whereby all physicians shall be required to keep a record of all cases of sickness, accident or injury which they treat. The physicians so employed shall be reputable practicing physicians of not less than two years of experience in practice. Each physician employed in the prison system shall, at the end of each month, file with the prison commission a report in writing, subscribed and sworn to by him; which report shall state the names, race and sex of each prisoner treated or examined by him during said month, the malady or disease with which each was afflicted, and, if any shall be suffering with wounds or injuries inflicted by accident or some individual, he shall state the nature and extent of said injuries, by whom and by what means inflicted, or how the same occurred, and all such other information concerning said matters, and the condition of each prisoner treated or examined by him during said months, as he may possess; provided, further, that for a failure to make such a report, or any false statement knowingly made by any such physician in any such reports, he shall be prosecuted for the offense of perjury or false swearing, as provided by law. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 6226. Dentists.—The prison commission shall also provide a competent dentist or dentists, whose duty it shall be to care for the teeth of the prisoners. Such dentist or dentists shall, at the direction of the prison commission, visit the various places where prisoners are kept or worked, at such intervals as may be prescribed. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 6227. Discharge of prisoner.—When a prisoner is entitled to a discharge from prison, he shall be furnished with a written or printed discharge from the prison commission, with seal affixed, signed by the chairman of the board of prison commissioners, giving prisoner's name, date of sentence, from what county sentenced, amount of commutation received, if any, the trade he has learned, if any, his proficiency in same, and such other description as may be practicable. He shall be furnished with a decent outfit of citizen's clothing of good quality and fit, two suits of underwear, five dollars in money in addition to any money held to his credit, and unredeemable and non-transferable railroad transportation to the nearest depot from whence sentenced; but, if such prisoner prefers, he may receive such transportation to any point in this state designated by him. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 6228. Visitors admitted, when.—The governor and all other members of the executive and judicial departments of the state, and members of the legislature, shall be admitted into the prisons, camps and other places where prisoners are kept or worked, at all proper hours, for the purpose of observing the conduct thereof, and may hold conversation with the convicts, apart from all prison officers. Other persons may visit the penitentiary under such rules and regulations as may be established. [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 6229. Reward for escaped convict.—The prison commission, with the governor's approval, may offer such reward for the apprehension of an escaped prisoner as may be fixed by the prison commission, and to be paid as directed by the prison commission. [Id. sec. 54.]

Art. 6230. Gambling forbidden; penalty.—No gambling shall be permitted at any prison, farm or camp where prisoners are kept or worked. Any officer or employé engaging in or knowingly permitting gambling at any such prison, farm or camp shall be immediately dismissed from the service. [Id. sec. 58.]

Art. 6231. Convicts employed on public or private works, when.—The prison commission, by and with the consent of the governor, shall have the power to work convicts on public works, when they can not employ them on the state farms or within the walls by reason of some unforeseen calamity, such as failure of crops, or the destruction of crops

Art. 6238. To labor upon public works, etc.

Art. 6239. Where confined when off duty.

Art. 6240. Refractory convicts to be punished.

Art. 6241. Female convicts.

Art. 6242. Aged or disabled convicts not to work.

Art. 6243. Their inability, how determined.

Art. 6244. Convicts to receive credit for labor.

Art. 6245. Mechanic, etc., to have extra credit.

Art. 6246. Convicts to be guarded.

Art. 6247. Costs to be paid officers.

Art. 6248. Convict may commence his labor.

Art. 6232. [3727] Commissioners' courts to establish workhouses, etc.—The commissioners' courts of the several counties may provide for the erection of a workhouse, and the establishment of a county farm in connection therewith, for the purpose of utilizing the labor of county convicts, in accordance with the provisions of the constitution. [Const., art. 16, sec. 3. Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 9, sec. 229. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879. R. S. 1879, 3585-3601.]

In general.—Under Code Cr. Proc. arts. 867, 868, and this chapter and the chapter following, one convicted of a misdemeanor and sentenced to jail may be confined in jail for the costs not more than one year in addition to the imprisonment imposed for the offense. Ex parte Spiller, 63 Cr. R. 98, 138 S. W. 1013.

Art. 6233. [3728] "County convict" defined.—A "county convict," within the meaning of the preceding article, is any person who may have been convicted of a misdemeanor or petty offense, and whose punishment has been assessed at imprisonment in the county jail for any term; or who, under a like conviction, has been adjudged to pay a pecuniary fine, and is unable so to do. [Id. p. 230, sec. 16.]

Art. 6234. [3729] Certain convicts only to do manual labor.—When the punishment assessed in a conviction for misdemeanor is confinement in the county jail for a period less than one day, the convict shall not be required to labor, either in the workhouse or elsewhere; but, when such punishment is confinement in the county jail for a longer time than one day, the convict shall be required to do manual labor in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Validity of statute in general.—Section 3, art 16, of the constitution, requiring a provision for manual labor on the part of convicts committed to jail "in default of payment of fine and costs," does not prohibit the enforcement of this article. The statute requires manual labor where the "punishment assessed" is confinement in the county jail, and is a valid exercise of legislative power without express authority in the constitution. Ex parte Bates, 37 Cr. R. 543, 40 S. W. 269.

Art. 6235. [3730] Commissioners' court to control workhouses.—County workhouses and farms shall be under the control and management of the commissioners' court; and such courts are authorized to adopt such rules and regulations not inconsistent with the laws, as they may deem necessary for the successful management and operation of said institutions and for effectively utilizing the labor of county convicts. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6236. [3731] Officers to obey their orders, etc.—The sheriff and all other peace officers shall obey the orders and regulations of the commissioners' court, made in pursuance of the preceding article, shall execute such process as may be directed by said court, and shall render
Art. 6237. [3732] Overseers and guards, etc.—Such overseers and guards may be employed under the authority of the commissioners' court as may be necessary to prevent escapes and to enforce labor on the part of convicts, and they shall be paid out of the county treasury such compensation as said court may prescribe.

Art. 6238. [3733] To labor on public works, etc.—County convicts shall be put to labor upon the public roads, bridges, or other public works of the county, when their labor can not be utilized in the county workhouse or farm, and they shall be required to labor not less than eight nor more than ten hours each day, Sundays excepted. [Id. p. 228, sec. 1.]

Power of cities to compel convicts to labor on streets.—See Title 22, Chapter 4.

Art. 6239. [3734] Where confined when off duty.—When not at labor, county convicts may be confined in the county jail or workhouse, as may be most convenient, or as the regulations of the commissioners' court may prescribe.

Art. 6240. [3735] Refractory convicts to be punished.—When a convict refuses to labor, or is otherwise refractory or insubordinate, he may be punished by solitary confinement on bread and water, or in such other manner as the commissioners' court may direct.

Art. 6241. [3736] Female convicts.—Female convicts shall, under all circumstances, be kept separate and apart from male convicts; and they shall in no case be required to do manual labor, except in the workhouse, or when hired out as is hereinafter provided.

Art. 6242. [3737] Aged or disabled convicts not to work.—A convict who, from age, disease or other disability, physical or mental, is unable to do manual labor, shall not be required to work, but shall remain in jail until his term of imprisonment is ended, or until the fine and costs adjudged against him are discharged, at the rate of one dollar for each day of such confinement in jail.

Art. 6243. [3738] Inability, how determined.—The inability of the convict to do manual labor may be determined by the opinion of a competent physician appointed for that purpose by the county judge or commissioners' court, who shall be paid for such service such compensation as the commissioners' court may allow.

Art. 6244. [3739] How to be credited on fine, etc.—When a convict who has been committed to jail in default of payment of fine and costs is required to do manual labor, he shall be credited upon such fine and costs at the rate of fifty cents for each day he may labor, and upon satisfaction of such fine and costs in full at said rate he shall be discharged; provided, such work shall be performed on public streets or roads, or on county poor farms. No convict under this chapter shall ever be required to work or be hired for more than one year. [Acts 1889, p. 14.]

In general.—Under this article and Code Cr. Proc. arts 1135, 1136, one indicted for murder and convicted of aggravated assault and battery and punished by confinement in jail for 30 days may be confined in jail for the costs previously paid by the state. Ex parte Spiller, 63 Cr. R. 39, 138 S. W. 1015.

Art. 6245. [3740] Mechanic, etc., to have extra credit.—If a convict of the kind described in the preceding article be an artisan or mechanic, and be put to labor at his trade or calling in any workhouse, or on any public work, he may be credited upon the fine and costs against him with such extra compensation for his labor as the county judge may determine to be just and proper. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 6246. [3741] Convicts to be guarded, etc.—Convicts shall be so guarded while at work as to prevent escapes; and no convict shall be compelled to labor at any kind of work nor in any avocation that would endanger his life or health. [Acts 1876, p. 230, sec. 11.]

In general.—The above article does not make the county liable for the acts of the county officer imposing labor or work on a county convict that would endanger his life. Crause v. Harris County, 18 C. A. 375, 44 S. W. 616.

Art. 6247. [3742] Costs to be paid officers.—Whenever a convict, who has been committed to jail in default of payment of fine and costs adjudged against him, has satisfied such fine and costs in full by labor in the workhouse, on the county farm, on the public roads of the county, or upon any public works of the county, said county in which said conviction was had shall be liable to each officer and witness having costs in the case against said convict for only one-half of such costs; and the county judge of said county shall issue his warrant upon the county treasurer in favor of each officer and witness for one-half of all such legal costs as may have been taxed up against said convict, not to include commissions; and the same shall be paid out of the road and bridge fund of the county, or out of any other county funds not otherwise appropriated. [Id. p. 229, sec. 8. Amend. 1895, p. 179.]

Former law.—A county was liable under article 3600, Rev. St. 1879, before its amendment in 1885, embodied in this article, for such costs only as were legally adjudged against the convict. Harris County v. Stewart, 91 T. 133, 41 S. W. 658. This article, which was article 3742, Rev. St. 1895, is an amendment to article 3600, Rev. St. 1879, and was enacted in 1895. County attorneys are entitled to commissions earned prior to the amendment of 1895, but not afterwards. Fears v. Ellis County, 20 C. A. 193, 49 S. W. 139.

Art. 6248. [3743] Convict may commute his labor.—A convict condemned to imprisonment in the county jail as the punishment, either in whole or in part, for his offense, may avoid manual labor in the workhouse or elsewhere by payment into the county treasury of one dollar for each day of the term of his imprisonment; and the receipt of the county treasurer to that effect shall be sufficient authority to the sheriff to detain such convict in jail without labor.

In general.—County attorneys are not entitled to commissions on money paid into the county treasury under this article. Fears v. Ellis County, 20 C. A. 199, 49 S. W. 139.

CHAPTER FOUR

HIRING COUNTY CONVICTS

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 6249. [3744] Convicts may be hired out.—Any person who may be convicted of a misdemeanor, or petty offense, and who shall be committed to jail in default of the payment of the fine and costs adjudged against him, may be worked upon the public roads, or upon the county farms, of the county in which such conviction is had, or be hired out to any individual, company or corporation within the county of conviction, to remain in said county; and the proceeds of said hiring, when collected, shall be applied, first, to the payment of the costs, and second, to the payment of the fine; and every convict shall be entitled to a credit of twenty-five cents on his fine and costs for each day he may serve under such hiring, including Sunday; and he shall be discharged at any time upon payment of the balance due on his fine and costs, or upon the expiration of his term of service, his term of service... in no event to be greater than one day for each fifty cents of fine and costs; provided, that in no case shall the counties be responsible to the officers for their costs, and in no case shall such convicts be hired out for a longer period than one year for failure to pay a fine and costs; and on the expiration of said time, unless by his hire such fine and costs have been sooner paid off, said convicts shall be finally discharged.

Former law.—Article 3600 of the Revised Statutes of 1879, being in force at the time the service was rendered, was not repealed by this article, and a county attorney can recover in an action against the county for his cost worked out by convicts on the public roads. Smith v. Grayson County, 18 C. A. 153, 44 S. W. 921.

Rights and liabilities of hirers of convicts.—The hirer of a convict cannot recover the amount of the convict’s fine and costs and release him. The fine and costs are the property of the county. Flewellen et al. v. Ft. Bend County, 17 C. A. 155, 42 S. W. 775.

The amount of the convict’s fine and costs was $40.40. The hirer gave bond to pay $7.50 per month until the whole of said fine and costs were paid. The bond recited that the convict should be credited 25 cents for each day he might serve under the hiring contract. The convict was discharged at the end of 81 days, this being one day for each 50 cents of the fine and costs. The hirer was compelled to pay amount of bond ($40.40) notwithstanding it provided that convict should be credited 25 cents per day for each day he was worked. This was surplusage, and the law providing that the fine and costs are paid by service for sufficient length of time to discharge same at rate of 50 cents a day became part of the contract. Gonzales County v. Houston (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 118.

Residence of parties in county of conviction.—Ex parte Medaris, 38 Cr. R. 493, 43 S. W. 517.

Fees for hiring out convicts.—See Title 58, Chapter 3.

Art. 6250. [3745] Either publicly or privately, generally or especially.—Such hiring may be either by private contract or at public auction, as may be deemed best for the interest of the county, or it may be by general contract for any specified term, embracing the labor of all county convicts of the class prescribed in the preceding article, at some fixed rate per day, week or month.

Art. 6251. [3746] Hirer shall give bond and its requisites.—Hirers of convicts shall execute bond payable to the county judge of the county, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in the amount of hire agreed upon, conditioned as follows:

1. That the hirer will promptly and faithfully pay the amount of money mentioned in the bond when the same becomes due, and it shall be stated in the bond when the same becomes due.
2. That he will treat the convict humanely while in his employment.
3. That he will furnish the convict with a sufficient quantity of good and wholesome food, with comfortable clothing and medicine when sick.
4. That he will not require the convict to work at unreasonable hours, or for a longer time during any one day than other laborers doing the same kind of labor are accustomed to work.

Such bond shall be approved by the county judge and filed in the office of the clerk of the county court. [Id. pp. 228-230, secs. 4, 12.]

Liability on bond.—See notes under Art. 6249.

County can recover on bonds given in accordance with this article for amount of fine and costs adjudged against county convict. Hill County v. Atchison, 19 C. A. 664, 45 S. W. 141.

Recovery on the bond can be had only for failure to pay the hire agreed on and not for inhuman treatment. Ellis v. Ft. Bend Co., 31 C. A. 936, 74 S. W. 45.

Even if the bond could be treated as a common law obligation, it was to permit a recovery thereon for inhuman treatment, the amount of recovery must be limited to the actual damage resulting to the county. Id.

Effect of arrest of convict.—The arrest of a convict on a capias pro fine held not to estop the county judge from denying the release of, nor to release, the obligors on the convict’s hiring bonds. Salyer v. Wilcoxon (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 684.

Requisites of bond.—A bond for hiring out a convict was held invalid where the parties to it did not reside in the county where the conviction occurred. Ex parte Medaris, 38 Cr. R. 493, 43 S. W. 517.

A convict bond having but one surety is invalid. Ex parte Millsap, 39 Cr. R. 93, 46 S. W. 20.

Discharge of bonds in general.—Methods whereby bonds for the hire of certain convicts may be discharged stated. Salyer v. Wilcoxon (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 684.

Art. 6252. [3747] Liability of hirer when convict escapes.—If a convict, hired out, escapes from the hirer, such hirer shall nevertheless be liable for the full amount of the bond, unless such convict is rear-rested and placed in the custody of the sheriff of the county in which he was convicted before such bond becomes due; in which case such hirer shall only be liable to pay for the time that such convict remained with him. [Id. p. 229, sec. 4.]

Art. 6253. [3748] Suit on bond.—Upon the breach of such bond, the county judge, or commissioners' court, shall cause such bond to be sued upon in any court having jurisdiction thereof; and the amount collected thereon, after deducting therefrom the collection fees and costs, shall be paid into the county treasury by the officer collecting the same, and constitute a part of the road and bridge fund of the county. [Id. sec. 5. Const., art. 16, sec. 24.]

Evidence.—Where the obligors on a convict hiring bond defend an action thereon on the ground the convict had escaped and was rearrested and redelivered, the burden is on them to establish the escape. Salyer v. Wilcox (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 684.

In an action on a convict hiring bond, evidence held insufficient to show the convict had escaped from the hirer when a capias pro fine upon which he was rearrested was issued. Id.

Art. 6254. [3749] Convict shall receive full credit for labor.—All moneys arising from hiring out convicts shall be paid over to the county judge, and by him paid into the county treasury, and in every case the convict shall receive full credit for the amount of his labor, to be counted and entered in discharge of the fine and costs adjudged against him; and, whenever his earnings shall be sufficient to pay in full such fine and costs, he shall be discharged. [Id. sec. 6.]

Discharge of convict.—One who worked under a convict bond which had not been approved by the court held nevertheless liable to arrest for his fine. Ex parte Ransom, 38 Cr. R. 141, 41 S. W. 637.

Where a convict bond is invalid, and not paid, the convict can be arrested, though he has paid to the principal the fine and costs. Ex parte Millspa, 39 Cr. R. 55, 46 S. W. 20.

A person released from custody on a convict bond is not entitled to habeas corpus. Ex parte Chestnutt, 39 Cr. R. 634, 47 S. W. 649.

Where a convict bond is given, and a prisoner released from custody by virtue thereof, he may nevertheless be returned to custody by agreement between the hirer and the judge. Ex parte Miller, 44 Cr. R. 422, 72 S. W. 183.

Art. 6255. [3750] Record in relation to convicts shall be kept.—County judges shall cause a record of all proceedings in relation to the employment or hiring out of convicts to be kept in well-bound books to be provided for that purpose. Said record shall contain:

1. A descriptive list of all persons known as "county convicts."
2. How such convict has been or is employed.
3. The name of the party hiring a convict.
4. The time and the price at which such convict has been employed or hired out.
5. The amount credited such convict for such employment or hire.
6. The amount of such hire collected.
7. The amount of fine and costs due by such convict.
8. Such other information as may be necessary and requisite under the rules adopted by the commissioners' court. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 230, sec. 15.]

Art. 6256. [3751] Officer's costs, how paid.—Whenever the amount realized from the hire of a convict is sufficient to discharge in full the fine and costs adjudged against him, the county judge shall issue a warrant upon the county treasurer in favor of each officer, to whom costs may be due, for the amount of his costs, and the same shall be paid out of the road fund of the county, or out of any other funds in the county treasury not otherwise appropriated. [Id. sec. 8.]

PENSIONS

VETERANS OF MEXICAN WAR

Article 6257. [3752] To whom granted.—To every surviving indigent soldier, or indigent volunteer, who was in the actual military or naval service of Texas at the time of the siege of Bexar, in December, 1835, or at the time of the battle of San Jacinto, in April, 1836, or who actually participated in any battle in Texas in 1836, or who was in such actual military service for as much as six weeks between the commencement of the revolution at Gonzales in 1835, and the first day of January, 1837, and to every indigent surviving signer of the declaration of independence of Texas, and to every indigent surviving widow of any such soldier, volunteer or signer, who is and has always been unmarried since the death of such soldier, volunteer or signer, and so long as such widow may remain unmarried, there shall be and is hereby granted an annual pension of one hundred and fifty dollars as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1889, p. 43, sec. 1.]

Article 6258. [3753] Application.—Each applicant for a pension under this law shall make application in writing for the same to the county judge of the county of his or her residence, and shall post a copy of such application on the court house door of the county for at least thirty days before the application is acted on by the county judge. Such application shall state the name, age and residence of the applicant, whether or not this applicant received any pension or veteran donation land certificate under any previous law, a list of the real and personal property owned by the applicant, and the present value of the same, and what property and the value thereof that such applicant has sold or conveyed within twelve months prior to the date of such application; and shall further state that the applicant is in indigent circumstances, and is dependent upon his or her labor or on the charity of others for a support; provided, that the word "indigent," within the meaning of this law, shall not allow the ownership of property to exceed one thousand dollars; and that the applicant has not transferred to others any property or values of any kind for the purpose of becoming a beneficiary under this law; and still further, that such applicant is and was for one year preceding the date of the passage of this law a bona fide resident citizen of this state. And in addition to the foregoing, each male applicant shall further state the time he rendered such service, and the command he served in; and each female applicant shall state the name of her deceased husband, the date of his death; that she is unmarried, and has so remained since the death of the husband for whose services she claims a pension; and shall further state, as accurately as she can, the time her said deceased husband rendered such service, and the command he served in. Should the applicant be a signer of such declaration of independence, or a widow of such signer, he or she shall state all that is hereinbefore required, except as to the military service, and in lieu of which it shall state that the applicant was a signer of such declaration of independence, or is the widow of such signer, which application shall be subscribed and sworn to by the applicant, and the same shall be supported by affidavits of at least two credible witnesses who reside in the state, and shall show that the facts stated by the applicant is known and regarded in his or her neighborhood as a Texas veteran or signer of the declaration of independence, or the widow of a Texas veteran or signer of the declaration of independence. Any veteran whose application and proof heretofore made to the comptroller are in compliance with the requirements of this law shall be entitled to his or her pension on presenting such application and proof to the comptroller, without further proof being made; and, where such application and proof has been returned to the applicant by the comptroller, said applicant may refile the same as if made under this law; provided, that such application has not heretofore been declared fraudulent. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6259. [3754] Proceedings to obtain.—Such application so signed and sworn to by the applicant and two credible witnesses shall be presented to the county judge, who shall in open court, at a regular term thereof, hear evidence as to the truth of the statements made in such application; and if he believe from the evidence that the applicant really performed the service for which the pension is claimed, or is a widow of a soldier or volunteer of the Texas revolution, or a signer of the declaration of Texas independence; that he or she is now, and was at the time of the passage of this law, and for ten years previous thereto, a bona fide resident of the state of Texas; that the applicant is in indigent circumstances, and is dependent on his or her labor or on the charity of others for a support, and has not at any time transferred any property for the purpose of becoming a beneficiary under this law; then he shall make his certificate under the seal of his office, attested by the county clerk, reciting the facts as shown by the evidence. Upon the hearing of such application, the state shall be represented by the county or district attorney; and it shall be the duty of such attorney to summon witnesses to testify in behalf of the state who know the pecuniary condition of the applicant, or any other facts affecting the rights of the applicant to obtain a pension, and to examine the assessor's rolls and the records of his county, and any other source of information which may seem to him advisable; and he shall prepare a statement of the testimony given by each witness, including the name of such witness, and also of the facts disclosed by investigating any other source of information, which statements shall be approved by the county judge. For his services in behalf of the state, the attorney shall be allowed a fee of ten dollars, to be paid as follows: He shall present his account for the same to the county judge, who shall approve it if he find it correct, shall date and sign the same officially, and shall cause it to be filed in the office of the county clerk. The said judge shall thereupon give the attorney a draft upon the county treasurer, and the same when presented to the treasurer shall be paid out of any moneys in his hands not otherwise legally appropriated, in the same manner as jury certificates are paid; provided, that, if the applicant shall be proved not to be an indigent, and shall have his application defeated on that ground, then the attorney representing the state shall be entitled to an additional fee of ten dollars, to be taxed against the applicant as costs of suit. [Acts 1885, p. 94, sec. 3.]

Art. 6260. [3755] To be filed with comptroller.—Such application so prepared and certified to, together with the statements of the county judge and attorney hereinbefore provided for, shall be filed with the comptroller of public accounts, whose duty it shall be to examine criti-
Art. 6261. [3756]  Must be indigent.—No person shall be entitled to receive a pension under this title, unless it shall be made to appear to the comptroller, from the evidence, that said person is in indigent circumstances, and is dependent upon his labor or the charity of others for a support.  [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6262. [3757]  Shall commence, when.—The pension herein provided for shall begin at the date when the comptroller receives the application, and shall be paid quarterly in advance. The comptroller shall draw his warrant for the same on the treasurer, and, upon presentation, the treasurer shall pay the same out of any money in the treasury which may be appropriated for this purpose.  [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6263. [3758]  Proof to be made each quarter.—On or after the first of each quarter, the pensioner shall make his affidavit stating the county of his residence, and that he is the identical person to whom a pension has been granted under this law; which affidavit shall be supported by the affidavit of some other credible person to the same fact, and which affidavit may be made before any one authorized to administer oaths, which affidavit shall be filed with the comptroller, and, upon the filing of the same, the comptroller shall draw his warrant for the quarter found to be due.  [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6264. [3759]  Investigated by grand jury.—It shall be the duty of the district judges of this state to specially charge every session of the grand jury to investigate violations of this law.  [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6265. [3760]  Attorney's fee.—No person shall receive a greater fee than ten dollars to procure a pension for another, and any contract for a larger sum shall not be enforced by the courts.  [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6266. [3761]  Lists to be sent county judges for posting.—It shall be the duty of the comptroller, at least once in each year, to forward to the county judge a printed list of the pensioners in their respective counties, which list shall be posted in a conspicuous place in the office of said judge. It shall also be the duty of the comptroller, on the application of a grand jury, to forward to it, through the district clerk of the county in which the grand jury is convened, copies of any or all original papers on file in his office connected with an application for a pension which said grand jury may desire to investigate: and such copies, with their correctness attested by the comptroller, shall have the same force and value in a court of law that the original papers would have had.  [Id. sec. 10.]

Article 6267. Tax; fund for payment of pensions.—There shall be levied and collected in the same manner and at the same time that other taxes are levied and collected for the year 1913, and annually thereafter, an ad valorem tax of five cents on the one hundred dollar valuation thereof on all property owned in the state on the first day of January of the year 1913 and of every year thereafter, and on all property sent out of the state prior to the first day of January of any of said years for the purpose of evading the payment of taxes thereon and afterwards returned to the state, except so much thereof as may be exempted by the constitution and laws of this state or of the United States, which valuation shall be made in the manner prescribed by law for the assessment, levy and collection of other state and county taxes, which said tax so levied and collected shall be paid into the treasury of the state of Texas in the same manner as other state taxes and shall constitute a special fund for the payment of pensions for service in the Confederate army and navy, frontier organizations, militia of the state of Texas, and for the widows of said Confederate soldiers or sailors serving in said armies, navies and organizations or militia, in the manner and under the rules and regulations prescribed herein and prescribed in existing law not repealed hereby and as may be hereafter prescribed by law. Which said fund is hereby expressly appropriated by the legislature of the state of Texas for the purpose herein stated. [Art. 6267, Rev. St. 1911, repealed. Acts 1913, p. 282, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1913, p. 282, sec. 6, repeals Arts. 6267, 6268, 6272, 6279, Rev. St. 1911, and all other laws in conflict, but provides that said act shall be cumulative of all existing laws not in conflict.

Art. 6267a. Pension, to whom granted.—Out of the fund to be created under the provisions of section 1 [Art. 6267] hereof, there shall be paid an annual pension of eight and one-third dollars per month, the same to be paid quarterly on the first days of September, December, March and June of each year to every disabled and indigent soldier who under special laws of the state of Texas during the war between the states served for a period of at least six months in organizations for the protection of the frontier against Indian raids and Mexican marauders, and to every indigent and disabled soldier of the militia of the state of Texas who was in active service for a period of at least six months during the war between the states, and to every widow of such soldier who is in indigent circumstances and who was married to such soldier prior to January 1, 1900, and has never re-married, and to every indigent and disabled Confederate soldier or sailor who served for a period of at least three months of active service in the armies or navies of the Confederate States of America during the war between the states, and who became a resident of the state of Texas prior to January 1, 1900, and who has been a bona fide resident of the state of Texas continually since January 1, 1900; and to every widow of such a Confederate soldier or sailor who is in indigent circumstances and who became a resident of the state of Texas prior to January 1, 1900, and has been a bona fide resident of said state continually since January 1, 1900, and who was married to such soldier or sailor prior to January 1, 1900, and who has never re-married; and provided that the word "widow" as used in this Act and in the existing law shall not apply to nor include women born since 1861, and provided that in the event the appropriation made by the state legislature out of such special fund for any one year shall prove insufficient to pay in full said pensions, there shall not thereby be created a deficiency outstanding as a valid claim against the state of Texas, and each pensioner shall only receive, except as herein or in existing law otherwise provided for, his or her pro rata according to the amount appropriated for that year. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6268. Application, how made.—Every person entitled to a pension, under the foregoing section of this Act [Art. 6272], shall make application in writing and under oath for the same to the county judge of the county of his residence. Such application shall state the name, age and residence of the applicant, and his or her occupation, if able to engage in one, his or her physical condition, and each and every fact necessary to qualify and entitle the applicant to a pension under the foregoing section of this Act [Art. 6272]; provided that persons now on the pension rolls of the state shall not be required to file a new application under this Act.

In the event the applicant is such a soldier or sailor as is prescribed in the foregoing section [Art. 6272] of this Act, in said application he shall state the company and regiment in which he was enlisted in the Confederate army or the militia of Texas, or, in the event he served in an organization for the protection of the frontier against Indian raids or Mexican marauders, he shall name and identify such organizations, or if he were an officer commissioned by the president of the Confederate States, or by the governor, or other competent authorities of the state of Texas, in said army, navy, militia or frontier organization, he shall state the date of his commission and his rank therein; and if he were detailed directly under the provisions of the conscript law for duty in any of the armories or shops of the Confederate government or for any other labor necessary for the maintenance of the army in the field, and, if he served in the Confederate navy, he shall state the time of service in each case. Each applicant shall also state in his application what property, effects and income he possesses and shall furnish the testimony of at least two credible witnesses who personally know that he enlisted in the service and performed the duties of a soldier or of a sailor claimed by him; provided, however, that if an applicant for a pension cannot secure the testimony of two witnesses then he may furnish documents or evidence in connection with his service in the army or navy or militia, or such organization as may establish his claim for a pension. These proofs shall be made under oath and in writing before the county judge of the county of the residence of the applicant; and in case the applicant or the witnesses from disability or other circumstances beyond his control cannot appear before the county judge at the court house of the county or office of the judge, such judge may, and it shall be his duty, to go before such applicant, and such witnesses for the purpose of hearing such proofs. The county judge shall certify to the trustworthy character of the witnesses and to the citizenship of the applicant, who must have been a bona fide resident of the county in which he makes his or her application for a period of six months next before the date of said application. He shall in every case administer an oath to each applicant and witness before they sign the affidavit. Provided, further, that if it be necessary for the applicant to go outside of the county or state for proof to establish such application, such proof may be submitted in the form of affidavits made in due form before some officer authorized to administer oaths and take the depositions of witnesses and accompanied by certificates from the county judge of the county where made, that the witnesses are of trustworthy character and entitled to credit. In case the applicant be a widow of a soldier or sailor, who if living would be entitled to a pension under the provisions of section 2 [Art. 6267a] of this Act, she shall make written application for such pension and therein state, under oath, that she is in fact the widow of such soldier or sailor, and shall as near as possible therein state the facts showing her to be entitled to receive a pension under the provisions of section 2 [Art. 6267a] of this Act, in the same manner as an applicant who is such a soldier or sailor must make such proof as herein stated, and thereupon such widow shall be entitled to receive such pension on the same terms as other pensioners. In the event such widow cannot make such proof she may by complying with the provisions of article 6270 Revised Statutes, become entitled to receive a pension on the terms and conditions stated in said article. [Art. 6268, Rev. St. 1911, repealed. Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6269. Widow not to be granted pension, unless, etc.—No widow shall be entitled to a pension should her husband, if living, be barred by reason of his inability to comply with the requisites described in this chapter as to his service in the Confederate army or navy. [Acts 1909, p. 231, sec. 3.]

Art. 6270. Widow may make proof by affidavit, etc.—Any widow of a Confederate soldier or sailor, entitled to a pension under the provisions of this chapter, may make oath to the county judge in writing that she is in fact the widow of a Confederate soldier or sailor, that her said husband rendered valuable service to the Confederacy as such, that he did not desert, and was either killed or died, or was honorably discharged from the army; that she has made diligent search for all information as to the number of regiment and company in which her deceased husband served, and has been unable to learn same; which affidavit shall be filed with the county clerk; whereupon the county judge may proceed to take such other evidence as he may deem necessary; and, if in his judgment he finds that she is the widow of a Confederate soldier or sailor, that all witnesses to the said fact are dead, or their whereabouts unknown to said widow and are unascertainable, he may, upon his own motion, recommend to the pension commissioner the grant of a pension to the said widow; and, if the pension commissioner is satisfied that said widow is entitled to a pension under the provisions of this chapter, he may grant same. [Id. sec. 3a.]

Art. 6271. Soldier to have served honorably; evidence, how taken.—Every Confederate soldier applying for a pension under this chapter shall have served honorably from the date of his enlistment until the close of the late civil war between the states, or until he was discharged or paroled in some military organization regularly mustered into the army or navy of the Confederate States until the surrender. It shall be the duty of the county judge to take down the evidence in writing of all witnesses examined by him, which shall be paid for by the applicant at the rate of five cents per hundred words; provided, that the applicant is authorized to have such evidence taken down by his attorney, or by such other person as he or she may employ under the contract of employment to secure his or her pension; and provided, that no greater fee than hereafter provided shall be charged by such attorney, or representative of such applicant; and the county judge shall certify to the written statement of the evidence when taken before him. The application, affidavit and certified statement of the evidence shall be forwarded to the commissioner of pensions of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6272. What constitutes indigency.—To constitute indigency, within the meaning of this Act, neither the applicant nor his wife, if the applicant be a married man, nor both together, nor the widow, if the applicant be a widow, shall own property, real or personal, exceeding in value one thousand dollars, exclusive of the homestead, and if its value be not in excess of one thousand dollars, and exclusive of household goods and wearing apparel; and such applicant shall not be in the enjoyment of an income, annuity, the emoluments of an office or wages for his or her services in excess of three hundred dollars per year, nor in receipt of aid or of a pension from any state of the United States, or from any other public source, nor an inmate of the Confederate Home or other public institution at the expense of the state. Persons who are not indigent under the foregoing definition shall not be entitled to a pension under this chapter. [Art. 6272, Rev. St. 1911, repealed. Acts 1913, p. 282, sec. 3.]

Art. 6273. Payments to be made when. —The payments of such pensions shall begin on the first day of March and September of each year, payable at the end of each quarter; and on and after the first of each quarter the pensioner shall make his or her affidavit, stating the county of his or her residence and postoffice address, and that he or she is the identical person to whom a pension has been granted under this law, and that the conditions which existed at the time of making his or her application and on which the pension was originally granted still exist; which affidavit shall be supported by the affidavit of some other credible person to the same fact, and which affidavit may be made before any one authorized to administer oaths, which affidavit shall be filed with the commissioner of pensions for examination; and, if approved by him, the comptroller of public accounts shall draw his warrant to the amount of such pension on the treasurer; and upon presentation the treasurer shall pay the same out of any money in the treasury which may be appropriated to this purpose. [Acts 1909, p. 231, sec. 7.]

Art. 6274. Pensions denied to whom. —No application shall be allowed, nor shall any aid be given or pension paid in any case, to any soldier or sailor, or the widow of any soldier or sailor under the provisions of this chapter, where it shall appear that any such soldier or sailor deserted his command, or voluntarily abandoned his post of duty, or the said service during the said war, nor shall any application be allowed, nor any aid given, nor any pension paid, to any widow of any soldier or sailor who has been divorced from any such soldier or sailor, being her husband, nor to any widow who voluntarily abandoned and without cause any such soldier or sailor, being her husband, and continued to live separately from him up to the time of his death, nor to any such soldier or sailor who served as a substitute for another, nor to the widow of said substitute. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6275. Grand jury to be charged. —It shall be the duty of the district judges of this state to specially charge the grand jury at every session to investigate violations of this law. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6276. Fees limited. —No person shall receive a greater fee than five dollars to secure a pension for another, and any contract for a larger sum shall be unlawful and shall not be enforced by the courts. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 6277. Fees of county judge. —A county judge shall be allowed a fee of two dollars for hearing an application and taking proof therein, said fee to be paid by the applicant, and before hearing of application is had thereon; provided, that all fees received by such county judge shall be reported as other fees of office and be otherwise controlled by the law as it now exists, regulating the fee of the county judges; and provided, further, that said fee of two dollars shall be the only fee allowed to the county judge for all the work performed by him in securing a pension. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6278. Certain persons not entitled to. —No person shall, while an inmate of the Texas Confederate home, nor shall any person while confined in any of the asylums of this state, at the expense of the state.
or confined in the state penitentiary to satisfy a judgment of conviction, receive a pension under this chapter; and any person having been granted a pension under the provisions of this chapter, and afterwards become an inmate of said home, asylum or penitentiary, shall, while such inmate, forfeit his pension, it being intended that no person shall at the same time receive benefits from both sources, and no pensioner who leaves this state for a period of over six months shall draw a pension while so absent. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 6279. Appropriation, how allotted to pensioners.—On the first day of September, and on the first day of March each year, the commissioner of pensions shall first allot to each blind, maimed and totally disabled soldier and sailor, or the blind and totally disabled widow of such soldier or sailor, the sum of eight and one-third dollars per month for each; and the remainder of said appropriation shall be equally proportioned among the pensioners who are in indigent circumstances only, and whose claims to pensions have been established and filed with the commissioner of pensions, as provided by law; and the comptroller shall issue his warrants for the amount due said pensioners in the manner provided by law, and all pensioners to be paid at the end of each quarter and all such pensions shall begin on the first day of September and March after the filing and establishment of such application; provided, however, that the commissioner of pensions is authorized to fill, after the apportionment is made, any vacancies created by death or other causes, at any time between the first day of March and the first day of September in each year. [Art. 6279, Rev. St. 1911, repealed. Acts 1913, p. 282, sec. 5.]

PERPETUATION OF EVIDENCE

Art. 6280. Certain persons may make statement under oath.—Any Confederate veteran, soldier, or sailor, who may be entitled to a pension under and by virtue of the pension laws of Texas, who may be desirous of establishing such right by the evidence of any person who may be cognizant of such facts as would prove and establish his such right, may cause such person or persons to go before the county judge, or any notary public, of the county of the residence of such person, and make a statement in writing of all facts within his knowledge concerning and relating to the service as a soldier or sailor in the army or navy of the Southern Confederacy during the civil war, such statement in writing when made to be duly subscribed and sworn to by the person making the same. [Acts 1909, p. 215, sec. 1.]

Art. 6281. Statement to be filed with secretary of state.—Any such statement as provided for in the preceding article, made and reduced to writing duly authenticated, shall be filed with the secretary of state, and by him recorded in a book to be kept for such purpose, a properly certified copy of which shall be admitted and used in evidence, at any future time, to prove and establish the right of the soldier or sailor in whose behalf, or at whose instance, the same may have been made to such pension as may be provided by law. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6282. Widow may establish identity in same way.—The widow of any soldier or sailor who may be entitled to a pension as such, under the laws of this state, shall be entitled to establish her identity and right to such pension in the same way and manner as is herein provided for soldiers and sailors. [Id. sec. 3.]

COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS

Art. 6283. Salary and general duties of.—There shall be a commissioner of pensions, whose term of office shall be two years, with a salary of two thousand dollars per annum, who shall be appointed by the gov-
It shall be the duty of said commissioner of pensions to examine and pass on all pension claims under the existing law, to keep a correct record of all approved claims, with the name, disability, service, county and amount paid, to furnish the county judges with suitable blanks for use of claimants. The said commissioner of pensions shall, on the first day of September of each year, make to the governor a written report, showing the whole number of pensioners, the number of claims allowed for the past year and the amounts paid, together with such information pertaining to his office as the governor may ask. All records, books, claims or other matters connected with the office of said commissioner of pensions shall be kept open to inspection, and under the charge and direction of the governor, and all rulings made by said commissioner shall be subject to revision and change by the governor. This office shall continue for ten years only, unless continued by further legislation. The said commissioner of pensions shall not exercise the power of attorney to draw any pension. [Acts 1909, p. 231, sec. 5.]

Art. 6284. Shall strike certain persons from roll.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of pensions, when it shall come to his knowledge that any person has been granted a pension through fraud or perjury, or that any one on the pension roll has, by reason of acquiring property or annuity, emolument or other income that would have prevented the granting of a pension had such conditions existed at the date of said application, to strike the name of such persons from the pension roll. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6285. Copies of certain instruments evidence before grand jury.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of pensions, on the application of the grand jury, to forward to the district clerk of the county in which the grand jury is convened, copies of any and all original papers on file in his office connected with an application for a pension, which said grand jury may desire to investigate; and such copies, with their correctness attested by the commissioner of pensions, shall have the same force and value in law that the original papers could have had. [Id. sec. 13.]

PHARMACY

Article 6286. Governor to appoint board.—The governor shall, on or before September 1, after his inauguration, appoint five persons, licensed as pharmacists, who are actively engaged in the practice of pharmacy within this state at the time of their appointment, and shall have been so engaged for the past five years or more immediately preceding their appointment. The Texas state pharmaceutical association may recommend to the governor, on or before August 1, after his inauguration, a list of names of persons who are licensed pharmacists of this state, of twice the number to be appointed, and the appointments may be made by the governor from this list. The five persons so appointed shall constitute a board to be styled, “The Texas Board of Pharmacy,” who shall hold their office for two years, and until their successors shall have been appointed and qualified; provided, however, that no person who is connected with any school or college of pharmacy in any way shall be appointed as a member of the Texas state board of pharmacy; and any member of the board may be removed by the governor for good cause shown him. Provided, further, that no two members of the board shall reside in the same county. In case of a vacancy from death or other cause, the governor shall appoint a successor to fill out the unexpired term, with qualifications as above set forth. [Acts 1907, p. 394, sec. 7.]

Article 6287. Organization of board; secretary, his salary and bond; compensation of board.—The persons so appointed and constituting the Texas state board of pharmacy shall, within thirty days after their appointment, and annually thereafter, meet and organize by the election of a president, secretary and treasurer, who shall hold their office for the term of one year from the date of their election. The president and the treasurer shall be elected from the members of the board, and the secretary need not be a member of the board. The secretary shall receive such salary as may be prescribed by the board of pharmacy, and his necessary expense while engaged in the performance of his official duties. The board may adopt such by-laws and regulations as they shall deem necessary to carry into execution the provisions of this chapter, but which shall not be inconsistent with this chapter. The treasurer and secretary shall give bond in such sum as the board may determine, which at no time shall be for less amount than the sum handled by them annually. The expense of making such bonds shall be paid by the board. The secretary shall collect all money due the board from all sources, and shall pay the same over to the treasurer within ten days after the taking his receipt therefor. The bonds of the treasurer and secretary of the board shall be payable to the governor of the state of Texas, and shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of all duties imposed by law, or by order of the board of pharmacy. The board shall prescribe the pay of the members thereof, but at no time shall the amount exceed five dollars per day for each member, and this amount to be paid to them for such days during which they are actually engaged in the discharge of their official duties; and they are to receive such additional amounts as they may actually incur for expenses in the discharge of their duties for mileage, hotel bills, stamps and stationery; provided, no bill either for services of a member of such board or any expense of such member shall be paid until an itemized statement of such service and each item of expense has been made out and sworn to by such member of such board, before some officer authorized under the law to administer oaths, and such account shall have been filed with and approved by said board; provided, that the state shall never be liable for the salary and expense of any members of this board. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6288. Oath.—The persons so appointed and constituting the Texas state board of pharmacy, before entering upon the duties of said office, shall take the oath prescribed by the constitution of the state of Texas for state officers, and shall file the same in the office of the secretary of state, who shall thereupon issue to each of said members a certificate of appointment. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6289. Duty of; shall make report of money, etc.—It shall be the duty of the board to examine all applications for registration of such persons as may be entitled to the same under the provisions of this chapter, and to make an annual report to the governor, a copy of which shall be furnished to the Texas state pharmaceutical association, upon the condition of pharmacy in Texas; which report shall embrace all the proceedings of the board, and give an itemized account of all money received and disbursed by said board; and said itemized account of money paid out by said board shall show to whom paid and specifically for what purpose it was paid, and also the names of all pharmacists duly registered under this chapter. And it shall be the further duty of the board to deliver all money on hand at the end of the term of each board, after all outstanding debts have been paid, over to their successors in office. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6290. Shall hold meetings for examination, when.—The Texas state board of pharmacy shall hold meetings for the examination of applicants for registration, and for the transaction of such other business as may legally come before it, at least once in four months, and such additional meetings as may be necessary; provided, that said regular meetings shall be held on the third Tuesday of January, May and September of each year, in such cities or places as the said board may select, or such cities or places as shall be deemed most convenient for applicants. Due notice of such meetings shall be given by publication in such papers as may be selected by the board thirty days in advance of said meetings. Three members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any and all business. The president and secretary shall have the power to administer oaths in all matters pertaining to the examination and registration of pharmacist and assistant pharmacist. The board shall keep a record of its proceedings and a register of all persons to whom certificates or license as pharmacist or assistant pharmacist and permits have been issued, and all renewals thereof; and the books and register of the board, or a copy of any part thereof certified by the secretary, shall be accepted as competent evidence in all the courts. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 6291. May issue temporary certificates.—Any member of the board of pharmacy may issue a temporary certificate upon satisfactory proof that the applicant is competent; said temporary certificate shall be null and void after the first meeting of the board of pharmacy next after the granting said temporary certificate; provided, that not more than one temporary certificate shall ever be granted to any one person.
[Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6292. Fees of board.—The board of pharmacy shall be entitled to charge and collect the following fees: For the examination of an applicant for license as a pharmacist, five dollars; for the examination of an applicant for license as an assistant pharmacist, two dollars and fifty cents; for renewing the license as a pharmacist, one dollar; for renewing the license as assistant pharmacist, one dollar; for issuing license to any proprietor or employee to conduct a drug store in towns of not more than one thousand inhabitants, one dollar. All fees shall be paid before any applicant may be admitted to examination, or his name placed upon the register of pharmacists or assistant pharmacists, or before any license or permit or any renewal thereof may be issued by the board.
[Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 6293. Pharmacists to be licensed.—It shall be unlawful for any person not licensed as a pharmacist, within the meaning of this chapter, to conduct or manage any pharmacy, drug or chemical store, apothecary shop, or other place of business, for the retailing, compounding or dispening of any drug, chemical or poison, or for the compounding of phy­ sician’s prescriptions, or to keep exposed for sale at retail any drug, chemicals or poisons, except as hereinafter provided, or for any person not licensed as a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist, within the meaning of this chapter, to compound, dispense or sell at retail any drug, chemical, poison, or pharmaceutical preparation upon the prescription of a physician or otherwise, or to compound physician’s prescriptions, except as an aid to or under the supervision of a person licensed as a pharmacist under this chapter. And it shall be unlawful for any owner or manager of a pharmacy or drug store, or other place of business, to cause or permit any other than a person licensed as a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist to compound, dispense, or sell at retail any medicine or poison, except as an aid to or under the supervision of a person licensed as a pharmacist; provided, however, that nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent any person from engaging in the business herein described as proprietor and owner thereof, provided such proprietor or owner shall have employed in his business to conduct same some one qualified under this chapter, nor to interfere with any legally registered practitioner of medicine or dentistry in the compounding of his prescriptions, or to prevent him from supplying his patients such medicine as he may deem proper, nor with exclusively wholesale business of any dealer who shall be licensed as a pharmacist, or who shall keep in his employ at least one person who is licensed as a pharmacist, nor with the selling at retail of non-poisonous domestic remedies, nor with the sale of patent or proprietary preparations, when sold in unbroken packages, nor with the sale of poisonous substances which are sold exclusively for use in the arts, or for use as insecticides, when such substances are sold in unbroken packages bearing a label having plainly printed upon it the name of the contents, the word poison and the names of at least two readily obtainable antidotes. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 6294. Certain persons entitled to be registered without examination.—All persons registered by district boards of pharmaceutical examiners prior to the nineteenth day of July, 1907, upon presenting proof of such registration in accordance with the law relating to the practice of pharmacy then in force, and the payment of one dollar, shall be entitled to a certificate of registration as a licensed pharmacist under the meaning of this chapter from the said board of pharmacy, without examination; provided, the application for such certificate shall have been made to the said board of pharmacy within ninety days after the first meeting of said board after its creation. Proprietors, and employés of such proprietors, who were on the nineteenth day of July, 1907, actively engaged in the preparation of physician's prescriptions and compounding and vending of medicines in towns of less than one thousand inhabitants in the state of Texas, and also proprietors, and employees of such proprietors, who may become so engaged in such towns during the five years next succeeding the date aforesaid, shall be exempt from examination; provided, he or she shall have registered as required by this chapter, and upon paying said board of pharmacy one dollar, shall receive a certificate of registration, which shall entitle such person to practice pharmacy in towns of one thousand inhabitants or under; and provided, further, that, should such persons have failed to apply for registration within ninety days from and after the first meeting of said board after its creation, said person shall be required to pay the same fees as for original registration. Every person, except in the cases named, who desires to be licensed as a pharmacist, shall file with the secretary of the board of pharmacy an application upon blanks furnished by the board of pharmacy for that purpose, duly verified under oath, setting forth the name and age of the applicant, the place or places at which and the time spent in the study of the science and art of pharmacy, the experience in compounding physician's prescriptions which the applicant has had under the direction of a legally licensed pharmacist, and shall appear at a time and place designated by the board of pharmacy, and submit to an examination as to his or her qualifications for registration as a licensed pharmacist or assistant pharmacist; provided, however, if any applicant should fail to pass a satisfactory examination, he or she may at any subsequent meeting of the board of pharmacy, within six months, be permitted to be re-examined without cost. [Id. sec. 2.]

In general.—The statute regulating the practice of pharmacy, and applicable only to druggists or pharmacists in towns of 1,000 inhabitants or more, held not unconstitutional as a special statute. Green v. State, 49 Cr. R. 350, 92 S. W. 847.

Art. 6295. Qualifications of applicants.—In order to be licensed as a pharmacist, within the meaning of this chapter, an applicant shall be not less than twenty-one years of age, and shall have been licensed as an assistant pharmacist for not less than two years prior to his application for license as a pharmacist, or he shall present to the board satisfactory evidence that he is a graduate of a reputable school or college of pharmacy, or that he has had four years practical experience in pharmacy under the instruction of a pharmacist; and he shall also pass a satisfactory examination by or under the direction of a board of pharmacy. In order to be licensed as an assistant pharmacist, within the meaning of this chapter, an applicant shall not be less than eighteen years of age, and shall have a sufficient preliminary general education, and shall have had not less than two years experience in pharmacy, and shall pass a satisfactory examination by or under the direction of the board of pharmacy; provided, however, that in the case of persons who have attended a reputable school or college of pharmacy, the actual time of attendance at school or college of pharmacy may be deducted from the time of experience required of pharmacist and assistant pharmacist, but in no case shall less than two years experience be required for registration as a licensed pharmacist. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6296. Board to issue license, when.—If the applicant for license as a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist has complied with all the requirements of the two preceding articles, the board of pharmacy shall enroll his name upon the register of pharmacists or assistant pharmacists, and issue to him a license which shall entitle him to practice as pharmacist or assistant pharmacist for a period of two years from the date of said license. The board of pharmacy may refuse to grant a license to any person guilty of felony or gross immorality, or who is addicted to the use of alcoholic liquors or narcotic drugs to such an extent as to render him unfit to practice, and the board of pharmacy, after due notice, may revoke a license for like cause, or any license which has been procured by fraud. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6297. Applicants legally registered in foreign countries to be granted license, when.—The board of pharmacy may issue license to practice as pharmacist or assistant pharmacist in this state, without examination, to such persons as have been legally registered or licensed as pharmacists or assistant pharmacists in other states, or foreign countries; provided, that the applicant for such license shall present satisfactory evidence of qualifications equal to those required from licentiates in this state, and that he was registered or licensed by examination in such other state, or foreign country, and that the standard of competency required in such other state, or foreign country, accords similar recognition to the licentiates of this state. Applicants for license under this article shall, with their application, forward to the secretary of the board of pharmacy the same fees as are required of other candidates for license. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6298. License to be posted; renewals, etc.—Every certificate of license to practice as pharmacist or assistant pharmacist, and every license to any proprietor or employé to conduct a drug store in towns of not more than one thousand inhabitants as above provided and every renewal of such license shall be conspicuously exposed in the pharmacy or drug store or place of business of which the pharmacist or assistant pharmacist or other person to whom it is issued is the owner or manager, or in which he is employed. Every licensed pharmacist or assistant pharmacist who desires to continue in the practice of his profession shall, within thirty days next preceding the expiration of his license or permit, file with the board an application for the renewal thereof, which application shall be accompanied by the fee hereinafter prescribed. If the board shall find that the applicant has been legally licensed in this state and is entitled to renewal of license, or to a renewal of such permit, it shall issue to him a certificate attesting the fact. If any pharmacist or assistant pharmacist shall fail, for a period of sixty days after the expiration of his license, to make application to the board for its renewal, his name shall be erased from the register of licensed pharmacist or assistant pharmacist; and such person, in order to become registered as a licensed pharmacist or assistant pharmacist, shall be required to pay the same fee as in the case of original registration. The name of the responsible manager of every pharmacy, drug store, or apothecary shop, shall be conspicuously displayed outside of such place of business. [Id. sec. 6.]

Decision relating to subject in general

Property right in prescription.—A druggist held to have a right of property in prescriptions, entitling his transferee to sue for their value in conversion. R. C. Stuart Drug Co. v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 688.

PILOTS

PILOTS

Chap. 1. Commissioners of Pilots.
Chap. 2. Branch Pilots and Pilots for the Mouth of Brazos River and Matagorda and Lavaca Bays.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of title.]

COMMISSIONERS OF PILOTS

Art. 6299. [3790] Governor to appoint.—The governor shall appoint, with the consent of the senate, for each port whose population and circumstances will warrant it, and also for Matagorda and Lavaca bays from Pass Cavallo to Indianola and Lavaca, a board of five persons of respectable standing, under the denomination of "commissioners of pilots" for such port and bays, three of whom shall be practical seamen and the other two merchants, who shall be commissioned by the governor for the term of two years; and the governor shall, during the recess of the legislature, be authorized to suspend, until the next session of the same, any of said commissioners, and to fill, until the same period, any vacancies in the board caused by death, resignation or otherwise provided, however, that no member of the board of commissioners shall be directly or indirectly pecuniarily interested in any pilot boat or branch pilot in the business of their trust. [Act April 17, 1846, p. 79, sec. 2. Act Feb. 9, 1861, p. 19. P. D. 4762, 4775.]

Wrecks.—See Title 137.

Art. 6300. [3791] Duties of commissioners.—Said board of commissioners shall be authorized, if they deem it advisable, to examine and decide on the qualifications of any branch or deputy pilot whom they may have appointed at the time of their organization; and it shall be their duty to examine each new applicant for the office of branch or deputy pilot, and to decide on his qualifications, recommending to the governor, where new appointments are proper, such as are meritorious; and it shall also be their duty to examine into any case of alleged or supposed misconduct or inefficiency in branch or deputy pilots; and they shall be authorized, after a due hearing of accusation, testimony and defense, to suspend such pilot if sufficient cause appear, and during such suspension he shall not be allowed to exercise the functions of his office; the governor shall, however, have power at his will and pleasure to remove any branch pilot, or to reinstate any one of the same who has been suspended by the commissioners. [Act April 17, 1846, p. 79, sec. 3. P. D. 4763.]

In general.—It seems to be intended by this article that the government shall have both the appointing power and discretion as to the needs of the port, the board in this latter respect being advisory. Petterson v. Boards of Com'rs, 24 C. A. 53, 57 S. W. 1066.

If the clause requiring a term of service as branch pilot be directory (and it seems to be so) the governor or board could ignore it in case of abuse and any person might be appointed whom the board might find upon examination to be possessed of the other required qualities, id.
Art. 6301. [3792] Term of residence and probation for pilots.—The board of commissioners of pilots of each port shall require a certain term of residence in the state of Texas, not less than two years, to authorize any person to exercise the functions of branch pilot for their port or said bays; as also to establish a term of probation not exceeding one year, as a deputy pilot, before any person can exercise the functions of branch pilot. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 4764.]

In general.—While the latter clause of this article is of faulty construction it is not void for uncertainty, and there are strong reasons for holding the provision of the article to be directory. Petterson v. Board of Com'rs, 24 C. A. 53, 57 S. W. 1004, 1006.

Art. 6302. [3793] Further powers and duties.—The board of commissioners of pilots shall have authority, within the limits provided in this title, to fix rates of pilotage, and to establish regulations respecting the stations whereat and the times wherein pilots shall be on duty, with provisions for leave of absence; as also respecting the class, condition, number and use of pilot boats, and such other minor regulations, compatible with the provisions of this title, as may be needed for the government of pilots and for the order and good effect of the proceedings of the board, of which proceedings a record shall be kept; provided, no regulation shall be adopted repugnant to the constitution. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 4766.]

Art. 6303. [3794] Same subject.—The board of commissioners of pilots shall be authorized and required to hear and determine all disputes that may arise respecting pilots and pilotage; to award to pilots extra compensation for extra services to vessels in distress; as also compensation for injurious loss of time incurred by pilots in waiting on vessels or by being carried off to sea on vessels by default of the master or owner when such pilots might have been landed; provided, always, that no more than three dollars for each day shall be awarded for mere loss of time; and it shall be the duty of said board to superintend and generally attend to all matters appertaining to pilots and pilotage; but from any decision of said board an appeal may be taken to the court having cognizance of the case. [Id. sec. 7. P. D. 4767.]

Art. 6304. [3795] County judge to appoint committee, etc., to act in place of board.—At any port whose population and circumstances do not warrant the appointment of a board of commissioners of pilots in the manner before provided, the governor may authorize the county judge of the county to appoint a provisional committee of from three to five persons of good character and maritime experience, who shall be authorized under this chapter to establish the rates of pilotage and the rules for governing pilots; to examine the qualifications of pilots and applicants for the office; to investigate the case of any pilot charged with misconduct or inefficiency, and to suspend him if sufficient cause appear. [Id. sec. 13. P. D. 4773.]

CHAPTER TWO
BRANCH PILOTS AND PILOTS FOR MOUTH OF BRAZOS RIVER AND MATAGORDA AND LAVACA BAYS

6306. Bond and oath. 6314. Their bond, by whom approved.
6308. Malfeasance and punishment. 6316. To keep channels staked out.
6310. Exemptions from extra pilotage. 6318. Rules for branch pilots applicable.
6312. Unauthorized pilot to forfeit fifty dollars.
Article 6305. [3796] Appointment, term and vacancies.—The governor is authorized and required to appoint at each of the ports such number of branch pilots as may from time to time be necessary, each of whom shall hold his office for the term of two years. In case of a vacancy in said office, the appointment shall be for the unexpired term. [Act April 17, 1846, p. 79, sec. 1. P. D. 4761.]

Art. 6306. [3797] Bond and oath.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, each branch pilot shall enter into bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the governor and his successors in office, and conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. Such bond shall be approved by the board of commissioners of pilots for the port, or if there be no such board, by the county judge of the county in which the port is situated, and forwarded to the governor, to be by him deposited in the office of the secretary of state. Each pilot shall also take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed in the constitution, which shall be indorsed on said bond, and together with the bond shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which such port is situated before being forwarded to the governor; and certified copies of said bonds, under the hand and seal of the county clerk, may be used as evidence in all the courts with like effect as the originals. [Id. sec. 5. Act Feb. 9, 1861, p. 19, sec. 1. P. D. 4765, 4775.]

Art. 6307. [3798] May appoint deputies.—Each branch pilot may appoint, subject to examination and approval by the board of commissioners, two deputies, for whose acts the branch pilot so appointed shall be responsible; and any branch pilot who shall appoint a deputy without the approval of said board shall forfeit his own appointment; and the said board shall have authority to restrict all deputy pilots from piloting over the bar vessels of over a certain draught of water. [Id. sec. 8. P. D. 4768.]

Art. 6308. [3799] Malfeasance and punishment.—Any branch or deputy pilot who shall be guilty of taking charge of a vessel in a state of inebriety shall, upon proof of the same, for the first offense be suspended for one month, and for the second offense be dismissed and be rendered incapable of again serving in either capacity; and if any branch or deputy pilot shall wilfully or by neglect cause the wreck of a vessel, he shall be dismissed and be rendered incapable of again serving in either capacity, and shall be subject to such punishment as is prescribed by law. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 4770.]

Art. 6309. [3800] Pilotage.—The rate of pilotage on any class of vessels shall not, in any port of this state, exceed four dollars for each foot of water which the vessel at the time of piloting draws, and whenever a vessel, except of the classes below excepted, shall decline the services of a pilot, offered outside the bar, and shall enter the port without the aid of one, she shall be liable to the first pilot, whose services she so declined, for the payment of half pilotage; and any vessel which, after being brought in by a pilot, shall go out without employing one, shall be liable to the payment of half pilotage to the pilot who brought her in, or, if she has come in without the aid of a pilot, though offered outside, she shall, on so going out, be liable for the payment of half pilotage to the pilot who had first offered his services before she came in, but if she has come in without the aid of a pilot, or the offer of one outside, she shall not, in case of going out without a pilot, be liable to half pilotage. At any port where vessels shall receive or discharge their cargoes at an anchorage outside of the bar, such vessel shall be liable to pilotage at the above rate to such anchorage, but shall not be liable for or compelled to pay pilotage from such anchorage to the open sea; and if any vessel bound from the open sea to such anchorage, while under way, shall decline the services of a pilot, and shall afterward receive or discharge any portion of her cargo at such anchorage, on the lighters or otherwise, she shall be liable for the payment of half pilotage, at the above rate, to such anchorage to the first pilot whose services shall have been tendered to and declined by her, but not liable for any pilotage from such anchorage to the open sea; and when a pilot takes charge of a vessel twenty miles outside of the bar, and brings her to it, he shall be entitled to one-fourth pilotage for such off-shore service, in addition to what he is entitled to recover for bringing her in, but if such off-shore service be declined, no portion of said compensation shall be recovered. [Act Sept. 26, 1866, pp. 14, 15, P. D. 7201. Acts 1879, ch. 89, p. 99.]

Art. 6310. [3801] Exemptions from extra pilotage.—The following classes of vessels shall be free from any charge for pilotage, unless for actual service, to-wit: All vessels of twenty tons and under, all vessels of whatsoever burthen owned in the state of Texas and registered and licensed in the district of Texas, when arriving from or departing to any port of the state of Texas; all vessels of seventy-five tons and under owned and licensed for the coasting trade in any part of the United States, when arriving from or departing to any port in the state of Texas; all vessels of seventy-five tons or under owned in the state of Texas and licensed for the coasting trade in the district of Texas, when arriving from or departing to any port in the United States. [Id. p. 15. P. D. 7201.]

Validity of provisions.—The provisions of the statute relating to coast wise vessels as distinguished from foreign, are in conflict with the laws of the United States and are void, but these provisions are separable from other provisions of the statute and these latter are not void. Olsen v. Smith (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 321.

Art. 6311. [3802] Consignee responsible for pilotage.—The consignee of any vessel shall be held responsible for the pilotage of said vessel. [Act April 17, 1846, p. 79, sec. 12. P. D. 4772.]

Art. 6312. [3803] Unauthorized pilot to forfeit $50.—If any person not appointed a branch or deputy pilot shall pilot any ship or vessel out of or into any port when a branch or deputy pilot has offered such service, the person so piloting shall forfeit and pay to such branch or deputy pilot the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered before any court having cognizance of the case. [Id. sec. 11. P. D. 4771.]

In general.—This article contemplates that under certain circumstances an unlicensed pilot may act. Olsen v. Smith (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 322.

Art. 6313. [3804] Pilots for mouth of Brazos.—The governor shall also appoint a sufficient number of competent pilots for the mouth of the Brazos river, whose terms of office, mode of qualification and pilotage shall be the same as prescribed in the preceding articles for branch pilots; and they shall be entitled to all the privileges, and shall exercise all the powers, and discharge all the duties prescribed for branch pilots, and be subject to like penalties. [Act March 18, 1848, p. 144. P. D. 4776, 4782.]

Art. 6314. [3805] Bond, by whom approved.—The bonds of pilots for the mouth of the Brazos river shall be approved by the county judge of Brazoria county. [Id.]

Art. 6315. [3806] Pilots for Matagorda and Lavaca bays.—The governor shall also appoint not less than two nor more than four competent pilots for Matagorda and Lavaca bays, from Pass Cavallo to Indianola and Lavaca, who shall hold their offices for the same term as branch pilots, and whose mode of qualification, powers and privileges, in so far as the same are applicable, shall be the same; the bonds of such pilots shall be approved by the county judge of Calhoun county. [Act Feb. 9, 1861, p. 19. P. D. 4775.]

Art. 6316. [3807] To keep channels staked out.—It shall be the duty of pilots appointed under the preceding article to keep the channels of said bays properly staked and marked out, and in default thereof they shall be subject to removal or suspension. [Id.]

Art. 6317. [3808] Pilotage for said bays.—The rate of pilotage for said bays shall be two dollars and fifty cents for each foot of water the vessel may draw at the time of piloting; and all vessels that may draw five feet or more shall be subject to pay any licensed pilot for said bays, whose services are tendered and declined, one-half the pilotage herein prescribed. [Id.]

Art. 6318. [3809] Rules for branch pilots applicable.—All the provisions of this chapter relating to branch pilots at ports, in so far as the same are applicable and not expressly qualified, shall apply to and govern pilots appointed for the mouth of the Brazos river and for Matagorda and Lavaca bays. [Id.]

Art. 6319. [3810] Penalty for unlicensed pilot.—If any person not a licensed pilot or deputy shall pilot any vessel into or out of the mouth of said river, or through the channel of said bays, up or down, he shall forfeit and pay to any pilot licensed or commissioned for the mouth of said river, or for said bays, full pilotage for such vessel, to be recovered by suit in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Enjoining unlicensed pilot.—In a suit by commissioned branch pilots to restrain an unlicensed pilot from acting as a branch pilot, a contention that, the federal government having deepened the Galveston bar and extended the harbor, plaintiffs were without authority to demand half pilotage, held without merit. Olsen v. Smith (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 320.

In a suit by branch pilots to restrain one not created a branch pilot from acting as such, a contention that plaintiff's statutory remedy was exclusive held of no merit. Peterson v. Smith, 30 C. A. 139, 69 S. W. 542.

POOL HALLS

Article 6319a. Local option elections.—The commissioners court of each county in this state may, when they deem it expedient, and shall when petitioned by ten per cent of the qualified voters of a county or a number of the qualified voters, equal to twenty per cent of the qualified voters of any political subdivision hereinafter mentioned, order an election to be held by the qualified voters of said county or of said political subdivision, to determine whether or not pool rooms, as herein defined, shall be prohibited in such county or such subdivision of the county, as the case may be; and in case an election is asked or order for a subdivision of said county composed of two or more complete commissioners or justices precincts or school districts, such petition shall describe such subdivisions by number only, and it shall never be necessary in a petition to more than refer to such precincts and districts by number, which said petition shall be recorded in the minutes of the commissioners court, and the notice of such election shall refer to the same by number only; provided, however, that no city or town shall be divided in holding a local option election, nor shall a school district be divided, but that the same, as an entirety, shall be included in such subdivision when the election is held. [Acts 1913, p. 136, sec. 1.]

Art. 6319b. Order for election; where held, etc.—It shall be the duty of said commissioners court, when an election is ordered, to direct that the same be held at the regular voting places within the proposed limits where the election is held, not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of said order, where it is practicable so to do, and the order made shall express the object of such election and shall be prima facie evidence that everything has been done to give it validity and to clothe the court with jurisdiction to make it; provided, that if there is no regular voting place within the proposed limits the commissioners court shall designate some suitable place within said subdivision where the election shall be held, and said place shall be named in the notices of election, and said court will appoint such officers to hold such election as are now required to hold the same under the general election laws. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6319c. Clerk to post order; election, how conducted.—The clerk of said court shall post, or cause to be posted, at least five copies of said order at different places within the proposed limits for at least ten days prior to the day of election, which election shall be held and the returns thereof made in conformity with the provisions of the general laws of the state and by the officers of election appointed and qualified under such laws. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6319d. Ballots, etc.—At such election the vote shall by official ballot, which shall have printed or written at the top thereof in plain letters "Official Ballot," and shall also have written or printed thereon the words "For the prohibition of Pool Halls," and the words "Against the prohibition of Pool Halls," and the clerk of the county court shall furnish the presiding officer of each voting box within the proposed limits not less than twice the number of ballots as there may be qualified voters at said voting box. The presiding officer of each voting box shall write his name on the back of each ballot before delivering the same to the voter, and the person offering to vote at such election shall at the time he offers to vote be furnished by such presiding officer with one such ballot, and no voter shall be permitted to depart from the room or place where the election is being held with such ballot, and shall not be assisted in voting by any person except by such presiding officer or by some officer assisting in holding such election under the direction of the presiding officer when requested by such voter so to do. Those who favor the prohibition of pool halls within the proposed limits shall erase the words "Against the prohibition of pool halls" by making a pencil or pen mark through the same, and those who oppose it shall erase the words For the prohibition of pool halls" in a similar way; no ballot shall be received or counted by the officers of such election that is not an official ballot and that has not the name of the presiding officer of such election written thereon in the handwriting of such presiding officer, unless it shall appear that his signature or the words "Official Ballot" were omitted from said ballot by mistake, accident, inadvertence or some cause not involving an intention to commit fraud in regard to said election. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6319e. Laws applicable; report of election; duty of commissioners' court; order prohibiting; evidence.—The officers holding said election shall in all respects not herein specified conform to the general election laws in force regulating elections, and after the polls are closed shall proceed to count the votes, and within ten days thereafter make due report of said election to the commissioners court, which court shall hold a special session on the 11th day after the election or so soon thereafter as practicable, for the purpose of opening and counting the votes, and if a majority of the votes are for the prohibition said court shall immediately make an order declaring the result and prohibiting the operation and maintenance of pool halls as defined in this Act, within the prescribed limits until such time as the qualified voters therein may at a legal election held for that purpose, by a majority vote, decide otherwise, and the order thus made shall be held as prima facie evidence that all of the provisions of the law have been complied with in petitioning for the election, ordering the election, giving notices thereof, holding the election, in counting and returning the votes and in declaring the results thereof, and the same shall be absolutely conclusive evidence that said election is valid and legal after the expiration of the time limited herein for a contest. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6319f. Order to be published or posted.—The order of the court declaring the result of such election and prohibiting the operation and maintenance of pool halls shall be published for two successive weeks in some newspaper published in the county where such election was held, which paper shall be selected by the county judge for that purpose. If there be no newspaper published in the county the judge shall cause three copies of said order to be posted at three different public places within the prescribed limits for the aforesaid length of time, and the fact of the publication shall be entered by the county judge on the minutes of the commissioners court, but a failure so to do on his part shall in no sense prevent the full operation of said law within the prescribed limits. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6319g. Order when vote against prohibition.—If a majority voting at such elections vote against the prohibition the court shall make an order declaring the results and have the same entered of record in its minutes. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6319h. Second election after two years, etc.—No election under the provisions of this Act shall be held within the same prescribed limits in less than two years after an election under this title has been held. Such time shall date from the expiration of the time provided for publication; provided that if no notice is required to be published then such time shall date from the time such result is declared; but at the expiration of the said two years the commissioners court when they deem it expedient and shall when petitioned in the manner as provided for hereinbefore, order another election to be held by the qualified voters of said county or any subdivisions such as are provided for herein, which said election shall be ordered, held, notice thereof given, votes counted and returned and results declared and published in all respects as provided for the first election and the order granting such election, and declaring the results, shall, if the prohibition carried, have the same force and effect and the same conclusiveness as are given to them in the case of a first election by the provisions of this Act. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6319i. Order setting aside previous order prohibiting.—When such election results against the prohibition the court shall enter an order setting aside the previous order enforcing the prohibition, and shall officially announce and publish the same as provided where the election resulted in favor of the prohibition. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6319j. Failure to carry prohibition not to prevent other election, when and where.—The failure to carry the election in favor of the prohibition of pool halls in any county shall not prevent an election therefor from being immediately held in a justice's precinct, a commissioner's precinct, school district or a territory composed of two or more of such subdivisions, or in a city, town or village of such county as may be designated by the court, or as may be indicated in any petition presented; nor shall the failure to carry prohibition in a town or city or village prevent an election from being immediately thereafter held for the entire county, justice precinct, commissioners precinct, school district or a territory composed of two or more subdivisions in which said town, city or village is situated; nor shall the failure to carry prohibition in any subdivision of a county prevent the holding of an election immediately thereafter in the county or in any subdivision of the county, or in a territory composed of two or more subdivisions of the county of which said justice precinct is a part; but where prohibition has been carried for the entire county no election on the question of prohibition shall be thereafter ordered in any subdivision or a part of said county until after the same has been defeated at a subsequent election ordered and held for the entire county; nor in any case where prohibition has carried in any subdivision or territory of a county designated shall an election on the question be ordered thereafter in any part of said subdivision or territory until after the same has been defeated at a subsequent election ordered and held for the larger precinct, subdivision, or territory. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6319k. Election may be contested, when and how, etc.—At any time within thirty days after the result of an election has been declared by the commissioner court any qualified voter within the limits of the territory for which the election is held may contest the same in the district court of the county, which court shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction of all suits to contest the election. The proceedings thereof shall be conducted in the manner as has been or may hereafter be prescribed for contests, and said court shall have jurisdiction to try and determine all matters connected with said election; shall have authority, if necessary, to have ballot boxes opened, ballots recounted and exam-
Art. 6319l. Pool hall defined.—The term "pool hall" as used herein shall mean and include the following: Any room, hall or building in which are exhibited any pool or billiard table or tables for the purpose of permitting games played thereon for hire, revenue, prize, fees, or gain of any kind. [Id. sec. 12.]

Note.—Section 12 makes it a criminal offense to operate a pool hall after an election resulting in favor of prohibition.

Art. 6319m. Authority of county and district attorneys; injunction.—After any such county or such subdivision thereof has by vote as prescribed in this Act prohibited the running of pool rooms or pool halls in such county or subdivision thereof, the county attorney of such county or subdivision or the district attorney of the district in which such county is situated, either in term time or vacation, may apply to the district judge of such district for an injunction to prohibit the running of any pool room or pool hall in such territory in which the running of same has been prohibited and if upon hearing the court should determine that pool rooms or pool halls are running in violation of the provisions of this Act he shall issue an injunction permanently prohibiting the running thereof, while the law is in effect prohibiting same. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 6319n. Evidence; judicial notice, etc.—In any prosecution that may arise under this Act it shall not be necessary for the state to introduce in evidence, any records, order of court, or any copy thereof, in regard to the adoption of said law, but all courts of the county and all appellate courts reviewing any such prosecution shall take judicial knowledge of the existence and validity of said law, and shall give the same in charge to the juries the same as if a part of the penal code of this state. [Id. sec. 15.]

PRAIRIE DOGS—PROVIDING FOR THE EXTERMINATION OF

Article 6320. Organized counties to hold elections.—In all organized counties in Texas, upon the written petition of fifty freeholders of any such county, the commissioners' court of such county shall order an election to be held on some day named in the order, for the purpose of enabling the freeholders to determine whether or not the prairie dogs shall be exterminated in said county. [Acts 1903, p. 70, sec. 1.]

Art. 6321. Thirty days' notice of election.—Upon filing such petition, the commissioners' court, at its next regular term, shall order an election to be held in such county on a day to be designated in the order, not less than thirty days from the date of such order, the election to be held and conducted and the returns thereof made in accordance with the laws regulating general elections in so far as the same are applicable. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6322. Order for election.—Immediately after the passage of an order for an election by the commissioners' court, the county judge shall issue an order for such election, giving thirty days' legal notice, said notice reciting the petition and the action of the commissioners' court, and naming the date for said election. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6323. Election, where held; managers and their pay.—The election shall be held at the regular election boxes in said county by the regularly appointed managers of elections; and for holding said election, those holding the same shall be paid the legal fees as provided by law for such services. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6324. Qualifications of electors.—No person shall vote at any election under the provisions of this title unless he be a freeholder in the county, and is also a qualified voter under the constitution and laws of this state. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6325. Form of ballot, and returns.—The ballots to be voted in any such election shall either have written or printed on them, "For extermination of prairie dogs," or, "Against extermination of prairie dogs," and those holding the election shall make within ten days time legal returns showing number of votes cast for and against the same to the county judge of the county, who shall tabulate and count the vote in the presence of the commissioners' court and ascertain the result of said election. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6326. Twelve months allowed to exterminate dogs.—If a majority of the votes cast at such election shall be, "For extermination of the prairie dogs," the county judge immediately after counting the votes shall issue his proclamation declaring the result of the election, which proclamation shall be posted at the court house door, and, after the expiration of twelve months from its issuance, it shall be unlawful for any land owner or lessee of land in said county to allow to run at large any prairie dog on any lands owned or leased by him, and it shall be his duty to kill the same within twelve months from issuance of proclamation by the county judge. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6327. Who liable, and measure of damages for non-compliance. —After the issuance of proclamation by the county judge in any county, declaring that the election has been held and that the result was, “For extermination of prairie dogs,” at the expiration of twelve months any land owner, or lessee owning land in said county who shall wilfully fail or refuse to kill the prairie dogs inhabiting his land shall be liable for damages to the owners of contiguous land who have complied with the law; and the measure of damages is hereby fixed at two dollars and fifty cents per month for each and every month that he permits the prairie dogs running on his land to run at large. Any land owner owning adjoining lands, who has in good faith complied with the law and removes the dogs from his lands, should his lands be invaded by prairie dogs from the adjoining land, he may bring a suit for damages against such land owner, the amount of damages being hereby fixed at two dollars and fifty cents per month, and such suits are to be filed in the courts having competent jurisdiction; provided, further, that any party desiring to bring suit must notify the party from whom he claims damages, in writing, ninety days prior to the filing of said suit, and no damages shall accrue until after the expiration of said ninety days; provided, however, that in all cases where lands infested with prairie dogs owned by nonresidents, and such land or lands are being used by some other person, or inclosed under the fence of another who is paying the owner thereof no compensation for the use thereof, then in all such cases the duty herein imposed as to the extermination of such prairie dogs shall devolve upon the person so using such land or lands or having the same inclosed under his fence. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6328. Venue of suits.—The venue of all suits for damages under this title shall be in the county or precinct where the lands of the plaintiff are situated. [Id. sec. 8a.]

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY

[See Article 3732.]

Art. 6330. [3812] Discharged by failure to sue, when.—If the creditor or obligee, not being under legal disability, shall fail to bring his suit to the first term of court thereafter, or to the second term, showing good cause why he did not bring it to the first term and prosecute the same to judgment and execution, the surety giving such notice shall be discharged from all liability thereon. [P. D. 4784.]

Failure of creditor to proceed against principal.—As to the liability of the surety, when creditor has been negligent in pursuing remedy against principal, see Parka v. State Nat. Bank, 84 S. W. 1044. A surety on a note after notice to payee to sue the principal is discharged if suit is not brought within the statutory time. Sullivan v. Dwyer (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 355.

The fact that the payee of a note does not sue thereon at the first term of court after maturity does not release the surety. Rice v. Farmers & Merchants Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1023. If the payee fails to bring suit after notice in writing by the surety to do so, at the first term, or at the second, and showing good cause for not bringing it at first, the surety shall not be released. Leazer v. Menefee (App.) 51 S. W. 486.

Facts held to show sufficient diligence on the part of the payee of a note in suing the maker on notice to do so by sureties. Robertson v. Angle (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 317. Since, on death of a principal, a creditor may look to the surety, and cannot be compelled to first resort to the probate court to collect the debt, a failure to do so after notice did not release the surety. National Bank of Commerce v. Gilvin (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 652.

A surety is not released by a failure to sue at the first or second term, unless he has given notice in writing to the creditor forthwith to institute suit; consequently an agreement extending the time of payment of the debt of a pledgor does not affect the liability of makers of notes pledged. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1059.

Art. 6331. [3813] May have question of suretyship tried, when.—When any suit is brought against two or more defendants upon any contract, any one or more of the defendants being surety for the others, the surety may, upon a written statement of the matter being set out in his answer, cause the question of suretyship to be tried and determined upon the issue made for the parties defendant, at the trial of the cause, or at any time before or after the trial, or at a subsequent term; but such proceedings shall not delay the suit of the plaintiff. [P. D. 4785.]

Action by creditors.—Parties.—See Art. 6336. Under this article and Arts. 2000, 3732, 6332, 6333, an estate which was surety on notes secured by a vendor's lien should be made a party defendant in an action against the principal debtor on the notes and to foreclose the lien, in order to enable the executrix of the estate to protect the equitable rights of the estate; and hence the principal could not be proceeded against alone in the district court for a personal judgment, and the claim afterwards prosecuted against the estate in the probate court. Hume v. Perry (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 594.

Venue.—Where defendants residing in different counties are sued as joint sureties, and one files a cross-pleading against another alleging that the latter assumed the entire burden of the joint suretyship, and was really the surety or indemnitor of the other sureties, the plea of privilege of the defendant in the cross-action to be sued in the county of his residence was properly overruled. Hall v. Taylor et al. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 758.

Art. 6332. [3814] Execution, levied first on property of principal. —If the finding of such issue be in favor of the surety, the court shall make an order directing the sheriff to levy the execution first upon the property of the principal subject to execution, and situate in the county in which the judgment was rendered, before a levy shall be made upon the property of the surety, if so much property of the principal can be found as will in the opinion of the sheriff be sufficient to make the amount of the execution; otherwise the levy to be made on so much property of the principal as may be found, if any, and upon so much of the property of the surety as may be necessary to make the amount of the execution; and the clerk shall make a memorandum of such order on the execution. [P. D. 4786.]

In general.—An appeal having been taken from a joint and several judgment against a principal, supersedeas was sued out by the principal and sureties, except T., who did not join in the writ of error. Pending such appeal the judgment could not be enforced by execution against T. Wren v. Peel, 64 T. 375.

This statute cannot be enforced when the principal debtor is dead, with the preservation of the right of his executor to proceed against the surety since the principal debtor must be proceeded against in the probate court. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat Bank v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 645.

Judgment for creditor.—Form of.—It is error to render judgment against a principal and a surety, in any direction that execution shall issue in a suit against both, when the surety has not paid the debt and when his right to an execution is not made dependent on his future payment. Laphie v. Corbett, 69 T. 503, 6 S. W. 988.

Judgment should be rendered so that execution should be first levied upon the property of the principal. Montrose v. Panin County Bank, 29 S. W. 706.
In an action against the maker and indorser of a note, a judgment which failed to direct that principal and interest due on the note be levied upon the property of the maker is improper under this article. Abney v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Hillsboro (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 784.

- Effect of.—When a joint and several judgment is rendered against the principal and sureties, it does not change their relations as to each other as principal and sureties. Wren v. Peel, 64 T. 375.

Judgment against sureties of tenant.—See Art. 5484.

Execution against property of surety.—See notes under Art. 3732.

Deposit in court.—See Title 37, Chapter 21.

Art. 6333. [3815] Rights of surety who makes payment on a judgment.—When any person, being surety in any undertaking whatever, shall be compelled to pay any judgment, or any part thereof, or shall make any payment which is applied upon such judgment by reason of such suretyship, the said judgment shall not be discharged by such payment, but shall remain in force for the use of such surety, and shall be considered as assigned to such surety, together with all the rights of the creditor thereunder, to the extent of the payment thereof made by such surety, and interest thereon; and such surety shall be entitled to have execution thereon in the name of the creditor for the use of such surety against the principal debtor for the full amount of such payment and interest thereon and all costs, which execution shall be issued upon the application of such surety to the clerk, or court, as the case may be, and shall be levied, collected and returned as in other cases. [P. D. 4787.]

See, also, notes at end of title.

In general.—In order for a surety to obtain the benefit of this article and Art. 6331, he should plead the question of the suretyship and have the same adjudicated on the trial of the case. Tarlton v. Orr, 40 C. A. 419, 90 S. W. 636.

Rights of surety against creditor.—A surety upon an error bond sued out by one of several joint debtors and paid after the judgment, has been affirmed is subrogated to the rights of the plaintiff as against all the defendants. Taul v. Epperson, 38 T. 492.

Where the original principal in a debt prosecuted a writ of error, and the original surety or indorser of the note afterwards paid the debt, he is entitled to have the judgment against the original defendant and sureties on the supersedeas bond assigned to him, upon the general principle that a surety is entitled to assignment of all collaterals, and that the second surety might have put him in a worse position. Mitchell v. De Witt, 25 T. Sup. 180, 78 Am. Dec. 561.

Where interveners had paid a judgment existing against property devised to them, by reason of their testator's liability as surety for the payment of another judgment, it was not necessary for them to sue on the original judgment, but they were entitled to pursue an action to subject the land, for the purchase price of which that judgment was obtained, to the claims of their intestate. Darrow v. Summerhill, 244 Mo. A. 300, 58 S. W. 185.

The sureties on the bond of a defaulting county treasurer may bring in a bank who has misappropriated the funds as a surety and be subrogated to the rights of the county against such bank in the same action. Skipwith v. Hurt, 94 T. 328, 69 S. W. 727.

Where a judgment against a principal and surety was paid by the surety without satisfying the same of record, the surety was subrogated to the lien of the judgment, and he or his assignee could foreclose the same. W. T. Rickards & Co. v. J. H. Bemis & Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 298.

Right to contribution in general.—See, also, notes at end of title.

A surety paying a judgment is entitled to have execution thereon in the name of the creditor, against the principal debtor; also against the cosurety for half the amount. Ernst v. Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 457.

Under this article and Art. 6331, a surety who has paid a judgment is not precluded from thereafter seeking contribution against a cosurety of his proportionate part in an action of implied assumpsit. Eubanks v. Sites (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 982.

Jurisdiction.—When suit is brought in the county court on a note secured by the vendor's lien, a surety on the note cannot defeat the jurisdiction of the county court by pleading such lien. The most that the new surety could claim would be the right of subrogation in case he should pay the judgment. Crozier v. Stephens, 2 App. C. C. § 861.

Judgment.—A judgment against the maker and surety on a note should conform to Art. 6333. Dignowity v. Staedke (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 324.

It is proper for the court to render judgment over in favor of the guarantor against his principal even without pleading of the guarantor in a case where judgment was rendered against the guarantor. Slaughter v. Moore, 77 C. A. 233, 49 S. W. 772.

An entry providing for execution in favor of indorser in case of payment by him is but a formal declaration of a right plainly given him by this article and Art. 6337. No pleading on the part of the indorser is necessary as a basis for such judgment. Kyle v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 400.

Under this article and Arts. 6331, 6332, 6337 indorsers of a purchaser's note, secured by a vendor's lien, who are parties to the holder's suit thereon and for foreclosure, and who by cross-bill ask judgment over against the purchaser, are entitled to the judgment prayer in the same amount as plaintiff's judgment against them, and to have execution for any sums that may be paid out by them by reason of the judgment. Blake v. Vesey (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 221.
Art. 6333  PRINCIPAL AND SURETY  (Title 109)

F. S. T., and N. subscribed to corporate stock, each to take in severality a fourth part of the stock subscribed, and gave their joint note for the subscription price. In an action on the note, N. answered by general denial; T. answered by setting up the transaction out of which the note arose, and alleged that each of the defendants was primarily liable for a fourth of the note, and liable as surety for each of the others in a like amount. P. and S. signed the note as sureties for T. and N. The judgment found against the four defendants jointly for the full amount of the note, and recited that, if either of the defendants should pay to the plaintiff more than one-fourth of the judgment, he should, as to the excess so paid, become subrogated to the rights of the plaintiff against the other defendants. Held, that the recitals in the judgment as to the right of contribution and subrogation were in response to T.'s answer, and not to that of P. and S., and that the judgment was one imposing a joint liability with a several right of contribution, where T. paid the entire judgment, he was entitled to have execution issued in his favor against the other defendants to enforce contribution to the extent of three-fourths of the amount thereof. As authorized by this article and Arts. 6331, 6334; the rule that, when a judgment is rendered against several persons jointly, without provisions therein for the right of contribution or subrogation, the judgment is extinguished by a payment by one of the judgment debtors, so that his remedy for contribution is by a separate action, not applying. Polk v. Seale (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 329.

Under this article and Art. 6337 a judgment against the maker and indorser of a note, which, after decreeing the amount due plaintiff, ordered that the indorser should recover from the maker the amount he might be compelled to pay on the judgment, is not improper as making no reference to the verdict, whereby the sum due the indorser might be ascertained, or is entirely omitting the statement of that amount. Abney v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Hillsboro (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 734.

Art. 6334. [3816] One surety may have execution against a co-surety, when.—Should there be more than one surety, and one or more of them has failed to pay his proportionate part of the judgment, execution may issue, as provided in the preceding article, against the principal for the use of the surety who has paid more than his proportionate part for the whole amount paid by him and interest thereon, and also against his co-sureties for their proportionate part of the excess so paid by him, and interest thereon. [P. D. 4788.]

Art. 6335. [3817] Sheriff, etc., has same rights as surety, when.—If a sheriff or other officer shall be compelled to pay any judgment, or any part thereof, by reason of any default of such officer, except for failing to pay over any money collected, or for wasting property levied on, such sheriff or other officer shall be entitled to have execution therefor against the principal defendant in such judgment as provided in the case of a surety. [P. D. 4787.]

Art. 6336. [3818] Surety not to be sued alone, unless, etc.—No surety shall be sued, unless his principal is joined with him, or unless a judgment has previously been rendered against his principal, except in the cases provided for in article [1843].

Foreclosure proceedings.—The statute limiting right to sue sureties held inapplicable in proceeding to foreclose deed of trust out of court, through intervention of trustee. Duncan v. Hand (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 233.

Art. 6337. [3819] Who is surety within this title.—The remedy provided for sureties by this title extends to indorsers, guarantors, drawers of bills which have been accepted, and every other suretyship, whether created by express contract, or by the operation of law. [P. D. 4789.]

1. CREATION AND EXISTENCE OF RELATION

1. Guaranty accompanying suretyship obligation.—One signing a note as surety may by provisions thereof also guarantee payment for future purchases on open account by the principal debtor of the same or others. Bassham v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1965.

3. Creation of relation in general.—In an action on a note brought by a transferee a special answer alleged that at the time defendant B. executed the note he was a surety for a codefendant, that it was agreed that the surety’s husband would sign as principal, that at maturity B. informed the payee in writing that he was only a surety and instructed the payee to sue thereon, and that the surety had property which could have been... made liable. Held, that B. was not entitled to protection as surety, but was in legal effect, as if not requiring that the payment of the husband to sign as principal. Wright v. Hulme (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 346.

4. Implied contracts.—An accommodation acceptor who has been obliged to pay the bill, though primarily liable to the payee as between himself and drawer, is entitled to be regarded, in the light of a surety for the drawer. Sublett v. McKinney, 19 T. 434.

Circumstances under which a loan was made held to show prima facie that one of the makers of the note for the loan was only a surety. Devine v. United States Mortg. Co. of Scotland (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 585.

Where a mortgagee executed another mortgage to his grantee, on other property, as security for his agreement to discharge the mortgage on the premises granted, held, that the grantee was a surety to the extent of the interest conveyed by the later mortgage. Marsh v. Clift, 39 S. W. 683, 642.

An agreement held not to make land, on which was a mortgage, only a surety for the mortgage debt. Heard v. Thrasher (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 803.

Where a mortgage is given to secure the notes of a third party, the mortgagees, though, as against the parties to the notes, become sureties thereon to the extent of their interests in the land, which is treated as surety or guarantor. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 642.

Assumption of payment of notes held to create relation of principal and surety with maker. Lad v. Patton, 43 C. A. 11, 93 S. W. 619.

Where one assumes payment of a note as consideration for a transfer, the relation of principal and surety is created between the original and new debtor. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 722.

An agreement between defendant and plaintiff, from whom defendant purchased lumber which plaintiff had purchased, and for which he gave purchase-money notes to a bank, secured by lien, by which defendant agreed to assume plaintiff's purchase-money notes, was merely as surety liable merely as such to the bank. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 209.

5. Change from principal debtor to surety.—The maker of a note secured by mortgage does not become a mere surety as to the note because, when he afterwards conveys the mortgage, he conveys the mortgage as security to R., but informs him that it must look to R. as the principal obligor, and to himself as surety only; the payee not consenting or agreeing thereto. Witt v. Amarillo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1108.

6. Change from surety to principal debtor.—When the money of a ward is loaned by the guardian to a firm composed of the guardian and one of the sureties on his bond, such surety becomes a principal debtor as between himself and his cosurety, from whom the co-surety, after payment of the debt, would be entitled to recover all he paid. Roberson v. Tonn, 76 T. 655, 13 S. W. 385.

7. Notice to creditor of relation.—In a suit by an executor on a note given to testator, testator's knowledge that certain defendants were sureties held not proved by evidence that another defendant, whose sureties they were, paid the Interest. Coffin v. Loomis (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 51.

8. Execution of written instruments.—One employed as agent to make a contract for another, but who signs as an obligor, is liable thereon as surety. Tabet v. Powell, 39 C. A. 465, 88 S. W. 273.

A building contractor's bond executed by the sureties held binding on them, though the contractor did not sign it. Wright v. Jones, 55 C. A. 616, 120 S. W. 1139.

A bond signed by the sureties is not void merely because it is not signed by the principal. Mitchell v. Hydraulic Bldg. Stone Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 148.

A bond signed by sureties held valid as to them, though not signed by the principal. Marsh v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1160.

9. Conditional signature.—One who signs a joint obligation upon an agreement between all the parties thereto, is but one surety, and shall not be bound unless the name of another party is procured, is not bound by a subsequent verbal promise to pay. Lowery v. Dixon, 66 T. 76.

Where the obligee on an official bond had notice, before it was filed with and approved by him, of a stipulation between the principal and his surety that said surety should not be held liable unless a bilateral suretyship existed, the surety was not bound by a signature while the stipulation is not fulfilled. McFarlane v. Howell, 16 C. A. 246, 45 S. W. 315.

Violation of a surety's oral agreement with principal maker, of which payee had notice, to obtain another solvent surety before delivery of a note, held a good defense to payee's action against the surety. Large v. Parker (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 587.

Where a surety signed a convict bond on a condition precedent to his liability, and the payee, on accepting the bond, knew of such condition, which never was fulfilled, the surety was not liable on the bond. Gatling v. San Augustine County, 35 C. A. 358, 61 S. W. 432.

A surety, though signing on condition that another sign as surety, which was not done, is liable; the bond having been delivered without the obligee knowing of the condition. Seaton v. McReynolds (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 874.

Bond signed by sureties on condition, expressed by one of them only, that third person would sign, held of no validity against either, if not signed by third person. Norris v. Cettie, 38 C. A. 29, 79 S. W. 641.

Failure to obtain an agreed number of sureties on the bond held to discharge the sureties obtained. French, Finch & Co. v. Hicks, 52 C. A. 457, 114 S. W. 691.

If a party to a contract on condition that another should sign, he will not be afforded relief if the other does not sign, unless the obligee is notified of the condition. First Nat. Bank v. Burns (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 34.

An agreement between sureties on a note held not binding on the payee, unless he had notice thereof, and that it had been violated before he took the note. Hess v. Schaffer (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1024.

The defense that a bond was not to be used unless the principal or procured other sureties is insufficient, where the bond provided that no agreement that other persons

One signing an obligation as surety, on condition that another shall also sign it, is not bound when the other does not sign it, if the obligee has notice of the condition, but, where the obligee has no knowledge of the condition, the surety is liable. Wharton v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ins. Co. of Philadelphia (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 539.

10. Delivery of written instruments.—A note payable to a named person or bearer, and delivered by the maker to a third person, is void as to the sureties. Battle v. Cushman (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1037.

12. Consideration.—A surety to a note without consideration is not bound thereby. One who signs a note as surety after it is executed, no other consideration intervening, is not liable. Simmang v. Farnsworth (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 641.

A creditor's acceptance of notes for a debt due held a valid consideration to support the obligation of accommodation sureties. Hannay v. Moody, 31 C. A. 88, 71 S. W. 325.

The release of a cosurety from liability and the dismissal of an action on the debt secured is a sufficient consideration for a note and the collateral agreement to become liable instead of such cosurety. Wash v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 368.

A promise as guarantor or surety to pay an executed contract of indebtedness of a third person, without additional consideration, is not binding. Bluff Springs Mercantile Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 710.

13. Mistake.—Where an insurance agent had been appointed district manager before the execution of his bond, his sureties cannot claim freedom from liability for his acts as such, on the ground that they supposed they were executing a bond for a soliciting agent only. Foster v. Franklin Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 91.

14. Surety, on a building contractor's bond, holding him on notice so as to make it his duty to make inquiry in the absence of which mere silence of the obligee was not fraud precluding a recovery on the bond. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Means & Fulton Iron Works (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 526.

In an action by a surety, who had paid a judgment, to compel contribution of a cosurety, a defense charging fraud in obtaining defendant's signature and a forged indorsement, but failing to impeach the plaintiff, held insufficient. Eubanks v. Sites (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 963.

16. Estoppel or waiver as to defects or objections.—One who has signed a note as surety for another to be used for a particular purpose, on being informed that it could not be so used, should promptly notify the payee that he was no longer bound by his signature, or he may be held on the note if afterwards used for the purpose originally intended. Early v. Chamberlain, 1 App. C. C. § 221.

Sureties, who, after signing, delivered the bond to the principal, held estopped to deny liability, though the principal failed to sign it. Marsh v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1160.

17. Guaranty companies.—See notes under Title 71, Chapter 13.

II. NATURE AND EXTENT OF LIABILITY OF SURETY

18. General rules of construction.—If the bond of a surety company insuring the performance of a building contract is susceptible of two constructions, one favorable and the other unfavorable to the surety company, the latter, if consistent with the object for which it was adopted, American Surety Co. of New York v. San Antonio Loan & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 387.

Suretyship contracts are to be strictly construed, and uncertainties and ambiguities resolved in favor of the surety. American Surety Co. of New York v. Koen, 49 C. A. 54, 167 S. W. 535.

A bond must be strictly construed according to its terms, and cannot be extended by implication, so as to make sureties liable beyond its stipulations. Campbell-Root Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1195.

A surety can be held only upon the very terms of his contract. Bomar v. Gahagan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 683.

19. Scope and extent of liability in general.—Any person capable of contracting may create a lien on his property to secure the debt of another without subjecting himself to any further obligation than the lien contract imposes. Hodges v. Roberts, 14 T. 317, 15 S. W. 223.

Sureties on a county judge's bond held not liable for the judge's misappropriation of the proceeds of school lands sold by him under an appointment of the commissioners' court. Henderson County v. Richardson, 15 C. A. 699, 40 S. W. 38.

Though a principal separately bound himself to pay in a particular place, the sureties are not bound by his contract, but by their bond. Chamberlain v. Fox (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 297.

An owner suing a contractor and the surety on his bond, conditioned to secure faithful performance of the contract, held entitled to recover the amount it would cost above the contract price to remedy the defects and complete the work according to the contract. American Surety Co. v. Lyons, 44 C. A. 150, 97 S. W. 1080.

Where promissory notes are secured by a deed of trust of property, which deed fixes the compensation of the trustee in case of sale, sureties on the notes are bound thereby, and cannot claim that the trustee was entitled to a reasonable sum only. Bolton v. G. C. Gifford & Co., 45 C. A. 140, 100 S. W. 210; Sorrel v. Same (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 215; Seelisong v. Same, Id.
Under a certain bond referring to the employment of the principal, the sureties held bound only for cash advancements, and not for other obligations of the principal covered by the contract of employment. Turner v. National Cotton Oil Co., 59 C. A. 484, 109 S. W. 1112.

A surety in a bond of an insurance agent held not liable for the failure of the agent to pay a premium note procured from an insured, and indorsed and delivered to the general agent of insurer. McClary v. Trezevant & Cochran (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 954.

In the absence of fraud or collusion, when a principal is concluded, the sureties are also concluded. Roman v. Shaw (App.) 114 S. W. 146.

The obligation of the surety cannot be extended beyond the terms of his bond, nor to those not parties thereto. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Jasper, 56 C. A. 236, 120 S. W. 1145.

The liability of an accommodation surety cannot be extended beyond the strict letter of the contract. May v. Chicago Crayon Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 733.

20. Commencement of liability.—Sureties are not liable for defaults taking place before the execution of the bond, unless made so by its terms. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 665.

21. Conditions of liability.—Agreement by a seller with the buyer's surety that other notes should not mature before the one on which the surety was liable held supported by sufficient consideration. Reeves & Co. v. Jowell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 364.

22. Duties of office or employment, and performance thereof by principal.—For liability on particular statutory bonds, see notes under the particular statutory provisions.

The sureties on a mail contractor's bond to the United States are responsible only to the government on a breach of the bond: their obligation as sureties is strictissimi juris, and they are not responsible to the citizen as sureties on such bond for a failure of their principal to deliver mail packages, whereby damages result. McRea v. Williams, 58 T. 328.

The sureties on the bond of the treasurer of a corporation are liable for the subsequent misappropriation of funds in his hands at the time the bond was executed. Barry v. Screwman's Ass'n, 67 T. 256, 3 S. W. 261.

The sureties on a bond conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of an agent of an insurance company are bound for advances made to the principal by the obligees under whom he worked. Chamberlain & Gillette v. Hodgetts (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 161.

A bond given by an insurance agent held breached, rendering the sureties liable thereon. Haupt v. James Cravens & Co., 56 C. A. 253, 120 S. W. 541.

Where a contract between a crayon company and an agent, appointing the agent as district manager, only required him to solicit orders for frames and the enlargement of portraits and collect money for the portraits and frames, making him responsible for an accounting of his subagents for money collected and money advanced to them in carrying on the business, the agent was not bound to account for money collected for the sale of wire for use on the portrait frames, so that the surety was not liable for the agent's default in accounting for such money. May v. Chicago Crayon Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 733.

In an action for breach by a contractor against his assignees and their sureties on a bond given for the completion of a building in accordance with the contract, facts held against the contractor, as against the sureties, to a credit for damages accrued in completing the building. American Surety Co. v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 969.

A contractor who transferred his contract, taking a bond for completion of the building, as against the sureties of his assignees in an action on the bond for breach of contract for the excess over the 600 Advance allowed the building, with the builder on an order directing the latter to pay to a bank $5,000, or so much as might be advanced by it out of the next estimate. 1d.

Contractor's surety on a building contract held entitled under the terms of the contractor's bond by him, if the owner paid no more than the contract price for the completion of the building, though the contractor abandoned the work. Essex v. Murray, 29 C. A. 368, 65 S. W. 736.

Sureties on the bond of a building contractor held bound by determination of architect as to what items were necessary to complete the contract on its abandonment by the contractor. Dallas Homestead & Loan Ass'n v. Thomas, 36 C. A. 268, 81 S. W. 1041.

Sureties upon a contractor's bond held bound by the agreement to arbitrate. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

III. DISCHARGE OF SURETY

25. Subsequent release or agreement.—Creditor held not estopped to proceed against surety by creditor's attorney's representation that principal's administratrix would pay claim, where surety was not prejudiced thereby. National Bank of Commerce v. Gilvin (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 652.

Sureties on a lessee's bond conditioned to put certain machinery into the building held not released by the facts that the property put in was subject to a lien, that some of it was leased, that some rent paid, unless that quantity of property put in complied with contract. Marsh v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1160.

An indorser of commercial paper will ordinarily be released by the same acts that will release a surety. First Nat. Bank v. Powell (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1096.
Title 109

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY

A surety on a contract to indemnify a subsequent purchaser for the nonpayment of a vendor's note was not discharged as indemnitor by his principal's fraud in procuring the release of the lien note, or by an indorser's failure to obtain a written transfer of the note; he not having been induced to sign the note by the vendor's acceptance of the release or indorser's failure to record such transfer. Davidson v. McKinley (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1142.

A requested instruction to the effect that the principal debtor committed after the making of the guaranty are not binding on the guarantor, where not ratified by him, held improperly refused. Ball-Carden Co. v. Humphrey (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 585.

28. Death of surety.—At common law, when the surety on a joint obligation dies, there is no action against his estate on the obligation. Brown v. Locke, 53 Ala. 1036. The act of February 20, 1880 (4th Cong., p. 73), the estate of those jointly bound with another was liable after the death of the former, the same as if the obligors had been bound severally as well as jointly. Bergetroon v. State, 58 T. 95; Mays v. Cockrum, 57 T. 263; Glasscock v. Hamilton, 82 T. 143. This act was re-enacted by Revised Statutes 1895 (Final Title, § 4), but its provisions were re-enacted by the act of March 10, 1887 (20th Leg., p. 17, ante, Art. 3433). See Boyd v. Bell, 69 T. 735, 7 S. W. 657.

The intention of the indorsers being to make themselves severally as well as jointly bound as the principal, the death of one indorser did not relieve his estate from liability. Latham v. Flour Mills, 68 T. 127, 3 S. W. 462.

29. Change in obligation or duty of principal.—A surety is discharged by a valid agreement, made without his consent, varying the original contract in any material particular. Lane v. Scott, 68 T. 256; Rayett v. Morton, 65 T. 258. Where the principal debtor and creditor, without consent of the surety, enter into a new agreement by which the original contract is altered, with intent to change its effect, and with knowledge on the part of the creditor of the relation of principal and surety, the latter is discharged. Clark v. Cummings, 84 T. 610, 19 S. W. 798.

An insurance agent's bond held to contemplate a recovery after agreements changing his duties, and hence the fact that defalcations occurred while filling the position of district manager was no defense to the liability of the sureties. Foster v. Franklin Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 91.

Where a contract of employment was materially changed without the consent of the employee's accommodation sureties, they were discharged from liability on his bond. Cuddy v. Paupinger, Daily C. A. 1, 93 S. W. 788.

A deed of trust held not to authorize one of the grantors to change the debt secured from an open account to a note, imposing an increased liability, as against one of the signers of the deed, who was a mere surety. Casey-Swasey Co. v. Anderson, 37 C. A. 223, 95 S. W. 840.

Sureties in a bond conditioned on the principal therein constructing a building according to certain plans are released where without their consent the plans are subsequently materially changed. Thompson v. Chaffee, 39 C. A. 567, 59 S. W. 235.

The sureties on a note given by a shipper of cotton to a factor for advances held not released by a transaction in accordance with the general custom of the market of which they had notice. Kempner v. Patrick, 43 C. A. 216, 95 S. W. 51.

Where the owner to whom the right of the sureties in the plans is reserved, a surety on the contractor's bond is not discharged by the exercise of the right by the owner. American Surety Co. of New York v. San Antonio Loan & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 387.

The owner in a building contract may waive compliance with a provision that no alteration or extra work is to be done except on the price and additional time necessary to complete the same being agreed upon and indorsed on the contract, without discharging the surety on the contractor's bond. Id.

Generally any material change in a contract for the performance of which a bond is given, without the surety's consent, will release the surety, whether the change is for his benefit or not. Lonergan v. San Antonio Loan & Trust Co., 101 T. 63, 104 S. W. 1061, 106 S. W. 878, 129 Am. St. Rep. 303.

A compensated surety on a bond to perform a contract held discharged from liability by material changes in the contract without his consent. Id.

Failure to comply with a provision of a building contract held not subject to waiver so as not to discharge the contractor's surety on it being disregarded. Id.

A surety in a building contractor's bond held released from his obligations by reason of changes made in the building. Luling Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Gohmert, 50 C. A. 606, 110 S. W. 772.

Under the terms of a building contractor's bond, the sureties held not discharged by a subsequent agreement that the president of the contracting company should pay at the first installment of the price, and receive a credit therefor in satisfaction of his personal debt to the owner. Zang v. Hubbard Building & Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 85.

A surety is discharged by a valid agreement made without his consent, varying the original contract in any material particular, whether the change be to his benefit or prejudice. Id.

The surety on one of several notes given for the price of machinery held entitled to discharge for breach of a condition imposed by him. Reeves & Co. v. Jowell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 364.

Where a subcontract provided for payments to the subcontractor of 85 per cent. of estimates, but the contractor agreed to make advancements for necessary materials and labor, which exceeded the contract price, there was a material change in the contract which relieved the subcontractor's sureties from liability. McKnight v. Lange Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 977.
Where, by a material change in a subcontractor's contract, excessive payments were made which discharged his sureties, it was immaterial that they were necessary to enable the subcontractor to complete the job. Id.

A surety on a bond which binds him to all changes or modifications made in the contract between the obligor and obligee is not discharged from liability because of material modifications. Wharton v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ins. Co. of Philadelphia (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 539.

As respects a surety on a building contractor's bond, a provision of a contract for the construction of a schoolhouse that a surety was not altered by a member of the school board, who was a practical contractor, though not a professional architect, agreeing with the other members to act as such supervisor. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Beckville Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1161.

Where, in a building contract, there is nothing making it binding on the owner to employ a certain person named by inference as the supervising architect, a verbal agreement that such person is not to be so employed, made without the consent of the surety on the contractor's bond does not release the surety. Id.

Where the terms of a contract, the performance of which is guaranteed by a surety, are materially altered after its execution, the surety is released unless he consents to the change. Id.

30. Alteration of instrument.—A. signed a promissory note, writing the word "security" after his signature. After the execution and delivery of the note, and without his knowledge or consent, the word "security" was erased. Held, that A. was thereby discharged. Rogers v. Tapp, 1 App. C. C. § 1208.

The title of an officer bond by the clerk of the commissioners' court, by erasing therefrom the name of one of the sureties, without the consent of the remaining sureties, will discharge all of the sureties; but the principal, who afterwards performed official duties, is estopped from denying the validity of the bond. Wilbarger County v. Bean, 3 App. C. C. §§ 17, 18.

Sureties on note held released by erasure, before delivery, without their knowledge, of the name of a signer. Connor v. Thornton (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 354.

A change in the name of a surety bond held not a material one and did not affect its validity. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. J. M. Abbott Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 472.

In an action on a note from which the name of one of the sureties had been erased, the effect of such erasure on the liability of former and subsequent signers stated. Hees v. Beam (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1024.

Where, when a note was delivered, it bore the names of four sureties, but the name of one had been erased, the payee, in the absence of notice to the contrary, could presume that the erasure was with the consent of the other sureties. Id.

Where the payee of a negotiable instrument had indorsed it to a third person, and, on the maker's default, had taken up the note, the erasure of the indorsement was not such alteration as to deprive the payee of his remedy on the note. Gray v. Altman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 760.

A surety on a contractor's bond for the construction of a schoolhouse held not released by an alteration of the contract where a member of the board knew of the alteration, and the member was employed by the surety company to procure the bond. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Beckville Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1161.

31. Change in parties to obligation secured.—The transfer of mortgaged property and the assumption by the assignee of payments of notes secured by the property held to release the surety from liability on the notes. Trott v. Gaar, Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 679.

32. Extension of time for payment or other performance.—If a creditor, without the knowledge and consent of the surety, gives time to the principal by a valid and binding agreement enlarging the credit beyond the period stipulated in the contract, the surety will be discharged both in law and equity. Morris v. Boatright, 4 App. C. C. § 235, 18 S. W. 639; Mann v. Brown, 71 T. 241, 9 S. W. 111; Gardner v. Watson, 76 T. 26, 13 S. W. 35; Clark v. Cummings, 54 T. 610, 19 S. W. 798; Beasley v. Boothe, 22 S. W. 255, 3 C. A. 98; Marshall Nat. Bank v. Smith, 33 C. A. 555; 77 S. W. 237; Wright v. Deaver, 32 C. A. 130, 114 S. W. 165; First Nat. Bank v. Rusk Pure Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 89.

An extension of time secured by a mortgage on land without the consent of a subsequent owner held not to release the land from lien. Montague County v. Meadow, 51 C. A. 266, 51 S. W. 655.

Where the holder of a note, after having received information that one of the signers thereof was only a surety, extends the time of payment without the surety's consent, such surety is released. Zapalac v. Zapp, 22 C. A. 755, 54 S. W. 938.

Where A. had no knowledge that the holder of a note had extended the time of payment without the consent of the surety, an instruction to find for the plaintiff was erroneous, since whether there was an extention was a question for the jury. Robson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 83.

The sureties on an appeal bond are not discharged from liability by an agreement of the obligees, without their knowledge, permitting the filing of the transcript in the appellate court after the time for its filing has expired. McAuley v. McKinney, 23 C. A. 600, 57 S. W. 309.

Extension of time before maturity of note, and acceptance of new note from which one of the sureties was omitted, held to have released a trust deed, indemnifying the sureties. Westbrook v. Belton Nat. Bank, 97 T. 246, 77 S. W. 942.

In an action on mortgage notes, evidence that a part of the consideration was a contingency for an extension without the knowledge of the sureties held admissible to affect the liability of the surety. Moroney v. Coombs (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 430.
Title 109  PRINCIPAL AND SURETY  Art. 6337

Proving claim on note against maker in bankruptcy proceedings and delay in bringing suit on the a note held not for an extension of time as to discharge surety. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 610.

Indorsor agreeing conditionally to extension of time of payment held released by extension without compliance with condition. Long v. Patton, 48 C. A. 11, 93 S. W. 519.

Costs assessed on a justice held dispositive, on a suit for the recovery of costs collected by the justice due to the county attorney by an agreement extending time of payment. Wright v. Deaver, 52 C. A. 130, 114 S. W. 165.

An agreement between the payee of notes the passage of a mortgage and the transfer of the mortgaged property, extending the time of payment on the notes, held not to release the surety from liability thereon. Trott v. Gaar, Scott & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 670.

A surety on a note held discharged by agreement between the creditor and principal debtor. Dearing v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 876.

An agreement extending the time of payment of a debt of the pledgor does not affect the liability of makers of notes pledged by him. Daugherty v. Wiles (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1089.

33. — Requisites and validity of agreement in general.—If the creditor, without the knowledge and consent of the surety, expressly or tacitly yielded, gave time to the principal by a valid and binding agreement, enlarging the credit beyond the period mentioned in the contract, the surety will be discharged; but the mere giving of time without a binding agreement to that effect will not discharge the surety. Burke v. Cruger, 6 T. 66, 58 Am. Dec. 102; Cruger v. Burke, 11 T. 694; Payne v. Powell, 14 T. 600; Wybrants v. Lutch, 24 T. 399; Pilgrim v. Dykes, 24 T. 383; Hunter v. Clark, 28 T. 159; Roberts v. Bank, 32 T. 395; Chalbore v. Birge, 42 T. 98; Yeary v. Smith, 45 T. 56; Hoerr v. Cofer, 1 T. App. C. C. § 155; Farmers & Merchants' Bank v. Bayless, 1 T. App. C. C. § 1245.

A guaranty that "the undersigned agrees to guaranty and become responsible on the within note to the extent of $800" is an absolute promise to pay, and is not discharged by mere mention of the amendment or further note extending the time of collection the holder is charged with diligence, and if by his negligence or laches a loss occurs it must fall upon him. Tobin Canning Co. v. Fraser, 81 T. 407, 17 S. W. 25.

Extension of time of payment in favor of one who has assumed a note, but who has not been accepted as debtor, does not discharge a surety, though he did not consent. Behrens v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 419.

An extension of a note for an indefinite period held not valid as to discharge a surety thereon. Webb v. Phulie (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 19.

Surety on note held not discharged by payment of interest in advance by maker without surety's knowledge. Guerguin v. Boone, 33 C. A. 622, 77 S. W. 630.

That the holder of a note indulges the maker not enforcing collection held not to release the sureties where there is no binding contract to extend the note. Titterington v. Murrell (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 510.

A contract between a holder and maker of a note, and a deed from the latter to the former, held to extend the time for the payment of the note, releasing the sureties thereon. Carter-Battle Grocer Co. v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 889.

A surety is released by an agreement extending time of payment, though the creditor was induced to make the agreement by fraud of the principal. Red River Nat. Bank v. Bray (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 968.

Agreement for the assumption of a mortgage by the payee of a note held not to discharge the sureties on the note, the mortgage not being security therefor. First Nat. Bank v. Rusk Pure Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 89.

A surety held released by a binding agreement for an extension of the maturity of the note, not without knowledge, but not by an agreement made for the benefit of the creditor for fraud. Red River Nat. Bank v. Bray, 105 T. 512, 148 S. W. 290.

34. — Consideration.—Part payment by a principal of a note, secured by trust deed, on a verbal promise to extend time of payment on the amount remaining, without other consideration, does not operate as a release of the sureties on the note. Andrews v. Hagnon, 54 T. 571.

Sureties not affected by the principal to pay a higher rate of interest than that specified in the note. Brown v. Fountain, 22 S. W. 129, 3 C. A. 227.

An agreement to extend the payment in consideration of the payment of interest in advance releases a surety who did not consent thereto. State Nat. Bank v. Stratton-White Co. (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 631.

Where a new agreement between a debtor and creditor is that the debtor shall pay, at the end of a period agreed on for an extension, precisely the same sum due at the time the agreement was entered into, the surety is nevertheless released. De Barrera v. Frost, 39 C. A. 544, 88 S. W. 47.

An agreement between a holder and maker of a note extending the time for its payment held supported by a consideration. Carter-Battle Grocer Co. v. Clarke (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 889.

An extension of time for payment of a note, on consideration that the maker would pay interest accruing, held to release the surety. Fambro v. Keith, 57 C. A. 302, 122 S. W. 40.

An agreement by a debtor held a valid consideration for the creditor's promise not to enforce payment in monthly installments. Dearing v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 876.

35. Taking additional or substituted security.—An agent made with sureties a bond to his principal guarantying payment of all moneys "which may come into his hands by virtue of his employment under the present or any future contract." He thereafter was required to give a new bond as an additional security. After this he made default, and it was held that the sureties on both bonds were liable. Singer Manuf. Co. v. Ponder, 82 T. 653, 13 S. W. 152.

Execution of a note for the balance of an account providing for attorney's fees and a higher rate of interest held to charge the property of a surety mortgaged to secure the account. Casey-Swasey Co. v. Anderson, 37 C. A. 223, 83 S. W. 840.

Where an action was based on a note for the balance of an account secured by a deed of trust, plaintiff held not entitled to recover as on the account, as against a surety who had been the taking of the note. Id. by Id. 36. Payment or other satisfaction by principal.—The guarantor of the payment of a note is discharged by the existence of any matter growing out of the contract which entitles the maker of the note to recover from the payee a sum equal to the balance which would otherwise be due on the note. A v. W. S. 801; Mann v. Brown, 71 T. 241, 9 S. W. 111; Wylie v. Hightower, 74 T. 306, 11 S. W. 1118; Gardner v. Watson, 76 T. 25, 13 S. W. 39.

Where notes given for price of personality are secured by personal sureties, and also by mortgage on property, return of property to seller will not of itself discharge sureties. Burns v. Staacke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 354.

Sums collected by the agent of the payee of a note from collateral deposited by the maker held a proper credit on the note in favor of the sureties. Robertson v. Angle (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 317.

Preferential payment of a note by a bankrupt held not to extinguish the note either as to the bankrupt's indorser or sureties. Hooker v. Blount, 44 C. A. 162, 57 S. W. 1882.

Surrender of certain vendor's lien notes on payment by one of the makers with simple interest, and a release of the lien, held to discharge the other maker's interest in the land from further liability for payment of compound interest under a deed of trust, and therefore to discharge and release complainant's land covered by the deed as surety. Irwin v. Yell (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

Assignment of certain accounts to a bank, the proceeds to pay a note on which R. was surety, having been set aside in bankruptcy against the maker, held not to constitute payment of the note as against R. Rider v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 906.

37. Misapplication of funds or securties by creditor.—Failure of a bank to apply the proceeds therefrom as directed by note secured by sureties from liability, though the sureties' obligation had not matured. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Gibbs (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 947.

A condolet to erect a building, who let the contract to a third person, who executed a bond, held not required to see to it that payments made by him to the third person on account of the building were actually so applied by the third person. Caldwell v. Concho Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 625.

A surety is not discharged to a bank where the bank fails to exercise its privilege of appropriating to the payment of the note a deposit to the credit of the principal in its possession. National Bank of Commerce v. Gilvin (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 652.

38. Release or loss of other securities.—A. executed his note payable to B. After the maturity of the note B. by his indorsement assigned the note to C., being about to sue out an attachment against the maker of the note, who was about to move out of the county, D., who was not a party to the contract, deposited with C. certain property to prevent him from suing out the attachment. Afterwards, in consideration of the release of the property, D. executed to C. an obligation guaranteeing the payment of the note. Suit was afterwards brought against the maker, the indorser and guarantor. Held, that the liability of the indorsor having been fixed by suit, he was not released by the contract of guaranty, and the pledge of the property and guaranty did not inure to his benefit. Tooke v. Taylor, 31 T. 1.

Where the holder of a note transferred to another a mortgage taken as collateral security, the surety was thereby discharged. Embree v. Strickland, 1 App. C. C. § 1299.

The owner of several promissory notes, executed by four persons, who signed each of them with collateral security, whereupon the same were secured with one of the debtors that, in consideration of $100 then paid, and in further consideration that if another note, then made by the debtor, for $115, was paid, to release the one debtor from liability on the lien notes, and if the $115 more was paid, to release one hundred acres of the land from the lien. The note for $115 was not paid when it matured, and an extension of time was refused. Held, the payment made of $100, and the making of the note for $115, which matured before the lien notes became due, constituted a sufficient consideration to support the promise for the release of the lien. The liability of the other principals in the note continued after the release of the one who thus contracted for his discharge. Kirchoff v. Voss, 67 T. 320, 3 S. W. 548.

Where a principal creditor has the means of satisfaction within his grasp, he must return it to a trustee, for the benefit of its security. This rule does not apply to bank deposits. Houston v. Braden (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 467.

In an action on a note against sureties an instruction that, if the deposit of collateral was a part of the agreement on the faith of which sureties signed, and the payee did not take collateral, the sureties were relieved, held error. Robertson v. Angle (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 317.

It was not essential to a surety's defense on the ground that the creditors had permitted the principal to escape with certain of the mortgaged property, that such act was collateral with intent to deprive the surety of part of the property under a subsequent mortgage. Scott v. Llano County Bank, 59 T. 221, 89 S. W. 749.

On a sale of certain mortgaged cattle to the mortgagee's assignee for application on a mortgage debt, such assignee held bound to the mortgagor's surety, secured by another mortgage on the same cattle, not only to sell the mortgage, but to use due diligence to obtain possession and apply them to the debts. Id.

Surety on note held discharged by failure of payee to record chattel mortgage, resulting in loss of security. Bennett v. Taylor, 43 C. A. 30, 55 S. W. 704.

A transaction between a shipper of cotton and a factor who had made advances to him held not to have released the shipper's sureties. Kempner v. Patrick, 43 C. A. 216, 95 S. W. 61.

Where a nonresident indorsee of a note, after learning of fraud in the acceptance and negotiation of the note, had in its hands funds of the nonresident payee sufficient to pay the note, the maker is not liable to the indorsee. Union Nat. Bank v. Menefee (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 823.

The holder of a note signed by a surety and also secured by a chattel mortgage by permitting the principal to remove the mortgaged property from the state held to have discharged the surety. Means v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 846.

The levy of fixed duties on sued for certain cattle, having transferred the same to a bank, and the mortgage securing it, held not discharged by the removal of the cattle to another state, nor by bank's passive negligence in failing to see that the proceeds of the cattle were applied to the note. Id.

Failure of a bank to apply the funds of a depositor on deposit to the payment of a note held by it will not discharge the surety thereon. Id.

Where mortgaged property is not in the hands of the mortgagee, his mere indulgence or even negligence in delaying foreclosure, though resulting in loss of the security, does not relieve sureties on the debt, though it is otherwise if the mortgaged property is in the mortgagee's possession and control. Dillard v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 303.

Sureties on a debt secured by a mortgage held not released by reason of the creditor's consent to the removal of a small portion of the property; the sureties' right in any event being limited to the value of the property so removed. Id.

39. Release of surety.—When the obligation of the sureties is joint and several, the discharge of one of them does not ordinarily release the others from payment of their proper proportion of the claim. Glasscock v. Hamilton, 62 T. 145.

As between joint promisors who are principals, a release of one is a release of all; but as between promisors who are between as between themselves the relation of principal and surety, the liability of the principal is made neither more nor less by the release of a surety, and the latter may stipulate for his own discharge and leave the creditor to pursue his remedy against the principal for the full amount of the original debt. McElhenny v. Blum, 68 T. 197, 4 S. W. 367.

By agreement, one joint surety may be released without releasing the others. Richardson v. Overlee, 17 C. A. 376, 44 S. W. 308.

A discharge of one of several sureties from a joint or several obligation with an express reservation as to the other obligors does not release the other sureties or principal. Lane v. Moon, 46 C. A. 625, 103 S. W. 311.

In an action on a joint and several bond signed by defendants as sureties for a liquor dealer, where the corporation was a consequently ultra vires, the other surety held not released if the corporation should be relieved of liability on a plea personal to itself. Munoz v. Brassel (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 417.

Where a person sued two sureties, his dismissal as against the heirs of one of them, substituted upon the surety's death pending suit, would not release the remaining surety. Carlton v. Krueger, 54 C. A. 48, 115 S. W. 619, 1178.

40. Unauthorized payment to principal.—Material alterations in contract by principal held to discharge the sureties. Sanders v. Hambrick, 16 C. A. 459, 41 S. W. 883.

Where a building contract allowed the owner to retain 25 per cent. of the contract price, his payment of the entire amount did not release the contractor's sureties. Meyers v. Wood, 28 C. A. 591, 65 S. W. 671.

Surety on a building contractor's bond held not discharged by the obligee unconsciously failing to retain a part of the contract price. McKenzie v. Barrett, 43 C. A. 461, 98 S. W. 229.

Whenever a principal on a note is discharged, his sureties will be also, but to this rule there are certain exceptions, among which are sureties of married women, infants and lunatics. Lee v. Yandel, 69 T. 34, 6 S. W. 665.

Where the money of a ward is loaned by the guardian to a firm composed of the guardian and one of the sureties on his bond, such surety becomes a principal debtor as between himself and creditor, and the discharge of such surety operates as a discharge of the surety. Roberson v. Tomn, 76 T. 535, 13 S. W. 366.

A judgment of the United States circuit court, absolving the United States marshal and the attaching creditor from liability, held a bar to a subsequent action for such levy against the sureties on the attachment bond. Sonnenheim v. Texas Guarantee & Trust Co., 32 C. A. 436, 56 S. W. 143.

Sureties on Justice's appeal bond held released by plaintiff's release of part of the defendants. Crook v. Lipscomb, 30 C. A. 567, 70 S. W. 993.

Release of one who had assumed payment of notes held to release maker. Long v. Patton, 43 C. A. 11, 98 S. W. 519.

Release of maker of note also releases indorser. Id.

42. Negligence of creditor in general.—The sureties on the bond of an officer of an incorporated company for the faithful performance of his duties as such are not relieved from liability on account of the fact that the officer was already a defaulter when the bond was executed, the corporation having had no knowledge of the defalcation. Mere negligence of the officers in failing to detect the fraud will not relieve the securities. Bennett v. S. A. R. E. B. & L. Ass'n, 57 T. 72.

43. Failure to terminate employment or contract after default.—A surety on a building contractor's bond held not discharged from liability merely because the obligee acquiesced in the continuance of the work by the contractor after the time fixed for the completion of the work. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Means & Fulton Iron Works (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 536.
44. Neglect to give notice to surety of default.—A surety is generally bound with his principal in one and the same instrument. The contract of a guarantor is a separate undertaking in which the principal does not join. A surety becomes liable upon the delivery of the obligation. A guarantor is only liable upon default and is entitled to notice. Garrett v. Mobile Life Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. 397.

Where a surety of a trust, requiring strict integrity, and the obligee knows that the person from whom he requires bond with security for its performance is dishonest, it is his duty to inform the surety. The fact that the treasurer of the association was required to keep a bond with such treasurer, during a former term, has mingled the funds of the association with his own, and thus used the identical trust fund for individual purposes, and in this way may have been guilty of a technical conversion, and this with the knowledge of the association, who failed from the sureties or officers to inform the court will not relieve the sureties from liability on the treasurer’s bond for a subsequent defalcation. Screven’s Ass’n v. Smith, 70 T. 168, 7 S. W. 793.

The obligee in a builder’s bond does not have to give the sureties on the bond notice that the principal has abandoned the contract or breached the contract. Dallas Homestead & Loan Ass’n v. Thomas, 36 C. A. 258, 51 S. W. 1043.

The failure of the county attorney to notify the sureties on the official bond of a justice that the justice has collected and neglected to pay over costs due to the county attorney does not release the sureties. Wright v. Deaver, 52 C. A. 130, 114 S. W. 165.

The obligee in a building contractor’s bond held not required to notify the surety of a defect in the work. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Means & Fulton Iron Works (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 596.

45. Neglect to act or proceed against principal.—Notice by surety, see notes under Arts. 6329, 6330.

When the issuance of an execution creates no lien on the debtor’s property, the mere fact that the execution is held up by the creditor, unless it be done in pursuance of a valid and binding principal debtor’s contract with the surety, will not relieve Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 131. See Jenkins v. McNeese, 34 T. 189; Parker v. Nations, 33 T. 210; Johnston v. Mills, 25 T. 704.

Ordinarily the surety is not released if the creditor fails to have execution issued on his judgment, or, having one issued, fails to have it levied. But if a lien on property is created by a levy of an execution, such property becomes a fund to be applied to the judgment, and the creditor is chargeable with diligence and is responsible for his own negligence. The same rule applies when there is a judgment of foreclosure on property, Machine Works v. Templeton, 52 T. 443, 18 S. W. 601.

Sureties on a replevin bond held not released by plaintiff’s delay in levying execution, Koch v. Cornwell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 144.

Sureties on county treasurer’s bond are not released by connivance of county commissioners at the treasurer’s defalcation. Coe v. Nash (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 255.

The payee of a bankrupt’s note owes no duty to a surety thereon to prove such debt as a claim against the bankrupt estate. Levy v. Wagner, 29 C. A. 98, 69 S. W. 112.

As a rule, the payee need not exercise active diligence to preserve his rights against the surety on a note. First Nat. Bank v. Rusk Pure Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 89.

Mere passivity or inaction by a creditor will not discharge a surety, even though the debt could have been collected if the creditor had acted promptly, where the creditor acts in good faith and takes no affirmative action detrimental to the surety’s rights. National Bank of Commerce v. Glivin (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 652.

46. Reservation by creditor of rights against surety in transactions with principal.—An order allowing a compromise with sureties on an administrator’s bond held to show intention of releasing one surety, and in fact that a deed of property on receipt should not operate to release the others. Ulrich v. Hoefling, 23 C. A. 289, 56 S. W. 199.

Provision in agreement by maker and holder of a note, on extension thereof, that surety should not be released, held not binding on surety. Robson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 686.

Certain agreement between assigning debtor and accepting creditor, that sureties on indemnity bond shall not be released, held not fraudulent. Weddington v. Jones, 41 C. A. 465, 91 S. W. 818.

When the holder of certain vendor’s lien notes, by surrendering them to one of the makers, discharged the signers of a deed of trust from liability thereon, he could not avoid such result by notifying them that he did not intend to release them from the obligations of the deed. Irion v. Telf (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 69.

47. Consent by surety to transactions between creditor and principal.—Sureties liable for the performance of a contract are not released by a change in the contract, caused by an agreement made by them. Janes v. Ford Heim Brewing Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 836.

When a surety requests an extension of time, he cannot claim immunity, or be heard to say it operated to his detriment. Henderson v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 305.

Act of owner in violating building contract as to manner of payment to contractor, and in furnishing additional money above the contract price, held not to release the sureties. Brown v. Ironman, 30 C. T. 248, will not release the sureties on contract for delivery of cattle held to have acquiesced in, and ratified, forbearance as to time of delivery extended to his principals. Stanley v. Evans, 33 C. A. 535, 77 S. W. 17.

Extension by payee of time for payment of notes to one who had assumed payment thereof without knowledge or consent of maker held to release maker. Long v. Patton, 43 C. A. 11, 93 S. W. 519.

Surety on a corporation’s note, having participated in an arrangement by which the corporation was formed, is not himself discharged from liability as surety, where he knew that the holder still looked to him for full payment. Peugh v. Moody (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 296.

48. Waiver or estoppel of surety.—A surety on a bond liable for goods sent to the principal, making arrangement for the sending of more goods after he knew a contrary
IV. REMEDIES OF CREDITORS

50. Rights of action against surety.—Creditor held not estopped to proceed against surety by looking to the principal’s estate for payment for several years, where this was done at the surety’s request and he was kept informed as to the status of the claim. National Bank of Commerce v. Glavin (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 662.

51. Defenses by surety.—The sureties on a bond are not bound on the principal there

A surety on a note given for the price of corporate stock held not required to tender back the stock to avail himself of the defense that he was released from liability because of the extension of the note without his consent. Wiseagarve v. Yinger (Civ. App.) 122
S. W. 925.

A surety on an indemnity bond given by a building contractor held entitled to assert that the property was the homestead of the obligee in the bond. Republic Guaranty

52. Conclusiveness of former adjudication in action against principal or surety.—
A finding by a probate court that a certain sum was due from a discharged guarantor is admissible in an action on the guarantor’s bond. Hornung v. Schramm, 22 C. A. 327, 64
S. W. 616.

A judgment adjudicating the nonliability of the only solvent principal on a bond is an adjudication that the sureties are not liable. Grayson County Natl. Bank v. Wandeloha (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1168.

In an action on a judgment against a guardian and the sureties on his bond, the

53. Recourse to indemnity to surety.—A creditor’s right to enforce security given by the principal debtor to a surety held not affected by an agreement between the principal and surety made after the creditor had commenced suit. Magilli v. Brown, 29 C. A.
662, 50 S. W. 143, 642.

A mortgagee may avail himself of a fund furnished by the mortgagee to a surety for payment of the debt, though the mortgagee is solvent and the land is sufficient to pay the mortgage. Id.

A mortgagee may avail himself of a later mortgage made by his mortgagee on other land, in favor of a purchaser of the land covered by the earlier mortgage, to secure the payment of the earlier mortgage. Id.

54. Pleading.—See, also, notes under Art. 1877, § 133.

Petition in a suit on a note against T. and N., alleging that it was understood that
N. was to sign the same as surety, and that plaintiff believed he had signed it, etc., held to state no cause of action against N. Vogelsang v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 637.

55. Evidence.—See, also, notes under Art. 2687.

Evidence held insufficient to show that one of the makers of a note secured by mortgage on the other’s land had the benefit of the loan, thereby making him a principal.

Amortization of liability of sureties on bond to indemnify shippers determined.
Lasater v. Purcell Mill & Elevator Co., 22 C. A. 33, 64 S. W. 425.

In an action on a building contractor’s bond, evidence held to warrant an inference that the president of the contractor actually applied out of his individual funds $600 to the expense of the construction of the building received by him as a credit on indebtedness owing by him personally to the owner. Zang v. Hubbard Building & Realty Co. (Civ.
App.) 125 S. W. 85.

56. Instructions and questions for Jury.—See notes under Art. 1971, § 152.

57. Execution.—See notes under Art. 3752.

V. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF SURETY

(A) As to Creditor

58. Recourse to and exhaustion of remedy against principal.—Where a judgment has been rendered against principal and sureties, and the principal dies, having undertaken to appeal, the judgment creditor need not see that the appeal is prosecuted to effect before pro­ceeding against sureties. Willis v. Chowning, 90 T. 617, 40 S. W. 395, 59 Am. St.

Payee of an obligation, after death of principal debtor, may treat the sureties as primarily liable, without proceeding against deceased principal’s estate. Id.

59. Recourse to and exhaustion of other securities.—Upon the payment of the debt of the principal, the surety is entitled to the full benefit of all collateral security, both of an equitable and legal nature, which the creditor has taken as an additional pledge for his debt, and he is entitled to be substituted as to the very debt itself to the creditor, and have it assigned to him. Sublett v. McKinney, 19 T. 438; Jordan v. Hudson, 11 T.
88; Fievel v. Zuber, 67 T. 275, 3 S. W. 273.

A surety who pays the debt is entitled to the benefit of any security held by the 401; Kiam v. Cummings, 13 C. A. 195, 36 S. W. 770.
The payment of an accommodation draft by the acceptor entitles him to be regarded in the hands of a surety and is entitled to an assignment of all the independent securities in the hands of the creditor, with all the remedies which he had to enforce them against the principal. Hoffman v. Elignall, 1 App. C. C. § 705, citing Jordan v. Hudson, 11 Ta. 82; Sublett v. McKinney, 19 Ta. 438.

A surety paying without suit a note providing for attorney's fees in case of suit is subrogated to the payer's rights under such provision, and may recover such attorney's fees in a suit against the maker. Bevillé v. Boyd, 16 C. A. 491, 41 S. W. 670, 42 S. W. 218.

When an assignee of note is not named as beneficiary in deed of trust, and did not accept its terms, indorser is not released from liability by failure of assignee to enforce such deed. Tarver v. Evansville Furniture Co., 26 C. A. 46, 48 S. W. 133.

Where an indorsed note is given as a part of the purchase price of land, the vendor also retaining a lien therefor, he is not required to exhaust such lien before collecting of the indorser. Levy v. Wagner, 29 C. A. 58, 69 S. W. 112.

In an action seeking to enforce an insurance agent for misappropriation, it was no defense that the company's general agent was also liable to it for such misappropriation. Foster v. Franklin Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 91.

An ex-guardian surety, having been subrogated to the rights of the succeeding guardian in an action against his principal and several defendants primarily liable for such ex-guardian's misappropriations, held entitled to continue such action against the defendants primarily liable. Brown v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 594.

The holder of a note may sue an indorser, without first resorting to his remedy under a mortgage securing the same. Williams Bros. v. Rosenbaum (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 554.

Sureties of guardian, who settled for her default, held subrogated to rights of wards against debtors, whose claims guardian compromised without authority. Browne v. Fidelity & Deposit Co., 98 Ta. 55, 50 S. W. 598.

A surety on a note who paid the note held subrogated to the proceeds of a note given by the third person, and then a note by the beneficiary of a co-surety, so that on the payee collecting the note of the third person the proceeds were held for the benefit of an assignee of the surety. Vernor v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 641.

The surety on the bond of a guardian, though a company engaged in giving bonds for compensation, held, on paying a judgment on the bond, subrogated to the right of the ward against one who had received from the guardian funds misappropriated by him. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Adoué & Lobit, 104 Ta. 379, 137 S. W. 648, 138 S. W. 38, 137 La. 499, 499, 409 La. (N. Y.) 409, 499, 499.

Where a tax collector wrongfully commingled money belonging to the state and to a county, embezzled part of it, and paid the balance to the county, which appropriated it to its own benefit without any act to its prejudice, its want of notice was no defense to an action by the state for the bond to the state, having paid the collector's bond, and subrogation to the rights of the state. Boax v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 200.

The undertaking of a surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.

The surety on a note is independent and additional to any security furnished by the maker, and a holder of the note may sue on the unqualified promise of the surety without reference to any collateral security available from other sources. Erwin v. E. J. Du Pont De Nemours Powder Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1097.
A surety held entitled to recover the amount of a note given him by his principal as indemnity, together with the stipulated interest and attorney's fee, Worthington v. Whitefield (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 34.

Sureties on a renewal note paid by the maker are not entitled to sue on notes held by them as security against their liability as sureties. Morgan v. Hays (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 215.

63. Rights of surety after payment or satisfaction by him of debt or liability.—Subrogation on payment of judgment, see notes under Art. 633.

When the surety upon a promissory note is sued, the principal is liable to him for the costs of such suit. Bennett v. Dowling, 22 T. 669.

A surety of two other sureties on a note held not liable to them, they having paid the debt. Multnomah v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 499.

A conveyance in satisfaction of the obligation of a surety incurred by paying the debt. Tarlton v. Orr, 40 C. A. 410, 99 S. W. 534.

The discharge of either the principal or a surety in a bond does not deprive another surety who subsequently pays, of his remedy against the principal for indemnity, or the co-surety for contribution. Lane v. Moon, 46 C. A. 625, 103 S. W. 311.

A surety who pays a note for his principal discharges it, and can recover only on the implied contract of reimbursement. Hays v. Housewright (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 922.

Surety having paid the debt, his claim for reimbursement is on the implied promise arising out of the relation of the parties. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 920.

64. Actions against principal.—A finding held not to show that a conveyance was not in satisfaction of the obligation of a surety incurred by paying the debt. Tarlton v. Orr, 40 C. A. 410, 99 S. W. 534.

Under a contract between principal and surety, principal held not liable for compensation of attorney employed by surety. American Surety Co. of New York v. Lehr (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 681.

Evidence held insufficient to show the making of an express contract by a principal to reimburse his surety after the principal’s implied promise was barred by limitations. Yndo v. Rivas (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 920.

(C) As to Co-sureties

65. Relation between cosureties.—One surety may be held a principal as to another surety, where it is shown that such was the understanding between them. Dullnig v. Weckes, 16 C. A. 1, 40 S. W. 178.

67. Recourse to indemnity to cosurety from principal.—Sureties for several debts held entitled to share pro rata in proceeds of indemnity mortgage. Wheeler v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 376.

A co-surety who is surety for the same principal on a different liability, and takes security therefor, held not liable to contribute to the other surety. Urbahn v. Martin, 19 C. A. 58, 46 S. W. 291.

One of two sureties on a treasurer’s bond, on taking security prior to payment of the amount due, held liable to contribution. Id.

After co-sureties have paid the amount due on their bond, one of them, obtaining security from the principal, is not liable for contribution to the other. Id.

68. Right to contribution in general.—A surety on an official bond who secures in advance the principal indemnity and the means of discharge and the obligation holds it for the benefit of his cosureties; but the fact that such indemnity and means of payment were secured constitutes no defense to a surety against paying the debt to the creditor, if by an appeal to the principal it constitutes no additional demand for contribution against a non-paying surety. Glasscock v. Hamilton, 62 T. 143.

As soon as a debt becomes due, any one of several cosureties may without suit at once pay the debt and recover contribution from his cosureties. But if the principal be insolvent, no contribution can be enforced in favor of a cosurety who voluntarily discharges a debt or judgment that could have been collected from the principal. Id.

Ordinarily there is no liability for contribution to a cosurety who voluntarily pays the debt after it is barred by limitations; yet, if he pays it after judgment on a suit begun before limitations have run, such payment after the period when the bar of the statute would have been complete if the suit had not been brought will render his cosurety liable for contribution. Id.

In a suit between cosureties for contribution the plaintiff cannot recover unless he shows that he has paid a greater portion than the defendant is liable to pay. Id.

When one party has paid a certain sum on a compromise agreement by which he was personally discharged, but the cosurety was excluded from the benefit of the compromise, he cannot compel such cosurety to contribute. Id.

One of several cosureties who voluntarily pays a note, the principal debtor being insolvent, is entitled in a suit to enforce contribution against his cosureties to recover from each his aliquot proportion of the original debt, according to the number of the original sureties who are solvent; he also must sustain his proportion of the loss resulting from insolvency. Acers v. Curtis, 63 T. 423, 4 S. W. 551.

A surety cannot compel a contribution by a cosurety, unless it appears that the principal is insolvent, or that due diligence has been used unsuccessfully to obtain from him the required claims. Tabor v. Cockrell, 4 App. C. C. 196, 16 S. W. 786.

One of several principals paying an entire debt is entitled to recover from each his proportion obtained out of the consideration. Where one surety pays off the debt of an insolvent principal, he can recover from each surety his proportionate part. Graves v. Smith, 23 S. W. 808, 4 C. A. 537.

Contribution may be enforced between wrong-doers, when. City of Ft. Worth v. Allen, 10 A. 463, 31 S. W. 325.

One of several joint obligors seeking contribution from the others must show that he has paid a greater sum than the defendant remains liable to pay in order to maintain his action. Bank v. McAnulty (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 376.

Where sureties were bound on several obligations of the same principal, held that there was no equity requiring one of them, who received a fund from the principal, to prorate it between all the obligations. Sanders v. Wettermark, 20 C. A. 175, 49 S. W. 906.

The fact that one surety pays the entire obligation does not relieve the co-surety from liability for contribution. Wash v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 368.

Sureties residing beyond the jurisdiction of the court are not considered in determining what cosureties shall be held to contribution. Gaddy v. Witt, 142 S. W. 926.

69. Measure of contribution.—Each surety, as to the creditor, is liable for the whole debt; as between himself and his cosureties he is liable to contribution, as to those paying the debt, to no more than his equal portion, ratably distributed between those who are solvent. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. McAnulty (Sup.) 33 S. W. 963. See Page v. White Sewing Mach. Co., 12 C. A. 327, 34 S. W. 988.

In action by sureties who had paid a note against a cosurety, he is liable only for his pro rata part of the amount paid. Mulkey v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 428.

Where claimant paid an entire indebtedness for which claimant and deceased were sureties, claimant was only entitled to contribution against decedent's estate to the extent of one-half of the amount so paid. Smart v. Panther, 42 C. A. 262, 95 S. W. 679.

Cosureties' bonds for the same thing, but in different amounts, are liable to contribute in the proportion of the amounts of the obligations signed by them respectively. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 665.

70. Conclusiveness as between cosureties of adjudication against principal or surety.—A surety on a note, who failed to defend an action thereon before a justice, cannot attack the judgment in an action by a cosurety for contribution. Eubanks v. Sites (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 952.

71. Actions between cosureties.—The sureties on a joint obligation must be jointly sued in an action by one surety for contribution. Rush v. Bishop, 60 T. 177.

A suit may be brought against several cosureties for contribution in any county in which either of them reside. Id.

The remedy of a joint obligor paying a joint judgment held on an implied assumpsit. Tarlton v. Orr, 40 C. A. 410, 90 S. W. 534.

Evidence held to sustain finding that surety agreed with cosureties to pay note in case of failure of principal to pay it. Hall v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 755.

PRINTING—PUBLIC

Art. 6338. Board of public printing. The board shall contract for public printing.

Art. 6339. Record of proceedings. The board shall keep a record of the proceedings of the board and of all acts done by him in connection with the public printing, under the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 6340. Board shall contract for public printing, etc. The board of public printing is authorized and required to contract, as hereinafter prescribed, with some suitable person or persons, who shall be a resident of this state, to print and bind the laws and the journals of the senate and house of representatives, and to do such other printing and binding, and to furnish such stationery as may be required by law, or may be needed by any department of the state government, or by either house of the legislature, not to include such work as may be done at the deaf and dumb asylum, nor such stationery, printing and binding as may be needed by the judicial department. They are authorized to make a separate contract when printing is to be done in any other language than the English; and in such case the printing board shall employ a competent person, at a price not to exceed thirty cents per hundred words, to translate the matter required into such other language. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 6341. An expert may be employed, etc. The board of public printing shall be authorized to employ a competent practical printer at a salary not to exceed seventy-five dollars per month, who shall be ex officio instructor in the art of printing at the deaf and dumb asylum, and whose further duty it shall be to advise with and assist the board in advertising for proposals for printing and stationery, and in making contracts therefor; and to examine the work done and stationery furnished under such contracts, and to certify to the board whether... the same are correct and in accordance with law and with the contracts of the contractors. [Id. sec. 15. Act March 13, 1873, p. 91, sec. 1.]

Art. 6342. [4223] Printing classified; prices to be paid.—The public printing shall be divided into four classes, as follows:

First. First class.—The first class shall include the printing and binding of the laws, journals, department reports, governor's messages and like documents which shall be printed on white calendered book paper of uniform color, twenty-five by thirty-eight inches in size, and weighing not less than forty-five pounds to the ream, from long primer type (except tabular work which may be from such type smaller than long primer as the nature of the work and good taste may require); the pages of the laws, department reports, governor's messages and like documents to be twenty-six ems pica wide and forty-six ems pica long, including head and foot lines, and to contain not less than one thousand eight hundred and twenty-four ems; and the journals shall be printed in octavo form, the pages to be twenty-six and one-half picas wide and forty-six ems pica long, including head and foot lines, from brevier type, two columns to the page, each column thirteen ems pica wide, and each page to contain not less than two thousand eight hundred ems. When printed, the laws and reports shall be neatly folded, stitched, covered and trimmed, and the journals and messages folded, stitches and trimmed. Cover paper shall not be less than thirty-five pounds to the ream. The index to the laws shall be printed from brevier type, and the index to the journals from nonpareil type. The maximum prices for the material and work of the first class shall be: For paper, white and cover, per pound, fifteen cents, and no allowance shall be made for waste; composition, seventy-five cents per thousand ems, printers' measurement; press work, sixteen pages to the form, unless the nature of the work requires a smaller number of pages, fifty cents a token of two hundred and forty impressions or less; binding, forty cents per hundred, for folding, stitching, covering and trimming first signature of sixteen pages, and twenty cents per hundred for each additional signature of sixteen pages or less; for folding, stitching and trimming without covering, thirty cents per hundred for first signature of sixteen pages, and fifteen cents per hundred for each additional signature of sixteen pages or less. No matter shall be leadded, except by the express direction of the printing board. The printing board shall, at the same time the contract is let for the printing of the journal of the two houses of the legislature, include in said contract the printing and delivery of each day's proceedings of the two houses while in session, the same to be printed in octavo form, as provided in this act for the printing of the regular journals of the two houses, five hundred copies for the use of the house of representatives and two hundred copies for the use of the senate, the same to be delivered by the hour of meeting of the day following that on which such proceedings were had.

Second: Second class.—Work of the second class shall consist of all blanks and printed stationery required by any department of the state government, except the judicial department, and shall be on first-class sized and calendered white wove unruled flat papers of such dimensions and weights as the nature of the work may require. The maximum prices for such work shall be as follows: For composition, fifty cents per one thousand ems, printers' measurement; for press work, on forms the size of flatcap sheet or less, forty cents per token; on forms larger than flatcap, fifty cents per token; and a token shall be two hundred and forty impressions or less when the number of copies of a job ordered shall require a less number of impressions. The maximum prices for paper required for work of the second class shall be twenty-five cents per pound. For ruling work of the second class, the maximum price shall be twenty cents per one hundred sheets for each actual and necessary passage through the ruling machine. For numbering with a numbering or paging machine, per one hundred pages or more, one hundred numbers, ten cents. For binding work of the second class, the maximum price shall be, for pads of one hundred copies each of any printed job, quarter sheet cap, demy, post or medium, per pad, five cents; for pads of two hundred copies of any printed job, half sheet cap, demy, post or medium, per pad, ten cents; for quarter binding quarter sheet cap, demy, post or medium, per quire, ten cents; for quarter binding, half sheet cap, demy, post or medium, per quire, fifteen cents; for quarter binding whole sheep, cap, demy, post or medium, per quire, twenty cents; for half binding quarter sheet cap, demy, post or medium, per quire, twenty-five cents; for half binding half sheet cap, demy, post or medium, per quire, thirty-five cents; for half binding whole sheet cap, demy, post or medium, per quire, forty-five cents. A quire, within the meaning here intended for binding work of the second class, is not less than forty leaves.

Third: Third class.—Work of the third class shall consist of blank books, either ruled and printed, or ruled without printing. The paper shall be made of linen stock and of the quality known among paper dealers as "P" paper; and the maximum prices shall be as follows: Cap paper, eighteen pounds to the reel, plain ruled half bound sixty cents per quire; ditto printed heads, eighty-five cents per quire; ditto plain ruled, extra full bound, one dollar per quire; ditto printed heads, one dollar and twenty-five cents per quire. Demy paper, twenty-eight pounds to the reel, plain ruled, half bound, seventy-five cents per quire; ditto printed heads, one dollar per quire; ditto plain ruled, extra full bound, one dollar and thirty-five cents per quire; ditto printed heads one dollar and fifty cents per quire. Medium paper, forty pounds to the reel, extra full bound, Russia leather ends and bands, canvas cover with Russia leather corners, plain ruled, three dollars per quire; ditto, printed heads, four dollars per quire. Super royal paper, fifty-four pounds to the reel, extra full bound, Russia leather ends and bands, canvas cover with Russia leather corners, plain ruled, four dollars and fifty cents per quire; ditto, printed heads, five dollars per quire. A quire shall not be less than forty leaves in work of the third class. No extra charge to be allowed for voveling, paging, labeling, lettering, or gilding. Where changes in the printed heads occur in any blank book ordered, the maximum price shall be fifty cents for each change in ruling and printing together.

Fourth: Fourth class.—Work of the fourth class shall consist of the printing of bills, resolutions, committee reports and such other like work as may be ordered by the legislature, or either house thereof, and shall be on first-class sized and calendered white wove, flat cap paper, of fourteen pounds to the reel, printed on pica type, lines numbered in the margin, with space between the lines of the size of pica, the printing to be thirty-two ems pica wide and sixty-five ems in length. The maximum price for work of the fourth class will be: For two hundred copies, or any number of copies less than two hundred, ordered by either house of the legislature, including composition, paper, press work and binding, two dollars per page for as many pages as are contained in one copy thereof, and when more than two hundred copies of work mentioned in this class are ordered by either house of the legislature, the printer shall be paid only for the paper, press work and binding of such additional copies at such rates as are contracted for, for work of the second class; provided, that the printing board, in having schedules prepared for the use of printers for the first and second class of printing, may fix on other and lower maximum prices than those designated in this article for work and material of the first and second class of printing; and that such schedules may call for bids by the ream on all papers required for the first and second classes, giving dimensions and weights, in nowise to exceed the basis of twenty-five cents per pound, or may call for bids by the ton for all papers required for said class; and provided, that the printing board may in their discretion receive separate proposals and make separate contracts for furnishing in part or all the printing papers required under the provisions of this article for the printing of the first and second classes, under like conditions required by law for contracts to do the printing and furnish the paper; and in the event of such separate contracts the printing board shall cause the papers so furnished to the state to be delivered to the contractor, to do the printing and binding on written requisition of such contractor, and under proper guards and checks, at such times and in such quantities as the requisites of any job or jobs of printing may require. [Amended Act 1903, p. 12.]

Art. 6343. [4223a] Proclamations, etc., how published.—No contract with the public printer shall be made for the publication of executive proclamations, advertisements, and other like documents; but the maximum price for such work shall be one dollar per square of one hundred words for the first publication, and fifty cents per square for each subsequent publication that may be ordered, and fractional parts of a square at proportionate rates, and each square shall contain not less than one hundred words. [Amend. 1895, No. 73, Sen. Jour. p. 482.]

Art. 6344. [4224] When published in more than one paper.—When proclamations, advertisements and like publications are authorized or required by law to be published in more newspapers than one, they shall be published under like rules; provided, that proclamations and like documents shall not be published in more than two newspapers in each congressional district, and at different points, and shall not be inserted for a longer period than three months; and proposed amendments to the constitution shall be published once a week for four weeks, commencing at least three months before the time specified by the legislature for an election thereon, in one weekly newspaper in each county in which such newspaper may be published; and all claims presented for publishing advertisements shall be accompanied by a copy of the advertisement as printed, and shall state the dates when the same was published. [Acts 1876, p. 31, sec. 4.]

Art. 6345. [4225] Stationery, maximum prices of.—The maximum rates for stationery shall be as follows:

Legal cap paper—Eighteen pounds to the ream, seven dollars and twenty cents per ream; sixteen pounds to the ream, six dollars and forty cents per ream; fourteen pounds to the ream, five dollars and sixty cents per ream.

Foolscap paper—Sixteen pounds to the ream, six dollars and forty cents per ream; fourteen pounds to the ream, five dollars and sixty cents per ream.

Letter paper—Twelve pounds to the ream, four dollars and eighty cents per ream; ten pounds to the ream, four dollars per ream.

Note paper—Eight pounds to the ream, three dollars and twenty cents per ream; six pounds to the ream, two dollars and forty cents per ream; five pounds to the ream, two dollars per ream.

Engrossing paper—Twenty-eight pounds demy, one-quarter sheets, seven dollars and twenty cents per ream; eighteen pounds cap, one-half sheets, eight dollars per ream.

Envelopes—XX white or buff, number ten, plain, seven dollars and twenty cents per thousand; printed, eight dollars and eighty cents per thousand; XX white or buff, number six, plain, four dollars and eighty cents per thousand; printed, six dollars and forty cents per thousand; XX white or buff, number five, plain, four dollars per thousand.

Blotting paper—One hundred and twenty pounds to the ream, six dollars and forty cents per one hundred sheets; one hundred pounds to the ream, five dollars and twenty cents per one hundred sheets.

Pencils—The kind to be specified in bid, eight dollars per gross.
Red ink—The manufacturer to be named in bid, two dollars and forty cents per dozen.
Mucilage—Quarts, seven dollars and twenty cents per dozen; pints, four dollars and eighty cents per dozen.
Steel pens—Brand to be named, two dollars per box.
Penholders—Five dollars and sixty cents per gross.
Rubber bands—Best, all sizes, two dollars and forty cents per box.
Mammoth ink and pencil eraser—Four dollars per dozen.
Rubber rulers—Twelve inch, one dollar and twenty cents each.
Wood rulers—Fifteen inch, eighty cents each.
Erasing knives—Eighty cents each.
Recording ink—Maker to be named in bid; quarts, fourteen dollars and forty cents per dozen.
Copying ink—Maker to be named in bid; quarts, nineteen dollars and twenty cents per dozen.
Inkstands—C. H. number three, sixty cents each; glass, flat, eighty cents each.
Paper fasteners—Forty cents per box. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6346. [4226] Other printing and stationery.—All printing and stationery not embraced within the provisions of the preceding articles of this title shall be furnished by the contractor at rates proportionate to those stipulated for in the contract for work and stationery of similar character, to be fixed by the board of public printing. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6347. [4227] Current printing of legislature to be done at Austin.—The current printing of the legislature shall be done at the seat of government. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6348. [4228] Number of copies of laws, etc.—There shall be printed not less than eight thousand copies of the laws of a general nature, and as many more as the printing board may require, not to exceed twelve thousand in all; and fifteen hundred copies of the special laws, including all acts for private relief, all acts incorporating towns and cities, all acts having local application, all of a personal nature, and all acts incorporating private associations of every description that may be passed at each session of the legislature; and one thousand copies of the journals of each house of the legislature. [Acts 1883, p. 5.]

Art. 6349. [4229] Of the governor's messages, etc.—There shall be printed such number of copies of the messages of the governor and other documents as the legislature, or either house thereof, may order. [Acts 1876, p. 31, sec. 7.]

Art. 6350. [4230] Of other public documents.—There shall be printed, under the supervision of the secretary of state, eleven hundred copies of the annual reports of the comptroller of public accounts, treasurer, commissioner of the general land office, superintendent of the penitentiary, superintendent of the lunatic asylums, of the asylums of the blind, deaf and dumb, and the reports of all other officers who are required to report to the governor, or the legislature; three hundred copies of which reports shall be delivered by the secretary of state to the two houses of the legislature for their use, at as early a day as practicable after they are printed; three hundred copies shall be delivered to the officer making the report for his use, and the remaining five hundred copies shall be kept by the secretary of state for public use; but the printing board may increase the number of copies of such reports required to be printed, not to exceed two thousand. [Id. sec. 8.]

300 copies for use as officer and not as private person.—The 300 copies are to be delivered to the officer making the report for his use as such officer and not for his use as a private person. Madden v. Hardy, 92 T. 615, 50 S. W. 926.

Art. 6351. [4231] Advertisement for proposals to do public printing, etc.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, on the first day of August next, and every two years thereafter, or as soon after the first day of August as may be practicable, to advertise for sealed proposals to furnish said stationery and to do such public printing and binding as may be required by the several departments of the government under the provisions of this title. Such advertisement shall be published for thirty days in not less than two nor more than five newspapers published within the state and having the largest circulation therein. It shall invite separate proposals to furnish the stationery and to do the printing and binding, and shall state as nearly as practicable the probable amount of such printing, binding and stationery which will be required under the contract. It shall also state the time and place of opening the bids and of awarding the contract, which shall be at the office of the secretary of state, not exceeding forty days from the date of the first publication of such advertisement. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6352. [4232] Proposals to include what.—Separate proposals shall be made for furnishing the stationery and for doing the printing and binding; and the proposals for printing and binding shall embrace all such work as is included under articles 6342 and 6345, except such as may be done at the deaf and dumb asylum, and the material therefor; and the proposals for stationery shall embrace all material specified in article 6345, and such other articles as are usually included under the term stationery. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6353. [4233] Bid to be accompanied by bond.—Each bid shall be accompanied by the bond of the bidder, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, conditioned that, should the contract be awarded to him, he will, without delay, upon being notified of such award, enter into a written contract in accordance with law, and with his said proposal and will give bond and security, as required by law, for the faithful performance of such contract. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6354. [4234] No officer to be interested in contract.—No member or officer of any department of the government shall be in any way interested in such contract, except in contracts for the translation of any public document into some other language. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 6355. [4235] Proposals, to whom addressed.—Such proposals shall be sealed and addressed to the secretary of state at the seat of government, and shall be indorsed with a memorandum showing that they are proposals for the public printing and binding, or for stationery for the several departments, as the case may be; and upon their receipt they shall be filed by the secretary of state; and the seals thereof shall not be broken until the day named in the advertisement for awarding the contracts, when they shall be opened in the presence of the printing board and such bidders and others as may desire to be present. [Id.
sec. 2.]

Art. 6356. [4236] Awarding of contract.—It shall be the duty of the printing board on the day fixed in such advertisement, or as soon thereafter as practicable, to make a careful examination and comparison of such bids, and to award the contracts to the lowest and best responsible bidder whose bid may be below the maximum rates as herein prescribed; provided, such bid shall be approved by the governor and comtroller of public accounts. [Id.]

Art. 6357. [4237] Successful bidders to be notified.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, upon the making of such awards, immediately to notify the successful bidders, respectively, of the acceptance of their said bids, and that they will be required without delay to execute and deliver to him their contracts with the state for the due performance of their said undertakings.

Art. 6358. [4238] Requisites of the contract.—Such contract shall be in writing and shall be signed by the bidder, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the printing board in such sum as they shall prescribe, made payable to the state, and conditioned for his faithful compliance with his bid, and with the provisions of the law relating thereto, for the period of two years, and until a new contract shall have been made and approved; the contract shall also be signed on behalf of the state by the members of the printing board, and shall be approved by the governor and comptroller, and filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6359. [4239] Suits on contractor's bond.—On breach by the contractor of the bond provided for in the preceding article, the same may be put in suit on the order of the governor; and such suit may be brought in the proper court of the county in which the seat of government may be; and such bond shall not become void on the first recovery, but suits may be maintained thereon until the whole amount thereof shall be recovered. [Id.]

Art. 6360. [4240] Secretary of the senate and chief clerk of house to furnish journals, etc., to contractor.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of the senate, and of the chief clerk of the house of representatives, to deliver to the contractor for the public printing the journals of their respective houses for the purpose of being printed, together with a comprehensive index to the same, to be printed at the end thereof; and it shall be the duty of the contractor to carefully use the same, and to return them without delay, uninjured, to such secretary and clerk respectively when the printing thereof is completed. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6361. [4241] Secretary of state to furnish laws, etc.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state to deliver to such contractor, as soon as practicable after their passage or approval, copies of all laws and resolutions adopted by the legislature, together with a comprehensive index to the same. [Id.]

Art. 6362. [4242] Secretary of state to compare copies and certify, etc.—It shall also be the duty of the secretary of state to read and revise the proofs of such laws and resolutions, and to superintend the printing of the same, and to compare the same with the originals in his office, and to certify that the laws and resolutions as published are true copies of such originals; which certificate, together with a statement of the date on which the legislature adjourned, shall be appended to and printed at the end of each volume of such laws and resolutions. But the provision requiring the secretary of state to read and revise the proofs shall not dispense with the duty of the contractor to see that such proofs are properly read and corrected. [Id. secs. 9, 11.]

Art. 6363. [4243] Work to be delivered to whom.—The whole number of laws and journals, reports of public officers, and other public documents authorized to be printed, shall be delivered to the secretary of state at his office, except such printing as may be ordered by the two houses of the legislature, or either of them, for their use, which shall be delivered to such persons at such times as such houses, or either of them, may direct. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6364. [4244] When to be delivered.—The laws and journals shall be delivered within sixty days after the last copy shall have been furnished to the contractor. The reports of public officers shall be delivered to the governor by the respective officers making the same in sufficient time to be delivered to the contractor one month before the meeting of the legislature, and if so furnished to said contractor shall be delivered by him to the secretary of state within the first week of said session; and if furnished less than one month before the meeting of the legislature, or after, the same shall be delivered by the contractor to the secretary of state within one month after they are so furnished. [Id. sec. 11.]
Art. 6365. [4245] Account, how audited and paid.—All accounts for printing done or stationery furnished, under the provisions of this title, except that for the legislature when in session, shall be audited as follows: The account shall be verified by the affidavit of the contractor that said account is just and correct; that the amount of work charged for has actually been performed, or the actual amount of stationery delivered, and that the prices charged in said account are in accordance with the stipulations of the contract, and shall be accompanied with a sample of the work done and stationery furnished. After which it shall be examined by the practical printer and printing board, and, if found correct, approved by said board. Such claim, when thus examined and approved, shall be sufficient authority for the comptroller to issue his warrant, to be paid out of the appropriations for public printing or stationery. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 6366. [4246] Accounts for current printing of legislature.—All accounts for printing done or stationery used in either house of the legislature shall, in addition to the requirements contained in the preceding article, be approved by the chairman of the committee on public printing and the chairman of the committee on contingent expenses of the house ordering the work, before being presented to the printing board; for which account, when thus approved, the comptroller is authorized to draw his warrant, payable out of the contingent fund. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 6367. [4247] Legislature may alter maximum rates, etc.—It shall be competent for the legislature, at any time, to change by law the maximum rates hereinbefore prescribed for stationery or printing and binding, and, should the contractors decline to do such work, or to furnish such stationery, at the maximum rates so fixed, the printing board shall immediately proceed to re-let such contract. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 6368. [4248] Contract may be abrogated, when, etc.—The contracts for printing and stationery herein provided for may be abrogated by the legislature when in session, or by the printing board, with the consent of the governor and comptroller, when the legislature is not in session, if the contractor should fail to perform the work, or to furnish the supplies, in accordance with law and with his contract, and as promptly as the exigencies of the public service demand. [Id.]

Art. 6369. [4249] Board may re-let contract, etc.—Should there be no bid for the public printing or stationery within the maximum rates as fixed by law, or should the successful bidder fail to execute the bond with security as herein required, or should the contract be abrogated, it shall be the duty of the printing board, with or without advertisement, as the interest of the state and the exigencies of the public service may seem to require, to proceed to let out a new contract as hereinbefore provided; and they may, in their discretion, make such temporary arrangements to meet the emergency as is demanded by the public interest. [Id.]

Art. 6370. [4250] Supplies to reporters.—The reporters for the supreme court and court of criminal appeals shall be furnished by the state printing board with all stationery necessary for the performance of their duties. [Acts 1889, p. 7, sec. 2.]

Art. 6370a. Reports of appellate courts; award of contract, etc.—That the board of public printing is hereby authorized and it is made its duty, for the purpose of the publication of the reports of the appellate courts of the state of Texas, to cause to be printed and bound the decisions of the supreme court, court of criminal appeals, and the courts of civil appeals of the state of Texas, in the form, size and manner as now provided by law, and for this purpose to invite bids, not confined to residents of this state, upon proposals advertised by said board, for such time and manner as may be fixed by said board, and to award the contract for such printing and binding to the lowest responsible bidder, and the said board shall have the right to reject any and all bids. [Acts 1913, p. 59, sec. 1.]

Art. 6370b. Terms of contract; duty of clerks of courts.—The said board is hereby given full power and discretion to fix all the conditions, provisions and details of such contract concerning the printing, binding, publication and sale of such reports, and to demand such security from the contractor as will secure the performance of such contract and the interest of the state of Texas, provided that such contract shall be for a term of six years. Said contract may also provide for the printing and binding of delayed manuscripts of said reports; and said board may also provide, from time to time, by separate contracts, under similar conditions, for the reprint of said reports, or former volumes of said reports; and to facilitate the prompt printing and binding of said reports in the future, the clerks of said courts shall provide the reporters of said courts with manifold copies of their opinions as the several courts rendering the same shall direct to be published, duly certified, together with the record of the cases, as soon as said opinions become final. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6370c. Price of reports; number of volumes; plates; copyright. —The maximum price of said reports furnished by the contractor to the legal profession and the public of the state shall not exceed two dollars per volume, and the maximum price paid by the state for such volume shall not exceed four dollars per volume, and the number of volumes to be delivered to the state shall not exceed two hundred and fifty of each volume of said reports for the use of the state; and said contract shall also provide that the contractor shall keep on hand a sufficient number of volumes of said reports, or make such arrangements as to enable the legal profession and the public in this state to obtain from such contractor such report at the price fixed in such contract. Said board shall also determine whether electrotype or stereotype plates of said reports are to be made, and to regulate the use thereof, but the ownership of said plates together with the copyright of such reports shall remain in the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6370d. Laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act be and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 4.]
ART. 6371. Treble value of stolen property recoverable, when.

ART. 6372. Criminal prosecution not affected by this title.

Article 6371. [5044] Treble value of stolen property recoverable, when.—If any person shall purchase, trade or barter for any personal property after nightfall, and the same shall afterward be proved to be stolen property, such persons so purchasing, trading or bartering for said property, shall be liable to the true owner thereof in three times the value of the same, to be recovered in any court having jurisdiction of the case. [Act June 22, 1876, p. 26.]

Wrongful intermixture of goods.—Wrongful intermixture of stolen goods with others, so that they could not be distinguished, held to amount to a refusal of owner's demand for their return. Rabe v. Jourdan, 46 C. A. 456, 102 S. W. 1167.

Evidence.—In an action by the owner of stolen goods against one who had purchased them from the thief, evidence examined, and held to support a verdict for the amount rendered for the plaintiff. Rabe v. Jourdan, 46 C. A. 456, 102 S. W. 1167.

Article 6372. [5045] Criminal prosecution not affected by this title.—Nothing in this title shall be so construed as to relieve any person so offending from prosecution under the criminal laws.

PROPERTY—STATE'S PERSONAL—PRESEvation OF

Article 6373. Persons in control of state property must make inventory.—It shall be the duty of every official or other person who has in his possession, or under his control, or for which he is in anywise responsible, any personal property belonging to the state of Texas, or in which it has an interest, to make out in triplicate a correct and full list and inventory of all such personal property which is or was in his possession when he assumed charge of such office or position, or had under his control, or for which he is in any way responsible, and which inventory shall contain the name of the article or articles of such personal property, the cost thereof, a fair and reasonable estimate of the present value thereof, a statement of the present condition of the same, how long said property has been in use, and the extent of the probable service, use and benefit that such property will be to the state in future; and, if sold during his term of office, or while in his possession, or under his control, he shall state the selling price thereof, and the disposition of the proceeds. [Acts 1899, p. 307, sec. 1.]

Article 6374. How made and to whom rendered.—A copy of said list and inventory, duly sworn to, shall be by such person charged with keeping said property, or who has the same under his control, management, or who is responsible for the same, transmitted by registered letter to the secretary of state at Austin, Texas, whose duty it shall be to enter such list and inventory on a book to be kept by him for the purpose, under its appropriate heading; and said secretary of state is hereby authorized to purchase such book or books as shall be necessary to record all such lists and inventories so made to him, and he shall be responsible for the correct entry of all said articles in such book or books, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of the original sworn report, from each of the persons named in this chapter, including the governor of this state, comptroller of public accounts, treasurer, attorney general, adjutant general, commissioner of insurance and banking, superintendent of public buildings and grounds, the commissioner of the general land office, chief justice of the supreme court, court of criminal appeals, and the several courts of civil appeals, and the clerks thereof, the managers of each and every asylum in the state of Texas, superintendents and assistant superintendents of the penitentiaries and reformatories, superintendents and managers of all state farms, superintendents and managers of the university and the several branches thereof, normal schools, all the officers and employés of either branch of the legislature having personal property belonging to the state in their possession, and each and every other person holding any personal property in trust for the state of Texas, or having the same under his control, or in his possession, or for which he is in any wise responsible, all of whom are included in this chapter and subject to its provisions. A duplicate of said list and inventory, so sent to the secretary of state, shall be forwarded to the comptroller of public account, who shall carefully preserve the same in his office; and it is made the duty of the person so making out the list to retain in his possession for his successor in office a true copy thereof, and whose duty it shall be to deliver same to such successor within three days after his qualification and assuming charge of such position, office or agency. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6375. When made.—Upon qualification at the beginning of the terms of office of any of the persons named herein, after each succeeding general election, and within thirty days after taking charge of any personal property as herein named, it shall likewise be his duty to make said report as herein required of the officers now holding any of said positions, and to forward same to the officers herein named, who shall receive them and who shall continue to keep the registration of said reports, lists and inventories, as herein required of the secretary of state under the foregoing article hereof, and who shall, when said lists are received, make comparisons with former reports and note all articles of property not included in former lists, or which were included in former lists, but are not in the list last filed, and shall designate all such articles which are either dropped from or added to those of former lists and inventories. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6376. Persons in control of property responsible for same.—Every person herein named or referred to, in charge of any public institution of Texas, or having under his control any personal property belonging to the state of Texas, is hereby made responsible for the same and the full value thereof; and all persons hereafter coming into any of the offices or positions herein enumerated shall at once become and shall remain responsible for the preservation and safe keeping of all personal property herein named or referred to, whether such persons be under official bonds or not; and all official bonds made by any of the persons herein named or referred to shall be intended as security to the state of Texas for the full value of all such personal property in any such institution or department, or otherwise belonging to the state over which such person is in control, or for which he is by this act made responsible. [Id. sec. 4.]

Authority to change agency holding property.—The legislature has ample authority to change at will a mere governmental agency holding public property for a governmental purpose. Lander v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 821.

