser to reside upon the land for three consecutive years herein mentioned, and to make proper proof of such residence and occupancy to the commissioner of the general land office within two years next after the expiration of said three years, by his affidavit, corroborated by the affidavits of three disinterested and credible persons, to be certified by some officer authorized to administer oaths; and on making such proof the commissioner shall issue to the purchaser, his heirs and assigns, a certificate showing that fact. If any person has sold the whole, or any part of, his purchase under this or any former law, his vendee, or if he refuses to do so, the vendor himself, may make proof of occupancy as provided herein.

See Pulliam v. Runnels County, 79 T. 363, 15 S. W. 277; Cassin v. La Salle County,
1 C. A. 127, 21 S. W. 122; Dunn v. Wing, 103 T. 393, 128 S. W. 108.

Occupancy in general.—On a purchase of state school land, an actual settlement for three years from the date of the original purchase held essential to the acquisition — Of tracts additional to home tracts.—See notes under Art. 5410, and see also,

Arts. 5426, 5436.

Unsurveyed or scrap lands.—See Art. 5432 and notes.

By purchasers owning timber on land.—See Arts. 5430, 5431, and notes.

By substituted purchasers.—See Arts. 6435, 6440 and notes.

In certain counties.—See Arts. 5418, 5419, and 5422.

Under Act 1905, § 4 (Gen. Laws 1905, c. 103), requiring purchasers of school land to settle thereon within 90 days after acceptance of their applications, and to file an affidavit of good faith within the 90 days, and under section 5, giving preference rights of purchase to original lessees or their assignees, and providing that if one purchasing under the section does not comply with the law as to settlement, application for the sale shall be cancelled, a purchaser under section 5 need not file the affidavit required by section 4. Hanna v. Atchison (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 190.

Certificate of occupancy.—In general.—While the land commissioner can act upon the statutory proof and certificates, yet if doubt is thrown upon the disinterestedness and credibility of the witnesses, he should enquire into the matter and refuse the certificate if he is satisfied that the land had not been resided upon for the period required by law. Logan v. Curry, 96 T. 664, 69 S. W. 131.

The defense of innocent purchaser of land under a certificate of occupancy is good against an attack of the state upon the sale on the ground of nonoccupancy. State v. Hughes, 97 T. 650, 80 S. W. 624.

Neither this article nor Art. 5445 require the commissioner of the land office to give more than one certificate, which is as to the occupancy of the tract on which the purchaser or those under whom he claims have resided and actually maintained a home; therefore mandamus will not lie to compel him to give another certificate as to the sufficiency of the same occupation as a compliance with the statute as to other lands purchased from the state. Conger v. Robison, 104 T. 141, 135 S. W. 110.

Conclusiveness.—The certificate issued by the commissioner can be attacked collusively, where the proof shows that the only real settler, the sale to him will be declared void. Logan v. Curry (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 82.

A certificate of occupancy is conclusive, except perhaps as to the state. Logan v. Sperry, 96 T. 664, 69 S. W. 131.

Against one claiming public land under settlement and application to purchase, a certificate of occupancy issued by the commissioner of the general land office to others after his rights accrued, and after he commenced action against them for the land, is not conclusive. May v. Hollingsworth, 92 C. A. 245, 74 S. W. 592.

One applying for land, after the commissioner of the general land office has accepted another's proof of occupancy and issued his certificate, cannot controvert the fact of occupancy. Smith v. McClain, 39 C. A. 152, 87 S. W. 212.

The issuance of a certificate of settlement and occupancy is conclusive, not only as to rights accruing thereafter but also against claims of an actual settler on the land before the issuance of the certificate, who did not seek to assert any right to the land at law until after the issuance of the certificate. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 433-435.

A certificate of occupancy issued by the commissioner of the general land office covering a home section of school land concludes the question of occupancy as affecting the settler's right to an additional section. Zettlemeyer v. Shuler, 52 C. A. 618, 115 S. W. 78.

A certificate of occupancy of school lands held not conclusive as against a prior claimant to the land. Barnes v. Williams, 102 T. 444, 119 S. W. 89.

A certificate of three years' occupancy of school lands is not conclusive as against a claimant whose rights accrued before the issuance of the certificate. Gilmore v. Lockwood, 57 C. A. 616, 124 S. W. 111.

A certificate of three years' occupancy is not conclusive as to the good faith required of the settler by Art. 5424. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Revocation of certificate.—Commissioner of land office held to have no authority to reverse his determination as to occupancy to the prejudice of holder of a certificate thereof. Smith v. McClain, 39 C. A. 152, 87 S. W. 212.

Where a certificate is issued by the commissioner, showing that the purchaser has occupied the land as required by statute, it cannot be revoked for failure to so occupy. Mitchell v. Robison, 102 T. 642, 132 S. W. 466.

Effect of absence of certificate.—Court properly disregarded title in trespass to try title, depending on purchase from land commissioner by one not a settler, and concerning whose occupancy no certificate had issued. Nowlin v. Hall (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 419.

Appellee owned a homestead within five miles of lands in controversy and on May 5, 1899, applied to purchase 640 acres and on July 15, 1899, applied to purchase 320 additional acres. The lands were awarded to him. On June 16, 1903, appellant applied to purchase 640 acres and showed a homestead on the land and the 320 as additional, but his application was rejected. He moved on the lands June 9, 1902, for purpose of building a home there and still resides on the land. On August 2, 1902, appellee made his proofs of occupancy of the land for three years and the same was filed in the land office August 4, 1902, and the case kept on the commissioner's file, but it is not made to appear that the commissioner issued a certificate showing the fact. Before the proofs had been filed affidavit setting up appellee's abandonment of the land had been filed by appellant with the land commissioner. The trial court erred in refusing to allow appellant to show that appellee had abandoned his homestead before the expiration of three years from the date of his application. Forrester v. Berry, 35 C. A. 175, 79 S. W. 691, 692.

Prior to the issuance of a certificate of three years' occupancy, an actual settler on school land whose application had been rejected might contest the right of the person to whom the land was awarded on the ground that the latter was not or had not remained an actual settler. Williams v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 432.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy.—See Arts. 5424-5426, and notes.

Affidavit of nonoccupancy.—Commissioner of general land office held not entitled to require the making of an affidavit of nonoccupancy of certain public lands as a condition precedent to selling the same. Haney v. Atwood, 42 C. A. 270, 98 S. W. 1098.

Art. 5445. Certificates of occupancy to be recorded, etc.—If a proof of occupancy has heretofore been, or should hereafter be, filed in the general land office, in accordance with the statute under which the purchase was made, or may be made, and it should be approved by the commissioner by the issuance of the certificate of its sufficiency, the said certificate may be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county or counties in which the land is situated, and shall thereafter be a muniment of title of the home tract and additional land purchased to such home tract. [Acts 1907, p. 490.]

See Conger v. Robison, 104 T. 141, 135 S. W. 110.

Certificate of occupancy.—See Art. 5444 and notes.

Admissibility in evidence.—See notes under Arts. 3696, 3707.

Under Art. 3700, making a certified copy of any instrument affecting title to land admissible in evidence when a proper predicate is laid, and this article, a certified copy of such a certificate is admissible in evidence on a proper predicate being laid. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1197.

Art. 5446. [4218 m] Coupling occupancy under second purchase to cure defects of first.—In all cases where persons have purchased, or may hereafter purchase, state, school or asylum lands under any act of the legislature authorizing the sale thereof and requiring a residence of three years thereon, and said persons have so resided upon said land, or may hereafter reside thereon, for the period of three years as required by law, and their files have been, or may hereafter be, canceled and purchases annulled by the commissioner of the general land office on account of conflict with other surveys, said persons shall have the right to purchase other lands of the classes mentioned in this article without being required to reside thereon. Persons desiring to avail themselves of the benefits of this provision shall make satisfactory proof to the commissioner of the three years’ residence under their first purchase. [Acts 1895, p. 163.]

Art. 5447. [4218 n] Vendees of original purchasers protected.—In all cases where any of the lands mentioned in this chapter have been sold prior to July 30, 1895, under any law authorizing the sale thereof, and the original purchaser shall have sold, or may hereafter sell, any part of his purchase in quantities of forty acres or multiples thereof, and the conveyance to his vendee or vendees is filed in the general land office after having been duly recorded in the proper county, the commissioner shall credit his account with the value of the land sold, and shall open up new accounts with the original purchaser and such vendee or vendees, and the commissioner shall patent said land to the owners thereof in quantities of forty acres or multiples thereof; provided, that when any of such land is situated within three miles of a county seat it may be patented in twenty acre tracts. [Id.]

Transfers by original purchaser in general.—See Arts. 5435, 5436, and notes.

Art. 5448. [4218 o] Cemetery, church and school house sites.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby authorized to patent in quantities of not less than one nor more than five acres any of the vacant and unappropriated public domain of Texas, or any of the lands mentioned in this chapter, as sites for cemeteries, churches or school houses. When the land is desired as a location for a school house, the patent shall issue to the county judge of the proper county and his successors in office in trust for that purpose; and, when desired for a church house or a cemetery, it shall be issued to trustees designated by those requesting the patent. If the land has been previously sold by the state and not patented, the owner thereof shall execute a deed therefor to the county judge, or trustees, as the case may be, and cause the same to be recorded in the office of the county clerk of the proper county, and to be filed in the general land office, and shall be entitled to credit on his account with the state for the value therefor. The value of the land and patent fee shall be paid to the commissioner of the general land office before patent issues. Such land shall be taken from the margin of a tract or section, or of a subdivision thereof, as the case may be. [Id.]

Art. 5449. [4218p] Accounts, etc., with purchasers to be kept.—The commissioner of the general land office shall retain in his custody as records of his office all applications, affidavits, obligations and all other papers relating to sales of said lands, and shall cause to be kept accurate accounts with each purchaser. All purchase money due upon lands, as well as accrued interest, and all other moneys arising from the sales or leases of said lands shall be paid by the purchaser or lessee direct to the land commissioner, who shall cause an accurate account to be kept with each purchaser. [Id.]

Art. 5449a. Relief to certain persons compelled to defend suit because of erroneous award, etc.—That any person who has filed on any of the public school lands of this state, subsequent to January 1st, 1907, and prior to January 1st, 1913, and to whom an award was made, and afterwards canceled, or withdrawn before the expiration of the time required by law, to make settlement on said land; and to whom said land was again awarded by the commissioner of the general land office, after the cancellation by him of a prior erroneous award, to third parties; and who has been compelled to defend a lawsuit to obtain title to, or possession of said land because of such erroneous award, or awards of said land, made by the commissioner of the general land office, to an adverse party or parties; shall in making proof of occupancy of said land, be entitled to credit for the full time said land was in litigation, and from the date of the applications to purchase were filed as a result of said erroneous award or awards; and, be it further provided, that the party to whom the land should have been awarded, in the first instance, in estimating the cost of the improvements required by law to be put upon said land; shall be entitled to credit for the value of all improvements placed on said land subsequent to January 1st, 1907, and prior to January 1st, 1913. [Acts 1913, p. 66, sec. 1.]

Art. 5449b. Certain sales and patents validated.—All public school lands sold by the State of Texas, and patented prior to the first day of October, 1883, applied for and sold by virtue of the Act of 1879, approved July 18th [8th], 1879, relating to the sale of public free school lands in organized counties, and the Act approved April 6, 1881, relating to the sale of such lands in unorganized counties sold and patented prior to said October 1, 1883, wherein the original patentee has paid the state school fund for said land, and has sold and parted with the title thereto, prior to the first day of June, 1895, and wherein said lands are now owned and in the possession of subsequent purchasers for value the title to same in the present owners is hereby quieted, and the said sales and patents validated. [Acts 1913, p. 351, sec. 1.]

LEASES

Art. 5450. [4218y] Commissioner may withhold agricultural lands from lease, when.—The commissioner of the general land office may withhold from lease any agricultural lands necessary for the purpose of settlement; and no agricultural lands shall be leased, if, in the judgment of the commissioner, they may be in immediate demand for settlement, but such lands shall be held for settlement, and sold to actual settlers only, under the provisions of this chapter. [Amended 1897, p. 184.]

Former law—Isolated and detached lands.—See notes under Art. 5432.
Chap. 9) LANDS—PUBLIC  Art. 5452

Art. 5451. [4218r] Commissioner to advertise lands for lease, how. —All leases under the provisions of this chapter may be advertised by the commissioner in such manner as he may think best, and let to the highest responsible bidder in such quantities and under such regulations as he may think to the best interest of the state not inconsistent with the equities of the occupant. All bids and offers to lease may be rejected by him prior to signing the lease contract, for fraud or collusion, or other good and sufficient cause.

Discretion of commissioner.—Under this article as amended by act of 1897, it was discretionary with the commissioner to advertise or not as he deemed best and this discretion the courts have no power to control. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 906.

Art. 5452. Leases, how and when made.—Any person desiring to lease any portion of the lands belonging to any of the funds mentioned in this chapter shall make application in writing to the commissioner of the general land office, specifying and describing the particular lands he desires to lease; and thereupon the commissioner, if the lands applied for are subject to lease, and not in immediate demand for actual settlement, shall notify the applicant in writing who offers the highest price, that his proposition to lease is accepted; and thereupon he shall execute to the lessee in the name and by the authority of the state of Texas a lease of said lands for such time as may be agreed upon, not to exceed five years; and, when satisfied that the lessee has paid to the state the rent for one year in advance, he shall deliver said lease to the clerk of the county court of the county in which the land is situated, or of the county to which said county is attached for judicial purposes; and it shall be the duty of the clerk to record in a well-bound book kept in his office, open to public inspection, a memorandum or abstract of said lease, showing the number of the survey or surveys leased, the name of the original grantee, the amount leased, the name of the lessee, the date of the lease and the number of years it has to run; and for entering said memorandum the clerk shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents. Upon payment of said fee, the clerk shall deliver the lease to the lessee, and no other record of leases hereafter made shall be required, except said memorandum. When any of such leases are filed for record, the clerk shall make the memorandum or abstract above provided for. All lands which may be leased shall be subject to sale at any time, except where otherwise provided herein. This provision in regard to the sale of leased lands shall apply to leases heretofore made as well as to those hereafter to be made. Any section, or part of a section, which may be leased shall not be sold except to the lessee, nor shall the lessee be disturbed in his possession thereof during the term of his lease, when he has placed on such section, or part of a section, improvements to the value of two hundred dollars. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 4.]