Art. 6377. Incoming and outgoing officers to check inventory.—Hereafter, when any of the officers named in this chapter, or who are hereby referred to and required to take charge of any of the properties of the state, shall take charge of same, they shall require of their predecessors in such positions, whose duty it is hereby made to furnish same, to make out for them a full list and inventory as above mentioned, of all properties in their possession, or under their control and management, or for which they are in any wise responsible, belonging to the state of Texas; and such outgoing and incoming officers shall together check up said list and inventory and ascertain that the same and each article in said list named is then on hand or duly accounted for. Said incoming officer shall give his receipt to his said predecessor in office for all of such property before he shall be entitled to possession of the same, and said receipt shall be by him delivered to said secretary of state for registration in his office, and a copy of the same shall be likewise delivered to the comptroller of public accounts for preservation in his office. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6378. Penalty for non-compliance.—Should any of the officers, persons, or employes named in this chapter fail to make out said list and inventory, or fail to perform any of the duties herein required of him, he shall become immediately responsible to the state of Texas for the value of any and all articles of furniture, implements, goods, wares, merchandise, live stock and all other personal property which have come into his hands, or for which he may be responsible, and be subject to suit in the name of the state of Texas for the value of the same, and, should he fail to do or perform any of the acts and things required of him by this chapter, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code. The jurisdiction for all suits under this chapter shall be either in the county court of Travis county, or in the county where such officer shall reside at the time of the institution of said suit or prosecution, or where such property may be situated. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6379. Law cumulative.—This chapter is not intended to repeal any law now in force for the preservation and protection of any state property, but is cumulative thereof, and all said laws are hereby kept in full force and effect where the same do not specifically conflict with this chapter. [Id. sec. 7.]
PUBLIC BUILDINGS, GROUNDS AND PARKS

PUBLIC BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

Article 6380. [3820] Appointment and term of office of superintendent.—The governor shall appoint a suitable person as superintendent of public buildings and grounds, who shall hold his office for a term of two years. In case of a vacancy in said office the appointment shall be for the unexpired term. [Act April 29, 1874, p. 165. P. D. 7234f.]

Art. 6381. [3821] Bond and oath.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, the superintendent of public buildings and grounds shall execute a bond in the sum of two thousand dollars, payable to the state, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the governor, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of said office. He shall also take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, which oath and bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 7234g.]

Art. 6382. [3822] Removal and liability on bond.—The superintendent of public buildings and grounds may be removed from office at any time by the governor for neglect of duty, incompetency, or other sufficient cause; and he and his sureties shall be liable on his official bond for all damages occasioned by the injury or loss of any public property under his care, or resulting from any neglect of duty on his part. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 7234.]

Art. 6383. [3823] Superintendent to have charge of public buildings.—It shall be the duty of the superintendent to have and take charge and control of all public buildings, grounds and property of the state, which may not be used by the different officers of the state government, including the state cemetery, and to properly care for and protect the same from damage, intrusion or improper uses. [Acts 1884, p. 60.]

Art. 6384. [3824] Duties pertaining to state cemetery.—The superintendent shall also control, superintend and beautify the grounds of the state cemetery. He shall preserve such grounds and everything pertaining thereto from depredation and injury, and shall procure and erect at the head of each grave without a permanent monument an obelisk of marble, on which shall be engraved the name of the deceased therein buried. [Act April 14, 1871, p. 35. P. D. 5885.]

Art. 6385. [3825] Shall file inventory of property.—Upon his qualification, the superintendent shall file in the office of the secretary of state a true and correct inventory of all public personal property committed to his custody, verified by his affidavit, and a like inventory for all additions to such property during his term of office; and on his retirement from office such property shall be delivered to his successor, who shall receipt for the same. [Act April 29, 1874, p. 165, sec. 2.]

Art. 6386. [3826] Different public rooms and buildings, under whose control.—The executive mansion, and grounds belonging to the same, and the executive offices in the state capitol, and the rooms therein occupied severally by the secretary of state, the comptroller, the treasurer, the attorney general, the adjutant general, the board of education, the commissioner of agriculture, and other officers shall be under the charge and control of each of said officers occupying or using the same; and the rooms on the third floor wherein are the supreme court library and the rooms used and occupied as the offices of the clerks of the supreme court, court of criminal appeals, and court of civil appeals, shall be under the control and in the charge of the clerks of said courts. [Acts 1884, p. 60.]

Art. 6387. [3827] Public property to be sold, when.—All property belonging to the state situated or being in the city of Austin, or to any department, board or office of the state, when the same shall become unfit for use or no longer needed, shall be turned over to the said superintendent, who shall sell the same at public auction, after advertising it for not less than five days; and the money arising therefrom, less the expense of advertising and selling, shall be deposited in the state treasury to the credit of the department, board or office from which it was obtained, to be expended by the said superintendent for improvements or repairs whenever needed by the said departments, boards or offices, or for the state cemetery. The said superintendent shall make his report in writing to the comptroller, stating articles received, articles sold, to whom and at what price, and also a report showing how said funds were expended. [Id.]

Art. 6388. [3828] Shall have charge of halls, rooms, etc., when.—Said superintendent, during the recess of the legislature, shall have the charge and control of the halls and committee rooms of said capitol, except as hereinbefore provided; and before the assembling of each session of the legislature he shall prepare the different rooms for the uses of the legislature. [Acts 1884, p. 60.]

Art. 6389. [3829] Not to be used for private purposes.—No room, apartment or office in said building shall at any time be used by any person as a bedroom or for any private purposes whatever; provided, that this article shall not apply to the rooms occupied by the judges of the supreme court and courts of civil and criminal appeals, on the third and fourth floors of the capitol. [Id.]

Art. 6390. [3830] Authority as a policeman.—The watchmen employed about and around the capitol and other buildings and grounds shall have all the powers and authority of a policeman of the city of Austin; and whenever, for the purpose of properly executing the provisions of this law, under the approval of the governor, by the said superintendent, there may arise a conflict with any ordinances or authority granted or given under or by virtue of the charter of the city of Austin, then and in that event so much of the said charter as authorizes the granting of such ordinances or the giving of such authority, be and the same is hereby repealed in so far as they prevent the said superintendent from efficiently performing his duties hereunder. [Id.]

Art. 6391. [3831] Shall frequently inspect all state property.—It shall be the duty of the said superintendent to frequently inspect all the public buildings and property of the state at the capital, and at such other places as the governor may direct; to act as adviser to all state boards in the preparation of specifications and plans for improvements and repairs to public buildings or property of the state, and to superintend the construction of said work, where the same is not otherwise specially provided for by law. The said state boards and departments shall notify the said superintendent of improvements and repairs needed for their respective buildings and offices, and the same shall be made under his direction. He shall also be required to give his special attention to the effective maintenance of the state sewers and their connections, in use at the public buildings, and to keep the same in such sanitary condition at all times as to prevent the dissemination of disease therefrom, and to see that the gas and water pipes, with their connections and appliances, are maintained in working order, ready at any time for immediate use. He shall also be required to prepare and have in his office a copy of the plans of all public buildings and improvements thereto under his charge, showing the exact location of all water, gas and sewerage pipes, so that in case of needed repairs or inspection, their position can be determined without unnecessary expense.

[Id.]

Art. 6392. [3832] To make reports.—It shall be the duty of said superintendent to make a report to the governor on the first day of December, biennially, showing the manner in which he has discharged his duties, the improvements and repairs that have been made under his superintendence, with an itemized account of his receipts and expenditures, and the condition of all property under his charge, including an estimate of needed improvements and repairs to same.

[Id.]

Art. 6393. [3835] Sheriffs to have charge of court houses.—The sheriffs of the several counties shall have charge and control of the court houses of their respective counties, subject to such regulations as the commissioners' court may prescribe; and the official bonds of such sheriffs shall extend to and include the faithful performance of their duties under this article.

Art. 6394. The Alamo.—The part of the old Alamo Mission property purchased by the state, adjoining the building known as the Alamo church, together with the Alamo church, are delivered to the care and custody of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, to be maintained by them in good order and repair, without charge to the state, as a sacred memorial to the heroes who immolated themselves upon that hallowed ground, and, by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, to be maintained or remodeled upon plans adopted by them, and approved by the governor of Texas; provided, that no changes or alterations shall be made in the Alamo church proper, as it now stands, except such as are absolutely necessary for its preservation; all of said property being subject to future legislation by the legislature of the state of Texas.

Constitutionality.—A "monopoly," in the sense forbidden by Const. art. 1, § 26, consists in the ownership or control of so large a part of the market supply of a given commodity as to stifle competition, restrict the freedom of commerce, and give the monopolies control over prices; and hence this article did not violate the constitutional provision, since it was but the assumption of a burden which deprived no citizen of any privilege or right and brought no financial gain to the corporation. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 377.

This article did not violate Const. art. 1, § 26, which declares that perpetuities are contrary to the genius of free government and shall never be allowed. [Id.]

The superintendency of public buildings is a legislative office, which may have its powers increased or restricted or be abolished by the legislature, and this article is constitutional. [Id.]

This act did not violate Const. art. 3, § 35, prohibiting any bill from containing more than one subject, which shall be expressed in its title. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

Acts 32d Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 3, did not repeal this article.—This article was not repealed by an item in the appropriation (Acts 32d Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 3), which provided "for the improvement of the Alamo property belonging to the state of Texas, * * * to be expended under the direction of the superintendent of public buildings and grounds upon the approval of the Governor, $5,000," the latter provision being in harmony with the existing law and merely supplementary thereto, so that before the appropriation could be used the plans therefor ought to be made by the corporation and approved by the governor. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 877.

The Appropriation Bill of 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. [1st Called Sess.] c. 3), making an appropriation for the improvement of the Alamo property belonging to the state to be expended under the direction of the superintendent of public buildings and grounds upon the Governor's approval, did not impliedly repeal this article. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

"Care and custody."—By the use of the words "care and custody" this article places the corporation in the exclusive and absolute control within the conditions prescribed by the act; the "care and custody" of persons or property carrying the idea of exclusive possession. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

On acceptance became trustee.—The Daughters of the Republic of Texas by accepting the terms of this article became the trustee of the property for the state. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

May restrain trespass.—State officers trespassing upon property given by legislative enactment to the exclusive custody and possession of a private corporation held liable as any other trespasser would be; a suit against them not being a suit against the state. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

A private corporation given the exclusive care, custody, and possession of the so-called "Alamo property," owned by the state, by legislative consent, charged with its repair and maintenance, had the right and duty to protect its possession from a trespasser by action to enjoin the trespass. Id.

Suit to restrain entry by superintendent not action against state. A suit by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas against the superintendent of public buildings and grounds of the state to enjoin defendant from entering upon the Alamo property on the ground that it was given to the custody of plaintiff corporation by this article is not an action against the state, so as to be prohibited, being merely an action against defendants, charging a statute, and interfering with plaintiff's property. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

Could not enjoin the entry of superintendent to make repairs.—The entry upon the Alamo Mission property by the state superintendent of public buildings and grounds pursuant to the governor's direction to have repairs made as expressly authorized by the appropriation bill of 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. [1st Called Sess.] c. 3), appropriating $5,000 for repairs to be made under the superintendent's direction, did not interfere with the possession of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas under this article, so that that corporation could not enjoin such entry by the superintendent. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

Condition precedent to action.—It was not a condition precedent to an action to enjoin trespass to real property, owned by the state and given by it into the exclusive possession of a private corporation charged with its maintenance, that the corporation should allege or prove that it was executing the charge reposed in it. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

Defer to superintendent.—In an action by a private corporation vested by the legislature with exclusive possession and control of state property to enjoin a trespass, defendants cannot object that the corporation has not acted in good faith with the state. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

STATE INSPECTOR OF MASONRY, PUBLIC BUILDINGS AND WORKS

Article 6394a. Office created; salary, expenses, etc.—That the office of state inspector of masonry, public buildings and works is hereby created, who shall be appointed by the governor, and shall hold his office for the term of two years, from the date of his appointment, and shall be paid an annual salary of $2000.00, one-twelfth (1-12) thereof to be paid at the end of each months' service, and his actual and necessary traveling expenses while in the performance of his duties under this Act; provided, however, that such expenses shall not exceed $1500.00 per annum, such expenses to be paid monthly at the end of each month, on itemized accounts signed and sworn to by the inspector of masonry, and filed with the comptroller of public accounts. [Acts 1911, p. 207, sec. 1.]

Article 6394b. Duties of inspector.—It shall be the duty of the said inspector of masonry to carefully examine and inspect the material and workmanship of all buildings, and other structures and additions thereto, that may be constructed by contract or otherwise for the state of Texas, out of brick or stone, or substitutes therefor, and to see that such buildings are constructed in accordance with the contract, the plans and specifications therefor, and such buildings, structures or additions shall be constructed under the supervision of the state inspector of masonry, and the work, workmanship and material thereof shall be subject to his approval. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6394c. Powers and duties.—The state inspector of masonry, public buildings and works, is hereby authorized and it is made his duty to inspect all plans and specifications for public buildings and structures and additions thereto, that are to be constructed by contract or otherwise for the state of Texas, prior to the time such plans and specifications are adopted, and he may, with the consent of the governor, reject any and all such plans and specifications, and he shall aid the committee, board or person having such matters in charge in preparing such plans and specifications, as is intended and desired, and he shall have full and final superintendence on all buildings, structures, or additions thereto that may be constructed by contract or otherwise for the state of Texas, according to the terms of contract. [Acts 1911, p. 207. Amended Acts 1913, p. 25, sec. 1 (2a).]

Art. 6394d. Assistants; salary and expenses, etc.—The state inspector of masonry, public buildings and works, shall with the consent of the governor, when the work in his department requires it, appoint such assistants as he may need, not to exceed two, who shall have the same qualifications as is provided by law for the state inspector of masonry, public buildings and works, and who shall during their period of service receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred ($1800) dollars per year payable in equal monthly installments, and also their actual and necessary traveling expenses while in the performance of their duties under this Act; provided, however, that such expenses do not exceed twelve hundred ($1200) dollars per annum, such expenses to be paid on itemized accounts, signed and sworn to by such assistants, and approved by the state inspector of masonry, public buildings and works, provided, however, that the state inspector may discontinue the service of any such assistants, at any time his service is no longer needed, such assistants, when so appointed, shall assist the state inspector of masonry, public buildings and works, in the performance of his duties under the direction of said officer. [Id. (2b).]

Art. 6394e. Qualifications of inspector.—No person shall be appointed to said office except a skilled mechanic, who has had at least ten years’ practical experience next prior to his appointment, in brick and masonry work and the substitutes therefor. [Acts 1911, p. 207, sec. 3.]

CHAPTER THREE

CONTRACTORS’ BONDS TO SECURE LABORERS AND MATERIALMEN

Art. 6394f. Contractors with state, municipalities, etc., to give bond; actions on bond, etc. Art. 6394h. Action to be commenced, when; parties. Art. 6394i. Judgment; sureties may pay into court. Art. 6394j. Notice of lis pendens.

Article 6394f. Contractors with state, municipalities, etc., to give bond; actions on bond, etc.—That any person or persons, firm or corporation entering into a formal contract with this state or its counties or school district or other subdivisions thereof or any municipality therein for the construction of any public building, or the prosecution and completion of any public work, shall be required, before commencing such work, to execute the usual penal bond, with good and sufficient sureties, with the additional obligation that such contractor or contractors shall promptly make payments to all persons supplying him or them with labor and materials in the prosecution of the work provided for in such contract; and any person, company, or corporation who has furnished labor or materials used in the construction or repair of any public building or public work, and payment for which has not been made, shall have the right to intervene and be made a party to any action instituted by the state or any municipality on the bond of the contractor, and to have their rights and claims adjudicated in such action and judgment rendered thereon, subject, however, to the priority of the claims and judgment of the state or municipality. If the full amount of the liability of the surety on said bond is insufficient to pay the full amount of said claims and demands, then, after paying the full amount due the state or municipality, the remainder shall be distributed pro rata among said interveners. The bond provided for may be made by a surety company authorized to do business in Texas. [Acts 1913, p. 185, sec. 1.]

Art. 6394g. Laborers and materialmen to have right of action, when.—If no suit should be brought by the state or municipality within six months from the completion and final settlement of said contract, then the person or persons supplying the contractor with labor and materials shall, upon application therefor, and furnishing affidavit to the state or municipality that labor or materials for the prosecution of such work has been supplied by him or them, and payment for which has not been made, be furnished with a certified copy of said contract and bond, upon which he or they shall have a right of action for his or their use and benefit, against said contractor and his surety, and to prosecute the same to final judgment and execution. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6394h. Action to be commenced, when; parties.—When suit is instituted by any of such creditors on the bond of the contractor, it shall not be commenced until after the complete performance of said contract and final settlement thereof, and shall be commenced within one year after the performance and final settlement of said contract, and not later; provided that if the contractor quits or abandons the contract before its consummation, suit may be instituted by any of such creditors on the bond of the contractor, and shall be commenced within one year after abandonment of said contract, and not later.

Where suit is so instituted by a creditor or by creditors, only one action shall be brought, and any creditor may file his claim in such action and be made party thereto within one year from the completion of the work under said contractor, and not later. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6394i. Judgment; sureties may pay into court.—If the recovery on the bond should be inadequate to pay the amounts found due to all of said creditors, judgment shall be given to each creditor pro rata of the amount of the recovery; subject to the provisions in section 1 [Art. 6394f] of this Act, giving to the state or municipality the right of priority in the proceeds of such judgment. The sureties on said bond may pay into court, for distribution among said claimants and creditors, the full amount of the sureties' liability, to-wit: the penalty named in the bond, less any amount which said surety may have had to pay to the state or municipality by reason of the execution of said bond, and upon so doing the surety will be relieved from further liability. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6394j. Notice of lis pendens.—In all suits instituted under the provisions of this Act, notice of the pendency of such suits shall be made by publication in some newspaper of general circulation, published in the county or town where the contract is being performed, for at least three successive weeks, the last publication to be at least one week before the trial of such case. [Id. sec. 5.]

CHAPTER FOUR
SAN JACINTO STATE PARK

Art. 6395. Establishing state park on battlefield.—The lands owned and acquired by the state, commonly called the San Jacinto battlefield, shall be known and styled, “The San Jacinto State Park,” and, with the exceptions, reservations and limitations herein mentioned, the said San Jacinto state park shall be under the care and direction of the state superintendent of public buildings and grounds. Said superintendent and the commissioners shall jointly endeavor to improve, preserve and protect the lands and property within and connected with said San Jacinto state park. [Acts 1907, p. 104, sec. 9.]

Art. 6396. Commissioners.—The governor shall, every two years, appoint three resident citizens of the state, who shall be known as “San Jacinto State Park Commissioners;” and whose duties shall be to advise with and assist the superintendent of public buildings and grounds in the improvement, care and preservation of the lands now owned and hereafter acquired by the state, known as the San Jacinto battlefield; provided, that one or more of said commissioners may, in the discretion of the governor, be selected from the patriotic organization known as San Jacinto Chapter, Daughters of the Republic of Texas, or from any kindred organization; provided, further, that said commissioners shall serve without compensation. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6397. Duties of commissioners.—It shall be the duty of said commissioners, acting with the advice and consent of the superintendent of public buildings and grounds, to cause to be erected upon a site by them selected a keeper’s cottage and other necessary buildings; to arrange for or employ a keeper who shall reside upon the grounds and who shall be clothed with all the powers and authority of a peace officer of the county for the purposes of caring for and protecting the property of the state; to provide the necessary teams, implements and other utensils for the use of such keeper and other employés in the work of beautifying, improving and protecting said grounds; to cause to be erected around, about and upon said grounds such fence and fences as shall, in the judgment of the commissioners and superintendent of public buildings and grounds, serve the best interests of the state in the care and protection of its property; to provide for and outline a plan, diagram and design of the work to be done from time to time, copies of which shall be kept in the office of the superintendent for reference, and to do any and all things necessary to be done, with the intent and purpose of beautifying, improving and protecting the state’s interest therein. [Id. sec. 7.]

For the acts of the legislature providing for the purchase of the land upon which this park is situated, see twenty-fifth legislature, p. 144; twenty-sixth legislature, p. 6 and p. 238, and thirtieth legislature, p. 104.
CHAPTER FIVE.

GONZALES STATE PARK

Art. 6397a. Establishing state park.—That, whereas, it has been the policy of the state of Texas to acquire title to, beautify and preserve certain historic spots in the State of Texas where the most memorable events occurred which resulted in Texas independence; and, whereas, along this line the state has already acquired title to the Alamo property in San Antonio, the San Jacinto battle ground in Harris county, the site of the Fannin massacre in Goliad county, with a view of making state parks, beautifying and preserving them, and, by erecting monuments with suitable inscriptions thereon, perpetuating the memory of the characters who made them historic spots; and, whereas, one of the most notable of such places is the municipality of Gonzales, where the first armed resistance was made; where the first army assembled and which was organized for the capture of San Antonio; where the only company was organized and equipped for the relief of Col. Travis after the Alamo was invested; and where General Houston assembled and organized the army of Texas which eventually destroyed Santa Anna’s army and brought about Texas independence; and whereas, in the original plan of the municipal town of Gonzales a broad avenue 170 varas wide and three miles long runs east from the town of Gonzales to the limits of the four leagues of land originally granted to said municipality, along which avenue General Houston’s army, after having been organized, retreated in the direction of San Jacinto, and which avenue, designated on the map of said municipality as East avenue, is now owned by the city of Gonzales, and contains about 150 acres of land, now unimproved; and, whereas, the city of Gonzales, through its municipal officers, have offered to convey unto the state of Texas, without charge, said avenue beginning in the city limits where Tinsley’s creek crosses said east avenue and extending eastward to the limits of said avenue, which is the eastern boundary line of said four league grant from the state of Coahuila and Texas to said municipality, reserving and excepting, however, a street 60 feet wide on each side of said avenue for public passage, provided the state of Texas will dedicate the same for a public state park and will agree to beautify and protect the same.

Therefore, Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Texas: That the State of Texas accepts title to said ground tendered by the City of Gonzales, and dedicates it as a public State park in commemoration of the historic events that have occurred at Gonzales, and agrees to beautify and protect the same; which said ground shall be under the care and direction of the State Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds. [Acts 1913, p. 242, sec. 1.]

Art. 6397b. Commissioners.—The governor shall, as soon as practicable after the taking effect of this Act, and every two years thereafter, appoint three resident citizens of the state, who shall be known as “Gonzales State Park Commissioners,” and whose duties shall be to advise with and assist the superintendent of public buildings and grounds in the improvement, care and preservation of the said land; provided, that one or more of said commissioners may, in the discretion of the governor, be selected from the patriotic organization known as Gonzales Chapter, Daughters of the Republic of Texas, or from any kindred organization; provided, further, that said commissioner shall serve without compensation. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 6397c. Duties of commissioners.—It shall be the duty of said commissioner, acting with the advice and consent of the superintendent of public buildings and grounds, to cause to be erected upon a site by them selected, a keeper's cottage and other necessary buildings; to arrange for or employ a keeper who shall reside upon the grounds and who shall be clothed with all the powers and authority of a peace officer of the county for the purpose of caring for and protecting the property of the state; to provide the necessary teams, implements and other utensils for the use of such keeper and other employes in the work of beautifying, improving and protecting said grounds; to cause to be erected around, about and upon said grounds such fences as shall, in the judgment of the commissioners and superintendent of public buildings and grounds, serve the best interests of the state in the care and protection of its property; to provide for and outline a plan, diagram and design of the work to be done from time to time, copies of which shall be kept in the office of the superintendent for reference, and to do any and all things necessary to be done, with the intent and purpose of beautifying, improving and protecting the state's interest therein. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6397d. Expenses.—Such reasonable and necessary personal expense as may be incurred by said three commissioners in the performance of their duties in this behalf, and in the employment of landscape gardeners, surveyors, foresters, mechanics, employes, materials, or upon contracts, which may be or become necessary in carrying out the provisions of this Act, shall be presented in writing and under oath to the governor and, when approved by him as reasonable and correct, shall be audited as other claims and accounts for state purposes and shall be paid out of the appropriation herein made. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6397e. Name; duties of state superintendent of buildings and grounds, etc.—The said land and grounds shall hereafter be known and styled “Gonzales State Park” and, with the exceptions, reservations, and limitations herein mentioned, the said Gonzales state park shall be under the care and direction of the state superintendent of buildings and grounds. Said superintendent and the commissioners shall jointly endeavor to improve, preserve and protect the lands and property within said Gonzales state park. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6397f. Appropriation.—That, for the several purposes mentioned in this Act, the sum of seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500.00), or so much thereof as shall be necessary, is hereby apportioned [appropriated] out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [Id. sec. 6.]
QUO WARRANTO

[See Corporations, Trusts and Officers—Removal of.]

Art. 6398. [4343] Quo warranto, when.—In case any person shall usurp, intrude into or unlawfully hold or execute, or is now intruded into, or now unlawfully holds or executes any office or franchise, or any office or any corporation created by the authority of this state, or any public officer shall have done or suffered any act which by the provisions of law works a forfeiture of his office, or any association of numbers of persons shall act within this state as a corporation without being legally incorporated, or any incorporation does or omits any act which amounts to a surrender or a forfeiture of its rights and privileges as a corporation, or exercises power not conferred by law, or if any railroad company doing business in this state shall charge an extortionate rate for the transportation of any freight and passengers, or refuse to draw or carry the cars of any other railroad company over its line as required by the laws of this state, the attorney general, or district or county attorney of the proper county or district, either of his own accord, or at the instance of any individual relator, may present a petition to the district court of the proper county, or any judge thereof, in vacation, for leave to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto in the name of the state of Texas; and, if such court or judge shall be satisfied that there is probable ground for the proceeding, the court or judge may grant the petition and order the information to be filed and process to issue. [Acts 1879, S. S., p. 43.]

Historical.—This article, as originally published, read as follows: "Or any office in any corporation * * * or any association or number of persons * * * or if any railroad company doing business in this state shall charge an extortionate rate for the transportation of freight or passengers." It was so printed in the Revised Statutes of 1879. See Art. 1879, S. S., p. 43; R. S. 1879, App. p. 45.

In general.—The right of an officer to exercise certain functions as a part of the duties of his office will not be determined on a proceeding by quo warranto. State v. Smith, 55 T. 447.

In adopting the statute of 9 Anne, on quo warranto, the legislature is presumed to have intended the language to receive the construction which the courts have uniformly given it. State v. Smith, 55 T. 447. This is a general rule of construction (Morgan v. Davenport, 60 T. 205; Brothers v. Mundell, 60 T. 240), and applies where a former law is substantially re-enacted (Moffett v. Moffett, 67 T. 644, 4 S. W. 70).

When the power to determine the question of the eligibility of a candidate for a municipal office is conferred by the legislature on a city council, its decision will not be revised in a proceeding by quo warranto. Seay v. Hunt, 55 T. 545.

Nature of remedy.—A suit by information is a civil proceeding in form analogous to a criminal prosecution. State v. De Gress, 53 T. 337.

A proceeding by quo warranto by the state is for the purpose of reclaiming a privilege granted by it and forfeited by noncompliance with the conditions of the grant. It cannot be used for the purpose of enforcing the performance of a condition or stipulation in the grant. Morris v. Leona, 67 T. 303, 3 S. W. 281.

Exercise of franchise or privilege.—A proceeding by quo warranto may be maintained against the enjoyment of a franchise claimed, whether under state legislation or municipal act, when there was absence of power to grant it. Morris v. State, 62 T. 728.

Exercise of public office.—The usual method of ascertaining whether an individual is holding an office contrary to law is by an information in the nature of the common-law writ of quo warranto. Ex parte De Bland, Dallam, 406; Bradley v. McCrabb, Dallam, 604; Wright v. Allen, 2 T. 108; Banton v. Wilson, 4 T. 408; Grant v. Chambers, 34 T. 573.

An information in the nature of a quo warranto filed in the district court by the proper officer at the instance of a private relator, where the value of the office is over $500, is a proper proceeding, and may be used not only to oust the intruder, but also to adjudge to the relator the possession of the office. But this method of proceeding is not exclusive, and the right to an office may be determined as well by an ordinary civil suit. McAllen v. Rhodes, 65 T. 548, citing State v. Owens, 63 T. 201; Williamson v.

In the name of the State, and in the name of quo warranto, upon the relation of one entitled to the office of district clerk, is a civil proceeding which may be maintained by him to oust an intruder who has obtained possession and assumes to exercise the functions of such office. See Williams v. State, 67 T. 502, 6 S. W. 846. See City of East Dallas v. State, 73 T. 371, 11 S. W. 1030; Dean v. State, 39 T. 1947, 31 S. W. 185, 88 T. 290; State v. De Gress, 53 T. 387.

One who has been declared elected to an office, and who has entered upon the discharge of duties, cannot, in a proceeding by quo warranto, be deprived of his office for bribery until he has been convicted of that offense. State v. Humphries, 74 T. 496, 12 S. W. 99, 6 L. R. A. 217.

Quo warranto is not the proper remedy to restrain a legal officer from exercising his office beyond the territorial limits of his jurisdiction. State v. Rigby, 17 C. A. 171, 43 S. W. 271.

The state may try the title to an office by quo warranto on the relation of one claiming to be elected to it, notwithstanding he has the right to contest the election. Gray v. State, 19 C. A. 521, 49 S. W. 656.

The court has jurisdiction of quo warranto to try the title to an office, regardless of the salary attached to it. Id.

This statute provides for writs of quo warranto as against one who usurps, intrudes into or unlawfully holds or executes any office or franchise. This is in consonance with the general nature of the writ of quo warranto, that it, furnishes a remedy or mode to try the right of an office or franchise. Notwithstanding this the matter of applying to the supreme court for an order to show cause why the petitioner is required to be called in to be tried is a matter of discretion of the counsel of the court, and the order must be made in favor of the petitioner, unless the court is satisfied that the petitioner is not entitled to have the matter determined in his favor or that the public interest will be better served if the matter be determined in another manner. Ewing v. Bradshaw, 53 T. 339, 37 Am. Rep. 758.

A corporation or officer may be convicted of a crime committed in the performance of their corporate duties, and the corporation is entitled to have the question as to the validity of the conviction determined in their favor. W. W. & M. Ry. Co. v. Holcomb, 68 T. 154, 43 S. W. 514.

In the case of an election or re-election to an office the statutes of the state provide for the power to be exercised under the supervision of the courts. Smith v. State, 53 T. 274, 29 S. W. 132.

In the election of a district attorney in the public service of the state the statute provides that the election of such officer may be challenged in the courts. See Consolidated State Bank v. Davis, 68 T. 30, 3 S. W. 255.

In the election of a corporate officer there is a statute which provides that if a citizen of the state shall be convicted of a crime for which he may be punished in this state, the judgment of the court shall be set aside. See Ex parte Keeling, 54 C. R. 118, 152 S. W. 665, 139 Am. St. Rep. 881.

Under the above provision the court could not properly render a judgment for the amount of fraud recovery. The facts being that the defendant is a receiver appointed for the property of the corporation alleged to be defunct, and through such receivership sell the property and distribute the proceeds. Oriental Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 722.

Pleading—Information.—A proceeding by quo warranto should be sworn to, and may be tried by a district attorney pro tem., appointed during a term of court by the district judge on account of the nonattendance of the district attorney. Fowler v. State, 68 T. 30, 3 S. W. 255; Hunnicutt v. State, 75 T. 233, 12 S. W. 106.

The cause of action is stated in the petition, and should be a statement of all the facts and circumstances relied upon for the judgment of the court. City of East Dallas v. State, 73 T. 371, 11 S. W. 1030.

It has been held that an unsworn information officially made by the district attorney is sufficient. Hunnicutt v. State, 75 T. 233, 12 S. W. 106. See Davis v. State, 75 T. 420, 12 S. W. 957; Little v. State, 75 T. 616, 12 S. W. 965.

Informations should be sworn to. Where consent is given by the district judge to file the information, no further inquiry could be made as to the source of information. Hunnicutt v. State, 75 T. 233, 12 S. W. 106.

Complaint or petition.—In a proceeding by quo warranto to recover an office to which the relator claims to have been elected, an allegation that he was a citizen of the county and entitled to the office is, on general demurrer, a sufficient statement of his qualification to hold the office. In such a proceeding the information that the relator received a majority of the ballots of the qualified voters of the county is sufficient. Fowler v. State, 68 T. 30, 3 S. W. 255.

The disqualification of the presiding officer of an independent school district election rendered the election void held insufficient to raise the validity of such office's election as a trustee of the district. State v. Buchanan, 37 C. A. 325, 83 S. W. 723.
A quo warranto petition to invalidate the incorporation of an independent school district for conflict with an adjoining district, held insufficient. 114) Id. A petition in quo warranto, alleging that the relator has been deprived of an office to which he had been elected, and which stated the number of votes he received and the number defendant received and that the relator has been fraudulently counted out, was sufficient on general demurrer. Griffin v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 356. In quo warranto by the state to oust defendant from an office and place relator therein, where the pleading did not allege the invalidity of the election, the court had no authority to declare the election void. State v. Pease (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 459. A quo warranto to contest an election held sufficient to admit evidence of the names of the voters whose ballots had been fraudulently marked. Id.

 Parties plaintiff or petitioners. — A judgment of forfeiture in which the state is not a party is a nullity. Pickett v. Abney, 84 T. 616, 19 S. W. 859.

A party to a quo warranto against a school trustee is presented by one having no interest, the court may refuse to permit it to be filed, and should refuse to remove the respondent. Deaver v. State, 27 C. A. 453, 56 S. W. 256.

The state alone can take advantage of the fact that a municipality has been illegally constituted by instituting a proceeding to test the validity of the charter thereof, and no collateral attack can be permitted. City of Carthage v. Burton, 51 C. A. 155, 111 S. W. 440.

Under this article a proceeding to forfeit a charter of a corporation can only be instituted by the attorney general of the state, and the attempt to confer such power upon the district or county attorney is in violation of Const. art. 4, § 22, providing that the attorney general shall represent the state in all suits and pleas in the supreme court, and shall specially inquire into the charter rights of all private corporations, and take action for the protection of the public interest, etc. Oriential Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 722.

 Parties defendant. — In an information questioning the legality of the incorporation of a town or city, and where the theory of an attack upon the right of city officials to exercise their office is that there is no such corporation, then it would seem that the proceeding should be made a party. It should not be made a party to the action of the persons assuming to compose the governing body. Ewing v. State, 81 T. 173, 16 S. W. 872.

Where defendant was the only one of eleven candidates for four offices who was elected by a plurality of the other eight, relator, after being duly elected, defendant was the only one of the candidates who was a proper party defendant to quo warranto by relator to obtain title to one of the offices. Griffin v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 328.

 Amendments. — If an information is not sufficiently supported by the official oath of the attorney-general, it is competent for the court to permit the defect to be cured by an amendment duly verified or by a separate affidavit. Little v. State, 76 T. 616, 13 S. W. 966.

Railroad doing business within state. — The courts of Texas have no power to forfeit the franchise of a railway company granted in another state whose line of railway has been extended into Texas; but they can withdraw the franchise granted in Texas whenever a violation of the laws of Texas justifies it, and can, by injunction, prohibit it from carrying on business in Texas in violation of Texas laws. They may also place the property of such corporation situate in Texas in the hands of a receiver to adjust the claims of creditors. Railway Co. v. State, 76 T. 484, 12 S. W. 690.

Under control of state's officers. — Quo warranto proceedings, once begun, are under the control of the state's officer, and the supporting affidavits cannot control or direct the proceedings. Mathews v. State, 52 T. 757, 18 S. W. 711.

"Franchise." — The word "franchise," as used in this article, applies only to franchise in business. It does not relate to the duties appertaining to an office. State v. Smith, 55 T. 447; Railway Co. v. State, 75 T. 356, 12 S. W. 685.

Review by appeal only. — The district attorney brought a petition for leave to bring quo warranto, under this article and under the authority of the other laws and statutes in force, praying for judgment of ouster from corporate franchises, dissolution, for judgment for unpaid franchise taxes and penalties, and for a receiver to wind up the corporation. Acts 30th Leg. c. 23, providing for a proceeding against a corporation whose charter has been forfeited by the secretary of state for failure to pay its franchise tax, permits, under section 14, all the relief sought by the suit brought, while in the proceeding under the Revised Statutes the unpaid franchise tax could not be collected. Held, that the proceeding would be held to be under the act of 1907, and not under the Revised Statutes; and hence, as section 15 of the act of 1907 contemplated a review of the judgment by writ of error, a motion to dismiss the writ to the judgment, because proceedings under the Revised Statutes were reviewable only by appeal, must be denied. Oriental Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 722.

Even if the proceeding is construed to be both under this article and under Acts 30th Leg. c. 23, the writ of error would stand as to everything in the judgment, except the naked item of ouster. Id.

 Art. 6399. [4344] Joinder of parties in one action, when. — When it appears to the court or judge that the several rights of divers parties to the same office or franchise may properly be determined on one information, the court or judge may give leave to join all such persons in the same information in order to try their respective rights to such office or franchise. [Id. sec. 2.]

 Art. 6400. [4345] Citations to issue. — When the information is filed, as hereinafore provided, the clerk shall issue citations in like form as in civil suits, commanding the defendant to appear at the return term of said court to answer the relator in an information in the nature of a quo warranto. If the information is filed in vacation, the citation shall be returnable on the first day of the next succeeding term; if in term time, it may be made returnable on any day of the same term, not less than five days after the date of the writ, as shall be directed by the court.
[Id. sec. 3.]
Sufficiency of citation. The fact that a citation in quo warranto did not state the nature of relator's demand was not ground for quashing the citation, where the certified copy of the petition accompanying the citation sufficiently stated the nature of the demand, there being a substantial compliance with the statute. Griffin v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 328.

Art. 6401. [4346] Proceedings as in civil cases.—Every person or corporation who shall be cited as hereinbefore provided shall be entitled to all the rights in the trial and investigation of the matters alleged against him, as in cases of trial of civil causes in this state; and, in cases of appeal to which either party shall be entitled, the said court shall give preference to such case and hear and determine the same at the earliest day practicable; and all such appeals shall be prosecuted to the term of the court in session, or the first term to be held, if not in session, after judgment has been rendered in the district court. [Id.
sec. 4.]

Time for appeal.—If an appeal from a judgment rendered in a proceeding by quo warranto is not presented to the next term of the court, the appeal, when presented to some other term, must be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. The provision of the act, which declares that the remedy and mode of procedure in some cases shall be construed as cumulative does not affect the question. Fontaine v. State, 69 T. 610, 6 S. W. 816; Livingston v. State, 70 T. 393, 11 S. W. 115.

A writ of error from a judgment in a quo warranto proceeding to dissolve an independent school district shall not be dismissed, it appearing that no appeal was prosecuted within the time required by the above article and that steps for the prosecution of the writ of error were commenced after the lapse of six months after the expiration of Precedence over other cases on appeal.—It is proper to give precedence to such cases, and a case may be called out of its order. Hunnicutt v. State, 76 T. 233, 12 S. W. 106.

Provisions as to appeal do not apply when.—The provisions of this article as to appeal do not apply where matters not contemplated by the statute are included in the appeal. Railway Co. v. State, 76 T. 366, 12 S. W. 685.

Evidence.—Under allegations in quo warranto to oust defendant from his office for fraud in marking ballots of illiterates, held, that the ballots as contained in a ballot box of a certain precinct were admissible. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 687.

Findings.—The court in quo warranto to oust defendant from the office of mayor of a city and place relator therein held to fail to find on the material issues, necessitating a reversal of the judgment. State v. Pease (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 649.

Art. 6402. [4347] Judgment of court.—In case any person or corporation against whom any such proceeding is filed shall be adjudged guilty, as charged in the information, the court shall give judgment of ouster against such person or corporation from the office or franchise, and may fine such person or corporation for usurping, intruding into or unlawfully holding and executing such office or franchise, and shall

TITLE 115

RAILROADS

INCORPORATION OF RAILROAD COMPANIES

Art. 6405. [4350] Not less than ten persons may form company.—Any number of persons, not less than ten, being subscribers to the stock of any contemplated railroad, may be formed into a corporation for the purpose of constructing, owning, maintaining and operating such railroad, by complying with the requirements of this chapter. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 141, sec. 1.]

Street railways.—A corporation formed by three or more persons for purpose of constructing and operating street railways for transportation of freight and passengers is not such a company as is contemplated by this article. Aycock v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n et al., 26 C. A. 341, 63 S. W. 964.

Art. 6406. Who may build railroads.—No corporation, except one chartered under the laws of the state of Texas, shall be authorized or permitted to construct, build, operate, acquire, own or maintain any railway within this state. [Acts 1903, p. 90.]

Art. 6407. [4351] Amount of stock which must be subscribed and paid.—No railroad corporation shall be formed until stock to the amount of one thousand dollars for every mile of said road so intended to be built shall be in good faith subscribed, and five per cent of the amount subscribed paid in to the directors of such proposed company. [Acts 1876, p. 141.]

Art. 6408. [4352] Articles of incorporation shall contain what.—The persons proposing to form a railroad corporation shall adopt and sign articles of incorporation, which shall contain:

1. The name of the proposed corporation.
2. The places from and to which it is intended to construct the proposed railroad, and the intermediate counties through which it is proposed to construct the same; provided, however, that local suburban railways may be constructed for any distance less than ten miles from the corporate limits of any city or town, in addition to such mileage as they may have within the same; and in such case the general direction shall be given from the beginning point.

3. The place at which shall be established and maintained the principal business office of the proposed corporation.
4. The time of the commencement and the period of the continuance of the proposed corporation.
5. The amount of the capital stock of the corporation.
6. The names and places of residence of the several persons forming the association for incorporation.
7. The names of the members of the first board of directors, and in what officers or persons the government of the proposed corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested.
8. The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of the proposed corporation. [Acts 1889, p. 17.]

Powers limited by charter.—The rule that a corporation has only power to do such acts as its charter, construed in relation to the general law, authorizes it to do, applies to every class of corporations. Railway Co. v. Morris, 67 T. 693, 4 S. W. 156.

Estoppel to deny corporate authority.—Though a corporation may exceed its charter power in making a contract, yet, when the contract is executed and the company has received its benefits, it is estopped to deny the authority to make it. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 635, 8 S. W. 98.

Effect of ultra vires act.—That the act of a railroad company in building a certain spur track was ultra vires does not justify an entry on such track by another railroad. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 28 C. A. 551, 67 S. W. 525.

Impairment of contract.—A provision in a railroad charter exempting the railroad company from liability for causing the death of train employees held not a ‘contract’ within the constitutional provision prohibiting impairing the obligation of a contract. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gross (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1173.

Art. 6409. [4353] Articles shall be submitted to attorney general, etc. —The articles of incorporation, when so prepared, adopted and signed, shall be submitted to the attorney general of the state, whose duty it shall be to carefully examine the same; and, if he finds them to be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter and not in conflict with the laws of the United States or of this state, he shall attach thereunto a certificate to that effect. [Acts 1876, p. 141, sec. 2.]

Art. 6410. [4354] Shall be filed in office of secretary of state.—When said articles have been examined and certified as provided in the preceding article, the same shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, accompanied by an affidavit in writing, signed and sworn to by at least three of the directors named in such articles, before some officer of the state authorized by law to administer oaths, which affidavit shall state that the amount of one thousand dollars for every mile of such proposed road has been in good faith subscribed, and that five per cent of the amount subscribed has been actually paid to the directors named in such articles; and the secretary of state shall cause such articles, together with said affidavit, to be recorded in his office, and shall attach a certificate of the fact of such record to said articles and return the same to such corporation. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6411. [4355] Existence of corporation begins when.—The existence of such corporation shall date from the filing of the articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state; and the certificate of the secretary of state, under the seal of the state, shall be evidence of such filing. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6412. [4356] Corporators may proceed to act, when.—When the articles of incorporation have been filed and recorded as herein provided, the persons named as corporators therein shall thereupon become and be deemed a body corporate, and be authorized to proceed to carry into effect the objects set forth in such articles, in accordance with the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 4.]

Citizenship of corporation.—A corporation is conclusively presumed to be a citizen of the state which created it. Railway Co. v. Harrison, 73 T. 103, 11 S. W. 168.

Validity of contract.—One owning the property and franchises of a railroad company contracted to sell them to another in consideration that the purchaser was to pay a designated sum in cash (which was paid), and to deliver to the vendor certain shares of stocks and bonds of a new company to be organized under the franchise. The agreement to deliver the stocks and bonds was the promise of the new company, and was a sufficiently valid consideration. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 635, 8 S. W. 98.
Art. 6413. [4357] Corporation shall not be for more than fifty years, etc.—No railroad corporation shall be formed to continue more than fifty years in the first instance, but such corporation may be renewed from time to time for periods not longer than fifty years, in the manner provided in the succeeding articles. [Id. p. 144, sec. 8.]

Art. 6414. [4358] Manner of renewing corporation.—The manner of renewing a railroad corporation which has expired by lapse of time shall be as follows:

1. By a resolution in writing adopted by a majority of three-fourths of the stockholders of the company at a regular meeting of the stockholders, which resolution shall specify the period of time for which the corporation is renewed.

2. Those desiring a renewal of the corporation shall purchase the stock of those opposed thereto at its current value.

3. The resolution, when adopted, shall be certified to by the president of the company; and he shall state in his certificate thereto that it was adopted by a majority vote of three-fourths of all the stockholders of said company at a regular meeting of such stockholders, and that the stockholders desiring such renewal have purchased the stock of those who oppose such renewal, and such certificate shall be attested by the secretary of the company under the seal of the company.

4. The said resolution and certificate shall then be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, and the renewal of said corporation shall date from said filing. [Id.]

Resolution signed by officers.—A resolution of a corporation signed by its officers is within the meaning of this article. Railway Co. v. Gentry, 69 T. 625, 8 S. W. 98.

Art. 6415. [4359] When authorized to be sold or conveyed under special law.—Whenever any line or lines of railway or railway properties within this state are by special law authorized to be sold and conveyed, the persons contemplating or engaging for the purchase thereof may be formed into a corporation for the purpose of acquiring, owning, maintaining and operating such line or lines of railway by complying, as far as is applicable, with the requirements of this chapter. In the formation of such corporation, the requirements of article 6407 and so much of article 6410 of the Revised Statutes as relates to the affidavit therein provided for may be dispensed with, and words applicable to the case of a purchase may be used and substituted when necessary or proper, in the articles of incorporation or elsewhere, for or in lieu of words applicable to the building or construction of a railway. And when such corporation has been formed it shall have the power to purchase, acquire, own, maintain and operate such line or lines of railway and properties pertaining thereto, and all rights, powers and privileges given by the laws of this state to railway companies, including the right to complete and extend such line or lines of railway, and to construct branch lines thereto; and any proposed extension or branch lines may be provided for and included in the original articles of incorporation, or the same may, by amendment thereto at any time thereafter, be projected and provided for by such company. [Acts 1891, p. 128.]

Rights transferred.—A railroad company, after transfer of its rights to certain lands in 1862, could not, in 1870, pass any rights in such lands to another company acquiring by act of legislature all its franchises and property. Walker v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1045.

Liabilities of successor.—See, also, Arts. 6116, 6624, 6625.

The fact that one railway company succeeds another does not necessarily imply that the former becomes responsible for the obligations of the vendor. Railway Co. v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 702; Eddy v. Hinnant, 82 T. 356, 18 S. W. 562; Railway Co. v. Shirley, 54 T. 137; Railway Co. v. Newell, 73 T. 334, 11 S. W. 342, 15 Am. St. Rep. 788; Ra­ilway Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 382.

Lease of railway.—See, also, Arts. 6604, 6607 et seq.

Art. 6416. [4360] Shall take property subject to liens, etc.—Every railroad company organized under the preceding article shall take the property so purchased subject to all incumbrances, judgments, claims, suits, claims for damages and for right of way against the old company and subject to all debts and claims for damages accruing against any receiver who may have been appointed for the old company to the same extent that such property would have been liable in the hands of the railroad company from which it was purchased; and such new company may be made a party to every suit pending against the company from which it purchased, or which may be pending against any receiver of such company, to enforce any right against such new company; and the new company may be sued to enforce any such rights, without joining the old company, or the receiver; and, in case any judgment has been rendered against the company from which the purchase is made, or against a receiver for such last named company, and for which the property is liable, execution may be issued on such judgment against such property in the possession of the new company without any suit therefor. When any corporation shall be formed under the provisions of article 6415, service of process may be had upon any agent of such corporation in any county where suit may be pending. Such service shall bind each and every railroad operated or owned under such charter, in the same manner as if it were one railroad. [Id. sec. 2.]

AMENDING OR CHANGING CHARTER

Article 6417. [4361] Corporation may amend articles, etc.—Any railroad corporation may amend or change its articles or act of incorporation in the manner provided in the following articles of this chapter. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 142, sec. 5.]

Power to purchase railway.—A railway chartered under general laws cannot purchase the railway of another company, and it follows that the power cannot be obtained through an amended charter, in the absence of legislative permission. Railway Co. v. Morris, 67 T. 692, 4 S. W. 166.

Removal of offices and shops.—A railroad which has for a valuable consideration contracted to locate its general offices, machine shops, and roundhouses in a certain city cannot acquire the right to remove them by amending its charter. City of Tyler v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co., 99 T. 491, 91 S. W. 4.

Forfeiture of charter.—See Arts. 6633-6635.

Art. 6418. [4362] How amendment, etc., shall be made.—Said amendment or change shall be made in the manner following:

1. It shall be in writing and signed by the president and board of directors of the corporation and attested by the secretary under the seal of the corporation.

2. It shall be submitted to the attorney general as in the case of original articles of incorporation, and examined and certified by him in the same manner.

3. It shall then be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state.

4. In the case of a corporation created by a special act of the legislature, the said amendment or change, together with the original charter and such amendments and changes as have been made by special act of the legislature, shall be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6419. [4363] Shall take effect, when.—Such amendment or change shall be in force from the date of the filing of the same in the office of the secretary of state in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. [Id.]

Art. 6420. [4364] Shall not amend, when.—Where, by the special act or articles of incorporating any railroad company, any privileges, rights or benefits are conferred upon said corporation, such as it could not claim, exercise or receive under this title, or the general laws, then the said corporation shall not be permitted so to amend or change its charter or articles of incorporation as to relieve it from any of the requirements of such special act or acts conferring said privileges, rights or benefits. [Id.]

Art. 6421. [4365] May project, etc., a branch line by amendment.—Any railroad company may, by its original articles of incorporation, or by its amendments to its charter, project and provide for the locating, constructing, owning and operating of branch lines from any points on its main line, or from any points on its branch line, constructed or projected, to any other points making an angle of at least twenty-five degrees in the general course from the main line, if the branch commence from the same, or from the branch line, if it commence at a point on the same; provided, that the same may commence at the terminus of a branch line and continue in its general course; and may, by amendment to its charter, provide for the continuation in its general course of the main line; that any and all amendments of charters, acts or articles of incorporation approved by the attorney general of the state, or his lawful representative, by which any branch railroad or railroads has or have been constructed in accordance with the provisions of this article as herein provided are authorized, validated, sanctioned and confirmed to the same extent as though this article had always read as now amended. [Id. p. 143, sec. 7. Amended Acts 1901, p. 258.]

Art. 6422. [4366] Branch line shall complete 10 miles first year, etc.—Any such corporation making such amendment to its charter, as is authorized by the preceding article, shall complete and put in good running order at least ten miles of its said branch line in said amendment proposed within one year from the filing of such amendment, and an additional extent of at least twenty miles each and every succeeding year until the entire extent of the projected branch line is completed. [Id.]

CHAPTER THREE PUBLIC OFFICES AND BOOKS

Art.
6423. Shall keep offices in this state.
6424. What officers to keep offices in this state, etc.
6425. Forfeiture for violation hereof.
6426. Required to do repair work in Texas.
6427. Rolling stock, etc., to be removed for repair.
6428. Not to apply in cases of strikes, fires, etc.

Art.
6429. Where books to be kept and what they must contain.
6430. President must report, etc.
6431. Books to be subject to inspection.
6432. Legislature may examine.
6433. Penalty, etc.
6434. Duty of attorney general.
6435. May change public office.
6436. Notice to be given, etc.
6437. Domicile of corporation.

Article 6423. [4367] Shall keep offices in this state.—Every railroad company chartered by this state, or owning or operating any line of railway within this state, shall keep and maintain permanently its general offices within the state of Texas at the place named in its charfor the locating of its general offices; and, if no certain place is named in its charter where its general offices shall be located and maintained, then said railroad company shall keep and maintain its general offices at such place within this state where it shall have contracted or agreed, or shall hereafter contract or agree, to locate its general office for a valuable consideration; and, if said railroad company has not contracted or agreed for a valuable consideration to maintain its general office at any certain place within this state, then such general offices shall be located and maintained at such place on its line in this state as said railroad companies may designate to be on its line of railway. And such railroads shall keep and maintain their machine shops and round houses, or either, at such place or places as they may have contracted to keep them for a valuable consideration received; and, if said general offices and shops and round houses, or either, are located on the line of a railroad in a county which has aided said railroad by an issue of bonds in consideration of such location being made, then said location shall not be changed; and this shall apply as well to a railroad that may have been consolidated with another as to those which have maintained their original organization. [Acts 1889, p. 130, sec. 1.]

Location of general offices.—According to the provisions of this article the offices of a railroad must be kept within the state and at a point on its line. They must be located at the place named in the charter, but if it names no place any contract entered into for a valuable consideration determines their location. City of Tyler v. St. Louis, S. F. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 233.

Contracts for location of shops and offices.—Meaning of terms.—The words "contract" and "contracted," in this article, are used according to the common acceptance of the terms, and include all methods of contracting, whether express or implied, and whether written or oral. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251.

Execution of contract.—See, also, notes under Art. 6446.

Use of city streets by a railroad company pursuant to a city ordinance held not a ratification to make a contract except between contract between contractor and railroad to maintain the railroad's office and shops in the city, made to induce the passage of the ordinance, but not referred to therein. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 137 S. W. 1117.

Validity.—There is a clear recognition in this article of the part of the legislature of the validity of contracts for the location and maintenance of railway shops and offices. It does not create the right to make but recognizes an existing right. If no place is named in the charter, any contract then or thereafter entered into for valuable consideration determines their location. A contract to perpetually maintain a railroad's shops and offices in a certain city is not void as against public policy. City of Tyler v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 245.

Under this article a contract between a city and a railroad, whereby the latter, in consideration of the city's right to locate its offices through the city, agrees to keep its offices and shops and general offices in the city, is valid and binds the railroad occupying the streets for its tracks to keep its general offices and shops in the city, and the enforcement of the contract is against public policy. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251, reversed on another point in [Sup.] 137 S. W. 1117.

Under Arts. 6485, 6497, a railroad company had no right to construct its line on the streets of a city without the city's consent which the city had an unqualified right to refuse, and the city was authorized to contract with the railroad company for the use of its streets in consideration of the railroad company's locating its offices, machine shops, and roundhouses within the city limits. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 137 S. W. 1117.

Paschal's Dig. art. 4885, authorizing railroad corporations to establish a principal office at some point on the line of its road and to change the same at pleasure, giving public notice thereof, recognizes the right of a railroad corporation to change the location of its general offices to suit its convenience, but it does not limit the right of a railroad corporation to change the permanent location of its main terminal and general offices of its superintendent of motive power and machinery. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Consideration.—The granting by a city to a railroad of a right of way through streets for its road is a sufficient consideration for an agreement by the railroad to establish and keep its general offices and shops in the city. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 251, reversed on another point in [Sup.] 137 S. W. 1117.

Blind successors.—Under this article the contractual obligation of a railroad company to maintain its roundhouses, machine shops, and general offices in a city, supported by a valuable consideration, is not a mere personal obligation of the company, but is an obligation imposed by law, and the obligation rests on a company purchasing the property and franchises at foreclosure sale. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Under this article and Art. 6425, where a railroad company, in consideration of certain railroad aid bonds issued by a county, contracted to maintain its general offices roundhouses, shops, etc., in a certain city in the county, the observance of such contrac was not a mere covenant but a continuing condition of the company's right to corporate existence and was enforceable against a purchaser of the railroad company's property at a judicial sale, since such a purchaser takes the property and franchises freed only from the mere personal obligations of the former company. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Sup.) 156 S. W. 499.

Counties aiding by issuance of bonds.—Where railroad shops and offices are located on its line in a county which has aided it by the issuance of bonds, their removal is expressly prohibited by this article, notwithstanding consolidations with other roads. City of Tyler v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 246.

Remedies for breach of contract—Recovery of consideration.—On repudiation by defendant railroad of contracts to perpetually maintain its offices and shops in plaintiff city, plaintiffs held entitled to recover considerations passed. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 238.

Injunction to prevent removal.—See Title 69 and notes.

Receiver to deposit railroad funds in state.—See Art. 5145.

Art. 6424. [4368] What officers are to keep offices in this state.—It shall be the duty of said railroad company to keep and maintain at the place within this state where its said general offices are located the office of its president, or vice-president, also the office of its secretary, treasurer, local treasurer, auditor, general freight agent, traffic manager, general manager, general superintendent, general passenger and ticket agent, chief engineer, superintendent of motive power and machinery, master mechanic, master of transportation, fuel agent, general claim agent; and each and every one of its general offices shall be so kept and maintained, by whatsoever name it is known, and the persons who perform the duties of said general offices, by whatever name known, shall keep and maintain their offices at the place where the said general offices are required to be located and maintained; and the persons holding said general offices of a railroad shall reside at the place and keep and maintain their offices at the place where the general offices of said railroad are required by law to be kept and maintained; and, if the duties of any of the above named offices are performed by any person, but his position is called by a different name, it is hereby made the duty of the said railroad company to have and maintain said offices at the place where its general Texas offices are kept and maintained, as required by this chapter; provided, that if the judgment of the court shall be to forfeit the charter, then it shall allow the railroad company six months from the date of the judgment within which to comply with the requirements of this chapter, and if said railroad company shall comply with the said time no forfeiture shall occur; but if the railroad company shall not comply then the judgment shall be final; the object and meaning of this statute being to require every railroad company owning or operating a line of railway within this state to keep and maintain its general offices within this state at such place as required herein; and the name of the general offices shall not be understood to allow the railroad company to have any of the offices usually known as general offices at any other place than the one it is required to keep its general offices at; and each and every railroad is hereby required to have and maintain its general offices at the place named herein; provided, further, that where the principal shops of any company are situated on its line in the state, at a place other than the place where its general offices are located, the superintendent of motive power and machinery, master mechanic, either or both, may have his office and residence at such place where such principal shops are located; and provided, further, that the railroad commission of Texas, where it is made to appear that any officer, other than the general officers of any company, can more conveniently perform his duties by residing at some place on the line in Texas other than the place where the general offices are situated, may, by an order entered on its record, authorize any such officer to so reside and keep his office at such place. [Acts 1889, p. 130, sec. 2. Amended Acts 1899, p. 117.]

Art. 6425. [4369] Forfeiture for violation of, etc.—Each and every railroad company chartered by this state, or owning, operating or controlling any line of railroad within this state, which shall violate any of the provisions of this chapter shall forfeit the charter by which it operates its railroad in this state to the state of Texas; and it is hereby made the duty of the attorney general of this state, upon the application of any interested party, or on his own motion, to proceed at once against every railroad company owning, operating or controlling any line of railway within this state by quo warranto to forfeit the charter of the railroad company so offending, or violating any of the provisions of this law; [and every such railroad company] shall in addition to forfeiting the charter to that part of the railroad situated within this state be subject to a penalty of five thousand dollars for each and every day it violates any of the provisions of this chapter; said penalty to be recovered in the name of the state of Texas by a suit which shall be filed by the attorney general in any court in this state having jurisdiction; and on the trial the court shall, if it finds that the railroad company has violated any of the provisions of this chapter, render judgment in the name of the state of Texas at the rate of the sum of five thousand dollars for each and every day said court shall find that said railroad company violated any of the provisions of this chapter. And any money recovered from any railroad company under the provisions of this law shall be paid over into the state treasury and become a part of the available public free school fund. [Id. sec. 3.]

See International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Sup.) 156 S. W. 499.

Art. 6426. Required to do repair work in Texas.—All railroad corporations operating in the state of Texas, and having their repair shops within the state, shall and are hereby required to repair, renovate, or rebuild in the state of Texas any and all defective or broken cars, coaches, locomotives or other equipment owned or leased by said corporations in the state of Texas, when such rolling stock is within the state of Texas; provided, that such railway shall have, or be under obligation to have, proper facilities in the state to do such work; and provided, this and the two succeeding articles shall not be so construed as to require any railway corporation to violate the safety appliance law of the Congress of the United States; and provided, further, that no railway shall be required to haul such disabled equipment a greater distance for repairs at a point within the state of Texas than would be necessary to reach their repair shops in another state; and provided, further, that no such railway company shall haul, or be permitted to haul for purposes of repair, any disabled equipment by or past any shop owned or operated by any such company where said disabled equipment can be repaired, in order to reach some other repair shop at a greater distance for purposes of repairing said disabled equipment; provided, that the provisions of this and the two succeeding articles shall not apply to companies having less than sixty continuous miles of railroad in operation in this state. [Acts 1909, p. 73, sec. 1.]

Art. 6427. Rolling stock, etc., not to be removed for repair.—All such railroad corporations, having their repair shops within the state, shall be prohibited from sending or removing any of their cars, coaches, locomotives or other equipment out of the state of Texas to be repaired, renovated or rebuilt, when the same is in a defective or broken condition and within the state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6428. Not to apply in cases of strikes, fires, etc.—The provisions of the two preceding articles shall not apply in cases of strikes, fires, or other unforeseen casualties and emergencies. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6429. [4370] What books shall contain; open to inspection, etc.—At the public or general offices of the said railroad companies, established as provided for in this chapter, the principal business of said corporation shall be conducted, and stock transferred and claims for damages settled and adjusted by duly authorized officers and agents of said corporations, and where there shall be kept for the inspection of stockholders of such corporation books, in which shall be recorded:
1. The amount of capital stock subscribed.
2. The names of the owners of the stock and the amounts owned by them respectively.
3. The amount of stock paid and by whom.
4. The transfer of stock with the date of the transfer.
5. The amount of its assets and liabilities.
6. The names and places of residence of each of its officers.

Provided, that railroad corporations shall be required to keep such office at some place on the line of its road in this state, as heretofore provided. [Acts 1885, p. 67.]

Art. 6430. [4371] President shall report, etc.—The president or superintendent of every railroad company doing business in this state shall report annually under oath to the comptroller, or governor, the true status of said railroad, and such other matters and things as may be inquired about by said comptroller, or governor. [Const., art. 10, sec. 3.]

Action for penalty.—The fact that the state has shown no special damage resulting from the failure of the company to make its report affords no defense to an action for the penalty prescribed by Rev. St. 1895, art. 4634. Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. v. State, 61 T. 342.

Forfeiture of charter.—See Art. 6636.

Art. 6431. [4372] Books to be kept where.—The books of such corporation kept at its public office shall at all reasonable business hours be open to the inspection of each stockholder, and to any officer or agent of the state whose duty it may be to inspect such books. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6432. [4373] Legislature may examine.—The legislature may, by committee or otherwise, examine the books of any railroad corporation at such times and as often as may by said legislature be deemed necessary. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6433. [4374] Penalty for failure, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any railroad or other corporation to fail or refuse to comply with any of the provisions of this chapter; and, if said railroad or other corporation shall fail or refuse to comply with any part thereof, it shall be liable to pay to the state of Texas the sum of one thousand dollars for each and every month that said railroad or other corporation shall fail or refuse to comply therewith, said sum to be recovered by the state in any court in this state of competent jurisdiction; provided, that an honest mistake in the entries in its books shall not subject a railroad company to the penalties of this article, if the office of said company shall be kept in this state, as herein provided. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6434. [4375] Duties of attorney general.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general of this state to bring suit against said corporations, and prosecute them to judgment for any violation of the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6435. [4376] May change public office.—Every railroad corporation may change at pleasure its public office by publishing a notice of such change in some newspaper published on the line of its road, if any there be, and, if not, then in some newspaper in the state and having a general circulation in the state, for four successive weeks prior to such a change; provided, however, that the right to make such change shall be subject to the limitations and restrictions herein contained. [Act Feb. 7, 1854. P. D. 4888.]

Art. 6436. [4377] Notice of establishment of public office, in first instance, shall be given.—Every railroad corporation shall also, as soon as it has in the first instance established its public office, give notice of such establishment by a like publication as required in the preceding article.

Art. 6437. [4378] Public office the domicile of the corporation.—The public office of a railroad corporation shall be considered the domicile of such corporation. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 150, sec. 32.]

Domicile equivalent to residence.—"Domicile" as used in this article denotes residence and is synonymous with the word residence as used in section 4 of article 1830, and in the case of a railroad company means the place where its public office is located. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. McKnight, 99 T. 289, 89 S. W. 758. See, also, Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Edmisson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 635.

Citizenship of corporation.—See note under Art. 6412.

CHAPTER FOUR OFFICERS OF RAILROAD CORPORATIONS

Art.
6438. Board of directors.
6439. Qualifications.
6440. Shall be elected by majority of, etc.
6441. Same, etc.
6442. By-laws in regard to, not to be changed.
6443. Manner of voting for.

Art.
6444. Failure to hold election, etc.
6445. Corporate powers vested, etc.
6446. President and other officers.
6447. Majority of directors required to elect officers.
6448. Directors liable when.
6449. All officers liable when.

Article 6438. [4379] Board of directors.—Every railroad corporation shall have a board of directors of not less than seven nor more than nine persons. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 144, sec. 11.]

Art. 6439. [4380] Qualifications of directors.—Each director shall be a stockholder in said corporation; and a majority of said directors shall be resident citizens of this state, and shall so remain resident citizens during their continuance as such directors. [Id. p. 145, sec. 14.]

Art. 6440. [4381] Directors shall be elected by stockholders.—The board of directors shall be elected by the stockholders of the corporation at their regular annual meeting in each year, in such manner as may be prescribed by the by-laws of such corporation, and by this title, and the directors shall hold their offices until their successors are elected. [Id. p. 144, sec. 11.]

Art. 6441. [4382] Majority of stock required to elect a director.—It shall require a majority in value of the stock of such corporation to elect any member of such board of directors. [Id. p. 145, sec. 14.]

Art. 6442. [4383] By-laws in regard to election of directors shall not be changed, except, etc.—The by-laws of the corporation shall prescribe the manner and time of electing directors, and the mode of filling a vacancy in the office of director; and such provisions in such by-laws shall not be changed, except at a regular annual meeting of the stockholders, and by a majority in value of the stockholders of such corporation. [Id. p. 144, sec. 11.]

Art. 6443. [4384] Manner of voting for directors.—In all elections for directors of such corporation, every stockholder shall have the right to vote in person or by proxy for the number of shares of stock owned by him for as many persons as there are directors to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of directors to be elected multiplied by the number of his shares of stock shall equal, or to distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he may see fit; and such directors shall not be elected in any other manner. [Id. p. 149, sec. 29.]

Art. 6444. [4385] Failure to hold election for directors.—In case it shall happen at any time that an election of directors shall not be made on the day designated by the by-laws of the corporation for that purpose, the stockholders shall meet and hold an election for directors in such manner as shall be provided by the by-laws of the corporation. [Id. p. 145, sec. 14.]

Art. 6445. [4386] Corporate powers vested in directors.—All the corporate powers of every railroad corporation shall be vested in and be exercised by its legally constituted board of directors. [Id. p. 144, sec. 11].

Power of directors.—Under Arts. 1159, 1160, giving directors general management of corporate affairs, and requiring them to keep a record of their business transactions, and this article, no corporate power may be exercised by any one except the board of directors, or by an agent specially empowered by the board to act for them. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 11.

Art. 6446. [4387] President and other officers.—There shall be a president of the corporation, who shall be chosen from and by the board of directors, and such other subordinate officers as the corporation by its by-laws may designate, who may be elected or appointed, and shall perform such duties and be required to give such security for the faithful performance thereof as the corporation, by its by-laws, shall require. [Id. p. 145, sec. 15.]

Authority of officers and agents—Vice president.—Under Art. 6445 and this article, where the by-laws of a railroad company contained nothing authorizing the company's vice president to contract to maintain its general offices, shops, etc., at a certain city in consideration of the right to operate the road over its streets, such officer had neither express nor implied power to make such contract. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 137 S. W. 1117.

Superintendent.—The superintendent of a railroad has authority to bind the corporation by contracts for services rendered an employee of the road injured in its employment. Texas & St. L. R. Co. v. Myers, 1 App. C. C. § 393; Missouri Pac. R. R. Co. v. Turner, 2 App. C. C. § 815.

Physician or surgeon.—Where plaintiff was employed to perform a surgical operation by the local physician of a railroad company on a person injured by a train, and the physician had no authority to bind the railroad company, it never having ratified the same, was not liable for plaintiff's services. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Allen, 42 C. A. 576, 94 S. W. 417. A railroad company is not liable for the negligence of its surgeon in charge of its hospital in failing to comply with his promise to notify a third person of the condition of an inmate. Carroll v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 56 C. A. 449, 120 S. W. 1079.

Agent accustomed to make contracts.—The railway company is bound by contracts made by an agent who has been accustomed to make similar contracts with its knowledge and approbation. Texas & P. R. R. Co. v. Nicholson, 61 T. 491.

Ticket agents.—See Chapter 13 of this title.

Ratification of unauthorized acts.—The vice president of a railroad company could not as a member of the corporation's executive committee ratify his own unauthorized acts, so as to bind the corporation. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 137 S. W. 1117.

Where a city ordinance granting the city's consent to the use of certain streets by a railroad company did not express the consideration that the company should locate its offices and shops at that place, the railroad's use of the streets was not a ratification of the vice president's unauthorized agreement that the railroad company would maintain its offices, shops, etc., within the city in consideration of the passage of the ordinance. Id.

Art. 6447. [4388] Majority of directors required to elect or appoint officer—in all cases, it shall require a majority of the directors to elect or appoint any officer of the corporation. [Id.]

Art. 6448. [4389] Directors liable when false and fraudulent dividend is declared.—If the directors of any railroad company shall declare and pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, they shall be jointly and severally liable for all debts of the company then existing, and for all that shall be thereafter contracted so long as they shall respectively continue in office; provided, that, if any of the directors shall be absent at the time of making the dividend, or shall object thereto, and shall within thirty days thereafter, or after their return, if absent, file a certificate of their absence or objection in writing with the clerk of the company and with the clerk of the county in which the principal office of said company is located, they shall be exempt from said liability. [P. D. 4886.]
Art. 6449. [4390] All the officers liable when false representations are made.—If any certificate or report made, or public notice given, by the officers of any such company, in pursuance of the provisions of this title, shall be false in any material representation, all the officers who shall have signed the same shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the company contracted while they are officers or stockholders thereof. [P. D. 4887.]

BY-LAWS

| Art. 6450. | Power to enact by-laws. |
| Art. 6451. | Each share entitled to a vote. |

Article 6450. [4391] Power to enact by-laws.—Every railroad corporation shall have the power to make such by-laws as it may think proper for the government of such company, the same not being inconsistent with the charter of such company or the laws. [Act Dec. 19, 1857, p. 95. P. D. 4911.]

Art. 6451. [4392] Each share entitled to vote, etc.—In the enactment of a by-law, the stockholders of the corporation shall be entitled to one vote for each share of stock held by them, and a stockholder may vote in person or by written proxy. [Id.]

Art. 6452. [4393] When and by what vote shall be enacted, etc.—No by-laws shall be enacted, altered, amended, added to, repealed or suspended, except at a regular annual meeting of the stockholders and by a majority vote of two-thirds in value of all the stock of the corporation. [Id.]

CHAPTER SIX

STOCK AND STOCKHOLDERS

| Art. 6453. | Railroad stock is personal estate and transferable. |
| Art. 6454. | Directors may require payment of stock, etc. |
| Art. 6455. | Sale of stock when owner neglects to pay. |
| Art. 6456. | Stockholders shall have access to books, etc., of corporation. |
| Art. 6457. | Funds of corporation shall be used only for legitimate purposes. |
| Art. 6459. | Persons holding stock who are not liable. |
| Art. 6460. | Capital stock may be increased. |
| Art. 6461. | Notice of meeting for such increase. |
| Art. 6462. | Notice shall state what. |
| Art. 6463. | Increase may be not exceeding amount named in notice. |
| Art. 6464. | Order or resolution increasing shall be recorded. |
| Art. 6465. | President and directors shall furnish statement to stockholders at regular meeting. |
| Art. 6466. | May be required to furnish statement at special meeting. |
| Art. 6467. | Stockholders may fix amount of loans and interest thereon. |
| Art. 6468. | Stockholders may remove officers and elect others. |
| Art. 6469. | No stock shall be issued, except, etc. |
| Art. 6470. | Fictitious dividends, etc., void. |
| Art. 6471. | Penalty for violating two preceding articles. |

Article 6453. [4394] Railroad stock is personal estate and transferable.—The stock of a railroad corporation shall be deemed personal estate, and shall be transferable in the manner prescribed by the by-laws of the corporation; but no such transfer shall be valid until the same shall have been made on the stock and transfer books of the company; nor shall any share be transferable until all previous calls thereon have been paid. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 145, sec. 17; p. 144, sec. 10.]

Art. 6454. [4395] Directors may require payment of stock, etc.—The directors of such corporation may require the subscribers to the capital stock of the corporation to pay the amount by them respectively subscribed, in such manner and in such installments as the directors may deem proper. [Id. p. 145, sec. 16.]

Art. 6455. [4396] Sale of stock when owner neglects to pay.—If any stockholder shall neglect to pay any installment as required by a resolution or order of the board of directors, the said board shall be authorized to advertise said stock for sale by publication once a week for thirty days in some newspaper published on the line of said road, if there be one, and, if not, in some newspaper published in the state having a general circulation in the state; which notice shall name the stock to be sold and the time and place of such sale; and all stock so sold shall be sold at the public office or place of business of such company, and between the hours of ten o'clock a.m. and four o'clock p.m., and to the highest bidder for cash, the proceeds of such sale to be credited to the delinquent stockholder. [Id. p. 145, sec. 16.]

Art. 6456. [4397] Stockholders shall have access to books, etc., of corporation.—All stockholders shall at all reasonable hours have access to and may examine all books, records and papers of such corporation. [Id. p. 145, sec. 13.]

Art. 6457. [4398] Funds of corporation shall be used only for legitimate purposes.—It shall not be lawful for any railroad corporation to use any of the funds thereof in the purchase of its own stock, or that of any other corporation, or to loan any of its funds to any director or other officer thereof, or to permit them, or any of them, to use the same for other than the legitimate purposes of the corporation. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 6458. [4399] Extent of stockholder's liability for debts of corporation.—Each stockholder of any railroad corporation shall be held individually liable to the creditors of such corporation to an amount not exceeding the amount unpaid on the stock held by him, for any and all debts and liabilities of such corporation until the whole amount of the capital stock of such corporation so held by him shall have been paid. [Id. p. 146, sec. 20.]

Art. 6459. [4400] Persons holding stock who are not liable.—No person holding stock in any railroad corporation as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, and no person holding such stock as collateral security, shall be personally subject to any liability as a stockholder of such corporation; but the estate or person owning such stock shall be considered as holding the same and liable as a stockholder accordingly. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 6460. [4401] Capital stock may be increased.—In case the capital stock of any railroad corporation shall be found insufficient for constructing and operating its road, such corporation may, with the concurrence of two-thirds in value of all its stock, increase its capital stock from time to time to any amount required for the purposes aforesaid. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 6461. [4402] Notice of meeting for such increase, etc.—Such increase shall be sanctioned by a vote in person or by written proxy of two-thirds in amount of all the stock of such corporation, at a meeting of such stockholders called by the directors of the corporation for such purpose, by giving notice in writing to each stockholder, to be served personally, or by depositing the same in a postoffice directed to the postoffice addresses of each of said stockholders severally, postage prepaid, at least sixty days prior to the day appointed for such meeting, and also by advertising the time, place and purpose of such meeting in some newspaper published in each county through or into which the said road shall run, or be intended to run, if any newspaper shall be published therein, at least sixty days next preceding the day appointed for such meeting. [Id.]
Art. 6462. [4403] Notice shall state what.—Such notice shall state the time and place of the meeting, the object thereof, and the amount to which it is proposed to increase such capital stock. [Id.]

Art. 6463. [4404] Increase may be not exceeding amount named in notice.—At such meeting, the capital stock of the corporation may be so increased by a vote of two-thirds in amount of the capital stock of the corporation to an amount not exceeding the amount mentioned in the notice so given. [Id.]

Art. 6464. [4405] Order or resolution increasing shall be recorded.—Every order or resolution increasing the capital stock of any such corporation shall be recorded in the office of the secretary of state; and such increase shall not take effect until such order or resolution has been so recorded. [Id.]

Art. 6465. [4406] President and directors shall furnish statement to stockholders at regular meeting.—At the regular annual meeting of the stockholders, it shall be the duty of the president and directors to exhibit a full, distinct and accurate statement of the affairs of the corporation to the stockholders. [Id. p. 145, sec. 13.]

Art. 6466. [4407] May be required to furnish statement at special meeting.—The stockholders may, at any special meeting of stockholders, require statements similar to the one required by the preceding article from the president and directors, and when so required it shall be the duty of such president and directors to furnish the same. [Id.]

Art. 6467. [4408] Stockholders may fix amount of loans and interest thereon.—At a regular annual meeting of stockholders, or at a special meeting called for the purpose, the stockholders may, by a majority in value of all the stock of such corporation, determine the amount of loans which may be negotiated by such company for the construction of its railway and its equipment, and fix the rate of interest which may be paid, and provide for the security of such loans. [Id.]

Art. 6468. [4409] Stockholders may remove officers and elect others.—The stockholders may, by a two-thirds vote in value of all the stock, at any regular or special meeting of stockholders, remove the president or any director or other officer of such corporation, and elect others instead of those so removed, in accordance with the by-laws of such corporation, and this title. [Id.]

Art. 6469. [4410] No stock shall be issued, except, etc.—No railroad corporation shall issue any stock or bonds, except for money, labor or property actually received and applied to the purpose for which such corporation was organized; nor shall it issue any shares of stock in said company, except at its par value and to actual subscribers who pay or become liable to pay the par value thereof. [Id. p. 148, sec. 25. P. D. 4921.]

Art. 6470. [4411] Fictitious dividends, etc., void.—All fictitious dividends and other fictitious increase of the capital stock or indebtedness of any such corporation shall be void. [Id.]

Art. 6471. [4412] Penalty for violation of two preceding articles.—Every officer or director of a railroad company, who shall violate or consent to the violation of either of the two preceding articles, shall become personally liable to the stockholders and creditors of such company for the full par value of such illegal stock, or for the full amount of such fictitious dividends, increase of stock, or indebtedness, as the case may be. [P. D. 4921.]
CHAPTER SEVEN
MEETINGS OF DIRECTORS AND STOCKHOLDERS

Art. 6472. [4413] Annual meeting of directors.—The directors of every railroad company shall hold one meeting annually at their office in this state, public notice of which shall be given at least thirty days before said meeting, said notice to be published in some daily newspaper printed and published in this state. [Const., art. 10, sec. 3. Acts 1885, p. 67.]

Art. 6473. [4414] Annual meeting of stockholders.—The stockholders of every railroad corporation shall hold at least one meeting annually at the public office or place of business of such corporation in this state; and it shall be the duty of the board of directors to cause public notice to be given of the time and place of such meeting for thirty days previously thereto, as provided in the preceding article. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 144, sec. 12.]

Art. 6474. [4415] Directors and stockholders may meet at same time and place.—The annual meetings of the board of directors and of the stockholders provided for in the two preceding articles may be called to meet and may be held at the same time and place, in which case one notice shall answer the purpose of both meetings; provided, it be so stated in such notice.

Art. 6475. [4416] Quorum of directors and stockholders.—A majority of the directors of any railroad corporation shall constitute a quorum to transact business, and a majority in value of two-thirds of all the stock owned by such corporation shall constitute a quorum of stockholders to transact business. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6476. [4417] Special meeting of stockholders.—A special meeting of stockholders may be called at any time during the interval between the regular annual meetings of such stockholders by the directors, or by stockholders owning not less than one-fourth of all the stock of such company. [Id.]

Art. 6477. [4418] Notice of special meeting.—When any special meeting of stockholders is called, notice of the time and place of such meeting shall be given for at least thirty days prior to the time fixed for such meeting, in the same manner as is required in the case of a regular annual meeting; and such notice shall specify the purpose or purposes for which the said special meeting is called; and no other business shall be transacted at such special meeting, except that specified in such notice. [Id.]

Art. 6478. [4419] If quorum of stockholders should not meet.—If at any meeting of stockholders a majority in value of the stockholders equal to two-thirds of the stock of such corporation shall not be represented in person or by proxy, such meeting shall be adjourned from day to day, not exceeding three days without transaction of any business; and, if within said three days two-thirds in value of such stock shall not be represented at such meeting, then the meeting shall be adjourned and another meeting called, and notice thereof given as hereinbefore provided. [Id. p. 145, sec. 14.]
Art. 6479. [4420] Proxy must be dated within what time.—Every proxy from a stockholder shall be dated within six months previous to the meeting of the stockholders at which it is proposed to vote by virtue thereof, and if not dated within such time shall not be voted. [P. D. 4908.]

Art. 6480. [4421] What stock shall not vote.—Stock issued within thirty days before any stockholders' meeting shall not entitle the holder to vote thereat, except at the first stockholders' meeting under their articles or act of incorporation for organization; nor shall any stock be voted upon, except in proportion to the amount paid thereon, or secured to be paid by good security in addition to the subscription and stock. [P. D. 4928.]

CHAPTER EIGHT
RIGHT OF WAY

Art. 6481. Right to construct anywhere in the state, etc. In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on Injuries from Construction or Maintenance of Railroad, at end of chapter.]

Article 6481. [4422] Right to construct, etc., road anywhere in the state.—Any railroad corporation shall have the right to construct and operate a railroad between any points within this state and to connect at the state line with railroads of other states. [Const., art. 10, sec. 1.]

Acquisition of right of way, etc.—By purchase. See Art. 6537 and notes.
Voluntary grants. See Art. 6538 and notes.
Dedication. The doctrine of dedication or estoppel in pais applies to the right of way for a railroad. Railway Co. v. Sutor, 56 T. 496.

Condemnation. See Art. 6504 and notes, and other articles of this chapter.

Injuries from construction and operation of railroad. See notes at end of this chapter and of Chapter 10.
Injuries to animals on or near tracks. See Art. 6603 and notes.
Injuries to employees. See Chapter 14 of this title.
Injuries to passengers, baggage or freight. See Art. 707 et seq.
Art. 6482. [4423] Right of way over public lands.—Every such corporation shall have the right of way for its line of road through and over any lands belonging to this state, and to use any earth, timber, stone or other material upon any such land necessary to the construction and operation of its road through or over said land.

To what lands applicable.—This article applies to lands surveyed for and appropriated to the public school fund. Texas C. Ry. Co. v. Bowman, 97 T. 417, 79 S. W. 296.

Under Const. art. 10, § 1, authorizing railroads to construct lines between any points within the state and this article, a domestic company can construct its road over tide water lands and lands not specifically set apart for a quarantine station, regardless of whether the whole tract is actually used for that purpose. Rockport & P. A. R. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 263.

Validly of special grant.—The grant of land to the Ft. Worth & Denver City Railway Company, by its special charter in 1873 (Sp. Laws 1873, c. 208), providing “the right of way, to be held to the extent of 200 feet in width, is hereby granted to said railway company through the public lands of Texas,” sufficiently designated the right of way granted, and is not void for uncertainty, in view of this article and Art. 6484. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 850.

Art. 6483. [4424] Lineal survey.—Every railroad corporation shall have the right to cause such examination and survey for its proposed railway to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous route, and for such purpose may enter upon the lands or waters of any person or corporation, but subject to responsibility for all damage that may be occasioned thereby. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 147, sec. 23.]

Examination to secure evidence.—Under Art. 5004, which provides that any corporation organized for irrigation purposes may obtain sites and rights of way over private lands, the damages to be assessed and paid for as in railroad cases, and this article, the court, in condemnation proceedings by an irrigation company, has no right to permit an inspection of the land sought to be condemned for the purpose of qualifying its own witnesses as to the value of the property, or for any purpose. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smythe (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1064.

Selection of site for shops.—A railroad is empowered absolutely to select such right of way as it should deem “most advantageous” to its enterprise. But it has not the same right as to selection of location for its machine shops. Rainey v. Red River T. & S. Ry. Co., 99 T. 276, 90 S. W. 771, 90 S. W. 1096; 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 590, 122 Am. St. Rep. 622, 13 Ann. Cas. 580.

Art. 6484. [4425] May lay out road two hundred feet wide, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right to lay out its road not exceeding two hundred feet in width, and to construct the same; and for the purpose of cuttings and embankments to take as much more land as may be necessary for the proper construction and security of its railway, and to cut down any standing trees that may be in danger of falling upon or obstructing the railway, making compensation in the manner provided by law. [Id.]

Land for depot and yard facilities.—While a railroad in laying out its road is restricted to a right of way 200 feet in width, such restriction does not apply to land sought to be condemned for depot facilities, switches, spur tracks and freight yards necessary for the operation of its road. Hengy v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 403.

Condemnation of crossing over railroad.—For bridges.—See Art. 656.

For streets in towns and villages.—See Art. 1066.

— For levees, etc.—See Art. 5675.

Art. 6485. [4426] Right to construct across streams of water, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right to construct its road across, along, or upon any stream of water, water course, street, highway, plank road, turnpike, or canal which the route of said railway shall intersect or touch; but such corporation shall restore the stream, water course, street, highway, plank road, turnpike, or canal thus intersected or touched to its former state, or to such state as not to unnecessarily impair its usefulness, and shall keep such crossing in repair.

What is highway.—A public highway may be defined as a public easement, by virtue whereof one may pass and repass over a particular strip of land. Looked at from another point of view, a highway is a road or street maintained by the public for the general convenience. Railway Co. v. Montgomery, 85 T. 64, 19 S. W. 1015.

Testimony to the effect that a road had been traveled by the public for twenty years is of no weight in a dedication, in a case where any one feels himself at liberty to pass at will over all uninclosed lands. Such crossing the railway company was not bound to maintain. 10.

City.—See Art. 6497.

Duty to restore and repair.—A railway company crossing a public street must restore it to such state as does not unnecessarily impair its usefulness. Railway Co. v. Speed, 3 C. A. 454, 22 S. W. 527; Railway Co. v. Able, 72 T. 159, 9 S. W. 671.

Even if a railroad takes a part of a highway for its right of way by condemnation, it must comply with this article in regard to restoring such highway to its former condition, or to such condition as not to unnecessarily impair its usefulness. Hall v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 52 C. A. 90, 114 S. W. 891.

Degree of care required.—The railroad company is chargeable with no higher duty than ordinary care in undertaking to repair its road across a street crossing and conducting the work with ordinary care looking to the safety of those who use the crossing as such. San Antonio & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt, 24 C. A. 281, 59 S. W. 610.

A railroad company must maintain its track along a public street in a reasonably safe condition for persons using the same, substantially embraces the requirements of the law, and if the duty is statutory, it is no defense if the railway company has exercised ordinary care to maintain its tracks along the street in a proper condition. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Haddock, 36 C. A. 385, 81 S. W. 1037.

A railroad company, in maintaining a crossing, is required to use only reasonable care. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson, 38 C. A. 322, 85 S. W. 416.

Ordinary care in maintaining public crossings is not sufficient. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Randall, 51 C. A. 249, 113 S. W. 181.

In cases against a railway company for damages caused by its negligence in not restoring highway crossed by it to its former state, the true issue is, not what changes and alterations a prudent person would have made under the circumstances, but was the usefulness of the street unnecessarily impaired? The one is not the legal equivalent of the other. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 53 C. A. 547, 116 S. W. 427.

Extent of crossing.—See, also, note under Art. 6493.

A company is not responsible for the overturning of a buggy, caused by its failure to fill in between the rails beyond the street, even though it was negligent in not filling at the intersection of the track with the street. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 374.

A railroad company held not to have assumed to keep in repair a footpath across the right of way at a crossing. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Montgomery, 31 C. A. 491, 72 S. W. 616.

The crossing within the meaning of the statute is not confined to that portion of a railroad company's roadbed upon which the cross-ties and iron rails are laid, but extends to and includes the approaches of public roads thereto on its right of way. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 49 C. A. 1, 107 S. W. 640.

Conformity to street grade.—Under the police power, held, that railroads may be compelled to conform the grade of their tracks, where they cross streets, to the street grade. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 525.

Agreement to construct new road.—If a railroad agreed to open up a new road to take the place of a part of a public highway taken by it for a right of way, the county authorities could not release it from its obligation to construct the new road in the manner public roads are required to be constructed by statute, by accepting the new road as completed by the company. Hall v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 52 C. A. 90, 114 S. W. 891.

Right to repair tracks.—A railroad company has the right to disturb the surface of the street for the purpose of repairing its tracks, and it is not liable for injury caused by a reasonable user of such right. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt, 24 C. A. 281, 59 S. W. 697.

Power of city to regulate laying of tracks.—See Art. 863.

Damage to abutting property from railroad in street.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Rights of railroad and public at crossings.—The rights of a traveler on a highway crossing railroad tracks and of the company to operate trains are reciprocal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 515.

The use of a street by the company for the ordinary travel over it; and the right of a railroad to operate its trains across it is subordinate to the use. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 279.

Damages for failure to restore and repair—in general.—See also, "Duty to restore and repair", 6493, 6494.

The owner of premises abutting on a street has no right of action for lessened facilities of ingress, etc., until the company has a reasonable time to complete its work and restore the street. Railway Co. v. Speed, 22 S. W. 527, 3 C. A. 454.

Where both the railroad company and the city along whose street a track has been laid are guilty of negligence in constructing and allowing an embankment to remain without a fence or railing, a judgment can be properly rendered against each, because each was bound not only to make the crossing and the approaches thereto safe in the first instance but were each equally bound by law to keep them so. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Sandifer, 29 C. A. 358, 69 S. W. 465.

If the railroad fails to restore the highway as required by this article, the public is entitled to recover damages resulting from such failure. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County, 31 C. A. 611, 73 S. W. 65.

The failure to perform the statutory duty imposed (to restore and keep in repair the crossing) is negligence per se, and if one in the exercise of ordinary care is injured and if the injury is proximately caused by such negligence, the railroad company is responsible. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Butcher (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 406.

Contributory negligence.—That a railroad company failed to perform its statutory duty as to a proper overhead crossing held not to prevent the defense of contributory negligence of a traveler injured while using the highway. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Petty (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 406.

Accidents at crossings from operation of trains.—See notes at end of Chapter 10 of this title.

Interference with stream.—See, also, Art. 6495.

This article seems to have no reference to the flow of the water in a stream but rather to the extent to which its use may be affected. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Steele, 29 C. A. 328, 69 S. W. 173. The cases arising under this article usually involve the unnecessary impairment of the use of some public street or highway.

By this article and Art. 6495 the damming of a natural water course and obstructing the natural flow thereof is wrongful per se, and one injured thereby is not required to show that the work was negligently done in order to recover his damages therefrom. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 1082.

Manner of constructing bridges.—See, also, Art. 6496.

Bridges must be constructed so as to allow the safe passage of cars of other roads which are in common use in the country at large. Railway Co. v. Moore, 27 S. W. 962, 8 C. A. 289.

Contracts for use of county bridges.—See Art. 650.

Art. 6486. [4427] Opening through fences, etc.—All railway corporations in this state, which have or which may hereafter fence their right of way, may be required to make openings or crossings through their fence and over their roadbed along their right of way every one and one-half miles thereof; provided, that, if such fence shall divide any inclosure, that at least one opening shall be made in said fence within such inclosure. [Acts 1887, p. 39.]

Constitutionality.—The right of the legislature to require railway companies to construct crossings, etc., is clearly within the scope of the police power impliedly reserved in granting the corporate franchise. But it cannot compel a railway which has fenced its track in obedience to previous laws to construct crossings within inclosures for the benefit and convenience of the owners of such inclosures. Railway Co. v. Rowland, 70 T. 298, 7 S. W. 2d., 70 T. 307, 7 Ell. 725.

This article in so far as it requires railroad companies to make crossings over their right of way at their own expense is unconstitutional so far as it applies to a right of way acquired before the passage of the act. Hemphill v. T. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 874.

This statute has no application where the right of way was acquired and fenced by the railroad company prior to the enactment of the statute. In such cases the railroad company cannot be required to construct and maintain such crossing at its own expense. Okazak v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 239, 71 S. W. 794.

Act March 23, 1887 (Arts. 6486 to 6492), which requires the construction of private crossings every 1½ miles along the line of a railroad, to be made at such times and places as may be demanded by any two or more citizens who either live or own land within five miles of the place where the crossing is demanded, and imposes a penalty of $500 for each month's failure to comply with the demand, is invalid as attempting to deprive the railroad of its property without due process of law. Bennett v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 353.

Inclosed land divided by right of way.—The owner of inclosed land who has granted the right of way to a railroad company by deed is entitled to such crossings over the railroad track as are reasonably necessary for the use of the premises inclosed. Railway Co. v. Rowland, 70 T. 298, 7 S. W. 718.

A railroad company has no right to divide the inclosed lands of any person without, at its own expense, making and leaving good and adequate passage-ways through its fences and over its road-bed and right of way for the owner's use in passing from one part of his farm to the other. Such openings are not required to be of large size. Burgess v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 703.

Right of person through whose farm a railroad company inclosed a right of way to a farm crossing determined. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 599.

It is made the duty unconditionally of railroads to make openings in the fences inclosing right of way, where the fences divide any inclosure. Railroad Co. v. Greer, 20 C. A. 138, 49 S. W. 148.

The chief purpose of the statute is to secure openings through fences and crossings over roads of the character defined, to residents or owners of land through which the road passes, and the proviso was introduced merely to recognize and secure to owners of in-

Previously acquired right of way.—See, also, “Constitutionality,” ante.

The statutes requiring construction of farm crossings held not to apply where the right of way was acquired before the law was enacted. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Grier (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1022.

Manner of constructing crossing.—See notes under Art. 6487.

Validity of contract for open crossing.—A railroad’s contract to maintain open farm crossings is not void, as against public policy, in the absence of a statute requiring the company to fence its tracks. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Schawe, 22 C. A. 599, 55 S. W. 387.

A contract providing that a private crossing over a railroad shall be left open is not against public policy. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clay, 28 C. A. 176, 65 S. W. 1115.

Common-law way of necessity.—There has been no statutory modification of the common-law rule entitling the owner of land over which a railroad is constructed to a way of necessity over the railroad. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clay, 28 C. A. 176, 65 S. W. 1115.

Duty to keep gates closed.—See, also, notes under Art. 6603.

The duty to keep the gates closed rests upon the owner of the land. Railroad Co. v. Glenn, 30 S. W. 846, 8 C. A. 301. See Railway Co. v. Meittheim (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1093.

Under this article, where a railroad company constructed a crossing outside an enclosure divided by their track and erected gates when they were not then required to do so, it was their duty to keep them closed; and they are liable for injuries to animals escaping onto the track through these gates, although the owner of the land and the animals had, after the placing of the gates, erected a lane leading up to the gates, so that the railroad company was put on notice of the injury sustained by the plaintiff in the crossing and gates, since the track then divided an enclosure. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 132.

Damages for failure to construct crossing.—In general.—Where a railroad was negligent in failing to construct a crossing to enable the landowner to haul wood to market, the latter held entitled to recover profits lost by reason of his inability to haul and sell the wood. Kendall v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 757.

Under this article, failure of a railroad company to construct a crossing between the pieces of the same enclosure of land severed by its road resulting in the direct and proximate loss of the crop grown on the land gives the landowner a cause of action. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 235.

Exemplary damages.—Failing to make an opening in a railroad fence, after demand by the owner, where openings were made for his neighbors, held gross negligence sufficient to warrant exemplary damages. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Grier, 29 C. A. 133, 49 S. W. 148.

Evidence.—See, also, note under Art. 3897.

In a case where animals drowned because of failure of defendant to leave openings in its right of way fence, that the flood was unprecedented held not to affect the question of defendant’s negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clay, 28 C. A. 176, 65 S. W. 1115.

Plaintiff held not negligent in using his pasture after knowledge of the construction of the fence. Id.

Evidence held to support a finding for plaintiff. Id.

Evidence held not to show contributory negligence. Id.

Injuries to animals on or near tracks.—See Art. 6603 and notes.

Accidents at crossings.—See notes at end of Chapter 10 of this title.

Art. 6487. [4428] Width of crossings.—Such crossings shall not be less than thirty feet in width, and shall be made and kept in such condition as to admit of the free and easy passage of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and all other domesticated animals, wagons and other vehicles.

To what crossings applicable.—This article refers only to crossings. The use in this article of the same word “crossings” in describing the character of the thing required as that employed in subsequent provisions relating alone to those crossings required to be made outside inclosures indicates that all the provisions of the statute except the provision of Art. 6486 and the exception made to the provisions of Art. 6490 were made with reference to them alone. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hanacek, 93 T. 446, 55 S. W. 1118.

Manner of constructing crossings.—It is not necessary for the railroad to put in cattle guards at a private crossing. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 17 C. A. 400, 43 S. W. 76.

Where a railroad company constructed a contract with abutting owners to maintain crossings to require open crossings, which it maintained for 18 years, a finding that the company was required to maintain open crossings was proper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Schawe, 22 C. A. 699, 55 S. W. 357.

The character of the openings was doubtless intended to be such as would be appropriate to the situation and needs of the owner. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hanacek, 93 T. 446, 55 S. W. 1118.

An instruction only requiring a railroad company to furnish such a railroad crossing to a landowner “as made it possible” for him to obtain ingress and egress to his land, held erroneous. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 781.

If a railroad company fences its right of way inside of an inclosure and thus divides it, the owner has the right by statute to an opening through the fences, but the statute does not prescribe what the opening shall consist of or how constructed. The company cannot be compelled to construct and maintain an opening and crossing with wing fences.
RAILROADS

Art. 6486. [4429] Where may be made.—Such crossings shall be made at such times and places as may be demanded by any two or more citizens of the state who either live or own land within five miles of the place where such crossings may be demanded. [Id. sec. 3.]

To what crossings applicable.—See, also, note under Art. 6487.

The demand by the owner that the railroad company construct a crossing inside of his inclosure is not authorized by this article. And for a failure to comply with a demand to make a crossing inside of an inclosure the penalty cannot be recovered. Railroad Co. v. Hollingsworth, 29 C. A. 306, 68 S. W. 724.

Art. 6489. [4430] Demand to be in writing.—Such demand shall be made in writing, of the nearest local agent of such railway company to the place where such crossing or crossings are demanded, and shall state when and where such crossing is desired. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6490. [4431] Thirty days' time for completion.—No railway company shall be required to complete such crossing as may be demanded under this chapter in a shorter time than thirty days from the day on which such demand is first made, nor shall they be required to make any crossings where they have already left such crossings in each one and one-half miles of their road, except inside of inclosures, as provided in article 6486. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6491. [4432] Distance from place.—Any railway company, upon such demand, shall be deemed to have complied therewith upon making such crossings within four hundred yards of the place where they are demanded, within the time herein allowed. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6492. [4433] Failure, etc.—Whenever any railway company shall fail or refuse to comply with the requirements of this chapter, after demand is made in accordance herewith, such railway company shall pay to the persons who made such demand each the sum of five hundred dollars for each and every month they shall so fail or refuse to comply with such demand, the same to be recovered by suit in any court of this state having jurisdiction of the amount. [Id. sec. 7.]

To what crossings applicable.—See, also, note under Art. 6487.

The penalty applies only to failure to make crossings on demand of two or more citizens, and not to a failure to make an opening in a fence dividing an inclosure. Railroad Co. v. Chenault, 92 T. 601, 49 S. W. 1085.

It has been held by the supreme court that this article does not apply to crossings within inclosures. M., K. & T. of Tex. v. Chenault, 24 C. A. 481, 60 S. W. 56.

Actions for negligence in maintenance of crossings—Liability in general.—See, also, Arts. 6485 and 6494.

Where a traveler's foot was caught by a defect in the planking of a railroad crossing, which the railroad company could have discovered by ordinary care, it was liable for injuries resulting therefrom. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 848.

Where a railroad company recognised the right of the public to cross its tracks on a street laid out after the building of the railroad, it was bound to keep the same in repair, though the portion of the street on the right of way had not been condemned, and therefore it was liable for injuries caused by defects therein. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Bet. 24 C. A. 281, 53 S. W. 607.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff through stepping into a hole in a bridge built by defendant over a ditch on its right of way at a highway crossing, evidence examined, and held sufficient to show defendant's negligence and plaintiff's freedom from contributory negligence, St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith, 49 C. A. 1, 107 S. W. 638.

A railroad having erected its contractors to put in a crossing over a private road, and justified the public in using it as a public crossing, is liable for injuries caused by its defective construction. Dublin v. Taylor, B. & H. Ry. Co., 92 T. 635, 50 S. W. 120.

Extent of crossing.—In an action against a railway company for injuries sustained by a pedestrian crossing a public street, due to a defect in the street, due to the effect that, if the bridge was a necessary part of defendant's crossing, plaintiff could recover if the bridge was permitted to become and remain out of repair, was not erroneous. Denison & P. S. Ry. Co. v. Foster, 28 C. A. 578, 68 S. W. 299.
Purpose of accident.—Though plaintiff might have passed over a defective-crossing without injury by being jarred from his buggy, if his mule had not been running away, if the accident would not have occurred notwithstanding the mule's speed had the crossing been in repair, the defective crossing was a concurring cause of the accident, so as to make the railroad company liable in the absence of contributory negligence. Missouri K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gillenwater (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 580.

Contributory negligence.—Use by a person of a defective crossing on a railroad not conclusive evidence of negligence. Railroad Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 664.

In an action for injury caused by a defective culvert, plaintiff's testimony held sufficient to show his knowledge of the defect which caused the accident. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 111.

One using bridge over railroad crossing which he knew to be defective held guilty of contributory negligence. Northwestern & T. C. R. Co. v. Hanvey (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1077.

The mere attempt of plaintiff to cross a bridge over a ditch on the side of defendant railroad company's right of way at a highway crossing, with knowledge that there was a hole in the bridge, held not conclusive evidence of negligence on plaintiff's part. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Smith, 49 C. A. 1, 107 S. W. 638.

Evidence, in an action against a railroad company for personal injuries by being jolted from a wagon on a railroad highway crossing, held to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1046.

The mere fact that plaintiff's mule was going fast when crossing a railroad crossing when plaintiff was thrown out does not of itself constitute contributory negligence relieving the company of liability for the defective condition of the crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Baudat (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 589.

Since any contributory negligence of one injured by being thrown from a buggy at a railroad crossing by its alleged bad repair in rapidly driving the buggy over the crossing would necessarily involve his knowledge of the condition of the crossing, it was not error to charge that plaintiff must have known of the defective condition of the crossing in order to bar a recovery. Id.

— Obstruction of crossing.—Damages caused by interrupting a right of way is the additional expense in using a more circuitous route. Railway Co. v. Newton (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 475.

Accidents at crossings from operation of trains.—See notes at end of Chapter 10 of this title.

Art. 6493. [4434] Intersections of roads and streets.—Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to affect the law requiring railroad companies to provide proper crossings at intersection of all roads and streets. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6494. [4435] Crossings of public roads.—It shall be the duty of every railroad company in this state to state and keep that portion of its roadbed and right of way over or across which any public county road may run, in proper condition for the use of the traveling public; and, in case of its failure to do so for thirty days after written notice given to the section boss of the section where such work or repairs are needed by the overseer of such public road, it shall be liable to a penalty of ten dollars for each and every week such railroad company may fail or neglect to comply with the requirements of this article, recoverable in any court having jurisdiction of the amount involved in a suit in the name of the county in which the cause of action accrued. [Acts 1885, p. 45.]

To what crossings applicable.—If the railroad has let a contract for constructing its road to independent contractors, who, without direction of the company, build a crossing over a road which has not been opened by the proper authorities, nor dedicated to the public by the owner of the land, the company is not liable for an injury resulting from negligent construction of the crossing, while the work is still in the hands of the contractors. Dublin v. Railroad Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 667.

Construction and repair of crossings.—Where a county, on refusal of a railroad company to construct a crossing, does the work itself, it is entitled to recover the cost. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 696, 48 S. W. 593.

The duty imposed upon the railroad to keep its roadbed and right of way across a public county road in proper condition is practically the same as that imposed by Art. 6485. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 49 C. A. 1, 107 S. W. 641.

Actions for negligence in maintenance of crossings.—See notes under Arts. 6485 and 6493.

Accidents at crossings from operation of trains.—See notes at end of Chapter 10 of this title.

Duty of district and county attorneys to sue for penalties.—See Art. 367.

Art. 6495. [4436] Shall first construct necessary culverts, or sluices.—In no case shall any railroad company construct a roadbed without 4158 first constructing the necessary culverts or sluices, as the natural lay of the land requires, for the necessary drainage thereof. [Acts 1876, p. 147.]

1. Duty to construct culverts or sluices—In general.—The requirement in this statute must be complied with, and if damages result from failure to do so the company is liable, although it may have exercised proper care in order to comply with this provision of the law. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gurley, 37 C. A. 283, 83 S. W. 843.

A railroad company in constructing culverts for drainage held bound to take into consideration, not only existing conditions, but such future changes as it could have foreseen. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas & Rollins (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1099.

Under the statute it is the duty of railway company to provide all waterways made necessary by the construction of its switch tracks, to prevent an overflow of surface water on a party’s land. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Barr, 44 C. A. 571, 99 S. W. 438.

This article makes absolute the duty of the railway company to erect such culverts or sluices as the natural lay of the land requires for the necessary drainage thereof. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Arey (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 966.

See Art. 6485.

The duty of the railroad to provide and maintain necessary culverts and sluices to carry off surface waters is absolute, and the exercise of ordinary care in the premises is not sufficient. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Suter (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 818.

2. Accumulation of water on right of way.—This statute does not impose upon the company the duty of preventing the accumulation of water upon its right of way. The object was to prevent the company from unnecessarily interfering with the natural drainage of the land on either side of its right of way. Dobkins v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co., 91 T. 60, 41 S. W. 62, 58 L. R. A. 573, 86 Am. St. Rep. 566.

3. Sufficiency of drains.—Where a railroad having constructed a ditch along its roadbed increased the flow of water by raising the grade, it was its duty to so change the ditch. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Riggs (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 589.

This article was intended to compel railway companies to permit the flow of surface waters through the ditch; and culverts should naturally be done; which do not permit this, are not the necessary culverts and sluices contemplated by law. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Macon (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 849.

4. Floods or overflows.—In the construction of its road the railway company must at the probable overflows, and the probabilities of overflow, it must be considered what effect the size and length of the river near which it is building may have in producing them, as well as the number and the frequency of former freshetes. It may not be required to provide for an unprecedented rise in the river, but that cannot be called unprecedented which has for more than a quarter of a century occurred every three, four or five years, nor can that be called extraordinary which is but the natural result of the length and size of the river taken in connection with the fall of water liable to occur at intervals, though separated from each other by several years. G., C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Holliday, 65 T. 512; Railway Co. v. Pool, 70 T. 715, 8 S. W. 555; Railway Co. v. Wood, 69 T. 679, 7 S. W. 372.

The true test in determining when a railway company is liable for damages, whose embankment is so constructed in crossing a stream that injury results to neighboring property from an overflow, is, considering all the circumstances and especially the history of the stream, would a prudent man have anticipated such a flood as caused the damage. The statute must be construed to mean that provision need not be made for such extraordinary floods as could not have been reasonably foreseen; but that such as may have been reasonably anticipated must be guarded against, without reference to the frequency of their recurrence. When it is known that extraordinary inundations caused by a stream have occurred within the memory of man, their recurrence should be anticipated, and work of a road should be so constructed as to make provision for the danger likely to result from such work should such inundation again occur. Railroad Co. v. Pomeroy, 67 T. 498, 3 S. W. 722.

Where an overflow occurred on the line of a railroad built a few years afterwards, followed by other overflows within nine months of each other, these facts tended strongly to support the conclusion that such overflows might reasonably have been expected when the railroad was built. Railroad Co. v. Hadnot, 67 T. 503, 4 S. W. 138.

If a structure placed over a stream does not obstruct the natural flow of water, except in an extraordinary flood which could not be anticipated by any ordinary prudence, no damage can be recovered for an injury from an overflow. Railroad Co. v. Brousard, 68 T. 617, 7 S. W. 374.

Water resulting from an overflow in districts where large bodies of land are thereby covered will be treated as surface water and the rights of persons affected thereby will be determined under the Civil Code. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stocke, 29 C. A. 928, 63 S. W. 9.

The railroad must construct its roadbed so as not to interfere with flood water in an ordinary rise of a stream along or across which it may run. It should anticipate the accumulation of overflow and build its roadbed with sufficient openings to carry off with expedition the water from all but unprecedented floods. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pearce, 43 C. A. 387, 95 S. W. 1134.

5. Maintenance of culverts.—This article imposes the duty of maintenance of the culverts also. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 604.

6. Special contract.—A contract contained in a deed to a railroad right of way, held not to release the company from its duty to construct ditches, under this article. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Riverhead Farm, 53 C. A. 643, 117 S. W. 1949.

A consideration was necessary to sustain a contract by a landowner upon conveying a tract for a railroad right of way, releasing his right to recover damages for failure to discharge the statutory duty to construct necessary ditches. Id.

7. Interference with stream.—See notes under "Damages for breach of duty," post, and see Art. 6485; and see Art. 6490.

Delegation of duty.—A railroad company cannot delegate its duty to construct culverts through its embankment, so as to absolve it from liability for injuries due to a failure to properly construct the same. Denison, B. & N. O. R. Co. v. Barry (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 634.

Receiver of road.—A receiver using a railway embankment without the culverts required by this article is liable for an overflow caused by the defect; the company’s duty of maintaining the embankment is imposed on him by the act of congress of March 3, 1887, 24 Stat. 575, § 2, 24 Stat. 564 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 582). Freeman v. Field (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1073.

When an overflow of land, without the intervention of other agencies, directly and proximately causes the drowning of cattle, their owner is entitled to recover their value, whether the indemnity be an indemnity on his land or on lands of another. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Jones, 65 T. 589. A mere license to graze one's cattle on the lands of another confers no such right in the lands as to entitle the owner of cattle to recover damages on account of the destruction of the grass by an overflow. S. & E. T. R. Co. v. Johnson, 65 T. 289.

When there are no channels through which water is usually passed off, damages occasioned by an obstruction cannot be recovered. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Scott, 2 App. C. C. § 140; T. T. R. R. Co. v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 446.

Action may be maintained for damages resulting from destruction of crops caused by an overflow of water. Railway Co. v. Anderson, 85 T. 58, 19 S. W. 1025; Railway Co. v. Borsky, 21 S. W. 1012, 2 C. A. 545.

One directing a dam by which water is collected, and which may escape by overflow or percolation, is liable for damages to crops for the premises of another, in liable for damages caused thereby. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. O’Mahoney (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1049.

In cases involving damage from overflow caused by railway companies in constructing their lines across or along streams without providing sufficient outlets for such volumes of water as they are enabled to provide against, this article has uniformly been applied. The clear intention of this article is to require railway companies in constructing their roads to put in such culverts or sluices as might be necessary to prevent interference with the natural flow of surface water and a failure of a railway company to perform its statutory duty renders it liable as a matter of law for the resulting damage. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 73.

A railroad, which constructed a dam and failed to provide sufficient waterways, held liable for overflow of property, but not for sickness caused by fright from such overflow. Denison, B. & N. O. R. Co. v. Barry, 39 T. 249, 55 S. W. 2.

Under statute, railroad held liable for damage to crops and land caused by water overflowing ditches along roadbed. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Baer, 35 C. A. 86, 66 S. W. 553.

While this article is generally applied to cases of damages to land, it is not expressly limited to such cases, and it is applicable in a case where, through negligence in failure to construct culverts sufficient to carry off water, the water has backed against the embankment, loosening the dirt, whereby causing the train and consequent death of employés. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Boyce, 39 C. A. 135, 87 S. W. 399.

Where a railroad company fails to comply with the statute requiring the construction of sufficient culverts as the natural day of the land requires for the necessary drainage thereof, it is liable for the damage resulting, regardless of the amount of care used in the roadbed’s construction. Baugh v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 44 C. A. 443, 100 S. W. 558.

Though a railroad ditch as originally constructed was sufficient to carry off the water, it became, through the negligence of the defendant, negligently permitted the ditch to become stopped, which negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, defendant would be liable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Riggs (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 589.

A railroad company held liable for injuries to plaintiff’s crops by the overflow of water course owing to the railroad’s negligence in failing to provide sufficient openings in its embankment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cannon (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 661.

11. Parties entitled to recover.—The fact that the embankment which caused the injury was built before plaintiff owned the injured property was no defense. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Maddox, 26 C. A. 297, 63 S. W. 134.

That plaintiff acquired the land after the embankment was constructed held no defense. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 669.

The fact that damages were not caused by an overflow of land resulting from the defective construction of a railroad embankment, purchased the land after the embankment was constructed with knowledge of its defective construction, would not preclude him from recovery. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gurley, 37 C. A. 283, 83 S. W. 843.

That one had sold his land after it had been damaged by water because of a railroad embankment held not to preclude him from maintaining an action for the damages. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Provo (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 276.

That a railroad embankment was constructed before plaintiff purchased his lands did not preclude him from damages thereafter caused to the land by water dammed up by the embankment. Id.

Person in possession of land when the same was injured by negligent construction of embankment, and not a subsequent purchaser, held the party entitled to damages. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Brown, 38 C. A. 610, 86 S. W. 669.

A railroad which negligently subjected land to overflow, so that it could not be cultivated, was liable to the owner of the land, who had sold the same out on shares. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Scale (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 997.

12. Cause of injury.—If by the obstruction water is rendered stagnant, so as to cause the decay of vegetable matter, whereby unhealthy gases are developed, the company is responsible for damages, even though natural causes combine with its act to produce. Ft. W. & D. C. R. Co. v. Scott, 119 A. 619, 174 S. W. 345.

Railroad held not from liability for flooding plaintiff's property by reason of the fact that a street railroad was equally liable. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Maddox, 26 C. A. 297, 63 S. W. 134.

A railroad company was liable only for proportionate damages to land from an overflow caused by waters deflected by it and by waters from a creek not obstructed by it. Taylor v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co., 36 C. A. 658, 83 S. W. 738.

One negligently constructing dam and embankment in and adjacent to stream held not excused from liability for additional damages caused thereby during an overflow which would have occurred in the absence of the obstructions. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 462; Same v. Wetherly, Id. 456; Same v. Oates, Id. 457.

A railroad company held liable for damages from overflow of land caused by its negligence in constructing culverts, concouring with the acts of others or the act of God. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1106.

A railroad company held not liable for flowage of plaintiff's land which would not have occurred but for digging a ditch by county. Siewerssen v. Harris County, 41 C. A. 115, 91 S. W. 335.

A railroad company held not liable for surface water naturally accumulating on its right of way and not held by any work made by the railroad company. McPadden v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 41 C. A. 350, 92 S. W. 888.

Where plaintiff's house was damaged by water resulting from an unprecedented rainfall, and defendant's negligence in constructing culverts, the railroad company was not relieved from liability because of the unprecedented rainfall. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Riggs (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 589.

13. Negligence.—A person constructing an artificial pond on his land is responsible for injury caused by his permitting water to seep or percolate therefrom, regardless of the question of negligence in the construction of the banks. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. O'Mahoney, 24 C. A. 631, 69 S. W. 902.

Where railroad construction caused surface water to collect and stand on the railroad's right of way and become a nuisance to an adjoining property owner, the railroad was liable for the damage sustained, regardless of its negligence. McPadden v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 41 C. A. 350, 92 S. W. 888.

Where a railroad obstructed the flood waters of a stream by its embankment in violation of statute, it was liable for the resulting damage, regardless of the question of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 688.

Under the statute, a railroad held liable for causing water to overflow land adjacent to its track, whether negligent or not. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Crow, 43 C. A. 300, 95 S. W. 743.

In an action for injuries by the overflow of water from defendant railroad's right of way, a claim that defendant was negligent as a matter of law held not within the issue. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Riggs (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 589.

We see under the governing the construction of roadways with reference to the natural drainage of land held required to allege and prove negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 280.

14. Interference with stream.—Where the construction of defendant's railroad embankment so changed the course of a stream as to overflow plaintiff's land and make it necessary for plaintiff to construct new bridges and roads, the expense of such construction may be recovered in an action against defendant. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gurley, 37 C. A. 283, 83 S. W. 842.
A railroad company, accepting and operating a track constructed for it by subcontractor, is liable to the owner of the track for damages due to the negligent construction of the track, so as to interfere with a stream. Gulf, B. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1052.

In an action for damages to land by flowage resulting from defendant railroad's negligent construction of its roadbed over a stream, the fact that an embankment forming part of the roadbed afforded protection to the land prior to and at the time of plaintiff's purchase thereof held not to preclude recovery for damages subsequently occurring. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Dickson, 42 C. A. 363, 93 S. W. 481.

An owner of land damaged by an overflow, caused by the failure of a railroad company to construct proper ditches and excavations creating reservoirs from which water reached and damaged plaintiff's land, the railroad company was liable, though the water escaped by percolation. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shuster, 42 C. A. 631, 96 S. W. 717.

Measure of damages in general.—When a crop has been wrongfully destroyed, the proper measure of damages is the value of the crop at the time and place of its destruction. Railway Co. v. Joachiml, 55 T. 456; Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 25 W. 523; Railway Co. v. Holliday, 65 T. 512; Railway Co. v. Parr, 10 C. A. 330, 28 S. W. 264; Railway Co. v. McGowan, 73 T. 362, 11 S. W. 336; Railway Co. v. Pape, 73 T. 503, 11 S. W. 526; Railway Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 54.

Damages for injury to land and the crops growing thereon, which are a part of the difference between the market value of the land before the injury is done and its market value immediately after such injury. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Malone, 1 App. C. C. § 332; T. T. R. Co. v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 416; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Cox, 2 App. C. C. § 288.

The measure of damages for permanent injury to land by an overflow of water is the difference in its value immediately before and after each overflow. Railway Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 483.

Measure of damages to a landowner as a result of the building of a railroad embankment stated. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 484.

The measure of damages in an action for permanent overflow of land stated. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lensing (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 826.

The consequences of the failure to comply with this statute are to be measured only by the extent of the injury done to the property of others. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Whitaker, 36 C. A. 571, 82 S. W. 1051; St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1108.

In an action against a railroad for the construction of a dump causing a permanent nuisance, the measure of damages was the difference in the value of the property before the injury and its value immediately thereafter. Denison, B. & N. O. R. Co. v. Barry, 98 T. 245, 83 S. W. 5.

Measure of damages for the construction of a permanent railway embankment, subjecting land to inundation, held the difference in the value of the land before and after the construction. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Brown, 38 C. A. 610, 86 S. W. 659.

In an action for damages to land from overflow by the construction of a trestle, the measure of damages determined. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Kiersey, 98 T. 590, 86 S. W. 744.

A railroad which subjects land to overflow, and consequent temporary injury, is liable for the amount of money necessary to repair the injury. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 977.

Measure of damages for flowage to plaintiff's farm from an overflow of water, resulting from negligence of a railroad in constructing bridges and embankments, the measure of damages determined. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bell (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 198.

There are 10 acres of plaintiff's land overflowed by water of a stream, the course of which was alleged to have been negligently diverted, plaintiff was not entitled to abandon the balance of his land as against defendant, but could only recover for injury to the land overflowed. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 394.

The measure of damages to a landowner resulting from defective culverts on the adjoining land, where such damages are permanent, is the depreciation in the value of the land because of the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Green, 44 C. A. 247, 99 S. W. 573.

Time at which damages for wrongful obstruction of surface waters by railroad should be computed, stated. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ford, 54 C. A. 312, 117 S. W. 201.

In an action for damages to land caused by construction by railroad company of drain box insufficient to drain the land as it had previously been drained, measure of damage, stated. Id.

The measure of damages to land by a railroad company held to be the difference between the market value just before and just after the injury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Clayton, 54 C. A. 512, 118 S. W. 248.

In an action for damages to land by overflow caused by the negligent construction of a railroad embankment, the measure of damages is the difference between the market value of the land immediately before and immediately after the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chilton, 52 C. A. 516, 118 S. W. 779.

That land, on account of the soil being washed away, would not produce a crop, can be considered in estimating the difference in the value of the land just before and after the overflow. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Felts (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 719.

The measure of damages for rendering a well worthless by overflows caused by construction of a railroad dump is the difference in market value of the real estate immediately before and after the injury. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. v. Wyrick (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 694.

In an action against a railroad for injury to crops and realty by overflows caused by insufficient drainage, the evidence held not to show a claim for damages based on the fact that deposit of sediment injured the soil. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harbison, 99 S. W. 563, 60 S. W. 1097.

19. Johnson grass.—See, also, Arts. 6601, 6602.

Railroad which negligently caused land to be overflowed and grow up in Johnson grass held not liable for expense of removing the Johnson grass, in the absence of evidence of its responsibility. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 297.

20. Aggravation or mitigation of damages.—In an action against a railroad for injury to crops and realty caused by insufficient drainage, the damages sustained could not be reduced by showing that the land had been enhanced by a deposit of a sediment, unless the value of the benefits was shown. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harbison, 99 T. 530, 99 S. W. 1097.

Where plaintiff alleged that injury to grass on pasture lands was caused by overflow, it was not error for him to show that the injury was caused or augmented by cattle trampling the grass when it was wet. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 839.

21. Duty of owner to prevent or reduce damages.—The doctrine is well established that where one is injured from another's breach of contract or tort, he is bound to use reasonable exertions—ordinary care—to render the injury as light as possible. Action by landowner for damages to his land and crop thereon from overflow of water, caused by embankment erected and kept up by the defendant. It was shown in defense that at an outlay of $35, which sum plaintiff was able to expend, the land could have been drained from the overflow and the injury avoided. Held, such facts were not a perfect defense, unless it had been shown further that he (plaintiff) had the right to make such drain without injury to neighboring lands. A. & N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 85 T. 88, 19 S. W. 1025.

Where plaintiff sued for injuries caused by the overflowing of his land by defendant railroad company, plaintiff's failure to raise the grade of his land, so as to prevent such overflow, was a defense. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Maddox, 26 C. A. 297, 63 S. W. 124.

22. Successive actions.—The measure of damages for negligently deluging the land of another without permanently taking it is the value of the products destroyed, including fruit trees, and the injury done to the land; and an action for damages for successive overflows when they occur may be maintained when the land of H. Johnson, 65 T. 389; G., C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Helsley, 63 T. 593; Ft. W. & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Scott, 2 App. C. C. § 143; Railway Co. v. Brousard, 69 T. 617, 7 S. W. 374; Railway Co. v. Pool, 70 T. 713, & S. W. 555. See Bonner v. Wirth, 24 S. W. 306, § 1519; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ware, 67 T. 636, 4 S. W. 13.

In 1878 L. brought suit to recover damages for injury to his growing crop and to his land from an overflow caused by an embankment constructed by a railway company, and in 1879 recovered judgment therefor. In 1880 the land was again overflowed, and a second suit brought for the damages occasioned thereby. The defendant pleaded the judgment in the first action as a bar to the second suit. Held, that damages from the flood to land caused by a permanent structure will include the entire injury, and that a judgment will be a bar to actions for subsequent injury from the same cause. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Long, 1 App. C. C. §§ 569-561; T. C. R. R. Co. v. Clifton, 2 App. C. C. § 483; Railway Co. v. Hogsett, 67 T. 685, 4 S. W. 365; Owens v. Railway Co., 67 T. 679, 4 S. W. 593.

23. Limitation of actions.—See, also, Title 87.

Limitation in character of cases to which this article applies does not commence to run until the occurrence of each overflow. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Beck (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 538.

25. Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1837.

26. Evidence.—See, also, notes under Art. 3687.

The testimony of scientific railway engineers that they had constructed a road-bed skillfully and perfectly with scientific rules would not mean there was no credible testimony to the effect that the roadbed did in fact cause the injury. Railroad Co. v. Hudd, 67 T. 503, 4 S. W. 153.

In an action by a householder for injuries sustained from water turned back on his land by a railroad company's negligence in failing to provide sufficient culverts.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to crops caused by an overflow, evidence examined, and held to show that the injuries complained of were due to the negligence of defendant in constructing its road and a bridge over a river. Houston & S. Ry. v. Buchanan, 48 C. A. 129, 107 S. W. 648.

27. Instructions.—See Chapter 33 of Title 27.

28. Injunction.—See Title 69 and notes.

Art. 6496. [4437] Navigable waters shall not be obstructed.—Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to authorize the erection of any bridge, or any other obstruction across or over any stream or water navigable by steamboats or sail vessels at the place where any bridge, or other obstruction, may be proposed to be placed so as to prevent the navigation of such stream or water. [Id.]

Obstruction of navigable stream.—See, also, note under Art. 6485.

A navigable stream is not subject to condemnation for the purpose of erecting a dam so as to furnish a reservoir of fresh water for the use of a railway company in operating its engines. The terms and meaning of the words "steamboats or sail vessels," used in the statute, are not to be construed, in the absence of a statute, and the courts will not look to other sources for its definition. G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Taucoward, 3 App. C. C. § 142.

A railroad company is liable for damages caused by obstructing a navigable river in Texas by constructing a bridge across the stream, so as to prevent the drift of logs from being propelled along the river to point of destination. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Meadows, 56 C. A. 131, 120 S. W. 522.

Where a stream had been generally used for a long time as a means of rafting logs, it was a navigable stream so as to make wrongful the construction of a railroad bridge which interfered with such rafting. Burr's Ferry, B. & C. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 358.

Art. 6497. [4438] Streets, etc., of incorporated cities or towns shall not be taken without, etc.—Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to authorize the construction of any railroad upon or across any street, alley, square, or highway of any incorporated city or town without the assent of the corporation of said city or town. [Id.]

Grant of right to use streets—Necessity.—A railroad has no right to construct its line on the streets of a city without the city's consent. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 127 S. W. 1117.

That by the erection of the sea wall in the city of Galveston, by the county of Galveston, the railroad company's track was cut in two, did not entitle the company to a new location across streets and alleys as a way of necessity, without the assent of the city, though the rule would be otherwise, had the wall been erected by the city; no such right being given by this article. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 273.

Where a railroad right of way in a city was acquired by one company by purchase from another, and the city by ordinance confirmed and granted this right to the purchaser, the fact that the original purchase was illegal could not invalidate the grant. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 273.

Conditional grants.—When the assent of a city is required it has power to prescribe lawful and proper conditions. City of Indianola v. Railway Co., 56 T. 594; Mayor, etc., v. Railway Co., 84 T. 585, 19 S. W. 786; Taylor v. Dunn, 80 T. 666, 16 S. W. 725; Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 27.

Under Art. 6485 and this article a railroad company had no right to construct its line on the streets of a city without the city's consent which the city had an unqualified right to refuse, and the city was authorized to contract with the railroad company for the use of its streets in consideration of the railroad company's locating its offices, machine shops, and roundhouses within the city limits. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. City of Sweetwater, 104 T. 329, 127 S. W. 1117.

Where the legislature grants railroad companies the right to occupy city streets upon condition that the city be entitled to the first right to refuse, and a city grants a right and attaches to it a condition subsequent not authorized by the statute, such condition is void. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 273.

Acceptance of grant.—A railroad company held to have accepted a city's grant of a right of way, though not all the portion granted was in actual use. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis, 96 T. 281, 292, 72 S. W. 101.

That a railroad company, after being given the right by ordinance to relocate its road between two points, constructed its tracks over streets in accordance with a right given by the same ordinance, rehabilitated its tracks, and generally began to put itself in position to carry out the purpose for which the relocation was desired, held to consti-

Construction and effect.—Proviso to first section of a city ordinance, which confirmed a prior grant of a railroad right of way, held to apply only to such first section, where it appeared from the context of the entire ordinance that such was the intention. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 273.

Under a city ordinance granting a railroad company a right to relocate its track between two points upon any degree of curvature, not less than 3 degrees, it could relocate its track upon a line which made a short curve of 12 degrees at one end and another short curve of 12 degrees at the other end, united by a straight line. Id.

An ordinance authorizing the relocation of a railroad track "at any time thereafter" held not to postpone the right to make such relocation until the happening of certain events, but to give a present right. Id.

A city ordinance authorizing the relocation of a railroad between two points carried with it the right to cross such streets and alleys not crossed by the old line as were necessary to such relocation. Id.

Transfer of right.—The possession of a charter authorizing the building of a railroad on the streets of a city after obtaining the city's consent did not prevent a company, purchasing such right at a foreclosure sale of a former grantee, from claiming under the sale. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co., 96 T. 233, 72 S. W. 161.

A railroad purchasing the property of another company at foreclosure sale, held to have acquired the rights of its predecessor to the use of certain streets for its right of way. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co., 30 C. A. 474, 72 S. W. 201.

The charter of a railroad company purchasing the property of another at foreclosure sale, held to require the purchaser to surrender the right of way to a city street which it had acquired by the purchase, and to reacquire it by exercise of its charter powers. Id.

Abandonment or forfeiture.—Facts stated in certified questions held not to show, as a matter of law, an abandonment by a railroad company of a right of way in a street. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co., 96 T. 235, 72 S. W. 161, 301.

A defendant in an injunction case involving conflicting loci of railroad held to involve a conclusion that the railroad had not abandoned a right of way in a street. Id.

Forfeiture of a railway company's right to use a city street for a right of way held enforceable by the state or the city, and not by another railroad company. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co., 30 C. A. 473, 72 S. W. 201.

A municipal franchise to maintain railway tracks in a street and in an alley held not to lapse because of breach of the condition as to time of completing work on which it was granted. McCammon & Lang Lumber Co. v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 85.

That a railroad company continued to use its old location for about 21 years after being granted a right to relocate its track did not work a forfeiture of its rights under the grant, where there was another ample excuse for the delay. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 273.

Where a city had no right to attach as a condition subsequent to a grant of a railroad right of way a provision that the grant should be forfeited unless exercised within a reasonable time, such a condition could not be implied. Id.

Power of city to regulate railways.—See Art. 863.

Damages to abutting property.—See ante, and notes at end of this chapter.

Injuries from manner of construction or maintenance.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Injuries from operation of trains.—See notes at end of Chapter 10 of this title.

Art. 6498. [4439] In case of highways, plank roads, etc.—In case of the construction of any railway along highways, plank roads, turnpikes, or canals, such railroad corporation shall either first obtain the consent of the lawful authorities having control or jurisdiction of the same or condemn the same under the provisions of law. [Id.]

Action by county for damages.—In an action by a county against a railroad for damages caused by defendant's appropriation of a highway, held error to refuse a certain charge. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Grayson County, 31 C. A. 611, 73 S. W. 84.

Measure of damages to be recovered by a county, where a railroad constructed a new road parallel to an old road appropriated by it, defined. Id.

Art. 6499. [4440] Shall have the right to cross, intersect, etc., other railways.—Such corporation shall have the right to cross, intersect, join and unite its railway with any other railway before constructed at any point on its route and upon the grounds of such other railway corporation, with the necessary turnouts, sidings and switches, and other conveniences in furtherance of the objects of its connection. [Id.]

Article construed.—Construed with Art. 6504, confers jurisdiction upon the county court to appoint commissioners to assess damages. Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 86 T. 657, 36 S. W. 64.

This article, in connection with Arts. 6500, 6501, 6608, 6615, construed. Inman v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 14 C. A. 39, 37 S. W. 37.

Enforcement of duties to public.—Order of railroad commission directing railroads crossing each other to put in intersecting tracks held not shown to be an abuse of discretion. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 16.

The rights conferred and the duties imposed by this article, and Arts. 6500, 6608, 6609, and 6670, were not intended solely for the benefit of railroad companies. On the contrary, the primary purpose of these articles was to promote the public interest, and a failure to comply with the duties so imposed constitutes such an abuse as Art. 6654 authorizes the railroad commission to correct. Id.

Right to cross other railroads.—One railroad has the right to condemn the right of way across another when necessary to make connection with another road. See Arts. 6601, 6504. S. & E. T. Ry. Co. v. G. & I. Ry. Co., 92 T. 162, 46 S. W. 784.

Manner of constructing crossing, control of railroad commission, expense and stopping at crossing.—See Arts. 6701 et seq.

Validity of special contract.—The invalidity of a portion of a contract providing for crossing of street car tracks over a railroad's right of way held not to invalidate a provision for division of the cost of maintaining lights and safety appliances at the crossing. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co., 103 T. 49, 123 S. W. 124.

A contract between a railroad company and a street car company for the division of expenses at a crossing of the street car tracks over the tracks of the railroad company held based on a sufficient consideration. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 597; Id., 103 T. 49, 123 S. W. 124.

Accidents at railroad crossings.—See, also, notes at end of Chapter 10 of this Title.

Where railroads cross each other one road is not liable for injury caused by negligence of other, when it did not occur from a failure of duty imposed upon them jointly. Missouri, K. & T. of Texas v. Jolly, 51 C. A. 512, 72 S. W. 871.

Art. 6500. [4441] Intersected railways shall do what.—Every corporation whose railway is or shall be hereafter intersected by any new railway shall unite with the corporation owning such new railway in forming intersections and connections and grant to such new railway facilities therefor. [Id.]

— Railroads crossing at different grades.—The railroad commission has power to compel two railroads which cross each other, but not at grade, to put in tracks connecting each with the other, so that cars can be shifted from the tracks of one to the other. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 99 T. 792, 99 S. W. 562.

Art. 6501. [4442] When the two corporations can not agree.—If the two corporations can not agree upon the amount of compensation for any such crossing, intersection or connection, or the points and manner of the same, their differences shall be adjusted in the manner provided by law. [Id.]

Art. 6502. [4443] May enter upon adjacent land and take material, etc.—Any railroad corporation may enter upon and take from any land adjacent to its road earth, gravel, stone, or other materials, except fuel and wood, necessary for the construction of its railway, paying, if the owner of such land and the corporation can agree thereto, the value of such material taken and the amount of damage occasioned to any such land or appurtenances, and, if such owner and corporation can not agree, then the value of such material and the damage occasioned to such real estate may be ascertained, determined and paid in the manner provided in this chapter. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 6503. [4444] Value of same and damages shall first be paid. —The value of such material and the damage to such real estate shall in all cases be ascertained, determined and paid before such corporation can enter upon and take such material. [Id.]

Art. 6504. [4445] In case corporation and owner can not agree, etc.—If any railroad corporation shall at any time be unable to agree with the owner for the purchase of any real estate, or the material thereon, required for the purposes of its incorporation or the transaction of its business for its depots, station buildings, machine and repair shops, for the construction of reservoirs for the water supply, or for the right of way, or for new right of way for change or re-location of road bed to shorten the line, or any part thereof or to reduce its grades, or any of them, which is hereby authorized and permitted, or for any other lawful purpose connected with or necessary to the building, operating, or running its road, such corporation may acquire such property in the manner provided in this chapter; provided, that the limitation in width prescribed in article 6484, shall not apply to real estate, or any interest therein, required for the purposes herein mentioned, other than right of way, and that real estate, or any interest therein, to be acquired for such other purposes or any of them need not adjoin or abut on the right of way; provided, further, that no change of the line through any city or town, or which will result in the abandonment of any station or depot, shall be made, except upon written order of the railroad commission of Texas, authorizing such change; and provided, further, that no railroad corporation shall have the right under this act to condemn any land for the purposes mentioned in this article situated more than two miles from the right of way of such railroad corporation. [Id. p. 146, sec. 21. Amended Acts 1901, p. 46.]

Compliance with statute.—One claiming title under condemnation proceedings must show a strict compliance with the statute, and proceedings not in accordance therewith are insufficient, whether excepted to or not. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 636.

Who may exercise right.—A foreign company, having secured permission to do business in the State, is entitled to exercise the right of eminent domain. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 312.

Under these articles a domestic railroad corporation, legally incorporated, may condemn property for a right of way, and a proposed condemnation cannot be objected to on the ground it is unlawful as a way for a private use. Chapman v. Trinity Valley & N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 449.

A railroad corporation, organized under Arts. 6481-6534 to construct and operate a railroad, though organized primarily to haul lumber for a lumber manufacturing company continuously engaged in manufacturing lumber, may construe the duties imposed on common carriers, and its road is, under Const. art. 10, § 2, a public highway, and it may condemn land for a right of way. Id.

Land that may be taken.—One railroad company has no right to condemn property of another, already dedicated to public use, where such taking will destroy the first use, unless the new use be of paramount importance, and cannot be otherwise accomplished. Sabine & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Gulf & E. Ry. Co. of Texas, 92 T. 162, 48 S. W. 734.

A railroad company does not lose its right to condemn lands of another railroad for lawful purposes, by having prior thereto obtained a crossing over such railroad company's tracks by condemnation. Id.

Property held by the state or by the United States for sale or settlement may be taken for railroad purposes, but not where the land has been devoted to a particular use of the government. Rockport & F. A. R. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 263.

Amount that may be taken.—While a railroad in laying out its road is restricted to a right of way 25 feet wide, such restriction does not apply to land sought to be condemned for depot facilities, switches, spur tracks, and freight yards necessary for the operation of its road. Hengy v. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 493.

Land may be condemned for a particular purpose, by which the damages may be measured. If used for other purposes compensation must be made. Foster v. Railway Co., 10 T. A. 476, 31 S. W. 529.

This article and Art. 6543 seem to contemplate that a condemnation merely for right of way is not for machine or repair use on rails, but that when such things are necessary property should be acquired or condemned for such purposes. When land is condemned for one purpose it cannot be applied to another purpose without compensation. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 36 C. A. 121, 81 S. W. 785.

Authority of commission.—An order of the state railroad commission, giving a railroad company a right to relocate its track upon any line "upon which it may legally acquire the right of way," did not give it a right to relocate its track without the assent of the city, since not only was the order not open to such construction, but this article gave the commission no authority to grant such a right. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 279.

Waiver of prepayment of compensation.—Under this article and Art. 5004 conferring the same rights of condemnation on irrigation companies, a married woman could not en­join the maintenance of a dam by a corporation entitled to exercise the power of eminent domain, which would submerge the land of her husband, in which she had a homestead right, where the husband had waived prepayment of compensation before appropriation of the land, but was only entitled to recover compensation for her homestead. Reitzler v. Medina Valley Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 390.

Damages from construction or maintenance of railroad, shops, roundhouses, etc.—See notes at end of this Chapter.

Art. 6505. [4446] Shall not enter upon land, etc., except for a lineal survey.—No railroad company shall enter upon, except for a lineal survey, any real estate whatever, the same being private property, for the purpose of taking and condemning the same, or any material thereon, for any purpose whatever, until the said company shall agree with and pay the owner thereof all damages that may be caused to the lands.
and property of said owner by the condemnation of said real estate and property, and by the construction of such road. [P. D. 4922.]

For what purposes land may be entered upon.—See, also, Arts. 6483 and 6502.

Remedies of owner for trespass—Damages in general. The owner of land may maintain an action for damages against a company which without his consent entered upon his land, which has not been condemned. Railroad Co. v. Benitos, 59 T. 326; Hays v. Railroad Co., 62 T. 397. The consent of the owner may be given verbally. Railroad Co. v. Jarrell, 60 T. 267.

In a suit for damages done to land by the construction of a railway roadbed, without first acquiring a right of way from the owner, evidence of such damage to the entire tract is admissible as would have been permitted had the proceedings been instituted to condemn the land pointed out by the statute. H., E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Adams, 63 T. 200.

The measure of damages against a railway company which is a naked trespasser upon inclosed land, and so uses its possession as to prevent the making of crops, is not the supposed value of the crops that might have been made, but the rental value of the land, as also the value of fence destroyed, or other specific injury directly inflicted. Id.

Where a railroad company appropriates a portion of the land of another in the construction of its road thereon, without referring to the statutory methods of ascertaining the damages, the measure of damages for the appropriation is the value of the land on the day it was taken, and that amount to be increased or diminished as the remainder of the tract has been injured or benefited by the appropriation of the part used in the construction of the road. Where work has already been done by the railway company upon the land in the construction of the roadbed, and ties, rails, etc., have been placed on it by the company, the value of these articles is not to be included as part of the compensation of the owner, although the owner may, in an action of trespass to try title, have proceeded against the company. T. & P. R. Co. v. Hays, 3 App. C. C. §§ 56-59. See H., E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 63 T. 200.

A corporation owning land over which a trolley company constructed its track held not entitled to oust the company, but limited to an action for damages. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

DAMAGES FOR REMOVING IMPROVEMENTS.—A railway company erected certain improvements on the land of another, which it afterwards removed. Held, that a naked trespasser, who erects on land fixtures which constitute a part of the realty, and who afterwards removes them without the consent of the landowner, is liable in damages for their value. H., E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Adams, 63 T. 200.

TRESPASS TO TRY TITLE.—One who permits a railway company to enter upon his land and clear a right of way for its roadbed, without objection, under verbal authority from him, is estopped to deny, by an action repudiating or repudiating his consent to the trespass to try title to the strip so used for operating the road. T. & S. L. R. R. Co. v. Jarrell, 60 T. 267.

Where a railway company has acquired land for its use, without having acquired title thereto, or condemned the same for right of way, the land may be recovered by the owner in an action of trespass to try title. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Hays, 3 App. C. C. § 56.

WAIVER OF PREPAYMENT.—See note under Art. 6504.

ESTOPPEL TO CLAIM COMPENSATION.—An owner of land appropriated by a railroad company for a railroad right of way is not estopped to demand compensation, though he was present during construction of the road, for, until he has received compensation, the land belongs to him. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

Plaintiff, suing for damages for the value of a strip used by defendant as a railroad right of way and for damages to the remainder of the land, was not estopped by the fact that she and her deceased husband saw and knew that defendant was grading the road, expediting its construction and operating its trains thereon, where defendant's entry was under a parol agreement by its agent for a consideration. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

WHEN RIGHT OF WAY IS ACQUIRED.—See, also, Art. 6534.

A right of way not acquired until it is paid for or payment is secured by a deposit of money. Railroad Co. v. Donahoo, 59 T. 125. See Railroad Co. v. Benitos, 59 T. 325.

The right of the state to take private property for public use becomes absolute when compensation has been agreed upon and paid, and no conveyance is necessary. Getzender v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 66, 102 S. W. 161.

Art. 6506. [4447] Statement to be filed with county judge.—If such company and said owner can not agree upon the damages, it shall be the duty of said company to state in writing the real estate and property sought to be condemned, the object for which the same is sought to be condemned, the name of the owner thereof and his residence, if known, and file the same with the county judge of the county in which such property, or a part thereof, is situated; provided, if the owner resides in either county in which a portion of the land is situated, the same shall be filed in the county of his residence. [Acts 1885, p. 54.]

Jurisdiction.—The county court of a county in which is situated a part of the right of way of the railroad sought to be condemned for use of a telegraph company has jurisdiction to condemn other parts of such right of way in other counties for the use of the telegraph company. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co., 18 C. A. 653, 45 S. W. 179.

In a condemnation proceeding, neither the county judge, on filing of the statement provided for by this article, nor the commissioners, on the hearing as to damages, can inquire into the truth of the facts on which the jurisdiction is invoked; such inquiry being proper only on hearing in the county court of the appeal from the commissioners' award. Rabb v. La Feira Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

The court, on granting the motion of a railroad company, which has started to condemn land for its right of way, to dismiss the proceeding, retains jurisdiction to hear and determine the question of the damages sustained by the owner, occasioned by the company taking possession to construct its railroad, and to assess damages in case of the amount of the damages. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 225.

The county court of a county, though deprived of civil jurisdiction, is the proper tribunal to appoint commissioners to assess damages in condemnation proceedings under this and the following articles, and the district court has no power to appoint commissioners. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

The persons appointed by the district court to assess damages in condemnation proceedings are not de facto commissioners and are without right to act. Id. The taking of private property for a public use is a deprivation of property without due process of law, where the court appointing commissioners to assess damages has no authority so to do. Id.

Under this and the following articles the district court is without jurisdiction to appoint commissioners on the application of a railroad company seeking to condemn a right of way, the appointment is void, and the acts of the commissioners are subject to collateral attack. Id.

Right to object to jurisdiction.—An owner of land sought to be taken by a railroad company for a right of way does not waive his rights or claim for damages nor admit the regularity of the proceedings by appearing before commissioners to assess damages appointed by a court having no authority to appoint, since the appointment is void. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

An owner of land sought to be taken by a railroad company for a right of way is not estopped from attacking the award of commissioners appointed by the district court instead of one of the illegality of the appointment and agreed to accept the decision and induced the company to apply to the wrong court. Id.

A railroad company, seeking to condemn land, applied to the district court for the appointment of commissioners to assess damages. The owner agreed in writing that the commissioners need not serve him with process, but could proceed to condemn his land. It was not shown that he agreed to submit the issues to the commissioners and abide their decision, and after their award he objected to their findings and attempted to appeal. Held, that he did not agree to a statutory or common-law arbitration, and he could collaterally attack the proceedings of the commissioners on the ground that the district court had no authority to appoint them. Id.

The statement—in general.—A party seeking for the condemnation of private property for public use must show a strict compliance with the statute. A statement not in substantial compliance with the statute is a nullity and will not confer jurisdiction. The designation of the property must be sufficiently certain to identify the particular portion of the land over which the right of way is sought. The title of the person named as owner is not in issue, and cannot be contested in this proceeding, the only question to be determined being that of damages. G. H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Mud Creek I. A. & M. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 393; Adams v. San Angelo Waterworks (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 165.

Description of land.—See, also, note under Art. 6534.

The description of the land sought to be condemned as would enable a person skilled in such matters to locate the land is sufficient. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co., 18 C. A. 502, 45 S. W. 179.

Neither party in his pleadings is required to define the limits or extent of the holding of the owner whose property is sought to be condemned. It is a matter wholly of proof. The owner is entitled to recover not only the market value of the property actually taken, but in addition thereto the damages sustained as to the remaining portion. Kirby v. Panhandle Ry. Co., 89 S. W. 232, 23 S. W. 652, 33 S. W. 601.

Purpose of condemnation.—If the condemnation of property be desired for other purposes than the right of way, as for depot grounds and terminal facilities, the plaintiff must distinctly specify such objects. Foster v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 529; Barnes v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 601.

Naming owners.—All persons claiming an interest in land sought to be condemned by a railroad company may be made defendants in the condemnation proceedings. Davidson v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 29 C. A. 54, 67 S. W. 1083.

In condemnation proceedings, an allegation in the statement provided for by this article that a landowner, defendant or intervenor in the lands, sufficiently named the owners. Rabb v. La Feira Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

Averments as to disagreement.—The petition need not state that the companies cannot agree, etc., when it does not appear there was any dispute in that respect. Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 86 T. 537, 26 S. W. 54.

A county court acquired jurisdiction of a condemnation proceeding on an allegation in the statement, that the parties were unable to agree on damages; actual existence of the fact being unnecessary. Rabb v. La Feira Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 916.

Amendment.—See note under Art. 6527.

Art. 6507. Regular judge disqualified; special judge appointed.—Where any petition or statement for condemnation is presented to a county judge, as provided in the preceding article, and such judge shall be disqualified to act by reason of any of the matters mentioned in article 1736, he shall indorse his certificate of such disqualification upon such petition, or statement for condemnation, and file the same with the county clerk, who shall make a certified copy of such petition, or statement for condemnation, and of such indorsement thereon, and forward the same forthwith to the governor; whereupon the governor shall proceed to appoint some person learned in the law to act as special judge, who shall have and exercise all of the powers conferred upon the county judge by this chapter, and shall proceed to make the appointment of commissioners as provided by the succeeding article upon the said petition or statement for condemnation already filed, and in the event objections shall be filed by either party to the award of commissioners, the person so appointed by the governor shall preside at all trials of the cause in the county court until such time as the disqualification of the county judge may have ceased; provided, that any time before such disqualification is so certified to the governor, the parties by agreement may select such special judge. [Acts 1901, p. 20, sec. 1.]

Art. 6508. [4448] County judge shall appoint commissioners.— Upon the filing of such statement, the county judge shall forthwith, either in term time or in vacation, appoint three disinterested freeholders of said county as special commissioners to assess said damages, giving preference to those that may be agreed on between said corporation and said owner. [Acts 1860, p. 60.]

Jurisdiction and right to object to jurisdiction.—See notes under Art. 6506.

Duty to appoint commissioners.—Where the parties fail to agree upon commissioners to assess damages it is the duty of the court as required by this article to appoint such commissioners. Sullivan v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 29 C. A. 429, 65 S. W. 746.

Art. 6509. [4449] Commissioners shall be sworn.—The said commissioners shall be sworn by the county judge, or by any officer authorized by law to administer oaths, to assess said damages fairly and impartially and in accordance with law. [Id.]

Parol evidence of oath.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Art. 6510. [4450] Commissioners shall select a day and place of hearing.—Said commission shall, without delay, appoint a day and place for hearing said parties; and the day appointed shall be the earliest practicable day, and the place selected for such hearing shall be as near as practicable to the property in controversy, or at the county seat of the county in which the property is situated. [Id.]

Art. 6511. [4451] Shall issue written notice to parties.—The commissioners shall issue a notice in writing to each of the parties, notifying them of the time and place selected for the hearing. [Id.]

Only notice required.—The above article prescribes the only notice necessary to be given in a condemnation proceeding. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. W. Telegraph & Telephone Co., 18 C. A. 500, 45 S. W. 151.

Sufficiency of notice.—Showing as to notice to defendants insufficient to support a judgment. Railway Co. v. Day, 22 S. W. 539, 3 C. A. 353.

Description of land.—See note under Art. 6534.

Recital in judgment of service of notices.—Recital in the judgment of condemnation of land that due notices have been given is conclusive, although the mode of service be not shown nor appears in the record. Ackerman v. Huff, 71 T. 317, 9 S. W. 236.

Effect of waiver of notice.—The mere fact that the owner agreed in writing that the commissioners need not serve him with process, but could proceed to condemn the right of way, did not show a common-law or statutory arbitration so as to prevent him from collaterally attacking the action of the commissioners for lack of jurisdiction of the court appointing them. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

Art. 6512. [4452] Manner of serving notice.—Said notice shall be served upon said parties at least five days before the day of hearing, exclusive of the day of service, and shall be served by delivering a copy of the same to the party, his agent or attorney, and may be served by any person competent to testify.

Art. 6513. [4453] Return of notice.—The person making such service shall return the original notice to said commissioners, or any one of them, on or before the day set for the hearing, with his return in writing thereon, stating how and when the same was served.

Art. 6514. [4454] When the property belongs to estate or to a minor, notice shall be served on whom.—When the property in controversy is the property of the estate of a deceased person, or of a minor, and such estate has a legal representative, or such minor has a guardian, the notice shall be served upon such legal representative, or guardian. [Id.]

Art. 6515. [4455] Property of non-resident, unknown owner, or one who secretes himself.—When the property in controversy belongs to a non-resident of this state, or to an unknown person, or to a person whose residence is unknown, or who secretes himself so that the process of law can not be served upon him, such notice may be served upon such owner by publication in the same manner as is provided for service of citation in article 1874 of the Revised Civil Statutes. [Acts 1885, p. 54; Amend. 1895, Sen. Jour. No. 83, p. 482.]

Art. 6516. [4457] Proceedings of commissioners.—When service of notice has been perfected, the commissioners shall, at the time and place appointed, or at any other time and place to which said hearing has been adjourned, proceed to fully hear said parties; but, if upon the day set for the hearing, the service of notice has not been perfected the said hearing shall be postponed from time to time until such service has been perfected.

Opening and closing.—In a proceeding to condemn the right of way, the party seeking the condemnation is entitled to the opening and conclusion. Railway Co. v. Culver, 4 App. C. C. § 5, 14 S. W. 1013; Railway Co. v. Ross, 4 App. C. C. § 87, 16 S. W. 536.

Rules governing proceedings.—A trial in proceedings by a railroad to condemn land is governed by the ordinary rules of law governing the trial of causes, though the tribunal having jurisdiction of such proceedings is special. Davidson v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 29 C. A. 54, 67 S. W. 193.

Effect of appearing before commissioners.—An owner of land sought to be taken by a railroad company for a right of way does not waive his rights or claim for damages nor admit the regularity of the proceedings by appearing before commissioners to assess damages, when they were appointed by a court having no authority so to do. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 696.

Art. 6517. [4458] Power of commissioners.—Said commissioners for the purpose mentioned in this chapter shall have power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of testimony, and to administer oaths and punish for contempt as fully as is provided by law for the district or county court.

Art. 6518. [4459] Rule of damages.—Said commissioners shall have evidence as to the value of the property sought to be condemned, and as to the damages which will be sustained by the owner thereof by reason of such condemnation, and as to the benefits that will result to the remainder of such property belonging to such owner, if any, by the construction and operation of such railroad, and shall according to this rule assess the actual damage that will accrue to such owner by said condemnation.

Stating damages claimed.—In proceedings for condemnation a party cannot be required to state in writing before the trial the damages claimed by him. Railway Co. v. Day, 22 S. W. 538, 3 C. A. 353.

Party entitled to damages.—Prima facie the right to damages resulting from the opening of a road through lands which the owner has contracted to sell is in the purchaser. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 335.

Measure of compensation.—In general.—The rule assessing damages for right of way for a railroad is the actual value of the land condemned for the use of the road, and such consequential damages as may result from the manner in which the road is constructed, or shape in which the land may be taken, against which consequential damages may be set off the increased value of the land remaining, by reason of the building of the road; and if the damage is greater than the benefit, the difference may be recovered by the owner, in addition to the value of the land. Railway Co. v. Ferris, 26 T. 603; McDonald v. T. & P. R. R. Co., 1 U. C. 191; Railway Co. v. Chenaault, 4 App. C. C. § 111, 16 S. W. 173; Railway Co. v. Ferris, 26 T. 588; Railway Co. v. Mathews, 60 T. 215; Railway Co. v. Pepe, 62 T. 313; Railway Co. v. Cave, 80 T. 137, 15 S. W. 786.

The measure of damages in condemnation of land is its market value at time of condemnation, without regard to any fact that might have contributed to that value. Allen v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 826.
The measure of damages for a permanent injury to land is the difference between its value before and after the injury. Railway Co. v. Mohn (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 22.

The measure of damages is the value of the property taken and the damages to the remainder, to be determined by ascertaining the difference in value before and taking at the trial. Gliner v. Dennison & P. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 925.

Where, in trespass to try title against a railroad company, which had constructed a track across the land, the land having been taken from plaintiff and condemned, on a cross-bill of the railroad company, he was entitled to receive as compensation the value of the land taken, together with the damages thereby occasioned to the remainder of the tract. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. Kinkead (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 468.

Measure of damages is the difference between the value of property just before and just after construction of railroad. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 376.

The jury held entitled to estimate the damages which the land sustains by reason of the railroad running through it, less peculiar benefits. Crystal City & U. R. Co. v. Booth (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 396.

The fair cash market value of land condemned for a railroad right of way is not the market value of the strip taken when condemned by itself, but its value as a part of the tract of which it forms a part. Routh v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1152.

Matters to be considered.—A witness, in giving his opinion as to the damage caused by the operation of a railroad across a tract of land, may state that a railroad runs across his land. Railway Co. v. Day, 22 S. W. 535, 3 C. A. 553.

In such proceedings a charge as to the method of computing the damages must be confined to the evidence.

It is proper for the jury to consider existing business and development that may reasonably be expected. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Burger (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 613.

The scope of an inquiry under this article is limited to the value of the property sought to be condemned and to damages which will be sustained by the owner thereof by reason of the condemnation. Gregory v. C. & N. Ry. Co., 29 S. W. 609, 1892, P. 617.

The refusal of the court to instruct that in the appraisement of the land taken the jury could consider the present condition of the locality as to business and demand for property, such as any increase or development thereof that could be expected in the immediate future, was error. Sullivan v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 29 C. A. 425, 55 S. W. 745.

In proceedings to condemn a railroad right of way, it was error to instruct that the jury might consider in determining the injury or benefit done to the land not taken, the evidence as to the increased danger to live stock, buildings, fences, crops, or grass, without limiting such evidence to its effect upon the market value of the land. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wyrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 730.

A railroad condemning land must pay the value at the time of trial. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Hunicutt, 18 C. A. 310, 44 S. W. 532.

Measure of damages for land taken for railroad right of way held its market value at date of trial, and not its less value at the time it was wrongfully taken. Routh v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1152.

Valuation for taxation.—In an issue as to the value of land in condemnation proceedings, evidence showing at what valuation the land was rendered for taxation is immaterial. Railway Co. v. Kell, 4 App. C. C. § 156, 16 S. W. 936.

The value of land, though fixed by the owner when assessed for taxation, forms no criterion of its value in a proceeding to condemn it. Crystal City & U. R. Co. v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 47.

Town lots.—A railroad condemning land suitable for town lots does not compensate the owner by paying its value for agriculture. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Hunicutt, 18 C. A. 310, 44 S. W. 532.

On the trial of an issue as to the value of land condemned for a railroad, the exclusion of evidence that the owner rendered the land for taxation as acreage property held not ground for complaint, in the absence of evidence that the value was less as acres than as land. Galveston & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 612.

Homestead.—Property being used as a homestead, damages to its use as such by construction of a railroad is admissible. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Eddings, 30 C. A. 170, 70 S. W. 98.

Improvements.—In proceedings by a street railway to acquire property by condemnation, the property should be valued as a whole and the entire value thereof was properly shown, including the improvements thereon. Foley v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co., 50 C. A. 213, 108 S. W. 169, 110 S. W. 96.

Obstruction or interference with drainage.—In proceedings to condemn land for a railroad right of way, damages sustained by the landowner by an overflow caused by a defective construction of the railroad's embankment held not recoverable. Kirby v. Panhandle & G. Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 252, 88 S. W. 281.

In proceeding to condemn land for a railroad right of way, the petitioner's alleged negligence in so constructing its roadbed as to interfere with the drainage of defendant's farm held an improper issue. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Moore, 51 C. A. 205, 111 S. W. 758.

Injuries and benefits to land not taken.—See, also, Arts. 6520, 6521, and notes. Damages to a tract of land adjoining that taken, fenced in a common inclosure, and used in connection therewith, may be recovered, since this article authorizes the recovery of damages to land not taken. Concho, S. & L. V. Ry. Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 693.

Where, in action by landowner for damages, the evidence showed that a railroad was constructed across the tract in question; that the railroad company fenced its right of way, separating the tillable land from the tract used for grazing purposes, relieving the landowner from the expense of erecting such fence, it warranted the charge given that the jury in estimating plaintiff's damages should, under Arts. 6518-6520, consider the benefits as well as the injuries resulting to the remainder of the tract not taken.

Interest.—Where a railroad company appropriates a strip of land for a right of way, interest on the amount awarded will be due from the time of the actual appropriation. Panhandle & G. Ry. Co. v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 498.

In determining the right of way was assessed at its increased value at the time of the trial, the owners were not entitled to interest from a prior time at which the railroad company went into possession. Routh v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1152.

Excessiveness of award.—In condemnation proceedings by a street railway company to acquire property, evidence held not to show an award of $55,000 to be excessive. Foley v. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co., 50 C. A. 218, 108 S. W. 103, 110 S. W. 96.

Review of verdict on appeal.—See note under Art. 6519.

Damages to abutting property from railroad.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Art. 6519. [4406] Same subject.—When the whole of a person's real estate is condemned, the damages to which he shall be entitled shall be the market value thereof in the market in which the same is located.

Measure of compensation.—See notes under Art. 6518.

Review of verdict on appeal.—A verdict finding the value of the land actually taken for a right of way and the damages sustained to the balance of the land, as authorized by Arts. 6519, 6520, rendered on conflicting evidence and supported by evidence will not be disturbed on appeal. State v. Hutchinson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 498.

Art. 6520. [4461] Same subject.—When only a portion of a person's real estate is condemned, the commissioners shall estimate the injuries sustained and the benefits received thereby by the owner as to the remaining portion of such real estate; whether such remaining portion is increased or diminished in value by such condemnation, and the extent of such increase or diminution, and shall assess the damages accordingly.

Injuries and benefits to part not taken.—See, also, Arts. 6518, 6521, and notes.

In estimating the damages for part of land taken by a railroad, its value in connection with the entire property, and also the depreciation of the remainder, should be considered. Dallas Terminal Ry. & Union Depot Co. v. Mosher Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 893.

The owner is entitled to recover, not only the market value of the property actually taken, but in addition thereto the damages sustained as to the remaining portion. Kirby v. Panhandle & G. Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 252, 88 S. W. 282.

In determining the injury or benefit to the land not taken in proceedings to condemn a railroad right of way, a witness whose property is similarly situated may testify as to the effect the construction of the railroad had upon his own property. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wyrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 730.

In determining the injury or benefit done to land not taken in proceedings to condemn a railroad right of way, the inquiry as to the value of the land should be confined to its market value immediately before and after the taking, and evidence as to its market value at the time of the trial is not admissible. Id.

Review of verdict on appeal.—See note under Art. 6519.

Damages to abutting property from railroad.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Art. 6521. [4462] Injuries and benefits which shall not be estimated.—In estimating either the injuries or the benefits, as provided in the preceding article, those injuries or benefits which the owner of such real estate sustains or receives in common with the community generally, and which are not peculiar to him and connected with his ownership, use and enjoyment of the particular parcel of land, shall be altogether excluded from such estimate.

Measure of compensation in general.—See Arts. 6518, 6519, and notes.

Injuries and benefits shared with community.—In general.—It is proper to ascertain how far the damage, if any, sustained by the community generally, and to have such excluded altogether from the estimate of the damages to be recovered. C. & M. C. R. R. Co. v. Ritter, 1 App. C. C. §§ 266, 267.

Under this article it was held that evidence of benefits derived from the construction of a telegraph line in common with the community in general cannot be excluded by the court, if being for the jury to determine what benefits were shared with the community. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 18 C. A. 602, 46 S. W. 178.

In the assessment of damages for property taken for the construction of a railroad, resulting benefits to the owner cannot be considered. McNamara v. Denison & P. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 334.

The submission of an issue as to the enhancement in value of lands in the community held not to be necessary. Houston & G. Ry. Co. v. Kirby, 42 C. A. 840, 94 S. W. 173.

Where, in the prosecution of a public work, no damage is done to property except such as is suffered by the community, no recovery can be had, notwithstanding Const. art. 1, § 17, Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Powell (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 336.

Benefits which will be enlarged in the damages to the particular land, and not general to the neighborhood. Routh v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1152.
Art. 6521 RAILROADS

In a proceeding to condemn land for a levee, an instruction that the owner should be awarded the market value of the land taken and the damages caused to the remainder of the land not taken, deducting any benefits to the land not taken, was properly refused, since it authorized a deduction of the benefits accruing to the owner in common with the community generally, contrary to the express provisions of this article. Ft. Worth Improvement Dist. v. Weatherred (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 550.

An instruction that the owner was entitled to the difference in the fair market value of the property before and after the construction of the levee was unduly favorable to the plaintiff, and hence could not be complained of by it, since it authorized a deduction of the benefits to the portion of the land not taken from the value of that taken, and also authorized a deduction for benefits shared by the owner with common with the community generally, in violation of this article. Ft. Worth Improvement Dist. No. 1, of Tarrant County v. Weatherred (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 550.

Erection of depot close to land.—The erection of a depot in the vicinity of the property cannot be regarded as having especially benefited it, where the benefit affected all property located in its neighborhood. Pochila v. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 269, 72 S. W. 255.

Where the establishment of a railroad depot and switches near defendant's land was not a special benefit to him, it should not be considered in determining his damages in condemnation proceedings. Kirby v. Panhandle & G. Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 562, 88 S. W. 281.

In a proceeding to condemn land near a projected union station for a park, the jury held entitled to consider the contemplated construction of the depot as bearing on the value of defendant's land. City of El Paso v. Coffin, 40 C. A. 54, 88 S. W. 502.

Enhancement of value of city property from the building of a railroad into the city and the construction of the main track, and erection of a depot near the property, held not a benefit to be set off against the damages to the property from the building of a spur track. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Eddings, 51 C. A. 166, 111 S. W. 777.

Art. 6522. [4463] Assessment shall be in writing, dated, signed, etc.—When the said commissioners shall have assessed the damages, they shall reduce their decision to writing, stating therein the amount of damages due to the owner of such real estate, if any be found to be due, and shall date the same and sign it, and shall file the said assessment, together with all other papers connected with the case, with the county judge without delay.

Appportionment of damages.—A condemnation of land by a railroad is not rendered invalid by a failure of the commissioners appointed by the county court to apportion the damages between claimants of the land, who are parties defendant, where the title to the land cannot be determined in the county court. Davidson v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 28 C. A. 54, 67 S. W. 1093.

Description of land.—See note under Art. 6534.

Art. 6523. [4464] Other commissioners may be appointed, when.—Should the said commissioners, or either of them, from any cause be unable or fail to act as such, the county judge may at any time appoint another commissioner or commissioners to supply the place or places of those who are unable or who fail to act.

Art. 6524. [4465] Pay of commissioners.—Commissioners appointed under this chapter shall be entitled to receive for their services three dollars each for every day they may be engaged in the performance of their duties as such commissioners, and they may withhold their decision until their said fees are paid to them.

Art. 6525. [4466] Corporation shall pay expenses of serving notice.—The railroad company seeking to condemn property shall defray all expenses of serving notice upon the owner of such property, but shall be entitled to recover said expenses from such owner in case it shall be decided that said owner shall pay the costs of the proceeding.

Art. 6526. [4467] Commissioners shall make out cost bill, etc.—The commissioners may adjudge the costs against either party, and shall make out a statement in writing of all the costs which have accrued before them, and shall state therein against which party the said costs have been adjudged, and shall sign the same and deliver it, with the other papers of the cause, to the county judge.

Art. 6527. [4468] Either party, if dissatisfied with decision, may remove cause, etc.—If either party be dissatisfied with the decision of such commissioners, he may, within ten days after the same has been filed with the county judge, file his opposition thereto in writing, setting forth the particular cause or causes of his objection; and thereupon the adverse party shall be cited, and said cause shall be tried and determined as in other civil causes in said court. [P. D. 4922.]

Proceedings after filing of opposition—Jurisdiction.—See, also, notes under Art. 6506. An owner, entitled to appeal from the judgment of commissioners assessing damages in proceedings to condemn land, may not appeal from the judgment of commissioners appointed by a court having no authority to appoint. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 696.

— Amendment of application.—On the filing of opposition to the award of commissioners in condemnation proceedings, the plaintiff can after the suit is docketed for trial, amend his application and ask for a less quantity of land. T. & N. O. R. Co. v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 108.

— Scope of inquiry.—In proceedings by a railroad corporation to condemn land for a right of way, the court will not inquire whether the corporation fraudulently procured its charter. Chapman v. Trinity Valley & N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 440.

— Commissioners' award not to be considered.—The jury, on appeal from the damages awarded by the board of commissioners in condemnation proceedings, should not consider for any purpose the amount awarded by the board. Crystal City & U. R. Co. v. Boothe (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 709.

— Answers to special issues.—In proceedings to condemn land for a railroad right of way, answers to special issues submitted held not responsive, nor sufficient to sustain the judgment. Kirby v. Panhandle & G. Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 263, 88 S. W. 281.

Art. 6528. [4469] Decision shall be made the judgment of the court, when.—If no objections are filed to such decision within the time prescribed in the preceding article, the county judge shall cause the said decision to be recorded in the minutes of his court, and shall make the same the judgment of said court, and may issue the necessary process to enforce the same.

Judgment—Sufficiency, effect, etc.—See Art. 6534 and notes.

Art. 6529. [4470] How costs awarded.—The costs of the proceedings before the commissioners and in the court shall be determined as follows, to-wit: If the said commissioners shall award greater damages than the said company offered to pay before the proceedings commenced, or if objections are filed to the decision in the county court under the provisions of this chapter, and the judgment of the court is for a greater sum than the amount awarded by the commissioners, then the said company shall pay all costs; but if the amount awarded by said commissioners as damages, or if the judgment of the county court shall be for the same or less amount of damages than the amount offered by the company before proceedings were commenced, then the costs shall be paid by the owner of the property. [Id.]

Art. 6530. [4471] Damages must be paid before property is taken.
—In no case shall such corporation be entitled to enter upon and take the property condemned, without first having paid whatever amount of damages and costs may have been awarded or adjudged against it by such commissioners, or deposited money to cover the same in the court wherein such condemnation proceedings are pending. But if the plaintiff in the condemnation proceedings should desire to enter upon and take possession of the property sought to be condemned, pending litigation, it may do so at any time after the award of the commissioners, upon the following conditions, to-wit:

First. It shall pay to the defendant the amount of damages awarded or adjudged against it by the commissioners, or deposit the same in money in court, subject to the order of the defendant, and also pay the costs awarded against it.

Second. In addition thereto, it shall deposit in said court a further sum of money equal to the amount of the damages awarded by the commissioners, and which shall be held, together with the award itself, should it be deposited in court instead of being paid, exclusively to secure all damages that may be awarded or adjudged against the plaintiff; and it shall also execute a bond with two or more good and solvent sureties, to be approved by the judge of the court in which such condemnation proceedings are pending, conditioned for the payment of any further costs that may be adjudged against it, either in the court below or upon appeal.
Third. Should it be determined on final decision of the case that the right to condemn the property in question does not exist, the plaintiff shall surrender possession thereof, if he has taken possession pending litigation, and the court shall so adjudge and order a writ of possession for the property in favor of the defendant, and the court may also inquire what damages, if any, have been suffered by the defendant by reason of the temporary possession of the plaintiff, and order the same paid out of the award or other money deposited; provided, that in any case where the award paid the defendant or appropriated by him exceeds the value of the property as determined by the final judgment, the court shall adjudge the excess to be returned to the plaintiff.

If the cause should be appealed from the decision of the county court, the appeal shall be governed by the same law as in other cases; except the judgment of the county court shall not be suspended thereby. The rules hereinafter laid down for governing railroad corporations shall likewise apply to all persons and corporations having the right of eminent domain. [Const., art. 1, sec. 17. Amended Acts 1899, p. 105.]

Constitutional.—This law allowing a railroad to take possession of land upon depositing the amount of the award of the commissioners is not in violation of section 17, art. 1, of the constitution. Davidson v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 54, 67 S. W. 1096.

Applications to pending proceedings.—This law applies to condemnation proceedings pending at the time it went into effect and a telephone company is entitled to the benefits of the same if the statute seeks to condemn a right of way. Tex. Mid. Ry. Co. v. S. W. T. & T. Co., 24 C. A. 198, 68 S. W. 162.

Payment of compensation.—See, also, Art. 6505. Where the right of way cannot be obtained by a railroad company across land not belonging to it, until it has been paid for, or payment secured by a deposit of money, G. C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Donahoo, 59 T. 128.

Payment to clerk.—Upon the entry of a decree of condemnation of land for a railroad, it is proper that the money allowed for damages be paid to the county clerk. Such payment satisfies the constitutional requirement that compensation shall be first made or secured by a deposit in money. Const., art. 1, sect. 17; Ackerman v. Huff, 71 T. 317, 9 S. W. 236.

Where a railroad company instituted proceedings in the district court to condemn land for a right of way, while under the statute they should have been in the county court, and the damages awarded by commissioners appointed by the district court were paid to the "clerk" of the county, there was no payment into court as required by statute. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 696.

Time as of which damages are assessed.—In proceedings for condemnation of the right of way, the damage is determined by the value of the land at the time of its appropriation by the company. If the railroad tenders or deposits the amount of damages fixed by the commissioners when their award is made, that act fixes the date and status of the taking, and no evidence of enhancement of value or improvement subsequent to such date is admissible on appeal. When this is not done, the value at the time of the trial of the appeal is the true measure of damages. G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Lyons, 2 App. C. C. § 199.

Where a railroad company seeking to condemn land did not pay into court double the amount of the award of the commissioners, nor execute a bond, as required by this article, to entitle it to take possession, the value of the land sought to be taken must be fixed as of the date of the trial in the county court on appeal from the award of the commissioners. Houston & G. N. R. R. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1155.

Interest.—Where the condemning party, before taking possession, gives security for the payment of compensation in accordance with Const. art. 1, § 17, by depositing in court a sum equal to double the amount of the award with a cost bond, as required by this article, such security is equivalent to a tender of the amount awarded, and stops interest thereon. But, if the award is increased on appeal, the owner is entitled to interest on the increase from the date of possession. Baldwin v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 696.

Possession pending appeal.—A corporation in a condemnation proceeding cannot take possession of the land by depositing the amount of the judgment of the court in the possession of the owner of the land, as a supersedeas bond. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 342.

The fact that the compensation for land condemned by a railroad is deposited in court, and possession of the land is taken by the company before the right of claimants to the fund is determined, held not to render the condemnation invalid as being a taking without compensation. Davidson v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 54, 67 S. W. 1093.

The judgment is not suspended by the giving of an appeal bond. Pending the appeal the railroad company has the right to take possession of the property upon compliance with the terms of the statute although no damages were awarded. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Orange & N. W. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 38, 68 S. W. 501.

This act does not authorize the owners of property who have accepted money paid into court on a judgment in the county court and executed a receipt for the same to appeal so as to suspend the judgment. The manner of appeal is not otherwise changed. The company had to pay the money into court before it could enter upon and take possession of the land. Parks v. Dallas Terminal Ry. & Union Depot Co., 34 C. A. 341, 72 S. W. 534.
RAILROADS

Where double the award for damages is deposited in the registry of the court, but no bond is given by the company seeking condemnation of the land for the payment of any future costs that may be adjudged against it in the court below or upon appeal, the owner is entitled to injunction to restrain the company from taking possession of the land. Hausmann v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 1053.

The Court has complied with this article in taking possession of the land sought to be condemned, an injunction will not lie pending appeal to prevent acting under the proceedings, because there is an adequate remedy at law. Johnston v. O'Rourke (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 553.

The provision that the judgment of the county court shall not be suspended cannot be interpreted as meaning that an appeal by the condemning corporation will not have that effect, for the corporation is given the right to hold possession pending litigation until the final decision of the case. Houston, B. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hornberger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 311.

Damages due to temporary possession.—Where a railroad company, in proceedings to condemn land for a right of way, took possession of the land and proceeded to construct its road, and then moved to dismiss the proceeding, and the court ordered a dismissal, without prejudice to the owner's claim for damages as presented by a pleading filed pending the motion, the company had notice of the claim for damages, and was bound by a judgment therefor. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 226.

The court granting the motion of a railroad company, instituting a proceeding to condemn land for its right of way, to dismiss the proceeding retains jurisdiction to hear and determine the question of the damages sustained by the owner, occasioned by the company in the proceeding, taking possession of the land and proceeding to construct its railroad, irrespective of the amount of the damages. Id.

The Judgment—Sufficiency, effect, etc.—See notes under Art. 6534.

Damages to abutting property from railroad.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Art. 6531. [4472] Practice in case specified.—When any railroad company is sued for any property occupied by it for railroad purposes, or for damages thereto, the court in which such suit is pending may determine all matters in dispute between the parties, including the condemnation of the property, upon petition or cross-bill asking such remedy by defendant, but the plea for condemnation shall be an admission of the plaintiff's title to such property. [Acts 1889, p. 18.]