Authority to lease in general.—See, also, note under Art. 5455.

The commissioner of the general land office has authority to lease unsurveyed lands. Harrington v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 585.

The land commissioner both before and after the amendment of 1897 was authorized to lease the school, asylum and other lands. Sullivan v. Hall, 22 C. A. 440, 55 S. W. 679.

Where lands are a part of the void surveys made by the Houston & Texas Central Railway Company within the Memphis & El Paso reservation, and being otherwise unappropriated, had become a part of the public free school fund the land commissioner has power to lease them. The above-mentioned reservations did not constitute an appropriation of the public lands situated therein. The lands were merely withdrawn from location and survey by others than those for whose benefit the reservations were created. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 704.

Conflicting applications.—Where one makes application and it is erroneously rejected by the land commissioner and he fails to take steps to compel acceptance of his application, and another makes application which is granted and the lease made, the former cannot by making application subsequently have the lease to second applicant canceled and thus recover the land, because by his action he acquired no such right to the land as entitled him to recover from the second applicant to whom the land was leased. Watts v. Cotton, 26 C. A. 72, 65 S. W. 391.

Construction and validity of lease.—A lease of public lands is not invalid because they are designated as school lands when not yet allotted to any fund. Harrington v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 585.

LANDS—PUBLIC

Art. 5452

Construction impliedly given by commissioner of the land office as to duration of leases on school lands sustained. McGee v. Corbin, 96 T. 55, 70 S. W. 79. A lease of school lands held invalid. Fish Cattle Co. v. Terrell, 97 T. 490, 80 S. W. 73.

Validating by ratification. — Action of commissioner in recognizing an invalid lease of school lands, and of treasurer in accepting rent thereunder, held not a ratification by the state. Sayles v. Rogan, 92 S. W. 685.

Acts of land commissioner and state treasurer held to be a ratification of act of deputy district clerk in adding to a lease of public lands. McGill v. Sites (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 605.

Recording lease. — Sayles’ Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218a, provided that all leases thereafter made and not recorded should be filed for record as therein provided within three months after the taking effect of the act.

This article (Sayles’ Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218a) was evidently remedial in so far as the law required that lease contracts held more than three years not recorded by the state should not only receive the condition up to the time of the passage of the act but recognizes the leases as valid, and extends the time within which they might be recorded for three months after the date this act took effect. Irwin & Sanders v. Mayes, 92 S. A. 517, 73 S. W. 35.

Clerk’s certificate. — A lease is invalid if there is no evidence that the application was accompanied with the clerk’s certificate that no lease of said land is of record in his office. Without this certificate the land commissioner has no right to make the lease. Irwin & Sanders v. Mayes, 92 S. A. 517, 73 S. W. 35 (decision under Sayles’ Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218a).

Payment of rent. — Where a lease of school lands is of the sections by name and for a sum in gross, it may be doubted whether a small deficiency of acreage in one of the sections would entitle the lessee to any abatement of the rent. People v. Terrell, 97 T. 74, 76 S. W. 432.

The commissioner of the general land office has no authority to receive less than a year and a day on the lease of school lands. Sherrod v. Terrell, 97 T. 165, 76 S. W. 413.

Constitutional leasing of school lands being in good standing, consolidated lease of same lands reserving the same rentals being void, payments on consolidated lease should be applied to constituent leases, thereby keeping them in force. Scott v. Slaughter, 35 S. 594, 80 S. W. 643.

Year’s rental, deposited with an application for the lease of school lands, held to be properly applied to an existing lease, which applicant held covering the same lands, so that a new lease was void. Thomason Bros. v. Lynn, 38 C. A. 79, 81 S. W. 330.

Extension or renewal of lease. — See Art. 5453, and notes.

Assignment of lease. — Transfer of lease of school lands void in part held to amount to a consideration for money paid therefor. Scott v. Slaughter, 35 C. A. 524, 80 S. W. 643.

Want of consent by commissioner of general land office to transfer of lease of school land would not bar ejectment, in order to base a forfeiture thereon. Id.

Where the commissioner of the general land office did not claim a forfeiture of a lease of school lands on the ground of want of consent to a transfer thereof, the transferee could not set up such want of consent in order to defeat his contract. Id.

In an action on a note given for the conveyance of a leasehold estate in state lands, the fact that the commissioner of the land office did not consent to the conveyance was no defense. Wilkinson v. Sweet (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 702.

A transfer of a lease of public lands is authorized to be filed in the land office, without being acknowledged by the grantor or recorded in the county where the land is. Mc Kee v. West, 55 C. A. 460, 115 S. W. 1135.

Leased land subject to sale. — See, also, Art. 5453.

The provision that all leased lands shall be subject to sale except as otherwise provided applies not to leases acquired, and not 5455, and hence did not repeal the latter section. Sayles v. Robison, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

Improvements exempting from sale. — The burden is on the applicant to purchase leased land to show that at the date of his application the lessee did not have improvements of value of $500. White v. Fyron, 23 C. A. 105, 77 S. W. 26.

Evidence held to support a verdict that improvements on public lands were not worth $200. Shelton v. Willis, 23 C. A. 547, 68 S. W. 176.

All public free school lands are subject to sale, including those that have been leased, but a lessee shall not be disturbed during term of his lease when he has made improvements of value of $200. The burden is on him claiming benefit of exception that there are improvements exceeding in value $200. Id.

If one wishes to bring himself within the second clause of the exceptions contained in this article (Sayles’ Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4218a) the burden is on him to show that the improvements are of permanent character. Clark v. McKnight, 25 C. A. 60, 61 S. W. 50.

Where one makes application to purchase school land within a five-mile radius duly classified, appraised and placed on the market for sale, and makes the first payment, he is entitled to recover although the land is under lease if the purchaser in the lease has not acquired or put on the land improvements worth $200. Id.

The lessee had the right, when his lease was made subject to sale to actual settler before the expiration of the term by making improvements upon a section of value of $200, to take it out of the rule and make his lease absolute as to such section. Hazlwood v. Rogan, 95 T. 295, 57 S. W. 82, 83.

Making of valuable improvements on school lands by lessee, claiming under a void lease substituted for a valid one, before the expiration of the term, held not to prevent the purchase of the land by another on expiration of the valid lease. Ketner v. Rogan, 95 T. 555, 68 S. W. 774.