Action for damages.—See, also, notes under Art. 6505.

The owner of land invaded by a railway, which has left the fences open, does not have to either fence the right of way nor construct the necessary stops or cattle guards in order to maintain his action for the resulting damages. He can sue for these items in the proper court, and the right of way, if not previously condemned, can be awarded the railway and all matters settled in one proceeding. Gregory v. Railroad Co., 21 C. A. 598, 54 S. W. 617.

The right of an owner to sue a railroad company to recover property occupied by it for railroad purposes is expressly recognized by our statutory law. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. Kinkead (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 470.

A landowner, by waiving his right to recover land wrongfully taken for railroad right of way premises, thereby legalizes the possession and grants the easement as of the date of his election, so that upon the award of damages he is entitled to have them fixed as a lien upon the easement granted. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. El Paso & N. E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 561.

Trespass to try title.—See, also, notes under Art. 6505.

In a suit brought in trespass to try title against a railway company, which had, without condemnation, constructed its road across the land for a period long enough to bar the claim of the plaintiff for damages, the district court has no jurisdiction on the application of defendant to change the suit to one condemning the right of way over the land. The defendant could only obtain a condemnation in the manner pointed out by the statute. Railway Co. v. Polidexeter, 70 T. 98, 7 S. W. 316.

Under this article the district court could condemn land for a right of way and award damages as an incident to a suit in trespass to try title, but, since that would require condemning to await final determination of the question of title, he could resort to independent condemnation proceedings instead. Rabb v. La Feria Mut. Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 36.

Pleading.—Where as finally resolved the case is one for condemnation on appellant's cross-plea it seems that no particularity in pleading damages is required. Choclaw O. & T. Ry. Co. v. True, 35 C. A. 309, 80 S. W. 121.

Collateral attack on condemnation proceedings.—Objections to proceedings by a railroad company in condemning real estate held not properly raised by a collateral attack in a suit by the landowner to recover the property. Davidson v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 29 C. A. 54, 67 S. W. 1993.

Measure of compensation.—See Art. 6518 et seq.

Damages to abutting property from railroad.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Waiver, estoppel or limitation of actions.—The occupation of a right of way by consent of the owner for a long period of time will bar an action for its use. Railway Co. v. Sutor, 59 T. 29.

An owner does not waive his right to compensation by failing to object when a railroad is constructed on his land. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Hunnicutt, 18 C. A. 310, 44 S. W. 559.

The fact that agents for a nonresident landowner knew that a railroad company had constructed its track across the land, and took no steps to disseise it, held not to es-

Art. 6532. [4473] The right of way, how construed.—The right of way secured or to be secured to any railroad company in this state, in the manner provided by law, shall not be so construed as to include the fee simple estate in lands, either public or private, nor shall the same be lost by the forfeiture or expiration of the charter, but shall remain subject to an extension of the charter or the grant of a new charter over the same way without a new condemnation. [Act Feb. 7, 1861, p. 12.]

Fee in land.—The fee in land condemned for right of way remains in the original owner. Lyon v. McDonald, 78 T. 71, 14 S. W. 261, 9 L. R. A. 295.

A railroad using land for its right of way for the statutory period, under a verbal gift of a right of way, acquires only an easement, and not the fee. Capps v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 21 C. A. 84, 50 S. W. 643.

Use by owners of fee.—The right of way is subject to such uses by the owner as are consistent with the full exercise by the railroad company of all its rights and the accomplishment of all its ends. Lumber Co. v. Harris, 77 T. 22, 13 S. W. 453; Lyon v. McDonald, 78 T. 71, 14 S. W. 261, 9 L. R. A. 295; Muscle v. Railway Co., 86 T. 459, 25 S. W. 697; Olive v. Railway Co., 11 C. A. 298, 25 S. W. 139.

The owners of the fee under a railroad right of way cannot bore there for oil. Gladys City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. v. Right of Way Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 171.

— Adverse use.—In the absence of proof of the adverse use of a right of way by the abutting owners, the easement of the road will not be lost. Scott v. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 578.

Use by railroad.—The land condemned for right of way can be used only for railroad purposes. Calcasieu Lumber Co. v. Harris, 77 T. 18, 13 S. W. 453.

Land condemned by a railroad company for right of way purposes cannot be used for other purposes. Croley v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 615.

The owners of the fee over which a railroad company had a right of way held not to have acquiesced in the company's boring for oil in the right of way. Gladys City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. v. Right of Way Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 171.

Abandonment.—A right of way acquired by condemnation held subject to be abandoned by nonuser. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 989.

A failure to use land acquired by condemnation for depot purposes for seven years held to cast the burden on the railroad to show the nonuser was not abandonment. Id.

Forfeiture of charter.—The forfeiture of its charter by a railroad for failure to construct its road within the time required by law did not cause the right of way to revert to the original owner, but such easement remained subject to an extension of the charter, or the grant of a new charter over the same way without a new consideration, and it makes no difference whether the right of way is acquired directly from the owner of the fee or by condemnation. Scott v. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 678.

Right of fee.—See also, notes under Art. 4178.

Under this article trespass to try title is a proper remedy of one who claims the fee of land in which a railroad claims a right of way by condemnation, as a determination that the road was entitled to a right of way would not be inconsistent with the determination that the plaintiff was entitled to the fee. Chicago, R. L. & G. Ry. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 989.

Art. 6533. [4474] Right of way reserved out of lands granted to railroad companies.—The right of way is hereby reserved to any railroad companies incorporated by the laws of this state, or that may hereafter be so incorporated, to the extent of one hundred feet on each side of said road, or roads that cross over, or extend through any lands granted, or that may be hereafter granted, to any railroad company by the legislature, with the right to take from the lands so granted such stone, timber and earth as such road may need in the construction of its line of road. [P. D. 7389a.]

Art. 6534. [4475] Right of way vested by judgment of the court. —Whenever the right of way has been acquired, as hereinbefore provided, the judgment of the court shall vest such right in the company so acquiring the same.

Compliance with statute.—One claiming title under condemnation proceedings must show a strict compliance with the statute, and proceedings not in accordance therewith are insufficient. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Vance (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 696.

1. Injuries to abutting property—In general.—As to right of damages to property adjacent to a street along which a railroad is constructed, see Railway Co. v. Odum, 63 T. 572; Railway Co. v. Belt, 63 T. 656; Railway Co. v. Fuller, 63 T. 467; Rosenthal v. Railway Co., 79 T. 325, 15 S. W. 268; Railway Co. v. Downie, 82 T. 383, 17 S. W. 620; McPadden v. Schliss, 84 T. 77, 19 S. Owner of land abutting on a street held not entitled to recover damages for use of street by a railroad. Can Belt R. Co. v. Ridgeway, 38 C. A. 108, 86 S. W. 496.

Laying and maintenance of a commercial railroad track in city streets held to constitute an interference pro tanto from the beginning with the use of the street by the public. Houston, O. L. & M. P. Ry. Co. v. Grossman (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 312.

Property owners on a street in which a railroad is built are entitled to damages for depreciation in value arising either from overflow of their lots, caused by construction of the road, or from operation of trains. Schier v. Cane Belt Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 296, 100 S. W. 360.

Built by an owner of property abutting on a street, for injuries caused by the construction or maintenance by a railroad of a tunnel and approaches in a street, held not a suit for damages to each lot described, considered separately. Burton Lumber Corp. v. City of Houston, 45 C. A. 663, 101 S. W. 822.

If a road located on a railroad's right of way was not a public highway, the railroad could destroy it for its own purposes, if it did so in a lawful manner, without being

Injuries from Construction or Maintenance of Railroad

1. Injuries to abutting property—In general.—The judgment must describe the land sought to be condemned with sufficient certainty to fully identify it. Pt. W. & D. C. R. Co. v. Hogsett, 1 App. C. C. § 444.

The condemnation proceedings must describe the premises condemned with as much certainty as is required in deeds and other conveyances, and vest the right of way thereupon in the company. Parker v. Railway Co., 84 T. 323; 19 S. W. 518; Adams v. San Angelo Water Works Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 165; Railway Co. v. Lamphere, 1 App. C. C. § 308; Railway Co. v. Merkel, 32 T. 723.

Effect of judgment.—A judgment for damages for right of way has the effect of a judgment for defendant for the right of way. Railway Co. v. Kneepfl, 82 T. 270, 17 S. W. 1062.

Right to complain of judgment.—A railroad company seeking to condemn land held not entitled to complain of a judgment establishing its right to condemn and for the owner of the damage found by the jury without finding in favor of the company for the lands sought to be taken. Beaumont & G. N. R. R. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1125.

Reformation of judgment.—A railroad condemning land held to have the right to have the judgment reformed so as to include a tract of land omitted from the petition by mistake. Getzendanner v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 323.

1. Injuries to abutting property—In general.—As to right of damages to property adjacent to a street along which a railroad is constructed, see Railway Co. v. Odum, 63 T. 572; Railway Co. v. Belt, 63 T. 656; Railway Co. v. Fuller, 63 T. 467; Rosenthal v. Railway Co., 79 T. 325, 15 S. W. 268; Railway Co. v. Downie, 82 T. 383, 17 S. W. 620; McPadden v. Schliss, 84 T. 77, 19 S. W. 368; Railway Co. v. Robson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 37.

When a railroad along a street inflicts such special injury on the abutting owner as practically to deprive him of the ordinary use and enjoyment of it, an action for damages will lie, and the right to such damages is not restricted to cases where the street has been exclusively appropriated by the road, or where the road has been unskillfully constructed. G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Hock, 63 T. 245. And see H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Odum, 63 T. 243; G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Eddins, 60 T. 656; G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Fuller, 63 T. 467.

Owner of land abutting on a street held not entitled to recover damages for use of street by a railroad. Can Belt R. Co. v. Ridgeway, 38 C. A. 108, 86 S. W. 496.

Laying and maintenance of a commercial railroad track in city streets held to constitute an interference pro tanto from the beginning with the use of the street by the public. Houston, O. L. & M. P. Ry. Co. v. Grossman (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 312.

Property owners on a street in which a railroad is built are entitled to damages for depreciation in value arising either from overflow of their lots, caused by construction of the road, or from operation of trains. Schier v. Cane Belt Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 296, 100 S. W. 360.

Built by an owner of property abutting on a street, for injuries caused by the construction or maintenance by a railroad of a tunnel and approaches in a street, held not a suit for damages to each lot described, considered separately. Burton Lumber Corp. v. City of Houston, 45 C. A. 663, 101 S. W. 822.

If a road located on a railroad's right of way was not a public highway, the railroad could destroy it for its own purposes, if it did so in a lawful manner, without being

2. — Necessity of compensation.—The rule that private property cannot be taken or damaged for public use without compensation has been extended to include the right of the railroad owner to compensation for damage sustained by himself or his agents as a consequence of the location of the railroad. Helbom v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 62 C. A. 573, 13 S. W. 610, 618, 620. A railroad abutting a street held not liable for damages to an abutting owner. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Powell (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 320. In a suit by an abutting owner for damages from construction of an additional railroad track in a street held, that there was no error in a special charge as to the right to an award. Connor v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 196. A property owner damaged by the construction of a railroad in a street could sue for damages and not be bound to adjust her premises to the new conditions. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 634.

3. 2. — Jurisdiction.—Damages for injury to an abutting lot from the occupation of a street by a railroad can be recovered in the county court. G. C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Graves, 1 App. C. C. §§ 579, 580. Party entitled to recover.—Plaintiffs, in an action against a railroad for damages to abutting property, may recover for permanent injuries, though they had sold the property. Dallas Terminal Ry. & Union Co. v. Ardrey (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 618.

5. — Persons or companies liable.—Railroad held liable for any damages done by a city under a contract with it, where it gave the city permission to do the acts causing the damage and required it to give an indemnifying bond. Couch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 99 T. 464, 90 S. W. 860.

Railroad company held not liable for the act of construction contractors in scattering rocks on adjoining land, where the contractors had not completed the construction of the road or delivered it to the railroad company. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Couch, 56 C. A. 336, 121 S. W. 189; Same v. Carter (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 192. One who employs a contractor exercising an independent employment to do a piece of work is not in general liable for the wrongs of the contractor, his subcontractors, or servants. Id.

"Independent contractor" defined. Id.

Exceptions to the rule of nonliability for the acts of an independent contractor stated. Id.

Where an independent contractor in the prosecution of his work exercises, in whole or in part, a franchise granted to his employer, the latter is liable for his torts. Id.

The defense of independent contractor is not available, where the work done is caused by the manner of its execution involves a duty to the public incumbent on the proprietor or employer. Id.

The defense of independent contractor is not available, where the injury is the direct or proximate result of the work to be done. Id.

The defense of independent contractor is not available where the act contracted to be done is wrongful or tortious in itself. Id.

The defense of independent contractor is not available, where the proprietor interferes with the contractor in the performance of the work, or it has been completed and accepted. Id.

Statement as to individual liability for injury to property from construction and operation of a railroad, where one company constructs and continues to own and permit other companies to run their trains thereon. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1137.

6. — Cause of injury.—In an action for damages to property caused by the construction of a railroad, plaintiff held not required to show what part of the damage is attributable to the construction of the road and what part to other causes. Pochilis v. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 398, 73 S. W. 255.

7. — Negligence.—Where a gate opening onto a railroad right of way was used by the public, and cattle entered and destroyed plaintiffs' crops, plaintiffs could not recover from the railroad company without proof that the damage was caused by its fault. Gulf, B. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 38 C. A. 224, 85 S. W. 461. In an action against a railroad company for injuries to property, by constructing the railroad track in the defense that the roadbed and track were constructed with skill and care and the trains carefully handled. Schier v. Cane Belt Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 295, 100 S. W. 369.

Under the constitutional provision that one's property shall not be taken or damaged without his consent, one may recover for damages caused by the construction of a railway spur track nearby without proof of negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis, 45 C. A. 212, 100 S. W. 1013.

The right of an owner of property abutting on a street to recover for damages caused by the operation of trains on the street held not to depend on a defective con-

8. Measure of damages.—Measure of damages for construction of a railroad in front of plaintiff's property held the difference in the values immediately before and immediately after the construction. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 280.

The measure of damages to property from construction and operation of a railroad in a street is the difference in its market value just before and just after the construction. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Eddings, 30 C. A. 117, 70 S. W. 98.

The measure of damage to property by the construction of a railroad held to be the difference in value with and without the railroad. Boyer & Lucas v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1098.

In an action against a railroad company for damages to property abutting on a street in which the tracks were laid, an instruction on the measure of damages held not erroneous. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. v. Clifford (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 168.

In an action by an owner of property abutting on a street, for injuries caused by the construction and operation of a railroad and its approaches in the street, the abutting owner held not entitled to damages on the theory that the street had been discontinued. Burton Lumber Corp. v. City of Houston, 46 C. A. 363, 101 S. W. 82.

The measure of damages to adjoining property by construction of a railroad on a raised grade in a street is the difference in market value. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 634.

9. Matters to be considered in general.—In an action against a railroad company for damages to certain property, caused by the construction of a railroad adjacent thereto, the fact that the plaintiff's possession extended into the street occupied by the railroad company, and that he had not acquired the right thereto, was a proper subject of consideration in determining the extent of the injury. Pochilla v. Calveri, W. & B. V. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 398, 72 S. W. 255.

10. Trespass.—See, also, notes under Arts. 6566, 6631.

Railroad held liable for damages to real property by throwing dirt beyond the limits of its prescriptive right on a highway. Tietze v. International & G. N. R. Co., 35 C. A. 139, 80 S. W. 124.

Railroad held liable for damages to real property by trimming trees in an unwanted manner beyond the limits of its prescriptive right on a highway. Id.

11. When a railroad is so constructed along a street as to deprive the owner of free ingress and egress to an adjacent lot, the owner is entitled to recover damages resulting therefrom. Williams v. G. C. & S. F. R. R. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 312.

The measure of damages for a railroad company wrongfully obstructing the entrance to one's place of business held the loss of profits in the business thereby sustained. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Capers, 53 C. A. 283, 77 S. W. 39.

In actions for damages to land rendered inaccessible by a railroad embankment, the measure of damages stated. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hughes, 36 C. A. 472, 81 S. W. 1235.

Whatever impairs the right to free access and egress to a lot constitutes damage within the meaning of Const, art. 1, § 17. Powell v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 104 T. 219, 135 S. W. 1153. 66 L. R. A. (N. S.) 615.

12. Increased traffic.—An owner of land abutting on a street on which a railroad maintained and operated its tracks held entitled to recover for the damages resulting in consequence of the increase of traffic. Hutcherson v. International & G. N. R. Co., 102 T. 471, 119 S. W. 85.

Plaintiff, in an action for damages by the use of a street by a railroad company, held not precluded from relief on the theory that the action involved a mere increase of operation. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 634.

13. Switches or spur tracks.—An adjoining landowner held entitled to recover for damages to his property by the construction of a railway spur track without proof that it is used in such manner as in law constitutes a nuisance, though it is used only as a private switch. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis, 45 C. A. 212, 100 S. W. 1013.

An adjoining owner held not entitled to recover damages for the construction of a railroad spur track in a street unless he showed actual damages. Lloyd v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 266.

14. Cuts or excavations.—A railroad held liable for negligently constructing a cut adjoining plaintiff's land, where the damage could have been prevented by building retaining walls. Nading v. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 97.

Plaintiff may recover the expense incurred in good faith to prevent damage to his property, including the value of his labor. Id.

The jury could consider the value of the property at the time of the excavation, and the amount of injury thereto as developed by the subsequent caving of the bank resulting from the negligent construction. Id.

Owner of property adjacent to a railroad cut held not entitled to recover compensation for depreciation in value of his property by reason of the cut, no other injury being shown. Heilbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A. 675, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

In an action against a railroad for damage to adjacent property, caused by excavating in a road which the company claimed was a part of its right of way, evidence held to show that the property had been actually damaged by the excavation. Id.
15. Annoyance, discomfort and inconvenience.—In a suit for damages caused by the maintenance of railroad yards near plaintiff’s dwelling, plaintiff may recover, not only for injuries to his property, but for personal injury and inconvenience to himself and family. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 36 C. A. 121, 81 S. W. 781.

16. Noise, vibrations, smoke, noxious odors and clinders.—One owning property adjoining a street in which a railway track was built may recover for noise, vibrations, smoke, etc., from the increased danger from fire incident to and resulting from the operation of trains, if such matters are sufficient to reduce the value of the property. Dallas Terminal Ry. & Union Co. v. Ardrey (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 616.

17. Prospective damages.—All damages, present and prospective, done to abutting property by the construction of a railroad in the street, must be sued for in one action. Settlegast v. Houston, O. L. & M. V. Ry. Co., 38 C. A. 291, 37 S. W. 97.

An abutting owner on a street on which a commercial railroad is located has only one action for injury to his property by the non-tortious existence or operation of the railroad. Hutchinson v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1105.

A railroad for injury against a neighboring property from noises, vibrations, smoke, etc., from a railway built in a public street, is entitled to damages for any present or prospective injury which would lessen the value of the property and is not limited to damage from such negligence in the construction and laying of the road as occurred prior to a sale of the property. Dallas Terminal Ry. & Union Co. v. Ardrey (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 616.

19. Injunction.—See Title 69 and notes.

20. Defenses.—The owner of a street on which a railway is operated suffered similar damages will not prevent a recovery of damages suffered by plaintiff. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Bulgier (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1047.

A landowner held not bound to use ordinary care and to make a reasonable expenditure to prevent damage from a railroad’s negligence in laying or rebuilding fences, etc., in the construction of its right of way. Kendall v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 757.

That a city gave its consent to a change of street grade by a railroad company did not render the work compulsory, nor relieve the railroad company from liability to abutting owners for damages sustained thereby. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 634.

In an action for damages for raising the grade of a railroad and obstructing the crossing, that the injury was common to all other property property fronting on the street will not bar plaintiff’s right of recovery. Powell v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 104 T. 219, 135 S. W. 1163, 46 L. R. A. (N. S.) 615.

22. Pleadings.—See notes under Art. 1837.

23. Evidence.—See also, ante, and notes under Art. 2677.

In an action to recover damages to a farm, owing to the acts of a railroad company, a verdict for the full sum claimed held not sustained by the evidence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wiegriffe (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 704.

24. Instructions.—See Chapter 13 of Title 37 and notes.

25. Limitation of actions.—See Title 87 and notes.

26. Negligence in construction or maintenance.—See, also, “Injuries to abutting property,” ante, and “Nuisances,” post.

Where a railroad company lays its track along or across a highway, it is bound to use every reasonable precaution to prevent injury to these passing along the highway or crossing its track, and in default thereof is liable in damage for injuries sustained by those using reasonable care in approaching the obstruction. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Self, 2 App. C. C. § 438.

A railroad company has no right to obstruct the highway longer than is necessary for the transit or crossing of its train. The burden of proof rests upon the company to show that an obstruction for one-half hour was necessary and reasonable, and could not have been avoided by the use of proper care. What would be a reasonable time to obstruct a highway with a train is a question to be determined by the jury upon the evidence. Id.

A railroad company is not limited to that plan of construction which would inflict the least injury upon the landlord, but it may construct the road upon its own plan of selection, so that it is suited for the purpose intended and is done in a careful and skilful manner, etc. Railway Co. v. Richards, 11 C. A. 95, 32 S. W. 96.

Defendant railroad company held negligent in permitting oil which escaped from its tanks and flowed into a ravine near plaintiff's residence, where it could have prevented it from doing so, even though it could not have prevented its escape from the tanks. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Crook, 56 C. A. 28, 120 S. W. 594.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant was negligent. Id.

Evidence held to sustain a verdict for plaintiff for $500 for the personal discomfort suffered. Id.

Evidence held to show that a carrier was liable to the owner for the loss of the goods, and hence liable to a third person for injuries caused by the goods. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fowler, 57 C. A. 556, 122 S. W. 593.

27. Injuries to children.—The owner of land is not required to provide against remote and improbable injuries to children trespassing thereon. But he is liable when it is known to them that they are accustomed to go upon it, and that, from the peculiar nature and exposed condition of something thereon which is attractive to children, he ought reasonably to anticipate such injury as occurs. Evansich v. Railway Co., 57 T. 126, 44 Am. Rep. 688; Railway Co. v. Moore, 59 T. 64, 46 Am. Rep. 285; Railway Co. v. McWhirter, 77 T. 366, 14 S. W. 26, 19 Am. St. Rep. 755; Railway Co. v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 815.

A railroad company is not liable for an injury to a child playing about an unguarded turntable, without invitation, and the turntable was not unusually attractive to children. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Morgan, 92 T. 98, 46 S. W. 28.

In an action for injuries to a child on an unguarded turntable, an instruction withdrawing from the jury the invitation inferable from the unusual attractiveness of the turntable is properly refused. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Skidmore, 27 C. A. 229, 65 S. W. 215.

Where an invitation to children to go on a turntable to play is inferable from its attractiveness, it is immaterial upon whose premises a child was when she accepted the invitation to play thereon. Id.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff, a minor, from hot water and steam escaping from a railroad pumping station, facts held to show that defendant was guilty of negligence which was the proximate cause of the injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bulger, 35 C. A. 478, 80 S. W. 557.

Facts held insufficient to show an implied invitation by defendant railroad company to the public or plaintiff's child to use stone steps of a railroad bridge abutment as a passageway. Railway Co., 49 C. A. 18, 85 S. W. 379.

Where plaintiff's child, in using the stone abutment of a railroad bridge as a passway, was a trespasser, the railroad company owed him no duty, except to avoid willfully injuring him. Id.

28. Measure of damages.—Where crops are destroyed from the want of repairs of the fence which could have been made at a moderate cost, the measure of damages would be an amount of money sufficient to make the necessary repairs. Railway Co. v. Simonton, 2 C. A. 558, 22 S. W. 285.

The measure of damages for the destruction of a gambling device is its salable value to the owner. Railway Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1915.

Exemplary damages cannot be recovered on account of the willful or malicious conduct of the defendant's employé, but such conduct can be considered with reference to the special damages. Railway Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 1022; Dillingham v. Russell, 73 T. 47, 11 S. W. 139, 3 L. R. A. 634, 15 Am. St. Rep. 752; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 82 T. 516, 17 S. W. 1039, 27 Am. St. Rep. 902; Railway Co v. Mother, 5 C. A. 67, 24 S. W. 79.

Actual damages cannot be recovered for mental anguish caused by fright without physical injury. Railway Co. v. Hitt (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1084.

29. — Spread of disease.—A railroad company is liable for the spread of a contagious disease through the negligence of its servants acting within the scope of their authority, whereby another is injured as the proximate result of such negligence. Melvold v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 709.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries sustained by its negligence in permitting a section house to become infected with smallpox, which was communicated to plaintiff, evidence held insufficient to show negligence. Id.

30. — Excavations.—That a railroad company intended, when it partly closed a street while it was making an excavation thereon, that the walk laid across it should only be used by its employés, did not make others who might use it trespassers, unless its intention was communicated to the public in some manner. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schuessler, 56 C. A. 410, 120 S. W. 1147.

If the public could assume that the walk was placed there for its use and defendant permitted such use, it was bound to use ordinary care to keep it in safe condition. Id. Evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence in using the walk. Id.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not a trespasser in going upon the walk. Id.

Evidence held to raise the issue whether defendant did not impliedly invite the public to use the passage way by failing to completely close it. Id.

33. — Chapter 8 of Title 37.

34. Nuisances—in general.—See, also, “Injuries to abutting property” and “Negligence in construction or maintenance,” ante.

Where a railroad company, lawfully occupying a street, constructed a ditch along its right of way, in which waters stagnated and polluted the air, it was a nuisance, for which the company was liable in damages to an abutting owner. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Ridgeway, 33 C. A. 108, 85 S. W. 496.

The mere increased use of a right of way granted a railroad over a street over what may have originally been contemplated, resulting from the erection of a depot on land adjoining the street, held not to constitute a nuisance. Oklahoma City & T. R. Co. v. Dunham, 39 C. A. 575, 88 S. W. 849.

A railroad required to repair a track after a wreck of a train carrying petroleum held not to delay the repair of the track to lessen the damage to adjacent property by preventing the flow of oil thereon. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Anderson, 44 C. A. 394, 98 S. W. 440.

The legislature held to have power to legalize a nuisance arising from the operation of a railroad. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Groff (Cliv. App.) 110 S. W. 1006.

A railroad company subdividing and selling its lands, but reserving a right, held not to reserve the right to create, or to give a lessee the right to erect, a nuisance on the right of way. Stark v. Coe (Cliv. App.) 134 S. W. 373.

35. — Cause of injury.—Where a nuisance created by a railroad company, together with a similar nuisance on adjoining land for which the railroad company was not responsible, combined to cause plaintiff’s injury, the railroad company was liable for its portion of the injury so sustained. McFadden v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 41 C. A. 350, 92 S. W. 969.

Where real estate has been depreciated in value by reason of the erection of railroad stock pens near it, the owner is entitled to damages, though property generally, including the real estate in question, has increased in value since the erection of the pens. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blue, 46 C. A. 239, 102 S. W. 128.

The measure of damage in an action against a railway company for injuries to property resulting from its erection and use of a turntable and water tank determined. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Perry, 46 C. A. 374, 102 S. W. 1169.

A railroad company establishing on its right of way a turntable and water tank is liable for the depreciation of the value of adjacent property resulting from the use of the same. Id.

37. Annoyance, discomfort and inconvenience.—Property owner held entitled to recover damages sustained by personal annoyance and inconvenience suffered by her and her family on account of operation of railway near her residence. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Shaw (Cliv. App.) 83 S. W. 917.

Damages cannot be recovered for personal inconvenience resulting naturally and without negligence from the operation of cars and engines. Oklahoma City & T. R. Co. v. Scarborough, 43 C. A. 338, 95 S. W. 1069.

In an action against a railway company for injuries resulting from the erection and use of a turntable and water tank, one may recover for personal annoyance and discomfort caused by coal dust, etc., produced in constructing a railroad. Cantelou v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Cliv. App.) 101 S. W. 1017.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries resulting from the erection and use of a turntable and water tank, one may recover for personal annoyance and discomfort without reference to the care exercised by the company, where the maintenance of the structures amounts to a nuisance. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Perry, 46 C. A. 374, 102 S. W. 1169.

38. Noise, cinders, etc.—A railroad company is not liable for damages for annoyance from the noise, cinders, etc., caused by a reasonable use of its switch tracks. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Barr, 44 C. A. 571, 99 S. W. 437.
A railroad company cannot defeat liability for nuisances arising from unnecessary noises because railroads generally are operated in the same way. Passons v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 435.

A railroad company constructing and maintaining, as authorized by ordinance, tracks in a street for the storage and loading and unloading of cars, in connection with its depot, is not liable for injuries to an abutting owner, caused by noises, dust, clinders, and odors, though the tracks were originally constructed for private concerns, and though the private concerns are deriving more benefit from the tracks than the general public, since the company could, under Art. 6504, have condemned the land for the tracks if owned by the abutting owner, especially where the construction and operation of the tracks did not depreciate the value of the abutting property but enhanced its value. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Mapses (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 528.

Evidence.—See, also, note under Art. 3587.

In an action for maintaining stagnant water on a railway right of way held insufficient to show that typhoid fever in plaintiff's family was caused by condition of defendant's right of way. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Craft (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 170.

In an action by a householder, who lived adjacent to a railroad company's yard, evidence held sufficient to support a verdict that the operation of engines and cars was so careless as to be a nuisance. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Passons (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 239.

Defenses.—A railroad held not entitled to use a street for a switchyard which constituted a nuisance to adjoining property owners because such nuisance existed before such property owners built their houses. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 177.

In an action for damages against a railroad on the ground that a water tank constituted a nuisance reasonable necessity for the location of the tank held no defense. Const. art. 1, § 17. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Edington, 100 T. 498, 101 S. W. 441, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 988.

Injuries from operation of trains.—See notes at end of Chapter 19 of this title.

Injuries to passenger, baggage or freight.—See Art. 707 et seq.

Injuries to employees.—See Chapter 14 of this title.

Injuries to animals on or near tracks.—See Art. 6603 and notes.

Notice of claim for damages.—See Art. 5714.

CHAPTER NINE

OTHER RIGHTS OF RAILROAD CORPORATIONS

Art. 6535. [4476] Shall have succession, etc.—All railroad corporations shall have succession, and in their corporate name may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 142, sec. 4.]

Art. 6536. [4477] May have a seal.—Any such corporation may have and use a seal, which it may alter at pleasure. [Id.]

Art. 6537. [4478] Shall have the right to purchase and hold lands and other property.—Any railroad company shall have the right to purchase, hold and use all such real estate and other property as may be necessary for the construction and use of its railway and the stations and other accommodations necessary to accomplish the objects of its incorporation, and to convey the same when no longer required for the use of such railway. [Id. p. 143, secs. 6, 23.]

Gravel pits.—A railway company can acquire land for the facilities in obtaining gravel to keep its road in repair. Small v. McMurphy, 11 C. A. 409, 32 S. W. 788.

Grants for right of way, etc., construction, conditions, use of land, etc.—See notes under Art. 6538.
Art. 6538. [4479] Shall have the right to receive and hold grants, etc.—Such corporations shall have the right to take, hold and use such voluntary grants of real estate and other property as shall be made to it in aid of the construction and use of its railway, and to convey the same when no longer required for the uses of such railway, in any manner not incompatible with the terms of the original grant. [Id.]

Grants for right of way or other purposes—Authority of husband.—The husband cannot convey the right of way across the separate property of his wife. T. & P. R. Ry. v. Durrett, 57 T. 497; G. C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Donaloo, 59 T. 128; Railway Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 324.

The husband may, without being joined by his wife, grant a right of way to a railroad company across a tract of land belonging to himself and wife and occupied by them as a home, the use of right of way by the railroad does not materially affect the right of the wife to the enjoyment and the use and occupancy of the land for homestead purposes Randall v. Tex. Cent. R. R. Co., 63 T. 586.

Certainty.—The grant of "a right of way" across a certain land is sufficiently certain and carries with it the right to use every part thereof within the limits of the right of way. Olive v. Railway Co., 11 C. A. 298, 33 S. W. 139.

Title, estate or interest acquired.—See, also, Art. 6531 and notes.

The intention of the grantor to convey to a railroad only an easement for a right of way held to control a certain deed. Giada City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. v. Right of Way Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 171.

A deed granting a right of way together with the right to take minerals held to give a right to take only surface minerals. Id.

A contract conveying a railroad right of way held to convey a mere easement, and not to give the railroad company the right to bore for oil or prospect for minerals. Id.

Under a parol agreement by the owner that defendant's right of way could be located across a switch on the land, and that if no switch was located he should be paid $4 per acre, the railroad, without locating the switch or paying for the land, did not obtain any interest or title to the land in the nature of an easement. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 253.

Covenants and conditions.—The right of way over land having been granted a railroad company, consideration that a depot would be established and maintained on the land, the owner of the land has a cause of action against the railroad for removing the depot although the removal was made by the receiver of the railroad under the orders of the court. Levy v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 941.

A contract for a right of way held an executory contract and a condition therein a condition precedent. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 96.

Landowner who had conveyed an easement of right of way under conditions not performed held not required to tender back the money consideration before suing to recover the land. Id.

Fact that a lumber company contracting for a right of way upon condition that it would incorporate and operate a railroad could not itself do so would not render the condition impossible of performance and, therefore, void, assuming it to be a condition subsequent. Id.

Construction and effect.—The grant of the right is a waiver of a claim for damages in deprecation in value or in convenience, not resulting from want of care or skill in location or construction of the road. Railway Co. v. Adams, 58 T. 476; Railway Co. v. Lougorno (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1026.

When made without any reservation, it is a waiver of a right to damages caused by the removal of timber therefrom. Railway Co. v. McKinney, 55 T. 176; Faires v. Railway Co., 50 T. 43, 15 S. W. 811.

In determining the construction to be placed on a grant of a right of way, certain facts held to indicate that the land should not be used for a switchyard. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, 36 C. A. 121, 81 S. W. 781.

Use of lands or rights acquired.—See, also, Art. 6542 and notes.

As to grant of right of way and its uses, see Olive v. Railway Co., 11 C. A. 208, 33 S. W. 139.

A conveyance of land to a railroad company for a right of way held to confer no right to erect stock pens, to the damage of plaintiff's right acquired by a similar claim of title. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. v. Mott, 98 T. 91, 81 S. W. 235, 70 L. R. A. 579.

A voluntary conveyance of lands to a railroad for its right of way gave it no greater right in the matter of erection of buildings, stock pens, etc., thereon, to the detriment of other property, than the railroad would have acquired by a condemnation under the statute. Id.

In an action against a railroad company arising from defendant's unauthorized use as a switchyard of land granted for a "right of way," evidence held sufficient to support a finding that such use was unauthorized. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, 36 C. A. 121, 81 S. W. 781.

Transfer of right of way.—A corporation for public purposes cannot, except with the consent of the authority which created it, render itself incapable of performing its corporate duties to the public, by contract of lease, sale or otherwise. Railway Co. v. Morris, 67 T. 692, 4 S. W. 156.

A grant of the right of way to one company does not authorize it to transfer the right of way to another without the consent of the owner of adjacent land. Railway Co. v. Tatom, 76 T. 373, 13 S. W. 270, 8 L. R. A. 150.

Abandonment or forfeiture.—See, also, Art. 6531.

A railroad company held not to forfeit its right of way for failure to comply with the contract to pay without litigation for stock of grantor killed. Beaumont Pasture Co. v. S聪en & E. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 543.

A railroad which graded its right of way, paid taxes, and never ceased trying to use it for railroad purposes, and finally succeeded in so doing cannot be held to have abandoned it, though when first graded the company put gates in each fence and the owners Licenses.—The license to a railroad which results when a landowner permits its line to be constructed on his land, without objection, cannot be revoked after the track has been constructed, so long as it is used in the operation of the railroad. Ft. Worth & N.

Construction of release.—A release by a property owner to a proposed railway run-
S. W. 334.

Estoppel.—Acceptance by a railroad of deed from settler to part of a right of way granted by the state held not to estop the railroad from suing for the entire grant.

By acceptance of contract wherein it admitted another's ownership of one-half the width of its right of way granted to it by the state, railroad company held estopped therefore to claim the same. Id.

Art. 6539. [4480] Shall alienate lands, except, etc.; forfeiture.—
All lands acquired by railroad companies under the provisions of this chapter, or any general laws, shall be alienated by said companies, one-half in six years, and one-half in twelve years, from the issuance of patents to the same, and all lands so acquired by railroad companies, and not alienated as herein required, shall be forfeited to the state and become a part of the public domain and liable to location and survey as other unappropriated lands. All lands purchased by or donated to a railroad corporation, except such as are used for depot purposes, reservations for the establishment of machine shops, turnouts and switches, shall be alienated and disposed of by said company in the same manner and time as is required when lands have been received from the state. [Id. Amend. 1895, Sen. Jour. No. 84, p. 482.]

Art. 6540. [4481] Preceding articles to apply to all companies.—
The three preceding articles shall apply to such corporations as are prohibited by their acts of incorporation from purchasing or receiving donations of land, as well as to those corporations that are not so prohibited.
[Id. p. 143, sec. 6.]

Art. 6541. [4482] Right to convey persons and property.—Such corporation shall have the right to receive and convey persons and property on its railway by the power and force of steam or by any mechanical power. [Id. p. 147, sec. 23.]

Contract to ship certain tonnage.—Where a contract with a proposed road securing the transportation of certain freight for a term of years has been performed by the construction of the road, refusal of specific performance in its behalf would be inequitable.

Where the specific performance of a contract with a railroad company will enable it to earn operating expenses, and without the revenue secured by such performance it cannot operate specific performance cannot be refused because the company has an adequate remedy at law. Id.

Plaintiff railroad held not entitled to specific performance of a contract by defendant to deliver a percentage of its tonnage to plaintiff for transportation. Lone Star Salt Co.

Art. 6542. [4483] Right to erect and maintain buildings, etc.—
Such corporation shall have the right to erect and maintain all necessary and convenient buildings and stations, fixtures and machinery for the accommodation and use of passengers, freights and business interests, or which may be necessary for the construction or operation of its railway; but no railway company shall have the power, either by its own employés or other persons, to construct any buildings along the line of their railroad to be occupied by their employés or others, except at their respective depot stations and section houses, and at such places only such buildings as may be necessary for the transaction of their legitimate business operations, and for shelter for their employés, nor shall they use, occupy or cultivate any part of the right of way over which their respective roads may pass, with the exception aforesaid, for any other purpose than the construction and keeping in repair their respective railways. [Id.]

Fixtures.—Railway fixtures defined. Railway Co. v. Danman (Civ. App.) 35 S. W.
947.

Right of way limited to use as such.—The right of way acquired by condemnation is limited to the use of the premises for the purposes of a right of way as defined by the

Art. 6542 RAILROADS

A voluntary conveyance of right of way gives a railway company no greater right to erect stock pens and other objectionable buildings thereon than if the company had acquired the right of way by condemnation proceedings. M. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mott, 58 T. 91, 81 S. W. 288, 70 L. R. A. 679.

Under this statute a railway has not the right to erect upon the right of way stock pens or any other improvements which in themselves would constitute a nuisance to those persons residing in proximity to the place of their location.

This article and Art. 6504 seem to contemplate that a condemnation merely for right of way does not embrace or imply a use for machine or repair shops or yards, but that when such things are necessary property should be acquired or condemned for such purpose. When such land is condemned for one purpose it may not be used for another purpose without compensation. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 36 C. A. 121, 81 S. W. 785.

Does not apply to land owned in fee.—This article does not apply to land in which a railway company owns an estate in fee, although its track is built upon it. Calculasie Lumber Co. v. Harris, 77 T. 18, 13 S. W. 453.

This article does not apply to lands owned by a railway company in fee, and hence, where such ownership exists, an owner of a lot adjoining a right of way cannot rely upon the statute to defeat the company's right to construct a fence along the line of such lot.

Art. 6543. [4484] Right to regulate time, etc., of transportation.

Such corporation shall have the right to regulate the time and manner in which passengers and freight shall be transported, and the compensation to be paid therefor, subject nevertheless to the provisions of this or any other law that may hereafter be enacted. [Id.]

Regulations of carrier.—See, also, Art. 6552. A regulation by a railway company requiring persons engaged in hauling freight from its depot to receive the same on the platform from its servants, and not enter the warehouse for the purpose of there checking off freight, is a reasonable regulation which it has the right to enforce. Donovan v. T. & F. R. R. Co., 64 T. 519.

A regulation that one of several trains should not stop at all stations is reasonable. Railway Co. v. White, 4 App. C. C. § 259, 17 S. W. 419.

Railway companies may make reasonable regulations for the conduct of their business, the conduct of passengers, etc. Railway Co. v. Moody (Cliv. App.) 30 S. W. 574.

Railroad companies may run their trains at any time and at any rate of speed, using reasonable care and precaution to prevent injury to persons at crossings. Central T. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Bush, 12 C. A. 291, 34 S. W. 133.

This article does not justify an instruction in an action against a carrier for delay in delivering stock, that the carrier had a right to regulate the time to be occupied by its trains in the transportation of cattle between two points, and that the law presumes that the time fixed by the carrier was reasonable. T. & F. Ry. Co. v. Currie, 33 C. A. 277, 76 S. W. 819.

Art. 6544. [4486] Right to borrow money, issue bonds, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right, from time to time, to borrow such sum of money as may be necessary for constructing, completing, improving or operating its railway, and to issue and dispose of its bonds for any amount so borrowed, and to mortgage its corporate property and franchise to secure the payment of any debt contracted by such corporation for the purposes aforesaid, subject, however, to other provisions of this title. [Id. p. 147, sec. 23.]

Effect of foreclosure.—See, also, Art. 6634 et seq.

Under the statute authorizing a railway company to borrow money to construct, complete, improve or operate its road, and to give mortgages therefor, a purchaser may acquire title to the road by sale under a power in such a mortgage, or title may be acquired by purchase under judicial sale to pay such indebtedness. After such a sale the corporate existence continues, and the purchaser becomes in effect a stockholder of the corporation.

Railway Co. v. Morris, 67 T. 692, 4 S. W. 166.

Art. 6545. [4487] Mortgage invalid, unless, etc.—No mortgage by such corporation shall be valid, unless authorized by a resolution adopted by a vote of two-thirds of all the stock of such company, after notice in a manner provided in this title for increasing the capital stock of such corporations. [Id.]

Extension of previous lien.—Where a party has a lien on a railroad and its equipment for labor done and material furnished to give such party a valid mortgage on the road property to secure the payment of the debt it is not necessary to follow the requirements of Art. [4487] in order to secure for itself a lien on the railroad property. G. B. & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Fontaine, 23 C. A. 519, 57 S. W. 874.

Art. 6546. [4488] Resolution authorizing mortgage shall be recorded.—When any such resolution has been adopted in the manner provided in the preceding article, it shall be recorded in the office of the secretary of state, and no such resolution shall take effect until so recorded. [Id.]

Art. 6547. [4489] Directors may pay bonds with stock.—The directors shall be empowered, in pursuance of any such resolution, to confer on any holder of any bond for money so borrowed as aforesaid, the right to convert the principal of such bond into the stock of such corporation at any time not exceeding ten years after the date of such bond, under such regulations as may be provided in the by-laws of such corporation. [Id.]

Art. 6548. [4490] When terminus on coast is destroyed.—Any railway company in the state of Texas having a terminus on the coast, the said terminus being a county site, and the same having been destroyed by storms and cyclones, and when said county site has been removed back from the coast near the line of said railway, it shall be lawful for said railway company to remove and take up its track from its original terminus on the coast to a point opposite or near said new county site; provided, said railway company make its terminus at and build its road to said new county site. [Acts 1887, p. 6.]

Article 6549 [4491] Road shall pass through county seat, when.

No railroad hereafter constructed in this state shall pass within a distance of three miles of any county seat without passing through the same and establishing and maintaining a depot therein, unless prevented by natural obstacles, such as streams, hills or mountains; provided, such town or its citizens shall grant the right of way through its limits and sufficient ground for ordinary depot purposes. [Const., art. 10, sec. 9.]

Constitutionality.—The statute authorizing the recovery of a penalty for failure to comply with Const. art. 10, § 9, requiring railroads to pass through county seats within three miles of the line of road, is not unconstitutional. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

Reasonable construction.—The provisions of this article should be given a reasonable construction both as to natural obstacles or otherwise. Felton v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 650.

Remedy for breach of duty.—Private citizens of a county seat through which a railroad fails to construct its line, although it passes within three miles thereof, and who offered a right of way and depot, can maintain mandamus to compel the railroad to construct through the line where the municipal officers fail to act. Felton v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 650.

Under Const. art. 10, § 9, of which this article is a copy, if the town or its citizens grant a right of way and sufficient ground for ordinary depot purposes, the state may maintain a suit to compel compliance therewith by mandamus or mandatory injunction; the right of action not being vested exclusively in the town or its citizens, since the state is interested in the enforcement of its constitution and laws. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

A suit need not be brought before road is built.—The courts may compel railroad companies to comply with Const. art. 10, § 9, requiring railroads to pass through county seats within three miles of the line of road, although the road has passed the town before suit is filed. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

Sufficiency of petition.—In an action by the state for a writ of mandamus or mandatory injunction to compel compliance with Const. art. 10, § 9, of which this article is a literal copy, and to recover a penalty for the company’s willful failure and refusal to comply therewith, a petition which alleged that the company had constructed its road within three miles of the county seat, an unincorporated town of about 400 inhabitants, without passing through it and without establishing and maintaining a depot, as required by the laws of the state, the citizens of the town having tendered to it, prior to the construction of the road, a practicable right of way through its limits and sufficient ground for ordinary depot purposes, that there were no natural obstacles to prevent it passing through the town, that the state and the people thereof had an interest in and deserve to have the company comply with such provisions, and a depot maintained in the town for the convenience and transaction of their business with county officials and with the various courts, and for receiving and delivering passengers and freight, and that the company’s failure to comply with the constitution and laws would subject the people of the state to great inconvenience, to which they would not be subjected if the railroad was constructed through the town and a depot established and maintained therein, was not demurrable. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

Limitation of actions.—See notes under Title 7.

Abatement of action.—The pendency of an action brought by citizens of a county seat to compel a railroad company to comply with this section, which is a literal copy of Const. art. 10, § 9, was not ground for abating a subsequent action by the state to compel it to construct its road through the county seat and to recover a penalty for its failure and refusal to do so; the parties and the causes of action asserted not being the same. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

Admissibility of evidence.—An experienced and skilled civil engineer, who had gone over the ground and examined the maps and profiles filed with the railroad commission, could testify that there were no hills, streams, or mountains preventing the building of the road through the town, and that no such obstacles were shown by the maps and profiles, especially where another witness testified to the same effect without objection. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 561.

Conditional Judgment.—In an action by the state to compel the construction of a railroad through a county seat within three miles of its line of road, as required by Const. art. 10, § 9, the judgment ordered the company, within 15 days, to survey a route through the town and locate a depot site, and further ordered that the citizens of the town be allowed 90 days after notice of the completion of the survey to secure the grant of the right of way and sufficient ground for depot purposes, and to tender such grants and bonds therefor, in the event necessary, and that, if such grants and bonds could not be secured voluntarily, such citizens, or any of them, might execute an obligation, to be approved by the judge, conditioned for the payment of all expenses of procuring such right of way and depot grounds by condemnation proceedings, and tender such obligation, and ordered the company, when such tender had been made, to institute the necessary condemnation proceedings and do all other things necessary to secure such right of way and depot grounds, Held, that the judgment was not objectionable as being against the citizens of the town, who were not parties to the suit, since no judgment was rendered against the citizens, but conditions imposed upon them merely as the measure of the company’s obligation and duty, a failure to perform which would release the company from the requirements of the judgment. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 661.

When right of way, etc., must be furnished.—A railroad company, when it determines to pass within three miles of a county seat, must, unless prevented by natural obstacles, survey its line through the town and select a site for depot grounds and not until then does the duty devolve upon the town or the citizens of furnishing such right of way and depot ground. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 661.

Obstacles, etc.—The question whether there were any natural obstacles preventing the construction of the road through the town was one of fact. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 661.

Waiver of statute.—A railroad company offered to construct its line near a county seat and to establish a depot at the nearest point thereto if the citizens of the county seat would grant a right of way through the county free of charge. The offer was unanimously accepted at a mass meeting of 35 or 40 citizens out of a population of 400, and a committee appointed, who, by a contract with the company, obligated themselves to furnish a right of way; the company binding itself to construct the road, but no provision being contained as to establishing a depot. The right of way was obtained, the road constructed, but no depot established. Held, that compliance with Const. art. 10, § 9, of which this article is a copy, had not been waived; the mass meeting having no authority to waive such requirement, and, even if they had, the company not having carried out the offer accepted by the meeting. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 661.

Art. 6550. [4492] Shall survey 25 miles of road, locate depot, etc. —Every railroad company organized under this title shall make an actual survey of its route or line for a distance of twenty-five miles on its projected route, and shall designate the depot grounds along said first twenty-five miles before the roadbed is begun; and no railroad company shall change its route or depot grounds after the same have been so designated. [Act Aug. 15, 1876, p. 142, sec. 5.]

Remedy for change in location of depot.—A railroad company is not liable in damages to property by the depreciation of the value of property, caused by a change of the location of its depot. Railway Co. v. Colburn, 90 T. 230, 33 S. W. 153.

Failure to keep depot open for business.—See, also, Arts. 6591, 6595, 6644.

Where a deed conveying right of way to railroad company recites as part consideration “the establishment of a depot and sidings upon the property” by the company, the parties meant that such depot should be maintained and kept open for business, and if the railroad company fails to maintain and keep the depot open for business it is liable to the grantor in the deed for damages sustained by him by reason of such failure. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 28.

Damages from proximity of railroad.—See, also, notes at end of Chapter 8 of this Title. The mere location of railroad tracks and stations near the property of others, which results in discomfort by reason of noise, smoke, etc., but which causes no depreciation of value, is not sufficient to justify action against the railroad company. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Shaw, 99 T. 539, 92 S. W. 30, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 245, 122 Am. St. Rep. 663.

Taxes to pay railroad subsidies.—See Chapter 18 of Title 136.

Art. 6551. [4493] Subsequent survey of each twenty-five miles of road.—Every railroad company organized under this title shall, on the completion of the first twenty-five miles of its roadbed, make a survey of the next twenty-five miles, and of each subsequent twenty-five miles as the preceding twenty-five miles shall be completed, and every subsequent twenty-five miles shall be controlled by the provisions applicable to the first twenty-five miles of the road. [Id.]

Art. 6552. [4494] Trains to be regular, and notice to be given. —Every such corporation shall start and run their cars for the transportation of passengers and property at regular times to be fixed by public notice, and shall furnish sufficient accommodations for the transportation of all such passengers and property as shall, with a reasonable time previous thereto, offer or be offered for transportation at the place of starting and at junctions of other roads and at sidings and stopping places established for receiving and discharging way passengers and freights, and shall take, transport and discharge such passengers and property at, from, and to such places, on the due payment of the tolls, freight or fare legally authorized therefor. Failure on the part of railroad companies to comply with the requirements of this article shall be deemed an abuse of their rights and privileges and subject to regulation and correction by the railroad commission. [P. D. 4893. Amended Acts 1903, 1 S. S., p. 21.]

Right to fix schedules.—See, also, Art. 6543. A railroad has the right to adopt reasonable regulations with reference to the time of starting and running its trains for the transportation of passengers, the time to be fixed by public notice, and shall take passengers from and to places named. Where a party insists in traveling on the trains, after the schedule has been published, to a point where he is informed the train will not stop, he cannot recover damages for being carried beyond that point. Beauchamp v. Railway Co., 99 T. 236; Railway Co. v. White, 4 App. C. C. § 569, 17 S. W. 419.

Rights of and duties toward passengers.—See, also, Carriers, Title 29.

A late but belated train arrived earlier than had been represented by the defendant's station agent to plaintiff prior to plaintiff's leaving the depot for breakfast held insufficient to raise an inference of negligence from the agent's failure to delay the train, that plaintiff might take passage thereon. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Emmett (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 44.

Delay in transporting freight.—See, also, notes under Art. 6610.

This article provides also for the transportation of property at regular times, and it is held that the shipper who is ready to pay freight can recover damages resulting from delay in transporting freight. Railway Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 482.

Prepayment of freight and other conditions.—Under this article and Art. 6554, making railroads liable for refusal to transport, etc., a complaint in an action for wrongful delay in transportation, alleging that the freight charges were "paid or agreed to be paid when the shipment was tendered," did not sufficiently allege a payment. Dorrance & Co. v. W. & P. R. R. Co., 163 T. 200, 126 S. W. 541.

Under this article and Art. 6554, providing that on refusal so to transport any property, or to deliver the same at the regularly appointed time, the railroad shall pay to the party aggrieved all damages sustained thereby, with cost of suit, etc. Held, that the words "be paid or agreed to be paid when the shipment was tendered," etc., refer to this article and mean in case of the refusal to take under the conditions prescribed in this article. Id.

This article does not contemplate a prepayment of the freight, and hence there was a payment when it the making out of the bill of lading, a draft was given the railroad for the freight, and was forwarded with the bill of lading and paid on presentation. Id.

Where a carrier did not require prepayment of freight charges as authorized by this article, it waived such prepayment, so that failure to prepay was not a defense to an action under Art. 6554, imposing a penalty for delay in transportation. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co., 104 T. 605, 142 S. W. 1163.

Liability for freight charges.—In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, a consignor is generally responsible for the freight charges. Keeling & Field v. Walter Connally & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 232.

Actions for failure to transport.—See notes under Art. 6554.

Art. 6553. Train dispatcher, to maintain, and duties of.—Every such railroad corporation operating trains in this state shall employ a competent train dispatcher whose duty it shall be to keep informed of the movement of all trains upon the lines of such railroad corporation. Said train dispatcher shall also keep all agents at stations having telegraph offices in or near them, informed of the movement of all passenger trains one hour prior to the time such passenger train or trains are due, according to the published schedule at such stations. And in the event any such passenger train is delayed for more than one hour, than the published schedule, then it shall be the duty of such train dispatcher to inform such local agents how late said train is and the last telegraph station passed. If such train dispatcher shall fail or refuse to furnish the information concerning the movement of trains to agents as herein required, then such dispatcher shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars for each offense. [Acts 1903, 1 S. S., p. 21. Acts 1913, p. 318, sec. 1, amending Art. 6553, Rev. St. 1911.]

Duties of dispatcher.—It is the duty of the company to dispatch orders to avoid collision of trains. Railway Co. v. Smith, 76 T. 611, 13 S. W. 562, 18 Am. St. Rep. 78.

It is not error to instruct that a train dispatcher owes to those operating the company's trains the duty to use ordinary care to give such information as is necessary to the operation of the trains in a reasonably safe manner. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 799.

The law does not require that the train dispatcher of a railroad shall give information necessary to enable employees to operate trains safely. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Stewart, 92 T. 540, 59 S. W. 333.

Injuries to servants of railroad.—See Art. 6548 and notes.

Art. 6554. [4496] Refusal to transport passenger or property.—In case of the refusal by such corporation or their agents so to take and transport any passenger or property, or to deliver the same, or either of them, at the regular appointed time, such corporation shall pay to the party aggrieved all damages which shall be sustained thereby, with costs of suit; and in case of the transportation of property shall in addition pay to such party special damages at the rate of five per cent per month upon the value of the same at the time of shipment, for the negligent detention thereof beyond the time reasonably necessary for its transportation; provided, that in all suits against such corporation under this law the burden of proof shall be on such corporations to show that the delay was not negligent. [Acts 1887, p. 116.]

1. Constitutionality.
2. Sufficiency of title of act.
3. Not repealed.
5. Construction.
6. Conditions to be performed by shipper.
7. Failure or refusal to furnish cars or transport.
8. Delay in transportation.
10. Excuses for delay or failure to transport.

1. Constitutionality.—This article does not amount to "cruel or unusual punishment" within the state and federal constitutions. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250. This article is not in violation of Const. art. 16, § 11, providing that contracts for a greater rate of interest than 10 per cent. per annum shall be deemed usurious, since the constitution does not prohibit the legislature from enacting a statute allowing shipper to recover damages for negligent delay in the transportation of their property, even though the amount is fixed at five per cent. per month on the value of the property. Id.

Nor does it violate Const. U. S. Amend. 14, providing that no state shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. Id.

Nor is it contrary to Const. U. S. Amend. 14, forbidding any state to make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States. Id.

This article does not violate Const. art. 1, § 13, declaring that excessive fines should not be imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1163.

2. Sufficiency of title of act.—The title of the act of which this article is a part, "An act to regulate railroad companies," is sufficiently broad to enable the legislature thereunder to prescribe a penalty against railroad companies for delay in the transportation of property, and the article and the damages therein prescribed being germane to the bill, it was proper for the legislature to provide a penalty for its violation. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

3. Not repealed.—Arts. 6670, 6671, prohibit discrimination of traffic. Held, that the object of this article is to prevent negligent delay, and the others to prevent discrimination against a class of traffic, and there being no repugnancy between them, Arts. 6670, 6671, do not repeal this article. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

Art. 6670 provides that if any railroad shall charge or collect a greater or less compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered than it is prescribed by law for any other person for doing a like service it shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination, and Art. 6671 gives a right to recover a penalty and damages for a violation of the statute, the penalty being in a named sum, and Art. 6671 saves the rights of parties to recover under other provisions of the statute. Held, that this article is not repealed by implication by the other statutes, there being no conflict. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs Co., 104 T. 602, 142 S. W. 1163.

4. Nature and purpose.—This article is in the nature of a police regulation, designed to enforce care on the part of railroad companies, and to prevent delay in the transportation of freight. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

5. Construction.—In construing this article the court should ascertain what the legislature intended by the language used therein, and so construe the statute as to carry out the intent of the legislature. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

6. Conditions to be performed by shipper.—If a railroad company refuses to furnish transportation to a shipper, he is not bound to prepare and offer his freight in order to be entitled to damages. H. E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell, 91 T. 651, 45 S. W. 2, 43 L. R. A. 225.

The words on "the refusal," etc., "so to take," etc., refer to Art. 6552, and mean in case of the refusal to take under the conditions prescribed in that article. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 103 T. 200, 125 S. W. 561.

To effectuate a contract of shipment of a corpse with a common carrier, where the body is held by an undertaker for undertaking charges, the person seeking to have the body shipped must satisfy such charges, and it is not the legal duty of the carrier, in anticipation of the shipment, to itself either pay or guarantee them for the shipper. Pacific Express Co. v. Gathright (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1055.

A carrier did not require prepayment of freight charges as authorised by Art. 6552 it waived such prepayment, so that failure to prepay was not a defense to an action under this article for delay in transportation. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1163.

7. Failure or refusal to furnish cars or transport.—See, also, notes under Art. 6678 et seq.

A railway company, failing to take and transport property in the order in which it is offered, is liable for damages resulting therefrom. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 63 T. 322.

A railway company is liable for the damages resulting from failure to furnish cars for shipment of cattle according to contract. Cross v. McFaden, 1 C. A. 461, 20 S. W. 846; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 21 S. W. 601, 3 C. A. 8.

The court of refusal to take and transport property offered, the refusing corporation must pay party aggrieved all damages sustained thereby. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Easlin & Knox, 29 C. A. 579, 88 S. W. 533.

8. Delay in transportation.—Though a railway company which receives cattle for transportation may not contract to carry them on a train devoted to that exclusive purpose, the duty remains to carry them with reasonable dispatch. If in transporting the stock the cars can be stopped and started without doing it so abruptly as to throw the cattle down and injure them, if is the duty of the company to do so. Railway Co. v. Ellison, 76 T. 491, 7 S. W. 785.

This article and Art. 6552 are not applicable to an action for delay in delivering freight tendered the carrier in another state. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stark Grain Co., 103 T. 643, 131 S. W. 410.

9. — Burden of proof.—In an action against a carrier under this article for delay in transportation, the burden was on defendant to show that the delay was not negligent. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1163.

10. Excuses for delay or failure to transport.—When a carrier from an unexpected and unpremeditated press of business is unable to comply with the requirements of this article, it will, in general, furnish a legal excuse for refusing to accept freight. H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Smith, 63 T. 323.

A railway company is not liable for any delay in shipment of goods caused solely by a strike, a violation of strike. Railway company v. Ellison, 14 S. W. 1062; Railway Co. v. Tisdale, 74 T. 8, 11 S. W. 900, 4 L. R. A. 545.

A break in the railroad track, after a breach of a contract to receive and transport cattle, is not a defense in an action for damages. Railway Co. v. McCord, 71 T. 419, 6 S. W. 80.

The plaintiff is not bound by an allegation as to the time when a quarantine went into effect, as the material inquiry was whether the railroads had time to transport the cattle from the time of tender to the time when the quarantine did take effect. Purcell v. T. & P. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 835.

That a car offered by a connecting carrier to defendant for transportation was not suitable or the usual car in which freight was transported, though safe, was no defense to an action for a statutory penalty for such subsequent carrier's delay in transportation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lone Star Salt Co., 26 C. A. 631, 63 S. W. 1025.

The fact that a person is drunk and staggering furnishes no excuse for a railroad company to refuse to receive him as a passenger. But he is so drunk as to be mentally and physically incapable of appreciating and avoiding danger, the company might refuse to receive him unattended. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 53 C. A. 13, 114 S. W. 661.

Where nearly all live stock shipments were received each year by a railroad company in the same season of the year as the shipment of plaintiff, a custom of shippers to give ten or twenty days' prior notice to furnish cars did not delay a connecting carrier of four days in the shipment of plaintiff's stock; plaintiff being under no duty to give such notice. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Leslie (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 824.

The carrier of conditioned fish was not asked to speed delivery of shipments in the usual time was no defense to an action for the penalty for delay in transportation under this article, as a knowledge of the existence of the facts would not be sufficient to charge the shipper with notice of their effect on the carrier. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dorrance & Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 661.

11 Pleading—Petition.—In a suit against a railway company for continuous withholding and refusal to furnish facilities for shipping lumber, an allegation setting forth the points to which it was desired to ship lumber, and a tender and refusal of the freight to such point, need not be averred. Railway Co. v. Morris, 68 T. 49, 3 S. W. 467.

A complaint in an action for wrongful delay in transportation, alleging that the freight charges were "paid or agreed to be paid when the shipment was tendered," did not sufficiently allege a payment. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 103 T. 200, 126 S. W. 561.

The complaint in an action to recover 5 per cent. per month as damages must allege the value of the property, and a petition having annexed certain exhibits of the number and bales of cotton shipped, but not alleging that this was the true value, and further terming the value therein set down as "the invoice value," was insufficient. Id.

In order to recover under this article it is necessary to aver not only a negligent delay, but the specific time of shipment and the value of the goods, and these cannot be supplied by statements in exhibits attached to the petition as to the dates of the bills of lading and the invoice value of the cotton. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694.

In order to recover for delay in transportation of cotton by an initial and a connecting carrier, under this article the petition should allege the dates the shipments were delivered to the connecting carrier, since otherwise there was nothing to show the negligence of the initial carrier between the time it received the shipment until delivery to the connecting line, or of the connecting carrier between the time it received the shipments and delivered them to the consignee. Id.

This article imposes a penalty, and a petition thereunder, failing to allege the value of the property at the time it should have been shipped, or to charge that any delay in delivery at destination resulted, is insufficient. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Cole (Civ. App. 130 S. W. 763). A petition to recover this penalty must allege all the statutory requirements with the same certainty as is required in an indictment. Id.

12. — Answer.—In an action under this article to recover the penalty for delay in the transportation of freight, an answer alleging that there was great prosperity in the country at the time, and that conditions then demanded a trade considerably larger in number of cars than had ever been required, was demurrable, in the absence of any allegation of how the ability of defendant to move freight was thereby affected. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1185.

13. Evidence.—In an action under this article to recover the penalty for delay in transporting goods, evidence of any circumstances which contributed to produce the delay in spite of ordinary diligence on the part of the carrier was admissible to disprove negligence. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1185.

14. Measure of damages.—If a company wrongfully refuses to take produce offered for shipment, it is the duty of the owner to take care of and protect his property thus delayed, and for the expenses thus incurred the company is liable. It is also liable for the loss occasioned by the delay in getting the produce to its market place of destination, to be estimated by ascertaining its price there, when it should have arrived, had it been taken when offered, and its price at the time when it did arrive. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Smith, 142 322.

A carrier's failure to transport and deliver property within a reasonable time is a breach of contract and not a conversion of the goods, and the owner cannot therefore refuse to receive them on account of the delay, and recover their full value, unless the delay or negligence results in the loss of the goods or destroys their full value.

Where there is unreasonable delay in the transportation of articles, the measure of damages is the difference in the market value of the article at the time and place it arrived and would have been delivered. Mo. P. R. R. Co. v. White, 3 App. C. C. § 165. Citing G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 813; Railway Co. v. Byers (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1052.

In an action against a railroad company for damages and for the penalty prescribed by this article for negligent delay in transporting cotton, where plaintiff alleged the value of the cotton and that it was detained beyond the time reasonably necessary for its transportation, they were entitled to recover six per cent. per annum interest on its value for the time it was so delayed as actual damages, and in addition thereto five per cent. per month as special damages for its negligent detention. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

15. — Passengers.—In case of failure to transport passengers in accordance with contract, damages may include mental suffering. Railway Co. v. Berry, 4 App. C. C. § 166, 16 S. W. 48.

The breach of a drover's return passage, occurring on a line on the route not bound by a limited liability contract, entitles the holder of such ticket to actual damages—fare, laying expenses and loss of time; damages for mental suffering not allowed. Railway Co. v. Campbell, 1 C. A. 509, 20 S. W. 846.

16. — Live stock.—In cases of shipping of live animals, the loss for negligent delay may include not only such as arises from a fall in the market, but shrinkage or injury to the animals occasioned by detention and care and expense bestowed upon them. G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Stovall, 3 App. C. C. § 251.

Measure of damages for delay in the transportation of cattle is the deterioration in the value of the cattle from shrinkage and loss of weight. Railway Co. v. Hume, 24 S. W. 253, 5 C. A. 653. See Railway Co. v. Ritchie (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 460; Railway Co. v. Startz (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 575.

The measure of damages for a carrier's failure to furnish cars for the transportation of live stock is the difference between the market value at the destination to which they were taken at the time they were delivered at the place from which they were shipped, less the freight, and the expense of the return journey. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. O'Loughlin Land &attle Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 565.

17. — Penalty.—A contention that the statute implied that other damages accrued and that the 6 per cent. was to be given only 'In addition' to other damages was without merit. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs Co., 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1183.

18. Other remedies.—Construing Art. 709 and this article, each prescribes a penalty for the same act—the former being applicable to all carriers, and the latter to railway companies specifically. Amended Art. 6554 was to make a distinction as to railway companies, and it seems that the latter statute was intended to cover the whole field as to railway companies, and to lay down the only rule for a recovery against them for the particular wrongs it points out. Railway Co. v. Kay, 80 T. 555, 22 S. W. 665.

No matter whether the commission act repeals this article or not, or whether the penalty fixed by the commission law is merely cumulative of the penalty fixed by it, a party has the right to recover the penalty provided in Art. 6671. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Long Star Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1027.

19. Duty to lessen injury.—A shipper is not required to employ another to transport freight to lessen the injury resulting from breach of contract. Railway Co. v. Hodge, 10 C. A. 543, 30 S. W. 829.

Conversion of freight by railroad.—This article does not apply when the case is of negligent conversion. Where it is the conversion and the measure of damages is its value at the time, with legal interest and costs of suit, and the greater damage by way of penalty is not permissible, unless clearly authorized by statute. M., E. & T. Ry. Co. v. Rines & Co., 27 C. A. 619, 84 S. W. 1001.

21. Information as to rates.—Where the complaint, in an action to recover the difference between the rate stated by the interstate shipment and the authorized published rate which he was required to pay, did not show any disregard of his instructions in the matter of routing, or any refusal to transport the shipment by the route carrying the lowest rate, and it is undisputed that he chose and directly not one for damages for refusal of the initial carrier to transport the shipment over the least expensive route, but for damages for failure of the initial carrier to give plaintiff correct information in regard to the rate. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Leslie (Civ.

App.) 131 S. W. 824.

Art. 6555. [4502a] Double-decked cars for sheep, etc.—All railroad companies operating any railroad, or any part thereof, within the limits of this state, are required to provide cars with double decks for the shipment of sheep, goats, hogs and calves; the said cars must be in every way as large as those now in use upon the respective roads of this state; the distance between the floor and the second deck shall be the same as the distance between said second deck and the roof; the floor of said second deck shall be so constructed as to protect the animals beneath; and said cars must be furnished by the railroad company to any person who shall offer to ship at one time hogs, sheep, goats, or calves, in carload lots. [Acts 1887, p. 57, sec. 1; Sen. Jour. 1895, p. 483,

No. 88.]

Demand will be implied.—A demand by the shipper of such animals for a double-

Art. 6556. [4502b] Rates of freight; penalty.—It shall not be lawful for any railroad company to charge more for shipping a double-decked carload of sheep, goats, hogs, or calves than is charged for shipping a carload of other cattle or horses the same distance, and in the same direction; and any railroad company that shall fail or refuse to furnish double-decked cars of the dimensions prescribed in the preceding article to any person who may wish to ship as much as a double-decked carload of sheep, hogs, goats, or calves, or shall charge more for shipping a double-decked carload of sheep, hogs, goats, or calves, than for shipping a carload of other cattle or horses for the same dis-cance and in the same direction, shall be liable to pay to the owner or shipper of said sheep, hogs, goats, or calves, the sum of five hundred dollars as liquidated damages, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction; provided, that if any railroad companies shall transport sheep, hogs, goats, and calves, on single-decked cars at one-half the price per carload charged for shipping horses, or other cattle, then the penalties prescribed in this article for failure to provide double-decked cars shall be inoperative. [Id. sec. 2.]

Demand implied.—Under this and the preceding article a demand by the shipper of sheep, goats, hogs or calves for a double-deck car will be implied. Ft. Worth & R. G.

Connecting carriers.—A connecting carrier on being tendered single-deck cars of sheep is entitled to assume that the shipper desired the shipment to continue in the same car in which the animals were loaded, and was not liable for continuing the shipment in its entirety, in the absence of request that they be charged to a double-deck car.

Where an initial carrier refused to provide double-deck cars for the shipment of plaintiff's sheep, and the terminal carrier collected full rates for the transportation of the sheep in single-deck cars, the initial carrier was liable for the penalty, unless it sustained the burden of proof that such terminal carrier had no authority to act for it in collecting such rate. Id.

Constitutionality of statute.—Sayles' Ann. Cis. St. Supp. 1897-1904, arts. 4502c-4502e, providing for penalties against railroads for each day freight is held after payment or tender of freight charges, or holding freight for collection of excess of freight thereon, 215-215a), requiring rate statements, and as to interstate commerce, and the transportation

Art. 6557. Shall not collect more than specified in the bill of lading.

—It shall be unlawful for any railroad company in this state, its officers, agents or employees, to charge and collect, or to endeavor to charge and collect, from the owner, agent or consignee of any freight, goods, wares and merchandise, of any kind or character whatsoever, a greater sum for transporting said freight, goods, wares and merchandise than is specified in the bill of lading. [Acts 1899, p. 70.]

Art. 6558. Freight to be delivered on payment of charges.—Any railroad company, its officers, agents or employés, having possession of any goods, wares and merchandise, of any kind or character whatsoever, shall deliver the same to the owner, his agent or consignee, upon payment of the freight charges, as shown by the bill of lading. [Id.]

Demurrage charges.—A consignee held liable on an implied contract to pay a carrier demurrage charges required to be paid to a connecting carrier for the release of the shipment. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Drummond (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 728.

Art. 6559. Penalty for refusal to deliver freight.—Any railroad company, its officers, agents or employés that shall refuse to deliver to the owner, agent or consignee, any freight, goods, wares and merchandise, of any kind or character whatsoever, upon the payment, or tender of payment, of the freight charges due as shown by the bill of lading, the said railroad company shall be liable in damages to the owner of said freight, goods, wares and merchandise, to an amount equal to the amount of freight charges, for every day said freight, goods, wares and merchandise is held after payment, or tender of payment, of the charges due as shown by the bill of lading, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id.]

Art. 6560. [4503] Conductor, etc., shall wear badge.—Every conductor, baggage master, engineer, brakeman, or other servant of such railroad corporation employed in a passenger train, or at stations for passengers, shall wear upon his hat or cap a badge which shall indicate his office and the initial letters of the style of the corporation by which he is employed. [P. D. 4891.]

Art. 6561. [4504] Without badge shall not receive fare, etc.—No conductor or collector without such badge shall demand or be entitled to receive from any passenger any fare, toll, ticket, or exercise any of the powers of his office, and no other of the said officers or servants, without such badge, shall have any authority to meddle or interfere with the passengers, their baggage or property. [Id.]

Duty to procure ticket.—See, also, Art. 707 et seq.

As to duty of passenger to secure tickets, see Eddy v. Rowell (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 876.

Unlawful act of conductor.—As to liability of company for unlawful act of conductor, see Southern Pac. Co. v. Kennedy, 29 S. W. 234, 9 C. A. 232.

Art. 6562. [4505] Baggage shall be checked, etc.—A check shall be affixed to every package or parcel of baggage when taken for transportation by the agent or servant of such corporation, and a duplicate thereof given to the passenger or person delivering the same on his behalf; and, if such check be refused on demand, the corporation shall pay to such passenger the sum of ten dollars, to be recovered in an action of debt; and, further, no fare or toll shall be collected or received from such passenger; and, if such passenger shall have paid his fare, the same shall be refunded by the conductor in charge of the train. [P. D. 4895.]

See notes under Art. 707.

Art. 6563. [4506] Signs shall be erected at cross-roads, etc.—Such corporations shall erect at all points where its road shall cross any first or second class public road, at a sufficient elevation from such public road to admit of the free passage of vehicles of every kind, a sign with large and distinct letters placed thereon, to give notice of the proximity of the railroad and warn persons of the necessity of looking out for the cars; and any company neglecting or refusing to erect such signs shall be liable in damages for all injuries occurring to persons or property from such neglect or refusal.  [P. D. 4890.]
Art. 6563  RAILROADS  (Title 115)

Accidents at crossings.—See notes at end of Chapter 10 of this title.

Failure to provide signboards.—Failure of defendant in providing signboards at crossings held not to render it liable for the person injured at such crossing.  Gulf & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hamilton, 17 C. A. 76, 42 S. W. 358.

Art. 6564.  [4507]  Bell and steam whistle; duty as to.—A bell of at least thirty pounds weight and a steam whistle shall be placed on each locomotive engine, and the whistle shall be blown and the bell rung at the distance of at least eighty rods from the place where the railroad shall cross any public road or street, and such bell shall be kept ringing until it shall have crossed such public road, or stopped; and each locomotive engine approaching a place where two lines of railway cross each other, shall, before reaching such railway crossing, be brought to a full stop; and any engineer having charge of such engine, and neglecting to comply with any of the provisions of this article, shall be punished for such neglect as provided in the Penal Code; and the corporation operating such railway shall be liable for all damages which may be sustained by any person by reason of any such neglect; provided, however, that the full stop at such crossings may be discontinued when the railroads crossing each other shall put into full operation at such crossing an interlocking switch and signal apparatus, and shall keep a flagman in attendance at such crossing.  [Acts 1883, p. 28. Amend. 1893, p. 87.]

When and where signals must be sounded—in general.—The whistle must be blown at some point sufficiently near the crossing to be reasonably calculated to give warning to persons about to use the same; such point not to be nearer such crossing than 80 rods.  Railway Co. v. O’Neal, 31 T. 671, 47 S. W. 95.

The signals required by statute relative to public crossings and not to passengers attempting to board a train at a station.  Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morgan, 26 C. A. 373, 64 S. W. 694.

In order to comply with the statute the whistle must be blown at some point sufficiently near the crossing as to be reasonably calculated to give warning to people about to use such crossing, such point not to be nearer such crossing than 80 rods.  Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Greer, 29 C. A. 651, 63 S. W. 422.

The whistle must be blown sufficiently near the crossing to give warning, but not nearer than 80 rods.  International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Ives, 31 C. A. 272, 71 S. W. 772.

This statute does not apply in a case where the train backed from a switch onto the main track at a point only about 150 yards from the crossing and rolled down to the crossing.  Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Berry, 32 C. A. 259, 72 S. W. 424.

The statute has no application to trains which are not approaching any crossing.  Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 713.

In order to comply with the statute the whistle must be sounded at a point sufficiently near the crossing to be reasonably calculated to give warning to persons about to cross the same, such point not being nearer the crossing than 80 rods.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Calumet & Ass. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 467.

Where a charge precludes a finding of negligence for failure to blow the whistle at a distance greater than 80 rods from the crossing, and which authorizes the inference of negligence in event of a failure to blow the whistle when within 440 yards of the crossing, it is so erroneous as to require reversal.  Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Stoker (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 1184.

This article requires the operation of an engine, when approaching a public road crossing, to ring the bell continuously for a distance of 80 rods from the crossing and until the engine crosses or stops, so that a charge to such effect is not error.  Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Huttner (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 630.

This article only requires the whistle to be blown at such a point beyond 80 rods from the crossings as would give reasonable notice of the train’s approach, and does not require it to be blown at any particular distance beyond such 80 rods.  Edwards v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 105 T. 404, 151 S. W. 289.

Engine starting less than 80 rods from crossing.—It is not required to ring the bell or blow the whistle on starting at a railway crossing.  Railway Co. v. Brin, 77 T. 174, 13 S. W. 886.  It is not necessary to do both.  Railway Co. v. Kirschoffer (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 577.

When an engine has passed the crossing a distance less than 80 rods, on returning the bell must be rung while the engine is in motion within 80 rods of the crossing.  Railway Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 15 S. W. 481.

The statute does not apply when the engine starts within 80 rods of the crossing.  Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patterson, 20 C. A. 255, 48 S. W. 747.

If it is necessary to have the bell be rung, though the train is within less than 80 rods of the crossing when it starts.  Ft. W. & R. G. Co. v. Greer, 32 C. A. 606, 75 S. W. 552.

Where the point from which the locomotive starts in approaching a crossing is less than 80 rods, the duty to blow the whistle is not imposed, and a charge that a failure to blow such whistle is negligence is erroneous, and requires a reversal of the case.  However, in view of the facts, it might have been proper for the trial court to have submitted to the jury the question as to whether the failure to blow the whistle was negligence or not.  G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 34 C. A. 535, 80 S. W. 135.
Where the locomotive starts towards a crossing from a point less than 80 rods distant from the crossing, it is negligence not to ring the bell continuously until the crossing is passed. 13.

Public road.—When a railroad company has for several years recognized and maintained a road crossing over its line of railway, as a crossing for the public, it is estopped from denying that it is a public road. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 2 App. Cust. 410; N. R. R. Co. v. Jordan, 1 App. Cust. 66. A railroad company that constructs a crossing under an agreement with the landowner whose land it appropriates for its roadbed, which it recognizes and maintains as a road crossing for the public, is estopped from setting up in action against it, as a defense, that it is a private road within the meaning of the statute. The evidence conformed to the county commissioners to lay out, establish and change public roads does not negative the existence of public roads otherwise established. The extent of the use of a road determines its character. One of the chief purposes of the statute in imposing duties on railroad companies is to protect human life. That policy attaches to the crossing of every road which is in fact public, and where the extent of travel makes it the duty of the owners of railroad trains to look after the safety of those using the road as a highway. Railway Co. v. Lee, 70 T. 492, 7 S. W. 857.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a road crossing a railroad was a public one. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eaten (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

The provisions contained in this article apply to any public crossing whether in a city or in the country. Railroad Co. v. Dalwigh (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 527.

For whose benefit duty is imposed—In general.—Evidence of failure of railroad company to give warning signals at a crossing, and while passing through town, is admissible in action for personal injury received near crossing in town. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 56.

Where plaintiff was injured by falling on a railroad trestle while running to save his infant son from being run over by an approaching train, not at a crossing, and plaintiff saw the danger before the train reached a crossing, it was error to charge that failure to give the signal and ringing the whistles or ringing a bell, as required by the statute, imposed the defendant liable. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray, 95 T. 424, 67 S. W. 763.

Where plaintiff was rightfully on defendant's track, within several hundred feet of a crossing, when run into by a train, and near enough to the crossing to have had the benefit of signals prescribed by statute, not having been given, the fact that he was not right on the crossing did not preclude his recovery. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Taff, 31 C. A. 657, 74 S. W. 89.

This article was intended not only to prevent collisions, but also to protect persons who might be lawfully at such crossings. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 34 C. A. 302, 73 S. W. 73.

The duty of a railroad to give signals at a crossing is not owed to persons at other places along the track. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shoemaker, 99 S. W. 461, 94 S. W. 1949.

This statute does not exclude from its protection persons traveling along a public highway at or near a railroad crossing who do not intend to use the crossing. It is not restricted to those who are about to use, or have just used the crossing. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kilman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1062.

A person walking on a railroad track between a whistle post and a public crossing held entitled to rely on the railroad company's giving statutory signals for such crossing. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. O'Donnell (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 886.

The law requires the railroad company to give the signals as set out in this article, and to give such signals to those who are approaching the crossing (and are in close proximity thereto) and those who have just crossed, as well as those who are crossing the same when the signals are given. In this case appellee was driving along a public highway close to the railroad towards the crossing and had passed the point eighty rods from the crossing, and the train came along behind him; and gave no signal, frightened his horse so that he ran to, and over the crossing and appellee was injured on the crossing. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Horn, 53 C. A. 35, 115 S. W. 913.

Railroad employees.—A railroad track employed, injured within 220 yards of a whistle post and of a public crossing, held entitled to the benefit of statutory signals. International & O. N. R. Co. v. Tisdale, 32 C. A. 972, 87 S. W. 1063.

The statute is not for the benefit of section men on the track, as well as for persons using the crossings. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Burnet, 49 C. A. 244, 108 S. W. 404.

Injuries to animals.—See, also, notes under Art. 6603.

The statute applies to cases where stock is on public crossing. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Redクリスマス, 22 C. A. 3, 114, 53 S. W. 34.

In an action for the death of a horse struck by defendant's train, the fact that the operators of the train failed to sound the bell or blow the whistle for the crossing a short distance beyond the place of the accident is immaterial, and it was proper not to instruct on it, since the duty of giving these signals is imposed for the benefit of those who are about to cross, or about to use the crossing, and the question in this case being whether, in the exercise of ordinary care, the operators of the train should have given the warning to have avoided injury to the mare. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 607.

In an action against a railroad company for killing animals on its track, it is error to charge the law as laid down in this article, unless the cause of action sued on is based on injury occurring thereat, and where the evidence shows that animals were injured 250 to 500 yards from the east end of a depot, and the only public crossing in the vicinity was.
west of the depot, it was error to instruct that failure to signal as provided by the statute was negligence as matter of law. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Mallard (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1117.

Frightening teams.—A railroad company is liable for injuries received through the frightening of a team caused by the failure of the engineer to ring the bell when approaching Railroad Co. v. Magee (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 539.

The law applies to cases of teams becoming frightened, as well as to cases of collision. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Magee, 92 T. 616, 60 S. W. 1013.

City ordinances regarding signals.—See, also, Art. 853.

A city ordinance may require that engine bells shall be rung while engines are moving within the city limits. Railway Co. v. Calvert, 11 C. A. 297, 33 S. W. 246.

A city ordinance prohibiting locomotive whistles from being sounded within 80 rods of a street crossing is void, because it cannot suspend a statute in that particular. Curtis v. Southwestern Ry. Co., 26 C. A. 304, 63 S. W. 149.

Accidents at crossings—In general.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Failure to signal negligence per se.—Negligence implied to a railway company, when. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 60 T. 143.

The failure to ring a bell or blow a whistle on approaching the crossing of a public road is statutory negligence, Johnson v. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 2 App. C. C. § 268; Markham v. H. & T. C. R. R. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 81.

Failure of a railroad to operate, in observing its trains, statutory requirements, is per se negligence, but the questions whether there was such failure, and whether it was the proximate cause of an injury, are for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 22 C. A. 16, 53 S. W. 559.

In an action for negligently killing a man at a public crossing, a charge that there was no crossing, and in such case, the crossing, which it would likely be heard at the crossing, was negligence, held error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Melugin (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 338.

Failure of servants of a railroad company to give signals at crossings, as required by the statute, is negligence per se as to animals running at large. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 341.

The failure to ring the bell as required by statute is negligence per se, whether it causes the injury or not, and an instruction to this effect is not error. Galveston H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Wöhrth, 40 C. A. 46, 89 S. W. 282.

The failure of operatives in charge of a train to ring the bell or blow the whistle on approaching a crossing, if proximately causing an accident to a traveler on the highway, is negligence per se. Johnson v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 146, 100 S. W. 296.

Under the statute, failure to whistle held negligence authorizing a recovery by one injured as a result thereof, in the absence of proof of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 651.

The law made negligence absolute with respect to those for whose protection the statute was designed. As to others the omission may or may not constitute negligence in fact; the question depending on the circumstances of the particular case and being one for the jury, and not for the court to determine. Ft. Worth & S. F. Ry. v. Foust, 51 C. A. 44, 116 S. W. 885.

While it is negligence as a matter of law for those in charge of a locomotive to fail to blow the whistle at a crossing, as required by this article, such negligence is not actionable, unless it was a proximate cause of injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hemphill (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 349.

Duty of persons approaching a crossing.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

There is no statutory enactment or fixed rule of law prescribing what a person must do who approaches a railway crossing. If aware of it, he is held to use such precautions as he would regard to under similar circumstances. Railway Co. v. Crumpman, 57 T. 82; Railway Co. v. Lee, 70 T. 501, 7 S. W. 587; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 76 T. 244, 13 S. W. 196.

Persons approaching railroad crossings should exercise due care to ascertain whether the trains approaching the crossing are obstructed, or if they are not obstructed, that an approaching train is in the effort to cross the track, even though the railway company may neglect to give the signals required by the statute in crossing the road. When approaching a railway track one must look up and down the track, and a failure to do so is negligence. Railway Co. v. Moore, 4 App. C. C. § 214, 15 S. W. 714; Railway Co. v. Bracken, 59 T. 71; Railway Co. v. Kutac, 72 T. 843, 15 S. W. 433; Railway Co. v. Gareteiser, 29 S. W. 933, 9 C. A. 456.

Contributory negligence at crossings; crossing ahead of hand car; plaintiff not bound to anticipate an unusual occurrence, where it has reasonable time to pass, under ordinary circumstances. Johnson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 2 C. A. 139, 21 S. W. 275.

Failure to give signals at crossing held not to relieve a person approaching it from exercising care. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hamilton, 17 C. A. 76, 43 S. W. 368.

Where plaintiff was injured as a result of defendant's failure to give the signals mentioned in this article, a charge that "a failure to comply with such requirements as the statute indicates and the plaintiff observes" is not on the issue. There is no good reason why the court should not declare as negligence that which the law itself punishes as a crime. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Taff, 31 C. A. 657, 74 S. W. 90.

Person crossing railroad track held not guilty of contributory negligence in law. In relying on such signal, the plaintiff may, in approaching a train of stationary cars, look to the heads of the cars, and such a charge as "negligence in looking through the smoke." Person crossing railroad track held not guilty of contributory negligence in law in relying on such signal; 1 year; law punishing contributory negligence by an approach train of statutory duties as to speed, signals, etc. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matthews, 34 C. A. 302, 79 S. W. 71.

Where the view of an approaching a railroad crossing was obstructed until he was within a very short distance of the crossing, he had a right to expect warning signals.

Proximate cause.—If the injured party had notice of the approach of a railroad train from which injury resulted, the failure to ring the bell would be immaterial in an action for such injury. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Nixon, 52 T. 19.

The failure to ring a bell or blow a whistle, which had nothing to do with causing the injury, cannot be considered in determining the liability of the company. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Wright, 62 T. 515.

Refusal of instruction that failure to give signals was immaterial if person on the track knew of the train in time to avoid injury held error. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 561.

Where a train, carrying no headlight and without signaling, about dark approached a crossing, where tall weeds obscured the view from the road, and struck a passing wagon, injury might find that the railroad's negligence was the proximate cause of the accident. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Esten (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

Failure to sound whistle or ring bell on approaching crossing held not the proximate cause of injury to a team near the track. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Carruth (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 1035.

A charge, in an action for injuries resulting from a fright caused by passing train at a public crossing, that plaintiff can recover if her fright ought to have been foreseen as a natural consequence of the signals, held not objectionable. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 25 C. A. 157, 60 S. W. 891.

Where plaintiff was injured in attempting to avoid collision with a switch engine approaching a crossing without warning, it was held that the negligence of defendant's employee was the proximate cause of the injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 147.

Evidence in action for injuries at crossing held to show that the injury was due solely to defendant's neglect to blow the whistle or ring the bell. Sherman, S. & S. Ry. Co. v. Fergus, 69 G. A. 469, 61 S. W. 1556.

Railroad, failing to give signals prescribed by statute, must not only show that noise made by train was sufficiently loud to warn injured party, but also that he actually heard the same. K. & T. Ry. v. Texas v. Taff, 31 C. A. 57, 74 S. W. 59.

If the failure to ring the bell or sound the whistle was the proximate cause of the injury, and one is not guilty of contributory negligence, he is entitled to recover. McKeeley v. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 506.

A railroad company is not liable for injuries to a person driving over a railroad crossing merely because it failed to give the statutory signals, unless the person injured could have prevented the injury if the signals had been given. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Horn, 53 C. A. 35, 115 S. W. 911.

Failure to blow the whistle is not actionable, unless it be the proximate cause of the injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hemphill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 340.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries at a crossing, where plaintiffs had knowledge that the train was approaching and attempted to cross, it was immaterial whether the whistle was blown or not. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 333.

The failure of a railroad company's employes in charge of an engine approaching a highway crossing to give signals required by statute would be a proximate cause of a collision with a team at the crossing, the natural and probable consequence of such failure, even though the person injured were also guilty of negligence, proximately contributing to the injury. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Coffey (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 685.

The statutory signals of the approach of a train to a crossing is not actionable negligence, where it is not the proximate cause of a collision with a team at the crossing. Texas Midland R. v. McKissack Bros. (Civ. App.) 352 S. W. 815.

Burden of proof.—See note under Art. 3857, Rule 12.

Evidence.—Evidence held to justify a charge as to a railroad's duty in ringing the bell when approaching a crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Magee, 92 T. 615, 50 S. W. 1013.

In an action at railroad crossing, evidence held to support a finding that a railroad company's servants failed to give the signals required by statute. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Tirros, 33 C. A. 362, 76 S. W. 896.

In an action against a railroad for killing stock, evidence held insufficient to authorize an instruction directing defendant's statutory duty signal at a public crossing. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. v. Wilson, 37 C. A. 406, 84 S. W. 274.

Questions for jury.—See Chapter 13 of Title 37.

Instructions.—See Chapter 13 of Title 37.

Crossing with another railroad.—See, also, Art. 6704.

It is negligence not to bring an engine to a full stop before reaching the crossing at such speed and under such circumstances common prudence woulddictate as necessary to avoid colliding. Railway Co. v. Mackney, 83 T. 410, 18 S. W. 949.

The requirement of a full stop applies only to crossings at grade. Railway Co. v. Thomas, 87 T. 292, 28 S. W. 343.

It is negligence for a train to approach a crossing, at which a train on an intersecting road is due, without giving a warning of its approach. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Settle, 19 C. A. 357, 47 S. W. 825.

One who is injured in attempting to alight from a train at a railroad crossing cannot complain that it is negligence for the company not to bring the train to a full stop, when the ticket on which he is riding calls for a station beyond the crossing. If he is hurt in a collision caused by failure to stop at such crossing he might complain. The statute is intended to prevent collisions at crossings of railroad. Mercher v. T. M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 469.

Train first arriving at crossing held to have precedence over trains subsequently arriving. El Paso & W. R. Co. v. Polk, 49 C. A. 265, 108 S. W. 761.

An employe of a train or railroad company in charge of a train required to cross the tracks of another company may presume that the employes of the latter company in control of an

This law applies in a case where switch engines are operating as well as in other cases, and the law requires each locomotive engine approaching the crossing of another line to come to a full stop, whether there is present visible necessity for so doing or not. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Murtle, 49 C. A. 273, 108 S. W. 958.

Negligent blowing of whistle.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

The company is liable for damages caused by the negligent blowing of the whistle by which teams near the track are frightened. Hargis v. Railway Co., 75 T. 13, 12 S. W. 935. See Edwards v. Bonner, 12 C. A. 236, 23 S. W. 764.

A continuous blowing of the whistle after the engineer was apprised of the fright of a team near by, endangering life, is negligence. Railway Co. v. Box, 81 T. 670, 17 S. W. 375.

A railroad company may be liable for frightening a horse by locomotive whistle for crossing, required by statute. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Milner, 28 C. A. 86, 66 S. W. 574.

That plaintiff had a license to place his team near a railroad station platform did not deprive the railroad company of its right to operate its locomotives in the usual manner, nor deprive him of the privilege of giving the necessary and customary signals. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grahm (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 846.

Injuries to servants of railroad.—See Art. 6648 and notes.

Art. 6565. Duty to equip with electric headlights.—It shall be the duty of every railroad corporation, or receiver or lessee thereof, operating any line of railroad in this state, to equip all locomotive engines used in the transportation of trains over said railroad with electric headlights of not less than fifteen hundred candle power, measured without the aid of a reflector, or other headlights of not less than fifteen hundred candle power, measured without the aid of a reflector; provided, that this article shall not apply to locomotive engines regularly used in the switching of cars or trains. [Acts 1907, p. 54, sec. 1.]

Injuries to employees.—See Art. 6648 and notes.

Art. 6566. Penalty for failure.—Any railroad company or the receiver or lessee thereof, doing business in the state of Texas, which shall violate the provisions of the preceding article, shall be liable to the state of Texas for a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense; and such penalties shall be recovered and suit brought in the name of the state of Texas, in a court of proper jurisdiction in Travis county, Texas, or in any county in or through which such line of railroad may run, by the attorney general, or by the county or district attorney in any county, in or through which such line of railroad may be operated; and such suits shall be subjected to the provisions of article 6673. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6567. Shall keep lighted from sunset to sunrise, except, etc.—It shall be the duty of every railway corporation operating any line of railway in the state of Texas to place and maintain good and sufficient switch lights on all their main line switches connected with the main line, and to keep the same lighted from sunset until sunrise; provided, that this article shall not apply to railways which have all their locomotives equipped with electric headlights. [Acts 1905, p. 77, sec. 1.]

Constitutionality.—The legislature in the exercise of the police power of the state may regulate a railroad company's business, and may pass a law requiring them to place switch lights on all main line switches, and keep them lighted from sunset until sunrise. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McDuffey, 50 C. A. 202, 109 S. W. 1104.

This law held not to impair the obligation of contracts, which a railroad company might make with another company owning a switch, for its joint use by both companies, and for the maintenance and lighting of the switches by the owner. Id.

Art. 6568. Shall place derailing switches on sidings, when, etc.—It shall be the duty of every railway corporation operating any line of railway in the state of Texas to place and maintain good and safe derailing switches on all of their sidings connecting with the main line of such railway, and upon which sidings cars are left standing; provided, that no derailing switches shall be required where the siding connects with main line on an up grade in the direction of the main line of one-half of one per cent or over; provided, further, that no derailing switches shall be required on inside tracks at terminal points where regular switching crews are employed. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 6568a. Derailing devices on repair tracks, etc., required.—
It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or receiver operating any railroad, machine shop or other concern engaged in repairing or manufacturing cars within this state to use any tracks not equipped with derailing devices upon which to repair or manufacture cars; such derailing devices to be provided with private locks, to be kept locked at all times when tracks are in use; provided, that nothing in this Act shall be construed as prohibiting temporary repairs to cars on tracks other than where cars are regularly repaired or manufactured. [Acts 1913, p. 334, sec. 1.]

Art. 6569. Penalty.—Any railway corporation which shall wilfully violate any of the provisions of the two preceding articles [6567, 6568] shall be liable to the state of Texas for a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense; and such penalty shall be recovered and suits therefor be brought by the attorney general, or under his direction, in the name of the state of Texas, in Travis county, or in any county through which such railway may run or be operated; and such suits shall be subject to the provisions of article 6673; provided, the provisions of article 6567 shall not apply on railroad lines or divisions on which no trains are regularly run or operated at night. [Acts 1907, p. 54, sec. 3.]

Art. 6570. [4508] Passenger trains, how formed.—In forming a passenger train, baggage, or freight, or merchandise, or lumber cars shall not be placed in rear of passenger cars; and if they or any of them shall be so placed and any accident happen to life or limb, the officer or agent who so directed or knowingly suffered such arrangement and the conductor and engineer of the train shall each and all be held guilty of intentionally causing the injury, and be punished accordingly. [P. D. 4896.]

Violation of statute as negligence.—In action against railroad for injury to engineer in collision with forward section of his train, defendant held not liable for negligence in having a freight box car caboose on the rear of the forward section, in violation of statute. Quinn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 395.

Art. 6571. [4517] Brakes and brakeman.—Every such company shall have a good and sufficient brake upon the hindmost car on all trains transporting passengers and merchandise, and also permanently stationed there a trusty and faithful brakeman, under a penalty of not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered by suit in the name of the state. [P. D. 4907.]

Not applicable to passenger trains.—This statute does not apply to trains carrying exclusively passengers, or in other words passenger trains. State v. International & G. N. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 149, 68 S. W. 534.

Art. 6571a. Air brakes to be inspected by competent inspector, etc.; proviso.—It shall be unlawful for any person, corporation or receiver to operate or cause to be operated any train, on any line of railroad in this state, without first having the air brakes and air brake attachments inspected and tested before leaving the division terminals for such trains, by a competent inspector, who shall have had at least three years' experience as a car inspector or car repairer. Provided that this Act shall not apply to tram roads engaged in hauling logs to any saw mill. [Acts 1911, p. 106, sec. 1.]

Injuries to servants from defective appliances.—See Art. 6648 and notes.

Art. 6571b. Temporary inspector, when; not to apply to certain railroads.—The provisions of this Act shall not apply in case of emergency where such companies cannot obtain the employés mentioned in this Act who have the qualifications prescribed by the provisions hereof; then such companies may employ temporary inspectors. Provided, the provisions of this Act do not apply to railroads under forty miles in length. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 6572. Passenger trains without full crew, unlawful to run.—It shall be unlawful for any railroad company, or receiver of any railroad company, doing business in the state of Texas, to run over its road, or part of its road, outside of the yard limits, any passenger train with less than a full passenger crew consisting of four persons, one engineer, one fireman, one conductor and one brakeman. [Acts 1909, p. 179, sec. 1.]

This law is unconstitutional because its subject is not expressed in its title. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. State, 109 T. 155, 113 S. W. 917.

Art. 6573. Freight, etc., trains, without full crew, unlawful to run.—It shall be unlawful for any railroad company, or receiver of any railroad company, doing business in the state of Texas, to run over its road, or part of its road, outside the yard limits, any freight train, gravel train or construction train with less than a full crew consisting of five persons, one engineer, one fireman, one conductor and two brakemen. [Id. sec. 2.]

Authority of conductor.—A conductor of a railroad train had no authority to employ a physician to attend a trespasser who had been run over by the train owing to his own negligence. Wills v. International & O. N. R. Co., 41 C. A. 58, 92 S. W. 723.

Art. 6574. Light engine without full crew, unlawful to run.—It shall be unlawful for any railroad company, or receiver of any railroad company, doing business in the state of Texas, to run over its road, or part of its road, outside of the yard limits, any light engine without a full train crew consisting of three persons, one engineer, one fireman and one conductor; provided, that nothing in the two preceding articles shall be construed as applying in the case of disability of one or more of any train crew while out on the road between division terminals, or to switching crews in charge of yard engines, or which may be required to push trains out of yard limits. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6575. Penalty and venue of suits.—Any railroad company, or any receiver of any railroad company, doing business in the state of Texas, which shall violate any of the provisions of the three preceding articles shall be liable to the state of Texas for a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars or more than one thousand dollars for each offense; and such penalty shall be recovered and suit brought in the name of the state of Texas in a court of proper jurisdiction in Travis county, Texas, or in any county in or through which such line of railroad may run, by the attorney general, or under his direction, or by the county or district attorney in any county [in], or through which such line of railroad may be operated; and such suits shall be subject to the provisions of article 6673. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6576. To what articles apply.—The provisions of the four preceding articles shall not apply to or include any railroad company, or receiver or manager thereof, of any line of railroad in this state, less than twenty miles in length. [Id. sec. 4a.]

Art. 6577. Certain kind of ash pans required.—It shall be unlawful for any common carrier, engaged in moving commerce in the state of Texas by railroad, to use in moving such commerce in said state any locomotive not equipped with an ash pan which can be dumped or emptied and cleaned without the necessity of any employé going under such locomotive. [Acts 1909, p. 67, sec. 1.]

Art. 6578. Penalty; evidence; venue of suits.—Any such common carrier using any locomotive in violation of the provisions of the preceding article shall be liable to the state of Texas for a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars and of not more than one thousand dollars for each offense; and such penalty shall be recovered, and suit brought in the name of the state of Texas, in any court of proper jurisdiction in Travis county, Texas, or in any county into or through which such carrier may be operating a line of railroad, by the attorney general, or under his direction, or by the county or district attorney in any such county. The rules of evidence in suits arising under this article shall be the same as in ordinary civil actions; and the same compensation shall be allowed to the attorney bringing such suit as is provided in article 6673 of the Revised Statutes of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6579. "Common carrier" defined.—The term, "common carrier," as used in the two preceding articles, shall include the receiver or receivers, or other persons or corporations charged with the duty of managing and operating the business of a common carrier. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6580. Articles do not apply.—Nothing contained in the three preceding articles shall apply to any locomotive upon which, by reason of the use of oil, electricity or other such agency, an ash pan is not necessary. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6581. Shall provide suitable places for employés to work.—Every person, corporation, or receiver, engaged in constructing or repairing railroad cars, trucks or other railroad equipment, shall erect and maintain a building or shed at every station or other point where as many as five men are regularly employed on such repair work, the building or shed to cover a sufficient portion of its track so as to provide that all men regularly employed in the construction and repair of cars, trucks, or other railroad equipment shall be sheltered from rain and protected from other inclement weather. The provisions of this article shall not apply at points where less than five men are regularly employed in the repair service, nor at division terminals, or other points where it is necessary to make light repairs only on cars, or to cars loaded with time or perishable freight, nor to cars when trains are being held for the movement of said cars. [Acts 1910, p. 123, sec. 1.]

Art. 6582. Penalty.—Any person, corporation, or receiver who shall violate the provisions of the foregoing article shall be liable to the state of Texas for a penalty in any sum not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and each ten days of such failure or refusal to so comply shall be considered a separate infraction authorizing the recovery of a separate penalty; provided, however, that all persons, corporations, or receivers, affected by the preceding article, shall have until June 1, 1911, within which to comply with the provisions thereof. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6583. Suits; fees of attorneys.—Suit for recovery of penalties hereunder shall be brought by the attorney general of this state or by the county or district attorney of the county in which suit is brought, and the county or district attorney, as the case may be, shall receive a fee of ten per cent upon each penalty recovered and collected by him, and said fee shall be over and above the fee allowed him by law at this time, and over and above the fees allowed under the general fee bill in force in this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6584. Employés limited to sixteen hours labor.—It shall be unlawful for any railroad company, or receiver of any railroad company, operating any line of railroad in whole or in part in this state, or any officer, or agent of such railroad company or receiver to require or permit any conductor, engineer, fireman or brakeman to be or remain on duty for a longer period than sixteen consecutive hours; and whenever any such conductor, engineer, fireman or brakeman shall have been continuously on duty for sixteen hours, he shall be relieved and shall not be required or permitted again to go on duty until he has had at least ten consecutive hours off duty; and no such conductor, engineer, fireman or brakeman who has been on duty sixteen hours in the aggregate in any twenty-four hour period shall be required or permitted to continue or again go on duty without having had at least eight consecutive hours off duty. [Acts 1909, p. 180, sec. 1.]

Art. 6585. Penalties, suits for, venue, etc.—Any railroad company, or receiver of any railroad, operating a line of railroad in whole or in part in this state, or any officer or agent of such railroad or receiver who shall violate any of the provisions of the preceding article shall be liable to a penalty of not to exceed five hundred dollars for each and every violation; and any such penalty shall be recovered and suit therefor shall be brought in the name of the state of Texas in any court having jurisdiction of the amount, in Travis' county, or in any county into or through which said railroad may pass. Any suit or suits to recover a penalty or penalties for violating any of the provisions of the preced­ing article may be brought either by the attorney general, or under his direction, or by the county attorney or district attorney of any county or judicial district into or through which said railroad may pass, and such attorney bringing any such suit or suits shall be entitled to com­ penration of one-third of any penalty or penalties recovered therein. In all prosecutions under this and the preceding article against any railroad company, or receiver of any railroad company, such company or receiver shall be deemed to have had knowledge of all acts of all of its officers and agents; provided, that the provisions of this and the preceding article shall not apply in any case of casualty or unavoidable accident, or the act of God; nor where the delay was the result of a cause not known to the carrier or its officer or agent in charge of any conductor, engineer, fireman or brakeman at the time such conductor, engineer, fireman or brakeman left a terminal, and which act could not have been foreseen; provided, further, that the provisions of this and the preceding article shall not apply to crews of wrecking or relief trains. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6586. Railroad telegraph and telephone operators, eight hours a day work.—It shall be unlawful for any person, corporation or association, operating a railroad within this state, to permit any telegraph or telephone operator who spaces trains by the use of the telegraph or telephone under what is known and termed, “Block System,” defined as follows: Reporting trains to another office or offices, or to a train dispatcher operating one or more trains under signals, and telegraph or telephone levermen who manipulate interlocking machines in railroad yards, or on main tracks out on the lines connecting side tracks or switches, or train dispatchers in its service whose duties substantially, as hereinbefore set forth, pertain to the movement of cars, engines or trains on its railroad by the use of the telegraph or telephone, in dispatch­ing or reporting trains, or receiving or transmitting train orders, as interpreted in this article, to be on duty for more than eight hours in any twenty-four consecutive hours; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to railroad telegraph or telephone operators at stations where the services of only one operator is needed. [Acts 1907,
p. 222, sec. 1.]

Interstate commerce.—This act is void as being in conflict with Act Cong. March 4, 1907, c. 2939, § 2, 34 Stat. 1416, upon the same subject, though the act of the legislature only lessens the hours of labor prescribed by the act of congress. State v. Texas & N.
O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 984.

Congress having passed an act (Act Cong. March 4, 1907, c. 2939, § 2, 34 Stat. 1416) prescribing the hours of labor of railroad telegraph operators engaged in interstate commerce, to take effect August 12, 1907, this act is not operative during the time intervening between the passage and the taking effect of the act of congress. Id.

Art. 6587. Penalty, suit, and disposition of funds.—Any violation of the preceding article by any person, corporation or association, shall subject him or it to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each violation thereof, to be recovered by an action of debt in the name of the state of Texas for the use of the state; said action to be instituted in any court of the state having appropriate jurisdiction; and the penalty, when so recovered, shall be paid into the public school fund of the state of Texas. [Id. secs. 2, 4 and 5.]

Art. 6588. [4518] Shall carry U. S. mails, and compensation therefor.—Every such corporation shall, when applied to by the postmaster-general, convey the mail of the United States on its road or roads; and in case such corporation shall not agree as to the rate of transportation therefor, and as to the time, rate of speed, manner and condition of conveying the same, it shall be lawful for the governor to appoint three commissioners, who, or a majority of them, after fifteen days' notice in writing of the time and place of meeting, to the corporation, shall determine and fix the prices, terms and condition aforesaid; but such price shall not be less for conveying such mails in the regular passenger trains than the amount which such corporation would receive as freight on a like weight of merchandise transported in their merchandise trains, and a fair compensation for the postoffice car; and in case the postmaster-general shall require the mail to be carried at other hours, or at a higher speed than the passenger train be run at, the corporation shall furnish an extra train for the mail and be allowed an extra compensation for the expenses and wear and tear thereof, and for the services, to be fixed as aforesaid. [P. D. 4903.]

Art. 6589. [4519] Station depots shall be erected, etc.—Each and every railroad company is hereby required to erect at each and every depot, station or place established by such company for the reception and delivery of freight, suitable buildings or inclosures to protect produce, goods, wares and merchandise and freight of every description from damage by exposure to the weather, stock or otherwise; in default of which such railroad company shall be liable to the owner of such produce, goods, wares or merchandise for the amount of damages or loss sustained by reason of such improper exposure, together with all costs and expenses of recovering the same, including necessary attorney's fees. [P. D. 4923.]

Where depots must be built.—See, also, Art. 6654.

The railroad commission not only can require railroad companies to erect depots at places where stations are designated, but also require them to build depots at places where in the judgment of the commission it is proper for the roads to furnish station facilities. Railroad Commission v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry., 102 T. 393, 117 S. W. 735.

Cattle pens.—The court very much doubts whether the language of this article admits of construction that it requires railway companies to keep suitable pens for the shipment of cattle. On the contrary, the terms employed seem to limit the scope of the article to dead freight. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Cage Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 708.

A carrier contracting to transport and deliver live stock at the stockyards at the point of destination is not subject to the liability imposed by this article for failing to establish cattle pens at such point, since if it had provided pens there and had unloaded the stock its contract would not have been performed until a delivery in the stockyards. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Iaenhower (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 297.

Facilities for watering stock.—This article does not impose on a carrier the duty of equipping its cattle pens with facilities for watering stock preparatory to loading, and, in the absence of a statute requiring a carrier to water stock at stated intervals or designated places, the question whether its failure to do so is negligence is for the jury. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Broad-Davis Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 514.

Toilets.—A railroad company, not having constructed a passenger station building at a specified place as required by this article, could not by reason of its violation of such section be made liable for failure to comply with article 6592, requiring the construction of proper toilets in or near railroad passenger stations. State v. Jasper & E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 331.

When responsibility ceases.—The railroad is bound to tender stock at destination within a reasonable time and within reasonable hours, and the owner is not bound to receive his stock at 12 o'clock at night when he did not have with him the money with which to pay the freight, and did not know the location of the pens where he proposed to feed them and the company's liability as carrier did not cease when it unloaded the cattle and put them in its stock pens. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Trammell, 25 C. A. 512, 68 S. W. 716, 717.

Art. 6590. [4520] No storage to be charged, except, etc.—Railroad companies shall in no case be allowed to charge storage upon freight received by them for delivery, unless the owner or consignee thereof neglect to remove it from the depot of the company within three days after notice of its reception; which notice may be given by posting the same on the depot door; and, after the expiration of such time, the company may remove and store said freight at the expense of the owner or consignee, and said freight shall be held liable for the freight and charges due thereon. [P. D. 4923.]

Lien for charges—Stoppage in transitu.—A railway company has a lien upon goods transported by it for freight charges, but an unpaid vendor's right of stoppage is higher in its nature than a carrier's lien for a general balance. Goods in transitu cannot be attached without the payment of freight charges, and the officer paying them is entitled to the carrier's lien. The right of stoppage is not diverted, though the goods be levied on by execution or attachment at the suit of a general creditor of the vendee, provided the right be exercised before the transitus is at an end, and there has been a delivery of the goods, either actual or constructive, to the vendee. Stuart v. Mau, 2 App. C. C. 784–787.

Incorrect statement of charges in bill of lading.—Carrier may maintain an action for excess of freight over charges shown by bill of lading, but he must deliver freight on tender of charges in the bill. Railway Co. v. Carden (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 747.

When responsibility as carrier ceases.—A consignee failing to receive freight within the statutory time, the company's liability as a common carrier ceases, and its liability as a warehouseman attaches. Railway Co. v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 549.

Collection of charges after sale without notice.—A carrier failing to comply with this article in regard to notice is not entitled to charges for storage of freight remaining unclaimed for three months, and then sold. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Patten Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1158.

Art. 6591. [4521] Passenger depots opened, lighted, warmed, etc.; penalty for failure.—Every railroad company doing business in this state shall keep its depots or passenger houses in this state lighted and warmed, and open to the ingress and egress of all passengers who are entitled to go therein, for a time not less than one hour before the arrival and after the departure of all trains carrying passengers on such railroad; and every such railroad company, for each failure or refusal to comply with the provisions of this article, shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas the sum of fifty dollars, which may be sued for and recovered in the name of the state in any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall be liable to the party injured for all damages by reason of such failure. [Acts 1891, p. 29. Sen. Jour. 1895, No. 89, p. 483.]

Lighting and heating depot, etc.—Duty to keep lights at depots. Rozwadowski v. Railway Co., 20 S. W. 782, 1 C. A. 487; Railway Co. v. Cooper, 70 T. E. 7, 8 S. W. 68.

A carrier held not liable to plaintiff for failure to warm and open depot, where it did not appear that plaintiff would have used it. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 499.

Failure of a carrier to keep its ticket office open 30 minutes before the departure of a passenger train, as required by statute, is negligence per se. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lister (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 107.

Dependences suffered by reason of exposure to inclement weather during such time as was reasonably necessary to enable passengers who had gotten off the train to secure accommodations were the proximate result of defendant's breach of duty, in not having its depot lighted, warmed and open, for which it was liable. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Wallace, 32 C. A. 312, 74 S. W. 581.

The duty of a railroad company to have its depot warmed as required by this article is absolute, and it cannot escape liability for injuries resulting to one on account of violation of that duty, who waited in the depot for hours for a delayed train, and did not abandon his trip and go home. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Lowe (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 1088.

If the depot was kept open for apprentices for one hour before the arrival and departure of passenger trains, and the person the duty imposed was discharged and no recovery can be had. Texas Midland R. R. Co. v. Griggs (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 412.

The statute held not applicable to through passengers awaiting connections at junctions. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Foster (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 797.

A railroad company is liable for damages growing out of sickness caused by failure to have its depot lighted and warmed and open for the benefit of passengers, the required length of time. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Rumfield, 55 C. A. 73, 118 S. W. 810.

Where an agent of a railroad forcing a woman to leave the waiting room at a depot while waiting there for a train was informed that she was in no condition to go out into the rain at night, he had notice of her condition resulting from her monthly sickness, and the railroad was liable for the injuries received by her in consequence of being forced to leave the room in the rain. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Geraldon, 103 T. 402, 125 S. W. 611, 29 L. R. A. (N. S.) 799, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 45, affirming judgment 54 C. A. 71, 117 S. W. 1004.

In an action for injuries to a passenger resulting from exposure in a cold depot while she was waiting for a train, held that the statute only required that the depot be lighted and warmed for a period not less than an hour before the actual arrival and departure of 4208.
passenger trains, and not for an hour before the time such trains are scheduled to arrive at Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Caylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1087.

— Common-law obligation.—Irrespective of the statute it is the duty of a railroad company to provide suitable station to accommodate its passengers departing and arriving and the purpose of the statute is to fix a time that the stations should be warmed, lighted and kept open. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Pevy et al., 30 C. A. 490, 70 S. W. 779.

If the negligence of the railway company makes it necessary for a passenger to remain at the depot a longer time than named in the statute, it is the duty of the company so long as he is required to remain and the night is cold and inclement to keep its depot building warm and comfortable, and if it negligently fails in this it is liable for injuries proximately resulting therefrom. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Doolan, 56 C. A. 503, 120 S. W. 1131, 1132.

A carrier's duty to keep its passenger station open and warm for a period longer than an hour before and an hour after the actual arrival and departure of trains, as provided by this article, to avoid liability to a passenger for injuries from exposure, depends solely on the carrier's common-law obligation to exercise due care for the safety and comfort of passengers. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Caylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1087.

Where a petition in an action for injuries to a passenger by reason of the carrier's alleged failure to keep its waiting station warm only alleged that it was defendant's duty to keep its station lighted and warm for a time not less than an hour before the arrival and after the departure of all trains carrying passengers, as provided by this article, and charged a failure to keep the station warm for an hour prior to the time scheduled for the hour's train to arrive at defendant's station, but not for an hour prior to the actual arrival of the train plaintiff and his wife expected to take, but did not allege that there was any want of due care on the carrier's part to have and keep the depot warm, the petition did not allege a cause of action for breach of the carrier's common-law duty to exercise proper care for the safety and comfort of passengers. Id.

— Contributory negligence.—A passenger made sick by remaining in a cold waiting room after arrival at her destination was not chargeable with contributory negligence for remaining so long as was reasonably necessary. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Perry (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 305.

In an action by a passenger for injuries from exposure in a cold waiting room, an instruction that plaintiff could not recover if she was negligent in remaining in the room for several hours was properly refused, as she was entitled to remain for a reasonable time for being without negligence in so doing with negligently failing to keep the room warm. A carrier could not escape liability for injuries to a passenger from exposure in a cold waiting room on her arrival at destination by showing that the whole or a part of the waiting room was so cold that it was contributory negligence for the passenger to remain there. Id.

Where some of the injuries sustained by a passenger from exposure in a cold waiting room were sustained before plaintiff could be chargeable with negligence in failing to leave the station and go to a hotel, her cause of action was not wholly barred on the ground of contributory negligence. Id.

A passenger made sick by remaining in a cold waiting room was not chargeable with contributory negligence for failure to call the station agent's attention to his breach of the duty imposed by this article, and of the common-law obligation to keep the room warm for a reasonable length of time, especially where the agent was at the station while she remained there. Id.

— Lighting platform, etc.—A railway company which leases or owns ground near its station for hotel purposes is under an obligation to keep in repair or well lighted that portion of the passway beyond its platform leading from its roadbed to the hotel, and which is situated on the rented premises. Railway Co. v. Mangrum, 68 T. 342, 4 S. W. 617.

Circuit court held not liable to a passenger stepping through a hole in the part of the depot platform used, to his knowledge, exclusively for freight; he having gone there on a dark night to relieve himself. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Grubbs, 28 C. A. 367, 67 S. W. 519.

Evidence in an action against a railroad company by a prospective passenger for an injury occasioned by falling at night into a hole in the depot grounds considered, and held not to show negligence in defendant in falling to keep its grounds lighted and in a safe condition. Davis v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 42, 65 S. W. 733.

Where a passenger was directed to alight from a moving train at night, the railroad was negligent in not having the platform sufficiently lighted. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shelton, 30 C. A. 72, 69 S. W. 653.

Railway companies are bound to use ordinary care to have their station platform sufficiently lighted to enable coming or departing passengers to board and to alight in reasonable safety to the person. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Wheeler, 52 C. A. 603, 116 S. W. 88.

— Injuries to licensees or trespassers.—See, also, notes at end of this chapter.

One entering a depot waiting room for the purpose of taking a train is not a trespasser, and he may remain there until his train arrives, subject to the right of the railroad to close its building at such hour as its reasonable rules may require. Texas Mid­land R. R. Co. v. Geraldon, 105 T. 402, 128 S. W. 611, 29 L. R. A. (N. S.) 799, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 45, affirming 94 S. W. 1194; 41 C. A. 111, 117 S. W. 1094.

Safe means of ingress and egress.—A railroad company must provide means of access to and from its stations, and where said way is faulty in construction and repair, and a passenger is injured by reason thereof, he is entitled to recover. Farmer v. Interna­tional & G. N. Ry. Co. 356, C. A. 134 (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 356.

Use of water in water cooler.—A passenger awaiting a train has the right to assume that water in a cooler in a station is good to drink, in the absence of something to put him on notice that it is not. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 361.
False imprisonment.—In an action against a railroad company for damages for unlawfully locking plaintiff in a box car, where he had taken refuge from the rain because the depot was closed when he alighted from a train, and causing his arrest and imprisonment, a judgment of conviction on a plea of guilty entered by a justice without complaint or warrant was no defense to damages accruing prior to the judgment. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 29 C. A. 264, 68 S. W. 881; Same vs. Cope, Id.

Art. 6592. Water closets to be erected.—Each railroad and railway corporation operating a line of railway in the state of Texas for the transportation of passengers thereon are required to construct and maintain, and keep in a reasonably clean and sanitary condition, suitable and separate water closets or privies for both male and female persons at each passenger station on its line of railway, either within its passenger depot or in connection therewith, or within a reasonable and convenient distance therefrom at such station for the accommodation of its passengers who are received and discharged from its cars thereat, and of its patrons and employes who have business with such railroads and corporations at such station. [Acts 1909, p. 175, sec. 1.]

Constitutionality.—This act is constitutional and the prescribed penalty for failing to comply with the law can be enforced. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 721.

This act violates the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States in that it deprives a citizen of his property without due process of law and is therefore unconstitutional. Co. v. State, 100 T. & C. Ry. Co. 454, 100 S. W. 766.

The part of this law requiring railroad companies to keep existing water closets in a sanitary condition and well lighted at night is not unconstitutional and void. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 451, 452.

This act is constitutional because it fails to designate with sufficient certainty what is required of the railroad companies, and therefore fails to apprise them in advance what they must do in order to conform with the act. State v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 554.

This entire act is not unconstitutional. It can be enforced for a failure to keep an existing closet in a proper sanitary condition and properly lighted. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. State, 101 T. 383, 107 S. W. 526.

This article, though not applying to receivers operating railroads, is not invalid as denying to railroad corporations the equal protection of the laws, because the act creates a class, and treats all within the class alike. State v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 223.

This article is not so indefinite and uncertain as to be incapable of being practically obeyed, so as to deprive railroad corporations of their property without due process of law. Id.

This act does not deny to railroad corporations the equal protection of the laws merely because it makes them liable for costs in civil or criminal prosecutions, while it exempts the state from such liability, since the proviso exempting the state from liability for costs adds nothing to the effect of the act; the state not being liable for costs even aside from the provision. Id.

This act is not invalid as denying to railroad corporations the equal protection of the laws, because it does not apply to individuals, copartnerships, associations, and trustees, since, as a practical matter, railroads are owned and operated by corporations, and under state laws all practical conditions are the same as those of corporations. Id.

Acts 31st Leg. c. 96, approved March 20, 1909, required all railroads within the state, within ninety days after the act took effect, to construct and maintain proper toilets in or reasonably near their passenger stations constructed and maintained within the state. The act was carried into this article, except that the words “within ninety days of the taking effect of this act” were omitted. Held, that the act having been in effect two years when the provision was embodied in this article, there was no necessity then for continuing the ninety-day provision, and that the article as contained in the statutes was therefore not violative of Const. U. S. Amend. 14, as depriving the railroads of their property without due process of law, because it did not afford the railroad companies a reasonable time in which to comply therewith. State v. Jasper & E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 331.

Acts 21st Leg. c. 96, § 3, exempting the state from liability for costs in suits under the act to enforce the penalty for failure to maintain and light water-closets at railroad depots, as required by sections 1 and 2, does not violate the provisions of the federal and state constitution relating to the equal protection of the law. State v. Texas & F. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1109.

This act does not violate the equal protection clause of Const. U. S. Amend. 14, even if it applies only to railway “corporations,” because, theoretically, individuals, partnerships, etc., operating railroads are excluded from its operation, since railroads affected by the act are not corporations, nor is the classification of the act unreasonable because it does not apply to receivers operating railroads. Id.

Repeal of former statute.—Acts 29th Leg. c. 133, requiring railroads to provide toilet rooms at stations, and providing a penalty for violations thereof, was, by implication, repealed by Acts 31st Leg. c. 96, relating to the same subject, the only change of the former by the latter act being in the length of time before and after arrival of trains the room should be open and lighted, a reduction of the amount of penalty incurred for a violation of the act, and the date of the accrual of such penalty. State v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 53.
Penal statute.—This act is a penal statute, and the rules governing the construction of penal statutes shall apply. State v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 223.

Receivers of railroads.—This act cannot be construed to apply to receivers operating railroads. State v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 223.

Lessee of railroad.—This law applies to a lessee railway company as well as to the company owning the railroad, and the fact that a judgment has been obtained against the owner, will not bar a judgment against the lessee for failing to provide closets at the same station. The law applies to both companies operating a line of railway. State v. Southern K. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 167.

A depot is no depot. This act only requires the erection and maintenance of toilets by railroads at stations where it has constructed and maintains a building, commonly known as a "depot," for the accommodation and protection of passengers received and discharged thereat, and does not require such maintenance at way or flag stations, where no depot or building has been erected. State v. Jasper & E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 331.

Application.—The statute held to apply to a station where trains stop at night to leave passengers having tickets thereto, or by flagging. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. State, 85 C. A. 452, 120 S. W. 1077.

Pleading.—Where, in an action by the state against a railroad company for failing to construct and maintain proper toilets in or near a passenger depot, as required by this article, the petition alleged that defendant established and had maintained for more than four years a depot or place for the discharging, receiving, etc., of both passengers and freight for hire at such place, and that during such time defendant had failed or refused to erect and maintain toilets in said depot, or within a reasonabe and convenient distance therefrom, the petition sufficiently alleged that the railroad company maintained a building at such point for the accommodation and protection of passengers; the word "depot" being used in its ordinary sense to mean a building, "a railway station, a building for the accommodation and protection of railway passengers or freight." State v. Ry. Co. v. State, 154 S. W. 331.

Amount of penalty.—The penalty prescribed in this act for failing to erect water closets is $100 a week for each week the railroad company may fail to comply with the statute at any station in the county and not $200 a week for each station it fails to comply with the statute in the county. That is, if there is a failure to comply at two stations in a county, the penalty is $100 a week and not $200 a week for the two. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 724, 725.

Art. 6593. Separate closets, how constructed and maintained.—Said railroads and corporations are hereby required to keep said water closets and depot grounds adjacent thereto well lighted at such hours in the night time as its passengers and patrons at such stations may have occasion to be at the same, either for the purpose of taking passage on its trains, or waiting for the arrival thereof, or after leaving the same for at least thirty minutes before the schedule time for the arrival of its said train and after the arrival thereof at said station; provided, that said railroad or incorporation shall not be required by the provisions hereof to keep said closets lighted at such stations where the said railroad does not receive and discharge thereat in the night time passengers on and from its cars. [Id. sec. 2.]

Constitutionality and other matters relating to act.—See notes under Art. 6592.

Art. 6594. Penalties, and suits for.—Any railroad or railway corporation which fails, neglects or refuses to comply with the provisions of the two preceding articles shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas the sum of fifty dollars for each week it so fails and neglects. The county attorney of the county in which such station is located, and in case there is no such county attorney, then the attorney for the district including said county, shall, upon credible information furnished him, institute suit or suits in the name of the state of Texas against such defaulting railroad or railway corporation for the recovery of said penalties; and, in case of said recovery, the said attorney shall be entitled to one-fourth the amount thereof as commission for his said services, and the remainder thereof shall be paid into the road and bridge fund of said county; provided, that the state of Texas shall in no event be liable for any costs in suit authorized by this law to enforce its provisions. [Id. sec. 3.]

Constitutionality and other matters relating to act.—See notes under Art. 6592.

Art. 6595. [4522] Switch cars shall be furnished.—When a company constructs a switch on its road for the accommodation of freighters, they shall be bound to furnish a sufficient number of cars for the transportation of freight therefrom when requested so to do, and in default shall be subject to the same penalties as in other cases of neglect of the like character. [P. D. 4934.]

To what switches applicable.—Only switches at which the company has an agent are within the meaning of the statute, and the failure to furnish cars at a place where the company has no agent does not subject it to the penalties provided in Arts. 6678-6683. H. E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell, 91 T. 551, 45 S. W. 2, 43 L. R. A. 225.

Art. 6596. [4523] Cattle-guards and stops at what places.—Each and every railroad company, whose railway passes through a field or inclosure, is hereby required to place a good and sufficient cattle-guard or stop at the points of entering such field or inclosure, and keep them in good repair. [P. D. 4925.]

Purpose of statute.—The purpose of the statute relating to railroads erecting cattle guards held to include the protection of the owner of land against the escape of cattle. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Krause (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 431.

To maintain a cattle guard at a place where its depot platform extends into a pasture, where it was constructed after the pasture was fenced. Railway Co. v. Simonton, 22 S. W. 285, 2 C. A. 558.

The company must place cattle guards at the entrance of every inclosure, and of course, at cross-fences, though both sides may be in use by the same person. The owner or occupant may turn his cattle into any of his fields at his pleasure, and is not guilty of contributory negligence although he knows the cattle guards leading into other fields. His is not required to repair them, although he is permitted to do so at the expense of the company. Art. 6599; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 860.

A railroad company, under the statute, is not required to construct cattle guards at a private crossing in an inclosure through which its right of way is fenced. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 17 C. A. 400, 43 S. W. 76.

This statute applies to a large pasture as well as to a small field. Railroad Co. v. Isaacson, 50 C. A. 456, 49 S. W. 968.

That a railroad company had acquired title to its right of way through plaintiff's land by warranty deed, and had fenced the same, did not exempt it from liability for damages for failure to erect and maintain cattle guards at the point where the railroad entered plaintiff's inclosure. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wetz, 97 T. 681, 80 S. W. 983.

These articles (6596-6600) apply to a case where a railroad is constructed through an inclosure where the railroad company obtained title by conveyance to the land on which the railroad is constructed, instead of getting right of way by condemnation proceedings.

The duty is imposed upon the railroad company to provide cattle guards or stops where its right of way is fenced or not, and the company is liable for damages occasioned by failure to provide them, although its right of way is fenced. M.; K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wetz, 38 C. A. 563, 87 S. W. 374, 375.

The failure of a railroad company to place cattle guards at the points where its track entered a pasture held a violation of the statute. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Krause (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 431.

This article and Arts. 6598, 6600, did not require a railroad company to place cattle guards at the entrance of a planked trestle at the edge of a switch yard connected with the track, or a right of way fenced on both sides by an unplanked trestle. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 596.

Where a railroad company maintaining a track through a plantation fenced its right of way, and constructed cattle guards at the points of entry, and the owner subsequently included only the right of way fences without intending to subdivide his land into separate fields, the track passed through a field within Arts. 6596-6598. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lee (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 331.

The word "field," in Arts. 6596-6589, means land inclosed by a fence which will prevent the ingress of live stock, and a railroad company need not provide cattle guards unless its track passes through an uninclosed field inclosed by the owner, as distinguished from separate fields so inclosed.

Liability for negligence respecting cattle guards.—See notes under Art. 6600.

Contributory negligence of owner.—See notes under Art. 6599.

Art. 6597. [4524] Same subject.—In case an inclosure or field through which a railway passes shall be enlarged or extended, or the owner of the land over which a railway runs shall clear and open a field so as to embrace the track of a railway, such railroad company is hereby required to place good and sufficient cattle-guards or stops at the margins of such extended inclosures or fields, or such new fields and keep the same in repair.

Where cattle-guards must be maintained.—See notes under Art. 6596.

Liability for negligence respecting cattle-guards.—See notes under Art. 6600.

Contributory negligence of owner.—See notes under Art. 6599.

Art. 6598. [4525] Character of cattle-guards and stops.—Such cattle-guards or stops shall in all cases be so constructed and kept in repair as to protect such fields and inclosures from the depredations of stock of every description.
Art. 6599. Owner may place and keep in repair cattle-guards and stops at cost of company, when.—Should any such company fail to construct and keep in repair such cattle-guards and stops, the owner of such inclosure or field may have such cattle-guards and stops placed at the proper places and kept in repair, and may recover the costs thereof from such railroad company, unless it be shown that the enlargement or extension, as above provided, was made capriciously and with intent to annoy and molest such company. [P. D. 4925.]

Liability for negligence respecting cattle-guards.—See notes under Art. 6600.

Contributory negligence of owner.—This article does not impose any duty upon the landowner to maintain his own inclosure. The owner of the inclosure may, without liability for negligence in case of damage to his inclosure. Railroad Co. v. Young, 60 Tex. 201; Railroad Co. v. Adams, 63 Tex. 200; Railroad Co. v. Kneepf, 82 Tex. 270, 17 S. W. 1052.

When a railroad acquires a right of way across lands, it has the option either to fence its right of way and pay for it, or rely on cattle-guards where it crosses an inclosure. If it relies on cattle-guards and so negligently constructs them that the crops of the landowner are destroyed by cattle, the company cannot shield itself from liability on the ground that the landowner was guilty of contributory negligence in not keeping up cattle-guards, or building a fence on both sides of the company's right of way. H. & W. T. R. R. Co. v. Adams, 63 Tex. 200; T. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Young, 60 Tex. 201; Railroad Co. v. Seargent, 28 S. W. 39, 8 C. A. 653.

The owner or occupant must turn his cattle into any of his fields at his pleasure, and is not guilty of contributory negligence although he knows the cattle-guards leading into other fields are defective; he is not required to repair them, although he is permitted to do so at the expense of the company. St. Louis W. R. Co. v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 860.

An owner of property adjoining a railroad is not required to repair railroad cattle-guards to protect his property from cattle on the railroad's right of way. Houston & T. C. Ry. v. Sproles (Civ. App.) 29 Tex. 1946.

In an action against a railroad company for damages to cotton by cattle entering plaintiff's cotton pen from the railroad's right of way, the owner of the cotton held not guilty of contributory negligence in failing to move the cotton or make the pen stock-proof. Id.

That the owner of a mule pastured the same in a field adjacent to a railroad with knowledge that a cattle-guard in a lane leading from the field was defective held not contributory negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sproles, 47 C. A. 294, 106 S. W. 521.

Where a railroad company failed to maintain cattle-guards at the points of entry into a field, the owner was not bound to minimize damage by fixing the cattle-guards and the right of way fence built by the company to exclude trespassing animals. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 331.

Art. 6600. Liability of company for neglect to place and keep in repair cattle-guards and stops.—Should any such company neglect to construct the proper cattle-guards and stops and keep the same in repair as required by law, such company shall be liable to the party injured by such neglect for all damages that may result from such neglect, to be recovered by suit in any court having jurisdiction. [Id.]

See Railway Co. v. Yarbrough (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 422.

Where cattle-guards must be maintained.—See notes under Art. 6596.

Liability for negligence respecting cattle-guards.—In general.—A railroad is responsible for damages resulting from the negligent construction of cattle-guards. Railway Co. v. Adams, 63 Tex. 200.

Under statute requiring company to construct and keep in repair cattle-guards at margins of inclosures intersected, owner of adjoining inclosures may recover for damages resulting from cattle escaping from one to another over defective guard. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 40 Tex. 860.

The railroad is not liable for damages other than those resulting proximately from the neglect to construct the cattle-guard, nor is it liable to party injured for damages done by himself to his own property unless there should arise a necessity, real or apparent, to injure his own property in order to prevent a greater loss. Railroad Co. v. Isaac, 29 C. A. 465, 49 Tex. 690.

In an action for injuries to an animal found under a cattle-guard located as required by law, the location thereof could not be considered in determining whether the railroad was liable. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. White & Baskin, 49 C. A. 853, 108 Tex. 971.

A railroad required to erect and maintain a cattle-guard held bound to exercise ordinary care to see that the guard did not become so defective that stock might fall into it. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. White & Baskin (Civ. App.) 120 Tex. 947.

— Cause of Injury.—A failure to construct a cattle-guard held not the proximate cause of the killing of stock by a train. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. McKay (Civ. App.) 47 Tex. 479.

Both the failure of a railroad company to erect cattle-guards at the points where its track entered a pasture and the act of a telegraph company in cutting the fence inclosing the right of way held to operate to bring about a loss of cattle escaping from the pasture. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Krause (Civ. App.) 92 Tex. 421.

— Excuses.—The duty of placing stock-guards, preserving or supplying fences, at least on the right of way, and protect the inclosure from injury in the construction of the road, devolves upon the company, and the failure to perform that duty is not excused by the fact that its non-performance resulted from the negligence of an independent contractor.

Measure of damages.—The inquiry as to value should be confined to the very time and place when and where the injury occurred, and it should not extend to the date of the maturity of the crop, nor to the place where it would usually find a market.

When a crop has been wrongfully destroyed, the proper measure of damages is the value of the crop at the time and place of its destruction. Railroad Co. v. Young, 60 T. 201; Railway Co. v. Bayliss, 62 T. 570.

When, by the failure of a railway company to erect and keep in repair cattle-guards, the growing crops of the landowner are destroyed by cattle, the company is liable in damages for their value at the time of their destruction (H. E. & W. T. R. R. Co. v. Adams, 63 T. 290), and interest (G. C. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Holliday, 65 T. 612).

Damages for injury to a growing crop is the actual value of so much thereof as was injured, destroyed at the time of such injury or destruction, with legal interest on the amount from that date. Wamble v. Graves, 1 App. C. C. § 483; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Cox, 2 App. C. C. § 288.

Art. 6601. Johnson grass not permitted to go to seed on right of way.—It shall be unlawful for any railroad or railway company or corporation doing business in this state to permit any Johnson grass or Russian thistle to mature or go to seed upon any right of way owned, leased or controlled by such railroad or railway company or corporation in this state. [Act 1901, p. 283.]

Constitutionality.—Laws 1901, c. 117, making it unlawful for a railroad company to permit Johnson grass to go to seed upon its right of way, and authorizing the recovery of damages and a penalty by a civil suit, does not deny the equal protection of the laws guaranteed by Const. U. S. Amend. 14, § 1. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Letot (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 656.

Exclusive remedy.—Aside from the civil action a railroad company is not liable for permitting Johnson grass or any noxious vegetation to grow on its right of way, where the same is spread by wind, water flowing in its natural course, or other natural causes. Bangle v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 374.

A railroad company would not be liable for failure to prevent Russian thistles from growing or going to seed on its right of way or for bringing them there, independent of this act, and hence the remedy given by the statute is exclusive. Vance v. Southern Kansas Ry. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 743.

Actions to recover penalty or damages.—See notes under Art. 6602.

Art. 6602. Penalty and damages.—If it shall appear upon the suit of any person owning, leasing or controlling land contiguous to the right of way of any such railroad or railway company or corporation that said railroad or railway company or corporation has permitted any Johnson grass or Russian thistle to mature or go to seed upon their right of way, such person so suing shall recover from such railroad or railway company or corporation the sum of twenty-five dollars, and any such additional sum as he may have been damaged by reason of such railroad or railway company or corporation permitting Johnson grass or Russian thistle to mature or go to seed upon their right of way; provided, any owner of land, or any person controlling land, contiguous to the right of way of any such railroad or railway company, who permits any Johnson grass or Russian thistle to mature or go to seed upon said land, shall have no right to recover from such railroad or railway company as provided for in this article. [Id.]

The supreme court doubts the constitutionality of that part of the law which gives right of action for damages to owner of contiguous land, because the subject of damages is not mentioned in the caption. It does not decide the point because it is not specifically embraced in the certified question. S. A. & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Burns, 99 T. 154, 87 S. W. 1148.

So much of this act as authorizes a recovery of damages, must be declared void, unless we adopt the theory that the legislature intended the damages which might be recovered as part of the penalty, and this position is regarded as untenable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stokes (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 399; St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Gentry, 43 C. A. 299, 86 S. W. 74.

So much of this act as gives the right of action to the owner of land contiguous to the right of way of a railroad company is valid. The act contains but one subject and that is sufficiently expressed in the title. Deoppenschmidt v. I. & G. N. R. Co., 100 T. 533, 101 S. W. 1081.

The statute imposing a penalty upon a railroad which allows Johnson grass or Russian thistle to go to seed on its right of way is not a violation of Const. U. S. Amend. 14, in denying such company the equal protection of the laws. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Forrest (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1176.
RAILROADS

The statute does not violate Const. art. 1, §§ 19, 28, not taking the property of railroad companies without due process of law by reason of unjust discrimination. Id.

Continuing the railroad company's argument that it has a right to allow thistles to go to seed, the landowner may recover only one penalty for one contiguous tract of land, though it be subdivided and rented to numerous tenants; but, if the tracts of land are separated by some distance, he may recover a penalty for each tract. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Powell (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 756.

Permitting weeds to mature more than once.—The owner of land damaged by a railroad company allowing Johnson grass to go to seed on its right of way can recover the penalty of $25 for each year the company so allows the grass to go to seed. G. C. & S. F. Ry. v. Doppenschmidt (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 129.

The owner of contiguous land can recover from a railroad company which permits Johnson grass to go to seed on its right of way, a separate penalty for each specific act in permitting the grass to go to seed, that is to say the recovery of penalty on one act does not prevent recovery for subsequent acts. I. & G. N. Ry. v. Voss, 49 C. A. 566, 109 S. W. 586.

The railroad company is liable for the penalty each time Johnson grass is permitted to mature on its right of way. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 280.

Contiguous land.—In order to entitle an owner to recover damages from a railroad company, it is not required that his land be contiguous to that part of the right of way on which the Johnson grass has been permitted to mature or go to seed; if the company has permitted the grass to mature or go to seed on any part of its right of way it violates the law, and if the owner's land is contiguous to the right of way, and as a result of the company permitting the grass to mature or go to seed the owner has suffered damage he can recover the damages. Kansas, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Doepenscheidt (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 499.

Does not depend on negligence.—The right to recover damages under this law does not depend upon the question of negligence of the railroad company (except as to grass allowed to grow before the law went into effect), nor can a recovery be had if the plaintiff allows Johnson grass to go to seed upon his own land. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Terhune (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 76.

The right of an owner of land adjoining a railroad right of way to recover a penalty imposed for permitting Johnson grass to grow on their right of way does not depend on the railroad company's negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 794.

An action against a railroad for permitting Johnson grass to grow may be maintained under the statute, without showing negligence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Burns, 39 C. A. 32, 89 S. W. 21.

One suing a railroad company for penalties and damages under the statute making it unlawful for a railroad company to permit Johnson grass to mature on its right of way need not allege or prove negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 289.

When action accrues.—An action for the penalty accrues when the grass has been permitted to mature or to go to seed but an action for damages accrues when the damage has been done to the owner's land by being infested with the Johnson grass, which may not be at the time when the grass matures or goes to seed on the right of way. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Doppenschmidt (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 129.

Owner permitting Johnson grass, etc., to mature on his land.—An owner of land, who permits Johnson grass to go to seed upon his land, has no right of action against the railroad company for permitting such grass to go to seed upon his right of way. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Burns, 99 T. 154, 87 S. W. 1146.

A railroad company is not liable for allowing Johnson grass on its right of way, notwithstanding the permission or permits of grass communicated from the right of way to mature on his own premises. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Burns, 39 C. A. 32, 89 S. W. 21.

That plaintiff permitted Johnson grass to grow on his land held not to defeat recovery from defendant railroad company for negligence in constructing its road, whereby Johnson grass seed was washed on plaintiff's land. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 280.

An action against a railroad company for permitting Johnson grass to mature on its right of way in violation of the statute may be defeated by the company proving that plaintiff had permitted the grass to mature on his land during the time complained of. Id.

A landowner who permitted Russian thistles to go to seed on his land for any reason cannot recover damages from a railroad company for permitting thistles to grow on its right of way and be cast upon the adjoining land. Vance v. Southern Kansas Ry. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 743.

Measure of damages.—Measure of damages occasioned by permitting Johnson grass to go to seed and by washing the same on to the land of another determined. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Malone (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 936.

Where land has been damaged by the spread of Johnson grass thereon in consequence of the act of a railroad company in diverting surface water from its natural course so as to flow along its right of way and onto plaintiff's land so as to carry the grass seed and roots to the land, the owner may recover the difference in the value of the land with the grass as situated thereon and the value of the land without the grass. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 280.

Judging Russian thistles.—The court cannot take judicial notice that a particular locality along a railroad right of way was free from Russian thistles at a particular time, though it may take judicial notice that the thistles grew throughout the state and were a great nuisance. Vance v. Southern Kansas Ry. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 743.

Admissibility of evidence.—Plaintiff in an action under Acts 1901, c. 117, relating to Johnson grass on railroad rights of way, pleaded as part of his cause of action the expenditure of money and the performance of labor without alleging that such expense was reasonable and necessary. No exception was taken to the petition. Held, that plain-

2. Change of law.—The amendment of 1895 (Acts 1895, p. 236), changes the pre-existing law so as to make railroad companies liable in all cases where their roads are not fenced for stock killed or injured, thereby taking away a defense which the railroad company might urge if the owner of the animal is a violator of the law in permitting his animal to run at large. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb, 102 T. 219, 114 S. W. 1172, 1173.
3. Purpose of statute.—The statute is not only for the protection of animals, but especially for the protection of human life. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Langham ( Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 686.
4. Liability of receiver.—The receiver of a railroad is liable under this article. Railway Co. v. Bender, 28 Tex. W. 1047, 87 S. T. 99.

5. Train operated by contractor.—The railroad company is not responsible for the killing of an animal by a train operated by an independent contractor in the construction of the road. H. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Bayless, 1 App. C. C. § 258.

6. Duty to animals.—This article does not apply to a street railway. San Antonio St. Ry. Co. v. Wynn (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 461.

7. Dogs not stock.—A dog is not stock within the meaning of this article, and railroad is not required to exercise due diligence against that class of animals. Railway Co. v. Scott, 4 App. C. C. § 277, 17 S. W. 1116.

8. Applies only to injuries from collision.—This statute does not apply to a case when animals are injured through fright caused by a train, and not by actual collision with a locomotive or car. Railway Co. v. Felton, 4 App. C. C. § 39, 14 S. W. 1072; Railway Co. v. Harris, 3 App. C. C. § 224.

To authorize a recovery under this article, it devolved upon plaintiff to prove by a preponderance of evidence that the injury resulted from an actual contact with him of the defendant's train. If the horse killed ran upon the bridge and fell off and thus received the injury which resulted in his death, plaintiff is not entitled to recover. Railway Co. v. Ritter, 4 App. C. C. § 148, 16 S. W. 909; Railway Co. v. Leal, 4 App. C. C. § 149, 16 S. W. 909; Railway Co. v. Mitchell, 4 App. C. C. § 261, 17 S. W. 1078.

It is only where stock is killed or injured by locomotives or cars that the railroad can be held absolutely liable under this article. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Tamborollo (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 296.

A railroad company which does not fence its track is not liable for cattle injured on a trestle on the right of way. Id.

A railroad held not liable for injuries to a horse that went upon the right of way and fell into a bridge. Padgitt v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 67.

Where a railroad company leaves the right of way unfenced, and animals go upon the track and are injured, the company is liable when the injury results from the cattle coming in contact with trains but not otherwise, unless its results from negligence on the part of the company. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 696.

9. Care required and liability in general—Signals and lookout.—An instruction held to place too high a duty on a railroad company as to keeping a lookout for stock on the track. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Van Ness, 46 C. A. 633, 101 S. W. 265.

In an action against a railroad for killing a cow, failure to ring bell held a fact that could be considered by jury in determining whether railroad had exercised ordinary care. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1187.

Where a cow had been on the track five minutes when killed, railroad's liability depends upon whether ordinary care required a lookout for animals, and, if so, whether in the exercise of such care the cow would have been discovered in time to prevent injury. Id.

It being customary for railroad companies to give sharp blasts of the whistle to clear the track of live stock, it must be presumed that the whistle would, in some instances at least, result in avoiding an injury to them. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Corn, 102 T. 394, 114 S. W. 158.

It was the duty of an engineer to keep a constant lookout and use reasonable care not to hit persons or animals at street crossings. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Diaz (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 897.

10. Rate of speed.—In an action against a railroad for killing a cow, held error to charge jury to find for plaintiff if the speed of the train at the time of the accident exceeded that prescribed by the regulations. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 26 C. A. 250, 63 S. W. 548.

In action for killing stock, held, that the mere fact that a train running 30 miles an hour approaches a public road crossing on a downgrade and from about a curve is not sufficient to impose on the trainmen the duty to slacken the speed in making the crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Morris (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 688.

In an action against a railroad company for killing ponies, that the train was run at a high rate of speed might be considered negligence in the operation of the train at the point where animals might be expected to be on the track. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Anson (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 785.

Negligence on the part of a railroad is not inferred from the fact that a train is moving at a rapid rate of speed and killing cattle on the track at a depot. Texas & N. O. R. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 685.

Operators of a special train held under no obligation to anticipate the presence of cattle on the track at a depot. Id.

It is not negligence under all circumstances to run a train at a high rate of speed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Anson, 101 T. 194, 106 S. W. 989.

11. Violation of ordinance as negligence.—See notes under Arts. 821 and 885.

12. Care as to animals seen on or near track.—A railroad held under no duty to look out for a horse on the track until the horse is discovered in a place where it is reasonably to be expected that he will be injured. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 783.

On discovering animals on railroad tracks, the operators of a train are bound to observe proper precautions to avoid running into them. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 630.

A railroad company may move its trains at farm crossings with the usual and necessary noise, without keeping a lookout for frightened teams. Edwards v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 105 T. 404, 151 S. W. 283.
13. Liability where right of way is fenced.—If the right of way is fenced the burden of proving want of due care rests upon the plaintiff. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Cocke, 64 T. 151; Railway Co. v. Hudson, 77 T. 494, 14 S. W. 158.

A railroad company, in the absence of negligence, is not responsible for the killing of cattle entering upon the right of way inclosed by a fence. Railway Co. v. Glenn, 30 S. W. 846, 8 C. & N. V. 301; Meltheimer (Civ.) 33 S. W. 1093.

When a railroad company has once fenced its right of way as required by law it is only liable for stock killed or injured in the absence of ordinary care in the operation of trains in failing to keep fences in repair. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Reitz, 27 C. A. 411, 65 S. W. 1088.

If its track is fenced the railroad company is liable only when the injury has resulted from want of care on the part of its servants to prevent the injury. Ft. W. & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Swan, 77 T. 338, 78 S. W. 921.

A railroad company having fenced its right of way held liable for stock killed only in case the killing was the result of the company’s negligence in maintaining such fences or in the operation of its trains. Pt. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Worsham, 47 C. A. 350, 105 S. W. 853.

Where a railroad right of way was inclosed by a sufficient fence and cattle guards, and there was nothing to indicate that stock were likely to be trespassing there, those in charge of the train did not, as a matter of law, owe a duty to keep a lookout for stock; and an instruction that they did was improper. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moore (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 602.

14. Liability where right of way is not fenced.—Where a railroad line is not fenced, the law imposes on the company the duty of exercising due care in the maintenance of the passage of a train. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Cocke, 64 T. 151; Railway Co. v. Hudson, 77 T. 494, 14 S. W. 158.

A railroad company is liable to the owner for the value of all stock killed or injured, and is under the duty of exercising due care or negligence which has caused the killing absolutely and at all events, where the company has not fenced its road. T. C. R. R. Co. v. Childress, 64 T. 346; H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Muldrow, 51 T. 233; G. H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 1 App. C. C. § 149; T. & F. R. R. R. Co. v. Miller, 1 App. C. C. § 363.

If a railroad company is negligent in killing of stock where fence has been removed, see Railway Co. v. Downey (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 105.

Under the provisions of this article a railroad company is liable for the killing of animals without proof that it was in some manner guilty of negligence which was the proximate cause of such killing. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hanacek, 93 T. 446, 56 S. W. 1117; Id. 23 C. A. 215, 55 S. W. 1119.

A railroad company has not fenced its track is absolutely liable for damages for the killing of live stock by the operation of its locomotives or cars. Pt. W. & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Swan, 97 T. 338, 78 S. W. 921.

Railroad held liable for killing a cow at a place where it was bound to fence and failed to do so. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 519.

In an action for killing plaintiff’s horses, an instruction that, if the right of way was not fenced, and public necessity did not require that it be unfenced, plaintiff was entitled to recover, held erroneous. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Simpson, 41 C. A. 125, 91 S. W. 874.

Where an animal is killed on the unfenced track of a railroad the company is liable for the killing of animals without proof of negligence as to the degree of care which was required. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 294.

If cattle enter unlawfully upon a railway track, which is fenced up by the company, or at a place where by law cattle are prohibited from running at large, the company will not be liable in damages for their injury by a moving train, if its employes use such care, after the danger becomes known, as a prudent man would under the circumstances use to void the injury. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Cocke, 64 T. 151. And the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show the negligence of the defendant. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Samora, 1 App. C. C. § 155; Bethje v. H. & T. C. R. R. Co., 28 T. 604.

A railroad company is not liable to owners for killing animals, or for injury done by its cars to animals, entering upon its tracks at a place where by law the running at large of animals is made unlawful, unless the conduct of its employes amounts to gross negligence. Gross negligence is where there is an entire failure to exercise care, or by the exercise of so slight a degree of care as to justify the belief that the person on whom the care was incumbent was indifferent to the interests and welfare of others. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lawler, 2 App. C. C. §§ 19, 29, citing I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Cocke, 64 T. 151.

A railroad company is liable for negligently killing animals, although running at large in violation of law. Houston & T. C. Ry. 106, 68 S. W. 724.

Where stock not permitted to run at large go upon a railroad track which has been fenced in, and are then killed by the locomotives or cars, recovery can only be had upon showing negligence on part of the train operatives in failing to prevent the injury after the discovery of the presence of such animals on or dangerously near the tracks.
track, or otherwise showing such gross negligence as would amount to this. Under such circumstances, and their bare proximity to the railroad, is negligence on the part of their owner. Red River T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Dooley, 35 C. A. 364, 90 S. W. 666.

A railroad company held not liable for killing an animal entering on its tracks in a county where the stock law is in force. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Atlas Press Brick Co., 36 C. A. 368, 91 S. W. 792.

A railroad company is not liable in damages for stock killed on its tracks in a county in which the stock law has been adopted, in the absence of negligence in the operation of the trains killing the stock. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tobert (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 668.

The question of the negligence of a railroad company, killing stock at a place where the stock law was in force, held unaffected by the care exercised by the owner in confining the animal. Id.

It is error to instruct the jury that the burden is on defendant to establish its plea of contributory negligence in a case where the animal was killed on the track within territory where the stock law is in force, the plea consisting alone of allegations setting up the existence of stock law and of the appellees permitting the animal to run at large, and the facts being undisputed as stated in the plea. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hudgens (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 379.

The stock law supersedes the fence law and in the absence of negligence in the operation of the train, the railroad company is not liable on account of stock killed by the train. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Nussbaum & Scharff, 43 C. A. 410, 94 S. W. 1103.

The defense that the stock law was in force at the place where an animal was killed held valid. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 106.

A railroad company killing an animal at a public crossing in a district in which stock law is in force and the fences running at large held not liable for damages resulting from negligence is shown. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Scofield (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 455.

A railroad company held not liable for killing an animal on its tracks, where, after the engineer discovered the animal, he could not prevent the killing by the use of the bell, because of his own negligence. Id.

The effect of the amendment of 1905 (Acts 1905, p. 226, § 20a) is to put a case for killing an animal by a railroad in the same attitude as if the stock law had never been adopted. The liability of the company is absolute, unless it has complied with the law as to fencing its track. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb, 103 T. 216, 114 S. W. 1174.

Employees of a railroad must exercise ordinary care to avoid injuring animals unlawfully running at large, if they know of their presence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 936.

16. Not required to keep lookout.—A railroad company operating a train through a district which has adopted the stock law is not required to anticipate animals on its track. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tobert (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 668.

If the railroad is bound to exercise ordinary care to avoid injuring animals improperly permitted to run at large in a stock-law district until the animals were discovered on the track, or it was seen that they would probably not get off the track in time to avoid being injured. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hudgens, 43 C. A. 201, 94 S. W. 379.

17. Proclamation of stock law.—Where no contest is shown to have been made, and the stock law appealed to, that is to say, is being enforced in the designated territory, prima facie it has been legally proclaimed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Kropp (App.) 91 S. W. 819.

18. Damages for trespass.—In a suit for the recovery of the value of an animal killed, the railroad can recover damages resulting from dam being unlawfully on its track. G. & C. S. F. R. R. Co. v. Tacquaud, 3 App. C. C. § 250.

Where horses were killed on track at a place where defendant was not required to fence, the fact that another portion of the track was unfenced was immaterial. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Willis, 17 C. A. 228, 42 S. W. 371.

The first duty of an engineer in charge of a train on discovering animals on the track at a place where the railroad is not required to fence its track is to stop the train and give the safety of the passengers. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Langham (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 686.

With all other negligence eliminated, liability of a railroad company depends upon its negligence in killing a particular animal at a particular place where it was permitted to fence. Louterstein v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 310.

20. Places where fences are not required.—A station held not of such a character as to exempt the railroad company from fencing its tracks to shield itself from presumed negligence in killing stock. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. McKay (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 472.

In an action against a railroad for killing mules, where defendant contended that it was not required to fence its track at the place of the accident, the burden to establish this defense by a preponderance of the testimony was upon it. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 627.

An instruction that defendant was not required to fence such portions of its track between the switch stands and other parts of the track as was necessary to be used in switching the cars and in operating the switch stands, was not misleading or confusing.

A charge that the burden of proof was on defendant to show that it was necessary to fence, or that plaintiff was required to fence, at the place of the accident, and unless it was found that it was necessary to keep the track unfenced at that place plaintiff could recover, was erroneous as containing no guide to govern the jury in their determination as to what conditions would render it necessary to keep the track unfenced. Id.

That railroad switches, side tracks, and a depot house on a particular point on its line, and that plaintiff’s colt was killed within such switching limits, does not exempt the railroad company from liability in the absence of negligence as a matter of law. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Seay (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 998.

The courts from the necessity of the case held to read exceptions into the statute requiring railroad companies to fence their tracks. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Schram (App.) 138 S. W. 196.

To make a prima facie case against a railroad company for the killing of an animal by a train, it is only necessary to prove the killing by the train, and to meet the case the company must prove either that its track was fenced, or that it was exempted from fencing at the point of the accident; but mere proof that such place is within the switching bounds arbitrarily established by the company, but not in fact used by it for switching purposes, is not sufficient. Id.

21. Necessity of showing negligence.—This article does not apply to such places as public necessity or convenience require to be left unfenced, as the crossing of highways and other like places, unless the want of ordinary care is shown. Railway Co. v. O’Neal, 4 Ariz. C. W. 84, 38 S. W. 531; Railway Co. v. Cocke, 64 T. 151; Railway Co. v. Durham, 68 T. 291, 4 S. W. 472, 2 Am. St. Rep. 484; Swanson v. Melton, 4 App. C. C. § 284, 18 S. W. 1085; Railway Co. v. Balkam (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 860.

Where stock is killed at a point where a railroad company is not required to fence its tracks, there is no negligence on the part of the defendant. Railway Co. v. Austin, 13 C. A. 249, 35 S. W. 331. See, also, I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Samora, 1 App. C. C. § 155; Bethel v. H. & C. T. R. R. Co., 25 T. 604.

In an action against a railroad company for the killing of a cow at a street crossing where the railroad could have been fenced, in the part of the railroad must be shown. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Clark, 26 C. A. 280, 62 S. W. 546.

In an action against a railroad for killing a mule while within defendant’s station yard, where it was not required to fence its tracks, plaintiff must prove negligence. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cooper, 32 C. A. 593, 75 S. W. 328.

Where an animal is struck by a railroad train at a public crossing, mere proof of the killing is not sufficient to establish the railroad’s liability. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Carr (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 858.

To justify a recovery from a railroad for the killing of cattle on the part of its track not required to be fenced, proof of negligence on the part of the railroad is essential. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Langham (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 935.

Where plaintiff’s mare was killed within defendant’s switch limits at a certain town, and at a place where public policy prevented the fencing of the tracks, the burden was on plaintiff to establish negligence by defendant which proximately caused the death of the mare. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 607.

The mere fact that it was killed by a train is not proof that the defendant was negligent. Fifty & C. Co. v. Neander, 13 C. A. 576, 35 S. W. 331. See, also, I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Samora, 1 App. C. C. § 155; Bethel v. H. & C. T. R. R. Co., 25 T. 604.

To recover for the death of an animal struck by cars in switch yards, where the railroad company could not fence its tracks, must, to recover, show that the trainmen were guilty of negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1184.

22. What constitutes fence.—In general.—A fence along a railroad 100 feet from the track on each side and including the right of way and a public highway, along which people traveled is not such a fence as is contemplated by this statute. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts, 29 C. A. 566, 69 S. W. 935.

The duty of a railroad company to fence its tracks imports the duty to securely fence it, so as to exclude live stock. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Corn, 102 T. 194, 114 S. W. 103.

There is no unnecessary burden in a gate in a switch limit in which the track is not such a fence as the statute contemplates. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb, 102 T. 210, 114 S. W. 1174.

23. Escape absolute liability to the owner of stock killed by trains, a railroad company cannot be held liable for the fact that it had its road so fenced as to prevent stock of ordinary disposition from entering the right of way. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 145.

The defendant’s right of way was fenced, but a gate in its right of way fence stood open most of the time, and it was not shown to be an opening authorized under Arts. 640 and 641, but the gate upon which defendant’s right of way was fenced. Held, that defendant’s road was not “fenced in” as required by the statute, and that it was absolutely liable for the injury. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 694.

Repair and maintenance.—Liability is made absolute by this article without any question as to negligence, unless the track be fenced, but where the fence is out of repair as to be no fence at all, it is in law no fence at the place, and the case is to be controlled by the statute applicable to unfenced tracks and no question of negligence arises. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Tolbert, 109 T. 443, 101 S. W. 258.

A railroad company permitting its right of way fence to become and remain out of repair, is negligent and liable for killing animals passing through the fence onto the track. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hickox ( Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 202.

To escape absolute liability the company must not only so "fence in" its right of way as to prevent stock of ordinary kind from going upon its road, but it must "fence out" its cattle, so as to prevent any escape of cows, horses, mules or other stock from the land adjoining the fence. W. & P. Ry. Co. v. Sproles, 47 C. S. 823, 824.

A railroad is not exempt from liability for killing stock when it is shown that its cattle guard is out of repair sufficient to permit the ingress of stock upon its right of way. Ft. Worth & P. Ry. Co. v. Poolem ( Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 436, 437.

It is the duty of a railroad company, after it has fenced in its right of way to maintain the fence in such condition as under ordinary circumstances to effectually turn live stock of ordinary disposition and docility. There is nothing said about maintaining the fence, but it is implied that the fence must be duly maintained as a fence. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Pruitt, 101 T. 548, 109 S. W. 927.

Where a railroad company erects a fence along its tracks, it owes to the adjacent owners the duty to exercise ordinary care to keep the fence in proper condition. International Ry. v. Ellis, 49 C. A. 506, 109 S. W. 906.

It is the duty of a railroad company after it has fenced in its right of way to maintain the fence in such condition as under ordinary circumstances to effectually turn live stock of ordinary disposition and docility. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Pruitt, 49 C. A. 370, 110 S. W. 267.

Where a railroad fence was down, leaving an extensive gap, through which plaintiff's stock lawfully at large, might be expected and did wander onto the track, and when in that position they were virtually in a trap by reason of adjacent obstacles to their escape, the railroad company was liable for injuring them. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Benalst ( Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 587.

25. Liability for stock injured at private crossings.—In general.—A railroad company held not liable for an animal killed on its track by failure of plaintiff to put in a gate at a farm crossing as agreed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Smith ( Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 83.

When a railroad has fenced its right of way, where it passes through an inclosure, and it has put gates in the fences on each side of the right of way so as to allow passage over the right of way from one part of the inclosure to the other, and stock has gotten on the right of way through one of the gates and been killed, the railroad company is only liable for injury resulting from want of ordinary care. Railway Co. v. Hanacek, 93 T. 449, 55 S. W. 1117.

Railroad held not liable for killing of stock, owing to a gate which it had erected in the fence inclosing the right of way being left open by a third person. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 24 C. A. 81, 58 S. W. 1055.

Where a railroad company leaves a private crossing open at the request of the owner of the inclosure or in accordance with a contract with him for an open crossing, and stock of the owner is killed or injured at such crossing, the company is not liable under this article for failure to have the crossing fenced. M., K. & T. Co. of Texas v. Chenault, 24 C. A. 431, 60 S. W. 59.

In an action against a railroad company for killing a mule, a charge held erroneous which permitted a verdict for plaintiff without negligence of the trainmen, if the fence was defective, though the mule escaped through the open gate. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Erwin ( Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 466.

Where stock go through an opening made for the benefit of the owner of the land and not for the general public and are killed, the railroad company is liable as if the tracks were not fenced. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Richmond, 28 C. A. 813, 67 S. W. 1030.

Evidence held to show that the opening in the fence of the railroad right of way, through which the animals went on defendant's track, was one of mere convenience to the adjacent landowner. Id.

Where plaintiff's land, in a county having adopted the stock law, did not adjoin a fenced railroad right of way, and one of his mules escaped from his pasture across an intervening tract of land, and passed onto the right of way through a gate which had been left open, and was killed, the railroad company was not liable therefor. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Huddleston ( Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 779.

A railroad company held not liable for mules killed, which passed through an alleged defective fence gate, unless the mules escaped by reason of the defect, and not by reason of the gate being left open. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bradshaw ( Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 897.

A request to charge that, if the mules got on the track through a gate left open by some person, defendant was entitled to a verdict, held properly refused. Id.

In an action for the killing of certain mules, it was not error for the court to refuse to charge that the engineer was not required to look out for animals coming on the track through a private gate in a right of way fence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rodgers ( Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 625.

In plaintiff's mule escaped onto defendant railroad company's right of way through its defective gate and were killed, that they previously escaped from the pasture into plaintiff's cotton land held no defense to defendant's liability. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dunnaway, 43 C. A. 356, 96 S. W. 760.

In an action for killing plaintiff's horses, an instruction requiring plaintiff to show that the gates of his inclosure were closed, and that the horses entered through a defective right of way fence, held properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. of Texas v. Cassinoba, 44 C. A. 625, 99 S. W. 885.
A railway company is not liable for killing stock, where it escaped through open gates maintained for the benefit of the property owner. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. v. Worsham, 47 C. A. 550, 105 S. W. 853.

A railroad company held not liable for injuries to stock passing upon the right of way through a private gate, in the absence of negligence in the operation of a train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. v. Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 132.

Where animals, coming upon the track through gates which it is the duty of the railroad to keep closed, are injured, the railroad is liable therefor. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 192.

28. Duty to keep gates closed.—Where a private crossing over a railway track is granted at the request of the owner of the pasture through which the railroad ran, it is not the duty of the railroad company to see that the gates are kept closed, and in making out a case it devolved upon the owner to show that his stock entered on the railroad track through the fence and not the gate. S. A. & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 17 C. A. 409, 48 S. W. 76.

A railroad company held not bound to keep closed gates erected for the protection of landowners in fences inclosing its right of way, and not to be liable for injuries to stock arising from its neglect to do so. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hanetz, 23 C. A. 394, 56 S. W. 956.

A railroad company is not, under all circumstances, liable for injuries to live stock resulting from leaving open a private gate in its right of way fence, constructed for the accommodation of the owner of adjoining land, and is not bound to keep watch to see that it is at all times closed. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Corn, 102 T. 194, 114 S. W. 103.

A railroad company, placing a gate in its right of way fence for the accommodation of landowners, is not required to see that the gate is closed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 234.

If a railroad company erects a sufficient fence and gate and keeps it in repair, the landowner must keep it closed and cannot recover against the company for injury to stock caused by his failure to do so. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 948.

A railroad company, having Constructed gates for whose inclosure a railroad track is to pass, is under the benevolent of private fences and is liable for injuries to stock resulting from the use of such gates, where the company is not liable either for stock belonging to the owners of such gates having the fence, or for the stock of third persons passing through such gates, in the absence of negligence in the operation of its train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Butler (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 176.

27. Repair of gates.—Railroad held not liable for killing of stock owing to trivial defects in a gate which it had erected for an adjoining landowner's benefit and which the latter had assumed to repair. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Adams, 24 C. A. 231, 58 S. W. 1035.

Where an owner of adjoining a railroad contracted to keep the fence at a private crossing in repair and the gate shut, he could not recover for the killing of a mule which got on the track because of a defect in the gate. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Owens, 36 C. A. 54, 81 S. W. 92.

Under the statute, instructions imposing an absolute duty on the railroad company to make substantial gates in its right of way fence and to repair substantial defects held erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Braddahw (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 897.

It was not liable for killing mules which passed through the gate by reason of a defect which could have been remedied by the landowner with slight labor and trifling expense.

If a railroad company constructs a gate as part of the fence inclosing its right of way for the convenience of owner of adjoining land it must exercise ordinary care to keep the gate in repair, so that same may be properly closed; and when that is done the owner of fence, owner of property, over which the land must keep the gate closed. The railroad will be liable for damages occasioned by failure to keep the gate in repair. Cole v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1129.

A railroad company, having constructed gates in its right of way fence for the benefit of the owners of pasture held not liable for animal that passed through the gate onto the track by reason of the gate being left open or falling into disrepair. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Russell, 48 C. A. 155, 106 S. W. 438.

28. Excuses for failure to fence.—That a railroad company would be inconvenienced in the operation of its road, and in the loading and unloading of its cars, by the fencing of a road at a particular point, does not exempt it from liability for stock killed. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Simpson, 2 App. C. C. § 670.

The fact that the farm of the owner of stock is fenced does not relieve a railway company from fencing its road. Railway Co. v. Peterson, 27 S. W. 969, 8 C. A. 357.

Contributory negligence of owner.—An action cannot be maintained against a railroad company for killing stock straying on its unfenced right of way, where the owner is guilty of contributory negligence. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts, 37 C. A. 108, 88 S. W. 250.

In an action against a railroad company for negligently killing plaintiff's team of horses, plaintiff held not liable for negligence in leaving team unguarded, held not liable for negligence in leaving team unattended as did Gulf, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Graham, 46 C. A. 98, 101 S. W. 846.

A railroad company killing horses on its track held not entitled to defend on the ground that the owner of the horses was guilty of contributory negligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. Co. v. Hixson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 202.

Proximate cause of injury.—In an action for killing plaintiff's horses, plaintiff held entitled to recover only if defendant's negligence in maintaining its stock gap was the proximate cause of the injury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Simpson, 41 C. A. 125, 91 S. W. 574.

Where plaintiff's animals escaped onto defendant's track through a right of way fence gate and were killed, the negligence of a third person in leaving the gate open during the night and the proximate cause of the accident. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Russell, 48 C. A. 155, 106 S. W. 438.
Where a railroad company fails to keep its fences in proper condition, and horses escaping onto the track are frightened by a train, and are injured by falling through a bridge, the negligence in not keeping the fence repaired is the proximate cause of the injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Dixon, 49 C. A. 506, 109 S. W. 978.

In an action for the killing of plaintiff's cattle by defendant's train by reason of their escaping through a gate, the defective condition of the gate under the circumstances stated, held the proximate cause of the gate's being left unfastened and the cattle escaping. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Corn (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 485.

The railroad company was held liable for an injury to a horse getting its foot hung on a spike standing above the flange of the rail. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dean, 55 C. A. 496, 118 S. W. 804.

A finding that negligence in the operation of a train at an excessive speed was the proximate cause of the killing of an animal left in the way of the train by the defendants is sustained. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 735.

Although a mare was a trespasser on a railroad track, if the negligence of the railroad employees was the proximate cause of her death, the company is liable. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 993.

A railroad company cannot escape liability for injuries inflicted on a horse on its tracks by showing that the injuries were in part caused by box cars standing on a side track. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 598.

That the negligence of trainmen might be the proximate cause of killing a horse it must appear that it was on the track under such circumstances that the accident was the natural consequence of the negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 962.

31. Presumptions and burden of proof.—See the foregoing notes and also notes under Art. 3637.

32. Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Evidence that a horse was killed on railroad crossing held to justify recovery, without evidence that the crossing was fenced or could not be fenced, or that the horse was unlawfully on the track. Louisiana Western Extension R. Co. v. Deon (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 104.

Evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff's jack was killed by defendant's railroad. Gulf, Colorado & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blau, 31 C. A. 644, 73 S. W. 1074.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of a horse, evidence held not to require a finding for defendant. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 341.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of a mule, evidence held to support a finding that the mule entered defendant's right of way through a defective fence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 846.

In an action against a railroad company for killing plaintiff's horses, evidence held to warrant a finding that they entered on the track through a defective right of way fence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cassinobah, 44 C. A. 625, 99 S. W. 888.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant recovery against a railroad for a mule found dead on its right of way. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. King Bros., 45 C. A. 265, 99 S. W. 1930.

Evidence held to justify a finding that the animal was killed by defendant's train. Pt. L. S. & N. Ry. Co. v. Poison (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 428.

In an action against a railway company for killing stock, evidence held not to show that the fastening of the gate on the right of way was defective. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Davis, 54 C. A. 518, 113 S. W. 234.

Evidence held sufficient to show that the animals were killed by defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Crews, 54 C. A. 548, 120 S. W. 1110.

In an action for the killing of a horse, unlawfully running at large, by a train running at an excessive speed, evidence held insufficient to show that the railroad employees discovered the horse to be where he might be expected to be injured by the train in the manner they operated it. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 735.

Evidence held insufficient to show that injured animals, entering the right of way at a place not fenced, were struck by a train. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 596.

34. Negligence of defendant.—Evidence held insufficient to show that cattle on the track were killed by defendant's negligence. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 17 C. A. 400, 43 S. W. 76.

Evidences held sufficient to sustain a finding that the killing of a horse at a railroad crossing was through the negligence of the railroad company. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 841.

In an action against a railroad for the killing of a mule, evidence held insufficient to show negligence on the part of the defendant. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. McMillan, 37 C. A. 483, 84 S. W. 296.

In an action against a railroad company for the killing of certain mules, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence on the part of defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 525.

In an action against a railroad for killing plaintiff's cattle at an open crossing, evidence examined, and held not to show negligence on defendant's part. Mahler v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 206.

Evidence in an action against a railroad company for killing an animal on its track held as a matter of law not to show actionable negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 508.

In evidence in an action against a railroad for killing plaintiff's stock at a place where it was not required to fence its track held not to show actionable negligence on its part. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Langham (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 686; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Conley, 142 S. W. 36.

In an action against a railroad company for killing plaintiff's mule, evidence held sufficient to authorize a finding that the engineer was negligent in not having observed the animal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Josey (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 688.

In an action against a railroad for the killing of ponies on its track, a finding that it was negligently operated. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kincheloe, 56 C. A. 123, 119 S. W. 905.

In an action against a railroad for injuring cattle, certain testimony held not to prove actionable negligence. Ft. Worth & C. Ry. Co. v. Hodge & Speer (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 286.

In an action against a railroad company, evidence held to warrant a finding that a cow was killed through defendant's negligence. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Skeeters Bros. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 222.

Evidence held not to show that the trainmen failed to keep a proper lookout or discover the mare in time to have avoided striking her by reasonable care. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 962.

In an action for the death of an animal struck by cars in switch yards, evidence held not to show the negligence of the railroad company. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 1184.

In an action against a railroad company for killing a mule at a city street crossing, facts to show the railroad company with actionable negligence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Diaz (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 907.

35. Proximate cause.—In an action against a railroad for killing plaintiff's dog, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of the dog's death. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blake, 43 C. A. 180, 95 S. W. 693.

In an action against a railroad company for killing a horse, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of the injury to the horse. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Randal, 45 C. A. 637, 108 S. W. 505.

A finding that negligence in the operation of a train was the proximate cause of the killing of an animal on the track cannot be sustained in the absence of evidence that negligence was a proximate cause of the death. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Latham, 53 C. A. 210, 115 S. W. 896.

Evidence in an action for the death of a mare on the track held not to show that any negligence existed in running at excessive speed or failure to give signals was the proximate cause of the mare being killed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 962.

In an action for the death of a mule struck by a railroad train, evidence held insufficient to show that the company was negligent, or that its negligence was the proximate cause of the death. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graham (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 653.

36. Measure of recovery.—In general.—The general rule of the value of a thing is what it will bring in market. To constitute market value it must appear that similar things have been bought and sold in the way of trade in sufficient quantity or frequence to establish market value for such things. Where there is no market value, the value of the thing must be ascertained by the circumstances of the case, its intrinsic value, cost, usage, prices asked and offered, and other facts which would naturally affect the marketability of the goods. Graham, H. & S. A. R. R. Co. of Davis, 1 App. C. C. 147.

The owner may recover reasonable expenses incurred in taking care of and curing the animal. (Civ. App.) 101, 24 S. W. 965.)

The measure of damage under the statute, when stock is killed and the track is not fenced, is the market value at the time of the killing, with 6 per cent. interest until judgment. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Jones, 16 C. A. 179, 40 S. W. 745.

If stock was rendered worthless by injuries, plaintiff is entitled to recover, as part of his measure of damages, the value of care reasonably expended in an attempt to render such stock serviceable or cure it. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Champbellis (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 401.

In an action for negligently killing a horse the measure of damages would be the market value of such horse at the time and place of the killing if there was a market value at that place, and, if not, its value at the nearest market. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Droddy (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 902.

Where plaintiff's horse was so injured that he might as well have been killed, by defendant railroad company's alleged negligence, the measure of plaintiff's damages was the original value of the horse. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1170.

In a statutory action for the killing of animals, the measure of damages is the market value of the stock injured or killed. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Chisholm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 888.

37. Exemplary damages.—If the killing of an animal be the wanton, malicious and wicked act of the engineer or other employé of the railroad company, the company will not be liable for exemplary damages unless it authorized or approved the act. G. H. & S. A. R. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 1 App. C. C. § 148, citing Hays v. H. & G. N. R. Ry. Co. 46 T. 201.

38. Interest.—The recovery is limited to the value of stock killed or injured, without interest. Railway Co. v. Klepper (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 557; Railway Co. v. Dromgoole (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 372; Railway Co. v. Greathouse, 17 S. W. 104, 17 S. W. 354.

The owner may recover interest on the value of stock killed. Railway Co. v. Dunman, 24 S. W. 995, 6 C. A. 101.

The measure of damages is the value of the stock killed or injured, and interest upon such value. Railway Co. v. Champbellis (Sup.) 53 S. W. 432.

The recovery is limited to the value of the stock at the time it is killed, but does not include interest on such value. Railroad Co. v. Terry, 22 C. A. 178, 54 S. W. 431.

Where one sues under this article for $1,000 damages for killing stock, and claims in the petition interest from the date of the killing, the county court has jurisdiction, because this article only allows damages for the value of the stock killed, and interest on the judgment from its date. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Earl, 43 C. A. 127, 95 S. W. 1086.

39. Attorney's fees.—See Art. 2173.

40. Questions for Jury and Instructions.—See Chapter 13 of Title 37.

41. Indemnity.—A judgment against a telegraph company in favor of a railway company against which a judgment for loss of cattle escaping from a pasture in consequence of the telegraph company cutting a right of way fence had been rendered held proper. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Krause (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 431.

Art. 6604. [4529] Consolidation prevented.—It shall be unlawful for any railroad corporation, or other corporation, or the lessees, purchasers or managers of any railroad corporation, to consolidate the stocks, property, works or franchises of such corporation with or lease or purchase the stocks, property, works or franchises of any other railroad corporation owning or having under its control or management a competing or parallel line; nor shall any officer, agent, manager, lessee or purchaser of such railroad corporation act as or become an officer, agent, manager, lessee or purchaser of any other railroad corporation in leasing or purchasing any parallel or competing line. [Acts 1887, p. 137.]

What are competing lines.—The Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf Railway Company, which runs substantially north from Denison, Tex., to Waggner, Okla., was not a competing or parallel line within this article, prohibiting the leasing of one of such lines by the other, to the Denison, Bonham & New Orleans Railway Company. Scott v. Missouri, O. & C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 578.

Rights and liabilities after consolidation.—When railroads are consolidated by the contract of parties, ordinarily the consolidated corporation, for the purpose of answering for the liabilities of the old corporations, is deemed the same as each of its constituents, and may be sued under its new name for their debts, as if no change had been made in the name of the original corporation. But this rule does not apply when a road is purchased by a railway company under a trust sale to satisfy indebtedness, and the consolidation of the corporations is thereafter authorized by the legislature. H. & T. C. R. Ry. Co. v. Shirley, 54 T. 127.

After one railway company has consolidated with another, as allowed by their respective charters, and authorized and confirmed by legislative acts conferring all rights, powers and privileges belonging to either on the new company thus formed, all liabilities of either shall proceed against only be enforced against and in the name of the consolidated company. Indianaola R. R. Co. v. Fryer, 56 T. 609.

In a case of a voluntary consolidation of a railway company, when authorized by law, the consolidated corporation is responsible for the liability of each of its constituents and, where one of such companies has not changed its name, its debts as if no change had occurred. G. C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hutcherson, 3 App. C. C. § 97; Mo. Pac. R. R. Co. v. Owens, 1 App. C. C. § 386; Stephenson v. T. & P. R. R. Co., 42 T. 182; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Murphy, 46 T. 356, 26 Am. Rep. 272; H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Shirley, 64 T. 125. As to the purchase of the fran-

A new railway corporation, created as a result of the consolidation of certain roads, held bound by a contract of one of the roads to maintain a switch and side track, and entitled to be relieved from liability as provided in the contract. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Carter, 65 T. 461, 68 S. W. 139.

Leases, sales, etc., of railroad.—See, also, notes under Arts. 6415, 6417 and 6697 et seq.

A railway which by agreement acquires the property and franchises of another railway company becomes its successor, succeeding to its rights, powers and privileges, and may sue in its name and make itself party to judicial proceedings to which the sold-out company was a party. Acres v. Moyne, 59 T. 623; Stephenson v. T. & P. R. R. Co., 42 T. 163.

Companies will not be permitted, under the pretense of leasing, to enjoy the advantages of a consolidation without bearing the liabilities attaching thereto. Mo. Pac. R. R. Co. v. Owens, 1 App. C. C. § 384.

The lease of a railway does not relieve lessor from liability. Railway Co. v. Morris, 68 T. 357; 8 S. W. 454; Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. W. 454.

A railway company cannot, in the absence of authority conferred by statute, lease its road to another so as to absolve itself from its obligations to the public. If, without such authority, it surrenders the control of its road to another, it becomes liable for the torts of the company operating it which are committed on its line. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Underwood, 67 T. 589, 4 S. W. 216; Woodhouse v. Railway Co., 87 T. 416, 8 S. W. 523; Railway Co. v. Eckford, 71 T. 274, 8 S. W. 679; Railway Co. v. Moody, 71 T. 614, 9 S. W. 665; Railway Co. v. Lee, 71 T. 538, 9 S. W. 694.

In order to render a sale of one railroad to another company effective, there must be both a power to sell in the vendor, and a power to purchase in the vendee. 2. If the roads are parallel or competing lines the right to sell does not exist. 3. The facts that roads cross does not necessarily establish the fact that they are competing lines, whether they are or not is a matter of fact to be found by a jury. 4. The claim of one railway to purchase the property and franchises of another road is the assertion of a right not accorded to railways generally, either by statute or common law, and can only be recognized upon allegations and proof bringing it clearly within the terms of the statute. No railway can absolve itself from liability to the public for torts by transferring its franchises to another road, in the absence of a statute conferring the right. Railway Co. v. Rushing, 69 T. 306, 6 S. W. 834.

Judicial notice respecting railways.—It is within the judicial knowledge of the court that the Texas Pacific Railway was a part of the Missouri Pacific Railway system, and proof of this fact is not required. Mo. P. R. R. Co. v. White, 3 App. C. C. § 163, citing Mo. P. R. R. Co. v. Graves, 2 App. C. C. § 679.

It is a matter of public and general notoriety and judicial information that the Missouri Pacific Railway system embraces the Missouri Pacific Railway, the central branch of the Union Pacific Railway, and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway, the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway, the Texas Pacific Railway, and the International & Great Northern Railway. T. & P. R. Co. v. Logan, 3 App. C. C. § 188.

Judicial knowledge must be taken that the Houston & Texas Central Railway and the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Railway are parallel and competing lines. G. & C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State, 72 T. 404, 10 S. W. 61; 1 L. R. A. 389, 13 Am. St. Rep. 815.

Art. 6605. [4530] Corporation defined.—Railroad corporation, or other corporation, as used in the preceding article, is declared to mean any corporation, company, person or association of persons who own or control, manage or operate any line of railroad in this state. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6606. [4531] Consolidation, etc.—No railroad company organized under the laws of this state shall consolidate, by private or judicial sale or otherwise, with any railroad company organized under the laws of any other state, or of the United States.

Art. 6607. [4532] Map and profile of road, etc., shall be recorded. Every such corporation shall, within a reasonable time after their road shall be located, cause to be made:

1. A map and profile thereof, and of the land taken or obtained for the use thereof, and file the same in the office of the railroad commission. Every such map shall be drawn on a scale and on paper to be designated by the railroad commission and certified and signed by the president of the corporation.

2. A certificate specifying the line upon which it is proposed to construct the railroad and the grades and curves, certified and signed and filed as aforesaid.

3. Any railroad company failing or refusing to comply with the provisions of this article shall forfeit to the state of Texas any sum not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction in any county through which such railway company may pass; and each day such railroad company fails or refuses to comply with the provisions of this law shall be considered a separate offense. [P. D. 4904.]
Art. 6608. [4535] To receive freights and passengers from connecting lines.—All railway companies doing business in this state shall be and they are hereby required to receive from all other railway companies with which they may connect at the state line of this state, or at any place within this state, or at any or all places where they may cross the line of any other railway doing business, or operating a line of railway, in this state, all freights and passengers coming to it from such connecting line and destined to points on its line, or to points beyond its line or any other line of railway with which said line may connect or cross, and shall transport the same over its said line to destination, if on its line, or to the next connecting or cross line in the direction of destination, if beyond its line, without delay or discrimination in favor of or against the line from which such freight or passengers are received, and upon the same terms and conditions with those made by such line for like or similar service against any other railway in or out of this state with which it does business; provided, however, that the words, "without delay or discrimination," as used herein, are hereby declared to mean that the freight received for transportation as herein required shall be shipped in the order in which it is received, giving preference in all cases to live stock and other perishable freight in the order received; and the charges for the business required by this article to be interchanged shall be no greater pro rata per cent per mile for freight, and no greater rate per mile for passengers and baggage, than is charged to any other line for transporting like freight and passengers and baggage, or that it accept for itself when transported wholly on its own line, no matter on what part of the line or in what direction the transporting is done. [Acts 1887, p. 110.]

Historical.—The codifiers who prepared the Revised Statutes of 1895 collected into Chapter 10 of Title 94 (Title 115 herein) many provisions of pre-existing statutes regulating the duties and liabilities of railroad companies, among them, as articles 4535-4539 (Arts. 6608-6615 herein), the five articles of the act of 1887. To article 4537 (Art. 6610 herein) was added the provisions of section 8 of the act of 1888, in reference to forwarding goods in the order in which they are received, so that the language in article 4539 (article 4255 of 1887; Art. 6615 herein), "or shall violate in any manner any other provisions of this and the four preceding articles," seems to make the prescribed penalty apply to the violation of the act of 1889, to which it did not before apply. None of the language in either of the statutes was so altered as to indicate an intention to make a change in the law. The compilers only "arranged and collated into the proper titles, chapters, and articles" the laws as they already existed without material change. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hill & Morris, 97 T. 506, 89 S. W. 368, 369.

Liability of connecting carriers.—L. bought a railway ticket at Birmingham, Alabama, for passage to Cameron, Texas, on the several connecting lines between the points. The ticket was made as required, and the tickets of one of the lines before he reached the line of the defendant. Passage was refused by conductor on defendant's train on the ticket because it had expired before it was presented. Suit for damages for the refusal, etc. Held, that if the ticket was a joint undertaking on the part of all the lines of railway, the defendant would be responsible for the default of the connecting line causing the delay, at least to extent of honoring the ticket when presented. Railway Co. v. Looney, 85 S. 158, 19 S. W. 1039.

Connecting carrier liable on shipping contract without proof that it received part of the freight. Railway Co. v. Anderson, 21 S. W. 691, 3 C. A. 8.

When one railroad refuses to receive property tendered it from another, the one refusing is liable for damages caused thereby. Red River T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Eastin & Knox, 39 C. A. 579, 88 S. W. 532.

The M. K. & T. Ry. Co. received freight to be carried to Taylor on the I. & G. N. Ry. Co.'s line. In delivering the freight to the I. & G. N. at Trinity, it required the latter to carry the freight to Houston and there deliver to the M. K. & T. to carry to Taylor, instead of permitting it to carry the freight via Palestine and then on to Taylor over its line, which route the owner of the freight wished to be used. While the M. K. & T. forced its connecting line (the I. & G. N.) to violate this article, by requiring it to deliver the freight at Houston to the M. K. & T. and not at Taylor on its own line, yet it is not liable, for so doing, for the penalties prescribed in Art. 6670, because it does not fail or refuse to receive and transport freight; but simply forces its connecting line to route the freight contrary to the wish of the shipper. Penalty statutes are construed strictly. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 55 C. A. 118, 68 S. W. 622.

Contracts to carry beyond own line.—See, also, note under Art. 6615.

Contracts limiting liability.—See Art. 708 and notes.

In St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Carden (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 145, it is held that provision applying to interstate commerce, in conflict with the acts of congress upon the same subject, are invalid.

Exuses for refusal to receive.—Where goods are damaged by other companies, a company may refuse to receive them until indemnified against liability for the injury; and if delay is caused through a mistake in billing goods with others that are damaged, the company is not liable. Missouri Pac. R. R. Co. v. Weisman, 21 S. W. 426, 2 C. A. 86.

The existence of quarantine established by sanitary commission of Texas does not excuse a railroad for refusing to receive and carry cattle from one connecting line to another, the quarantine line not running across its road, but running along the road to which it was required to carry and deliver the cattle. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Mas­­­tenton, 95 T. 262, 66 S. W. 834, 835.

Where nearly all live stock shipments were received each year by a railroad company at the same season of the year as the shipment of plaintiff, a custom of shippers to give ten to twenty days' prior notice to furnish cars did not excuse a delay of a connecting carrier of four days in the shipment of plaintiff's stock; plaintiff being under no duty to give such notice. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Leslie (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 524.

Art. 6609. [4536] What are connecting lines.—Whenever any two or more railroads doing business in this state shall connect with each other by crossing each other's tracks or otherwise so as to form a continuous or connected line from one point in the state to another point in this state, such lines so crossing are hereby declared to be connecting lines; and when such connecting lines receive from any other railway or transportation line passengers or freight for transportation over the combined line at a rate or division agreed upon between themselves and such other railway or transportation line from which the business is received as aforesaid, then, in every such case, it shall be the duty of such connecting railways forming such through line, and of either or both of them, to receive from every other railway or transportation line with which they or either of them may connect by crossing of track or otherwise, all passengers or freight that may be destined to points on either of the lines making up such combined line, and transport the same to the point of destination, if on such combined lines, or either of them, or to the next connection or crossing in the direction of the destination of such freight or passengers, without delay or discrimination, and at no greater rate than is paid, and on the same conditions as is or shall be required by such combined line for like or similar services from any other railway or transportation line with which they or either of them shall interchange business. [1d.]

Connecting lines.—Where a railroad owns switches or Y's connecting it with other roads that have no interest in the switches or Y's it is not thereby made a connecting line within this article so it can be said article so it can be said that it can be a line or Y's to another road with which it is thus connected, when the freight is routed over the two roads with neither of which the owner of the switches or Y's has anything to do. The service so demanded is a switching or transfer service, where the freight tendered is not routed over any part of the line of the road owning the switches and the latter need not transport such freight over the switches unless it wishes so to do. Railroad Co. v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1051.

A railroad train when it goes over the track of another railroad, crosses that track as completely as if it had crossed at grade; and when it does so, and the other conditions exist, the two lines become connecting lines within the purview of this article. F. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 16.

Art. 6610. [4537] Terms for receiving, etc.—Every railroad, or person, or corporation operating a railway for the carriage of freight and passengers in this state shall receive freight, passengers and baggage for transportation to or into this state, or through any part thereof, from every other connecting railway, upon the same terms and conditions as to the division of charges for carrying or transporting the same upon a mileage, or any other basis, and upon terms and conditions as to bills of lading, way-bills, tickets, coupon tickets and baggage checks, that any such person, or corporation or transportation line may receive or contract to receive from any other person or corporation engaged in like business in this state; and, where railroads within this state receive goods for transportation into their warehouses or depots, they shall forward them in the order in which they are received, the first received to be the first forwarded, without giving the preference to one over another; and in case of failure to do so they shall be liable for all loss occurring while the goods remain, and for all damage occasioned or in any wise resulting from delay; provided, that the trip or voyage shall be considered as having commenced from the time of the signing of bill of lading, and as having ended upon the arrival of freight at point of destination, and written notices served upon the consignee that it is ready for delivery upon payment of freight and charges; provided, further, that should the consignee of the goods fail to receive them promptly after such notice is served the liability of the railroads thereafter shall be the same as that of warehousemen. [Id. Acts 1883, p. 69.]

What constitutes receipt of freight.—In order to recover a statutory penalty the plaintiff must bring his case clearly within the terms of the statute. In order to recover in this case the plaintiff must show that the defendant (railway company) not only received his cotton but that it received it in its warehouse or depot. Being received upon a platform wholly disconnected from the warehouse and depot is insufficient. Hill & Morris v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 875.

Must receive impartially.—If a railway refuses to take and transport property in the order in which it is offered, and exercises partiality in accepting property tendered by one person and rejecting that offered by other persons, it is liable for all damages resulting therefrom. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Smith, 63 T. 322.

Art. 6611. All water craft freight to be received on same terms.—

All railway companies doing business in this state shall be and they are hereby required to receive from all steamships, steamboats and other water craft and vessels, at their usual places for receiving such freights at the several ports on the coast of Texas, and on the inland waterways in this state, all freights and passengers coming to it from such steamships, steamboats and other water craft and vessels, and destined to points on its line, or to points beyond its line, or any other line of railway with which said line may connect or cross, and shall transport the same over its said line to destination, if on its line, or to the connecting or cross line in the direction of destination, if beyond its line, without delay or discrimination in favor of or against such steamship line, steamboat owner or company, or the owner of any other water craft or other vessels from whom such freight or passengers are received, and upon the same terms and conditions with those made by such railway company for like or similar service with any other person, steamship company, steamboat company or owners, or any other water craft or vessel, with which it does business at such points or stations as aforesaid. [Acts 1899, p. 101, sec. 1.]

Art. 6612. Penalty.— If any railway company doing business in this state shall fail or refuse to interchange business with any steamship line or company, or any steamboat line or company, or any other water craft or vessel, on the same terms and conditions, or for the same compensation or pro rata that it interchanges business with any other steamship line or company, steamboat line or company, or any other water craft or vessel, it shall be deemed guilty of discrimination within the meaning of this chapter; and every railroad company so offending shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay to the state of Texas a penalty of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, to be collected in the manner and in the courts as prescribed for the collection of other penalties, in article 6673, and in addition thereto shall forfeit and pay to the corporation, person or persons aggrieved thereby the sum of one thousand dollars as penal damages for each and every act of discrimination or violation of this law which may be recovered in a civil action in any court in this state having jurisdiction by law of the amount in controversy, in the name of the corporation, person or persons so suing; provided, that nothing in this article shall be so construed as to prevent the recovery of any other damages by an aggrieved person, firm or corporation accruing by reason of the violation of this article, or to relieve any railway company, or its officers, managers or agents, from prosecution under any penal law of this state.  [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6613.  Provisions of two preceding articles, how construed.—The two preceding articles shall not have the effect to relieve or waive any right of action by the state, or any other person, firm or corporation for any right, penalty or forfeiture which may have arisen, or may hereafter arise, under any law of this state; and all penalties accruing under the two preceding articles shall be cumulative of each other, and a suit for or recovery of one shall not be a bar to the recovery of any other penalty.  [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6614.  [4538] Declared to be trustees, etc.—Every railway which may interchange business with any other connecting railway under the provisions of this chapter, or otherwise, is hereby declared to be a trustee for such connecting railway to the extent of all sums of money received by it for the joint business interchanged between them, and which may properly belong to such other railway.  Such sums of money shall be due and payable from one connecting line to the other once every ninety days; and each connecting railway shall have a lien upon the property and franchises of connecting railways to the extent of balances due each quarter, which lien shall be superior to all other liens upon said property and franchises, save and except laborers' liens, as already provided by law, and may be enforced in any of the courts of this state having jurisdiction by law of the subject matter and the parties.  [Id.]

Traffic balance liens.—The lien created by this article extends to all property of the connecting road which may be indebted for traffic balance due by it and is not restricted to the same species of property covered by the laborer's lien.  I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Coolidge, 26 C. A. 695, 63 S. W. 1097.

Debt incurred by the receiver for the benefit of all the lien holders in bettering the road and operating it, is a lien superior to the traffic balance lien, in the absence of affirmative proof that no part of such debt was incurred for the benefit of the property which is sought to be subjected to traffic balance lien.  Id.

Debts which accrued six months before road was put in hands of receiver, not evidenced by receiving certificates, not secured by statutory lien on town lots of the road are inferior to traffic balance lien on the said town lots.  Id.

Certificates of indebtedness issued to pay employees before the receivership, in the absence of proof showing that they were issued for the benefit of the road during the receivership are subordinate to the traffic balance lien.  Id.

Art. 6615.  [4539] Penalty for refusing to receive from connecting lines.—If any railway company doing business in this state shall fail or refuse to interchange business with any other railway company, or shall fail or refuse to interchange business on the same terms or for the same pro rata that it interchanges business with any other railway company in this state, or shall fail or refuse to honor or receive the tickets, coupon tickets, way-bills or baggage checks of any connecting railway upon the same terms and conditions that it receives or honors the tickets, coupon tickets, waybills or baggage checks of any other railway company, or shall violate in any manner any other provisions of this and the four preceding articles, such railway company so offending shall be deemed guilty of discrimination within the meaning of this title, and shall forfeit and pay to the person or corporation aggrieved thereby the sum of one thousand dollars as penal damages for each and every act of discrimination or violation of this law, which may be recovered in a civil action in any of the courts of this state having jurisdiction by law of such an amount, in the name of the person or corporation so suing; provided, nothing in this article shall be so construed as to prevent the recovery of any other damages by any aggrieved person, firm or corporation, occurring by reason of the violation of this or the four preceding articles, nor to relieve any railway company, or its officers, managers or agents, from prosecution for violation of any penal law of this state.  [Acts 1887, p. 112.]

Art. 6616. [4540] Equal facilities to be furnished.—Every railroad company operating a railroad within this state shall furnish reasonable and equal facilities and accommodations, and upon reasonable and equal rates, to all corporations and persons engaged in the express business, for the transportation of themselves, agents, servants, merchandise and other property, and for the use of their cars, depots, buildings and grounds and for exchanges at points of junction with other roads. [Acts 1887, p. 113.]

Art. 6617. [4541] Damages for failure to comply, etc.—Any railroad company, which shall fail to comply with the provisions hereof, shall be liable to the aggrieved party, in an action on the case, for damages; and such railroad company, in addition to liability to said action for damages, shall be subject to a writ of mandamus, to be issued by any court of competent jurisdiction, to compel compliance with the provisions of the preceding article; and the said writ of mandamus shall issue at the instance of any party or corporation aggrieved by a violation hereof, and any violation of said writ shall be punishable as a contempt. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6618. [4542] Passenger fare three cents per mile.—The passenger fare upon all railroads in this state shall be three cents per mile, with an allowance of baggage to each passenger not to exceed one hundred pounds in weight; provided, however, that, where the fare is paid to the conductor, the rate shall be four cents per mile, except from stations where no tickets are sold, and that the minimum charge in no case shall be less than twenty-five cents; and provided, further, that when the passenger fare does not end in five or naught, the nearest sum so ending shall be the fare; provided, further, that in no case shall children under ten years of age be charged a higher rate of fare than two cents per mile; provided, further, railroads shall be required to keep their ticket offices open half an hour prior to the departure of trains, and upon failure to do so they shall not charge more than three cents per mile. [Acts 1883, p. 70, sec. 9.]

Charge for crossing bridges.—An extra charge cannot be made for crossing a bridge. Railway Co. v. Patterson, 7 C. A. 451, 27 S. W. 134.

Keeping ticket office open.—If a railroad company fails to keep its ticket office open for half an hour previous to the departure of the train, it can in no case rightfully demand fare of a passenger having no ticket, at the rate of more than three cents per mile. Mo. Pac. R. R. Co. v. McClanahan, 66 T. 530, 1 S. W. 576. There must also be an instruction to all ticket offices. Fordyce v. Manuel, 83 T. 557, 18 S. W. 457.

An instruction that a railroad is required to keep its ticket office open half an hour before arrival of trains and until departure thereof is erroneous and imposes a greater burden than is imposed by law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 27 C. A. 346, 65 S. W. 74, 74.

It is the duty of a railroad company to keep its ticket office open half an hour prior to the departure of its train. And where a conductor causes one to return from the train to the ticket office to get a ticket it is his duty to give him a reasonable time to procure his ticket and return to the train before starting it. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gist, 31 C. A. 662, 73 S. W. 658.

If the ticket office is not kept open half an hour before the arrival and departure of a train the company cannot charge more than three cents per mile, and some one must be in the office to sell tickets. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dyer, 43 C. A. 90, 95 S. W. 13, 14.

Authority of ticket agent.—See notes under Art. 6637.

Excursion rates.—A contract made with a general passenger agent, within the line of his authority, for the transportation of excursionists over the railroad for which he is agent, is binding on the company. For the breach of such contract a proximate basis for damages would be the profit above the contracting price which the other party would have realized on delivery of tickets negotiated by him and contracted for by others. Conjectural profits not based on actual agreements with those desiring to make the excursion, and with no definite knowledge of how many tickets could have been sold under the original contract, or for what profit, can form no legal basis for recovery. Illinois & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Hill, 63 T. 331, 51 Am. Rep. 642.

One who contracts with a railroad company for the transportation of excursionists at reduced rates, and whose contract is afterwards, and before the excursion, repudiated by the company, after he has contracted to sell and deliver tickets at an advanced rate, may recover as damages the amount he would have received as net profits on the tickets he would have sold, after deducting expenses incurred in getting up the excursion. See opinion for facts on which the rule is announced. Railway Co. v. Hill, 70 T. 51, 7 S. W. 659.

Rights of and liabilities toward passengers.—See Carriers, Title 20, 4231.

INJURIES FROM CONSTRUCTION OR MAINTENANCE OF RAILROAD

See notes at end of Chapter 8 of this title.

II. COMPANIES AND PERSONS LIABLE FOR INJURIES

1. Ownership, possession and control of road in general.—A shipper, in loading the railway car of another, placed by defendant railroad on its tracks, in the street, negligently overturned the car, frightening plaintiff’s horses, and injuring plaintiff. Held, that defendant was not liable. Washington v. Texas & P. R. Ry. Co., 25 C. A. 189, 64 S. W. 1092.

A railroad corporation organized by the consent of a lumber company owning a railroad held liable to one injured thereon, though the road had not been transferred to the corporation. San Jacinto & S. Ry. Co. v. McLin, 26 C. A. 423, 64 S. W. 314.

Evidence held to show that a railroad company’s duty as to a car on a side track had not ceased at a particular time. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fowler, 57 C. A. 566, 123 S. W. 594.

2. Lessors and lessees.—A charge as to the negligence of a railroad company and its lessee in permitting an obstruction to remain in the right of way held erroneous. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kimbell (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1049.

In the absence of statutory authority to lease its tracks, a railroad company is liable for injuries caused by the negligence of the servants of another company operating its trains over the former’s tracks under a lease. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Owens (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 579.

3. Companies permitting use of road by others.—A railway company cannot, by permitting its own servants to move cars on a side track, or by consenting thereto, escape liability to a person injured through the negligence of such persons. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bryant, 50 C. A. 4, 65 S. W. 804.

Ownership by another road engine which struck person walking on tracks held immaterial on the issue of liability of road whose tracks they were. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Miller, 35 C. A. 118, 72 S. W. 1109.

A railroad company held liable for injury from negligent operation of a train, which was on its road with its permission, though owned and operated by another. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 35 C. A. 123, 70 S. W. 112.

A railroad company held liable for injury from a defective roadbed to an engineer of another company using the road with its permission. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sage (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1038.
A railroad company, having no control of the cars on a switch track constructed through an elevator building, held not liable for the death of an employee of such elevator company by the negligent operation of such cars by other elevator employees. Sauls v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 36 C. A. 155, 81 S. W. 89.

4. Companies operating or using roads of others.—Operatives of plaintiff’s logging train, who were removed by train over defendants’ tracks in obedience to the latter’s orders, held not servants of defendant, so as to relieve plaintiff from responsibility for their negligence. Roganville Lumber Co. v. Gulf, B. & K. C. Ry. Co., 36 C. A. 563, 82 S. W. 816.

Statement of duty of a refrigerator car company to employes of a railroad company as to condition of a car which it furnishes for transportation over the railroad. Leas v. Continental Fruit Express, 45 C. A. 162, 99 S. W. 859.

A car company engaged with railroads in operating its cars held liable for injury to defendant because of defective fastening of a car when it came to the railroad tracks, concealed by paint, and so not observable on inspection. Continental Fruit Express v. Leas, 56 C. A. 584, 110 S. W. 120.

A contract between the Fullman Company and a railroad company held valid, and to bind the former to pay to the latter any damages the latter may pay, by reason of injuries to employes of the former. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Tracy (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 639.

Joint liabilities.—In an action for injuries to a street car passenger while alighting to escape a threatened collision between the car and a railroad train, the railroad and street car companies held guilty of communicating negligence rendering each liable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Vollrath, 40 C. A. 46, 99 S. W. 279.

Evidence as to ownership and operation.—Evidence held insufficient to show railroad company jointly using track to be connected with the leaving of an engine on the crossing, so as to render it liable for any negligence in so doing. Texas Midland R. R. v. Cardwell (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 288.

Evidence held to sustain finding that a car company was engaged with railroads in operating its refrigerator fruit cars. Continental Fruit Express v. Leas, 56 C. A. 584, 110 S. W. 120.

III. INJURIES TO PASSENGERS OR FREIGHT

See notes under Art. 707 et seq.

IV. INJURIES TO LICENSEEES OR TRESPASSERS IN GENERAL

7. Degree of care in general.—A railroad company in possession of freight as warehouseman for delivery to the consignee must exercise ordinary care in guarding the same so as to prevent injury to others. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fowler, 57 C. A. 566, 122 S. W. 593.

The rule that a carrier need not acquaint itself with the character of goods received is not subject to the exception that it does not apply to dangerous articles, and a carrier receiving dangerous articles must exercise ordinary care to prevent injury to others. Id.

8. Injuries to persons at stations.—A railroad company held liable for defects in a platform used by persons hauling fruit for transportation over its lines. Ft. Worth & N. O. Ry. v. NeSmith (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1071.

A person who goes upon the railroad platform to meet another is not a trespasser and it is the duty of the railroad company to exercise due diligence to secure his safety. G., S. & F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, 21 C. A. 46, 51 S. W. 683.

A railroad held to owe no duty to one in charge of a team in the depot grounds, except to use all means to prevent injuries to him and his team when seen in a position of danger. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Harbison (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 414.

Evidence that a railroad company for injuries to plaintiff while standing on a gang plank, extending into the door of a freight car, evidence examined, and held to show that defendant, in the absence of knowledge of plaintiff’s presence, owed him no duty of care for his safety at the place of his injury. Louthian v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 59 C. A. 613, 111 S. W. 886.

The law does not permit even trespassers to be exposed wantonly, and a railroad company owes a licensee in its waiting room the duty of taking ordinary care to avoid injuring him. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Geraldon, 54 C. A. 117, 117 S. W. 1004.

An expulsion from a depot waiting room held a tort for which the company was liable independent of any contractual relation. Id.

A railroad is not liable for injuries to person falling through hole in sidewalk maintained by the town. Id.

A railroad’s responsibility for defects in walks relates only to the approach from a street to its depot, and it is not liable to keep in repair the crossing of such street. Id.

A railroad permitted the town to use part of its right-of-way on which to construct a walk is not sufficient to impose liability for defects therein on the railroad. Id.

One held to be impliedly invited at a railroad station, and hence entitled to reasonable care. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 356.

Where plaintiff was going to defendant’s depot for a lawful purpose, and in crossing a walk over several tracks to reach it was struck by an engine on one of the tracks, he was not a trespasser. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 273.

9. Injuries to persons working on or about cars.—Evidence in action for injuries to a team and wagon in a railroad yard by collision with a train held sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rippetoe (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1016.
10. Injuries to persons on trains—Care required and liability as to trespassers.—A railroad company held not liable for the death of plaintiff's husband, who was killed while riding on a work train in violation of a rule forbidding the carrying of passengers on such trains, where the evidence showed that deceased was a trespasser on the train when injured. International & N. Ry. Co. v. Hanna (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 548.

In an action to recover damages for injuries sustained in attempting to board a moving train, an instruction that plaintiff, though plaintiff, was a trespasser, it was the duty of defendant's servants to assist plaintiff, without any reference to his being in imminent and known peril, held erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mills, 27 C. A. 245, 65 S. W. 74.

11. — Care required and liability as to licensees.—An employé of an independent contractor with a railroad company held not a trespasser while on the company's train, as regards its duty to him, that, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lovett (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 570.

A railroad company held not negligent in the sudden checking of a train to prevent its collision with another, whereby an employé of an independent contractor with it was thrown off. Id.

In action for injuries sustained by one riding on a gravel train, evidence held not to show lack of ordinary care on the part of the railroad. Lovett v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 97 T. 456, 79 S. W. 514.

12. Care required and liability as to children.—If a minor injured in attempting to get on a moving train possess such a degree of intelligence as to appreciate the danger, held, that he could not recover. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tonahill, 16 S. W. 516, 11 S. W. 875.

Employees of a work train held guilty of negligence in not preventing children from riding thereon. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Abernathy, 28 C. A. 613, 68 S. W. 539.

Employees in a railroad yard held bound to use ordinary care to prevent injuring the boys riding on the trains there. Davis v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 831.

The act of a brakenk in ejecting a boy trespassing on a train held negligence as a matter of law. Toombs v. Buch (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 124.

Railroad employees held required to use ordinary care to prevent injuring boys trespassing on freight trains. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to show that defendant's servants were negligent in failing to prevent a boy upon the car and in not removing him therefrom. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 939.

Railroad trains held not attractive articles so as to be classed with turntables. Id.

Employees held not required to inspect their trains after starting to see that trespassing children do not leap on the cars as they pass. Id.

Proof required to be made in order to render railroad company guilty of actionable negligence rendering it liable for injuries to a child while stealing a ride on a freight car or truck. Id.

Degree of vigilance required by railroad companies in dealing with trespassing children held to depend on age and intelligence of child. Id.

Railroad company held bound to exercise ordinary care not to injure a child, though a trespasser. Worth & D. Ry. Co. v. Cushman, 51 S. W. 309.

13. Persons riding at invitation or by acquiescence of employees.—One who is injured in attempting to get on a moving train at the invitation of the employees, held required to show that the employees had authority to invite any one to ride on the train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tonahill, 16 C. A. 825, 41 S. W. 875.

Railroad company held liable, one ridin on train who knew was the only duty of ordinary care to avoid injuring him. Lovett v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 97 T. 436, 79 S. W. 514.

In an action against a railroad for injuries, held, that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kennesmore (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 802.

In an action for injuries to a licensee at a railroad depot, an instruction that, if she was a guest and defendant's negligence, her negligence in attempting to save herself from danger would not prevent a recovery, was proper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tullis, 41 C. A. 219, 91 S. W. 317.

In an action against a railroad company for personal injuries, plaintiff held guilty of negligence precluding a recovery. Whitney v. Texas Cent. R. Co., 50 C. A. 2, 110 S. W. 70.

Plaintiff held not chargeable with contributory negligence in the handling of his team, where defendant railroad's negligence put him or the team in a position of peril, and he acted as seemed prudent to him under the circumstances. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Eddleman, 52 C. A. 181, 114 S. W. 425.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff on defendant's depot platform, evidence held not to show that he assumed the risk. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Kent. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 173.

Plaintiff in attempting to pass between defendant railroad's cars, while defendant's employes were endeavoring to place a car in the train on scales, held guilty of contributory negligence. Freeman v. Huffman (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 165.

16. Persons working on or about cars.—Where one engaged in loading a car on a side track jumps from it and is injured, through fear that he would be struck by other cars coming down grade, held, the company was not relieved from liability by showing that there was no necessity for him to jump. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bryant, 30 C. A. 4, 68 S. W. 804.

A railway company is liable for injuries sustained by persons lawfully on its tracks by reason of negligence in their construction. Id.

A company engaged in inspecting cars for one company who knew that the yardmaster of another company had seen him at his work had the right to assume that the yardmaster would not run cars against those he was inspecting. El Paso & S. R. Co. v. Darr (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 166.

Plaintiff considered, and held insufficient, to render a railroad company liable for injuries to a person loading a wagon from one of its cars. Wood v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 48 C. A. 328, 107 S. W. 563.
A person unloading a car placed on a side track by a railroad company for the purpose of unloading he is not bound to warn the company to warn in the case of Dooley v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 50 C. A. 298, 110 S. W. 135.

Plaintiff, who was injured while attempting to load a car, held guilty of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Housman (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 251. A railroad places a car at the customary place to be unloaded by the consignee, the latter's agent, engaged in unloading the car, may assume that the railroad will not without timely warning back a train into such car. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ger­ald (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 156.

A car repairman of another railroad company held negligent in going under one of defendant's cars which was being repaired, if he knew there was no blue flag up. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Classin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 358.

A car repairman of another railroad company going under one of defendant's cars to inspect it with knowledge that the blue repair flag placed thereon to protect it had been removed held to have assumed the risk of the car being run into by other of defendant's cars. Id.

A car inspector of another railroad company which had requested defendant company to repair one of its cars, so that it could be received by his own company, held not to have assumed the risks of injury from the negligence of defendant's servants in repairing the car, unless he knew, or should have known thereof. Id.

A trespasser on defendant's train was killed, held proper to charge that defendant was not liable unless it knew of his presence, and could have prevented the accident by ordinary care. Southland v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 133.

Boarding a freight train, and thereafter going on the platform, held not negligence, where the passenger had traveled on freight trains of that road before, and where the conductor insisted on his jumping off the moving train. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 509.

Held a willful assault, and therefore negligence of trespasser in placing himself in such position was not contributory cause of injury. Id.

An instruction that, if plaintiff acted as a man of ordinary care in changing his position in a car whereby he was injured, he would not be prevented from recovering, held correct. St. Louis, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 658.

One who boarded a freight train at a watering station, and jumped or fell from it while in rapid motion, held to have voluntarily assumed the risk. Cunningham v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 23 C. A. 15, 56 S. W. 467.

One thrown from a train and run over by it, by it being suddenly stopped, is prevented by contributory negligence from recovering therefrom; he having taken a position on the footboard of the engine, between it and the cars. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 570.

A boy over 16 years of age held to comprehend the danger of riding on top of a freight car, making him chargeable with contributory negligence. Cockrell v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 36 C. A. 559, 82 S. W. 529.

18. Proximate cause of injury.—The fact that an employé in charge of a freight train discovered a boy riding on top of a car held not to destroy the effect of the boy's contributory negligence. Cockrell v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 36 C. A. 559, 82 S. W. 529.

In an action for injuries to a car inspector, the failure to enforce a rule of the railway company held not the proximate cause of the injury. El Paso & S. R. Co. v. Darr (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 158.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to plaintiff while standing on a gang plank extending into the door of a freight car, evidence examined, and held to show that the negligence, if any, of defendant's switch crew in making a coupling was not the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. Louthian v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 50 C. A. 613, 111 S. W. 665.

The liability of a railroad for the act of its switching crew engaged in switching cars on the track of a manufacturer, causing injury to an employé of the manufacturer, held to depend on the negligence of the crew and of the employé's guilt or innocence of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 186.

The act of defendant held not to be the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, and that the accident causing such injury was not one which defendant should have anticipated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Housman (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 261.

Negligence of plaintiff's helper concurring with the negligence of defendant held not to defeat recovery. J. Rosenbaum Grain Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 121.

19. Willful or wanton injury.—An engineer of a switch engine held guilty of a willful assault, in throwing hot water on a trespasser, so as to render the company liable for injuries, though the trespasser was negligent in jumping from engine. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Zantzinger (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 677.

Evidence held to show that defendant was not guilty of willful negligence in ordering plaintiff's son off its train, and hence she was entitled to recover. House v. Blum (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 82.

In an action by a trespasser on a train for injuries caused by an explosion by a breaking railroad engine, if the trespasser was not a passenger (as distinguished from a person riding on a train for amusement), the railroad company could not recover, if the brakesman was acting to subserve his own malicious purpose. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 161.

Where evidence shows that rule forbidding brakesmen to eject trespasser from train was customarily violated by knowledge of railroad company, it authorizes a finding that brakesmen ejecting trespasser was acting within the scope of his duty. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1969.

A finding that the switchman was engaged in switching cars on the track of a manufacturer held the servants of the railroad, making it liable for their negligence. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 136.

The act of a railroad section foreman in bringing his child afflicted with smallpox to a section within the scope of his employment. Mellody v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 702.

Where a train guard, not authorized to interfere with trespassers, wantonly and willfully, and without reference to his master's business, shoots a mere trespasser, the railroad company is not liable. Id.

That the person who shot plaintiff, a trespasser at a station, was on duty as a train guard at the time did not render the railroad company liable for the unlawful use of the pistol, which was in his possession by virtue of his employment. Id.

21. Actions for injuries to licensees or trespassers—Pleading, including issues, proof and variance.—See parts under Art. 1827.

22. Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

23. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—The overwhelming weight of testimony in an action for injury to an employee of an independent contractor with a railroad company, riding on the train, held to show that there was no sudden jerk, check, or stop of the train, but that he jumped therefrom, and was thereby injured. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lovett (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 570.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a finding that plaintiff, riding on a freight train, was trespassing. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Mayfield, 35 C. A. 83, 79 S. W. 365.

Evidence in an action for injuries to a child held to sustain a finding that the injury resulted from defendant's negligence. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Ollis, 27 C. A. 331, 83 S. W. 850.

In an action for injuries to a boy received while attempting to alight from an engine on which he was riding, a verdict finding that the employés had notice of the peril of the boy in time to have avoided his injury held authorized. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, 42 C. A. 306, 93 S. W. 469.

In an action for injuries to a boy stealing a ride on a freight car, a finding that the proximate cause of the injury was the wrongful act of the brakesmen in compelling the boy to leave the car while the train was in motion held authorized. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Buch (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 124.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff, a licensee, while alighting from defendant's train, evidence held insufficient to show negligence on defendant's part. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Walters, 49 C. A. 71, 107 S. W. 369.

In an action for injuries to one struck by a train in defendant's yards, evidence held to warrant an inference that defendant had impliedly licensed the use of its premises and tracks to plaintiff and had posted no warnings to the contrary. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 453.

In an action against a railroad company for personal injuries sustained while a trespasser in defendant's yards, evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff's position was discovered in time to prevent his injury. Whitney v. Texas Cent. R. Co., 60 C. A. 1, 110 S. W. 70.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that fastening handholds on freight cars with log screws, instead of nuts and bolts, was negligence. Continental Fruit Express v. Leas, 50 C. A. 519, 119 S. W. 129.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff by jumping in front of a moving car, evidence held insufficient to warrant a recovery on the theory that plaintiff's act was to rescue his fellow servant. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 744.

In an action for injuries to a child from being run over by an engine, evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding that defendant's employés knew of plaintiff's position on the engine. Freeman v. Garcia, 56 C. A. 638, 121 S. W. 896.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

In an action for injuries to a boy alleged to have been driven from a moving car by defendant's switchman, evidence held to authorize a finding that it was the practice of the switchman to eject trespassers from trains. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Buch (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 318.

Evidence held to justify a finding that defendant by nonenforcement had abrogated a certain rule in so far as it applied to switching crews. Id.

In an action by a laborer injured while loading a car, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that the railroad employés knew of his presence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Morin (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1191.

Evidence held to show that the team was left untiited and unguarded in a public place. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 423.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that the baggagemaster's negligence, and not plaintiff's negligence in leaving his team untiited, was the proximate cause of the injury. Id.

24. Damages.—A minor held entitled to recover for his diminished earning capacity as a result of personal injuries from the date of the accident to his surviving parent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tonahill, 16 C. A. 635, 41 S. W. 875.

V. ACCIDENTS TO TRAINS

27. Care in management of trains in general.—The company is liable for damages resulting from the negligence of its servants. Railway Co. v. Lauricella (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 302.

29. — At railroad crossings.—Failure of the engineer of defendant railroad to give signals, when he found the air brakes would not work so as to stop the train before reaching a level crossing as against the conductor on intersecting road, who was injured in the collision. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Settle, 19 C. A. 357, 47 S. W. 825.

30. Defects in roadbeds or tracks.—A railroad company held liable for injuries caused by derailment of train by defect in track only when condition might have been discovered before the accident. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 708.

31. Contributory negligence of person injured.—Evidence held sufficient to sustain a conclusion that plaintiff was lawfully on the train on which he was injured, and was not guilty of contributory negligence. San Jacinto & S. Ry. Co. v. McLin, 26 C. A. 461, 64 S. W. 314.

32. Fact that employees on trains on which a person was injured might have anticipated a collision with another train held not to relieve the company operating such other train from liability for injuries caused by reckless negligence. Ed Fuso & S. W. R. Co. v. Folk, 49 C. A. 269, 108 S. W. 761.

VI. ACCIDENTS AT CROSSINGS

33. Public or private character of crossings.—Railroad company held liable for injuries to person on track, where the train could have been stopped in time to prevent the same. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 318.

In an action for injuries at a railroad crossing, an instruction that it was defendant's duty to exercise ordinary care to prevent injury to persons at places used as crossings by the public over its tracks, held proper. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Kief (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 625.

A railroad company held bound to exercise reasonable care for the safety of persons traveling on a road which crossed it, though not established as a road by dedication or prescription. Fecos v. N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bowman, 54 C. A. 88, 78 S. W. 32.

That plaintiff could have reached her destination by a legally established public road was no defense. Id.

A railroad company held to the care of an ordinarily prudent person in the operation of its train at a place alleged not to have been a public crossing. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Adams, 44 C. A. 288, 98 S. W. 222.

34. Mutual rights and duties at public crossings.—See, also, note under Art. 6185.

An instruction that, if plaintiff's son and his companions were on defendant's track to compute a fight and not as travelers, they were trespassers, though they were on a regular pathway, held error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ball, 33 C. A. 278, 85 S. W. 456.

36. Defects in crossings and approaches.—See, also, Arts. 6485, 6487, 6493 and 6494, and notes thereunder.

Where a railroad company voluntarily constructs a bridge over ditches along its right of way, it is liable to a party for whose use it was built, for injuries by failure to keep it in repair. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 17 C. A. 45, 48 S. W. 25.

A drayman using a private crossing at the implied invitation of a railroad company while unloading a car held entitled to recover for injuries received by reason of a defect therein. Cowans v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 539, 89 S. W. 1116.

A drayman using a private crossing at the implied invitation of a railroad company while unloading a car held not to bound to exercise ordinary care in selecting a crossing. Id.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that a drayman engaged in unloading a car used a private crossing on the invitation of the company. Id.

A railroad company held under obligation to a drayman to keep a private crossing in repair. Id.

One traveling on a road under a railroad bridge commonly and habitually used by the public with the knowledge of the railroad company is more than a licensee, and the company owes him the duty of ordinary care. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Houston, 49 C. A. 55, 107 S. W. 642.

Where a road under a railroad bridge was commonly used by the public with the knowledge of the railroad company, it owed a duty to a person using the road, regardless of whether it was a public highway or not. Id.

If a railroad took a portion of a public highway for its right of way under an agreement to construct another highway in its place as good as that taken, any member of the public would have an action for injuries resulting from the breach of its agreement to do so. Hall v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 52 C. A. 90, 114 S. W. 591.
36. Obstructions at crossings.—A traveler held entitled to the unobstructed use of a public highway was injured by a railroad crossing maintained by the public and recognized by the railroad company, and not compelled to cross or try to cross at some other crossing. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Randall, 51 C. A. 249, 113 S. W. 180.

A person attempting to pass between two cars in a train obstructing a crossing held not a trespasser. Freeman v. Terry (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1016.

A railroad company obstructing the principal street of a town by its train held required to exercise reasonable care to avoid dangers to pedestrians attempting to pass between cars. Id.

A railroad company negligently obstructing with its train a street of a town charged with knowledge of such fact, with resultant injury, is liable. Rand. v. W. Chester Co., 144 S. W. 1016.

An injured railroad company held liable for injury to a person by the obstruction of his horse by negligence of a section crew in placing a hand car on the track as he was about to cross at a private crossing. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Beard, 42 C. A. 427, 93 S. W. 532.

Railroad employees on seeing teams near a crossing should make no unnecessary noise calculated to frighten them, and which might result in injury. Paris & G. N. Ry. v. Calvin (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 428.

In an action for injuries caused by frightening a horse at a crossing, an instruction denying plaintiff recovery if the employees of the defendant did not see her perilous position was erroneous. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Boesch, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 8; Same v. Morrison, 103 T. 256, 128 S. W. 9.

Though a railroad may make the usual and necessary noises in operating their trains when the railroad employees see that a team is being frightened they must exercise care to avoid injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 256.

Recovery on the ground that engineer carelessly started his engine, and frightened plaintiff, held supported by the evidence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1034.

Railroad company causing a plaintiff's team to run away, and thereby one of his lines to break, which causes plaintiff's wagon to upset, is liable for damages. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Moseley (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 48.

A railroad company cannot recover for injuries occasioned by his becoming frightened at a train, unless the actions of defendant's employes in frightening the team were wantonly and willfully done, held properly refused. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Stonecypher, 25 C. A. 565, 63 S. W. 946.

A railroad company held liable for injury to a person by the frightening of his horse by negligence of a section crew in placing a hand car on the track as he was about to cross at a private crossing. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Beard, 42 C. A. 427, 93 S. W. 532.

Railroad employees on seeing teams near a crossing should make no unnecessary noise calculated to frighten them, and which might result in injury. Paris & G. N. Ry. v. Calvin (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 428.

In an action for injuries caused by frightening a horse at a crossing, an instruction denying plaintiff recovery if the employes of the defendant did not see her perilous position was erroneous. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Boesch, 103 T. 266, 126 S. W. 8; Same v. Morrison, 103 T. 256, 128 S. W. 9.

Though a railroad may make the usual and necessary noises in operating their trains when the railroad employees see that a team is being frightened they must exercise care to avoid injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 256.

38. By signals and escape of steam.—See, also, notes under Art. 6564.

Where plaintiff’s team ran away, owing to negligence of engineer in blowing the whistle after he saw the team crossing the track, and might have known that the team was frightened, held, that defendant was liable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Singer (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 1094.

A railroad company has the right to make such noises with its engines as are necessarily incident to their safe operation at a street crossing. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Belt, 24 C. A. 281, 59 S. W. 607.

Where defendant’s engineer, on seeing plaintiff’s buggy, made unnecessary noise by permitting the escape of steam, the court properly refused to instruct that the engineer was not chargeable with ordinary care to prevent an injury caused by the horse running away.

Facts held sufficient to support a verdict against railroad company on the ground that the engineer was negligent in blowing the whistle, so as to frighten plaintiff’s team, and in not checking the train after seeing plaintiff’s danger. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Weatherford, 26 C. A. 20, 62 S. W. 101.

It is negligence as a matter of law for a locomotive engineer to continue to sound the whistle after it has become reasonably apparent that a team is being frightened thereby. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Blan (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 552.

Instruction that defendant in a personal injury suit against a railroad would not be liable, if the blowing of the whistle which caused plaintiff’s injuries was not done in the performance of duty, held properly refused. Id.

The unnecessary sounding of a railroad whistle, which frightened plaintiff’s horse while it was standing in close proximity to a street crossing, by which plaintiff was injured, held to constitute actionable negligence. McGrew v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co., 32 C. A. 265, 74 S. W. 816.

Where a railroad causes injury by negligently whistling at a street crossing held not necessary to show that the act was in the scope of the employment of the railroad’s servants or done in the necessary operation of the train. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Calvin (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 428.

The blowing of a locomotive whistle on a street crossing, resulting in frightening the horse plaintiff was driving and causing it to run away and injure plaintiff, held negligence. Id. 4240.
A railroad company held liable for injuries to the driver of a team resulting from the fright of the team by steam emitted from an engine at a railroad crossing. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1062.

A railroad company is liable for injuries at a crossing caused by negligently blowing the whistle so as to frighten plaintiff's mules and overturn his wagon. Garber v. St. Louis, S.W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 355.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to plaintiff through his mules becoming frightened by a train, defendant held entitled to an instruction that if the injury resulted from the mules becoming frightened by the steam, and not by defendant's failure to signal at a crossing as alleged, defendant was not liable. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hemphill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 340.

39. Signboards, signals, flagmen and gates at crossings.—See, also, Arts. 6563, 6564, and notes.

Failure of a railroad to keep a flagman at a crossing is negligence, where a person of ordinary prudence would, under all the circumstances, have done so. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Magee, 92 T. 616, 50 S. W. 1016.

A railroad is not negligent in failing to keep a flagman at a crossing, unless it is an exceptionally dangerous one. Central Texas & N. W. R. Co. v. Gibson, 35 C. A. 66, 79 S. W. 351.

Whether a railroad company is bound to maintain a watchman at a crossing depends not on whether persons are prevented from seeing the approach of trains by permanent obstructions, but on whether the conditions surrounding the crossing and the operation of the trains rendered it unusually hazardous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 992.

40. Care in running trains in general.—When a locomotive, in backing into a siding, moves a line of cars which has been standing there several weeks, the company held not liable for injury to a child playing under the cars. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Balderas (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 564.

Railroad company, in constructing its roadbed, held not bound to use care to prevent injury to licensee. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Sinali, 19 C. A. 107, 48 S. W. 113.

The duties of a railroad company as to crossing held to have no application where the street runs under the railroad. 1d.

A railroad company is not bound to keep a bridge lighted for a licensee on the track. 1d.

Duty of a railway company toward one attempting to cross a railway track at a crossing maintained by the company for her convenience and others residing on the premises through which the track extended stated. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Merlinsk (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 153.

A railroad company is only required to use ordinary care to prevent crossing accidents. Garber v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 567.

In walking over a crossing on a sidewalk, one is not a trespasser, and the railway company is required to exercise care proportionate to the risk. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hurdle (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 279.

41. Mode of running at crossings.—The opening of a train when and where travelers are waiting to cross, and then suddenly closing it, is evidence of negligence, signals or no signals. Railway Co. v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 884.

Evidence held to show such failure to take precaution at railroad crossing as to render defendant liable to person injured. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. O'Connell (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 66.

Where, when defendant's train was moved, the servants in charge knew that people were crossing between the cars, the doctrine of discovered peril applies, though they did not know that plaintiff, who was injured, was crossing at the time. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Green, 20 C. A. 5, 49 S. W. 670.

Defendant, in moving its train at crossing, held, under the evidence, guilty of negligence. 1d.

Where defendant's employees moved a train knowing that many persons were in danger thereby, the fact that they did not know that plaintiff, who was injured, was in danger, held not to relieve them from liability. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 672.

Though train employees do not intend to run cars into a street crossing, and cars do not reach the street, yet they may be put in motion as to constitute negligence as to travelers on the street. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Peterson, 20 C. A. 496, 49 S. W. 924.

The physical injury to plaintiff's wife from fright should have been foreseen by trainmen, who, after opening a train at a crossing for plaintiff to pass, closed it so soon that plaintiff and family narrowly escaped injury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Murdock, 54 C. A. 249, 116 S. W. 139.

Trainmen backing a train at a station held required to exercise ordinary care to see that no one is so situated as to be injured by the movement. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Brouillette (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 287.

42. Lights, signals and lookouts from trains or cars.—See, also, Art. 6564 and notes.

While a railroad has the right to use its own track, and while its engineer, ordinarily, when his train is in motion, seeing persons near the track ahead of him, has the right to presume that they will not cross the way, yet when a train is moving in a town the great watchfulness on the part of the company's servants is required. It is then the duty of the engineer, before starting his engine across a street, not only to give timely warning of his intention to start, but to look ahead and see that his train is not likely to hurt persons who are passing. T. & P. R. Ry. Co. v. Lowry, 61 T. 149.

Employees operating a railroad train are not bound to keep a lookout for teams near the track, and operate the train, so as not to frighten them. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Carruth (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1036.
To leave cars in a street so near a crossing that a coupling therewith cannot be made without forcing them on the crossing, and to make the coupling without seeing whether the crossing is clear, is negligence. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Bowles, 32 C. A. 118, 72 S. W. 451.

In action against railroad for injuries at crossing, a charge that plaintiff could not recover if he could not have heard the noise made by the train held properly refused. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Taff, 31 C. A. 657, 74 S. W. 89.

Operatives of a railroad train held required to use ordinary care to discover persons in close proximity to the track, who may be about to cross at public crossings, as well as persons on the track. McGrew v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co., 32 C. A. 265, 74 S. W. 816.

Where a railroad car was sent across a populous street, it was negligence not to give notice of the approach of the car. Central Texas & N. W. R. Co. v. Gibson, 35 C. A. 66, 79 S. W. 351.

The employes of a railway company must use ordinary care in keeping a proper lookout to prevent injury to persons on street crossings, and failure to exercise such care is negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mathery, 35 C. A. 604, 81 S. W. 550.

Held error to instruct that plaintiff could not recover if defendant's failure to ring the bell and the running of the train in excess of the six-mile speed limit were not the cause of the accident. Garber v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 857.

It is the duty of a locomotive engineer to keep a lookout at crossings to prevent injuring persons crossing the track. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. King (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 151.

Where the hazard at a crossing was great, employes on the footboard of switch engines should be prepared to at once turn on the lever to the angle cock and stop the engine. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 279.

 Held not negligence per se for a railroad to put its right of way obstructions to view of one approaching crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers, 91 T. 52, 40 S. W. 956.

An instruction authorizing a finding that an obstruction to view on the right of way is negligence of the railroad company held error. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Knight, 91 T. 690, 45 S. W. 556.

An embankment on a railroad's right of way, obstructing the view of a public crossing, is not negligence per se. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Stolleis (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 675.

The fact that the view of the track of one approaching a crossing was obstructed does not give him a right of action for injury sustained by a collision at the crossing, where the railroad company exercised ordinary care. Id.

It is not negligence for a railroad to place engine houses, tanks, etc., so as to obstruct view of a railroad crossing. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 22 C. A. 16, 53 S. W. 599.

44. Rate of speed.—In an action for injuries causing death, the speed of the train is to be considered by the jury on the question of negligence. McDonald v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 847.

Evidence in an action for injuries resulting from an accident at a railroad crossing considered, and held, that defendant was guilty of negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 248.

In an action against a railway company for a collision at a public crossing, facts held to authorize recovery for plaintiff if the train approached at a negligently high rate of speed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 45 C. A. 115, 106 S. W. 764.

Operation of a train within the limits of a town at a speed in excess of that fixed by city ordinance held negligence as a matter of law. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Summers, 51 C. A. 133, 111 S. W. 211.

The defendant's engineer testified that, when 350 feet from a crossing, he saw an automobile on the track, and arose from his seat and applied the air brake and stopped the train, which was running 35 miles an hour, 50 feet after striking the automobile, an instruction submitting the issue as to whether the engineer was negligent in not having his engine under control was proper. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dumas (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 543.

45. Violation of ordinance as negligence.—See notes under Arts. 821, 863.

47. Precautions as to persons seen at or near crossing—in general.—A railway company is liable if plaintiff in crossing its track was seen by the engineer in time to have stopped, and he did not stop. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Dalwhig (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 657.

The duty of an engineer approaching a crossing, with respect to persons about to go on it or just leaving it, stated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Magee (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 156.

The rule that those in charge of a moving train may assume that one approaching a crossing will either cross at a safe distance or will await the passing of the train held not to apply in specified cases. Horton v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 46 C. A. 639, 103 S. W. 467.

Where those operating a locomotive discover the peril of one on a crossing in time to stop the engine, it is their duty to use all the means at hand to stop the engine. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. De Hernandez, 49 C. A. 360, 108 S. W. 765.

In an action against railroad for injuries at crossing, an instruction on discovered peril held not objectionable for failure to limit the duty of the train operatives to the use of ordinary care in endeavoring to stop the train or slacken speed. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Summers, 51 C. A. 133, 111 S. W. 211.

That the plaintiff, himself a railroad employee, was guilty of negligence in attempting to stop a person in a perilous position on a crossing, and tried to attract his attention and push him off the track, held not, of itself, to relieve the railroad company of liability. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 540.
Presumption that a person seen on the track will get out of the way of danger held not to apply where it is apparent that he is unconscious of his danger. Id.

Where plaintiff was caught between tracks and struck by an engine, it was not error for the court to require of defendant's employés the use of ordinary care. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 279.

In an action for injuries sustained on a railroad crossing, an instruction as to defendant's duty to avoid injury to plaintiff who was unaware of the approach of the train held correct. Id.

49. Contributory negligence of person injured.—Care in going on or near tracks in general.—Contributory negligence shown. Railway Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 18 S. W. 481.

Where one is not responsible for the negligence of another, with whom he was riding, when approaching a railroad crossing, any act of the other will not defeat his right of recovery against the railroad company. Bryant v. International & G. N. R. Co., 19 C. A. 88, 46 S. W. 82.

The fact that a traveler was standing in a wagon held not negligence precluding a recovery against a railroad company for injuries caused by an effort to avoid a train approaching a crossing. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 304.

Where plaintiff was injured while driving his own wagon, in which two other persons were riding with his consent, but there was no evidence of joint management, on collision with a train, an instruction on the theory of imputed negligence was properly refused. Gulf Co. v. Slater, 23 C. A. 555, 64 S. W. 857.

A railroad, by posting signs forbidding the use of its depots and approaches, cannot make a person injured through negligence of the company at a public crossing guilty of contributory negligence, when such person was in the exercise of ordinary care. Gulf, C., S. & F. Ry. Co. v. Reagan, 24 C. A. 47, 67 S. W. 869.

Mere intention of one on street to board train held not to constitute him a trespasser, or to charge him with contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 34 C. A. 535, 89 S. W. 133.

The fact that one injured by being struck by a moving railroad car stumbled and fell on the track, so that he could not escape the injury, held, under the circumstances, not to release the railroad from liability. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Melville (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 865.

A person is not guilty of negligence as a matter of law in entering a railroad crossing while the gates are down, but whether the act is negligence depends upon the attendant circumstances. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 48 C. A. 52, 108 S. W. 705.

A traveler approaching a system of railroad tracks crossing the street held required to use ordinary care to avoid a collision. Id.

In an action for the killing of plaintiff's team, etc., in a railroad crossing accident, the driver, under the decisions of the federal courts in force in Indian Territory, where the accident occurred, held not as a matter of law. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Slummon, 51 C. A. 133, 111 N. W. 216.

Rule as to negligence in selection of pathway by one passing along railroad right of way held not to apply to person injured at public crossing. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Reames (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 977.

Where plaintiff was struck by an engine, held it could not be said under the circumstances that he was negligent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 278.

In an action for damages from a collision between plaintiff's automobile and defendant's train, a special charge, to the effect that it was negligence for plaintiff to enter the railroad crossing at a speed above a certain limit, held properly refused where the rate set by city ordinance was higher. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hilgartner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1091.

50. Care required of children and others under disability.—A minor, injured while crossing over a train standing on a street crossing, held not precluded from recovery by reason of his knowledge that there was some danger incident to his act. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Grisom, 36 C. A. 630, 82 S. W. 671.

Facts held not to establish as a matter of law that a child, struck by an engine while crossing a railroad track, should be held to the same degree of care as an adult. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ball, 38 C. A. 279, 85 S. W. 456.

A person having an impediment in his walk is not required to exercise more care in looking and listening for an approaching railroad train than one not so afflicted. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Melville (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 868.

51. Use of defective or obstructed crossings.—See, also, notes under Arts. 6485, 6492.

Plaintiff, while passing between the cars of a train standing on a crossing, held, under the evidence, not guilty of contributory negligence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Green, 20 C. A. 5, 49 S. W. 670.

A person driving over a railroad crossing held not guilty of contributory negligence in driving over a switch track to wait for a train standing on the main track to leave the crossing. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Pool (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 641.

52. Duty to stop, look and listen.—A person who stopped some distance from, and, after looking and listening for a train, drove upon, a crossing, was not guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Easton (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 662.

Evidence in an action for injuries at a railroad crossing held to show plaintiff guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Branon (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1054.

Failure to look and listen before crossing a railway at a public crossing is not negligence as a matter of law. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dolson, 36 C. A. 324, 85 S. W. 444, of the mere fact that it would have been possible for a person of ordinary prudence to have looked in the train which struck plaintiff, but which plaintiff did not see, would not preclude plaintiff’s recovery, since his failure to notice it may have been excused by the surrounding circumstances. Texas & N. O. R. Ry. Co. v. Reed, 54 C. A. 26, 115 S. W. 69.

Failure in a railroad crossing approaching by railway to enter or pass a railroad track while the same is being used is not negligence as a matter of law. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Tifton (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 936.

A traveler is not required to stop his team or get off his wagon unless he knows that a train is approaching. Garber v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 557.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries at a crossing, plaintiffs’ failure to look and listen held to constitute negligence barring a recovery. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 253.

An instruction that, if a driver of ordinary prudence would have stopped and listened before driving into a place of danger, plaintiff could not recover, if he failed to do so, held objectionable as leaving out of view plaintiff’s duty to look for trains. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 669.

It is error to charge that it is the duty of one approaching a railroad crossing to stop, look and listen in order to discover whether he may cross the track with safety, even though he be driving an automobile. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hilgartner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1991.

Failure of one whose team is run into at a railroad crossing to look and listen is not contributory negligence per se. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tarver (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 958.

That a view is obstructed at a railroad crossing is to be considered on the question of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers, 91 T. 52, 40 S. W. 956.

Evidence held insufficient to show plaintiff injured at railroad crossing guilty of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Pereira (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 727.

54. — Knowledge of danger.—A railroad company held not relieved from its duty of providing a crossing with a flagman, as against a person familiar therewith. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Magee (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 156.

55. — Reliance on precautions on part of railroad company.—One on a railroad track used as a thoroughfare, who was injured by a switch engine making a running switch, held not guilty of contributory negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 996.

Where a gate is maintained at a railroad crossing, the fact that it is open constitutes an assurance that the track may be crossed in safety. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 130.

One struck by a train at a crossing held not guilty of contributory negligence as matter of law because he neither looked nor listened. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 640.

Efficiency of direction of railroad engineer.—One who uses a dangerous crossing of a railroad track instead of a safer one little further away is not, as a matter of law, guilty of negligence. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gill (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 386.

Driver, signaled by flagman to cross railroad track, held not required to use the same degree of care as if there had been no such invitation. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Ray, 25 C. A. 567, 63 S. W. 912.

Where a brakeman signaled to plaintiff to cross the track after a freight train had cleared the crossing, and plaintiff, in attempting to do so, was injured by his team becoming frightened by the sudden backing of the train, plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Stonecipher, 25 C. A. 569, 63 S. W. 946.

57. — Crossing near standing trains or cars.—Plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence in driving a gentle horse in close proximity to an engine, which started up suddenly and with unnecessary noise, from which his horse took fright, injuring him. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt, 24 C. A. 281, 59 S. W. 607.

Plaintiff, in an action for injuries caused by reason of his horse having been scared by an engine at a public crossing, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas Midland R. R. v. Cardwell (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 157.

Plaintiff held not to have assumed the risk. Id.

Plaintiff held not precluded from recovering from a railroad company for injury caused by his riding a horse negligently permitted to run at a box company at a street crossing because he attempted to drive the horse near the car after he saw it had become frightened. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Morris, 46 C. A. 596, 101 S. W. 1038.

The mere fact that one attempted to pass a railroad crossing obstructed by a car after he and knew that there was danger in doing so, held not as matter of law to preclude his recovery for injuries. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Randall, 51 C. A. 249, 113 S. W. 189.

Evidence, in an action against a railroad company for injury to a driver by his horse taking fright at a car standing partly in the street and running into a ditch, held not to show as a matter of law that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Abendroth, 35 C. A. 547, 116 S. W. 425.

58. — Crossing near approaching trains or cars.—Destruction of wagon and team at railroad crossing held to be due to contributory negligence of driver. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Abendroth (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

The fact that one crossing a railway knew that a train was approaching does not necessarily make him guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 34 C. A. 302, 79 S. W. 71.

There can be no recovery for injuries to one who goes on a railroad crossing in such close proximity to an approaching train that it cannot be stopped in time to avoid injury to him. Id.

59. — Acts in emergencies.—Where defendant company created an appearance of danger by its negligence, held, that plaintiff was not precluded from recovery because his subsequent acts contributed to his injury. Bryant v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 82.

Giving an instruction that, if plaintiff was injured in attempting to avoid only an imaginary danger, defendant company was not liable, held error. Id.

Where defendant company’s negligence places plaintiff in a perilous position, the company is liable for his injuries, though he acts wildly and negligently. Id.

Whether or not plaintiff acted prudently or imprudently in attempting to avoid injury at a crossing from a switch engine negligently operated held not to affect her right to recover. House v. T. C. R. Co. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 147.

Where plaintiff, riding in a buggy driven by another, was injured in attempting to avoid collision with a switch engine at a crossing, the evidence in an action against the railroad company held sufficient to sustain a finding that neither plaintiff nor the driver was guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

60. — Effect in general.—A railroad company held not relieved from its duty of providing a crossing with a flagman, as against a person who drove on it believing the train to be standing still. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Magee (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 156.

In an action for an injury at a crossing, an instruction held erroneous as authorizing the inference that a recovery could be had notwithstanding plaintiff’s contributory negligence. Texas Midland R. R. v. Tidwell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 441.

Where an approaching locomotive is seen by person before crossing railroad track, a claim for damages cannot be predicated on failure to give usual signals. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Abendroth (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1122.

61. Proximate cause of injury.—To give a right of action, negligence on the part of the defendant in failing to give crossing signals must be shown, and that it was the proximate cause of the injury. Railway Co. v. Malone (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 640.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a railroad company was negligent in permitting weeds to grow along its track so as to obstruct the view of passing cars from an intersecting road. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Easter (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

A charge held properly refused which imputed no responsibility to defendant, if the accident would have been caused by something else if defendant’s negligence had not contributed to it. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 374.

Evidence held to show that blowing of a whistle on or near a crossing, which caused team to back into the train, was not negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Carruth (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1036.

An instruction authorizing a recovery if plaintiff’s death was caused by his horse running from a mud hole created by the road held erroneous. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Neely (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 282.

The fact that defendant may have been negligent in obstructing a street with its cars held not the proximate cause of an injury resulting from an accident in driving around a car to avoid the obstruction. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 372.

Evidence in an action against a railroad company for injuries to plaintiff’s wife from fright held to show that the negligence of defendant’s trainmen was the proximate cause of the injury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Murdock, 54 C. A. 249, 116 S. W. 159.

62. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—A railroad company, to avoid injury to a wagon negligently driven upon its tracks, should use the means that a person of ordinary care would use under such circumstances. Railroad Co. v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 675.

Contributory negligence bars a recovery for injuries at a crossing, though the railroad, by use of ordinary care and prudence, could have avoided it. Texas Midland R. R. v. Tidwell (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 641.

Where the employees of a railroad saw a person going into a place of peril at a crossing, and by warning could have prevented the peril, the railroad was liable. Central Texas & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, 35 C. A. 66, 78 S. W. 351.

In an action for death of a trespasser on a railroad track caused by being struck by an engine, held not to raise the issue of discovered peril. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McMillan, 100 T. S. 562, 102 S. W. 103.

Contributory negligence held not to bar a recovery for injuries sustained in a railroad crossing accident, if, after a discovery of the peril those in charge of the engine could have avoided running plaintiff down. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 340.

Rule stated as to duty of locomotive operators on discovering peril of one on or near the track. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. King (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 151.

Trainmen discovering the peril of a traveler at a crossing, caused by his horse becoming frightened by a train, held required to refrain from unnecessarily doing anything calculated to add to the fright of the horse. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cambron (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1130.

In an action for injuries at a crossing, where the recovery was sought on the ground of discovered peril, the company was not responsible, though its servants did not endeavors to find the peril. In the peril was not discovered in time for the servants to have accomplished anything by those means. Allen v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 195.

If an engineer of a train approaching a crossing discovered an automobile approaching the track, and saw that it would go upon the track, and that its occupants would not be able to cross, there was a discovery of the peril, within the last clear chance rule. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dumas (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 543.

63. Acts or omissions of employes or others.—Where plaintiff was injured at a crossing by a railway man for his own private benefit held sufficient to direct a verdict for the company, there being evidence of negligence in intrusting the car to the foreman. Branch v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 891.

64. Actions for injuries.—Pleading, including issues, proof and variance.—See Chapters 2, 3, 8 of Title 37.

65. — Presumptions and burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3637.

66. — Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3637.
70. Right to go on or near track—In general.—Where plaintiff was injured while running on a railroad track to rescue his child, who was in danger of being run down by an approaching train, the fact that he was wrongfully on the track when he discovered his child's peril does not make him a trespasser in his subsequent efforts to save his child. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray, 95 T. 424, 67 S. W. 763.

The fact that he ran back along the track towards the train in an effort to save his child does not render him liable to a charge of contributory negligence. Id.

In an action for running over a pedestrian on the track, an instruction that, if the roadway left sufficient room for pedestrians to walk outside of the ties in safety, it was their duty so to do, held erroneous. Kroege v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 30 C. A. 57, 69 S. W. 689.

A boy, otherwise a licensee, is not a trespasser because he had gone to the place to see a fight. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 429.

Where one turns aside from a path at a point where it crosses a railroad, and loiters there on the tracks, the railroad's required measure of care stated. Over v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 535.

Railroad held under no duty to mere licensees to maintain path along its right of way in safe condition. De La Pena v. International & G. N. R. Co., 32 C. A. 241, 74 S. W. 58.

There is no presumption that the servants of a railroad company, who operate its trains, have authority to grant permission for persons to use its tracks as a pathway for convenience in passing from one point to another. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Shiflet, 98 T. 326, 83 S. W. 677.

Where a railroad track is situated in a street, the railroad owes persons who may be upon the track the duty of exercising care to avoid running into them. Rio Grande, S. M. & P. Ry. Co. v. Martinez, 39 C. A. 460, 87 S. W. 683.

The courts held that a public road treated as such by the general public and by a railroad was located on the railroad right of way did not affect the reciprocal rights and duties of the public and the railroad. Johnson v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 146, 100 S. W. 206.

Where a railroad company provides adequate approaches to its stockyards, the rela­tion of invitee of one to ship stock cannot be extended to other parts of its premises. Id.

One passing along a railroad track used by pedestrians as a thoroughfare held not a trespasser, as the track was a general thoroughfare. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1056.

Where a railroad track had been used as a footpath for more than 25 years without objection, one walking thereon was not a trespasser. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Woodward, 26 C. A. 359, 63 S. W. 1051.

A railroad company, which permitted its track to be used by pedestrians, held obliged to exercise ordinary care to avoid injuring one so using it. Law v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 28 C. A. 134, 67 S. W. 1065.

One crossing a railroad track at a pathway when struck by an engine held a licensee, not a trespasser. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 420.

In an action against a railroad for injuries sustained by one struck by a car while crossing a pathway, held error to instruct the jury, that the employees of the railroad should have knowledge of what the path was used by the public. Over v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 535.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that a person injured while walking on the tracks of a railroad was not a trespasser. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bolton, 36 C. A. 87, 81 S. W. 123.

Fact that persons are accustomed to use railroad track as pathway held insufficient to raise implication of permission of railroad. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shiflet, 98 T. 326, 83 S. W. 677.

Persons who, without the express or implied permission of a railroad company, habitually use its track as a convenience in passing from one point to another, do not become licensees. Id.
Fact that persons were accustomed to walk on track of railroad at place where and time deceased was killed by being struck by train held to have no tendency to establish railroad's liability. Id.

Where defendant railroad company had knowingly permitted the public to use its track within the limits of a city as a walkway for a number of years, a person so using the track was a licensee, and not a trespasser. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 99 T. 160, 58 S. W. 192.

Where one is walking along a pathway on a railroad right of way habitually used by the public for the purpose of reaching their private property, it will be considered as having licensed the public to such use of portion of its track. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd, 41 C. A. 184, 89 S. W. 185.

One held rightfully walking on a railroad track where it is used by pedestrians with the knowledge, consent, or acquiescence of the company. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Flosner (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 226.

Where a railroad trestle is commonly used by the public as a walkway the company's acquiescence, the company will be considered as having licensed the public to so use it. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 199.

An implied license to use a railroad bridge as a footpath does not extend to such a use of the structure as would obstruct the railroad company's business. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Byrd, 102 T. 263, 115 S. W. 1163, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 429, 20 Ann. Cas. 127.

Plaintiff's conduct, while using a path which defendant railroad company had licensed to the public, while not to make him a licensee, was not to make him of his status as a licensee. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Endaley (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1150.

One on a railroad track held not a trespasser, notwithstanding the notice given by the railroad. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas & Sharp (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 263.

One using the railroad track in a space commonly used by pedestrians for a walk with the knowledge and consent of the company was a licensee, and the company was bound to use ordinary care not to injure him. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas & Wilcox, 57 C. A. 3, 121 S. W. 585.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the person using defendant's tracks and yard as a passway was a trespasser. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Colen (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 916.

The duties of a railroad company where it permits its roadbed to be used as a walkway by the public generally, stated. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Adkins (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 954.

Plaintiff held not precluded from recovery for injuries received on defendant's railroad track by failure to obtain defendant's consent to so use the track. Id.

Injury to pedestrian while on a railroad right of track an instruction that plaintiff was not a trespasser if the railroad had acquiesced in the use of right of way as a footpath held erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bristoe (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 278.

72. Care required in general—As to negligence in case of Injury to a person on the track, see Artus v. Railway Co., 73 T. 191, 11 S. W. 177; Railway Co. v. Garcia, 76 T. 663, 15 S. W. 685; Yron v. Ry., 89 T. 19, 57 S. W. 532; Railway Co. v. Chani, 121 C. A. 121, 23 S. W. 483; Railway Co. v. Crum, 6 C. A. 702, 25 S. W. 1126; Smith v. Fordyce (Sup.) 18 S. W. 666; Railway Co. v. 79. Frightening animals near railroad.—Where an engine near a public thoroughfare is released to "go off" steam, those in charge knowing that passing teams might be frightened, the owner of a team so frightened may recover of the company for damages resulting. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Traub, 19 C. A. 135, 47 S. W. 282.

Trainmen operating engine near highway parallel to track held to owe duty to apprehending rider of refraining from opening cylinder cocks of engine, irrespective of his horse's fright therefrom or of their discovery of the same affair. Id.

One riding on highway parallel to railway held not guilty of contributory negligence, precluding recovery for fright of horse from approaching engine. Id.

It is the duty of an engine employee to exercise ordinary care to protect teams by unnecessary noises. Fl. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Partin, 33 C. A. 173, 76 S. W. 236.

Plaintiff held entitled to recover if the operatives knew or had reason to believe that the whistle would frighten her horse. Id.

Evidence held to show that the engine knew or should have known that the whistle would endanger plaintiff. Id.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff by her team becoming frightened, facts held insufficient to establish negligence on the part of the railroad company. St. John v. St. Louis Southw. Ry. Co. (App.) 79 S. W. 603.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Kliman, 29 C. A. 107, 86 S. W. 1050.

Statement as to duty of operators of a locomotive towards a team in a street parallel with the railroad. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sanders, 42 C. A. 544, 94 S. W. 149.

Where the operatives of defendant's engine knew, or had reasonable ground to believe that slight frighten the horse, Id.

Plaintiff's evidence to show the horses were too easily frightened was not sufficient. Adams v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 899.

A railroad held liable for the results of the frightening of horses by unnecessary and unusual whistling or letting off of steam, under circumstances amounting to negligence or willfulness. Id.

Operators of a train, discovering the peril of a person driving along a roadway parallel to the railroad track, held required to do everything in their power to avoid the danger of increasing the fright of the horse. Johnson v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 141, 100 S. W. 208.

A railroad need not watch for persons along and near its right of way, but trainmen, becoming aware of the presence of a person on a public road near its track and that his horse is frightened, must desist from making noises frightening the horse, if consistent with their other duties. Adams v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 899.

A railroad held liable for the results of the frightening of horses by unnecessary and unusual whistling or letting off of steam, under circumstances amounting to negligence or willfulness. Id.

The railroad company is not liable for injuries resulting from plaintiff's team running away on taking fright at the ordinary noise by the sudden escape of steam from a locomotive. Ford v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 715.

Operators of engines on a track parallel to a part of right of way used by the public held required to exercise ordinary care in the operation thereof. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McCauley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 758.

Where a part of a railroad right of way had been used as a public street, the railroad company held liable for injuries to a traveler thereon, where her horse was frightened by unnecessary noises of an engine. Id.

A railroad company held not required to keep a lookout for travelers on a highway adjacent to a track to prevent frightening their teams. McMillan v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 628.

76. Defects in roadbed, tracks or equipment.—The construction of a barb-wire fence by a railroad on its own land did not render it liable for injuries sustained by one accidentally riding into it. Bishop v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 1086.

The railroad held not required to clear underbrush, etc., from along the line of the fence, or that it might be seen by travelers. Id.

77. Derailment of trains.—A railroad's negligence, which caused a wreck, held to render it liable for an injury received by one standing on a highway near the tracks. St. Louis S. F. R. Co. v. Troutman (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 427.

In an action for injuries, as instruction making defendant railroad company liable if it knew that people were accustomed to stand on the sidewalk adjacent to its track, and propelled its car along the track with timber projecting from its sides, and plaintiff, while standing there, was struck, if so running the car was negligence, held proper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Scarborough, 29 C. A. 194, 68 S. W. 196.

Since the natural and probable result of running a train upon a curve, on the outside of which was a pathway which the public was licensed to use, with an unfastened car door swinging loose would be to injure persons in the pathway, such condition would be negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Endsley (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1150.

If a pedestrian was struck by a projection from a train while walking along the track at a safe distance from the train, the burden was upon the company in an action for resulting injuries to show that it was without fault. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wilcox, 57 C. A. 3, 121 S. W. 588.

In absence of evidence to the contrary, negligence by the railroad company may be inferred from the projecting of a crosstie on a passing train which struck a pedestrian walking along the track at a safe distance from the train. Id.

79. Mode of running trains or cars.—As great care is incumbent on operatives of a train passing along a public street as at a crossing. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Laskowski (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 59.

Employees operating engines must use such care only as ordinarily prudent persons would exercise under like circumstances. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Harnett (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 773.
Where one, on a railroad track used by pedestrians as a thoroughfare, was injured by a running switch, the company was held guilty of negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1056.

Where in a town a train blockaded a street while taking on water, it was the duty of the operatives before backing the train to use ordinary care to see that no one in crossing the street was injured, rendering the railroad company liable for neglect of such duty causing injury to one not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Brouillote (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 886.

80. Signals and lookout-In general.—A railroad company has the legal right to operate its cars on the streets of a city (Limburger v. Railway Co. [Civ. App.] 27 S. W. 198), and is liable in damages only for an injury caused by the carelessness of those operating them. It is the duty of the conductor of the car to watch the track upon which it is being propelled, and to avoid collisions and accidents upon the track. He is not excused if his negligence was not upon or approaching the track. Reilly v. Railway Co. v. Tippens, 4 App. C. C. § 150, 14 S. W. 1967; Hargis v. Railway Co., 76 T. 23, 12 S. W. 953; City of El Paso v. Dolan (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 669.

It is the duty of the employees of a railway company to use reasonable care to discover and avoid injury to persons on its tracks. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harby (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 629.

A railroad company held liable for running over a person lawfully on its tracks and not guilty of contributory negligence, if its servants are negligent in running the train at unlawful speed, or in failing to keep a proper lookout. Kroeger v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 20 C. A. 87, 69 S. W. 809.

The sending of a brakeman down the track before a contemplated switch is made held not to relieve the owner or driver of the engine from the duty of keeping a reasonable lookout. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Levy, 35 C. A. 107, 73 S. W. 878.

Railroad, which negligently fails to give signals of the approach of a train, cannot escape liability to a person injured, on the ground that the latter could have heard the train through the windows and the bell. Reilly v. Railway Co. v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 388 S. W. 1024.

In an action for injuries to one who was walking on a railroad trestle when a train approached, and who jumped from the trestle to avoid being struck by the train, it was no defense that the engineer had the train under control, and could or would have stopped it. There was striking negligence where striking appellee had not he left the track. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd, 41 C. A. 164, 90 S. W. 185.

Statement as to duty of persons operating a train in approaching places where the public is permitted to use the track with the consent of the railroad. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 457.

A railroad company held not liable for injury to one struck by a car while attempting to cross a track, for failure to keep lookout for him. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shivers, 48 C. A. 112, 106 S. W. 894.

The rule requiring a railroad company to use care to avoid injury to persons on its track in the daytime held not to apply to a person on the track in the nighttime. Moore v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 1142.

An employer and a company must exercise ordinary care to discover persons on its track at places where they may be expected to be found. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bolen (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 800.

Railroads are bound to keep a lookout for persons who may be on the track. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Milburn (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 626.

The duty of the railway company to have a lookout kept not only where traveled ways are near the track, but throughout its length. The care required for the safety of its passengers is also that of those who might otherwise be injured. Railroad Co. v. Hewitt, 67 T. 473, 3 S. W. 705, 60 Am. Rep. 32.

Where plaintiff injured on defendant's tracks was guilty of contributory negligence, he cannot recover where defendant's servants failed to discover his danger in time to prevent the injury. Smith v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 17 C. A. 502, 43 S. W. 34.

Railroad company held not liable to trespasser on track, if after discovery they used due care to prevent injury. Louisiana W. E. Ry. Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 649.

Facts held sufficient to support a verdict against a railroad company for injuries caused by plaintiff's horse becoming frightened by a train where the highway ran parallel to the railroad. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Belew, 26 C. A. 8, 62 S. W. 99.

In an action for injuries to a person on a railroad track, an instruction that failure to sound the whistle at a station and two road crossings could not be complained of by plaintiff held properly refused. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Woodward, 26 C. A. 389, 63 S. W. 1081.

Where plaintiff was injured while attempting to save his child from being run over by a railroad train, a charge that the fact that those in charge of the train saw his peril in time to avoid the injury could be proven by circumstantial evidence was proper.

Where a locomotive engineer is negligent in failing to see a child on the track, the exercise of due care in attempting to stop the train after the peril is discovered does not relieve the company from liability. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Harby, 23 C. A. 24, 67 S. W. 641.
Evidence held to show negligence of the engineer in falling to see the child in time to avoid the accident.  Id.

A railroad company held not required to use care, or give warning of approaching cars, to a trespasser in its yards, in the absence of knowing of his presence on the track.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Cowles, 29 C. A. 156, 67 S. W. 1678.

A license to use a railroad track as a thoroughfare does not authorize its use for jumping the train and sitting, and persons so using it are trespassers.  Smith v. International & G. N. R. Co., 34 C. A. 209, 78 S. W. 556.

In an action for injuries to a child on a railroad, it was proper to charge that the railroad's failure to keep a lookout for such children was negligence per se.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hamer, 54 C. A. 394, 58 S. W. 788.

An instruction requiring the railroad company to keep a lookout for children on the track was proper.  Id.

It is the duty of the servants of a railroad company to keep a lookout for licensees on the track, and exercise reasonable care not to injure them.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Williams, 60 C. A. 134, 109 S. W. 1125.

Servants of a railroad held required to use ordinary care to avoid injuring a licensee who was walking on a railroad company's right of way is a licensee.  It is the duty of those operating trains to keep a lookout to discover him and avoid injuring him.  Hutchens v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 245, 83 S. W. 24.

Plaintiff held lawfully on defendant's railroad track at the time he was struck and injured.  Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. O'Donnell (Clv. App.) 90 S. W. 885.

It is the duty of the servants of a railroad company to keep a lookout for licensees on the track, and exercise reasonable care not to injure them.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Williams, 60 C. A. 134, 109 S. W. 1125.

Servants of a railroad held required to use ordinary care to avoid injuring a licensee who was walking on a railroad company's right of way is a licensee.  It is the duty of those operating trains to keep a lookout to discover him and avoid injuring him.  Hutchens v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 245, 83 S. W. 24.

Plaintiff held lawfully on defendant's railroad track at the time he was struck and injured.  Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. O'Donnell (Clv. App.) 90 S. W. 885.

That the engineer of a train had it under control, and could or would have stopped it before striking plaintiff, had he not jumped from a trestle on discovering the approach of a train which gave no warning until nearly upon him, held no defense.  Id.

Railroad companies held required to keep lookout in direction in which cars are being moved to prevent injuring those who may be on the tracks.  St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Davis (Clv. App.) 110 S. W. 939.

Railway employees, while bound to keep a lookout for persons at street crossings, held not bound to take more than the usual precautions to discover a young child before backing the train.  Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Brouillette, 53 C. A. 33, 117 S. W. 1014.

A railroad reasonably chargeable with knowledge that persons are on the track must exercise ordinary care to discover their presence, and to avoid injuring them.  Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Longino, 54 C. A. 87, 118 S. W. 198.

A railroad owes the general duty of lookout, not only to those who are of right upon the track, but to trespassers as well.  Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Brouillette (Clv. App.) 130 S. W. 886.

Operatives of trains must use diligence in keeping a lookout for persons along its track, and to use proper precautions to prevent inflicting injury upon them.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Schroeter (Clv. App.) 134 S. W. 826.

A conductor in charge of a train, who saw persons crossing the yard in which it was his duty of keeping a lookout in their direction before giving a signal for the movement of such cars.  Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Clv. App.) 151 S. W. 586.

82. Places for giving signals or keeping lookout. — The burden of ordinary care was upon the defendant to ascertain the plaintiff's position while driving on the public road near to tracked, or which might result in injury to him.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Buller, 22 C. A. 264, 54 S. W. 1070.

Railroad company cannot be required to look out for persons on path alongside of track if it does not know of such path.  Reichert v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Clv. App.) 72 S. W. 1031.

At places where it is expected that persons will be rightfully found on a railroad track, ordinary care under the circumstances must be exercised to keep a lookout for them.  San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brock, 35 C. A. 155, 80 S. W. 422.

83. Rate of speed. — Refusal to charge jury that it is not negligence per se for railroad company to run its trains at particular rate of speed held error.  Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Short (Clv. App.) 55 S. W. 56.

A railroad company held guilty of negligence in running a train by a station at from 55 to 60 miles an hour.  Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Muske (Clv. App.) 141 S. W. 585.

84. Violation of ordinance as negligence. — See notes under Arts. 812 and 853.

85. Precautions as to persons seen on or near track—in general.—Reasonable care required in operating locomotive engine, where those in charge of it know person's danger therefrom in time to avoid it, stated.  Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wallace, 21 C. A. 394, 53 S. W. 77.

Evidence held to show plaintiff injured by defendant's negligence while on the track in the exercise of due care.  Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harvin (Clv. App.) 64 S. W. 629.
Facts held to show that servants of defendant railroad company had no knowledge of plaintiffs intention to pass between the cars of a train in a switchyard. Rodriguez v. International & G. N. R. Co., 27 C. A. 325, 64 S. W. 1005.

Where a father, seeing his two year old child on a railroad track in front of a rapidly advancing train, runs on the track in an attempt to save it, he is not a trespasser. San Antonio & T. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 229.

An instruction that a railroad company may be liable to injury to a trespasser, if after his peril was actually discovered the operatives failed to use the greatest precautions to avoid injury, held erroneous, as omitting the element of safety to the train in stopping. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ramsey, 36 C. A. 255, 81 S. W. 825.

Railroad held liable for injury resulting from fright to person on the track whose presence and danger the railroad servants should have discovered. Hendrix v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 291, 113 S. W. 461.

In an action for the death of a person killed by a locomotive, a charge that the engineer was not required to try to stop the train until he had actual knowledge that deceased would not get out of the way of the train held properly refused. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Munoz (Civ. App.) 46 C. A. 67, 102 S. W. 344.

Though the court confines the duty of those in charge of a train, after discovering a person's peril, to stopping the train, held, that the jury may consider evidence of their negligence in not using other means. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Finn (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 94.

It is the duty of a locomotive fireman, on discovering the peril of one near the track, to resort to all available means to avoid injuring him. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crawford, 117 C. A. 194, 78 S. W. 193.

In an action for killing a person lying on the track, evidence held to show that the company was free from negligence as matter of law. Caldwell v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 389, 117 S. W. 458.

Trainmen, discovering an object on the track in front of the train, must at least exercise ordinary care to ascertain what it is, and, where, by failure to do so, a person lying on the track is killed, the company is liable. 1d.

Operatives of a locomotive to use ordinary care are not bound to stop the train upon discovering an object on or near the track which could not by the use of ordinary care be determined by them to be a person. Houston, E. & T. Ry. Co. v. Sallie, 56 C. A. 23, 125 S. W. 216.

A railroad engineer, on discovering the peril of a person on the track, must use every means within his power to avoid running him down, and this duty continues until the danger of a collision is past. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mitcham, 57 C. A. 134, 121 S. W. 871.

That decedent was a trespasser when killed by defendant's train did not relieve defendant's employees of the duty on discovering decedent's danger to take steps to avoid injuring him. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Broomhead (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 830.

Trainmen employed in charge of a train standing in a railroad yard, and cars moving therein, were chargeable with the duty of using ordinary care to avoid injuring licensees, of whose presence they were aware. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 696.

86. Right to presume that person will leave track or avoid danger.—An engineer is not authorized to presume that a person seen on the track will leave the same in time to avoid injury, unless some warning is given. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harvin (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 829.

It is only necessary to stop a train when there is reasonable ground to believe that a person walking on the track will not get off in time to avoid accident. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 255.

A locomotive engineer held to have had a right to presume that a trespasser on the track would leave the same in time to avoid injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ramsey, 43 C. A. 603, 97 S. W. 1067.

87. Children.—Where an infant on a railroad track was of such tender years that if it had not been presumed she would have left the track before the train approached, the operatives thereof were bound to use the highest degree of care to stop the train before reaching her. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hammer, 34 C. A. 354, 78 S. W. 708.

The discovery by trainmen of a child, 28 months old, on the track, is a discovery of its peril, there being no presumption that it will leave the track. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 787.

Trainmen held, as a matter of law, to owe no duty to a child injured by being run over by cars. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vallejo, 102 T. 70, 113 S. W. 4, 115 S. W. 25.

To impose on the crew of a train the duty to watch all children about railroad yards and tracks during the operation of the train is beyond the proper limitation of all correct permissions of law. 1d.

No negligence by train employees, contributing to the injury of one struck while crossing railroad yards with her father, held shown. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 273.

88. Infirm or helpless persons.—That a railroad company's engineer may presume that a person on the track would, after warning, leave the track, through such person was deaf, held not, as a matter of law, to render such a person guilty of negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harvin (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 629.

A person struck by a train while walking along a railroad track when he could with equal convenience and safety have walked at the side of it, held guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ploeger (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 56.

Evidence in an action for injury to one struck by a car while walking through defendant's yards held to show contributory negligence, entitling the company to a directed verdict. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shivers, 48 C. A. 112, 106 S. W. 894.

Failure to look and listen before walking near a railroad track held not negligence per se. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wall (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 463.

92. — Knowledge of danger. — Facts held to show that plaintiff, injured while passing between the cars of defendant's train, was chargeable with notice that the cars were liable to be moved at any time. Rodriguez v. International & G. N. R. Co., 27 C. A. 325, 54 S. W. 1005.

Knowledge of the defective condition of a railroad track, without knowledge that such condition would make it dangerous for one to travel a path beside the track while cars were passing thereon, would not render one traveling the path guilty of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown, 46 C. A. 10, 101 S. W. 464.

A person jumping from a railroad bridge to escape a train held negligent, and proceeded from recovering from the railroad company, though pedestrians had a license to use the bridge as a footpath. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Byrd, 102 T. 583, 115 S. W. 1183, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 429, 20 Ann. Cas. 277.
93. — Reliance on precautions on part of railroad company.—One on a railroad track may in some measure depend on the company operating its trains in the usual manner, and may rely on the exercise of the usual precautions for the safety of those whose presence on the track is to be anticipated. Pt. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Longino, 54 C. A. 87, 118 S. W. 198.

94. — Acts in emergencies.—A railroad company held liable for injuries to one walking on a trestle when a train approached, who jumped therefrom to avoid injury, whether he acted prudently or imprudently in his attempt to avoid the injury. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd, 41 C. A. 164, 99 S. W. 185.

A railroad company held liable for negligence in not signaling sooner where plaintiff was upon a trestle without negligence, and through terror jumped therefrom, notwithstanding his imprudence in so doing. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 199.

A railroad company cannot avoid liability for death of a pedestrian, struck by a train running at a high rate of speed, because he might have avoided injury by remaining where he was when he discovered his peril. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Muskoe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 565.

95. Proximate cause of injury.—Where one on a railroad track used as a thoroughfare was injured by an engine making a running switch, the company's negligence was held the proximate cause of the injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 996.

In an action for injuries to a person on a railroad track, held, that the proximate cause of the injury was the negligence of the defendant's employees. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Woodward, 26 C. A. 389, 63 S. W. 1051.

Obstruction of street crossings by railroad cars held not proximate cause of injury to one hit by train while walking around cars. De La Pena v. International & G. N. R. Co., 32 C. A. 341, 74 S. W. 58.

The failure of persons on an engine to keep a proper lookout can only be deemed the proximate cause of the death of a person on the track when the keeping of such lookout would have prevented the fatality. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shoemaker, 58 T. 461, 44 S. W. 1049.

In an action for injuries to a traveler on a highway in consequence of his horse becoming frightened at a train approaching train, the existence of a certain fact held immaterial as not operating as a contributing cause of the accident. Johnson v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 116, 100 S. W. 206.

An engineer's failure to use all means to prevent injury, after discovering the peril, is not actionable, unless the use of such means would reasonably have prevented the accident. Parham v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 511, 113 S. W. 154.

Any negligence by train employees in failing to look out for plaintiff while she was in the yards, and in not ringing the bell, held not the proximate cause of her injuries by being struck by a train. Pt. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Winlinger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 273.

96. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—Where employees of a railroad company failed to use every means to prevent injury to a person under the cars, the railroad company is liable. Garza v. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 172.

Where plaintiff was struck and injured by engine, which those in charge could have easily stopped in time after discovering her peril, her contributory negligence will not preclude recovery. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wallace, 21 C. A. 394, 53 S. W. 77.

Where an engineer could have avoided an injury to a person on the track, the company is liable, though the injured party was guilty of negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harvin (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 629.

A railroad company held liable for running over a pedestrian on its track by a train, though he was intoxicated and guilty of contributory negligence. Kroeger v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 30 C. A. 87, 69 S. W. 309.

Plaintiff, injured by being run into by an engine while walking along the track, held not entitled to recover, notwithstanding his contributory negligence, on the ground that the operatives of the train might have stopped the same on discovering his peril. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Miller, 30 C. A. 122, 70 S. W. 25.

In an action for the death of one killed by a locomotive, plaintiff held entitled to recover because of the failure of the operatives to give warning signals. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen, 25 C. A. 355, 89 S. W. 240.

Where the peril of a trespasser on the track was discovered too late to stop the train, the railway company was not liable. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ramsey, 36 C. A. 265, 81 S. W. 825.

Where one who is guilty of negligence in being too near a railroad track is not discovered by the engineer or fireman in time to prevent striking him by a train running from station to station, there is no actionable negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 408.

Trainmen, knowing of the peril of a person on the track, held required to use every means consistent with the safety of the train to avoid running him down. Maxfield v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 54 C. A. 519, 117 S. W. 483.

In the absence of actual discovery by trainmen of a person on the track and their appreciation of his peril, the rule of discovered peril has no application. Pillow v. Texas & Arkansas Ry. 55 C. A. 597, 119 S. W. 129.

To raise the issue of discovered peril in an action for the death of a person struck by a train, the proof must show that the trainmen saw decedent in the position of danger, that they recognized his danger, and realized that he would remain in that position. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 263.
A person's contributory negligence, in being on a railroad track, is no defense in an action for being struck by a train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mitcham, 57 C. A. 134, 121 S. W. 871.

That the track was properly fenced and cattle guards erected at the place where plaintiff was struck was no defense. Id.

Evidence of the use of the track at the place of the accident by pedestrians held immaterial. Id.

Where trainmen see one upon the track and realize his peril in time to avoid injuring him and fail to use every means consistent with the safety of the train to prevent injuring him, being the injured person was negligent, and it is only necessary, in order to charge it with such duty, that the trainmen should have thought it probable that he would not get off. Higginbotham v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1025.

97. Willful or wanton acts and gross negligence.—Impudence in driving too near a railroad track will not bar recovery, where a horse was frightened by steam intentionally thrown upon it. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Syfan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 551.

Evidence held to show that the engineer or fireman unnecessarily threw steam upon plaintiff's horse, thereby frightening it. Id.

98. Acts or omissions of employes or others.—In an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife by his team becoming frightened at a motor car on defendant's railroad, the car being owned jointly by a lumber company and defendant and kept in the company's shop when not in use, and only the general manager of the company and defendant's superintendent being authorized to use it, and it having been taken out by a foreman for the company's own use, no negligence of defendant's part. King v. Nacogdoches & S. E. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 300.

99. Actions for injuries—Pleading.—See Chapters 2, 3 and 8 of Title 37.

100. Presumptions and burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687.

101. Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Facts in an action for injuries to plaintiff while near a railroad crossing by being struck with a cow thrown from the track by a train of defendant company held sufficient to sustain a verdict in favor of plaintiff. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Marchand, 24 C. A. 47, 57 S. W. 850.

In an action for injuries to a person on a track, evidence held to support a judgment for plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Woodward, 28 C. A. 389, 63 S. W. 1051.

In an action against railroad company for personal injuries caused by frightening decedent's horse, evidence as to whether unnecessary noise was made held to support verdict against company. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 797.

Evidence in an action for injuries to one walking along the track held not to disclose negligence in the company. Reichert v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1031.

Evidence held to show that one run over by a railroad train was lying on the track when struck. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 43 C. A. 137, 73 S. W. 413, 74 S. W. 983.

In an action for injuries to a child on a railway track, evidence held to justify a finding that the engineer of the train had previously seen children playing on the right of way near a crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hammer, 34 C. A. 364, 73 S. W. 708.

In an action against a railroad for the death of one killed by a locomotive, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the operatives of the locomotive were negligent in failing to give any warning. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen, 25 C. A. 355, 69 S. W. 240.

In an action for injuries to a child 11 years of age, walking on a railroad trestle, evidence held to warrant a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bolton, 26 C. A. 871, 81 S. W. 128.

Evidence held to support a finding that the train operatives, after they discovered the peril of plaintiff, failed to use every means to avoid injuring her. Id.

Evidence in an action for injuries to a person while walking on defendant's track held insufficient to entitle plaintiff to recover. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 894.

In an action for injuries caused by collision with a licensee riding a velocipede on the railroad's track, evidence held sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1034.

Evidence held to support a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence.

Evidence held to support a finding that a blast of steam was emitted, which frightened plaintiff's horse, and that defendant was negligent in regard thereto. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 29 C. A. 480, 58 S. W. 445.

In an action for injuries received by plaintiff through being struck by defendant's train, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding of freedom from contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 457.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff through being struck by an engine while walking on defendant's track, evidence examined, and held to authorize a finding that the operations of the engine discovered plaintiff's peril in time to have avoided the injury, and negligently failed to prevent it. Nacogdoches & S. E. R. Co. v. Beene, 47 C. A. 650, 106 S. W. 456.
In an action for injuries from being struck by a railroad car while walking near the track, evidence held to support a verdict for plaintiff. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Finn (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 94.

Evidence held to sufficiently show the circumstances in which a child was run over by railway cars. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vallejo (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1187.

In an action for injuries to a person while being struck by a car, evidence held insufficient to warrant a verdict for plaintiff on the issue of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 453.

In an action for injuries from jumping from a trestle on discovering the proximity of a train, held to sustain a judgment for plaintiff on the theory of defendant's negligence and plaintiff's freedom from contributory negligence. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 199.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to plaintiff through being struck by a train while walking near the track, evidence held to support findings that defendant was negligent, and that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crawford, 54 C. A. 196, 117 S. W. 193.

In an action for personal injuries, claimed to have been caused by being struck by a swinging freight car door while plaintiff was standing near the track, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff was injured as claimed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Endsley (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1150.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that the injury was caused by defendant's negligence. Id.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

Evidence held to show that operatives in charge of a locomotive which injured a child on the track were not required to discover persons on the track. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Saile, 56 C. A. 23, 120 S. W. 216.

Evidence held to show that a pedestrian was injured by a projection from a passing freight train, evidence held not to show contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Wilcox, 57 C. A. 3, 121 S. W. 588.

Evidence held to support a verdict for plaintiff. Id.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff's peril was discovered in time to have enabled the engineer to stop. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mitcham, 57 C. A. 134, 121 S. W. 871.

Evidence held that the passenger being struck by a train was running away while it was moving, and that the train was moving in time to prevent the injuries. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Forties (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 609.

Evidence held insufficient to show negligence of the railroad company, where a licensee was struck by a car while walking by the side of its track. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Coleman, 103 Tex. 384, 129 S. W. 242.

Evidence held to support a verdict against defendant's son being struck by defendant's train, evidence held to authorize a finding of negligence in not keeping a proper lookout for persons on the track. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bolen (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 560.

Evidence held to sustain a verdict for injuries to a railroad company by a backing train, evidence held to support the finding that the employees of defendant did not exercise ordinary care to see that the track was clear before backing, and that, had such care been exercised, the child would have been discovered in time to avoid the accident. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Brouillette (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 586.

In an action for injuries to a pedestrian in a railway yard, evidence held to sustain recovery on the theory of defendant's negligence and plaintiff's freedom from contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Driver (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 409.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a child evidence held to show that plaintiff's father knew that the train was moving when he went into the yards. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 273.

In an action for injuries received while on the property of a railroad company, evidence held to show the relation of licensee existing. Barcar v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 298.

That those in charge of a train saw one upon the track and realized his danger may be proved by the circumstances in which the injury occurred, and is not required to be shown by direct evidence. Higginbotham v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1025.

102. Damages.—Mental suffering incident to the frightening of plaintiff's team, which resulted in injury to his property, but not his person, was not an element of actual damages. Railway Co. v. Trott, 25 S. W. 419, 38 T. 412, 40 Am. St. Rep. 866.
VIII. INJURIES TO ANIMALS ON OR NEAR TRACKS
See Art. 6603 and notes.

IX. FIRES

107. Care required and liability as to fires in general.—A railroad company held not liable for fire originating outside of its right of way, where no negligence is shown. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 416. In action for injuries from fire set by defendant's locomotive, an instruction held not erroneous as imposing too great a burden on defendant. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Starks (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 70.

108. Defects in construction of engines.—The degree of care to prevent the escape of fire from locomotives is such care as an ordinarily prudent person would have exercised under the same or similar circumstances. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Starks (App.) 125 S. W. 70.

109. Notice of claim for damages.—See Art. 5714.

110. A railroad company held not liable for fire originating outside of its right of way, where no negligence is shown. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 416.

The degree of care which a railway company must use to prevent fire from its locomotive is such care and caution as an ordinarily prudent person would have exercised under the same or similar circumstances. Railway Co. v. Knight, 20 C. A. 477, 49 S. W. 258.

A railroad is bound to the use of ordinary care only in keeping its apparatus to prevent the escape of fire. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 607.

A railroad held not erroneous, as authorizing recovery without requiring a finding that defendant was negligent in respect to the spark arrester used, its repair, and the locomotive's operation. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Florence (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 602.

An instruction held not open to the objection that it imposed on the company too high a degree of care. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. v. Crabb (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 468; Same v. Connally, 33 S. W. 266.

In an action for burning plaintiff's barn, a charge requiring defendant to equip its engine with the most approved spark arrester held not to require too high a degree of care. Houston & C. R. Co. v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 246.

In an action against a railroad company for negligently firing plaintiff's property, a charge held erroneous in requiring a higher degree of care than ordinary care. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 656; Same v. Burke, Id. 658.

A railroad not bound to prevent the burning of cotton piled along its right of way. M. H. Wolfe & Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 347.

In an action against a railroad for destroying plaintiff's property by fire set out by defendant's engine, an instruction held not objectionable as placing too great a burden of proof on defendant by requiring it to use ordinary care under certain circumstances to wet the fuel and to empty the ash pan of its engine. Freeman v. Nathan (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 246; Same v. Peacock, Id. 259.

Where plaintiff's wood was destroyed by fire starting on track, defendant railroad held only required to show use of most approved spark arrester "in general use." St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 607.

A charge not limiting defendant railroad's duty as to providing appliances for preventing spread of fire to those in general use held erroneous. Id.

Railroad is not bound to absolute duty of providing engines with most approved spark arresters. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. v. Crabb (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 468.

Railroad company held not under absolute duty to use the "most approved appliances" to prevent escape of fire from its locomotives. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Goodnight, 32 C. A. 256, 74 S. W. 583.

Where plaintiff's wood was destroyed by fire starting on track, defendant railroad held only required to show use of most approved spark arrester "in general use." St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 607.

A charge not limiting defendant railroad's duty as to providing appliances for preventing spread of fire to those in general use held erroneous. Id.

Railroad is not bound to absolute duty of providing engines with most approved spark arresters. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Crabb (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 408.

An instruction making a railroad company liable for a fire set by its engine, if it was not equipped with the most approved spark arrester in use, held erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 414.

The law does not impose on a railroad company the absolute duty of keeping the spark arresters on its locomotives in good repair. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 731.

A railroad company is only required to use ordinary care to provide appliances to prevent the escape of fire; the absolute duty to use the most approved spark arresters not being required. Id.

A railroad company held not bound to equip its engines with the latest approved appliances to prevent the escape of fire. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Laforge (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1972.

A railroad company sued for setting a fire held bound to prove that it used ordinary care to equip its locomotive with the best appliances in general use, and to keep the same in repair, and that its employes used ordinary care. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Connally (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 206.

A railroad company held not required to equip its engines with the most approved spark arresters, and to exercise ordinary care to keep the same in repair. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Neiser, 64 C. A. 460, 118 S. W. 166.

A railroad must exercise ordinary care to use the best appliances in general use to prevent the escape of sparks. Freeman v. J. B. Waters & Bros. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 84. A railroad is only liable for damages from fire set by sparks from its locomotives when it has failed to use ordinary care to properly equip them. Id. A railroad is only required to use ordinary care to equip its engines with appliances to prevent Missouri & K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Price (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 836; Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Gregory, 142 S. W. 656; Same v. Burke, Id. 653.

The law held not to impose on a railroad company the absolute duty of equipping its engines with the best and most approved spark arresters. Lam & Rogers v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 977.

It is the duty of a railroad company to exercise ordinary care to equip its engines with the most approved spark arresters. Progressive Lumber Co. v. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 175.

Held that a railroad company's failure to use oil instead of coal as locomotive fuel might make the company liable for a fire set out. Loeb Compress Co. v. L. G. Bromberg & Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 475.

An instruction that, if defendant set fire to its right of way overgrown with combustibles, it was liable if the fire spread to plaintiff's pasture, held erroneous. St. Louis W. S. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Knight (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 416.

In an action for setting a fire, whether or not the evidence warranted a finding that nettles on its right of way caught and held combustible corn shocks, etc., held immaterial. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 28 C. A. 590, 61 S. W. 835.

In an action against a railroad company for fire set out, an instruction as to defendant's duty in keeping its right of way free from combustible material, etc., held erroneous, as requiring too high a degree of care. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Dial, 38 C. A. 260, 85 S. W. 22.

Where defendant railroad company permitted a tank containing crude oil for use as fuel in its engines to remain on its right of way, it was liable for destruction of plaintiff's property by fire communicated by oil which defendant negligently permitted to leak from such tank, though plaintiff failed to show that defendant ignited the oil. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bellar, 61 C. A. 154, 112 S. W. 323.

A railroad which negligently permits dry grass to grow on and incumber its right of way, so that sparks from its engines set fire thereto, which spreads to and destroys another's property, is liable for such damage. Progressive Lumber Co. v. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 175.

111. Preventing spread of fire.—The failure to use proper care to prevent the spread of fire lawfully kindled is negligence for which an action will lie if damages result. Railroad v. Huaman, 117 J. L. R. A. 68, 111 S. W. 160, 77 C. B. 933.

A railroad company which negligently suffers fire started on its right of way to escape held liable. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Mclver (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 458.

Where grass was set on fire by sparks from a locomotive, it was not negligence for the train crew to fail to leave the train to extinguish the fire. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Chittim, 31 C. A. 40, 71 S. W. 294.

Employes of a railroad company need not assist in arresting a fire on land adjacent to the railroad right of way, unless the company had set the fire. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Meenizen Bros., 52 C. A. 418, 113 S. W. 1008.

The servants of a railroad going to the rescue of property threatened by destruction by fire set by an engine held required to use ordinary care to see that the fire is put out before leaving. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Arthur (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 213.

112. Contributory negligence of owner of property.—In general.—Parents are not hampered in the use of their home by its being near a railroad. Hence they are not negligent in placing their child in its cradle in a place where its clothing might be ignited by sparks from a passing engine. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 531.

A charge that plaintiff could not recover for the destruction of hay stored in his barn near defendant's right of way, if he placed it there with knowledge that combustible material had been allowed to accumulate on the track, held erroneous. Rutherford v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 422.

An owner of a lot is not negligent in building a house thereon and storing goods in it, though it will be close to a railroad. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Miller, 27 C. A. 344, 66 S. W. 156.

The owner of a barn adjoining a railroad right of way held not guilty of contributory negligence in storing hay in the barn. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 28 C. A. 590, 68 S. W. 825.

A shipper of timber held not guilty of contributory negligence in placing timber, which was consumed by fire set by sparks from defendant's engine, on defendant's right of way. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Home Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 999.

In action against railroad for destruction of cotton by sparks from defendant's locomotive, a requested instruction that, when the owners placed the cotton on the commodity-platform, they assumed all risks from fire, held properly refused. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Scottish Unity Nat. Ins. Co., 52 C. A. 82, 73 S. W. 1088.
A railroad sectionman, whose goods were burned in a section house, held not guilty of criminal negligence in permitting the goods to remain unattended, it being known that passing trains might set a fire. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 614.

It is no defense, in an action for damage by fire caused by sparks from defendant's engines, that the goods were not burned, nor that the fire was not started after being stacked along defendant's road. Freeman v. J. B. Waters & Bro. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 84.

Under the facts, held any negligence of plaintiffs in placing poles on defendant's right of way to be shipped could not be said as matter of law to be a contributory cause to their destruction by fire set by sparks from defendant's engine. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Blocker (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 156.

The owner of a frame barn destroyed by fire held not negligent in maintaining and using it at a place where defendant's railroad's right of way after the railroad was constructed. Freeman v. Nathan (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 248; Same v. Peacock, Id. 259.

That plaintiff permitted shucks and other combustible material to accumulate on his own premises, and that such material was carried by the wind to defendant's right of way and ignited and the fire carried to plaintiff's barn, held not to constitute contributory negligence. Freeman v. Nathan (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 248; Same v. Peacock, Id. 259.

114. Precautions against communication of fire.—It is not incumbent on an adjoining property owner to extinguish a fire on a railroad's right of way, unless a man of ordinary prudence would believe it immediately endangered his property. Texas Pac. Ry. Co. v. W. Leon & H. Blum Land Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 253.

One owning lands adjoining a railroad must take ordinary care of his property to protect it from fire. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Crabb (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 408.

Owner of property adjacent to a railroad need not discontinue the ordinary beneficial use of it although it might increase the hazard of fire. Id.

A railroad sectionman, whose goods were burned in a section house, held not guilty of contributory negligence in leaving the doors and windows of the section house open. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 614.

Owner of warehouse held not bound to so close a window as to exclude sparks from railroad engines; and its failure to do so did not defeat a recovery for the railroad company's negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. New Boston Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1188.

115. Proximate cause of injury.—In general.—Where the employees of a railroad company negligently allow sparks from a locomotive to fall on buildings so as to destroy them, the negligence is the proximate cause of the loss of the property. McFarland v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 460.

Where a railroad company permitted crude oil which it used as fuel in its locomotives to escape from a tank on its right of way and to saturate the surrounding soil, it was liable for the destruction of property on the adjoining land by fire communicated by the oil, though a flood occurring before the fire had carried a greater quantity of oil to the surrounding land than might have been carried to it if there had been no flood. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bellar, 61 C. A. 154, 112 S. W. 323.

Running an engine at excessive speed would not make the company liable for damages from sparks, unless the sparks were caused by the excessive speed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. W. A. Morgan & Bros. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 336.

Where a railroad ran many trains when the car windows were open, that it permitted tall grass to grow on its right of way might be found to be a proximate cause of damage when a fire started by a lighted grass, a fire started by a train upon the right of way. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 228.

116. Spread of fire.—Negligence by which a fire was started on a railroad right of way held the proximate cause of damage to property some distance removed, to which the fire spread. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 844.

Defendant's negligence in permitting fire to escape from its locomotive held the proximate cause of the burning of plaintiff's buildings. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wilbanks (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 318.

A railroad company negligently setting fire to ties piled on its right of way without its knowledge, and then communicated to other property, held not liable for the destruction of the property. Spring Garden Ins. Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1147.

Where fire was negligently communicated from defendant's railroad to the buildings of N., and from such buildings to plaintiff's property, which was consumed, plaintiff's right to recover was not affected by N.'s contributory negligence if any. Freeman v. Nathan (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 248; Same v. Peacock, Id. 259.

117. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—Defendant railroad company's negligence in doing its switching in such manner as to set fire to plaintiff's cotton after the danger had passed, held the proximate cause of the destruction of the cotton by fire, notwithstanding plaintiff's original negligence. Furst-Edwards & Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1024.

118. Property injured, destroyed or burned.—In an action to recover for a barn and contents destroyed by a fire, a charge that defendant was not liable for the destruction of the fowls and animals in the barn, unless it could reasonably have foreseen that they would be destroyed by burning the barn at that time, held error. Highland v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 52.

A railroad company is liable for burning of an employee's goods in a section house, caused by a passing locomotive, if it resulted from the company's negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 614.
119. Contracts for exemption from liability.—A contract whereby a warehouseman agreed to indemnify a railroad company harmless from loss of the building or its contents by fire held not to save the company from liability to a third person whose goods were destroyed by fire through the company’s negligence. McAdams v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 19 C. A. 82, 45 S. W. 936.

Damages caused by sparks from locomotive cannot be recovered from railroad, though negligent, where person whose property was injured held under lease exempting railroad from liability for losses so caused. Woodward v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 35 C. A. 14, 79 S. W. 896.

An assignee of a lease of a part of a railroad right of way for a coalhouse is bound by a stipulation in the lease that the company shall not be liable for loss by fire communicated from locomotives or otherwise. J. C. Wooldridge & Son v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 38 C. A. 651, 88 S. W. 942.

A lease of a part of a railroad right of way and a covenant of the lessee therein to assume risk of loss from fire set by locomotives held to be strictly construed against the railroad company. W. A. Morgan & Bros. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 19 C. A. 420, 110 S. W. 978.

A railroad company leasing a part of its right of way to a compress company held not entitled to escape liability for loss of cotton of a third person, while in possession of the compress company, caused by fire set by a locomotive of the railroad company. Id.

A lease by a railway company of a part of its right of way construed, and held, that the lessee assumed only risks of loss to its own property by fire set by sparks emitted from locomotives of the company. Id.

120. Persons entitled to damages.—The owner of certain grass burned by defendant railroad company held entitled to recover therefor though he was not the owner of the land. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1163.

122. — Presumptions and burden of proof.—See the preceding notes and also notes under Art. 3687.

123. — Admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

124. — Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held not sufficient to establish that a fire was set by a locomotive, to warrant reversal of a judgment for defendant on appeal. Tyler Chair & Furniture Works v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 390.

Evidence held to support a finding that a fire near a railroad right of way was set by sparks from a locomotive. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 578.

Failure of persons employed by plaintiff for a special purpose to extinguish the fire held not to preclude recovery for resulting damages. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a finding that the fire was communicated by sparks from defendant’s engines. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Morgan, 28 C. A. 348, 67 S. W. 435.

Evidence held to justify a finding that corn shocks and Spanish nettles were allowed to accumulate and remain on defendant’s right of way. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 28 C. A. 590, 68 S. W. 825.

Evidence held to justify a finding that a fire which consumed plaintiff’s timber was communicated from defendant’s engine, and that the setting thereof was due to defendant’s negligence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Home Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 999.

In an action for the burning of plaintiff’s building by sparks from defendant’s engine, after proof that the engine had been properly equipped and handled, plaintiff could not recover without further proof of negligence. Id.

In an action for the burning of plaintiffs’ grass, by fire set by defendant’s alleged defective locomotive, evidence held to sustain a verdict for plaintiffs. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Prude, 33 C. A. 144, 86 S. W. 1046.

In an action for destruction of property by fire communicated by oil escaping from defendant’s oil tank, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that the saturation of the ground with the oil was the proximate cause of the injury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bel­lar, 61 C. A. 184, 115 S. W. 233.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that the oil was of an inflammable character. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that defendant was negligent and that the oil was the means of communicating the fire. Id.

In a case for loss of property by fire alleged to have been set by sparks from an engine, evidence held not to authorize a recovery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Meentzen Bros., 52 C. A. 416, 113 S. W. 1000.

Evidence held sufficient to show that plaintiff’s property was destroyed by fire through the negligence of defendant’s servants. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ross, 55 C. A. 625, 119 S. W. 725.

In an action against a railroad for destruction of property by fire, a verdict held not supported by the evidence. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 272.
In an action for injuries from fire set by defendant's locomotive, evidence held to authorize a finding that the fire was caused by defendant's negligence. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Starks (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 70.

In an action for property destroyed by fire, evidence held not to support a verdict for plaintiff, in that it did not show that the fire caught from defendant's engine. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McIntosh (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 692.

Evidence, in an action by a section foreman for loss of goods in the section house burned in a fire set by a passing train, held insufficient to show that he negligently left the doors and windows open. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 614.

In an action against a railroad company, evidence held to warrant a finding that the fires sued on originated on the company's right of way. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 367.

In action for negligently burning plaintiff's fruit trees, plaintiff may recover their cash value, instead of the lessened value of the land. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gorman, 21 S. W. 158, 2 C. A. 144.

For destruction of growing crop. Railway Co. v. Borsky, 21 S. W. 1012, 2 C. A. 646.

Where a crop has been wrongfully destroyed, the proper measure of damages is the value of the crop at the time and place of its destruction. Railway Co. v. Rheiner (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 971.

Measure of damages for destruction of sod by fire is the difference in the market value of the land immediately before and after the fire, excluding the value of the grass. Railway Co. v. Fulmore (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 685; Railway Co. v. Horne, 65 T. 613, 9 S. W. 440.

Measure of damages for destruction and burning grass held to be the value of the grass and the difference in the value of the land before and after the fire. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McIver (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 438.

Fences being part of the realty, difference in the value of the land caused by their destruction should be considered. Id.

In an action for injuries from fire set by a locomotive the company was liable for damages that directly resulted to plaintiff and his family from suffocation and from cold in being compelled to leave the burning building. Serafina v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 142.

Damages resulting to plaintiff and his family from sleeping on the floor of a neighborhood house held too remote. Id.

Damages resulting from the death of a dog that was shut up in the house were also too remote. Id.

Where plaintiff holds grazing land by lease, and the turf is injured by fire, the measure of damage is the value of the grass in such amount as will compensate plaintiff for the injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rice, 24 C. A. 374, 59 S. W. 823.

A charge that, if property had market value, the measure of damages would be the reasonable value of the improvements destroyed, held erroneous. Tyler S. E. Ry. Co. v. Hitchins, 26 C. A. 400, 63 S. W. 1909.

Where plaintiff's real estate had no market value, a charge that the measure of damages for negligently burning his barn was the difference between the market value of the real estate immediately before and immediately after the fire was erroneous. Highland v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 649.

Rule stated as to measure of damages for the destruction of grass and fences and injury to soil by fire alleged to have been set by defendant's locomotive. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Chittlim, 31 C. A. 40, 73 S. W. 294.

Rule for measure of damage in action against a railroad for damages to plaintiff's grass land from fire originating from sparks from defendant's engine stated. Jackson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 724.

In an action for damages to plaintiffs' turf, by fire set by defendant's locomotive, the measure of damages was the difference in value of the land immediately before and after the fire, not considering the value of the grass, and the market value of the grass, if any; otherwise, its reasonable value. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Prude, 39 C. A. 144, 86 S. W. 1046.

127. Notice of claim for damages.—See Art. 5714.

X. INJURIES TO EMPLOYÉS

Article 6619. [4543] Property of company subject to execution.—
The rolling stock and all other movable property belonging to any railroad company or corporation shall be considered personal property, and its real and personal property, or any part thereof, shall be liable to execution and sale in the same manner as the property of individuals, and no such property shall be exempt from execution and sale. [Const., art. 10, sec. 4.]

Cited, St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Griffin (Clv. App.) 154 S. W. 583.

To what property applicable.—The property enumerated in this article that may be sold under execution comprehends all the property of whatsoever nature or character of a railway company or corporation. The property liable to seizure is not restricted to Art. 6628 enumerating railroad property subject to sale, and providing how it shall be sold, etc. S. A. & G. S. Ry. Co. v. S. A. & G. R. Co. (Clv. App.) 76 S. W. 785.

For what debts railroad liable.—Defendant railroad company held not liable as successor of another company for claims for work performed in construction of road. Gulf & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Winder, 26 C. A. 263, 63 S. W. 1043.

A contract for construction work for a railroad construed, and held to make the contractor responsible for the cost of the work done on the credit of the railroad. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Clv. App.) 112 S. W. 447.

Held that the debt incurred was a debt of the contractor, and not of the railroad. Id.

The contract held to create the railroad commission the arbiter to determine what issue of stocks and bonds by the railroad should be compensation for the work. Id.

Art. 6620. [4544] Notice required in reducing wages.—All persons in the employment of such railway company shall be entitled to receive thirty days' notice from said company before their wages can be reduced by such company; and, in all cases of reduction, the employé shall be entitled to receive from such company wages at his contract price for the full term of thirty days after such notice is given, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Acts 1887, p. 20.]

Art. 6621. [4545] Service of notice and how given.—The notice referred to in the preceding article is declared to mean thirty full days immediately prior to the day upon which such reduction is to take effect, and may be given by posting written or printed handbills, specifying the parties whose wages are to be reduced and the amount of such reduction, in at least three conspicuous places in or about each shop, section house, station, depot, train or other places where said employés are at work; provided, such employé shall, within fifteen days from the date of such notice, inform such railway company, by posting like notices as given by such railway company, whether he will or will not accept such reduction; and, if no such information is given such company by such employé, then such employé shall forfeit his right to such notice, and such reduction shall take effect from the date of such notice, instead of at the expiration of thirty days. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6622. [4546] Penalty.—Any railway company violating or evading any of the provisions of the preceding article shall pay to each employé affected thereby one month's extra wages, to be recovered by such employé in any court of competent jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6623. [4547] When wages to be paid discharged employé.—Whenever any railroad company shall discharge any employé, or whenever the time of service of any employé of a railroad company shall expire, or whenever any railroad company shall be due and owing any employé, such railroad company, upon such discharge, or upon the termination of the term of such service, or upon the maturity of said indebtedness, shall, within fifteen days after demand therefor upon the nearest station agent of said railroad company, pay to such employé the full amount due and owing him; and in case said railroad company fails or refuses to pay such employé, then it shall be liable and pay to such employé twenty per cent on the amount due him, as damages, in addition to the amount so due, in no case the damages to be less than five nor more than one hundred dollars. [Acts 1887, p. 72.]

Unconstitutional.—This article is invalid as class legislation, and is not authorised by Const. Art. 10, § 4, requiring the legislature to adopt laws to correct abuses and prevent unjust discrimination in rates on railroads in the state. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Braddy (Clv. App.) 135 S. W. 1059.
This article is invalid as working a deprivation of property without due process of law contrary to Const. art. 1, § 19. Id.

Lien of railroad laborers.—See Art. 5640.

Recovery of attorney's fees.—See Art. 2178.

Art. 6624. [4549] Road, etc., liable to be sold for debts.—In case of the sale of the property and franchises of a railroad company, whether by virtue of an execution, order of sale, deed of trust, or any other power, or by a receiver acting under judgments heretofore or to be hereafter rendered by any court of competent jurisdiction, the purchaser or purchasers at such sale and associates, if any, shall acquire full title to such property and franchises, with full power to maintain and operate the railroad and other property incident to it, under the restrictions imposed by law; provided, however, that said purchaser or purchasers and associates, if any, shall not be deemed and taken to be the owners of the charter of the railroad company and corporators under the same, nor vested with the powers, rights, privileges and benefits of such charter ownership as if they were the original corporators of said company, unless the purchaser or purchasers and associates, if any, shall agree to take and hold said property and franchises, charged with and subject to the payment of all subsisting liabilities and claims for death and for personal injuries sustained in the operation of the railroad by the company, and by any receiver thereof, and for loss of and damage to property sustained in the operation of the railroad by the company and by any receiver thereof, and for the current expenses of such operation, including labor, supplies and repairs; provided, that all such subsisting claims and liabilities shall have accrued within two years prior to the beginning of the receivership resulting in the sale of said property and franchises, or within two years prior to the sale, if said property and franchises be sold otherwise than under receivership proceedings, unless suit was pending on such claims and liabilities when the receiver was appointed or when the sale was made, in which event claims and liabilities on which suits were so pending shall be protected hereby as though accruing within the two years; such agreement to be evidenced by an instrument in writing signed and acknowledged by said purchaser or purchasers and associates, if any, and filed in the office of the secretary of state of the state of Texas; and, provided, further, that such charter, together with the powers, rights, privileges and benefits thereof, shall pass to said purchaser or purchasers and associates, if any, subject to the terms, provisions, restrictions and limitations imposed and to be imposed by law; and provided, further, that the amount of stock and bonds which may be held against said property and franchises, after the sale thereof, as well as the manner of issuance of such stock and bonds shall be fixed, determined and regulated by the railroad commission of Texas at its discretion save that the total encumbrance secured by the lien on said property and franchises shall not exceed the amount allowed by article 6718 of the Revised Statutes of Texas. [P. D. 4912. Amended 4 S. S. 1910, p. 120.]

Rights and liabilities of stockholders.—The stockholders under this article are considered the owners of the road's charter and the original corporators thereunder, invested with all the powers and privileges and entitled to all the benefits in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were the original corporators. But they are not chargeable with nor liable for the contractual obligations of the sold-out company whether expressed or implied. Williams v. Tex. Midland R. Co., 22 C. A. 278, 55 S. W. 132.

Rights and liabilities of purchasers.—The purchasers of a railroad do not thereby become responsible for the debts. H. & T. 125.

Under this article the purchasers of a railroad must in law be considered the owners of the charter of the road which they bought and the original corporators thereunder, and vested with all the rights, powers, privileges and benefits thereof in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were the original corporator or the said company. They are not made chargeable with or liable for the contractual obligations of the sold-out company whether express or implied. Williams v. Railroad Co., 22 C. A. 278, 55 S. W. 133.
A purchaser at a foreclosure sale of a railroad company held to have obtained the right to use an unused portion of a right of way in a city street. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co., 96 T. 233, 72 S. W. 161.

Capacity of purchasers.—See, also, notes under Arts. 6625 and 6627. Every purchaser must be one legally capable, not only of owning the property, but of exercising the rights and powers, and of assuming and performing the duties incident to his ownership. A married woman can become purchaser in another's name and can act for her in the management of the property as her trustee so far as to give her the returns, and this interest she and her husband can exchange for stock in a company organized to take over the road. Texas Southern Ry. Co. v. Harle, 101 T. 170, 106 S. W. 1197.

Construction of mortgage.—Land acquired by a railroad company for sale to employees will not pass under a prior mortgage of land to be acquired for railroad purposes. Aldridge v. Pardee, 24 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 789. Evidence held to sustain a finding that a tract of land was not acquired for railroad purposes, so as to be covered by railroad mortgage. Id.

Power to transfer franchise.—A railroad corporation has no power except under given conditions and in a prescribed manner to transfer its franchise and other rights to a new company without the consent of the legislature. Gulf & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Winder, 26 C. A. 263, 62 S. W. 1048.

Effect of sale.—The sale of the entire roadbed, track franchises and charter rights of a railroad is in effect a dissolution of the corporation. S. A. & G. S. Ry. Co. v. S. A. & G. R. Co. (Clv. App.) 76 S. W. 786.

Art. 6625. [4550] New corporation, in case of sale, may be formed, how.—In case of any sale heretofore or hereafter made of the property and franchises of a railroad company within this state, the purchaser or purchasers thereof and associates, if any, shall be entitled to form a corporation under chapter one of this title, for the purpose of acquiring, owning, maintaining and operating the road so purchased, as if such road were the road intended to be constructed by the corporation; and, when such charter has been filed, the new corporation shall have the powers and privileges then conferred by the laws of this state upon chartered railroads, including the power to construct and extend; provided, that, notwithstanding such incorporation, the property and franchises so purchased shall be charged with and subject to the payment of all subsisting liabilities and claims for death and personal injuries sustained in the operation of the railroad by the sold-out company and by any receiver thereof, and for the loss of and damage to property sustained in the operation of the railroad by the sold-out company and by any receiver thereof, and for the current expenses of such operation, including labor, supplies and repairs; provided, that all such subsisting claims and liabilities shall have accrued within two years prior to the beginning of the receivership resulting in the sale of such property and franchises, or within two years prior to the sale, if said property and franchises be sold otherwise than under receivership proceedings, unless suit was pending on such claims and liabilities when the receiver was appointed, or when the sale was made; in which event claims and liabilities on which suits were so pending shall be protected hereby as though accruing within two years; and provided, that by such purchase and organization no right shall be acquired in conflict with the present constitution and laws, in any respect, nor shall the main track of any railroad once constructed and operated be abandoned or moved; and provided, further, that the amount of stock and bonds which may be issued by said new corporation, as well as the manner of their issuance, shall be fixed, determined and regulated by the railroad commission of Texas at its discretion, save that the total encumbrance secured by lien on said property and franchises shall not exceed the amount allowed by article 6718 of the Revised Statutes of Texas. This and the preceding articles shall not be construed to in any wise repeal or impair the provisions of chapter 16 of this title, except in so far as the same may be changed thereby. [Acts 1889, p. 19. Amended 4 S. S. 1910, p. 120.]

Extent of liability of new company.—See, also, notes under Art. 6624. Only such liabilities, claims and demands as are secured by prior liens on the property can be enforced in the hands of the purchaser at execution sale. Railway Co. v. Newell, 73 T. 534, 11 S. W. 342, 15 Am. St. Rep. 736.
Only the portion of the road purchased is subject to the liabilities, claims and demands which existed against it in the hands of the sold-out company. This law does not make the new company liable for anything, but only makes the property subject to certain liabilities, claims and demands. Williams v. Tex. Midland R. Co., 22 C. A. 375, 66 S. W. 132.

Where a railroad company was organized under this article for the purchase at foreclosure sale of the property, rights, and franchises of another railroad corporation, and it purchased the same, it took title subject to the liabilities of the original company, and a contract binding the original company to maintain its roundhouses, machine shops, and general or any other facilities existing on the new company. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

In the absence of any statute affecting the liability of a railroad sold under a judicial sale, or under a deed of trust, the purchaser acquires the property and franchises free from all mere personal obligations of the former company. Id.

— Liability of purchaser for negligence of receiver.—See note under Art. 2151.

In action against purchaser of railroad at receiver's sale for injuries received while the road was in the hands of a receiver, a deed conveying property to defendant was admissible to show extent of liability. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 708.

Rights of owner of fee in right of way.—See notes under Art. 6532.

This article only purports to fix the rights and liabilities of the purchasers of a sold-out railroad, and when the clause, "nor shall the main track of any railroad once constructed and operated be abandoned or removed" is construed with the whole article it cannot by any reasonable interpretation be held to restrict the right of a citizen to recover property from a railroad company which has wrongly taken possession of same. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. Kinkead (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 476.

When title passes.—The title to a railroad acquired at a judicial sale does not pass to the new corporation until transferred by the purchaser. Thayer v. Watham, 17 C. A. 382, 44 S. W. 906.

Rights and liabilities after consolidation.—See notes under Art. 6604.

Art. 6626. [4551] Jurisdiction, etc.—No railway company availing itself of any of the privileges herein provided shall claim to be under the jurisdiction of the federal courts by reason thereof; and any railway company which may avail itself of the said privileges which shall claim to be subject to the jurisdiction of the federal courts in pursuance of this article shall ipso facto forfeit its reorganization and be remanded to the same condition as it was prior to said reorganization. [Id. p. 20, sec. 2.]

Art. 6627. [4552] Sale under deed of trust, when and where made. —Whenever a sale of the roadbed, track, franchise and chartered rights and privileges of any railroad company is made by virtue of any deed of trust or power the same shall be made at the time and place mentioned in the deed of trust or power and in accordance with the provisions of the same as to notice, and in other respects; and, if the same be not specified, such sale shall be made as hereinafter provided for sales under execution or order of sale. [P. D. 4913.]

Liability of purchasers.—See notes under Arts. 6624 and 6635.

Art. 6628. [4553] Judgment, execution, levy and sale.—Whenever judgment is rendered against any railroad company, execution shall issue thereon and be levied and collected as in other civil causes, except that when the roadbed, track, franchise and chartered powers and privileges of said railroad company is levied upon, the levy and sale must take place in the county where the principal office of such company is situated, and the entire roadbed, track, franchise and chartered powers and privileges of such company shall be levied upon and sold. The provisions of this article shall be observed so far as they are applicable in all cases where, by any decree of a competent court, a sale of the roadbed, track, franchise and chartered powers and privileges of any railroad company is directed to be made. [P. D. 4914.]

Art. 6629. [4554] Unpaid stock subscriptions of stockholders of sold-out company.—The sale of the roadbed, track, franchise and chartered rights, as hereinafter provided, shall not be held to pass or convey to the purchaser any right or claim to recover from the former stockholders of said company any sums which may remain due upon their subscriptions of stock, but the said stockholders shall continue liable to pay the same in discharge and liquidation of the debts due by the sold-out company, as hereinafter provided. [P. D. 4915.]

Art. 6630. [4555] After sale old directors to be trustees.—Whenever a sale of the roadbed, track, franchise and chartered powers and privileges is made as hereinbefore provided (unless other persons shall be appointed by the legislature or by some court of competent authority), the directors or managers of the sold-out company at the time of the sale, by whatever name they may be known in law, shall be the trustees of the creditors and stockholders of the sold-out company, and shall have full powers to settle the affairs of the sold-out company, collect and pay the outstanding debts, and divide among the stockholders the money and other property that shall remain after the payment of the debts and other necessary expenses; and the persons so constituted trustees shall have authority to sue by the name of the trustees of such sold-out company, and may be sued as such, and shall be jointly and severally responsible to the creditors and stockholders of such company, to the extent of its property and effects that shall come to their hands. [P. D. 4916.]

Death of one or more directors.—When one or more of the directors die the survivors take the whole title subject to the trust, and the surviving trustees of the original company are authorized to deal with said property after its dissolution as they deem proper for the best interest of the company. Aldridge v. Pardee, 24 C. A. 254, 60 S. W. 791.

Art. 6631. [4556] Suits not to abate.—No suit pending for or against any railroad company at the time that the sale may be made of its roadbed, track, franchise and chartered privileges shall abate, but the same shall be continued in the name of the trustees of the sold-out company. [Id.]

Art. 6632. [4557] This title not to apply to state loans, etc.—The provisions of this title shall not apply to any debt, execution, or deed of trust held by the state against any railroad company, because of any loan made by the state to any company under the provisions of the act to provide for the investment of the special school fund, or any other law which authorizes the loan of money to railroad companies; nor shall any creditor of any railroad company be allowed to make the state a party to any suit brought for the enforcement of any debt, mortgage or deed of trust or lien on any railroad, or permitted to require the state to foreclose any lien which it may have upon any road, but the lien of the state and its right to enforce the same shall continue as if this title had never been passed, and as if no sale had been made under the provisions of the same. [P. D. 4917.]

Lien in favor of state.—The legislature held to have power to provide that the lien given the state by statute against railroads borrowing school funds should not apply to subsequent extensions of such roads. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 167.

CHAPTER TWELVE

FORFEITURE OF CHARTER

Art. 6633. [4558] Forfeiture for failure to build, etc. — If any railroad corporation organized under this title shall not, within two years after its articles of association shall be filed and recorded as provided in this title, begin the construction of its road, and construct, equip and put in good running order at least ten miles of its proposed road, and, if any such railroad corporation, after the first two years, shall fail to construct, equip and put in good running order at least twenty additional miles of its road each and every succeeding year until the entire completion of its line, such corporation shall, in either of such cases, forfeit its corporate existence, and its powers shall cease as far as relates to that portion of said road then unfinished, and shall be incapable of resumption by any subsequent act of incorporation. The provisions of this article shall not apply to or in any manner affect railway companies incorporated for the construction and operation of urban, suburban and belt railroads for a distance of less than ten miles, as provided in clause two of article 6408, chapter one, of this title; provided, that all such companies shall, within twelve months from the date of their charter, complete a portion of their road and commence and continue the running of cars thereon. [Acts 1889, p. 17.]

Effect of article.—This article is self-executing, but the forfeiture relates only to the unfinished portion of the road. S. S. & Mt. P. Ry. Co. v. A., T. & S. F. Ry., 2 C. A. 660, 22 S. W. 107.

Effect of forfeiture.—See Art. 6533.

Failure to use part of railway.—This article has no application in a case where a railroad has been built to a city in accordance with its grant but has failed to use part of its right of way along a street in said city. Denison v. S. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas, 96 T. 233, 72 S. W. 164.

Forfeiture cannot be claimed in collateral proceedings.—As a general rule, a forfeiture of the franchises of a corporation cannot be claimed in a collateral proceeding merely because a ground of forfeiture may exist. Railway Co. v. State, 81 T. 672, 17 S. W. 87. See, also, Mayor v. Railway Co., 84 T. 581, 19 S. W. 786; Bywaters v. Railway Co., 73 T. 624, 11 S. W. 856.

Art. 6634. [4559] Same as to branch lines.—The preceding article shall apply as well to branch lines as to main lines of railroads. [Acts 1876, p. 143, sec. 7.]

Art. 6635. Relief of, for failure to comply with the law.—Any railway company holding a charter filed in the office of the secretary of state since the first day of January, 1900, of which by amendment to its articles of incorporation filed with the secretary of state of this state since the first day of January, 1900, has provided for the construction of one or more branch lines, and which has since the first day of January, 1906, constructed and put in operation fifty miles of railroad in this state, or thirty miles of railroad in the state of Louisiana, or which since the first day of January, 1906, shall have expended not less than twenty thousand dollars for right of way or terminal facilities within or immediately adjacent to any city in this state with a population of not less than forty thousand, as shown by the last federal census; also any railroad company which has been incorporated by articles of incorporation filed in the office of the secretary of state of this state since the first day of January, 1900, and which has since the first day of January, 1902, constructed and put in operation not less than nine miles of railroad within this state, and the length of whose line authorized by its charter does not exceed fifty miles, or which has since January 1, 1906, graded not less than fifty miles of road bed on its line in this state, or which has, in good faith, acquired since January 1, 1907, its right of way for the entire length of its line, and the length of whose line authorized by its charter does not exceed forty miles, or any railroad company which since the first day of January, 1901, and during the first year of its incorporation, did construct and put in operation not less than twenty miles of railroad in this state, shall have two years from the eleventh day of June, 1909, in which to comply, as to its main line or its branch or branches projected by such articles of incorporation or amendments, with the provisions of articles 6422, 6633 and 6634, and each such railroad company which shall have forfeited its right to construct, or its corporate existence, as to any part of its said main line, or is about to do so, or any of its said branches, or any part thereof, shall have, and such corporate existence and right to construct same is hereby restored and preserved to it, and it shall enjoy all of its corporate franchises, property rights and powers held or acquired by it previous to any cause of forfeiture on account of such failure; provided, that no such railway company shall claim or exercise any right or franchise not allowed, granted or permitted to other railway corporations under the laws now in force in this state, and every such railway company shall comply with the laws now in force in this state pertaining to railway corporations. [Acts 1909, p. 227, sec. 1.]

Art. 6635a. Extension of time to build and equip in certain cases; restoration of corporate existence, etc.—That the time in which any railway corporation chartered under the laws of the state of Texas since the first day of January, 1892, or the charter of which has been amended since that date, is required to begin the construction of its road, and construct, equip and put in good running order, as required in article 4558 (6633) of the Revised Statutes of the state of Texas of 1895, and the same hereby is, as to any unfinished portion of such road, extended two years from the taking effect of this Act; and any railway company having been chartered since January first, 1892, or the charter to which has been amended since said date, which shall have forfeited its corporate existence or any of its rights and powers, or is about to do so, by reason of the failure to comply with said article 4558 (6633) or any part of said article, shall have restored and preserved to it, its corporate existence, and it shall have and enjoy all of the corporate franchises, property rights and powers held or acquired by it previous to any causes or forfeiture as aforesaid; provided, that no railway company which shall be revived or the time extended by virtue of this Act, shall claim or exercise any franchise not allowed, granted or permitted to other railway corporations under the law now in force in this state. [Acts '1913, p. 116, sec. 1, superseding Acts 1911, p. 43, sec. 1.]

Art. 6635b. Extension of time to build branches; restoration of franchises, etc.—Any railway corporation chartered since the first day of January, A. D. 1892, and which by its original charter or by amendment thereto, filed since said first day of January, A. D. 1892, has further provided for the locating, constructing, maintaining, owning and operating of any extension or branch line or lines of railway, and which has failed or is about to fail to complete the same, or any part thereof, within the time required by law, shall, upon payment of all its franchise tax, be and is hereby restored to and granted all and singular the rights, privileges and franchises acquired by its original charter, or by such amendment to its articles of incorporation, as if the same was filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state on the day of taking effect of this Act, and such corporation shall, upon payment of its franchise tax, be and is hereby authorized to project, complete, construct, own and operate any such extension and branch line or lines of railway under and as provided for in its charter or in any amendment to its articles of incorporation; provided, that such extension and branch line of railway shall be by such corporation completed and put in good running order at the rate of at least ten miles in one year from the taking effect of this act, and twenty additional miles for each and every year thereafter, until all of the branch line or lines of extension as provided for are completed. [Acts 1913, p. 116, sec. 2, superseding Acts 1911, p. 43, sec. 2.]

Art. 6636. [4560] Neglect to make annual report.—Any railroad corporation which shall neglect to make the annual report to the comptroller, or governor, required by this title, and which has been notified by the comptroller, or governor, of such failure, and shall still neglect to make such report, within three months after such notice, shall forfeit its charter. [P. D. 4902.]
CHAPTER THIRTEEN

TICKET AGENTS—AUTHORITY AND DUTY

Article 6637. [4560a] Authorized agents for the sale of tickets.—It shall be the duty of all railroad companies doing business in this state, or the receiver of any such railroad company, through their duly authorized officers, to provide each agent who may be authorized to sell tickets, or other evidences, entitling the holder to travel upon any such railroad, with a certificate setting forth the authority of such agent to make such sale. Such certificate shall be duly attested by the corporate seal of such railroad company, or the signature of the receiver, if any there be, of such railroad company, or by the signature of the officer whose name is signed upon the tickets or coupons which such agent may be authorized to sell. [Acts 1893, p. 97.]

Constitutionality.—Rejecting that portion of the statute denounced by the Jannin decision (42 Cr. R. 631, 61 S. W. 1126, 96 Am. St. Rep. 521), holding that that part of the statute making the selling of a ticket a misdemeanor and fixing a penalty in the event of a conviction, the remaining portion is complete in itself and is capable of being executed in accordance with the apparent legislative intent and must be upheld. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Mahaffey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1049.

The objection that this statute does not treat all persons of same class alike, and therefore in this respect is unconstitutional, is not tenable. Id.

Authority of ticket agent.—A ticket agent at a station authorized plaintiff to pay to the ticket agent at B. station, on the same road, money to pay for an emigrant ticket from Alabama to a. station, and on the receipt of the money he would have a ticket delivered to plaintiff's brother in Alabama. The agent at B. station received the money, giving his receipt therefor, and afterwards absconded without delivering the money to the agent at A. station or the company, and no ticket was purchased for the party in Alabama. Plaintiff was entitled to recover the money so paid, it appearing that such tickets had been furnished under the same circumstances by the agents of the defendant before. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Johnson, 1 App. C. C. § 354.

A contract by a station agent is binding upon the company in whose employ he is, and the company is liable for actual damage. McCarty v. Railway Co., 79 T. 83, 15 S. W. 164.

When notice is given at the place where the overcharge is claimed to have been demanded or received, it must be given to the agent who demanded or received it. If not so given, notice may be given to a general agent of the company, but not to a station agent who did not demand or receive it. Railway Co. v. Cruse, 85 T. 460, 18 S. W. 755.

A station agent may contract to furnish cars at his own station, but not at another. Railway Co. v. Hodge, 10 C. A. 543, 30 S. W. 839.

Where a person is in a ticket office and sells tickets to another person, this is sufficient to show that he was defendant's agent to whom the ticket was presented in a suit to recover penalty for failure to redeem an unused ticket. T. & F. Ry. Co. v. Mahaffey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1048.

Matters relating to tickets.—See notes under Art. 707.

Art. 6638. [4560c] Duty of agent.—It shall be the duty of every agent who shall be authorized to sell tickets, or parts of tickets, or other evidence of the holder's right to travel over any railroad within this state, upon demand, to exhibit to any person desiring to purchase a ticket, or to any officer of the law who may request it, the certificate of his authority to sell, and to keep said certificate posted in a conspicuous place in his office for the information of travelers. [Amended Acts 1903, p. 162.]

Art. 6639. Same.—It shall be also the duty of every such railroad agent at stations having telegraph communication with the train dispatcher of the railroad, to ascertain one hour before the schedule time of the arrival of passenger trains, if such train is on time, and if on time, to bulletin that fact on a board provided by the company and placed in some conspicuous place at the passenger station. And if the train is late, he shall bulletin how late, and the last telegraph station passed by such train. If later than one hour, said agent shall thereafter ascertain the latest news from such train dispatcher, or some other reliable source, every hour, and bulletin such information and the time of probable arrival of such train. If any such agent shall fail or refuse to perform the duties required of him by this article, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, for each time he fails or refuses to perform the duties required of him by this article, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense. [Acts 1903, p. 162. Acts 1913, p. 350, sec. 1, amending Art. 6639, Rev. St. 1911.]

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

LIABLE FOR INJURIES TO EMPLOYÉS

| Art. 6640 | Liable for injuries to fellow-servant. |
| Art. 6641 | Who are vice-principals. |
| Art. 6642 | “Fellow servants” defined. |
| Art. 6643 | Contract limiting liability void. |
| Art. 6644 | Contributory negligence a defense, except, etc. |
| Art. 6645 | When assumed risk not available as a defense. |
| Art. 6646 | No assumed risk where safety appliance not provided. |

Article 6640. Liable for injury to fellow-servant.—Every person, receiver, or corporation operating a railroad or street railway, the line of which shall be situated in whole or in part in this state, shall be liable for all damages sustained by any servant or employé thereof while engaged in the work of operating the cars, locomotives or trains of such person, receiver, or corporation, by reason of the negligence of any other servant or employé of such person, receiver or corporation, and the fact that such servants or employés were fellow-servants with each other shall not impair or destroy such liability. [Acts 1897, S. S., p. 14, sec. 1.]

This law is not unconstitutional. It affects all classes of railway corporations alike. Railroad v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 779.

This law is not unconstitutional. It is not limited in its application to railroads alone. It applies to every person, receiver or corporation that owns or operates a railroad, and affects alike the employés of all corporations or persons owning or operating a railroad brought under its influence under the same condition. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 46 C. A. 133, 89 S. W. 746.

The state may make appropriate regulations for the protection of the lives of passengers or the safety of railroad employés, and may declare under what circumstances the fellow-servant or assumed risk doctrine shall apply in actions between the company and its employés. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 276, 115 S. W. 601.

Change of law.—A street railway was not within the provisions of former law. Riley v. Galveston City R. Co., 13 C. A. 247, 35 S. W. 836.

An action for damages for injuries inflicted while the act of 1891 was in force could be maintained after that act was repealed by the act of 1895. Culpepper v. L. & G. N. Ry. Co., 90 T. 627, 40 S. W. 386.

Effect of statute.—The word “while” places a time limit against this protection (against the negligence of fellow servants) and means during the time such employé may be engaged in the work of operating the locomotive. Work as used in this statute is with and not at a place of things which constitute operating the locomotive, etc., and the person so engaged is protected against the negligence of any other employé during the time he is engaged in operating the machinery. The effect of this article is to suspend the law of fellow servants as to persons employed to operate cars, locomotives or trains while they are actually engaged in the work: but it does not affect their relations to other employés beyond the time of their active employment in the work. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Howard, 97 T. 513, 80 S. W. 220.

Under the statute the fellow-servant rule is not applicable as a defense, where persons are injured while engaged in operating the cars, locomotives, or trains of a railroad. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McAdams, 57 C. A. 575, 84 S. W. 1076.

What constitutes railroad.—See note under Art. 6642.

A railroad was a short and temporary affair, and a private corporation for its own private use, and not for the use of the public, was operating an engine and logging cars on it hauling logs from the woods to its saw mills, and used the engine to take box cars loaded with its lumber from the mills to the main line of a railroad, it was not operating a railroad” within the meaning of this article. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Taylor, 39 C. A. 302, 87 S. W. 359.

What constitutes operating cars, etc.—A railroad company held not estopped to deny that the act of an employee in running a hand car without its consent was a part of the operation of the road. Branch v. International & G. N. R. Co., 92 T. 288, 47 S. W. 837, 34 Am. St. Rep. 1118.

This article embraces all the employees of the company engaged in operating its locomotives and cars in the yards, as well as on the road and embraces those handling locomotives and cars in making up trains to be sent out on the road. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 63 T. 925, 96 S. W. 946.

Where one is killed by the sudden stopping of a hand car by a fellow-servant, an instruction that if the brake (which stopped the car) was not applied by the direction of the foreman plaintiff cannot recover, is erroneous, because one can recover when injury is caused by a fellow-servant. Perez v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 355, 67 S. W. 139.

A push car eight or ten feet long and three or four feet high which is used for transporting a man rock from a quarry on a track is not within the usual kind to a rock crusher, is a car within the meaning of this article. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Webb, 31 C. A. 498, 72 S. W. 1045.

Loading such push car with rock and guiding and managing it to and fro between the rock quarry and the rock crusher along the tracks built for the purpose is “operating” the car within the meaning of this article. 1d.

Employees taking rails from a car and laying them on the ties and heeling them ready for the spikers were not operating a car and hence were within the follow servants’ rule. Lake Co. v. 33 C. A. 44, 76 S. W. 567.

This statute applies to employees operating locomotives in yards at stations, roundhouses or coal chutes. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Howard, 96 T. 852, 75 S. W. 805.

Employees who were transporting ballast on a push car for repair of the track, and had to remove the car between trips, when replacing it on the tracks they were operating a car within the meaning of this article making a railway company liable for injuries to a servant through negligence of another servant. Seery v. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 78, 77 S. W. 561.

Servants engaged in loading a train of flat cars and hauling the same to make a fill on a railroad, the cars being loaded with a steam shovell, were engaged in operating a train within the meaning of the statute. Texas Cent. R. R. Co. v. Pelrey, 35 C. A. 501, 80 S. W. 1036.

A section crew, placing a hand car on the track, is engaged in the operation of the car, within the statute. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Jennings, 36 C. A. 375, 81 S. W. 622.

The operation of a hand car and a push car is within the purview of this article. Plaintiff cannot be held to have assumed the risk of injury from the negligence of a foreman of a bridge gang, even if it should be held that they were fellow-servants, and a fortiori it cannot be so held when he was acting under the orders and directions of the foreman. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stevens, 37 C. A. 80, 83 S. W. 236.

The operation of a hand car is the operation of a railroad within the meaning of this article. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perry, 38 C. A. 81, 85 S. W. 64.

Carrying a hand car from the track to a place to be kept for the night, by employes of the railroad company is operating a car within the meaning of this article. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hervey (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1086.

A fireman, struck while returning from the pilot of his engine to the cab by lumber projecting from a passing car held engaged in operating the road within the statute. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Husson, 40 C. A. 475, 90 S. W. 75.

The former of defendant’s construction crew held not engaged at the time of the accident in the operation and management of the train, with absolute control of the moment, so that to render his negligence imputable to defendant. Forge v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 41 C. A. 81, 90 S. W. 1115.

An employe of a sawmill company operating a private railroad, who is injured while telephone poles are being transported along the track for construction of telephone lines by negligence of a fellow servant, is engaged in the work of operating the cars and can recover under this article. Mounce v. Lodwick Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 246.

Where a clerk and houseman at a railroad station who had nothing to do with operating the trains was injured while he was preparing the chute at the cattle pens for unloading cattle, he was not engaged in the operation of the cars, locomotives or trains within the meaning of this article. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Morhmann (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1096.

This article provides that the lifting and removing a hand car from the track, and the lifting and moving it back again on the track is not within the meaning of this article. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Mounce, 91 S. W. 246.

Employés under the direction of a foreman engaged in unloading cross-ties along the track, the employés doing the work while the foreman directs them and also the engineer by giving signals to the latter to move and to stop, are engaged in operating cars within the meaning of this law. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Thornton, 46 C. A. 649, 103 S. W. 438.

A railroad trackman, engaged with employés in "turning steel" at the time he was injured by his fellow-servants dropping the rail they were carrying without warning, held not liable and his employer not engaged in operating cars on the railroad from the fellow-servant rule. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 47 C. A. 74, 103 S. W. 447.

An engineer and fireman of a switch engine are, while the engineer is oiling parts of the engine, and the fireman is occupied in opening the blow-off cock to clean out the boiler, after the engine has been stopped for the purpose of taking water, engaged in operating the engine within the meaning of this article, and come within the exemption of the fellow-servant rule. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Walton, 47 C. A. 43, 104 S. W. 415.

Employés have been "operating a car" within the statutory exceptions to the fellow-servant rule. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 173.

One Maurice had contract with railway company to build all trestles, roadways build­ings, cattle guards, fences, etc., along defendant's line of railroad and defendant was furnishing material for the work to be delivered at site of station either on cars or by wagons, and at time of accident the deceased, an employé of Maurice with his coemployé was unloading from a wagon trestles for the work. He was not an employé of defendant and was not "engaged in the work of operating the cars, locomotives, or trains" of defendant and the defendant was not liable for his death. Walker v. Texas & N.O. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 113 S. W. 432.

A hand car is a "car" within the meaning of the fellow-servant statutes. M. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 296, 115 S. W. 605.

Plaintiff and other men were engaged in laying a temporary track in defendant's yards. They were moving a push car to bring rails to place where they were to be laid. Plaintiff and several others were carrying one end of a rail from the car to the place where it was to be laid, when the others let go and the rail fell on plaintiff's foot and injured him. He and his coemployés were not operating a car within the meaning of this statute, and he could not recover for the injury. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 102 T. 492, 118 S. W. 127.

Where one employé was engaged in removing a block of wood from in front of the car (whether the car) could be moved, and another in the same grade of employment was on top of the car signaling the engineer to go ahead, they were engaged in operating cars, within the meaning of this article. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1118.

Plaintiff and injured while engaged in operating a car within the meaning of the statute. Freeman v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 53.

Where a railroad section foreman was injured while assisting his col­leagues in loading rails onto a flat car composing part of a train, while the train was at rest, he having no duty to perform with reference to the movement of the train, he was not engaged in operating a car, locomotive, or train within this article. St. Louis South­western Ry. Co. of Texas v. McGee (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1064.

Missouri statute.—A servant of a railroad company injured in a collision held to have been a fellow-servant engaged in the railroad within a statute of Missouri rendering railroads liable for injuries to servants engaged in such work. St. Louis & S. F. R. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 926.

What constitutes negligence.—See also notes under Art. 6648.

As a general rule a court is not warranted in saying that an act constitutes negligence unless it is contrary to a statute. Railway Co. v. Greenlee, 70 T. 563, 8 S. W. 121; "Walker v. Co. v. Sweeney, 14 C. A. 218, 36 S. W. 800."

Negligence defined. Trinity Lumber Co. v. Denham, 85 T. 56, 19 S. W. 1012.

High degree of care required when. Railway Co. v. Groome (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1053.

The violation of a city ordinance regulating the speed of trains is negligence per se. Railway Co. v. Pendery, 14 C. A. 60, 36 S. W. 793.

In a charge under this article it is proper to submit to the jury as a test of the negligence of a fellow-servant alleged as the proximate cause of the injury, whether or not an ordinarily prudent man would have done under the same or similar circumstances what the fellow-servant is alleged to have done. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Keaveney (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 388.

If the defect, whereby plaintiff was injured, was caused by negligence of fellow-servants, the company was liable although it used ordinary care to discover and remedy the defect; but if the defect was caused before the car in which it was made came into possession of company and it used ordinary care to discover and remedy the same, then the company is not liable. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Corrigan (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 566.

In making a coupling, facts held to show a locomotive engineer negligent toward a fireman on the running board of the engine, though the coupling be made with no unusual or improper jar. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 48 C. A. 281, 107 S. W. 374.
incompetent fellow-servant.—See, also, notes under Art. 6643.

The question of whether the federal employers' liability act (Act April 22, 1908, c. 148, 35 Stat. 65), instead of the state law on the same subject, governs in a particular case, will not be considered where it is raised for the first time in the appellant's brief on appeal; the trial having been had in accordance with the state law. Chicago, R. I. & O. Ry. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 281.

Testimony that the caboose on which a car repairer was working when injured came from Liberal for repairs, without anything to show where Liberal was located, was insufficient to show that the car repairer was engaged in interstate commerce, and that hence the federal employers' liability act (Act April 22, 1908, c. 148, 35 Stat. 65), instead of the state law, applied. Id.

Where the petition in an action by a widow for herself and her children to recover for the husband's negligent death alleged a cause of action under the state statutes, proof that the carrier was engaged in interstate commerce at the time would not support the petition. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 165.

The federal employers' liability act of April 22, 1908, c. 149, 35 Stat. 65, supersedes state legislation and is paramount and exclusive as to the right of recovery for the death of a railroad employe, where the company at the time and place of the accident was engaged in interstate commerce. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 701.

Art. 6641. Who are vice-principals.—All persons engaged in the service of any person, receiver, or corporation controlling or operating a railroad or street railway, the line of which shall be situated in whole or in part in this state who are intrusted by such person, receiver, or corporation with the authority of superintendence, control or command of the other servants or employes of such person, receiver, or corporation, or with the authority to direct any other employe in the performance of any duty of such employe, are vice-principals of such person, receiver, or corporation, and are not fellow-servants with their co-employes. [Id. sec. 2.]

Cited, Hampton v. Woolsey (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 888.

Historical.—The acts of 1891 and 1893 read as follows:

"All persons engaged in the service of any railroad corporation, foreign or domestic, doing business in this state, who are entrusted by such corporation with the authority of superintendence, control or command of other persons in the employ or service of such corporation, or with the authority to direct any other employe in the performance of any duty of such employe, are vice-principals of such corporation, and are not fellow-servants with such employe." [Acts 1891, p. 25, § 1.]

"All persons engaged in the service of any railroad corporation, foreign or domestic, doing business in this state, or in the service of a receiver, manager, or of any person controlling or operating such corporation, who are entrusted by such corporation, receiver, or controlling person in control thereof, with the authority of superintendence, control, or command of other persons in the employment of such corporation, or receiver, manager, or person in control of such corporation, or with the authority to direct any other employe in the performance of the duty of such employe, are vice-principals of such corporation, receiver, manager, or person controlling the same, and are not fellow-servants of such employe." [Acts 1893, p. 120, § 1.]

Constitutionality.—See, also, notes under Art. 6640.

Repealed.—This article was not repealed by implication by Acts 1909 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 10, referred to as the "Texas employers' liability act" (Acts 6648-6662). St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 711.

Passive consent by employer to employe to direct another held not to fix liability on principal for negligent directions. Texas & P. Coal Co. v. Manning, 34 C. A. 322, 78 S. W. 546.

In an action against a railway company for injuries to an employe while unloading lumber from a car in a yard, evidence held to authorize a finding that a third person was the company's vice-principal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 618.

The common-law doctrine of fellow-servant under decisions of United States supreme court and the supreme court of this state makes an employe charged with the duty of keeping a safe place to work a vice-principal of the master. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 59 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 988.

The test as to whether the relation of fellow-servants exists between employes of any person or railway corporation is whether one is entrusted by such person or corporation with authority of superintendence, control, or command of the others, or has authority to direct the others in the performance of their duties. If so then the em­ployer who has such authority is a vice-principal and not a fellow-servant of his em­ployee. M. & K. T. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 295, 115 S. W. 605.

Under this article a boiler maker and his helper, the former having authority to di­rect and superintend the latter in the work they were doing, though he did not have power to hire and discharge, were not fellow-servants. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 711.

Foremen.—A section foreman having authority to employ and discharge his men is as to them a vice-principal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hannig (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 136.

A foreman who has no power to employ or discharge held to be a fellow-servant. Maughmer v. Bering, 19 C. A. 299, 46 S. W. 917.

A railroad bridge foreman, exercising control over other employes, and regarded by them as their foreman, is the vice-principal of the company. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Welgers, 22 C. A. 344, 54 S. W. 910.

A railroad foreman held not to have lost his status as vice-principal of plaintiff. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. of Texas v. Smith, 51 C. A. 333, 72 S. W. 418.

In a servant’s action for injuries sustained by his foreman’s negligence, evidence held to show that the master had given to the foreman authority to control plaintiff in the performance of his work, so that the foreman was a vice-principal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 295, 115 S. W. 601.

Under this article an assistant foreman of a railway bridge gang was not a vice­principal, where he merely led in the work under the foreman’s direction. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Day, 104 T. 257, 136 S. W. 435, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 111.

Engineers.—Evidence held to show that an engineer was the vice-principal of a trainman. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Bingle, 16 C. A. 653, 41 S. W. 90.

Howard was in the employ of defendant (railway company) as hostler. His duties were to take charge of, operate and handle all engines in and about the roundhouse, coal chute, and cinder pit. He had two assistants—Hoherd and Langford; but in the absence of specific authority neither of them was authorized to take charge of and move engines. There was dispute as to removing cinders, rolling the engaged engines. Two engines coupled together—called a double-header—were left in the yard. They were taken charge of by Hoherd and Langford, placed at the coal chute where one was loaded. They were then started back to the roundhouse—moving backward—and ran over Howard, who was going towards them from the roundhouse, and so injured him that he died in about 30 minutes without giving any explanation as to how the accident occurred.

Held, that Howard was vice-principal of Hoherd and Langford, because he had authority over them. He was not their fellow-servant in performing that work; that is, if either of them had been injured through his negligence the railroad company would have been liable. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Howard, 97 T. 513, 89 S. W. 220.

An engineer, operating an engine used by a railroad company in removing an ob­struction from a well, held a vice-principal as to the others employed on the work. Gal­veston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Roth, 37 C. A. 610, 84 S. W. 1112.

Liability for negligence of vice-principal.—See notes under Art. 6648.

Art. 6642. "Fellow-servants" defined.—All persons who are en­gaged in the common service of such person, receiver, or corporation controlling or operating a railroad or street railway, and who while so employed are in the same grade of employment and are doing the same character of work or service, and are working together at the same time and place, and at the same piece of work and to a common purpose, are fellow­servants with each other. Employés who do not come within the provisions of this article shall not be considered fellow-servants. [Id. sec. 3.]

Historical.—The acts of 1891 and 1893 read as follows:

"All persons who are engaged in the common service of such railway corporations and who while so engaged are working together at the same time and place to a com­mon purpose, of same grade, neither of such persons being entrusted by such corpora­tions, with any superintendence or control over their fellow-employés, are fellow-serv­ants with each other; provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed as to make employés in the service of such corporation, fellow-serv­ants, with other employés of such corporation, engaged in any other department or serv­ice of such corporation. Employés who do not come within the provisions of this sec­tion shall not be considered fellow-servants." [Acts 1891, p. 25, § 2.]

Employés who are engaged in the common service of such railway corporation, receiver, manager, or person in control thereof, and who, while so employed, are in the same grade of employment and are working together at the same time and place, and to a common purpose, neither of such persons being entrusted by such corporation, celver, manager, or person in control thereof, with any superintendence or control over their work so as to direct any other employé, the performance of any duty of such employé, are fellow-servants with each other: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed as to make employés of such corporation, receiver, manager, or person in control thereof, fellow-servants with other employés engaged in the same or similar employment or service or the master, manager, or person in control thereof. Employés who do not come within the provisions of this section shall not be considered fellow-servants."

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 6464.

What business is operating railroad.—See, also, notes under Art. 6469.

A contractor to furnish logs to a sawmill over a logging railroad, to which spurs were connected and on which a log skidder was operated solely to haul logs to a point where they could be loaded on cars and transported to the mill, was a person "operating a railroad" within the meaning of the statute. Hampton v. Woolsey (Civ. App.) 412, 414.

All persons who are in the employment of the same master engaged in the same common enterprise, and are employed to perform duties and services tending to accomplish the same general purpose, are fellow-servants. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hendricks, 49 C. A. 314, 108 S. W. 746.

Existence of relation of master and servant.—The fact that a person injured on a railroad track was at the place of injury in consequence of his previous service with the railroad company did not render him an employé of the company at the time and a fellow-servant of other employés of the railroad company so as to exempt the company from liability for their negligence which resulted in his injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Blevins, 49 C. A. 314, 108 S. W. 746.

Superintendent of a compress plant, who was injured by the negligence of employés of the compress works in letting a railroad car down on defendant's switch which ran to the works, held not a fellow-servant of such employés, though he directed them to let the car down. F. R. Ry. Co. v. Gaskill (Civ. App.) 87 C. A. 335, 108 S. W. 345.

Where certain servants of a compress company were engaged temporarily in moving cars on a switch for defendant railroad company, and in so doing injured another servant of the compress company, there were not fellow-servants of the injured person. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gaskill, 108 T. 441, 129 S. W. 345.

Operation of railroad.—The statute on the subject of fellow-servants, relating to railway employés, held not applicable to the case of an injury to a sawmill employé by a co-employé. Quinn v. Glenn Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 733.

Defendant, a contractor to furnish logs for a mill, engaged in logging railroad and certain extra spur tracks to which the logs were hauled by means of a steam skidder. Plaintiff and B., by whose negligence plaintiff was injured, were employed to take logs as they were hauled by two disconnected engines and skid cables to the edge of the spur track. Neither plaintiff nor B. had anything to do with the movement of the skidder. Plaintiff was injured by being struck by a log negligently moved by the orders of B. Held that, since the employment of both plaintiff and B. had nothing to do with the operation of the railroad, they were not "fellow-servants" of a railroad within this article. Hampton v. Woolsey (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 938.

Same grade of employment.—An employé engaged in taking rails from a car and laying them upon the track is a fellow-servant with another employé who at the former's direction gives signals which control the work, but who exercises no control over the work done in the work performed by the latter. F. Loxey, v. T. & P. Ry. Co., 56 T. 57, 58 S. W. 595.

Plaintiff's superior servent held not a fellow-servant, so as to preclude plaintiff from recovering for injuries resulting from the latter's negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Whisenhunt, 36 C. A. 135, 81 S. W. 532.

Negligence of plaintiff's superior in operating an engine in a railroad yard held the negligence of plaintiff's fellow-servant, under the common law of Arkansas in force in Indian Territory, as provided by 26 Stat. 94, c. 185, § 31. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Arnett, 37 C. A. 523, 84 S. W. 599.

Franks was foreman of a gang of laborers in a railroad yard. This gang was under his direction and control. He received orders to move a heavy box. He and five men, including plaintiff, were carrying the box with sticks, three on a side, when Franks let down his end suddenly and plaintiff was injured. While doing this work Franks was not a fellow-servant of plaintiff, but remained the representative of the company (the defendant). Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 738.