Making unauthorized leases. — The provisions concerning leases theretofore made refer to valid leases and the purpose is to make clear what leased lands shall be subject and what ones not subject to sale. There is nothing whatever to indicate a purpose to validate unauthorized leases. Ketner v. Rogan, 95 T. 559, 68 S. W. 777.
Art. 5453. Regulations as to leases in absolute lease districts.—The following counties shall constitute the absolute lease district, to wit: El Paso, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Reeves, Pecos, Loving, Winkler, Ward, Yoakum, Terry, Gaines, Andrews, Ector, Midland, Upton, Crane, Crockett, Sutton, Val Verde, Edwards, Kinney, Maverick, Zavala, Dimmit, La Salle, McMullen, Webb, Duval, Nueces, Kimble, Zapata, Starr, Hidalgo and Cameron. All tracts of land lying partly inside and partly outside of the absolute lease district shall be considered, for the purpose of sale and lease, as being wholly without said district. And lands situated in the absolute lease district which may be leased shall not be sold during the term of the lease, except as provided herein. On the expiration of any lease in the absolute lease district, the lands shall remain subject to sale for a period of ninety days, and, if it has been previously classified and valued by the commissioner of the general land office, and notice given to the county clerk, it shall not be necessary to give the clerk any further notice in order to put the land on the market, but it shall be considered as already on the market and subject to sale. During said period of ninety days, the commissioner of the general land office shall suspend action upon any application to lease said land, and shall award it upon any legal application to purchase made during said time. The party purchasing any of said lands, whether inside or outside of the absolute lease district, within the inclosure of another, shall not turn loose any stock within the inclosure until he shall have provided sufficient water for the stock so turned loose, and any violation of this provision shall be an offense, and, upon conviction, the party so offending shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code. If no application to purchase has been filed within ninety days after the expiration of the lease, then the former lessee shall have a preference right over any one else for thirty days thereafter to re-lease such lands, or any part thereof, but his lease shall run from the expiration of his old lease. In all cases where the lease is terminated under any of the provisions of this chapter before the expiration of the term of lease, the lessee shall have a pro rata credit upon his next year’s rent or the money refunded to him by the treasurer, as he may elect. On the expiration of his lease or its termination under the provisions of law, or by a final judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction, the lessee shall have the right for the period of sixty days to remove any or all improvements he shall have placed upon the leased premises. No purchaser or other person than the lessee shall be permitted to turn loose within such lessee’s inclosure more than one head of horses, mules or cattle or in lieu thereof, four head of sheep or goats, for every ten acres of land so purchased, owned or controlled by him and uninclosed. Each violation of the provisions of this chapter which restrict the number of stock which may be turned loose in such inclosure shall be an offense, and the offender, on conviction, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code. The commissioner of the general land office is hereby prohibited from renewing any lease before its expiration, as shown on the face of the original lease contract; and no lease contract shall be canceled, except in cases where the land has been, or may be, sold as provided by law, or where the lessee fails to pay the annual rental due the state within sixty days from the date it becomes due. And when the lessee shall fail to pay his annual rental within sixty days after it becomes due, the commissioner of the general land office shall cancel said lease, and immediately notify the county clerk of the county in which the land, or a part thereof, is situated, of the cancellation and the date when canceled, and the clerk shall note the date of cancellation on his lease record. [Acts 1901, p. 292, sec. 5.]

Constitutionality of prior law.—Acts 1897, pp. 185, 187, providing that in a certain section of the state leased land shall not be subject to sale during the term of the lease, is not a local law and is not violative of the constitution. A law is not local that operates upon subject in which the people at large are interested. Reed v. Kogan, 94 Tex. 177, 59 S. W. 257.

VERN.S.CIV.ST.—227 3617
Sale of leased lands in general.—See, also, note under "Preferential rights of lessee," post.
Removal of Improvements.—See, also, Art. 5457.
Defendant took a lease from the land commissioner of public school lands, and, in reliance thereon, placed movable improvements thereon. Afterwards, and during the term of the lease, plaintiff bought the land and, in trespass to try title recovered judgment, which was affirmed by the court of civil appeals: the lease being held void. Writ of mandamus was denied by the supreme court, which afterwards overruled a motion for rehearing. Held that there was no law permitting a rehearing in the supreme court when an application for writ of error is denied by it, and the judgment became final when such application was denied, which was more than 60 days prior to issuance of mandate by the court of civil appeals which was because of the dependency of such motion for rehearing, and defendant did not within such 60 days demand of plaintiff the right to remove such improvements, he may recover their value.

Cancellation of lease.—See, also, Art. 5456 and notes.
Acts 1901, p. 296, c. 125, was supplemental to and amendatory of the previous laws, and repealed the existing statutes only in so far as they were in conflict therewith. The only change in reference to the canceling of the lease is that the new law clearly makes it the duty of the commissioner to cancel the lease and immediately give notice of the fact to the county clerk, of the county in which the land lies. Willoughby v. Terrell, 99 T. 488, 90 S. W. 1022.

The provision in this section clearly implies that upon the failure of the lessee to pay within 60 days, it was the duty of the commissioner by some official action to declare the lease forfeited, and that until this was done the land was not on the market for sale. Id.

Clerk’s record as evidence.—The record of the county clerk of the cancellation of a lease is admissible in evidence to show such cancellation. Valentine v. Sweatt, 34 C. A. 125, 98 S. W. 387.

Damages for violation of statute.—Where defendant acquired title to land previously inclosed in plaintiff’s pasture, plaintiff was entitled to recover for grass and water consumed by defendant’s cattle placed in the pasture in excess of the number defendant’s land would support. Lyons v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 192.

Where defendant turned more cattle in plaintiff’s pasture than defendant’s land included therein was capable of supporting, plaintiff was not precluded from recovering damages by the fact that there was other land in the pasture owned and used by third persons. Id.

Plaintiff, having inclosed certain land, held not required to fence off a portion thereof of subsequently sold by the state to defendant, in order to protect himself against defendant’s stock. Id.

The provision regarding the number of head of stock that may be pastured by a purchaser within a lessee’s inclosure has effect only upon lands bought under its provisions. At time act was passed the defendant’s two sections had been sold by the state. Id.

Art. 5454. Expired leases; regulations as to.—When a lease expires or is canceled for any cause, the commissioner shall not consider an application to lease the land prior to ninety days from such expiration or cancellation, and no lease on any land shall be made if it is in demand by purchasers. An original lessee, or the assignee of an entire leasehold, who was such owner at the date of the termination thereof, shall have a preference to another lease of the land at the expiration of the ninety days after another applicant to lease, provided he is willing to pay and will pay as much therefor as another, after due publicity; provided, no lease shall be made at less than three cents per acre. [Acts 1905, p. 159, sec. 7.]

Preference to re-lease.—See Art. 5453 and notes.
Cancellation of lease.—See Arts. 5453, 5456, and notes.