Plaintiff, a minor, was a helper in defendant's machine shops. He was to do anything he was called on to do. The foreman directed him to aid an operative to place a heavy piece of iron on a machine called a turning lathe, and while doing this work he was injured internally. In sending the boy to aid the operative the foreman placed the boy under the direction, control and command of McCarthy (the operative) and the boy and McCarthy were not fellow-servants under these articles, and the company was liable to the same extent as it would be if the foreman had been present and had given orders and directions which McCarthy gave the boy. Sherman v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 59 T. 671, 91 S. W. 562.

A clerk and warehouseman working under the orders of station agent, and a brakeman working under the orders of a conductor, are not fellow-servants because they are not in the same grade of employment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mohrman, 42 C. A. 374, 93 S. W. 1092.

An employé was injured by the negligence of the foreman. The employé was a helper of the foreman and under his control and direction in the work that he did. The foreman and employé (injured) were not in the same grade of employment and therefore not fellow-servants within the meaning of this article. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 236, 115 S. W. 606.

A boiler maker and his helper, the former having authority to superintend the latter in the management of the boiler, did not have power to hire or discharge them, and were not fellow-servants. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 711.

Same character of work.—The employee must be doing the same character of work, and they must be working at the same piece of work. Two section men, belonging to same gang, one engaged in carrying tools to toolhouse in his hand, and the other operating a handcar carrying tools to same toolhouse, are engaged in different "character of work" and are not fellow-servants within the meaning of this article. Long v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 94 T. 53, 57 S. W. 802.

A gang working at same time and place.—A day crew employed in handling ties were not fellow-servants of a night crew. T. & N. O. R. Co. v. Echols, 17 C. A. 677, 41 S. W. 488.

Where railway employes under inside roundhouse foreman is injured by negligence of employes under outside foreman, rule as to fellow-servants does not apply. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Scruggs, 23 C. A. 712, 58 S. W. 186.

When men are employed by a railroad company to load cars, and each man is paid according to the work done and each worked separately and independently of the others in different places, and had no control over the work, they are not fellow-servants, although they are employed in the same grade and character of the work. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Romans, 103 T. 4, 121 S. W. 1104.

Same piece of work.—To be fellow-servants the employes must be working at the same piece of work. Long v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 94 T. 53, 57 S. W. 802.

When employes are engaged in cleaning and preparing an engine, they need not be in actual bodily contact with each other, or engaged in cleaning the same wheel or piece, or each know exactly what the other is doing in order to constitute them fellow-servants. G. & A. Ry. v. Clyde (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 44.

A gang of five men, under a foreman, was engaged in moving cotton bales from one platform to another. The foreman divided the gang into two parties of two and three men and required each party to move one bale at a time. The three men moving one bale were not the two men moving at the same time and the same bale. Held that the parties moving one bale were not fellow-servants of the parties moving the other bale because the work was separable and the two parties were not engaged in the same piece of work. S. S. & N. Ry. v. Still, 49 C. A. 22, 88 Tex. 120, 49 S. W. 289.

When a bridge gang was repairing a depot platform of the railway it became necessary to remove some bales of cotton from a platform not repaired to that part which had been repaired. Five men belonging to the gang were engaged in moving the cotton. Appellant and one man were rolling one bale, and the three other men were rolling another bale just behind them. While so engaged the three behind rolled their bale on the appellant and injured him. Held, that the five men (all under one foreman) were engaged at the same time and place on the "same piece of work" and hence were fellow-servants within the meaning of this statute. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Still, 100 T. 499, 101 S. W. 444, 445.

Where the employé injured was engaged in examining a stationary switch engine to see if it had been properly wiped, and the employé whose negligence caused the injury was engaged in firing up or putting steam in a stationary switch engine standing on an adjacent track, they were not fellow-servants under this article. The work that one was doing had nothing to do with the work the other was doing. G. H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Cochran, 49 C. A. 691, 109 S. W. 263.

Defendant operated a steam log skidder, consisting of a flat car, on each end of which were disconnected engines operating separate skidding cables. Plaintiff, who was employed as a decker in the crew attached to one of the cables, was injured by being struck by a log negligently released by the order of the decker connected with the other cable. Held, that plaintiff and such other decker were not engaged in the same piece of work at the time of the injury, and were therefore not "fellow-servants" within this article. Hampton v. Woolsey (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 885.

Members of same train crew.—A conductor, having general superintendence of a train, except in case of the employés, excepting the engineer, is authorized to act on his own judgment, is not a fellow-servant with the engineer. Culpeper v. International & G. N. Ry. Co., 90 T. 627, 49 S. W. 356.

The question whether a fireman and engineer are fellow-servants held one for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 77.

Where a fireman is injured in a collision, an instruction that defendant was liable if the injury was caused by negligence of the engineer, unless he was a fellow-servant, is not objectionable. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 799.

An engineer held not a fellow-servant of a fireman. Id.

A railroad brakeman and a conductor are not fellow-servants, so as to preclude the former from recovery for injuries caused by the latter's negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Robinett (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 263.

Members of separate train or yard crews.—Where a brakeman was examining the couplelings of his train while still in the yard, and was struck and injured by a switch engine running in making up the train in service, the doctrine of fellow-servant did not apply under the act of 1893. The burden was on the company to show that the brakeman was a fellow-servant with the persons operating the switch engine. Patterson v. H. & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 412.

A brakeman in a freight train and the foreman of the switch engine in making up a train in Las Vegas, N. M., are fellow-servants under the common law which is in force.
In New Mexico and the railroad is not responsible for an injury happening to the brakeman from the negligence of the foreman. Sanner v. A. & T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 17 C. A. 537, 42 S. W. 635.

The engineer of an engine by which the brakeman of another train of the same company is injured and the brakeman are not fellow-servants. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Paterson, 30 C. A. 265, 48 S. W. 747.

A switchman on one engine is not a fellow-servant of a switchman on another engine, though in the same yards, where each belongs to a separate crew, under direction of its own foreman. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1091.

Members of train crew and other employees.—A section foreman and men operating a train and fellow-servants v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 527.

A station agent is not a fellow-servant with a train crew. Railway Co. v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 88; Railway Co. v. Calvert, 11 C. A. 297, 32 S. W. 249.

A workman, employed to unload ties from the front car of a construction train, is a fellow-servant of the engineer. Overton v. McCoy & Stein, 35 C. A. 133, 79 S. W. 561.

An employe of an elevator company, killed by the negligence of other employees of such company in operating cars on a switch track within the elevator, held a fellow-servant. Sauls v. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co., 36 C. A. 155, 81 S. W. 98.

A roadmaster of a railroad, in discharging his duties of seeing that a portion of the tracks were cleared of snow was not a fellow-servant with a brakeman. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Keefe, 37 C. A. 588, 84 S. W. 679.

The relation of fellow-servant does not exist as to employees operating the cars, locomotives, trains of a railroad, and those so not engaged. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McAdams, 37 C. A. 575, 54 S. W. 1076.

A roadmaster of a railway, when caring for the track, was not a fellow-servant with a locomotive foreman. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bird, 44 C. A. 615, 99 S. W. 753.

One employed by a lumber company to cut and scale timber was not a fellow-servant of employee operating a logging train. Keystone Mills Co. v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 172.

Railroad employe riding on gravel train to unload gravel held not a fellow-servant of the train crew. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Geary (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1045.

A guard, employed to ride on an express car and protect it from robbers, is a fellow-servant of the express messenger. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 29 C. A. 489, 65 S. W. 529.

Howard was in employ of defendant (railway company) as hoist man. His duties were to take charge, operate and handle all engines in and about the roundhouse, coal chute and cinder pit. He had two assistants—Hoherd and Langford; but in the absence of specific authority neither of them was authorized to take charge of and move engines. Their duties were to assist in coaling, removing cinders, switching, etc. One night two engines, supposed to be head- or tail-end—were taken charge of by Hoherd and Langford, and placed at the coal chute, where one was loaded. They were then started back to the roundhouse—moving backward—and ran over and injured Howard. Held that he died within about 20 minutes without having given any explanation as to how the accident occurred. Held that Hoherd and Langford were fellow-servants with Howard. The three were doing the same character of work or service, working together at the same time and place, at the same piece of work and to the common purpose of taking locomotives into the roundhouse. Howard if living could not recover under this article. Therefore plaintiffs cannot recover (on account of his death) unless it be by virtue of Art. 6640. G. & C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Howard, 97 T. 318, 80 S. W. 236.

In an action for personal injuries, evidence held to warrant a verdict for defendant, on the theory that plaintiff was defendant's servant and a fellow-servant of the one guilty of the negligence resulting in the injury. Walker v. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 554.

An employe charged with the duty of keeping machinery in repair stands in the master's plant and is not a fellow-servant to other employes. The injury having occurred from defective appliances, negligence of a fellow-servant concurring is not a defense. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Ferch, 18 C. A. 46, 44 S. W. 317.
Testimony held to show that an employé was not a fellow servant with other employees. Gulf, C.

A truckman (or, in the language of the witnesses, a "trucker"), whose duty it is to haul freight to and from cars on a truck, is not a fellow-servant of a "cleator" or "sealer," whose duty it is to inspect the doors of freight cars and the fastenings thereon and to repair them in the shops. But see, if they were out of fix, to fasten the inside doors to tops of the cars, and see that the fastenings were

A con­tributory duty it is to load freight in the car on which the "trucker" has brought it into the car, is not a fellow-servant of the "trucker," while he is fastening the door which fell and caused the injury to the latter; but, if he had been, recovery was not precluded in this case, because the proximate cause of the injury was not the negligence of the one who fastened the door, but the defective fastening itself. Id.

See this case for verdict of $25,000 awarded for injuries received on account of neg­ligence of fellow employés, who were not fellow-servants within the meaning of the fellow­servant act. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Barwick (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 855.

Persons employed in loading cars held not fellow-servants. Missouri, K. & T. Ry.
Co. of Texas v. Romans (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 157; Id., 103 T. 4, 121 S. W. 1104.

Negligence of fellow-servants.—See notes under Art. 6648.

Art. 6643. Contract limiting liability void.—No contract made be­tween the employer and employé based upon the contingency of death or injury of the employé and limiting the liability of the employer under the preceding articles of this chapter, or fixing damages to be recovered, shall be valid or binding. [Id. sec. 4.]

Constitutionality.—See notes Art. 6646.

What contracts are invalid.—Under this article and Art. 6640, a stipulation in a contract of employment by a railroad that, if the employé should suffer personal injury, his failure to give notice of his claim against the company within 90 days should be a bar to the institution of any suit on account of the injury is invalid, being a limitation of a railroad's liability, and not merely affecting the question of remedy. Missouri, K. &

An employé of a railroad Company to waive all damages inc­urred by an employé of the Pullman Company, is invalid under this article. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co.
v. Tracy (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 639.

Exemptions from liability under the act of 1909.—See Art. 6651 and notes.

Art. 6644. Contributory negligence a defense, except, etc.—Nothing in the preceding articles of this chapter shall be held to impair or dimin­ish the defense of contributory negligence when the injury of the serv­ant or employé is caused proximately by his own contributory negligence, except as otherwise provided in this chapter. [Id. sec. 5.]

49. Duty to discover or remedy defect or danger.
50. Precautions against known dangers.
51. Dangerous operations and methods of work.
52. Disobedience of rules or orders and disregard of warnings.
53. Compliance with commands.
54. Questions for jury and instructions.

A charge which in effect states that, "if both plaintiff and defendant were guilty of negligence and the defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of the damage, plaintiff was entitled to recover," is erroneous. Wherever damages are sought to be recovered on the ground of negligence, contributory negligence is a complete defense. If the charge had required the jury to find that the negligence of the plaintiff was not proximate, and therefore did not contribute to the injury, the principle of law announced would have been sound. Railroad Co. v. Ricketts, 22 C. A. 615, 64 S. W. 1090.

Though defendant was negligent, plaintiff could not recover if his own negligence contributed to the injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Maupin, 26 C. A. 365, 63 S. W. 346.

Railroad engineer, injured in collision caused by his exhausted condition from 31 hours' continuous service, held guilty of contributory negligence in making the run. Smith v. Atchison. T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 29 C. A. 468, 87 S. W. 1062.

A person so afflicted as to make it extrahazardous for him to engage in lifting weights, who engages in such work without notifying the foreman of his employer, is guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bonn, 44 C. A. 61, 99 S. W. 415.

In an action to recover for injuries received while crossing the tracks on which switching was being done, held, that plaintiff was not guilty of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ballet, 48 C. A. 641, 107 S. W. 908.

A brakeman is not free from contributory negligence, because he acts as brakemen ordinarily and customarily do. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 604.

When a train was required by law to be run at night and go forward to the engineer, when the train stopped for water, and, it having stopped over a trestle, the porter alighted and was injured, the question of the manner of his alighting was one of contributory negligence, and not of assumed risk. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bunkley (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 937.

Proof of ordinary, and not gross, negligence held to be sufficient for a cause of action or defense. Louisiana Extension Ry. Co. v. Carstens, 19 C. A. 190, 47 S. W. 36.

It is the duty of a switchman to exercise ordinary care to avoid injury to himself. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1113.

6. Inexperienced or youthful employee.—The fact that an injured servant was a minor held not to exempt him from the results of his own negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson, 60 C. A. 147, 109 S. W. 486.

A servant held not negligent in continuing to work in a railroad gravel pit under a dangerous condition, in which he was directed to work by his foreman. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 612.

In an action by an inexperienced servant, injured while performing a dangerous operation, of which he was ignorant, the issue of contributory negligence held not to arise. Tyndall v. Brandon (Civ. App.) 26 C. A. 705.

Where the danger incurred by an inexperienced servant is not an obvious one in complying with the foreman's instruction he is not guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

7. Reliance on care of master.—An employee has the right to assume that machinery is in order, unless the defect is such that a person of ordinary care would have no...
Art. 6644  RAILROADS  (Title 115)

The duty of exercising ordinary prudence to ascertain the danger incident to the work he is assigned to, and whether it is directed to be done so as to avoid such danger, is not imposed upon a servant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hannig, 91 T. 347, 48 S. W. 598.

A railway employé need not exercise care to ascertain whether the company has established proper rules to afford its servants protection, since he has a right to presume that. Texas & Pacific Ry. Co. v. Primer, 34 S. W. 558.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman by falling between certain cars negligently left uncoupled on a grade siding in violation of a rule, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence in failing to inspect the cars, or in assuming that they were coupled. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Pope, 43 C. A. 616, 97 S. W. 534.

Plaintiff's assignor was an engineer not to have started the engine he is between them attempting to uncouple them has the right to act on the assumption that his signal will be obeyed. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

Plaintiff, a brakeman, held entitled to assume that the company had exercised ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe and necessary appliances for its cars, so as to enable him to perform his duties with a reasonable degree of safety, and not required while engaged as a brakeman to inspect the cars and appliances to ascertain their condition. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Blachley, 50 C. A. 141, 109 S. W. 992.

An employee may assume that the employer has performed its duty of furnishing reasonably safe appliances. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patrick, 50 C. A. 491, 109 S. W. 1087.

In a servant's action for injuries sustained while removing the nipple from the bottom of an oil rushing into his eyes, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sanchez, 57 C. A. 87, 122 S. W. 44.

An employee held entitled to assume that his employer has properly provided the railroad with a switchman. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Dewall, 134 S. W. 179.

One on a hand car injured by running into an open switch held not guilty of contributory negligence, as matter of law, in not observing the target, which would have shown it was open, relying on observance of the rule of the company that, when a train passes through a switch from the main track, the switch shall be closed or a man stationed there. Anderson v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 104 T. 340, 138 S. W. 107.

Where an employer furnished to his employé a number of chisels, an employé using a defective one was not guilty of contributory negligence, as a matter of law, because he could have procured a safe chisel at another place, but failed to do so. Pope v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1175.

Scope of employment.—An instruction treating plaintiff as a trespasser, when injured while working on a car on the main track with the consent of the agent and conductor, held erroneous, though plaintiff was employed to work under the agent, who had supervision of the side track only. Dewalt v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 403, 66 S. W. 534.

Tools, machinery, appliances or places for work.—A brakeman held not chargeable with contributory negligence because at the time of injury he was riding in the cab of the engine. Texas & P. Ry. v. Magrill, 15 C. A. 353, 40 S. W. 138.

Employer held not liable when plaintiff was injured by his own negligence or that of a fellow servant, Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Butech (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 335.

Railroad brakeman, going to sleep in caloose, which is moved during the night, so as to be struck by a passing train, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McGowan (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 335.

In actions for injuries to plaintiff by being thrown from defendant's log train, plaintiff held guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law in voluntarily taking an insecure position on the pilot of the engine. Burns v. Chronister Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 163.

Railroad held bound to use ordinary care to furnish aforeman safe appliances and he may rely on the assumption that such duty has been performed. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. George, 40 C. A. 267, 89 S. W. 1091.

Where an employé, who was engaged at night in filling a tank with fuel oil in passing from the tender in the usual way stepped on the top of a slanting fuel box which was covered with grease, and slipped and fell, he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 602.

Facts held to show that a switchman suing for injuries in a collision was not negligent. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 116.

In an action against a railway company for injuries received by a servant while underneath a car repairing it, the servant held not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Ketchey (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1387.

Where a servant injured in a railroad repair yard to raise cars by means of jacks, and timbers were needed for rests, held, that a servant was not negligent in using any appliance there was one furnished for that use. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1099.

10. Knowledge of defects or dangers—Necessity and effect in general.—Evidence held sufficient to establish such knowledge on part of defendant's servant of defects in the fence enclosing defendant's track as to preclude recovery. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Quill (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 1136.

In an action for injuries to a switchman, a finding that plaintiff did not assume the risk incident to the use of defendant's premises in its unsafe condition held justified. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Toliver, 37 C. A. 437, 84 S. W. 375.

Before a servant can be held to have assumed the risk of injury from defective appliances, it must be shown that he knew of the defects and the danger incident thereto. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dumas (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 493.

In action for injuries to a railroad engineer, charge held not erroneous in making plaintiff's negligence depend on his knowledge that the other train was just ahead. Internat. & N. O. R. Co. v. N. C. & O. Co. (App.) 96 S. W. 660.

The rule that a servant is negligent who selects a dangerous way when a safe one is open to him applies only when the way chosen is obviously unsafe, or the danger is known to the servant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hawley (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 720.

A brakeman, injured by the pulling out of a defective handhold, held not charged with notice thereof, unless he had actual knowledge thereof, or must have obtained such knowledge in the ordinary course of his duty. Id.

A railroad engineer held not negligent in exposing his body to injury from a cattle guard negligently built too near the track. Athcison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tack (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 596.

Where a railroad employé while unloading ties in the ordinary manner permitted one to slip from his hands by reason of it being wet with creosote, which condition he did not know until the tie slipped, and as a result creosote was spattered in his eye, he was not chargeable with contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ.) 148 S. W. 826.

11. — Extent of knowledge.—Mere knowledge of switchman that frogs were unblocked does not preclude recovery for his death, he not having known the danger thereof. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hughes, 32 C. A. 194, 64 S. W. 264.

12. — Constructive notice.—A brakeman on a train is not chargeable by reason of his employment with notice of the defective condition of the track over which he runs. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Magrill, 35 C. A. 553, 60 S. W. 188.

In an action for damages for death, the fact that deceased, while in defendant's employ as a locomotive engineer, was an experienced engineer, did not charge him with knowledge of his employer's failure to use proper care to furnish a safe engine. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 34 C. A. 127, 57 S. W. 999.

Facta held not to show knowledge by brakeman of the defective condition of the side track, by reason of which he was subsequently killed. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 27 C. A. 44, 65 S. W. 210.

A stipulation in a railroad employé's application for service as to track obstructions held too indefinite to justify an instruction based thereon. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 413, 67 S. W. 446.

Freight brakeman is presumed to know of increased danger of working on train not equipped with air brakes. Texas, S. W. & N. Ry. Co. v. Peden, 32 C. A. 315, 74 S. W. 922.

Fact that an employé of a railroad, engaged in wheeling goods from a freight car that was being unloaded, saw that a grain door was fastened to the top of the car by wire, held not sufficient to put him on notice that the door was not securely fastened. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hutchens, 35 C. A. 343, 85 S. W. 415.

Where a brakeman was injured while walking over cars left uncoupled in violation of a rule, that another string had been left uncoupled on the same siding was not notice that cars in the string on which he was walking were uncoupled. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Pope (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 369.

In an action by a railroad employé for personal injuries through falling into a pit in a stall in a roundhouse, plaintiff held put on notice that all stalls had pits. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 38 C. A. 76, 85 S. W. 28.

An employé is not charged with knowledge of defects in machinery because the use of ordinary care would disclose them. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Geiger, 55 C. A. 1, 118 S. W. 179.

A street car conductor must use that care for his safety while engaged in his work which a person of ordinary prudence would use under similar circumstances, and is chargeable with knowledge of what he could have learned by such care. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 56 C. A. 849, 118 S. W. 838.

Where an employé in charge of a hand car fails to see an open switch in time to avert derailment, when he could have seen the same by the exercise of ordinary care, he is guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1092.

13. — Continuing work with knowledge.—A fireman injured in consequence of defects in the apron bridging the space between the engine and tender held not guilty of contributory negligence in failing to abandon the engine after the discovery of the defects. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dumas (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 493.

The rule not notwithstanding, complaining employé promised to repair defects stated. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Kern (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 971.

14. Duty to discover or remedy defects or dangers.—Duty to observe defects or dangers.—A servant is under no obligation to ascertain defects in the place furnished by the master for him to work in. He is only bound to exercise ordinary care in prosecuting his work while on the train and Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 23 Tex. 133, 5 S. W. 537.

An engineer held not guilty of contributory negligence in falling to notice the defective fastening of a step, by the turning of which he was injured. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lindsey, 27 C. A. 318, 65 S. W. 668.

The railroad company held entitled to assume that a machinist, injured while using a worn-out goose-neck wrench, would discover the defect and refuse to use the same. O'Brien v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 36 C. A. 528, 82 S. W. 319.

A servant is not required to use ordinary care to ascertain whether appliances and instrumentalities furnished by a master are reasonably safe, and that the business is conducted in a reasonably safe manner. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Udalle (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 330.

It is not incumbent on a servant to use any diligence to discover a defect in a pinch bar furnished him by the master for immediate use. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Schuler, 46 C. A. 356, 102 S. W. 783.

A street car conductor was not negligent as a matter of law by stepping down onto the running board without looking to see whether he was in danger from a railroad car standing on a switch within twelve inches of the perpendicular handles of the street car. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 55 C. A. 543, 118 S. W. 838.

A servant required to oil machinery is not charged with the duty of discovering defects in a window sill customarily used in performing the work. Williams v. Hennefeld, 57 C. A. 54, 120 S. W. 567.

An instruction that, in the event of defendant's negligence in leaving a switch set to a side track, plaintiff was not bound to use ordinary care to discover the condition of the switch held error. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1092.

15. — Reliance on care of master or fellow employés.—It is the duty of the master to exercise ordinary care to furnish the servant a safe place in which to work, and the servant may assume that the master has performed such duty. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brooking (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 557.

An employé of a railroad company has a right to presume that the company will furnish a safe track for him to work on. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kenna (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 565.

Servant held entitled to assume the place where he was put to work was reasonably safe. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Warner, 22 C. A. 107, 54 S. W. 1064.

A conductor injured by striking a mail crane, while looking out of the cab window in the performance of his duty, held not guilty of contributory negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Stephenson, 22 C. A. 220, 54 S. W. 1056.

An instruction that plaintiff's duty to use ordinary care to discover the increased danger resulting from an act of defendant's foreman is erroneous, for he can assume that the foreman will do his duty. Jackson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 23 C. A. 319, 55 S. W. 376.

A servant had a right to presume that an appliance was safe for use, where the defect was not patent, and he had used due diligence to discover defects. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Crowder (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 380.

The fact that a railroad company had no car inspector in a large town does not deprive an employé of his right to presume that safe machinery would be furnished. Id.

A brakeman is entitled to assume that the company will take that degree of care of a switch commensurate with the increased danger of its location on a grade and curve in its track. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 160, 55 S. W. 772.

An engineer held to have right to assume that his master had exercised proper care to make the locomotive free from defects which were then and reasonably safe. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 24 C. A. 127, 57 S. W. 999.

An engineer held not bound, for the purpose of personal safety, to watch the track to see whether the company had done its duty in keeping it in repair. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore, 28 C. A. 603, 63 S. W. 559.

Where plaintiff's injuries resulted from alleged negligence of the railroad in loading a car, the fact that he assisted in the loading held not to release the railroad from liability. El Paso & N. W. Ry. Co. v. McComas (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 625.

An engineer held to have a right to assume that a locomotive furnished him was in a reasonably safe condition and would remain so until inspected. Texas & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Hartnett, 33 C. A. 155, 75 S. W. 809.

The fact that certain stalls in a roundhouse were unlighted at night held not to have warranted servant in assuming that they contained no pits. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 223.

An employé of a railroad, injured by a grain door of a car falling on him, held not to have been bound to use even ordinary care to see that the door was properly fastened. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hutchens, 35 C. A. 343, 80 S. W. 415.

An employé should have no duty to exercise care to discover defects in the track. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sage (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1035.

A brakeman, passing along the roofs of cars, held not guilty of contributory negligence in assuming that the cars were coupled as they appeared to be. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. v. Co. v. Tippop, 98 T. 335, 36 S. W. 635.

An employé held to have no duty to exercise care to detect defects in the track. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sage (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1035.

A brakeman, passing along the roofs of cars, held not guilty of contributory negligence in assuming that the cars were coupled as they appeared to be. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. v. Co. v. Tippop, 98 T. 335, 36 S. W. 635.

An employé held to have no duty to exercise care to detect defects in the track. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sage (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1035.
A fireman has the right to assume that the company has used ordinary care to provide him with a reasonably safe engine. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lynch, 40 C.A. 645, 90 S.W. 611.

Servants are entitled only to assume that the master has exercised ordinary care to make appliances safe. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Von Hoesen (Civ. App.) 31 S.W. 604.

A servant has a right to presume that the machinery, tools, and appliances with which he is furnished are reasonably safe. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 32 S.W. 184.

A section foreman riding on a hand car held entitled to assume that trainmen would obey rules respecting the placing of torpedoes on track. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Murphy, 52 C.A. 450, 114 S.W. 443.

An engineer held not bound to anticipate the construction of a cattle guard too near the track, nor to look out for the same. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tuck (Civ. App.) 130 S.W. 556.

An engineer in charge of a train closely following another held entitled to assume that the first train, if detailed, will be protected by proper signals. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rothenberg (Civ. App.) 131 S.W. 1157.

Unless a locomotive engineer knew, or must have necessarily acquired knowledge, that the company had not inspected the yard for obstructions, he could presume that it was safe, and need not look for obstructions along the track, which might trip him. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley (Sup.) 165 S.W. 182.

16. — Duty to examine or inspect appliances or places. — There being an inspector to investigate the safety of appliances, other servants were not required to investigate for themselves. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Elkins (Civ. App.) 54 S.W. 931.

An engineer on a freight train is not required to inspect the cars or to feel the fastenings of the cars. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cox (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 354.

Where a railway brakeman did not know of the defective condition of a switch, the fact that he might have gained such knowledge by inspecting it is no defense in an action for his own injury. Alabama, Vicksburg & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Walier, 27 C.A. 44, 66 S.W. 210.

An engineer is not charged with the duty of inspecting his engine for dangerous defects, though furnished with tools to make repairs during trips. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lopez, 27 C.A. 47, 65 S.W. 668.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman by being struck by a warehouse, an instruction contributory negligence, proceeding on the theory that it was the plaintiff's duty to inquire into the condition of defendant's premises, held properly refused. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mortson, 31 C.A. 142, 71 S.W. 779.

A servant is not required to use ordinary care to ascertain the safety of the appliances furnished. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Hartnett, 33 C.A. 103, 75 S.W. 809.

A brakeman, injured by striking a post in a dangerous proximity to the track while riding a freight car, held not bound to inspect the premises and discover the dangerous position of the post. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 33 C.A. 585, 77 S.W. 832.

An instruction that a brakeman, injured by a defective handhold, was not required to inspect the same, held proper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hoskins, 34 C.A. 627, 79 S.W. 369.

A brakeman, injured by the parting of two cars, negligently left on the siding uncoupled in violation of a rule, held not guilty of negligence in failing to inspect them before attempting to walk over them. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 82 S.W. 360.

A servant held entitled to assume that appliances are reasonably safe. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 82 S.W. 787.

A brakeman held not permitted to inspect a car on which he is working in order to ascertain whether parts thereof, such as hand rails, are unsafe for his use. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Vizard, 33 C.A. 584, 88 S.W. 457.

An employé is under no obligation to his employer to inspect appliances furnished. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. v. Waymire (Civ. App.) 89 S.W. 452.

Servant held not required to inspect trucks or platform to see if express company had furnished him reasonably safe tools and place to work. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 98 S.W. 441.

A servant, without knowledge of notices requiring inspection of tools, held, not required to make such inspection. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 121 S.W. 876.

Generally, an employé need not inspect the premises on which he works, but he may not ignore obvious dangers or those ordinarily incident to his employment. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 133 S.W. 1086.

It is not the duty of an employé of a railroad company to inspect the floor of a car furnished him as a place for work. Freeman v. Grashel (Civ. App.) 145 S.W. 685.

A licenee company's servant could assume that the yard was in a safe condition, and need not inspect the premises for obstructions along the track. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley (Sup.) 155 S.W. 183.

17. — Duty to obtain or use appliances. — The refusal to instruct that a servant, injured while attempting to carry a log, was negligent if he failed to use appliances provided by the master, held not erroneous under the evidence and pleadings. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 77 S.W. 776.

Evidence held to show such contributory negligence as to justify a direction of the verdict for defendant. Santis v. St. Louis, Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 503.

21. Reliance on care of master or coemployees.—An engineer is not negligent in not stopping at station to inquire as to whereabouts of a train ahead, the signals being there displayed of no orders and a clear track. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Higgins, 23 C. A. 430, 55 S. W. 744.

A brakeman engaged in coupling cars in switching had a right to act on the presumption that the engine would not be moved without a signal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Courtney, 30 C. A. 544, 71 S. W. 397.

Bridge watchman held not guilty of contributory negligence in relying on the running of trains at ordinary speed, giving of signals, etc. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Brock, 25 C. A. 155, 80 S. W. 422.

An employé held guilty of contributory negligence in not getting out from under a car, after being aware of the foreman's negligence exposing him to danger; but not in not looking and listening to discover if the foreman was negligent. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Hoyt, 37 C. A. 591, 88 S. W. 715.

22. Avoidance of injury from defective or dangerous appliances or places.—Where an engine step was so flawed that an employee would have known it by the exercise of ordinary care, he could not recover for injuries received by slipping therefrom. Bookrum v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 919.

That a conductor could have discovered by investigation the dangerous proximity of a coal car to the street car track held not to prevent his recovery for injuries sustained from coming in contact with it, unless the danger was obvious. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 55 C. A. 545; 118 S. W. 838.

Avoidance of injury from dangerous operations or methods of work.—An employé, injured by cars being thrown by a flying switch, held not guilty of contributory negligence, though he saw them approaching on the main track. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hynes, 21 C. A. 34, 50 S. W. 624.

A section hand, who was standing near the track while a train passed and was injured by being struck by a piece of coal, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 164.

In an action for injuries to a trackman by being struck by a hand car, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Long, 32 C. A. 40, 74 S. W. 59.

A trackman engaged in laying new rails, held not bound to keep a constant lookout for trains by which he might be injured. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Villarelle, 36 C. A. 533, 82 S. W. 1063.

A member of a hand car crew injured by a train coming from behind held guilty of contributory negligence in not keeping a lookout. Chicago, I. L. & G. Ry. Co. v. Mitchum (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 811.

Evidence held not to show as a matter of law that decedent, a conductor in charge of a train, was guilty of contributory negligence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Vinson, 23 C. A. 247, 66 S. W. 800.

Whether plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery for injuries received while working in a car through other cars colliding with it must be determined by what a man of ordinary prudence would have done in like circumstances. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 463.

Facts held to show that a brakeman injured by stepping on a rotten tie while flagging a train was guilty of contributory negligence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reiden, 48 C. A. 401, 107 S. W. 661.

Plaintiff, who was crushed between a post and a moving freight train, held not to have assumed the risk of the failure of the operatives of the switch engine to conform to a rule or previously observed not to move the cars without signal from plaintiff. Cunningham v. Neal, 49 C. A. 613, 109 S. W. 455.

A fireman, who was run over when the engine and tender separated because a king pin used in coupling the same worked out, and he was thrown to the track in front of the tender, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Snow, 53 C. A. 184, 115 S. W. 631.

In an action for injuries to a servant, plaintiff held guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to move a timber without more assistance. Turner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 45 C. A. 650, 115 S. W. 716.

An employer held not liable for injury to an employed, while unloading a heavy object, by pulling it off a truck, caused by it falling on him. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1068.

25. Adoption of dangerous method of work.—A servant held not guilty of contributory negligence merely because choosing the more dangerous way of doing the work. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vestal, 38 C. A. 564, 88 S. W. 790.

Evidence, in an action by a switchman for injuries received while attempting to open the knuckle on one of defendant's cars, held not to show, as a matter of law, that the method adopted by him to open the knuckle was contributory negligence. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 927.

The selection by a servant of the more dangerous of two or more ways of doing a given act not as a matter of law to constitute contributory negligence. Lewis v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 585, 122 S. W. 605.

The rule that a servant is negligent, as a matter of law, if he chose a dangerous way and was injured, when a safe way was open to him, does not apply to a middle swing freight train handbilled while running a defective train from his station to the caboose. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hawley (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 726.

A brakeman injured by stumbling over a cinder while walking by a moving car to couple it with an engine in railroad yards held entitled to recover as against the claim that he chose a dangerous way though he might have walked between the rails or on another track. Freeman v. Kennerly (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 580.

If an engineer ran his locomotive at a speed of 50 or 60 miles an hour at the time it left the track on a curve, and such speed proximately contributed to the derailment, no recovery may be had for his death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gillespie, 48 C. A. 56, 106 S. W. 707.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of a car inspector, evidence held insufficient as a matter of law to show that deceased was guilty of contributory negligence and assumed the risk. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bearden, 31 C. A. 58, 71 S. W. 504.

A car repairer held entitled to rely on observance of a rule forbidding a flying switch, and not required to look and listen for cars, cut loose from an engine in a flying switch, on the track he was about to cross. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Conuteson, 51 C. A. 111, 11 S. W. 187.

In an action by a car repairer for injuries sustained by an engine backing against the cars under which he was at work, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ravanelli (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 208.
28. — Riding on trains, cars or locomotives.—Evidence, in an action for injuries sustained by plaintiff as a brakeman, alleged to have been caused by the negligence of a fellow servant, held insufficient to show negligence on defendant's part. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hubert (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1074.

A brakeman, injured by being struck by a warehouse while he was hanging onto the side of the engine, in the performance of his duties, held not guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Morton, 31 C. A. 145, 71 S. W. 770.

Where servants of a railroad company are accustomed to ride to and from their work on a railroad car, it is the duty of the railroad to furnish a safe track for their use. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Kelly, 34 C. A. 21, 80 W. S. 1073.

Where plaintiff was injured while riding on the footboard of an engine, the speed of which he could have checked by a signal to the engineer, the excessiveness of the speed was not an issue for the jury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Arnold, 35 C. A. 161, 87 S. W. 172.

A brakeman on a logging train held not guilty of negligence in riding on a stringer on a car in the train. Ragley Lumber Co. v. Parks, 46 C. A. 539, 103 S. W. 424.

It is not negligence to attempt to ride on the brake head of an approaching car, instead of using the steps on the side. Ft. Worth & D. O. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1113.

29. — Coupling or uncoupling cars.—Evidence held to show that a switchman injured in coupling cars was not guilty of contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hauer (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1078.

A brakeman who made a coupling by placing the bar on his knee, and who allowed it to remain there until the car was pushed three feet, was not negligent, as a matter of law. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCoy, 17 C. A. 494, 44 S. W. 25.

It is not negligence to uncouple cars, held not to charge that if plaintiff, when he went to make the coupling, placed himself in a customary position, he would have been entitled to recover. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Baker (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 964.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to a brakeman while coupling cars, evidence held sufficient to show that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Ames (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1112.

In an action for injuries to a railway brakeman while endeavoring to couple certain cars, plaintiff held not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Conway, 44 C. A. 68, 98 S. W. 1070.

A switchman killed by being crushed between an engine and car held not negligent in standing where he did adjust the knuckle on the coupler of the engine. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

30. — Switching cars.—In an action for an injury resulting in the death of defendant's servant, held that deceased was guilty of contributory negligence. Wagnon v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 40 C. A. 467, 89 S. W. 1112.

For a brakeman to be on the track to get on the engine in switching, held not negligent as a matter of law. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ford, 56 C. A. 521, 121 S. W. 709.

31. Disobedience of rules or orders.—In general.—A railway company is not liable in damages to an employee for an injury caused by his wilful act of disobedience of a reasonable rule of the company established for his safety, and which is known to him, and when the act of disobedience is the proximate cause of the injury, unless the act is done under the influence of fear produced by the appearance of sudden danger. Railway Co. v. Parker, 99 Tex. 665, 7 S. W. 1127.

In an action for damages for death caused through alleged negligence of deceased's employer, it was not error to refuse to instruct that under the rules of the company it was the duty of deceased to have inspected the engine he was operating before using it. Hocking v. Ward, 24 C. A. 127, 99 S. W. 999.

Instruction as to effect of violation of rules of a master by employee reviewed, and held erroneous. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Maupin, 26 C. A. 355, 63 S. W. 345.

A violation of rules regulating the manner in which railroad cars should be coupled by brakemen does not constitute negligence per se. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Yarbrough, 32 C. A. 245, 63 S. W. 357.

The breach of an employer's rule is not negligence per se, unless it is an act so opposed to the dictates of common prudence that no careful person would commit it. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cherry, 44 C. A. 244, 98 S. W. 699; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Still, 46 C. A. 159, 100 S. W. 176.

A violation by a servant of his master's rules is not negligence per se, and whether the servant is negligent is for the jury. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 411.

Where the collision by which plaintiff was injured was caused by him having run his train into a station before it was due at a dangerously high speed, in violation of rules, he assumed the risk of injury, and was negligent as a matter of law. International & O. N. R. Co. v. Bland (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1084.

The violation by a servant of a railroad company's rule forbidding a servant from going between moving cars to couple them, etc., held not of itself to presume recovery for resultant injuries. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Jackson, 51 C. A. 646, 113 S. W. 622.

The railroad employed guilty of contributory negligence in failing to exhibit blue signals required by railroad rule. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ravanelli (Sup.) 133 S. W. 424.

A fireman, killed in a collision between his train and a passenger train, held guilty of contributory negligence. Freeman v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1997.

32. What constitutes disobedience.—An engineer is not prohibited from running at a greater rate than 25 miles an hour by an order to make 25 miles on the trip, including stops. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Higgins, 22 C. A. 430, 55 S. W. 744.

Recouping a train having defective couplers, which has been temporarily separated en route, is not a violation of a rule against placing cars with defective couplers in a train, or contributory negligence on the part of a brakeman killed thereby. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 593, 68 S. W. 477.

Fireman held not to have violated rule requiring him to report to his immediate superior any infringement of the employee's rule by other employees. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas & Pac. Co. 615, 68 S. W. 395.

A rule with reference to coupling cars on grade siders held to require cars apparently in contact with each other to be coupled, but not to prohibit the leaving of an open space between two sets of cars on the same siding. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Pope (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 369.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman by a railroad rule requiring cars left on grade siders to be coupled together held free from ambiguity and not open to construction. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope, 43 C. A. 616, 97 S. W. 534.

A rule is held not to apply to an attempt to get on the end of an approaching car held not to apply to an attempt to get up the side of a moving car. El Paso & S. W. Ry. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 927.

A rule governing work in a yard held to apply only to car inspectors and car repairmen while engaged in the duty of their employment. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Welter (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 45.

33. Excuses for disobedience.—Where a servant of a street railroad company was killed while riding on a car which the company provided for its servants to ride on, the fact that a rule of the company prohibited the workmen from so riding was no defense to an action for negligence causing the death. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 352.

A brakeman, who violated the master's rules, is not guilty of contributory negligence, as a matter of law, in all cases; for circumstances may create an emergency which will excuse the servant's disregard of the rule. Carter v. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 683.

34. Effect of customary violation.—A railroad employed is not bound by the terms of a rule shown to have been varied and abrogated by the officers of the road. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Collins, 24 C. A. 142, 57 S. W. 584.

Where a railroad company knowingly permits the nonobservance of a rule, it cannot rely on it to show contributory negligence on the part of an engineer running in violation thereof. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mayfield, 29 C. A. 477, 68 S. W. 407.

The disregard of a rule which the company does not enforce, and which is generally disregarded, held not negligence on the part of the employed, as between him and the company. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Collins, 31 C. A. 70, 71 S. W. 658.

A brakeman, who-violated a rule prohibiting him from operating a switch while his hands, in violation of a rule uniformly disregarded. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Yardro, 32 C. A. 246, 74 S. W. 357.

An employed is not negligent in failing to comply with a rule of his employer which has not been enforced. El Paso & S. R. Co. v. Darr (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 166.

The violation by a brakeman of a rule forbidding employees to uncouple cars by hand held not to conclusively constitute contributory negligence. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 41 C. A. 459, 93 S. W. 702.

Habitual violation of a rule with the superintending foreman's knowledge and consent held to warrant an employed in deeming the rule abrogated. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Arms (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1154.

35. Warnings, signals and lookouts.—In an action for the negligent killing of a brakeman, deceased held guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Fields, 32 C. A. 414, 74 S. W. 930.

In action against railroad for injuries to servant, refusal to charge on a rule of the company forwarding employees to put themselves in a dangerous position until they know the engineer has seen and obeyed a signal held proper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper, 33 C. A. 319, 77 S. W. 263.

36. Disregarding warnings or signals.—In action for injury to engineer in collision with locomotive on his train charge the plaintiff that his "sight" could have shown red light on a semaphore, he could not recover, held erroneous. Quinn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 395.

On a railroad bridge workman, injured by the falling of a bridge upon him as it was being lowered after having been jacked up, held guilty of contributory negligence precluding recovery. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 37 C. A. 145, 84 S. W. 410.
One of a gang employed in repairing a bridge, injured by the lowering of it after it had been jacked up, held guilty of contributory negligence. Robinson v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 99 T. 110, 87 S. W. 667.

In action for injuries to railroad engineer, instruction that if preceding train had a right to remain at station till 7:11 without putting out a flagman or torpedo, and plaintiff, in trying to escape, the master is not relieved from liability for the injury by the fact that the employé might have escaped injury, had he acted more cautiously. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stevens, 37 C. 86, 83 S. W. 235.

The act of defendant's superintendent in calling a warning to prevent an injury, though not an act of negligence, held proper to be considered in determining whether plaintiff, in jumping from a car which caused the injuries complained of, was negligent. Mounce v. Lodwick Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 240.

Where an engineer endeavored to prevent a collision with cars on the track, negligence could not be ascribed to him because he did not leave the engine before the collision. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Richardson (Civil App.) 125 S. W. 623.

39. Proximate cause of injury.—An instruction to find for defendant if acts of deceased or proximate cause were the proximate cause of the injuries suffered by plaintiff if they were not the proximate cause, held correct. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Culpepper, 19 C. A. 182, 46 S. W. 922.

Failure to properly make up a train and inspect cars held not the proximate cause of injuries received by an employé while assisting in rearranging the train. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Nelson, 20 C. A. 536, 49 S. W. 710.

Failure of a conductor to comply with order requiring particular arrangements of the cars of his train held not the proximate cause of injuries received in subsequent making up the train. Id.

Where servant's negligence caused the injury, defendant is not required to show that his negligence did not contribute thereto. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Maupin, 26 C. A. 388, 63 S. W. 246.

Evidence held to show that the proximate cause was the act of a fellow servant, to which plaintiff's own negligence contributed. Southern Pac. Co. v. Wellington, 27 C. A. 309, 66 S. W. 219.

An instruction that contributory negligence, to defeat a recovery, must have proximately contributed to the injury, held proper. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pendleton, 30 C. A. 431, 79 S. W. 996.

The making of a "cut" in certain cars, which were being switched, without the knowledge of the switchman, was the proximate cause of his injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Schilling, 32 C. A. 417, 75 S. W. 64.

An instruction that contributory negligence was a defense, though it was not the proximate cause or husband, held properly refused. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Turner, 34 C. A. 397, 78 S. W. 712.

Intoxication of servant held not to preclude recovery for injuries to him, unless it proximately caused or contributed to the injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jones, 29 C. A. 684, 80 S. W. 855.

That a brakeman had knowledge that the lower rung of a car ladder was absent held no defense to an action for injuries sustained by reason of other defects therein, unless he acted imprudently in using the ladder under all the circumstances. El Paso Northwestern R. Co. v. Ryan, 38 C. A. 190, 81 S. W. 553.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman by derailment of a locomotive, an instruction that if the engineer was negligent in failing to slow up or stop as he approached a derailment, such negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, to could recover, held error. St. Louis Southernwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Arnold, 39 C. A. 161, 87 S. W. 173.

Negligence of a servant which proximately contributes to his injury precludes a recovery, notwithstanding negligence of the master also contributing thereto. St. Louis Southernwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rea, 99 T. 58, 87 S. W. 334.

In an action by a railroad engineer for injuries resulting from the derailment of the locomotive, held that his knowledge that the headlight was defective did not bar recovery. If other acts of negligence of defendant concurred in producing the result, Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fitzpatrick (Civil App.) 91 S. W. 355.

In an action by a fireman for injuries caused by the giving away of a defectively fastened handhold on a locomotive, evidence that at the time of the injury plaintiff was in a dangerous position held irrelevant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civil App.) 93 S. W. 184.

Where acts of brakeman were negligent and the negligence was a proximate cause of his injury, he was not entitled to recover therefor. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worcester, 45 C. A. 501, 100 S. W. 990.

Where a brakeman is injured in attempting to flag a coming train by stepping on a rotten tie, which caused him to fall, and while unconscious he was struck by the coming train, there was no negligence of the defendant, but his failure to follow the rules of the company. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reid, 48 C. A. 401, 107 S. W. 661.

Evidence held to show, as a matter of law, that the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury was his own unreasonable ignorance of a dangerous way to perform his duty. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Alexander (Civil App.) 117 S. W. 927.

Any negligence of a brakeman in taking a position on the railroad in front of an engine, held not to preclude recovery for accident which would not have happened but for his getting caught between the ties. St. Louis Southernwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ford, 56 C. A. 521, 121 S. W. 709.

Any negligence by decedent railroad engineer in running at a high speed after the headlight failed not to have proximately contributed to a derailment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sallabury (Civil App.) 143 S. W. 253.

In an action by a brakeman injured by an open car door while making a switch, the fact that it was a flying switch, contrary to the master's rules, is not a defense where, although the switch did not cause the proximate cause of the injury. Carter v. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. (Civil App.) 155 S. W. 638.

40. Injury avoidable by care of master.—Though the negligence of one who has been injured by another may have contributed to the injury, yet if the person inflicting it discover the peril of the other in time, by the reasonable exercise of the means at hand, to prevent the injury, the failure to use such means must be regarded as the proximate cause of the injury. Hays v. Railway Co., 70 T. 602, 8 S. W. 491, 8 Am. St. Rep. 624.

A person guilty of contributory negligence, and exposing himself to danger, may recover damages for personal injury, if defendant discovered his danger in time to have avoided the injury. Int. & G. N. R. Co. v. Tabor, 12 C. A. 283, 33 S. W. 894, and cases cited.
Negligence of one of a switching crew held no bar to a recovery for his death. White v. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 332.

The question of contributory negligence held properly submitted to the jury, with an instruction that the employed could recover if the master acted negligently, knowing the danger of the employed. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vestal, 38 C. A. 554, 86 S. W. 730.

In an action for injuries to a servant by being thrown from the pilot of defendant's log engine, evidence held insufficient to raise the issue of discovered peril. Burns v. Chicago & Northwestern Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 163.

Evidence of failure of brakeman to place lights on train held not to require finding of contributory negligence, where the proper signals were given on approaching the train. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fanning, 40 C. A. 412, 91 S. W. 344.

Where a peril had been discovered after his injury had been sustained, it was immaterial whether the injury was due to another servant's failure to make proper efforts to avoid the danger or his failure to prevent the injury through incompetency. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Blasengame, 42 C. A. 66, 93 S. W. 187.

Where a minor employed was injured by his master's failure to avoid the same after discovering him in a perilous position, it was immaterial that the minor's parent consented to his employment at a hazardous duty. Id.

A railway company held not liable for injury to employee struck by a train while on the track, where the injured person has not exercised reasonable care for his own safety. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Burnett, 49 C. A. 244, 108 S. W. 404.

A servant's right to recover for injuries on the ground of discovered peril is not affected by his contributory negligence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Aleman, 62 C. A. 566, 115 S. W. 73.

Negligence of the engineer of a passenger train in failing to take steps to stop his train in the presence of danger of a collision with another train until it was too late held to be no negligence of the fireman of the other train, for which defendant was liable. Freeman v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1997.

A railroad company held not liable, on the ground of discovered peril, for injury to a member of a hand car crew by a train coming from the rear while he was hastily attempting to remove the car. Chicago, R. L. & G. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 811.

In order to impose the duty on the crew of a switch engine which struck another employee as to take steps to avoid killing him, it was not necessary that it appear that he could not, or would not, extricate himself from his dangerous position. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 176.

41. Willful injury by master.—Contributory negligence of a railroad employee in attempting to board a moving engine was no defense to an action for injuries, based on the employee's failure to avoid the peril of the engine, with knowledge that plaintiff was about to board it. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 356.

42. Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827.

43. Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

44. Sufficiency of evidence—In general.—Evidence held sufficient to show that injury to railroad employee was caused by defective frog. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 560.

Evidence in an action for injuries to an engineer caused by the turning of the engine step held to justify a finding that negligent inspection was the cause of the injury. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lindsey, 27 C. A. 510, 65 S. W. 668.

Evidence for injuries from falling into pit in a railroad machine shop held sufficient to show that a board used as a bridge across the pit was over the 'dug-out' at the time in question. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butshek, 54 C. A. 194, 78 S. W. 740.

Evidence held to show that the act plaintiff was doing at the time of his injury was a necessary one and done in the discharge of his duty. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 927.

46. — Contributory negligence not shown.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that plaintiff, who was injured in loading railroad ties, was not guilty of contributory negligence. Sherman, S. & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Payne (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 43.

In an action for injuries to a section hand by a collision between a train and a hand car, evidence held sufficient to justify a jury finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. D. D. & I. Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 59.

In an action for the death of a bridge watchman, killed while riding his velocipede over the bridge, evidence held sufficient to authorize the conclusion that deceased was not guilty of contributory negligence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brock, 35 C. A. 155, 80 S. W. 422.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff from steam escaping from a railroad pumping station, facts held insufficient to show that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bulger, 35 C. A. 478, 80 S. W. 557.

In an action for injuries to a servant while riding on a hand car, evidence held insufficient to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Kelly, 34 C. A. 21, 80 S. W. 1073.

In an action for injuries sustained by an engineer who ran his train into cars standing on the main track, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vanlantingham, 38 C. A. 206, 85 S. W. 847.

Evidence held to show that a railroad brakeman was not guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to set a brake. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Powell, 38 C. A. 157, 86 S. W. 1065.

In an action for injuries to a servant, run over by a train in defendant's yard, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Ry. Co. v. Melville (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 863.

In an action for injuries to a servant injured by the raising of the hammer of a pile driver, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding of freedom from contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huyett (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1118.

In an action for injuries to a servant caused by a sliver flying off from a defective chisel or hammer and striking plaintiff in the eye, evidence held to support a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence and did not add to the risk of the danger. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Triererina, 51 C. A. 100, 111 S. W. 239.

Evidence held to show that a railway fireman was not guilty of contributory negligence respecting injury received through explosion of a locomotive boiler. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 864.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that a railway brakeman, injured by a sack of ice thrown from a passing caboose, was not guilty of contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hensley (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 57.

Evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff, while blocking up the end of a turntable by the negligence of defendant's foreman in releasing a push car which was on the table, evidence held not to show any contributory negligence of plaintiff. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 205, 115 S. W. 601.

Evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff, a switchman, was guilty of contributory negligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Day, 55 C. A. 24, 118 S. W. 739.

Evidence in an action for injury to an employed, held sufficient to justify a finding that plaintiff was not negligent. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1109.

Evidence, in an action by a section hand for injuries, held not to conclusively show that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. Pollock v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. 103 T. 623, 69 S. W. 408.

Evidence held to justify a finding that an engineer injured in a collision with cars on a side track too near the main track was not guilty of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 82.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a section foreman was guilty of contributory negligence. Chicago, I. & Gulf Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 966.

In an action for the death of a crossing flagman struck by a switch engine, evidence held to support jury's findings that he was not guilty of such negligence, contributing to his death, as would defeat a recovery. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Suito (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 185.

47. — Knowledge of defect or danger.—The fact that a brakeman knew that a side track was soft, and that such condition was productive of low joints, was not conclusive evidence that he knew of a specific low joint. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCoy, 17 C. A. 494, 44 S. W. 28.

Evidence held to support a verdict that an employee injured by the breaking of a rubber hose did not know of the defective condition thereof, and was not required to either inspect or repair it. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patrick, 59 C. A. 491, 109 S. W. 1097.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a servant did not know of the approach of a train. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Pollock (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 843.

In an action for a fireman's death by a collision caused by his engine sideswiping box cars on a connecting switch, evidence held not to show that decedent saw the box cars before the collision. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Holt, 57 C. A. 19, 121 S. W. 581.

48. — Duty to discover or remedy defect or danger.—Evidence held to support a verdict on issue of servant's duty to discover defects. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. War ner, 22 C. A. 167, 54 S. W. 1064.

Evidence held not tending to prove it was plaintiff's duty to inspect appliances used by him. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 35 C. A. 285, 80 S. W. 255.

In a conductor's action for injuries by striking a railroad car on a switch near the street car track, evidence held to show that plaintiff was not negligent in not discovering 4293.

49. — Precautions against known dangers.—Evidence held to justify a finding that a section foreman was not negligent in going upon the track with his section crew, or in attempting to cross a bridge with a push car and a load of ties, after learning that a train was approaching. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 991.

50. — Dangerous operations and methods of work.—In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman, owing to his having stumbled over a clinker on the track while between cars, or in attempt to uncouple them, held that the evidence warranted a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence in going between the cars. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Keefe, 37 C. A. 588, 84 S. W. 679.

Evidence held sufficient to show that an employe of a railroad company, injured by a violent coupling with a caboose, was not guilty of contributory negligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Finley, 50 C. A. 291, 110 S. W. 531.

In an action for the death of a switchman while attempting to adjust a coupler on a car, evidence held to justify a finding that he was free from contributory negligence. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Boston (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 944.

In an action by a switchman for injuries caused by his foot slipping under the wheels of the engine because of a defective brake beam, evidence held to warrant a finding that such switchman was not guilty of contributory negligence in riding on the brake beams. Freeman v. Gerretts (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1153.

Evidence held to show that riding on the brake beams of switch engines was a custom approved by the defendant. Id.

51. — Disobedience of rules or orders and disregard of warnings.—In an action for injury to a brakeman while coupling cars, held, that the jury were justified in finding that a rule requiring cars to be brought to a full stop before coupling was not enforced, and that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Sugarland Ry. Co. v. Archer (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 470.

In action for death of employe in collision of hand car and freight train, finding that rule of defendant had been abrogated by long custom held sustained by the evidence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jacobs, 37 C. A. 396, 84 S. W. 268.

In action for injuries received by a collision of plaintiff's train with another at a station, the evidence held to show that plaintiff ran his train into the station before it was due, and at a dangerously high speed, in violation of rules. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1094.

In an action for injuries to a car repairer by backing an engine against cars under which he was working, where defendant claimed that plaintiff was negligent in not conforming to the rules, evidence held not to support a finding that plaintiff did not know of the existence of such rules, and that compliance therewith by him might have protected him from injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Havenelli (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 258.

52. — Compliance with commands.—In an action by an engineer for injuries caused by the derailment of his train, evidence held to show that plaintiff was compelled to run at the speed he did, and that it was not excessive. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth, 53 C. A. 361, 116 S. W. 366.

Art. 6645. When assumed risk not available as defense.—In any suit against a person, corporation, or receiver, operating a railroad or street railway, for damages for the death or personal injury of an employé or servant, caused by the wrong or negligence of such person, corporation, or receiver, that the plea of assumed risk of the deceased or injured employé where the ground of the plea is knowledge or means of knowledge of the defect and danger which caused the injury or death, shall not be available in the following cases:

First. Where such employé had an opportunity before being injured or killed to inform the employer, or a superior entrusted by the employer with the authority to remedy or cause to be remedied the defect, and does not notify, or cause to be notified, the employer, or superior thereof, within a reasonable time; provided, it shall not be necessary to give such information where the employer, or such superior thereof, already knows of the defect.

Second. Where a person of ordinary care would have continued in the service with the knowledge of the defect and danger, and in such case it shall not be necessary that the servant or employé give notice of the defect as provided in subdivision one of this article. [Acts 1905, p. 386, sec. 1.]

1. Constitutionality. 6. Knowledge or means of knowledge of servant.
2. What law governs. 7. Notice to or knowledge of employer.
3. Construction and application of statute. 8. Evidence in continuing work.
5. Risks assumed in general.
RAILWAYS

10. No assumption of risk where carrier violates statutes for protection of employes.

12. Reliance on care of master—In general.

13. Incompetency or negligence of fellow servants.

14. Representations or assurances by master.

16. Defective or dangerous tools, machinery, appliances or places—In general.

17. Cars and locomotives.

18. Tracks and roadbeds.

19. Obstructions or ejections on, over or near tracks.

20. Dangerous operations and methods of work—In general.

22. Coupling cars.

23. Insufficient force for work.

24. Incompetency or negligence of fellow servants—In general.

25. Superior servants.

27. Methods of work.

28. Limitations on fellow servant doctrine.

29. Knowledge by servant of defect or danger—Necessity and effect in general.

30. Extent of knowledge.

31. Comparative knowledge of master and servant.

32. Constructive notice.

1. Constitutionality.—The state may make appropriate regulations for the protection of the lives of passengers or the safety of railroad employes, and may declare under what circumstances the fellow-servant shall apply in actions between the company and its employes. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 33 C. A. 295, 115 S. W. 691.

This article does not deny the equal protection of the law; it applies to all of a class. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Drew (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 819.

2. What law governs.—An employe of an intrastate railroad company, engaged in preparing ice for use in passenger cars carrying interstate passengers, was injured in interstate commerce; and hence the company’s liability to him for personal injuries received in the work is governed by Act Cong. April 22, 1908, c. 149, § 4, 35 Stat. 66 under which assumption of risk is available, unless the injury was caused by the employe’s violation of a statute enacted for the safety of employes, and not by this article. Freeman v. Powell (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1033.

3. Construction and application of statute.—This statute does not relate merely to defective machinery, but relates also to a case where the injury was caused by one slipping on a track while coupling cars, the alleged negligence consisting in permitting the hole to be and remain near the railroad track. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dickens, 54 C. A. 637, 118 S. W. 618.

4. Risk merged in contributory negligence.—Assumed negligence.

—This statute does not enroach on the law of contributory negligence, but practically abolishes the defense of assumed risk by making the question one of contributory negligence in every case. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Barwick, 60 C. A. 544, 110 S. W. 956.

This article covers the entire field of those defects and dangers to which persons engaged in operating a railroad are exposed, and applies the same rule as obtains in applying the law as to contributory negligence, and whether a servant assumed a risk must be judged by the standard of ordinary care, and the act applies in an action for the death of an employe on a logging train caused by the derailment of the train operated with the engine towards its center. Rice & Lyon v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 961.

The distinction between assumption of risk and contributory negligence in the case of injury to an employe of the operator of a railroad, where the ground of the defense is knowledge or means of knowledge of the defect and danger which caused the injury, being practically abolished, and the defense of assumption of risk merged in that of contributory negligence by this article, a requested instruction that if the coupling which caused his injury was being done in the usual and customary manner, and he knew the usual manner, the risk was an assumed one, preventing recovery, was properly refused; contributory negligence in such a case under Art. 6649, not being a bar to recovery, but only matter for reduction of damages. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grenig (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 125.

This article merges assumed risk arising from knowledge of the defect and danger into a question of contributory negligence, and hence in view of Art. 6649 assumption of risk arising from knowledge does not bar a recovery, but is available only in mitigation of damages. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 678.

5. Risks assumed in general.—An instruction held to sufficiently present the law of assumed risk as modified by this article. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 959.

Whether an employé on a logging train, killed by the derailment of the train, operated with this engine near its center, assumed the risk under this article, held, under the evidence, for the jury. Rice & Lyon v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 961.

Under this article, a brakeman who knew that clinkers and rocks were scattered over a railroad yard and along the tracks, and that such condition rendered it dangerous and likely to be in the ordinary risk of injury by stumbling over a brakeman while walking by a moving car, where the yardmaster, whose duty it was to keep the track clean, knew that rocks and clinkers were scattered over the track and that such condition rendered it dangerous for employés, and where it could reasonably be inferred that a person of ordinary care would have continued in the service, notwithstanding knowledge of the danger. Freeman v. Kennerly (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 580.

Knowledge or means of knowledge of servant.—Under this article an employé on a railroad company is liable for injuries in the discharge of a duty to his master and exercised the care of a reasonably prudent employé similarly situated. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1148.

Under this article, continuation in the service with both knowledge of the defect and danger is essential to charge a servant with the risk. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 678.

Notice to or knowledge of employer.—This statute where it speaks of the employer’s or supervisor’s knowledge means actual knowledge. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 177 S. W. 927.

Under this article an instruction that the verdict should be for plaintiff if he gave the notice mentioned in the statute was erroneous, where there was no evidence that he had given any notice. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 162.

Under this article, an instruction that if the engine of which plaintiff was engineer was defective, and “at the first opportunity” plaintiff notified the railroad company of the defect, there was no assumption of risk, is erroneous, as it leaves the jury to conclude that a notice given by the engineer at the end of his run and after the injury could be considered. Id.

The risk from such proximity of a railroad’s coal bin to the track as not to leave space between it and the side of the tender of an engine for a brakeman, known to the company as shown by one of its rules, is not an ordinary risk, which would be assumed by the brakeman, but one arising from the negligence of the company, within the provision of this article that assumption of risk shall be no defense where the employé knew of the defect. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. De Bord (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 697.

In an employé’s action for injuries caused by a defect in an anvil, where the only notice of the defect testified to was given to a foreman, who was not shown to have any authority to notify it, the submission of the question whether notice had been given to defendant was error, since under this article it must be shown that the person to whom notice was given was a vice principal with authority to remedy the defect. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Meakin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1057.

Under the express provision of this article, the plea of assumed risk is not available on the ground of the servant’s knowledge, or means of knowledge, of the defect or danger, where the master knew of such defect. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 625.

Prudence in continuing work.—A charge which fails to state that an employé does not assume the risk of a defect or danger known to him, “Where a person of ordinary care would have continued in the service with knowledge of the defect or danger” is erroneous. Currie v. M., K. & T. Ry., 101 T. 478, 108 S. W. 1170.

Charge that an employé of a railroad company assumed the risk and danger of a matter of law in every case assume the risk of a defect and danger which he knows of, but whether he does or not depends on whether or not his proceeding with the work is reconcilable with ordinary care. Texas Mex. Ry. Co. v. Trillerina (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 240.

The effect of this law is to deny to the railroad company the defense of assumed risk in case the “defect or danger” which caused the Injury was such that a person of ordinary prudence under like circumstances would have continued in the service.” Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Alexander, 102 T. 497, 119 S. W. 1118.

An instruction in an action for injuries to a section hand while operating a defective hand car under the orders of the foreman that if plaintiff knew of the defective condition of the car, and had an opportunity to notify a superior officer, whose duty it was to inspect the defect, and that officer did not know of the defect from any other source, plaintiff assumed the risk and could not recover, was properly refused because it ignored the provision of this article that it shall not be necessary to give notice where a person of ordinary prudence would continue in the service. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Ogren (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1192.

An instruction that, if plaintiff knowingly used a defective car, he assumed the risks, and could not recover, unless a person of ordinary prudence would have continued in the service with knowledge of the defect and danger, substantially conformed to this article, though the instruction omitted the word “danger” in connection with knowledge of the defective condition of the car. Id.

“Assumption of risk” is the risk which is ordinarily incident to the service in which a servant is engaged, not arising out of the negligence of the master, and the danger is obvious or known to the servant or would be known to him by the exercise of ordinary care, and under this article, a servant engaged in railway service does not assume the risk of a defect and danger arising out of the negligence of the railroad to him, where a person of ordinary care would have continued in service with knowledge thereof. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 708.
Under this article, though plaintiff's alleged employment was disputed, the court properly modified a requested charge on assumed risk by stating that if the jury believed that a person of ordinary care, under all circumstances and situated as plaintiff was, would have continued to operate plaintiff's pump with knowledge of the danger he thereby incurred, plaintiff should recover; the charge as modified being the only phase of assumed risk that could arise in the case. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 580.

Under the direct provisions of this article, an employé of a railroad company does not assume the risk of a known danger, where a person of ordinary care would have continued in the service with knowledge of the defect and danger, and hence, where an employé was killed as the result of an apparent risk, and the evidence was conflicting whether an ordinarily prudent man would have continued at work, knowing the risk, that question was committed in the charge upon assumption of risk. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1009.

Under this article, recovery by a servant who assumed a risk of the kind, by performing a service is expressly made to depend on whether an ordinarily prudent servant would have so performed the service, and a special charge failing to so state the law is properly refused. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1148.

A requested instruction in an action for the crushing of a brakeman between the side of the tender of the engine, where he was riding, and the side of the railroad company's coal bin, to find for defendant if the jury believed the coal chutes, coal bins and tracks were defective, and that such defects were so open and obvious that plaintiff knew thereof, is bad, an ignoring the provision of this article that assumption of risk shall not be available where a persons of ordinary care would have continued in the service. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. De Bord (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 667.

Under this article a servant assumes only the ordinary risk incident to his employment, and is not required to quit his employment if under like conditions an ordinarily prudent person would continue in the work. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finklen (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 612.

Under this article a railroad company negligently furnishing a defective appliance cannot defeat an action for injury to an employé caused thereby, on the ground of assumption of risk, prudence would have used the appliance. Pope v. St. Louis Northwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1176.

9. No assumption of risk where safety appliance act is violated.—See Art. 6646 and notes.

10. No assumption of risk where carrier violates statutes for protection of employés.—See Art. 6650 and notes.

A servant who is injured by one act of negligence is not precluded from recovering therefor by reason of his assumption of risk of another act of negligence which is not a proximate cause of his injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Manns, 37 C. A. 356, 88 S. W. 254.

Injured servant held to have assumed the risk under certain contingencies. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Demsey, 40 C. A. 398, 89 S. W. 786.

The risk assumed by an employé as incident to his employment held to preclude negligence of the master. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Higgins, 44 C. A. 523, 99 S. W. 300.

A railway employé unloading a car on a side track held not to assume the risk of a negligent, unnecessary, and unusual jolt caused by a train being backed against the car. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 453.

Where a street car conductor did not have actual knowledge of the dangerous proximity of a railroad car, which struck him as his street car passed It, he did not assume the risk of injury, unless its nearness to the street car track was so obvious that he could have seen it by reasonable observation. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 55 C. A. 543, 118 S. W. 838.

An experienced member of railway bridge gang injured by the falling of timbers held not entitled to recover for the injury; the danger being obvious. Cato v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 132.

43. Notice to or knowledge of master.—A servant with knowledge of danger and risk of a defect, continuing in service without notice of danger to master, assumes the risk. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bryant, 27 S. W. 825, 8 C. A. 134.

The questions as to whether the employé has an opportunity to notify his employer and does notify him, and as to a person of ordinary care remaining in service of the employer with knowledge of the defect, are questions of fact and are to be submitted to the jury under proper instructions. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Foth, 101 T. 133, 109 S. W. 172.

The defense of assumed risk based on the ground that the injured employé knew of the defect and danger, is not available to the railway company where it is shown that its superior employé, whose duty it was to repair also knew of the defect and danger before the accident. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 295, 115 S. W. 606, 607.

A servant having knowledge of a defect held not to have assumed the risk, where... the master also had knowledge of the defect. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 959.

44. Promise to remedy defect or remove danger.—A servant does not assume the risk who continues in his master's employ, after the discovery of a defect which the master promises to repair. T. & N. O. R. Co. v. Bingle, 91 T. 287, 42 S. W. 971.

Where employer promised to repair, and employed one not required to inspect the same, where there was nothing in its apparent condition which would lead a prudent man so to do. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Nordell, 20 C. A. 362, 50 S. W. 601.

Where employer promised to repair, and empleyé was injured after repairs were to be made, held proper to refuse an instruction that he must have relied on the promise in remaining in the employment. Id.

An employer's promise to a foreman to have a defective step on the engine repaired was to the company, on which the step was entitle to rely. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Garren (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1028.

Whether plaintiff was justified in believing that the step had been repaired was for the jury. Id.

Evidence that he supposed that it was repaired at an intervening station held competent. Id.

Where plaintiff did not know that the step had not been repaired at an intervening station, he did not assume the risk of injury in subsequently using it. Id.

It is not necessary, in order to relieve a servant from the assumption of the risk from a defective place in which to work, that the master's promise to repair should have fixed any definite time for performance, or that the repairs should in fact be made within any specified time. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Baker, 35 C. A. 842, 81 S. W. 67.

An empleyé held to have assumed a risk, notwithstanding his complaint of snow and the master's promise to remove it. Texas & F. Ry. Co. v. Nichols, 41 C. A. 119, 92 S. W. 411.

An instruction that, if plaintiff knew that his torch was defective and the light inefficient, he assumed the risk, was objectionable, as omitting the qualification that, if plaintiff was negligent in continuing in the service after the promise of the master to remedy the defect, he did not assume the risk where the evidence warranted such qualification. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 899.

45. Compliance with commands.—A servant does not assume risks growing out of the negligence of the master, whom it is his duty to obey. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Utley, 30 C. A. 128, 56 S. W. 210.

In general, an employé does not assume the risk of injury by the habitual negligence of his employer, or for whom the employer is responsible. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Turner, 99 T. 547, 91 S. W. 562.

A master held liable for an accident occasioned by its negligence, concurrently with a defect, the risk of which the employé had assumed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Elder, 44 C. A. 606, 39 S. W. 856.

A switchman held entitled to recover for injuries caused by the negligence of defendant's engineer, concuring with defects in the cars, the risk of which plaintiff assumed, so as to preclude recovery on the ground that defendant was charged with the risk. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Powell, 51 C. A. 409, 115 S. W. 697.

The negligence of a master is not assumed by the servant as one ordinary to the service. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Meehan (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 199.

A servant does not assume risks arising from the master's failure to do his duty unless he knows of it and the attendant risks or must have acquired such knowledge.

Texas Traction Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

Section foreman, injured in collision while riding on hand car, held to have assumed risk of defective brakes, but not of failure of trainmen to whistle. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Bender, 32 C. A. 568, 75 S. W. 561.

Fact that section foreman, injured in collision while riding on hand car, assumed risk of injury from defective brake, and that that concurred with other negligence of the company in causing the collision, held not to preclude recovery. Id.

Where an engineer accepted, without protest, a defective headlight, he did not thereby assume the risk of injuries from the company's negligence in misplacing a switch. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Moynahan, 33 C. A. 302, 78 S. W. 805.

In action against railroad for injuries to servant, held, that he had not assumed the risk by remaining in service of defendant after discovering defect in a coupler. Gulf, C., S. & S. v. Woven, 20 C. A. 319, 77 S. W. 263.

A switchman, injured by defendant's negligence in "cornering" certain cars on a switch track against cars between which plaintiff was working on a defective coupling, held not to have assumed the risk, though he had knowledge that the coupling was out of order. Gulf, C., S. & S. v. Woven, 20 C. A. 319, 77 S. W. 263.

A servant does not assume the risk of injuries from the negligent acts and practices of the master or his representatives of which he knew before the happening of the act complained of. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Garcia, 54 C. A. 59, 117 S. W. 206.

A servant may assume that appliances are reasonably safe and the manner of conducting the business reasonably safe. Texas Traction Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

50. Master and fellow servant.—Danger to section foreman in removing push car from the track in front of a passenger train held not so great as to render the Jour­man chargeable with assumption of risk. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 991.

A push car on a railroad track in front of an approaching passenger train is an obstruction so apt to cause the derailment of a train as to justify a section foreman in so regarding it and attempting to remove it, in order to prevent accident to the train. Id.

51. Pleading.—See notes under article 1910.

52. Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3657.

53. Sufficiency of evidence—Knowledge of servant.—Facts held to support a finding that M. did not know the dangerous condition of a bridge built by his employers, by the giving of way of which he was injured, so as to preclude recovery on the ground of assumption of risk. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Mayfield, 25 C. A. 307, 60 S. W. 896.

Evidence held to justify a finding that an employé did not know of the defect in a machine which he was operating, and never assumed the risk, and that the owner was 4508

In an action by an engineer for personal injuries resulting from the defective condition of defendant's railroad track, evidence held insufficient to show that he knew of the defect and assumed the risk. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 265.

Evidence, in an action for the death of an employé in consequence of a defective railroad track in a lumber yard, held not to show that the defects in the track were so obvious to decedent as to give him notice of the danger in riding over the track on an engine. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 483, 56 S. W. 607.

Evidence held to justify jury in finding that servant did not know of defect in track, that the defect in track was not obvious and patent, and that he did not assume the risk of injury. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 94.

Evidence held to show that decedent employé knew of the danger from the electric wire and assumed the risk. Texas Traction Co. v. George (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 483.

In an action by a section foreman for injuries while helping unload timbers from a coal car, evidence held to show that plaintiff had assumed the risk. Bryan v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 693.

55. — Assumption of risk not shown.—Evidence held insufficient to show that a switchman who had complained of the incompetency of a fireman, identified him, when afterwards recognizing signals given by him. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eckles, 25 C. A. 472, 69 S. W. 830.

Evidence held not to show that decedent, the conductor in charge of a train, as­sumed the risk. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Vinson, 28 C. A. 247, 66 S. W. 800.

Evidence in an action by a railroad fireman for personal injuries considered, and held, that plaintiff did not assume the risk incident to the accident. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Follin, 39 C. A. 612, 68 S. W. 810.

Testimony, in an action by an employé to recover for injuries, held not to admit hold­ing that plaintiff assumed the risk as a matter of law. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butshek, 34 C. A. 194, 78 S. W. 746.

In an action for injuries to a servant injured by the raising of the hammer of a plie driver, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that he had not assumed the risk. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huyett (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1111.

In an action by a servant for injuries received while attempting to set a defective brake, evidence examined, and held insufficient to show that he assumed the risk. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Griggs (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 473.

Evidence for a brakeman's death, due to the defective condition of defen­dant's railroad track, held to support a finding that he did not assume the risk aris­ing from such defective condition. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Wallis, 47 C. A. 120, 104 S. W. 418.

Evidence held to justify finding that decedent's injury was not a result of assumed risk. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. McHale, 47 C. A. 360, 100 S. W. 1149.

In an action for injuries resulting from the breaking of a defective belt on a ma­chine which plaintiff was operating, the evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff assumed the risk. P. E. Schwob & Bros. v. McCloskey (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 355.

In a conductor's action for injuries sustained by striking a railroad car on a switch near the street car track, evidence held to show that plaintiff did not assume the risk of injury. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 55 C. A. 543, 118 S. W. 838.

Injuries to a servant failing to be detected by the manhole on a locomotive tender, evidence held to justify a finding that he did not assume the risk of injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Meehan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 199.

Art. 6646. No assumed risk where safety appliance not provided.

-Any employé of any common carrier engaged in any intrastate com­merce, as provided in articles 6640 and 6641 of this title, who may be injured or killed shall not be held to have assumed the risk of his employment, or to have been guilty of contributory negligence, if the violation of such carrier of any of the provisions of said articles contributed to the injury or death of such employé. [Acts 1909, p. 64, sec. 7.]

Explanatory.—This article was a part of the safety appliance act (Acts 1909, p. 64, § 7), the provisions of which appear herein as Articles 6709-6714, and in its original form it referred to the other sections of that act rather than to Articles 6640, 6641, as in the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, which are followed in this work.

Constitutionality.—The legislature had power to enact the safety appliance act (Arts. 6709-6714) providing that any employé of a common carrier shall not be held to as­sume the risk of his employment or to have been guilty of contributory negligence if the carrier's violation of any provision of the act contributed to his injury. Freeman v. Swan (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 724.

The safety appliance act (Arts. 6709-6714, 6646), which required all cars used in intrastate traffic to be equipped with automatic couplers, and providing that no employé of a common carrier who may be injured shall be held to assume all risks of his employ­ment, or to have been guilty of contributory negligence, if the carrier's violation of any 4309 provision of the act contributed to the injury, does not contravene Const. U. S. Amend. 14, relating to equal protection of law. Id.

Failure to provide secure handholds.—Under Art. 6713, making it unlawful for a railroad company to use in intrastate commerce a car not provided with sufficient and secure handholds, and this article, denying it the defenses of contributory negligence and assumption of risk, where its violation of the act contributed to an employe's injury, it is not enough for the company to exercise ordinary care to have and maintain secure handholds, but it must do all things possible to that end. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Kurtz (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 658.

The defenses of assumption of risk and contributory negligence are expressly denied a railroad company by Art. 6713 and this article where its employe is injured by its using in intrastate commerce a car with an insecure handhold, as they are denied it by the safety appliance act of congress, enacted in 1893 (Act March 2, 1893, c. 196, 27 Stat. 521) and amended in 1896 (Act April 1, 1896, c. 87, 29 Stat. 85) and U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, pp. 1172, 1173, where the accident occurs while the car is being used in interstate commerce. Id.

Art. 6647. Double-header trains; no assumed risk by employes.—Employes of railway companies employed by said companies in the operation of trains within this state, propelled by two or more engines, shall not be held to assume the risk, if any there be, incident to their employment; provided, they be injured while engaged in operation of such trains; and provided, further, that such injury was occasioned by reason of the operation of two or more engines on such train instead of one. [Acts 1900, S. S., p. 15, sec. 3a.]

Art. 6648. Liable for injury or death of employé.—Every corporation, receiver, or other person, operating any railroad in this state, shall be liable in damages to any person suffering injury while he is employed by such carrier operating such railroad, or in case of the death of such employé, to his or her personal representative for the benefit of the surviving widow and children, or husband and children, and mother and father of the deceased, and, if none, then of the next kin dependent upon such employé for such injury or death resulting in whole or in part from the negligence of any of the officers, agents or employé of such carrier; or by reason of any defect or insufficiency due to its negligence, in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, works, boats, wharves, or other equipment; provided, the amount recovered shall not be liable for the debts of deceased and shall be divided among the persons entitled to the benefit of the action or such of them as shall be alive, in such shares as the jury, or court trying the case without a jury, shall deem proper; and provided, in case of the death of such employé, the action may be brought without administration by all the parties entitled thereto, or by any one or more of them for the benefit of all, and, if all parties be not before the court, the action may proceed for the benefit of such of said parties as are before the court. [Acts 1909, 1 S. S., p. 279, sec. 1.]

I. CONSTITUTIONALITY, CONSTRUCTION, APPLICATION AND EFFECT OF STATUTE

This act is not an invalid interference with interstate commerce, being a subject relative to which the states may act until congress has acted, but is inoperative in so far as it affects interstate commerce while the federal statute remains in force. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bright (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 304.

This article, construed to apply to all employés of railroad companies whether engaged in operating trains or cars or not, does not deny such companies the equal protection of the laws in violation of Const. U. S. Amend. 14. Id.

3. Pending litigation.—Under Art. 6652 the provision of this article regarding procedure where all parties are not before the court does not apply to cases pending when the statute was enacted. International & G. N. R. Co. v. White, 103 T. 107, 131 S. W. 811.

4. To what employés applicable.—This article applies to all employés of railroad companies and not to those only who are actually engaged in the operation of railway trains or cars, since the words “operating any railroad” apply to the word “carrier” and not to the word “employed,” and hence in an action for injuries to an employé of a railroad company sustained while working on a railroad bridge the court properly charged the jury that contributory negligence would merely reduce and not defeat a recovery. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bright (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 304.

II. NATURE AND EXTENT OF LIABILITY IN GENERAL

6. What law governs.—Where an employé’s injuries, received in Texas, resulted from negligence of a railroad in loading a car loaded in New Mexico, its liability must be determined by the laws of the former state. El Paso & N. W. Ry. Co. v. McComas (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 629.

Where a car was negligently loaded in New Mexico, causing injuries to plaintiff in Texas, the laws of New Mexico are immaterial, in determining the rights of the parties, in an action brought in Texas to recover for the injuries. El Paso & N. W. Ry. Co. v. McComas, 36 C. A. 170, 51 S. W. 760.

Where, in an action against a railroad company for negligent death, the evidence showed that decedent was an agent of an express company, employed and paid by it, and entitled to ride on defendant’s trains, under contract between the two companies, and that he was killed by the negligence of the employé in charge of the train, the railroad company, engaged in Interstate commerce, must show that plaintiff’s claim was unfounded, and that decedent was in its employ to avail itself of the federal employers’ liability act; and, on failure to do so, the state laws govern the right to recover. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Blalock, 105 T. 196, 147 S. W. 281.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a car repairer suing for injuries was engaged in interstate commerce, and that therefore the federal employers’ liability act, instead of the state law, applied. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 281.

Where neither the pleadings nor the evidence disclosed that the railroad company was engaged in interstate commerce, the federal employers’ liability act had no application in fixing the liability of the company. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Odom (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 799.

7. Relation of parties—In general.—The mere fact that a minor, eighteen years of age, was under the control of his parents, does not defeat, between him and his employers, the relation of master and servant, with the rights, duties and liabilities which attach to the relation. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Carlton, 60 T. 397; T. & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Crowder, 61 T. 262.

An express contract held not necessary to create the relation of master and servant between a railroad and one acting as baggage-man. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reasor, 28 C. A. 302, 68 S. W. 332.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman, it was no defense that plaintiff obtained his employment by falsely stating that he had never had any litigation with any railroad company. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 45 C. A. 434, 107 S. W. 108.

Employes of a compress company of which plaintiff was superintendent held to be acting in the service of defendant railroad company in letting down a car on the spur track which ran to the compress works, so that defendant was liable for injuries caused to plaintiff in doing so. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gaskill (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 557, reversed in 103 T. 441, 129 S. W. 345.

Where a railroad company controlled the operation of cars on a compress company's switch, the railroad would be liable for injuries to a servant of the compress company engaged in moving cars temporarily engaged in the railroad company. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gaskill, 103 T. 441, 129 S. W. 345.

A master's duty to provide his servants a safe place to work arises out of the contract made by him with them for the performance of some service, and hence is due only to those persons who sustain toward him such contractual relations. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Sirman (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 401.

Definition of servant.—The word "servant" in a legal sense has a broad significance embracing all persons of whatever rank or position who are in the employ and subject to the direction or control of another in any department of labor or business, and is ordinarily synonymous with "employee." Texas Life Ins. Co. v. Roberts, 55 C. A. 217, 119 S. W. 928.

9. Independent contractors and employes.—An employe of a subcontractor engaged in the construction of a railroad injured in consequence of being struck by a train employed by the railroad company for the injuries received was held not to be an independent contractor, upon the construction of a railroad company. C. & O. Ry. Co. v. McLaughlin, 48 C. A. 325, 96 S. W. 1091.

A contract between M. and defendant railroad company for the construction of right of way buildings, bridges, trestles, etc., held an independent contract, and not to make M. and his employe's servants of the railroad company. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 301, 112 S. W. 450.

One who is paid for the amount of work that he does, but has no control over the work aside from the amount that he does, is not an independent contractor. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Remans (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 157.

Where a railroad contractor agreed with the railroad company to discharge any incompetent employe on request of the company, that the employes were engaged by the company did not make them the servants of the company, where they were paid by the contractor, subject to his exclusive control and to discharge by him. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Manning (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 227.

One engaging at the request or with the permission of a railroad servant in a transaction of interest to himself, as well as to the railroad, while a volunteer and not a servant of the railroad, is entitled to a right to be protected against the negligence of its servants, and to recover for the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Romano (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 401.

A person who volunteers to assist the servant of another takes things as he finds them, and assumes all the risks of the situation, and, in case of injury, cannot recover unless such injury would create a liability as to a trespasser or bare licensee.

Acts done under employment or by invitation of master's servants.—Where a section foreman was directed by the division superintendent to assist in unloading cattle guard timbers from a car, the foreman while so engaged was not a servant of the railroad company. Bryan v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 693.

A traction company is not liable to plaintiff injured while employed by or assisting its servant in cleaning electrical machinery, where the plaintiff looked to the servant for his pay. Biulack v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1096.

While a servant may in some cases confer upon a stranger the privilege or license of entering upon the premises of his employer, yet, without authority to do so, he cannot clothe the stranger with that protection which can only arise from a contract of employment. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Sirman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 401.

Agreement between railroads for joint use of yard.—A railroad company, which permitted its yard to be used under agreement by another company, owed to the latter's servants the same duty of providing a safe place to work as it owed to its own servants. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley, 129 S. W. 352.

Commencement, suspension or termination of relation.—Liability of master to employe does not cease where the work is done for a third person, the employe not knowing of the change. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ferch, 18 C. A. 46, 44 S. W. 317.

Fact that a person hired by the day who missed the work train on which he was employed was at the time of injury on his way to get a pass to catch up with the train.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's intestate while in the employment of a railroad, the act of deceased in stepping behind the car by which he was run over, held not to sever the relation of master and servant, so as to relieve defendant of liability for its employee's negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Pennewell, 50 C. A. 541, 110 S. W. 758.

A servant voluntarily and for his own convenience stepping outside the line of his duty into a position unnecessary or proper that he should be in going to or returning from his services thereby suspends the relation of master and servant as between his master and himself. Lynch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 522.

In an action by the plaintiff, a hostler in a railroad yard, for injuries received while riding on a freight car across the yard, held, that the plaintiff's rights against his employer were those of a licensee. Id.

14. Scope of employment.—In general.—Brakeman on freight train, killed by defective apparatus of independent contractor, held to have been in line of his duty at time of accident. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Delaney, 22 C. A. 427, 55 S. W. 538.

A section foreman, killed while crossing one of defendant's tracks in returning to his work after having answered a call of nature, held not a trespassor. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Turner, 99 T. 547, 91 S. W. 562.

Employees engaged in switching cars held bound to use ordinary care to protect from injury another employee on the track. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1074.

A foreman of a switch crew when operating a brake held entitled to the same protection as to the safety of the brake as any other switchman. Sanders v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 139.

The law of respondent superior is that the master is liable for the negligent acts or his servants if it is shown in evidence that the master was in knowledge of the servants' employment or line of their duty. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henfrey (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 884.

The fact that a servant was not in the active performance of the duties of his employment at the time an injury occurred held not to relitigate the issue of master's negligence at the time of the injury. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. McHale, 47 C. A. 360, 105 S. W. 1149.

Plaintiff held not a trespassor or a licensee, though his regular duties were not to be performed in and about the yards where he was injured. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Balliet, 48 C. A. 641, 107 S. W. 906.

A car checker in a railroad yard, who rode a train for his own convenience, held a mere licensee. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 703.

15. Customary acts.—Where deceased was killed while engaged in an act outside of the scope of his employment, evidence that such act was customarily erroneously admitted. Texas M. R. R. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 892.

It is negligent for the master to subject his servant to a risk not ordinarily incident to the employment, unless the extraordinary hazard be obvious to the servant or he in some manner be apprised of it. Bonnet v. Railway Co., 59 T. 72, 33 S. W. 334.

No act of human conduct, in the absence of a statute, can be declared to be negligence, unless all the facts and circumstances are either admitted or disputable. Irvin v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 661.

Employers must exercise ordinary care in conducting their business for the safety of their employees. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander, 103 T. 594, 132 S. W. 139.

To authorize a recovery for personal injuries to a servant, held only necessary to show that a reasonably prudent man would have anticipated some like injury. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 819.

17. Employers required to exercise care in employing inexperienced or minor servant.—While the duty of the employer in reference to such a minor employee increases in proportion to his want of capacity, the fact of his being fatally injured in his employment does not, per se, render the company liable to the parent for such injury. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Carlton, 69 T. 397; T. & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Crowder, 61 T. 261; Id., 63 T. 502.

18. Medical attendance on injured employee.—A railroad company, undertaking as a charity to furnish medical treatment to sick and injured employees, held required only to exercise due care in employing a physician. Zumwalt v. Texas Cent. R. Co., 56 C. A. 547, 118 S. W. 1132.

In a suit against a railroad for negligence in providing an injured employee with medical attention, the duty of defendant in respect to sending plaintiff to the place where the company's nearest local surgeon resided stated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graves, 67 C. A. 355, 125 S. W. 488.

A railroad company inaugurating a plan of creating a fund for care of its sick and injured employees by deducting each month 50 cents from the wages of each employee, and in execution of the trust contracting with a doctor to treat in its hospital all such sick and injured in consideration of the fund so collected, held not liable for malpractice of the doctor, if evidence that it was promoting its own business through such charity. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Zumwalt, 103 T. 603, 132 S. W. 113, 30 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1206.

19. Cause of injury.—In general.—That unsafe condition of appliances was caused either by decay or otherwise held not to relieve the master from liability for injury to his servant occasioned thereby. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ellkins (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 931.
In an action for injuries to a servant, held, that the mere fact that plaintiff's physical condition was such as to render him susceptible to the injury did not preclude recovery for the master's negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 32 C. A. 23, 74 S. W. 345.

In an action for personal injuries, where the negligence by which plaintiff was injured was imputable to defendant, it was immaterial that defendant could not have foreseen the negligent acts of its employees by which plaintiff was injured. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Barwick, 50 C. A. 544, 110 S. W. 963.

To authorize a recovery for injuries to an employé, the negligence of the employer must have proximately caused the injury. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 394.

20. Acts or omissions of third persons.—Railroad companies cannot presume that there will be no unlawful interference with their tracks and switches, and the degree of care they are required to exercise to avoid injuries to employés therefrom must be determined by the possibility and probability of harm likely to result. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 160, 55 S. W. 775.

A railroad company, calling another company's engine to its assistance, held liable for accident to its servant resulting from the common negligence of the engineers of both companies. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 863.

Railroad company held liable for death of a servant occasioned by not properly braking and blocking a freight car on a side track, which, escaping to the main track, caused a collision, though the proximate cause of the car's moving may have been interference with the brakes by some person unknown. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 136, 58 S. W. 625.

Railroad company held liable to one of its employés for injuries sustained by timber thrown from one of its regular freight trains by the servants of an independent contractor. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Flowers, 47 C. A. 296, 104 S. W. 1970.

In an action for injuries while in defendant's employ by car doors falling on plaintiff, the facts stated under which plaintiff's injury would be an unavoidable accident. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Barwick, 50 C. A. 544, 110 S. W. 963.

A railroad held liable for injuries to an employé resulting from the negligence of another road to which it gave the right to use its yards and tracks. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 35 C. A. 92, 87 S. W. 371.

A railroad was negligent in maintaining a mail crane too near the track and in allowing the track near the crane to remain in a defective condition, it is no defense to an action for the death of an employè by striking the crane that the postmaster was also negligent in placing the crane in position at an improper time. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1049.

21. Accidental or Improbable Injury—In general.—Where a piece of coal flew off of a passing train and injured a section hand, who was standing near the track, it cannot be contended that the company was not liable because the injuries resulted from an inevitable accident. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 164.

A railroad is liable for injuries to its employé, where it was not entitled to recovery for injury caused by the falling of lumber while he was unloading a car. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Flowers, 47 C. A. 296, 104 S. W. 1970.

In an action for injuries while in the employ of the railroad while unloading hand cars from the track in front of approaching trains. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Myers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 49.

22. Anticipation of consequences.—Where a piece of coal flew off of a passing train and injured a section hand, who was standing near the track, it cannot be contended that the company was not liable because the injury was not such as might reasonably have been anticipated from the company's negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 164.

Where a railroad's negligence in loading a car is shown to be the proximate cause of a servant's injuries, its liability is established, though it might not have foreseen that the injury would happen. El Paso & N. W. Ry. Co. v. McLane & Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 629.

Where the manner of loading the car was likely to cause injury in a way that might be foreseen, the fact that it happened to cause the injury in a manner so unusual that it was not to be expected does not deprive the manner of loading of its negligent character. El Paso & N. W. Ry. Co. v. McCombs, 36 C. A. 170, 81 S. W. 768.

Certain proof in an action against a railway company for injuries received by a conductor held sufficient to authorize a recovery. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. King, 41 C. A. 433, 91 S. W. 627.

A railroad is liable for injuries to its employé, where a tie being unloaded by an employé had been soaked with creosote, injury to the employé's eye from the tie slipping and spattering creosote was a result such as could reasonably have been anticipated by the company. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 820.

24. Indemnity from joint tort-feasor.—The fact that a servant's injuries are caused by the concurrence of negligence of the master and a third person confers no right of action on the master as against such person. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Powell, 26 C. A. 91, 60 S. W. 979.

An independent contractor held not liable to a railroad company for injuries to a servant of the railroad company through the joint negligence of the latter and such contractor. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 26 C. A. 747, 78 S. W. 819.

The rule that there can be no contribution or indemnity as between wrongdoers held subject to exception. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

25. Contracts limiting or releasing liability.—See Art. 6651 and notes.

III. APPLIANCES AND PLACES FOR WORK

Rule for determining a master's duty with reference to furnish a servant with a place to work and with appliances only required to furnish a reasonably safe place and appliances. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hemphilli (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 356.

Where an employé was at the place of duty ready to begin work when called on, the employer owed him the duty of exercising ordinary care. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 48 C. A. 135, 106 S. W. 773.

The master's duty to use ordinary care to provide reasonably safe tools and appliances and for employes to do their work, and he is liable for failure to do so if contributory negligence or assumption of risk do not intervene. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Snow, 53 C. A. 184, 115 S. W. 631.

The duty of railroad companies to guard employés against the hazard of the employment must be performed in a reasonable manner. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 183.

27. — Appliances.—A railway company must furnish safe machinery and appliances for use by its employés in operating its road. If ordinary and reasonable care is not exercised by the company to do this, it is responsible for injuries to its servants caused by such neglect. L. & N. Ry. Co. v. Kernan, 78 T. 294, 14 S. W. 668, 9 L. R. A. 703, 22 Am. St. Rep. 52.

A railway company, in furnishing appliances to work with, is only required to use such care as an ordinarily prudent man would use under like circumstances. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Schwabhe, 1 C. A. 573, 21 S. W. 706.

The test of diligence in maintaining proper appliances for protection of employés is the exercise of ordinary care. Railway Co. v. Goodwin (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1067; Railway Co. v. Center (Civ. App.) 13 C. A. 321; Railway Co. v. Beatty, 72 T. 592, 11 S. W. 668; Railway Co. v. Lyde, 57 T. 599; Railway Co. v. Oram, 49 T. 341.

It is the duty of the master to exercise ordinary care in furnishing safe appliances, but there is no implied provision that he will do more than exercise such care. Railway Co. v. King, 14 C. A. 290, 57 S. W. 34.

A master is only required to use ordinary care to furnish the servant a reasonably safe instrument with which to do his work. St. Louis Northwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kern (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 971.

A master must use ordinary care to furnish a servant with instrumentalities with which to do his work that are reasonably safe. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 988.

A railroad company held bound to use ordinary care to provide for use by an employé reasonably safe and suitable instrumentalities. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patrick, 50 C. A. 491, 109 S. W. 1007.

A master, failing to furnish a reasonably safe appliance for his servant, is liable for injuries to the servant caused thereby. Faulkner v. Texas & O. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 765.

A brakeman injured by slipping from a loose stirrup on a box car cannot hold the railroad company liable, unless the company had not used ordinary care. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Neef (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1168.

28. — Places for work.—The rule that a railroad company must furnish its employés with a safe place to work is not applicable where plaintiff's injury resulted from the dangerous method of doing the work on which he was engaged. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Weigers, 22 C. A. 344, 54 S. W. 910.

A railroad owes a servant the duty of exercising ordinary care to supply a reasonably safe place for the particular work in hand. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. George, 49 C. A. 367, 59 S. W. 1061.

Rule respecting the duty of a railway company to exercise ordinary care to keep places where its servants are employed in a reasonably safe condition stated. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cleland, 50 C. A. 499, 110 S. W. 132.

The degree of care required of a master in furnishing a safe place for work depends on the character of the place and of the service to be performed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Tuck, 103 T. 72, 123 S. W. 405.

It is the duty of the employer to exercise ordinary care to furnish his employé a reasonably safe place in which to work. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 394.

A master must furnish his servants a safe place for work, while not a part of the stipulation usually embraced in contracts of employment, is implied in all such agreements, and is treated in law as incidental to the relation. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Strickler (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 191.

29. — Not an absolute duty.—It is the duty of a railway company to furnish its servants and employés reasonably safe and suitable machinery and appliances for the work they are employed to do, and to keep the same in reasonably safe and good repair for the operation of its business, and in doing so to use a degree of care proportioned to the hazard or danger which might reasonably be anticipated as consequent upon its negligence in selecting or repairing the same. The railroad company is not bound to furnish absolutely safe machinery or to keep them absolutely safe; but it is required to use reasonable diligence to provide reasonably safe machinery, and after having done so 4316 to keep the same in reasonably safe condition as above prescribed: and if the company fails in either of these respects, and injury is occasioned thereby to one of its employees, their company is guilty of negligence. Ry. Co. v. McClain, 80 T. S. 85. 15 S. W. 729.
It is not the absolute duty of the master to furnish reasonably safe appliances; he is bound only to exercise ordinary care in furnishing same. Bryan v. International & G. N.
R. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 693.
A railroad company must use ordinary care to keep an engine's throttle in a reasonably safe condition; but is not absolutely bound to keep it in such condition. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 49 C. A. 349, 108 S. W. 450.
Railroads held not to be insurers of the safety of their employees. International & G.
30. Care proportionate to risk.—It is the duty of railroad companies to use reasonable care, proportioned to the risk, in selecting and furnishing to their employees implements and appliances with which the latter are to perform their duties, to see that such implements are safe and appropriate ones to be used. The care which they are bound to use is such as ordinarily prudent persons would employ in such matters. Railway Co. v. Crenshaw, 71 T. S. 340, 9 S. W. 262.
The degree of care required by a railroad company towards a servant is not dependent upon what the injured party would be expected to do under the circumstances. Galves-
It is not required to use a greater degree of care towards an employee in danger than towards one who is not in such danger. Id.
Ordinary care, as applied to a railroad's obligation to furnish reasonably safe applicances with which servants are required to perform their duties, may require a very high degree of diligence in accordance with the circumstances surrounding the situation.
Diligence which will amount to ordinary care on the part of an employer to furnish reasonably safe appliances for his employees must be measured by the circumstances of The degree of care required of railroads does not necessarily require the same quantum of diligence to be used; ordinary care in some instances requiring the exercise of great diligence, while in other cases the exercise of the same degree of care demands
It is the duty of the master to exercise ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe and suitable appliances for work, hence a charge that it was the duty of a railroad company to furnish its employees with reasonably safe and suitable appliances and, in doing so, to use a degree of care proportioned to the hazard imposes too high a degree of care. Ft. Worth 31. — Care exercised by other railroads.—See, also, § 35, post.
A railroad company is required only to exercise reasonable and ordinary care in furnishing safe appliances for the use of their employees. No obligation rests upon them to furnish machinery and machinery as safe as that used by railroads generally. G., C.
The degree of care required of railroad companies to prevent injuries to their employees is not such as is ordinarily used by railroad companies. International & G. N. R.
Co. v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 225.
32. — Care dependent on servant's knowledge.—A master is liable for failure to exercise ordinary care in supplying to servants a safe place in which to work, unless it be shown that the servant knew of the master's failure to perform such duty, and knew the risk attending the ordinary performance of his duty, or must necessarily have acquired 33. Delegation of duty.—If the agent employed to furnish implements and applicances fails to discharge his duty, the master is liable to an employee who suffers injury through such neglect. Railway Co. v. McElvea, 71 T. S. 386, 9 S. W. 313, 1 L. R. A. 411, 10 Am. St. Rep. 748.
The company cannot relieve itself of the duty of furnishing safe machinery and appliances by charging its servants with its performance. The neglect of the servant is the neglect of the company. I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Kernan, 78 T. S. 294, 14 S. W. 668, 9 L. R.
The facts that a railroad company enunciated a rule that its employees must examine personally all appliances before trusting them did not excuse it from its duty to inspect engine steps to see that they were free from grease. Bookrum v. Galveston, H. & S. A.
An express company held not relieved from liability for injuries to an employee resulting from defective premises, by reason of a contract between defendant and a railroad company, under which the latter was charged with the duty of keeping the premises
The duty of a railroad company to see that a rule requiring cars left on a grade sliding should be coupled together was complied with, so as to make the cars a reasonably safe place for brakemen to work, held nondelegable. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope, 43 C. A. 616, 97 S. W. 634.
A railroad company held not entitled to delegate to its agent therein its duty of furnishing a safe track and keeping the same in repair. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v.
A railroad company held not entitled to delegate to its agent therein its duty of furnishing a safe track and keeping the same in repair. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v.
A railroad company held not entitled to delegate to its agent therein its duty of furnishing a safe track and keeping the same in repair. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v.
A railroad company held not entitled to delegate to its agent therein its duty of furnishing a safe track and keeping the same in repair. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. putting it back upon the track, if derailed. Arcola Sugar Mills Co. v. Luckey (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1148.

35. Custom and usage.—The test of duty of a railroad company in furnishing machinery is not what railroads do generally, but whether the road in question was reasonably careful. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beall (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 605.

In an action for injuries caused by a defective stirrup on a box car, it is no defense that the railroad's cars had defective stirrups. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Neef (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1168.

Under provisions of contract, railroad company held liable for death of employed caused by defective apparatus of independent contractor. Id.

Where a railroad company permits a locomotive of another company to be brought into its yard and used by its servants, it must exercise reasonable care to see that it is in a reasonably safe condition. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 785.

In an action for injuries sustained by an employed in consequence of a defective stirrup on a foreign car, the proof held not to show that the company knew of the particular defect. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Parish (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 682.

A railroad company requiring its servants to handle foreign cars held bound to exercise reasonable care to ascertain if they are defective, and, if so, to warn its servants of the defects. O'Brien v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Conway, 44 C. A. 626, 98 S. W. 388.

A railroad for which a bridge was being constructed by an independent contractor held not liable under the circumstances for injuries caused by the contractor's negligence. Missouri Valley Bridge & Iron Co. v. Ballard, 63 C. A. 1116, 116 S. W. 93.

37. Defects in tools, appliances and places for work in general.—An employed is entitled to damages for injury received from imperfect implements furnished by a railroad company. Railway Co. v. Scott, 71 T. 709, 140 S. W. 268, 16 Am. St. Rep. 384.

In action by a drawbridge tender, injured by the breaking of the wrench furnished for turning the draw, a finding that the company was negligent held justified. Galveston, H. & N. R. Ry. Co. v. A. C. S. A. 583, 66 S. W. 657.

Railroad company held not guilty of negligence in leaving a defective wrench on the roundhouse floor, within reach, so that it might be used and cause injury to an employed. O'Brien v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 36 C. A. 528, 82 S. W. 319.

It was the duty of his servant to implement, which he ought to know is in a dangerous condition, for such immediate and hurried use that the servant is likely to use it without opportunity to see the defect and the attending danger and to receive injury, the master is liable for any injury resulting therefrom. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Griggs, 101 T. 146, 105 S. W. 486.

An employer is not liable for an injury to a servant not caused by any defect in the place which affected its safety when used in the ordinary way and for the purpose it was intended. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reiden, 48 C. A. 401, 107 S. W. 661.

It was within the master's discretion to appoint a man to the job of driving the locomotive, and that discretion was not abused. Railroad Co. v. Constable, 72 T. 709, 140 S. W. 268, 16 Am. St. Rep. 384.

Where a railroad company furnished its servants open flame lanterns to use around the reservoirs, where light is necessary to enable them to fill the engine tanks. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 372.

Where a railroad company furnished its servants with picks with which to remove old ties, and it was impossible for the servants to avoid striking the rails with the picks. It was the duty of the company to furnish properly tempered picks which would not splinter when coming in contact with the steel rails. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

38. Defective or dangerous machinery.—In the selection of a device for the protection of a servant, a master is required to use ordinary care only. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Putnam, 101 T. 133, 105 S. W. 323.

The right of an employed to recover for damages arising from defective machinery stated. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Geiger, 55 C. A. 1, 113 S. W. 179.

The fact that deceased was an experienced locomotive engineer did not relieve the railroad company by whom he was employed of its duty to use ordinary care to furnish him a safe engine and to use ordinary care in the construction and maintenance of its road. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 21 C. A. 127, 57 S. W. 999.
It is the duty of a railroad company to use ordinary care to provide its locomotives with the best appliances and improvements for the protection of its servants. El Paso & B. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Foth, 101 T. 133, 100 S. W. 171.

A railroad company failing to use ordinary care to discover the defective condition of the standing place on the pilot of its locomotives and remedy the same held negligent. St. Louis, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wise (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 465.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a locomotive fireman by the explosion of the boiler, the happening of the accident did not raise a presumption of negligence on the part of the railroad company. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Garven, 50 S. A. 245, 199 S. W. 426.

An instruction held not erroneous as making it defendant railway receiver's absolute duty to furnish a fireman a reasonably safe engine. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 544.

A railroad company held negligent in not having a key through a king pin used in coupling a tender and engine, the absence of which permitted the pin to work out, causing the death of a fireman. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Snow, 53 C. A. 134, 116 S. W. 631.

A railroad company was negligent toward a fireman in furnishing an engine with such defects that it would move automatically. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 53 C. A. 395, 116 S. W. 882.

Defendant railroad company was negligent in permitting oil and grease to accumulate upon the top of an oil box on an engine which was slanting, and upon which an employee in performance of his duty slipped and was injured. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 692.

A railroad company held not negligent in not having a clean tool box on the tender; the danger of slipping upon stepping thereon being a risk ordinarily incident to work on the tender. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander, 103 T. 594, 132 S. W. 119.

It was not the duty of a railroad company to remove splinters from cordwood used in firing its locomotives. Port Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 889.

Railroad company held bound only to exercise ordinary care to keep running board of engine free from grease or dirt, and hence was not liable for injuries caused thereby, where it was not responsible for the condition. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Riodan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 711.

40. Cars.—In general.—Evidence held to show that a switchman was injured by negligence of defendant in not providing suitable coupling pins. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hauer (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1078.

The placing of brake beams on railroad cars so low that a man falling was caught thereby and crushed to death held not negligence. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Waller, 28 C. A. 4, 66 S. W. 466.

It is negligence for a railroad company to start a train over its road containing cars with coupling appliances so mismatched that those on one car may slip past those on the other, letting the cars together, so as to endanger the life of a brakeman while attending to the coupling. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 563, 66 S. W. 477.

In action against a railroad by a servant, protrusion of a bolt from top of box car held negligence on part of defendant. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bayne, 28 C. A. 392, 67 S. W. 443.

In action for injury to servant alleged to be owing in part to the use of a car with defective wheels, the evidence held not to warrant submission of issue whether the wheels were defective. El Paso & N. W. Ry. Co. v. McComas (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 629.

In an action by an employé of a railroad company for injuries, from being struck by car which had been switched, it was held that defendant was guilty of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ballet, 48 C. A. 641, 107 S. W. 906.

Duty of railroad company to keep in repair oil boxes on freight cars, so that they may be safely used as a step in mounting the car, stated. Pt. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Dage, 55 C. A. 24, 118 S. W. 749.

A fact held not to relieve an electric company from liability for injuries to an employé. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Shalkey (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188.

It is the duty of a railway company to exercise care to equip its cars with attachments for keeping the doors closed to guard against injuries to employés. Carter v. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 638.

A freight car, which a brakeman was required to handle in the ordinary operation of trains, is an appliance when considered with reference to the master's duty to furnish safe implements and appliances. Id.

42. Improper loading.—See, also, §§ 21, 22, ante.

Where a piece of coal fell off of a passing train and injured a section hand standing near the track, the company was guilty of negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 164.

43. Tracks and roadbeds.—In general.—A railroad company is responsible to an employé for negligence in failing to keep its track in order. Railway Co. v. Geiger, 79 T. 13, 15 S. W. 214.

It being the duty of a railroad company to use ordinary care to furnish a reasonably safe track, a brakeman has a right to assume that such duty has been performed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCoy, 17 C. A. 494, 44 S. W. 26.

Railroads have no right to assume that no one will unlawfully interfere with their tracks, it being a fact of common knowledge that railroad tracks are sometimes, without warning tampered with by evil-disposed persons; and the true rule in determining the question of liability is: Did the company exercise the proper care and vigilance to guard against such interference? And the degree of care and vigilance must be in proportion to the degree of probability of such interference and the harm likely to result therefrom. Railway Co. v. Johnson, 23 S. A. 160, 65 S. W. 772.

47. Bridges.—A master, whether a common carrier or not, is only required to exercise ordinary and reasonable care for protection of his servants. This rule is applicable to the duty of a railway company in constructing and maintaining bridges upon its line, in a suit for damages for death of an employé. Railway Co. v. Daniels, 1 C. A. 595, 20 S. W. 955.

48. Obstructions or encroachments on, or over near railroad tracks.—The track on which a switchman was killed "obstructed," within the allelogations of the petition, whether the car which was run into was left overhanging the track, or was left clear and rolled onto the track. Fl. Worth & D. Ry. Co. v. Wrenn, 20 C. A. 628, 50 S. W. 210.

An employer held liable for the death of its servant killed by striking a defective bridge, of which defects the servant had no knowledge. Texas M. R. R. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 361.

49. Maintenance of a railroad bridge having one overhead beam lower than the other beams, and so low that it may strike employés standing on top of cars, held negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Knox, 25 C. A. 450, 61 S. W. 989.

The maintenance of a post so close to a railroad track that a brakeman could be struck while riding on the side of a car in the performance of his duties held negligence, entitling a brakeman so injured to recover. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 33 C. A. 659, 77 S. W. 832.
A railroad company must use reasonable care to have its roadbed free of obstructions calculated to injure its employees. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1113.

An employee of a railroad company, injured by the dropping of a brake rod, cannot recover if the defect existing in the appliance was latent, and could not have been discovered by the company by the use of ordinary care. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Buch, 27 C. A. 253, 65 S. W. 681. If injury results to a railroad employee by reason of negligence in the construction of the track, it is no defense for the company to say that the defect was so hidden and concealed that it could not have been discovered by the exercise of ordinary care. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 357.

52. Inspection and test.—Duty to make in general.—In an action for injuries to a servant at a railroad employed giving way to establish defendant's negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 571.

Evidence held to justify finding that railroad company was negligent in furnishing defective lantern globe to fireman. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Larkin (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 94.

Where inspectors fail to properly inspect railroad tracks, the company is liable for injuries resulting therefrom, notwithstanding a man of ordinary care would reasonably have believed the track was safe. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hagan, 42 C. A. 133, 93 S. W. 1014.

In an action by a fireman for personal injuries, evidence held not conclusive as to defendant's performance of duty to inspect. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Garrett, 44 C. A. 492, 98 S. W. 293.

It is a railroad company's duty to make such a careful and proper inspection of its cars and coupling appliances as an ordinarily prudent person would make under similar circumstances. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Blachley, 56 C. A. 141, 109 S. W. 996.

Where the duty of a master to inspect machinery or implements arises stated. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 899.

53. — Care required in inspecting.—When, by the use of ordinary care in testing the strength of machinery or tools placed in the hands of an employee of a railway company with which to labor, its weakness and dangerous character for the work to be done had been ascertained, and injury resulted from such defect, the company will be chargeable with notice of the defect and consequent liability, in damages for the injury. Railway Co. v. Stillphant, 70 T. 623, 8 S. W. 673.

In an action by a railroad employee for injuries from a defective appliance, a finding that inspection was made held supported by the evidence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Buch, 27 C. A. 283, 65 S. W. 681.

Inspection to relieve from liability held required to be made carefully and by a competent inspector. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sage, 98 T. 438, 84 S. W. 514.

The failure of a master to use ordinary care in inspecting appliances furnished an employee held negligence per se. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. v. Waymire (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 451.

Evidence that a railroad tested but one out of every fifty wheels purchased held not to show negligence in respect to an injured servant. Hover v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 286, 89 S. W. 1084.

A railroad company bound to use ordinary care in the way of inspection to provide its conductor with a reasonably safe place for work. Beaumont, S. L. & W. R. Co. v. Olmstead, 56 C. A. 96, 120 S. W. 596.

A railroad company owed a brakeman no other duty than to exercise ordinary care to discover defects in a hand brake, and was not liable for failure to discover such defect, if it discharged such duty. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Downs (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 714.

Evidence that a railroad tested but one out of every fifty wheels purchased held not to show negligence in respect to an injured servant. Hover v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 286, 89 S. W. 1084.

A railroad company bound to use ordinary care in the way of inspection to provide its conductor with a reasonably safe place for work. Beaumont, S. L. & W. R. Co. v. Olmstead, 56 C. A. 96, 120 S. W. 596.

A railroad company owed a brakeman no other duty than to exercise ordinary care to discover defects in a hand brake, and was not liable for failure to discover such defect, if it discharged such duty. St. Louis Southern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Downs (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 714.

54. — Things to be inspected.—A railroad company held not bound to inspect a wrench by which one of its employees was injured. O'Brien v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 56 C. A. 533, 83 S. W. 319.

Lantern globe held not to require inspection, so that a railroad company was not liable to a fireman for injury caused by a defective globe, merely because it could not prove that it had inspected it. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Larkin, 98 T. 235, 82 S. W. 1026, 1 L. E. A. (N. S.) 241.

It is not the duty of the master to inspect ordinary cordwood for splinters, knots, or other protuberances. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 899.

Chap. 14) RAILROADS Art. 6648
It is the duty of a railroad to inspect the floor of a car as being a place furnished the work. Freeman v. Grashel (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 695.

A jack used to raise and lower railroad cars held not a simple or common tool as to which the master was not required to make inspection. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Odom (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 730.

An employer is under a duty to inspect during use common tools and appliances with which every one is conversant. Id.

Where a railroad had acquiesced and approved the custom of switchmen in riding on the track beam or the engine, it owes the duty to inspect the same, and not allow them to become so loose as to swinging to the side when stopped. Freeman v. Gerrets (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1183.

55. — Foreign cars.—A railroad company is bound to inspect foreign cars coming into its trains as its own. Jones v. Shaw, 16 C. A. 290, 41 S. W. 696.

It is a railroad company's duty to inspect as it does its own cars the cars of other companies used by it and failing to do so, it is liable to an injured employee for any defect in such cars causing him the injury. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Chambers, 17 C. A. 487, 43 S. W. 1060.

An employee of a railroad company was entitled to recover from the employer for injuries caused by a defect in a car which a proper inspection would have discovered, though the car belonged to another road. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. N ass (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 910.

When cars with coupling appliances so defective or mismatched as to be dangerous to the trainmen are tendered to a railroad company for transportation over its road, the defect being discernible on inspection, it must remedy the defect or refuse to take the car. Smith v. Pacific Co. v. Winder, 27 C. A. 508, 56 S. W. 477.

A railroad company receiving a foreign car owes to its employees only the duty of reasonable inspection to determine whether the same is safe. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Parish (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 652.

A railroad company held to owe to a trainman the duty to inspect cars of other companies in its train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harris, 45 C. A. 542, 101 S. W. 506.

56. — Inspection of air brakes.—See Arts. 6571a–6571c.

57. — Time and opportunity for making.—It is the duty of a railroad company to its employees operating its trains to make frequent and thorough inspection of its line of road and bridges; and in case of violent storms it should make such inspection with great promptitude and thoroughness. Railway Co. v. George, 55 T. 158, 19 S. W. 1034.

Evidence held to show an injury to one employed on a freight train to have been caused by the negligence of the company in inspection of car. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Miller, 25 C. A. 460, 61 S. W. 978.

A railroad company does not show freedom from negligence, as matter of law, in not inspecting, during the night, a switch, from a defect in which a train was derailed, killing the engineer, by evidence that it was not its custom or that of other railroads to inspect their tracks at such time. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. McGinnis (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1185.

58. — Delegation of duty.—Ordinarily, the duty of inspection of appliances is on the employer, and, if he may shift the duty by rules, the employees must have knowledge thereof. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Odom (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 760.

59. — Obvious or latent defects.—A defect in a tool, which develops while it is being used is not an obvious one. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Odom (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 730.

60. — Operation and effect.—An inspection of a car by a competent inspector held not to show such defects as might be discovered. A proper inspection a brake man for injuries caused by defects in the car. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 325.

61. — Knowledge by master or danger.—Where a master knows, or could know, and neglects to take proper care by the tools provided for the servant are unsafe, and the servant without contributory fault suffers injury thereby, the master is liable. Smith v. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 83.

In an action by a servant for injuries from an originally defective appliance, the fact that the defects could not be discovered by inspection held no defense. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 184.

Where an employer was injured by defectively fastened hand rail on a locomotive, he was entitled to recover if the employer had notice at any time before the accident of the defective condition. Id.

The liability of a master does not depend upon its actual knowledge of the existence of a danger, but it is liable if, by the exercise of care, it could have had its premises reasonably safe. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Romans (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 167.

It was a street car company's duty to exercise ordinary care to discover a railroad car dangerously near its track, and remove it, and it could not escape liability for injuries to employees caused by the proximity of the car, on the ground that it had no actual notice thereof, and could not control the movement of the railroad car. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 55 C. A. 543, 118 S. W. 538.

In an action for injury to a switchman, who in alighting from an engine stopped on a bridge, was thrown, the facts necessary to show negligence of defendant stated. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jones, 103 T. 187, 125 S. W. 309.

To recover of an employer for an injury, it must appear that the defect causing the injury was of such character that ordinary care on the part of the employer would have discovered and remedied it. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 394.

Where the sagging condition of overhanging telephone wires, by which a railroad brakeman was injured, was due to the act of a stranger, the lapse of an hour and a half or two hours did not charge the company with notice of such condition. Southern Kansas Ry. v. Dean, 44 S. W. 836.

Where an unusual condition is created by the act of a stranger, an employer is not liable for injuries therefrom unless notice is shown either by some circumstance or by a sufficient length of time intervening.

In an unusual condition, by which an employé was injured, caused by a third person does not relieve the employer of liability if, just before and at the time of the accident, another employé, in the discharge of a particular duty owed to the master, might or could have discovered the condition, and failed to do so.

62. Repairs.—In an action for injuries to a servant, an instruction that defendant was negligent in furnishing appliance that was in a reasonably safe condition, and to keep it in such condition, held erroneous. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 757.

A railroad which either knew of a defect in a coupling pin, or in the exercise of ordinary care would have known of such defect, and failed to take reasonable steps to remedy it, was guilty of negligence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Hahll (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 27.

In an action for injuries sustained while engaged in blocking up a defective turntable, the company held negligent in failing to repair the table. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, 53 C. A. 295, 115 S. W. 601.

63. Proximate cause of injury.—In general.—In an action for injuries to a servant, defendant's failure to keep the door of a coal bin in repair held not the proximate cause of the accident. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 40 C. A. 273, 89 S. W. 1117.

Where the mud on a rail was a concuring cause with the defective condition of the wheel and axle of a motor car and of excessive speed of the car in producing its derailment, injuring a servant, the presence of the mud on the rail did not defeat an action for the injury. Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Street, 57 C. A. 194, 122 S. W. 270.

That a switchman injured in coupling a car saw the defect before he was injured would not prevent it from being the proximate cause of his injury. Freeman v. Swan (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 724.

An employé suing for a personal injury must prove negligence proximately causing the injury. Id.

65. Locomotives.—A defect in an engine was not the proximate cause of the moving of the engine and injury to a fireman at work under an attached engine, where the engine was able to control the engine notwithstanding the defect. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Seeger, 44 C. A. 534, 95 S. W. 892.

Where an employé who was putting fuel oil in defendant's engine stepped upon the top of an oil box which was covered with grease, and slipped and fell, defendant's negligence in permitting the box to be covered with grease was the proximate cause of his injuries, caused by the fall. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 602.

The defective condition of a locomotive in allowing steam to escape into the cylinder without opening the throttle held the proximate cause of injury to a fireman. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Seeger (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1170.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman, the fact that plaintiff's foot caught in a guard rail in attempting to couple the car does not render the negligence of defendant in having a defective coupler and in failing to inspect the car too remote to be considered. Hynson v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 625.

67. Tracks and roadbeds.—If a derailment by which an engineer was killed occurred through defects in the track due to the company's negligence, it was liable, though the negligence was running into an animal. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McLane, 24 C. A. 321, 62 S. W. 556.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to a brakeman while coupling cars, evidence held sufficient to support a judgment for plaintiff. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Ames (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 12.

In an action for death of a railroad engineer, it was no defense that the derailment resulted from the acts of wreckers, if defendant was negligent in failing to properly inspect the track. Thompson v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 48 C. A. 284, 106 S. W. 910.

In an action for injuries to a railroad freight brakeman, who was thrown from the top of a car by a sudden jerk of the train and fell on a pile of clinkers beside the track, an instruction permitting a recovery if defendant's negligence in maintaining the pile of clinkers directly contributed to the injury held properly refused. Ayers v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 612.

A railroad company held not liable for injuries to a brakeman after his fall from the top of a moving car, where he ran along the track until he stepped into a hole and was run over. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1127.

Negligent railroad company in piling coal in a way to keep the track, being merely a remote incident and not the proximate cause of injury to defendant by being struck by a lump of coal from a passing tender, held not ground for recovery. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 482.
IV. METHODS OF WORK, RULES AND ORDERS

68. Methods of work and duty to protect servant in general.—A servant of a railroad company held not entitled to recover for injuries, where he was familiar with the work, and the risk was patent, and arose from natural causes, and not from defective appliances. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Martin, 21 C. A. 207, 61 S. W. 641. Where railroad yards and tracks used as a thoroughfare by a servant in the employ of a road, it is the duty of the employers when switching to use due care that those in the yard are not injured. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Balliet, 48 C. A. 641, 107 S. W. 906.

69. Statutory signals.—See Art. 6564 and “For whose benefit duty imposed,” under that article.

70. Care required of master.—Ordinary care and “reasonable care,” as applied to the duty of a master to provide rules for the regulation of his activities, held ordinarily controllable terms. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

71. Care required in general.—In an action for injuries occasioned by falling into an unguarded excavation, evidence held not to entitle defendant to an instruction that, though street lights near by were not sufficient to make the excavation obvious, it was not negligent, if a prudent person would have left it unguarded. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 769.

In an action by an engineer of a rear train for personal injuries, failure to obey the rule requiring ten minutes between trains held contributory negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice, 100 T. 293, 97 S. W. 561.

72. Customary methods.—That a switching crew, by the activities of which deceased, a member of another crew, was injured, acted according to the usual custom at the time did not necessarily relieve it of the charge of negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

73. Knowledge of danger.—Where a brakeman was injured while uncoupling cars by the engineer backing without a signal, it was not necessary that the engineer should have known that the brakeman was between the cars to make his moving the engine negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Courtney, 30 C. A. 544, 71 S. W. 397.

74. Care required in operating locomotives, trains in general.—In an action by an employee against railroad for injuries, certain conduct of a foreman in charge of and assisting in moving a hand car held to show negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith, 31 C. A. 322, 72 S. W. 418.

75. Employés riding on locomotives, trains or cars.—Where plaintiffs deceased, the foreman of a crew operating a hand car, saw an obstruction on the track and directed the men to stop the car, it was their duty to use all the means at hand for that purpose. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perry, 38 C. A. 61, 65 S. W. 62.

It was negligence for a locomotive engineer to suddenly and violently stop a train, when a brakeman was passing along the roofs of the cars. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope, 99 T. 555, 96 S. W. 3.

76. Employés on near tracks.—The duty of one in charge of a passing railroad train to stop its progress on account of the proximity to the track of one in advance of his train does not arise until it becomes manifest that such person intends to go upon the track in front of the train. Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 583, 8 S. W. 494.

The fact that one killed by the negligent running of a train at a greater speed than allowed by law was an employé held not to relieve the company from liability. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Powell (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 638.

77. Employés in charge of railroad trains held to be required to exercise ordinary care to make use of appliances of a train to stop it on seeing another servant on the track. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Jacobson, 28 C. A. 150, 66 S. W. 1111.

Injuries to a railroad trackman by being struck by a hand car held the result of negligence of the employee's charge in charge of the car. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Long, 32 C. A. 40, 74 S. W. 59.

Workman on a railroad bridge, injured by a passing train, held entitled to recover against the railroad company. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Roane (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 646.

A company for negligence, causing the death of a section foreman, the engineer of the train which killed deceased held not entitled to presume that a push car would be removed before the train reached it. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 991.

Locomotive engineers must keep a lookout for persons rightfully on the track. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Burnett, 49 C. A. 244, 108 S. W. 404.

In an action for death of a servant, an instruction requiring that the engineer should have known to him, all the means at his command to have stopped the engine after being notified of deceased's perilous situation held not objectionable as imposing too high a degree of care. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Hodges, 54 C. A. 384, 118 S. W. 767.

Where a train, after being scheduled and not naturally open, was ordered to be held at a certain point, and the engineer was ordered to close the switch for this purpose, and was given to understand by an express that the train was to be stopped, and was called to the track, which he saw was not clear, and he promptly ordered his engineer to stop the train, the plaintiff caused his failure to stop the train to be charged to his failure to act with reasonable prudence, this being the rule of law, and he is liable for any injuries he may have caused as a result. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 96.

The operatives of a train may assume that a servant walking on the track will get out of the way, in the absence of something definitely indicating otherwise. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hope (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1077.

77. Employes working under locomotives.—A railroad company held liable for the act of a switchman in moving an engine out of his way, resulting in the killing of an employé who was thereunder, cleaning it. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1091.

A railway company held liable for injuries resulting from an engineer's failure to prevent an engine from moving while a fireman is under it. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 49 C. A. 349, 108 S. W. 480.

78. Coupling or switching cars.—The fact that a railroad company did not know that a brakeman charged with tending a switch was in need of rest would not relieve it from liability for an accident caused by such brakeman going to sleep and leaving the switch open. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelton, 28 C. A. 137, 56 S. W. 887.

A railroad company is liable to an employé making a coupling for the negligence of the servant in charge of the engine. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wilder, 33 C. A. 72, 15 S. W. 466.

Conduct of locomotive engineer in suddenly stopping a train while switching, not negligence in itself, held not made such because certain cars were uncoupled, which was unknown to him. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Pope, 99 T. 535, 66 S. W. 5. Employés engaged in switching held bound to exercise ordinary care to prevent injury to a section foreman while lawfully crossing the switch tracks. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Turner, 99 T. 547, 91 S. W. 562.

A switchman held negligent in going between a freight car and a post to arrange automatic couplers for coupling at the time he was injured by a movement of the switch engine contrary to custom without signal from plaintiff. Cunningham v. Neal, 49 C. A. 613, 109 S. W. 456.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's intestate while employed as a switchman, the engineer held to have been negligent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pennewell, 50 C. A. 541, 110 S. W. 768.

In an action for death of a switchman, decedent's foreman held negligent in failing to stop another crew before moving the cars on the switch by which decedent would be endangered. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

Trainmen must look out for a switchman required to set the brakes on a loose car to stop it, before they run cars against such car. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reno (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 297.

Employés directing the movement of cars are required to exercise ordinary care to prevent injury to a switchman required to set the brakes on a loose car. 1 id.

Where a switchman, in his required work of setting the brakes on a car after it is kicked onto a switch, had his back to cars following, the railroad company owed him the duty of exercising ordinary care in switching a following cut of cars. Houston & T. W. Ry. Co. v. Boone, 106 T. 188, 146 S. W. 533.

79. Collision.—Where a train is stopped, failure of conductor to send out flagman held to authorize a finding of negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Culpepper, 19 C. A. 182, 46 S. W. 922.

The failure of a standing train to display lights in the cupola of its caboose renders the railroad liable for injuries to a brakeman of a following train proximately caused by such failure. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Lester (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 401.

The foreman of a crew in riding on a hand car, held required, on discovering the approach of a freight train, to remove the car to avoid a collision. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Myers (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 49.

Where a division superintendent and conductor did all that was incumbent on them to stop the train, the movement of which caused a brakeman's death, held, that no recovery could be had therefor. Louisiana Western Extension Ry. Co. v. Carstens, 19 C. A. 196, 47 S. W. 38.

Railroad held liable for injuries to an engineer, caused by disobedience of rule by another train, although such disobedience was not the sole cause of the injury, but merely a concurring cause. San Antonio & A. F. Ry. Co. v. Lester (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 401.

In a servant's action for injuries sustained while removing the nipple on the bottom of an oil tank by the oil rushing out into his eyes, negligence of plaintiff's foreman in directing that the nipple be removed without having closed the valve inside the tank held to have caused plaintiff's injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sanchez, 57 C. A. 87, 122 S. W. 44.

Failure from the nature in which the business is engaged it appeared that in the exercise of ordinary care the master should have foreseen the necessity of making a rule for the protection of the servant, his failure so to do is negligence. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Arms (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1112.

A railroad company held under a substantive duty to establish and promulgate reasonable rules to protect switchmen engaged in an extensive railroad yard. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 99.

Rule that各有 responsibility for the safety of the employees, while in the discharge of duties exposing them to extraordinary dangers. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 708.

It is the duty of a railroad to make and enforce proper rules for the safety of its employees. Gulf, & C. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 95.

A railroad company held bound to use ordinary care to bring a rule governing the method of doing work to employés' attention. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Arms (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1164.

83. — Customary violation.—Rules made by a railroad company for its own employees may be considered as abandoned where permitted to be violated without objection, but rules made solely for the safety of its servants will not be deemed abandoned unless the company insists on their disregard in order to hasten the work. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Conway, 44 C. A. 68, 98 S. W. 1079.

In action for injuries to a brakeman, evidence that it was a custom of defendant's employés to ride on the pilots of its engines while engaged in switching in defendant's yards held admissible without proof of defendant's knowledge. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sowers (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 197.

Failure of employés on some occasions to observe rules promulgated by the master does not show their abandonment or suspension. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ravanelli (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 208.

The rule of a master may be waived by habitual disregard of it with knowledge and acquiescence of servants given the power and authority to enforce it. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 372.

84. — Construction and operation.—Though on stopping a train the engineer should have signaled to send out flagman, it was the duty of the conductor to send one out. Union Pacific R. Co. v. Culpepper, 19 C. A. 177, 40 S. W. 302.

Rule governing section foremen held to apply to heavy rainstorms, by which injury may be done to the track. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Boyce, 39 C. A. 195, 87 S. W. 385.

Rule for the prevention of rear-end collisions held applicable to stops at, as well as between, stations. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 397.

Engineer, having continued in service with full knowledge of the company's rules, impliedly agreed to obey and enforce them, and was bound by them until they were abrogated by the company's consent. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1094.

A rule held to apply where a train stops at any place on the track while it is closely followed by another train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rothenberg (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1157.

A rule of an electric railway company held applicable to an emergency wagon standing on the track to permit an employé to repair the wires. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Sheekle (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188.

85. — Duty to enforce obedience and effect of disobedience.—In an action for the killing of a flagman at a highway crossing, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence on the part of the railroad company. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Goss, 31 C. A. 309, 72 S. W. 94.

A railroad company held not relieved from liability for an injury arising from an employé's failure to flag a train, though the rules established by the company were safe. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 40 C. A. 182, 89 S. W. 29.

A railroad company held liable for injuries to a trackman caused by a conductor's violation of a rule requiring the flagman of a standing train to remain out with torpedoes which he had placed on the rail until he was recalled. Murphy v. Galveston, H. & N. R. Co., 109 T. 449, 101 S. W. 493, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 762.

It is one thing to fail to adopt reasonable rules to protect employés, as alleged by an employé suing for injuries, and another to be negligent in their enforcement, or in failing to furnish signals required thereby as he testified. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. McSwain, 55 C. A. 317, 118 S. W. 874.

Failure to observe the rules of a railroad for the control of its servants held not always negligence per se. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 623.

In an action for injuries to an engineer in a rear-end collision, the evidence held to show the negligence of the operators of the forward train. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bricq (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 613.

86. Orders.—In action by railroad employé for injuries, an instruction as to responsibility of defendant for injuries during obedience to orders held error. Houston, E. & N. Ry. Co. v. Chuntuck, 98 T. 325, 86 T. 123, 118 S. W. 529.

Consent for one employé to direct another, being merely an inference from the evidence, held not to support further inference of authority to make such directions. Texas & P. Coal Co. v. Manning, 34 C. A. 223, 78 S. W. 545.
87. Negligence in giving.—If defendant knew of the danger in sending an employee under an oil tank car to unscrew the nipple of the pipe when the valve was open, so as to permit the oil to rush out when the nipple was removed, but the servant did not know of the danger and could not discover it, defendant would be liable for resulting injuries. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sanchez, 57 C. A. 57, 125 S. W. 44.

Railroad company held negligent in failing to warn a call boy in a switchyard of the danger of being struck by certain scales while riding on the side of a freight car. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Spivey (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 972.

V. WARNING AND INSTRUCTING SERVANT

Railroad company held negligent in failing to warn a call boy in a switchyard of the danger of being struck by certain scales while riding on the side of a freight car. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Spivey (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 972.

The hazard to which plaintiff was exposed held not such as required the master to warn him of the danger. Parish v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 234.

It is the master's duty to exercise ordinary care to see that the premises where the servant works are kept reasonably safe, and to warn him of obstacles placed there, and it is not the servant's duty to inspect the premises. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mains, 37 C. A. 556, 54 S. W. 254.

A sleeping car company held not bound to anticipate that a match would be in one of its berths, and that a servant in cleaning the berth would ignite it, and cause bedbug poison, which he was using in the berth, to explode, so that it was not guilty of negligence causing the injury. First Louisiana & Texas Ry. Co. v. Malloy, 54 C. A. 490, 118 S. W. 721.

A foreman held negligent in failing to warn plaintiff of danger of his work. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Malloy, 54 C. A. 490, 118 S. W. 721.

The principle that a master need not warn his servant of danger unless he knows the danger to which the servant is exposed held not to apply where the danger arises from the negligent act of the master. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Welter (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 45.

It is the duty of a master to warn his servant of dangers incident to his employment unless they are such as he may assume that the servant has knowledge, or will acquire knowledge thereof. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Brandon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 703.

Where a railroad conductor having stopped a train at night on a trestle which he knew was opened on one side only, failed to warn a train porter to alight on that side of the trestle in ordering him to deliver an oil can to the engineer, and the porter alighted on the other side, fell, and was injured, the failure to warn was negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dunkley (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 937.

89. Movement of locomotives, trains or cars.—An engineer injured by collision with another train can show that no notice was given him that the other train was late. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 265.

Evidence considered, and held to justify a finding that defendant was negligent in causing the tender to an engine to be pushed back while plaintiff was cleaning the engine cab without giving him notice. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quay, 27 C. A. 618, 68 S. W. 219.

In an action against railroad for injuries to servant, held that engineer was guilty of negligence in backing locomotive without signal or warning. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper, 33 C. A. 319, 77 S. W. 263.

In an action against a railroad company for negligence, causing the death of a section foreman, who was killed while attempting to remove a push car from the track, an instruction that defendant was not negligent in failing to whistle for a public crossing held properly refused under the evidence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 991.

In an action against railroad for injury to engineer in collision with forward section of his train, defendant held not liable for negligence in failing to advise the rear section of the situation and take steps to prevent the collision. Quinn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 395.

In an action by an engineer of a rear train for personal injuries, failure to send a flagman from the forward train held, under certain circumstances, not negligence warranting a recovery. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bric, 100 T. 203, 97 S. W. 461.
Operatives of a switch engine held negligent in continuing to back certain cars for the purpose of coupling them onto a train without due regard to the danger of reversing the block signal, and contrary to the custom in the yard, by which negligence plaintiff was injured. Cunningham v. Neal, 49 C. A. 613, 109 S. W. 455.

Defendant railroad held liable to brakeman for injuries resulting from defendant's failure to signal the moving of a car. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 377.

90. Statutory signals.—See Art. 6564 and notes.
91. Duties of dispatcher.—See also, Art. 6553 and notes.

Train dispatcher's failure to notify engineer of whereabouts of a train with which he is liable to collide held negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Higgins, 22 C. A. 450, 55 S. W. 744.

92. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—A railway company employing a minor as a brakeman held to have violated a primary duty in failing to instruct him. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Evans, 16 C. A. 68, 41 S. W. 50.

If the company knew that the switchman is inexperienced, it should instruct him as to particular dangers of his employment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hughes, 22 C. A. 134, 54 S. W. 264.

An employé injured while grinding a planer tool on an emery wheel held entitled to recover, though the wheel was not intended for grinding a tool in the manner adopted, and though he knew the velocity of the wheel. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Archambault (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1108.

In an action for death of an employé by being overcome by paint fumes while he was painting the inside of a locomotive tank, defendant held guilty of negligence in not warning him of the danger. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rutland, 45 C. A. 621, 101 S. W. 523.

Facts considered, and held to show that a servant did not assume the risk of injury by taking a position on top of a gravel car in attempting to unload it. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 49 C. A. 573, 109 S. W. 478.

An employer held required to inform an employé of the peculiar dangers attending a particular service. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McCoy, 54 C. A. 278, 117 S. W. 446.

In an action for injuries to a minor servant, defendant held negligent in failing to instruct plaintiff as to the proper method of cleaning a machine, and of not warning him of the danger of cleaning it while in motion. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Plummer, 57 C. A. 563, 122 S. W. 942.

Where a servant is directed to perform a dangerous operation, and the danger is not obvious and injury results, the master is liable, though its foreman did not know of the servant's ignorance where the servant's ignorance is apparent. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Brandon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 768.

A rail road company held liable to its servant for injuries resulting without his fault where its foreman directed him to do work he had not contracted to do, and failed to warn him of the danger. Ibid.

An infant, acting as a car checker, should be warned of the danger of riding on trains if he is expected to do so or his duties require it; but, if it is not required, he is a mere licensee when riding on trains and takes them with all defects. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 703.

93. Dangers known to employé.—Railroad conductor, having stopped his train at night on a trestle floored on one side only, in ordering his porter to go forward to the engine, knew that the porter knew any person would be liable to fall from the trestle. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bunkley (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 937.

Where dangers incident to employment are not obvious, and where the servant has not been instructed in the service, it is the master's duty to warn the servant of dangers. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Brandon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 762.

The danger to an employé from straightening a car with a jack screw held not so apparent as to relieve the master of the duty of instructing and warning. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Newton (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 873.

95. Dangers from extraneous sources.—Railroad held under no obligation to warn a call-boy of danger to be apprehended from riding around yards on freight trains. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Spivey, 97 T. 145, 78 S. W. 748.

A master may assume that a servant understands risks incident to his employment, but must warn him of those not incident to his employment. Brandon v. Texarkana & Ft. Smith Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 968.

96. Sufficiency of warnings.—A foreman of a section gang held required to give such notice of the approach of a train as to enable his men to get out of danger from flying cinders. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Pollock (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 843.

97. Proximate cause of Injury.—The proximate cause of injury to a section foreman caused by a hand car on which he was riding exploding a torpedo placed on the track by the company's negligence in not placing a flagman to warn the section-men of the location of the torpedo. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Murphy, 52 C. A. 420, 114 S. W. 443.

Failure of a sleeping car company to warn a servant that an insect poison was employed held held negligence causing an injury to a servant by an explosion of the poison. Pullman Co. v. Caviness, 53 C. A. 540, 116 S. W. 410.

Plaintiff's injury held to have proximately resulted from defendant's negligence in failing to instruct him as to the proper method of cleaning a machine, and in failing to 4328 warn him of the danger of cleaning it while in motion. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Plumer, 57 C. A. 563, 122 S. W. 941. Where a conductor, having stopped a train at night on a trestle, which he knew was floored on one side only, failed to warn a train porter to alight on that side of the trestle in ordering him to deliver an oil can to the engineer, and the porter alighted on the other side, fell, and was injured, the conductor's failure to warn is the proximate cause of the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bunkley (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 937.

VI. FELLOW SERVANTS

98. Who are fellow servants.—See Art. 6642 and notes.

99. Nature and application of doctrine in general.—In a suit for injuries to a servant, defendant held not liable if the sole proximate cause was the act of plaintiff's fellow servant, rather than the act was negligence or not. Chicago, I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 46 C. A. 273, 89 S. W. 1117.

100. Duty to provide adequate number.—A master held liable for the injuries received by a servant while handling a wooden beam with inadequate assistance. San Antonio Traction Co. v. De Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 428.

A master held bound, not only to provide a sufficient number of servants to perform the work, but to see that an adequate number of men is assigned to each particular of the work from time to time. Bonn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 808.

A master is bound to exercise ordinary care to employ a sufficient number of servants to perform the work with reasonable safety to themselves. Turner v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of St. Louis, 45 C. A. 660, 119 S. W. 719.

The negligencing of an incompetent in furnishing him held to authorize a recovery by a servant injured thereby, though the latter had equal means of knowledge with the master as to the incompetency of the fellow servant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Garwood (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 778.

102. Care required of master.—A railway company, in the selection of its employés and furnishing appliances to work with, is only required to use such care and caution as an ordinarily prudent man would use under like circumstances. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Scarbrough, 1 C. A. 573, 21 S. W. 766.

An employer is liable to an employé for injuries resulting from a failure to exercise reasonable care in selecting co-employés or in retaining co-employés when their incompetency is known, or by the exercise of reasonable care might have been known. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 40 C. A. 163, 89 S. W. 29.

The duty of using ordinary care in the selection of servants is one personal to the master; and failure to use such care to discover incompetency is a breach of duty, and, if it be the proximate cause of injury to another servant, the master is liable. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelley, 99 T. 87, 97 S. W. 660.

Habits and reputation.—In an action for injury predicated on the negligence of an incompetent conductor, the fact that its rules of the company forbade drinking did not make it negligent in employing a drinking man. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 92 T. 372, 48 S. W. 570.

Proof of an employé being a drinking man is improper as affecting his competency, he not being shown to be drunk at the time of the accident. Id.

That an employé is an habitual drunkard need not necessarily make him incompetent, nor the company negligent in employing him. Id.

Testimony of a conductor that an engineer had no idea of speed, and would pull a train down hill as fast as he could turn a wheel, held admissible on the question of the latter's competency. Id.

A master is not liable for injuries to a servant caused by the negligence of a fellow servant. Faulkner v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 765.

106. Statutory provisions limiting doctrine.—See, also, Arts. 6640-6643 and notes.

The fellow-servant doctrine is modified by statute, and does not apply, where a party has been injured on account of a defective switch and track, because the deceased had no control over or connection with such switch or track, and his assumed risks resulting from the negligence of a fellow servant does not include hazards which flow from the master's negligence, unless he is apprised of the existence of such hazard, and continues to expose himself. Railroad Co. v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 160, 55 S. W. 772.

107. Nature of act and performance of duties of master.—In general.—The doctrine of fellow servants does not apply to the death of a brakeman resulting from neglect to attend to the switch or track on which he had no control. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 160, 55 S. W. 772, 787.

Negligence of plaintiff's fellow servants in constructing appliances for the lowering of iron liquid oil tanks, by which plaintiff was injured, held the negligence of the master. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons, 39 C. A. 189, 87 S. W. 842.

A railroad company held liable for the injuries received by an employee on a work train, where the train dispatcher failed to comply with a rule of company. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 40 C. A. 162, 89 S. W. 29.

Where a locomotive engineer knew that a fireman was at work under an attached engine, ordinary care on the part of the engineer would be the use of every precaution to prevent the engine from moving. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Seeger, 44 C. A. 534, 98 S. W. 892.

Workmen for a railroad company were engaged under a division engineer in replacing old piers under a bridge crossing a river with new ones and while so doing a freight train crossing the bridge fell into the river by reason of the bridge breaking in two and the conductor was injured. The accident was caused by undermining the old piers without furnishing sufficient support for the bridge. The workmen and the division engineer were the alter ego of the company, as to the conductor (the party injured) and as they were negligent the company was liable. Beaumont, S. L. & W. R. Co. v. Oimstead, 56 C. A. 96, 120 S. W. 600.

A train having stopped on a switchman's signal for the purpose of uncoupling cars, it was negligence for the engineer to start without a signal to that effect. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 141.

Scope of employment.—A switchman, who, in violation of a rule of the company, boarded and moved an engine, was held to have acted within the general scope of his duties, and hence the company was liable for the death of a fireman killed by the moving of the engine. Masterson v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1001.

In loading express matter in the car an express messenger is acting within the scope of his duties, and a fellow servant cannot recover because of the negligent manner in which it is done. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Page, 39 C. A. 489, 68 S. W. 628.

The master is held liable for injuries received by an employed caused by the negligence of a fellow servant only where the injured servant was at the time of the injury engaged in the performance of his duty under his employment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hendricks, 49 C. A. 314, 108 S. W. 745.

Inspection and repair.—The failure of a railroad company to make a reasonable inspection of its appliances furnished an employing will constitute negligence in the company, though the duty of inspection was committed to a servant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Buck, 27 C. A. 233, 65 S. W. 681.

A railroad company cannot shift its duty of inspection and starting out only such cars as it deems безопасен, by a rule forbidding them to put cars into a train which are not properly equipped. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 603, 66 S. W. 477.

A railroad held liable for the act of a car repairer done in the line of his duty and within the scope of his general employment. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 82.

110. Vice principals and other representatives of master—Who are vice-principals.—See Art. 6641 and notes.

111. Nature of act or omission and performance of duties of master.—Negligence of a railroad section foreman in failing to notify plaintiff and other employees under him about a car going out of control with a passenger train at his closed negligence of the railroad company. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Tisdale, 39 C. A. 372, 87 S. W. 1063.

In an action for injuries received while blocking up a defective turntable because plaintiff's foreman released a push car on the track which he had been holding, the foreman held negligent in releasing the car. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, 55 C. A. 296, 115 S. W. 601.

The foreman's negligence in releasing the car held the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. 11.

In an action for injuries to a servant a charge held properly to state the jury's duty to look to the facts and circumstances surrounding a foreman whose act was alleged to have been negligent to determine whether it was negligent. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson, 103 T. 320, 127 S. W. 539.

In an action for injuries to a servant by lifting an engine spring under orders of his master, the master held not free from actionable negligence as a matter of law. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 92.

Where an employed was not negligent, but was injured by negligence of his employer, he could recover, though his fellow servants' negligence contributed to the injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Maupin (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 346.

In an action for injuries to a servant, an instruction that the evidence showed another servant to have been a fellow servant of plaintiff, and that, if plaintiff's injuries were caused by the other's negligence, he could not recover, held properly refused, since plain-

Where defendant employed plaintiff's son without his consent, knowing that the son was a minor, and the service was dangerous, and the son was injured, plaintiff could recover. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hervey (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1906.

113. — Vice principal and fellow servant.—Servant can recover for injury prox­imately caused by concurrent negligence of the foreman and his fellow or his servants without concurrent negligence on his part. Railroad Co. v. Hanning, 20 C. A. 649, 49 S. W. 116.

The negligence of a fellow servant, concurring with the negligence of a vice principal, does not relieve the master from liability. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pelfrey, 35 C. A. 501, 80 S. W. 1036.

114. — Operation of locomotives, trains and cars.—Negligence of engineer in run­ning the train at a reckless speed over a track covered with sand held not to save the company from liability to a fellow servant injured thereby, where the company was negligent in allowing the sand to accumulate. Trinity & S. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 926.

A railroad company held not relieved from liability for injuries to a brakeman caused by the negligent act of its engineer in operating a train, because such engineer might have foreseen that the company itself had been guilty of a concurring act of negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Pope, 43 C. A. 616, 97 S. W. 534.

In an action for death of a car repairer caused by movement of a car under which he was working, failure of his helper to maintain a lookout was not such intervening negligence as will prevent recovery. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1083.

115. — Defects in appliances and places for work.—Though fellow servants of an injured employé start in motion cars injuring the employé, held not to excuse the master from liability, where defective brakes caused the accident. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Rains (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 635.

Where the negligence of the master is a concurring cause of an injury with the negligence of a fellow servant, the master is liable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1072.

Where defendant's bumper beam caused the injury, concurring negligence of fellow servants does not affect liability of master. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Zapp (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 672.

Where an employé is injured by falling into an open excavation near defendant's tracks, whether the employés who made the excavation acted prudently in leaving it unguarded cannot relieve defendant from liability. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 769.

Fact that fellow servant of plaintiff, injured by the falling of a 'grain door from the top of a car, had fastened up the door, held not to preclude recovery, where the defective fastening and negligent inspection were the proximate causes of the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hutchens, 35 C. A. 343, 80 S. W. 415.

116. — Number and competency of fellow servants.—A servant, injured by the negligence of a vice principal in ordering an incompetent servant to assist him, may recover therefor, though the negligence of the fellow servant contributes to the injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 762.

Where an employé was incompetent, the fact that an accident resulting in injuries to a coemployé was caused by his negligence did not excuse the master from liability for the coemployé's injuries. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 40 C. A. 162, 89 S. W. 29.

117. Willful acts and gross negligence of fellow servants.—Where a railroad employé was injured by the engineer's sudden increase of the speed of the engine as plaintiff was
VII. ASSUMPTION OF RISK

118. When assumed risk a defense.—See Art. 6645 and notes.
119. Where safety appliance act is violated.—See Art. 6646 and notes.
120. Where statutes for protection of employees are violated.—See Art. 6650 and notes.

VIII. CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE

121. When contributory negligence a defense.—See Art. 6644 and notes.
122. Where safety appliance act is violated.—See Art. 6646 and notes.
123. Rules as to comparative negligence.—See Art. 6649 and notes.

IX. ACTIONS

124. Notice of claim for damages.—See, also, Art. 5714.
126. Filing suit for injuries to a servant within 90 days after the injury held a sufficient compliance with a contract condition, requiring notice of the time, place, and circumstances of the injury within such period. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Garren (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 726.
127. Release of claims.—See notes under Art. 6651.
128. See, also, Chapter 5 of Title 37.
129. Parents suing for the death of a minor son employed by defendant held to have no right to recover, where they consented to the employment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brice, 16 C. A. 68, 41 S. W. 80.
130. A charge in an action for death of a minor son held to properly define acquiescence on issue whether the parents acquiesced in his employment by defendant. Id.
132. The fact that an action for the death of a railroad employé was brought in the name of the real beneficiaries, and not in the name of some administrator or executor of the decedent's estate, did not prevent a recovery. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Seals (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1099.
133. Pleading.—See notes under Art. 1827.
134. Presumptions, burden of proof and admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 5987.
135. Weight and sufficiency of evidence in general.—In case of master and servant negligence is not to be inferred from the character of the accident. The burden is upon the servant to show negligence on the part of the master, and due care on his own. Railway Co. v. Crowder, 63 T. 592; Railway Co. v. Waldo (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 1094; McCray v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 548.
137. Facts held sufficient to sustain a judgment for the plaintiff in an action to recover for the negligent killing of a servant. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. White, 23 C. A. 280, 56 S. W. 204.
139. In an action to recover for the death of an employé, evidence held insufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Leefller (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 568.
140. In a suit by an employé for injuries received while lining rails on a bridge with an implement unsuitable for such purpose, facts held to entitle plaintiff to recover. Smith v. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 82.
147. In an action by a fireman, against a railroad, for injuries received, evidence held to show that defendant was negligent, and that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Bussong, 40 C. A. 476, 90 S. W. 72.
148. Evidence held to warrant finding that defendant was negligent, that plaintiff was not guilty of negligence, and that the injuries were not the result of any risk ordinarily incident to his employment. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 665.

RAILROADS

Art. 6648

In an action by a locomotive fireman for personal injuries received in a wreck, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Garrett, 44 C. A. 406, 98 S. W. 932.

Evidence, in an action for injury to an employé, held sufficient to sustain a verdict on the ground of negligence from a risk not assumed. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Middleton, 103 C. A. 497, 103 S. W. 237.

In an action by a servant for injuries received while attempting to set a defective brake on one of defendant's cars, evidence examined, and held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Griggs, 101 T. 145, 106 S. W. 486.

Evidence in an action for injury to a brakeman who fell across a track and was run over by cars held to show that a defective cross-tie caused his fall, that the accident resulted from the company's negligence, and that he was not guilty of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cleland, 60 C. A. 499, 110 S. W. 122.

In a brakeman's action for injuries from falling from the footboard of a tender, evidence held to sustain a verdict in his favor. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barrow (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 665.

130. Existence of relation.—In an action for the death of plaintiff's son, evidence held insufficient to show a contract between the son and defendant's agent by which the latter undertook to teach the son telegraphy, and he in return agreed to assist the agent in and around the depot and pump station, so as to create the relation of master and servant between defendant and deceased. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Ape, 136 C. A. 268, 153 S. W. 401.

Evidence held not to show that the relation of master and servant, in any of its forms, existed between the defendant and plaintiff's son, but to show that, at the time of the accident, he undertook to start a pump of his own accord, without notifying defendant's agent of his purpose. Id.

131. Scope of employment.—In an action for negligent death of an employé, the evidence held to show that decedent was at the time of the injuries in the duty of his employment. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 48 C. A. 136, 106 S. W. 773.

Evidence in an action for the death of a brakeman, which occurred in a wreck when his train ran into an open switch, held insufficient to require the jury to find that the switch had been tampered with by a trespasser, as the company contended. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 160, 55 S. W. 722.

Evidence as to the inspection of machinery held to warrant a finding that the owner could have discovered a defect in a machine. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hayden, 29 C. A. 286, 58 S. W. 530.

In an action for injuries to a locomotive engineer, who ran his train into cars standing on the main track, evidence considered, and held sufficient to show that the engineer had not been furnished with a time card. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vanlandingham, 29 C. A. 206, 58 S. W. 842.

Evidence, in an action for injury to an employé who was run down by an engine, held to warrant a finding that no switchman was on the footboard of the tender to keep a lookout ahead. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Wafer, 48 C. A. 279, 106 S. W. 897.

Evidence held insufficient to justify a finding that a switch was closed by a brakeman and afterwards forcibly opened by an unauthorized person. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Shapard, 54 C. A. 596, 118 S. W. 596.

133. Evidence as to cause of injury.—In general.—Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of injuries received by plaintiff while in its service. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Newburn (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 542.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that an employé's injury was caused by the negligence of the employer. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hayden, 29 C. A. 280, 58 S. W. 530.

Evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff's injuries were due to contact with certain poisons. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gardner, 29 C. A. 90, 69 S. W. 217.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a brakeman's death was attributable to defects in the coupling apparatus, the step of the pilot, and the track. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Greenwood, 40 C. A. 252, 89 S. W. 810.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that the cause of an employé's injury was as alleged in the complaint. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 100 T. 267, 95 S. W. 240.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the want of sufficient light at the time was at least a concurring proximate cause of the injury. Chicago, R. L. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 48 C. A. 567, 108 S. W. 483.

Evidence held to show that the negligence of other employés was the cause of plaintiff's injuries. Tarrant Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 173.

Evidence held to justify a finding that an employé's death was proximately caused by the employer's negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 118 S. W. 841.

In an action for injury to a lumber company's employé while riding on a logging train which was derailed, evidence held to warrant a finding that the accident proximately caused his insanity. Knox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1134.
124. Defective or dangerous appliances.—In an action for injuries to a fireman, evidence held insufficient to show as a matter of law that the broken or disconnected condition of stay chains attached to a tank spout was not the proximate cause of the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dickson, 40 C. A. 550, 90 S. W. 507.

Evidence held sufficient to show that a section foreman's injuries were caused by his failure to inspect and to disconnect a water hose connected to the railroad company's water tank, which was the proximate cause of the death of the employee. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 966.

125. Defects in cars and locomotives.—In an action for death of a railroad brakeman, facts held insufficient to show that a defect in the drawer connecting the engine with the tender was the proximate cause of decedent's death. English v. International & G. N. Ry. Co., 44 C. A. 467, 98 S. W. 913.

126. Obstructions on, over or near tracks.—In an action against a railroad for injuries to a servant while riding on a hand car, owing to an obstruction across the track, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the injury was due to the negligence of defendant in putting an obstruction on the track without warning to plaintiff. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Kelly, 34 C. A. 21, 80 S. W. 1073.

In a conductor's action against a street car company for injuries by being struck by a coal car on a railroad switch near the street car track, evidence held to show that defendant's negligence in not discovering the proximity of the car and having it removed, concurring with the negligence of the railroad company, proximately caused plaintiff's injury. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 55 C. A. 543, 118 S. W. 838.

127. Operation of trains, cars and locomotives.—Verdict that a fireman was injured by an explosion of engine held against proximity of evidence. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Bolster (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 41.

Evidence of a conductor's negligence held sufficient to warrant the conclusion that it was the cause of an injury to a brakeman, authorizing a recovery from the company. Ft. Worth & P. Ry. v. Bowen, 30 C. A. 177, 68 S. W. 376.

In an action for the death of a railroad section foreman, who was killed while attempting to remove a push car from the track, evidence held to show negligence in the engineer of the train which struck the car to be the proximate cause of his death. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 971.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman, evidence held to sustain a finding that the engineer negligently brought the train to a sudden stop, which was the proximate cause of plaintiff's fall and injury. St. Louis Northwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope, 45 C. A. 616, 97 S. W. 534.

128. Warnings and signals.—Evidence in action for negligent injury held sufficient to have justified finding that engineer's failure to signal was the proximate cause of accident. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 31 C. A. 327, 72 S. W. 219.

Evidence held in an action by a servant to recover for injuries held to show that the proximate cause was the removal of a signal to prevent engines and cars running on the track where plaintiff was at work. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 358.

In an action for injuries sustained by plaintiff's train colliding with another train at a station, evidence held insufficient to show that the other train overstayed its time at the station so as to require it to send back a flagman. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1054.

129. Evidence as to master's negligence—In general.—Evidence held sufficient to justify a finding, in an action against a railroad company for a brakeman's death, that the company was negligent, unless it submitted explanatory testimony, or showed that it had exercised proper care. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 160, 55 S. W. 772.

In an action by servant for injuries, evidence held to show negligence of defendant. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gardner, 29 C. A. 90, 69 S. W. 217.

Evidence in switchman's action for injuries held to sustain findings favorable to plaintiff as to defective appliances and discovered peril. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Skaggs, 32 C. A. 363, 74 S. W. 783.

Evidence held to support a finding that the death of plaintiff's intestate, a railway brakeman, was caused by defendant's negligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Caskey, 37 C. A. 463, 84 S. W. 284.

In an action for injuries to a servant, evidence held to sustain a finding of negligence. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Crosson, 39 C. A. 369, 87 S. W. 867.

In an action for injuries to a servant injured by the raising of the hammer of a pile driver, evidence considered, and held sufficient to warrant a finding of negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Huyett (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1118.

In an action for injuries to an employé while unloading lumber from a car, a finding of negligence held authorized. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Burns (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 618.

In an action for injuries to an employé while assisting in carrying a rail, a finding that the employer was negligent held authorized. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bonn, 44 C. A. 631, 99 S. W. 413.
Evidence in an action by a servant for injuries through negligence held insufficient to show negligence on defendant's part. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hall, 45 C. A. 493, 102 S. W. 740.

Evidence in a servant's action for injuries while moving car wheels from a box car as to defendant's negligence held sufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Freeman v. Grashel (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 695.

140. — Inexperienced or youthful employes.—The testimony of witnesses, in an action by a minor against a railroad company for personal injuries, held sufficient to show that the company knew that plaintiff was a minor at the time he was employed. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Preacher (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 593.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the employment was dangerous. Id. In an action for injuries to a servant from dangers incident to the work that were not obvious and of which the servant was ignorant, evidence held to show that defendant's foreman should have known that plaintiff was ignorant of the danger. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Brandon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 703.

141. — Defective tools and appliances.—In an action by a servant for injuries received through using a defective pinch bar, evidence examined, and held to warrant a finding that defendant was negligent. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Schuhr, 46 C. A. 356, 102 S. W. 783.

In an action for injuries to a servant caused by a sliver flying off from a defective chisel, hammer, and striking plaintiff in the eye, evidence held to support a finding that defendant was negligent. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Trujerina, 51 C. A. 100, 111 S. W. 239.

Evidence held to show that a railroad company was negligent in using a defective wagon. Tex. Co. of Texas v. Bush, 45 S. W. 224.

Evidence held to warrant findings of a brake beam on a car, causing injury to a brakeman, having been defective, as a reasonable inspection would have shown. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Keith (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 695.

Evidence held to show that defendant was negligent in failing to furnish plaintiff a reasonably safe track drill. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 966.

142. — Defective or dangerous places.—When an employe was injured by the falling of a stack of ties, held, that the evidence sustained a verdict in his favor based on defendant's neglect to maintain the premises in a safe condition. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Ethols, 17 C. A. 677, 41 S. W. 488.

In an action to recover for injuries sustained by falling into a pit in the roundhouse, evidence held not sufficient to justify a finding that the planks furnished to serve as a bridge across such pit was insufficient or defective. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butchek (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 335.

In an action for injury to an employe while unloading a heavy object by pulling it off a truck, caused by it falling on him, evidence held to show that the place was reasonable. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 69, 129 S. W. 224.

In an action for injuries to a freight conductor slipping on an obstruction on the platform at a station while attempting to board his train, evidence held to show actionable negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sandy (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 498.

Evidence, in an action for injuries to an engineer from the breaking of a side rod of his engine, held sufficient to establish that the rod broke by reason of an old crack and crystallization, which was discoverable by proper inspection. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Collins, 31 C. A. 70, 71 S. W. 560.

In an action for injuries to a servant, who, when attempting to step down from a platform of a caboose, fell and was injured, evidence considered, and held to show that the construction of the step on the caboose was a reasonably safe one. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hemphill (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 350.

In an action for injuries to a locomotive engineer caused by a step on an engine giving way, his testimony held to make out a prima facie case of negligence against the company. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Cherry, 44 C. A. 584, 98 S. W. 888.

In an action for the death of a servant of a railroad company by a door of a box car falling on deceased, evidence examined, and held to show that the falling of the door was due to negligence of employees of railroad company. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Muehle, 47 C. A. 569, 100 S. W. 1149.

Evidence held to show negligence of a railway company respecting a defective boiler, an explosion of which injured a fireman. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 554.

In a railroad fireman's action for injuries, evidence held to show that ash-pan attachments on an engine were defective. Freeman v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1194.

In an action for injuries to a servant falling into the manhole on a locomotive tender, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence in failing to maintain a proper lid over the hole. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Meehan (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 190.
 Allegation of negligence in not using engines of a different pattern held unsupported by the evidence, where it did not appear whether engines used were of an approved pattern, or whether engines of any different pattern existed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Riordan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 711.

Evidence, in a brakeman's action for injuries by being thrown from a car by the sudden movement of the brake wheel, because of a defective ratchet dog which failed to hold, held to sustain a finding that the brake dog was defective. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Downs (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 714.

144. --- Tracks and roadbeds.—In an action for injuries to a switchman, evidence held to sustain a finding of defendant's negligence in failing to keep its yard clear of obstructions, in allowing a frog to remain unfilled without notifying plaintiffs of its condition. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Toliver, 37 C. A. 437, 84 S. W. 375.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman, owing to his having stumbled over a clinker on the track while endeavoring to uncouple cars, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding of negligence in the presence of the clinker. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Keefe, 37 C. A. 588, 84 S. W. 679.

Evidence in an action for a brakeman's death held to support a finding that his fall was caused by a lurch of the car, due to the defective condition of the track, and that the railroad company was negligent in permitting its track to be and remain in that condition. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Wallis, 47 C. A. 120, 104 S. W. 418.

In a conductor's action against a street car company for injuries by being struck by a coal car on a railroad switch near the street car track, evidence held to show negligence of defendant in not discovering the proximity of the railroad car to its tracks, and having it removed. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 55 C. A. 543, 118 S. W. 835.

In an action for injury to a switchman, who in alighting from an engine stepped on a broken rail, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant's employes were negligent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jones, 103 T. 157, 125 S. W. 309.

Evidence held to show that a railroad company was negligent in constructing a clinker on the track, and in permitting it to remain in defective condition. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 711.

Evidence held not to support a finding of negligence in failing to have a turntable lined up for the main track at the time of the accident. Delancey v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 259.

145. --- Operation of trains, cars and locomotives.—Where deceased was killed by a car run in where he was working, held to establish defendant's negligence, both in failing to use diligence to enforce its rules for warning its servants, and because of the neglect of its foreman to give warning. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Eberhart (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1060.

In an action for injuries to a servant, run over by a train in defendant's yard, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that plaintiff's injuries were proximately caused by defendant's negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Melville (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 863.

In an action for the death of a brakeman on a logging train in a collision between the train and a car, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence on the part of the employer. Ragley Lumber Co. v. Parks, 46 C. A. 539, 103 S. W. 424.

In an action for a fireman's death by collision, evidence held to sustain a finding that the engineer was negligent. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Holt, 57 C. A. 19, 121 S. W. 581.

In an action by a section hand for injuries, evidence held to warrant a finding that the engineers who left the track to avoid a passing train was too short. Pollock v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 103 T. 69, 123 S. W. 408.

In an action for injuries to an engineer in a collision with cars on a side track in railroad yards, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Finklen (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 52.

In an action for injury to a brakeman while coupling cars, evidence held to warrant a finding that the engineer was negligent. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 522.

In an action for a brakeman's death, held, on the evidence, that the defendant's failure to place a brakeman on top of the rear car of a train, which deceased had been ordered to flag, might be found to be concurrent negligence or the proximate cause of his death. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finklen (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 612.

146. --- Negligence in giving orders.—Evidence held not to support a finding that the foreman of a train was negligent in directing the crew to remove a hand car from the track in front of an approaching train. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Myers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 49.

147. Knowledge by master of defect or danger.—Evidence held to show that the engineer knew that plaintiff was cleaning the ash pan when he started the engine. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hampton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 89.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the train operatives realized the plaintiff's peril in time to have stopped the train. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hope (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1077.

Evidence held to support jury's findings that engineer and fireman of switch engine were negligent in failing to discover dangerous position of a crossing flagman in time to avoid a collision, but that such negligence was the proximate cause of his death. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Sultor (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 182.

148. --- Inspection and repair.—A finding by the jury, in an action against a railroad company for a brakeman's death, that the company owed him the duty of inspecting the switch at least once during every six hours, and that it was guilty of negligence in failing to do so, held proper. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Johnson, 24 C. A. 150, 55 S. W. 712.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to a trainman caused by a defective flange, evidence held insufficient to sustain that the defect should have been discovered by the railroad. Hover v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 281, 89 S. W. 1084.

In an action for injuries received by a fireman, evidence held to justify a finding of negligence in failing to inspect the engine. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lynch, 40 C. A. 543, 90 S. W. 511.

In an action for injuries received while employed as a fireman on defendant's engine, evidence considered, and held insufficient to show that the engine was defective. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 1122.

In an action for injuries to a switchman, evidence held sufficient to authorize a finding of an insufficient inspection. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Box (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 134.

In an action for injuries to an engineer by a defect in a boiler step, evidence held to justify a finding that no proper inspection was made, and that, if it had been, the accident would not have occurred. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 395.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman by the separation of cars negligently left un-coupled on a siding, evidence held to warrant a finding that the automatic couplers were defective, and that the defect could have been discovered by the simplest inspection. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope, 43 C. A. 616, 97 S. W. 534.

In an action for injuries to a servant from the explosion of a locomotive boiler, evidence held to sustain a finding that the explosion was due to the negligence of defendant in failing to discover defects therein which could have been discovered by a proper inspection or test. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Senn (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 322.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that defendant's employee did not exercise ordinary care in inspecting the car in time to have remedied a defect to have existed on the brake wheel. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Downs (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 714.

In an action for personal injuries by a switchman injured by the brake beam swinging to an extent which caused his foot to slip under the wheel, evidence held to warrant a finding that the brake beam was defective, and that defendant had not discharged its duty of inspection. Freeman v. Gerretts (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1163.

149. Warnings and instructions.—Evidence held not to require a finding that an employe had been adequately warned of the dangers of his work. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Klime, 21 C. A. 271, 51 S. W. 558.

Evidence held to show the negligence of a master in failing to instruct a brakeman of the dangers incident to the employment, which would warrant recovery for injuries against the master. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Preacher (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 593.

In an action for injuries sustained, owing to the unexpected starting of a steam shovel, held, that the evidence was sufficient to establish defendant's negligence in starting the shovel without warning to plaintiff. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Peiltrey, 35 C. A. 691, 80 S. W. 1026.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a foreman owed a servant the duty of notifying him of the approach of trains. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Pollock (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 843.

Evidence held to show prima facie that a section hand was notified in time to retire a safe distance from the track. Id.

In an action for the death of an engineer in a rear end collision, evidence held to show that plaintiff failed to protect the fireman required by the rules of the company. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rothenberg (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1157.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman who fell between cars when one was cut off from the train, evidence held not to show negligence of the railroad company, or its servants, in failing to warn him. Freeman v. Irving (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 810.

Incompetency of servants to operate a hand car held sufficiently shown by evidence that training was necessary, and that the servants were inexperienced. International & N. R. Co. v. Martinez (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 689.

151. Negligence.—Evidence held sufficient to show negligence on the part of a foreman in failing to warn a workman of the danger. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Utley (Civ. App.) 5 S. W. 311.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman while passing over certain cars, evidence held to sustain a finding that the accident was caused by the negligence of the engineer in conjunction with that of other employees. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 360.

In an action for injuries to a trainman, evidence held insufficient to show negligence on the part of the engineer in failing to stop the train after discovering the defect. Hover v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 281, 89 S. W. 1084.

In an action against a servant to a servant while assisting in carrying a railroad rail, evidence held sufficient to show that plaintiff's fellow servants, who were assisting in carrying the rail were negligent, and that their negligence caused plaintiff's injury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 47 C. A. 74, 105 S. W. 477.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to employee, evidence examined, and held to sustain finding that defendant's engineer started the train suddenly without warning. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Monell, 50 C. A. 287, 110 S. W. 504.

Evidence held sufficient to show that a violent coupling with a caboose, injuring an employé of the railroad company, was caused by negligence of the engineer, and not by the company. (Civ. A. 239, 3 W. 551.)

In an action for injuries sustained by car doors falling on plaintiff by being shoved over by a rigging which was being removed by other of defendant's employés, evidence held to warrant a finding that such other employés might reasonably have anticipated injury, and a like injury, as the natural and probable consequence of their acts. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Barwick, 50 C. A. 544, 110 S. W. 953.

In an action for injuries from the negligence of fellow servants, evidence held to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 172.

Evidence held to support a finding that a railway brakeman was negligent in throwing a sack of ice from a caboose, resulting in injury to another brakeman. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henofy (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 57.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman, evidence held not to show negligence of co-employés. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Temple (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 858.

In an action against a railroad company for injury to a switchman, who was thrown from a car by sudden jarring thereof, evidence held to sustain findings that the engineer and another employé were negligent, and that their negligence proximately caused plaintiff's injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sadler (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1188.

152. Willful injuries.—In an action for assault by one employé upon another, evidence held to sustain a finding that the company was negligent in employing and retaining the assaulting employé. Missouri, E. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Day, 104 T. 227, 136 S. W. 435, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 111.

153. Vicarious liability.—Evidence held to warrant a finding that an employé's injury, received in loading ties for a railroad company, was caused by negligence of the employé and negligence of him and other employés. Sherman, S. & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Payne (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 43.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a servant, evidence held not to show any negligence on the part of plaintiff's employé. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Still, 40 C. A. 23, 88 S. W. 257.

Evidence of a witness in an action by a servant to recover for injuries considered and held to show that the foreman through whose employé's negligence was an accident not foreseen. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 L. R. A. 19, 137 S. W. 588.

In a servant's action for injuries sustained while blocking a turntable by the foreman's negligence in releasing a push car thereon, evidence held to show that the foreman knew that it was dangerous to block up the car. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, 133 C. A. 296, 138 S. W. 501.

Evidence held not to show that the foreman of a bridge crew was negligent in directing the crew to remove a hand car on the track in front of an approaching train. Myers v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 814.

In servant's action against a railroad for injuries while repairing boilers, evidence held to show that defendants' vice principal was negligent. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 711.

154. Evidence as to assumption of risk.—See notes under Art. 6645.

155. Evidence as to contributory negligence.—See notes under Art. 6644.

156. Damages.—As to measure of damages for personal injuries, see Railway Co. v. Abbott (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 299.

In an action for negligence, causing the death of a section foreman, verdict for $20,000 held not excessive. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 991.

In an action for the death of railroad employed, damages of $18,000 held not excessive. Houston, E. & W. Ry. Co. v. McFate, 47 C. A. 368, 105 S. W. 1149.

$17,500 held not excessive recovery by a brakeman's widow, children, and mother for injuries suffered by the railroad, a verdict for $25,000 held not excessive. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wallace, 63 C. A. 257, 115 S. W. 293.

In an action for the death of an engineer, who was 51 years of age, earning from $165 to $175 per month, and who left a wife and three children, a verdict for $25,000 held not excessive. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1043.

In an action for a fireman's death by an collision of his engine with box cars, evidence held to sustain a verdict for plaintiff of $10,000. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Holt, 67 C. A. 19, 121 S. W. 681.

Decedent, a switchman, 33 years of age, in good health, and earning $90 a month, was killed by defendant's negligence. He formerly was a conductor, earning $140 a month, and left a wife and children, aged respectively, 27 years, 4 years, and 1 year. He was temperate and economical, and devoted all of his earnings to the support of his wife and children, except $6 a month, which he used for personal expenses. Held, that a verdict awarding $20,000 for his death, one-half to his widow and one-fourth each to his minor children, was not so excessive as to show that the jury were influenced by prejudice, passion, or other improper motive. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 39.

A verdict of $22,000 for death of a railroad telegraph line man held not excessive. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 667.