Art. 5455. [4218] Where lessees secure permanent water, rights of.—Any person desiring to lease any portion of the lands aforesaid on which no permanent water supply exists, shall notify the commissioner of the general land office in writing that he desires to lease lands, specifying and describing them, provided he can obtain the necessary supply of water by boring or otherwise, and that he will within ninety days lease said lands, provided such water supply can be obtained; he shall also make and file with the commissioner of the general land office his bond, with good and sufficient personal security, in a sum equal to one year’s rental of the quantity of land applied for, payable to the state of Texas, conditioned that he will diligently and in good faith try to secure water on such land during such ninety days, and it secured will lease the designated lands for the term prescribed herein; and thereupon the commissioner shall for such ninety days withhold the lands thus designated from lease to any other person; within or at the expiration of said ninety days and annually thereafter such applicant to lease shall pay to the state of Texas, in advance, one year's rental of the land applied for by him; on satisfactory proof of which payment the commissioner shall execute and deliver to the lessee a lease of the said lands, signed by himself officially and attested by the seal of the land office, together with which he shall deliver up the bond of said lessee, marked, "Satisfied." If the said lessee shall fail to apply for his lease and make the payment aforesaid within said ninety days, and shall also within said nine days fail to make proof to the satisfaction of the commissioner of the general land office within that time that he has in good faith and diligently used proper means and expended proper efforts to secure a water supply on such land and failed, then and in that case the commissioner shall mark said bond, "Forfeited," and shall deliver the same to the attorney general of the state, who shall at once cause the said bond to be sued upon and collected; and such collection shall become a part of the available school fund. The penalty stated in such bond is hereby declared to be liquidated damages, and judgment for that sum shall in all cases be recovered by the state. Proof satisfactory to the commissioner of the general land office that proper, suitable and diligent effort had been made by such applicant to secure water, and that sufficient water could not be secured, shall relieve the principal and sureties on said bond from all responsibility therein, and it shall be marked, "Satisfied," by said commissioner and delivered to the principal therein. No lease of less than four sections of unwatered pasture lands shall be made, unless such less number includes all unleased land in that vicinity belonging to the several funds mentioned in this chapter. Lessees or their vendees who shall have at their own expense secured water on their leaseholds in accordance with the provisions of this article shall, at the expiration of their lease contract, have the right to a renewal of their leases for another term of five years at the price then provided by law, by giving sixty days' written notice to the commissioner, as provided in the preceding article. [Acts 1895, p. 63.]

Not repealed.—The provision of Art. 5452 that all leased lands shall be subject to sale except as otherwise provided, applies to the ordinary lease, and not to leases acquired under this article, and hence did not repeal this article. Sayles v. Robison, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

There is no repugnancy between Acts 1895, c. 47, § 17 (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218r [Art. 5455 herein]), section 18 (Rev. St. 1895, Art. 4218s [see Art. 5455 herein]), and section 19 (Rev. St. 1895, Art. 4218t [Art. 5455 herein]); the first two making rules for lands generally, and the last section applying specially to lands having no permanent water supply, and such sections having been re-enacted without change, as part of the Revised Statutes, section 19 (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4218t [Art. 5455 herein]) was not repealed by implication by the former sections of the statute. Id.

Power of commissioner.—The power of the land commissioner to lease the public lands and under given circumstances to cancel such leases and thereafter again to re-lease the same, seems to be expressly given. From such express powers it seems the power to consent to an assignment of the lease may be fairly implied especially in view of the legislative recognition of "vendees of lessees" in the latter part of this article, relating to certain leases of school lands there authorized, and the further apparent, if not real, recognition of such assignments by the supreme court in the case of Hazlewood v. Brown, 86 T. 285, 67 S. W. 93. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 65 S. W. 706.

Condition of renewal.—This article means that the lessees shall pay the price provided by law at the time of the renewal. Sayles v. Robison, 103 T. 430, 129 S. W. 346.

Art. 5456. [4218v] Lease, how forfeited; lien on improvements for rents.—If any lessee shall fail to pay the annual rent due, in advance, for any year, within sixty days after such rent shall become due, the commissioner shall cancel said lease by writing under his hand and seal of office, which writing shall be filed with the other papers relating to such lease, and thereupon such lease shall immediately terminate. During the continuance of all leases, and after forfeiture, the state shall have a lien upon all property owned by the lessee upon the leased premises to secure the payment of all rents due, which lien shall be superior to all other liens whatsoever; and it shall not be essential to the preservation or validity of such lien that it shall be reserved in the instrument of lease. [Acts 1901, p. 29, sec. 5.]

Nonpayment does not work forfeiture ipso facto.—A lessee has the right to make payment at any time before formal cancellation, failure to pay as required not working a forfeiture ipso facto. People v. Terrell, 97 T. 74, 76 S. W. 433.

Cancellation of lease in general.—See also, Art. 5453 and note.

Where a certain lease is shown to have been canceled, and there is evidence that it should not have been, the said evidence will not affect the fact that it was canceled. Borell v. W. v. M., 42 S. W. 300.

Upon production of lease of territory within the absolute lease district, prima facie title at least was shown in the lessee and the burden was on the one attacking the title to show that not only cause for forfeiture existed but that in fact the commissioner had declined to act as required by the statute, to cancel the lease under his hand and seal of office, and the writing filed with the other papers relating to such lease. Stokes v. Riley, 29 C. A. 373, 68 S. W. 765.

A land commissioner held to have no power to cancel an existing lease of school lands and execute another lease to the holder of the lease so canceled. Blevins v. Terrell, 96 T. 411, 73 S. W. 515.

Where a valid lease of school lands was illegally canceled and an intervening lease executed, and after the expiration of the first lease the intervening lease was canceled and a third lease executed, the latter lease held valid. Id.

Rights of a lessee of public lands held terminable by an informal cancellation under the facts. West v. Terrell, 96 T. 548, 74 S. W. 903.

The fact that application for new lease of public lands was made by lessee before expiration of his old lease held not to affect power of commissioner to cancel and re­let. Id.

Cancelling that such formal declaration of cancellation was essential in order to terminate the rights of a lessee by the mere act of the commissioner, such rights might also be terminated by an informal cancellation, when the right to cancel existed and all parties concerned agreed to or acquiesced in it. Id.

This article requires a declaration cancelling a lease to be in writing under the com­missioner and to be filed with the other papers relating to the lease. Such paper is essential to cancellation of a lease. Bradford v. Brown, 37 C. A. 323, 84 S. W. 352.

A letter from the land commissioner to the state treasurer and the county clerk of the county in which the land lay, and the award of the land to an assignee of the lessees to note a cancellation of the lease on their records, do not show such a formal cancellation of the lease as this article requires before an applicant is entitled to purchase. Patterson v. Knapp (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 126.

A land commissioner had no power to cancel a lease before its termination where there had been no failure to pay the rentals due, and issue a new lease of the same land to the same lessee for a longer period. McGill v. Sites (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 696.

Payment of arrears as condition to new lease.—Lands were leased in 1890 for 10 years under the law of 1887, but were forfeited by the commissioner in 1894 for the non­payment of rent. In 1897 a second lease was made to the lessee in the first lease with­out his having paid the arrearages, and therefore it is urged that the second lease is invalid. This law (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4215v, providing that a new lease shall not be entered into until all arrears under the original lease are paid) relied on to show the invalidity was not passed until 1895, and does not apply to forfeitures that had already occurred when the act took effect. The language of the law is clearly prospec­tive, and applies to future events only. The words (in this law) "such lease shall not be original to the lessee until all arrears are fully paid" mean the leases mentioned in the provision which immediately precedes; that is, leases authorized upon forfeitures thereafter to be incurred. The legislature had in mind only future forfeitures, and did not intend that the law should apply to those which had occurred before the act took effect. Angi v. Terrell, 97 T. 563, 80 S. W. 225.