In an action for negligently causing the death of an engineer, a recovery of $9,600 by widow, and $7,000 and $2,500, respectively, by his two minor daughters, held not excessive. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sellsbury (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 252.

A verdict of $10,000 for a widow of 48 for death of her unmarried son of 22, strong and industrious, extra fireman, earning over $40 a month, largely devoted to her support, and who was in line for promotion to an earning of $90 a month, is not excessive. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 822.

Art. 6649. Contributory negligence, rule as to.—In all actions hereafter brought against any such common carrier or railroad under or by virtue of any of the provisions of the foregoing article and the three succeeding articles to recover damages for personal injuries to an employee, or where such injuries have resulted in his death, the fact that the employé may have been guilty of contributory negligence shall not bar a recovery, but the damages shall be diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to such employé; provided, that no such employé who may be injured or killed shall be held to have been guilty of contributory negligence in any case where the violations by such common carrier of any statute enacted for the safety of employés contributed to the injury or death of such employé. [Id. sec. 2.]

The legislature had power to enact this article. Freeman v. Swan (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 724.

This article makes employers responsible for injuries to their employés incurred by reason of the negligence of the employers, and sufficiently punishes an employé for his negligence by diminishing the amount of damages which he would otherwise be entitled to recover, and, so construed, the statute is valid. Freeman v. Kennerly (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 659.

Title.—Const. art. 3, § 35, providing that no act shall contain more than one subject, which shall be expressed in its title, is not contravened by Acts 31st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 10, entitled, "An act declaring operators of railroads liable to employers for injury through negligence of such employer; prescribing the effect of contributory negligence on the right of recovery," etc., by reason of its provision that contributory negligence of the employé shall not bar a recovery for his injury, but the damages shall be diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the railroad, a. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co.

Under Const. art. 10, § 2, which declares all railroads to be common carriers, section 2 of Acts 31st Leg. 1909 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 10, which regulates the liability of common carriers "by railroad," is within the scope of the title of the act, declaring "persons operating railroad" in this article to be liable, in certain cases, where there is contributory negligence on the part of an injured employé. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.

This article does not discriminate against any particular railroad company, but applies to all railroads that are common carriers, and is not unconstitutional, as denying the equal protection of the laws. Tex. & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 694.

The provision of this act that an employé shall not be held guilty of contributory negligence where the violation by the carrier of any statute enacted for the safety of employées contributed to the death of such employé does not violate Const. U. S. Amend. 14, relating to the equal protection of the law. Freeman v. Swan (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 724.

Due process of law.—The provision of this article that contributory negligence of an employé of the operator of a railroad shall not bar a recovery from such employer for personal injuries caused by the diminution of damages, is not class legislation depriving such employer of property without due process of law. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grenig (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 135.

This article applies only to railroad employés, making a class of them; and it is not class legislation, within the state and federal constitutions. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 819. This article is not class legislation. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grenig (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 135.

Interstate commerce.—See, also, note under Art. 6648.

This article is not invalid, even though construed as an attempt to regulate interstate commerce, but is merely suspended as to such commerce while there is a federal statute in force relating to the same subject, such subject not being one over which the power of congress is exclusive, in the sense that the states are without power to act with reference thereto until congress takes action. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Turner (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1126.

This article is not invalid under the commerce clause of the federal constitution as an attempt to regulate interstate commerce. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sadler (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1138.

The employers' liability act (Arts. 6640-6652) is not invalid, as obnoxious to the commerce clause of the federal constitution, because it does not limit its application to intrastate commerce; the statute being merely inoperative, in so far as it applies to interstate commerce, if congress has acted on the subject. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Yerkes (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 575.

Application and effect of statute—In general.—This article, being in force at the time, a servant sustained a personal injury, governs his recovery notwithstanding his contributory negligence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wafer (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 712.

A charge that an employé of an electric railway company may not recover for injuries, if he was guilty of contributory negligence, is not prejudicial to the company for failing to provide a place of protection as provided in this article. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Shaklee (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 188.

In view of this article, error in a charge, authorizing a recovery if plaintiff had acted as brakeman ordinarily or customarily did, under the circumstances, was harmless. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.

This article, being in force at the time of an injury to an employé and at the time of the trial, controls the defense of contributory negligence. Ft. Worth Belt Ry. Co. v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 666.

An instruction in an action for injuries to a railroad employé which ignores this article is properly refused. Freeman v. Kennerly (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 589.

This article is applicable to injuries sustained by a railroad employé in consequence of defective woodwork, as well as defective woodwork, to the injury of the employé in inspecting the jack, which was not a simple tool, and the defects therein were not obvious. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Odom (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 760.

To whom applicable.—Where a railroad sectionman was thrown from a hand car and injured, and the car was being propelled at a high speed by defects, because of a low and defective joint in the track, plaintiff not being engaged in any sense in interstate commerce, this article was applicable. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Turner (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1126.

The doctrine of comparative negligence is applicable only to common carriers, being made so in that case by statute, and in every other case contributory negligence is an absolute defense, however negligent defendant may be. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Wolfshohl (Civ. App.) 165 S. W. 644.

This act applies to all employés of railroad companies, and not merely those engaged in the operation of railway trains or cars. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bright (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 304.

Contributory negligence not a bar to recovery.—Art. 6645 and this article when construed together, do not bar a recovery for injuries received by a railroad employé guilty of contributory negligence; but the damages must be diminished thereby. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1148.

Under this article a railroad company is liable for injuries to a brakeman caused by defects in the stirrup to a car, where the defective condition was the result of negligence, and where there was nothing of contributory negligence in failing to know, and he was not guilty of contributory negligence attributable to such employé. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Matkin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 694.

In an action for injuries to an employé occurring after the enactment of this article, an instruction making contributory negligence a complete defense was properly refused. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Sample (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 648.

While, under this article, a railroad company is not liable for an injury to its employé which resulted wholly from the act of the employé, yet an instruction that, if the employé's negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, then verdict should be for defendant, was properly refused, because concurrent negligence of the employer. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Keenan (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 355.

Instructions making contributory negligence of railroad employé a bar to a recovery, held properly refused in view of the federal and state employer's liability acts. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 446.

Contributory negligence will not, under the statute, completely bar recovery, but will merely lessen it. Carter v. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 638.

Under Art. 6644 and this article, it was error, in an action by a railroad employé for personal injuries, to instruct that if the contributory negligence of plaintiff, concurring or cooperating with any negligent act of defendant, was the direct cause of the injury the jury should find for defendant. Gregory v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 648.

Under this article a railroad company guilty of negligence in furnishing a defective appliance is liable for an injury sustained by an employé in consequence thereof; but the damages must be diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to him. Pope v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Sup.) 155 S. W. 1176.

Applies to negligence in law or fact.—Under Art. 6648 and this article it is immaterial whether the employé is guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law or in fact. Freeman v. Gerretts (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1163.

Effect on assumption of risk rule.—The distinction between assumption of risk and contributory negligence in the case of injury to an employé of the operator of a railroad, where the ground of the defense is knowledge or means of knowledge of the defect and danger which caused the injury, being practically abolished, and the defense of assumption of risk merged in that of contributory negligence by Art. 6645, a question arises as to whether the facts which caused his injury were known or not in the usual and customary manner, and he knew the usual manner, the risk was an assumed one, preventing recovery, was properly refused; contributory negligence in such a case under this article not being a bar to recovery, but only matter for reduction of damages. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Hodnett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 678.

Discovered peril rule unaffected.—Constructing this act in view of the prior rules as to the assumption of risk and contributory negligence, and of Art. 6645, abolishing the plea of assumed risk in certain cases, held that this act did not in any way affect the employer's liability for injuries to an employé in cases of discovered peril. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Rosenbloom (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 175.

Liability where statutes are violated.—In view of the statute, a railroad company held liable for injuries caused by the concurring negligence of the switchman and itself. Freeman v. Swan (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 724.

Art. 6650. Assumed risk, rule as to.—Any action brought against any common carrier under or by virtue of any of the provisions of the two preceding articles to recover damages for injuries to or the death of any of its employés, such employé shall not be held to have assumed the risks of his employment in any case where the violation of such common carrier of any statute enacted for the safety of employés contributed to the injury or death of such employé. [Id. sec. 3.]

Constitutionality.—See also, notes under Arts. 6648 and 6649.

The legislature had power to enact this article. Freeman v. Swan (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 724.

Art. 6651. Contract changing liability void.—Any contract, rule, regulation or device whatsoever, the purpose or intent of which shall be to enable any common carrier to exempt itself from any liability created by the three preceding articles shall to that extent be void; provided, that, in any action brought against any such common carrier under or by virtue of said articles, such common carrier may set off therein any sum it has contributed or paid to any insurance, relief benefit or indemnity that may have been paid to the injured employé, or the person entitled thereto, on account of the injury or death for which said action was brought. [Id. sec. 4.]

Contracts exempting from liability—validity in general.—Father, who specially agrees to release employer of his minor son from liability for injuries can nevertheless recover for employer's negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Putman (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 910.

A stipulation in a railroad employé's application for employment held void, in so far as it attempted to relieve the company from its duty to provide a safe track and to warn such employé of dangerous obstructions. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 412, 67 S. W. 446.
A construction contract with a railroad company held not to relieve the railroad company from liability for injuries to one of its servants by reason of the joint negligence of the servants of the railroad and the contractor. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Arnold, 32 C. A. 272, 74 S. W. 819.

A stipulation in a contract of employment of a minor, whereby his parents waived all claims against the employer for damages in the event of the minor's death in the course of his employment, is contrary to public policy and void. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

Consideration.—A contract, whereby parents waived all claims for injuries sustained by their minor son while in the employment of another, held not enforceable against the parents for want of consideration. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

Inspection of appliances.—This article forbids a carrier from shifting to employees the duty of inspection of appliances furnished employees. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 37 S. W. 730.

Examination by surgeon.—Contract between railroad and employé, requiring the latter to submit to an examination by the former's surgeon in the event of personal injuries as a condition of recovery of damages on account of such injuries, held void. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 643.

Contracts limiting liability under the act of 1897.—See Art. 6643 and notes.

Release of claims—in general.—Where a servant releases his master from liability for injuries resulting in part from the master's negligence and accepts a less remunerative position, held not entitled to withdraw from such employment and sue for such injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Chumlea (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 524.

In an action for injuries to an employé held, that defendant was entitled to an instruction that, if plaintiff accepted defendant's offer and released defendant from damages, plaintiff could not recover. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Winter, 38 C. A. 8, 85 S. W. 477.

Consideration.—A contract to give employment for an indefinite time in consideration of a release of claim for damages held sufficient consideration therefor. Carroll v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 30 C. A. 1, 69 S. W. 1094.

Release of personal injuries by a servant held to be without consideration. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Johnson, 51 C. A. 156, 111 S. W. 1095.

A release for personal injuries to a trainman in consideration of $1 and “the promise of said company to employ me for one day as — at the usual rate of pay” held supported by a sufficient consideration, where the trainman afterwards applied for and filled several positions in the company's employ. Gregory v. Fecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 648.

A release of a master's liability for a servant's injuries in consideration of one day's employment at the usual pay, etc., the master being required by the servant's previous contract to employ him for the time referred to, held not based on a sufficient consideration, and invalid. Freeman v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 284.

Fraud or mistake.—Evidence of fraud in obtaining release from railroad employé of claim for injuries held sufficient to sustain finding. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 885.

A railroad company cannot avail itself of an employé's negligence in signing a release of his claim for damages without reading it, where he relied on a positive representation of fact that it was a different paper.

A railroad employé held not bound by a release of damages for injuries, executed in reliance upon a false statement as to his injuries, etc., made by a physician for the company, though made in good faith. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 651.

Instruction that release of claim for injuries was binding on plaintiff, unless he did not and could not understand its contents, held proper. Galloway v. San Antonio & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 32.

Instruction that release of claim for injuries is binding, unless defendant falsely represented that it was simply a receipt, held proper under the pleadings.

Where a servant was treated for injuries in a hospital conducted by the master, false statements of the physician in charge as to the servant's physical condition, made for the purpose of facilitating a settlement, invalidated the same. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huyett (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1115.

Duress.—Where plaintiff was informed by defendant's claim agent that he would not be permitted to leave the hospital in which he was confined until he had signed a release of defendant's liability for injuries for $150, the jury were authorized to find that such statement, if made, was sufficient to avoid the release. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Villafuerte (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1155.

Rescission.—A servant who had executed a release of the master from liability for injuries held entitled to rescind the release. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cade (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 124.
Art. 6652. Articles of this chapter construed.—Nothing in the provisions of the four preceding articles shall be held to limit the duty or liability of common carriers, or to impair the rights of employees, under other articles of this chapter, or under the provisions of the Revised Civil Statutes, but, in case of conflict, these articles shall prevail; and nothing in said articles shall affect the prosecution of any pending proceeding or right of action under any of the laws of this state. [Id. secs. 5 and 6.]

Pending litigation.—Under this article, the provision of Art. 6648 regarding procedure, where all the parties are not before the court, does apply to a case pending when the statute was enacted. International & G. N. R. Co. v. White, 109 T. 987, 111 S. W. 811.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS

Art. 6652.
Art. 6653. [4561] Railroad commission created, etc.—A railroad commission is hereby created, to be composed of three persons to be appointed by the governor, as follows: If the legislature be in session, the governor shall, by and with the advice of the senate, appoint said commissioners, but, if the legislature be not in session, the governor shall make such appointments; and each commissioner so appointed shall hold his office until the second Monday after the inauguration of the next succeeding governor, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. Each succeeding governor shall, on the second Monday after his inauguration, or as soon thereafter as practicable, appoint said commissioners, who shall each hold his office until the second Monday after the inauguration of the next succeeding governor, and until his successor is appointed and qualified.

1. Qualifications of commissioners.—The persons so appointed shall be resident citizens of this state, and qualified voters under the constitution and laws, and not less than twenty-five years of age. No person shall be appointed as such commissioner who is directly or indirectly interested in any railroad in this state, or out of it, or in any stock, bond, mortgage, security, or in the earnings of any such road; and if such commissioners shall voluntarily become so interested his office shall become vacant; and, if any railroad commissioner shall become so interested otherwise than voluntarily, he shall within a reasonable time divest himself of such interest; failing to do this, his office shall become vacant.

2. Shall hold no other office, etc.—No commissioner hereunder shall hold any other office under the government of the United States, or of this state, or of any other state government; and shall not, while such commissioner, engage in any occupation or business inconsistent with his duties as such commissioner.
3. Vacancies.—The governor shall fill all vacancies in the office of commissioner by appointment; and the person so appointed shall fill out the unexpired term of his predecessor.

4. Oaths, etc.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, each of said commissioners shall take and subscribe to the oath of office prescribed in the constitution, and shall, in addition thereto, swear that he is not directly or indirectly interested in any railroad, nor in the bonds, stock, mortgages, securities, contracts or earnings of any railroad, and that he will to the best of his ability faithfully and justly execute and enforce the provisions of this chapter, and all laws of this state concerning railroads, which oath shall be filed with the secretary of state.

5. Salary.—Each of said commissioners shall receive an annual salary of four thousand dollars, payable in the same manner that salaries of other state officers are paid.

6. Sessions; may appoint clerks, etc.; their salaries.—The commissioners appointed shall meet at Austin and organize and elect one of their number chairman of said commission. A majority of said commissioners shall constitute a quorum to transact business. Said commission may appoint a secretary at a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, and may appoint not more than two clerks at a salary of not more than fifteen hundred dollars per annum each, and such other persons as experts as may be necessary to perform any duty that may be required of them by this chapter. The secretary shall keep full and correct minutes of all the transactions and proceedings of said commission, and perform such duties as may be required by the commission. The commission shall have power to make all needful rules for their government and for their proceedings. They shall be known collectively as, “Railroad Commission of Texas,” and shall have a seal, a star of five points, with the words, “Railroad Commission of Texas,” engraved thereon. They shall be furnished with an office in the capitol at Austin, and with necessary furniture, stationery, supplies, and all necessary expenses, to be paid for on the order of the governor.

7. Expenses.—The commissioners, secretary and clerks shall be entitled to receive from the state their actual necessary traveling expenses, which shall include the cost only of transportation while traveling on the business of the commission, to be paid out on the order of the governor upon an itemized statement thereof, sworn to by the party who incurred the expense, and approved by the commission.

8. May hold sessions at any place, etc.—Said commissioners may hold sessions at any place in this state when deemed necessary to facilitate the discharge of their duties. [Acts 1891, p. 55, secs. 1, 2.]

Salary of commissioners.—See, also, Art. 7083.

Fees to be charged by commission.—See Art. 3845.

Art. 6654. [4562] Powers and duties.—The power and authority is hereby vested in the railroad commission of Texas, and it is hereby made its duty, to adopt all necessary rates, charges and regulations to govern and regulate railroad freight and passenger tariffs, the power to correct abuses and prevent unjust discrimination and extortion in rates of freight and passenger tariffs on the different railroads in this state, and to enforce the same by having the penalties inflicted as by this chapter prescribed through proper courts having jurisdiction.

1. To classify freights.—The said commission shall have power, and it shall be its duty to fairly and justly classify and subdivide all freight and property of whatsoever character that may be transported over the railroads of this state into such general and special classes or subdivisions as may be found necessary and expedient.

2. To fix reasonable rates.—The commission shall have power, and it shall be its duty, to fix to each class or subdivision of freight a reasonable rate for each railroad subject to this chapter for the transportation of each of said classes and subdivisions.

3. Classifications to be uniform.—The classifications herein provided for shall apply to and be the same for all railroads subject to the provisions of this chapter.

4. May fix different rates.—The said commission may fix different rates for different railroads and for different lines under the same management, or for different parts of the same lines if found necessary to do justice, and may make rates for express companies different from the rates fixed for railroads.

5. Rates for connecting lines.—The said commission shall have power, and it shall be its duty, to fix and establish for all or any connecting lines of railroad in this state reasonable joint rates of freight charges for the various classes of freight and cars that may pass over two or more lines of such railroads.

6. Commission to fix when there is disagreement.—If any two or more connecting railroads shall fail to agree upon a fair and just division of the charges arising from the transportation of freights, passengers or cars over their lines, the commission shall fix the pro rata part of such charges to be received by each of said connecting lines.

7. Old rates to exist until changed by the commission.—Until the commission shall make the classifications and schedules of rates as herein provided for, and afterwards if they deem it advisable, they may make partial or special classifications for all or any of the railroads subject hereto, and fix the rates to be charged by such roads therefor; and such classifications and rates shall be put into effect in the manner provided for general classifications and schedules of rates.

8. May alter, abolish, etc.—The commission shall have power, and it shall be its duty, from time to time, to alter, change, amend or abolish any classification or rate established by it when deemed necessary; and such amended, altered or new classifications or rates shall be put into effect in the same manner as the originals.

9. May adopt rules and regulations.—The commission may adopt and enforce such rules, regulations and modes of procedure as it may deem proper to hear and determine complaints that may be made against the classifications or the rates, the rules, regulations and determinations of the commission.

10. Empty cars.—The commission shall make reasonable and just rates of charges for each railroad subject hereto for the use or transportation of loaded or empty cars on its road; and may, establish for each railroad or for all railroads alike, reasonable rates for the storing and handling of freight and for the use of cars not unloaded after forty-eight hours' notice to the consignee, not to include Sundays.

11. May fix rates for all services.—The commission shall make and establish reasonable rates for the transportation of passengers over each or all of the railroads subject hereto, which rates shall not exceed the rates fixed by law. The commission shall have power to prescribe reasonable rates, tolls or charges for all other services performed by any railroad subject hereto.

12. Railways to maintain depots, etc.—It shall be the duty of each and every railway subject to this chapter to provide and maintain adequate, comfortable and clean depots and depot buildings at its several stations for the accommodation of passengers; and said depot buildings shall be kept well lighted and warmed for the comfort and accommodation of the traveling public; and all such roads shall keep and maintain adequate and suitable freight depots and buildings for the receiving, handling, storing and delivering of all freights handled by such roads; provided, that this shall not be construed as repealing any existing laws on the subject. [Id. sec. 3.]

Liberality of interpretation.—This article should be liberally interpreted to effectuate its purpose. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 105 T. 101, 145 S. W. 573.

Jurisdiction of commission.—A failure to comply with the duties imposed by Arts. 6600, 6605, 6609 and 6670 constitutes such an abuse as authorizes the railroad commission under this article to correct. The right to confer and the duties imposed by the articles referred to were not intended solely for the benefit of railroad companies. On the contrary, their primary object was to promote public interest. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 17.

This article is not broad enough to embrace the correction of abuse of two railroads, which cross each other, failing to connect their tracks so that cars can be shifted from one to the other. If such failure to connect at a crossing be an abuse the act which established the commission does not give that body the power to correct it. If they have that power, it must be sought elsewhere. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 99 T. 332, 89 S. W. 961, 962.

How determined.—The question of the jurisdiction of the railway commission is by law committed to the commission without any provision by which the supreme court can review its action. Its decision is final and conclusive which would preclude the supreme court from issuing a mandamus to compel the commission to give authority to a railroad to issue stock and bonds before completion of the road. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas, 96 T. 671, 69 S. W. 63.

Entitlement of defendant.—The railroad commission can compel a railroad company to erect suitable buildings just inside the Texas line when its nearest station in Texas is distant about ten miles, although just across the state line in another state (Oklahoma) there are depot buildings on the line extended through the latter state. Railroad Commission v. Chicago, B. I. & G. Ry. Co., 102 T. 395, 117 S. W. 794.

Interstate commerce.—See notes under Art. 6676.

Collateral attack.—See, also, notes under Art. 6646-6648. Attempted exercise by railroad commission of power not conferred on it held subject to collateral attack. Davis v. San Antonio & G. S. Ry. Co., 28 T. 642, 51 S. W. 324.

Formulation of rates—In general.—Rate-making is a legislative function, but the determination whether a rate is reasonable is a judicial function. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737, judgment reversed Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 105 T. 101, 145 S. W. 773.

In rate-making the unit of cost of service in moving freight held the cost per ton per mile. Id.

In rate-making, it is not permissible, in order to equalize commercial advantages, to deprive any place of its natural advantages. Id.

Matters to be considered.—In rate-making, distance is the primary basis, and, other things being equal, the rate charged must be in proportion to the length of the haul. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737, judgment reversed Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 105 T. 101, 145 S. W. 578.

Density of traffic is an important factor. Id.

A competition is an important and frequently a controlling factor. Id.

Slight differences in a single item of cost do not justify a difference in freight rates. Id.

That a shipping center was a port on the high seas held not to be considered in determining its railroad rates. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce (Sup.) 136 S. W. 573, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

What rate governs.—Where a rate made by the Texas railroad commission applied to shipments to "Fort Arthur," shipments calling for a haul beyond that of any material distance were not affected by the rate. Texarkana & F. S. Ry. Co. v. Sabine Trunk Line Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 198.

Under classification rule 35, enacted by the railroad commission, a shipper, having reconsigned goods from destination over a new line of the carrier which was not open when the shipment was made, held entitled to the benefits of the through rate from the point of shipment to that final destination, though no such rate existed when the shipment was made. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. West Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1085.

Where cars of lumber were billed to point Q., "final destination 'S,'" the contract was subject only to Q., where S. was on a new line which was not in operation and to which no freight rates had been established at the date of the contract. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Drummond (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 723.

Under the rulings of the railroad commission, a consignment of goods held entitled to be shipped at the rate on a point on a line not open at the time the shipment originated only upon compliance with classification rule No. 35 of the railroad commission. Id.
In determining whether freight rates charged are excessive, the rate which was in effect at the time the bill of lading was executed will control.  Id.

Where no specific rate from point of origin to destination of a through shipment is provided, and no specific manner of constructing the combination rate for it is prescribed, the lowest combination of rates applicable over the route is the lawful rate.  Peck v.  W. Port Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 397.

Where a commodity rate is named in a tariff on a commodity and between specified points, the commodity rate is the lawful rate, though a class rate or some combination may make a lower rate.  Id.

Rules and regulations.—The rules of a railroad commission requiring railroad companies transporting cotton to have it compressed at the initial point, or at the nearest compress thereto, held not unreasonable as applied to the Houston & Texas Railway Company.  Railroad Commission of Texas v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 16 C. A. 129, 40 S. W. 326, 1923.

Where a company sued to set aside regulations of the railroad commission in their entirety, held, that it was not entitled to partial relief on showing the rules unreasonable only in certain respects.  Id.

A shipper of cotton by bill of lading held, under rules of railroad commission, entitled to no deduction from freight rate; it not being compressed because there was no compress at shipping point or intermediate station.  Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Orthwein-Fitsburgh Cotton Co., 27 C. A. 423, 69 S. W. 490.

Construction of orders.—Where statutory or penal consequences are sought to be inflicted for violating the provisions of an order of the Texas railroad commission, it should receive a strict construction, and be enforced no further than it provides.  Texas & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 198.

Compressiveness of rates or orders.—See notes under Arts. 6666-6658.

Regulation of carriers.—See Title 20.

Regulation of rates of express companies.—See Title 56.

Regulation of union depot companies.—See Art. 1244.

Art. 6655.  [4563] Notice to be given when rates fixed.—Before any rates shall be established under this chapter, the commission shall give the railroad company to be affected thereby ten days' notice of the time and place when and where the rates shall be fixed; and said railroad company shall be entitled to be heard at such time and place, to the end that justice may be done; and it shall have process to enforce the attendance of its witnesses.  All process herein provided for shall be served as in civil cases.

1.  May fix rules for all investigations.—The commission shall have power to adopt rules to govern its proceedings and to regulate the mode and manner of all investigations and hearings of railroad companies and other parties before it, in the establishment of rates, orders, charges and other acts required of it under this law; provided, no person desiring to be present at any such investigation by said commission shall be denied admission.

2.  May administer oaths, etc.—The chairman and each of the commissioners, for the purposes mentioned in this chapter, shall have power to administer all oaths, certify to all official acts, and to compel the attendance of witnesses, and the production of papers, way-bills, books, accounts, documents and testimony, and to punish for contempt as fully as is provided by law for the district or county court.  [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6656.  [4564] Rates to be held conclusive until, etc.—In all actions between private parties and railway companies brought under this law, the rates, charges, orders, rules, regulations and classifications prescribed by said commission before the institution of such action shall be held conclusive, and deemed and accepted to be reasonable, fair and just, and in such respects shall not be controverted therein until finally found otherwise in a direct action brought for that purpose in the manner prescribed by articles 6657 and 6658 of this chapter.  [Id. sec. 5.]

Constitutionality.—This article is not invalid as denying to the railroads the equal protection of the laws in violation of the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution, for Arts. 6655, 6658, provide a direct and appropriate proceeding in the courts to determine whether the rates fixed by the commission are just.  Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 266.

Presumption as to reasonableness of rates.—The court, in a suit to enjoin the railroad commission from enforcing its rates, must assume that the rates fixed and applicable to the greater portion of the state are reasonable.  Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

Where, in such case, there is no complaint as to the rates from the standpoint of revenue to the carriers, the court must assume that the rates are sufficiently high, if the present average is maintained, to furnish sufficient revenue, and where the differential rates complained of are abolished, and there is no lowering of rates, the commission may regulate rates, so as to give the carrier reasonable compensation without unjust discrimination. 1d.

Conclusiveness of rates and orders.—This article denies to railroad companies and other persons interested the right to question the validity and justice of the rates, etc., made by the commission, in suits between the railroads and individuals because it would involve every action in the complications of making rates and practically deny redress. Railroad Commission v. Weld, 96 T. 278, 66 S. W. 1096.

A railroad company held liable for freight charges in excess of that prescribed by railroad commission of Texas. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. J. H. Nations Meat & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. 833. This article does not affect the jurisdiction of the justice court, but only serves to show error in the judgment, where it fixes a different rate from that fixed by the railroad commission. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 380.

The establishment of rates by the railroad commission is not final, but is subject to judicial review, in a direct action brought for that purpose. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

Effect of special contract.—A railroad, by mistake of its agent, fixed a rate on an interstate shipment at less than the published schedule. Held, that the contract could not be enforced. H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Dumas (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 609. Stipulation in contract of shipment to pay “at the rate of tariff,” held not to make the shipper liable to pay more than the rate agreed on. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Leatherwood, 29 C. A. 607, 69 S. W. 119.

A contract by a carrier to carry goods at less than the maximum rates fixed by the commissioners is valid where there is no discrimination. Wells Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314. Where plaintiff did not ask for a special rate for the transportation of his cattle, and knew what the contract, which, in fact, specified an erroneous rate, was made with the understanding that the rate to be charged was the regular rate, such understanding formed a part of the contract, and it was therefore immaterial that he did not know of a provision therein that the rate named was subject to correction so as to conform to that prescribed by the railroad commission. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Reed, 62 C. A. 463, 121 S. W. 619.

Plaintiff contracted for the transportation of certain cattle at $29 a car, both he and the initial carrier’s agent believing that such was the regular rate. On the cattle arriving at the destination, plaintiff was notified that the rate was $30 a car, which agent of the last connecting carrier demanded as a condition to delivery of the cattle. Plaintiff refused for several hours to pay the additional charge until the agent obtained authority to deliver the cattle without payment, when plaintiff, because of the lateness of the hour, refused to receive the cattle until the next day. Held that plaintiff was liable for the additional charge, and the carrier had a statutory right to hold the cattle until all the freight was paid. Id.

A carrier quoting a rate to a shipper held estopped from claiming a higher rate. Freeman v. Kemendo (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 605.

A rate quoted for an interstate shipment and acted on by a shipper held to govern in the absence of a published rate as required by the interstate commerce act as amended. Id.

Art. 6657. [4565] When railway dissatisfied, may file petition, etc.

If any railroad company or other party at interest be dissatisfied with the decision of any rate, classification, rule, charge, order, act or regulation adopted by the commission, such dissatisfied company or party may file a petition setting forth the particular cause or causes of objection to such decision, act, rate, rule, charge; classification, or order, or to either or all of them, in a court of competent jurisdiction in Travis county, Texas, against said commission as defendant. Said action shall have precedence over all other causes on the docket of a different nature, and shall be tried and determined as other civil causes in said court. Either party to said action may appeal to the appellate court having jurisdiction of said cause; and said appeal shall be at once returnable to said appellate court, at either of its terms; and said action so appealed shall have precedence in said appellate court of all causes of a different character therein pending; provided, that, if the court be in session at the time such right of action accrues, the suit may be filed during such term and stand ready for trial after ten days’ notice. [Id. sec. 6.]

Conclusiveness of rates and orders of commission.—See notes under Art. 6656. Revision of rates and orders.—In general.—This article and Art. 6658 provide for determining the reasonableness and justice of rates and permits their enforcement until they are declared unreasonable and unjust by the judgment of a court. Railroad Commission v. Weld, 96 T. 278, 66 S. W. 1097.

Under this article and Art. 6658 the legislature intended to confer upon the courts power to determine the question of the reasonableness of rates as they affect the rights of shippers and the railroads by the same rules that would be applied in determining a like question between other parties. Railroad Commission v. Weld & Neville, 96 T. 394, 75 S. W. 529, 531.
Discretion vested in railroad commission should not be interfered with by the courts, unless manifestly abused. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 16.

Under this article and Art. 6658, a railroad company can attack any rate, or any number or all the rates prescribed by the commission as unjust and unreasonable. The petition must show that true author for the court to adjudge the rate to be unjust and unreasonable as a matter of law. To do this it must show the earnings of the road over all line of the article in question. The road cannot select one rate and a particular part of its road for the application of that rate, showing thereby the deficiency in profit and from that establish that the rate is not reasonable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 105 T. 333, 113 S. W. 741, 747, 116 S. W. 796.

Scope of inquiry.—The determination to the effect of competition and its influence on rates between different points is peculiarly for the railroad commission, and may not be reviewed by the courts. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 106 T. 101, 145 S. W. 573.

Under these two articles the courts may not inquire into the motives of the commission but are concerned only with the results of their actions and its effect on the public welfare. Id.

Reasonableness and justice of rates.—This article and Art. 6658 confer authority upon the courts to examine into the reasonableness and justice of rates and in the exercise of that jurisdiction the courts will try the questions as if they arose in any other proceeding. And if hauling one of the principal articles of transportation over a road does not yield revenue sufficient to pay for the cost of transporting it, not including interest on investment, taxes or other expenses, then the rate applied to that article is unreasonable and unjust to the railroad. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 105 T. 333, 116 S. W. 796.

Under these articles a rate which barely returns the actual cost of the service without affording some profit on the investment is unjust and unreasonable. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 266.

Burden and character of proof.—See notes under Art. 6558.

A petition alleging that there was nothing in the local conditions affecting the shipment of goods into Galveston justifying the charging of any greater freight rate than applied between other points in the state for similar services and that the expense of the railroad commission in requiring higher freight rates to Galveston above the freight rates required of another city was to deprive Galveston, and the persons engaged in business there, of natural advantages, and to arbitrarily put the other city on a plane of commercial equality, evidence as to whether a lower rate to Galveston would be a sufficient charge, was admissible. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

A question, asked a member of the commission as an expert, as to whether, in his opinion, a lower rate would be a sufficient charge, was not objectionable as binding the commission by the individual opinion of the member. Id.

Evidence held not to justify the discrimination in rates established by the railroad commission on the ground of cost of construction, maintenance, and transportation or otherwise, authorizing relief. Id.

Interference with vested rights.—The court held not prevented from setting aside rates fixed by the railroad commission on the ground that vested rights will be interfered with. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

That a system of rates has prevailed for a long time, and that persons have invested money on the faith of its continuance, do not prevent the court from setting aside the rates as unreasonable. Id.

Conclusiveness of court's decision.—As estoppel by judgment must be mutual, the burden is on a decision adverse to the rates are reasonable under specified facts to defeat a subsequent action alleging the unreasonableness of the rates under changed conditions. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

Limitation of action.—A suit under this section is one against the state and is not barred by limitations. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

The duty of the railroad commission to make and enforce proper rules preventing unjust discrimination is a continuing one, and limitations do not run in its favor, as against an action to restrain it from enforcing its rules. Id.

A suit to restrain enforcement of orders of the railroad commission involves the public welfare, and is not barred by limitations, though the suit is brought by private citizens. Id.

Art. 6658. [4566] Burden of proof.—In all trials under the foregoing article, the burden of proof shall rest upon the plaintiff, who must show by clear and satisfactory evidence that the rates, regulations, orders, classifications, acts or charges complained of are unreasonable and unjust to it or them. [Id. sec. 7.]

Construction of language.—The same construction should be given the phrase, "unreasonable and unjust to it or to them," that would have obtained in a suit to recover from the carrier excess of charges paid. Railroad Commission v. Wild & Neville, 96 T. 394, 78 S. W. 629, 631.

Burden of proof on plaintiff.—This article places the citizen in action to contest the reasonableness of rates fixed by the railroad commission upon the same footing as it does the railroad corporations and requires a shipper to make just as clear and conclusive proof of the unreasonable or injustice of the rates as is required of a

Under this article, one suing to enjoin the commission from enforcing its rates has the burden of showing that the rates are discriminatory against any person or locality for a like and contemporaneous service, and is therefore unreasonable and unjust. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 737.

Character of proof required.—The intention of Art. 6657 and this article was to guard the railroad commission from improper interference, and to provide that the courts shall regard its actions, within the limits of its delegated powers, as the result of a purpose to do justice, so that the right of the courts to set aside decisions of the commission must be limited to cases in which the evidence leaves no reasonable doubt that the rate or rule is unjust and unreasonable. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 162 T. 101, 116 S. W. 572.

Under this article, where, in a suit to enjoin the railroad commission from enforcing rates fixed by it, there was a differential in the rates for the same distance between Houston and Galveston, the advantage in rate being on the side of Galveston for the greater part of the distance, but in favor of Houston for the remainder, there is no injustice to Galveston, or any interest therein apparent; and, as the commission had authority to prescribe the rates, the mere fact that no valid reason for the difference clearly appears will not be sufficient to entitle the court to set aside the rates fixed. Id.

Art. 6659. [4567] Railroads to be furnished with schedule of rates fixed.—The said commission shall, as soon as the classifications and schedules of rates herein provided for are prepared by them, furnish each railroad subject to the provisions of this chapter with a complete schedule in suitable form, showing the classification of freight made by them and the rates fixed by said commission to be charged by such road for the transportation of each class of freight, and shall cause a certified copy of such classification and schedule of rates to be delivered to each of said railroads at its principal office in this state, if it has such office in this state, and, if not, then to any agent of said company in this state; which said schedule, rules and regulations shall take effect at the date which may be fixed by said commission, not less than twenty days. Each of said railroad companies shall cause said schedule to be printed in type of a size not less than pica, and shall have the same posted up in a conspicuous place at each of its depots, so as to be inspected by the public. Said commission may at any time abolish, alter, or in any manner amend, the said schedules, or abolish or amend any such regulations; and in that event certified copies of the schedules, rules or regulations, showing the changes therein, shall be delivered to each road as herein specified. In all cases where the rates shall not have been fixed by the commission, no changes shall be made, except after ten days' notice to and consent of the commission. [Id. sec. 8.]

Conclusiveness of rates and effect of special contract.—See Art. 6666 and notes.

Art. 6660. Emergency freight rates.—In addition to the powers conferred on the railroad commission of Texas by articles 6655 and 6659, said commission shall have the power, when deemed by it necessary, to prevent interstate rate wars and injury to the business or interests of the people or railroads of the state, or in case of any other emergency, to be judged of by the commission, it shall be its duty to temporarily alter, amend or suspend any existing freight rates, tariffs, schedules, orders and circulars on any railroad or part of railroad in this state, and to fix freight rates where none exist. [Acts 1899, p. 311, sec. 1.]

Art. 6661. To what roads apply.—Said emergency rates, so made by the commission, shall apply on any one or more of all the railroads in this state, or part of railroads, as may be directed by the commission. [Acts 1897, p. 51, sec. 2.]

Art. 6662. Rates take effect, when, and how long continued.—Said rates, so made, shall take effect at such time and remain in force for such length of time as may be prescribed by the commission. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6663. Temporary freight and passenger tariffs, power to make. —In addition to all other powers conferred by law upon the railroad commission of Texas, said commission shall have the power to make temporary freight and passenger tariffs, to take immediate effect or at such times as shall be fixed by said commission, whenever an emergency 4381 arises, the sufficiency of which shall be judged of by said commission, in order that justice may be done or injury prevented any person, place or locality; and said commission shall have the power at once to suspend temporarily any existing freight or passenger tariff, and to establish freight and passenger tariffs, rules and regulations for temporary use, to have immediate effect where none exists. [Acts 1907, p. 220, sec. 1.]

Art. 6664. [4568] Complainants may apply to commission; proceedings thereunder.—Any person, firm, corporation, or association, or any mercantile, agricultural, or manufacturing association, or any body politic, or municipal organization, complaining of anything done or omitted to be done by any railroad subject hereto, in violation of any law of this state, or the provisions of this chapter, for which penalty is provided, may apply to said commission in such manner and under such rules as the commission may prescribe; whereupon, if there shall appear to the commission to be any reasonable grounds for investigating such complaint, it shall give at least five days' notice to such railroad of such charge and complaint, and call upon said road to answer the same at a time and place to be specified by the commission. The commission shall investigate and determine such complaint under such rules and modes of procedure as it may adopt. If the commission finds that there has been a violation, it shall determine if the same was wilful; if it finds that such violation was not wilful, it may call upon said road to satisfy the damage done to the complainant thereby, stating the amount of such damage, and to pay the cost of such investigation; and if the said railroad shall do so within the time specified by the commission there shall be no prosecution by the state; but if said railroad shall not pay said damage and cost within the time specified by said commission, or if the commission finds such violation to be wilful, it shall institute proceedings to recover the penalty for such violation and the cost of such investigation. All such complaints shall be made in the name of the state of Texas upon the relation of such complainant. All evidence taken before said commission in the investigation of any such complaint, when reduced to writing and signed and sworn to by the witness, may be used by either party, the state, complainant, or the railroad company, in any proceeding against such railroad involving the same subject matter; provided, further, that the commissioners may require the testimony so taken before them to be reduced to writing when they may deem it necessary, or when requested to do so by either party to such proceedings; and a certified copy, under the hand and seal of said commission, shall be admissible in evidence upon the trial of any cause or proceeding growing out of the same transaction against such railroad, involving the same subject matter and between the same parties. The provisions of this article shall not abridge nor affect the rights of any person to sue for any penalty that may be due him under the provisions of this chapter, or any other law of this state. [Acts 1891, p. 55, sec. 9.]

Remedy not exclusive.—Under this article and Art. 6671, authorizing any person, injured by a railway company doing any prohibited act, to sue for damages and for penalties, a shipper may sue for excessive freight charges collected by the carrier and for the penalties therefor, without applying to the commission for relief. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

Art. 6665. [4569] May inspect books, etc.—The commissioners, or either of them, or such persons as they employ therefor, shall have the right, at such times as they may deem necessary, to inspect the books and papers of any railroad company and to examine under oath any officer, agent or employé of such railroad in relation to the business and affairs of the same. If any railroad shall refuse to permit the commissioners, or either of them, or any person authorized thereunto, to examine its books and papers, such railroad company shall, for each offense, pay to the state of Texas not less than one hundred and twenty-five dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each day it shall so fail or refuse; provided, that any persons other than one of said commissioners who shall make any such demands shall produce his authority, under the hand and seal of said commission, to make such inspection. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6666. [4570] To ascertain cost of railway, etc.—The commission shall ascertain as early as practicable the amount of money expended in construction and equipment per mile of every railway in Texas, the amount of money expended to procure the right of way, and the amount of money it would require to reconstruct the roadbed, track, depots and transportation, and to replace all the physical properties belonging to the railroad. It shall also ascertain the outstanding bonds, debentures and indebtedness, and the amount respectively thereof, when issued, and rate of interest, when due, for what purpose issued, how used, to whom issued, to whom sold, and the price in cash, property or labor, if any, received therefor, what became of the proceeds, by whom the indebtedness is held, the amount purporting to be due thereon, the floating indebtedness of the company, to whom due and his address, the credits due on it, the property on hand belonging to the railroad company, and the judicial or other sales of said road, its property or franchises, and the amounts purporting to have been paid and in what manner paid therefor. The commission shall also ascertain the amounts paid for salaries to the officers of the railroad and the wages paid its employés. For the purpose in this article named, the commission may employ sworn experts to inspect and assist them when needed, and from time to time, as the information required by this article is obtained, it shall communicate the same to the attorney general by report, and file a duplicate thereof with the comptroller for public use; and said information shall be printed from time to time in the annual report of the commission. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 6667. [4571] Blanks for information to be prepared.—The said commission shall cause to be prepared suitable blanks with questions calculated to elicit all information concerning railroads, and as often as it may be necessary furnish said blanks to each railroad company. Any railroad company receiving from the commission any such blanks shall cause said blanks to be properly filled out so as to answer fully and correctly each question therein propounded, and in case they are unable to answer any question, they shall give a satisfactory reason for their failure; and the said answers, duly sworn to by the proper officer of said company, shall be returned to said commission at its office in the city of Austin within thirty days from the receipt thereof.

1. Penalty for failure to fill out blanks; commission to adopt system of bookkeeping.—If any officer or employé of a railroad company shall fail or refuse to fill out and return any blanks as above required, or fail or refuse to answer any questions therein propounded, or give a false answer to any such questions, where the fact inquired of is within his knowledge, or shall evade the answer to any such questions, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction thereof, be fined for each day he shall fail to perform such duty after the expiration of the time aforesaid a penalty of five hundred dollars, and the commission shall cause a prosecution therefor in the proper court; and a penalty of a like amount will be recovered from the company when it appears that such persons acted in obedience to its direction, permission or request in his failure, evasion or refusal. Said commission shall have the power to prescribe a system of bookkeeping to be observed by all the railroads subject hereto, under the penalties prescribed in this article.

2. Annual reports.—The said commission shall make and submit to the governor annual reports containing a full and complete account of the transactions of their office, together with the information gathered by such commission as herein required, and such other facts, suggestions and recommendations as may be by them deemed necessary, which report shall be published as the reports of the heads of departments.

3. Duty as to through freights.—The said commission shall have power, and it is hereby made its duty, to investigate all through freight rates on railroads in Texas; and when the same are, in the opinion of the commission, excessive or levied or laid in violation of the interstate commerce law, or the rules and regulations of the interstate commerce commission, the officials of the railroads are to be notified of the facts and requested to reduce them or make the proper corrections, as the case may be. When the rates are not changed or the proper corrections are not made according to the request of the commission, the latter is instructed to notify the interstate commerce commission and to apply to it for relief. [Id. sec. 12.]

See St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 335. No penalty where blanks not furnished.—The railroad commission is required by this article to furnish the railway companies blanks embracing questions concerning which it desires information, and a penalty is imposed only when the questions pressed and the information requested on the face of the blanks are not answered and furnished. If no blanks are furnished, no penalty can be imposed for failing to give required information. (Civ. & P. Ry. Co. v. Gulf.) 118 S. W. 738.

Power to prescribe system of bookkeeping.—The system of bookkeeping, which the commission is empowered by this article to prescribe for carriers doing an intrastate business, is not limited to a record of facts, but includes assumed facts based on theory, opinion, or supposed averages. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 829.

Notwithstanding a circular issued by the railroad commission prescribing a system of bookkeeping was objectionable and subject to injunction, it was improper for the court to enjoin the commission from issuing any further circular or order that might require complainants to keep or maintain any system of bookkeeping which required a separation of their expenses between passenger and freight business and state and interstate commerce on any theoretical basis. Id.

An order of the commission requiring railroads to divide their expense accounts into five primary accounts, and requiring such primary accounts to be divided into 123 subaccounts, following the system of bookkeeping prescribed by the interstate commerce commission, and requiring that a few of the sub-accounts should again be subdivided so as to apportion expenses between passenger and freight traffic and between state and interstate traffic, was a compliance with this article. Id.

A circular issued by the railroad commission, requiring the expense accounts of railroads, engaged in both intrastate and interstate commerce, to be divided in accordance with the method prescribed by the interstate commerce commission, and in addition to show an apportionment of expenses between freight and passenger and state and interstate traffic, on the ten mile basis, was authorized by this article. Id. The case of Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas, 108 T. 386, 150 S. W. 878.

Under the word 'method' to prescribe a "system" means "system" means "method" and "bookkeeping" is the art of recording in a systematic manner the transactions of merchants, traders, and other persons engaged in pursuits connected with money, the commission cannot order the apportionment of items of expense to be made upon a purely arbitrary basis of "car miles" in a certain ratio between passenger traffic and freight, and orders prescribing that certain conclusions and deductions be entered upon the books of the railroads are not authorized (citing 1 Words and Phrases, 842). Id.

Art. 6668. [4572] Power to issue subpoenas; pay of witnesses; proceedings to compel attendance of witnesses.—The said commission, in making any examination or investigation provided in this chapter, shall have power to issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses by such rules as they may prescribe. Each witness who shall appear before the commission by order of the commission, at a place outside of the county of his residence, shall receive for his attendance one dollar per day and three cents per mile traveled by the nearest practicable route, in going to and returning from the place of meeting of said commission, which shall be ordered paid by the comptroller of public accounts upon the presentation of proper vouchers, sworn to by such witness, and approved by the chairman of the commission; provided, that no witness shall be entitled to any witness fees or mileage who is directly or indirectly interested in any railroad in this state or out of it, or who is in any wise interested in any stock, bond, mortgage, security or earnings of any such road, or who shall be the agent or employee of such road, or an officer thereof, when summoned at the instance of such railroad; and no witness furnished with free transportation shall receive pay for the distance he may have traveled on such free transportation. In case any witness shall fail or refuse to obey such subpoenas, said commission may issue an attachment for said witness, directed to any sheriff or any constable of the state of Texas, and compel him to attend before the commission and give his testimony upon such matter as shall be lawfully required by them. If a witness, after being duly summoned, shall fail or refuse to attend or to answer any question propounded to him, and which he would be required to answer if in court, the commission shall have the power to fine and imprison such witness for contempt, in the same manner that a judge of the district court might do under similar circumstances. The claim that any such testimony may tend to criminate the person giving it shall not excuse such witness from testifying, but such evidence or testimony shall not be used against such person on the trial of any criminal proceeding; provided, the commission shall in all cases have the right in its discretion to issue proper process and take depositions instead of compelling personal attendance of witnesses. The sheriff or constable executing any process issued under the provisions of this article or under any other provisions of this chapter shall receive such compensation as may be allowed by the commission, not to exceed fees as now prescribed by law for similar services. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 6669. [4573] Penalty for extorting.—If any railroad company, subject to this chapter, or its agent or officer, shall hereafter charge, collect, demand or receive from any persons, company, firm or corporation a greater rate, charge or compensation than that fixed and established by the railroad commission for the transportation of freight, passengers or cars, or for the use of any car on the line of its railroad, or any line operated by it, or for receiving, forwarding, handling, or storing any such freight or cars, or for any other service performed or to be performed by it, such railroad company and its said agent and officer shall be deemed guilty of extortion, and shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas a sum not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 14.]

Wrongful demurrage charge.—Where a railroad company demanded and collected $1 per day for two days for the use of a car prior to the giving the use thereof, the 48 hours allowed by law for unloading the same, it was guilty of extortion under this article. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 42 C. A. 544, 86 S. W. 74.

Penalty for separate offenses.—See notes under Art. 6671.

Art. 6670. [4574] "Unjust discrimination" defined.—If any railroad subject hereto, directly or indirectly, or by any special rate, rebate, drawback or other device, shall charge, demand, collect or receive from any person, firm or corporation a greater or less compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered by it than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any other person, firm or corporation for doing a like and contemporaneous service, such railroad shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination, which is hereby prohibited.

1. Same.—It shall also be an unjust discrimination for any such railroad to make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any particular person, company, firm, corporation or locality, or to subject any particular description of traffic to any undue or unreasonable prejudice, delay or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever.

2. Same.—Every railroad company which shall fail or refuse, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the commission, to receive and transport without delay or discrimination the passengers, tonnage and cars, loaded or empty, of any connecting line of railroad, and every railroad which shall, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the commission, fail or refuse to transport and deliver without delay or discrimination any passengers, tonnage or cars, loaded or empty, destined to any point on or over the line of any connecting line of railroad, shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination; provided, perishable freights of all kinds and live stock shall have precedence of shipment.

3. Same.—It shall also be an unjust discrimination for any railroad subject hereto to charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of like kind of property or passengers for the shorter than for a longer distance over the same line; provided, that upon application to the commission any railroad may in special cases, to prevent manifest injury, be authorized by the commission to charge less for longer than for shorter distances for transporting persons and property, and the commission shall from time to time prescribe the extent to which such designated railroad may be relieved from the operations of this provision; provided, that no manifest injustice shall be imposed upon any citizen at intermediate points; provided further, that nothing herein shall be so construed as to prevent the commission from making what are known as “group rates” on any line or lines of railroad in this state.

4. Penalty for unjust discrimination.—Any railroad company violating any provision of this article shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination, and shall for each offense pay to the state of Texas a penalty of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars.

5. Law does not apply, when.—Nothing herein shall prevent the carriage, storage or handling of freight free or at reduced rates, or to prevent railroads from giving free transportation or reduced transportation, under such circumstances and to such persons as may be allowed or permitted by the law of this state. [Id. sec. 15.]

Construction of statute.—The word “delay” in this article means “discrimination,” and where delay is shown a party is entitled to recover the penalty. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. S. & P. Ry. Co. 26 C. A. 531, 63 S. W. 1026.

This article, though penal, must be construed in the light of the modern rule that penal provisions, like all others, are to be fairly construed according to the legislative intent as expressed in the enactment. Thompson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 103 T. 372, 138 S. W. 257, 128 S. W. 109.

The word “deliver” in the statute means something more than physical delivery, and where freight was delivered to a connecting carrier designated by the shipper, but because of the action of the initial carrier it was re-routed by such connecting carrier over a longer route, there was a discrimination by the connecting carrier, for which the penalty was recoverable. Id.

Relation to Art. 6554.—There is no repugnancy between Arts. 6670, 6671, and Art. 6554, authorizing the recovery of damages and $5 per month as special damages for refusal to transport any passenger or property at the regular appointed time, the object of the former articles being to prohibit unjust discrimination, and of the latter to prevent negligent delay. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

Art. 6554 is not repealed by implication by Arts. 6670, 6671. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. 104 T. 603, 142 S. W. 1163.

Interstate commerce.—See, also, notes under Art. 6676.

Unjust discrimination—In general.—Railway companies cannot operate their roads in such manner as to benefit one individual, town or community to the detriment of another. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 63 T. 322.

Oak Cliff held a part of the city of Dallas, so that defendant railroad company, which ran to Dallas, but not to Oak Cliff, and failed to deliver a car load of lumber to a connecting carrier at Dallas station for transportation to Oak Cliff, was not liable to the penalty provided by Art. 6671 for discrimination, as defined in this article. Texas & N., O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 466.

The railroad commission act (Arts. 6653–6677) forbids discriminations which are undue and unreasonable, and a discrimination in a freight rate against any person or

The questions of what is a like and contemporaneous service and of what is undue and unreasonable preference, within this article, are questions of fact, the determination of which is within the discretion of the railroad commission, to the extent of making any penalty which is reasonable and fair under the circumstances. Reed v. Shawnee Cotton Oil Co., 55 C. A. 185, 118 S. W. 779.

Under this article the commission may not make rates which are unjustly discriminatory and permit a carrier to charge one person a greater or less compensation for a service than it charges any other person for a like service, or to give undue preference to any particular person or locality. Id.

The common law held to prohibit carriers from making unjust discriminations as between localities or individuals. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission, 137 S. W. 737, judgment reversed Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 105 T. 101, 145 S. W. 573.

— Between individuals.—To prove an unjust discrimination the evidence must show a preference given one shipper over another. If a contract made by a railroad company with a shipper amounts to unjust discrimination it is unlawful. Texas & P. Ry. v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission v. Sabine River & Turnpike Co., 137 S. W. 737, judgment reversed Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 105 T. 101, 145 S. W. 573.

Under the statute prohibiting discrimination by charging one shipper a different rate from that charged another, a lower rate charged in a particular case, unless shown to be open to all shippers, is prohibited as a discrimination. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Reed, 56 C. A. 483, 121 S. W. 519.

Where the freight rate specified in a contract transportation contract was a mistake, it being the intention of both parties that the regular rate should be charged, there was no discrimination. Id.

Where an express company refused to carry liquor C. O. D., and plaintiff paid the return charges on packages not accepted, it would have been unlawful for the carrier to rebate these charges. L. Craddock & Co. v. Wells-Fargo Company Express (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 59.

One charged a rate not unreasonable per se may complain on the ground that he has been discriminated against, on showing that he was charged a greater rate than the carrier charged another. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737.

— Selection of route by shipper.—A refusal to ship property over route selected by shipper whereby injury results entitles the shipper to the penalty, although the shipper signed the contract of shipment over the route selected by the railroad company, as the refusal to ship over route selected by him left him no other alternative than to sign the contract stipulating for a different route. S. A. & A. F. Ry. Co. et al. v. Stirling (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 374.

If a railroad receiving a shipment to be carried over it and connecting lines refuses to deliver to a connecting line designated by the shipper, it is liable for the penalty fixed in Art. 6671. A person has the right to have his property received by a railroad company and carried as he directs, and for the failure of the company to do either he has his remedy. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stirling, 99 T. 319, 89 S. W. 963, 964.

Penalties cannot be imposed under this article where the gist of the offense is not the failure or refusal of a railroad company to deliver the freight to its connecting carrier without delay or discrimination, but the exacting from the latter as a condition upon which it should receive the freight that the same should be transported over a different route by the owner. Should be paid by the owner and not by statute for such conduct, even though it may be violative of the shipper's rights. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 618, 623.

A shipper has the right to designate the route by which his goods shall be carried by the different railroads over which they are destined to pass. Thompson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 103 T. 372, 126 S. W. 257, 128 S. W. 109.

Where a shipper at a station having no freight agent leaves car loads of lumber to be shipped with directions that they be routed over a specified connecting line, and the conductor taking up the cars, at the instance of the company, disregards the instructions, and leaves bills of lading routed over a different connecting line, there is no waiver of right to insist that the change in routing was an unjust discrimination, under this article and Art. 6671, by accepting the bill of lading as so left. Id.

— Between localities.—It is an unjust discrimination and violation of subdivision 1 of this article for the railroad commission to require a higher freight rate to be charged from points on a railroad to and from one city, than to and from another when each city is practically the same distance from said points as the other, although the city thus discriminated against has natural advantages which enable it to hold its own against the other in commercial rivalry, notwithstanding the discrimination. Railroad Commission v. Galveston Chamber of Commerce, 51 C. A. 476, 115 S. W. 94, 99.

The fact that a railroad had habitually made charges treated certain docks as within one city limits, though it might have made an additional charge for hauling to the docks, does not compel the continuance of such custom, nor, when sued for the statutory penalty for overcharging because of the additional charge made, estop them from asserting that the city and the docks were different places for the purpose of making rates. T. & S. Ry. v. Sabin & Co. v. Sabine River & Turnpike Co., 137 S. W. 737, judgment reversed.

The unit of cost of service in moving freight is the cost per ton per mile, and may decrease as the length of the haul increases; and hence, under like conditions, freight may be carried long distances at rates proportionately lower than short distances. Id.
Slight differences in a single item of cost does not justify a difference in freight rates. 16
That freight rates between designated points are too low does not justify a discrimination against one of the points in hauls over maximum distances, and the rates between the points must be increased. 16
Groves, to which the influence of mileage does not apply, which are unjustly discriminatory, are illegal, and such rates, though inherently unequal, must be so made as to lessen such inequality as far as possible. 16
In rate-making, distance is the primary basis, and other things being equal, the rate charged must be in proportion to the length of the haul. 16
In rate-making, density of traffic is an important factor. 16
In rate-making, competition is an important and frequently a controlling factor, and a carrier must be allowed to meet competition. 16
It is not permissible, in order to equalize commercial advantages, to deprive any place of its natural advantages arising from its location. 16 Where freight rates compel cotton men at Galveston to pay on cotton concentrated there about $24 cents per bale for delivery to shipside, in addition to the freight rate, while carriers are compelled to pay all expenses of delivery to shipside on cotton concentrated at Houston out of the same rate, an undue preference is given to cotton men in Houston, and the rates should not be enforced. 16 Where carriers entering Galveston through Houston must, under rates fixed by the railroad commission, charge a higher rate to Galveston for all freight, varying with different commodities, than is permitted for the same character of freight for like distance to Houston and between other points in common territory, the rates are discriminatory. 16

Furnishing cars to connecting carriers.—See, also, Arts. 6687-6690 and notes. Neither by force of this article, nor by an order of the railroad commission can a railway company be compelled, after receiving freight from a shipper and carrying it over its own line to a junction with a connecting line to deliver its own loaded car to a connecting line to be carried to destination on the connecting line. One railway company cannot be compelled to furnish cars to carry freight over another railroad. Gulf, C. & S.
F. Ry. Co. v. Galveston seat, 96 C. A. 356, 126 S. W. 102. 16
Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held not to show that a higher freight rate than contracted for was established and published as required by the interstate commerce
In an action against a carrier under this article for unjust discrimination, evidence held sufficient to warrant a judgment denying the penalty. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co.
v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 925. 16
In an action for penalties against a railroad for charging a higher rate for shipping lumber between certain points than that fixed by the Texas railroad commission, evidence held to show that "Port Arthur docks" was not a place embraced within the designation
In a suit to enjoin the railroad commission from enforcing rates, because discrimi-native against a locality, evidence held not to justify the discrimination. Galveston Chamber of Commerce v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 737, Judgment
146 S. W. 873. 16
Evidence in action against a carrier to recover overcharges and statutory penalty held sufficient to sustain a finding that the rate made by the railroad commission did not apply to the place to which the freight was shipped. Sabine Tram Co. v. Texarkana & Ft. S.
In a shipper's action to recover an overcharge, on the ground that the shipment was intransit, evidence held to show that the shipper intended to ship the cattle through to a point outside the state by an uninterrupted journey. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v.
Wood, Hagenbarth Cattle Co. (Sup.) 148 S. W. 535, reversing Judgment (Civ. App.) Wood, Recovery of damages.—See Art. 6671 and notes.
Contracts to carry at rate different from legal rate.—See notes under Art. 6656.
Art. 6671. [4575] Damages; penalty; venue in cases of discrimination.—In case any railroad subject to this chapter shall do, cause to be done, or permit to be done any matter, act or thing in this chapter prohibited or declared to be unlawful, or shall omit to do any act, matter or thing herein required to be done by it, such railroad shall be liable to the person or persons, firm or corporation injured thereby for the damages sustained in consequence of such violation; and in case said railroad company shall be guilty of extortion or discrimination as by this chapter defined, then, in addition to such damages, such railroad shall pay to the person, firm or corporation injured thereby a penalty of not less than one hundred and twenty-five dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction in any county into or through which such railroad may run; provided, that such road may plead and prove as a defense to the action for said penalty that such overcharge was unintentionally and innocently made through a mistake of fact; provided, that any such recovery as herein provided shall in no manner affect a recovery by the state of a penalty provided for such violation. [Id. sec. 17.]

Interstate commerce.—See, also, notes under Art. 6576.

This article has no application to interstate commerce. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. v. Barry (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 814.

The above article is not applicable to discriminations as to freight shipped from another state. Fielder v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co., 92 T. 176, 46 S. W. 633.

Relation to Art. 6554.—See notes under Art. 6670.

Jurisdiction of county court.—Under this article the penalty would not attach if plaintiff did not sue for it; and hence an action for overcharge merely is not one for penalties, and can be brought in the county court. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. J. H. Nations Meat & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 832.

Actions for damages or penalties.—Under this article and Art. 6664 a shipper may sue for excessive freight charges collected by the carrier and for the penalties therefor, without applying to the commission for relief, as permitted by Art. 6664. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

A shipper is not authorized to recover of an initial carrier of live stock, as damages for misrepresentation, the difference between the rate stated by the initial carrier for a through interstate shipment and the authorized published rate which he was required to pay. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Leslie (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 824.

A carrier is liable to a shipper discriminated against by the giving of an advantage to other shippers of the same class for the damages caused by such discrimination, and such damages are recoverable, though the shipper does not sue for the statutory penalty. Vaugh v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 843.

What constitutes unjust discrimination.—See Art. 6670 and notes.

Defenses.—If an overcharge is innocently made through a mistake, it is a matter of defense for the railroad company to plead and prove. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 43 C. A. 544, 96 S. W. 74.

In an action for penalty for overcharge on a local shipment, the defense that under the same contract the carrier had transported Interstate cars at a reduced rate and that on the whole transaction plaintiff was not overcharged in respect to the local cars, was not available under this article. Timpson & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Sanford & Morris, 46 C. A. 686, 103 S. W. 483.

Under this article, a railroad making an overcharge with knowledge of the facts, but under a mistake of law, is liable to the penalty. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

Penalties for separate offenses.—See, also, Art. 6577 and notes.

Under this article and Art. 6669, where a shipper made 24 shipments on 24 different days, and the carrier extorted excessive charges, but its agent allowed the bills to accumulate and collected the charges on 5 occasions, held, that the carrier was guilty of 24 different offenses, authorizing the collection of the penalty for each offense. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

Where a party was entitled to separate penalties for 24 violations of a statute imposing minimum and maximum penalties, and the trial court awarded him separate penalties for 5 violations, and he agreed that the court on appeal might render judgment for the minimum penalty for each offense, the court on appeal would render judgment for the minimum penalty for each of the 24 offenses. W. 176, 106 S. W. 483.

Under the statute providing for penalties for overcharges in demanding and receiving from a shipper a rate in excess of that fixed by the Texas railroad commission, a shipper compelled to pay excessive freight charges on different shipments may recover the penalty for each shipment. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 198.

Recovery of attorney’s fees.—See Art. 2178.

Art. 6672. [4576] Penalty not otherwise provided.—If any railway company doing business in this state shall hereafter violate any other provision of this chapter, or shall do any other act herein prohibited, or shall fail or refuse to perform any other duty enjoined upon it for which a penalty has not been provided by law, or shall fail, neglect or refuse to obey any lawful requirement, order, judgment or decree made by the railroad commission of Texas, for every such act of violation it shall pay to the state of Texas a penalty of not more than five thousand dollars. [Id. sec. 18. Amended Acts 1901, p. 265.]

Art. 6673. [4577] Venue of suits for recovery of penalty.—All of the penalties herein provided, except as provided in article 6671, shall be recovered and suits thereon shall be brought in the name of the state of Texas in the proper court having jurisdiction thereof in Travis county, or in any county to or through which such railroad may run, by the attorney general, or under his direction; and the attorney bringing such suit shall receive a fee of fifty dollars for each penalty recovered and collected by him, and ten per cent of the amount collected, to be paid by the state. In all suits arising under this chapter, the rules of evidence shall be the same as in ordinary civil actions, except as otherwise herein provided. All fines and penalties recovered by the state under this chapter shall be paid into the treasury of the state; provided, however, suits brought under the acts of 1907, chapter 42, page 93, set out in the Penal Code in title 18, chapter 16, for the recovery of penalties, may be brought in any court in this state having jurisdiction of the subject matter in any county: (1) where an act violative of the provisions hereof is committed; (2) where such company or receiver has an agent or representative; (3) where the principal office of such company is situated, or such receiver or receivers, or either, reside; and one-half of all moneys collected under the provisions of said act, less the commission and expenses allowed by law, shall be paid into the state treasury and constitute a part of the general revenue of the state, and the remainder thereof shall be paid into the treasury of the county where such suit or suits may be maintained and constitute a part of the jury fund of such county; and be it further provided, that, it is hereby made the duty of the railroad commission of Texas, the attorney general, and the district and county attorneys of this state, under the direction of the attorney general, to see that the provisions of said act are enforced and obeyed, and penalties due the state are recovered and collected; and said commission shall report to the attorney general all violations within their knowledge, with the facts in their possession, and request him to institute, or have instituted, the proper proceedings for the recovery of any penalty that may be due the state. Any provision or provisions of said act which exempt or except any person, corporation or class of persons from the operation and effects of the same, or which authorize any such persons, corporations or class of persons to give, grant, issue, receive or accept free transportation or transportation at any rate other than is granted to any and all persons of this state, shall be held unconstitutional or invalid, such holding as to any such provision or provisions shall not invalidate any other portion of said act. [Acts 1891, p. 55, sec. 19.]

Venue—Jurisdiction.—The provision of this article referring to recovery of penalty relates to the subject of venue only and not to the subject of jurisdiction. Neither defendant filed a plea of privilege to be sued in some other county and the objection sought to be urged comes too late, when made for first time in appellate court. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. et al. v. Stribling (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 375.

Attorney general to represent state.—The language of this article in connection with Art. 6675 shows the intention to make the attorney general the representative of the state's interest in all such prosecutions and to place them strictly under his direction, and neither a district nor county attorney has any authority to represent the state in such suits except by request of the railroad commission. Railroad Commission v. Weld, 95 T. 278, 66 S. W. 1098.

Art. 6674. [4578] Certified copies of commission rates to be evidence. Effect given to classifications, when.—Upon application of any persons, the commission shall furnish certified copies of any classification, rates, rules, regulations, or orders; and such certified copies, or printed copies published by authority of the commission, shall be admissible in evidence in any suit and sufficient to establish the fact that any charge, rate, rule, order, or classification therein contained and which may be in issue in the trial, is the official act of the commission. A substantial compliance with the requirements of this chapter shall be sufficient to give effect to all the classifications, rates, charges, rules, regulations, requirements and orders made and established by the commission, and none of them shall be declared inoperative for any omission of a technical matter in the performance of such act. [Id. sec. 20.]

Copies of letters.—Under this article printed copies of letters signed by one of the commissioners are not rendered admissible as the commission can act only as a body and not by its individual members. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Drummond (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 728.

Art. 6675. [4579] All violations of duty to be reported to attorney general.—It is hereby made the duty of such railroad commission to see that the provisions of this chapter and all laws of this state concerning railroads are enforced and obeyed, and that violations thereof are promptly prosecuted, and penalties due the state therefor recovered and collected. And said commission shall report all such violations, with the facts in their possession, to the attorney general, or other officer charged with the enforcement of the laws, and request him to institute the proper proceedings; and all suits between the state and any railroad shall have precedence in all courts over all other suits pending therein.

1. Duty to investigate all charges and see that the law is enforced.—It shall be the duty of the commission to investigate all complaints against railroad companies subject hereto, and to enforce all laws of this state in reference to railroads. But any two connecting railroads may enter into a contract whereby any part or all of the passengers, freight or cars, empty or loaded, hauled or transported by one and destined to points on or beyond the line of the other, shall be delivered to, received and transported by the other; which contract, however, shall be submitted to the railroad commission for examination and approval, and when so approved shall be binding; but, if the said contract be not approved by the commission, the same shall be void; provided, that any connecting line delivering freight to the owner or consignee of such freight may be sued by the owner thereof in the county where the freight is delivered for any damage that may be done to such freight in its transportation. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 6676. [4580] “Road,” “railroad,” “railroad companies,” etc., defined. Law applies only to railroads in this state. One train a day to be run.—The terms, “road,” “railroad,” “railroad companies,” and, “railroad corporations,” as used herein, shall be taken to mean and embrace all corporations, companies, individuals and associations of individuals, their lessees or receivers, appointed by any court whatsoever, that may now or hereafter own, operate, manage or control any railroad, or part of a railroad, in this state, and all such corporations, companies and associations of individuals, their lessees or receivers, as shall do the business of common carriers on any railroad in this state.

1. The provisions of this chapter shall be construed to apply to and affect only the transportation of passengers, freight and cars between points within this state; and this chapter shall not apply to street railways nor suburban or belt lines of railways in or near cities and towns.

2. It shall be the duty of the commissioners to see that, upon every railroad and branch of same carrying passengers for hire in this state, shall be run at least one train a day, Sundays excepted, upon which passengers shall be hauled, and the commission shall have power to relax this provision, and shall further regulate passenger train service by requiring all passenger trains carrying passengers for hire to stop for a time sufficient to receive and let off passengers at such stations as may be designated by the commissioners; provided, that four trains each way, carrying passengers for hire, if so many are run daily, Sundays excepted, be required to stop as aforesaid at all county seat stations. [Id. sec. 22. Amended Acts 1903, p. 183.]

To what railroads applicable.—This article applies to railways owning and operating their own roads, and not to a railroad company having a mere trackage contract over another road. The right to use the road exists by contract with its owner, and where the service of the company owning the road is ample over that part covered by the trackage contract, there is no need for the commission to require anything from the road having the trackage contract. State v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1158.

Interstate commerce.—A state cannot regulate charges on switching cars at terminal points containing freight brought from another state. This is within the meaning of interstate commerce and is controlled by congress. Fielder v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 362.

A contract of a common carrier for delivery to another carrier of goods for transportation out of the state is not subject to state railway commission regulations, because such business is interstate commerce. State v. G., C. & S. F. R. R. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 443.

Where freight is shipped from a point outside of Texas under a contract for its delivery to a point in Texas to be shipped to another place in the state, it is interstate commerce. State v. Railroad Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 252.

Under certain facts, held, that a shipment of freight would be an interstate shipment, and not subject to the commission rates of Texas. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Fort Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 419.

A person has the right under a foreign bill of lading to ship property from different points in the state to a foreign port and concentrate it at another point in the state and there classify it, and have it compressed at the place of concentration, although it has passed compresses on the way from the original points of shipment to the place of concentration, this being a foreign and not a domestic shipment. He can substitute property from one foreign bill of lading to another so as to have property of the same class in the same bill of lading and a railroad carrier transporting such property to the point of concentration without stopping at the first compress on the route from the original point of shipment does not violate the law and therefore is not liable for the penalty fixed for violating this law. State v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 22 C. A. 58, 73 S. W. 572.

The act of congress (Act Feb. 4, 1887, c. 104, § 20, 24 Stat. 386 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3188]). Authorizing the interstate commerce commission to prescribe a uniform book-keeping system, and prohibiting the keeping of any accounts, etc., other than those ordered by the commission, was directed only against other accounts of matters relating to interstate commerce, and does not preclude a state commission from requiring the keeping of other accounts of matters relating to purely intrastate business. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas, 105 T. 386, 160 S. W. 878.

More than one train per day each way.—This act confers upon the railroad commission the power, to require if the circumstances and the demands of the public require it, the operation of more than one passenger train a day each way. Railroad Commission v. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 447, 112 S. W. 345, 354.

Stopping at stations.—Where a railroad granted to another road the right to run its trains over certain points, it not to do business at intermediate points, the railroad commission held not authorized to compel the second road to stop its trains for passengers and freight at such intermediate points. State v. Trinity & B. & V. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 424, 130 S. W. 1123.

Art. 6677. [4581] Law cumulative.—Any of the provisions of this chapter which may be inconsistent or in conflict with the act of 1907, chapter 42, page 93, relating to free passes and free transportation of goods, etc., incorporated in and made a part of the Penal Code of the state of Texas, shall be void and inoperative, but to that extent only. And the provisions of the foregoing articles of this chapter shall not have the effect to release or waive any right of action by the state, or any person, for any right, penalty or forfeiture which may have arisen or may hereafter arise under any law of this state; and all penalties accruing under this chapter shall be cumulative of each other, and a suit for or recovery of one shall not be a bar to the recovery of any other penalty. [Acts 1891, p. 55, sec. 23.]

Constitutionality.—This article is not invalid as authorizing the imposition of excessive fines in violation of Const. art. I, § 13. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

Charges and penalties, etc.—Under Art. 6669, imposing penalties on a railroad company demanding excessive freight charges, and this article, a shipper compelled to pay excessive freight charges on different shipments may recover the penalty for each separate act of extortion. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 256.

AUTHORITY AND DUTIES OF COMMISSION OVER OTHER SUBJECTS

Art. 6677a. Power over public wharves, etc., elevators, warehouses, etc., and suburban, belt and terminal railroads; rates, charges and regulations, etc.—Power and authority are hereby conferred upon the railroad commission of Texas over all public wharves, docks and piers and all elevators, warehouses, sheds, tracks and other property used in connection therewith in the state of Texas, and over all suburban, belt and terminal railroads in said state, and over all persons, associations and corporations, private or municipal, owning or operating any such railroad, wharf, dock, pier, elevator, warehouse, shed, track, or other property, and it is hereby made the duty of the said railroad commission to fix and adopt all necessary rates, charges and regulations, to govern and regulate said persons, associations and corporations, and to correct abuses and prevent unjust discriminations in the rates, charges and tolls of said persons, associations and corporations, and to fix divisions of rates, charges and regulations between same and railroads and all other common carriers, under the control of the railroad commission where a division is proper, and to correct and prevent any and all other abuses in the conduct of their business. [Acts 1911, p. 157, sec. 1.]

Art. 6677b. Penalty for extortion.—If any person, association or corporation subject to the provisions of this Act, shall demand or receive a greater compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered than that fixed and established by the said railroad commission then, and in every such case, such person, association or corporation shall be deemed guilty of extortion and shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas, a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each offense; provided, that if it shall appear that such violation was not wilful, said person, association or corporation shall have ten days to refund such overcharges or damages, in which case the penalty shall not be incurred, and the said commission shall have authority and it shall be its duty to sue for and recover the same in the same manner as may be prescribed by law for like suits against railroad companies. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6677c. Penalty for discrimination.—If any person, association or corporation subject to the provisions of this Act shall by any special rate, rebate, drawback or other device, or in any manner directly or indirectly charge, demand, collect or receive from any other person, association or corporation a greater or less compensation for any service rendered, or to be rendered, by it than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any other person, association or corporation for doing a like and contemporaneous service, or if any such person, association or corporation shall make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any other person, association or corporation, or to any locality, or shall subject any particular description of traffic to any undue or unreasonable prejudice, delay or disadvantage, then and in any such case the person, association or corporation thus offending shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars ($500.00) for each and every offense. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6677d. Rules and regulations; stock and bonds.—Said railroad commission shall have the same power to make and prescribe rules and regulations for the government and control of all such persons, associations and corporations as is or may be conferred upon said commission for the regulation of railroad companies, and such persons, associations and corporations shall issue no stock or bonds, except such as are authorized by the railroad commission under the provisions of the railroad stock and bond law of this state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6677e. Powers of commission; reports; suits; laws applicable.—The said railroad commission shall have the authority, and it shall be its duty, to call upon such persons, associations and corporations for reports, and to investigate their books in the same manner as is or may be prescribed by law for the regulation of railroad companies; and said commission shall have power and authority to institute suits and sue out such writs and process as may be applicable and authorized for the regulation of railroad companies. All laws made and prescribed for the government and control of railroad companies, and the valuation of their properties, in so far as they are applicable, shall be of equal force and effect against all such persons, associations and corporations. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6677f. Objections to decisions, etc.; actions and appeals.—If any such person, association or corporation or other party at interest, be dissatisfied with any decision, rate, charge, toll, rule, order, act or regulation adopted by the commission, such dissatisfied person, association, corporation or party may file a petition setting forth the particular cause or causes of objection to such decision, rate, charge, toll, rule, order, act or regulation, or to either or all of them, in a court of competent jurisdiction in Travis county, Texas, against such commission as defendant, said action shall have precedence over all other causes on the docket of a different nature, and shall be tried and determined as other civil causes in said court, either paty [party] to said action may appeal to the appellate court having jurisdiction of said cause, and said appeal shall be at once returnable to said appellate court, at either of its terms, and said action so appealed shall have precedence in said appellate court of all causes of a different character therein pending; provided, that if the court be in session at the time of such right of action accruing, the suit may be filed during such term and stand ready for trial after ten days' notice. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6678. Railroad to furnish cars when demanded.—When any person, firm or corporation desiring to ship any freight of any kind shall make application in writing to any superintendent, agent or other person in charge of transportation, to any railway company, receiver or trustee operating a line of railway at the point the cars are desired upon which to ship any freight, it shall be the duty of such railway company, receiver, trustee, or other person in charge thereof, to supply the number of cars so required, at the point indicated in the application, within a reasonable time thereafter, not to exceed six days from the receipt of such application, and shall supply such cars to the persons so applying therefor, in the order in which such applications are made, without giving preference to any person; provided, if the application be for twelve cars or less, the same shall be furnished in three days; and provided, further, that, if the application be for fifty cars or more, the railway company may have ten full days in which to supply the cars. [Acts 1887, p. 133. Amended Acts 1899, p. 67. Acts 1913, S. S., p. 23, sec. 1, amending Art. 6678, Rev. St. 1911.]

Constitutionality.—This article and Art. 6681 are a proper exercise of the police power reserved to the state and are therefore valid. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Mayes, 36 C. A. 606, 53 S. W. 55, 55.

That part of this article and Arts. 6679 and 6680 imposing a penalty for delay in furnishing cars is invalid and inoperative, both as to interstate and intrastate shipments, but an action will lie for actual damages caused by negligent delay in furnishing cars when requested under these articles. Texas P. Ry. Co. v. Allen (Cliv. App.) 95 S. W. 451. Arts. 6678-6683 are valid so far as they apply to intrastate shipments, though invalid as to interstate shipments, and penalties can be recovered for their violation as to an intrastate shipment. Allen v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 100 T. 525, 101 S. W. 792, 793, 794.

Strict construction.—See notes under Art. 6680. This furnishing cars, supplying cars, furnishing a reasonable time within which a railroad company shall furnish cars for transportation of cattle is a question of fact for the jury. Davis v. T. & P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 505, 44 S. W. 822.

Where the order was not written but was entered in the company's order book, and the company took the order and undertook to fill it without any deposit of one fourth of the amount of freight, nine days is held not to be an unreasonable time within which the company was required to furnish the cars called for. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Smith & White, 34 C. A. 571, 78 S. W. 614, 615.

This law should be construed to carry a penalty as against the railroad company when ten cars or less are demanded, only when the shipper having in his application named as the time for the delivery a date not earlier than three days in advance of the time when the application therefor is delivered to it, it fails on that date to furnish the cars, and as against the shipper only, when the cars having been furnished on that date, he fails to use them. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Blocker (Cliv. App.) 106 S. W. 720.

Under the act of 1887 (Arts. 6678-6683) a railroad company is not liable for damages and the penalties provided therein for failure to deliver cars to a shipper when the requirement for the cars designates as the date of delivery the day the application is made. The date of the delivery must not be stated to be earlier than three days from the date of the application. See T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Blocker, 48 C. A. 100, 106 S. W. 718; Griffith v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 510, 116 S. W. 649.

The penalty is not recoverable where the railroad company has a legal excuse for failing to furnish the cars by the time named in the application. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Andrews, Reynolds & Co., 103 T. 271, 126 S. W. 562.

Particular kind of car.—A shipper has no right to demand that a particular kind of car be furnished, as recovery for a failure to do so, unless he shows that no other car was proper or suitable. Railway Co. v. Slator, 7 C. A. 344, 26 S. W. 333.

No particular kind of cars is prescribed by the statute and the only requirement in this respect that can be lawfully imposed by a shipper is that the cars furnished be reasonably suited to the purposes intended. When one demands a particular kind of cars and they are not furnished, he must look for redress to an action upon his contract and not to one for the recovery for the penalty denounced in Art. 6683. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Barrow, 33 C. A. 611, 77 S. W. 642.
This statute does not impose upon the railway company the duty of supplying a particular number of cars to a shipper that duty does not rest with the shipper himself within the letter of the statute, giving the penalty and therefore has no cause of action in this respect. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Risley Bros. & Co., 55 C. A. 66, 119 S. W. 898.

Interstate commerce.—See, also, Art. 6676.

An application which requests cars to be furnished for shipment of cattle to a certain point in the state, and from there to be shipped over another line to a point without the state is insufficient to support a judgment for the penalty imposed. (Note—This case was decided before the motion for rehearing was passed on in the Allen Case [Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 451.) Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Loving (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 452, 453.

Arts. 6678-6683 are invalid as to interstate shipments. Allen v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 100 S. W. 792, 793, 794.

This article applies in cases of interstate shipment. An application in writing to local agent at station from which it is desired to ship complies with the statute. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1119.

Contract to furnish cars.—See notes under Art. 6690.

Railroads to keep clean stock cars.—See Art. 7317.

Art. 6679. [4498] Application shall state what.—Said application for cars shall state the number of cars desired, the place at which they are desired, and the time they are desired; provided, that the place designated shall be at some station or switch on the railroad. [Acts 1887, p. 133, sec. 2.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 6678.

Strict construction.—See notes under Art. 6680.

Where cars must be furnished.—Every switch is not a receiving and discharging station, and only such switches at which the company has an agent are within the statute. H. E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell, 91 T. 551, 45 S. W. 2, 43 L. R. A. 225.

A railroad company is not liable in a penalty for failure to furnish freight cars at a point where it has no agent. Id.

Art. 6680. [4499] Penalty for failure to furnish. When cars are applied for under the provisions of this chapter, if they are not furnished, the railway company so failing to furnish them shall forfeit to the party or parties so applying for them the sum of twenty-five dollars per day for each car failed to be furnished, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction, and all actual damages that such applicant may sustain. [Id. sec. 3.]

Constitutionality.—See notes under Art. 6678.

The statute is strictly penal, and he who seeks to recover a penalty under such statute must bring himself strictly within the provisions of the law in framing his application. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hughes, 99 T. 533, 91 S. W. 567, 568.

Amount of penalty.—Where an order filed November 28th, for cars to be furnished on December 2d, was complied with by furnishing cars on December 13th, held that only 10 days remained for which a penalty for delay should be allowed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Risley, 54 C. A. 419, 138 S. W. 1097.

The penalty is to be inflicted at the rate of $25 per day for each car and to be continued for the whole time of the carrier's delinquency. Id.

Damages.—Measure of damages for not furnishing cars for the shipment of cattle, see Railway Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 577.

Defenses.—Where the application was not in writing but was accepted and entered in the company's order book, and effort was made to comply with it and no deposit of one-fourth of amount of freight was required, the penalty for failing to furnish the cars within a reasonable time could not be recovered. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Smith & White, 34 C. A. 571, 79 S. W. 614, 615.

The penalty is not recoverable where the railroad company has a legal excuse for failing to furnish the cars by the time named in the application. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Andrew. Reynolds & Co., 103 T. 571, 126 S. W. 592.

That one making a demand for cars is only part owner of the freight to be shipped will not prevent him suing for the penalty. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 103 T. 367, 126 S. W. 1117.

Interstate commerce.—See, also, Art. 6676 and notes, and notes under Art. 6678.

Under this article, that a shipper demanding cars had the intention and did actually ship them to a point in Mexico does not change the shipment to a foreign shipment, where the freight was shipped to a point within the state consigned to the shipper, and the freight was thereafter shipped to a point in Mexico. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 103 T. 367, 126 S. W. 1117.

Art. 6681. Applicant shall make deposit.—Such applicant shall deposit with such agent, superintendent or other person one-fourth of the amount of freight charges for the use of such cars. And such applicant shall, within forty-eight hours after such car or cars have been delivered and placed as hereinbefore provided, fully load the same; and upon failure to do so, he shall forfeit and pay to the company the sum of twenty-five dollars for each car not used; provided, that where applications are made on several days, all of which are filed upon the same day, the applicant shall have forty-eight hours to load the car or cars furnished on the first application, and the next forty-eight hours to load the car or cars furnished on the next application, and so on; and the penalty prescribed shall not accrue as to any car or lot of cars applied for any one day, until the period within which they may be loaded has expired. And if the said applicant shall not use such cars so ordered by him, and shall so notify the said company or its agent, he shall forfeit and pay to the said railroad company, in addition to the penalty herein prescribed, the actual damages that such company may sustain by the said failure of the applicant to use said cars. [Acts 1887, p. 133, sec. 4. Amended. Acts 1899, p. 67. Acts 1913, S. S., p. 23, sec. 2, amending Art. 6681, Rev. St. 1911.]

Construction of statute.—The provisions of the statute that a deposit of one-fourth of the freight money must be made “at the time of applying for such car or cars” is given a liberal construction. Where cars were wanted at a flag station, and written applications to the superintendent were delivered to the baggage masters of trains on the 2d and 3d days of November, and a tender of the freight money was made to the nearest station agent on the morning of the 3d, and refused, it was held that the application was sufficient. H., E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 431.

In common acceptance the “agent” of a railroad company is the person representing the company at a station or depot on its line. Id.

The provision imposing a penalty of $25 for each car not used by a shipper within 48 hours after it is furnished him for loading, being penal, cannot be extended by implication, and must be strictly construed, so as not to impose any penalty not expressly provided by its terms. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Louis Werner Stave Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 658.

Where a statute requires an act to be performed within a certain number of days or hours, and does not expressly exclude Sunday, so that the provision of this article imposing a penalty on shippers for failure to load within 48 hours after the delivery of cars should under such rule be construed to include Sunday within the time provided. Id.

Amount of penalty.—Under this article only one penalty may be collected for each car not loaded within 48 hours after it is placed for loading. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Louis Werner Stave Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 658.

Negligence of shipper in loading.—If damage is caused by the negligence of the shipper while he is loading the car, he is responsible for such damage, and not the railroad company which furnished him the car. Washington v. Railroad Co., 22 C. A. 189, 54 S. W. 1092.

Art. 6682. To deliver loaded cars in reasonable time.—When cars have been supplied and loaded, it shall be the duty of the railway company to deliver the same to the party or parties to whom they are consigned within a reasonable time; and the party or parties to whom the cars are consigned shall unload the same within forty-eight hours after delivery and notice, or forfeit and pay to the company the sum of twenty-five dollars per day for each car not so unloaded. [Acts 1887, p. 133, sec. 5. Acts 1913, S. S., p. 23, sec. 3, amending Art. 6682, Rev. St. 1911.]

Liability of consignor as to unloading.—The consignor is not liable for failure to see that cars are unloaded at point of destination within the time required by the statute. H. E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell, 91 T. 551, 45 S. W. 2, 43 L. R. A. 225.

Art. 6683. Necessary for applicant to show what.—It shall be necessary for the party or parties bringing suit against any railroad company under the provisions of this law to show by evidence that such cars would have been loaded within the time specified by this Act; provided that the provisions of this law shall not apply in cases of strikes or other public calamity. [Acts 1887, p. 133, sec. 6. Acts 1913, S. S., p. 23, sec. 4, amending Art. 6683, Rev. St. 1911.]

What must be shown.—This article does not require the intending shipper to have the property at the immediate point of shipment at the time of demand, but it means that he has or owns the property, and that he is so circumstanced that it may be shipped within the time named in the statute after the delivery of the cars at the point demanded. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 54 C. A. 419, 118 S. W. 1118; Smith (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1119; Same v. Andrews, Reynolds & Co., 55 C. A. 302, 118 S. W. 1102.

The shipper must have on hand at the time of making the order the necessary freight for loading them. It is not enough to show that he would have the freight by the time the cars were to be furnished. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Risley Bros. & Co., 55 C. A. 66, 119 S. W. 588.

Where a shipper, demanding stock cars, has his stock within five miles of the station ready to be loaded within a few hours after receiving notice of the arrival of the cars, he has his stock "on hand," within this article. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 103 T. 587, 126 S. W. 1117.

Art. 6683a. Not to affect demurrage regulations.—Provided that the provisions of this Act shall not be held to forfeit or annul the demurrage regulations provided by the railroad commission of Texas, and all penalties accruing to the carrier hereunder shall be cumulative of and additional to all demurrage charges prescribed by said commission. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 23, sec. 5.]

Art. 6684. Duty to furnish cars, etc.—It is hereby declared to be the duty of every railroad company incorporated under the laws of the state of Texas and doing business in this state, under limitations and regulations prescribed by the railroad commission of Texas, to equip and provide sufficient motive power and rolling stock to handle all passenger and freight traffic expeditiously and without delay. [Acts 1907, p. 297, sec. 1.]

Art. 6685. Commission to require and authorize mortgage, etc.—The railroad commission shall have authority, and it is hereby made its duty, to see that each and every railroad corporation chartered under the laws of this state, holding itself out as a public highway and common carrier, shall provide and equip itself with sufficient motive power and rolling stock, or other equipment necessary, to handle all passenger and freight traffic expeditiously and without delay. The railroad commission of Texas shall be vested with full power to require of such common carriers the purchase of such rolling stock and motive power as will properly equip such common carrier and facilitate the movement of all traffic, passenger and freight, and that will supply the transportation accommodations which such common carrier offers to perform as an inducement to the public to travel or ship via the lines of such railroad company, or common carrier. The railroad commission is also authorized and empowered to approve liens or mortgages that may be given by such railroad companies and common carriers to secure the purchase or lease price of any equipment or motive power which may be deemed by the railroad commission necessary for the proper discharge of its duty as a common carrier. If in the judgment and discretion of the commission any railroad company in this state, which now has an excessive issue of bonds and stocks outstanding, has not sufficient passenger and freight equipment and motive power to handle the passenger and freight business of such common carrier and railroad company, it shall be the duty of said railroad commission of Texas, after not less than five days’ notice and hearing, to issue an order requiring the purchase of such rolling stock as in the judgment and discretion of the commission may be deemed necessary for the prompt, expeditious and comfortable transportation of freight and passengers over the line of such railroad company and common carrier; and in such case, the railroad commission of Texas is authorized to approve contracts or liens for the purpose of securing the purchase or lease price of such rolling stock, motive power and equipment. [Id. sec. 2.]

Duty to furnish facilities.—A railroad company is bound to afford adequate facilities for such business, both passenger and freight, as may be offered it, or may be reasonably expected, and the company is given large discretion in determining questions as to the equipment and operation of its road, subject, however, to the state or railroad commission to control such discretion when the interests of the public require it. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 447, 112 S. W. 345.

Art. 6686. Penalty for failure to comply.—Any railroad company or common carrier failing to comply with the provisions of the two preceding articles, or to obey the orders of the railroad commission, made in pursuance of the provisions hereof, shall be deemed guilty of an abuse of their rights and privileges, and, upon conviction, shall be subject to a fine of one hundred dollars for a violation or failure to comply with any order that may be issued by the railroad commission as is provided said commission may do by article 6685, and each day that such railroad company or common carrier neglects, fails or refuses to comply with such orders shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6687. Shall furnish freight facilities, interchange cars, etc.—It is hereby declared to be the duty of every railroad company operating a line of railroad within this state, to provide sufficient tracks, switches, sidings, yards, depots and other facilities for receiving and delivering freight, motive power, cars and all other needful facilities and appliances, to enable it with reasonable dispatch to perform all of its duties as to all traffic which with ordinary foresight and diligence could be anticipated, as a common carrier; and to furnish all necessary and suitable cars and vehicles of transportation for all freight offered or tendered, or to be offered or tendered, to it for shipment within a reasonable time after demand therefor made by any shipper of such freight; and to supply within a reasonable time, at its station or stations, spurs, sidings, switches, or other places, at which it receives freight for transportation, and from which such shipper gives notice to such railway company that he desires to ship such freight, at the time designated by the shipper, where it is within reasonable time, sufficient suitable cars in which to load the same; and as to all services to be performed within the limits of this state, as to such freight and cars to transport same within a reasonable time to destination, when destined to a point upon the line of such railway receiving such freight, and, if destined to a point beyond the line of such railroad, then to transport and deliver within a reasonable time such freight in such loaded car or cars to the connecting carrier forming any part of the route over which such shipment is made, or to be made, for the purpose of transportation by such connecting carrier onto the destination of such freight, or for delivery by it to the connecting line or lines forming any part of the route over which same is to be transported to its ultimate destination; and it shall likewise be the duty of each connecting line of railroad engaged in such transportation, as to all such service to be performed, as to all such freight and cars in which the same is carried within this state, to receive and transport within a reasonable time such loaded car or cars offered or tendered to it, if in suitable condition for movement, and deliver the same at the destination thereof, if destined to a point upon its line of railroad, and, if destined to a point beyond its line of railroad, then to its connecting carrier forming any part of the route over which such car or cars are to be transported, subject to the same duties and obligations as if such freight had originated upon such line of railroad; provided, that where such freight forms less than a carload, or where it may be necessary to unload the same because of any accident or injury thereto, or to the car in which the same is being transported, or where such freight is unloaded at the request of the shipper en route, or where, by reason of any accidental or unavoidable cause, or in order to comply with any law or regulation provided by law, such freight is unloaded, or it is reasonably necessary to do so, or where it is for any other reason necessary to unload such freight in order to forward, or before it can be forwarded, in any such cases where suitable cars may be supplied. Provided, that as to freight carried wholly within this state, the railroad commission of Texas shall have the power, and authority is hereby vested in it, to make all needful rules and regulations for unloading cars at junction points, or otherwise forwarding cars, furnishing cars for forwarding or reloading and the exchange of cars and forwarding of such freight in the same or other cars. Provided, also, that whenever by reason of any accidental or unavoidable cause which can not be reasonably provided against by the use of reasonable foresight or diligence, such railroad company fails to so furnish cars and shall use reasonable diligence to do so promptly after the happening of such accidental or unavoidable cause, it shall not, on account of such failure, be liable to the penalties of attorney's fees, or as otherwise herein prescribed. But nothing in this article shall in any wise affect the right or remedy of any shipper or other person as same may exist at common law or under any statute to recover on account of the failure, delay, refusal to furnish cars for transportation of any freight, or other failure to perform any other legal duty, nor to in any wise exempt any such railroad company from any of the provisions of the statutes of this state, or other duties imposed by law. [Acts 1907, p. 343, sec. 1.]

Duty to furnish facilities.—See, also, notes under Art. 6685.

Where the sole issue was whether a defendant had furnished cars to a live stock shipper in a reasonable time after demand, a special charge, in the language of this article that it was defendant's duty to have sufficient cars to meet all demands, was erroneous as calculated to cause the jury to consider that a duty not in issue was important. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Word (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 478.

Interchange of cars and freight—in general.—Freight must be received and transported and not be halted and delayed by connecting lines until the differences between the carriers are voluntarily and satisfactorily settled among themselves. Under this construction neither the carrier nor the connecting railway lines would suffer. The initial carrier has no right to attach unlawful conditions to its delivery of the freight. Neither has the connecting carrier the right to force the initial right to terms by refusing to receive and transport the freight. The commission having fixed the joint rate, the companies must agree or have the commission make the division. Railroad Co. v. Lone Star Salt Co., 19 C. A. 676, 48 S. W. 619.

A connecting carrier being bound to accept and forward cattle delivered to it by the initial carrier was not bound by a freight rate less than the legal rate specified by the agent of the connecting carrier by mistake. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Reed, 66 C. A. 452, 121 S. W. 519.

Defective car.—Where a car when tendered to a connecting carrier was not in a condition suitable for further movement, the carrier had a right to refuse to receive it under this article. Port Arthur Rice Milling Co. v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 923.

Art. 6688. To interchange cars at junction points.—For the purpose of facilitating the movement, preservation and exchange of freight, it shall be the duty of every railroad company in this state, whose line of railroad connects with the line of any other railroad company in this state, to exchange at such connecting or junction points, the loaded and empty cars used in or for the transportation of freight carried upon such lines of railroad forming any part of the route over which said freight is carried or to be carried; and it shall be the duty of any such railroad companies forming any part of the through or joint route over which any freight is carried or to be carried, or having or participating in the joint rates on which such freight is carried or to be carried, on demand of any such connecting line, delivering to it any such loaded car or cars of freight at junction points within this state, to furnish to such delivering line within a reasonable time after such loaded cars are so received, at such junction point in this state, as many cars suitable for the carriage or transportation of similar freight as may be so delivered to it loaded, by such connecting line; and, upon the demand of the owner thereof, or the railroad company entitled thereto, or to the use thereof, it shall be the duty of every such railroad company so receiving the cars of another to return the same at the place where they were received, or at such place, as may be by said railroads agreed upon, within a reasonable time after demand therefor; and as to cars exchanged in transporting freight wholly in this state within the time and according to the rules and regulations prescribed by the railroad commission of Texas. [Id. sec. 2.]

Intersecting tracks.—See Arts. 6499-6501 and notes.

Joint use of yards.—Where defendant maintained railroad yards jointly with another company, it was not liable for injuries resulting from the negligence of the servants of the other company. Jolly v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 28 C. A. 842, 86 S. W. 937.

Injuries to servants from defective foreign cars.—See Art. 6648 and notes.

Art. 6689. Commission to make rules and regulations.—The railroad commission of Texas is hereby authorized and empowered, as to all freight carried wholly within this state and the cars used therefor, to make and establish all needful rules and regulations, general and special, which may be different according to the circumstances and conditions to different railroads and localities and for different kind and classes of freight and cars, providing for the time, place and manner of demanding cars for or giving notice of shipment of such freight and the time, place, manner and order in which the same shall be furnished to shippers for the purpose of shipping freight between points in this state; and to prescribe rules and regulations for the furnishing, exchanging and interchanging of cars, loaded and empty, by railroad companies as between each other; the time, place, terms and conditions upon which such cars shall be furnished and such interchange shall be made, and in the absence of an agreement of such railroad companies, the reasonable compensation to be paid by each railroad company for the use, loss, injury or destruction of the cars of another railroad company in the transportation of such freight; the time within which, and the manner by which railroad companies shall give notice or make demand upon each other for cars to be furnished by one railroad company in exchange for loaded cars, or to have its cars returned, the reasonable free time to be allowed the shippers for the loading of such car or cars without incurring liability for demurrage, the free time which shall be allowed to the shipper or consignee in which to unload such freight without incurring any liability for demurrage; a schedule of reasonable demurrage charges reciprocal or otherwise, for the use of cars, irrespective of damages or penalties herein provided, which may be different for different railroads and different traffic and localities, to be paid by shippers for the detention or use of cars either in loading or unloading, or by the railroads for failing in a reasonable time to furnish cars, or to make delivery of loaded cars, subject to the penalties and damages herein provided, and the rules and regulations with respect thereto. Said commission, whenever it may deem same necessary in order to secure the prompt transportation of freight and preservation of the property, shall be authorized to prescribe the minimum speed at which freight shall be moved when being transported between points within this state, including the time for transfer and delivery as between connecting railroads. It shall be the duty of every such railway company to conform to all of the rules and regulations and orders of the commission made in accordance with the two preceding and the three succeeding articles; and the failure of any such railroad company to observe the rules and regulations of the commission, or to comply with the provisions of this law, as to freight carried wholly within this state, shall be deemed an abuse subject to correction by the railroad commission of Texas, and shall subject such railroad company to the penalties hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6690. Liable for damages, when.—Every railroad company which, in violation of any of the provisions of this law, shall fail to furnish any car or cars for the shipment of any freight within a reasonable time, or in case of the shipment of freight between points when within this state, then within the time prescribed by the railroad commission of Texas, in the event it shall prescribe the time by rules or regulations as provided for herein, and, if it shall fail to do so then within a reasonable time, or shall fail to receive and forward any loaded car or cars or to exchange cars as provided for herein, shall be liable to the shipper or other person injured or damaged thereby for all such injury and damages as may result to such shipper, and all special damages of which such railroad company had notice at the time of the shipment, or which shall occur after written notice thereof, and shall be liable in addition thereto for an amount equal to a reasonable attorney's fee in case suit is brought for the recovery of such damage; and in case of the failure or refusal to so furnish within a reasonable time any car or cars for the shipment of live stock, green fruit, vegetables or other perishable freight, such railroad company for such failure to furnish such car or cars within a reasonable time shall be liable to the shipper for the damage caused thereby, and a reasonable attorney’s fee in case suit is brought to recover the same. Every railroad company which shall fail to furnish cars or to exchange as required by the provisions of this law, or by the rules and regulations of the railroad commission as provided for herein, shall be liable to the railroad company injured thereby for all such damage as may result to it, and in addition thereto an amount equal to a reasonable attorney’s fee in case of suit brought for the recovery of any damage. Every railroad company using cars of another railroad company, or which have been delivered to it by such railroad company, shall be liable to the party entitled thereto to pay for the reasonable use and hire thereof, and for injury or damage thereto, or destruction thereof, while in its possession or under its control, for the amount of such injury; and, in case of cars in the shipment of freight between points wholly within this state, the amount for the use or hire thereof may be prescribed by the railroad commission of Texas, except where the owners of such cars and such railroad companies agree upon such compensation, in which case, the amount so fixed shall govern. And, where any such railroad company, or owner of any such car or cars, shall be dissatisfied with the amount fixed by the commission for such use, hire, loss or destruction, or damage to such car, or where the railroad company liable therefor shall fail to pay for the same, the railroad commission, or person entitled thereto, or which is liable for the use, hire, loss, injury or destruction of such cars, shall be entitled to establish the reasonable value thereof in a suit brought in any court of this state having jurisdiction of the parties, and of the amount in controversy; and such court shall render such judgment as to it shall seem just and reasonable; provided, that no railroad company shall be compelled to furnish its own cars to any other railroad company which is involved, except upon reasonable security furnished to it to protect it from loss of or damages to or destruction of such cars and compensation for the use thereof, and in no event shall any railroad company be required to furnish any cars to any connecting line, except to exchange for other cars reasonably suitable for the transportation of freight. [Id. sec. 4.]

Actions for damages—In general.—A railroad company held liable for injury to stock caused by a failure to furnish proper cars, though plaintiff agreed to load and reload and assume risk of transportation. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Pool, 24 C. A. 575, 59 S. W. 911.

That the car tendered to a railroad company for shipment was not the car in which freight was originally loaded by a connecting carrier held no defense to an action to recover a penalty for delay. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lone Star Salt Co., 26 C. A. 531, 63 S. W. 1025.

A release of two railroad companies from liability for injuries to cattle shipped held not to preclude plaintiff from maintaining an action against a third for failure to furnish cars within a reasonable time in which to ship such cattle. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Lovelady & Pyron, 39 C. A. 239, 87 S. W. 716.

In an action against defendant railway company for injuries caused by its failure to furnish plaintiff with the cars of a connecting railway company, defendant’s failure to accept cars of the connecting carrier held not excusable on the ground that it would have worked an unjust discrimination against other shippers. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Matador Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 461.

Contributory negligence.—A shipper of live stock is not guilty of contributory negligence in simply having his stock at the point of shipment at what is in fact a reasonable time after a demand for cars. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Word (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 472.

Measure of damages.—A railroad refusing without reasonable excuse to furnish cars to an applicant for the shipment of an article under a contract, of which it had knowledge, is liable to the applicant for the loss of his profits by cancellation of the contract by the purchaser. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 431.

Measure of damages for delay in holding car containing vegetables at original destination after change in destination has been made, is difference in values at changed destination. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 792.

When a consignee paid the freight on a car of coke in the carrier’s yards at its destination, he informed the carrier that the consignee’s supply of coke was running short, and that, unless it received the coke promptly, its plant would likely be shut down, as coke was necessary to run it. Held sufficient to charge the carrier with notice of special damages by loss of business. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Neches Iron Works, 57 C. A. 549, 122 S. W. 64.
The measure of damages for a carrier’s failure to furnish cars for the transportation of live stock is the difference between the market value at the destination to which the cattle were to be carried at the time they would have arrived if the carrier had furnished cars, and their value at the same time and place, from which they were not shipped, lesse the freight, though the shipper treated the carrier’s obligation to furnish cars as at an end by the breach complained of was of the carrier’s mon-law, instead of contract, duty. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. O’Loughlin Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 685.

The measure of damages for delay in furnishing cars for the shipment of cattle is the same as for injuries in transportation, and in either case is the difference between the market value at destination, at the time of arrival, in their then condition, and their market value if they had not been delayed or had not been injured en route, and this measure obtains although the cattle were not to be sold immediately upon their arrival at destination. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 210. Where cattle were properly brought to the place of shipment six days before the time for shipment, and the carrier failed to provide cars, the expense of holding the cattle before shipment was a proper item of damage. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico v. Littlefield (Sup.) 154 S. W. 543.

Where one contracted for cars to ship cattle in his own name for a third person, under his authority, he could recover for the delay in furnishing the total number of cars. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 265.

— Interstate shipment.—Where a shipper contracts to use cars for shipment of stock, he may recover for breach of the contract though the shipment was to be made beyond the limits of the state. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Golson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 456.

Damages.—A carrier having failed to perform a contract to furnish certain cars for the shipment of cattle as agreed, the shipper held not bound to load the cattle for a part of the distance over such carrier’s line in order to reduce the damages. Pecos River R. Co. v. Latham, 40 C. A. 78, 85 S. W. 392.

If a railroad company wrongfully or negligently delayed to furnish plaintiff cars for which plaintiff was bound to ship live stock under his contract with another, after notice of the facts making it necessary for plaintiff to incur the expense of keeping teams ready to load the cars when furnished, it would be liable for such additional expenses, in an action by plaintiff for damages for breach of its contract to furnish cars and discrimination in furnishing them. Waugh v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 181 S. W. 843. A carrier failing to furnish cars for the shipment of live stock pursuant to its agreement is liable for the damages proximately resulting therefrom. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Broad-Davis Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 514.

In an action against a carrier for breach of an alleged contract to furnish cars, evidence held insufficient to show a promise and acceptance. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 797.

Duty to furnish cars on demand.—See Arts. 6678-6683 and notes.

Art. 6691. Other penalty; “shipper” defined.—Every railroad company which shall wilfully, by its own gross negligence, or by the gross negligence of its agents having charge and management of the matter of furnishing cars, fail or refuse to furnish or exchange cars as herein provided for, or to transport or deliver the same within the time prescribed by the commission, as to freight carried between points wholly within this state, or if not so prescribed then within a reasonable time, shall, in addition to the other liabilities herein provided for, forfeit to the state of Texas, for each of such violations, not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense; and each day of such failure or neglect as to each car which it, by such wilful or gross negligence, shall fail or refuse to furnish or exchange shall be treated as a separate offense; such penalties to be recovered at the suit of the attorney general of the state of Texas in the court having jurisdiction of the amount, at Austin in Travis county. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6691a. “Shipper” defined.—By the term, “shipper,” as herein used, is meant any person, firm, or corporation tendering freight for shipment, and any consignor or consignee of any bill of lading, or other person, firm or corporation having the right of a consignor or consignee. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6692. "Reasonable time" defined.—It shall be deemed prima facie a reasonable time within which to order cars that any shipper shall give written notice thereof to the station agent at the place of shipment, or in his absence, to the nearest station agent of the railroad company to which such application is made, three days before such shipment of five cars or less, and five days for less than ten or more than five cars, and eight days for ten cars or more, and it shall be the duty of the railroad companies to furnish their station agents with printed blanks upon which shippers may make application for their cars; provided, that nothing in this and the five preceding articles shall be construed to exempt any railroad company from the obligation to furnish cars for shipment without such written notice, but it shall only be subject to the penalties of this law for failure to furnish cars to shippers where notice thereof shall be given in writing, or in case of shipment of freight wholly between points in this state, then in accordance with the rules and regulations of the railroad commission of Texas. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6693. Duty to provide suitable freight and passenger depots.—It shall be the duty of all railroad companies in this state to provide and maintain adequate, comfortable and clean depots and depot buildings at their several stations for the accommodation of passengers, and to keep said depot buildings well lighted and warmed for the comfort and accommodation of the traveling public; provided, further, that said railroad companies shall keep and maintain separate apartments in such depot buildings for the use of white passengers and negro passengers, and to keep and maintain adequate and suitable freight depots and buildings for the receiving, handling, storing and delivering of all freight handled by such roads. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 401, sec. 1.]

Keeping depots opened, lighted and warmed.—See Art. 6591 and notes.

Art. 6694. Commission to require compliance.—Power is hereby conferred upon the railroad commission of Texas to require compliance by railroad companies with the provisions of the preceding article under such regulations as said commission may deem reasonable, and all railroad companies shall be subject to the penalties prescribed by law for failure to comply with such requirements. [Id. sec. 2.]

Where commission can compel erection of depots.—The railroad commission cannot exercise power to require a railway company to erect and maintain depots at places selected arbitrarily and in disregard of public necessity. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 192.

An order of the railroad commission directing the railroad company to establish a station in the state of Texas within a few hundred feet of an established station in Oklahoma, held unreasonable. Id.

The railroad commission has the power to compel a railroad company to erect depot buildings, not only at places designated by itself as stations but at places of starting, when the nearest station from the starting point is about ten miles distant, although just across the state line in another state are station buildings on the line as it extends through the latter state. Railroad Commission v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 102 T. 393, 117 S. W. 785.

The railroad commission held entitled to enforce an order for the construction of a passenger and freight station at a particular town located on state line. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas, 56 C. A. 422, 120 S. W. 1055.

Art. 6695. Commission may order construction of union depots.—Where two or more railroad companies reach the same city or town in this state, it shall be the duty of the railroad commission of Texas to ascertain whether it is practicable and feasible for such railroad companies to use a joint or union passenger depot; and, if the railroad commission finds upon investigation that it is practicable for such railroad companies to join in the construction and use of a passenger depot, then it shall give notice to said railroad companies, and, after investigation and public hearing, may require the construction and maintenance of such union passenger depot by the railroad companies entering any such city or town; provided, that it shall appear to the railroad commission that the construction and maintenance of such joint or union passenger depot are just and reasonable to the railroad companies involved, and demanded by the public interest. The railroad commission may specify the requirements of such union depot as to kind and character; and said railroad commission may apportion the cost of constructing and maintaining the same to each railroad company in cases where the interested railroad companies can not themselves agree. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 399, sec. 1.]

Art. 6696. Penalty for failure.—Failure upon the part of any railroad company to observe and obey the orders of the railroad commission, issued in compliance with the preceding article, shall subject such railroad company to the fines and penalties prescribed by law for failure to obey the lawful requirements, orders, judgments and decrees made by the railroad commission of Texas. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6697. Right to lease another road.—Any railroad not exceeding thirty miles in length, connecting at or near the state line with any other railroad, may be leased by the company owning such other railroad, on such terms and for such time, not exceeding ten years, as may be approved by the railroad commission of Texas; provided, that said commission may refuse to approve the same for any cause which it may deem sufficient; and provided, further, that at any time before or after the expiration of such lease, the same may be renewed or another lease executed, subject to the provisions and limitations of this chapter; and provided, further, that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to railroads whose total mileage in this state may exceed thirty miles, although a portion thereof so connecting at the state line may not exceed thirty miles in this state. [Acts 1899, p. 73, sec. 1.]

Art. 6698. Lessor company subject to jurisdiction of commission.—During the term of such lease, the lessor company shall remain subject to the jurisdiction of the said railroad commission of Texas, and, notwithstanding such lease, shall be liable for any and all things occurring on or in connection with such road to the same extent as it would be if such lease had not been made, it being the intent hereof that the lease shall not operate to exempt the lessor company from any liability that would otherwise exist against it; but this article shall not be so construed as to release the lessee company from any liability. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6699. Exception as to general office, etc.—Any company whose road may be leased under the provisions of the two preceding articles is hereby exempted from the laws of this state requiring general offices to be maintained and the general officers to reside in this state, except in so far as it may be required by section 3, article 10, of the constitution of the state of Texas, and except in so far as may be required by the order or orders of said railroad commission. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6700. Process served upon whom.—In any suit against the lessor company, for the purpose of service of process, the officers and agents of the lessee company shall be the officers and agents of the lessor company. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6701. Railroad crossings under control of commission.—Where it should become necessary for the track of one railroad company to cross the track of another railroad company, it shall be the duty of the railroad commission of the state of Texas to ascertain and define by its decree the mode of such crossings which will occasion the least probable injury upon the rights of the company owning the road which is intended to be crossed; and, if it should appear to the said commission that it is reasonable and practicable to avoid a grade crossing, said commission shall by its order prevent the same. [Acts 1901, p. 255, sec. 1.]

Street Railways.—An electric street railway held not to be an additional servitude in a street, and that it could cross over the tracks of a steam railroad crossing the highway without complying with conditions other than those to which the general public is subject in traveling over the highway. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houston Electric Co. 57 C. A. 176, 123 S. W. 287.

This act (Arts. 6701-6705) does not apply to street railways. Id.

Art. 6702. Interlocking, etc., switches to be used.—In any case where the tracks of two or more railways cross each other at a common grade in this state, it shall be the duty of such railroad company to protect such crossings by interlocking or other safety devices and regulations to be designated by the railroad commission of Texas, to prevent trains colliding at such crossings. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6703. Expenses of grade crossing to be paid by whom.—In case any railway company shall hereafter seek to cross, at grades with its track or tracks, the track or tracks of another railroad, the railroad seeking to cross at grade shall be compelled to interlock, or protect such crossings by safety devices to be designated by the railroad commission, and to pay all costs of appliances together with the expense of putting them in; provided, that this law shall not apply to crossings of side tracks. [Id. sec. 3.]

Street railroads.—All that a street railroad company could require as to the crossing of its tracks by a steam railroad would be the installation of a reasonably safe crossing in common use. Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1140.

Art. 6704. Trains may pass crossings without stopping, when.—Whenever interlocking or other safety devices are constructed and maintained in good order to the satisfaction of the railroad commission in compliance with the two preceding articles, then and in that case it shall be lawful for the engines and trains of such railroad or railroads to pass over such crossings without stopping. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6705. Penalty, etc.—Any company, corporation, receiver or person operating any railroad who shall refuse or neglect to comply with any order made by the said railroad commission in pursuance of the terms of the four preceding articles shall forfeit and pay to the state of Texas a penal sum of five hundred dollars per week for each week of such refusal and neglect; which said sum may be recovered in suit or suits to be brought by the attorney general of the state of Texas in the name of the state of Texas, upon duly verified information of such refusal and neglect, by any such railway company being lodged with said attorney general by the said railroad commission. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6706. Double-header trains, use prohibited, except when.—Where an unreasonable degree of hazard results to its employés, it is hereby declared to be an abuse of its franchise and privileges for any railroad company, or receiver, operating a line of railroad in this state to run or operate more than one working locomotive at the same time in propelling or moving any one train of cars, except in moving trains up steep grades, or where a locomotive propelling the train becomes temporarily disabled after leaving the terminal; and it shall be the duty of the railroad commission to investigate such abuses and see that the same are corrected, regulated, or prohibited as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1900, S. S., p. 15, sec. 1.]

Art. 6707. Use to be regulated by commission.—After such investigation, should the railroad commission decide to regulate or forbid the practice of using more than one working locomotive in the operation of any train at the same time on any railroad, or part of railroad, within this state, then it shall be their duty to make and record an order fully setting forth their decision and clearly designating the railroad, or part of railroad, on which such practice is forbidden or regulated, and how regulated. Notice of said order shall be served upon said railroad affected by it. Said notice shall contain in full a copy of said order, and shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county where the general offices of such railroad are located; and a copy of the same shall be delivered by the officer executing the same to the president, or the vice-president, or the general manager, or the general superintendent, or any general officer of said railroad in this state residing in said county; and said officer executing said writ shall make his return on the original, and deliver the same with his return forthwith to the commission. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6708. Penalty and venue of suits.—It shall be the duty of such railroad to obey said order; and any railroad corporation, or receiver, who shall at any time after such notice shall have been served for ten days violate the order of the commission, shall be liable to the state of Texas for a penalty of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars for each offense; and such penalty shall be recovered, and suits therefor shall be brought in the name of the state of Texas in the proper court having jurisdiction thereof in Travis county, Texas, or in any county into or through which such railroad may run, by the attorney general, or under his direction; and such suit shall be subject to the provisions of article 6673. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6709. Equipments to be used; commission to supervise.—It shall be unlawful for any common carrier engaged in intrastate commerce by railroad within the state of Texas to use on its lines in moving intrastate traffic within said state any locomotive engine not equipped with a power driving wheel brake and appliances for operating the train brake system, or to run any train in such traffic that has not a sufficient number of cars in it so equipped with power or train brakes that the engineer on the locomotive drawing such train can control its speed without requiring brakemen to use the common hand brake for that purpose, or to run any train in such traffic that has not all of the power or train brakes in it used and operated by such engineer, or to run any train in such traffic that has not at least seventy-five per centum of the cars in it equipped with power or train brakes; and for the purpose of fully carrying into effect the objects of this act and the five succeeding articles, the railroad commission of Texas may, from time to time, after full hearing by public order, increase the minimum percentage of cars in any train which shall be equipped with power or train brakes; and after such minimum percentage has been so increased it shall be unlawful for any common carrier to run any train in such traffic which does not comply with such increased minimum percentage. [Acts 1909, p. 64, sec. 1.]

Art. 6710. Improved couplers to be used.—It shall be unlawful for any common carrier, engaged in commerce as aforesaid, to haul or permit to be hauled or used on its line of railroad within the state of Texas, any locomotive, tender, car or similar vehicle employed in moving intrastate traffic within the said state which is not equipped with couplers, coupling automatically by impact, and which can be coupled and uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the ends of locomotives, tenders, cars and similar vehicles. [Id. sec. 2.]

Injuries to servants from defective appliances.—See Art. 6648 and notes.

Art. 6711. Drawbar of engine, length of.—It shall be unlawful for any common carrier, engaged in commerce as aforesaid, to use in moving intrastate traffic within said state any locomotive, tender, car or similar vehicle, any drawbar of which, when measured perpendicularly from the level of the tops of the track rails upon which such locomotive, tender, car or similar vehicle is standing to the center of such drawbar, is more than thirty-four and one-half inches in height, or less than thirty-one and one-half inches in height. [Id. sec. 3.]
Art. 6712. May refuse rolling stock not properly equipped.—When any person, firm, company, corporation or receiver engaged in commerce as aforesaid, shall have equipped a sufficient number of its locomotives, tenders, cars and similar vehicles so as to comply with the provisions of article 6709, it may lawfully refuse to receive from connecting lines of road or shippers any locomotives, tenders, cars, or similar vehicles not equipped sufficiently, in accordance with article 6709, with such power or train brakes as will work and readily interchange with the brakes in use on its own locomotives, tenders, cars, and similar vehicles, as required by this law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6713. Rolling stock to be provided with grab irons, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any common carrier, engaged in commerce as aforesaid, to use in moving intrastate traffic within said state any locomotive, tender, cars, or similar vehicle which is not provided with sufficient and secure grab irons, hand holds and foot stirrups. [Id. sec. 5.]

Injuries to servants from defective appliances.—See, also, Art. 6648 and notes. Using in intrastate commerce a car with a defective handhold, made unlawful by this act, 117. Where a car was injured, was negligence per se, irrespective of inspection. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Kurtz (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 658.

Art. 6714. Penalty, how recovered.—Every such common carrier, whether a co-partnership, a corporation, a receiver, or an individual or association of individuals, violating any of the provisions of the five preceding articles shall be liable to the state of Texas for a penalty of not less than two hundred nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense; and such penalty shall be recovered and suit brought in the name of the state of Texas, in any court of proper jurisdiction in the county of Travis, or in any other county in said state into or through which such line of railroad may run, by the attorney general, or under his direction, or by the county or district attorney in the county in which the suit is brought; and the attorney bringing such suit shall receive a fee of fifty dollars for each penalty recovered and collected by him, and ten per cent of the amount collected, to be paid by the state; and the fees and compensation so allowed shall be over and above the fees allowed such attorney under other provisions of law. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6715. To build sidings, etc., when.—All railroads in Texas shall be required to build sidings and spur tracks sufficient to handle the business tendered such railroads, when ordered to do so by the railroad commission, as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1903, p. 93, sec. 1.]

When and where switches, etc., can be required.—This law confers power upon the railroad commission to require the construction of sidings and spur tracks for public uses only, and free from discrimination in favor of any particular individual. The commission exceeds its authority when it undertakes to compel a railroad company to construct a side track for the preferential use of a lumber company. Railroad Commission v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 35 C. A. 53, 80 S. W. 102, 103, 194.

The language "the business tendered such railroads" refers to freight and passen-gers which come to the railroad from the public for transportation as a public highway. It was not intended to require railroad companies to construct "switches and spur tracks" away from their lines to accommodate individual interests. Ry. Com. v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 98 T. 67, 80 S. W. 1141.

Validity of special contract.—A contract between a railroad company and a mill owner for the construction of a side track and switch, in consideration of the latter releasing the company from liability, held to show on its face a sufficient consideration, so as to prevent determination of the issue by the court ex parte. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Carter, 95 T. 461, 68 S. W. 159.

A contract between a railroad company and a mill owner for the construction of a side track and switch, in consideration of the latter releasing the company from liability, held not void as against public policy. Id.

Use of spur track.—Where a lumber company and a railroad construct a spur track from the former's premises to the latter's line, the former has no right to authorize a use of the spur by another railroad. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 28 C. A. 551, 67 B. W. 525.

Art. 6716. Commission to enforce compliance.—Power is conferred on the railroad commission of Texas to require compliance by railroad companies with the provisions of the preceding article, under such regulations as said commission may deem reasonable; and all railroad companies shall be subject to the penalties prescribed by law for failure to comply with the requirements of the railroad commission as provided herein. [Id. sec. 2.]

When and where switches, etc., can be required.—See notes under Art. 6715.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN
ISSUANCE OF STOCKS AND BONDS REGULATED

Art. 6717. [4584a] Regulation of issue of stocks, bonds, etc., by railroads vested in state.—Among other things, the power and authority of issuing or executing bonds, or other evidences of debt, and all kinds of stock and shares thereof, and the execution of all liens and mortgages by railroad corporations in this state are special privileges and franchises, the right of supervision, regulation, restriction, and control of which has always been, is now, and shall continue to be vested in the state government, to be exercised according to the provisions of this and other laws. [Acts 1893, p. 57.]

Art. 6718. [4584b] Issue of incumbrance above value of the road prohibited; except, etc.—Hereafter no bonds or other indebtedness shall be increased or issued or executed by any authority whatsoever, and secured by lien or mortgage on any railroad, or part of railroad, or the franchises or property appurtenant or belonging thereto, over or above the reasonable value of said railroad property; provided, that in case of emergency, on conclusive proof shown by the company to the railroad commission that public interests or the preservation of the property demand it, the said commission may permit said bonds, together with the stock in the aggregate, to be executed to an amount not more than fifty per cent over the value of said property. [Id.]

Art. 6719. [4584c] Railroad commission to ascertain and report railroad values; proceeding incident thereto.—It shall be the duty of the railroad commission to ascertain, and in writing report to the secretary of state, the value of each railroad in this state, including all its franchises, appurtenances and property. After it shall have prepared said report of value, the commission shall give the company interested ten days notice in writing, by registered letter to the president, treasurer or receiver of said railroad, to the effect that said report is ready to be made, and that if it have any objections thereto it must file them, in writing, within forty days after said service, or the same will be so deposited with the secretary of state as correct. Should the company, or its duly authorized representative, file with said commission any objections to said report of value, the commission shall duly investigate and pass on the same. On investigation, if the commission conclude that its report of value is too low or too high, then it shall make the necessary correction before filing it. Should no objections be filed within the time permitted, or being filed and on examination found without merit, the commission shall forthwith file its said report in the office of the secretary of state, where it shall remain as a public record, as a limitation for the issuance of indebtedness under the limitations prescribed in article 6718. To promote public interests and protect private rights, the commission, after due notice under the rule herein prescribed, may correct its report of value of any railroad at any time it may deem proper. [Id.]

Art. 6720. [4584d] Effect of judicial or other sale of railroad.—Every judicial or other sale of any railroad in this state hereafter made, which shall have the effect to discharge the property so sold from liability in the hands of purchasers for claims for damages, unsecured debts, or junior mortgages against such railroad company so sold out, shall have the effect to annul and cancel all claims of every stockholder there- in to any share in the stock of such railroad; and it shall not be lawful for said purchasers, or for any railroad company organized hereafter to operate said railroad, to issue any stock in lieu of the old stock or to allow any compensation therefor in any manner whatever, nor shall all or any part of the debt to satisfy which such sale is made be continued or held as a claim or lien on said property. [Id.]

Release of claims.—A judicial sale of a railroad made under the above article, has the effect to annul and cancel all claims of stockholders in the stock of such railroad. Davis v. S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1912.

A receiver's sale does not cancel the claim of stockholders so that they can not file a bill to review a judgment subsequenty rendered enjoining them from voting the stock. Davis v. San Antonio & G. S. Ry., 92 Tex. 642, 51 S. W. 524.

Under this article a judicial sale of a railroad company's property relieved the reorganized railroad, taking under such sale, of liability on a contract with citizens of a municipality to maintain its general offices, shops, etc., in that city. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. v. Cole (Civ. App.) 145 Tex. 1094. 1944.

Ratification of obligation of old company.—Under this article, where a railroad company contracted, in consideration of plaintiffs' providing a right of way through a county and purchasing certain of its stocks and bonds, to locate its general offices, machine shops, etc., and maintain the same at S., but such company's property was thereafter sold on foreclosure, and was ultimately purchased by defendant, a bill to restrain defendant from removing its offices, shops, etc., to another city, merely alleging that defendant recognized, ratified, adopted, and acknowledged its obligation to carry out the original contract, but failing to allege that the bonds held by complainants were a lien on defendant's property, or that the sale of the property then held by defendant was made subject to any obligation of the old company, or to any liens on the property sold, or that defendant had ever legally bound itself to discharge any of the obligations of the original railway company, was fatally defective. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cole (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1094.

Art. 6721. [4584e] Purchasers complying with law may issue bonds, etc.—The purchasers of said property who procure it clear of incumbrance, or any company organized by their consent to operate said railroad under and in pursuance of the laws of this state, may issue stock and bonds in the proportion that they may deem advisable, subject to the rules, restrictions and limitations prescribed in the preceding articles.

Issuance of bonds.—A corporation organized to acquire a railroad bought at a judicial sale may issue bonds in payment for the property and franchises, subject to the restrictions fixed by law. Thayer v. Watham, 17 C. A. 382, 44 S. W. 906.

Purchasers and new corporation the same.—The fact that the parties comprising the purchasers are the same as those comprising the new corporation is no bar to their dealing with each other. Thayer v. Watham, 17 C. A. 382, 44 S. W. 906.

Art. 6722. [4584f] Authority to issue bonds before completion of roads must be obtained, etc.—Should any company or corporation authorized to construct, own or operate a railroad in this state desire to issue bonds or other indebtedness, to be secured by lien or other mortgage on its franchises and property, in advance of the completion of the said railroad, it shall make application to and first procure the consent of the railroad commission thereto. In said application, it shall exhibit to the commission its contract with the construction company, if it have any, the profile of its completed road or part of road, the evidence of its right of way, depot grounds, terminal facilities, the extent and value of work done or in process of completion, the amount of property received, the amount of stock subscribed and the amount paid in, and all other necessary facts showing the value of the franchises and property pro posed as security for said contemplated debts. If, on investigation, the commission is satisfied that the company is acting in good faith, and that its contract with the construction company is reasonable and fair to the public, then it shall authorize the execution of said indebtedness and lien to the extent necessary for the demands of the work, at no time to be more than fifty per cent over the value of the whole property and franchises. In executing said bonds, the company shall comply with article 6723, and have them registered, as required in article 6724. [Id.]

Consent of commission to issuance of bonds.—This article prescribes the manner of proceeding before the commission to obtain the consent of that body to the issuance of bonds. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas, 95 T. 671, 69 S. W. 62, 63.

The act of which this article is a part, known as the stock and bond law, was enacted among other things to prevent the over capitalization of railroad corporations organized under laws of this state and to protect the purchasers of stocks and bonds against inflated issues. The railroad commission controls the issues of bonds and stocks, and it is its duty to value each railroad in the state and the work done upon it in process of construction. U. S. & Mex. Trust Co. v. Delaware W. Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 447, 457.

Art. 6723. [4584g] Prescribing how certificates of stock shall issue.—Each railroad company now existing, or that shall hereafter be organized, or that shall be reorganized under the laws of this state, or which shall increase its stock under the laws of this state, shall issue certificates to the subscribers to its said stock under the following regulations: A majority of the board of directors shall meet in person in the state of Texas, at the principal office of such company, and shall cause to be made a list of the subscribers to such stock, showing the number of shares subscribed by each, the amount of stock represented by each share and the amount actually paid, labor done or property received on each share of stock, and shall cause to be affixed to each name on said list a number, beginning with number one, or the next highest number of any certificate previously issued. The president of the board, or presiding officer of the meeting at which the issuing of such certificates of stock is authorized, shall make a certificate to said statement to the effect that the same is correct, and that the amount of money paid, labor done and property received as stated is correct, and shall sign the same in person. Such statement shall thereupon be entered at large upon the minutes, and, after having the seal of the company affixed thereto, shall be attested by the secretary of the company, and deposited with the railroad commission, and by it filed and preserved in the office. The secretary of the company shall then be authorized to make out and deliver to each stockholder in said list a certificate corresponding with said statement in number, name, number of shares, amount of stock represented by each share, and the amount of money or its equivalent paid upon each share; which certificate shall be signed by the president of the said railroad company, attested by the secretary, with the seal of said company affixed. No railroad company shall hereafter increase its stock, unless all existing shares of stock shall have been paid in full, or all unpaid shares of such stock have been sold out as forfeited under the law. When the certificates to be issued are for increase of stock, the statement herein required to be made by the board of directors shall state that all existing shares of stock have been paid in full, or that all shares not paid in full have been sold out or forfeited under the law. In no event shall the stock exceed the value of the railway property, and the correct aggregate amount of stock so issued by each railroad company shall be certified to and registered in the office of the secretary of state by or at the instance of the railroad commission. [Id.]

Stock to be certified and registered.—Stock in a railway company must be certified to and registered in the office of the secretary of state. Davis v. S. A. & G. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1012.

Authority of commission.—The railroad commission has no authority to prevent the issuance of stock certificates nor to declare void stock once issued. Davis v. San Antonio & G. S. Ry. Co., 92 T. 642, 51 S. W. 324.

Art. 6724. [4584h] Prerequisites to the issue by railroad companies of bonds, etc.—Whenever any railroad company in this state shall hereafter desire to make, issue, and sell any bonds, or evidences of debt, which are to become a lien on its property, it shall comply with the laws of this state regulating the same, and in addition thereto shall have said bonds prepared, signed by the president of the company, and attested by the secretary, with the seal of the company attached thereto. Each bond shall be numbered, beginning with number one, or the next highest number of any preceding bond issued by it, and continue consecutively until all are numbered. The bonds shall be dated, made payable at a time not exceeding thirty years from date, and shall bear interest not exceeding six per cent per annum. The said bonds, when thus prepared, shall be presented to the railroad commission of this state, with a statement in writing, signed and sworn to by the president of said company, showing the amount of the stock of said company, and the amount of outstanding bonds, if any, of said company. If said bonds are such as are permitted under this law, and the railroad commission shall be so satisfied, it shall approve said bonds, and shall issue to the secretary of state a direction to register said bonds, specifying the numbers, dates, and amounts thereof. And said commission shall keep in its office a correct record of the bonds so approved by it, giving the name of the company, the numbers, dates of execution and maturity of the bonds, the amount and rate of interest of each, and the date of approval; provided, that this provision shall not apply to receivers' certificates where the amount does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars. [Id.]

Conclusiveness of commission's decision.—Decision of the state railroad commission as to its jurisdiction of a railroad on application to it for permission to issue bonds held final and conclusive under the statutes. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas, 23 S. W. 671, 69 S. W. 297.

A final adjudication of the railroad commission acting, under the stock and bond law on the issue of fact presented on an application by a railroad company for permission to issue stock and bonds, held conclusive on the court. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 447.

Effect of receiver's certificates.—Certificates of the receiver of a railroad, issued pursuant to order of court to pay debts due for labor and materials furnished before appointment of the receiver and approved by the railroad commission, as authorised by this article, have only the effect given by the order authorising their issuance, and purchasers of the certificates are charged with notice of the order. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 236.

Art. 6725. [4584i] Duty of secretary of state.—When any such bonds shall be presented to the secretary of state with the direction aforesaid to register, he shall register said bonds by entering a description thereof in a book to be kept for that purpose, which shall show the date, number, amount, when due, the rate of interest on each bond, and also the date when the same is registered. The secretary of state shall indorse on each bond, under the seal of his office and his official signature, together with the date thereof, as follows: "This bond is registered under the direction of the railroad commission of Texas." No bond, or other evidence of debt, hereafter issued by or under the authority of any person, firm, corporation, court, or railroad company, whereby a lien is created on its franchise or property situated in this state, shall be valid or have any force until the same has been registered as required herein.

Fee for making indorsement.—The indorsement required by this article to be made on each bond by the secretary of state, is not such a certificate within the meaning of Art. 3567, that the secretary of state can charge a fee of $1 therefor. State ex rel. Railway Co. v. Hardy, 56 T. 340, 55 S. W. 322.

Art. 6726. [4584j] Forfeiture of charter.—If any railroad company owning or operating a railroad in this state shall hereafter issue or consent to or cause to be issued any bonds or other evidences of debt to be or become a lien on its railroad property so owned or operated, or shall issue any stock not in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, such action shall work a forfeiture of the charter of said company; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general to institute proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction to forfeit the same. [Id.]

Art. 6727. [4584k] Certificates, bonds, etc., void.—Every certificate of stock in any railroad company, and every bond and other evidence of debt operating as a lien upon the property of such railroad company, which shall be made, issued or sold without a compliance with this chapter, shall be void.

Effect of noncompliance.—Stock in a railroad company not issued in compliance with this chapter is void. Davis v. S. A. & G. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1012.

Art. 6728. [4584l] Penalties hereunder; venue.—Each and every railroad director, president, secretary, or other official, who shall knowingly make any false statement upon which to secure the registration of any bond or other evidence of debt as aforesaid, or who shall by false statement knowingly make procure of the railroad commission direction to the secretary of state to register the same, and which shall be by the secretary of state registered, or shall with knowledge of such fraud negotiate, or cause to be negotiated, any such bond or other security issued in violation of this chapter, shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code, and shall likewise be liable to any creditor of such company for the full amount of damages sustained by such wrongful conduct. Venue in such cases shall be in either of the district courts held in Travis county, or in the county where the principal office of the railway company whose property is sought to be so incumbered or affected is located.

Art. 6729. [4584m] State not liable, etc.—Nothing in this law, and no act done or performed under or in connection with it, shall be held or construed to bind or make the state of Texas liable to pay or guarantee, in any manner whatsoever, any obligation, debt, or claim executed or assumed under or by virtue of its provisions.

Art. 6730. Amendment of charter; construction of branch lines; issuance of bonds.—Any corporation incorporated for the purpose of constructing, owning, maintaining and operating a railroad under the laws of this state, and which on April 15, 1901, owned a line of railway already constructed, which has outstanding stocks and also outstanding bonds secured by a mortgage lien upon its property, or by any other character of lien, may amend its charter in accordance with chapter 1 of this title, and in accordance with the constitution and laws of this state, and may provide by such amendment for the making of any extension or extensions, or branch line or lines, that it may desire to construct, and may issue stocks and bonds, or bonds, in an amount equal to the reasonable value of such extension, or extensions, or such branch line or lines, and such terminal properties as it may acquire, the same to be issued in accordance with the provisions of this chapter; and the railroad commission of the state of Texas is hereby empowered to authorize the execution and issuance of such stocks and bonds, or bonds, and, in determining the right to issue such stock and bonds, said commission shall not consider the amount of outstanding stock or indebtedness, or bonds previously issued and secured by lien upon the property of such corporation theretofore constructed; provided, that any existing mortgages or liens upon the property of such corporation constructed or owned prior to the time of making such amendment of its charter and to the construction of such extension or extensions, or branch line or lines, or to the acquiring of such terminal properties, shall not attach to or become a lien upon the extension or extensions, branch line or lines, or terminal properties constructed or acquired under such amended charter. This article shall not be so construed as to in any wise repeal or impair any other of the provisions of this chapter, or of the existing laws of this state, except in so far as the same may be changed by the provisions of this article. [Acts 1901, p. 257, secs. 1 and 2.]
Art. 6731. Suburban railroad stocks and bonds valid, when.—In all cases in which the railroad commission of the state of Texas may decide that any corporation created under chapter 1 of this title for the purpose of operating a local suburban railway not exceeding ten miles from the corporate limits of any city or town, in addition to such mileage as it may have within the same, is not for any reason subject to the control of said railroad commission in reference to the issuance of stock and bonds, or either, under the act of the legislature of this state entitled, "An Act to define franchises, to make public the value of railroads, to make effective section 6, article 12, of the constitution of the state of Texas; to declare the effect of judicial and other sale of railroads; to limit the amount of stocks and bonds and other indebtedness that may be issued by railroad companies, and to regulate the manner of issuing, registering and securing the same; to prescribe penalties for violating the provisions of this act, and to prescribe the duties of the railroad commission and the attorney general in relation thereto," being chapter 50 of the acts of the legislature of Texas of 1893, and this chapter. Said corporation, after such decision of said railroad commission, shall have the right to issue its said stock and bonds, or either, and also to increase its stock and bonds, or either, without the control of said railroad commission, and without complying with the acts aforesaid in reference thereto; and said stock and bonds, when so issued, shall in all respects be as valid and binding as they would be if there were no such acts. [Acts 1903, p. 29, sec. 1.]

Art. 6732. Stocks and bonds may issue for double tracks.—Any railroad company chartered under the laws of this state, whenever the railroad commission shall find it advisable to authorize it to do so, may construct, own and operate an additional line of road upon its right of way, together with all necessary sidings, switches and turnouts, and may issue stock and bonds, or bonds, in an amount equal to the reasonable cost of such improvements, the same to be issued in accordance with the provisions of this chapter; and the railroad commission of the state of Texas is empowered to authorize the execution and issuance of such stock and bonds, or bonds; and, in determining the right to issue such stock and bonds, or bonds, the said commission shall not consider the amount of outstanding stock, indebtedness or bonds previously issued and secured by lien upon the property of such corporation theretofore constructed. [Acts 1903, p. 131, sec. 1.]

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
INTERURBAN RAILROAD COMPANIES

Art. 6733. Right of eminent domain.—All corporations chartered for the purpose of constructing, acquiring, maintaining and operating lines of electric railway between any cities and towns in the state of Texas, for the transportation of freight or passengers, or both, shall have the right of eminent domain, as fully to all intents and purposes as is now conferred by law upon steam railroad corporations, and shall have the right and power to enter upon, condemn and appropriate the lands, rights of way, easements and property of any person or corporation whomsoever for the purpose of acquiring rights of way upon which to construct and operate their lines of railways and sites for depots and power plants; provided, that no cemetery grounds, nor any part thereof, shall be so taken or condemned. [Acts 1907, p. 23, sec. 1.]

Art. 6734. Width of right of way, survey, etc.—Such corporation shall have the right and power to lay out rights of way for their railways not to exceed two hundred feet in width, and to construct their railways and appurtenances thereon, and, for the purpose of cuttings and embankments, to take as much more land as may be necessary for the proper construction and security of their said railways, and to cut down any standing trees, or remove any other structure that may be in danger of falling upon or obstructing such railway, compensation being made therefor in accordance with law. And to the accomplishment of these ends, such corporation shall have the right to cause such examination and survey of their proposed railways to be made as may be necessary to the selection of the most advantageous route, and for such purposes may enter upon the lands or waters of any person or corporation subject to responsibility for all damages that may be occasioned thereby. [Id. sec. 2.]

Validity of conveyance for right of way.—A conveyance of land for an interurban railroad right of way is not void because the corporation is not authorized to take and hold land, to exercise the right of eminent domain, or to construct and operate an interurban road. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

Consent of owner to use of land for right of way.—A traction company constructing an interurban road over land with the consent of the owner held entitled to rely on estoppel to prevent the owner from ousting it. Knowles v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 232.

Evidence held to support a finding that a corporation owning land agreed to the construction of a right of way over the land for a traction company, authorizing the company to claim the right of way. Id.

A corporation giving its consent to the construction of a railroad track over its land held not entitled to revoke the consent but confined to an action for damages resulting from the use of the land. Id.

Art. 6735. May construct across streams, streets, etc.—Such corporations shall have the right and power to construct their railways along, across and over any stream of water, water course, bay, navigable water, arm of the sea, street, highway, steam railway, plank road, turnpike or canal which the route of such railway shall touch, and shall have the right to erect and operate bridges, trams, trestles, or causeways over, along or across any such stream, water course, navigable water, bay, arm of the sea, street, highway, plank road, turnpike, or canal; provided, however, that any such bridge or other structure shall be so erected as not unnecessarily or unreasonably to prevent the navigation of any such stream, water course, bay, arm of the sea, or navigable water; and provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall authorize the construction of any such railway upon or across any street, alley, square, or property of any incorporated city or town, without the assent of said corporation of said city or town, and that in case of the construction of any electric railway along and upon highways, plank roads, turnpikes or canals, such interurban electric railway company shall first obtain the consent of the lawful authorities having the jurisdiction of the same. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6736. Same powers of eminent domain as steam railroads.—All rights and powers of eminent domain and condemnation of property in this title hereinbefore set out and conferred upon steam railway companies of this state, and the manner of exercise thereof, are hereby conferred upon interurban railway companies mentioned in this chapter. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6737. May condemn easement over other electric railway tracks, etc.—The right of condemnation herein given to interurban electric railway companies shall include the power and authority to condemn, for their use and benefit, easements and rights of way to operate interurban cars along and upon the track or tracks of any electric street railway company owning, controlling or operating such track or tracks upon any public street or alley in any town or city of this state for the purpose hereinafter mentioned, subject to the consent, authority and control of the city council of such town or city. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6738. Proceedings to condemn easement.—Any such interurban electric railway company, seeking to avail itself of the benefits of this chapter shall have the right to condemn an easement along and upon the track or tracks of any electric street railway company for the purposes only of securing an entrance into and an outlet from a town or city upon a route to be designated by the city council or other city authorities in control of the streets and alleys of such city. And in any proceeding to condemn an easement or right of way for the purposes above mentioned, the court, or the jury trying the case, shall define and fix the terms and conditions upon which such easement or right of way shall be used; provided, the court rendering such judgment shall be authorized upon a subsequent application or applications by either of the parties to the original proceedings, or any one claiming through or under them, to review and reform the terms and conditions of such grant and the provisions of such judgment, and the hearing upon such application shall be in the nature of a retrial of said cause with respect to the terms and conditions upon which said easement shall be used; but the court shall not have power upon any such rehearing to declare such easement forfeited, or to impair the exercise thereof; provided, that no application for a rehearing shall be made until two years after the final judgment on the last preceding application. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6739. “Interurban railway company” defined.—An interurban electric railway company, within the meaning of this chapter, is a corporation chartered under the laws of this state for the purpose of conducting and operating an electric railway between two cities or between two incorporated towns, or between one city and one incorporated town in this state; and the rights secured under this chapter by any interurban company shall be inoperative and void if the road to be constructed under the charter of said company is not fully constructed from a city or incorporated town to some other city or incorporated town within twelve months from the date of the final judgment awarding to said company said easements and right of way. Any interurban company availing itself of the privileges conferred by this chapter is hereby prohibited from receiving for transportation at any point on that portion of the track or tracks so condemned, without the consent of the company over whose track or tracks the easement is condemned, any freight or passengers destined to a point or points between the termini of the track or tracks so condemned; and a willful violation by the company of this provision of this article shall operate to forfeit such easements or rights of way. If this article shall be held by the courts of this state invalid for any reason, such invalidity shall not affect any other article or portion of this chapter. [Id. sec. 5.]

Regulation of carriers, and rights, duties and liabilities of carriers.—See Title 20.
Liability for injuries to employees.—See Art. 6640 et seq., and notes.
Gross earnings taxes.—See Art. 7378.

Art. 6740. Chartered rights include sale of electric lights and power.—Such interurban electric railway companies shall also have the right and authority to produce, supply and sell electric light and power to the public and to municipalities. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6741. Provisions of this chapter cumulative.—The provisions of this chapter shall be held and construed to be cumulative of all general laws of this state on the subject of interurban electric railways when not in conflict herewith; but nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed to have the effect to confer the power of eminent domain, or any of the powers herein conferred, except those conferred in the preceding article, upon any interurban railroad or interurban railroad company, or upon any person, firm, association, corporation, or to add to the powers already possessed by any such railroad, or railroad company, person, firm, association or corporation, so as to enable or authorize it to condemn any land or ground occupied by any portion of its line or track, already constructed March 5, 1907, or to condemn any land or ground for the purpose of changing the location of any track or line already constructed at said date; provided, that nothing contained in this article shall be construed to take from any interurban railroad company, person, firm, association or corporation, any power of eminent domain already possessed by it. [Id. sec. 7.]

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

STREET RAILROADS

Article 6742. Half fare for children in cities of forty thousand and more inhabitants.—All persons or corporations, owning or operating street railways in or upon the public streets of any town or city in this state of not less than forty thousand inhabitants, are required to carry children of the age of twelve years or less at and for one-half the charge or fare regularly collected by such person or corporation for the transportation of adult persons; provided, that this article shall not apply to street cars carrying children or students to and from schools, colleges, or other institutions of learning, situated at a distance of one mile or more beyond the limits of the incorporated city or town from which said cars run. [Acts 1903, p. 182, sec. 1.]

Regulation of rates.—The legislature has the power to regulate the rates of fare of a street railway company in the absence of any provision in its charter relinquishing that right, provided the rates are not so unreasonable as to practically destroy the value of the property of the corporation. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Altgelt (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 108.

Article 6743. Reduced tickets, how used and sold, etc.—All such persons or corporations, owning or operating street railways, shall sell or provide for the sale of tickets in lots of twenty, each good for one trip over the line or lines owned or operated by such person or corporation, at and for one-half the regular fare or charge collected for the transportation of adult persons, to students not more than seventeen years of age in actual attendance upon any academic, public or private school, of grades not higher than the grades of the public high schools of this state, situated within or adjacent to the town or city in which such street railway is located. Such tickets are required to be sold only upon the presentation by the student desiring to purchase the same of the written certificate of the principal of the school upon which he is in attendance, showing that he is not more than seventeen years of age, is in regular attendance upon such school, and is within the grades here­inbefore provided. Such tickets are not required to be sold to such students, and shall not be used, except during the months of the year when such schools are in actual session, and such students shall be transported at half fare only upon the presentation of such tickets. [Id. sec. 2.]
Art. 6744. Free fare for children under five years.—All such persons or corporations are required to transport children of the age of five years or less, when attended by a passenger of above said age, free of charge. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6745. Transfers regulated.—All such persons or corporations are required to accord to all passengers referred to in the foregoing articles of this chapter the same rights as to the use of transfers issued by their own or other lines as are or may be accorded to passengers paying full fare. [Id. sec. 4.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO STREET RAILROADS IN GENERAL

I. Establishment, construction and maintenance

1. Right to construct and operate. —A natural person or a firm or joint-stock association can engage in the business of operating an electric street railway as well as a corporation. Beaumont Traction Co. v. State, 27 C. A. 606, 122 S. W. 615, 618.

3. Crossing with other railroads. —Where a street railway company had been given permission to construct its road along a public highway by the commissioners' court, held that it could not be deprived of that right by objection of a steam railway company which had previously been permitted to cross the road. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Houston Electric Co., 57 C. A. 170, 122 S. W. 287.

4. Sale of property. —Where a street railroad has power to sell its property under certain conditions, it was held that a deed thereof passed a prima facie title, although it did not recite the existence of such conditions. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Scott, 19 C. A. 23, 45 S. W. 26.

A consolidation agreement held to charge defendant with liability of the consolidated street car company to contribute to the cost of maintaining lights at a crossing over the tracks of a railroad company. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 287.

II. REGULATION AND OPERATION

9. Power of city to regulate. —See Arts. 862 and 863.

10. Companies liable for injuries. —Where plaintiff was injured while crossing the track by reason of its defective condition, the fact that the car was operated by another company than defendant, who owned the track, did not relieve it from liability. Houston City St. Ry. Co. v. Medlenka, 17 C. A. 621, 43 S. W. 1028.

Rights stated, as between two persons liable through their negligence for injury to a third person, where one was the active perpetrator of the wrong and the negligence of the other was merely passive. Austin Electric Ry. Co. v. Faust (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 449.
11. Care required in operation of road.—A street railway company has no right to the exclusive use of any part of the street upon which it is bound to use ordinary prudence in the operation of its cars. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Kumpf (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 863.

12. Right to use streets.—Street cars have no exclusive right to use the streets, but have a preferential right. Austin Electric Ry. Co. v. Faust (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 543.

A street railway company, purchasing the property and franchise of another company, held bound to exercise ordinary care to keep a street on which a track was laid in condition for travel. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 62 C. A. 489, 118 S. W. 862.

Street railway company, purchasing the property of another company and its franchise to build and operate a street railroad, held required to use ordinary care to keep the tracks constructed by the selling company in a reasonably safe condition for public travel. Id.

It is the duty of a street railroad company to use reasonable care to keep its roadbed in repair, so as not to obstruct travel across or along the same. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cassanova (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 1190.

It was not necessary to plead or prove that it was the duty of defendant to keep its tracks in such condition as not to interfere with free and unimpeded travel over the tracks. Id.

14. Frightening animals.—Where the horse plaintiff's wife was driving frightened at a street car, it was not error to instruct that defendant would be liable if the gong was the sound the conductor or motorman discovered that the horse had been frightened thereby, without regard to whether the gong was sounded by the one who made the discovery. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Powell, 36 C. A. 464, 80 S. W. 1054.

15. Collisions between cars.—A street car motorman injured in a rear end collision with a company car proceeding on the same track held negligent as a matter of law precluding a recovery against such other company. Texas Traction Co. v. Bogue (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1042.

Where a street car motorman was injured by bringing his car in a collision with a preceeding car belonging to another company, defendant was entitled to plead plaintiff's violation of the rules of his own company to establish contributory negligence. Id.

16. Collisions with animals or vehicles.—In an action for injuries received in a collision with a street car, an instruction that the street railway company had no right to the exclusive use of the street held proper. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Kumpf (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 863.

After a motorman in charge of a street car discovers the peril of the driver of a vehicle attempting to cross the track in front of the car, he must use every care in his power consistent with the safety of his passengers to avoid injury, and the use of ordinary care is not sufficient. Austin Electric Ry. Co. v. Faust (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 440.

Where a motorman saw a boy attempting to cross in front of the car, or the manner of driving was such as to reasonably indicate an intent to do so, he was bound to use proper care to prevent a collision, and could not take chances on the boy's getting across, nor wait until the danger was manifest. Galveston Electric Co. v. Antonini (Civ. App.) 162 S. W. 841.

17. Injuries to persons on or near tracks—in general.—The degree of care required by a street car company to avoid injuring persons on and along the tracks, stated. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Haines, 45 C. A. 289, 100 S. W. 788.

A street railway company must exercise ordinary care to prevent injuring those on the street or crossing its tracks to take passage. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Levyson, 62 C. A. 122, 113 S. W. 669.

Where a street railway company had provided a waiting passenger, its operators were bound to regard the act of a prospective passenger crossing from one corner to the other as a signal to stop that he might take passage. Id.

Liability of a street railway company for injury to persons on its track determined. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 572.

18. Signals and lookouts.—In the absence of a statute or ordinance requiring it, held there was no implied negligence in failing to sound the gong or bell of a street car. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Holmes, 19 C. A. 266, 46 S. W. 116.

In an action for injuries to a traveler by a street car, an instruction requiring the motorman to look both sides of his car to see that no persons were about to get on the track, etc., held erroneous. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1092.

In the absence of any ordinance requiring the giving of signals of the approach of street cars, a failure to do so is not negligence per se. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Adkins, 66 C. A. 203, 120 S. W. 218.

19. Duty on seeing person on or approaching track.—A motorman who discovers the peril of a person on the tracks is bound to use only ordinary care to use all means at hand to avoid injuring the person in peril. Beaty v. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 365.

In an action against a street railway company for injuries to a pedestrian in a collision, with a car, a finding of negligence in failing to stop the car, after discovering the pedestrian's peril, held justified. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Thompson, 45 C. A. 613, 95 S. W. 708.

A motorman upon discovering the perilous position of a person upon a trestle must use every means reasonably within his power to avoid running such person down. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Mullica, 44 C. A. 566, 99 S. W. 433.

Where a motorman, upon discovering a pedestrian upon a trestle, could not reason-ably have foreseen that he would not leave the track in time to avoid injury, the railway company is not liable for injuries received as the result of his being run down. Id.

Failure of a motorman, on discovering the perilous position of a person on the track, to use all reasonable means to avoid a collision, held not to render the railway company liable if the use of such means would have avoided the accident. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Kumpf (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 863.

Where a motorman used proper care to prevent an injury as soon as he realized the danger and that plaintiff would attempt to drive in front of his car, the issue of discovered peril was not raised. Logre v. Galveston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 303.

20. — Right to presume persons will leave track.—If an adult person is seen on the track it may be presumed that he will leave the track before the car reaches him. When the peril is imminent, the operator must use the highest degree of care to avert it. If a child is on a street railway track in advance of a moving car, the person operating it is not at liberty to act on the assumption that it will see the danger and avert it. Railroad Co. v. Hewitt, 67 T. 473, 3 S. W. 705, 60 Am. Rep. 32.

The rule that an engineer or motorman may act on the theory that a person on or near the track, who sees a train or car approaching, will get out of the way of danger, has no application after it becomes reasonably apparent that this will not be done. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Craig, 35 C. A. 548, 80 S. W. 865.

The question in charge of a car ordinarily has a right to assume that one walking on the track will step aside in time to avoid injury. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Kelleher, 48 C. A. 421, 107 S. W. 64. 21.

Children.—In an action for injuries to a child by a street car, the motorman held guilty of negligence. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Court, 31 C. A. 146, 71 S. W. 777.

It was the duty of the motorman to use every effort to prevent injury to a boy who saw him and was not aware of the approaching car, and who would probably run on the tracks. Ash v. Houston City Ry. Co. v. 462.

Where a boy on street paid no attention to warnings of approaching car, it was motorman's duty to lessen the car's speed, and not attempt to run by the boy. Id.

22. Contributory negligence.—In general.—One passing over or on the track of a street railway should exercise diligence to ascertain the approach of a car, as well as caution to avoid a collision. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Holmes, 28 C. A. 206, 46 S. W. 116.

Plaintiff, injured in a collision with a street car, held under the evidence not to have been guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Upson, 31 C. A. 50, 71 S. W. 565.

Because the public has an equal right with a street railway company to use a street, a person is not entitled to go on a street made dangerous by the tracks of such railway, if a person of ordinary care would not have done so. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Gossett, 28 C. A. 603, 85 S. W. 36.

In a personal injury case, plaintiff held guilty of contributory negligence. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Kelleher, 48 C. A. 421, 107 S. W. 64.

A pedestrian is not ordinarily negligent in making a legitimate use of a street on which a street car is operated, though it be the part of the street used by the railway company. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Levyson, 55 C. A. 122, 113 S. W. 565.

Deceased held not necessarily negligent, as a matter of law, because he stepped immediately in front of a moving street car. Id.

A pedestrian never always look and listen for approaching cars before going on a street railroad track, and the measure of ordinary care may be satisfied by the exercise of either the sense of hearing or sight. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Hunt, 54 C. A. 478, 118 S. W. 627.

One using a streetcar track held not entitled to station himself on the track and remain there heedless until he is struck by a passing car. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Atkins, 56 C. A. 205, 120 S. W. 218.

The mere failure of a person approaching a street railway crossing to look and listen for cars is not negligence per se. Jones v. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 618.

23. — Drivers of vehicles and persons therein.—Evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that plaintiff, whose wagon collided with defendant's street car, was not guilty of contributory negligence imputable to his son, who was killed while riding with plaintiff. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Washington, 24 C. A. 422, 58 S. W. 1042.

In an action against a street railway company for damages from collision, evidence held not to show contributory negligence proximately contributing to the injury. Dallas Consol. Electric pub. Ry. Co. v. Hlo, 32 C. A. 296, 74 S. W. 1076.

Contributory negligence of a husband, driving with his wife over a street on which a street car track was so laid as to protrude above the surface of the street, will preclude recovery by him for injuries to his wife. Citizens' Ry. & Light Co. v. Johns, 52 C. A. 489, 116 S. W. 62.

An instruction, in an action for injuries in a collision with a street car, authorising a verdict for defendant on plaintiff's act in driving suddenly in front of the car proximately contributing to the injury, held properly refused. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Hunt, 54 C. A. 415, 118 S. W. 837.

A driver of a vehicle approaching a street railroad crossing must exercise ordinary care in going upon the track to see that he may do so with safety. Jones v. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 618.

A street car motorman's failure to use all the power within his means to prevent a collision held the proximate cause of the collision. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 415.

Where cars track project too far above the street, and occupants of a vehicle, in attempting to get off the track on seeing an approaching car, were prevented by the projection, the projecting track was the proximate cause of the injury. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cassanova (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1190.

26. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—Plaintiff's contributory negligence in attempting to cross a street car track held to preclude recovery, though defendant could have discovered his danger in time to prevent the accident. Austin Dam & S. Ry. Co. v. Goldstein, 18 C. A. 794, 46 S. W. 500.

Contributory negligence of one injured while attempting to cross a street railway track held to preclude recovery if the motorman did not actually see plaintiff's peril in time to have stopped the car. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Conn (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1019.

Contributory negligence of one struck by a street car in attempting to cross the track in front of a moving car held to bar recovery if the motorman could not have stopped with the appliances at hand in time to have avoided the collision. Id.

In an action for injuries to a child by a street car, evidence held to justify a finding that the car was moving slowly at the time of the injury. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Court, 21 C. A. 146, 71 S. W. 777.

In an action against a street railway company for damages from collision, evidence held to show negligence on the part of defendant. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Ill, 32 C. A. 290, 73 S. W. 1076.

In an action for injuries sustained by reason of plaintiff's wife being struck by an approaching car, evidence held to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Mullina, 44 C. A. 666, 59 S. W. 433.

In an action for injuries to one run over by a street car, evidence considered, and held sufficient to sustain a finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence and that his injuries were caused by the negligence of defendant. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Haines, 45 C. A. 289, 100 S. W. 783.

In a personal injury action against a street railroad company, evidence held to support a finding that defendant's motorman discovered that plaintiff was about to go upon the track in front of the moving car in time to have avoided injury, but negligently attempted by increasing speed to pass plaintiff before he actually got on the track. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 774.

In an action for death of a pedestrian in a collision with a street car at a street intersection, evidence held to warrant a finding that the motorman's negligence in failing to keep a proper lookout was the proximate cause of the death. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Levyson, 52 C. A. 123, 113 S. W. 565.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant's motorman was negligent in failing to keep a lookout for people on and at the intersection of streets where interstate was struck and killed. Id.

Evidence, in an action against a street railroad for personal injuries and for value of property destroyed, held sufficient to sustain a finding that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. Jones v. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 618.

Evidence held sufficient to show that a collision between street cars was violent enough to injure plaintiff complained of, and that they were the proximate and direct result of such collision. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 465.

On the issue of discovered peril, evidence held sufficient to show that the motorman realized the perilous position of the occupants of the vehicle struck by his car in time to have stopped the car. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cassanova (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1190.

28. Notice of claim for damages.—See Art. 5714.

29. Injuries to employees.—See Art. 6540 et seq. and notes.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN A STATE RAILROAD

Art. 6745a. Management, in whom vested.—That the management, control and operation of the state railroad, running from Rusk to Palestine, be and the same is hereby taken out of the hands of the prison commission and vested in a manager, as hereinafter provided for. [Acts 1913, p. 279, sec. 1.]

Art. 6745b. Office of manager created; powers.—That there is hereby created the office of manager of the state railroad running from Rusk to Palestine, and that said manager be and is hereby vested with full power and authority to manage, control and operate said railroad and to repair and improve the same and with the approval of the governor to employ such assistance as may be necessary for the successful operation of such railroad. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6745c. Appointment, etc.—Said manager shall be appointed by the governor to hold his office for a term of two years; provided that the governor may at any time, for good cause, remove said manager and appoint his successor. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6745d. Oath and bond.—Said manager shall before entering upon the duties of his office be required to take the oath of office provided by the constitution and enter into bond payable to the governor of the state of Texas for the sum of $50,000.00, conditioned that he shall faithfully perform the duties of such office and pay over all sums in money and deliver all property that may come into his hands as provided by law. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6745e. Appropriation.—For the purpose of enabling said manager to repair and equip said railroad, to improve, develop and operate the same, and to purchase engines, cars and equipment therefor, that there be and is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $60,000.00 or so much thereof as may be necessary; provided that all expenditures made by virtue hereof shall be made by and with the consent and approval of the governor. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6745f. Duties of manager; moneys, how paid, etc.—Said manager shall cause to be kept a complete and accurate system of books, showing the receipts and disbursements of said railroad and shall make an itemized report thereof to the comptroller on or before the tenth day of each month, and oftener if required to do so by the governor, and all moneys received during the preceding month shall be paid into the state treasury through the comptroller's deposit warrant, and all moneys received from the railroad and all moneys appropriated by the legislature and deposited in the state treasury to the credit of said railroad, shall be subject to payment for the necessary expenses incurred in the maintenance and operation of said railroad upon itemized accounts sworn to by the manager and approved by the governor and filed in the comptroller's department. The receipt of said itemized account, properly sworn to by the manager and approved by the governor, shall be authority for the comptroller to issue his warrant on the treasury for the amount of said account or claim. Provided, that in no event shall the comptroller issue a warrant on the treasury in excess of the amount deposited or appropriated to that special fund. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER NINETEEN
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 6746. Separate coaches for white and negro passengers.—Every railway company, street car company, and interurban railway company, lessee, manager, or receiver thereof, doing business in this state as a common carrier of passengers for hire, shall provide separate coaches or compartments, as hereinafter provided, for the accommodation of white and negro passengers, which separate coaches or compartments shall be equal in all points of comfort and convenience. [Acts 1907, p. 58.]

Constitutionality.—This law requiring railroads to furnish separate coaches or compartments for whites and negroes is not repugnant to the federal organic law, and the penalty for violating the law may be imposed. Southern Kan. Ry. Co. v. State, 44 C. A. 218, 99 S. W. 166.

Equal accommodations.—The right of a passenger to recover damages for failure to furnish coaches equal in all points of comfort, etc., is based on injuries, physical and mental. Norwood v. Railway Co., 12 C. A. 560, 34 S. W. 180.

Art. 6747. “Negro” defined.—The term “negro,” used herein, includes every person of African descent as defined by the statutes of this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6748. Separate coaches, how defined and marked.—Each compartment of a railroad coach, divided by good and substantial wooden partitions with a door therein, shall be deemed a separate coach within the meaning of this chapter; and each separate coach shall bear in some conspicuous place appropriate words in plain letters indicating the race for which it is set apart; and each compartment of the street car or interurban car, divided by board or marker placed in a conspicuous place, bearing appropriate words in plain letters indicating the race for which it is set apart, shall be sufficient as a separate compartment within the meaning of this chapter. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6749. Penalty.—Any railway company, street car company, or interurban railroad company, lessee, manager or receiver thereof, which shall fail to provide its cars bearing passengers with separate coaches or compartments, as above provided for, shall be liable for each and every failure to a penalty not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered by suit in the name of the state in any court of competent jurisdiction; and each trip run with such train or street car or interurban car without such separate coach or compartment shall be deemed a separate offense. [Id. sec. 4.]

Authority of county attorney.—Const. art. 5, § 21, provides that the county attorney shall represent the state in all cases in the district and inferior courts in their respective counties; but, if a county shall be included in a district in which there shall be a district attorney, the respective duties of district attorneys and county attorneys shall in such county be regulated by the legislature. Held that, there being no statute conferring on county attorneys authority to sue in behalf of the state for penalties under these articles, a county attorney for a county in a district in which there was a district attorney could not sue. State v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 663.

Art. 6750. Exceptions and limitations as to provisions.—The provisions of this chapter shall not be so construed as to prohibit nurses from traveling in any coach or compartment with their employer, or employés upon the train or cars in the discharge of their duty, nor shall it be construed to apply to such freight trains as carry passengers in cabooses; provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent railroad companies in this state from hauling sleeping cars, dining or cafe cars, or chair cars, attached to their trains, to be used exclusively by either white or negro passengers, separately but not jointly. [Id. sec. 6.]

Negro’s right in sleeping car.—A negro passenger, having a sleeping car ticket from a point outside to a point in Texas, held unlawfully ejected from the car on its arrival in Texas. Pullman Palace-Car Co. v. Cain, 15 C. A. 560, 49 S. W. 220.

Art. 6751. Law to be posted conspicuously.—Every railroad company carrying passengers in this state shall keep this law posted in a conspicuous place in each passenger depot and each passenger coach provided in this law. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6752. Does not apply to excursions.—The provisions of this law shall not apply to any excursion train or street car or interurban car as such for the benefit of either race. [Id. sec. 8.]
Art. 6753. Conductors to exclude passengers from wrong car.—Conductors of passenger trains, street cars, or interurban lines, provided with separate coaches, shall have the authority to refuse any passenger admittance to any coach or compartment in which they are not entitled to ride under the provisions of this law; and the conductor in charge of the train or street car, or interurban car, shall have authority, and it shall be his duty, to remove from a coach or street car, or interurban car, any passenger not entitled to ride therein under the provisions of this chapter, and upon his refusal to do so knowingly shall be punished as provided in the Penal Code of this state. [Id. sec. 9.]

Negro in car for whites.—It is not negligence per se under this article to permit a negro to enter a car reserved for white people and remain there for a short time, in a case where a woman sued the railway company for damages caused by an assault by a negro, while she was in the car. Segal v. St. T. S. W. Ry. Co., 35 C. A. 517, 80 S. W. 233.

Whites in negro coaches.—$1,000 held excessive damages for compelling a white woman to ride 60 miles in a negro car. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ball, 25 C. A. 600, 61 S. W. 327.

Where white woman is compelled to ride in negro coach, she cannot recover for humiliation caused by profanity of negroes, where such misconduct was not called to the conductor’s attention. Id.

Where carrier compels white woman to ride in negro coach, it is liable for the distress or humiliation suffered, if the direct result of its neglect. Id.

It is a violation of law to permit the whites to occupy the coaches set apart for the negro and it is the duty of the conductor to prevent such occupancy and to remove whites when found in negro coaches. It is not contributory negligence for negroes to stand on platform of car when the coach for negroes is so crowded with whites that he cannot go inside. Williams v. International & G. N. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 503, 67 S. W. 1085, 1087.
TITLE 116
RANGERS—STATE

Article 6754. Organization.—The ranger force, authorized to be organized by the governor, is for the purpose of protecting the frontier against marauding or thieving parties, and for the suppression of lawlessness and crime throughout the state. [Acts 1901, p. 41, sec. 1.]

Art. 6755. To consist of four companies.—The ranger force shall consist of not to exceed four separate companies of mounted men, each company to consist of not to exceed one captain, one first sergeant and twenty privates, and one quartermaster for the entire force. The captains of companies and the quartermaster shall be appointed by the governor, and shall be removed at his pleasure; unless sooner so removed by the governor, they shall serve for two years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6756. Compensation.—The pay of officers and men shall be as follows: Captains, one hundred dollars each, per month; sergeants, fifty dollars each, per month; and privates, forty dollars each, per month. The payments shall be made at such times and in such manner as the adjutant general of the state may prescribe. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6757. Quartermaster.—The governor shall appoint a quartermaster for this force, who shall discharge the duties of quartermaster, commissary and paymaster, and shall rank and receive the pay of a captain. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6758. Under command of governor.—This force shall always be under the command of the governor, to be operated by his direction, in such manner, in such detachments, and in such localities as the governor may direct. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6759. Members to serve two years.—The governor is authorized to keep this force, or so much thereof as he may deem necessary, in the field as long as in his judgment there may be necessity for such a force; and men who may volunteer in such service shall do so for such term not to exceed two years, subject to disbandment in whole or in part at any time, and reassembly or reorganization of the whole force, or such portion thereof as may be deemed necessary by order of the governor. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6760. Quartermaster to purchase supplies.—The quartermaster, or, if so directed by the adjutant general, company commanders shall purchase all supplies hereinafter provided for, and shall make a certificate on the voucher of the party or parties from whom the supplies are purchased, to the effect that the account is correct and just, and the articles purchased were at the lowest market price. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6761. Members to furnish equipment, etc.—Each officer, noncommissioned officer and private of said force shall furnish himself with a suitable horse, horse equipment, clothing, etc.; provided, that if his horse is killed in action it shall be paid for by the state at a fair market value at the time when killed. [Id. sec. 8.]
Art. 6762. Arms and equipment.—The state shall furnish each member of said force with one improved carbine and pistol at cost, the price of which shall be deducted from the first money due such officer or man, and shall furnish said force with rations of subsistence, camp equipage and ammunition for the officers and men, and also forage for horses. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6763. Rations and forage.—The amount of rations and forage shall not exceed the following, to wit: For each man's daily allowance, twelve ounces bacon or twenty ounces beef, twenty ounces of flour or corn meal, two and two-fifths ounces of beans or peas, one and three-fifths ounces of rice, three and one-fifth ounces of coffee, three and one-fifth ounces of sugar, one-sixth gill of vinegar or pickles, one-sixth ounce candles, one-third ounce of soap, two-thirds of an ounce of salt, one-twenty-fourth of an ounce of pepper, four and four-fifths ounces of potatoes, sixteen-twenty-fifths of an ounce of baking powder. The forage for each horse shall not exceed twelve pounds of corn or oats, and fourteen pounds of hay per day, and two ounces of salt per week; provided, that, when in case of emergency the members of said force are employed in such duty that it is impracticable to furnish the rations herein provided for, each member of said force so employed shall be allowed for his necessary actual expenses for such subsistence not to exceed one dollar and fifty cents per day; and provided, further, that, when it becomes necessary to move the members of said force from one place to another by railroad, the actual necessary expenses of such transportation shall be paid [by the state]. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6764. Clothed with powers of peace officers.—The officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of this force shall be clothed with all the powers of peace officers, and shall aid the regular civil authorities in the execution of the laws. They shall have authority to make arrests, and to execute process in criminal cases, and in such cases they shall be governed by law regulating and defining the powers and duties of sheriffs when in discharge of similar duties; except that they shall have the power, and shall be authorized to make arrests and to execute all process in criminal cases in any county in the state. They shall, before entering on the discharge of these duties, take an oath before some authority legally authorized to administer the same, that each of them will faithfully perform his duties in accordance with law. In order to arrest and bring to justice men who have banded together for the purpose of committing robbery, or other felonies, and to prevent the execution of the laws, the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of said force may accept the services of such citizens as shall volunteer to aid them; but while so engaged such citizens shall not receive pay from the state for such services. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 6765. In case of arrest to convey prisoner to county jail.—When said force, or any member or members thereof, shall arrest any person charged with the commission of a criminal offense, they shall forthwith convey said person to the county where he or they stand charged with the commission of an offense, and shall deliver him or them to the proper officer, taking his receipt therefor, and all necessary expenses thus incurred will be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6766. Regulations to be made by governor and adjutant general.—The governor, and adjutant general, shall cause to be made such regulations for the government and control of the organization herein provided for, and for the enlistment and employment of non-commissioned officers and privates, as they may deem necessary, to the end that the force so provided shall be as effective as possible. [Id. sec. 13.]
TITLE 117

RECORDS

TRANSCRIBING OLD RECORDS

Article 6767. [4585] Old records to be transcribed, when and how.
—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of any county, when the records or indexes of such county have become or may become defaced, worn, or in any condition endangering their preservation in a safe and legible form, to procure a good and well-bound book or books, as the case may be, and require the county clerk to transcribe, or have transcribed by a sworn deputy, the records contained in such book or books, in a plain, legible hand and with some standard ink of a permanent black color. [Act Aug. 7, 1876, p. 84, sec. 1.]

Art. 6768. [4586] Shall conform to the original record and be compared.—The book or books so transcribed shall conform in all respects to the original record as indexed; and the designation of such transcribed book or books, whether by letter or number, shall not be changed from the original and they shall be carefully compared with the original record by said clerk or sworn deputy so transcribing the same, assisted by some other sworn deputy. [Id. secs. 1, 2.]

Art. 6769. [4587] Correctness to be certified to, and effect of same.
—When said record or records shall have been found to be truly and correctly transcribed, the county clerk, with the sworn deputies so transcribing and verifying the same, shall certify officially, at the conclusion of the record, with the impress of the seal of said court affixed on the same page to the correctness of the same, reciting the number of pages contained in said book, from one to the highest number; after which said transcribed record or records shall have all the force and effect in judicial proceedings in the courts of the state as the original records. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6770. [4588] Original books to be preserved.—The original book or books transcribed according to the provisions of this chapter shall be carefully kept and preserved by such clerk, as other archives of his office. [Id.]

Art. 6771. [4589] To what records this chapter shall apply.—The provisions of this chapter shall apply to all records belonging to the district court, county court and commissioners' court, including all records used for registration, except the records of the surveyor's office; but the clerk of the district court shall perform all the duties herein required of the county clerk so far as the same appertains to the records of the said district clerk's office; and the records so transcribed by the district clerk shall have the same force and effect as the original records.
Art. 6772. [4590] Commissioners' court to have records transcribed, when.—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' court of any county in this state which may have been created, either in whole or in part from the territory of any other county or counties in this state, or to which may have been added since its creation the territory of any other county or counties in this state, to secure a well-bound book or books, as the case may be, and require the county clerk to transcribe, or have transcribed, from the record of said other county or counties by a sworn deputy, all the deeds, mortgages, conveyances, incumbrances and muniments of title affecting or in any wise relating to all lands and real property which are or may be embraced in the territory so acquired from another county or counties, and which deeds, mortgages, conveyances, incumbrances and muniments of title appear of record in said county or counties from which said territory may have been taken as having been there recorded prior to the transfer of territory as aforesaid; and, when the acquired territory may have been from more than one county, then the clerk shall provide a separate record book for each county, which said book or books shall be indexed and arranged as is now required for record books in case of deeds and mortgages. [Acts 1879, p. 105]

Art. 6773. [4591] How to be transcribed.—Said records shall be transcribed in a plain, legible hand, and with some standard ink of a permanent black color, and when so transcribed shall be carefully compared with the original record by the said clerk or sworn deputy so transcribing the same, assisted by some other sworn deputy. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6774. [4592] To have effect of judicial proceedings, when.—When said record or records shall have been found to be truly and correctly transcribed, the county clerk, with the sworn deputies so transcribing and verifying the same, shall certify under their official oath of office at the conclusion of the record with the impress of the seal of said court affixed on the same page the correctness of the same, after which said transcribed record or records shall have all the force and effect in judicial proceedings in the courts of this state as the original records. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6775. [4593] Compensation.—The county clerk, or person making such transcript, shall be entitled to compensation therefor at the rate of fifteen cents for one hundred words, and for comparing and verifying the same, payable out of the county treasury upon warrant issued under order of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6776. [4593a] Translations may be authorized by commissioners' court.—The county commissioners of any county of this state are authorized and empowered to contract with the clerk of the county courts of their respective counties to cause to be translated into the English language, by themselves or their deputies, the archives and records of their offices, or any part thereof, now in the Spanish language, in their official custody, relating to titles to land, and copy said translations in a well-bound book or books; provided, that they shall not contract to pay more than fifteen cents per hundred words for both the translation and recording. [Acts 1893, p. 168.]

Art. 6777. [4593b] Effect of such translations, etc.—When said archives and records, now in Spanish, are translated and recorded as hereinbefore provided, said records in English shall have the same force and effect as if the archives and instruments were originally made and recorded in the English language, and certified copies may be used as evidence and otherwise, for like purposes and with like effect as the originals are and certified copies of records of the originals can now be used; and said record books hereinbefore provided for shall be and are hereby made permanent archives and records of the county clerk's office of the counties when so translated and recorded. [Id.]
CHAPTER TWO
SUPPLYING LOST RECORDS, ETC.

Article 6778. [4594] Lost records may be supplied by proof, etc.—All deeds, bonds, bills of sale, mortgages, deeds of trust, powers of attorney and conveyances of any and every description which are required or permitted by law to be acknowledged or recorded, and which have been acknowledged or recorded, and any and every judgment of a court of record in this state, and which record and minutes of court containing such judgment have been or may hereafter be lost, destroyed or carried away, may be supplied by parol proof of the contents thereof; which proof shall be taken in the manner hereinafter provided. [Act July 13, 1876, p. 6778, sec. 1.]

Does not apply to lost originals.—This and the succeeding article do not apply to lost originals. To supply a lost power of attorney under which land was conveyed, suit should be brought in the county of the residence of the defendant, and not where the land is situated. Douglas v. Baker, 79 T. 459, 16 S. W. 801.

Defines and limits the instruments that may be supplied.—This article defines and limits the specific kinds of written instruments whose loss may be supplied. A contract between a city and a railway company as to its domicile and shops is not within the statute. Railway Co. v. Harris, 73 T. 575, 11 S. W. 405.

Article 6779. [4595] Proceedings to establish lost records, etc.—Any person having any interest in any such deed, instrument in writing, or any judgment, order or decree in the district court, the record or entry of which has been or may hereafter be lost, destroyed, or carried away, may, in addition to any mode now provided by law for establishing the existence of such record and the contents thereof, file with the clerk of the district court of the county where such loss or destruction took place, his written application setting forth the facts entitling him to the relief sought; whereupon such clerk shall issue a citation to the grantor in such deed, or to the party or parties interested in such instrument of writing, or to the party or parties who were interested adversely to the applicant at the time of the rendition of any such judgment, or who may be now interested, or the heirs and legal representatives of such parties, to appear at a term of the district court to be designated in said citation, and contest the right of the applicant to have any such deed, instrument in writing, or judgment substituted and recorded; and service shall be as now provided for process in other cases. [Id. sec. 2.]

Necessity for citation to grantor, heirs, etc.—A judgment establishing the record of a deed rendered in a cause wherein neither the alleged grantor nor his heirs or legal representatives were made parties, is void. Cook v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 866.

Limitation.—While a suit to supply evidence of a lost deed and to perpetuate testimony is subject to the plea of laches if not brought within a reasonable time after such loss, the right to sue for land and establish the title through said lost deeds would only be barred by statutes of limitation barring recovery of land. Shepard v. Cummings, 44 T. 502.

Article 6780. [4596] Judgment, etc.—On hearing said application, if the court shall be satisfied from the evidence of the existence of such deed, instrument in writing, record, judgment, order or decree, and of the loss, destruction or carrying away of the same, as alleged by the applicant, and the contents thereof, an order shall be entered on the minutes of the district court to that effect, which order shall contain a description of the lost deed, instrument in writing, judgment or record, and the contents thereof, and a certified copy of such order may be recorded in the records of the proper county. [Id.]

Art. 6781. [4597] Proceedings in the county court.—Whenever any judgment, order or decree duly entered in the county court of any county has been or may hereafter be lost, destroyed or carried away, any person interested therein may file his written application with the clerk of the county court to which the original record belonged, setting forth the facts entitling him to the relief sought, when the same proceedings shall be had and the court shall enter a like judgment as provided in the two preceding articles, so far as applicable.

In general.—Not having shown actual possession of the land in controversy and holding under a muniment of title other than a deed (a will) which was not kept of record as required by statute, the possession relied on did not include the land in controversy. The record of the will was destroyed by fire and no steps taken to put it again on record. Wall v. Lubbock, 53 C. A. 406, 118 S. W. 888.

Preliminary evidence as to contents.—In the absence of any proof of the contents of the records of one county, they cannot be proved by the records of another county. Ellis v. Le Bow, 30 C. A. 449, 71 S. W. 676.

Art. 6782. [4598] Effect of judgment, etc.—Whenever such judgment, order or decree rendered in the district or county court shall be duly entered, it shall stand in the place of and have the same force and effect as the original of said lost deed, instrument in writing, judgment or record; and when duly recorded may be used in evidence in any of the courts of this state with like effect as the original thereof. [Id.]

Art. 6783. [4599] Certified copies may be recorded.—All certified copies from the records of such county, the record of which has been or may hereafter be lost, destroyed or carried away, and all certified copies from the records of the county or counties from which said county was created, may be recorded in such county; provided, the loss of the original shall first be established. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6784. [4600] Original deeds, etc., recorded again, when.—When any of the original papers mentioned in the first article of this chapter may have been saved or preserved from loss, the record of said originals having been lost, destroyed or carried away, the same may be recorded again, and this last registration shall have force and effect from the filing for original registration; provided, said originals are recorded within four years next after such loss, destruction or removal of the records; and certified copies from any record authorized by the provisions of this title to be made may be received in evidence in any of the courts of this state in the same manner and with like effect as certified copies of the original record. [Id. sec. 4. Acts 1879, ch. 35, p. 35.]

Application.—This law applies to the re-registration of deeds, the record of which was destroyed before it was enacted, the time in which it could be recorded, so as to cause notice to commence with its first registration, beginning to run from the time the law went into effect. Kempner v. Beaumont Lumber Co., 29 C. A. 507, 39 S. W. 412.

When original not filed in time former record ceases to be constructive notice.—The record of a deed was destroyed by fire February 28, 1873. The deed was again recorded in September, 1886. An intervening bona fide purchaser from the grantor in the deed acquired title. Salmon v. Huff, 90 T. 123, 15 S. W. 257, 1047; O'Neal v. Pettus, 79 T. 264, 14 S. W. 1065; Barcus v. Brigham, 84 T. 581, 19 S. W. 703.

Where the record of a deed has been destroyed, if the original be not re-recorded within the time prescribed by the statute (four years), a subsequent purchaser for value without notice will be protected; and he will not be charged with constructive notice by reason of the fact that the deed was once recorded, the record of which has been destroyed. Magee v. Merriman, 85 T. 105, 19 S. W. 1002.

When records are destroyed, the destroyed record will not operate as constructive notice unless the original paper if preserved is again placed of record within the time prescribed by law. Lanier v. Davis (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1019.

The land having been located by virtue of a valid certificate all deeds affecting it after such location are prescribed by Art. 6783. The record of deeds was destroyed by fire in 1873, and a deed from an ancestor was not recorded until 1891; persons who bought the land from the heir in 1882, without actual notice of the ancestor's deed, were no more affected by it than they would have been had it never been recorded. Greer v. Willis (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1186, 1187.

Where a deed, the record of which was destroyed, was not refiled for record within four years from the enactment of this section, its former record ceased to be notice to subsequent purchasers, and its priority depended upon its second filing more than four years after the adoption of the section. William Carlisle & Co. v. King, 103 T. 620, 133 S. W. 241.

Recording original document again.—Where records are destroyed, deeds, etc., must be recorded again to constitute notice. Barcus v. Brigham, 84 T. 538, 19 S. W. 703.

Where a deed was properly recorded under the law in force at the time (1849) its re-registration in 1894 (after the record had been burned) was regular and sufficient for all purposes after that date. Frugia v. Trueheart, 48 C. A. 515, 108 S. W. 740, 741.

Art. 6785. [4601] Judgments shall have force of originals.—Judgments, orders and decrees, when substituted as hereinbefore provided, shall carry all the rights thereunder in every respect as the originals, especially preserving the liens from the date of the originals, and giving the parties the right to issue executions under the substituted judgments as under the originals. [Id.]

Venue.—An action of debt was brought in Mitchell county, where the defendant resided, on a dormant judgment of the district court of Tarrant county, the record of which, it was alleged, had been destroyed by fire. On exception to the petition it was held that the suit was properly brought in the county of defendant's residence, the remedy under this statute being cumulative. Johnson v. Skipworth, 69 T. 473.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

An abstract of title is a memorandum or concise statement of the conveyances and incumbrances which appear on the public records, affecting the title to real estate. Nicholson v. Lieber (Clv. App.) 153 S. W. 641.

Property in.—A compiler from public records and other sources of an abstract of title to lands held entitled to the exclusive use of the abstract until published. Vernon Abstract Co. v. Waggoner Title Co., 49 C. A. 144, 107 S. W. 919.

Liability of abstractor of titles.—See notes under Art. 1827, § 126.

As notice.—See note under Art. 6842.

As evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.
TITLE 118
REGISTRATION

CHAPTER ONE
RECORDERs AND THEIR DUTIES

[As to chattel mortgages, see title Liens, Title 86, Chapter 7.]

Article 6786. [4602] County clerks shall be recorders.—The county clerks of the several counties shall be the recorders for their respective counties; they shall provide and keep in their offices well-bound books in which they shall record in a fair and legible hand all instruments of writing authorized or required to be recorded in the recorder's office of their respective counties, in the manner hereinafter provided. [Act May 12, 1846, sec. 1. P. D. 5001.]

Historical.—Under the laws in force prior to the Revolution, written contracts were reduced to writing by the proper officer, upon stamped paper, which remained as an archive of his office, and copies, also upon stamped paper, were given to the parties. See ante, Title 8, "Archives."

The plan and powers of the provisional government of Texas, adopted November 13, 1835, articles 5, 6, constituted a provisional judiciary consisting of two judges for each jurisdiction. Their court was declared a court of record for conveyances, which may be made in English, and not on stamped paper, the use of which was dispensed with. A judge was ex officio notary public. Each municipality was authorized to continue to elect a sheriff, alcalde and other officers of ayuntamientos.

By Article 14 the primary judges, alcaldes and other municipal officers of the various jurisdictions were directed to deliver their archives to their successors in office, immediately after their election and appointment. The archives of the several political chiefs of Nacogdoches, Brazos and Bexar were to be transmitted to the governor and council for their disposition. Sayles' Const. of Texas, p. 139.

By the act of December 20, 1836, it is made the duty of the judge of the first instance of each and every county to deposit in the office of the clerk of the county court of his county every matter of record, paper, document or thing heretofore filed in the office, not by law required to be transmitted to the district court, or to justices of the peace. 1st Cong. § 33, p. 148.

By the act of December 20, 1836, clerks of the county courts were made recorders for their respective counties. 1st Cong. § 35, p. 148.

By the constitution of 1869, ratified on the first Monday of July, 1869, and the act of August 8, 1870, the clerk of the district court was recorder for the county of all instruments required to be recorded. Art. 5, sec. 9, Sayles' Constitutions, p. 431; Laws 12th Leg., S. S., p. 49. This constitution was superseded by a new constitution, which went into effect on the 18th of April, 1876, under which the county clerk again became recorder.

In counties of less than eight thousand inhabitants a single clerk could formerly perform the duties of district and county clerk. Art. 5, secs. 20, 21, Sayles' Constitutions, p. 647; R. S. 1895, art. 1152.

Interest of clerk.—The clerk can record an instrument in which he is interested. Brockenborough v. Melton, 56 T. 493.

Deputies.—Clerks can appoint deputies. Art. 1148.

Where a deputy signed as special deputy, the word "special" was held surplusage. Thompson v. Johnson, 84 T. 648, 19 S. W. 784.

Offices of county and district clerks merged.—Registration in the office of the county clerk of an instrument required to be recorded by the clerk of the district court, under an act passed at a time when both offices were merged in that of district clerk, will be sufficient when the registration is made after the office of county clerk has been re-establish-

Need not pay fees in advance.—A party who files a deed for record is not required to pay the recording fees before the record is made. William Carlisle & Co. v. King, 103 T.
620, 133 S. W. 241.

Art. 6787. [4603] What shall be his seal.—The seal of the county town shall be the seal of the recorder, and shall be used for the authentication of all his official acts. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 5002.]

Art. 6788. [4604] Shall provide books, etc.—Each recorder shall provide suitable books and presses for his office, and keep regular and faithful accounts of the expenses thereof, and such accounts shall be audited by the commissioners’ court and paid out of the county treasury. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 5003.]

Art. 6789. [4605] Shall keep a memorandum and give receipts, etc.—When any instrument of writing authorized by law to be recorded shall be deposited in the recorder’s office for record, if the same shall be acknowledged or proved in the manner prescribed by law for record, the recorder shall enter in a book to be provided for that purpose, in alphabetical order, the names of the parties and date and nature thereof, and the time of delivery for record; and shall give to the person depositing the same, if required, a receipt specifying the particulars thereof.
[Id. sec. 12. P. D. 5012.]

Paper handed to clerk outside office.—If a paper required to be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court is handed to him for record outside of his office, it will be regarded as deposited for record from the time of its actual deposit and filing

Art. 6790. [4606] Shall record without delay in the order presented.—Each recorder shall, without delay, record every instrument of writing authorized to be recorded by him, which is deposited with him for record, with the acknowledgments, proofs, affidavits and certificates written or printed on the same, and all other papers referred to and thereto annexed, in the order and as of the time when the same shall have been deposited for record, by entering them word for word and letter for letter, and noting at the foot of such record all interlineations, erasures and words visibly written on erasures, and noting at the foot of the record the hour and the day of the month and year when the instrument so recorded was deposited in his office for record. [Id. sec.
13. P. D. 5013.]

Not repealed.—This article is not repealed by Arts. 5610-5620. Spence v. Brown (Civ.
App.) 24 S. W. 309.

Art. 6791. [4607] Record shall take effect from date of deposit—Every such instrument of writing shall be considered as recorded from the time it was deposited for record; and the recorder shall certify under his hand and seal of office to every such instrument of writing so recorded, the hour, day, month and year when he recorded it, and the book and page or pages in which it is recorded; and when recorded de-lever the same to the party entitled thereto or to his order. [Id. sec. 14.
P. D. 5014.]

Must be strictly observed.—The requirements of this article must be strictly observed.

Notice from time of deposit, though not recorded.—Under this article and Art. 6628, a deed properly acknowledged or proved and certified is as effectual as notice, as if it had been duly and properly recorded, from the date it is properly deposited for record, and the person depositing it owes no duty to make inquiry as to whether it has been, in

The patentee of a survey conveyed a part to one B. in 1860, the record of which was destroyed in 1882, the deed being filed again for record in 1892, but the fee for recording was not then paid and it remained in the office unrecorded, and in January, 1895, it was filed and recorded: the plaintiff herein claiming under that chain of title. In 1872 the patentee conveyed the remaining part to one W. through whom the defendant claims by conveyance made in March, 1896. Held that, under this article, and by Art. 6783, the filing of a deed in 1892 operated as notice to subsequent purchasers, and hence defendant acquired no title by his purchase in 1906. William Carlisle & Co. v. King, 103 T.
620, 133 S. W. 241.
Under this article a deed filed by the county clerk is notice to subsequent purchasers, though not transcribed upon the records, and though the fee for filing was not paid, William Carlisle & Co. v. King (Sup.) 133 S. W. 864.

Evidence sufficient to show filing.—Record of deed, with extraneous evidence, held to show that it was filed for record. Riviere v. Wilkens, 31 C. A. 454, 72 S. W. 608.

Art. 6792. [4608] Shall keep alphabetical indexes.—Each recorder shall make and enter in a well-bound book an index, in alphabetical order, to all books of records wherein deeds, mortgages or other instruments of writing concerning lands and tenements are recorded, distinguishing the books and pages in which every such deed or writing is recorded. [Id. sec. 15. P. D. 5015.]

Art. 6793. [4609] What they shall contain.—It shall be a cross-index and shall contain the names of the several grantors and grantees in alphabetical order; and, in case the deed be made by a sheriff, the name of the sheriff and defendant in execution; and, if by executors, administrators or guardians, their names and the names of their testators, intestates or wards; and, if by attorney, the name of such attorney and his constituents, and, if by a commissioner, the name of such commissioner and the person whose estate is conveyed. [Id. sec. 16. P. D. 5016.]

Art. 6794. [4610] Same subject.—Each recorder shall, in like manner, make and keep in his office a full and perfect alphabetical index of all books of record in his office, wherein all instruments of writing in relation to goods and chattels, or movable property of any description, marriage contracts and powers of attorney, and all other instruments of writing authorized or required to be recorded in his office are recorded; and a like index of all the books of record wherein official bonds are recorded, the names of the officers appointed, and of the obligors in any bond recorded, and a reference to the book and page where the same are recorded. [Id. sec. 17. P. D. 5017.]

Art. 6795. [4611] Shall give attested copies, when.—It shall be the duty of the recorder to give attested copies whenever demanded of all papers recorded in his office; and the recorder shall receive for all such copies, and all other writings required of him by virtue of his office, such fees as may be provided by law. [Act Dec. 20, 1836, sec. 36. P. D. 4979.]

Art. 6796. [4612] Mortgages, etc., to be recorded in separate book.—All deeds of trust, mortgages, judgments which are required to be recorded in order to create a judgment lien, or other instruments of writing intended to create a lien, shall be recorded in a book or books separate from those in which deeds or other conveyances are recorded.

Provisions directory, except.—Except in those cases where actual recording is required to fix the right as against a third person, this article is deemed directory; otherwise effect could not be given to the statutes which give to filing with the clerk the effect of full registration. Kennard v. Mabry, 78 T. 151, 14 S. W. 272.

CHAPTER TWO

ACKNOWLEDGMENT AND PROOF OF DEEDS, ETC., FOR RECORD

[As to registration of foreign wills, see title "Wills."]
Article 6797. [4613] Before whom acknowledgments may be made in this state.—The acknowledgment or proof of an instrument of writing for record may be made within this state before either: 1. A clerk of the district court. 2. A judge or clerk of the county court. 3. A notary public. [Act May 6, 1871, sec. 1. P. D. 7418.]

Authority to take—Historical.—By the act of December 20, 1836, the recorder was authorized to take acknowledgment of execution of instrument in writing by the grantor. 1st Cong. sess. 5, p. 148; P. D. 4972. By the same act, such instrument could be proven before the clerk of the county court in whose office such record is proposed to be made. 1st Cong. sess. 5, p. 148; P. D. 4982.

Under the act of June 12, 1837, notaries public were authorized to perform all such duties as justices of the peace courts are required to perform by virtue of their office, as ex officio notaries public, and an associate justice was authorized to act as a notary public when the chief justice was interested or was unable to act. 1st Cong. p. 273.

The act of January 19, 1839, authorized the acknowledgment or proof of instruments of writing affecting immovable property to be made before a justice of the peace court, or chief justice of the same, or before the clerk in whose office such instrument is proposed to be recorded. 3d Cong. sess. 1, p. 47; P. D. 4974.

The act of February 5, 1846, authorized a record on the acknowledgment of the grantor, before the clerk of the county court of the county where the record was made, or before a district judge, chief justice or notary public, or two justices of the peace. 5th Cong. sess. 5, 6, p. 153; P. D. 4975.

The act of February 5, 1841, authorized a record upon the acknowledgment of the grantor before the register or clerk of the county court of the county, chief justice or notary public of the county, or any associate or the chief justice of the supreme court. 5th Cong. sess. 21, p. 165; Early Laws, art. 997, § 20.

The act of May 12, June 13, 1846, authorized the acknowledgment or proof within this state before some notary public or clerk of the county court of any county in the state, whose certificate must be attested by his official seal. 1st Leg. sess. 8, p. 236.

By the act of May 13, June 22, 1846, notaries public were authorized to take the acknowledgment or proof of instruments of writing to entitle them to registration. 1st Leg. p. 541.

Under the act of March 16, August 7, 1848, the chief justice of the county court was authorized to take the acknowledgment and proof of all instruments of writing for the purpose of being recorded. 1st Leg. p. 113.

By the act of December 31, 1861 (9th Leg. p. 21), commissioners of deeds in the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Cherokee and Creek nations of Indians were authorized to take the acknowledgment of married women.

By the act of April 6, 1851, the acknowledgment or proof within this state is made before some notary public, clerk of the county court, or judge of a court of record. 8th Leg., S. S., sec. 1, p. 37. This was amended January 14, 1862 (9th Leg. sec. 1, p. 57), so as to confer authority upon the deputy of the county clerk and to validate acknowledgments thereby made before such officer. By the act of August 8, 1870, clerks of the district courts, their deputies and notaries public were authorized to take the acknowledgment of deeds and other instruments required by law to be recorded in this state, and the certificate of such officer over his official signature and seal of office, that such instrument has been so acknowledged, entitled the same to registration. 12th Leg. p. 45.

The chief justice of a county had the right to take the acknowledgments of deeds in 1845. Willis v. Lewis, 28 T. 185.

This article was in force when Act April 27, 1874 (Acts 1874, p. 152, c. 105), was enacted, which provided all deeds required to be recorded, which shall have been heretofore acknowledged in the manner required by law, within the United States; before any officer now authorized by law to take such acknowledgments, and which shall have been duly certified by such officer, shall be held to be acknowledged with the full consequences of existing laws. Held, that since a judge of the supreme court of Louisiana could have legally taken an acknowledgment of a deed when the act of 1874 was passed, any defect in the acknowledgment of a deed, acknowledged before a judge of such court a number of years before that date, because the statute of the republic of Texas then in force required foreign acknowledgments to be taken before consular agents, etc., was cured by the act of 1874, and hence a copy of such deed was admissible in evidence. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 103 T. 94, 122 S. W. 533, 124 S. W. 55.

District clerk and deputies.—A deputy district clerk can take acknowledgments in all cases where his principal is authorized so to do. Wert v. Schneider, 84 T. 337.

County clerk and deputies.—See notes under Art. 6786.

By the act of December 18, 1849 (3d Leg. p. 11), clerks of the county courts were authorized to take the separate acknowledgment of married women.

In May, 1872, a special deputy was appointed to take the acknowledgment to a deed. In August, 1872, the clerk requested the deputy to take another acknowledgment. Held, that the deputy was certainly a de facto officer. Thompson v. Johnson, 84 T. 548, 19 S. W. 784.

Justice of the peace.—A justice of the peace may act as a notary (Art. 2287), and must authenticate his acts by a notarial seal (Daugherty v. Yates, 13 C. A. 646, 35 S. W. 397).

The effect of the record of an instrument concerning lands, on its face regularly acknowledged or proved for record and duly recorded, cannot be attacked by showing (1) that the officer who took the acknowledgment or proof had an interest in the land, or (2) by showing that the acknowledgment was taken outside the territorial limits of the officer's appointment, or that the officer was exercising two incompatible offices. Titus v. Johnson, 50 T. 224.

The general attorney of the husband having no interest in the transaction may take the separate acknowledgment of the wife. Kutch v. Holley, 77 T. 229, 14 S. W. 32.

A certificate of a privy acknowledgment to a deed of transfer taken by the trustee named in the deed is void, although the trust is assumed by a substitute trustee appointed by the beneficiary under a stipulation in such instrument. If the property be the separate estate of the wife, then the trust deed is void. Rothschild v. Daughery, 35 T. 332, 20 S. W. 142, 15 L. R. A. 719, 34 Am. St. Rep. 811.

A party to a deed, or identified with the transaction, or one having a pecuniary interest in the subject, is not competent to take the acknowledgment. Silcock v. Baker, 25 C. A. 508, 61 S. W. 940.

That the sheriff's acknowledgment to a deed under a tax judgment was taken by the grantee as a substitute in evidence, and inadmissible as evidence, of the acknowledgment before a different officer being shown. Carr v. Miller (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1159.

Art. 6798. [4614] Without this state and within the United States.
The acknowledgment or proof of an instrument of writing for record may be made without this state, but within the United States or their territories, before either:
1. A clerk of some court of record having a seal.
2. A commissioner of deeds duly appointed under the laws of this state.
3. A notary public. [Id.]

Authority to take.—Historical.—The act of February 5, March 17, 1841, authorized the acknowledgment or proof of deeds, etc., for record without the republic but within the United States or their territories, before any circuit or supreme judge, or chancellor of the same, certificated by him, with the certificate of the chief magistrate of the nation as to the official character of such officer, and the great seal of the United States thereto annexed. 5th Cong. sec. 21, 22, 53, 19 S. W. 158.

By the act of May 8, June 22, 1846, commissioners of deeds for the state of Texas in other states, and in the District of Columbia, had authority to take the acknowledgment and proof of the execution of any deeds, mortgages and other conveyances of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, 1st Leg. p. 187.

The act of May 12, June 13, 1846, permitted an instrument to be acknowledged or proven, without this state and within the United States or their territories, before some judge of a court of record having a seal, whose certificate must be attested by his official seal. 1st Leg. sec. 2, 21, S. W. 936.

By the act of April 6, 1861, the acknowledgment or proof of an instrument of writing, without this state and within the Confederate States, or the United States or their territories, could be made before some judge of a court of record having a seal, the certificate thereof to be attested under the seal of the officer taking the same. 8th Leg. sec. 21, 22, S. W. 27. This was re-enacted January 14, 1862. 9th Leg. p. 57.

By the act of December 31, 1861, commissioners of deeds in the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Cherokee and Creek nations of Indians had authority to take acknowledgments of deeds, transfers or conveyances of all kinds of property situated in this state. 9th Leg. p. 21.

In 1847 a notary public was not authorized to take the acknowledgment of a deed conveying real estate; the validating act of April 27, 1874, by its terms restricted its operation to acknowledgments taken within the United States. Birdseye v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 841.

Judge of a court of record of another state.—It appearing by the certificate that the court in which the judge presided, before whom an affidavit was made, had a clerk and seal, was sufficient evidence that it was a court of record. Moore v. Carson, 12 T. 65.

No authority exists in the judge of a court of record in another state to take an acknowledgment of a deed conveying real estate in Texas. Talbert v. Dull, 70 T. 675, 8 S. W. 530.

Notary public.—Where the law in force confers authority upon notaries public in other states of the Union to authenticate conveyances for the purpose of registration, the authority of a notary, who is lawfully such by virtue of his holding the other office is as ample as if he were a notary by direct appointment. Butler v. Dunagan, 19 T. 539, cited in Wilson v. Simpson, 68 T. 306, 4 S. W. 839.

Not required to prove commissioner's authority.—One claiming under a deed, acknowledgment of which purports to have been taken by a commissioner of deeds, held not required to prove the appointment and qualification of the officer. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 587.

Disqualification of officer.—An acknowledgment taken by a notary who is a stockholder or a director in a company for whose benefit the lien on the homestead created by the instrument acknowledged, is void. Workman's Mut. Aid Ass'n v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 1029.

Art. 6799. [4615] Without the United States.—The acknowledgment or proof of an instrument of writing for record may be made without the United States before either:

1. A minister, commissioner or charge d'affaires of the United States, resident and accredited in the country where the proof or acknowledgment is made.

2. A consul-general, consul, vice-consul, commercial agent, vice-commercial agent, deputy consul or consular agent of the United States, resident in the country where the proof or acknowledgment is made.

3. A notary public. [Id.]

Historical.—The act of February 5, 1841, authorized the acknowledgment or proof of a deed, etc., for record, without the United States, before any judge of a superior court of record, or in any such court, and certified by such judge, or the record thereof exemplified, and either so counter-certified by the chief magistrate or sovereign of such other nation or kingdom, under the great seal, or by the consul of this republic, or minister resident there. 5th Cong. sec. 21, p. 183.

The act of May 12, June 15, 1846, permitted an instrument to be acknowledged or proven without the United States, before some public minister, charge d'affaires, or consul of the United States, whose certificate must be attested by his official seal. 1st Leg. P. 326.

By the act of April 6, 1861, the acknowledgment or proof of an instrument, without the Confederate States or United States, could be made before some public minister, charge d'affaires, of the Confederate States, or the consul of such acknowledgment or proof to be attested under the official seal of the officer taking the same. 8th Leg., S. S., sec. 1, p. 37. This section was re-enacted January 14, 1862. 9th Leg. S. 841. In 1847 a notary public in Mexico was not authorized to take an acknowledgment of the execution of a deed conveying land in Texas. Birdsey v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 841.

Consul and commercial agent.—It seems that a consul and a commercial agent are invested with the same powers and duties, the name being determined by the relative importance of the post. Schunior v. Russell, 83 T. 38, 18 S. W. 484.

Art. 6800. [4616] Acknowledgment, how made.—The acknowledgment of an instrument of writing for the purpose of being recorded shall be by the grantor or person who executed the same appearing before some officer authorized to take such acknowledgment, and stating that he had executed the same for the consideration and purposes therein stated; and the officer taking such acknowledgment shall make a certificate thereof, sign and seal the same with his seal of office. [Act May 12, 1846, sec. 7. P. D. 5007.]

Historical.—The acts of December 20, 1836, and January 19, 1839, authorized a record when the grantor “himself shall acknowledge the same,” which shall be certified by the recorder, and form part of the record. 1st Cong. sec. 35, p. 148; 3d Cong. sec. 1, p. 47.

The act of February 5, 1840, authorized the record of a deed upon the certificate, under and in evidence of the justices of the peace of any county in this republic, annexed to such deeds, and to the following effect, to wit: “Republic of Texas, County of —, We, A. B. and D. C., justices of the peace of the county aforesaid, do hereby certify that E. F., a party (or E. G. and G. M., etc., parties) to a certain deed bearing date on the — day of —, and hereunto annexed, personally appeared before us, in our county aforesaid, and acknowledged the same to be his (or their) act and deed, and desired us to certify the said acknowledgment to the clerk of the county of —, in order that said deed may be recorded. Given under our hands and seals this — day of —. 41st Cong. sec. 6, p. 163.

The act of February 5, March 17, 1841, authorized a record on the acknowledgment of the grantor, in case there need be no subscribing witnesses. 5th Cong. sec. 21, P. D. 183.

By the act of May 12, June 13, 1846, the acknowledgment of an instrument of writing for the purpose of being recorded was by the grantor or person who executed the same appearing before some officer authorized to take such acknowledgment, and stating that he had executed the same for the consideration and purposes therein stated; and the officer taking such acknowledgment was required to make a certificate thereof, sign and seal the same with his seal of office. 1st Leg. sec. 7, p. 236. See Art. 8320.

Necessity of acknowledgment.—The authentication of an instrument is a necessary part of the record, and its omission is fatal to the effect of the registry. Taylor v. Harrison, 47 T. 454, 26 Am. Rep. 304.

Acknowledgment, how made.—A special commissioner appointed in 1834 to issue title to land under a special concession, on the 19th of June, 1838, appeared before the proper officer and acknowledged his signature to the testimonio of title made by him. Held, to be duly probated. Fulton v. Bayne, 18 T. 60.

A deed purported to have been executed in 1835 before A., as second judge of the first instance, acting with two instrumental and two assisting witnesses. On the 3d of April, 1839, A. appeared before the county clerk of Milam county and acknowledged his own signature, and made oath to the signature of the grantor. Held, that the deed was properly authenticated for record. McKlash v. Colquhoun, 18 T. 148.

When an acknowledgment is prescribed by statute without declaring of what it shall consist, it is meant that the person executing the instrument must appear before a duly authorized officer and state that he executed it. Punchard v. Masters, 100 T. 479, 101 S. W. 204.

Acknowledgment by corporation, how.—Any corporation may convey lands by deed, sealed with the common seal of the corporation, and signed by the president or the presiding member or trustee of said corporation; and such deed, when acknowledged by such officer to be the act of the corporation, or proven in the manner prescribed for other conveyances of lands, may be recorded in like manner and with the same effect as other deeds. Art. 1173.

By the act of April 6, 1861, when any deed, transfer or other instrument of writing executed by a railroad company which has been or may be incorporated under the laws of this state shall be attested by the seal of said company, it shall be considered sufficiently authenticated to authorize the clerk of the county court to record the same. 8th Leg., S. S., p. 37. This section was re-enacted January 14, 1862. 9th Leg. p. 57.

Certificate—Requisites and sufficiency.—See notes under Art. 6801.

On the record of a mortgage a note was written "No seal on." The original of the mortgage was produced with the impress thereon of the official seal. The officer making the certificate testified that he attached the seal at the time he made the certificate. These facts appearing, it was held that the mortgage was duly recorded. Equitable Mortgage Co. v. Kempner, 84 T. 102, 19 S. W. 358.

Art. 6801. [4617] Party must be known or proven.—No acknowledgment of any instrument of writing shall be taken, unless the officer taking it knows or has satisfactory evidence on the oath or affirmation of a credible witness, which shall be noted in his certificate, that the person making such acknowledgment is the individual who executed and is described in the instrument. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 5010.]

Proof of Identity.—The act of May 12, June 13, 1846, is as follows: Whenever any grantor or person who executed any instrument of writing, or any subscribing witness to such instrument, shall appear before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments or proofs of such instruments, for the purpose of acknowledging or proving such instrument, or any person who executed such instrument or subscribing witness shall be personally unknown to such officer, his identity, and his being the person he purports to be on the face of such instrument, shall be proven to such officer; which proof may be made by witnesses known to the officer, or the affidavit of such grantor or person who executed such instrument, or subscribing witness, if such officer shall be satisfied therewith, which proof or affidavit shall also be indorsed on such instrument of writing. 1st Leg. sec. 10, p. 236.

Art. 6802. [4618] Acknowledgment of married woman, when and how taken.—No acknowledgment of a married woman to any conveyance or other instrument purporting to be executed by her shall be taken, unless she has had the same shown to her, and then and there fully explained by the officer taking the acknowledgment, on an examination privy and apart from her husband; nor shall he certify to the same, unless she thereupon acknowledges to such officer that the same is her act and deed, that she has willingly signed the same, and that she wishes not to retract it. [Act April 30, 1846, sec. 1. P. D. 1003.]

Historical.—The act of April 30, 1846 (1st Leg. p. 156), is substantially the same as the act of February, 1841, except that the acknowledgment of the wife shall be made before a judge of the supreme or district court, or notary public; the words "sign and seal" are used instead of the words "seal and deliver."

The certificate under the act of 1846 is as follows: "State of Texas, County of —.

Before me, —, judge of, or notary public of, — county, personally appeared, — wife of —, parties to a certain deed or writing, bearing date on the — day of —, hereto annexed, and having been examined by me privy and apart from her husband, and having the same fully explained to her, she, the said —, acknowledged the same to be her act and deed, and declared that she had willingly signed, sealed and delivered the same, and that she wished not to retract it. To certify which, I hereunto sign my name and affix my seal, this — day of —.

By the act of April 30, 1846 (1st Leg. p. 156), the acknowledgment of the wife, when the deed is signed and sealed out of this state, but within the United States or any of their territories, could be taken by the judge of a court of record having a seal.

When the deed is signed and sealed out of the United States, the acknowledgment of the wife could be taken before any public minister, chargé d' affaires or consul of the United States.

By the act of May 8, June 22, 1846 (1st Leg. p. 187), commissioners of deeds for Texas in any of the states of the United States or of the District of Columbia were authorized to take the acknowledgment of married women.

By a deed dated October 2, 1837, W. H. and his wife, E. H., conveyed to M. certain tracts of land, the property of the wife, situated in Texas. The deed was acknowledged by the husband and wife before the chief justice of Brazoria county, without a privy examination of the wife. Held, that the deed was valid. Under the Spanish law, which was in force in Texas until the adoption of the common law by the act of January 20, March 16, 1840 (4th Cong. p. 3), the privy examination of the wife was not required in any case, and contracts made by her without the consent or license of the husband were valid if they did not operate to his prejudice. Harvey v. Hill, 7 T. 591. And his assent would be presumptive evidence that he was aware of the transaction, and made no objection for several (in this case fourteen) years thereafter. Poor v. Boyce, 12 T. 440; Allen v. Urquhart, 19 T. 483; Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155.

In February 2, 1841, when a husband and wife have sealed and delivered a writing purporting to be a conveyance of an estate or interest in any land, or other effects, the separate property of the wife, if she appears before any judge of the district court, or chief justice of the county court, and, being examined privily and apart from her husband, shall declare that she did freely and willingly seal and deliver the said writing (to be then shown and explained to her), and wishes not to retract it, and shall acknowledge the said writing, so again shown to her, to be her act, such privy examination, acknowledgment and declaration the said judge or chief justice shall certify, under his hand and seal, by a certificate annexed to said writing, and to the following effect, or substance thereof, that is to say:

"Republic of Texas,}
"County of____}
"I, A. B., chief justice of the county aforesaid, do hereby certify that E. F., the wife of G. H., parties to a certain deed, bearing date on the _____ day of _____, and hereunto annexed, personally appear before me, the chief justice of the county aforesaid, and having been examined by me privily and apart from her husband, and having the deed aforesaid fully explained to her, she, the said E. F., acknowledged the same to be her act and deed, and declared that she had willingly signed, sealed and delivered the same, and that she wished not to retract it.

"Given under my hand and seal, this _____ day of _____.

"An instruction as to duty of the notary in regard to acknowledgment of deed by a wife held sufficient. Evart v. Dalrymple (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 223.

A necessary acknowledgment.—Where a deed by a husband and wife was not privy acknowledged by the wife, it was absolutely void. Poland v. Porter, 44 C. A. 824, 88 S. W. 214.

The privy examination of and acknowledgment by a married woman are absolutely essential to the passing of her title to land by deed. Veedere v. Glimer, 105 T. 468, 129 S. W. 595.

A married woman is not bound by her deed of land till after due acknowledgment thereof before an officer. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 961.

Provisions mandatory.—The statute regulating the acknowledgment by married women of deeds is mandatory, and neither the homestead right of a wife nor her separate property may be conveyed except in the manner prescribed. De West v. Barthelow (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 86.

Acknowledgment.—After death of husband.—An acknowledgment by a married woman, after her husband's death, to a deed for her separate property, validates the deed. Breasing v. Chester, 88 T. 588, 32 S. W. 527, reversing (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 464.

Explanation by officer.—A notary, in taking a married woman's acknowledgment to a deed of the homestead, held not compelled to explain to her another contemporaneous instrument by her husband. V. Bonham, 19 T. 456, and 460a W. 203.

Where a deed executed by a married woman has been lost, the fact that the officers explained the deed to her and took her acknowledgment may be proved by circumstances. Texas Land & Cattle Co. v. Walker, 47 C. A. 545, 105 S. W. 545.

Since the statute requires the officer taking the acknowledgment of a married woman to explain the instrument to her privyly, a failure to do so renders the instrument void, though she in fact fully understood it. Stringfield v. Bresalen, 54 C. A. 1, 117 S. W. 204.

If deeds were correctly read to a wife so that she understood them while her husband was present, it was not necessary to reread the deeds to her, though the notary must explain the deeds and the acknowledgments fully, so that she could fairly understand the contents, and this in the husband's absence. Evart v. Dalrymple (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 223.

An instruction that the notary must explain to a wife executing a deed out of the presence and hearing of her husband "all the contents of the deed" sufficiently complies with the law requiring the notary to "fully" explain the same to her. Id.

Officer taking acknowledgment of married woman held required to divulge fraud known to the officer. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

This article is satisfied by full explanation of the instrument being executed, and does not require the officer to make a full investigation of the facts and circumstances attending its execution. Id.

Privy and apart.—Acknowledgment of wife to deed of separate property is not vitiated by mere presence of the grantee at her privy examination. Tippett v. Brooks, 46 T. 556, 67 S. W. 496, 512.

Failure of married woman where acknowledgment is defective or procured by fraud.

The fraud of the husband in obtaining his wife's signature to a deed, or the failure of the officer taking her acknowledgment to explain it to her, will not avoid the deed, which appears to be properly executed and acknowledged, in the absence of testimony.

Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 623. See Cole v. Bammel, 62 T. 108.

To estop a married woman from asserting her rights to land conveyed by her in a manner unauthorized by law, it is essential to prove that she should have been guilty of some positive act of fraud, or else of some act of concealment or suppression which, in law, would be equivalent thereto. Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 623.

A certificate obtained by fraud or force, or making a false recital, may be avoided, if the party showing these facts, before payment of the purchase-money. Stallings v. Hulum, 79 T. 422, 18 S. W. 677.

A married woman whose acknowledgment to a deed conveying land is defective is estopped by this recital of the vendor's lien and receipt of the purchase-money by her. Morris v. Turner, 5 C. A. 708, 24 S. W. 959.

If execution of a deed by a married woman was procured by fraud, she might attack it, though it had been lawfully delivered, the same as if possession of it had been obtained and record of it by fraud, so that, in such case, question of delivery is immaterial. Stringfellow v. Braselton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 937.

Where, in an action to set aside deeds because of land fraudulently Included, the proper execution of the deeds was not questioned, plaintiffs were not required to allege that the notary who took the acknowledgments, through fraud or imposition, failed to explain the deeds to them. Oar v. Davis, 105 T. 479, 151 S. W. 794.

Authority to take.-See Art. 6797 et seq. and notes.
Certificate-Requisites and sufficiency.—See notes under Art. 6805.
Conveyance of separate property.—See Art. 1114.
Conveyance of homestead.—See Art. 1116.

Art. 6803. [4619] Certificate of officer.—Any officer taking the acknowledgment of a deed, or other instrument of writing, must place thereon his official certificate, signed by him and given under his seal of office, substantially in form as hereinafter prescribed.

Deed entitled to record, though defectively acknowledged as to one party. Rork v. Shields, 16 C. A. 640, 43 S. W. 1032.

The record of a deed where the certificate of acknowledgment is fatally defective is a nullity. Wanza v. Trapp (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 878.

A deed not to be recorded unless it has placed thereon or attached thereto the certificate of acknowledgment in compliance with the law. Hughes v. Wright & Vaughan (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 526.

Conclusiveness and Impediment of certificate.—When the certificate of the privy examination of a married woman is due form, it is conclusive as to the facts stated therein, in absence of evidence of fraud, to which the person claiming under the instrument was a party, or had knowledge of before the payment of money thereon. Hartley v. Frosh, 6 T. 209, 56 Am. Dec. 772; Shelby v. Hurtis, 18 T. 644; Pool v. Chase, 46 T. 207; Kocourek v. Marsk, 54 T. 201, 38 Am. Rep. 623; Waitte v. Weaver, 57 T. 549; Davis v. Kennedy, 58 T. 517; Pierce v. Fort, 60 T. 464; Stringer v. Swenson, 63 T. 7; McDannell v. Horrell, 1 U. C. 651; T. L. & L. Co. v. Blalock, 76 T. 85, 18 S. W. 12; Gray v. Shelby, 83 T. 405, 18 S. W. 899; Bryant v. Grand Lodge Sons of Hermann (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 714.

A recital in an acknowledgment of a deed executed by a firm as attorneys for the grantor, that the person acknowledging the deed is a member of the firm, is sufficient evidence of the fact. McCulloch County Land & Cattle Co. v. Whitefort, 21 C. A. 314, 60 S. W. 1042.

In trespass to try title to land, held, that the inserting of the description of the property in the instrument after the name had been signed, sealed, and acknowledged did not render the recording thereof inoperative as against subsequent purchasers, third parties being precluded from questioning the notarial certificate. Henke v. Stacy, 25 C. A. 372, 61 S. W. 599.

That grantors may attack recitals in certificates of acknowledgment. It is necessary to show that the grantees had notice of the fraud of the notary and of his failure to properly take the acknowledgments. Evart v. Dalrymple (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 223.

To impair facts stated in an acknowledged officer's certificate, it is not essential that fraud or collusion between him and the person perpetrating the fraud be alleged. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

A certificate which recites that she is the wife of a person named may be contradicted by the parol evidence of such person that the woman is not his wife. Dunn v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 311.

Where, in an action to set aside deeds executed by married women on the ground that the defendant, their stepfather, had fraudulently included therein a 100-acre tract not agreed to and descibed in him had that confidence in the deeds without reading them or discovering the fraud, the proper execution of the deeds was not questioned, it was not necessary for the petition to allege that the notary, through fraud or imposition, failed to explain the deeds to them; the rule that the notary's

Art. 6804. [4620] Form of certificate of acknowledgment.—The form of an ordinary certificate of acknowledgment must be substantially as follows:

"The State of

"County of

"Before me [here insert the name and character of the officer] on this day personally appeared [person's name], known to me (or proved to me on the oath of [other person's name]) to be the person whose name is subscribed to the foregoing instrument, and acknowledged to me that he executed the same for the purposes and consideration therein expressed.

"Given under my hand and seal of office this [day] of  , A. D.  .

Certificate—Requisites and sufficiency.—In general.—The act of February, 1840, required the officer to certify that such acknowledgment of the execution of the instrument was made by the grantor. 4th Cong., sec. 5, p. 153. A certificate, formal in other respects, which declares that the party whose name appears to the deed to which the certificate is attached appeared "and acknowledged that [signature] had signed, sealed and delivered the same, is not sufficient. Huff v. Webb, 64 T. 284.

As to form of certificate, see Farrell v. Palestine Loan Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 81. A certificate of acknowledgment to a deed held sufficient. Hays v. Tilson, 18 C. A. 610, 46 S. W. 479.

Pasted to deed.—A certificate of acknowledgment written on a piece of paper separate from the deed, and pasted to it, is in compliance with the statute. Schramm v. Gentry, 63 T. 563.

Venue.—The certificate of the notary did not show the county or state on the record. It is presumed that it was shown by the seal. Stephens v. Moti, 81 T. 115, 15 S. W. 751.

A certificate is not defective in not showing in what county the officer acted and was authorized to act. Chamberlain v. Pybas, 81 T. 511, 17 S. W. 60.

Date.—A certificate of acknowledgment attached to a deed, but without date, is sufficient. Webb v. Huff, 61 T. 677.

Recitals as to authority of officer.—The official character of the officer who makes the certificate must be shown in the body or appended to the signature. Holliday v. Cromwell, 26 T. 188; Ballard v. Perry, 58 T. 347; Brown v. Moore, 58 T. 645; McKellar v. Peterson, 59 T. 381; Temple v. Irwin, 46 T. 667; Titus v. Johnson, 56 T. 234; Morton v. Lowell, 66 T. 643-647; Coekey v. Hendricks, 66 T. 676, 2 S. W. 47; Railway Co. v. Carter, 5 C. A. 676, 24 S. W. 1083; Settegast v. Charpeot (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 580.

Other parts of the deed may be examined to show that the person making the certificate was the proper one to authenticate deeds. It is not material that the certificate states that the deed was "assigned" by the grantor instead of "signed." Broussard v. Dull, 3 C. A. 59, 21 S. W. 937.

Official character of officer taking acknowledgment of deed held to be sufficiently shown in certificate. Riviere v. Wilkins, 31 C. A. 454, 72 S. W. 608.

A certificate of acknowledgment of a deed held to sufficiently show that the person taking it was a notary public, so as to justify the admission in evidence of a certified copy of the deed. Williams v. Cessna, 43 C. A. 315, 95 S. W. 1196.

Abbreviations following the name of an officer taking an acknowledgment held to sufficiently disclose the official character of the officer. Best v. Kirkendall (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 932.

Signature and seal.—See Equitable Mortgage Co. v. Kempner, 84 T. 103, 19 S. W. 388.

A notary's certificate of probate of a deed for record is defective if not authenticated by his seal. Ballard v. Perry, 28 T. 347.

The registration in 1855 of a deed authenticated in 1838 by the county clerk without the seal is valid. Waters v. Spofford, 65 T. 118.

Matters to be certified.—Under the act of May 12, 1846, a certificate of acknowledgment was sufficient though proof of the identity of the grantor was not inquired thereon. Monroe v. Arledge, 23 T. 479; Watkins v. Hall, 57 T. 3; Mullins v. Weaver, 57 T. 6; Sowers v. Peterson, 59 T. 216.

The officer in his certificate, given under the statute of 1846, stated that the grantor appeared before him in person, and that "he was made known to him." Held, that the failure to indorse the proof of identity on the deed did not vitiate the record. Sowers v. Peterson, 59 T. 216.

A certificate which states "that the grantor was personally known to him, and that he declared to him that he had executed the deed," is a substantial compliance with the statute. Schramm v. Gentry, 63 T. 663.
A certificate that "this day personally appeared Jacob Presley, to be the person whose name is on the foregoing instrument and acknowledged," etc., is fatally defective. McKie v. Anderson, 78 T. 207, 14 S. W. 576; Frost v. Erath Cattle Co., 81 T. 510, 17 S. W. 52, 26 Am. St. Rep. 831.

A certificate in other respects sufficient stating that the grantor is "well known," etc., is sufficient. Gray v. Kaufman, 82 T. 65, 17 S. W. 615.

A certificate of acknowledgment to a deed recited: "Personally appeared J. T. B., tax collector of said county, to me well known, and acknowledged," etc. "J. T. B., tax collector of C. county," etc., is a substantial compliance with the statute in the form of the certificate. Schleicher v. Gatlin, 85 S. 270, 20 S. W. 120.

A certificate of acknowledgment prior to the act of 1863 was not required to show that the grantor was known to the officer. Driscoll v. Morris, 2 C. A. 607, 21 S. W. 639; Hill v. Smith, 6 C. A. 373, 25 S. W. 1979.

A certificate of acknowledgment held insufficient in failing to state that the grantor acknowledged the deed. Heintz v. O'Donnell, 17 C. A. 21, 42 S. W. 797.

A certificate of acknowledgment to a deed which recites that before the officer personally appeared or was known and acknowledged that he signed and delivered the foregoing transfer for the purposes and considerations therein stated" is a sufficient compliance with the law. Hayes v. Tilson, 18 C. A. 610, 46 S. W. 479.

A certificate of acknowledgment reciting that the officer knew the grantor by "introduction [by the grantee]") held not to invalidate the acknowledgment. Lindley v. Lindley, 92 T. 446, 49 S. W. 573.

An acknowledgment reading, "Before me  personally appeared (the grantor) known to me by introduction by (the grantee) to be the person whose signature is subscribed," etc., is not invalid because of the words "by introduction by (the grantee)." Id.

When the officer has determined upon the evidence presented to him, that he identifies the person in question as being the same that executed the instrument under consideration, and when, according to law, the certificate must be held, unles it shows upon its face that in fact the statement of such knowledge is untrue. Id.

An acknowledgment reciting that the grantor is known to the officer taking the acknowledgment, by introduction, held sufficient. Lindley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 169.

An acknowledgment that states that the vice-president and secretary of a corporation who executed a deed, were well known to the officer taking the acknowledgment and that each acknowledged that he executed the deed, is a substantial compliance with the statute. Zimpleman v. Stamps, 21 C. A. 129, 61 S. W. 341.

A certificate of acknowledgment, stating that I. and M., by their attorney in fact, T., being known to the officer to be the persons whose names were subscribed to the preceding deed, personally appeared before the officer and acknowledged that they executed the same for the purposes and consideration therein expressed, was insufficient to authorize a recording of the deed, and made it inadmissible in evidence as a recorded instrument. Christy v. Romero (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 516.

"Executed for purposes, etc., therein expressed."—In the authentication of a deed under the act of May 13, 1846, the word "consideration" was omitted. The omission held to be immaterial. Monroe v. Arledge, 23 T. 478.

The failure of the officer to certify that the grantor executed the deed for the pur­ poses expressed therein is immaterial. Sowers v. Peterson, 59 T. 219; Butler v. Brown, 77 T. 342, 14 S. W. 136; Stephens v. Motl, 81 T. 115, 16 S. W. 721.

The omission from a certificate of acknowledgment to a deed of a recital that it was executed for the purposes and consideration therein expressed is not a fatal defect. Arlo­ va v. Newman, 51 C. A. 617, 113 S. W. 187.

Names of parties.—That the officer taking the acknowledgment to a deed by Jasper Brown, and signed J. M., certified that James M. acknowledged it, will not vitil­ ate the deed, its execution and the identity of the grantor being otherwise proved. Cheek v. Herndon, 82 T. 146, 17 S. W. 763.

When more than one of the makers appears to acknowledge a deed, a certificate that he acknowledged, "that he executed it," is void for uncertainty. Threadgill v. Bickerstaff, 7 C. A. 406, 26 S. W. 739. See McKie v. Anderson, 78 T. 207, 14 S. W. 576; Davidson v. Wallingford, 88 T. 619, 25 S. W. 1030.

Omission of "by" from "they held not to invalidate acknowledgment. Montgomery v. Hornberger, 16 C. A. 28, 40 S. W. 628.

A certificate of acknowledgment of a deed, stating that, "Came R., by his attorney, J., the grantor, with whom I am acquainted, and acknowledged that he signed, sealed, and delivered the foregoing instrument," was not void for uncertainty. Ferguson v. Ricketts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 975.

A certificate of acknowledgment, stating that the grantors (naming them separately) appeared before the notary and acknowledged that "he" executed the instrument, etc., is inadmissible. Kei v. Sholars, 41 C. A. 154, 90 S. W. 357.

Where two persons execute a deed and the officer in making his certificate of ac­ knowledge says that "he" acknowledged, etc., without making it plain that each acknowledged, etc., the certificate is defective and the registration of the deed a nullity. Hughes v. Wright & Vaughan (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 358.

Where there was no issue as to the identity of a person who executed and acknowl­ edged an instrument, the error of the notary in writing both in the signature to the instrument and in the certificate of acknowledgment an incorrect name of the person was immaterial. Motl v. Presley, 49 C. A. 256, 108 S. W. 105.

Attestation clause.—A certificate was signed by the notary officially, but did not have the attestation clause, "Given under my hand and seal of office," and date of acknowledgment. It was held that the omission was immaterial. Webb v. Huff, 61 T. 677.

Presumption from lapse of time.—See notes under Art. 3957, Rule 12.

Sufficiency of certificate of acknowledgment by corporation.—A deed purporting to convey title to land by a national bank to which was signed the corporation name, with the bank seal affixed, by J. E., president, and R. P. A., cashier, had affixed thereto the following certificate of acknowledgment: This day personally appeared J. E., president of said First National Bank of the city of Dallas, and R. P. A., cashier of said bank, both of whom are to me well known, and severally acknowledged that they executed the above and foregoing instrument for the purposes and considerations therein contained, signed by the officer and authenticated with his seal. Held to be in compliance with the statute (Art. 1173). Muller v. Boone, 63 T. 91.

Corporation can convey lands, how.—See Art. 1173.

Art. 6805. [4621] Form of acknowledgment by a married woman.

—The certificate of acknowledgment of a married woman must be substantially in the following form:

"The State of __________.

"County of ________._

"Before me, _______ [here insert the name and character of the officer] on this day personally appeared ———, wife of ———, known to me (or proved to me on the oath of ———) to be the person whose name is subscribed to the foregoing instrument, and having been examined by me privily and apart from her husband, and having the same fully explained to her, she, the said ———, acknowledged such instrument to be her act and deed, and declared that she had willingly signed the same for the purposes and consideration therein expressed, and that she did not wish to retract it.

"Given under my hand and seal of office this _______ day of _______, A. D. _______.

[Seal] _______."

[Id. P. D. 1003.]

Signature and seal.—In the authentication of a deed by a married woman, acknowledgment of October 25, 1846, the word "seal" before the words "of office," in the authentication clause, was omitted. The officer testified that the acknowledgment was taken by him, and the words were inadvertently omitted in the certificate. Held, that the omission was immaterial. Nichols v. Stewart, 16 T. 226.

An acknowledgment of a married woman before a notary public was made in April, 1891. The certificate was regular in every respect, except that the seal of the county court was used instead of the notarial seal. Held, that the certificate was a nullity. McKellar v. Pock, 39 T. 381.

Necessity of certificate.—Without a proper certificate of a married woman's acknowledgment to a deed showing that the provisions of the statute with regard to such conveyance were complied with, it was utterly void. Kimmey v. Abney (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 886.

Matters which must be certified.—That she personally appeared.—A certificate of the acknowledgment of a married woman failing to state that she appeared in person, that she was the same party who signed the instrument, and that she was the wife of the one who signed with her, is fatally defective. Beltel v. Wagner, 11 C. A. 355, 23 S. W. 346; Hayden v. Moffatt, 74 T. 650, 12 S. W. 820, 15 Am. St. Rep. 866; McKie v. Anderson, 78 T. 207, 14 S. W. 576; Frost v. Cattle Co., 61 T. 510, 17 S. W. 52, 26 Am. St. Rep. 831; Watkins v. Hall, 57 T. 1. — Identity.—The certificate is insufficient if it omits to state that she was known to the officer, or made known, or that she executed it for the purposes and consideration therein stated. Hurst v. Finley, 22 C. A. 605, 55 S. W. 388.

A certificate is sufficient, where it sufficiently identifies her as the wife of the grantor, though her given name is omitted. Noel v. Clark, 25 C. A. 136, 60 S. W. 356.

A deed by D. M. M. and his wife, L. A. M., held not invalidated because the acknowledgment described her as "L. A. M., wife of _______." Smith v. Burgher (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 76.

Examined privily and apart.—A certificate which stated that she had been examined "separately" instead of "privily" was cured by the act of July 28, 1876, validating defective certificates of acknowledgment. McDannell v. Horrell, 1 U. C. 621.

A statement that she was examined and interrogated by me touching the same is insufficient. Runge v. Sablin (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 586.

Certificate held to show that separate examination of wife was conducted by notary. Johnson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1065.

The privacy examination and acknowledgment are absolutely essential to the passing of title to land and the only evidence thereof is the certificate of the officer stating them or the judgment of a court correcting such certificate in accordance with Arts. 6852-6854, so as to show them. Veeder v. Gilmer, 103 T. 485, 129 S. W. 695.

Where a wife's acknowledgment of a deed of the homestead was not taken privily and apart, her husband present and cognizant of the fact, the deed was void as against the wife. De West v. Barthelew (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 86.

A certificate, reciting that grantors, who were married women, having been made acquainted with the contents of the instrument, acknowledged, on examination apart from their husbands, that they executed the same freely and voluntarily and did not wish to retract, is sufficient; the provision for a privy examination not meaning that no person other than the officer shall be present. W. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 241.
EXPLANATION.—A certificate of acknowledgment which failed to show that a deed had been fully explained to a married woman by the officer is fatally defective.

Certificate held to show that contents of a deed were fully explained to grantor.

It is the duty of an officer to inform himself of the details of the transaction and fully explain them to her. It is not enough that the officer state what the contents of the instrument are. Blume v. White (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1068, 1069.

While it is ordinarily sufficient for an officer to explain to her the instrument which he is called upon to execute, if the officer has knowledge of any fraud about to be perpetrated by the parties in connection with the instrument, it is his duty to divulge the same to her. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 626.

Acknowledgment.—Where the certificate of the officer omitted to state that she acknowledged the instrument to be “her act and deed,” but showed that she had “willingly signed it and wished not to retract it,” it was held to be sufficient. Thompson v. Johnson, 94 T. 948, 19 S. W. 784.

A certificate of acknowledgment that failed to show that the party acknowledged the deed is insufficient. Heintz v. O’Donnell, 17 C. A. 21, 42 S. W. 797.

Willingly signed, etc.—If the certificate of acknowledgment fails to show that a married woman “willingly” (or freely) signed the deed it is fatally defective. Tieman v. Cobb, 35 C. A. 288, 80 S. W. 251.

“Did not wish to retract it.”—The words that “she did not wish to retract it” are supplied by the equivalent words, “that she voluntarily assents thereto.” Norton v. Diamond, 32 S. W. 142, 18 S. W. 430.

The certificate must state that she did not wish to retract. Murphy v. Reynaud, 2 C. A. 476, 21 S. W. 991; Fitzgerald v. Turner, 43 T. 79; Ryan v. Maxey, 43 T. 192; Railway Co. v. Durrett, 57 T. 43; Railway Co. v. Donahoo, 59 T. 128; Randall v. Railway Co., 63 T. 686.

Married woman’s acknowledgment held not invalidated by omission of word “it” after the statement that she “wished not to retract.” Montgomery v. Hornberger, 16 C. A. 46, 40 S. W. 628.

Where a married woman, in her acknowledgment to a deed, consented that it might be recorded, a statement that she did not wish to retract the deed held unnecessary. Masterson v. Harris, 37 C. A. 145, 83 S. W. 428.

Where the certificate of acknowledgment of a married woman of a deed of her separate property does not state that after executing it she declared “she did not wish to retract it” in compliance with the law then in force (Paschal’s Dig. art. 1008), the deed is invalid, although the price was paid. March v. Spivy (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 528.

False acknowledgment of a deed to state that she did not wish to retract will not defeat a suit by her remote grantee against a mere intruder, where she lived near the land, and for over 50 years neither she nor her heirs ever questioned the deed. Spivy v. March, 105 T. 473, 151 S. W. 1037, 45 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1109.

Need not state that it was shown to her.—The law does not require that the certificate of officers should state that the instrument was shown the married woman.

Breneman v. Mayer, 24 C. A. 164, 58 S. W. 723.

Errors and defects.—A notary cannot correct a certificate of the acknowledgment of a married woman after the instrument has once passed from his possession. The right to amend in a proper proceeding is barred in four years. Stone v. Sledge (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 697.

Where the acknowledgment of a deed by a married woman did not contain a statement “she did not wish to retract it,” it was properly amended by a subsequent acknowledgment in due form. Masterson v. Harris, 37 C. A. 145, 83 S. W. 428.

A deed from a married woman not bearing a proper certificate of acknowledgment is void if the certificate speaks the whole truth correctly, but it is not if the acknowledgment was properly taken and incorrectly certified. Veeder v. Gilmer, 47 C. A. 444, 106 S. W. 331.

Where a married woman’s signature to a deed was not essential to a conveyance of the land, an objection to the certificate of her acknowledgment held immaterial. Ariola v. Newman, 51 C. A. 617, 113 S. W. 157.

ACTION TO CORRECT ERROR.—See Art. 6852.

Certificates held sufficient.—A certificate attached to a deed of a married woman read as follows: Personally appeared before me, etc., “W. B., party to a deed bearing date November 22, 1859, and acknowledged that he, the said B., signed the said deed for the purposes and considerations therein set forth and expressed; and E. B., wife of the said B., also a party to said deed, whose signature, with her mark to the same, being by me examined privately and apart from that of her husband, and having the said deed fully explained to her, said Ellen Belcher, acknowledged that she signed the said deed without any bribe, threat or compulsion from that of her husband, and that she does not wish to retract the same. Given under my hand,” etc. Held, that the certificate, though very informal, was sufficient. Belcher v. Weaver, 46 T. 293, 26 Am. Rep. 267.

A certificate to the privy examination and acknowledgment of a married woman read as follows: Before me, etc., “on this 11th day of April, 1872, personally came and appeared Caroline Solyer and Edward Solyer her husband, and Caroline L. Solyer, and severally acknowledged that they had executed and delivered the foregoing conveyance as their voluntary act and deed, for the purposes and considerations therein expressed, and the said Caroline L. Solyer having been examined by me privily and apart from her said husband, and having the same explained to her, she, the said Caroline L. Solyer, declared that she had willingly signed, sealed and delivered the same, and that she wished not to retract it.” Given, etc. Held, sufficient. Soyer v. Romanet, 52 T. 667.

Certificate held sufficient under the act of April, 1846, where the words “sealed and delivered” were omitted. Mullins v. Weaver, 57 T. 5.
The certificate of the privy examination of a married woman read as follows: Before me, etc., "personally appeared J. P. T. and S. T., his wife, who are to me well known, and acknowledged that they signed, sealed, executed and delivered the foregoing deed for the purposes and considerations therein specified; and the said S. T. having been examined by me separate and apart from her said husband, and after having the contents of the deed fully explained to her by me, she acknowledged that she signed the same of her own free will and accord, without the fear, force or persuasion of her husband, and that she wished not to retract it. Witness," etc. It was objected that the certificate failed to show that she had acknowledged the deed to be her act; that it failed to show the delivery of the deed by Mrs. T., or a declaration by the officer that said deed was delivered by her; and that it failed to show any privy examination of Mrs. T. by the officer. The objections were overruled. Coombes v. Thompson, 57 T. 723.

A certificate reciting "that the said E. J. S., after being examined by me privately and apart from her said husband, and having said instrument fully explained to her, she acknowledged it to be her own free act and deed and that she did not wish to retract it," held sufficient. Clark v. Groce, 16 C. A. 453, 41 S. W. 668; Johnson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1055; Arnall v. Newcomb, 29 C. A. 521, 69 S. W. 92; Milby v. Hester (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 178; W. D. Cleveland & Sons v. Smith, 156 S. W. 247.

Certificates held insufficient.—The certificate by a notary public, apparently made under the grantor, a married woman, appeared before him, "and acknowledged herself party to the annexed deed of trust, and, being examined and apart from her husband, acknowledged that she signed, sealed and delivered the same for the purposes and considerations therein expressed, and that she wished not to retract it." Held that the certificate was fatally defective. Rice v. Pecock, 37 T. 359.

Certificates held defective.—McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670; Kopke v. Votaw, 56 S. W. 15. A married woman's deed containing an acknowledgment indicating that the officer did not comply with the statute is void. Holland v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 882.

Conclusiveness of certificate.—See Art. 6803.

Certificate—Requisites and sufficiency.—See notes under Art. 6804.

Art. 6806. [4622] Proof of instrument by witness.—The proof of any instrument of writing for the purpose of being recorded shall be by one or more of the subscribing witnesses personally appearing before some officer authorized to take such proof, and stating on oath that he or they saw the grantor or person who executed such instrument subscribe the same, or that the grantor or person who executed such instrument of writing acknowledged in his or their presence that he had executed the same for the purposes and consideration therein stated, and that he or they had signed the same as witnesses at the request of the grantor or person who executed such instrument; and the officer taking such proof shall make a certificate thereof, sign and seal the same with his official seal. [Act May 12, 1846, sec. 8. P. D. 5008.]

Historical.—The act of December 20, 1836, required proof to be made by one of the witnesses of the number required by law who "shall swear to the signature of the signer, which shall be certified by the recorder, and form part of the record." 1st Cong., sec. 55, p. 145.

The act of December 20, 1836, contained the following sections:

Sec. 37. "Any person who owns or claims land of any description, by deed, lien or any other color of title, shall, within twelve months from the date of April next, have the same proven in open court, and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court in which said land is situated; but if a tract of land lies on the county line, the title may be recorded in the county in which part of said land lies." This section was repealed by the act of May 10, 1838. 2d Cong., p. 146.

Sec. 38. "All titles, liens, mortgages or other color of title, before they can be admitted upon record, must be proven by at least two subscribing witnesses if living in the county and, if not so living in the county, then the handwriting shall be proven either before some county judge or before the clerk of the county court in whose office such record is proposed to be made; and in all cases the certificate of any county judge that the said witness appeared before him and acknowledged his signature, or that the handwriting of the same was duly proven, shall be sufficient evidence to authorize the clerk of the county court to enter such title, lien, mortgage or other color of title upon record." Act Dec. 20, 1836; 1st Cong., § 38, p. 148.

There is an apparent conflict between the thirty-fifth and thirty-eighth sections of the act of May 10, 1838. Section 35 requires proof by the appearance of the signer by one of the witnesses of the number required by law, but such witness is not specifically described as a subscribing witness. Section 38 requires proof by two subscribing witnesses, if living in the county, or the handwriting of the signer, or of one of the subscribing witnesses, as before the Paschal v. Perez, 7 T. 348.

By the act of January 9, 1839, proof was made by one of the subscribing witnesses who shall swear to the signature of the signer. 3d Cong., p. 47.

Under the act of January 15, 1840, a conveyance of personal property for a consideration not deemed valuable in law, where possession does not remain with the donee, must be proven for record by two or more witnesses. 4th Cong., p. 23. This provision of the state of frauds was virtually repealed by the act of February 5, 1841, and May 13,

Under the act of February 5, March 17, 1841, the proof within the republic could be made by a subscribing witness. A deed, etc., executed abroad could be proved by two subscribers in Texas. 6th Cong., sec. 21, p. 183. A bond dated September 17, 1836, witnessed by three subscribing witnesses, one of whom made his mark, was proven for record in September, 1846, by the witness who made his mark, who made oath that "to the best of his knowledge and belief he signed the same as a witness, and that J. Robbins (the obligor) acknowledged that he signed it for the purposes therein expressed." Held properly authenticated. Stramler v. Coe, 15 T. 211.

By the act of May 12, June 13, 1846, the proof of an instrument by a witness is the same as prescribed in this article. 1st Leg., sec. 5, p. 236. A bond for title to land in Texas, with two subscribing witnesses thereto, was executed in Arkansas, and its execution acknowledged before the presiding judge of a county court in that state, who subsequently made oath before a notary public in Texas that it had been executed and acknowledged before him, and that his certificate of such acknowledgment was genuine.
Held, that in absence of evidence of the death of the subscribing witnesses, the execution of the instrument was not properly proven under the act of May 12, 1846, to admit it to record. Craddock v. Merrill, 2 T. 494.

Need not have signed at request of grantor, when.—Where the witness states that he saw the grantor subscribe the same, he is not required to show that he signed the same as a witness at the request of the grantor; and the use of the word "execute" instead of "subscribe" is not material. Dorn v. Best, 15 T. 62; Deen v. Wills, 21 T. 642; Downs v.
Porter, 54 T. 58; Souers v. Peterson, 59 T. 216. In the case last cited it is said: "The present registration law differs materially from all former laws on the subject. It is more rigorous in its requirements, and greater care and accuracy in taking the acknowledgment of deeds are now required than formerly. A stricter rule of construction may therefore, properly be applied to them than would be to deeds executed and recorded under former laws." In the certificate of authentication, under the act of 1846, after the word "known," the words "to me to be the person whose name is subscribed to the forgoing instrument," were not added. Held, the omission was immaterial. Watkins v.
Hall, 57 T. 1.

Where the witness is present and sees the instrument signed, subscribed or executed, and signed as a witness, it is not necessary that he should swear that he signed it at the request of the grantor. Dorn v. Best, 15 T. 62; Deen v. Wills, 21 T. 642; Downs v.
Porter, 54 T. 58; Jones v. Robbins, 74 T. 615, 12 S. W. 824.

Proof by subscribing witnesses.—The oath of a subscribing witness to a deed held insufficient to prove the deed for record. Johnson v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 611.

Certificate—Requisites and sufficiency.—See notes under Art. 6808.

Art. 6807. [4623] Witness must be personally known to officer.—
The proof by a subscribing witness must be by some one personally known to the officer taking the proof to be the person whose name is subscribed to the instrument as a witness, or must be proved by such by the oath of a credible witness, which fact shall be noted in the cericate. [Id. sec. 10. P. D. 5010.]

Art. 6808. [4624] Form of certificate or proof by witness.—The cercificate of the officer, where the execution of the instrument is proved by a witness, must be substantially in the following form:

"The State of —.

"County of ——.

"Before me, [here insert the name and character of the officer], on this day personally appeared ——, known to me (or proved to me on the oath of ——), to be the person whose name is subscribed as a witness to the foregoing instrument of writing, and after being duly sworn by me stated on oath that he saw ——, the grantor or person who executed the foregoing instrument, subscribe the same (or that the grantor or person who executed such instrument of writing acknowledged in his presence that he had executed the same for the purposes and consideration therein expressed), and that he had signed the same as a witness at the request of the grantor [or person who executed the same].

"Given under my hand and seal of office this —— day of ——, A. D. ——.

[Seal]

Certificate—Requisites and sufficiency.—In general.—The act of February, 1840, reads as follows: "The clerks of the several county courts of this republic and their deputies shall be, and they are hereby, authorized and required to admit to record, at any time, In the presence of witnesses thereto, made in the offices of the respective clerks, or upon the certificate of some district judge, or chief justice, or notary public of a county, with the seal of his office hereunto annexed, that such acknowledgment was made, or the execution of the 4415 instrument proven as required above; and any conveyance so recorded shall have the same legal validity in all respects as if it were proven in open court." 4th Cong., sec.

6, p. 153.

A deed executed in Louisiana in 1874 was attested as follows: "In testimony whereof the said parties hereto sign their names, together with me, notary, and the undersigned competent witnesses, and I affix hereto my official seal on this 31st day of March, 1874, the date," etc. This acknowledgment held sufficient. Brown v. Scanlan, 59 T. 222.

The certificate of the officer to the proof by a subscribing witness to a deed, when made under this article, which copies the form of the certificate in the alternative, as given in the statute, leaving it uncertain whether the witness saw the grantor sign the instrument, or heard him acknowledge his signature, is insufficient to prove the execution of the instrument. Harvey v. Cummings, 69 T. 599, 5 S. W. 518; Riley v. Pool, 5 C.
A. 346, 24 S. W. 85.

--- Historical.---The act of December 20, 1836, required the proof or acknowledgment to "be certified by the recorder and form part of the record." 1st Cong., sec. 35, p. 148;
P. D. 4973.

The act of January 19, 1839, directed that "a certificate of the proof or acknowledgment shall be made upon such instrument by the proper officer, and become a part of the record." 3d Cong., p. 47; P. D. 4974.

--- "For the purposes therein expressed."---The failure of the officer to certify that the grantor executed the deed for the purposes expressed therein does not affect the legal-478.

--- Identity of person acknowledging.---The certificate of the officer identified the person who proved the deed as the same person who signed it as a witness, and a discrepancy in the middle initial of the name of the witness was held immaterial. Page v.
Arnim, 29 T. 55.

As to sufficient identification of person making the acknowledgment. Moses v. Dibrell,
2 C. A. 457, 21 S. W. 414.

A deed was insufficiently proved by a subscribing witness, under Art. 6806, where the certificate did not state that such person was known to the officer, as required by such article and Art. 6807. Christie v. Romero (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 816.

Certificate---Requisites and sufficiency.---See notes under Arts. 6804 and 6805.

Art. 6809. [4625] Handwriting may be proved, when.---The execution of an instrument may be established for record by proof of the handwriting of the grantor and of at least one of the subscribing witnesses in the following cases:
1. When the grantor and all the subscribing witnesses are dead.
2. When the grantor and all the subscribing witnesses are non-residents of this state.
3. When the place of their residence is unknown to the party desiring the proof, and can not be ascertained.
4. When the subscribing witnesses have been convicted of felony, or have become of unsound mind, or have otherwise become incompotent to testify.
5. When all the subscribing witnesses to an instrument are dead or are non-residents of this state, or when their residence is unknown, or when they are incompetent to testify, and the grantor in such instrument refuses to acknowledge the execution of the same for record.

See this case for the mode by which a deed can be proven for record where the subscribing witnesses are dead. Vasquez v. Texas Loan Agency (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 941.

Grantee competent witness of handwriting.---On the 8th of July, 1854, the grantee in a deed made the affidavit required by statute to admit the deed to record upon proof of the handwriting of the subscribing witness. Held, that the grantee was competent to make the affidavit. Waters v. Spofford, 58 T. 115.

Art. 6810. [4626] Evidence must prove what.---The evidence taken under the preceding article must satisfactorily prove to the officer the following facts:
1. The existence of one or more of the conditions mentioned therein; and,
2. That the witness testifying knew the person whose name purports to be subscribed to the instrument as a party, and is well acquainted with his signature, and that it is genuine; and,
3. That the witness testifying personally knew the person who subscribed the instrument as a witness, and is well acquainted with his signature, and that it is genuine; and,
4. The place of residence of the witness testifying.

Variance in names.---A deed dated February 10, 1844, was signed by the maker, Charles M. Gould, and by the subscribing witnesses, D. M. Marange and A. G. Richardson. On the 8th of July, 1854, affidavit was made that Henry G. Richardson, one of the subscrib-

Art. 6811. [4627] Proof, how made when grantor made his mark.
—When the grantor or person who executed the instrument signed the same by making his mark, and when also any one or more of the conditions mentioned in article 6809 exists, the execution of any such instrument may be established by proof of the handwriting of two subscribing witnesses and of the place of residence of such witnesses testifying. [Act March 6, 1863, sec. 1. P. D. 5009.]

See McClintic v. Midland Grocery & Dry Goods Co. (Sup.) 154 S. W. 1157.

Art. 6812. [4628] Proofs, how made and certified.—The proof mentioned in the three preceding articles must be made by the deposition or affidavit of two or more disinterested persons in writing; and the officer taking such proof shall make a certificate thereof, and sign and seal the same with his official seal; which proofs and certificate shall be attached to such instrument. [Id. P. D. 5009.]

Art. 6813. [4629] Officers are authorized to administer oath, etc.
—Officers authorized to take the proof of instruments of writing under the provisions of this chapter are also authorized in such proceedings—
1. To administer oaths or affirmations.
2. To employ and swear interpreters.
3. To issue subpœnas.
4. To punish for contempt as hereinafter provided.

Art. 6814. [4630] Subpœna shall issue when.—Upon the sworn application of any person interested in the proof of any instrument required or permitted by law to be recorded, stating that any witness to the instrument refuses to appear and testify touching the execution thereof, and that such instrument can not be proved without his evidence, any officer authorized to take the proof of said instrument shall issue a subpœna requiring such witness to appear and testify before such officer touching the execution of such instrument. [Act Feb. 9, 1860, sec. 1. P. D. 5020.]

—When such witness shall fail to appear in obedience to such subpœna, said officer shall have the same power to enforce his attendance and to compel his answers on oath touching the execution of such instrument as a judge of the district court has to compel the attendance and answers of witnesses; provided, that an attachment shall in no case issue without the same compensation is made or tendered to each witness as is allowed to witnesses in other cases; and provided, further, that no witness shall be required to go beyond the limits of the county of his residence, unless he shall, for the time being, be found in the county where the execution of such instrument is sought to be proved for registration.

Art. 6816. [4632] Statement of acknowledgment, etc., to be recorded.—All officers authorized or permitted by law to take the acknowledgment or proof of any deed, bond, mortgage, bill of sale, or any other written instrument required or permitted by law to be placed on record shall procure a well-bound book, in which they shall enter and record a short statement of each acknowledgment or proof taken by them, which statement shall be by them signed officially. [Act April 28, 1874, p. 155, sec. 1. P. D. 7418B.]

Art. 6817. [4633] What the statement for record shall contain.—Such statement shall recite the true date on which such acknowledgment or proof was taken, the name of the grantor and grantee of such instrument, its date, if proved by a subscribing witness, the name of the witness, the known or alleged residence of the witness and whether personally known or unknown to the officer; if personally unknown, this fact shall be stated, and by whom such person was introduced to such officer, if by any one, and the known or alleged residence of such person.
[Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 6818. [4634] Statement shall further recite.—Such statement shall also recite, if the instrument is acknowledged by the grantor, his then place of residence, if known to the officer; if unknown, his alleged residence, and whether such grantor is personally known to the officer; if personally unknown, by whom such grantor was introduced, if by any one, and his place of residence. If land is conveyed or charged by the instrument, the name of the original grantee shall be mentioned, and the county where the same is situated. [Id. sec. 1.]

Art. 6819. [4635] The book to be a public record.—The book herein required to be procured and kept, and the statements herein required to be recorded in the same shall be an original public record, and shall be delivered to his successor, and the same shall be open to the inspec­tion and examination of any citizen at all reasonable times. [Id.]

Art. 6820. [4636] Action for damages will lie by person injured.
—Any person injured by the failure, refusal or neglect of any officer whose duty it is to comply with any of the provisions of this chapter shall have a right of action against such officer so failing, refusing or neglecting, before any court of competent jurisdiction, for the recovery of all damages resulting from such neglect, failure or refusal. [Id.]

Contributory negligence.—B. conveyed to R. a tract of land, reciting a consideration of $1,500 "paid and secured" by R. A mortgage was at the same time executed to secure the payment of a note for $1,000, the unpaid purchase money. Both were acknowledged and deposited in the clerk's office on the 16th of May, 1870, the recording fees paid, and the deed was recorded on the same day. The clerk did not keep a file book. The mortgage was not recorded until after July 20, 1870. On the last-named date R. applied to
C. for a loan of $5,000, proposing to secure the same by a deed of trust on the land. The records were examined by C.'s attorney, who saw the deed, but did not see the mortgage or make inquiry for the file book, or for instruments filed but not recorded. B. lived but a short distance from the court-house. R. was compelled to pay off a judgment for the unpaid purchase money. Held, that C. was guilty of contributory negligence in failing to inquire for instruments filed and not recorded, and to make inquiry of B., and could

CHAPTER THREE

INSTRUMENTS AUTHORIZED TO BE RECORDED, AND THE EFFECT OF RECORDING

Art. 6821. Patents and grants may be recorded without proof.
6822. Copies of archives recorded.
6823. What may be recorded.
6824. All sales to be void as to creditors and purchasers unless registered.
6825. Located lands have priority over unrecorded title lands, when.
6826. English language to be used.
6827. Deeds to be recorded where.
6828. Deeds valid, etc., against subsequent creditors from, etc.
6829. Marriage contract valid, when.
6830. Recorder shall record, etc.
6831. Copies from land office to be recorded.

Art. 6822. Judgments to be recorded.
6833. Transfer of judgments to be recorded.
6834. Judgments in justices' courts, how recorded, etc.
6835. Partition to be recorded.
6836. Decrease may be abbreviated.
6837. Suit for land, notice to be filed.
6838. Record of, how made.
6839. Transfer, without notice valid.
6840. Effect of notice.
6841. Titles to chattels, where recorded.
6842. Record of any grant, etc., when notice.

Article 6821. [4637] Patents and grants may be recorded without proof.—Letters patent from the state of Texas, or any grant from the government, executed and authenticated pursuant to existing law, may be recorded without further acknowledgment or proof.

Patents.—See notes under Art. 6824.
Admissibility of recorded instruments in evidence.—See Art. 3700.
4418
Art. 6822. [4638] Copies of archives recorded.—Copies of all deeds, transfers, or any other written evidence of title to land, which have been filed in the general land office, in accordance with law, or copies when the originals remain in the public archives, and were executed in conformity with the laws existing at their dates, duly certified by the officers having lawful custody thereof, shall be admitted to record in the county where such land lies. [Act Jan. 19, 1839, sec. 2. P. D. 4984.]

Application.—By the act of January 19, 1839, copies of all deeds, etc., when the originals remain in the public archives, and were executed in conformity with the laws existing at their dates, duly certified by the proper officers, were admitted to record in the county where made, sec. 3; 3d Cong., sec. 2, p. 47; P. D. 4984. This section is applicable only to copies of instruments which at the date of the act remained in the public archives, which, upon authentication by the proper officers in charge of them, could be recorded; and it did not permit instruments then in private hands to be recorded on the faith of certificates made by officers of the pre-existing government. Lambert v. Weir, 27 T. 359.

Public archives.—See notes under Arts. 82-80, 3694.

Deeds and other instruments of writing which were executed or issued prior to the 2d of March, A. D. 1838, upon stamped paper of the second or third seal, and which deeds or instruments of writing are not original documents in the original land office, or expressly declared by law to be archives of said office, are hereby declared to constitute no part of the archives of said office. Art. 84.

The testimonio or second original of a Spanish title is not a public archive, and its execution must be proven before it is admissible in evidence. Smith v. Townsend, Dal­lam, 569; Houston v. Perry, 5 T. 464; Titus v. Kimbro, 8 T. 210; Wood v. Welder, 42 T. 396; Hutchins v. Bacon, 46 T. 498; State v. Cardinas, 47 T. 250; Houston v. Blythe, 60 T. 506.

Proof of testimonio.—Proof of the handwriting of the commissioner and attesting wit­ness to a testimonio is sufficient. De Leon v. White, 9 T. 598; Paschal v. Perez, 7 T. 348; Edwards v. James, 7 T. 372.

Effect of filing in land office of transfer of land certificate.—The statute does not make the filing in the general land office of the transfer of a land certificate or of land to have the same effect as registration in the proper county, and in the absence of a statute giving such effect to the filing of such a paper in the general land office, such effect cannot be given to it. Lewis v. Johnson, 68 T. 448, 4 S. W. 644.

Art. 6823. [4639] What may be recorded.—The following instruments of writing, which shall have been acknowledged or proved according to law, are authorized to be recorded, viz.: All deeds, mort­gages, conveyances, deeds of trust, bonds for title, covenants, defeasances or other instruments of writing concerning any lands or tenements, or goods and chattels, or movable property of any description. [Act May 12, 1846, sec. 4. P. D. 5004.]

See Gooch v. Addison, 13 C. A. 76, 35 S. W. 83.

What may be recorded—Deeds, conveyances, mortgages, etc.—The act of December 20, 1845, authorized the recording of deeds, conveyances, mortgages and other liens. 1st Cong., sec. 35, p. 148.

The act of January 19, 1839, authorized the recording of deeds, conveyances, mortgages and other liens affecting the titles to land and immovable property situated within the county. 3d Cong., sec. 39, p. 47.

The act of February 5, March 17, 1841, authorized the record of any grant, deed or instrument for the conveyance of real estate, or personal, or both, or for the settlement thereof, in marriage, or separate property or conveyance of the same in mortgage, on trust to use, or on conditions. 5th Cong., sec. 20, p. 163.

By the act of May 12, June 13, 1846, the following instruments could be recorded: Deeds, mortgages, conveyances, deeds of trust, bonds, covenants, defeasances, or other instruments of writing of or concerning any lands or tenements, or goods and chattels, or movable property of any description, judgments and abstracts of judgments; also mar­riage contracts, powers of attorney and official bonds. 1st Leg., secs. 4, 5, 6, p. 236.

An instrument acknowledging an obligation by the maker to transfer land to another, duly acknowledged, may be recorded, whatever its form may be. Chamberlin v. Boon, 74 T. 659, 12 S. W. 797.

Conveyance not under seal.—A conveyance of land not under seal was admissible to record. Miller v. Alexander, 8 T. 36.

Foreign will.—A will conveying or disposing of land in this state having been duly probated according to the laws of any state or territory, an attested copy thereof may be recorded in the same manner as a deed and without further proof. See Art. 7875.

Assignment for benefit of creditors.—An assignment of accounts for the benefit of creditors made August 12, 1852, was not an instrument that could be recorded under the law then in force. Burnham v. Chandler, 15 T. 441.

A deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, made in compliance with the statute, will pass title to the property to the assignee, where the deed was filed for record before the levy of a writ of attachmen, although the writ was issued before such filing. The court say that the validity of the assignment, and its completeness to pass the title to the property, does not depend upon the act of filing the deed for registry. The provisions of the statute are to be construed so far beneficially to the creditors, for whose benefit its provisions are intended, as to give effect to such advantages and benefits as its enactments are intended to confer on them as a class of persons;
Art. 6823 REGISTRATION (Title 118) and so are not to be defeated by a construction that would place it in the power of a single creditor or a few creditors to frustrate them. It would be in fraud of the law of assignments to allow a creditor to issue an attachment before it was practicable, perhaps, for the assignee to file the deed for record. Piggott v. Schram, 64 T. 447.

----- Release of interest in partnership debts.—Quere, as to an instrument releasing an interest in partnership debts, executed in 1859. Pegram v. Owena, 64 T. 416.

----- Assignment of judgment.—See Art. 6833.

Under the act of 1846 an assignment of a judgment by the plaintiff to a third person was not an instrument that could be recorded. Johnson v. Brown, 25 T. Sup. 150.

Abstracts of judgments.—Art. 5610 et seq. authorize the record of abstracts of judgments and of satisfaction thereof.

----- Assignment of vendor's lien notes.—An assignment of vendor's lien notes is an instrument as is required by the registry laws to be recorded in order to be effectual against subsequent purchasers, for valuable consideration without notice. Busch v. Broun (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 685.

----- Liens of mechanics, etc.—See Arts. 5621, 5640, 5663-5671.

----- Chattel mortgages and conditional sales, etc.—See Art. 5664.

----- Brands and trade-marks.—See Arts. 798, 7165, 7728.

Probate proceedings.—See Art. 3217.

Does not validate acknowledgment.—The act does not validate a previous defective acknowledgment. McElvean v. Cryer, 28 S. W. 691, 8 C. A. 437.

How foreign will may be proved.—See Art. 7875.

Art. 6824. [4640] All sales, etc., to be void as to creditors and purchasers, unless registered.—All bargains, sales and other conveyances whatever, of any land, tenements and hereditaments, whether they may be made for passing any estate of freehold of inheritance or for a term of years; and deeds of settlement upon marriage, whether land, money or other personal thing; and all deeds of trust and mortgages shall be void as to all creditors and subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice, unless they shall be acknowledged or proved and filed with the clerk, to be recorded as required by law; but the same shall be void as to the parties and their heirs, and as to all subsequent purchasers, with notice thereof or without valuable consideration, shall nevertheless be valid and binding. [Act Feb. 5, 1840, p. 69, sec. 4. P. D. 4983.]

1. Article not retrospective.
2. Laws do not apply to trusts, etc., arising by operation of law.
3. Parties not within article.
4. "Creditors and purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice."
5. Bonds of bond purchasers.—In general.
6. Mode and form of conveyance.—In general.
7. — Quitclaim.
8. Notice.—In general.
9. — Actual notice.
10. — Effect of notice.
11. — Constructive notice and facts putting on inquiry.
12. — Recitals in conveyance.
13. — Records and facts of which record is notice.
14. — Possession.
15. Consideration.—In general.
16. — Payment of value.

1. Article not retrospective.—This article was enacted in 1887 as an amendment of the act of 1881. It has reference only to the future and does not affect the validity of registrations theretofore made. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 895.
2. Laws do not apply to trusts, etc., arising by operation of law. — An equitable lien, arising by operation of law and independent of a contract, verbal or written, between the parties, such as the vendor's lien, is not within the statute. Senter v. Lambeth, 69 T. 269.

When a debtor held the legal title to property in trust for another, a purchaser at a sheriff's sale under a recorded judgment, with notice of the rights of the custis, but before his purchase, acquires no title as against them. Calvert v. Roche, 59 T. 463.

A creditor who levies upon property held by the husband in trust for his wife cannot be protected as an innocent purchaser since such trust is not within the registration laws. Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111.

The registration laws do not apply to titles by inheritance, as they cannot be placed upon record, and a purchaser is bound to take notice of the relations of the parties through whom his title passes; especially so where all the parties reside in the immediate neighborhood where the conveyances are made. Trammell v. Neal, 1 U. C. 61.

A parcel partition is not affected by the registration laws. Subsequent to such partition a levy of an execution upon lands allotted to others than the defendant in execution.

A bona fide purchaser for value takes land partly with funds belonging to her wards and takes a deed in her own name, a resulting trust is created to the extent of the wards' interest in the purchase money, and a purchaser from the guardian during the wards' minority would not have the lien implied of a subsequent purchaser, so that the lien, if any, does not fall within the registration statute. Hix v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 737.

3. Patents not within article.—Patents are not within the provisions of this article. A patent is notice to the world; the record of it is in the general land office. Evitts v. Trotter, 31 T. 81; Byrne v. Pagan, 18 T. 891.

4. Creditors and purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice.—This article applies only to creditors who have acquired some character of lien upon or interest in the land. Ayres v. Le Compte, 47 T. 440; Le Compte, 47 T. 440; McKamey v. Thorp, 61 T. 648. The equity of the statute can only be appropriated by creditors not charged with notice. Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111; Wright v. Lassiter, 71 T. 640, 10 S. W. 295; Blum Land Co. v. Herbin (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 152; Brown v. Chancellor, 61 T. 437-444.

The subsequent purchasers who are meant are only those the origin of whose title is subsequent to the date of the grantee in the recorded deed, and where a grantor conveyed to his mother who conveyed to another and he to plaintiff, and all the conveyances and registration are recorded, the subsequent conveyance to the mother, but prior to the conveyance to plaintiff, the land was sold on execution against the first grantor, and the sheriff's deed recorded, the registry of the sheriff's deed, is not as against plaintiff who purchased in good faith and for a valuable consideration, notice of the existence of such deed. The defendant claims the right of the first grantor to his creditors and therefore the deed was void, but plaintiff could not be charged with constructive notice of the sheriff's deed (of which he had no actual notice) and then charged with the suggestion of fraud which that deed implied, because this would be to build presumption upon presumption, which the law never allows. White v. Mc­Gregor, 92 T. 656, 56 S. W. 554, 71 Am. St. Rep. 875.

Whether or not a junior mortgagee is to be classed as a creditor and not as a purchaser only, under the law regulating registration of instruments affecting title to lands for any purpose, is a question which admits of doubt under the decisions. Turner v. Cochran, 94 T. 480, 61 S. W. 924.

One claiming as a bona fide purchaser must exhibit a deed to himself and prove payment of the consideration without notice, at the time of the delivery of the deed, and payment. Watkins v. Edwards, 23 T. 447; Huyler v. Dahoney, 48 T. 238; Taylor v. Har­rison, 47 T. 459, 26 Am. Rep. 304. His equity would be defeated by notice of a superior equity at any time before the date of the deed to him for the land. Whitsett v. Miller, 1 U. C. 203.

Parties claiming under a superior outstanding title, on the ground of want of notice of a trust deed, must, in order to defeat the trust deed, show themselves to have been bona fide purchasers without notice and for valuable consideration paid before such no­tice. Morton v. Lowell, 56 T. 643.

An attaching creditor of the community estate, or one who, through operation of law, has acquired an apparent lien upon land which has been purchased in whole or in part with the separate means of the wife, does not occupy such position as will pre­clude the wife from proving her separate interest, and thereby having it protected. Parker v. Coop, 60 T. 111.

A bona fide purchaser for value of the legal title to property, whether land or a land certificate, without notice of the rights of others, is entitled to protection as against those who may have an equitable interest in the property purchased. Equity will protect a bona fide purchaser for value, even when his vendor, having the legal title, may not possess the equitable title, the property having been bought by the vendor with partnership funds. One who, in good faith, for valuable consideration, purchases an equitable interest in property, and afterwards acquires the legal title to the same, is also entitled to protection as against a prior equity. Hill v. Moore, 62 T. 610.

To entitle a subsequent vendee to have a prior unregistered deed postponed to his subsequent conveyance, it must appear: 1. That he was a purchaser bona fide, as 2. That he purchased without actual or constructive notice of the title of the prior vendee, and that the purchase money has been paid; a recital of fact in the deed is not sufficient. Pierce v. Ellis, 12 T. 651; Watkins v. Edwards, 23 T. 447.

One who has in good faith purchased the absolute right to land in contradistinction to that of the title, or claim of title, of the grantor, and by outside proof has shown that he paid a valuable consideration therefor, may claim as an innocent purchaser against any subsequent equity of which he had no notice. Richardson v. Levy, 67 T. 555, 3 S. W. 444. See Finch v. Trent, 3 C. A. 568, 22 S. W. 132, 24 S. W. 679.

A person may be an innocent purchaser at an administrator's or executor's sale. White v. Dupree, 91 T. 66, 40 S. W. 962; Jackson v. Berliner (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1190.

One buying land, having no notice of an outstanding unrecorded homestead right, held a bona fide purchaser. Curlin v. Canadian & American Mortgage & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 312.

For value and without notice acquires the title as against a purchaser holding under a deed that had not been filed for record as required by law. La Pice v. Caddenhead, 21 C. A. 263, 53 S. W. 66.

An heir can become an innocent purchaser for value of the interest of his coheir as against the heir's warranty deed of his ancestor. The purpose of the statute is evidently to protect the innocent who have parted with value as a result of the failure of the real owners to take advantage of the registration laws or otherwise to advertise their claims. Branch v. Weiss, 23 C. A. 84, 57 S. W. 902.

Essential elements constituting a bona fide purchaser are consideration, want of notice, and good faith; and, if these are shown, it is immaterial, as to a third person, whether the deed of the purchaser is properly acknowledged or not. Derrett v. Britton, 85 Fed. 485, 80 S. W. 562.

A purchaser from the grantee in a deed which has never been delivered or placed on record by the grantors is not entitled to protection as an innocent purchaser. Garver v. Raising, 35 C. A. 378, 51 S. W. 343.

A purchaser of land for value and without notice acquires the title to the land as against a vendor in fraud of creditors held not entitled to retain the property by reason of the fact that at the time of the last sale the vendors therein had recovered the property from attaching creditors of the insolvent by giving a bond. Horstman v. Little (Civ. App.) 18 S. W. 236.

Purchasers of land must account to equitable title holder for so much of the price as remained unpaid when they received notice of the latter's rights. Sparks v. Taylor, 59 T. 411, 90 S. W. 485, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 381.

A lease for a term of years with an option to purchase, which the lessee exercised, held not to constitute him a bona fide purchaser. Storms v. Mundy, 46 C. A. 88, 101 S. W. 258.

The good faith of a purchaser of land must be measured by his intent at the time, and it is error to assume that he is entitled as such if a certain deed of a remote vendee was made. Id.

A claimant of land may be a purchaser in good faith notwithstanding a break in the chain of title back of the common source. Id.

One is not a bona fide purchaser of land: the records of the county showing a sale to a predecessor in title by an attorney in fact for less and on different terms than authorized by the power of attorney. Lightfoot et al. v. Horst et al. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 606.

To entitle a subsequent purchaser to have a prior unrecorded conveyance postponed to his conveyance, it must appear that he was a bona fide purchaser without notice, actual or constructive, of the title of the prior purchaser, and that the purchase money was bona fide and truly paid, and the facts must be consistent with the conduct of ordinary men supposed to act with reference to their own interest. Davidson v. Ryle (Sup.) 124 S. W. 616.

To constitute one an innocent purchaser of land, there must be a valuable consideration, absence of notice of adverse claims, and good faith. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Hayden, 104 T. 175, 135 S. W. 1149.

A mere beneficiary of the legal title held in trust by another cannot maintain the defense of innocent purchaser, unless the holder is. Id.

Purchasers whose deeds except a warranty deed in 1894 to the common source of title were recorded prior to the registration of earlier deeds from the common source of title were innocent purchasers, since they might derange title and defend an action to try title by holding under their quitclaim deed and under back of the common source of title, or both. Tobin v. Benson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 642.

Where a purchaser from a vendee indebted to the original vendor had no notice of such claim, and paid adequate consideration, he was a bona fide purchaser. Masterson v. Esas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1156.

A person, who obtained a deed to the land in controversy from a person who had no interest in it and made no claim to it, was not entitled to be protected as an innocent purchaser against the person for whom the land was held in trust. Mortimer v. Jacobi (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 341.

6. Mode and form of conveyance—In general.—A contract in writing which purports to convey an interest in land after its location and before patent issues cannot affect a subsequent innocent purchaser from the vendor, or his creditors, unless it is authenticated for record and recorded. Lewis v. Johnson, 68 T. 448, 8 S. W. 944.

A sufficiently authenticated deed is valid, and a person who conveys it as such is a vendor entitled to the character of innocent purchaser. Thompson v. Rust, 32 C. A. 441, 74 S. W. 924.

One held a bona fide purchaser freed from equitable claims. Blair v. Hennessy (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1076.

In an action to recover land upon the ground that the title was not in defendants' remote grantor when he conveyed, it cannot be claimed that because the deed to defendants contained a covenant of general warranty and a recital that a vendor's lien was removed by payment of bonds representing the unpaid purchase money, and that the bonds had not been paid, that the legal title still remained in defendants' grantor. Haley v. Sabine Valley Timber & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 596.

7. Quitclaim.—A quitclaim deed cannot be an innocent purchaser, because his deed serves him with notice that he is only purchasing the chance of title such as the vendor had, and no more. Such notice, or any notice of the fact that there is a better title, excludes good faith from the transaction. Rodgers v. Burchard, 34 T.
Registration

A deed which recites that the grantor conveys "all my right, title, claim and interest in and to the following described tract of land" (describing 10) "and do forever quitclaim all my right, title, claim and interest in and to the above described tract of land," is only a quitclaim deed, and passes no title to the land as against a prior unrecorded conveyance of the property. Rodgers v. Burchard, 34 T. 452, 7 Am. Rep. 283; Harrison v. Boring, 44 T. 256; Taylor v. Harrison, 47 T. 460, 26 Am. Rep. 304; Wright v. Lancaster, 45 T. 252; Hunsacker v. Lott, 578; Fletcher v. White, 104 S. W. 761; 1 U. C. 561.

If a deed on its face contains evidence that the absolute right to the land, and not the title or chance of title, is sought to be sold, and if this fact appear from the adequacy of the price given, or other circumstances attending the purchase, then the purchaser may, as a bona. fide purchaser, notwithstanding the deed may have, in some other respects, the qualities of a quitclaim deed. Harrison v. Boring, 44 T. 255; Taylor v. Harrison, 47 T. 454, 26 Am. Rep. 304; Holmes v. Johns, 55 T. 41.

While the lien acquired by a judgment creditor by a levy of an execution upon land of the judgment debtor is superior to the title of one claiming under an unregistered deed, yet the lien only attaches to such title as may be in the debtor, and if he has only a quitclaim deed to the land he can have no title thereto as against a prior unrecorded conveyance of his vendor, and a sale by the sheriff passes no title to the property. Borden v. McRae, 46 T. 396; Cavanaugh v. Peterson, 47 T. 197; Grace v. Wade, 46 T. 623; Shepard v. Hunsacker, 1 U. C. 578.

A purchaser at bankruptcy sale acquires only a quitclaim deed. In this case the bankruptcy court sold land, title to which had always stood from the first owner to the heirs of one who had conveyed the land to the vendee. The vendee knew the facts, and agreeing to take a quitclaim, but by mistake taking a deed with special warranty "by, through or under" the vendor, cannot claim the benefit of his own mistake, and be exempt from notice imparted by the quitclaim. Tate v. Reeder, 1 C. A. 427, 23 S. W. 255.

One claiming under a partition deed which is in the form of a quitclaim is an innocent purchaser. Kempner v. Beaumont Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 412.

A quitclaim deed held not to signify an intention to convey only a chance of title, so as to preclude the grantee from the defense of bona fide purchaser. Moore v. Swift, 29 C. A. 51, 67 S. W. 1065.

A purchaser of land relying on a quitclaim deed executed as a substitute for a lost deed held protected, as an innocent purchaser, from the claim of the grantee in a prior unrecorded deed. Waggoner v. Hodson (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 400.

Quitclaim deed to a third person held not to notice that the grantee also had a deed from the real owner. Thompson v. Rust, 32 C. A. 441, 74 S. W. 924.

A deed held not to be quitclaim, but sufficient to support a plea of bona fide purchaser as against one claiming under a prior unrecorded deed from the same grantor. Wynne v. Ward, 41 C. A. 232, 91 S. W. 237.

A deed held more than a quitclaim deed and to convey the premises to the grantee entitled him to the protection of a bona fide purchaser. Allen v. Anderson & Anderson (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 54.

Transfer by grantee in quitclaim deed of railroad property given to secure a debt held not to pass title by his transfer thereof to a new company organized to acquire the property. Southern Ry. Co. v. Harie (Civ. App.) 101 S. 12 878.

A quitclaim deed covering parts of a survey not previously conveyed gave the grantee and his successors no better right against those claiming under a prior deed than the original grantor would have. Raley v. Magendie (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 174.

A conveyance, reciting that grantor sells, releases, and quitclaims unto the grantee all his right, title, and interest, is not a conveyance of the land, but merely of the grantor's right and title, and the grantee cannot claim to be an innocent purchaser for value. Hudman v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 186.

A grantee of one holding by quitclaim held not a bona fide purchaser as against persons for whom the grantor in the quitclaim held on a parol trust. Schmittou v. Dunham (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 941.

§ 3. Notice.—In general.—Sufficiency of notice of facts to charge purchaser with fraud, in an action to set aside a deed for fraud, defined. Goree v. Goree, 23 C. A. 470, 84 S. W. 1036.

One who purchases land, believing it to be community property of the vendor and his deceased wife, and having no notice that it is her separate property, held chargeable with notice that his vendor can only convey the legal title to one-half interest therein. Hunt v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 674.

In trespass to try title, charge held to properly submit the issue of defendant's notice of plaintiff's equitable title. Derrett v. Britton, 55 C. A. 485, 50 S. W. 562.

A conveyance, reciting that grantor sells, releases, and quitclaims unto the grantee all his right, title, and interest, is not a conveyance of the land, but merely of the grantor's right and title, and the grantee cannot claim to be an innocent purchaser for value. Hudman v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 186.

A grantee of one holding by quitclaim held not a bona fide purchaser as against persons for whom the grantor in the quitclaim held on a parol trust. Schmittou v. Dunham (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 941.

§ 4. Purchasers of land from county judge holding title in trust for the county held entitled to protection only to the extent of the amount of the price paid before acquiring notice of the county's claim. Welty v. Feis (Civ. App.) Bell County v. Feis (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1065.

Purchasers of land from county judge holding title in trust for the county held entitled to protection only to the extent of the amount of the price paid before acquiring notice of the county's claim. Welty v. Feis (Civ. App.) Bell County v. Feis (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1065.
The holder of purchase-money notes and her assignee held chargeable with notice that the original grantor of a homestead claimed the land as her homestead, and that the deed was intended as a mortgage. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 425.

A railroad company purchasing, as authorized by law, the property of another railroad company held not charged with notice of an unrecorded contract alleged to have been made with the latter company. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Logue (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 11.

A payment by a grantee for the value of land purchased when he was chargeable with notice that it was owned by another would not entitle him or his grantees to claim protection against the claim of the real owner or her heirs. Haley v. Sabine Valley Timber & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 596.

9. — Actual notice.— A person purchasing land at an execution sale, and having before such sale actual notice of a prior unrecorded lien or title, is not a bona fide purchaser for value. Price v. Cole, 35 T. 461; Blacknership v. Douglass, 26 T. 226, 52 Am. Dec. 605; Ayres v. Duprey, 27 T. 593, 86 Am. Dec. 657; Orme v. Roberts, 32 T. 768. Price v. Cole, 35 T. 461, so far as it related to the question above stated, was overruled by Grace v. Wade, 45 T. 522, in which it is held that the rights of the creditor, and hence of a purchaser, relate back to the lien on the property acquired by the record of the judgment or levy of the execution.

Notice to the agent of a purchaser of land sold under a trust deed that the land had been released is imputable to his principal. Mansfield v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 564.

A purchaser of land from one who bought at execution sale held not to have had knowledge of the facts which rendered the judgment voidable. Day v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 425.

A purchaser of land, having actual notice of a conveyance by the common source of title, not shown by the records, held not entitled to rely on such records. Masterson v. Harris, 37 C. A. 145, 83 S. W. 428.

Where actual notice was given the president of a bank of the existence of a prior mortgage on certain property, although such mortgage had not been recorded, yet, after such notice, a mortgagee then taken by the bank became inferior to the prior mortgage. Hampshire v. Greeves (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

10. — Effect of notice.— A conveyance in fraud of creditors is valid against a subsequent purchaser with notice (Fowler v. Stoneum, 11 T. 478, 52 Am. Dec. 490; Weidger v. Chisholm, 28 T. 780; Raymond v. Cook, 31 T. 373; Moreland v. Atchison, 34 T. 351; Lulumberg v. Biberstein, 51 T. 457), or without valuable consideration. (Lewis v. Castleman, 27 T. 647; Morton v. Lowell, 56 T. 643.) And the same rule applies to a purchaser under an execution levied before the creditor had notice, who, before the purchase at such sale, had notice of the wife's separate interest in the land. Bonner v. Stephens, 60 T. 616.

Where the certificate does not state the essential facts, the registration does not constitute notice. Hayden v. Moffatt, 74 T. 647, 12 S. W. 820, 15 Am. St. Rep. 866.

One claiming under a sheriff's deed held to have a superior right to one claiming under a prior unrecorded sheriff's deed, though he had notice at the time of purchase of the other's rights. Wiggins v. Sprague, 15 C. A. 530, 40 S. W. 1019.

The grantees of one taking property subject to a restriction as to engaging in a particular business, who have notice thereof, take no better rights than their grantor had. Anderson v. Oxland, 18 C. A. 460, 44 S. W. 911.

When a debtor conveys his land but his creditor attaches before the deed is recorded, the creditor's lien is good, but if the creditor knew that the land was paid for by another and therefore that the debtor held the land as a resulting trust, the creditor gets no title as against the cestui que trust. Caldwell v. Bryan's Ex'r, 29 C. A. 138, 49 S. W. 240.

A purchaser held to acquire no title as against a prior grantee of a deed containing a defective description, where the former knew of the equities in favor of the latter. Ragan v. Milby, 21 C. A. 21, 56 S. W. 587.

Notice of an unrecorded deed to a judgment creditor at the time he fixes his lien, is fatal to his rights; the same rule applies as in case of a subsequent purchaser. Barnett v. Squyres (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 612.

Grantee of land held not an innocent purchaser, as matter of law, where he failed consideration after actual notice of defect in title. Bullock v. Sprows (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 657.

Where a vendor's lien note on a homestead is purchased with knowledge that the sale is simulated, the fact that there is afterwards a reconveyance, and a surrender of the first note and the taking of a second vendor's note, executed by the original vendor, and indorsed by the original vendee, does not validate the transaction, so as to warrant a recovery on the latter note. Felsher v. Helena (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 939.

Purchasers of land from a vendee of the original owner held to be bona fide purchasers, even though having notice of a subsequent deed from the original owner to a third party. Fullenwider v. Ferguson, 36 C. A. 155, 70 S. W. 222.

Purchasers of land from a vendee of the original owner held to be bona fide purchasers, even though having notice of a subsequent deed from the original owner to a third party. Fullenwider v. Ferguson, 36 C. A. 155, 70 S. W. 222.

One receiving property with notice that it is subject to a trust, and that it has been in violation of the trust, is subject to the rights not only of the cestui que trust, but also of the trustee to reclaim possession. Mansfield v. Wardlow (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 859.

Where a lease is subsequent to a mortgage of which the lessee had notice, the latter holds subject to the mortgagee's right to terminate the lease and take possession by foreclosure. F. Groes & Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1006.
Junior purchasers of land acquire no title to land against former unrecorded deeds, unless they purchase without notice of the prior deeds. Whitaker v. Farris, 45 C. A. 374, 101 S. W. 466.

A grantee acquires no interest as against a prior unrecorded deed of which he has notice. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921.

Purchasers held by the original owners after defendants had actual knowledge of a prior deed under which plaintiff deraigned title added nothing to defendants' rights as alleged innocent purchasers. Cunningham & Stringfellow v. Buckingham, 50 C. A. 44, 111 S. W. 756.

A vendor who has notice of a fact that will affect the title of his grantor accepts the risk of having his title defeated. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 323, 112 S. W. 355.

Expenses incurred by an attorney under a power conveying an undivided interest in certain land from a deed cutting off the donor's interest was not value paid for the land by the attorney without notice. Davis v. Bell (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 655.

Defendant was not an innocent purchaser of land for value if for several years before he purchased, and at that time he had actual notice of plaintiff's claim of ownership. Gibbs v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 332.

No title held to pass under the conveyance of an agent having power to transfer land. Clark & Bolice Lumber Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 644.

Where a wife executed with her husband a deed to separate property, the grantee agreeing to assume the grantor's indebtedness for the balance of purchase money to the state, and the deed was executed pursuant to an agreement that the grantee was to pay a certain amount of the consideration in cash and the remainder in merchandise, and the husband placed the deed in escrow, and thereafter deposited it with the grantee as a forfeit to secure his performance of the purchase, the goods, the grantee was not an innocent purchaser for value, and, the husband having delivered the deed fraudulently and without authority, the grantee was not entitled to enforce it. Carver v. Lasketter (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 945.

One who when he purchased land knew that a vendor's lien was outstanding was not a purchaser without notice. Davidson v. McKinley (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1142.

Where land in possession of defendant under an executory contract was chargeable against the purchaser, the title remained unchargeable while in the possession of a third person acquiring the same with knowledge of the facts. Miller v. Himebaugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 338.

11. Constructive notice and facts putting on inquiry.—Whatever is sufficient to put a party upon inquiry, with reasonable certainty as to time, place, circumstances and equivalent to notice. Parks v. Willard, 115 S. W. 590.

Notice is either actual or constructive. The former is where the party to be affected is proved to have had actual knowledge of the fact. The latter is where the party, by any circumstance whatever, is put upon inquiry which amounts in judgment of law to notice and duty becomes a duty, as in the case of purchasers and creditors, and would lead to the knowledge of the requisite fact by the exercise of ordinary diligence and understanding. In a great variety of cases it must be a matter of doubt and difficulty to decide what circumstances are sufficient to put a party upon inquiry, and each case must depend upon its own circumstances. But vague and indeterminate rumor or suspicion is quite too loose and inconvenient in practice to be admitted to be sufficient. Wethered v. Boon, 17 T. 143; Harrison v. Boring, 44 T. 255.

It has been said it will be a sufficient answer in all cases to the allegation of notice to show that the party to be affected by it could not have obtained the necessary information by an investigation conducted in the usual course of business. And where circumstances are brought home to the knowledge of the party, which would have been sufficient in themselves to put him on inquiry, and thus amount to notice, he will be put to the proof of actual notice, which would not be sufficient to establish the existence of other attendant circumstances of a nature to satisfy the mind that further inquiry was unnecessary. Wilson v. Williams, 25 T. 54.

A deed of an unrecorded deed to one interested with a subsequent purchaser, but whose name does not appear in the conveyance, is notice to him to whom the conveyance is made. Littleton v. Giddings, 47 T. 109.

Whatever is sufficient to put a prudent man upon inquiry as to the facts binds him to the consequences of the facts which inquiry would have disclosed. Faulkner v. Warren, 1 App. C. C. § 662; Walton v. Compton, 23 T. 569.

Deed executed by husband to wife reciting consideration of one dollar and love and affection held to put subsequent purchaser on inquiry. New England Loan & Trust Co. v. Armitage (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 673.

Where a purchaser claims under a deed containing no warranty, information that the land is the homestead of a person other than the grantor is sufficient to put the purchaser on inquiry. Richardson v. Moody, 17 C. A. 67, 42 S. W. 517.

A deed held to have given notice of adverse title, so as to convey the property to one of the grantor's creditors. Root v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 586.

That a prior unrecor ded deed was obtained at arm's length. Root v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 586.

That a prior unrecor ded deed was obtained at arm's length. Root v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 586.

That a prior unrecor ded deed was obtained at arm's length. Root v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 586.

That a prior unrecor ded deed was obtained at arm's length. Root v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 586.

That a prior unrecor ded deed was obtained at arm's length. Root v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 586.
Plaintiff held charged with notice of a conveyance by the common source of title, under which defendant claimed, which would have been disclosed by inquiry. Masteron v. Harris, 37 C. A. 145, 83 S. W. 428.

A purchaser of land subject to a vendor's lien, with constructive notice thereof, held not an innocent purchaser as to the holder of the lien. Runge v. Gilbough (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 382.

An unrecorded deed, reserving a vendor's lien, held constructive notice to a subse­quent purchaser in privity of title. Id.

Purchasers of land held chargeable with notice that the grantor had previously conveyed part of the land described in their deeds. Whittaker v. Farris, 45 C. A. 373, 101 S. W. 456.

Rule respecting priorities of junior and senior purchasers, as affected by failure to record the senior deed, stated. J. M. West Lumber Co. v. Lyon, 53 C. A. 644, 118 S. W. 652.

One who has notice of facts putting him on inquiry held not a purchaser in good faith. W. L. Moody & Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1015.

If a purchaser of land, by the knowledge of facts which he should have discovered, had a prudent man upon inquiry, which if pursued with ordinary diligence would have led to actual notice of a prior conveyance to another, he would not be a bona fide purchaser for value without notice. La Brie v. Cartwright, 55 C. A. 144, 118 S. W. 755.

When a fact is known, but not sufficient to put a subsequent purchaser upon inquiry as to his grantor's title, he cannot excuse himself from pursuing the inquiry by taking the opinion of an attorney upon an abstract of the record title. Id.

A recorded deed revoking a power of attorney to recover and sell lands and a conveyance of lands to the agent held sufficient to put purchasers of such lands from the agent who had examined the revoking instrument upon notice as to the agent's right to sell any land under the power of attorney. Merrill v. Bradley, 52 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 561.

A purchaser of realty from a devisee thereof held chargeable with notice of the terms of the will, and took only the devisee's title. Haring v. Shelton, 103 T. 10, 122 S. W. 13.

One buying land held on inquiry as to previous sale of part of it, by recital, known to him, in deed to another person. Lowry v. McDaniel (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 716.

Where the mortgagee examined an abstract before accepting the mortgage, which showed that the land was community property, and the husband's will, which was copied into the abstract, showed that testator and his wife had children, in absence of a showing that the mortgagee made such inquiry as a prudent man would have made under the circumstances, he will be charged with knowledge that the property belonged to the community, and of the existence of children, and hence of the fact that the husband could not devise all of the property. Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 286.

Mere failure to include one of several notes for the same tract of land in the inventory of the executor or administratrix of the community estate held not a fact which should put a purchaser on inquiry as to the note which had been transferred by the deceased as collateral. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 844.

One having sufficient notice to put him on inquiry, which he if fairly prosecuted would learn, to actual notice, is not a bona fide purchaser for value without notice. Cranes v. Wood (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 444.

Bona fide purchaser for value held bound by notice up to the date of the delivery of the deed to him and payment by him of the purchase money. Cartwright v. La Brie (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 726.

Where a plaintiff in trespass to try title was charged with constructive knowledge of adverse claims when he purchased, and he secured a large tract for a nominal sum, he would not be an innocent purchaser, in good faith, for a valuable consideration. Master­son v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 626.

A purchaser holding under a conveyance which recites that a bond to convey the land to another had been made, that the party in whose favor it was made had failed to comply with its conditions, was dead, and the bond lost, is not, in the absence of actual notice, bound by such recitals to take notice of a prior unrecorded deed to the land. In the absence of evidence charging a purchaser with notice beyond the recitals of his deed, he has only notice of the facts which its contents import. A subsequent purchaser is bound by facts appearing as recognized by the recitals in the deed by his vendor, but he is not required to dispute their correctness; and if charged with notice of what does appear, he is authorized to assume the proposition contradictory to such recitals to be untrue. Notice by recitals in a deed is not notice of a state of facts contradictory to such recitals. Graham v. Hawkins, 1 U. C. 514.

Recitals in deeds held not sufficient to put an ordinarily prudent man on inquiry as to whether the money used in the purchase of land was the separate estate of the pur­chaser's wife. McDaniel v. Harley (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 323.

A recital in a recorded will that testator held a vendor's lien on certain property held insufficient to put a reasonable man on inquiry, where it failed to sufficiently describe the land, or to indicate how testator acquired the lien. Williams v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 327.

Recitals in a deed and record of a related instrument held insufficient to constitute notice of rights of holder of a purchase-money note, nor sufficient to put subsequent purchaser on notice. B. v. Smith, 23 C. A. 920, 55 S. W. 158.

A deed reciting that same is to take effect only after death of grantor is notice of its testamentary character. De Basilgethy v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 472, 56 S. W. 95.

Purchasers of land held by prior exchange cannot, by a prior exchange whereby he acquired certain land on east end of his lot in exchange for land conveyed from the west end of the lot. Scott v. City of Marlin, 25 C. A. 353, 60 S. W. 969.

Where defendant was charged by recitals in its deed with notice of plaintiff’s title, it was not error to exclude testimony that it was an innocent purchaser. Texas Tram & Lumber Co. v. Gwin, 29 C. A. 1, 67 S. W. 592, 65 S. W. 721.

Where a deed recited that the grantor had previously executed a deed to the land in controversy, which he was informed was lost, but did not recite to whom such deed was executed, the grantee in such subsequent deed, and his premises, were charged with notice that the grantor had no title at the time of executing it. Waggoner v. Dodson, 96 T. 415, 78 S. W. 517.

Recital in a deed held sufficient to put one purchasing from the grantor’s husband after her death on inquiry as to whether the land was her separate property. O’Mal­loney v. Flanagan, 34 C. A. 244, 78 S. W. 245.

Defendant held not charged with notice of an unrecorded conveyance of a part of a tract conveyed by deeds in defendant's chain conveying the unsold portions of such tract and purporting to identify the portions sold. Pierson v. McClinckock, 34 C. A. 360, 78 S. W. 706.

A recital in a deed that the land had been conveyed by A. to S. and then to G. held to put a subsequent purchaser from the heirs of S. on inquiry to ascertain whether the land had not been conveyed by S. to G. Masterson v. Harris, 37 C. A. 145, 83 S. W. 428.

A married woman, who had executed with her husband a power to sell, held not necessarily affected with notice of a conveyance thereafter. Stephens v. Herron, 99 T. 65, 87 S. W. 226.

Where land in Texas belonging to a nonresident testator was sold in spite of his will to pay his estate and was not within the chain of title of a subsequent purchaser, so as to charge him with notice of outstanding equities. Nelson v. Bridge, 39 C. A. 283, 87 S. W. 885.

Subsequent purchasers cannot acquire greater interests than passed between the original parties, and the subsequent purchasers are innocent purchasers for value without notice that the language was not used in its usual and commonly accepted meaning. West v. Hermann, 47 C. A. 131, 104 S. W. 428.

A recital in a deed to defendants held sufficient to put them upon inquiry, so as to charge them with notice that the property was community property. Veatch v. Gilmer (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 746.

A deed purporting to convey the grantor’s interest as an heir held not to apprise the purchaser that the property might have been acquired by the grantor’s ancestor when married. Gilmer’s Estate v. Veatch, 102 T. 584, 117 S. W. 490.

A deed executed under a power of attorney authorizing sale of heirs’ interest in estate of their grandfather held to pass the entire interest of heirs in community property of their parents. Gilmer v. Veatch, 88 C. A. 511, 121 S. W. 545.

A provision in the deed of a junior grantee held not evidence that he had knowledge of a senior conveyance of the land by his grantor to a third person or to show that he suspected it was forged. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 110 T. 144, 122 S. W. 533, 124 S. W. 55.

A certain deed containing errors in field notes, filed for record, held constructive notice to subsequent purchaser. William Carlisle & Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 561.

Purchasers claiming under the grant of a headright reciting that the grantee was a married man held not entitled to rely on presumed knowledge that his predecessors in title had made such inquiry as to rebut presumptions of notice. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.

Effect of statement in grant of a headright to the effect that the grantee was a married man, as to subsequent purchasers, stated. Id.

A warranty in a deed held not to excite suspicion in the mind of the purchaser, and not to justify a finding that he was not a bonafide purchaser without notice of a prior un­registered conveyance. Davidson v. Byle (Sup.) 124 S. W. 616.

A declaration in an act of sale by a grantee held to authorize a finding that the real ownership remained in the original grantor until the sale. Id.

A purchaser held chargeable with knowledge of the identity of a person conveying land under different names. Hawkins v. Potter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 643.

Purchasers from a trustee take with knowledge of limitation in the trust deeds as to the duration of the trust. Montgomery v. Trueheart (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 284.

A purchaser of a wife that land belonging by her husband, in consideration of a certain amount in hand paid by the grantee, receipt whereof was acknowledged and the further assumption of the grantee of the balance of the sum due the state, granted, sold, and conveyed to the grantees, etc., were sufficient to impart notice to the subsequent purchaser that the separate property was the separate property of the husband and had no authority to deposit the deed as a forfeit to secure his performance of a contract to purchase certain merchandise from the grantee. Carver v. Ledbetter (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 348.

A purchaser from a vendee must take notice of the terms of the unrecorded deed from the vendor, which reserved an express lien for the price. Woodward v. Ross (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 158.

13. — Records and facts of which record is notice.—See Art. 6842 and notes.

A conveyance which evidences a sale in the general land office does not give that constructive notice which results from registration in the proper county. Lewis v. Johnson, 68 T. 448, 4 S. W. 644.
Under Art. 6791, providing that an instrument shall be deemed recorded from the time of delivery, a record by the county clerk is not notice to subsequent purchasers, though not transcribed upon the records, and though the fee for filing was not paid, William Carlisle & Co. v. King (Sup.) 133 S. W. 864.

Where defendant, who had, upon selling to plaintiff, subjected original note to a subsequent, was not foreclosed upon the discharge of the original note, and agreed to pay the original note, fraudulently procured a release of the lien note after it was transferred without plaintiff’s knowledge, held, that defendant’s liability on the indemnity contract was not discharged because the transference of the note did not procure a written transfer of the lien and have it recorded, or because of the execution of the release. Davidson v. McKinley (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1142.

14. Possession.—The possession, by tenants of the prior purchaser, of parts of a tract of land is sufficient to put a second purchaser upon inquiry as to the prior title. Watkins v. Edwards, 23 T. 449.

B. and his wife, C., by deed properly acknowledged and recorded, conveyed to D. land which they had occupied as a homestead. D. afterwards conveyed to E. B. and C. continued in possession paying rent to D., and to E. after his purchase. B. and C. contemporaneously with the first sale, executed an agreement for a reconveyance, of which E. had no actual notice. E. having brought suit for rent, B. and C. resisted payment on the ground that the original sale was intended as a mortgage, and was therefore void. Held, that the possession of B. and C. was not constructive notice of the agreement for reconveyance. Alstin v. Cundiff, 52 T. 453.

While, as a general rule, possession of real estate is constructive notice of the title of the vendor, possession of land continued possession of the land less than would be reasonably necessary to remove from the place after the execution and record of his deed will not be a chargeable successor purchaser from his vendee with notice of a secret tenant whereby an absolute deed of the vendor would be ineffective. Cameron v. Romale, 53 T. 275.

The possession of land by a purchaser through his tenant, though his deed is unrecorded, operates as notice of the purchaser’s rights to a creditor in whose favor a levy is made of an execution on the property. Glendenning v. Bell, 70 T. 623, 8 S. W. 324.

Where plaintiff, under a title bond not recorded, part occupied in dispute, was not in dispute, such possession was not notice. There being no record of the title bond, nor possession of the land sold, nor evidence of notice to a purchaser by a purchaser of the land sold, such purchaser would hold against the elder unrecorded title bond. Wright v. Lesaster, 71 T. 691, 10 S. W. 295.

Where, grantee has possession under an unrecorded deed, and the grantor lives with him as a member of his family, such possession is not notice to a subsequent incumbrance. Fucckett v. Reed, 3 C. A. 350, 22 S. W. 815.

Possession of land under a contract of lease is not notice of claim to title against one who purchased the land from the owner of the record title. Hamilton v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 748.

The possession by a lessee of a part of a tract owned by the lessor is notice to a subsequent purchaser of the latter’s title to the entire tract. Mattfeld v. Huntington, 17 C. A. 715, 43 S. W. 53.

Possession by grantee of unrecorded deed held notice to purchaser, though he had formerly been in possession as tenant. Smith v. James, 23 C. A. 154, 54 S. W. 41.

Evidence held to show that the possession of a third person was not held under such circumstances as to put the purchaser on inquiry as to whether he had an adverse claim. Ramirez v. Smith (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 284.

A finding that one acquired a lien on land from the record owner while a third person was in possession without knowledge of an adverse claim involves a finding that he was not put on inquiry of a claim by the possessor. Id.

One who purchases real estate of one not in possession must take notice of the title of the occupant to such lands, as against such occupant. Smith v. Olson, 23 C. A. 483, 56 S. W. 568.

One’s claim cannot be defeated on the ground that those under whom he claims were not possessors in good faith, unless he has notice of that fact, and where one in good faith takes possession as an heir and not by purchase he is entitled to his improvements. Rowan v. Ramey, 25 C. A. 593, 63 S. W. 1021.

A purchaser of premises in possession of a tenant is chargeable with possession as to the tenant’s rights. Howell v. Denver (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1002; Fred v. Moseley, 146 S. W. 343.

Purchaser of land held affected with notice of title of occupant, irrespective of the fact that deed from her to vendor was on record. Jinks v. Moppin (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 390.

Purchaser of land is charged with notice of interest of person in possession, but his inquiry is sufficient where he finds in the records a deed from the possessor to the vendor. Id.

The fact that one boards on premises is not such possession as to constitute of itself notice of an equitable title. Derrett v. Britton, 35 C. A. 485, 50 S. W. 562.

A purchaser of land held charged with notice of the equitable right of one in possession to specific performance. Kuteman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 644.
That the possession of land by the person claiming it is consistent with the recorded title does not make the possessor from the duty of inquiry of the one in possession. Colvin v. Sanger Bros., 98 T. 163, 55 S. W. 459, 29 S. W. 184.

Occupancy consistent with a deed executed by the occupant is not notice to strangers of defects in the grantee's title. Eastham v. Hunter, 98 T. 560, 86 S. W. 335.

A vendee under an unexecuted deed is under no duty to examine such deed for the same footing as that of the original purchaser. Runge v. Gilibough (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 832.

Acceptance by lessee of lease from adverse claimant held not to charge a grantee of the original lessor with notice as a matter of law, of the adverse claim. San Augustine County v. Maiden, 98 C. A. 257, 87 S. W. 1058.

A purchaser of land must take notice of the character of title under which persons in possession of any portion of the land claim an interest therein. Frugia v. Trueheart, 48 C. A. 518, 106 S. W. 736.

Abandonment of possession of the property by a vendee held not to constitute a breach of a contract for the sale of land. Pfeiffer v. Wilke (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 361.

Possession of land as tenant is not, as a matter of law, notice to a purchaser of the land of the tenant's claim of title to a building. Denison Lumber Co. v. Milburn (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1161.

Plaintiff held to have had notice of an outstanding unrecorded title from actual knowledge of occupancy thereunder of a portion of the land. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Benter, 120 S. W. 577.

Occupancy of land under a specific claim is constructive notice of the title on which the claim is based, though unrecorded. 1d.

Where, to make a judgment creditor of his abstract of judgment, the judgment debtor had conveyed his land by unrecorded deed, and the land was in the possession of a tenant holding under a written lease from the debtor, and the tenant attended to the purchaser and paid to him the rent notes, and the judgment creditor knew that the tenant was tenant at one time, he was charged with notice of the purchaser's title to the land. Garth v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 611.

Possession of land by defendant at the time of the execution of a deed thereof to plaintiff was notice to her of his title under a parol sale, but not of his rights under an unrecorded deed. Oenewald v. Dean (Civ. App.) 234 S. W. 234.

Where parties living on land had conveyed it by deed of general warranty, made to P., the continued possession of the parties was not notice to the grantee in a deed of trust from P. of any claims of title on their part inconsistent with their deed to P. and the trust deed was not affected by their homestead claim. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 633.

Where defendant, to plaintiff's knowledge, was in possession, claiming under a verbal conveyance of the common grantor, and had made valuable improvements and paid all of the purchase money, the question of the record of the deeds of the common grantor to those through whom plaintiff claimed and of the deed to plaintiff was immaterial. Hudson v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 197.

Possession by defendant under an oral contract of purchase, known to plaintiff, who purchased from the common grantor, held notice to plaintiff of whatever right the defendant possessed. 1d.

The fact that persons who had previously granted land by an unrecorded deed, absolutely on its face, were in possession when their grantee conveyed to another, "exhibiting his deed from his grantors to the purchaser," would not put the purchaser on notice that the first deed was only intended as a mortgage. Bryant v. Grand Lodge Sons of Herman (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 714.

A fence around property does not constitute such possession as will cause notice of any possessor or proprietary rights by the person erecting the fence, not being an actual and visible appropriation of the land. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 911.

15. Consideration—In general.—If a purchaser has paid part of the purchase money before notice of a lien on the land, he will be protected pro tanto, provided that in making any further payment, after notice, he see to its application in satisfaction of the lien. But if makes a further payment without seeking to effect satisfaction of the lien, it is an act of bad faith which contaminates the whole transaction from the beginning, and he will not be protected even as to such payments as he made before notice. Frazin v. Frederick, 32 T. 294.

One who buys in ignorance of a prior unrecorded deed, and who has not paid the contract price for the property, cannot be a bona fide purchaser. He can assert no equity arising from the alleged negligence of the former purchaser, whose deed had been once recorded and the record thereof burned, in failing to have his title established and his deed again recorded. Evans v. Templeton, 69 T. 376, 6 S. W. 849, 6 Am. St. Rep. 77.

Lessee, under a lease providing for no other rent than a part of the natural products of the land, held not an innocent purchaser for value, entitled to have his interest protected in a suit to vacate the decree of foreclosure and cancel the deed under which his lessor claimed. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 816.

The giving of a note for the price of community property sold by a surviving husband is as effectual as payment in money, to show a purchase in good faith. Davis v. Carter, 68 C. A. 429, 119 S. W. 774.

The equity of a bona fide purchaser without notice of title in another by a prior conveyance will be protected only to the extent of his payment of the purchase price by cash, or negotiable promissory notes; the giving of nonnegotiable notes not being payment within the meaning of the act. Beal v. Basker (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 456.

To entitle a subsequent purchaser to have a prior unregistered conveyance postponed. It must appear that he paid the purchase price. Davidson v. Ryle (Sup.) 124 S. W. 616.

Where an undivided interest in certain land was conveyed by a power of attorney, services rendered by the attorney incurred prior to the granting of the power held unavailable to constitute the attorney a bona fide purchaser for value, as against an adverse claim. Davis v. Bell (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 658.

A grantee who paid part of the purchase price at the time and delivered its unpaid bonds for the part unpaid was entitled to claim as an innocent purchaser as to the whole.

A payment by a grantee on land purchased when he was chargeable with notice that another owned it would not entitle him to his grantee to claim protection against the claim of the real owner or her heirs. 1d.

1d. A purchaser, taking any conveyance in pursuance of a contract for legal services to be rendered to the vendor, which were duly rendered, was a purchaser for valuable consideration, notwithstanding his failure to pay back taxes as stipulated in the vendor's deed to him. Tolin v. Benson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 445. Payment of value.—As to fraudulent conveyances, see Art. 2666. While to support a plea of bona fide purchaser it is necessary to prove payment of a valuable consideration, it is not necessary that such payment should be adequate. Johnson v. Newman, 45 T. 628.

Giving a negotiable note for the purchase money of land, which has been assigned to an innocent holder, is equal to the payment of money, but it must appear that the land was purchased and not the title to it. Case v. Jennings, 17 T. 673. Where the defendant pleads an innocent purchaser in good faith, the plaintiff is entitled to recover, to the extent that the purchase money remains unpaid at the institution of the suit. Fletcher v. Ellison, 1 U. C. 661.

It appearing by the evidence that the defendant's grantors, who bought of the partner, had knowledge of the claim by the plaintiff of the entire tract from the partner to whom it had been allotted in the partition, and it not appearing that defendant had paid the purchase money, he cannot be considered a bona fide purchaser. Murrell v. Mandelbaum, 66 T. 22, 19 S. W. 888, 34 Am. St. Rep. 777.

A surety on a note secured on land of the principal held a purchaser for value in buying the land at the illuvia v.McLanahan foreclosure sale. 76 S. W. 273.

Junior purchasers of land acquire no title to land against former unrecorded deeds, unless they v. Parris, 45 C. A. 309, 73 S. Whiter. v. 86.

While the amount paid for land may be considered in determining whether the purchaser bought the land or a mere chance of title, the mere fact that he paid less than the market value thereof would not affect his status as a bona fide purchaser. Eastham v. Hester, 192 Tex. 146, 114 S. W. 93, 192 Am. St. Rep. 854.

Payment of value in good faith by the purchaser to his immediate vendor is all that is demanded, and he need not prove payment of a valuable consideration by other parties in the chain of title to establish his claim as an innocent purchaser. Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 315.

Ten dollars paid by the donee of a power for the investigation of two surveys held so grossly inadequate as to be insufficient to support a plea of innocent purchaser. Davis v. Bell (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 653.

Where a power of attorney to recover certain land contained a grant of an undivided half interest to the attorney for his expenses and services, expenses incurred by him after notice of a deed cutting off all interest of the donor in the land were not "value" paid by the attorney for the land without notice of an adverse claim under such deed. 1d.

A recital in a deed to land that it was conveyed in consideration of a payment is not conclusive that the vendee is a bona fide purchaser for value. Hussey v. Titterington (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 714.

A purchaser of land who gives negotiable instruments in payment is a purchaser for value. Nellius v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 239.

17. — Pre-existing debt.—Crediting on a pre-existing debt due the firm by its vendee for land conveyed by the firm is, as against prior equities of third parties therein, a sufficiently valuable consideration to support a conveyance of land to the vendee, where he has no notice of such equities. Grenaux v. Wheeler, 6 T. 523; Blum v. Loggins, 53 T. 121; Planters' Bank v. Evans, 36 T. 102; Allen v. Wiggin, 3 T. 461; Johnson v. Newman, 43 T. 95; Johnson v. Selden, 117 T. 690.

In Wallace v. Campbell, 64 T. 87, it was held that a judgment creditor who purchases at execution sale, has the amount of his bid credited on the execution, may be considered a bona fide purchaser, so that an unrecorded trust could not be engrafted on a deed to the judgment debtor to his detriment. A creditor who has taken a mortgage on property to secure his pre-existing indebtedness is not entitled to the protection accorded to a bona fide purchaser for a valuable consideration, and therefore his mortgage cannot supplant prior equities of third parties, though he had no notice of such equities when he took his mortgage. Spurlock v. Sullivan, 36 T. 511.

In Bailey & Pond v. Tindall, 59 T. 540, it is held that one who acquires a deed of trust on land to secure a pre-existing indebtedness, in ignorance that the maker of the deed is subject to a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase money, and afterwards bought under a sale under such deed, paying no new consideration, took title subject to the vendor's lien. A creditor who takes a deed of trust to secure a pre-existing debt upon property with no notice, actual or constructive, of the existence of a former deed, is entitled to the property to the payment of his debt, as a former deed, which has not been duly acknowledged or proved up and lodged with the clerk of the proper county for record prior to the execution of the trust deed, is void as to such creditor. McKeen v. Sulitzen, 61 T. 325.

A judgment against the husband, buying property at execution sale under execution against the husband, the apparent title to which is vested in the community, but with a resulting trust in favor of the wife, though he purchases, with no notice of such resulting trust, cannot be a purchaser for value if the amount of his bid is credited on the purchase price, for such a trust for the benefit of the wife against the equity of the title is created as against the husband, and such a trust is not within the registration laws. And a creditor claiming a mere statutory lien by judgment or execution is not protected by want of notice. Parker v. Coop, 69 T. 111.

Hence, also, an execution or judgment lien, obtained without notice of the resulting trust, cannot pass to the benefit of one buying at the sheriff's sale under execution with 4430 notice. It is otherwise in reference to a creditor by mortgage or deed of trust or similar instruments, which is standing upon the same footing with conveyances.

A. C. 4431.
A contract in relation to land may be recorded, and that it but the evidence of an equitable title, and of not equal dignity to a deed, does not protect it against the rights of a subsequent purchaser. Early Laws, art. 748 (7); Ranney v. Hogan, 1 U. C.
263.
One who purchases, pays a valuable consideration, and receives a deed from another who is in possession of land under a deed which by mistake conveyed a larger quantity of land intended by the parties, is protected against the present vendor in a suit brought to correct the mistake, if he had no notice at the time of his purchase, and there was nothing on the face of the deed to suggest inquiry regarding a mistake. Garrison v. Crowell, 67 T. 626, 4 S. W. 69.
C. and wife regularly executed a deed, defective in description, for their homestead, to K. It was intended as security for money advanced. C. sold to L., after pointing out the corners, and put him in possession, and K., at C.'s request, made the deed to L. L. remained in possession until his sale to R. C. and wife had never abandoned the land, and at his purchase; and said R. was at the time the present character of the property. Held, that R., buying from L. in possession, under legal title perfect on its face, without notice of the homestead rights of C. and wife, and paying the purchase money, would be protected against the claim for homestead. Coker v. Roberts, 71 T. 698, 9 S. W. 665.
A purchased land under a judgment foreclosing an attachment lien, but failed to have his sheriff's deed recorded until after B. had acquired an attachment lien, without notice to B. Although B. purchased under the foreclosure sale of his lien with notice of A.'s rights, he took the superior title. Wiggins v. Sprague, 68
A conveyance by one holding the legal title to one ignorant of any trust conveyed a paramount estate. O'Donnell, 18 C. A. 38, 54 S. W. 94.
The grantee of a deed not recorded until after a trust deed held by defendant was recorded, not to be ousted of his rights by a foreclosure of said trust deed under proceedings to which he was not a party. Hayes v. Tilson, 18 C. A. 610, 45 S. W. 473.
No notice to a grantor of adverse title is notice to his grantee. Root v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 586.
A trustee's grantee held not entitled to claim protection as an innocent purchaser, as against a prior recorded title of the beneficiaries. Tinsley v. Magnolia Park Co. (Civ.
App.) 59 S. W. 629.

Where a husband and wife convey realty occupied by them as a homestead, and indorse the purchase-money notes to a third party, without notice that the sale was merly a pretense, the wife cannot claim a homestead as against such third party. Noel v. Clark, 25 C. A. 136, 60 S. W. 356.
Purchases held not affected by fraud in the procurement of judgments on which their title depends, if it only appears from evidence dehors the record, and they had no knowledge of such fraud. Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 226, 51 S. W. 541.
Bona fide purchaser from party claiming under forged deed held to take no title.
Where two purchase-money notes are equal as to priority, the sale of one note under an agreement that it shall be prior to the other, which agreement is not recorded, does not give priority thereto as against a subsequent purchaser of the other note, who has no knowledge of such agreement, though he knows the existence of both notes. Lewis v. Royle, 96 T. 358, 67 S. W. 408.
Where parties in trespass to try title claimed from a common source, held that plaintiff, having failed to connect himself with such source, could not avoid the effect of the deed to defendant on the ground that plaintiff was a bona fide purchaser without notice to E. Everts v. Turner, 20 S. W. 1007.
A purchase of land for value from one holding by deed absolute, and without notice that the deed was executed as security for a debt, takes the title free from the equities of the grantor in such deed. Long v. Fields, 31 C. A. 241, 71 S. W. 774.
A purchaser at foreclosure sale of attachment lien gets good title as against one holding under unrecorded deed, if he has no notice of such deed. R. E. Bell Hardware Co. v. Riddle, 31 C. A. 411, 72 S. W. 613.
An innocent purchaser from one holding land on a secret trust is protected against One holding title to land under an unrecorded deed estopped to claim the land, as against one induced by him to purchase the land from a third person. Henry v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 599.
A release of lien filed by an original vendor, intended only to release from liability his immediate grantee, and not subsequent grantees, held not a waiver of his lien in favor of a second lienholder with notice. Maas v. Tacquard's Ex'r.s, 33 C. A. 40, 75 S.
W. 259.
One having an equitable title to land is not protected as a purchaser in good faith against the equities of the vendor of his grantor. Slaughter v. Coke County, 34 C.
A. 598, 79 S. W. 563.
A power of attorney giving power to recover land and also conveying part of the land in payment for services in the premises, gives the grantee in the power of attorney and his vendee who were bona fide purchasers without notice, a title superior to that of beneficiaries in a prior unrecorded deed of trust covering the same land. The services rendered in recovering the land constituted a valuable consideration. Garner v.
Royse, 97 T. 460, 79 S. W. 1067.
See note to Art. 6784.
Bona fide purchaser without notice of equitable title of heirs of deceased member of community takes title free from the claim of such heirs. Derrett v. Britton, 36 C. A. 465, 80 S. W. 262.

Defendants, in an action of trespass to try title, held entitled to the land as innocent purchasers for value. Lyster v. Leighton, 36 C. A. 82, 81 S. W. 1033.

Defendants held entitled to the land as innocent purchasers for value, and without notice of any equitable title held by the former owners, and entitled to protection against the claim of the latter. Smith v. Austin, 37 C. A. 397, 84 S. W. 792.

A grantor who, with knowledge of a fraud practiced on him, induced a third person to purchase the land from the grantee, held not entitled to recover the same. White v. Honey, 36 C. A. 633, 86 S. W. 735.

The act of one disclaiming title made subsequent to his conveyance of the land held not to affect the rights of his purchaser or those claiming under him. Davis v. Ragland, 36 C. A. 460, 93 S. W. 1099.

Where community property was sold by a husband after his wife's death without the heirs joining, purchasers under such title would be protected as innocent purchasers. White v. Hester (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 278.

A grantor who, with knowledge of a fraud practiced on him, induced a third person to purchase the land from the grantee, held not entitled to recover the same. White v. Honey, 36 C. A. 633, 86 S. W. 735.

The lessor of ground upon which a building was maintained held estopped to assert an unrecorded contract forbidding the removal of the building unless accrued rent was paid, against a mechanic's lien attaching thereafter. Allen v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 41 C. A. 125, 97 S. W. 1063.

In an action to cancel a deed plaintiff held only entitled to recover from a purchaser of land for rent which the purchaser paid to the broker after notice that plaintiff was the owner of the property. Storms v. Munday, 49 C. A. 58, 101 S. W. 258.

An unrecorded deed to land or timber thereon is void as to a subsequent purchaser for value without notice. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 141, 142.

An intending purchaser of land, finding nothing of record indicating an adverse claim and having no notice of facts putting him on inquiry as to matters not of record, may presume that no adverse claim exists. Drumm Commission Co. v. Core, 47 C. A. 215, 105 S. W. 944.

Mortgagee of certain land and a purchaser on foreclosure, being both ignorant that plaintiff was the common-law wife of the mortgagor, who was sui juris and represented that he was unmarried when the mortgage was executed, the mortgagee and the purchaser were entitled to hold the land free from plaintiff's claim of homestead. Stevens v. Smith, 49 C. A. 126, 107 S. W. 141.

A bona fide purchaser from the heirs is entitled to hold as against one claiming under an unrecorded deed from the ancestor. Clark v. Hoover, 51 C. A. 181, 110 S. W. 792.

The retransfer to a bona fide purchaser after the record of a prior conveyance does not affect the title of the purchaser. Id.

A purchaser for value in good faith and without notice of an unrecorded deed acquires title free from the claim of the grantor. Booth v. Lanier, 38 C. A. 273, 111 S. W. 639.

Purchasers of legal title of land, acquiring it without notice of any equitable title thereto or of any equity existing against it, upon payment of valuable consideration, held innocent purchasers for value. Lewright v. Davis (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 599.

A purchaser of land as heir, and one in possession by the title of land as heir, who paid off the debts and claim which was void because of the prior death of his principal, the purchaser could not claim protection as an innocent purchaser, since he was holding under a void title. Wall v. Lubbock, 52 C. A. 405, 115 S. W. 386.

A party's title under an unrecorded deed of trust cannot be sustained against the grantee in a deed based on a valuable consideration executed subsequent to the trust deed, where the grantee had no notice of the trust deed. Ophenshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 985.

Where parties living on land had conveyed it with warranty to P., the continued possession of the parties was not notice to the grantee in a deed of trust from P. of any claims on their part inconsistent with their deed, and the trust deed was not affected by the homestead claim of the grantees to G. Girardeau v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 438.

If a subsequent purchaser of an after-acquired title received no notice of the prior deed, the estate in his hands is freed from the estoppel. Breen v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 602.

If a vendor releases his lien, and, after such release is recorded, the purchaser sells to a purchaser for value without notice of the rights of the bank acquiring a purchase-money note as collateral, the subsequent purchaser would be protected against the lien asserted by the bank, and one who acquired title through a sale by the administratrix of the decedent vendor after a reconveyance to her is likewise protected. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 844.

The equity of a bona fide purchaser held superior to the rights of a bank holding a lien as the holder of a purchase-money note as collateral, where the bank did not, as it might have done, take a written assignment of the vendor's lien, and place it on record. Id.

In view of this article, a deed not filed for record, made subsequent to a mortgage lien on the land conveyed, was void as to the lienholder. Jackson v. Berliner (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1160.
A purchaser of land without notice of an agreement which preserved a lien on the property in the hands of his vendor held to take title free therefrom. Hampshire v. Greeses (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

The transferee of vendor's note cannot foreclose it as against an owner who has recorded a release from the transferrer without knowledge of the unrecorded trans­fer, and hence, if owner suffered a foreclosure and paid the judgment, he could not re­cover from an indemnitor. McKinley v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 416.

Where a conveyance is voidable on account of the insanity of the grantor, the grantee cannot pass title to an innocent purchaser. Mitchell v. Inman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 250.

20. Evidence—See also, notes under Art. 3687.

Evidence held to justify a finding that one claiming to be a bona fide purchaser paid only a nominal sum for the land. Richerson v. Moody, 17 C. A. 67, 42 S. W. 317.

Facts held to show one an innocent purchaser, entitled to protection against a prior unrecorded deed from his vendor, and a vendor's lien. Johnson v. Dyer, 13 C. A. 603, 47 S. W. 727.

Evidence held insufficient to show grantee of deed from his father a bona fide pur­chaser, as against purchaser at execution sale under judgment against the father. Kerr v. Oppenheimer, 20 C. A. 140, 49 S. W. 149.

Evidence held to authorize a verdict finding that defendant had notice of plaintiff's interest in land. Scripture v. Copp (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 603.

Evidence held insufficient to show plaintiff a bona fide purchaser as against a re­corded bond evidenced by one stating in the body of the deed that he was acting as agent for plaintiff's grantors. Marlin v. Kosmorski, 25 C. A. 335, 60 S. W. 788.

Facts held sufficient to affect a bona fide purchaser of lands with notice of an out­standing interest therein in a third person. McCoy v. Cunningham, 27 C. A. 476, 58 S. W. 1094.

To entitle a junior purchaser of real property to recover against the holder of a prior legal title thereto, the evidence must show that the prior deed of patent was not registered, and that the junior purchaser was without notice of the prior title. Keschele v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 1082.

Evidence in an action of trespass to try title examined, and held insufficient to show that plaintiff's ancestor was without notice of a prior appropriation of the land in controversy at the time it was patented to him. Id.

Certain evidence held not to outweigh presumption that a deed had been taken in good faith. Dean v. Gibson, 34 C. A. 508, 79 S. W. 363.

In trespass to title, evidence held to show that plaintiff's ancestor was not an in­nurged purchaser for value, but took with notice of the invalidity of the conveyance of the land to his grantor. Hunter v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 336.

Evidence held sufficient to authorize a finding that the grantor did not communicate to the grantee notice of a certain defect in the title. Eastham v. Hunter, 86 T. 509, 86 S. W. 333.

In an action by a wife to enforce a trust as to certain land, evidence held to estab­lish that subsequent purchasers were purchasers with notice. Sparks v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 740.

Evidence held to show that a grantee of county school lands purchased without no­tice of defects in his grantor's title. San Augustine County v. Maddox, 39 C. A. 257, 87 S. W. 1056.

Prima facie case made by defendants showing the plaintiff not a purchaser of land for value held not rebutted. J. S. Brown Hardware Co. v. Catrett, 45 C. A. 647, 101 S. W. 559.

On an issue as to whether one who purchased certain land from the heirs of a de­cedent had paid value for the same, evidence held insufficient to show such to have been the case. Holland v. Ferris (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 102.

In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to prove that defendant was a bona fide purchaser of the land and improvements. North v. Coughran, 49 C. A. 101, 108 S. W. 165.

Circumstances to establish notice to the purchaser of an outstanding equity must point with some probative force to the existence of such equity. Wallis, Landes & Co. v. Dehart (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 180.

In an action to try title to land, where defendants claimed title to the land on the ground that the person through whom they claimed was a bona fide purchaser for value, the evidence held to show that the consideration recited in the deed to him was the true consideration, and that the purchase price was paid by him in cash to his grantor. Eastham v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 237.

In an action to try title to land, the evidence held to warrant a finding that the per­son through whom defendants claimed title took the land with knowledge that his grantor did not pay a present consideration therefor, and with knowledge of the defect in his grantor's title. Id.

In an action to try title to land which defendant claimed was purchased with her mother's preceding patent, certain statements by the husband at the time of sale held insufficient to impute to plaintiff knowledge that defendant had any equitable title in the land by having paid part of the purchase price thereof, and hence plaintiff was a bona fide purchaser of the land. Middleton v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 759.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that a pur­chaser of the land from heirs had no notice of title acquired by a prior administrator's sale, and that he paid the purchase money when he bought the land. Holland v. Nance, 102 T. 177, 114 S. W. 546; Same v. Ferris, Id.

In an action in which plaintiff and defendants deraigned title from a com­mon securce, evidence held to show that a purchaser from the common grantor record­ing his deed before a prior deed from the common grantor was recorded was not a pur­chaser for value without notice. Kyle v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 832.

Evidence, in trespass to try title, held to show that a former owner of the property... through whom plaintiff claims, was a purchaser for a valuable and adequate consideration.

The purchase of a defective title would be a circumstance to determine good faith, but standing alone does not necessarily establish bad faith. Downs v. Stevenson, 55 C. A. 211, 19 S. W. 215.

Evidence held to show that a subsequent purchaser without notice of a prior unregistered conveyance paid the price. Davidson v. Ryle (Sup.) 124 S. W. 616.

The character of the warranty in a deed may be considered on the question whether the grantee therein purchased in good faith without notice of a prior unregistered conveyance, but it is not conclusive. Id. Evidence held to justify a finding that a grantor conveyed land in good faith, justifying a presumption that the grantee was a bona fide purchaser without notice of an unregistered conveyance. Id.

In determining whether a subsequent purchaser was a good-faith purchaser without notice of a prior unregistered conveyance the good or bad faith of the vendor may be considered. Id. In trespass to try title, evidence held insufficient to show that one of defendant's remote grantees was an innocent purchaser without knowledge of an adverse claim.

Leases exhibited to a mortgagee on making application for the mortgage loan held not to charge the mortgagee with notice of an unrecorded conveyance to the lessee in leases surrendered in consideration of those shown. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co. v. Norris, 29 C. A. 361, 68 S. W. 548.

A mortgagee whose mortgage was subsequent to an assignment of rents to secure under a lease of the mortgage premised held not entitled to such rents as accruing subsequent to foreclosure, provided such mortgagee had notice of the assignment. F. Groos & Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1006.

Leases taking a trust deed held chargeable with knowledge that a purchase-money note secured by a vendor's lien reserved in a prior deed was a claim against the land. W. L. Moody & Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1015.

Where mortgagees of property made such inquiry as a prudent man would have made, held that he would be charged with notice that it was community property, and of the existence of children, and hence of the fact that the husband could not devise all of it. Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 262.

Where actual notice was given the president of a bank of the existence of a prior unrecorded mortgage on certain property, after such notice a mortgage taken by the bank became inferior to the prior mortgage. Hampshire v. Greeses (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 690.

Where the recorded deed under which a grantor held conveyed both the legal and equitable title, in the absence of circumstances sufficient to give the mortgagee notice that another claimed an interest in the land, she could rely upon the trust deed as conveying both the legal and equitable title. Weaver v. Emison (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 322.

25. Record as notice.—See Art. 1842 and notice of prior debt, as consideration for a mortgagee, purchasing the premises on the foreclosure without paying any money, but merely crediting the amount of the bid on the judgment against the mortgagee, is a purchaser for value. Barrett v. Eastham Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1057.

Mortgagee with notice of equities, who took the mortgage to secure an antecedent debt, held to acquire no lien. Rogers v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 379.

One taking a trust deed to secure a note given as additional security for a pre-existing debt held not a purchaser in good faith. W. L. Moody & Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1015.

27. Rights acquired in general.—A recorded mortgage covering future advances has priority over subsequent incumbrances. Willis v. Sanger, 15 C. A. 665, 40 S. W. 228.

Mortgagee without notice of unrecorded transfer of vendor's lien note held to have superior equity, the holder of the lien note alone being chargeable with negligence. Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Brackett, 21 T. 44, 40 S. W. 719.

Where defendant bought under foreclosure which was void, held, that an innocent purchaser of one mortgage note could share in the security. Columbia Ave. Saving-Fund, Safe-Deposit, Title & Trust Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 111.

An assignee of a mortgage on real estate has a paramount lien, as against a purchaser after the mortgage, but prior to the assignment. Smith v. Smith, 23 C. A. 904, 55 S. W. 541.

In trespass to try title, plaintiff's title, acquired under an agreement with a grantor in a trust deed, held superior to the title acquired by the grantee in the trust deed. Stephens v. Pilot, 32 C. A. 462, 74 S. W. 925.

Plaintiff held entitled to maintain action to recover value of land conveyed by him in trust and fraudulently sold by trustee to innocent purchaser. Esepy v. Boose, 33 C. A. 85, 76 S. W. 870.

Where a grantee, whose deed is recorded, held not affected by foreclosure of prior trust deed. Cates v. Field (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 52.

A mortgagee, taking a mortgage and making advances to the mortgagee without notice of the existence of the separate property of the mortgagee's wife, held not affected by a subsequent notice. Barrett v. Eastham Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1057.

A finding that mortgaged property belonged to the mortgagee, or, if it was his wife's separate property, plaintiff did not know that fact, authorized a judgment of foreclosure of the mortgage. Goode v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 689.

28. Purchaser from mortgagee.—The bona fide of the mortgagee as to the title passes to the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, regardless of the knowledge of the latter. Keyser v. Clifton (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 957.

29. Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to show that the assignee of a vendor's lien had notice that there was other security for the debt, sufficient to satisfy it. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Tabor, 21 C. A. 112, 61 S. W. 300.

Matter to be shown by a mortgagee claiming land against an unrecorded deed stated. Anderson v. Casey-Swasey Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 219.

A mortgage of a homestead held valid as against the transferee without notice of the purchase money note, so as to entitle her to have the vendor's lien reserved foreclosed and the land sold to satisfy the debt. Chamberlain v. Trammell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 227.

30. Chattel mortgage.—See Art. 5654 et seq.

Our registration statutes relating to mortgages upon real property have not declared that a reservation of title in the maker of a deed conveying land, which has been actually recorded is void as to creditors as has been done as to personal property in the chattel mortgage act. Long v. Fields, 21 C. A. 241, 71 S. W. 774.
Art. 6825. [2322] Located lands have priority over unrecorded titled lands, when.—Titles to land which may have been deposited in the general land office subsequently to the time when the land embraced by such titles had been located or surveyed, by virtue of valid land warrants or certificates, shall not be received as evidence of superior title to the land against any such location or survey, unless such elder title had been duly recorded in the office of the county clerk of the county where the land may have been situated prior to the location and survey, or unless the party having such location or survey made had actual notice of the existence of such elder title before he made such location or survey. [Acts 1866, p. 32. P. D. 5825.]

In general.—Title acquired under a transfer of a bounty warrant certificate's could not be asserted against a purchaser for value, who acquired title of the heirs of the original owner of the certificates to whom the land was patented without any notice, actual or constructive, of the transfer of the certificate, the land being located under a certificate for the unlocated balance of the bounty warrant certificate. Ingalls v. Orange Lumber Co., 66 C. A. 548, 122 S. W. 63.

Art. 6826. [4640a] English language to be used.—No deed, conveyance or other instrument, whether relating to real or personal property, if in any other than the English language, shall be admitted to record; provided, that all such instruments executed prior to the twenty-second day of August, 1897, may be filed and recorded if accompanied by a correct translation thereof, the accuracy of which is sworn to before some officer authorized to administer oaths. Such translations shall be recorded with the original, and if correct shall operate as constructive notice from and after the date of its filing, if the original be authenticated in the manner required by law. [Acts 1897, p. 11.]

Art. 6827. [4641] Deeds, etc., to be recorded in county where land is situated.—All deeds, conveyances, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other written contracts relating to real estate, which are authorized to be recorded, shall be recorded in the county where such real estate, or a part thereof, is situated; provided, that all such instruments, when relating to real estate situated in an unorganized county, shall be recorded in the county to which such unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes, in a well-bound book, or books, to be kept for that purpose, separately from the records of the county to which it is attached and from other unorganized counties; and it shall be the duty of the clerk or other officer having the custody of such books, when such unorganized county shall be organized, or has been detached therefrom and attached to another county for judicial purposes, to deliver such book, or books, without charge, to the proper officer of such newly organized county, or of the county to which it is attached for judicial purposes, when demanded by him; and, where such records have been heretofore kept in separate books, they shall also be delivered in like manner as above, and in each case the same shall become archives of the county to which it is so delivered. Where such records have not heretofore been kept separately, upon the organization or attachment of such unorganized county to another organized county, a certified transcript from the records of such instruments so recorded shall be obtained by such new clerk or officer; and when so made the same shall in like manner become archives of such newly organized county, or county to which such unorganized county may be attached, as the case may be. [Acts 1887, p. 94.]

Historical.—The amended article, March 30, 1881 (17th Leg., p. 72), reads as follows: "Article 4633. All deeds, conveyances, mortgages, deeds of trust, or any other written contract relating to real estate, which are authorized to be recorded, shall be recorded in the county where such real estate, or a part thereof, is situated; provided, that all such instruments, when relating to real estate situated in an unorganized county, shall be recorded in the county to which such unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes; and when an unorganized county shall be organized, it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of such newly organized county to procure from the county to which it was attached for judicial purposes, within two years from the date of organization, a transcript of all such records, which shall be taken and held as notice to all persons of the existence of such instruments; provided further, that nothing Land in unorganized county not attached to another.—In August, 1875, the county of Archer was not attached to Clay county, and registration of deeds for land in the county of Archer in the records of Clay county was of no legal effect as notice, although by common consent such registration was made. Alford v. Jones, 71 T. 629, 9 S. W. 470.

Deeds to lands in an unorganized county which is not attached for judicial purposes to an organized county must be registered in the mother county. Broussard v. Dull, 3 C. A. 59, 21 S. W. 937.

In either of two counties.—Where a deed is placed on record in a county at a time when the law permitted it to be recorded there, and a certified copy was recorded properly in another county, the law permitted it to be recorded, a certified copy of either record is admissible in evidence both to show its contents and the fact of registration upon proof of the loss of the original. Turner v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 154.

Land in two or more counties.—When a tract of land is situated in two or more counties, a record in either of such counties constitutes notice as to all. Brown v. Lazarus, 5 C. A. 81, 25 S. W. 71.

Where county lines have never been established.—When county lines have never been established, the person recording a deed must ascertain, at his peril, in what county the land thereby conveyed is situated. When the lines have been legally established in accordance with law, they will, for the purposes of registration, be regarded as the true boundaries between counties. Jones v. Powers, 65 T. 207.

In the proceedings of the land board of Pascali county the land was conveyed to the clerk of the county of Red River county and a certified copy of such record by the county clerk of that county would be evidence. Stout v. Taul, 71 T. 438, 9 S. W. 339.

Certificate after location.—After a certificate for land has been located, its transfer is governed by the law for transfer of land as to mode of conveyance, registration, etc. Simpson v. Chapman, 45 T. 560; Renick v. Dawson, 55 T. 102; Heare v. Gillett, 62 T. 23; Adams v. Railway Co., 70 T. 252, 7 S. W. 729.

Effect of record in wrong county.—The record of a deed conveying land in a county in which no part of the land is situated is worthless as notice. Adams v. Hayden, 60 T. 232. See Art. 6828, note.

Titles to chattels, where recorded.—See Art. 6841.

Art. 6828. [4642] Deed, etc., valid, against subsequent creditors from, etc.—Every conveyance, covenant, agreement, deed, deed of trust mortgage in this chapter mentioned, or certified copies of any such original conveyance, covenant, agreement, deed, deed of trust or mortgage copied from the deed or mortgage records of any county in the state where the same has been regularly recorded, although the land mentioned may not have been situated in the county where such instrument was recorded, and which shall have been acknowledged, proved or certified according to law, may be recorded in the county where the land lies; and when delivered to the clerk of the proper court to be recorded shall take effect and be valid as to all subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice, and as to all creditors from the time when such instrument shall have been so acknowledged, proved or certified and delivered to such clerk to be recorded, and from that time only; provided, however, that all certified copies filed and recorded under the provisions of this article shall take effect and be in force from the time such certified copy was filed for record; and provided, further, that nothing in this shall be construed to make valid any instrument which was at the time of its execution from any cause invalid. [Acts 1895, p. 157. P. D. 4994.]

Historical.—The amended article reads as follows:

"Art. 4334. Every conveyance, covenant, agreement, deed, deed of trust or mortgage in this chapter mentioned, which shall be acknowledged, proved or certified according to law, and delivered to the clerk of the proper court to be recorded, shall take effect and be valid as to all subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration, without notice, and as to all creditors, from the time when such instrument shall be so acknowledged, proved or certified, and delivered to such clerk to be recorded, and from that time only." [Act Feb. 5, 1840; 4th Cong., sec. 13, p. 153.]

In general.—By the act of December 20, 1836, the owners of land claiming by deed, lien or other color of title were required to have the same proven in open court and recorded on or before the 1st of April, 1837, in the county where the land or a part thereof was situated. If not so recorded the deed, etc., would not be valid against a subsequent purchaser. 1st Cong., p. 148; Watson v. Chalk, 11 T. 89. By the act of May 10, 1838 (2d Cong., p. 146), so much of the former act as required the record to be made on or before the 1st of April, 1838, was repealed, the effect of which was to postpone a prior unrecorded deed to that of a subsequent purchaser for value and without notice. Gullibeau v. Mays, 15 T. 410; Hawley v. Bullock, 29 T. 216.

Art. 4334. The filing for record in the proper office is equivalent to proper registration as to notice. Land Co. v. Chisholm, 71 T. 523, 9 S. W. 479.

This article gives verity to the first record, and that being true, certified copies thereof are admissible as of any other valid record. The certified copy is used for the double purpose of supplying proof of the original and to show the record of the copy in the proper county; that is, in the county in which the land is situated. Moody v. Ogden, 31 C. A. 596, 72 S. W. 254.

Where a deed has been recorded in the wrong county and afterwards under this article recorded in the proper county, the defect in registration if any is cured. This being a remedial statute should be liberally construed in aid of the object sought to be attained by the law-making power. Logan's Heirs v. Logan, 31 C. A. 596, 72 S. W. 417.

Under Art. 6791 and this article, a deed properly acknowledged or proved and certified is as effectual as notice as if it had been duly and properly recorded, from the date it is properly deposited for record. William Carlisle & Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 581.

Bona fide purchasers.—See notes under Art. 6824.

Art. 6829. [4643] Marriage contract, when valid.—No covenant or agreement made in consideration of marriage shall be good against a purchaser for a valuable consideration, or any creditor not having notice thereof, unless such covenant or agreement shall be duly acknowledged or proven and recorded in manner and form as provided by law for deeds and other conveyances. [Acts 1887, p. 94, sec. 2. P. D. 4987.]

Art. 6830. [4644] Recorder shall record, etc.—Each recorder shall also record in books to be provided for that purpose all marriage contracts and powers of attorney, and all official bonds required to be recorded in his office, and all other instruments of writing authorized or required to be recorded in his office, which shall be proved or acknowledged according to law and delivered to him for record. [Act May 12, 1846, p. 236, sec. 5. P. D. 5005.]

Art. 6831. [4645] Copies from land office to be recorded.—Each recorder shall record all copies of titles recorded in the general land office presented for record; provided, such copies are attested with the seal of the general land office. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 5006.]

Art. 6832. [4646] Judgments to be recorded when.—Each recorder shall also record all judgments and abstracts of judgments rendered by any court of this state presented to him for record; provided, such judgments or abstracts of judgments are attested under the hand and seal of the clerk of the court where such judgment was obtained. [Id. P. D. 5006.]

In general.—The due record and indexing of a judgment will not affect a levy made under a valid judgment, the levy being followed by sale. Nor is the purchaser at said sale required to place his sheriff's deed on record, as against the rights of the original parties to the recorded judgment. Brackenridge v. Cobb, 85 T. 418, 21 S. W. 1064.
Record of a judgment not affecting a prior grantor's title is not constructive notice to a subsequent mortgagee, where the mortgagor has a complete legal title. Ramirez v. Smith, 94 T. 184, 59 S. W. 258.

A record of judgment and deeds filed in a certain county held constructive notice of defendant's claim to a portion of a parcel of land which lay in another county. Haines v. Estes (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 456.

A judgment concerning land, rendered in a county other than where the land lies, is not constructive notice to one purchasing before the judgment is recorded in the latter county. Houston Oil Co. v. Bayne (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 544.

Art. 6833. [4647] Transfers of judgment to be recorded, etc.—The sale of a judgment, or any part thereof, of any court of record within this state, or the sale of any cause of action, or interest therein, after suit has been filed thereon, shall be evidenced by a written transfer; which, when acknowledged in the manner and form required by law for the acknowledgment of deeds, may be filed with the papers of such suit, and when thus filed by the clerk it shall be his duty to make a minute of said transfer on the margin of the minute book of the court where such judgment of said court is recorded; or, if judgment be not rendered when said transfer is filed, the clerk shall make a minute of such transfer on the court trial docket where the suit is entered, giving briefly the substance thereof; for which services he shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents, to be paid by the party applying therefor; and this article shall apply to any and all judgments, suits, claims and causes of action, whether assignable in law and equity or not. When said transfer is duly acknowledged, filed and noted as aforesaid, the same shall be full notice and valid and binding upon all persons subsequently dealing with reference to said cause of action or judgment, whether they have actual knowledge of such transfer or not. [Acts 1889, p. 103.]

In general.—A purchaser of a tax title, invalid for want of jurisdiction of the owner in the foreclosure proceedings, acquired no rights as a bona fide purchaser under a judgment valid on its face. Scanlan v. Campbell, 22 C. A. 506, 55 S. W. 501.

Ownership of a defective title are not forbidden to purchase a judgment lien against the property by reason of having formerly sought to establish a fraudulent title thereto. Matul v. Lane, 22 C. A. 391, 55 S. W. 594.

Where a judgment creditor accepts a note from his debtor, secured by trust deed executed by the debtor and his wife, and the judgment is assigned to the wife, the acceptance of such additional security devests all the interest of the judgment creditor in the judgment. Branch v. Wiltens (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1083.

A positive assertion of ownership of a judgment in open court four months after the purchase thereof held an election, and a waiver of the right to rescind. Hume v. John B. Hood Camp Confederate Veterans (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 643.

The assignee of a judgment alone has the right to sue on it. Bond v. Carter (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 48.

Defendants' right to proceeds collected by sheriff on execution held to have become absolute by virtue of contract with plaintiffs on purchase of a judgment, sale of the property, and payment of consideration to sheriff. W. T. Rickards & Co. v. J. H. Hemis & Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 239.

Defendants, as assignees of a judgment, held to have compiled with contract by which they were to have land sold on execution without expense to plaintiffs. Id.

The assignment of a satisfied judgment gives no rights thereunder to the assignee. Tarlton v. Orr, 40 C. A. 410, 90 S. W. 534.

As a rule, the assignee of a judgment takes such interest as the assignor has, and the assignment is subject to such legal and equitable defenses as existed against the judgment in the hands of the assignor. McManus v. Cash & Lucket, 101 T. 361, 108 S. W. 890.

The fraudulent purpose of a judgment creditor and his transferee in assigning the judgment will not entitle the debtor to have the transfer set aside, where at the time it is made the debtor holds no claims against the original judgment creditor. Trammell v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 429.

One having an interest in an action for specific performance could transfer such interest to another. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 163 S. W. 311.

Purpose of article.—This article does not purport to make a rule as to admission of transfers of choses in action in evidence, but is merely making a rule as to notice to third parties of the assignment of a cause of action. Standifer v. Bond Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 146.

The purpose of this article is merely to furnish parties dealing with the cause of action, and where, upon the trial of an action on an assignment in a former cause, and in its brief, defendant admitted that it had actual notice of the assignment before the trial, the plaintiff in substantial compliance with the statute is all that is necessary to be shown, so that a failure to allege or show a compliance therewith will not preclude the assignee from recovering the amount of his claim. Hott (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1039.

Does not apply to transfer before suit.—The provisions of the above article do not apply to cause of action on which suit has not been filed. Railway Co. v. Wooten, 19 C. A. 54, 30 S. W. 684; G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Miller, 21 C. A. 609, 63 S. W. 799; Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 605, 66 S. W. 489.
Equitable assignment.—This statute does not prevent a party from making an equitable assignment in any other lawful way; and such assignment, as to all persons having notice thereof, is as effective as the statutory assignment. Putnam v. caps, 6 C. A. 610, 25 S. W. 1034; Smith v. T. & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 969.

Assignment of cause of action.—To attorneys.—Although this article provides that attorneys, in filing an acknowledgment by the client that they are entitled to a certain part of the recovery, etc., are protected from purchasers, etc., this statute does not make them parties to an action that they can come in and resist a motion by their client to dismiss the appeal, in the absence of an intervenor filing in the lower court setting up their right. Marshalli v. Smith (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 512.

Dismissal by client.—The dismissal of an appeal by the party seeking to recover will not deprive his attorney, who is interested in the recovery, of any right which he may obtain, provided the attorney has complied with this article. Marshalli v. Smith (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 512.