This article only applies to the original lease, so that where, after forfeiture of a lease of school lands, for failure to pay rent, the lease was canceled, subsequent leases made to the original lessee and his assignee as tenants in common, were not void under this article. Rhue v. Terrell, 100 T. 628, 103 S. W. 451.

Art. 5457. [4218w] Lessees may remove improvements, when.—All improvements made by lessees on lands leased by them are hereby declared to be personal property, which may be removed by such lessees on the expiration of their lease contracts; and they shall have sixty days after such expiration in which to remove the same. A Removal of improvements.—See also, Art. 5453 and note.

Improvements placed on school lands by a purchaser of such character so as to be considered as an illegal forfeiture of the state on the part of the lessee, together with the land of which they constitute a part. Clark v. McKnight, 25 C. A. 60, 61 S. W. 350.

Improvements constituting fixtures placed in good faith on land by an intending sett­ler under the state pre-emption laws cannot be removed by him where he fails to have the survey recorded in the general land office, and application to purchase the land is made by another. McCullers v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 502.

Recovery of value from subsequent purchaser.—One taking a void lease of public school lands, and in good faith making improvements held entitled to recover therefor of the subsequent purchaser from the state. Buchanan v. Wilburn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1198.
Art. 5458. One year to assert right to leased or sold land.—All persons claiming the right to purchase or lease any public free school lands, or any lands belonging to the state university, or either of the state asylums, which have been heretofore, or which may be hereafter, sold or leased to any other person under any provision of the law authorizing the sale or lease of any of said lands, shall bring his suit therefor within one year after the date of the award of such sale or lease, and not thereafter. [Acts 1905, p. 35.]

See Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 189.

Constitutionality of prior law.—Act May 27, 1899, requiring suits against the purchaser of public school lands to be begun within six months after the act took effect, was not retroactive, and does not deprive any one of vested rights, and is constitutional. Barnes v. Robison, 25 Civ. App. 290, 60 S. W. 813.

Limitation of actions in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 5469.

Under this article and Art. 5458, one claiming no interest in the home section of an original settler, cannot attack the validity of his claim thereto merely to resist his right to purchase additional lands as an incident to his settlement on and occupancy of the home section. Murphy v. Terrell, 100 T. 397, 100 S. W. 131.

After more than a year has elapsed after a sale of school land has been reinstated without any suit being brought to vacate same, such sale cannot thereafter be vacated at instance of a subsequent applicant to purchase. Weyert v. Terrell, 100 T. 409, 109 S. W. 133.

This article was intended to bar after one year an action to set aside an award of school land by the commissioner because of insufficient application. Tillman v. Erp (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 647.

A lease of school land for 10 years from March 22, 1898, was kept in force by regular payments of rent until June, 1900, when it was superseded by another lease including 10 years from the same land for 10 the same condition, to compel the commissioner to award the land to another, begun November 1, 1908, was barred by limitations under this act. King v. Robison, 103 T. 360, 128 S. W. 368.

This article applies to an award of lands made before passage of the act. Barnes v. Williams’ Adm’r (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 278.

Under this article, where a purchaser’s right to purchase school land is forfeited by the commissioner, his right to reinstatement, if any, is a claim of right to purchase, to which the statute applies; and, unless suit to enforce such right is instituted within a year after the award, it is barred. Nations v. Miller (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 261.

This article and Art. 5459 were intended to limit to one year the time in which an award or sale of land by the state might be attacked on the ground of irregularity by one claiming another right in the land, and was subsequently void, and was not barred by this article. Kirby v. Conn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 232.

— When statute does not apply.—The provision of this article requiring suit to be brought within 12 months from the date of the award when a purchaser desires to set aside a sale theretofore made, applies only to cases where the state recognizes the validity of the purchase being attacked, and does not apply to a case where there has been a forfeiture of the former purchase, and the land again put upon the market. Slaughter v. Terrell, 100 T. 400, 102 S. W. 402.

This law does not apply in a case where the validity of the purchase is not attacked, but the purchaser’s right to the land is assailed on the ground that he has forfeited it by nonoccupancy, and that such forfeiture had the effect of placing the land upon the market without any action of the land commissioner. Campbell v. Enochs (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 880.

This article applies only in cases in which persons claim the right to purchase land which has been sold to others, and it does not apply to an action by a purchaser of school land reinstated after a forfeiture brought against one claiming under an erroneous award subsequent to the forfeiture when such award was canceled. Davis v. Yates (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 291.

Where a purchaser of school land was reinstated after a forfeiture of his right for nonpayment of interest before any third person acquired any rights, subsequent to the forfeiture and prior to the application for reinstatement, an action of trespass to try title brought against one claiming the land under an award to one not entitled to purchase within a year after the reinstatement was not barred by this article.

This article does not apply to a void sale, but to a sale voidable for some irregularity, and no length of time can legalize a void award. Rainier v. Durrill (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 589.

— What constitutes bringing suit.—An action, within this article, is begun by filing of a motion for leave to file a petition for mandamus against the commissioner to compel him to award the land, accompanied by the petition therefor. King v. Robison, 103 T. 590, 128 S. W. 368.

Under this article the filing of an answer in trespass to try title within one year after the passage of the act, setting up such a right, is a sufficient compliance with the terms of the statute; the act simply requiring that the adverse claim be asserted within one year, and not that any particular form of action be brought. Barnes v. Patrick, 108 T. 146, 146 S. W. 564.

Pleading the statute.—This article being an act of limitations, it is necessary to plead it, in order to gain any right under it. Williams v. Keith (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1068.

The title of a purchaser of school land resulting from the operation of this article contains no need of the act, and is not a new cause of action arising from transactions during the pendency of a suit involving the right to purchase, but is a matter of law to be noticed and applied by the court, and when a year has passed without an attack on an award, it stands as if valid from the beginning, and the production of it at the trial is evidence to sustain an action for the land. Erp v. Tillman, 163 T. 574, 331 S. W. 1057.

This article is not merely a statute of limitations for the benefit of a party to a suit to be pleaded or waived, but is a rule of substantive law and a rule of evidence which the courts must take notice of, and after the expiration of the time fixed in the act the state only may interfere with purchases of school land, and in a contest as to the right to purchase school land, an award constituting the title of a purchaser may be produced in evidence without specially pleading it, and when it is produced and shown to have stood for a year, the statute makes it conclusive evidence of a valid sale against every one but the state. Id.

Jurisdiction and parties.—This act does not give the supreme court exclusive original jurisdiction of a proceeding to adjudge the validity of an award to a purchaser, and trespass to try title or a proceeding to quiet title in the district court is a proper remedy. Barnes v. Williams' Adv'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

The validity of an award of Texas school lands to a purchaser may be adjudicated without making the commissioner of the general land office a party. Id.

Art. 5459. Same.—If no suit has been instituted by any person claiming the right to purchase or lease any of said lands within the period of time limited in the foregoing article, it shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of the law with reference to the sale or lease of such lands have been complied with; provided, that nothing in this and the preceding article shall be construed to affect the state of Texas in any action or proceeding that may be brought by it in respect to any of said lands. [Id.]