Effect of compromise.—In a suit against a railway company for damages for personal injuries, an instrument, duly signed, witnessed and acknowledged, was filed among the papers of the case, which purported to sell and convey to plaintiff's attorney "one-half of whatever sum may be realized out of and collected from said railroad company, whether through compromise or by judgment of the courts," etc. The proper entries were also made by the clerk on the docket. Held, that the attorney was not bound by a settlement made by the plaintiff with the company, but had the right to prosecute the suit for his own benefit to the extent of his interest. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Vaughn, 16 C. A. 403, 40 S. W. 1065.

While persons acquiring an interest in the subject-matter of a suit by assignment after the bringing of the suit are bound by the final judgment entered, under this article a judgment upon a compromise with the plaintiff therein merely fixed the pro tanto liability of the defendant to the assignee, and did not release it from all liability in a later suit for the amount due under the assignment. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Holt (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1029.

Under this article the assignee of a part of a cause of action obtained his right immediately of the statutory requirements, and a compromise or settlement of the original cause after notice of his rights will not release a defendant from liability for a pro tanto amount of the settlement. 1d.

Assignment valid and binding, though not recorded, when.—A party can assign to his attorneys a part of his claim for damages for injuries before suit is brought for such injuries, and if the injuries have actual notice of the assignment made to the party liable for the injuries, he is bound, whether such assignment was filed among the papers in the case and noted on the judgment or trial docket or not. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Ginther, 96 T. 295, 72 S. W. 167.

Where interest in a cause of action under Art. 5686 is assigned, it is not essential that this article be complied with in order to charge the railway company with notice of the right and interest of the assignees. The burden, however, is on the assignees to show that the company had notice of the assignment when it settled with the assignor. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Eldridge, 35 C. A. 467, 89 S. W. 556.

An assignment of an interest in a claim for damages made to an attorney in consideration of services performed in bringing the suit, is valid against the defendant with notice thereof, whether it is noted on the docket or not. McLaury v. Watelsky, 39 C. A. 394, 87 S. W. 1049.

Where a part of a cause of action for personal injuries is assigned to an attorney before suit is brought, it is not essential, in order to charge the person liable for such injuries, that the assignment be made, and recorded as required by this article, where an interest in a cause of action is sold after suit has been filed thereon. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Sehorn (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 246.

Under this article a partial assignment of a cause of action, based upon an injury resulting in death, was valid and enforceable, if the statutory requisites were observed. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Holt (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1029.

An assignee of a cause of action pending suit held entitled to a pro tanto amount of a compromise. 1d.

An assignee of a part of a cause of action pending suit held entitled to enforce his claim by intervention in the original suit or by separate suit. 1d.

"Judgment" or "cause of action."—Our statute makes provision for the sale of a judgment, or the sale of a cause of action. The statute seems to recognize that a sale may be made of one without necessarily embracing a sale of the other. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Parks, 80 S. W. 348.

Assignee can receive from clerk amount of plaintiff's interest.—Where a judgment has been paid to the clerk of the court and the plaintiff has duly assigned his interest in the judgment in accordance with law the assignee of such interest have the right to receive from the clerk the amount of plaintiff's interest although they were not parties to the suit. Roberts v. Treadwell, 64 C. A. 311, 64 S. W. 643.

Only transferee may apply for execution.՝—The duty to issue an execution imposed on the clerk by Art. 3714, providing that after the adjournment of the court the clerk shall issue executions on all final unpaid judgments, does not arise until application is made for the writ by the owner of the judgment, and where a judgment has been transferred in writing and filed and entered on the margin of the minutes of the court where the judgment was recorded in accordance with this article, the transferee may apply for the execution, and Arts. 2032-2034, giving officers of court a remedy for collection of their costs by execution, do not give any officer of the court any interest in the judgment. Arthur v. Driver (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 891.

Art. 6834. [4648] Judgment in justice courts, how recorded.՝—Whenever land is sold under execution or order for sale issuing out of a justice court in this state, upon the application of any party inter-isted in said land, it shall be the duty of the justice of the peace having the custody of the execution and judgment upon which said execution issued to make from said records a complete transcript of said judgment and the execution issued thereon and levied on land, together with the levy and return of the officer executing the same thereon indorsed, and to certify to the correctness thereof officially; then said transcript shall be admitted to record in the county where the land is situated in the same manner in which deeds are recorded and with like effect; which said transcript, or certified copy thereof, under the hand and seal of the county clerk of the county where said transcript has been recorded, shall be admitted in evidence in all the courts of this state in like manner and with like effect that the original judgment and execution with indorsements thereon would have if offered. [Acts 1889, p. 133.]

In general.—An original justice's court judgment is admissible in evidence, though not registered or recorded, as required by this article. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

Art. 6835. [4649] Partition to be recorded.—Every partition of any tract of land or lot, made under any order or decree of any court, and every judgment or decree by which the title of any tract of land or lot is recovered shall be duly recorded in the clerk's office of the county court in which such tract of land or lot or part thereof may lie; and until so recorded, such partition, judgment or decree shall not be received in evidence in support of any right claimed by virtue thereof. [Act Feb. 9, 1860, p. 75, sec. 4. P. D. 5023.]

Construction and application.—Recital in decree for partition that it is without prejudice to the rights of a certain party puts purchaser from one of the persons among whom the property is partitioned on inquiry. Gray v. Cockrell, 20 C. A. 324, 49 S. W. 347.

Except as against bona fide purchasers, a decree of partition that has not been recorded in the records of deeds may be proved by certified copy from the court rendering it. Baylor v. Tillebach, 20 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 720.

A purchaser from grantee of deed conveying land absolutely may rely on the warranty and consideration, he having no notice that it was given in partition. Chaney v. Sanders, 24 C. A. 379, 59 S. W. 836.

Persons who purchase land, relying on judgments in partition purporting to be regular on their face, having no notice of any fraud in their procurement, held innocent purchasers. Schneider v. Sellers (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 126.

This article does not declare all unrecorded judgments to be void as to subsequent purchasers in good faith without notice, as in case of unrecorded deeds, but that they shall not be admissible in evidence against innocent purchasers in good faith. Haines v. West, 101 T. 228, 106 S. W. 1118, 130 Am. St. Rep. 839.

Where defendant did not claim title to land under an unrecorded judgment, this article had no application to the question whether the judgment was available to identify and describe the land claimed under certain deeds referring thereto. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 124 S. W. 541.

A decree awarding each party to a suit an undivided half interest in land is admissible to support a title, though such decree was rendered before the commissioners appointed to divide the land had reported. Campbell v. Antis, 21 C. A. 161, 51 S. W. 348.

Art. 6836. [4650] Decree may be abbreviated.—It shall not be necessary in the cases mentioned in the preceding article to record the proceedings or the decree rendered in such cases in full; but a brief statement by the clerk of the court in which the same is made, under his hand and seal, setting forth the case in which the partition or decree was made, and the date thereof, and the names of the parties in the suit for partition, and the particular land or lot lying in the county in which the record is made and the name of the party to whom the same is decreed, shall be deemed and held to be a sufficient record of such partition, judgment or decree. [Id.]

Art. 6837. Suit for land; notice to be filed.—During the pendency of any suit or action, legal or equitable, involving the title to real estate, or seeking to establish any legal or equitable estate, interest or right, present or future, vested or contingent, therein, or to enforce any lien, charge or encumbrance against the same, any party plaintiff, as also any party defendant seeking affirmative relief therein, may file with the county clerk of each county where such real estate, or any part thereof, is situated a notice of the pendency of such suit, to be signed by the party filing the same, or his agent or attorney, setting forth the number and style of the cause, the court in which pending, the names of the party thereto, the kind of suit and a description of the land affected. [Acts 1905, p. 316, sec. 1.]

Change of venue.—Change of venue by agreement of a suit for land, brought in the county in which it is situated, held not to destroy the force of the suit as lis pendens in such county. Jones v. Robb, 35 C. A. 263, 50 S. W. 355.

Change of venue held not to affect conclusiveness of Judgment as to purchasers pendente lite. Latta v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 433.

Prosecution of action.—Failure to press a suit for four years just after the civil war held not such negligence as to destroy its force as a pending suit. Jones v. Robb, 35 C. A. 263, 50 S. W. 355.

Purchaser from plaintiff pending litigation held not relieved from rule of lis pendens by defendant's failure to prosecute his claim in reconvocation, where judgment is against plaintiff on his petition. Latta v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 433.

Purchaser of property pendente lite cannot avoid the operation of the doctrine of lis pendens by vendor's delay in prosecution of suit. Id.

Termination.—Rule of lis pendens held to continue till termination of cause, notwithstanding loss of papers in the case. Latta v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 433.

One who purchases land at a tax sale with knowledge of the pendency of a suit for possession thereof is a purchaser pendente lite, and is concluded by the judgment thereon. Hicks v. Porter, 38 C. A. 334, 86 S. W. 457.

A property right in property actually in litigation for consideration and without notice held bound by judgment or decree. Latta v. Wiley (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 433.

A purchaser of land in controversy by an unrecorded contract of sale of which the plaintiff in the action had no notice at the time suit was brought held a purchaser pendente lite. Frye v. Barton & Hartgrove v. Boyce, 41 C. A. 415, 92 S. W. 820.

The grantees of a voluntary deed made pending action against the grantor held to take subject to the subsequent judgment in the action against her. Frey v. Myers (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 592.

A purchaser from part of the tenants in common during the pendency of their suit to partition the property is bound by the judgment rendered in that case, though not actually a party. Rosborough v. Cook (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1120.

A purchaser of land from an administrator after suit was brought against the administrator for the recovery of the proceeds of the sale of the land, after the suit was filed, held to be a purchaser pendente lite. Trice v. Hunter & Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 656.

Rights and liabilities of purchasers.—When facts existed authorizing intervention in a suit pending by a lis pendens purchaser, the failure to intervene will not conclude the rights of such purchaser when he did not know the necessity for such intervention, and the facts were withheld by the parties alleged to have collusively agreed upon a judgment not authorized by the facts. Wolf v. Butler, 81 T. 86, 16 S. W. 794.

A purchaser pendente lite held not entitled to improvements made by him, as against the judgment creditor. Davis v. John V. Farwell Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 656.

A person making a purchase pendente lite, and whose deed was part of a transaction for others held to constitute no defense to an action to make the purchaser liable for the judgment in the replevin suit. Southern Rock Island Plow Co. v. Pituik, 26 C. A. 327, 63 S. W. 254.

A person paying money on land after the institution of a suit to recover it from his grantor was not to that extent an innocent purchaser. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 182 S. W. 510.

Art. 6838. Record of, how made.—The county clerk shall record such notice of pendency in a well-bound book, to be styled, "Liens Pendens Record," and at the same time index the same, both direct and reverse, under the names of each and all parties to the suit. For such performance of duty, the clerk shall be allowed a fee of fifteen cents per hundred words recorded, not to be less than fifty cents. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6839. Transfers without notice, valid.—The pendency of such suit or action shall not prevent effective transfers or encumbrances to a third party for a valuable consideration and without other notice, actual or constructive, by a party to the suit of any such real estate as against a subsequent decree for the adverse party, unless such notice shall have been properly filed under the name of the party attempting to transfer or encumber in the county or counties in which said land is situated. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6840. Effect of notice.—Such notice of pendency shall not be deemed constructive notice, but merely a memorandum that shall refer all intending purchasers and encumbrancers to an examination of the court record and pleadings to determine whether there is in fact a lis pendents concerning the real estate in question, and it shall be effective for such purpose from the time of its filing. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6841. [4651] Titles to chattels, where recorded.—Every deed, mortgage, or other writing, respecting the title of personal property hereafter executed, which by law ought to be recorded, shall be recorded in the clerk's office of the county court of that county in which the property shall remain; and if afterwards the person claiming title under such deed, mortgage, or other writing, shall permit any other person in whose possession such property may be to remove with the same, or any part thereof, out of the county in which the same shall be recorded, and shall not, within four months after such removal, cause the same to be recorded in the county to which such property shall be removed, such deed, mortgage, or other writing, for so long as it shall not be recorded in such last mentioned county, and for so much of the property aforesaid as shall have been removed, shall be void as to all creditors and purchasers thereof for valuable consideration without notice; provided, that written contracts for the conditional sale, lease or hire of railroad rolling stock and equipments by which the purchase money is therein agreed to be paid at any time or times after the date of such contract, with a reservation of title or lien in the vendor, lessor or bailor, until the same has been fully paid, shall be recorded in the office of the secretary of state in a book of records to be kept by him for that purpose; and on payment in full of the purchase money and the performance of the terms and conditions stipulated in any such contract a declaration in writing to that effect may be made by the vendor, lessor or bailor, or his or its assignee, which declaration may be made on the margin of the record of the contract, duly attested, or it may be made by a separate instrument to be acknowledged by the lessor, vendor, or bailor, or his or its assignee, and recorded as aforesaid; and for such services the secretary of state shall be entitled to a fee of five dollars for recording each of said contracts, and each of said declarations, and a fee of one dollar for entering such declaration on the margin of the record. [Act Feb. 5, 1840, p. 12. P. D. 4993. Amended Acts 1897, p. 209.]

This article is not inconsistent with Art. 5655. Reed v. Spikes, 4 App. C. C. § 189, 15 S. W. 122.

Removal to another county.—Husband and wife resided in Mason county, and a stock of cattle conveyed to the separate estate of the wife was there registered. A failure to register the bill of sale in Lipscomb county, to which they removed with their cattle, did not subject the cattle to levy under execution against the husband. Blum v. Light, 102 Tex. 414, 16 S. W. 1099, 17 Conn. L. R. 244.

Consent or knowledge of removal by mortgagees.—This statute does not apply where the mortgagee does not know of the removal and does not consent thereto. Spikes v. Brown (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 725.

Registration is necessary only where the mortgagee consented to the removal or at least had knowledge thereof. Thos. Goggan & Bros. v. Synnott (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1184.

Original registration, etc., of chattel mortgages.—See Arts. 5664, 5655, et seq.

Art. 6842. [4652] Record of any grant, etc., when notice.—The record of any grant, deed or instrument of writing authorized or required to be recorded, which shall have been duly proven up or acknowledged for record and duly recorded in the proper county, shall be taken and held as notice to all persons of the existence of such grant, deed or instrument.

Record as notice.—In general.—A purchaser from a fraudulent vendee must take notice of the record of a constable's deed under an execution sale to enforce a judgment against the original grantor. McGregor v. White, 15 C. A. 299, 29 S. W. 1024.

Where a grantor recorded the deed before delivery, held, that subsequent delivery did not convey title as against an intervening attachment. Croom v. Jerome Hill Cotton Co., 15 C. A. 328, 40 S. W. 146.

A record of a deed in which the clerk neglects to copy the acknowledgment, as required by law, is not constructive notice to subsequent purchasers. Dean v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 57.

The interest created by a valid recorded contract to convey lands to be selected from the grantor's interest, to be ascertained in a pending partition suit, cannot be restricted... by grantor's subsequent conveyances or mortgages. Hennick v. Gurley, 53 T. 483, 54 S. W. 347. 75 S. W. 119, 56 S. W. 730.
Where plaintiff purchased the land in suit and recorded his deed prior to the purchase by defendant, the latter is not an innocent purchaser. Carnes v. Swift (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 85.

The filing in the general land office of a conveyance of the land or of the certificate by which it has been or is to be surveyed, will not operate as constructive notice to subsequent purchaser of the land as will the filing of the conveyance with the clerk of the county in which the land lies. Clark v. Hoover, 51 C. A. 181, 110 S. W. 783.

Facts held to charge defendants with notice of a deed to the land from F. to S. McDonald v. W. Hanks, 52 C. A. 140, 113 S. W. 694.

A deed is superior to another deed expressly subject to previous deeds, where the first-mentioned deed was executed first, and was recorded when made. Riley v. Magendie (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 174.

One purchasing from an attaching creditor held bound to take notice of a recorded deed. Folkes v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 956.

A purchaser of land belonging to a community estate held not charged with knowledge of the omission from the inventory and list of claims of a note held by a bank as collateral and affecting his title if he knew thereof. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 844.

A subsequent purchaser of land is bound to take notice of the recitals in a deed appearing on a title index record. Davis v. Bell (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 658.

Defendant was not an innocent purchaser of land for value under the statute where, when he purchased from an independent executrix, deeds were on record, showing that decedent did not own the lands when his will was executed. Gibbs v. Eustath (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 323.

Recitals in a judgment for intervener, in a suit to cancel a deed, held, as to a purchaser on the faith of the judgment, who had no notice of an agreement between the defendant and the intervener in such action, not sufficient to charge him with notice of such agreement, whatever its effect on the judgment. Gabb v. Boston (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 569.

Purchasers whose deeds, except a warranty deed in 1894 to a common source of title, were recorded prior to the registration of earlier deeds from the common source of title, were innocent purchasers. Tobin v. Benson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 657.

Purchaser of reality held charged with constructive notice of a recorded deed of trust executed by the grantor. Sherkr v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 158 S. W. 832.

Facts of which record is notice.—A recital in a deed that the consideration was secured to be paid to the grantors by the grantee is sufficient notice to subsequent purchaser that the purchaser's money is unpaid. Willis v. Gay, 48 T. 463, 56 Am. Rep. 338.

C. D., by her will duly probated in 1867, devised her estate to her children, making her husband, W. D., executor, with full power to manage, sell and dispose of the estate for the benefit of her children. In April, 1878, W. D. applied to defendants to borrow money, which they agreed to loan on reality as security. On the 10th of April, 1878, W. D., by deed reciting a cash consideration, conveyed the land, the separate property of C. D., to J. B. On the 12th of April, 1878, J. B., by deed reciting a cash consideration, reconveyed the same property to W. D. On the 17th of April, 1878, W. D. borrowed money of defendants, and secured the payment by a mortgage on the land mentioned. The mortgage was accompanied by a certificate of the county clerk that the record showed a perfect title in W. D. of the land mentioned, and a certificate of a law firm to the same effect. The defendants testified that they relied solely on these certificates, and had no knowledge of any defect of title, or what the chain of title was. In January, 1879, under a power contained in the mortgage, the land was sold to B., who on the same day conveyed it to defendants. In a suit of trespass to try title brought by the devisees of C. D., held that the defendants in the will and in the several deeds of the grantor as a matter of law were charged with notice of the fraudulent character of the conveyances, and took title to the land conveyed. Gaston v. Dashell, 55 S. W. 598.

The registration of a bond for title is constructive notice to a purchaser of the land under execution of the rights and equities of the oblige. Schuster v. La Londe, 57 T. 28.

Where the description of land is uncertain on account of a substantial discrepancy the record will not operate as notice; but if it is merely ambiguous or inconsistent a subsequent purchaser is affected with notice. Carter v. Hawkins, 62 T. 359.

Deed free from ambiguity held to create no equitable ownership in other property, as against a purchaser without notice of alleged misdescription. Balfour v. Cleveland (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 143.

Where a recorded deed recites that a vendor's lien is reserved, a subsequent purchaser is charged with notice. Linsley v. Nunn, 17 C. 70, 70 C. 310.

The fact that a deed absolute on its face was intended to operate only as a mortgage is not binding upon a good-faith purchaser for value without notice. Lynn v. Sims (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 554.

Purchasers of land sold under a released trust deed, before the release was recorded, are not innocent purchasers, where they acquired title after the release was placed on record. Mansfield v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 554.

Registration of a sheriff's deed after a conveyance of the property by the debtor held a subsequent purchaser of the fraudulently transferred interest by the debtor; White v. McGregor, 92 T. 558, 50 S. W. 544, 71 Am. St. Rep. 876.

A recorded deed containing a defective description held sufficient to charge the grantor's creditor with notice that the grantee claimed land formerly owned by the grantor. Began v. Milby, 21 C. A. 21, 60 S. W. 557.
Persons buying land hold chargeable with notice of a vendor's lien note and its assign¬ment, and deed refers to the note and recites its assumption. Smith v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 21 C. A. 170, 51 S. W. 515.

Recorded deed from heir, though notice sufficient to put purchasers on inquiry as to existence of other heirs, is not notice that grantee claimed by unrecorded conveyances from him. Baldwin v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 56. Where a recorded mortgage contained a certificate of a notation due acknowledgment, a purchaser at the mortgage sale without notice that notation was disqualifed held an innocent purchaser, as against lienor subsequent to the mortgage. Southwestern Mfg. Co. v. Hughes, 24 C. A. 677, 69 S. W. 584.

Recorded conveyance, where owner has granted a lease of the property to the vendee, is not notice to vendee if owner is a good faith purchaser of land and has not knowledge of the conveyance until after the conveyance, nor if the owner could not, with reasonable diligence, have discovered the conveyance prior to the conveyance. Lohn v. Ferguson, 38 C. A. 146, 73 S. W. 122.

Where the owner has given an agent authority to sell land by a simple memorandum in writing, and afterwards sells the land himself, and the deed is placed on record, this is notice to the agent and a subsequent would be purchaser of the land through the agent that the agency has been revoked, as they have thus been notified that the subject matter of the agency has been destroyed and that the agency did not and could not longer exist. Donnan v. Adams, 30 C. A. 615, 71 S. W. 584.

That a patent to land showed that it was issued on an assigned certificate held not to put a subsequent purchaser on notice of defects in assignment. Bogart v. Moody, 33 C. A. 1, 79 S. W. 623.

The record of an instrument creating a trust is constructive notice of the existence of the instrument and of its contents, together with rights created by it. Mansfield v. Wewrow (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 859.

Record of deed showing that grantor had retained a lien for the purchase money held to charge a purchaser from heirs of the grantee with notice of that fact. Staley v. Stone, 41 A. 299, 83 S. W. 1017.

Bona fide purchaser of land conveyed to his grantor by instrument intended as mortgage, but which was a deed of general warranty on its face, held to have acquired good title to the land. Causey v. Handley, 44 A. 340, 98 S. W. 431.

A purchaser of vendor's lien note held without notice by the record of the conveyances affecting the property that they constituted a simulated attempt to incumber the homestead, and that the lien was void. Brooks v. Sanger Bros., 101 T. 115, 105 S. W. 37.

An instrument of adoption properly executed and filed for record held to charge a purchaser of land which had belonged to the adopting parent with notice that the adopted child was one of such parent's legal heirs. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Hooks, 47 C. A. 690, 106 S. W. 690.

Where decedent died in another state where he had resided, and the estate was administered in A. county in this state, the probate proceedings in that county were not notice to a subsequent purchaser from heirs, of the administrator's sale of land belonging to the estate located in M. county. Holland v. Nance, 102 T. 177, 114 S. W. 246; Same v. Ferris, 1d.

Facts held to justify an assumption that a deed in plaintiffs' chain of title related to the N. league, and that its registration was constructive notice of a conveyance affecting such title. Houston Oil Co. v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 664.

The owner of a recorded title, cannot be said to be an "unknown owner," so as to give state a good title in a foreclosure sale and suit for taxes, without making the owner a party to said suit. Wren v. Scales, 55 C. A. 62, 119 S. W. 890, 881.

Where the record title to property was in defendants, only steps taken for plaintiffs were not required to look further in purchasing the property from defendants to discover whether it was community property unless they had notice of that fact; defendants being heirs. McMillan v. Sable, 52 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 561.

The existence of two recorded deeds, viz., a warranty deed from A. to B. of "all lots now owned by" A. in a certain block, and a quitclaim deed from B. to A.'s wife of certain lots in the block, is notice to a subsequent purchaser from A. and wife of the rights of one claiming under a recorded, but not duly acknowledged, deed made by A. prior to A.'s deed to B. Abernathy v. Pickett, 57 C. A. 552, 122 S. W. 579.

Where from the recitals of a recorded deed, taken in connection with the field notes of the patent to the land and the lines of abutting surveys, an error in the field notes clearly appeared, and the only way in which the calls could harmonize and the survey be made to close was to take the call "east to the east line" as intended for "west to the west line," which would make clear the grantor's intention to convey certain land, the deed was constructive notice of the conveyance of that land, to a subsequent purchaser. William Carlisle & Co. v. King et al. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 581.

One held to have notice from records of a sale by an attorney in fact unauthorized by his power, and so not a bona fide purchaser. Lightfoot v. Horst (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 606.

Where the records show a conveyance to a woman and a recital that she is married, a purchaser from her husband, after divorce, is not entitled to protection as an innocent purchaser. Barrett v. Weimar (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 151.

Where a contract between an attorney and a claimant of land, entitling the attorney to a part of the land if successful, was recorded, it was constructive notice of the interests of the attorney. Hussey v. Titterington (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 714.

Where the calls of a recorded deed placed the property conveyed to the east of a line, except that the last course called for a line running "east" to the point of beginning on the first-mentioned line, there was nothing to notify a subsequent purchaser that the... land conveyed was west of such line; the call for the point of beginning prevailing over the direction called for. Dickerson v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1149.

Where a prior recorded deed from plaintiff's vendor of part of the property conveyed to plaintiff described the land conveyed as beginning on a line which was plaintiff's east line, not on that line, hence "east" to the place of beginning, there was nothing to charge plaintiff with notice that the second call should have been west instead of east, since the call of the last course for the beginning point would naturally prevail over the direction stated therein; registration being constructive notice only of what appears on the face of the deed. Id.

Record of deed expressly retaining a vendor's lien for purchase-money notes is constructive notice, putting a subsequent purchaser on inquiry as to provisions of the notes allowing them to be matured for default in interest, and for payment of 10 per cent. attorney's fees in case of suit thereon. Housman v. Houston (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1173.

Persons affected with notice and notice of instruments not in chain of title,—
Where the deeds constituting the chain of title under which the last purchaser holds show that the purchase-money has not been paid, as that one or more of the notes is not due, cannot be held to have notice of the lien. McAlpine v. Willard, 23 T. 649.

A purchaser from the husband is chargeable with notice of a prior recorded deed to the community property executed by the wife after her desertion by the husband. Zimpelman v. Robb, 55 T. 274.

Although the language used in this article gives countenance to the doctrine, that the proper record of an instrument is notice to all the world, yet it has been decided by the supreme court that the proposition is subject to important qualifications. For example in Hines ex. v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 453, the court quote with approval the following language: "The registry of a deed is notice only to those who claim through or under the grantor by whom the deed was executed." White v. McGregor, 32 T. 556, 50 S. W. 584, 71 Am. St. Rep. 875.

A deed of record from the vendee of a vendor is not notice to a subsequent purchaser from the same vendor if the first deed is not of record; and the record of a conveyance is only notice to after-purchasers under the same grantor. Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 452; Jenkins v. Adams, 71 T. 4, 8 S. W. 693; Lumpkin v. Adams, 74 T. 96, 10 S. W. 625; S. v. Heldenheimer, 84 T. 644, 19 S. W. 115.

Registration of a deed is notice only to one claiming under the grantor in the recorded deed. A junior purchaser of land is chargeable not only with notice of the contents of the registered deeds in the chain of title, but when the mesne conveyances contain facts that would put a prudent man on inquiry, he is chargeable with notice of whatever an inquiry would have revealed. Jenkins v. Adams, 71 T. 1, 8 S. W. 693.

A purchaser is not charged with notice of the record of a deed made by a vendee of the same vendor if such vendee's deed is not itself on the record so as to complete the chain of his title. Lumpkin v. Adams, 74 T. 96, 11 S. W. 1070.

The record of a conveyance from the grantee in a deed not recorded is not constructive notice to a subsequent purchaser from the grantor. Ward v. League (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 697; Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 452.

A recorded deed of an insolvent grantor is notice to judgment creditors and defeats a judgment lien on the debtor's estate of inheritance. Hale v. Holland, 14 C. A. 96, 35 S. W. 848, 38 S. W. 288.

Record of a trust deed to secure part of the purchase money, where the deed from the vendor was unrecorded, held not notice to a subsequent purchaser from such vendor. McCreary v. Reliance Lumber Co., 16 C. A. 45, 41 S. W. 485.

A subsequent constructive notice at all would affect only those claiming through testator, unless there should be something in the chain of title leading out to the will. Williams v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 327.

Registry of a sheriff's deed held not notice of its existence as against a bona fide purchaser from a prior grantee of the execution defendant. White v. McGregor, 32 T. 556, 50 S. W. 584, 71 Am. St. Rep. 875.

A purchaser of land is not required to go behind the grantor in his investigation of title, unless put on inquiry. Bogart v. Moody, 35 C. A. 1, 78 S. W. 633.

A purchaser of a patentee having notice of a purchaser lost to themselves to have notice of the prior deed. Ryle v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 823.

A purchaser need only examine the record for conveyances made prior to his purchase by his immediate or remote vendor. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball, 109 T. 94, 122 S. W. 548, 124 S. W. 85.

A recorded deed held not to charge the purchaser of adjoining land with constructive notice that the land bought by him was subject to a water right claimed under the deed. Thompson v. Cole (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 923.

Purchaser from husband, after divorce, of land conveyed to wife, held not entitled to protection as an innocent purchaser. Barrett v. Weimar (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 181.

One buying land from the patentee thereof held not required to search the record for a deed to another, made prior to his application to purchase from the state, which was the basis of the patent. Breen v. Morehead, 104 T. 254, 136 S. W. 1047.

Record of the deeds of the common grantor to plaintiff and those through whom he claimed were immaterial. Hudson v. Jones (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 129.

Since Art. 6824 only includes subsequent purchasers in the chain of title, the origin of whose title is subsequent to the title of the grantee in the recorded deed, plaintiff claiming under an unrecorded conveyance from a decedent, was not charged with notice of a subsequent deed in point of time from decedent's independent executrix. Gibbs v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 323.

A recorded deed disconnected from the title is not notice. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 277.

Defective records.—The recording of an instrument which is impotant without extrinsic evidence to support it is not constructive notice of any right asserted by any one claiming under it. Wright v. Lancaster, 48 T. 250.

The registration of a void deed does not affect any one with notice of its contents. Stiles v. Japhet, 42 T. 91, 19 S. W. 450.

Purchaser chargeable with notice though the number of the certificate in the description is incorrect. Swearingen v. Reed, 2 C. A. 364, 21 S. W. 385.

Defective record of trust deed examined, and held not material as to a subsequent attaching creditor. Hart v. Patterson, 17 C. A. 591, 43 S. W. 545.

Two recorded deeds of a deed held not to aid the title of subsequent grantees from a purchaser with notice of a prior deed. Ryle v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 823.

To be constructive notice it would seem that a registered grant must be sufficient in itself to identify the thing granted. Thompson v. Cole (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 643.

A recorded deed giving grantees “the right to use water for barn, yard, and house purposes” is insufficient to charge the purchaser of adjoining land with constructive notice that the land he bought was subject to a water right claimed under such deed. id.

A recorded deed, describing land by block number, held sufficient to charge with notice a subsequent purchaser under a deed bounding the land by streets. Wilkerson v. Ward (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 155.

A recorded deed of trust, though misdescribing the property, held notice to a subsequent purchaser. Wiseman v. Watters (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 134.

— Destruction of record.— When a deed has been properly recorded the subsequent removal or destruction of the records, without the fault of the party claiming under the deed, cannot prejudice his rights. Fitch v. Boyer, 51 T. 585.

Recorders not required to be recorded.—The recording of instruments which are not required or affirmatively permitted by law to be recorded is not notice. Burnham v. Chandler, 15 T. 441; Wright v. Lancaster, 48 T. 250; Pegram v. Owens, 64 T. 475.

Mere recording of contract by which attorneys prosecuting suit for recovery of land were permitted to receive a possession thereof held not sufficient to charge purchasers of the legal title to the land with notice of any equity in the attorneys. Lewright v. Davis (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 599.

— Defective acknowledgment.— When an instrument is not proven in the mode prescribed by law, it requires no authenticity from having been, in point of fact, recorded. Craddock v. Merril, 2 T. 494.

A deed is not duly registered unless the record shows that the certificate of proof or acknowledgment is recorded. Merriman v. Blilack, 56 C. A. 594, 121 S. W. 562.

A recorded deed held sufficient notice to a subsequent purchaser of the rights of one claiming under a recorded, but not duly acknowledged, deed. Abernathy v. Pickett, 57 C. A. 552, 122 S. W. 579.

— Particular instruments.— To entitle the mortgagee to recover against the purchasers of the mortgaged property, it is not necessary that he should allege and prove the insolvency of the mortgagor. When the mortgage was duly recorded prior to such purchase, the purchaser is affected by notice. Dalian v. Hollacher, 2 App. C. C. § 529, citing Blum v. Conrad, 1 App. C. C. § 1217; Wootton v. Wheeler, 22 T. 338; Wright v. Henderson, 12 T. 43; Baker v. Clepper, 29 T. 629, 84 Am. Dec. 551.

A mortgage duly recorded, describing the note secured thereby, save that the amount was not given, is constructive notice to subsequent mortgagees. Clements v. Jones Lumber Co., 82 T. 424, 18 S. W. 599.

Recorded transfer of national road certificate held constructive notice. Gist v. East, 16 C. A. 374, 41 S. W. 395.

A second mortgagee, whose mortgage is recorded before notice of an unrecorded first mortgage, as against the first mortgagee, cannot acquire additional rights to the property from the mortgagor after the first mortgage is recorded. Kerr v. Galloway, 94 T. 641, 64 S. W. 558.

This statute is not available to a creditor as against a mortgage upon lands though a deed absolute in form which has been recorded. Long v. Fields, 31 C. A. 241, 71 S. W. 716.

One claiming land under a mortgage held bound to know of the invalidity of the mortgage by reason of a prior recorded instrument executed by the mortgagor. Mansfield v. Wardlow (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 859.

A mortgage to secure future advances which gives sufficient information as to the extent and purpose of the contract held prior to the supervening claims of purchasers or creditors as to all advances within the terms of the mortgage, whether made before or after the claim of such purchaser or creditor arose, or before the mortgagee had notice thereof. F. Groes & Co. v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1006.

Where a deed intended as a mortgage was registered, a prior registration was sufficient to serve as notice to subsequent purchasers that the instrument was in fact a mortgage. Hamilton v. Grech (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 250.

A provision in a deed which was absolute on its face, to the effect that it should remain in escrow for 90 days and delivered to the grantee at the end of that time, if a sum named therein was not paid, held sufficient to operate as notice of the character of the instrument. Moorhead v. Ellison, 56 C. A. 444, 120 S. W. 1049.

Bona fide purchasers affected by considerations other than record of instrument.— See notes under Art. 6554.

Abstracts of title.— An abstract of title made from public records before their destruction and recorded afterwards held not notice to a purchaser unless he would have learned of it and its contents by investigating as a prudent man in good faith would, and would have concluded that the deed recited therein as conveying the land was executed. Frugia v. Trueheart, 48 C. A. 513, 106 S. W. 736.
CHAPTER FOUR

REGISTRATION OF SEPARATE PROPERTY OF MARRIED WOMEN

Art. 6843. Marriage contract to be recorded. - When the wife by a marriage contract may reserve to herself any property or rights to property, whether such rights be in esse or expectancy, for such reservation to be valid as to the subsequent purchasers or creditors of her husband, the said contract must be acknowledged by her husband or proved by at least one witness, and recorded in the clerk's office of the county court of the county in which said married parties may reside. [Act Jan. 20, 1840, p. 3, sec. 8. P. D. 4035.]

In general.—By deeds of marriage settlement made and recorded in Florida in 1838, A. and B., the intended husband and wife, conveyed to trustees the property of B., consisting in part of slaves, limiting the same to the separate use of B. for her life, with remainder to her issue by A., and empowering the trustees, with the consent of B., to exchange the property conveyed for other property, which should be held under like limitations. In 1839 A. and B. were removed to Texas, bringing with them some of the slaves covered by the marriage contract, and two others acquired in exchange for other property named therein. In 1853 town lots were conveyed to B. in consideration of property embraced in the marriage contract, or other property received in lieu thereof. In 1864 A. and B. conveyed said lots by deed of trust to secure an indebtedness of A. to M., but before its execution the agent of M. had notice of the marriage contract, and that the property mentioned in the deed of trust was acquired with some of the property covered by it. Held, that the remainder-men could restrain the sale of the property under the deed of trust. Lott v. Bertrand, 26 T. 654.

Art. 6844. Property of married women to be registered. - All property, real and personal, which may be owned or claimed at the time of marriage by any woman, or which she may acquire after marriage by gift, devise or descent, shall be registered as herein directed. [Act April 29, 1846, p. 153, sec. 1. P. D. 4995.]

Failure to register. - A married woman is not prejudiced by her failure to register her separate property. Edrington v. Mayfield, 5 T. 337; Le Giers v. Moore, 59 T. 470; Parks v. Willard, 1 T. 361; Warren v. Dickerson, 3 T. 462.

Art. 6845. May present and prove schedule for record. - Each woman now married, or who may be hereafter married, may present to any officer authorized by law to take acknowledgments or proof of instruments for record, a schedule particularly describing all the property, real and personal, which she now owns and possesses, or which she may own and possess at the time of her marriage, and make her statement under oath before such officer that the property described in the schedule is her separate property; and upon such statement being made, such officer shall annex to the schedule a certificate of the fact under his hand and seal of office; which certificate shall be sufficient evidence for the recorder of any county to record the same. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 4996.]

Effect of failure to file schedule. - The failure of a married woman to file and record a schedule of her separate property, as provided by this article and Art. 6848, does not invalidate her right thereto as against a mortgagee of the husband; such mortgagee not being an innocent lienholder of the property. Walker v. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 315.

Art. 6846. Property acquired after marriage. - Each married woman upon coming into possession of any property, real or personal, to which she had claim at the time of her marriage, or which she may afterward acquire by gift, devise or descent, shall have the same recorded in the same manner as prescribed in the foregoing article. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 4997.]

Art. 6847. [4657] In what county registration must be made.—The registration of the wife's separate property herein provided for, if real estate, shall be made in the county or counties in which the same, or a part thereof, is situated; if personal property, in the county or counties where the same remains; and in case such personal property be removed out of the county, the registration must also be made in the county to which the property is removed within four months after such removal. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 4998.]

Art. 6848. [4659] Conclusive as to subsequent creditors, etc.—The registration of any schedule of a wife's separate property, made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, shall be conclusive as against all subsequent creditors of and purchasers from her husband. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 5000.]

CHAPTER FIVE
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 6849. Penalty for failing to record. Conveyance heretofore made to be governed by existing laws. Recording, and as evidence, to be governed by the then existing laws. Party may have action to correct error when certificate is imperfect. May obtain judgment proving imperfect instrument.

Article 6849. [4660] Penalty for failing to record, etc.—If any recorder to whom any instrument of writing authorized to be recorded by him, and proved or acknowledged according to law, which shall be delivered for record, shall neglect or refuse to make an entry thereof, or give receipt therefor, as required by law, or shall neglect or refuse to record such instrument of writing within a reasonable time after receiving the same, or shall record any instrument of writing affecting the same property, or any part thereof, before another first deposited in his office and entitled to be recorded, or shall record any such instrument incorrectly, or shall neglect or refuse to provide and keep in his office such indexes as required by law, he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, to be recovered on motion in the district court, one-half to the use of the county, and the other half to the use of the person who shall sue for the same, such clerk having three days' notice of such motion, and shall also be liable to the party for all damages he may have sustained thereby, to be recovered by suit on the official bond of such recorder, given by him as the clerk of the county court, against such clerk and his sureties. [Act May 12, 1846, p. 236, sec. 18. P. D. 5018.]

In general.—A party who has properly filed a deed for record is not prejudiced by the neglect of the clerk in respect to its registration. Throckmorton v. Price, 28 T. 666, 91 Am. Dec. 334; ante, Art. 6830 and note.

Art. 6850. [4661] Conveyances heretofore made to be governed by the then existing laws.—The legality of the execution, acknowledgment, proof, form or record of any conveyance or other instrument heretofore made, executed, acknowledged, proved or recorded, shall not be affected by anything contained in this title, but shall depend for its validity and legality upon the laws in force when the act was performed.
Art. 6851. [4662] Recording, and as evidence, to be governed by the then existing laws.—All conveyances of real property heretofore made and acknowledged or proved, according to the laws in force at the time of such making and acknowledgment or proof, shall have the same force as evidence, and may be recorded in the same manner, and with the like effect as conveyances executed and acknowledged in pursuance of this title.

In general.—Where a deed was authenticated so as to entitle it to registration under the law in force at its execution, and was duly recorded in 1849, its re-registration in 1894, after the destruction of the public records, is sufficient for all purposes of notice after that date under the express provisions of this article. Frugia v. Trueheart, 49 C. A. 613, 106 S. W. 736.

The act of 1871 (Acts 1871, p. 77, c. 76), permitting acknowledgment of every instrument for record, when acknowledged within the United States, to be taken before some judge or clerk of a court of record having a seal, was in force when Act April 27, 1874 (Acts 1874, p. 152, c. 105), was enacted, which provided that every deed required to be registered, which shall have been heretofore acknowledged in the manner required by law, within the United States, before any officer now authorized by law to take such acknowledgment, and which shall have been duly certified by such officer, shall be held to be acknowledged with the full consequences of existing laws. Held, that since a judge of the supreme court of Louisiana could have legally taken an acknowledgment of a deed, when the deed was passed, any defect in the deed, acknowledged before a judge of such court a number of years before that date, because the statute of the republic of Texas then in force required foreign acknowledgments to be taken before consular agents, etc., was cured by the act of 1874, and hence a copy of such deed was admissible in evidence. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Sup.) 128 S. W. 533.

Act April 27, 1874 (Laws 1874, p. 152, c. 105), provides that every deed required to be registered, which shall have been heretofore acknowledged in the manner required by law, within the United States, before any officers now authorized to take such acknowledgments, and which shall have been duly certified by such officers, shall be held to be duly acknowledged with the full consequences of existing laws, provided that the act shall not affect any right acquired prior to its passage. Held, that the act only affected rules of evidence, and gave no greater effect to a deed, the defective acknowledgment of which it cured, than it had under the law existing when it was executed. Id.

Art. 6852. [4663] Party may have action to correct error where certificate is imperfect.—When the acknowledgment or proof of the execution of any instrument in writing may be properly made, but defectively certified, any party interested may have an action in the district court to obtain a judgment correcting the certificate.

Application in general.—The statute applies to deeds and other instruments properly executed and acknowledged by married women, but defectively certified, as well as to instruments executed by other persons. Its effect is simply to correct or complete the informal act of an officer, where there was no defect in the actual execution and acknowledgment of an instrument. In this case suit was brought against the heirs of a married woman of acknowledgment, to correct a defective certificate, conveying land which was her separate property. The evidence did not show that the officer before whom the acknowledgment was made explained the deed to her. Held, that the deed was not properly executed where the officer failed to explain the instrument; and the fact that she may have read it to her, but under the impression she and others had talked the matter over before, was not enough. Johnson v. Taylor, 60 T. 360.

Correction of certificate.—When the husband and wife join in a deed for the separate property of the wife, and the wife's private and separate acknowledgment is properly taken, the title to the property passes to the purchaser. That the officer may fail to make a perfect certificate of such acknowledgment does not destroy the title of the purchaser, and an action can be maintained by the purchaser to correct and supply the defects in the officer's certificate. Williams v. Ellingsworth, 75 T. 480, 12 S. W. 746. See post, Art. 6853; Johnson v. Taylor, 60 T. 360; Johnson v. Bryan, 62 T. 623.

A registration upon a defective certificate is a nullity. While the certificate of private acknowledgment, if defective, may be supplied or corrected, the registration is not validated. Hayden v. Moffatt, 74 T. 647, 12 S. W. 850, 15 Am. St. Rep. 366.

When an officer takes a wife's acknowledgment properly, but fails to make out his certificate of the fact properly, the contract is not void but takes effect as between the parties from the time that the acknowledgment is properly taken, and action will lie to correct the certificate within four years. 1 B. & L. Ass'n v. Goforth, 94 T. 275, 92 S. W. 773.

As a registration upon a defective certificate of acknowledgment is a nullity, its subsequent correction would not relate back and validate such previous void registration. Hughes v. Wright & Vaughan (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 536.

The refusal to correct the certificate of a wife's acknowledgment of an instrument held proper under the evidence. Downs v. Peterson, 46 C. A. 135, 99 S. W. 753.

Held, that the certificate would not which the certificate required to which acknowledgment is insufficient is not void, if it was in fact acknowledged by her in the manner required by the statute, and by timely suit for that purpose the grantee in the deed or any one holding title thereunder may have the certificate corrected and made good. 20 C. A. 289.

Judgment as evidence.—The private examination of and acknowledgment by a married woman are absolutely essential to the passing of her title to land, and the only evidence 4452
Art. 6853. [4664] May obtain judgment of proof of any instrument.—Any person interested under any instrument in writing entitled to be proved for record may institute an action in the district court against the proper parties to obtain a judgment proving such instrument.

In general.—Suit was brought by a nonresident plaintiff against a nonresident defendant, both of whom had once been partners, to prove up for record an instrument in writing which on its face certified that the defendant had given up to plaintiff all claims which once belonged to both, and also all claims to land which belonged to both. The firm did own lands in Texas, but the suit in the county where the suit was brought. On plea to the jurisdiction in the nature of a plea of abatement, calling in question the power of the district court to adjudicate upon the subject-matter, held: 1. The statute in such case did not fix the venue, and the parties being nonresidents, having no domicile in Texas, the venue must be determined by general rules applicable to the matter, independent of statute. 2. The cause of action was not local, but transitory, though the result of the action might, on some future contingency, affect the title to land indirectly. 3. The cause of action was one regarding which jurisdiction could be exercised in the district court of any county in which service could be obtained on the defendant, or where he might appear, and by making defense waive service. 4. The instrument was such as, in so far as it conveyed land, was entitled to be admitted to record if properly authenticated; and the fact that on its face it attempted to dispose of choses in action could not affect the right to have it recorded as an entirety. Pemex v. Owens, 64 T. 476.

Art. 6854. [4665] Effect of judgment in such action.—A certified copy of the judgment in a proceeding instituted under either of the two preceding articles, showing the proof of the instrument, and attached thereto, shall entitle such instrument to record, with like effect as if acknowledged.

Art. 6855. [4666] Record of certain titles confirmed.—Any grant, deed, or other instrument of writing, for the conveyance of real estate or personal property, or both, or for the settlement thereof in marriage, or separate property, or conveyance of the same in mortgage, or trust to uses, or on conditions, as well as any and every other deed or instrument required or permitted by law to be registered, and which shall have been prior to the ninth day of February, 1860, registered or recorded, shall be held to have been lawfully registered, with the full effect and consequences of existing laws; provided, the same shall have been acknowledged by the grantor or grantors before any chief justice, or associate justice, or clerk of the county court, or notary public in any county within the late republic or the now state of Texas, or judge of the department of Brazos, or any primary judge, or judge of the first instance in 1835 or 1836, or proven before any such officer by one or more of the subscribing witnesses thereto, and certified by such officer, whether such acknowledgment or proof shall have been made before any such officer of the county where such instrument should have been recorded or not. [Act Feb. 9, 1860, sec. 2. P. D. 5021.]

Historical.—The act of February 5, March 17, 1841, reads as follows:

"Any grant, deed, or instrument for the conveyance of real estate, or personal, or both, or for the settlement thereof in marriage, or separate property, or conveyance of the same in mortgage, or trust to uses, or on conditions, as well as any and every other deed or instrument required or permitted by law to be registered, and which shall have been heretofore registered, shall, from the passage of this act, be held to have been duly registered, with the full effects and consequences of the existing laws; provided, the same shall have been acknowledged by the grantor or grantors, before any chief justice of the county court, or before any notary public, or before the clerk of the county court in whose office such record is proposed to be made, or proved before such officer by one or more of the subscribing witnesses, and certified by such officer; any obscurity or conflict in the existing laws to the contrary notwithstanding." [5th Cong., sec. 20, p. 163.]

Validating acts of 1874 and 1876:

"Every grant, deed, mortgage, power of attorney, or other instrument of writing, for the conveyance of real or personal estate, required or permitted by law to be registered, that shall have been heretofore acknowledged or proven in the manner prescribed by law, within the state and within the United States and their territories, before any one of the officers in such cases now authorized by law to take such acknowledgments or proofs, and which shall have been duly certified by such officer, shall be held to be duly acknowledged or proven with the full effects and consequences of existing laws; and any such instrument, which shall have been so acknowledged or proven before either of such officers, and which shall have been heretofore registered, shall be held to be duly Art. 6855. Registration.

registered with like full effects and consequences of existing laws; provided, however, that it shall not be so construed as to give it any right acquired prior to its passage." [Act April 27, 1874, p. 152; Early Laws, art. 2342.]

"Any certificate of acknowledgment of any married woman to any deed of conveyance, letter of attorney, or other written instrument, purporting to convey, her separate estate, or her interest in the homestead, herefore taken by any chief justice, district clerk, notary public, or other officer, authorized by the laws of this state to take such acknowledgment, whenever such certificate of acknowledgment is invalid, because the same is wanting in any word, or words necessary to be contained in such certificate of acknowledgment by the requirements of the statutes in such cases made and provided, shall, nevertheless, be as valid and as binding on all persons making such written instrument, as if such certificate of acknowledgment was in strict conformity to law; provided that said certificate shall show, on its face, that the married woman was examined, by the officer taking the acknowledgment, separate and apart from her husband, and having the same fully explained to her, she declared that she had willingly signed the same, and that she wished not to retract it, or words to that effect; and, provided further, that nothing contained in this act shall prevent the parties interested from setting up and pleading fraud." [Act July 28, 1876, p. 61; Early Laws, art. 4203.]

In general.—Where it was admitted that A. acted as judge in 1835, and a deed was produced which purported to have been made before him as second judge of the first instance in that year, with two instrumental and two assisting witnesses, there is a presumption in favor of his authority to act, although the facts are not stated. McKissick v. Colquhoun, 18 T. 148.

A power of attorney was acknowledged before a primary judge on the 14th of July, 1886, and was properly admitted to record in December, 1886. Butler v. Dunagan, 19 T. 559.

The healing act of 1860 legalized the registration of a conveyance of land lying in G. county, which was proven for record before the county clerk of T. county, and afterwards recorded in the proper county. Crayton v. Hamilton, 37 T. 269.

In 1855, of a deed authenticated in 1839 by the county clerk, without the seal, was good by force of various validating acts. Waters v. Spofford, 58 T. 116.

The act of February 5, 1841, did not validate a previous defective acknowledgment. McCelvøy v. Cryer, 8 C. A. 437, 28 S. W. 691. The act of February 9, 1860 (Sayles' Early Laws, art. 2854), validated a registered deed illegally acknowledged before a notary public in 1839. Id.

Art. 6856. 4667 Shall be evidence, when.—All such instruments which shall have been acknowledged or proven before any officer named in the preceding article, and which shall have been afterward recorded in the proper county, or certified copies thereof, shall be evidence in the courts, as full and sufficient as if such acknowledgment had been taken or proof made in accordance with existing laws; but this article and the article preceding shall not be construed so as to affect or bind, in any manner, any person or party with constructive notice of the existence of any deed or other instrument of writing as a recorded deed or instrument, except after the ninth day of February, 1860, and in the future. [Id. sec. 3. P. D. 5022.]

Art. 6857. 4668 Old registration operative after creating new county.—Where an instrument in writing has been duly registered in the proper county, and any property conveyed or incumbered by such instrument shall fall within another county subsequently created, the prior registration shall not be deemed to be thereby invalidated or in any manner affected, but shall still continue to be equivalent to an actual notice of its contents to all persons whomsoever; and it shall be the duty of the county court of the new county (and at the expense thereof) to cause a transcript of the record of all such instruments to be made and duly certified and deposited in the recorder's office of said new county, for public inspection, and indexes of the same to be made.

In general.—The registration of a deed in the proper county is operative in a new county subsequently created in which the land mentioned in the instrument shall be. Art. 6857; McKissick v. Colquhoun, 18 T. 148; Frizzell v. Johnson, 30 T. 31; Herrington v. Williams, 31 T. 448; Melton v. Turner, 38 T. 81.

There is no authority for recording in the new county a certified copy of the record of a deed in the parent county, and a certified copy of such record in the new county is not admissible. Williamson v. Work, 33 C. A. 369, 77 S. W. 267.

Art. 6858. 4669 Attachments to be recorded, when.—Whenever an attachment is levied upon real estate, the officer levying the writ shall immediately file with the county clerk of the county or counties in which the real estate so levied upon is situated, a copy of the writ, together with a copy of so much of his return as relates to the land in said county. Said clerk shall enter in a book, to be kept for that purpose, the names of the plaintiffs and defendants in attachment, the amount of the debt and the return of the officer in full. Should the writ of attachment be quashed or otherwise vacated, the court in which the attachment suit is pending shall cause a certified copy of said order to be sent to the county clerk of the county or counties in which the real estate levied upon is situated. Said clerk shall, upon the receipt of the same, enter in the book aforesaid the names of the plaintiffs and defendants and record the order of the court in full. If the real estate levied upon is situated in any county other than the one in which the suit is pending, then, in case of failure to make the record aforesaid, the attachment lien shall not be valid against subsequent purchasers for value and without notice and subsequent lienholders in good faith. The county clerk of every county in this state shall keep a well-bound book for the record of the matters aforesaid, and shall keep a direct and reverse index thereto in which shall be entered the names of all the plaintiffs and defendants in the various attachments recorded by him; and the order of the court aforesaid shall be indexed in the same manner; and certified copies of such records shall be admissible in lieu of the original writ and entries. Clerks of the county court shall receive the same fees for recording the matter herein provided for as they are now allowed by law for recording deeds, to be paid by the plaintiff, and said fees to be taxed as a part of the costs in the case in which the attachment is issued and paid and collected as other costs. Sheriffs shall receive a fee of one dollar for making the copy and return herein provided for, to be taxed and collected as other costs in the suit. [Acts 1889, p. 80.]

Failure to record writ and return.—A writ of attachment is not invalidated because a copy is not returned to county clerk for registration. Woldert v. Nedderhut Provision & Packing Co., 18 C. A. 662, 46 S. W. 378.

The failure to record the writ of attachment and return in the county where the land is situated will not affect the lien by virtue of the levy. The failure to record applies only to counties other than those in which the land is situated. Davis v. John V. Farwell Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 656.

Article 6859. [4670] What roads are declared to be public.—All public roads and highways that have heretofore been laid out and established agreeably to law, except such as have been discontinued, are hereby declared to be public roads. [Act July 29, 1876, p. 64, sec. 6.]

The mere failure of the commissioners’ court to comply with all the statutes relating to laying out public roads will not per se render the land taken not a public road. Race

Prescription.—The public use for a less period of time than will give a right by prescription will not appropriate the way used beyond that designated in the order establishing it. Wooldridge v. Eastland Co., 70 T. 680, 8 S. W. 568.

Before a highway can be established by prescription it must appear that the general public, under a claim of right and not by mere permission of the owner, used some defined way, without interruption or substantial change, for the longest period of limitation prescribed by the statute. Where the use is merely permissive, there is no basis on which the right of way by prescription can vest. The use of vacant uninclosed lands for twenty years by the public in passing and repassing will give no prescriptive rights. Cunningham

Where a road crossed a railroad, a right by prescription to a crossing held shown by the evidence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kaufman County, 17 C. A. 281, 43 S. W. 566.

Prescriptive use of road by public, which may ripen into control by county, inures to benefit of any person who may have interest in maintaining it. Hall v. City of Austin, 29 C. A. 68, 45 S. W. 63.

Building of a railroad across a highway held not to prevent the public acquiring title by prescription. A railroad, having maintained a crossing for 40 years over a road, held estoppel to say the public had not acquired a prescriptive right therein. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Hardman, 21 C. A. 236, 51 S. W. 243.

The rule that a public road cannot be established by prescription where it runs over a prairie does not apply when it is fenced on each side. Raven v. Travis County (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 565.

Land deeded subject to have street from neighboring town opened through it, said land being occasionally used as public way, held not a public way by prescription. Jefferson County v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 711.

A road which has been recognized and worked by the public authorities as originally laid out 15 years, and which has been traveled during the entire time, is a public road. Ward v. State, 42 Cr. R. 435, 50 S. W. 757.

A road recognized and worked by the public for some 25 years, and used by it for over 20 years, held a public road. Race v. State, 45 Cr. R. 488, 66 S. W. 560.

A road becomes a public road when the commissioners' court recognizes it by assigning hands to work it, and the public use it as a public road. Id.

A road may be shown to be a public road by evidence of long-continued use, assignment of hands to work it by the proper authorities, and the like. Id.

Where the prescriptive period to establish the public right to a road is not fixed by statute, the longest period of limitations in actions for land, which is 10 years, will control. Evans v. Scott, 34 C. A. 572, 53 S. W. 874.

To establish a right by prescription in a strip of land for a street, there must have been uninterrupted adverse use for 10 years as such would put owner on notice as to the claim. Cockrell v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 977.

A highway may be established by user by the public in such manner and for such a length of time as to give the public a right therein by prescription or limitation. The use by the public, without objection, of an uninclosed portion of a railroad's right of way in a manner that did not interfere with its use by the railroad did not make the way so used a public highway by prescription. Hellbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 53 C. A. 676, 118 S. W. 619, 979.

The public may by adverse use for the prescriptive period acquire right of highway in a road, though the county authorities have not recognized it as a public road. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 699.

Mere acquiescence by the owner of uninclosed land in its use as a road is not sufficient evidence of its dedication. Ramthun v. Halfman, 58 S. W. 561; Gilder v. City of Brenham, 67 T. 346, 3 S. W. 309; Worthington v. Wade, 82 T. 24, 17 S. W. 520.

See, also, notes under Art. 1103.

Evidence of existence and of highway. — The existence of a public road may be shown by its long continuance and its being worked under orders of the commissioners' court. Wooldridge v. Eastland Co., 70 T. 680, 8 S. W. 503; Click v. Lamar County, 79 T. 121, 14 S. W. 1048; Vogt v. Boxar County, 5 C. A. 372, 25 S. W. 1044; Albert v. Railroad Co., 2 C. A. 964, 21 S. W. 799.

Proved that a road had been used by the public as a highway for 40 years, that a jury had been appointed by the commissioners' court of the county to locate a public road along the roadway, that a public road had been marked out, and that thereafter overseers had been appointed and hands apportioned, and the road worked under the supervision of the county, is a sufficient prima facie showing of the existence of a public road. Ballard v. Bowie County (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 56.

Validity of highway. — It is not essential to the validity of a highway that the record of the commissioners' court should show affirmatively a compliance with all the requirements preliminary to the establishment of the road. Sneed v. Pulle County (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 121.

Streets and alleys in cities. — See Title 22, Chapter 10.

Macadam and plank road corporations. — See Title 25, Chapter 19.

Militia entitled to right of way. — See Title 91, Chapter 3.

Art. 6860. [4671] Commissioners' courts to open, etc. — The commissioners' courts of the several counties shall have full powers and it shall be their duty to order the laying out and opening of public roads when necessary, and to discontinue or alter any road whenever it shall be deemed expedient as hereinafter prescribed. [Acts 1889, p. 21.]

Cited, Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 512.

In general. — This article applies only to such roads as are described in Art. 6559.

Prescriptive authority to establish. — The authority conferred upon the legislature to "pass local laws for the maintenance of public roads," etc., authorizes that body to confer on a county power to do everything for which the purpose may be lawfully applied, e. g., laying out and constructing roads. Dallas County v. Plowman, 89 T. 599, 91 S. W. 221.

Art. 6860

ROADS, BRIDGES AND FERRIES

The commissioners' court may establish a road which is a cul-de-sac. It may connect with a road for general use leading to a county seat. Decker v. Menard County (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 727.

The commissioners' court has general jurisdiction and power over the subject-matter of laying out and establishing public roads, and the limitation of this power by the constitution of this article applies to the discontinuance or alteration of a road already established. Allen v. Parker County, 23 C. A. 536, 57 S. W. 705.

In such matters as changing highways the county authorities do not act for their own benefit, but, in a sense, as trustees for the public, and their powers and duties are prescribed herein. Hall v. House, 52 C. A. 90, 114 S. W. 591.

Under the statute conferring on the commissioners' court the power to lay out public roads over lands, including public lands, except when actually used by the state or public, as provided by this article, a public highway not prescribed by the court may establish a road over public school lands of the state subject to sale, by entering on its minutes an order to that effect and by actual use, and the statutory provisions for condemnation relate solely to the proceedings against property of individuals. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 812.

Acquisition of land for widening road.—Under this article and Art. 2241, the commissioners' court has power to condemn a strip of land to alter a highway by widening it. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

The commissioners' court had power to institute condemnation proceedings on its own motion to widen a highway acquired by purchase. Id.

Granting right to build railroad.—The commissioners' court of a county has authority to grant a railroad a right to build a track in a public road or highway. Tarrant & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 23 C. A. 551, 67 S. W. 525.

Procedure in general.—Where the power to lay out and establish public roads exists, acts of proceeding may be waived and a departure therefrom will not render void an order establishing a road. Allen v. Parker County, 23 C. A. 536, 57 S. W. 703.

That a majority only of the commissioners' court consented to a condemnation order to acquire land for the widening of a highway did not invalidate the judgment of condemnation. Hall v. House, 52 C. A. 90, 114 S. W. 591.

Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

Where land was condemned to widen a highway, the fact that the jury of view did not act in conjunction with the county surveyor did not render the proceedings void. Id.

Discontinuance of road.—Under this article and Arts. 6861-6876, a substantial compliance with the statutes, including those provisions as to qualification of the signers to the application, investigation, etc., was essential in order to legally discontinue a part of a public road. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 469.

Art. 6861. [4672] Shall not be changed, except, etc.—No public roads shall be altered or changed, except for the purpose of shortening the distance from the point of beginning to the point of destination, unless the court upon a full investigation of the proposed change finds that the public interest will be better served by making the change; that said change shall be by unanimous consent of all the commissioners elected. [Id.]

Changing character of road.—Where the original order established a third-class road, the commissioners' court cannot change its classification arbitrarily, without notice or further proceedings, to a second-class road, and require the removal of gates, thereby imposing an additional burden without compensation. Such action would be violative of the seventeenth section of the bill of rights. Wooldridge v. Eastland County, 70 T. 680, 69 S. W. 503.

An application to change a third-class road need only be signed by one freeholder in the precinct. Smith v. Ernest, 46 C. A. 247, 102 S. W. 130.

That the order provides that the change in the course of a road shall be made at the expense of the party procuring the order does not affect the validity of the order. Id.

Under this article and Art. 6885, a change made by some one at the instance of the commissioners of the precinct in which the road is located, without any order of the court, is not binding on the public, though thereafter hands apportioned worked the new road and bridges were constructed on it. Ballard v. Bowie County (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 56.

Art. 6862. [4673] Roads in towns and cities where no incorporation.—In all cities and incorporated towns in the state of Texas in which from any cause there is not a de facto municipal government in the active discharge of their official duties, the commissioners' court of the county in which such city or incorporated town is situated shall assume and have control of the streets and alleys thereof, and shall have the same worked under the law and regulations for the working of public roads; and such streets and alleys for the purposes of this article shall be held and denominated public roads; provided, that all residents of any city or town, having no de facto city government, not otherwise exempt from road duty, shall be liable to road service as in other cases. [Acts 1885, p. 25.]
Art. 6863. [4674] First class roads from county seat to county seat, etc.—The commissioners' courts of the several counties shall see that at least one first class road of the width prescribed by law is laid out and opened from the county seats of their respective counties on the most direct and practicable route to the lines of their county in the direction of the county seats of each adjacent county, where no part of another county intervenes between the county seats of such counties; or, if a border county, to meet the nearest road to the border; and, if any adjacent county is not organized, then in the direction of the center of such county. And the commissioners' court of a county to which one or more unorganized counties are attached for judicial purposes shall lay out and open at least two first class roads sixty feet in width through the extent of each such unorganized county to intersect at right angles as nearly as may be at the center of the county, and to meet at the county lines similar roads of the adjacent counties. In counties now having public roads substantially complying with the preceding requirement as to course, the court shall be required only to give such roads the width of sixty feet and clear them of obstructions; such roads, however, shall not be laid out across orchards, yards, lots or graveyards, or within one hundred feet of a residence, without the consent of the owner; provided, that this law shall not apply to counties where there already exists a sufficiency of public roads. [Acts 1884, p. 63, sec. 1.]

Character of road.—Under this article a public road between county seats is a first-class road, and the commissioners' court may not designate it a second-class road. Mid-dleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 812.

Notice to landowners.—Where a road is laid out under the authority of this and subsequent articles no notice to the owners of lands to be crossed is contemplated by the law. This cannot be held a taking of property without compensation, as provision is made for the payment of damages for lands thus taken. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 112.

The owner must have notice of the matter of assessing damages to make the condemnation of his land for a public road legal. Morgan v. Oliver, 98 T. 218, 52 S. W. 1028, 4 Ann. Cas. 900.

Jurisdiction of appeal.—An appeal from the commissioners' court denying damages to one whose land has been taken for a first-class road from the county seat to county line in direction of another county seat lies to the district court and not to the county court. Northington v. Taylor County (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 936.

Art. 6864. [4675] Jury of view to be appointed.—It shall be the duty of each commissioners' court on their own motion to appoint a jury of view to lay out the roads required in the preceding article, and to mark and define them, and to report in writing such marks and any prominent natural objects that may aid in defining the route selected. And upon the report of the jury of view such roads shall be declared public highways of the first class; and the court shall order the overseer to open the same, and where the country is open prairie to plow a furrow on each side of the road and establish monuments at convenient intervals. [Id. sec. 2.]

Cited, Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 235; Hankamer v. County Com'r's Court, 154 S. W. 623.

Former law.—It was held under the act of February 5, 1884, that previous application and published notice were not essential to the appointment by the commissioners' court. Besley v. Daniels, 9 C. A. 365, 29 S. W. 533.

Appointment of jury.—The appointment of some of the petitioners for the road on the jury of view does not render void the judgment of the commissioners' court laying out such road. Vogt v. Bexar County, 16 C. A. 567, 42 S. W. 127.

A statute making conditional which provides that a jury of view shall be appointed by the commissioners' court without the concurrence of property owners. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 635, 45 S. W. 339.

Necessity for acting with county surveyor.—That the jury of view in proceedings to widen a highway did not act in conjunction with the county surveyor did not invalidate the proceedings. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

Authority to change route.—The commissioners' court may approve or reject the report, but cannot lay out a different road except as specified in the statute. Cummings v. El Paso County, 7 C. A. 194, 29 S. W. 439.

A road held not lawfully located, so as to warrant prosecution for the obstruction, where a road overseer under authority of the county judge changed the location of the road, as the commissioners' court alone has jurisdiction to locate a public road. Ehlers v. State, 44 Cr. R. 156, 89 S. W. 148.

Time for making report.—That a jury of view in highway proceedings did not report to the next regular term of the commissioners' court, after their appointment, held not to vitiate the proceedings. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.
Art. 6865. [4676] Damages, how assessed.—If damages are claimed by an owner of land so appropriated for public highways, or by any person where inclosed premises are crossed, a jury to assess such damages shall be appointed as now provided in article 6877 of the Revised Statutes.  [Id. sec. 3.]

Appointment of jury.—Article 4371, R. S. 1879, is not expressly referred to in Acts 1894, ch. 29 (now Arts. 6863-6870); but it is clearly to be implied therefrom that the written consent of the owner was to be applied for and if not obtained then that five freeholders should be appointed to assess the damages. Morgan v. Oliver, 98 T. 218, 82 S. W. 1025, 4 Ann. Cas. 900.

Art. 6866. [4677] When damages are excessive, etc.—If the damages assessed be excessive, the court may appoint another jury to assess them; and upon the second report, if the damages are deemed excessive, the court may change the road so as to avoid the property so greatly damaged; provided, such change will not divert the road more than one-quarter of a mile from a direct line; provided, further, that in all cases where the owner or owners of lands over which such roads shall pass shall have the right of appeal to the district court where the same shall be tried (by first giving a bond in a sufficient amount to cover all costs); and, if a greater amount of damages is there obtained, the county shall pay the excess and the costs, but if no greater damages are obtained the party taking the appeal shall pay all costs; provided, that such appeal shall in no case delay or prevent the immediate opening of such road after the damages assessed as above have been tendered.  [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6867. [4678] Owners of inclosed lands shall have nine months, etc.—Persons through whose inclosed premises such roads are laid out shall have nine months to remove and adapt their fences to the road. Where the county is unorganized, the owners of fences shall not be required to remove them until such county shall become organized, and not then until fifty residents of such county shall petition the commissioners' court for the removal of such fences; provided, that at all times the owners of such fences shall have at the crossing of such road convenient gates not less than twelve feet wide.  [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6868. [4679] Compensation of jurors.—The juries of view and the juries to assess damages shall, for the organized counties, be allowed such compensation as is now provided by law; and, for the unorganized counties, the sum of two dollars per day for the actual time employed, and five cents per mile for the actual distance traveled to mark and lay out the road or to assess the damages, which amounts, on sworn accounts, shall be paid out of the respective county funds. And any person summoned as a viewer as provided in this chapter who shall fail or refuse to perform the service required of him by law as such viewer shall be fined for contempt by the commissioners' court for every such failure not less than five dollars nor more than ten dollars, to be collected as other fines are collected; provided, that all reasonable excuses shall be heard.  [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6869. [4680] In unorganized counties, etc.—Where there are no persons in the unorganized counties to act or willing to serve on the jury of view or jury to assess damages, the court shall designate citizens of their own county to perform the service.  [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6870. [4681] Such roads to be changed, when.—Nothing in the preceding article shall be construed to prohibit the opening of other roads as is now provided by law. Roads laid out under the provisions of article 6863 shall not be changed, except for the purpose of securing a better and more direct route, and then only after an actual view by a majority of the commissioners' court of that portion of the road sought to be changed. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6871. [4682] To classify all public roads.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners’ courts to classify all public roads in their counties into first, second and third class roads, and to act as supervisors of roads in their respective precincts, as hereinafter provided, and commissioners’ courts may, on their own motion, where it is deemed necessary, open new roads or straighten existing ones. [Acts 1884, p. 20.]

In accordance with Art. 6871, a county court may affect Art. 6874, requiring the appointment of a jury of view, or authorize the courts to change the report made by such jury as to the location of the road or as to the damages, without a hearing or without complying with Arts. 6879–6884. Cummings v. Kendall County, 7 C. A. 164, 26 S. W. 489; Floyd v. Turner, 28 T. 263; McIntire v. Lucker, 77 T. 269, 13 S. W. 1027; Vogt v. Bexar County, 5 C. A. 275, 3 S. W. 1044.

Art. 6872. [4683] First class roads.—First class roads shall be clear of all obstructions, and not less than forty feet nor more than sixty feet wide; all stumps over six inches in diameter to be cut down to six inches of the surface and rounded off, all stumps six inches and under to be cut smooth with the ground, and all causeways made at least sixteen feet wide. [Id. sec. 2.]

Extent of road.—A "first-class road" is not less than 40 nor more than 60 feet wide.

Craighed v. State, 56 Cr. R. 386, 117 S. W. 128.

In view of this article, when the width of a road is not stated in the order therefor, the proper construction of the order is that the road extends 20 feet on each side of the line given. Sealing v. Denny (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 351.

Under the statute, the court held authorized to direct the opening of a road of the first class to the width of 40 feet. Ballard v. Bowie County (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 56.

Liability for failure to properly cut stumps.—Under a statute requiring stumps in public highways to be cut off to a certain height, a railroad which opened up a road to take the place of a part of a public road taken for its right of way held liable for injuries resulting from its failure to cut down the stumps in the new road as required by statute, though the county accepted it. Hall v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 52 C. A. 90, 114 S. W. 891.

Art. 6873. [4684] Second class roads.—Second class roads shall be clear of all obstructions and not less than thirty feet wide; stumps six inches and over in diameter to be cut down to six inches of the surface and rounded off; and all stumps less than six inches in diameter to be cut smooth with the ground; all causeways to be made at least sixteen feet wide. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6874. [4685] Third class roads.—Third class roads shall be clear of all obstructions, and not less than twenty feet wide; stumps six inches and over in diameter to be cut down to six inches of the surface and rounded off; all stumps less than six inches in diameter to be cut smooth with the ground, and all causeways made at least twelve feet wide. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6875. [4686] Application for new road, etc., shall not be granted until notice has been given, etc.—The commissioners' court shall in no instance grant an order on an application for any new road, or to discontinue an original one, unless the persons making application therefor, or some one of them, shall have given at least twenty days' notice by written advertisement of their intended application, posted up at the court house door of the county and at two other public places in the vicinity of the route of the proposed new road, or the road proposed to be discontinued. [Id. sec. 6.]

Requisites of record.—It is not essential to the validity of the proceedings that the record should show that the petitioners had given the required notice, or that the landowner was served with or waived notice of the time of meeting of the jury of view. The statute requires some of the proceedings to be in writing, and evidently contemplates that they should be preserved as a part of the record; e. g., the application, the order appointing a jury of view, the sheriff's return showing service of same on the
ROADS, BRIDGES AND FERRIES

Jurors, the report of the jury, including the owner's claim for damages, and their assessment thereof, and the court's action thereon. Sneed v. Falls County, 91 T. 168, 41 S. W. 481.

Art. 6876. [4687] Application, how made.—All applications for a new road, and all applications to discontinue an existing one, shall be by petition to the commissioners' court, signed by at least eight freeholders in the precinct or precincts in which such road is desired to be made or discontinued, specifying in such petition the beginning and termination of such road proposed to be opened or discontinued; provided, that where one or more persons live within an inclosure either or all of them may petition the commissioners' court for a third class road or neighborhood road to their nearest trading points, mills, gins, school and church houses and county seats, and the courts shall open such roads, as hereinafter provided in the opening of third class roads; and provided, further, that no part of a public road shall be discontinued unless a new road connecting that part of such road not discontinued shall first be opened; and provided, further, that no part of a first or second class road shall be reduced to a road of a lower class. [Acts 1884, p. 20.]

Application.—See Arts. 6860, 6877.

An order for a first-class road may be made on a petition for a second-class road. Hamilton County v. Garrett, 62 T. 602.

On an application to open a road, it is not essential to the jurisdiction of the court that the petition shows on its face that the petitioners are citizens of the county and that eight of them are freeholders. Sneed v. Falls County, 91 T. 168, 41 S. W. 481.

Bill to enjoin laying out of highway because of insufficient description of the land to be taken held properly refused. Sneed v. Falls County (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 121.

A description in proceedings to open a road across a railroad track, which makes the place certain by reference to a point where an old road had crossed, held sufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 13 C. A. 555, 45 S. W. 593.

The statute does not require an application to open a public road to do more than to specify its beginning and termination. If it goes further and specifies the section lines along which it was to run, this fact does not deprive the commissioners' court of the power to open it, upon the recommendation of the jury of view upon different lines. Kelly v. Honea, 52 C. A. 220, 73 S. W. 847.

The description of a proposed road held sufficient. Scaling v. Denny (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 351.

Requisites of record.—It is not essential to the validity of the proceedings establishing a road that the record shows that the persons appointed as a jury of view possessed the statutory qualification, or took the statutory oath. Sneed v. Falls County, 91 T. 168, 41 S. W. 481.

Authority of jury to act.—The provision in regard to the county surveyor is merely directory. Onken v. Riley, 65 T. 468.

The statute requiring the appointment in highway proceedings of a jury of view of five freeholders of the county, a majority of whom may act, is material and not merely directory; and an owner disclosed in the commissioners' court that two of the jurors were not freeholders of the county, and that a third failed to act, and objecting to the ground, may appeal to the equitable powers of the court, though he appeared before the commissioners' court and asked compensation for his damages. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 812.

Under a petition and order for the laying out of a new road as nearly as practicable on the grade of an old road, the jury of view were authorized to go outside the line of the old road in laying out the new one. Hankamer v. County Com'r's Court (Civ. App.) 164 S. W. 623.

— Width of road.—In view of this article, when the width of a road is not stated in the order therefor, the proper construction of the order is that the road extends 20 feet on each side of the line given. Scaling v. Denny (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 361.

Art. 6877. [4688] How laid out.—All roads hereafter ordered to be made shall be laid out by a jury of freeholders of the county to be appointed by the commissioners' court. Said jury shall consist of five persons, a majority of whom may proceed, with or without the county surveyor, as ordered by the commissioners' court, to lay out, survey and describe such road to the greatest advantage to the public, and so that the same can be traced with certainty; and the field-notes of such survey or description of the road shall be included in the report of the jury; and, if adopted, shall be recorded in the minutes of the commissioners' court. [Id.]

Cited, Lewis v. State, 64 Cr. R. 110, 141 S. W. 532.

Art. 6878. [4689] Oath of jury.—The jurors provided for in the preceding article shall, before proceeding to act as such, take the following oath before some officer authorized to administer oaths, to wit:

"I, ..., do solemnly swear that I will lay out the road now directed to be laid out by the order to us directed from the commissioners' court, according to law, without favor or affection, malice or hatred, to the best of my skill and knowledge. So help me God." [Id.]

In general.—It is no objection to a statute providing for the opening of roads that it does not require the members of the jury of view to swear that they will assess the damages proposed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 595, 46 S. W. 928, 930.

The Necessity of record showing oath of jury. — It is not essential to the validity of the proceedings that the record shows that the persons appointed a jury of view took the statutory oath. Sneed v. Fulls County, 31 T. 165, 41 S. W. 481.

Art. 6879. [4690] Duty of jury to perform the work and report. — It shall be the duty of such jurors, when qualified as provided in the preceding article, to proceed to lay out and mark the road in accordance with the order of the court and the law, and to report their proceedings in writing to the next regular term of the commissioners' court. [Id.]

Description of road. — Where the beginning corners and lines in the description of a proposed road were those commonly accepted as correct, and plaintiff, a landowner, was present when the jury of view surveyed the line, which followed in part a line marked by a fence post, it was not required to be the line surveyed by plaintiff or those laying out the road as to the exact location of the road was expressed, plaintiff is not entitled to restrain the opening of the road for uncertainty in the description. Sealing v. Denny (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 351.

Art. 6880. [4691] Notice to owner. — The jury of freeholders provided for in article 6877 shall issue a notice in writing to the land owners through whose lands such proposed road may run, or to his agent or attorney, of the time when they will proceed to lay out such road, or when they will assess the damages incidental to the opening of the same, which notice shall be served upon such owner, his agent or attorney, at least five days before the day therein named. If such owner is a non-resident of the county the notice may be given by publication in a newspaper published in the county, as notices are required to be given to non-resident defendants as to actions in the district or county court, and the road may be established after four weeks publication, the cost of publishing to be paid as directed by judgment of the court. [Acts 1884, p. 21.]

See Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

In general.—Service of notice on plaintiff of proceedings to establish a highway held personal and sufficient. Vogt v. Bexar County, 16 C. A. 567, 42 S. W. 127.

The meaning of this article and Arts. 6881, 6882, read in connection with the constitution, is that if the notice is given as required by the statute the landowner may file a claim for the value of the land taken and for such other damages as he thinks he is entitled to, which would make it the duty of the jury of view to hear evidence as to the value of the land taken, and the commissioners' court, it seems, may consider such claim waived (if none is filed) and proceed to open the road without allowing any compensation or damages whatever before so proceeding. Asher v. Jones County, 29 C. A. 353, 68 S. W. 555, 556.

This article means that notice of the time when the jury will proceed to lay out the road is only required—as is usually the case when the damages are then to be assessed, since the clause "when they will assess the damages," etc., indicates that a different time may be selected for assessing the damages. The notice is only important to the owner of the land on the question of damages. Kelly v. Hones, 32 C. A. 259, 78 S. W. 847.

Condemnation of land in general.—See Title 18, Chapter 2.

Necessity of notice. — Condemnation proceedings, when notice is not given the owner will not affect his rights. Cunningham v. San Saba County, 1 C. A. 480, 20 S. W. 941.

The action of a jury of view in laying out a public road is void as to landowners not served with notice. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Austin (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 35.

Where a public road is laid out upon petition of citizens, as authorized by Arts. 6881-6887, notice to the owners of land to be crossed is specifically required. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 112.

Under this article, notice of the assessment of damages is jurisdictional, and a mere recital of such notice in the report of the jury, or knowledge by the owner that the jury has laid out the road over his property, is not sufficient to confer jurisdiction. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

Waiver of notice or objections. — When the owner of land through which a road is laid out was present when so laid out, the fact that he had no notice of the proceedings is immaterial. Unken v. Riley, 66 T. 465.

The laying out of a highway over plaintiff's land, on consent of his attorney without authority, held invalid, as without due process of law. Fayssoux v. Kendall County (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 883.

Notice of proceedings to open a highway may be waived. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 850.

Under the statute providing that in proceedings to open public roads service of notice may be had on the agent of the owner, the agent has power to waive service, but has no power to waive the owner's claim for damages. Dees Bros. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 1093.

The notice of the time when the jury of view will assess damages incidental to the opening of a road, required by this article, may be waived, but affirmative proof of such waiver must be made by the party relying thereon. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

Service of notice on agent.—Where a landowner is a nonresident, notice of condemnation proceedings for a highway across his land is properly served on his agent. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

Proof of giving of notice.—Proof of the placing of a letter in a post office addressed to the landowner, unaccompanied by proof showing its receipt, would not be evidence of the notice required by this article, no presumption of delivery being made. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

In a landowner's suit to enjoin a county from opening a road over his land, the burden is on the defendant to show affirmatively that notice of the time for assessing damages was given to the landowner, as required by this article. R. id.

The mere recital, in the report of the jury of view, of service of notice of when damages incidental to the opening of a highway will be assessed, is not sufficient to show proof of such notice on the landowner. R. id.

Necessity of record showing service or waiver of notice.—It is not essential to the validity of the proceedings that the record shows the landowner was served with or waived notice of the time and place of meeting of the jury of view. Sneed v. Falls County, 91 T. 168, 41 S. W. 481.

Sufficiency of notice.—Notice in proceedings to open a road that the jury of view would lay out the "old county road" and assess damages incidental to the "opening of the road through your land" held insufficient to give a landowner notice that the new road would cross his land, where such land was not crossed by the "old county road." Hankamer v. County Comm'rs Court (App.) 184 S. W. 639.

Parties in condemnation proceedings.—The mortgagee or beneficiary in a trust deed of land taken in the exercise of the right of eminent domain should be made a party to the condemnation proceedings. Proceedings against the mortgagee will not affect the rights of the mortgagee. Aggs v. Shackelford Co., 85 T. 147, 19 S. W. 1058.

Collateral attack for want of notice.—The action of the commissioners' court in establishing a road cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding by showing want of notice of the setting of the jury of review, even though the judgment of the commissioners' court establishing the road does not show that notice was served. Kelly v. State, 46 Cr. R. 23, 80 S. W. 283.

Remedy for locating road without notice.—When a road has been located without notice to the owner, damages incident to the opening of the road may be recovered by suit (McIntire v. Luckier, 77 T. 259, 13 S. W. 1057; Evans v. Santans, L. S. & L. Co., 81 T. 623, 17 S. W. 623), or the land taken may be recovered (Cunningham v. San Saba County, 1 C. A. 480, 20 S. W. 941; Llano County v. Scott, 2 C. A. 498, 21 S. W. 177; Voss v. Texas & S. A. Ry. Co., 5 C. A. 832, 23 S. W. 1044).

The opening of a public road, without compliance with this article may be enjoined. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 331 S. W. 235.

The vendor in an executory contract for the sale of land cannot enjoin the laying out of the road on the ground that the notice to owners of the time when damages would be assessed required by this article was not given him, where the purchaser was in possession, and not in default, and the road would not injure the land itself, the presumption being that the purchaser will obtain title by performing his part, and, in case of nonperformance by the purchaser and the foreclosure or other cutting off of his interest, the laying out of the road would be ineffective as against the vendor if no notice of the assessment of damages was given him. R. id.

Evidence.—Proof of the placing of a letter in a post office addressed to the landowner, unaccompanied by proof showing its receipt, would not be evidence of the notice required by this article, no presumption of delivery being made. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

In a landowner's suit to enjoin a county from opening a road over his land, the burden is on the defendant to show affirmatively that notice of the time for assessing damages was given to the landowner as required by this article. R. id.

New proceedings pending injunction.—Pending injunction to restrain the opening of a road located without notice to the owner, new proceedings to open the road may be regularly taken. McIntire v. Luckier, 77 T. 259, 13 S. W. 1057; Evans v. L. S. & L. Co., 81 T. 623, 17 S. W. 282.

Art. 6881. [4692] Statement by owner of damages.—The owner of any such land may, at the time stated in such notice, or previously thereto, present to the jury a statement in writing of the damages claimed by him, if any, incidental to the opening of such road, and thereupon the jury shall proceed to assess the damages, returning their assessment and the claimant's statement with their report, to the commissioners' court. [Id.]

Necessity of compensation.—The change of a third-class road to a second-class imposes greater burdens upon the land, for which compensation must be made. Bounds v. Flieving, 62 T. 159.

A change of a road from a second-class to a first-class road entitles the owner to compensation for the additional land taken. Liano v. Scott, 2 C. A. 408, 21 S. E. 491. The property owner v. Jackson, C. A. 38, 23 S. W. 1924.

Digging wells on a public road for the benefit of the public is not a right incidental to the road's use and maintenance as a highway since it creates an additional easement entitling the owner of the fee to compensation. Clutter v. Davis, 25 C. A. 532, 62 S. W. 1197.

Measure of damages in general.—Damages incurred in opening a road are to be measured by the permanent injury inflicted. Hamilton v. Garrett, 62 T. 602.

When the building of new fences is necessary, the measure of damages is the reasonable value of sufficient fences to enable the owner to enjoy his land in uses to which it was adapted and to which he had applied it. Morris v. Coleman County (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 390.

Before a road can be opened the intrinsic value of the land taken without reference to the benefits of the improvements must be paid or secured. Travis County v. Trogden (Sup.) 31 S. W. 358.

Where land is not enhanced in value by the laying out of a road over it, the owner is entitled to the cost of such fences necessitated by the road. Anderson v. Wharton County, 27 C. A. 115, 65 S. W. 645.

In condemnation proceedings for a road, the fact that after contest filed the county constructed the fences made necessary by the road, if pleaded, may be shown to prevent a recovery by the landowner of the expense of fencing. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 872.

The value of plaintiff's land, appropriated for a road, is not to be based on its peculiar condition, brought about by the act of appropriation. Caruthers v. Johnson County (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 915.

In condemnation proceedings to obtain a roadway, defendant's instruction as to what should be considered in determining the depreciated value of the land not taken held properly refused. Johnson v. Kennedy v. Travis County (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 971.

In condemnation for a road through pasturage land, the measure of damages to be awarded for injury to the land not taken is the difference in market value before construction and immediately afterwards; and, where its value for farming purposes would be much increased, no damages should be awarded. Id.

The amount to be paid for land taken for a roadway is its actual value. Id.

Deductions for benefits.—The owner is entitled to the value of land taken for a public road, regardless of its effect upon the value of the land not so taken. It is error to instruct the jury to deduct from such value an estimate of the value of the road from the road to the land not taken. Dulaney v. Nolan Co., 85 T. 225, 20 S. W. 70.

Damages occasioned by opening a public road, other than the value of the land taken, may be set off against increased value caused to the remaining tract. For example, the cost of running a fence may be so offset. Id.

Evidence of benefits.—On an issue whether a farm had been benefited by the opening of a road, certain facts held too remote to afford a basis for a finding of a benefit; and where several witnesses testified that the land had been enhanced in value, but there was no evidence to show the amount of benefit, a verdict for benefits will be reversed; and where it was shown that the landowner had an outlet before the road was built, the opening of the road could not be considered as conferring a benefit. Anderson v. Wharton County, 27 C. A. 115, 65 S. W. 645.

In condemnation to obtain a roadway over land, in determining whether the value of the land not taken was increased by the road in considering the question of damages, the general increased value of surrounding property is not to be considered, but only the particular tract in question. Kennedy v. Travis County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 944.

Persons entitled to damages.—The damages caused by laying out a public road belong to the owners of the land over which it passes. A subsequent lessee of the land closing it, between the order establishing and the order opening it up, cannot recover damages for injury to his inclosure, or for improvements rendered necessary to the use of the land and occasioned by the opening up of the road. Dulaney v. Nolan Co., 85 T. 225, 20 S. W. 70.

Where, in proceedings for the laying out of a road, an owner of land taken for the road was represented by an agent, it was immaterial whether the damages awarded for such land were allowed to the agent or the owner. Dunman v. Null (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 177.

Prima facie the right to damages resulting from the opening of a road through lands which the owner has contracted to sell is in the purchaser in possession. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 235.

Remedy of aggrieved owners.—A. and B. were served with notice of proceedings for the establishment of a road, and they appeared through an attorney, both before the jury of view and the commissioners' court, who finally passed on the claim for damages. The damages were awarded in the name of A. alone, pursuant to representations by the attorney; his authority to represent A. and B. and act as he did not being denied. There was nothing to show that A. denied B.'s interest in the amount of the damages allowed, or that A. and B. were unable to agree on a division. Held, that, if A. and B. or either of them were not satisfied with the manner of awarding the damages, they could appeal from the judgment of the commissioners' court, and they could not resort to equity to restrain the opening of the road. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 235.

Art. 6882. [4693] If report approved, damages to be paid, etc.—If the commissioners' court shall approve the report and order such road to be opened, they shall consider the assessment and damages by the jury and the claimant's statement thereof, and allow to such owner just damages and adequate compensation for the land taken, and when paid or secured by deposit with the county treasurer to the credit of such owner they may proceed to have such road opened. If the owner of the land is not satisfied with the assessment by the commissioners' court he may appeal therefrom as in cases of appeal from judgment of justice's court, but such appeal shall not prevent the road from being opened, but shall be only to fix the amount of damages. If no claim of damages is filed with such jury after notice as provided in the preceding article the same shall be considered as waived.

Acquisition of land for drains.—In a proceeding to condemn land for a ditch or drain a highway the court in its judgment shall not undertake to devest the title of the owner, but only to subject the land to the use required. Palmer v. Harris County, 29 C. A. 349, 63 S. W. 229.

Reduction by commissioners' court of damages awarded by jury.—The damages reported by the jury of view may be reduced by the commissioners' court. Hopkins v. Cravoy, 85 T. 159, 19 S. W. 1067.

Appeal.—When the commissioners' court has transcended or grossly abused its powers, its action may be revised by the court having jurisdiction. Bourgeois v. Mills, 69 T. 79.

An appeal may be taken to the county court from an order of the commissioners' court allowing or refusing damages in a proceeding to establish an ordinary public road. Miller v. Wilbarger County (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 245; Taylor v. Travis County, 77 T. 333, 14 S. W. 137.

A statute regulating proceedings to open roads would not be unconstitutional, even if no appeal from the commissioners' court were provided. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 595, 45 S. W. 939.

The county court has appellate jurisdiction in proceedings to open roads, and the procedure is the same as in justice's courts. Id.

A party, having knowingly accepted the damages awarded him by the county commissioners' court in the case of establishment of a road, cannot afterwards appeal from such award. Karnes County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 666.

Remedy of owner damaged by award of damages by commissioners' court for opening of public road is by appeal to county court. Huggins v. Hurt, 23 C. A. 404, 56 S. W. 944.

The determination by the commissioners' court that the laying out of a highway is necessary is valid, unless it is shown that the court either grossly abused or exceeded its authority or neglected some requirement of law. Schinkle v. De Witt County (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 660.

Perfecting appeal.—No appeal bond or notice of appeal is necessary in the case of an appeal from the decision of the county commissioners' court as to the amount of damages sustained in the establishment of a road. Karnes County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 666.

Trial of opposition in county court.—A railroad company having, under this article, waived its claim for damages from the laying out of a highway across the railway by failure to file the claim with the jury of view, it may not, on trial of its opposition filed in the county court to the action of the commissioners' court in approving said jury's report laying out the road, show as that laid out, at an acute angle with the railroad, it would avoid the necessity for further roadbeds, and would be a menace to the public safety and navigation for injuries to vessels navigating the river, and would create a private right of way and private rights of property within the railroad. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hardeman County (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 682.

Demurrer by a county to opposition filed by a railroad with the county court to action of county court approving the report of a jury of view laying out a public road, across the railroad, and assessing damages, said demurrer being that under this article it is provided that, if the owner is not satisfied with the assessment of damages by the commissioners' court, he may appeal from its judgment as in cases of appeal from judgments of a justice's court, but such appeal shall not prevent the road being opened, but shall be only to fix the amount of damages; therefore defendant especially excepts to the part of plaintiff's petition wherein it protests against defendant opening the road across plaintiff's right of way—not only raises the question of the limitation placed on the statute on the company's right of appeal from the action of the commissioners' court to the county court, but also the sufficiency of the allegations of the company's opposition to show such arbitrary and abusive exercise by the commissioners' court of its discretionary powers in the matter of opening the road as to authorize review of its action in opening it, apart from the question of damages awarded. Id.

The opposition filed by a railroad to an action of the commissioners' court approving the report of a jury laying out public road across the railroad, alleging that the proposed road crossing is 99 feet of crossing, no necessary another crossing, and that the crossing will be dangerous, does not show such arbitrary exercise and gross abuse of the discretionary powers of the commissioners' court as to render its action in ordering the road opened reviewable by the courts. Id.

Payment of damages.—Bill of Rights, § 17, and this article, are satisfied by an award of damages by a court of a public road, the issuing and deposit with the county treasurer of a warrant for the amount, and notice thereof to the landowner; there being funds in the treasury available for payment of the warrant. Scaling v. Denny (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 351.

Payment or security for payment before opening road.—See notes under Art. 6883.

Effect of payment.—The owner of a strip of land on which a public road has been established cannot recover it from the county, where he has been fully paid therefor. Brewer v. Doee (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 323.
Laches barring right to open road.—Damages were assessed November, 1888, by the commissioners' court in favor of an owner of land through which a public road was established. A road overseer was appointed and ordered to open the road one year after. In December, 1889, the overseer was proceeding to open the road when an injunction was sued out. Thereupon the money owner was deposited for his use. Held, that the right to proceed and open the road was not lost by such delay. Hopkins v. Cravey, 55 T. 189, 19 S. W. 1067.

Restraining opening of road.—Under this article a landowner to whom an award of damages has been made and a warrant therefor issued is not a party, and who has not appealed, cannot restrain the opening of the road, on the grounds that the award of damages is insufficient, and that he does not want the road opened. Scaling v. Denny (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 351.

Where a landowner appeared before the jury of view in proceedings to open a road, and made his claim for damages which was not allowed, and subsequently appeared before the commissioners' court, when the jury's report was adopted, and gave notice of appeal as provided by this article, but failed to prosecute such appeal, he could not thereafter maintain a suit to enjoin the laying out of the road across his land. Hankamer v. County Com'mrs Court (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 623.

In an action to enjoin the opening of a new road, the petition and order for the laying out the road as nearly as practicable on the grade of an old road were conclusive as to where the road should be located. Id.

Art. 6883. [4694] Court may order opening of road, but damages assessed must be first paid, etc.—If, in the judgment of the commissioners' court, from the report of the commissioners named in the two preceding articles, the road should be deemed of sufficient importance, the court may order the survey or opening of the same; but the court shall first order the payment of the damages assessed, if any, by the commissioners of view to be made to the owner of the land out of the county treasury, and the county treasurer shall have paid the same or secured its payment by a special deposit of the amount in his office, subject to the order of such owner, and shall notify such owner by mail or otherwise of such deposit. [Acts 1876, p. 64.]

In general.—The provisions of this article and Art. 6882 are limitations on the right of the court to open a road. Hamilton County v. Garrett, 62 T. 202.
The statutes as to the payment of damages before the opening of roads over the lands of individuals held substantially complied with. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 235.

Payment or security for payment before opening road.—Before a road can be opened the intrinsic value of the land taken without reference to the benefits of the improvements must be paid or secured. Travis County v. Trogden (Sup.) 81 S. W. 358.
The county treasurer should have paid the damages awarded the owner or secured its payment by a special deposit of the amount in his office subject to order of the owner and notified him of the deposit to authorize the opening of the road. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 551.

Where owners of land over which a road was established were tendered in open court on the trial of the case the amount of damages allowed by the commissioners' court, in the name of one pursuant to their agreement, and the county clerk offered to draw in such sum allowed, and the offer was refused, and the warrant would have been paid if drawn, there was a substantial compliance with the statutes as to the payment of damages before the opening of the road. Powell v. Carson County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 235.

Sufficiency of order.—An order of a commissioner's court opening a road, reciting selection of the road, its location and report by a majority of its members held to show review by the entire court. Allen v. Parker County, 23 C. A. 556, 57 S. W. 703.
A road held not illegal because of a variance between the calls of the order directing it to be laid out and the report of the jury of view. Cator v. Hays (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 953.

Restraining opening of road until compensation is made.—The owner of land through which a public road has been surveyed is entitled to an injunction against the opening up of such road until adequate compensation be made for the land to be taken. The compliance with the statute by making the necessary deposit of the value of the land will be ground for dissolving such injunction at costs of the county or road overseer. Hopkins v. Cravey, 55 T. 189, 20 S. W. 1067.

Where the county treasurer does not pay the damages awarded, or secure payment by a special deposit of the amount in his office subject to the order of the road, the opening of the road can be enjoined. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 851.

Effect of delay in paying damages and opening road.—Delay of county in paying damages and opening road held not to deprive it of any rights acquired by an order for its opening. Fahrendorf v. Mansfield (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 140.

Where land has been taken for a public road, the landowner cannot obstruct the same, though he has not been paid for such taking. Race v. State, 43 Cr. R. 438, 66 S. W. 860.

Art. 6884. [4695] Road shall be established, etc., if no objection be made.—If no objection is filed, upon the report of a jury appointed upon an application to open a new road, the court shall proceed to establish and classify such road and order the opening out of the same, and shall appoint an overseer and apportion hands for the same, as in other cases. [Id. sec. 13.]

Manner of making objections.—Where the commissioners of view have made their report, a proposition by a landowner (over whose land the road is made to run in the report) that he will remit part of the damages allowed him, if they will change the road as marked out by the surveyor to a location suggested by him, may be treated as an objection to the report. No form of objection is required, but any written statement that indicates that the landowner does object is sufficient to authorize the court to approve or disapprove the report. Howe v. Rose, 35 C. A. 328, 80 S. W. 1023.

Discretion of commissioners’ court.—The action of the commissioners’ court as to necessity of road, its proper location, the form of the petition, the qualifications of its signers, and all issues save that relating to the damages, is conclusive, and cannot be controlled by mandamus. The statutes on the subject of opening and establishing roads are not arbitrary, but give the court some latitude and discretion. Howe v. Rose, 35 C. A. 328, 80 S. W. 1023.

Art. 6885. [4696] May change roads, when.—The commissioners’ court may alter or change the course of any public road, in accordance with article 6861 of this chapter, after notice and upon application in the same manner as provided in this chapter for the discontinuance of a road, except that the application need not be signed by more than one landowner of the premises in which such alteration or change is proposed to be made.

Authority to change roads.—See notes under Art. 6861.

Under this article and Art. 6861, a change made by some one at the instance of the commissioners of the precinct in which the road is located, without any order of the court, is not binding on the public, though thereafter hands apportioned worked the new road and bridges were constructed on it. Ballard v. Bowie County (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 56.

Purpose of widening.—It was no objection to the condemnation of land to widen a highway that the commissioners’ court intended to permit the highway, as widened, to be used for street railway purposes. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

Art. 6886. [4697] Duty of clerk when jury of view is appointed.—When juries of view are appointed, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to make out copies of the order appointing them in duplicate, and to deliver such copies to the sheriff of the county within ten days after such order of appointment was made, indorsing on such copies the date of such order. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 6887. [4698] Service of order of appointment on juror.—The sheriff receiving such copies shall serve the same upon the jurors by delivering to each of them in person a copy of the order of appointment provided for in the preceding article, or by leaving one of said copies at the usual place of abode of each juror. Service shall be made within twenty days after the sheriff receives said copies, and he shall make his return to the clerk on the duplicate copies, stating the date and manner of service, or if service has not been made, stating the cause of his failure to make the same. [Id.]

Art. 6888. [4699] Defaulting juror shall be punished, how.—Any juror of view, summoned as such, who shall fail or refuse to perform the service required of him by law as such juror, shall forfeit and pay for every such failure the sum of ten dollars, to be recovered by judgment on motion of the district or county attorney, in the name of the county, in any court of competent jurisdiction of the county in which such defaulter may reside. [Id.]

Art. 6889. [4700] Roads on lines.—For the further and better providing for public roads, any lines between different persons or owners of land, any section line, or any direct line through an inclosure containing twelve hundred and eighty acres of land or more, may, upon the conditions provided for in the following articles of this chapter, be declared public highways, and left open and free from all obstructions for fifteen feet on either side of said lines, but the marked trees and other objects used to designate said lines, and the corners of surveys, shall not be removed or defaced. [Acts 1884, p. 22.]

Art. 6890. [4701] Ten freeholders may make an application for.—Whenever ten freeholders may desire the boundary lines between different persons or owners of land to be declared a public highway, in order to give them a nearer, better or more practicable road to their church, county seat, mill, timber or water, they may apply to the commissioners' court for an order establishing such road. [Acts 1876, p. 65.]

Art. 6891. [4702] Requisites of application.—The application provided for in the preceding article shall be in writing, and shall be signed and sworn to by the applicants. It shall designate the lines sought to be opened and the names and residences of the persons or owners to be affected by such proposed road, and shall state the facts which show a necessity for such road. [Id.]

Art. 6892. [4703] Clerk shall issue notice.—Upon the filing of such application the clerk shall issue a notice reciting the substance thereof, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county commanding him to summon the owners of the land, naming them, whose lines are proposed to be left open, to appear at the next regular term of the commissioners' court and show cause why said lines should not be declared public highways. [Id.]

Art. 6893. [4704] Service of notice and return of same.—The notice provided for in the preceding article shall be served in the manner and for the length of time provided for the service of citations in civil actions in justices' courts, and shall be returned in like manner as such citation.

Art. 6894. [4705] May open lines, when.—At a' regular term of the court, after due service of notice as provided in the preceding article, the commissioners' court may, in its discretion, should it deem the road of sufficient public importance, issue an order declaring the lines designated in the application to be public highways, and direct the same to be opened by the owners thereof and left open for a space of fifteen feet on each side of said line. [Acts 1884, p. 24.]

Art. 6895. [4706] Notice of the order of the court shall be served upon the owners of the land.—When an order as provided in the preceding article is made, the clerk shall, without delay, issue a notice reciting said order or its substance, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county, commanding him to serve the owners of such lines named in such notice with a true copy thereof, and the officer to whom said notice is delivered shall, without delay, serve the same as therein directed and return the same to the clerk, indorsing thereon the manner and date of such service. [Id.]

Art. 6896. [4707] Such roads not required to be controlled by the public.—The commissioners' court shall not be required to keep any such road as is mentioned in the last seven articles worked by the road hands as in the case of other public roads. [Id.]

Art. 6897. [4708] Costs, etc.—All costs attending the proceedings provided for in relation to opening of neighborhood roads shall be paid by the county if the application be granted. [Acts 1884, p. 24.]

Art. 6898. [4709] Neighborhood road may be discontinued, how. — The commissioners' court may discontinue any neighborhood road which has been established as a public highway in the same manner provided in this chapter for discontinuing other public roads.

Art. 6899. [4710] Right to erect gates. — The owners of the land whose lines have been or may be declared public highways, and also any person through whose land a third class road may run, shall have the right to erect a gate or gates across said road or roads when necessary, said gate or gates to be not less than ten feet wide and free of obstructions at the top; provided, that when the right of way for any third class road or neighborhood road has been granted to the county without cost the owner of such land shall have the right to put a gate across such road or roads, but where such right of way has been condemned and paid for according to existing law the county commissioners' court shall have the right to prevent any obstruction of such a road by a gate. [Acts 1884, p. 24.]

Art. 6900. [4711] Damages, how assessed. — The amount of damages to be allowed to the owners of said lands for opening the line of a neighborhood road, as provided in this chapter, shall be assessed as provided for in the case of first, second and third class roads in this chapter. [Id.]

In general. — The measure of damages is the value of the land taken at the time of the appropriation, the depreciation in value of the remaining land and the cost of building fences made necessary by the proceedings, with interest from the time of appropriation. Bexar County v. Herff (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 499.

Deduction. — The cost of running a fence may be set off against the increased value caused to the remainder of the tract by the opening of a road. Dulaney v. Nolan County, 85 T. 225, 20 S. W. 70.

Art. 6901. [4712] Commissioners as supervisors. — The county commissioners of the several counties are hereby constituted supervisors of public roads in their respective counties, and each commissioner shall supervise the public roads within his commissioner's precinct once each month, and shall receive as compensation therefor three dollars per day for the time actually employed in the discharge of his duties, to be paid out of the road and bridge fund of the county; provided, that no commissioner shall receive pay for more than ten days in any one month. He shall also make a report to each regular term of the commissioners' court held in his county during the year, said report to be made under oath, and to state:

1. The condition of all roads and parts of roads in his precinct.
2. The condition of all culverts and bridges.
3. The amount of money remaining in the hands of overseers subject to be expended upon the roads within his precinct.
4. The number of mile posts and finger boards defaced and torn down.
5. What, if any, new roads of any kind should be opened in his precinct, and what, if any, bridges, culverts or other improvements are necessary to place the roads in his precinct in good condition and the probable cost of such improvements; also, the name of every overseer who has failed to work on the road, or in any way neglected to perform his duty.

Art. 6902. [4713] Not to be discontinued, unless. — No entire road of the first or second class shall hereafter be discontinued except upon vacation by orders of the commissioners' court or non-use for a period of three years. [Acts 1884, p. 24.]
Art. 6903. [4714] Reports, etc.—The report made by the supervisors of public roads to the commissioners' court, as provided for in article 6901, shall be submitted, together with all contracts made by said court since its last report for any work on any road, to the grand jury, at the first term of the district court hereafter. [Id.]

Art. 6904. [4715] Across public lands, etc.—No public road shall be opened across lands owned and used for actual use by the state, educational, eleemosynary, or other public state institutions for public purposes and not subject to sale under the general laws of the state, without the consent of the trustees of said institution and the approval of the governor of the state; and the roads heretofore opened across such lands may be closed by the authorities in charge of any such lands whenever they deem it necessary to protect the interests of the state, upon repayment to the county where the land is situated, with eight percent interest, the amount actually paid out by said county for the condemnation of said lands as shown by the records of the commissioners' court.

Proceedings to establish road.—Under the statute conferring on the commissioners' court the power to lay out public roads over lands, including public lands, except when actually used for public purposes, or public for public purposes, as prescribed by this article, a commissioners' court may establish a road over public schools lands of the state subject to sale, by entering on its minutes an order to that effect and by actual use, and the statutory provisions for condemnation relate solely to the proceedings against property of individuals. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 812.

DEcisions Relating to Establishment of Public Roads in General

In general.—The law providing for the opening of public roads held not to authorize the taking of property without due process of law. Vogt v. Bexar County, 16 C. A. 587, 42 S. W. 137.

Where a special road law passed subsequently to the general road law differs materially from the latter, and furnishes a complete and independent method of opening and working with records of procedure by which property could be condemned to a public use, it must be held to be a substitute for the general road law and not merely cumulative of the remedy provided therein. Flowman v. Dallas County (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 564.

Accrual of right of action for unauthorized establishment.—The county court, on the 30th of September, 1878, adopted the report of a jury of view laying out a public road. The overseer who was ordered to lay out the road in accordance with the report adopted another line, on which a road was opened and used until November 22, 1884, when the road so opened across the land of A. was recognized by the court as a public road. Held, that A. could not have brought an action against the county for the unauthorized establishment of the road in 1878, and that a cause of action did accrue when the court by its order in 1884 asserted a claim to the use of the road. Franklin County v. Brooks, 68 T. 879, 9 S. W. 919.

Establishment by owner of fee.—A public highway may be established by the owner of the fee by setting it apart for public use. Hillbron v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 52 C. A., 575, 113 S. W. 610, 979.

Liability for damages in opening road.—Where sheriff, in opening county road, cut fences not in line of road, the county, the commissioners' court, and the county judge held not liable therefor. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 111.

Record of proceedings to establish road.—Record of proceeding to establish highway need not show on its face a compliance with all the statutory requirements. Sneed v. Falls County (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 121.

Estoppel to object.—One consenting to route of projected highway as reported cannot complain that it varies from that ordered. McCown v. Hill (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 850.

An owner of land appearing before the commissioners' court and maintaining an objection in proceedings to establish a highway held entitled to appeal to the equitable powers of the court. Middleton v. Presidio County (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 812.

An owner's property presence while the jury of view were surveying the highway was entitled to object to the location of the proposed highway. Crawford v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 388.

Ownership of fee.—The owner of property abutting on a public highway owns the fee to the center thereof, unless otherwise restricted in the grant. City of Houston v. Finnigan (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 470.

Rights of subsequent purchaser of land.—Where land is actually appropriated under an order of the commissioners' court requiring a jury to lay out and mark a public road, a subsequent purchaser of the tract of land crossed by the road takes it subject to the easement thereby created. Wooldridge v. Eastland Co., 70 T. 680, 8 S. W. 503.
CHAPTER TWO

APPOINTMENT OF OVERSEEERS

Art. 6905. County to be laid off into road precincts, etc. — The commissioners' courts of the several counties shall lay off their respective counties into convenient road precincts, and shall number each precinct, and in the order establishing the same shall specify as definitely as practicable the boundaries thereof. [Act July 29, 1876, p. 63, sec. 5.]

Art. 6906. Overseers to be appointed, when. — An overseer shall be appointed and hands apportioned by said court for each road precinct at the time of establishing the same; and at the first regular term of court in each year the said court shall appoint an overseer for each road precinct in the county, and shall at the same time designate all the hands liable to work on public roads, and apportion them to the several overseers; provided, that hands shall as nearly as practicable be apportioned to work on the road precinct nearest to their place of abode; and provided further, that the supervisor of public roads shall at any time apportion any hands in his precinct who from any cause may not have been apportioned as otherwise provided in this chapter. [Acts 1884, p. 25.]

Art. 6907. Appointment of overseers, etc., may be made at any time. — If from any cause the said court should fail to perform the duties required of it by the preceding article at its first regular term in each year, it shall be competent and legal for said court to perform said duties at any subsequent term, whether the same be a regular or called term. [Acts 1876, p. 63.]

Art. 6908. Vacancy in overseership, how filled. — In case of the death, removal or other inability to act, of any road overseer, it shall be the duty of the county judge, immediately upon information of the fact, to appoint an overseer to fill such vacancy, who shall be notified on his appointment as in other cases. [Id.]

Art. 6909. Duty of clerk to make out copies of order of appointment, etc. — It shall be the duty of the clerk of said court to make out copies of all orders appointing overseers of roads in duplicate, and deliver the same to the sheriff of the county within ten days after any such order shall have been made, indorsing on such copies the date of the orders of appointment. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 6910. Order of appointment of overseer shall show what. — All orders appointing overseers shall embrace the designation of hands liable to work under such overseer, as far as known, and shall specify the boundaries of such overseer's road precinct as laid off by the court. [Id.]

Art. 6911. [4722] Service of order and return.—The sheriff shall, within twenty days after the reception of the copies of any order appointing an overseer, deliver to or leave at the usual place of abode of such overseer one of such copies, and shall return duplicate of such copy to the clerk of the county court, indorsing thereon the date and manner of service, and if not served the cause of his failure to serve the same. [Id.]

Art. 6912. [4723] Term of service of overseer.—The term of service of a road overseer shall be from the time of the service of the order of appointment until the first regular term of the commissioners' court in the succeeding year. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6913. [4724] Persons not compelled to serve as overseers, when.—No person shall be compelled to serve as an overseer who is lawfully exempt from road duty, nor shall any one be compelled to serve as overseer more than one year in every three successive years. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 6914. [4725] Overseer not liable shall notify clerk of non-acceptance.—It shall be the duty of every person appointed overseer of a road who is lawfully exempt from road duty to notify the clerk of the county court of his non-acceptance within ten days after his being notified of his appointment. [Id.]

Art. 6915. [4726] County judge shall thereupon appoint another. —If any person appointed overseer of a road who is lawfully exempt from road duty shall notify the clerk of his non-acceptance as provided in the preceding article, the clerk shall forthwith report the same to the county judge, who shall immediately appoint another overseer for said road precinct. [Id.]

Art. 6916. [4727] Unless overseer give notice of non-acceptance shall be considered as accepting.—Should any person appointed overseer, and who is lawfully exempted from road duty, fail to notify the clerk of his non-acceptance within ten days after being notified of his appointment, it shall be considered an acceptance of the appointment, and he shall not be permitted thereafter to plead his exemption from road duty as a defense against any neglect or failure to perform any of the duties of such overseer. [Id.]

Art. 6917. [4728] Clerk shall insert what on copies of appointment.—It shall be the duty of the clerk to insert on the copies of all orders of appointments of overseers issued by him the duties required of overseers in regard to their non-acceptance of such appointment. [Id.]

Art. 6918. [4729] Clerk shall post list of overseers, etc.—The clerks of the county courts of the several counties shall post up in their respective court houses, on the first day of each term of the district court held in his county, a list of the names and the road precincts of all the overseers of roads in the county. [Id. sec. 29.]

CHAPTER THREE

PERSONS LIABLE TO WORK ON ROADS, AND THEIR RIGHTS AND DUTIES

Art. 6919. Who are liable to work on roads, and who are exempt. Art. 6920. Age limitation of workers on public roads, etc. Art. 6921. Liability to road service.

Art. 6922. Substitute may be furnished. Art. 6923. Payment of money shall be required. Art. 6924. Hand shall furnish tool. Art. 6925. Duty of hand to work, etc. Art. 6926. Five days' work only can be required.
Article 6919. [4730] Who liable to road duty.—All male persons between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years shall be liable, and it is hereby made their duty, to work on, repair and clean out the public roads, under provisions and regulations of this title, except ministers of the gospel in the active discharge of their ministerial duties, invalids, members of the Texas national guard organized under provisions of the title “Militia,” and the members of all volunteer fire companies in the active discharge of their duties as firemen, who shall be exempt. [Acts 1885, p. 43.]

In general.—This article is an amendment of Art. 884 and simply affects the limitation upon the age of the party liable to work the road. Ex parte Drake, 55 Cr. R. 333, 116 S. W. 60.

Art. 6920. [4730a] Age limitation of workers on public roads, etc. —No person in this state under the age of twenty-one years, or over the age of forty-five years, shall be required to work upon the public roads of this state or upon the streets and alleys of any city or town of this state. [Acts 1895, p. 160.]

Art. 6921. [4731] Fifteen days' residence fixes liability to work on road.—No person shall be compelled to work on a road who has not been residing in the county in which he is summoned to work for the space of fifteen days immediately preceding such summons. [Acts 1876, p. 65.]

Art. 6922. [4732] Substitute may be furnished.—Any person liable to road duty, and who has been summoned to do such duty, shall have the privilege to furnish an able-bodied substitute to work in his place, which substitute shall be accepted by the overseer if he is capable of performing a reasonable amount of work; otherwise, he shall not be accepted. [Id.]

Art. 6923. [4733] Payment of money will exempt.—Every person liable to work on roads, by paying to his road overseer at any time before the day appointed to work on his road, the sum of one dollar for each day that he is summoned to work, shall be exempt from working for each day paid for, and also exempt from any penalties for failure to work for the time for which he has so paid. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 6924. [4734] Hand shall take working tool with him.—Each person summoned to work on a road shall take with him an ax, hoe, pick, spade or such tool as may be desired and directed by the overseer, or if he have no such tool as he is desired and directed by the overseer to take with him, he shall take such other suitable tool as he may have. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 6925. [4735] Duty of hand, etc.—It shall be the duty of each road hand to perform his duties as such in accordance with the directions of his overseer, and a day’s work, within the meaning of this law, shall be eight hours’ efficient service, when said service is voluntarily performed. [Acts 1889, p. 21.]

Art. 6926. [4736] Five days' work only.—No person shall be compelled to work on any public road or roads more than five days in each year. [Acts 1883, p. 22.]

Cited, Blunt v. State, 56 Cr. R. 525, 121 S. W. 168.

CHAPTER FOUR

POWERS AND DUTIES OF OVERSEERS

Art. 6927. Roads shall be worked twice each year.
Art. 6928. Power to call out hands.
Art. 6929. Hands not designated shall be summoned.
Art. 6930. Mode of summoning hands.
Art. 6931. Summons in writing, service of.
Art. 6932. Overseer may appoint some one to summon hands.
Article 6927. [4737] Roads shall be worked twice each year.—Every overseer shall cause the roads through his precinct to be worked twice in each year. [Act July 29, 1876, p. 68, sec. 16.]

Art. 6928. [4738] Power to call out hands.—Overseers of roads shall have the power to call out all persons liable to work upon public roads at any time such overseer may deem it necessary, or when ordered by the commissioners' court or other competent authority, and such hands may be called out in detail, or the whole force at any one time, as may be deemed best, or as they may be directed, for the better improvement of the public roads. [Acts 1889, p. 21.]

Art. 6929. [4739] Hands not designated shall be summoned.—In case any person liable to work on roads shall not have been designated and apportioned by the commissioners' court, the overseer of the road nearest to which such person lives shall summon such person to work on such road the same as if such person had been designated and apportioned to such overseer. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6930. [4740] Mode of summoning hands.—It shall be the duty of the overseer to give three days' previous notice, by summons in person or in writing, to each person within his road precinct liable to road duty in said precinct, of the time and place when and where such person is required to appear to work on the road, and the number of days such person will be required to work. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 6931. [4741] Summons in writing may be served how.—If the summons be in writing it may be served by leaving the same at the usual place of abode of the person summoned, with some person residing at such place who is not less than ten years of age, or if no person ten years of age or over can be found at such place of abode, the overseer may serve the same by posting it on the door of such place of abode.

Art. 6932. [4742] Overseer may appoint some one to summon hands.—The overseer shall have the power to appoint some one to summon the hands to work on the road, and such person shall be exempt from working on the roads as many days as he was actually engaged in summoning the hands. [Id.]

Art. 6933. [4743] To file complaints, where, etc.—It shall be the duty of the overseer, within ten days after he has had his road worked, to file with the county attorney of his county, or the justice of the peace of his precinct, a complaint in writing and under oath against each person who has been summoned to work and who has failed to work and failed to furnish a substitute, and has failed to pay one dollar for each day he has so failed to work or furnish a substitute, and also against each person so summoned who has refused to do a reasonable amount of work on the road or who has refused to perform the reasonable directions of the overseer. [Acts 1884, p. 26, sec. 3.]

Art. 6934. [4744] Timber for causeways and bridges.—When to the overseers it may appear expedient to make causeways and build bridges, or to gravel any public road, the timber, gravel, earth, stone or other necessary material most convenient therefor may be used, but in such case the owner of such timber, or gravel, earth, stone or other necessary material shall be paid out of the county treasury a fair compensation for the same, to be determined by the commissioners’ court upon the application of such owner. [Acts 1876, p. 68. Amended Acts 1897,
p. 84.]

In general.—The principle upon which this statute seems to rest is the rightful exercise of the right of eminent domain, and authority therein given is restricted to the taking under such right, of that character of material named, found within and adjacent to such highway, and is no warrant for the making of contracts by road overseers for the purchase of material to be used in the improvement of public roads. The commissioners’ courts only can make such contracts, and parties dealing with road overseers must take notice that they have no authority to bind the county, except as such authority is conferred upon them by law, or by order of such court. Matthews Lumber Co. v. Van Zandt County (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 960.

Art. 6935. [4745] Construction of causeways; ditches may be cut on land of adjacent owners, when.—The earth necessary to construct a causeway shall be taken from both sides, so as to make a drain on each side of such causeway. Whenever it is necessary to drain the water from any public road, the overseer shall cut a ditch for that purpose, having due regard to the natural water flow, and with as little injury as possible to the adjacent land owner; provided, that in such cases the commissioners’ court shall cause the damages to such premises to be assessed and paid out of the general revenues of the county, and in case of disagreement between the commissioners’ court and such owner, the same may be settled by suit as in other cases. [Id. Acts 1884, p. 27.]

Liability of county.—A county is liable for injury to the drainage ditch of a landowner caused by the cutting of ditches by the road overseer for the purpose of draining a pub-

Right to sue.—The county is required to take the initiative and assess the damages.
The owner of the land can accept or reject the offer made by the county. Having rejected it the disagreement is complete and suit can then be brought. Holt v. Rockwall County, 27 C. A. 366, 65 S. W. 390.

Art. 6936. [4746] Overseer may exchange labor for wagons, etc.
—When it may be necessary to use a wagon for any purpose in working a road, or a plow or scraper, the overseer of such road is authorized to exchange the labor of any hand or hands bound to work on such road, for the use of a wagon or wagons, plows or scrapers, and the necessary teams to operate the same, at reasonable rates, to be employed as aforesaid. [Acts 1876, p. 68.]

Art. 6937. [4747] Road shall be measured and mile posts set up.
—It shall be the duty of all overseers of roads to measure such parts of roads as are in their respective precincts in continuation, and set up posts of good lasting timber or stone at the end of each mile leading from the court house or some other noted place, and to mark on said posts in legible and enduring figures the distance in miles to said court house or other noted place. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 6938. [4748] Index boards shall be placed where.—It shall also be the duty of overseers to place conspicuously and permanently at the forks of all public roads in their respective precincts, and at all roads crossing or leading away from such public roads, index boards, with directions plainly marked thereon, stating the most noted place to which each of said roads leads. [Id.]

Art. 6939. [4749] Mile posts and index boards to be replaced when removed.—When a mile post or index board shall be removed or def-faced by any means whatever, the overseer shall cause the same to be replaced immediately by another, marked as the original one. [Id.]

Art. 6940. [4750] Overseer may exchange labor for index boards and mile posts.—The overseer is authorized to exchange the labor of any hand or hands bound to work on his road, for the making of index boards or mile posts, or either. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 6941. [4751] Overseer shall apply money how.—Overseers of roads shall apply all money coming into their hands as such overseers to the improvement of their roads in an impartial manner, by repairing or building bridges, hiring hands or teams to work on the road, or in such other manner as he may deem best. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 6942. [4752] Overseer shall report to commissioners' court, when, etc.—It shall be the duty of each overseer to report in writing and under oath to the commissioners' court of his county, at the first regular term thereof in each year, giving the number of the hands and their names in his precinct liable to work on the roads; the number of days he has caused his road to be worked; the condition of such road; the amount of the funds received by him for his road; from whom received, and for what purpose, and to whom and for what purpose said funds have been paid out, and the amount of such funds, if any, that remain in his hands; and he shall at the same time pay over to said court any such funds which may remain in his hands. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 6943. [4753] Compensation, etc., of overseers.—Overseers shall retain out of money that may come to their hands as such overseers ten per cent thereof as compensation for their services, and during their term of service they shall be exempt from serving upon juries. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 6944. [4754] Money shall be expended under order of court, etc.—All moneys appropriated by law, or by order of the commissioners' court, for working public roads or building bridges, shall be expended under the order of the commissioners' court, except when otherwise hereinafter provided, and said court shall from time to time make the necessary orders for utilizing such money and for utilizing convict labor for such purposes. [Const., art. 16, sec. 24.]

Art. 6945. [4755] Overseers to dismiss hands, when.—Overseers shall dismiss from the road any hand or hands, whether working for themselves or as substitutes for others, who shall fail to do good and efficient work, or who shall hinder other hands from doing their work properly, or dismiss any hand who may be intoxicated, or who shall refuse to obey any reasonable order of the overseers; and the overseer shall proceed against such hand or hands so dismissed in the same manner as if they had refused to obey the summons to work upon the road. [Acts 1889, p. 22.]

CHAPTER FIVE

ROAD COMMISSIONERS

Art. 6946. Commissioners' court may employ four road commissioners, etc. Art. 6947. Powers and duties, etc. Art. 6948. Expenditures of money by, etc. Art. 6949. Court to see to expenditures.

Article 6946. [4756] Commissioners' court may employ four road commissioners.—Each county commissioners' court of this state may employ not exceeding four road commissioners for their respective counties, who shall be resident citizens of the district for which they are employed, and when more than one is employed, the district that each road commissioner is to control shall be defined and fixed by the court; such road commissioners when employed shall receive such compensation as may be agreed upon by the court, not to exceed two dollars per day for the time actually engaged. Each road commissioner when employed, before he enters upon his duties, shall execute a bond, payable to the county judge of the county and his successors in office, in the sum of one thousand dollars, with one or more good and sufficient sureties,
Art. 6946 ROADS, BRIDGES AND FERRIES (Title 119)

to be approved by the county judge, and conditioned for a faithful performance of his duties. [Acts 1889, p. 134.]

Improvements of city streets.—See Title 22, Chapter 11.

Art. 6947. [4757] Powers and duties.—A road commissioner when employed shall have control over all overseers, hands, tools, machinery and teams to be used upon the roads in his district; and shall have the power to require overseers to order out his hands in any number he may designate for the purpose of opening, working or repairing the roads or building or repairing bridges or culverts of his district; and it shall be the duty of such road commissioner to see that all the roads and bridges of his district are kept in good repair, and he shall, under the direction and control of the commissioners’ court, inaugurate a system of grading and draining public roads in his district, and see that such system is carried out by the overseers and hands under his control, and shall obey all orders of the commissioners’ court; and he shall be responsible for the safe keeping and liable for the loss or destruction of all machinery, tools or teams placed under his control, unless such loss is without his fault, and when he shall be discharged he shall deliver them to the person designated by the court. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6948. [4758] Expenditure of money by, etc.—He shall expend such money as may be placed in his hands by the commissioners’ court under its direction in the most economical and advantageous manner on the public roads, bridges and culverts of his district; and all his acts shall be subject to the control, supervision, orders and approval of the commissioners’ court; he shall work the convicts and such other labor as may be furnished him by the commissioners’ court; and when the road commissioner shall have funds in his hands to expend for labor on the roads, and when it shall be necessary for any overseer or overseers in his district to work more than five days during any one year upon the public roads, he may employ such overseers to continue their duties as such for such a length of time as may be necessary, and pay them for their services not more than one dollar and fifty cents per day for the time actually employed after the five days; provided, that hands shall not be required to work when there shall be on hand, after building and repairing bridges, a sufficient road fund to provide for the necessary work on the roads; and said road commissioner shall report to the commissioners’ court at each regular term under oath, showing an itemized account of all money he has received to be expended on roads and bridges and what disposition he has made of the money, and showing the condition of all roads, bridges and culverts in his district, and such other facts as the court may desire information upon, and shall make such other reports and at such time as the court may desire. [Id. secs. 3 and 4.]

Art. 6949. [4759] Commissioners’ court to see to expenditure of road fund.—The commissioners’ court shall see that the road and bridge fund of their county is judiciously and equitably expended on the roads and bridges of their county, and, as nearly as the condition and necessity of the roads will permit, it shall be expended in each county commissioners’ precinct in proportion to the amount collected in such precinct; and in expending money in building permanent roads the money shall first be used only on first or second class roads, and on those which shall have the right of way furnished free of cost to make as straight a road as is practicable to obtain and having the greatest bonus offered by the citizens of money, labor or other property. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6950. [4760] May make rules and regulations for working roads.—The commissioners’ courts are authorized to make all reasonable and necessary rules and orders for the working and repairing of public roads, and to utilize the labor to be used and money expended thereon, not in conflict with the laws of this state, and enforce such rules and orders; and they are further authorized to purchase or hire all necessary road machinery, tools or teams, and hire such labor as may be needed in addition to the labor now required of citizens to build or repair the roads. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6951. [4761] May accept donations of money, etc.—Commissioners' courts or road commissioners may accept donations of money, lands, labor of men, teams or tools, or any other kind of property or material to aid in building roads in their counties, and may authorize any person to make a drain along any public road for the purpose of draining his land, and require the person draining his land to do such work under the direction of the road commissioner. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6952. [4762] Law cumulative.—This chapter shall not be construed to repeal any existing law, but it is cumulative and in aid of existing law; provided, that when road commissioners are employed the county commissioners are not required to supervise the roads as required by article 6901 of the Revised Statutes; provided, nothing in this law shall be construed so as to require more than five days' service in one year of any citizen. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6976. Counties exempt.

Article 6953. [4763] Commissioners' court may employ superintendents for county.—The commissioners' court of any county in this state may appoint one road superintendent for such county, or one superintendent in each commissioners' precinct, and such courts are authorized by an order made at any regular term thereof to determine whether there shall be one road superintendent for the county or one for each of the commissioner's precincts therein. Such order shall be entered on the minutes of such court, and shall not be void for want of form, but a substantial compliance with the provisions of this chapter shall be sufficient; provided, no county shall be under the operation of this law whose commissioners' court does not appoint a road superintendent or superintendents as herein provided. [Acts 1891, p. 149, sec. 1.]

Art. 6954. [4764] May determine number to be appointed.—In case such commissioners' court shall determine that there shall be one road superintendent, as provided in the preceding article, such court shall appoint a competent road superintendent for such county, and in case it is determined that there shall be four superintendents, then such court shall appoint a competent person as road superintendent for each commissioner's precinct in such county. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6955. [4765] Oath and bond of superintendent.—Each road superintendent, whether county or precinct, shall within twenty days after his appointment take and subscribe the oath required by the constitution, and enter into bond payable to the county judge and his successors in office, with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the county judge, in such sum as may be fixed by the commissioners' court, conditioned that he will faithfully do and perform all the duties required of him by law or the commissioners' court and that he will pay out and disburse the funds subject to his control as the law provides, or the commissioners' court may direct, which bond shall be filed and recorded as other official bonds and shall not be void for the first recovery, but may be sued on from time to time until the full amount is exhausted. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6956. [4766] Qualifications.—Every road superintendent shall be a qualified voter in the county or precinct, as the case may be, for which he is appointed, and shall hold his office for two years or until his successor is appointed and qualified, but in all cases where the condition of the roads does not demand the continued services of the superintendent, his salary may in the discretion of the commissioners' court be suspended. The commissioners' court may for good cause remove any road superintendent, and in case of vacancy from any cause may appoint a successor, who shall hold his office for the unexpired term. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6957. [4767] Salary.—Each road superintendent shall receive such salary as may be fixed by the commissioners' court, to be paid on the order of said court at stated intervals, but the salary of the county superintendent, in counties of less than fifteen thousand inhabitants, shall never exceed one thousand dollars per annum, and in counties of more than fifteen thousand inhabitants, it shall not exceed twelve hundred dollars per annum. The salary of precinct superintendents in counties of less than fifteen thousand inhabitants shall not exceed three hundred dollars per annum, and in counties of over fifteen thousand inhabitants it shall never exceed four hundred dollars per annum. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6958. [4768] Shall have supervision, etc., over roads subject to commissioners' court.—The road superintendent, subject to the orders and directions of the commissioners' court, shall have the general supervision over all the public roads and highways of his county or precinct, as the case may be, and shall superintend the laying out of new roads, the making and changing of roads therein, the building of bridges therein (except where otherwise contracted), the working of the roads therein and all repairs to be made on the same, and over all county convicts worked on such roads, but this shall not prevent the commissioners' court from employing a person to watch and manage such convicts and direct the work to be done by them. Said road superintendent shall take charge of all tools, machinery, implements and teams placed under his control by the commissioners' court, and execute his receipt therefor, which shall be filed with the county clerk, and he shall be responsible for the safe keeping of all such machinery, tools, implements and teams, and the proper expenditure and paying out of all money belonging to the road fund that may come into his hands, and shall be liable for the loss, injury or destruction of any such tools, teams, implements or machinery, unless such loss occurred without his fault, and for the wrongful or improper expenditure of any such money, and upon the expiration of his term of office, or in case of his resignation or removal, he shall deliver all such money and property to his
Art. 6959. [4769] Roads and bridges to be kept in repair; his duty, etc.—It shall be the duty of each road superintendent to see that all of the roads and bridges in his county or precinct, as the case may be, are kept in good repair, and he shall, under the direction of the commissioners' court, inaugurate and carry out a system of working, grading and draining the public roads in his county or precinct, and shall see that every person subject to road duty in his county or precinct performs the work to which he is liable under the law. He shall act as supervisor of the roads in his county or precinct, as the case may be, and perform all the duties of supervisor that now devolve on the county commissioners under the existing laws in counties not adopting this law, and he shall do and perform such other service as may be required of him by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6960. [4770] County shall be divided into precincts or districts.—Each road superintendent in counties where the commissioners' court so directs, as soon as practicable, shall divide his county or precinct, as the case may be, into road districts of convenient size, to be approved by the commissioners' court, and define the boundaries thereof and designate the same by number, which boundaries shall be recorded in the road minutes of the commissioners' court; and he shall ascertain the names of all persons subject to road duty in each district and keep a record thereof and report the same to the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6961. [4771] Shall call out all persons liable to work, etc.—Every road superintendent shall have power, and it shall be his duty, to call out all persons liable to work on the public roads at any time and in such numbers as he may deem necessary to work the roads in their respective districts, and he shall utilize all such labor to the best advantage in connection with other labor on the roads. The call shall be summons served in the manner and for the length of time prescribed by the law regulating the calling out of hands by overseers, but no person shall be compelled to work outside of his road district. The road superintendent may appoint any person subject to road duty in any district to summon the hands to work the roads therein, and such person shall be exempt from road service as many days as he was actually engaged in summoning the hands, and in case of emergency he may appoint a deputy to supervise any particular work. He may also contract with any person subject to road duty for the use of teams, and permit such person to discharge his road duty by the use of such double team, but he shall never allow more than two dollars a day for any team, nor more than three dollars for any hand and double team. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6962. [4772] Shall make reports.—Each road superintendent shall make a report, under oath, to the commissioners' court at each regular term thereof, showing an itemized account of all money belonging to the road fund he has received, from whom received, and what disposition he has made of the same, the condition of all roads and bridges in his county or precinct, as the case may be, and such other matters as the court may desire information upon, and shall make such other report at such times as such court may require. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6963. [4773] Commissioners' court may hire or purchase all machinery, etc., for working roads.—The commissioners' court of any such county is authorized to purchase or hire all necessary road machinery, tools, implements, teams and labor required to grade, drain or repair the roads of such county, and said court is authorized and empowered to make all reasonable and necessary rules, orders and regulations not in conflict with law for laying out, working and otherwise improving the public roads, and to utilize the labor and money expended thereon, and to enforce the same. But no change in any road shall be made that lengths the same without it is to the benefit of the traveling public or for the protection of private property, and then only upon the unanimous consent of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 6964. [4774] May employ sufficient force, etc.—Each road superintendent shall employ sufficient force to enable him to do the necessary work in his county or precinct, as the case may be, having due regard for the condition of the county road and bridge fund and the quality and durability of the work to be done, and shall buy or hire such tools, teams, implements and machinery as the commissioners' court may direct, and he shall work such roads in such manner as the commissioner may direct, and such work shall at all times be subject to the general supervision of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6965. [4775] Shall make the best contracts, etc.—Each road superintendent shall make the best contract possible for all labor, tools, implements or machinery that he is authorized to hire or purchase, and in payment therefor he shall issue to the person entitled thereto his certificate, showing the amount due and the purpose for which it was given, and upon approval by the commissioners' court a warrant shall issue therefor to the holder thereof on the county treasurer, to be paid by him out of the proper fund as other warrants. All such certificates shall be dated, numbered and signed by the road superintendent, and he and his sureties on his official bond shall be liable for all loss or damages caused by the wrongful issue of any such certificate or any extravagance in the amount thereof. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 6966. [4776] May improve roads and bridges by contract.—The commissioners' court of any such county may, when deemed best, construct, grade, gravel or otherwise improve any road or bridge by contract. In such case said court or the county judge may advertise, in such manner as said court may determine, for bids to do such work and the contract shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, who shall enter into bond with good and sufficient sureties for the faithful compliance with such contract, but said court shall have the right to reject any and all bids. At the time of making any such contract the said court shall direct the county treasurer to pass the amount of money stipulated in such contract to a particular fund for that purpose, and the treasurer shall keep a separate account of such fund; and the same shall not be used for any other purpose, and can only be paid out on the order of said court. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 6967. [4777] May require county convicts to work on roads.—The commissioners' court may require all county convicts not otherwise employed to labor upon the public roads under such regulations as may be most expedient. Each county convict worked on the public roads in satisfaction of any fine and costs shall receive a credit thereon of fifty cents for each day he may labor. And the commissioners' court may order that the county pay to the officers of court as much as one-half of the costs due them and adjudged against such convict, and upon such order such payment shall be made. But no such costs nor any part thereof shall ever be paid until such convict has worked out the entire amount of such fine and costs as provided by law, and then only upon a certificate from such county or precinct superintendent to the effect that such costs have been so worked out. The commissioners' court may grant a reasonable commutation of time for which a convict would be compelled to work to pay his fine and costs, or for which he is committed, as a reward for faithful services and good behavior, and such court shall make proper rules and regulations under which such commutations may be granted. [Id. sec. 15.]
Art. 6968. [4778] May accept donations, etc.—The commissioners' court may accept donations of money, land, teams, tools or labor, or any other kind of property or material, to aid in building or keeping up roads in the county, and said court or any road superintendent, by and with the concurrence of the commissioners, may authorize any person to make a drain along any public road, the same to be done under the direction of the road superintendent, or such other person as said court may direct. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 6969. [4779] May retain old system of working roads.—The commissioners' court of any county may retain the system of working hands under road overseers as provided by general laws, and place such overseers under control of a county or precinct superintendent, under such lawful regulations as said court may prescribe, or may work with overseers without any superintendent, as may be deemed best. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 6970. [4780] May, in counties levying special tax, exempt persons from working roads.—The commissioners' court of any county in any county in which a special tax for the maintenance of the public roads is levied and collected, as provided for in section 9 of article 8 of the constitution, shall not be compelled to require persons subject to road duty to work on the roads, as prescribed in existing general laws, but in such counties the roads shall be worked wholly by taxation, or by taxation in connection with road service, as such court may deem best. In any such county such court may reduce the number of days that persons liable to road duty may be required to work on the roads, but can never increase the number above five days in any one year. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 6971. [4781] Superintendent to keep accounts.—Each road superintendent shall keep an accurate account of all moneys received by him on account of the road or bridge fund, and pay the same over to the county treasurer within ten days after its collection, taking his receipt for the same. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 6972. [4782] Parties misplacing bridge shall be liable, etc.—Any person who shall knowingly or willfully destroy, injure or misplace any bridge, culvert, drain, sewer, ditch, signboard, mile post or tile, or anything of like character, placed upon any road for the benefit of the same, shall be liable to the county and any person injured for all damages caused thereby. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 6973. [4783] Delinquent poll tax payers to be subject to three days' road duty.—The county superintendent or the precinct superintendent, as the case may be, shall obtain from the tax collector of their counties as soon after the first day of January of each year as practicable, and before the first day of May thereafter, a full list of the delinquent poll tax payers of such county for the previous year, and the persons so appearing on said list and who are such delinquent poll tax payers shall be subject to road duty for the period of three days during such year, and they shall be summoned, as in other cases, to work the roads in the road district or precinct in which such person may reside; and the performance of the road service provided for in this article shall not exonerate the persons from any other road duty to which the persons performing the same may be subject, but this shall be taken as cumulative. The persons required to do road duty under the provisions of this article shall be subject to prosecution as provided in this chapter or other law of this state, and subject to the same liabilities and punishments provided for in other cases for failing to appear or do good work, when summoned so to do, as provided for by this chapter or other law of this state, and all such laws shall apply to parties required to work under the provisions of this article. And when they are convicted for so failing to work the roads, shall satisfy the fine and costs as in other misdemeanor convictions. But any person summoned to work on the road under the provisions of this article may satisfy such summons and be relieved from such duty by paying to the county road or precinct superintendent, as the case may be, three dollars; one-third of which sum shall go to the free school fund, and the balance to the road and bridge fund. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 6974. [4784] "Roads," "work" and "working" defined.—The term, "road," as used in this chapter, includes roadbed, ditches, drains, bridges, culverts, and every part of such road, and the terms, "work" and "working" include the opening and laying out of new roads, widening, constructing, draining, repairing, and everything else that may be done in and about any road. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 6975. [4785] Law cumulative.—This law shall be cumulative of all other general laws on the subject of roads and bridges not in conflict herewith, and where not otherwise provided herein such general laws shall apply; but in case of conflict with other general laws the provisions of this chapter shall govern. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 6976. Counties exempt.—The counties of Grayson, Travis, Houston, Dallas, Limestone, Fayette, Galveston, Cherokee, Wood, Rains, Harrison, Shelby, San Augustine, Sabine, Newton, Jasper, Tyler, Morris, Victoria, Refugio, Aransas, Calhoun, Jackson, De Witt, Hopkins, Comal, Upshur, Blanco, Camp, Gillespie, Lavaca, Parker, Panola, Milam, Lamar, Hill, Smith, Gregg, McLennan, Harris, Washington, Titus, Cass, Franklin, Delta, Angelina, Nacogdoches, Bowie, Montgomery, Trinity, Red River, Henderson, Van Zandt, Tarrant and Jack counties are exempted from the provisions of this chapter; provided, that the county commissioners court of Dallas and Collin counties may accept and adopt the provisions of this Act in lieu of the special acts for Dallas, Collin, Grayson and other counties, if in their judgment its provisions are better suited to Dallas and Collin counties than the said special laws. [Acts 1911, p. 234, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1911, p. 234, sec. 1, enacts that Acts 1909, ch. 134 (p. 82), be amended so as to read as above. Said chapter 134 was contained in Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 6976, which is superseded hereby.

ROAD LAW FOR COUNTIES HAVING FORTY THOUSAND INHABITANTS OR OVER

[For list of local road laws, see Appendix.]

Art. 6977. Members of commissioners' court to be ex officio road commissioners; their duties; bond.

Art. 6978. Their powers.

Art. 6979. May work convicts.

Art. 6980. Shall have control over overseers.

Art. 6981. Shall direct work in progress.

Art. 6982. May cause road hands to be called out, when; credit allowed for use of teams; penalty for non-compliance with instructions.

Art. 6983. Persons exempted from road duty, how.

Article 6977. Members of commissioners' courts to be ex officio road commissioners; their duties; bond.—In all counties of this state, as shown by the United States official national census of 1900 to contain as many as forty thousand inhabitants, the members of the commissioners' court shall be ex officio road commissioners of their respective precincts; and under the direction of the commissioners' court shall have charge of the teams, tools and machinery belonging to the county and placed in their hands by said court; and it shall be their duty, under such rules and regulations as the commissioners' court may prescribe, to superintend the laying out of new roads, the making or changing of roads and the building of bridges. Each of the county commissioners shall, before entering upon the duties of road commissioner, execute a bond of one thousand dollars, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the county judge, and his successors in office and to be approved by the county judge for the use and benefit of the road and bridge fund, conditioned that he will perform all the duties required of him by law, or by the commissioners' court, and that he will account for all money or other property belonging to the county that may come into his possession. [Acts 1901, p. 277, sec. 1.]

Art. 6978. Their powers.—The commissioners' court shall have full power and authority, and it shall be their duty, to adopt such system for working, laying out, draining and repairing the public roads as they may deem best, and, from time to time, said court may change their plan or system of working. The commissioners' court shall have the power to purchase such teams, tools and machinery as may be necessary for the working of public roads. Said court shall have the power to construct, grade, or otherwise improve any road or bridge by contract. In such cases, said court or county judge may advertise in such manner as said court may determine for bids to do the work; and the contract shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, who shall enter into a bond, payable to the county judge and his successors in office, for the use and benefit of the road and bridge fund, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the commissioners' court, and in such sum as said court may determine, for the faithful performance of the terms of said contract, but said court shall have the right to reject any or all bids. At the time of making any such contract the court shall direct the county treasurer to pass the amount of said contract to a particular fund for that purpose; and the treasurer shall keep a separate account of said fund, and the same shall not be used for any other purpose, and can only be paid out on the order of said court; and the said court shall have authority to employ any hands and teams on the public roads under such regulations and for such prices as they may deem best. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 6979. May work convicts.—The commissioners' court shall require all male county convicts, not otherwise employed, to labor on the public roads, under such regulations as they may prescribe, and each convict so worked shall receive a credit of fifty cents on his fine first, and then on the costs, for each day he may labor. The commissioners' court shall at each term allow the officers and witnesses such amount of their costs as has been satisfied in full by labor of such convicts, for the arrest and conviction of said convicts as it may deem best. not to exceed one-half of such costs; which amount shall be paid to the officers and witnesses out of the road and bridge fund on the warrant of the county judge; provided, that this shall not be so construed as to relieve any convict from the payment of all costs for which he may be liable under the laws of this state. The commissioners' court may grant a reasonable commutation of time for which a convict is committed as a reward for faithful service and good behavior; provided, that such commutation shall in no case exceed one-tenth of the whole time. The commissioners' court may provide the necessary houses, prisons, clothing, bedding, food, medicine, medical attention and superintendents and guards for the safe and humane keeping of the convicts. The commissioners' court may provide such reasonable regulations and punishment as may be necessary to require such convicts to perform good work, and to provide a reward not to exceed ten dollars, to be paid out of the road and bridge fund, for the recapture and delivery of any escaped convict, to be paid to any person other than the guard or person in charge of such convict at the time of his escape. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6980. Shall have control of overseers.—Each road commissioner shall have control of all road overseers in his precinct, and shall deliver to each of them such teams, tools and machinery necessary in working the roads in the precinct of said overseer, so far as he has been supplied therewith by the commissioners' court, taking a receipt therefor, specifying each item and giving its value, which receipt shall be a full answer for the liability of the road commissioner, and shall fix the liability of the road overseer; and the road commissioner or road overseer, who shall have been intrusted with any teams, tools or machinery belonging to the county, shall be liable for all damages that may occur to the same while in his possession caused by his negligence or want of due care of same. It shall be the duty of the road overseer, when he has finished work on his road, to return to said road commissioner all teams, tools and machinery received from him and take up the receipt given therefor. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6981. Shall direct work.—It shall be the duty of each county commissioner, when acting as road commissioner, to inform himself of the condition of the public roads in his precinct, and shall determine what character of work shall be done on said roads, and shall direct the manner of grading, draining or otherwise improving the same, which directions shall be followed and obeyed by all road overseers of his precinct. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6982. May cause road hands to be called out, when; credit allowed for use of teams; penalty for non-compliance with instructions.—The road commissioner may require each road overseer in his precinct to call out the hands in such numbers as may be sufficient to perform the work, but no road hand shall be required to work exceeding five days in any one year, unless the term of service as now provided by law shall be extended beyond that time; and provided, that all road hands in a particular road precinct shall as far as practicable be worked a uniform time. Each road overseer shall have full control of all road hands in his precinct, and shall see that each hand, when called out, shall perform a good day's work; and, if any hand when so called out shall fail or refuse to do a good day's work, or to work in the manner the overseer may direct, he shall be liable to the same penalty as if he had failed to appear in obedience to the summons. And the road overseer may, when he deems expedient or when so directed to do by the road commissioner of said commissioner's precinct, and at the time of notifying any hand to work upon the road, also summon such hand as may be the owner of a team suitable for road work, to bring such team with him to be used in working upon the public roads during such time as the hand may be notified to work upon the public roads; and, after such notice given, if such hand shall fail or refuse to bring his team with him as notified to do, he shall be liable to the same penalty as if he had failed to appear in obedience to the summons; provided, that any hand for so doing shall be credited with and allowed two and one-half days upon his time for which he is liable for road duty for each day he may work in connection with and while furnishing such team, and one and one-half days for his team without such hand. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6983. Persons exempted from road duty, how.—A person liable for road duty, who shall, on or before the first day of February of any year, pay to the county treasurer the sum of three dollars, shall be exempt from road duty for such year, beginning on the first day of February. The county treasurer shall receive and receipt for all money so paid him and place the same to the credit of the road and bridge fund, and he shall keep a separate account for each precinct from which it is received. The county treasurer shall, on the third day of February, or as soon thereafter as practicable, furnish to each road commissioner a list of all persons in their respective precincts that have paid said sums, as provided in this article. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6984. May take material for road work; compensation; condemnation proceedings.—When to the commissioners' court it may appear expedient to build, repair or maintain any public road in their county, the timber, earth, stone, gravel, or other necessary material, most convenient therefor may be used; but in such case the owner thereof shall be paid out of the road and bridge fund of such county a fair compensation for the same as may be agreed upon by the owner thereof, or his agent, and the commissioners' court; provided, however, that should said owner, or his agent, and the said commissioners' court fail to agree upon the compensation to be paid therefor, then the county, upon the order of said court, shall proceed to condemn the same in the same manner that a railroad company can condemn lands for right of way; and the same proceedings shall be had as would exist if the proceedings were by a railroad company, except as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 6985. County not to give bond; compensation of commissioners appointed to condemn.—The county shall not be required, in proceedings to determine the compensation to be paid for material to build, repair or maintain public roads, in any case to give bond for costs, and the commissioners appointed to condemn such property necessary as aforesaid shall receive for their services two dollars for each and every day that they may be necessarily engaged in the performance of their duties as such commissioners, to be paid out of the road and bridge fund on the order of the commissioners' court, and the compensation awarded by said commissioners for the necessary material shall be paid to the owner or deposited with the county treasurer to the credit of such owner, and when so paid or deposited the county shall have the right to enter upon and use said material. If the owner of such material, or said county, is not satisfied with the compensation awarded said owner, he or said county may appeal therefrom as in cases of appeal in proceedings by railroad companies to condemn right of way. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6986. Penalty for failure to comply with road duty.—If any person liable to work upon the public roads, after being legally summoned, shall fail or refuse to attend, either in person or by able and competent substitute, or fail or refuse to furnish his team or tools at the time and place designated by the person summoning him, or to pay to such road overseer the sum of one dollar for each day he may have been notified to work on the public roads, or to pay to such overseer the sum of one dollar and fifty cents for each day he may have been notified to furnish his team for road work, or having attended shall fail or refuse to perform good service, or any other duty required of him by law, or the person under whom he may work, or if any one shall fail to comply with any duty required of him as provided by law, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, punished as provided in the Penal Code. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 6987. Compensation of commissioners.—Each county commissioner, as compensation for his services as ex officio road commissioner of his precinct, shall be entitled to such sum as may be prescribed by the commissioners' court of his county, not to exceed four dollars per day for the services actually performed; provided, that he shall not receive more than fifty dollars per month; which amount shall be paid monthly out of the road and bridge fund, when the account shall have been allowed by the commissioners' court; and said court shall not approve said account unless the road commissioner presenting it shall sign an oath that the account is just, true and unpaid, and specifying the number of days' work actually performed by him, nor shall he be entitled to any other or further compensation for supervising public roads, except what is allowed by this act. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 6988. This chapter cumulative.—The provisions of this chapter shall be held and construed to be cumulative of all general laws of this state on the subject of roads, when not in conflict therewith, but in case of such conflict this chapter to control; and provided, this chapter shall not be in operation in any county of this state, unless the commissioners' court thereof in their judgment may deem it advisable, and then only by an order of the commissioners' court when all the members are present, made at some regular term thereof, accepting the provisions of this chapter. Such order shall be entered on the minutes of said court, and shall not be void for want of form, but a substantial compliance with the provisions thereof shall be sufficient. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 6989. Certain counties excepted.—The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to the counties of Fannin, Lamar, Grayson, Collin, Hunt, Dallas and Bell. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER EIGHT
DRAINAGE OF PUBLIC ROADS

Art. 6990. What roads are public; commissioners to cause drains to be constructed.

Art. 7002. Appeals.
7003. Trial on appeal.
7004. Appropriation; construction.
7005. Special overseer employed, when; duties, powers and compensation.
7006. List of assessments; certificates to issue.
7007. County treasurer to collect on certificates.
7008. Enforcement by suit.
7009. Operates a lien.
7010. Compensation of viewers and surveyor.
7011. Abutting owners may construct lateral ditches.
7012. This act cumulative.

Art. 6990. What roads are public; commissioners to cause drains to be constructed.—For the purpose of this chapter, all public roads and highways that have been heretofore, or that may hereafter be, laid out and established agreeable to law, and all roads and highways that have been opened to and used by the public for a period of ten years prior to March 25, 1897, and which have not been discontinued or closed to the use of the public agreeably to law, are hereby declared to be public roads. The commissioners' court of any county in this state, at any regular session thereof, may, in the manner hereinafter provided, and the said court shall have power to cause to be constructed and maintained, as hereinafter provided, ditches, drains and watercourses on and within the exterior lines of all public roads situated within any of the said counties, sufficient in capacity to carry off and into the natural waterways of the county, all surface water reasonably adjacent and liable to collect in said ditch, drain, or watercourse from natural causes, or by means of the construction of private lateral ditches as hereinafter provided for, and shall also have power to construct, in connection with such drain or watercourse any side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or watercourse necessary to the accomplishment of the purposes of this act; provided, however, that no ditch, drain or watercourse shall be constructed along any public road without there being constructed, at the same time, a ditch, drain, or watercourse as an outlet to a natural waterway, sufficient in capacity to carry off all water that may collect therein; provided, further, that the word, “ditch,” in this chapter hereafter shall be construed to embrace any ditch, drain, or watercourse that may be constructed under the provisions of this act. [Acts 1897, p. 66, secs. 1 and 2.]

Burdens on streets and highways for sea walls.—See Title 83, Chapter 3.

Art. 6991. Shall not change natural course of stream.—No road overseer, or any court, shall, on petition or otherwise, have the power to change the natural course of any branch, creek or water stream, but such volume of water shall always enter and cross said road at its natural crossing; and overseers shall always, in draining their roads, provide a culvert sufficiently broad and tall to permit said stream to flow at high tide, from its intersection with said road, across its natural outflow at the opposite natural channel. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 6992. Petition.—Before the commissioners’ court of such country shall have the power to order the construction or establishment of any ditch, drain, or watercourse, provided for in this chapter, there shall be filed with the county clerk of the county court of said county a petition signed by at least one hundred taxpayers and voters of said county, which petition shall set forth the necessity and availability for such drainage system, and the number of miles of public roads within such county, as accurately as the same may be known, and as near as practicable, the width and depth required for the ditches to be constructed along the first class roads of the county. Said petition shall, also, sep-ately state the name and location of each of the natural waterways of such county crossed by each of the first-class public roads of the said county, and the distance of said natural waterways, one from the other, along said road; said petition shall also state the names and residences, if known, of the owners of the lands adjacent to each of said first class public roads, and within one mile thereof, and, if unknown, the same shall be stated therein. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 6993. Notices.—Upon the filing of said petition with the clerk of the county court, he shall issue five notices in writing, containing a brief statement of the contents of said petition, commanding all persons interested to appear at the next regular term of the commissioners’ court of such county and contest the same. One of said notices shall be posted at the court house door of such county, and one each at four other public places in such county, no two of which shall be in the same town or city, for twenty days prior to the first day of the next regular term of the commissioners’ court after the issuance thereof. Said notices shall be posted by the sheriff of the county, who shall make due returns to the clerk of the county court of such notices, on or before the said first day of the term; and for such services the sheriff shall receive a fee of three dollars, and the clerk shall receive a fee of one dollar and fifty cents.
[Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 6994. Protests, hearing.—At the next regular term after the filing of the petition and issuance of notices, the commissioners’ court shall hear and determine the same in connection with all protests, remonstrances or objections thereto; and, if they find that the adoption of the drainage system provided for herein is necessary, advisable, or for the public benefit, or for the best interest of the county, the said court shall so order, and the order shall be entered at length upon the minutes of the court, and become a part of the record thereof, and the same shall recite the time, character, and manner of service of notice; and, if it appears therefrom that notice has been given as provided for herein, the said order shall be final, and thereafter no question shall be raised as to the power of the court to hear and determine said application. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 6995. Surveyor employed.—At the same or any succeeding term of the commissioners’ court after the entry of the order adopting the drainage system provided for herein, the commissioners’ court shall employ a competent surveyor, who shall be an engineer, to run a line of levels along the public roads of the county, and to measure the same from the beginning to the terminus of said road, and to measure the distance of each waterway crossed by said roads from the beginning point, together with the frontage of each tract of land abutting on said road, and also the distance from said road of any adjacent natural waterway, with line of levels thereon; provided, that the said survey and the drainage system herein provided for shall be first applied to the first class roads of such county, and thereafter to roads of the second and third class; and provided, further, that nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the said court from constructing one or more ditches at the same time, as the financial condition of the county will permit. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 6996. Survey made; report.—The surveyor shall, as soon as practicable after his employment, proceed to make an accurate survey and system of levels as provided for in the preceding article, and shall cause stakes or monuments to be placed along said line at intervals of one hundred feet, together with such intermediate stakes as may be necessary, numbered progressively, and shall establish permanent bench marks along said lines at intervals of one mile or less, as may be necessary, and shall establish, by stake or monument of a different character and appearance from all other stakes or monuments, the highest point upon said road between each of the natural waterways crossed by the road; said surveyor shall also measure and establish, by suitable marks, the frontage of each tract of land abutting on said road; and, if there be a natural waterway adjacent to the line of said road and ditch and the same is necessary to be utilized as an outlet for the water at any point on said ditch, the surveyor shall measure the distance to same, and run the line of levels thereto, at the nearest practicable point on said road and ditch. He shall prepare a map showing the location of said ditch or ditches, together with the position of stakes or monuments with numbers corresponding with those on the ground, and the position of bench marks, with their elevations referred to an assumed or previously determined datum. Said map shall also show the lines and boundaries of adjacent land, and the courses and distances of any adjacent watercourse, together with a profile of the line of the ditch, which shall show the assumed datum and the grade line of the bottom of the same, and the elevation of each stake, monument, or other important feature along the line, such as top of banks, and bottom of all ditches or watercourses, and surface of water, top of rail, and bottom of tie, foot of embankment, bottom of borrow pits of all railroads. And said map, or the explanation accompanying the same, shall, in tabular form, give the depth of cut, width at bottom and width at top, at the source, outlet, and at each one hundred feet stake or monument to said ditch, drain or watercourse. Said map, or the explanation accompanying the same, shall show the total number of cubic yards of earth to be excavated and removed from said ditch between each natural waterway into which the water is to be conveyed, and an estimate of the cost of each portion of the said ditch or ditches lying between natural waterways crossed by said road, together with an estimate of total cost of the whole work. The surveyor shall, as soon as the survey is completed, prepare and file, together with his report and map as herein provided for, specifications in detail for the execution of the same; and, whenever in the opinion of the surveyor it may be advantageous to run said ditch underground through drainage tiles, he shall so state in said report, map and specifications, together with the statement of the locality of said underground ditch, and length thereof, and the dimensions or character of tiling or other material required therefor. The survey, report, map, explanation and estimate herein provided for shall be made and filed with the county clerk of the county by the surveyor as soon after his employment as may be practicable, having in view an accurate and complete report upon the physical conditions to be met in the construction of said ditch or ditches. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 6997. Jury of viewers, duties; report.—At any regular or called session of the commissioners' court after the filing of the report, map, explanation, specifications and estimate of the surveyor; provided for in the preceding article, the court shall appoint a jury of five freeholders of the county not interested directly in the construction of the proposed work as a land owner adjacent to or abutting on said ditch or ditches, and not of kin to any of the parties so directly interested therein, who shall constitute a jury of viewers who shall meet at a time and place to be specified by the said court in the order appointing them; and it shall be the duty of the county clerk thereupon to issue to the said viewers a certified copy of the petition and order of the court, together with the original report, map, explanation, specifications and estimate of the surveyor; and, if said jury of viewers shall fail or refuse from any cause to perform the duties required under such appointment, or if their report, from any cause should not be adopted, the court may, at any succeeding term, appoint another jury of viewers, whose appointment and duties shall be the same as required in the first instance. The jury of viewers shall proceed at the time and place specified in the order of the court appointing them, after having given notice to each abutting land owner, and owner of land within one mile of said ditch, as herein-after provided, and after viewing the line of the proposed ditch, and after hearing all protests, claims and remonstrances offered, they shall take the several partial estimates, and the estimate of the total cost of the work as made by the surveyor as a basis, and they shall set apart and apportion to each parcel of land abutting on said road and ditch, or within one mile of the same, and to each person, firm or corporation owning the same, the proportionate share chargeable to such tract of the one-half of the total cost of the said ditch, drain and watercourse, taking into consideration the relative amount of benefit derived by said land from the construction thereof; and they shall assess the amount of damages or compensation due to each land owner through whose land any spur, branch, or lateral ditch, is or may be constructed under the order of appointment, which sum shall be paid by the county before the opening of such ditch is begun; provided, that said jury of viewers shall have lines run parallel to the line of said ditch at a distance of one mile upon either side of the same; and no lands lying outside of said lines shall be assessed with any portion of the cost of such ditch and drain, but all lands and tracts of land lying within said lines may be assessed their proportionate share of said one-half of the total cost, taking into consideration the amount or value of benefits derived by said lands, or tracts of land, from the construction of such ditch. The jury of view shall make a report to the commissioners' court, under oath, as soon as practicable after their meeting, signed by at least three of said jury, and duly verified under oath, and shall return with their report a description, as accurate and complete as may be, of each tract or parcel of land assessed by them, together with the number of acres and the name of the owner or owners thereof, and the amount by them assessed against each tract, and the owner thereof. The jury of viewers shall also return with their report the map, profile, explanation and estimates of the surveyor, together with a copy of the specifications; and the same shall be filed with the clerk, and shall become a public.
Art. 6997 ROADS, BRIDGES AND FERRIES (Title 119)

record and be preserved as such, and the court shall act upon said report at the next regular or called term, and approve or reject the same; provided, that the court may appoint separate juries of view for each road and ditch to be constructed, if deemed desirable or of advantage to the public. [Id. sec. 8.]

Inadequate damages.—In a proceeding to condemn land for a ditch to drain a highway, a verdict assessing the value of the land at a certain sum held clearly inadequate, and should be set aside. Palmer v. Harris County, 29 C. A. 346, 69 S. W. 229.

Art. 6998. Oath of viewers.—The said jury of viewers, before proceeding to act as such, shall take the following oath before an officer authorized to administer the same, to-wit: "I do solemnly swear that I am not directly interested in the construction of the proposed ditch, either as the owner or otherwise, of adjacent land lying within one mile thereof, and that I am not of kin to any person who is so interested. I further swear that I have no bias or prejudice towards any person directly interested in said ditch, and that I will assess the amount of expense due on and by all adjacent lands lying within one mile of said ditch, according to law, without fear, favor, hatred or hope of reward, to the best of my knowledge and ability. So help me God." [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 6999. Assessment of abutting owners.—The said jury of view, as provided for in this chapter, shall issue a notice in writing to the land owner of each abutting tract along said ditch, and to each land owner, any part of whose land lies within one mile of the line of said ditch, or to his or their agent or attorney, of the time and place when they will assess the one-half of the expense incidental to the construction of the ditch or ditches specified in the order of appointment; which notice shall be served upon such owner, his agent or attorney, at least five days before the day named therein; said notice may be served by any person competent to testify; and a duplicate of said notice, together with the returns of said service, shall be returned and filed with the report of the jury of viewers. If such owner is a non-resident of the county, and has no resident agent or attorney therein, the notice shall be given by publication in a newspaper published in the county, as notices are required to be given to non-resident defendants in actions in the district courts; and said notice shall be complete after four weeks publication thereof prior to the date named for the meeting of the jury of view; and at any time thereafter the jury of viewers may proceed to assess the proportionate part of such expense against said non-resident land owner, and the land owned by him subject thereto. The cost of such publication shall be paid by the county, on an order of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 7000. Action of commissioners court on protests final.—Any person who may be affected by such ditch, drain, or water course, or any citizen of the county, shall have the right to appear before the commissioners' court on the hearing of the petition for the establishment of the drainage system, and shall have the right to be heard upon their protest, remonstrances and objections thereto; but the action of the court thereon shall be final; and, in case the court shall refuse to adopt the drainage system provided for herein, no application therefor shall be filed or heard by said court for one year thereafter. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 7001. Objections and claims submitted in writing to viewers; failure to submit same a waiver of claim.—Any person whose land may be affected by such ditch, drain or water course shall have the right to appear before said viewers and freely express their opinions on all matters pertaining to the assessment of expense against them; and the owner of any such lands may at the time stated in such notice, or previously thereto, present to the jury a statement in writing of any objections to, or dissatisfaction therewith, and any claim for damages which he may have sustained by reason of the making of said ditch or roads, of heard a be may cause against of view of appellee, provided, that any adjacent land owner shall have the right to appear before and be heard by the commissioners' court on his protest or remonstrance or claim against the action of the jury of viewers. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 7002. Appeals.—Any person, firm, or corporation, aggrieved by the assessment of expense for construction of any ditch or ditches by the jury of view, or any person, firm, or corporation, aggrieved by the assessment of damages or compensation allowed by the jury for land taken or applied to the construction of any lateral spur, or branch ditch, may appeal from the final order of the commissioners' court approving the report of said jury to any court within the county having jurisdiction of the amount of such assessment, by giving notice of appeal in open court and having the same entered as a part of the judgment of the court, and by filing, within ten days thereafter, a transcript of the proceedings had in the commissioners' court, with the justice or clerk of the court to which appeal is taken, together with an appeal bond with at least two good sureties, to be approved by such clerk or justice, in double the amount of the probable costs to accrue, conditioned that the appellant will prosecute his appeal to effect, and pay all costs that may be adjudged against him in said court; and, if the appeal is taken from an assessment of expense levied by the jury of viewers against the appellant, the said appeal shall be heard upon the following issue, to-wit: Whether the assessments made against the appellant for the construction of such ditch are in proportion to the benefits to be derived therefrom. And if the appeal is taken from an assessment of compensation made by the jury of viewers in favor of appellant for land taken and applied to the construction of such ditch, or any portion of the same, the said appeal shall be heard upon the following issue, to-wit: Whether the assessment of compensation made by the jury is adequate to the injury occasioned and to the value of the land. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 7003. Trial on appeal.—In the trial of all cases so appealed from the order of the commissioners' court, the burden of proof shall rest upon the appellant; and the court or jury trying the cause shall state the correct amount of expense chargeable to appellant, or the correct amount of compensation due to appellant, as found by them, and the same shall be entered as the judgment of the court thereon, and from such judgment no further appeal shall be allowed to either party; and, if the verdict of the jury shall find the appellant chargeable with a less amount of expense, or that the appellant is entitled to a greater amount of compensation as damages than was found by the jury of viewers, the costs shall be adjudged against the county; otherwise the same shall be adjudged against the appellant. Within five days after the entry of such judgment, the clerk or justice shall issue and return to the commissioners' court a certified copy of such judgment, to be filed with the papers pertaining to such ditch, and the same shall be entered by the commissioners' court as the judgment of said court, and thereafter the appellant shall be held for, or claim, as the case may be, the amount specified in said judgment. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 7004. Appropriation; construction.—The commissioners' court of such county may, at the next term thereof, after the filing of the report of the jury of viewers and the entry of the order approving the same, if the report be approved, make an order setting aside such portion of the road and bridge fund, and such portion of the special road and bridge fund, if any, as may be necessary for the construction of the ditch or ditches described in the report of the jury of viewers, and shall also enter an order to the overseer or overseers of the road adjoining said ditch or ditches, or to the supervisor of the road, or to the road commissioner, commanding him to construct such ditch or ditches in accordance with the specifications of the surveyor, which shall be turned over to him for his information, and that the earth taken therefrom shall be used in making a raised road adjoining said ditch or ditches; and the court shall further order that all the road hands apportioned to said road, and that any teams, tools or materials belonging to the county, and necessary to the execution of such work, be apportioned to said overseer, supervisor, or commissioner, for the completion thereof; and shall authorize such overseer, supervisor, or commissioner, to employ such additional labor and teams, and to purchase tools and implements as may be necessary, to be paid for out of the road and bridge fund set aside therefor, on the order of the commissioners' court, and the said order shall further show the amount of compensation to be allowed to the said overseer, supervisor, or road commissioner for his services. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 7005. Special overseer employed, when; duties, powers and compensation.—The commissioners' court may employ some suitable and competent person, other than the overseer, road commissioner or supervisor, if to the best interest of the county, and such person shall have the same powers, duties, and responsibilities as provided for overseers, road commissioners, and supervisors in the preceding article, and the court shall enter an order showing the amount of compensation to be paid him for his services. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 7006. List of assessments; certificates to issue.—At the same or at any succeeding term after the entry of the order for the construction of the ditches and roadway, as provided in article 7004 of this chapter, the commissioners' court shall make and enter upon the minutes of the court a list showing the names of the owners, amounts due, the tract of land, original grantees, number of acres covered by each assessment of expense, as made and reported by the jury of viewers, and as approved by the court; and the county clerk shall issue a certificate against each person on said list showing the amount of such assessment, and for what ditch or road the same was issued, and the tract of land on which said amount was assessed; which certificate shall be signed by the county judge in open court, and attested under the hand and seal of the said county clerk, which fact shall be noted upon the minutes of said court. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 7007. County treasurer to collect on certificates.—The county judge shall deliver the certificate to the county treasurer, taking his receipt therefor, which shall be filed with the papers and archives concerning such ditch; and the county treasurer shall collect the sums due on such certificates, and deposit the amount so collected to the credit of the road and bridge fund. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 7008. Enforcement by suit.—In case any person against whom any such certificate may be issued shall fail or refuse to pay the same to the county treasurer on demand therefor, such treasurer shall turn same over to the county attorney, who shall at once file suit thereon, and have the lien on said land, herein provided for, foreclosed, or for a personal judgment, as may be lawful. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 7009. Operates a lien.—All assessments, sums, and charges by the said viewers, or order of court, assessed against any lands or land and the owner or owners thereof, shall be a lien thereon, unless prohibited by the constitution of this state, and the same shall be collected in the manner provided in the preceding article; and any damages for compensation awarded by said jury of viewers to any land owner, on the order of the court, shall be paid out of the county treasury on the order of said court, from the fund set aside for the construction of such ditch or ditches. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 7010. Compensation of viewers and surveyor.—The said jury of viewers shall each receive the sum of three dollars per day as compensation for their services for each day so actually engaged; and said surveyor and engineer shall receive as compensation such sum as may be allowed by the commissioners’ court. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 7011. Lateral ditches.—Any owner of lands or tracts of land abutting on said road or ditch, or the owner of any tract of land lying wholly or partially within one mile of such road or ditch, may construct lateral drainage ditches and connect the same with such main ditch or ditches as shall be constructed under the provisions of this chapter, provided the same be done at his own cost. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 7012. This chapter cumulative.—The provisions of this chapter shall be cumulative to all other provisions of law, and shall not be held to repeal any existing law upon the subject of drainage. [Id. sec. 23.]

CHAPTER NINE

BRIDGES

[For taxes for bridge purposes, see title “County Finances,” Title 23, Chapter 1.]

Art. 7013. Overseers shall have bridges built, when, etc. [4791]—Overseers of roads shall cause bridges to be erected across all such water courses and other places as may appear to them necessary and expedient; and should there be a water course or other place that requires a bridge, dividing any two road precincts, the overseer of each of such precincts, together with their hands, shall meet at the same time and place to construct such bridge, and the overseer chosen by a majority of the hands present shall superintend the building of such bridge until finished. [Act July 29, 1876, p. 67, sec. 20.]

Art. 7014. Commissioners’ court, power to have bridges built, etc. [4792]—The commissioners’ court shall have full power and authority to cause all necessary bridges to be built and kept in repair in their respective counties, and to make appropriations of money of the county therefor, when necessary. [Act July 22, 1876, p. 51, sec. 4.]

In general.—A county is authorized by this article to cause all necessary bridges to be built. Where plans for a bridge have been adopted by the commissioners’ court and bids asked for, and afterwards other plans have been substituted for the original without the knowledge of the county authorities and are on file when the contract is made and the contract is made with reference to the “plans on file” the county is bound by the contract in the absence of proof of fraud on the part of the other party to the contract as to the illegal substitution. Webb County v. Hasle, 52 C. A. 16, 113 S. W. 188.

Rights on repairing bridges over canals.—Under this article and Art. 5066, on a canal company's refusal to comply with its duty under Art. 5066, the county can make the repairs and enforce reimbursement from the company therefor without first applying for mandamus to compel the company to make them. Orange County v. Cow Bayou Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 963.
Art. 7015. [4793] May contract for building of toll bridges.—The commissioners' courts through whose county large creeks or water courses shall pass, over which it may be too burdensome for the over-seers, with the hands apportioned to them to work on roads, to build bridges, may contract with a proper person or persons to build a toll bridge, for which the court shall lay the toll to be levied on all persons, cattle, horses, carriages, etc., passing over the same, to be granted to the undertaker for such a number of years as the said court may think proper, not to exceed ten years; and the builder or builders and their successors shall keep the bridge in constant repair during the term of the contract, and in default thereof shall forfeit all right and claim to the toll of such bridges. [Act Dec. 20, 1836; P. D. 5244.]

Art. 7016. [4794] Shall take security from contractor to keep bridges in repair, etc.—The commissioners' court, before granting a license to any person to build a toll bridge, shall take bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, with good and sufficient sureties, conditioned that the undertaker or undertakers shall build and keep in constant repair the bridges so contemplated for the term of years agreed upon between the undertaker or undertakers and the court; and, if any person or persons shall sustain damages in consequence of the owner or keeper of any toll bridge not having complied with the conditions of his bond, the person or persons so damaged may bring an action of debt against the owner or keeper of such toll bridge, on his or their bond, in the county in which such license was granted, and recover judgment for the damages so sustained. [Id. P. D. 5245.]

Art. 7017. [4795] When streams form dividing line of counties expense of bridge to be joint, etc.—Whenever any stream is the division line between counties, or when two or more counties are jointly interested in bridges, it shall be lawful for the counties so divided or interested to jointly erect bridges over said dividing stream, upon such equitable terms as the commissioners' court of each county interested may agree upon. [Act Nov. 28, 1871, p. 42; P. D. 5883.]

Art. 7018. [4796] Tolls assessed to pay bonds, etc.—Whenever any county bonds have been or may hereafter be issued for the purpose of building bridges, it shall be lawful for the commissioners' courts of the county or counties interested to assess and collect tolls on said bridges sufficient to pay the interest on bonds so issued; and, if thought proper, sufficient to pay the interest and create a sinking fund with which to pay the principal at maturity, all of which shall be done under such rules and regulations as the commissioners' courts of the counties interested may prescribe. [Id. P. D. 5884.]