Effect of act—As to state.—The statute of limitations of 1906 held not intended to deny to the state rights previously exercised as to public lands by its agents, so that the rights of one holding an invalid lease were cut off by the action of the commissioner in making a subsequent award of the land without bringing suit. Buchanan v. Barnsley, 51 C. A. 255, 112 S. W. 118.

Under this article the commissioner of the general land office could not be required to recognize an invalid sale, though the state did not repudiate it. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

As to others.—Where, by reason of the lapse of a year from the award of public school lands to plaintiff, the sale became valid as between him and a third person, though invalid as against the state because a prior sale had not been canceled, no one else could acquire a valid title by purchase. Erp v. Robison (Sup.) 155 S. W. 180.

CHAPTER TEN
SUITS TO RECOVER PUBLIC LANDS, RENTS AND DAMAGES

Art. 5460. State land agents, appointment and salary. 5461. Duties of such agents.
Art. 5462. Agents to make monthly reports.
Art. 5463. May administer oaths; traveling expenses paid.
Art. 5464. Suits to be brought.
Art. 5465. Damages recoverable.
Art. 5466. Sums recovered, how appropriated.
Art. 5467. Suits to recover lands illegally occupied.

Art. 5468. The attorney general to bring suits for lands. 5469. Suits for mineral and timber depletions.
Art. 5470. Venue.
Art. 5471. To report offenders to attorney general.
Art. 5472. Attorney general may compromise.
Art. 5473. Money to be turned over to school fund.
Art. 5474. Attorney's fees in such cases.

Article 5460. State land agents, appointment and salary.—The commissioner of the general land office, with the consent and approval of the governor, shall appoint two state land agents, who shall hold their office at the pleasure of the governor and commissioner, and receive a salary of thirteen hundred dollars each per annum. [Acts 1899, p. 170, sec. 1.]

Art. 5461. Duties of such agents.—Such agents shall have the power, and it is made their duty, to investigate and make inquiries into and concerning the location, valuation and condition of any and all lands controlled or owned by the state; also concerning the free use, occupancy or inclosure of any of said lands without authority of law, and all depredations upon timber of said lands. They shall also procure and furnish information as to location and quality of such lands to all persons desiring to purchase or lease same. [Id.]
Art. 5462. Agents to make monthly reports.—Such agents shall make monthly reports to the commissioner or governor touching any and all matters investigated by them, and make such other reports and perform such other duties relating to such lands as may be required of them by the commissioner and governor. [Id.]

Art. 5463. May administer oaths; traveling expenses paid.—For the purpose of this law, such agents shall have authority to administer oaths. In addition to the salary of such agents, they shall be allowed their actual traveling expenses, not to exceed the sum of one thousand and five hundred dollars per annum, for the expenses incurred by both of such agents, the same to be allowed only upon the duly sworn itemized statement that said sum was actually paid and necessary to the discharge of their duties. [Id.]

Art. 5464. Suits to be brought.—When said agents shall have reported that any public free school, asylum, or other public lands is or has been used or occupied or inclosed without authority of law, or that any timbered land belonging to any of said fund has been or is being destroyed, or depredated upon to the injury of such land, or the detriment of such fund, the governor shall investigate same, and in his discretion direct that suit be instituted for the recovery of such sums as may appear to be proper under this law and article 5467, or he may transmit such documents as he may deem proper to the proper officer or court for the purpose of criminal proceeding, as provided for in articles 850, 851, 852, 853, 859, 860 of the Penal Code and neither of said remedies shall be exclusive of the other, and the state may use either or both remedies; provided, that this shall not repeal any pre-existing criminal law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 5465. Damages recoverable.—In civil suits, the amount of damage for use or occupancy, or unlawful inclosure, shall be not less than five cents per acre per annum. [Id.]

Art. 5466. Sums recovered, how appropriated.—All recoveries under the preceding articles shall be paid into the state treasury for the benefit of the available school fund, or to the fund to which such land, upon which such recovery is had, may belong. For the purpose of recovery herein, the state shall not be required to prove a continuous daily use or occupancy or herding or line riding by the defendant, or any one for him; provided, that, if any person who is so unlawfully using any of said lands will either buy or lease same, and pay the arrears due thereon, no action shall be begun or continued against him. This action shall apply to individuals or corporations. [Id.]

Art. 5467. [4218x] Suits to recover lands illegally occupied.—If the governor shall at any time be credibly informed that any portion of the public lands, or the lands belonging to any of the several funds named in this chapter, have been inclosed or that fences have been erected thereon without authority of law, he is authorized in his discretion to direct the attorney general to institute suit in the name of the state for the recovery of such lands and damages, and a fee of not less than ten dollars for the attorney when the sum recovered is less than one hundred dollars, and, when it is over that sum, the fee shall be ten per cent, to be paid by the defendant for the use and occupancy of the same, and the removal of such inclosures and fences; and such damages shall not be for a less sum than five cents per acre per annum during such occupancy. For the recovery by the state of all lands sold under the provisions of this or former laws which have been, or may hereafter be, forfeited to the state for any reason, and for the recovery of any money due the state on leases made under this or former laws, and for the recovery of damages for the unlawful use and occupancy of such lands, as provided in this article, or any former laws, jurisdiction is expressly conferred on the courts of Travis county having jurisdiction thereof under the constitution concurrently with courts of the districts in which the land is situated; and all such suits shall be instituted by the attorney general, or under his direction. In suits provided for in this article, the court shall issue a writ of sequestration directed to any sheriff of the state, commanding and requiring such officer to take such land and all property thereon belonging to the person or persons so unlawfully occupying said lands into his actual custody, and hold the same subject to further orders of the court; and the state shall not be required to give bond. Such writ of sequestration may be executed by any sheriff of the state into whose hands it may be delivered, and it shall be the duty of any sheriff into whose hands it may come to proceed and execute such writ. The defendant in such suit may rely as in ordinary cases by giving bond as prescribed by law; and such cases shall have precedence on the docket and stand for trial before all other cases; and, in case judgment is recovered by the state in such suit, the court shall order such inclosure or fences to be removed, and shall tax the costs of the suit against the defendant; and all property found upon the land belonging to the defendant, not exempt from execution, shall be liable to the payment of such costs and damages in addition to the personal liability of the defendant. Appeals may be prosecuted from all judgments in such cases as in ordinary cases, except that the state shall not be required to give bond to perfect its appeal, and such cases on appeal shall have precedence over all other cases. If any person shall make a lease contract, and after the same is inclosed by fence shall for any cause decide not to continue payment of his lease, either in whole or in part, he shall give public notice by publication in any local paper having the largest circulation, for at least sixty days before the time in which his next annual payment shall become due, that he will not continue his lease after the year for which payment is made, and shall also state the number and block of the land which he will not lease inside his inclosure if he only intends to surrender a part of his lease, and shall post and shall keep posted for said sixty days notice on all gates of his pasture of such intention; then, and then only, he shall not be subject to the suit nor liable for the damages provided for in this article. [Acts 1895, p. 63, amended p. 75. Acts 1899, p. 176.]

Recovery of public lands in general.—Greer county having been decided by the United States supreme court not to be a part of Texas, the state of Texas held entitled to recover land granted to it for school purposes. Greer County v. State, 31 C. A. 223, 72 S. W. 104.

A judgment by an applicant for purchase of public lands against one holding it as tenant of the state held not to estop the state to deny that he has not acquired the right to purchase. Willoughby v. Terrell, 99 T. 488, 90 S. W. 1901.

In ejectment by the state to recover certain islands, a pleon of defendant railroad company tendering an issue as to its legal right to build a railroad across an island held to raise a mere moot question, on which it was not entitled to judgment. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 318.

In action by the state to recover land, claim by a railroad company of right of way held not to present academic question, since judgment without reservation would be conclusive against the railroad. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State, 104 T. 168, 135 S. W. 522.

In action by state to recover land, claim by defendant railroad company of right of way held not a suit against the state. id.

Grant of land located only by reference to a jacal and ranch held not available as a defense to the state's suit for public free school land, where there was no proof of the location of such jacal and ranch. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

Evidence, in an action by the state for public free school land and rents, held not to show that the land in controversy was included in the land relinquished by act of the legislature passed February 10, 1853. id.

Authority of county attorney.—A county attorney has no authority to bring suit in behalf of state to compel forfeiture to state of school lands. Duncan v. State, 28 C. A. 447, 67 S. W. 904, 905.

From innocent purchasers.—There is no such thing as an innocent purchaser as against the state, claiming under a patent issued without authority of and contrary to law. Kempner v. State, 31 C. A. 365, 72 S. W. 888.

State, in action to recover school lands in the hands of innocent purchaser, on the ground of fraud in procuring the certificate of purchase, held not entitled to prevail, on showing that commissioner of the land office committed error to questions of fact. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 608.

Complaint by state to recover school lands in the hands of an innocent purchaser, on the ground of fraud in procuring certificate of occupancy, held insufficient. Id.

Establishing title.—In an action for public free school land and rents, the state need not prove title, but can recover unless the defendants show title either from the government of Spain or the state of Texas. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

The recitals of a judgment in another action against the state that the land in controversy in the present suit was titled under the Spanish government was incompetent to show that it did not belong to the state of Texas, where such recitals were immaterial to the issues of the former case. Id.

Who may take advantage of purchaser's fraud.—The title of a purchaser of public lands acquired by fraud on the state is not open to attack, except by the state, or in cases where a prior equitable or legal right, proving v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1101; Same v. Morgan, Id. 1109; Same v. Simms, Id.

The state alone may take advantage of fraud in transactions for the acquisition of its lands, where the rights of an individual do not antedate such fraud. Campbell v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1180.

Disposition of recovered lands.—See Art. 5385.

Action for rent or damages for detention.—In the state's action for rents and public free school land detained by defendants, evidence held to support a finding for $6,000 rents. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

While the measure of the damages which the state may recover for the unlawful detention of public free school land is the reasonable rental value of such lands for the time the possession of the amount which were rented by defendants to a third person was admissible to show such value. Id.

Trespass on public lands.—The state may prevent the unauthorized inclosure of the school lands. State v. Goodnight, 70 T. 682, 11 S. W. 119. A county may recover possession against an intruder upon the county school land. Falls County v. Delaney, 73 T. 483, 11 S. W. 492.

Art. 5468. The attorney general to bring suits for lands.—When any of the lands described in this title, or any of the other public lands of the state held or owned by any fund, or any lands in which this state, or any such funds, have an interest, are held, occupied or claimed by any person or association or corporation adversely to the state, or to such fund, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to institute suit therefor, together for rent thereon, for any damages thereto; and for the purpose of any such suits for such lands, or affecting the title thereto, or right growing out of the same, the venue thereof is fixed in Travis county, Texas, concurrently with the county of defendant's residence, and the county where the land is situated; and the courts of said county shall have the same jurisdiction over the defendant and the subject matter of the same as if such defendant resided, and such property was situated, in said county. [Acts 1900, p. 29, sec. 8.]

Recovery of public lands in general.—See notes under Art. 5467.

Suits authorized to be brought.—Acts 1901, 1st, Sp. Sess., c. 4, § 11, authorizes suits in two instances. In one for the recovery from the person or persons in possession thereof, of lands which are held or claimed under titles emanating from the Spanish or Mexican governments when no valid evidence of such grants are to be found in the records or among the files of the general landoffice; and in the other when it is necessary to determine the exact location and boundaries of such lands where the evidence on file in the general landoffice does not sufficiently identify the land claimed. When the allegations in the petition show that one object of the suit is to determine the true location and boundaries of the land emanating from the Spanish or Mexican government, the suit was authorized by last provision quoted above. And when the petition shows that the defendant is claiming more land than he is entitled to by virtue of said grant, and that no legal survey of said grant has been made and field notes thereof returned to the general landoffice, as required by law, and that such excess belongs to the school fund and its recovery is sought by the suit, it is sufficient to authorize suit for said excess under the first clause of the above quoted provision of law and also under this article, and the petition was not subject to a general demurrer. Sullivan v. State, 41 C. A. 83, 95 S. W. 646.

Under this article the state is not authorized to maintain trespass to try title to school land which has been sold to a vendee who has not made default in his contract and is in good standing, even though other persons make adverse claims against the land, for lands validly sold become segregated from the mass of lands held in the several funds and cannot be said to thereafter belong to such funds. State v. Dayton Lumber Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1178.

Disposition of recovered lands.—See Art. 5385.

Art. 5469. Suit for mineral and timber depredations.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general of the state of Texas to bring suit against every person, firm, association of persons, or corporations, for the value of all minerals or other property of value taken from school, university, asylum and other public lands and for all timber which has been, or may hereafter be, cut, destroyed, sold, used or otherwise appropriated by them off of any such public lands. [Acts 1905, p. 38.]

Art. 5470. Venue.—The venue of said suits shall be in any county in Texas, or in the county where the injury occurs, or a part thereof, or in the county of the residence of the defendant, at the discretion of the attorney general. [Id.]

Art. 5471. To report offenders to attorney general.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the general land office and the county attorneys of the state to report to the attorney general semi-annually, or oftener if they desire, the names and residence of every person, firm, association of persons or corporations, who have cut, used, destroyed, sold or otherwise appropriated any timber on the aforesaid lands or taken any minerals or other property of value therefrom, and such other data and evidence as shall come to their knowledge. [Id.]

Art. 5472. Attorney general may compromise.—The attorney general shall have power by and with the consent of the governor to compromise and settle with or without suit any of the aforesaid liabilities. [Id.]

Art. 5473. Money to be turned over to school fund.—Whatever sums are collected or received by the attorney general shall be turned over by him to the permanent funds to which they belong. [Id.]

Art. 5474. Attorneys' fees in such cases.—As compensation for said services, the attorney general and county attorneys shall receive the following compensation, respectively, to be paid by the defendant as part of the costs to be taxed against the defendant, to wit: The attorney general, ten per cent; the county attorney, five per cent of the amount recovered if recovered by suit, and if recovered by compromise, then said officers shall receive one-half of the above amounts, respectively; provided, that the county attorneys shall receive compensation only from cases reported by them to the attorney general. It shall be the duty of county attorneys to assist the attorney general in whatever way they may be requested in relation to such cases. [Id.]
